AS TRAFFIC whizzed by on busy Slide Road, a handsomely-attired couple entered a West Lubbock jewelry store empty-handed Saturday, then exited casually 20 minutes later with a tote bag filled with an estimated $100,000 worth of precious gems, rings and jewelry and an ac-

The man and woman, who reportedly had entered Meyer's Jewelry Store at 5408 Slide Rd. Sept. 3 to look at a ring, returned about 1 p.m. Saturday and once again asked to look at some rings.

The couple seated themselves at the small, waist-high display counters as a woman attendant offered to help. After viewing several rings, the "husband"

As the young female attendant conversed with the couple at the other end of the long, narrow showroom, the male of the duo discussed diamonds and finding a man's ring in which to set a stone.

As he spoke, police said the woman attendant told them, the man calmly removed a large revolver from his tan, leisure suit jacket and told the woman "this

'Fine' Fair Sees Dip In Attendance

Plains Fair drew to a close Saturday night, with an elusive attendance record something to shoot for next year.

And, as in previous years, the weather appeared to be the culprit.

Heat Instead Of Rain While rain, main drawback for any fair and a frequent problem here in other years, stayed away, clear skies and unseasonably warm temperatures may have diminished fairgoers' enthusiasm.

However, those persons brave enough to endure the record-breaking temperatures were treated to a fine time at the fair. Longtime observers characterized the exposition as one of the best ever, both from the standpoint of exhibits as well as outstanding attractions.

Saturday's closing activities included a quarter horse show, twirling festival, Dave Merrifield's helicopter trapese act, the All Youth Rodeo and numerous day-long performances staged for the visi-

After the shooting died down, there was no sign of troops or armored vehicles in midtown. But soldiers were reported to have taken up positions along the main roads leading from the airport to the city.

The Bangladesh air vice marshal who had led the negotiations from the airport tower since the plane landed at Dacca on Wednesday, and other Bangladesh officials were reported still at the airport terminal after the revolution began. Witnesses at the airport said at least four army officers were shot by soldiers apparently taking part in the revolt. The hijackers gave no indication what they planned to do next with the remaining 80 hostages. The jetliner was refueled and stood at the southern tip of an isolated runway, apparently ready to take off.

Officials in the Dacca control tower said the plane was expected to head east, but they did not elaborate. Earlier, Japanese Foreign Ministry sources said the terrorists wanted to go to a "revolutionary" state willing to accept them.

Early in the 90-hour siege, the hijackers had freed 10 passengers and on Saturday they released California banker John Gabriel, who officials said had been singled out for execution by the Japanese "Red

When the shaken woman realized what was happening, police said, she attempted to attract King's attention.

At that point the second suspect, attired in a blue denim leisure suit, revealed his weapon, also a large revolver. Police said a female suspect then went behind the counter, pulled on a pair of surgical gloves and began raking stones into a leather tote bag. Meanwhile, her male companion slipped on a similar pair of gloves, officers said, as the second man stood peering out the front windows east toward Slide Road.

Palestinian Peace Role Urged By U.S., Soviets

United States joined with the Soviet Union on Saturday in urging Israel to recognize the "legitimate rights of the Palestinian people" and to grant a negotiating role at Middle East peace talks to their "representatives."

A joint declaration, designed to speed up convening of a Geneva conference on the Middle East, called also on Israel to withdraw from territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

In the past, the United States has publicly supported only the "legitimate interests" of the Palestinians. The reference to "rights," included at the behest of the Soviet side, appeared to bring the Carter administration closer toward accepting the idea of Palestinian statehood.

The declaration was issued by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko after the latter's return to Moscow. They met last in New York on Friday morning.
The statement marked the closest Soviet-American cooperation since the two nations co-chaired the convening of the brief opening session of the Geneva con-ference in December, 1973 following the last Arab-Israeli war.

The State Department spokesman,
Hodding Carter, said the "rights" of the Palestinians, including the nature of their eventual "homeland," should be negotiated at Geneva. He stressed that these "rights" cannot be achieved with-out an end to belligerency in the area and "are not to be purchased at the expense

In several respects, the statement appeared to represent further pressure by the Carter administration on Israel. It said the Palestinians should participate in the "work" of the Geneva conference

Overdrafts Aren't 'Common' Here, Say Irritated Bankers

By SYLVIA TEAGUE

Avalanche-Journal Staff
MENTION OVERDRAFTS to area bankers and they see red - especially if the word is used in the same sentence with the name of former Management and Budget Director Bert Lance.

Local bankers say the banking industry has suffered a black eye from the Lance incident, particularly from his comment that overdrafts are a common banking prac-

There are few state or federal regulations about overdrafts except those credit regulations which can be applied to the situation.

State regulations prohibit a bank officer from borrow-ing from the bank (including overdrafts) without the prior approval of the institution's board of directors. Federal regulations which apply to national banks place a $5,000 limit on loans to officers.

Because there is a dearth of regulations, overdraft poli-cies differ greatly from bank to bank. However, all bank presidents contacted said overdrafts are discouraged and considered an unsound practice.

Several bank presidents said they simply don't allow of-licers to overdraw their accounts.

"We just don't do it," said W. R. Collier, president of American State Bank.

"We counsel with our people, and they know the regalations in advance." American State also does not allow its officers to borrow from the bank. "We don't encourage overdrafts at all," he said. Mabry Brock, president of the First State Bank of Shal-

LULAC Director Threatens Court Action Against County

By SYLVIA TEAGUE Avaianche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Commissioners, no strangers to the federal courtroom after litigation over the Lubbock County Jail, may find themselves defendants in federal court action once again.

The state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LU-LAC), Ruben Bonilla, said here Saturday county commissioners in Lubbock and five nearby counties may find themselves in the courtroom if they do not redistrict so that Mexican-Americans are represented in proportion to their numbers in the general population. Bonilla, a Corpus Christi attorney, said Saturday LULAC has lent its support to a plan by the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund (MALDEF) and the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project (SVREP), a plan which targets 66 Texas counties for law suits which they allege are violating the one man-one vote principle. Bonilla said "Texas county governments are not sensitive to the needs of minority residents.'

A suit had already been filed in Crockett County, while suits have been avoided in other target counties through settle-

Bonilla said the suits were not "spurious litigation" but an effort to insure 'equal representation as provided under the law.

Approximately 20 per cent of the population of Lubbock and surrounding counties is Mexican-American, Bonilla said. "Because of the low population, we've not received proportionate representa-

Bonilla emphasized commissioners courts would be given a chance for a "working compromise" before legal action is taken.

The director, in Lubbock for the annual scholarship banquet of the local LULAC chapter, said the organization is launching a political action campaign.

Bonilla said the effort would concentrate on registering voters and insuring candidates address the issues concerning the Mexican-American population. He said the campaign is aimed at a "political revitalization in the Spanishspeaking community." "By 1980 the Hispanics will be the largest minority block in the nation, surpassing the Blacks," he said.

Bonilla pointed to state Rep. Froy Salinas as an example that the Mexican-American community could produce 'competent persons to hold office.'

He noted Salinas had been named one of three top freshman in the Texas House by the LULAC state executive committee for his ability "to work with the tri-ethnic community.

Bonilla said all the attention in the Bakke "reverse discrimination" case set for U.S. Supreme Court action has been on its possible effect on Blacks.

"We've forgotten about the Brown American who will be adversely affected if the decision is upheld.

"We're not so foolhardy as to believe discrimination no longer exists," he said. Bonilla also singled out President Carter's illegal alien plan for criticism because it does not go "far enough."

"Many aliens pay taxes in Lubbock, and they are entitled to citizenship if these taxes are accepted," he said.

LULAC held its district meeting Saturday morning and passed a resolution of support for the SER board of directors in its negotiation for a new contract with the South Plains Association of Govern-

Prosecutors Seek Limits

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Prosecutors in the Cullen Davis murder trial acted Saturday to restrict the millionaire defendant's freedom of movement both in and out of

"It's a legitimate concern," Dist. Court Judge George Dowlen told a reporter after a closed-door session with attorneys for both sides. The meeting in his chambers occurred after a relative of one of the jurors entered the courtroom where Davis is on trial for his life in the 1976 slaying of his young stepdaugh-

Davis has had almost total freedom to move about the courthouse and does so daily, talking with friends, spectators, newsmen and anyone who wanders in off the street. "The overall problem is that we're so cramped up here there is no place for even the defendant to talk to his lawyers," Dowlen said.

"But we have to take steps to see that there isn't any kind of (improper) conversation with anyone. That applies not only to the defendant but the attorneys as well.

"It's a situation that needs to be eliminated," he said, confirming he intends to prepare a set of guidleines, "and they will be followed."

Chief defense counsel Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said the problem is there is no room available to allow private conferences with the defendant.

Haynes said it is "more likely than not" that Davis would accidentally make an offhand remark that would be harmful rather than self-serving.

"And if that somehow is transmitted to a juror it can cut your throat," he said.

Maeanwhile, Haynes resumed cross-examination of a crime scene search officer who participated in the investigation after two were slain and two wounded at Davis' Fort Worth mansion.

Officer Benny Thompson earlier identified evidence recovered from the basement utility room where investigators found the body of Davis' stepdaughter, Andrea Wil-

Prosecutors called Thomspon in their first effort to show conclusively that the child was killed in the basement rather than some other area of the blood-splattered mansion. Although a bullet was recovered from the room, investigators thought at one time the child was killed elsewhere and her body dragged downstairs to the basement. But prosecutors presented evidence indicating the bullet passed through Andrea's chest, ricocheted off a wall and dropped to the floor before she fell fatally wounded on top

Photographs of an indentation in the wall and a sliver of wood nicked from it were introduced into evidence.

Carter Administration Proposes Quick Tax Cut

ation's economy may start sinking again next year are behind administration proosals for a quick tax cut in mid-1978 before formal enactment of President Carter's tax reform plan.

That is evident from statements by a number of top government officials in recent weeks, including President Carter, who pledged the administration will take steps to deliver on its promise for vigorous non-inflationary growth in 1978.

Concern that the economy may not hit the 5 per cent growth target without some additional help has been wide-spread both in and out of government.

The proposal for a one-shot tax cut, while still only a proposal, was put forward by the Treasury Department with the concurrence of the Council of Economic Advisers.

The exact amount of such a cut was not outlined, nor was the form it might take. But several obvious possibilities are a tax rebate like the $50-per-person rebates that Carter initially proposed after taking

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fears that the office, but later withdrew, or a temporary reduction in income taxes through lower withholding rates.

Although tax cuts also will be a major feature of the President's comprehensive tax reform program, they would not be expected to take effect until Jan. 1, 1979, which could be too late to prevent an economic downturn and a rise in unemploy-

Administration officials are talking of over-all tax reductions in the President's comprehensive program of between $15 billion to $20 billion, with about one-third for business and two-thirds for individu-

The tax reform plan itself is still in the decision-making stage at the White House, but the rough outline is now tak-ing shape. The scheduled release date has been pushed back until the third week in

Although final decisions aren't yet made, here is what is known about it so far:

- Taxes would be decreased for most be a cut in the actual average tax rate from 13.9 per cent at present to 12.4 per cent for families with incomes between $20,000 and $30,000, a savings of about $375 for a typical family of four in that inportionally for families with income under $20,000. From $15,000 to $20,000, the rate would be reduced from 11.2 per cent

The result of the tax reductions, coupled with the trimming and closing of some tax exemptions, would be to increase to 83 per cent the proportion of taxpayers who use the standard deduction on their tax returns. The percentage - The current range in tax rates of 70

is now 75 per cent. per cent on the highest incomes to 14 per cent on the lowest, would be reduced to 50 per cent at the top and 12 per cent at

- The change in tax rates would effectively exempt a family of four with income below $9,500 from paying any taxes, up from a cutoff of $7,600 now. The highest rates would apply to couples with taxable income above $80,000 and to single persons with incomes above $60,000.

Taxpayers would get a $250 tax credit for each personal exemption they are now entitled to; this would would replace the present $750 per person tax exemption and the general $35 per exemption tax credit. This would tend to reduce taxes for families with incomes below $20,000 and increase them for families above that level.

Tax credits are deducted directly from taxes owed; the exemptions are now deducted from gross income before taxes are figured and do not represent a dollarfor-dollar savings on a tax bill.

 A special deduction would be provided for one member of a working married couple to eliminate the so-called "marriage penalty" which can result in increased taxes for some married couples over what they would pay if they remained single.

- There would be a ceiling of $10,000 on the interest deductions that taxpayers can claim for mortgages, loans and con-

- Deductions for sales taxes, personal property taxes and gasoline taxes would

Currently allowed deductions for medical expenses, drugs and property damage would be rearranged and allowable only to the extent the cumulative toadjusted gross income.

lowed, and only half of the cost of business meals could be claimed. - There would be a phased lowering of the current 50 per cent exemption of profits on capital gains for individuals. - The corporate tax rate would be dropped to 46 per cent from the present 48 per cent on profits above $50,000.

- There would be a reduction in the current double tax on corporate dividends by allowing individual shareholders a credit on their taxes, equal to a proportional share of the taxes paid by the corporation.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal has said a major purpose of the tax program is to cut business taxes sufficiently to encourage business to invest in new job-creating enterprises.

Another major purpose of the program is to close so-called tax preferences, or loopholes, that Carter railed against during his campaign for president.

Originally, the tax reductions for individuals were contemplated as a way of helping win public support for the more controversial business-oriented benefits in the program.

But as new questions about the strength of the economy have been raised in recent weeks and months, the tax cuts for individuals are assuming greater importance, since they could be useful in speeding the economy if it turns sluggish next year.

Treasury Borrows As Debt Limit Stays WASHINGTON (AP) - The Treasury

ent suspended sales of U.S. Savings Bonds and turned to emergency cash reserves Saturday following the expiration of its power to borrow money. With the Senate entangled in a filibuster over natural gas prices, Congress let the Friday midnight deadline slip by without passing final legislation to raise the debt ceiling. Hours before the debt ceiling expired and the government's new fiscal year began, the Treasury borrowed $2.5 billion from the Federal Reserve System, increasing its cash holdings to more than "There won't be an immediate problem in paying bills," a Treasury spokesman said. "If all goes well it is reasonable to expect the government will be able to pay its bills for about three weeks."

New debt ceiling legislation is expected to be passed by Congress and signed by President Carter long before the money runs out. But the spokesman said that because there is now no new debt limit law, the government lacks authority to issue new bonds and has told its 40,000 agents across the country to stop selling U.S.

"The Treasury Department also will be unable to complete scheduled transac-tions involving so-called special arbitrage securities, which are issued in connection with refunding of tax-exempt bond issues by state and local governments," a deat said.

It said, however, that previously announced securities auctions of bills and notes will be held as scheduled, because securities issued to government accounts prior to the expiration of the debt ceiling

major money matters, including energy prices and Social Security taxes, are continuing in Congress as a new budget

Financially, October brought both the beginning of fiscal 1978, during which Congress expects the government will run a $61.3 billion deficit, and the ending of the $700 billion temporary legal ceiling on the national debt. Along with the energy bill, which still embroils the Senate in a filibuster over natural gas prices, and committee consideration of Social Security tax proposals in both houses, Congress faces a final decision on the debt ceiling. While the lawmakers settled earlier on their basic budget plans for the new fiscal year, they failed to agree on new debt limit legislation in time. Here is the status of other major legis-fiospital cost increases to about nine per cent annually. Legislation to deal with abuses of the Medicare and Medicaid health programs is awaiting work in a Senate-House conference committee.

— Labor: waiting for Senate considera-tion is House-approved legislation boost-ing the existing $2.30 hourly minimum wage to $2.65 in January, to $2.85 in 1979 and to $3.05 in 1980. Meanwhile, the House is to take up proposals revar the nation's labor la

- Agriculture: Carter signed an $11 biln-a-year farm men

The situation arose when leaders of the Senate filibuster threatened to prevent the debt ceiling bill from coming to a vote during consideration of the pending energy bill. Although they later relented, the House had adjourned for the weekend making final approval by both houses impossible before the deadline passed.

The House earlier had approved a new debt limit of $773 billion. The Senate version sets the limit at $752 billion. The bill must now go back to the House, which can either accept the Senate total or call for the convening of a conference committee to reconcile the two figures.

Because the government spends more than it takes in in taxes and other income, the Treasury needs authority to borrow to cover the deficit and to refinance earlier loans as they come in.

Former CBS reporter Daniel Schorr said in an article published in The New York Review of Books that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover sent the information to the Warren Commission when it investigated Kennedy's Nov. 22, 1963, murder but no action was taken.

Hoover's 1964 letter to the commission was released in 1976, but the key paragraph containing Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's remarks about the Mexico City incident was deleted, Schorr reported.

Schorr said failure by the commission to investigate the matter or to look into previous CIA attempts on Castro's life contributed to the mystery of whether Oswald acted alone — or even was possibly encouraged by Castro in a roundabout way. It has been previously reported that Oswald visited the Mexico City embassy in an attempt to get a visa to visit Cuba en route to the Soviet

"The Cuban ambassador in Mexico City had reported the incident to Havana. It had not been taken seriously at the time, but after Kennedy's assassination, Castro had come to suspect that the effort to get Oswald into Cuba was part of a right-wing conspiracy. Oswald would return from Cuba, then assassinate the president, and it would look as though Castro had been responsible." Schorr wrote.

Oswald's Widow Dozes During TV Film

DALLAS (UPI) - Marina Oswald Porter, widow of Lee Harvey Oswald, slept through most of a made-for-television movie fictionalizing events which might have happened had Oswald lived to stand trial for the assassination of President Kenne-

"I thought it was pretty true," said Mrs. Porter about ABC's production of "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald," which was aired Friday night. "I watched part of it but I fell asleep. I worked all day and I was just tired."

Mrs. Porter, whose book about her life with Oswald will be released in several weeks, said she has always maintained Oswald was guilty of the crime and was not bitter about the fictionalized trial which portrays Oswald as a madman.

"But what I saw was pretty close to the truth," she said. "I guess that's about all I can say about it." Robert Oswald, brother of the accused murderer who was shot and killed by Jack Ruby after the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination, said he was "not overly impressed" by the show.

Planning Ahead, Patience Bring Airline Bargains

ed Americans with the patience and time to plan ahead, the highly competitive airline industry is offering some of its best

But unlike the once-popular family plans and youth-fares of the 1960s and 1970s, the latest trend is to key plans, not to a specific group of travelers, but to specific cities and routes. There also are plenty of rules to sort out; when reservation should be made, whether the discount applies to weekends or week days, and at what time of day you might fly most cheaply.

Within the past couple of years a lexicon of new terms - "super saver" "super coach" and even "peanuts fare"have popped up to describe various pro-

A new addition this past week was Laker Airways' "Skytrain," which offers New York to London "no-frills" flights on a first-come, first-served basis. The roundtrip to London fare is $260, compared to regular economy fare of $626. The risk a prospective passenger takes is that he may be left at the airport, if the seats are filled when he shows up to buy a ticket

A half dozen airlines, which sought to compete with Laker by offering low-fare systems with different sets of rules, got a boost from President Carter this past week. Citing increased competition for U.S. lines, Carter overturned rates that had been approved by the Civil Aeronat-ics Board in favor of the lower ones the airlines had requested.

The decision put the roundtrip cost of the airline's cheapest budget plan at $256 roundtrip between New York and London and authorized similar flights from seven other U.S. cities. In addition, at least one airline, Trans World Airways, is seeking to extend its low-fare to other had since they started operating, and that's both domestically and internation-

It also comes at a time when passen gers may want to look even harder for bargain flights. A number of airlines have received approval for general fare increases on domestic routes lately: United has a 1.8 per cent boost going into effect this weekend and said it would seek CAB approval for another 1.2 per cent increase effective Nov. 4; Trans World Airlines also says it expects to file for a fare increase soon.

While discount plans are not new - the first may date back to the 1930s when American Airlines offered a 10 per cent discount to those who purchsed roundtrip instead of one way tickets - they do have a way of fading in and out. Airline spokesmen say the youth fare and family plans of the 1960s and early 1970s were discontinued when the CAB got complaints that they discriminated uropean cities.

There are time and reservation restricwho didn't meet the age qualifications.

The latest trend of basing discount plans on airplane routes shouldn't run into that difficulty, but airline spokesmen say it may be too early to tell if the plans will remain as permanent travel features.

"It depends entirely on the experience we see," says a spokesman at TWA. "If they merely serve to dilute from our fullfare passengers they may not be profitable. But if they generate new traffic, I think everybody will make out."

In other developments this past week: -The Commerce Department also revised its index figure for July to reflect a two-tenths of a per cent increase, instead of a two-tenths percentage decline. The

on the business outlook and the money supply gave Wall Street some reassurance this past week on two issues that have been bothering the stock market for the past several months.

The Commerce Department reported that the index of leading economic indicators rose 0.8 per cent in August, and the weekly report from the Federal Reserve showed a $1.1 billion drop in the basic measure of the money supply

The market responded with an upturn that lifted the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials 7.97 points to 847.11.

The New York Stock Exchange's composite index rose .74 to 52.81, and the American Stock Exchange market value index climbed 1.75 to 118.88.

The upswing in the leading-indicators index, on the other hand, had been expected, but analysts generally were looking for a smaller rise, in the 0.2 to 0.6 per cent range. The strong showing by the index, which is designed to function as a kind of economic crystal ball, seemed to soothe some of Wall Street's recent fears of a slump in business activity.

At the same time, the Commerce Department revised the index's July reading from a 0.2 per cent decline to a 0.2 in-

Thus, by the magic of statistical revision, the "warning signal" registered by the leading indicators with three consecutive declines in May, June and July was cancelled. The news fell in line with the assertions of the optimists in the financial community that the market's uneasiness in recent months over the business outlook has been excessive. In fact, a number of Wall Street's "bulls" cite the skeptical mood of the market of late as a central element in Attendant Bobby Cochran, 19, told police the man first entered the store about 5:10 a.m. and asked for a pack of cigarettes, then produced a .38-caliber pistol.

After taking an undetermined amount of cash from Cochran, the 20s, ordered the attendant to lie on the floor. Seconds later, the attendant told police he heard the man in a back storeroom.

After the suspect fled on foot out the front door, the victim said he checked the store room and discovered a money bag and cash missing.

Just hours before, attendant Glenda Lattimore at a store at 40th Street and Avenue A had found herself in a similarly perilous position.

A lone bandit there had escaped with an undetermined, but believed to be small, amount of money.

After the suspect, described as a Mexican-American man, entered the store about 8:45 p.m. he reportedly ordered the woman to fill a sack with money while he shopped.

Moments later, police said, the suspect came back to the counter carrying a soft drink and a can of dog food, before claiming the cash. The man left the scene in a dark-colored Volkswagen, police said. Police had made no arrests in either incident late Saturday.

Elsewhere, thefts and burglaries were running both police and the victims ragged.

D.L. Eustace of 302 E. Purdue St. said someone stole three violins, valued at an estimated $1,000 sometime Friday, in addition to about $1,500 worth of tools. The items all were stolen from a truck sales center at 2519 Clovis Rd., the victim said.

After kicking in Rita Chavez' front door at 2117 Ave. B Friday night, someone made off with a shotgun, television and stereo equipment, all val-ued at $900, reports indicated.

Two televisions, a phone message recorder and sound equipment were reported stolen by Marshall-Nagle of 3301 1qth St. Saturday. Nagle said the items had been taken from a rental outlet at 1010 Ave. U sometime Friday or Saturday. After breaking into the business with a tire tool, reports indicated, the burglars made off with the nearly $850 worth of merchandise.

Saturday morning turned out to be unlucky for a 58-year-old Lubbock man, who told police he was besten, and his wallet and car were stolen after er he left a club at 4th Street and Quirt Avenue. No suspects in connection with the incident were in custody late

Japanese Trade Criticized

TOKYO (AP) - Japan is being caught in a steadily increasing cross-fire of com-plaints about its trading practices, and Washington is leading the attack.

U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps was the latest in a parade of top economic officials to visit Tokyo. She and others want the Japanese to do something about their huge trade surplus and the flood of Japanese products that have many American politicians and businessmen clamoring for tariffs and quotas.

Additionally, the European Economic Community is threatening to launch a trade war with Tokyo. Australia has widened disputes over sugar and beef into a debate over the trend of Japanese-Australian trade.

Even Japan's new found friends in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations still are unhappy with Japanese trade policy, officials have indicated.

Complaints about specific Japanese products - steel, autos, ships television have been chronic for several years in the U.S. and Europe, but this year they have increased. Europe also has complained about the general trend of trade with Japan.

The Japanese, for the most part, buy raw materials and sell manufactured goods. Their market for imported manufactured products is limited and foreign products run into a maze of official and

For the past few months, the major issue has been trade balances. Japan is running a trade surplus with nearly every major trading partner. In the case of the United States, the surplus is expected to total more than $7.5 billion this year.

Japan's total surplus, including regular trade and "invisible" trade - tourist spending, freight costs, financial costs is officially estimated at $6.5 billion this

"The cost of that surplus is a worsening trade balance for other countries," particularly the U.S., an American official

The EEC, especially, is upset. 'Many of the factors that brought about the trade war last year (between the EEC and Japan) are present in a heightened fashion again this year," said Endymion Wilkinson, first secretary of the EEC's commission in Tokyo.

"Our deficit is higher, unemployment is higher, gross national product growth is lower. Japan's GNP growth is higher, Japan's surplus is bigger, her imports are less and her unemployment is lower.

"We begin to ask ourselves, 'what the hell are we putting up with?

Rome, Turin Suffer Acts Of Violence

ROME (AP) - Left-wing extremists clashed with police, wrecked cars and stores and bombed cafes and right-wing hangouts in Rome and other Italian cities today to protest the killing of a leftist youth by a neo-fascist sharpshooter.

The violence erupted on the fringes of massive leftist demonstrations over the

In Turin, a man was burned critically in a cafe, allegedly a meeting place for rightists, which was set afire by rioters huriing gasoline bombs.

Protesters in Rome broke through a police cordon, hurled stones and bottles of gasoline and bombed a neighborhood office of the neo-fascist Social Movement. The blast wrecked the office and shattered windows in a wide area.

In Milan a group of extremists also broke into a cafe known as a meeting place for rightists and set it afire with bottles of gasoline

Massive protest marches and demonstrations were staged to protest a series of shooting attacks by neo-fascists against leftist youths in Rome earlier this week.

In those shootings, two girl students talking with friends were wounded seriously in separate attacks Tuesday and Thursday, and Walter Rossi, 20, was shot dead by a youth near a neo-fascist hangout Friday night.

Police arrested 15 neo-fascist youths in Rossi's shooting.

Investigators said the attacks were the work of a right-wing extremist gang recently formed to stir up disorder in order to undermine Premier Giulio Andreotti's Christian Democrat government and his pact with the Communist party.

The biggest demonstration was staged by non-partisan groups in Rome. As some 10,000 protesters, mostly young, marched and shouted anti-fascist slogans, hundreds of young people, their faces hidden by scarves, broke away from the main march, pelted police with stones and iron bolts and bombed the Social Movement office.

A policeman and a young man were hospitalized with bullet wounds. There were reports of other injured persons but none was described as seriously hurt.

Automobiles were overturned across streets to block traffic and some were set afire. The rioters also shattered winds of several stores and cafes as police hurled volleys of tear gas.

In the past years, it has centered around the Fourth of July, when the Washington weather usually is hot and humid. There was talk of abandoning it for 1977, but the 11th annual festival will be held, in a new location.

One of the largest demonstrations outdoors will be an exhibit produced in conjunction with the Energy Research and Development Administration, the Smithsonian's department of science and technology and its office of folklife studies.

Called "America's Appetite (For Energy)," the exhibit aims to make people think about energy and the relationship between food and energy.

There will be extensive labels pointing up the relationship. Joseph Dukert, consultant to the energy administration, notes that only a small percentage of energy is used in food production. More

Bishop Offers To Quit

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (AP) — The head of the Episcopal Church says he will resign if other church leaders believe his opposition to women priests hampers his effectiveness, but no moves were made Saturday to accept such

Several church officials told the House of Bishops on Saturday it should continue to support the Rt. Rev. John M. Allin, who took office as presiding bishop in 1974 for a 12-

"We accept him and his leadership. We are grateful that the presiding bishop indicated how he feels," the Rt. Rev. Robert P. Atkinson of Charleston, W.Va., told the church's governing body here for an eight-day meeting.

Bishop Allin told the group at the opening session Friday night that he would resign rather than change his mind over the church's decision last year to allow women to be priests in the Episcopal Church.

However, he said he would abide by the decision of the governing body of the three million-member congregation. He said he did not believe women "can be priests any more than they can be fathers or husbands.'

"My mind holds no question or doubts as the rights and abilities of women to be elders, rulers, executives, generals, presidents, judges or queens," Bishop Allin said. I remain unconvinced that women can be priests.

"If it is determined by prayerful authority that this limitation prevents one from serving as the presiding bishop of this church, I am willing to resign the office."

About 60 women have been ordained as priests in the United States since the general convention of priests, bishops and lay persons voted to admit women to the priethoood last year, said church spokesman Walter Boyd.

The Rt. Rev. J. Brooke Mosley, assistant bishop of Pennsylvania, said the presiding bishop has the freedom to hold his own opinion on church issues.

"He has a right to continue as presiding bishop, and we should accept him," added The Rt. Rev. Robert Terwilli-

RT. REV. JOHN M. ALLIN

More than 130 Episcopal bishops from around the world began an eight-day meeting with Friday's session. They'll deal later with other church controversies, including the furor caused by the ordination of an avowed lesbian and changing church attitudes toward divorce and homosex-

The House of Bishops and the House of Deputies form the church's general convention, which has final authority in matters of policy and doctrine.

A coalition of 15 Episcopal organizations is disgruntled by the decision to ordain women and by changes in the centuries-old wording of the Book of Common Prayer.

Dissident church leaders and members met in St. Louis in September and decided to set up their own churches and break away from the national body.

Bishop Allin had asked to speak at the St. Louis meeting but he was turned down. He attended the meeting as an

New Law Okays Drug Executions

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) - It will be clinical, swift and virtually painless. No guns, ropes, surges of electricity or hiss of deadly gas will be needed when Oklahoma next carries out the death penalty.

But death by drugs is new territory. There is no regimen for implementing the state's new method of executing its condemned convicts.

Oklahoma legislators approved the new method late in the 1977 session. Gov. David Boren signed it into law in May, and it took effect in September. Proponents said it would be a more humane form of capital punishment than "Old Sparky," the state's long dormant The new law is the first of its kind ever proposed in the nation. Shortly afterward, Texas passed a similar law. The law mandates death by a lethal ing for several weeks how best to administer the penalty. We've got some definite ideas, but we still have some kinks to work out before we can make a final decision on how to proceed," Benton said. "We want to be sure that what we do is completely Benton and Oklahoma State Prison Warden Richard Crisp recently returned from Huntsville, Tex., where they conferred with Texas corrections officials about how death by drugs should be carried out. The officials have worked out this proposed tableau:

The condemned prisoner, wearing a dark suit appropriate for burial, is escorted to the death chamber by two guards and a clergyman He is strapped on a white-sheeted ta-ble, or possibly upright in a chair. His sleeve is rolled up.

A corrections department medical team inserts an intravenous tube, then leaves. Medical ethics prevent their further participation.

Another team enters. A death team.

Benton is said to be favoring a "firing squad" method, to prevent the team members and others from knowing who dministers the fatal dose. Three executioners stand behind a partitioned wall. Each holds a syringe. Two contain a harmless sugar solution and the third contains the lethal drug. The small plungers are pressed and the condemned person is quickly dead of a

An Arkansas band member, Diana Wake, 19, of Fayette, Ark., was also killed. Four other band members traveling with her were injured.

Three other persons in the Nation vehicle were injured. Mitchell Nation, 4, remained in critical condition while Kris after leaving the scene of the accident.

riously injured. They were David Dunagin, 21, Gravette, Ark., and Mike Brown, 18, Waldron, Ark.

Gromyko Sees Progress In SALT Talks

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said Saturday the United States and the Soviet Union have "stepped onto the road which leads to an agreement" for a new strategic arms limitation accord.

"It may be said that the two powers. the Soviet Union and the United States. have now stepped onto the road which leads to agreement. But it can not be said that all questions have been decided," he said.

Gromyko made his optimistic assessment of last week's talks with President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance in an unusual interview recorded in the United States for Soviet national television.

The 1972 U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement (SALT), the first joint effort aimed at restricting the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers, expires Monday with no new accord ready to replace it.

The expiration will legally enable both sides to resume an unrestricted arms race. But in recent days each nation has of the current agreement as long as the separately pledged to abide by the terms other side does so. "It may be said that the positions of the two sides were brought somewhat closer together as a result of the talks held in Washington the other day (last Tuesday), and the situation in this respect is better today than it was before." Gromyko said. 'Some questions still remain, but I would put them in second place. Some of them and even, perhaps most of them, can be finished off by the delegations of the two countries in Geneva. As is known, the main issues are decided at a different political level, and some progress has been made on the key is-

Gromyko reiterated the Kremlin's position against any new SALT agreement which would involve "unilateral advantages," a charged aimed at the United States after abortive talks last March.

Gromyko said any summit meeting be-tween Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Breshnev should be preceded by de-tailed preparations to ensure the confer-ence leads to concrete agreements.

"It would be good if such a meeting was duly prepared and actually took place," Gromyko said.

At the same time, there is no specific reference to the 1967 U.N. Security Council's Resolution 242 which has served as the basis for U.S. policy in the Middle East.

While agreeing to drop a specific reference to the resolution in the joint declaration, the United States managed to have the resolution's basic terms set forth. These include mutual recognitioon of the sovereignty of Israel and the Arab countries as well as their territorial integrity, meaning Israel should restore 1967

Byrd Vows Senate Vote On Gas Price

ty Leader Robert C. Byrd pledged Saturday the Senate will take a conclusive vote on natural gas pricing no matter how long it takes to end a filibuster on the is-

As the Senate held its second consecutive Saturday session, Byrd conceded that supporters of lifting federal natural gas controls have the votes to win.

But he predicted that federal controls still will be in effect when Congress completes work on the critical portion of President Carter's energy bill, although he said producers will be permitted to charge higher prices.

"Senate Tired" "The Senate is tired of this filibuster," said Byrd, predicting that a conclusive vote is likely by Tuesday.

Despite the prediction, leaders of the filibuster refused again Saturday to agree to set a time for a vote to end a fight that is threatening to block passage of the President's entire energy package.

The Senate worked on the natural gas bill for six hours Saturday, then quit after a long series of parliamentary squabbles that did little to end the filibuster.

Some senators have urged that Byrd should withdraw the bill and move on to other matters because militant foes of deregulated natural gas prices appear determined to to keep up their filibuster in-meeting with reporters. "You can forget that rumor. We have to have an energy Among other filibusters during his 19

Despite a defeat on a key test vote Friday, Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and James Abourezk, D-S.D., said they were prepared to keep the Senate tied up for two more weeks if necessary. Protracted Battle

At issue in the protracted battle is whether Congress should end 23 year of price controls over a fuel source which the administration says is running out.

Backers of deregulation say only if producers are allowed to set prices will they earn high enough profits to provide enough incentive to find new reserves.

Deregulation opponents say that while higher price ceilings may be needed, an end to controls would raise home heating costs sharply and give the producers excessive profits.

Decontrol Plan

The Senate is considering a deregulation plan which would allow the ceiling to rise from its present $1.46 per thousand cubic feet to about $2.48 for two years, with the lid taken off thereafter.

The administration is supporting a plan for a $2.03 ceiling which would rise with inflation, but remain as a cap nonethe-When the Senate decides one way or the other, the natural gas bill must go to House-Senate conference committee. The House has voted a $1.75 lid as originally urged by Carter. Byrd said that while the figure in the final House-Senate bill will be higher than $1.75, deregulation will be rejected. As he has for the 12 days since the Senate began the frequently emotional natural gas debate, Byrd held meetings off and on all day Saturday, seeking some way out of the parliamentary entanglement which showed not signs of ending. Although the Senate has voted to shut

Anonymous Caller Threatens Mayor

Mayor Roy Bass has received a death threat and Saturday night apparently was under protective surveillance by the Lubbock Police Department.

Police officials, although they declined to elaborate on what actions were being taken to protect the mayor, confirmed that someone called the city switchboard about 10 p.m. Friday and threatened the mayor's life.

Col. L. D. Blakney, assistant police chief, said, "We are aware of everything that has happened and we are taking the actions that we think are appropriate. We will continue to take action as long as we feel there is a risk involved."

Authorities indicated they did not know the reason behind the threat.

It was 90 degrees the day the gas supply was terminated. Residents didn't seem overly concerned. Most knew the cutoff was coming because the city-owned utili-ty refused to pay fuel-adjustment pass-through costs to Lo-Vaca.

The municipal utility continued to pay Lo-Vaca the contracted price of 36 cents per thousand cubic feet of gas, but the price climbed to about $2 per thousand bic feet and the state approved the

The town, however, will probably sti receive all of the money from the federal Community Services Administration The $160,000 may be earmarked to fin an alternate source of energy such as be tane or solar power.

MEXICAN-AMERICAN business community support also is abundant, Mario Perez, member of COMA's board of directors and president of the Texas Association of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce, said, 'We are trying to bring in the tourists from Lamesa, Levelland and the surrounding towns. Mario Pulled Himself Up By 'Bootstraps' After Humble Beginning In West Texas

EXPECTING TO FIND bags of money scattered around the countryside, Mario Perez immigrated to Lubbock from Mexico 27 years ago.

Disappointingly, he didn't find the streets paved with gold. And the only bag he was given was an empty one waiting to be filled with cotton he picked.

Perez traded his cotton-picking job for a chance to learn a trade. Today he owns a successful business, and the story of his achievement follows an outline becoming increasingly familiar here as Mexican-Americans strike out on

The names and details differ, but the basic plot remains the same as Perez' -laborer with considerable trade experience overcomes language difficulties and background obstacles to become a successful businessman

Perez' rags-to-riches story began when he immigrated here to live with his mother. He wanted to become an architect, he said, but in Mexico, "you could do it only if you had money." He didn't.

PICKING COTTON wasn't his bag, he said, "so I learned the language." With the help of a coworker who insisted that he read English literature, Perez became proficient enough in English to pass a high school equivalency examination. He later became a naturalized citizen.

He began to work at a local color-processing studio. Perez said he designed the plant, bought the equipment and ironed out the bugs. The owner only handled the customers. "It was his money, but I built the business," Perez said.

The owner promised to sell the flagging business and, accordingly, Peres said he secured a Small Business Administration (SBA) loan that the owner Business began to increase, Perez said, and the owner reneged on his promise to sell the studio. He fired Perez. Out of a job, Perez decided to use his skills to benefit himself. He petitioned the SBA for the loan, but because the studio owner wouldn't co-sign, the loan

EVENTUALLY THE SBA loaned Perez $50,000 to start a business

"So here I had $50,000 to do $100,000 worth of work," Perez said with a gri-mace. "I had to remodel the building, buy the equipment and still have enough working capital."

He rented a small building on Avenue Q and persuaded the owner to loan him the money to remodel it. "He said he didn't know whether I was a good salesman or he was a fool,"

A brother-in-law who is a "jack of all trades" saved him about 50 per cent of the planned remodeling costs by working free, Perez said. And an electrician friend rewired the building for a bargain price.

"Everyone was willing to help," and that's what gave him his biggest boost Perez added.

"I was very lucky to find some good people who wanted to help me," he

By slashing prices, a Dallas supplier filled Perez' order for $100,000 worth of equipment at half the price.

WITH HIS BUILDING and equipment ready and three loan notes in his pocket, Perez opened his business in September 1975 with enough working capital to absorb initial losses. And there were losses for the first two months. But by November, Perez said, he broke even. With each succeeding month, he has increased his profits.

Last month surpassed them all, he added. "We're growing so fast." Good service and a good quality product have prompted his success, he said, explaining that he has relied on word of mouth to advertise his business.

He plans to expand his operation to include a complete print shop, he add-

His previous boss' broken agreement, although galling at the time, proved to be a blessing in disguise, Perez said.

His success probably wouldn't have been possible 15 years ago, Perez acknowledged. "For me, I don't think so. I'm originally from Mexico, and West Texas is number one for discrimination."

THE MAJORITY OF Lubbockites are "good people," Perez said. But the "bad ones do influence the rest."

Minorities today have a better chance than ever for becoming successful in business, he said. The chance is now. The opportunity is there for anyone who wants to make

"It just takes a lot of hard work and sleepless nights," he added.

Mexican-American businesses here probably could not have flourished 10 years ago, he said, because the nation's attitude had not changed.

"We could have united 10 years ago and it still wouldn't have done any good until the laws changed," Perez said. "The marches in Alabama started the

When people call him a Mexican-American or Chicano, Perez said, he gently corrects them by saying he is a Mexican. And discriminatory remarks slide off his back.

"I look at discrimination as being from people who will take or give it. I don't know how to feel discriminated against." he explained. "You have to take discrimination to be discriminated against."

Gain 'Toehold' In Business

LUBBOCK'S MEXICAN-AMERICAN business community, which first sprang up in the 1950s, consisted of little more than a dozen small, family-owned restaurants and garages for more than two decades.

About five years ago that stagnant situation changed, and now the Mexican-American community boasts of more than 300 diversified, flourishing businesstors and retail stores such as wig and record shops.

What triggered the spurting growth five years ago? Ask different people and receive different answers.

Bidal Aguero, publisher of La Voz, a Spanish-language newspaper here, said he doesn't know whether the reason can be pinpointed. But he offers several possibilities.

"It seems that in the last five years Chicanos have gotten more aware of what's around them," he said.

Also, Aguero said, for a long time the Mexican-American community here pushed education for its young. Then, as more youngsters graduated from college only to find few available jobs, the community concentrated on improving the economic scene, Aguero said.

ORGANIZATIONS SUCH AS the Comerciantes Organizados Mexicanos Americanos (COMA) and the GI Forum helped further that aim, he said.

"Now, having these organizations and backing, we're getting into politics. We can get the financial backing from Chicano businesses," he said. The result could be more minority representation in local governments, he added.

'Education, economics and politics. Everything revolves around these three things, and we've come full circle." Aguero said.

The boom cause also could, in part, be * the realization that Mexican-Americans will have a "ready made business,"

Aguero said. 'Chicanos patronize Chicanos," he explained. "It's a lot easier for a Chicano to go into business than for an Anglo.'

He cited a local club that tried to change its image into a Chicano disco. When clubgoers learned the nightspot wasn't Mexican-American owned, they stopped patronizing it, Aguero said.

'We have a loyalty toward helping each other. We're a very united people," he However, COMA president Roy Montelongo cautions, "You still have to have a good service or a good product. That's the name of the game in business.

A MEXICAN-AMERICAN may prefer to patronize a Mexican-American business over an Anglo one, but unless he receives good service or a good product, he will withdraw his support, Montelongo

Aguero and Montelongo attributed some of the business boom to a change in the Anglo community's attitude. Lubbock is "finding that a Mexican-American can do as good a job or better than an Anglo and that we're not low class," Montelongo said. "What you have to do is show them you can do good through business and education."

Aguero agreed, saying, "The attitude 10 years ago was 'the Mexican-American is a lazy person,' but that is changing. We are a progressive people.'

Ramon Chapa, minority relations director for the Small Business Administration (SBA) credits the growth to increased state and federal government

About five years ago, he said, the governments "really started trying to assist

Also, the SBA's presence "has contributed, in my opinion, to the growth" because it helps with financial problems,

He predicts a continued rise in the Mexican-American business community, attributing much of it to the healthy economy of West Texas.

The SBA has issued loans to about 60 per cent of Lubbock's Mexican-American businessmen since 1970, Chapa said. Last they would settle here."

The result is that there are few Lubbock or even West Texas natives in the most of those that traveled from South Texas to settle here are from low-in areas, have had little education and very little business experience, Chapa said.

Eventually, because of few farm jobs, many of those who settled here began to work in Anglo businesses, learning trades, he said. And, about five years ago, many of them decided to put their skills to use for themselves.

Montelongo estimates that about 70 per

Minority businessmen face obstacles common to Anglos breaking into business, but often the problems are compounded by the Mexican-American's background, Chapa and Aguero agreed. "MINORITIES ALL face the same problem (in West Texas)," Chapa said. They started with the migration of farm workers in the 1950s when the agricultural economy drew them from South Tex-

"For many years the migrants worked the field and at the end of harvest would go back home," he explained. "But within the last few years, the harvest has become mechanized. The farm laborers cent of the Mexican-American businessmen here chose that route.

Lack of adequate management, experience and capital—the same problems that face beginning Anglo businessmen —plague Mexican-Americans, Chapa

"Management is one of the more critical things that contributes to business success, and the SBA lots of times can help through consultations," he said.

ALSO, HE SAID, language poses a problem for some. "They have to learn a new vocabulary that has to do with business," he explained, adding the problem is not restricted to the minority commun-

The relative newness of the Mexican-American business community also contributes to its problems, Aguero said. "Even though a lot of businesses are becoming successful, they are working with limited resources," he explained.

"I couldn't go to a bank downtown and say I need $5,000. We don't have the experience and backing," Aguero said. Trying to overcome that obstacle. Gar-

"We try to get them to know their bankers," Garcia said. "Loan officers don't know Mexican-Americans and are more reluctant to help them because of

Mario Perez, president of the Texas Association of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce, can vouch for that. When he started his color-separating lab-cia and Chapa say they have worked closely with Lubbock banks during the past few years, arranging loans and intro-ducing Mexican-Americans to the bank-oratory two years ago, he could not se-cure a loan from the bank he had dealt with for 20 years. He switched banks in order to get the loan, he said. But the situation is changing, Garcia said, Lubbock banks "are beginning to accept Mexican-Americans (as businessmen) and become familiar with them."

SMALLER BANKS ESPECIALLY have been helpful, Montelongo said. CO-MA recently singled out the American Bank of Commerce in Wolfforth for its aid to Mexican-Americans, he said.

Does racial discrimination dog minority businessmen?

Montelongo answers that discrimination has been "in this part of the Southwest for as long as I can remember, but it's not as had as it used to be."

As more minority members become businessmen, he added, the situation steadily will improve.

Garcia claims that it's "not so much discrimination as they don't know the people. Once they (Anglos) know the Mexican-Americans, they will work with Esther Sepeda of Sepeda Builders said. There is still some discrimination, but the way we hope to end it is by education, by becoming a part of the communi-But however much discrimination still lingers and no matter what the financial obstacles, Lubbock is ripe for the growth of the Mexican-American business community, Perez, Chapa and Montelongo

"I believe the Lubbock area is good for anyone who wants to get ahead," Perez said. "I really feel my success can be equaled by anybody. Garcia echoed him, saying, "Lubbock to me is a town where there's an opportunity for anyone to get into business if they really want to."

Sub OB Paces Tech's 10-7 Win over NC

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.—Texas Tech and North Carolina played musical chairs with their quarterbacks Saturday afternoon, and the Raiders occupied the last seat at the

With first-team quarterbacks Rodney Allison of Tech and Matt Kupec of Carolina sidelined with injuries, both teams used two quarterbacks in a search for offensive spark. The Raiders were the more successful of the two, and, thus, left Kenan Stadiun with a hard-fought 10-7 victory in this nonconference, intersectional clash.

was Tech's second choice at quarterback, sophomore Mark Johnson, who got the Raider attack going to some extent. Johnson, who was to have been redshirted until Allison's injury last week and was playing in a varsity contest for the first time, directed an 00-yard touchdown march at the beginning of the second half that tied the con-

the Raiders with their winning margin.

But Tech's comeback started when Johnson was inserted into the lineup in place of starter Tres Adami late in the second quarter. He directed a drive into Carolina territory that eventually came up with no points, but no matter—the Raiders had found (Related Story, Page 6, Sec. B) some offensive spark, and it lasted into the second half.

Johnson, a quicker runner than Adami, and fullback Billy Taylor keyed the scoring march that culminated when Johnson sprinted around the right side, bowed his head, and bulled past three UNC defenders just inside the flag for a touchdown.

The drive was made in 14 plays, all but one on the ground, and it consumed 7:27. Taylor, the game's top rusher with 150 yards on 35 carries, gave the Raiders a big the final quarter.

Carolina marched to the Ruider 30 midway through the third period, with the aid of a 15-yard pass-interference penalty against Tech's Larry Dupre. However, Tech's defenders threw Carolina for two straight losses, and the hosts were soon forced to attempt a 45-yard field goal by Tom Biddle that fell short.

The other major defensive stand came two pleys into the final quarter when line-backer Mike Mock and tacks. Jim Krahl stopped Carolina's 245-pound fullback, Billy Johnson, for a 1-yard loss of fourth down with less than a yard to go for a first down. Soon after, a 52-yard punt by Mock pushed Carolina back into its territory and changed the complexion of the game.

In the meantime, the Raider attack had cooled after its touchdown. Tech's Eric Felton had intercepted a pass at the UNC 35 two plays after the TD, but the Raiders gave it right back on a fumble by Taylor, and that seemed to take some steam out of the Tech offerise.

However, the Raiders mustered enough for a winning push. With just over seven minutes remaining in the contest, they gained possession at their 45-yard line, after Richard Kleinman's first collegiste punt traveled 29 yards.

After one first down, Mark Johnson was knocked dizzy, and Adami re-entered the

After one tirst down, mark Johnson was anticated taken, and Adams was called a pard shy of a first down at the 18, and Adams was called on to kick his 3-pointer from the left hash mark.

The first half was principally a defensive struggle. Neither team was able to muster a consistent offense. The Raiders started with Adams at quarterback, while Carolina started sophomore Clyde Christenson and also used sophomore P.J. Gay.

For much of the time, it was a contest of punts, and it was a Tech mistake on a punt that set up UNC's touchdown. Mock, kicking from his 3-yard line midway through the second quarter, received a somewhat low snap. As he bent down to pick up the ball, he slipped. He attempted to run, but was trapped at the 6-yard line, and the hosts took over.

On the first play, tailback Phil Farris broke off the left side, tore away from Dupre 2 yards behind the line of acrimmage and scored standing up. Biddle added the PAT with 4:59 remaining in the half, and Carolina led 7-0.

Following the Tar Heels' kickoff, Johnson entered the game for Tech, and his running ability made a difference as he directed the Raiders from their 23-yard line to the UNC 39 before a fumble by Mark Julian on a screen pass and a Carolina recovery stopped the march with 40 seconds left in the half.

The Tech defense played well, holding Carolina to 198 yards, 122 on the ground and 76 in the air. UNC completed just four-of-16 passes. Some of the misses came when the hosts had receivers well in the clear.

The win was Tech's third of the year, and followed the conference loss to Texas A &M. Next week, the 13th-ranked Raiders will play Arizona in Tucson.

Cowins Puts Hogs Over TCU By 42-6

FORT WORTH (AP) - Elusive Ben Cowins, the nation's second leading collegiate ground gainer, squirted for three touchdowns including two in a 21-point Arkansas second quarter, as the 12thranked Razorbacks clubbed lifeless Texas Christian 42-6 Saturday night in a Southvest Conference game.

It was the 15th straight loss for the vicry starved Horned Frogs, who have one only two of their last 41 games. Arkansas, now 4-0, has beaten TCU 19 straight

Cowins, averaging nearly 160 yards per game before Saturday, plunged three yards for Arkansas' first touchdown early in the second period and raced five yards for another to give the Hogs a 21-0 halftime bulge.

A 21-yard gallop by Cowins, who had 87 yards on 19 carries, set up that touchdown. Cowins then knifed over from three yards out in the third quarter for Arkansas' fourth touchdown.

Bo Schembechler of Michigan insisted: The final score is not indicitive of the strengths of the two teams. Texas A&M is a lot better than it showed today.

Despite the lopsided score before a crowd of 104.802-third largest in Michigan Stadium's 50-year history-Schembechler said the Wolverines can't dwell on the triumph.

We're not going to savor this victory, however," he said. "I've got to get my

Davis wound up with 110 yards rushing in 19 carries, his touchdowns coming on a four-yard run in the second quarter and a one-yard plunge in the third as the Wolverines took a 13-3 lead.

Michigan's defense, led by Dwight Hicks, Jim Pickens, Mike Jolly, Ron Simpkins and Dom Tedesco, stymied the touted A&M offense led by massive fullback George Woodard and halfback Curtis Dickey.

Davis' touchdowns followed fumble recoveries. Michigan's other touchdowns were a 35-yard pass from Rick Leach to Curt Stephenson, an eight-yard run by Harlan Huckleby, a recovered punt in the end zone by Pickens and a 50-vard interception return by Jolly.

Stephenson's touchdown catch over the head of defensive back Jimmy Hamilton and started Michigan comfortably toward its fourth victory without a loss, dropping the Aggies to 3-1.

It was the first touchdown in Stephen son's college career. He is a senior who was a walkon as a fresbman Aggie quarterback David Walker tried to get A&M back in the game through the air, but Hicks ruined that idea with an interception at the A&M 30. Four plays later, Huckleby swept the right side on a pitch from Leach for his eight-yard TD, 31 seconds into the fourth quarter.

Two minutes later linebacker Simpkins, a sophomore from Detroit, blocked David Appleby's punt and defensive back Pickens recovered in the AM end zone.

Tedesco ruined another Aggie possession by recovering a Dickey fumble at the Michigan 49.

Walker completed just one of nine pas-ses for three yards and his backup, Mike Mosley, threw one pass and that's the one Jolly returned for the touchdown in-

However, the Aggies did manage to the work of 6-foot, 270-pound Woodard. He lugged the ball 39 times for 153 of A &M's 208 yards rushing.

Campbell, Texas Gun Down Owls By 72-15

AUSTIN (AP) — Earl Campbell scored four touchdowns and Russell Erxleben booted a 67-yard field goal for a major college record Saturday as eighth-ranked Texas, the nation's highest scoring team, routed Rice 72-15.

Texas' point explosion in its third consecutive logsided victory set up a match with unbeaten and top-ranked Oklahoma in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas next Satur-

Texas totally dominated hapless Rice from the first scrimmage play, when quarterback Mark McBath lofted an underthrown pass that Olympic sprinter Johnny "Lam" Jones turned into a 55yard touchdown.

Campbell ran for 131 yards on 13 carries, diving over from the 1-yard line and running wide for 16, 21 and six-yard

The score was 54-7 in the third quarter when Erxleben used an 8-12 mile-an-hour wind to his advantage in kicking his record field goal. The entire Texas squad mobbed Erxleben, a 6-4, 215-pound junior who was the nation's leading punter

Rice, 77-0 losers to Louisiana State last Saturday, broke Texas' shutout streak at 10 quarters this year on a 16-yard touchdown pass from freshman quarterbac Randy Hertel to Joey DiQuinsio agains Texas subs in the third period.

Only 47,500 fans in a stadium that holds 78,000 saw the drawn-out Southwest Conference opener between the two schools. -Texas raised its scoring average to 61.3 points a game. The Longhorns shut out Boston College 44-0 and Virginia 68-0. They also led the nation in scoring defense and rushing defense—allowing only 48.5 yards a game.

Austin To View Texas-OU Game

AUSTIN (AP)-Acknowledging a slight risk of losing a nationwide TV appearance later on, the University of Texas athletic council decided Saturday to allow a local station to televise the Texas-Oklahoma football game.

J. Neils Thompson, council chairman, and athletic director Darrell Royal, were authorized to negotiate a contract with KVUE-TV.

The risk, Thompson said, is that some-one might pirate the signal and televise the game via cable in Waco, where Bay-lor plays SMU next Saturday afternoon.

NCAA rules prohibit televising even a sellout game within 120 miles of where it is played if there are other intercollegiate games going on at the same time inside that radius.

Violation would cost Texas one of the three opportunities it has within a two-year period to appear in a nationally tele-

MHS Blasts Hobbs In Interstate Tilt

By JIM FERGUSON Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff All week the Monterey Plainsmen seemed more like refugees from the fourth fourth at Methodist Hospital rather than a state-ranked team.

Prior to the start of the game, coach James Odom's club had four regulars out sidelined by injuries. However, that didn't matter-and luck for the Hobbs Eagles—as the Plainsmen rolled to a 54-6 nonconference win Saturday night.

Although the statistics were relatively close, with Monterey holding a 186-145 lead in total yardage, the Plainsmen managed to grab a 28-6 halftime lead. Monterey wasted little effort in the opening moments, scoring four of the first five times it touched the ball. In the first possession, MHS used six plays and 2:36 to notch up 6 points. Tailback Robert McDaniel got the call from 2 yards out and bulled over with two Eagle tackles hanging on his back. During the drive, the Plainsmen opened up their aerial attack by gaining 57 yards. The big gainers were two passes from quarterback Ron Reeves to split end Chuck Petry, one for 25 and another for 32 yards. After halting Hobbs, MHS took only six plays and another two minutes until it cracked into the promised land. Reeves hit runningback Mike Wooten with a perfectly thrown screen pass and Wooten went 61 yards for the score with 19 secds remaining in the first period. Reeves successfully ran for the 2-point conversion, making up for the missed PAT kick by Phil Bruedigum on the first Noseguard Mike Chaffey fell on a fumble on the Eagle 34 to set up Monterey's third score.

Aided by a 15-yard pass interference penalty on a fourth-and-5 situation, MHS used two additional plays for the TD, a 2yard run by McDaniel. At the Hobbs 21, the penalty set the Plainsmen up in perfect shape at the visitors' 6-yard line.

Bruedigam kicked the PAT to up the margin to 21-0.

A key block by an official helped Hobbs score its only touchdown of the half, a 35yard dash by Roy Gomez. The TD capped a seven-play drive which had started on the Eagles' 25.

On the scoring play, Gomez broke into the clear on a draw play and used an official as interference to race untouched into the end zone from 7 vards out.

Following the kickoff, Monterey used seven plays and three minutes before scoring its fourth touchdown. Wooten scored from 4 yards out ending a 56-yard march with 2:36 left in the half.

"We were a little worried about our injuries before we started the game," Odom said, following the game, "But we knew we had some boys that could come in and fill up the holes. And they did."

Missing from the lineup were Eric Voyles, Dudley McMinn and Monte McCright. Guard Ivan Jones was listed as questionable prior to the game, but he did play some in spots.

"I think this was a good game for us to build up a little momentum and take a look at everyone on the team," Odom

Cowboys Surprise Arizona

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Wyoming funior quarterback Don Clayton came off the bench in the second half to guide the defending Western Athletic Conference cochampion Cowboys to a 13-12 college football victory over Arizona Saturday.

Arizona kicker Lee Pistor missed a 37yard field goal attempt with 47 seconds remaining, sealing the Wyoming victory.

Clayton put the Cowboys ahead for good in the third period with a four-yard run off tackle, capping a 13-yard drive. Wyoming defensive end Francis Chesley put the Cowboys within scoring range when he picked off a Mark Lundsford pass and returned it 16 yards.

Clayton's run was the only score in a second-half defensive duel marred by penalties. Clayton replaced sophomore quarterback Hugh Albora, who ran the Cowboy offense during the first half in which Wyoming managed only one scor-

Arizona opened the scoring with 1:41 remaining in the first quarter on a sixyard scamper by Wildcat halfback Derriak Anderson.

Arizona set up the score by recovering a Wyoming fumble and a pass interference penalty on the next play moved the ball from the Pokes' 38-yard line to the

The victory improved Wyoming's over-all record to 2-1-1, both victories coming in conference action.

The loss left Arizona with a 1-3 season mark, and its first conference loss. Arizona will host Texas Tech next Saturday

. Seminoles Shock Oklahoma Staters

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) - Littleused quarterback Wally Woodham led a second-half Florida State charge Saturday and the Seminoles upset crippled Oklahoma State 25-17.

Woodham, who had played in only three series of downs this season, ran two yards for one touchdown and tossed a 19yard pass to tailback Larry Key for another as the Seminoles scored 22 points in the second half and overcame a 10-3 deficit at the intermission.

The Cowboys jumped ahead 10-0 in the first period, but the offense faltered when starting quarterback Harold Bailey and his backup man, Jimmy Derrick, were injured.

Their loss put a damper on another superior performnace by halfback Terry Miller, who rushed for more than 100 Guest clinicians will include John Alex- yards for the 12th consecutive game. Oklahoma State appeared to have con

Colin Ankerson's 27-yard field goal and conversion kicks put Oklahoma State ahead 17-3.

Woodham entered the game in place of starter Jimmy Jordan and the Seminole attack began rolling. Woodham sparked a 40-yard scoring march in the third period, going over himself from the two. That

Tracy Thrashes Riggs In Exhibition

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) - The new sensation of women's tennis, diminutive darling Tracy Austin, soundly whipped aging hustler Bobby Riggs 8-1 Saturday in a special, one-set tennis exhibition at The Greenbrier re-

"I think Tracy has the potential to be the best ever in women's tennis," the 59year-old Riggs said after the loss to the 14-year-old California ninth grader. "She can be another Chris Evert.'

Riggs, who attracted worldwide attention with a pair of nationally televised matches four years ago against Billie Jean King and Margaret Court, added with a laugh, "She beat me, so she must be the best.

The match was witnessed by more than 1,000 spectators at The Greenbrier's new multimillion dollar tennis center.

The promotor of the exhibition, which was staged as a public relations promotion for a Parkersburg, W.Va., raw materials manufacturer, had downplayed the exhibition earlier in the week, saying Riggs and Austin "would only hit a few balls around together."

Test By 41-7
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Coach John Robinson said the game would provide the Trojans' first real test of the season.

They passed with flying colors, sweeping past Washington State 41-7 Friday night in the Pactfic-8 football clash.

The second-ranked Trojans were impressive in almost every department as they ran their 1977 record to 4-0 and extended their two-season victory streak to Southern Cal starting tailback Charles White rushed for 128 yards on 27 carries while his understudy, Dwight Ford, gained 118 yards on 13 carries, and each sored two touchdowns. Trojan quarterback Rob Hertel threw for 182 yards and a touchdown, hitting 11 of his 18 passes. And Siuthern Cal did not turn the ball over once.

The Trojan defense was equally impressive, holding Washington State and its fine quarterback, Jack Thompson, to a touchdown late in the game.

"There are no words to say how great our defense is doing," said Robinson of the crew that has given up just 27 points in four games.

"The credit goes, number one, to the kids' playing outstanding football, and two, to our fantastic defensive coaching

Washington State was penalized five times for 45 yards compared to Southern Cal's 10 for 102, but the Cougar errors came at more critical times. Powers' team also lost three fumbles in addition to the two interceptions.

Sloan Feels Fortunate To Escape

By CARTER CROMWELL

"You know, it's really beautiful around here," one remarked, "but I don't think I could live here. I feel closed in because of all these trees.

For a good while Saturday afternoon Texas Tech must have felt that things were indeed closing in on it but, with a second-half rally and a fine defensive effort, the Red Raiders escaped with a 10-7 victory over North Carolina. After the contest, a tired, sweating Steve Sloan voiced his thanks for the win.

"We're very happy to win and feel very fortunate to win over what we feel was a very good North Carolina team," he said. "That's our basic feeling right now-we just feel very fortunate.

For a time it seemed that the Raiders might lose their second consecutive game. Playing without injured star quarterback Rodney Allison, Tech was ineffective offensively most of the first half, and Carolina led 7-0 at halftime after an aborted Tech punt set up the half's only

But sophomore quarterback Mark Johnson replaced starter Tres Adami late in the second half and gave the offense a boost. The Raiders began moving the ball better with him in the lineup, and he directed an 80-vard TD march at the beginning of the second half.

"Tres wasn't having a good day as he normally does," Sloan said, "so we felt we had to try somebody else and see if we could get things going. He (Johnson) was able to give us a little spark. He did a good job, considering that it was his first

"I wasn't too much at first, but they were rushing me when they were calling the plays, and that kind of got me up-"But I was pretty confident that I could

"Sometimes on wide plays, I wasn't always sure if the quarterbacks were going to get there or not," he said. "And Rod-team a lift. He's a little quicker than Adami was disappointed in his performance.

"I was nervous at the start, but not a whole lot," he said. "I'm disappointed in the way I played. Things just didn't work out the way I wanted them to. But Johnson did a fine job, and really helped us

The Raider defense gave another good account of itself, limiting the Tar Heels to just 198 total yards. It stopped Carolina twice in important situations in the second half, once on a field goal try and later, just into the final period, Tech's Mike Mock and Jim Krahl halted UNC fullback Billy Johnson for a yard loss on a fourth-and-1 play.

Sloan said, "We're particularly proud of our defense. They hung in there in some critical situations and played a good game the whole time.'

Mock said, "the defense kind of figured that we'd have to play a little better since Rodney is hurt. We just figured it was up to us to pick up some more slack and make more big plays"

Trocano Leads Pitt's 45-7 Win Over BC

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) - Freshman quarterback Rick Trocano scored two touchdowns and passed for another and the University of Pittsburgh defense picked off six passes as the No. 16-ranked Panthers crushed Boston College 45-7

Saturday at Alumni Stadium. Trocano, subbing for quarterback Matt Cavanaugh injured in the Panthers' first game loss to Notre Dame, scored on runs of three and 21 yards and passed 13 yards for a touchdown to split end Gordon Jones as Pittsburgh stymied the Boston College offense, which had scored 49 points in beating Army a week ago.

Pitt, 3-1, has rolled up 121 points in two games, including last week's 76-0 pummeling of Temple

Pittsburgh led 24-0 at the half and Boston College, 1-3, mustered its only score in the third period when quarterback Ken Smith threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Tim Sherwin.

However Smith also threw six interceptions, and four led to Pitt touchdowns.

Fullback Elliott Walker followed Trocano's first-period touchdown with a 19yard scoring dash of his own, and Trocano hit Jones early in the second period to give the Panthers a 21-0 lead.

Rankin Shares Civitan Lead

DALLAS (AP) — Judy Rankin and Jan Stephenson fired two-under par 70s Saturday to share the lead with 143s in the $50,000 Dallas Civitan Open.

Rankin and Stephenson, both of whom have been bothered by back problems this week, each collected four birdies in their rounds. The wind that gusted to 35 mph Friday was only a breeze Saturday, but the temperatures were still in the high 90s.

One stroke back are Lee Burke of Shreveport, La., and Vivian Brownlee of Linwood, N.J., who fired the day's best round with a 69.

Wolfpack Trips Terps On Late Score 24-20

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State quarterback Johnny Evans secred on a 2-yard plunge with 27 seconds remaining to give the Wolfpack a 24-20 victory Saturday over Atlantic Coast Conference foe Maryland.

Evans' Stramatic score came as the Wolfpack turned to the air in desperation, and a Maryland interception at the 4-yard line was nullified by an interference call, moving the ball up to the Terp 2. On the previous play, another personal foul penalty against Maryland gave NC State a first down at the 14.

The win snapped Maryland's 21-game winning streak over Atlantic Coast Conference opponents. The Terps' last loss was in 1973 against NC State.

Maryland's Vince Kinney took the final kickoff into the end zone with 11 seconds remaining after catching a pass that ref-erees ruled was an illegal forward pass, nullifying the potential score.

The victory gave NC State a 3-0 conference record and a 4-1 overall record while dropping Maryland to 1-3 overall and 1-1 in the conference.

Pele Bids Adieu With 'Love'

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) -Politicians, celebrities and above all -the fans who love him so much came to bid farewell to a tearful Pele Saturday. The king of soccer ended his 22-year competitive career with an emotion-filled ceremony and one last exhibition match.

After being showered with plaques and medals and ovations from the capacity 76,891 crowd at Giants Stadium here, the "Black Pearl" stepped to the microphone at the center circle to address the throng and television audiences in 40 countries around the world.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I am very happy to be here with you in this moment of my life," the Brazilian star said in halting English. "I want to thank you all, and I want to take this opportunity to ask you in this moment, when the world looks to me, to take more attention to the young ones, to the kids all over the world.

'We need them too much. And I want to ask you, because I believe love is the most important thing in the world that we can take in life: people, say with me three times, love, love, love.

After each time he said "love", the mass repeated it-rising to a crescendo the final time. Pele said, "Thank you very much." Then in Portuguese, "Muito obrigado." Then came the tears he had fought to hold back. He covered his face with his hands and faltered for a moment before being comforted by Carlos Alberto, his teammate on the Cosmos this North American Soccer League championship season and Pele's captain on the 1970 Brazilian National team that won the World Cup.

Quick to reach his side were Bobby Moore, captain of England's 1966 World Cup champions; Franz Beckenbauer, a Cosmo teammate and captain of West Germany's 1974 World Cup champions, and then Pele's family.

Then came the 1,356th game of his career in which the Cosmos played Santos of Brazil-for whom he scored 1,090 goals in 1,114 games before retiring in 1974 and joining the Cosmos in 1975.

And after the game in which he scored thefirst goal for the Cosmos in a 2-1 victory over Santos, the tears came again -this time in an uncontrollable flood like the storm that pounded the stadium around him. At the game's concluiion, he began a victory lap of the field, bearing aloft miniature flags of Brazil and the United States.

Present in the crowd were Jeff Carter, the President's son who represented the first family and presented Pele with a plaque from the American people; world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali and former Secretary of State

After the presentations had been made, representatives from nine youth soccer teams in the metropolitan New York area gave Pele white flowers. With a father's warmth and love he kissed every child, and hoisted the last, a tiny little girl, to his shoulders. He held her there for a long moment, then put her down to begin his remarks

"Love, love, love." He shared another touching moment with the World. Then, for the final time, he played the game which has been his life.

Sorley's Pass Lifts Nebraska Over Indiana

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Tom Sorley of Big Spring tossed a fourth-quarter touch-down pass and ran for another, his second of the day, while I.M. Hipp set a school rushing record as 11th-ranked Nebraska beat stubborn Indiana 31-13 in nonconference college football action

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) - James Hunt retained the pole position for today's U.S. Grand Prix, thanks to a bonechilling steady rain Saturday which prevented anyone from bettering his qualifying speed from the previous day.

Hunt, the 29-year-old world champion from Britain, posted a track record speed of 120.53 miles per hour Friday to gain the coveted inside front row starting position in the field of 26.

The rain had been predicted a day earlier. It resulted in more serious work than usual being put in by the teams on the first day of speed trials. The first six qualifiers managed to record times below Niki Lauda's 1975 track record of 119.18 mph. Lauda was seventh fastest at 119.08

The Irish lost three fumbles, including two on the Michigan State 3-yard line, but they picked off four Spartan passes, three of which set up Reeve's field goals

The only Michigan State scores came on field goals by Hans Nielsen of 38 yards in the first quarter and 37 yards in the third period. The six points gave him 184 for his career, good for second place in Michigan State history.

The only Michigan State lead came on Nielsen's first field goal, 3-0, but the Irish tied it early in the second quarter and went in front 10-3 at the half on Mitchell's nine-yard scoring run. Mitchell, a sophomore fullback, also scored the winning touchdown a week earlier as Notre

70 Million Fans View Title Fight

NEW YORK (AP) - NBC research estimated Friday that Thursday night's Muhammad Ali-Earnie Shavers heavyweight championship fight was seen by 70 million people, making it the most widely viewed boxing match in television history

The NBC estimates are based on overnight Nielsen ratings in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. NBC expects to have a full Nielsen reading from across the country today.

The previous TV record for a boxing match was in May, 1976, when the Ali-Richard Dunn fight, also on NBC, drew 65 million viewers.

Overnight ratings on Thursday night's fight were remarkable. From 8-10:30 p.m., CDT, earned a 43.7 rating, meaning 43.7 per cent of all TV sets in the nation, one or off, were tuned to the fight. It drew an amazing 61 share, meaning 61 per cent of the sets in use were tuned to

During the actual hour that the Ali-Shavers fight was in progress, 9:30-10:30 p.m., CDT, the numbers soared to an amazing 54.4 rating and 77 share.

Only two seniors dot the Chaparral roster. Mike "Fred" Kahler is a three-year letterman from DeSoto and John Papa of El Paso Coronado lettered last year despite the face he received a knee injury which required surgery after playing only five minutes in one game.

In addition, junior Mike Wrinkle and sophomore Steve Doudney started twothirds of the time last year and Les Lierman and Robert Cobb logged enough guard time to letter.

But it was in the recruiting area where Price enjoyed a banner year. Of his 10 newcomers, three are local players -Gary Norris of Lubbock High, Brian Fortner of LCHS and Mike Buckner of Monterey-and four others-Edwin Miles, Roosevelt Gatterson, Shane Reggins and Lamar Sampy-are from Hous-

Lowell Walker, a 6-7 product from Tupelo, Miss., who played at Howard College, is the only junior college newcomer and is the tallest man on the team,

The Chaps' guard-forward play should definitely be improved by the addition of Sampy, a Houston Jefferson product, and Robert Watts. Watts, from Texas City, just got his release from the Air Force and, despite the fact at 5-11 he's the smallest man on the team, is extremely quick.

Lee Reeves, a 6-5 sophomore from Aztec. N.M., will be redshirted this year. Price actually has little time to get his troops prepared. The junior varsity has four games on tap prior to the regular season opener Nov. 15 and in 13 days the Chaps must be ready to scrimmage.

Bronchos Upset M-Lee 13-7

ODESSA (Special)—In a penalty-ridden, low-scoring game marked by exceptional passes, the Odessa Bronchos dealt Midland Lee its second loss of the season in Distric 5-AAAA play here Friday night.

Odessa topped out the game 13-7 with two touchdown passes of 50 and 80 yards by quarterback Neal Gray to boost its record to 3-1 for the season.

The Bronchos' passing attack just. proved to be too much for the Rebels' defensive team, and once Odessa broke loose, there just didn't seem to be any stopping it.

Odessa, though, wasn't the only team doing any breaking loose. Lee's Jerry Lee opened the second quarter with an 89yard punt return to put the Rebels ahead 6-0 and then booted the extra point attempt to make it 7-0 Midland.

Then came Odessa's passing game. Gray connected, on a 50-yard toss to wingback Cal Adams in the third quarter for 6 points, and Larry Jones added on the extra point. Adams' catch was one of several that added up to 140 yards for Odessa.

Kentucky Pulls 24-20 Upset On Penn State

Bryant kicked a 30-yard field goal and quarterback Derrick Ramsey scored a one-yard touchdown, both in the third period, as Kentucky upset fourth-ranked Penn State 24-20 Saturday in an intersectional college football game.

The Kentucky defense blanked Penn State in the second half as the Southeast Conference team scored its third victory in four games. Penn State lost for the first time after winning its first three.

Penn State led at halftime 20-14, but Kentucky moved from its 43-yard line to a first down at the 15 early in the third quarter. When a running play gained only three and two passes fell incomplete, Bryant kicked a 30-yard field goal to make it-20-17.

Later in the third period, Kentucky took possession after a punt at the Penn State 44. Ramsey threw 17 yards to Dave Trosper for a first down at the State 27. Three running plays and an offside penal-ty moved Kentucky to a first down at the Penn State 19.

Ramsey again connected with Trosper for 13 yards and a first down at the three. On third down, Ramsey spun off the left side for one yard and the game winning touchdown.

Penn State zipped to a quick 10-0 first period lead on a 20-yard field goal by Matt Bahr and flanker Jimmy Cefalo's .75-yard touchdown punt return.

But Kentucky turned a pair of pass interceptions, the first against quarterback Chuck Pusina this season, into a 23-yard touchdown by Dallas Owens.

Buffs Drub Army 31-0

Ballage galloped for touchdowns of 10 and 59 yards and Mark Haynes scampered 97 with an interception, leading seventh-ranked Colorado to a 31-0 college football victory over Army Saturday:

Ballage, making his first start of the season after spending the first three games as Colorado's second-string wingback, carried 15 times for 128 yards and caught two passes for 24 more.

The Buffs boosted their record to 4-0 for the first time since 1971, the year they finished third in the nation.

Meanwhile, Colorado's defense bent but never broke, withstanding a 160-yard passing attack by Leamon Hall while sacking the Army quarterback six times

The Buffs took a 3-0 lead on a 25-yard field goal by Pete Dadiotis with four minutes gone in the game. They broke it open after a slanting rain began to fall in the second period, driving most of the Michie Stadium crowd of 34,548 to cover by the fourth quarter.

Colorado, a three-touchdown favorite over 2-2 Army, led by only 10-0 at the half following Ballage's 10-yard scoring run at 4:01 of the second period.

But the 205-pound junior reeled off his 59-yarder at 3:37 of the third quarter. Haynes made his long interception return with 21/2 minutes left in the period and second-string quarterback Pete Cyphers directied a 80-yard drive capped by Mike Holmes' one-yard touchddown dive with 5:55 left in the game.

By MOLLY TYSON

Assocaite Editor, womenSports Magazine
Written today, the history of women's collegiate basketball would contain two chapters: one on the Mighty Macs of Immaculata College and the other on the Lady Statesmen of Delta State University. Since the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, the women's equivalent to the NCAA, began hosting tional tournaments seven years ago, the title has gone to one school or the

The first chapter would chronicle the rise of Cathy Rush, the former high school cheerleader who married the hometown football hero, took a part-time coaching job at Immaculata, the local Catholic college, in 1971 and turned her walk-on talent into national champions in one year.

Women weren't receiving athletic scholarships when Mrs. Rush began coaching, so it was possible for a tiny school like Immaculata with an enrollment of 525 to be a sports giant. The Mighty Macs stayed on top, winning the national

Midway through the Mighty Macs' dynasty, the press discovered them. Journalists had a field day comparing the Might Macs' 6-foot-1 center Theresa Shank to UCLA's Bill Walton and comparing Cathy Rush, who was partial to the fullcourt press and season-long winning streaks, to John Wooden. For local color they couldn't have asked for more -a cheering section of nuns in full habit beating on tin buckets and praying for victory.

With her platinum blond good looks and her knack for speaking in quotes, Cathy became the hit of the sports-banquet speaking circuit. When the media discovered the boom in women's sports, Mrs. Rush was a natural for radio and TV talk shows. Obviously, the exposure was a tremendous boon to her in recruiting. And it helped obscure the fact that Immaculata had no home gym and operated on a $2,000-a-year budget.

The Rush dynasty came to an end in 1974, the year her star center Theresa Shank graduated. It was also the year that woman's basketball was revived -after being banned as "too strenuous" for 40 years- at Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss.

It took coach Margaret Wade, a 64-year-old alumnus of Delta State, a mere one year to put together the team that dethroned the Mighty Macs at the 1975 national championships. The secret to her overnight success was a tall and talented center named Lucy Harris.

Miss Harris, at 6-foot-3, made mincemeat of opposing centers. Teams tried to double and triple team her, but it did no good. Either she carried them with her to the basket or she passed off to her sidekick Debbie Brock, a diminutive (4foot-11) deadeye from 30 feet.

With Delta State on top in the rankings, the bucket-beating nuns had to play second fiddle to the barbershop quartets imported by Delta boosters to sing "Dixie" between cheers. Busloads of Lady Statesmen fans followed the team to away games waving green and white pompoms and wearing cotton bolls on their lapels to show their Southern roots.

The Lady Statesmen matched Immaculata's record last year when they won their third straight national title, but it's doubtful that they'll surpass it. Lucy Harris graduated last June, adding a Mississippi Athlete-of-the-Year award to her silver Olympic medal, and it may be time to turn the page on Delta State.

Old Dominion's formidable starting five included flashy Olympic forward Nancy Lieberman and 6-foot-5 French star Inge

Then there's LSU. Led by Maree Bennie Jackson and Julis Gross, a pair of 6-1 Aussies, the Tigers upset Immaculata last year and finished second in the nationals. The Aussie are back this year, which means that the Tigers will be back

Billie Moore, who coached the U.S. Olympic team to a silver medal in Montreal, has moved from Cal State-Fullerton to UCLA this year. With talent like Olympian Ann Meyers, UCLA may earn a spot in the national tournament draw. (That would be convenient since the Bruins will host the 1978 tourna-

Though overlooked during the Olympic team selection last year, Carol "Blaze" Blazejoqski may be one of the strongest players in the country. She scored 52 points in a game against Queens College in Madison Square Garden last year, setting a Garden scoring record for men and women.

Hospitals Refute Charges Of Wild Price-Raising

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Hospital officials, under "political siege" and weary of growing public criticism of rising medical costs, are fighting back by giving patients the administrators' side of the story.

Both hospitals list whopping price hikes from 1975 to 1976 in areas such as taxes, payroll, utilities, supplies and insurance. The administrators say these inflated costs illustrate why they think President Carter's proposed nine per cent ceiling on hospital cost containment is unworkable.

Cost hikes listed by Highland Hospital included: for payroll, 22.1 per cent; employe benefits, 18.3 per cent; utilities, 33.8 per cent; property taxes, 40.3 per cent; and insurance, 89.2 per cent.

For the Andrews hospital, the figures were: for payroll taxes, 11.3 per cent; workers' compensation taxes, 51.54 per cent; utilities, 14.47 per cent; property taxes, 73.77 per cent; and malpractice insurance, 718.04 per cent.

Highland Hospital administrator Jerry Howard said, "I don't know of any company that can survive with that type of program" which has "no allowances for inflation or increases in services that we purchase."

Effects of Carter's plan might force closing of emergency or obstetrics rooms, Howard said. "The two areas management can control are payroll and capital equipment. We'd have to cut back on the nursing staff and staff in other de-trator Kenneth E. Westenhaver said the President's proposal would "place medi-cal care in the hands of the administrator rather than the doctor. The administrator should not have the responsibility for stopping care after a certain maximum per day.

At the Andrews hospital the payroll represents 37 per cent of the hospital's expenditures, which is already below the average 50 per cent for most of the area's facilities. Westenhaver said.

"If I had to reduce that further because of cost containment. I'd just not have as many employes and the quality of care would be jeopardized."

He also might have to eliminate maintenance contracts on bio-medical equipment such as X-rays and electrocardiograms which could "jeopardize the effectiveness of the equipment."

"A malfunction could give the wrong diagnosis," Westenhaver said.

Cutbacks resulting from the government's program, if implemented, would be "damaging," the Andrews authority said. "Any limitations placed on hospitals directly that would limit patient care are totally beyond our area of knowl-

Rather than Carter's plan, Westenhaver favors one which would reward costeffective hospitals and induce ineffective ones to better efficiency.

Howard notes such money-saving ideas among Lubbock area hospitals as the purchasing pool developed to get better discounts for more volume.

Ten hospitals currently are involved in that effort, with the Hale Center facility saving $500 in solutions on its first order,

The program Howard offers as an alternative to Carter's is one proposed by the Texas Hospital Association. That organization wants to establish statewide standards on common efficiency levels to gauge hospitals' cost-effectiveness. Texas is one of the few states with a statewide hospital productivity program through its hospital association, Howard said. The five or six states with such a program might opt to set their own goo operations procedures and standards rather than the arbitrary nine per cent

Hospital officials are lobbying on this issue, and both administrators said legis-lators contacted sided with them.

The Andrews hospital is distributing the letters to patients as are the other 62 facilities in its parent corporation, Hu-

Other hospitals are using different tactics in combating the proposed lid on revenues. Methodist Hospital's administra-

Howard said administrators find it
"disheartening to hear politicians criticizing a system they really don't know too much about. Maybe that's our fault.
This is becoming a political issue just like education has."

"Hospitals in the past have been in a very defensive situation, reacting to public outery on high costs," Westenhaver said. "We should be involved in an educational situation so as not to be presented in such a bad light by the government."

"Health care in this country is the best of any in the world," Howard said. "Now we're being criticized for being the best."

Newsman Defends Free Marketplace

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The principle, says M. Stanton Evans, is simple: prices in the free marketplace are signals between buyers and sellers. As prices are left to fluctuate naturally. the supply and demand for such things as goods, services and labor are "brought into equilibrium.' But, the newsman and author told the Texas Council for the Social Studies, the federal government has "ignored these elementary facts" and meddled far too much in the pricing system.

The results. Evans said at the council's convention in Lubbock Saturday, have been unemployment, energy shortages, soaring hospital costs and a host of other

The remedy lies in less federal regulation - which is exactly the opposite of what the government is doing, the syndicated columnist, published in The Avalanche-Journal, said.

The second Big KLLL West Texas Saturday Night Opry, a benefit for Girlstown USA in Whiteface, will be Nov. 12 at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Civic Center Thea-

The program will feature West Texas recording artists tagged as future stars.

The summer Oprey, held in July by KLLL and Don Caldwell Productions, generated $2,000 for Lubbock's Meals on Wheels program.

Tickets will be on sale at the door and at Sears, Luskey's and Flinside Records for $2 each, Oct. 31. Children under six will be admitted free.

'JAWS' STILL TRYING

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "Jaws 2." which recently got a new director, is now undergoing script revisions after resuming production at Navarre Beach, Fla. Carl Gottlieb. co-screenwriter of the original hit, has been signed by producers Richard D. Zanuck and David Brown to work with newly named director Jeannot Szwarc in making the revisions. The film, again set in the fictional resort town of Amity, stars Roy Scheider and Lorraine Gary.

Evans said it's up to teachers to help turn things around.

One reason the federal government has got away with putting undue controls on the economic system is that the general public has an "appalling ignorance" about free enterprise - and about the basis for the country's founding.

Evans, a commentator for the CBS radio network, said people do not understand the cause-and-effect relationships in their economy, or the conflict between the federal government's assumption of power and the Founding Fathers' inten-

And, he said, as the government grabs more and more control and intrudes further into America's economic system, civil liberties also are threatened.

"The future of freedom can be bright." he warned, but only "if we can impart to the rising generation of young people where our freedom comes from and how our economic system operates."

That responsibility, Evans said, is with the teaching profession and the news me-

Evans, who serves as chairman of the American Conservative Union, told the Memorial Civic Center gathering, "It is so clear that the (United States) system of free, private endeavour is so much better than the system of regimen, of planning from the top" used in socialist na-

Yet, he said, by increasing rather than reducing its economic controls and government spending, the U.S. is moving in socialist directions

What we have been doing is/just the opposite of progress," he stated,

Evans said one example of federal meddling in the free marketplace is minimum wage legislation. As the price employers must pay for labor goes up, the demand for workers - especially young blacks - goes down, he said. Currently Evans said, more than 40 per cent of black adolescents are unemployed.

'That catastrophic level of black adolescent unemployment is produced by the federal minimum wage," he said, since the federal government voung blacks out of the job market.

In the same way, the shortage of oil and gas also has been "artificially induced, created by the federal government," Evans said. The government has held prices on those items too low - resulting in high demand but low supply, he said.

Tech Given $700,000 For Projects

Federal and state grants totaling almost $700,000 have been designated for the Texas Tech University Regional Training Office to continue programs dedicated to improvement of the lot of handicapped children.

The comprehensive projects call for technical and professional training of handicapped children, their teachers, parents and others associated in the overall Head Start effort, according to Dr. Mary Tom Riley, regional training office director, special projects director and home economics professor.

Three major projects include: "Head Start Training and Technical Assistance in the State of Texas"; "Project Family Link"; and "LATON," which stands for Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

Each program is designed to help handicapped children and their parents, Dr.

The Head Start Training and Technical Assistance grant is $397,000 for one year. Purpose of the program is to assure that administrators, teachers and auxiliary staff of approximately 25,000 Head Start children receive adequate training and technical assistance.

Approximately 230 towns are involved in the training program. The Texas Tech . Regional Office acts as a liaison between the federal government and Head Start in

The Family Link Program serves to connect Child Find representatives, special education services and other community service agencies which assist handicapped children. There are two Family Link programs, one of which has been awarded $66,000 from the Bureau for Education of the Handicapped. The program provides home-based services to handicapped children ages 3-5. This program also provides homebound services to handicapped Head Start children and their

United Way Schedules Noon Kickoff Oct. 5 In Civic Center Exhibit Hall

There will be a new look to the United Way campaign kickoff this year. It moves from the Lubbock Coliseum to Lubbock's Memorial Civic Center. Scheduled for the exhibit hall of the Civic Center at noon on Oct. 5, the kickoff will feature Wichita, Kan., banker Robert Gadberry as speaker.

He is vice president and director of public affairs of the Fourth National Bank and Trust Co. of Wichita. Before that, Gadberry was a radio news broadcaster. He has been active in civic and community affairs, annually addressing a number of school, church, convention and civic meetings over the United States. In the fall of 1961, he was part of the Radio Free Europe Inspection Team, which visited the Iron Curtain borders.

Lubbock High School's Westerner band will provide music for the noon

Civic and service organizations in Lubbock traditionally cancel regular meetings for the week and take attendance at the community-wide kickoff. This year, awards will be presented to clubs with 75 per cent or more attendance.

Owen Gilbreath, president of R.C. Young Seed and Grain Company is chairman of the 1977 campaign. Vice chairman is Don Douglass, vice president of Bell Dairy Products.

With a new agency added, Rape Crisis Center, goal for the 32 agencies of United Way is $1,461,822, a six per cent increase over last year's amount.

The United Way of Lubbock

All divisions of the campaign are in active solicitation prior to the community kickoff.

Tickets to the noon luncheon kickoff have been mailed to civic clubs. Others wishing to attend may pick up the $3.75 tickets at the United Way office, 2201 19th St., or at the door of the civic Center on Oct. 5.

Report meetings for the campaign have been scheduled in the banquet hall of the Civic Center on Oct. 10, 19, 27 and Nov. 4.

During a series of neighborhood meetings, to be held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m., city officials and sector representatives will hear residents' ideas on how to spend the Community Development block grants for which the city will apply.

The Community Development Advisory Committee, composed of the sector representatives and members of several city boards and commissions, will study the projects suggested by the residents and city det artments. The committee will then rank the projects according to its priority and recommend a program to the Lubbock City Council. Council members, after a public hearing, will make the final decision and prepare Lubbock's application for the funding. If approved, money for the projects

Showdown Nears In Conflict Of Bankers, Credit Unions

AUSTIN - Bad blood between banks and credit unions is reaching the proportions of that between the Montagues and the Capulets - with no Romeo or Juliet

Some of the blood is likely to be splat-

Credit unions don't face that ban against branching (nor do savings and loan associations), and can use ETFS devices. Several are doing so.

Banks see that as a threat, arguing that credit unions (and savings and loans) should not be allowed to get into areas traditionally reserved for banks without having the same reserve requirements and tax structure as banks.

Credit unions see the reaction by the banks as an attempt to stifle competition. The credit unions also indicate concern as to whether the proposed amendment will provide for their participation in any

A year and a half ago my brother and I opened a small waterbed frame manufacturing and retail business on 19th St. here in Lubbock. Our ideas and products were sound and we prospered. Seeing the potential of our new business, and the waterbed industry in general, we decided to seek funds for expansion. However, when talking to two banks, we were met with, "no track record, too small, not enough experience, age and background drawbacks." Sounded reasonable, and mostly true. We resolved to save every nickel and dime, which we did. Now a year later we have a new fully equipped factory, new retail showrooms in Amarillo, El Paso and a new location, 2305 Ave. Q here in Lubbock. To staff and stock the new outlets and factories took everything. With the generous and hard working help of Dawn Patenotte of Concept Advertising we quickly put the stores on the map in a profit making capacity. We incorporated and once again decided to approach the two banks for a Christmas inventory loan. We got the same story almost verbatim from the different banks we spoke to. Without the proper level of inventory, Christmas sales will be restricted to our average monthly level — making January and February look very bleak.

We do know how to turn a profit, our financial statements prove it. With our father being a career navy man we had the opportunity to see how the other 95% of this world lived. There's no doubt that America is the finest country to ever exist on this planet; but she does have problems. Inflation, unemployment and soaring welfare rolls. Where does it stop and the American dream begin? Is more frustration going to help? Soup lines of the 20's, Food Stamp lines of the 70's...you would think someone would

Methodist To Get Body Scanner

Approval to purchase and install a total body scanning system was granted Methodist Hospital Friday by the Texas Health Facilities Commission in Austin.

The diagnostic scanner will be added to the cancer treat-ment center in the hospital.

The Northwest Texas Conference of the United Method-ist Church applied for the certificate of need. The application also was recommended by the South Plains Health Systems Agency.

No additional building construction will be necessary to install the body scanner and its control room. The system will be placed in remodeled rooms adjacent to the EMI brain scanner installed in the hospital's radiology department in 1975.

"The total body scanner will be of immeasurable benefit to our patients," said George M. Brewer, president of Methodist Hospital.

"It adds the most sophisticated, new diagnostic equip ment to the family of methods now in use. These include conventional X-ray, the brain scanner, ultrasound and nuclear medicine diagnostic services within the hospital," he

The system examines the body as a series of individual cross-sectional slices about one-half inch thick. There is no superimposition of one organ or other body structure over another as seen in other types of X-ray pictures.

The scanner uses a computer to correlate data gathered by the system. Results are displayed on a television monitor, and permanent pictures are made for future viewing.

"Because of the time required for delivery from the manufacturer, installation and on-site operational training, it will be several months before the body scanner will be ready for physicians to schedule patients for diagnostic

Atlantic City's Progress Slow On Way To Gambling Glory.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - It's anyone's bet when Atlantic City will become Las Vegas East.

In almost 11 months since New Jersey voters approved gambling here, officials and businessmen have glowingly announced elaborate proposals to invest

$900 million in 11 new casino hotels. Despite the promises, however, only one $11 million renovation is under way. No developers have announced the long-term financing needed to replace tired old Boardwalk hotels with casino pleasure palaces. The big lenders are said to be waiting to see how profitable Atlantic City casinos will be before gambling on gambling.

The chairman of the new state Casino Control Commission recently said the first gambling license could be issued in January, but he conceded that red tape could put off the first casino opening for several months after that.

"My outlook is optimistic. Don't forget, this is a situation completely without precedent," says Mayor Joseph Lazarow. "We didn't expect things to happen over-

Atlantic City, once the bustling resort of New York and Philadelphia' rich and working classes alike, began a serious decline in the 1950s as the airplane became a popular means of travel, and vacationers and conventioneers took to warmer resorts in Florida and the Carib-

The convention business sagged further as the gracious Boardwalk hotels deteriorated.

Now the unemployment rate stands officially at 12.3 per cent, the highest in the state and far higher than the national rate of 7.1 per cent. It is dramatically higher among blacks and construction workers.

Organized crime has been as much a part of Altantic city as the famed Steel Pier, but it too was hurt by the city's declining fortunes. Now law enforcement officials say the big boys are moving back. They say New York's Carlo Gambino family and Philadelphia's Angelo Bruno mob are showing new interest in the city's vending machine business, bars. restaurants and pizza joints.

Bruno is listed as a "salesman" for one vending machine firm and reportedly makes two cents on every carton of cigarettes sold here. A relative of the late Gambino reportedly tried to buy the Shelburne Hotel on the Broadwalk.

Local authorities, state police and FBI officials are beefing up their intelligence activity in an attempt to curb organized crime's inroads. The state recently went to court to try to bar Bruno's attempts to squeeze out one legitimate vending company here.

Despite state officials' attempts to have businessmen report organized crime contacts, most residents shrug over the underworld's infiltration, saying there is no way to keep it from taking its share of the gambling pie.

The best bet for the first casino opening is in the spring and Resorts International is destined to have the early monopoly with its Boardwalk and North Carolina Avenue hotel the only one undergoing renovation.

Officials of the Florida-based conglomerate say their casino in the former 1,001room Chalfonte-Haddon Hall hotel should be completed in early December. It will wait for the casino commission.

The firm is also building a 2,000-seat dinner-theater, discotheques and bars next to the 58-year-old hotel that is already renamed Resorts International Hotel. Jackie Gleason and Bob Hope are lined up as the first big name acts.

It is expected to be next September at the earliest before the second casino opens. Investors hope to quickly add 100 rooms and a casino to the Howard Johnson's Regency.

Playboy plans to break ground soon for a 33-story, 630-room hotel in a postage stamp-size lot adjacent to Convention Hall. Playboy joined the casino game early, but its new hotel won't be ready before the summer of 1979

Bally Manufacturing Corp., the slot machine maker, and the owner of the Las Vegas casino Caesar's Palace have purchased or leased four blocks of Boardwalk land where they plan to build separate casino hotels. Those opening dates

Atlantic City businessmen hope they will have a toned-down Las Vegas with the big name acts, but without the slot machines in every corner. State law will require the casinos to close down an average four hours every day, a stipulation that has casino developers already wondering how to assign their manpower.

Although Miami, Connecticut, Niagara Falls and Pennsylvania's Pocono mountains resorts are looking into gambling, city officials are confident Atlantic City's head start will keep it in the forefront of East Coast casinos.

City officials do fear massive traffic jams when the casinos open. Atlantic City's streets, which gave their names to the game Monopoly, are a maze of narrow avenues and dead ends.

"We're worried about how we're going to handle the crowds for the first casino. Maybe step-by-step is a better way to do this," Mayor Lazarow said.

Bette Davis Says Public Has Power

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - Actress Bette Davis says the film-going public has the power to force the movie industry to change if it's dissatisfied with today's sexually explicit films.

So when the huge ship goes into drydock in December for its annual overhaul, the company will try to solve its di-lemma by adding two posh, split-level se suites fit for a queen.

The brightest spot in the 1977 antelope season is the excellent range conditions on the Panhandle ranchlands and hunters participating in the hunt should have a good chance at bagging a fat buck.

Panhandle antelope herds counted on representative ranches in the animal's natural range shows a total population of 2,059 animals with 290 permits being issued to the landowners.

Sportsmen will have four days to hunt the fleet antelope during the Oct. 1-4 season in the Panhandle. Hunters in the Permian Basin and Trans-Pecos regions will have nine days to hunt from Oct. 1-9 with range conditions less than ideal.

"It is dry in most areas of West Texas and this will make it harder for the hunter to bag an antelope," said Herb Koth-

Where Fish Are Biting

Buffalo Springs Lake-Fishing for all species-except for pike-is good. There seems to be more than enough crappie for every angler. The bigger catfish are remaining deep during the daylight hours. Each day with its cooler nighttime temperatures increases the bass action, but it will take a major cold front before significant numbers of bass start biting, according to Barnie Greenfield. The lake is in good condition.

Amistad Lake-Top-water lures and spinner baits are good selections during the fall time of the year. Larry Scruggs of Amistad Lodge says to "look for bass to be in lesser depth of water during October and November. Some very fine hauls of stripers have been caught by anglers who have elected to fish under the stars. Stripers and hybrids have been schooling at night on the main part of the lake.

Lake Colorado City-Larry Whitlock and Kelly Chatman from Odessa caught two big white bass and five large yellow cat. Howard Steward from Big Spring caught a 51/4-pound black bass. Other good catches were made but not reported. The lake is in good condition.

Oak Creek Lake-There were some nice bass caught last weekend. C.T. Carr of Andrews had four nice fish on his stringer with the largest going over 51/2 pounds. Several anglers had bass going over 4 pounds and all were caught very early in the day on topwater baits. The fishing dock at Sportsman's Lodge has been one of the better places on the lake to catch channel cat and now the spot is baited for crappie as well.

White River Lake-John Adams of Plainview landed a bass weighing 5 pounds 12 ounces. Adams' 5-year-old grandson, Robert Hardy, caught a 3pound 7-ounce bass. Both anglers used plastic worms to attract the lunkers. One fisherman used a depth finder on the lake last week and reported most of the big bass are at a depth of 20 feet. Sportsmen must obtain the permit from the landowner before the animal is hunted. If the hunter is successful, the permit must then be attached to the carcass upon possession and remain attached until the carcass is processed.

Even though landowners or ranchhands usually go with the antelope hunters, a number of complaints are received by game wardens working the season. The most numerous violation is herdshooting as hunters fire at fleeing antelope herds containing bucks. Many times, more than one antelope is hit by wild bullets as the hunter tries to single out a

Brown Pelican Makes Texas Comeback

AUSTIN (Special)- The brown pelican, which is the mid-1960s was at an alltime low along the Texas coast, is showing signs of a dramatic comeback.

The reason is thought to be the ban on the use of DDT and other chlorinated hydrocarbons in the United States. Other birds, such as the bald eagle and peregrine falcon, also are doing better.

Thirty-four young pelicans, by far the largest number in recent years, were fledged this summer in two coastal Texas colonies, according to David Blankinship, and Audubon scientist stationed near Rockport.

The coastal brown pelican appears plentifui in some areas, like Florida. However, the cause for alarm was the bird's lack of nesting success which eventually would result in a crash of the pelican population.

Ornithologists believe a major reason for this nesting failure is build-ups of longlasting pesticides in the environment and in the birds' food chain. When the chemicals enter the water they are absorbed by zooplankton microorganisms, which are eaten by forage fish. The pesticide collects in the organs of the fish; such as the pelican, then the pesticide is concentrated in the new hosts' bodies.

The amount of pesticide collected is rarely enough to kill the bird itself, but enough to upset its chemistry so as to cause eggs to be very thin-shelled. Such fragile eggs either break during incubation or simply do not hatch. There also have been some indications that pesticides act as a deterrent to the nesting in-

It is estimated that around 1920 there were some 5,000 nesting brown pelicans in Texas. Their population started to decline when DDT use became prevalent in the late 1940s, and continued the downward spiral until no young were fledged in 1964, 1965 and 1966.

During the following seven years-1967 through 1974—only 40 brown pelicans were raised in the whole state. Improvement started when the ban on DDT was enforced in the early 1970s but it takes time for the longlasting chemicals to work out of the environment.

In 1975 nine young were raised from 18 nests, the next year 16 from 14 nests, and this year's 34 healthy chicks were fledged from 17 nests. Nesting ratio also is encouraging. More young per nest are being

New Mexico Hunt Deadline Wednesday

SANTA FE, N.M. (Special) -The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish reminds hunters that Wednesday at 5 p.m. is the application deadline for javelina, gemsbok, ibex and public Barbary sheep hunting licenses.

Applications should be made on Form G, available from vendors statewide and from department offices in Albuquerque, Raton, Las Cruces, Santa Fe, and Roswell. The full license price, including vendor and application fees, must accompany the application. If more than one person is applying on a single form, each must pay the $1 fee. Total coats for the licenses are javelina, $16.50 resident, $52 nonresident; Barbary sheep, gemsbok and ibex, $27 resident, $302 nonresident.

Anyone can apply for Barbary sheep and javeline licenses, except for those who held one for the same species last year. Ibex and gemsbok hunting is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity

There is no application deadline for private-land Barbary sheep licenses, but hunters must have written permission from the landowner in possession while hunting. Apply on Form H, also available at department offices and from license vendors.

Hunters will be selected through a random drawing for the limited number of licenses available for each species. Three hundred javelina licenses will be drawn and approximately 125 public Barbary sheep licenses will be available.

Ibex and gemsbok applicants will be vying for 12 licenses for each species.

Completed application forms, along with the total fees, can be submitted in person at any department office or by mail to the Santa Fe office only. The department cautions applicants to fill out their forms completely and correctly; incorrect forms will be returned for completion and could miss the deadline.

produced, which means the egg shells probably are becoming stronger.

Biologists' optimism still is cautious because some chlorinated hydrocarbons likely will remain in the environment for a long time; also, continued use of pesticides outside the United States have an effect on migratory species.

Reports from "the pelican state," Louisana, where the bird once were abundant, were good until 1975 when the death of more than 300 pelicans came about after extremely heavy rains washed high concentrations of endrin from sugarcane fields into coastal waters. Endrin since has been undergoing review by the federal government. In 1976, abnormally cold weather caused complete failure of the nesting season in Louisiana. Portales Tumbles To Roswell 26-20

ROSWELL, N.M. (Special) - The Roswell Coyotes downed Portales 26-20 in a hard-fought game here Friday night to give both teams a 2-2 record.

At the end of the first quarter, Portales led 14-7 with touchdowns by Rod Bonham and Steve Gares and extra points by David Herrera, but in the second quarter Roswell's Ken Scott added another touchdown to the one he scored in the first period to bring the score 14-

Roswell's Doug Lacey scored on a 1yard run in the third quarter to give the Coyotes the game's lead. Portales scored again in the fourth quarter on a 20-yard run by Paul Hatch, but Roswell finished the game on a touchdown pass from Jim Stoval to Gene Miller.

Farm Support Remains Solid, Carter Says, New Law To Aid

Carter says he doesn't believe he has lost political support among farmers hit by low prices in recent months, but the farm bill he has signed will help repair any damage he might have suffered.

"I don't think any of our polling results indicate I have lost support in the farm belt." Carter told members of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America at a White House briefing Friday.

But, he conceded, farmers are "disturbed" because big overall crops nationally have depressed prices, while farmers in some localities had yields cut sharply by drought

"We all know from experience that farmers tend to blame the president when the have a short crop or when prices are low," said Carter, a former Georgia peanut farmer

"When I wasn't in office, I used to cuss the president and the secretary of agriculture when my crop was poor. And when it was good, of course, I didn't give the president and the secretary any credit for it - I figured it was because of me.'

He said the farm bill he signed a few days ago, and his administration's plans to restrain surplus grain production next year, will show farmers he has an "understanding of farm needs."

The bill increases grain supports for the 1977 crop and provides smaller, continuing increases for grains and other crops from 1978 through 1981.

Critics earlier charged that Carter had seeking to hold increases in the bill below the levels he finally accepted. But he now is embracing the legislation.

Comedy Set To Open Clovis High Season

CLOVIS, N.M., (Special) - Clovis High in guerilla warfare, and a pacification ex-School Drama Department opens its season Oct. 6-7-8 with the satrical comedy, 'Sheep On The Runway'', written by Art Buchwald, and under direction of Bob Lockwood.

The three-act play is set in a sleepy little Himalayan country. The U.S. Ambassador, a political appointee, is entertaining an anti-establishment columnist who smells Red subversion round every corner. His reports start the sabers rattling.

Soon the CIA comes to call, as well as a general with a mail order catalogue of all kinds of armament. Caught up in the whirlwind are the stupefied prince, a native bandit, the ambassador's radical daughter from Radcliffe, eager to major pert who will tell the country how to settle back as it had been once the bomb craters are filled and the reconstruction period is over.

The cast for the 8 p.m. production in the CHS Lecture Hall is Rick Smith, Vicki Callison, Victor Vargas, Julie Stanfield, Randy Sparks, Glen McNeil, Joe Perkins, Bob Gavlik, Chris Hicky, Jerry Fowler, David Rainey, Mike Riley and student director, Dee McDaniel.

Season tickets for CHS Drama Department's five productions this year may be purchased for $8 from the drama department. The 1977-78 shows are "Sheep On The Runway," "Hillbilly Courtship," 'Dr. Cook's Garden," "The Absence of a Cello," and "All Because of Agatha."

Lubbock Attraction Lures Saudi

Avalanche-Journal Staff

It may come as a surprise, but an urbane, international banker from Saudi Arabia has come halfway around the glabe to vacation in, of all places, Lubbock.

The Hub City, however, can boast an attraction for Mohamed Daghistany which Paris, Rome and London

The lure is a seven-year-old charmer named Sarah, who happens to be Daghistany's daughter.

Director of the administration of the Islamic Development Bank, Daghistany spends his annual monthlong vacations here, visiting his little girl.

'She draws me like a magnet," he explains with a loving glance towards the second-grader.

Daghistany is no stranger to Lubbock or to the United States. He was graduated from the University of Southern California and eventually moved to Lubbock, where he worked for Hemphill-Wells department store "The states are my second home," he said. "I feel just as comfortable here as there (Saudi Arabia)." Daghistany had special praise for Lubbockites. "People here are kind and nice. They take time to be friend-

Daghistany described his bank as an "international organization which finances loans to underdeveloped countries." The bank, similar to the World Bank in goals, is headquartered in Saudi Arabia.

He said the infusion of capital into the Third World countries is an investment in world peace. "When everybody's better off, we'll all be better off, both in peace

Asked if simply supplying more money to the countries was the answer, he replied, "If it does not help, it's not going to hurt. "The process of development is a long term process," he said, adding it's too early to tell if underdeveloped countries can successfully make the transition into developed countries. Money alone is not enough to stimulate development, Daghistany said. A combination of money and development skills are needed, he said, so the process will sus-

As for Daghistany's home nation of Saudi Arabia, the sudden influx of petro-dollars is raising the standard of living of all residents, he said.

The country is in the midst of a five-year plan for its own development, a plan which includes attracting more diverse industries like steel mills and small industry to Saudi Arabia

But Sarah doesn't know too much about the country where her daddy lives.

'I've seen pictures of it," she said. "They have cam-

Arts Consultant Plans Return

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Nationally known arts consultant Milton Rhodes praises some aspects of Lubbock's cultural scene, suggests changes in others and plans to return here for more study before making final recommendations on

He garnered enough information during a whirlwind, three-day tour to draft several recomm tions for cultural group improvements, he said, but "I don't know enough yet about the community.

Before he can recommend alternatives the city and local businesses could adopt to help promote the arts and humanities, he will have to learn more, he said.

Within 90 days, Rhodes added, he will send preliminary suggestions to Chamber of Commerce executive director John Logan, who will forward them to the city council and arts group members.

The city could "try out and live with" the sugges tions for awhile, Rhodes said. Then he will return to evaluate their effect, gather more data and make final recommendations, he said

"I will have to come back to talk to more people" including Mayor Roy Bass, Junior League members and the full city council, he said.

He would like to meet again with a mixed group of civic leaders, city officials and arts representatives, Rhodes said. The "give and take" session would serve as a sounding board for his proposals, he explained.

Rhodes, whose trip here was authorized by the city council and funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, commended Lubbock's arts efforts and singled out John Alford, city parks and recreation director, for special praise.

The "superb" department is "far ahead of average communities in its depth of involvement with the arts," Rhodes said. And Alford's music and art back-recreation directors, he added.

Generally, Rhodes said, Lubbock is a "good solid community whose art programs are flourishing." A 'spirit of cooperation" exists among the city government, community and Texas Tech, he said.

But some changes are needed to encourage the city's cultural growth, he said. Lubbock ranks about average among cities that have cultural affairs councils,

"But there's so much more you could do when you combine the resources of the group," he told a representative city and arts group.

A group coordinator is desperately needed, he said. 'What I see happening right now is you're just on the tip of the iceberg," Rhodes said. In the next few years the approximately 30 arts groups here will quad-

And Lubbock will need a "carefully thought out mechanism" to accomodate them "or else it will backfire." Rhodes added.

Local government and businesses will "really have to take a part" in the growth, he said. "You certainly have the businesses in town for that." he added. Major companies here have the potential to contribute much more than they have, Rhodes said. "The arts have to be shown to them as an area of concern." he added.

Businesses are "socked to" everyday by organizations asking for donations, he said, explaining why they will need a special approach for involvement.

Although he as yet has no definite recommendations for the city, Rhodes said he probably will suggest a structural revamping of the Cultural Affairs Council's funding methods, different ways to disperse funds and different grant sources.

"I think you need far more promotion of the arts as gest ways to do so.

Parks department programs, although good, are not firm, Rhodes said. They will need more support, he added.

Senior citizens groups are a "huge new area to get into," he said.

The Memorial Civic Center has a "lot of potential" but needs more involvement with the community, he said, and the groups that meet in the Garden and Arts Center need more space.

The city will have to decide whether to add to the center, build a new one at the same site or build others around town, Rhodes said. "That'll be a pretty tough decision," he added.

Better coordination among various arts groups would strengthen them individually. Rhodes said. Artists know how to stay independent, he said, explaining that they would not "lose anything" by better unity.

The city council has allocated one-half of one per cent of the hotel/motel tax for promotion of the arts. About $45,000 a year will be generated for the arts, the city estimates. Rhodes said he may suggest ways of fairly dispersing it.

Rhodes proposes revitalizing the downtown area by making it a cultural area and increasing art appreciation in the elementary schools. Another of his ideas is for a street festival that gathers varied arts and art objects in one place.

Besides serving as an arts consultant for the National Endowment for the Arts, Rhodes is executive director of the Winston-Salem, N.C., Arts Council. Before becoming Arts Council director, he was the Winston-Salem symphony manager.

He was an intern for the manager/producer of the New York Philharmonic and is trustee of the American Council for the Arts and Religious Communities

Gas Well In Gulf Blows Out

WASHINGTON (AP) - A gas well blew out on a drilling rig in the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast Saturday, caught fire and was burning out of control, the U.S. Geological Survey said

The platform was unoccupied when it blew out, about 4 a.m. EDT, and when the gas caught fire and engulfed the rig in flames, more than eight hours later, a spokesman said.

There were no injuries, but personnel on another jackup rig, drilling a relief well about a half mile away, had to be evacuated because of the intense heat from the burning platform.

The Transco Exploration Co. was drilling the exploratory gas well in the Vermillion Block 25 about six miles offshore and 60 miles southwest of Lafayette, La., according to the federal spokesman.

The name of the jackup drilling platform was the Rowan Odessa.

The USGS supervises offshore oil and gas operations in federal waters.

The spokesman said the well, in 25 feet of water, tried to blow out Sept. 23 after the drillers hit gas sands at a depth of 14,600 feet. Blowout preventers were shut, but some gas continued to leak

The platform was evacuated at that The piatform was evacuated at that time, and Transco Exploration called in oil and gas well firefighter Red Adair of Houston to try to cap the well.

Transco also brought in a second jack-up rig, the Rowan Juneau, and was preparing to drill a relief well a half mile

"Don't talk to me about retirement!

Okay, let's talk about living at John Knox Village of West Texas!

Because it's not at all what you'd expect retirement to be about.

Lubbock. A beautiful city in the scenic high plains district. Noted for its many recreational facilities, and educational and cultural institutions. John Knox Village of West Texas. A Living-Care Retirement Community.

Living-Care

What is Living-Care? It's a lifestyle as imaginative as the one you lead now.

As a Village resident, a one-time Entrance Endowment provides you with a comfortable home for the future, without the cares of expensive and tiresome home management and repairs.

Choice of Lifestyles

At John Knox Village of West Texas. you can choose from garden cottages, villa apartments, and studios, one- and twobedroom apartments.

A Whole Life

There are activities aplenty at the Village. Facilities include an indoor pool, a woodworking shop and a kiln. There's an ice cream parlor at the Village, too.

You'll never feel any pressure to "join in" at John Knox Village, though. You've chosen the way you want to live, and you're in complete control. Quiet times with family and friends, or just curling up with a good book, are favored activities here, too.

Many residents of the Village have gone back to school, taking classes in degree programs at nearby colleges.

All Village residents and their guests can take advantage of the Village Dining Room, for all meals or just for an occasional night out. Those who require special diets, such as low-sodium or low-sugar, will have their menus personally supervised by the Village dietician.

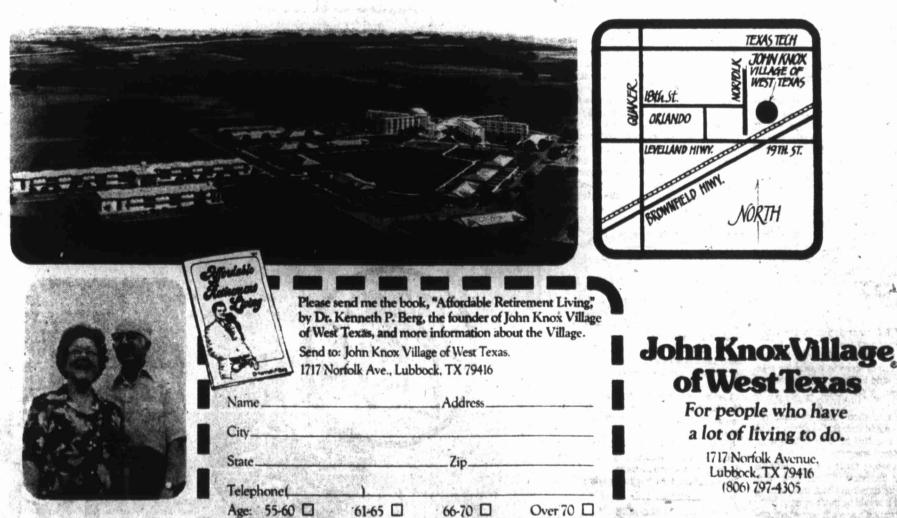

Health Care

Living-Care is lifestyle, and Living-Care is health care, too. Every John Knox Village resident is provided the immediate availability of health-care services. The Village Med Center is staffed 24 hours a day with professional nurses and aides, should the need ever arise for their services.

Physicians are always on call for emergencies. Your own doctor is always welcome, of course, and you'll find it doubly reassuring that the Med Center Staff are people you already know and trust.

Living-Care Retirement is the creation of Christian Services, Inc., the nation's leader in the development of retirement communities for almost two decades.

Come and see John Knox Village of West Texas. We're in Lubbock, and easy to get to.

Between classes Keith learns his assignments in English, alegebra, world history and Bible to complete enough credits to graduate on schedule.

Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. "Bill" Landrum, on Aug. 11 underwent spinal instrumentation for idiopathic scoliosis, commonly known as curvature of the ine, in Methodist Hospital in Houston. His complete recovery will take approximately one year.

"The doctor told him it would be easier on him to pick up one heavy lowd than to Keith's mother, Darlene Landrum, an employe of Coronado 7th Grade Learning Center Cafeteria. "Constant use will wear out his back."

Landrum, area staff manager for American National Insurance Company, described his son's operation: "Doctors fused his back and put an 18-inch steel rod along his spine to hold it straight."

Keith wears a cast from under his arms to his hips, with an open space over the abdomen for expansion when he eats. This is covered by a body stocking inserted inside the cast. The stockings have to be changed every 10 days. Mrs. Landrum said the new stocking, sewed to the bottom of the old one, is pulled up in the cast as the old one is pulled out.

Childress Gets Medical Clinic Through Display Of City Spirit

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS — When a handful of young civic leaders set out to purchase a medical building in hopes of attracting more doctors to Childress, residents backed the effort vigorously - but no one really thought the money could be raised quickly or easily.

Less than three weeks later, the newlyformed Medical Crisis Committee had the funds to purchase and redecorate Butler Clinic.

Early this summer, Dr. R.G. Butler announced his retirement and offered his clinic for sale. The 4,000 square foot, fully-equipped medical building with its lab and 11 examining rooms will accommodate as many as four doctors.

Concerned because the growing city has only four practicing physicians - two in general practice, the other two surgeons - Pat Steed, Wayne Lindley, James Driver, Dr. Larry Moore and City Manager David Galligan formed the committee. If the clinic could be purchased by the community, they thought, it would serve as a drawing card for metropolitan doctors wanting to relocate in a small city and perhaps attract new physicians iust out of internship or residency. The committee set an immediate goal of $35,000 and a long-range one of $50,-000. Funds were obtained entirely through private donations of residents and businesses of the community. The primary goal was reached quickly - and the money is still coming in. The $50,000 goal now seems likely. Moore said.

He explained that the first goal financed the clinic project. Additional funds are needed to pursue the effort of attracting doctors.

Butler Clinic is a downtown building. Its waiting room has been repainted, and new carpeting brightens the area.

Modern furniture is on the way. Supplies and equipment have been checked and replenished down to a new patient registry book in the office.

'A doctor could come in empty-handed and start practicing," the committee members said. Hospital Administrator Robert Maynard thinks there's something pretty special about the way the committee is getting things done. "It's really good to see young men move into a community and get behind a project like this," he said. And he thinks it's pretty special the way townspeople dug down deep to provide the necessary funds. The board of directors of Childress General Hospital is doing its bit, too. Maynard said a Physicians Recruitment Committee of hospital board members is helping with the effort to search out pro-thing, sees a possibility that Childress will become a medical center.

Funds raised by the Medical Crisis Committee are being administered by the hospital district. Maynard is enthusiastic about purchase of Butler Clinic.

"I don't think you could find a better built or equipped plant for the investment," he said.

Moore said the long-range goal of $50,-000 will put the community in a financial position to set up at least one doctor in practice. "And he'll have the advantage of the fully-equipped clinic," he said.

'72 SALT Accord Expires Monday; No Buildup Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) - The 1972 U.S.- serious political and military consequ-Soviet arms limitation agreement, the first joint effort aimed at restricting the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers, expires Monday with both still haggling over an accord to replace it.

In the legal sense, the lid will be off the arms race when the deadline passes. The ceilings that have been in effect for the past five years will no longer be binding and either side could begin immediate production of deadly new weapons bevond those limits.

But in recent days, both nations have issued unilateral statements pledging to abide by the terms of the expiring agreement so long as the other side exercises similar restraint. The Carter administration has gone out of its way to emphasize that these state-

World Growth Meeting Slated Near Houston

THE WOODLANDS, Tex. (AP) — A group of scientists, educators, researchers and politicians will spend the next three days discussing how the world will cope with population growth and demands for more services.

The conference, called "Alternatives to Growth "77," will bring to this new city on the fringe of Houston speakers from seven nations to discuss the fields of business, energy, sociology, labor, technology, ecology and agriculture.

The second of five scheduled blennial international conferences begins Sunday might with speeches by U.S. House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill, D. Gass., and Ivor Richard, British ambassador to the United Nations.

The sessions are being co-sponsored by The Club of Rome, the University of Houston and the Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. of Houston.

On the agenda is a report by three scientists who have developed a new statistical policy analysis tool that they say can predict the needs for food, the success or failure of various energy programs and global growth.

The new statistical tool was developed by Dr. Mihajlo Mesarovic and Dr. Barry Hughes, both of Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, and Dr. Eduard Pestel of Hannover University, West Germany.

Relaying on computers, the scientists already have predicted that the world will experience famine by the year 2000 and steep increases in the price of food.

Tech Professor Leads Circuit Research

The computer, transistor and integrated circuitry have led the world to better and cheaper electronic devices to do the bidding of people. But behind the so-phisticated electronic devices are engineers who develop techniques for their design and maintenance.

At Texas Tech University, Dr. Richard Saeks and his students are developing the mathematical theory that underlies the design and maintenance of complex electronic circuits. The results of their research are used by the technicians who actually design and maintain the circuits and systems which serve customers.

Saeks has a joint appointment in the departments of mathematics and electrical engineering.

"Electronics is the only industry in history," Saeks said. "which halves the costs and doubles the quality of its products every 10 years, and it has been doing that for the past 50 or 60 years."

For 500 years, he explained, man tried to build an accurate watch with only partial success. Now there is the electronic watch, with 5,000 transistors in a solid piece of silicon about one-eighth of an inch square. It is more accurate than any mechanical watch.

Voyager II, enroute now to the planet Jupiter, is vastly more complicated but still operating on the same kinds of circuits and systems.

It is possible, Saeks said, to get up to 10,000 components imbedded into a silicon chip by photographic processing. The initial chip has a high cost, but, when chips are reproduced in quantity, the cost is essentially about a penny apiece.

With all that has happened since World War II, with computers and transistors and the resulting circuits and systems contributing to modern miracles, the mathematicians and engineers are predicting even greater things for the future.

Saeks said that homes of the future will have thousands of unseen silicon chips hidden in appliances and electronic devices to make living simpler.

But beyond that, he is working on a theory of maintenance for circuits.

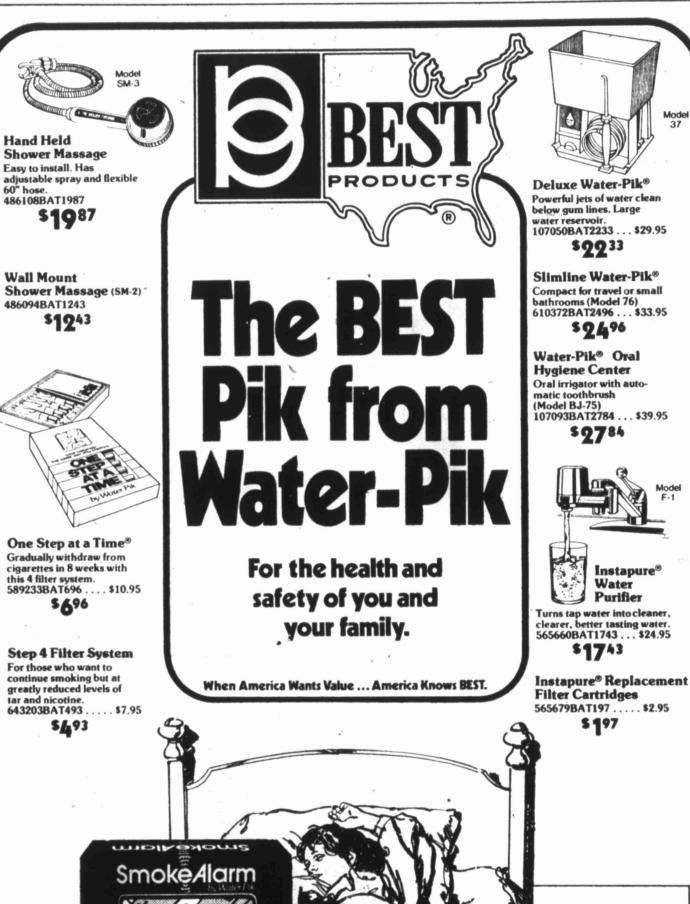

"The new devices are too complicated to repair by hand," he said, and the repair aspect to date has been done mostly be "seat-of-the-pants" engineering.

"Repair is at the stage now where design was 30 years ago," he said. Automated repair is the answer.

For each device, he said, the ideal situation would be an attached micro-computer which could predict approaching failure.

"This is in the realm of feasibility," Saeks said. But the first step will probably be a type of computer to which the device, should it fail, could be attached. The computer could locate the point of failure and speed repair. The next step might be a computer built into the device. The ideal would be a built-in computer which would predict failure at a certain point before the breakdown occurred."

Saeks' primary interest is in pure mathematics, the extremely sophisticated mathematical techniques necessary to understand circuit and systems phenomena.

and this year's projected goal is $1,461,822. United Way was developed as the result of community efforts to help people. The agency has an over-riding concern for people and the problems they face. As Lubbock is a thickly populated area, there are many who need assistance. There are 32 services funded by United Way including the newest addition to the 'family', the Rape Crisis Center.

The various agencies serve in the areas of physical and mental health rehabilitation, delinquency prevention, family and children's services and general community;

•The story is this: your blood, some five quarts of it, makes a circuit of some 60,-000 to 100,000 miles once every minute, to and from the heart. It goes out laden with oxygen, nutrients, enzymes and hormones to be distributed to each of the body's 30 trillion cells; it returns equally laden with waste products to dispose The heart itself acts as a pump, it is aided by the arteries to propel the flow of blood dong with minute but regular contrac-

It is also important to keep your irreplaceable papers, but you should keep those in a safe deposit box. Items such as marriage and birth certificates, divorce and adoption papers, citizen records, and any other document that's government or court recorded. Copies of some things can be replaced quite easily - copies of insurance policies can be obtained at your insurance company, and copies of cancelled checks are usually available at your bank.

The original copy of a will is usually kept in the office of the attorney who prepared it. (A copy should be kept at home, where it is readily accessible.)

One very important record is a household inventory, in case of fire or burglary. (Some families take pictures of their rooms to help identify possessions.) Give a copy to your insurance company, and eep one at home.

Organize like this, and you'll have everything you need at your fingertips, a nice, cure state of affairs, (and an extra

A reader asks: "Is a garment, which is tagged 'water-repellent' the same as one that's 'waterproof?'"

No, the words "water-repellent" mean that a fluoride fabric finish has been applied, which will make the fabric resistant to wetting, now waterproof. The chemical additive forms a shield around each fiber, preventing the fibers from absorbing watery and oily substances. This serves two purposes. It helps keep you dry in wet weather. The fabric also resists stains.

You may ask, if the fibers are made non-absorbent, why isn't that the same was waterproofed. There are still open spaces in the weave, even though you can't see them. In a pounding rain, water will penetrate the "pores" of the fabric. However, it's these open spaces that make a water-repellent garment more comfortable than one that's absolutely waterproof. In the first instance, the open spaces allow the passage of air, dispelling body moisture. A waterproof finish is created by applying rubber, lacquer, linseed oil compound or synthetic resin to the fabric. These substances close the pores of the fabric making it impervious to rain. However, if worn for any length of time, body moisture will condense inside the garment creating discomfort. The waterproof coating may eventually wear off. particularly along the seams. Some of these fabrics stiffen with drycleaning Water repellent finishes are applied mainly to tightly woven or knit fabric. This figures, as the smaller the space between varns the better. The styling of a raincoat is significant. A double yoke at the back of a coat over the shoulders provides extra protection, but the under layer must also be waterrepellent. Otherwise, it will serve as a blotter and invite more water to penetrate. Another practical ploy is the loose capelet across the shoulders a la police officers and military.

Water-repellency is a great idea, but your cooperation is needed to maintain its effectiveness. Wash the garment regularly or have it drycleaned if fabric or construction requires it. This prevents an inordinate amount of normal wear soil build-up, which counteracts the water repellent feature.

Give prompt attention to oily or grease stains. Usually, these may be removed with a spot remover without leaving the familiar cleaning ring. Fluoridized fabrics resist absorption and thus block the 'wicking" action that often spreads a

When the article is washable, use water temperature and detergent suitable for the fabric if untreated. Give special attention to rinsing. It's absolutely necessary to remove all the detergent. The reason? The detergent reacts to water opposite to the way fluorides act. Detergent pulls water into the fabric, wetting it.

Remove the garment from the dryer, while it's still damp and press it with the iron set at the normal temperature for the fabric. This is a trick that helps preserve the maximum stain and water-resistant properties of the fabric. It doesn't work as well if you allow the garment to iry, then dampen by sprinkling in order to press it. If dry, the alternative is to use a steam iron.

Infrared Scanner Used In Study

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) - A new study is underway here to develop a safe, fast method of breast cancer detec-

Researchers at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center have already evaluated 2,756 women in a program to check 10,000 with an infrared scanner.

"If successful," says Dr. Ann D. Haberman, "this will make it possible to screen millions of women annually without using potentially harmful X-rays." Dr. Haberman is director of the study.

She said 206 cases so far have required further examination. Biopsies showed 53 were cancers and 151 were benign.

The new technique uses a Honeywell infrared scanner that accurately detects heat patterns on the surfaces of women's breasts that are indicative of conditions, including cancers, beneath the breasts' surface. The technique can reveal deeply buried cancer sites because the veins that develop around them come near the surface and cuuse a hot spot. The system also is designed to differentiate between cancers and harmless

ANSWERline: Out of 129,000 symptom-free women between 35 and 50, enrolled in breast cancer screening demonstration projects sponsored by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute, 223 women were found to have breast cancer on the initial screening. Of these, 100 breast cancers were found by mammography alone. Of great importance is the fact that the great majority of these 223 breast cancers were found in an extremely early stage when the probability of cure is excellent in most cases. And this mammography involves center of each breast (a rad is the standard unit of measure.)

A colostomy is an operaton in which the diseased portion of the bowel is removed, and an opening is created in the wall of the abdomen for the elminiation of natural waste. A colostomy can rightfully be considered a symbol of life rather than death from untreated cancer. Women And Health

EDITOR'S NOTE. This is the first in a series dealing with women and health. The following eight parts will appear in the evening editions of the Avalanche-Journal.

BY HARRIET P. DUSTAN, M.D.

CLEVELAND. Ohio (NEA) — Until recently high blood pressure — hypertension — was popularly thought to be a serious porblem primarily for men. In the past few years it has become more widely understood that this disease does not discriminate according to sex.

Americans suffering from high blood pressure, nearly half are women.

There has been speculation that women are now suffering from hypertension in greater numbers because of a new more stressful, "liberated" lifestyle: more women in the work force, in managerial positions, smoking, having cocktail lunches. Do these factors account for hypertension in women?

Actually, in only a few cases do we know what causes high blood pressure, and there is no evidence to indicate an upsurge in the rate of hypertension in women. The change is that women have become more aware of the problem, and more of them are finding that they suffer from hypertension

The effects of abnormally high blood pressure may be devastating. Untreated, it can lead to heart failure, stroke, kidney damage and more. Yet only a small fraction — about one-fifth — of all Americans with the disease are being adequately treated. Only about 70 per cent are even aware they have it?

What is blood pressure? It is the force within the arteries as the blood flows. There are two figures to remember. Systole is the pressure inside the arteries when the heart pumps blood. Diastole is the pressure when the heart relaxes. These measurements are indicated by the familiar two-number notation, with systole first or on top. A reading of around 120 over 80 is normal for most people.

Blood pressure rises at certain times — when you are excited or during strenuous physical activity — and this, of course, is normal. But it is not normal for blood pressure to remain at elevated levels. This is why a physician often takes several readings before making a judgment about high blood pressure.

The problem is further complicated by the fact that hypertension often has no symptoms in the early stages. For this reason women should pay special attention to the following situations which may be related to the occurence of high blood pressure.

— The Pill. The rate of high blood pressure is two and one-half times greater in women taking oral contraceptives. The risk is even greater in women who are, in addition, overweight, have a family history of high blood pressure, have mild kdney disease or have been hypertensive during pregnancy. Women should have a blood pressure check before having contraceptives prescrived, wand every six months thereafter.

— Being black. No one knows why, but black women, even very young black women, have a higher rate of high blood pressure than white women. In fact, one in every four black person older than 18 is estimated to have high blood pressure. Half are women. It is the single biggest killer among blacks in the United States.

Fire Detector Can Save Lives

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Smoke-andfire detectors installed in American homes could save 2,600 lives annually, savs a leading manufacturer.

About 40 per cent of the annual house fire death toll of more than 6,600 lives could be saved if the houses had detectors, said Richard T. Golding, life safety products manager for Honeywell. Golding spoke to a conference here of the Metropolitan Committee of the Internatinal Association of Fire Chiefs.

Core pears but do not peel; chop fairly fine — there should be 3 cups.

In a medium mixing bowl cream the butter and sugar; beat in the eggs until blended. Stir in the flour mixture, in several additions, alternately with the coffee just until smooth; fold in the pears.

Turn into a buttered 13 by 9 by 2 inch baking pan: sprinkle batter with the Streusel Topping.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out free of batter — 45 to 50 minutes. Place on a wire rack to cool. When still slightly warm, cut into squares and remove with a wide spatula, serve at once. If you like, pass whipped cream — no need to add sugar to it because the cake and its topping are quite sweet.

Makes 12 servings.

Streusel Topping: In a medium-size wide bowl stir together ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar, 3 tbsps. flour and 1 tsp. cinnamon. With a pastry blender cut in 2 tbsps. butter until particles are fine; work in ½ cup finely chopped sure tends to run in families. Chances are greater that an individual will have it if parents or other relatives do. Regular blood pressure checks are appropriate for all members of hypertensive families.

Pregnancy. If a woman is already hypertensive, she may become more so during pregnancy. Other women who have never had high blood pressure before may develop it when pregnant. In some cases it disappears after pregnancy; sometimes it does not. Under any circumstances, a pregnant woman should have her blood pressure checked frequently.

— Menopause In industrial nations, like ours, blood pressure seems to rise with age Thus, as women grow older, they become more susceptible to high blood pressure, and may become even more susceptible than men. The chances of developing it are particularly great after menopause, although this does not mean that menopause itself causes hypertension.

 Overweight Many other factors may contrivute to high blood pressure in certain individuals Cheif among these is obesity, which puts an added strain on the entire circulatory system. Although there is no cure for high blood pressure, it can be successfully treated. The first step is discovering it. Then it may require medication over a lifetime, or perhaps modification in dietary or exercise patterns. But proper treatment is well worth the effort, to insure a longer, healthier life.

Terriers or crossbred terriers, for example, are generally nervous, rather high strung and full of energy. They may work off excess energy by barking, especially if they don't receive enough exercise. Boredome is the main reason for long periods of senseless barking. A dog left alone indoors for hours at a time has little to do and will bark in the hope of attracting attention and companionship. Doctor Develops Home Treatment that

RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR - YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores, . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HEL-ENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Texas Boy's Ranch Offers Family Living Situation

Family News Staff

Texas Boy's Ranch (TBR) was established by a group of men who believed the community needed a home for dependent, neglected and delinquent youths. The ranch, located about five miles northeast of Lubbock, became a reality in December 1972.

Construction of the first cottage was completed in March 1975. The cottage houses 10-12 boys in addition to cottage parents. Recent additions include a second cottage, a recreation building and a vocational workshop.

The basic concept of the ranch is to work with boys in a family style living situation. Emphasis is also placed on working with a boy and his family to improve their relationship and/or problems so that the boy may eventually return to his The ranch encourages boys admitted to the facility to participate in ranch work including livestock care, gardening and property maintenance. Recreational activities are also provided, swimming, horseback riding, baseball, basketball and overnight camping trips. The boys attend Roosevelt School and participation in school activities is encouraged. The ranch assumes the responsibility for supplemental education and will assist them after graduation or upon leaving the ranch, a vocational training program is provided.

Medical and dental care is provided by community doctors and resources. Cottage parents are responsible for daily health needs, transportation to doctors' offices and immunizations.

Religion is an important area at the ranch. Although church is held on the ranch, each boy may attend the church of his choice. TBR is non-denominational and no church doctrine is taught.

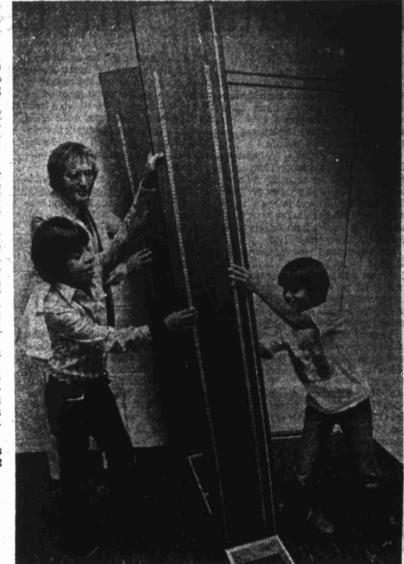

Churches, schools, parents or interested individuals may refer any boy, age 6-15, to the facility. An Intake/Assessment Committee determines admission. The committee evaluates what the boy's needs are, and what the ranch can offer him. The ranch hopes to help a boy regain dignity of self, humility of faith and experience for creative leadership within. his own family.

TBR is not sponsored by any specific agency, organization or group. Basically, the ranch is supported by donations and contributions. Fund raising programs include: memorials, monetary gifts, special gifts, estate planning and material gifts such as livestock, clothing, food and construction materials.

Perinatal Unit Established As Regional Center

Family News Staff

The 15 county South Plains Health Science Area 2 has an infant mortality rate of 25.9 deaths per 1,000 live births, based on the latest five-year period of statistics available from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

South Plains Perinatal Association, formed in March, has adopted long-range plans with goals for reducing the newborn death rate to 12 per cent per 1,000 live briths by 1981 and to less than 10 deaths per 1,000 by 1983. The Association also expects serious birth defects to be reduced by 25 per cent by 1983.

The Association's program is designed to make use of people and facilities in each area county and community and to provide for the deviopment of a central facility with medical specialists and sophisticated equipment needed for delivery and treatment of high-risk infants.

The need for this regional emergency care facility will be fulfilled with the opening in Februrary of the Perinatal Center in the Health Sciences Center

Dr. Mike Blackburn, neonatologist in Texas Tech University School of Medicine (TTUSM) and director of the center, said, "The perinatal center will provide a regional facility with the capability to take care of high-risk pregnancies from the initial pregnancy test through delivery and neonatal (newborn) care."

Due to population and finances, area hospitals cannot provide and maintain year-round the facilities and personnel needed for the few problem deliveries that may occur each year, said Black-

Once it is determined a prospective mother is in the high risk category, the perinatal center can draw from a pool of specialists at TTUSM to work with the obstetrician to discover how the problem is likely to affect the pregnancy and, ultimately, the baby.

High-risk or problem pregnancies can occur most often when the mother is under 17-years-old or over 35; has a metabolic disorder such as hyperthyroid condition or diabetes; has a family history of inherited disorders; has a structural abnormality of the pelvis; is either over-

Blackburn said the center will be able to monitor the fetus through biochemical analysis, urine tests and ultra-sound evaluation to determine how the fetus is progessing or if any problems have devel-

At the time of delivery electronic monitoring is possible to determine how the fetus is withstanding the strain of contractions, he said.

A small electrode can be placed on the scalp of the baby during labor. This enables doctors to monitor the babies heart rate. A minute blood sample can also be drawn from the tiny area of the scalp visible during contractions.

With the electronic monitoring, doctors are able to ascertain how the baby is doing. "If a baby is not tolerating the contractions well, and a Caesarean section is needed, we can set up and perform one in 15 or 20 minutes," said

When doctors are anticipating a Caesarean section, it may show the baby is tolerating the contractions well, and a natural birth may be allowed, he said.

Blackburn pointed out that such procedures require a tremendous staff.

"Normally an obestetrician can't stay with a mother all day and watch the electronic feed out, he has other patients to take care of. But here in the perinatal center, we have doctors and staff whose only responsibility is to stay with the woman," said Blackburn.

to provide complete monitoring of the baby's vital signs, and life support systems if necessary and in a majority of cases, one to one nursing.

Blackburn acknowledges that a nursing shortage exists, but he believes when the center is opened, nurses needed for the intensive care unit will be found.

After delivery, the baby is taken to the neonatal intensive care unit. Here the baby is placed in a single unit under a warmer, which keep the temperature at a constant level. Each unit is capable of totally monitoring each newborn, said Blackburn. Heart rate, respiration, blood pressure, temperature, are all constantly monitored and a urine analysis is run 15-20 times daily.

In addition to the complete neonatal intensive care unit, specialists in TTUSM are available for consultation if serious problems develop with a baby. Blackburn said TTUSM has the only designated pediatric-cardiology center in the West Texas area. The Texas Association of the American Heart Association supplys support and and some funding for the cardiological center.

Blackburn emphasized the community hospitals are excellent and have no problems handling normal deliveries, but to establish a center such as the perinatal center, requires more than a single community can afford.

"A single community can't afford a facility like the perinatal center, but the state can. It takes a place such as TTUSM and the Health Sciences Center Hospital

NEW EQUIPMENT - Dr. Mike Blackburn, neonatologist in the Texas Tech University School of Medicine and director of the new Perinatal Center, to be located in California Medical Center in the book 'Modern Perinatal Medicine." They point out "the cost of equipment increases almost daily both because the equipment becomes more sophisticated and also because it is more expensive to make. Equipment costs pale, however, in comparison to the personnel costs in an intensive care unit. If one follows the standards of the Academy of Pediatrics there should be one nurse per bassinet in the intensive care unit or at the least, one nurse per two babies. Since it takes 4.7 nurses to cover a shift and each earns about $47 per day the nursing care alone costs from $110 to $210. Add to this physician's fees, inhalation therapy costs and administrative personnel and you can why we charge $236 per day in our intensive care nursery.

These experts, and Blackburn, agree the costs of a neonatal intensive care unit are high but don't question the cost when compared to what the death of a child costs society, or the added cost to society for the care of a damaged child.

Again, Quilligan Paul and Sacks point out, "The baby's worth to the family can't be calculated in dollars, but rough estimates of societal can be made. If the child dies, an individual is lost who could have earned $540,000 (average annual income $12,000 x 45 working years) and this is not considering what he could contribute to society in the form of art, literature, etc. If the child lives, but is brain damaged, not only is the income lost, but society must pay for the maintenance of that individual for life.'

Because of the costs involved in the perinatal center and in transportation costs from outlying areas to families who must travel to Lubbock the Perinatal Association has set as two of it's objectives: to require that all health insurance policies written in Texas provide complete and catastrophic coverage regardless of the marital status of the mother, and to obtain adequate insurance coverage for all aspects of consultation and transportation of high-risk mothers and neon-

Blackburn said if a high-risk mother needs to be hospitalized for complete bed rest during her pregnancy, there should be insurance provisions to cover the hospital stay, plus the social services division within the hospital to arrange for care of children in the home.

Plans and funding for the transportation aspect of the perinatal center are still pending. According to Blackburn, when a physician calls the center and says he has a woman about to deliver nine weeks prematurely, transportation facilities should be available to bring the woman to Lubbock and if necessary deliver her while on the road. Vehicles should also be equipped to transport an ailing newborn.

Blackburn said the maximum time a infant should be transported in a car or ambulance is two hours. This time requirement has brought up the possiblity of using fixed or rotary wing aircraft as a means of transportation.

William Tinney, president of the Perinatal Association, observed the perinatal center was established in the 15 county Health Systems Area 2, but the center has an outreach to 106 counties in West Texas and part of eastern New Mexico.

He said the 106 county West Texas area constitutes about 50 per cent of the geographic area of the state, but only about 20 per cent of the population.

This fact make the transportation aspect an important matter. Blackburn said TTUSM is applying for several private grants, such as the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation grant, and talking with nongovernmental groups as well.

Tinney emphasized that the institution (TTUSM and the Health Sciences Center Hospital) belong to the people, and people need to be made aware of the facility.

Dr. J.M. Rankin, a Lubbock obstetrician, who was chairman of the committee which drafted the Association's long range plans, said he believes the perinatal center is unique in that it will cater to private patients in the area as well as any indigent patients.

"The rapport with the staff doctors and the area doctors is excellent. There is a general theme of team work and a willngness to help one another," he said.

The Perinatal Association has an executive board of two health care providers and one consumer from each county.

The Association goals encompass more than the actual perinatal facility. Family planning information and services to all citizens regardless of age, sex, marital status, or ability to pay is an important aspect of the overall plan.

The Association also hopes to bring all women into the health care system within the first trimester of pregnancy and provide the best medical and social services for them throughout pregnacy, birth, and for three months after delivery by reducing barriers of access to the health

Dr. Rankin said the associations plan is based on a plan developed in the Alamo area of San Antonio. "We used that plan as a guideline and modified it to make it appropriate to this area," he said. Blackburn said the ultimate goal of the Perinatal Center is to make the consumers aware of what is inside the unit.

We want all women who are pregnant to know they have a right to good care. They should be able to ask their obstetrician what kind of care is available if there is a problem."

Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the County Hospital District, said he has seen other perinatal units and summed up his opinion of this center: "I think the perinatal center here is one the community can be proud of. It is modern, up-todate and staffed with highly qualified personnel. It should bring perinatal care to level a that has not been here before. This center is not behind anyone, it is right out in front.'

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm a respectable middle-aged woman who never thought I'd be writing a Dear Abby letter, but I am.

While driving home alone from a meeting at about 11 p.m. last evening, I developed car trouble. Fortunately, I was in a residential neighborhood, so I rang the doorbell of a home, hoping to get someone to help me.

A man yelled through the locked door, Who is it?" I told him of my plight, and he said, "Sorry, I don't open the door to strangers." I was shocked. I rang another doorbell. This time an elderly lady pulled her curtain aside to look at me, then she disappeared without even asking me what I wanted

Then I tried to flag down a motorist. About 30 cars passed me before a young hippie-looking kid in a beat up old van stopped and gave me a ride to a gas station. One man was inside and he signaled he was closed and couldn't help me!

I finally found a pay phone and called AAA, which sent someone out to help

My question: Are we living in such a sick, selfish, paranoid society in which people care so little for each other that they won't open the door to a stranger? I could have been on my way to a hospital with a dying child for all those people cared. I welcome your comments.

Dear Boiling: In light of the widely publicized police directives cautioning us against opening one's door to strangers, I cannot fault those who refused to let you in. However, they could have made a phone call for you.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a dude who can't keep his eves off other girls. What he does when he isn't with me can't hurt because I don't see it. but when we're together and he stares at other girls, I'm hurt. He says blonds are his

Jeannie With The Light Brown Hair

Dear Jeannie: Don't marry a man hoping he'll "change" for the better after marriage. He may changed for the worse - or not at all.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a young boy, I lost the thumb and first two fingers of my right hand in a farming accident. I learned to write with my left hand, but I have another problem. People are always wanting to shake hands with me, and it's embarrassing when they realize that I have some fingers missing.

I have tried extending my left hand to shake hands, but it's very awkward, and only calls attention to the fact that something must be wrong with my right hand. If you can solve this one, you'll be my

EDWARD ALBEE: To Speak At Tech

Playwright To Speak At Tech Thursday

Playwright Edward Albee, winner of two Pulitzer Prizes for "A Delicate Balance" and "Seascape," will speak at Texas Tech University's Center Theater at 7 p.m. Thursday as part of the University Speakers

Advance tickets are available at the University Center ticket booth and, barring an advance sellout, will also be available at the door Thursday evening

Albee is widely acclaimed as America's foremost dramatist still writing and is regarded by many as among the world's most important contemporary playwrights. He was elected to the National Institute of Arts & Letters.

His "Who's Afraid Of Virginia Woolf?" is a popular theater classic which has been translated into many languages. Its current revival on Broadway is directed by Albee himself, evoking ecstatic comment from both the critics and the general public.

Walter Kerr said of the revival in the New York Times, "It plays on stage with force, with subliminal credibility, with a more nearly universal thrust than its original audiences were inclined to credit." When "Who's Afraid Of Virginia Woolf?" was first produced in 1962, Watts described it as "the most shattering drama I have seen since O'Neill's 'Long Journey Into Night," adding that "Mr. Albee can without danger of fulsome exaggeration be placed high among the important dramatists of the contemporary world theater.'

Still, Albee's first Pulitzer winner was "A Delicate Balance." Max Lerner characterized it as a play portraying "through barbed talk and polished interaction, the prime disease of our time and our society, which is neither violence nor materialism nor alienation, but quite sim-

Albee's second Pulitzer came for "Seascape," described by Brenda Gill in The New Yorker as "the most exquisitely written" of all his plays. She continued, "He has calculated not only every immaculate line of dialogue but every word, every ceasura; when the actors fall si-ient, we hold our breath and wait, as we wait on the reading of some

Of Albee's recent "All Over," Samuel Hirsch wrote: "It restores faith in the American Theater and has re-established Edward Albee as our

A good play is defined by Albee as one "with something to say and the ability to say it." He believes that "a play should bring its audience some special sense of awareness of the times, alter and shape that awareness in some significant manner."

An Edward Albee lecture can be described in much the same manner. He has something to say on the platform and says it well. He argues that live theater in America is important and should be made more available to all, not just to the privelaged few.

He Icels, however, that the level of taste in the American theater the level of the control of the level should be elevated. Albee sees college and regional theater today as being our most vigorous, most productive, most capable of develop-

Albee began writing poetry at the age of 6. In his teens he wrote two novels, neither published. At 20 he stopped writing and did not resume until he was 30 when he produced "The Zoo Story," followed by "The Sandbox" and "The American Dream

Then in 1962 came "Who's Afraid Of Virginia Woolf?," bringing to Albee towering dominance on the American theater scene and instant international acclaim.

Here in this very limited tour is an unexcelled and memorable oppor-tunity for theater lovers to hear how great plays are conceived and de-veloped in the author's mind and are eventually delivered full born onto the stage as revealed by America's greatest living and writing drama-

Synesthesia is a merging of the media in which images and music convey the same message

> Lubbock audiences can catch the effect first hand when "Synesthesia" is presented at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Center Theater on the Texas Tech University campus. Ticket information is available by calling the University Center ticket

On entering the auditorium, the observer is confronted with an array of four Kodak Ektagraphic projectors modified by Chick. Mechanical irises which allow the magic of Synesthesia.

Beside the projectors and in front of Chick and Anne are two sets of controls. These allow them to "play" the images as one would play a musical instrument. The instrument is the chromicord. Color slides are arranged in a fixed scored sequence which can be overlaid and pulsed by these controls in interpretations unique to each performance.

The performance varies as a concert performance to a given piece of music would vary.

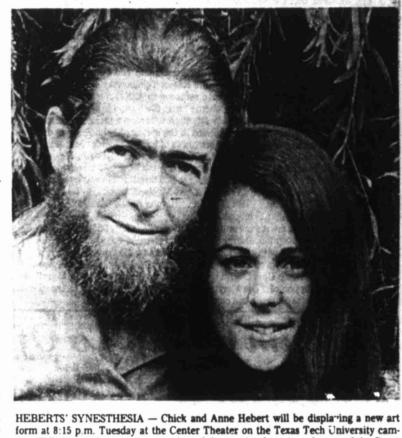

The visual reaction is one of completeawe in the fact of incredible beauty. One comment heard was, "If a blind man could be granted one hour of vision, he should see Synesthesia." The messages are universal and symbolic; the images are part of a non-verbal visual language. sequenced in a sentence to a specific theme

One of the most incredible things about it is the overlays. No image is static, but rather consists of a series of animated higuid color montages (superimposed images) so that each picture is part of a metamorphosis emerging from the previous one. The series flows like a changing vision in a way impossible for conventional film techniques.

Frame-by-frame editing is necessary to achieve the marvelous effects of Synesthesia, and absolute perfection of composition, technical quality and symbolic message is achieved at all times.

For the dancer, it is a unique piece of kinetic art choreography; for the psychologist, it is a universal language of the Jung archtypes; for the naturalist, it is a world of beauty in natural form and variation; for the artist, it is a masterpiece of kinetic design; and for everyone it is a fantasy in created mood, one in which joy and beauty create a sense of union and tranquility, where time ceases and one exists in space sensing pure delight.

Reactions are generally silence and awe followed by applause. The Heberts invite audiences to come and meet them while they demonstrate equipment following the performance.

Baritone Lenus Carlson To Appear At Civic Center

Among those young American artists — born and musically educated here — count baritone Lenus Carlson in the front rank of those musicians whose star is in rapid ascendency. In opera he is a singing actor of uncommon impact; as a soloist with orchestras and as recitalist, he sings with Music lovers can be justifiably proud of America's record in producing many great baritones. They recall such artists as Lawrence Tibbett, Leonard Warren, John Charles Thomas, Robert Merrill, Goerge London and others. In his mid-20s, Lenus Carlson already seems destined to follow his elder peers in America's baritone "Hall of Fame".

Lenus Carlson's many faceted talents were further polished in the master classes of Maria Callas at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. Her interest and confidence in his burgeoning career is also shared by other notable musicians.

And now Lenus Carlson will appear with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra at 8:15 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Civic Center Theater. His performance promises to be one of the most rewarding musical events here in recent seasons.

The artist may well be judged by his impressive credentials: During the 1975-76 season, Lenus Carlson is performing with the Scottish National Opera by invitation from maestro Alexander Gibson. In Edinburgh and in key cities of Scotland and England he is singing the leading role in the Robin Orr opera "Hermiston", based on the novel by Sir Walter Scott. He is under contract with the Metropolitan Opera for performances in Mozart's "Cosi fan tutto" and in Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff." He is also engaged as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. His schedule calls for coast-to-coast recitals and, at this writing, he is already set to make his debut with the Royal Opera in London's Convent Garden in five performances as Valentine in Gounod's "Faust" in May, 1976.

On the evening of December 16, 1974, the widely heralded new production of "Boris Gudunoff" was unveiled at the Metropolitan Opera. Singing with a large cast — some many years his senior — Carlson won distinction. Andrew Porter, critic of The New Yorker, informed his readers that "The outstanding member of the surrounding cast was Lenus Carlson. His lyric baritone was forward and beautiful, his phrasing was smooth, and he used his words (Russian) as if they meant someting.'

Bryon Belt, nationaly syndicated critic-at-large for the Newhouse Papers, declared that Carlson was "splendid". Only weeks before, the artist had made his Met debut as Silvio in "Pagliacci" followed shortly thereafter by his Mercutio in "Romeo et Juliette". The New York Times' Raymond Ericson reported that "as Silvio he made a handsome lover for Nedda, both in looks and voice.

Lenus Carlson's recitals in the spring of 1975 were followed by his re-engagement at the Netherlands Opera. In Amsterdam and other key cities, he sang eight performances in the title role of Tchaikovsky's "Egen Onegin" in the original Russian. He then returned to America and sang Marcello in a concert version of "La Boheme" with the Nashville Symphony.

The artist's talents received wide attention following a major success at the American Opera Center of Juilliard in the spring of 1972. He sang the title role in the first New York performances of Ernest Bloch's "Macbeth" He was justifiably acclaimed: "Lenus Carlson sang Macbeth. He is a large-sized, handsome man who moves like an athlete, acts in a convincing inner and sings with plenty of voice." (N.Y. Times)... "He was outstanding in voice and action." (N.Y. Post)... "As Macbeth he was, to be blunt, magnificent." (Cleveland Plain Dealer)... "He was rightly the center of attention." (The Christian Science Monitor).

Good news of an artist's uncommon abilities travels fast, and news about Carlson was no exception. During the 1972-73 season he was engaged as Silvio in "I Pagliacci" with the Dallas Opera, Nick Shadow in "The Rake's Progress" with the Opera Society of Washington, D.C. and again as Silvio with the San Antonio Opera. With the Atlanta Symphony he sang the Count in a concert version of "The Marriage of Figaro", and with the Cincinnati Symphony he was Marcello in a concert version of "La Boheme"

Of his Washington performance, Paul Hume informed his readers that "Lenus Carlson is a treasure of a find. As sharp in the thrust of his action, as brilliant in managing his elegant baritone, his Nick Shadow is a triumph Equally impressed was Irving Lowens in the Washington Star-News: "The cast was very strong. Simply magnificent was Lenus Carlson's realization of Nick Shadow — indeed, he was the finest Old Nick I have ever heard or seen. He thoroughtly dominated the stage with the power of his singing, the clarity of his diction, and the grace of his action." This great hit resulted in an immediate re-engagement by the Opera Society of Washington to sing Michele in Puccini's "Il Tabarro" and Lescaut in Masseneet's "Manon" during the 1973-74 season when he also made his debut with the Philadlephia Lyric Opera as Michele.

That period marked his third successive season with the Dallas Opera, as well as his engagements with the Netherlands Opera, the Opera Company of Boston and the Houston Grand Opera.

CARLSON JOINS LUBBOCK SYMPHONY - Baritone vocalist Lenus Carlson, here shown in a more relaxed state, will be formally dressed and onstage with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Lubbock Civic Center theater. This week's concerts open the symphony's 1977-78 season, its first in the new Civic Center. Tickets are still available for both the Monday and Tuesday shows and can be reserved by calling the Lubbock Symphony office.

Replacing Thomas Stewart in the Mini-Met production of Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas", his interpretation as Eaneas led to a contract with the Metropolitan Opera where he made his debut during the 1973-74 season in

Born in Cleveland, North Dakota (population 100) his fourth grade teacher interested him in music, and he enjoyed early piano lessons with her. Later he began singing in church choirs, in high school and for the pleasure of an admiring family at home. His unusual talent in a rural community also made him a standout and spurred his aspirations.

As an adolescent, the recordings of Jerome Hines inpsired him, and he began vocal lessons with John Sorenson when he was fifteen. His teacher further encouraged him toward a musical career until he was 18. During his first undergraduate years he was coached by Robert Vlawson at Jameston (N.D.) College. In 1967 he earned his B.A. at Moorhead (Minn.) State College where his voice teacher was Dwayne Jorgenson. To help pay for his education, he earned money by singing bi-weekly at a local television station for three years while at Moorhead. Public attention was also focused on Lenus Carlson by virtue of his extra-curricular singing and acting in college theatre productions - Macbeth, Carousel, Oliver and other op-

At this point performances with the Minesota Orchestra under Stanislaw Skrowaczewski won him high praise and prepared him as a forceful exponent of the oratorio and orchestral repertory. He also offered a recital for the prestigious Schubert Club of St. Paul. The critic of that city's Ploneer Press declared: "Hearing Lenus Carison, one had the sense of being on the ground floor of what may well become a major singing career. He has a voice of amazing substance, clarity and even quality for a 22-year-old, and he has intelligence, taste and feeling."

At this period he also benefited by taking master classes in Minneapolis with such celebrated divas as Phyllis Curtin and Eleanor Steber.

Considering the thorough education in music, it is not surprising that Lenus Carlson has mastered a larger repertory than some of his elder peers. In opera his style ranges from the classic through the romantic to contemporary works.

His roles include Mozart's "Don Giovanni" (title role)" Figaro in Rossini's "Barber of Seville"; Ford in Verdi's "Flastaff"; Malatesta in Donizetti's "Don Pasquale"; Marcello in Puccini's "La Boheme". In the contemporary genre he sings roles in Weill's "Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny"; Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors"; Farberman's "The Losers"; Thomson's "Lord Bryon".

To these achievements must be added the fact that Lenus Carlson is popular with festival managements. Since 1967 he has been engaged by the Center Opera of Minneapolis, the New Hampshire Music Festival, the Central City Opera (Colorado), and the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood (Lenox, Mass.)

Lenus Carlson's busy life leaves little time for outside activities. He is a sports enthusiastic, and during his four years in high school, he was a letter man in all the sports the school had to offer. As time allows, he still participates in playing tennis, basketball, ping pong, swimming and chess. Of these he most enjoys tennis and is "fanatical" about chess. But his interests are varied and include wood carving, reading, art, gardening, camping, good food.

The artist married on August 20, 1972. His wife, nee Linda Jones, is a pianist. He calls her his most prized possession — "but I don't possess her." Having been raised in rural settings, he prefers the great outdoors, the mountains, quiet and a camping site for a real vacation. Then he can catch up on his reading or, if one is showing nearby, catch a film show starring his favorite actor, Laurence Olivier.

Perhaps it is his many interests, activities and exceptional music background that have made Lenus Carlson the polished young artist that he is. Whatever the influence in his life, his dedication to his art has produced a baritone voice in the great tradition. As a singing actor, he is already well appreciated, and his fame is bound to spread with each new season.

Former Tech, Odessa Instructor Commissioned To Do Sketches

nally got around to picking up a copy of Joe Ely's debut album. Reading the cred-its on the back, I was amused to see that the cover sketch had been drawn by Paul Milosevich. It's a name country music fans — and Lubbock fans in particular have grown familiar with.

Typing up art advances, one consistently finds Milosevich's name as a guest instructor at some seminar. His byline was darn near a regular feature in Country Rambler magazine. His sketches of country entertainers are the talk of the town and the album jackets he designed for Tom T. Hall - especially the one for 'The Rhymer And Other Five And Dimers" - expose him as a man with a genuine feel for country music.

So when the phone rang at home and Milosevich hesitantly asked me if I'd be interested in hearing about his latest job, I couldn't help but chuckle when he began to explain just who he was. He still thinks people don't know about him.

The new assignment comes from none other than Nashville's Country Music Hall of Fame. Milosevich has been asked to submit sketches of no less than 60 songwriters of the past and present. The sketches will be properly framed and used to line the walls of the Country Songwriters Hall of Fame.

Milosevich, a slow talking man of Yugoslavian heritage who gave up the se-curity of teaching jobs at Odessa College and Texas Tech University because he 'wanted to create and not get stuck in a situation where I was just cranking it out," has become fairly well known for his charcoal and pencil drawings - even though he is no slouch at watercolors and still lifes.

But despite the skill and rising popular-ity, deadline pressure worried him a bit. Sixty sketches remain sixty sketches, no matter how big the honor. But luckily, help was at hand. An ex-student of Milosevich's named Jim Eppler agreed to tackle half the sketches.

The two have collaborated before and the elder artist heartily applauds the talent of the younger man. Eppler, too, expresses an affection for his art, but had to admit that, despite the sketch work, "I'm still broke.

Milosevich, by the way, is not one to disguise his feelings or his craft. A visit to his home revealed the walls lined with sketches and paintings, clever ditties like just artin' around" hung about and even a beautiful calico cat (what artist doesn't own a cat?) making friends with visitors. The atmosphere is a creative one, but the emphasis remains on the men who make country music.

Why? What makes Milosevich want to draw the faces of the Cash's, the Tillis', the Williams'? Tom T. Hall is said to have described Milosevich as "a good person who draws songs," but why coun-

Milosevich explained that he has drawn other music figures. The musical preferences of his three teenaged daughters took him though "an Elton John phase" for awhile. But he grew up listening to country music; he likes the feel of it and, after brief respites to the music of Bob returned to the country and western songs which seem to inspire him. As a result, he's attended quite a few concerts, sketching performers. (He was once "complimented" by Michael Murphey who proceeded to fold a sketch up and stick it in his rear pocket.) Visits with entertainers are not uncommon and the occasional midnight phone call from Jessi Colter or meeting with Hall still excites

A myriad of plans are racing through his head. Jerry Jeff Walker has asked him to produce a backdrop for his concerts, a big cartoon of a fellow in red flannel pajamas being drawn to the music. The words above will read "Hi Buckaroos, Scamp Walker time again." Milosevich also wants to do sketches of the women country stars - Dolly Parton, Loretta Lynn and Emmy Lou Harris, in particular - but details have to be worked out with the ladies' business

Nevertheless, with all these projects in mind, it remains a shame Milosevich has so much trouble displaying his work in Lubbock. He and Eppler have a great desire to combine their recent looks at the area into an art exhibition called "West Texas Realism." The problem is finding a place to show it

'The Museum doesn't exhibit Lubbock artists. And the Civic Center wants an arm and a leg," he laments.

That is not his only problem. After earning national recognition and honors by being requested to sketch the 60 historic country songwriters, Milosevich has not even been invited to go to Nashville nies this week. Both he and Eppler naturally would like to go but, like make their livings creating art, expe can be a setback.

Asked whether they'd go at tighe last minute if the Country Music Hall Of Fame arranged for transportation, Eppler wasted no time in expressing the thoughts of both: "Oh, no doubt about it. If they've got the money, we've got the

Tech Bringing Montecinos Back For October Recitals

Following last year's extremely successful piano recital in Lubbock by Alfonso Montecino, the Texas Tech department of music was accosted with requests for a return visit by the accomplished musician. Montecino will offer a piano recital at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Recital Hall, playing music by Bach, Beethoven, Schumann and Ravel.

Siri Garson-Montecino, a vocal artist of the highest calibre, is one of the pre-eminent mezzo sopranos singing today. Norwegian by birth, she accom early train and, later, Chile. The Washington Post has written of her: "Siri Garson-Monteci no is a singer who brings a very special entity to the concert stage. She has a voice that is utterly fascinating. It was arresting and magnificent."

There will be a charge for the recitals, and a separate charge for the maste class for vocalists and pianists which the duo will offer at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the Recital Hall. Call the Tech music depart ment for details and ticket prices.

Rolling Stones Bounce Back From Adversity

A-J Rock Correspo

The fact the Rolling Stones have remained together for almost 16 years is a testimonial to the band's elasticity. The Stones remain an enigmatic entity though their image is not quite as controversial as it was during the much celebrated 1967 drug busts or when the media pinned a devil incarnate image on

Guitarist Keith Richard was busted for cocaine in Toronto in February of this year and many said the calamity tolled the Stones' death knell. But that controversy, which occurred at the height of the Margaret Trudeau one, gave Richard plenty of time to weed through more than 200 hours of live recordings of the

Granted, Richard is not much of a producer (though he and Jagger have coproduced the last two Stones' albums under the nickname the Glimmer Twins), but he knows how to mix the instrumentation for the accurate effect. This is no easy task, even for Richard, because the Stones' sound is highly energetic and # rhythmic. And these qualities are extremely difficult to cut into an album's

Richard's most recent dodge from the band's media-imposed "demise" is the long-awaited Stones' live album, "Love You Live" (Rolling Stones Records).

The pacing of the two-record set is similar to that of 1972's "Exile On Main St.," the Stones' (and rock's) best album. The approach, basically, is hit 'em with medium-paced rock 'n' roll, slide into some slower numbers and then charge 'em with a ton of powerful rock 'n' roll.

"Love You Live," the Stones' third legitimate live recording, opens with an odd percussion intro and a tape of the group's fanfare, Aaron Copland's "Fanfare For The Common Man." Soon, the 34-year-old Richard's chopping guitar cuts open with "Honky Tonk Women."

But the opening of "Honky Tonk Women" and a medley of "If You Can't Rock Me" and the 1965 hit "Get Off My Cloud" is lethargic. And that's a bad way to open an album, especially if you're the Rolling Stones.

Despite the unsettling start, "Love You Live" picks up with Richard's gutsy vocal on "Happy" and Jagger's sexy delivery of "Hot Stuff."

The latter song is much livelier than it's "Black and Blue" counterpart and leads into "Star Star," a nasty rock 'n' roller sporting strong support by the Stones' indelible rhythm section of Richard, bassist Bill Wyman and drummer

Side two begins with a lazy rendition of "Tumbling Dice," hurt by Richard's dull rhythm guitar and Billy Preston's unimpressive organ.

"Fingerprint File" follows with Jagger playing a mean guitar. Ron Wood's funky bass pattern is played expertly and Jagger's soulful vocal, doctored by an echo chamber, adds depth to the song.

The comically whimsical sing-along "You Gotta Move" serves as much as filler here as it does on "Sticky Fingers." A tantalizing Jagger vocal, coupled with Richard's swaying rhythm guitar and Wood's steely lead, spur the luscious "You Can't Always Get What You Want." Jagger shows off his French by encouraging the Paris crowd to sing the chorus along with him at the end of the Side three is the band's off-the-wall historical portion of the album. It was recorded live at Toronto's El Mocambo night club during the February crises. The two-night stint was termed by John Rockwell of the New York Times as a time when "they returned to their roots."

Jagger and Richard stand out on this side for their empathetic feel for and spirit of the blues. The Stones' pull Muddy Waters' "Mannish Boy" from their classics closet to open the platter. The side progresses through a flippant reggae version of Waters' "Crackin' Up."

Then it's time to introduce the band to the rowdy Canadian crowd. Jagger, in his usual flash of sarcasm and arrogance, introduces Preston as "open for offers (from the ladies). I'm not saying he's up for grabs, but he's open for offers." Percussionist Ollie Brown is "definitely open" and Watts is "just sort of maybe." Bill Wyman "takes photographs of girls' legs" and Richard is "completely straight," an obvious crack at the guitarist's legal status more than his bedtime hello to Mrs. Trudeau and then hurries the group into "Around and Around," The Chuch Berry song is delivered with much more authority and flexibility than their original version on "12x5." It boasts great guitar work from Richard and Wood and Watts is punctual on drums.

Side four, like side four of "Exile," is the highlight of the album. It begins a bit drearily, though, with "It's Only Rock 'n' Roll." But Richard's bursts forth: on "Brown Sugar" and the band follows him. Jagger's half-yell, half-vocal is alchoholic, the result of his exhaustive stage antics and probably a good amou

All the stops are pulled out for the throbbing "Jumping Jack Flash." The guitars begin to wale like berserk cellos as the stage heat burns them out of tune, Jagger is quick on vocals and Wyman's and Watts' frenzied play underlines the

A rare encore of "Sympathy For The Devil" follows with Richard assumi Mick Taylor's old guitar role in the song. Somehow the tune isn't the same as it was during the political turmoil of 1968 when it was released on "Beggars' Banquet." But the Stones' enthralling delivery, particularly Richard's and Wood's fiery guitars, put that apprehension aside.

The side (and the album) close to the sounds of exploding firecrackers and roaring Parisian crowd.

"Love You Live" will be the Stones' most highly scrutinized album, at least until the next one comes out (probably next spring).

It is their best release since "Exile" and may signal an end to the mediocrity that characterized "Goats Head Soup" and "It's Only Rock 'n' Roll." It is a document to good times, just as "Exile" is.

"Love You Live" is far better than Andrew Loog Oldham's attempt at cashing in on Stonesmania in 1966 with "Got Live If You Want It!" The album doesn't quite push and shove like "Get Yer Ya-Ya's Out," but it does offer more diversity than the 1970 live release. It is a good album, but it won't surpass the greatness of "Ya-Ya's" or the Who's "Live At Leeds."

Complaints Urged Without Delay

NEW YORK (AP) - If a customer has a complaint about a meal or service in a restaurant, it should be voiced on the spot, according to an American Express survey of eating establishments.

The owners and their employes said they respected customers who let their criticisms be known more than the ones who leave unhappy, vowing never to return. But most people fall into the latter category, the survey showed, making it difficult to correct errors and improve customer relations.

Many of the owners and managers who responded to the questionnaire said they felt customers should be respectful and tolerant of a restaurant's problems, but they should not allow themselves to be intimidated.

Dennis Weaver
Strums Prairie Dog Blues

By PAULA SCHWED

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Dennis Weaver doesn't think much of his voice, but he enjoys writing country songs with titles like "I Got a Feeling Like a Prairie Dog Sitting by the Freeway Blues."

Weaver gimped through Gunsmoke as Matt Dillon's cheerful, crippled sidekick Chester, then starred for seven years as a chivalrous rube of a television cop called "McCloud."

The character drew an avalanche of fan mail from women attracted by Weaver's clear, blue eyes and his bumbling way of getting the case solved.

"The ladies like to fantasize about McCloud because he's so chivalrous and tender," Weaver said. "Men who act macho are missing a bet. It's the funmy, kind of backward guy who gets the women."

The series was cancelled recently by the network for reasons Weaver cannot quite understand.

Reg. 3.95

Reg. 3.95

"They programmed the show so atrociously," he said without a trace of anger. "We competed against shows like "Gone With the Wind" and "Roots." There's still plenty of nostalgia for the McCloud character if they would pay attention."

There have been other television offers and talk of a movie, but for now Weaver is concentrating on his country music. He has completed his third album and it is filled with songs he has written.

"I wouldn't sit and listen to the sound of my own voice," he said. "But I think my songs are saying something."

The "Prairie Dog" song was born while Weaver was driving to work one morning on a congested Los Angeles highway.

"Where have all the prairie dogs gone now that we have highways?" Weaver said he mused at the time. "That's how songs come to you. There's nothing special or weird about it."

He says he has no desire to be a great writer, "like Shakespeare or Kris Kristofferson," but plans to stick to simple songs.

"I began writing songs in college about the moon, June and a spoon and haven't gone much farther," Weaver said. "These songs are clean and simple. It's my honesty that the ladies like. If I dress it up, they wouldn't go for it."

The tall, tan actor's love of simplicity complicates his life in some ways. He became a vegetarian in 1958 and has since learned how hard it is to "eat right" and lead the life of a traveling entertainer.

"I just like fresh, simple food that's good for you," he said. "You would be surprised how many hotel managers, airline stewardesses and talk show hosts across the country think I am a freak because I travel with my own fruit and cheese."

Changes In Traditional Women's Roles Altering Crime 'Patterns'

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth of 15 articles in a series exploring "Crime and Justica in America." By LOIS DEFLEUR NELSON
FOR GENERATIONS, crime has been associated with maleness in our Reporting, recording, and writing about crime all reflected a basic valsystem in which the male role was dominant. Men were considered the primary perpetrators of most deviant activities. They were both the feared and revered participants in this sub-rosa world.

The few women discovered joining in criminal activities were regarded with distaste but were not treated too severely by the courts. But neither did they receive the full protection of the law-men were free to pursue many of their illicit pleasures, such as prostitution, with little fear of moral or legal reciminations, even though females were often the abused participants and victims.

This male dominance of the criminal world is now beginning to change

AS SOCIOLOGIST Freda Adler has noted recently, another generation of women will enter this criminal world, "a generation of who, as girls, will think it perfectly natural to become carpenters or architects or steeplejacks or senators; a generation who will dream of running away from hor. ' to join the circus or growing up to become desperados or gunslin-

The traditional view of the role of women in crime is thus responding to changes in the role of women in our society at large. But the emerging picture appears full of contraditions and conflicts.

According to arrest data, women's involvement in property crime, such as theft, embezzlement, and fraud, has increased dramatically in the last decade, with the arrest rate among females rising almost three times faster than that among males. Stiil, the rate of female arrests is only about one-third that of men. Female arrests for violent crimes, such as assault and homicide, have remained relatively low and stable.

CONSISTENT WITH traditional sex roles, prostitution is a relatively frequent female crime. Male customers, in all but a few cities, are ignored as parties to a criminal act.

The statistics on rape indicate almost a fourfold increase in male arrests in ths last 15 years, but obtaining a conviction for this charge is still very difficult. Furthermore, although men are reported and arrested for rape, the primary accusations and stigma still fall on the female victims. For example a Wisconsin judge recently declared rape a "normal" reaction of a teenage boy to women's revealing clothing and a sexually per-

In the judicial system, data from courts indicate that in the past women have tended to receive preferential treatment in terms of charges, convictions, and sentences. In some states, for some types of offenses, females still are treated more leniently than males, but there are signs of increasing equity or even more severity in convictions and sentences for women.

NEVERTHELESS. WOMEN are still less likely than men to be sent to prison. Furthermore, if they do go to one of the few female institutions, they will find that there are fewer training and rehabilitation opportunities than in men's institutions, although the actual living conditions also

How, then, do we make sense out of this changing situation? Several factors have to be considered, including traditional societal sex roles and their supporting stereotypes. These sex roles have had a strong impact upon the ideologies and practices of those who attempt to control crime.

THE TRADITIONAL activities for women in our society have revolved around the wife-mother and sex-object roles. In the past, female involvement in crime has been seen as an outgrowth of these roles.

A woman might have been a shoplifter, child abuser, or prostitute and was probably motivated by her relationships with men, emotional instabilities, or sexual maladjustments. It was assumed that such traditional roles provided both the framework as well as the restraining factors for female participation in criminal activities.

1. How do changing social roles affect female crime patterns?

2. In what ways are females treated differentially in the criminal justice

3. How have the explanations for male and female criminal involvement 4. How is the woman's movement related to changes in female crime pat-

1. Changing social roles provide more opportunities to commit crimes previously committed mainly by males.

2. The courts have traditionally treated women criminals more leniently than males, although this preferential treatment may be changing for some offenses in some jurisdictions.

3. Female criminality has been simplistically explained by biological inferiority and psychological maladjustment, while male criminality has been explained by social, economic and political variables.

4. Indirectly. The women's movement promotes new roles and occupations for women, and these changing roles affect the crime patterns of

It is within this cultural background that citizens and criminal justice personnel responded to female criminals. Witnesses and victims of female crime were hesitant to take action against women since they felt women needed society's protection and probably were not particularly

SIMILARLY, POLICE exercised more discretion when they encountered a woman in criminal activities, and they seldom either brought her in or charged her with an offense. Courts also tended to be lenient with the relatively few women who appeared before them.

However, this paternalistic and preferential treatment had its costs. Throughout the criminal justice system, "a fallen woman" often experienced discriminatory, severe treatment. For example, prostitutes were regularly rounded up and treated with disdain; rape victims were embarrassed and humiliated.

These same themes and stereotypes were embodied in the scant social science studies on women and crime until very recently. Many writers from a variety of disciplines offered social, economic, political, and psychological explanations of male involvement in criminal activities, but the few social scientists who focused on females emphasized primarily biological and-or psychological factors.

WOMEN INVOLVED in crime were either maladjusted psychologically, inferior biologically, or had failed to adjust to the expectations surrounding traditional roles. These ideas prevailed until the 1970s.

The contemporary women's movement that began in the late 1900s has had at least an indirect impact on crime and sex roles. The movement has resulted in increased awareness and sensitivity to changing sex roles on the part of the general public, criminal justice personnel, and women

There have been pressures for official agencies to alter their policies and practices and there is some evidence this is happening. For example, sociologist Rita Simon interviewed police, prosecutors, and others in the criminal justice system, discovering this recurrent theme: "If it's equality these women want, we'll see that they get it."

IF, INDEED, THIS attitude is reflected in official behavior, then we would expect that there would be some decline in preferential treatment for women in the criminal justice system. We could surmise, then, that some of the increase in reported female crime could be accounted for by these changes in official policies.

However, these same changes will mean that equal protection will increase, and that the often degrading and discriminatory treatment of women will decline.

We can speculate about other changes in sex roles and their impact on patterns of crime. For example, close to 50 per cent of all women participate in the labor force, and increasing numbers are pursuin; higher education. However, the majority of women still are employed in relatively low status clerical and service occupations and are not compensated for their labors commensurate with their training. Nevertheless, women are increasingly involved in activities similar to those of men.

SOME SOCIAL scientists believE that expanded roles for women will influence the motivations and opportunities for female involvement in crime. Females will acquire aspirations, expectations and experiences beyond traditional roles—both legitimate and illegitimate.

Women will learn about the financial world, firearms, physical force, and other heretofore exclusively male realms. Their move into a wider and other heretotore excusively made recessary set-variety of occupational and social roles will provide the necessary settings and opportunities for criminal activities, even the motivation and skills for violent crime. However, these changes are bound to be slow and will probably not result in dramatic increases in total female crime

THIS MEANS that when women are so inclined they will not have to depend on their relationships with men to enter, participate, or direct

In the future, then, we can expect a gradual increase in female partici-pation in a wider range of criminal activities. At the same time, as our value system changes, some predominantly female crimes such as prosti-tution probably will be decriminalized.

Another long-term effect of changing sex roles will be the increased proportions of women entering occupations in the criminal justice system. Already cities are hiring more policewomen, more female lawyers are practicing criminal law, and women judges are becoming less of a curiosity. Indeed, these changes are becoming so accepted that they are reflected in television programs such as "Police Woman."

The overall effect should be increased equality and due process for both men and women in the criminal justice system.

The views expressed in COURSES BY NEWSPAPER are these of the authors only and do necessarily reflect those of the University of California, the funding agencies, or the per-peting newspapers and colleges.

One of the fun things about CB is meeting people, both on the air and in person at coffee breaks. So it shouldn't come as a big surprise that thousands of CBers, lured into the good buddy world of friendship, have become pen pals.

These aren't your average pen pals, Instead of exchanging letters, CBers are exchanging QSL's.

What's a QSL? Literally, it comes from the radio amateur's Q-Code, roughly translating to "I acknolwedge." Thus, a QSL card is a postcard acknowledging contact between CBers.

A. A lot of us, and especially the FCC, wish there was an answer to that. Better yet, what we need is a surefire way to catch them. The consensus is that about 15 per cent of the stations heard on the air are unlicensed. With free licensing and instant privileges thanks to the interim licensing policy of the FCC, there's really no reason to be unlicensed.

If you think you know an unlicensed operator, report him to the FCC, giving his name and address, and the usual times he's on the air.

The state is unfinished, so step carefully, especially in the northeast along Bumpass Hell Trail, one of several smoldering reminders of latent volcanic activity. As for widespread earthquake paranoia, the authors offer down-to-earth advice on where and when to expect bad vibrations, how to secure geological consulatation when buying a home, what to do during and after tremors.

California also is shaky economically. Although a skilled worker has reasonable expectation of employment, according to the catalogue, the boom-bust cycle is a way of life in the state.

A repeated emphasis in this publication is that California is cannibalizing itself. Its automania is choking Los Angeles with smog. Its business enterprise is threatening to turn Yosemite into a convention center, and the Sierra Nevada into a ski area. Its official state animal, the California grizzly bear, is extinct. Its state tree is the Sequoia, but a camper in Redwood National Park can wake to the muthe preserve's boundary.

California still boasts plenty of natural beauty, inspiring family outings, rugged backpacking, beachcombing and othe adventures suggested and detailed in the catalogue. The state is full of surprises. There area hill of daffodils in gold country, a herd of buffalo on Catalina.

For city folks, the catalogue untangles mazes of highways (best view: Embarcardero Freeway), museums (widest variety: San Francisco, from witchcraft to Wells Fargo), film studios (most expensive tour: Universal at $5.40), and a long lineup of made-made marvels. One possible route is a "tour of the hungry' through San Joaquin food factories, famous for free samples.

The California Catalogue refers its readers to other sources of information, both governmental and commercial. Riproaring historical notes reinforce each regional section. Illustrations include contemporary photographs and old-time engravings which span two centuries of Promised Land mystique.

"Baseball, As I Have Known It," is a book of fond baseball memories by a sports writer of the old school.

An 89-year-old former sports writer who broke in as a "rookie" in 1911 along with Grantland Rice and Heywood Broun, author Fred Lieb correctly identifies his style as somewhere "between the gee whiz and aw nuts variety."

He writes with an easy grace about the game which has been his first love for 66 years and, for example, tells the story of the 1911 World Series as if he had toddled back from Philadelphia after viewing the

Lieb writes about the giants of baseball's gaslight era with the intimacy of a man who knew them well and with an unimpaired memory which enables him to recall exact details of events as they occurred more than a half century ago.

It is too bad the book is not twice as long as its 276 pages so that the author could have devoted more than approximately 30 pages to events of the last 40 years. But he has written a pleasant and informative book designed for old fans who want to relive the past or young buffs interested in early history as seen

Former CIA Aide Pinpoints Amtrak Problems

Pacific News Service
WHITE SULFUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (Special) -Just a few years ago thousands of eager vacationers used to board the C&O railroad's crack George Washington in New York for a genteel half-day ride to this mountain resort. They dined with linen and silver on a feast of wild game as the train swayed softly along lush Appalachian valleys up to within a few hundred yards of the old Greenbriar hotel.

Today, well-heeled vacationers still visit The Greenbriar, but they seldom arrive through the stately train station next door. There is a train, but the elegance of yesteryear has given way to the proximate comfort of a recently upholstered cattle

The disgruntled comments of train riders who remember the glory of the old George Washington, and scores of other trains like it, have been the daily fare of Amtrak officials since the quasi-governmental corporation started business in 1971.

Amtrak executives acknowledge that its trains' inconvenience, discomfort and tardy schedules are responsible for cutting into passenger patronage, and ultimately for adding to the company's mushrooming annual deficit-up to $406 million last

Most Amtrak agents and officials simply grin and bear passenger complaints, contending the situation will improve once the company can buy new equipment to replace the 40-year-old cars used by

But one man at Amtrak has taken a different view of why passenger trains are so slow and un-comfortable. He is L. Fletcher Prouty, a former Air Force colonel who for 20 years helped the CIA run its secret global airline system until, in the early 70s, he began to blow the whistle on many of the agency's covert operations. Then he went to work for Amtrak.

"You know, finding out how passenger train service was ruined in America wasn't very different from uncovering CIA operations," Prouty says. 'It takes the same kind of instinct for finding cover-ups and rip-offs.'

Sometimes Prouty even refers to Amtrak's dilemma as "one of the biggest unreported scandals in America -the $16 billion rip-off." For $16.5 billion is what he says it would cost to bring back the comfortable, efficient passenger system he claims has been systematically and consciously destroyed by the private railroad corporations of the United

"Do you ever wonder why our schedules are often slower now than they were 30 or 40 years ago?"
Prouty asks rhetorically. "Do you ever wonder why it sometimes feels like you'll be thrown out of bed whenever the train takes a bend faster than 35

Those were the questions Prouty addressed as soon as he went to work for Amtrak in 1974. His investigation took him into long meetings with railroad engineers, track oesigners and repairmen.

What Prouty found was that all through the fifties the major railroad lines undertook reconstruction of their tracks that virtually eliminated the possibility of running smooth, high-speed passenger

"Poor track maintenance is part of our problem," Prouty admits, but more important, he says, was the decision by the railroads after World War II to opt for super-long, heavy, slow-moving freight

"What did that do?" Prouty asks. "It meant that on curves that had a very steep super-elevation de-signed for the old high-speed passenger trains, the slower freight trains would derail—actually fall off the track into the curve."

"The use of longer, heavier and higher freight cars is continuously being increased, and this required the American railroads to lower the maximum super-elevation being placed in curves," testified R. E. Tew, assistant chief engineer of the Seaboard Coast Line in hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) several years ago. His comments were echoed by most technical witnesses who appeared before the ICC.

Says Prouty, "All that technical jargon means that today when one of our passenger cars goes around the bend, it can no longer slide up into the elevated curve smoothly as it was designed to do, but instead bangs against the rail sideways until the turn is completed. No amount of fancy suspension equipment can change that, make the ride smoother or allow us to run the train faster."

Since nearly all the trackage in the United States is still owned and maintained by the private railroads, Arutrak has no power to upgrade the track for faster traffic. For that reason, Prouty says, Amtrak may never be able to offer tast, comfortable service equal to what passengers had in the 1930s.

Amtrak's performance has come under increasingly sharp congressional criticism, the latest is an unpublicited report issued by the Government Accounting Office (GAO) last June.

Noting that Amtrak had spent over $34 million in of 'on time' and because of loosened schedules."

"The $34 million in incentive payments had little effect on performance." the report concluded. GAO faulted Amtrak for altering schedules to provide longer running times, measuring on time performance only at final destinations and not at intermediate stops, and relying on private railroad records for calculation of its incentive payments.

Typical of the GAO's criticism is a recent run between Los America and New Orleans that arrived.

Warranty Program Set For New Homebuyers

The West Texas Home Association reports plans are progressing toward a Home Owners Warranty (HOW) program for new homebuyers in this area.

The board of directors of the association and builder-members voted recently to adopt the national program, which is designed to provide warranty on homes built by registered HOW builders.

Stan Angelley, president of the association, said that work will begin immediately to organize a local Home Owners Warranty Council to operate the pro-

Once the program is underway, build-ers will be able to give their customers a 10-year package of protection which includes a one-year warranty on materials and workmanship and two years' protection on the wiring, piping and ductwork in the systems of the home, according to

M.B. Smith, executive officer. HOW's national insurance plan stands behind the builders warranty during the first two years and provides extended coverage on major structural defects for eight additional years, he said. The HOW program was developed by the National Association of Home Builders which licenses local builder organizations to operate a HOW Council.

After the local council is formed, it screens builders who wish to participate in the warranty program according to na-tional standards of financial responsibility, technical competence, and fair dealing with consumers. Those who meet the requirements will be authorized to provide the HOW coverage on new homes they build.

HOW is a voluntary program, and Angelley expects participation to be heavy. Good builders are interested in the HOW program because it allows buyers to easily identify builders who provide a product they are willing to stand behind," he said.

Under the HOW plan, a fair system of handling disagreements over possible defects will also be set up, according to

Angelley said, "Work will begin immediately on completing the necessary application forms to be mailed to the Home Owners Warranty Corp. in Washington, DC., so that home buyers in the West Texas area can start benefiting from the HOW protection in the near future."

Don McLeod, president of Stenocall, Inc. and Lubbock Radio Paging Service, Inc., was installed as president of the Telocator Network of America at its recent annual meeting in Miami, Fla.

Formerly the National Association of Radi otelephone Systems, the group of mobile communications companies adopted the new name for its national association at the 29th annual convention, along with the motto, 'Communications on the Move," which symbolizes its service to a mobile population and reflects the organization's objective of a vastly improved mobile communications system.

The association of independent mobile telephone companies came into existence in the early 1950's. Established by the FCC specifically to provide competition to the wireline companies with the goal of better public service in mobile communications, the industry currently serves approximately 500,000 users and serves 1,232 cities (as compared to 1,215 served by AT&T and the independent

'Educational' Program Announced By Realtors

Association of Realtors have scheduled an educational program Oct. 17-21 and Oct. 31-Nov. 4 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, according to Don Harris, president of the Lubbock board.

The institute is expected to attract students who are looking over the field of real estate as a possible career and those already in the profession interested in meeting requirements of the 1975 Texas Real Estate License Act.

The curriculum is designed to take students from the most basic real estate matters to the more advanced.

Harris said that Course I, set for Oct. 31, generally covers professional standards, law, appraisal, marketing, finance and closing, and construction. "This course can be used to help meet the salesman license requirements; in other words, it is a beginning," Harris said.

The Voice By RICHARD LESHER

WASHINGTON-For many years now the Federal Government has been complaining bitterly of the rapid increase in health-care costs. And for just as many years, the government has itself been a major factor in causing those increases.

Any competent economist could have told us-and many of them did-that massive doses of new money would raise costs faster than quality. And that is exactly what has happened

In 1965 our national health care expenses were about $40 billion a year. Today, the figure is nearly $140 billion-$638 per person. That's an increase of 250 per cent. Yet, the cost of living has not risen by 250 per cent since them. The population has not increased by 250 per cent. And we are certainly not 250 per cent

What factor can we find that has in-

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Public Pay: A Squeeze Play

A CASE IN POINT as to how far out of line state and federal pay and benefit packages have gotten is provided by the squeeze play which the Lubbock County Hospital District has found itself in recently.

About 100 employes of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine will be transferred to the district's Health Sciences Center Hospital payroll early next year.

As a result, the District's Board of Managers has found itself trying not to pay too much more than community hospitals pay for the same positions without cutting too far back on the pay and benefit package its employes-to-be now enjoy as employes of the medical school.

THE CAREFULLY structured result is a salary schedule close enough in line that a spokesman for a private hospital said "I do not see us having to raise our salaries any substantial amount to keep from losing our employes to the hospital district."

On the other hand, the medical school employes will lose six of the 15 paid holidays they have been receiving each year as state employes, the hospital district increasing to nine (from seven) the number of such holidays it will allow.

The 100 employes transferring from the medical school payroll also fear a loss in other fringe benefits, including pensions, if not in salaries as a result of the change in boss-

REGARDLESS OF where one's sympathies lie in this matter, it is obvious that state salaries and benefits have been and are considerably higher than the prevailing wage for the same type of work in this communi-

Federal pay and benefit packages, which serve as an upward draft on what the state ives its employes, are even farther out of line with what private business pays here.

The reason, of course, is that Congress makes no effort to balance outgo with revenue and relies on deficit spending to pay exorbitant salaries and pensions.

The state Legislature, its treasury flush because of unexpectedly high revenue from oil and gas taxes, likewise has been over-generous in its pay schedules in recent years, even to the point this year of agreeing to pay the employes' share of social security taxes.

AFTER RUNNING out of traditional birthdays (Jesus Christ and George Washington, e.g.) to celebrate with holidays, Congress and the Legislature have even resorted to dreaming up new excuses to give state and federal employes more holidays each Vacation, sick leave and other fringe benefit packages put together for public employes also are becoming more generous year after year, setting the pace for the private sector to follow and adding enormously to the cost of government.

Simultaneously, the number of people on state and federal payrolls has been climbing

TEXAS HAD ONLY 61.81 state employes per 10,000 population in 1960, but that had jumped by almost double-to 120.83-by 1975, according to the privately financed Texas Research League.

Federal employe increases, meanwhile, were rising from just under 2.5 million in 1965 to almost 3 million today, not counting the military.

President Carter has promised to "streamline" the federal bureaucracy but has promised that no one will lose his job and now is weighing whether to hold their annual cost-of-living raise to 7 per cent or go

THERE ARE MANY good and dedicated, hard-working employes on the state and federal payrolls

There is a growing public suspicion, however, that if the payrolls were cut-in numbers and amounts—the result would be not only a dollar savings to the taxpayer but also a better job from the bureaucrats.

A recent Gallup Poll showed that twothirds of the public believes federal employes are paid more for less work than are those who work in the private sector.

Situations such as that involving the medical school employes here tend to verify and underscore that widely held belief, at least insofar as pay and benefit packages are con-

It should be clear enough evidence to Congress and the Legislature to take a closer look at future payroll budgets.

Letters to the Editor

Tech Image Soiled By Fans Who Flout Decent Conduct

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I recently returned to my home state of Texas after residing in South Carolina for 36 years. During this period of time my wife and I attended many football games played in the Southeastern states-from Maryland to Alabama.

I must say that I have never witnessed the deplorable manners and unsportsmanlike conduct or been exposed to the vulgarity and rudeness I witnessed at Lubbock during and after the Texas Tech-Texas A&M game. I am sure that the individuals who put on such an unsportsmanlike and ill-mannered demonstration represent only a small minority of the Tech student body and supporters but nevertheless their actions spoke for

During the game, three persons in front of us (obviously Tech supporters by their dress and support of the Red Raiders' successes and Aggie failures) insisted on standing for the entire game regardless of the fans seated behind them. They did not bother me personally, because they were seated several several seats to my right, but the people immediately behind them did not get to see what they had paid for. Those people were both Tech and Aggie supporters

During and toward the end of the game Red Raider supporters threw cups of ice and soft drinks into the Aggie student section. I hope no harm was intended, but one never knows when an accident can happen. Would you like to be drenched with an icy drink thrown by a person who does not have the intestinal fortitude to do such a thing except in a crowd where it will be difficult to identify them?

As I was leaving the game and walking to my car, a young couple (again apparently Red Raider supporters) relying on the cover of darkness shouted some of the most obscene filth and vulgarity that I have ever heard in public. It was not whispers or overheard conversation, but shouts of vulgarity and profanity. Perhaps this is accepted by some people, but I cannot believe that of the majority of the citizens of Lubbock or the majority of the Texas Tech supporters, administration, and football team.

Yes, I am a Texas Aggie. I would just as quickly condemn such actions as I witnessed Saturday night if they were committed by Aggie supporters. Possibly I would condemn them quicker, because I am an Aggie.

I would like to commend the Red Raider football team, band and most of their supporters, but there were a few that made a very unfavorable impression on many people. Tech has a fine football team, university, administration, band, student body and supporters, but some might take a second look at their actions to see what kind of an impression they are making on the rest of the

Folks' Ill Humor Blamed On Too Many Restrictions Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Now the cat is out of the bag. L.M. Boyd's column in the Saturday, Sept. 24, paper reported that more than fifty times as many Americans are shot in violence than among similar numbers of people in other countries. This situation is not cause Americans have guns. It is because of the bad disposition of many Americans.

The normal American's disposition reminds me of an old Billy Goat that we had years ago. One spring the weeds were growing up around the place and I took Billy out of his pen and staked him out in the weed patch to graze. I went back to see about him a couple of hours later and found that his chain was tangled among the weeds and he had only inches to move around. His temper was short and to gain some freedom of movement he began lunging wildly back and forth, even hitting me, his best friend. The cause of all his trouble was severe restrictions.

Americans also have been severely restricted, penalized, regulated and over-charged until their disposition is bad, much like that old Billy Goat. When someone only steps on their toes, they may grab a gun and do him in just to get even.

The fault is not that the citizen has a gun. The fault is that the citizen is subject to constant ag-

Eve, Lance In Same Boat On Deceptiveness, She Says

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

The Bert Lance "affair" has been priority TV news for quite awhile. At first, people let it be known they disapproved highly of his inordinate actions. But after TV coverage and inner contemplation, compassion rose to the surface and the 'anti" votes increasingly changed to "pro" votes.

It seems a major factor has been whether he has broken any written law and whether others can sit in judgment on a man who has done nothing more than, supposedly, any other man would have done had he been in his shoes. But, are we sitting in judgment? Judgment indicates punishment—a pronouncement of chastisement. It is not synonymous with intelligent discernment of right from wrong.

What truly deserves to be brought to judgment is the financial system that fosters Lance's (and hundreds of others like him) deceptive thinking. I say deceptive because I believe he is no more aware that he has operated deceptively than Eve was on that first occasion. God has pronounced judgment on our system which is crumbling all around us and Lance has incurred judgment upon his own financial situation by his very actions. We need not be the judge

Thank God, what we have thought to be pure and undefiled within us and among us has become as "filthy rags" and because of our pride we will be brought low. Let's stand up for what is right because it is truth and not because we are without fault.

We are not being called upon to punish the man Lance for his actions but we can make it known that we as a nation are tired of being deceived and would like to begin correcting some of "the fine messes we have gotten ourselves into." Becky Markwald, 3605 78th Dr.

Reader Ready For 'Vendor' To Return To Peanut Patch

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

The Lance controversy proved what I had long suspected-Washington is now serving up weather in the off season. On a September night, the President confirmed my fears by giving us the biggest snow job I've heard emanating from that bastion of double talk, chicanery, and buffoonery.

He would have us lowly servants believe that Lance's financial problems in Georgia were merely the figment of the imagination of Republican senators out to get him.

Yet, wasn't it nicely and quietly laid to rest when Jody Powell deliberately concocted a smear story on Sen. Percy that even the usually hungry news media would not buy because the allegations were so absurd? Powell's story was all for the purpose of making Sen. Percy "back off" on pressing the charges leveled against Mr.

Now, I wonder if the "coach" really called that play or if he was willing for his "cuarterback" to

Reader Sees Incongruity In U.S. Policy On Mennonites

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Doesn't it sicken you when you read in the same week where our President is allowing 15,-000 Indo-Chinese to immigrate to this country and in the same week, plans to deport some 500 Mennonites who are already here. Nothing against the Indo-Chinese, but it will be interesting to see what percentage of these people will end up on our welfare roles.

The Mennonites, however, came here some months ago and all they want to do is escape religious persecution, work, pay taxes and to be left alone. Seems like I read somewhere in history books that around 200 years ago a nation was founded on similiar principles.

I wonder whatever happened to it.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

OUR ENERGY Research and Development Administration officially claims that the dangers from nuclear power plants are "infinitesimally small." But are they?

They may be a necessity. But one problem with them is the safeguards.

Behind the scenes, the ERDA has made its own study at its Brookhaven National Laboratory. It showed that a major reactor accident could cause at least $7 billion in damage. And the loss of human life is simply incredible.

But accidents do happen-make no mistake about that.

In fact, unknown to our public, the ERDA has asked Congress for millions on millions to hire more guards, install new alarms, get more fencing, acquire tamperproof shipping cases and develop ways to track down stolen nuclear materi-

A PLANT'S fuel is enriched Uranium-235. When a critical mass is collected in one place, it can undergo a violent chain reaction. Most accidents are unpublicized.

In addition, the makers plan reactors to operate at least 20 years with only periodic changes of fuel rods. These are inserted into the core. Switching them can take a year and cost about $4

As these rods age they develop small pinholes. The rods' radioactivity leaks through these pinholes into the water which moderates the reactor. The radioactivity-contaminated water accumulates within reactor housing. This is metered into the cooling water that is being returned to the river or ocean.

NOBODY-NUCLEAR plant designers or anyone-knows how reactors will operate as they age. But the hazard is there—and growing. In simple truth, our insurance industry-which covers risks of every sort-has refused to adequately insure the utilities against the nuclear

They have underwritten less than $300 million in nuclear plant insurance.

They simply do not have sufficient confidence in a nuclear power plant's safety, the AEC's 'infinitesimally' statement notwithstanding.

We are additionally lucky not yet to be the victims of a makeshift atom bomb-or its blackmail. This potential is discussed by our public, but I first heard it privately discussed, with intense alarm, inside the General Accounting Office, Congress' investigative arm.

THE GAO FINDS that the AEC and the nuclear power industry cannot account for thousands of pounds of nuclear materials from which to make atomic bombs. It would yield that terrifying result when used by skillful people possessing reasonably simple, widely available instructions.

The GAO told me that an informed, dedicated band of bomb-makers can easily fashion an effective explosion with only about 40 pounds of enriched U-235 (the plant's fuel) or 12 pounds of plutonium.

Moreover, the GAO reports alarming neglect in some nuclear power plants. It discovered weak fences, inefficient patrols, too few automatic detection systems and no real plan should the lethal material be stolen, hijacked, etc.

You and I are justified in worrying about the simplest and plainest thing of earth-the atom. We have been just plain lucky.

Establishment Of Peace Academy Pushed

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special)-Renewed lobbying efforts to establish a national peace academy -first envisioned by George Washington two centuries ago-have swung into high gear here in the wake of congressional interest.

United Methodist Church leaders are in the forefront among church groups in support of the acade-

Religion News Service reported that William J. Spencer, coordinator for the National Peace Academy Campaign headquartered here, said that supporters are being alerted to get behind a measure which would set up a commission to study the proposal for a peace academy.

He said the campaign has two goals: "First, get a commission established to study the proposal of a peace academy; second, get the academy.

The U.S. Senate last June 17 passed a bill to create a study commission. A similar bill wound up in the Secondary Education Sub-committee and International Operations Subcommittee of the House of Representatives.

Spencer said the campaign is supported by 1,300 people or organizations representing some 200,000 people, many of them religiously-affiliated.

He said the United Methodist Board of Church and Society, Church of the Brethren and Network, an organization of Catholic sisters at Washington, are among religious groups supporting the cam-

However, the company failed and the stock became valueless. And the peace academy was never estab-lished. Interest has been aroused periodically over the years and 140 bills have been introduced since 1936 on the concept.

Positive Thinking

By DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A WOMAN ASKED me to talk to her son, a high school student, about the importance of trying for better marks in his studies. This mother was the aggressive type. she personally dragged the boy to my office and told me in his presence thathe was the poorest student her family had ever produced. "He takes after his ather," she explained. "Can't get a grade above 70 to save him."

When he boy and I were alone I said. "Don't let your mother throw you. She loves you all right-only she overdoes it. Try thinking of your mother in two ways: a your mother but also as a human being. Start seeing her not only as a mother but as a woman, too. This will help you to consider her objectively. Then, inderstanding her better, you'll find her easier to get along with.'

Ther we began talking about his grades in school. "With a mind like yours a boy is a dope to drift through high school getting only 70's."

"I night as well tell you," he countered, "I have positively no interest in "Tlat's easy to see. But look, who are you kidding? Only yourself. Scholarship is the means of going places in this world. To make something of yourself and have the things you want in life and be able to do things, you need knowledge. Competition is too keen. Without education you'll be out of it. You know that, I'm sure. So skip being sore at your mother and get going.'

HE CAME EACK with, "but I'm dumb. They've always told me I was. I'm

"You don't really believe that! You're just riding it as an excuse." "Well," he said, "I don't know ..

"Well, I knew," I asserted, "I believe you're capable of grade 90 work." And I gave him a formula-wrote it out for him-and told him I was positive that if he really gave it a try he would knock them dead in the classroom. "I'd sure like to show some of those jerks," he growled.

"No, don't try to impress anyone. Just go to work on yourself, and if you only do what you can you'll be O.K."

The bettr-grades formula I gave him was this:

First hing every morning thank God for the powers of your mind.

2. On your way to school say to yourself—Isn't it wonderful that I can go to school! Iam building up my know how.

3. I car handle any subject in this school 4. I am going to enjoy every minute of this day.

5. I don't hate anyone. I love everybody—my mother and everybody.

WHAL I WAS trying to do was to help the boy develop enthusiasm. I knew he had the ability; he only lacked motivation. Well, within several months that boy was doing much better at school. He actually did achieve 90 in two subjects! His whole average was 84. And he started getting into extre-curricular activities which helped him to blossom out. He discovered that "the kids like me and I like myself a lot better."

When I saw his mother again she said, "Harry is getting to be quite a student.

There is real magic in enthusiasm. It spells the difference between mediocrity and accomplishment. That boy's rapid improvement in school began when he got en husiastic. It helped him discover his own untapped mental powers. Enthusiasm releases the drive to carry you over obstacles which you could otherwise never hurdle. It tones up your physical vitality and keeps you going even when the going is hard. It invests the ups and downs of daily life with come-back strength and adds significance to all that you do.

Enthusiasm is very wonderful. It gives warmth and good feeling to all your personal relationships. Your enthusiasm will be infectious, stimulating and attractive to others. They will love you for it. They will go for you and with you.

"The distinctions of hierarchy seeme to surface the latter part of the fourth century including the three ranks of bishops, priests and deacons. During the pointificate of St. Damascus (366-384 A.D.), deacons acquired positions of administration. They first assisted the bishops. In times, as the Church spread, they were assigned to priests. These deacons often were married.

"By the 12th Century, there scarcely was a trace of it around...Thus the Diaconate became a temporary office. Byssinosis Study Funds Boosted [

DALLAS (Special)—Leaders of the nation's cotton producers have approved the use of $1,638,000 for additional research on byssinosis, the respiratory ailment which affects a small percentage of workers in textile mills utilizing the fiber, according to E. Hervey Evans Jr. of Luarinburg, N.C.

Evans is chairman of the board of directors of Cotton Inc. The action was taken during a two-day board meeting here. Cotton Inc. represents 143,000 American cotton producers.

"The number of mill workers who are sensitive to cotton dust and seemingly prone to the mysterious respiratory disease is relatively small," Evans said. "But even the health and welfare of one worker is a matter of concern.

"That is one reason we are making this contribution to helping bring the causes of byssinosis under control.'

J. Dukes Wooters Jr., president of Cotton Inc., said the company has expressed its concern previously by spending more than $5 million in research since its founding in 1971 trying to find answers

> Farm · News

"Why are some people affected and others not? What is the causative agent? How does it act? These are just a few of the problems which need solving," he

Wooters described Cotton Inc. as opposed to unreasonable government standards, imposed arbitrarily before all facts and considerations are weighted.

The Occupaiontal Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has proposed a standard of two-tenths of a milligram of cotton dust per cubic meter of air in a textile plant. This is roughly equivalent to about two grains of salt per cubic meter, a level of particles frequently surpassed in outside air and also in the clothes workers wear to the plant.

The potential cost to the industry of reducing particulate levels to the standard is estimated at $2.8 billion. Some scientists doubt that the stringent standard will better protect workers or that existing air handling equipment is capable of lowering dust content in the mills to the proposed level.

Cotton Inc. has estimated that under the proposed OSHA standard, prices for cotton products would rise an estimated 17.8 per cent, textile mills could not economically continue producing cotton fabrics, and the livelihood of 233,000 mill workers, 143,000 producers, and 100,000 other workers would be placed in jeop-

In addition, the Small Business Administration estimates that more than 2.000 small companies in the inudstry would be directly affected, as well as more than 13 million small businesses nationwide.

Out of thousands of workers in certain mill areas, only a small number are afflicted by byssinosis, according to inudstry statistics. In modern mills with dust control systems, the incidence is estimated to be less than one per cent.

Multiple sciences are involved in Cotton Inc.'s contract research program adminsitered through the company's facilities in Raleigh, N.C. Agricultural, chemical, biological medical and textile engineering disciplines are put into play. Agricultural scientists are working to develop a "clean" cotton plant which does not generate as much leaf dust in processing. Textile engineers are seeking to improve card room and other production operations.

Chemists are trying to isolate compounds that cause respiratory reactions. Botanists are exploring the botanical source of dust particles, and physicians are working with patients to test their sensitivity to cotton dust.

Significant progress on these and other problems is being made by the company's scientists and at cooperating universities throughout the cotton-growing SAFE AND EFFECTIVE RESULTS with fournew bollworm-budworm insecticides support the cotton industry's position (at they should be fully approved for widespread use by growers next year.

This view is supported by a four-state examination of fields treated with the new compounds under emergency provisions of the ederal pesticide law. The tour was sponsored by the National Cotton Council.

The Cotton Council and other organizations have requested that the Environmental Protection Agency approve the insecticides in me for manufacturers to formulate commercial quantities for 1978. Large quantities of cotton from California to the Gergia-Carolinas area suffered severe damage from the worm complex this year as available registered materials failed to provide adequate control. Some grovers had costs as high as $90 per acre for insecticides alone, and still experienced eavy yield losses. The damage included cotton on the High Plains, whereinfestations were particularly heavy in western Gaines County.

"COTTON GROWERS NEED THESE NEW materiles to protect their crops," pointed out council technical committee chairman John S. "Duke" Barr III, a cotton producer of Oak Ridge, La. "We saw fiels in Louisiana that were abandoned because of severe insect damage and then wasn't enough of the four new chemicals to go around."

Barr said authorities on the tour - including officials of the USDA, EPA, state agriculture departments, land grant universities, and thechemical makers agreed the new compounds are safe and effective.

'Apparently, there have been no adverse effects on the environment from the use of these insecticides and all the agencies on the tour in Alamana, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi said they are satisfied with the safet and effectiveness of these materials," Barr said.

"For the first time, we were able to use the provisions of Section 18 of the pesticide law, but what we need now is full and timely registration of these materials so that all farmers will be able to take advantage of the protection they

EMERGENCY USE THIS SEASON was an unusually severe testof the insecticides because the law stipulates that they may be applied only under a bona fide emergency that must be certified by state and extension service officials.

"This means they were applied to cotton only after insects were completely out of control," Barr said. "Normally, of course, they could be applied at the beginning of an insect attack when the pests are still small enough to be controlled more easily.'

Despite this, Barr pointed out, they controlled bollworms and tobicco budworms well and "really proved themselves."

The materials and their manufacturers are Ambush, made by ICl United States; Bolstar, Chemagro; Pounce, FMC Corp.; and Pydrin, Shell Chemical

Because only small quantities of the materials were available under the emergency program, costs were higher than with conventional insecticides. Barr said, though, that full registration and manufacture in commercial quantities are expected to bring costs down.

"THE USUAL COMPETITION IN THE market place would, I feel, bring costs down to a more practical level," Barr said. "In addition, if the insecticides were available for timely application earlier in the season, lower dosages could be used for good control.

Officials of the USDA and EPA on the tour agreed with Barr that safety and effectiveness of the materials are satisfactory. Earlier fears about the possibility of fish kills or other adverse effects proved groundless, the RPA representative said, and this season's successful trial under the emergency program should speed the process for full registration.

If such registration is delayed, the council and cotton producet organizations will push for "conditional registration" which is expected to be authorized this fall by an amendment to the federal pesticide law (FIFRA).

Cotton harvesting is particularly ahead of last year, with some harvesting getting under way in the South Plains where the crop is estimated to be about two weeks earlier than usual.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton harvesting is while the corn harvest is about complete. Some early soybeans are being harvested, with fields maturing rapidly. Vegetable harvesting continues in northern counties. Most of the wheat crop has been planted ROLLING PLAINS: Sorghum harvesting continues to make good progress. Cotton harvesting is active over the southern area, and mung beans are producing excellent yields in Wilbarger County. Some dryland planting of small grains continues although many farmers are waiting on planting moisture. Forage conditions are declining ude to the dry weather.

NORTH CENTRAL: About 15 per cent of the cotton crop remains to be harvested; yields are fair.

There has been a major shift in the attitudes of international agricultural experts-a shift that could well result in simple, fast and accurate understanding of the land for Texas and Southwestern farmers and ranchers in arid and semiarid settings, says a Texas Tech official

Time was when a laboratory was deemed essential to determine the status of arid and semi-arid lands and the extent to which these lands had degraded or improved in relation to land and water management practices.

The laboratory still is important, but at a recent United Nations meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, delegates stressed the need for developing simple indicators to enable farmers and ranchers to judge if the deserts are taking over their once

Development of those indicators and the resulting speed with which farmers and ranchers can make decisions about agricultural techniques point to the urgency of halting the desertification proc-

"This is a very significant change in attitude, one that will enable trained farmers to predict the status of their land with simple observations and with about 90 per cent accuracy," Dr. Harold E. Dregne, well-known soil scientist and director of Texas Tech's International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS), said.

"There are eight physical indicators of desertification that are used very commonly. Two require laboratory facilities while the other six can be measured with simple observations," Dregne said.

The six simple indicators are depth to ground water and quality of water; effective soil depth above root inhibiting layers; number of dust storms and sand storms: pressence of soil crusts; changes in water flow and sediment load in water courses; and area covered and turbidity of surface water.

The two indicators requiring lab facilities are degree of salinization and alkalization of the soil and the amount of soil organic matter.

The depth to ground water. Dregne explained, can be measured by simply digging a hole and measuring distance between the top of the soil and the top of the water table.

The effective soil depth also can be measured in a similar way by measuring distance between the top of the soil and the top to the rock surface beneath the

The number of dust storms and sand storms have to be measured on a daily basis. Presence of soil crusts and turbidity of surface water in lakes are physical observations, while changes in water can be seen by digging a hole to the free wa-

Besides dust and sand storms all other measurement can be made on weekly, monthly, semi-annual or annual intervals, the Tech professor added.

Good Records Aid Cow Culling

CRUCES—(Special)—Current high feed costs seem to many cattlemen to dictate the culling of beef cow herds before the winter feeding season begins.

Information on each cow's performance helps with accurate culling to cut costs and improve profits, says Larry Foster, extension beef cattle specialist at New Mexico State University.

Ideally, records on each cow should include her age, life-time production, conception data, calving dates and weaning weights of her calves. Without cow identification and individual performance records, culling is limited to a pregnancy examination and visual inspection

The commercial beef cow herd owner has to decide how extensive a recordkeeping system he wants. The more information he has, the more accuarte his culling decision will be, says Foster.

The age of the calf at weaning is the most important single trait affecting the differences in weaning weights within a specific herd. Older calves naturally weigh more than younger clves. Therefore, simply having birth dates of this year's calves is a big help in culling. Foster points out.

Calving-date records also help to detect cows with conception problems. Research shows cows tha calve late one year will tend to calve late in following

More accurate cullng based on performance requires the use of weaning weights along with calving dates. By adjusting weaning weights to a common age, usually 205 days, cows can be culled on the basis of their milking ability. Information on methods for making this adjustment are available from county edtension agents.

also are valuable in selecting heifers for herd replacements.

Even without performance records, it will pay to have a veterinarian check cows for pregnancy and soundness, says

"Feed costs are too high to keep a cow without calf or one with a defect that likely will prevent her from weaning a staisfactory calf next year," he says.

In times of large supplies, cattlemen and swine producers have taken what was offered on sale day. There are several marketing alternatives and pricing mechanisms, however, that can reduce the livestock producer's risks and uncertain-

ONE SUCH TOOL IS THE COMMODITY FUTURES market, a pricing mechanism that can be helpful to livestock producers, especially during periods of declining prices. Speakers at the forum will include Pete Stubbens, educational specialist with

There will be seven forums throughout the state livestock producers and five forums designed for agricultural lenders. The forums also will be in San Antonio, Victoria, Tyler, Dallas, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Houston and Amarillo. In addition to the futures heding discussion a livestock and grain outlook for

THE ROUSTABOUT

By RAY WESTBROOK

DONALD G. RUSSELL, vice president of planning and economics for Shell Oil Co., expressed some profound observations on the growing colossus of government control recently. His remarks were in preparation for a special presen tation at the annual Society of Petroleum Engineers Meeting, scheduled Oct. 9-

'It's very easy for us in the energy business, buried in the mass of FEA, OS-HA, EPA and other regulations, to think we're being picked on. But we really are part of a general phenomenon of regulatory 'explosion'," he said.

"It's all part of a general call for the government to remove as many risks as possible from all aspects of life."

With that comment equating cause and effect, Russell defined what may be the largest contributor to the flood of regulation which currently is sweeping away individual freedom in the United States.

Recalling the nation's history in its transition from agrarian to industrial life, Russell said early regulations were predominantly economic in nature, focusing mainly on markets, rates and the obligation to serve.

"A new type of regulation arose during the Great Depression. It was no longer enough for the government to protect the consumer's pocketbook; it began protecting other aspects of his life."

Russell believes social regulations now are tenfold those of an economic na-

RUSSELL MIGHT well have added that government's tendency to rush illegitimately into the private sphere has always needed only an invitation, and any inclination by a people to seek security from the hands of the state seems always to set up the necessary vacuum.

Industry recently has been contriving a variety of allegories to describe that situation as it progresses in this country. There is the account of a bird who trades a single feather for each easy meal until he can no longer fly, and must then continue the process under compulsion. And the oil industry has its own particular illustration of the stiffling effects of price regulation taken from a fanciful counterpart in nature.

But a real-life analogy exists in the history of ancient Israel, when to that nation the possibility of getting a government just "like other nations" began to look fantastic

Israel in that day functioned under a theocracy, with a maximum of personal freedom. Of course, there were a couple of inconveniences to live with: unlike our own nation, murder got one capital punishment under that economy—a most godly thing to do with such a criminal.

THE OPTIONS WERE PRESENTED to Israel by Samuel, who as a dispenser of justice and truth is in sharp contrast to the farce which the American judicial system is becoming.

"This will be the procedure of the king who will reign over you," Samuel advised the Israelites at their particular crossroads.

"He will take the best of your fields and your olive groves, and give them to

"And he will take a tenth of your seed and of your vineyards, and give to his

"He will also take your male servants and your female servants and your best young men and your donkeys, and use them for his work.

"He will take a tenth of your flocks, and you yourselves will become his serv-

But Israel wanted security from the state:

'Nevertheless, the people refused to listen to the voice of Samuel, and they said, 'No, but there shall be a king over us, that we also may be like all the nations, that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles'." The rest is history.

A COMPARABLE CROSSROADS of relative individual freedom or state control may now be posed before our own nation, which has been so great.

And, though it is inconceivable, perhaps a significant number of people and their elected representatives in the United States are beginning to ask for a government like other nations have, where they "take care" of their subjects from birth to death. Like Russia, and like Red China.

If that is the case, it only emphasizes the fact that a person's mind, unaided, is a remarkably incapable device for arriving at truth.

An exchange of freedom for "security" in a humanistic environment is not a profitable choice, for the reason that when human beings offer security, they only give slavery.

Potential Natural Gas Supply May Support Large Production

HOUSTON (AP)-A new American Gas Association study indicates the world's potential natural gas resources are so tremendous production in the year 2020 will more than double current out-

Compared with an actual 1976 output of 50.3 exajoules, the study estimates the 2020 potential production capability in a range from 114.8 to 125 exajoules.

One exajoule equals 1.0885 trillion cu-

The 2020 estimate, however, has world production on the decline

From the 1976 level, the study projects that production could move to 76.8 exaioules in 1985 and then peak at the 142.3-143.5 exajoules range about the year 2000. 'Even at an annual world natural gas production rate double the present rate, the estimated world remaining natural gas resource base would be sufficient to sustain production at or near this level at least another 50 years," the report said. The Future for World Natural Gas Supply" study was headed by W. T. McCormick Jr., vice president for planning and analysis for the trade association that headquarters in Arlington, Va. The projections do not include potentional production from such nonconventional sources as gas from coal beds, geopressured resources, shale, and biomass. Such sources could, the study said, add significantly to world gas production after the year 2000. The potential for such additions to the resource base was said to range from several thousand to tens of thousands of exajoules.

Current proved natural gas reserves around the world were estimated at about 2,500 exajoules. Remaining undiscovered resources were estimated at 8,-

Crude Reserve Estimate Said Conservative

HOUSTON (AP)-Two professors at Texas A&M University say the most frequently quoted estimates of new oil reserves to be discovered in the United States probably are pessimistic.

Dr. J. S. Osoba and Dr. W. J. Lee say such estimates are based partly on unfavorable trends of the recent past. They made their observations in a monograph in which they analyzed the oil and gas pricing portions of President Carter's National Energy Plan.

They concluded the plan holds no incentives for explorations and better recovery techniques.

Osoba and Lee contend, however, that most estimates of oil and gas reserves yet to be found show considerable incentive for further exploration in the United

"Even these existing estimates probably have a pessimistic bias because they are based in part on extrapolation of recent trends which include the era of poor incentives for exploration," they said. The most quoted estimates were said to billion barrels of additional recoverable

The Department of Petroleum Engineering professors said one of the most quoted estimates of recoverable oil in the United States was made by Dr. M. King Hubbert in 1967 in the Bulletin of the American Association of Petroleum Ge-

Hubbert predicted that 62 billion barrels of recoverable oil remain to be discovered. Osoba and Lee say this, along with the current 30 billion barrels of reserves, suggests about 90 billion barrels of oil remain to be produced.

In 1972, a National Petroleum Council study predicted the total volume of oil to be found in the United States as 722 billion barrels, of which 220 billion would be recovered.

"This leaves about 80 billion barrels of recoverable oil yet to be found and produced," the professors said.

In 1971, the American Association of Petroleum Geologists estimated that 825 billion barrels of oil would be found and that 258 billion barrels would be re-

"This prediction leads to the conclusion that about 120 billion barrels of recoverable oil remain to be discovered," Osoba and Lee said.

In 1972, the U.S. Geologic Survey indicated 1895 billion barrels of oil would be discovered in the United States and that 560 billion barrels would be recovered.

"This would leave 420 billion barrels $11 million U.S. payroll-not to mention barrels of recoverable oil yet to be dis-the loss created by the ripple effect, the covered," the researchers said. Osoba and Lee then emphasized once again that such estimates are based on past technology and economics.

They added that the Geologic Survey further predicts that only 30 per cent of willing "to pay a 50 per cent premium for the 1895 billion barrels of oil to be discovered will be recovered.

"If improved technology could increase have more than 2,500 U.S. employes the recovery efficiency to 40 per cent, an overseas by the end of the year, said the additional 190 billion barrels of oil reserve would be created, roughly six times cal employe's tax liability for 1977 by $4,the present reserve," they said. Such an improvement in recovery efficiency is well within the realm of possibility, given sufficient financial incen-

Cumalative worldwide conventional production of natural gas through 1975 was placed at 929 exajoules, a figure the study said is equiavlent to about 40 per cent of presently estimated proved reserves but only 11 per cent of remaining undiscovered gas resources. The study's projections made use of two gas pricing scenarios, one involving a natural gas price of $20 a barrel crude oil equiavalent and the other a meadium price of $14.

Under the $20 price, it was estimated world gas production could rise to about 77 exajoules by 1985 and to about 143 by the year 2000. "At these production rates, 4.4 per cent per year through 2000, it is estimated production would peak shortly after the year 2000 and decline to about 125 exajoules by 2020," the study said.

By that time, about 50 per cent of the presently estimated remaining gas would have been produced." Key areas of the world where substantial gas was said to exist for greatly increasing production over the next decade include the OPEC groups and the Soviet

Under a medium $14 gas pricing crude oil equivalent, production capability between now and 2020 was estimated to be lower than under the $20 scenario, although only slightly lower until after the

"The small difference in production capability between the two scenarios un-til after the year 2000 is because prices in the range of $20 a barrel are not yet expected to be required in order to produ the more easily recoverable resource the study said.

Production capability is expected to peak in only two regions, North America and Western Europe, prior to the year

It was said the production capability of Western Europe could increase sig-nificantly into the early 1990s as a result of production from currently pro fields and new production from the de veloping North Sea fields.

"Continuing exploration in offshore areas, including the Irish Sea and Celtic Sea areas, gives rise to the expectation of significant new discoveries," the study

Russia and Eastern Europe were said to hold almost 30 per cent of the world's natural gas resource potential.

"Although production in this region may be less a function of price and more function of plan, the increased production in recent years correlated to the sudden risen in world energy prices, gives cause to believe production in the USSR will continue to respond to world energy price levels," the study said.

Final Bill Expected To Reflect Changes

A-J Correspondent WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) -Predictions on the final energy bill to be offered to President Jimmy Carter vary, but in general, many Southwesterners on the energy scene feel the final bill will look vastly different than first envisioned.

And frankly, a trend to make supply a firm goal along with conservation may be helpful for industry, for state treasuries, and for the future in the Southwest.

Part of the problem with Carter's energy plan, said Herb Woodson, director of the Center for Energy Studies, University of Texas at Austin, is that "No one in the administration seems to understand the overall problem" of reaching the goal for energy production in 1985. For instance, said the former MIT instructor, the team "doesn't comprehend the heroic efforts" made in production of oil and gas in the past and that Carter's plan calls "for us to do 21/2 times as well as we've ever done in any one-year history" of the in-

Venerated legislator, Rep. George Mahon, said recently of the Carter energy proposals: "They haven't faced the basic that we can't afford to have chief emphasis on conservation—as important as it is" as supply also, must have a stronger push.

Worrying Mahon, who has recently been in closed hearings on national defense, are needs for both strong defense and for our future financial standing. "We've just got to find ways to increase our energy," he said noting "our move toward 50 per cent dependency on for-

More optimistic is Bob Krueger, the Texas Democratic representative who has become identified as a leader in the fight for taking price controls off natural gas: "Some people who last year thought 52 cents per MCF was perhaps too high were the same group that offered $1.75 this year. They didn't come to understand the principle of deregulation," however, noted Krueger, "but they came the distance to see the need for fuel at a replacement cost.'

Less serene in his assessment thus far was New Mexico's Rep. Harold Runnels who pointed out that he didn't vote for final passage of Carter's bill that passed the House: "It was a sophisticated tax bill; there are no true incentives.' Nonetheless, determination for the fuel program by Carter is foretold, noted Duke R. Ligon, former Oklahoman and a former assistant administrator for Energy Resource Development in the FEA, as the energy policy is Carter's "first announced priority and his first program.' Carter must push for all its basic provisos "for if he fails, it looks bad" for him. Carter may, however, said Ligon, "moderate his position" yet.

"In my opinion," continued the energy attorney, "The people about Schlesinger are not friendly to (energy) business' upon whose taxes the Southwestern states rely for many state programs.

Three things have darkened the future for Carter's energy plan in recent weeks: (1) the Bert Lance episode; (2) resulting bad publicity that tarnished the Carter image; and (3) the Panama Canal treaty where the President "moved almost too quickly" in taking the leadership role over from the Senate, enumerated Ligon.

"The modifications will be very different, I think" predicted Ligon in Washington, "with some of the results hopefully to be compromises" between Carter's an nounced policy and what emerges from

In the area of divestiture, Ligon also prophesized that stronger anti-trust acvestiture (a refusal to let large oil compa nies participate in all phases of the industry: producing, transporting, refining, and marketing.

"Anti-trust action could be the (final) Carter answer to vertical divestiture while sidestepping" a direct assault on the companies, he said. Observed another Southwesterner stationed in Washington: "Carter is not in as dominating position" now in energy as when his proposal was "brand-new in the House of Representatives." "White House lobbyists were surprised by votes" on recent energy issues in both the full Senate and its committee hearings, he noted, while predicting that Cart-ther changed by legislative action. As the crude oil equalization tax proposal died this week in a hearing, it seems possible that a trend for obtaining energy supplies is receiving focus along with Carter's support for conservation.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our minister has recently begun to invite people to come forward in the church to receive Christ. I am a teenager and I would like to go forward, but I am afraid. What do you think I should do?-A. F.

Rabbi Kline Sets Lecture On Art

Rabbi Alexander Kline of Lubbock's Congregation Shaareth Israel will present the third series of 10 lectures on French art, beginning Tuesday, sponsored by the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association

The illustrated lectures are scheduled on Tuesdays for 10 weeks at the Texas Tech University Museum. The seminars will be at 10 a.m. each Tuesday, preceded by coffee at 9:30 a.m.

Rabbi Kline's lectures will take up the inner city areas where low and moderate impressionists of French art, painters during the second half of the 19th Centucome from the second units to make ment to follow Him, He called to them publicly. Why did He do this? One reason, I am sure, is because it helped make the decision firm in the individual's mind. Another reason is that it was a public witness to other people, that this person had decided to follow Jesus. These reasons are still valid today. Of course, the simple act of coming forward in a meeting does not save us. It is faith and trust in Christ that saves us. But, when we publicly and openly confess our faith and trust in Christ, it helps both us and others.

I remember when I came to Jesus Christ one night during an evangelistic crusade, I felt much as you do. But how thankful I am that I took my stand for Christ at that time. Although there were many things about me that were not right, still I knew from that moment on that I belonged to Christ.

Don't let your pride or fear of what people will think keep you from Christ. I urge you to give your life to Him without

Old Church Giving New Life To Legitimate Theater

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) - The building housing an inner-city parish, which: was unable to sustain support, has been given new life as a year-round legitimate theater.

In a two-year design and renovation project, at a cost of $520,000, the former Zion Evangelical United Brethren Church here has become the 270-seat, airconditioned J.I. Rodale Theater. The church, in Romanesque style, was constructed in 1905 at a cost of $25,000.

Architects preserved the basic red brick exterior while gutting the interior of the church and parsonage to create the proscenium-stage theater, lobby, workshop, scenery and dressing rooms.

Founder of the theater is Anna Rodale, widow of J.I. Rodale, playwright, pioneer in the organic farm and gardening movements and publisher. Their grandson, David Rodale, 21, is general manag-

Wilderness Program Aids Hostile Youth

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)— They're tough and hostile, their self-esteem is low and the notion of social cooperation is foreign

All reformatories have kids like that. At Adobe Mountain School, a state institution for youthful offenders from ages 15 to 18, officials found that one way of bringing the kids around is to pit them against a sheer cliff. Scaling the heights involves achievement that depends on help from others - peers and staff. The lesson is learned in action.

About 120 young men and women have taken part in the Adobe Mountain School's wilderness program, hiking and climbing in groups in the Grand Canyon or rugged Granite Mountain near Pres-

One recent outing was a climb to the top of the 12,670-foot San Francisco Peaks near Flagstaff for a shop class from Adobe Mountain. "They were fighting in class and not getting any work done," says Bill Ressler, 25, who runs the wilderness program with Lorraine Bonds, 25. "They were city kids and it was really doubtful whether they would reach the summit."

But the group broke through the clouds for an awesome view of the surrounding countryside, and the next day, Ressler says, "The guys usually picked on and considered 'wimps' in class were getting a lot more respect.

chopathic killers," Miss Bonds says. "They're not socially adapted. Their chief way of coping is aggression - and denying everything - scaring the staff

"On the wilderness program, that doesn't work. They need us to find where th · van is, or to get back for a hot show-

The wilderness journeys last eight to 21 days and are followed by one to three weeks of meeting with the group to adapt their changes to life in the institution.

If a student learns to take responsibility for himself on the trail or cliffside, he's given a chance to do the same at the school, Ressler explains. "We may go out to dinner or to the movies later with money they earn from jobs."

Most of the young people have low sense of personal worth, but "after they've survived a few seemingly impossible tasks, they see themselves differentlv." Ressler says. "Frankly, we put them into situations where they think they might die, although we know better." Miss Bonds says, "We've climbed cliffs 300 feet high where students had to be roped in all the time. They feel like they're hanging by their fingernails." Both Ressler and Miss Bonds say the

When one member of the group sits down, the group has to deal with it. We're perfectly prepared to sit there 15 minutes to two days. It takes a lot of patience. But the patience part leaves me and the other staff quite drained at the end of the day."

British Flog Rich More Than Poor

BY ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) - What was good enough for Prince Charles - the heir to the throne - Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden is apparently too good for the working classes - not that they will mind in this case.

Shirley Williams, the minister of education, has just finished polling state and private schoolmasters and teachers on what the policy should be on caning pupils, and it seems to be the majority opinion that thre ought to be less rather than more of what the British call "six of the

The staffs of state-owned schools are generally in favor, according to their evidence, of keeping the right to chastise unruly pupils phhsically among their options, but are equally agreed that it should only be used when nothing else works.

This consensus perpetuates an odd bit of class distinction. For the great private schools such as Eton and Harrow still use the malacca cane, and Churchill, Eden and another government minister, Leo Amery, boasted of their wellpadded seats in the House of Commons.

And when Prince Charles was a student at spartan Gordonstoun in Scotland. he slipped out for a forbidden sip of cherry brandy and, as he ruefully recalled sometime later, "was dealt with." In Gordonstoun parlance that means there was shrot, sharp contact with the royal backside.

Mrs. Williams was in favor of abolishing corporal punishment completely, but a spokesman for the National Union of Teachers said many teachers apparently considered it desirable to retain it at least as a threat ut a time when adolescent disobedience was a growing problem.

The rules on caning pupils are set by each local authority and vary throughout the country. In most cases, said the spokesman, it is permitted, under stringent safeguards and after the headmaster of the school has been consulted. Even then the incident must be recorded in a book which can be examined later if nec-

"I don't think the cane is used all that much," the spokesman said, adding that parents always have the right to ask for prosecution if they think the teacher overstepped his authority or caused injury.

The National Association of Schoolmasters, the Union of Women Teachers and the National Association of Head Teachers suggested retention on the theory that the teacher knows best.

The Society of Teachers Opposed to Physical Punishment claimed the practice was on the increase. It said Newcastle upon Tyne ordered the use of a heavier strap last year and Surrey reintroduced corporal punishment to nursery schools in 1969. It wants a complete and immediate ban.

Education sources believe Mrs Williams will probably remove handicapped children and primary school children from those eligible for corporal punishment but will otherwise largely respect the feeling that it should be retained for

The two-masted vessel, about 100 feet long, was built in 1959 and has a cruising range of 6,000 miles although it is used only for short cruises around Hong Kong.

CARLSBAD (Special)—to use the venarcular of youth, every day is a "cool" day for a hike at Carlsbad Caverns National Park, located near the Texas border

Let the temperature climb above 90 degrees under a hot summer sun. Or plunge below freezing on a windy, winter day. You can always take a three-mile stroll at Carlsbad Caverns protected from sunstrike, frostbite or windburn.

This is an underground hike, of course, but somehow, after you've walked for awhile you don't feel like you're underground-especially when the Cavern opens up into a room that is big enough to set the Houston Astrodome in. The Cavern is naturally air conditioned at 56 degrees, which might make for a cool day at the beach, but it's perfect for walking if you're wearing a light The complete walk-in trip begins at the Cavern's natural entrance near the visitor center and usually takes two and a half to three hours. But if you'd like, you can linger there, admiring the delicate formations, until the departure time

El Paso, Tex. The park is a Designated Fee Area and the visitor center is the place to pay the daily entrance fee of $3 for private non-commercial vehicle or $1 per person for those arriving by commercial carrier. Golden Eagle and Golden Age passports are honored

Start your walk-in trip anytime between 8 a.m. and 3:15 p.m. daily during the winter and for a longer period during the summer, depending on the availability of staffing. And if you don't think you can handle the walk-in, go down in the elevator for the Big Boom tour.

The first mile and a half of the walk-in trip features an 830-foot descent, then an 80 foot ascent up Appetite Hill before reaching the Underground Lunchroom where the elevators are located.

The second part of the trip starts at the lunchroom and is a relatively easy, level walk of a mile and a quarter around the Big Room.

Be sure to bring low-heeled, rubber-soled shoes for the climbing and don't forget your camera. Photography, including use of flash and time exposures, is

IN THE CAVERNS, which is part of one of the largest underground cave systems in the world, there are dosens of mind-boggling formations with such names as Hall of Giants, Queen's Chamber, King's Palace, Frozen Waterfall and Bashful Elephant. You'll enjoy them all. As you enter, you'll be given a radio receiver and along the way you can pick up messages that tell you about the features you are near.

You may set the receiver on any of three channels—one in English, one in Spanish and one especially designed for children.
There are rangers stationed strategically along the trail to answer questions or to help you in any way.

While the main cavern is the principal attraction of this national park, it is not the only one. There's plenty more, including a speciacular bat flight out of the Cavern mouth at dusk in summers and backcountry beauty.

A "coof" place? Yes. Even "super" maybe, and to the National Park Service, SUPER stands for Safely, Use, Preserve and Enjoy the Resource.

Students Find That Farming Can Be Risky

MARSHALL, Minn. (AP) — Running a farm could be a good way to lose your shirt, a group of high school students attending a rural farm institute found.

The students, who attended the conference at Southwest State University in Marshall, participated in a contest to see which team could coax the biggest profits from a mythical farm during a three-year period.

At the end of the week, the top prize went to the team which lost the least money. That was $35,000 on a crop and livestock operation valued at $850,000. "I would suggest you buy a shoe store," said Lester Schmid, agricultural economist at Southeast State and leader of the farm-management workshop.

Schmid later said the high school students were among the most talented he'd ever seen.

"What they learned is that farming is a risky business," he said.

"What we learned," said Kurt Kugler, 18, of Elwood, Neb., "is that you can't tell in just three years whether you'll be able to succeed in farming."

The students also said they were handicapped with arbitrary rules and a "neurotic" computer as they attempted to work a fictional 450-acre farm.

For one thing, the students said they were given a $95,000 line of credit at the bank. If they borrowed more, the computer charged a usurous interest of 60 per cent.

They also complained of not being allowed to store their mythical grain, which is a usual farm practice. The students either had to feed all the grain to their 600 head of cattle or sell it.

The obstacles proved to be overwhelming for some of the students. One group started out with an $850,000 farm and lost more than $1.5 million the first losses totaled a mere $152,000.

Members of the winning team said they learned a lot from their mistakes. "Each time, I think we got a better and better look at management decisions," said Becky Syltie, 18, of Porter, Minn., the winning team's counselor and a student at the University of Nebraska.

About 90 students from Minnesota, South Dakota and Nebraska, took part in the week-long conference.

The sound usually associated with a tornado has been described as a roaring, rushing noise like freight trains speeding through tunnels or jet planes flying close to the ground.

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Didn't any of his friends or companions have any foreboding that Presley was nearing death? - Steve Friedheim, Hollywood, Cal.

A: Yes. London actress Suzanna Leigh (who said that Elvis and I were never lovers, but I was as close to him as you could get") told newsman John McNamee that the superstar had phoned her from the U.S. only two weeks before his sudden death. "It was late at night," she said sadly. "He told me he was in terrible pain and couldn't breathe properly. He said: 'It's getting worse. But they don't understand me. They think I'm joking. Tiny Tim Turns 'Country'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) - Tiny Tim fancies himself a musical athlete, knocking out hits in a quavering voice unique to country singing.
The flabby singer who trilled "Tiptoe

"I'm Gonna Be a Country Queen" is one tune Tiny Tim and his backers hope will shove him back before the public eye. "I Ain't No Cowboy, I Just Found This Hat" is another.

As the last title suggests, Tiny Tim has not abandoned his long, frizzy hair and

Backgammon

Black rolls 6-1. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

There is no problem with the 6-Black must bring in the man on the bar. The question is how best to play the 1.

Black is far ahead in the race, yet his position is perilous. White has an array of men waiting to smite the Black blot. If we assume that Black will leave the blot on the White 6-point, then the only number that doesn't hit a blot is 2-1 by White. Indeed, there are several numbers White can roll that would permit him to hit two Black blots.

At first glance it might seem that the best chance for Black is to try to avoid being hit twice. Therefore, he should use the 1 to play the man on his own 6point to safety on the 5-point

That is an illusion. White does not need to hit two Black men to win the game -just hitting one will make him an overwhelming favorite. He has a 5-point home board, and even if Black succeeds in reentering quickly he will still have to run the gauntlet of White men just waiting for another shot at him. And if White succeeds in closing his board, he could even gammon Black. Therefore, Black must move onto the attack. His best chance to pull the game out of the fire is to hit one of the White blots in his home board. It doesn't much matter which he decides to hit, but we slightly favor hitting on the 1-point. Now White will stay out if he rolls 5-4, 5-2, 4-2, 5-5, 4-4 or 2-2. Also, he will not hit any Black blot if he rolls 3-2, forcing him to come in on the 3-point and so miss all the Black men. True, hitting a White man leaves another Black blot, but Black isn't really

Locke, which was founded in 1912, was built on land owned by George Locke, a gold miner whose heirs are reported to have sold the town and the land for about $650,000.

It was Chinese laborers who, beginning in 1852, built the first of many levees that have turned the Delta swamplands into 500,000 acres of rich farmland

Indulgence in the foridden use of narcotics has played an enormous part in bringing about the breaking up of the family structure and has been the direct result of massive criminal activity. It is commonplace for infants to be born addicted to the same drug as their mother, and many of these same children die within a few hours because of their afflicition. The recent mass murder in a China-Town restaurant on the West Coast is attributed to rival gangs of narcotic dealers.

It is not necessary to travel across the country in order to find a drug problem. It is readily found in all communities in the U.S. from the Canadian border, to the Rio Grande. One of the youngest drug deaths with which I became directly familiar was that of a nine year old second grader who died of an overdose of heroin. He had obtained the narcotic from his fifteen vear old brother, who was himself

If the parent expresses a double standard the child will likely follow the same

ONCE UPON A time, the postage rate went down, from $2 to $2. This was at the start of the 1850's, a time when you could still use foreign coins in the United States.

Government officials wanted to replace foreign coins with our own money. They realized they could do that, and also help people buy stamps more easily, by issuing a coin worth three cents.

The result was our smallest silver coin, the "trime James B. Longacre designed this. He drew a six-pointed star for the obverse, and put a tiny U.S. shield in the center of it. The date is at the bottom, and "United States of America" is around the rim. Collectors usually divide the issue period into three types, according to the number of outlines to the star: Type 1, single outline, 1851-53; Type 2, triple outline, 1854-58; and Type 3, double outline,

For the reverse Longacre put a small Roman numeral III within an ornamental letter C (for "cents"), and added 13 stars around the rim.

The trime weighs about one-third as nuch as a modern clad dime, and is only

This coin was 75 per cent silver and 25 per cent copper for its first three years, 1851-53.

Starting in 1854 the weight was cut very slightly and the alloy was changed to the 90 per cent silver we usually associate with U.S. silver coins. For the first few years, trimes were popular. Then things began going sour.

The coins were too small to be convenient. If you had a hole in your pocket, you'd lose every trime you were carrying. If you dropped a trime indoors, it was sure to fall between the floorboards.

So, after exceeding 181/2 million in 1852, the mintage totals began declining. The New Orleans branch mint struck trimes in 1851; the rest of these coins were made at Philadelphia. By the 1860's, mintage had dropped into the thousands and trimes were on their way out.

From 1863 on the coins apparently were melted wholesale or taken out of the country. But Proof coins, made for sale to coin collectors, stayed here.

The result today is that Uncirculated trimes of this period are rarer than Proofs, in spite of mintage records. Another curiousity about this coin is its edge. The trime and the 20° piece are our only regular-issue silver coins with a Great Plains Distributors, local Coors beer distributor, has announced it is a participating distributor in Aluminum Co. of America's "Pick Up a Good Thing" Recycling Sweepstakes, a regional activity involving 11 western states.

Bruce E. Gentry Jr., president of Great Plains Distributors, said in announcing the local participation, "Recycling used aluminum beverage cans, a valuable resource, is important to all of us. By encouraging the public to enter the Alcoa Sweepstakes, we naturally hope to involve as many people as possible in picking up a good thing-aluminum cans. But, consumers need not recycle cans to enter; just fill out an entry blank at our recycling center located 61/2 miles east off the Tahoka Traffic Circle, on the Slaton
