

BEAUTIFUL HOTEL PLAYA — A vacationers paradise where the Bill Jim St. Clairs, Morgan Lockers, and W. B. Littles spent much time is situated three miles north of Mazatlan. It provides a spectacular two-way view—the Pacific Ocean and offshore islands on one side and a lush tropical garden on the other. Many types of entertainment is provided there for guests.

Local Families Enjoy Holiday Vacation In Scenic Mazatlan

By BRUCE, WALT and TOMMY LITTLE
(Editors note: The following feature was written by Bruce, Walt, and Tommy Little, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Little about their trip to Mazatlan, Mexico along with the Bill Jim St. Clair and Morgan Locker families.)

MEXICO HOLIDAY TRIP
At about 7:45 a.m. on December 22, a Camanche with the W. B. Little family left the Muleshoe airport enroute to Mazatlan, Mexico. Immediately behind our plane, the Aztec and the Morgan Lockers cleared the runway and we were off for an exciting vacation in tropical Mexico.

Flying side by side, flight plans were filed to Douglas, Ariz. our intended fuel stop, and the con- voy traveled over Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, before reaching the Mexico border. Nearing Douglas, the pilots, in radio contact determined that both crafts had ample fuel to reach Hermasillo, Mexico and they made contact with the Douglas airport and revised the original flight plan, making the new one to Hermasillo.

We landed there at 11:40 a.m. refueled and were off again about 1:40 p.m.

We flew over the coast of the Gulf of California and over the many beautiful mountains of Mexico. While skimming along among the clouds, we drew the planes close together while the Lockers made color movies of our plane in flight.

Along the way, we observed many high cocconut and banana groves and saw many things of interest below that were pointed out to us over the radio by the Lockers who are familiar with the terrain and much of the history of the county and it's inhabitants.

The landing was made at Mazatlan airport at 4:30 p.m. and both planes were parked by Mexican attendants. We went to Playa Hotel by taxi. This is a high three story, horseshoe - shaped hotel with palm and banana trees surrounding a large swimming pool and on the other side is the beautiful Pacific Ocean with it's pretty shorelines.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jim St. Clair and children joined us there at Christmas and also Mr. and Mrs. Buster Tidwell and daughter, operators of the Dimmitt Flying Service. We spent most of the time together.

People from all over the world were there enjoying the strange sea food which varies on the menu at each meal. The Playa restaurant serves everything from flaming shrimp on a sword to boiled octopus and turtle steak. If you become bored with swimming and eating and lying under the cocconut trees, there are many sports within a short distance of the hotel. You can go horseback riding, sea shell hunting, water skiing, sight seeing, deep sea fishing and many other things almost any day of the week.

It is interesting to visit this city of 73,000 on a bus, but while on this tour, don't be surprised if you are forced off the road by a horse and cart or a small boy riding a bicycle with a plate of oysters on his head.

Some of the most interesting thing done by the three families were tours of the coffee plants where we saw the beans graded, the number one grade processed and the inferior grades coated heavily with sugar, roasted until the sugar was burned black, then ground.

A visit aboard a Mexican shrimp boat revealed that the boats are kept remarkably clean. We went below deck to the engine rooms and were shown through the living quarters and rooms where 22 tons of ice is stored and the compartments where the shrimpers are on their 6 weeks to 2 months stay at sea. The boats were leaving for Cape San Lucas off the California Gulf and they explained their methods of working in the waters for the shrimp beds.

Deep sea fishing was quite an experience, especially when Little landed a 180 pound Marlin. It required 28 minutes for them to bring the huge fish aboard the 35 foot, twin diesel cruiser we had chartered for a day at sea.

Hunting ducks in a valley some 65 miles from Mazatlan was an adventure for the men in the group. They went with a hunting party which left from the hotel and was made up of people from many places. A woman doctor and her brother from England were among the hunters. In this lush, tropical valley, they saw and photographed literally thousands of snow white pelicans, a bird rarely seen in that sector.

After a most delightful vacation we boarded the planes for the flight home. The Bill Jim St. Clairs, in their Apache and Littles in the Comanche flew together along the same route home, while the Lockers took off and flew over the towering peaks of the Sierra Madra mountain range.

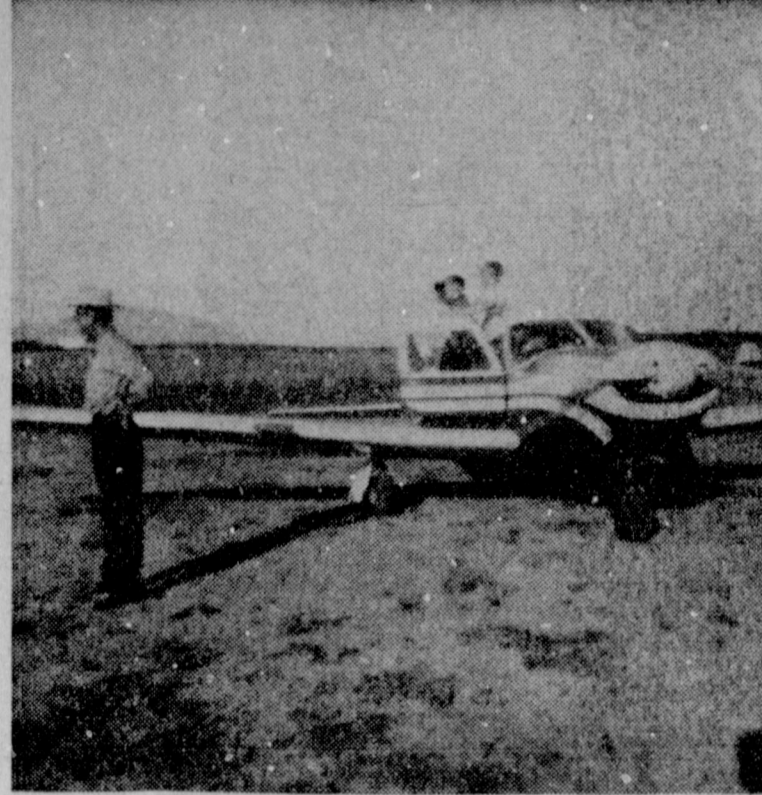

The United States seems completely different after such a wonderful holiday.

Muleshoe Club Shown Film At Recent Meet

Muleshoe Home Demonstration Club met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Willie Reeder.

A slide film on obesity was shown to the following: Dorothy Bowers, Zula Carlyle, Leona Reeder, Opal Robisco, Norene Thomas, and two guests, Etzel Harding and Glerda Haley.

First state to abolish capital punishment was Michigan, in 1847.

FIRST LOOK AT MEXICO — The sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Little are pictured climbing out of the Comanche upon landing at Mazatlan and are looking at the mountain range in the background. They were soon off to explore a country, new to them, after a pleasant flight over scenic country.

IS IT CHRISTMAS? — W. B. Little gazes wonderingly at the towering palms and banana trees surrounding the swimming pool at Playa Hotel where the Muleshoe group vacationing there went swimming on Christmas Day. That day in Muleshoe, people were shivering in the chilling wind and blowing snow.

Economist Sees Little Change in Farm Scene

The outlook for the year 1963 indicates relatively small changes in farm production prices, production and marketing, says John McHaney, extension economist, at College Station. Total net income of farm operators is expected to be near the levels of the past two years. The decline will continue, he adds, in both farm population and farm numbers. Thus, the average per capita income of farm people from all sources and per farm income, at a record high in 1962, will continue to rise in 1963.

Prudent indications point to a small increase in farm output compared with the past three years but will depend upon growing conditions and the impact of 1963 programs dealing with acreage and production, the economist says. Livestock production is expected to continue upward but crop output is expected to change very little from levels of the past two years.

A gradually expanding domestic market absorbed a record of quantity of farm production in 1962 and is expected to continue in the year ahead. The high level of agricultural exports is expected to continue in ports is expected to be maintained but the long-range future is clouded by the developing policies of the European Common-Market, McHaney says.

As for prices, McHaney sees little change in those for crops but the increase in livestock plus a relatively stable domestic demand could result in slightly lower prices. The prices paid for production items by farmers is expected to continue their steady rise and the cost-price squeeze will continue, he adds.

Total farm assets in the nation on January 1, 1962 were up $7.5 billion from a year earlier and $41.1 billion from 10 years ago. They increased three percent during the past year, due primarily to the further increase in land prices. Farmer equities have gradually declined from $91 per $100 of total assets in 1952 to $87 per $100 of total assets in 1962, and $86 on January 1, 1963. The total debt owed by farmers and ranchmen on Jan. 63 will be up about six percent from a year earlier, the economist reports.

During the next several years, the outlook is for more competition among areas and producers; more commercialization and vertical integration in agriculture and more stabilization in farm production. This will depend, however, on national and international conditions, new technology and government programs, concludes McHaney.

PLANT BUILDERS — Here this week to kick off the Bell Fertilizer Co. fertilizer plant just getting under construction were three officials of Continental Sales Co., Nevada, Iowa. one time.
The new plant, which is being built across the street from Bell Fertilizer Corp. Inc. is expected to be completed by the middle or last of February.
Officials explained that farmers can watch the exact formula being mixed, and that all fertilizers will meet the exacting standards of soil ratio requirements. The entire operation will be automatic. The fertilizer can be obtained either in sacks or in bulk to meet the needs of the farmer. Materials used will be provided direct from the mines, and only the very best of materials will be used.

Bell fertilizer company here has been in business since April, 1962. Previously he was in Lubbock, moving to Needmore in 1951. He operated a farm in that area until 1959. The company anticipates other distribution points in the Muleshoe area.
The company will enlarge its bulk spreading service, and additional spreaders will be added to the operation.
The phosphates will come from Florida and potash from Carlsbad, N.M., only highly soluble, free-flowing basic materials will be used.
The plant will be 40 feet wide, 70 feet long and 50 feet high, Bell explained.
Bell said: "We will be in both the wholesale and retail fertilizer business, and we especially invite other dealers to patronize our plant since we will be equipped to supply all their needs."

to give them any free publicity.

Then there was the paragraph in this column last week which had a line missing. That, incidentally, is the bare of the entire printing business - a line that falls to cast. The guy who solves that mechanical problem for newspapers has a fortune coming to him.
Anyway, the paragraph should have read: "Then there's the post-Christmas sign on a bargain table in a Clovis store which reads: 'We couldn't sell these things before Christmas, goodness only knows who will want them now!'"

Which recalls the radio announcer I know. He was reading a commercial for a used car lot which contained this line: "This car is equipped with a radio, heater and seat covers," only the items in that particular commercial were not in that usual sequence. So the announcer came out with, "This car is equipped with radio, heat covers and seaters."

Speaking of newspapers, Comedian Sam Levenson recently wrote a clever ditty about the use which people formerly made of their old newspapers. Like using the papers for shelves, for dress patterns, and the like.
But he overlooked one of the main uses folks used to put their newspapers to: Shoe soles. Now maybe this country has always been prosperous and folk didn't have to extend the life of their shoe soles beyond the manufacturer's expectations. But where I lived, it sometimes was a long time between pay checks for my folk.

And especially for a boy who could romp through a pair of shoes in nothing flat. I could do just that. But you first took a newspaper and laid your shoes on top of it. Then you drew a line around the sole and used this as a pattern for the improvised sole. The paper might fit a bit too soon, but after a few hours, the bottom three sheets wore out anyway, and the shoes became comfortable again. Of course the paper soles weren't much good in snow or other wet weather, but as long as the ground stayed dry, they served fairly well until the next payday.
If the original soles expired in the middle of a pay period for my school teacher dad, I might have to run through everything from the weekly Gazette to the Sunday Sun before we could replace the shoes with a new half-sole job or a pair of brand new shoes.
Of course you had to be careful not to expose the bottom of your feet; that might prove embarrassing. Come to think of it, times must have been bad all over for everybody in those days.
I recall the time Dad and I went into the bank to visit with the president for a few minutes. That bank dignitary put his feet, size 12, on his desk, sole side out. And there smack in the middle of both shoes was a hole big enough to run a rat through! Through his paper shoe soles I read practically the entire front page of the paper while we sat there visiting.
As I said, there were a lot of us for newspapers in the early days.

—1933—
People all over the United States were severely shocked when the news flashed out Thursday of last week the Calvin Coolidge 30th president of the United States, had died suddenly from heart failure at his home at Hampton, Mass.

Returning from a shopping tour Mrs. Coolidge found the body of her husband on the floor of a bedroom. The former president who, up to the time of his death, was the only surviving president.

Funeral services were held last Saturday morning at the Edwards Congregational Church in that city, after which the body was taken to Plymouth, Vt. for burial beside his father and son.

President Herbert Hoover, upon hearing of Coolidge's death ordered all flags at half mast for 30 days of mourning.

Glen Rockey salesman de luxe for the local Ford dealer, says—the reason why there are more automobile wrecks than train wrecks is because on the trains the foreman doesn't hug the engine.

Judge Klump says it is his opinion that the modern girls are as afraid of a dish rag and mop as their mothers were a mouse.

Bob Canfield says having their faces lifted may help some women, but having their noses lowered would make a good many others a lot more agreeable.

Cecil Tate says that still another trouble with this country is that it has been having a rain of law instead of a reign of law.

Roy Sheriff says every husband is a second story man. If his wife doesn't believe his first story he tells her a second one.

March of Dimes Scientists Find Armadillo Helpful in Twin Study

An oddball research animal that looks like a cross between an anteater and an armored tank is causing scientists to wonder if "identical" human twins are so identical after all.

The nine-banded armadillo, which is a native of Texas and points south, has several child-bearing characteristics that are similar to those of humans.

For this reason, Dr. Kurt Benirschke and colleagues at Dartmouth Medical College, Hanover, N. H., are using armadillos for studies of pregnancy and birth defects under a National Foundation-March of Dimes research grant.

It takes about the same length of time—nine months—for baby armadillos or baby humans to develop in the womb. And in both species, the placentas are structurally similar.

But a quirk of nature has made this odd mammal even more useful for medical research. It always has a litter of four. The four baby armadillos come from the same egg and are therefore always of the same sex.

What has this to do with human twins? For years, scientists have believed that identical twins—those who develop through division of the same egg—are exactly alike down to the very last gene. They've assumed that it was this genetic similarity that permits successful transplants of skin or of organs between identical twins.

If this theory were wholly correct, it should be easy to exchange skin grafts between identical young of the same armadillo litter since they all came from a single egg.

But Dr. Benirschke and his associates, Dr. Alastair H. Inre and Dr. John Anderson, have found that such grafts often fail to "take."

This paradox has led them to suspect that the answer to the tolerance cannot be found solely in genetic make-up. The March of Dimes researchers think the key may lie, at least in part, in the relationship of the embryo to the placenta—the material which nourishes the unborn infant.

Each armadillo quadruplet has its own isolated segment of placenta. This means that each gets a slightly different supply of nutrients, hormones and blood elements. While such differences are minute, they may be just enough to individualize each animal's development so he won't accept grafts and transplants from his own littermate.

Dr. Kurt Benirschke, March of Dimes grantee at Dartmouth Medical College, Hanover, N. H., studies the strange-looking armadillo.

Human twins, on the other hand, sometimes share a common placenta—each getting exactly the same nutrients for development. Thus they become favorable candidates for any necessary organ exchange or skin graft in later life.

If graft acceptance in twins is related to their sharing—or not sharing—the same placenta, some other puzzles of pregnancy may also be a little closer to solution.

Why, for example, doesn't a pregnant animal "reject" its own embryo, which is actually a "foreign" substance made up of cells quite different from her own?

Or does she, in some instances? Could such a reaction lead to spontaneous abortion or a defect in the offspring?

Or could it be that the exchange of substances through the placenta permits the mother to "accept" the embryo?

Does this exchange also make it possible for some mothers and children to tolerate each other's skin or organ grafts later in life? These are questions which have stumped scientists for many years. The answers, though still to come, may throw a bright new light on many problems of pregnancy, the causes of certain birth defects, and the success or failure of organ transplants.

Schools Aided By Ancient Fund

The Texans who created a "permanent school fund" more than 100 years ago left a memorial every Texas taxpayer can understand and appreciate today. In size of the fund and money earned, no other state in the nation has a comparable source of non-tax funds dedicated solely to public education. The fund provided more than $21 million of non-tax money for use in public schools in 1962, a sharp increase of about $3 million more than in 1961. The increase in revenue is attributed to investment in corporate securities, the refunding of certain treasury bonds, and normal growth of the investment account. Investments in the Texas permanent school fund totaled more than $477 million at the end of November, 1962, and current rate of return from the fund has been increased from 3.38 per cent to 3.51 per cent.

Most bass fishermen spend too much time changing baits. Drawbacks to the try-one-now, a different-one-later, system are many. But the primary objection is that the lure doesn't get a fair enough test to actually tell whether or no it will produce. It is much better to stick with one or two lures, letting them have the time to make a true test. But what lures? That's the perplexing problem. Today there are so many artificial baits in different sizes, shapes and types that it confuses the average fisherman. Most of the better anglers have one thing in common. They concentrate their efforts either on the top, or at the opposite extreme, right on the bottom. There's a good reason for his thinking. Much of the bass' food supply is concentrated in these regions. Probably the one big exception is small bait fish like minnows and sunfish. But a hungry bass usually will come to the top to take a frog-looking popper or a worm crawled along the bottom, as readily as he will a perch-type lure. A lure that operates either right on top or right on the bottom has an advantage over the other lures in that it can be worked at the ultra-slow speed needed to tempt big bass. Most lures which show up in sporting goods stores have a definite place in fishing. But they are specialized tools and work only in certain situations. Knowing how to recognize these situations requires much experience. Most weekend angler simply haven't encountered enough situations to pinpoint clues which will tell them which lures to use. In this respect water depth is very important. Lures with metal lips are designed to run at certain depths. A lure built to run 10 feet beneath the surface will, for example, be halfway down in 20-foot water, near bottom in 12-foot water, but close to the surface in 40-foot water. Unless the angler knows the depth of water he's fishing, this type lure will be practically useless. But if he sticks with the top-water bait or the bottom-bumper, the water depth is not as important. He'll still have his bait in the vicinity where bass hang out. Only within the past few years have fishermen been able to apply this formula successfully. It used to be that the only baits which dug deep down, where the big bass are most apt to be found, were those with long metal lips. These baits require a fast retrieve to make them dig deep, too fast to make them really effective on a lazy old bass. Also they are not too effective at depths exceeding 30 feet, and often the truly big bass are found at extreme depths of 40 to 50 feet. Lifelike lures made of limp plastic can be worked very slowly, crawled right along the bottom, yet they have enough action to tempt bass. Many anglers carry two rigged outfits in their boats, one equipped with a top-water lure, the other with a bottom-bumping bait. They try one for 25 to 30 casts, and if by then they haven't inveigled a strike, they switch to the other outfit. Often it pays off to try the topwater baits for the first couple of hours after daybreak when

DPS Chief Urges Early Inspection Of Automobiles

"Our weather is getting worse all the time and April 15 will come before you know it," Captain Alan Johnson, Texas Department of Public Safety Supervisor, commented this week. He was talking about the time left for Texas motorists to get 1963 vehicle safety inspections. The seven and one-half month period for getting inspections is more than half finished. Inspections started September 1 and will continue through April 15, and we continue have a seige of bad weather in this part of the state which eliminates many inspection days," Captain Johnson said. He also pointed out that inspection of vehicles now will insure that they are safer for the rest of the winter driving period, when good lights, brakes and other equipment are so vital. Failure to have a 1963 inspection sticker displayed on the windshield of your vehicle after April 15 is a violation of the law and is punishable by a fine not to exceed two hundred dollars. It costs $7.200 to get a loaded B-47 bomber off the runway bass migrate into the shallows to feed on things found along the surface; then use the bottom-bumping baits during the remainder of the day when the fish have drifted back into deeper water. As to the color of a lure it has been proven that the color is actually more important than the actual color itself. If a person stays with two basic type lures — topwater and bottom-bumping — and two basic colors, light and dark, he'll be right 99 times out of 100. And in the unpredictable sport of bass fishing, those are pretty good odds, indeed.
