Patty Registers As Felon

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Patricia Hearst, reportedly a guest of Frank Sinatra in Las Vegas last weekend, registered with police as a convicted felon as is required, police records show.

MISS HEARST

Miss Hearst is free on $1.2 million bond pending her appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court of her conviction on bank robbery charges.

All felons planning to stay in the city for more than 48 hours are required to register, according to a local ordinance.

Miss Hearst attended one of Sinatra's shows at Caesars Palace and was said to have been at ringside for last Saturday night's heavyweight boxing match between Ken Norton and Jimmy Young.

Kennedy Grandchild Still Nameless

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The parents of the first member of a new generation of Kennedys say they want to get to know their daughter better before naming her.

The 8-pound, 9-ounce girl was born Monday to Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, 26, daughter of Ethel Kennedy and the late Sen. Robert Kennedy.

The baby's father, David Townsend, 29, a faculty member at St. Johns College of Santa Fe, helped his wife in the natural childbirth at their home near here.

Nureyev Receives Support

LONDON (AP) — Organizers of a petition drive asking the Soviet government to let ballet star Rudolph Nureyev's family visit him say they have received 107,000 signatures, including many who are famous in the arts.

NUREYEV

The petition will be given to Soviet embassies in Washington and London Thursday, and to the United Nations in New York and 10 Downing Street, official London home of British Prime Minister James Callaghan.

Eleven top British ballerinas, all who have danced with Nureyev, will present the petition in London.

Among those signing are artist Andy Warhol, conductor Leonard Bernstein, playwright Edward Albee, and actors Sir John Gielgud, Peter O'Toole, Yul Brynner, Glenda Jackson, Sarah Miles, Lauren Bacall and Ingrid Bergman.

Nureyev defected 16 years ago. There have been numerous attempts to get the Soviets to allow his 74-year-old mother, his sister and his niece to visit him.

David Carradine Breaks Nose

TEL AVIV (AP) — During a sparring match while filming the movie "Silent Flute," David Carradine, star of the television series "Kung Fu," had his nose broken.

Carradine's nose fell victim to a kick by Kam Yuen, technical adviser and bit actor in the film.

Doctors at a local hospital straightened Carradine's nose and said he would return to the set in several days.

Mayor Writing Instructional Book

SEATTLE (AP) — When Wes Uhlman moved into the Seattle mayor's office eight years ago, his predecessor introduced him around City Hall and "wished me good luck," says Uhlman.

But the mayor, who is not running for re-election this year, says he plans to do better for his successor.

Uhlman is spending his final weeks in office writing a book — a volume, he says, outlining what the mayor of Seattle needs to know.

R.W. "Woody" Wilkinson, head of the transition team, says 104 key issues have been listed for the newcomer.

"We'll miss a few. And some more will pop up. And a new mayor will accidentally lock himself into still more," Wilkinson said. "But this will be a start."

Putting The Squeeze on 'Squeeze'

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — The battle over where Squeeze, the snake, has slithered up at the University of New Hampshire.

Controversy over the six-foot-long boa constrictor's home began a couple of weeks ago when its owner, Tom Keegan, 21, of Laconia, N.H., was told Squeeze no longer could live in Keegan's dormitory.

A woman, one of 49 students living in the dorm, told university officials she didn't like having Squeeze as a neighbor.

So David Bianco, director of university life, sent Keegan a letter saying, in part, that Squeeze could harm other students.

But, Keegan said: "Squeeze isn't dangerous. I'd like to take the snake to Dave (Bianco) and show him that it's harmless."

Armed Mugger Unaware Of Victim's Identity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mugger who pointed a gun at Heyward Isham on a Washington street didn't know the intended victim was the nation's chief anti-terrorist official.

The director of the new State Department Office for Combating Terrorism quickly launched a counterattack when confronted near his home Monday by the armed mugger and a companion.

Isham fought back with his wife's umbrella and a window shade he was holding, and then gave chase. At a lighted intersection, the armed man turned and fired, hitting Isham in the thigh.

The two men then fled and are still at large, police report.

"A lot of these fellows, if you call their bluff, they run. And I decided I would do that," Isham said Tuesday from his hospital bed.

"I decided to go on the offensive and since I had those two instruments with me, I attacked him with the window shade ... thought I would just surprise them."

Board Told Tax Boost Needed

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A consultant told the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District Board of Directors Tuesday the board would have to approve a tax increase to implement his suggestions for a more effective governing body.

A Wayne Wyatt, a natural resources specialist hired by the district about two months ago to evaluate its operations, told the board it would cost $127,000 over its 1978 budget of $314,000 to add staff members and programs he said the district needs.

Wyatt said the district should allow yearly salaries of $30,000 for a district manager, $10,000 for a draftsman, $12,000 for an education director and $12,000 for an engineer or geologist.

In addition, Wyatt told the board in its regular meeting, the district should activate a public education program reaching every level of public schools in its 15-county jurisdiction which would have an annual cost of $22,000, draw up technical reports at a cost of $18,000 and monitor the quality of underground water near possible pollutant activities such as feedlots and oil drillings at an annual cost of $7,000.

The specialist from Austin also said some of the district's vehicles need to be replaced at a cost of $12,000 and that $4,000 needs to be spent for an employee health insurance program.

Wyatt said that to meet the additional expenditures the board would have to approve a tax hike from the present 3 cents per $100 property evaluation to 5 cents. The district had just lowered the tax from 5 cents to the present rate.

No formal action was taken by the board Tuesday. Wyatt said he will have the study completed within this month and the report will be studied further at the board's Dec. 13 meeting.

Wyatt said the district would be able to operate with his proposals through 1978, but "the district would be in the red by the end of 1979." He said he felt the tax increase should be passed next year and that the district could possibly lower the rate to 4 cents per $100 evaluation at a later time.

The district's present 1978 budget allows $141,000 for regular expenses, $151,000 for staff salaries and a $22,000 settlement with former district manager Frank Rayner, who resigned his post in August.

Clifford Thompson is acting manager until a replacement is found for Rayner.

A rough draft of Wyatt's report also calls for a better bookkeeping system to keep closer track of the district's activity expenses.

The report also called for a better public information program which would list state agencies dealing with underground water in the area, list registered water well drillers in the area and give information on how to construct a safe water supply source.

Wyatt said the education program would include circulating comics and coloring books relating to water conservation to elementary and junior high school students, plus films and other literature throughout the school system dealing with conservation of water supply.

In other business the board voted Jan. 21, 1978, as the election date for board directors. The board approved 22 water well permits and a complete set of tools for each of the district's four field workers.

Nevada Inmate Wins Parole From Board

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — A 25-year-old state prison inmate, serving time for stealing a $7,000 gold cane belonging to stuntman Evel Knievel, has won release from the state Pardons Board.

The board this week agreed to parole Gregory Eliades of Sparks, Nev., if he seeks counseling.

The diamond-studded cane disappeared while Knievel was showing off his "skycycle" in Sparks in December 1974. Eliades told authorities he borrowed the cane to show his friends and when he returned with the cane the next morning Knievel was gone.

Police later found the cane in a pawn shop and arrested Eliades, who was given a four year prison sentence.

SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW — Vietnam recently. The area was heavily bombed during the Vietnam War, and this bridge, like many others, was speedily reconstructed by using the ruins of the old bridge as a base for the new one. (AP Laserphoto)

President's Statements Under Careful Scrutiny

By FRANK CORMIER
 WASHINGTON (AP) — A man who campaigns successfully for the presidency with a promise that "I will never lie to you" must expect to have his words scrutinized with care, even nitpicking care.

It should come as no surprise to President Carter, therefore, that a six-week-old statement he made about Richard Helms, the former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has been put under reportorial microscopes.

The aim of the exercise has been to determine whether Carter is developing the kind of credibility gap that plagued some of his predecessors.

On Sept. 29, Carter told a broadcast news conference that Attorney General Griffin Bell "has not consulted with me" about bringing possible criminal charges against Helms, whose testimony before a Senate committee about CIA intervention in Chile's internal affairs had become a subject of official inquiry.

Of the several million Americans who heard, saw or read Carter's statement, perhaps a thousand had a deep interest in the case at the time.

Now, it is fair to assume, more thousands have at least some interest in the Helms matter, which became a front page news item last week when he pleaded no contest in federal court here to two criminal misdemeanor charges that he had failed to testify fully and accurately.

Part of the fresh interest has been prompted by a seeming contradiction between Carter's Sept. 29 statement and one made by Bell on Nov. 1.

To explore the matter chronologically, here is what happened:

At his September meeting with reporters, Carter was told that Bell had promised to consult with the president about Helms. Asked for his own views, Carter replied:

"He (Bell) has not consulted with me, nor given me any advice on the Helms question. I am familiar with it through reading the press...."

Last week, in an effort to defend the administration's decision to plea bargain with Helms and avoid a trial that might lead to disclosure of CIA secrets, Bell told reporters he indeed had consulted

For two days last week, at regular White House press briefings, Carter's deputy press secretary Rex Granum and the top spokesman, Jody Powell, labored at reconciling what might appear irreconcilable.

Granum first reported that Carter, at the time of the news conference, understood that the July 25 meeting had been disclosed publicly by Powell. Therefore, Granum argued, the president assumed the question addressed to him dealt with possible consultations with Bell subsequent to July 25.

Acknowledging that the July meeting never was announced, Granum said Powell "has a very strong recollection that he made that public in (informal) discussions with reporters...."

No reporter has come forward to acknowledge any such discussion with Powell, who later said he could not recall the names of any reporters involved. Moreover, neither the White House nor reporters assigned there can cite any published or broadcast report concerning the July conference. If some reporters were told about it, they apparently kept it secret.

Echoing Granum's explanation, Powell told reporters, "I could be wrong about that, but that is my impression and it also was the president's impression."

Barraged with questions, Powell finally conceded, "There's no way I can prove to you beyond all reasonable question... our good intentions in the matter."

True enough — which is why Jimmy Carter may find himself with a credibility fissure, if hardly a chasm.

Analysis

with Carter on July 25, more than two months before the president's news conference.

By Bell's account, accepted by the White House, he and Carter were joined at the July meeting by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, presidential foreign policy adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Assistant Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti and one or two others.

On that occasion, Bell reported, "the president authorized us to determine the feasibility and possibility" of initiating plea bargaining with Helms — a statement that also is accepted as truth by White House spokesmen.

Bell's account is, on its face, difficult to square with Carter's September pronouncement that he knew about the Helms case "through reading in the press," not to mention Carter's claim that the attorney general "has not consulted with me."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Treat obstacles that block the path to your goals with humor tomorrow. Once you see how ridiculous they are it will defuse potential frustrations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The less demanding you are tomorrow, the more willing others will be to help you. Let the idea originate with them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Relationships important to you should be very enjoyable tomorrow. The only thing that could spoil it would be your possessive behavior.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tomorrow, aim only for your biggest and most worthwhile targets. Above all, don't let any detractor dishearten you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be a far better closer tomorrow than you will be an opener. Even if you get off on the wrong foot, you won't have any trouble making the sale.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A promising situation looks like it will come off as both parties hope. Just keep the risk-taking to a minimum.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Decisions made hastily or under pressure are apt to be erroneous tomorrow. Where you study issues carefully, your judgment is superb.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions relating to your earning power will be extremely beneficial tomorrow. Look around for ways to fatten your pay check through some unique twist.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will possess the ability to do things in a big way tomorrow. Success is likely, but it may cost a shade more than you anticipated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Persons pertinent to your special needs tomorrow can be led, but not pushed or cajoled. If you keep this in mind you'll meet no resistance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Associates in general, and friends in particular, will be eager to be helpful tomorrow. However, don't expect someone you've had trouble with to fall into this category.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you let events run their natural course tomorrow you'll be quite lucky. Keep buttinskis out of the picture. They might derail the gravy train.

Nov. 10, 1977

This coming year you are likely to do things on a far grander scale than in the past. This could mean a bigger residence, longer trips and a wider range of acquaintances.

Committee Of Biologists Favors New Search For Life On Mars

By AL ROSSITER JR.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Confused by the ambiguous findings of Project Viking, a committee of biologists recommends that the federal space agency plan new space expeditions to search the most hospitable places on Mars for signs of life.

A new report by the National Academy of Sciences committee on planetary biology and chemical evolution says it has become increasingly unlikely that the yes-and-no biology results from last year's Viking landings indicate the presence of martian life.

But the panel says it cannot be ruled out that some positive signals from the spacecraft were produced by living systems. And the scientists said it also is possible, though remote, that Viking just missed any living creatures at the two landing sites.

The biologists, in their report, say there are three more possibilities concerning life on Mars:

- Life exists elsewhere on, or beneath, the planet's surface.
- Life evolved at some earlier time but no longer exists.
- Life never evolved and the planet has always been lifeless.

"These three possibilities are all questions of fundamental biological importance," the committee says.

Those three questions form the basis for the panel's recommendation that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration begin planning for post-Viking expeditions to answer once and for all the question of life on Mars.

NASA had hoped to follow up last summer's twin Viking landings with the landing in 1984 of more advanced robots, equipped to roam the Martian surface to carry out scientific investigations. Budget restrictions, however, have all but killed such a mission for at least two more years.

The academy committee noted that some Viking findings enhance the possibility of current or past life on Mars and others diminish the possibility of life there today.

The pro-life findings are that water once flowed on the surface, that large amounts of ice are almost certainly locked in the rock and soil of the planet, that salts exist on the surface and that nitrogen exists in Mars' thin atmosphere.

The factors against current life are the lack of detectable organic compounds in surface material, the presence of strong oxidizing compounds in the soil and the low probability that liquid water exists on Mars today.

The panel recommended that the next Mars mission examine subsurface soil samples from areas likely to contain water-deposited sediments, areas bordering the planet's polar ice caps and from terrain likely to cover frozen ground.

How this should be done is a major problem. The panel said soft landing craft like the Vikings can best carry instruments to carry out the necessary biological investigations, but they may not be able to reach the areas of most interest. New spacecraft that would crash land on Mars could reach those areas, but might not be able to carry the necessary instruments.

Allotments To Rise For Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Increases in food prices this spring and summer will mean a boost in food stamp allotments Jan. 1 of between 2 and 3 percent.

That works out to $2 a month more in grocery-buying power for low-income singles and couples and $4 to $6 for larger families.

The Agriculture Department, in announcing the adjustments Tuesday, also reminded the 5.13 million households receiving the aid that high winter heating bills can cut the amount of money a family must pay for the coupons.

The law requires that eligibility, allotment and purchase requirements must be adjusted every six months to partially compensate for inflation.

Levels were last adjusted July 1, based on February cost of living figures. The Jan. 1 changes reflect the differences between February and August prices.

Because of the allotment change Jan. 1, the typical family of three persons now on the rolls will pay $58 beginning for $138 worth of coupons a month to redeem for food. The same $58 now buys $134 in stamps.

What a household pays and whether it is eligible at all depends on its net income — what's left from earnings or welfare after a clerk deducts rent, utilities, medical bills and other basic expenses.

There is no gross income limit under current rules for the $5.4 billion-a-year program. In the example used above, the net income ceiling for eligibility also will be adjusted, rising from $447 a month to $460.

Allotments, which vary by family size, are based on the prices of foods in a model marketbasket designed to reflect both low-income consumers' buying habits and the family's nutritional needs. Income ceilings are based on USDA definitions of poverty.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said recipients will be advised on how to have their purchase price adjusted for higher winter utility bills.

States using a standard utility deduction for all families must make sure their figures reflect current fuel costs, Miss Foreman said.

States administer the program under USDA supervision.

Despite the urgings of groups representing the poor, a new law revamping the 13-year-old program and ending the

Dressage Club Slates Clinic, Horse Trials

A clinic and horse trials will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at The Lubbock Equestrian Meadows, located in the Canyon Lakes south of Parkway Drive.

The event is being sponsored by the West Texas Dressage and Combined Training Association, Inc.

Maj. Gen. Jonathan R. Burton, executive vice president and member of the board of directors of the United States Equestrian Team, Inc., will teach the clinic and judge the trials.

Burton rode on the last military Olympic team in 1948 and has been active in USET activities since then. He also has been on the board of governors of the United States Pony Clubs, Inc., of which Lubbock's South Plains Pony Club is a chapter. He also has written an instructor's manual for the Pony Club organization.

The clinic and horse trials are being held on a 50-acre piece of property in the Canyon Lakes project. The first phase of the cross country jumping course is almost complete. Sign-ups still are available with the Lubbock Parks and Recreation Department.

Persons wishing to participate in the clinic and horse trials may park horse trailers at the Panhandle South Plains Fair Association grounds. Officials of the city's parks and recreation department have requested that trailers not be parked in the Canyon Lakes grounds.

A film of the gold medal performance of USET members at the 1976 Bromont, Canada, Olympic event will be shown at the Reese Air Force Base Officer's Club Friday night. A donation charge of $1 per person will be charged for the film which will be given to the USET.

House Buying Involves Mysterious Language

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) — After years of battling about the globe in rented rooms, unfurnished flats and leased apartments, this itinerant typewriter tinker has settled down and bought a house, his very first.

It's on a ridge in Ridgefield, Conn., overlooking the price and a school bus stop, and it wasn't easy.

Joining the landed gentry involves more than just the carefree tossing of checks into the middle of the table at a colorful ritual called "the closing," which ends when you run out of checks, everyone shakes hands and they turn over a bunch of keys that don't fit anything.

"Now it's yours," says the real estate man. "No, it's mine," says the banker. And everyone hugs everyone and his wallet.

But long before that stage is reached, the incipient country squire must master a whole new language that consists almost entirely of acronyms and abbreviations, lightly marinated in alphabet soup and spiced with larcenous hyperbole.

Jean Francois Champollion, the French scholar who unlocked the thoughts of Ptolemy V on the Rosetta stone that Napoleon's soldiers plucked from the mud of the Nile, might have warmed up for his biggie by translating the classified real estate ads in any American newspaper.

Lacking the French wizard's knowledge of Arabic, Coptic, Hebrew and ancient Greek, the prospective home buyer is up a tree, if the property has one, in unlocking the classified secrets of "R-rnch, 3 BR, Lrg LRW-cat beam cl, WSFP, form DR, 1 1/2 ctb, ctry kit, fm rc room, fin bsmt, att gar, CAC."

Deciphered at only 6 percent by your friendly neighborhood cryptographer and real estate agent, this "Absolute steal at $87,000" breaks down to: Raised ranch, three bedrooms, large living room with cathedral beam ceiling and working stone fireplace, formal dining room, one and a half colored tile baths, country kitchen, family recreation room, finished basement, attached garage and central air conditioning.

By this time, an ASS might seem like a self-acusation to the timid house hunter, but it actually connotes Aluminum storm windows and screens. And FAH isn't a government-backed mortgage but forced air heating.

Further code-busting reveals that a Fil SP is a filtered swimming pool, and a par-pan-fam-rm is a partially paneled family room. DF and jdw connote deep freeze and dish washer, while w & d is a washer and dryer, so Rfg must be a refrigerator and DH maybe a doghouse.

Language is one thing and meaning is another, as Sen. S. I. Hayakawa and the other learned semanticists have been saying for years. Real estate rhetoric is rife with subtlety if not outright fraud.

It takes a heap of chutzpah to make a house a "Handyman's Special," which usually means the buyer had better come from a long line of stone masons, plumbers, electricians, carpenters and second mortgage guarantors. Slightly less flimsy is "the great starter house," which hut-wise gives you a head start on your average Amazonian aborigine.

"Mint condition" requires the same of your bank account, and "gardener's delight" opens up vistas of rolling acres and dense vegetation rarely seen this far north of the tropical rain forests.

The last "convenient to everything" offering we inspected was behind the supermarket, across from the all-night gas station and just around the bend from the town dump, which was next to the parking lot for snow plows and school buses.

"Great family neighborhood" warns that the last five occupants moved out because of the marauding urchins on the block, especially when the ad begins: "Immaculate ranch family relocating." Even an urban family that wanted to stay pure would beat it to the sticks from this one.

"Adorable" translates to cramped with two closets. "Investment potential" means you'd better unload fast, the way we did. "Hidden Charm" may take years to find, and the difference between a "Rustic Hideaway" and a "Commuters Dream" is usually seven miles of winding, narrow roads vs. 26 trains whistling through your backyard each dawn and dusk.

"Cheapest empor," buyer beware, as the Latin small print used to say on those big billboards along the Appian Way offering villas for sale under such headings as "Charioteers Choice," "Handy to Forum" and "Si Vivas Hoc Locum sis Nunc In Domo": If you lived here, you'd be home now. So what if it's next to the lions cage and just up the road from the Colosseum?

Hospitals Cut Costs By Sharing

By JAMES J. DOYLE
NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A hospital group has found a way of providing sophisticated diagnostic equipment to hospitals that otherwise would be unable to buy it — sharing one machine among several hospitals.

American Medicorp., Inc., headquartered in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., faced with prohibitive equipment cost and bucking state and federal regulations, has put eight full-body X-ray scanners in seven of its 54 facilities around the country.

In Southern California where Medicorp owns or manages 17 hospitals from its regional headquarters here, the company operates an equipment sharing system that provides scanner service for 13 of the facilities.

"We believe that for a good portion of our hospitals a scanner would contribute greatly to overall patient care," John Bradley, Medicorp's western divisional director said. "But the cost is such — half a million dollars or more — individual hospitals can't afford them."

In addition to the prohibitive cost of the machine, modifying or building housing for the large sophisticated x-ray machines would cost $100,000.

Also, a hospital just can't go out and buy a scanner even if it has the money.

"The government says anything over $150,000 would require a certificate of need justifying the expense," he said. "And the state has pretty well declared it would not approve very many scanners at all — believing the duplication of this expense is not in the best interest of containing costs."

Bradley described the General Electric full-body scanners as "the latest in diagnostic technology."

The problem with the state's philosophy, he said, "is that hospitals that could use them are denied their availability. Our two hospitals that presently have the scanners originally were denied them on the basis it was more than the state would authorize."

"We don't support that position," Bradley said. "But we suggested we would share the cost of the scanner among six hospitals in Los Angeles County and six in Orange County."

The state correctly applauded that idea of sharing cost and sharing availability."

Medicorp has established the sharing concept in other hospitals around the country with the service available to many facilities other than their own.

"But there's the proverbial bad news with the good news," Bradley said.

It is sometimes difficult to have the machine available for patients not in the same hospital — and in the case of head injuries moving the patient could be dangerous.

Bradley said the scanner is superior in determining the extent of head injuries.

"So you have to say that even though sharing is good and restraining cost is good, in the best interests of the patient, every hospital should have at least a head scan unit."

"It's not too often the whole body is involved in emergency conditions, but a head scan frequently is used on an emergency basis."

Bradley said the "certificate of need" legislation state and federal regulations have imposed upon hospitals states that if a hospital is to be reimbursed through Medicaid or Medicare and keep its license, it must seek state approval for any expenditure over $150,000.

The per-patient cost for a whole body scan is $325, he said.

"But the more it is used the less it costs. The concept is to be able to get this volume up by sharing."

House Members Reconsidering Provisions Of Reform Package

By GENE BERNHARDT
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the public pressure for reform behind them, some House members are restless over what they consider were excesses they were forced to swallow early this year. Now, they are looking for a way out.

The single reform that really sticks in the legislative craw is that $8,625-a-year limit on certain outside income that was in the package of reforms approved last March.

A search is earnestly under way on how to undo that little item before it goes into effect in January 1979 to coincide with the new 96th Congress.

The Wayne Hays-Elizabeth Ray scandal of the summer of 1976 was still fresh when the current Congress organized in January and the South Korean bribe scandal was blossoming. On top of that, Congress accepted that $12,900-a-year members taking taxpayer financed junkets and abolition of the right to accumulate the annual $2,000-a-year stationary allowance and take it with them when they retired.

The Commission on Administrative Review, with Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., as chairman, thought up those reforms and what Congress does Congress can repeal.

The House, on Oct. 31, voted to extend the life of the Select Committee on Ethics, created into statutory law those reforms needing it. As originally approved, the reforms were changes in House rules which do not have the affect of law.

Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn., said on Oct. 31, "I think there should be some mechanism for reconsideration of some of the provisions of the Obey Commission proposal.

"This member will investigate every avenue where we might have the ability and the opportunity to re-evaluate what this House did earlier in this session," Quillen said.

Just what "some of the provisions" were that Quillen had in mind were not enunciated, but members privately are grumbling about that limit on outside income. It is 15 percent of their $57,500-a-year congressional pay, but it has certain exemptions for so-called "unearned income," such as that deriving from stocks.

The financial disclosure provision went into effect Oct. 1, requiring members to start preparing records then for filing and public inspection by April 30, 1978, with filings required every three months thereafter.

The reports must show the source of any income over $100, gifts with a value of $100 or more, property holdings which includes stocks and bonds over $1,000, liabilities over $2,500 and property transactions that exceed $1,000.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill told reporters recently that one member, whom he would not identify, told of his concern over the financial disclosure statements.

"He said he did not mind that the public would see that he was a wealthy man, but he was sincerely concerned that it would subject his children, his wife and perhaps himself to the possibility of kidnapping," O'Neill said.

The outside income limitation, however, has no such humanitarian concern. But it's a safe bet it will be the first of the reforms of 1977 to go by the board in 1978.

U.S.-British Peace Plan In Trouble

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an analysis of the chances of the Rhodesian peace plan drawn up by the United States and Great Britain.)

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — The joint Anglo-American peace plan for Rhodesia looks like it's on the rocks.

Field Marshal Lord Carver, the man appointed by Britain to end Rhodesia's five-year guerrilla war, returns home this week from a swing through Rhodesia and black African nations with little or no progress to report.

None of the major roadblocks in the way of a transfer of power to a black majority government in 1978 has been solved — or looks anywhere near being solved.

The major decision facing the British government is whether to make still another attempt at an agreement between Rhodesia's white minority and black majority or let them fight it out on the battlefield.

It is a safe bet Britain will make no decision without new consultations with the United States, which has supported the plan throughout.

It also is certain both London and Washington will exhaust every possibility of a negotiated settlement before leaving the Rhodesians to fight it out in a war the British government has warned could plunge southern Africa into a bloodbath.

But there still is no indication of what new diplomatic initiative is possible.

The Anglo-American plan, published Sept. 1, called for Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith to step down, the stationing of a U.N. force in Rhodesia for six months before transfer of power, holding of free elections on a one-man, one-vote basis and ultimate replacement of Smith's armed forces by a new army recruited mainly from the present nationalist guerrillas.

Carver, named as resident commissioner for the transition period, met with Smith, all the nationalist leaders and most of the presidents of the front line states surrounding Rhodesia during his swing through southern Africa.

But about all he and Smith appear to have agreed upon was the need to end the guerrilla conflict.

Smith has rejected a proposal that responsibility for law and order be transferred to the guerrillas before elections. He says this is not negotiable.

The leaders of the nationalist Patriotic Front, Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, want power handed over to them before elections and they object to it being held by Carver during the interim period.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabaningwe Sithole, leaders of the rival African National Council, first want elections which they are confident would give them a landslide victory.

Carver will report to British Foreign Secretary David Owen after his return to London later this week. British officials say it is too early yet to say whether he will go back to Africa for yet another try to reach a negotiated settlement.

Girl's Testimony Frees Defendant In Rape Trial

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

They say it only happens on Perry Mason. But, it happened Tuesday at the Lubbock County Courthouse.

Most trials are fairly routine events, albeit fraught with high drama for the parties directly concerned.

Occasionally the drama grips spectators, however, particularly when an individual's character is laid bare and changes on the witness stand.

The key actor in the drama in a court room here Tuesday was a 13-year-old East Lubbock girl who was all too conscious of the eyes that were upon her.

The girl struggled with herself—but, in the end, an apparent lie she had lived with for well over a year was expelled in a rush of sobs and an indescribable weight was lifted from the shoulders of an innocent man.

The girl sat at the stand, the chief witness against the accused. She wore a red t-shirt with a pair of giant footprints on the front.

If she had ever been run over, figuratively, in real life, the scars were psychic and invisible.

But they would not be for long.

The defendant was on trial for the alleged rape of a child, and the girl, the complainant, had been just 12 when she had been examined at a local hospital and given police her story.

At questioning from prosecutor Jim

Darnell, the witness told her story again. She said the defendant—a man of 34 or 35 who sat quietly at the counsel table, occasionally touching his eyes with a handkerchief—had pushed her into the bedroom of an East Lubbock home and stripped her, after locking the door.

She said the man had placed her on the bed.

Then, in response to the carefully couched queries from the prosecutor she had affirmed that she and the man had had sexual intercourse.

It was time to cross-examine.

Burly defense lawyer Jim Alexander looked the part of a heavy as he started trying to point out discrepancies in the girl's testimony. He asked why the young witness had differed on certain details when she had been interviewed by police.

The girl's head sank, the sympathies of most in the courtroom probably with her.

Suddenly, Alexander asked the witness if she had ever told to other people that another person, not the defendant, had initiated sexual activity with her.

The girl at first indicated she had not. Alexander snapped: "Didn't you say you would get up on this witness stand and tell the truth even if (alluding to an individual not the defendant) was going to go to the penitentiary?"

"Yes," the girl whispered.

"The defendant never touched you, did he?" the lawyer pressed.

The girl sat silently, slowly shaking her head from side to side.

"Your honor, if her answer was no and I believe it was, we respectfully ask that charges against my client be dismissed," Alexander said, standing.

The presiding judge ordered the jury from the courtroom.

The girl repeated the answers she had just given prosecutor Darnell who had taken over the questioning that another man had forced her to have sex.

The judge, on a joint motion from prosecution and defense, dismissed the charge against the defendant.

After the jury left, the girl and the man she had accused sat within two feet of each other. The girl was sobbing.

"I feel like I could fly," the recent defendant said as soon as he walked outside the courtroom.

"You see things like that on Perry Mason but I've never seen a witness change a story like that," said a lawyer with more than 20 years experience.

The sudden development meant there was hardly a trial—but, in another sense, maybe the girl had undergone her own trial and come out the winner.

The footprints were still on the front of her shirt. But something else, a torturing thing which had apparently been bottled up over long months, was also outside at last.

Vote Ends Hail Suppression Controversy

Hale County voters Tuesday almost assuredly put an end to the controversy over weather modification activities that has raged over the South Plains for more than eight years in one of three special elections called in area counties.

Disgruntled Howard County residents, upset over the recent publicity over the closing of Big Spring's Webb Air Force Base, downed a move supported predominantly by Big Spring residents that would have authorized county officials to spend 5 cents of the county property tax on each $100 valuation for advertising and promotion of Howard County.

However, voters overwhelmingly approved a $4 million bond issue to support Scurry County's Cogdell Memorial Hospital in Snyder to relieve the already overcrowded facility from further problems.

Hale County's defeat of a special proposition authorizing the Texas Water Commission to issue a permit to Plains Weather Improvement Association of Plainview effectively ended that company's efforts at hail suppression.

The final vote count was 1,732 against the issuance of a permit to PWIA to 1,416 votes in favor.

PWIA's permit request was filed with the Texas Water Commission in October, only a month after elections in many South Plains counties forced the Texas Water Development Board to withdraw permits for PWIA and Atmospheric, Inc., of Littlefield.

Voters casting ballots in those elections were overwhelmingly against the two firms' operations, and, as a result, Atmospheric removed their operations from the South Plains. PWIA's new permit would have authorized hail suppression flights over Hale County and portions of Swisher, Lamb, Castro and Floyd Counties.

In all but four of the precincts involved, voters had approved of the operations in prior elections, but since Hale County lies in the heart of PWIA's proposed new target area, the remaining sectors would be split down the middle by a county where flights can no longer be legally conducted.

responsible for the defeat of a measure that would have allowed Howard County commissioners to use a portion of the county property tax to advertise and promote the county in hopes of attracting industry.

With all boxes in late Tuesday, voters downed the proposition 687 votes against to 620 votes for, from a possible 17,000 registered voters.

The move was supported mainly by Big Spring residents now feeling the impact of Webb's closing earlier this year.

In Scurry County, voters overwhelmingly approved of an emergency measure granting the issuance of $4 million in bonds to finance construction and renovation of Snyder's Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

By a vote of 1,150 for to 440 against, residents there gave permission for construction that will add 50 beds to the 99-bed facility that has had no vacancies for several months.

Also to be added are an emergency room, a physical therapy room and a medical records center.

Hospital administrator Cy Miller said the bond issuance would relieve crowded halls at the facility now, but that the additional facilities would not be finished until Sept., 1979.

Haunted House Loses $400 Human Skeleton

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A human skeleton and a few other assorted items are missing from the March of Dimes Haunted House.

Police said Tuesday someone had entered the house since it was locked after Halloween.

The skeleton, on loan from the University of Nebraska Medical Center, was valued at $400. The value of other items taken — some props and sound equipment — was $360.

Byrne Comeback Highlights Off-Year Elections

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

A political miracle in New Jersey — the Brendan Byrne comeback campaign — highlighted off-year elections Tuesday in which insurgents captured city halls in New York, Cleveland and Minneapolis.

In the Virginia governor's mansion, as well as the Detroit mayor's office, voters went with the status quo.

Gov. Byrne came out fighting on the income tax issue that had made him vulnerable and capped his year-long comeback with a landslide over Republican challenger Raymond Bateman.

They called him "one-term Byrne," but Tuesday night he celebrated to the theme song from "Rocky," the movie about a prizefighter who scrapped his way to a championship bout.

Lt. Gov. John Dalton made it three terms in a row for the Republicans in Virginia, succeeding Mills Godwin with his decisive defeat of Democratic populist Henry Howell.

President Carter had made personal appearances during the campaign for both Byrne and Howell.

And in New York, Rep. Edward Koch completed his rise from underdog to mayor, knocking off Mario Cuomo as well as hapless Republican and Conservative party candidates in the finale. He will succeed Abraham Beame who was ousted in September's Democratic primary.

Koch, who had a meager 6 percent recognition rating in Gotham when he began campaigning for mayor, told a swarm of supporters, "Tonight we've arrived." Beame was at his side.

Dennis Kucinich, the 31-year-old Democratic maverick from Cleveland, becomes the nation's youngest mayor following his narrow victory over party candidate Edward Feighan, who is 30. They upset Republican incumbent Ralph Perk in last month's primary.

In Minneapolis, former mayor Albert Hofstede battled incumbent Charles Stenvig, a former police officer, for the third time. This time Hofstede, a Humphrey-Mondale protege, retook city hall.

In other major races, Coleman Young was easily re-elected mayor of Detroit in a race between two black candidates, while black state Rep. Arthur O. Eve was squelched in his race for mayor of Buffalo.

Republican candidates won no major city hall elections on Tuesday, and with Byrne's victory in New Jersey, Democratic Party officials were satisfied.

"We're keeping what we had," said Kenneth Curtis, the Democratic party's national chairman, "and given the substantial numbers we had already, that's good."

"Given the circumstances under which Brendan Byrne had to win, his victory bodes particularly well for the 1980 elections," Curtis said.

Byrne, 53, was so far behind in the polls six months ago that he almost decided not to seek re-election. But he weathered a serious challenge in the Democratic primary and then closed steadily on Bateman.

The state's income tax, enacted under Byrne's prodding, became the leading issue of the campaign, with Byrne standing by it and Bateman saying he would veto any effort to extend the tax beyond its June 30 expiration.

As the Republicans were taking the Virginia governorship, the Democrats were developing a young star in Charles Robb. The son-in-law of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson was elected lieutenant governor on a large number of split ballots.

Dalton's chief thrust was the oft-repeated charge that Howell, a populist who pitched his campaign as much against the state's largest electric utility as against the Republicans, was too liberal for Virginia.

It was the third unsuccessful gubernatorial bid by Howell, a former lieutenant governor, but an especially sweet victory for Dalton, 46, whose father had failed in two bids for the governorship.

Democrats retained control of the legislatures in New Jersey and Virginia.

The elections left the Democrats with 37 governors and the GOP with 12, the record low for the modern era to which it slipped last year. There is one independent governor.

The New York election reaffirmed the Democrats' secure position in the nation's largest city. They had ousted their own incumbent in the primary, largely because of the city's financial problems under Mayor Abraham Beame.

Koch, 52, beat Cuomo twice to gain the nomination and built up a massive lead in the public opinion polls after Cuomo decided to continue the contest under the Liberal banner.

Here are returns from the major races:

NEW JERSEY: 88 percent of 5,589 precincts reporting.

—Byrne (D): 1,027,974 or 57.6 percent.

—Bateman (R): 755,257 or 42.4 percent.

VIRGINIA: 93 percent of 1,837 precincts:

—Dalton (R): 646,220, or 55.5 percent.

—Howell (D): 508,325, or 43.7 percent.

—Robb led Canada 606,887 to 509,665 with 93.1 percent of the vote counted in their race.

NEW YORK: 71 percent of 4,779 precincts:

—Koch (D): 484,354, or 49 percent.

—Cuomo (L): 412,415, or 42 percent.

—Goodman (R): 43,292, or 5 percent.

—Farber (C): 40,974, or 4 percent.

An Associated Press-NBC poll of more than 2,700 New York voters showed that Koch won predictable support from the city's liberals, Jews and members of minority groups.

An AP-NBC poll in New Jersey indicated that the income tax issue may actually have helped Byrne. A majority of the voters questioned as they left polling places said this was the major issue, and most of these said they voted for Byrne.

In Virginia the poll showed Dalton owed his strong victory to backing from the state's independent voters and defections among conservative Democrats.

In other important races Tuesday:

—Coleman Young, Detroit's first black mayor, easily won a second four-year term over challenger Ernest Browne Jr. It was the only major election Tuesday in which both candidates were black.

—In Houston, Frank Briscoe, a former district attorney, and former councilman Jim McConn captured spots in the Nov. 22 mayoral runoff.

—Democrat-Conservative James D. Griffin was elected mayor of Buffalo, quenching the hopes of Democratic nominee Arthur O. Eve to become the city's first black mayor.

—Maurice Ferre easily won re-election as mayor of Miami.

—J. Phillip Richley returned the Democrats to power in Youngstown, Ohio, for the first time in eight years.

—Erastus Corning II, the longest serving mayor in the nation, easily won a 10th term in Albany, N.Y.

—Lee Alexander, Democrat and president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, won a third four-year term in Syracuse, N.Y.

—Isabella Cannon, a 73-year-old retired librarian, became the first woman mayor of Raleigh, N.C.

—Independent Richard Caliguiri won election as mayor of Pittsburgh, beating Democrat Tom Foerster and Republican Joseph Cosetti.

—In Seattle, a one-time television commentator, Charles Royer, defeated former city official Paul Schell in the race for mayor.

—Democratic mayors were re-elected in Bridgeport, Hartford, New Haven and Waterbury, Conn., while the Republican mayor of Stamford, Conn., narrowly won a second term.

U.S. Voters Decide On Varied Issues

By the Associated Press

In Pittsburgh, they voted against clean air. In Oregon, it was thumbs down on solar energy. Ohio refused to ban leghold traps for animals, and Washington State gave porno the heave-ho.

Referenda, initiatives and constitutional amendments came before the people in communities across the country Tuesday. Some of the results may be significant; others may not.

When the people of Santa Rosa County in northern Florida voted to ban liquor, it did not change anything. They vote to stay dry in Santa Rosa whenever they get the chance.

Five of every seven voters in Allegheny County, Pa., were in favor of a measure that urged elected officials to "change federal environmental laws in order to preserve existing jobs in the steel industry."

Because there are 60,000 jobs directly related to steel production in the county, the vote was interpreted by some as a choice between employment and a cleaner environment. But opponents said Tuesday's vote could stall environmental improvements in the Pittsburgh area without bringing any benefits to workers.

Voters in Oregon turned down a measure that would have authorized $439 million in state bonds to develop energy from non-nuclear sources including the sun, wind and ocean tides. Nuclear energy plants have been unpopular in Oregon, and supporters of the bond proposal had hoped it would re-stimulate utility companies' investments in the state.

In Ohio, a constitutional amendment to ban the use of leghold traps was a 2-to-1 loser. Animal humane societies had backed the proposal, but there was heavy

Voters In Florida Ban Sales Of Liquor

MIAMI (AP) — Alcoholic beverages were put on ice — twice — when Floridians voted to keep one county dry and recommended that beer be kept out of the Orange Bowl.

In Santa Rosa County in the Panhandle, residents voted by a 4-3 margin against liquor sales. It was nothing new for Santa Rosa, which also voted to stay dry in 1966 and in 1972.

The vote was 8,147 against and 5,624 in favor.

In Miami, the vote was not really decisive. First of all, the margin was only one-hundredth of 1 percent, 13,097 to 13,095, and there still were 29 absentee votes to be counted today. Secondly, it was only a straw vote, not binding on anyone.

Israeli Committees Studying Criminal Activity

By ALLEN ALTER
 JERUSALEM (UPI) — Crime is not new to the land of the Bible. But Israelis have been shaken by rumors of a U.S. syndicate-style crime network headed by a Mafia-type "godfather" with connections in high places.

Within the past three months, authorities appointed two high-level committees to probe criminal activity in the Jewish state.

According to latest available official statistics, the exploits of the Israeli underworld makes those of the Biblical sin city of Sodom look tame.

Over-all, the 1976 national police report says, there has been a mere 0.4 percent increase in crime and even a marked drop in such crimes of violence as assault and rape.

But the number of armed robberies, murders, extortion and hard drugs crimes rose sharply.

Yet it was a young member of the Knesset (parliament) and not the grim, day-to-day crime reports, who produced a public outcry that led to the twin official probes.

"Neither the government nor the police were prepared to do anything of value," said Ehud Olmert of his campaign.

In a series of public appearances, Olmert stunned Israelis with allegations that there is a U.S.-syndicate-type crime network in the country. He cited the names of prominent Israelis, including former Gen. Rehavam Ze'evi, former anti-terrorism adviser to ousted Premier Yitzhak Rabin.

The newspaper Ha'aretz ran articles naming an alleged Israeli crime chieftain living in Brazil as the former "godfather" of the Israeli syndicate and pointing up his possible successor — a member of the Israeli parliament.

The first official probe was launched by police and took a month to complete. The police commission headed by assistant commander Michael Bochner produced a 154-page report acknowledging that "there is professional and sophisticated crime in Israel."

But it ruled out the existence of a Mafia-type boss-of-bosses.

"The facts are very bad no matter what name you give to them," admitted Yosef Burg, who oversees the police department in his role as interior minister in Prime Minister Menahem Begin's conservative government.

Burg ordered a follow-up investigation, this time by a cabinet-appointed committee to probe all aspects of crime in Israel and determine whether existing facilities are adequate to fight it. The investigation is still in progress and likely to continue for several weeks.

"This is an acute time in which the crime network is still vulnerable and something can be done against it," said Olmert, whose public disclosures led to threats on his life and introduced the term "olmertism" into Israeli slang.

It means a daring, public crusade.

After publication of the Bochner report, Burg announced a multimillion dollar campaign to strengthen the police crime-fighting capability and recently, 300 new jobs were created with special investigative and intelligence teams established to bolster the efforts.

"We expect some of those people whose names have been linked with crime to come before our committee," said Erwin Shimron, the head of the cabinet-appointed panel, following the publication of newspaper appeals to the public to come forth with information.

Olmert, for his part, still stands by the original charges he leveled including those made against Ze'evi.

"I'm more positive today than two months ago about what I said concerning crime in Israel," the young Likud member said.

Olmert recalled that he did not accuse Ze'evi of being a criminal but of being "a protector of criminals."

Still, the allegations about the ex-general brought a lawsuit against Olmert, who has offered to rescind his parliamentary immunity to face the charges in a Tel Aviv district court.

Another pending lawsuit is against Ha'aretz, whose reporter Avi Valantin authored the Israeli underworld expose. The suit was brought by Bezalel Mizrahi, who was cited by the newspaper as being heavily involved in crime.

Many Israelis are now awaiting the outcome of the libel suits and even more the findings of the Shimron committee. They may not be as overwhelming as the divine vengeance that was heaped on Sodom.

Two To Vie In Runoff At Houston

By ROB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Harris County Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe and onetime city councilman Jim McConn, who together spent about $895,000 on their campaigns, will meet in a Nov. 22 runoff for the $20,000-a-year job as mayor of Houston.

Briscoe, 51, known as a tough law-and-order conservative during his years in office, led McConn by some 16,000 votes, but that was only 32.9 percent of the ballots cast, far short of the 50 percent needed for an outright victory in this nonpartisan election.

Getting heavy support from the affluent westside of Houston, Briscoe took the lead from the first but, with no help from the black voters, failed to avoid the runoff.

McConn, 49, had a close call for the runnerup spot, besting Noble Ginther, a 44-year-old millionaire attorney-businessman making his first venture into politics, by about 4,000 votes.

Dick Gottlieb, 53, advertising company owner, television personality, and former city councilman, was another 2,000 votes behind.

The others in the 12-candidate race were never a factor, although Dana McNatt, an official of the Houston Nazi party, did carry one of the city's 323 precincts in getting 1,023 votes.

The race became a wide open affair when Mayor Fred Hofheinz refused to seek a third two-year term and took no active role in the campaigning.

About 24 percent of the city's registered 650,000 voters cast ballots on a day when heavy rains fell and tornadoes skipped around the outskirts of Houston causing minor property damage.

With 289 of the 323 precincts reporting the count for the leading candidates was: Briscoe 50,981; McConn 34,491; Ginther 30,279; and Gottlieb 28,141.

Briscoe, a double-cousin of Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, said, "We will run a strong runoff. It will be necessary to pick-up the tempo of the campaign. Fiscal responsibility and who can best handle the finances of the city is an issue. His (McConn's) spending suggestions are opposed to my ideas of how to save."

McConn said, "I will turn this around in the runoff campaign. We don't think Briscoe's buying a chicken in only one side of town is going to help him. We intend to be the mayor for all the city."

The last remark referred to the fact that Briscoe won 61.9 percent of the affluent westside vote but only 3.7 percent of the black vote.

McConn got 31.6 percent of the black vote. See NOV. 22 Page 14

Council To View Energy Matters

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Fuel cost pass-throughs, industrial rates for natural gas customers and a proposed interconnect between Lubbock Power and Light (LP&L) and a private firm will occupy Lubbock City Council attention Thursday.

During its work session, to begin at 9 a.m. in the Emergency Operation Center, the council will resume its discussion of modifying the automatic fuel cost pass-through method and of hiring a full-time rate analyst to make sure the utility companies' pass-throughs are justified.

Last month the council postponed its consideration of rate analysts and pass-throughs, evidently preferring to discuss the controversial matters in the informal work session.

At the request of Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, who also asked for modification of the pass-through, the council will consider setting industrial rates in lieu of gas company contracts with individual industries.

Through LP&L, the city currently is a customer of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. (PNG). If industrial rates were established, the city would become a regulatory agency instead of a customer.

Mrs. Jordan told The Avalanche-Journal that the purpose of industrial rates would be "to get out in the open what really is going on" with contracts and prices.

Lubbock cannot easily compare its PNG contract with others "to see if it's compatible," she said, explaining that rates and terms differ in each contract to make comparison difficult.

When asked whether the threat of industrial rates is being used to secure a better contract or willingness to accept a modified pass-through method, Mrs. Jordan said, "If we can't get something satisfactory going on the pass-through, I think that's the only way we have to control it."

Mayor Roy Bass, named with Mrs. Jordan to a council liaison committee to hash out a new contract with PNG, said he plans to set a negotiating session date Thursday.

The city currently has a five-year contract with PNG. The legal agreement is renewable each year, but the council so far has not ratified it for 1977 or for 1978. It is unknown what affect industrial rates would have on existing gas contracts.

PNG wants the contract to give its board of directors the option of raising by two cents per thousand cubic feet the base rate charged LP&L.

City council members and staffers oppose the option, saying the city already pays an excessively high base rate.

Haggling over the clause has stalled negotiations since January. The city continues to buy its gas at the price noted in the contract signed last year.

A report by the Electric Utilities Board, which recommends that the city postpone an interconnect decision until 1979, will be reviewed by the council.

Deciding that the $3.3 million needed to build a link-up with Southwestern Public Service Co. (SPS) is too expensive for only emergency power, the board voted last month to suggest a decision delay until the federal government draws up an energy plan.

LP&L will not need additional power until 1984 and so could safely defer a decision, the board said.

Also during their work session, council members will consider informally a Community Development Advisory Committee (CDAC) recommendation on how to spend $4.5 million in federal funds.

The committee suggests that half of the available Community Development money be spent on housing rehabilitation and code enforcement. Contingency funds should total $403,303, the CDAC suggests, and $1.3 million should be used for street paving, park road renovation and lighting, Parkway Neighborhood Center ex-

City Tax System Upheld In Court

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In a case without precedent in Texas, a state appeals court has upheld Lubbock's four-year cycle of re-evaluating taxable property.

Such a system, with each quadrant of the city reappraised every four years, may have some flaws, but it does not constitute "intentional discrimination" against any particular taxpayers, the 11th District Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland said.

The six-page ruling, signed by Associate Justice Esco Walter, is considered a landmark. Though most big cities re-evaluate property on a rotating basis, this is the first time a cyclical reappraisal program had been challenged at the state level in Texas.

Plaintiffs in the case have indicated they may appeal the Eastland judges' decision to the Texas Supreme Court, according to Jim Brewster, civil trial attorney for the City of Lubbock.

The case grew out of a tax lawsuit filed in Lubbock's 140th District Court in 1975 by Brunken Toyota, Pollard Friendly Ford and Don Crow Chevrolet.

Among other things, they questioned the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District's "selective re-evaluation of...certain segments of the community" for individual tax years.

In any given year, they said, when one quadrant of the city is reappraised "without a corresponding adjustment in the values of other segments of the community," some property owners end up paying a disproportionate share of taxes.

The district court found in favor of the city-school tax office. The car dealers then appealed the initial ruling. The case was argued before the state civil appeals court in September.

In its decision, the state appeals court said it found "no merit" in the car companies' charges. The court based the opinion on several considerations.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was leafing through a magazine the other day when my eyes fell upon a full-page ad of a potato with two eyes, a mouth, and two little gloved hands saying, "I AM NOT FATTENING."

I wanted to believe the little devil. He seemed so sincere. Besides, I never met a potato I didn't like. It occurred to me that lately a lot of foods have been fighting back at ugly publicity.

Health enthusiasts have made me uptight over milk products, paranoid over sugar, and a couple of weeks ago I ate a glazed doughnut and felt so guilty I established a Weight Watchers Scholarship in my name.

If more carbohydrates would take a stand, it would certainly make it easier for those of us who are weak and motivated by your basic hunger.

I went to lunch the other week with my friend, Ellie, who gives me a royal pain with her dieting. When my hamburger came with a mound of French fries, I thought she'd break out into a rash.

"Ah...ah...ah...naughty...naughty!"
"You are wrong," I said.
"Carbohydrates offer you important vitamins and minerals such as Vitamin C, B6 and Niacin."

"Where did you hear that?"
"On Merv Griffin's Salute To Starches night."

"You're lying. You do that all the time to get out of dieting."
"That's not true. I always buy dietary bread."

"And put gravy on it."
"I ate a carrot stick last week."
"With two pounds of dip on the end of it."

"Didn't I buy a whole box of caramel appetite killers?"
"And melted them to put over your ice cream."

"Why would a potato lie to you? What's in it for them?" Addressing the potatoes I asked, "Have we ever met before?"

"I think you've popped your cork," said Ellie.

"No, I want to pursue this. Why would some strange potato single me out to deceive me?"

"I can see you are not motivated to being thin."

"That's all you know," I said opening my purse and sanctimoniously popping a small artificial sweetener pill into my cappuccino.

Hopefully the potato ad is a trend. I mean if you can't trust a chocolate éclair looking you in the eye and saying, "I am not a crook," whom can you trust?

ASOL Director Conducts Seminar

Mrs. William W. Baird of Milwaukee, Wis., will conduct a seminar Friday for the Lubbock Symphony Board of Directors and the Symphony Guild Board and members, entitled "How to Keep Your Symphony Sound."

Mrs. Baird, a National Director of the American Symphony Orchestra League (ASOL), will share with the Lubbock Symphony Board and Guild the knowledge she has gained in her visits to orchestras and cities all over the United States.

Beginning with a 7:30 a.m. breakfast in the Lubbock Women's Club, Mrs. Baird will speak to the Symphony Board of Directors. At 9:45 a.m. she will conduct workshops and how to sessions for members of the Guild Board and interested Guild Members. She will be guest of honor at a 11:30 a.m. Symphony Guild luncheon in the Lubbock Women's Club. Gail Barbet, harpist, will entertain at the luncheon. More workshops are scheduled for the afternoon.

Mrs. Baird, has been instrumental in producing a TV special of the Milwaukee Symphony which has resulted in sold out seasons. She is past president of the Women's Council of ASOL, past president of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestras. She is a member of the National Committee — Advocates for the Arts, and serves on numerous boards connected with the arts. She earned a B.S. in Music Education and has been presented the Wisconsin Federation of Music Clubs Citation for Distinguished Service in the field of the performing arts.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

Tired of low-calorie fish and chicken? Try lean lamb for a delightful change. Today we've got a globe-spanning gathering of luscious lamb dishes...all decalorized. All three gain extra flavor, but not many calories, from the addition of dry white wine.

MARINATED LAMB CHOPS ROMANO
1/2 cup low-calorie Italian salad dressing
1/2 cup dry white wine (or water)
6 lean shoulder lamb chops, trimmed of fat

6 tsp. shredded Romano cheese
Combine salad dressing and wine; pour over lamb chops in a non-metallic dish. Cover and refrigerate all day or overnight. Remove from marinade; barbecue or broil 4 inches from heat source 10 to 12 minutes each side.
Baste occasionally with reserved marinade. Sprinkle lightly with cheese just before serving. Serves six, 300 calories each.

ORIENTAL LAMB AND VEGETABLE SKILLET

2 leg-of-lamb steaks (8 or 9 oz. each)
1 onion, sliced
1 green pepper, seeded and diced
1 cup diagonally sliced celery
1/2 cup dry white wine (or water)
5-oz. can sliced bamboo shoots, drained
16-oz. can bean sprouts, washed and drained

1 tomato, diced
1 tsp. cornstarch or arrowroot
3 tsp. soy sauce
Cut lamb steaks into inch cubes, trim and discard both the fat and the center round bone.

Spray a large nonstick skillet with cooking spray for no-fat frying. Add lamb and brown over high heat, turning frequently. Add onion, pepper, celery and wine. Cover and simmer five minutes. Uncover and stir in bamboo shoots, bean sprouts and tomato. Heat, uncovered, until simmering. Stir cornstarch into soy sauce to make a paste. Stir into simmering skillet, until thick. Serves four, 220 calories each.

CROCKED IRISH STEW
2 lbs. lean lamb (from leg), cut in 1-inch cubes

2 potatoes, peeled and diced
2 onions, peeled and sliced
4 carrots, sliced
1/4 cup dry white wine (or water)
2 bay leaves

salt and pepper to taste
Combine all ingredients in crockpot or slow-cooker. Cook on high heat for 30 minutes, then lower to slow-cook setting. Cook covered, 8 to 10 hours, according to manufacturer's directions. Serves eight, 195 calories each.

Thicken, if desired, by stirring 2 tsp. flour into one-quarter cup cold water to make a paste. Raise heat to simmering.

Stir paste into stew. Cook, stirring occasionally, until gravy is thickened and bubbling. Adds less than 10 calories each serving.

INDIAN CURRIED LAMB
1 and one-half lbs. lean lamb stew meat, from shoulder, cut in half-inch cubes garlic salt and pepper to taste

10 and one-half-ounce can fat-skimmed beef or chicken broth (divided)
2 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. soy sauce
2 tsp. raisins
1 tsp. curry powder
1 cup sliced onion
3 tsp. flour
2 red-skinned apples, unpeeled but cored and diced
2 tsp. dry-roasted low-fat peanuts
Spray a nonstick skillet or pressure cooker with cooking spray for no-fat frying. Add lamb cubes and brown quickly over high heat. Pour off any fat. Season with garlic salt and pepper. Add one cup broth, lemon juice, soy sauce, raisins and curry powder. Cover and simmer in skillet until tender, one hour or more. Or pressure cook, according to manufacturer's directions, 20 minutes.

Skim fat, if any, from surface. Add onions and simmer, uncovered, five minutes. Combine flour with remaining half of broth and stir into simmering liquid until thick. Stir in apples and peanuts at the minute. Makes 6 servings, about 260 calories each.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago I wrote to you when my heart was heavy, thinking I had nothing to lose by asking for your help. In one short paragraph you gave me the solution and replaced my anguish with peace. (I am enclosing the correspondence.)

Now my married daughter is facing the same problem I faced. Will you please run my letter and your response? She desperately needs to hear it — but not from me.

Her Mother

Dear Mother: Yes, I will. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 40 years, and all the years of my married life my husband has had other women. He never had the same one for very long, but it has been one after the other.

He has always been a loving and generous husband and a wonderful father to our children, and I know he loves me. He has never embarrassed me by going out in public with another woman, but as discreet as he was, somehow I always found out. I have asked him several times why he needs other women, because I am by nature a very affectionate person. He gets defensive and has no answer.

I love him dearly and would never consider leaving him, but the older I get, the more it hurts. I am 60 and he is 63.

Can you advise me?

Troubled at 60

Carbohydrate Count Important To Diet

"Count your carbohydrates because carbohydrates add more pounds than protein or fat" — another fallacy many of us follow to add a ritual to the never ending problem of losing weight. Carbohydrates supply no more calories per gram than protein and far fewer than fat. Nutritionists recommend that about 50 per cent of our calories be supplied by carbohydrates. The first need of the body is the need for energy — which is most efficiently supplied by the carbohydrates in our food. It's the total number of calories from the carbohydrate, protein, and fat in our daily meals, over and above our needs, that contributes to excess weight.

Clip 'n' Cook

AKHTSAN (String Bean Salad)

- 1/2 lb string beans
- Salt
- Water
- 2-3 scallions
- Black pepper
- 2-3 tbsps sunflower seed oil
- Vinegar

Cut the string beans up finely, place in a pot with salted boiling water, and cook several minutes. Drain in a sieve and cool. Mix the cooked beans with finely chopped scallions, add pepper, sunflower seed oil and vinegar.

ATZKHAMIAL (Honey Cookies)

- 1 lb cornmeal
- 1 1/2 cups honey

Mix the cornmeal with the honey and allow to stand for several hours. Spread out on a cookie sheet as the mixture hardens. Cut the squares and bake for 30 to 40 minutes in a slow oven. Hunters carry atzkhamial on long trips as it is nourishing and does not spoil. It is also used for picnics in Abkhazia.

Dear Troubled: You say you love him, and I believe you do. To "love" a person is to accept him with all his faults, weaknesses and imperfections.

Don't dwell on his infidelity. (Who can know the most intimate needs of another?) No one has everything.

DEAR ABBY: I've noticed that over the years, your readers, even you, yourself, have suggested that you "print" a letter.

As a printer, may I suggest that you are in error. What you do is "publish" — not print.

This may seem trivial to you, but printing is a time-honored skill, requiring years to perfect. And a printer is an artist and craftsman.

So, Dear Abby, I'll leave the publishing to you, if you will leave the printing to me.

Ink In My Blood In Medina, O.

Dear Ink: All right — you print and I'll publish, but my Webster's International Dictionary (second edition unabridged) lists "publish" as a synonym for "print", and "print" as a synonym for "publish."

DEAR ABBY: It's not necessary to put up with a blaring TV when only one person wants to listen to it. The simple solution that brought peace in our house: a headset, or "earphones." A technician can wire any set easily.

While my husband listens to his ball games, I can read, sleep and even think straight.

At Peace

Dear At: An obvious solution. Now why didn't I think of that?

Tell your troubles to Abby. For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The auction provided the only clue South needed to land a close no trump game on this hand from the Philip Morris European Cup Competition.

North-South were employing weak no trump opening bids, so South elected to open one club. West introduced a shapely double and North stretched a mite to redouble. East, fearing that his side might end in a 4-2 fit, bid his diamond suit. Now South could show that he held the equivalent of a strong no trump opening by rebidding one no trump, and the auction proceeded to game.

West led his fourth best spade, and declarer captured the queen with the ace. The jack of hearts was taken by the ace, and West continued with the king, ten and another spade, won by dummy's nine.

Declarer could now count eight tricks, and it seemed that the obvious way to try for nine was via a diamond finesse. However, West surely held the king of diamonds for his takeout double, and if he was allowed to score that card he would be able to defeat the contract by cashing his long spade. Therefore, declarer had to strive for an endplay. When East showed out on the third heart, the hand became crystal clear.

When the queen of hearts was led, East could not afford to sluff a club, since that would allow declarer to set up a long club. Both he and declarer shed a diamond. Next came the ace of diamonds, followed by the king of clubs, and another. East had to split his honors, and declarer permitted him to win the trick. East was now forced to lead a club from the queen into declarer's ace-ten tenace!

DR. LAMB

Palpitations Normal

BY LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 73 and with the exception of arthritis am in good health. The other thing is a few years ago I began experiencing episodes of rapid heart beats. Usually these come at night. I awaken with a sensation of laborious beats which go into palpitations and finally become so rapid I wonder how my heart can take them. My doctor tells me he can find nothing wrong with my heart. He prescribed Butisol which seems to work all right, but the palpitations have to run their course, lasting probably three to five minutes. These attacks are infrequent, but occur every three to four months.

DEAR READER—Some people do have attacks of rapid heart action and do not have any heart disease. You would be unusual at your age not to have some changes in your arteries, but any change you have may not be related to your attacks.

Palpitations or extra beats often precede an attack of rapid heart action. The irritable spot in the heart that causes the attacks first causes extra beats or palpitations, then the spot takes over the electrical action of the heart and may cause the episode.

These may be of short duration as in your case, or they may more sustained. Some require medical treatment, and others stop spontaneously as if nothing had happened.

It makes some difference where the spot in the heart is located that starts the palpitation and the attack of rapid beats. The only way to tell is by obtaining an electrocardiogram during the attack and with infrequent attacks such as you have this is often almost impossible.

Almost everyone has some palpitations at times or what people describe as the heart skipping a beat, but a much smaller number actually have attacks of rapid heart action. I am sending you The Health Letter Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, to give you more information. Others who want information on these can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for this issue to me in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The Butisol is a sedative and helps you tolerate the short attack better. There are medicines that can be used to control the attacks if they become more severe or frequent and are needed.

SPECIAL TO READERS—In my column of September 27 I referred to the drug cimetidine (Tagmet) as not being available for prescriptions in the United States. However, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved the drug in an unusually short period of time.

Dr. Marion Finkel of the FDA stated that it usually takes 22 months for approval of a new drug. But, "good foreign data allowed the drug (Tagmet) to be available here earlier than usual," she said. Hence, Tagmet is now available to the public as a prescription item. The primary use of this drug is in the treatment of peptic ulcers.

11 Products To Be Taken Off Market

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration has announced it plans to take off the market 11 biological products used for allergies, arthritis, skin ailments and respiratory problems because there was no evidence the products were safe or effective.

The action was part of an evaluation of 31 bacterial vaccines and antigens by an FDA advisory panel set up in 1973. Manufacturers already have withdrawn a dozen vaccines and antigens, and the panel recommended that the FDA require more studies on the remaining eight products.

Nearly all the products were given by injection. The FDA said they were used by a small number of physicians, usually to treat chronic conditions. An antigen is a substance, normally a protein, that elicits an immune response in humans.

Most of the products reviewed by the panel were licensed before 1940 when the government allowed drugs to be marketed without passing a strict standard for safety and effectiveness. The FDA is reviewing all licensed biological products, and recently announced plans to revoke licenses for eight skin test products.

The agency will publish a formal notice within 30 days to revoke the licenses for the 11 products. Manufacturers may request a hearing to contest the action.

The only over-the-counter bacterial vaccine involved in the review was a cold tablet, Entoral. Its manufacturer gave up its license to market the pill last April.

Title IX Stalled, Study Finds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Lax government enforcement of the law banning sex discrimination in schools has meant little progress for girls and women, according to a study by the National Organization for Women.

The study was done by NOW's Project on Equal Education Rights (PEER), which is supported with foundation funds, and published this week.

The report, entitled Stalled at the Start, found that during the last four years:

- Only 18 of the nation's 16,000 school districts agreed to change employment practices to treat both sexes fairly.
- 21 agreed to upgrade sports programs for girls.
- 77 agreed to open up single-sex courses to both sexes.
- 20 agreed to change sex-biased student rules.
- 21 institutions agreed to miscellaneous changes.

"When you add it all up... the government's accomplishments in over four years of Title IX were very small," the report noted. "Astonishingly small, given the resources at hand."

PEER's criticism was directed at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which is charged with enforcing the 1972 law prohibiting sex discrimination in schools and colleges receiving federal funds.

HEW's civil rights chief, David Tate, agreed in a written response to the report that it "is an essentially accurate analysis of the past administration's failure to enforce Title IX."

But he said it fails to recognize "the deliberate and continual efforts of the (HEW) Office for Civil Rights under the Carter administration to reverse that record."

Tate said the administration has reduced the number of unanswered inquiries on Title IX from 410 to fewer than 100 and cut in half the number of pending letters of findings in alleged discrimination cases.

PEER said the department received 871 complaints charging Title IX violations in schools between July 1972 and October 1976. More than one-third concerned discrimination in employment and 22 percent athletics.

The rest dealt with courses of instruction, student rules and procedures for implementing the law, the report found.

Auxiliary Bishop Named in Hawaii

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope Paul VI has named the Rev. Joseph A. Ferrario, pastor of St. Anthony parish in Kailua, Hawaii, as auxiliary bishop to Bishop John H. Scanlan of Honolulu. Archbishop Jean Jadot, apostolic delegate in the United States, has announced.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible.

II John 1:12-13, III John 1:1-11

12 Well, I would like to say much more, but I don't want to say it in this letter, for I hope to come to see you soon and then we can talk over these things together and have a joyous time.

13 Greetings from the children of your sister—another choice child of God.

III JOHN

CHAPTER I

1 From: John, the Elder. To: Dear Gaius, whom I truly love.

2 Dear friend, I am praying that all is well with you and that your body is as healthy as I know your soul is.

3 Some of the brothers traveling by have made me very happy by telling me that your life stays clean and true, and that you are living by the standards of the Gospel.

4 I could have no greater joy than to hear such things about my children.

5 Dear friend, you are doing a good work for God in taking care of the traveling teachers and missionaries who are passing through.

6 They have told the church here of your friendship and your loving deeds. I am glad when you send them on their way with a generous gift.

7 For they are traveling for the Lord, and take neither food, clothing, shelter, nor money from those who are not Christians, even though they have preached to them.

8 So we ourselves should take care of them in order that we may become partners with them in the Lord's work.

9 I sent a brief letter to the church about this, but proud Diotrefes, who loves to push himself forward as the leader of the Christians there, does not admit my authority over him and refuses to listen to me.

10 When I come I will tell you some of the things he is doing and what wicked things he is saying about me and what insulting language he is using. He not only refuses to welcome the missionary travelers himself, but tells others not to, and when they do he tries to put them out of the church.

11 Dear friend, don't let this bad example influence you. Follow only what is good. Remember that those who do what is right prove that they are God's children; and those who continue in evil prove that they are far from God.

Sales Talk Meant To Impress

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — It sometimes depends upon your audience and the impression you're trying to make. Which is a preface to the observation that what you hear and see in the marketplace isn't always what it seems.

Words sometimes are presented like cosmetics, the packaging being more important than the contents. Impressions sometimes count more than facts. And there are things you emphasize to some audiences and don't tell others at all.

Such as Bethlehem Steel, for example, reporting one year a loss to the Internal Revenue Service but a neat profit to shareholders. Nothing underhanded; just differently packaged accounting.

It was not alone. Some of the loudest criticism of business has come after words drifted into the wrong audience, such as the chairman's glowing report to shareholders being overheard by union wage negotiators who were told the company was dying.

Broadly categorized, such messages are sales talk, and sales talk usually is meant more to impress than inform.

Were the people who sold New York City bonds, or several years ago, Penn Central bonds, really convinced these securities belonged in everyone's portfolio? No overwhelming evidence exists that they listened to their own words.

Do Wall Street analysts who issue bullish reports on the future of certain stocks heed their own advice? Not always. As they tell it, their job is to sell stocks to others rather than buy for themselves.

Do superstars use the products they advertise? Perhaps. Do business leaders who promote U.S. Savings Bonds at 6 percent also buy them? When they can get 7 percent elsewhere?

The words themselves might be straightforward, but the impression created might be a bit askant.

The Wall Street letter writer, for example, who in scrupulous observance of the regulation, in disregard of the facts and perhaps in homage to his own ego, appended to his stock selections the caveat:

"No promise is made or intended that past performance is a criterion of future results. The stocks mentioned herein may or may not perform as well as earlier selections."

Consider the General Motors promotion piece that compared a 1962 model and a 1977 model and concluded that the latter had a superior "overall roominess index," which is the kind of concept you describe with an asterisk.

While it did have a superior index, the piece failed to say that hip room was diminished. The hips—that's where you feel the crush, particularly if one of the occupants is even a few pounds beyond the statistical median.

Some messages of the marketplace are admirable in their directness when restricted to a particular audience. Redbook magazine's recent message to advertisers, for example, was never meant for consumers.

"Effective with the February 1978 issue," it begins, "Redbook magazine will increase its cover price to $1.25, the highest single-copy price in the eight-book women's field..."

"Emphasizing that Redbook has been able to keep advertising cost increases to a minimum in spite of skyrocketing paper, printing and postage costs, Mr. Beni (the publisher) explained that this has been accomplished by charging the consumer more."

That's straight talk—to a restricted audience. For straight talk to the public in general nothing is likely to top the advertisement run at the turn of the century by Wanmaker's store in New York.

It said: "We have a lot of rotten raincoats and things we want to get rid off."

Newspaper Notes 152nd Birthday

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Average Down 2.60

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed today in a session marked by some weakness in blue chip issues.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.60 at 813.67.

But gainers held a 5-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Wall Street's attention was focused on an appearance by Arthur Burns, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, before the Senate Banking Committee.

Burns defended the Fed's moves in recent months to tighten credit, arguing that inflation fears would have mounted strongly had the central bank not acted to restrain monetary growth.

He reported that the Fed had slightly reduced its target growth rates for two broader measures of the money supply — known as M2 and M3 — while keeping its target for the basic measure, M1, unchanged.

American Telephone & Telegraph rose 1/4 to 59 3/4. A public offering of 12 million new ATT shares was due to be priced as of the close today.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was down 0.11 at 57.70. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 0.7 to 113.92.

Volume on the Big Board totalled 8.49 million shares by noon against 8.73 million at the same point on Tuesday.

Pair Facing Runoff For Senate Seat

State Rep. Bob Simpson and former U.S. Rep. Bob Price of Pampa face a runoff to decide who will fill the State Senate seat vacated by Max Sherman.

Simpson and Price led the ticket in a five-man field in Tuesday's election, but neither piled up enough votes for a clear victory.

Under Texas' election laws, the runoff should be in early December.

Simpson's tally this morning was 8,091 votes to Price's 7,830, with several boxes still out due to a heavy winter storm which hit some of the 25 counties in the 31st Senatorial District.

South Plains voters closely followed the trend of the rest of the district Tuesday as residents gave none of the five candidates a winning margin to fill Sherman's seat.

Sherman resigned from the senate to become president of West Texas State University at Canyon.

Election returns for the three other candidates in the senate race were: Jim Brandon, Republican lawyer and certified public accountant, 6,825; Mel Phillips Jr., Democrat real estate developer, 5,959; and Burk Whittenburg, lawyer and businessman, 4,961.

Upon receiving final election returns, Gov. Dolph Briscoe has five days to set a runoff date which cannot be sooner than 15 days after proclamation and no later than 25 days, state election laws stipulate.

Winner of the election will serve until 1978 and then face a regular election for a full term.

Voters in the seven South Plains counties in the 31st Senatorial District gave a slight edge to Simpson. The counties, Bailey, Swisher, Deaf Smith, Hockley, Parmer, Lamb and Castro, gave Simpson 1,626 votes. Republican Price was second in the seven counties with 1,343 votes.

However, Simpson gained the favored position in the South Plains by winning in the counties with the largest voter turnout — Deaf Smith (363 votes), Swisher (412) and Hockley (239).

Parmer and Lamb counties gave the nod to Phillips while Price garnered the most votes in Castro and Bailey counties.

Phillips received 251 votes in Parmer County and 235 in Lamb. Price got 125 in Bailey County and 245 in Castro.

Reese Airmen Plan Party For Children

Santas in green fatigues are roaming the range around Reese Air Force Base nowadays, scavenging aluminum cans to turn into a Christmas party for the Children's Home of Lubbock.

Armed with a long stick with a nail in the end, members of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron are scouring the area trying to amass enough cans to finance a big party as possible for the home's youngsters.

It takes 24 cans to make a pound of aluminum. Each pound brings 17 cents, so spare time hours are filled with a lot of hunting around Reese and Lubbock apartment complexes with manager permission.

"We want to throw them a party at the base and show them around," said T. Sgt. Frank Sharpe, who came up with the idea.

Whether the party will include a Santa and a gift pack depends on how many cans get tossed into receptacles placed about the base and rounded up on week-end hunts.

Donations from Lubbock businesses and organizations are making the number of cans needed for the occasion fewer and fewer, but the off-duty safaris still are necessary to assure a party with all the trimmings.

Helping Sharpe out with most of the can-collecting chores are Sgt. Mike Wimbler of Wichita Falls, S. Sgt. John Curly of California and S. Sgt. John Leard of Tennessee.

Judge Orders Integration In Delaware

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Wilmington has been ordered to integrate its schools next September, and the federal judge who issued the order has set hearings to figure out the nuts and bolts of the plan.

U.S. District Judge Murray Schwartz, in issuing the order for Wilmington and 10 surrounding suburban school districts, said September was "the earliest practicable date" for implementation.

Under court orders, the 11 separate districts in northern New Castle County must merge in order to carry out desegregation. About 70,000 students will be affected.

The plaintiff Wilmington Board of Education had argued during more than three weeks of hearings that desegregation should begin during this school year. But the state and the suburban districts argued that implementation should be delayed until September.

Paul Dimond, attorney for the plaintiffs, told the judge this week that "every moment of delay in time is a stigmatization."

Earlier, Dimond had quoted from the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark Brown v. Board of Education ruling saying segregation "affects the hearts and minds of the children in a way unlikely ever to be undone."

Energy Bill Criticized By Tower

MIDLAND (AP) — If President Carter's energy plan becomes law "it will be the beginning of an insidious cancer eating at the very heart of Texas," U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has told a group of oilmen.

In remarks at a meeting of the International Association of Drilling Contractors Tuesday night, Tower said the House version of the National Energy Act leaves the Carter plan virtually intact and "not only would continue regulation in the interstate market, but would extend those controls to the price at the wellhead of intrastate gas. That is perhaps the most dangerous provision of the entire plan."

Tower said the Senate natural gas bill is "fair and equitable" and provides the needed incentives for the industry to expand exploration and development efforts, he said.

The House bill also uses the "tax axe" as a conservation incentive, Tower said.

"Just one facet of the plan, the user tax, will greatly affect the locational advantages of Texas energy supply and deal a severe blow to areas such as ours which are particularly dependent on oil and gas use," he said.

Tower added that the Senate version "provides a balance of incentives to both individuals and industry with only one tax, a modified form of the oil and gas users tax," he said.

Implementation of the Carter plan will mean that "Texas citizens and Texas industry will pay more for all forms of energy we now use," Tower said.

"Its misplaced burden on the producing states falls disproportionately on the backs of every Texan," he charged. "It is truly, in the words of our Texas House speaker, 'a bureaucratic dream.' I greatly fear that dream is really a nightmare for Texas."

Tokyo Police Close Probe Of Slaying

TOKYO (AP) — Police said this week that after 15 years they have closed the unsuccessful investigation into the robbery-slaying of New York businessman Manfred Goldman in a Tokyo hotel.

Goldman, then 80, was found stabbed to death on Nov. 10, 1962. Japan's statute of limitations for capital crimes is 15 years, meaning the killer no longer could be prosecuted even if he were found.

Goldman, who ran textile trading companies in New York, was vacationing in Japan when he was killed. Police said $900 in travelers checks was missing from his room.

Goldman's family offered a one million yen — now equivalent to $4,000 — reward for information leading to the murderer's arrest, but it never was paid.

program is scheduled at 11:15 a.m. on Nov. 17. The council will review its board and commission system, deciding whether any of the 28 groups should be modified or abolished.

During its regular meeting, to begin at 9:30 a.m. in council chambers, the municipal governing body will consider authorizing a contract with Texas Tech University to monitor the water quality of the Yellowhouse Canyon Lakes.

The 12-month, $10,286 contract with the Water Resources Quality Department would be a continuation of monitoring done since 1973.

ballots and 21.5 percent in the precincts of the big homes and fancy cars. It was a low-key campaign with Briscoe making only a few personal appearances. The major issues were the performances of the fire and police departments, the need for a mass transit system, and improved city services.

The other candidates and their votes: Bette Graham White, 38, a community organizer, 3,948; Ovide Duncantell, 41, a black activist, 1,903; Larry M. Robinson, 31, an auto parts salvage firm owner, 1,538; Manuel A. Velasco, 49, former civil rights prosecutor for the U.S. Justice Department, 858; Allan Vogel, 34, a longshoreman and member of the Libertarian party, 817; Arthur E. Abrego, 29, X-ray technician who said God called on him to run, 306; Diane Sarge, 30, a machinist and member of the Socialist Workers party, 261.

Houston voters also set up another runoff, this for city controller matching Kathy Whitmire, 312, an audit executive, sed upon in Texas, other jurisdictions have approved cycle reassessment programs," the court said. "An early United States Supreme Court case established the burden to be met by the party complaining of a reappraisal program. The court said in order to support a claim of discrimination, it must be shown there was an 'intentional' violation of the principle of uniformity by the taxing authorities," the appeals judges said.

Court Upholds City Tax Evaluation System

They noted that cyclical reappraisal programs have been upheld in such states as Alabama, New Mexico and Washington because plaintiffs there "failed to demonstrate any intentional or systematic discrimination" by tax officials.

In the same way, the Lubbock auto dealers also have failed to prove intentional discrimination by the city-school tax office, the civil appeals court said.

The court's ruling noted that city-school tax officials "had adopted a continuing program of re-evaluation of properties in good faith and with available personnel whereby a certain section of the taxing units is re-evaluated on an annual basis and in rotation without discrimination.

"The defendants contend that they made an honest effort to equalize all properties which time, ability and circumstances would permit." The civil appeals judges seemed to agree with that contention.

City-school tax officials say their staggered reappraisal system averages out for the overwhelming majority of property owners over a four-year period. "For two years you're ahead of everybody (on up-to-date assessments), and for two years you're behind," Brewster said.

If they had lost the case, tax officials said they would have had to double their staff to handle citywide re-evaluations annually.

The state appeals court said that as long as Lubbock consistently applies the four-year reappraisal program, doing one quadrant of the city every four years, the system is okay.

Not only will tax valuations for property owners even out over the four-year period, but differences in tax assessments should not be all that great within a given year, the court indicated.

The court added, "It is well settled in Texas and other jurisdictions that exact uniformity and equality of taxation is virtually impossible to achieve and an unattainable ideal."

CRANSTON, R.I. (UPI) — Prison officials say they will be rounding up hand-crafted furniture where inmates could hide weapons and hundreds of stray cats adopted by the inmates at the Adult Correctional Institutions. Assistant Corrections Director William Laurie said this week the recent discovery of weapons hidden in one inmate's wooden cabinet forced him to order the confiscation of all "home-made cabinets" in maximum security cells. The weapons found included six hacksaw blades, five homemade knives and an icepick. He said the cats, pets to many prisoners, are on their way out, too, and will be turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Lawyer Enters Plea In Presley Case

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Boston attorney Gabriel Robert Caggiona pleaded innocent this week to federal charges that he plotted with five other men to defraud the late Elvis Presley. The plea was entered before U.S. Magistrate Aaron Brown Jr. in Memphis. Caggiona, 52, who lives in Winchester, Mass., and practices law in Boston, was released on $2,500 bond and his attorney, Phil Canale, was given 40 days to file motions. The October indictment charged the six with conspiring to purchase a nine-passenger jet from Presley, who died Aug. 16, then lease the plane back to him.

The defendants then subleased the jet and agreed to make more than $330,000 in equipment improvements, the indictment said. The indictment said the defendants never intended to make the improvements and submitted bogus bills to the singer.

College Sells Stocks After Official Inquiry

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Smith College has sold nearly $700,000 worth of stock in the Firestone Tire Rubber Co. because college officials were unhappy with the company's response to questions about its dealings in South Africa.

Firestone was among four firms questioned by college officials after students demanded the school sell stock in firms operating in South Africa.

Roger Murray, chairman the Smith board of trustees investments committee, said Firestone provided inadequate responses when asked what it is doing to promote equality for the black majority in South Africa.

Some $687,728 worth of stock — 42,014 shares — has been sold, Smith spokeswoman Ann Shanahan said this week.

In selling the stock, Smith became the third western Massachusetts-area school to divest its interests in companies doing business in South Africa.

After student and faculty protests, the University of Massachusetts and Hampshire College, both in Amherst, decided to sell such stocks.

A study of Smith's stock portfolio followed student protests last spring. The protesters said stock ownership in companies with operations in South Africa helped perpetuate what they called South Africa's white racist government.

Firestone, which is headquartered in Akron, Ohio, was one of four companies in Smith's portfolio which had South African connections, Murray said.

Networks Make Changes In Schedules To Conform To Ratings

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Which network was it that announced a three part series on the evening news shows of Monday through today devoted to the television ratings game? Well, it wasn't CBS. Incredibly both ABC and NBC are running simultaneous three-parters on ratings, how they are arrived at by the A.C. Nielsen Co., what they mean to the networks and the viewers. The ABC report is presented on the "ABC Evening News with Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters" by correspondent John Martin. Over on Segment 3 of NBC's John Chancellor evening news, Douglas Kiker

'Catcher' Okay For Schools

PITTSBURGH, N.J. (AP) — J.D. Salinger's novel, "Catcher in the Rye," still can be used in classwork in this rural Salem County community school district, school officials have ruled.

"Things forbidden have a secret charm," Schools Superintendent John Cashner said this week, refusing to ban the book. "I fear we're creating and fostering another generation of literary peeping Toms."

About half of the 30 parents who attended a school board meeting decried the book as "poisonous," "filthy" and "a danger to our children."

Cashner said the book has some obscene passages but that the work as a whole is not obscene. He asked, "Does the man or woman who utters an obscenity become an obscene person?"

His decision, he added, was based on "education, not emotion."

"A milestone in the field of literature has become a tombstone in the field of education," he said, referring to similar battles in schools throughout the country.

Cashner's decision was supported by the school board, which ruled that the book can be retained in the curriculum of an advanced high school English class for college-bound juniors and seniors.

John Rauser and his wife, Ruby, raised the obscenity issue after learning their 16-year-old daughter was reading the book for a class assignment.

The pair said they will continue their efforts to have the book banned.

Mexicans Protest Hospital's Food

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — More than 5,000 hospital workers have filed a formal complaint with the Mexican Department of Health because they can't stand the food served at the General Hospital anymore.

Last week the workers refused to eat dinner. They said the soy beans smelled awful and the ham was green. It was the second time that week they refused to eat.

does the honors. Neither network admits to trying to steal a march on the other, but they aren't entirely convincing. After all, they even signed up some of the same guests on both shows, including Mike Dann of Warner Communications, formerly a programming executive with both NBC and CBS, and Paul Klein, executive vice president, programs, for NBC.

How could a medium which goes into 73 million American homes and that attracted $6 billion in advertising revenues last year make itself look so silly? That's show biz.

The ratings that ABC and NBC are so busy explaining even now are working their magic on the schedules, with announcements that losers are being dropped and new shows slotted in expected within the next couple of weeks.

The major changes will be at CBS and NBC — CBS is in third place in the ratings, and NBC is not far ahead in second.

Even at first place ABC, however, there will be some switches. Trial bal-oons go up this weekend, with "Fish" preempted for an episode of "Tabatha" Saturday at 7 p.m. CST. Tabatha, played by Lisa Hartman, is the now grown-up daughter of Samantha, once bewitchingly played by Elizabeth Montgomery on "Bewitched."

The preempted episode of "Fish" will go Monday at 7:30 p.m. CST, preceded by a half hour episode of "Sugar Time," starring Jimmy Comack and a three-girl rock group including Barbi Benton, who was "Playboy" Hugh Hefner's favorite playgirl.

That combo preempts "San Pedro Bums," a bumper if ever there was one. Fred Silyerman, president, ABC Entertainment, will be watching those Nielsen numbers. If "Tabatha" scores well, and it has earned respectable ratings in several previous exposures, it becomes a likely candidate as a winter replacement.

If "Fish" can do better in a new time slot, ABC will stick with the Abe Vigoda show, which could have been a victim of ABC's traditional Saturday night jinx.

"Sugar Time" is a dark horse for future running. And don't bet that "San Pedro Bums" will make it much past first frost.

Israeli Bank Gambles On New York Institution

By PHILIP GREER and MYRON KANDEL

Can the American subsidiary of a foreign bank swallow a failing — and pillaged — New York institution and, hardly pausing for breath, digest it and move on to new growth with only a touch of financial heartburn?

Talk to Eliezer Lerner, president of Bank Leumi Trust Co. of New York, and he'll tell you how his bank did just that. It paid $12.6 million just over a year ago for American Bank & Trust Co., an institution with important political connections, which had fallen terminally ill from mismanagement, bad loans and an alleged international swindle.

The last thing most foreign banks wanting to increase their business in this country would be likely to get involved with is a local institution serving much the same clientele and with a huge public black eye. But Bank Leumi had had its sights set on AB&T for some time, and even had offered to buy the bank on several occasions, only to be turned down.

"We had an eye on that bank always," Lerner told us, "and when their troubles became evident, we were a natural prospective buyer. After all, we knew more about them than anyone else."

When New York State Banking Superintendent John G. Heimann (now the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency) asked for bids on AB&T as he was about to close it, Bank Leumi submitted the high bid. For its $12.6 million (reportedly double the next nearest bid), Bank Leumi received the five AB&T branches, its deposits, a portion of its outstanding loans and its trust department.

"Some people say we paid too much," Lerner said. "But we had to submit a sealed bid. Maybe we paid a million or two too much. But we had to pay something for our desire, didn't we? And now that it's a year later, we feel we made a good deal."

Jerald C. Newman, a 45-year-old native New Yorker who is executive vice president of the bank, listed some of the benefits. "We now have branches in Brooklyn and the Bronx, two boroughs we weren't in before, and we have two more branches in Manhattan, in areas where we had wanted to expand anyway," he explained. "We added a trust department, which made us a full-service commercial bank. And the acquisition put us over the billion-dollar mark in assets by the end of 1976."

Lerner is a 61-year-old Israeli banker, who left his native Poland in 1935 to study at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. He got his first job, as a messenger, in a unit of Bank Leumi's parent company at the age of 18 and worked his way up the ranks, studying banking by correspondence from a school in Scotland. He came to the U.S. six years ago as executive vice president of the New York subsidiary and became president and chief executive officer shortly afterward.

He combines the images of a wise Jewish grandfather, a hard-nosed banker and a zealous Israeli partisan, expounding on the bank's role in fostering U.S.—Israel trade and stressing the fact that his country has always scrupulously honored its financial obligations, even during its darkest hours.

He also was remarkably frank in discussing Bank Leumi's experience in taking over American Bank & Trust. That bank's deposits, which were about $190 million at the time of its collapse, quickly dropped to around $120 million following the announcement of the takeover and then continued to decline even more. "That was expected, and we've been building back up those branches," Lerner said, adding, "So far, we've achieved our aims to our satisfaction."

"But we've had one big disappointment," he conceded. "American Bank & Trust had a loan portfolio of about $150 million. The authorities told us that part of that was in classified (doubtful) loans." (That means that the bank should have had its pick of some $100 million in loans to add to its own loan portfolio, which — during a period of general soft business loan demand — would have added considerably to its earnings.)

"But so far," he said, "we have accepted only about $20 million in commercial loans and $10 million in installment loans. That was a great disappointment."

"It could be," he mused, "that we were too over-cautions. And now we're going to look at some of them again."

"But up to now," he added, "we haven't had a single problem with any loan we took over." And he knocked vigorously on the wooden top of his desk.

British Tea Council Plans Ad Campaign

By ANTHONY NICHOLAS

LONDON (UPI) — For Britain's tea drinkers, there is nothing like the traditional cuppa.

But latest statistics show that the national pastime of tea drinking — introduced to Britain 320 years ago — is being challenged by young upstarts.

Tea still accounts for 71 percent of all beverages consumed in Britain and is in no immediate danger of being eclipsed by the instant coffee and soft drinks preferred by young people — but the Tea Council is taking no chances.

The Council, whose members include representatives of marketing companies and producing countries — including India, Sri Lanka and Kenya — has launched a three-year, $5.4 million-plus advertising campaign.

The campaign will use television and press advertisements and will concentrate on 13- to 24-year-olds and on young marrieds — the two groups a recent market survey revealed most prefer coffee to tea.

The survey showed that housewives preferred instant coffee because it was quickly made without problems of tea leaf disposal, and young people because they thought tea drinking "old-fashioned and dull."

But a recent test campaign in the Newcastle area, using the theme "Tea — best drink of the day," was so successful in increasing tea sales that the Tea Council decided to launch its national campaign, said Secretary Stephen Heald.

The Council has some reason for concern. Although the British tea market is worth approximately $720 million a year, consumption dropped from 493.3 million pounds in 1970 to 425.8 million pounds in 1975, with an increase to 455.4 million pounds last year. The average Briton bought 10 pounds of tea in 1968 and only 8.13 pounds last year.

"The decline in tea consumption has been mainly due to an intensive advertising campaign for instant coffee," Heald said.

Heald said that despite price increases tea is still an inexpensive commodity. "The average price per quarter lb. is 29.2 pence, which works out at 6 pence (10.8 cents) per cup and you can't get much cheaper than that."

Britain is the largest market for tea outside the producing countries, with the average Briton drinking about 1,650 cups of tea a year — 4 1/2 cups a day.

If the advertising campaign can raise the daily average to five cups, there will be cheers all round, a Council spokesman said.

Heald pointed out that in addition to its beneficial "pick-me-up" qualities tea has other uses. "Tea is also used as a shampoo, a color restorer and the leaves are used as a garden fertilizer."

But a spokesman for the makers of Nescafe, the world's largest instant coffee maker, said he thinks tea drinking will continue to decline because tea drinkers tend to be older.

The Nestle spokesman said, "We are still a tea-drinking nation, but whereas a few years ago seven cups of tea were drunk to one cup of coffee, the ratio now is three to one."

"Retail sales of coffee are down around 30 percent because of the terrific increase in price. But coffee markets are still stepping up their advertising campaign, hoping that trade will recover as soon as the world prices settle," added the Nestle spokesman.

However, the Tea Council is fighting back. "We are confident that our campaign will reverse the trend and continue the progress made since last year," Heald said.

PepsiCo Inc. Acquires Pizza Huts

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Pepsi has its pizza.

At a special meeting this week, shareholders of Pizza Hut Inc. overwhelmingly approved PepsiCo Inc.'s proposal to acquire the restaurant chain through an exchange of stock.

Frank L. Carney, president and board chairman of Pizza Hut, said Pizza Hut "is not going out of business. We are beginning a new chapter. We will continue our proven growth record and become a dynamic part of PepsiCo Inc."

Carney and other Pizza Hut board members decided a year ago that in order to meet company objectives of expanding into other food-service operations, a merger would be a better approach than risking corporate funds. Pizza Hut had failed in earlier attempts to operate hamburger and Mexican food operations.

Completion of the merger was announced jointly by Carney and Donald M. Kendall, board chairman and chief executive officer of PepsiCo, which is headquartered in Purchase, N.Y.

AUDI FOX BEATS CHEVY CORVETTE!

If you're a little wide-eyed, we can't blame you. We were a little surprised ourselves when our 4-door sedan, the 5-passenger Audi Fox, beat the Chevy Corvette in a Slalom test conducted by the American Testing Institute. But it's true: The Fox won!

The Audi Fox beat the Chevy Corvette. Over and over. And over again. And our last (0 to 50 in 8.2 seconds) Audi Fox is also legal! (37 mpg highway, 23 mpg city — based on EPA estimates using standard transmission. Actual mileage may vary depending on how you drive, car's condition and optional equipment. That's how legends are made.

Survey Shows Status Determined By Occupation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Keeping up with the Joneses no longer is a simple matter of cars in the garage, money in the bank, high fashion in the closet or blue blood in the family tree.

The answer to the question of status in the decade of the 70s is the answer to the question almost always asked minutes after the cocktail party introduction: "What do you do?"

What some people "do" is study society's pecking order, and in its November issue, Human Behavior Magazine polled a few of them. They agreed — the job is the label that counts.

UCLA Prof. Donald Treiman, who devoted the last 10 years to occupation prestige research, spelled out the formula.

"I argue that in any complex society, the inherent nature of work creates differences in the power exercised by occupations," he said. "Power begets privilege, and power and privilege beget prestige. And so, since the power hierarchy is the same all over, so is the privilege hierarchy, and so is the prestige hierarchy of occupations."

"I think it's no accident that the first thing that somebody asks you at a cocktail party is 'what do you do?'"

Rena Bartos, senior vice president at the New York advertising firm of J. Walter Thompson, said many of the old prestige yardsticks have fallen — especially the one once tied to high fashion in the wardrobe.

"Now it's understated," she said. "It's very difficult for anybody that doesn't have a very good eye about the labels and nuances of designers to be able to pick out one of those things (high fashion designs, from $1,000 up) from some simple, inexpensive nothing."

And what is the ultimate example of haute couture "understatement?"

"The sable-lined raincoat," she said. "You see what I mean — simple on the outside. Something that isn't being flaunted."

Tom Sims, of McCann-Erickson — another New York advertising agency — had a few more examples of fallen prestige idols.

"A college degree at one time was almost universally a status symbol," he said. "It's not necessarily so now. The bigger car, obviously (has decreased in status value). Eleven suits in the closet — obviously this is no longer a status symbol."

Asked to rate the most important factor in setting a family's social status, Sims said, "I guess I'd have to say the occupation of the husband. I would have to stick with that."

Treiman did more than stick with it. He backed it with a meter of his own design — the Standard International Occupational Prestige Scale, which Treiman said is the most up-to-date measure on the market, and the only one rating the prestige hierarchy of any given society.

Treiman's scale — based on 85 studies of occupational prestige conducted since World War II in 60 countries — covers 509 occupations, scoring their prestige ratings from 0-100.

The professions pack the greatest social clout while having no job at all, understandably, falls at the bottom of the ladder.

A few of the blue-chip occupations on the big board of status: university professor and physician, both 78; lawyer, 71; dentist, 70; professional accountant, 68; business executive, 67.

The migrant worker rates 18, the laborer 19 and the janitor 21.

Which may be the genesis of the occupational euphemism.

"Sanitary engineer" stands up better wherever the trashman goes.

Vaccine Sought In Tests

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Nobel laureate developer of a vaccine against viral hepatitis says test results on it are encouraging and may lead to sciences' first vaccine against liver cancer.

Dr. Baruch S. Blumberg, who won the 1976 Nobel prize for medicine, said this week there is a strong association with serum hepatitis, or hepatitis B, and cancer of the liver.

Blumberg, who was here for lectures at the University of California at San Diego School of Medicine, said results of tests of the vaccine on chimpanzees are "very encouraging."

The investigators have been able to show that the vaccine offers good protection against hepatitis B, Blumberg said in an interview.

Blumberg indicated that if the serum he developed with Dr. Irving Millman at Fox Chase Center's Institute for Cancer Research is successful, it also may prevent eventual development of liver cancer.

Blumberg said that studies in countries with a high incidence of liver cancer — Japan, Korea, China, the Philippines and parts of Africa — show that almost all the victims had had viral hepatitis at one time or another.

The American Cancer Society estimates there will be 9,600 liver cancer deaths in the United States next year.

Blumberg received the 1976 Nobel prize for his discoveries about mechanisms for the origin and dissemination of infectious disease.

SWC Honors Go To Taylor, Felton

RAIDER HONOREES — Texas Tech's Eric Felton, left, and Billy Taylor were all smiles Tuesday after being named the SWC defensive and offensive players of the week, respectively.

Felton blocked a punt and scored his first collegiate touchdown and Taylor carried 26 times for 151 yards and five TDs in the 49-17 win over TCU. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

For the second time in this season Texas Tech players have dominated The Associated Press' SWC offensive and defensive player-of-the-week selections. Cornerback Eric Felton and running-back Billy Taylor nabbed the awards for their performances in last Saturday's 49-17 Tech win over TCU.

Felton blocked a TCU punt and recovered it in the end zone for a Raider touchdown. Taylor rushed 26 times for 151 yards, set a school record by scoring five touchdowns and also caught four passes.

Felton, a 6-0, 202-pound senior from Lubbock High, has blocked four kicks this year, including the one against TCU. "Eric has a knack for blocking kicks," head coach Steve Sloan said. "It takes a reckless abandon to do it."

Said Felton, a senior, "I've been waiting for that touchdown. I've been wanting one for four years."

Felton started some as a sophomore and all last season. He's played well at times, but inconsistency has been a problem for him until this year. Sloan has praised his play against TCU, saying, "he is developing to the point that he is a terrific football player."

Felton said, "I think I've been more consistent this year than in the past, but I could have played better, too."

Taylor, a 208-pound senior, had his second 150-yards-plus afternoon against TCU—he also had 150 versus North Carolina—but he thinks this was the better of the two.

"The TCU game was my best as far as being tough—just running over people," he said. "The Arizona game last year (in which he gained 173 yards) was my best overall, because I was the quickest in that one."

"I think the whole offensive team showed more of what it's capable of against TCU, though. I had a lot help on my long touchdown run (40 yards). Everybody was downfield throwing blocks. It was the kind of stuff we did all last year."

Taylor said he was surprised at the honor.

"I'd never gotten it before, only a couple of honorable mentions," he said, "so I wasn't thinking about it."

NOTES: Tech drilled for more than two hours in the blustery, cold weather Tuesday, and it was a terrific race to see who could get to the dressing room the fastest after practice. Head coach Steve Sloan said the Raiders couldn't get a whole lot accomplished because of the cold and the wind. "We could hardly work on our kicking game at all because it was so windy, but we got a little done, I guess."

Sloan said offensive tackle Dan Irons, whose knee swelled up last Thursday, will have his splint cast removed today and is expected to work out some Thursday.

MHS To Face Rebs On Road

Monterey, undefeated and the winner of District 4-AAAA, will play Amarillo Tascosa at Amarillo on Nov. 18, it was announced Tuesday.

Lubbock schools athletic director Pete Ragus said that the bidistrict game will be played in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium, beginning at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 18.

Tickets will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for students. Adult tickets will be on sale at the Public Schools offices, and students may purchase tickets at Monterey High School.

Carter Cromwell 9-2 Important For Recruiting

WITH ITS SOUTHWEST Conference title hopes gone because of its two league losses, Texas Tech's goal is now a 9-2 season and a bowl berth. But a bowl isn't the only reason for gunning for that 9-2; it's just as important for recruiting purposes.

The Raiders are 6-2 now compared to the 8-0 at this time a year ago, but recruiting coordinator Mike Pope doesn't think Tech's losses to Texas A&M and Texas have had a great effect yet.

"A whole lot depends on how we do in these last few games," he said. "If we can go 9-2 and get into a bowl... that's critical for us now because of the exposure we'd receive."

Tech won the first of its four-game November stretch drive over TCU last Saturday. Upcoming are games against SMU, Houston and Arkansas. The latter will be a nationally televised contest, which would obviously be a boon to the Raiders if they performed well.

"We're losing a lot of seniors this year. If we can combine that with a good record, it should be a good attraction to prospects."

Twenty-five Tech players—13 on offense and 12 on defense—will exhaust their eligibility after this season, and many are key performers. Tech has 91 players on scholarship now, four under the maximum.

POPE SAID THE strongest recruiting thrusts would be made for offensive and defensive backfield performers and receivers. Completing their eligibility this season will be the likes of quarterback Rodney Allison, fullbacks Billy Taylor and Jimmy Williams, tailback Mark Julian, split end Sammy Williams, tight end Gregg Adkins, strong safeties Alan Emerson and Larry Dupre, free safety

RICHIE ZISK
... Newest Texas Millionaire

Rangers Ink Zisk For Decade

FORT WORTH (AP)—It was an elegant setting replete with champagne, diamonds, and soft piano music among Fort Worth's high society Tuesday night, making Richie Zisk feel at home at Shady Oaks Country Club with his freshly signed 10-year, $2.5 million contract.

Zisk, the first of baseball's free agents to come to terms, officially became a Texas Ranger and bubbly Rangers majority owner Brad Corbett plopped a 10-gallon hat on the head of the former Chicago White Sox outfielder.

Then came the boots for the slugging Zisk, who is never a threat on the basepaths.

"Maybe Richie can steal 30 bases in these," wisecracked Corbett.

A bit dazzled by Corbett's show, Zisk dutifully thanked everyone then later told writers, "I think I can give them that little extra they had missing last year."

Zisk, who has averaged .299 over his last five seasons with Chicago and Pittsburgh in the National League, hit 30 home runs last season with the White Sox.

"Richie was the power we needed so badly last year," said Corbett. "He would have been the difference in 10 to 12

SC's McGuire Asked To Retire

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—University of South Carolina president James B. Holderman said Tuesday he has asked Gamecock basketball coach Frank McGuire to consider a position as athletic director for the university's branches.

McGuire declined to comment on the request by Holderman, but the university president said in a statement that the coach was interested "sufficiently that other conversations were held on the matter."

He said the new job would begin at the end of the 1977-78 basketball season, and that other persons would be considered if McGuire refuses.

games and that would have meant the division for us."

Texas finished nine games behind Kansas City in the American League West.

Zisk said, "From what I could see last year, there was a great nucleus of young hungry players on this team. I think I can provide the long ball they needed. I can hit the ball out of any park and I like Arlington Stadium.

"I hit a lot of home runs in the gaps and it's only 370 feet to the gaps here in Arlington Stadium."

The 28-year-old Zisk said he would settle for being the designated hitter if it helped the team but added he would rather play leftfield.

"I have adequate speed and an above-average arm," he said. "But I am down here to win. If manager Billy Hunter thinks I should be a DH then that's fine. I'm not here to make waves."

Zisk had 100 runs batted in and hit .290

while playing out his option with the White Sox.

"I put my career on the line because I was risking serious injury," he said. "Now I feel great."

While Zisk was talking, Corbett got a telephone call. It was from free agent pitcher Doc Medich, who also was drafted by the Rangers.

"We may be getting close," said Corbett, who then rejoined the well-dressed crowd, shaking hands and putting his arm around a guest here and there.

It was the old vintage Corbett back wheeling and dealing. His decision to sell the club last July 4 was only a distant memory.

Sudan, Pep Units Nab Cage Wins Over Bledsoe

Bledsoe looked in two directions for competition Tuesday night, and trouble came from two directions.

The Pep boys invaded Bledsoe gym to post a 50-40 decision, and the visiting Sudan girls defeated Bledsoe 40-27.

Steve Edwards led Pep boys with 19 points, and David Perez had 25 for Bledsoe. Pep overcame a first-period Bledsoe lead to take command 27-24 at the half and pulled away in the third quarter.

Dianna Flowers netted 15 points for the Sudan girls, and Kerri Adams had 10 for Bledsoe, which lost its first game in three tries.

UNION TRIUMPHS

Lena Faught poured in 37 points in leading Union to a 62-50 victory over Ropes girls. It was Ropes' first loss after a pair of victories. Sherry Means led Ropes with 20 points.

MEADOW GIRLS WIN

Meadow girls clipped host Whitharral 72-57, with Sandy Mason leading the winners with 26 points. Kristin Corkery scored 24 points for Whitharral. The verdict left both teams with 2-1 records.

NAZARETH WINS

Cheryl Hartman poured in 38 points in leading visiting Nazareth girls to a 69-47 thumping of Anton. Nancy Perrin accounted for 22 of Anton's points. Anton is now 2-1 for the season.

BC GIRLS WIN

Karen Williams' 29 points paced Borden County to a 69-55 victory over Forsan, while Julie Poynor topped Forsan with 28. Borden County raised its record to 2-0, while Forsan fell to 1-1.

AMERICAN SPORTSMEN

A record 43 million Americans, or one out of every five of the population spent $270 million on state hunting and fishing licenses in 1974.

THREE WAY WINS TWO

Three Way defeated Amherst 69-45 in the girls game and 49-46 in the boys game.

Princess Parkman led Three Way with 35 points, while Sandra Reddley had 23 to top Amherst. Three Way is 2-0. Amherst is 0-1.

Albert Rand led the Three Way boys with 15 points, while Calvin Jones sparked Amherst with 14. Three Way is 1-0. Amherst is 0-1.

GRADY LOOPED

Deon Smith hit 22 points as Loop evened its season record to 1-1 with a 46-38 win over host Grady. Fae Welch tossed in 11 points for Grady which is also 1-1.

In boys action, Mark Tate led Grady to a 73-54 win over Loop as he hit 27 points. Loop (1-1) was led by Gilbert Basquez's 22 points.

GUTHRIE GIRLS WINS

Melody Keats hit 31 points to lead the Guthrie Mustangs (1-0) to a 41-31 win over Weinert (0-1) in the GHS gym.

McADOO SPLITS

At McAdoo, Lynn Cowan bucketed 17 points as Spade (2-1) downed the home-towners 50-48. McAdoo (2-1) was led by the 14-point performance of Albert Osuana. In girls play, McAdoo (3-0) plundered the Spade ferns 60-34 behind the 29-point show of Sally Pullen. Vicky Mills was the high scorer for Spade with 15 points.

WILSON TAKES DAWSON

Tracy Lee tossed in 17 points to lead hometown Wilson to a commanding 61-38 win over Dawson. Betty Schooler was the leading scorer for Dawson with 16 points. The game was the season opener for Wilson (1-0).

KLONDIKE PLUNDERS

Led by Tommy Hayes' 12 points Klondike opened its cage season with a 57-45 win over Smyer in the KHS gym. Kyle Osborne bucketed 11 for Smyer (0-1).

In girl's play, Manda Mitchell tossed in 30 point as the Klondike ferns dumped Smyer 80-41. Cindy Burleson hit 21 for Smyer (0-2).
