Midlander Robert L. Monaghan speaks to other Texas delegates during a meeting of the GOP Committee on Rules and the Order of Business in Kansas City.

Delegate hunt stepped up as GOP convention opens

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and Ronald Reagan personally pursued the last uncommitted delegates today while the Republican party opened its most divided national convention in a generation.

Mary Louise Smith, Republican national chairman, called the 31st GOP National Convention to order in Kemper Arena at 10:30 a.m., CDT.

The start of the convention brought to its final phase the long, sometimes bitter struggle between the incumbent President never tested in a national election and his brash opponent whose challenge defied conventional political wisdom.

Time was running out and the two candidates met with delegations, trying to pry loose the few remaining votes they each needed for the presidential nomination.

Meanwhile, Sen. James L. Buckley of New York, who threatened to enter the race and upset all preconvention calculations, scheduled what his staff described as a "definitive" news conference to announce his intentions. Many of the Republicans gathered here for the Ford-Reagan showdown feared the outcome would leave the party too divided to withstand the Democratic challenge in the fall campaign.

Few in Kansas City expected the Republicans to duplicate the show of unity and party harmony the Democrats staged last month in New York City when they nominated Jimmy Carter for president.

Throughout the preconvention week, strategists for Ford and Reagan probed and tested and sought signs of softness in the delegate totals each was claiming.

Both sides claimed to have more than the 1,130 delegate votes needed for the nomination.

The Associated Press delegate count, based on legal commitments and publicly stated preferences, gave Ford 1,116 and Reagan 1,035, with 107 uncommitted. One delegate said he would vote for Buckley as long as the senator was in the race.

In the final hours before the start of the convention, Ford and Reagan each lost one delegate. A Reagan supporter from Louisiana and a Ford backer from New York shifted to the uncommitted column.

For days Buckley stood poised on the edge of the presidential race. The conservative Republican's indecision was one more imponderable in the tightest GOP race since Dwight D. Eisenhower and Robert A. Taft battled for the nomination in 1952.

Before the balloting begins Wednesday night for the presidential nomination, the candidates will test their delegate strength in several floor fights.

The first significant test should occur Tuesday night when Reagan's backers plan to fight for adoption of a rule that would require each presidential candidate to name his choice for a running mate by Wednesday morning.

Reagan already has said his choice is Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania.

The vice presidential rule was rejected Sunday by the convention rules committee, but Reagan and his managers said they expected to lose there. The real test, they insist, will come on the convention floor.

John Sears, Reagan's campaign manager, has said repeatedly he believes the former California governor's strength on matters like the proposed rules change is greater than the number of delegates attributed to him in most surveys of intended votes on the first nominating ballot.

Reagan and Ford hit town Sunday and held campaign rallies at about the same hour but miles apart in the convention city.

"I know we are going to win," said Ford.

"Do I think I can still win on the first ballot?" Reagan said to reporters after his arrival. "Yes."

On the eve of the convention, Ford's delegate total increased by seven, Reagan's by three.

But the biggest remaining bloc of uncommitted delegates, the 30-vote Mississippi contingent, continued to resist pressure from both camps to declare its intentions. The Mississippians caucused Sunday night but

Texans stand firm with Reagan

By SUSAN SWARD

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Texas stood up for Ronald Reagan at a caucus meeting before the Republican National Convention began today.

That is, the delegates, apparently all 100 strong, literally stood up. The incident came when delegate chairman Ray Barnhart asked the group, which is tied by law to Reagan through three ballots, if it wanted to be polled about how it felt about Reagan. Then a roomful of people stood and sat down quickly. Barnhart, a Houston businessman, then asked anyone who had switched support away from the former California governor to stand.

As a television camera panned the meeting hall behind the delegation's hotel, no one stood. Earlier in the evening Sunday Barnhart had told the delegates that there were reports that one-fifth of their number had switched their allegiance to President Ford.

Barnhart himself quickly dismissed the rumor he reported on as "garbage." He added "none will waiver."

Barbara Culver, a Midland judge who was a delegate on the GOP platform committee, seconded Barnhart's estimation in an interview. "They are so solid you can't believe it... I don't think you could move them with dynamite," Mrs. Culver said.

Judge Culver said, "We're going to have a rather long platform, unfortunately, but it is going to be clear and to the point and no one who reads it need wonder what we stood for.

"We have voted our convictions, but I think you'll find that the delegates interested in the nomination of both candidates voted their convictions whether it's the one their candidate would want or not," she added.

Noting the platform support of both the Equal Rights Amendment and the abortion question, the judge said, "I guess it was a win for both sides. Many men and many women felt very strongly both for and against the Equal Rights Amendment and both for and against the right to life, and both sides, I guess, have something to be happy about in that."

Culver said the biggest win for the Texas delegation was the inclusion of its proposal to preserve Rule 14-B of the Taft-Hartley law, or the right-to-work law.

She said, "For Texans, the highlight of the convention probably is the fact that overwhelmingly, the platform committee voted to preserve

School opening delay unlikely, consultant says

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The San Antonio attorney charged with developing a desegregation plan for Midland said this morning he does not think it will be necessary to delay the opening of school this year.

"If it's within my capability, I'm not going to let that (delay of opening) happen," John Skogland, special master and consultant appointed by federal District Judge D. W. Suttle, said.

Skogland was instructed by the court to prepare plans and recommendations to the court "for the complete desegregation of all Midland elementary schools beginning at the first grade level."

Skogland said he has not had time to study the court order which was issued Thursday while he was out of town on vacation.

He was notified by telephone of his appointment after having previously been consulted about the post.

He said he does not have any information about the school system in hand "other than just a general understanding from spending a good deal of time in Midland" as Judge Suttle's law clerk.

When asked if he would meet with community groups or their representatives, Skogland said, "At this point, I don't know. That's not the normal way courts handle problems."

He said plans submitted by parties to the suit would be given "proper weight" when such action is appropriate. "I think everyone involved is looking for the best answer that we can find. Everyone needs all the help he can get. It's too important not to consider everything," Skogland said.

He said he is not at this point able to clarify the meaning of the order to desegregate all schools. He has not had time to study the matter enough to say what the phrase "all schools" means.

He said he has had no contact with school district attorneys and such contact now would not be proper. Any such contact should be initiated by him or the courts, Skogland said.

Skogland plans to come to Midland "as soon as possible," but he does not know where he will do the bulk of his work.

Skogland said he cannot discuss the merits of the case.

He said the school district has the right to submit an alternative plan and his plan will not necessarily be automatically accepted by the court.

Crane boasts many well-cast programs

CRANE—I tell myself, every time I pass through this sandhill-and-pumpjack country, that I'm going to dig into this town and see what makes it tick some day.

Whatever it is, it's ticking pretty well from all indications. I know they have one of the finest farm-youth programs anywhere (and, this not being exactly Kentucky grasslands area, most of the youths are not farm-related, which makes livestock and horsemanship programs both more difficult to operate and more worth operating).

Typical of the spirit of the community is the Bicentennial bell cast by local artist and community leader P. O. Vines from metals donated by local citizens. I had heard the call for semiprecious metals to make the three-foot Liberty Bell look-alike when I emceed a beauty pageant in Crane last year, and it was like the realization of a dream to see the finished work of art at the Chamber of Commerce-art gallery-museum presided over by C of C Manager Peggy Morgan and volunteer museum staffers and historical committee regulars Mmes. Melba Damron and Myrtle Corley.

(You see lots of tracks from Mr. Vines, too, with a number of paintings in the gallery and a striking museum display featuring a 1900 Studebaker vehicle—no, not a car but a chuckwagon, with contemporary artifacts.)

Postmaster and Mrs. Arion T. Carroll loaned the antique kitchen and bedroom displays, and some of the most interesting materials are prehistoric sandals, bone implements, and skeletal remains from an excavation site described only as "on the lower Pecos River" and dating to 2,000 before Christ.

And Mr. and Mrs. Roy Croft, exemplary of the local "willing hands" attitude, were working out details for work they have volunteered on exhibit equipment.

The Chamber and art gallery are open during regular business hours, of course, and the museum is open from 3 to 5 on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with other hours available by appointment.

New major Chinese earthquake recorded

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — U.S. government seismographs recorded a major earthquake today on the Chinese mainland, and geophysicists said it was almost 950 miles away from the great earthquake there last month.

Waverly Person, geophysicist with the National Earthquake Information Service, said the latest tremor measured 6.9 on the Richter scale of earthquake magnitude. It occurred at 10:07 a.m. EDT.

Person said the quake was 250 miles north of Chungking near the Kansu-Szechwan province boundary. On July 27, an earthquake of 8.2 magnitude occurred near China's eastern coast, 937 1/2 miles northeast of today's tremor.

The seismological institution in Uppsala, Sweden, also reported a "relatively powerful" new quake in China measuring 7.2 on the Richter scale.

Prof. Marcus Baath placed the epicenter at 625 miles southwest of Peking.

In the Richter scale, every increase of one number, say from magnitude 5.5 to magnitude 6.5, means the ground motion is 10 times greater. Some experts say the actual amount of energy released may be 30 times greater.

Two groups of Midlanders met Sunday night to discuss a federal court order to immediately desegregate all Midland elementary schools.

About 125 persons from the black community, led by Dr. Viola Coleman, agreed to hire a lawyer to represent them in the attainment of a solution.

A committee to work for neighborhood schools was formed by a group of Rusk Elementary School area residents.

Dr. Coleman said the reason her group decided to hire a lawyer was the need "to be involved in the solution."

"With all of the schools involved, it would be better to try to work toward a solution now than to wait until plans are drawn up and, if they are just too unsatisfactory, to go through the legal process of injunctions and court hearings," she said.

"Without legal representation at this time, all we would be able to do is react to any solutions that come up and we hope that, by having legal representation at this time, we may be able to be involved in the solution so that the type of reaction that results in court action and further delay won't be necessary," Dr. Coleman said.

Dr. Coleman said the group wants "no special favors."

"We just want to be treated like the average Midland taxpayer," she said.

The attorney hired is Bryce Cunningham from Dallas who has represented minority groups in Richardson and, currently, in Sherman, Dr. Coleman said.

A finance committee, to be headed by Barbara Harris was appointed to solicit and receive contributions for legal fees.

The approximately 100 persons who gathered on the Rusk Elementary School grounds Sunday night expressed strong opposition to busing.

A committee, headed by Paul McCarty, was appointed to represent the group. McCarty said he wanted the neighborhood as a whole to be able to take action, rather than individuals acting alone.

Many of those attending signed a petition supporting neighborhood schools circulated by Gary Thurman, who is from the Rusk area.

The group also collected 105 signatures for a mailgram to the Midland delegation at the Republican national convention.

The mailgram, written by Thurman, expresses support for the delegation's "long-standing battle for a law-abiding judiciary" and urges them to support neighborhood schools.

Thurman said he would give a copy of the signed petitions to John Skogland, appointed by federal District Judge D. W. Suttle as special master and consultant to draw up a desegregation plan.

Thurman said the issue is one of "who is in charge," parents or the federal government.

One parent, Lisa Ray, said she objected to accusations that desegregation has been deliberate when, she said, it has been the result of neighborhood patterns. "Birds of a feather flock together," she said.

She also expressed opposition to spending tax dollars to pay for busing.

Several persons emphasized their opposition to busing was not opposition to integration.

"It's not the races I'm against, it's having my third grader bused across town," one parent said. He said he bought his home because he wanted his child to get a quality education and "I understood Rusk was the place to go."

A dissenting view on busing was expressed by Lois Christenson.

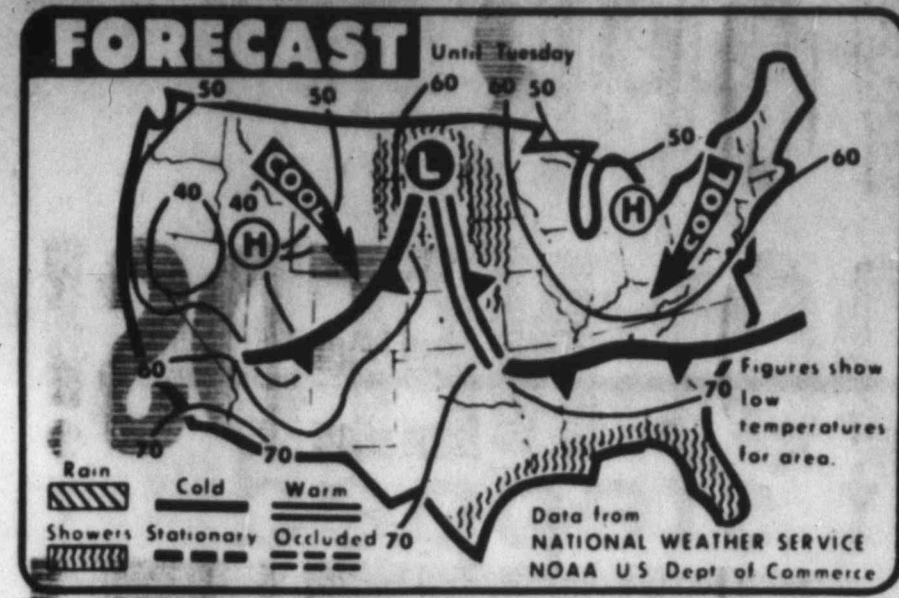

"What alternative do we have other than busing to promote contact at an early age? I don't know of one," she said.

Several of those present said Judge Suttle should disqualify himself from the desegregation case.

McCarty told the group that he had contacted Joe Dominey, school board

Indian women's spirits still very strong

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

As our orange van rattled through the dusty reaches of Nevada, I kept thinking of the remarkable Sarah Winnemucca, called Shell Flower by her own people, who fought to convince leaders in Washington to honor Indian treaties.

the self-help building program." Through this program, federal financing is available, though the people build their own homes.

WOMEN'S NEWS

That was generations ago. I grew up out here, but by then Indians were living either in quiet poverty on reservations or they had moved to town where life was slightly better.

The women, especially, wore their suffering behind silent masks. While working at a southern Paiute reservation kindergarten, I began to realize how little we know of our Indian neighbors. Why did they never speak of their native traditions? Where was that proud spirit that characterized Sarah Winnemucca and her counterparts?

A short course in western history helped me understand where the spirit had gone, but then it began to revive. In this decade of attempts by Indian nations to develop their own cultures and resources, and of the women's movement, I've often thought of the Indian women I knew. How were they coping with dual challenges of being both Indian and female?

In Reno and Carson City, Nev., I was able to listen to two Indian women. The first had been a college classmate. She'd majored in physical education, now she works in an office.

When asked how life for an Indian woman differs from life for other women, Barbara mentioned several things. First, there is the alcohol problem. The issue has received so much publicity that a blanket of suspicion falls over Indians who even casually drink. She did acknowledge the problem, however, and told of one friend who was headed that direction.

"He's a really smart, outstanding man," she said. "Good in academics, sports, everything. But he's torn between success somewhere else and staying at the reservation and helping his own people."

Beverly is less accepted by her own people because she went to college and married a Caucasian. She's sometimes called an "apple," red on the outside, white inside. "They think I'm an Uncle Tomahawk, but I've seen my opportunities and taken them. Maybe it is harder for me to rock the boat, to speak out for Indians and for women, because I'm comfortable where I am."

Later I chatted with another Indian woman, Janice, who'd never lived on a reservation. Her first taste of discrimination came when she enrolled in school. "One little girl told me I should be going to the Indian school. I couldn't figure out why she should say that. It

Tobacco did Indians 'in'

Both Beverly and Janice understand the problems that face Indian women as they help revitalize their native culture. They see that new leadership is evolving both through men and women, and like that. Both women reflect the optimism, courage, intense practicality and pride that historians attribute to Sarah Winnemucca and other Indian women.

FOOD QUESTIONS

The Los Angeles Times Question — Why is it that no matter how thoroughly I cook turkey I sometimes will get turkey meat tinged pink? Answer — The pink tinge in fully cooked turkey develops during cooking and happens more in a gas oven. It occurs when the myoglobin in the turkey meat combines with carbon monoxide in the oven. It does not affect the quality of the turkey meat. Q. How long will homemade mayonnaise keep if stored in the refrigerator? A. It will keep well for a week. After that, it starts losing quality. Q. Would you please tell me how many calories are in sweetened bubble gum, mint or flavored gum, and Life Savers drops and mint? I haven't found this information anywhere. A. According to the Dictionary of Calories and Carbohydrates by Barbara Kraus, a 1-cent size of bubble gum has 18 calories; a 5 cent has 85 calories; a stick (3 grams) of different brands of mint, fruit and sour gums ranges from 8 to 10 calories; a piece (3 grams) of Life Savers has 10 calories whereas mint (2 grams) has 7 calories.

(Tues. Aug. 17) GENERAL TENDENCIES: Much confusion exists today and tonight unless you make a point to listen carefully to whatever anyone has to suggest. Study carefully any reports or information that comes your way. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to organize your activities for more efficiency. Take care you do not overextend, or invest too heavily. Be philosophical about some delay that may occur. Show more affection for kin. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Delay tactics on the part of others will give you time to make better arrangements that bring you more success. Plan time for good friends. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Although you may feel limited, you can get little annoyances taken care of. Keeping promises to loved one is most important now. Take no chances where your reputation is concerned. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) There may be some delay where amusements are concerned, but perseverance turns everything in your favor. Try to help a friend in need. Make the evening a happy one. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day for handling public matters and adding to your prestige, esteem. A credit affair. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) You seem stalemated in a current activity so use your spare time for handling other affairs. Make sure you plan any trip you are contemplating carefully. Be most thoughtful of loved one this evening. LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) Handle responsibilities with greater care and efficiency than usual. Forget your irritation with a loved one. Avoid one who is a troublemaker. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to understand what is expected of you by your partners and come to a better understanding with them. A civic matter could upset you at first, but later is helpful to you. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Putting off necessary chores could lead to trouble later. Arguing with fellow workers is unwise. Attend a social function today. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in recreational activities suggested by others and have a good time today. Plan creative activities for days ahead early and wisely. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show more consideration for those who dwell with you and be happier. Study all facets of a new venture you have in mind or you have little success with it. Be clever. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Making necessary appointments today brings the right results. Allies could buck you where some plan is concerned if you do not explain it carefully to them. Avoid one who is jealous of you.

MOW workers not MMH employees

It was erroneously stated in identification on front page coverage Sunday by the RT's Women's News Section program in Midland, that Mrs. Elizabeth Glenn and Mary Keegan are staff members at Midland Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Glenn, registered dietician, and Keegan, bookkeeper and dietitian's aide, are the only two paid employees of MOW, which is sponsored by Midland Senior Citizens, Inc. Volunteers support the rest of the program. They are not MMH employees. Midland Memorial Hospital provides usage of office space and its cafeteria for MOW.

DEAR ABBY

She wants to avoid segregation of wedding guests

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married at a church wedding. I know it's customary to seat the guests of the bride on one side of the church and the guests of the groom on the other side.

My fiancée is black and I am white, and we don't want the church to be segregated—blacks on one side and whites on the other.

How can we seat the guests so this won't happen? — ANTI-SEGREGATIONIST

DEAR ANTI: Ignore the traditional protocol and integrate the guests. How else?

DEAR ABBY: I see letters in your column from young mothers complaining because their mothers and mothers-in-law spoil the grandchildren and even fight to babysit with law. It should happen to me!

My children, ages 2, 5 and 7, are the victims of two liberated grandmothers. I would never dream of asking my mother to babysit because she made it clear from the start that she would not sit with my children—except in an emergency.

My husband's mother is so busy with her poodles, shopping for antiques and playing cards that she hasn't time for her grandchildren. On their birthdays and Christmas she sends them checks! (Abby, what do 2-5- and 7-year-olds know about checks?)

I have taken studio portraits of all my children and have sent them to both sets of grandparents, but I've yet to see any of them displayed.

I'm not asking for "help" with a problem, because there's really no solution, but it sure felt good to get this off my chest. Thanks, Abby.— FEELS BETTER IN CHICAGO

DEAR FEELS: In a few years your "liberated grandmothers" may regret what approaches estrangement from their grandchildren. Kids can be a pain in the neck in their early years, but a joy later on. And one day the "liberated" grandmothers may wish they had that kind of joy.

DEAR ABBY: EVIE IN DES MOINES asked if a rooster had a reproductive organ, and you said,

"Yes, but it's so small it's practically invisible. I suppose a hen would tell you it's adequate for her needs, but by human standards it's certainly nothing to crow about."

You are wrong. A penis is lacking in most birds that copulate by cloacal contact. In chicks, a penis is present only as a vestige for a few days after hatching. However, some birds do have a copulatory organ: ostriches, emus, kiwis, cassowaries, tinamous, geese and ducks, for example.— J. F. L., Ph.D.: DEPT. OF BIOLOGY, OXFORD COLLEGE, EMORY U., OXFORD, GA.

DEAR DR. L.: According to "Avian Physiology" by Paul D. Sturki (rhymes with turkey), the rooster has a phallus (which, according to Webster's Dictionary, is a penis). And although this sex organ is external only when mating, that certainly doesn't make it non-existent.

And thanks for the information on the other birds. It'll come in handy in case I'm ever on Hollywood Squares.

DEAR ABBY: I have a severe hearing loss. Six years ago I bought a hearing aid and experimented with it for a long time. I finally gave it up because it magnified background noises I had not heard for years and were more annoying than not hearing at all.

My family criticized me for not wearing my hearing aid, but I've trained myself to read lips and find it much more to my liking.

I do miss a lot at social gatherings as I can listen to only one person at a time, but I've learned to live with that, too.

Sometimes I feel that I'm better off if I don't hear everything that goes on. DOING ALL RIGHT

DEAR DOING: Ho-hay for you! Not everyone who has a hearing loss feels severely handicapped.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Tornadoes hammer Nebraska, Colorado

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes, spawned from a small area of thunderstorms centered over Nebraska, raked portions of extreme northeastern Colorado and the Nebraska panhandle overnight. Two tornadoes touched down Sunday night at Haxton, Colo., damaging several farm buildings and a few airplanes. Another twister was spotted 35 miles northwest of Akron, Colo. In Nebraska, tornadoes were reported near Venango, Whitney and Chadron. There were no reports of injuries from any of the twisters. Other thunderstorms were positioned along the Atlantic coast, the southeastern states and the lower Mississippi valley this morning. A few of the storms along the New England coast were heavy, and power outages were reported through much of Rhode Island. A few rainshowers persisted in the northern Rockies and Oregon. Temperatures were unseasonably cool through the northern portions of both Wisconsin and Michigan, with several readings in the low 40s. There was a possibility of scattered light frost through portions of the area. Skies were generally clear over the southwestern states, the southern half of the plains, the upper Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes region. Partly cloudy to cloudy skies were found elsewhere. Overnight temperatures around the nation ranged from 41 at Marquette and Sault Ste. Marie, Minn., to 84 at Phoenix, Ariz.

Passman defeated

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rep. Otto Passman's 30-year tenure in Congress has been ended by a Ringgold dairy farmer who was 5 years old when Passman was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives. With virtually all precincts reported, the 76-year-old Passman lost by 4,701 votes to 35-year-old Jerry Huckaby in Louisiana's Democratic primary on Saturday. "My opponent had served long and well in Congress, but the voters agreed with me that it was time for a younger man," Huckaby said from his headquarters in Monroe. "The people were ready for a change and I have felt for the past four weeks that I was going to win. It is the American dream come true for me."

He said he was going home to Ringgold and planned to spend the next several days putting corn in his silo. Passman took the telephone off the hook Saturday night and could not be reached for comment Sunday. His office later issued a statement pledging support for whomever is elected to Congress from the district. It did not mention Huckaby, who will face Republican Frank Spooner of Monroe in November. Spooner was unopposed in the GOP primary.

Tourists shunning Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Thousands of tourists have canceled plans to visit Philadelphia since a puzzling and deadly malady struck after an American Legion convention. Over the last two weeks, daily attendance at the Liberty Bell has dropped 25 per cent.

"People call us and ask us if we know anything new," said a motel clerk in Cherry Hill, N.J., a Philadelphia suburb. "They ask if it's contagious, and when we say we're not sure, they cancel." Figures are not available on the number of cancellations directly attributable to fear of the disease. But a check of a dozen hotels turned up six scrapped conventions or meetings, and numerous reports of Philadelphia-bound tourists who had changed their mind.

One man who canceled plans to attend a convention here last week was Richard Givan, chief justice of the Indiana Supreme Court.

"If it were just an epidemic in town you might not think so much about it," he said. "But since it appears to be centered in the very same hotel where we're supposed to stay, it doesn't sound too inviting."

Givan was to have stayed at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, as were the San Francisco Giants baseball team. But on Thursday, when the Giants came to town to play the Phillies, they checked into a Holiday Inn.

The Bellevue-Stratford was headquarters for the Legion convention July 21-24. Subsequently, 25 of the estimated 10,000 people who had some connection with the state-wide gathering died of the illness, and 140 others were hospitalized. Last weekend, state officials said a priest and a musician who attended the 41st International Eucharistic Congress here two weeks ago — and who stayed at the hotel — also contracted the pneumonialike illness.

The Bellevue-Stratford is not the only hotel to suffer.

"The International Brotherhood of Carpenters was coming here Sunday," said Ted Kissane, manager of a downtown Sheraton hotel. "It means about 2,000 room nights. But because of the illness they said they weren't coming. That's a big hunk of change. Counting their food and drinks, it's in excess of $100,000."

Despite two weeks of intensive research and interviews with thousands who attended the Legion convention, health officials remain puzzled about the cause of the disease, which caused high fevers and lung congestion.

The researchers say they have ruled out as causes viruses, bacteria, fungus, or such exotic diseases as plague or Lassa fever. They say the cause may turn out to be a toxin — a poisonous agent — but a number of toxins, including heavy metals, have also been discounted.

The latest victim to die — the 25th — was Jane Palmer, 64, of Philadelphia, who succumbed Saturday after being on the critical list for several days. She attended only one event at the Legion convention — watching a July 23 parade from a window at the Bellevue-Stratford with her husband, Edward. He showed no symptoms of the disease.

At one time, 27 persons had been listed as dying of the "legionnaires disease," but state health officials have revised their definition of the ailment and taken three names off the list.

Wet areas reduce distance between drinks for Texans

By The Associated Press

The distance between watering holes is diminishing for Texans who choose to booze—and bringing a depression to the state's moonshining and bootlegging industries.

According to Alcoholic Beverage Commission statistics, Texas is becoming increasingly dotted with patches of wet towns in formerly dry counties, while per capita consumption has gone up considerably.

In 1955, 141 counties, more than half the state's total, were completely dry. Today, that figure is a mere 82.

The southern part of the state is generally wet, but the northern sections are becoming sprinkled with wet spots motivated by economics or by the simple desire to have a drink in public.

Some of the wet northern islands are small communities such as Impact in West Texas which take advantage of a possible dry market around them.

This increase in wet communities has been a blow to bootleggers and moonshiners. Authorities report that in 1949 agents seized 84 stills, while last year, they closed down only three.

At the same time, consumption distilled spirits in Texas has increased by about 50 per cent in the past 35 years and per capita consumption of beer has almost doubled in the same period, according to the ABC.

The ABC estimates that the average Texan drank 1.5 gallons of distilled liquor per year, while quaffing about 27 gallons of beer. However, those figures are below the national average.

Most of the places that decide to go wet are small communities where it is easier to organize a campaign for a liquor election. Such a decision will be made next month in the Dallas County town of Addison, which is surrounded by dry cities.

On the other hand, Tyler, in East Texas, voted last week to remain dry in its first local option election since 1948.

Churches are usually the leaders in the battle against the "wets."

Dr. Ben Lorin, associate of the Christian Life Commission, the social action agency of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, says persons voting dry are not necessarily teetotalers.

"Nobody likes to live next to a joint," he said. "With intensified alcohol consumption, you do have related problems. People look for a healthy climate in which to live."

He pointed out also that even for those in dry areas it is not difficult to buy a drink at the so-called private clubs.

Dallas County, which has many dry areas, has 235 private clubs licensed to sell liquor.

Iowan blames Ford for soybean prices

WASHINGTON (AP) —

An Iowa Congressman says that President Ford's veto of a major farm bill in the spring of 1975 cost soybean farmers $400 million and is responsible for the doubling of soybean-meal prices in a season's time.

Democrat Neal Smith's state has estimated that soybean production this fall will be off last year's harvest by 8.7 per cent, with acreage down almost 6 per cent.

In a recent statement, Smith said that farmers should blame the Republican administration for "failure to provide a soybean loan program last fall."

The farm bill in question would have increased the production loan rates for the major grains and mandated one for soybeans, which the Agriculture Department opposed as unnecessarily inflationary.

"It was the first time since the days of the Great Depression that there was no USDA soybean loan program at harvest time," Smith said.

The 1975 crop, the marketing year for which ends Sept. 30, reached 1.52 billion bushels.

Austin reaffirms N-plant decision

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) —

A spokesman for an Austin group opposed to the South Texas Nuclear Project says blazing hot summer weather here influenced voters' decision to keep Austin in the project.

Less than 20 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots as the proposition to authorize the city council to pull out of the project failed by more than a 31 majority Saturday.

The vote was 21,730 for and 7,092 against.

Peck Young, who campaigned to sell the city's 16 per cent interest in the project, said the absence of most students, away from the University of Texas campus for the summer, and the timing of the election caused the lopsided vote.

Young said he will now try to get the city to withdraw from a second coal generating plant in Fayette County.

Austin is already a partner with the Lower Colorado River Authority in the first plant, which should begin production in 1979. The council also voted to join the second plant, which is expected to begin production in 1980.

Young said he did not think the city would need the combined output of the nuclear and coal plants.

Pro-nuclear spokesman Steve Matthews of the Homeowners for Lower Electric Rates said the vote showed "people are concerned about utility rates."

However, councilwoman Margaret Hofmann said "we now have a false sense of security as far as cheaper energy" as a result on the Saturday election.

She added, "Conservation is going to be put on the back burner. In five years, I may form an 'I told you so' committee."

Senate skirting 2 major issues

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leaders appear to have given up attempts to pass a postcard registration bill that had been urged by the party's presidential candidate, Jimmy Carter.

Postcard voter registration and another controversial bill, calling for the breakup of major oil companies, are missing from a Senate legislative agenda for the rest of the year.

The program listed by the Senate Democratic leadership includes more than a score of major bills to be acted upon after Congress returns Aug. 23 from its recess for the Republican convention. It also shows the order in which they are to be considered, right up to Oct. 2, the target date for adjournment of the present Congress.

A notice sent to all senators by the Democratic whip, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, said the schedule is tentative and adds that other measures may be taken up if time permits.

However, failure to include the oil divestiture bill and a House-passed measure to permit voter registration by postcard may be a tipoff the leadership regards them as too controversial to handle in the remaining days of the session.

The oil divestiture bill barely squeezed through the Senate Judiciary Committee by an 8 to 7 vote June 15 and is considered virtually certain to run into an opposition filibuster if brought up in the Senate.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., has said that "it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible," to break a filibuster.

Mansfield has declined to commit himself on whether the bill will be called up, although Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and other sponsors are pressing for action.

The postcard voter registration bill became entangled in a jurisdictional dispute between two Senate committees after it was amended and rushed through the House just before the Republican convention recess. Still to be decided is whether it should be referred to the Rules Committee or the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

While supporters say the bill is necessary to make registration easier and increase voter turnout, opponents call it an election-year dirty trick that would open the way for widescale voter fraud.

'Gold bugs' who ate too much now sorry

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold bugs, who two years ago were convinced that the price of gold and the size of their fortunes might soar to the heavens, have been crawling of late.

Being an economic rather than zoological creature, the gold bug draws its nourishment from the price of gold, which it believes is the essential repository of value, a safe haven in any economic storm, especially those of inflation.

In December 1974, with inflation and recession pummeling economies of the industrial world, many gold bugs were more confident than ever. Gold sold for $195.20 an ounce, more than five times its 1970 price.

It wasn't uncommon in 1974 to hear the gold bugs speak about an even more lustrous future, not at $200 an ounce but at $300 and even more. Paper money was more suspect every day; gold was solid.

Gold sold for $113.30 in New York Friday, and some analysts familiar with the market were forecasting even lower prices, perhaps much lower.

While some of the gold bugs picked up their ounces at $40 or so several years ago, a good many of them paid several times that figure and now have either no gains or substantial losses.

In addition to the quoted price, many buyers also paid an agent's fee, an assay fee and perhaps a storage fee. And they received no interest in return.

Problems for the gold bugs began soon after, or even slightly before,

U.S. citizens were permitted to buy bullion at the beginning of 1975. The entrance of U.S. citizens into the market was expected to be bullish. It wasn't.

At the time inflation was raging throughout the world, and that of course was considered a boost for gold prices. Whereas paper money, losing its value, sometimes is refused, gold seldom is.

The observations of the gold bugs were correct but their forecasts of even worse inflation weren't. Gradually inflation began to lose momentum and, while stability is still a distance off, people regained some confidence.

The lessened role of gold as backing for currencies contributed further to the decline. The relative value of international currencies, rather than being pegged to gold, were permitted to float against each other.

Central bank members of the International Monetary Fund agreed not to increase their total gold holdings. And the fund began a four-year program to auction off some of its holdings.

All this, combined with sales by the Soviets and the continued output of that country and South Africa, has led to a situation where a relatively large supply exists, and that is bad for prices.

But not all gold bugs are convinced they have to crawl; they still feel their metal is special, and that it will yet prove its higher value.

Noting the difficulty that some European nations are having in controlling inflation, some gold bugs already are grooming their wings for the takeoff.

Fur industry prospers despite rocketing costs

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Inflation, recession and the growing popularity of synthetic look-alikes have failed to ruffle the fur industry. But consumers planning on fur coats this winter had better be prepared for high prices.

Sales of fur coats, jackets, stoles, etc., totaled $525 million last year, according to the Fur, Information and Fashion Council, a trade association. That's an increase of 88 per cent over the $279 million worth of furs sold in 1970.

Prices, meanwhile, have risen steadily; and this year's increase is the biggest yet.

The average price for a good quality, full-length mink coat is now around $6,500, up $2,000 or 44 per cent from five years ago, according to a council spokesman. A raccoon coat goes for about $2,500, double the 1970 figure. A rabbit coat that used to sell for $150 to $200 now costs $200 to $300. At the top of the price scale, a Russian sable available for $15,000 to $20,000 in 1970 is up to $25,000 to $30,000 today.

(The Consumer Price Index increased 43 per cent from 1970 to 1975.)

The fur council spokesman said that prices increased about 5 1/2 to 7 per cent a year until 1976. "This year was the big jump," he said.

Part of the reason is increased demand. Part is that the industry relies heavily on work done by hand — there is almost $1,000 worth of labor in that $6,500 mink coat — and wages are rising.

The biggest cause of this year's increase, however, is competition from foreign buyers at fur auctions. "European traders have bid us up," the council spokesman said. He said economic troubles and fluctuating currencies abroad led people to invest in fur pelts, much as they invest in precious stones, metals and works of art as a hedge against inflation.

Most people look on the purchase of a fur coat as a major investment, and the investment can be a risky one if you wind up with poor quality. Remembering certain basic rules cuts the risk. The federal Fur Products Labeling Act of 1952 set standards for labeling any fur costing more than $5. Among the things to look for: —The animal's true English name. No other name may be given on the label. That means you won't see terms such as "mink-dyed muskrat." —The country the fur comes from if it is imported.

Battles blight Cape Town area

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Half a mile inside Guguletu township, blacks were playing tennis in spotless whites beneath a cloudless sky, a gentle breeze wafting in from the sea not far away. There was a feeling of spring in the air after a hard winter.

A little farther on, the burned-out wreckage of a delivery truck was slewed across the road. The road in front of a row of gutted shops was carpeted an inch deep with broken glass, beer and liquor bottles, apparently. Scores of vehicles littered the streets, overturned, wrecked and burned out.

This was the scene Sunday throughout Guguletu and the other two black townships outside Cape Town, Nyanga and Langa, in which 29 blacks were killed and more than 100 injured during the rioting last week in protest against the white-minority government's racial policies.

The police were keeping a low profile, but their trucks were parked at the entrance to the townships, ready to move if trouble broke out again. Whites were admitted to the black ghettos only if they had special passes from the government.

None of the barrack-like rows of homes in Guguletu appeared damaged. Dozens of churches were untouched. At noon their bells tolled slowly as blacks throughout the county observed a minute of silence in mourning for the 215 blacks slain in township riots since mid-June.

A call for a National Commemoration Day was made by Nkolosi Mvovo, vice president of the Black People's Convention and one of about 50 black leaders arrested last week in a nationwide security roundup.

The Cape Town townships appear to be returning to normal slowly. But the grievances that sparked the violence remain — the pass laws requiring blacks to carry identification documents at all times, the migrant labor system and restrictions on employment and advancement, the lack of equal educational facilities and, in Cape Town, the preferential treatment in the labor market for persons of mixed race, known as coloreds.

TV's nonspontaneity would stifle Caesar

By PAUL ROSENFELD
Special to The Los Angeles Times

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Any man who gives an interview wearing a bathrobe and slippers has to be secure. But then Sid Caesar never needed props or makeup or even clothing to make people like him. Playing a human slot machine or a cherry blossom along the Potomac or a film czar in the current "Silent Movie," Sid Caesar was, and is, pure fun.

As he opens the massive door to his house in Beverly Hills, the clown who's been compared to Chaplin is also a surprise. He's so soft-spoken as to be nearly inaudible. Even the nervous cough, which his former writer Mel Brooks classified as punctuation, is missing. No matter. The man most responsible for television comedy as we know it today, is still a one-man show.

But forget the reverence. Sid Caesar is not nostalgic. The limousines and lackeys are gone and the all-night revelries at Luchows are over. But at 53, Caesar is leaner, more tranquil and maybe even as funny as he was in the days when he predated Saturday Night Live.

Yet there's a $64,000 question surrounding this comic, and even Caesar is stumped. Quite simply, why isn't he on television? Americans love to crown celebrities, and thus we've had movie queens, jazz Dukes and Counts and socialite princesses. But even in an age of overtype Caesar was the genuine article, the King, for a decade anyway, of TV hilarity. Unfortunately, he's never gotten over it. Still, why is Caesar almost never on television?

"I'm asking the same question," he says, settling in a recliner in his poolside den. "When tape came in, we went out. I see taped TV as a bastardization of movies. I've stopped trying to understand networks. They're not interested in ideas, which are so precious. Now you have to dig for one good idea and then hope it has legs."

Caesar doesn't have to dig too deep. The first pantomimist and only true dialectician of the airwaves loves to entertain you. Ask him a question and he comes up with a routine. Pin him down and he bows you over. He'll break into pidgin-German quicker than a Gabor breaks into talk.

Though sadly missing from today's programming, what this Caesar hath wrought is nevertheless everywhere. His up-to-the-minute Nonentities in the News sketches preceded even Chevy Chase's birth. The original, now-syndicated Dick Van Dyke series was based by creator Carl Reiner on the days when Reiner was Caesar's perfect foil.

Then NBC got bright, or so they thought. Talent was overflowing on his set and the network devised a 1-for-3 split. Coca would get her own show, Max Liebman (who coined the term "spectaculars") would now produce them and Caesar would have a weekly hour all to himself. To appease their top banana, NBC gave Caesar a $1-million pay-or-play guarantee. But they took away his playground.

In the spring of 1957 Caesar's Hour won five Emmys and went off the air. The network wanted him to do specials instead of the weekly laugh-in. Caesar, with seven years remaining, walked out on his contract.

"After nine years the audience had had it," Carl Reiner recalled. "Sid's richness had stunned them but there were no more revelations. He felt things more than any comic I ever knew. Only human situations mattered. He never judged." Caesar today will not buy the theory that he did a lifetime's work in a decade. "I was always accused of overdoing bits," he admits. "But I wanted to implant something so an audience would recognize it."

"I never touched religion or politics (except once, in a pre-Ford sketch about a campaigner who trips over TV cables). And I don't play blue." Which is why Sid Caesar doesn't play Las Vegas.

Classic comedy is the suite and originality is Caesar's key. When he suddenly breaks into a Mozart aria, segueing into Cole Porter via "Pop Goes the Weasel," you understand what Neil Simon meant when he said, "The first time I saw Sid it was like seeing a new country."

"The show was my whole life. On Sundays I'd get in the shower and stay there for an hour. Ah, that water feels good." (Caesar's den has just become a rain forest.) "I used to have dinner and not know what I was eating."

The viewers knew and thought it was all Beluga caviar. Imogene Coca, Reiner, Howard Morris and mostly Caesar performed unforgettable takeoffs on bebop jazzmen (Caesar's Progress Hornsby was a gem) and eminent movies ("Aggravation Boulevard," "From Here to Caesar," "From Here to Caesar").

The muscles are everywhere else intact. "Sid is one of the bulls of the world," says Reiner, explaining the man who once picked up a Volkswagen on a Chicago streetcorner. To maintain his bulk, Caesar swims and plays tennis "if someone invites me. I gave up golf. It's a ditch-digger's job. People take five hours now to play 18 holes."

The speed-thinker hasn't that kind of patient. Nor has he much to say about the medium he loves most. "I watch very little TV. The new Saturday Night show? I think they are — they are Not Ready for Prime Time Players. I'll watch Monty Python and think what field is he playing in now?"

There's no question about what field Sid Caesar would like to be playing in now, and always. A dozen years ago Caesar was asked what he'd been doing since leaving television. "Trying to get back on" was his answer. It would still apply. This bulge of fame in only one herd.

Documentary actors still struggling in new country

By LEE MARGUILES

MALIBU, Calif. — If "To America" had been a fictional series, its dismal Nielsen showing last week (65th out of 69 prime-time programs) probably would have sent CBS executives scurrying to cancel it. But "To America" was a documentary and low ratings or not, the touching story it told of two immigrant families struggling to make the United States their home continues.

For Jean-Ivan and Violette Dorin, professional entertainers who fled Bulgaria with their two children in December, 1974, the struggle is continuing in Los Angeles.

When last seen in the film, the Dorins were forging a life in New York City, getting by on the money Dorin brought home from driving a taxi seven days a week. There seemed to be little chance of him getting back into acting, which he had done for 14 years in his homeland, nor his wife returning to singing.

Since then, however, Dorin has been accepted at the film school at the University of Southern California where, beginning this fall, he plans to study directing. He has been given a scholarship and a federal grant to help pay for his education.

Despite this promising development, much of the hardship depicted in the documentary remains. Since arriving here July 30 following a month-long car trip, the four Dorins have been living in a tent at a Malibu campground — and thus were unable to see themselves in the Aug. 4 network telecast (although they had viewed the film previously). The money they scraped together to make the move is nearly gone, they are having trouble finding an apartment and Dorin needs a job he can handle in addition to his studies.

But these sorts of difficulties have plagued them throughout their year and a half in the United States, and Dorin is confident they will be resolved. He says his spirit has been bolstered tremendously by the opportunity to study film at USC, moving him that much closer to the time when he can express himself artistically again.

"Without art," he says, "everyday life is not meaningful."

Dorin is a ruggedly handsome man of 40. His accent is heavy but he has a good command of English. "I was very unhappy when I first came to America because I had to change drastically into another life-style," he said earlier this week at the USC campus. He had tried to land acting jobs in New York for a while but finally had given up and devoted his energy to cab driving.

"Right now I'm happy because I'm on the way back to my real life, to what I need," he said. For Dorin, that happiness transcends the day-to-day problems his family faces. Which is why he is concerned for Andrzej Bozek, the Polish refugee who was featured with the Dorins in "To America" and who would seem to be much better off than they are. He has a well-paying job with a construction company and owns a home in Fredericksburg, Tex., where he lives with a young son.

But he is not happy because the Polish government still has not granted permission for his wife and two other children to join him, said Dorin. The Bulgarian family visited Bozek for a few days on their trip west. Dorin said it was a sobering experience. Bozek has a good job and material goods but they mean little to him without his family. Five-year-old Alec was calling Violette "mother" after the Dorins had been there just a couple of days," he said.

"I would say everything is OK with me," Dorin reflected. "We have problems but they have other natures. Whether we live in a tent or not, it's OK — at least my wife is here, my children are here."

Watching "To America" on the home screen last week, one couldn't help wondering how the filmmakers could get so involved in the lives of these two families and not say, "Forget the movie, let's help them."

It turns out they did. Dorin said writer-producer-director Dewitt L. Sage Jr. and co-director Julian Krainin loaned him $1,000 to help finance the move to Los Angeles, and Sage has been very active in trying to get Bozek's family out of Poland, including talking to officials in Washington, D.C., and offering to sponsor them. So far his efforts have failed.

Dorin, for one, is glad they didn't abandon the film. "It's not important whether this film will help me personally or my family," he said, "but it will contribute to the destiny of everybody who is coming to America."

ABC to repeat split in convention coverage

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Well, that convention stuff starts again tonight. This time, it's the GOP congregation, meeting in Kansas City to nominate either President Ford or Ronald Reagan for president. ABC's look at the start of the Republican proceedings is scheduled to start at 7 p.m. EST. But its schedule also calls for 2 1/2 hours of baseball, starting at 7:30 p.m., then a live and taped view of the opening GOP ceremonies back in Kansas City.

ABC will also provide quick GOP recaps between the entertainment and says it'll stop the entertainment whenever it feels a breaking convention story requires live television coverage. ABC calls its mixture of abbreviated convention coverage and entertainment an alternative form of viewing for a nation offered gavel-to-gavel convention coverage by the two other networks.

The mixture worked well during the week of the extraordinarily dull Democratic convention. Then, boosted by an audience of nearly 18.9 million homes watching its July 13 All-Star baseball coverage, ABC emerged No. 1 in the week's average ratings for nightly shows.

ABC will show it live, gavel-to-gavel, starting at 7:30 p.m. EST tonight. ABC offers abbreviated taped and live coverage, plus entertainment, as has been its convention coverage since 1968.

On Thursday, closing night, ABC's schedule calls for a repeat of "Welcome Back Kotter," followed by a summer sitcom called "What's Happening," followed by what's happening in Kansas City.

UNLIKE MOST OF us, certain workers are not bothered by the heat this summer. An oil field drilling rig in the Arctic Circle, only a hundred miles from the earth's magnetic pole, drills for oil and gas in an ambitious exploration program in which Tenneco Inc. and other companies are participating. The sheave in the center is used to hoist drillpipe upright into the derrick, part of which frames this bleak and frigid scene.

Four explorations set in West Texas

Ward County drew two of four wildcat sites staked in West Texas today.

Cities Service Oil Co., operating from Midland, filed application to drill as a 13,300-foot wildcat, No. 1-21-18 University, 3/4 mile east of its No. 1-12-18 University, recently completed Wolfcamp strike.

The new project spots 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 21, block 18, ULS, 8 1/2 miles northwest of Pyote.

The discovery finalized last week for 960,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 12,471-12,758 feet.

Texland, Rector & Schumacher of Fort Worth intend to drill an 8,800-foot venture in Northeast Ward, two miles northwest of Monahans. It is No. 1-82 Sealy-Smith Foundation.

Location is 990 feet from north and 462 feet from east lines of section 82, block A, G&MMB&A survey.

PECOS SEARCHER American Trading & Production Co. (ATAPCO), Midland, filed application to drill No. 1 Reed-State, a 13,000-foot explorer for gas, in Pecos, 15 miles north of Fort Stockton.

Drill site is 1,650 feet from south and west lines of section 10, block 112, TCRB survey, three miles northeast of the Pecos (Devonian and Ellenburger) field.

CRANE PROJECT Monsanto Co. accounted for a 12,500-foot wildcat in Crane, 1 1/2 miles northeast of the McElroy, North (Silurian, Devonian and Ellenburger) field. It is No. 1 Kimsey-State.

Drill site is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 2, block 30, ULS, 10 miles north of Crane.

PECOS EXTENDER Morris Cannan, San Antonio, has completed No. 1-1 Coyanosa Unit as a 1/2-mile south extension to 10,475 Mississippi gas production in the Coyanosa field of Pecos County.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 20 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 10,794-10,870 feet. The pay had been treated with 6,000 gallons of acid.

Originally staked as a wildcat, it was amended to the above field. Total depth is 11,119 feet.

Location is 1,221 feet from north and 631.5 feet from west lines of section 53, block OW, TTRR survey, three miles south of Coyanosa townsite.

Two districts established Nickle named

FINDLAY, Ohio — Marathon Oil Co. has established new onshore and offshore exploration districts in its Houston Division, reports G. R. Schoonmaker, vice president-Production Exploration, U. S. and Canada.

E. F. McGee has been appointed manager of the new onshore exploration district which will be comprised of a major portion of Texas, the eastern half of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. McGee previously was manager of the now defunct Gulf Coast Exploration District.

B. K. Frazee has been named manager of the new Offshore Exploration District which will encompass the offshore areas of the Gulf and Atlantic coasts. Frazee had been supervisor of the former Gulf Coast Exploration District.

Two sectors completed

Wildcat sites have been staked in Garza and Scurry counties.

Victory III Petroleum Co. of Houston will drill No. 1 Connell, an 8,200-foot Ellenburger wildcat in Garza, seven miles southwest of the Ginger-ATAPCO (Ellenburger) field. Location is 2,100 feet from north and 800 feet from west lines of section 23, block 5, GH&H survey, 10 miles southeast of Post. It also is six miles northeast of Ellenburger production in the Rocker A field.

Western Reserves Oil Co., Midland, staked site for No. 1 Johnson as a 7,300-foot venture in Scurry, seven miles northeast of Snyder.

Location is 1,650 feet from north and 933 feet from west lines of section 236, block 2, H&TC survey, 1/2 mile south of the Tonto, Northeast (Cisco) field.

Ralph Nickle

The appointment of Ralph Nickle as Midland Division Manager has been announced by Dyna-Drill, a division of Smith International, Inc.

Nickle joined the firm in 1969 in Midland, and in 1974 he became the Northeast Division Field Engineer at Traverse City, Mich. He was promoted to Northeast Division Manager in 1975.

Louisiana well finals

NEW ORLEANS — Texaco Inc. has announced the completion of a gas-condensate well in the Caillou Island field of Terrebonne Parish, Louisiana.

The well, No. 619 State Lease 188, was reentered and drilled from 18,534 to 20,240 feet and completed from perforations at 20,114-20,150 feet from a sand zone.

The well produced, during testing, 6.4 million cubic feet of natural gas per day and 360 barrels of 44.5-gravity condensate, through a 10/64-inch choke.

The well is 40 miles southeast of Houma.

Engine presented

ODESSA — Odessa College has received a diesel engine from Cummins Sales and Service, Inc., of Odessa.

The 320-horsepower engine will be used in the diesel mechanics program at OC.

C. E. Troutz, area manager for Cummins, presented the unit to Charlie Payne, chairman of the program.

According to J. J. Hamm, Cummins sales representative, the engine is valued at $10,773.

API emissary says known domestic oil will last eight years

By JAN CARROLL

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The nation is in the middle of a serious energy crisis but doesn't realize it, a Houston petroleum geologist warned Friday.

"We have known domestic oil reserves to last us eight years," said Walter L. Erwin, a geologist for the Sun Oil Co. "While in 1971, we were importing 30 per cent of our oil, in 1976 we're importing about 42 per cent."

Erwin has been traveling across Indiana since the beginning of August as an emissary of Sun Oil and the American Petroleum Institute. He is trying to call attention to the need to expand offshore exploration for oil and natural gas.

"I'm here to make friends for the petroleum industry," Erwin said in an interview prior to a speech here. "I'm here to shake people up, so they realize how critical it is for us to develop new reserves."

American oil companies have developed only 3 per cent of the outer continental shelf, including portions of Cook Inlet in Alaska, the Gulf of Mexico, and offshore areas of the east and west coasts, Erwin said.

"Yet that 3 per cent has yielded 17 per cent of the domestic produced oil and natural gas," he said. "The near term, large reserves are here. But the barriers are price controls, unnecessary governmental regulations and environmental delays."

He called on Congress to remove controls on the price of natural gas and oil to generate enough funds for exploration.

"The oil industry would have to spend over a total of $400 billion in the search for oil and natural gas reserves to reach the goal of energy independence by 1985," he said. "This doesn't include the transportation and refining expense, which would take another $370 billion for the 10-year period."

He conceded that the public is suspicious of oil companies because of increases in gasoline prices.

"That's why I'm here. We didn't connive with the Arabs. We were not the fault of the price increase," he said. "Prior to the embargo, we were getting foreign oil for about $2.50 a barrel. After the embargo, it went up to about $12 a barrel. How can you continue to sell gas at 25 cents a gallon when your costs have gone up that much?"

And unless the United States develops additional reserves, Erwin warned the nation will be vulnerable to another embargo.

"We're talking about an economic catastrophe, with millions out of work," he said. "The American consumer, he's the one who's going to get it in the neck."

Oil show to honor drilling firm head

ODESSA — The 1976 Permian Basin Oil Show honoree is Robert Parker of Tulsa, chairman of the board of directors of Parker Drilling Co.

This is the first year in the history of the show that a member of the drilling profession has been selected as the honoree.

Parker will be honored in special ceremonies at noon Oct. 22 in front of the main gates of the show at the Ector County Coliseum grounds.

The ceremony will open the oil show to the general public.

Parker is head of one of the nation's largest drilling companies. He started his career with the company as a roughneck on a rig in Mississippi.

Parker was born at Tulsa and was graduated from Culver Military Academy and The University of Texas at Austin with a B.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering.

In 1969, he received the Distinguished Engineering Graduate Award from UT.

Parker currently is chairman of the Advisory Council of The University of Texas, is a former chairman of the board of the University of Tulsa, a trustee for John Brown University and was awarded a doctor of laws honorary degree from John Brown University in 1967.

Hill predicts energy bill to help in WT

An official of the Federal Energy Administration said in Midland this morning that no gas deregulation legislation would come from Congress during the remainder of this year.

John A. Hill, deputy administrator for the FEA, said he didn't believe energy would be a major campaign topic but that Congress is "a little nervous about the energy question and probably would not take up the gas question during the remainder of this year — an election year."

Hill said the President's signing of the energy bill Saturday would help the Permian Basin area, "particularly the withdrawing of stripper well production from all regulations."

Hill, a former Midlander, said the stripper well clause would bring more money into the Permian Basin which probably will be invested in the exploration program in the area.

"Stripper wells make up from 10 to 13 per cent of West Texas' total wells," Hill said, "and oil from these wells will reach the foreign oil price which is about $13.50 cents a barrel."

Hill pointed out that operators, through a recent Federal Power Commission ruling, can now charge $1.42 per thousand cubic feet in the state market, but "future court rulings may cause the companies to refund some of the charges."

Hill made his remarks at a press conference at Midland Regional Air Terminal before catching a plane to Hobbs, N. M., where he was the speaker for that city's annual Chamber of Commerce banquet.

The deputy administrator said that oil and gas will play a major roll in the energy picture the next 50 to 100 years.

"There will always be some oil to be found on earth, but the future in energy will be nuclear and solar sources. But the transition to nuclear energy will be slow, and that source eventually will be replaced by solar energy."

"It took 75 years for the transition from wood to coal and another 75 years from coal to petroleum. The transition to nuclear energy will take at least that long," Hill said.

Looking further into the future, Hill said tidal energy will play a big part, "but that is a long way off."

Hill said the Permian Basin could expect a continued rejuvenation in oil drilling operations, but the gas projects "are going to be developed at a slower pace because of the current and expected court cases to determine the eventual price for gas."

Hill said there would be continued oil and gas finds in the lower 48 states, but that the major discoveries yet to come will be in the outer Continental Shelf, the Gulf Coast areas and in the Alaska region.

"It is hard to realize just how much oil there is in the Arctic region," Hill said.

Two strikes get ventures

Discoveries have been completed by Skelly Oil Co. in Ward and Dawson counties, and the same firm finalized a confirmation well in a Pecos field.

Skelly No. 2-9-18 University, Ward County Atoka strike, nine miles northwest of Pyote, finalized for a calculated, absolute open flow of 3,431 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 13,839-14,978 feet.

The pay zone had been acidized with 3,500 gallons.

Drilled to 15,043 feet, it has a 7 1/4-inch liner hung to the bottom.

Location is 1,320 feet from south and west lines of section 9, block 18, ULS, nine miles northwest of Pyote.

DAWSON STRIKE

Skelly Oil Co. has completed its No. 1 H. J. Wright as a Fusselman pay opener in Dawson County, one location north of a depleted Fusselman oil discovery.

It was finalized to flow 768 barrels of 42.8-gravity oil on 24-hour potential test, with gas-oil ratio measuring 22-1, through a 24-64-inch choke and from open hole at 11,612-11,660 feet.

Well site is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 43, block 35, T-5-N, T&P survey, six miles south of Lamesa.

PECOS CONFIRMATION

Skelly also completed No. 2-66 Slaughter as a second Pennsylvanian detrital gasser and location east extension to that pay in the Yucca Butte, West field of Pecos, 11 miles west of Sheffield.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 2,662 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, producing through perforations at 8,752-8,770 feet.

Location is 810 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 66, block A-2, TCRB survey.

The discovery, Skelly No. 1-66 Slaughter, finalized in March, 1973, for 3,568 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 8,796-8,816 feet.

Spencer honored

MCCAMEY — David Spencer, an employee of Shell Oil Co. in McCamey, has been honored as an Outstanding Young Man of America.

McCamey Mayor Raymond McCann submitted Spencer's name as a nominee.

A resident of McCamey since June 1971, Spencer is a member of the Optimist Club and the Jaycees, is a vice president of the board of directors for the Upton-Reagan Center and participated in the city's Operation Pride and its 50th Anniversary celebration in 1975.

Tillman promoted

DALLAS — Texas Oil & Gas Corp. has promoted Stephen G. Tillman to district production manager for the Southeast District Office at Houston.

He has been associated with Texas Oil & Gas two years and holds a bachelor of science degree in Petroleum Engineering from Texas A&M University. He formerly was district production engineer in Houston.

Hughes estate pact reported

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A secret agreement to distribute the estate of the late HOWARD Hughes between opposing factions of the Hughes family has been put together by attorneys, according to a newspaper report.

The Philadelphia Inquirer said Sunday the estate would be distributed on a fixed percentage to 19 heirs, including 16 first cousins on Hughes' mother's side and three first cousins on his father's side.

"Well, I can tell you that an agreement has been reached," said Keith A. Pursel, a Los Angeles lawyer representing three heirs on Hughes' father's side. "But I don't think I should go into any details at this time."

The article said that according to one report, the agreement would distribute about 75 per cent of Hughes' estate to the 16 maternal heirs and the remainder to the paternal heirs, assuming that no valid will is found.

So far, more than three dozen purported Hughes' wills have turned up.

The inquirer also reported that attorneys are trying to keep law enforcement authorities from seeing the autopsy report on Hughes, who died aboard an airplane en route from Acapulco to Houston on April 5. He was 70.

It said the autopsy report was important to determine whether there was any criminal neglect involved in Hughes' death and to determine whether Hughes had been mentally incompetent for any length of time.

A court order would be necessary before the Hughes' estate, which the inquirer estimated at from $600 million to $1 billion, could be distributed, the newspaper said.

It also said that even if the estate were to be distributed, the recipients could not immediately liquidate it because almost all of the estate consists of stock in Hughes' wholly-owned Summa Corp.

The Summa stock is under control of a Delaware state court which is adjudicating a long-standing legal battle between Trans World Airlines and Hughes, the paper reported.

First ballot triumph not critical to Ford

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If President Ford fails to win the GOP presidential nomination on the first ballot, he will lose between four and 15 votes to Ronald Reagan, but that switch might not decide the nomination battle, according to the Associated Press delegate survey.

As Ford crept within a few votes, at least for now, of a first-ballot victory, the chances for a second ballot increasingly depended on some fight shaking delegates away from current loyalties or on a breakthrough among uncommitted delegates.

On a second ballot, however, the key states would be North Carolina, Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan. Those states require their delegates to vote in accordance with state primary results for one ballot, but the delegates could vote their personal preferences on a second ballot.

Ford's backers maintain they can offset most of Reagan's expected second-ballot gains, but a vote Sunday in Ford's home state Michigan delegation casts doubt on those claims, reinforcing the results of the AP delegate survey.

Even with such changes on a second ballot, the key to the GOP nomination would well remain with the uncommitted delegates, who are unlettered by state laws in choosing their candidate.

The uncommitted delegates numbered 105 today. Ford had 1,117 delegates, Reagan 1,036 and Sen. James L. Buckley of New York had one in the quest for the 1,130 needed for the nomination.

It was impossible to measure fully the impact on the uncommitted delegates of a failure to nominate a candidate on the first ballot.

Ford's chief delegate hunter, James A. Baker III, estimated Friday that the President would lose 5 to 8 votes on a second ballot, with gains in Michigan and Indiana mostly offsetting losses in the other two states.

Michigan delegates are bound to vote 55 for Ford and 29 for Reagan on the first ballot. At a caucus Sunday, the delegation rejected 55 to 28 a resolution favored by Reagan and opposed by Ford that would require Ford to name his running mate before the presidential balloting.

Reagan's big second ballot gain would be in North Carolina, which is supposed to cast 25 votes for Ford and 28 for Reagan on the first ballot, along with one uncommitted.

A survey of Tar Heel delegates shows that 50 actually favor Reagan, only two support Ford, and two are uncommitted.

Kentucky is supposed to be a Ford state 19 to 18 on the first ballot. But given the chance to vote their personal preferences on a second ballot, delegates say they would favor Reagan 24-8, with five uncommitted.

Ford's big state for second ballot gains is Indiana. Because Reagan won the Indiana primary, the first ballot vote is required to go to him 45-9. But a poll of the delegates shows 28 for Ford, 22 for Reagan and 4 undecided on a second ballot.

If these preferences hold, Reagan would gain at least five votes, plus whatever he could get from the 11 who indicate they are uncommitted on a second ballot preference. Ford would lose 15 votes but could recoup some if he picked up some of the second ballot uncommitted in these four states.

New study finds close cancer-estrogen link

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 12-year study of women who have taken estrogen pills has concluded that the hormone does not prevent breast cancer in menopausal women and may even cause the disease.

The results of the study "do not by themselves" prove a cause and effect relationship between the drug and cancer, but they do suggest "a definite possibility."

The study was done by the Harvard School of Public Health, the National Cancer Institute and the University of Louisville (Ky.) School of Medicine.

A report on its results is to be published by the New England Journal of Medicine on Thursday, but the Washington Post obtained a copy and published the findings in its Monday editions.

The report is based on followups of 8,801 women for an average of 12 years after they began taking estrogen.

American doctors have been prescribing estrogen for about 5 to 6 million middle-aged women to ease the pains of menopause. About 10 million younger women take estrogen in the form of birth-control pills.

Breast cancer will be detected in 89,000 American women and will cause 33,000 others to die this year, the American Cancer Society estimates.

The study turned up no reliable correlation between the length of time estrogen was used and the risk of breast cancer.

For about the first 12 years after a woman began taking estrogen pills the likelihood that breast cancer would be detected if it was present was about the same for users and nonusers of estrogen, the study said.

But after 15 or more years of estrogen use, the study found that the chances of breast cancer detection were two times normal, no matter how long during the period a woman had taken the drug.

There was no conclusive evidence of how much of a risk was involved for those women who used estrogen for a very short length of time, the study said.

Carter plays statesman while Republicans fight

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — As Republicans fight over who will be their presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter plays the statesman, saying he won't comment on the GOP convention until it's over.

The posture seems to fit the low profile Carter has kept since winning the Democratic nomination last month. He has given some private interviews, brought in experts for briefings on defense, economics and foreign policy, played some softball and taken few trips outside Georgia.

Carter did manage to get in some digs at the Republicans during a speech at a weekend Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Charleston, W.Va. Carter told the 3,000 persons at the Democratic dinner that the Ford administration "governs by veto."

He criticized vetoes against bills for public service jobs, a school lunch program and Vietnam veterans education.

"These vetoes don't help our nation's economy. They don't save money. They cause human suffering," he said.

In his speech, he also stressed safety in the Appalachian coal mines and one or two other issues that have appealed in West Virginia.

Today, as the GOP convention got under way, Carter's schedule in Plains included sessions with experts on Social Security, welfare reform, health, urban and rural life and education.

On Sunday, Carter sat in his usual pew at the town's Baptist church, spent time with his family and, through an aide, persuaded his pastor to let some women journalists into the all-male Bible class he sometimes teaches.

Coody leading rain-plagued PGA golf

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Pro golfers raised a clamor for a firm rain policy as the 58th PGA Championship went into a fifth-day overtime today with former Masters champion Charles Coody holding a two-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus and the unsung golfing optometrist, Dr. Gil Morgan.

"I have always thought that once a guy hits a shot in a tournament, that shot should count no matter what the circumstances," insisted the 39-year-old Coody, whose two-day, rain-interrupted 67 for the third round put him in command position with a 207—three under par.

"I always have felt that if there was just one man left on the course the entire round should be replayed," argued Arnold Palmer. "That is the purist's view, but I have to admit that television and other things have to be taken into account."

"I am not arguing either way," said Tom Weiskopf. "All I am saying is that we should have a firm policy. We shouldn't have to sit around and sweat it out. There shouldn't be arbitrary decisions varying with each tournement."

Ed Sneed, who had completed Sunday's round only to learn he had to report to the first tee and do it all over again, was distressed. "I agree with Coody," he said. "Once a shot is made, no one should be allowed to erase it."

It is an argument that is bound to continue to boil—among golf officials, television brass and spectators as well as players—long after the $45,000 first prize in this tournament has been decided.

Nobody knows when that might be.

More thundershowers were forecast today, with the first teoff scheduled at 9:30 a.m., EDT, and the leaders were closely bunched enough to make an 18-hole playoff appear likely.

Coody was heading for the 14th tee when a crackling thunderstorm, with winds and drenching rain, struck the Congressional Country Club course late Saturday. He was one of the 24 leaders who had to get up at daybreak Saturday to complete the third round, which was washed out by a similar cloudburst.

Coody, making an early morning return to the course, sank a 10-foot putt on the final hole for his 67 and a two-shot lead over Nicklaus and Morgan. Nicklaus, the defending champion, nailed his approach shot three feet from the cup on the 18th for a 69. Morgan, finished bogey-bogey for a 75.

This left Nicklaus and Morgan tied at 209 with the 46-year-old Don January alone at 210, followed by a formidable fivesome including Masters winner Ray Floyd, South Africa's Gary Player, Dave Graham of Australia, Dave Stockton and Tom Kite, tied at 211.

Nicklaus had just birdied the third hole with a 20-foot putt when the newest storm hit Sunday, forcing the PGA to cancel the day's proceedings and—unlike the day before when only a few rounds remained unplayed—order the field to start afresh on the fourth round today.

Only 19 of the 76 survivors had posted complete rounds before the storm hit. One of them was Miller Barber, who shot a 75 for 297 and reportedly caught the first plane out of town. Officials said this could only be confirmed when Miller's name is called at the first tee today.

Rush powers Diablos to win over Midland Cubs

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

For a man that has been in a batting slump recently, El Paso's Lawrence Rush sure carried some potent timber to the plate Sunday at Cubs Stadium.

Rush singled, doubled, tripled and homered in five trips to the plate and knocked in six runs as the Texas League's West Division leaders belted the Midland Cubs, 12-3.

That's called hitting for the circuit in case you didn't know, and the Cubs would just as soon forget the fact that Rush even had a chance to do it.

Rush, who was hitting about 50 points below the .302 team average of the Diablos, tripled in the third to drive in two runs, which gave El Paso all the margin they needed to insure themselves of remaining one game ahead of Amarillo in the West.

Rush drove in another run in the sixth with a single, but his double in the eighth did not cause any damage.

THE RIGHTHANDED swinger still had to have a home run in the ninth to accomplish the rare feat, and he should have never gotten to the plate.

With two out, Rush was still two batters away from making a plate appearance, but Marty Friedman doubled to left center and Orlando Ramirez was safe on a throwing error by Cubs third baseman Mike Umfleet.

That gave Rush his chance, and he lined a 1-1 pitch over the left field fence off Cubs pitcher Jim Kremmel.

Rush provided enough attack to win the game, but unfortunately, Friedman, Ramirez and Terry Stuppy each came up with two hits. Ramirez drove in three runs, and the Diablos had a cake walk while the Cubs suffered through their sixth setback in the last seven games.

THE CUBS gave starter George Riley (1-3) a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Jose Ortiz singled and later scored on an error by second baseball player Mike Umfleet. El Paso's three in third, the start of Rush's rush, put the Cubs behind for good. Riley was chased in the fourth as the Diablos scored three more times as Ramirez drove in two runs with a key single.

The Cubs tallied in the third on a run scoring single by Ed Putman, and again in the sixth on Umfleet's key hit.

El Paso got an unearned run in the sixth off Bernie Beckman, and Kremmel suffered through a five-run barrage in the eighth and ninth. Four runs were unearned, however.

CUB BRIEFS: Midland will have a tough time breaking their current losing streak tonight at 7:30 when they face one of the Texas League's top hurlers, righthander John Caneira (13-2). Asked if he was an Angels bonus baby, Caneira quickly replied, "No. I spent everything I got at McDonald's, and still had to ask for change to complete the bill."

Today's game is Dairy Queen Bonus Night. The Cubs will have to face lefty Bob Nolan (12-3) Tuesday. The Chicago Cubs official photographer, Barney Sterling, is with the Midland Cubs this week.

Skinner sets only swim record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jonty Skinner, the new world record holder in the 100-meter freestyle, always had the fantasies that all swimmers get. He simply improved on his.

"I'd be in bed and I'd lie there," the 22-year-old South African said. "I'd dream. 'All you have to do is go out in 24.3 and come back in 25.6.' I just went out a little faster."

The University of Alabama senior, who has been living in this country on a student visa for three years, swam the distance in 49.34 seconds.

smashing Jim Montgomery's existing mark of 49.99.

Those two are the only swimmers in the world who have gone 100 meters in less than 50 seconds. Skinner did it twice Saturday at the AAU National Swimming Championships here.

Just over an hour after breaking the record, Skinner swam a 49.81 on the first leg of the 400-meter relay.

"He sure proved it wasn't a fluke," said Bill Palmer, Skinner's coach at Central Jersey Aquatics.

Skinner's mark was the only world record set at the four-day outdoor long course championships at Kelly Pool. However, nine championship and two club marks fell.

The 50-second barrier in the 100 had long been considered unreachable until Montgomery did a 49.99 in winning a gold medal at the Olympics.

Montgomery's previous world mark was 50.59, set at the AAU's a year ago.

"Somebody up there said the kid was going to do it," the 6-foot-5, 185-pound Skinner said after smashing the mark. "It was just meant to be. Everything just came together."

Skinner's first leg in the 50-meter pool was 23.83 seconds. "I knew it was good

Midland girls capture state

SWEETWATER — Midland Gold swept two games from the Snyder All-Stars in the finals of the Minor Miss Softball America State Tourney Sunday afternoon.

Midland had lost to Dallas, 14-5, in the opening round, but came back to whip Abilene 17-5 and then nudged Dallas, 4-3 and then whipped Snyder 21-1 and 17-5 to win the coveted state crown.

With the state championship by the Gold team, that gives the city of Midland three state championships. The Midland Major and Seniors teams also won state titles last week.

Janice Littlefield was the winning pitcher for Midland in the first game while Robin Bailey was the winner in the second and deciding game.

Susan McGaha ripped two triples and a home run for the Tall City team in the finals. Miss Littlefield and Tina DeLong of Midland, were named to the all-tourney team.

Volleyball tryouts set for Midland Lee

Berrys nab crown

Shayne and John Berry recorded a low gross score of 294 Sunday to win the 13-year-old and above Division of the Father-Son golf tournament at the Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Greg and Wayne Lutke placed second with a 311 while third went to Jeff and Lynn Lott with a 315.

Cherokee and Joe Sloan won the low net prize with a 284 while Greg and Dick Robinson recorded a 285 for second. Lloyd and Jerry Mills place third with a 286.

In the 12-year and under Division, Reese and Al Boudreaux won top honors in the low gross run while Todd and Wayne Achee placed second and Russ and Bill Owens third.

Kelly and Dave Cook won low net honors with Mike and Frank Alvarado second. Jeff and Gene Grimes placed third.

Are imposters in Dallas?

DALLAS (AP) — Who are these imposters in blue and white with stars on their helmets passing themselves off as the team which played in Super Bowl X?

The Dallas Cowboys? Surely the Dallas Cowboys wouldn't be 6-3 in the National Football League preseason and playing like a band of nomads who were just introduced.

Denver didn't allow a touchdown in a 13-9 victory Saturday night. This is the wide-open, high-octane Cowboy offense?

Denver defensive lineman Lyle Alzado said Dallas' performance Saturday night didn't fool him.

"The exhibition season is the time to get coordinated, finding out about people," said Alzado. "What happened to them (Dallas) in the preseason last year? They were 2-4 then turned around and went to the Super Bowl."

Denver is now 2-2 and Alzado lectures, "The Denver fans have been on our case because we've been losing. But after all, it is exhibition season."

Cowboy middle linebacker Lee Roy Jordan said there wasn't any panic in the Dallas camp.

"We're not as far along as I would hope, but we're playing a lot of young players and making mistakes," he said.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said of the winless start "I'm not surprised...especially when you are playing as many first and second year players as we have."

Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach said, "We're very close to putting it all together. I think we're going to have a tremendous offense this year. We have all the ingredients and we just have to put it together."

Blalock posts sudden-death playoff win

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Oglebay Park's Speidel golf course is one of the toughest stops for the nation's top lady golfers and this year the weather made the 6,400-yard par 72 course even tougher. But the pros didn't seem to mind it.

Jane Blalock, who came three shots off the pace Sunday to dead-end an equally fastclosing Pat Bradley and then win on the first hole of a sudden death playoff.

An early-morning downpour drenched the course. "This course is one of the most competitive we play on all year," Miss Blalock said after she was presented with her $7,000 check.

Miss Bradley, who lost her second playoff of three during her LPGA career, agreed. "This is one of the finest courses we play all year," the third year Massachusetts pro said.

Miss Blalock's winning one-over par total of 217 was the highest of the tournament's three-year history. Carole Jo Skala, the 1974 winner, and 1975 champion Susie McAllister posted winning totals of even par 216.

Miss Blalock and Miss Bradley rallied during Sunday's rain-and-fog-plagued round to produce the playoff. Miss Blalock was three shots off the second round pace of co-leaders Laura Baugh and Sandra Post.

Miss Bradley was even further back, coming from six shots back with the only subpar round of the day, a twounder 70.

"The rain really didn't bother me," Miss Bradley said. "I got my adrenalin going and I was more concerned about playing well than the weather."

The one-hole playoff seemingly was headed for another hole after Miss Blalock—whose tricky five-foot birdie putt on 18 forced the tie—had scored a routine par on the par-4, 365-yard first hole. And Miss Bradley was faced with only a three-foot tap-in for her par.

But the ball mysteriously rolled around the cup and trickled out, leaving Miss Bradley and most of the large gallery standing surprised and Miss Blalock a stunned victor.
