POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

For Congress. Having at all times tried to give the people of the Fourth District my best service, I hereby announce myself a candidate for re-nomination, subject to the decision of the Democratic primaries, Aug. 6, 1912.

For Circuit Judge. I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination on the Democratic ticket, for the office of Judge of Division No. 2 of the Circuit Court of Buchanan County, Missouri, subject to the decision of the voters at primary, to be held August 6, 1912.

REAL CAUSE IS SCARCITY.

Just as soon as cattle get scarce so that packers are compelled to pay famine or war prices for them some gink gets up and says the high prices are not due to short supply but to manipulation of the wicked packer.

WHY WE SHOULD FEAR BUGS.

The feeling of instinctive revulsion against parasites of all kinds which characterizes humanity generally, and which is due to something much more than the mere pain or annoyance that their bites might inflict, becomes more interesting as further discoveries show the role of such insects in the spread of disease.

FISH MARKET GLUTTED.

While the cost of living is mounting steadily and beef is bringing civil war prices, tons of fresh fish are being shipped daily from Fulton market, the headquarters of the New York fish trade, to be made into fertilizer.

MORE ALFALFA IN WISCONSIN

State Association to Determine Merits of Thick and Thin Planting. Madison, Wis., June 7.—Over 500 enthusiastic alfalfa growers who are members of the Alfalfa Order of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment station will grow a total of about 2,000 acres of alfalfa this year.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Gas Lamp That Bragged Too Much

Daddy had told Jack and Evelyn that while pillow fights might be highly amusing children who liked a bedtime story must keep quiet or do without the story. So Jack and Evelyn settled down and daddy began: "Out in the street it is very dark at night; so dark that it was not for the street lights people who must be out might have some trouble in getting about."

Mother of Six Fine Babies Glad to Receive Advice of State Board. Dr. J. N. MASSACHUSETTS GAME FARM.

A game farm of between 5,000 and 6,000 acres in Carver and Plymouth has been acquired by the American Game Protective and Propagation association on a ten years lease, with option or purchase, and elaborate experiments are proposed for conserving the wild life of the New England forests and waters.

GATHERED IN TWELVE-POUND TROUT.

What is said to be the largest trout caught in Montana streams was received from J. W. Scott, proprietor of the hotel at Arnsstead. It weighed 13 pounds, 8 ounces. From tip of tail to mouth it measured nearly three feet in length, a yardstick extending an inch at each end when laid beside the catch—it was 15 inches around the fish, measuring over the back fins.

KEEPS OUT OF WATER NOW

Gander With Fishing Line Tied to His Leg Has Lively Time With Pickeral.

A Wisconsin gander was so upset by experiments made upon and through him by a mischievous boy that for a long time he would not go into the water.

The gander's determination to abstain from water as a means of bathing grew out of the following circumstances: The boy thought he would tie a fishing-line to the gander's leg and with a hook properly baited turn the bird out into the water.

The gander went into the mill pond, where he swam around for half an hour, turning "flip-flops" and diving for food. Suddenly he felt a pull at his leg and looked as surprised as the "lone fisherman" when he caught a whale.

The gander concluded that there was something the matter, and he looked to ascertain the cause. The pickeral on the hook gave several jerks, whereupon the gander decided that he wanted to go home.

He at once started for the shore, but the pickeral on the hook wanted to go the other way. The gander seemed frightened at first. Then he evinced signs of anger and tried to fly to shore, but the pickeral pulled him back.

After half an hour of the hardest work he had ever done, the gander came ashore dragging a six-pound pickeral up the bank.

The boy took off the pickeral and baited the hook with another frog. He tried to induce the gander to go in for another swim, but no amount of persuasion could get the bird to do so. He simply could not be driven in. For many weeks the gander would not go into the water. He would proceed with the rest of his flock to the water's edge, but there he would stop. He would seem to be arguing with them with reference to the danger they were courting.

Companions in Misery

By Edmund Moberly (Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

The quarrel was short, but decisive. "I don't want you to think me unduly captious, Fred; but I must say that you have been exhibiting more fondness for Anita Ferguson this evening than is becoming in an engaged man," said Miss Helen Stagg, with as much calmness as she could muster.

"Nonsense, Helen. We've been having a little good-natured fun, but neither of us has for a moment lost sight of the fact that she is engaged to Harry French and I am engaged to you," replied Frederick Drayton.

"Well, if you haven't lost sight of it, you've both managed to keep it pretty well in the background," retorted Miss Stagg. "Your good-natured fun, as you call it, seems to me to be in very poor taste, and I must insist that you, for your part, discontinue it."

As he approached a secluded corner at the far end, he observed that someone was already there. In the darkness he could see a dim, white figure reclining disconsolately in the depths of a settee.

"Oh, You Don't!" Less than ten minutes ago Helen informed me that ours had ceased to exist. "She didn't, Fred!" "Oh, but she did—and all on account of you. She declared that I showed more fondness for you than was becoming in an engaged man, and demanded that I comport myself more in accordance with her ideas of decorum. I questioned her right to make such a demand, and bingo!—the engagement was off and Helen was out in the middle of the floor waltzing with Tommy Osborne before I could get my breath."

"Our conduct this evening seems to have been dreadfully improper, Fred. It is likewise at the bottom of my trouble. To begin with, Harry has never liked you very much, as you must know."

"I confess I have never been scorched by the warmth of his regard," responded Drayton. "Well, tonight, when he saw us having a good time, it made him simply rabid. He said a lot of mean, sarcastic things about you, and finally informed me that I was too feather-brained ever to attain the dignity and responsibility fitting in one presiding over a domestic establishment. I reported that he need give himself no worry; for I would never preside over him—and then I somehow managed to find my way out here."

"And here we are, companions in misery," said Drayton, with forced lightness. "What shall we do—hunt them up and say we're sorry?" "I will not say I'm sorry," declared Miss Ferguson. "Well, then, shall we make them say they're sorry?" "Do you think we could?" she asked eagerly. "Surely. They'll both say they're sorry inside of a month, if we carry out a little plan I have."

DEADBEATS OF ONE PATTERN

Veteran Credit Man Says They All Talk Alike and Try Same Tricks.

"Deadbeats," remarked an old credit man, "all talk alike. They are plausible to start with," he went on, "and are so free and easy they deceive every one but the most astute credit man. When they are dunned the first time they make a frank and positive promise to pay on a certain date. They do this so unreservedly that suspicion is disarmed. Of course they don't pay—but they have some of the best excuses in the world. They have had a run of hard luck, for instance. If the merchant takes this well, they will ask for more credit. If the merchant is obturate they will come back with the statement that the merchant is making it unnecessarily hard for them to get along by crowding them; they will hint, also, that others have been soliciting their trade."

"Right there is the time to come down on them hard. Shut off their credit. Usually it is useless to sue, for such persons are judgment proof. The next move is to let them think you have forgotten them. They always are on the watch for the man who keeps nagging them all the time, but they grow careless of the man who leaves them alone. Some day they will leave an opening so that something can be attached or levied on, and then is the time to jump in and get your money."

"A favorite trick of the deadbeat is to offer his note for the account. These fellows think nothing of giving their notes. They would buy the continent of Asia if they could give their notes for it, and would clean up a fortune and get out of paying the note. Just listen to one of these deadbeats talk, remember what he says, and when the next one strikes you his language will be identical. It is almost as if it were the fixed ritual of their order."

PARISH SPLIT OVER LATIN

French and Germans of Metz at War Over the Proper Sound of "U."

The proper method of pronouncing Latin has long been a matter of controversy among the learned, but it is startling to find an entire parish disorganized by the question. This is the case in the parish of St. Maximin's, in Metz.

The old clergy of Alsace-Lorraine were brought up under French influence, and are accustomed to pronounce the church Latin with the soft French "u." The younger generation has been taught in the schools to pronounce the "u" full, according to the German and Italian manner.

Yesterday the choir of St. Maximin's pronounced the Latin of the pieces sung at mass in the German way. The parish priest, an old man, solemnly rebuked them, and they shut up their music books and left the church. Probably the clergyman found the new pronunciation grated on his ears, and his outburst was due to the sensitiveness of a scholar.

The parishioners, however, are not scholars, and are now divided into two camps—those who maintain that as Metz is now a German city, the choir is doing the work of German officials and attempting to destroy French influence.—New York Tribune.

The Slayer of Miacco. One of the most peculiar cases ever brought to the attention of the court of first instance recently came to light in Pangasinan Province. Pedro Pabara, with two others, was accused of the murder of Bernabe Laco, and on being brought to trial the first pleaded guilty, there being an aggravating circumstance of treachery, and was sentenced to 20 years in Bilibid.

ARMOR IN COLONIAL AMERICA

Worn Not Infrequently in the Early Days and Was Richly Wrought and Decorated.

"Armor worn, worn for service, in America! I don't believe it." This from a distinguished visitor who stood in front of one of the cases in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. "Why my dear fellow, we never had these medieval people in our country." But the fact is, none the less, that we did wear armor not infrequently in the early days, and that in some instances, at least, the armor was richly wrought and decorated, says a recent issue of the Bulletin of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

It was, of course, only in the earliest Colonial times that armor was worn regularly. In the Spanish colonies it was in constant service during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. In deed, it was due to their complete panoply that Pizarro and Cortez, with their handful of adventurers, routed hostile armies. That horse armor was then used, and largely used, is incontrovertible, and the condition of panic caused among the Indians by the invulnerability of the Spaniard cannot be given too much weight in the study of the conquest. With armored horses the invaders rode down masses of natives, and the invention of the stirrup of the conquistadores had its grim use in such a struggle. It was a stirrup of great weight with wide flanges at the sides and base, and the horseman could swing it fatally as he galloped through crowded squares. This type of stirrup survived in a decadent form until the early nineteenth century; its projecting flanges were retained only as space for decoration, and it is more than probable that those who later rode with such a stirrup knew little of its ancient use.

Rough and Ready, Cal., is lucky enough to have for registrars of voters Miss Mamie Morrison, an expert horsewoman who is highly popular, and she has made a new record by hunting up every voter in her bailiwick, spending ten hours a day in the saddle. She takes her book to county dances, too, and not a man or woman escapes without registering.—Indianapolis News.

Special Announcement

THE wide-awake St. Joseph merchants have always courted the patronage of the residents of the rural communities, and have for this reason used the columns of this paper to present their sale selections to our readers.

Now that the Interstate Livestock show has been abandoned and it is feared that they will miss your friendship at such a time, they have requested The Stock Yards Daily Journal to give them publicity in their several requests and it is therefore promised that on each Friday and Saturday until October 1 they will place on sale some special sales bargain for your consideration.

They desire to get better acquainted with you and feel that this can be accomplished by more frequent visits from you. The members of the retail Merchants Ass'n cheerfully rebate your railroad fares and the standing of merchants using this advertising feature in the Journal on Mondays and Wednesdays of each week is a guarantee that mail orders will be given personal careful attention.

Please remember these are special articles of seasonable needs placed at your inspection for selling at the lowest possible prices. Only firms of unblemished commercial standing will be allowed representation therein.

WIFE IS LUMBERJACK

Mrs. Gregory Is Best Man In Maine Camp.

Mrs. Gregory first entered the employ of Mr. Bacheider to provide meals for the 14 men in the camp. This she was able to do and have half a day left, and she asked permission of Mr. Bacheider to take her place with the choppers.

Manchester, N. H.—Woodbury Bacheider of this city, engaged in the lumber business at Damariscotta, Me., has in his employ a most remarkable woman as regards strength and endurance. She is Mary Gregory, wife of Frank Gregory.

"She is the strongest woman I ever saw," Bacheider says. "No sooner does she fell a tree than she is on top of it limbing it out, and in every line of work she is the equal of the men in camp. She handles a crosscut saw with all the skill of a man, and not a laborer in the camp can surpass her in the amount of work accomplished."

Mrs. Gregory is 35 years old, weighs about 175, stands 5 feet 8 inches, and is as quick as a flash. She is fond of sport and expert as a wrestler. Mr. Bacheider says he has yet to see a man in camp who can match her at wrestling. She is not afraid to try conclusions with any of them. She has put every man who has been willing to wrestle her on his back and yet is modest in speech and manner, the mother of seven children, a native of Nova Scotia, and prior to making her home in the Maine woods lived in Massachusetts.

Her husband works in the woods with her, but is far from being her equal in strength.

PLAN HUGE OFFICE BUILDING

New York Skyscraper in Park Row Rises 750 Feet in Air Will Cost $13,500,000.

New York.—The tallest habitable building in the world is going up on Broadway, between Barclay street and Park row. It will weigh 250,000,000 tons. It rests on sixty-nine pillars of cement, reaching down to solid rock from the street level.

This building, the tower light of which, 750 feet in the air, will be seen ninety-six miles out at sea, has in it 20,000 tons of structural steel. Forty-five thousand dollars' worth of glass has already been ordered for windows and doors and skylights. In the walls and floors are to be more than 30,000 square feet of hollow tiling and terra cotta. The cement order will run into the tens of thousands of bags.

On the weekly pay roll is a regiment of men from mere lifting and carrying laborers to the circus performing iron workers who play around at 700 feet in the air on slender steel beams like orioles on an elm bough. Their wages run from $1.50 a day for the laborers to $4.50 and upward, and the pay roll is $5,000 a day. This has been going on for two years.

The 30,000 square feet of land on which the building stands cost about $4,500,000. It cost $1,000,000 to dig out the foundations and the basement and sub-basements. The cost of construction will be nearly $9,000,000, making the whole pile an investment of approximately $13,500,000. The mere knowledge that such a building was to be erected on the spot caused the tax assessments on the property to be raised from $2,250,000 to $3,200,000.

BEARD CUT BETRAYS CONVICT

Promoter, in Seattle Federal Prison, Proved to Be an Old Offender.

Seattle, Wash.—Clarence Dayton Hillman, millionaire townsite promoter, serving 30 months in the federal prison for using the mails to defraud, has been revealed by the shears of the prison barber as No. 11715, a San Francisco roguish gallery, a produce dealer, sentenced in 1895 for swindling farmers. Special agents of the department of justice, the two years since his indictment, have searched for his identification with a previous crime. His identity was hidden by his whiskers.

Disembodied by Plane Rope.

Mahanoy City, Pa.—Caught up by a swirling rope while at play on the dirt plane of the Buck Mountain colliery, Annie and Sabina Sockel, aged eight and twelve years, respectively, were crushed and dragged half the distance of the plane.

The elder of the two children had her right hand and left leg torn off, and the other lost both legs. Both will die.

HYMNS SAVED HIS LIFE

Minister When Cornered by Savage Animals Starts Singing and is Spared.

New York.—The Rev. John Daniel McEwen, explorer and missionary, who has just returned to civilization after 12 years spent in the Brazilian wilderness of the state of Bahia, has uncovered a new use for Moody and Sankey hymns. Said Mr. McEwen: "This wonderful how those Moody and Sankey hymns will stand a man in good stead when he is roaming about a wild country."

"Why, one day I was riding through the deep wood on my horse, when I heard the howl of savage wolves, and I saw a pack of them dashing down on me to devour me. I was unarmed. First I bethought me to dismount and get a club, but then says I to myself: 'What earthly good would the club be against all those rapacious wolves? They would eat me up, horse, stick and all.' Frightened out of my wits, it suddenly came to me to try one of those wonderful Moody and Sankey hymns."

"Scarcely had my voice rung out into the night with the first few lines than the wolves stood still. By the time I had finished the chorus—would you believe it, man—there was a crashing and a rushing in the woods. Those wolves had turned tail and were running away from me as hard as they could, yelping like whipped puppies."

"I think they reasoned: 'The report of a gun I know, and the howling of other wild beasts I know, but what on earth is this?'"

"On another occasion I was riding along, singing one of the Moody and Sankey favorites, 'Will You Go? Will You Go to the Eden Above?' to keep up my courage. Rounding a turn suddenly, I came upon a group of resting soldiers. They had flung up their hands in astonishment and, believe me or not, as you like, even the mules' ears were up in the air."

OFFICIALS CAN'T HELP BRIDE

Miss Lubin, Who Wants to Marry an Italian, Must Appeal to Her Own State.

Washington, D. C.—Only by the indorsement of initiative action taken by the state of California could the state department here lend its aid to facilitate the marriage at Rome between Miss Evangeline Lubin, daughter of Mr. David Lubin of Sacramento, American delegate to the Institute of Agriculture, and Signor Silenzi.

The "no impediment" declaration which the Italian government demands, as told in a cable dispatch, promises to again involve the United States government in its familiar task of smoothing the matrimonial pathway.

Mr. Lubin had a talk with Mr. Huntington Wilson, acting secretary of state, just before he left here on April 24. Mr. Wilson intimated that nothing was said at this conference about the marriage of Miss Lubin.

The state department is not surprised at the attitude taken by Italy in asking for a "no impediment" declaration for the reason that Italy, and other foreign governments, in fact, frequently make this demand before sanctioning international marriages. The "no impediment" statement is simply a declaration under legal form that no reason exists why the American party to the contract should not marry.

The United States government by the demand of Italy is placed in the position of being asked to take action which it legally has not the right to take, as marriage laws depend on the state laws of the different states. It was explained at the state department that as Miss Lubin is a native of California, a "no impediment" statement must come from the state of California.

BOY SAVES CHILD'S LIFE

John Crumlish, Aged 14, Rescues Unconscious Four-Year-Old From Drowning.

Wilmington, Del.—John Crumlish, aged 14, of No. 510 West Fourteenth street, proved himself a hero by saving Clark Vernon, aged four, No. 1229 Tatalnall street, from what seemed certain death by drowning in the south race in Brandywine Park. Vernon, with several small boys and girls, wandered from home and into the park, and while playing near the water Vernon fell from the retaining wall. The swift current was carrying him away when Crumlish was attracted by the cries of the drowning boy's companions.

Crumlish ran to the wall, saw the drowning boy and plunged into the water. He caught Vernon and had a hard struggle to get back to land. Vernon was unconscious, so Crumlish carried him home, where a physician revived him.

Saws Off Arm, but Lives.

York, Pa.—Falling upon the sliding carriage of the circular saw he was operating near Getchellville, this county, Elmer Pentz of Harrisburg had his right arm cleanly severed at the elbow, and barely escaped a horrible death.

Pentz was hit by the log upon the carriage and his body in some manner became wedged in front of it. He noted his peril and in the short time given him he managed to shift his body out of the course of the revolving blade; but to do so he had to sacrifice the arm.

Other workmen saved him from bleeding to death by making a tourniquet from a handkerchief.

CONVICTS ON THEIR HONOR

Unguarded Lansing, Kan., Prisoners Will Build Better Highways.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 7.—One hundred convicts of the state prison at Lansing will be engaged in road improvement work before the end of June. Twenty will be assigned to the Lansing-Kansas City, Kan., road, while others will begin work on the Leavenworth-Kansas City river road, the construction of which by convict labor was authorized during the last session of the state legislature.

It is said to be the intention to place no guards over the convicts engaged on the river road work, Warden Colding preferring to place the men on their honor not to escape. The men will live in camps near where they are employed. Leavenworth and Wyandotte counties and the state are co-operating to make these roads the best in the middle west. Free convict labor makes this possible without great expense.

DRY FARMING IN PALESTINE

Canadians to Be Told of System at Coming Congress.

Lethbridge, Alb., Canada, June 7.—Dr. Aaron Aaronsohn, managing director of the Jewish agricultural experiment station at Haifa, Palestine, has accepted an invitation of the Canadian board of control of the International Dry Farming congress to attend the seventh congress at Lethbridge next October, and to make an address on the dry farming development in Turkey.

"Dr. Aaronsohn will bring a large exhibit of the different products grown under dry farming methods in the new experimental fields which are now being conducted about Jerusalem. Dr. Aaronsohn reports that the precipitation in large portions of Palestine is less than six inches annually, and through conservation of moisture, deep plowing and scientific tilling the best wheat, barley, and summer have been raised, while leguminous plants have been grown successfully."

SAM KAHN THE STETSON HAT STORE

818 PELIX STREET ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI

It was a Hat, Not an Orange.
One day Mildred, who is two and one-half years old, came out and, as her mother had gone down town to get her a new hat, I asked her what color her mother's hat was. I said: "Is it green, blue, white, red or orange?" She answered: "It ain't no orange; it's a hat."—Chicago Tribune.

He is Mr. Alphabet Still.
The petition of a Stamford, Conn., jeweler to have his name changed from Sigismund Kronholz to Kron was denied by Judge Curtis of the superior court at Bridgeport. The plaintiff said every one called him Kron and that his own name was too long for a display sign over his store.
