HER BRAVE TO WED TO HAVE ATHLETIC PHOTO WON HEARTS

Plenty Hawk Was Once Suitor of Chicago Girl.

Miss Madeline Sullivan Hears the News From Wyoming With Much Indifference—Love for Rich Man is Dead.

Chicago.—Talking to a reporter recently in the reception room of her mother's apartments at 820 Crescent place, Miss Madeline Sullivan poured tea and recalled the days when in sheepskin chaps and sombrero she lazed stately in her mother's home and sank steel spurs in the mahogany music bench.

The occasion was the announcement by wire from Sheridan, Wyo., that Plenty Hawk, richest of all the Crow Indians, had taken out a license to marry a former squaw of Medicine Hat.

When an obscure province like Finland starts the world by the prowess of its athletes, when far-off Japan and Chile send men to these games and France has but two representatives, and one of these is a girl tennis player—it seems time that something is done.

Hence there was created the idea of a "college of athletics." A committee was formed last October which issued a circular to the public. The object first in mind was to take charge of what athletic material there was already and train it for entrance in the Olympic games at Berlin in 1916.

But it was seen at once that this would be only a beginning. If France was to take its proper position in the athletic world there was need of much more than this. The idea was extended to creating a school also for athletic instructors, at the same time conducting a campaign of publicity that would lead in time to the establishment of similar training colleges all over the country.

The October circular was signed by Auguste Rodin, Jean Richepin, Dr. Weiss, Gabriel Honyval, the Marquis de Polignac, Dr. Bouchard and Maurice Colrat.

In reality it was the marquis de Polignac who has brought to success this movement. He foresaw that to arouse the interest of a whole nation would be the labor of years unless some tangible showing was made at once.

He had already laid out an athletic field at Reims. Here he has built a handsome gymnasium, with a swimming pool alongside. In front is a stadium, with a running track around the sides and a straightaway for dashes down the center 110 meters (about 120 yards) long.

In charge he has placed Lieutenant Georges Hebert, the inventor of the system of setting-up exercises now in use in the navy. The work of the college is divided into three parts. First, the study of all questions concerning physical education; second, a course for educators, instructors and trainers; third, the care and training of athletes for international contests, in which France is now resolved to make a creditable showing.

When the children came Prince Charles, Prince Nicholas and the little Princess Elizabeth Marie, lovingly called "Mignon" by the people, they were photographed with their mother in the garb of Roumanian peasants. What was the result? From a small, weak nation, Roumania has grown to one of the real powers of eastern Europe, due simply to this and other similar campaigns engineered by the royal family to gain the liking of the people and hold it securely.

Olympic Games Cause France to Take Up Sports.

Owing to Generosity of Marquis the First French Athletic College is Being Built—Will Soon Admit Students.

Paris, France.—France has decided to take up athletics seriously. Hitherto in France athletes have had no public support financially. There has been lacking the incentive of applause to arouse enthusiasm and what few men have gone in for sport have done so from pure love of it—and they have been very few.

But after the Olympic games at Stockholm the French public woke up to the fact that their country was making a pitiful showing. When an obscure province like Finland starts the world by the prowess of its athletes, when far-off Japan and Chile send men to these games and France has but two representatives, and one of these is a girl tennis player—it seems time that something is done.

Hence there was created the idea of a "college of athletics." A committee was formed last October which issued a circular to the public. The object first in mind was to take charge of what athletic material there was already and train it for entrance in the Olympic games at Berlin in 1916.

Pictures of Roumanian Royal Family Widely Circulated.

Popularity of Crown Princess Marie Likely to Be Potent in Obtaining Vote of Supplies in Event War is Declared.

New York.—A king must have money to be a king. Royal dynasties in this commercial age are based upon the dollar, and that same dollar comes from the pockets of the commoner who, if managed properly, are only too willing to pay well for the privilege of a stable government.

Thus it is that in the Balkans the rulers who have been hurling their legions at the battle front of the Turkish army have needed an ever-increasing store of millions. The war is practically over, but every money lender in Europe has a fat sheaf of royal and governmental "I. O. U.'s."

The Balkans are for the most part ruled by families from other countries, connections of the Hapsburgs and other royal lines. Naturally it has been the task of the incumbents to "make good" in the eyes of the warlike and independent natives. Princess Marie went to Roumania as a bride from another part of Europe. She was beautiful, but then there are many other beautiful ladies in the nation, which is famed for its beauties. "Outlanders" were not very popular in the mountain states of southeastern Europe, but Princess Marie determined to make herself liked. The pretty royal bride hit upon a clever scheme. She affected the native dress upon all occasions. This was not hard, for the national costume is one of the most picturesque in the world.

Then she had a picture taken that has been circulated in millions among the subjects of the royal family. It is the most popular picture post card souvenir in the land.

STUDY MARKET CONDITIONS

What Happens to Produce From Producer to Consumer to Be Studied.

Washington, D. C., July 10.—It is announced that the Department of Agriculture, through its office of markets, will shortly begin a thorough study of what happens to produce from the time it leaves the producer until it reaches the consumer.

Other specialists will give attention to studying co-operative organizations of producers and consumers, including co-operative marketing associations of farmers and buyers, co-operative stores, etc. They will make intensive studies of typical communities dealing with special products, and will assist in the formation of new co-operative enterprises.

Special attention is to be given to the milling, marketing, and utilization of cotton seed. A specialist in this line will gather full information necessary for the successful organization and operation of all mills by co-operative producers.

Why it Pays to Buy Advertised Goods

By Seth Brown

Because the advertiser has done something to inspire confidence. He has not only explained the value and usefulness of his product, but has put his personality and reputation behind his statements.

He can be trusted because his very business existence is at stake. He believes in his goods to the extent of investing his capital, not only in making the goods right, but in advertising, which will not prove permanently profitable if he fails to make good—secure repeat orders.

The advertising is not only a protection to the trade name, but it is the advertiser's guarantee of quality.

You are justified in being suspicious of unadvertised goods, because, however much confidence the dealer or manufacturer may have in them, he has not enough faith in them to spend money in telling others of their goodness.

It always pays to buy advertised goods.

CURE FOR INEBRIATE

Indiana Town's Apparatus Expected to Succeed.

Many Methods Are Tried—Western Judges Have Adopted Novel Plans in Dealing With the Chronic Drunkard.

New York.—Cleveland's "Golden Rule" treatment of men and women who have transgressed the law in an inconsequential way has been improved upon apparently by the late municipal innovation of Elwood, Ind. The city has established a fumigating apparatus and all prisoners on the tramp or plain drunk variety are passed through the various "coags" of the machine. When they are released they exude after the manner of those who have been confined in hospitals for weeks and carry out with them the scent of carbolic acid and various other mixtures. It is expected that the odor will reveal the fact of arrest and arouse the shame of the offender.

Various expedients have been adopted in the past, both curative and preventive. In connection with men and women put in cells over night for minor offenses. Originally $10 or ten days was held to be the very last best word in penalty infliction. Then folks pointed out that the poor man hadn't $10 to spare in most cases and if he was sent to jail for ten days because he couldn't pay that his family suffered through his idleness and he might lose his employment altogether.

Suspended sentence was then tried in a number of cities and this seemed in a great measure—when coupled with a sharp lecture—to approximate what was the best thing to do with the minor transgressor. Now and then a western city magistrate would try a cure of his own. The cure would be concededly an original one no matter if it did not always prove efficacious. One judge sentenced an offender to scrub out half a dozen cells every night for a week after he had finished his daily occupation outside the station house. Another judge in one of the Pacific coast cities sentenced a man guilty of public intoxication twice a month or a two months' attendance at meetings of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. He was the only man present at several of these meetings and he did not like his corrective medicine at all, but he had to swallow it.

Still another magistrate gave a chronic inebriate the alternative of thirty days in jail or buying and distributing a dozen temperance advocacy tracts every day for thirty days at specified addresses, where it could be proved he had not called if he neglected the task. With the delivery of

GERMAN JEWS LOVE EMPIRE

Say They Are Citizens of "Fatherland" First. Then Support Plant Advocated by Zionists.

Berlin.—The Central Association of German Citizens of Jewish Faith, one of the most important of such organizations in Germany, has definitely rejected Zionism, so far as to announce that the Jewish citizen in Germany is first of all a German, and only secondly a Jew.

The association at a recent meeting in Berlin, adopted a resolution indorsing the efforts of the Zionists to provide a safe home for the persecuted Jews of the East, and to awaken pride in Jewish history and loyalty to its religion, but declared:

"We must, however, part from the Zionist who rejects a German national feeling, and who considers himself a guest in a foreign land and looks upon himself only as a Jew.

"We do not desire a solution of the Jewish question by international action," says another passage of the resolution. "On the soil of the German fatherland we desire to do our part as Germans to further German culture, while remaining true to our communion, hallowed by history and religion."

THE night panoramic view of the Exposition shown above gives but a faint idea of the magnificent picture which will be presented. The wonderful electrical illumination that is planned will make not only the grounds and buildings of the Exposition as light as the bright California sunshine, but will include all the beauties of the bay and city. The progress of electrical lighting science makes possible a far more brilliant night effect than has ever been known before. In fact, scientific developments in all lines will be utilized to make the Panama-Pacific International Exposition fully one hundred per cent greater and grander than any other world exposition ever held.

VISIT ITS BREEDING FARM

Hungarian Government Host to American Investigators.

Mezohegyes, Hungary, July 10.—As the guest of the Hungarian government members of the American commission on agricultural co-operation were shown over the government breeding farm here.

Horse breeding is one of the important industries of Hungary. The most noticeable characteristic of a Hungarian city to the stranger is the appearance of the horses on the streets. Even the cabs are two horse vehicles and the horses would do credit to many a private turnout in the United States. Militarism is back of the horse breeding industry, and the Hungarians have done precisely what Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood would like to see done for the American army.

The government farm of Mezohegyes is about 35,000 acres. Nearly all of the land is given over to forage crops of pasture. The growth of forage is particularly heavy and its quality very high. There are altogether 2,100 horses on the farm and this is but one of six such establishments in Hungary. The purpose of the institution is to keep up the quality of the horses bred, and to improve the cattle, sheep and farm stock of the entire country. The exhibition was impressive, more an effort upon an enormous scale to secure practical results in cattle and horse breeding, than as a show farm of fancy stock.

The horses are bred for cavalry use and to secure a good agricultural breed. The stallions are sent out to government establishments over the country and are at the command of the farmers. The most important stallions of the Mezohegyes farm are the English half-bred and the Anglo-Norman, and the horses are all of robust appearance and strong bone structure, making them admirably suited for agricultural use.

In the breeding of cows an effort is made to secure an animal that will serve both as a dairy cow and as a draft animal for the small farmers of Hungary work their cows as well as to use them for milk. The Hungarian cow is not now of much use either as a dairy animal or as a beef animal. It is of the long horn breed, similar to cattle of the western plains. Swiss cattle have been improved and various experiments are constantly being carried on to produce a combination dairy and draft animal. Some excellent types of Hungarian oxen were shown members of the commission.

The American commission was taken to the farm by a special train from Budapest. A cavalry post is maintained on the farm and the Americans quartered in the officers' barracks. In one section of the barracks a group of ten of the Americans immediately established a bachelors' hall.

Before sun-up the next morning many of the Americans walked to the country market and watched the Hungarian peasants begin their market day. The women for the most part do the selling and spread their produce about them on the ground. The impression is being borne in upon the Americans that women do most of the work in Europe.

The government farm requires so many people as herdsmen and stable hands, besides the cavalry post, that it is quite a good sized village. Here especially the visitor was impressed with the enormous part played by the government in the development of agriculture. Undoubtedly European governments have come to consider agriculture as different from all other forms of industry of far greater social importance and as an industry standing in need of government support and protection to be brought to its highest state of development. The problem of keeping the peasant upon the soil involves the question of national existence. It is a military problem—an economic problem, a problem to maintain the backbone of the nation. And what is done in Hungary to better the economic and social position of the farmer is done not so much for the farmer's sake as for the nation's sake, and in the belief that without the farmer, without successful and contented farmers, the nation cannot exist.
