CHOICE STYLES SCARCE

Cows and heifers active at steady to higher values—stockers and feeders hold generally steady.

Beef steer trade was generally a steady affair today as far as the majority of traders were able to figure it under adverse weather conditions. A snowstorm that appears to be general through this section interfered with trading operations.

STOCKERS AND FEEDERS

In the face of one of the severest storms raging over the country during the present winter stock and feeding steer buyers did not show any signs of holding in the clamor for all classes of cattle suitable for country trade.

FEEDERS

The storm did not check the demand for cows and heifers today. Inquiry was as brisk as ever and a good active movement was in evidence. Prices were regarded strong to 10c higher in a few markets.

COWS, BULLS AND MIXED

AN INTERESTING FIGURE

DR. HENRY WATERS HAS BEEN ACTIVE SPIRIT IN STIMULATING SCIENTIFIC FARMING.

IS A NATIVE MISSOURIAN

His Work As an Educator Has Extended Over Four Different States—Will Speak Here at Farm Congress.

With the possible exception of Sam Jordan the most interesting person that will appear on the program of the Interstate Agricultural and Industrial Congress speaking program will be Dr. Henry Jackson Waters, president of the Kansas Agricultural college, the greatest of all the state farm schools of the Union. Waters is a Missourian. He is another one of the triumvirate of Western agricultural specialists of which H. M. Cottrell and Sam M. Jordan are the other two.

Waters was one of the first graduates from the Missouri Agricultural college at Columbia, his graduation having taken place in 1887. He was immediately put on the faculty of the State Agricultural college. He comes from a line of farming enthusiasts. His father was editor of the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture, and the boy added to his theoretical knowledge of farming practical experience he gained as a student in the State Agricultural college at Columbia. In 1888 he was placed in charge of the state agricultural course at a sort of experiment station. He conducted it for more than a year. His ability attracted the attention of the state of Pennsylvania and in 1891 he was made professor of agriculture in the Pennsylvania experiment station. The course had three students when Waters took charge of it. He visited every county in Pennsylvania and in 1893 he was made superintendent of the state's efforts to bring better results to the farmers of the Keystone state. When Dr. Waters left the Pennsylvania State Agricultural college there were more than 190 pupils enrolled.

When Dr. Waters left the Pennsylvania state school it was to return to his home in Missouri. He was named as dean of the Missouri Agricultural college. The institution had been dwarfed by being kept in subordination to the state university which at that time considered the agricultural course as a sort of necessary evil. His segregation to some extent from the state university gave him a chance to grow and thirteen years after Dr. Waters took charge of the Missouri Agricultural college it had grown to be the second most important state school, the university proper alone excepted.

From 1901 to 1903 Dr. Waters gave most of his time to the agricultural exhibits at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, the agricultural department was under his direct personal supervision. The world knows the results that were achieved. At his disposal was $100,000 and he made every cent count. His success at the St. Louis exposition was rewarded with a leave of absence of one year and he went to Germany to make research under the direction of Dr. Keller, Dr. Zinn and other German agriculturists. While in Europe he was elected president of the Agricultural college of California but declined, and took similar action when he was elected president of the Colorado Agricultural college, Kansas and better luck with the brilliant Missourian and he accepted the presidency of the Missouri Agricultural college at Manhattan. His success in connection with the Kansas college has been such as to attract world-wide attention.

KANSAS STEERS BRING TOP

Wm. Elise Markets Load of Good Beeves at $8.45.

Wm. Elise, who is one of the successful influential feeders at Washington county, Kansas, had a load of well fattened steers here Tuesday that realized him $8.45, the top price paid for beef cattle on that day.

Mr. Elise accompanied the carload, consisting of 18 head averaging 1357 pounds, and when asked about the sale stated that he was well pleased with the outcome.

Mr. Elise feeds considerable stock for the market, and judging from the frequency with which his offerings top the market he knows the "knack" of finishing stock. He has a few loads of cattle and hogs still on feed, he says, will be forwarded later to the St. Joseph yards.

BIG SUM FOR CAR OF HOGS

R. Standerford Nets $1,888 for One Load of Porkers.

One of the biggest sums realized for a single load of hogs on the local market recently was taken down by a consignment disposed of yesterday by R. Standerford of Humboldt, Neb. Mr. Standerford brought in a carload of old-fashioned "fat-backs" which netted him $1,887.93, after deducting the expense incident to shipping. There were in the load 66 hogs, which weighed 22,750 pounds, or 344 pounds per head. They sold at $8.37 1/2 per cwt, the highest price paid here yesterday for hogs weighing above 300 pounds. Mr. Standerford believes in putting a high finish on the stock that he markets and it is his experience, he says, that the practice generally pays well.

MRS. WILSON AN ARTIST.

Two of Her Landscapes Hung in Fine Arts Exhibition.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 26.—At the annual exhibition of the Academy of the Fine Arts two landscapes, modest in size but ambitious in conception and exquisite in execution, are listed under the name of Ellen W. Wilson.

At the Arts and Crafts guild, 237 South Eleventh street, twenty-five landscapes done in oils by Mrs. Wilson have just been put on view in the upstairs gallery of the shop.

The pair of oil paintings at the academy 'Autumn Day' and 'The Old Lane,' depict scenes in the vicinity of Princeton.

'Autumn Day' is alive with the color and beauty of the dying summer. Trees with their leaves turning red, gold and purple, and skies hazy with the smoke of burning brush and forest fire offer an illusion of the harvest season.

Mrs. Wilson's technique is that of softened color tones and indistinctness of outline, giving to her pictures the charm of the impressionist's work without the sacrifice of necessary detail.

Among the landscapes at the guild exhibition is an impressionist sunset effect, showing a flushed sky against a streak of blue, with hazy foreground, a glimpse of a garden overgrown with flowers in riotous color, and a rocky bit of New England coast is particularly well done.

Mrs. Wilson has for years been an artist of repute, and has transmitted her artistic talent to her daughters in various forms.

Her third daughter, Eleanor Randolph Wilson, is now a student at the Academy of the Fine Arts in this city, and, according to the authorities who hang the mother's picture, her artistic inheritance promises her a bright future.

When Mrs. Wilson began her work in oils she devoted herself entirely to the painting of portraits. In recent years, however, she has taken up landscape work, studying each summer under Frank DuFord.

Two examples of her work, scenes painted from nature in the Arden woods, adorn Mr. Wilson's office at Princeton, and will in all probability form part of the decorative scheme of the president's office in the executive mansion.

IN GLORIOUS POMP OF WAR

Might and Terror Seemingly Incarnate With the Winged Hussars of Poland.

Silk and satin, fur and velvet had given away to shimmering metal, to plumed helmet and the pelt of bear and wolf; instead of the warm glow of precious stones, flashed the cold, glint of naked steel, in place of caftan, cloak and loose trousers, one saw breast-plate, loin guard and pelisse.

Over this army floated Poland eagle, white upon its blood-red ground. A bishop raised the sacred relics and the cross and gave his blessing. Plainly, without music, the front ranks kneeling, the mounted men behind, rose a solemn chant of male voices.

PAID TRIBUTE TO LAUGHTER

Men of Intellect and Renown Join in Testimony to the Value of Jollity in Life.

The value of a good-natured laugh may be rated low by some people; but many writers have attested its worth in no measured terms. It is not surprising that Charles Lamb should have said, "A laugh is worth a hundred groans in any market."

Henry VII's Chapel.

The Most Honorable Order of the Bath has ceased to be the Cinderella among the orders of knighthood. With the restoration of high ceremonial in Henry VII's chapel the ignominy of the past ends.

Literal Truth.

A London story illuminates the career of Horace Hamfat, an actor. Rich today, he was poor and a failure up to the age of forty. His life, up to that age, passed in the provinces on two or three quid a week.

Interpolated.

A New York manager was making his first Shakespearean production. The play being rehearsed was "Macbeth." Everything went smoothly until an actor came to the line: "Ten thousand dollars to the general use."

This is what you get in your copy of this week's issue of The Country Gentleman

The Country Gentleman

Why the Little Red Schoolhouse Fails. A frank but helpful criticism of rural schools, written by Ware J. Hibbard after years of personal experience as a country school-teacher. The Man Who Made Good. He's J. E. Fitzgerald, and the big secret of his success is: "It doesn't pay to raise things to suit your fancy altogether; raise things to suit the buyer's fancy."

SPECIAL FEATURES FOR WOMEN

The Country Gentleman this week talks to the woman who is a victim of the "ragging" habit. It is critical, but helpful. Grandmother's Recipes are a number of good old-fashioned recipes that today are among the "lost arts" of the kitchen.

ACCEPT VERSION OF DEATHS

Ambassador Wilson Issues Statement Regarding Madero Killing.

Mexico City, Feb. 26.—The American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, made the following statement last night regarding the death of Madero and Suarez:

"In the absence of other reliable information I am disposed to accept the government's version of the manner in which the president and vice president lost their lives. Certainly the violent deaths of these persons were without government approval, and if the deaths were the result of a plot, it was of restricted character and unknown to the higher officers of the government.

"Mexican public opinion has accepted this view of the affair and it is not at all excited. The present government appears to be revealing marked evidence of activity, firmness and prudence and adhesions to it as far as I have been able to ascertain, is general throughout the republic indicating the early reestablishment of peace.

"The government as constituted is very friendly to the United States and is desirous of affording effective protection to all foreigners.

"For the present American public opinion should deal with the situation calmly and accept with great reserve the lurid and highly colored stories which are being furnished by some few correspondents. The great majority of the correspondents here are endeavoring to deal fairly with the situation."

"Confidence in the new administration is growing in the capital, conservative Mexicans and foreigners alike regarding what appears to be a probable military regime as the solution of the present difficulty. A revision of sentiment has been caused by the death of Francisco Madero and Pino Suarez, but the majority of the Mexican people merely shrug their shoulders."

SELL SIX BILLION FEET.

Forest Officials Meet to Consummate Big Lumber Deal.

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 26.—Forest officials of Washington, Idaho and Montana met in Spokane last week and arranged for the sale of six billion feet of lumber, mostly white pine, from the national forests in the country tributary to Spokane.

A crew of ten men will start at once the task of estimating in the Clearwater forest of Idaho, in which a billion and a half feet of lumber have been applied for. On account of the stupendous proportions of the sale, the estimating cannot be completed before autumn.

Another crew of estimators will go to the Pen Oreille forest, also in Idaho, before the middle of March. As rapidly as the work of surveying and planning of operations can be concluded the timber will be thrown open to bids.

Two hundred million feet of lumber will be sold from the Kaniku forest April first, but this is insignificant compared to some sales that will be made in the Clearwater, Pen Oreille, Coeur d'Alene and Kootenai forests of Idaho, and the Flathead, Blackfoot and Lolo forests in western Montana.

District Forester F. A. Silcox, of Missoula, Mont., who presided over the session, announced that plans for fire prevention in the forests would be prosecuted more vigorously than ever. A system of trails, to consist of main trails, joined by connecting and spur trails, has been mapped out. Brush and undergrowth will be cleared out before summer, and the telephone systems now in use in the forests will be improved and extended.

Last year was the most successful in the history of the forest fire prevention efforts in the Spokane country. A number of co-operative timber protective associations have completed their figures for the year, their reports showing that the expense of protection was negligible, aside from that of maintaining organization. The foresters say this winter has been ideal in that plenty of moisture has been stored against the coming of the danger season.

MORE BARBAROUS LATIN.

Mrs. Greening—And what does this statue represent?

Mrs. Browning—That is Psyche executed in terra cotta.

Mrs. Greening—Poor thing! They are so barbarous in those South American countries.
