COWS, BULLS AND MIXED. A relatively light quota of the day's receipts of cattle comprised butcher classes and the trade was moderately active with last week's advance in rates fully maintained. Good fat light and medium weight heifers and mixed yearlings were in active inquiry and spots showed a degree of strength. The demand for cows of all classes from canners to choice dressed beef Hammond Packing Co. styles balanced well with the supply and sellers were able to effect a sea sonable clearance at steady to strong rates. Really choice material was Bulls and stags were in good call at prices fully as high as prevailed at the close of last week. Choice bulls sold up to $6.85, but most of the good bulls sold at $6.00@6.50. Veal calves were steady at last week's closing level, with a fairly active tone to the trade on this basis.

INCUBATOR VS. THE HEN.

Interesting Experiment Being Tried

at Oregon College. . Corvallis, Ore., Feb. 24.-An experiment to determine whether the incu-bator will hatch as many chicks from a given number of eggs as a good sitting hen, and whether incubator chicks will be as strong in vitality, has been begun by some members of the Oregon Agricultural experiment league, composed of farmers interested in working out, in co-operation with the extension division of the

STOCK CALVES BRING $7.75

S. P. Newman Breaks Record on First Shipment to This Market.

S. P. Newman, a progressive young stockman of Dundy county, Nebraska, on his first visit to the local yards set a new high price record for the St Joseph market in the sale of stock calves. Mr. Newman brought in today two loads of fancy Hereford calves which sold for stocker pur-poses at $7.75 per cwt., the highest price ever paid for that class of stock on the open market at this point. These calves weighed 500 lbs, and grossed the owner around $38.75 per head. They were a strictly fancy lot and if properly handeld will make a prime bunch of "baby beeves."

Mr. Newman was favorably im-pressed with the sale of his stock and Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas to Meet in El Paso.

The Stock Yards Daily Journal is in receipt of the call and official proof the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas. The sessions this year will be held in El Paso, Texas, March 18, 19 Texas. In the call issued by President Al.
M. McFaddin, attention is called to the successful work of the association in 1912. Over 2,500 cattle were re-covered for it's members, valued at more than $100,000. A competent force of field inspectors has been employed to protect members of the association against depredations and the association's attorneys have vigorously prosecuted the law-breakers.

Railroad freight rates and matters of legislation affecting the live stock industry were given careful consideration.

Low rates have been offered by the railroads to El Paso from practically all points in the Southwest.

The St. Joseph stock yards will be represented at the El Paso meet.

She complained to Jack. "I don't see any use in poking my eyes out over the old hems when I could do them on the sewing machine." "Oh, pshaw; you can't sew on the machine anyway!" was Jack's retort.

"I could learn," Evelyn answered stoutly. "Oh, you'd break the machine!" retorted Jack, who liked to tease his sister. "Come, come, Jack," daddy interfered; "you mustn't tease your sister!

Surely my little Evelyn can learn to sew. Evelyn's great-great-grandmother could not only sew, but in her time little girls were taught to weave the cloth which was made up into clothes for them. More than that, they were expected to learn how to spin the thread or yarn from which the cloth was made.

"There was flax from which linen thread and cloth were spun and the wool from the sheep from which yarn and warm garments for winter were made. "Little girls were taught to spin first of all. Very stupld the little girl was thought to be who had not learned to spin by her tenth birthday. "As for sewing, dear me, I wish you could see some of the needlework those little girls of long ago did! "Not only could they stitch up a seam very neatly, but they could work many fancy stitches. One of the things that every little girl was expected to do was to make a sampler. "Of course you don't know about a sampler. It was a picture worked on cloth, the stitches being done sometimes in wool and sometimes in silk. Every kind of stitch was worked on it as samples. Perhaps this was why it was called a sampler. Under the picture the little girl generally worked a verse BEES which her mother or teacher selected for her.

At the end she would work her name and the date. When it was done her proud mother would put it into a frame and hang it up where every one could see and admire it.

The little girls were very anxious to have these samplers nice. "Before she was twelve most every little girl had learned to knit and was making her own stockings as well as mittens, searfs, wrist bands, etc., for her brothers and herself.

"As soon as she was old enough to hold a needle the little girl began to learn to sew. She was able to help a good deal with the darning and mending by the time she was eight. "Oh, yes, indeed; those were busy days for little girls, and there was no

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.-The University of Pennsylvania is trying to have bees make honey in winter. He is attempting to learn if it will not be productive of more real value to the small home owner than the raising of poultry. The fact that in the cold weather the bee has no food to keep it at work is given as the food to keep it at work is given as the reason for its sleepiness, and to solve this problem Professor Philips is feeding the bees at the university apiary with all sorts of mixed alfalfa and clover and other honey-making products, and some of them have actually been at work in the hives.

WOLF AND THE LAMB

Young Stenographer Is Saved at Ruin's Brink by a Mere Incident.

By FRANK FILSON.

"I beg to remain, lovingly yours, John P. Stevens," the man dictated. and Miss Keith, his stenographer, started round in her chair.

"'Lovingly,' did you say, Mr. Stevens?" she asked in surprise. Surely you are not going to write that to the Anderson Iron Foundry!" John P. Stevens took the slim white between his own. "No, my dear, I meant it for you," he said. "End the letter in the usual way."

Miss Keith smiled and hammered out the letter upon her typwriter in couple of minutes. Then she glanced up at the clock and rose, patting her hair. Her hat hung upon its peg close by.

"One moment, Lucy," said Stevens. What would you say to a little supper somewhere tonight? I've a couple of theater tickets which might come in handy afterward." Miss Keith shook her head determinedly. "I couldn't." she answered. "Why not?" demanded the man blandly. "Somebody might see us together who-who-"Yes?"

"Who knows your wife." "My wife," said Stevens, "has not seen me for nearly a year and wouldn't care. During our five years of wedded life I think I can say that she has thoroughly tired of me. Come, Lucy, what's the odds?" he continued. He caught at the pretty wrists which irritated the manufacturer. "Well, Austin, what is it?" he asked "I want to give you a week's notice to leave, Mr. Stevens," answered the young fellow, coming forward, his hat in his hand. "So you're going to desert the ship, eh?" sneered Stevens. "Why? Got a better job?"

"No, Mr. Stevens. I haven't got a position yet," he replied. "Want your salary raised?"

walked forward and placed his hand upon the young fellow's shoulder "Best tell me what's the trouble," he "I will," Austin blurted out, his pallid features working convulsively

"So that's the trouble, eh," said Stevens, nodding understandingly. You think I've cut you out in her affections, eh? Why, didn't you know that I'm married?" "Yes, damn you," shouted Austin. That's just where the trouble lies. I can't fight a man twice my weight and the law wouldn't give me any re dress, so I'm going to leave. Take your week's notice. I'll get out this evening."

"No you won't, Austin," said Stevens, with sudden emphasis. "Now see here! Suppose I were out of the way; do you think she'd marry you? Do you think that if I raised you towell, sixty, say, you'd be man enough hand which Miss Keith had laid upon not to be satisfied with everything the back of her chair and pressed it and to keep her at home to look after your house, and to try to make some thing of yourself?"

Austin stared at him, his lips slight ly parted, astounded by this unexpected turn.

"My son," said the manufacturer. 'you blame me-but that's where ou're wrong. This is a fighting world it isn't a world where we whine for justice and get it. Maybe I've been too much of a wolf and too little of a lamb, but I'm going to do the square thing for once. Here's your chancewill you take it?"

"You bet I will," answered the bookkeeper breathlessly. Stevens nodded and put on his hat. He went out humming. He saw what Austin saw, that he was responsible for having put the poison of ambition into Miss Keith's mind; but he knew also that it required its drastic antidote, to humble her. He took a street car up to the rendezvous and waited inside the hotel.

The hands of the clock were just upon the hour when he saw his stenographer's trim figure pass slowly before the revolving glass door, and, throwing his cigar, he went outside.

"Good evening, Miss Keith," he said, raising his hat. "Waiting to see me?" The girl recoiled a little and looked at him, an angry flush reddening her cheeks. Stevens patted her on the "Run away home, little girl," he said. "I've changed my mind. And say," he continued, "you needn't report to me tomorrow or ever again. I'm going to get a business woman for my stenographer next time, and not your kind.

He turned and left her, speechless with indignation. Then, because the medicine sickened the giver as well as the recipient, he went back into the hotel and sat for a long time in the smoking room. At last he rose, and, with a sudden determination, went toward the door. His features had softened out of their habitual hard lines. "I wonder." he said meditatively. I wonder if Mary would give me another chance?" (Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman.)

COW ADOPTS TWO PIGS.

Herdsman Discovers the Odd Cause of Missing Milk Supply.

Pottstown, Pa., Feb. 24 .- When one Pottstown, Pa., Feb. 24.—When one by of the fine herd on his farm near ree apparently falled to give any ore milk several days ago John Keyr of Norristown was mystified and me up to investigate the cause.

Going to the yard near the hard Joing to the yard near the barn yser discovered the cow nursing two little pigs and when he made an effort to drive them away the cow turned on him to make an attack.

Mr. Keyser had noticed that the two pigs were thriving rapidly of late, id now he knows why.

EVICTED VICEROY FROM HOME

of Petulant Government of New South Wales.

Australia is a land of political experi lents. The latest of these is the viceroy, the official representative of the king. It is the government of ants, mounted and on foot, were on the king. It is the government of New South Wales that has performed this astonishing feat, and the indignation which burst forth at the moment is giving way to prolonged laughter. Since the union of the colonies under the name of the Commonwealth of the name of the Commonwealth of Australia, it has been the habit of the governor-general to live for a part of the year at Sydney, New South Wales, and for the other part at Melbourne, Victoria, Government house at Sydney is the property of the government of New South Wales, having been the residence of the governors of that colonly before the commonwealth was formed; but the colonial government gladly lent it to the viceroy of all Australia for the honor of his presence in the city.

But the government of the colony recently took offense at the proposal of the federal government for the establishment by the commonwealth of a post office savings bank, which would have come into competition with the New South Wales State Savings bank, and rashly resolved to emphasize its opposition, hoping perhaps to frighten the federal government from its purpose, by resuming possesslou of government house and thereby turning out the governor-general. The deed has been done and Lord Denham has left the city, cheered all along the route to the railway station by the citizens, and presented on their behalf by the lord mayor with an address expressing love and loyalty, condemning the action of the government as an indefensive outrage on the national hospitality, and affirming the official residence at Sydney re-established. Alas for the spiteful landlord! There is in this affair the libretto for a comic opera.-Boston Herald.

ROYAL HEADS NOT ALL WEAK

Some Able Men Among Those Who Are at Present the Occupants of European Thrones.

Though the kings and princes of Europe include some sadly deteriorated physical specimens, it would be a mistake to suppose that they have not some able men among them. Probably they average as high in mental ability as kinds did in the middle ages when they not only reigned, but governed. The German emperor is a trong ruler, and Francis Joseph of Austria has sailed his crazily built empire on a very even keel for many

Sun Power in Egypt. At Meadi, a suburb of Carlo, is a sun-power plant of unusual interest. It consists of five reflectors, each 204 feet long, whose cross section is in the form of a parabola, with the generator units at the focus. The last named are of zinc, built of rectangular sections 14 inches wide. To render them efficient they are painted with a black paint of high heat absorbing capacity. The water is introduced at the lower end and the generator at its upper end is provided with silvered glass mirrors. The plant works best at a pressure slightly below the atmosphere.-Scientific American.

"That's rather a handsome mantelpiece you have there, Mr. Binkston," said the visitor.

"Yes," replied Mr. Bingston, proudly. "It is a memorial to my wife." "Why-I was not aware that Mrs. Binkston had passed away," said the visitor, sympathetically. "Oh, no, indeed, she hasn't," smiled Mr. Bingston. "She is serving her thirtieth sojourn in jail. That mantel-

"Automobile foot" is a new disease for which Dr. Alexander Block of St. Louis stands spensor. Automobile foot, due to lack of pedestrian exercise among automobilists, is a weakness that changes the walk into an ugly hobble.

Not Enough Goatskins.

The present demand for goat-kid skins exceeds anything of the kind before known, and the remostest places in India, South America, and Europe, and everywhere else goats are kept, are now visited by collectors to obtain them.

This demand arises from the recent discovery of new methods of treating the skins, which not only make them a substitute for calf-kid as shoe leather, but also render them suitable for use in dress trimming. When specially dyed and finished, they find great favor with dressmakers, and are used for vests, strappings, pipings, blouses, and even for underskirts for country wear. They also play a part in recent millinery .- Harper's Weekly.
