That's THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, and Here's the Proof in This Week's Issue

Knowing How About Hogs

If a man can raise hogs that are good enough to win the highest honors at the greatest livestock show in the world he must know something about what is good for a hog. That's what we thought when we asked H. T. Morgan to write us an article on what to put into a hog to get the most out of him. More than once Mr. Morgan has brought fat hogs to the International Livestock Exposition that won highest honors on foot and on the block. A hog that wins in the carcass contest has been fed rightly. Morgan knows how. Read his article.

A Lot of Little Worlds

Down in Maryland Nature has made a ragged job of the shore line. Every few miles there is a long inlet or estuary and boats run away up into the country to the farmer's produce. Farmers fifteen miles apart have different boat lines, and for that reason they don't get together as often as most farmers. Going across a river presents more difficulties than crossing the road—the hen stays on the other side, too. J. Russell Smith went down there and found that each little peninsula was a little world by itself, growing its own peculiar crops. He has written several articles about these rich little worlds that are surrounded by oyster beds. This is the first of the series.

My Little Farm

This is a story written by a man who is "his own boss" and who doesn't "believe in cutting wood with a buckaw." He came from England a poor man and settled in Canada. His first job was with a truck gardener, and he tells how he improved on his employer's methods and finally came to own a farm of his own. It is a simple story of a man who worked with his shirt and his mind open.

Eating Our Heads Off

That is what some of us are doing. Indigestion is the great American disease. It's a sneak. You go on peacefully eating until it creeps on you and makes you think something else is the matter with you. Heart disease, liver complaints, headaches, are usually only fancy disguises of indigestion. The human body is like a gasoline engine which, when loaded up on poor gasoline, gradually chokes up, slows down and stops. The farmer has the finest food available, but does he use it rightly? Dr. Roger J. Perkins tells of the evils of Pie and Fry.

The Cereal of The South

We have a growing rice industry. This food crop, the mainstay of several nations, can be grown to perfection on many adaptable lands in the Southern States. It is immensely profitable where well managed. It does not unduly exhaust the soil; it is a crop worth studying. Read about it in the article, "Where Rice is King," by F. G. Moorhead.

A Corn Cob Conservator

"The reason men succeed who mind their own business is because they have so little competition." This is the motto that hangs in the living-room of a Kansas farmer. He has minded his own business so well that he now owns a lot of rich prairie land and the biggest battery of silos in the country. He is one of those fellows who puts the oil where the squeak is. He says a mowing-machine ought to last fifteen years. His did. He doesn't waste his corn cobs, either. Charles Dillon has written a mighty interesting article on this man and his farm. You'll like it.

Cashing-In Farm Credit

The vital fact in all this rural credit agitation frequently overlooked is: What has the farmer to offer for the money he wants to borrow? How will he pay it back, even if the loan is for a long term of years? What secures the investment? What is the greatest asset of a farm? Why must methods be improved before cash will be forthcoming? These and a dozen other pertinent questions are answered by Mr. B. F. Harris, the Illinois farmer-banker. He knows the farmer's side because he runs a farm of his own; and he knows the banker's side because that is his chief business. What he says is fundamental and mighty important.

Sixteen Years of Plenty

Secretary James Wilson has directed the United States Department of Agriculture through a period of the greatest development of American farming. His report, just issued, is a historic document, tracing the expansion of agriculture through these years of increasing farm production. Read the summary. It is inspiring and suggestive, and a weathervane of the future of farming.

A Paragraph That Men Can Skip

During the coming year we shall devote more space to the ditto side of the household. And we shall do this, not by taking away anything from the man's department, but by increasing the size of the weekly. Space does not permit us to tell here all our plans for the countrywoman; but these plans include the woman's sphere from cellar to garret and from hedge-row to hedge-row; and her clothes from head to foot. In this number we begin a fashion department for women, which will appear fortnightly—oftener if there is a large demand for it. Nor shall we forget the woman's church and social life, her children and the schools.

EVERYMAN'S GARDEN Are you willing to pay a few cents a week for a year's instruction, telling you every week, almost in words of one syllable, what to do with that little garden of yours? You are too wrapped up in business to take time enough to learn gardening—but you insist on pottering around your garden and blaming the seedman for your failures. It's our job to prevent the failures. And we propose to do it each week of the coming year in a simple, practical way.

HEAVY LOSS IN CALIFORNIA

Citrus Fruit Growers Estimate Damage From Cold at $25,000,000.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 10.—Twenty-five million dollars was the amount fixed by consensus of opinion regarding the loss sustained by citrus fruit growers in the three days' freeze ending Wednesday. This figure is not official. Earl G. Dezell, assistant general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, said that accurate estimates of damage could not be made for several days, but $25,000,000 is regarded as a conservative estimate. Other estimates run as high as $40,000,000.

RECORD AT IOWA COURSE

Most Students Young Men—Will Form An Experiment Association.

Ames, Ia., Jan. 10.—Almost every county in Iowa is represented in the annual short course at Iowa state college and attendance is breaking all records. It will exceed $90, compared with the previously high record of 796. This year's students are very largely young men in their early twenties. "They seem to be the very choicest of Iowa's rural young men," said Dean Curtis. "It means much for agricultural progress to have this type of young men here and the college considers that it is doing no finer work than with these men who are with it for two weeks each year."

The results of the short course are not to end with its adjournment, for one of its best fruits is the organization of an Iowa Co-operative Experiment association. It starts out with a membership of several hundred. It includes farmers who are willing to

MODESTY NOT STRONG POINT

Both Schopenhauer and Auerbach Had Excellent Opinion of Their Place in the World. Schopenhauer, the great German philosopher, afforded one of the most remarkable examples of self-complacency that has ever been known. His naive eulogiums on his own productions are almost beyond belief. In writing to his publishers of his work, he says: "Its worth and importance are so great that I do not venture to express it, even toward you, because you could not believe me," and he proceeds to quote a review "which speaks of me with the highest praise, as the greatest philosopher of the age, which is really saying much less than the good man thinks." "Sir," he said to an unoffending stranger who watched him across a table d'hote, where he acted the part of the local "lion" habitually—"sir, you are evidently astonished at my appetite. True, I eat three times as much as you, but then I have three times as much mind!" Auerbach, the German novelist, also had a great appreciation of his own powers and work, and many stories are told of the obtrusive way in which he displayed his vanity. A German writer says of him: "Every year Auerbach visits three or four fashionable watering places, at each of which the following episode occurs at least thirty times. The novelist indulges in small talk with the little children of the natives, and invariably ends the conversation thus: 'Knowest thou who has been talking with thee? Behold Auerbach! Tell that at home!'"

GOOD THOUGHTS ABOUT BOOKS

Nothing Ever Penned Could Suit All Minds—in That Respect They Are Much Like Friends. Too many of us treat books—especially the classics—as if they were something remote from the scheme of life, and to be approached with awe. If you will read the best literature you will discover, perhaps to your amazement, that it is very simple. The word "classic" has perhaps frightened you away from many libraries. Just as people vary, books vary; and while you may admire one type of person, you may not admire another. Because you do not care for a certain book you need not necessarily be ashamed of the fact. You may realize its intrinsic greatness, but may have no special message for you. That is the way a fine writer once felt about Milton, and he had the courage and common sense to say so. We should always beware, however, of judging too hastily. A person may mean very little to you on a first casual meeting; but don't give that person up immediately. Try again. A deeper acquaintance may lead to a lifelong friendship.

There is the friend who is good to have with you in times of trouble, and the friend, no less valuable, who is wonderful in times of joy. So there are books for rainy days and bright days, for dark moods and light moods. Choose your books according to your mood, and see how the doors of enchantment will open for you.

Immense Ant Hills. West African ant hills are veritable giants, frequently standing forty feet high. These ant hills are shaped something like a sugar loaf and are divided inside into hundreds of tiny rooms. They have, needless to say, myriads of inhabitants, and these are all busily making roads, gathering food and watching over the eggs and youngsters. The natives are afraid to touch these hills, except from a distance with firearms. The ants often make their strongholds around trees and they are built very solidly, with sides sometimes twenty inches thick. The inside is hollow and at the top there is a sort of attic. The "royal cell," where the queen ant lives, is always found on the ground floor. This good lady is a prisoner, but is carefully fed by her busy subjects, the eggs she lays being immediately carried away and deposited in "rooms" set apart for the purpose.—Wide World.

Talk in Peace. The fearful ones may take heart once more. The telephone is not the deadly menace some of its patrons think. There are women who will not use the receiver of a telephone without wiping out the mouthpiece with disinfectant, so sure are they that it is a transmitter of disease. Now an eminent bacteriologist, Dr. Harold Spitts of London, has made extensive experiments and declares the telephone cannot spread infection, public opinion to the contrary. Therefore, ye fearful ones, wipe out your mouthpiece if you think it daintier, but talk in peace—you will not catch tuberculosis or other dread diseases from your predecessor at the "phone."

Admires French Manner. "Of course, the Frenchman is insincere—but who wants sincerity in a casual acquaintance? Surely it is more pleasant to be told that you never looked more charming, that your hat is the very choicest thing possible and so on, than to be greeted with an indifferent handshake and a remark about the weather? What does it matter that he has forgotten you an hour after? He has made you feel "purry-purry" at the time and has given you the added confidence and the brightness of outlook that only the consciousness of a becoming hat can give a woman."—My Parisian Year, by Maude Anneely.

HAD TO GIVE BRAIN A REST

Aged Negro Was Unused to Literary Composition and It Made His Head Ache. The Atlanta Constitution tells about an aged negro who asked his "boss," Colonel Yerger, to write a letter for him to his sweetheart. "All right, Sam; I'll do it," agreed the colonel. "Has yer got de paper and de ink and de pen ready, sir?" "Yes, Sam; go ahead." "Write Thompson street, New York." "All right." "Has yer got hit?" "Yes." "All of hit?" "Certainly." "Thompson street, New York." "Dat's hit. Now write May do four-teen." "Yes." "Has yer got hit down, boss, al-ready?" "Yes." "G'way, boss, you're jokin'! Read it to me." "May 14th." "Mah goodness, you has got hit down all right! Now, boss, read hit all over from de berry beginnag." "Thompson street, New York. May 14th." "Dat's right. Whew! Say, boss, let's rest awhile; I'm tired. My head aches like hit was gwinter split."

STILL SEARCH FOR TREASURE

Colored People of the South Victims of Sharpers, Who Sell Them Divining Rods. The restaurant orchestra had just finished playing "Dixie." "Speaking of buried treasure," said a southerner after the noise had died away, "the search for the hidden riches of Captain Kidd isn't in it with the hunt that is going on continually all over the south for wealth that is supposed to have been secreted during the Civil war. Two classes of persons are engaged in it. It is the pet avocation of the negroes but not more than one in a hundred thousand ever finds anything. The class that gets the real coin is the slick Yankee who travels through the south selling divining rods and things of that sort to the negroes. These 'witch sticks' are supposed to draw their holders irresistibly to where the treasure is buried. They sell for a big price—$10 to $50—it depends on how much the purchaser has hidden away under his own hearthstone."

Shapes of the Satellites. Photometric studies of six of the principal satellites of Saturn, made by Gutnick, indicate a confirmation of the previous conclusions of other observers that several, and perhaps all, of these satellites behave like our own moon in keeping always the same side toward the planet around which they revolve. In regard to the satellite named Tethys, an interesting hypothesis is offered to account for its very marked changes of luminosity. The theory is that Tethys possesses the form of a long ellipsoid, the two principal axes of which are to one another in the ratio of five to two. A similar suggestion has been made concerning the shape of the asteroid Eros, which likewise exhibits great variations of light, according to its position in its orbit around the sun.—Harper's Weekly.

Indian Rice Rolls. The cultivation of rice in India includes diverse varieties, differing in size, shape and color of grain, as well as in suitability for culinary purposes. More than seventy million acres are annually put under rice in India, and samples of all the varieties produced have recently been analyzed in England. One of these is peculiar in that it is too glutinous to be boiled in the ordinary way. This difficulty is avoided by boiling it in bamboo tubes, and after being thus prepared it is left in the tubes to be eaten cold, especially by travelers. When the rice is eaten the bamboo is peeled off and a long roll of rice appears, which forms an excellent substitute for bread.—Harper's Weekly.

Human Fellowship. In trying to find a basis of universal fellowship, what is the first consideration? Not money. That is not a basis for fellowship. Of course, there are exceptional circumstances when money may pay for travel and culture and so aid in the formation of character. . . . But money is not a guaranty of either culture or hospitality. It is the work we do in the world, not the money we have, that qualifies us for fellowship. Every known being must do his work well in the world, whether it is paid for or not, in order to qualify for the fellowship of the common life.—Twentieth Century Magazine.

Cruel Name to Give Child. The most burdensome name ever bestowed on a child was that given by Arthur Pepper, a laundryman of West Derby, Liverpool, to his daughter. It comprised one name for every letter of the alphabet, and was certainly ingenious in its way, running Anna, Bertha, Cecelia, Diana, Emily, Fanny, Gertrude, Hypatia, Inez, Jane, Kate, Louisa, Maud, Nora, Ophelia, Quince, Rebecca, Starkey, Teresa, Ulyssa, Venus, Winifred, Xenophon, Yetty, Zeno. P, of course, was provided in the surname, Pepper.

IOWA'S BIGGEST CORN SHOW Exhibits 6,500 Ears—Youngster Produces 141 Bushels on Acre. Ames, Ia., Jan. 10.—More good corn is on exhibit at the Iowa Corn Growers' association show at Iowa state college this week than was ever brought together before in Iowa. Nearly every county in the state is represented with corn of unusually high grade. The best ear among the 5,500 exhibited was grown by E. L. Reed of Henry county. The prize for the best 10 ears was awarded to L. E. Prouditt of Polk county; best bushel, Way down South in Sunny Texas Along the Gulf Coast of Texas roses and oleanders and palms grow outdoors in January. Further inland the winter climate is less tropical, but balmy. Everywhere sunny days are the rule. It's a joy to be out in the open. Fine roads for autoing, numerous golf links and ocean sports, keep the visitor busy. The hotel accommodations—at cities like Galveston, Houston, Corpus Christi, San Antonio, Dallas and Fort Worth—favorably compare with those of any other U. S. A. resorts. For example, Hotel Galvez, pictured below, is a new million-dollar edifice, located near Galveston beach and seawall. A charming Southern hospitality welcomes you.
