Food, fuel prices slow inflation spiral

WASHINGTON (AP) - Falling prices at the gasoline pump and the third big monthly drop in grocery costs held the rise in consumer prices to two-tenths of a per cent in March, the government said today.

The March increase compared with February's consumer price rise of one-tenth of a per cent and an increase of four-tenths of a per cent in January. The January-to-March figures left consumers with the lowest three-month inflation rate in almost increase for the three months ending in March — a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.9 per cent — was the smallest three-month increase since June 1972. It compared with an average increase of about 7 per cent for each calendar quarter in 1975.

The Labor Department said the

Lower beef prices led the decline at grocery counters where prices fell another 1.2 per cent in March. Grocery prices fell 1.5 per cent in February after a decline of four-tenths of a per cent in January.

Gasoline prices fell 1.3 per cent instead of moving up as they usually has exceeded even the most optimistic projections, but the Ford administration had cautioned that the declines in food and fuel are not likely to be sustained.

Maynard Comiez, acting chief economist for the Commerce Department, said in an interview before the price report was issued that food and gasoline prices were beginning to climb higher.

"I don't expect to see a sharp reacceleration in prices, but I do think we might see some increases larger than we have been getting," he said.

Despite the slowing of inflation, the American worker fell seven-tenths of a per cent in March because weekly earnings were held back by a reduction in working hours. However, over the year purchasing power was up 4.3 per cent.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 167.5 in March, meaning that it cost consumers $167.50 to buy the same variety of goods and services purchased for $100 in 1967. Over the past year, prices have risen 6.1 per cent, the smallest gain in any 12-month period since the year ending July, 1973.

Although Agriculture Department officials so far have declined to predict food prices beyond mid-year, previous estimates indicated that consumers might see food costs go up an average of 5 to 6 per cent over the entire 12 months, compared with a gain of 8.5 per cent in 1975.

recently announced increases in gasoline prices, which had declined in late 1975. But Comiez said gasoline prices usually rise at this time of the year and unless the new increases are larger than the normal seasonal push they may not be reflected in the consumer price index.

Services, including rent, insurance rates and medical costs have been the fastest rising component in the consumer price index in recent months, and officials say there has been no sign of any slowdown in this

Police complaint on insurance draws reaction from city hall

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The City of Midland has no real qualms with the survey made by members of the Midland Police Officers Association - but the city feels some misunderstandings exist regarding its insurance coverage offered employes.

Assistant City Manager Fred Poe and city councilman Carroll Thomas met Tuesday night with Capt. E. W. Green, night captain at the police department, to discuss an article which appeared in Tuesday's Poe said, "There were some rumors flying around this morning that the city council and I had met with police officers to discuss salaries and insurance; however, these rumors are not true. Councilman Thomas and I rode around in Capt. Green's police unit and discussed a few things, such as the survey on policemen's pay, but Green was on his first night back at duty after a two weeks' vacation and he knew nothing."

Poe added that he and Thomas had not seen Police Chief Wayne Gideon when they were at the police station about 8:30 p.m., and they did not try to reach the chief.

Thomas said visiting with police officers "was something I had been wanting to do for quite some time," and he accepted Poe's offer last night to go to the police station.

Poe said the salary survey taken by the MPOA was welcomed by the city because "policemen and every other city employe are entitled to find out what others in their capacities are drawing in wages."

Thomas said, "It's not just a simple matter of comparing base pay, though. You have to consider whether the city or the individual buys his uniform, cleans it, and so forth, plus other fringe benefits like education. Salary supplements like these must be figured in, too, so you can look at the whole picture. If our policemen are not receiving the proper com-pensation, we'll take the steps to insure that they do."

Poe said 90-95 per cent of the quotes in Tuesday's article concerning insurance were inaccurate. He said policemen are not required to take out insurance policies and that husbands and wives who both work for the city do not have to take out policies. He said the $10-$12 taken out on vehicles insures the driver alone he will have protection in case he's found at fault in an accident and sued.

Poe also said he was unaware the officers didn't know any more than was indicated in Tuesday's R-T regarding their fringe benefits from insurance. He said this information was offered, but the employes indicated they understood their

Thomas said there may be some misunderstanding by some employes on the fringe benefits from the insurance. The policies are com-plicated, he said, and "I suspect we'll need to provide more information to employes on the benefit programs."

Thomas also said that conflicting reports exist on where Midland's (Continued on Page 6A)

The strike, the second nationwide shutdown in U.S. industry within a month, was expected to have little immediate effect outside the Big Four. Auto makers said they had stockpiled enough tires to last up to four weeks, depending on the type of car and the rate of production.

But the car makers also said a lengthy strike would cut into operations at some point because assembly lines require such rubber parts as hoses, floormats, belts, and gaskets as well as tires.

Bommarito said the URW's total economic demands represented a 42 per cent increase over the current average package of $9.05 per hour that includes wages of $5.50.

Negotiations with Firestone broke up at 2 a.m. and were scheduled to resume this afternoon.

Talks with the rest of the Big Four were to continue today, although a Goodyear negotiator in Cincinnati, where that company's sessions were conducted, said that because of the intense efforts with Firestone everything is up in the air." Uniroyal sessions were in New York and Goodrich meetings were in Columbus, Ohio.

Besides the strike, the URW also launched a worldwide plea for a consumer boycott of Firestone

Initial reports as picket lines went up from Massachusetts to Los Angeles indicated a "quiet, orderly strike," as an official at one of the 47 plants put it. There was a brief windowbreaking spree at Firestone's main Akron plant.

Nancy Reagan rejects women's libber label

R-T Staff Writer

ODESSA - If Ronald Reagan is elected president, the "style" of the first lady will be a marked departure from that of Betty Ford.

Nancy Reagan, wife of the Republican presidential contender, says she's not sure what women's lib is all about, doesn't favor the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) and isn't involved in the current citizens' band radio craze.

Mrs. Reagan was in West Texas this morning to hold a press conference and meet more than 100 area residents at a coffee held in her honor. Speaking at Odessa's Inn of the Golden West, she told news media

She said the center of her life is "my husband and my home. I do believe women should have other interests ... (but) I think the core is the home and the family.

Referring to the controversial ERA. she said, "I'm for equal rights ... I just don't think the best way to go about it is the amendment route." The candidate's wife favors, instead, a statute "to correct the inequities that exist."

Mrs. Reagan admitted she and her husband are not in 100 per cent agreement in all matters, but added,

We agree on the major issues. Asked if she feels she influences her husband's decisions, she replied, "You can't be married 24 years and

Phil Gramm and Ronald Reagan have so much in common politically that Gramm fears the Republican presidential contender may be his downfall in the Democratic senatorial Gramm, who is after Lloyd Bentsen's seat in the U.S. Senate, figures he can muster the votes to defeat the Texas senator in the May 1 Democratic primary election "unless I lose the race to Ronald Reagan

He is apparently apprehensive that conservative Democrats and independents may "go" with Reagan on the Republican ticket May 1 and thereby forsake him.

"But I am not going to lose to Lloyd Bensten," said Gramm, as if consoling himself, in a hurried press conference here at noon Tuesday.

Though hailing from rival parties, Gramm and Reagan have a similar political hue - boldly conservative. And, like President Gerald Ford, they also have this common interest:

John Connally, formerly governor of Texas and former Secretary of the Treasury under President Richard Connally would outclass Dr. Henry

Kissinger as Secretary of State, Gramm speculated. "I think John Connally," Gramm said, " . . . has a more clear understanding of our history and of our destiny as a nation" than does

"I think John Connally would be superior in every respect to . Kissinger," who was appointed to the cabinet post late in 1973 by President Substantially, Gramm's comment on Connally was not original. Speculation has been brewing that President Ford would replace Kissinger with the charismatic Connally should he beat Reagan out of the Republican party's nomination for president and get elected to office.

And Reagan, who openly has sought Connally's now-elusive support, said he would get rid of Kissinger were he elected to the Presidency.

Reagan, former governor of California, clearly left the implication that he might - given the chance appoint Connally as his Secretary of

And, again like Reagan, Gramm views his battle for votes as an "uphill fight." But unlike Reagan, Gramm allowed, "Many (people) don't know me from Adam's house cat." So he's trying to get familiar, more or less, with the people. That takes a bit of doing, too. Texas, as the world knows, is a big state. But fewer know that Gramm is facing four Democrats, including Sen. Bentsen, in the primary race. He counts the others, excluding Bentsen, out of the running When not politicking, the 33-yearold Gramm is a professor of economics at Texas A&M University: he took a leave of absence from his post last May to campaign. And he'll return to teaching economics should the voters pass him by.

He said he decided to campaign for the Senate because there's "very little talent" at Washington, D.C. So Gramm thought he'd bring his brand of conservatism to the nation's capital. That's conditional, of course, on his defeating Bentsen and the Republican challenger. (Gramm said of three GOPers in the race, U.S. Rep. Alan Steelman, 33, of Dallas, most likely will be squared off either against Bentsen or himself in the Nov.

general election.) Gramm, who called millionaire Bentsen "more fiscally irresponsible than George McGovern," offered these other plain-spoken comments at his press conference:

- Petroleum. The depletion allowance should be "reinstituted," and liberally at that, for both major. and independent oil and gas

- Inflation. The American people today have to shell out $1.75 for what $1 would purchase 10 years ago. "The same, basic laws of economics that apply to the household and business

Court supports Hercules

ROBERT BARKDOLL The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court denied a Texas firm a patent for its stable-cleansing device Tuesday, holding that Hercules beat the company to it when he washed out the Augean stables in the fifth of his 12 Labours.

With one voice, the august court's nine justices solemnly ruled that there was nothing very new or different, certainly nothing patentable. about a machine that dumped water on the floor of a cow barn to wash away manure.

The court's unanimous opinion was written by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who seemed to enjoy his work.

'Systems using water to clean animal wastes from barn floors have been familiar on dairy farms since ancient times," Brennan said.

Then, for those whose classical reading may have been scanty, he quoted from Guerber's Myths of Greece and Rome:

'Hercules was next sent to Augeas, King of Elis, who had immense droves of cattle. The stables usually occupied by these animals were in an incredibly filthy state, as they had not

"Close by these stables rushed a torrent, or rather a river, the Alpheus. Hercules, with one glance, saw the use he could make of this rushing stream, which he dammed and turned aside from its course, so that the waters passed directly worthy of a patent.

Not so, said Justice Brennan. "Exploitation of the principle of gravity adds nothing to the sum of useful knowledge ... "This particular use of the assembly of old elements would be obvious to any person skilled in the art of mechanical application."

To be patentable, a device must be novel, useful and non-obvious. Brennan and the other eight justices held that Ag Pro's barn washer was a little too obvious.

The case came before the court when Ag Pro sued Bernard A. Sakraida, a general contractor and former supervisor with the firm, for infringing on its patent.

Blacks win housing decision

WASHINGTON (AP) - Inner-city blacks, often trapped in ghetto areas because of their need for cheap housing available there, may soon find similar low-income housing in the predominantly white suburbs as a result of a Supreme Court decision.

The court, in an 8-0 decision Tuesday, said black residents of Chicago had been confined to public housing projects in ghetto areas of the inner city largely because of federal complicity in discriminatory practices that kept low-income housing out of the suburbs.

Therefore, the justices said, when federal officials are found guilty of racial bias in the placement of lowincome housing in a city, federal courts can order them to create housing for the poor in neighboring

The court's decision could have widespread effects on construction of new public housing projects in cities where blacks can prove that lowincome housing has been concentrated in ghetto areas by governmental efforts to keep the poor confined within city limits.

In the Chicago case, lower courts had held that the city housing authority created a pattern of overwhelmingly white occupancy of lowincome units in white neighborhoods and black occupancy in black sections. The courts also held that the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development was similarly responsible for fostering segregation by approving and financing the plans drawn by Chicago officials.

The justices said that since HUD operates irrespective of local boundary tines, it was proper for a lower court to order the federal agency "to foster projects located in white areas" as a curé for the department's past complicity in discrimination.

The court ruled specifically that HUD can be ordered to provide such housing in the suburbs if the federal government has contributed to city segregation through its public housing funding programs.

In the Chicago area, the decision could lead to a housing plan that would span six counties and an area of nearly 4,000 square miles. The Supreme Court said it considered the "relevant geographic area" for blacks seeking low-cost housing in Chicago "is the Chicago housing market, not the Chicago city limits."

The case has become involved in the current presidential campaign. Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter, whose remark about "ethnic purity" of neighborhoods was in response to a question about the case, said the court's decision "suits me fine." He said it would condemn deliberate exclusion of blacks but would leave "a substantial amount of flexibility to local communities."

President Ford, who last week said the nation should not destroy the "treasure" of ethnically identifiable neighborhoods, had no immediate

Under the ruling, courts can order HUD to locate low-income projects in the predominantly white suburbs, even if the suburbs involved have not been guilty of racially discriminatory

Beirut slaughter continues

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Lebanon's feuding politicians argued today over Christian President Suleiman Franjieh's departure from office and Palestinian participation in ceasefire enforcement while the fighting continued at war level.

Police reported-179 persons killed and 302 wounded Tuesday and today. There was heavy fighting during the night in the Christian-held port area and in Beirut's eastern suburbs and adjacent mountain

Leftist Moslem leader Kamal Jumblatt threatened to establish a Moslem-ruled, Socialist state in which the Christians would be reduced to a powerless minority unless Franjieh delivered his signature on a constitutional amendment authorizing early election of his replacement. Premier Rashid Karami, a moderate Moslem leader, announced last Saturday that Franjieh had finally signed the amendment, but parliament cannot meet to elect his successor until he delivers it to the speaker of the legislature, Kamel Assaad. Jumblatt said more delay by Franjieh would allow "the national and progressive forces to announce a national rule and change the political, economic and social regime. Jumblatt's military forces were on their way to establishing such a regime in early April, but Syrian President Hafez Assad forced him to halt the advance. Franjieh, the symbol to the Moslems of the Christians' unwillingness to relinquish their dominant political and economic position in Lebanon, sent a special envoy to Damascus. His mission was to get Assad to remove the Palestinian guerrillas from the machinery Syria is trying to set up to enforce the war's 35th cease-fire, which was supposed to take effect this week.

Franjieh's chief allies, former President Camille Chamoun and Phalange party leader Pierre Gemayel, who control the two largest Christian militians fighting the Moslems, charged that the anned Palestinian participation was an "inringement of Lebanon's freedom.

Palestinian leaders Zohair Mohsen and Abu Ayad sought to reassure the Christians, saying they will not interfere in election of a new president or the changing of the constitution. There was speculation that the Christian leaders wanted the Palestinians replaced by Syrian army troops, believing they would be less of a threat to the Christian cause than the Palestinians.

Since the Lebanese Moslems and Christians have demonstrated they will not adhere to a cease-fire without a third party to restrain them, Assad is depending on the guerrillas of Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Army and of the Saiga Palestinian organization, which Syria finances and controls, to stop the fighting and enforce a truce.

The truce supervisory committee is made up of two Syrian officers along with Lebanese Moslem and Christian representatives and Palestinian representatives. Their chief task is to set up joint patrols of Lebanese and Palestinian soldiers.

Ford is expected to ask Congress soon for about $300 million to produce 60 additional long-range Minuteman missiles and speed procurement of a new and bigger nuclear warhead.

A Ford request to keep open the Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missile production line would be a reversal of an earlier decision to shut down Minuteman production. This shut-down decision was reflected in Ford's defense budget for the coming fiscal year.

The recommendation sent by the Pentagon to the White House budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - President office weeks ago called for $266 million to produce the 60 missiles.

At present, the United States has 1,000 Minuteman missiles in firing position, including 550 Minuteman IIIs, each armed with three warheads, and 450 earlier Minuteman IIs, which mount single warheads.

Under the Pentagon's proposal, the number of land-based Minuteman missiles in launch silos would not be increased, officials said, but the "mix" probably would be changed to increase the number of multiplewarhead Minuteman IIIs and lower the number of Minuteman IIs.

Also included in the package is $56 million to begin production of a bigger warhead for the Minuteman III in 1977, a year earlier than had been planned. The new Mark 12A warhead would have the blast power of about 400,000 tons of TNT, twice that of present Minuteman III warheads. This would give the Minuteman greater ability to knock out heavily protected targets such as underground Soviet missile bases, command posts and industrial plants. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld testified in February that it had been decided that the money saved by shutting down Minuteman production: could be applied better to accelerating development of a much more powerful advanced missile.

WASHINGTON (AP) -A globe-girdling trip by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, 13 other government 'employes and nine of their wives is costing taxpayers an estimated $112,000 for use of an Air Force jet plane.

Warmer weather, less winds forecast for area

Warmer afternoons and less wind is in store through Thursday for area residents, a National Weather Service spokesman said

All area towns reported clear skies this morning, with slight breezes in Andrews, Lamesa, Stanton and Big Lake. Crane, Rankin and McCamey did not have any winds. Temperatures were cool in Andrews and Big Lake, while it was warming up guickly in Lamesa, Stanton, Crane, Rankin and McCamey.

Tonight should be somewhat warmer, with the low expected to be in the upper 50s. A gentle, 5-10 m.p.h. wind from the south is also expected tonight, the NWS spokesman said. Thursday's high should climb into the upper 80s, the spokesman said.

Storms besieging Texas departed, and calm weather returned throughout the state today.

Skies cleared except for occasional early morning fog near the Lower Texas Coast. Forecasts promised it would be sunny and mild in all sections. The Associated Press reported. Remnants of a cold front blamed for the latest round of tornadoes and

JA plans under way

Plans for the staging of the annual Future Unlimited Banquet of Junior Achievement of Midland were announced this morning at the April meeting of the organization's board of directors in the JA Center.

The banquet is scheduled at 7 p.m.. May 4, in the Midland County Exhibit Building, Chairman Parker Humes

The program this year will be built around the presentation of awards to Top Achievers in the 1975-76 season. Members of JA's original board of directors also will be honored at the event, which is expected to attract more than 500 persons.

Democrats in New Jersey chose Reagan as a "write-in" on that state's primary ballot.

"After his last nationwide speech, we were amazed at the number of letters that came from young people and Democrats....Some people even sent their Social Security checks.' Asked if the Reagan campaign kept the Social Security stipends, Mrs. Reagan referred to high cost of running a campaign without matching funds from the government. She pointed out her husband joined with the Democratic presidential candidates in seeking those funds.

"I would have felt a little better if Mr. Ford had joined in," she said. Queried about which Republican is really the underdog in Texas' May 1 primary, Mrs. Reagan said those claims coming from the Ford campaign are "a little political talk," implying that the President's recent appointment of John Connally's law partner, Ross Sterling, to a federal judgeship will aid his cause. She asserted also that Ford has an additional advantage with campaign funds available to him.

Although reluctant to discuss her plans if the Reagan campaign is ultimately successful and she becomes first lady, Mrs. Reagan indicated she might espouse the foster grandparents program. She stated, however, she would support that program whether from within the White House or from the Reagan's staff survey from last year's budget sessions by the council showed Midland and Odessa were the highest in the state on education pay, at up to $150 a month. Houston was next, with up to $100 a month, he said. He noted that salaries in Houston, Dallas and other large metropolitan areas were higher than Midland salaries due to the higher cost of living.

Police complaints draw reaction from city hall

"Workman's compensation is the only compulsory insurance an employe must take out, and the city pays that premium," Poe said. "If the employe wants the whole package deal, the city pays 52 per cent and the employe pays 48 per cent. This used to split 50-50, but the city picked up the tab on some benefits. An individual policy, though, is 50-50."

He said that the city carries no liability insurance on emergency vehicles (police and fire cars), but employes in those departments are asked to carry liability insurance on their own personal policies. The city then reimburses those employes, That insurance protects the employe alone, not the city, Poe said.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said it was his understanding that the salaries of all city employes were in line with other Texas cities. "However, if there are discrepancies, we need to take a look at them," he said.

Angelo-said he knew when policemen formed the MPOA they intended to take a look at salaries, but he approved of this. He said he had not seen the survey of salaries and couldn't really react to the article. He said the matter of salaries was usually considered during budget sessions, but, since those sessions do not come up until June, "we may have to look at this earlier."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court ruling is expected in the next few weeks on the Federal Power Commission's authority to protect municipal utilities and rural electric cooperatives from discriminatory wholesale rates by power companies.

The court hears arguments today on charges of nine such utilities in Arkansas that they were unfairly denied a right to argue against proposed wholesale rate hikes by the Arkansas Power and Light Co. which they said would squeeze them out of the industrial power market.

The American Public Power Association has told the court that the Arkansas situation is a "typical example of a problem repeatedly encountered" by municipal utilities seeking to attract industrial business both for the revenues and the jobs which it creates.

Like most electrical companies. Arkansas Power competes for retail sales with the utilities to which it sells power at wholesale. In May 1973, the company applied to the FPC for a wholesale rate increase amounting to 23 per cent on sales to municipally owned systems and 35 per cent on sales to cooperatives.

The nine utilities asked permission to intervene in the FPC proceeding, saying the proposed increase appeared to be an attempt to "squeeze .them out of competition.

The brief filed by the utilities shows that between 1955 and 1965, 150 municipal utilities were acquired by larger utilities whose sales territory surrounded theirs. The number of municipally and cooperatively owned utilities declined by 58 between 1962

The FPC refused to accept the intervention, saying that in determining interstate power rates it could not consider possible anticompetitive effects on retail rates which are not within its jurisdiction.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington reversed this decision, saying the commission "cannot wash its hands of the public interest problem as one totally beyond its jurisdiction.'

The Federal Power Commission appealed to the Supreme Court saying that it must determine the reasonableness of rates on the basis of costs in the wholesale power business. The FPC said any price squeeze that existed could be dealt with by a suit under federal antitrust laws. The municipal utilities charged that the FPC had chosen to "ignore reality and determine the issue of reasonableness in a vacuum." The Arkansas utilities involved are Conway Corp., Benton Municipal Light & Water Works, Hope Water & Light Commission, City of North Little Rock, City of Osceola, City of Prescott, City of West Memphis, Farmers Electric Cooperative Corp. and Mississippi County Electric

Cooperative, Inc. A brief was also filed in the case by the Illinois cities of Batavia, Geneva, Naperville, Rock Falls, St. Charles and Rochelle. They are involved in a similar dispute with the FPC over a proposed rate hike by Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago. The U.S. Court of Appeals is awaiting the Supreme Court's decision before deciding that

AFTAH Printing Ford's income Genuine Levi's tax refund tops $11,000

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford, who paid $94,568.93 in 1975 federal income taxes, only waited a couple of weeks to get a refund check of $11,631.07 from the Internal Revenue Service.

Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, released on Tuesday a detailed report on Ford's income tax return, showing the President made $251,991.24 last year and had taxable income of $204,605.83.

Nessen said Ford's tax forms were filed earlier this month and that he received his refund check during the past week.

When asked why Ford "seems to get speedier service (from the IRS) than the rest of us," Nessen gave no answer other than to smile.

Nessen said Ford paid $38,200 more in federal taxes in 1975 than he did the previous year. Gross income included the President's salary, his $50,000 expense account and $1,991.24 in savings account interest, small dividends and a net return on rental property the Fords own in Virginia, Michigan and Colorado.

"The President hopes this will be a model for the degree of detail on tax information that all candidates should issue to the voters whom they are asking to elevate them to the presidency," Nessen

Nessen said $106,200 tax was withheld from Ford's weekly paycheck. Ford claimed $750 personal exemptions for himself and his wife and three of his four children. He did not claim son Steve, who is working part time on a ranch

When the federal taxes are added to state and local tax payments of $11,941.91, Nessen said, they accounted for 42 per cent of the family's gross income - the same pernentage as in 1974 when the Ford's gross income was some $104,000 lower because the President had earned a White House salary for only five months of the year.

The Ford's 1975 state, local and other taxes was nearly double the 1974 figure of $5,985. The President's higher income largely accounted for Of his $50,000 expense account, Ford deducted $23,000 as business expenses. The largest single item in this category was the cost of buying and mailing 35,000 Christmas cards.

Nessen said the Fords spent the other $27,000 in expense money, but could not deduct it because it was used for private entertaining.

The Fords deducted charitable contributions of $6,759.34 for 1975, up from $5,845 a year earlier. Nessen said most of the contributions represented relatively small donations to a large number of organizations such as the Boy Scouts and the American Red Cross.

'First Mama" Tries out CB

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - First Mama, running with the hammer down on Interstate 35, spread the word-she had old Smokey Bear at her front door.

Translated from the slang of citizen band radio operators, First Lady Betty Ford was using her new radio as she motorcaded from a downtown hotel to the International Airport.

Marked police cars-called "smokies" by CBers-led the way, red lights revolving brightly.

"I told them there were a lot of smokies at my front door," said Mrs. Ford after she arrived at the airport and displayed for newsmen her new CB radio, a gift from daughter Susan.

It was the First Lady's first chance to use the new radio and she chatted enthusiastically with anyone willing

"We thank you," she said after being complimented on the sound of her radio by a CBer with the handle Starship Enterprise. "This is KUY9532. First Mama. Down and out.

Then she struck up a conversation with another citizens band radio enthusiast called Peg Leg Charlie.

"What be your 20 (location)?" asked Mrs. Ford.

"Yeah, First Mama. I'm over at this North Star Mall. Are you going out to the airport?" came back Peg Leg Charlie

"10-4, good buddy. I'm going to the airport," said First Mama.

Mrs. Ford adopted her handle at the suggestion of comedian Flip Wilson and after an informal poll indicated it would be a good identification sign,

"It's neat. It's really fun," Mrs. Ford, 58, told after posing for pictures with the radio mounted in her car.

As the motorcade roared into the airport and toward her waiting airplane, Mrs. Ford's voice again commanded the air: 'This is First Mama. KUY9532.

Catch ya on the flip," she said. Translated, it meant the First Lady would talk on her CB again the next time she came to San Antonio.

"You got First Mama," says tonio. Mrs. Ford is in Texas First Lady Betty Ford as she tries campaigning for her husband.

Carter blasts Texas primary law

HOUSTON (AP) - Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter says the Texas presidential primary statute is a "disgrace." "You have an abominable primary law." Carter said Tuesday. 'The biggest challenge we had all year was getting a slate of delegates on the ballots in Texas. It required a major campaign, a lot of money, a lot of work.

Carter told a news conference the statute is "an exclusionary law" designed somewhat to keep people off

"It obviously was designed to enhance the candidacy of Senator Bentsen when he was a viable candidate." he said.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., now is running as a favorite son candidate in the May 1 presidential primary but has withdrawn as a candidate in other

"A presidential primary statute should be designed to encourage full participation by all candidates," Carte said. "Fortunately, the Texas Legislature had the good judgment to put a 'self-destruct' clause in the statute after this one primary."

Carter also said voters should be permitted to vote for a candidate by name instead of for a slate of convention delegates committed to his candidacy.

"It is a very difficult procedure for voting," he said. "It has been explained to me but I still don't understand it.

Carter left the Pennsylvania primary campaign to make the onestop Texas trip. After a fund-raising breakfast, he returned to Pennsylvania for Tuesday's election.

He was asked if he had minimized his Texas campaign for fear of

out her new CB radio in San An-making Bentsen-backers mad. 'That's not true," he said. "I wish I could spend the next seven days here. I don't care if people get mad because I'm running for president.' He also rejected a suggestion Senator Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has tried to "manipulate" a slate of delegates whose names will be on the Texas ballots although committed to no candidate.

"I haven't seen any evidence of that in Texas, but some politicians in Pennsylvania are trying to block me," he said

He added that he has had no contact with the uncommitted Texas delegates. "We will try to get them for the convention but no effort will be made until after we see how many delegates we win or lose on May 1," he said.

Carter said Texas is a sensitive state for his campaign. "What happens in Texas is going to be crucial to the momentum of our campaign," he said. He added, however, that he does not have sufficient funds to cover $104,000 earmarked for advertising in Texas. Officials said Tuesday's $100-a-plate fund-raising breakfast grossed about $30,000 but that the proceeds would be used in the Pennsylvania campaign. Carter is to return to Texas next week for a fund-raising luncheon in

Wives carrying Texas campaign

The names of Betty Ford and Nancy Reagan will not be on the Republican ballot in Texas' May 1 Republican primary, but they want GOP voters to remember their husbands.

The candidates' wives are carrying the bulk of the campaign work across the state this week. President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who have campaigned in Texas in recent weeks, will be back next week before the vote.

But this week it's the wives' turn at the hustings.

A federal judge ruled here Tuesday that a worker who resists the boss' sexual advances may sue for sexual discrimination if the worker loses his or her job or is denied advancement.

The decision is apparently the first in which the 1964 Civil Rights Act has been successfully invoked by a worker charging sexual discrimination.

It was Big Red vs. Big Red and lefthander against lefthander, but it was a timely relief job by veteran Gary Junge that saved the day for Steve Hamrick and the Midland Cubs

Tuesday night.
Junge bailed the Cubs out of a bases loaded, one out basket of trouble to nail down a 4-1 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox before 1,080 fans at well-refrigerated Cubs Stadium. Hamrick, out of Cornell University, known as the Big Red, and Bob Shirley, a southpaw out of Oklahoma University, also known as the Big Red, staged a duel of four hitters and bases on balls in the first of the six game series.

IT WAS the Cubs second win in two starts, ditto Hamrick, who went the route in beating San Antonio, 7-1, in the Texas League opener a week ago.

Tuesday he had a three-hitter going and a 4-1 lead when he opened the eighth by walking shortstop Bob Mitchell, retiring catcher Lin Hamilton on a pop and then throwing two balls to Gene Deylon.

"It looked to me as though Steve just ran out of gas," said Manager Denny Sommers, "He was throwing a little differently and although he worked out of a similar spell in San Antonio, it looked like time for a change.

Sommers brought in Jerry Temple, who had thrown strikes in spring training, but didn't throw any Tuesday. Jerry finished walking Deylon, walked Tucker Ashford on four pitches and then threw one ball to Jim Wilhelm. That's when Denny went to his bullpen for Junge, the Clarkson Tech rifle.

GARY GOT Wilhelm on a pop and then left fielder Don Reynolds, who had hit four homers in the opening

man made a bang bang play on a chopper over the mound to throw out Check Baker for the second out, which turned out to be a big play. Rocky Craig singled to center and Bob Mitchell walked before Junge wrapped it up by getting Hamilton on a fly to Steve Verban in right, which made Sommers' defensive change in the seventh look good. Ed Putman, who started in right, is a catcher by trade and might have had trouble shagging down the hard hit ball.

"It's really rough coming in like that," Junge said. "None of us have worked in 10 days and it was cold. All I tried to do was throw strikes and keep it low. Tonight it paid off.,'

IT WAS a heartbreaker for Shirley, suffering his second setback, to lose. Two of Midland's hits were of the infield variety and two of the runs were unearned. Shirley received some spectacular fielding support early in the game from Mitchell at short and Ashford at third to stay out of serious trouble and then got stronger as the game wore on.

Wayne Tyrone singled to center in the second and came around to score on Ed Putman's fly to center after a wild pick off throw advanced him to MIDLAND PUSHED over two more runs in the fifth. Catcher Mike Gordon beat out an infield hit as second baseman Baker went into the hole behind second in an attempt to backhand the ball, Bill Huisman walked and Hrapman's bunt loaded the bases.

Midland's Cubs are only two games into the Texas League season and one of the Bruins' newcomers already has done a selling job on Manager Denny

"As long as Mike Gordon continues to work behind the plate the way he did tonight," said Sommers, an excatcher himself, "anything he hits will be a bonus."

Gordon was a continued source of aid and comfort to his pitcher, Steve Hamrick, in Midland's 4-1 victory over Amarillo at Cubs Stadium

Rebs' Laufer shackles Bobcats with 3-hitter

By BOB DILLON

Senior righthander Doug Laufer handcuffed the San Angelo Central Bobcats with a three-hitter Tuesday afternoon in pitching the Midland Lee Rebels to a 3-1 victory at the Lee diamond.

The victory was a pleasing one for Coach Ernie Johnson's Rebels who are defending District champions of 5-4A and suffered through a 3-4 mark during the first half of the baseball With the win, the Rebels get the second half of the race started on the right foot and hope to keep up the momentum against Odessa High Thursday at the Lee diamond. The Lee-OHS game was rained out last Thursday and is a make-up contest. Laufer moved the ball around the corners well and even though the big senior walked six Bobcats, he also struck out eight in registering his fourth win of the season against two Lee had a 1-0 lead over the Concho Cats in the sixth inning, but Central scored an unearned run off Laufer to tie the score. The Rebels came back, however, to score twice in the bottom of the frame to post the big victory. The Rebs took a 1-0 lead off Steve Winger in the bottom of the second inning. Alan Neal, who hit the ball all afternoon, singled past the pitcher, Mike Richard looked at a third strike, that went for a base hit and pinchrunner Van Kimbro scampered all the way to third when Winger threw high on White's bunt . Robin Todd grounded out to third to score Kimbro, giving Lee its 1-0 lead.

Lee loaded the bases in the fifth inning, but Neal lined out to Mumbert Garcia in center to end the uprising. Neal and ite had reached safely on base hits in the fourth inning only to be stranded when Todd also lined out to center.

The Bobcats tied the game, 1-1, in the sixth inning. Kenny Perez walked and raced to second when Laufer's pick-off attempt was high at first.

Randy Thoma then grounded to short, but Joe Paul Brahmall singled in Perez to tie the game. Laufer challenger Shoji Oguma struck out Mitch Freeman and got in slugfest Wednesday Garcia to fly out to right on a well-hit night and kept his World ball to Todd.

BIG SPRING-The Big Spring Steers jumped back into contention in the District 5-4A baseball race here Tuesday with a 7-0 win over the Midland High Bulldogs.

The Steers are now 1-1 in the second half chase and 16-7 on the year. The Bulldogs almost lost all hope for a second half title with the loss. The Pack is now 0-2 in the second half and 6-19 on the season.

Frank Rubio was the culprit as far as the Bulldogs were concerned. Rubio fashioned a four-hit shutout while going the distance to pick up his third win of the year against one Charles McKinney led the Steer

NHL prexy charged in fraud

OTTAWA (AP) - The Sky Shops case exploded Tuesday night as charges of defrauding and conspiracy to defraud the government were sworn against National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell, Liberal Senator Louis Giguere, and three other men.

The documents allege that Campbell and three other former officers of Sky Shops Export Ltd. gave the senator $95,000 in 1972 to gain a lease extension to 1980 for the company's duty-free shop at Dorval Airport, Montreal.

Besides Campbell and the senator. three former Sky Shops officers also were charged. They were chairman Louis Lapointe, 66 years old, and vice-president Gordon G. Brown, both of Montreal, and treasurer James Lavery of Toronto.

IT WAS expected they will be formally charged in court later this

The 70-year-old Campbell, NHL president since 1946, was in Philadelphia watching the Flyers-Maple Leafs playoffs game as the information was sworn. He was president of Sky Shops and, with other major shareholders, sold Senator Giuere, 65, a total of 5,000 shares of Sky Shops stock at $1 a share June 9, 1972, just after receiving word that the lease extension would be granted.

Sky Shops was sold four months later to P. Lawson Travel at $20 a share, giving Senator Giguere a $95,000 profit on his purchase.

The charges are under sections 110 fraud upon the government and 423 conspiracy of the Criminal Code. Maximum sentence under either charge is five years in prison.

Oh, how Nolan Ryan suffers Firestone

By The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan's actions speak louder than his words.

To listen to the California Angels' charismatic pitcher, you'd think he's really having his problems.

"I'm still fighting my rhythm and my delivery," he said in the Angels dressing room at Anaheim Stadium Tuesday night. "Maybe I need more work, maybe it was the short spring, maybe it's the five-man rotation we have...I'm just not in the proper

Sounds like he'd just been knocked from the box by a barrage of home Actually, the hard-throwing right-hander had just blanked the Baltimore Orioles on three hits, pitching the Angels to a 5-0 victory. What's more, he struck out 12 batters, the 72nd time in his brilliant career he's fanned 10 or more but the first time since June 14, 1975.

Ryan, 2-1, has allowed eight hits in 25 innings this season. He stopped Kansas City on four hits last week. after losing his first start of the season against Oakland even though he only allowed one hit in the seven innnings he worked.

THE THREE-HIT , 12-strikeout performance didn't begin to satisfy Ryan the perfectionist.

'All it means is that I'm 2-1," he said. "I was sharper in Kansas City. I'm still thinking about that one that beat me," a two-run double by Oakland's Phil Garner in Ryan's season debut.

Melton singled home one run in the sixth and doubled in two more in the seventh, bringing his season RBI total to 10. Sacrifice flies by Chalk and Jerry Remy accounted for the other Angels runs. Red Sox 12, Tigers 3

The Red Sox, held to six home runs in their first nine games, raked Tiger pitchers for four homers Tuesday night. Dwight Evans drove in four runs with a homer and a double, while Jim Rice, Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk also homered.

'We served them cookies and they ate them up," said a frustrated Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch. Yankees 5, White Sox 4

RBI singles by Thurman Munson and Chris Chambliss helped the Yankees beat Chicago behind the standout relief pitching of Tippy Martinez, who held the White Sox scoreless for five innings.

Martinez replaced starter Dock Ellis in Chicago's fourrun third and held them scoreless until the eighth, when he gave way to Dick Tidrow and then Sparky Lyle.

The Yankees, who had tagged Chicago starter Bart Johnson for three runs in the second, reached him for the winning runs in the third thanks to a running game. Roy White beat out a bunt, stole second and scored on Munson's single. Munson also stole second, continued to third on catcher Brian Downing's throwing error and came home on Chambliss Brewers 5, Royals 4 Pedro Garcia drove in two runs and scored twice to pace the Milwaukee attack in a game twice delayed by rain, for a total of one hour 22 minutes.

Pete Broberg checked the Royals on two hits through five innings, then Billy Champion and Ed Rodriguez preserved the victory. A's 6, Tigers 5

Don Baylor, obtained from Baltimore in the controversial Reggie Jackson trade, singled home Claudell Washington to cap a three-run rally in the ninth that lifted Oakland to victory. Joe Rudi had tied the game with a two-run single.

Suns post victories

By Associated Press

When Detroit Coach Herb Brown was asked if there was any one area in which his team was weakest, he answered: "Yeah, basketball."

But, the Golden State Warriors can make almost any opposing coach feel that way. The defending National Basketball Association champions opened their quarter-final series against Detroit Tuesday night with a 127-103 victory. Phil Smith scored 26 points.

"We were horrible," Brown said. 'The Warriors played well. They can just break you down, and I'm sure that contributed some to our being Rick Barry was held to 13 points but he tied his season high for assists, handing out 11.

'The ball wasn't going in for me, so guess I concentrated more on dropping it off to the other guys, and the guys I hit were hot tonight."

IN THE night's only other playoff game, the Phoenix Suns took a 3-1 lead in their quarterfinal series against Seattle, beating the Super-Sonics 130-114. The Warriors-Pistons series continues in Oakland Thursday night, and Phoenix travels to Seattle for Game 5 Sunday.

Tonight, the Boston Celtics, after drawing a bye through the first round. begin their quarter-final series against the Buffalo Braves, and the Cleveland Cavaliers take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series into Washington.

Bob Lanier led Detroit with 18 points, 14 of them in the first quarter. The Warriors, who drew a firstround bye and have not played in 10 days, showed early signs of rustiness, falling behind 18-12. But they outscored the Pistons 12-0 to move ahead for good, taking a 65-51 halftime lead. In Phoenix' victory, Paul Westphal tied his season-high point production with 39, and Keith Erickson added 31 points. Seattle's Fred Brown was held to eight points in the first half but led a third-quarter surge that brought Seattle within five points. He wound up with a team-high 33 points. "I THINK we're in trouble unless we make a good turnaround," said

Sonics Coach Bill Russell. "We threw the ball away 17 times in the first half. They played consistently. I think this was their best game." Asked if returning to Seattle would give his Sonics a lift, Russell replied: "If we played in my living room the way we played (tonight), it make any difference. Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn is worried about the Celtics' long layoff. "We're ready physically," says Heinsohn, "but I don't know how sharp we'll be after such a long layoff (10 (Continued on Page 4B)

Warriors, Dusters fly as Mets scatter Cardinals, 8-0

By The Associated Press

New York batters hit the St. Louis pitchers hard Tuesday night-almost as hard as Cardinals pitcher Lynn McGlothen hit two Mets batters and nearly sparked a brawl.

The hitting by the hitters took place in the first two innings, when Felix Millan, Del Unser and John Milner each slugged two-run homers to help New York carry a 6-0 lead into the third inning. That's when McGlothen started hitting the batters.

"I'm a big league pitcher and I want to be around a while," said McGlothen, who hit Unser and opposing pitcher Jon Matlack in the third. causing a charge from the Mets dugout led by slugger Dave Kingman.

MCGLOTHEN, WHO was ejected for his tactics, continued to defend his action. "I just think a pitcher has a right to try to contain the hitters. If a pitcher feels like he's been intimidated, he has to do something. I hit them as a certain measure that had to be done.'

Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst, who along with New York shortstop Bud Harrelson was ejected from the game in the third inning, managed a light comment.

"Mac (McGlothen) was wild all night. I'm surprised he hit anybdy if he was trying," said Schoendienst.

But New York emotions were militant against what had taken place. "I think it's bush," said Matlack, who pitched a six-hitter for the 8-0 victory. "I really think I have no respect for the man (McGlothen), even though I did before. When a guy hits a batter (Unser) after a home run, it's one thing. But not when the score is 6-0. Everybody's got to pitch inside, that's part of the game. But not a foot-and-a-half inside."

SAID UNSER, "If he (McGlothen) was upset because I hit a hanging curve out of the park, that's his problem."

"If a guy hits a home run, there's no sense in drilling him in the back," added Mets Manager Joe Frazier. "You've got to respect him for hitting the ball off of you. McGlothen will probably have to pay a fairly big fine. McGlothen struck Unser with a pitch in the third inning and was in turn brushed back by Matlack in the Cards' half of the inning.

Plate umpire Bruce Froemming

then warned Matlack, incurring the automatic fine, and, two pitches later, ejected Harrelson from the New York bench for heckling. After both dugouts were warned, McGlothen renewed the battle by first brushing Matlack off the plate in the Mets' fourth inning and then hitting his pitching rival with a 3-0 delivery. That's when Kingman led charge from the New York bench, but order was quickly restored after Froemming banished McGlothen and Schoendienst.

Phillies 5, Pirates 1 Mike Schmidt, who is "fun to watch when you're on his side." according to teammate Jim Kaat, cracked his sixth home run in three games to tie six other players for the major league record and lead the Phils past the Kaat pitched a six-hitter in one hour, 47 minutes and hit a two-run double-"My first hit in three years-to help Philadelphia.

The veteran left-hander's fast work prompted a comment by Schmidt, whose two-run blast in the fourth was all the offense Kaat needed: "I missed the first pitch he threw in spring training this year. I was playing with the dirt on third base, and then next thing I knew the catcher was throwing the ball back.'

Padres 7. Reds 5

Pinch-hitter Jerry Turner's basesloaded single keyed a three-run San Diego rally in the eighth inning as the Padres handed Cincinnati its fourth defeat in five games.

The Reds were trailing 4-0 and held hitless by Bill Greif until the fifth, but scored five times in the seventh to take the lead.

Butch Metzger, 1-0, got the victory in relief and combined with Greif, Mike DuPree and Dave Tomlin to snap a 22-game hitting streak by Pete Rose.

Giants 12, Braves 11

Gary Matthews hit two home runs-his second winning the game in the 10th inning-two singles, scored four runs and drove in three to lift the Giants past the Braves.

San Francisco trailed 8-1 at one point. Dodgers 6, Astros 3

Los Angeles pinch-hitter Ed Goodson drove in Ron Cey in the sixth inning for the run that beat Houston. John Hale had a two-run triple in the second, with two other RBIs coming from Dusty Baker and the other from

Connors defeats Dent in Denver WCT opener

DENVER (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors opened defense of his World Championship Tennis Denver tournament title with a 6-4, 7-5 victory Tuesday night over unseeded Phil Dent of Australia.

Connors, of Belleville, Ill., will meet John Alexander of Australia in the quarter-finals of the $60,000 event. Alexander slipped past Fred McNair III of Chevy Chase, Md., 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Tony Roche of Australia, meantime, was sidetracked in his bid to keep a comeback drive alive. Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., wnipped Roche 7-6, 6-3. Roche had won his first tournament title in four years last week at Charlotte, N.C.

In an opening round doubles match, Americans Vitas Gerualaitis and McNair defeated Australians Roche and Ken Rosewall 6-4, 6-4.

Connors was forced to rally before downing Dent in straight sets. He fell behind 5-1 before coming on to defeat the scrappy Australian in the second

"I played fairly well in the first set," Connors said. "I wouldn't say I was pleased, however."

Orioles' Jackson won't work for 'birdseed'

By JOE GILMARTIN Phoenix, Ariz., Gazette Sports Editor

Shortly after the "Big Trade" earlier this month, Reggie Jackson spoke as follows:

"I am an Oriole now, and I want to play out my career as an Oriole." It subsequently developed, of course, that while the slugging outfielder considered himself an Oriole, he had no intention of working for bird

However, he did respond in true Oriole fashion to an offer of $200,000 a year from Baltimore general manager Hank Peters: "Cheap, cheap," he trilled.

And there the matter more or less rests. Reggie has lapsed into an uncharasteristic silence, content to let his agent and partner, Tempe, Ariz., businessman Gary Walker, do the

THERE HAS been talk he is seeking a $3-million package, plus future considerations and three pieces of real estate to be named later (reportedly Montana, Rhode Island and Califor-

Somewhere in the proceedings, Walker was quoted as saying Reggie didn't want the money for himself, but rather for 11 orphans he was supporting.

At this point, a compromise suggested itself: Let the Orioles contributed X amount of dollars to the orphanage of Reggie's choice, thereby eliminating the middleman's tax drain, saving face on both sides and mitigating potential morale problems among Oriole peons who are toiling for slave wages.

However, Walker shot this down by stating that, while Reggie does indeed contribute to orphanages and other good causes, his (Walker's) remarks on the subject had been slightly misinterpreted.

Peters, for his part, has told Phoenix friends the club has gone as far as it could with Jackson.

THE TEMPTATION is strong to condemn Reggie out of hand as greedy, grasping, unreasonable, and to declare he is suffering from terminal inflation of the ego.

And I may yet yield to that temptation, but not without making a few points in the former Arizona State star's behalf: -Nowhere is it written a man MUST work. If he can afford to take a sabbatical, he has a legal right to do -When you attack a man for trying to grab as big a piece of pie as he can for himself, you leave yourself wide open to a charge of being against the American Way (which includes Mom and Apple Pie).

-Reggie's almost as nice a guy and as good a player as he thinks he is.

His friends might further argue he to at least the more outrageous is merely following in the footsteps of pitchers Catfish Hunter and Andy Messersmith.

But he really isn't! Hunter and Messersmith were certified free agents when they raided the mint, whereas Jackson owes somebody a year of something, if only idleness. My own view is, it would be easier to convict Reggie of shortsightedness than selfishness. THIS IS based on the premise (hope, actually) the Orioles will not permit Jackson to bluff them into meeting his demands, or trading him to somebody who will. As badly as they need Reggie (and they DO need him), the Oriole owners, and all owners in professional sports today, need something to reasses their position.

Somewhere along the line, they've got to draw the line and stop caving in demands of their employes-even when it seems to be in management's immediate best interests.

If the Orioles hold firm, my guess is Reggie will realize he is repeating a mistake Gail Goodrich of the NBA Lakers made before the start of the 1975-6 season.

Goodrich, who makes even more money than Reggie, was unhappy because the club wouldn't renegotiate his contract, and said he would sit out his option year rather than play it out.

The Lakers held firm, and Goodrich, belatedly releazing he was costing himself in excess of $200,000, played out his option. The net result was $40,000 in fines against Goodrich, and loss of playing and practice time which contributed heavily to Los Angeles' absence from the playoffs.

IF REGGIE sits out, he only hurts himself and the Orioles. He really has no reason to wish the latter any harm, and he has always spoken very well of the former.

The only logical thing for him to do. if the thought of living out his baseball life as a "poorly paid" Oriole is unbearable, is playing out his option, picking up the $140,000 or whatever is involved, and go'shopping next winter as a bonafide free agent.

Money aside, a gifted athlete's time in the sun is pitifully short, and sitting out a year of it would be almost sinfully wasted.

So play now, Reggie, play! Unless, of course, you still think you can win the game of liar's poker you're presently playing.

THIS WAS a game that should have been played in New York garment district rather than Yankee Stadium.

"It was like stepping in-to a coliseum," said home plate umpire Marty Springstead. "I didn't know what all the yelling was about. Martin soon let him in on a couple of grievances. First, could the Yankees pull their shirts out in key situations and perhaps get gently nicked by a pitched ball?

"I told him if he wanted the shirts out, let him design uniforms like Springstead related. Secondly, Martin said one of his players-"I'm not gonna tell you who"-claimed the white baseball coming out of the white undersleeves posed'a danger to the hit-

Martin quickly was on the phone to Steinbrenner. "He said if they insist on doing it I should protest the game," the manager disclosed.

Between innings, Carroll was ordered to change his undershirt and he came out for the fourth wearing dark sleeves. Since some nonpitching teammates were still wearing white undersleeves, that violated another rule which says that "any part of an undershirt exposed to view shall be of a uniform solid color for all players on a team," but Springstead already had toldo-Martin-oto-forget about that ploy. Carroll, a veteran reliever, wasn't upset. "I can't let something like that bother me," said the amiable Alabamian. But Manager Paul Richards had some nasty words for Steinbrenner and the Yankees. "My answer to Mr Steinbrenner is that he's in baseball now on parole and he'd better concentrate on staying in the game rather than worrying about white shirts. Personally, I didn't know he knew what color white

Spradlin had sued the PGA, claiming the group was discriminating against him by refusing to let him enter tournaments this year on grounds that he had earned less than $3,000 in official earnings in his first year of PGA membership.

Hubert Green's $27,000 for his second place finish in the Tournament of Champions kept him in first place in PGA earnings with $161,556. Ben Crenshaw, although finishing fifth, moved into second with $10,230, bringing his total to $143,338. Hale Irwin slipped to third with $142,397 while Jack Nicklaus is fourth with $106,858, followed by J.C. Snead's $101.453.

Boston Coach Don Cherry says All-Star defenseman Brad Park still is only about 75 to 80 per cent recovered from knee surgery less than seven weeks ago. But it may take the Los Angeles Kings longer than that to recover from Park.

Park, whose left knee went under the knife in February to repair torn cartilage, scored two goals and had two assists in Boston's 7-1 drubbing of the Kings. The victory gave Boston a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven National Hockey League quarter-final series.

Then Thomas and Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent took over and neither team scored until Saleski set off the Fiyers' burst at 10:04 of the second period.

Twenty-eight seconds later, Toronto's Bob Neely lifted a 12-footer over Parent's shoulder, and the score was 2-1. The Houston Aeros open their chase for a third consecutive World Hockey Association championship tonight after spending the last two weeks fighting amongst themselves to pass the time.

The two-time titlists haven't played hockey in anger since April 6, when the regular season came to a close, and are threatened with staleness in the opener of their United States divisional semifinal against the San Diego Mariners.

"I feel stale," says 48-yearold Aeros President Gordie Howe. "But it doesn't bother me as much when I hear some of the younger guys say the same thing. At least I know I'm not the only one

WHEN REMINDED that his team hadn't played in 15 days, Houston's Poul Popiel remarked, "Fifteen days? That's about 12 days too much for me.'

The pressures of just sitting around apparently have gotten to some of the other Aeros. We couldn't schedule a scrimmage today because in our last two practices we've had four fights," Houston Coach Bill Dineen added Tuesday. "We're all getting pretty edgy," said Howe. "When roommates start fighting, then you know it's time to play.

THE AEROS will be taking on a Mariners squad | which needed all five games to oust the Phoenix Roadrunners from their first-round series while Houston-which won the West Division crown for the third year in a row-gained a bye.

In the other U.S. Division semifinal tonight, the New England Whalers and Indianapolis Racers will play to break their current 1-1 tie in the best-of-seven set. The Canadian Division final, the winner of which will face the U.S. Division champ, begins Friday night with the Calgary Cowboys at Winnipeg against ordered the NL to go into Toronto despite the AL's grab of that city while the NL was mulling its course.

The American League is understandably panicked pluck, has told the American League to back up and at the thought of losing Toronto after pulling its quickie expansion into that city. The AL was happy about solving what had been its own awkward 13team league after its expansion into Seattle.

If Kuhn makes good his threat, the AL will be left to forage sadly for a 14th club in less attractive terthat decision. It means war with the American ritories like New Orleans, with its over-built dome stadium and under-population. That's another reason the AL has decided to fight.

> The salvation for the American League would be the supreme embaassment for Kuhn and the NL the failure to find a responsible buyer for a Washington franchise.

But there are too many knowing winks among powerful National League clubowners to suggest they do not have acceptable buyers in mind for Washington.

ONE OF these is Theodore M. Lerner, wellcapitalized Washington developer, who is ready to negotiate on price, and another in the same category Kuhn was a lawyer and a specialist in baseball law is Edward Cole, a retired president of General before being voted commissioner. He surely has Motors who has renewed his bid for the team.

In Tornoto a plus for the NL is that the Labatt Brewery that was alloted the AL's Toronto franchise for $7 million is willing to go National League for a larger price, if not the standard $10 million figure mentioned by the NL. The NL is expected to make concessions, like early participation in the $450,000-a-year TV revenues not usually given new

A&P making pitch to lure back black shoppers

WASHINGTON - Officials of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. and the District of Columbia planning office will meet Tuesday to discuss the food chain's expansion in the inner city. This is part of a campaign specifically aimed at luring black shoppers.

It is believed to be the first time a national supermarket chain has made a frankly ethnic appeal. But then, financially troubled A&P was first in advertising its past mistakes.

"We're going to make your bag our

Price & Pride. It begins: "In hundreds of Black (six) communities, A&P was the first supermarket on the block. Our bag was your bag ... Then things began to change and you told us about it. Now we're heading back your way." What changed, in a word, was that inner city residents began patronizing newer, cheaper suburban

The ad, which has been appearing for several months in black-oriented media, noted that A&P has appointed a National Affirmative Action

Director and seven Black Affirmative Action Manager "schooled in turning words into deeds." The words mention new paint, new lighting, more shopping space, and in many areas,

Up until last year there were five A&P outlets in Washington, four in predominantly black areas. Three of these were closed as being too small and therefore unprofitable. They were among the more than 1,300 A&P stores out of 3,500 that were closed when the company lost $200 million in two years.

For the first quarter of this year sales were up 10 per cent over the preceding year, which will put the company "slightly in the black." However, A&P's chairman, Jonathan L. Scott, warned the firm would not be able to return to industry profit ratios for a number of years. To restore financial health, A&P will spend more than $500 million between now and 1980 remodeling its stores. It has spent approximately $8 million on its Price-Pride ad campaign to herald the remodeling, and will shell out nearly another $1 million for the "Your Bag" campaign. It is aimed at attracting black shoppers to existing stores in mixed neighborhoods as well as to remodeled and new stores in all-black areas.

Behind the black campaign is A&P's new president Grant C. Gentry. Previously he was vice president of Jewel Companies.

Not long ago Gentry declared, "The black population happens to be a growing percentage of our national population. If we're going to retreat from serving those people, we're going to have less of an opportunity to be a profitable concern. So we're damn well going to find some way to serve our urban customers and still make a profit."

A&P's regional director of property development Robert Butler will meet Tuesday with Ben Gilbert, director of the Municipal Planning Office, to discuss possible sites for new stores. Three sites are under active consideration. John J. Miles, A&P's Atlantic region president, said the firm would, of course, like to acquire District-owned land at reasonable NEWPORT, Wash. - Mark Wendle, a high school biology teacher known for his ability to inspire students, thought it was a great idea. And his 20 students in the advanced biology class agree.

But the idea - performing free spaying operations on cats in class appalled the veterinary community and the Humane Society

And so, nine operations after it began, the experiment is over, although Wendle still has hopes of using the technique again next year. The operations amounted to about 20 per cent of the course concentration in the survey class.

'You can't imagine what a tremendous learning experience this is for these kids," Wendle said, adding he views the project as both a teaching device and a community service in this poor logging town of 1,400 where residents have to drive 30 miles to find veterinarians who charge $25 -$40 for spaying operations.

Wendle, who says he learned about the sterilization surgery himself by observing some 500 operations while working as a veterninary helper 15 years ago in New Jersey, divided his class into four-person teams that consisted of a "chief surgeon." "assistant surgeon," "anesthetist," and an "equipment handler." He limited the operations to female cats because that is the procedure he is familiar

THE STUDENTS successfully removed the cats' ovaries and received letters of satisfaction from all nine owners.

Though Wendle's project proved highly controversial, it was not in violation of laws pertaining to the practice fo veterinary medicine or cruelty to animals, according to an assistant attorney general Sue Morton, since no fees were charged and no brutality was involved.

But the Humane Society, arguing that there are grounds for both criminal and civil action, threatened to bring suit and the school board ordered a halt to the program.

Like the Humane Society, veterinarians are appalled by Wendle's project, pointing out that spaying operations are complicated and are not generally performed by veterinary students until their junior year in vet school. Among those criticizing Wendle was Dr. Jack Alexander, chairman of the department of veterinary clinical medicine and surgery at Washington State University, who said he was concerned about the welfare of the animals and what he considers the inevitably inexpert use of anesthesia.

"What I can't understand," said Alexander, "is what the teacher is trying to teach. Anatomy? You don't need to use live animals for that. Anesthesia? Why? High school students couldn't possibly have enough background to give it meaning. Manipulative technique? Only a surgeon needs that. I think they're just playing games.

ALEXANDER SAID he doesn't consider Wendle an ogre who is intentionally brutalizing the animals. "I just think we need to sit down and talk to the man and help him understand what he's doing.'

The Washington State Veterinary Board of governors will hold a regularly scheduled meeting Monday and Tuesday, and Executive Secretary Lorin Ford said Wendle's program is a likely topic. However, he said it is not likely the board would be able to intervene should the school decide to start up the program again.

Yea, Midland Cubs ... the Tall City and its residents are proud of you and are supporting you allthe-way!

And to show the Cubs that they mean just what they say, a Baseball Appreciation Night has been arranged for Thursday at Cubs Stadium, with the Midland Chamber of Commerce as the sponsor.

The Chamber and its Recreation Committee are making every effort to "Pack the Park" on this particular occasion as a means of welcoming the Cubs back home as they launch their 1976 season in defense of their 1975 Texas League championship.

"Appreciation Night" also will provide an excellent opportunity for Midland and area residents to extend a royal, mass welcome to Bill Rigney Jr., general manager, and Denny Sommers, team manager.

In other words, this will be a great and tremendously important night for one and all at

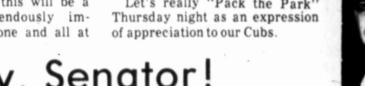

Cubs Stadium. It will be a most meaningful demonstration for the Cubs, who will be representing Midland as ambassadors over the broad expanses of the Texas League during the present season.

The Thursday night event will be the third game of the Cubs' initial home stand of the season, but it will be the really BIG happening on a "Pack the Park"

As an extra added attraction on a fun basis, the Cubs game will be preceded by a softball game between the Chamber's board of directors and its high school student group - SITCA.

The Cubs have provided topquality family entertainment in Midland for four years now. Midland is most fortunate in having Texas League baseball and in having the Cubs as its representative in the league.

Let's really "Pack the Park"

Secretaries Week

We have no idea just how many office secretaries there are in Midland ... but we know that the number is large and the caliber is exceptionally high.

This speaks exceptionally well for the Tall City, whose secretaries fill a most important place in the business and economic life of the community.

They merit special recognition and right now - during Secretaries Week, as proclaimed by Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. - is an excellent time for voicing recognition and appreciation.

A number of special events are planned during the week, sponsored by the Permian Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International).

Congratulations are in order to the secretaries during their special week.

Mao Tse-tung chops down China leaders

By EDWARD NEILAN Copley News Service

Very little job security seems to go with the designation "heir apparent" to China's Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Three of the last four men to wear that tag were abruptly swept from the scene by Mao's own hand. The other found a haven in the hospital but died

Why should Mao treat his next-inline comrades so harshly?

A new book by Prof. Lucian W. Pye ("Mao Tse-tung: The Man in the Leader," Basic Books, $12.95) attempts to put Mao on the psychiatrist's couch. Pye says Mao's antagonistic behavior toward his associates can be traced to the early abandonment of Mao by his mother.

Mao's father had been a tough disciplinarian and had whipped Mao on several occasions. Contrary to rigid Chinese traditions of filial piety. Mao defied his father.

Pye says Mao acquired in this episode a sense of rebellion that would serve him in politics.

The controversial theory advanced by Pye holds that Mao relied mostly on his mother and his feeling of security was undermined by her death. Thereafter Mao kept everyone at a distance and behaved impersonally toward even his wives and children.

Mao's technique has been to keep the upper administrative channels in China purposely hazy. This allows him maximum flexibility to launch his own campaigns.

But the lack of formal structure and criteria for the succession process has also contributed to the ongoing struggle.

The grappling for advantage at the top in Peking has never stopped. After Mao's death it is likely to intensify rather than slacken.

Will Mao's wife and leader of the radical faction, Chiang Ching, be able to wield influence after Mao, 82, dies? Will the present heir apparent, Hua

Kuo-feng, outlive Mao and escape the fate that has befallen those who have occupied the No. 2 chair? No one in the West - and few in China - have authoritative answers to those questions. The best bet is to look at history and at the players in the present drama. During the early 1960s, when Liu Shao-chi was designated as Mao's heir, he began to push for a more traditional economic approach to bring China into the modern world.

Mao favored reliance on the

As Liu's power seemed to grow, he was denounced as a "capitalist roader" and sent into oblivion in the wake of the cultural revolution. Liu's top executive, Teng Hsiaoping, was also purged in disgrace.

Next came Lin Piao in the No. 2 slot. Eventually Mao sensed that Lin was pushing the old leader aside. Official Chinese accounts say Lin was discovered plotting a palace coup and died in a plane crash attempting to escape to the Soviet Union.

Chou En-lai, the longtime moderate who has been at Mao's elbow since the days of the long march, remained safe so long as he was No. 3 in the hierarchy. As China's premier, Chou was known for his survivability and administrative skill. It was Chou who rescued Teng

Hsiao-ping and some others from cultural revolution disgrace. Subtle campaigns criticizing Chou were traced to Mao and it looked for a time that Chou might fall victim to the fate of other heirs apparent: Chou entered the hospital and comrade Mao neither issued a public statement nor attended his funeral. Then came the Mao-directed attack service has gone down. Mail users might be excused for wondering, on Teng.

Everyone from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to lesser-known China-watchers thought Teng would succeed Chou and be No. 2 to Mao, and eventually succeed the chairman.

On April 7, following several days of demonstrations and some violent rioting in Peking, the Chinese leadership announced that Hua Kuofeng had been named as first deputy premier of the Communist Party and the nation's premier. Teng was out in disgrace for a second time.

INSIDE REPORT

Weakness of 'ABC' in Pennsylvania politics cited

And ROBERT NOVAK

HARRISBURG, Pa .- The coalition of formerly feuding Democratic politicians and labor leaders contrived to stop Jimmy Carter in Pennsylvania is burdened by decaying organization, tardy preparation and a stultifying lack of enthusiasm for the coalition's candidate, Sen. Henry M. Jackson.

The nature and weakness of the stop-Carter movement is typified by the private attitude of a prominent Pennsylvania labor leader. "I am very, very dubious about Scoop being nominated, and so is everybody else. he told us. "But that's not what this is What this effort is about is "ABC" - Anybody But Carter. Aware that outsider Carter winning in the April 27 Pennsylvania primary might clinch the presidential nomination, insiders here - worried about doors being closed to them - have temporarily forgotten past blood feuds to unite behind Jackson. Thus, the Pennsylvania showdown mirrors what the race for the nomination has become nationally: remnants of the Democratic establishment desperately trying to survive by stopping Carter.

Never have organized labor and regular party organizations posed so monolithic a front in a Pennsylvania Democratic primary. In Philadelphia, even Mayor Frank Rizzo and his bood enemy, pity. Democratic leader Pete Camiel, are on the same side. So is Gov. Milton Shapp, operating through his political lieutenant, Democratic state chairman Harvey Thiemann.

After recently agreeing on a unified statewide slate of pro-Jackson delegates, Thiemann and state Public Utilities Commissioner Mike Johnson, the state's top labor political operative, shook hands and agreed how nice it was to be on the same side this time. In the 1972 primary, the establishment was split - labor and Johnson supporting Sen. Hubert Humphrey (the winner), the party and Thiemann backing Sen. Edmund Muskie (the loser). United in 1976, Thiemann and Johnson feel confident they can crush Carter.

Thiemann's confidence was bolstered by a recent tour of smaller counties, during which he observed no Carter campaign at all. Indeed, hardly any experienced politicians have joined Carter (Pittsburgh's mayerick Mayor Pete Flaherty and brother Jim Flaherty, chairman of the County Commissioners, being exceptions). Thus, party leaders see a relatively easy Jackson win with Carter running so poorly he may finish third behind Rep. Morris Udall - a misjudgment stunning in its distance from reality.

The regulars have misinterpreted the absence of familiar faces as the absence of any Carter campaign.

Mayor Flaherty, who ran statewide only two years ago as U.S. Senate nominee, was amazed to attend a meeting of Carter supporters in Erie and find not a soul he knew. Carter's backers were insurance agents, small merchants and other white-collar workers - all new to politics.

Such newcomers forming the Carter cadre provide the only presidential campaign activity in many areas - in Scranton, for example. The regular delegate candidates there, while part of the statewide "pro-Jackson" slate formed by Thiemann, say nothing about Jackson and identify themselves as Humphrey supporters.

This points to the real interests of the Pennsylvania ABC movement: electing their own as national convention delegates, pro-Jackson for now but poised to embrace Humphrey. Coalition leaders from Gov. Shapp down show little interest in the preferential primary (or "beauty contest") which will be stressed on national television and could finish off Jackson as a viable candidate.

Nor do some key Jackson backers disguise their true desires. President W. Abel of the United Steel Workers, who delivered a 1972 seconding speech for Jackson and supports him again this year, told us candidly in an interview at the union's Pittsburgh headquarters: "We're Humphrey men. But since Humphrey is not running, we're for Jackson. Abel forecasts Humphrey's

That union chiefs view Jackson as a faceless proxy for Humphrey adds no zest to the performance of organized labor, entering the 1976 primary campaign far later and far less adequately prepared than in 1972. One Pennsylvania political expert has advised the Carter campaign that labor in this primary is a toothless

Philadelphia's regular Democrats, one of the last functioning oldfashioned organizations, surely will deliver a huge majority for Jackson. But Carter is strong in the central part of the state, suggesting the statewide outcome will be decided in western Pennsylvania generally and Pittsburgh particularly.

tiger and no source for great anxiety.

Hence, the Jackson campaign in Pittsburgh at this writing is worth examining. The regular organization is in such decay it is of no use at all. Organized labor has been slow to mobilize. There is neither Jackson money nor Jackson volunteers. Public visibility of his campaign:

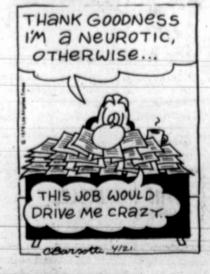

Put in those terms, Jimmy Carter's fight against the combined labor-Democratic machine of Pennsylvania is no herculean task. Indeed, April 27 could well demonstrate the final impotency of the old guard in Democratic politics and the final failure of "ABC."

Jensen can please the most discriminating buyer

By DICK APPLEGATE Copley News Service

There is an unmistakable smell of fine leather when you enter the Jensen Interceptor, a sports touring car made in England. The next impression is one of luxury, careful attention to detail, and innovation.

First introduced as a sports coupe, there now is a convertible that changes the styling from a hatchback to a more conventional design with standard trunk. Our initial reaction at hearing of this new offering was that it would not be as well-designed as the coupe - but after seeing it, we are convinced it is every bit as elegant, if not more so.

Although the Jensen factory at West Bromwich, England, is owned by an American, Kjell Qale, and the car is powered by a Chrysler 440-cubic-inch V-8 engine and Torqueflite automatic transmission, the English can be credited with building the basic structure and putting it all together into what we consider a classic automobile to please the most discriminating buyer.

The all-steel body is arc-welded to the chassis and special care is given to rustproofing, followed by undersealing and hand-rubbing so that

English craftsmen obviously pay careful attention to both heat and sound insulation before the interior is upholstered with its six matched hides of English leather, and deep carpet is placed underfoot. It's the quietest convertible we have ever driven.

The power-operated top is woollined.

The instruments and canted gauges, set into walnut veneer surrounded by stitched leather, makes one feel as if he truly is in a cockpit - a rather exhilerating feeling of both luxury and power. This is topped off with a multiplex stereo system with four speakers.

Fully adjustable wraparound bucket seats offer the ultimate in comfort. The rear seats are plush, too, but there is not much leg room in back. When the front seats are moved forward, the seat belts are too tight possibly giving a large person difficulty in fastening them.

As to road-holding and handling, the Jensen ranks in that elite class of high-priced sports cars owned by a relatively small group of enthusiasts throughout the world.

Basin has 'big role' in U.S. future, Mahon says

U. S. Congressman George Mahon declared in Midland Tuesday that 'there is a new spirit, a new day dawning" in the United States and "this area (the Permian Basin) can play a big role in the future."

Mahon made those remarks during a speech at a meeting of the Midland County Democratic Club at the Petroleum Club.

Those on hand included members of the club and other supporters and friends of the Democratic party. Mahon noted there "is a lot of unhappiness today about the federal government" and added "that is an understatement," but still he was generally optimistic about what the future holds for the country that hasn't already been said on radio, or television or newspapers or magazines," the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

"There is not much new to be said

"I have decided to talk about myself. . . I would like to say what I think about some issues from my vantage point."

In referring to his role as chairman of the largest congressional committee, Mahon laughed, "All 55 persons on the committee are prima donnas. They let me preside, but then they vote as they please.

"It is the largest committee and one of the most important. We have a great job assigned."

Reinforcing his statement about what the future holds, the congressman said, "Those that want to live in the past can't do it. The day of great abundance of cheap energy and natural resources is gone

"Everyone wants to do his own thing," Mahon added. "There is a minmum of discipline in the home, nation, church and world.' In discussing the energy issue,

Mahon said that chances of decontrol of natural gas "are less than 50-50." However, he added he feels there is little chance that a bill to break up the oil companies will pass.

"It would set us back many years and would end up in disaster," Mahon said. It would be the first step toward nationalization of the oil industry, he

Other issues that Mahon touched — On defense, Mahon said the United States must be strong. "I have worked on (defense) since 1940 and I agree . . . that we must have a defense roughly equivalent to Russia," he said.

- On spending, which Mahon said will be "the main battle in this year's Congress," the representative said Congress is likely to pass a budget that exceed's President Ford's $395 billion request.

"All 12 years that I have been chairman of the (Appropiations) committee, the budget has been less than asked for," he said

But this year, he added, "we may have to go over it. The President eliminated so many programs. We have got to try to meet the issue and make the right decision.

'We are going in debt this year $90 billion. If we continue spending like this, fiscal collapse is inevitable. Social programs, he said, are the 'biggest budget busters." He mentioned such programs as education, health, aid to the handicapped, mental health, cancer research and veterans' benefits. In closing, Mahon said, "We must

'Free ride' on bank cards may be over

By JOHN GETZE The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - Of the 41 million American families that have a Master Charge or BankAmericard account, about 13 million regularly avoid interest charges by paying their total bill when due. Bankers say this "free ride" may soon be over. Tough competition and rising costs - including fraud and a rise in delinquencies brought on by the recent recession - have put most banks' credit card programs in a profit squeeze.

BANKERS SAY new sources of revenue must be found, and those who now pay nothing for the use of a card are likely to be a prime target.

New York-based Citibank, the nation's second largest, already has announced such a move. Beginning with the June billing, customers who pay their balances before incurring an interest charge will be asked to pay a 50-cent service fee. The fee will be imposed every month in which the cardholder makes a purchase with his Citihank Master Charge but fails to pay interest.

(There are more than 7,300 U.S. banks which belong to the Master Charge program. About 6,700 belong to BankAmericard. Basically, each bank is entitled to charge whatever interest or fees it

For the record, most U.S. banks say only that they are studying Citibank's move and that no change in present policy is planned. Privately, however, many bankers say they expect the industry to make a move in Citibank's direction.

"I would be very surprised if the industry doesn't follow Citibank's lead," says the head of a major California bank's credit card department. "We've all been looking for ways to reach the cardholder who never pays for using it. In effect, we're loaning him money at zero interest."

Says another California banker: "Personally, I feel there's no question that it's going to happen within a year or so. Some change (in pricing) is in-

At least two other bank officials, including one New Yorker, expressed similar views. Both say, however, that an increase probably won't occur for at least several months, and that Citibank's 50cents-per-month service fee is not the only way banks could boost their credit card revenues.

ANNUAL MEMBERSHIP fees could be imposed, for instance. On American Express and other entertainment-travel cards, such yearly dues range

Another way banks could hike fees would be to 'package'' credit card charges with other bank services, such as checking accounts, overdraft privileges and travelers checks.

Within the last year, most banks in the BankAmericard and Master Charge programs already have increased their credit card income by switching to the "average daily balance" form of

It is a bit complicated, but, basically, cardholders who pay off less than the total balance now pay slightly higher interest charges than they did under the old method. Those who write the bank a check for the total credit card bill still pay nothing.

Bank of America, the sole issuer of BankAmericards in California, has taken two additional steps of its own. First, bank employes are now charged 9 per cent a year for BankAmericard borrowings. Previously, their preferred rate was 6 per cent. (Regular customers pay interest at the annual rate of 18 per cent.)

Second, Bank of America no longer sends its credit card customers a copy of the original charge slip filled out by the merchant. Instead, the bank sends a computer printout outlining all transactions. The reduced weight of the letter sent to cardholders has cut Bank of America's postage costs, a spokesman

WITH VERY FEW EXCEPTIONS, banks in credit card programs currently derive income in two ways: (1) from the cardholder who pays less than the total balance, thus incurring interest charges; and (2) from the merchants who accept the cards at their place of business.

The merchant "discount" varies from bank to bank, and even from merchant to merchant within one bank's program. For every $100 in credit card slips the merchant presents to most banks, however, he generally receives from $96 to $98 from the bank.

(From most entertainment-travel cards, including American Express, the merchant generally receives about $95 or $97 for every $100 in slips. These slightly higher charges, particularly for low volume merchants, is one reason why some shopkeepers would rather take a bank card.)

HERE ARE SOME of the reasons bankers say they expect most Master Charge and BankAmericard members to increase fees in the near future:

-Higher postage, labor and telephone costs. The recent increase in mail rates - to 13 cents from 10 cents for a first-class letter - has been particularly damaging to previous profit margins, bankers say. They also claim that, including employe time and use of bank facilities, one telephone authorization call from a merchant now costs the bank up to 55

-Losses as the result of credit card theft and fraud. Despite some improvement in recent years, bankers say they still suffer heavy losses in this area. Losses vary from bank to bank, but most estimates place total U.S. bank losses due to credit card fraud and theft at about $10 million annually.

(At any one-time, U.S. banks are owed about $9 billion by U.S. cardholders.)

-Losses due to delinquent or written-off loans. The worst economic recession since the 1930s took a heavy toll on many banks' charge card programs. Bankers say the situation has eased in recent months, but the losses of 1974 and early 1975 will not be forgotten for some time.

DEAR ABBY

Trouble could come in double strength

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know I've done wrong, but please help me because I'm in such a mess I don't know what I was 15 when my mother died, so my father and I "batched it" for nearly two years. My father finally decided to marry Neva who was 37 and fairly nice-looking. Dad was 57.

Everything would have been fine if I had had any sense, but I started fooling around with Neva when my father was at work. Neva got pregnant. I was scared out of my wits, but Neva said she could make my father think the baby was his, so I shouldn't worry.

Neva had twin boys, and my father was the happiest man on earth. Everything was working out fine until the twins were 8-months-old. Then, with no warning, my father had a heart attack and died. Neva and I were in a state of shock for several days and didn't know what to do.

My father left enough insurance, cash and property for Neva and the twins to live comfortably and for me to go to college. Now Neva doesn't want me to go to college. She wants me to marry her-and help her raise the twins! She says they are as much mine as hers. I want to do what's right, but I don't want to live with Neva the rest of my life. Please help me.-TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: The twins could be your father's -- and legally they are his sons, so don't feel duty-bound to marry Neva and sacrifice your college education to stay home and help raise the boys. Keep a respectable distance from Neva, and with a little luck she'll find another man.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I attend a double-ring ceremony, I wonder if the bride and groom realize that there is no justification whatsoever for a man's wearing a wedding ring.

I quote from an old German prayer

The wedding ring is a symbol of bondage of females in marriage. It's the last relic of the collar and shackles with which captive and purchased brides were (and in some parts of the world still are) bound to their male masters.

Save containers

Save empty margarine containers. Cut off the top and place them in your catch-all drawer. They make excellent containers for rubber bands. bag twisters, tiny lids, pins, screws, nails and so forth.

"The wedding ring is for the bride only and is a symbol of her bondage, subjection to and obedience to her master; a sign that she is now no longer free and independent, but that she is bound and chained under the mastery of her husband."—HISTORY

DEAR BUFF: Thanks for pointing out the progress we've made since

WASHINGTON — A massive battle over the future of the telephone industry and intercity transmission of computer data is shaping up on Capitol Hill, with the first salvos already fired by American Telephone and Telegraph and its allies in the phone industry.

The issue is whether firms from outside the phone industry should be allowed to sell telephone users certain types of business phone equipment and specialized private business message services which are now provided largely by AT&T or independent phone companies which make up the rest of the nation's telephone network. This dispute doesn't involve basic telephone service which the phone companies would keep, but only the specialized equipment and business services.

THE STAKES are high: billions of dollars in sales of switchboards, automatic dialers, answering machines, switching devices and key telephones widely used in business offices, and the future market of $5 billion or more annually, in crosscountry computer hookups. Specialized long-distance business phone service is also at stake.

The issue has received some general publicity lately because of Federal Communications Commission rulings that people can buy their telephones, extensions and answering devices for their homes from outside suppliers instead of their local phone companies, without paying the latter a special extra fee.

But the nub of the dispute isn't in devices for the home but in the specialized switchboards, dialers and private long-distance message and computer services for business firms. That's where the big money and the big battle is.

AT&T and the independent phone companies contend that recent FCC rulings will allow non-phone companies to come in and "skim the cream off" this portion of the market, which the phone industry says is by far the most profitable and which its says subsidizes basic home telephone services for families and individuals: The outsiders will have the profitable business services: the phone companies will be left with high-cost basic telephone services, the companies say. As a result, the phone industry contends, it will be forced to raise residential rates substantiallly. - as much as 75 per cent over a period of time, according to an AT&T study. A study conducted for the U.S. Independent Telephone Association (USITA) puts the increase at 60 per cent over the next 10 years.

AT FIRST GLANCE the dispute seems absurd: AT&T revenues are about $29 billion a year and other phone companies' about $5 billion. All the outsiders together are selling only $450 million in phone-type equipment and services.

But, "it's just like placing a small dinosaur in your house and saying, feed him, he won't eat you up," said Edward Crosland, AT&T vice president in a recent interview, asking, "What happens when he starts to grow?

"Residential rates could ultimately be increased 75 per cent ... there are 13 million households with phones, having an income of less than $5,000 ... these poor people are going to suffer."

Continental Telephone Corp. vice president William Friedman, whose firm serves some rural areas, said, "We lost $59 a year on serving a home," but make it up by profits on business switchboards and receipts from long-distance revenues now threatened by the outsiders.

THE PHONE INDUSTRY'S predictions, which have led it to seek legislation nullifying the FCC rulings, aren't shared either by the FCC or by the President's Office of Telecommunications Policy.

John Eger, acting director of the OTP, says the industry's pricing studies take the "worst case and assume the loss of almost all of certain types of business by AT&T whereas it is likely to keep much of it. He said the studies ignore the fact that competition leads to new technologies which consumers will want and will buy, enlarging the whole pie. He said some of the predictions of rate increases for consumers are "ridiculous."

The FCC hasn't accepted the industry's rate-increase predictions either, although it has a major study

But a source said that even if the business services now being opened to outsiders do indeed subsidize basic local home service to the extent AT&T and the local phone companies claim, the solution may not be to bar the competition but make other rate changes within the telephone system that will help keep home rates reasonably low. For example, charges could be increased for regular long-distance calls to help subsidire local service, for calling, time or weather or information there are many possibilities.

THE BASIC POINT of view of Eger and some of the FCC rulings appears to be that the telephone companies, while providing excellent basic service, have been slow to innovate and haven't developed enough new costsaving and market-enlarging devices - a benefit which competition can br-

So far, the industry bill, introduced by Teno Roncalio (D-Wyo.) in the House and Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) in the Senate - after the industry searched hard for a Senate sponsor — has received a chilly reception from key

John Pastore (D-R.I.), Senate communications subcommittee chairman, has flatly refused to hold hearings, although Commerce Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) said he might convene one just to give the industry a chacne to air its views, not with a view toward legislative action soon. Pastore said recently, "My reason is a very simple one. It's been adjudicated by the FCC, taken to the Court of Appeals, they sought certiorari which was denied - it would be improper at this point to take the matter out of FCC hands and adjudicate it on a legislative basis ... Let's face it, the FCC is not oriented against business.

Torbert MacDonald (D-Mass.), Pastore's House counterpart, said he has "serious reservations" about the

However, Crosland and the independents aren't giving up and expect to make a major push next year - using warnings of possible consumer price increases as their main theme. "This is a consumer issue, really," said a USITA spokesman.

The dispute goes back about a decade, when the FCC began issuing a series of rulings which culminated in today's bitter battle.

THE PHONE INDUSTRY is structured basically as a series of interlocking and natural monopolies. AT&T, the giant, owns most of the intercity long distance lines and it also owns and operates Washington's C&P Telephone Company, the New York Telephone Co. and the local phone companies in the other 23 largest cities of the nation.

There are about 1,600 other local phone companies, some quite large (though tiny compared to AT&T). Each local phone company is a natural monopoly in its area, providing all the phone service. Nation-wide, AT&T ("Ma Bell") provides about four-fifths of all the phones. It is the world's fourth largest corporation, trailing only Exxon, Royal Dutch Shell and General Motors. Each local phone company keeps what it makes on local calls, but the integrated nationwide long-distance system is operated as a giant "pool."

When a customer makes a longdistance call, the toll is divided up with AT&T getting a substantial portion and the local company getting a

For a variety of reasons, charges for long-distance calls have always been proportionately higher in relation to cost than for local calls - making long-distance a highly profitable segment of the business.

Similarly, when a phone is placed in a business office, the phone company charges more than for precisely the same phone in a home. And switchboards, keyboards and answering devices in business offices have always been priced as a high-profit item. The monthly charge for phones is partly for rental or leasing of the equipment - the phone, switchboard, extension, etc. - and partly a service charge for operating the system.

THE CURRENT CONTROVERSY began in 1968 in the famous Carterphone case, and has developed in a line of related FCC decisions - the most recent last month. Basically, the FCC ruled in these cases that if an individual or business wants to buy his own switchboard, extension, answering device or main phone from some outside manufacturer, he can do so as long as it meets FCC-set technical standards. This means, in effect, that the phone company loses the monthly fee it gets for rental of the equipment, although it can still charge for basic

Many business find it far cheaper to buy their equipment outside, and sales from outsiders are now estimated at $350 million a year.

This barely compared with about $3 to $4.5 billion which it is estimated AT&T now realizes for rental of such equipment. But the phone companies claim this skims off one of the highprofit areas of their business, and will become far worse as a result of FCC development of the doctrine on such equipment in its most recent rulings.

A second major decision, five years ago, involved the MCI Corp. It opened the way for specialized long-distance private lines to run voice or computer information through.

Typically, a firm like MCI will build big microwave transmitters and receivers in two cities where there is heavy potential phone and computer traffic (like Chicago and St. Louis). A businessman with plants in both cities can phone the MCI station in Chicago on his regular local phone or a special MCI phone and then get hooked into the MCI transmitter, which carries his voice or computer message to the MCI receiver in St. Louis. There it is channeled to his plant.

RATES CHARGED by these companies are lower than AT&T rates for the same kind of special private-line service - in part because AT&T at first insisted it couldn't go too low because it needed high revenues on such service in order to subsidize basic services for homeowners. AT&T now says the FCC won't let it lower its rate to meet the competition. It also argued that

Union and all others providing special long-distance private-line service have combined revenues of only $100 million a year and are barely breaking even, an MCI spokesman said.

By contrast, AT&T gets about $1.3 billion a year from similar private lines, about $1.4 billion from WATS (Wide-Area Transmission) longdistance service, and a bit over $11 billion from regular long-distance calls. This total is nearly half of all AT&T revenues. The independents get about $2.4 billion from longdistance.

WHAT AT&T FEARS is that the companies providing specialized private long-distance service will increasingly eat into the similar AT&T service, capture a big share of the future private-line transmission of computer information.

Moreover, it also fears that its regular long-distance services would be threatened, as more firms which now just make ordinary long-distance calls over their local phone find it

The language of the Roncalio-Hartke bill would, in effect, knock out all future growth of private longdistance service and strangle the infant dinosaur in its den. It would also let state regulator commissions instead of the FCC decision whether outsiders can sell switchboards, ex-

Four variances gain approval

The city Zoning Board of Adjustment okayed four variance requests which received no opposition and turned down one request which was opposed by one person when the board met Tuesday.

The request which was denied by a 3 to 2 vote of the board, was made by Wallace Construction Co. and sought construction of a 48-inch wall rather than the 30-inch wall allowed by the city code. The wall would have been built at the Highland Park Townhouses in the 900, 1000 and 1200 blocks of Neely Avenue.

Robert Wilson of 2204 N. D St. said he was against the request and didn't "see any more beauty in having one more foot added to the fence's height.'

In other action, the adjustment board gave its approval to:

Judge's death may affect Ray's chance for trial

By LES PAYNE Newsday

NEW YORK - The recent death of a federal judge will adversely affect James Earl Ray's chances for a trial in the Martin Luther King assassination case, according to defense at-

William E. Miller, 68, who died in Cincinnati recently of an apparent heart attack, was one of the three judges of the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals preparing to rule on Ray's request for a trial for the King murder.

In prior court proceedings on the case, Miller had been the jurist most vigorous in favoring Ray's appeals. Defense attorneys had been expecting Miller and at least one other judge to grant Ray a new trial "within weeks. Since Miller died before rendering his opinion, the two remaining judges will decide the case. "If they arrive at a split decision, the entire case will have to be reheard," said a spokesman for the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

"Miller's untimely death is very bad news for our case," and James Lesar, one of Ray's attorneys. "I had been counting on him to vote in our favor."

The other two judges are Harry Philips and Anthony Celebrezze.

Ray's lawyers had expected Philips to vote with Miller and they speculated that Celebrezze probably would oppose a trial. "There is now a fairly good chance of a split vote,"

"Miller's death may possibly take us back to square one," said Harold Weisberg, an investigator who, with Lesar, has constructed Ray's present defense. The appeal for a trial is based on claims that Ray ws coerced by his former attorney, Percy Foreman, to plead guilty in 1969 to the King murder. He was sentenced to 99

Ray renounced his plea the day after he entered it and since has maintained that he was an unwitting participant in a conspiracy to kill King. Few of the circumstances of the April 4, 1968, killing - including why and how Ray allegedly committed the crime, or whether there was a con-spiracy — emerged during that brief court proceeding seven years ago.

Judge Miller, on Jan. 29, 1974, wrote the Appeals Court opinion which ordered an evidentiary hearing to review the case against Ray. Philips concurred in the decision and Celebrezze disagreed.

"The entire record reeks with ethical, moral, and professional irregulatities demanding a full-scale inquiry," Miller wrote in his opinion. Without such a hearing, the record leaves no alternative to concluding that Ray's attorneys were more interested in capitalizing on a notorious case than in representing the best interest of their client."

In a 1970 civil case which reached the Sixth Circuit, the court ruled 2-to-1 against Ray's attempt to sue Foreman for damages. In that decision, it was Miller who favored Ray by writing a "vigorous dissent."

Ray's attorneys say that, if granted a trial, they could destroy the state's contention that Ray acted alone in the assassination. "The State can't prove that Ray was on the scene when the crime was committed and that he fired a shot from that window with that rifle," Lesar said.

The FBI and the prosecution have maintained that Ray fired the death shot from the sill of a flophouse window across from the Lorraine Motel in Memphis. FBI documents and a recent Newsday interview with bureau Director Clarence Kelly, raised doubt that the prosecution, as it had claimed earlier, can positively link the death bullet with the rifle found near the scene with Ray's fingerprints. The defense also contends that the bureau cannot prove that Ray's rifle ever was fired from the flophouse windowsill.

"The state does not have the evidence to link the rifle to the windowsill, and they don't have the evidence to link the bullet to the rifle," Lesar said. A spokesman for the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals would not say when the decision on Ray's appeal would be made. The defense attorneys expected a delay because of Miller's. death. "It is now up to the two remaining judges," the spokesman said. "It could come in tomorrow, or it could take months."

Animals now being covered by insurance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Horses only 30 inches tall that romp in a Southern California home; an alligator with fearsome teeth and a career in advertising; an elephant calf from India en route to a children's park in Santa Barbara; even Lassie — all these and many less exotic animals have one thing in common: they are insured.

The minihorses belong to James and Jill Hill of Santa Ana, Calif., who own five of the 1,692 specimens listed by the American Miniature Horse

The Hills say it costs no more to feed their herd than it does to feed five grown house cats. Their pets — they say any animal that waits by the refrigerator for a snack surely qualifies as a pet — are insured for $8,500 in the event of death caused by sickness, disease or accident. The insurer is Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, one of a few firms in this country that sell animal mortality insurance.

Under animal policies, Fireman's Fund typically insures horses with an average value of $3,000 and cattle with an average value of $2,000, Gerald Isom, head of the department, said. The premium is generally about 5 per cent of the animal's value.

Isom said the typical risk is an American Quarter Horse used for pleasure riding. His company paid about 60 claims on horses and cattle last year. The major causes of loss for horses were colic and twisted intestines, while those for cattle were cancer and leg injuries.

Owners of other types of animals must look beyond the animal mortality policy for coverage. Consider the Ponchatoula woman who as promotion stationed a large alligator outside her roadside store in Louisiana. She sought to insure the alligator against theft. An "inland marine" policy was written but the company ran into a problem. The premium depended mainly on the age of the alligator, determined by counting its teeth. No one was willing to count. The company finally charged $2.50 a linear

It was under a similar type of policy that one claim was settled in a unique way. The company had insured an elephant calf that had been donated to a children's park in Santa Barbara, Calif. The animal died and, knowing that the children's park wanted an elephant rather than a claim's check, the insurer arranged for the shipment of a replacement calf from India.

As for Lassie, there was no question about the type of insurance coverage needed. The famous Collie was included in a cast insurance policy, as befits the star of a leading television series.

There are only 10 companies — Fireman's Fund is not one — that provide medical care insurance for dogs and cats. The standard policy covers veterinarian fees for accidental injury and sickness. The policy has a set amount, usually $50 or $100 per accident, and a set amount, generally $100, for sickness. Included is indemnification for routine health maintenance care.

Political bosses, labor chiefs unite to stop Carter

By BILL BOYARSKY The Los Angeles Times

PHILADELPHIA - The big city political bosses and labor chieftains their power diminished from what it was during the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S Truman - are summoning all their energy to stop former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, the unknown outsider who has become the Democratic presidential front-runner.

The coalition has been forming for weeks. But with the April 27 Pennsylvania Democratic primary approaching, it has come out in the open for everyone to see.

"If Carter is not stopped and he is successful in Pennsylvania, he is well on his way to other victories," said Edward F. Toohey, who heads the AFL-CIO's Philadelphia Central Labor Council. "We're going to make a determined effort late in the campaign. Nobody expected Carter to do as well as he did."

Stamp club to sponsor meeting

The Permian Basin Stamp Club is sponsoring a regional meeting of the High Plains Philatelic Society Saturday in the basement meeting room of the Commercial Bank & Trust Co. in Midland.

The meeting, which will feature trading and "Show and Tell" exhibits by area stamp collectors, will be from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Exhibitors wishing to compete in the show and "Show and Tell" competition may submit four pages of stamp collecting material, with an award going to the best presentation, Clifford Chapman, Permian Basin Stamp Club president, said.

A few dealers will also be on hand to buy or trade stamps and sell supplies, Stamps and supplies will also be featured at the High Plains Auction. Persons putting items up for bid may donate the proceeds to the High Plains Philatelic Society for trophies and awards or may keep the money after giving a 10 per cent commission to the club, Chapman said.

Refreshments will be provided by the Permian Stamp Club.

Another stamp show and sale will be held in Lubbock on May 22, as part of Soltex-Hiplex '76 show, he said.

UT honors Midlander

AUSTIN - John Edward Bishop of Midland is one of 73 University of Texas at Austin upper-level students to be honored for straight-A records

Bishop is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Bishop of 2615 W. Golf Course Road.

THE MAN CHOSEN by the bosses to stop Carter in Pennsylvania is Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, whose views, voting record and outlook on life matches those of the practical men and women who run the unions and political organizations.

But in interviews both on and off the record, key AFL-CIO leaders say their real choice is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who appears to be ready to announce his candidacy after the primary elections.

However, Humphrey's name is not on the ballot. The primary contest here is a three-way race among Carter, Jackson and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, the last hope of the liberals.

Jackson, in the view of union leaders is more of a blocking back for the anti-Carter coalition, a solid workhorse who will soften up the opposition for Humphrey, the aging, battered star who did not have the political strength or personal will to enter the primaries this year.

The goal of many of those leaders is to deprive Carter of victory in Pennsylvania, slow down his drive, assure a national convention deadlock and then win the nomination for Hum-

There are members of the anti-Carter coalition who prefer Jackson over Humphrey. But if Jackson falters, they expect to move over quickly to Humphrey. Everybody no matter whether Humphrey or Jackson is their first choice — agrees the main job in Pennsylvania is to halt

WHAT DO THEY FIND wrong with Carter?

Nobody knows what he can do, said Peter J. Camiel, chairman of the Philadelphia Democratic Committee and one of the city's top political bosses.

Camiel compared Carter with Jackson, who is his first choice.

"He's not a newcomer into the field, Camiel said of Jackson. "By contrast Carter is. I don't think a man who has served as governor is as well qualified as a man who served in the federal government, especially in the United States Senate.

"Carter hasn't defined his objectives or taken strong, unequivocal positions on issues," said Toohey. There seems to be a common thread to the comments about Carter - that he is an unknown quantity, something frightening to the labor and city bosses who are most comfortable with the familiar.

William Ross, head of the local International Ladies Garment Workers Union, summed it up with his description of Humphrey. Ross, who prefers Jackson but would willingly take Humphrey, said of Humphrey, "He's been established with the people here for decades and he's never been a disappointment." The same, he said, was ture of Jackson, but it was not of OLD-FASHIONED POWER politics are being used to stop Carter, and Jackson supporters are well-equipped to play the game.

After a grueling series of early primaries, Jackson, Carter and Udall limped into Pennsylvania short of money, a situation due largely to the failure of Congress to agree on the formation of a new Federal Election Commission. Allocation of federal election funds has been held up until the new commission is formed.

Jackson, backed by the unions and political organizations, is hurt least by the money shortage. To understand why, you must understand politics in Pennsylvania, especially in Philadelphia, the state's most populous city. All of Philadelphia is divided into 66 wards. Each ward is divided into several divisions. Each division has two committeemen, and they wield much of the power at the grass roots

Although the machine is declining in power and badly split, it still maintains power through the old methods of the committeemen passing out jobs and favors in return for political supporter. Elected officials do the same.

A good illustration of how power is maintained is the career of William A. Barrett, who died last week at the age of 79 after 29 years in Congress. Unknown nationally, Barrett was beloved in his South Philadelphia district. He returned to that district from Washington every night of the week and held office hours from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., helping, he said, to solve problems "on marital problems, child welfare, foreclosures, evictions, everything that affects the human person.

Although few are as dedicated as the late congressman, the division committeemen and the ward leaders and elected officials above them try to follow his example.

But it is not a united machine. Some of the ward leaders are loyal to Mayor Frank Rizzo, who controls the patronage and money from City Hall. The rest are loyal to City Chairman Camiel whose patronage power comes from his control of the large court system.

Although the two men are enemies, they are both for Jackson in the primary, giving the senator the advantage of the support of all the committeemen in the city. Some like Jackson best. But, like the labor bosses, others really want Humphrey. "I couldn't put my finger on five committeemen around the city who are not going to work for Jackson or Humphrey," said Tom Gunther, aide to James Mahoney, executive vice president of the state AFL-CIO.

ON ELECTION DAY, the committeemen and their workers will distribute sample ballots, explaining to residents how to punch the complicated voting machine for Jackson and for national convention delegates favorable to the senator.

(The Pennsylvania primary 'is broken into two parts — a popularity contest and an election for 134 delegates to the Democratic nominating convention.)

Organized labor will be just as valuable as the Philadelphia commit-

The ILGWU's Ross said he expects to visit all of the state's AFL-CIO unions to be working for Jackson on election day, including the steel workers, the most His union's activities are typical.

"We'll be sending out letters to 15,000 Philadephia members plus 2,000 retired members," said Ross. "Also to the rest of the 90,000 members in Pennsylvania.'

Such help is not covered by the federal law limiting campaign expenditures. The unions can spend as much as they want as long as it is for communications to their own members. That is a powerful financial boost to Jackson.

And the unions, especially the steel workers, will be a help to him in cities outside Philadelphia, including Pittsburgh, the state's second largest ci-

Udall is benefitting from all this activity to some extent.

LABOR HAS NOT BEEN enthusiastic about Udall so far. The AFL-CIO, dominated by the construction-minded building trades unions, have been suspicious of his environmental record.

But Pennsylvania's complicated delegate election procedure has prompted labor to consider helping him. There are 1,100 candidates for the 134 national convention delegate places.

Of them, 700 are identified on the ballot as being pledged to a presidential candidate. The 400 others are listed as uncommitted delegates.

Four hundred of the 700 committed delegates are pledged to candidates who are no longer in the race - Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, Sen.

Birch Bayh of Indiana and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris.

But Lovelock was concerned less with this apocalyptic view of global disaster than with the mysterious mechanisms which somehow keep the oxygen level roughly constant and have successfully done so despite solar variations throughout the past hundreds of millions of years. If we do not understand them we may accidentally upset them and find ourselves in serious trouble, he said.

Since the oxygen produced in the photosynthetic cycle is theoretically in balance, but oxygen is continually removed from the atmosphere by the exposure of reducing materials by rock weathering, the proportion of oxygen would steadily reduce if issues of this kind to relative trivialities. Sheriff's deputies have learned $366 was withdrawn from a 24-year-old Midland man's checking and credit card accounts two days after his death and they are investigating the possibility of forgery.

The body of Samuel F. Weiner, 1506 W. Storey St., was found at the Airline Mobile Home Park Thursday morning, deputies said.

West took his top spades and shifted to a diamond. East took two diamonds and led a club. West took the ace of clubs and then sat back to wait until he got his four trump tricks.

South collected three hearts and one club, for a total of four tricks. The defenders collected 1,400 points. North collected the cards and began to shuffle them silently while his partner explained that the opening bid showed weakness, so that he just had to show his hearts.

LONG EXPLANATION

It was a long explanation. They always are. You don't have to deliver such nonsense if you make it a point not to enter the bidding at a high level unless you're pretty sure of six or seven playing tricks even against very bad breaks. Argentina acts to control labor

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - The military government is taking firm but cautious measures to control organized labor, which has been a dominant force in recent Argentine

The movement was molded into a powerful political force by the late President Juan D. Peron. But unions did little or nothing to protest when the armed forces overthrew Peron's widow and successor, President Isabel Peron, in a coup March 24.

Since then, military authorities have suspended all collective bargaining, banned strikes and taken charge of many important union organizations.

In a communique early this month, the Labor Ministry warned that Another communique said union members would not be given leaves of absence to be shop stewards, as was the practice before the coup.

But the same communique said leaves of absence will continue to be granted to members who work as officials in union headquarters. This was seen by labor sources as an important concession and an indication the government does not intend to dismantle the labor union movement.

The government has, however, "intervened" in a dozen important national unions, dismissing their officers and putting military men in charge. The latest interventions, announced April 6, were in the 100,000member schoolteachers union and the 5,400-member merchant marine

The armed forces also have taken over the General Labor Confederation, the central organization of Argentine unions. Unions in the confederation have about 2.9 million members. Onefourth of those workers are in unions that have been intervened, including 180,000 metal workers and 115,000 textile workers.

No official reasons have been given for the interventions, but they appear to be based on concern over corruption, leftist militancy or political involvement among the union leadership. Authorities are known to have begun compiling lists of reputed union troublemakers in at least some industries, telling management that such workers can be fired. But sources say officials have warned

Strangely enough, North Vietnam which seized a considerable number of American planes and thus became, perhaps, the third most powerful country in the air with bases such as Hue, Danang and Tan Son Nhut in Saigon, is now semi-paralysed by its lack of air links.

Mahon points out industry's problems to members of D&D

By JOE SALMAN
"I would like to tell you what the future holds for the petroleum industry, but I can't - I wish I could." With that, George Mahon of Lubbock, dean of U. S. congressmen with 41 years service in Washington. opened his talk at the Desk & Derrick Club's annual Industry Appreciation Night banquet at the Midland Country

Much of Mahon's talk, keyed to the health of the industry, was punctuated with with warnings about the problems the industry faces now and will face in the future.

"I am greatly concerned about the next decade. The petroleum industry, big, controversial and tremendously important to the welfare of the United States, is in difficulty," the congressman said.

Mahon used the huge outflow of cash to foreign countries for petroleum to illustrate one of the problems of the industry.

"This year, $32 billion will go out of our country for foreign oil. Think what that takes out of our economy and think about what that money could do in the way of bettering our domestic petroleum situation from the standpoint of exploration."

Mahon said the government is spending huge amounts of money on energy sources outside of petroleum-coal, geothermal, atomic

"Within the next 40 years, something fantastic probably will happen in these fields, but right now and for our immediate future our total reliance is on petroleum. We can't escape that, so we need to devote more of our efforts to petroleum." "Or the petroleum industry could just throw up its hands and quit. But that is not the way oilmen and oilwomen do things. For them, it is full speed ahead." The veteran U.S. representative said he could not think of a single thing that has been done by government to make a major contribution to the effort of bettering the domestict oil situation. What the government has done, though, is repeal the depletion, allowance, thereby taking away capital that could be used for ex-"And the Congress passed the Energy act of 1975 that included the rollback of prices for petroleum. "And the Congress failed to pass

Discoveries potential

Discoveries have been finaled in Nolan and Runnels counties, and wildcats have been staked in Runnels, Stonewall and Fisher.

I. W. Lovelady of Midland finaled No. 1 Shields to reopen Ellenburger production in the Estaban (Strawn and Canyon) field of Nolan, six miles southwest of Sweetwater.

It gauged a 24-hour flowing potential of 198 barrels of 46-gravity oil and 12 barrels of water, with gasoil ratio measuring 924-1. Production was natural, through a 12-64-inch choke, and from open hole at 6,868 feet, where operator set 51/2-inch casing, and 6,870 feet, total depth.

Wellsite is 1,320 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 72. block 23, T&P survey, 1% mile southwest of the original Ellenburger opener.

Tri-Star Petroleum Corp. of Dallas, No. 1 W. H. Dismore has been finaled as a lower Gardner sand discovery in Runnels, % mile north of the lower Gardner opener of the depleted Pearl Valley field.

It was completed to flow 104 barrels of 45.4-gravity oil and 45 barrels of water daily, through a 16-64-inch choke and perforations at 5,172-5,183 feet. Amount of fracture was not available. Gas-oil ratio measured 370-

It was drilled to 5,295 feet, and has 41/2-inch production pipe set at 5,260

It spots 1,500 feet from most northerly south line and 319 feet from most westerly west line of L. N. Taylor survey 3, abstract 725. W. W. West of Midland has filed application to drill a 3,800-foot wildcat, No. 2 Helen Todd, in Runnels. Drillsite is 640 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of James Carothers survey 261, three miles west of Talpa and one location east of his No. 5 Hestwood Clayton, an active

A. N. Norwood, Inc., Midland, accounted for a 6,450-foot Ellenburger try in Stonewall, 12 miles northeast of Aspermont.

Drillsite is 467 feet from south and west lines of section 3, block D, H&TC survey, 2% miles north of the Old Glory, Northwest multipay field. The test is No. 1 Jamama. McDonnell Oil Co. of Abilene has staked a 6,000-foot Ellenburger searcher in Fisher, one mile southwest of Royston. It is No. 1 J. B.

Drillsite is 1,818 feet from north and 500 feet from east lines of section 20. N. W. Burdett survey 332, one mile southwest of the Carriker (Strawn) oil which put up another road block to petroleum industry progress."

"And now, the industry faces another major problem - divestiture. If that were to happen it would be a major setback to production."

Mahon said there is reason for concern about divestiture, but said that if everyone in the industry fights it, it won't happen.

"Many people in Congress believe a breakup of the oil companies would help the consumer, but of course that isn't true," Mahon stated.

Mahon said one of the biggest items hampering the exploration end of the industry is "uncertainty."

"If we knew what to expect from the government we could plan better. But the uncertainty is causing rigs to be stacked and throwing people out of

The congressman layed the blame for a part of the industry's problems on the industry itself.

'The oil industry is not the best ambassador in the world. The oil fraternity needs to find a way to be more effective in selling itself to Congress and to the people. 'The media must do a better job in bringing the problems of the industry to the nation. And it is getting better. Some of the Eastern papers are beginning to come around, but we still have a long way to go." Mahon said.

"I encourage you not to lose hope and succumb to pessimism. If you do, you will lose your effectiveness. We must have the optimism and dedication to do the job of selling the industry to public. It will take a total committment to get the job done for the sake of the consumer and the U.S.

Disastrous shortage looms says Newton

By ED TODD

The United States is "likely to suffer a disastrous energy shortage" within the next few years "unless a sensible national energy policy is developed," Jon Newton, a Democratic candidate for a place on the Texas Railroad Commission, said in Midland Tuesday.

"Congress should provide new incentives for oil and gas exploration instead of changing tax policy to discourage exploratory drilling," he said in a campaign sweep of the Permian Basin.

Newton, a 34-year-old Beeville attorney who doubles as a state representative, is one of eight Democrats seeking nomination to the post being vacated by Ben Ramsey, One Republican is in the race.

Federal policies, Newton said, are making the nation increasingly dependent on foreign oil. He struck into the Arab oil embargo of 1973 and recounted the bearing that holdback had on the U.S. economy and prestige.

"We need to find more oil and gas in this country instead of relying on foreign countries to supply half our needs." he said.

And Newton, if elected to the threemember commission, said he could help reshape the federal government's energy policies through "more articulate, more forceful" lobbying in the nation's capital.

The Texas Railroad Commission, Newton said, "needs to be a much more articulate, more forceful spokesman in Washington (D.C.), to tell the Texas story, to have the Texas story understood.

Newton wants an increase in domestically-produced oil and gas and a subsequent cutback in imported petroleum.

"The Railroad Commission can do something about it," he assured his scant audience of newsmen in a press conference. "The people in the state can do something about it. (and) the Congress can do something about it if we all work together.'

The commission, which functions "to keep producers healthy," also is concerned with protecting consumers from inflated prices.

"Texas families, farms and businesses are suffering greatly from rising utility costs," Newton said. "But we are only fooling ourselves if we think that the federal government will give us any kind of lasting relief by imposing new controls." Newton said deregulation of natural gas is "our only real hope of fairness for the people of Texas.' He said the Federal Power Commission (FPC) "has been mismanaging gas regulation in the interstate market for 20 years. "Its policies have caused Texas consumers to pay three and four times more for gas produced right here in Texas than the consumers in Northern and Midwestern states are The FPC policy should be ditched,

Newton said, and free competition should be given "a chance to work again."

"Price-fixing is always a popular idea for a short period of time," he said, "but its long-term results always have been discrimination, shortages, and skyrocketing prices

Newton said he is against proposed legislation to break up the major oil companies. He called such efforts 'left wing.'

"I'm opposed to divestiture." he said.

Newton, an avowed conservative, said of the nine candidates campaigning for the Railroad Commission's post, his is the "only campaign that is organized well in the

Singer's talent unusual

By ROBIN WELLES Copley News Service

There's a new voice in town and it's owned by Stephen Sinclair, 23 and from England, (where else do American singers come from?).

There's not only an unusual talent here, but also an unusual story.

They say that musicians are born, that if they're not giving concerts by the age of 5, But there are exceptions, quite a few of them. Sinclair dropped out of school at 15 and specializing in disco styles. The business withered and Sinclair, whose mother was a singer, decided to try that

So at the ripe old age of 19 he took up the study of piano, practicing sometimes 16 hours a day. He studied composition and wrote some songs, then arranged to meet Lee Kramer, Olivia Newton-John's manager, in his London hotel room. Kramer recommended him to MCA Records in America. Four years later Sinclair is out with his debut album called "Sad and Lonely Saturday Night." Sinclair's voice is high and thin but with good power, in the manner of a Paul Simon or John

Sarah Churchill: 'I refuse to make explanations for my character'

WASHINGTON - She was 21 when she ran away to America. She wouldn't have called it "running away," that's not how she thought of it at all. She came here, a pretty young actress with excellent bone structure as much "to-meet the stage" as to meet the man she'd settled on. Her father was Sir Winston Churchill; her mother Baroness Clementine Ogilvy Churchill. She "adored" them; but of them she says, "I had not one, but two strong parents ... You have to run away from your parents, otherwise you never mature, right? It's a necessary part, almost a survival ... I lived a most protected childhood."

And so she bolted in the most romantic way. 'Yes, it was romantic. But then as I think you know, there is American blood in me. I always had a reason one does get married," she muses. "There's great fondness for Jennie (Churchill, her American no more privacy. No, not even in courtship."

account that spills out with little introspection. It's been 40 years since she fled the nest. She is 61, a red-haired woman of temperament (or "flamboyance," as she would put it); a stubborn, determined woman ("Tenacious," she corrects, laughing.

"I think the word is 'tenacious'"). And decidedly different. She began in her late teens as a dancer, became an actress, wrote poetry. She opened recently at the Hayloft Dinner Theater in a musical called "The Boy Who Made Magic," adapted from a fairy tale she wrote. It's never been performed before and where it's going after it closes in Manassas. Va., this month, no one yet knows. But it's a simple story of a boy who becomes a great con-

"And then he finds it empty," explains his creater, "and so he returns to his own village and becomes a teacher.

There's a lot of her in that story, of course. If it wasn't easy being Sir Winston ("Who had beautiful and brilliant parents," the daughter explains delicately, "though not cozy parents"), it couldn't have been a very simple thing being the child of Sir Winston.

Sarah Churchill, her long pale red hair shrieking against the purple suede tunic that matches her trousers, cocks her head. "I don't know what my four years later founded a father wanted for me. He was always interested in fashion house in London how his children would develop."

So this is how she developed according to yellowing newspaper clips. In the mid-'40s she divorced Oliver, the vaudevillian. Four years later she became "the happy bride of handsome Anthony Beauchamp," a society photographer, a man she calls an "absolutely, totally brilliant man;" a man who ended up killing himself with sleeping pills when they were "apart, but hadn't made a decision."

It was five months after that, that she was arrested in Malibu on a drunk charge, having ostensibly used 'unladylike language" to the phone operators and the sheriff's deputies.

"When I'm in trouble," Sarah Churchill explains, "I don't want any close friends around me. I don't want to impinge. When I can't contribute to life and if

Bard ignored

William Shakespeare was ignored in the drawing rooms of the refined residents of early America's civilized New England and only became well known because of his appeal to the rowdies of the western frontier.

Author and commentator Alistair Cooke, outlining a history of the Bard's popularity in the new world, told the first International Shakespeare Association congress Monday night that Shakespeare was virtually unnoticed in America until the 1830s.

"There is no need at all to wonder what the founders of New England thought about Shakespeare. They didn't. In all the Colonial literature of the 17th century there is not, I believe, a single allusion to him," Cooke said.

When the Bard was finally noticed in America, Cooke told the gathering of Shakespeare scholars and buffs from 15 countries, his popularity blossomed not in the sophisticated cities of the East or the centers of learning.

"It came from strolling players who followed the flatboats floating down the Allegheny and rode into the rowdier pioneer towns springing up around the A-p-palachians," he said.

I have nothing to give, I'd rather go away in a corner whether, in fact, his host had a father. But the papers reported more stories. Asked if the old incidents of the late '50s and early '60s have stopped now entirely, she grimaces wryly. "I'll tell you one thing — they haven't stopped repeating them ... It's a question of what you consider 'disorderly.' it's not true, but it makes good copy.'

And then, with airy dignity, "I refuse to make explanations for my character.

"You take the brickbats with the bouquets," she says philosophically. "Even now that my father's dead, Mr. (Rolf) Hochmuth wrote a disobliging play about him.

She divides her time now between New York and London. "I live in the middle of the Atlantic — TWA, Pan Am, somewhere ... " and, of course, it suits her. "I'm a senior citizen now. She arches her neck with mock gravity. "I can go half-fare on the London bus. except the very day I turned 60, they started cutting back the bus service. But isn't she rich?

"But of course!" She laughed delightedly.

Cotton

NEW YORK — (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were lower in midday dealings by as much as $2.00 a bale. Commission house liquidation and selling Commission house inquidation and setting by dealers and merchants to hedge purchases in the cash market depressed futures prices, brokers said.

The average price for strict low middling 1:18-inch spot cotton rose 5 points to 38.22 cents a pound Tuesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange. Exchange.
Midday prices were $1.50 to $2.00 a bale lower than the previous close. May 61.15,
July $2.04, and Oct. 61.40.

There is a place in Pennsylvania where people go to learn to break the rules.

It is called the Games Preserve, and occupies 25 acres of countryside near Reading. Grownups spend weekends there recapturing the spirit of fun they knew as kids by eschewing both the thrill of victory and the agony an atmosphere that will help people enjoy themselves and others." "To get back the sense of joy you have to detoxify adult games," said codirector Matt Weinstein, 27. "It's amazing how much fun people can have after you persuade them that rules aren't sacred and you don't have to have winners and losers." Bernard de Koven, the Games Preserve has a gathering dust because 'we're getting more into social games that use no equipment and very few formal rules," Kekich said. "Most of the rules we do use are just set up so people can knock them
