POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

For Congress. Having at all times tried to give the people of the Fourth District my best service, I hereby announce myself a candidate for re-nomination, subject to the decision of the Democratic primaries, Aug. 5, 1912. CHARLES F. BOOHER.

For Circuit Judge. I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination, on the Democratic ticket, for the office of Judge of Division No. 2 of the Circuit Court of Buchanan County, Missouri, subject to the decision of the voters at primary, to be held August 6, 1912. Orestes Mitchell.

LAWYERS VS. FARMERS.

In every large city in the land young men are starving, wasting their lives away trying to make a living as lawyers, preachers and doctors, says the Omaha Journal-Stockman. The professions are all overcrowded and there is no immediate necessity for additional recruits for these supposedly genteel lines of work. Still the colleges of the country are busy preparing men for these professions and incidentally spoiling them for the more useful, gainful and productive positions. Contrast this with the work being done by the agricultural schools where every student is practically assured of a good position long before he graduates. There is no danger of the farming profession ever being overcrowded and if there were more candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Farming there would be less complaint concerning the high cost of living. Our whole educational system is wrong in magnifying the collars and cuffs professions while belittling the shirt sleeve profession and it is about time for a change. The fossils who are responsible for our present system cannot be expected to advocate any change and it is simply up to the young men and women of the country to assert themselves, to break away from the traditions of centuries and prepare themselves for useful lives rather than for positions of doubtful benefit to humanity and in which even existence is more or less precarious and uncertain.

SILOS FOR SURPLUS.

Production of forage feeds give promise of exceeding all records in the southwest the present season. Acres in this section are large, kafir corn, for instance, showing a gain of 25 per cent over last year in Kansas. Weather conditions have been almost ideal for this crop.

It is a noteworthy fact that while the fine prospects for forage are quite generally appreciated by growers, no one has walled over the possibility of a superabundance and the danger of low prices. The southwestern supply of forage and other feeds at the opening of spring was probably the smallest in years, and growers realize that they have many "holes" to fill up. Another feature of the forage outlook that makes growers look with unusual favor on the bright forage prospects is the great increase in the number of silos erected or being erected in the southwest. Texas ranchmen are building feed preservers with capacities of 500 to 700 tons. These wonderful storehouses of feed will make it possible to save the abundant forage yields now indicated for lean periods of the next two to five years.

Farmers who have not reached definite decisions to erect a silo should be influenced to immediate action by the feed prospects. There is indeed assurance of a plentiful supply of feed to store in them. A silo will generally pay for itself on a farm in two years, but indications just now are that a silo erected this summer will do even better. The silos in the southwest will add enormously to the value of the 1912 feed output in this territory, for they will make unnecessary the flooding of feed markets and the sheer waste of large quantities.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Artful Donkey in the Lion's Skin

Mrs. Leo Sprang at the Donkey. THE lion is a very fine animal, even when you see him in a cage in the circus, and, going to bed, Jack had been annoying Evelyn by stealing up behind her and roaring just like the lion. "Once upon a time," began daddy, "there lived in the fields near a fine jungle where many lions made their home a little gray donkey. "Now, this donkey was not satisfied with being just a donkey and drawing his master's little cart of vegetables to market and enjoying a comfortable home and nice meals. "Neddy wanted to be a lion, and he tried to imitate the air and walk of a lion he had once seen. He fancied that his bray sounded like a lion's roar. All the farmyard animals laughed at him, which made him very cross. "One day a hunter who had shot a lion stopped at his master's house with the lion skin. While the stranger was at dinner Neddy stole out to where the skin lay and slipped into it. Then he ran off toward the forest, frightening foolish hens and geese and amazing the more sensible animals. "When he reached the edge of the fields he met the old black sheep who led his master's flocks. "'G-r-r-u-u' brayed the donkey. "'Near the woods he met Mr. Fox. "'Why, it's that stupid old donkey that brays whenever I come about the farmhouse at night. What's he doing running around in the skin of old Leo? Mr. Fox said to himself. "Leo was the old lion which had been shot by the hunter. His relatives in the forest were very angry about his death. "'G-r-r-u-u' brayed the donkey. "'Ab, good evening, Mr. Leo!' the fox said slyly. "The donkey was greatly pleased. 'Glad to meet you, sir,' replied the donkey. "'There are some of your relations over there looking for you,' the fox went on, thinking that the donkey would turn and run home. "But the foolish donkey was so sure that the lions would gladly welcome him and never suspect that he was not one of themselves that he went trotting off toward a brook where some of the animals were drinking. "There he comes, the monster, dressed in my poor dear husband's skin!" roared Mrs. Leo, and she made a leap that landed her on the donkey's neck. "That was all. The next day the farmer, who went out to hunt for Neddy, found the lion's skin behind the donkey's skin in the woods."

COWS' POTENTIAL INFLUENCE.

Kansas Farmer: Most potent of all influences in the building of this, the mightiest nation in history, is the cow. Her sons drew the plows which first cultivated the land of the new world; hauled to market the products of the field, and with slow energy moved the chattels and household goods beyond the mountains to new homes in the farther west. They supplied the beef which is the food of the Anglo-Saxon, a race that was never conquered since history began. They furnished the shoes of the pioneers who trod the unknown wilds and made of them the farmsteads and cities of our enlightenment. They gave the clothes and robes to protect the pioneer against the destroying blasts of winter and made commerce possible before the railroad was. They covered the chair upon which he sat, filled the mattress upon which he slept and glued together the furniture he used. The old cow is the mother of the whole bovine and foster mother of half the human race. From the roadside weed she manufactures the most nourishing of human foods. She is the ready aid of the farmer, the pet of the rich man and the ever present help of the poor. She is the economist of the people and the conservator of their resources. She partakes of the grass of the field and leaves the farm the richer for her presence. As she helped to develop the farm from the wilderness and as she ate of its first fruits, so she will renew the life of the soil and make a still greater agriculture possible. In all our history the cow has been man's closest friend and benefactor. Upon her products are built the great business interests which center in the stock yards, the creameries, the shoe factories, the harness shops and the mills. Without her Chicago would be a village and Kansas a prairie waste. Take away the cow and our banks would close, our graveyards yawn and the wheels of commerce would cease to turn. Foster and care for her and business flourishes, the fertility of the soil is conserved and she becomes the custodian of the nation's prosperity.

FISH STRANDED IN KANSAS

Tons Caught After Overflow in Ponds Along Big Stranger Creek. Leavenworth, Kan., June 18.—There are thousands of fish in the ponds and small lakes that were formed along Big Stranger when the stream overflowed several weeks ago that will die within a short time, was the declaration of J. G. Hitzeman, who was in the city from Stranger Township recently. When the stream leaves its banks it follows the outgoing current in search of food, and when the water recedes many of them are left in the ponds. They are easily caught as the water gradually evaporates and many fishermen reap a rich harvest from this source. "In all the years of my residence along Stranger, I never knew the fish to be so plentiful in the overflow ponds as they have been this spring," said Mr. Hitzeman. "The big rain that came early in May brought the fish upstream in schools, and as the creek went out of its banks the fish took to the ponds. A large portion of them never got back into the channel and are now penned up in the rapidly drying pond. My boys have been catching big fine catfish by the tubful. "But the supply will not last long," declared Mr. Hitzeman. "There is no source of water for these ponds, and unless another overflow comes to liberate them, there will be tons of fish that will perish before the summer is half over. It seems to me that while the state is saving fish at the spot, by replenishing the streams, it is wasting them at the bungehole, not protecting what it already has. It really seems a shame to let those fish die. A little work on the part of the state in seining them out and replacing them in the streams would mean a big saving."

GYPSIES BUY PONIES.

Kansas Farm Owner Doesn't Understand Nomads' Patronage. Lexington, Ky., June 18.—Nomads of this state are credited with being fairly wise in the horse business, but none of the men who buy and sell horses is able to figure out the move made by a band of gypsies who came with covered wagons from a camp in Tennessee, inquired the way to the Penkmen farm, owned by Maj. L. C. Price, and proceeded to buy $1,000 worth of his Shetland ponies without haggling over the price or offering to make a trade.

and Mal. Price, desiring to keep a record, asked the purchasers for their address. This caused a conference, at the end of which the king told Mal. Price that he and his tribe had no address. He also said if the Major had no objections they would like to come back next year and buy any ponies for sale at that time. Generally the breeder of Shetland ponies has to look for purchasers and none of those who breed these little animals around here understand what a typos wants with them or why the hand bought so many without quibbling over the price.

SHE WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Iowa Lady Escapes the Surgeon's Knife. United Doctors Cured Her Gallstones Without Surgery. It will be interesting news to thousands of sufferers from gallstone trouble that at least a system of treatment has been discovered which not only dissolves gallstones but also heals the gall ducts and restores the liver to normal healthy condition. This discovery has been in use by the United Doctors in their various institutes in the United States for several years, and their success has been wonderful. Hundreds of cured patients testify to the marvelous results obtained from this system of cure. In these days surgery has become so great a fad that a visit to a surgeon with a pain in one's side usually means an immediate operation. The value of surgery in conditions where a resort to the knife is absolutely necessary is not to be depreciated, but amidst the daily stories we hear of how these evils were escaped by a sufferer living near us, Orson, Iowa, May 14, 1912. Dear United Doctors: As I have not had any more attacks of gallstones I have concluded to stop your medicine and see how I will get along. Thanking you very much for the good you have done me. Before taking your medicine my sufferings were most intense and now I can eat a good meal and do a good day's work and will praise your medicine to any sufferer of gallstones. You can use a part of this letter if you wish. As ever your friend, (Signed) MRS. G. E. LESTER. The United Doctors, whose St. Joseph institute is located at 720 Felix street, second floor, are having remarkable success in the treatment and cure of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys, blood and nerves. The fact that they accept no incurable cases for cure, and the further fact that they charge nothing for examination makes it always safe to consult them.

DEER CARRIED OVER FALLS

Many People See Buck Swept Down 280 Foot Drop. Seattle, Wash., June 18.—Visitors at Snoqualmie Falls and workmen at the river banks saw a deer carried over the 280-foot drop. The animal survived long enough to swim to the shore below the falls, but died soon afterwards. The deer, a handsome buck, first was seen trying to swim across the river a short distance above the dam. Bystanders, realizing his peril, shouted, trying to frighten him back but he kept coming down the stream until the strong current caught him. One pound of cottonseed meal may be fed daily to a horse, but it should be mixed with other feeds.

Great Manufacturers' Outlet Sale of Wash Dresses and Suits. Next Friday marks the opening of one of the greatest Wash Dress and Suit Sales ever held anywhere. The backward season—due to the unfavorable weather conditions—has forced manufacturers to dispose of their stock at any figure. Our ready-to-wear garment buyer, who has just returned from New York, made the best purchases possible—cash did it—and Friday will probably be the greatest wash dress day we've ever had. Every garment is cut in the very best styles and made splendidly from the very best colored materials—dainty tissues, dimities, linens, fine zephyr ginghams, striped voiles, batistes. Those in white are made from beautiful voiles, nets, mulls, fine lawns and lingerie effects. This is truly the greatest value-giving event we've ever launched and we sincerely hope that our many patrons will appreciate its merit. Emmanuel Catty's Radish

By B. L'Estrange

"Yes!" Emmanuel Catty sat up triumphantly. "With my patent manure I will grow the biggest radishes in the United States."

Emmanuel Catty was a recent emigrant to America. On the voyage thither he had become converted to vegetarianism, and henceforth intended to devote his life to the culture of vegetables, convinced that fame and fortune would crown his efforts.

Presently the only green things in the neighborhood were the leaves of the huge vegetable, which, in spite of the heat, continued to grow and prosper. People came from miles round to see the radish, till Emmanuel piled a huge barricade of old meat tins in front of it, and demanded a cent apiece for permission to look inside.

By this time scaffolding was erected, and the sides of the pit round the radish were studded up; the whole state had gone wild with excitement, and three leading newspapers had opened subscription lists for Emmanuel Catty to continue the work of extracting the radish.

There was a considerable demand for Catty's manure; but the cost of its manufacture was so great that it could not be sold at a profit. Perhaps it was just as well.

Missionaries Raise Coffee Price. A New England gentleman reports the receipt of a letter from a coffee planter in Brazil referring to complaints in this country concerning the high price of coffee.

Reward for Carefulness. A quaint paragraph appeared in the will of Mrs. Julie Hall of Brighton, England. At the reading of the will the other day it was found that she had bequeathed $500 to her coachman, provided he is in her service at her death, and "if I do not die through or from the effects of a carriage accident when he is the driver"

Colorado

When the radish walls were thick around them did they venture to continue their downward path. At last one day, when Catty was leading as usual, he again struck his pick through the radish wall.

"We have arrived!" cried Catty, grasping his companions' hands. "This is the end!"

Eagerly they enlarged the aperture, and crawled cautiously out. Behold, on every hand was the sea! The radish root had emerged somewhere to the south of India, and they were resting on a little island of radish in the midst of the Indian ocean.

As a matter of fact, it was a trail of smoke; but it issued from the funnels of a British steamer, and the captain took them off. He was a Scotsman, and his name was Macallister, and he utterly declined to believe in Catty's story.

Meantime, in America a close watch had been kept at the mouth of the mine. Five thousand seven hundred and eighty-two reporters were continually on the watch for news of the bold adventurer, Catty.

Passion on both sides ran high. The newspapers raged with denunciation of American greed and English treachery. The American ambassador was directed to withdraw from London, when the news spread that the radish tip had disappeared.

But meantime Emmanuel Catty had directed the attention of various scientists to the matter, and a little investigation showed that the disappearance was perfectly natural.

There was a considerable demand for Catty's manure; but the cost of its manufacture was so great that it could not be sold at a profit. Perhaps it was just as well.

WANT LANDS OPENED

NEW MEXICO BEGS FOR OPENING OF VAST NAVAJO RESERVATION TO SETTLERS.

IS AN INDEPENDENT TRIBE

Thus Far Secure In Its Holding Because It Is Almost a Desert. Over 3,000,000 Acres in Reservation.

Denver, Colo., June 18.—Almost the first act of the baby state of New Mexico was to petition congress to throw open to settlement the Navajo Indian reservation, and it is not unlikely that sufficient pressure will be brought to bear to mark the beginning of the inevitable invasion of this last citadel of the red man.

The Navajo has always dwelt in solitary grandeur in a desert land of magnificent distances. White men have passed by their stronghold for more favorable localities. But now the era of bonanza and gifts has passed in the West, and settlers are willing to accept lands that their forefathers passed by in contempt. Consequently the Navajo seems to be facing the time when he must accept white neighbors.

There are about 2,000,000 acres of Navajo land in New Mexico. There is much more in Arizona, and a slice of the reservation is in Utah. There are about 25,000 Navajos all told, and the New Mexicans say there are 1,200 acres of land for every Indian. They want each Indian given 160 acres of land, the remainder being thrown open to white ranchers and prospectors—for there is no silencing the rumor that the Navajo reservation contains gold in plenty.

It must be remembered, however, that most of the Navajo's land is worthless except for grazing purposes. The sparse grass of this desert country will not support many more sheep and cattle than are now grazing on it.

It is the general policy of the government, however, to throw open the Indian reservations as rapidly as this can be done without bringing ruin to the Indian. Wherever the Indians are deemed sufficiently advanced to be "assimilated" they are given individual allotments, and their excess land holdings pass into the hands of white settlers. In most cases this has not worked to the harm of the Indian. It is pretty generally recognized that the surest and best way to teach the average Indian to live the white man's life is to give him white neighbors.

But the Navajo is not an average Indian. The white man can teach him little or nothing about independence. In fact, there are more dependents in the average white community than among the Navajos. Some of the leading Navajos are wealthy in cattle and sheep. Nearly all of them have enough on which to "set along." The self-sustaining record of the tribe, in comparison with the begging habits of some other tribes, is sufficient to show the high plane on which the Navajo stands.

It must not be supposed, however, that the Navajo has remained insensible to outside influences. Since early days he has been bartering with the white man, numerous blanket trading establishments being scattered over the reservation, some of them having been in existence for many years. There are fine schools at Fort Defiance, Shiprock, Tuba City, Chip Lee, and other points on the reservation, where the younger generation of Navajos is being educated.

Recently the government created a new bureau in the Indian office for the purpose of aiding the Indian in getting on the land.

R. W. Shippe, who has been in the Indian service many years, has been given charge of this new industrial and agricultural division, and on visiting the Navajos recently he expressed himself as delighted with the progress the tribe was making along such lines.

In the fertile San Juan valley, where there is much land that can be reclaimed, there is a large irrigation project now under construction, which will give the San Juan Navajos about 5,000 to 7,000 acres of splendid farms. The water is taken out of the San Juan at the edge of the reservation, and through a system of ditches and flumes will water an extensive area of bench lands adjoining the San Juan of the Indian school at the Shiprock agency.

The San Juan valley is famed as one of the greatest fruit regions in the world, and several Navajos now have fine orchards. In fact, the Navajos are no strangers to fruit culture, as when Kit Carson journeyed up the canon de Chelly on his famous punitive expedition against the tribe in the '60s he destroyed many peach orchards which the Indians had been cultivating for years.

Horse racing and dancing are the chief amusements of the Navajo Indians. They will let their work lie neglected any day to attend a horse race or a Yabechi dance. Their dancing is part of a religious ceremonial, which is in charge of the medicine men, and which is an important part of Navajo life.

While the Navajo men and boys take care of the flocks and herds, the women actually own the property. It is the Navajo woman who has the final say as to the disposal of sheep and cattle. This is not the result of any recent movement in behalf of equal suffrage, but has obtained among the Navajos since time immemorial.

The question of the ancestry of the Navajos has always puzzled investigators. It is generally conceded that they belong to the Athabascan stock, which is scattered from Upper Canada to Old Mexico. The Navajos themselves have a tradition that their tribe was set down in the desert after a long journey in a great vessel. The ship itself is to be seen in the northern part of the Navajo reservation, where a rock, resembling a ghooner rigger ship in full sail, when viewed from certain angles, is known as Shiprock. About this rock cluster some of the most interesting and poetic of the Navajo legends.

One cannot see the Navajos at one of their ceremonial gatherings without being impressed with their Asiatic appearance. Some of the old men, with their slant eyes and long white mustaches, look as if they might have ridden in from the plains of Tibet. Of late years many Navajos have ventured into the reservation, lured by chances of employment under white men. In every case they have "made good." Charles E. Dagenett, who has charge of the government employments for Indians, says Navajo labor is in demand everywhere. The Navajo seems to work for low wages, but he can be depended to stay

Consignment Hides Steady

THE demand for hides has improved somewhat during the past week or two owing to better quality of stock being received. Grubs are disappearing and cattle are shedding liberally in some sections, thus improving the quality of the hides. No change in quotations for the coming week.

AS TO UNBREAKABLE GLASS.

From the London Chronicle: Unbreakable glass, for which there might be a demand just now, was invented nearly 2000 years ago, according to Petronius and Dion Cassius, though Pliny casts a doubt on the story. An artist appeared before Tiberius with a cup of glass which he dashed violently on the ground. It was neither broken nor cracked; but merely dented, like a piece of metal.

The emperor feared that such glass would terribly depreciate the value of the precious metal.

A thing worth knowing when one has to take bitter medicine is that a small pinch of salt will remove all taste of bitterness from the mouth.
