Cows and Heifers Steady to 10c Lower - Veals Slumpy - Stockers and Feeders More Active.

There did not appear to be the breadth of demand for beef that was evident yesterday and the market had rather uncertain opening. To darge extent, perhaps, the slowing down in the market for steers today was tracable to the flood situation in Indiana and Ohio that has severed rail communication between the east and west. With the outlet for dress-ed meats of all kinds thereby restrict-ed it was but natural that packers would curtail buying operations at western points to actual immediate

COWS, BULLS AND MIXED. The trade in butchers' stock was more or less uneven today. Buyers had a little broader field for their operations, receipts being somewhat lar-ger than on the two previous days, though the aggregate was not of liberal size. Buyers gave the better grades of helfers and mixed yearlings pretty good support. the opening in these classes being reasonably active at steady prices. Evidence of weak-ness was noted on the plainer kinds and the close on some of the right good styles was a dime lower. Good to choice cows opened up about steady but on the medium and inferior grades a weaker feeling prevailed and the close was quoted around a dime lower.

Bulls and stags sold generally steady. A few choice bulls ranged up to $7.00. Veal calves were still ed meats of all kinds thereby restricted it was but natural that packers would curtain buying operations at western points to actual immediate needs. Developments within the past 36 hours suggest the necessity of the country horiding down receipts until the high waters in Indiana and Ohio subside and normal railroad service to the east is restored. In the event of heavy supplies traders expect a decilie in values, Cattle are not so plentiful in the west that receipts at the various markets cannot be held down with benefit to the owners.

Around 2,000 cattle arrived here today, about the same number that made appearance last Thursday. At the five markets supplies were compareditively light, the total of 12,700 head, falling 2,400 short of the run at the same centers a week ago. Steers formed a fairly good percentage of headway. As ras been the case for some little time, the fat light and handy weight cattle were the first to receive attention from buyers. These classes opened steady but closing transactions indicated an easier turn. On the other hand medium to strong weight beeves got slow action at prices quoted weak to 16e lower compared with the previous day. Available to be classed a little sup

CATTLE MADE GOOD GAIN.

W. S. and Robert Cook Market Beever at $8.30 That Cost $6.55.

close was quoted around a dime lower. Bulls and stags sold generally steady. A few choice bulls ranged up to $7,00. Veal calves were still on the slump. Buyers bid sharply lower and succeeded in making bulk of their purchases at a further 50c discount. A $9.00 limit was placed on choice vealers, which is $1.50 under the top last Tuesday and $2.25 below the high point early last week.

He has shipped more or less stock to other markets but frankly stated today that he would rather ship to St. Joseph than any other point, "I find that my stock is handeld to much better advantage here than at other markets," said Mr. Bryson. "Your yardmen, commission men and buyers are most considerate in treating stock in a humane manner. They are not driven or milled to death before they get into the pens and your buyers do not shrink them out by whipping them around until they are too excited and nervous to take a good fill Your pens are clean and the fill. Your pens are clean and the water is the best ever, and my ob-servation is that is more profitable for me to come to St. Joseph, even if at times the prices might appear a little lower. I more than make it up by the proper handling of my stock after its arrival.

Daddy's Bedtime The Boy Who - Wished to Become

N the home of Jack and Evelyn and daddy and mother there hangs on the wall a picture of a very pretty little girl dressed in a quaint, old fashioned costume and wearing a wide cap. Her hands are held together on her lap, and on the log on which she is sitting are some cherries. The name of the picture is "Cherry Ripe." It was painted by a famous English artist, Sir John Millaise

Daddy told Evelyn and Jack one evening that when this painter was a little boy of eight he was taken by his mother from Southampton, England, where they lived, to London to visit a great painter. The boy's mother wanted and fifty Milnesota, farmers have agreed with the extension division of the University of Minnesota to control of the University o good enough to make it worth while to have the boy study to be a painter when he grew up.

"When they reached the studio of the great gainter," daddy said, "the kedy told him why she had come. The painter did not want to advise any one to become a painter of pictures, for it requires many years of hard study and work. So he said to the lady:

"Madam, you had better bring the boy up to be a chimney sweep." chimney sweep, you may not know, youngsters, is a boy whose business it is to climb into chimneys and sweep the soot out with a broom. It is disagreeable, hard, dirty work.

"But the mother was not discouraged. 'Surely you will look at my son's drawings before you decide?' she asked. The artist did not wish to hurt the lady's feelings, so he said he would look at them. When the package was opened he opened his eyes wide in surprise, the drawings were so good for a little lad.

" 'Madam,' he said, 'it is your duty to bring this boy up to be a painter.' "So Sir John Millais began his career as a painter. At nine he earned a medal for drawing. When he got the medal he had to stand on a chair so the people could see the little fellow who had carried off the prize. He won honor after honor, greater than had ever before been earned by any other English artist. He painted many pictures of children, for he loved children and had Between the floods and tornados a large family of his own. Besides his pictures of children, he painted pic-

LITTLE INTEREST IN FLYING

United States Stands Lowest in Mili tary Aviation, Because of Lack of Public Concern.

According to Lieut, Benjamin D. Foulois, who was rated by Orville Wright and others as one of the most capable aviators in any army, the lack of public interest in aviation in this country is deplorable. To this lack of public interest, Lieut, Foulois charges the responsibility for the fact that the United States is at the foot of the list of great powers in the development of military aviation.

"The public spirit that prevails abroad is the mighty factor in this Chesmore Seed Co. rapid development." he said. "and it is the lack of this spirit in the United 407 Felix Street, St. Joseph, Mo. States that is responsible for our being so far behind.

'We can never expect to see any great amount of public interest displayed in the development of aircraft in this country until it is proved to the people of the United States that it is a good financial investment.

"The fact that this new science is particularly useful for military purposes does not appeal to the great majority of our complacent moneymaking people."

Lieut. Foulois expressed the opinion that at present skilled aviators operating properly designed and constructed machines, equipped with powerful motors, can fly in almost any wind. He then went on to quote Orville Wright as having stated that it is now possible to construct aeroplanes that would carry 25 persons, and which could be driven at a speed of 100 miles an hour, if necessary. Such a machine ,he added, could cross

Historic Building, Adjoining St. Botolph's Churchyard, Is Being Demolished.

London.—Rarely does a new tourist season come around but American visitors look in vain for some of the 'sights" of the old London described in the guide books.

These are all gradually disappearing. Now the old London watch-house, adjoining St. Botolph's churchyard, in Bishopsgate, is being demolished. The history of the quaint little build-

In Sea Fights They Were Dreaded and Did Effective Service at Siege of Tyre.

London.-Nothing in the narrative of many old sea fights appeals more strongly to the modern imagination than the doings of the fireships.

The idea of using incendiary vessels was of great antiquity. They are said to have been employed at the siege of Tyre in 333 B. C., and again by the Rhodesians about a century and a half later. By the English, however, they were first used in 1370, and two centuries later had come to be looked upon as a legitimate naval weapon, their attacks being regarded and dreaded in much the same way as are those of the torpedo craft and submarines at the present time. The explosion vessels, or "infernals," invented by the Italian engineer Gianibelli, were the most formidable. The designer procured two vessels of about 80 tons each and laid along their bottom a foundation of brickwork. Upon this he erected a marble chamber with five foot walls containing 3,000 tons of gunpowder, while on top of this chamber was a six foot layer of gravelstones placed edgewise. A marble roof rose over these, and upon it was piled a quantity of round shot, chain shot, milestones, blocks of stone, iron shod, milestones, anything heavy which would cause the explosion to take a lateral effect. The effect of this floating volcano was appalling, for the masses of stone and shot, disintegrated and flung skywards by the explosive, fell and destroyed any vessels, buildings or men in the

Three years later the Spanish armada before Calais was attacked by fireships prepared by the English. Eight vessels were selected, and so great was the haste that not even their guns or stores were removed. They were ignited and launched, and with the wind and tide in their favor advanced straight for the center of the anchored armada. Ship fouled ship amid the cries of terror and the crash of falling spars and though the Spanish finally succeeded in getting to sea the fireships' attack completely disorganized and demoralized them, night have led to the organization of and helped largely to make the eventa special night brigade of police inde- ual battle of Gravelines the success

Speeches Are Sought from 6,000 Clergymen Who Aided Movement Last Year.

New York.—The 6,000 clergymen who last year observed Child Labor day are being asked to speak on that subject. For seven years the national child labor committee has issued such an appeal and the interest aroused by the last Child Labor day resulted in a general demand for the passing of the federal children's bureau bill, in improved child labor laws in ten of the fourteen states holding legislative sessions and an increasing use of lecture slides and exhibits about child labor.

The day has never been used as an appeal for funds and this year special attention is called to child labor in tenement house manufacturing. Foxes and Minks Are Liquidating the Mortgages on Many of the Farme.

It is estimated that 1,500 foxes have been shot and trapped for their hides in Somerset county this season, according to a Skowhegan correspondent. The fur dealers claim that the for the destruction of a hostile fleet foxes and mink have never been so plentiful. The fox skins have brought more money per skin than in several years back. It is estimated that the hunters have realized from fox skins alone in the county nearly $15,000.

One of the most unusual things in connection with this industry, one man alone in the county caught in two days time a black fox and a gray one that brought him a check for $2,500 and in a week's time this man trapped ten red foxes.

This is getting to be one of the greatest industries and many farmers are making as much money hunting as they earn on the farm during the rest of the season. Many have earned enough money from catching foxes and skunks to pay the mortgages on their farms. A fox skin on an average this year brings $5. One farmer this winter let his dog out of doors in the morning and it WANTED TO BUY immediatly left for the woods.. Along in the middle of the forenoon the man, while sitting in the house, heard a noise in the entry and opened a door and a red fox, closely followed by the dog, rushed in.

The kitchen window was open and before the man could stop it the fox had made a leap for it, but when he did he knocked the stick out that held the window up and he was caught by the window as it fell and was then killed.-Lewiston Journal.

Petrifaction.

Petrifaction, sometimes called fossilization, is a process of turning to stone by chemical appropriation or absorption of certain mineral elements chiefly silica, a flinty substance like pulverized quartz. Just how leaves. branches of trees, etc., absorb and appropriate silica to such an extent as to convert them into stone cannot be explained, but they do. Some springs and some streams contain so much silica that branches of trees and other vegetable matter lying for a length of time in the water become so impregnated with silica that they are converted into stone. The petrification of a human body, shut off from contact with water or earth, would be more difficult to explain, and we doubt if there is an authenticated case of the kind. A great many vegetable fossils or petrifactions have been found, but we think no animal petri-

BLAME FLEAS FOR REBELLION

Science Spots Real Cause of Mexico's Plight-How Indians Mix Plety With Booze and Roulette.

Mexico City.-Following a line of reasoning based upon many years of experience, scientists announce that fever in Latin-American republics is not the desire for glory on the battlefield, but is lodged in the ever-present flea. It is asserted that sleep, undisturbed by ravages of parasites, is practically unknown in Mexico, and the states further south. For this reason, entomologists contend that the explosive temperament of the average Latin-American is in part, if not wholly, due to the fact that restful slumber departed from the country long before the conquest. The scientists assert that no nation can be great whose sleep is broken into fitful snoozes. The average Mexican is certain to arise in the morning nursing a spirit of murder in his heart because his nightly visitants have undermined his chivalry until he is unconsciously transformed into a fiend incarnate, especially if brought under the influence of Zapata, the so-called scribe to this theory, as woeful exhabitual loss of sleep is not conductive to the higher life. One of the political slogans of the successful party in the future will be that "the flea and all his tribe must go before peace reigns again."

He also won $35,000 in been able to find only one point to criticise in the equipment and operation of the various municipally owned public services of Great Britain, and that is the construction of the double decked tramcars controlled by the London county council. They are not broad enough or heavy enough at the base for their height, and the danger of capsizing seems to me to be too great. It seems surprising that so few accidents happen, considering the tremendous congestion of traffic the real cause of the revolutionary in most of your streets. Perhaps this danger is discounted by the superb way in which the cars are handled." Mr. Todd was particularly struck with the running of the various public departments in Glasgow. "Politics is eliminated there, and the sole aim of the authorities seems to be to give the public the best possible service at the least possible cost. Birmingham and Manchester are much the same in many respects, with only minor differences due to a changed environment. "One striking phase of these public service systems of England and Scotland, which I found well worth studying in detail, is the wonderful system of bookkeeping and auditing of accounts. But Mr. Todd's enthusiastic eulogy does not stop here. He has been particularly struck with another peculiarity of English civil life, the big cooperative concerns which have begun to play a leading part in the British world of business. He says:
