Mideast Farley Deadlock Ends

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, sidestepping a controversial American-Soviet declaration, announced today he and President Carter have agreed on a tentative formula for holding a Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

Dayan, facing reporters in the early hours of the morning following marathon talks with Carter, emphasized the formula must be accepted by his government and by Israel's Arab neighbors. He said it might well be amended in the process.

The surprise announcement was coupled with the reading by White House spokesman Jody Powell of a joint statement that pushed into the background last Saturday's American-Soviet declaration of principles intended as a guide for a Geneva conference.

The Carter-approved statement specified that acceptance of the American-Soviet initiative, which angered Israeli officials and set off shock waves among that nation's American supporters, "is not a prerequisite for the reconvening and conduct of the Geneva conference."

The statement said the United States and Israel agreed that 1967 and 1973 United Nations Security Council resolutions aimed at promoting a Middle East settlement "remain the agreed basis for the resumption of the Geneva peace conference."

While the American-Soviet declaration was not nullified, it clearly was pushed aside by Carter and Dayan, although the Israeli diplomat acknowledged that "politically it will still have its impact."

"We criticize and we do not accept many of its provisions," he declared.

Dayan said he would recommend that his government approve a working paper that would, if accepted by other nations involved, become "the agreed procedures for the Geneva peace conference." He said he expected early action by Israel.

"It is something we have been working on a long time," said Dayan. Powell told reporters the working paper already has been discussed with Arab officials and announced that Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will be holding further discussions about it with the Arabs.

The Israeli foreign minister ducked all questions about the substance of the Geneva formula. "We did not come here to say what is in the working paper," he insisted.

He and Carter originally were scheduled to spend an hour and a half together Tuesday night, but held a second session that broke up around midnight. They conferred for about three hours, with Dayan and Vance continuing the discussions into the early hours of today.

In talking to reporters, Dayan volunteered a hint that Lebanon might be added to the list of participants in the Geneva conference. As far as Israel is concerned, he said, "Lebanon can come in."

Carter was scheduled to meet with Lebanon's foreign minister this afternoon before returning to Washington following a two-day New York visit that featured talks with Dayan and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and an address to the United Nations General Assembly.

One of Israel's objections to the American-Soviet declaration was their interpretation that it would call for acceptance of a Palestinian state. The declaration referred to "the legitimate rights of the Palestinians" — a phrase Carter used for the first time in his U.N. address.

American officials have insisted the declaration was not intended to impose a settlement that would create such a state and Dayan said, "The Israeli position is...that we shall not negotiate over a Palestinian state."

Reminded that U.N. Security Council resolutions cited in the American-Israeli statement refer to Palestinians as a refugee problem, Dayan said, "We don't say that the Palestinian problem is only the problem of refugees."

At various points in his exchanges with reporters, Dayan said, "we are going to Geneva" and "we want to go to Geneva." Powell said obstacles remained to be overcome before a conference could be held, however.

Fight On Gas Not Over Yet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, having protected Texas' intrastate gas supply in the Senate, will now fight to keep it in a conference committee.

The Texas Democrat's natural gas pricing proposal, co-sponsored by Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., was adopted by the Senate on Tuesday by a 50-46 vote after a 13-day filibuster.

President Carter immediately tried to sway prospective negotiators with a new threat to veto any move to end the price controls, and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill warned that deregulation would never survive the conference committee.

In addition to providing for a modified deregulation of prices, the Bentsen-Pearson proposal preserves the intrastate market, which has supplied Texas' needs without substantial shortages.

The legislation passed by the House keeps gas under price controls. In addition, it effectively does away with the intrastate market and places all gas under federal control. That means that the federal government could order the transfer of gas from Texas to other parts of the country in the event of a shortage.

One possible compromise between the two versions was put forward Tuesday by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee and an opponent of deregulation.

Jackson said he envisioned a compromise that would allow higher prices but require federal control of the intrastate supply.

Bentsen said he would oppose that suggestion. He said he hoped that a phased deregulation would come out of the conference compromising process, despite the avowed opposition of the House's powerful leader, Speaker O'Neill.

"I have great respect for Tip O'Neill, but he doesn't run the Senate," Bentsen said.

Bentsen said his proposal, if it became law, would have little or no immediate impact on Texas consumers, who already pay deregulated prices for gas.

He noted that it specifically wipes out the "redetermination clauses" in many intrastate contracts. Those clauses automatically raise the price of intrastate gas under contract to the highest price paid in a particular gas field.

Some Texans have warned that competition for gas from big interstate pipelines could drive the price for Texas consumers well above the current level of slightly less than $2 per thousand cubic feet.

But under the Bentsen-Pearson proposal, the redetermination clauses would be voided.

The impact of the Bentsen-Pearson amendment on the oil and gas industry is harder to gauge. Deregulation opponents estimated that it would add $10 billion annually to the industry's revenues, but Bentsen called that "outrageous."

He did not give his own estimate of the amount of money the gas industry would realize. But an aide, Ed Knight, said that the amount of gas sold as new gas for higher prices in the first year would not be more than 10 per cent of the total supply.

Headed by the campaign this year is Owen Gilbreath, chairman, with Don Douglas as vice chairman. President of UW for 1977 is B.C. "Peck" McMin.

Keynote speaker Robert Gadberry, a Wichita, Kan., banker, compared the fortunes and philosophies of mankind with mathematics.

Gadberry is active in the United Way nationally, as well as in Wichita. He annually addresses a number of school, church, convention and civic meetings throughout the United States.

During his speech, entitled "Man and Mathematics," Gadberry said Americans are living in a numbers age. He added that people in the United States live in a world of addition because of the abundance of our circumstances.

The guest speaker said we cannot hide from our consciences and that there are those who are feebly blessed in their circumstances in the world.

He said Lubbockites are fortunate to live in an atmosphere of addition due to the high employment rate, lower inflation rate and history of successful United Way fund-raising campaigns.

Gadberry added that the workers in the United Way campaign are multipliers because they transfer the story of need. He added that the workers, key links in the campaign, answer the unmet cries of need for many in the local community.

The guest speaker said the campaign workers respond to the needs of their community out of concern and compassion.

House Panel Hikes Social Security Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel wants to raise Social Security taxes next year for the best-paid American workers and their employers to help keep the system solvent.

Under a plan approved Tuesday by the House Ways and Means Committee, withholding taxes would rise $238 in 1978 for those earning at least $19,900.

Lower-paid workers would feel the bite of higher taxes beginning in 1981.

The committee plan, approved 20-17 over the opposition of Republicans and southern Democrats, calls for keeping the present system of taxing workers and their employers equally. The measure now goes to the full House for a vote.

The proposal runs counter to a plan under consideration in the Senate Finance Committee to have employers for the first time pick up a disproportionate share of the Social Security tax.

The House committee voted for the new tax scales as part of a broader plan to keep the system, running at a deficit since 1975, from going broke by 1983.

Under current law, everyone earning at least $17,700 will pay higher withholding taxes beginning next year.

This year, the 5.85 per cent tax is withheld from only the first $16,500 earned, for a maximum tax of $965.25. Under next year's higher wage base, that will go to $1070.85.

The committee, however, wants to raise the top end of the base to $19,900, with a tax of $1,203.95.

By 1981 the base would rise to $27,900. With the proposed rate increases, a person earning that amount would have $1,799.55 withheld.

And by 1986, under the committee proposal, a combination of base and rate increases would mean people earning $37,500 would pay $2,587.50, triple their present tax.

Because the committee proposal would wait until 1981 to increase rate hikes already planned, the impact on the estimated 86 per cent of American workers would be smaller and farther off.

For example, someone earning $15,000 pays $877.50 this year and will have $907.50 withheld next year under the current law. But rate hikes the committee favors would raise the tax in 1981 to $967.50.

Even so, the increases are not quite as much as some committee members feel are necessary.

Rep. Jim Guy Tucker, D-Ark., who proposed a slightly higher tax package, said more funds still will be needed if the House rejects a committee proposal to bring federal, state and local government workers under mandatory Social Security coverage in 1982.

The committee voted to provide an additional safeguard for the Social Security trust funds by authorizing loans from the federal treasury when reserves fall below 25 per cent of a year's needs.

Quarterly Crime Report Shows Increase In City

By PAT CARLSON

Avalanche-Journal Staff

September was a relatively quiet month for crime here although Lubbockites officially lost more than a third of a million dollars to burglars and thieves.

The number of violent crimes remained steady during the month, with murder representing the only significant change in reported offenses against persons. All types of theft also were down, according to reports made to the Lubbock Police Department.

The quarterly picture, however, including July through September, was represented by increases in almost all types of crime, except murder.

Four persons were killed in homicides here last month, with suspects being arrested in each case. An outbreak of three such incidents in as many days accounted for the significant rise from only one offense in August. The seven homicides for the past three months was down slightly from the eight reported during the previous quarter. Of Lubbock's 21 killings this year, only one remains unclear.

There were 24 robberies in September, the same as in August. The quarter total of 68 was only one more than the number reported to police during the previous three-month period, and represented 23 more than the incidents reported during 1976's last three summer months.

The number of rapes also decreased slightly, from six to five in September. Quarterly, however, 22 such incidents were reported July through September, compared with only 18 for the previous three months.

Assaults in the city were up slightly last month from August, 96 to 101, with a significant increase being recorded between the two quarters — 239 to 283.

All classes of theft were down during the month. The respective figures for incidents over $200, $50-$200, and under $50 were: 128, 302 and 191. Quarterly, however, significant increases were recorded, jumping from 439 to 497, 694 to 763, and 647 to 705, respectively.

Auto theft numbers also showed similar movement with only 66 reported in September, compared with August's 85.

During the past three months, however, 219 such complaints were made to police, compared with only 164 for the previous quarter.

Burglaries appeared to be down for the month, from 389 to 336. Again, however, the three-month picture was different with 1,123 such incidents being reported, compared with 1,016 earlier in the year.

Forgery incidents showed a marked decline during the month — from 26 to 9; however, slightly more were reported from quarter to quarter — 53 to 57. Alleged narcotic violations reported to LPD remained constant between months at 24, but 77 were reported during the past three months and only 45 during the previous period.

Sex offenses were reported more frequently.

The $369,138 worth of goods reportedly stolen during September was down sharply from August's $619,960. Official records indicated $142,416 worth of property was recovered during the month, compared with $254,984 during August.

Area Faces Cool, Wet Weather

A-J News Services

Cold Canadian air continued to roll into Wyoming and Montana today, bringing the season's first snowfall to many towns, but no drastic weather changes are in the forecast for the South Plains.

Lubbock's rainfall total so far this year trails by 2.69 inches the precipitation reading at this time in 1976, but the National Weather Service says the odds for showers here will climb to the 40 per cent mark tonight.

Cloudy skies and cool weather are expected to dominate the South Plains area through Thursday and perhaps the weekend.

At 8 a.m. today weathermen noted the overnight low of 62 degrees on the thermometer, which they say will reach near 70 this afternoon and fall to the upper 50s tonight.

If forecasters are correct, cooler weather may continue to claim its fair share of the season, with highs in the 60s and 70s Friday and lows dipping to the 40s by Sunday.

High temperatures this week have registered about 30 degrees lower than highs during South Plains Fair last week.

The cooling trend is not unique to Lubbock.

Temperatures this morning ranged from the 50s in portions of the northern Panhandle to near 70 along the Gulf Coast and the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Light rain hit portions of West and North Texas this morning as a cool front edged its way into the northwestern section of the Texas Panhandle, but forecasters say the front is not likely to move farther south.

Forecasts this morning called for continued cloudiness and scattered rain in the western and northern areas of the state and possibly in the southern sections of Texas.

High West Texas temperatures are predicted to range from the 70s and 80s Friday to the 60s and 70s Sunday.

The Big Bend may prove again to be an exception to state forecasts with readings

Charges Withdrawn In Jennings Case

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — With an indictment deadline approaching, federal prosecutors have withdrawn cocaine charges against "outlaw" country music singer Waylon Jennings, formerly of Lubbock.

U.S. Atty. Hal Hardin said the federal Speedy Trial Act required that Jennings be indicted by Friday, the 45th day after his arrest at a Nashville recording studio. But with the charges dismissed, a grand jury could indict Jennings at a later date, Hardin said.

At Hardin's request, Judge L. Clure Morton of U.S. District Court dropped the charges Tuesday against Jennings and Mark Rothbaum of Danbury, Conn., an employee of Jennings' business manager. The charges, for conspiracy to possess cocaine, were dismissed without prejudice, which means they can be brought again.

A federal grand jury heard testimony Monday from people who were at the studio Aug. 23, the night drug agents conducted a raid and arrested Jennings. Also Monday, Morton ordered Dale Quillen, Jennings' attorney, to give the prosecution a tape recording made that night.

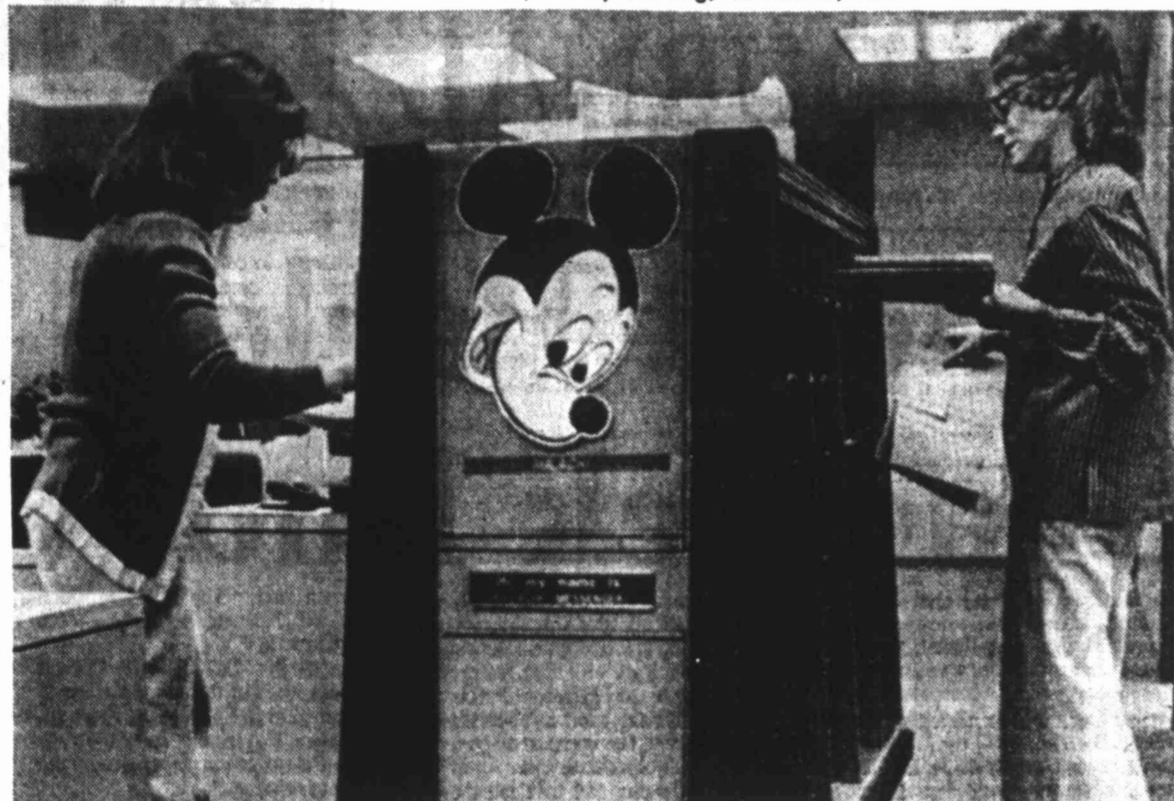

Quillen argued that the tape should be suppressed because it was made at the direction of another Jennings attorney. He said it would be "very detrimental to Mr. Jennings to give up the tape."

Quillen said Tuesday the tape contains a "misleading" remark by someone other than Jennings, but said he considers the tape overall to be evidence in Jennings' favor.

Federal drug agents said they raided the studio after tracing a package of cocaine from a New York courier service to the Nashville airport, where Jennings' secretary picked it up. Agents testified later that they found only traces of the drug when they searched the studio.

Thunderbirds, Parachute Team Highlight Reese Open House

Aerial maneuvers by the Air Force's Thunderbirds and the Navy's Parachute Team will highlight open house festivities at Reese Air Force Base Monday.

Gates will open at 10:30 a.m. on a day of activities aimed at showing the South Plains a good time while it looks the base over through exhibits and demonstrations.

The annual event celebrates Reese's 28th birthday and the Air Force's 30th.

Nineteen aircraft from the Air Force, Navy, Civil Air Patrol and Air National Guard will be on the flight line along with the T37 and T38 jets that Reese student pilots learn to fly.

These will include the F4 Phantom II, C130 Hercules, A37 Dragonfly, RF101 Voodoo, A7D Corsair, F106 Delta Dart, C141 Starlifter, O1E Birdog, KC135 Stratotanker, F105 Thunderchief, PT22 and Cessna 172.

Coming up with their version of aerial maneuvers will be the Lubbock Radio Control Contest Association and the South Plains Area Radio Kontrol Society.

Reese personnel will add their own version with a parasailing demonstration, showing part of the airborne training Reese students receive at the end of a tow rope to learn to handle a parachute should the time to eject ever come.

Other phases of Reese activity will be displayed in Hangar 82 on the flight line where activities will center. Everything from dental information to jet engines will be on view, along with booths from other branches of the service, ROTC units and Reserve units.

The U.S. Air Force Academy's Moods in Blue singers and band will begin the musical segment of the show at noon.

At 1:20 p.m., with the Reese Color Guard in attendance, the Frenship High School Band will get formal events underway with the playing of the national anthem.

Weather permitting, as the strains float upward, a member of the Navy parachute team will come down carrying the Stars and Stripes. This will launch the team's aerial show.

Other musical entertainment during the day will be Texas Gold from South Plains College and Reese's own Fifth String which won Air Training Command competition and placed third worldwide in Air Force competition.

Winners in an aviation-oriented art and photo contest for civilians and military personnel will be named and contest entries will be on exhibit during the day. The top military entries will be entered in ATC art competition.

Topping off the day, putting the icing on the birthday cakes, will be the acrobatic aerial demonstration by the Thunderbirds, flying the T38 Talon students fly to show what it can do.

At 3 p.m. and prior to the Thunderbirds' show a review will be conducted by a VIP inspection party consisting of Col. Charles E. Bishop, Reese commander; Vernon Barron, past president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; Lubbock Mayor Roy Bass, Col. Haynes Baumgardner (USAF ret.), president of the Lubbock Chapter of the Air Force Association; Ray J. Diekemper, president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; and B. E. Rushing Jr., member of the Chamber's Armed Services Committee.

The Thunderbirds are scheduled to arrive and perform arrival maneuvers at 11:30 a.m.

Guests are requested to approach the base from the Levelland Highway side, turn right at the signal and enter the golf course gate for special parking.

Newspapers In India Criticize Government

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Two of India's leading newspapers said today that Prime Minister Morarji Desai's government botched its campaign against Indira Gandhi by arresting her prematurely, and jeopardized its future in the process.

The Indian Express and The Statesman, English-language dailies that opposed Mrs. Gandhi's emergency rule, accused the government of "clumsy work" and "monumental incompetence" because it failed to prepare an adequate case against the former prime minister before arresting her Monday night on charges of political corruption.

Mrs. Gandhi was freed Tuesday by a Delhi magistrate who said the government gave insufficient grounds for detaining her. Seeking to capitalize on the court victory, she immediately resumed her speaking campaign against the Janata party coalition that turned her and the Congress party out of office in parliamentary elections last March.

"There has been clumsy work at the crossroads," read an editorial in the Indian Express. "If those responsible for handling the processing of the case against her had gone about it with the deliberate intention of providing Mrs. Gandhi with ammunition for her charge of political vendetta at work, they could have gone about their business with more skill."

The Express was the principal target of Mrs. Gandhi's campaign to censor the press during the 21 months of emergency rule that completed her 11 years in power.

The Statesman said Mrs. Gandhi's "formidable political talent will capitalize on the dramatic events to further divide the country and sow doubts in the people's minds about the Janata government's motives."

It added that the government's performance during its six months in power "has disillusioned many and will only serve to give credence to the view that inquiries (into the actions of the previous government) and the drama of Mrs. Gandhi's arrest are a substitute for government action in other, more important, fields."

Mrs. Gandhi after her release met with aides and supporters at her home and gave brief interviews to foreign correspondents. She said the magistrate's action vindicated her and proved the Desai government was trying to discredit her politically with "trumped up charges."

Then she flew to Bombay, on the west coast, for three days of speeches in Desai's home state, Gujarat.

The government appealed to the Delhi high court to countermand the magistrate's release of Mrs. Gandhi, and the Central Bureau of Investigation said it would put together a more comprehensive case against her. A government source said the bureau had warned the government the case against her was not ready, but the political leaders insisted on the arrest.

The bureau's report accused Mrs. Gandhi of pressuring Indian companies to supply 104 jeeps for her party's unsuccessful election campaign and conspiring "out of political and diplomatic considerations" to award an oil drilling contract to the Compagnie Francaise des Petroles despite a bid from Geoman, a Gulf subsidiary, that was $13.4 million less.

The report admitted that the contract was signed two weeks after Mrs. Gandhi left office. But it said B.B. Vohra, her Petroleum Ministry secretary, "acted in an unbecoming manner in an unseemly hurry to clinch this transaction before the new minister was in position."

City Group Asks Zone Change

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A neighborhood organization Thursday will ask the Planning and Zoning Commission to recommend changing the zoning on 10 lots in the area to single-family residential usage.

The UNIT group, composed of residents living in an area bounded by University Avenue, 19th Street, Indiana Avenue and 34th Street, will seek the change for property north of 20th Street and east of Boston Avenue. Under current zoning, only two-family residential (R-2) uses and parking are allowed on the property.

The commission, which will meet at 6 p.m. in council chambers, will recommend case dispositions to the city council.

In order to build an insurance office on a section of land east of University Avenue and about 77 feet south of 78th Street, Hershel Spears will request a change from single-family residential (R-1) to apartment-medical (AM) specific use.

A corporation will seek to switch the zoning on part of 18 lots from R-1 to R-2 and vice-versa for the remainder.

Bill Steele, representing Bill Steele Enterprises, Inc., will request the change for property south of Erskine Street and west of Dover Avenue.

West Texas Savings Association, tied to a building site plan, will ask for an amendment to allow the expansion of the facility, which is north of 50th Street and west of Indiana Avenue.

The commission will hear Bob Hower-ton's request for a zoning change to allow a motel west of U.S. 67 and south of Chaparral Street.

The change would be from general retail (C-3) to commercial (C-4), and opposition is expected from local property owners dismayed about the prospect of a building so close to a residential neighborhood.

Environmental Design Association, appearing before the commission for the second time, again will seek to have a tract of land and an unplatted portion of the West Wind Addition zoned AM instead of C-3.

The association, represented by Ray Johnson, will present a site plan of the proposed retirement village that would be built on the tract north of 4th Street and between Chicago and Elkhardt avenues.

The commission had requested such a site plan before considering the proposal. Roy Middleton will ask that a tract of land north of 98th Street and west of Indiana Avenue be zoned R-2 and high-density apartment (A-2) instead of the current R-1.

The City of Lubbock also will make a request. It will ask that the C-4 zoning on several tracts of land in the Fiesta Auto-land Center Addition north and south of 69th Street and east of Slide Road be restricted to certain uses.

The commission originated the case at the request of property owners in the area who are concerned about too much commercial development close to a residential neighborhood.

A moratorium on building permits in the addition was approved by the city council to last until the differences are resolved.

As of today, a zoning department spokesman said, the homeowners and property owners have not reached an agreement about what the restrictions should include.

Brandt Cutlers, represented by Delbert McDougal, will request zone changes from R-2, to local retail (C-2) and family apartment (A-1) for a tract of land 300

Brown Seeks Gas For California

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown of California arrived here this week for talks with Premier Peter Lougheed about Alberta natural gas for California.

California is interested in getting Alberta gas until completion of the Alaska Highway pipeline project.

feet west of Quaker Avenue between Ursuline and Marshall streets.

A site plan amendment to allow the construction of an office building east of Indiana Avenue and about 145 feet north of 53rd Street will be sought by W.D. "Dub" Rogers Jr.

The site, behind a large store, currently is tied to parking use only.

Security National Bank, wishing to expand, will request a zone change from R-1 to restricted local retail (C-2A) for land north and south of 35th Street and east of Slide Road.

Howard Laverell for the Great Southwest Investment Co. will ask that a tract of land north of 19th Street and east of Loop 289 be zoned C-3 instead of the current C-4 with C-2 uses.

The change would allow the addition of a large store on the property.

Durwood Bolton will seek a zone change on a tract south of Brownfield Road and east of Chicago Avenue. The change would be from R-1 specific use restricted to service station usage to C-4 with C-3 and C-2 uses.

Mrs. Burnis Henderson also may ask the commission to consider recommending an ordinance amendment pertaining to commercial vehicles.

She will ask that the ordinance be changed to read, "No motor vehicle which requires a driver to have a commercial license shall be parked on a lot" in a residential district.

A zoning department spokesman said that because the commission usually doesn't meet any later than 11 p.m., Mrs. Henderson's request may have to be postponed until Oct. 13, when the group would reconvene.

Official Seeks Dump Site

Lubbock County Commissioner Edgar Chance is looking for another place his Pct. 1 constituents can dump their garbage. But he hasn't had much luck.

Chance said he has had to close the county landfill west of Wolforth because the 15-acre site, after 20 years of use, finally has been exhausted.

"The dumpground was completely filled up, so we closed it out and covered it up with topsoil," he said.

"I'd like to find another site in Pct. 1 because I feel the people really need the service. But so far, I haven't been able to locate any suitable land that's available," Chance said.

The former landfill had been located about four miles west of Wolforth, near the Lubbock-Hockley county line. Citizens were allowed to use the dumpground at no charge.

Chance said rural Pct. 1 residents are "going to have to go to the City of Lubbock dumpground" north of the city to dispose of refuse. He said he hopes that long drive — and the fees charged by the city — do not prompt residents to illegally dump trash along county roads instead.

"Since we closed the (Pct. 1) dumpground, there has been some dumping on the right-of-ways and in farm fields."

With the closing of the Pct. 1 operation, the only other Lubbock County landfill now in use is Commissioner Jim Lancaster's Pct. 3 dumpground near Idalou.

Jackson Retains Atlanta Spot; Two Other Mayors Lose Posts

By The Associated Press
Maynard Jackson, Atlanta's first black mayor, praised the Southern city's race relations as "far superior to any city its size or bigger" after he captured more than 60 per cent of the vote to win a second term.

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, seeking a fourth term, said his defeat was due to tough decisions "I knew would hurt me politically."

In another mayoral race Tuesday, David Rusk, son of former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, defeated incumbent Albuquerque Mayor Harry Kinney, winning more than 40 per cent of the vote as required to avoid a runoff.

Rusk, 37, had come to Albuquerque in 1971 from Washington, D.C., on loan to the city as a federal manpower executive. He resigned from that job in 1973 to go to work directly for the city and most recently had served in the state House of Representatives.

Jackson, 39, who first won office in 1973 in a close election, predicted final results would show he won more than 90 per cent of the black vote in Atlanta, which is 55 per cent black.

He conceded he got only slightly more than 25 per cent of the white vote. He called this "disappointing, but very regular as long as we have a nation as it is."

In Cleveland's nonpartisan primary, Perk, 63, a Republican who succeeded the city's only black mayor, Carl Stokes, in 1971, was defeated by two young Democrats who roughly split the city's white and black vote.

The top finishers who will face each other in the Nov. 8 general election are Edward Feighan, a 29-year-old state representative, and Dennis Kucinich, a 30-year-old Municipal Court clerk.

The two Democrats had concentrated on issues of deteriorating neighborhoods, crime, inner-city housing and Perk's support of tax abatements to stimulate downtown development his decision to sell the city-owned Municipal Light Co.

Perk, who once ran for the U.S. Senate and was county auditor for 10 years, said he would like to stay in public service. "Perhaps I have a new role as a civic leader," he said.

An unofficial final count showed Kucinich with 40,134 votes to Feighan's 39,699 and Perk's 38,280.

Atlanta's Jackson spent an estimated $200,000, 10 times more than any of six opponents, although his campaign never showed signs of weakness.

Political opponents and some union representatives who backed Jackson in 1973 criticized him for firing 1,000 city workers to break a garbage strike this year. Most of the workers were rehired later.

Emma Darnell, the mayoral candidate who hit that issue hardest, came in a poor fourth in the balloting behind businessman Harold Dye and Fulton County Commissioner Milton Farris.

Besides the "strike-busting" issue, several candidates tried to tarnish Jackson's image by frequent reference to cheating on promotion tests in the police department.

With 98 per cent of the precincts reported, Jackson had 52,838 votes, Dye 14,842, Farris 11,736 and Miss Darnell 3,460.

Meanwhile, in New Orleans, a review of voting machines from last Saturday's mayoral primary determined that City Councilman Joseph V. DiRosa defeated state Sen. Nat Kiefer by a mere 265 votes for a place in the Nov. 12 runoff with state Appeals Court Judge Ernest N. "Dutch" Morial.

Morial is the first black to emerge as a serious candidate for mayor in New Orleans' history.

Why is there a United Way?

United Way was born of necessity, the result of community efforts to help people. United Way raises funds, budgets and allocates them, and plans for the future. But, even more than that United Way has an over-riding concern for people and the problems they face. With Lubbock a highly populated, metropolitan area, there are many who need help now.

And many who will need help in the near future. There are 32 agencies funded by United Way. They serve in the areas of physical and mental health, rehabilitation, delinquency prevention, family and children's services, and general community services.

These United Way services are not only for the disadvantaged, the handicapped or the disturbed. They are open to everyone who has a need. Through professionals and volunteers they provide equipment, care, counseling and character building.

Your gifts make United Way possible. You are United Way. Through the United Way you make an investment in your future, in your children's future, in the future of your chosen community.

The Second Alamo

AS A COLONEL in Jim Granberry's ill-fated campaign for governor, John R. Knaggs learned better than most what it must have been like inside the Alamo.

to their inevitable fate is told from a you-are-there perch inside both commander's camps.

An Austin political consultant and former newsmen, Knaggs has written an historical novel about the Texas Revolution.

KNAGGS, WHILE he may not hold the reader spellbound, keeps him marching through the pages of "The Bugles Are Silent" in much the way Santa Anna and Sam Houston must have stalked one another, not sure what to expect next but eager to get on with it.

It's called "The Bugles Are Silent" (Shoal Creek Publishers, Austin, 300 pages, $10) and it has a foreword by T.R. Fehrenbach, a San Antonio historian.

After the fall of the Alamo, and the surrender and massacre of Fannin's small army, Houston stayed out of the Mexican's way until he could train an army and develop a strategy.

This is no dreamed-up romantic story set against the backdrop of war, nor can it be classed as a serious, dry historical work.

Then he set out to harass Santa Anna and to wait for a mistake that would give him a chance for victory over the vastly superior enemy forces.

It is, rather, a successful attempt to humanize the actual events of the Texas Revolution and tell it like it might have been seen by aides to Sam Houston and Santa Anna.

All of which brings up a question: Did Knaggs get interested in writing his book because the Granberry defeat in 1974 taught him what it's like to fight to certain defeat against overwhelming odds, like at the Alamo?

OBVIOUSLY WELL researched, the book gives an insight into the strategies, mistakes, doubts, heroism and human frailties on both sides of the war.

Or did he want to learn the strategy for rebounding from a massacre, probing for a weakness, waiting for a new opportunity, and striking for victory against an over-confident, sleeping enemy, like at San Jacinto?

While many of its conversations are stilted and contrived, especially in the early going, the story unfolds in a way that will give the non-serious student of history a better insight into the passions that ebbed and flowed across the primitive Texas terrain of 1836.

For a couple of days there, the Gov't couldn't borrow any more money, the Senate and the House being in disagreement over whether to raise the debt limit to $752 billion or to $773 billion.

Holmes Alexander:

Mistaken Identity, No Doubt

WASHINGTON—"Vidkun Quisling—or do my eyes deceive me," cried the Returning Traveler who'd been away for a while.

two despots look to most Americans like two of a kind, but there's one difference.

Berlin, Cuba, Vietnam and Taiwan.

"I can barely see the speaker through the crowd, so I can't be certain. But I do recall reading in the papers that Vidkun was executed by the Norwegians for treason back in October, 1945."

Right, the Traveler was told. President Park is our SOB, and Kim is theirs.

"But it seems to me the crises in Germany, Cuba, Vietnam, Taiwan only fade when the United States accommodates with Communism and sells out its friends."

The Traveler was shushed by a security policeman who told him the speaker was Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

It's true that the ROKs have a better air force, with much better fighting planes than the enemy.

"The way I hear it, the senator wants to make it easier for the Reds to march to Seoul?"

"You may be right," the Traveler admitted. "I now can see more clearly through the crowd. The speaker doesn't at all resemble the one-time Minister-President of Norway under the Nazi occupation."

Most Americans wish the USA were clearly that much stronger than the USSR. There's nothing wrong with military superiority, come to think of it.

The Traveler must somehow be mistaken, McGovern would never help the Reds invade.

"But a man changes a lot in 30 years, even without the aid of plastic surgery. Actually, it isn't the speaker's looks that jogged my memory. But he sounds like a voice from the dead."

"Nothing at all," agreed the Traveler. "But the senator—if that's who it is—is saying in so many words that the peace we desire is illustrated in

"Maybe not," the Traveler conceded. "The voice I hear is not the voice of an American senator. It is the voice from the grave of a man named Quisling."

Everybody would recognize the voice as the voice of George McGovern. He carried the District of Columbia over Nixon.

Sylvia Porter: Inflation Top Runner In Gloom-Doom Race

"IT WASN'T HIS voice, nor his looks that rang a bell with me," the Traveler insisted. "It was his line of argument."

EXPANSION IN THE U.S. economy has been steadily winding down from the sizzling 7 1/2 per cent growth rate which '77 started with.

more goods and services can be produced per hour.

"It is collaborating with an invasion when a politician opposes preparedness against an enemy. The Communist-backed Korean People's Republic has been in South Korea before."

Fears are widespread that we are into a phase of "pause" similar to that which characterized late '76 and '75 and that this slowdown will slide into downturn next.

"Improve relationships between business and labor and between private enterprise and government so that price-pay hikes which are clearly against the public interest can be monitored and modified?"

"It cost a lot of American lives under MacArthur and Ridgeway to recapture South Korea in the 1950's and to set up the ROK—Republic of Korea."

But there also are abundant reasons for confidence that '78 will be a third year of "real" upturn (growth in dollars with the impact of inflation eliminated).

"Eliminate government regulations which not only fail to fulfill their purposes but which also add to prices?"

"McGovern talks as if he wouldn't much mind if an invasion happened again. But anything that hurts an American ally hurts America."

While the expansion is middle-aged at 2 1/2 years, it hasn't yet reached even the average duration for previous post-World War II expansions.

"Restore our tax system to a means of raising funds and providing incentives and stop distorting it into a form of punishment for the most productive."

No reasonable person could interpret the Senator's speech that way. All he said was that the Carter administration, having decided to remove a U.S. infantry division, was wrong to replace it with airpower—250 fighter jets for the ROKs to dissuade the Red Koreans from crossing the DMZ.

Admittedly, the so-called leading indicators—which in the past have telegraphed in advance turns in the business cycle—have declined for three months in a row.

"DELIBERATELY BUILD UP stockpiles of critical raw materials and commodities—ranging from food to oil—to protect us from inflationary shortages and bottle necks?"

McGovern fears that ROK President Park will mount an offensive, so as to cement his own power and unify the peninsula.

THE STOCK MARKET has been a year-long area of distress. Auto sales have been zipping along but much retail trade has been hesitant.

On top of inflation itself (the "cruellest tax" of all) is today's inflation psychology.

"Why would President Park be so foolish?" demanded the Traveler.

Responsible world authorities have been issuing gloomy assessments of economic conditions in nations around the globe.

This too is profoundly dangerous because when so many believe the prophecies of inflation, they take steps that make the prophecies self-fulfilling.

"The Seoul government already has a gross national product three times larger than its northern neighbor, and a growth rate that is double. Park has the 1972 Constitution which makes him chief of state with absolute power."

A slowdown, though is not a stall. A continuing U.S. expansion at a real pace in the 5 to 6 per cent range wouldn't be powerful enough to slash joblessness but it would be healthily sustainable, and our most disturbing structural unemployment demands special attacks.

We have outgrown the economic theories of Lord John Maynard Keynes, the great British economist whose ideas have played so overwhelming a role in world prosperity since the 1930s. Now we must become bold enough to embrace rather than shrink from new ideas. As Keynes himself once said:

"If he violates human rights, so does Chairman Kim Il Sung, the dictator of North Korea. The Meanwhile, a strong rise in business spending on new plants and equipment is still to play its traditional role in propping our economy.

"The ideas of economists and philosophers... are more powerful than is commonly understood. Indeed the world is ruled by little else."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

'Morality' Wins Test

HOMOSEXUALS were the big losers this week as the Supreme Court opened its fall session with a mixed bag of rulings as a backdrop to an important reverse discrimination case it will hear next week.

Brennan Jr., the two knee-jerk liberals on the Supreme Court, were the only two who voted even to hear Gaylor's appeal. His lawyers claimed the school district, in firing him, had deprived him of his privacy, freedom of expression and equal protection.

The Court refused to hear an appeal by James Gaylor, who lost his job as a teacher in Tacoma, Wash., after officials learned of his homosexual status.

IN ANOTHER CASE, the Supreme Court let stand a racial quota system requiring that 48 per cent of all promotions to sergeant in the Chicago Police Department be granted to members of minority races.

Left standing by the Court's action was a Washington state court ruling that homosexuality is immoral and grounds for dismissal. This ruling infuriated the American Civil Liberties Union, which called the court "insensitive" to individual rights.

Whether this constitutes a tip of the Court's thinking with regard to a reverse discrimination case brought by Allan Bakke, a white student who claims that just such a quota deprived him of entrance into a California medical school, is conjectural.

EARLIER THIS year, the homosexuality rights movement suffered a public referendum setback in Dade County, Fla., where voters rejected an ordinance protecting them against discrimination in jobs and housing.

That case probably won't get a ruling until next spring.

The Supreme Court has heretofore upheld a state law making the homosexual act illegal but had never ruled on the status of homosexuality, which the civil libertarians refer to as "sexual preference."

However, the Court also let stand a controversial school desegregation plan for Wilmington, Del., that requires the merger of school districts encompassing almost two-thirds of the state's students.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and William

The clearest picture emerging so far is that the Supreme Court's rulings this session will be as controversial as ever.

Showing Their Colors, At Last

WASHINGTON—If there were any lingering doubts on which side that Ambassador Andrew Young and Mrs. Coretta Scott King, the widow of the slain civil rights leader, were on during the Vietnam war, the two U.S. Representatives to the United Nations have now made it crystal clear where they stand.

words of what happened at the UN and how she greeted the Vietnamese.

In statements and conversations with the Communist Vietnamese delegation at the UN, both Young and Mrs. King have indicated that they were not only against the war but supported a victory by Hanoi as part of the "world-wide struggle for peace, and justice."

The following is based on the transcript of an interview granted by Mrs. King to several reporters.

As the self-appointed point man for President Carter's changing foreign policy, Young made his position clear in his public and private endorsement of Communist Vietnam in welcoming its entry into the UN.

"I WAS SITTING there, thinking about my husband's position against the war and all. I said to Andy (Ambassador Young): 'This is a very moving moment for me.' I said, 'You know, ten years ago Martin made his statement.' And he said, 'yes.'"

After carefully noting that as a member of Congress he had opposed U.S. aid to South Vietnam could defend itself against the Communists, Young expressed his continued support, stating:

"I want to congratulate them and to tell them how much I felt with them, and supported them, and if I could be of any help to them while I was here to please feel free to call on me."

"IT IS MY SINCERE hope that Vietnam's entry into this body is one more step in the worldwide struggle for peace, justice and prosperity, a struggle which we now carry on together in this international body and within our own country."

"And they thanked me. And I just, you know, had that sort of feeling that I wanted to reach out to them, because I have sympathized so much with them in their struggle."

The latter part of Young's statement is considered highly significant here in light of Hanoi's slogan during the closing days of the war which stated, "As Saigon goes so goes New York."

Neither Young nor Mrs. King expressed any concern about the more than 300,000 South Vietnamese, who are now being held in "re-education camps" by the Communist Vietnamese regime or the more than 1,000 Americans, that fought in Vietnam, and are still listed as missing.

Because of the historical importance of the position of the Kings, here are Mrs. King's own

INSTEAD, THEIR first meeting with the red Vietnamese delegation was involved in letting them know of their support for the Communist's "world-wide struggle."

A theme that appears to fit President Carter's policy of accommodating and collaborating with Marxist and Communist governments throughout the world.

A second-grader was asked to draw a picture of his father at work and turned in a paper full of circles. "My father's a doctor," he explained. "He makes rounds."

Support for the Communist Vietnamese also was indicated by Sam Brown, the Director of ACTION, the umbrella organization for the Peace Corps and the government's anti-poverty agencies.

One organizer of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War during the 1960s, Brown warmly greeted the Vietnamese delegation at a reception following that country's entry into the UN.

These open handed greetings of the Communist Vietnamese delegation by Young, Mrs. King, and Brown appear to be closely linked to their efforts to form an alliance between the Marxist liberation movements in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, and politically active negro and radical groups in the U.S.

SUCH AN ALLIANCE was openly and privately discussed at the recent conference sponsored here by the Congressional Black Caucus which brought together representatives of 300 black organizations and which was addressed by both President Carter and Vice President Mondale.

What this alliance and the Carter administration's encouragement means in relation to this country's future both at home and abroad is something that all free Americans should be considering.

If we are to become dues-paying (through our taxes) members of the "world-wide struggle" as now being directed from Moscow, Havana and Hanoi, each one of us should know what is involved. Young, Mrs. King, and Sam Brown appear to know.

Note: One of Young's closest advisers is the same secret Communist, whose contacts with Dr. Martin Luther King, caused the late Attorney General Robert Kennedy to order the controversial FBI surveillance of the Civil Rights leader.

NBC, CBS Cancel Two Shows

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — "Sanford Arms" on NBC and "Young Dan'l Boone" on CBS became the first casualties of the new television season, with the announcements by their respective networks that they were going off the air.

"Sanford" sans Redd Foxx will go off the air as of Oct. 21, while "Dan'l" has already gone thataway.

NBC's new show to replace "Sanford" in the 7 p.m., CDT slot is less than innovative — it's old Navy buddy Don Rickles as "CPO Sharkey," who has picked up character actor Richard X. Slattery as a hard-boiled commanding officer.

NBC has another new addition to the schedule — "James At 15, the Story of a Teenager" — which the network tried out as a two-hour movie on Sept. 5, opening night of the new season.

The drama, starring Lance Kerwin, hit the top of the Nielsen ratings that week, with a 23.8 rating and a 42 share of the audience, which convinced the network to turn it into a regular at the earliest possible date.

The time opened up with the end of the "Richard Pryor Show," although "James" will not occupy the same time slot. Instead, the network is doing a fast shuffle, moving "Man from Atlantis" into Pryor's old 7 p.m., CDT period on Tuesdays, as of Oct. 18.

That had previously been announced as the date of the final Pryor show, which instead will go on the air Oct. 20, at 8 p.m., in the former "Atlantis" slot. "James" moves into the Thursday time period on Oct. 27.

The move is belated for the Pryor show, which might never have become so controversial if it had been scheduled for 8 p.m., putting it beyond family viewing time. "Atlantis," with its comic-strip nature, should be right at home 7 p.m.

CBS also is revealing its deck, switching "Logan's Run" from 8 p.m. Fridays to 7 p.m. Mondays as of Oct. 10. The earlier viewing time plus heavy promotion of "Logan's Run" means the network hopes that a change of scenery will give the futuristic adventure story a network future for the present.

There is no news on what series CBS will move into the Friday slot — on Oct. 14 it will rebroadcast "Smile" at 8 p.m., and on Oct. 21 "Switch" will expand to two hours. After that, nobody knows — except for CBS Television President Robert Wussler and a few dozen executives who aren't talking.

The tragedy of the battered child — which often includes a sadly disturbed parent and a society unable to cope with the situation — is the subject for "Mary Jane Harper Cried Last Night," which CBS will broadcast tonight at 8 p.m. CDT.

The film stars Susan Dey, she of the long blond hair on "The Partridge Family," as Rowena Harper, Mary Jane's mother, whose family connections allow her to keep her daughter despite the child's broken arm and suspicious burns.

New Data Indicates Galaxy's Movement

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — New data gathered by a group of Berkeley researchers indicates the Milky Way galaxy may be "part of some kind of cosmic river flowing through the universe" at 1.3 million miles per hour.

The researchers, Lawrence Laboratory physicist Richard Muller, physicist George Smoot and graduate student Marc Gorenstein, have published their findings in the current issue of the journal "Physical Review Letters."

Their research is based on an ongoing NASA study at the Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif., where measurements of cosmic "black body" radiation have been taken aboard a high flying plane.

Initial results of their research, Muller says, indicates "there is a lot more large scale motion in the universe than has generally been supposed."

"I don't think anybody can cast serious doubts on the accuracy of our data," Muller, 33, said.

The Milky Way's estimated speed is not surprising to the Berkeley group, but the latest information indicates the galaxy is moving in the opposite direction than scientists have previously thought.

Astronomer Vera Rubin of the Carnegie Institute in Washington recently clocked the Milky Way's velocity compared to 96 nearby galaxies out to a distance of some 300 light years and came up with a speed of 600 to 700 kilometers a second, approximately the same speed Muller's group found.

But she thought the galaxy moved in nearly the opposite direction. Muller says this may mean that nearby galaxies are moving even faster than the Milky Way.

Bolivians Eager To Attend A&M

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — In a manner of speaking, Eudoro Galindo is Bolivia's greatest producer of Texas A&M students.

He never attended A&M, but four of his five children did and now his first grandchild is attending the school.

And the Cochamba, Bolivia, resident says there are 11 more grandchildren "waiting to go to A&M."

Galindo, in town to visit his progeny and to attend the inauguration of A&M's new president, said his oldest daughter is the only one of his children who did not attend A&M and that was because the Galindos hadn't "discovered" the school yet.

"But Ramiro (his eldest son) transferred to Texas A&M and was immediately impressed by the friendliness and warmth of the people," said Galindo. "It was a love affair from the first day."

"After that, they all became Aggies: Christian, who graduated in 1962; Eudoro Jr., who graduated in 1964, and my younger daughter, Vivian Ruth, who is a 1975 alumnus," he said. "Now the first grandchild, Tatiana Arujo, class of 1978, is here and has her eye set on veterinary school and there are 11 more grandchildren waiting to go here."

For that, the 76-year-old civil engineer, was made an honorary Aggie at one of the Aggie Musters held by his children in Bolivia since 1960.

Galindo explained that many Bolivian parents send their children to school in the United States "because we wish them to get a better education than they can get in Bolivia."

The family home is located in the valley region of the Andes, where Christian runs their engineering company and Eudoro Jr. heads a bicycle manufacturing plant.

Vivian is married and lives in Bryan.

Ramiro, who worked in Texas before returning to Bolivia to open an engineering firm, now has returned to the U.S. and formed the Braver Corporation of Bryan and Temple.

The senior Galindo met his first A&M president in 1964 when he, as a former professor and president at the University of San Simon, was chosen by the U.S. State Department to visit a number of U.S. universities and colleges in 1964. He had forced them to add A&M to the list of schools — which included Columbia, Harvard and Notre Dame — and he met General Earl Rudder.

This trip, Ramiro arranged for his father to meet with Texas A&M's new president, Dr. Jarvis Miller, who spent many years in Bolivia.

In a few weeks, Galindo says, he will return to Bolivia to start rounding up some new recruits for the university.

HIRE-IN This Week
Monday thru Friday

If you're looking for more than just a temporary job, look at Texas Instruments. This week we're having a special hire-in for electronic assemblers to work now through the holiday season. The job is temporary. The rewards are lasting. You'll make good money, enough to cover Christmas and then some. Make new friends. Have as a reference the world's leading electronics company. And you will have helped make life easier for people all over the world.

This week we're interviewing from 6 to 8 PM, Monday through Friday in addition to regular business hours. You can apply for a variety of shifts (there's premium pay for evening shifts). Come to our hiring center at North Loop 289 and University this week.

'Clean' Automobiles Closer Despite Many Delays

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
DETROIT (UPI) — It has been 25 years since automobiles were tagged as the chief cause of smog in the nation's industrial cities. It will be another 15 years before foul gases finally are eliminated from their tailpipes.

Many Americans can't understand why it has taken so long.

"We've got tremendous technology, we can send men to the moon and we've made tremendous advances in medicine," said John Tobin of Lisbon, Maine, where air pollution is not the problem it is in New York or Los Angeles.

Tobin, among average Americans queried in a nationwide UPI survey, speculated that "we could have a much better substitute for an engine than we have now" but the car makers "have set their own timetable."

"They're going to do things their own way," he said. "They're just not trying hard enough."

In 1970, years after government regulators determined that tailpipe emissions must be lessened, Congress decreed that stringent clean air laws should take effect in 1975. Detroit automakers claimed they needed 10 years instead of five and were able to delay the standards until 1981 in a classic business-government confrontation.

Asked if the auto industry would seek more delays, Ford Chairman Henry Ford II, known for his straightforward answers, said, "No."

"We'd like to stay out of Washington forever," said Chrysler Executive President R.K. Brown.

But it will be in the early 1990s before the 110 million cars on the road are "clean" because the average car life is just over 10 years, and the toughest standards don't take effect until 1981. In fact, there are millions of Americans still driving pre-1970 models with none of the built-in pollution controls Detroit and Congress have fought over.

In the past decade, Detroit lost the confidence of its customers, its word is of little weight in Washington and the 10-year skirmish over clean air standards has set the stage for similar confrontations over safety and fuel economy standards.

"In looking at it in hindsight, I don't know what we should have done differently," said E.M. "Pete" Estes, the engineer-president of General Motors Corp., the world's largest auto company.

Admitting the industry has a tremendous credibility problem, Estes said it is impossible to legislate technological advances.

"This is a thing that no one understands except some dirtyhands — engineers like me who have had their noses knocked off and have been burned a little bit a few times and are more careful in making predictions," Estes said in a recent interview.

"There are two ways to approach the problem. One is to be optimistic and fail, and the other is to be pessimistic and then beat your forecast."

"There is no way I know to hit the middle ground that everyone in Washington and everyone in the country would like us to do. And that's to be able to say: 'That's it. By 1983, we're going to be able to do this with fuel economy and that with cost and this with emissions.'"

"There is no way in God's world to do that. Sometimes we go over the top, and sometimes we fall flat on our face."

It all started a quarter of a century ago when the late Dutch-born Dr. Arle Jan Haagen-Smit of the California Institute of Technology labeled automobiles as the chief cause of the smog that blanketed Los Angeles.

He recounted later that he had "a lot of trouble getting people to accept this. They said it was absolute nonsense and impossible. And the auto industry had the opinion that it was all none of my business."

The three pollutants identified by scientists were carbon monoxide, unburned hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxide.

Hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide are the prime ingredients of photochemical smog, while high levels of carbon monoxide are believed to cause heart disease, create respiratory problems and impair driving ability.

In building the modern gasoline automobile engine — which critics claim has changed little in 40 years — scant attention was paid to emissions. Engineers were trying to get every ounce of power from the monstrously large V-8 powerplants.

Haagen-Smit said these engines did not burn all the gasoline fed into them. Some hydrocarbon fuel escaped into the hot, stagnant Los Angeles air, where it reacted with sunlight and formed smog.

Even the most modern engines, researchers found, had a "quench" zone — about .001 inches from the engine surface — where fuel wouldn't burn because it was cooler than the rest of the engine.

What escaped was only about .0001 per cent of the gas fed into the engine — "practically none at all," said one top automotive engineer.

With more than 100 million cars on the road, it amounts to a lot of pollution.

Early attempts to clean up pollutants consisted of trapping the gases in the engine itself. But it turned out that well over half of the harmful emissions were coming straight out the tailpipe.

The question then was not over the need to control the gases pouring out of the tailpipe, but on how much control was needed. Congress came up with standards in the 1970 Clean Air Act that, according to one auto executive, "were almost grabbed out of the air."

Based on then-current scientific studies which attempted to estimate what sort of clean air standards would be needed to bring the nation's air quality back to healthful levels, the Nixon administration in 1968 recommended goals to be achieved in 1980.

But Congress, pressed by Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, cut that in half, setting a timetable auto industry executives said was overly stringent and would not allow enough time to develop the necessary technology.

Top corporate executives spent almost as much time in Washington testifying before various committees and lobbying behind the scenes to win one delay after another, threatening at times to close down the nation's No. 1 industry. Their efforts were labeled "corporate blackmail."

Government officials repeatedly said Detroit was "crying wolf," and the United Auto Workers union, which represents 1.5 million auto workers and retirees, accused the industry and Congress of playing "brinkmanship."

"Each side is going to the brink on this issue, but the only people who will fall over are our members," UAW President Douglas A. Fraser said during the latest clean air overhaul in August. "The industry leaders will continue to collect their fat salaries whether they build cars or not."

Time, cost and need always have been the key auto industry arguments.

"We still don't feel we have a good history of the health situation and the effect of air pollution on health," said GM's Estes. "That's the key to the whole thing."

emissions did little for performance or fuel economy. As pollution was reduced, so were performance and mileage, and by 1974, new cars were hard to start, hard to drive and hard to keep filled with gasoline.

control of the engine — a move that could spawn a new electronics market topping the $2 billion annual mark by 1981.

By 1985, when fuel economy requirements mandate a fleetwide average of 27.5 miles per gallon and the tightened clean air standards, 10 per cent of the cost of an automobile could be for electronics, said Sydney L. Terry, Chrysler Corp. vice president for public responsibility and consumer affairs.

On-board computers will measure air temperatures, exhaust gases and other engine characteristics and constantly change the amount of air and fuel entering the carburetor to maintain a precise balance between clean air, fuel economy and performance.

They probably will be used to do such mundane operations as run the windshield wipers and tell you exactly how long the gasoline in the tank will last at the speed you're driving.

"The trip to the moon," GM's Estes said, "provided us with the knowhow for our little black boxes full of electronics."

With the rapid progress in electronics and the steadily dropping prices charged for electronic components, the GM president now estimates the toughest clean air standards set for 1981-model cars will exact no more than a 5 per cent fuel economy loss and an additional $100 to $140 cost to buyers.

Three months ago, GM's official position was a fuel economy penalty of 2 to 12 per cent under the 1981 law at a cost of $140 to $160.

Tomorrow: The Air Is Cleaner

First In A Series

"I don't think anyone has some solid health information that says this is where the automobile should be and this is where stationary sources (power plants and factories) should be to be most health effective, cost effective and energy effective."

"We feel, however, that with the current regulations, the automobile will be out of the problem — whatever the problem is."

The key to that problem was the catalytic converter, a muffler-like device using platinum and palladium to change hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide into harmless carbon dioxide and water. It allowed engineers to retune motors for fuel economy and performance while the "garbage can" caught the foul air.

The next step is the "three-way converter," which also will control oxides of nitrogen. Along with that will be increased use of electronics to offer precise

Carter Sometimes Discouraged

BELMONT, Mass. (UPI) — First Lady Rosalynn Carter says the President sometimes becomes frustrated and discouraged by the government in Washington.

"I think the slowness of programs moving through the process is very frustrating at times," Mrs. Carter told a news conference this week at the dedication of a new $3.2 million psychiatric research center.

UNDERGOES SURGERY
CINCINNATI (AP) — Comedian Shelley Berman's 12-year-old son, Joshua, has undergone surgery for a malignant brain tumor at Cincinnati Children's Hospital. Berman said this week the boy was admitted to the hospital in mid-September when Berman came to Cincinnati with the production of "Don't Drink the Water."

Asked if President Carter ever felt discouraged, Mrs. Carter replied: "Of course some things bother you, like the Bert Lance thing, but you do what you can."

Mrs. Carter also said basic research into the causes of mental illness is "crucial" and urged more support from the public.

The new Mallman Research Center at McLean Psychiatric Hospital will allow scientists from various fields to pool their knowledge and research efforts into mental illness, specifically schizophrenia.

The first lady also attended a $500-a-couple charity fund raising dinner at the Parker House in Boston, then flew to New York to join the President for his speech at the United Nations.

House Quietly Passes Pension Measure

By GENE BERNHARDT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — They've done it again, those Congressmen who are so concerned about Congress' public image and complain that the press always is taking a cheap shot at them.

For the first time in slightly more than a decade that this observer has covered the House, a bill was introduced and called up minutes later and passed by voice.

No reference to a committee for hearings, no debate, no explanation, no printed copies of the bill or an accompanying report, no record vote.

Even the venerable Congressional Record, in reporting the previous day's activities, showed only that Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., asked and got unanimous consent "for the immediate consideration of the bill H.R. 9282..."

It was done that way, with the obvious planning of the Democratic leadership and the silent acquiescence of the 70 or 80 members on the floor at the time, because it gave a one-shot increase in Con-gressmen's pensions to encourage the older members to retire and make room for younger blood.

It's the kind of thing that many members would say "the press would distort and not report objectively" if there had been public debate.

The purpose of the bill had merit. Even Common Cause, the citizens' lobbying group which has little favor among Congressmen, supported the objective. It's doubtful, however, that it supported the method of passage.

What it did was allow pensions for those retiring next year to be figured from the current salary base, rather than determining the base from the average of the three highest years' salaries, which now is law and which will resume in January, 1979.

For any House or Senate member retiring with the maximum pension, it means a one-time $3,426-a-year increase in his pension over what he would get under the regular system.

At last count, six Senators and 11 House members plan to retire next year, and another nine are seeking other offices and could come under the pension if they lose.

Dan Glickman, a freshman Democrat from Kansas, said he wasn't aware of what happened until he read about it the next day in his hometown newspaper.

"I was absolutely disgusted when I found out," said Glickman.

So were Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., and Martha Keys, D-Kan.

The three immediately introduced a resolution to amend the rules of the House "to require that measures affecting the salaries, freebies or emoluments of members or former members of Congress be adopted by roll call vote."

Glickman, in his freshman naivete, said, "As far as other members agreeing with this position, I think it would be very embarrassing if they don't go along with it."

What they pass so quietly in Congress, they also kill.

California Not Shortchanged, Senator Claims

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
WASHINGTON (AP) — Alan Cranston is worried that some Californians think they're being shortchanged in the Senate because their two senators often vote on opposite sides of issues.

The Constitution guarantees California two senators. It says nothing about whether or not they agree with each other. There's no question that Cranston, a liberal Democrat, and S.I. Hayakawa, a conservative Republican, often disagree.

"I keep hearing that each cancel each other out," said Cranston. The phrase "cancel each other out," bothers him because it implies that California ends up without a say on many issues.

Now, Cranston has come up with some statistics.

So far this year, he and Hayakawa have both been recorded on 306 roll calls. On 168 of those votes, 55 per cent, they disagreed. On the other 45 per cent they voted alike.

Cranston also noted that when they disagreed, he was on the winning side 71 per cent of the time.

"I'd just like to make the point, we don't cancel each other out," said Cranston.

ston. "one or the other view prevails." Cranston also noted that he and Hayakawa have been on the same side, more often than he thought they would.

Does this mean Cranston is becoming more conservative?

"Maybe, Sen. Hayakawa is getting more liberal," he said. "I don't know."

Only the bad guys filibuster. According to the dictionary, a filibuster is the tactic of using long speeches and introducing irrelevant issues as a means of obstructing legislative action.

For that reason, when a filibuster is imminent, senators begin talking about the possibility of "extended debate."

The start of the debate on the natural gas bill was one of those rare occasions when a couple of senators ignored the usual euphemisms and called a filibuster a filibuster.

Said Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska: "I do have the slight perception of the aroma of a filibuster, not that that is a bad aroma, but it is something that is coming into my senses. I hope I am wrong."

Representatives will also be a member of one or more special interest "caucuses."

There's the Black Caucus, the Women's Caucus and the Hispanic Caucus. Also the Rural Caucus and the Blue Collar Caucus.

The latest is the Steel Caucus composed of House members whose districts have ties to the steel industry.

Seventy members of Congress showed up at the first meeting of the Steel Caucus and elected Rep. Charles Carney, D-Ohio, chairman.

ma, but it is something that is coming into my senses. I hope I am wrong." Responded Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.: "I have detected since I have been in the Senate the last two and one-half years that filibusters only have an odor if you happen to be on the other side. And they smell quite differently to one who happens to be opposed to a measure that is about to go through."

It can't be too much longer before every member of the House of Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., decided he had a great idea for saving energy and reducing air pollution: take away the free parking now enjoyed by members of Congress and many federal employees.

The result would be to encourage car pooling and use of mass transit. It also would cut down on traffic congestion and air pollution.

"Energy efficiency begins at home," said Percy. "The place to spearhead the national energy conservation effort is right here in Washington."

Stirring words. But when Percy outlined his proposal at a meeting of his staff, he recalls, "It was the first time I've ever been booed by my staff."

His fellow senators weren't much friendlier. They rejected the Percy proposal by a vote of 56 to 26.

Some States Still Face Funds Curb

By WARREN E. LEARY
WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 10 of 22 states faced with a threatened withholding of $241 million in federal Medicaid funds have court orders to delay the action.

But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said this week that states not winning court intervention still face the possibility of having the money withheld Thursday.

The original cutoff date was Oct. 1, but HEW said over the weekend that withholding would not begin until Oct. 6.

HEW officials say they are obligated by a strict interpretation of the law to reduce federal matching funds for long-term care in nursing homes to states that failed to conduct annual reviews of facilities serving Medicaid recipients.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker on Friday issued a preliminary injunction barring the cutoffs for five states: Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Michigan argued that the law did not have to be interpreted so it required the cutoffs.

Raising similar arguments, California, Tennessee, North Carolina, Montana and Ohio won temporary restraining orders in federal court to forestall cutoffs while the courts consider more permanent injunctions.

An HEW spokeswoman said the department was unaware of how many other states, if any, had gone to court and how the cases might have been resolved.

Congress passed emergency legislation in July to forestall cutoffs to 20 states until after Sept. 30, hoping by then to change the law under which HEW acted.

Proposed changes passed the House last week and are now before a House-Senate conference committee, which must resolve differences between bills passed by both houses.

Although passage before the Thursday cutoff is unlikely, an HEW spokesman said, "the expectation within the department is that the legislation has a good chance of passage before adjournment of this session (set for Nov. 1)."

The government pays states quarterly for estimated Medicaid nursing home costs. After a quarterly accounting, HEW sends adjustment funds to make up the difference between actual costs and funds previously paid.

The agency is threatening to withhold these adjustment funds.

When HEW threatened to cut off $134.2 million for the first three months of 1977, due to be paid July 1, several states got court orders to block the move before Congress passed its temporary relief.

This first quarter money was paid, but would have to be refunded to HEW if states lose their court cases or Congress fails to act.

Meanwhile, a second group of states, including many from the first group, faced a second quarter withholding of $106.8 million, originally due to be paid Oct. 1.

States facing fund cutoffs for the first quarter are Alaska, California, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Wisconsin. Indiana was removed from this list when it subsequently met HEW requirements.

Elvis Visiting Time Slated

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fans of Elvis Presley will be permitted to walk through a garden at Graceland mansion to visit the gravesites of the singer and his mother beginning in mid-November.

Vernon Presley, the singer's father, said the gates of the estate will be opened from late morning to early afternoon in about four or five weeks.

During visiting hours, which have not been established, no one will be allowed "anywhere else on the grounds except the gravesite," he said. Security guards will be at the gravesites around the clock.

The copper coffin of the singer and Gladys Smith Presley were moved Sunday night in two white hearses without disruption from the mausoleum at Forest Hill Cemetery.

Officials estimate that more than one million people have visited Graceland since Presley died Aug. 16 of an apparent heart attack at age 42.

City Couples Thankful For Escape From Jet Fire

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two Lubbock couples consider themselves thankful and fortunate to be alive today after Sunday's narrow escape from a blazing DC8 jetliner at Ireland's Shannon Airport.

Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Bigham and Mr. and Mrs. Yancey Price were home Tuesday after a one-day delay at Shannon caused by the near disaster.

"It's hard to believe that everyone got out alive," said white-haired Mrs. Price, describing the aborted takeoff of a Capitol International Airways jet, which had stopped for refueling in Shannon shortly before midnight, on the last leg of a charter flight from Europe.

The takeoff was aborted after an engine on the starboard wing caught fire. The plane's pilot managed to stop the craft 200 yards from the end of the runway.

"We were told later that if the pilot had not been able to brake, within three seconds we would have been in the air or in the middle of the Shannon River," Price, general manager for Quicksall Pryor Co. here, said.

"It's just a miracle that the pilot realized that something was wrong and was able to stop the aircraft in time."

Mrs. Bigham continued the tale of the ordeal, which left 10 of the 250 passengers in Ireland under hospital care.

"First, I heard a mild explosion, and then I felt a jolting sensation. I knew something was wrong. Then, I saw the red flames; it was very frightening.

"My husband and I then crawled through the emergency exit and onto the left wing. My husband jumped off the wing onto the runway, and I followed leaping into his arms," Mrs. Bigham said — speaking more calmly than many people might who had had a close brush with possible death.

The Prices of 3408 58th St., were lucky and both able to make their escape by the rubberized emergency chutes.

The survivors immediately ran for a marshy field nearby, where they watched firefighters tackle the 30 foot flames.

The Lubbockites waited for an explosion but the blast never came as firefighters brought the blaze under control within minutes.

Bigham, owner of Bigham Battery and Electric, said he noticed that the jet's fuel was flowing away from the plane. "Otherwise there would have been a great holocaust."

"We were told later that the plane was evacuated in 90 seconds but it seemed to take so much longer," the former Air Force man said.

Looking back, Mrs. Bigham said that she made a risky decision in jumping off the plane's wing. "But, at the time, there was no decision; I think I would've jumped out the window.

"I just knew on the wing that I could get away. After all, a broken leg is better than no leg at all."

The Lubbockites had nothing but praise for the pilot and crew members. "All the people responsible for our safety worked so hard; one tiny stewardess even carried a man to safety," Price said.

The Texas tourists also lauded their treatment at Shannon. "The Irish just couldn't do enough for us," Mrs. Bigham said. "They were so very gracious."

The couples even found something positive to say about the harrowing experience. "It was the most horrible experience I've ever had," said Bigham of 7504 Canton Ave. But he continued that even "in a life or death situation like that, you make some awfully good friends."

Despite the confusion and fright that ensued at the fire scene, passengers were not too scared or wrapped up in their own troubles to look out for others, he indicated.

Another Lubbock couple on the flight, Mr. and Mrs. T. Middlebrook drove home from the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, where the replacement Capitol Airways charter plane had landed earlier in the day.

The tour travelers, mostly employees and customers of Bull's Auto Parts stores in Texas and Oklahoma, were returning from an eight-day vacation in Rome.

Officials in Ireland said Tuesday that a preliminary investigation revealed that a piece of metal from one of the wheels had sheared off and been thrown through a starboard fuel tank.

The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration said it had sent an investigator to the scene to aid Irish authorities in the probe of the near-disaster.

Officials in Washington said, however, that U.S. authorities cannot become officially involved in the investigation because the incident occurred in a foreign country.

Official Doubts Health Program Will Be Instituted Before 1982

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The deputy director of the American Medical Association told Lubbock media representatives Tuesday he doubts a national health insurance program will be instituted in this country before 1982.

Attorney Paul R.M. Donelan, in a press conference at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, said he sees "almost no interest in a national health insurance program in Congress," mainly because of the high cost of such a plan.

The AMA official said Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano currently is conducting national health insurance hearings in Washington and Donelan predicted the Carter administration would reveal its proposed insurance program next spring or summer.

Donelan said the AMA supports a federally funded medical insurance program, but does not approve of the plan proposed by Sen. Ted Kennedy.

The AMA proposes free medical care to the poor with the federal contribution based on the individual's income, Donelan said.

"Our proposed (national health insurance) program is a comprehensive one but one that builds on the present health system. Sen. Kennedy's plan proposes a complete reorganization of the country's health care system," Donelan said.

At the moment, however, the AMA's chief worry is the hospital cost containment legislation being considered by Senate and House subcommittees. Donelan said the legislation would in effect place price controls on hospitals — something the AMA feels would result in the reduction of service and patient care, and disrupt the country's health care system.

Both the Senate and House versions of the cost containment program are aimed at holding hospital price increases to nine per cent. Annual costs and expenses have been rising at about 15 per cent, hospital administrators say.

According to Donelan, the legislative program is having a "rocky time" in the Congressional committees because legislators are hesitant to implement price controls on just one industry.

The AMA is strongly opposed to putting any sort of "price cap" on hospitals, Donelan said. "The country is too big to have one single set of rules in operation for all hospitals."

HEW recently proposed 11 national guidelines for hospitals, including occupancy rates and ratio of beds to patients. If approved, the regulations would have the effect of legislation, Donelan said.

Two Groups Set Seminar On Credit

A seminar on the Equal Credit Opportunity Act will be sponsored by the Texas Tech University Center for Professional Development (CPD) and the Retail Merchants Association of Lubbock Oct. 20 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act is an amendment to a federal law enacted March 23, 1977, making it illegal to discriminate against an individual on the basis of race, sex, religion or creed. The law applies specifically to granting credit to individuals.

The seminar is for all credit grantors who are subject to the rules and regulations of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act and any person who has authority to make credit decisions, according to Mitchell Raiborn, CPD director.

Any business considering granting credit is urged to send representatives. Real estate lenders, banks and savings and loan institutions may not wish to send representatives because seminars for these institutions already have been conducted, Raiborn said.

The program will highlight such areas as counteroffers of credit, denial of credit, record retention and other applications of the general rules to commonly recurring situations in the extension of credit.

Bill Harriger, associate with the law firm of McClesky, Harriger, Brazil & Graf, will conduct the seminar.

Fee is $25 per participant, with every fifth person from the same firm attending at no charge.

For more information, or to register, contact the Center of Professional Development.

Students Can Apply For Scholarships

Texas Tech University undergraduate business administration students can apply now for three $200 scholarships offered by the Business Administration Council, according to Doug Conner, president.

Application forms are available in Room 172, Business Administration building. Students are asked to return completed applications by Oct. 25.

Scholarship recipients are chosen by faculty and students representing business administration organizations.

Recipients must have a 3.25 grade point average (GPA) over-all and a 3.25 GPA for the previous semester. Leadership and participation in campus activities also are criteria.

Flower Group Seeks Holiday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On Oct. 23, if all goes as planned, the United States will celebrate National Mothers-In-Law Day — without the official sanction sponsors hope to acquire before next year.

Ever alert for new occasions on which floral tributes might be appropriate, Florists' Transworld Delivery (FTD) discovered a distressing fact about mothers-in-law: few people send them flowers in that capacity. They might be smothered in posies as wives and mothers, but rarely as mothers-in-law.

So the organization took some soundings which indicated that — comedians' jokes to the contrary notwithstanding — most married people feel kindly toward their spouses' maternal parent.

FTD approached some members of Congress, and the group says it expects bills soon to be introduced to make the honoring of mothers-in-law an annual event by act of Congress.

Danger To Workers Reported In Study

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said this week a government study shows that one of every four U.S. workers is exposed on the job to some substance thought to be capable of causing death or disease.

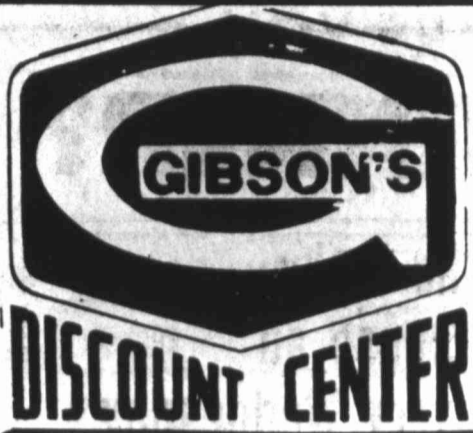

The Times said it obtained a copy of the survey conducted by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health between 1972 and 1974. The survey involved 4,636 plants with 985,000 workers in 67 metropolitan areas, the Times said.

According to the newspaper, the survey showed that less than 5 per cent of the places where people work have industrial hygiene services or active plans to reduce the exposure of employees to hazardous substances and physical conditions such as radiation or excessive noise.

The Times quoted the institute as saying the survey provided new evidence that exposure to chemical hazards was "pervasive in a large number of occupations" and that the availability of preventive services was "not what it should be, especially in the smaller firms."

The Times said the institute admitted there were some shortcomings in the study. It said the findings were three to five years old and added: "During that delay, federal regulations restricting some of the products have been strengthened and exposure to them may have declined."

Family Funds Now Seeking Outside Investments

By PHILIP GREER and MYRON KANDEL

Many of America's wealthiest families long have had private investment offices to manage their investments and handle other financial affairs. But the days when such operations carefully were shielded from public view may be coming to an end. The reasons are familiar to even the humblest American family: rising costs and the bite of taxes.

As family fortunes become dispersed by the death of older members, the scattering of younger ones and the inroads of estate levies, the investment offices face the need of replacing the lost funds or slowly withering away. Without the pros-

Already advertising its services in this field is the Phipps family's Bessemer Trust Co. in New York, which says it can be the answer "if the time and expense of running your own family office is becoming prohibitive."

Armstrong, who came to Starwood in 1960 as an analyst after serving as a corporate advertising executive and a member of the faculty at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, is particularly proud of his company's record of keeping as clients more than 100 descendants of Julius Rosenwald, who amassed his fortune by helping develop Sears, Roebuck & Co. "We've lost only one Rosenwald," Armstrong recalled, "and that was a very special situation."

Starwood's staff of 42 presently manages more than $150 million in funds for the family and a few selected outsiders, as well as providing such personal services as legal, accounting, tax, real estate, travel and even marital advice.

Armstrong has been president of Starwood since 1969, but a different member of the Rosenwald family, which owns the company, serves as chairman every two years. Julius Rosenwald III of Philadelphia currently holds the post.

Four years ago, in partnership with First Chicago Corp., Starwood made a somewhat similar effort to go after pension funds and wealthy individuals. But neither the bank holding company nor the family favored seeking new accounts actively, and the venture was terminated. This time, however, Armstrong said, pension fund accounts will be pursued vigorously.

In going after outside money, a family office must disclose its investment performance, which can be a painful experience. But this is another record to which Armstrong points with pride. Since 1960, he said, Starwood's tax-free funds (meaning pension and foundation funds, which pay no capital-gains taxes) had a compound annual return of 11 per cent, compared with 7 per cent for the Standard & Poor's 500 stock average, with all dividends reinvested in both cases.

Starwood, he said, tends to "substantially" out-perform the averages in down markets and to under-perform the averages in up markets. "Our philosophy," Armstrong explained, "is to go into the stock market when we think the total return — dividends plus capital appreciation — will be higher than the yield on high-quality, long-term bonds, and to get out when the bonds appear more attractive. It's difficult to reinvest in a hurry when stocks start to move up, and that's why we don't go up as much as the averages in a rising market." That investment philosophy is the key reason why Armstrong thinks $300 million in pension fund money is all Starwood should manage. "Otherwise," he said, "we'd lose our flexibility." Right now, he noted, the stocks in the Dow Jones industrial average are paying more than 5 per cent in dividends, while high-quality bonds are paying 8 per cent. "This means that if the market goes up only 3 per cent, we'll do better in stocks," he explained. "And we're looking for a rise of at least 10 per cent. That would give us a 15 per cent return."

Business News

pects of future growth, talented portfolio managers, lawyers, accountants and other specialists cannot be recruited and retained, and costs begin to outrun income.

With that in mind, one of the most effective, though little-known, family investment operations has decided — after abandoning an earlier effort three years ago — to embark on an aggressive policy of finding outside funds to manage. Starwood Corp., the New York-based investment adviser to the Rosenwald family since 1929, is looking for $300 million in corporate pension fund money. A real marketing effort has not yet begun, but Starwood already has lined up $30 million during the past six months.

"Every family office will have to do something similar if it wants to continue to offer quality services," Raymond J. Armstrong, Starwood's president, told us. "As older family members die and enormous estate taxes eat into capital, an office will have to obtain outside funds to stay alive and be able to hire skilled people."

"Even the Rockefellers face the same problem," he added, noting that David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, had come by to discuss the future of family investment offices.

Panama's Threats Cited By Sen. Dole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Dole said today that the proposed Panama Canal treaty should not be approved by the Senate unless the pact is amended to make clear that the United States can send military forces into the canal area if the waterway is threatened.

The Kansas Republican on Tuesday released a confidential diplomatic cable from the U.S. embassy in Panama that said proves that Panamanian leaders reject the Carter administration's claim that the United States could intervene militarily to defend the canal under the new treaty's language.

Appearing today with the cable before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Dole said that Panamanian officials "must know that we reserve all rights to intervene when the security of the canal is threatened, and that we expect priority passage for our ships during periods of crisis."

"They must be told that we expect to see substantial progress in the area of human rights and that we expect to share a reasonable, but not exorbitant amount of the canal tolls with them."

The cable quotes a Panamanian negotiator as warning American leaders to stop using the word "intervention" when describing their rights under the treaty.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, a treaty supporter, said Dole's view of the cable is irrelevant. "Everybody is going to have an interpretation that suits his particular purpose. What will determine whose interpretation is right, is the amount of muscle we have," he said.

The defense sections of the treaty — drafted by U.S. military advisers to the talks — were cited in the cable from the deputy chief of the American embassy in Panama, Ray Gonzalez.

Dole said the cable proves Panama would not allow American military forces to defend the canal's neutrality after it is turned over in the year 2000.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, U.S. negotiator Sol Linowitz and Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have all said the pact would allow the United States to take any action it thought necessary to keep the waterway open.

The cable, received by the State Department last Thursday, summarizes a conversation between a political counselor and Panamanian negotiator Carlos Lopez Guevara, who was described as "disturbed over some of the testimony" by Vance and Linowitz.

The cable quoted the Panamanian as saying that "intervention is simply forbidden by international law. Panama cannot agree to the right of the U.S. to intervene."

The message said he urged U.S. officials to stop using the term in describing the treaty.

While the treaty gives U.S. military forces the main responsibility for defending the canal against threats to its neutrality, it does not use the word "intervention."

In testimony Tuesday, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a leader of the treaty opponents, said the defense provisions are vague and possibly gave the United States no rights at all.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., disagreed. "We have a permanent right to intervene," he said.

Hollings also said the treaty provisions, in effect, tie Panama to an alliance with the United States when, at present, the country is open to ties with the Soviet Union, Cuba or China.

in the 80's Saturday and Sunday. Tuesday's showers in the city added an official .26 of an inch to Lubbock's rainfall total, making it 15.47 inches for the year. The figure trails last year's 18.16 by a sizable margin, but is only slightly behind the 15.91 average for the date.

Rainfall was widespread but generally over the area Tuesday. Top readings on the South Plains were at Abernathy and Levelland, with .30 of an inch.

Tempers Flare At Davis Trial

AMARILLO (AP) — A prosecutor drew a courtroom reprimand today after he volunteered a remark concerning millionaire Cullen Davis' affair with his blond girl friend, Karen Master.

The outburst occurred as a defense lawyer was questioning state witness Beverly Bass about the relationship between Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, and her slain lover, Stan Farr.

Richard "Racehorse" Haynes repeatedly asked Miss Bass, 19, when it was that Farr moved in with Mrs. Davis at the defendant's Fort Worth mansion.

"I don't know how long he lived there, I really don't," Miss Bass exclaimed finally.

Prosecutor Tolly Wilson arose at that point and said: "Perhaps it might help the witness recall if she related it to the time the defendant moved in with Karen Master."

Even before Haynes could complete his angry objection, the trial judge admonished Wilson and told him "We won't have that kind of statement again."

Wilson apologized and the judge ordered the jury to disregard the remark.

Haynes earlier asked Miss Bass, who twice fled the courtroom in tears Tuesday, if she had taken a "mood modifier such as Valium" to help prepare her for today's testimony.

"No sir," she replied. Miss Bass broke down Tuesday after a prosecutor showed her a police photograph of a slain 12-year-old shooting victim, the defendant's stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

Miss Bass, who testified she spent the afternoon before the shooting shopping with Andrea, lost her composure when asked to identify the body of the girl in the photo.

State District Judge George Dowlen twice recessed Davis' murder trial before concluding Miss Bass was emotionally unable to continue and halted the proceedings for the day.

Prosecutors assisted the blond Fort Worth coed from the courtroom on both occasions, the first time as she wept softly, the second with tears flowing down her cheeks.

Both incidents occurred in the presence of the jury.

The emotional interlude delayed cross-examination of Miss Bass, who earlier Tuesday had repeatedly identified Davis as the gunman who shot down her boyfriend Gus "Bubba" Gavrel Jr., 22.

Davis, 44, is on trial for the Aug. 2, 1976, slaying of his stepdaughter, the first to die in a midnight shooting spree that left another dead and two wounded.

The defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, was wounded and her lover, Stan Farr, 30, was killed in the gunfire.

Before the photograph incident, Miss Bass neared the end of her direct examination by recounting her escape from the $6 million mansion with a gunman in pursuit.

She said she eluded the "man in black" in the darkness and flagged down a motorist who took her to a nearby convenience store, where police and ambulances were summoned.

It was there, she said, that she met patrolman Jim Soders, who drove her back to the mansion where Gavrel lay critically wounded. Farr and Andrea were dead. Mrs. Davis had fled to a neighbor's home, a bullet wound in her chest.

After laying a delicate legal base, a prosecutor asked Miss Bass what she told Soders.

"I told him the man who owned the big white house, Cullen Davis, had just shot my boyfriend," she said.

"I told him I had known Cullen for a long time and that I saw his face. I told him he (Davis) was getting a divorce and that there was some more people in the house."

"I told him that Priscilla was in the house, that Stan was in the house and that Andrea was in the house."

The prosecutor asked Miss Bass if she could tell the jury how she knew who was there that night, and she replied: "I had taken Andrea shopping with me that day," she said. "And I saw Stan and Priscilla that night and they told me they were going to the house and I would see them there."

Her story corroborated a previous account of the conversation by Soders, who testified outside the jury's presence. But Dowlen ruled Tuesday Soders' testimony could be repeated for the jury.

Count Affirms Vote Outcome

SLATON (Special) — Slaton school trustees Tuesday night officially canvassed the 1,108 ballots cast here in Saturday's $3.8 million school bond issue.

Their count agreed with Saturday's tally, which indicated that the issue, aimed at renovating several Slaton schools, had passed by only a 10-4 vote margin.

School board members approved the Saturday tally of 559 votes for the issue and 549 votes against it.

Edwin Knight, business manager for the Slaton schools, said today that thus far, no one has come forward to officially contest the vote.

Renovations on the schools are slated to start in March.

U.S., Israel Map Plans For Parley that all understanding between the two governments regarding the Geneva conference "remain in force." This refers to a 1975 U.S. pledge not to change any meaning of the U.N. resolutions.

In Jerusalem, Israel expressed satisfaction today over assurances given by President Carter that the U.S. Soviet statement on the Middle East would not be used as a new basis for reconvening the Geneva peace conference.

Carter's assurances to Dayan in New York ended the alarm that gripped Israel because it feared pressure by Washington to accept the Palestine Liberation Organization as a negotiating partner in the talks and a Palestinian state on its eastern frontier.

"We view with satisfaction the assurances given and the statement this morning has raised hopes and therefore it is viewed with satisfaction," a Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

A government source said Israel is awaiting a working paper drawn up by Washington containing U.S. proposals for convening Geneva II. He said he expected the cabinet to be called into session before its regularly scheduled meeting Sunday to decide on those proposals.

Carter and Dayan released a brief joint statement following more than three hours of talks about Israel's opposition to the Soviet-American statement issued Saturday.

A government source said Israel's sharp criticism of Washington following the Soviet-American communique, nevertheless, "is still valid."

Civic Center Board Sets Tech Talks

The Civic Center Board Thursday will consider naming a subcommittee to negotiate an agreement with Texas Tech for money to cover city maintenance costs of the Auditorium-Coliseum parking lot.

The board will meet at 11:45 a.m. in the Terrace Suite of the Memorial Civic Center.

Since 1961, the city has allowed Tech to use the approximately 1,490 spaces for student parking. The university charges the students for the spaces, and collects about $60,000 annually, according to board estimates.

Annual maintenance on the lot costs about $8,000, Coliseum Director Dottie Townsend said.

A board member said the group will seek to collect enough money from the university to at least cover that annual cost.

Two years ago the board tried to work out an agreement with Tech, but "no one was interested" because of the uncertain status of the Indiana Avenue extension, the member said. The project was forgotten until this month, he added.

The board also will consider recommending to the city council that the dressing rooms at the Coliseum be refurbished.

Japanese Official Quits Under Fire

TOKYO (AP) — The government has decided to ask Algeria to return the five hijackers of the Japanese airliner last week and the $6 million and six imprisoned terrorists they collected as ransom, Tokyo newspapers reported today.

The government, meanwhile, announced the resignation of Justice Minister Hajime Fukuda and said he was assuming responsibility for the decision to free the six prisoners to meet the hijackers' demands.

Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda accepted the resignation today and named Mitsuo Setoyama, a former construction minister, to the justice post.

The outgoing minister had announced his intention to quit after the six terrorists were released on Saturday, but waited for the end of the hijacking to submit his resignation.

Algeria allowed the hijacked Japan Air Lines DC8 jet to land in Algiers Monday at Japan's request, and took the 11 Japanese Red Army terrorists into custody after convincing them to free their last 19 hostages.

The newspaper reports said cabinet ministers argued heatedly at a meeting late Tuesday before deciding to seek the return of the money and the 11 terrorists.

Algeria in the past has confiscated ransom moneys extorted by hijackers and returned them to the governments that paid them. But it has allowed the hijackers to slip out to another country after a few days in custody to resume their careers of terrorism.

U.S. Backs Curb On Oil Imports

PARIS (AP) — The International Energy Agency proposed today imposing a target for its 19 member countries limiting their collective import of OPEC oil to 26 million barrels per day by 1985.

U.S. Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said, "We strongly endorse it."

Asked whether he felt the target, 5 to 6 million barrels a day less than earlier IEA forecasts for 1985, was achievable, Schlesinger said:

"It is not only achievable, but it is not even clear that there will be enough oil available in 1985."

"We can either plan on achieving this target, or we will be forced to by restraint and duress."

He added: "Duess is lack of supply. There may be no more than 26 million barrels available to the IEA nations in 1985." IEA imports of OPEC oil now run 22 million barrels per day.

Stephan W. Bosworth, State Department adviser on the U.S. delegation to a two-day meeting of IEA energy ministers, said, "It is achievable provided everyone does what they have to do, including us."

Alastair Gillespie, chairman of the IEA governing board as well as Canada's energy, mines and resources minister, proposed the 26 million-barrel target to the ministers, saying:

"If our decisions are to have significance, they must be based on a searching and very uncomfortable examination of the energy world in which we live..."

"We will be considering the merits of imposing on ourselves a collective import target for 1985 of 26 million barrels a day."

Schlesinger told the opening session of a two-day meeting of energy ministers of the 19 nations that President Carter's national energy plan is broadly consistent with the agency's principles of energy policy.

"The United States consequently can credibly assume a share of the burden in attaining the IEA group import objectives," he said.

Airline Follows Lead In Slash Of State Fares

More bargain-rate air fares soon will become available for Lubbock commercial airline passengers.

Texas International Airlines today announced government approval of a TIA plan to cut ticket prices to several points in the state by as much as 50 per cent.

Affected by the "peanuts" fares, as TIA has dubbed them, will be selected flights between Lubbock and Austin, and Lubbock and Houston.

The fare reductions are scheduled to go into effect on Nov. 12.

"Peanuts" fares for flights between Lubbock and Austin and Houston will be $25 and $40, depending on flight times, saving round-trip Austin travelers up to $90 or 50 per cent and saving round-trip Houston fliers up to $74 or 50 per cent.

The airline filed the "peanuts" fares proposal with the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, D.C., on Aug. 12.

Other Texas points included in the airlines' plan to receive the cut-rate prices for the first time are Amarillo, Beaumont-Port Arthur and Wichita Falls.

The new low rates match the budget fares first brought to Lubbock by Southwest Airlines.

Continental Airlines dropped some rates to match Southwest's on May 20, the first day of the commuter service's flights here.

Walker Gets Probated Sentence

SNYDER (Special) — Dist. Judge Wayland Holt has handed Post attorney and oilman Pat N. Walker a three-year probated sentence on a theft conviction.

Walker, long a controversial figure in Post because of his frequent squabbles with town leaders, filed a notice of appeal on the case.

If the felony conviction stands, he faces possible disbarment by the State Bar.

Walker was convicted on the theft-by-exercising-control charge by a Scurry County jury in September. It was the second time a jury here had tried the case on a charge of venue from Post.

The first jury also convicted him, but the 132nd District Court judge later declared a mistrial and ordered a new hearing.

Walker and an oil business partner, James Kennedy of Post, were accused of illegally appropriating about 8,000 pounds of scrap iron belonging to Erwin Young for their use in some oil operations about two years ago.

Young, formerly of Post and now a Colorado resident, testified that no formal agreement had been reached between himself, Walker and Kennedy for sale of the scrap iron.

Walker, however, contended Young had given his consent for the iron to be picked up and that he had taken it and used it in construction of a drilling rig platform.

The first Snyder jury in May deliberated about three hours before finding Walker guilty and acquitting Kennedy.

The jury last month deliberated about 7½ hours before convicting Walker a second time.

Walker is a former county judge in Garza County.

Last year, he generated ire in Post by representing two women, former sheriff's department employees, who instigated a special grand jury investigation of then Sheriff Gene Gandy.

Gandy was sheriff at the time a grand jury indicted Walker on the theft-by-exercising-control charge.

Walker faced a possible two-to-10-year jail term and a maximum $5,000 fine on the charge.

'Western Day' Set Thursday At City Plant

A "Western Day" on Thursday at Texas Instruments, Inc., will kick off the plant's month-long United Way fund-raising campaign, with TI's 3,000 employees dressing up in western wear and eating a ranch-style lunch in the cafeteria.

The official opening of the drive will be at 10 a.m. in the plant cafeteria with Bill McAllister, city councilman and owner and president of KMCC-TV, speaking. The citywide UW campaign kicked off at noon today at the Memorial Civic Center.

The final report on all UW drives will be made Oct. 28, according to Rosa Walston, co-chairman of TI's campaign.

Miss Walston said the plant's campaign slogan will be "Head 'em up, move 'em out... the United Way." The goal this year, she said, is raising $100,000 in contributions compared to last year's mark of $70,000.

Gordon Chilton, campaign chairman at TI, said employees will participate heavily in the fund raising and will take part in next week's bus tours visiting several of the local UW-funded agencies.

Selection Of Jurors Continues In Trial

Five jurors had been chosen shortly before noon today to serve in the David Mabra capital murder trial, moved here from Amarillo on a change of venue.

Mabra, 20, of Amarillo is accused of the Oct. 21, 1975, shotgun slaying of convenience store clerk Edith Whitfield. The case was moved to Judge John R. McFall's 237th District Court after a co-defendant received the death penalty from an Amarillo jury.

If Mabra is found guilty of the capital charge, he will receive either death or life imprisonment, the only punishment open to jurors after a capital conviction.

Burke Mathes left Plainview in the 1920s to join his brother in his Los Angeles law firm. His brother preceded him in death.

Survivors include Mathes' wife, Faye Mahan Mathes.

James Miller

Services for James B. Miller, 68, a Lubbock resident since 1968, will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in the W.W. Rix Chapel with the Rev. Morris James, pastor of Forrest Heights United Methodist Church, officiating.

Another service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the George J. Carrol Funeral Home Chapel in Gainesville, with burial in the Callisburg Cemetery in Callisburg.

Miller died at 1:50 p.m. Tuesday at Quaker Manor.

He owned and operated Miller Drug at Valley View from 1918 to 1960. He was a Mason and member of the Texas Pharmaceutical Association and Forrest Heights United Methodist Church.

Survivors include three sons, James B. Jr. of Lubbock, David of Richmond, Calif., and Royce of Las Vegas, Nev.; a daughter, Mary O. Miller of San Francisco, Calif.; a brother, John of Lubbock; three sisters, Mrs. Ina Grundy and Jan Miller, both of Lubbock, and Mrs. Margaret Green of Clovis; four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Spikes

RALLS (Special) — Services for Nellie Witt Spikes, 89, of Ralls, Crosby County pioneer and historian, will be at 10 a.m. Thursday at Ralls First United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Dick Richards, pastor, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. C.O. Haile, pastor of Cone Baptist Church.

Burial will be in Ralls Cemetery under direction of Carter Funeral Home.

Mrs. Spikes died at 1 p.m. Tuesday in Crosbyton Clinic Hospital after a lengthy illness.

A native of Weatherford, she came to Crosby County in an on-drawn wagon in 1892. She attended school at Old Emma where her father, John Marion Witt, operated a general store, and later studied in Plainview, Amarillo and Panhandle Christian College at Hereford.

She married J.J. "Jeff" Spikes in Hereford in 1906.

For many years, Mrs. Spikes wrote a weekly column, "As A Farm Woman Thinks," that appeared in several area newspapers. With her sister-in-law, the late Mrs. Temple Ellis, she co-authored "A History of Crosby County," a work acknowledged by the Texas State Historical Survey Commission and Texas Historical Foundation.

Mrs. Spikes was a member of the Ralls First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Wilda Laminack of Ralls and Mrs. Wilma Wheeler of Cone; two brothers, Joe Witt of Amarillo and Jim Witt of Lubbock; three sisters, Mrs. Carl Hill of Amarillo, Mrs. Lois Tubbs and Mrs. Josephine Wadsworth, both of Lubbock; seven grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren. A son, Dr. L.W. Spikes, died in 1973.

Pallbearers will be Sammy Bounds, Adrian Taylor, Percy Eason, Edmond Crump, Silas Wheeler, Gene McLaughlin, Dr. T.H. Holmes and Dan James.

Body Of Girl Found In Pit

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas County medical authorities early today examined a decomposed body to determine whether it is that of a 12-year-old Denton girl missing since Sept. 25.

Denton Police Chief Robert Mills said the clothing on the body, discovered Tuesday by two women fishing in a gravel pit in East Oak Cliff, fit the description of clothing worn by Susie Magee when she disappeared from a shopping center late last month.

Mills said police "know a lot more than we knew a week ago" about the case, but said no new leads had surfaced.

Dental records were to be used in the identification process, according to local police.

Remember too that your husband is now in Heaven, and has been delivered from all the problems of this life. This fact should bring comfort and peace to your heart. That is why we "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope" (I Thessalonians 4:13).

Someday you will go to be with your husband in Heaven. But God is with you now, and He has His purposes in keeping you on this earth. Ask Him to show you what these purposes are. When you become active in serving Christ, your grief and loneliness will begin to fade.

Witness Tells Jurors Version Of Stabbing

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

After a pretrial dress rehearsal Monday, star witness Felix Ybarra today told a jury his version of events surrounding the Dec. 31, 1976, disappearance of Max Stone.

Ybarra — testifying in the aggravated robbery trial of Victor Briones — said Briones had stabbed Stone, robbed him of a wallet and gold watch and asked Ybarra if he wanted to help bury the alleged victim.

Stone, 42, was last seen by acquaintances Dec. 30. His parents, who live in Dallas, indicated they kept in close contact with their son and have told inquirers they think he is dead.

In trying to secure an aggravated robbery conviction against Briones, Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Darnell is relying heavily on Ybarra's testimony, delivered today before the jury in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th Dist. Court in halting English.

Darnell revealed to the jury, through an introductory question, that Ybarra, 22, has been promised a 10-year probated sentence in return for taking the stand.

Both Ybarra and Briones, 26, of Floydada, were indicted for aggravated robbery after a lengthy investigation in which authorities combed an area south of Lubbock in search of Stone's body, but found nothing.

Ybarra told jurors he and Briones agreed to drive a man whom he identified as Stone, from a bar near the Brownfield Highway early Dec. 31 after the bar management reportedly threatened to have the man jailed for being drunk.

"Victor said not to take him to jail, he was going to drive him home," Ybarra said.

According to Ybarra's account, Briones told him in the bar parking lot that he planned to rob Stone.

"I never said nothing," Ybarra stated. "The witness claimed, in a story that contradicts a written statement by Briones earlier introduced into evidence, that he followed Briones and Stone to a rural dirt road.

When he stopped his vehicle, Ybarra said he saw Briones beating Stone inside Stone's car.

"What I see, I see old Max Stone had his lip busted and had a lot of blood on him," Ybarra said.

Ybarra then stated Briones had stabbed Stone.

"Did you see him stab him?" Darnell asked.

Ybarra hesitated for several seconds before finally saying, "Yes, sir."

The witness claims Briones stabbed Stone in the left side two or three times. When Darnell asked Ybarra to illustrate the motion of the knife with a ballpoint pen, Ybarra again hesitated before finally making short, upercut type gestures.

Ybarra said Stone pleaded to him for help, but he said he was afraid to help because Briones had allegedly threatened him. "He told me he was going to do the same thing to me," Ybarra, who appears much larger than the defendant, said.

Ybarra apparently had difficulty understanding many of Darnell's questions, and court-appointed defense attorney Tomas Garza successfully objected several times that the prosecutor was leading the witness.

In evidence Tuesday, a statement signed by Briones was introduced in which the defendant gave a different version of events.

Briones claimed Ybarra took a wallet from the third man, and that he, Briones, had left the man standing unharmed in an area near some oil wells.

According to the statement signed by Briones, he and Ybarra, who, he said, is his wife's nephew, met a man in a bar who asked them to take him home because he was drunk.

The defendant's statement said, however, that he, driving the stranger's car, followed Ybarra — called by the nickname "Pondo" in the document — to a remote spot outside of town. Ybarra had testified that he followed Briones.

Once at the area near the oil wells, Briones said in the statement, Ybarra got inside the car with him and the third man and took possession of the man's wallet.

Briones said the man had asked "for us" to take the wallet and to let him go.

According to the statement, after Ybarra took the wallet, he and the stranger got out of the car. Ybarra got back inside his own car, Briones' statement claims, leaving him and the man standing there.

Briones said Ybarra hadn't given him time to get inside Ybarra's vehicle, so he drove off in the stranger's car.

"The white man had asked me not to leave him there," the statement says.

Briones said in the statement that the next thing he remembered was being arrested for allegedly being drunk inside the man's vehicle.

Testimony by policemen Larry Manley and Claude Jones indicated Briones was arrested about 4:20 a.m. Dec. 31, inside Stone's car parked in the 300-block of E. 34th Street.

"He was passed out in a very drunken condition," Manley said.

"We had to work quite a while even to get him to come to."

A pill bottle was found on the front seat with Max Stone's name on it, Manley stated. He also said a routine check of the vehicle at the time showed it was registered to Stone. The vehicle was impounded.

Testimony indicated it was only later, after Stone's parents had filed a missing person's report, that officers remembered the incident. A theft warrant for Briones was reportedly issued Jan. 14.

In other evidence Tuesday, Darnell continued to try to link Briones with the gold watch which allegedly belonged to Stone.

The missing man's mother, Mrs. H.L. Stone of Dallas, identified the watch as one given her son by her husband shortly before Christmas.

Darnell then elicited testimony from Juan Proa, Briones' father-in-law, that Briones had given him such a watch about the first of the year.

The watch which prosecutors assert was stolen from Stone was ultimately traced by Sheriff's Deputy J.B. Douglas to Altus, Okla., testimony indicated, where it was reportedly at the home of another of Proa's relatives.

The officers will attend an area leadership conference Nov. 5 in Hereford.

Steven Kyle Compton, 16, of 4513 47th St. was in serious condition late today in St. Mary's Hospital with injuries he suffered Sept. 4 in a fatal five-car collision on Slide Road.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband recently passed away. I am a Christian, but I am almost overwhelmed by loneliness and grief. What can I do? — T.L.

DEAR T.L.: It is clear you and your husband had a close relationship in your marriage, and you should be thankful for this. Now that he is gone, it is not strange that you feel his loss keenly. It is not necessarily wrong for you to grieve the loss of your husband. Jesus, you will recall, wept at the tomb of His friend, Lazarus (see John 11:34-36). I am glad Hebrews 4:15 says "For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities." Jesus Christ completely understands our problems and burdens. That is why you can come to Him, "casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (I Peter 5:7).

Remember too that your husband is now in Heaven, and has been delivered from all the problems of this life. This fact should bring comfort and peace to your heart. That is why we "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope" (I Thessalonians 4:13).

Someday you will go to be with your husband in Heaven. But God is with you now, and He has His purposes in keeping you on this earth. Ask Him to show you what these purposes are. When you become active in serving Christ, your grief and loneliness will begin to fade.

Train Chefs Use Wood Stoves

By JOY TOPPIN

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Grandma wouldn't be baffled in the kitchen of a gleaming red, silver and blue Amtrak train speeding across the country. She was an artist at turning out wholesome meals on wood-burning, cast-iron stoves — and so are many Amtrak cooks.

The stoves are standard on most of Amtrak's older dining cars — the ones inherited in 1971 when the National Railroad Corp. took over most of the country's passenger service from private railroads.

Barbara Halliday, an Amtrak spokeswoman in Washington, D.C., said some of the dining cars are more than 30 years old, and many of the cooks were inherited with the cars.

An Amtrak chef, using a stove filled with flaming pressed-wood logs, must have a quick eye and a sharp nose because the stoves have no temperature controls.

"Once you get it hot, you just know when to add one more log at a time to maintain the temperature," said Ulysses Harper, one of Amtrak's chefs, as he sweated over a stove on a run between San Francisco and Denver.

Amtrak started operations with 286 diesel and 40 electric locomotives and 1,275 cars, all bought or leased from existing railroad lines. During the past six years, Amtrak has spent or committed $582.7 million to buy new equipment.

The newer Amfleet kitchens operate on electric power provided by the locomotive. Individual meals are prepared by a caterer and frozen on the train. The food later is heated in a modern oven.

Later this year, Amtrak will begin to use the first of its new bi-level Superliner cars, the first long-distance passenger cars to be built in the United States in decades, Miss Halliday said.

Each Superliner will have an electric kitchen with microwave and standard ovens, an electric grill, toaster, coffeemaker and warming table. Superliner kitchens will be on the lower level of the dining car, while dining passengers will sit on the upper level.

Turbocafes on the French-designed Turboliners also have modern cooking equipment. Coach passengers order over a counter and dine at their seats on fold-down tables. The Turboliners are used primarily in New York State, Amtrak said.

Ronald Humble, an Amtrak reservation agent in Los Angeles, said menus vary with each line, though some standard dishes are available.

Red snapper, for example, is a special item on the Sunset route between Los Angeles and New Orleans, he said. And passengers taking the Southwestern route between Los Angeles and Chicago or the San Francisco Zephyr to Chicago may order Colorado trout for dinner.

Humble said breakfasts are priced up to $3.75, with lunches from $3 to $4.50 and dinner from $4.50 to $7.

Humble said it's customary for the diner to write his or her order instead of giving it verbally to the steward. He said the custom began about 100 years ago when many of the waiters aboard trains could not read or write. He said they took the written orders to a headwaiter who would call them out to the chef.

Amtrak estimates that about 70 percent of the passengers riding the trains also will buy food during their trip. They will satisfy their hunger while swaying to the gentle motion, rhythm and sounds of wheels clicking over steel rails.

Residents Stress Housing

By SYLVIA TEAGUE and PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Central and Southwest Lubbockites Tuesday listed housing rehabilitation, sidewalk repair, a daycare center and a shelter for battered wives as top priority projects for $4.5 million in federal Community Development funds.

The residents represented sectors three and five in the second night of neighborhood meetings designed to gather public input into possible fourth-year Community Development projects.

Meetings will continue Thursday, and all suggestions will be forwarded to the Community Development Advisory Committee, which will rank ideas according to priority and recommend a program to the city council.

The approximately 35 people representing sector three, or central Lubbock, Tuesday night divided their priority projects into two areas.

One group, representing the Overton South Addition, ranked as its top priorities a park for the area, the upgrading of substandard housing and sidewalk repair. Also mentioned were a fire station at 22nd Street and Avenue X, more police protection and stricter zoning code enforcement.

For the group representing the area bounded by University Avenue, 19th Street, Indiana Avenue and 34th Street, zoning code enforcement ranked as the number one priority.

That group also voted for housing rehabilitation and sidewalk repair for the elderly as the second-most pressing need, while historic preservation and improving the low water pressure problem in the area tied for third priority.

Although rejecting a plea by Mrs. Simone Gordon that funds be recommended for a shelter for battered wives, the group formally voted to suggest to the city council that bond funds be used for the facility.

However, the group never specified what bond funds should be used.

At the sector five meeting at Haynes Elementary School, only six residents showed up to represent Southwest Lubbock.

However, those six listed a shelter for battered wives and their children as their foremost recommendation.

A daycare center, the development of a downtown Mexican-American business mall and rehabilitation of low and moderate income housing were cited as additional projects to be considered for the federal funds.

Two residents from the Women's Protective Service of Lubbock pointed out the shelter might prevent abused women from having to go on welfare because shelter staff could offer the women job counseling and referrals.

"The police often don't know what to do with these women," one woman resident said.

Susan Gunn, assistant Community Development coordinator for the city, told the group the shelter could be funded with CD money if it could be statistically proven that 51 per cent of the persons using the service were from low and moderate income families.

One resident, in urging that CD funds be used to help finance a Mexican-American shopping mall downtown, said the project would have a triple impact because it would "attract conventions to Lubbock, revitalize downtown and economically benefit Mexican-American citizens."

Neighborhood meetings beginning at 7:30 p.m. Thursday include:

— Sector one, Matthews Junior High, 417 N. Akron Ave.

— Sector two, Posey Elementary, 1301 Redbud Ave.

— Sector four, Parsons Elementary, 2811 58th St.

60 Indicted Include Slaton Rape Suspect

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Accused sex offender Herbert Lee Trotty was indicted by a Lubbock County grand jury Tuesday on two separate charges stemming from the alleged Sept. 13 rape of a Slaton woman.

The indictments were among 60 true bills returned by jurors late Tuesday to Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th Dist. Court.

Included among true bills were four murder indictments. Six persons were accused of aggravated robbery, and one man was indicted for allegedly threatening a witness during a recent jury trial.

Trotty, 24, of Slaton, was indicted twice, for alleged aggravated rape and for alleged burglary of a habitation with intent to commit rape.

The Slaton complainant told investigators she and her four-year-old nephew had been shopping and returned to her home to find an intruder.

She said the man was standing in a bedroom with a multi-colored blanket over his head.

According to the complainant, the man placed the blanket over her head, put the small boy inside a bathroom and then led her into a bedroom where he allegedly raped her.

Trotty earlier was charged in connection with the alleged Aug. 10 rape of a Spur woman. Investigating officers had said they believed the Slaton and Spur rapes might have been committed by the same man because of similarities reported by the complainants.

Murder indictments were returned against Alfredo Tio Delgado, 26, of 3017 E. 3rd Place; Ralph Aicidic Hernandez, 18, of 1117 40th St.; Esperanza Flores, 30, of 910 E. 35th St. and Stewart Hawkins Jr., 41, of 2605-D Weber Dr.

Delgado is accused of the Sept. 10 bar-room slaying of Pedro Flores Gomez. Gomez was found sprawled beside a pool table inside a club at 4th Street and Avenue H about 4 p.m. Witnesses said he had been playing pool and was shot after either three or four men came through the bar's backdoor.

Gomez, 31, of 406 Ave. D, died less than an hour later at a local hospital from a gunshot wound in the heart.

Hernandez is accused of shooting Manuel R. Garcia to death Sept. 23.

Garcia, 25, of 907-A 40th St., reportedly was killed while sitting inside his car parked in front of his residence about 3:30 a.m.

A man with Garcia, Edward DeLeon, 21, of Plainview, was wounded in the incident. He was treated and released by a local hospital.

According to DeLeon, he and Garcia were sitting in the car when two men with a rifle walked up to the right side of the vehicle.

Hernandez reportedly is Garcia's brother-in-law.

Hawkins allegedly shot Henry Robinson, 24, at the Thunderbird Lounge at E. 23rd Street and Fir Avenue about 7 a.m. Sept. 22. Robinson died about two hours after he was shot.

Esperanza Flores is accused in connection with the Sept. 24 shooting death of Guillermo Willy Rocco, Jr., 33.

Rocco, of 910 E. 35th St., was shot during a domestic argument, police reports indicate. The defendant was arrested at the scene.

The six persons accused of aggravated robbery were indicted in connection with two separate incidents.

Accused of the Sept. 17 holdup of a convenience store at 704 E. Broadway St. were Ned Taylor Jr., 25, of 2629 E. Cornell St.; Jimmy Lee Epharm, 19, of 1909 E. Cornell St. and Sharon Rose Jones, 18, of 2606 Weber Dr., Apt. C.

Clerk Susie N. Gregorczyk said two men and a woman entered the Serv-U Food Market about 10 a.m. She said one of the men brandished a small-caliber pistol.

According to the complainant, she was

Walt Garrison Eyes Politics

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS (AP) — Walt Garrison, the former wild-running fullback for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, is considering a plunge into politics by running for Texas Commissioner of Agriculture in May.

Garrison, 33, said, "Some people asked me to think about it ... and that's what I'm doing ... thinking about it."

Garrison, who received a horse trailer for a bonus when he signed with the Cowboys, stressed, "Nothing is definite."

He said, "I certainly haven't made up my mind, but the state of Texas has given me a lot and I'd like to give some of it back."

"I'm close to the agricultural people in this state and I think I certainly could help them export their products. The way I understand it I wouldn't be pinned down to a desk. I'd be more of a P.R.

(public relations) man than anything. There's so much to export in Texas, cotton, livestock, vegetables, grain, horses."

The Lewisville native played college football at Oklahoma State before signing with the Dallas Cowboys where he became the catalyst of a world championship team. He retired two years ago.

Garrison currently is employed by the U.S. Tobacco Co. and has done numerous snuff commercials.

"I certainly don't think my job with them (U.S. Tobacco Co.) would be a conflict of interest," Garrison said. "We don't even grow tobacco in Texas."

Garrison said, "I don't want to sound like some kind of a patriotic nut — or maybe I do — but I know farm and ranch people in Texas. I've been around them all my life. I think I could give the people a lot. I love this state."

Garrison didn't name the people who had talked to him about running.

"Let's just say I'll make up my mind before May," said Garrison. "I need to look into this possibility to the fullest."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed his aide, Reagan Brown, to succeed John C. White as agriculture commissioner last March. White accepted the post of deputy agriculture commissioner.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Is your cookbook making you fat? If you "cook by the book," maybe you should take a closer look at the books you've been using. Even so-called "standard" recipes vary, and those variations can save — or cost — you calories.

This week we took a closer look at the way the top three cookbooks prepare five basic dishes, and found so much caloric diversity that calorie "comparison-shopping" among recipes seems definitely warranted. On the average, the most fattening version of each recipe contained 150 more calories per serving than the least fattening.

The five recipes compared were Lasagna, Chicken a la King, apple pie, Swiss steak and meatloaf. We picked these five because they are all popular recipes likely to be found in a general American cookbook. They are widely familiar, more or less standard, simple enough for most cooks to try, yet complex enough to warrant "looking up" in a cookbook. The books we checked are the three best-sellers: "Better Homes and Gardens New Cookbook," Meredith Corporation; "Betty Crocker's Cookbook," Western Publishing Company, Inc.; "Joy of Cooking," The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Inc.

In computing the calorie count, we took each cookbook's list of ingredients and directions literally: if it called for lean meat, we used the calorie count for lean ... otherwise, not. If the directions called for draining the fat, we drained the fat and then deducted the calories. If ingredients were listed as optional, we omitted them. If alternative ingredients were suggested, we chose the first one listed. If the cookbook said the dish would serve four, we divided the total calories by four. If it claimed to serve six to eight, we divided by seven. In the case of the apple pie, we used each book's directions for a nine-inch pie, and divided the calories into eight servings.

Here are how the five recipes compare in each book:

Calories per serving	Betty	Joy	BH&G
Difference
Lasagna	378	520	644
Chicken a la King	484	333	326
Apple pie	431	404	515
Swiss steak	290	406	395
Meat loaf	418	340	320

Then, to see if one book was clearly "more fattening" than the others, we tallied the calorie counts for the five recipes in each of the three cookbooks. For these recipes at least, "Better Homes and Gardens" cost the most calories by a slight margin — while the total calories for the other two books were nearly tied. "Better Homes" five recipes added up to 2,200 calories while "Joy" and "Betty Crocker" had bottom lines of 2,003 and 2,001, respectively.

It wouldn't be fair to conclude that any one book is "more fattening" based on five recipes; five other recipes could yield different results. But what a calorie-conscious cook can conclude from this experiment is that comparing several "standard" recipes before picking one, definitely pays off. You can cut calories, even without using "diet" recipes.

Women And Health

BY BARBARA HACKMAN FRANKLIN
WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NEA) — Accidents in and around the home have moved to the foreground as a major family health problem.

An estimated 20 million Americans are hurt each year in accidents associated with ordinary household and recreational products. About 110,000 are permanently disabled, and 30,000 are killed.

Many of those hurt are very young children who can't read labels, don't perceive potential dangers and don't have full physical coordination and control. The cost to the nation is said to be $5.5 billion. The cost in suffering and anguish is staggering.

How do we solve a problem of this magnitude?

The responsibility rests with us all — industry, consumers and government. Happily, especially in recent years, considerable progress has been made. But much more is needed. And, as I see it, women can provide the critical impetus.

Women, whether or not they work outside the home, usually manage the household, make most day-to-day purchasing decisions and are primary users of many consumer products. Women supervise children's activities and know first-hand how youngsters use — and misuse — products. In short, women can yield tremendous clout in assuring product safety in the marketplace and in helping to prevent accidents in and around the home.

What can you do? First, recognize that you and your family have a right to product safety. Since 1962 every U.S. president has set forth the "consumer bill of rights." It includes the right to make meaningful, informed choices; the right to be heard — and the right to be assured you receive safe products.

Each right implies a responsibility, too. If products are unsafe or just "don't work," let the manufacturer, the retailer and the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission know about it. Equally important, let companies know when you think they do make, sell and advertise products with safety as a major factor.

Second, check for safety features before you buy. Is the product appropriate for the intended use and user? Is it the right size? Does it have a set of clear safety instructions? Refuse to buy unsafe products.

Third, use, store and maintain products with safety in mind. Always read the label and follow instructions carefully. Take into account hazards such as flammability, toxicity or sharp parts.

In homes with children, make certain medicines, cleaner and poisonous substances are in safety packaging and stored out of reach. Perhaps children should be restricted from the area where you use certain products. Be sure to discard broken toys before they injure your child.

Fourth, take a home safety inventory. Are glass doors and panels marked with decals so that people can see them? Are space heaters, fireplaces and other heat sources guarded?

In homes with young children, are staircases guarded at the top with a securely latched gate? Do unused outlets have safety plugs? Are electric cords out of the way so they can't be pulled or tipped over?

Fifth, be prepared in case an accident occurs. Accidents aren't just "something which happen to somebody else" — they can happen to you and your family.

All parents should have at least a basic first aid course. You can find out about courses available locally from the Red Cross or scouting groups. It's also a good idea to have available a first aid chart with instructions about how to deal with home accidents.

You can get just a chart free. Just send your name and address to the Council on Family Health, Department FAS, 633 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017. For additional information, write the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207. And, keep a list of emergency numbers — doctor, ambulance, hospital, fire department, drug store and local poison control center — right by the phone.

Sixth, lend your support — and leadership — to home safety efforts in your community. Unfortunately, the general level of safety awareness among consumers is low. Get involved to help change this attitude — and the sobering accident statistics.

Every family can use help in adopting better safety habits. And no company or product on the marketplace is immune to the collective efforts of women to assure safer products at a reasonable price.

- 8 slices cheddar cheese
- 8 long strips bacon, cut in half crosswise and partially cooked

Rinse eggplant but do not peel; cut eight 1/4 inch thick slices from the wide center part. (Use remaining ends of eggplant in some other dish.) Dip eggplant in egg, then in crumbs. In a foil-lined shallow pan place eggplant slices in a single layer and well apart; top with tomato, cheese and bacon. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until cheese melts and bacon is crisp — about 10 minutes.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you printed a letter from a person with heart trouble, diabetes, etc. He said he got dirty looks from people because he didn't look handicapped but parked in areas marked "reserved for the handicapped" so that he wouldn't need to walk great distances.

He's lucky he didn't get ticketed or have his car towed away!

In California, all a handicapped person needs is a letter from his doctor, and the Department of Motor Vehicles will give him special plates that entitle him to park in areas marked "reserved for the handicapped." He may also park by parking meters free.

One argument against these plates is that muggers tend to spot victims by their cars and lay in wait for them. So for those who feel threatened, placards that can be removed in isolated or high-risk neighborhoods are available.

Please print my letter because many handicapped people may not know this, and your column would be a good place to publicize it.

Stan in Sacto

Dear Stan: Thanks to you and to others who wrote. Most states provide special plates (free) for the handicapped, but the laws and penalties for violations differ from state to state, so I urge those with handicaps (visible and otherwise) to inquire at their local D.M.V. offices. Parents of handicapped children may also apply for special plates and placards.

DEAR ABBY: Thought maybe you'd like to see an item that appeared in the "Register-Guard," a newspaper in Eugene, Ore., that carries your column:

"In her column the other day, Dear Abby talked about sexism in the weather. Hurricanes are named for girls in alphabetical order. The year's first usually has a name like Abby, followed by Bertha, Candice, Debbie, Emma, Fern, Griselda, Hattie and so on through Zelda."

"It would be possible to name them for boys: Abner, Buster, Chuck, Darwin, Ed, Fred, Geoffrey, Hank, Isadore and on through Zachary."

"But the battle of the sexes would cool off if the names were devoid of gender. Try adversity, brutality, calamity, destructibility, emergency, fitfully, gristly, and on through zowie."

Abby Fan In Eugene

Dear Fan: I don't object to having a hurricane named after me. Especially since alphabetically Abby is always No. 1.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has developed an allergy to doing dishes. The minute she starts doing the dishes, she sneezes. It's not just one sneeze, but a long string of them.

Mama says she can't help it, so I have to do the dishes alone. What should I do? I think my sister is just trying to get out of doing the dishes.

Dishwasher

Dear Dish: Your sister could be allergic to the soap powder or liquid detergent you use for dishwashing. A doctor could determine this. If that's the case, it's time for a change. (What a spot for a commercial!)

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
Isn't it funny, I can remember the exact day I first heard the word "portable." It was Aug. 14, 1956, at 3:35 p.m. when my husband presented me with a "portable" sewing machine.

(It's probably a coincidence but that's the exact day he got his first slipped disk by lifting the "portable" sewing machine to the table.)

I didn't think much about it again until we bought a "portable" air conditioner for the den. That was —let's see—Thursday evening, the 20th of March, 1961.

(I remember saying how great it was that the warranty covered the damages to the unit when my husband dropped it on my foot.)

Frankly, I don't know what we did before American ingenuity discovered that if you put a handle on something or a set of wheels it became "portable."

It has opened up a whole new world for those of us "on the move." We thought a swimming pool was out of range until we found a "portable" pool we could put up ourselves. That was...I got it, Memorial Day, 1971, to November of that same year.

(I remember saying to my husband he couldn't have swum in it anyway until they took the stitches out of his hands that he cut on the fence.)

And who could forget our portable boat that made a dent in the roof of the car, the portable microwave oven that we took apart to transport, the portable stereo that took five boys to carry, and the portable picnic table that we carried in the portable trailer.

Neither of us will ever forget the excitement of owning my first portable typewriter. At first, I worried because it hurt my arm to lift it off the floor. Within a matter of days, however, my arm stretched out about five inches and the typewriter slid comfortably across the floor while my hand steadied it.

A lot of people had-mouth "portables." However, when our neighbors had their house ripped off and the portable TV was missing, they found the thief and the set within a couple of hours.

The guy was checking into a local hospital for emergency hernia repair just as the police were checking the cars in the emergency lot.

Isn't that a coincidence?

For only the second time since 1957 this year's world team championship will be held without an Italian entrant! Italy could finish only second to Sweden in the European Championship, so the Scandinavians will be back in the Bermuda Bowl for the first time in almost 25 years. But don't write off the Italians. They showed that they have lost little of the skill that brought them a raft of world titles over the past two decades. Witness the skill of Benito Garozzo on this deal.

Garozzo's decision to run from three no trump is rather strange—that contract could have been made with the help of a double finesse in clubs. However, when East made the error of alerting Garozzo to the bad trump break in five diamonds, he was signing his own death warrant.

The spade opening was covered by the jack and king taken by the ace. Declarer led a trump to the queen and returned a low trump. Since he had given away the trump situation, East was compelled to split his diamond honors, and declarer captured the ten with the ace.

Garozzo now demonstrated that he could make his contract without having to resort to the double finesse in clubs. He led a heart, and West did as well as he could by winning the ace and returning a heart. Declarer won the king in dummy, cashed the queen of spades and ruffed a spade. The ace and king of clubs were followed by another spade ruff.

Declarer had lost only one trick. He was down to king-nine in trumps and a losing club. He simply exited with his club, and he did not care which defender won the trick. There was no way declarer could be prevented from scoring both his trumps for his doubled contract.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Firm Plans To Keep Plant Open

By JIM STEIERT
A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Holly Sugar Corp. of Colorado Springs will not close its Hereford beet processing plant, it was announced at a recent joint meeting of Holly officials and directors of the Hereford-based Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association.

"There is no truth in any rumor that Holly will close its Hereford plant," said Glen Yeager of Colorado Springs, senior vice president.

An announcement by Holly Monday of plans to sell another processing plant at Delta, Colo., has no bearing on the Hereford plant. The Delta plant has been inoperative since February.

Sugar beets have been grown in the Hereford area since 1964, and it's time people realized they are here on a permanent basis, said Bill Cleavinger, president of the beet association.

Yeager said the Hereford factory is the newest and most up-to-date plant in the Holly organization. It also has the largest defuser in the world. The device is used to extract sugar from beets.

The plant employs about 400 persons during the harvest period each year. Cleavinger also stressed the optimistic future of beet production in the area.

"This is one of the best farming areas in the country. We have fine soil and don't have to take a back seat to anyone. The long-range outlook for the beet industry is exceptionally good, and we want people to realize that beets are going to be here for a long time," he said.

Bob Ginn, agriculture manager for the Hereford plant, reported that area beet yields this year are projected at 22 tons per acre for a total harvest of approximately 425,000 tons.

Field samples have indicated that sugar content should be around 14.5 per cent.

"We will be operating under a controlled harvest through October," he said. "This controlled harvest will be based on mill slicing capacity plus a flexible reserve, which depends on how clean the beets are, the temperature and the weather forecast."

"On Nov. 1, we will shift into an accelerated harvest and will make every effort to complete operations by Nov. 20. During that time we will extend our hours at the factory station," he added.

Airlines Granted Nonstop Flights

DALLAS (UPI) — The North Texas Aeronautics Commission has announced Braniff International and Pan American airlines have been granted authority to make nonstop flights from Dallas-Fort Worth Regional airport to 25 cities in South and Central America.

The commission said an executive order by President Carter approved a Civil Aeronautics Board recommendation for the flights. A commission spokesman said the order will allow the airlines to bypass Houston, Miami and New Orleans on the southbound flights.

Small Business Group Finds President Lacking

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Tired of mere lip service, an association of independent business people last year decided to keep a report card on the promises by the two major presidential candidates.

The group, the National Small Business Association, persistently extracted from each candidate his views on small business issues, such as correcting what was felt to be unequal treatment versus big business.

The first report card, on Jimmy Carter of course, is in, and it appears the President didn't pass. "No substantial progress" was marked beside 7 of 11 issues measured.

The 50,000-member organization concedes the President has three years in which to pull his marks up to a graduation level, but they want him to know they are watching him — and Congress too.

Feeling that the very largest corporations, unions and big government have grown at the expense of the independent sector, the association sought from Carter last October a promise that the growth of small business would be pushed.

Carter responded with this message: "It will be the goal of my administration to have the growth rate of small business exceed the growth rate of big business and government." The organization was elated.

The accomplishment: "Substantial progress. Good lines of communication have been established with the President and his staff. March meeting between President, key aides and small business reps have been followed up with on-going meetings at high levels."

The administration also was credited with some progress in correcting inequities in government procurement, on freeing business people from routine record-keeping by a regulatory agency, and on minimizing the impact of an antiprice maintenance report.

But that ubiquitous "no substantial progress" was recorded against his promise to involve small business in science and innovation, on his promise to develop yardsticks to measure small business growth, on Federal reorganization, on his promise of a better climate for raising capital, and on tax reform.

On the latter, the independent business people conceded that the President's tax reform proposals might change their estimate, but not in time for the first year's report card.

What had the President promised? "I pledge to allow the small business man and woman to get back to running their business by completely reforming... tax laws to get the government off his back."

Said John E. Lewis, president of the association, which considers any business small if it isn't among the 1,000 largest industrial firms or 300 largest finance-service concerns: "We hope that by the end of four years we'll be able to give Carter a 100 per cent rating on follow-through of his commitments." But then he restated, in effect what Milton Steward, his predecessor, said a year ago: "Small business — like apple pie and motherhood — has been given a lot of lip service by many people for too many years, and we will be keeping a close check on both the President and the Congress..."

What particularly offends the independent business representative is that they have been "squeezed into a shrinking segment of the economy by the growth of government on the one hand and big business and labor on the other."

The result, they maintain, has been a diminution of entrepreneurship, risk-taking, innovation and freedom.

Analysis

It now reports: "No substantial progress."

Carter also promised that "As president, I would introduce and support concrete programs which would have as high priority the expansion of the independent small business sector of the economy."

Again, "No substantial progress. And so it goes through the first four categories before the President receives a favorable notation.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Fresh new projects will be favored for you tomorrow, especially if they are in the early stages. Lay a solid foundation. They will produce.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Insights or hunches regarding your career or financial matters will be reliable tomorrow. They can put you a step or two ahead of the pack.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your strength will lie in your philosophical approach tomorrow. You will see things as a part of the whole, not in their limited and narrow scope.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be alert tomorrow as to the possibility of embarking on a venture with a person in tune with your thinking. A chance remark could spark it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even if you have to modify your opinion, it's vital that you maintain harmonious relations tomorrow with those important to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions will look very promising tomorrow in matters affecting your career and income. Be ready to move on situations that could be beneficial.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Associate tomorrow with people who are of a creative bent. Be ready to move on situations that could be beneficial.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take time to think things out very carefully tomorrow. The more you dwell on a subject, the more you'll be aware of all its ramifications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) People will find you fun to be around tomorrow. You will be able to show them the lighter side of things they find serious or worrisome.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In commercial or business dealings tomorrow, you will be very imaginative. The profit picture you will see in your mind's eye could be even better in reality.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a natural flair for the dramatic, and tomorrow that quality will be even more pronounced. This will help you most in selling or public speaking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be patient tomorrow, particularly if you're waiting for something to hatch that involves material gain. Ships come in over calm seas.

DR. LAMB

Some Inherit Disease

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—Would you mind giving us some information on Marfan's syndrome? This has struck close to our family and yet we know so little about it.

DEAR READER—A good place to start—and one which will be of particular interest to you—is to point out that medical evidence suggests that Abe Lincoln was a Marfan. These people often have long legs and arms in comparison to the length of the trunk of the body. They may be quite tall.

The lens in the eye may be displaced. The chest may be deformed and the hands are often large with long fingers.

The disease may be limited to the eyes, the skeleton or the heart and blood vessels or it may involve all three systems. The aorta may enlarge or dilate. The valves in the heart may become deformed causing abnormalities in circulation not unlike that seen from aortic valve damage from rheumatic heart disease.

Some historians think that Abe Lincoln would have died very soon from heart involvement if he had not been assassinated. Apparently he already had significant changes in the valves in his heart and there was no way to properly treat that problem in those days.

Half of the sons and daughters of a person with Marfan's disease will inherit the disorder. About 15 per cent of the people with Marfan's have new diseases and neither parent has the disease. In this instance there is a new mutation of the gene during genetic development that causes the disorder. Once that person starts having offspring, though, half of his children may have the disease.

DEAR DR. LAMB—My daughter has kidney malfunction. She must drink a lot of water. The only thing she likes to drink is tea. She also does not like milk.

She makes enough tea for a few days. She takes three tea bags and fills the 20 cup electric percolator and percolates it for one hour. The tea is as dark as black coffee. The doctor knows she drinks tea but doesn't know she percolates it one hour. This bothers me. I am afraid she is hurting her kidneys. She also has her cock-tails.

Please tell me what you think about tea and especially this strong brew.

DEAR READER—Your daughter may not be getting enough liquids.

She should drink enough water to pass a large volume of dilute urine each day. This helps to prevent kidney stones. About four quarts of a liquid a day is often recommended or enough liquid to ensure formation of two to three quarts of urine a day. The fluid keeps the unabsorbable particles that may form a stone from clumping together.

Tea, beer, fruit juices, cola drinks all may contain soluble oxalate that is absorbed into the blood stream and may make it easier to form some types of kidney stones. One of the best fluids for kidney patients who need to consume lots of liquid to maintain a constantly dilute urine is also the cheapest—plain water. Alcohol is hard on kidneys and is not a very good way for your daughter to get fluid either.

Too much rest can be harmful. For information send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 6-6, Effects of Inactivity, including Bed Rest. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Regionality Important To Brewery

SEATTLE (AP) — Regionalization helps sell beer, says the head of a Wisconsin-based brewer that took over the Rainier Brewing Co. last May.

"We're never going to change the name or take the 'R' off the roof," says Russell Cleary, president of G. Heileman Brewing Co., of La Crosse, Wis., referring to the large, lighted "R" on the roof of the Rainier brewery here. "We want to preserve that regionality."

Cleary says Heileman, which markets more than 20 brands of beer in 46 states, takes established breweries and expands them.

He said plans are well along toward expanding the Rainier brewery on South Airport Way in Seattle to more than 1.5 million barrels a year. It now produces more than one million barrels a year.

The Seattle brewery has more than 375 employees with an annual payroll of more than $5 million. It is one of the five breweries that Heileman operates nationally.

Cleary, who spoke to a group of financial analysts in Seattle last week, says the firm invests between $6 million and $10 million a year in its plants.

Heileman bought Rainier from the Rainier Companies for about $8 million. It marked the passing of Rainier from the ranks of the strong, independent brewers.

Edwin S. Coombs, Rainier president, told the analysts the economies of scale for the regional brewer were no longer present and it was time "to put two winners together" — Rainier and Heileman.

Cleary noted the waging of a beer war with high stakes among the top five brewers — the so-called "nationals" — Anheuser-Busch, Schlitz, Miller, Pabst and Coors. They now account for about two-thirds of the market.

That leaves the rest to multi-regional brewers such as Heileman and Olympia Brewing Co., of Tumwater, Wash.

"We think we have a chance to become one of the ultimate survivors in the savage struggle going on in the industry. We have no way to go but up," Cleary said.

Russia was named for medieval Swedish merchant traders known as Rus, probably from the Finnish word for Sweden, "Ruotsi."

Texan Buys Humpty Dumpty

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lamar Hunt owns the Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League — a toy many men envy. Now he also owns a 21-foot-high Humpty Dumpty.

Hunt, who paid a mere $4,000 for Mother Goose's good egg, was among dozens of bidders to attend an auction of 50 years of memorabilia of the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

A 10-foot high Santa; a giant, waving snowman on ice skates; Little Lulu and Tubby; and many of the other giant, smiling characters who glided down Broadway in the famous parade each hit the auction block.

A spokesman for Macy's promised they would be replaced by other favorites in future parades.

Hunt eyed his catch and commented, "It sure is an attractive egg if I ever saw one." He said he bought the nursery rhyme character for his "Worlds of Fun" amusement park in Kansas City, Mo. The big spender at the event, conducted to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, was Dallas restaurateur Bill Waugh, whose bout of auction fever set him back $30,600.

For his money, Waugh got a lifelike elephant from which Jimmy Durante waved to parade crowds, a 13-foot-high, multi-colored tortoise and a yellow, green and blue, 45-foot-long alligator. Both of the self-propelled reptiles come equipped with their own jeeps.

The Texan also made the highest bid at the auction by offering $15,000 for the float that serves as the home for the Little Old Lady in the Shoe.

While children played in the army, which was converted into a fantasy land filled with hippos, rabbits, snowmen and carousel horses, their parents indulged in some very serious bidding.

"My showroom is empty, and I wanted to put something in it," said Volkswagen dealer Peter Hahn after Christopher Burge, an auctioneer for Christie's of London, declared his $3,500 offer as the final bid for a circus wagon.

"I'm going to have to get a couple of horses to take it back," said Hahn, of Seneca Falls, N.Y., adding that he is "very energy conscious."

Bianca and Eli Barzvi of New York paid $1,700 for the gold and red velvet chair that served as Santa Claus's throne because they "really loved it."

"We have two daughters," Mrs. Barzvi said. "I always call them princesses, and now they can feel like one."

A spokeswoman for Christie's said the auction raised more than $75,000 for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Officials Eye Town's Relief Funds

CRYSTAL CITY (UPI) — Outdoor cooking and cold water baths soon may be a thing of the past for the impoverished residents of this South Texas community which has been without natural gas for 13 days.

Federal technicians and city officials expected today to correlate the questionnaires completed in a house-to-house survey Tuesday to determine how to distribute $150,000 in Community Services Administration emergency relief to poor residents of the only city in the nation which has had its natural gas supply shut off.

When Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. shut off the gas valves to Crystal City after failing to reach an agreement with city officials about $800,000 in back bills, the city's 8,000 residents found themselves without gas to heat their homes, food or water.

Those who could afford it converted their cook stoves and water heaters to electricity or butane. But many residents, a number of them Mexican-American migrant farmworkers, were forced to bathe in cold water and cook over outdoor fires.

Paul Rich, a Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., attorney who unsuccessfully fought the shutoff to the U.S. Supreme Court, said he believed the forms would be correlated by today "in order to get the appliances or whatever as quickly as possible."

Community Services Administration officials from the National Center for Appropriate Technology in Butte, Mont., and the East Los Angeles Community Union were sent to the city under auspices of a $10,000 CSA grant arranged by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., which Rich said is expected to arrive soon.

VSA's John Macomber said $150,000 of the money would go for emergency aid to city residents, 85 per cent of them who earn incomes below the poverty level, and the rest of the money would be used for a "demonstration project" which the federal agency said it hopes will produce solutions for other small towns facing problems similar to Crystal City's.

Officials of the neighboring cities of Carrizo Springs, Uvalde and Del Rio, however, vehemently have opposed channeling any money to Crystal City unless they, too, receive federal aid to pay utility bills for their impoverished citizens.

Uvalde and Carrizo Springs together owe Lo-Vaca $2.4 million in back bills, but have put the money in escrow pending settlement of Crystal City's problems. Del Rio already has begun paying Lo-Vaca the balance of a $598,000 debt.

Crystal City was the only one of Lo-Vaca's customers which refused outright to go along with natural gas price increases in 1974 from the 36 cents a thousand cubic feet to more than $2 mcf today.

Woman Recalls Pleas Made By Mrs. Hill

HOUSTON (AP) — Joan Robinson Hill pleaded for help from her husband, Dr. John Hill, just hours before she died in 1969, a witness has testified in the $7.6 million wrongful death civil suit against Houston oilman Ash Robinson.

Ann Moore Buck testified in the suit Tuesday she found the Hills quarreling and apparently hostile toward each other just hours before Mrs. Hill's death.

Mrs. Buck said that Dr. Hill seemed to want her to leave the hospital room.

Mrs. Buck quoted Mrs. Hill as saying, "Please help me, Ann. Get some help from John." Mrs. Buck recalled her visit occurred about 10 p.m. March 18, 1969, and Mrs. Hill died at 3:55 a.m. March 19.

Hill was less than mournful, Mrs. Buck testified, when she and her husband went to Hill's home following the funeral.

"He asked if we wanted to join him to eat," Mrs. Buck said. "I was still upset and we declined. John said if we didn't mind he would go ahead and eat."

"He ate for a long time and was joking and asked us again to join him. He seemed more like a person who was in celebration than a person who was in mourning."

Hill later was charged with murder through medical neglect and was awaiting a second trial on the charge when he was fatally shot in 1972. His first trial ended in a mistrial.

Hill's son Robert, 17, his third wife Connie, and mother Myra Hill, have filed the civil suit against Robinson, hoping to prove the Houston millionaire masterminded the plot to have Hill killed.

No criminal charges have been filed against Robinson and he has denied the allegations made in the civil suit.

Other testimony Tuesday came from Dr. James Chamberlain, who said he opposed Hill's admission to the plastic surgery program at Baylor College of Medicine because Hill "had a pretty poor track record."

Chamberlain said Hill was late too often and failed to tell the truth.

"Many of us had an opinion that wasn't very laudatory," Chamberlain said.

Police reports indicate that one man entered the store and that three suspects were again captured shortly after the holdup.

Witnesses said they heard two shots and saw the getaway vehicle after the robbery at a 7-Eleven store at 9th Street and University Avenue.

Officers reportedly found a car fitting the description of the suspect vehicle parked in an alley in the 500-block of Avenue T shortly after the heist. Three persons were apprehended.

James Menefee, 19, of 2624 Ivory Ave., was indicted for allegedly tampering with a witness. Menefee is accused of trying to intimidate a witness during a robbery trial last month in which the defendant was Sylvester Menefee, reportedly his brother.

Only one no-bill was returned by grand jurors. Sammy Olivarez, 20, of 3101 Baylor St., who had been accused of unauthorized use of a vehicle, was no-billed and thereby cleared of the accusation.

Other indictments returned by jurors Tuesday, with ages and latest possible ad-resses compiled from law enforcement agency records, include:

Prime Rate Rise Sends Mart Down

NEW YORK (AP) — A prime rate increase by a large California bank pushed the stock market into another broad decline today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 9.98 Tuesday, dropped another 3.12 to 838.87 by 11:30 a.m.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Bond volume was a moderate 4.74 million shares in the first hour.

Late Tuesday the San Francisco-based Wells Fargo Bank raised its prime lending rate from 7 1/4 to 7 3/4 per cent.

Wall Streeters expected other leading banks to post similar increases soon in the basic charge on blue chip loans.

The rising trend in the prime follows a recent advance in open market money rates, which was prompted by Federal Reserve moves aimed at slowing the growth of the money supply in order to restrain inflationary pressures.

Brokers also reported some dismay at the collapse of the market rally that pushed the Dow up 17.34 points last Thursday through Monday.

Sony was the most active NYSE issue, unchanged at 7 1/2 in trading marked by three blocks of 100,000 shares apiece at 8. The blocks, like numerous others of similar size in recent days, were handled on the sell side by the firm of Martin Simpson & Co.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index was down 11 at 52.49. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .23 to 118.57.

Officials To Study Proposal For Juvenile Facility

Area county officials will learn Thursday what the proposed regional juvenile detention facility is all about.

Judges and commissioners in the 15-county South Plains area will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the 99th District Courtroom of the Lubbock County Courthouse to hear criminal justice planners explain the project.

A report prepared by consultants for the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) will be outlined to the group. That report recommends that Lubbock County build and operate a juvenile detention complex, and that surrounding counties contract for its use—and help support the project financially.

Project proponents hope that on the basis of Thursday's presentation, outlying counties will be able to decide in the next month or so whether they will participate.

Thursday's meeting will be co-sponsored by Lubbock County, which already is committed to the juvenile plan, and the SPAG criminal justice advisory committee, which has led the planning effort.

Presiding over the meeting will be Bailey County Judge Glen Williams, committee chairman.

According to the proposal, the juvenile center would be located in Lubbock and would provide short-and long-term detention for juveniles from throughout the region.

The facility will serve "non-status offenders"—youths accused of serious crimes, rather than truancy or runaway offenses.

The report said construction of the estimated $1 million structure should not be a problem, because Lubbock County commissioners already have pledged $500,000, and a matching amount should be available from federal criminal justice sources.

Operational costs, estimated at $225,000 a year, would be shared between Lubbock County and surrounding counties. Basically, the money would come from state funds which the counties receive under the community assistance program of the Texas Youth Council.

Surrounding counties will be asked to automatically assign this money to Lubbock County for use in running the proposed detention facility. In turn, they would be guaranteed reserved space for their juveniles in the center.

The SPAG criminal justice advisory committee will meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, before the session with county officials, to endorse an application for phase two of the project.

The application, which will be submitted to the Governor's Office by Lubbock County, seeks $40,000 to pay for designing the juvenile center.

The application notes that "all youths who are held in detention within the region are held in the city and county jails.

This practice has been condemned by correctional experts for more than a century."

There is an "overriding need" for a juvenile center, particularly for long-term detention, in the South Plains area, the application says.

"Heretofore, these offenders have been either placed on probation in their own homes or sent to the Texas Youth Council facilities. These facilities are all located many miles from our region, the closest being 300 miles and the farthest nearly 550 miles.

"The distances for the youths' families make visitation extremely difficult and work with the family of incarcerated youth, impossible."

The proposed juvenile detention facility would be a local alternative to the state training schools, the application says. And yet the juvenile center would not have the "stigma and complications of an adult jail facility."

The SPAG board of directors is expected to approve the phase two application next week.

The SPAG consultants said the proposed regional juvenile facility should have 36 beds — 20 allocated to Lubbock County and the remaining 16 divided among other participating counties.

Under the assignment formula, surrounding counties would pitch in about $100,000 a year from the money they get from the Texas Youth Council. Lubbock County would provide the rest.

Not only would Lubbock County be using its Texas Youth Council funds for operating the facility, but other special grants also might be available.

PROTECT THE FINISH OF YOUR CAR — POLYGLYCOAT
The revolutionary new protective sealant that is not a wax or polish and can only be applied by a professional dealer. GUARANTEED FOR THREE FULL YEARS — Your auto purchase today is a necessity. Buy with the future in mind. POLYGLYCOAT PRESERVES! NO NEED TO EVER WAX YOUR CAR AGAIN!
Polyglycoat is a paint and chrome sealant finish — guaranteed to protect your car against fading, corrosion, oxidation, and loss of gloss for three years. Comprised of Dow 500, paraffin, silicone, with a kerosene base, Polyglycoat breaks through the tiny paint pores in the surface and penetrates 3-3 1/2 layers into the paint-sealing it and shielding it against the foreign elements that cause corrosion, rust, and loss of gloss. Not only will Polyglycoat eliminate the need for waxing, but it will virtually maintain your car's showroom finish, thereby enhancing resale potential. 10-3 If should be applied to all new cars and properly prepared used cars. KEEPS YOUR PAINT AND CHROME LIKE NEW!

Court Says Finley Owes Wife $50,000

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley has been ordered to pay his estranged wife $50,000 in additional attorneys fees.

The ruling this week by the Indiana Court of Appeals is the latest action in a divorce suit filed by Shirley M. Finley in 1974.

The court upheld the decision of the Porter Superior Court, which ordered Finley to pay $50,000 in legal fees in addition to the $17,000 he already has paid. It also ordered him to pay for an audit of his family-owned business, Charles O. Finley Co., Inc.

Finley owns 31 per cent of the firm; Mrs. Finley owns 29 per cent and each of their four children owns 10 per cent.

Finley currently pays his wife $1,250 a week in support.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain was forecast today for the Pacific Northwest as well as from the northern Rockies to the western Plains. Showers also were anticipated for portions of Missouri and Arkansas. (AP Laserphoto)

Summerlike Weather Pushes Winter Back

By IRA FERRY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Cool, crisp, winter air and residents' battles to keep out of rain-filled mud puddles and off of ice-coated sidewalks, have been indefinitely postponed this winter, National Weather Service forecasters claim.

Summer, it seems, just can't bear to leave the South Plains, and the longer those blistering summerlike temperatures hang around, the longer winter's snowy blankets must wait.

Though Lubbock's first freezing temperature of the season is usually recorded around Oct. 31, forecasters say this winter's first icy chill may not come about that soon because of September's unusually hot, record-breaking temperatures.

September, usually a cool month on the South Plains with temperatures in the mid 80s, was 5.4 degrees hotter than usual with an average maximum temperature of 91.1 degrees.

Sixteen daily temperature records fell during the month, and high 90-degree readings were common until Oct. 1, the weather forecasters reported in the NWS monthly summary.

Temperatures across the region ranged from 7.5 degrees above normal at Post to 2.8 degrees above at Hereford. Lubbock's average temperature was 77.4 degrees, with the average maximum at 91.1 and the average minimum at 63.7 degrees. The lowest monthly temperature was 53 degrees on Sept. 19.

Maximum temperatures were 8.3 degrees above normal, ranging from 11.6 above normal at Post to 5.2 degrees above the normal of 84.3 degrees at Littlefield. Minimum temperatures were 2.9 degrees above normal, from 5.5 degrees above Lubbock's average of 58.2 degrees to 1 degree below normal at Dimmitt.

October temperatures should be one to three degrees above normal, with cold fronts moving through the area regularly dropping temperatures rapidly on some days to make up for extremely hot seasonal days. Lubbock's average monthly temperature during October is 60.8 degrees.

Exactly when, though, ice will start forming on rain-slickened windshields and slippery sidewalks is still up to conjecture. Average first freeze dates for the Panhandle usually occur in the last 10 days of the month, while the South Plains usually doesn't see freezing temperatures until after the first of November, the weathermen said.

Because the month is expected to be warmer than usual, the Oct. 31 date projected for Lubbock may be too early for the season's first freeze.

Average first freeze dates in the region range from Oct. 21 at Muleshoe to Nov. 8 at Big Spring.

October usually marks the first of a seasonal decline in precipitation, and since rainfall totals are already under normal by 1.70 inches, indications are that most area communities will stay below rainfall normal totals throughout this winter.

Weather conditions in the past few months have shown above average temperatures and below normal rainfall totals, the weathermen said, making soils throughout Northwest Texas relatively dry to a depth of several feet.

Precipitation averaged 2.17 inches below normal in September, ranging from 3.69 inches below normal at Jayton to .88 of an inch below normal at Dimmitt. In Lubbock, .49 of an inch of rain fell to bring the year's total to 15.21 inches, 1.70 inches below normal.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

America's survival is possible only by denying other countries the ability to impose their will on it, and our security is protected only by insuring that potential aggressors see unacceptable risks in planning a foreign invasion. Since World War II, the United States through its military supremacy has accomplished this for itself and has helped to maintain global peace. However, our military supremacy and global peace are now threatened. While Young Americans for Freedom endorses diplomatic efforts to prevent war, we also believe that political endeavors to promote peace and freedom can only be accomplished through a position of military strength. Our national leadership is currently steering toward disarmament, and the contrast between what ought to be the attitude and physical strength of our military and what is, requires immediate action.

The purpose of this symposium is to inform the citizenry of the Southwest of our current military policies concerning national defense. We also hope to arouse in concerned Americans a sense of urgency to become informed and begin to actively petition their elected officials for the retention of a strong military defense. Please support us in this effort with your attendance. We must choose for this generation and those following to remain free through military strength or accept slavery from lack of moral courage to stand against our enemies.

Russians' Sputnik Signaled Beginning Of Era

By ALVIN B. WEBB
NEW YORK (UPI) — Oct. 4, 1957. A languid, autumn day.

The day an A-flat "beep-beep" ushered in the space age and a one-watt radio transmitter gave Americans a shock that would take them a decade to get over.

It had been, in the trade, a slow news day. Federal troops were helping nine blacks break the race barrier at Central High School in Little Rock, Ark., but school was over for the weekend. And the next day was football Saturday.

The Dodgers were still in Brooklyn, Ford Motor's Edsel was exactly 30 days old and young Elvis Aaron Presley's gyrating hips were turning on America's teenagers (and turning off their parents and Ed Sullivan).

At the ranch in Texas, Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson propped up his feet to watch the evening news.

And at 1125 16th St. in Washington, the Russians were throwing a cocktail party in their 19th century, graystone embassy residence for 50 scientists and others involved in the International Geophysical Year.

A phone call to the embassy and a whispered remark to an American scientist, Dr. Lloyd Berkner, conveyed news that would stun a nation.

Berkner rapped a table for attention. "I am informed by the New York Times," he said, "that a satellite is in orbit at an elevation of 900 kilometers."

Expert Says USSR May Use Shuttle

By CHARLES M. MADIGAN
MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union might be riding into space in the future on one of the wonders of the century: the American space shuttle.

While it is futile to speculate on the direction the Soviet Union's space program will take, Western diplomats say the program could well be linked to U.S. success with its shuttle.

"You can probably look forward to the development of a larger and more advanced space station concept on the part of the Soviet Union," said one of the Westerners who watches space developments.

"But it will almost certainly be linked to the American space shuttle program, using the space shuttle, perhaps, as a way to get their men to the new station — a cooperative effort."

Through its "Intercosmos" series, the Soviet Union and Western countries, particularly the United States, have been cooperating in the development of various outer space projects.

For its own part, the Soviet Union is expected to continue with the impressive series of launches that have become as common as snow in the winter under the "Cosmos" series.

Nearly 1,000 satellites have been sent into space under the program, which Western observers say points to the advanced development and near perfection of the USSR's rocket delivery system.

The satellites are valuable for a variety of domestic reasons, communications being among the most important. The latest satellite in the series has brought Moscow television to the far-flung regions of Siberia.

They also have enabled the Soviet Union to begin mapping the uncharted regions of Siberia and allow it to keep a close watch on the Arctic Circle.

The Cosmos series also has untold military value, giving the Soviet Union hundreds of "eyes in space" watching every aspect of development around the world.

The USSR is even beginning to offer its technology to other countries, volunteering to provide overviews of crop regions and weather patterns, according to Western experts.

On the cooperative front, scientists from the United States and USSR will open preliminary talks in November on the future of joint manned space flights.

The most recent in the Intercosmos series was a satellite full of rats and sophisticated equipment designed to test the effects of long-term space travel on cosmonauts and astronauts of the future.

American and Soviet scientists began dissecting the rats Sept. 23. The remains and documents from the flight will be analyzed by scientists from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the U.S.

The Western observers said they did not expect anything "spectacular" from the Soviet Union in the way of manned space flight, particularly in light of the U.S. successes in the Apollo program.

"The way the Russians view it, there is little valor in being the second nation to reach the moon with manned spacecraft," one of the specialists said.

"They are also wary of the risk involved. The risks far outweigh the benefits of being second with men on the moon."

'Energy Audit' Given At Home

HOUSTON (UPI) — The home of Robert S. Ballou this week was given an "energy audit" by several Boy Scouts, and the scouts had a helper along.

Former astronaut James A. Lovell accompanied the scouts to Ballou's suburban home to start the Boy Scouts' Energy Education and Conservation Project.

"It was easy and it was time well spent, too," said Lovell after checking door frames, ceilings and the fireplace at the home of Ballou, a Boy Scouts of America public relations representative.

Lovell and the Scouts spent an hour demonstrating "flicker" tests, holding a lighted candle around door and window frames to check for leaks.

And the crusher: "I wish to congratulate our Soviet colleagues."

Ten months earlier, three U.S. Air Force B52 Stratofortresses had flown around the world — 24,325 miles — in 45 hours 19 minutes.

Now, in the growing darkness overhead, a shiny, beachball-sized steel globe with four antennas and a hammer and sickle emblem was covering the same distance in one hour 43.7 minutes.

It bore a name: "Sputnik." Loosely translated, "fellow traveler" — an irony lost on few. The McCarthy era was all too fresh in the national memory.

Sputnik had a voice. A television announcer told his audience, "Listen now, for the sound which forevermore separates the old from the new."

An A-flat "beep-beep-beep" was beamed back to earth by a tiny battery barely strong enough to power a flashlight.

American newspapers, wire services, radio and television stations had to wait for Tass, the Soviet news agency, to tell them: "The first earth satellite has now been created ... this first satellite was launched in the USSR ..."

As with the end of a world war a dozen years before and the landing of the first man on the moon a dozen years hence, most Americans would remember where they were that historic night.

Lyndon Johnson recalled later that he went for a walk, his eyes turned to the skies for "that alien object." It was a "profound shock," he said, to realize "that it might be possible for another nation to achieve technological superiority over this great country of ours."

Shock was also the Eisenhower administration's reaction — before the blunders.

"A silly bauble," said White House adviser Clarence Randall. The United States was not interested in "an outer-space basketball game," said Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams.

From the Democrats, outrage. Sen. Henry Jackson demanded Eisenhower proclaim "a week of shame and danger." Fellow Democrat Stuart Symington of Missouri urged a special session of Congress.

Others saw the sinister. The CIA thought Sputnik's signals were a code, and cryptographers worked around the clock trying to break it.

"Many believe that the whole story has not been told," one news magazine reported.

Soviet Gen. A.A. Blagonravov, in Washington at the time, laughed. There was no code, he said. The transmitter and the beeps were simply there to help ground stations keep track of Sputnik's journey.

Inevitably, demands arose for an American answer and attention shifted to a spit of sand on Florida's east coast, owned 10 per cent by a tiny band of scientists and 90 per cent by rattlesnakes.

Cape Canaveral. No one seemed quite sure whether the accent was on the second or third syllable.

A Nazi-era rocket specialist named Werner von Braun, now two years a U.S. citizen, had insisted he could orbit a satellite. But von Braun was part of a military missile program, and Eisenhower wanted no military taint on America's space effort.

While von Braun fretted at an old World War II military base outside Huntsville, Ala., civilian scientists in a project named "Vanguard" built their own rocket at Cape Canaveral. Slowly, no one seemed in a hurry.

Until the evening of Oct. 4. Then it was too late.

It got worse. Sputnik 1 weighed 184.3 pounds. Vanguard's satellite would weigh 21.5 pounds, but before it had its first chance, the Soviets on Nov. 3 launched Sputnik 2, a 1,120-pound whopper carrying a dog named Laika.

Vanguard had its chance Dec. 6 — and blew up on the launch pad, its still-beeping moonlet tumbling into the Canaveral brush. In desperation, Eisenhower turned von Braun loose, and the German gave America its first satellite, Explorer 1, on Jan. 31 with a modified military rocket.

Sputnik's battery died before October ended, and the satellite itself plunged to a fiery death four days into the new year.

But that "beep-beep" still echoed, a symbol, somehow, that in the world of post-Oct. 4, 1957, things would never be the same again.

The troops soon left Little Rock and school integration had a foothold in the South. The Dodgers moved to Los Angeles and Ebbets Field turned into weeds. Ford's Edsel died within a year, a $400 million automotive disaster.

Eisenhower suffered a stroke within weeks, and Sherman Adams left the White House, scandalized by a vicuna coat. Elvis Presley went into the Army.

Americans elected a new-style president named Kennedy, and he made space a national goal. Astronaut Neil Armstrong rode one of von Braun's rockets into space and, on July 20, 1969, became the first man to stand on the moon.

In the tread of his footsteps, the "beep-beep" of that long-dead Sputnik 1 was finally silenced.

7-5 Victory Leaves Phillies Confident

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Husky Greg Luzinski has suddenly learned to talk as powerfully as he swings a bat.

Luzinski belted a two run homer Tuesday night that helped the Philadelphia Phillies take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five game National League Championship Series.

And after the Phillies' 7-5 triumph at Dodgers' Stadium, the 225-pound Luzinski challenged the West Division champions to put up or shut up.

"Personally, I think that if they don't win Wednesday, it's all over, as far as I'm concerned," said Luzinski. "If they don't, they have to win three straight in our park, where we play .750 ball."

The Dodgers' Steve Garvey heard Luzinski's ultimatum and retorted. "Did they shorten the playoffs to the best two out of three? We had a rough day today, but I think we'll bounce right back . . . We'll turn it around."

And Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda observed. "The name of the playoffs is that you still have to win three games to win it. Sure, we wanted to win the first one, but that doesn't mean we're out of it."

The Phillies bristled with confidence after the franchise's first postseason victory since Grover Cleveland Alexander won the first game of the 1915 World Series against Boston.

The Phillies lost the next four to the Red Sox, and were swept in four games by the New York Yankees in the 1950 World Series. Last year they dropped three straight to Cincinnati in the NL Playoffs.

What excited the Phillies was the way they beat the Dodgers, blowing a 5-1 lead in the seventh when Ron Cey blasted a bases-loaded home run, and then coming back in the ninth to pull it out.

Actually, the series opener was decided where many experts said it would be — in the bullpen. After the Dodgers tied it 5-5 in the seventh and knocked out Phillies' ace Steve Carlton, relievers Gene Garber and Tug McGraw contributed 2 1/3 innings of hitless, scoreless relief.

On the other hand, the Phillies raked Dodgers' reliever Elias Sosa for two ninth-inning runs that made the difference.

Sosa retired pinch-hitter Richie Hebner to start the ninth, but Bake McBride singled and Larry Bowa singled. That brought up Mike Schmidt, who had socked 38 homers and batted in 101 runs in the Phillies' drive to the Eastern Division Championship.

Sosa got a strike on Schmidt and then threw a slider down and away that the Phillies' third baseman ripped into left field, scoring McBride from second with the go-ahead run.

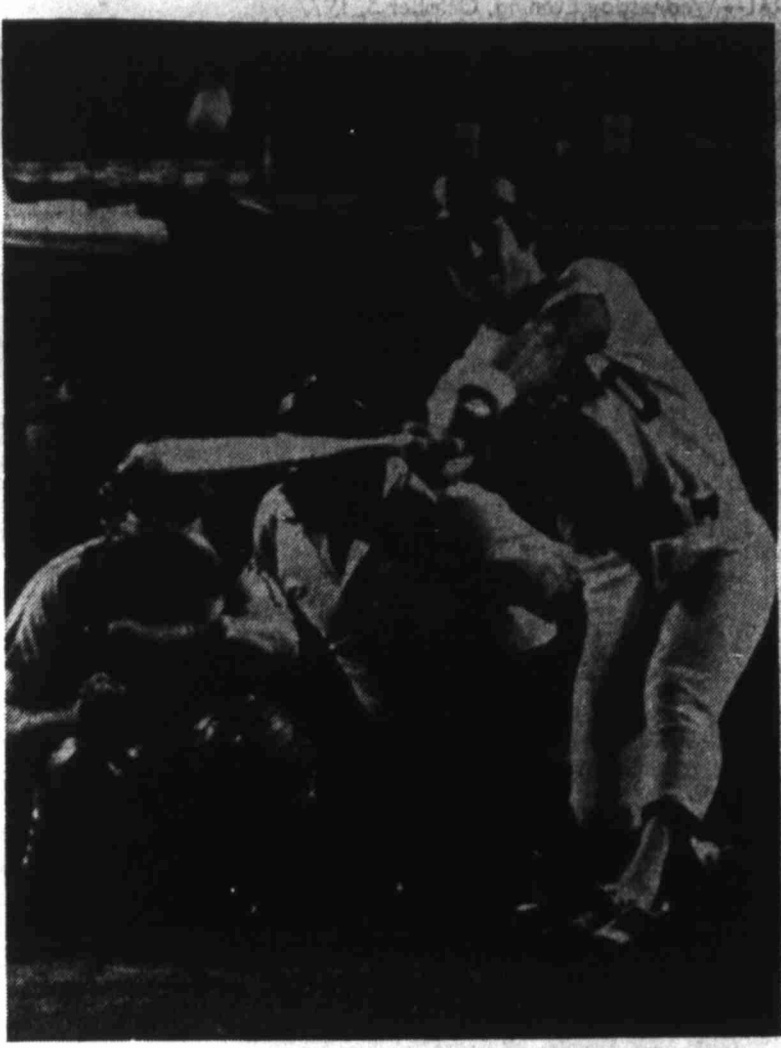

"I was guessing slider," said Schmidt. "And there it was. I had to go out and get it. But when you get the pitch you're looking for you're very fortunate. My concentration was pretty good."

Then, Sosa balked and Bowa, who had

UH Draws One-Year Probation

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston football coach Bill Yeoman and assistant coach Melvin Brown have been reprimanded by UH President Phillip Hoffman after the Cougars were placed on one-year probation for football recruiting violations.

The ruling by the NCAA Committee on Infractions states that the school is banned from post-season play this season and from televised games next year.

After hearing of the NCAA report Tuesday, Hoffman issued a statement which said, in part:

"The University of Houston reprimands head football coach Bill Yeoman and assistant football coach Melvin Brown for violation of their responsibilities in relation to these infractions."

Yeoman, who guided the Cougars to a 10-2 record and Cotton Bowl title last year, spoke tersely in replying.

"I don't have any reaction," Yeoman said. "I'm too old to react. Was I surprised? I'm also too old for surprises."

One violation cited by the NCAA said Yeoman, an assistant coach and a representative of UH's athletic interests, were involved in arranging a loan for the mother of a football prospect. The NCAA didn't name the individual. However, the allegations coincide with the published recruiting efforts to get Darrell Shepard of Odessa.

Yeoman said he asked Brown to check See YEOMAN Page 2

Tackle Play Key To Tech Defense

RODNEY ALLISON WOULD not be in the Texas Tech lineup, leaving the Raider offense a big question mark, so the task for the defense was well defined — pull up more of the slack. As linebacker Mike Mock said — "If we don't let the other team score, we're sure not going to lose."

As it turned out, North Carolina scored seven points, none the fault of the defense, and Tech eked out a narrow 10-7 triumph. In the process, the Raiders allowed the Tar Heels just 198 yards in what was probably their best overall performance of this still-young season.

"The defense played really well against North Carolina," head coach Steve Sloan said. "We've gotten a good performance in all four games."

Defensive coordinator Bill Parcells was pleased, also, saying, "I've got to be pretty happy. If we keep playing like this, we'll be all right."

The play of the tackles has been the biggest key for the defense thus far. Expected to be much improved, they have so far proved the prediction to be correct.

The Raiders use four tackles in each game — Jim Krahl, Curtis Reed, Kim Taliaferro and David Hill. All played last season, so they have added experience. They are stronger, too, and aren't getting knocked off the ball as easily as they did a year ago.

THE HOPE PRIOR to the campaign was that the tackles would play well and take some pressure off the linebacking corps, which was shy on depth and experience and had two players — Mock and Don Kelly — in different spots. So far, reached third on Schmidt's hit, walked home with an insurance run.

Move Not Balk Says Bums' Sosa

"It was not a balk," Sosa insisted. The reliever said umpire Harry Wendelstedt didn't even see the play. "I had stepped off the rubber and then turned to first," Sosa explained. "It wasn't a balk. But what can you do after he calls it."

The Phillies scored four unearned runs off Dodgers' starter Tommy John, 20-7 during the regular season. Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell wore the goat horns.

In the first, Russell threw wild, allowing Schmidt to reach first safely. Then, boom, Luzinski slammed one 425 feet over the center field fence for a 2-0 Phillies' lead.

The Phillies made it 4-0 in the fifth when Russell botched a force play by failing to keep his foot on second base after second baseman Dave Lopes made a fine grab of a hard grounder by Larry Bowa. Eventually, Dave Johnson hit a two run, bases-loaded single for two unearned tallies.

Steve Carlton, who picked off 22 runners while posting a 23-10 record in the regular season, was called for a balk in the fifth that led to Los Angeles' first run. But Carlton singled home one in the sixth to make it 5-1.

Los Angeles loaded the bases in the seventh on a walk, a single by Lopes and a walk to Reggie Smith.

That brought up Cey, who earlier had ended an 0-for-31 streak with a second-inning single. Carlton went to a 3-2 count on the little Dodgers' third baseman. Cey stayed alive by fouling off a wicked slider, then socked a grand-slam homer to tie the game.

"I made solid contact," said Cey who blamed his late season slump on an attack of the flu.

Russell admitted to a case of playoff jitters.

"I admit I was a little nervous when I made the bad throw in the first," Russell said. "In that part of the game I had the jitters. I didn't set myself like I should, and then I threw the ball high."

On the play at second in the fifth, Russell said, "I messed up. That play depends on the umpire. They allow you so much. I couldn't remember at the time if I was on the base. I couldn't believe that I had missed it. They're usually going to allow it."

Phillies' runner Bake McBride thought he was out and had started toward the dugout. But he heard Wendelstedt shout safe and quickly returned to second. It generally is an automatic out call, but not this time.

Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark wasn't as blunt as Luzinski. He wasn't claiming the pennant just yet.

Slam Didn't Help Ozark's Stomach

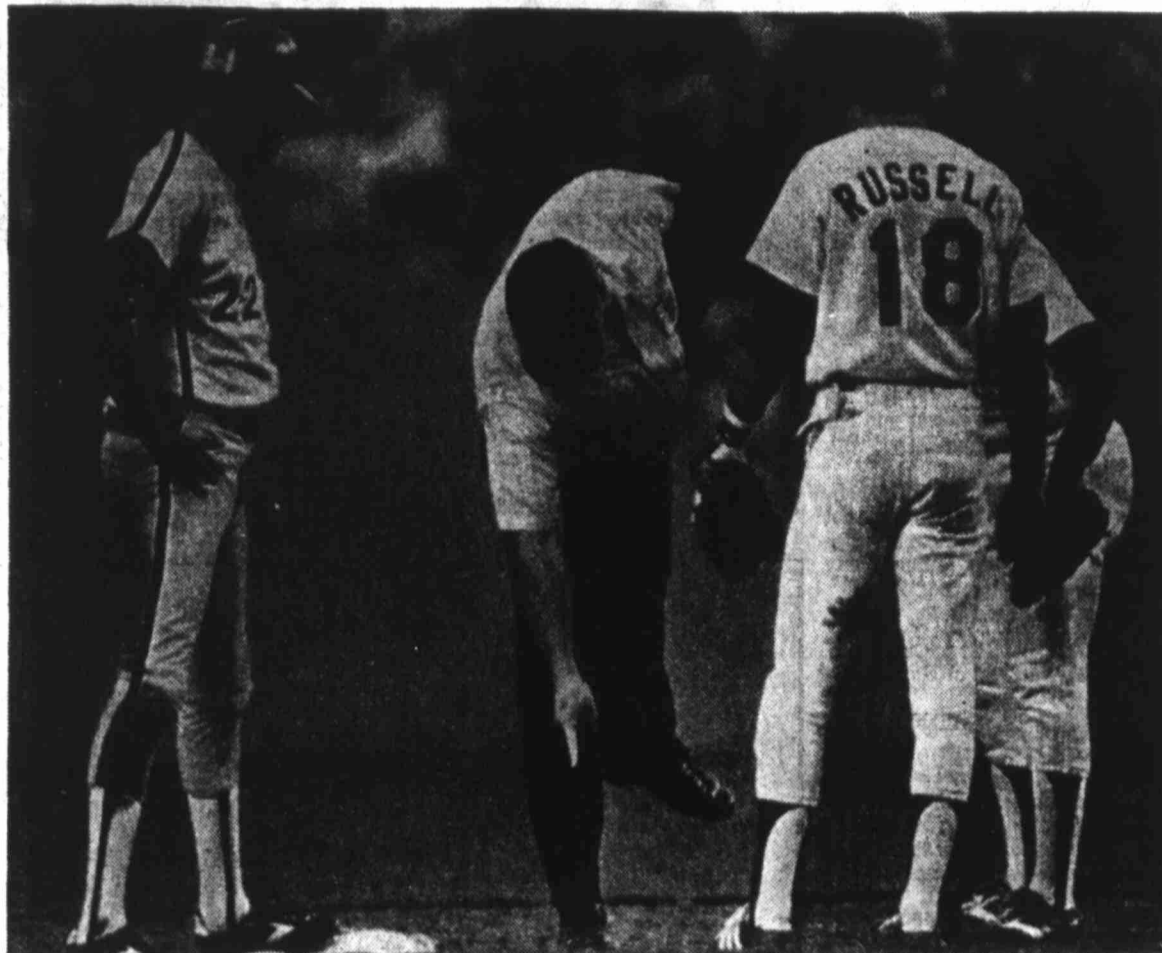

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Greg Luzinski said he went into his two strike stance just before hitting a first inning two-run homer that helped the Philadelphia Phillies to a 1-0 lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League Championship series.

"I shorten up a little on the bat so I can protect the plate," said the 225 pound Luzinski, who hit 39 homers during the regular season. "I take that short, quick stroke."

It also was a powerful stroke. Luzinski skied the pitch from Tommy John 425 feet over the center field fence to give the Phillies a 2-0 lead.

Before the game, standing outside the batting cage, Luzinski was telling reporters how much he liked to hit in Dodgers' stadium.

"The grass is high, the fences have been moved in, and they've turned this into a hitter's park. It's a good park to hit in period," Luzinski said. Then the "Bull" went out and proved with Charles Marino, chairman of the board of the Bank of Brazoria, concerning a loan for Mrs. Shepard to buy her son a car.

"I didn't get involved in any way," Yeoman said. "I didn't check to see if they got the loan and didn't even know if he had the car."

In its second violation, the NCAA charged that Shepard's girlfriend was provided free roundtrip air transportation between her home and Houston. The same aircraft was used to carry Shepard to Houston for his official paid visit and costs for use of the charter were not paid.

"On that one, I turned myself in during the first week of May," Yeoman said. "I thought the rule was different that it was."

The third violation, the NCAA said, involved Shepard being contacted five times by members of the UH coaching staff. Only three recruiting visits are allowed and two must be for signing conference and national letters of intent.

"That's right," Yeoman said. "And I made no attempt to hide it. Nothing was done with any intention to circumvent the rules."

It was the second time Houston had been placed on probation in the past 11 years. UH received three years probation starting in 1966 for various recruiting violations.

Luzinski said the Phillies were able to hit John, the Dodgers' 20-game winner, because the lefthander didn't have his usual pinpoint control.

"And we stayed away from pitches outside the strike zone," Luzinski pointed out.

Luzinski, who has become the Phillies' spokesman in recent weeks, said the Phillies' comeback after Ron Cey's seventh-inning grand-slam homer wiped out a 5-1 lead, showed the type of club the East Division Champions have become.

"We didn't die," Luzinski observed. "We came from behind the way we have all year."

Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark was asked how he felt when Cey hit the grand slam.

"You can't put that into words you can print," Ozark replied. "It didn't help my stomach any. But our guys gave just a little more. They picked it up after that hit."

Lasorda Brothers Renege On Promise

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Lasorda brothers — Eddy, Harry, Morris and "Smoky Joe" — ate crow Tuesday night.

They were so sure brother, Tom, who manages the Los Angeles Dodgers, would win the first game of the National League playoffs against the Philadelphia Phillies, that they promised the mostly pro-Phillies crowd at their Exton tavern free drinks.

The promise fell through, however, when the Phils won 7-5.

"We're Dodger blue," said Eddy Lasorda, 53, who owns and operates the Marchwood Tavern in Chester County with his three brothers.

"We're just down on the first game, we're not down on the series. I still think it's going to be the Dodgers in four. They're going to be there (in the World Series) because of Tommy's determination. He talks to God. He's speaking to the big Dodger in the sky."

Actually, it's surprising the Lasordas are only "Dodger blue" and not Dodger "black and blue."

About 200 Phillies fans showed up at their tavern, which they call the "Eastern home of the Los Angeles Dodgers," to root for the Phils in the best-of-five series.

And the Lasordas, well, blood is thicker than beer so they were solidly behind brother Tom's team.

Eddy Lasorda said he more or less expected a big Phillies crowd at the tavern, where the game was televised in color on a seven-foot screen.

"I'll tell you there are so many bars in this area and people come from 20 miles away just to argue back and forth with us. But they're great customers. We've got pictures of the Dodgers on the wall and the Phillies fans come in here and say, 'Whoa. We want equal time. We'll fix these Lasordas. We'll bring Phillies banners in here.' But they love us and we love them," he said during a telephone interview.

The Lasordas, including brother Tom, grew up in Norristown, Montgomery County, where Tom played semi-pro baseball.

He said when his famous brother arrives in Philadelphia Thursday for Friday's third playoff game, mother, Carmella, will have a surprise for him — his favorite Italian dish, menesta (greens) and beans.

Martin Snubs Holtzman Again

YANKEE STARTER — Don Gullett, who was scheduled to be the starting pitcher this afternoon for the New York Yankees, ties his shoe in Yankee Stadium locker room prior to workout session Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — While other stars are gone but not forgotten, Catfish Hunter and Ken Holtzman were forgotten but not gone as the New York Yankees prepared to open the American League playoffs today against the Kansas City Royals.

Although Hunter had appeared in nine playoff games and eight World Series contests, and Holtzman in five playoffs and eight Series games, Manager Billy Martin said he had no plans to use Holtzman while Hunter would have to await a doctor's report Thursday to learn if he could pitch again this season.

How the mighty have fallen:

- In 1971, Hunter pitched the second game of the American League playoffs for Oakland against Baltimore.
- In 1972, Hunter pitched the opener and the fourth game against Detroit and Holtzman, acquired by the A's from the Chicago Cubs the previous winter, started game 3. In the World Series against Cincinnati, it was Holtzman in games 1 and 4, Hunter in games 2 and 5, and both in relief in Game 7.
- The following season, Hunter pitched games 2 and 5 and Holtzman game 3 of the playoffs against Baltimore. In the Series against the New York Mets, it was Holtzman in games 1, 4 and 7 and Hunter in games 3 and 6.
- In the 1974 playoffs against Baltimore, Hunter was the starter in games 1 and 4, Holtzman in game 2. And in the World Series against Los Angeles, it was Holtzman starting games 1 and 4 while Hunter saved the opener and started game 3.
- By 1975, Hunter had signed a lucrative free agent contract with the New York Yankees but Holtzman still was in Oakland, starting the first and third playoff games as the A's were swept by Boston.

• Even as recently as a year ago, when both were wearing Yankees' pinstripes, Hunter started twice in the playoffs against Kansas City and once in the World Series against Cincinnati. Holtzman, however, was the forgotten man of the pitching staff.

And 1977 was a year to forget for the two veteran pitchers. Hunter compiled a 9-9 mark with a 4.71 earned run average and was tagged for 29 home runs in 143 1/3 innings. Holtzman's record was even worse—3-3 with a 5.78 ERA. His only victories came over expansion teams Toronto and Seattle and he pitched only two innings since Aug. 13.

In fact, both Hunter and Holtzman last worked Sept. 10, the day the Yankees suffered an embarrassing 19-3 rout against the expansion Toronto Blue Jays. Hunter started and was rapped for seven hits and six runs in 3 1/3 innings; Holtzman finished.

Yank Owner Upset At Skipper

By The Associated Press

Billy Martin said he was only half-kidding, but it wasn't funny to his boss, George Steinbrenner.

"What's Billy doing coming up with something like this at this time?" the owner of the New York Yankees fumed after reading the morning paper headlines that his manager planned to demand a new contract if his team should win the American League baseball playoffs and the World Series.

"We're facing a hell of a fight with Kansas City. This is a tough team we're going against. Whitey Herzog has done an outstanding job putting this club together. It's a smooth unit without many weaknesses. We'll have to bust our necks getting through this series."

"That's what Billy ought to be concentrating on. This kind of talk at this stage is absolutely ridiculous. If he thinks he is going to intimidate me or intimidate Gabe Paul (Yankees' president) he's got another think coming."

Brash Billy has done it again. Just when it appeared the Yankees had weathered their intramural problems—inflated egos, sniping and clubhouse bickering—the feisty little skipper with the self-destruct complex throws another monkey wrench into the big, pin-striped machine.

Now there are serious doubts that Martin can survive his $100,000 per year post with the freest spending franchise in the sport even if he manages to take the Yankees all the way.

He continues to dig his own managerial grave. He seems bent on maintaining an adversary relationship with management just as he did with Minnesota, Detroit and Texas after skillfully turning losers into winners at all three places.

At four specific junctures during the regular season, he was on the verge of getting the Steinbrenner axe. Each time he survived, largely through intervention of influential friends at a higher level and a player with whom he had feuded, Reggie Jackson.

Steinbrenner's patience reportedly is wearing thin. But the Yankees' boss insists that no decision on Martin will be made until the end of the playoffs, or World Series, then the final judgment will be left to Gabe Paul.

Martin is finishing the first year of a three-year contract. It was while discussing this contract at a leisurely talk session in his office that he dropped the current bombshell.

"If we win everything," Martin said, "I think it's a must for George to come up with another contract. If he doesn't, I would have to seriously think about asking permission to talk to other clubs."

If Martin was partially kidding, as he said later, the jest did not penetrate his listeners. The New York papers greeted the comment with such an arresting headline as: "Martin Will Demand New Pact If Yanks Win."

Steinbrenner reacted as if he had a gun pressed against his temple. Billy said he didn't mean for it to sound so strong.

"I just noted that Don Zimmer (Boston) and Earl Weaver (Baltimore) had gotten new contracts and suggested I deserved one, too, if we won," Billy said.

Tension still crackles in the Yankees' clubhouse despite outward appearances of calm. The impression is that this calm is preserved only by the team's winning surge and might snap the moment it ends. It continues to be a team in inner turmoil.

Ken Holtzman, a pitcher with two no-hit games during his career, four World Series appearances with Oakland and a five-year contract at $150,000 per year, sits brooding on his locker room stool, wondering when he will pitch again.

ished and yielded three hits and three runs in two innings.

"Right now, I don't plan to use him," Martin said of Holtzman, whose latest activity—he has pitched but 5 1/3 innings since July 15—consisted of throwing for an hour in the bullpen last Saturday and 20 minutes of batting practice Tuesday.

Martin had wanted him to pitch in Sunday's meaningless regular-season finale, but, said Holtzman, "I told him that throwing in the bullpen was probably better than pitching in a game. I also told him you can't sit out for six months and get ready in a day. That's not possible."

"There's no way I'm ready to pitch now. I'm practically in a situation like the fifth or sixth day of spring training. If they ask me to pitch, I'll pitch, but there's no way my control can be right. I hope everyone's okay (starters Mike Torrez and Ed Figueroa have been ailing), but if they're not, they've got to look themselves in the face."

Holtzman's last start was Aug. 13, but he left in the third inning with an upset stomach. And when Martin sent coach Yogi Berra to tell him that he was scheduled for an Aug. 21 start, Holtzman reportedly answered, "I may be sick then, too."

"I've been watching him do his work," Martin said. "He just runs half-hearted-ly."

Hunter, meanwhile, has what originally was described as a burnis but later diagnosed as an infection in the seminal vesicles. Medication was prescribed, and Hunter is scheduled to see a doctor again Thursday.

"I think he'd have to throw some before he can pitch in a game," said trainer Gene Monahan.

"I can't pitch in the first game," Hunter said, "and whether I'm available Thursday night depends on what the doctor says. I last threw in Toronto about 10 days ago. I threw 130 pitches in hitting practice and I felt okay, but it hurt the next day."

Shallowater Hopes To Retain Status As Area Giant Killer

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Eddie Wolski and his Shallowater Mustangs have acquired the moniker "Giant Killer" thanks to that 29-26 victory over Farwell last weekend. At that time, Farwell was ranked No. 2 in the state.

But the Mustangs face two key challenges the next two weeks if they're to retain that distinction.

This week, Shallowater entertains unbeaten Frenship, a Class AA school, and then on Oct. 14, it opens 5-A action against Seagraves, currently ranked as the state's No. 1 team in that division.

"It was a shocker for us, too," Wolski laughed Tuesday, thinking back over the victory. "The kids really played well from the first. Before, we'd been playing two or three quarters each game, but we really put it all together."

"Overall, our kicking game was better because Curtis Lester kicked a field goal that gave us a lift just before the half, and then Pete Alvarado ran the second-half kickoff back for a score and that gave us more momentum."

"And even after they went ahead 26-22, our kids just kept moving the ball on the ground. Rodney Jackson got a quarterback sneak to score on the first play of the fourth quarter, and our defense was able to hold them.

"Actually, we had a lot of standouts. Andy Blackmon passed 70 yards to Clay Dixon for a touchdown and then gained 42 yards rushing, and he had seven unassisted tackles and 18 assists as a middle linebacker. . . Then we got that kickoff return by Alvarado. . . Then Lane Giles intercepted a pass at the 20 with about 53 seconds left in the game to clinch it. . . Tim Reap and our entire defensive line did an outstanding job."

"That (win) certainly helped the attitude a bunch. Plus, we had some leadership to come out Friday night. The week before we fumbled right off (against Hale Center) and they got off to a 17-0 first-quarter lead. After that, we played them tough (in losing 17-12)."

Wolski added, "It's kinda strange, but this is the first year we've been able to win on the road (a 75-0 victory at Sands came prior to Friday's victory), but we can't seem to do too well at home now (losing 22-0 to New Deal in the only home showing)."

"We've got Frenship and then Seagraves, and it just seems like things don't let up."

"Yes, it would be nice (to win those two games), but I just hope we play them well. If we play as good as we did against Farwell, I think we'll stand a chance."

Johnson Working Hard

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Steve Sloan watched intently as Mark Johnson threw pass after pass under leaden skies at the tailend of Texas Tech's Tuesday workout.

"That's good, Mark," Sloan hollered after a completion. But a pass went awry soon after, and Sloan called out, "Extend your arm more."

On and on Johnson threw, and he knows the work is necessary.

"I'd have to say passing is my weakest point right now," said the sophomore quarterback from Corpus Christi, who entered last Saturday's game with North Carolina late in the first half and provided the offense with some spark.

"I just need more consistency, and I need to work a lot more on my techniques. I've had problems when I drop straight back and throw to my left. Then, I either underthrow my receivers or don't lead them enough. I don't have as much trouble when I'm throwing to my right."

The 6-0, 187-pounder quarterbacked for Corpus Christi Ray as a schoolboy, but the team didn't throw much, averaging "about 70 passes a season."

Johnson was recruited to Tech as a defensive back but was switched to quarterback this past spring.

"I couldn't get down the fundamentals of tackling, so I asked to be tried at quarterback in the spring, and they gave me a shot," he said. "I really prefer quarterback, because I played there in high school and like working with the offense."

Johnson was to have been redshirted this season, his true sophomore year, but the injury to Rodney Allison two games ago changed those plans.

"I fully expected to be redshirted," he said. "In fact, I wanted to be. I thought it would be best, because I would then have had a year to learn the system and work on my techniques and then have three years of eligibility left."

But the Raider attack wasn't clicking against North Carolina, and Johnson got the call late in the second quarter. The move didn't take him by surprise.

"This summer, my mother kept telling me that if Rodney got hurt, I'd be in the quarterback picture, so I knew as soon as he was hurt against A&M that I would get more of a chance to play."

"I felt ready Saturday. I was just waiting for the time when they told me to go warm up. I felt confident I could do the job."

The Tech staff hasn't decided whether Johnson or Tres Adams, the starter against North Carolina, will get the starting call against Arizona this Saturday. The two quarterbacks are alternating on the first unit, and a decision on the starter will be made "later in the week," according to Sloan. Both are expected to see action against the Wildcats.

"The situation now doesn't make me nervous, but I feel the pressure to take up the slack and get the offense moving when I'm in there," Johnson said. "Of course, it's all a team effort. If the line is blocking well, that makes all the difference."

NOTES: Sloan and the team welcomed the Tuesday's break in the recent hot spell. "It sure is a lot easier practicing now than when it's nearly a hundred degrees," Sloan said. . . Sloan said that middle linebacker Gary McCright (badly bruised left shoulder), defensive end Andy Thomas (knee) and strong safety Alan Emerson (dislocated kneecap) are all "questionable" for the Arizona game. . . McCright suffered his injury against North Carolina. Thomas was hurt against Texas A&M and Emerson against Baylor. The latter two haven't played since their injuries. . .

Jones, Clark Top A-J Schoolboy Honor Roll

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

A pair of 200-yard rushers—Lockney's Danny Clark and Petersburg's Mike Jones—share top billing this week with Andy Blackmon of Shallowater and Bobby Hemphill of Guthrie on the Avalanche-Journal's honor roll list.

Clark has made a habit of 200-yard games this year, with four to his credit. He managed 232 yards on 29 carries and scored three touchdowns as the Longhorns bested Amarillo River Road 21-3 last Friday.

The honor was the second for Clark this year. He headed the honor roll list after his first 200 effort the second week of the season. He now has 940 yards on 135 carries this year.

Jones is not far behind, although he's only had two 200-yard efforts, gaining 212 yards on 31 carries last week and scoring on runs of 25, 14, 5 and 6 yards in a 33-32 win over Ralls.

Jones now has 151 carries for 916 yards this year and has 1,096 total yards, including receptions and returns for an average of 219.2 yards per contest.

Blackmon hit on six of 13 passes for 130 yards and one touchdown, rushed for 42 more yards and had seven unassisted stops and 18 assists as the Mustangs stunned Class A's No. 2 ranked unit, Farwell, 29-26.

Hemphill gained 99 yards on 17 carries and scored twice, caught three passes for 55 yards and a third score, and returned a kickoff 55 yards for a fourth 6-pointer as Guthrie stunned defending 4-B (Six-Man) champion Harrold 46-25.

Others with outstanding efforts last week include:

- Jeff Whiteside (28-for-149) and Glenn London (19-for-103) accounted for 252 of Friona's 277 ground yards in a 20-18 win over Hart.
- Stanton's Ben Bowlin picked off two passes in a 21-0 win over New Home. Richard Perez gained 144 yards on 24 toles and Bob Jones averaged 7.5 yards a carry for the victors.
- Clarence Davis averaged 15.1 yards on each of his 12 carries as Seagraves bested Ozona 29-6. Steve McCormick carried 13 times for 53 yards and caught a 33-yard pass and Mike Hoover was 12-52 as the Eagles amassed 334 total yards.
- Paul Hatch carried 16 times for 108 yards and Rod Bonham 17 for 112 but Portales still lost to Roswell 26-20.
- Russell Mogan intercepted two passes and David Jones and Eddie Johnson one each as Kress beat Claude 15-0. Jones caught a 65-yard scoring bomb and Johnson led all rushers with 28 carries for 137 yards.

- Albert Rand of Three Way who had 14 carries for 320 yards—including scoring bursts of 50, 55, 68, 39 and 55 yards—caught a 17-yard scoring aerial and returned an interception 15 yards in a 53-8 win over West Texas Christian.
- Odessa's Cal Adams caught passes worth 140 yards and scored twice in a 13-7 victory over Midland Lee.
- Dean Northcutt toted the mail 25 times for 187 yards and two close-in TDs as Muleshoe blanked Abernathy 14-0.
- Johnny Rosemond's seven carries accounted for 119 yards and included a 90-yard scoring gallop but Amherst lost 26-6 to Sundown.
- John Miles rushed for 113 yards and scored on runs of 18, 5, 33 and 49 yards as Sudan waltzed over Happy 41-6.
- John Maberry's 13 carries accounted for 194 yards as San Angelo Lake View blasted Brownfield 36-0.
- Larry Murphy of Idalou wrote his name on the "200-Yard Club" list for the second time, gaining 219 and scoring three times in a 37-0 win over Morton.
- Gene Cleveland carried 14 times for 130 yards, connected on a tailback pass for a TD and scored two others as Jayton toppled Wilson 33-0. Calvin Wilke had 16 carries for 101 yards for the losers.

Linemen Ivory, Perry Head City List

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
It isn't very often that a lineman is able to outline an offensive back. Maybe once in a million or so years.
The majority of time the folks up in Section 9 or 11 just think of the poor old lineman as a set decoration. Nothing more.
Enter Freddy Ivory.
The Estacado defensive end wasn't a decoration Friday night against Dunbar. He was a one-man demolition crew, hitting everything and everyone that happened to get in his way.

Ivory moved from sideline to sideline and from end zone to end zone in the Matadors' 12-0 win over crostown and district rival Dunbar.
When the curtain fell, Ivory had covered two fumbles and collected nine unassisted tackles along the way. The performance earned Ivory the Avalanche-Journal's lineman of the week honor.
"Freddy had possibly the best game he has had for us since he's been at Estacado," coach Louis Kellev said.
Also nominated by local coaches for honor were Terry Parham of Lubbock Christian High, who was in on 16 tackles; Bo Taylor of Monterey, eight tackles and a fumble recovery; Danny McCutcheon of Dunbar, eight unassisted tackles; Steve Gibler of Christ the King, nine unassisted tackles; Danny Jacobs of Coronado, 12 assisted tackles and Chris Smith of Lubbock High, eight unassisted tackles and a fumble recovery.

Honored as the offensive lineman of the week was Chuck Perry of Monterey. The 180-pound end caught four passes from quarterback Ron Reeves for 107 yards in leading the Plainsmen to a lopsided 54-6 win over Hobbs.
Terry Parham of LCHS, Kevin Lusk of Dunbar, Phillip Buescher of CTK, Manuel Escamilla of Estacado, Carl Clawson of Coronado and Mark Vickery of Lubbock High also drew praises from local mentors.

Hutch Hailey, who rushed for 169 yards on 17 carries and scored LCHS's only TD in its loss to Dallas Christian High, was named back of the week.
Hailey edged Kenzie Burrell of Estacado who rushed for 132 yards against Dunbar and threw for the Matadors' first touchdown.
Mentioned, along with Hailey and Burrell, were Robby McDaniel of Monterey, 10-55 rushing and three TDs; Earnest White of Dunbar, John Bouillon of CTK 7-51 rushing; Sam Hickman of Coronado, two touchdowns; and Ricky Moreno of Lubbock High, 3-for-3 passing and one TD.
Coronado's Donny Arterburn notched nine unassisted tackles and made two key open-field stops against Amarillo Palo Duro to be named the defensive back of the week.
Coach Don King said Arterburn's performance was one of the finest he has seen this season.
"If he (Arterburn) hadn't made those two tackles, the runners could have scored easily," King said. "I think they (the stops) were two of the keys in the game."

Also nominated were Lubbock High's Roger Young, Estacado's Jimmy Scott, CTK's Jimmy Durham, Dunbar's Willie Anderson, Monterey's Neal Thomas and LCHS's Shawn Williams.
Williams was the only back nominated who had an interception.

Tech Volleyballers Win

Texas Tech's women's volleyball team defeated Abilene Christian 15-3, 15-6 and topped West Texas State 15-5, 15-10 Tuesday night in winning its parts of the tri-pleheader at the Tech women's gym.
Christy Cotton was Tech's high-point server in each game with 10 points each time.
Tech is now 16-5 for the season after taking the games and the consolation championship at last week's BYU tourney, while ACU is 4-3 and WTSU 5-1.
Tech will next compete in the University of Houston Tournament Friday and Saturday. The Raiders' first game will be at 10 a.m. Friday against LSU.

EHS Girls Post 3-AAA Triumph

Felisa Johnson collected 10 points as Estacado upped its District 3-AAA record to 2-0 with an 11-9, 17-15 win over Brownfield during girls' volleyball action Tuesday night in the EHS gym. EHS is now 11-7 for the season.
Bertha Arrezola had 12 points for the Cubs.
At Sweetwater, the hosts downed Dunbar in 3-AAA 15-13, 15-4, as Janet McVay scored 17 points. Odessa Gamble paced Dunbar with 7 points. The win left Sweetwater 1-1 in district and dropped DHS to 0-2 in district, 2-14 for the year. Also in 3-AAA play, Snyder downed Lamesa 15-4, 9-15, 15-4.
Coronado used the 10-point performance of Rhonda Sproles to record its seventh win of the year, a 15-1, 15-7 decision over Levelland. The Mustangs have sustained nine defeats.

PERKINS

Wanna Tip?

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. What is the inside story on Joe Namath and Pat Haden with the Rams?
—Celia Whitley, Sacramento, Calif.

A. Chuck Knox boxed himself into a corner early in the summer when he said Namath and Haden would compete in the preseason games for the starter's job. Namath then proceeded to hit 42 percent, throw 4 interceptions, and suffer 8 traps. Knox was criticized when he announced Namath was the regular season starter because of experience.

Actually, this was a second season. The Rams are legitimate contenders for the Super Bowl, and in the history of that game the winning quarterback has had less than five years experience on only two occasions. Namath won it in his fourth year, Roger Staubach in his third.

A recent diatribe against Namath by L.A. TIMES columnist Jim Murray may have pulled the Rams together behind Namath. "The Rams needed Namath," wrote Murray, "like Napoleon needed snow... he's turned the Rams into L.A. Jets."

Q. I enjoy turning off Howard Cosell and all the jokers hoopla. I keep the picture and listen to Lindsay Nelson on the radio. I want to know if the radio broadcasts are as successful as I think they are.
—Hal Groves, Louisville

A. The broadcasts are a smash success, carried by 340 stations and the American Forces Network all over the world. The network was organized after a Mutual Broadcast System executive heard a cab driver remark, "I wonder how the TV game is going?"

Q. Can you tell me if any high school other than Cincinnati's Taft High School has ever graduated an entire backfield in pro football?
—Johnny Carlisle, Cincinnati.

A. Your cryptic letter required a call to Taft High. Walter Johnson, Al Johnson, Cid Edwards, and Carl Ward all were backs for Taft in the early 1960s. The first three were starters when Ward was a sub.

We know of no other high school with such a claim, and only one university. (LSU in the 1950s with Cannon, Broadnax, Robinson and Reynolds.)

Q. Whatever happened to the women's lib fight to crowd into the Rhodes Scholar competition? All I know is, they were trying.
—Dan Colter, Miami

A. Chauvinists, beware. Of the 32 Rhodes scholarships awarded this year, thirteen went to women. The girls seem to be upholding the tradition that a Rhodes scholar should have an athletic background. Two of them, Lissa Muscatine and Denise Thal, were roommates, tennis stars, and all-around sports participants at Harvard.

Q. They say there will be a new way of arranging schedules in the NFL next season. Can you explain it?
—Kenneth Edgerton, St. Louis

A. At the end of this regular season, all teams' out-of-division opponents for the 1978 will be determined mathematically according to the won-lost records of 1977. Basically, it will result in the weak playing the weak, and the strong playing the strong. We predict the results, and the reaction of fans, will be so disastrous that the old rotation methods will be resumed for 1979.

EVANSVILLE TRIPLETS — Gary Jones, general manager, resigned.

BASKETBALL
BUFFALO BRAVES — Signed Will Jones, forward, as a free agent.
INDIANA PACERS — Announced they will receive a second-round draft choice, plus cash, as compensation for the Buffalo Braves' signing of former Pacer forward Will Jones.

HIGHLIGHTS

BASEBALL
SAN FRANCISCO — First baseman Willie McCovey, named by two teams a year ago, has been named winner of the National League Comeback of the Year award. The 39-year-old McCovey, a 19-year veteran, hit 280, with 28 home runs and drove in 86 runs for the San Francisco Giants, leading the team in home runs and RBI. McCovey set a new National League grand slam record, hitting two for a career total of 18, moved into a tie for 12th on the all-time home run list with 493 and went over the 2,000 career hit mark.

TENNIS
AMSTERDAM — Tom Okker of The Netherlands defeated Mark Cox of Great Britain 6-7, 6-4, 7-6 to advance to the semifinals in a $100,000 tennis tournament. Loek Sanders of The Netherlands, also entered the semifinals when Italy's Adriano Panatta withdrew because of a back injury. Panatta was leading their match 2-4, 6-4, 2-1. Vilas Gerulaitis of Kings Point, N.Y., ousted Bill Scanlon 6-3, 7-5 and the Nastase of Romania beat Jaime Filiof of Chile 6-2, 6-4 in the other quarter-final matches.

ATLANTA — Top-seed Chris Evert ousted Brigitte Cuypers of South Africa 6-1, 6-1 in the first round of the $75,000 Women's Tennis Classic. In other first round matches No. 8 seed Billie Jean King struggled past 17-year-old Zandee Liess of Daytona Beach, Fla., 7-5, 6-4 and third-seeded Virginia Wade of Great Britain, last year's tournament champion, easily beat Laura DuPont of Charlotte, N.C., 6-2, 6-0.

HORSE RACING
NEW YORK — Great Above, 54.60, captured the feature at Belmont Park by 1 1/2 lengths over Escapade.
BOWIE, Md. — Vodka Talking, 17.60, withstood a stretch rally by Sea Drive and won the feature at Bowie Race Course by one length.

things have worked out in Tech's favor. "The tackles are really helping everybody else, especially the linebackers," Parcels said.

Tech is currently fourth in the SWC in rushing defense with a 143-yard allowable per game and has held three of its four opponents under 150 yards on the ground. Texas A&M was leading the nation in rushing with a 339-yard average, but the Raiders held the Aggies to 140. A year ago, Tech was easier to gain yardage against up the middle.

Tech went into fall practice with just two linebackers—Mock and middle man Gary McCright—who were proven performers, and Mock was adjusting to the strong side after playing on the weak side in 1976. However, Kelly, switched from the middle to the weak side, and weakside man Chris Campbell have gotten better to give Tech four linebackers that are proven.

The depth is still shaky because the other linebackers lack experience, but four is obviously better than two.

KELLY WAS A question mark during fall drills, but has shown marked improvement since the season began.

"He had some success early, and that's helped him gain confidence," Parcels said. "He made some mistakes against Baylor and New Mexico, but still played pretty well. Against A&M and North Carolina, he's done well the whole game."

One of the biggest pre-season question marks was how the Raiders would compensate for the loss of linebacker Thomas Howard, who made many big plays in 1976 with his speed, quickness and general athletic ability. An athlete of his caliber is certainly missed, but Parcels says this year's linebacking group is playing "better, as a group," than last season's.

"Again, that goes back to the way the tackles have been playing," he added.

TECH'S DEFENSIVE ENDS have not played particularly well this season, and this is a source of concern, although Richard Arledge gave an improved performance against North Carolina. Lack of experience has had an effect. Arledge was a starter in 1976, but Olan Tisdale was a part-time player, Andy Thomas and Doug Streater were freshmen and Mark Rose was at linebacker.

Currently, Thomas is out with a knee injury that he suffered against A&M. He is questionable for Saturday's game with Arizona. He was playing well before getting hurt. Parcels said Rose did a good job against North Carolina.

End Harold Buehl was a key man in the Raider success last season, and his departure left a hole as big as Howard's. He had quick feet and a knack for the big play, and the Techs haven't yet compensated for his loss.

The Raiders haven't been getting the pass rush they got from their ends in 1976, and improving the overall pass rush is high on Parcels' list of priorities. Krahl is the best pass-rusher among the tackles.

THE SECONDARY, DESPITE the loss of strong safety Alan Emerson in the season opener, has steadily improved and was a "bright spot," in the North Carolina victory, according to Sloan. "The cornerbacks (Mike Patterson and Eric Felton) played their best games."

Emerson, who suffered a dislocated kneecap against Baylor, is questionable for the Arizona game, but should be back in action soon. He is practicing now.

All in all, Parcels is encouraged by the defense. He feels that a 275-yard allowable per game will usually be enough to win. Currently, the Raiders are third in the conference with a 236-yard norm, just a yard behind Arkansas. Texas, which hasn't played a worthy opponent yet, leads the SWC with a 156-yard figure. Tech has allowed under 250 yards in three of its four games and hasn't yet given up 300 yards.

Hannah, Gray Rejoin Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots' two All-pro offensive linemen have called off their bitter 24-day strike against the team, but none too eagerly.

Guard John Hannah and tackle Leon Gray marched separately and solemnly into the Patriots' offices here Tuesday to meet a 5 p.m. deadline set by the National Football League for returning or "retiring."

The players will take up their contracts squabble with team owner William H. Sullivan Jr. after the season.

"I was very, very, very close... to giving up football," said Hannah at a hastily-arranged news conference.

"I was three minutes away possibly from not playing football," said Gray.

The two walked out Sept. 11 before the final pre-season game. The supposedly-potent Patriots have floundered to a 1-2 record, losing two consecutive games by field goals.

A grim coach Chuck Fairbanks said, "I am pleased they are coming back, for their welfare and for the welfare of the ball club. At the end of the season we will negotiate in good faith."

Hannah said he expects "satisfactory (contract) extensions... can be worked out." Gray issued an apology to fans for "bad feelings" created by the walkout, and he urged them to support the team.

Team owner Sullivan was absent Tuesday, but his effervescent son Chuck, a Patriots lawyer, declared himself "delighted" with the return of Hannah and Gray.

Gray is under contract through 1979, and Hannah through 1980.

The two claim former assistant general manager Peter Hadzary promised new contracts if they made All-pro, but Sullivan denied it.

The walkout was said to have been staged by the players' agent, Los Angeles attorney Howard Slusher. He too, was absent Tuesday, but Hannah and Gray said Slusher told them to make their own decisions.

Last week the NFL's committee of owners and players representatives ruled that Hannah and Gray should honor their contracts.

Cadillac 1978

For more than 75 years, the name Cadillac has stood for excellence. Calling something "the Cadillac of its field" is one of the finest compliments you can pay a product. Through the years... in each generation... there has been a Cadillac right for its day. And now there is a new breed of Cadillac... superbly luxurious, yet engineered for the changing world of today. Announcing... Cadillac 1978.

Behind the great name...a great car.

Here is a car of classic elegance—with all the comfort, all the luxury, all the quality you expect of Cadillac. And yet, the 1978 Fleetwood Brougham (pictured), Coupe DeVille and Sedan DeVille are beautifully agile. Responsive. Lively. Maneuverable. Its luxury all the way—but luxury you can feel good about. Because Cadillac 1978 is designed for efficient use of space and engineered for the changing world of today—while preserving traditional Cadillac legroom and headroom. The luxury leaders have arrived. See them. Drive them. And for another kind of luxury, consider Seville by Cadillac... it stands alone among the world's great cars. And the 1978 Eldorado with front-wheel drive and a flair all its own.

Hoople Picks Arizona Over Tech...

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Upset Specialist

Egad, friends, 1977 has indeed been the "Year of the Upset" in college football and this week will be no exception. In fact we have such a startling prediction for you that we will move right into it without further ado! The Texas Longhorns will stun the Oklahoma Sooners by storming to a 35-24 victory before a packed house in Dallas. The Texas attack shaped by new coach Fred Akers and spearheaded by Earl Campbell will outscore the potent Sooners offense in a real old-fashioned cliff-hanger which will keep everyone glued to their seats until the last whistle. Jove, who will ever forget the Sooners' winning field goal against Ohio State with only three seconds remaining on the clock—ump-kump!

Oklahoma under coach Barry Switzer has won three and tied one with arch-rival Texas, but this is the "Year of the Upset" and Texas will do it—har-rumph!

The Hoople charts show another upset in the offing as Pitt travels to Gainesville to meet the Florida Gators for the first time. Bouncing back from their early-season loss of quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, the Panthers have put it back together behind freshman quarterback Rick Trocano and All-American fullback Elliot Walker and will prevail 36-22—kaff-kaff!

Some other big ones on this week's card find a full-stale in the Big Ten with Michigan visiting Michigan State; Ohio State hosting Purdue; Minnesota taking on Iowa, Illinois at Wisconsin and Indiana journeying to Northwestern.

... But AP Says No...

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN

NEW YORK (AP) — This was a year ago in Dallas, just after the annual Oklahoma-Texas Red River rowdiness. After winning five consecutive games in the series, Oklahoma had to settle for a 6-6 tie, prompting one of the Sooners' coaches to form a "T" with his hands and say: "Tell Darrell we're just calling time out. We'll be back next year."

total score of 104-15, the pick here is... Oklahoma 34-24.

Last week's score, the poorest of the season, was 51 right, 24 wrong and one tie for a .600 percentage, making the season count 211-75-5—738.

Alabama at Southern California: This game was scheduled about a decade ago, probably when Bear Bryant and John McKay were on a golf course somewhere. "I didn't think I'd still be here when I scheduled USC and Tennessee back-to-back," Bryant says. But it's McKay who no longer is at Southern Cal. Oh, well, Alabama probably could beat McKay's Tampa Bay Bucs, but it will be a different story against... Southern California 30-17.

Pitt at Florida: The Panthers expect to have quarterback Matt Cavanaugh ready. Cavanaugh broke a bone in his arm during an opening-game loss to Notre Dame and resumed workouts last week. He wasn't needed against Boston College, but probably will see action this time. It's Florida's home opener and the Gators will be snapping after being embarrassed by LSU last week. Besides, Florida Field can be a snake... Pitt 20-17.

Michigan at Michigan State: Bo Schembecher wasn't passing out any I-told-you-so's after Michigan routed Texas A&M 41-3 last week because what he told everyone about how good the Aggies were didn't jibe with the outcome. The only peep out of Bo this week concerns his secondary. "It hasn't been tested like it'll be tested Saturday," he says. Sure, Bo, but you have a credibility gap in this corner... Michigan 35-7.

Purdue at Ohio State: A long Ohio Stadium day for Mark Herrmann, Purdue's sensational freshman passer... Ohio State 35-7.

Oklahoma State at Colorado: No more non-league patsies for the Buffs. It's Big Eight play the rest of the way... Colorado 28-14.

Nebraska at Kansas State: "I think this is the best Kansas State team I've seen in several years," says Nebraska's Tom Osborne. "They seem to play better in Manhattan and we're gonna prepare just like we were playing Oklahoma or anyone else." That's bad news for Kansas State and good news for... Nebraska 27-13.

Brigham Young at Oregon State: After Gifford Nielsen threw six touchdown passes against Utah State, people wondered what he would do for an encore. What he did was throw five against New Mexico. Obviously, that means only four this week... Brigham Young 28-17.

California at Washington State: It's about time for Jack Thompson, Washington State's "Thrown Samoan," to start throwin' again. Upset Special of the Week... Washington State 24-19.

Mississippi State at Kentucky: Would you believe Kentucky in the Sugar Bowl? The Wildcats begin Southeastern Conference play this week fresh from a 24-20 upset of Penn State and the SEC champ goes to New Orleans. But a hunch here says... Mississippi State 21-14.

Louisiana State at Vanderbilt: The Bayou Bengals haven't won outside Louisiana in 12 games dating back to 1973 and a 51-14 rout of Ole Miss in Jackson. Up-and-down Vandy gave Oklahoma a hard time, then barely squeaked past Wake Forest, played Alabama tough, then was clobbered by Tulane. Go figure it... LSU 27-20.

Illinois at Wisconsin: "I never thought we would ever be 1-3, but we are," Illinois' Gary Moeller said following last week's loss to Syracuse. How about 1-4, Gary? Except that Wisconsin may be looking ahead to Michigan, so let's try this as the second Upset Special... Illinois 26-22.

Dartmouth at Yale: Where there's a second Upset Special, can a third be far behind... Dartmouth 13-10.

Other games:

MIDWEST — Ball State 20, Illinois State 15; Bowling Green 23, Toledo 21; Drake 17, Indiana State 14; Eastern Michigan 21, Ohio U. 14; Minnesota 28, Iowa 14; Missouri 24, Iowa State 20; Miami, O. 31, Marshall 14; Central Michigan 20, Northern Illinois 14; Indiana 25, Northwestern 13; Western Michigan 22, Kent State 21.

SOUTHWEST — Jackson State 25, Arkansas-Pine Bluff 14; Baylor 27, Southern Methodist 17; Arkansas State 20, Lamar 8; Texas Christian 3, Rice 2; McNeese State 17, Texas-Arlington 14; Texas Southern 28, Alcorn State 13.

FAR WEST — Texas Tech 24, Arizona 14; Idaho 28, Idaho State 26; Arizona State 22, New Mexico 20; New Mexico State 26, West Texas State 17; Washington 28, Oregon 20; Hawaii 23, Pacific 12; San Jose State 14, Santa Clara 12; UCLA 26, Stanford 24; Colorado State 27, Texas-El Paso 17; Wyoming 24, Utah 21.

THE ROCKIES — California 26, Washington State 24 — Charles Young, following in tradition of good California quarterbacks, has led surprising Golden Bears to 4-0 record and No. 18 spot. Faces strong challenge at Washington State, which has own QB strength in Jack Thompson.

THE FAR WEST — Stanford 19, UCLA 15 — No line on this game because of injuries but Stanford should triumph at home even if QB Guy Benjamin, injured in last week's victory over Oregon, can't play.

Akers has made some changes, and it's no longer the War of the Wishbones.

"What they're doing now is lining up in multiple offensive formations and trying to make the big play by throwing the football a lot more," says Oklahoma's Barry Switzer. "They line up in a lot of different things."

Oklahoma doesn't. The Sooners stick to the Wishbone and they usually stick it to the opposition. Quarterback Thomas Lott, who makes them go, got his first starting assignment in last year's Texas game. A scared sophomore, he now is a juiced-up junior.

And for that reason, even though Texas has beaten three nobodies by a combined

... And So Does UPI

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bear Bryant and his eighth-ranked Alabama Crimson Tide travel to Los Angeles Saturday to provide top-ranked Southern California with its first major test of the season.

Southern Cal solidified its hold on the top spot this week with a 41-7 rout of Washington State Saturday and Alabama outlasted Georgia 18-10 to move into the No. 8 spot.

The Crimson Tide, led by quarterback Jeff Rutledge and wide receiver Ozzie Newsome plus a fleet of runningbacks, is 4-1, losing only to No. 7 Nebraska. But Nebraska's only loss was to Washington State, victims of the Trojans last week. That may serve to give Southern California more confidence against Alabama.

The Trojans will prove too big, too fast and too deep for Alabama. The pick: Southern Cal 27-13.

Here's a look at the rest of the nation:

THE EAST — Florida 36-14 losers to LSU last week, not as good as some people like to think. Pitt, which may get injured quarterback Matt Cavanaugh back this week, is better.

Navy 26, Air Force 21 — A battle of first-rate quarterbacks, Navy's Bob Luszczynski versus Air Force's Dave Ziebart.

Yale 17, Dartmouth 14 — Yale, again Ivy League contender, should send Dartmouth to its first defeat.

Penn State 42, Utah State 13 — Penn State rebounding from loss to Kentucky which sent Nittany Lions from ranks of unbeaten.

THE SOUTH — LSU 33, Vanderbilt 19 — LSU tailback Charles Alexander should get his fourth straight 100-yard game. LSU coming off big win over Florida which moved team to No. 19.

Kentucky 24, Mississippi State 21 — Kentucky upset Penn State last week and may be surprise of season. Derrick Ramsey, Kentucky's large QB, can pass as well as run.

Georgia 14, Mississippi 16 — Mississippi could win if it game was in Athens, Ga. Georgia gave Alabama tough battle last week.

North Carolina 17, Wake Forest 7 — North Carolina hurting from injured quarterback Matt Kucop but Tar Heels still have too much for Wake Forest.

Auburn 28, North Carolina State 15 — Auburn coming off victory over Mississippi and playing at home. NC State also had big win last week, downing ACC champ Maryland.

THE MIDWEST — Ohio State 48, Purdue 24 — Purdue, like most of Big 10, rarely bothers Buckeyes. Ohio State may not be extended again until Nov. 19 against Michigan. Only problem here will be Purdue QB Mark Herrmann.

Michigan 26, Michigan State 13 — Second-ranked Michigan will make it five straight with triumph over state rivals. Look for Marion Hickey and Russell Davis to have big day on the ground.

Wisconsin 31, Illinois 2 — Wisconsin 4-0 and undefeated. Next week, Badgers will be 5-0 and undefeated.

THE MIDLANDS — Colorado 27, Oklahoma State 13 — No. 5 Colorado will cruise to its fifth victory without a loss. Oklahoma State lost 25-17 to Florida State last week.

Nebraska 25, Kansas State 14 — No problem for No. 7 Nebraska.

Missouri 17, Iowa State 14 — After slow start Missouri came back to upset Arizona State.

THE SOUTHWEST — Oklahoma 17, Texas 16 — No. 3 and No. 4 Texas has top-scoring offense in country but third-ranked Oklahoma, with offensive punch from Elvis Peacock and injury-free QB Thomas Loft, should prevail.

Baylor 28, SMU 17 — Neither team challenging in Southwest Conference but Baylor has just enough to edge SMU.

Arizona State 21, New Mexico 13 — Arizona State coming off tough loss to Missouri but never has much trouble with New Mexico.

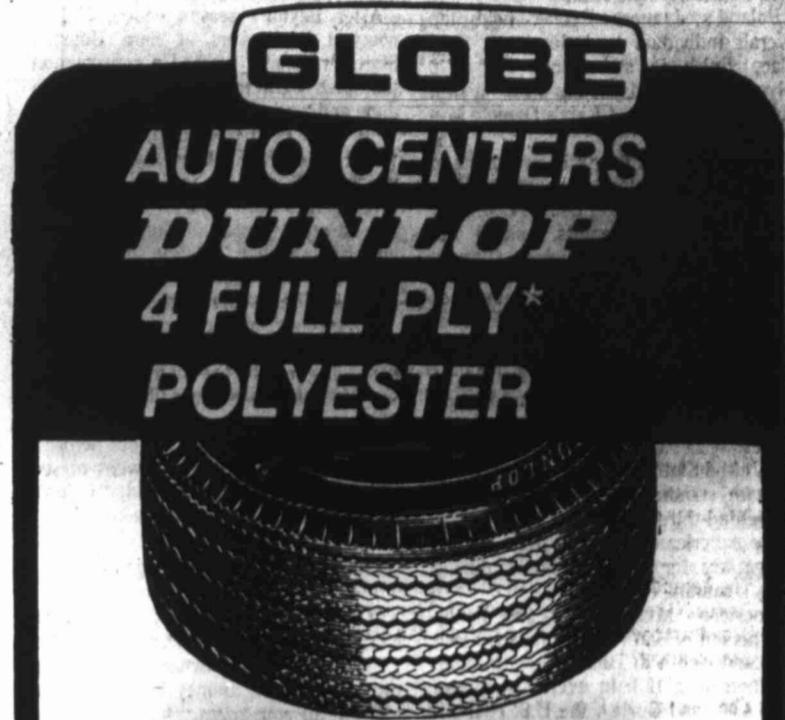

THE ROCKIES — Brigham Young 28, Oregon State 17 — Lots of offense, especially by BYU's QB Gifford Nielsen.

Texas Tech 24, Arizona 16 — Texas Tech beat North Carolina last week after big loss to Texas A&M. Arizona coming off loss to Wyoming.

Wyoming 26, Utah 7 — Utah no resistance and Wyoming defeated Arizona last week.

THE FAR WEST — California 26, Washington State 24 — Charles Young, following in tradition of good California quarterbacks, has led surprising Golden Bears to 4-0 record and No. 18 spot. Faces strong challenge at Washington State, which has own QB strength in Jack Thompson.

Stanford 19, UCLA 15 — No line on this game because of injuries but Stanford should triumph at home even if QB Guy Benjamin, injured in last week's victory over Oregon, can't play.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible. I Peter 4:18-19, 5:1-12A, The Living Bible. 18 If the righteous are barely saved, what chance will the godless have? 19 So if you are suffering according to God's will, keep on doing what is right and trust yourself to the God who made you, for He will never fail you. CHAPTER 5 1 And now, a word to you elders of the church. I, too, am an elder; with my own eyes I saw Christ dying on the cross; and I, too, will share His glory and His honor when He returns. Fellow elders, this is my plea to you: 2 Feed the flock of God; care for it willingly, not grudgingly; not for what you will get out of it, but because you are eager to serve the Lord. 3 Don't be tyrants, but lead them by your good example, 4 And when the Head Shepherd comes, your reward will be a never-ending share in His glory and honor. 5 You younger men, follow the leadership of those who are older. And all of you serve each other with humble spirits, for God gives special blessings to those who are humble, but sets Himself against those who are proud. 6 If you will humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God, in His good time He will lift you up. 7 Let Him have all your worries and cares, for He is always thinking about you and watching everything that concerns you. 8 Be careful—watch out for attacks from Satan, your great enemy. He prowls around like a hungry, roaring lion, looking for some victim to tear apart. 9 Stand firm when he attacks. Trust the Lord; and remember that other Christians all around the world are going through these sufferings too. 10 After you have suffered a little while, our God, who is full of kindness through Christ, will give you His eternal glory. He personally will come and pick you up, and set you firmly in place, and make you stronger than ever. 11 To Him be all power over all things, forever and ever. Amen. 12 I am sending this note to you, through the courtesy of Silvanus, who is, in my opinion, a very faithful brother. I hope I have encouraged you by this letter for I have given you a true statement of the way God blesses.

Pentathlon

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Neil Glesnek of San Francisco swam the 300-meter in 3:16.50 to lead the United States to a first-place in swimming in the 1977 World Modern Pentathlon Tuesday.

Glesnek was more than three seconds faster than his nearest opponent, Zbigniew Pacelt of Poland, a member of the 1972 Polish Olympic team.

Poland's Januś Preciak held the overall individual lead despite a 16th-place finish in swimming. The 1976 Olympic gold medalist has 4,243—a slim eight points ahead of Italy's Daniele Musala.

The Italian took fourth in swimming to jump from fifth place and supplant Pavel Lednev of the Soviet Union. Lednev is fourth with 4,182 points, behind Poland's Slavonir Rotkiewicz. Glesnek went from 17th to fifth, with the addition of 1,300 points for his first place in swimming.

Poland remains in first place in the team standings with 12,585. The Soviet Union is second with 12,293, and Hungary is third with 12,216.

Tuesday's swimming victory moved the United States from seventh to fourth in team standings with 11,977 points—219 behind third-place Hungary.

The Americans hoped to overtake the Hungarians for a bronze medal during today's running event.

Americans Mike Burley and Sandy McPherson of San Antonio finished seventh and eighth in Tuesday's swimming. McPherson is 18th in overall standings with 4,005 and Burley, the U.S. champion, is 28th with 3,851.

U.S. swimmers also controlled the water in the junior division. Harvey Cain was first with 3:20.30 for 1,272 points. Terry Alexander finished fourth with 1,236 points.

The Americans' top finish moved them into third place in the junior division with 11,961 points. The Soviet Union kept the junior division lead with 12,302 points. Sweden is second with 11,931—15 ahead of the United States.

Dickerson Cited

By The Associated Press
Ohio State ran 88 plays last Saturday night against Southern Methodist and linebacker Champ Dickerson stopped 31 of them.

"I imagine Champ will make Ohio State's All-opponent team," said SMU coach Ron Meyer.

Dickerson, a 6-foot-3, 210-pound junior college transfer from Henderson County, had 19 solo tackles in the 35-7 defeat. His performance earned him The Associated Press Southwest Conference Player of the Week award.

"Champ was all over the field and played a great game when you consider how large an offensive line Ohio State has," said Meyer. "He really stuck those Buckeye runningbacks."

"He is definitely an All-Conference candidate in my book."

Meyer said "Dickerson is the type of athlete we want to build our program around."

Dickerson won a starting linebacker spot in spring training and was elected co-captain by his teammates, unusual since he had never played in a regular season game.

He is from Pearlman and was an All-American in junior college.

Shane Nelson

BUFFALO (AP) — Like his movie namesake, who rode into town just in time to save the homesteaders' land, Shane Nelson has come from Texas to rescue the Buffalo Bills' injury-riddled linebacking corps.

Nelson, a free agent from Baylor University who asked the Bills for a trial this summer, was pressed into starting duty after linebackers Merv Krakau, Bob Nelson and John Skorupan were injured.

Nelson, who speaks with a Texas drawl and hits like a Hereford bull, leads the Bills in tackles and assisted tackles after their first three games.

"When he came to camp, we thought he had all the physical qualities to be a pro linebacker, but we just hoped we wouldn't have to use him as quickly as we did," admitted coach Jim Ringo.

"Shane's been a pleasant surprise."

He's done very, very good for us," Ringo added.

Nelson, a powerfully built 6-footer, said after being passed over in the National Football League draft last year, he was more worried about making the team than starting.

"I wasn't really thinking about starting. My first goal was just to make the team. I know I've still got a long ways to go as a free agent," he said.

After Baylor's season ended, Nelson coached linebackers at Sam Houston State University, worked a construction job, then went to his parents' home in June and worked out on his own.

"It never even crossed my mind that I would get drafted. I knew my height, my weight (220) and the fact that I missed three games with injuries would count against me. My goal all along was to try out as a free agent," Nelson said.

Nelson's teammates tease him about his down-home southern accent.

"Everybody up here says, 'You guys,' and I say, 'Y'all' he noted and his first name, inspired by the Alan Ladd character in the western film classic, "Shane."

"The movie had just come out before I was born, and my parents went to see it," explained the 22-year-old. "I don't know, the name just struck them."

Playboy Suit

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Novelist Norman Mailer's 1975 Playboy article, "The Fight," has spawned a fight of its own but this big money bout will take place in the courtroom.

The article is the subject of a $1 million damage suit filed against the writer and Playboy Enterprises Inc. and deals with a remark Mailer wrote about prize fighter Elmo Henderson's sanity.

Henderson, 42, the plaintiff in the suit, lives in this Texas coastal community.

"The Fight" is a story about the 1974 Muhammad Ali-George Foreman heavyweight title bout in Zaire.

Mailer wrote: "Foreman had a sparring partner named Elmo Henderson, once Heavyweight Champion of Texas and not too recently released from Nevada State Hospital for the insane."

The article appeared in Playboy's May issue. A retraction appeared in the October 1975 issue pointing out that Henderson had not been a patient in the hospital.

According to pleadings filed in federal court, Mailer described Henderson in the original article as "some kind of lean wanderer in motely," and added, "The long stride of the medieval fool was in his step."

Henderson claims that due to Mailer's article, he "has and will continue to suffer a tremendous amount of embarrassment, humiliation and mental agony, and will further be deprived of his means of earning his livelihood as a professional boxer."

Rice Owls

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rice placekicker Wes Hansen, who had been one of the few healthy players on the team, sprained his right ankle kicking in practice.

"There is no way to explain all this," said Rice head coach Homer Rice. "Maybe we're being punished."

Hansen, who is five of five in extra point kicks and two of five in field goal tries, should be ready to play Saturday when the Owls host the Texas Christian Horned Frogs in a Southwest Conference game matching winless teams.

Texas Aggies

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Texas A&M coach Emory Bellard Tkesday said he would "accept the blame" for the Aggies not playing up to par in Saturday's 41-3 loss to Michigan.

"There's no question in my mind — and I think our players will agree — our team was much, much higher for Texas Tech than it was for Michigan," said Bellard. "I know our players wanted to play well at Michigan but we committed too many mistakes and the game got out of hand in the third quarter."

"We're certain there's not that much difference in Texas A&M and the University of Michigan football teams," he said. "But anytime our players don't perform to their capabilities, then it's my fault and I accept the blame."

UTEP Fullback Claims Hump Finally In Sight

EL PASO (AP) — Senior Robert Elliott says his Texas-El Paso football team, which has been hammered into submission 28 times in the past three seasons, isn't over the hump, but at least the hump is in sight.

And the lanky fullback has one hope — that he'll see a winning season this year. Elliott, at 6-2 and 195 pounds, has been a starter for the Miners for four seasons and is destined to leave UTEP as its career rushing leader. He's just 127 yards away from breaking that mark, 2,321 yards set by Pug Gabriel from 1947 to 1950.

Akers Reminds Fans UT Defense Young

AUSTIN (AP) — When Texas coach Fred Akers scanned a list of possible defensive starters for his first Longhorn team, he noted that only one had ever started.

"We had only one player to build around — Brad Shearer," says Akers, who is preparing his squad to meet the swift and powerful Oklahoma Wishbone-T offense Saturday.

The game matches the No. 2 team, Oklahoma, and No. 5 Texas in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. Both are 3-0.

Oklahoma has survived tough tests with Vanderbilt, Ohio State and Kansas, while Texas was walloping much weaker Boston College, Virginia and Rice by a cumulative score of 184-15.

Shearer, a 250-pound tackle who has been touted for All-American, and fifth-year linebacker Morgan Copeland are the only seniors on the first-team Texas defense, which has not been scored on.

During the past three years, which saw the Miners tally 4-7, 1-10 and 1-11 records, Elliott was the focal point of the offense — the man called on to carry most of the load.

He's rushed for 2,196 yards with seasons of 66, 896 and 861 — despite missing some games each year because of injuries.

"We're not over the hump by any means," he said after last week's 23-21 defeat of New Mexico State. The victory snapped a 14-game losing streak.

There are seven sophomores and two juniors.

"We have a young, young defense and they will face a stiff challenge against a team as experienced and efficient as OU," says Akers.

Although the opposition has not been impressive, Texas defenders have been, allowing only five points and 38.3 yards a game rushing. At halftime Saturday, Rice had 11 rushes for minus 21 yards as Texas ran up a 47-0 lead.

Texas' secondary was rated near the top nationally until Rice freshman Randy Hertel withstood a terrific pounding to complete 18 of 45 passes for 260 yards and two touchdowns.

"We were concerned with our lack of experience," says Akers, "but we're pleased with the way they're coming along. The fact that we haven't been hampered by injuries has been a big plus."

MHS Falls Two Spots In Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Those fanatical, banner-waving Port Neches-Groves football fans have something else to cheer about this week—the Indians, who have won 30 of their last 31 games, have returned to the No. 1 position in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Resting comfortably in the runner-up position so far this year, the Indians of coach Doug Ethridge moved atop the AAAA list this week after Sherman, the leader a week ago, was tied 14-14 by Plano.

The rest of the No. 1's, Gregory-Portland in AAA, Bellville in AA, Seagraves in A and Wheeler in B, held onto their top billings for another week.

Few fans in a football-crazy state give more support to their team than the Port Neches-Groves backers, who bought up all 4,334 season tickets for Indian home games.

The Indians played before an average of 30,000 last year in four playoff games. They lost to eventual state champion San Antonio Churchill in the semifinals. That loss ended a 25-game winning streak.

Port Neches-Groves has a 43-5 record over the past three seasons, including a state championship in 1975 and state semifinals in 1974 and 1976.

Sherman topped from the No. 1 spot to fourth this week and Temple, No. 3 last week, stepped into the runner-up spot after blanking rugged Conroe 10-0.

La Porte, which is starting to look like a playoff team after rebuilding under coach Carroll Lundin, moved into the No. 10 spot this week with a 4-0 record, replacing No. 9 San Antonio MacArthur, which fell to Seguin.

Lubbock Monterey tumbled two notches in the 4A listers to seventh despite belting Hobbs 54-6. (However, that score was incorrectly carried across the state as 56-4.)

House To Study NCAA

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has launched an investigation into the National Collegiate Athletic Association and what one committee member calls the organization's unchecked authority to ruin the careers of those it governs.

Rep. John E. Moss, chairman of the House oversight and investigation subcommittee, said last week his panel would probe alleged abuses by the NCAA in disciplining its 844-member institutions. Public hearings are expected to be held later this year.

Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., requested the probe after the NCAA placed the basketball program at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas on two years probation.

"From the evidence I've seen so far, it is apparent that this problem goes far beyond the University of Nevada-Las Vegas," Santini said on Tuesday. "There are serious national implications involving a number of institutions."

"The NCAA possesses unbridled authority to ruin the careers of athletes, destroy coaches' professions and deal staggering blows to the athletic reputation to member institutions," he said.

Santini said he was concerned that the NCAA had "become arbitrary and indifferent in some of its practices."

"We're not trying to bring down the NCAA," said a Santini aide. "We just want to protect the athletes, the coaches and the institutions."

In Kansas City, NCAA executive director Walter Byers said, "The NCAA, of course, will be delighted to cooperate with the committee and provide pertinent data on the issues outlined by the committee. Naturally, we hope that the committee members will approach these subjects in an objective manner and not try to champion particular infraction cases."

The NCAA has come under scrutiny by several congressional panels in recent years, including the President's Commission on Olympic Sports and the Senate Commerce Committee which looked into the organization's relationship with the Amateur Athletic Union.

Moss, D-Calif., said his panel will try to determine whether the NCAA policies violate antitrust laws, whether its investigative methods provide for due process and whether the penalties assessed to member institutions, athletes and coaches are fair and equitable.

Moss said he had received evidence from Las Vegas concerning alleged abuses of authority by the NCAA as well as reports of similar problems from other major universities.

Weaver Named Top Manager

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baltimore Orioles mentor Earl Weaver has been named Major League Manager of the Year in a poll conducted by The Sporting News magazine.

The St. Louis-based publication said that other managers picked Weaver for doing the best job under the most trying circumstances. Because of the new free-agency rule in baseball, Weaver lost four frontline players during the off-season, including outfielders Reggie Jackson and Don Baylor, pitcher Wayne Garland and second baseman Bobby Grich.

Despite those losses, the Orioles were in the American League's Eastern Division championship race until the last three days of the season.

Other managers receiving votes were Whitey Herzog of the Kansas City Royals, Bob Lemon of the Chicago White Sox, Herman Franks of the Chicago Cubs, Tom Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Billy Martin of the New York Yankees and Gene Mauch of the Minnesota Twins.

World Match Play Event Opens Run
 VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Tom Watson admitted he was tired and slightly stale today as he faced four gruelling days of 36 holes of golf a day in his bid for the World Match Play title.
 The $225,000 tournament, featuring 16 players this year instead of the customary eight, is the toughest test of stamina on the year's golf schedule.
 "At this stage of the season it's hard not to feel a little stale," said matches three weeks ago.
 "This is my next-to-last tournament. I go to Japan next week and then I'm finished for the year."
 "Thirty-six holes a day? It'll get me fit for Japan."
 The tournament, in its new format on Wentworth's 6,969-yard "Burma Road" course among the trees, carries a prize of $52,500 for the winner. The 16 players clash head-to-head and the losers in each round are eliminated.
 Even the first round losers pick up $8,075 each.

High Tar No Longer Essential To Taste.

Tests prove low tar MERIT delivers flavor of higher tar cigarettes.

For years, it seemed the only way to get real taste from a cigarette was to smoke a high tar brand.

High tar cigarettes had an "exclusive" on taste.

Today, all the standards are changing because of a new taste breakthrough called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT is packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco fortified with certain key flavor-rich ingredients isolated in cigarette smoke and proven to deliver flavor way out of proportion to tar.

Kings: 8 mg. "tar," 0.5 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Dec. 76
100's: 12 mg. "tar," 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Test Data Conclusive

MERIT and MERIT 100's were both tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes. Thousands of smokers were involved.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.
