Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, in a group of Democratic party leaders, waves from the back platform of a train in New York today before the start of a three-state whistlestop campaign tour.

Republicans take issue with Carter tax views

By DICK BARNES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter's views on tax reform are being assailed by Republicans and loom as a potential centerpiece of his debate Thursday with President Ford.

Carter discussed tax revisions in an interview with The Associated Press released Saturday. In a fresh statement of his intent Sunday, he said the purpose of tax reform should be to shift the burden to those with higher incomes and away from poor and middle-income families.

Republicans, particularly vice presidential nominee Sen. Robert Dole, immediately asserted that Carter means to increase taxes for anyone making more than $12,000 to $14,000 a year, and termed his original statement a major campaign blunder.

But Carter replied Sunday that "the interpretation of what I said by Mr. Ford and Mr. Dole and the Republican spokesmen is certainly completely distorted." He said he had no quarrel with the AP accounts of his statements. They "are very accurate," he said.

Waving a four-volume copy of the U.S. tax code, Carter promised a St. Louis audience that as president "I'm not going to add a tax burden on working families and the medium income categories, $15,000 income."

The tax controversy arose from Carter's responses, as follows, after he was asked at the AP interview what he meant when he said he would shift the tax burden.

A. That means people who have a higher income would pay more taxes at a certain level.

Q. In dollar figures, what are you thinking of as higher?

A. I don't know. I would take the mean or median level of income and anything above that would be higher and anything below that would be lower.

Q. The median family income today is somewhere around $12,000. Somebody earning $15,000 a year is not what people commonly think of as rich....

A. I understand. I can't answer that question because I haven't gone into it. I don't know how to write the tax code now in specific terms. It is just not possible to do that on a campaign trail....

Carter said the aim of his program would not be to either raise or lower government revenues over-all.

"The over-all effect would be to shift a substantial increase towards those who have the higher incomes and reduce the income (tax) on the lower and middle income taxpayers," Carter said.

In a partial transcript of the interview, transmitted on AP wires Saturday for use in Monday afternoon newspapers, the words "and middle income" were dropped because of a transcribing error. After the controversy arose, a tape recording of the interview was reviewed and the omission was corrected.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen and William Greener, chief spokesman for Ford's campaign committee, said the Republican attack on Carter's tax comments was not affected by the transcript correction.

Dole interpreted Carter's statements as meaning the Democratic nominee wants to "raise taxes for half the American families."

After Carter accused Dole and other Republicans of distortion, Dole responded Sunday night in Florida with a denial, contending Carter is "on the hook now and he's going to try to wiggle off."

Dole said Carter "should drop out of the race" if he does not have a better understanding of the American economic system than Dole claimed Carter has demonstrated.

The Kansas senator told The AP in an interview that Carter has "got a real blunder on his hands and it's probably going to be the major topic in the first debate, or should be the major topic." Domestic and economic issues are scheduled as the subjects of the first debate.

In any event, Congress must approve tax law changes.

Carter said in his interview with AP

Midland College, but they tell me as soon as you graduate from one of those courses you just want to be a wildcat and Oestexas journalism needs me.)

I made a mistake in an early column about "Santa Rita No. 1," the discovery well of the Permian Field near Big Lake, Ford said, when I referred to the huge "rocker arm" still rocking half a century later. It's called a "walking beam," and it's attached to the "grasshopper" (the shorter piston-like arm) by the "pitman."

Interestingly enough, many of the terms in the oil patch were adapted from the steamboat days on the Ohio River, whose technology for moving barges on liquid proved useful in moving liquid from the earth, says Chapman, who has moved lots of liquid in more than half a century in the oil patch.

The "horse head" is the horse head-shaped structure at the end of the walking beam, the "saddle bearing" is the fulcrum point of the beam, and the "headache post" is the shorter upright in front of the "samson post" which bears the weight of the beam and its burden of oil.

Now, the half-dozen readers in the Permian Basin who knew less than I did about the technology that has built all those skyscrapers in Midland know as much as I do.

But any such benighted sharers in the bounty of the Basin may join me in the best "crash course" available

Kissinger's mission said 'breakthrough'

Agence France-Presse

LUSAKA, Zambia — American Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived here today and said he would report to Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda "considerable progress" in Kissinger's weekend talks in South Africa.

"I brought to South Africa the considerations that had been developed in consultation with the presidents of black Africa and with the United Kingdom," Kissinger said. "I believe that considerable progress has been made towards these objectives."

"I shall now present these conclusions — or the point we have reached — to President Kaunda to see what further steps will be taken."

Kissinger, who was met at Lusaka airport by Home Minister Aaron Milner, also planned an evening round of talks here with Kaunda.

Following Kissinger's weekend talks with Premier John Vorster of South Africa and Rhodesian leader Ian Smith, sources said it was likely Kissinger would meet with black nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo of Rhodesia, and Namibian representatives of the South West African People's Organization (SWAPO).

Kissinger was to spend the night in Lusaka before moving on Tuesday to the Tanzanian capital of Dar Es Salaam for his second session there with President Julius Nyerere.

Most South African newspapers today hailed Kissinger's visit as a "breakthrough" to peace in southern Africa.

The Rand Daily Mail carried the headline "Dr. K. Is hopeful," while the ruling Nationalist party's paper Beeld said, "breakthrough to peace."

Only the World, which circulates chiefly in the African townships around Johannesburg and Pretoria, was pessimistic.

In an editorial it said: "Somehow we doubt the ability of both the South African Prime Minister Mr. (John) Vorster and Mr. Ian Smith, his Rhodesian counterpart, to fully appreciate the urgency of the situation."

The paper said it could understand Kissinger's predicament as he worked against time to "avoid the bloody confrontation" southern Africa was heading for.

But it added: "We cannot but feel a certain pessimism about his chances of success."

Beeld said: "Last night's historic tripartite meeting between Dr. Kissinger, Mr. Vorster and Mr. Smith, which resulted in the almost unbelievably good news that a way has been cut through for Rhodesia, has once again accentuated the prominent position southern Africa holds in world politics."

The Afrikaans language Die Transvaler observed more cautiously that "only the groundwork has been set in place for an acceptable solution to the Rhodesian issue."

Moderates chalk win in Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A coalition of three moderate parties ended 44 years of Socialist government in Sweden today with a national election victory that may also set back leftist parties elsewhere in Western Europe. Stocks in Sweden spurred upward on news of the moderate victory, which was interpreted as encouragement for private investment.

Prime Minister Olof Palme scheduled a meeting late this afternoon with his cabinet and said "We'll resign very soon." The new prime minister will be Thorbjorn Falldin, the 50-year-old head of the Center party.

With only 50,000 to 60,000 postal ballots still to be counted, the coalition of the Center, Conservative and Liberal parties had 50.7 per cent of the 5,359,921 ballots counted and 180 seats in the 349-seat parliament. Palme's Social Democrats and their Communist supporters had 47.6 per cent and 169 seats.

Although the victorious coalition is likely to improve relations with the United States after the seven prickly years in which Olof Palme was prime minister, all three parties are committed to Sweden's traditional neutral foreign policy and to the welfare state that Palme's Social Democratic party built up.

Turk air crash takes 155 lives

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Rescue workers set to the grim task today of separating the remains of 155 bodies from the wreckage of a Turkish jetliner that crashed and burned on a mountainside in central Turkey Sunday night.

Police said there were no survivors among the 147 passengers and eight crew members on board. Police and airline sources said the passengers included 85 Italians and 18 West Germans bound for vacations on the southwest coast of Turkey and 22 Turks.

The nationalities of the other passengers were not known yet.

The Turkish airline at first reported there were six crew members aboard. Later it said there were seven, and today it announced there were eight.

The wreckage of the three-jet Boeing 727 and the bodies were spread over a large area, local police said.

"Unfortunately, bodies are torn into pieces and identification is difficult," said the police chief of Isparta, a town near the crash site.

The plane crashed into the mountain at an altitude of 3,700 feet. But Turkey's communications minister said the plane might have exploded in the air.

Persons in Isparta, seven miles away, said they heard a loud explosion.

"First I saw a flaming red cloud, then I heard a deafening explosion," reported one person in the town.

The jetliner was flying from Milan to Antalya, a Mediterranean resort on the southwest coast. It made stops en route in Rome and Istanbul and crashed about 75 miles short of its destination.

The burning wreckage caused a fire in the wooded area that kept rescue workers from reaching the wreckage for two hours.

The crash was the worst to occur inside Turkey's borders, but a Turkish airliner was also involved in the worst crash in aviation history. It was a DC10 that crashed near Paris in March 1974, killing all 346 persons on board.

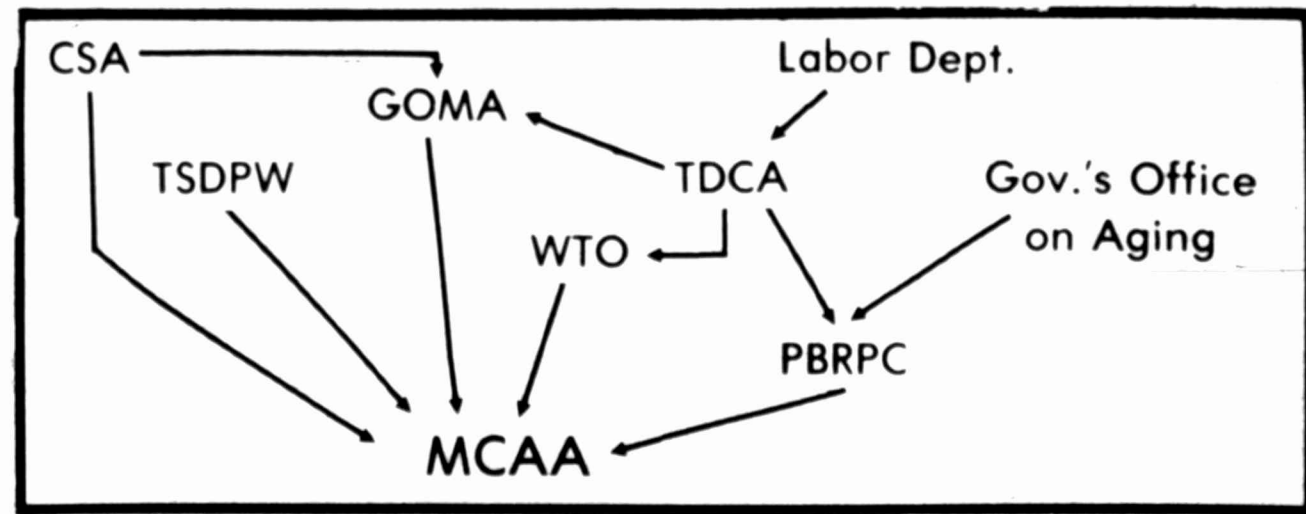

Chart shows identifiable channels of federal and state money to MCAA.

MCAA uses many grants

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Midland Community Action Agency has been in operation since 1966. During the ensuing 10 years, it received little public attention until events of recent weeks indicated the agency was having problems.

This series of articles examines the functions, operations and problems of the agency.

By SAM RENNICK

An annual allocation of $33,000 from the Community Services Administration (CSA) in Washington is the Midland Community Action Agency's (MCAA) basic grant. It is not, however, its only one.

Adeline Rieger, at CSA, told The Reporter-Telegram the agency did not receive funds from CSA to run a summer recreation youth program this summer. But she added such a program might be funded by either of two Austin offices, the Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA) or the Governor's Office on Migrant Affairs (GOMA).

MCAA did run a summer recreation youth program, funded by TDCA through West Texas Opportunities

(WTO) in Lamesa. It also ran a summer work youth program (not the same thing as a recreation program), funded by GOMA, and a manpower special summer training program, funded by TDCA through the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission (PBRPC).

The Midland Community Action Agency receives funds from a number of sources linked in an intricate network.

All the grants are contracts, said Leland Ammons of the Dallas office of the Community Services Administration. Money is almost always sent on a reimbursement basis, meaning money is spent before it is sent. Vouchers and invoices detailing expenditures are submitted to the funding body, and the agency is reimbursed.

There are exceptions to the reimbursement policy. Chuck Doremus of TDCA said programs like a recreation program, which requires equipment, receive money first, rather than on a quarterly reimbursement basis. But reimbursement is the norm.

The principal grant, that which runs MCAA, is the CSA $33,000. It comes annually in four $8,250 installments. (The fiscal year runs from April 1 to March 31.) The CSA is successor to the Office of Economic Opportunity and is not, Ammons said, part of HEW.

The CSA grant requires a 25 per cent non-federal share match. This requirement can be satisfied by in-kind contributions. "Rooms, the gymnasium and auditorium furnished by Midland Independent School District seem adequate to fulfill this requirement," Andrew Reed, CPA, wrote in his fiscal 1974 audit.

Reed also said grants often have an audit clause, with monies set aside. He said he believes the state audits its own programs, that only the federal grants require an independent audit.

Reed's audit included the CSA $33,000, a TDCA-WTO $2,911 and a $2,383 grant from GOMA.

A $10,000 supplementary grant from CSA was a one-time-only allocation, said Carol Burns, former MCAA director. It came in fiscal 1975.

The grants allocated from the Governor's Office on Migrant Affairs, in Austin, total $70,674 since Oct. 1,

1974. These funds are sent on a reimbursement basis, said Sergio Martinez, deputy director of GOMA. "A sum is allocated," he said, "but reimbursement is the policy."

The former, said Doremus, deals in "software" programs such as drugs and manpower; the latter, in "hardware," such as housing and urban services. Beneath each branch are divisions. Grants of $8,947 and $1,096, allocated to MCAA through WTO, came out of the Human Services Delivery System (HSDS) of the Human Resources Branch.

A grant of $4,528 was allocated to MCAA through PBRPC from the Governor's Office on Aging and is Title Three money. This money is sent on a reimbursement basis.

A $500 per month grant, running from Nov. 15, 1975 to the end of last month, was from the Texas State Department of Public Welfare (TSDPW).

30 of 40 aboard injured as Amtrak train derailed

HAWKINS, Tex. (AP) — Four cars of an Amtrak passenger train derailed in a rainstorm today and tumbled down a 50-foot embankment, injuring slightly as many as 30 of the train's 40 occupants.

Everyone kept their head," he said. About 12 passengers were taken on stretchers to ambulances that could get only as close as a half a mile to the derailed cars, which were lying on their sides, Cooper said.

Midland Democrats to open downtown headquarters Tuesday

Peanuts and politics will be the order of the day Tuesday at the opening of Democratic Party headquarters at 115 E. Wall St., across from the new post office.

Opening ceremonies will get under way at noon, with District 25 committee man Ben Bock of New Braunfels and committee woman Mrs. Cumble Ivy of Robert Lee on hand for the events.

Both committees have been active in the party for many years. Bock having served on the State Democratic Committee, and Mrs. Ivy as precinct chairman, county chairman, state chairman and now Texas Democratic County Chairman Association director.

Items available at the ceremonies will be barrels of peanuts, peanut butter sandwiches and cookies, drinks, music, door prizes and surprises.

Midland attorney Pat Baskin will serve as master of ceremonies.

Despite odds, new New York lottery flourishing

By CHARLES T. POWERS
The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — It is not true that New Yorkers will gamble on just anything. For example, only those with severely diminished faculties — or nothing to lose in the first place — will try to beat the odds against making a safe walk through Central Park after dark.

Perhaps because so much of the rest of life in the city provides such a mixture of random uncertainty and quick opportunity, a New Yorker comes naturally to a life of prospecting for the Main Chance, be it a hot tip from Hialeah or a short-sell on a downbound stock.

The latest longshot here is the possibility (about 26 million to one, actually) of winning $1,000 a week for life (or a minimum of $1 million; if you die, your relatives get the rest.) And all it costs you is $1.

That chance is the promise of New York state's new "instant lottery" game, which, in its first seven days of operation, took in almost $19 million — with 45 per cent of the take, about $8.8 million, going into the state's general revenue fund.

So far, from the point of view of both ticket buyers and state officials, the lottery has been a smashing success. "Beyond our wildest dreams," according to John D. Kuinn, the director of the lottery.

Ticket buyers have the chance of winning $2, $5, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000. Certain "jackpot" tickets will guarantee the holder $5,000, plus the chance to participate in a drawing that could win the grand prize of $1,000-a-week for life. In addition, the ticket stubs are stamped for different letters of the alphabet, and anyone able to collect letters spelling "New York" wins $2,500 in groceries.

When the tickets went on sale Sept. 8, normally calm cigar shops and magazine stands in the city were scenes of pandemonium, with people standing six-deep around cash registers waving fistfuls of money in the air. Some high rollers made purchases of 50 and 100 tickets at once, and normally conservative-spending secretaries on tight budgets were squandering their lunch money for the week in one coffee-break lunge at Easy Street.

The lottery has also represented a bonanza for ticket sellers, who make 6 cents on each ticket they sell.

"I have to go to the bank four times a day now," said Jack Rose, who operates a cigar and magazine stand in the lobby of a midtown office building.

"The women love it," Rose said. "It's just like a slot machine. Right away, you find out whether you won or lost."

The first day of the lottery, Rose sold 5,500 tickets. In the first week, he sold 25,000, making his cut $1,500.

Volume is tapering off slightly, Rose said. On Friday, his sales were down to about 4,000 tickets.

So far, the big problem in the lottery is that the state cannot print tickets fast enough to supply them to vendors.

"If I had more, I could sell more," Bob Jallad, operator of a cigarette stand on Amsterdam Ave., said.

James Nolan, lottery manager for

New York City, looked delighted in the 65th-floor offices at the World Trade Center, where winners come to redeem prizes of $100 or more. Mostly, Nolan spends his day watching a parade of lucky people.

But pressure has mounted in the last two days because of the ticket shortage.

"We put out 200,000 this morning," he said, "first-come, first-served. We ran out pretty quick. We're expecting some more in from Atlanta, where they are coded and printed, tomorrow. They'll go fast."

The present lottery is the replacement for one that was suspended last October by Gov. Hugh L. Carey because of widespread irregularities and mismanagement, including the printing of hundreds of duplicate tickets.

The present lottery was developed by Scientific Games, Inc., an Atlanta firm which has produced lotteries for 10 of the 13 states currently operating them. Representatives of the company say the lottery, controlled by a computer system, is virtually cheat-proof.

So far, only one case of ticket-tampering, attributed to a vendor in Buffalo, has been reported. The vendor's tickets were confiscated, his license revoked and his name turned over to the district attorney.

The goal for the lottery was to collect $60 million for the state treasury by March, 1977. According to lottery director Kuinn, the goal is easily within reach. All additional revenues from the lottery are to be earmarked for education.

Republicans assail Carter's tax views senior editors and reporters that he'll use his debate with Ford Thursday to try to convince American voters that he's not a radical.

Carter said he thinks the debate will "help to alleviate a lot of the concerns about me" by showing "that I am not a radical, that I am not completely ignorant about defense or foreign affairs, that I am a substantial person."

The Democratic presidential candidate said, however, that "unless President Ford or I make a serious mistake," the debates are likely to simply solidify candidate support and strengthen the commitments of voters who now are just leakers.

"President Ford is much better known than I am. He is much more predictable than I am. And I think the juxtaposition of myself with him in the debates will accrue to my own benefit if I do a good job in the debates — which I intend to do."

He said the first of the three scheduled debates should blunt the concern of some voters that he is deliberately fuzzy on issues. Forty-nine per cent of respondents to a recent Louis Harris poll agreed with the proposition that Carter "has ducked taking stands on issues to avoid offending anybody, and that is wrong." Only 34 per cent disagreed; the rest didn't answer.

Carter said he hadn't seen the poll, but he cited his own polls which he said show voters trust him more than Ford.

"I wish everybody had complete trust in me," he said, "and I believe that the debates will help to alleviate concern that has been pointed out."

Carter said voters should have no problem judging his tax program because "the principles that I have spelled out to you would in every instance convince the average American family that their taxes are going to be no higher, or perhaps even lower in some instances depending on their income, and that their taxes as levied will be fair."

Oilman tries to enlighten R-T columnist here or anywhere: at Chapman's pet project, the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum. Library and Hall of Fame, which is capable of showing any layman practically everything he ever wanted to know about the history, technology, and even economics of the oil patch.

(President Ford and I were fascinated—at different times, of course—by the electronic device that can make anybody a theoretical independent operator with a push of a button that "drills" an imaginary well and indicates the hundreds of thousands of dollars of mounting expenses before revealing whether you got a duster or a gusher. I punched it twice and got two dusters at a cost slightly less than the national debt.)

There's a fine geologically oriented petroleum museum in Vienna, Chapman says (so comprehensive he looked up samples from wells in the shadow of the Wilco Building). But nothing compares with the total impact and breadth of our own PBP.

Cool weather to stay awhile

General cloudiness in the Midland area should keep temperatures cool until a warming trend begins Tuesday.

Partly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures tonight are predicted by the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal, followed by partly cloudy skies and a little warmer temperatures Tuesday.

The low tonight should be in the mid-50s, with a high Tuesday in the upper 70s. Winds should be from the northeast at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

Most area city residents woke up to cooler temperatures this morning.

Crane reported cloudy skies with a slight breeze and "nippy" temperatures. Odessa was partly cloudy, cool and calm.

Andrews was clear with no wind. Lamesa was overcast, cool and calm. Stanton reported overcast skies and no wind.

Big Lake had a heavy dew early this morning and scattered clouds and no wind about 9 a.m. Rankin was cloudy with a damp light fog and no wind.

MCAA uses variety of grants

1974. These funds are sent on a reimbursement basis, said Sergio Martinez, deputy director of GOMA. "A sum is allocated," he said, "but reimbursement is the policy."

GOMA is a subcontractor of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, said Rogelio Perez, director of GOMA. Both GOMA and TDCA are delivery mechanisms; the governor is a prime sponsor.

Perez said a $16,291 summer work youth program comes under Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) Title Three. Roughly one-third of the $16,291 has been sent, he said. A $48,000 grant, under the CETA Title One Manpower Program, has been sent, Martinez said. This grant, unlike the $16,291, is not restricted to youth. A $6,383 grant came from CSA, Rieger said. It was the MCAA's share of a $465,000 grant from CSA to GOMA. The grant, running from Oct. 1, 1974 to March 31, 1976, may be the same as the $2,383 grant in Reed's audit, with $4,000 tacked on. In the audit, Reed noted the $2,383 covered the period from Oct. 1, 1974 to Sept. 31, 1975. Thus, it is possible the grant was extended and made larger.

Martinez said the governor's office is currently doing a study on migrant families. He also said the 1970 Census of the Texas Health Data Institute, the Juarez-Lincoln National Clearing House for migrant programs, the Good Neighbor Commission and the rural manpower section of the Texas Employment Commission draw up lists of migrant families in the state.

The grandmother of MCAA board member Joe Bustillos appeared on one list distributed by the agency. Bustillos said she was not a migrant.

Since Sept. 1, 1974, $25,590 has been allocated to MCAA from TDCA via West Texas Opportunities, Lamesa. TDCA has two branches, the Human Resource Branch and the Community Development Branch.

The former, said Doremus, deals in "software" programs such as drugs and manpower; the latter, in "hardware," such as housing and urban services. Beneath each branch are divisions. Grants of $8,947 and $1,096, allocated to MCAA through WTO, came out of the Human Services Delivery System (HSDS) of the Human Resources Branch. Grants of $6,452 and $6,184 came from the Economic Opportunity Division of the Community Development Branch.

$2,911 came under CAP grant number 61199, probably from the Community Development Branch.

The $6,184 was the Midland and Ector counties' share of $14,964 sent from TDCA to WTO, said Les Reddy, information director at TDCA. Janet Everhart, director of WTO, said both the $6,184 and $6,452 grants are contracts. The contracts, she said, specify "receipts must be sent for all expenditures."

A total of $29,531.77 has been allocated to MCAA since Sept. 22, 1975 from the Manpower Services Division of the Human Resources Branch of TDCA, through the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. This money is sent on a reimbursement basis, said Ernie Crawford, executive director at PBRPC. Money cannot be advanced. The planning commission subcontracts with MCAA, he said, and all grants are reviewed. Requests for reimbursement come on a monthly basis, and PBRPC takes care of three-fourths of the amount on the vouchers. The other fourth is handled by a local entity, such as Parks and Recreation. Revenue-sharing funds can't be used, Crawford said. The match comes through supervision, which qualifies as an in-kind contribution.

Willie Taylor, director of manpower at PBRPC, said a $16,470 grant falls under CETA Title Three and a $13,061 under CETA Title One on-the-job training.

A grant of $4,528 was allocated to MCAA through PBRPC from the Governor's Office on Aging and is Title Three money. This money is sent on a reimbursement basis. From vouchers submitted, MCAA has received $1,705.60 of the sum, said Bill Smith, director of the regional office on aging at PBRPC.

A $500 per month grant, running from Nov. 15, 1975 to the end of last month, was from the Texas State Department of Public Welfare (TSDPW). The grant is a standard provider contract, Bill Wagner, assistant director at TSDPW, said. He also said the grant does not require matching funds, only performance; it will be reviewed on the basis of performance, and need. (A new contract with TSDPW was approved by the MCAA board of directors at a meeting Sept. 13.)

30 of 40 aboard injured as Amtrak train derails

HAWKINS, Tex. (AP)—Four cars of an Amtrak passenger train derailed in a rainstorm today and tumbled down a 50-foot embankment, injuring slightly as many as 30 of the train's 40 occupants.

Wood County Deputy Sheriff Mickey Cooper said the injuries were mainly scratches and bruises, but all of the 35 passengers and five crewmen were taken by ambulances to area hospitals.

A spokesman for Mother Francis Hospital in Tyler said 15 persons were treated, and all but one had been released. An elderly woman complaining of chest pains remained for observation, he said.

At Medical Center in Tyler, a spokeswoman said 14 persons received medical treatment there. She said one or two persons might be kept for observation.

The train, consisting of an engine and five cars, was Amtrak's Inter-American en route from St. Louis, Mo., to Laredo, Tex.

The derailment occurred at 6:15 a.m. in a rural area half a mile from Hawkins in Northeast Texas.

Cooper said all the train's occupants were calm when he arrived at the scene. "Everyone kept their head," he said.

About 12 passengers were taken on stretchers to ambulances that could get only as close as a half a mile to the derailed cars, which were lying on their sides, Cooper said.

He said all passengers and crewmen were taken to hospitals as a precautionary measure.

Adult education class offered

ODESSA — Odessa College is sponsoring a special adult basic education class to help about 35 city employees meet certification requirements for some kinds of jobs at the water reclamation plant.

Classes will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays on the college campus.

A state requirement sets certain guidelines for a city employee to meet if he is to be certified to perform specific duties in the water reclamation plant.

Bell rate hike draws suspension

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Public Utilities Commission, as expected, suspended today the Oct. 7 effective date of a $298 million rate increase package requested by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The requested increase, which would have taken effect had the commission not acted, was put off for 120 days to enable the commission to hold public hearings and decide whether it was justified.

A Nov. 1 hearing date was set on the proposal, which would raise Bell's Texas revenues by some 18 per cent.

Commission chairman Garrett Morris told all parties, including numerous intervenors who wish to present full cases against the increase, that it would be in the public interest to keep their presentations as brief as possible.

He said that if the hearing runs as long as 30 days the commission would have only another 35 days in which to make up its mind. Otherwise, he said, Bell would be allowed to put the rates into effect, subject to future refunds, if the rates were disallowed or reduced by the commission.

"I don't think it is in the public interest for a rate of this magnitude to go into effect under bond without somebody having time to look at it and say if it is fair and reasonable," Morris said.

City attorneys speaking for Abilene, Midland, Odessa, Lubbock and Amarillo asked today for separate standings to protest local service rates proposed for their cities.

They said that Bell had made little investment in recent years for which higher rates would be necessary.

They objected to being lumped into a rate class with Galveston and other coastal cities where the telephone company had been forced to make heavy investments by hurricanes that had wiped out lines and other equipment.

Rep. Mahon to address ginnners group

LUBBOCK — U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock will address a luncheon at the annual meeting of the Plains Ginnners Association Saturday in Lubbock.

The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Lubbock Country Club, when Donald Johnson, executive vice president of the Plains Cotton Growers Inc. at Lubbock, will speak on new uses for High Plains cotton.

Pete Brown of Lubbock, Southwest area supervisor of the industry-wide organization, will review work of the National Cotton Council.

Tony Price of Dallas, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Ginnners Association, will discuss functions of government agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Officers also will be elected. Current officers include Bill McCasland of Wolforth, president; Joe Ellison of Sudan, vice president; and Dixon White of Lubbock, secretary. Bill Weaver of Lamesa is serving as one of 10 directors for the group.

Midland Democrats to open downtown headquarters Tuesday

Peanuts and politics will be the order of the day Tuesday at the opening of Democratic Party headquarters at 115 E. Wall St., across from the new post office.

Opening ceremonies will get under way at noon, with District 25 committee man Ben Bock of New Braunfels and committee woman Mrs. Cumble Ivy of Robert Lee on hand for the events.

Both committees have been active in the party for many years, Bock having served on the State Democratic Committee, and Mrs. Ivy as precinct chairman, county chairman, state chairman and now Texas Democratic County Chairman Association director.

Also expected to attend the headquarters opening are Mrs. Edna Jo Scott of Ward County, a retiring director of the state county chairman association; Glenn Day of Odessa, West Texas coordinator for the Jimmy Carter campaign; another representative of the Carter campaign, and at least 200 local persons, including all Democratic public officials and candidates, according to Vann Culp, Midland County Democratic chairman.

Items available at the ceremonies will be barrels of peanuts, peanut butter sandwiches and cookies, drinks, music, door prizes and surprises.

Midland attorney Pat Baskin will serve as master of ceremonies.

DEATHS

Preston Pirtle services set

Preston Pirtle, 75, of Tolar died Saturday night in a Granbury hospital after several years' illness.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Glenn Sargent, pastor of the Church of Christ of Stanton, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Pirtle was born Dec. 10, 1900, in Cleburne. He married Bessie Wilson in 1932 in Midland. He moved to Tucson, Ariz., and lived there 18 years. He had lived in Tolar one year. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include the widow of Tolar; three sons, Calvin Pirtle of Pomroy, Wash., Robert Pirtle of Pala Pinto and Carl Pirtle of Midland; a daughter, Mrs. E. E. Evans of Stephenville; two brothers, Carmel Pirtle of Midland and Jack Pirtle of Kilgore; two sisters, Mrs. Mae Chaney of Littlefield and Mrs. Mildred Douglas of Stanton; 16 grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Bill Pirtle and Thomas White Jr., both of Midland; Gene Douglas and W. A. Douglas, both of Stanton; Richard Walden of San Angelo, and David Chappell of Waxahachie.

Services were to be at 3 p.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Roy R. Havens, pastor of Asbury Methodist Church, officiating. Burial was to be in Fairview Cemetery.

Hughes was born May 30, 1890, in Alabama. He was reared in Franklin County and moved to Midland in 1942. He was employed by Borden's and Furr's Super Market. He retired about 15 years ago and was a member of Asbury Methodist Church.

Survivors include a brother, J. J. Hughes of Midland; a sister, Mrs. G. C. Smith of Gainville; three grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Harrison Bickley, Oran Nichols, T. I. Miller, Clyde Gwyn, A. C. Roberson and Charles Lynch.

Mrs. Howard dies at age 78

BIG SPRING — Mrs. Annie Ray Howard, 78, of Big Spring died Saturday afternoon in a Big Spring hospital.

Services were to be at 3 p.m. today in First United Methodist Church with burial in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Mrs. Howard was born Nov. 23, 1897, in Reins County, Miss. She came to Howard County in 1906 and married E. C. Howard in 1915 in Big Spring. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church, the Order of Eastern Star, Chapter 67, the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge 153, and the Modern Women's Forum.

Survivors include her husband; two sons, Bill Howard and John Howard, both of Big Spring; four daughters, Mrs. Geraldine Parrish and Mrs. Joyce Bradley, both of Big Spring, Mrs. Maxine Roberts of Westfield, Mass., and Mrs. Delores Bash of Lancaster, Ohio; two brothers, C. C. Wise of Midland and Lester Wise of Big Spring; a sister, Mrs. Myrtle Martin of Big Spring; four grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Joe Garcia dead at 67

Joe Gonzales Garcia died Sunday morning in a Midland hospital at the age of 67.

Rosary will be conducted at 8 p.m. tonight in the Thomas Funeral Home Chapel. Burial will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday in Fairview Cemetery through the Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

The Texas native was born on Aug. 5, 1909. He was a Midland resident for two and one-half years, having moved here from Seminole.

Garcia is survived by his father, Juan Garcia Sr. of Beeville; four sons, Alfred Garcia, and Oscar Garcia, both of Midland, Joe Garcia Jr. of Hobbs, N.M. and Robert Garcia of Beeville; four daughters, Mrs. Pauline Aragona of Corpus Christi, and Mrs. Wilma Mancha, Mrs. Norma Haney and Mrs. Emma Rodriguez, all of Midland; four brothers, Gilbert Garcia and Raul Garcia, both of Beeville, Juan Garcia Jr. of Austin, and Mike Garcia of Seminole; two sisters, Mrs. Martina Franco of Beeville and Mrs. Beva Cuellar of Lovington, N.M., and 17 grandchildren.

Services held for Love twins

ODESSA — Graveside services for Laura and Lisa Love, twin infant daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Ray Love of Odessa, were at 3 p.m. Sunday in Sunset Memorial Gardens, directed by Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

The twins died following birth Saturday in an Odessa hospital. Other survivors include paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Love of Odessa; and maternal grandparents, Jack Henderson of Austin and Mrs. June Henderson of Midland.

Services held for W.D. Odell

Services for Warren Daniel Odell, 86, of 3507 Thomas Ave., who died Friday night, were at 10:30 a.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. Burial was in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Despite odds, new New York lottery flourishing

By CHARLES T. POWERS
The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — It is not true that New Yorkers will gamble on just anything. For example, only those with severely diminished faculties — or nothing to lose in the first place — will try to beat the odds against making a safe walk through Central Park after dark.

Perhaps because so much of the rest of life in the city provides such a mixture of random uncertainty and quick opportunity, a New Yorker comes naturally to a life of prospecting for the Main Chance, be it a hot tip from Hialeah or a short-sell on a downtown stock.

The latest longshot here is the possibility (about 26 million to one, actually) of winning $1,000 a week for life (or a minimum of $1 million; if you die, your relatives get the rest.) And all it costs you is $1.

That chance is the promise of New York state's new "instant lottery" game, which, in its first seven days of operation, took in almost $19 million — with 45 per cent of the take, about $8.8 million, going into the state's general revenue fund.

So far, from the point of view of both ticket buyers and state officials, the lottery has been a smashing success. "Beyond our wildest dreams," according to John D. Kuinn, the director of the lottery.

Ticket buyers have the chance of winning $2, $5, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000. Certain "jackpot" tickets will guarantee the holder $5,000, plus the chance to participate in a drawing that could win the grand prize of $1,000-a-week for life. In addition, the ticket stubs are stamped for different letters of the alphabet, and anyone able to collect letters spelling "New York" wins $2,500 in groceries.

When the tickets went on sale Sept. 8, normally calm cigar shops and magazine stands in the city were scenes of pandemonium, with people standing six-deep around cash registers waving fistfuls of money in the air. Some high rollers made purchases of 50 and 100 tickets at once, and normally conservative-spending secretaries on tight budgets were squandering their lunch money for the week in one coffee-break lunge at Easy Street.

The lottery has also represented a bonanza for ticket sellers, who make 6 cents on each ticket they sell.

"I have to go to the bank four times a day now," said Jack Rose, who operates a cigar and magazine stand in the lobby of a midtown office building.

"The women love it," Rose said. "It's just like a slot machine. Right away, you find out whether you won or lost."

The first day of the lottery, Rose sold 5,500 tickets. In the first week, he sold 25,000, making his cut $1,500.

Volume is tapering off slightly, Rose said. On Friday, his sales were down to about 4,000 tickets.

So far, the big problem in the lottery is that the state cannot print tickets fast enough to supply them to vendors.

"If I had more, I could sell more," Bob Jallad, operator of a cigarette stand on Amsterdam Ave., said.

James Nolan, lottery manager for

New York City, looked delighted up in the 65th-floor offices at the World Trade Center, where winners come to redeem prizes of $100 or more. Mostly, Nolan spends his day watching a parade of lucky people.

But pressure has mounted in the last two days because of the ticket shortage.

"We put out 200,000 this morning," he said, "first-come, first-served. We ran out pretty quick. We're expecting some more in from Atlanta, where they are coded and printed, tomorrow. They'll go fast."

The present lottery is the replacement for one that was suspended last October by Gov. Hugh L. Carey because of widespread irregularities and mismanagement, including the printing of hundreds of duplicate tickets.

The present lottery was developed by Scientific Games, Inc., an Atlanta firm which has produced lotteries for 10 of the 13 states currently operating them. Representatives of the company say the lottery, controlled by a computer system, is virtually cheat-proof.

So far, only one case of ticket-tampering, attributed to a vendor in Buffalo, has been reported. The vendor's tickets were confiscated, his license revoked and his name turned over to the district attorney.

The goal for the lottery was to collect $60 million for the state treasury by March, 1977. According to lottery director Kuinn, the goal is easily within reach. All additional revenues from the lottery are to be earmarked for education.

On the right track

The hijacking of a Dutch airliner by three Palestinian guerrillas over the Labor Day weekend shows why West European nations are on the right track in seeking cooperative efforts to cope with international terrorism.

Before Cyprus police captured the hijackers the act of hijacking involved a Dutch airliner, the air space of France and Israel and, of course, Cyprus. The passengers came from many nations.

The 18 Western European nations hammering out a treaty to permit stern action against hijackers without stepping on national sensitivities have strong backing from the United States and the United Nations.

The treaty would set important precedents and mark the beginning of multinational efforts to control international gangs.

Heretofore, one of the problems has been the definition of a terrorist as contrasted with a political activist. The treaty draft solves the problem so simply that one wonders why somebody didn't think of it before.

Ministers from the 18 nations agree that any act which needs the assistance of bombs, hand grenades, rockets, automatic weapons and so forth, is not a legitimate political protest. Persons who use these weapons will be denied asylum in the countries which sign the proposed pact.

This automatically would close one big door to terrorists who typically avoid paying for their depredations by hijacking an aircraft and fleeing.

The 18 European nations have scheduled a meeting at Strasbourg, France, to begin the laborious process of drafting and ratifying the treaty. There is no doubt that they will achieve their goals.

However, that would be just a beginning. The European nations generally do not condone terrorism now and are vigorous in their prosecution of guerrillas.

Terrorism and hijacking, then, will not be eliminated until the most militant holdout countries like Libya and Uganda are brought into the fold, which brings the focus on the United Nations.

The activity in the hall of nations also is constructive. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger already have picked up the idea and are urging international cooperation.

In this annual report to the assembly, Waldheim urged action against terrorism, pointedly reminding members that unless they accede to majority rule the U.N. itself will be endangered.

The path ahead, quite naturally, is hard and long. But perhaps Israel's daring rescue of a French jetliner's passengers at Entebbe, in Uganda, which did establish a precedent in international law, will convince even the most militant U.N. members that a joint approach is safer than unilateral decisions.

Terrorism can be defused ... and a start in the right direction has been made.

AND HE WAS JUST GETTING ON HIS FEET AGAIN

A CHANGING WORLD Must we continue to coddle murderers?

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

Since 1927 as a freshman in high school I have debated, formally and in living room discussions, against the death penalty. My stand has been adamant. Executions by the state were morally wrong and they were not a deterrent to murder.

Then, the other day, something happened. Almost at the same moment that President Ford said one of his prime campaign planks would be to curb serious crimes, the body of Mrs. Joann Seigman was found in a Southern California ditch.

Seigman and her three teen-aged children had been kidnapped. The children had been left bound and gagged but alive.

Their mother had been brutally slain, shot several times in the head. Semanticists might say that all murders are brutal — one not much different than another — and there are many murders across the country every day — but the senseless slaying of Seigman in an instant changed this man's views on capital punishment after more than 49 years of being on the other side. Outrage may not always be the best basis for establishing opinion or judgment. However, for too long we have let murderers run loose or coddled potential felons who have had murder as a last "escape" strategy. It is time to permanently eliminate from society those we catch and convict.

I say this, even as one who once witnessed an execution in the line of a reporter's duty — and who was revolted by the experience, even though the killer went to the electric chair for murdering two police officers who had been my dear friends.

Soft judges, soft juries, slick defense lawyers and unbelievably soft parole boards have, in effect, reduced wanton murder to something of a misdemeanor — something like running a red light. They and the social do-gooders tell us the criminal is a victim of society, that we who obey the law must make life more acceptable to the killer, who is underprivileged and it really is all our fault.

It's time for a change in this approach. California state Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger recently has put the problem in focus clearly. In one statement not necessarily related directly to murder but to the general public good, he said of statements that police files on criminals invade the criminals' rights to privacy, "I share these concerns but also there is the additional concern that we do not destroy our ability to protect our people from the threat of crime."

On the death penalty he is even more determined. Noting that the soft parole system results in 39 per cent felony recidivism, he called adoption of a death penalty law that meets Supreme Court standards as absolutely necessary to California, where murder is almost an accepted way of life.

"By early 1977," he said, "we should have a decision from the California Supreme Court as to the viability of our death penalty statute. At that time we will either go ahead and impose the sentences which have been upheld... or go back to the people and the Legislature to reenact a death penalty statute which will meet both federal and state constitutional requirements."

One must wish Younger success in his endeavor. It makes increasingly less sense in this so-called civilized nation to turn killers loose to kill again.

We've listened too long to the social do-gooders' cries that murderers murder because of frustration — and it's our fault. Such talk makes murder a good risk.

The electric chair or gas chamber will reduce the attractiveness of this risk by at least one conviction per killing.

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND

U.S. site for PLO fund-raising

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The Palestine Liberation Organization is raising funds in the United States for its guerrilla activities. On at least one occasion, money has been routed through the PLO's Permanent Observer post at the United Nations.

The funds collected from PLO sympathizers in this country have been deposited in a PLO account overseas. The account is used to finance PLO operations, presumably including terrorist raids and airplane hijackings.

Through several intermediaries, we have obtained proof of the clandestine PLO collections in the United States. It consists of a thank-you note, written in Arabic on the stationery of the PLO's United Nations office. The letter is signed by Jacob El-Oubedi, the PLO's top fund-raiser in Beirut, and is addressed to the "Palestinian Committee in the State of Virginia."

It relates how the Virginians had collected $4,084, which El-Oubedi said would go into the "PLO national chest." El-Oubedi's code name, by the way, is "Abu Khaled."

"We hope you will continue to work for our holy cause and a revolutionary victory," wrote El-Oubedi. He noted that the Virginian's money had been turned over to him by the PLO director in New York, Zohar Tarazi.

Tarazi acknowledged that El-Oubedi had been in the United States and that a fund-raising effort is going on. But he insisted forcefully: "They are not using this channel" for collecting funds.

We pointed out that El-Oubedi's letter was written on the PLO's United Nations stationery. Tarazi then recalled that the Virginians had delivered the $4,084 check to him, and that he had forwarded it to El-Oubedi. "We were just a pigeon drop," he said.

Although Tarazi admitted the fund drive reached into many states, he said money for the PLO was scarce. "When I think about the billions going to other places!" he exclaimed. He alluded to the massive fund-raising efforts in behalf of Israel.

Footnote: The PLO is registered with the Justice Department as a foreign agent, but only for "information activities," not fund collecting. There is no registration for El-Oubedi.

KISSINGER'S CREDIBILITY: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is held in such low esteem in Saudi Arabia that former American Ambassador James E. Akins wrote despairingly from Jidda: "I sometimes wonder how we can maintain any influence at all in this country, and I strongly suspect we're on a deep downward path here."

Akins confided his views in secret memos and letters, which we have obtained.

Kissinger's "credibility in Saudi Arabia," wrote the former ambassador, "is approximately the same as it is in the U.S. Senate."

In a secret memorandum for the file, dated Aug. 28, 1975, he told of a private conversation with Saudi oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani. The powerful oil minister complained of the "games" the U.S. is playing in the Middle East.

Kissinger's tactics "had long been discussed in Saudi Arabia," and the Saudis had concluded that the United States was "putting all (its) cards on Iran," Yamani told the ambassador.

"It was obvious," Yamani explained, "that the State Department had adopted a pro-Iran, anti-Arab line, and he wondered if President Ford would fall for it. He hoped not."

The Saudis had as high an opinion of Kissinger. Thus Akins' recent dismissal, he wrote, was viewed by the Saudis "as a move more against them than against me."

In a recent letter to Treasury Secretary William Simon, Akins reported: "The Saudis intended to take up my dismissal when Kissinger was here and make a major issue of it. I asked them, as a personal favor, not to do so."

But Kissinger misinterpreted their failure to react, according to Akins. "Kissinger has concluded that their non-reaction shows they got his 'message' and are frightened."

On the contrary, Akins related how the Saudis had been deriding Kissinger. Because the ambassador had tried to defend his boss, two top ministers, Zaki Yamani and Isham Nazer, "have been taunting me for the last week," he reported, "with my past staunch vigorous defense of Kissinger. Both of them claim they saw through him immediately and take great joy in quoting verbatim my defense of him and his policies."

Kissinger also had the mistaken idea, according to Akins' secret letter, that he had made a favorable impression upon the late King Faisal. The Saudis "find it hilariously funny," wrote Akins, "that Kissinger has claimed that it was he himself the King came to like and trust."

The Saudis liked to kid Akins about these matters. Related the former ambassador: "I give them as stony a 'no comment' as I can manage."

Yes, it's a corker

The purpose of a program proposed by the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is to make sure that old wine is in old bottles, but a Copley Newspapers editorial writer says that from a purely bureaucratic standpoint it's old wine in a new bottle.

The bureau says it may want to protect the American consumer by having U.S. inspectors visit foreign vineyards and bottling plants to make sure that wine abroad measures up to our standards. It will decide next month on whether to implement the program.

The Copley writer envisions a long line of applicants if the bureau decides to go ahead.

"A job that involves a lot of traveling and free wine is not to be sniffed at," he wrote. "And somewhere in that line, we believe, should be plenty of experienced diplomats."

"Wars have been started for less than an American, a relative newcomer to enology and viticulture, telling a Frenchman or Italian that his vintage is sour."

INSIDE REPORT:

President Ford's silence on SALT attracts comment

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — Quiet anxiety among hard-liners over what course on SALT President Ford will take if he is elected has been heightened by his failure to answer personally a request from a Capitol Hill supporter for his thinking about arms control.

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, a conservative upstate Republican and budding expert on defense questions, wrote Mr. Ford Aug. 16 following a personal exchange with the President a week earlier. In the letter, Kemp repeated what he had asked in person: "The question... of whether the issue of SALT transcends all other considerations of relations between the United States and the Soviet Union."

No answer was received from the President himself, and Kemp was not satisfied by an unresponsive reply last week from a senior presidential adviser. All this does not allay suspicion that Mr. Ford intends to negotiate a new SALT (strategic arms limitation talks) agreement on terms that congressional and Pentagon hard-liners consider too favorable to the Soviets.

Indeed, fear has persisted that Mr. Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger would still try to squeeze out a SALT II agreement before the Nov. 2 election. That is now unlikely in the extreme, thanks to the time squeeze and the Kremlin's caution in dealing with a potential lame-duck.

But if Mr. Ford is elected, there is no doubt of a post-election push for a treaty likely to contain a concession totally unacceptable to the hard-liners: virtual abandonment of U.S.

cruise missiles. This apprehension is deepened by the probable departure of Dr. Fred Ikle, Arms Control Agency director who in his soft-spoken way has courageously fought against excessive concessions on SALT. Neither Mr. Ford nor Dr. Kissinger has been happy with Ikle's frequent dissents, and he will be gone after the election.

Like many other Republican critics of Kissinger's SALT policies, Kemp supports the President come what may and will serve as a Ford campaign "advocate." But less partisan hard-liners wonder whether Jimmy Carter, his position a mystery, can possibly be any worse on SALT than the Ford-Kissinger team. The President's non-response to Kemp only confirms those doubts.

The Ford-Kemp dialog began the week before at the Republican national convention when the President dined privately at the Capitol Hill Club with the Good Guys, an organization of conservative Republican Congressmen. All went smoothly until Jack Kemp rose during the question period.

Kemp questioned Kissinger's presence in Moscow seeking a SALT agreement while the Kremlin was financing Communist revolution in Angola. More broadly, Kemp asked whether Mr. Ford's overriding desire for SALT II induced him to overlook not only Moscow's African adventures but also its refusal to obey the Helsinki treaty, its violation of SALT I and its muscular quest for strategic superiority.

Jerry Ford, normally so patient with opposing arguments, was clearly irritated — just as he has been when Kissinger's views are contradicted in top secret sessions of the National Security Council. He lectured Kemp rather sharply, declaring he ought to know SALT is a far greater advantage to the U.S. than to the Soviet Union. Then, concluding on a softer note, he suggested Kemp write him as a prelude to further discussion.

That resulted in Kemp's three-page letter to the President Aug. 16. After detailing the Kremlin's massive arms advances, Kemp warned that SALT I actually "opened to the Soviets the possibility of achieving strategic superiority and a dangerous preemptive first-strike capability."

Kemp then expressed concern about the SALT II treaty taking shape, adding: "No treaty is preferable to one that allows the Soviet Union to maintain the momentum of its strategic programs while handcuffing the ability of the U.S. to redress the emerging strategic imbalance that is a great threat to peace in the world."

Kemp encountered the President publicly on two occasions after he wrote his letter. Mr. Ford each time reiterated his desire for a good, long chat on arms control. But not even a written reply from the President, much less a long chat, followed.

Shortly before Labor Day, Kemp jogged the White House with a telephone call. The result: a letter received Sept. 14, not from the President but from his national security adviser, Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft. Kemp considered it unresponsive.

The President obviously wants no pre-election discussion of SALT, particularly since Carter has been obliging enough not to bring it up in his campaign. But this silence on SALT only validates the nightmares of the hard-liners about what will happen if Gerald Ford is elected to a full term.

Episcopal group approves revision of ancient rituals

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Episcopal representatives have eliminated from a proposed new rendering of the church's historic Book of Common Prayer some ancient chants considered offensive to Jews. It was the first time in four centuries that the old masterpiece of ritual and scripture reading had undergone extensive revision. The deletions came as the church's governing convention neared final action today on the revised version.

The House of Bishops was expected to concur with the overwhelming approval given to the changes Saturday by laymen and clergy in the other branch of the church's bicameral legislature, the House of Deputies. In putting finishing touches on the material, they struck out the old, so-called "reproaches" often used in Good Friday services commemorating Christ's crucifixion in the week before Easter. The reproaches originated in church liturgies of the Middle Ages. Pressing for their deletion, the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Winters of Sewanee, Tenn., said the reproaches are a distortion of a Jewish Seder service celebrating deliverance from Egyptian slavery and "makes a mockery" of that observance.

"It would be like Jews celebrating a black mass in a way that is the opposite of its meaning," he said.

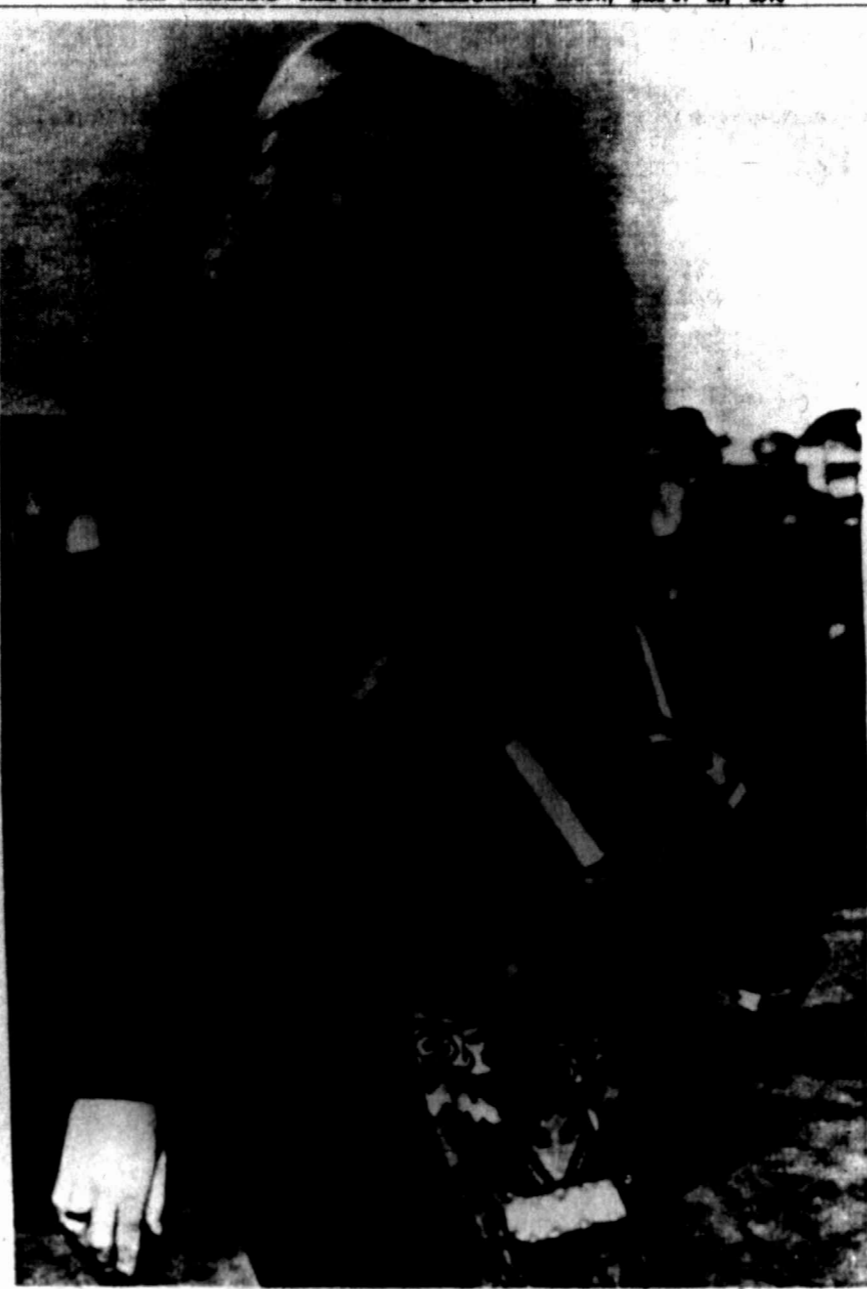

Although a liturgical commission had recommended removal of material because of its possible anti-Jewish connotations, a move was made to retain it.

The Rev. Frank Carthy of New Brunswick, N.J., said rabbis with whom he had consulted were not bothered by the reproaches. He said they should be retained for optional use in the "people's book."

But they were voted out after Stuart D. Casper of Huntington, N.Y., said they have been seen as "pointing the finger of decide (killing God) at Jews." That is an anti-Jewish slur contrary to Christian teaching that the sin of all humanity was responsible for Christ's death, he said. In the reproaches, Christ is portrayed as saying: "O my people ... because I led thee forth from the land of Egypt, thou hast prepared a cross for thy Saviour.... I opened the sea before thee, and thou hast opened My side with a spear.... I fed thee with manna in the desert, and thou hast beaten Me with blows and scourges."

Delegates also made various other refinements in approving the 1,000-page revision of a book that has been a guide to worship in much of Protestantism and whose familiar phrases sprinkle English literature.

The new version clarifies some of the obscure Elizabethan English, and includes alternative rites for the major services, either in generally traditional or freshly contemporary forms. Work on the revision, the most extensive since the book was composed in 1549, has been going on for 12 years. Despite vigorous debate and considerable reversion criticism, the new version was approved by the lay and clergy delegates by a 7 to 1 majority. With concurrence of the bishops, the revision will become authorized for use throughout the denomination immediately.

SPECULATION surrounds Davina Sheffield, 25, present girlfriend of Prince Charles, heir to the British throne. Here Davina arrives at London's Heathrow Airport after a vacation with friends in Scotland. There has been much speculation recently over a possible marriage between Miss Sheffield and Prince Charles.

Owner battles to save Sweet Lips from exile

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Sweet Lips, a 240-pound pet pig, "ain't no farm animal," says its indignant owner, Drewry Little. "He's clean and he's quiet, and that's more than you can say for some of the people who walk around here without a leash."

Little went to court today to appeal an order to remove Sweet Lips from his home because of zoning ordinances.

Two lawyers have volunteered their services to defend the pig, who according to Little received a swine flu shot just two days ago to prepare him for the court session. Little conceded his pet probably wouldn't be allowed in the courtroom but "he'll be outside."

Little, a 55-year-old restaurant and marina owner, was fined $25 by a municipal court judge last June for violating a local ordinance that prohibits residents of this southeastern Virginia resort city's commercial district from keeping farm animals. "Sweet Lips ain't no farm animal," Little said Sunday. "He's a pet. He doesn't bother a soul."

Little told the half-dozen customers drinking beer at the small bar in his restaurant that he had Sweet Lips in a Richmond pediatrician

Knox City facility ready for Thursday field day

Plans are complete for the field day to be held at the Soil Conservation Service plant materials west central Texas, and a University, Texas Tech blue grama selection University, Prairie View center, according to Dick Hagelstein, Midland SCS District conservationist.

Tours are planned through the 92-acre center starting at 8:30 a.m., running continuously until about 3 p.m. The site is north of Knox City on State Highway 6 about two miles, left on FM 1292 for two and one-half miles.

Knox City also has an all-weather runway near the plant center for those wanting to fly to the field day in private or chartered planes. Knox City Chamber of Commerce will provide transportation from the airport to the center. Grass seed dealers, seed growers, conservation district directors, research workers, wildlife enthusiasts, livestock producers and others interested in the search for better plants are invited to attend.

Grasses which are attracting wide interest at the center include a superior switchgrass for use in Texas and Oklahoma; a desert strain of sidcoats grama; a southern strain of sand lovegrass; a western

Congress drives for adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress faces long sessions and loaded calendars this week as it races to make its scheduled Oct. 2 adjournment date. Congressional leaders seem determined to meet that target, with House Speaker Carl Albert claiming that he will keep his chamber in session all night if necessary. In the Senate, where the workload appears lighter, Assistant Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has told colleagues to brace for "long daily sessions."

But, added Byrd, "as far as the Senate is concerned, we are definitely on course." Democratic leaders say they want to prove wrong President Ford's prediction last week that Congress would miss its deadline by at least a week and his claim that he needs to stay in town to keep Congress from "going off the deep end."

Both the House and Senate were to dispose of a number of uncontroversial bills today to clear the way for some meatier issues later in the week.

On Tuesday, the Senate votes on a House-passed bill raising the federal unemployment compensation tax on employers. Now an employer pays $21 into a federal fund for each worker earning at least $4,200. The bill would raise that figure to $42 until the current $7.7-billion deficit in the fund, caused by heavy unemployment, is wiped out.

A major fight is expected over whether to extend unemployment insurance to most farm workers, as the House bill does.

The Senate Finance Committee rejected such an approach. Some members claimed giving unemployment benefits to migrant farm workers might discourage them from seeking other jobs once harvests were in.

On Wednesday, the House considers legislation to revise copyright laws. The changes would give greater protection to authors and recording artists.

The same day, the Senate debates legislation which has been dubbed the "sunset bill." It would require all federal programs to be reviewed every five years. Those that Congress failed to renew would go out of existence.

Mrs. M. H. Nickel, left, health and welfare chairman of the Junior League of Midland, Inc., observes Mrs. Ken Carpenter, chairman of the Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation Committee, as she receives instruction in rescue breathing from Lt. Glenn Harris of the Midland Fire Department.

Instruction presented

The Junior League of Midland, Inc., Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation Committee is receiving instruction in CPR and rescue breathing before instructing in the Midland public schools.

The four-hour course in basic life support was taught by Lt. Glenn Harris of the Midland Fire Department, who is certified by the American Heart Association as a CPR instructor. Dennis Smith of the Odessa Fire Department is an instructor-trainer and is teaching the eight-hour instructor course.

Upon completion of the classes, 10 league members will be certified by the AHA as CPR instructors and authorized to teach the course. Students passing the course will be certified for one year to perform one-man unwitnessed basic life support. Students will learn the procedure on a life-size mannequin, whose responses simulate those of a real person.

Ninth and eleventh grade PE classes will receive instruction in

DEAR ABBY

Photogenic widow

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last June, when my husband went back to his hometown for his 50th high school reunion, he started up with an old sweetheart he hadn't seen since graduation. Ernie is 68 and retired, and she's a 67-year-old widow with 11 grandchildren!

Ernie took 60 Polaroid pictures at the reunion, and this woman is in 50 of them. She's skinny, has orange hair and wore a tight knit dress with a plunging neckline.

He's called her long distance several times (she lives in San Diego), and I'm sure they're corresponding the way he breaks his neck to get the mail first.

Ernie's told our children all about her, and they've been teasing me. He says it's all in fun, but I'm not sure.

Maybe I'm handling it all wrong, but I told Ernie he could have his freedom if he'll give me 50 per cent of everything he has.

I need some expert advice, Abby. What should I do? — JEALOUS AT 65

DEAR JEALOUS: Don't make Ernie any offers you don't intend to honor. He just may call your bluff.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to pose an ethical problem faced by many doctors. Here's the scenario:

A husband phones to say that he has picked up a case of gonorrhea and fears he has infected his wife. Since the wife is coming in for a routine checkup he wants you to diagnose and treat her without telling her what she has.

Should the doctor:
A. Refuse subterfuge and insist that the guy level with his wife?
B. Agree to test for gonorrhea, and if the test is positive, tell the wife the whole story?
C. Go all out and even lie a little to keep the philandering husband out of trouble? — ALABAMA M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Under no circumstances would an ethical doctor treat a patient for a venereal disease without telling her what she has (She could conceivably infect others.) And in the interest of public health, instruct the V.D. source to tell his wife—or you will.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column signed J.M. just floored me! It was from a woman who had given birth to twins 34 years ago, and was told by her doctor that one twin had died, but never saw a birth certificate or a death certificate for the "dead" baby.

Abby, I had a similar experience. My doctor told me I was carrying twins, and I was thrilled.

I entered the hospital on June 19, 1941, and was examined by several interns and nurses, who told me that I would deliver twins. I had a long difficult labor, so when only one baby girl was presented to me, I was so relieved to have it over with I didn't fuss because I didn't get the twins I had expected.

Well, 34 years later while standing in the checkout line at the supermarket, I nearly fainted when I noticed that the woman ahead of me was the image of my daughter who lives in California! She could have been her identical twin sister. A sick feeling came over me, but I was so numb and speechless, I couldn't bring myself to speak to her.

That incident has haunted me for several months. I have no idea how to start searching for this woman, but if I ever see her again, you can bet I will think of something to say to her. — WONDERING IN PHOENIX

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds you filled with uncertainty, along with some broken promises. Later, with the cooperation of others, it is possible to engage in a more positive plan of action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A fellow worker may not be desirous of going along with your plans but later you can convince this person. Take health treatments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't be glib with those who dwell with you. Evening is fine for entertaining your good friends. Show that you have poise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you handle the tasks you have promised to do for others. Use your finest talents on that excellent idea you have.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate on monetary matters of importance. Find new ways of making money and adding to your abundance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You will have to put out more effort if you wish to gain your objective. Avoid one who is a spendthrift and a bad influence.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to appreciate an associate more and come to a better understanding and have more mutual success. Show you have wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle a personal affair that is giving you trouble early in the day. Take time to make longrange plans for the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have many responsibilities to meet before attending the social. A conference with higher-ups can be helpful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study every facet of a new plan before you put it in operation. Make plans for the days ahead and be steadfast in your endeavor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle responsibilities at hand before you look into new interests that seem appealing. Try not to lose your temper.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find out what associates expect of you and then aim to please. Show more respect for your elders. Obtain the data you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Gain the cooperation of coworkers for those duties ahead of you. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets. Be alert.

Ford apparently gaining slight edge in Midwest

By KENNETH REICH
The Los Angeles Times

INDIANAPOLIS — President Ford has gained marginally over Jimmy Carter in the big states of the Middle West — Ohio, Michigan and Illinois — and now holds an edge over his Democratic challenger in this region, according to views expressed privately by observers in both parties.

If Ford is to win the election, it is widely believed that the area he is from, the Middle West, must provide the core of his electoral vote strength. The 13 states of the region have a total of 153 electoral votes, more than half the number needed for a national victory.

In the last several weeks, there has been a shift in a number of polls taken in these states toward Ford, but it is generally in the magnitude of only a few points.

Observers caution that the electorate seems to be in a volatile mood and that the effect of the Ford-Carter debates or other developments probably will lead to further shifts, perhaps decisive.

Carter, a farmer by profession, is also credited with considerable strength in such farm states as Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota and Oklahoma which have usually voted Republican in recent Presidential elections.

The former Georgia governor presently is given the edge in Minnesota, the home state of his Vice Presidential running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, and a narrow edge in Missouri, a border state with a certain Southern orientation.

Ford, on the other hand, is believed by the observers to have fairly solid leads in Kansas, the home state of his running mate, Sen. Robert Dole, Nebraska and Indiana. He is given a narrower edge in North Dakota.

Critical in the Middle West, with 72 of the 153 electoral votes, are Michigan (21 votes), Ohio (25 votes) and Illinois (26 votes).

All three of these states have large Catholic ethnic groups, among whom Carter appears to be in some difficulty. But all have substantial rural populations, too, and in rural areas in all three states Carter ran strongly in the Democratic primaries and continues to do well in the polls.

Michigan, the President's home state, is presently expected by most persons on both sides to go fairly solidly for Ford. Ford also appears to have the edge in Illinois — one of several states in the region where the Democratic state ticket is regarded as weak. Democratic voter registration drives have been lagging in Ohio, but the outlook in this traditionally Republican state is regarded as uncertain.

A number of persons interviewed in the last week have cautioned that there are two separate Middle Western battlegrounds of great importance this year, one being the Catholic ethnic groups, the other being the farmers. Both could fall in untraditional directions in 1978.

"It isn't only the abortion issue, or any uneasiness about Carter's (Baptist) religion that's costing him support among the Catholics, ethnics," one Illinois Democrat told The Los Angeles Times. "The ethnics are big city dwellers and they find little in common with a country boy like Carter."

Neither Ford nor Dole, in their respective Midwestern campaign appearances in Michigan and Missouri in the last few days brought up either religious or racial issues.

But the "trust issue" — the questions both raised as to whether Carter, the political newcomer, could be trusted — is viewed in political circles as a subtle appeal subject to various interpretations. The issue is directed at all voters certainly, but perhaps with most telling effect at members of ethnic groups who may find Carter to be a particularly strange figure.

The second major Midwestern battleground for now appears to be among the farmers.

It is clear that there is serious feeling in the farm states against the agricultural policy followed under both the Nixon and Ford administrations as represented by Agricultural Secretary Earl Butz, and several embargos on grain exports that cut farmers' profits.

The potential appears to be there for the kind of Democratic farm state success scored by Harry S. Truman against Thomas E. Dewey in 1948.

Missouri's Democratic senator, Thomas F. Eagleton, said he thought Carter's margin in rural areas of his state would be enough to overcome any Ford advantage among ethnic groups in the St. Louis area. If both trends developed, it would reverse recent Missouri tradition in presidential elections of Democratic margins in St. Louis and Republican margins elsewhere.

Sharp dip in gold prices fails to reduce cost of most jewelry

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The ups and downs of the gold market are sometimes reflected at the jewelry counter, but consumers are finding that Newton's law of gravity doesn't work so consistently in the marketplace as it does in nature.

What goes up does not ALWAYS have to come down.

Intangibles — design, labor and fashion trends, for example — can be more important than raw materials in determining prices.

At the end of 1974, an ounce of gold cost almost $200. There were predictions that the price would go still further with the end of a 40-year ban on Americans owning gold bullion.

The gold rush fizzled. Supply was stronger than demand. The price of gold started dropping and now is just more than $110 an ounce, although prices rose slightly late last week when bids at the International Monetary Fund's auction of 780,000 ounces of gold were higher than expected.

Shoppers are finding that the cost of some jewelry has declined, but the drops are limited to items which are simple in design and are all gold. The more elaborate pieces, with diamonds or other stones and complicated workmanship, have gone up rather than down in price.

"If it's all gold, then there has been a drop in prices," said Mort Weisenfeld of the National Wholesale Jewelers Association. "There's no question about it. But even there, labor and other costs have gone up."

"If you're talking about a solitaire ring with a diamond, the gold value is negligible... and the drop in gold has been more than balanced by the increase in diamonds, which are up significantly."

A spokesman for Tiffany & Co., the Fifth Avenue-based jewelry store, said that a perfectly simple, 18-caratgold wedding band cost $12 five years ago. By the early part of 1975, the same ring cost $35. Today, it's $26.50.

The price of the ring went up 121 per cent over five years; in the same period, the price of gold — which had been frozen at $35 an ounce until 1968 — increased about 175 per cent and the government's Consumer Price Index of all items rose 41 per cent.

Morton Sarett, president of the Jewelry Industry Council, said jewelry prices have stabilized in recent years. They haven't shown any sharp increases or decreases. And they're not likely to.

Sarett said that jewelry is sold on the basis of craftsmanship, design and labor. Gold jewelry "has to reflect the cost of the raw materials," Sarett said, but only to a small degree.

For more elaborate gold jewelry, Sarett said, the strength of the demand for the product is more important than the cost of the gold.

Publicity about high prices for gold actually helped boost demand, Sarett said, explaining that "consumers began to feel more comfortable about the investment value" of jewelry in a time of inflation.

Family moves stir hints of schoolboy recruiting

WARREN, Tex. (AP) — A woman who has moved her family twice in the past few months in an effort to escape threatening phone calls which she alleges were prompted by her son's friendship with blacks says she and the boy are "on the verge of a nervous breakdown."

Beth Johnson and her son, Max McGeary, moved about 100 miles from Warren to Spring in Southeast Texas and then about a month ago moved again to Denver City, near the New Mexico border.

While Mrs. Johnson insists that the moves were because of the threats, the superintendent of schools at Warren — Adolph Hryhorchuk — said Sunday he is not convinced McGeary wasn't "recruited" to play football.

Mrs. Johnson said the threatening phone calls began more than a year ago when her son befriended a black high school student who was dating a white girl.

"The moves didn't help — I got another call last Sunday," said Mrs. Johnson, who twice broke into tears Sunday in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

"It's driving me crazy. My son is ready for a nervous breakdown and I'm right behind him. I just can't cope with this any more. Someone persists on pursuing me."

Earlier she told the Beaumont Enterprise: "This has been more than a nightmare. Anytime you get threats over and over you've got to do something. I got scared every time he went out of the house and every time he was late getting home. I was worried sick. When grown men congregate and decide they're going to hurt your boy, then

The football coach at Denver City, Bill Gravitt, says Mrs. Johnson received another call Sunday night advising "This isn't over yet."

Hryhorchuk says he denied an eligibility waiver for McGeary to play football at Spring because he was not convinced the move was "bona fide" under University Interscholastic League rules. He said Mrs. Johnson still has a mobile home trailer at Warren.

McGeary's former coach at Warren, Pat Casey, now coaches at Spring.

"We had people say they heard Casey say he was going to take Max McGeary with him to Spring," Hryhorchuk said Sunday. "It is my understanding that Denver City is Casey's home town."

Both Casey and Mrs. Johnson deny that McGeary, an all-district performer for Warren, was "recruited."

"I just want my son to get an education without all this harassment," the mother said.

McGeary's father is an oil field worker in Saudi Arabia. He was reported to be planning a move to Denver City.

Louisiana air crash claims four victims

OAK RIDGE, La. (AP) — Four men, including a former pro football player and the father of a state senator, were killed early Sunday when their small plane crashed in Northeast Louisiana.

The crash occurred while the men were returning to their homes in Oak Ridge from Saturday night's Louisiana State-Oregon State football game in Baton Rouge.

One of the victims was Abner Wimberly, 49, who played end for Louisiana State in 1943 and 1946-48, played professionally with Los Angeles and Green Bay until 1953, and later was an assistant coach at LSU from 1953-59.

The plane's pilot, Erle Barham, 60, was the father of Sen. Erle Edward Barham of Oak Ridge. Others killed in the crash were Joe Sidney Carter, 48, and James McLendon, 48.

A fifth man, John Barr Jr., 40, survived the crash. He was taken to a hospital in nearby Rayville and attendants said he was not seriously injured. He said he did not know why the plane crashed.

The plane went down about 250 yards from a landing strip, Progressive country singer Willie Nelson, who appeared five minutes before the federal grand jury which indicted Hicks and others, has been subpoenaed by the defense to appear at the trial.

U.S. District Court Judge Eldon Mahon, who holds court in Fort Worth, moved the trial here at the defense's request. He will hear the case.

Hicks is accused of leading a smuggling ring which imported large amounts of heroin and cocaine.

Boobytrap leaves robbers literally red-faced

By RICHARD WEST
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Everything seemed to be going well for two armed robbers when they ran out of a bank with $5,000, jumped into a getaway car driven by a third man and started to drive off. But then a boobytrap packet of red dye and tear gas hidden in the bundles of currency exploded.

The blast blew all the money out a window, colored the robbers and the interior of the car crimson and made the vehicle unfit for occupancy.

Police said the robbers, who had used a sawed-off shotgun to hold up a Crocker National Bank branch here, abandoned the car.

Pursuing officers collared one suspect in a nearby alley and a second in an attic. A third man escaped.

Back at the scene of the blast, meanwhile, policemen and passersby scrambled about on their hands and knees picking up the scattered currency. They recovered about $41,000.

Argentine government bans Jehovah's Witnesses

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A recent military government order banning activities of the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect in Argentina follows a surge of terrorist attacks in the last few months against Jews and Roman Catholic priests.

President Jorge Videla, a 51-year-old army general who led a bloodless coup that toppled Isabel Peron last March, signed the decree banning the Jehovah's Witnesses, the first ban of a religious group in Argentina since national independence in 1810.

Police closed the sect's headquarters in Buenos Aires and all its temples in the country. The actions followed recent arrests of sect members and expulsions of sect children in several schools.

The reason given by the government for the ban was that the sect's activities went against the principles of nationhood, because members refuse to join the army, salute the flag or sing the national anthem.

About 120 sect members have been reported arrested this year and are serving 3½-year terms in military prisons for refusing to enter the army, according to sect officials.

The sect president for Argentina, Charles Eisenhower of Sugarloaf, Pa., said he understood the ban was instigated by what he called "ultrarightist Catholic elements close to the government who have no religious tolerance."

"Jehovah's Witnesses have been in Argentina for more than 20 years," Eisenhower said in an interview. "So the ban is obviously instigated by a sector that doesn't like us."

He said some military officials told him the ban was imposed because the government feared the sect may have been infiltrated by leftist guerrillas or attracted men who did not want to enter the army.

There has been no violence against Jehovah's Witnesses after the ban, but Eisenhower said that last August a bomb exploded at a sect temple in Medanos, 300 miles to the south, causing damage but no victims.

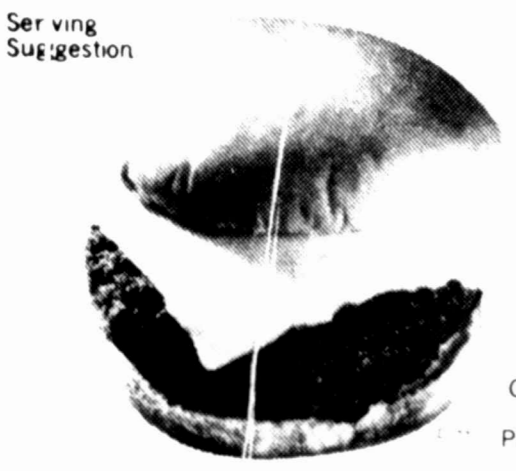

A sect spokesman explained that Jehovah's Witnesses do not recognize any governmental authority "because we only worship God." The sect is a form of fundamentalist Christianity, with three million members in the world, 35,000 of them in Argentina. There are 10 American preachers here.

The Jehovah's Witnesses have had difficulties in a number of African countries because of their refusal to give allegiance to governing parties or make patriotic gestures. But the sect has reportedly been subjected to harsh persecution in Malawi, where it is banned as an "unlawful society."

Opium in Turkey now government-controlled

The Los Angeles Times
ANKARA — Turkey's second season of resumed opium poppy cultivation is drawing to a close here, and the Turks are proudly claiming that the experiment has been an unqualified success.
 U.S. narcotics experts and U.N. officials who have kept a close watch on the poppy fields see no reason to disagree with Turkish assertions that none of the opium produced is getting into illegal channels.

 "All the indications are that the Turks have the situation under control," one U.S. official said.
 Turkey used to be a prime source of raw opium for the American market. Several years ago, during one of Turkey's occasional constitutional crises when the military stepped in briefly, Washington persuaded the interim government to ban cultivation of the opium poppy.

It was a hard blow for the country's impoverished farmers. Nonusers themselves, they depended on the few hundred dollars they got from poppy cultivation to supplement their miserably low per capita incomes, only about $500 per year in rural areas here.
 The United States tried to soften the blow with $35 million in transitional aid, but most of it reportedly never reached the farmers. Hence, when Bulent Ecevit became prime minister three years ago, one of his first acts was to lift the ban on the poppy cultivation.

 There was a predictable outcry in the United States, coupled with warnings that high-quality Turkish opium would begin pouring back into the United States.
 It didn't happen, as U.S. narcotics control officers here confirm. The tight controls imposed by the Turks appear to be working, and they are now confident enough that they are planning to increase opium production to meet expanding world pharmaceutical demands.

 The Turks credit both their tight inspection system and the farmers' own self-interest. A farmer caught incising his opium poppy pods to bleed the opium-rich juice loses his license and faces prosecution, as does one who plants more than his government-allotted area.

 The government has added to the incentives not to cheat by keeping prices high for legal purchases.
 As a result, Turkish officials say, there were only 67 prosecutions for 528 acres of overplanting this year, out of a total of about 200,000 acres authorized for cultivation. All of these were due to miscalculations in the crude reckoning system still in use here for land measurements.

'White gold' puts town on map

By JOANNE OMANG
The Washington Post

TINGO MARIA, Peru — A light spring green in color that contrasts with the dark mat of the surrounding jungle, the fields of coca bushes here roll away over the hills to the horizon in a twotone patchwork seamed by the muddy Huallaga River.

A visitor can have a sickly sweet Inca Kola at the Cafe El Gringo on the rutted main street and ask anybody — discreetly, of course — about the town's biggest industry, the coca leaf. It is raw material for the white joy-dust or cocaine, here called "oro blanco," or white gold. The growing American taste for it has been a financial bonanza for Tingo Maria.

A few years back, everybody grew tea or coffee or bananas. Not anymore.

"Well, the bananas would rot sometimes before we could get them out to market, especially in the rainy season. Then disease killed the coffee crops three or four years ago, and tea really is a lot of work for very little money," said a strawhatted farmer over his beer.

Coca, on the other hand, he continued, takes virtually no care, grows well on the seamy near-vertical hillsides and brings in six crops a year. "You just strip the leaves and then poof, another crop in 58 days," he said.

Much of the coca in Tingo Maria is legal. Peru, according to the government's National Coca Enterprise, is the world's largest producer, growing an official crop of 10,450 tons on 40,860 licensed acres, an area the size of the District of Columbia.

The actual planting is probably about 57,000 acres, however, according to the enterprise's administrator, Alejandro Costa. Drug control sources estimate the official coca leaf production at more than double the dried level — perhaps 22,000 tons, or 70 per cent of the world's crop.

Soaked with kerosene in makeshift cement-lined pits, the dried leaves yield a rubbery scum or paste of about 1 per cent of their weight. The paste is treated in clandestine laboratories in Peru, Ecuador and Colombia to become cocaine hydrochloride at half or more the weight of the paste. In other words, Peru's estimated illegal leaf production of roughly 12,000 tons alone could yield 60 tons or more of pure cocaine, and probably does. Virtually all of it goes to the United States.

The crop of legal coca leaves theoretically has another fate, although much of it probably is also made into white gold. Only 627 tons are exported, 55 tons reduced to cocaine paste for Europe where it becomes novocaine and other anesthetics. The rest goes as leaves to U.S. companies such as the Stepan Chemical Co. of New Jersey, which produces non-drug flavorings for soft drinks. "How do you think Coca-Cola got its name?" asked Costa.

The rest of the legal leaves are all officially accounted for as chewed or made into tea by the country's 3 million native Indians, the vast majority illiterate and poverty-ridden.

Bus drivers munch the leaf with lime to stay awake on long trips. Impoverished villagers chew coca instead of food to drive away hunger pains. Tired women carrying enormous bundles of goods to market use it to fight their fatigue. Shepherds on the high altiplano combat the cold and altitude sickness with the coca leaf's gentle stimulation. For those not hungry or tired, the leaf often seems only to make the mouth slightly numb.

"We have in mind the slow and gradual elimination of the habit of chewing," said Costa. "It will take massive education and a long time." He estimated that about 26,000 Peruvians earn a living from the coca industry, among them 8,000 distributor-businessmen and 18,000 producers. At the farm-income level it is a $61 million a year legal business.

Some 2,500 of the producers live in and around Tingo Maria, Costa estimated. A town and district only 37 years old, with 30,000 residents, its pastel stucco and graying wood buildings occupy the only flat space for miles among jutting junglecovered mountains on the eastern slope of the Andes.

The mountain skyline behind the town, natives like to point out, looks like a big-bellied woman lying down and is called "the sleeping beauty." Gaily painted wooden trucks, splattered with mud, rattle emptily through town after unloading dozens of peasants at the Saturday night traveling fair.

"The place is half-mafiosi," grumbled a dry-goods store manager. "They have all the money and all they buy is liquor." Dealers for the paste arrive every so often in small private planes at the dirt airstrip, several persons related, and are wined and dined at the large coca plantations.

Most of the legal and illegal coca is grown on the same estates, enforcement officials said, with the illicit leaves concealed under false production figure documents. Recently, however, small landholders created under Peru's agrarian reform have begun converting plots of two acres or so to coca, occasionally surrounding it with screens of other crops.

"Some people changed their lifestyles overnight," said Tingo Maria's government-appointed mayor, Jose Suito Medina.

The going official rate at the farm is $1.40 a pound for dried leaves, or about $1,100 per acre per year. That is well above the Peruvian per capita average income of about $600. The unofficial rate, however, is $320 for an illegal pound of coca paste — three times the legal price for the amount of leaves necessary to make it. The half-pound of cocaine it produces might in turn bring $13,500 in street sales in the eastern United States, according to Washington officials.

The only real evidence of new wealth is the big American-made cars that jounce incongruously through the potholed dirt streets. Stores are well-stocked and high-priced, but they carry goods normal in rural Peru rather than luxury items: plastic shoes for $10, work shirts for $5.

"Nobody wants to show off his money," said Rolando del Aguila, administrator of the government-run Turistas Hotel. "But the restaurants and bars are always full, and you can never get a seat on the plane to Lima."

There are four U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration men attached to the American embassy in Lima, offering case-solving advice and training programs to Peruvian officials. U.S. aid has supplied six vehicles, but no weapons or aircraft have been offered, embassy spokesmen said.

But eliminating the coca traffic does not rank high on Peru's national agenda, and the most ambitious project is a request for a U.S.-financed aerial photo study of the extent of the problem. "It's really impossible to control," said Costa. Other drug enforcement officials were more graphic. "It's like trying to empty the ocean with a sandpail," said one.

Stradivari's hometown remains violin center

By WILLIAM TUOHY
The Los Angeles Times

CREMONA, Italy — Violin maker Giorgio Scolari leaned over his workbench, planing a delicately curved surface on the thin piece of wood, painstakingly shaping it into a superlative musical instrument.

"Every fine violin develops its own personality," he said, brushing shavings from his jeans, "and from this wood and varnish, you hope to create an instrument with a real soul."

"When I finish making a violin, I experience a great sense of satisfaction: the instrument, I hope, will live longer than I. But I feel said, too, because the chances are that I may never see it again."

Scolari is only 24 but already he is acknowledged as one of the coming master violin makers in Cremona — a city renowned for the art since the days its sons Amati, Stradivari and Guarneri crafted superb stringed musical instruments here.

Scolari is one of the new breed, trained and practicing in Cremona, who have contributed to the city's renaissance in high-quality violin making.

He produces violins for Milan's famed La Scala orchestra. He trains apprentices in his center-city atelier. And he teaches at his alma mater — Cremona's International School of Violin-Making, which recently moved into a renovated 16th-century palace.

As the school's technical director, Prof. Sergio Sartini, put it: "What we are trying to do in Cremona is train the best violin makers in the world. The goal is to fashion musical instruments with rich, live and brilliant tones."

To call attention to its artisanship, Cremona, a pleasant Lombard city of 85,000 on the Po River in northern Italy, will hold an international stringed instrument festival starting Oct. 2.

Events will include an international violin-making competition, a display of modern and antique instruments, a trade fair and a series of concerts for strings.

"Cremona has become a fine city to teach and work in," said Nereo Zaniboni, head of the Antonio Stradivari organizing committee. "We don't want Cremona to become the Fiat of violins. We want to encourage artisanship."

"While there may be only about 60 master violin makers in all Italy, a dozen are here in Cremona. They and their assistants make about 2,000 instruments a year, at anywhere from $1,000 to $5,000 apiece."

"We do not stamp out the parts as they do in mass production. Everything is done by hand, in the tradition of Stradivari."

Indeed, the presence of Stradivari, his teachers the Amatis, and his pupil Guarneri, pervades Cremona — not only in the streets and squares named after them, but in their instruments in the city's museums.

At the city hall, violin curator Andrea Mosconi took the incomparable violin called "the Cremona," fashioned by Stradivari in 1715, from under its glass case, and began to play Bach.

The sound wafted out of the second-floor window and into the courtyard below, stopping visitors and bureaucrats alike in their tracks.

"I play this magnificent Stradivari for a few minutes every day to keep it in shape," Mosconi said. "This wonderful old wood and splendid craftsmanship give an extraordinary variety of sounds and resonance. I can't play it without getting emotional."

Next to the Stradivari is a violin made for the French King Charles the IX by Andrea Amati in 1566, and one fashioned by his grandson, Nicolo Amati, in 1658.

It was Andrea Amati, his sons and grandsons who brought Cremona to the world's attention as the center of the violin maker's art. Earlier Italian craftsmen had modified the lute, imported from Arabia, but Amati set the style — followed by his sons and with modifications by Stradivari and Guarneri — that became the modern violin.

Wind generator used to keep pool warm

The Washington Post
Miriam Wornum's San Francisco home has what looks like an oversized bicycle wheel spinning in a horizontal plane 20 feet above the roof. It powers a heat pump that keeps her swimming pool a toasty 80 degrees all year.

"My doctor said I needed the pool, but I sure didn't need what it cost to heat it," she said. "So I found a young Berkeley engineer and commissioned this contraption."

When high school science teacher Henry Clews moved his family to East Holden, Me., the local utility wanted $3,000 to bring power to his home; he turned to the wind instead and saved $200.

Robert Reines of Albuquerque gets his electricity from a restored Jacobs wind generator — the most popular model among farmers a half-century ago.

Ontario's Cape Vincent Belleayre Ski Area uses a wind generator to power its lifts.

Walter Schoenball, a Bonn, Germany, lawyer, gathered a team of engineers and installed a 70-kilowatt wind generator on the German island of Sylt. It supplies five families and illustrates another way to use wind power: on a shared or community basis.

Diepraam, Smith capture Invitational net titles

By PAUL DOMOWITZ

Pretty Anne Smith has been waiting 12 long months for a return match with 1975 champion Vicki Lancaster Kerr. Sunday afternoon she got her chance, defeating Ms Kerr in straight sets, 7-6, 6-2, to capture the women's singles title of the 16th annual Midland Invitational Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament, held at the Midland High School courts.

It was a bad day all around for returning champions, as 22-year old Bill Matyastik failed to successfully defend the men's singles crown he won a year ago at this event, losing to Midland Country Club pro Keith Diepraam, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

ONE YEAR ago, Vicki Lancaster Kerr (then Vicki Lancaster) was taken to three sets by Anne Smith, before winning the women's MITT title here. A year later, revenge minded Smith, placed once again in the role of the underdog, turned the tables. Her victory may have been a surprise to many of the fans, but not to Smith.

"I've improved a lot since Vicki beat me last year," said the jubilant brown-haired netwoman. "and I was pretty confident going in. I knew she certainly wouldn't be a pushover, but I knew I could beat her."

How does it feel to win? "Sweet," she answered with a big grin. "Very sweet."

Less than a half hour after their title match was over, Smith and Kerr teamed up in the finals of the women's doubles championship, and barely worked up a sweat, as they toppled the SMU team of Whiting-Saraga, 6-2, 6-2.

WHILE SMITH was a surprise winner, at least she was expected to make it to the championship round. Such was not the case with Keith Diepraam. The 35-year old former South African Davis Cupper has registered a number of impressive victories during his net career. Tony Roche, Roy Emerson, Cliff Drysdale, and 1975 Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe are just a few of the big names Diepraam has beaten. But his age, and a very tough 1976 MITT field were taken into consideration when he was seeded no higher than eighth earlier this week.

Using a devastating serve, and wasting little energy, Diepraam whittled his way through the field, and earned a place in the finals opposite Matyastik, who in addition to being the defending champion, also works for Diepraam as the assistant pro at the MCC.

In the first set, Diepraam registered nine service aces, and broke Matyastik's own service in the fourth game, enroute to a 6-3 win.

BUT MATYASTIK, countering with a thundering power game of his own, knocked home an incredible 12 aces in the second set, and tied the match. The former NCAA All-American broke Diepraam's service in the eighth game.

It was quite obvious by this time, that the match would be determined by a single service break, and after going out in front 4-3, that's exactly what Diepraam did in the eighth game. A low, hard baseline shot skidded less than two inches inside the line, and the door all but closed on Matyastik. Diepraam took him in four straight points in the ninth game, and walked away the winner.

"I tried to keep my serves and volleys deep on Bill," Diepraam said of his strategy. "and put the pressure on his backhand. I am happy to say it worked very well."

In the men's doubles final, the second seeded team of Randy Crawford and Tut Barzen out of TCU, beat the Benson/McKinley duo, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

TENNIS TALK - It was a disappointing weekend all the way around for Trinity's Larry Gottfried, who's uncontrollable temper earned him the title "Nasty" Nastase Award. Seeded second in the men's singles division, Gottfried was beaten by Dave Bryant in the quarterfinals, and fared little better in men's doubles. He and teammate Tony Giammalva were expected to walk away with that title, but Benson and McKinley beat them in the semi's, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. Tourney co-chairman Ray Yell's words to Bill Matyastik at the awards presentation, after he was beaten by his employer at MCC: "It's a good way to keep your job."

Vikings, Rams squander chances in overtime

By Associated Press
 The Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota Vikings, two of the National Football League's perennial powers, struggled to a 10-10 tie Sunday in a rugged defensive battle that highlighted the second weekend of regular season play.

Both teams had chances to win the nationally televised game in overtime, but both came up with sparkling defensive plays to preserve the deadlock.

The Rams drove to the Minnesota 13 midway through the overtime, but Nate Allen broke through to block Tom Dempsey's 30-yard field goal attempt.

Then Minnesota, led by Fran Tarkenton, mounted a 70-yard drive to the Rams' 10—only to be foiled when Rick Kay made a leaping interception at the one-yard line with one minute left in the extra period.

The tie left both National Conference clubs with 1-0-1 records.

IN OTHER games, the New England Patriots upset the Miami Dolphins 30-14; the Baltimore Colts edged the Cincinnati Bengals 28-27; the Houston Oilers topped the Buffalo Bills 13-3; the Pittsburgh Steelers rallied to beat the Cleveland Browns 31-14; the Washington Redskins coasted past the Seattle Seahawks 31-7, and the San Diego Chargers blanked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 23-0.

Also, the Philadelphia Eagles defeated the New York Giants 20-7; the Detroit Lions topped the Atlanta Falcons 24-10; the St. Louis Cardinals shut out the Green Bay Packers 29-0; the Dallas Cowboys defeated the New Orleans Saints 24-6; the Denver Broncos routed the New York Jets 46-3, and the Chicago Bears beat the San Francisco 49ers 19-12.

In Monday night's game, Oakland is at Kansas City.

THE ONLY score of the first three periods of the Rams-Vikings clash was a 33-yard field goal by Minnesota's Fred Cox early in the second period. Twice Los Angeles drove to the one yard to come up empty, once losing the ball on downs and once on a fumble.

Tarkenton, who completed 27 of 43 pass attempts for 289 yards, found Sammy White on a 56-yard scoring play to make it 10-0 early in the fourth quarter. Then the Rams, with rookie Pat Haden going all the way at quarterback, began their comeback.

Dempsey's 42-yard field goal with 6:19 left made it 10-3. Four minutes later, Los Angeles cornerback Rod Perry scooped up a Brent McClanahan fumble at the Viking 36 and returned the ball to the 11. Haden passed 10 yards to Harold Jackson and Jim Bertelsen rammed over from the one three plays later. Dempsey's extra point tied it 10-10 with 1:55 left.

Minnesota had a final chance for victory in regulation, but Cox missed a 45-yard field goal attempt with 57 seconds left to play.

SECOND-YEAR quarterback Steve Grogan enjoyed his finest game as a pro as New England stunned Miami. Grogan completed 16 of 27 passes for 166 yards and three touchdowns and rushed for 76 yards and a fourth TD.

Bert Jones threw three touchdown passes to Roger Carr and rookie Roosevelt Leaks scored on a two-yard run early in the fourth quarter for Baltimore. Jones completed 14 of 29 passes for 301 yards, including scoring tosses to Carr of 68, 22 and 65 yards.

Skip Butler kicked two field goals and Don Hardeman scored on a 19-yard run on his first carry for Houston. O.J. Simpson played nearly the whole way on offense for Buffalo but gained just 58 yards on 16 carries.

JACK HAM'S blocked punt and a pair of Cleveland fumbles keyed a 17-point third quarter surge that erased a 14-0 halftime deficit for the Steelers. Terry Bradshaw threw two touchdown passes to John Stallworth and scored one while Franco Harris rushed for 118 yards.

Billy Kilmer, the battered hero of the Redskins' last-minute win a week ago, completed 17 of 25 passes for 184 yards and three touchdowns against expansion Seattle. Washington's rugged defense did not allow the Seahawks across midfield until midway through the third period. Mike Thomas rushed for 143 yards two TDs for the Redskins.

The other expansion team, Tampa Bay, has yet to score a point in the NFL, suffering its second straight shutout. Toni Fritsch kicked three field goals and Rickey Young and Tom Hayes scored touchdowns in the game's closing minutes as San Diego spoiled the Bucs' home opener. The game drew only 39,558 to 71,400-seat Tampa Stadium.

 Today
 FOOTBALL — Kansas City vs. Oakland, 8 p.m., KMQM-TV.

PHILADELPHIA posted its first victory under new head coach Dick Vermeil as Mike Boryla threw a 21-yard touchdown pass to Harold Carmichael and also scored on a one-yard run.

Linebacker Ed O'Neal caught a 32-yard touchdown pass from Joe Reed on a fake field goal attempt in the final four minutes to climax a 24-point final quarter for Detroit.

Scott Laidlaw rushed for touchdowns of 10 and one yards as Dallas overcame early errors to defeat New Orleans.

Roger's day 'ruined' by Superdome noise

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Roger Staubach said the noise in the Superdome bothered him, but it didn't show in his performance as he led the Dallas Cowboys to a 24-6 National Football League victory over the New Orleans Saints.

"It's loud," said Staubach. "Very hard on you when you try to call audibles."

Despite his problems, Staubach hit on 15 of 22 passes for 239 yards. Seven of the completions came on third-down situations. He also ran for 13 yards on two carries.

"Staubach plays with tremendous poise," said Saints' Coach Hank Stram. "He's in control all the time, and murder to try to contain."

Staubach passed for 28 yards and ran for nine more as he took the Cowboys to a 25-yard field goal by Efrén Herrera on their first possession.

He got 41 more on the next possession when he hit Golden Richards at the New Orleans 10 yard line. But what looked like a touchdown three plays later turned into frustration when Beasley Reese caught a pass, then fumbled into the end zone from the two yard line. The Saints recovered to kill the drive.

Staubach got 29 more yards passing in a 59-yard, eight-play drive that ended in a 10-yard touchdown burst by Scott Laidlaw.

He passed for 36 yards on a nine-play, 54-yard drive on the Cowboys' next possession. Laidlaw also capped that drive with a score—this time from a yard out.

That made the score 17-0 at the half.

Staubach kept a 62-yard third-quarter drive going with a 19-yard completion on a third-down play. Then he hooked up with tight end Billy Joe Dupree on a play that almost went sour.

Crenshaw birdies 18 to claim title

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Ben Crenshaw played conservatively. Andy North gambled. The outcome of their different head-to-head strategy on the closing hole Sunday led Crenshaw to his third golfing victory of 1978, a $30,000 payday at the Ohio Kings Island Open.

"I had to go for it. I just hit it too solid," North said of a three-wood shot that sailed over the green on the 590-yard, par-five 18th at the Nicklaus Golf Center.

CRENSHAW WAS 10 yards past North, facing a big lake that guards the final green. "I was surprised when he laid up. But he knew what he was doing, as well as he was putting," said North.

Indeed, the 24-year-old Crenshaw did. He wedged to within 14 feet, sank the putt for a birdie and a four-under-par 66 for 271. It was one lower than North, who got up-and-down for his birdie from the back fringe.

Crenshaw said he never wavered in his strategy. "I knew Andy would have a difficult chip. The grain of the grass went against him."

Illini pulls big upset

By The Associated Press

Leave it to Missouri's giant killers to provide an upset just when it appeared as though college football's Top Twenty might get through the weekend without one. Unfortunately for the sixth-ranked Tigers, those who live by the upset also die by the upset.

Unranked before the season, Missouri not only cracked The Associated Press' Top Ten but vaulted all the way to sixth place by trouncing Southern California in its opener a week ago. Saturday, however, the Tigers were victimized by Illinois 31-6. If the Tigers remain true to form, second-ranked Ohio State is in for trouble next weekend when Missouri goes to Columbus, Ohio.

"We can't think about the Top Ten," said Illinois quarterback Kurt Steger, who threw touchdown passes of seven and 74 yards to Erick Rouse.

"I think that's what Missouri did. I heard over the P.A. (public address) several times, 'Ohio State next week,' so they were thinking about them."

"Missouri was looking ahead to Ohio State. We weren't looking ahead to Baylor. We were looking to Missouri... and we got them."

BUT COACH Bob Blackman disagreed. "This was no Missouri let-down," he said. "We put out a super effort all week and played our hearts out."

The effort included 152 rushing yards and two touchdowns by James Coleman.

While Missouri stumbled, last week's upset victims rebounded in convincing fashion.

THREE TEAMS which dropped from the ratings by losing their openers all got well in a hurry—Southern Cal bombed Oregon 53-0, Notre Dame blanked Purdue 23-0 and Florida thrashed Houston 49-14.

Fourth-ranked Oklahoma prevented Joe Roth from throwing the bomb, sacked the California quarterback three times and whipped the Golden Bears 28-17. Theotis Brown scored two of UCLA's four third-period touchdowns as the fifth-ranked Bruins broke open a tight game and flattened Arizona 37-9.

Reds clinch tie for NL West flag

By The Associated Press. The Cincinnati Reds clinched a tie for the National League West pennant Sunday with a 5-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants behind the hitting of Pete Rose and the pitching of Gary Nolan.

The runnerup Los Angeles Dodgers prevented the defending World Champions from winning the division title outright with an 8-1 decision over the Atlanta Braves.

In the National League East, the Pittsburgh Pirates lost a chance to gain ground on the front-running Philadelphia Phillies with a 7-6 loss to the New York Mets.

In the American League, the New York Yankees moved closer to the East championship with a rain-shortened, 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers while the second-place Baltimore Orioles were losing a doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians.

The Los Angeles Angels 7-5 victory over the Oakland Athletics moved them into a tie for the AL West lead.

The Kansas City Royals nipped the Chicago White Sox 6-5 and improved their lead over Oakland to six games.

The Texas Rangers, the Rangers won the opener 9-1 and the A's the nightcap 13-3.

The Houston Astros took a doubleheader from the San Diego Padres, 3-2 and 3-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals took a 9-7 decision over the Montreal Expos before losing 1-0 in the nightcap.

The American League, the Boston Red Sox tripped the Detroit Tigers 6-1 and the Minnesota Twins stopped the California Angels 7-5.

ROSE SMASHED three hits and Nolan survived a shaky start, then retired 16 straight batters as Cincinnati beat San Francisco.

Rose, bidding to win his third straight NL doubles title, boosted his season's total to 39 to overtake Philadelphia's Garry Maddox.

Tommy John's six-hitter and Bill Buckner's four hits led Los Angeles over Atlanta.

Ed Kranepool's single drove in the winning run in the sixth inning after Dave Kingman's two home runs and sacrifice fly produced five New York runs.

Leading the Mets over Pittsburgh, Jerry Morales' home run and the seventh-inning pitching of former Midland Cub, Ray Burris carried Chicago over Philadelphia.

Jerry DaVanon singled home the winning run in the ninth, pacing Houston over San Diego in their first game.

Bo McLaughlin tossed a four-hitter, leading Houston's second-game victory. Ted Simmons' three-run triple keyed a five-run ninth that gave St. Louis its first game victory over Montreal.

The Expos took the second game behind Woodie Fryman's four-hitter.

Arkansas survives 8 fumbles to beat OSU

By The Associated Press. Arkansas finally won its September "bowl" game Saturday after four years of trying.

The Razorbacks fumbled so many times Coach Frank Broyles could hardly enjoy it.

Oklahoma State had beaten Arkansas three consecutive years and the largest crowd in Arkansas sports history (55,000) turned out for revenge.

The Razorbacks almost didn't get it.

"We were very happy to win and the defense was sensational," said Broyles after the 16-10 victory.

Then uncharacteristically he left the dressing room, saying "I'm not going to answer any questions."

Broyles was less than happy with eight Arkansas fumbles with walk-on quarterback Mike Scott, playing for the injured Ron Calcagni, in charge of the team.

"After losing those first three and winning the fourth, it's a hell of a feeling," said defensive end Johnnie Meadors.

"Now people can stop talking about OSUers and start looking forward to those Arkansas Razorbacks."

Kupchak to play in Italy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mitch Kupchak says he will play in Italy this year because of the Washington Bullets' top offer to him.

The Washington Star quoted Kupchak, who was the starting center on the Olympic basketball team, in a telephone interview from Chapel Hill Saturday.

"This was decision-making day," Kupchak said. "I really wanted to play in the NBA, and if the Bullets' offer was just within reason I would have gladly accepted it."

"My attorney and I received the Bullets' top offer and it's not even close. The offer from Italy is almost twice as much and I'd be a fool not to take it."

Jack Kent Cooke puts empire up for bids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke is trying to sell all his sports properties, which include the Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Lakers, according to a published report.

The Washington Star said in its Sunday edition that it obtained a copy of the financial document the Redskins have been showing lawyers and brokers across the country.

Cooke confirmed in a telephone interview from Los Angeles that he is trying to sell his sports properties, the Star said.

"Everything I own can be bought," he was quoted as saying.

Cooke also owns the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League and the $20 million Forum, where the Lakers and Kings play.

"How is lignite coal helping my electric bill?"

By using lignite coal to generate electricity, Texas Electric will be saving its customers $44 million in 1976.

We've turned to lignite because natural gas, our main fuel, is running out. New supplies of gas just aren't available in the huge quantities we need.

These savings will continue in the years ahead. In fact, they will increase as we add more lignite power plants and our nuclear plant.

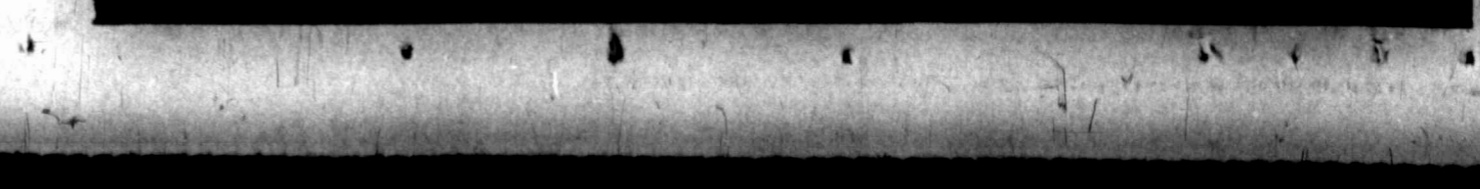

This doesn't mean rates will go down. But we will be able to keep increases in your electric bills as low as possible.

The additional natural gas we would need in 1976 if we weren't using lignite.

The cost of lignite and the one-year cost for plants to use it in 1976.

Money our customers won't have to pay in 1976 because we're using lignite coal.

Tie Forecast haunts Donna

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Saturday, when she had a share of the second-round lead, Donna Caponi Young said there was a good chance of a sudden-death playoff in the $45,000 Portland Classic golf tournament.

Sunday, she made good on her prediction, losing a four-stroke lead on the final two holes of regulation play before winning with a birdie on the second hole of sudden death.

"I am never going to mention the probability of a playoff again," she said.

The 31-year-old two-time U.S. Open champion from Los Angeles had bogies on the 17th and 18th holes.

Meanwhile, Clifford Ann Creed, a tournament veteran with 11 LPGA titles but none since 1967, sank birdie putts on the last two holes to finish tied for the lead at 217, two-under-par.

"I was furious with myself," Mrs. Young said. "I was so mad at myself for playing two such stupid holes."

She won it with an 18-inch birdie putt on the second playoff hole. Miss Creed missed a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the same hole, leaving the ball on the left lip of the cup.

German thwarts bid

BERLIN (AP) - Veteran Emile Griffith faced an uncertain future today, his bid for another world title and the paydays that go with it foiled by a stand up German fighter named Eckhard Dage.

Griffith, 38, went after Dage's World Boxing Council junior middleweight crown in West Berlin Saturday night but came up short in an unpopular 15-round decision.

"It's good to know I'll never have to go into hock paying medical bills."

"I've been with this company almost seven years now. One reason I've stuck with them is because they've stuck with me. It's not just the raises and promotions. It's the extras. Things that show me I'm more than just a timecard around here. Like getting a chance to have the best group health insurance - Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage. Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance returns more of its premiums in claim payments to policyholders than most other major insurance companies. And it doesn't set maximum dollar limits on most hospital services, including the intensive care unit. So if I ever need insurance for me or someone in my family, I'm protected. Believe me, that's good to know. My company could probably get some other insurance at a lower rate. But I figure they think I'm worth Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage."

Negotiations save veterans' red poppies

POPPIES
By SPENCER RICH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — For 45 years physical veterans living in veterans' hospitals have been earning pin money and doing therapeutic work by putting together the little red crepe poppies that are handed out on street corners by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.

Nearly everybody liked the program and thought it useful. It gave the hospitalized veterans work and a bit of pocket money, and it netted $1 million to $2 million a year for the organizations. The VFW and Legion plowed the profit back into rehabilitation services and other charitable causes for veterans.

Nevertheless, early this year the veterans' organizations said the program appeared on the verge of extinction, as a result of a 1973 court ruling, a 1974 act of Congress and a Labor Department legal opinion.

They feared that the minimum-wage law was about to be applied to the poppy program, and that the government might force the VFW and Legion to pay the hospitalized veterans considerably more — perhaps up to the full minimum of $2.30 an hour instead of a few cents a poppy for their work. That would have made the programs economically unfeasible, according to VFW and Legion spokesmen.

Nobody wanted to kill the programs, but events seemed to be sliding in that direction.

Last week the program was finally saved, but only after months of tough negotiating and negotiations, heavy pressure from veterans' organizations and a firm stand by Senate assistant Republican leader Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.), who threatened to hold up veterans' bills and open up the minimum-wage law in a way opposed by organized labor.

Griffin lined up 31 cosponsors for a floor amendment exempting the poppy program from minimum wage coverage.

Although they didn't oppose the poppy program, the labor unions and several organizations for disabled persons balked at Griffin's approach, according to several senators. The resisting groups reportedly didn't like the idea of piecemeal exemptions to the minimum-wage law being tacked onto unrelated legislation, opening the door to piece-by-piece erosion of the law.

Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), an influential member of both the Senate Labor and Veterans Affairs Committees, was sympathetic to saving the program but said he was caught between two forces.

Veterans' organizations were pressuring him for the amendment, but labor unions and organizations of the disabled opposed it. Cranston wanted to avoid a floor vote. "People didn't want to choose between veterans' organizations and unions."

Griffin, meanwhile, stepped up the pressure, according to Cranston, slapping a "hold" on several key veterans' bills Cranston was trying to push through the Senate.

Cranston, Labor Committee Chairman Harrison A. Williams (D-N.J.) and senior Republican member Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) then got hold of the Labor Department and Veterans Administration and said in effect, as Cranston describes it, "Find a way to resolve this without legislation."

Soon afterward the VA unearthed a 1962 law declaring that the VA "may utilize the services of patients and members in veterans' hospitals and domiciliaries for therapeutic and rehabilitative purposes at nominal remuneration."

The VA and the Civil Service Commission, with the Labor Department's assent, ruled that the poppy program constituted such utilization, and that it could continue without having the minimum-wage law applied to it.

The crisis was solved — by administrative methods. An ugly legislative fight that nobody wanted had been avoided without change.

The American Legion poppy program started just after World War I, the VFW program in 1922. The wire stems and crepe petals are purchased from commercial suppliers by VFW and Legion volunteers and are taken to the hospitals. The disabled veterans twist them into little flowers and receive up to 4 cents a poppy for their work.

The finished poppies are then collected by the VFW and Legion volunteers and distributed on street corners around Memorial Day and similar occasions, in return for donations.

In 1975, according to Griffin aides, the Legion program employed 3,871 hospitalized veterans, who received about $300,000 for making 17 million poppies. The Legion spent several hundred thousand dollars for raw materials and distribution and received more than $1.9 million in donations for the poppies.

The VFW, according to Thorne (Tip) Marlow, employed several thousand hospitalized veterans, produced 15 million "buddy" poppies, realized $2.5 million in donations and had costs and veterans' pay of about $250,000.

In 1975 both organizations plowed back about $3 million in net profit.

No agreement on economy

NEW YORK (AP) — The phases of the economy do not evolve with the same regularity as the phases of the moon. There are no mathematical certainties. There is no assurance, not even for the President, that the future is known.

This being so, there is in this first year of recovery from the recession, in the final few weeks before a president is elected, a divergence of views on whether the economy is pausing or faltering.

It is not that our esteemed economists are withholding their views; they are not. But no matter how self-certain they seem, you have to wonder if their attitude is based on bravado or cynicism or facts.

The fact is the economic facts are mixed. Anyone making a prediction today does so with a goodly number of his indicators in disagreement and with others indecisive. Just weeks before we make the major economic decision of all, that is to elect a president, we cannot say for sure if the economy is healthy or ill.

The econometric model makers generally assure us that expansion should continue in 1977, but we are then reminded that any econometric projection, no matter how precise its answers, is based on at least a few hazy assumptions.

The big banks tell us they are optimistic, but we suspect that in a questionable situation they would naturally tend to take the bright view, that being the better for business.

We know that Alan Greenspan and the coterie of Republican economists will take the most encouraging view, but we have already seen one of their forecasts, unemployment below 7 per cent by December, become impossible.

Jimmy Carter's advisers, we may be certain, are not looking to praise President Ford's economic performance, and so their views will bend with bias, but we have no proof they know any better how to improve things.

We can assemble our own list of indicators and try to add them into a conclusion, but more likely we will come up with columns of pro and con that neatly balance themselves out and leave us no nearer a decision.

In one column we have unemployment of 7.9 per cent, in another we have the greatest employed working force in the history of this or any nation. On the left we have a poor level of housing starts; on the right we have that low rate appearing to improve as the summer wore on.

But can we measure by the numbers whether our slowdown is a pause or a faltering? And can we rely on the views of those who pick a handful of numbers from the left column and ignore the pile on the right?

Somewhere in the minds and activities of politicians and bankers and manufacturers and office workers and laborers is probably a nearer approach to the truth. It perhaps can be perceived not in the numbers but in how to react to them.

We can hear bankers proclaim their faith in the future but we then detect a reluctance to proclaim that faith through a reduction in the prime lending rate.

All year long we have witnessed corporate economists issuing bullish reports, but we have observed also that corporate management has been somewhat reluctant to make capital expenditures.

We have seen lots of reports about how the consumer was leading the country up out of the recession, but we have seen also that the consumer has been reluctant to enlarge his use of credit.

That hesitancy means something, and probably everything. It is probably the attitude within us rather than the numbers without — which are only projections of that attitude — that will determine if this is a mere pause or if the economy really is faltering.

New program reduces expense of foster care

New subsidized adoptions program of the Department of Public Welfare is reducing the cost of foster care in Texas. Welfare Commissioner Raymond W. Vowell said today.

The savings are being realized by placing children in state-subsidized adoptions instead of keeping them in state-paid foster care.

The program, which began Sept. 1, finds adoptive homes for hard-to-place children and offers the adopting family subsidies for such things as medical and legal expenses.

The program operates for children with mental or physical problems, or groups of school-age brothers and sisters.

Of the 35 children approved for state-paid subsidized adoptions, the state saved 30 per cent of what it would have cost to have kept them in foster care, according to Bobbie Matthews, director of the program.

"Without some kind of financial assistance, we would not be able to get adoption for some children and we would have to keep them in foster care until they were grown," Mrs. Matthews said.

It costs an average of $110 per month to keep a child in foster care, she added.

Family Services staff provide family counseling

"Strength to Families Under Stress" is the motto of Family Services of Midland, Inc. At this United Way agency, a highly qualified staff of counselors provides professional assistance in all problems relating to the family.

Thanks to you it's working problems, including counseling with the young and the aged, the single and the married, the total family, therapy, and budget counseling.

In addition to services to families under stress, Family Services conducts a vigorous preventive program. The purpose of the program is to understand and avoid some of the more common family conflicts. Lectures, talks "Plays for Living" programs help in prevention.

The latest of the Family Services programs is the Big Brothers-Big Sisters program, which is to provide a volunteer friend for a child from a one-parent family.

These are free services to the community and are available on request.

United Way provides 67 per cent of the Family Services budget, or $41,000 of the 1976 budget of $61,174.

Houston strike ends after fifteen weeks

HOUSTON (AP) — Union electrical workers have voted to return to their jobs at Houston Lighting and Power Co. following a 15-week strike.

The union members voted Sunday 1,172 to 636 to accept the company's latest offer and go back work. About 2,600 electrical workers were involved.

Federal mediator E. D. Kincaid said the decision to submit the company's latest offer to the union was made at a meeting with representatives of the power company Wednesday. The striking linemen and power plant workers had turned down four previous company proposals.

Sihanouk issue raised by death of Mao Tse-tung

BANGKOK — The death of China's Mao Tse-tung ironically has raised new suspicions about the fate of Cambodia's onetime ruler, Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Only last month a group of French Socialists published an appeal for word from the prince, noting "a silence of death has fluttered over the fate of Sihanouk and his family."

That silence has continued at a time when Peking radio is endlessly broadcasting messages of condolences for Mao.

Diplomats in Bangkok, some of whom knew Sihanouk personally, insist that the prince certainly would have sent such a message if he were free to do so. He deeply grateful to the Chinese for their aid during his long years of exile in Peking during the war in Cambodia and had met with Mao on many occasions.

Neither Peking radio nor Phnom Penh radio, however, has made any mention of a message from Sihanouk. Peking radio has acknowledged messages of sympathy from Cambodia's Communist Party chairman, Khieu Samphan.

It is possible Sihanouk has sent such a message but it was not publicized and Peking also remained silent out of deference to the Phnom Penh regime.

Whatever the reason, the silence is ominous. It indicates that at best Sihanouk is some kind of nonperson and under restraint. At worst, we might be dead, as the French Socialists feared.

Last July, there were reports circulating in Peking that Sihanouk and his wife, Princess Monique, had shaved their heads and that Sihanouk was following the life-style of a Buddhist monk. They were reported living in a small villa at Takmau in the southern suburbs of Phnom Penh. These reports have never been confirmed by outside sources.

As recently as last March, Phnom Penh radio hailed Sihanouk for his "historic role" in the "struggle against imperialism." In mid-April, however, the radio carried the announcement that he had resigned as chief of state. The announcement said that he would be given a pension $8,000 yearly, that a monument would be built in his honor and that he had been awarded the title "great patriot."

Since that time his name has never been mentioned and he has vanished from the lists of those attending the few official and diplomatic functions in Phnom Penh.

ENERGY IS HEAT, as any high school physics student will tell you. But to this Tenneco Inc. worker, who is almost lost in a maze of piping, valves, meters, tanks and towers, cold plays a special role in energy transmission. At this new liquefaction plant at Fordtown, Tenn., Tenneco's East Tennessee Natural Gas Co. chills gas to minus 260 degrees Fahrenheit during the warmer months, whereupon it becomes a liquid and is stored in a fraction of the space it would otherwise take. Later, during wintertime periods of high usage, the gas will be re-vaporized and delivered to the company's customers.

Oil, gas exploration reported in WT areas

Petroleum activity continued in Ward, Pecos, Crane and Ector counties.

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. plans to plug back to around 5,035 feet as a wildcat at No. 4 West Caprito Unit, for tests of the Bell Canyon, previously scheduled project in the Caprito (middle Delaware) field of Ward County, nine miles northwest of Pyote.

Drilled to 6,800 feet, it tested through perforations at 5,068-5,820 feet, pumping 316 barrels of water, no oil, in 24 hours, on the last reported test.

Location is 467 feet from north and west lines of section 38, block 17, ULS.

Exxon Corp. plans to drill No. 1 R. O. Seale, a northwest offset to production in the three-well southeast extension area of the Rhoda Walker (Canyon) field of Ward.

It is slated to 6,750 feet, and spots 660 feet from southeast and 1,980 feet from southwest lines of section 111, block 34, H&TC survey, 5 1/4 miles south of Pyote.

PECOS REENTRY
 Hanson Corp. and Carl Oil & Gas, Midland, intend to reenter and clean out to wildcat depth of 5,300 feet, at No. 1 University, Pecos County 5,302-foot failure, five miles northwest of Bakersfield.

Originally drilled by Gulf Oil Corp., plugging date was unavailable.

Location is 1,717 feet from south and 3,268 feet from east lines of section 12, block 20, ULS.

Skelly Oil Co. completed its No. 2-36 Mendel Estate as a sixth Wolfcamp well and location west and southwest extension to that pay in the Gomez field of Pecos.

Calculated, absolute open flow was for 15 million cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 10,704-1. Distillate gravity is 57 degrees.

Completion was through perforations at 10,800-10,860 feet, after treating the pay with 10,360 gallons of acid.

Wellsite is 2,830 feet from north and 720 feet from east lines of section 36, block 48, T-9, T&P survey, 10 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

CRANE OFFSET
 Arvin Norwood Drilling Co., Midland, filed application to drill No. 2 J.E.C. as a 3/4-mile north offset to the upper Clear Fork oil pay opener in the W.E.R. field of South Crane.

Location is 572 feet from northwest and 2,143 feet from southwest lines of section 37, block 2, H&TC survey, 10 1/2 miles southwest of Crane.

The discovery, Norwood No. 1 J.E.C., finished June 28, for 169.72 barrels of 40-gravity oil daily, through an 18-64-inch choke and perforations at 3,121-3,132 feet.

Amoco Production Co. No. 2-AV Midland Farms has been recompleted as a second Pennsylvanian well in the Fasken field of Northeast Ector County, to pump 154 barrels of oil and 5- five barrels of water daily.

Gravity of the oil is 38.5 degrees, and gas-oil ratio was 7791.

Completion of the well is through perforations at 10,126-10,144 feet. The pay had been acidized with 7,500 gallons.

It originally was completed from the Pennsylvanian, however, application had been filed to plug back to recomplete from the Wolfcamp pay.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 36, block 42, T-1-N, G&MMB&A survey, 17 miles north of Odessa.

MIDLAND COMPLETION
 Mobil Oil Corp. No. 7 Carlis Juddkins has been finished as a new producer in the Midland part of the Spraberry (Trend Area) pool.

It flowed 40 barrels of oil and 62 barrels of load water on 24-hour potential test through perforations at 6,996-8,369 feet. Oil gravity is 37.5 degrees and gas-oil ratio is 1,075-1.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 48, block 37, T-3-S, 22 miles southeast of Midland.

Project tests oil

AMARILLO—Mesa Petroleum Co. said its exploratory well on Block 11-30, in which it owns a 25 per cent interest, in the Moray Fifth area of the United Kingdom sector of the North Sea, has been tested at an aggregate flow rate of 6,066 barrels of 37-gravity oil per day from four zones.

The well is located some 12 miles off the northeast coast of Scotland in 150 feet of water.

Commercial significance of the discovery will depend upon the results of additional drilling. Mesa, as operator, expects to commence a second well on the block about Nov. 1, 1976.

Mesa owns a 25 per cent interest in the 55,000-acre block. Other owners are Kerr-McGee Corp. with 25 per cent, Hunt Oil Co. with 15 per cent, P&O Petroleum Ltd., with 15 per cent, Creslienn Chelsea with 15 per cent and Exploration Holding Corp. with 5 per cent.

Phillips Petroleum gives grant to Tech

LUBBOCK—Phillips Petroleum Co. has awarded a $4,000 grant to Texas Tech University from the company's Professional Development Fund, according to an announcement by Dr. Cecil Mackey, president of the university.

The fund supports and encourages professional growth and development of students and faculty in engineering, the physical sciences, business administration and related fields of study important to the petroleum and petrochemical industries.

Presentation of the grant was made through two Phillips representatives, M. O. Clark, branch manager, Engineering and Services, Bartlesville, Okla., and A. M. L. Kube, regional manager, Exploration and Production, Borger.

They said this year's fund will be used by the university's engineering, arts and science and business administration deans and faculties and students.

Individual grants will be administered by deans and department heads in areas of greatest need for students and faculty awards, traveling expenses and fees for off-campus professional societies' meetings, expenses for visiting speakers and programs, and purchase of reference books and professional publications for departmental use.

The Professional Development Fund was established in 1966 by Phillips and this is the 11th annual award made to Texas Tech.

Potential reported

Dowdle Oil Corp. of Midland has announced an official 24-hour potential of 204 barrels of 40-gravity oil for its No. 1 Heidelberg, project in the Midland County part of the Spraberry Trend Area.

Completion of the well was effected through upper Spraberry perforations at 7,402-7,436 feet; lower Spraberry perforations at 8,087-8,307 feet, and from the Dean through perforations at 8,753-8,951 feet.

Reentry of a former Strawn gas well, it spots 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 29, block 38, T-2-S, T&P survey, eight miles southeast of Midland.

Lea Sector gets offset

Flag-Redfern Oil Co., Midland, filed application to drill No. 3 Santa Fe as a location south and west offset to production in the Dickinson (San Andres) field of Lea County, N.M.

It is slated to 5,100 feet, and spots 2,310 feet from north and 320 feet from west lines of section 35-108-36e, seven miles southeast of Crossroads.

Robert E. Baughman
 30th year reached

Exxon Co.-USA has announced that Robert E. Baughman has observed his 30-year service anniversary with the firm.

He is a maintenance foreman in Midkiff, Midland District, Mid-continent Production Division.

He joined Exxon in Kingsville as a field maintenance man. He later worked in production field assignments in Fairfurnas, Odessa, Midland, Goldsmith, Crane and Kermit before transferring to Midkiff in 1971.

Baughman was presented a service award by field superintendent James C. Strawn at a dinner recently in Midkiff.

J. C. Solari

New chapter sets meeting

The National Society of Manufacturing Engineers has recently chartered a new chapter, Permian Basin Chapter 529, to serve all manufacturing personnel in the West Texas area.

The first technical meeting will be held Thursday at OKT Co., Inc., — Coors Hospitality Room on Highway 86 — between Midland and Odessa.

It was reported in error in Sunday's paper that the meeting would be held Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p. m. with the dinner and program to follow.

Jim Clements with Kennametal, Inc., Dallas, will be the speaker. His topic will be "What's New in Insert Cutting Tools."

Reservations must be made by Wednesday noon by telephoning 563-1984 or 333-2875.

Tom Edd Howard

Three mark long tours

Employees in the Midland district of Gulf Energy and Minerals Co.-U.S. have marked service anniversaries.

Tom Edd Howard has worked for the firm 25 years. James J. Storrie is a 20-year employee, and David A. Schaefer has completed 10 years of service.

Howard, an Odessa resident, is water injection plant operator in the Monahans area. He joined Gulf at Kermit and has worked as a field operations man before being assigned to his present post.

Storrie lives in Midland. He is geophysical operations supervisor in the Midland exploration district. He began working for Gulf as a junior geologist in Midland, serving in exploration and production geology. He transferred to the Fort Worth Division as a geologist in geophysical operations in 1958, returning to Midland the following year in exploration geology.

Schaefer joined Mozambique Gulf Oil Co. in 1966 and also served as a geologist with Gulf Italia in Rome, Italy, until his transfer to the Midland exploration district in July, 1975. He attended the University of Illinois and University of Missouri department of geology graduate school. He resides in Midland.

Thief misses payroll checks

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP)—Raymond Turcotte apparently didn't know he was carrying $100,000 in the car he was driving when police here arrested him on auto theft charges.

Police stopped Turcotte, 29, a Jersey City house painter, after receiving an alarm from Jersey City police. They said he took the car when its driver left it to get a cup of coffee.

Police said Turcotte had $3.85 in his pockets when they arrested him.

Robert M. Parsley

Extension indicated

Second producer and a 3/4-mile northwest extension to the Puckett, North (Strawn detrital) field of Pecos County has been indicated with the recovery of distillate and flowing of gas on a drill stem test at Highland, Brown, Brock & Equity No. 3 Wimberly-Bryan, 1 1/8 miles southeast of Fort Stockton.

Tool was open one hour and 10 minutes on the test taken from 9,836-9,868 feet.

It flowed during the final flow period for 30 minutes on a 3/4-inch choke, at the rate of 7.2 million cubic feet of gas per day, and 30 minutes on a 1/2-inch choke, at the rate of 8.2 million cubic feet daily. Recovery was 50 feet of drilling fluid and 180 feet of distillate. The sample chamber recovery was 15.3 cubic feet of gas and 150 cubic centimeters of distillate.

Flowing pressures were 2,981-3,683 pounds; one-hour initial and two-hour final shut-in pressures: were 3,754 and 3,927 pounds, respectively.

The project, scheduled to 10,200 feet, is bottomed at 10,125 feet, and operator was running test tool for another drillstem test from 10,050-10,125 feet.

The test is 1,980 feet from south and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 10, block 100, EL&RR survey.

The discovery, Brock, Highland and Equity No. 2 Wimberly-Bryan, finished in late July, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 33 million cubic feet of gas daily, plus 64 barrels of condensate per million cubic feet of gas, through perforations at 9,898-9,738 feet. Gravity of the distillate is 58 degrees.

Coquina adds pair to staff

Coquina Oil Corp. has announced two new appointments in its Midland office.

J. C. "Joe" Solari has been named manager of production operations and reservoir, and Robert M. Parsley has been appointed exploration geologist.

Solari was associated with Chevron Oil Co. in engineering assignments in Texas and California before joining Coquina. He is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

Parsley, a graduate of the University of California at Northridge, also holds a M. S. degree from Ohio State University. Prior to joining Coquina, he was associated with the exploration department of El Paso-Natural Gas Co. in Midland.

Martin test finals

RK Petroleum Corp., Midland, No. 1-B Juliett Wolcott, Martin County Devonian discovery, nine miles northwest of Tarzan, was completed natural, to pump 200 barrels of 46-gravity oil per day, plus 250 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 55-1.

It finished from open hole at 12,084-12,095 feet, in 5 1/4-inch casing seated at 12,084 feet, on total depth of 12,095 feet.

Wellsite is 6,384 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 251, Ward CSL survey, four miles south of the Breedlove (Devonian) field.
