Carter Hints Of Gasoline Rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Describing oilmen as potential war profiteers in the energy crisis, President Carter said today the nation will risk "the biggest ripoff in history" unless Congress approves his embattled energy program.

Carter said if he doesn't gain passage of an acceptable energy bill, the White House has other options — and gasoline rationing is one of them.

The President also told a nationally broadcast news conference that his forthcoming tax reform program will include tax reductions. He didn't say what they would be or how much they would save the taxpayer.

"I am not trying to put all of the blame on the oil companies," Carter said. "Part of the blame falls on the American people. We are wasting too much energy."

At the same time, Carter left open the possibility that he might seek to break up the giant oil companies. "I'm not trying to threaten anybody or use a club," he said. "Whether or not divestiture is needed is a matter which I've not decided."

Carter said his energy program is "fair, it's well-balanced. It assures that the City Council Curbs Critic In Hassle Over Bond Suit

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

While reading a statement that implies the city has violated charter provisions governing the sale of bonds and their proceeds, City Hall critic Jimmy Marshall today was cut off by the council on the grounds his comments involved pending litigation.

Before Marshall, who was slated for a five-minute citizen appearance, began his talk, Mayor Roy Bass cautioned him that nothing dealing with a pending lawsuit could be discussed.

The mayor referred to Marshall's effort to have a May 21 bond election declared void. Marshall's request for a new trial in the case was rejected Monday by 99th District Court Judge Thomas Clinton and is being appealed.

With measured tones and careful emphasis, Marshall read part of his statement before being ruled out of order by Bass. The mayor's ruling came on the advice of councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, who said the remainder of Marshall's prepared statement dealt with issues raised during Monday's hearing.

During that hearing, Mrs. Jordan was grilled by Marshall's attorney about uses of bond proceeds and the creation of interest and sinking funds as provided by the charter.

Because essentially the same points were included in Marshall's statement, Mrs. Jordan said, they should not be discussed at the council meeting. The issues raised by Marshall will be included in his appeal, she explained.

Marshall vigorously denied that anything he proposed to say in his statement, copies of which were given to council members, referred to the pending lawsuit. "I'm not talking about any bonds here," the irate Marshall said. "I'm just trying to read this prepared statement and I've been interrupted."

Noting that the council members and news media have copies of the statement or access to it, Bass adjourned the council meeting for lunch, leaving Marshall standing speechless at the lectern.

After his confrontation, Marshall said he only wanted to make "damned sure" that the council members knew what the article in the charter says.

"I don't think it's being complied with," he explained.

He added that he may ask for another citizen appearance later.

Council members also approved the annexation of about 160 acres from 98th Street south to 106 Street between Memphis and Indiana Avenues. The annexation also includes 660 feet east of Indiana Avenue and 150 feet west of Memphis Avenue, between 98th and 106th streets.

The land proposed to have been annexed 418 acres that would have extended south from 98th Street to 144th Street. But after hearing opposition from homeowners who live south of 106th Street and who don't want to be included inside city limits, council members amended the proposal.

Later today the council was to consider halting automatic fuel cost pass-throughs for natural gas and electricity consumers. As proposed, the ordinance would not only appeal the automatic feature, but would prohibit all pass-throughs.

West German Airliner Hijacked By Terrorist

ROME (AP) — A West German airliner with 92 persons aboard was hijacked today by a gunman who demanded the release of "all comrades detained in West German prisons."

The Lufthansa plane was seized on a flight from the Spanish island of Mallorca to Frankfurt. It first landed in Rome, where the hijacker gave his demands to Italian police. Then it took off for Nicosia, Cyprus.

The plane had been refueled while the man negotiated with the Italian police.

According to airport sources, the German government had asked that the plane be delayed until more could be learned about the motives of the hijacker. But then it took off after the hijacker broke off contact with negotiators.

Police said the man spoke to officials in the control tower of the Rome international airport in broken English and identified himself as Walter Mohammed.

A police spokesman said the man failed to elaborate on his demand for the release of prisoners. The spokesman said the hijacker's English was poor and they could not understand all he said.

The plane had 86 passengers and five crew members plus the hijacker aboard, police said. They said the man pulled a gun on the crew as the plane overflew the Riviera and ordered it to fly to Rome.

Early speculation in West Germany linked the hijacking with the terrorist kidnaping of German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer more than a month ago. He is still missing.

Schleyer has been held since Sept. 5 by members of a German Red Army faction who demand the release of 11 jailed comrades, nearly $500,000 and safe passage out of West Germany.

The terrorists complained in letters to European newspapers that the West German government was stalling on their demands.

Italian police with armored cars surrounded the plane, while air traffic at the airport continued regularly.

Police said the hijacker relayed a demand through the crew that the plane be refueled. Police rejected the demand and asked the man to tell them his plans and to identify himself.

Teenager Arraigned In Murder Of Girls

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — The 16-year-old son of a former state labor leader was arraigned in a locked courtroom today on charges of stabbing three young neighbor girls to death. One of his lawyers said the youth was mentally unable to help in his own defense.

Stuart Kreiner did not enter a plea to the three counts of first-degree murder at the arraignment in nearby Harundale. Lawyers did not ask Anne Arundel District Judge Robert Heise to set bail, so the youth remained held without bond, charged as an adult.

As Kreiner was arraigned, funeral services were being held in nearby Glen Burnie for the three girls he is accused of killing — Deborah Ann Hogan, 10; her 8-year-old sister, Theresa; and their friend, Ann Marie Brzszkiewicz, also 8.

Heise told reporters, who had been ushered into another courtroom across the hall and then locked out of the chamber where the arraignment was held, that Kreiner remained silent during the brief session.

"He was advised of the charges against him," the judge said. "He did not say a word."

The judge said the tall, slightly built Kreiner was accompanied by two lawyers and "several other men." He said he did not know if the boy's parents were present.

Kreiner, a high school junior, was arrested Wednesday.

Bodies of the three victims were found Monday, lying face down in a shallow stream in the Southgate housing development where they and the Kreiners lived. They had each been stabbed repeatedly in the chest and back, an autopsy found.

Heise said outside the courtroom that defense lawyers told him they were not requesting bond because of "the seriousness of the offense," their lack of knowledge of the boy and his family, and the fact that Kreiner is not "at this point able to assist in the preparation of his defense." He did not elaborate.

Later, in a tape recording of the court session played for reporters, attorney J. Edward Davis said he and other defense lawyers are "in our own minds at this time confident that the defendant is not even competent to assist in the preparation of his defense."

"We're suggesting strongly that he be ordered to undergo psychiatric examinations."

The judge said no motion was made for psychiatric tests of the defendant. He said he told the defense lawyers they could ask him to order such tests if they wanted them.

Authorities, who would not disclose whether they had found a motive for the killings, said two of the girls had been stabbed through their parkas at least 40 times each.

Although police had said earlier that they suspected the killer was someone in the victims' Southgate neighborhood, news of young Kreiner's arrest shocked neighbors.

"I knew they were looking for someone in the neighborhood, but I never dreamed it could be Stu," said C.G. Morningstar, who lives across the street from the Kreiner family.

"He's a good kid," said Morningstar. "He works hard and doesn't run around like some teenagers. He used to cut our grass. I don't have a son, but if I had one, Stu's the kind I would pick out."

Mennonites Given Okay

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said today that the heads of 31 Mennonite families, out of 142 who have settled in the Seminole area, have received U.S. Labor Department job certification and are well on their way to becoming permanent U.S. residents.

Bentsen said he is optimistic that similar certification will be granted to the remainder of the Mennonites well in advance of a Jan. 31, 1978, possible deportation deadline set by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS).

"It appears at this point that all of these industrious Mennonites, who came here from Mexico and Canada, are going to be allowed to stay in this country, and that it won't take special legislation to get the job done," he said.

"My office has been working closely on this matter with local officials in Seminole, with the Mennonites themselves and with representatives of the Labor Department and the INS. Department had approved labor certification applications for 31 of the Mennonites, that they expect to receive and process that many or more applications next week and that the remainder should be along in short order," the senator said.

The Labor Department grants job certification to an alien after ascertaining that: 1. The individual has been offered a job. 2. The wage scale complies with U.S. wage laws. 3. The individual will not be taking a job away from an American citizen or another permanent resident.

The certification is a prerequisite to obtaining permanent visas from the INS.

Next step in the process is for the INS

Harding Hits County Procedures

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas' new state treasurer says the way Lubbock County officials pay checks and keep their books is "horrible, dangerous and flat-out illegal."

"I'm familiar with the financial procedures of counties across this state, and so far as I can determine, Lubbock is the only one that exhibits such a flagrant disregard for the constitutional system of checks and balances," Warren G. Harding said.

"As state treasurer, I don't think the laws permit me to order the situation to be straightened out. But I would strongly urge the Lubbock County Commissioners Court and the district attorney to consult the state attorney general and bring Lubbock County into compliance with the statutes and constitution of Texas," he said.

Harding said the "most obvious violation" here is that jury checks are issued without the signature of the county treasurer and are delivered, not by the treasurer, but by the county and district clerks.

"That kind of foolishness has been ruled illegal time and again by the attorney general. The constitution clearly states that the county treasurer is the only person authorized to disburse county funds," Harding said.

He also said that the check-and-balance system in Lubbock County government is "severely lacking" because claims for payment are not registered in the treasurer's office as they come in.

And Harding deplored the fact that the county treasurer here is not the custodian for the county's certificates of deposit and other monies, and that warrants and checks are not disbursed by the treasurer.

"It's a pitiful situation to exist," he said. "I'd be derelict in my duties to the people of Lubbock County if I did not warn them how dangerous and illegal this thing is."

Harding, 56, who was appointed state treasurer last week after the death of Jesse James, made his remarks in a telephone interview from Austin with The Avalanche-Journal.

Lubbock County Treasurer Connie Nicholson has been trying since she was elected three years ago to have the constitutional duties of county treasurer put under her office.

County commissioners, however, have kept most of those duties under the county auditor. When questioned, they fall back on a court order issued 15 years ago by the late Dist. Judge Victor H. Lindsey.

Lindsey's controversial ruling held that the commissioners court is the custodian of county funds, and that whatever rules the commissioners set — such as the issuance of jury checks without the treasurer's signature — are all right.

County Judge Rod Shaw said he respects Harding's opinion. But, Shaw added, "The present procedures (of Lubbock County finances) were set up in compliance with Judge Lindsey's decision."

Shaw said the commissioners court "knows Mrs. Nicholson is concerned about the situation. But because of the judicial decision we're under, I don't think anything can be done."

However, Harding — who has followed the local dispute for decades — questions the validity of Lindsey's order. And, he said, even under the order, "Lubbock County must comply with the law. There is no question that some of the things Lubbock is doing, such as issuing jury checks without the county treasurer, are flat-out illegal."

"Mrs. Nicholson was duly elected by the people of Lubbock County to fulfill the duties of county treasurer. She ought to be allowed by the commissioners court to carry out that function," Harding said.

Harding comes to the state treasurer's post after 27 years as Dallas County treasurer.

Mark Rudd Enters Guilty Plea To Criminal Trespass Charge

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Rudd, who spent seven years hiding from the law as a radical student fugitive, pleaded guilty today to a misdemeanor charge stemming from the 1968 student takeover of buildings at Columbia University.

Rudd, 30, who had been free on recognizance since surrendering Sept. 14, still faces felony charges in connection with 1969 demonstrations in Chicago.

Appearing in Criminal Court before Judge Milton L. Williams, Rudd, 30, a onetime leader of the radical Weather Underground, pleaded guilty to a charge of criminal trespass. He received no sentence.

The plea was part of a deal under which the district attorney's office dropped two other misdemeanor charges, bail-jumping and obstruction of governmental administration.

Nancy Ryan, an assistant district attorney in Manhattan, said the arrangement had the "consent and acquiescence" of her office.

For his guilty plea to criminal trespass charges, Rudd could have been sentenced to 90 days in jail, given one year on probation or fined $1,000.

In November, Rudd must go to Chicago to face felony charges stemming from the 1969 demonstrations known as the "Days of Rage." Rudd also is free on recognizance on those charges.

As he has since he voluntarily surrendered here on Sept. 14, Rudd refused to talk with the media or discuss his years as a fugitive.

Asked by Williams if he wanted to make a statement, Rudd said, "No."

Other than his guilty plea, his only other statements were to assure Williams that he had not been coerced into pleading guilty and that he understood the possible sentence he could receive.

Arrest Brings $300 Fine

HOUSTON (UPI) — The man at the center of an alleged police brutality controversy earlier this year has pleaded guilty to evading arrest in that incident.

Demas Benoit Jr., 22, Wednesday was fined $300 by County Judge Nick Barrera. Prosecutors said a second charge, illegally carrying a pistol, will be dropped.

Benoit pleaded guilty as he was about to be tried for a March 11 chase that Assistant District Attorney Bill Camp said covered nine miles, 12 stop signs, 14 signals and a pair of roadblocks.

The chase, which also involved 20 patrol cars and a police helicopter, ended at Benoit's home where he, his parents and a rookie officer on the scene said he was brutalized by the arresting police.

Then chief B.G. Bond investigated the incident and decided there was no brutality and that the rookie officer had overreacted. But Bond limited the number of cars that could be involved in a chase to two.

His plea was certainly justified, Camp said. "Any reasonable jury would have convicted him of evading arrest."

But any allegations about violation of civil rights may properly be brought in federal court. And certainly our office will not condone any violation of those rights.

Benoit, whom Barrera also sentenced to three days in jail canceled by credit for time already served, could have received up to six months in jail and a $2,000 fine.

Smith Discloses Net Worth

By ANDY WELCH
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Preston Smith today filed a public financial disclosure statement with the Secretary of State's office, challenging other candidates for governor to do likewise.

Smith contended his net worth is between $300,000 and $800,000, depending upon whether original cost or market value data is used.

By contrast, Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill, the other two announced candidates for governor, are both millionaires.

Smith also told a capitol press conference that the Sharpstown scandal, which surfaced during his last term as governor in 1971, should not be an issue in the 1978 campaign.

"I have been investigated by every appropriate grand jury... district attorney... governmental body and investigative reporter since 1972. Not even Bert Lance or John Connally were given such scrutiny," Smith told reporters.

"No irregular conduct was found by any of these people, but through innuendo, guilt by association and a rush to judge, my reputation was unjustly tarnished," he said.

During his 30-minute press conference, Smith regularly attacked Briscoe, but had little to say about Hill.

"Briscoe seems to want as little involvement with people as possible," Smith charged. "He apparently prides himself on being unavailable."

The former governor also said Briscoe has "tremendous" oil, land and bank holdings, although the present governor's wealth "is rather difficult to assess" without full disclosure.

Briscoe generally is believed to control more land in Texas than any other person, with ownership of more than 300,000 acres and leases of around 700,000 acres.

Smith also contended Hill would have "problems" in campaigning for governor, contending the attorney general is "inexperienced in government" and lacks a solid name identification.

Some political observers have argued that Smith entered the race as a "spoiler," although there is disagreement on whether his campaign will detract from Briscoe or Hill.

But Smith said today, "I entered the race as a winner — not a spoiler," saying he could run a winning campaign on $250,000. Briscoe boasts of campaign pledges and contributions of $1 million while Hill started his race with $500,000 in cash. Smith says he has now raised about $10,000.

Wife Of History Professor Aids Fight For Equal Rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An irony in Nancy Neuman's life is that in crisscrossing the country on behalf of legal equality for women she runs into the sort of social ights no law would end.

"A man goes into a restaurant and it is assumed he is hungry and wants to eat," she says.

"A woman goes into a restaurant alone and the maitre d' wants to seat her next to some creep. Or it is assumed she is there to pick someone up."

Mrs. Neuman has spent a lot of time alone in unfamiliar cities. To avoid such situations, she's consumed a lot of meals alone in hotel rooms.

Last summer she was named by the League of Women Voters to spearhead a drive to raise $1 million for a final push to win ratification of the equal rights amendment (ERA) — a cause that hasn't been going well.

Congress fixed March 22, 1979, as the deadline for approval by the required 38 states. So far, 35 have ratified, but only two since 1975.

In Washington, $1 million sounds like small change. But in grassroots politics, it means a lot of kitchen labor — cocktail parties and bake sales. So far, $625,000 has been pledged by league chapters.

In an Illinois community, it meant a $17.50 "Mom, Apple Pie and ERA" dinner. In Harrisburg, Pa., it meant a softball game between league members and the staff of a radio station.

Across the nation, the League of Women Voters plans to sell ERA necklaces. It already went the ERA bracelet route.

Mrs. Neuman, wife of a Bucknell University history professor at Lewisburg, Pa., and mother of three children, says she learned equality from a lifetime of Sundays spent listening to her preacher father's sermons from pulpits in Greenwich, Conn., Orange, N.J., Springfield, Mass. and Pasadena, Calif.

On the road for equal rights, Mrs. Neuman runs into just enough examples of inequality to keep her going.

She recalls leading a delegation to lobby a Pennsylvania state legislator. He kept them waiting. Most had left by time he arrived, breezily asking: "Where have all the girls gone?"

Her first job was working for a brokerage house — running the mimeograph machine even though she had a college degree. She worked up to a responsible position. When she left, her replacement, a male, was hired at triple her salary.

Mrs. Neuman says she is still optimistic that ERA will pass by the deadline, which is seven years after Congress approved the amendment in 1972. (It could be extended by Congress and ERA strategists are beginning to look into that.)

Four states — North Carolina, Florida, Oklahoma and Illinois — have been targeted as the best bets. Most of the $1 million "war chest" will be spent in them for field organizing, polling, lobbying and propagandizing.

"The amendment lost by two votes in Florida, two votes in North Carolina, only a handful in a number of states," Mrs. Neuman says. "Basically, I think there are 20 people in this country who are holding up equality."

But, she says, "liberated" women must share in the blame for ERA's troubles, too.

"So many women who have made it as professors or as professionals don't have the feeling they should put the ladder down for other people just coming along," she says. "They just don't do anything about it."

Gov. Dukakis Encourages Use Of Alternative Energy Sources

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Massachusetts and the nation have a long way to go in developing alternative energy systems that avoid "massive utilities or massive investments," according to Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

Former Rail Firm Plans New Venture

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central Transportation Co., which went out of the railroad business in 1970, has asked for approval of a reorganization plan to continue operating hotels, pipelines and amusement parks.

The plan first was proposed last December and then substantially amended in May. This week the company asked U.S. District Judge John Fullam to give the final go-ahead on the plan.

The plan envisions that debts totalling more than $3.2 billion will be settled.

Conrail and Amtrak, created by Congress, took over the trains, tracks and stations of America's largest privately-owned railroad after the Penn Central found it couldn't pay its bills. It was the largest bankruptcy action in America.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. John Brodlee said that the federal government supports the plan.

Price Claggett, attorney for Penn Central, said if the plan is rejected, "the next step would be a straight bankruptcy, a liquidation."

Penn Central has sizable real estate holding in a dozen states, including three hotels in New York City. It operates amusement parks in Louisiana and Texas and an oil refinery in California.

Among objectors was Herbert Glickman, New Jersey deputy attorney general, who argued it is unconstitutional for a reorganization plan to fail to pay all taxes due in cash.

Officials from New York, Illinois, Ohio and representatives for the Cleveland school board and the city of New York shared that position.

Fullam said he may make a decision by the end of the year.

French Leader Shows Gains Among Voters

PARIS (UPI) — A new poll shows that the popularity of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing is surging, reducing the chances that the feuding Communists and Socialists can take power in next March's elections.

A poll in the newspaper Quotidien de Paris showed that if a presidential election were held now, Giscard d'Estaing would win 52 per cent of the votes and his opponent, Socialist Party leader Francois Mitterrand, would take 48 per cent.

The figures contrasted sharply with polls in past months, in which 52 per cent of those polled said they would vote for the Communist-Socialist coalition in the crucial parliamentary elections.

Communist party leader Georges Marchais intensified even further the recent rift between the Communist and Socialist Parties over how many companies to nationalize if they win in March.

In a 52-page report, Marchais said, "Since the first of the year the Socialist Party has been turning to the right. Its refusal to come to an agreement on our common program constitutes the most spectacular episode of this turning."

The leftist squabbling and the new polls have been greeted with jubilation by Giscard d'Estaing's supporters.

Jean Lecanuet, president of the Center Social Democrat Party, said on television, "The hour of the Center has come."

Lecanuet predicted that centrists who had voted in the past for Socialists will "perceive the impossibility of the Communists and Socialists to govern and will turn their hopes toward" his party.

Premier Raymond Barre said jubilantly, "The future cannot belong and does not belong to the 'prince of ambiguity,'" referring to Mitterrand.

"The shadow has begun to lift, first from the eyes of foreigners who were asking if France would go sooner or later to an adventure, and above all from the eyes of the French, for (the leftist rift) has shown the fragility of the Socialist Party," Barre said.

Shadows To Be Used To Locate Viking I

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Where on Mars does the Viking I lurk?

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory this week released photos of the shadow of the Martian moon Phobos as it passed over the surface of the red planet.

The Viking I lander, a robot scientific station, has been perched on Mars since July of 1976, with its orbiter circling the planet.

Alternative energy equipment provide new business opportunities and new jobs in Massachusetts and New England, aiding economic recovery, Dukakis said in a speech to a regional solar energy conference.

"We're not talking about massive utilities or massive investments, but about small business," he said.

Dukakis noted recent predictions that alternative energy industries could create as many as 11,000 new jobs in New England during the next decade.

"We have a long way to go before we in Massachusetts can say we're doing all we can for developing alternative sources of energy," Dukakis said.

"If we have a long way to go in Massachusetts, my sense is the rest of the nation has an even longer way to go. Too many people still don't really believe we have an energy problem."

He pledged full support from state government to provide aid for businesses attempting to market alternative energy systems.

Speaking to about 100 persons, Dukakis said President Carter's energy package is in trouble in Congress because the nation's people have not accepted the facts of the long-term energy crisis.

After Dukakis' opening address, participants at the day-long conference discussed the financial and technological aspects of alternative energy. Most of those attending were involved in the region's developing alternative energy industry.

Carter Policies Blamed For Market Weakness

DALLAS (UPI) — The former chairman of the Securities Industry Association says the weak stock market is being caused by "confusion and disappointment" in the Carter administration's economic policies.

But I.W. Burnham II said the market and interest rates would improve in 1978.

Burnham, a frequent expert witness before Congress and the Securities and Exchange Commission, said the current economic woes can be blamed on a "feeling of confusion and disappointment in Europe and the U.S." on administration policies. He also said a "logjam of the legislative process" had contributed to the problem.

He said Carter's energy bill, "disruptive statements to foreign governments," rumors about a possible new tax bill and an excessive concern with inflation also had combined to create a weak market.

However, Burnham said he was "very encouraged that a Democratic Congress is acting so sensibly."

Burnham, chairman of the board of Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc., said Congress's energy package would be reasonable, and said even if a tax bill were passed in 1978, he expected it to be sensible.

He said the SEC should conduct a review of the entire securities industry in an effort to ascertain whether the industry is moving in the direction the administration and the Congress intended.

Burnham said the number of securities firms nationwide have been reduced by mergers imposed by competitive rates in the securities industry.

New Products, Advertising Boost Corporations

NEW YORK (UPI) — Advertising can indeed work miracles — providing you first create something worth advertising.

Then it can change a sound but rather lackluster business into a jet-powered giant in record time.

Take examples from opposite ends of the business world: Hanes Corp., of Winston-Salem, N.C., an old southern hosiery and underwear manufacturer, and J.C. Penney Co. of New York, a chain retailer.

Each has improved its sales and earnings dramatically in recent years by creating new products and selling them by large scale advertising directly to consumers.

Hanes most widely known product now is its L'eggs pantyhose sold mainly in food and drug stores.

Despite the fact the retail hosiery market has shrunk more than 10 per cent since 1971, Hanes hosiery sales have grown by 7 to more than 14 per cent a year and its share of the market from 15.7 per cent to around 26 per cent. Along the way, Hanes' volume soared from $176 million to $372 million and its profit from $3.5 million to $18.4 million.

According to President Robert E. Elbertson, Hanes did this by climbing into the middle of the country's 100 largest national advertisers with outlays of $59 million in 1976.

Penney was in thirty-fifth place with $81.6 million in national advertising expenditures, although the $8.35 billion sales retailer is primarily a local advertiser. Although it has cut its outlets by more than 100, Penney sales have climbed from $3.75 billion since fiscal 1970.

Both companies created new products to be sold directly to the consumer to give the company a nationwide image, then spent the money to do it in a fairly dramatic way.

Hanes set up a complete new distribution system for its pantyhose, with a national fleet of 600 trucks to call on the stores and replenish unique L'eggs display stands.

"We also had to create a distribution strategy to fit the needs of varying tastes in different cities, and often different tastes in different neighborhoods of the same city," Elbertson explained.

He said Hanes also gave retailers a financial edge to compensate for comparatively low markups. The retailer collects for the hosiery as it is sold, but doesn't pay Hanes until after the driver comes around to replenish the stock in the display stand.

This, of course, is a mass-marketing operation. "We are not interested in anything that smacks of high fashion — in fact, we're a little afraid of it," Elbertson said.

Penney, adopting a similar strategy, chose the automotive parts aftermarket. General retail chain stores were increasing their share of this market anyway, but Penney executives decided it wouldn't be enough just to put the Penney name on a line of parts and advertise them heavily. They would have to work with manufacturers to produce some dramatic new products that would fascinate consumers.

First, Penney turned up a new corrosion-proof battery that never has to be refilled and is guaranteed to last the life of a car. Next they introduced an Aramid plastic radial tire that boosted Penney tire sales sharply, and again enhanced the company's image as producer as well as a retailer.

The latest new Penney product to get this heavy national advertising support is a premium grade shock absorber designed to give a soft ride on the highway, but automatically compensate when the vehicle ventures on rough ground.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, Oct. 13, the 286th day of 1977 with 79 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Jupiter, Mars, Venus and Saturn.

There are no evening stars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Spanish King Ferdinand VII was born Oct. 13, 1784. Actor Cornel Wilde was born on this date in 1918.

On this day in history:

In 1775, the Continental Congress ordered construction of a naval fleet, thus originating the U.S. Navy.

In 1937, Germany promised Britain and France it would not violate the neutrality of Belgium, a promise later broken.

In 1943, Italy declared war on Germany, her Axis partner earlier in World War II.

In 1972, in the worst civil air disaster in history at that time, more than 170 persons were killed when a Russian airliner crashed near the Moscow airport.

A thought for the day:

Scottish novelist Robert Louis Stevenson said, "Man is a creature who lines not upon bread alone, but principally by catchwords."

John Wayne Named Campaign Chairman

LOS ANGELES (UPI) Actor John Wayne, 70, who battled with lung cancer in 1964, has become honorary chairman of the Los Angeles County Lung Association's Christmas Seal campaign.

"Wayne has accepted the chairmanship of our campaign because of his concern with the increasing problems people in the Los Angeles area seem to be having with the simple act of breathing," said Dr. Charles Mittman, president of the Christmas Seal agency.

New Virus Possibly Beneficial

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A man-made virus created at the University of Arizona could lead to a breakthrough in the fight against genetic diseases, researchers report.

H. Vasken Aposhian, a biology department head here, said this week the virus could serve as a delivery vehicle for DNA molecules, which carry genetic traits.

DNA cannot be injected directly, Aposhian said, because it is destroyed by the body.

"With the man-made virus, we now have a potential drug-delivery system for DNA that we've been looking for since 1967," Aposhian said.

Defective or missing genes cause hereditary illnesses such as sickle cell anemia and cystic fibrosis. Researchers believe the ability to replace defective genes would be a big step toward eliminating those illnesses.

"Our group has shown that in a test tube, empty virus capsules can be made to trap inside of them a piece of DNA that is approximately the size of one gene," Aposhian said.

The research involved mouse cells that were infected with a virus called polyoma. A new cell culture, the man-made virus, resulted.

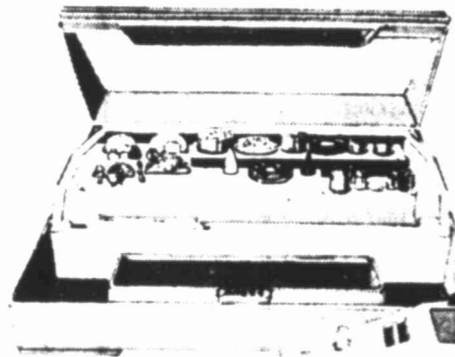

Aposhian said it is hoped that human genes could be inserted into the new virus culture, which would then "infect" human cells that lack certain genes.

The next step in the project is to see whether the new virus can inject genes into animal cells growing in the laboratory.

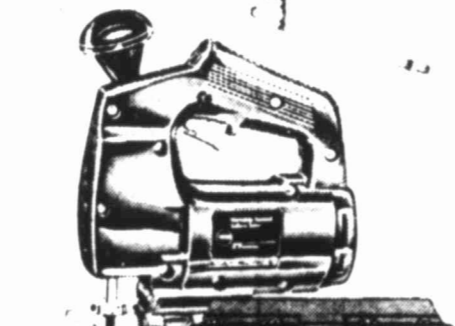

Aposhian said he first reported the breakthrough last week at a meeting of biomedical experts at the University of Indiana.

Propane, Electricity Protects American Inmates In Mexico

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) — Ten American inmates caught in a bloody prison riot say they saved themselves by improvising weapons and barriers with tanks of propane and electrical transformers.

"We have a tank of propane which we are going to convert into a flame thrower," inmate John Miller, 28, of Tucson, Ariz., said Wednesday. He said the Americans want to be ready for further prison violence.

The more than 48 hours of rioting that killed at least 14 inmates is over, but guards have not retaken the entire prison, and most inmates still carry the makeshift weapons they used in the battles, Miller said.

Miller said all 10 American inmates at the the Oblatos jail managed to avoid the clashes between rival gangs that sell drugs, protection and foodstuffs inside the prison.

"I took a transformer from the lighting system and rigged it to the bars of the door to our area," he said. "That put 600 volts on the door, and if anybody tried to break in, we have two buckets of water by the door which we can pour underneath to electrocute him."

"When the guards heard about it they said it was a good idea," said Miller, who has been in prison 40 months awaiting trial on charges of gun smuggling.

Miller and fellow inmate Rick Sunderman, 42, of Hollywood, who also has served 40 months awaiting trial on marijuana charges, told UPI in an interview in the prison director's office that by Wednesday the guards had not dared enter the entire prison area.

They said the rebel prisoners still had the knives, pickaxes, icepicks, sharpened hunks of steel, lead pipes and chains — all used in the battle.

Some prison officials said there will be an assault on the prison to retake the entire facility, but he did not say when. Visitors were allowed into the prison, but reporters were barred.

Sunderman said that on Monday, when the riot broke out, a prisoner in a neighboring cell was firebombed, stabbed more than 100 times and his body mutilated. He said the inmate eventually was dragged from his cell "like a cord of wood and dumped at the front gate."

One of the warring gangs comprises members of two leftwing terrorist organizations, officials said.

A&M Corps Regains Popularity

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas A&M Corps of Cadets, the traditional but dwindling heart of the College Station campus, may be headed for a new wave of popularity, according to the university's new president.

But Dr. Jarvis Miller, a former Corps member, says he is under no illusion that the ROTC squad will soon regain its dominance in Aggieland.

"The attractiveness of a military career has faded," Miller said. "Vietnam hurt the image of the military with students and they don't want that type of discipline."

"But we're seeing some of it changing," he added. Miller, in Dallas for the first time since being named president two months ago, said he hopes the Corps will increase to a membership of 3,000 from its current 2,200. Texas A&M has grown to more than 29,000 students.

"The Corps is still a very fundamental part of AM. It has an influence out of proportion to its size," Miller said. "It's still a foundation around which so many things on the campus revolve."

The new president was a member of the elite Ross Volunteers squad of the Corps while an A&M student.

"It's a basic group that preserves many of the campus traditions. They are good models for other students and stimulate spirit," he said.

Miller added that school officials are emphasizing a new program using Corps members to recruit new members.

"The Corps still offers the same incentives it used to. We stress the advantage of leadership development. It's a bonus in an education," he said.

The president also said the A&M student body is changing as the school continues to draw a greater number of students from the state's urban areas. Miller said the urban students, however, exhibit the "old fashioned values" Aggie officials are accustomed to seeing in small town students.

A&M is also seeking to increase its minority enrollment. Miller said the university is attempting to reach minority students who are leaving the state to go to college.

CANINE HERO VISITS FAIR — Young admirers at the Texas State Fair get a glimpse of Meatball, the German Shepherd named dog hero of 1977. CB Convac

By INK DIPPER

Handles have seemed to be a part of CBing. At least they were during the late '60s and early '70s. Veteran CBers tend to use their own first names and required call signs for identification.

Recently, though, New York's Lottery Director John Quinn had a CB installed in his car to make his commute between New York City and Albany less boring. He selected an apt handle: "Daddy Warbucks."

It is quite appropriate since, under his direction, the New York State Lottery has made 10 individuals into millionaires. You'll remember that the Daddy Warbucks of Little Orphan Annie fame was noted for generously dispensing money to lucky individuals. He was tall and very bald in the comic strip. So, too, is John Quinn.

Out in Phoenix, Ariz., there's a new name on Channel 9: NITRO. A group of volunteer CB operators and amateur radio fans have formed an emergency team to monitor the channel for calls for help. They call themselves the National Independent Trained Radio Operators.

All of which leads up to one of the pet peeves of this column: the handles became sort of chic in the days when CB was exploding, these ripoff artists ran ads in all the magazines telling CBers they could protect their handles from infringement by others by simply registering their handle for a fee. For anything from $5 to $25 the diligent CBer got a piece of paper worth absolutely nothing, a wallet card which supposedly identified the holder as being the only CBer with that particular handle, and a wall certificate.

The whole package adds up to a cost of $1 at most, probably including postage.

Certainly handles were colorful and added to the fun of CBing in those early days. But the registries were patent phony. They served no worthwhile purpose. But, like so many things that happen, they thrived for a while as a result of sincere (if naive) CBers who were into the hobby.

Luckily, now that those CB pioneers are veterans, the fad has gone and the use of the Citizens Band Radio is truly a personal communications medium that is effective and highly worthwhile. Handles may ultimately be remembered like hoola hoops. And the registries will wind up in rusted file cabinets in unused garages. It was, and is, a ripoff.

In Amarillo, a murder trial has been in progress for several weeks. It is particularly significant to folks in that area because it has all the ingredients of a dime novel: a millionaire accused of shooting his wife's lover in their mansion. As the testimony was approaching a crucial point last week, the jury and audience tense, the courtroom loudspeaker system picked up a lively conversation between two CBers who had had a ball at a party the night before and were discussing the event. The trial had to be adjourned until the loudspeaker problem could be corrected.

The Fuzzbuster still has lawyers scratching their heads and examining their law books. Is it legal? In some states it is being contested.

But in Minnesota they decided to purchase for the state police a detector-proof speed radar unit which they were certain would fool the Fuzzbuster. KSTP-TV got the police and the company that makes the Fuzzbuster into an acid test. Cameras recorded the highway test. The police lost. So, the contest about radar detectors in private cars continues ... on and on.

CIA Watching Summer Camps For Recruits

NEW YORK (AP) — Two European summer camps designed to bring children together from around the world to get a better understanding of each other were studied by the CIA to identify potential recruits for the agency, according to NBC News.

NBC also said the CIA paid for a study of adolescents in three Texas cities between 1958 and 1960 to determine how children behaved without adult supervision.

The intelligence agency studied children at camps in Honefoss, Norway, and Vienna, Austria, in 1959 and 1960 as "Subproject 103" of a top secret CIA program called MK Ultra, the network reported. Children's International Summer Village, which ran the camps, did not know of the CIA study, NBC said.

The network quoted a CIA document as stating that the summer camp study "will assist in the identification of promising young foreign nationals or U.S. nationals who may at any time be of direct interest to the company," which the network said meant possible CIA recruits.

NBC said the studies of 462 adolescents in Texas secondary schools in San Antonio, Austin and El Paso took place in 1958 and 1959.

Carolyn Sherif, one of the authors of the study, was unaware that her work was being paid for by the CIA, the network said.

"Our research couldn't possibly be of any value to the CIA ... and if they wanted to read about it, it's all been published. You can get it at the library," she told NBC.

Lubbockite Experiences Travel On Concorde

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gene Linn, president of Linn Travel Agency, recently returned from a transatlantic flight aboard the Air France Concorde SST. The Lubbock resident recorded his impressions aboard the faster-than-sound aircraft especially for The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Travel Editor

We are now rolling out on the runway. The flight captain says we are going to take off in 15 seconds. Most of the people on board appear to be of French decent, with some Americans and some people from other European countries.

The Concorde is on the runway now. The SST doesn't seem to be anymore noisy here inside than it would be on any other jet when you are taking off. We just broke ground and are now climbing out. It seems we were going faster when we lifted off than on another type of plane. We are climbing out in a large sweeping arc.

The attitude of the SST doesn't appear to be more vertical than it would be on a 747 or 707. Undoubtedly our rate of climb is faster because of the faster speed.

We have been off of the ground about 3 minutes and the hostess just announced that we are passing through 13,000 feet and will be climbing to an altitude of 55,000 feet.

There is a computer type airspeed indicator at the front of the cabin and shortly after takeoff it was indicating about M. 39 and it's now holding steady at about 47 or 48. I just learned from one of the hostesses that the airspeed indicator is based on Mach (a term relating to the speed of sound) and when we break the sound barrier the indicator will be at 1.0 Mach.

Right now we are flying at half the speed of sound, approximately at 48. At this elevation, that is probably 300 to 400 miles an hour.

The flight captain has turned on the afterburners or something. The Concorde is gaining speed quite rapidly. We are now up to .73 of Mach. 74, 75.

The hostesses have just passed out the menus. The Air France Concorde menus show several different wines that they serve on board. There are three different kinds of wine, plus a Ruinatart champagne. On the dinner itself, we will be having lobster and crab, filet mignon, fried mushrooms, potatoes "Anna" and a grand selection of pastry and fruit.

The thought that keeps drifting back into my mind is the flight of Col. Charles Lindbergh who flew something like 33½ hours to cross the Atlantic to Paris. How great it would have been if Lindbergh had lived to make this flight in 3 hours and 15 minutes. This of course is the 50th anniversary year of Lindbergh's flight in May of 1927.

We have been in the air about 18 minutes and we are flying at .9 Mach. We are approaching the Atlantic Seaboard now and I am sure our pilots are going to push it on through the sound barrier real quick.

It's a beautiful clear day and the white sandy beach can be seen for miles in either direction out of the airplane. We just moved quite rapidly from .93 to .97 Mach. The nose of the airplane is down quite level now.

We were up to .98 but now we have dropped back to .93 Mach. Maybe he did not have enough power to break the barrier a while ago, so he is going to back up and get a running start.

Now he's turned the speed around and we are back at .96, .97, .98, .99. There it is, Mach 1!

As we passed through the sound barrier, there was absolutely no vibration, no noise, nothing. Just as smooth as sitting on the sofa in your front room. Our speed continues to ease on up above Mach. The French Concorde continues to go on up. We broke the barrier at approximately 22 minutes after takeoff. Now we are at Mach 1.2 and we have assumed a climbing attitude again. The SST is slightly nose high and we are undoubtedly going on up. At this elevation, 1.4 Mach is more than 1,000 miles per hour.

Our hostess has now served us some fancy hors d'oeuvres that are also very, very good. At 1.5 Mach, we are getting some vibration in the aircraft. I don't know if it is due to air turbulence or perhaps the speed that we are going. Mach 1.72 now and it has smoothed out again — Very, very smooth. Evidently that was just a little rough air we were going through.

Breaking the sound barrier aboard the SST is both a thrill and disappointment. Back in 1952-1953, I was in pilot training in the U.S. Air Force and we spent many long hours talking about speed and breaking the sound barrier. The plane would chatter, shake and vibrate before you broke through with a great lunge. Your speed would accelerate very quickly. Today, here on Air France flight number 54, it wasn't like that at all. However, it is a great thrill to break the barrier after 25 years of talking about it. We are now at Mach 1.95.

Regarding noise, it is slightly more noisy in this aircraft than it would be on a regular jet. The noise, however, doesn't seem to be engine noise, rather just the sound of air passing by the airplane so rapidly. It certainly is not deafening or even bothersome.

The plane just reached Mach 2. There is a gentleman next to me from Saudi Arabia who flew the Concorde going westbound about 3 months ago, and they had a top speed of Mach 2.4 on that flight.

We are maintaining 2.01 Mach and our hostess announced that our present cruising altitude is 53,700 feet. The outside air temperature is a minus 18 degrees, but the temperature on the surface of the wings is plus 242 degrees F. Considering how thin the air is at this elevation, that is really something that the friction of the wind would build up a temperature like that on the wings. Our air speed is 2,143 kilometers per hour. That is equal to 1,340 miles per hour.

It's been 3 hours and 3 minutes since we took off and we are beginning our descent into Paris. Our air speed has dropped down to Mach 1.68. The SST continues a slow glide. back to Mach 1; it is now .99. Again, there was no vibration. At .97 the captain applied some additional fuel and the attitude of the plane has changed a little now. The hostesses have brought around some orange juice. The Concorde flight needs to be longer just to eat and drink everything that they give you.

A few minutes ago I went back to the center of the aircraft where there are exit doors and I put my hands against the locking mechanism of the doors. It was very warm and in one place too hot to touch for more than a few seconds. This is heat that is being transferred from the outside of the airplane due to the friction on the plane's surface I mentioned earlier. Now that our speed has slowed down to Mach .71, the windows here in the cabin have cooled off and most of the heat has been dissipated.

The attitude of the airplane has changed to very definitely nose high and it would make you think that we are in the glide path for the final approach.

Paris seems to be under a light cloud cover. You can see a few scattered lights now. The Mach indicator has gone off. The last time I saw it, it was .21. Well, the captain has rounded out now for touchdown, and we are close to the deck.

A very, very smooth, beautiful landing. You could hardly tell when the wheels of the airplane touched the runway. We are down at exactly 5:00 p.m. New York time. Washington to Paris is 3 hours and 28 minutes!

We're in the terminal now. The baggage started coming up approximately 15 minutes after we disembarked, and I see one of my bags making the rounds.

Local time in Paris is 11:00 p.m. One of the great things about Concorde transportation is that you can get to your hotel about midnight, get a good night's sleep and wake up refreshed in the morning with no jet lag.

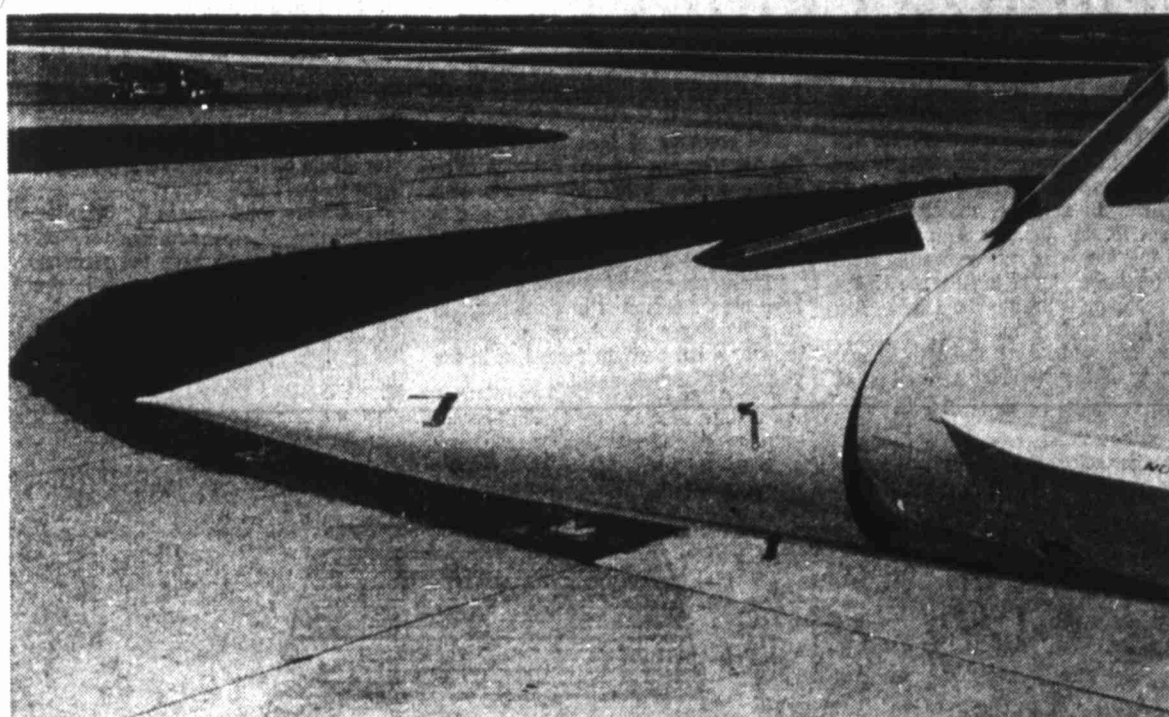

QUALITY SERVICE — "The general atmosphere on the Concorde is one of elegance. The hostess was surprised when I ordered a Coke instead of champagne."

BUILT FOR SPEED — "The Concorde aircraft is quite small inside compared to the planes we are used to riding. The aisle is narrow, with two seats on each side, but there is plenty of leg room."

CLEARED FOR TAKEOFF — "On the way out to the plane in the mobile lounge, we saw a British Concorde taxi in front of us. It was a beautiful view of the airplane, plus a good opportunity for pictures." (Photos by Gene Linn)

SUPERSONIC DESIGN — "In pulling up to the airplane, the most significant impression was how long and sleek the SST looks. The needle nose is just as needle-like as everyone expected."

CLOSE QUARTERS — "I had an opportunity to visit the flight engineer in the cockpit. I learned from him that the airplane is flying at 59,000 feet and the fuel consumption is 18 tons per hour."

DULLES AIRPORT — "This airport has mobile lounges that take you from the terminal building out to the airplane. Passengers walk straight from the ground vehicles into the airplanes."

Concorde Service Gets Boost

"For the business traveler, the SST may become a common form of travel," said Gene Linn. "I met several people overseas from West Texas that expressed an interest in flying the SST, but I'm sure most vacationers will continue to fly on the jumbo jets because of economics."

The Lubbock resident noted, "The Concorde represents an advancement in air technology. Though it is a specialty airplane, there is a definite market for it. I don't think they are going to park the airplane."

Linn continued, "In talking with the crew and some passengers aboard the Concorde, there was a lot of discussion about landing rights in New York." He added, "There was also a lot of interest about the interchange that has been proposed between Braniff and Air France, plus British Airways."

Interchanges have been used successfully in Texas, where U.S. pilots fly foreign planes. The agreement enables travelers to fly from Texas to a foreign country without changing from a domestic to a foreign airline.

Louis Garcia, Braniff public relations vice president, told the A-J, "The Braniff-Concorde interchange agreement could mean a 50 per cent saving of time for travelers flying from Dallas-Fort Worth to London or Paris. The direct through service from Texas would be just 7 hours."

Garcia noted, "We can have this service for Texas within 2 months after CAB (Civil Aeronautics Board) approval. The interchange could be in operation the early part of next year." He concluded, "We are very optimistic about the Braniff-Concorde interchange from D/FW."

The Concorde would fly subsonic within the U.S., but the speed would be 95 per cent of the speed of sound, providing a 12 per cent reduction in present flight time. The flights from D/FW to Washington's Dulles Airport would be 2 hours 8 minutes. The interchange service would be in addition to Braniff's 10 daily flights to Washington, D.C. from D/FW.

FAST BIRD — On June 17, 1974, a Boeing 747 left Paris for Boston at the same moment a Concorde SST departed Boston for Paris. The Concorde flew to Paris, turned around, and returned to Boston before the 747 touched down at the Boston airport. A proposed direct service from Texas to Europe would take 7 hours. Colombian Administration Object Of Criticism

By RAFAEL BERMUDEZ
 BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Despite crippling strikes, two recent cabinet shakeups, high inflation and a wave of guerrilla terrorism and kidnappings, President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen has managed to remain firmly in power and maintain Colombia as one of only two South American countries with democratic governments.

But with only 10 months remaining in his four-year term, Lopez is spending much of his time defending his administration against bitter criticism and trying to smooth over the repeated crises that crop up one after the other.
 Lopez, 64, a liberal, was elected in 1974 with a wide base of support, outpolling his conservative opponent two to one. He was educated in Colombia, Europe, Chile and the United States and is known for his intellectual capacity and his knowledge of constitutional law. Lopez' father served as president of Colombia in the 1930s and 1940s.

With the exception of a five-year period in the 1950s, Colombia, a nation of 25 million, has had democratically elected governments for more than 100 years.

But recent conditions have somewhat burdened the country's traditionally strong central government and criticism of the administration has become a favorite topic of conversation.

Perhaps it is the disenchantment with the way things are going that has created the big field of presidential candidates — 11 so far — for next year's election. Signs of the strains came during Lopez' latest political crisis in which he replaced four cabinet members. Outgoing Finance Minister Abdon Espinosa Valderama mentioned in his letter of resignation a decision he said he made several months ago to withhold his own resignation in order to head off a possible presidential resignation.

A one-day general strike Sept. 14 called by the nation's major labor unions to protest inflation crippled Bogota and other parts of the country. Twelve to 16 persons died in two days of violence associated with the strike.

Inflation that prompted the strike — almost 30 per cent this year — has become an issue in itself. The cost of living increases, the highest in decades, have especially affected the nation's poor, many of whom earn little more than the $50 per month minimum wage.

News reports earlier this year of corruption within the president's family rocked the government. A congressional investigation of the charges later cleared the president of any wrongdoing.

The government has had little success in controlling the wave of violence and crime that has swept across the nation this year. Acts of terrorism by Colombia's various left wing guerrilla groups have grown bolder. More than two dozen persons have been kidnaped this year, four of them — including three children — killed by their captors.

Colombia has even had difficulties with its neighbor to the east — Venezuela — which is the only other democratically elected nation in South America. Several persons died recently in a border clash between Venezuelan troops and Colombian civilians.

Schultze Claims U.S. Economy Healthy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors says the 1974-75 recession was a shattering experience to labor and industry that spawned "uncertainty and nervousness about the future."
 Charles L. Schultze, director of the budget in the Johnson administration, said the nation is still recovering from that recession. But he insisted the American economy is healthy "and shows few if any signs of economic aging."
 Schultze, addressing the 19th annual meeting of the National Association of Business Economists, acknowledged the recovery has been disappointing in several respects.

The recovery of business investment has been incomplete and although inflation continues below the double digit pace of a few years ago, the rate of 5 to 6 1/2 per cent is far too high for comfort, he said.

"These patterns of economic activity have been interpreted in some quarters as a harbinger of substantially slower growth, if not outright recession, in the year ahead," Schultze said.

"Such a forecast is ... unwarranted. Virtually all economic forecasters had expected all along that the very high rate of economic growth in the first half of the year would be followed by a slower pace in the second half."

"There are solid reasons for believing that the pace of expansion, while slower, will be sufficient to keep the recovery moving along a favorable track in the next several quarters."

Schultze said the Carter Administration has set fiscal goals, looking ahead to 1981, that would trim unemployment to below

5 per cent, cut taxes for business and individuals, and achieve a balanced budget without higher inflation.

However, Michael E. Levy, director of economic policy research for New York's Conference Board, said Carter's fiscal and budgetary programs were in retreat.

"It will be impossible to balance the budget in 1981, or even in 1982," Levy predicted.
 He said the administration has failed to provide reliable figures on how much the government will be spending, or how big the deficit will be even this year.

Approval Given For Bank

Southwest Lubbock National Bank Wednesday got a green light from the U.S. Controller of Currency to become the ninth bank in Lubbock.

The controller of currency granted the bank, which will be located at 50th Street and Utica Avenue, "preliminary approval," said a Dallas spokesman for the government office.

Preliminary approval is a routine procedure which ordinarily is followed by granting of a charter when a new bank begins operation, the spokesman said.

The new facility will be an affiliate of Lubbock National Bank, the downtown institution which is the second largest bank in the city.

LNB president and executive officer Wayne Finnell praised the location as one "admirably suited to serving both individuals and businesses in the burgeoning West and Southwest sections of Lubbock."

He said the new suburban bank should be open for business within six months in temporary quarters.

A permanent building will be ready "hopefully in slightly less than two years," Finnell said.

Southwest Lubbock National was the first of four suburban banks to be proposed in the last year.

The other three are applying for charters under the state Department of Banking.

The Texas Banking Commission possibly could vote on those three at a 2 p.m. meeting Oct. 27, a commission spokesman said.

They are sponsored by persons connected with Plains National, First National and American State Banks.

Their locations are spotted along south Indiana Avenue.

Organizers of Southwest Lubbock National all are local residents and also are directors or officers of LNB, or both.

Besides Finnell, they are Mrs. Louise Maedgen Washington and Mrs. Mary Ellis Maedgen Key, both connected with the family of LNB's founder, C.E. Maedgen Sr.; J. T. Talkington, merchant; Marion T. Key, attorney; Coffee Conner and David Collier, LNB's executive vice presidents.

D. Pierce, LNB vice president, controller and secretary of the LNB directorate was designated the new bank's correspondent and Warlick Carr, its legal counsel.

All members of the organizing group will serve as directors of Southwest Lubbock National. But that board, as well as stockholders, "will be expanded as rapidly as possible to include, among others, members of the business and residential community adjacent to the location of the new bank," said Finnell.

"We chose," he said, "to expand LNB services to Southwest and West Lubbock because of the constant growth in those directions. Our full-service bank will offer facilities exactly like those made available by larger banks in central sections of the cities across the nation."

Representatives of the banks which have the pending state charters appeared at a hearing in Dallas in April to oppose the Southwest Lubbock National application.

Also opposing the Southwest Lubbock National proposal were other suburban banks — Texas Bank, Bank of the West and Security National.

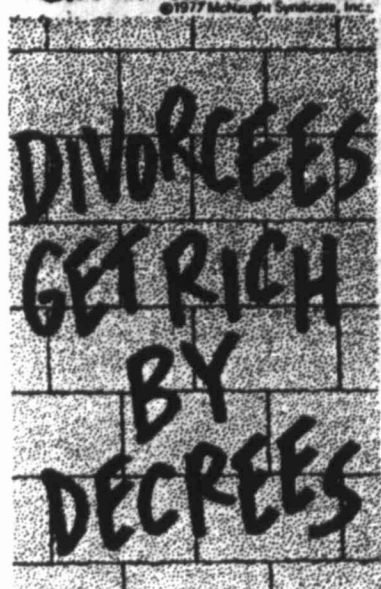

They posed two arguments — that there was not enough business in Southwest Lubbock for another bank to operate without draining current institutions, and that the proposed affiliate of LNB would represent unfair competition.

The unfair competition would come, the opponents claimed, because Southwest Lubbock National would not actually be a struggling, little new bank, but would be backed by assets and services, such as advertising help, of its big brother.

The saturated-market theory was raised again by the small suburban banks at recent hearings on the three state bank applications.

Water Authority Gives Okay To Rate Manual

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLAINVIEW—The Canadian River Municipal Water Authority apparently ended a complicated, five-year-long court battle here Wednesday between its member cities, including Lubbock, when it approved a resolution and a much-debated rate manual for water services.

After several hours of discussion, the 18-member board unanimously voted to approve the manual and a resolution, which outlined debts owed to the authority by member cities.

Almost the exact manual, with only a few words changed to make it more "neutral" for both sides, was voted down on the board's last meeting on July 27.

The litigation, pending in 84th District Court in Hutchinson County since 1972, involves the plaintiffs' (Amarillo, Pampa and Borger) contention that the board favored the southern cities (Lubbock, Plainview, Slaton, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa, Brownfield and Levelland) because it did not accurately consider the higher delivery costs to the southern area when setting rates.

The board had decided in its last meeting that the suit would be dropped if a manual could be approved outlining how each city would be charged, taking into consideration how much water was used and cost of delivery.

Such a manual, drawn up by the board's general manager and treasurer, John Williams, was presented to the board in the July meeting. But board member Robert Templeton, one of two representatives from Amarillo and the spokesman for the three northern Panhandle cities, rejected the manual because it did not stipulate whether board decisions affecting water costs could be passed by majority or unanimous vote.

It only a majority vote was needed the northern cities would apparently be at a disadvantage because of they are less heavily represented on the board.

Some members also question whether the manual sets the rates for the cost of the water, as Templeton suggested, or determines the cost of water delivery to the various cities.

Templeton, in bringing the manual back up for discussion, said he would not insist on a unanimous vote for future changes if the manual's title and the wording of the first two paragraphs could be changed to make it sound more "neutral."

All members agreed that changing the title from "Manual for Determining Cost of Delivery of Water" to "Canadian River Municipal Water Authority Manual," and the rewording of the first two paragraphs did not change the meaning of the text, but sounded more like a compromise.

Attorneys representing both sides were present at Wednesday's meeting, and both agreed that passage of the rate manual would mean dismissal of the long standing suit.

J. Ray Dickey, who along with Warlick Carr represents Lubbock on the Authority, said after the meeting he was satisfied with the approval. He said, however, it did not accomplish what "we set out to do."

"Mr. Carr and I were in agreement that it's something we can live with," Dickey said.

Before leaving, Templeton said, "This question of proper assessment for operation and maintenance has been a source of conflict since the water authority was organized in 1961. Both sides gave in order to reach this solution."

He added that, while the northern cities belonging to the authority feel they had received unfair debts compared with the southern cities, this debt had been cut considerably from what the rate manual, proposed in 1972, stipulated.

"The effect of the unanimous passage of the manual," Templeton said, "is to set a new standard for determining charges. In my opinion, these charges cannot be changed except by a unanimous vote by the board at some future time."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been discussing having a child. I am 30 and he is 50. We are both well-established working people at present. We are happily in love and communicate fantastically well. He is very active in sports and doesn't appear his age. He has been through a marriage and children before. (I haven't.) I am confident we would be good parents and have a lot to offer a child.

Do you think it's fair to a child to have a father with less than a full-term parenthood expectancy? We'd like your opinion and perhaps the opinions of readers who have experienced this.

Facing Facts

Dear Facing: The age of a father isn't nearly so important as his physical condition and his attitudes about parenthood. The fact that you question the "fairness" of having a child under the circumstances speaks well for you. I say, go ahead.

DEAR ABBY: Never, but never, did this ancient, retired schoolteacher think he would take pen in hand for such a purpose.

Before I give you the bad news, let me give you the good news: You get straight A's in written English, spelling, grammar, sentence structure and vocabulary.

But, alas, teacher must flunk you in United States History! In attempting to console a bachelor, you stated that James Buchanan, our 15th president, was also a bachelor.

Dear, dear Abby, for shame. Buchanan was our 15th president. Abraham Lincoln

Historian: New Bedford, Mass.

Dear His: When I goof, I take my lumps. But this time I was the victim of a typographical error.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you answer this because I know I need help. I just hate children! Every time I see a mother holding her baby and making a fuss over it, I want to snatch it away from her, beat it and then drop it on its head.

I'm at the age (21) when a girl starts thinking of marriage, but I loathe the thought of getting married and running the risk of having a kid. I am sure I would make a rotten mother. I can't stand to hear a baby cry. I just know I'd beat the kid to death if it ever cried for very long.

Do all people hate kids deep down, or is there something wrong with me? If you think I need help, where can I go?

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF (c) 1977 by Chicago Tribune

One of the Bols Bridge Tips suggested that, when you can't see how to defeat a contract, you should hold up a king. Just how dangerous indiscriminate use of this tip can be was proved by this hand from the recent European Championship.

South was afraid that his opponents had nine fast tricks at their no trump game, so he elected to sacrifice at four spades. He was wrong in his assessment of the opponents' capabilities, but he ended up with a huge profit nevertheless.

West attacked with king and another club, declarer ruffing the second round.

He led the queen of spades from hand, and West ducked. This slight error proved to be fatal.

Declarer finessed the jack of diamonds and led a heart. East rose with the ace and continued clubs in an effort to promote a trump trick for his partner. Declarer ruffed with the ten and West correctly declined to overruff; he sluffed a heart instead.

The queen of diamonds was finessed and declarer discarded a heart on the ace of diamonds. He ruffed a diamond with his low trump and cashed the king of hearts, reducing West to nothing but trumps. Declarer simply exited with his last heart. West was forced to ruff this trick and then lead away from his king of trumps into declarer's ace-jack tenace. So West ended up making only one trump trick and declarer fulfilled his contract.

West can defeat the hand if he wins the king of trumps at trick two. He leads a heart to his partner's ace, and another club from East promotes West's nine of trumps to the setting trick.

All of which reminds us of the Goldsmith poem about the rabid dog that bit one of the citizens: "The man recovered from the bite. It was the dog that died."

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.60 to "Goren-Four Deal," P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

Shortbread-Like Cookie Has Chocolate, Coconut

By CECILY BROWNSTONE, Associated Press Food Editor

This new butterball recipe calls for chocolate and coconut, a well-liked team. One suggestion: because the coconut in these butterballs is at its crunchiest best the day, or the day after, the cookies are baked, it's as well to make them shortly before a party.

CHOCOLATE COCONUT BUTTERBALL COOKIES

1 cup butter
1/4 cup confectioners' sugar
1 tsp vanilla
1 cup all-purpose flour
4-ozs. package sweet cooking chocolate, coarsely chopped

1 1/3 cups (about) flaked coconut
Extra confectioners' sugar
Cream the butter, 1/4 cup sugar and the vanilla. Gradually blend in the flour. Stir in the chocolate and coconut. Using 1/2 tablespoon for each, shape into balls — they will be very small. Place well apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned — about 15 minutes. With a wide spatula, remove to wax paper spread with extra confectioners' sugar, roll the cookies in the sugar. Makes about 5 1/2 dozen.

Note: If you have a fractional measuring spoon set that has a 1/2-tablespoon measure, you'll find it handy to use in shaping this cookie dough.

SEPARATES SCENE — A soft, relaxed look, always in fashion, is easily achieved with good-looking knits. This smart looking pullover sweater with a bateau neck and striped yoke is combined with an eye-appealing gored skirt for classic chic.

FASHION ACCENT — Beautiful crepe de chine adds luxury to any outfit; here a 32" dimensional stripe square is doubled loosely around the neck and knotted. It's the softness of the look that's so important to this year's fashions.

Hair Stylist Adds To Craze With 'Tut Cut'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The price-less death mask and other objects from the tomb of Egypt's Tutankhamun arrived in town in mid-September, but jewelry, T-shirts and other imitations of Tut preceded them by months.

Now, a hairdresser has added to the craze by calling his newest style the Tut Cut.

John Jay, who owns 12 hair salons in New Orleans and qualifies as one of the city's top stylists, said he designed the hairdo and dubbed it the Tut Cut while looking for a style to offer his customers.

"I said, 'Look, the silhouette of this King Tut. I can do this permanent wave with that type of silhouette,'" Jay said.

Jay shapes the hair so it spreads outward as it falls to the shoulders. Then he forms horizontal waves to resemble the alternating gold and colored glass panels on the famous Tut death mask.

"I'm getting calls from all over the United States asking how to do it," Jay said. "Other hairdressers want photos and instructions about what it is, because customers are now asking for it."

Jay said some customers are wary when they first hear the name because they expect to see a Cleopatra cut with bangs and straight hair.

"The clients are in doubt because they think the Tut Cut is something akin to an ancient hairdress," he said. "They are in fear to ask what is a Tut Cut because they don't relate it to fashion. They think of it as some method of hairdress that we did for costume. But after they see it, they want it."

Jay said he started offering the Tut Cut in July. He expects it to reach its peak next summer, then fade out by the summer of 1979.

"Most fashions take about a year to totally develop, and the people who are front-runners are doing it now," he said. "By the time the masses start to do it, they will be doing something else."

Men Becoming More Fashion Conscious

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Men have become more fashion-conscious in recent years by indulging their vanities in high-priced hairstyles, wigs, facial treatments, health clubs and other things to achieve an attractive appearance.

And now a book, "Looking Good," puts it all together for the average man as well as for those with bigger objectives. The author, Charles Hix, points out that he doesn't really like the word "grooming," with its horsey implications, but he hasn't found a better word to describe man's interest in his appearance. In his opinion, "a well-groomed fellow looks good in jeans or tuxedo. An unkempt guy looks good in neither."

The average man may not be interested in the hair spray, cosmetic surgery, permanent waves, hair straightening and hair dyeing that are discussed in detail in the book. But hair and skin interest rugged men as well as men who may pamper themselves, and those subjects are done especially well in the book.

For example, even washing the face can be a challenge. Hix points out that many men cleanse their faces, but barely rinse, leaving residual soap "or facial debris" that helps clog pores.

"The most important task of a cleanser is to remove as much dirt and oil from the skin as possible without irritating it. It also should be completely removable."

Pedal Machines Save Energy

EMMAUS, Pa. (UPI) — A manufacturer here has come up with two multi-purpose pedal-powered machines to save fuel energy indoors and out.

Fringe benefit: they can also help trim your waistline.

The indoor device looks like a weird new exercise bicycle with a comfortable backrest on the padded seat. It's designed to operate kitchen appliances and power tools.

The manufacturer says it can be used to grind grain into flour, grind, chop and blend foods, churn butter and make ice cream. In the workshop, it can run small lathes, drill presses, saws and other tools; in the studio, potters' wheels, jewelers' lathes, polishing wheels, lapidary equipment and sculptors' tools.

Other suggested uses: powering radio and television sets, charging storage batteries, providing some power for lighting during blackouts and emergencies, helping pump water for irrigation, sawing wood, splitting logs and, equipped with a winch, pulling stumps.

Its companion device is a pedal-powered unit that generates enough power to operate gardening tools for plowing, hoeing, weeding and rowmaking.

"In most instances, old-fashioned soap and water meet these requirements best," he points out, but some soaps may be bad for the face. Detergent "soapless" soaps contain chemicals rather than natural ingredients, such as sodium, salts, water, fatty acids and some oil, that are found in real soap. The real thing leaves a bathtub ring, he observes, whereas detergent soaps will not. Deodorant soaps with their anti-bacterial additives which may be good for the body are not necessarily good for the face.

In fact, there are many kinds of soaps. Castile soap is made with olive oil instead of fat. There are clear soaps which contain glycerine, alcohol and sugar and superfatted soaps with additional fat and oil which lessens their effectiveness, in his opinion, as they leave a residue. True soaps are unperfumed and uncolored.

To use soap properly, one should apply water to the face, lathering the hands, applying soapy lather to the wet skin, Hix points out.

The pH factor in soaps is a tipoff as to whether soap is neutral, acidic or alkaline. Studies indicate that normal, healthy skin is slightly acidic and wears an acid mantle, but acidic cleansers aren't necessarily superior, he advises.

Hix describes the thinning of skin with abrasives such as sponges or by shaving action, and abrasive cleansers — soaps with hard particles milled into them as beads or grains dispersed in liquid, lotion or gel — scrubs that should not be used each day and which should be chosen with caution. They should not be used about the eyes.

What about an astringent used to reduce oil in the skin? Some skin specialists believe astringent should be used only by men with oily skin, whereas other experts believe astringent can be used often unless the skin is very, very dry, and that it should be applied at bedtime after using primary cleanser. A homemade astringent can be made by diluting rubbing alcohol with water.

There is much more about skin, blemished complexions, acne, eczema and psoriasis, and there is a fine chapter on shaving. There are also excellent chapters on hair and scalp care dealing with the structure of the hair, grooming aids and hair problems. There is advice about hairstyling which hinges, the author says, "on one's lifestyle, age, personality and career." Proper styling is suggested for special problems — high or low foreheads, long nose, receding hair. Hair weaving and hair transplants are discussed and there is a good chapter on growing beards and moustaches.

At first glance this book looks like a picture book of male models with more than a hundred posed portraits, but there is good text throughout the book by Hix, a longtime writer on men's grooming and other things.

"Looking Good" is published by Hawthorn.

Oil Business Veteran Gives Economy Hints

Updating heating equipment can be a big factor in fuel economy. A new burner might save 15 to 20 percent on your oil bill, a fact that might be difficult for some people to comprehend.

So says Lillian Siegel of Fairfield, Conn., who has been in the oil business for 48 years. She was explaining a notice — "a new burner can save you money" — that was appended to her oil bills.

"If an oil bill is $800 a year, a nominal amount, a new burner might save as much as $120 dollars. In addition, the equipment is modern. New burners have electronic controls and retention heads which are economical to operate." A burner is part of the boiler equipment.

It is a question of how old is old, she says. Some 40-year-old burners have motors and transformers in excellent condition, whereas newer ones might be exhausted. Much depends on the care they have been given and the quality of the equipment.

"Today's motors give you 3450 RPMs that go like mad, a little noisier, but they deliver more rapidly giving more energy at lower cost." Like other companies, she provides budget plans for the purchase of new equipment.

An oil service company should be trusted to give good advice and should be asked for an equipment check-up if bills become high.

What bothers Miss Siegel is that some customers don't trust her judgment even though "there are legions that do," who seek the advice of Lil, as she is known in the trade. In fact, when they call to ask questions, she never asks whether they are customers. Some use other service companies because of business affiliations or because they owe the company money or whatever, but she has a long-time reputation for knowledgeability in the business so she willingly provides information.

Occasionally she "loses her cool," she says, when people ignore their equipment "because it isn't visible."

"If they had a pale pink boiler in the middle of the living room floor, they would keep it immaculate, but because it is out of sight they simply don't keep it clean."

"The worst form of insulation is soot. A burner should be adjusted every year, and the boiler should be cleaned whenever it is sooty. A boiler must work twice as hard to deliver when the parts are dirty," she explained. It's energy dollars up the flue as far as she is concerned.

In her own oil business for 27 years — she is president of Superior Oil Co. — she has seen a lot of changes. In the beginning she "could not drive a truck" so she had to hire a man. He stayed until the first cold day.

She started the business from scratch, with new customers and new trucks. One cold day she got some calls, one for 500 gallons of oil — "it had seemed stupendous at the time." Now she is into sales of millions of gallons of oil every year.

"Winter time is rough, full of emergencies," she says. "You might occasionally get a call and find that a person forgot to turn on a switch, but people are more sensible now."

When she started her business the price of oil delivery was less than half of what the oil costs wholesale today, and "it will soon go up again," she said. That is one reason she tries to interest people in asking for a check of their equipment.

Seaweed Claimed Valuable For Fertilizer, Pollution Control

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Although often dismissed as a seashore nuisance, seaweed is found in a surprising array of products and a University of Rhode Island researcher sees more important uses in the future.

Henry S. Parker, a doctoral candidate at the university's school of oceanography, says his work with two species of seaweed — gracilaria and ulva — point to applications in pollution control.

Seaweed has a legendary reputation among home gardeners as a fertilizer.

However, Parker is concentrating on the versatile algae's potential for returning to the soil the nitrogen and phosphorus found in human waste.

Both substances are present in heavy concentrations in sewage given only secondary treatment, which is the level of purification provided by most communities.

The nitrogen and phosphorus are pollutants, but to seaweed they are nutrients and cause burgeoning growth.

Unchecked, the seaweed spreads, chokes off its supply of sunlight, exhausts the oxygen in the water and dies.

The process also leaves the water unable to support life.

Parker hopes to exploit this capacity for rapid growth.

The hardy — and commercially valuable — gracilaria and ulva flourish in experimental plantings near sewage outlets in East Greenwich Cove.

He said if planted on a wide scale and harvested, the seaweed could both clean pollutants from the water while providing a natural supply of fertilizer.

"This has always been a one-way street. The nitrogen and phosphorus, both valuable substances, are lost. In the meantime, we're using petroleum to produce more nitrogen to fertilize the soil, and it starts all over again.

"This way we wouldn't lose anything."

Seaweed is already the principal industrial source of vegetable gums.

"When added to a liquid it keeps the solids in suspension. In chocolate milk it keeps the chocolate from settling. In toothpaste, it keeps the abrasives well distributed," he said.

"There are certain chemical characteristics which make seaweed extracts far more effective than any substitutes found so far," said Parker.

Some other everyday products containing seaweed extracts include hand creams, paint, medicines, pudding and ice cream, he said.

In addition, seaweed is cultivated in Korea, Japan and China, where 75 per cent of the harvest ends up on the dining table.

"It has a kind of a fishy, salty taste, like anything else that comes from the sea," said Parker, who does not think it will gain much popularity as a food in this country.

"The people in the Far East have developed an ability to digest seaweed, which has a lot of cellulose. Our systems aren't really adapted to digest the stuff properly."

Understanding Called Key For Passing Amendment

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Bankers Association officials say voter understanding is the key to passing a constitutional amendment allowing electronic fund transfer systems (EFTS).

The amendment will be on the Nov. 8 special election ballot.

It would empower the legislature to authorize banks "to exercise banking and discounting privileges by use of electronic devices or machines."

EFTS cannot become a reality without the amendment because it would violate the existing constitutional prohibition against branch banking. At the outset, it would consist of automatic tellers in shopping centers. It ultimately could involve the use of direct electronic transfer of money from a customer's checking account to that of the store where he buys something.

Charles L. Childers of Tyler, association president, said he is making a 15-city tour to talk with other bankers about promoting the amendment.

"We want to tell them of the need to communicate with their customers, shareholders and community," Childers said.

American Grain To Be Sold To Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says up to 15 million metric tons of American grain will be available for sale to the Soviet Union in the coming year.

Department officials gave the figure Thursday at a semi-annual meeting with a Soviet delegation. But Asst. Agriculture Secretary Dale E. Hathaway said the Russians did not indicate whether they intend to buy more than the minimum 6 million tons of wheat and corn required in a five-year grain agreement between the two nations.

The Soviets bought about the minimum amount in the first year of the pact, which began with deliveries on Oct. 1, 1976, and ended Sept. 30. So far this year, they have purchased about 2.3 million metric tons. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

"I think it is quite possible that they may want to purchase over the 6-million-ton level," Hathaway said, adding that he had no evidence now to support that feeling.

The United States currently has huge stockpiles of wheat and corn and supplying the Soviets would be no problem. Counting the reserves and the 1977 harvest, the total U.S. wheat and feed grain supply for 1977-78 is estimated at 313.8 million tons, up from 286.9 million last season.

Hathaway said the Russians would be able to purchase up to the 15-million-ton level without further discussions with the United States. Sales above that level would be subject to further consultation with U.S. officials, he said.

A voter who does not understand what electronic banking means logically would vote against the amendment, he said.

The Independent Bankers Association of Texas (IBAT) has taken a "hands off" stance on the amendment since many of its members fear EFTS as a step toward more holding company control of small town and suburban banks.

Childers said 99 per cent of the IBAT members also are in the Texas Bankers Association.

He said there was no ground for fear that EFTS would hasten the trend toward consolidation.

R. M. Duffey Jr. of Brownsville, chairman of the association's committee on EFTS, said EFTS would be simply a consumer option and never would replace the written check.

"I believe we will be writing checks the rest of our lives. We see this as evolving very, very slowly in Texas," Duffey said.

"For those who appreciate the rare as well as the beautiful"

Law Hailed As Helpful To Ohioans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A leader of Ohio's Spanish-speaking population says his people have deserved a better break and should finally get it under a state law which took effect last week after more than two years of effort.

Juan Ortiz, of Lorain County's El Centro De Servicios Sociales, Inc., said Spanish-speaking Ohioans are "elated" over the law and believe it can give them a better fate than many of their counterparts who have been locked "in New York City ghettos since the 1920s." The new law gives opportunity "and not a handout," he said.

Ortiz, of Puerto Rican descent, was asked about the legislation under which Ohio will have for the first time a central "clearinghouse" to provide information about jobs, housing, education, social, and other services for Spanish-speaking citizens.

Lorain County in northern Ohio has the highest percentage of Spanish-speaking citizens of any county in the state, about 16 per cent. Others in northern and northwest Ohio may have them in greater numbers. Camera said the law is designed mostly to help the migrant worker. "Up to now, the state has only given lip service," he said.

The services he listed already are supposed to be available to all of Ohio's 11 million citizens. But, in many cases, they do not reach the 1 to 2 per cent (100,000 to 200,000) covered by the new law. Language is a major barrier.

Under the statute, Gov. James A. Rhodes within 90 days will name an 11-member Commission on Spanish Speaking Affairs. Qualifications will include a requirement that they speak Spanish, and regard themselves as being of Spanish-speaking origin.

The commission, in turn, will appoint a full-time director of an Ohio Office of Spanish Speaking Affairs, who must meet the same requirement as commissioners.

$6.5 Million Awarded In Legal Fees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The last chapter in the four-year-old scandal involving the defunct Equity Funding Corp. of America has been closed with the awarding of $6.5 million in attorneys' fees.

U.S. District Court Judge Malcolm M. Lucas ordered payment of the fees to 24 law firms involved in more than 110 civil suits filed against the corporation after it declared bankruptcy four years ago.

The fees will be derived from a $60 million settlement fund that will be divided among 31,000 persons who had invested in the corporation or incurred damages from it.

Earlier this year, U.S. District Court Judge Harry Pregerson awarded more than $10 million in legal fees to the attorneys who worked on the bankruptcy proceedings for the corporation.

The corporation's founder, Stanley Goldblum, was convicted on fraud-related charges and is now in prison.

During two days of hearings before Lucas earlier this year, the 24 law firms asked for fees ranging from $30,000 to $3.6 million.

Lucas outlined his formula for awarding the fees in a 104-page opinion. Calling the settlement "masterfully constructed and meticulously composed," Lucas praised Los Angeles attorneys Marshall Grossman and Jack Corinblit, whose law firms received almost half the total amount awarded in attorney fees.

Depositions were taken from 250 persons by the various attorneys who assembled nearly 1 million pages of documents in preparation for a trial that was avoided because of the settlement.

Grossman's firm, Schwartz, Alschuler & Grossman, asked for $3.6 million and received $1.7 million. Corinblit sought $3.2 million and received $1.3 million.

Drought Aids Salt Company

NEWARK, Calif. (UPI) — One California industry is taking the drought with more than a grain of salt.

Officials of the Leslie Salt Co. won't say the drought is a good thing, but the dry days are helping workers harvest about 1 million tons of nearly pure salt.

"Rain would just dilute the salt we're harvesting and lengthen the process," said outside plant manager Wally Amaral.

"We don't like to emphasize the drought," said Amaral. "We know a lot of our customers depend on water for their survival, but we do appreciate a dry year now and then."

Leslie Salt began harvesting operations last month in ponds that have been evaporating for about five years. About 10,000 gallons of bay water are needed to produce one ton of salt.

Farm Group Will Meet With Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can expect a lot of grumbling about the shape farmers are in during his westward swing across the country later this month.

Carter is scheduled to visit Detroit; Des Moines, Iowa; Omaha, Neb.; Denver, and Los Angeles, Oct. 21-22. A protest group that mustered 2,000 angry farmers at a meeting with Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland last month in Colorado says it will do the same thing when Carter visits Denver.

The group, called American Agriculture, has threatened to strike Dec. 14 and refrain from producing crops and buying machinery and other materials used to produce the nation's food supply unless the government acts to improve their financial situation.

Results of a telephone call-in survey conducted last week by the Agriculture Council of America show that most farmers say they are financially worse off than they were last year.

The survey, however, was not purported to be a scientific sampling of farmers nationally. The council, as it does periodically, offered toll-free telephone service to those who wanted to call in and talk about their problems and views. About 400 callers responded during the call-in Oct. 5.

According to the council, which describes itself as "a nonpolitical and nonlobbying organization" formed in 1973 to improve relations between farmers and urban consumers, most of the calls originated in Texas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas and Washington state.

Although livestock and other commodities are grown in those states, they also represent the biggest wheat-producing areas of the country. And low wheat prices have been foremost among the complaints levied at the Carter administration and Congress.

According to the council, 96 per cent of the callers said they would "purchase only those items necessary and will defer major purchases until some later date when income improves."

Some 45 per cent of the callers said a farm strike would be effective while 42 per cent said it would not and 13 per cent were undecided.

Milk Producers File Petition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Milk Producers Federation has filed a petition asking the U.S. Court of Appeals here to require the government to file an economic impact statement in connection with proposed changes in federal ice cream standards.

Tied up in procedural snarls for months, the proposal by the Food and Drug Administration would permit the substitution of imported milk casein for the whole-milk solids presently required in ice cream.

The federation, joined by a number of state agencies, contend that the casein proposal "would mean a potential market loss for American dairy farmers for the equivalent of up to 400 million pounds of nonfat dry milk and increased government outlays of up to $300 million per year" in increased purchases of milk products under the government's dairy price support program.

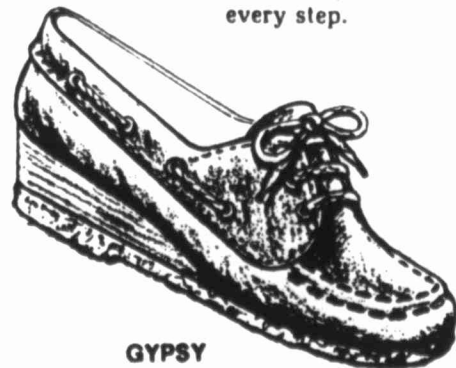

A federation spokesman said Wednesday that there has been no indication when the court might rule on the petition for an impact statement.

SPICE OUTPUT

California's total spice output approaches 150 million dried pounds annually, valued at more than $100 million in sales.

Eclipse Buffs Witness 'Magnificent Spectacle'

By TERRANCE W. MCGARRY
United Press International Writer
The shadow of the moon swept across the earth at 1,500 miles an hour Wednesday, dimming the afternoon sun from Siberia to Bermuda and unveiling the solar system's jewel case to unveil a glittering crown in the twilight.

Scientists and eclipse buffs sailed into the Pacific Ocean and thousands of South Americans lined Andes highways to see the total eclipse. Watchers throughout the Western Hemisphere saw the light wane at least partially as the moon cruised across the face of the sun.

Some of those in the total eclipse zone, a narrow strip falling mostly in the Pacific, saw "Bailey's beads," a crown of light glistening between the mountains of the moon that can be seen only during a total eclipse of the sun.

"It was a magnificent spectacle," said Dr. Joseph M. Chamberlain, director of the Adler Planetarium in Chicago and professor of astronomy at Northwestern University. Chamberlain was among 1,700 persons who paid more than $700 apiece to view the eclipse from one of two Sitmar line ships that sailed to a spot in the Pacific 1,600 miles south of Los Angeles where the total eclipse lasted two minutes and 28 seconds.

The "diamond ring" or "Bailey's beads" effect occurs at the beginning or end of an eclipse, he said, "when the light of the sun is playing tricks around the edge of the moon."

The surface features of the moon seem to pick up the light and fan it out in all directions. At the end of the total phase, I was watching with binoculars and saw three pearl-like Bailey's Beads — light shooting through the mountains of the moon just as the moon crosses past the sun.

"It looked like little green pearls glistening around the moon."

The ships' captains, advised by shore-based radar and satellite observers, tried to maneuver the vessels under cloudless skies.

A small cloud drifted in anyway, blocking the sight for about half the total eclipse period, Chamberlain said in a ship-to-shore telephone call, but "seemed to enhance the beauty."

Toward the end, the clouds nearly obscured the view. The result was a colorful rainbow and a halo. All 900 people aboard our ship screamed, applauded and cheered. It was just beautiful.

Los Angeles Times science writer George Alexander reported from aboard the TSS Fairsea that even at the peak of the eclipse it was not as dark as night.

"The horizon was lighted all around and the ships' decks were bathed in a faint light like twilight," Alexander wrote.

Passengers aboard the two vessels, positioned about four miles apart, were provided with special viewing devices for Robison said the live animals captured by shelter employees included 7,742 unlicensed dogs, 226 licensed dogs, 978 cats and 48 other animals.

He said that citizens brought 2,431 other animals to the shelter.

His report notes that 1,942 animals were released from the shelter, either returned to owners or adopted by citizens, meaning a $24,707.50 income to the shelter.

Robison urged dog owners to obtain yearly distemper shots for their pets. "Every year, thousands of animals die from distemper. This could be prevented by having the animals inoculated yearly," he said.

He also urged pet owners to take their animals to veterinarians for a yearly check-up before cold weather sets in, bringing disease and possible death for many animals.

the partial eclipse phase when the sun's light was still strong enough to blind human eyes.

Many were amateur "eclipse buffs." "I have met some who are on their eighth eclipse," said UCLA astronomer George Abell, one of the scientists aboard one of the ships.

The complete eclipse began as a shadow that fell on the North Pacific off the coast of Siberia and raced along a narrow band toward the southeast at 1,500 m.p.h., passing just north of the Hawaiian Islands — where 70 per cent of the sunlight was blotted out — and striking land only in Colombia on the northwestern shoulder of South America before fading out 700 miles later in the jungles of eastern Venezuela.

Animal Shelter Stays Busy

During the last year, Lubbock Animal Shelter picked up more than 4,000 dead animals and almost 9,000 live ones off Lubbock streets, shelter director Jim Robison reports.

His October, 1976, to September, 1977, report also shows that 9,479 animals were destroyed during the period in the shelter's gas chamber.

The number of animals destroyed included 7,582 unlicensed dogs, 113 licensed dogs, 1,747 cats and 37 other animals, he said.

Of the dead animals picked up on Lubbock streets, 2,865 were unlicensed dogs, 43 were licensed ones, 1,100 were cats and 110 were other animals, according to the report.

Environmentalists Call For Carcinogen Bans

HOUSTON (UPI) — Those who joke about the federal ban on cancer may find themselves "laughing all the way to the hospital," an environmentalist warned Wednesday.

Gus Speth, a member of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, deplored "dangerous hilarity" to discredit "sound regulatory policy." He cited jokes about stuffing rats with diet drinks as an example.

"We should insist on a flat prohibition against the intentional addition of carcinogens (cancer-causers) into our food supply," Speth said.

However, cancer researcher John Weisberger told the two-day University of Texas environmental cancer conference saccharin was a small problem compared to smoking and other dangers which receive less attention.

"Each situation must be analyzed carefully by reasonable people," he said. "If we listened to every environmentalist with an ax to grind, we'd be bare of life's necessities in the next 10 years."

R. David Pittle of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission said his agency is working on overall policies for objective regulation of toxic substances.

Charles Barden, former director of the Texas Air Control Board, said it was impossible to decide environmental issues unemotionally.

"Our world is risky," he said. "The question is not whether a chemical is safe, but what the risks are and whether they outweigh the benefits."

MANY MOVES MADE

More than one-half of all homeowners move to a new residence within eight years, says the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

YOU COULD BE THE WINNER IN YOUR AREA OF ONE OF THESE SIX FABULOUS TRIPS, when you enter the Quality Counts Breadstakes.

Just tell us which of these qualities you like best about Rainbo Bread!

- 1 Maybe it's Rainbo's TEXTURE you like best. If so, it's a trip for 2 to Scotland & England, countries famous for their fine textiles!
- 2 If it's that Rainbo's HAND-TWISTED, you could win a trip for 2 to Greece, famous for its hand-crafting!
- 3 If it's Rainbo's quality of HOLDING TOGETHER, you could win a family trip for 4 to Walt Disney World!
- 4 If Rainbo's TWICE-RISING QUALITY gets to you, that could get you a trip for 2 to Japan, Land of the Rising Sun!
- 5 Or if you like Rainbo's FRESHNESS, you'll love a trip for 2 to Hawaii, the isle of fresh fruit and flowers!
- 6 If it's the fact that Rainbo's WRAPPED WHILE HOT, you could wrap up a cruise for 2 to the Bahamas, where you'll be wrapped in sunshine!

Imagine! You could be the winner in your area of any one of these six fabulous international trips simply by telling us which of the six qualities of Rainbo Bread you like best. What could be easier? For all the details, just look for specially marked Rainbo packages and entry blanks at your favorite food store. Or follow the easy contest rules in this ad.

YOU COULD WIN $100 WORTH OF GROCERIES!

When you enter the Breadstakes, every week for six weeks, you'll have a chance to win a certificate good for $100 worth of groceries at your favorite food store! And whether or not you win a grocery certificate, you're still eligible to win the trip of your choice in the Quality Counts Breadstakes.

1. To enter the Rainbo "Quality Counts Breadstakes," complete the information requested on the official entry form, or on a 3" x 5" piece of paper, print your name, address, zip code and the words, "Rainbo bread has the qualities that count." Machine duplicated or mechanically reproduced entries will be declared void. Enter as many times as you like, but you must mail each entry separately to: P.O. BOX 70, LUBBOCK, TX 79408
2. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. All entries must be postmarked by November 12, 1977, and received by November 24, 1977, for the Quality Counts Breadstakes. The weekly drawing for the Grocery Certificates will commence the week of October 3, 1977, and be drawn for six (6) consecutive weeks.
3. PRIZES. One winner in your area will have the choice of either one of five international vacations for two people to Japan, Greece, British Isles, Bahamas, or Hawaii, or a vacation to Walt Disney World for four people. All trips must be taken before December 31, 1978, and are subject to scheduled travel arrangements. Trips include only air transportation, hotel accommodations and meals. Six other winners in your area will win one $100 Grocery Certificate.

Applicable federal, state and local taxes, if any, must be paid by the prize winner. No substitutions for prizes offered. Only one prize awarded per family. If a minor wins a trip, it will be awarded to the minor's parent or legal guardian; otherwise, prizes are not transferable.

4. Winners will be determined in an independent random drawing from among eligible entries. Drawing results will be final. Winners will be notified by mail.
5. The odds of winning will be determined by the total number of entries received in your area.
6. Prize winners will be required to sign a statement permitting use of their name and/or picture for promotional purposes, an affidavit of eligibility, and a waiver of liability.
7. Breadstakes open to residents of the continental United States only. Employees of Campbell Taggart, Inc., its affiliated companies, advertising and promotion agencies, judging organizations, and their families are not eligible. Void where prohibited or restricted by law. All federal, state and local laws apply.
8. All prizes will be awarded. For a list of winners, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: "Quality Counts Breadstakes" Winners List, P.O. Box 2840, Dallas, Texas 75221

LINED UP — About 500 spectators line up outside the Supreme Court in Washington this week in hopes of being among about 50 allowed to hear some of the arguments in the "reverse discrimination" case of Allan Bakke. Bright Future Seen In Soda Business

CHICAGO (AP) — Greg Lasser says after he returned from his foreign service job in Moscow he decided to go back to where things were really popping. So he entered the family business — a 98-year-old soda pop factory.

"I had a minor diplomatic job in Russia, but returned home a couple of years ago when my grandfather," said the 29-year-old graduate of Georgetown University in Washington.

Lasser and his father, John, are producing 15,000 bottles of soda each week on a ponderous machine more than 50 years old.

Lasser Beverages has been a family operation since 1879. A quart of any one of 14 flavors costs less than 25 cents and if you bring in a new customer a case is free.

Greg, a bachelor, is the last of the Lasser line in the business.

His educational background suited him well for work in foreign countries or in one of America's great melting pots.

"I can speak Russian, Polish, German, Hungarian, French, Romanian and Yugoslavian," he says. "I find it is good for business because many of our older customers are of those ancestries and still prefer their native tongue."

Lasser Beverages flourished through the Prohibition era, servicing a thousand speakeasies with ginger ale and other mixes for liquor delivered by the Al Capone mob.

"A speakeasy put in an emergency order for 100 cases of ginger ale splits that usually sold for 80 cents a case," Lasser said of one New Year's Eve. "Grandfather got his horse and wagon out and delivered the merchandise for $5 a case."

The plant is still pumping along, filling orders from several hundred saloons, restaurants and catering halls — old customers loyal to Lasser in these days of bottling giants.

Lasser's main business, however, is the carriage trade — customers coming to the door.

WWII Guide Distributed To Teachers

NEW YORK (AP) — A recently composed 461-page curriculum guide on the World War II Holocaust is being distributed to junior and senior high school instructors here as teaching aids on the mass murder of Jews in Nazi Germany.

Dr. Arnold Webb, who supervised the preparation of the guide, which is entitled "The Holocaust," said that it includes pictures and descriptions of death camps, poems, plays, maps and programs for class discussion.

Schools Chancellor Irving Anker said that about 25,000 students normally study Nazism for two weeks during a World History course but many are unfamiliar with the atrocities of the Nazis. It is estimated that 6 million Jews and 6 million others were killed.

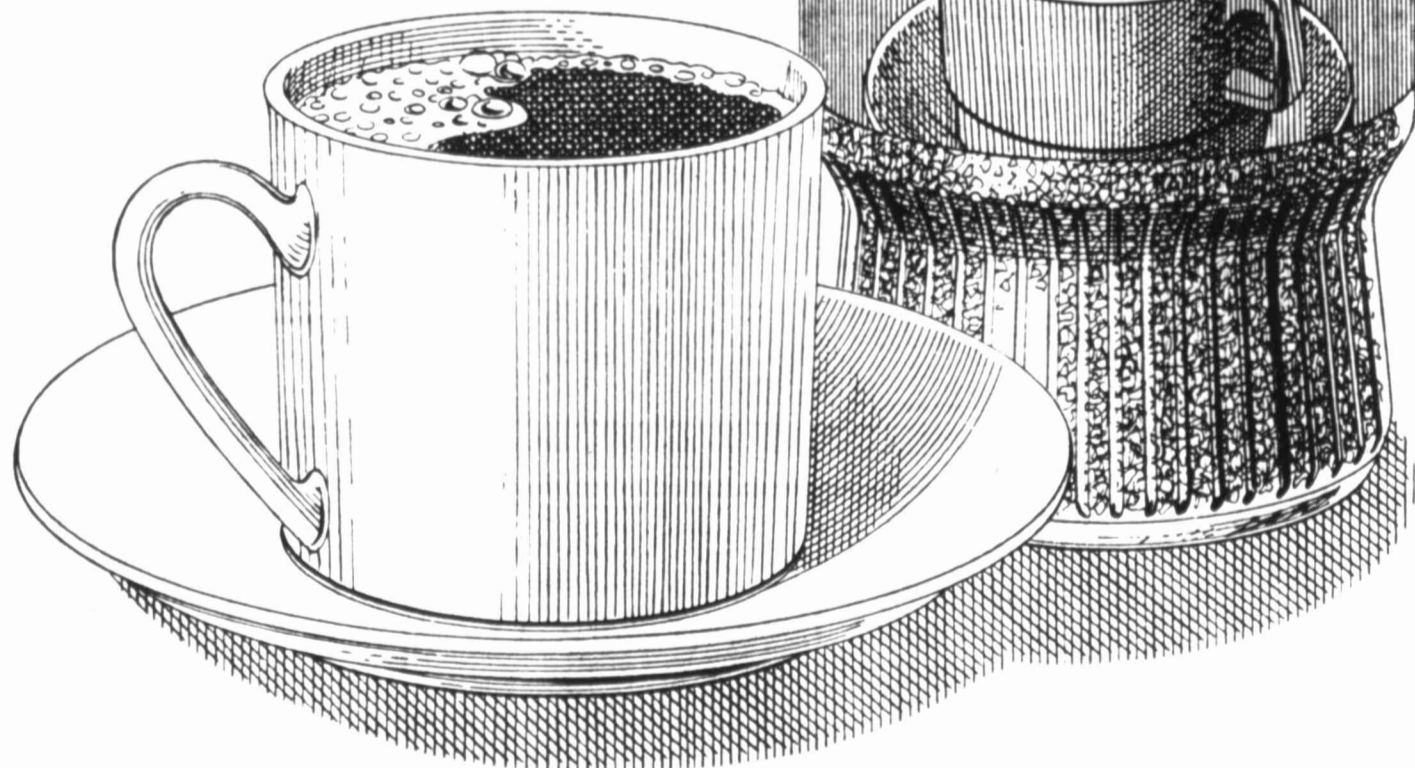

Anker said school children must learn that "something like this must never happen again."

Webb said, "The history of mankind includes several major episodes of human tragedy — the religious persecution of early Christians in the Roman Empire and Jews in medieval Europe, the enslavement of blacks in America, the exile of native American Indians from their homeland, the extermination of the Armenians in modern Turkey, and the starvation and exile of defeated people in recent wars in Biafra and Bangladesh."

"The Holocaust, the mass murder of millions of Jews and non-Jews in Europe in the era of World War II, has been selected for this curriculum because, in this tragic chapter in human history, the intent and scope of mass murder was unprecedented."

A similar course, taught in Philadelphia, was criticized by the German-American Committee of Greater Philadelphia. The group contended that the course emphasized Nazi atrocities while ignoring those committed by other groups.

Researchers Laud Hair Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canadian researchers have found unusually high and low levels of trace metals in the hair of children with learning disabilities, indicating hair tests may be useful in screening for children with the problem.

Dr. Robert O. Pihl, associate professor of psychology at McGill University, said 31 learning disabled children tested in Montreal were distinguished from 22 normal children by hair analysis alone. Pihl said in a telephone interview that the origin of the trace metals variations and how they may be factors in learning disabilities are unknown.

"I can see using hair analysis as a potential screening device for learning disability, but we have too much to find out first before this can be useful," he said. "We are still trying to find out what learning disability actually is."

In a report in the current issue of the magazine Science, Pihl and Muriel Parkes say definitions of learning disability generally exclude children who are mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed or have obvious brain or nerve damage.

Pihl said typical learning disabled children have IQ levels that are at least average but have difficulties in school achievement.

Hair tends to concentrate various elements and has been used in many studies to measure for nutritional deficiencies and toxic substances. So the researchers collected hair cuttings from children who showed learning disability in tests and had the hair analyzed for 14 metals.

When the tests found unexpectedly high levels of such metals as cadmium, lead and sodium, and low levels of lithium, cobalt and other elements in children with learning disabilities, the researchers tested a group of normal children for comparison.

Analysis showed that by using cadmium, cobalt, manganese, chromium and lithium, all the children could be classified as learning disabled or normal with 98 per cent accuracy, a result that was quite unexpected, the researchers said.

To see if the abnormal trace metal levels in learning disabled children were connected with diet and home life, hair from their brothers and sisters was tested. Pihl said the learning disabled children could be distinguished from their brothers and sisters based on the metal levels.

Pihl said these results are too general to draw conclusions about a relationship between behavior and metal levels. But it indicates further study is needed, he added.

Water Used In Fusion Process

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal official says "a truly inexhaustible energy source" can easily be derived from plain water.

Edwin Kintner, director of the U.S. Department of Energy's Magnetic Fusion division, said this week the element deuterium, found naturally in water, also can help overcome the protests of environmentalists because it can lead to reactors with less solid radioactive waste.

Deuterium has atoms twice the mass of ordinary light hydrogen atoms and is used in nuclear reactions.

It "can be easily extracted from ordinary water" and is the primary fuel of fusion. "a truly inexhaustible energy source," Kintner told a scientific seminar.

Kintner said urgent development of controlled fusion to generate more electrical power is being carried out in laboratories at Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Livermore, Calif.;

Los Alamos, N.M., and Princeton, N.J., and at an industrial firm, General Atomic, of La Jolla, Calif.

He said plants using fusion — the union of atoms to release enormous amounts of energy — are preferable to fission reactors, which involve splitting of atoms to achieve the same result.

"Fusion plants will not contain plutonium or other materials which must be safeguarded to prevent diversion for clandestine nuclear weapons," Kintner said.

He said the smaller amount of solid radioactive waste "will mean a decrease in the radioactive dose to the public in comparison to fission plants."

As a result, Kintner said, utility firms which have run into public resistance over safety fears will get a major boost "in siting and licensing when compared with either fossil or fission plants."

Kintner said fusion is "environmentally attractive" and yields no combustion products, its reactors "release fewer wastes" and they inherently have a low probability of accidents.

Describing the program as "the new order of things" and vastly cheaper than other nuclear power plans, Kintner said fusion reactions in plasma — ionized gas — are the basic "energy sources of the universe in our sun and the other stars."

Dead Colonel's Wife Not Bitter

(EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer Horst Faas, who covered the Vietnam war for 12 years, recently revisited the country with a German tourist group and met a former Viet Cong commander who remembered the death of an American officer. Here is a report by AP Pulitzer Prize-winning writer Peter Arnett, who worked extensively with Faas, on the widow of that American officer.)

By PETER ARNETT
NEW YORK (AP) — Her officer husband was the first of his West Point class to die in Vietnam, and she was left alone to bring up their four children, but Harriet Linnell says she bears no bitterness toward the communist soldiers who killed him.

"George wanted to be a military man, he was trained for it, and we have always been proud of what he did," she said in a telephone interview from her home in Beaufort, S.C.

Mrs. Linnell has remarried, but memories of the death in battle of her late husband, Lt. Col. George Eyster, returned with the Associated Press interview of the commander of the Vietnamese unit that killed him.

AP photographer Horst Faas was with Col. Eyster in January, 1966, when he was fatally wounded by sniper fire from a hidden tunnel complex northwest of Saigon.

The dying commander of the 2nd Battalion, 28th Regiment, 1st Infantry Division, whispered to Faas, "Before I go I'd like to talk to the guy who controls

'Eagle' Skipper Wants To Try Crossing Again

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — The second American attempt in five weeks to cross the Atlantic by balloon has ended off the coast of Canada, and the skipper of the balloon Eagle reports he is "somewhat embarrassed" and nearly $250,000 poorer. But he says he will try again next year.

The Canadian Coast Guard ship Provo Wallis picked up Dewey Reinhard, 47, and navigator Steve Stephenson, 44, from their gondola 30 miles off Nova Scotia late Wednesday afternoon.

The men, who took off from Bar Harbor, Maine, on Monday, were cold and tired, but otherwise in good condition.

Reinhard, in a telephone interview, said he was "very disappointed and somewhat embarrassed."

"We didn't fly very far after putting so much effort, time and money into this thing," he said. But "we'll be back next year. The system worked perfectly. It just needs to be fine tuned. But maybe we'll try it a little earlier next year."

Reinhard said difficulty in picking up weather broadcasts, bad weather and trouble with the ballasting system caused them to abort the flight. He explained that it was raining, with 30-mile winds, the gondola had hit the water at least a dozen times in two days and they were drifting toward land, north of their route.

"We didn't feel it was safe for us to fly the balloon over Nova Scotia because we didn't want to damage any property," he said.

Reinhard said the descent into the sea caused no problems "but the seas were pretty rough, and we got rattled around in the boat a lot."

The 85-foot balloon was lost, but the Provo Wallis recovered the $50,000 orange-and-yellow gondola. Reinhard said he believes it is in good enough shape for another attempt.

these incredible men in the tunnels."

While on a two-week return trip to Vietnam with a German tourist group early this month, Faas met that man, Capt. Nguyen Thanh Linh, who gave Faas the inside view of the fantastic tunnel complex that took 30 years to dig and stretched 150 miles, with tentacles sometimes winding right under the chairs of U.S. commanders as they sat in their headquarters.

The slightly built, 45-year-old Captain Linh said he was commander of the Cu Chi Liberation Battalion at the time of the American colonel's death, and he recalled receiving intelligence reports about it.

Faas reported that Linh spoke in French with grudging respect and almost without hatred about his former enemies, the Americans.

Eyster's wife said Wednesday she held no bitterness toward the communist soldiers "because they were doing their duty, too, as they saw it." But she remains unhappy about the complete collapse of the Saigon government in 1975.

"I don't pretend to know the political subtleties, but we could not help asking ourselves what was all that loss of life for. Yet I hate to say George's life was wasted," she said.

The military tradition of the Eyster family is being maintained by his two sons, both in uniform. The eldest, George Eyster 4th, is a helicopter pilot in the Air Force and both his sisters have married Army officers.

Their grandfather, George Eyster 2nd, was chief of information in the European theater in World War II. The commander of the U.S. Army's 1st Infantry Division at the time of the colonel's death in Vietnam, Lt. Gen. Jonathan Seaman, said Wednesday that Eyster would have been a general like his father had he lived.

Many more Americans were to die in the tunnel complex after Eyster, but casualties were crippling in communist ranks, too. Captain Linh said that of the 600 men in the Cu Chi battalion when the American colonel was killed, only four survived the war, two officers and two noncommissioned officers.

AP photographer Faas reported that the former battlefield where Eyster died now looks lush and sleepy. Deep B52 bomb craters still are visible, retained as fish ponds or wallowing holes for animals.

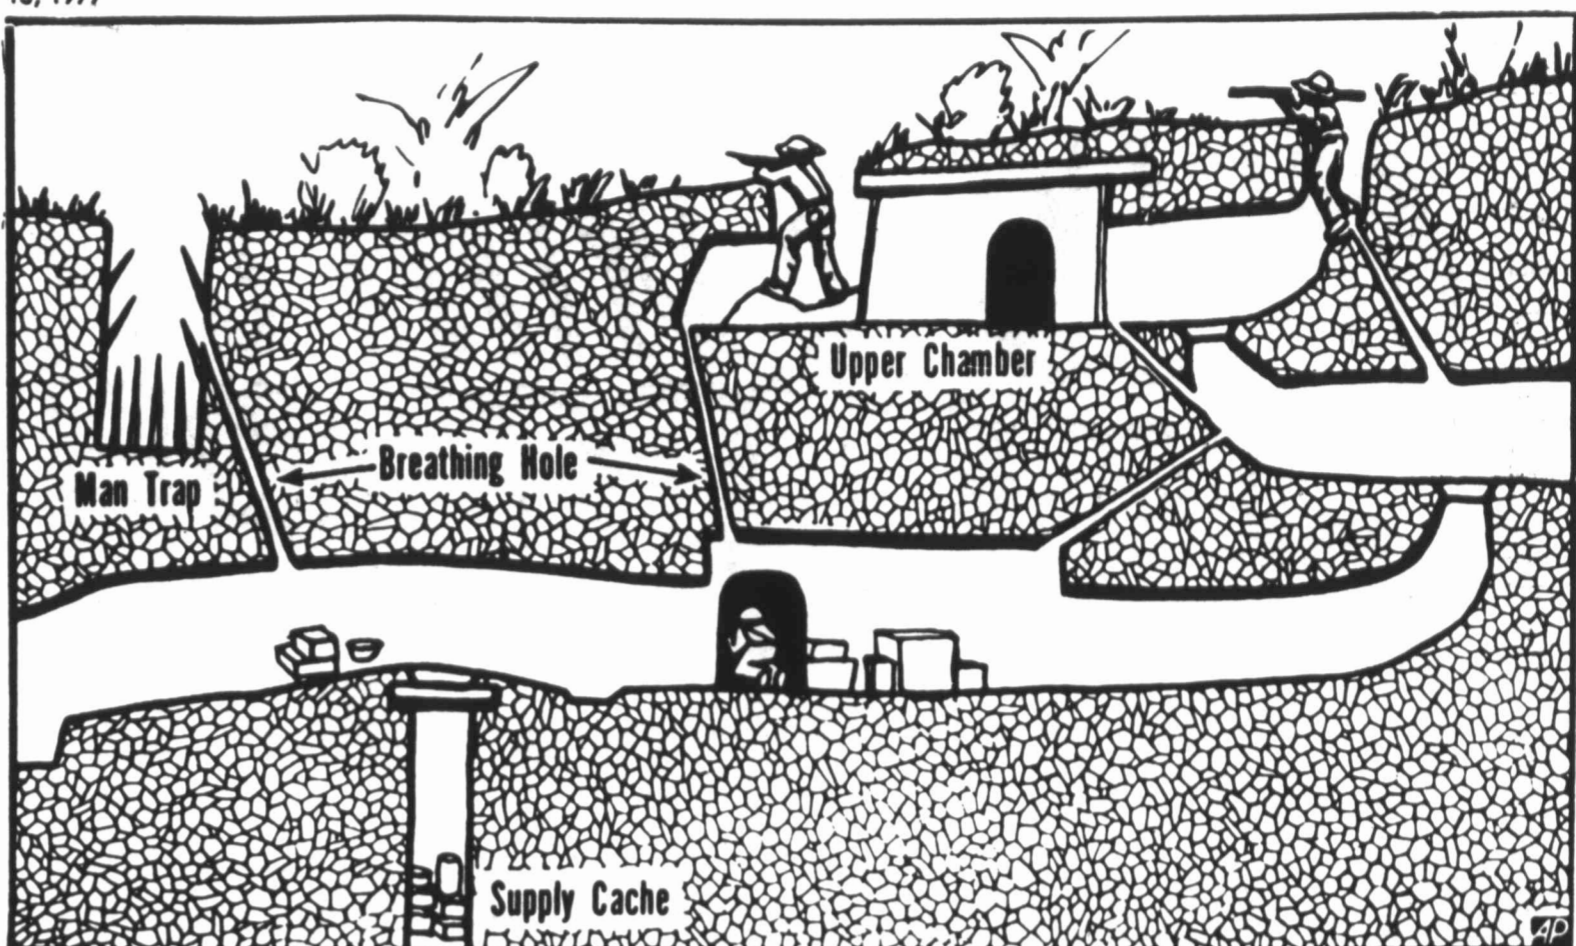

The vast tunnel complex, now part of the tourist route for visitors to Vietnam, lies one, two and three levels underground. The routes were marked in black lines on a 12-by-12-foot map hanging from a briefing room wall at the Cu Chi district headquarters.

Faas' first reaction was that it looked like a map of the New York or London subway systems, with dots not for stations but for fighting positions and secret entrances and exits.

Faas was told the complex took 30 years to build. "We dug usually in the dark, squatting down. We carved out a meter every eight hours, and women distributed the earth on the surface, hiding it under fallen leaves."

Faas said the Vietnamese took his group to inspect the tunnels, and as noisy swarms of mosquitos buzzed around their heads they pushed themselves through the narrow corridors obviously built by and for slender Vietnamese.

"We always moved in the dark, saving our candles and torches for emergencies," said Captain Linh. "Our amputees lay in the dark, sometimes for months."

FIELD FORTIFICATIONS — This diagram shows a typical cross section of the two- and three-tier tunnels used as fortifications by the Viet Cong in the Vietnam War. It represents just a portion of the fantastic tunnel complex near Cu Chi, Vietnam, that took 30 years to dig and stretched about 150 miles. (AP Laserphoto)

Resolution Extends Battle On Abortion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social service recipients would still receive their benefits and some 240,000 federal employees would still be paid under an emergency resolution before the House and Senate.

The resolution would allow the two chambers to continue their fight over abortion policy until the end of the month without jeopardizing either federal programs or federal paychecks.

The abortion issue is included in a $60.2 billion appropriation bill for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments, and disagreement between the two chambers has stalled the entire measure.

but each house's position was expected to be unacceptable to the other chamber, continuing the deadlock.

The Senate took the first step to provide the temporary funds Wednesday night by approving a resolution that would provide money for key social service agencies until Nov. 1. The House was expected to vote on that proposal today.

House leaders have opposed such a resolution, fearing that any appropriation resolution would become bogged down in the abortion dispute.

But the resolution passed by the Senate would continue until Nov. 1 the abortion policy enacted last year with strong House support. It says the government will pay for abortions only where a woman's life would be jeopardized by a full-term pregnancy.

While continuing that policy, the resolution would get money to the departments for key programs and salaries. It would continue spending at the levels in force during fiscal 1977 and be retroactive to Oct. 1. Money to operate the agencies technically ran out then.

Programs like welfare and unemployment insurance have continued to make payments. But officials began warning this week that some programs might be cut off because of the impact on the states of losing federal aid.

The resolution also would provide paychecks for the agencies' 240,000 employees, many of whom faced half pay with their next checks and nothing but promises after that.

Only federally-supported health programs like Medicaid are affected by the kind of abortion restrictions being considered in Congress. Poor people are their chief beneficiaries. HEW estimates that the government paid directly for about 300,000 abortions last year at a cost of $50 million.

In the continuing battle over abortion policy, the House compromised their earlier restrictive stand Wednesday by agreeing to pay for abortions for forcible rape and incest victims if they report the incidents to authorities and receive treatment before pregnancy is verified.

The Senate, which takes a more liberal position on paying for abortions, rejected the House proposal and adopted language saying the government should pay for abortions where a woman's life is endangered by a full-term pregnancy, in cases of rape or incest or if the woman or fetus would suffer serious health damage.

New Jobs Predicted In Report

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Americans in an energy-conscious 21st century will have more leisure time but vastly different lifestyles as new energy-related industries solve unemployment problems, according to a report by a University of Wisconsin think tank.

The report, prepared by the Institute for Environmental Studies at the Madison campus, predicted nearly full employment for the American work force in the next century. John Steinhart, a co-author of the report, said some of the new jobs would be in energy-related industries "and some of it would come from a return of labor to agriculture and forestry, though in new, less physically demanding roles." The study indicated that by the year 2050 relatively few Americans would rely on cars for daily transportation, although cars would not be priced out of reach. Instead of the auto industry employing tens of thousands of workers, the big new industries would be the manufacture of trains and rapid transit systems, the report noted.

The report, entitled "A Low Energy Scenario for the U.S.: 1975-2050," predicted people will get to work, school, errands and social appointments in smaller cities by bicycle, bus or walking.

Food production will be a more local industry with farmers growing crops for regional rather than national or international consumption, the report added, while most families will rely more on home gardens.

Processed foods, nonessential cosmetics and throwaway packaging and utensils will become artifacts of the past, Steinhart and his colleagues said.

"We think it's possible that by 1990, many of us will be working a 30-hour week and a single job may be shared by two people," Steinhart said.

Border Patrol Shift Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Commissioner of Customs has agreed to stop plans to transfer border patrol aircraft and personnel out of New Orleans.

Rep. Robert Livingston announced the action after he met with Commissioner Robert Chasen to protest the proposed transfer. Livingston claimed the transfer would leave New Orleans and the Gulf Coast area without adequate protection against illegal drug traffic.

"We need to look not only at keeping the equipment we have, but at increasing our protection with a better equipped border patrol on the Gulf," Livingston said.

The Customs Bureau had planned to cut the number of border airplanes at stations in New Orleans, San Antonio and El Paso and transfer them to Florida, Arizona and California.

More People Using Phone Directories

MIAMI (UPI) — A newly imposed 15-cent charge for directory assistance in three Florida counties has sent a lot more fingers thumbing through the yellow and white pages, a Southern Bell official said this week.

Directory assistance calls in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties have dropped 59 per cent since Sept. 20, when customers began paying the fee after six free requests for listings, according to Southern Bell spokesman Jerry McLaughlin.

A similar reduction could be expected statewide, he said, "and that means the plan is working."

McLaughlin said without the directory assistance charge, basic monthly bills would be 60 cents higher.

The reduction in directory assistance calls has allowed Southern Bell to reduce the number of operators on duty, McLaughlin said, but none will be laid off.

Independent-Minded Senators Upset Carter Energy Package

By MIKE SHANAHAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — "All I'm trying to do," Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said during a moment of extreme frustration last week, "is get the ox out of the ditch."

At the time, Byrd was referring only to the two-week Senate deadlock over natural gas prices, but he could just as easily have had a broader point in mind.

For almost every section of President Carter's energy plan, the Senate has proven to be one long ditch full of wallowing oxen.

And it appears unlikely that Byrd or anyone else will be able to coax them out.

Allies of the President say the White House did not anticipate strong Senate resistance to the energy program and as a

Why? "The Senate is a different ball park," Byrd has been heard to say somewhat deprecatingly when his performance is compared with O'Neill's successes.

Senate committees are jealous of their prerogatives and their judgments are respected when legislation reaches the Senate floor. So when the Senate Energy Committee was unable to break a deadlock over whether to deregulate natural gas prices, the result was a filibuster on the Senate floor that challenged Byrd's prestige and ended with a major victory for the natural gas industry.

Analysis

result the administration must cling to the hope of salvaging part of its package in congressional conference committees.

When Carter sent his complex energy package to Capitol Hill with great fanfare in April, some said it might sail through the Senate, but would face trouble in the House.

House members, up for election every two years, were held to be much less likely to approve such a radical use of taxes and other economic tools for an American electorate grown skeptical about whether there is really an energy shortage.

That argument ignored the political acumen of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and a weakened House committee structure.

Wilbur Mills was gone as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and O'Neill superimposed an Ad Hoc Energy Committee, whose sole job was to whip the work of five established panels into one single piece of legislation.

O'Neill set firm deadlines for House committees to finish their work. With the new President still benefitting from the good will given every new administration, the energy package moved through the House with unprecedented speed.

The House did cut out a few major provisions of the plan like tax rebates for buyers of small cars and across-the-board increases in gasoline taxes.

But O'Neill and other administration allies were able to sustain a rolling momentum despite attempts by Republicans and some oil and gas state Democrats to put more emphasis on new production of fuels in place of taxes and other incentives.

House passage of the energy bill in the first week of August was hailed as a major victory for the administration. The jubilation was short lived.

Assurances Given U.S. Investors

QUEBEC (AP) — Responding to the reported fears of U.S. investors, a province official says the ruling Parti Quebecois doesn't intend to nationalize the pulp and paper industry.

Lands and Forests Minister Yves Berube gave that assurance this week in response to a statement made by Jean-Paul Carrier, vice president of F.F. Soucy Inc., a subsidiary of the Bato Co. of New York.

Carrier told a legislative committee studying the industry that his company was considering building a factory in Virginia rather than in Quebec because U.S. investors fear nationalization.

The paper mill executive also complained that the cost of wood and manpower in the Canadian province is too high, although he conceded that the cost of electricity in the United States would be twice that in Quebec.

Berube challenged the assertions, saying Quebec's cheaper electricity offset higher material costs. He also said the Canadian dollar, worth about 7 per cent less than the U.S. dollar, offsets the higher wages Quebec workers earn.

F.F. Soucy, which boasts the most modern production facilities in North America, is the only company on the continent producing paper using 100 per cent thermo-mechanical pulp.

The company's mill in Riviere du Loup has the capacity to make 185,000 tons of newsprint a year. Opened in 1976 at a cost of $60 million, the mill emits no air pollutants and a reduced amount of water pollutants.

Unlike older processes using chemicals to turn trees to pulp, the new technology uses more electricity. But because it is more efficient and less polluting, officials in the Quebec department of lands and forests see it as the wave of the future.

Earlier, the Abitibi-Price group, the world's top producer of newsprint, said a ton of U.S.-made newsprint costs $40 less than a ton of Quebec newsprint.

In its presentation to the committee, Abitibi-Price called on the Quebec government to assist the industry in making itself competitive.

T.J. Bell, chairman of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., which holds a 54 per cent interest in Price, said the Canadian industry has had trouble competing.

Senator Criticizes Executive Branch

By TOM RAUM
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Zorinsky, who said he almost resigned his seat earlier because of frustration with Senate customs, now says he's not too pleased with the executive branch of government, either.

Zorinsky, a first-term Democrat from Nebraska, wants President Carter to stop asking for his vote on key issues if administration officials can't be more responsive to requests for information from him and other senators.

"It is unfortunate that you are not aware of more of the incompetence in this administration," Zorinsky said in a letter to Frank Moore, Carter's go-between in dealings with Congress.

The sharply worded letter to the presidential assistant was prompted by another letter Zorinsky said he wrote to the President last April concerning federal educational programs — a letter the lawmaker said took the administration nearly six months to answer.

The reply that came was "not only inaccurate and condescending, but does not respond at all to my request," Zorinsky said.

Zorinsky told Moore that he had written to the President to express his concern with several federally funded educational programs which he claims are of doubtful value.

One is a project designed to teach children when their parents are making unrealistic demands on them or ignoring them, Zorinsky said.

Another entails log books in which grade-school youths are supposed to make notes comparing their personal lives with those of people in fictional stories.

Zorinsky said he told Carter he was afraid such programs might undermine "the family unit and the ideas on which our country was founded."

He said his letter was only answered late last month and that the reply came not from the President or from a Cabinet member but from Dick Warden, an assistant secretary for legislation in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Warden "did not even begin to respond to my letter," but instead pointed out that there are laws prohibiting federal control of education, "of which I am aware and which has nothing to do with my letter," Zorinsky said.

Zorinsky said the HEW official also went on to claim an unawareness of the "objectionable curriculums" that he had in mind, "which is patently absurd."

"If this is the kind of response I am going to receive, I ask that the President refrain from making further requests of me concerning my vote on the Panama Canal treaty, deregulation of natural gas and other issues that come up from time to time," Zorinsky said.

Lance Planning To Speak In Brussels

NEW YORK (AP) — Former White House budget director Bert Lance plans to go to Brussels to speak on the impact of government on the economy. Lance was invited to speak at the conference before he resigned from office under fire.

"We felt, and still feel, that he is the leading authority on the subject at the moment," said Joseph Naar, spokesman for The Conference Board, a nonprofit business research and information agency that arranged the Oct. 25 speaking engagement for Lance. "There is no successor, and even if there were ... Lance would know more than any successor at this point in time. "We want him to discuss what we originally asked him to discuss — the impact of the federal government on the economy," Naar said. Several hundred business leaders from Europe are expected to attend the Oct. 25 conference, Naar said.

Smoke Alarms Effective Fire Warning Devices

By TOM CRANE

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated eight million householders will shell out from $20 to $50 each this year for a residential smoke alarm, a gadget they hope they'll never need.

For some, it will be the first smoke detection device in their homes, but many will be picking up a second or third to broaden their protection in larger residences.

Fires kill about 6,500 persons in their homes each year, often during the hours of sleep. And officials across the country are avid boosters of the new tool for early detection of fires.

Just about any one of them will suggest that the purchase of a smoke alarm is the perfect way to observe National Fire Prevention Week this week.

The smoke detector is not the ultimate answer to fire danger, but it seems the best to date. Concealed within a neat little container fastened to, or near, the ceiling, most often in the hallway of a bedroom area, it cannot prevent a fire. But its piercing alarm early in a fire can rouse heavy sleepers before blinding smoke and flame cut off escape.

No less than 100 companies have entered the market, manufacturing or selling smoke alarms. And makers of long-life batteries are sharing in the boom, turning out special 9-volt cells for their first alarm units and stepping up their output of the familiar transistor radio-type batteries.

Along with individual householders, government officials are seeing the wisdom of the smoke alarm. New federally financed housing and transfer of a federal mortgage to a new tenant require prior installation of wired-in smoke detectors. A recent survey shows 13 states mandating such protective devices in all new residential construction while 23 other states require smoke alarms only in specified types of residences under state or local regulations.

North Carolina politely "requests" but does not order new-residence smoke ector but dismayed at the welter of models and the difference in type, authorities offer some advice:

Look first for an Underwriters Laboratories approval label or similar assurance from another recognized testing facility to show that rigid specifications and reliability requirements have been met. Then shop for price.

Special sales are frequent as a result of the keen competition between manufacturers. An Ionic smoke alarm marketed by one of the pioneers in the business sold recently for $19.99, instead of its listed price of $34.99.

As to which type to buy, the advice is that it doesn't matter. If you can afford it, buy one of each type. If buying a second smoke alarm, make it the type you don't already have.

The installations of smoke alarms outside each cluster of bedrooms is advisable, and in the bedroom of anyone who smokes in bed. Additional units may be desirable at the top of a stairway or in the living room.

The states requiring smoke alarms in all new dwellings are Alaska, California, Idaho, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New York, Oregon, Utah, Virginia, Washington and Wyoming.

While smoke alarm legislation is in the discussion stage in some instances, the survey showed no general state or local laws applicable to new residential construction in Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont and West Virginia.

alarms while 13 states have no requirements for such protection, although more than 100 localities have adopted smoke detector ordinances.

Underlining their importance is the fact that four of every five persons killed in residential fires are not burned but die of toxic fumes, and that one of six injured survivors spends from six weeks to two years receiving often painful and always costly treatment in hospitals and clinics.

The technical improvements in such smoke alarms make them independent of house wiring that may fail in a fire. They also reduce power requirements so that it operates on a single long-life 9-volt battery of the type used in a transistor radio, available at the corner store.

Big Lydia's Catcher Doesn't Want Award

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston police spoke of some kind of special award for Wanda Boehm, the traffic officer who tamed a runaway 9,000-pound Indian elephant. But she said she probably already has had all the credit she deserves.

The diminutive traffic officer happened to be in the vicinity earlier this week when three elephants broke from a downtown circus parade, sideswiping cars and slamming into buildings. No one was hurt, despite the havoc.

Miss Boehm met one of the runaways, Big Lydia, storming out of the garage of a funeral parlor. Lydia was confused and the garage was a wreck.

But Miss Boehm simply grabbed the elephant by the trunk, calmed her down and waited for the trainer.

Lt. J. D. Riley, Miss Boehm's boss, said offering the officer a citation "has been discussed. But we can't decide exactly how to word the comments. We've never had anything like this occur before."

Miss Boehm, a 2 1/2-year veteran of the force, who said she was "too old to be asked" her age, said, "I think it (the capture) has been overrated. I really don't want a citation."

"We (Miss Boehm and her partner) saw the elephant and I jumped out of the car and chased it and grabbed its trunk. About that time the trainer came up. I just grabbed it by the nose and it stopped. That's all."

"I was not frightened at the time, but when I saw the news later..." She didn't bother to finish the sentence.

How did she know to grab the trunk? "If you were going to grab an elephant, where would you grab him? That's the littles part," she explained.

But she gave credit where credit was due.

"It was a nice elephant as elephants go."

Riley said he was pleased because Miss Boehm's point control division — a sort of downtown intensive care unit for jammed traffic — seldom wins recognition.

"The only time you're recognized is when you messed up," Miss Boehm said. "All of our officers, I think, do a good job."

Play Therapy Prepares Children For Surgery

By CHRIS ROBERTS
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Remember when you were a kid and you had your tonsils out? You were put under by an evil-smelling gas and woke up scared to death.

Well, medicine is changing, and that atmosphere of fear is going the way of doctors who made house calls.

Pediatric hospitals around the country are erasing the fears of their tiny patients by treating the mind as well as the body and laying the mysteries of medicine out on the table.

At Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, for example, the gas masks smell of root beer and licorice. And Bert and Ernie and Kermit the Frog dolls are doctored by the kids themselves who are trying to get better.

During play therapy sessions, the youngsters give their stuffed charges shots and blood transfusions of water, plaster their appendages with casts, and anoint their bodies with Band-Aids. They toss around medical jargon like OR (operating room) and IV (intravenous) with ease.

Sure, when real needles meet real skin, it still hurts. But once understood, needles and other hospital apparatus often aren't as frightening.

"We try to prevent surprises," explains nurse Linda Ogilvie, the hospital's parent services coordinator. "When they don't know what's happening, that's when they really get scared."

For many, the indoctrination begins before the youngsters check in.

Several weeks prior to admission, kids scheduled for surgery receive an invitation to a hospital party featuring a puppet show.

"They can bring along their parents, their brothers and sisters, and any children from the neighborhood," says Mrs. Ogilvie.

The puppets teach the kids about the new things they'll experience in the hospital: the higher beds, the wrist identification bracelets, etc. A puppet named "Bobby" talks about what he's going to do before his operation, about the two injections he'll get in the morning.

"For the kids, that's the most traumatic thing," says Mrs. Ogilvie. "Bobby says 'Ouch!' very loud during the show when he gets his injections."

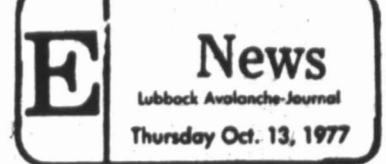

"The kids usually look up into their parents' faces, as if to say, 'is this really going to happen to me?' The parents nod down with the child and family and discuss everything we know they'll feel when the youngster wakes up," says Mrs. Ogilvie.

"With the kids who are going to have serious operations, we take them and their parents down to the intensive care unit beforehand. And that can be pretty frightening because they're seeing other children who are pretty sick."

"But they're going to see them anyway. They're going to see them when they wake up from their operation and they're not feeling good and they have all those tubes and wires in them. That's no time to start talking about it."

Before operations, patients can play with gas masks, and nurses model operating room caps and masks to give the kids a preview of operating room attire. Dry run "surgery" is performed on either Bert or Ernie, then the "Sesame Street" characters are bandaged up and "sent home to see their buddy, Kermit." The kids and parents seem to love it.

The kids are very quiet. We take the same puppet show to schools sometimes for kids who aren't going into the hospital. They laugh when Bobby says ouch."

The hospital party goes then tour the operating room, the recovery room and the waiting room.

The morning before surgery we sit Stronger Warning Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress should be asked to ban cigarette advertising if more effective health warnings cannot be found, two consumer groups say.

Before seeking the ban, the Federal Trade Commission should require better warnings, said Warren Braren, a spokesman for Consumers Union and the Consumer Federation of America.

Braren told the FTC on Tuesday that cigarette advertising should carry something like the skull-and-crossbones symbol that warns of poison.

He spoke at a hearing before the FTC staff, which is seeking comments on a new report on smoking. The study, by Martin Fishbein of the University of Illinois, said the public needs more information about the health hazards of smoking.

Cigarette advertising has been barred by law from radio and television since 1971. Since 1970, all cigarette packages have been required to say: "Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

The current warnings protect the cigarette industry because "they serve to stem public criticism and to avoid responsible government action that would meet head-on the recommendations contained in the Fishbein report," Braren said.

The Consumer Federation of America is composed of 220 nonprofit groups, while Consumers Union is a private nonprofit organization that tests products and publishes Consumer Reports magazine.

Kingston, the capital of Jamaica, is 90 miles south of Cuba and 100 miles west of Haiti.

DR. LAMB

Bland Diet Aids Gastritis

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—My husband has been under a doctor's care for over two months for chronic gastritis. He is on a bland diet and he takes a white pill four times a day. He is getting no better and has pains all the time. Could you explain what gastritis is? He stays on a diet but he is losing weight. He was 167 and is now 154.

DEAR READER—Always remember that "itis" means inflammation. Gastritis, then, means inflammation of the stomach. The lining may show areas of increased redness and erosion and small hemorrhagic spots. Gastritis may be an acute self-limited disease as may occur with some forms of food poisoning or after alcohol ingestion. These are best treated with a bland diet such as Jell-O, milk, puddings and such foods with no starches and, of course, avoiding the factor that caused it, such as alcohol. Acute gastritis from food poisoning is usually caused by some bacteria.

The duration of the illness is short and the bland diet plus measures to support the patient, such as fluids if needed, are given temporarily. Chronic gastritis is a bit more difficult. The condition persists and may or may not cause pain. It, too, is treated by a bland diet and sometimes antacids and medicines to prevent the formation of acid digestive juices. There are many causes for gastritis, including underlying liver disease. An offending agent may cause the inflammation by direct contact inside the stomach or by way of the blood stream after it is absorbed. Authorities do not agree whether alcohol causes gastritis by dissolving the protective layer over the stomach lining or by way of the blood stream. Aspirin has a direct action on the lining. The combination of alcohol and aspirin is particularly apt to cause irritation and acute gastritis.

Other than the bland diet and measures to neutralize the acid formed by the stomach there is a limited number of things that can be done. You have to let nature gradually heal the condition. Of course, avoiding alcohol, aspirin and following a proper diet are musts in such cases. The proper diet means also eliminating all coffee in all form, tea, colas, cocoa and chocolate. A medicine with hormonal type action (dexamethasone) is sometimes used and that may be what your husband's doctor is giving your husband. Cigarettes should also be eliminated. For information about ulcers and their treatment send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-5. Ulcers - Duodenal, Stomach. Include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Send your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I am sorry to say the treatment of chronic gastritis is a great deal more difficult than treatment of acute gastritis. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Sisters Noted For Barbecue

HEMPSTEAD (UPI) — The roar of a trio of tired wall fans and the flapping of hundreds of posterboard signs lulled Alene Williams to sleep in an overstuffed living room chair. It was barely noon, but "Mother" Williams already had put in a day's work stoking the pit fire, slapping sauce on huge chunks of beef, dicing vegetables for cole slaw and stirring cauldrons of red beans. After the cooking is over at Swan's, a traditional Texas barbecue roadhouse about 50 miles north of Houston, "Mother" Williams and her twin sister, Christine "Sister" Mosley tend to their signs. A breakfast eater who peruses cereal boxes over his morning bowl of flakes would think he had died and gone to heaven the first time he walked into the roadhouse — that is if he eats barbecue for breakfast. The sisters have so many signs hanging on the walls and dangling from the ceiling — every available space has a sign — it's hard to find the menu. Most of the signs are testimonials from travelers to Houston who have become aficionados of their fine, lip-smacking, mouth-watering barbecue. "Oh, man, we got people in here from all over the world. Some people heard about our barbecue in Europe and wanted to eat some of it," she said. She probably wouldn't be surprised if some green-skinned, antennae creatures landed their saucer on the lawn of the barn-like roadhouse and ordered a beef plate with extra onions, seeing as how lunar astronaut Michael Collins added his name to the long list of Swan's fans. "Look! Best B-B-Q I ever had," reads a sign written by Collins. Barbecue lovers from as far away as Connecticut and California praised the culinary talents of the twin sisters who took over the restaurant's operation after the death of their sister, Honey Swan last year. "Mother" Williams and "Sister" Mosley always have tended the pit at Swan's since its inception 25 years ago from a watermelon stand. And they added their decorating touch by posting handpainted signs all over the building inside and out, such as, "Love many, trust a few, always paddle your own canoe," and "killing the dog does not cure the bite." They lined the walls with pictures of American presidents, favorite Biblical quotations and homemade "rules of life," such as their "Teen Commandments," "Penalties for Leadership," and "Safety at Play." POISONOUS LIZARDS The world's only poisonous lizards are North American and include the Gila monster in the United States and the beaded lizard, from Mexico.

Brzezinski Fails History 'Test'

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's foreign policy guru, Zbigniew Brzezinski, spent 20 years as a professor at Harvard and Columbia. Recent events suggest it's fortunate that history was not his specialty.

The Polish-born Brzezinski, an expert on Soviet affairs and international relations, has demonstrated that he can be fallible indeed when it comes to footnotes to American history.

As a recent migrant from the classroom to the White House, Brzezinski couldn't resist playing schoolmaster to the White House press corps during a recent briefing on Carter's forthcoming world tour.

The President's assistant for national security affairs, digressing from his main theme, faced his "students" and asked, "I wonder if you know who was the first U.S. president to travel abroad?"

After hearing suggestions of George Washington, Woodrow Wilson and John Adams, Brzezinski declared, "No, you are all flunking the history test."

The class then mentioned as possibilities Herbert Hoover, James Monroe and Theodore Roosevelt.

Proudly, the professor asserted, "The first president to travel abroad was (William Howard) Taft in 1909 to Panama. Taft traveled as president-elect, he added.

Well, Taft did go to Panama in January 1909. But Teddy Roosevelt beat him there by more than two years. Roosevelt actually was the first incumbent president to go abroad, visiting Panama in November 1906.

A week earlier, in announcing Carter's four-continent trek, Brzezinski erred in telling reporters that when Carter goes to Nigeria next month, it will be "the first black African country ever to be visited by a U.S. President."

Reporters were quick to discover that in 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Liberia, the first independent black nation in Africa.

The once-exclusive President's Club, an invention of Democratic fund-raisers, isn't what it used to be. It is opening its membership rolls to all who can scrape up a $15 donation to the Democratic National Committee. Maybe it's evidence that Democrats are getting more democratic.

When Lyndon B. Johnson was president, memberships cost $1,000 a head. For that kind of money, you stood a pretty good chance of getting invited to a state dinner at the White House or, at the least, an invitation to one of a series of regional banquets at which LBJ showed up to shake every hand.

In those days, and on those occasions, the well-heeled donors got their pictures taken with Johnson, who subsequently sent them personally inscribed prints.

Jimmy Carter has just put his facsimile signature — a simple "Jimmy" — on a mass mailing to prospective members of the revamped President's Club. And this is what he says you now get for your money:

"The Democratic National Committee will send you your President's Club membership card soon after your contribution is received, and will place your name on its mailing list to get periodic reports on our progress."

That's all, folks. Although Carter suggests that donations average $25 a person, an enclosed business reply envelope has a place to check off gifts of as little as $15.

After Carter touched on just about all major foreign and domestic problems in addressing the national committee last week, a reporter playfully asked him about one problem the President did not address.

"How about kudzu?" was the question, referring to the noxious vine that spreads unchecked across much of Carter's native South.

"We don't have it under control," a smiling President responded, apparently meaning to suggest he's on top of the problems he did mention.

Chrysler Announces Increase In 1978 Car Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Consumers who buy a 1978 American-made car will be paying nearly $400 more on the average than for a similar 1977 model.

That prospect became certain when Chrysler Corp., the No. 3 U.S. automaker, announced it is boosting prices on its new cars by an average $372.

Chrysler was the last of the Big Three automakers to announce an increase of about 6 per cent. The three companies sell 98 per cent of all American-made cars in this country. American Motors Corp., which accounts for the other 2 per cent, has not issued a formal price list for all of its 1978 cars.

Ford Motor Co. said Wednesday it was boosting prices an average $387 or 5.8 per cent. General Motors announced an average $405, or 6 per cent, boost last month.

Chrysler said base vehicle prices are going up $243 a car on the average; options, $111, or 7 per cent, and shipping charges, $18, for a total $372.

Base price increases range from $46 for the Dodge Diplomat and Chrysler LeBaron four-door sedans to $501 for the two-door Chrysler New Yorker Brougham.

Based on Chrysler's new prices, the average 1978 Plymouth, Dodge or Chrysler car, including options, will carry a suggested retail price approaching $6,500.

Offensive Shock Rock Song Inspired By Quinlan Case

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Not to be outdone by England's Sex Pistols, the lewd lords of Britain's punk rock movement, an American rock group called Starz has taken shock rock to new heights of offensiveness with its song, "Pull the Plug."

It's a bleak attempt at humor inspired by the Karen Ann Quinlan right-to-death case in New Jersey.

The song tells of a fictional youth who pulled the plug on his girlfriend's life-sustaining machine rather than see her live in a drug-and liquor-induced coma.

Miss Quinlan, 23, entered a hospital April 15, 1976, in a coma after swallowing alcohol and barbiturates at a party. Her life-support systems were removed in May, 1976 after a lengthy court battle with her parents advocating her right to "die with dignity."

She didn't die, and was transferred to a nursing home where she has remained comatose but in stable condition for more than a year.

"We live in New York and in New York that story was a page 1 headline every day," songwriter Michael Lee Smith said in a telephone interview from a Manhattan recording studio. "We couldn't help but see it everywhere we went. So one day as a joke I started singing 'I pulled the plug,' added some iron lungs and stuff like that and we liked it."

Some radio stations disagreed, refusing to play it. Smith said, but it remains Starz' most popular number and in Cleveland, he said, "They love it."

Charlie Kandell, who as program director at Cleveland's WMMS and Los Angeles' KWST has played the song, said the song's lyrics had little to do with his decision to go with it. "A lot of people liked Starz," Kandell says. "As a band, their music had some merit. As for the lyrics of that song, it's questionable."

But Mel Karmazin, general manager of New York City's WNEW-FM, said he saw the song as a political statement and decided not to air it.

"If we played that song," Karmazin said, "our responsibility to the public would be to play another song with the opposite point of view. There was no such song. What they were urging was to kill her, and under the Fairness Doctrine, we couldn't play it."

"Almost everybody takes it very seriously, compared to the way we wanted it to be," says Smith. "We thought of it as a sort of black-humor version of (C.W. McCall's) 'Convoy,' a novelty tune. But other people didn't see it that way."

"People in New Jersey might get a little upset. But when we do the song live, I do a little intro about how this girl got this way — pills and whisky — and all the people are going, 'Yeah, yeah,' really identifying with it," Smith said.

Smith said if a listener seeks it, a positive element can be found in his song. "This guy (in the song) is really suffering over whether he should do it (pull the plug on his girlfriend)," he said. "He feels the same moral dilemma all these people are talking about and writing articles about. Except he finally makes his own decision, which is unusual for people in this day and age, and does something about it. Maybe that's too radical for some of these people."

Former Convict Paints, Counsels Young Persons

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Earnest Aspinwall, an ex-convict artist who disappeared from the Midwest 10 years ago, has turned up in San Francisco, working on his specialty, a mural, and counseling teenagers not to end up as he did, spending 33 of his 68 years behind bars.

Aspinwall, traced by UPI through Arizona to California with the help of Seventh Step Foundation, has become a part of the San Francisco street scene. He was a street artist and currently is an "art therapist" for a San Francisco mental health center.

for a Seventh Step halfway house in Hayward, Calif., outside San Francisco. He said a picture of Clinton Duffly, former warden at San Quentin and founder of Seventh Step, would be the central motif of the mural, which is to be 25 feet long.

"I've been wandering around for about 10 years and I've fallen in love with San Francisco," he said. "Since St. Peter won't pass me and the devil can't stand me, I'm afraid I'm going to live for a long time. So I think I'll remain in San Francisco."

A staff member at Seventh Step, which helps ex-convicts adapt to the outside, said Aspinwall has become a colorful figure, in fancy clothes and white shoulder-length hair. The image is completed by Matt, his Afghan hound.

"The Afghan has white hair and I have white hair," Aspinwall said in a telephone conversation. "People ask me whether I have dyed my hair to match the dog or the dog to match me. I couldn't afford him, but I couldn't resist him. But, he is good protection from muggers and the hookers all fall in love with him."

The painter now wears glasses or contact lenses since a cataract operation several years ago. He is legally blind.

"Old age is creeping up on me," he said.

Aspinwall, withdrawn by his years in prison, said he relates well to young people.

"At Seventh Step I can scare the devil out of the teenagers with plain unvarnished accounts of what can happen to them if they go to prison," he said.

While serving a sentence at the Kansas penitentiary for the kidnaping and robbery of a Wichita cab driver, Aspinwall painted the windows of the prison chapel to resemble stained glass. In the Missouri penitentiary, Aspinwall painted murals in the chapel and in the lobby of the institution.

To express his thanks to Seventh Step, Aspinwall said he is just starting a mural Marijuana Sprouts From Bird Seed

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The old woman's bird died when it ate the seeds she gave it, so she planted the rest of the seeds in her garden.

They came up looking like tomatos, but bore no fruit.

Suspicious, the 85-year-old Salt Lake City lady called police and they confiscated the plants, which were identified as marijuana stalks.

Evidence Can Paint Opposing Views Of Nation's Economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — There are at least two sides to every story, as is very obvious in tracking the trail of the snail, as the economy is sometimes referred to. Especially when the two sides seem to come from the same source.

Is the economy growing stronger or getting weaker? Take your choice. That pledge of a balanced budget, low unemployment and low inflation — a very strong economy, that is — has never been officially withdrawn by the Carter people ever since it was first made during the pre-election campaign.

But Charles Schultz, the President's chief economic adviser, and Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal are saying a tax cut might be needed next year to spur a slowing economy.

Will there be a recession? Beginning a few months ago the word has been appearing in almost every stock market report and economic analysis. Some discount the notion, but the general feeling left is that, yes, something is coming by both land and sea.

Merrill Lynch Economics, Inc., however, sees little reason to call out the militia.

"In our judgment ... a recession just isn't in the cards," it says, and goes right on to confuse us about another two-sided issue.

Isn't Business Week Magazine lamenting in its cover story this week about the "distressing" level of capital investing, which as you probably know is investment by industry in plant and equipment? Yes it is.

But Merrill Lynch maintains "we have fresh evidence that capital spending will move forward at a rapid clip in the months ahead and in 1978." The latest survey, it says, indicates a strong picture.

Turning to the stock market, which is the opposite direction being assumed by many individual investors, we spot two opposing views on the current valuation of stocks.

Says Data Resources, Inc., a widely used numbers factory run by former White House economist Otto Eckstein in Lexington, Mass.:

As of Oct. 1, prices of stocks are "overvalued." Well, not all, but three-quarters of the 81 groups studied were so termed in relation to this year's anticipated earnings.

And John Wright, professional investor, adviser to bank trust departments, and president of Wright Investors Service, Bridgeport, Conn., says:

"It is inescapable that on any basis which takes into account historic value relationships during peace and war, prosperity and recession, stock prices are today severely undervalued."

Unemployment? Depends on how you look at it.

At 6.9 per cent of the civilian labor force, for example, the jobless rate is historically high. Yes, but it's slowly coming down. In 1975 it was 8.5 per cent, and last year was still up around 7.7 per cent.

Okay, but too many people unemployed. True, but we've also got more jobs than ever in history.

"The remarkable thing about this whole economic recovery has been the tremendous number of new jobs we've been creating — some three million a year," said Julius Shiskin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

It's a different story also if you are black rather than white or white rather than black. Black joblessness in September was 13.1 per cent, down from 14.5 per cent in August. White unemployment was 6.1 per cent in both months.

Your interpretation of the jobless story might also depend upon your belief in statistical formulations, which is what these rates are. Remember the concern when the black rate leaped to 14.5 per cent in August?

For once, it appears, here was an issue on which nobody disagreed. The sudden rise of black unemployment meant that blacks were bearing the brunt of the slowdown, an interpretation with grave social consequences.

Or so it was said. On reviewing the figures Shiskin later indicated the August leap was of "dubious accuracy."

TUATARA

The tuatara is the only living representative of a once widespread group of "beak-headed" reptiles. Full-grown tuataras have been known to live more than 75 years.

Story Irks Officials

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Reporter Jack V. Fox recently wrote a "letter" to Social Security estimating he may be 12% better off than he is. He says he and his employers will have paid in during a period of 44 years. Fox's figures were hit with challenges and complaints by the federal agency, which complained him to compose a second "letter" to put matters right.)

By JACK V. FOX
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Dear Social Security:

"I seem to have touched a raw nerve with my amateur computations about how long it will take me to retrieve the money my employers and I have paid into Social Security since I started work as a grocery clerk in 1937 at age 18.

"I estimated that when I, hopefully, reach 65, the total nest egg — counting compound interest and inflation over almost half a century — should be around $15,000.

"You have been prompt to point out that I am all wet.

"And although I appended a postscript that I was not guaranteeing the figures, and while the story was intended as a satiric exaggeration on how older citizens seem invariably to get shafted, I am happy to present your rebuttal.

"My primary error was in the off-the-cuff estimate that I have contributed $15,000 over the past 40 years and my employers the same for a total of $30,000. I am told, correctly I am sure, that the most I could have paid in was $8,727.35 for a total of $17,457.70.

"In the next six years, at the contribution rate of almost $1,000 a year, which apparently is going to be increased, the input will rise $12,000 to $29,457.

"Your Los Angeles office has written me that a person reaching 65 has a possible maximum monthly benefit of $459.80, that a person at that age has an expectancy of living 15.6 more years, and that such an individual would have received $85,982.60 by age 80.

"Those figures, however, fail to take several things into consideration. One is how much compound interest would have accrued had the funds been salted away in a bank.

"The second, as you admit, is that 'most people receive substantially less' than $459.80 a month. One of my fellow employees retired three years ago at age 62 after working 43 years and got $200 a month.

"A third is that proposals are now afoot to move full retirement benefit age from 65 to 68.

"When all is said and done, however, it is evident I won't have to stick around until age 129.

"My figures were off base and if I have caused consternation among older people and younger ones with retirement years away, I regret it. But if it has caused bureaucrats, congressmen and the public to take a closer look at Social Security, then it is a plus."

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: I found the new Valentino movie in which ballet superstar Nureyev plays the legendary Rudolph to be a fascinating glimpse back over the years. Can you tell me who his wife in real life was? What was his full name? And what he did before he became the sex symbol of our generation? — Cathy D. P. (No name please; it might embarrass my great-grandchildren!), Milwaukee.

A: Valentino, christened Rudolph Alfonso Raffaello Pierre Filibert Guglielmi di Valentina d'Antonguolla (when he was born in Costellaneta, in Southern Italy, on May 6, 1895), sailed to New York as a lad of 18. During his hungry years, he worked as a 10-cents-a-dance partner at Maxims' Ballroom, graduating to the more lucrative calling of gigolo before Hollywood discovered his magnetism. At the peak of his popularity as an earthy, gutsy male sex symbol, he took Natasha Rambova (born Winifred Shaunessy in Salt Lake City) as his second wife.

At her insistence he accepted the role of a dandy in "Monsieur Beaucaire," in 1924. It was such a frothy film his career went into a dizzy decline. Rudy recaptured his star stature when he filmed "Son of the Sheik," before dying at age 31.

Sidelight: Movie mogul Jesse Lasky Sr. revealed how Valentino's successor, Ricardo Cortez, was discovered. Seeing Cortez dance the tango at the elegant Coconut Grove supperclub in Los Angeles, Mrs. Lasky was very impressed. At her bidding, the producer offered a contract to the unknown who was an Austrian named Jacob Krantz. Lighting a cigar, Lasky removed the band, handed it to his wife's protegee and said: "From tonight on, Jake, you're a Latin — and your name" (reading from the cigar band) "is Cortez — Ricardo Cortez." (Cortez died only recently.)

Q: In which war did actor Peter Falk lose his eye? — Mrs. Elizabeth D., Trenton, N.J.

A: No war at all. Peter lost his eye as the result of a tumor — when he was only 3 years old.

SIR ALEC GUINNESS (Ben Kenobi in "Star Wars") — He won't be seen in the sequel, but his voice probably will be heard.

Q: Wasn't the Korean National Anthem stolen from "Auld Lang Syne"? — Sue R., Sacramento.

A: Not stolen — borrowed. The Korean Anthem is from an old Scottish Air. The same to which "Auld Lang Syne" is traditionally sung. The lyrics of "Auld Lang Syne" are credited to Robert Burns, who said, when he sent them to the British museum, he had copied them down from a song sung by an anonymous old man.

Q: Is writer-director George Lucas planning a sequel to "Star Wars"? If so what will it be titled? — M.S., Jefferson City, Mo.

A: It won't be titled "Son of Star Wars"! Lucas says a second film on the subject is in the talking stage. Which will undoubtedly be a short chat, since he has agreements with all the film's principals except Alec Guinness (Ben Kenobi). Though killed by the villainous Vader midway through the first film, it is likely that Guinness' voice will be heard in the sequel, reminding Luke and friends that The Force is with them. "Star Wars Two" would be about The Force or any of the characters in the original — Luke, Han, the Wookies, Darth Vader, etc. Personally Lucas thinks it would be interesting for him to do the first sequel, then turn subsequent sequels over to competitors who think they can top him. And then as a coup de grace, he says, return to the final feature in the series by doing one "that's twice as good as everybody else's."

Q: Help me settle a bet. I say Groucho Marx once dated Greta Garbo? My pal says he didn't. Did he? — Johnny L., Miami.

A: No, but they once met — in a New York hotel elevator. Groucho found himself standing next to a tall, slender, woman, whose drooping hat concealed her face. He playfully lifted the brim and, recognizing the famous actress, grinned and said: "I thought you were a fellow I knew in Pittsburgh." When Garbo didn't speak or smile, the leering Lothario persisted. "Look," he said, "I'm Groucho." Garbo, looking straight ahead, said, "That is too bad." For once Groucho had no further remarks.

Orchestra Pleasing In Opera

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — The scene stealer in Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande" is the orchestral music. And music director James Levine conducted, on the second night of the Metropolitan Opera's 1977 season, so that broad but delicate strokes of orchestral color washed beautifully over the audience.

The three singers in the plot's romantic triangle and Jerome Hines as the grandfather were splendid on all counts.

Teresa Stratas from Canada was singing her first Melisande here. She portrayed the character in Debussy's only opera as dainty, feminine, innocent and mysterious. Miss Stratas, a versatile singer with a delicate but well-focused tone, last appeared at the Met in 1973-74.

That season she sang the coloratura Zerbinetta in "Don Giovanni" and the lyric Desdemona in "Othello." And she is fondly remembered for her pert, girlish Gretel in "Hansel and Gretel."

Tenor Raymond Gibbs, a native of Tucson, Ariz., was Pelleas and Jose van Dam of Belgium was Golaud, Pelleas' brother and Melisande's husband.

Bass Jerome Hines was starting his 32nd season at the Met and he was in splendid voice throughout, as the wise, understanding King Arkel.

Claudine Carlson of Mulhouse, France, in the minor role of Genevieve, and John Cheek of Wilmington, N.C., in another minor role as a doctor, were making Met debuts. Both sound like useful additions to the roster.

"Pelleas" was last heard at the Met in the 1971-72 season. This is the same leaf-dappled production, generally pleasing to the eye.

Artist Angers Hartford

HARTFORD (AP) — The city council can't back out of paying artist Carl Andre $87,000 for the controversial "Stone Field Sculpture," the city's lawyers say.

Andre's arrangement of 36 glacial boulders on a grassy area in downtown Hartford has drawn criticism from Mayor George Athanson and others, who question whether it's art.

Athanson, who in addition to Councilwoman Margaret Tedone asked the lawyers what obligations the council had, contends the sculpture has made Hartford the subject of "international ridicule." He said he is considering further attempts to get rid of the rocks and to keep from paying Andre.

Deputy Corporate Counsel Richard Cosgrove said Andre should be paid as soon as Hartford gets the $87,000 from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The attorneys' opinion said Hartford can't reverse its acceptance of the work. It did not address the question of whether Andre's work is art.

"Although there may be legitimate disagreements between persons as to whether this constitutes sculpture," Cosgrove wrote, "it would appear that Mr. Andre has fulfilled his agreement."

Athanson contends the rocks don't fit the dictionary definition of sculpture and that therefore the work doesn't conform with the terms of a City Council resolution accepting the gift as sculpture.

Doctor Benches One-Armed Player

NEW YORK (AP) — A 14-year-old football player born without the lower half of his left arm has been benched by the school doctor at St. Francis Prep despite praise for his performance.

Teammates and the coach of offensive lineman Larry Carbone say he can play as well as the next guy on the Queens team.

Coach Joe Auer says the boy "is the best lineman on the team. If he has a handicap, you would never know it."

Doctors at the Rusk Institute for Rehabilitation Medicine at New York University say it's good for the youth psychologically to let him play ball. And the insurance company that covers the team gave the 14-year-old the go-ahead.

"The doctor was the one who recommended that the youngster shouldn't play," said Brother Michael Moran, St. Francis' principal. "I consulted my attorney and he said we had to abide by the doctor's decision."

Chinese Scientists Find Human Fossil

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese scientists have discovered another 100,000-year-old human fossil in North China and decided it may have been a descendant of "Peking Man," the official Hsinhua news agency said Wednesday.

Hsinhua said a large part of a well-preserved parietal bone — the roof of the skull — was the biggest such fossil found in China in the past decade. It and a number of other human fossils were labeled "Hsuehchiao Man" after the location where they were found, the agency added.

The agency reported that Chinese scientists thought Hsuehchiao Man may have been a descendant of Peking Man because of a similarity in physical characteristics.

Last year, Hsinhua said Chinese scientists studying fossils of the Yuanmou apeman in southwest China decided that China had apemen living 1.7 million years ago, one million years earlier than the Peking Man first thought to be China's earliest apeman.

Later last year, it reported the finding of a 100,000-year-old fossilized human skull fragment in North China's Shansi province.

Hsinhua reported early this year the finding of an 8 million-year-old ape's jawbone. It said scientists considered this evidence that South China was an important area where the earliest humans developed.

The latest fossils, Hsinhua said, were found embedded in a grayish, green bed of sandy clay eight meters below the ground surface on the cliff of a deep ravine between Shansi and Hopei provinces.

Also found at the site, it said, were "tens of thousands of stone artifacts and bone objects made and used by prehistoric man and fossils of more than 20 kinds of associated vertebrates, including the ostrich, palaeofoxodon — a type of extinct elephant, and the wild horse."

Local people helped researchers in excavations in the area in 1974 and 1976 and earlier this year, Hsinhua noted.

Hooton's 'Knuckle-Curve' Baffles Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Burton Hooton calls it his "knuckle-curve" and throws it the old-fashioned way. With his knuckles hard on the baseball's seams.

The New York Yankees have other names for it, but whatever you call it, it's the reason that the Los Angeles Dodgers are heading home with a split in the first two games of the World Series.

The blond righthander with the unique pitch pulled the Dodgers even with the Yankees Wednesday night, taming the hard-hitting New Yorkers with a conclusive five-hit, 6-1 decision.

"My knuckle-curve was my out pitch tonight," the righthander said. "I used it in all the tough situations, when the Yankees had men on base in the early innings.

"I started the game with the knuckle-curve, had good control of it, and threw quite a few of them in the first four (innings). I went to my fastballs in the later innings when I needed them, but I relied a lot on my knucker tonight."

Hooton's special pitch is a product of his childhood days, when he was a big fan of Hoyt Wilhelm, the knuckleball king.

"When I was 14 years old, playing in the pony league, I had seen Hoyt Wilhelm put on TV," Hooton remembers. "I started experimenting putting my knuckles on the ball. Most knuckleball pitchers throw it off the tips of their fingers. I still throw it with the knuckles on the seams. It puts forward spin on the ball and makes it break down."

Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda appreciated the dancing pitch about as much as anyone did in Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

"He had a nasty knuckle-curve tonight and a few of those Yankees went after it like they'd never seen one before — and, of course, they hadn't," said Lasorda. "It's a very unusual pitch."

Hooton's No. 1 pitch, and his general performance, received some accolades from the overmatched American League champions as well.

"He threw hard in his first few innings," said Lou Piniella, "and mixed in that knuckle curve. I didn't think it was that deceptive — but on the other hand, I didn't hit it."

"It's like a hard knuckleball, or a fork ball. I was very impressed with his fastball as well. He threw pretty hard."

If anyone was in a good position to see Hooton's pitch, it was Dodger catcher Steve Yeager.

"There was one point where I called too many of them," said Yeager. "But it's a hellacious pitch. It will go in three different directions, depending on the positioning of his fingers on the ball and the way he releases it."

"Burt throws them a lot because of me. I'd rather have the ball on the ground than hang a curve in somebody's eyes."

LA Evens Series With HR Barrage

NEW YORK (AP) — It was an explosive combination that should protect New York City from power blackouts for a long time.

Catfish Hunter, a home run pitcher, was throwing big, hanging baseballs to the Los Angeles Dodgers' home run hitters and the results were predictably powerful — particularly since Hunter hadn't pitched since Sept. 10.

The Dodgers walloped four homers, three off Hunter in the first two 1/3 innings, and blasted the New York Yankees 6-1 Wednesday night, evening the 1977 World Series at one game apiece.

The ninth matchup of these historic baseball rivals now shifts across the country to Los Angeles for Game 3 Friday night, with Dodger lefthander Tommy John, a 20-game winner, hooking up with big Mike Torrez, a righthander with 17 victories in the regular season.

Meanwhile, Wednesday night, the Yankees fell meekly to righthander Burt Hooton's baffling knuckle-curves with just five hits, saving their best hitting for the locker room, as has been their custom for much of their wacky, but winning season.

"What's he doing starting Catfish?" wondered Reggie Jackson, second guessing his manager, Billy Martin. "He hasn't pitched since Sept. 10."

"This is the World Series," Jackson said, lacing his remarks with a more-than-occasional epithet. "It's not fair to the Cat and it's not fair to us."

The Dodgers, lambs in the locker room, were lions on the field, as has been their custom all season, when they belted a National League-leading 191 homers. Four Dodgers — Reggie Smith, Ron Cey, Steve Garvey, and Dusty Baker — smashed 30 or more homers, the first time that has been accomplished in the major leagues.

"This team did something Murderer's Row and the great Red Sox teams with Bobby Doerr, Vern Stephens and Ted Williams couldn't do," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda. "They consistently hit with power, and that's what they did tonight."

"Our guys are capable of hitting them out of the Grand Canyon."

Martin agreed with that assessment. "There were no cheap homers," said the fiery Yankee skipper. "They hit 'em a long way."

The first one that went the distance came off the bat of Ron Cey, who slugged 30 homers in the regular season. After Hunter got the game's first two batters on fly balls, Smith doubled and Cey laced Hunter's two-strike pitch over the left field wall.

"It was a mistake on his part," said Cey, who carried the Dodgers to their early-season surge, batting .425 with nine homers and 29 runs-batted-in during April. "It was a breaking ball and he didn't get away with it. I challenged Death Valley again and won this time. Last night I tried twice and lost."

Hunter, sidelined the past 32 days with an urological disorder after sporadic shoulder aches all season, got a pair of groundball outs to open the second before throwing a hanging curve to Steve Yeager.

The long ball threat is always there, especially the heart of the lineup."

Yeager, the No. 8 batter, had 16 homers, half the total of Reggie Smith, the third stick in the Dodgers' potent lineup. After Bill Russell singled in the third, Smith pounded a low fastball over the right field fence. It was Smith's third World Series homer. He hit two in 1967, when he was with the Red Sox, one coming on the day when Boston slammed four homers — the last time that had a solo shot in the second. Reggie Smith, bottom left, kayoed Catfish Hunter with a two-run blast in the third-inning and Steve Garvey concluded the festivities off Sparky Lyle in the ninth. The outburst fell one shy of equalling the Series record for homers in a game by one team. (AP Laserphoto)

4-3-2-1 BLASTOFF — These four Los Angeles Dodgers connected for home runs Wednesday against the New York Yankees as the NL champs evening the 1977 World Series at 1-1 with a 6-1 triumph. Ron Cey, top left, started things with a two-run homer in the first and Steve Yeager, top right, added

Dunbar, Lamesa Set For 3-AAA Battle

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

David Bonds will be the first to stand up and admit to the football community that the first six weeks of the '77 season hasn't been a barrel of yuk-yuks around the Lamesa camp.

Unless, of course, you're happy about a 2-4 season. Most aren't, especially football coaches.

The Tors will try to upgrade that record by a notch when they go against Dunbar tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Lowrey Field. The game will be Dunbar's homecoming.

"There's no getting around it," the Lamesa head coach said. "It has been a disappointing season for us. We thought at the first of the season we were capable of winning more than our share of games."

Maybe we overestimated some of our kids, I don't know."

Bonds was extremely confident at the beginning of the season. With seven defensive and five offensive starters returning from a 5-5 squad, he had every right to be.

So what happened? Why the slip to 1-1 in the loop race after only two weeks of play?

"Most of the season our defense has done an outstanding job," Bonds explained. "But our offense has been just too spotty."

Now we find out the culprit.

Through the first couple of regular-season games, and also counting their two scrimmages, the Tors fumbled the ball away to the tune of 39 times.

That's no misprint either.

"It got so bad that I just quite counting," Bonds said.

Why so many fumbles? Were the Lamesa ball-toters attempting to carry the ball by the laces?

"It comes down to lack of concentration," Bonds said. "We were running in traffic and not covering the ball that well. Sure we got hit a time or two pretty hard, but most of the time we were just dropping it."

It seems the offensive unit is the Tors' own worst friend.

But oh, and, ouch, that defense.

"We think that the defense can hold its own against anybody," Bonds said about the unit which has surrendered 103 points during the year. "When it comes to stopping an 80-yard march, they can do it. But when a team is constantly getting the ball inside our own 20 all night, that is hard to stop."

"The offensive unit has beaten us more times than any team we've played," Bonds said. "Yeah, we've just been beating ourselves."

Mark Prince, a sophomore signal caller, will operate the veer offense for the Tors. The game with Dunbar will be his second start of the season although he did see considerable action earlier in the year against Hobbs and Sweetwater, Lamesa's only two wins of the season.

Prince will be joined in the backfield by the team's leading real estate man, Clary Wright. Wright has gained more than 300 yards this season.

At the Dunbar camp, coach Van Jefferson believes the two-week layoff his team has been enjoying was just what the doctor ordered.

"We have been working most on our execution and trying to do a better job running what we need to," Jefferson said.

The Dunbar coach, who saw his team lose a 12-0 heartbreaker to Estacado two weeks ago, feels his team is ready to make a charge.

"We're ready to go," he said. "We aren't as stale as we were after our open date last year and I'm glad of that."

The Panthers are 2-2-1 on the year and 0-1 in loop play.

Jefferson said the R and R gave his team a little time to lay back and let mother nature mend some of their wounds.

"We are in good shape," he said. "Now we are just ready to get after it again."

Unruly NY Fans Upset NL Champs

NEW YORK (AP) — "These people are animals," Mike Garman, relief pitcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said of the unruly Yankee Stadium crowd after the Dodgers had leveled the World Series at a game apiece with a 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday night.

I hope we can win the next three so I won't have to come back to this place. We are sitting ducks out there. I'll tell you the truth — I was scared to death," Garman added.

The game came close to turning into a fan uprising in the latter innings with a half-dozen spectators at various times running onto the field and being chased by security officers.

A smoke bomb, which trailed streams of green smoke, was tossed into right-center field near the 385-foot mark, obscuring outfielders from the crowd of 56,691.

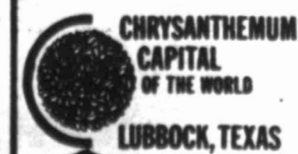

Outfielder Reggie Smith of the Dodgers was struck on the head by a hard rubber ball as the game ended, and he went to the locker room complaining of "spasms down my neck and back."

"They were throwing apples, beer cans, rubber balls and anything they could get their hands on," Smith said. "It was ridiculous."

UH-Shepard

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston freshman quarterback Darrell Shepard refuses to name names but he says he was offered a lot "under the table" by some schools.

The former Odessa High School standout said Houston was not among them and that UH "has never given me anything."

He said UH was the victim of "a railroad job" in being assessed a one-year probation by the NCAA in connection with alleged recruiting violations in signing him.

"I know today that I haven't done anything wrong," Shepard said. "And the University of Houston has never given me anything. But I was offered a lot — and I mean a lot — under the table by some other schools."

"I was offered cars and money, mostly by alumni of schools. But one coach made an offer that was under the table."

He said if it were up to him he would elaborate but UH coach Bill Yeoman had told him not to say anything about any other schools.

"He feels it wouldn't do any good," Shepard said.

In addition to Houston, Shepard visited SMU, Baylor, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

Shepard admitted he did say yes to Texas but changed his mind after visiting Houston.

He said he feels some animosity toward Texas.

"They're trying to make me ineligible just because I didn't go to school there," he said.

He said the NCAA investigators visited his home about three times during the summer and that each visit was about three hours long.

"They asked the same questions on every visit. I got the impression on their last visit that they weren't going to make a big deal out of what happened," he said. "It (the probation) was a surprise to me and my family. I thought the whole thing was over."

He said his teammates have not treated him any differently since the probation.

"No one has said anything to be about it," he said. "Anyway, as I said, I haven't done wrong and the school hasn't given me anything. I really feel like it's a railroad job."

SMU-Rice

DALLAS (AP) — Tailback Paul Rice, whose sparkling schoolboy career flourished amid injury and discipline problems at two other colleges, has been dismissed from the Southern Methodist football team for disciplinary reasons.

SMU coach Ron Meyer said Wednesday that he would not comment on the reasons why Rice was kicked off the team other than to say it was disciplinary in nature.

Rice, who galloped for more than 5,000 yards while at Lewisville High School, missed practice both Tuesday and Wednesday.

"I'm disappointed," said Meyer in a curt announcement.

Meyer had given Rice a spot on the Mustang team when the 5-foot-10, 190-pounder came to him during fall training. Rice was SMU's second leading rusher this year with 291 yards on 78 carries.

Rice signed a Southwest Conference letter of intent with SMU after becoming a schoolboy All-America at Lewisville High School, but inked a national letter with USC. He quit after an injury-plagued freshman year.

He transferred to Ranger Junior College and played three games last season before he was dismissed from the team after a dispute with some teammates.

Rice enrolled in a local junior college, earned a degree, and came to SMU on the first day of fall practice.

Rice started for the Mustangs for the first two games at runningback, breaking 38 yards for one touchdown, and had shared time with tailback Arthur Whittington for the past three games.

Akers-UA

AUSTIN (AP) — Coach Fred Akers says both Texas and Arkansas — matched in a nationally televised game Saturday — are eye-openers.

Neither was ranked among the top 20 college football teams in pre-season, but Texas has won four straight to vault to No. 2 and Arkansas, also 4-0, is No. 8.

"They will play for at least a share of the Southwest Conference lead before a sellout crowd of 43,500 at Fayetteville, Ark."

"They — like us — have opened the eyes of people around the country," Akers told the Longhorn Club on Wednesday.

"Offensively, they have a similar theme," said Akers, a former Arkansas quarterback. "They have a runningback who can break games open. Ben Covins is third in the nation in rushing.

"They are balanced offensively with big-play potential, like us. On defense — like us — they count on quickness."

Texas' Russell Erxleben "has established himself as the best kicker in the country," Akers said, "and Steve Little (of Arkansas) is right behind him, in the same category."

Club members gave Akers a standing ovation in recognition of Texas' 13-6 upset of Oklahoma Saturday, and Akers said the "tremendous feeling" that comes from beating the Sooners lingers on.

He introduced his 10 assistants, who also were applauded.

"All of us share the great feeling we have from playing Oklahoma and defeating them for the first time in several years," Akers said.

"We expect to benefit many years from the victory," Akers said, "not the least of which is our confidence as a football team. What we appreciate most is that we didn't have to have any gifts to win it."

Texas lost both its top quarterbacks for the season with injuries, and someone asked Akers if it appeared that Oklahoma had intentionally tried to cripple starter Mark McBath or sub Jon Aune.

"No," Akers replied, "They (the injuries) came strictly through aggressive football. It was just unfortunate."

McBath suffered a broken left leg, and an Oklahoma lineman stumbling into Aune's right knee "wiped his knee out," Akers said.

Offensive guard Craig Rider is "extremely doubtful" with a strained knee for the Arkansas game. Akers said it was not yet known whether halfback Johnny "Ham" Jones' sore ankle will respond in time for him to play. In addition, linebacker Mark Martignoni has strained abdominal muscles.

"The key to (winning) the (Oklahoma) ball game," he said, "was allowing them only three points in the third quarter when they had the advantage of the wind."

Arkansas, he said, "has renewed enthusiasm. They are a fine talented outfit" and to beat them "will require our very best."

Honor Roll

By The Associated Press
When Vidor starting quarterback Larry Reeves suffered a broken collarbone on the first series of the second half, Pirate coach Ron Thompson had a quick answer to the dilemma — Terry Safer.

Safer was quick enough to rush 109 yards on 13 carries and score on a 41 yard run to help ease the loss of Reeves, who merely rushed 200 yards on 13 carries and scored on runs of 45 and 58 yards in the first half as the Pirates blasted Port Arthur Jefferson 35-22.

The twin performances of Safer and Reeves at the quarterback position earns them mention in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Honor Roll.

Two other individual performances, one defensive and one on offense, also rank high in this week's Honor Roll.

Lubbock Monterey quarterback Ron Reeves put on a running and scoring performance of his own in a Monterey's 41-14 victory over Pampa.

This Reeves rushed 141 yards and scored 29 points on three touchdowns, two field goals and five extra points. Reeves' touchdowns were on runs of 49, 1, and 37 yards and he had field goals of 36 and 37 yards.

Sinton coach Dub Galbraith gave Rockport linebacker Joe Brooks full credit for making the difference in Rockport's 14-6 upset of Sinton. Brooks, a 6-4, 175 pounder made 22 tackles for the second straight week and saved two touchdowns.

"If it hadn't been for him we probably would have won the game by about 21-14," Galbraith said. "He really made that much difference."

"It wasn't me," Larry Reeves said, diminishing his performance. "It was the line. I didn't do anything but run. I didn't think the holes could be so wide open."

Canadiens, Ho, Hum, Win Opener

By The Associated Press

The Montreal Canadiens won. Guy Lafleur scored two of their seven goals. Surprise, surprise. Welcome to the National Hockey League season.

With the graciousness of the defending champions they are, the Canadiens let the Minnesota North Stars enjoy the lead — for exactly 50 seconds.

Minnesota defenseman Nick Beverley sent a screened shot past Montreal goalie Ken Dryden at 4:50 of the first period, but by 5:30, Doug Risebrough had tied it — and with the style of defending champions, the Canadiens never looked back.

Later in the period, Lafleur and Pierre Mondou tallied 23 seconds apart, and the North Stars were finished. They pulled within 3-2 on Pierre Jarry's goal in the second period, but third-period scores by Lafleur, Doug Jarvis and Guy Lapointe put down the upstarts.

The final score was 7-3 as the NHL opened its 60th season.

It took Lafleur, last year's scoring champion with 56 goals and 80 assists, a while to get interested.

"I didn't start to feel good until five minutes before the end," said the quiet right wing who also scored twice in the Canadiens' opener last year. "I don't think we played that well; we could have played better."

Don't get telling that to Ted Harris, a former Canadian who now coaches the North Stars.

"If they lose one game at home all year, I will be well surprised," said Harris, aware the Canadiens lost exactly once at home — to Boston — last regular season. "Pardon me. They will lose one the next time we're in here."

Roland Eriksson scored the other goal for Minnesota, returning captain Ivan Cournoyer had the other for Montreal.

Penguins 4, Blues 2

Two goals by Jean Pronovost lifted Pittsburgh over St. Louis. Greg Malone and Brian Spencer also scored for the Penguins while Garry Unger and Rick Bourbonnais hit for the Blues.

Kings 2, Barons 0

Ernie Hicke and Marcel Dionne scored the goals that backed Rogie Vachon's 42nd career shutout as Los Angeles topped Cleveland.

EHS Spikers Try Mustangs

SWEETSWATER (Special)—The Estacado Matadors will travel here tonight for a 6:30 p.m. girls' high school volleyball contest with the Mustangs.

The match will be the first District 3-AAA meeting between the two schools this season. Estacado has a 2-2 loop mark, while Sweetwater is 3-1 behind unbeaten leader Snyder.

The Coronado, Lubbock High and Monterey squads will all be in Levelland Friday and Saturday to compete in the Levelland Tournament.

Gordie Howe, Whalers Overwhelm Aeros 3-0

By The Associated Press

They were playing professional hockey before any of today's stars had been born, scoring goals by the dozen while the youngsters were still on training blades.

Gordie Howe set up all three goals as his newly-adopted New England Whalers blanked the Houston Aeros 3-0 Wednesday night. Bobby Hull scored three more, helping his Winnipeg Jets beat the Edmonton Oilers 7-3.

The Indianapolis Racers had no hockey patriarch playing on their side, but overcame a four-goal performance by Cincinnati's Richie Leduc to trim the Stingers 5-4 as the World Hockey Association season got underway.

Howe and sons Mark and Marty left

Houston for New England last May 23. Playing their first regular-season game against their former mates, Gordie set up a pair of Tom Webster goals in the middle period of the Whalers' triumph.

"I have no animosities (about Houston)," said the elder Howe, who the record books list as 50 but may be older.

"The fans were good to me. 'Houston played well,' he continued, 'but they ran into a heck of a team.'

Mark Howe also notched an assist as New England handed Houston only its fourth home loss in the last 41 regular season home games.

Whalers goalie Al Smith, returning to New England after a two-year stint with the National Hockey League's Buffalo Sabres, stopped 22 Aeros shots to pick up his eighth career WHA shutout.

Jets 7, Oilers 3
Sparked by the 39-year-old Hull's goal-period performance, Winnipeg exploded for five goals in the third period to defeat Edmonton.

Dan Labraaten and Lyle Moffat began the third-period assault against Edmonton goalie Ken Broderick with tallies 18 seconds apart at the start of the period. Labraaten scored again at 7:46 and Hull picked up his third at 13:26. Larry Hornung closed out the scoring at 19:13.

Racers 5, Stingers 4
Center Rosaire Paiement's goal 47 seconds into the third period gave Indianapolis its victory over Cincinnati and ruined Jacques Demers' debut as the Stingers' coach. Demers coached the Racers for two years but left the club over the summer.

Neither Leduc nor Demers was discouraged by the loss.

"Disappointed? No. It's going to take some time," said Demers, who is trying to pattern the Stingers' play after the defensive style he brought to Indianapolis. "This is a new system. There were a lot of mistakes, mostly mental, but that happens when you don't know the system completely. We looked bad out there, but you have to expect a little of that when you are still learning."

"It's a good system and all the guys believe in it," said Leduc.

Coyotes Ready To Howl

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
This hasn't been the most enjoyable of seasons for Bill Killian and his Borden County Coyotes—yet.

The Coyotes were tabbed by writers and coaches to win 3-B's North Zone during Coaching School in Dallas and then Borden County was listed as No. 10 on The Associated Press' preseason Top Ten poll.

By that time, however, things had already started to snowball. Senior end-linebacker Ty Zant underwent knee surgery after the second scrimmage and quarterback Blaine Dyess also missed the first four games due to a severe muscle bruise just above the knee.

In addition, star runner Eurdist Rinehart was slowed by a bruised shoulder and then... "We just had that occasional flu bug that bites everyone."

So, really, it was not surprising when Borden County got off to 0-3 start, losing 18-0 to Roby, 34-8 to Forsan and 28-6 to O'Donnell. Now, however, that record stands 2-4 one game deep into the zone slate and the Coyotes are again a title threat.

"We had a good game against Loraine (a 35-9 win), but that was the first game we came close to being full strength," Killian commented.

"The following week against Garden City we just had a poor night (losing 13-12). Everything we could mess up we messed up. We jumped out in front 12-0 and then went to sleep on defense and got burned on a couple of sweeps and just couldn't get going again.

"Last Friday, we got cranking again (a 40-6 zone-opening win over Dawson). I guess against Garden City we had kids in there who hadn't been playing and just hadn't gotten everything down and we just got the bad game out of system.

"I hope we'll play better... and get rolling on down the line. We'll have to beat some people. And we've got to stay healthy, because we can't handle people like Wilson, Klondike or New Home if we're not," Killian said.

Tumbling Improves Krahl's Mobility

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Jim Krahl credits some tumbling he did this past summer as being a big reason he's not taking as many tumbles this fall.

"I worked as an instructor at a YMCA in Houston this summer," the Texas Tech defensive tackle said, "and I'd use their gymnastics facilities whenever I could—at lunch, after work or whenever. The gymnastics instructors there helped me a lot, too."

"That's the biggest difference for me this season. It improved my agility and hand-eye coordination. I did a lot of tumbling and other gymnastics exercises, and I'm keeping my balance better on the football field this year. My footwork is just a good deal better."

Of the four tackles Tech uses in each game, Krahl is the best pass rusher, but he's had a tendency to get knocked off the ball, and he's been working to improve in this area.

"I would say my pass rush is still my strongest area, but I want to get it where I'm equally as good against the run and the pass.

"I think my problems against the run are a result of a lack of concentration. I think I'm getting things down and doing better against the run now, though.

"I'm somewhat stronger now, and that's helped, too. I realize that, in our defense, you can't play defensive tackle if you're continually knocked off the ball."

Getting knocked back was a serious problem for the Tech tackles in 1975. It was improved on a good deal last season, but there was still room for improvement. This season, the tackles have been the most consistent part of the Raider defense.

Tech is allowing its opponents just 118.2 yards per game rushing and held Arizona to just 20 yards on the ground last Saturday.

"I think our tackles are better suited now to the type of defense we have," Krahl, a 6-5, 250-pounder, said. "In (ex-coach Jim) Carlen's system, the tackles were smaller and quick and had to run a

Picadors Entertain Rangers

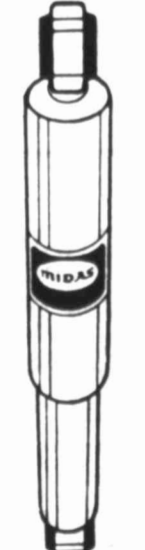

The Texas Tech Picadors, 2-0 for the season, will host Ranger Junior College tonight at 7:30 in Jones Stadium.

The Picadors have defeated New Mexico 17-16 and Arkansas 27-16 for their two victories this year. Ranger, the 10th-ranked junior college team in the nation by both wire-service polls, is 5-1. The Rangers have defeated New Mexico Military Institute, Independence (Kan.) JC, Cisco JC and Texas Lutheran's JV. They have lost to Northeast Oklahoma by a 10-6 county.

Tommy Limbaugh, director of the Tech junior varsity program, has been pleased with this year's freshman group. "We feel we have the best group of signees now since we've been here," he said. "We feel good about the group, overall."

76ers Claim Important Lesson Learned In '77

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia 76ers were beaten by the Portland Trail Blazers in the National Basketball Association playoff finals last year, but it wasn't a total loss.
"We will be better off this season because of having lost to Portland," suggested Julius Erving. His runningmate at forward, George McGinnis, added, "We learned a lesson in Portland."

That lesson was that there is no replacement for teamwork, cohesion and plain old hard work. McGinnis, for one, is living down his reputation for loafing through practices. He reported 15 pounds lighter than last year and has been working as hard as anyone.
"We came to camp one year older and one year wiser," said McGinnis. "The most important improvement we can make is our attitude. We have so much talent, but we have to learn to live with each other rather than pull apart."
If the Sixers show even a portion of the teamwork and dedication they have spoken about in preseason, they'll be hard to stop because they are a remarkably talented group of ballplayers. Among their Atlantic Division rivals, New York and Boston are most likely to challenge. Buffalo is building, while New Jersey will be happy to achieve respectability.
In the Central Division, Washington finished second by one game each of the past two years but has the right mix of talent to win it this time, with Houston and Cleveland the prime challengers.

Atlantic Division
"The important things about us," says McGinnis, "are the attitude and the hustle. We've all worked hard. You won't see a club that's just going through the motions."

Erving missed most of the exhibition schedule after colliding with muscular reserve center Darryl Dawkins, but should be ready for next week's start of the regular season. He won over the final skeptics with his spectacular play the second half of last year, when he proved himself the most magnetic player in the game.
McGinnis has learned to adjust to having another superstar on the team, and his improved attitude toward practice should make coach Gene Shue's job a bit easier. Caldwell Jones and Dawkins will share the center spot, while the backcourt will have Doug Collins and Henry Bibby backed up by mercurial Lloyd Free.
The Knicks' new coach, Willis Reed, has been stressing defensive fundamentals and a running offense. Rugged Lonnie Shelton has been installed at center, with high-scoring Bob McCoo moving to forward.
The other forward, Spencer Haywood, is trying to come back from serious leg injuries. Ex-Cleveland Jim Clemons succeeds Walt Frazier in the backcourt alongside Earl Monroe, and rookies Ray Williams, Glen Gondrezick and Toby Knight have all looked good.

Boston's front-line players are fine, but depth is a problem. John Havlicek will be 38 years old by the time the season ends, which is too old to be playing 40 minutes a game. Veteran Dave Bing has been picked up to help out behind guards Jo White and Charlie Scott and rookie Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell is being counted on at forward.
New owner John Y. Brown has revamped Buffalo, getting center Swen Nater, high-scoring forward Billy Knight and explosive guard Nate Archibald to go along with team captain Randy Smith in a dynamic offense. There is little bench strength, however, and more moves likely will be made.
The Nets leapfrogged New York City, moving from Uniondale, N.Y., to Piscataway, N.J. Archibald was dealt away for 7-foot center George Johnson, who will help the rebounding but hurt the scoring, badly. Big things are expected of rookie forward Bernard King.
Central Division
"We feel we have the right combination of youth and experience," says Washington coach Dick Motta, and he may be right.
Motta is particularly high on rookie forward Greg Ballard of Oregon, who joins veterans Elvin Hayes and Wes Unseld, second-year man Mitch Kupchak and free agent Bobby Dandridge in a fine frontcourt.

Backcourt star Phil Chenier has missed the exhibition season because of a pulled muscle in his back that hasn't responded. When he comes around, he'll join Tom Henderson, Larry Wright, swingman Kevin Grevey and rookie surprise Phil Walker at guard.
Houston climbed to the top of the division behind new coach Tom Nissalke and two new stars, Moses Malone and John Lucas. The Rockets stood pat since last year, hoping for improvement from the players already on its roster — particularly Malone, whom Nissalke feels will be one of the game's dominant big men for years to come.
Cleveland coach Bill Fitch is hoping Frazier, the Knicks' all-time scoring and assist leader, will provide the leadership the Cavs have lacked in the past. Centers Jim Chones and Elmore Smith, forwards Campy Russell and Jim Brewer and guard Austin Carr provide a strong nucleus.

Injuries have cost San Antonio guards James Silas and George Karl, leaving All-Star George Gervin and defensive star Mike Gale. Larry Kenon is one of the best forwards in the league and Billy Paultz is a capable center, but a lack of depth and defense will hurt.
Pete Maravich of New Orleans, the NBA scoring king, will have some help in the form of forward Truck Robinson, signed as a free agent. But there is still a huge problem at center, where Otto Moore and Rich Kelley are far from adequate.
Forward John Drew, a man of many moves, is the main reason to come out and see the Atlanta Hawks, a team plagued by poor attendance and front-office instability.

Allison Gets Out Of Cast

Texas Tech quarterback Rodney Allison was x-rayed Wednesday and had the cast removed from his left leg. Allison suffered a broken fibula in the lower part of the leg against Texas A&M Sept. 24 and has been in a cast for most of the time since then.
Tech officials reported that Allison will be on crutches for at least three days and can then begin full rehabilitation of the leg. It is still hoped that he can be going at full speed by the Monday before the Texas game, which will be played Oct. 29.
Tech plays Rice here Saturday, then has an open date before the Texas game.

AP Scribe Tabs Hogs Over 'Horns 21-20

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear when they were hollering "Sooy, Pig" for Frank Broyles at Arkansas and when

Darrell Royal at Texas liked to "dance with who bring us." Actually, that was as recently as last year. But a funny thing happened. Royal and Broyles decided to announce their retirements at the same time and it just so happened that ABC-TV decided to air the game as the regular-season finale. The tears and the memories were flowing like beer as Darrell went out with a 29-12 whipping of his old golfing buddy.

Well, Texas and Arkansas tangle again Saturday in Fayetteville, Ark., but this time Darrell and Frank will be upstairs in the cheap seats as the respective athletic directors.

Marching the sidelines for Arkansas will be Lou Holtz, the noted amateur magician whose sleight-of-hand tricks flopped with the New York Jets. On the Texas side will be Fred Akers, who mostly just wins football games.

ABC again is showing this game nationally but this time because of the records — both teams are 4-0 — rather than the coaches. Texas fattened up on Boston College, Virginia and Rice before knocking off Oklahoma last week. Arkansas has leveled New Mexico State, Oklahoma State/Tulsa and Texas Christian.

Show the Longhorns the old Indian rope trick, Lou... Arkansas 21-20. That choice pick comes to you straight from the same corner who thrilled you last week with a record of 45 right, 25 wrong and two ties for a .643 percentage.

For the season, it's 256-100-7 — .719. Only the fact that two of the three Upset Specials — Washington State over California and Dartmouth over Yale — came through prevented the week from being a complete embarrassment.

Wisconsin at Michigan: Wisconsin is 5-0 for the first time since 1921 and Illinois' Gary Moeller, last week's victim, says the Badgers are "capable of beating Michigan." The gag is that Wisconsin has been undefeated, untied and unimpressive. Scratch undefeated... Michigan 28-14.

Kentucky at Louisiana State: Not much to choose between these two Southeastern Conference contenders — actually Kentucky is on probation — so let's go with the home team... LSU 24-17.

Tennessee at Alabama: Way back at the Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1, Bear Bryant put his arm around Johnny Majors — John was at Pitt then but en route to Tennessee — and mumbled, "Welcome to the SEC, son." This makes it official... Alabama 31-14.

Ohio State at Iowa: A couple of years ago, Woody Hayes was on the horn at Iowa coach Bob Cummings' media luncheon. "We will be there Saturday," Woody snapped and hung up. Woody will be there again Saturday, Bob... Ohio State 29-14.

Oregon at Southern California: UBC has a date in South Bend next week, which means the Trojans will be looking past Oregon. Lucky for Oregon... Southern Cal 49-6.

Notre Dame vs. Army at East Rutherford, N.J.: Notre Dame has a date with Southern Cal in South Bend next week, which means the Irish will be looking past Army. Unfortunately, Notre Dame isn't good enough to look past anybody. Upset Special of the Week... Army 24-21.

Oklahoma at Missouri: A chance for the Sooners to rebound from their disastrous Red River rumble with Texas and prove that the Big Eight isn't really Colorado and the Seven Dwarfs... Oklahoma 31-17.

Iowa State at Nebraska: The Big Eight race is heating up. Iowa State hits the road to play Nebraska and Oklahoma while Nebraska's next three opponents are ISU, Colorado and Oklahoma... Nebraska 27-10.

Colorado at Kansas: Can that funny looking Jayhawk really be much of a match for a stampeding Buffalo? Close but no cigar... Colorado 24-17.

Penn State at Syracuse: Thanks to that loss to Kentucky, Penn State might have to settle for the Orangemen rather than the Orange Bowl... Penn State 26-14. Texas A&M at Baylor: The Aggies' first outing since that embarrassing 51-0 angle joke at Michigan... Texas A&M 27-10.

Ali Says His Life As Boxer Now Anxiety-Ridden, Drab

ATLANTA (AP) — Muhammad Ali says he's still as pretty as ever but his life as a boxer has become anxiety-ridden and drab. "I've been raising hell a long time," Ali said in a news conference Wednesday. "Since I was 12. And after all these fights, can you believe this face? As pretty as ever." But the world heavyweight champion, here to fight a four-round charity exhibition against Jimmy Ellis today, said financial pressures are just about the only thing that makes him push his increasingly reluctant body around the prize ring. "I'm not fighting as a sportsman; I'm fighting as a businessman," he said. "I don't care about sports. I'm tired. So tired. When I get in the ring, I'm scared, real nervous. I've got so little to gain. So much to lose."

A lot of people, including two ex-wives and their children and a large entourage, are counting on the 35-year-old champ not to lose. "Every time I said I was retiring, I thought about giving up $10 million a year, $5 million after taxes," Ali said. "Besides there are so many other things I can do as reigning champ I wouldn't be able to do if I stepped aside." Ali became champion in 1964 when he beat the late Sonny Liston. "Look who was on top when I first made it," he said. "How many singers or ballplayers who were on top in 1964 are here now? Cars are different. Women's dresses. Children have grown up under me. That's a long time." The money raised by the exhibition will go to the Friendship Force, a non-profit international exchange organization.

Interest Rate Fears Keep Stocks Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over the prospective effects of rising interest rates kept the stock market in retreat today.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts foresaw little comfort for the market in the Fed's weekly report on the money supply late today.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 12 to 51.45. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 35 at 116.13.

Volume on the Big Board reached 10.46 million shares by noon, against 10.08 million at the same point Wednesday.

Livestock

AMARILLO (AP) — Panhandle area carlot meat trade (10b the plant) as of 11:15 a.m. Friday: Trade: Texas, Panhandle, western Oklahoma and New Mexico.

SAO ANTONIO (AP) — Cattle and calves: 800 slaughter calves and yearlings firm. Slaughterers 1,001-50 lower.

FORT WORTH (AP) — Cattle and calves: estimated receipts 300 this week for 2 days of selling, compared with 3000 last week.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Cattle and calves: Thursday (USD) — Cattle and calves: 800 slaughter calves and yearlings firm.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Livestock quotations: Hogs: 3,000; barrows and gilts 1.00-2.00 higher.

There was no sheep on offer Thursday at the Omaha livestock market.

Details of the annual banquet Nov. 18 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center...

Ticket sales for the banquet began this morning and will continue until Nov. 1 for chamber members.

The chamber's executive director said the meal will be catered by Vann's Catering and music provided by the Texas Tech department of music.

The board of directors voted to change the election date for officers from September to August.

Logan said that chamber representatives attended a recent Texas Highway Department hearing to push for a four-lane divided highway from Dallas to Lubbock and on through to the New Mexico line.

He also said that the chamber president was now hosting a monthly President's Round Table luncheon with presidents of the various civic organizations.

Becky Bailey, the new Miss South Plains Maid of Cotton, was introduced to the board of directors today.

Coed Claims Mistreatment By Physician

A 19-year-old Texas Tech University coed told police she was cursed, assaulted and refused treatment by a Lubbock doctor at a local hospital's emergency room this week.

The police report filed Wednesday said the person in charge of the emergency room called the doctor to treat the patient, who had suffered a forehead laceration and a chin abrasion.

The young woman told police the physician approached the treatment table where she was "shaking and crying softly," and asked her what was wrong.

The report said the doctor injected a local anesthetic in several places around the laceration, and when the coed began shaking again, he said, "... hold still and shut up."

At that point, she stated, the doctor said, "Okay," pointed the syringe at her and sprayed the contents into her face.

Reports indicated that after the physician left the room, another doctor was called to treat the patient.

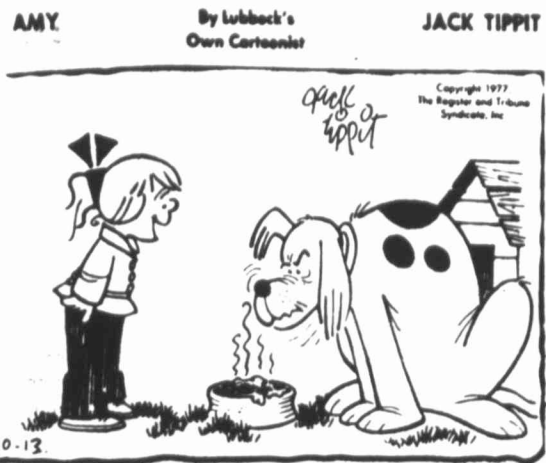

They said Rosalynn Carter and Mrs. Carmen Romano de Lopez Portillo will meet on the border between El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua.

First Ladies Plan Meeting At Border

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first ladies of Mexico and the United States will meet on the Mexican-American border in Texas on Nov. 2, White House officials said Wednesday.

Artist Produces 'Peanuts' Show

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Back in 1938, a young Mexican-born artist, Bill Melendez, knocked on the door of the Walt Disney studios in Burbank, inquiring about a job.

He got one as assistant animator of the classic "Fantasia."

Now, he's celebrating his 14th year as animator-producer of another kind of classic — Charles M. Schulz' "Peanuts" specials, in which he doubles as the voice of the noted doghouse ace, "Snoopy."

His latest effort, "It's Your First Kiss, Charlie Brown," airs on CBS Oct. 24. It's the 17th half-hour "Peanuts" special he's made.

Melendez, 60, a tall, friendly man with graying crew-cut hair and a waxed mustache, was beginning work on another special, "Bon Voyage, Charlie Brown," when he passed for a quick chat last week.

"And there was such enthusiasm, vitality and talent all around me. It was a crazy studio — crazy in the sense of great stimulation and a lot of fun."

Oil Obtained From Scrap Tires

DENVER (UPI) — Paul White says there's at least $1.20 worth of usable products in every discarded auto tire, and he's working on a way to make the most of it.

White is project director for a Tosco Corp. pilot plant near Rocky Flats, Colo., which now is getting 45 barrels of oil each day from scrap tires. He said the project is going so well the process could become commercially feasible within three or four months.

White said a ton of tires yields about $100 worth of material — including $38 worth of oil, $60 worth of carbon black and $2 worth of scrap steel. There is no market yet for the fiberglass obtained from the tires.

The pilot plant now is capable of shredding 15 tons of scrap tires every day, and he is relatively close to a commercial design now," White said.

White said a commercial plant would have the capacity of handling at least 150 tons of tires per day. He said such plants would be best located in major cities, where disposing of old tires has become a serious environmental problem.

Besides oil, the Tosco method produces carbon black, a component used to make tires tough, as well as scrap steel and fiberglass.

White said the pilot plant was built in partnership with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. When the research is completed, the plant may continue to operate, providing the Denver area with a method to rid itself of junked tires.

In the Tosco process, shredded tires are mixed in an oxygen-lean drum containing ceramic balls preheated to 900 degrees Fahrenheit. The heat cooks the oil from the tire in the form of gas, which then is condensed. The carbon black, steel shreds and fiberglass are separated through a complex maze of equipment.

Despite nearly 40 years in the business, he still speaks of his labors as fun, particularly his first big-time work at the Disney studios.

"Oh, yes, that was a great place," he said, his eyes twinkling. "I think those were the happiest days of my life because he (the late Walt Disney) was such an eye-opener."

British Discs Feature Historic Milestones, Music

By GREGORY JENSEN
 LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth's Silver Jubilee year isn't over yet, and the BBC is issuing a stream of royal records while the celebrations are fresh.

One is a tourist souvenir — an album frankly designed to bring back "our trip to Britain" memories when folks get back home.

Another is a splendid collector's piece — a double album "portrait in sound" of Queen Elizabeth's life and times.

"Vivat Regina," as this luxurious package is called, is limited to 15,000 copies, each individually numbered. Its sounds and recorded events are the stuff of history.

The BBC dug deep into its archives for recordings of the queen's marriage to Prince Philip, her coronation, the wedding of her sister, Princess Margaret, and that of her daughter, Princess Anne.

Writer and narrator Robert Hudson couples royal events and interviews — every royal family member is included in the albums — with other major milestones in the 30 years beginning with the queen's marriage in 1947.

Sir Winston Churchill's funeral is there, for instance, and Neil Armstrong's first words from the moon. There are sounds of street fighting in the Budapest uprising of 1956 and Harold Macmillan's "Winds of Change" African speech in 1960.

This essay in serious history is balanced by three other Silver Jubilee records issued at the same time.

They're all music — two albums of "the most memorable hits of the past 25 years" of the queen's reign and one, featuring the marching band of the Welsh Guards regiment, of music linked to royal themes.

"Royal Britain," however, is something else.

"This record travels in music, words and sounds through the highways and byways of Britain," its jacket proclaims.

"The splendor of royal occasions and stately pageantry and the voices of the queen and members of her family performing their ceremonial duties contrast with music and sounds associated with different parts of the British Isles."

On this rare tourist record, produced with the help of the British Tourist Authority, are everything from nightingales and a cricket match to the unusual sound of Prince Charles speaking Welsh.

One half is divided among characteristic sounds of Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland — seagulls and bagpipes.

chapel singing and an Irish jig.

The English half includes music from Trooping the Color — the queen's official birthday parade — and Queen Elizabeth's speech opening the new National Theater. It is a colorful and appealing package of memories for visitors to Britain, even those who missed "the last night of the Proms" or never came close to a Scottish reel.

Man Wins Toys For Children

SHERWOOD, Ark. (AP) — Around this Little Rock suburb, Johnny Glaze is sometimes called the "Robin Hood of the Midwest."

He spends each summer and fall winning a pile of teddy bears and Kewpie dolls at the state and county fairs. At Christmas, he gives them to the Arkansas Childrens Hospital and Salvation Army as gifts for children.

A lot of people will go to fairs and win these things, then take them home and just throw them away, but the kids really appreciate the toys you give them," said Glaze, 31, who has no children.

"They have a shelf at Childrens Hospital lined with these things. When they take kids out of surgery, they'll bring them by and let them pick one out."

Winning toys for children isn't the only reason Glaze goes to carnivals, however.

"I get a big charge out of just going," he said. "I've spent a lot of time trying to win."

He spends more than time. Glaze estimates he spent about $1,000 to win 300 toys in the past two or three years.

"If you go to a large store, I figure you're going to spend $15 to $20 for one of these larger toys," he said. "I can win them for $2, $3, $4. So, it's a whole lot cheaper, and I also get the fun of winning and the kids get the enjoyment of having the toys."

He's made about 25 trips to carnivals so far this year and returned home a winner nearly every time.

"Right now, I've got a spare bedroom where I store the toys," he said. "You can just barely open the door and get in."

Glaze's secret to winning is to "find a game that you think you can win, and stay with it. A lot of people will play a game once or twice and, if they lose, they'll walk off."

Glaze doesn't reserve all his giving for Christmas.

A few weeks ago, he spotted a little girl whose father had been unsuccessful in winning her a stuffed animal.

"They hadn't won a thing," Glaze said. "I just walked by and handed her a teddy bear. You should have seen the look on her face."

Fair week in Little Rock "is the only week of the whole year that my wife dreads," he said.

"But Christmas makes up for it, or like the other night when I gave that little girl that toy. That makes it all worthwhile."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Pursue your ambitions with vigor tomorrow, particularly if you're involved in something that could add to your resources. You get what you go after.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a strong possibility your ideas will be challenged tomorrow. If you believe you're right, stand by your guns but keep an open mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid negative thoughts regarding a changing condition yet to be tested. It could work out much to your liking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) New projects tomorrow have an excellent chance of success, particularly if you're involved with an active, ambitious ally. Don't deal with weaklings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take special pride in your work. Put your full talents into your tasks. Someone important will be watching.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be a charming catalyst tomorrow. Your very presence churns dull things up into something more exciting and fun. Go spread your sunshine.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be protective tomorrow of one you care for who is not as bold as yourself. Step into situations where you see this person being taken advantage of.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Much can be accomplished in team efforts tomorrow if you assume the assertive role. Your example will be all that's needed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your financial picture looks promising tomorrow, but this doesn't mean money will be dumped into your lap. Big returns are likely if you're enterprising.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll not go unnoticed tomorrow. Take extra pains to look especially nice on the chance you'll meet someone you really want to impress.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be concerned tomorrow if you're not first out of the starting gate. When others run out of gas, you'll still be going strong.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It will be important tomorrow to strike while the iron is hot. Your initiative lessens the longer you dwell on things.

Your Birthday

Oct. 14, 1977

This coming year you could meet a very interesting entrepreneur type. Although you might not become involved in business with this person, you may get some ideas how you can branch out for yourself.

BANJO KING — Richard Choy displays the talent that won him the title "Banjo King of America" 47 years ago in Chicago as he strums a tune in his Honolulu music shop. Choy, 71, says he's semi-retired, but six days a week he can be found at his shop amid souvenirs of his musical career. (AP Laserphoto)

King Of Banjo 'Semiretired'

By JUNE WATANABE
HONOLULU (AP) — Forty-seven years ago, on the stage at Chicago's Musical Trade Convention, a young Korean-American from Hawaii strummed a medley of now-forgotten songs and became the "Banjo King of America."

The young island boy quickly won international fame, touring the world twice in concert with the Kjerulf Musical Revue. Back home in America, the "Banjo King" performed as a soloist with the big orchestras of the day.

It was during Prohibition, vaudeville was at its height, and Paul Choy, the "Banjo King," played the circuit, flitting away at his round-bottomed instrument.

But by 1935, Choy yearned for the islands. Newspapers saluted the return of a local-boy-made-good, and Paul Choy used his fame to open a music studio and shop.

He was skilled on the ukulele, mandolin, mandola and steel guitar, but concentrated on teaching the guitar.

"If I had had to depend on the banjo for a living, I would have starved," he recalled in a recent interview.

Choy says he had no real interest in music when he graduated from an electrical engineering school in Chicago a half-century ago. He worked at a radio manufacturing plant, returned to Hawaii to a lack of jobs and was back on the mainland before long — in Gary, Ind.

"I stayed there for 12 years. But during that time, I was so bored, I began looking for something to do," he remembered. "One day, I saw a blind man playing a banjo and I thought to myself, 'That ought to keep me busy'."

The 71-year-old Choy claims he's semi-retired, but six days a week he visits his tiny shop. "I love coming down here and banging on my instruments," he said.

The walls are plastered with album covers, program sheets, photos and other mementos of his musical career. In the midst of the galaxy of past stars is a picture of a young Oriental man with slicked-down hair, wire-rim glasses and a three-piece suit, banjo in hand.

The "Banjo King Banjo, Guitar and Ukulele Studio and Store" is locked most of the time. Choy opens the door only if he decides the caller is a serious customer.

What's more, a hand-painted sign states emphatically, "No browsing. No friendly visits. We don't sell guitar parts. We are open by appointment only."

Despite the rather abrupt message regarding "friendly visits," Choy isn't all that reluctant to discuss his skill with the banjo.

"You know, everybody else just strums when they play the banjo. But I pick, like picking the violin. I learned from 50 different teachers. That's why I have no one style," he says.

"But I tell you that I'm good and I like to play different songs that no one else would try on the banjo."

Tear Gas Pouches Foil Bank Robbery

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police said tear gas pouches hidden in a pack of money exploded in a robber's hands outside a French Quarter bank.

A police officer saw the explosion and arrested Kelly Andrews, 37.

A bank teller said the robber handed her a note which read, "I don't want you getting hurt, just do as I say. I have a gun."

Gabe Kaplan To Present TV Special

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Come Sunday, Oct. 23, the star of ABC's "Welcome Back, Kotter" will battle NBC's "Big Event" with an ABC special — called "Gabriel Kaplan Presents the Small Event."

It's Kaplan's first special. And it's the first time he's been executive producer of one. He was asked what an executive producer does.

"I guess," Kaplan ventured, "he's the guy who decides what goes on. A lot of them never show up, they just handle financial arrangements and take the title. They say, 'Producer, you produce it, director, you direct it, and if it makes money I take the money.'"

If it bombs, he suggested, custom calls for the executive producer to blame everyone, then blow town. But he vowed not to do this.

The most important thing about this special is to really sink or swim on my own," Kaplan said. "The type of humor I think is funny is the type of stuff I'll be doing."

"I'll take the whole responsibility." The Brooklyn-born comic, a soft-spoken, thoughtful guy who sprang to fame in 1973 on NBC's "Tonight" with a wild geriatric spoof of "The Dating Game," said he'll spoof specials on his first special.

For example, he said, he'll have a sports special, "The Battle of Celebrity Relatives," pitting Robert Conrad's aunt against Penny Marshall's mother. He'll cover the event as Howard Cosell's father.

There also will be a celebrity "roast" of sorts. But in this one, Kaplan said, "they're run out of celebrities to roast, so they're roasting the head of some obscure Eastern religious cult."

Of special interest will be a one-man special dramatizing the words of a great former president, Millard Fillmore.

Kaplan, who spoke of all this by phone from Las Vegas, where he's working by night at the Frontier Hotel and commuting to "Kotter" by day, said his special even spoofs network executives.

He said the chief executive is a chap named Eddie Silvercup, whose name is similar to that of Freddie Silverman, ABC programs chief. Kaplan said he tried to get Freddie to play Eddie in the special.

Alas, Freddie said no dice. Kaplan said, "He was afraid he might get hot."

Friday, ABC will air the third Yankee-Dodgers World Series joust from here. We do hope ABC also airs the home team's ballad-like anthem, "Dodger Blue," sung by Sue Raney, a Dodger fan and musician.

"Blue," by pianist-baseball buff Dave Frishberg, is a rare recording, sold only at Dodger Stadium. Frishberg and Miss Raney also teamed up for the non-partisan flip side of the record.

It is a lovely and, ah, unique tune. It hails the baseball heroes of yesteryear, particularly a pitcher for the old Brooklyn Dodgers from 1931 to 1941. The song's title tends to stand out. It is "Van Lingle Mungo."

TURTLE MYTHS
The turtle figures in many creation myths, such as those of India, North America, Japan and China. In ancient Hindu beliefs, Vishnu, in the guise of a great turtle, supported the universe.
