WASHINGTON (AP) - The government said today its index that gives clues about the economy's future rose in September for the third straight month, a further sign the economy is coming out of its summer slowdown.

The increase in the index of leading indicators last month was a moderate three-tenths of 1 per cent. However, revised figures showed the August index rising 1.4 per cent, one of the largest monthly jumps in the past two years.

The nation's economic growth had slowed in the third quarter after a strong performance in the first half of the year, but the new figures indicated some improvement ahead in the fall.

President Carter is waiting to see how the economy looks before deciding whether to cut taxes next year to stimulate the economy and create new jobs.

The Commerce Department revised its August index from a rise of eight-tenths of 1 per cent to 1.4 per cent because of new figures showing big increases in net business formation. This indicator includes businesses' telephone installations and other signs of their willingness to ex-

The August increase was the biggest since a 2 per cent increase in March and a series of 2 and 3 per cent increases in mid-1975 at the end of the recession.

With a one-tenth increase in July, the total three-month increase is 1.8 per cent. In the second quarter of the year, the index was unchanged.

Although the over-all September index rose, the increases were confined to only four of the 10 indicators available. They were changes in the money supply, orders for plants and equipment, changes in sensitive prices and liquid assets.

Causing a drag on the index were poor performances in the average work week, lavoff rate, stock prices, new orders, delivery performance and building permits.

The September index stood at 132.4, meaning it is 32.4 per cent ahead of where it was in 1967. At the start of this year the index was 126.5. Originally, Carter wanted hearings to start this year on his tax bill. But he told a news conference Thursday, "I prefer to make final decisions after Congress completes its actions" on Social Security and energy bills. Carter has been considering asking Congress to put the tax cut into effect in 1978 if the economy needs a quick boost and to have the rest of the program go into effect in 1979.

AMSTERDAM. The Netherlands (AP) - A millionaire Dutch tycoon was kidnaped as he left a nightclub early today. A telephone caller demanded the abdication of Queen Juliana and release of a West German terrorist jailed in Holland in exchange for his freedom. Witnesses said about five persons overpowered Maurits Caransa, 61, in a struggle outside the Continental Club, where he had been playing bridge, and forced him into a red car. Caransa owns a chain of hotels and clubs in Holland and is prominent in Jewish activities.

A German-speaking man called the Amsterdam newspaper Het Parool nine hours after the kidnaping and told a switchboard operator: "We are the Red Army Faction. We have Caransa. You will hear from us.

Solons Stall Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of a House-Senate conference committee on energy legislation deadlocked today, unable to reach agreement on a Senate proposal to ban automobiles that get poor gasoline mileage. The impasse resulted when House conferees voted unanimously to reject the Senate position, and Senate conferees voted unanimously to refuse to move away from it

The conference panel then recessed until Monday, agreeing that further efforts to fashion a compromise energy bill today would be futile

"This may very well be the impasse which is going to break this conference up," said Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

taking a firm, tough position.' Conference Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., agreed with Bumpers that the deadlock could scuttle efforts to arrive at a national energy bill. But he said he hoped that by next week, both sides would in more of a compromising mood so that work could continue

Meanwhile, chances for Senate passage of a $49-billion, eight-year package of energy-tax breaks improved today as a coalition of Republicans and liberal Democrats appeared to be losing support in their effort to ditch the measure.

One of the most-vocal opponents of the bill, who asked not to be identified, said chances are "no better than remote" that the Senate will vote to ship the measure back to the Finance Committee for a major overhaul

If the Senate were to take such an action, it would almost certainly kill any chance that Congress would pass energytax legislation this year. On the other hand, rejection of the motion would indicate an excellent chance for quick Senate passage of the bill.

The motion to send the bill back to committee is being pressed by Republican Sens. Bob Dole and William V. Roth and Democrat Floyd Haskell. All are members of the Finance Committee.

Hoffa Probe Revived By Discovery

NEW YORK (AP) - Medical examin ers from two states began checking den-tal records today to determine if a skeleton found in thick underbrush in northeastern Pennsylvania is that of former Teamsters president Jimmy Hoffa.

The skeleton, with expensive gold dental work that authorities believed might match that of Hoffa, was found on Monday by a hunter near Honesdale, Pa. Robert Jennings, coroner of Wayne County, where Honesdale is located, said he had talked Thursday night with James P. Hoffa, son of the union boss who disappeared in the summer of 1975 as he was mounting a drive to regain control of the Teamsters.

"He was very excited when he heard the age, height and hair color" of the skeleton, Jennings said.

Towering waves whipped by a winter storm crashed into the central Oregon coast today, damaging a motel and wrecking automobiles. The National Weather Service forecast more high winds and waves all the way from California to Washington.

Fog plagued vast areas of the nation again today, including the South Plains of Texas. Fog cut visibility to one-quarter of a mile at times this morning and waylaid incoming aircraft.

With the noon clearing of the fog, National Weather Service predictions became prophecy, and weather experts stood by their forecasts of warm weather and mild winds Saturday in Lubbock and in Austin. Saturday's Tech-Texas gametime forecasts call for partly cloudy skies, temperatures near 85 degrees and southerly winds of 10-15 mph.

A spokesman at Lubbock International Airport said the visibility limit fell below minimum landing standards for air passenger carriers this morning, and said about six planes had overflown the city for alternate destinations. Others maintained holding patterns near the city.

grand jury is investigating whether a member of Congress leaked information to South Korean intelligence officials, Rep. Clement J. Zablocki said today.

A published report said the target of the probe is Rep. Edward J. Derwinski. Zablocki, chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said the congressman being investigated is suspected of almost thwarting a South Kore-

The Wall Street Journal said U.S. intelligence learned of the leak and managed to get the diplomat and his family away from their home only 30 minutes before South Korean intelligence agents arrived to try to stop the defection.

It named the diplomat as Sohn Young Ho, a South Korean diplomat in New York City, who defected Sept. 16.

The newspaper said a potential problern in prosecuting the case might be un-willingness by U.S. intelligence officials to reveal how they knew a congressman had telephoned or talked to foreign

State Board Denies Bank Applications

AUSTIN - The State Banking Board ties are adequate and that a new suburvoted Thursday afternoon to deny three applications for proposed state-chartered banks in Lubbock.

Rejected by the board were applications of First Southwest Bank, First State Bank of Lubbock and Liberty State Bank.

The applications were turned down on grounds there is no public necessity and insufficient volume of business to support the proposed banks.

It is possible for the applicants to request a rehearing by the board.

A week-long hearing on the three applications was held in September before hearing examiner Dan Krohn.

At that time, the applications were opposed by five existing Lubbock County banks - Texas Bank, Lubbock National Bank, Security National Bank and Bank of the West, all located in the Lubbock city limits, and First State Bank in Shallowater.

Each of the three state applications was presented by persons with close ties with current Lubbock banks. The Liberty State proposal was put forward by directors of American State bank: the First Southwest proposal by persons connected with First National Bank, including a senior vice president and the First State application, by directors and an advisory director of Plains National Bank.

The arguments put up at the state hearing were the same ones used last April at a national bank hearing on the LNB proposal for Southwest Lubbock National.

At the state hearing, Security National attorney Jim Walters called the state applicants' positions "morally inconsistent and improper" since the organizers' existing institutions had supported the opposition at the national hearing.

The applicants began filing their state charters within two weeks of telling the national comptroller that no need for a new bank existed in Lubbock, Walters 541 billion a year on automobiles and other vehicles.

They spend more than $5 billion en insurance. Many consumers are spending more than they have to.
Here, in the second of a two-part series, is a look at how to cut goests.

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Careful shopping, selective buying and special discounts can cut auto insurance premiums sharply. The savings vary from driver to driver, but you may be able to trim your bill by one-third or even more.

The Illinois Department of Insurance noted recently that there were more than 300 companies selling auto insurance in the state and said rates differed sharply "from company to company, driver to driver, car to car and protection to protection.

The department stressed that an expert insurance agent or broker is a necessity and urged consumers to watch out for:

-Agents or brokers who try to force you to buy another kind of policy such as life or homeowners when you buy auto insurance. The purchase of auto insurance should not be contingent on any other transaction.

-Agents or brokers who sell insurance on a part-time basis only and may not be available to give you service when you need it.

in touch with you about possible changes in your insurance.

(The main difference between an agent and a broker is that an agent works for one or more insurance companies; a broker is an independent business person.)

You may be able to check the financial stability of any insurance company you are considering by looking it up in Best's Insurance Reports, an annual publication of the A.M. Best Co., a private reporting and rating organization. Copies usually are available at the public library or at agents' and brokers' offices.

The ratings, ranging from excellent to fair, reflect the financial condition and operating performance of a company. The ratings do not include an evaluation of policy provisions. Nor do they cover claims practices. (Best does not rate all insurers: do not reject a company just because it is not listed.)

One of the most common ways for consumers to lower costs is by increasing the deductible on your policy. (The deductible is that amount you have to pay before insurance coverage takes

Increasing your deductible from $50 to $100 can cut the collision portion of your premium package by 10 to 20 percent; going from a $50 to $200 deductible can cut the premium by 30 to 40 percent.

You may want to consider eliminating collision coverage completely on older cars which are already paid for. It does not make much sense to pay $100 a year in premiums on a car that is worth only

Note: if you itemize your income tax deductions, you may be able to subtract losses exceeding $100. Suppose you are in a 32 percent tax bracket. If you have an auto accident and suffer $500 in damages to your car, you could subtract $400 as a casualty loss. Thirty-two percent of $400 is equal to $128 that you would save on your taxes.

Of those who carried the collision coverage in 1975, the company said, 40.7 percent had $50 deductibles, 50.6 percent had $100 deductibles and 8.7 percent had other deductibles, mostly $200.

Of those purchasing collision coverage this June, only 24.8 percent chose $50 deductibles; 60.6 percent chose $100 deductibles; and 14.6 percent selected other deductibles.

Other suggestions for savings on auto insurance include:

-Drive safely. Your premiums depend partly on your accident record. If you do have an accident, be sure to report it. both to the police and your broker. The reporting is important even if you are not at fault or are the victim of a hit-and-run

Welcome Monarch

ROAD TOWN, TORTOLA, British Virgin Islands (AP) - Queen Elizabeth II received a red-carpet welcome from thousands of cheering spectators and flagwaving children during her visit to the British Virgin Islands, one of the tiniest of British possessions.

The smiling monarch, accompanied by her husband, Prince Philip, was greeted by Governor Walter Wallace, chief minister Willard Wheatley and dignitaries of other British Caribbean islands.

The visit to the territory, discovered by Christopher Columbus, is part of the Queen's silver jubilee visits to British Commonwealth members and posses-

The premiums may be less and your insurance won't be cancelled unless you don't pay the premium or the whole group's coverage is cancelled. Investigate insurance plans offered by automobile clubs, but remember that you will have to pay membership dues. If you would not ordinarily join, you will have to add the dues to your premium cost.

-Avoid buying an expensive or highperformance car. It will be expensive to repair or replace and is tempting to thieves. Premiums generally are higher npany said, for example, that a policyin a midwestern city could save more than $350 a year on a total insurance package by buying a $3,500 subcompact instead of a $7,500 larger model.

-Don't drive to work. And if you must drive, try to join a car pool. The fewer miles you drive, the lower the premium and many companies give special discounts for car pools.

—Ask if you qualify for any other special discounts. Among factors that may help you save are insuring more than one mobile with the same company, completion of an accredited driver-training course, passive restraint systems such as air bags and no accidents or traffic violations for the past three years. Students with a grade average of B or better also may get a reduced rate as may nonsmokers and nondrinkers.

On the negative side, factors that could result in your paying higher rates include a frequent change of address, residence in a low-income or deteriorating neighborhood and divorce. Rates also are often higher for drivers over 65, those who have been licensed less than three years

The savings can add up. State Farm cal-culated what the rates would be for an adult married couple — over 25 — with a 1975 Chevrolet Impala on which they carry a given package of insurance.

For the purposes of the example, the couple was assumed to have a comprehensive policy with bodily injury coverage of $50,000 per person and $100,000 per accident and property damage liability of $10,000; a policy for personal injury protection or medical payments coverage; a policy for uninsured motorist coverage; and a collision policy with varying

If the couple lives in suburban Atlanta and either husband or wife drives 100 miles or more to and from work every week, the six-month premium for the package, assuming no deductible on the comprehensive and a $50 deductible on the collision policy, would be $125.63. Raising the collision deductible to $100, would cut the premium to $120.50. Raising the collision deductible to $200 and adding a $50 deductible on the compre hensive policy, would cut the bill still further to $107. If the primary driver then joined a carpool and drove less than 30 miles to and from work each work, the premiums would drop to $87.50. The overall saving would be 30 per cent.

(Young drivers — particularly boys — boost insurance bills sharply. If the Atlanta couple had an 18-year-old son who started driving the family car, their sixmonth insurance premiums would increase by more than $100.) crease by more than $100.)

Rates — and potential savings — vary widely in different parts of the country. If the Atlanta driver lived in Sacramento, for example, his State Farm premiums for the insurance package specified could range from $140.80 to $191.58. A driver in the suburbs north of Chicago could pay from $108.44 to $161.70 and a driver in Rochester, N.Y., would spend from $108.20 to $150.22.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Treaty: The Bottom Line

sessing the value of opinions on matters of national import, such as the Panama Canal Treaties, for instance?

The question is raised in view of the statement this week attributed to actor John Wayne, who was quoted in The Washington Post as being in favor of the pacts.

It is not the first time, nor will it be the last, that someone in the entertainment industry puts his or her two cents worth into a political or foreign policy debate.

FRANKLY, IN view of our stated opinion that more responsible persons should take an interest in what is happening to their world, we can't argue with The Duke.

We do find fault with his reasoning on why the U.S. should approve the treaties, howev-

Furthermore, we look askance at any greater credence being given John Wayne's opinion-even had he come out against the pacts-than numerous others in Hollywood and New York who have felt compelled to leave the stage or cameras to offer hibited for 200 years, as John Wayne put it,

In brief, his is only one man's opinion.

THE PROBLEM with the media emphasis that is given such pronouncements is that sometimes those who admire-or have other feelings-toward such entertainment figures often let the latter influence them unduly.

And while we obviously attempt to influence public opinion in channels we feel are worthwhile, we also urge our readers to inform themselves with all available facts and opinions and then make up their own minds.

It has been a mystery to us why the opinions of, say, a Jane Fonda on the Vietnam War would receive so much more news play than say that of a man who spent seven years in one of the brutal Viet Cong prisons. Miss Fonda is an actress, the POW is a soldier defending his nation, and her right to speak out.

THE PANAMA Debate, of course, will wax long and warm for the next few months.

During that period, "everybody and his dog" will most likely speak out.

That's fine. But, in making up our minds, we should remember that while demonstrating "justice and reason" Americans have exwe don't have to give away our basic rights

Jobhunter's Work Never Done

Bo

WASHINGTON-Charles Knapp, Ph.D and at 31, the chief trouble shooter ("special assistant") for the Labor Department, stared at the sign above the counter in this Georgetown ice-cream parlor-"Help Wanted," read the poster.

But not more than 20 blocks away there were hundreds of persons who might have answered the "Help Wanted" sign, might have taken home an honestly-earned dollar and made a minimal reduction in the District's high unemployment

Much, perhaps most, of Dr. Knapp's responsibility is assisting Labor Secretary Ray Marshall in battling unemployment, or, to accentuate the positive, to bring together the willing worker and the suitable job. Knapp's own activities have taken him on trips from the American southeast to the American northeast where the jobless rate varies from 3 per cent to over 12 per cent.

PERSONS LIKE reporters always are asking him why job-seekers didn't go where the jobs

Where are the various work-finding government programs that chew into the national income? What's wrong with the system, anyhow?

Some of these questions I asked Knapp, and he had some good answers. It's hard to match work

Dipping ice-cream isn't a challenging skill, but a ghetto kid would feel uncomfortable in Georgetown where it's swank with wealth and raunchy with campus playmates from the nearby campus-

IF THE UNWASHED ghetto kid had courage, character and incentive, he would brave these hazards, of course.

The same is true of the Harlem unemployed whom Knapp and job-programmers may have told there are jobs to be had in Midland, Tex.

It's a pity, but 'tis true, that too few Americans have the guts to get up and go where the work is. Ice-cream dipping and table-swabbing are poor examples because, as Knapp put it, "the pace of technology" is too fast for all except the fastlearners, and failure to make the grade is a heartbreaker at any social level.

There is another spoiler in the picture, and this is the government

FOR ALMOST A half-century, and spanning two or three rising generations, Americans have looked for "Washington" to do it all.

Lots of the welfare-loaders would take up a broom and turn janitor if the U.S. Employment Service would put the handle in their hands.

Even the job-placers of private industry, who complain about the unfair competition of USES, which is where most vacancies are. Still another side of the equation: Business knocks government and this is good.

But the government is getting out of line when it turns on private enterprise and bad-mouths it in general indictments of an entire class.

I intend to be specific here, not general, be-don't find much profit on low-pay opportunities cause I'm referring to Dr. Knapp's own boss, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall. In a speech earlier this year he chose to demogog about "an underclass who live among us."

He preferred to call them, not illegal aliens, but undocumented workers."

His speech which accused employers of cruel and dishonest practices was as "undocumented" a diatribe as you'll hear from a loyal citizen.

Y'all Excuse Me, But I Gave At The Office

AS THE END of 1977 approaches, you will be increasingly barraged by appeals in writing and over the phone to give to charities-most of which are reasonably sound, but some of which are definitely not.

Before the year ends, you will have given an estimated $29 billion to charitable, philanthropic and religious organizations, without even a vague idea of how much (or little) of your charitable dollar is actually being spent on the charity and how much is going toward fund-raising costs.

Are you purchasing a $4 box of greeting cards through the mails? Buying a raffle ticket at the

Becoming a sponsor of a theater party? Helping to sell a table for a testimonial dinner?

THESE ARE ALL traditional forms of charitable giving-in addition to the direct contribution of dollars-and "there are important considerations for all Americans who contribute in these ways." warns M.C. Van de Workeen, executive director of the National Information Bureau, a New York-based non-profit watchdog for philan-

'Frequently, a large portion of the ticket price for the special events goes to the cost of the event, and usually a smaller portion, from which fund-raising costs must be subtracted, goes to the charity

"Only this smaller portion is a tax-deductible contribution

"Another popular holiday fund-raising method -greeting card purchases-are not contributions and are not tax-deductible.

AS FOR THE sending of unordered raffle or sweepstakes tickets (or any merchandise) through the mails, this method of fund raising does not meet the bureau's standards, Van de Workeen

"This practice puts undue pressure on contributors, often entails a high fund-raising cost and does not give sufficient information to make an informed decision about giving.'

States which try to monitor charities-no matter how diligently—are overwhelmed by the task.

In New York alone, for instance, the charities registration section of the state Board of Social Welfare employs nine accountants and clerks to follow the activities of more than 7,500 organizations. The state attorney general's office, with power to act against a questionable charity, is equally swamped.

And while some Congressmen are thinking about requiring breakdowns of expenditures in solicitations sent to would-be contributors, federal action—if any—is a long way off.

SO WHAT CAN you do? One valuable help may be the NIB's monthly "Wise Giving Guide," which evaluates nearly 400 national agencies soliciting us.

Our Dixie fulminations fell upon deaf ears. In those days it was automatically assumed that may Southerner who attacked the Court was not posed only to integration of schools. NO SUCH TAINT attaches to Berger. Born in was naturalized as a child. He took up the study of the violin with such skill that in his twenties he soloed with the Cleveland Orchestra and became assistant concertmas-ter in Cincinnati. Then he turned to the law and fashioned a brilliant second career in both federal service and private practice. In 1970, he went to Harvard as a nior Fellow in American legal history.

He gained national attention in 1974 as a leading authority on presidential impeachment.

'Government by Judiciary" crowns Prof. Berger's distinguished career. It is not the east reading of the autumn. Freighted with 1,600 footnotes, the text does not race, but rather chugs to its inevitable conclusion.

Berger's thesis cannot be sidetracked; he gathers momentum as he goes along; and his scholarship packs the massive authority of a locomotive. Berger is not the first legal historian to sift the debates of the 39th Congress, searching for the meaning of the Reconstruction Amendments, but his meticulous examination of the evidence stands in a class by itself.

BERGER'S GIFT IS to bring it all together. He finds "no trace of an intention" in the records of the 39th Congress to indicate that the Fourteenth itself acting unconstitutionally?

IT IS TOO LATE, Berger concedes, to roll back the segregation decisions. "That is more than the courts should undertake and more, I believe, than the American people would desire." But he pleads for a fresh start.

"The judges might begin by curbing their reach for still more policymaking power. "I assert the right," says Berger, "to look at the Constitution itself, stripped of judicial incrustations, as the index of constitutional law and to affirm that the Supreme Court has no authority to substitute an 'unwritten Constitution' for the written Constitution the Founders gave us and the people ratified."

Biko Questioned U.S. Policy

By JOHN PLATTER
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - Steve Biko drove up alone to our rendezvous under the shade of pepper trees behind a little church. His steady frown and tall, heavy-set frame made him seem much older than his 30

That was eight months ago, when the man considered the father of the black consciousness movement in South Africa was being touted as a good candidate to become the nation's first black prime

Today, Biko lies buried not far from that same spot in his sleepy hometown of King Williams Town in the southeastern Cape Province. But even in death, his name continues to be a rallying cry for black freedom.

His death in a prison cell Sept. 12 touched off five days of racial violence at home and outrage abroad. A justcompleted autopsy shows he died of brain damage caused by a severe blow to the head, sources said.

As Biko grew in recent years into an articulate nationalist, the white supremacist government banned his writings, restricted his movements and ordered he not be quoted in news stories.

Thus few South Africans know what the black leader believed in and said, or even personal facts such as his love for chess and sports and medicine - but above all politics.

Biko agreed to meet me only if his comments were off the record. But I taped the threehour interview, interrupted briefly by two plainclothes policemen keeping tabs on Biko. He waved them off with a perfunctory smile.

Biko said the racial violence in his nation was "destructive. It makes me scared," and expressed fears about U.S. policy on South Africa. He also called U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young "an ambitious black fellow.

He said he saw no end to the death and turmoil that has gripped South Africa since the first black stirrings against apartheid, but hoped blacks might win equality by preying on the fears of

Excerpts from the interview follow

Q.: How do you feel about political rights for blacks?

Biko: "I am personally scared of a conflagration because of the extent to which it will be determined in terms purely of race. The interests of black and white are so diametrically opposed right now. It's a color thing. The violence right now is destructive. It makes me scared. You can walk into town and get shot by any guy just because you're black. And the reverse is going to happen. It's irrational. It has no ideological basis

Q.: Has a new black leadership emerged since the Soweto riots?

Biko: "The leadership is not coordinated because of the fast turnover ... You come in, you stick around and then you go because you have become a very prized catch for the police. The present regime can defuse the situation only by producing an approach, other than the law and order approach, which acknowledges there is a deepseated complaint that involves negotiation. I have seen no signs of that and the country is going to remain in an undeclared state of emergency for a long time.

Q.: Are blacks doing enough to alleviate white fears of blacks?

Biko: "That would be very difficult now, and possibly undesirable. You can waste time alleviating fears of whites. Our program now is to make the whites realize what their options are, and I sometimes think you can convert people by playing on their fears rather than by preaching to them.

Q.: How do you assess U.S. policy toward South Africa?

Biko: "Very confusing. I have deep seated fears about the role America is ready to play in changing the present sys-tem ... The U.S. has such a long history of inter-action with the white minority. through bilateral trade, investments, diplomatic offensives ... that any agents for change here are likely to be very suspicious of American overtures. And if America can't get in with the authentic revolutionary groups, she won't sit idle. America would want to promote her own group, make their particular group the minant group. My analysis is that none of the real nationalist groups would be ready to accept American assistance . And if that does happen, America is likely to do a dirty deal down the line some-

Q.: How do you assess Andrew Young? Biko: "Young is in a tight spot. I doubt if his heart is in the right place. My analysis is that he is a pretty ambitious black fellow who is going to have to play it pretty neutral. He can't project his blackness. He has got to project his reasonableness and acceptability to the mainstream of white American politics. But he has created an area of concern and he has singled out South Africa and introduced an element of morality in Ameri-

Q.: How would the leader of a future ndent black country treat the Biko: "We accept virtually everybody who stays here. But they must declare themselves truly Azanians (South Africans). You are going to find the Englishspeaking community accepting this more easily than your Afrikaner, who is more prejudiced. The Afrikaner is suffering from the seeds of his own racial prejudice that he has sown."

Q.: How will the white regime act in the future?

Biko: "There's no doubt, they are trapped by their own right wing. Also any mands for more concessions and generate more violence. But people here are going to have to think seriously in terms of living together, permanently, not just for the next 10 or 20 years.'

Q.: How do black leaders regard the possibility of a geographical partition of the country, for whites and blacks?

Biko: "It has become fixed in people's minds that Azania shall remain one indivisible country ... I think the black left also will fight to the bitter end to get a completely egalitarian society. But let's face it, there is a black middle class which would join ranks with the whites once the color factor is removed and if there is any eventual violence, it would be so much better if the color question had been removed. To me, that's much more acceptable than the violence now.

Youths Push 3 Pine Tree Legislation

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) - It started out as just another school assignment when Barbara Bayne's sixth-grade social studies class at Berea Middle School began to study national symbols.

The 33 students found out that the United States has a national motto, a national bird, and a national song. What the students didn't find was a national tree and the class decided to do something about it.

"Well, we just couldn't believe they didn't have one," Mrs. Bayne said in an interview. "We searched every available resource, and just could not find it. So we wrote to the Department of the Interior and they told us there wasn't one."

The students are now in the seventh grade and Mrs. Bayn is assistant principal of the school but they are still working on their project.

The students convinced Rep. James R. Mann, D-S.C., and Sen. Peter Dominici, D-N.M., to introduce companion bills in the House and Senate to make the pine tree the national tree. They got a lesson in real-life politics when they went to Washington in September to lobby for passage of the two bills.

"Some people think we can't do it, but I think we can," said Sheryl Reeves, 12, one of the students involved in the project. "Some people think we'll be famous, but I don't know." Tina Gibson, 12, another student, said when the class first started to push the pine tree, it was just a project.

"I didn't think we would be able to keep it up," she said. "We were pretty excited about it but we didn't think we'd go to Washington.'

Mrs. Bayne said one reason the students are trying to get the pine declared the national tree is because it is truly a national tree.

"We found 35 varieties of pine tree native to the United States," she said. "It's the only tree that grows in all 50 states, including Alaska." The students are writing letters to the governors of the 17 states which have the pine tree as the state tree, asking them to support the bill in Congress. They were told that if they can get that support, the bill would probably pass.

"Everytime we step, we have to take two more steps," Mrs. Bayne said.

Regulating Body Heat

BY LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB-I would appreciate your comments on relief from anhidrosis. The absence of both sensible and insensible perspiration create a body temperature of 103 degrees plus in 80 degree weather. Would orthostatic hypotension with blood pressure levels of 70 over 50 being common contribute to this uncomfortable

DEAR READER-The low blood pressure and absence of sweating are probably caused by the same abnormalities. Individuals with these two disorders also often have problems with sphincters that may affect bowel or bladder function to some degree.

We think these are related to abnormalities in the sympathetic nervous system possibly involving more than one area. I think you should be evaluated by a neurologist if you have not been already.

Meanwhile, sweating is an important mechanism to cool the body. The insensible perspiration alone enables us to be air condition with evaporative cooling. You will need to take every advantage of mechanisms to keep the body cool that you can. So I am sending you the Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever, to give you a summary of how the body heat is regulated. Others interested in either fever or cooling the body who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Statio, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB-Perhaps you may be interested in my case. I am a male in my 98th year and have been having trouble with my feet swelling. My doctor said that he could not do anything, that the swelling was due to my advanced age. I raised the foot of my bed about six inches and within a month the swelling had subsided. I do not indulge in alcohol and eat the plainest food and otherwise am in good can have several different causes, including nutritional problems, heart disease, liver disease, varicose veins and others. What to do about it often depends upon what causes it.

DEAR READER—Congratulations on your 98 years. Swelling of the feet

It is fluid, and fluid tends to run downhill. As long as the feet are below the level of the heart they will tend to swell if a person accumulates excess fluid from any cause. Elevating the foot of the bed at night might help get the fluid out of your feet but it simply shifts upward in the body which may not be so good. It is likely to accumulate in the loose skin over the back. The shifting of the fluid does not mean that it has been eliminated from the body. Old age alone does not cause fluid accumulation. The underlying problem may not be correctable but usually there is some help for it. If it is heart failure, heart medicines (the digitalis group), diuretics to stimulate the elimination of salt and a salt-restricted diet often help. If it is kidneys, liver or varicose veins, other measures may be indicated.

Carter Learns Lesson About Being 'Insider'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President rarily set aside. Carter is learning that in Washington it's better to be an insider than an outsider. Carter, in his campaign, said "insiders' in Washington had lost their pipeline to the people and were governing by remote control. He blamed the bureauccracy in Washington and the arrogance of those in power for many of the nation's problems. But since he has been in Washington. the President has found that you have to be an insider to know the levers of power. His frustrations are apparent. He realizes now that he has to retrench and to take one step at a time.

Some of the goals he set before taking office have had to be put on the shelf temporarily as his first year is coming to a close. Now, Carter apparently will be satisfied to achieve a strong energy program to start the country on the road to

Being an outsider, he has not had the clout with the independent-minded Senate and the influence on the leaders who can make or break his program. From any point of view, the Democratic-controlled Senate has shunned his appeals and devastated his energy proposals.

Carter has had to hold his fire again members in his own party who have contributed vastly to his problems.

Carter's top White House aides have begun a series of meetings, chaired by Vice President Walter Mondale, to find out what went wrong along the way and to get the administration back on the track.

At their first meeting, they decided that the President had basically tried to go after too much in his first year. Since then, the administration has tried to set more realistic goals and some initiatives are being left by the wayside. The proposal for a consumer agency, which is op-posed by big business and will take an all-

Privacy Laws May Hinder Crime News

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - New privacy laws passed in the name of individual rights may make it difficult to cover crime news, the president of the Associated Press Managing Editors reports.

John E. Leard, APME president and executive editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, told about 800 delegates to the four-day convention this week that it is a

"Perhaps this is a reaction to the Watergate syndrome — to what are sometimes called journalistic excess

"In any case, it appears to me that we face now some of the most trouble threats ever to our ability to report fully activities in our police and judicial system on a day-to-day basis," he said.

Leard, addressing a session of the 43rd annual APME meeting, also urged the editors to pay "renewed attention to fair

"Perhaps — occasionally, at least — we have tended to appear to be too much on the negative side..." he said.

"Were we fair with displays given a pre-election report that tax investig were checking the records that candidate Ford — a development that appeared later to amount to little or nothing?

"Were we completely fair with the handling of the long-running Bert Lance stories?"

Leard said he wondered whether newspapers were not "sometimes forgetting basic news principles and being 'taken' too often by strategic leaks..." Other speakers included Keith Fuller,

Carter still intends to unveil a tax reform program before Congress adjourns, according to aides, even though it could not be acted upon until next year.

Some of Carter's current problems may be due to his own high hopes and campaign promises. As President, he finds it is not that easy to deliver, but his constituents all expect the most. As a consequence, the groups Carter appealed to the most, the blacks, the poor, and labor are somewhat disenchanted.

When he traveled across the country last weekend, Carter found that he was being faulted for not espousing instant solutions. He had come to listen and found that was not enough.

With his successes being called in question by his own party, the President is also being branded inept by the Republi-cans, who are beginning to enthuse over their own political prospects.

As an outsider who suddenly appeared on the Washington scene, Carter also lacks the unswerving dedicated loyalists in his own party who can help him over the rough spots until he does get his bearings. The Democrats are individually marching to their own drums instead of

For all that, most presidents would prefer that their accomplishments be judged in the pages of history, and not so instantly

But Carter appears to remain fairly philosophical about his own presidency. He believes that he has walked in where other Presidents feared to tread and that his own new initiatives, the belief in change, instead of the status quo - in foreign policy particularly where the problems have been around for a long time - has been the cause of many of his political head-

So he continues to say, "I'm learning. I'm eager to learn," and as he does, he feels he will be able to rack up a record he can run on in four years.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is delaying until next year votes on President Carter's plan to hold down increases in hospital bills amid charges from one critic that Carter has not pushed the issue strongly enough.

The administration unveiled its proposal last April and had hoped to get it through Congress by Oct. 1. But since then the bill has made its way through tees that must consider it. Congressional sources say there now is no chance for a vote in either the House or Senate before adjournment for the Carter has left the lobbying effort chiefly to Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. But Kennedy contends the President should have taken a more visible stand on the issue, as he has done on his energy pack-

For such a complex issue, with vocal vested interests opposing the bill, a strong educational effort throughout the country and with the Congress is essential," Kennedy said in a recent speech.

Meanwhile, according to administration estimates, consumers were expected to pay an extra $750 million in hospital bills in the last three months of the year and face even higher payments next year.

The federal budget for the current fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, had assumed a slower rise in hospital costs for the government's Medicare and Medicaid programs than has been the case.

The Carter proposal is to limit the cost increases for hospitals to the general inflation rate, plus a 3 per cent allowance for technological improvement. This formula would allow annual cost increases of about 9 per cent, instead of the 15 per cent of recent years. The administration also proposed a na-tional limit on capital expenditures for hospitals of about half the current $5 billion per year, saying that new buildings have boosted hospital costs.

The Congressional Budget Office has estimated the nation would save more than $40 billion in the next five years under the administration plan.

But the American Medical Association and other medical groups have opposed the bill, saying it would reduce the quali-ty of health care. The administration says unnecessary costs can be trimmed while keeping quality care.

Guiding Hand Absent In Carter's Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's probably the Henry Kissinger legacy, but even in this 10th month of the Carter administration there are a lot of smart people around town looking for the secret hand guiding American foreign policy

Analysis

The memory of Kissinger's mysterious trips to Paris for Vietnam peace talks and to China to open relations after a quartercentury of icy distance is still too fresh to accept the fact that Jimmy Carter is making most of his own decisions.

Southern Critic Calls Mitchell Novel Shallow

ATLANTA (AP) - Margaret Mitchell's 'Gone With the Wind," far from being a literary masterwork, is a "stereotyped, shallow, sentimental romance," a Southern critic contends.

'The book simply does not explore the complexities of the human heart, of human character, of human decisions,' says Emory University professor Floyd Watkins.

In a study of seven American authors to be published next month, Watkins said Miss Mitchell was sloppy with facts, prejudiced and superficial in her blockbuster best-seller on Scarlett O'Hara, Rhett Butler and the Old South.

For example, Watkins said, she depicted a number of Clayton County plantations as large enough to support more than 50 slaves when only one such plantation existed. She also wrote of cotton flaming in a warehouse, but he said cotton smolders when it burns.

Watkins, a native of Cherokee County, Ga., said Miss Mitchell, an Atlantan who died in 1949, was biased in her description of people, making "every Yankee a villain (and) every true Southerner almost perfect.

She "wrote about an older culture, but she simply didn't have the depth of soul to portray it," and the book has "the falseness of romance rather than the depth of human nature," he said.

Watkins, who has written several books of literary criticism, said he had no qualms about attacking his state's best-little beside the point. However large Kissinger's role as national security adviser and then as secretary of state, the ultimate responsibility rested with the presidents he worked for, Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford.

And even when Carter depends on advisers for guidance, he is identified in the public mind, here and abroad, with what the United States does. The policy is his: it bears his mark. He gets the credit and the blame.

This was true of Dwight D. Eisenhower, although John Foster Dulles mapped many of his moves, and it was true of Nixon and Ford in Kissinger's era.

The question hardly arose under John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. They left no doubt who was in charge although it's not entirely clear how much the Central Intelligence Agency was running a foreign policy all its own Personally, Carter is not as vigorous as Johnson, but neither is he as subdued as Eisenhower.

He hasn't traveled as much as Nixon. On the one hand, he has scheduled a back-breaking, 11-day trip to nine countries spread over four continents. On the other, he has said he will cancel the trip if Congress hasn't completed action on his energy program.

The obvious inference: Carter considers globe-trotting useful but not impera-

In scope, his foreign policy approach is uneven. In some areas, such as the Middle East, the United States is an influential, driving force. In others, China for example, U.S. policy has hardly inched ahead since Carter took office.

administration in foreign affairs is that there is no one of Kissinger's dimensions on the scene.

Most pundits had prediced that by now one of the several advisers Carter signed on would have clawed his way to the top.

It hasn't worked out that way. Zbigniew Brzezinski, who reminded some of Kissinger because of his academic and European background, has not parlayed the job of national security assistant to the power Kissinger attained.

Brzezinski helped tormulate the early. tough policy Carter followed with the Russians. And he was an early proponent of the Palestinian "homeland" the President endorsed.

as pervasive as Kissinger's was.

Cyrus R. Vance, the secretary of state who reminded some of William Rogers, has turned out to be stronger and more influential than the fellow Kissinger eventually supplanted.

Vance has taken on the hard, nuts-andbolts work of preparing for a Middle East peace conference and he was in charge of the strategic arms talks with the Russians in May in Geneva that broke a long impasse on treaty negotiations.

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, Vice President Walter F. Mondale and arms control director Paul Warnke all have settled into important but secondary roles.

Avalanche-Journal Staff Where are Texas' railroads going in the future? The state Railroad Commission is trying to find out, with a study called for under the federal Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform, or "4R," Act, and today asked the public for help.

Changing industrial needs and industry locations, shifts in population and new and different methods of transportation" have caused severe rail problems in the Northeast and Midwest, commission staff member John R. Whisenhunt said.

The 4R Act, passed by Congress last vear to try to head off such problems elsewhere in the country, makes federal funds available, with state matching money, for rail assistance for three years.

cost and revenue estimates, regional economic conditions, users' and shippers' problems if line abandonment is proposed, other transportation modes available if abandonment happens, and impact of railroads and abandonment on communities and on energy, agriculture and other transportation.

The Railroad Commission held a public hearing in Lubbock today, asking area citizens to get in on the early trackwork of the study

"We're trying to let you in on the planning before we've reached any conclusions" or before the scope of the study is even completely mapped out, Whisenhunt told some 25 persons at the hearing.

Of particular concern under the Texas State Rail Plan study, begun last month But to qualify, a state must present a and aimed for completion in March, 1979, about 1,000 miles now are subject to possible abandonment in Texas, Whisenhunt

In the Lubbock area, he said, these include

-19.71 miles in Floyd and Briscoe Counties, operated by the Fort Worth and Denver Railroad, a line for which an abandonment application is pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC).

-104.80 miles in Cottle, Motley, Floyd and Hardeman Counties, operated by the Quanah, Acme and Pacific, a line the commission feels could be abandoned in

-10.4 miles in Cochran County, operated by the Atcheson, Topeka and Santa Fe, which the commission thinks is a potential source of abandonment pro-

-24.3 miles between Whiteface and Bledsoe, operated by the Atcheson, Topeka and Santa Fe.

The Quanah, Acme and Pacific line has been the subject of long controversy, and Floydada, Paducah and Acme area farmers who had been fighting that abandonment recently won the battle. But, apparently, their victory is up in the air now.

An administrative judge earlier this year ruled against the railroad's abandonment proposal and the ruling recently was upheld by the ICC.

However, Whisenhunt said that "within the past week," the QA&P filed a notice for another application to drop the

The railroad maintains the line is not profitable.

Farmers have argued there is enough traffic to warrant keeping the line in Whisenhunt noted that besides the 31 lines now or likely soon to be involved in abandonment proceedings, there are "about 2,200 miles in 84 lines with very light (traffic) density.

The light-density lines are spread over the state, but abandonments "clustered together" in one area could have "serious" consequences upon a region's economy and people, the commission's assistant director of transportation said

He declared the commission is dedicated to maintaining the strength of Texas' railroads, planning for the future and ensuring that Texas railroads remain in the private sector.

The commission is on record as being against federal subsidies for railroad operation for the "private sector" goal, and because it does not want the state, through matching funds, to be tied to the hearing was worried that the 4R Act may "get us to the free school lunch situation where the federal government will tell us how to run our railroads" if it gives subsidies to railroads required to continue operating unprofitable lines.

Whisenhunt said the commission leans toward a "one-shot capital infusion."

"Say you've got one old bridge on a line that prevents you from running giant hopper cars," he mused. A federal-state matching grant could fix the bridge, thus making it easier for the railroad to make a profit on the line, Whisenhunt ex-

Suspects Charged In Heist

Aggravated robbery charges were filed here today against four suspects in the Oct 1 holdup of Meyer's Jewelry Store

Named in the charges were Linda Harvey Campbell, 31, Homer Clifton Campbell, 34, and Kenneth Wayne Butcher, 27, all of Waco.

Bond of $15,000 was recommended for each of the four, who are now being held in Travis County Jail in Austin

Witnesses to the Lubbock heist today identified four items believed taken in that robbery, which reportedly were confiscated from the suspects

In Austin Thursday, the witnesses identified three of four suspects as being the same persons who took more than $200 -00 worth of jewelry from the Lubbock The witnesses traveled to Georgetown, where the suspects were arrested, and identified three rings and a necklace as part of the booty taken in the Lubbock crime, Det. Capt. Wayne Love said. Georgetown police arrested the four about 12:15 a.m. Monday, only minutes after the robbery of a Safeway supermarket that netted $2,400

Formal charges have been filed in connection with that heist, and with that arrest, police departments from Oklahoma City, Shreveport, Longview, Hurst, Austin, Abilene, Irving and Lubbock have requested information indicating whether the four could have been involved in similar robberies there.

Austin authorities filed charges against the four late Tuesday. San Antonio police expressed interest in the group in connection with "six or seven" robberies that occurred in that city during the past year, and Abilene police have also indicated their arrest would end investigation into a recent $9,000 supermarket robbery there

Witnesses to the Abilene holdup implicated the four Tuesday. San Antonio police said witnesses identified pictures of the four. Fingerprint comparisons also were used, police said.

When the suspects were arrested, the 31-year-old woman was wearing gloves and jewelry was discovered in the new 1978 Ford van they were driving

In the Lubbock case, a man and a woman entered the Meyer' store Sept. 3 and asked to see several expensive items. When they returned Oct. 1, the attendant recognized them as the same couple The clerk displayed a pouch of gems after the man asked to see a one-carat diamond. Meanwhile, a second man quietly entered through the front door. While the second man looked at necklaces, the first man reportedly pulled a large revolver from his jacket and announced, "This is a holdup. The second man drew a gun, and the female suspect reportedly walked behind the glass counter, pulled on a pair of surgical gloves and began raking the stones into a leather bag

Twenty minutes later, the trio fled with more than $200,000 worth of precious

Many commercial finance houses also are in factoring, the outright purchase of accounts receivable. Business firms traditionally did not usually resort to factors if they could get money any other way, but a new system of factoring is used by some big firms that is upgrading it as a

"They didn't crow the first four mornings," said faculty coordinator Abbott "They just looked stupidly at the sun. What a rooster needs is a hen, so we got a hen and on Friday morning, the roosters crowed their heads off."

The roosters were part of Western State College's National Energy Conservation Challenge, an effort started by the 3.000 students Oct. 1 to promote conservation among other colleges and universities in the United States

Area Man Urges Illinois Farmers To Strike

the ground until they're paid fair prices for their products, organizers of a farm-

Eugene Schroeder of Campo, Colo., and Gerald Wright of Hereford, Tex., spoke Thursday night to a standing-room-only crowd of farmers and agribusiness people in Anna, saying farmers are in dire straits and urging firm action to Their movement calls itself "American Agriculture" and advocates a strike by farmers Dec. 14 if farm prices don't rise to parity levels.

More than 25 per cent of the farmers and ranchers must liquidate or refinance this year." said Schroeder to the 80 farmers and their wives at a community center in this Southern Illinois community.

Farmers are "now on the verge of bankruptcy" he said, and the only people who will be left to buy up the land will be "big money and the government. 'We don't want government subsidies, we want parity," he said

mediately following World War I, periodically adjusted for changing circumst-

The two strike organizers term it paying farmers a fair price for their products.

Schroeder said American farmers lose money every time they sell their products. "If it continues, we have no way to go but down. The loosely knit coalition of farmers, which the organizers claim now numbers more than half a million, intends to refuse to sell farm products, not produce any more agricultural products, or buy farm equipment, production supplies or non-essential products.

"When I say I won't plant grain. I won't plant grain. And I won't turn that bull out on those cows," said Schroeder

Wright told the gathering that the Carter administration is letting agriculture

Carter "turned his back on the farmer the first thing," he said.

Of the $11 billion in the administration's farm bill, Wright said $5.7 billion is earmarked for food stamps, not to help farmers

The audience listened mostly in silence, and never applauded when the two men delivered their presentations.

Feelings were mixed among the farmers at the meeting.

John Collins, who farms 800 acres and has 100 cows near Ridgway, said he thinks the strike "will work if we get enough people behind it." He said he thought many farmers are adopting "a wait and see attitude."

But Oris Mosby Jr. of nearby Jonesboro blamed farmers' problems on "overproduction and greed.

'Some of them do double cropping,' he said, which means they plant two crops on the same ground in a single year.

That's contributing to the surplus

He said of Wright and Schroeder: "Those cats have a good sermon," but he added that control of production is the key to farm prices

DETROIT (AP) - Third-quarter earnings at General Motors Corp. hit a record $402 million or $1.40 a share, up 1.3 percent over the same period last year.

The picture wasn't so bright at Chrysler Corp., however, as officials told shareholders this week that troubled overseas operations and rising costs contributed to a 50 percent drop in profits from the 1976 third quarter.

Chrysler said its earnings were $30.4 million or 51 cents a share, compared to $61.2 million or $1.01 per share in the third quarter last year. Revenues were $4 billion against $3.8 billion

Wall Street analysts had predicted Chrysler would show a third-quarter profit of about $50 million.

GM's quarterly figures showed net income of $402 million, or $1.40 a share, against $397 million, or $1.37 a share, on a revenue increase from $10.2 billion to $11.4 billion.

GM said its unit and dollar sales set records from July through September. But they fell far short of the second quarter, when GM became the first U.S. industrial firm to have profits of more than $1 billion for a three-month period.

GM's net income for the first nine months of the year was $2.4 billion or $8.36 a share, up 14 percent from the $2.1 billion or $7.31 a share for the period last vear. Revenues were $39.9 billion against $34.1 billion.

For the nine months, Chrysler reported it earned $184.2 million or $3.06 a share on revenues of $12.5 billion. That compared with $243.4 million or $4.04 a share from revenues of $11.5 billion in the first three quarters of 1976. The figures excluded income tax credits of $28.7 million or 47 cents a share this year and $60 million or $1 a share last year.

The higher income this quarter "primarily reflects higher sales volume and improved product mix from the prior year's evels," said GM Chairman Thomas Murphy and President Elliott Estes in their report to stockholders.

The third quarter record results were achieved despite higher production startup costs of our new 1978 mid-size cars and strike-and flood-related production losses and associated inefficiencies," the GM chiefs said. "These combined factors prevented net income from increasing in line with dollar sales, resulting in a decline in profit margin.

Chrysler, the nation's third-largest carmaker, said it lost $14 million on its operations outside North America, or $10.7 million with a tax credit, between June 30 and Sept. 30.

Chrysler had an income tax credit, allowed to offset previous losses, of $3.3 million or 5 cents a share in the quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with a credit of $15 million or 25 cents a share in the same quarter last vear.

Chrysler's earnings statement accompanying the report showed an 8 percent increase for the quarter in overall costs nine months.

Overseas, Chrysler's earning rate was down substantially this quarter compared to last year's. Earnings for the year to date were $8 million before an income tax credit, compared to $33 million before a credit last year.

Chrysler said its subsidiaries in Argentina, Peru, Brazil, Venezuela and Australia lost money for the nine months, "reflecting generally poor economic conditions, with a high rate of inflation and unrecovered costs in some countries.'

had adjusted operating losses during the first nine months of $16.3 million. The actual loss was $32.6 million; but the lower number takes into account an agreement between Chrysler and the British government. Under that agreement, the automaker will receive a government grant covering half of any operating losses this year up to a maximum of 10 million pounds (about $17.5 million at current exchange rates), payable at the end of the Chrysler's market share through Oct. 15.4 percent in the comparable period last year. GM during the same time rose from 55.1 percent to 56.4 percent.

Chrysler, which has traditionally been a big-car company, has shifted its thinking to mid-sized and smaller cars. It has dropped most of its large models and will introduce two domestically built subcompacts, the Dodge Omni and Plymouth Horizon, this winter. Retooling plants for the two new small cars was expected to figure significantly in costs this quarter, analysts said intermediate cars, and Ford have continued to gain in market share so far this year, while Chrysler and AMC have dec-lined. Ford holds 27.8 percent of the domestic market in the latest figures released Tuesday.

For the year so far, Chrysler's U.S. sales are down nearly 5 percent from the period in 1976. Sales this year of 1,016,494 through Oct. 20 compared with 1,072,170 for the same time in 1976.

GM's year-to-date sales through mid-October stand at 4,182,582, up nearly 10

Federal Reserve Chief Burns, Carter Fighting Economics Battle That is, if the two battlers don't call off

By JOHN CUNNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — They're not yet shouting like Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier, but Arthur Burns and President Jimmy Carter are leading up to the best heavyweight fight since those two boxers met.

Carter threw the first dart last week when in effect he warned the Federal Reserve, of which Burns is chairman, to refrain from needlessly raising interest rates and hurting the economy.

Burns replied Tuesday in Spokane, Wash., when he told an audience that the economy's poor performance is a consequence not so much of his monetary leadership as that of the President's poor economic generalship.

Neither of the two darts carried their messages explicitly. The words were couched in the language of domestic diplomacy, but they were on target and they stung as badly as a punch in the

This is a class confrontation whose meaning cannot be minimized. It is more than a battle between monetarists and fiscalists as to who effects the biggest economic changes. It is a battle of philosophies.

Burns has always represented what is usually called a conservative viewpoint. He abhors federal deficits. He believes the nation's greatest enemy is inflation. He believes that free enterprise is the

President Carter has stated his agreement with those beliefs, but in Burns' view, and in the views of many others, he has contradicted himself in practice, and

Analysis

Burns seems to feel that therein lies the problem with the economy.

Burns' response to Carter's challenge was centered on the importance, the need - in fact, it could be said, or the absolute necessity of — corporate profits. Without profits, he said in effect, Carter could make no headway.

He defended the independence of the Fed, the nation's central bank, and he demonstrated that independence by saying he would go right ahead if necessary with a tighter monetary policy - money supply and its cost - that his board attempts to control.

But he went far beyond a defense of monetary policy when he criticized the uncertainty over energy policy, environmental codes, taxes, government regulation and dedication to fighting inflation. Doubt was eroding confidence, he sug-

Burns drew in some powerful allies from the business world who have been complaining about the same thing, arguing that it is foolhardy for them to spend when they don't know what the future

This community of interest, which includes banking and heavy industry, is in a quiet fury over what it feels is a lack of leadership from Washington, as well as wasteful intrusion from its bureaucrats.

Given some assurance, it has been saying, and provided with assurance also that Washington will keep out of its affairs at least until it can gather momentum, it can raise production, produce jobs and pay its taxes.

But Burns also has many, many critics. A huge school of thought which has many squabbles within itself is in agreement that the blame for the current economic malaise belongs to Burns and bankers and big business.

Council Delays Decision On Fuel Costs

Avalanche-Journal Staff

After a public hearing that yielded no citizen comment and a lengthy wrangle that produced differing opinions, the Lubbock City Council Thursday deferred until Nov. 10 further discussion on whether to modify automatic fuel cost pass-throughs.

Although she went along with what she calls the "procrastination," Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, who initiated the push for revamping pass-through reviews, warned her colleagues she intends to nag them until changes are made.

When it discusses the matter again in an informal work session, the council will consider options to make sure cost adjustments passed on to electricity and natural gas consumers are justified, establishing industrial gas rates and hiring

Mrs. Jordan suggested the possibility of setting industrial rates and Alan Henry proposed a rate analyst. Currently, Pioneer Natural Gas Co. (PNG) negotiates individual contracts with large industrial users such as Lubbock Power and Light

City staffer Ervin Looney of the finance department, also serves as parttime rate analyst. Henry suggested a fulltime analyst with no other responsibilities could keep closer tabs on gas and electric companies' rates and passthroughs.

Looney supported Mrs. Jordan's push for further review of pass-throughs, saving that he would like a "real good examination" of the companies' figures.

Speaking of PNG, Looney said, "Three years ago I was of the opinion that the

He recommended the city review the pass-through figures monthly and, if it finds the adjustment isn't justified, order the company to reimburse customers.

The "account and refund" proposal seemed to find favor with the council. It probably will be discussed further at the work session, as will Mrs. Jordan's original proposal that the automatic feature of pass-throughs be suspended and cost adjustments frozen at their current level. Each utility company wanting to increase its' pass-through then would have to apply to the council for a rate change and justify it.

Mrs. Jordan repeatedly assured other council members she is open to other suggestions for closer monitoring of the Only natural gas pass-throughs were discussed by the council Thursday. No citizens volunteered opinions during the public hearing, but PNG senior vice president M. D. LaGrone asked the council not to suspend the automatic pass-

"It would be very costly for us to file each month." he admitted, but the company would do it.

Mrs. Jordan said she had called for a change because the city has no adequate review of the pass-through and would not know if it is justified each month.

"In the current scheme of things, we're not having any type of in-depth justifica-tion," she said, adding many citizens have questioned her about the monthly

LaGrone answered that the city receives a monthly notification and annual audit report and that these should suffice. If they don't, he added, the city is welcome to do more investigation.

"I think you've done a marvelous job

Although the gas company was the only utility that spoke at the meeting, both LP &L and Southwestern Public Service

If there is any greater panic than grips a woman than when they open up a new register at the check-out line, I don't know what it is.

I have seen sweet little old ladies drive their carts over the bodies of small children, plow through gum displays, and suffer spark burns from cart-to-cart combat in an effort to get there first.

Last Friday, I was third in a check-out line when one of the stock opened a new register. Before I could back up my cart, a woman in a green warm-up suit, cut me off at the breath

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: We've been married for 14 months and already I've got big problems. My wife swears she loves me as much as she ever did, but what am I supposed to think when she tells me she wants twin beds?

We're moving from a furnished apartment to a bungalow and have started shopping for furniture. That's when she said she wanted twin beds.

Before we were married we agreed on a double bed, and she always seemed perfectly satisfied with it.

I have argued all I can. She insists we will both sleep better in twin beds. Maybe she will, but I won't.

Dear Hurt: If she swears she still loves you, what do you want, an affidavit? Remember, you agreed on a double bed before you were married, so you can't blame her for not knowing your sleeping habits. Maybe you snore, kick in your sleep or hog the blankets. Quit arguing. He says I am the woman he has been looking for all his life and he isn't going to lose me. He has to know where I am every minute, and he calls me six or seven times a day. If I go out during the day, he cross-examines me about where I went and who I saw.

He is a local truck driver, so he is home every night and all day Sunday. He won't go to church (he is "afraid" of religion) and he won't let me go alone. When I be-

Today we take the excess calories and the complexity - out of a French classic: Fillet of Sole "a la Bonne Femme." The French phrase means 'good wife' or the way a 'good wife' cooks it. We'll be more liberated and translate it to mean the way a "good cook" cooks it. And our definition of a 'good cook'' (or "good wife," "good husband" or "good friend") is one who is considerate of calories and cholesterol.

Most recipes for this dish involve lots of added fat...and a sinkful of dirty dishes. Our one-pan technique is so much sim-

A young bridge player, David Green-wald, has developed a new pack of play-ing cards, called "Treffles." The 40-card pack, in which each card resembles a tile in Dominoes except that there are three panels, can be used for at least six different games, one of which is a trump game which resembles bridge. Complete with instructions, the cards can be obtained from Games & Names, 6 Bluff Point, Westport, Conn., for $2.95.

Greenwald held the East cards when this hand was dealt at rubber bridge. South's weak two-bid in spades was rather eccentric. West showed his diamonds but North brushed aside this minor annoyance by leaping to Blackwood. He intended bidding a small slam if his partner showed an ace, but had to be content with five spades when South West led the ace of diamonds, and an unthinking East would discard first and then consider what could be done about defeating the contract. Fortunately for the defense, Greenwald took time out to study the hand before playing to the first

only one way to accomplish that - East had to commit the "cardinal sin" of ruffing his partner's ace of diamonds! Next, East had to make sure that his partner cashed the ace of hearts after ruffing a club. To impress the urge this on partner, East shifted to the of clubs - a suit preference signal asking for a return of the higher-ranking side suit. West ruffed the club and dutifully cashed the ace of hearts to complete a well-reasoned defense.

Christmas Stocking Sets Festive Mood

The "Granny Square" Stocking pictured at right uses a traditional boot shape of green and white yarn that will get you into the festive mood of an old-fashioned Christmas even before you hang it proudly from the mantelpiece. And this project comes with some built-in versatility. You can either knit or crochet your stocking — whatever suits you best.

Using a pair of Size 8 needles ar a Size F crochet hook, you should gauge 15 squares to a 4" size. To assemble the stocking the squares are sewn together from the right side in a white yarn overhand stitch, sewing through the back loops only. Whimsical trimmings are easy to applique into place, and the cuff of your stocking can be personalized in lovely cross-stitch for a final touch as bright as the holidays.

Hanging stockings by the chimney is a Christmas custom with an especially interesting origin. Saint Nicholas was a bishop in Asia Minor during the 4th century. When he heard that a poor man intended to sell his daughters into slavery because he could not afford to pay their doweries, Saint Nick came to their rescue with a gift of gold ingots.

To make the donation anonymously, the gold was tossed down the chimney, and accidently fell into a stocking hanging over the hearth to dry. And that just goes to prove that there's often more behind our Christmas celebration than we may know —even when it comes to the trinkets and small gifts lucky children wake on Christmas morning to find in their stockings.

For those who don't have the time to figure out their own knitting or crocheting pattern, "Granny Square" Stocking is available in a kit containing acrylic yarn for the stocking and for personalizing, felt, sequins, beads and ribbon for applique trims, an embroidery needle, and easy-to-follow instructions.

Order "Granny Square" Stocking No. 60479 for $4.99 plus 95 cents postage and handling.

Groups Started Early Industry

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Religious communes have always been faced with the problem of money for survival. The 19th century saw hundreds of communes formed in the United States. Several became economically successful force and the community successful force and the same seconomically successful force and the same seconomically successful force and the same seconomical seconomi

The Oneida community in New York state wove silk, sold farm products, made steel traps, and later made silver-plated wares.

The Shakers were known for their furniture, medicines, and flower and garden seeds which were offered to outsiders. The Amana colonies had farms, shops and mills that sold their goods to the

The German settlers at Zoar, Ohio, founded a group headed by Jacob Bimilier. He was a business man and the Zoar community prospered by selling farm products, minerals, and opening a general store for non-members. They hired outside craftsmen who had trades. They operated a printing company, an iron foundry, woolen mill, and pottery, tinsmithing, wagonmaking, watchraaking factories. Woodturners who made spinning wheels, and furniture makers also worked at the settlement and sold to out-

The furniture of Zoar was based on 18th-century European styles as well as 19th-century Victorian piaces. Most of their furniture was made from solid-wood with large expanses of plain wooden surfaces. Also, they used painted finishes that resembled red or gray-blue wood grain.

Q. Can you tell me snything about an 19th-century tenhand called a "whistling tenhand?" Mine in solid affect, it is helltearized from Landon in 1782. It has an Sshaped bundle and a heart-shaped thumb piece. We don't know why it is called a "whistling tenhand."

A. Look on the handle of the tankard just under the thumbpiece. Part of the handle is not attached to the tankard. There should be a small hole or slit. If you blow across the slit, the hollow handle will make a whistling sound. This was an 18th-century idea. When the tankard was empty and you wanted more to drink, you could "whistle up a serving wench."

Q. My small chine figure has a slit in the top to hold a place of paper. The dealor east it was a "mean holder." Since we swo a restourant, I thought it would be interesting to form a collection of these. Were they common?

A. There are several kinds of menuholders still being made. Some are made to hold a menu or piece eard of paper.
Some are glased porcelain that are used like small blackboards. The meau holder was in greatest demaind during th 1900-1900 period. Many kinds were made by Enlish and Continental porcelain factories. Small figures of animals, flowers, della, and other suitable holders were made. Glass and silver examples also were popular.

Writer Lists Benefits Of Custom Photo Labs

By IRVING DESPOR Associated Press Writer

It always has been my feeling that photo fans who are familiar with or do their own darkroom work get an extra measure of pleasure and satisfaction out of their photography. At the same time, there is a valid argument for many serious amateur and freelance photographers to have their darkroom work done by a reputable custom lab.

A photographer who finds creative joy in working with films and prints not only gains satisfaction, but some photographic knowledge. It can be a learning experience as you see whether your exposures are good or somewhat under-or overexposed. You learn to "read" the negatives, and they become a guide for future shooting.

However, other photographers find that darkroom work becomes drudgery. To them, the creativity involved in processing and printing does not make up for the chores in mixing solutions, washing trays and cleaning up for each darkroom session. They can learn to "read" negatives by studying the results from a lab.

Then there's the matter of costs. It certainly costs much less to process and print your own pictures — once you have set up a darkroom.

That's the catch, say the proponents for custom lab work — the cost of setting up the darkroom. You don't save as much as you think if you count in the initial cost of the equipment: enlarger, dryer, sinks, trays, tanks, chemicals, accessories and proper plumbing and temperature controls. And, to be realistic, you also should

There's also the matter of expertise.

Can the average photographer do as good a job as a professional lab technician in processing films and making enlargements? Generally, no, although there always are serious hobbyists who are as expert as the most proficient pros.

part as the most proficient pros.

Custom labs process films by inspection, a technique that most hobbyists do not work with. Inspection can save films when the photographer is uncertain of or has miscalculated the correct exposure. Sometimes inspection reveals that part of a roll of film has to be cut off and processed separately. Sometimes some of the negatives have to be reduced or intensi-

In custom labs, expert printers know and work with different paper surfaces and adapt different types of printing: high-key, low-key, self-focus or ultrasharp, to the specific type of image being printed. They are able to burn in and quire it without making it apparent in the finished print. They know how to make an exhibition-type print and that there is a difference in the tonal quality of a print for newspaper reproduction and one intended for magnitude.

Custom labs adjust their printing to individual preferences when necessary. Henri Cartier-Bresson, for instance, insists that none of the prints from his negatives be cropped. Normally, 35mm negatives require cropping to fill an 8 x 10inch print.

Ralph Baum, founder of Modernage Labs in New York City, permitted photographers to work with the lab's printers on their first orders. The technicians became familiar with the photographer's feelings about cropping and tonal quality, and it became standard for all his future work.

There are some things a custom lab can do which hobbyists might find impossible — such as making mural-sized prints for exhibitions or to decorate a wall. The home darkroom isn't likely to have the equipment, facilities or paper large enough to tackle such a project.

A custom lab also can provide services while a photographer is on an extended trip in this country or abroad. Film can be mailed to the lab at the very start to check camera and exposures. If there are any problems, it can be caught while it can be corrected at the scene of shooting. If, the photographer is on an assignment, the custom lab can act as his office, making and mailing prints as directed. It processes and files his negatives as they come in and can prevent a massive pileup of processing and printing all at once.

If the idea of finding a reputable custom lab sounds advantageous, amateur and freelance photographers might take a few preliminary steps in that direction. They could start by having a lab make some enlargements while they continue to process and contact print their own work.

For best handling, 35mm films usually are cut in strips of five frames, and 120 films are cut in strips of three frames. Always include a contact sheet with negatives. Use a yellow or red china-marking pencil to mark your cropping and printing instructions on the contact set of prints. Never mark or attach paper clips to negatives.

Negatives and prints should be protected with cardboard backing larger in size so there are no frayed edges. If your instructions are clear and the lab is professional, the arrangement might free you for more creative shooting.

When George Eastman said. "You press the button: we do the rest," he might have had custom labs in mind long before they existed.

STAMP PRESS

The sheet format for the 1976 Currier Christmas stamps produced on the new combination gravure-intaglio press differs markedly from the standard fourpane layout produced by the conventional gravure press. There is a vertical strip of selvage only on the left or right side of each sheet, and the five plate numbers move progressively up and down the selvage on a pane-to-pane basis as a result of each full rotation of the gravure cylinders.

Carter Opposed To Hindering Imports Of Steel

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's special trade representative said Thursday that the Carter administration will fight protectionist measures advocated to help the ailing steel industry.

Tomorrow's Horoscope Carter said at the start of today's meeting, while reporters and photographers were present, that in his efforts to help the steel industry he wanted to "maintain the competitive nature of the free

He apparently was referring to his policy of avoiding what he considers protectionist trade practices.

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., later said Carter told the group he will propose that the steel industry be allowed tax write-offs for pollution-control equipment required under clean air and water laws.

Strauss said Carter promised the members of Congress that the nation's laws against dumping products - selling goods made overseas at below production costs in the United States - would

Sen., Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., said that simply enforcing the anti-dumping laws was insufficient and called for negotiated agreements with exporting countries to limit foreign steel products sold in the United States.

Such pacts, known as orderly marketing agreements, have been negotiated for imports of shoes, color televisions and mushrooms, among other products.

"I very strongly feel Carter is going to preside over the demise of the steel industry," Schweiker said. "We give out three bandaids while the patient is bleeding to death."

Production To Resume At Oil

TAFT, Calif. (AP) - An oil well that exploded and burst into flames, killing three workers, is expected to be producing again in "a few days."

The flaming 100-foot gusher of oil was extinguished Thursday with the help of plastic explosives triggered by famed oil well firefighter Red Adair.

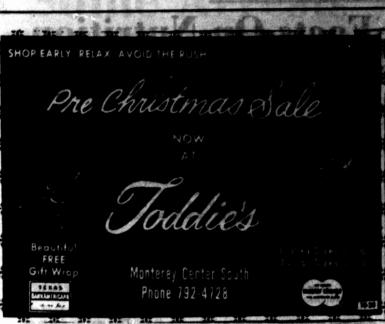

The explosives, gingerly placed in brackets Adair had bolted to the well, cut off enough oxygen to the fire so local firefighters could douse the final flames.

Adair, who has been called upon to snuff numerous oil well fires, returned to Houston without talking to reporters. His fee was not disclosed, but Cmdr. Roger Martin, head of the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve, said the cost was

The fire started with an explosion deep underground Tuesday afternoon. A cause has not been determined.

The reserve was opened to domestic production last year. Elk Hills is the nation's largest oil reserve outside Alaska.

The foreword is written by a medical doctor.

My wife Gerry who does the cooking in our family finds it fascinating. It tells how best to buy, store, cook and get the most out of your food. It shows how to plan a high or low calorie, protein or carbohydrate diet. It lists 3,000 fresh, fros-en, canned foods and beverages displayed on supermarket shelves by brand

It explains which foods are high in protein but low in calories; which low-calorie snacks are also high in carbohydrate for speedy and all-natural energy; how to plan a reducing diet with brand-name foods that do not always list nutritional data on their labels; the difference between "high" and "low" carbohydrate counts in fresh and processed foods; how to read labels; and much more.

Also included are official U.S. government recommendations for the need for protein, calories and carbohydrate and the latest findings on the importance of these three nutrients, and the official guidelines for use in daily eating for good health. Gerry has her own special shelf in our pantry for her recipe books, house hold hints, etc., but she plans on keeping this particular book in the kitchen within easy reach.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) - When Gillette Children's Hospital was founded in 1897 with funds appropriated for the free care of handicapped children, Minnesota became the first state in the nation to work with crippled children.

With each passing year the work has ecome more refined. Now the hospital is a leader in the development of braces called orthoges that help support the limbs and trunks of handicapped youngs-

Doctors and engineers draw on modern technology to build strong but light braces to help children with a broad range of problems.

For many years, for example, a heavy num and leather brace was mounted to the bottom of the shoe of a handicapped child. Now, 18 of 20 braces made for lower limbs at Gillette are constructed in a polypropylene shell design.

Marty Carlson, an aeronautical engineer at the hospital's orthotics and prosthetics laboratory, explained this design is much more weight efficient, and can provide a weight saving of 12 ounces for a six-year-old.

"For a crippled child to behave like a normal child," Carlson said, "he has to behave like an athlete, so too much weight sticks him further in the hole."

The lighter brace also makes for a more normal appearance because it fits into a shoe and the child can wear the same kind of footgear the other kids are wear-

"A handicapped child is conscious of his looks," Carlson said, "and the more normal his appearance, the healthier he

"Crippled children also are susceptible to deformities as they grow, and in order to prevent these deformities in the ankle and foot, you need an extremely good fit. You can't get that in a shoe, but you can in a precisely molded shell."

Other innovative braces being produced at Gillette include a two-piece body jacket that can be used after spinal surgery in place of a plaster cast. This iacket also is useful for paralytic disorry in place of a plaster cast. This

The brace is made of polypropylene, weighs about four pounds, and unlike the plaster cast, can be removed for baths or

Positioning systems for cerebral palsy and advanced muscular dystrophy pa-tients who don't have the strength to sit in a good posture have come under the scrutiny of the orthotics laboratory, re-sulting in development of the sitting support orthosis. This polypropylene shell is made to conform to the child.

"For years people have been uphoister-ng chairs to buttress such a handicapped hild," Carlson said, "but the homemade forts didn't control the pelvis and did ot conform precisely enough to body

New State Law Erases Records Of Some

By ROBERT HEARD

AUSTIN (AP) - A new law allows a person arrested but not prosecuted to blot out all record of that arrest, and a U.S. border patrolman who got into an argument in a Brownsville bar used that legal eraser two weeks after it became

The law, which went into effect Aug. 29. says the patrolman can deny the arrest ever occurred and even deny the existence of a court order to obliterate the arrest record.

News media reported the arrest before a court ordered the record expunged.

Subsequent reporting of the arrest seemingly could result in a libel suit, and publishers and broadcasters would face the problem of proving the arrest when no record remains

W

This could be proved through the arresting officer or witnesses at the bar, of course, but after a year or so they might have moved and no longer be available.

"The law possibly could be abused that way," says Rep. Ed Watson, D-Deer Park, who sponsored the bill the last three sessions of the Legislature. "It wasn't intended that way. "I hope it isn't used that way. It wasn't meant to shield criminals."

Watson said he got the idea while serving on a grand jury. In a clear case of mistaken identity, a young man had been ar-rested, and even though the grand jury no-billed him, that arrest stayed on his

Many other states have laws authorizing expunction of arrest records. That kind of legislation usually is supported by civil libertarian groups such as the American Civil Liberties Union.

Young people who might have one stick of pot, they'd be ruined for life. It'd be on their record." Watson says. Some would go further and authorize expunction even after an indictment and trial if the defendant is found innocent. Watson says law enforcement officers have told him an arrest record is valuable to them. For example, if they have a narcotics suspect, it helps to know he has previously been arrested for theft. Many addicts pay for their habit that way.

But Watson says this is precisely the kind of prejudgment that ought to be avoided — where officers learn of an arrest record and say, "Ah, ha! This guy must be guilty.

Watson met one main objection by law enforcement people by requiring a state district court hearing before an arrest record may be expunged.

State District Judge Tom Blackwell of Austin, who has handled two such proceedings, says it is a good law.

About the possibility the border patrolman could recover in a libel suit, Blackwell said. "I don't think he'd have any luck with that. Expunging the record is one thing, but freedom of the press is something else. I don't think there's that much problem with it."

Blackwell said the law is needed in cases where officers round up 20 people in a raid, but press charges on only two. The other 18 ought to have the right to clean up their record, he said.

There may be cases where it would don't think the libel laws will protect the officer. I think the judge and the jury would give him the horse laugh," Blackwell said.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Eight postage stamps, missing since World War II and estimated to be worth half a million dollars, have turned up in an old footlocker in a suburban Philadelphia attic. U.S. Customs Service agents here said Thursday that an ex-Army officer, whom they refused to identify, held the stamps for over three decades, and turned them in to be given to the West German government for a $50,000 reward. The stamps, four from Hawaii, two from British Guiana and two from the despair because of woolly worm and skunk cabbage predictions for another long, cold winter

A Michigan State University wildlife specialist says animal lore can be helpful in long-term weather forecasting, but it also can be stretched too far.

"According to one bit of folklore, for example, you can tell how severe the winter will be by the thickness of the fur on animals like squirrels, beaver, foxes and rabbits," said specialist Glenn Dud-

True, the fur on these animals is thicker in some years than in others. But the thickness of fur depends on the availability of food and the number of animals to consume it.

"Lots of food and few animals make for well-fed animals with thick coats. A food scarcity or a larger population than an area can support means animals will be poorly fed and have thin coats."

Dudderar said similar long-term weather barometers used by folklorists, such as the number of nuts stored by squirrels or the height at which migrating geese fly, are based on circumstances independent

Geese migrations are in response to current and soon-to-come weather. Dudderar said — and therein lies an area in which animal lore can be put to use more accurately

The belief that a storm is coming when swallows fly near the ground is quite true, he said. Before a storm, the wind usually drops, humidity goes up and the insects the birds feed on are close to the ground. So you're likely to find swallows Dudderar said some birds will sing before a rain. No one knows why for certain, but it could be in response to changes in barometric pressure or temperature or perhaps to decreasing light.

"If you want to know what the temperature is and you can hear a cricket chirping, count the chirps," he said. "The number of chirps in 15 seconds plus 40 should give you the temperature within a degree.

And then there are the widely recognized heralds of changing seasons, such as the bird migrations signaling autumn

With a little sensitivity and some time spent observing wildlife, you can discover a great many relationships between animal behavior, weather and the changing seasons," Dudderar said.

You can use this knowledge to protect your crops or home from wildlife, improve your hunting or birdwatching, and anticipate the weather soon to come

But don't get carried away and credit the critters with some supernatural ability to predict long-range weather trends "cause it just isn't there.

er says farmers attempting to reduce the risks of bad weather can be expected to make changes in agricultural tillage systems in the future.

William Burrows, a senior scientist for the Deere & Co. technical center at Moline, Ill., told a climate and agricultural technology seminar at the University of Missouri this week that tillage changes already have begun and will increase with complex weather and crop prob-

Wider extremes in weather conditions in future years along with rising energy costs and other variables such as pollution may affect the ways farmers can operate. Burrows said.

"For example, in the past if excess precipitation produced erosion, it was clear that the farmer had the option of ignoring the erosion and dealing with the resulting problem with increased fertilizer use or in some other way," Burrows said.

"That is no longer true Water quality standards and non-point source pollution requirements have removed this option.'

Burrows said flexibility in the tillage system will provide farmers with hedges against weather hazards.

Burrows suggested that plant breeders who have worked towards plants which cun tolerate more dry conditions or low temperatures should now look toward breeding varieties of crops more tolerant to soils in reduced tillage

The seminar also discussed the impact of weather on plant pests.

Jack Wallin, a plant pathologist at the University of Missouri, said increasing extremes in weather conditions could make pest problems more unpredictable.

Wallin said meteorologists and other scientists "perhaps see weather and climate changes in the future that may make obsolete the art or science of plant pest management as we know it today.

"Perhaps recommending today's practical and usable measures of pest management to reduce food losses to pests will be inadequate in the future," he said. "Our ability to solve a new problem, related strictly to climatic change and cou-

A Department of Agriculture researcher offered optimism. T.W. Edminster, administrator for the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, said many strategists believe the nation can deal with fluctuating levels of crop production if the timing, location and severity of those changes can be forecast

Ruling May Open Schools To Children Of Aliens

AUSTIN (UPI) - Hundreds of children of illegal aliens may receive free public education because of a ruling by the state's education commissioner.

M.L. Brockette Thursday said all alien children who cannot be deported must be admitted to the state's schools free of Brockette issued the ruling in ordering Austin public schools to admit three 5-year-old children of Mexican aliens. In 1975 the legislature amended the Education gode to deny free education to aliens unless they can show they were legally admitted to the United States. Under the amendment, illegal aliens are required to pay $250 a month tuition. Austin school officials claimed the amendment made Rosa Isela Martinez. Joel Rebollar Jr. and Jose Luis Versalles Jr. ineligible for free public education.

Rebollar and Versalles crossed the border illegally with their parents in 1972 and 1974. The girl entered the country with her parents in 1973 under a "local crossing" card that expired three days

Fort Worth officials estimated 100 of the 300 aliens they refused to admit in

However, U.S. Immigration officials are barred from deporting the children and their families because of a temporary injunction issued by an Illinois federal court in the Silva V. Levy case challenging the constitutionality of immigration

"As a result of this federal court order. the children and their parents are now 'legally within' the United States and are entitled to free admission to the public schools," Brockette said

Brockette said the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization office in San Antonio has counted 803 persons protected from deportation by so-called "Silva letters."

In order to qualify for a "Silva letter" an immigrant must have entered the U.S. before March 11. 1977, and must hold a 'priority date" for issuance of an immigrant visa between July 1, 1968, and Dec. Brockette's decision does not affect the

Pan Am Celebrating Golden Anniversary

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - 50 years ago today the United States got its first

By jet-age standards it wasn't much a newborn company called Pan American Airways with just two little Fokker F-7 trimotors flying mail, and later passengers, on a 90-mile route between Key West, Fla., and Havana.

But at a time when Lindbergh had just flown the Atlantic and U.S. aviation was still in its infancy, that first scheduled flight to Havana Oct. 28, 1927, was a ma-

The Key West Citizen reported the flight in detail, noting that several hundred persons turned out to see the early-morning take-oif from a dirt airstrip of "the big Fokker" carrying "not far from 13,000 letters in 7 mail bags, totaling 772 pounds in weight.

Pan Am grew from that small start to regular flights throughout Latin America in 1930, across the Pacific in 1935, over the Atlantic in 1939 and circling the globe

Along the way the airline - for 15 years America's only international carner - pioneered the routes and flight techniques that now are the standard of he world airline industry.

Today, to celebrate its own 50th birthday and the golden anniversary of U.S. international aviation, Pan Am is trying to establish another aviation first — a

On Escape Charge

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Evening, October 28, 1977-8-11

WARTBURG, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, who said his June prison break was the only way to win a new trial for the murder of Martin Luther King Jr., has been convicted for that escape.

Ray - serving a 99-year term after pleading guilty to killing the civil rights leader in April 1968 - joined six other inmates in climbing over the walls of Brushy Mountain Penitentiary on June

A jury of nine men and three women returned the guilty verdict in the escape case Thursday after three hours of deliberation in the 12-hour trial. The jurors sentenced Ray to an additional one to two years in prison. Ray's attorneys said they will seek a new trial on the escape

Mark Lane, Ray's chief attorney, had asked the jury, if it found his client guilty, to impose a one-day sentence and 'send a message to Washington" that "the sleeping giant of justice has at last begun to rise

Ray, 49, pleaded guilty on March 10, 1969, to first-degree murder in King's death. Three days later he tried to withthe way to the U.S. Supreme Court -

Lane, who co-authored a book arguing that a conspiracy was involved in the King assassination, said he will begin work today on another attempt to win a new murder trial for his client.

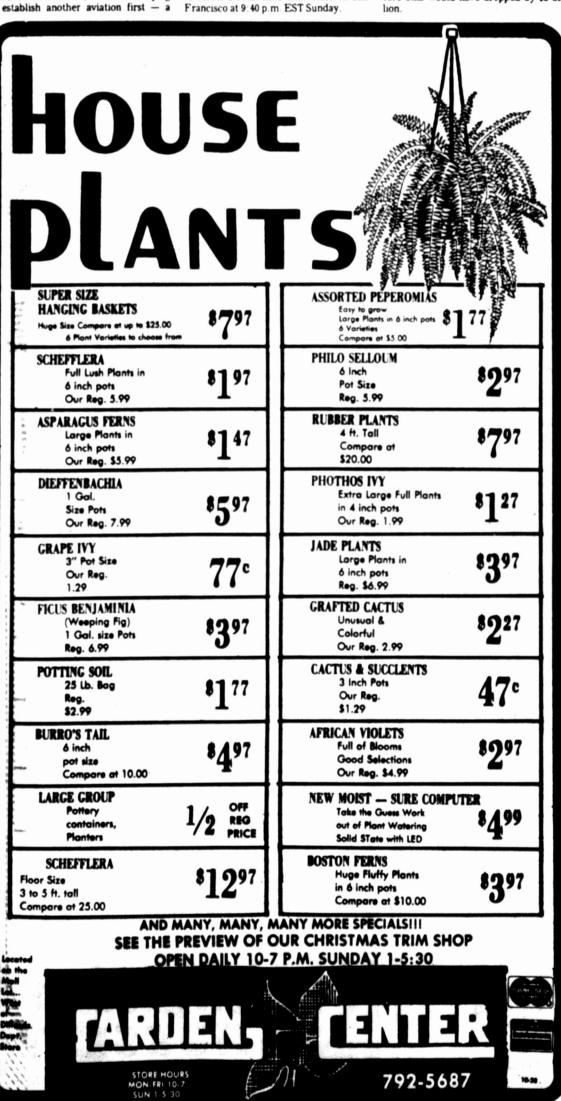

Ray, the only defense witness in Thursday's trial, testified his escape was aimed at making a deal with U.S. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to turn himself in later in exchange for a new murder trial. Asked by Lane what he did on June 10, Ray said, "I escaped from the Petros prison." The prison is located at Petros, about 10 miles east of Wartburg and 40 miles west of Knoxville.

Lane then asked Ray, sitting on the stand with his legs crossed and hands folded on the lap of his paint-stained blue jeans, why he escaped.

Ray replied: "It was my intention after was out a couple of months to make some arrangement with the attorney general, Griffen Bell, for a new trial in the

Maine Family Noted For Making Kraut

By JON HALVORSEN WALDOBORO, Maine (AP)

"Kraut's ready." Around here, that terse notice printed in a couple of newspapers can mean only one thing. The famous Morse sauerkraut, sold throughout the country, is in production yet another year.

On Saturdays, motorists line the road past the Morse farm in nearby North Waldoboro to buy buckets of the stuff from the small, cinder-block building where the sauerkraut has been "working" for seven to 10 days in big barrels.

For more than 60 years, the Morse family has been making sauerkraut in the Waldoboro area, which was settled by German immigrants. Virgil Morse Sr. started the business in the early 1900s, making sauerkraut only for his own family until he was asked to "cut in a barrel" for a local store.

When he died in 1963, he was succeeded as head of the business by his son Virgil Jr., and when Virgil Jr. died in 1969, his widow Ethelyn took over.

The Morse operation always has been a family business on a modest scale — only three full-time workers assist Mrs. Morse - but it's a legend among sauerkraut lov-

Mrs. Morse, 62, a warm, outgoing woman, sells her kraut to several Maine supermarkets and ships it to customers in nearly every state.

"Her product is the real product," says Joe Ricci, general manager of Jacob Wirth's, the oldest German restaurant in Boston, which has ordered tons of Morse kraut for many years. "It has taste, texture and everything else," he adds, and kraut."

mush up."

Sauerkraut is simply chopped cabbage allowed to ferment, or "work," in a brine of its own juice with salt added. The Morse recipe includes sugar, but the exact mixture of salt and sugar and any other ingredients has remained a family se-

Mrs. Morse says she plants Penn State or Danish Baldhead cabbage in the spring - "a hard, firm, white winter cabbage." They're planted far apart so they grow big - 15 to 20 pounds each - and after "an awful lot of tender, loving care," the cabbages are harvested in the fall and stored in cellars. From about eight acres of cabbage planted this year, Mrs. Morse expects to produce about 60 tons of

A fresh batch is turned out each week from late September through March. The shredded cabbage is compressed into oak barrels, the secret mixture is added and the lids are weighted down with stones. After seven to 10 days, foam has worked its way out of the holes of the lids and the kraut is ready.

Mrs. Morse delivers the kraut to stores in her pickup truck and ships it in wooden buckets or plastic pails to out-of-state customers. The minimum order is 15 pounds at 40 cents a pound plus the cost of the container and shipping.

'You can keep it in your refrigerator in glass jars. Or it can be frozen," she says. "We make a few more tons each year," she says. "But you know, you can just be so good, make so much. I'd rather make a little good kraut than a lot of poor

The award was given to both men at the conclusion of the annual youth ministers workshop, sponsored by the Broad-way Church of Christ and held in conjunction with LCC's 21st annual Bible Lectureship Series.

In making the presentation, John Paul Blankenship, youth minister of the Broadway Church of Christ, recognized the two for "outstanding service and dedecation to the Lord

ter. He earned his bachelor's degree from Harding College and his master's degree from Oklahoma State University. He also has worked for churches in Louisiana and New Mexico.

The "Youth Minister of the Year" award was originated in 1969 by Lubbock Christian College as a means of calling attention to the vital work of youth ministers across the nation and of recognizing those efforts that were particularly note-

Since that time 12 youth ministers have been recognized. This year's presentation will be the last, according to John King,

But Krol told the Senate committee the canal treaties provide the United States 'an opportunity to project an image of strength which derives from the strongest dimension of our national heritage.'

This "strongest dimension" Krol said was "not our military might (but) the values and principles which is the foundation of our identity as a people.

Krol implicitly linked the aspirations of the United States 200 years ago with that of the Panamanian people today: "We are a nation born of the desire to be free from foreign domination; the concepts of liberty and self-determination are woven through the fabric of our history.

"In the past," he added, "we have stood for the principle of non-intervention by others in the Western Hemisphehre; today we are asked to manifest our commitment to the principle of nonintervention by an act of self-restraint and forebearance included in these treat-

'It was our view in 1975 and 1976, and it is our view today, that a new treaty which acknowledges in principle and in fact Panamanian sovereignty over its own territory is a requirement of justice and peace between our two nations,

Krol also said the treaty debate was of intense "symbolic significance."

The issue, he said, had pitted one of the smallest and one of the largest nations against each other and it was now possible to lay the conflict to rest "and in doing so to provide an example in world affairs of how states of very different political, economic and military power can deal with each other in terms of equality, dignity and mutual respect.'

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

I John 3:8-22, The Living Bible 8 But if you keep on sinning, it shows that you belong to Satan, who since he first began to sin has kept steadily at it. But the Son of God came to destroy these works of the devil. 9 The person who has been born into God's family does not make a practice of sinning, because now God's life is in him; so he can't keep on sinning, for this new life has been born into him and controls him-he has been born

10 So now we can tell who is a child of God and who belongs to Satan. Whoever is living a life of sin and doesn't love his brother shows that he is not in God's family:

11 For the message to us from the beginning has been that we should love one another.

12 We are not to be like Cain, who belonged to Satan and killed his brother. Why did he kill him? Because Cain had been doing wrong and he knew very well that his brother's life was better than his. 13 So don't be surprised; dear friends, if the world hates you.

14 If we love other Christians it proves that we have been delivered from hell and given eternal life. But a person who doesn't have love for others is headed for eternal death. 15 Anyone who hates his Christian brother is really a murderer at heart; and you know that no one wanting to murder has eternal life within. 16 We know what real love is from Christ's example in dying for us. And so we also ought to lay down our lives for our Christian brothers.

17 But if someone who is supposed to be a Christian has money enough to live well, and sees a brother in need, and won't help him-how can God's love be within 18 Little children, let us stop just saying we love people; let us really love them, and show it by our actions. 19 Then we will know for sure, by our actions. that we are on God's side, and our consciences will be clear, even when we stand before the Lord. 20 But if we have bad consciences and feel that we have done wrong, the Lord will surely feel that way about us even more,1 for He knows everything we do. 21 But, dearly loved friends, if our consciences are clear, we can come to the Lord with perfect assurance 22 And get whatever we ask for because we are obeying Him and doing the things that please Him.

Bill Boosting Social Security Taxes Wins Approval In House

By JEFFREY MILLS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would put an unprecedented tax bite on the 104 million Americans who have Social Security taxes withheld from their pay checks is heading to the Senate after winning House approval.

A Senate vote on a similar bill could come as early as next week.

On Thursday, the House passed, 275 to 146, its version of legislation increasing the tax for every worker covered by the program, with the heaviest impact falling on upper-income workers. Their employers also would pay more under the House

NCI Doubts Incorrect Decisions

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Ralph Nader's health researchers have released a list of breast cancer detection centers across the country where allegedly improper monitoring may have led to incorrect diagnoses and even needless surgery.

The National Cancer Institute immediately said it doubts as many incorrect decisions were made as had once been reported. And it said in many cases the women were told of the uncertainty of the diagnoses and allowed to decide if they wanted surgery.

The matter first came to light in September when a panel of experts reviewing breast cancer screening centers financed by the NCI and the American Cancer Society reported 64 women were sent from the centers to private hospitals or doctors who then made incorrect analyses of biopsies.

The women were told they had breast cancer even though they may not have had the disease. Reviewers said 58 women had surgery.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of the Health Research Group which is backed by Nader's Public Citizen, Inc., told the NCI Thursday it should require the centers to make a second review of all biopsies before surgery takes place.

The NCI said it has made another review of the cases in question and the panel which looked at them originally "may not have received consistently all the pathology slides used by the hospital pathologist in making his diagnosis."

It said when the entire tumor was removed during biopsy "tissue samples obtained following subsequent surgery contained no malignant tissue." It also said in a number of cases the original pathologist considered the case "borderline" and "consulted several other pathologists before treatment decisions were made.

"Often the woman was informed of the difficulty in making a pathological assessment, and she was involved in the decision to to ahead with surgery," the NCI added

The head of one of the hospitals named, Dr. Arthur J. Present, director of the breast cancer detection center at the University of Arizona at Tuscon said. 'there has been no instance in which a breast has been removed without a just cause and a definite finding of cancer

Tech Requests Media Award Nominations

Nominations for the Thomas Jefferson Award, recognizing public officials who have achieved distinction through the defense and preservation of news media freedom, will be accepted by the Texas Tech University mass communications department until Nov. 30.

Nominations may come from local, state or national press and broadcasting associations and any news medium or individual

Persons or groups interested in nominating a candidate must supply evidence of the nominee's interest in speech and press freedom and protection.

Representatives from the Texas news media associations, faculty of the Tech department of mass communications and its Advisory Committee membership will select the recipient.

The first Thomas Jefferson Award was presented to Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., of North Carolina, in 1973. Ervin is noted for his defense of the First Amendment, and is regarded by many as one of the finest constitutional authorities ever to serve in the U.S. Senate.

Gov. Edwin W. Edwards of Louisana was the award's recipient in 1974. While in office, Edwards transformed the treatment of media. He created a cooperative spirit among the state political offices and agencies and the Louisiana media

The 1975 recipient was Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin. Kastenmeier was named "the most articulate voice" in the U.S. House of Representatives in supporting legislation for a newsman's "shield law.

Texas attorney Leon Jaworski was chosen for the award last year. His defense of an independent press and his contention that a free press deters misconduct were evidenced by his role as special prosecutor in the Watergate case.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso of Connecticut, the 1977 recipient, is credited with passage and implementation of "sunshine" laws.

Carter Announces

Christmas Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) - Calling it "the logical thing...to do," President Carter says he and his family will forego Christmas at the White House and spend the holiday in Plains, Ga.

Carter, chatting with reporters, said he was looking forward to returning to his ometown where his family always has celebrated Christmas.

A decade from now, anyone earning $42,600 would pay over three times as much Social Security tax as is now withheld. The tax would go from $965 this year to $3,025 in 1987.

Someone earning $20,000 would pay $1,420, instead of $965. A worker with a salary of $10,000 would pay $710, up from Congress probably will enact hefty tax increases this year to keep the Social Security system from going broke. The system has amassed $5.6 billion in deficits

Because of population age shifts and such other factors as high unemployment, less money is being taken in by Social Security than it is paying out in

"We are concerned about keeping the system solvent and this bill will do it,' Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said after the House approved the bill produced by the ways and means committee, which he

Although some members complained about the major tax increase. most agreed that the financial crisis was severe enough to merit the drastic steps.

However, the House added two amendments that increased the tax rate beyond what the committee called for on wages earned by Social Security recipients, phasing out the current maximum of $3,000 on outside earnings by 1982.

Under current law, recipients lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they take in above

Elderly persons could therefore continue to receive a full salary while drawing full Social Security benefits.

The second amendment, approved earlier, continues an exemption for more than 6 million public employees and congressmen, who have separate retirement

The House did not consider any change in the benefits Social Security pays to 33 million people, including retired workers and their dependents or survivors, disabled workers and their dependents, and Medicare recipients.

The House-approved bill also would: -Allow recipients to continue receiving benefits even after marrying. Some elderly couples now live together without marrying because they would otherwise lose benefits.

ers would for the first time pay more than their employees.

Under the pending Senate bill, employ-

The Social Security tax is now 5.85 percent of wages, with workers earning $16.-

ready is scheduled to go up substantially and the bill would add additional increas-

Under the bill, the tax next year would be 6.05 percent on incomes of up to $19,-900. The maximum tax would be $1,204.

By 1982, the tax rate would be 6.65 percent on up to $30,000, or a maximum of $1,965. In 1987 the tax rate would be 7.1 percent on up to $42,600, or $3,025.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Britain's Prince Charles, whose two-week visit to the United States has been marked with pomp, circumstance and wit, is facing anti-British demonstrators as his American journey ends. He was visibly shaken at times by protests during his first day in San Francisco Thursday. But he managed to keep his composure when talking with reporters, remarking at one point on the good manners of the demonstrators.

Charles was to cross the Golden Gate Bridge today, while pro-Irish activists planned to dot his path with reminders of the conflict in Northern Ireland. Irish Republican Committee co-chairman John Maher, talking of protest activities, said the two days would be "full of surprises." There were no arrests during the first day of Prince Charles' visit. At the home of the British consul in the

Cook Inlet Drilling Rights Sell For More Than $400 Million

Department has sold the last suspected oil and gas deposits in nearby Cook Inlet for more than $400 million

Led by Marathon Oil Co. and Phillips Petroleum, the industry snapped up more than 500,000 offshore acres in the lower portion of the inlet south of here. Bids for drilling rights on the border of a long-active oil and gas field totaled $400,-385 207 40

Several companies submitted royalty bids that would allow the federal government to retain more than half of any production on selected tracts. Texas Eastern offered the highest royalty share - 63.4 per cent

A bid of $77 million by Marathon and a group of four smaller firms was the top offering on an individual tract in Thursday's sale, the second in 18 months on Alaska's outer continental shelf (OCS)

The sale was the first off the United States since a June auction of tracts in the Gulf of Mexico that netted the federal treasury a record $1.2 billion Cook Inlet, a 90-mile-long arm of water jutting into Southcentral Alaska from the Gulf of Alaska, has been producing oil and gas for more than a decade on leases sold by the State of Alaska. The sale covered an area to the south of the producing fields, and represented the last of what the Interior Department terms "frontier," or unexplored, areas in the inlet. Estimates of the resources involved range from 90 million to 2.6 billion barrels of oil, and from 600 billion to 3.3 trillion cubic feet of natural gas

Of the 135 tracts covering 768,580 acres offered by Interior. 91 were sold in an auction described by one top Interior official as generating "a pretty fair amount of competition and a preity fair return to the government. The royalty bidding system, first used in the June sale in the Gulf of Mexico, attracted offers on 30 of those 91 tracts. The action represented the most extensive use so far of what Interior officials have described as an experimental project designed to inject more competition into the national OCS leasing effort. The royalty bidding system is generally opposed by major oil companies. The tract goes to the firm offering the highest royalty percentage of oil and gas produced from the tract. Before production begins, the leaseholder pays a minimum royalty payment of $8 per hectare (2.4 acres). In addition, successful bidders on royalty tracts must pay a fixed cash bonus ranging in this sale from $62 per hec-

The method represents an effort to al low smaller firms to obtain leases without heavily draining their cash resources. as is often the case under the traditional bonus-bid system. That system turns the tracts over to the firm offering the largest up-front cash bonus. It was unclear immediately whether the goal of the royalty system was accom plished in the Thursday sale Manager Ed

Hoffman of Interior's Alaska OCS office said, however, it appeared there was 'pretty fair' competition among firms of all sizes OCS leases auctioned by Interior in the Gulf of Alaska brought in $572 million in April 1976. So far, a half dozen wells drilled in the gulf have not produced any significant discoveries of oil or gas. The gulf auction provoked a flurry of unsuccessful environmental lawsuits by the state and conservation groups concerned about the safety of drilling in the stormy gulf. A suit also has been filed in against the lower Cook Inlet sale by the village Native corportion of English Bay, area fishermen and environmentalists. But the plaintiffs made no effort to halt the auction, saying precedents indicated a ruling in their favor would void the sales. Gathered in an Archorage hotel overlooking Cook Inlet, i dustry officials bid briskly on only a few of the tracts.

Marathon and its partners, including Amerada Hess and Hamilton Brothers Oil Co., outbid Phillips Petroleum, $77 million to $55 million, on Tract No. 14. The next highest bid apparently was the $46.5 million offered by Phillips for Tract No. 128. The lowest apparent winning bid on a

Lubbock Jury Finds Woman Guilty Of Theft

A 23-year-old Lubbock woman was convicted Thursday of theft and assessed a three-year penitentiary term.

A jury in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th Dist. Court deliberated only 15 minutes before finding Erma Jean Ward, whose address was listed as 2602 E. 19th St. guilty of stealing clothing from a local department store Clinton assessed the three-year prison

The defendant had been accused of shoplifting clothing from a downtown department store on July 2, 1976. In response to questions from Asst.

James Dean testified he saw the defendant placing a pant suit in her purse about 3:30 p.m. Dean said he confronted the defendant and a companion outside the store. He said the two women flung some clothes at him and ran away on foot. The indictment alleged the defendant had stolen six pant suits and three coats. The defendant took the stand to deny any part in the alleged incident. The defense also presented testimony from relatives, who indicated they had been with the defendant around the time the offense allegedly occurred.

A jury had found the defendant guilty of the offense after a trial last December, but Clinton granted a motion for a new trial filed by defense attorney John O'Shea. O'Shea had successfully contended that the court's charge during the earlier trial should have contained a section on circumstantial evidence and an explanation of the law on parties. ASHKENAZIM Ashkenazim refers to German and

Sloan Finds Campbell Weakness: Passing

By CARTER CROMWELL Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

AUSTIN - Watching him in action or listening to others discuss him, one might suspect that Earl Campbell has no weaknesses as a football player. However, sharp-eyed Steve

"I'll go down on record as saying Campbell is a poor passer," the Texas Tech head coach said, noting that Campbell has thrown once this season and had that pass intercepted. "He doesn't spiral the ball real well."

After that, weaknesses are hard to find in Campbell. The 6-0, 220-pounder's size, speed, quickness and strength together make him possibly the best back in the nation, and none of this has escaped Sloan, as his Red Raiders prepare to battle Campbell and top-ranked Texas Saturday at 2 p.m. in Memorial Stadium

Campbell is expected to be a big factor in this important conferene game. Texas is 3-0 in league play and tied with Texas A&M for the SWC lead. Tech is 2-1 and knotted with Arkansas for second place. Another loss would virtually eliminate the Raiders from title consideration.

"Campbell is the thing about Texas that scares me the most," Sloan said. "He's a great player. We haven't tackled him yet. Once against Arkansas, about five Arkansas guys jumped on him, and the pile moved five yards before he came up for air.

The pile-uh, Campbell-has moved 899 yards this year for a 6.5-yard average per carry and 149.8 yards per game. The total-yardage and per-game figures are the best in the

"He looks like he's in excellent shape," Tech defensive coordinator Bill Parcells said. "He's lost some weight from last year, so he's quicker. It looks like he has better stamina, too. He makes so many yards after he's hit. He made 81 yards after he was hit against Arkansas."

The Longhorns' kicking game is also a concern to the Tech staff. In Russell Erxleben, Texas has perhaps the finest all-around kicker in the country. He has booted a NCAA record 67-yard field goal this season, has kicked 12 of 18 field-goal attempts and has a 46.6-yard punting average, the same figure with which he led the nation in 1976.

The Tech staff was highly impressed with Texas A&M's kicking game, but Sloan feels Texas' is better.

"Erxleben is such a good punter, and then Texas has the great punt returner in (Johnnie) Johnson." Johnson, also a fine free safety for UT, is the SWC leader and ranks third in the nation in punt returning with a 16.3 average per return. "Because of Erxleben, field position is so important in this game. He can kick a field goal from almost anywhere," Sloan said. "We need to get the ball in good field position, too, because their defense is tough to move the ball 80 yards against.

Texas, which starts eight sophomores and just one senior defensively, is first in the SWC in total defense and rushing defense and fourth in the country in both categories. The Longhorns have allowed just 206 yards a game, 83 on the ground. They are third in the country in scoring defense, giving up an average of just 7.3 points per game.

Texas was a question mark after slaughtering its first three opponents, none of which was even close to being a worthy match, but the 'Horns have proved themselves to be a good defensive team by holding Oklahoma and Arkansas without a touchdown in 13-6 and 13-9 victories.

Oklahoma (28.9) and Arkansas (33.8) are among the top 15 teams in the nation in scoring offense.

Tackle Brad Shearer is the leader of the Texas defense. The 6-4, 250-pounder, "just hasn't been blocked at all this year," according to Sloan.

'He's just so strong on plays right at him," Sloan added. Rodney Allison will probably not play much in this game for Tech, if at all, so Mark Johnson is expected to be the starter at quarterback for the 13th/14th-ranked Raiders. The attack has gradually improved in the past few games, and offensive coordinator Rex Dockery expects "the offense to have its best game of the season thus far as "We are young in the line, but we've had lately that we've had in a long time. We score some points the last couple of games helped us gain confidence, although we shou ball against anybody. Despite our injuries, we've been to win. Our defense has played real well, and that's en our younger offensive guys to gain maturity."

Defensively, Tech ranks third in the SWC with a 239-yard allowable per game. The Raiders are second in the league and 10th in the nation in rushing defense, allowing just 104.8 yards a game on the ground.

Tech, 5-1, has given up some big plays, though, and this concerns Parcells because Texas has been a big-play offensive team this season.

"They're throwing a little more this season and getting a lot of big plays with passes," Parcells said. "It's a worry for

Texas threw 108 times last year and has thrown 73 this season through six contests. They have a lot of speed in the backfield and with split end Alfred Jackson and flanker

TCU NOW POSSESSES a miraculous two-game winning streak. The last time the Horned Frogs won two games in a season was 1973 when they went 3-8 in Billy Tohill's last season as head coach. The last time they won two games in succession was in 1972 when they posted a 5-6 record under Tohill. One has to go back to 1967 to find the last time the Frogs won three games in succession in Saturdays and an open date in between. TCU broke its 15-game losing streak, then the longest in the nation, against Rice Oct. 8. Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff The Estacado Matadors and the Snyder Tigers played a game somewhat similar to demolation derby at Lubbock Speedway, er, Lowrey Field Thursday night. Let's call it elimination derby.

The two clubs, both facing a possible ousting from the District 3-AAA race, tried their darndest to mame the other with frontal bumps and a couple of sidewipes along the way.

But it was Estacado that managed to deliver the final blow in the form of an 11-play, 81-yard drive with 3:37 remaining in the game that wound up sending the Tigers back to the shop for repairs. And also a 21-14 shellacking.

After falling behind to the fired-up Tigers by a count of 14-13 late in the fourth period, the Matadors behind the slashing running of tailback Kenzey Burrell marched down the field like a regiment of Uncle Sam's best to score the winning touchdown.

Burrell, who sat out the majority of the game with an injured shoulder, rambled for 32 yards on four carries during the

The fleet-footed runningback completely baffled the Tigers with his deceptive moves and hard running on his way to the score.

After moving down to the six, where the Matadors faced first-and-goal from that point, Burrell took a pitch from quarterback Jimmy Scott and raced around right end for the TD. The score gave the Mats a 19-14 advantage.

On the conversion attempt, Burrell passed to end James Rose for the twopoints. Burrell took another pitch from Scott on what appeared to be the same play as the previous TD run. However,

Sports Friday, Oct. 28, 1977 10, Burrell hit Rose with a perfect aerial. Snyder received the ensuing kickoff but four plays netted only two yards and the Mats took over on the Tiger 35 and then

The Tigers will have to wait for '78 Snyder acted as if it wanted to play the part of the spoiler in the fourth quarter when it scored 14 points and take the lead in the see-saw battle. On fourth-and-10 from the Matador 38, punter Rose dropped back to boot the ball to the Tigers. However, all he managed to do was lose 14 yards in the process. The snap from center sailed over Rose's head and in an attempt to pick the ball up and try another punt, the Estaca-do sophomore panicked and wound up paying for his uncertainity. And so did

Snyder took advantage of the muff and on the next play quarterback Clay Johnson, a left-handed signal-caller who riddled the Matador secondary most of the night with his pinpoint passing, hit end Jeff Terry from 24-yards out for the score. Richard Willis hit the extra po and the Estacado lead was cut from 13-0,

Frenship, Slaton Place Perfect Marks On Line

By WALT MCALEXANDER

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff At first glance, tonight's Slaton-Frenship contest appears to be a mismatch, despite the fact both teams bring perfect 7-0 marks into the game.

Why? The teams have three common foes this year, all in District 5-AA play. Slaton has waltzed over Roosevelt (30-7). Denver City (60-0) and Post (40-7) while Frenship rolled over Roosevelt (41-14) but had to struggle to best Post (21-20) and Denver City (6-0).

Granted, winner of tonight's game (set for 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Slaton) will be in the drivers' seat. However, neither can afford to overlook Tahoka.

While most of the publicity of late has gone to the trio of Slaton-Frenship-Post, Tahoka has quitely gone about its job. And since the Bulldogs close out the season against Slaton and Frenship, possibility of a two-way tie-which has occurred in 5-AA the last two years-remains.

But back to tonight's Frenship-Slaton game. Slaton has won 20 of its last 21 regular-season games, including an 8-6 decision over Frenship a year ago.

The Slaton defense has been superb this year, allowing only 23 points in seven games-three TDs, two PATs and a field goal. Frenship, which has posted three shutouts, has allowed more than one TD three times this year-to Ralls, Roosevelt and Post.

Bill Lucas, the Braves' Director of Player Personnel, took the first step toward bringing Berra to Atlanta Thursday by asking the world champion Yankees for permission to talk with Yogi. Lucas spoke with Yankee President

Aaron now is a vice president with the Braves and travels in some high circles. On Thursday, for example, he was Jimmy Carter's guest at the White House. His official title with the Braves is Director of Player Development and in that capacity he gets to work with their young players, something he thoroughly enjoys.

Lucas is Aaron's former brother-in-law, and when the two men talked some time ago about whether Aaron ever would be interested in managing the Braves, the all-time home run king said the job didn't appeal to him at all

Coronado Seeks To End Domination

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Our intelligent math major has calculated an incredible brainstorm figure as a yardstick for tonight's Coronado-Monterey football game in Lowrey Field.

Coronado's offense averages 200 vards a game while Monterey's defense yields an average of 202 yards a game. These hypotheses warrant the conclusion that Coronado will move the ball 201 yards

Well, if we can get that much, I'd love to have it." chuckled Coronado coach Don King after Thursday's workout. Coronado finds how much it gets tonight against the eighth-ranked Plainsmen in Lowrey Field. Meanwhile, Lubbock High seeks its first district win of the year at Hereford, and highly regarded Fort Worth Christian hosts Lubbock Christian. All three games begin at 7:30

Monterey's defense has allowed 40 points in seven games this year. That's 5 points less than last year's pace. And last week at Plainview, the defense barely provided the Bulldogs sufficient room to breathe.

"You can't move the ball on their defense and Monterey has a tremendous kicking game. They have great personnel and they have a shot at the state champithe playoffs now," King said during Wednesday's coaches press conference at Underwood's on 34th street.

Then in another tone, King stated, "I think we will get after them real well. We've played them well in the past.'

A total of 9 points has separated the Plainsmen and CHS in the last four years. The teams tied 7-7 in 1973 before MHS started a three-game win streak-9-7 in 1974, 7-6 in 1975 and 6-0 last year. Those scores also reveal the low-scoring trend of recent southwest Lubbock grid wars.

"It looks like it could be another lowscoring game," said Monterey mentor James Odom. "I hope we can score enough, though.'

Odom's casualty list contains only free safety Greg Iseral, who injured a leg muscle in last week's Plainview game.

Last week's 25-3 Hereford win over Coronado did little to perk up the Westerners' spirits during last week's open date. "Some of our players went out to Lo-wrey Field and thought Coronado would beat them after Coronado had beat us.'

said LHS coach Rusty Talbot. "I think half of our guys left at the half, though." What the Westerners watched was a Hereford offense with perhaps the best 1-2 punch in the district - quarterback Kelly Kitchens and tailback Paul Bell. The dynamic duo guided a Herd attack healthy Ernest Day at tailback after the Lubbock Christian coach George Harper feels his club has improved in recent outings but worries about the potent Fort Worth opponent with a 7-1 record.

"They're ranked third in the state among private schools and they have two all-state backs." Harper said.

Fort Worth Christian relies on tailback
Terry Drake and fullback Paul Mueller for most of its yardage. Three offensive and two defensive starters return from and two defensive starters return from the 9-0 Fort Worth club which won the league championship in the Texas Inde-pendent Conference last year.

Harper lists one starter on the sideline for the game. Tackle Jamie Hill hurt his shoulder against Crane two weeks ago. Harper has been pleased with the play of quarterback Kent Allison, linebacker Tim Howell, tight end Shawn Williams and tailback Hutch Hailey in recent

As Campbell goes against the Red Raiders, so go the Longhorns.

"I think so much of him (Campbell) that I went out and bought a truck just like him," cracked Sloan.

Of course, things could even out for Tech if injured senior quarterback Rodney Allison could play. Allison broke a bone in his leg Sept. 16 in a loss to Texas A&M. He is practicing but listed as doubtful although the bone is a nonweight bearing one. Allison has had one brilliant game against Texas in his career. Last year he rushed for 106 vards on 25 carries and completed 10 of 11 passes for 87 yards. In 1975. Allison ran for 46 yards and completed four of seven passes.

"I expect him to be ready," said Texas coach Fred Akers.

We're preparing for them as if he will be there. He's a great football player, but Tech has proved it is a fine football team without him.

Grid Figures Dwarf Most Expensive Movies

Another October weekend, so we can expect 60 million viewers, subtract or add a few million, to glue themselves to seats in front of their television screens for some 20 hours of football.

It is a Roman eye-straining orgy that starts with ABC's cluster of regional college games Saturday, continues Sunday when NBC and CBS saturate the tubes with National Football League battles and climaxes with ABC's NFL Game of the Week Monday night.

Forty million husbands will refuse to budge for dinner. Twenty million, 565,000 wives will grab the children in a huff and run off to mother. Approximately 25,247 women will file for divorce.

It is America's autumn madness.

The social reverberations are exceeded only by the financial ones. The three networks are preparing to sign new contracts which will insure the sanctity of this weekend ritual for the next four years.

The NFL package for games through 1981 is figured somewhere between $575 and $600 million. ABC's deal with the NCAA for college games is another $100 million.

These figures dwarf by 60-1 the most expensive movies and special extravaganzas bought by the networks for prime time viewing. "Gone With the Wind" and "The Godfather" cost $10 million. NBC bought the entire 1980 Olympics in Moscow for $80 million.

The football package pops buttons on the pinstripe suits along Madison Avenue and shakes the old concrete columns

As a captive audience, many housewives have been drawn into the football web and converted into the most rabid fans. The reason there haven't been more converts perhaps is that football fails to afford the love interest and family turmoil of "Another World" and "The Edge of Night" and also has a confusing glossary of terms.

Actually, football is not much more complicated than a friendly game of Monopoly or an unfriendly game of war. It is movement, possession of ground, finally accumulation of more wealth (in this case, points) than the enemy and ultimate success.

Confusion of the uninitiated is understandable. The lady of the house, passing by the shut door of the den where the TV is going full blast, may think offhand that our armies are trying to ward off the Russians at Orchard Beach.

The terms sound like World War III-"blitz," "bomb," 'draw,'' "shotgun," "shoot the gap," "run for daylight." For the benefit of those wives unable to find relief, we offer today—free, with no extra charge—an interpretation of some of the more commonly used terms: "Blitz" - A derivative of the term "blitzkreig" used by the Nazis in World War II. In football, shoot the linebackers to nail the passer. "Safety blitz" — Bigger than a blitz. Everybody goes. 'Draw" - Has nothing to do with what gunslingers yell in Westerns. It's an offensive move to draw in the enemy defenders for a quick-opening running play.

"Run for daylight" - In the more mundane days, it was simply called open field running. Get the runner into the open. Linked to the late Vince Lombardi.

'Shotgun'' - A favorite Dallas Cowboys maneuver. Quarterback Roger Staubach goes to the deep triple-threat position to pass, usually on third down. "As I said at the top of the show" - Forget it. A starchy, in house expression, meaning the announcer is repeating "Down and out" - Not a derelict uncle. A pass pattern.

'Fly pattern' - The same - run deep, let the ball fly. "Minnesota owns the football" - Not really. A cliche, meaning possession. "The clock is the ally of . . . ": Ambiguity. Time is running

"Dear, your dinner is getting cold." "Put it in the oven until the game is over." 'Wha-a-a-t?" Fighting words. Call your

Rockets Smash Bucks 133-110

You can't score in the National Basketball Association without a little help from your friends.

And Moses Malone had it Thursday

Malone was the open man most of the night and benefited from it by getting passes from his teammates. The result was a 31-point performance that helped the Rockets to a 133-110 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

"Moses was getting open a lot," said Rudy Tomjanovich, "and we were feeding him.

Tomjanovich didn't do too badly himself. He scored 32.

"Basketball is an emotional game." he said. "When I'm on a hot streak I know I can put the ball in John Lucas was credited with most of the care and feeding of his teammates. He collected 18 assists. "You don't get a lot of assists unless you are a good player." said Tomjanovich, "but your teammates have to be KANSAS CITY 119, CLEVELAND 104

UT'S BIG GUN — Earl Campbell of the University of Texas will be hoping for another Heisman Trophy-type performance against Texas Tech Saturday. Campbell gained 213 vards against SMU last Saturday and was named the SWC's Player of the week for that effort. He is a contender for the Heisman, which annually goes to college football's

Mock, Taylor Compare Defens

Q. Texas is ranked first in the nation, Texas Tech is playing the No. 1 one team. Your thoughts on that.

Mock- For me, it's a great honor to play a No. 1 team, because I've never done it before. And it should be a natural high for our team. Texas will be trying to keep the ranking, we'll be trying to take it. But realistically, we're fighting for the conference lead and we'll let the ratings take care of them-

Taylor- I think every team gets really excited when the time comes to play Texas and now it'll be more so since we're No. 1.

Q. The Texas-Tech series is one of the most competitive. What's been the attitude in practices this week?

Mock-Last year the Texas game was big-it gave us the boost we needed at the time to stay in the lead. This year's game will be by far the biggest I've ever played. If we lose, we are, for all intents and purposes out of the conference race. We've had good practices this week. We had an open date last week and it came at a good time. We've got some people well now. The intensity is there.

Taylor-I think this is a particularly big game for us because Tech beat us last year and we'd like to return the fa-

Mock-Overall, I think we've matured a lot as a team, we've gotten better each game and that's an important thing. Our defense as a whole is sound, there's no major weakness, though breakdowns happen in each game. Overall, I think I'm playing pretty well, but I'd still like to improve my pass coverage.

Taylor—Our defense still makes quite a few mental errors which must be stopped. Luckily, none of those errors has hurt us badly in a ball game yet. We have a good balanced defense, it plays equally well against the pass or the run. Overall, though, I'm pleased with my play and that of the entire defense.

Q. What will be your main responsibilities in the game?

Mock-To tackle Earl Campbell. That's the main thing all of us are going to try to do. Taylor-My duties will probably be the same as always: To cover the run first then look for the pass. I'll primarily be responsible for the run, but depend ing on the defense we're in, the situation on the field or the offensive formation they're in, I could be responsible for pass coverage.

Q. What about your opponent's offense?

Mock-Two or three thing stand out about Texas' offense. First, they have the best kicking game in America. (Russell) Erxleben can take them out of trouble from anywhere on the field with his punting, and he's a proven field goal kicker. His leg is a weapon they use effectively. Second, their speed is awesome, particularly on the perimeter where they play Lam Jones and Alfred Jackson. The offensive line is quick and really moves people off the ball. Last, but certainly not least. Campbell gets in the back of that I-formation. From there he can look the field over to decide

Mock—On the defensive side, we'll have to stop Campbell and not let him make a big play. We'll have to cause turnovers and give our offense the ball in good field position as much as possi-

Taylor—We'll have to try and break down what they do best and force them to beat us with something other than with what they'd planned. Our tackling will have to be good because Billy Tay-lor breaks a lot of them when he runs. Q. You've both had quarterback injuries. What's the effect?

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Steve Sloan has credited Texas Tech's week off last week with giving some of the injured Raiders time to heal and be prepared for this week's vital game with Texas. Mike Mock would certainly agree.

Mock, the Tech linebacker and punter, hobbled to the sidelines with a pulled groin muscle during the Rice game two Saturdays ago and was limited for a time. Had the Raiders had a game last weekend, he definitely would not have been able to play at full capacity, but he says the extra week has left him in good

"I feel 100 per cent," he said Thursday. "I'm ready to go. I'm just glad we had that off week.

Mock could not have punted had the Raiders played last Saturday, and he punted Thursday for the first time since the Rice game. Sloan said Mock would do the punting against Texas.

"I thought I did pretty good at punting, considering that I hadn't punted in almost two weeks," Mock said after Thursday's workout

He injured the groin while punting on the cool night against Rice. He later reentered the game but pulled up lame while pursuing the ballcarrier a few plays

Mock realizes he had better be healthy to give a top performance against Texas, the nation's No. 1 team.

Their offense is so much more versatile this year," Mock said. "With Campbell in the veer or the I-formation, he lines up deeper and gets a better chance to read the defense.

'Texas has great speed at wide receiver, with Alfred Jackson and Lam Jones, Campbell, the 6-0, 220-pound Heisman Trophy candidate, impresses Mock tremendously, as he does everybody.

He is one of the very best athletes I've ever seen. I played against him three years in high school when I was at Longview and he was at John Tyler, and

We've got our work cut out for us," Mock agreed. "But I think we'll give them a good battle. Our tackles have really played well in the middle for us this season, and it's taken a lot of pressure off us linebackers as far as run support goes. It's given us a more chance to run and get outside to stop those plays.

now I'm getting ready to play against him for the fourth year in college.

"Coach Sloan has compared him to Jimmy Brown, and I'd say that's about right. I've never seen a back so strong. He can run inside or outside, and he can Tech-UT Lineups

NOTES: Texas officials are expecting in excess of 79,000 fans Saturday, which would be one of the largest, if not the largest, crowds to attend an athletic event in the state of Texas. . . Tech drilled for a little more than an hour under gray skies Thursday and will leave for Austin today. . . Sloan said injured quarterback Rodney Allison will make the trip and suit up for the game. Whether he plays, and how much, will be determined by how well he looks in pregame warmups. . . Offensive guard Greg Wessels, who has been out since the A&M game with a back injury, will make the trip, al-

This time it took five plays and one minute for Snyder to score the go ahead punch it has managed to hide much of the season, received the kickoff and drove it hookline and sinker right down the Tiger's throat.

The only time the Matadors had a third down situation, they managed to convert it. And it was a big one. Scott, who hit only only two-of-five pas-

SWC Footballs

HOUSTON (UPI) - Southwest Conference Commissioner Cliff Speegle has indicated all footballs to be used in SWC games the rest of this season will be policed a little more carefully to make sure they conform to the right size, pressure and weight.

Speegle was reacting to charges by Houston kicker Kenny Hatfield that Arkansas kicker Steve Little might have used an unofficial football in last Saturday's RazorbacksCougars game. The Cougars lost 34-0.

'We've instructed officials to measure all balls to be used in all games and we've instructed the home team to furnish the template for the measurement," Speegle said. "If it isn't being done, it will be.

Speegle's said it was an "oversight" Saturday that the footballs were not checked beforehand. Hatfield said he watched Little, who co-owns the NCAA field goal record of 67 yards with Texas' Russell Erxleben, use a discolored foot-

"When we went in at halftime I asked the officials to measure i and they said they weren't measuring for that game," Hatfield said. "It doesn't perturb me at all. I just think it's odd they'd do it for some games and not for others.

Rangers

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Rangers owner Brad Corbett says a little ole thing like a $250,000 loss for the 1977 season is not going to prevent him from making another expensive trip to the free agent marketplace this year.

The American League team, already stocked with high-priced free agent talent, lost the $250,000 this past season despite its most successful season and a record attendance of more than 1.2 mil-

Referring to the deficit, Corbett said this week that the team "can live with those numbers."

We want to make money, sure we do, but we also want to be a winner," said the often-flambovant Rangers owner. "And spending money is one way to help build a winner. It's the name of the baseball game now

Corbett shelled out more than $1.5 million for free agents Bert Campaneris and Dovle Alexander and pumped more than a million more into other teams to acquire players like Claudell Washington, Paul Lindblad and Dock Ellis.

And he says he'll be doing it again next month

'Count us in because we'll make our presence felt," he said. "We plan to go all out in the free agent market. Attorneys for free agent players themselves have been in contact with us already. They are expressing an interest in the Rangers.

"This year we spent nearly one million dollars strictly in purchasing players we hoped would help us win. Some of them paid off, like Dock Ellis and Claudell Washington, and some of them didn't," he added. "But that's part of the game.

'If we had played it close to the vest with our money we could have ended up making a profit this year. But we've promised a winner and our fans showed this year they will certainly support a

Deadline Nearing On Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress remains divided over a government tion policy amid indications the matter may not be resolved before a self-fin-posed Monday deadline.

At stake is money to operate the de-partments of Labor and Health, Educa-tion and Welfare and to pay the salaries of about 240,000 federal employees nationwide.

The agencies face the prospect of no funds after Monday.

Congressional aides say welfare benefits, unemployment insurance and other types of assistance will continue indefinitely, but that most employees may have a problem being paid after Nov. 10.

Technically, the affected agencies ran out of money on Sept. 30 with the end of fiscal 1977.

fiscal 1977. While they were forced to discontinue administrative spending, they have continued to pay a variety of benefits in anticipation of an eventual congressional agreement.

A resolution hastily enacted Oct. 13 was needed to insure that the departments' employees would be paid. That resolution, which allowed the agencies to spend at their past levels, expires Monday. Senators, representatives and their staffs say they have been working behind the scenes to come up with some kind of compromise, but they have not yet met with success. House and Senate conferees have been trying since July to write an abortion policy, the last remaining roadblock preventing enactment of the $60.2 billion appropriation bill for the two departments.

On Thursday, the Senate voted 59 to 33 to reject the House's latest proposal and affirm its own position. The House wants to continue the government's policy of paying for abortions only in cases where a woman's life would be endangered by a full-term pregnancy.

The House would, however, also allow payments for prompt medical procedures used to treat victims of forced rape or incest if the cases are reported to authori-

The Senate vote was taken at the request of House conferees. The Senate had rejected the House plan earlier on a voice vote.

The government now pays for about 300,000 abortions a year, most for poor women, at a cost of $50 million through various programs.
Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said in Thursday's Senate debate that the House language was "more repressive than the language that is even now in effect."

In rejecting the House proposal, the Senate stood by its position of allowing payments for abortions in cases of rape or incest or where the woman or fetus

Meanwhile, cotton growers are still waiting for the fall's first frost to begin stripping operations in earnest.

"Milo yields are down 25 to 30 per cent this year, just like the corn," said Artho. "I would estimate an average vield of 5,000 to 6,000 pounds per acre for irrigated milo.

"The quality and test weight were good and the sun kept the moisture level about where it needed to be. In fact, this is one of the finest harvests I have seen in my 12 years here (in regard to weather) but it sure wasn't where yields are concerned." he added.

At the said corn yields ran anywhere from 1,500 pounds per acre up to 11,000 pounds per acre, and that estimating an 'average' corn yield for this meager corn production year would be difficult

A spokesman for Pitman Grain of Hereford said his firm also is on the verge of completing this year's harvest States are not available in Malaysia, Lee

'Some of the milo farmers are waiting for a frost so they can finish up their late milo. Once that comes along, we will be through in a hurry" he said. The official pointed out that soybean harvesting was completed in short order, and the final two loads arrived Tuesday.

"It just wasn't much of a year for any grain crop, as bean yields were off in comparison to corn and milo. The test weights on beans were running heavy at 56-57 pounds and the beans were of good quality but there simply weren't enough of them," he added.

"The corn market has climbed a few cents the last week or so, and right now, any price increase is encouraging. We just hope the corn market keeps going right on up," said the spokesman.

Gene King of Easter Grain said that grain harvesting is "totally wrapped up" in that community to the south of Hereford.

'Our yields in this area were off about 30 per cent on corn and milo," King said. He extimated corn yields at 5,500 to 6,000 pounds.

A spokesman for dawn Co-Op to the east of Hereford said that "a few stragglers are still bringing corn in," but added that the major rush of harvesting was already completed.

While this year's grain crop is out of the fields for the most part, a number of farmers are still waiting to harvest what may be their best crop this year.

A number of fields are snow white with cotton. But the leaves are still on those plants and full scale harvesting will wait until a hard freeze disposes of

Marvin Payne of Hereford Farmers Gin Inc. said that early cotton yields are extremely encouraging

We are beginning to get a little cotton in. One 14-acre field made 23 bales, and a 20-acre block made thirty-five 500pound bales. Most of the cotton will probably yield a bale to a bale and a half per acre," he estimated. Payne reported that his firm has already ginned 250 bales of cotton, with the big harvest rush still coming. "We'll see a lot of cotton harvesting activity after our first frost. Most farmers are pretty well pleased with the outlook for their crop and the prospect of a 45-cent per pound market," Payne em-

Prospects for good sugar content greeted sugar beet growers as they submitted samples to the Holly Sugar Corp.'s Hereford plant prior to the start of the harvest.

The sugar harvest began early this month, amid predictions of 22-ton per acre beet vields.

The group spent two days visiting cotton production, marketing and research facilities on the High Plains during a two-week tour of the U. S. Cotton Belt. The annual trip was sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agriculture Service and the National Cotton Council

Wellington M. K. Lo, assistant manager of The Textile Corp. of Hong Kong Ltd., noted that the spinning and weaving industry in that country is "in a depressed state at the moment" as it is in other countries. However, business has been improving in recent weeks, he added, although he said the greatest improvement may come late next year. We hope that by the latter part of 1978 the world economy may be steady again and U.S. markets may be revived so that countries like Hong Kong, Taivan Japan Singapore and have a better market for their fabrics." he remarked.

Lo pointed out that Hong Kong has quite a large proportion of export quotas" on goods for sale to the the United States and the European Economic Community (EEC). He expressed a desire for a favorable outcome in negotiations between textile importing and exporting nations now underway in Switz-

The general manager of a Taiwanese firm was not quite optimistic about the possibility of industry recovery next year in that country.

John C. H. Yang, with Wan Yuan Textiles Co., Ltd., foresaw no improvement in 1978, because many mills "are still using high-priced cotton that was bought

He said some mills purchased relatively expensive cotton in 1974 and have faced lower prices for finished goods since then. "The industry has suffered for three years," said Yang. "I don't see any bright future in the market." The textile official added, however, that for mills that did not make earlier purchases of higher-priced raw cotton. 1978 could be a year for recovery. The main factors that will permit such a recovery will be an improved world economy and lower import barriers to the United States and the EEC, he said. Yang said Taiwan currently is working to extend its markets into eastern Africa and eastern Europe

A pioneer of Malaysian textile operations, David N. W. Lee, chairman of South Pacific Textile Industries Bhd.. noted that many companies had come into the textile business there within the last five years.

"The textile market was good in 1973 and 1974," he said, and the industry expanded. But some people became inRural Home Quality Upgrading Stressed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The quality of rural housing has improved significantly conditions in cities and suburban

And the gains in housing conditions have not been shared equally by all sectors of the population, with blacks, the poor and the elderly occupying a disproportionate share of substandard dwell-The conclusions were drawn in an agriculture department report on changes in the rural housing situation during the Between 1950 and 1975, the number of housing units in the United States increased 71 per cent, compared with a 42 per cent hike in the available while population grew 21 per cent. But quantity alone cannot measure housing progress, and USDA economists say there has been a dramatic improvement in the quality of American dwellings since 1950

A substandard housing unit is one which is dilapidated or lacks either hot running water, a flush toilet or a bathtub

Between 1950 and 1975, the number of persons in substandard housing dropped from more than 15 milion to less than 4

Business recessions cut into the ex panding housing industry in 1956 and 1957, and the recession of 1974 and 1975 sent housing construction skidding. The 1974-75 recession was particularly hard on mobile home construction, and this was felt more in rural areas where mobile homes make up a larger share of to-

Government assistance has played a major part in improving housing for Americans by making credit more readily available. Since the early 1970s, economists said, the government has helped finance the construction of about onefourth of all units built in rural America.

Loans from the Farmers Home Administration were available only to new units a year. But expansions of the programs to include rural nonfarm households have boosted the totals to 77,000 new units a year.

Types of loans have also been expanded to include home repair, rural rental housing and farm labor housing.

But better housing conditions brought about by bigger incomes, more new homes and government help have not benefited all Americans equally During the 25-year period, housing conditions for rural blacks did not improve as rapidly as for whites. By 1975, black households occupied a sharply higher proportion of all substandard housing in rural America even though their share of rural housing units was

However, the report pointed out that in 1950, 96 per cent of black housing outside of metropolitan areas was substandard, and by 1975, the figure had dropped to about 33 per cent.

The aged and the poor also have not shared equally in better housing condi-

People over 65 occupy far more housing units than 25 years ago and an even larger proportion of substandard housing units in both country and city areas.

The USDA attributed the increase to the growing number of elderly persons who are heads of households and live either alone or share a home with people other than relatives.

By DUANE HOWELL CONFIDENCE THAT COTTON WILL CONTINUE to be a vital force in the marketplace was voiced Thursday by National Cotton Council president Jack G.

PLAINS

AGRICULTURE

Speaking to the National Knitwear Association at its meeting at Scottsdale, Ariz., the California cotton grower singled out excessive government regulations as the major problem confronting the industry.

But he pointed out: "The long arm of government regulation is reaching into every business in America today, and that includes the business of farming. Stone said regulatory agencies apparently are "here to stay" and that industry and agriculture are going to have to learn to "live with or live in spite of" some degree of government regulation from here on out.

THE STRUGGLE TO BRING COMMON SENSE and reason into the regulatory decision-making process must continue, Stone emphasized, and efforts also must be made to arouse the public "We need to let consumers know what's happening, and show them what over-regulation means to them in terms of increased taxes, higher prices for products, and fewer products to choose from." Referring to the proposed new cotton dust standard as by far the most serious problem clouding cotton's future, Stone said the industry will continue its attempts to resolve the cotton dust problem regardless of the final standard pro-"We are determined to push ahead with research to find the unknown agent in cotton dust that causes byssinosis," he said. "And I assure you that once the cause is found, we won't rest until we find ways to eliminate or control it.'

RESEARCH STIMULATED BY AN industrywide committee already is showing high promise for short term solutions to the problem, and Stone said much progress can be made within the next year or two.

Regarding flammability, Stone noted that the Consumer Product Safety Commission proposes to change the sleepwear standard to allow untreated synthetic fiber products which ignite, melt, and drip to pass. These garments would significantly increase the risk of injury above that of flame-retardant cottons The cotton industry opposes this modification of the standard to allow un-

Stone also pointed out that the cotton industry had tried unsuccessfully to obtain exemption for close-fitting knit garments when sleepwear standards were first being considered.

"WE FEEL THAT THESE GARMENTS ARE NOT dangerous and, furthermore, we believe the consumer is entitled to freedom of choice." he added. The CPSC now has proposed to exempt sleepwear in sizes zero to one. If it does, then untreated cotton knits could be used in that size range.

As in the cotton dust situation, the industry is pushing ahead with research in this area and is determined to develop the most efficient and economical flameretardant finishes for cotton that can be found.

Bonding Firm Must Aid In Wheat Loss

AUSTIN (AP) - State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said this week his department has put a bond company on notice that a $225,000 bond is due to help cover the loss of wheat by Wichita Falls-area farmers

Brown said in a statement that he had urged American Indemnity Co. of Galveston to pay the bond money for wheat missing from Geronimo Elevator Co. of Wichita Falls, in the Robert Johnson grain case.

State inspectors found more than 400.-000 bushels of wheat missing from facilities operated by Johnson, after he disappeared from a fishing boat in the Gulf of Mexico Jan. 3.

Brown said the bond is due and payable to the receiver appointed by the Federal Bankruptcy Court. The receiver. James Dugger of Wichita Falls, is charged with distributing the money among some 200 farmers who had deposited grain with the elevator, Brown

A total of 379,738 bushels of wheat were sold to a bidder in February for $733,817, after federal involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were brought against Johnson and several family-owned companies, Brown said.

"The Department of Agriculture is not ceiver in an attempt to get these claims paid. We are also working with the attorney general's office to determine if litigation will be necessary to collect the

Ghoulish Luck Hits Floydada Farmer's Pumpkin Enterprise

FLOYDADA (UPI) - Farmer B. A. Robertson has had hard luck with his pumpkins the last couple of years, and the folks who prefer plastic jack o'lanterns to the real thing aren't helping to change it.

In a good year, Robertson grows 20,000 pounds of pumpkins an acre. A fungus last year reduced the yield to 15,000 pounds. A late heat wave that moved across the flat High Plains burned the young fruit this year, reducing his harvest to 12,-

This year I didn't have the fungus, and I thought I was coasting along. Then this thing (heat) hit me. I was getting things in there that are undesirable," he

And now, at age 73, Robertson isn't sure the back-straining work in the hot West Texas sun is worth the effort anymore. "I don't know," he said. "One more of them (a bad year) is all I can take.

Produce buyers agree the harvest of West Texas pumpkins has been reduced this season because of the weather.

'The quality of the pumpkins is not as good as it has been," said A.C. Fulton of Furr's Supermarkets in Lubbock.

"It's due to this extreme hot weather," said Roy Bowen, produce buyer for Shop Rite Foods Inc. in Lubbock. "They burned up before they matured." But the buyers also say modern shoppers grown conditioned to quick and easy meals aren't as interested in pumpkins as they once were.

"To be frank, I think they're getting lazy," said Bowen. "It's a lot easier to open a can or buy a paper jack o'lantern.' 'It think that's right," said Robertson. "I think they're buying these plastic, artificial pumpkins. Robertson doesn't want to offend any of his customers who still cling to the Halloween tradition of carving ghoulish jack-o'-lanterns. Instead of shipping the pumpkins to them, he now makes the buyers come to him. "I just wouldn't send them a load. I said you come out and look at these

One buyer's faith in Robertson's green thumb was jaded when he looked at the withering orange pumpkins. "I just didn't believe you could grow that kind of pumpkin," the man said.

Larger 1978 Corn Surplus Forecast By Mart Experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's stockpile of corn is slightly larger than Agriculture Department experts have been estimating, meaning that unless domestic and export demand rise more than currently projected, the surplus a year from now will be even larger.

As of the start of the new corn marketing year Oct. 1, the inventory was 878.8 million bushels, compared with 396 mil-lion a year ago, the department said this week in a quarterly grain stocks report.

The department had been estimating the Oct. 1 corn carryover at 876 million bushels, the most since it was 1.13 billion on that date in 1972.

The 1977 corn harvest, currently estimated at 6.3 billion bushels, is more than experts say will be needed in the 1977-78 crop year. Thus, the corn reserve next Oct. 1 could rise to around 1.35 billion bushels, the most since nearly 1.54 billion bushels were left over on Oct. 1,

The report showed that the Oct. 1 corn inventory was about equally divided between grain stored on farms and in offfarm facilities

The quarterly report said the Oct. 1 stockpile of the four major feed grains corn, sorghum, oats and barley — totaled 43.1 million metric tons, up 59 per cent from a year ago. Besides corn stocks being more than double, surgham reserves were up 77 per cent, oats 27 per cent and barley 8 per cent.

The report also showed that stocks of wheat on and off farms were a record high of almost 2.4 billion bushels, up 19 per cent from less than 2.19 billion a billion a year ago.

The wheat marketing year runs from June 1 through the following May 31. By next June 1, when the 1978 wheat harvest will be ready, the wheat stockpile currently is expected to be about 1.2 billion bushels, the most since the early 1960s. Last June 1 the wheat reserve was 11 billion bushels and on June 1, 1975 if 1.1 billion bushels and on June 1, 1975 it was 664 million bushels.

Texas Dairy Stock Goes To Mexico

AUSTIN (Special)-About 15,768 head of livestock were shipped to other countries through the Texas Department of Agriculture's export facilities during the first eight months of 1977, Agriculture sioner Reagan V. Brown re-

A major portion of the total was cattle, with Mexico being the largest buyer,

Of the 12,940 head of cattle exported, most were Holstein dairy stock bound for Mexico. Major shipments of Charo-lais, Brown Swiss and Hereford also went to that country.

The export figures show a decrease of more than 50 per cent from the same period last year, Brown pointed out. He explained that several factors contributed to this decline in livestock exports, adding that the drop in U.S. ship is similar to decreases being felt by other major cattle raising countries.

"In Mexico, one of the largest buyers of U.S. cattle, the recent devaluation of the peso and new governmental import regulations have certainly cut into our exports," Brown said. "In addition, the decrease is part of an attempt by Mexi-can ranchers to reduce their herds to more profitable leveled.

"In order to maintain our good export relationship with this country, we will encourage Texas cattlemen's groups to keep in close contact with the Mexican cattle industry," he added. "We also plan to expand current marketing ef-forts including the TDA's 'Texport' directory and other export publica-

The 1977 Texport directory will be available in February, 1978, he noted. The second largest shipment of cattle this year went to Argentina, and were mainly Brahman, Polled Herefords and Santa Gertrudes. Guatamala, Venezuela and the Dominican Republic also shipped cattle through Texas

During the period, 2,085 head of sheep were moved through the export pens. The major breeds shipped were Suffolk, Mouflon and Hamshire. Swine exports totaled 281 head, with the major breed

A total of 246 horses were shipped, as well as 216 goats.

Although not listed in the compiled figures, Brown also noted that 1/3he Laredo pens hosted a truckload of giraffes and a rhinoceros during July.

John Cassisi, who plays tough guy Victor Kreutzer on ABC's comedy series, "Fish," really had to tough it out over the summer when it appeared that he might lose an eye. Over the Fourth of July weekend, an improperly placed fire-work exploded in his face and his sight was seriously endangered. But all worked out well, and John will be back on Fish this fall. With the typical bravado he displays both in and out of character, John said, "This won't slow me down. I'm already back playing sports." He ad-ded it will be a while before he gets close to fireworks again.

Feed grains include barley, corn, oats and sorghum. With the later loan maturity date, farmers have the option of continuing to hold their grain for the feed grain reserve program authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977. Under commodity loan programs, producers borrow money from the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC), offering crops as collateral. When the loan matures, producers either repay the loan plus interest or forfeit the commodity to the CCC The department said farmers who desire to extend the maturity date of their loans should contact county offices of the Agricultural Stabipization and Conservation Service.

HY CARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Jeanne Wolf, a mere slip of a girl who does those personality interviews over the PBC network, has kept a diary of some of the answers she got to provocative questions she has hurled at notables in the news. Asking Norman Lear (who created such hit series as "All In the Family," "Maude," "The Jeffersons" and "Good Times"), how much he watches television, Norman answered: "Tell parents they should turn off their sets. Tell their children not to watch TV as I did with my children. I wanted them to read. I wanted them talking together."

On location at the Universal Studios in Los Angeles when Jimmy Stewart was making "Airport '77," Jeanne asked Jimmy if everything we hear about malicious movie moguls of the past is truth or fiction. The star replied: "The studios were like a family. And the fellows who ran them, they write books about how terrible they were. This just wasn't true.

When Redd Foxx was asked why he decided to give up drinking, he answered: "One night I finished an entire fifth by myself and I realized I didn't get drunk, I felt nothing. So I just put it down and stopped cold turkey and never touched another

Other quotable notables caught in the Wolf trap: David Susskind: "I'm bored with being called a liberal. I tend to like liberals more than I like conservatives, because they tend to be more interesting and amusing.

Jason Robards (who played the President in the ABC special, "Washington: Behind Closed Doors") in response to the question, "What do you use to get up for such an important role?" said: "I would never take a drink, ever, not a beer, nothing; not even cough medicine. It's got alcohol in it. It's a drug and I don't want to be on drugs and that's all there is to it."

Alex Haley, author of "Roots," asked if he sometimes wished he were white, told Jeanne: "The strength of this country is the strength brought to it by the various groups in it that mingle. I, for one, would be very shocked to wake up white tomorrow morning - I'm kind of used to being like this.

Edith Head, famous movie costume designer, on today's fashions: "I saw a girl the other day working . . . she had no bra and practically no clothes on. And here she was taking dictation. It offended me a little, but I guess the boss loved it or she wouldn't be there.

Visiting Charles Bronson, Jeanne asked how he personally feels about violence. He said, "If those people who saw violent pictures objected to the violence, they wouldn't go to see them. I don't make pictures for those who won't see any violence at all," declared the star reported to be the highest-paid actor in films. "These people are timid to begin with. They don't want to know that all this exists anywhere.

Norm Evans, former Miami Dolphin football star, who authored a book on the subject, explained his philosophy on the importance of winning or losing to interviewer Wolf: "You should not be a loser. I detest losing ... I hate to lose. I think there's no room for losers in this world." Author Irving Wallace, asked by Jeanne Wolf to explain the popularity of his books (which have been i ad by over half a billion readers), replied: "When I published my first bestseller, it was a time of freedom. For the first time you could write pretty openly, overtly about sex ... books used to stop at the bedroom door - I

Two-Hour Bob Hope Special To Honor Late Bing Crosby

NBC special was to have covered his 40 years in films. But he's totally revamped it to honor Bing Crosby, his pal and "Road" sidekick, who died two weeks ago at age 73.

Hope said tonight's special, which starts at 7 p.m. CDT, may be described by NBC as a tribute to Crosby, but it isn't

"No, I didn't think it was right to take over and do the Crosby tribute," he said 'It's just about the two of us and what we've done, and I've tried to keep it light. I didn't want to get maudlin.

he (Carter) is doing —but they will be.'' "The issues he's tackling are controversial and haven't been done in the past," she explained.

She said there are "so many good things going on. I think he will get that FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

Valuable Painting Donated To Li

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) - A portrait of George Washington which was donated to the New Bedford Public Library seven years ago has been identified as a Gilbert Stuart painting which may be worth as much as half a million dollars, the library's director says.

The five-by-eight-foot, full-length por-trait hung in the New Bedford Boys Club for more than 100 years, library director Laurence Solomon said. It was given to the library when the club moved into a new building.

Art historian Charles Merrill Mount of Arlington, Va., spotted the painting and identified it as one probably done by Stuart, the artist famous for his portraits of the nation's first president.

"It's like finding another Mona Lisa," Mount said in a telephone interview. Solomon said library trustees received a report from the Art Conservation Laboratory in Raymond, N.H., which examined the painting. The report did not say whether the painting was actually done by Stuart, but it confirmed Mount's conclusion that the portrait probably was completed about 1800 at Stuart's studio at 8 p.m. CDT, shows three women's pregnancies, the problems of their female obstetrician and how a teen-age girl manages not to become pregnant. All that is make-believe, but the scene in which a happy mother-to-be is giving birth to her first child took place in a real delivery room at Riverside Hospital in North Hollywood, Calif.

The extraordinary birth shots, interspersed with the theatrical birth, had been photographed 15 days previously at a real birth.

The rest of the two-hour movie lacks that kind of reality, but should be popular with the good-sized audience who watched its predecessor, "Having Babies," last year.

Susan Sullivan plays Dr. Julie Farr, who must decide between her career in California and going off to Chicago with the man she loves - and incidentally, lives with. You'd think there were no hospitals in Chicago, the way she worries about making such a move.

Among her patents are the three couples scheduled to become parents. There's Carol Lynley and Cliff Gorman, who adopted a child when nature didn't cooperate, and now find that nature has followed suit. A rift develops between husband and wife when the already troubled adopted child finds it impossible to accept the expected newcomer.

/2-LB. CHOPPED SIRLOIN

Paul Prentiss and Tony Bill provide the tragedy in the story. A former model, she feels ugly and lonely as an expectant mother, while her husband's advertising career makes him blind to her needs. The comedy comes from Wayne Rogers (formerly of "City of Angels" and before that Trapper John on "M-A-SH") and Cassie Yates. They are having trouble conceiving a child and the rigamarole they go through is ridiculous.

It's bad enough when she comes to his dental office and demands he throw a patient out of his chair so they can be alone because she is ovulating. When she interrupts his golf game, riding up to him in a cart, he explains with evaporating patience that now she has gone too far. Not so — now she is pregnant.

Skateboard Injuries Expected To Show Dramatic Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) - More people will be injured riding skateboards this year than from playing scholastic, collegiate and backyard football, a new federal study discloses.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates 375,000 people will be injured in skateboard accidents in 1977, compared to some 370,000 in all the nonprofessional football games in the coun-

An unreleased report based on the study predicts that the number of skateboard injures will be more than double last year's 188,000.

A commission official said no other product under its jurisdiction has shown such a dramatic growth in the number of injuries associated with it.

William Kitzes, the agency's program manager for sports and recreation, said only bicycles will account for more injuries this year. There are about 80 million bicycle riders, compared to 20 million skateboarders.

Kitzes said in a telephone interview this week that more than 25 percent of all skateboard accidents occur on the first

He said the skateboard report, which won't be finished until next month, shows that only 2 percent of the injuries result from defects in the skateboards.

Most injuries come from skaters' inexperience or problems such as potholes. About 40 percent of those hurt went to hospital emergency rooms, Kitzes said. Of those treated, 30 percent broke an arm or leg and 24 per cent had cuts and bruises, while strains and sprains accounted for 18 percent of the injuries.

The commission previously reported up to 90 miles an hour that riders can there were 13 skateboard deaths between 1973 and last April.

The number of skateboards has grown from about 14 million in 1975 to 20 million in 1976, the commssion said.

Skateboards have been around in some form since the 1950s, Kitzes said. But the early models allowed only a straight ride not the turning, weaving and speeds of

The safety commission's options range from banning the product to safety cam-

Kitzes suggests that riders wear safety equipment, such as helmets and pads. The full commission will consider the growing skateboard problem in three or
