The Price Of Royality

BOISE, Idaho (AP) - State Treasurer Marjorie Moon has sent four counties checks for a penny each.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

The checks sent to Power, Boundary, Bonner and Boise counties represent their share of federal mineral royalties and leases as part of more than $14 million paid to Idaho counties by the federal government. Miss Moon says she hopes the checks are cashed soon so they don't mess up her books.

"Some people might think that a penny isn't worth anything in these times," she said, "but those who have tried to make books balance know we can't just ignore even a few cents or keep it for the state's use. So we wrote treasurer's checks for amounts ranging down to one cent.'

But not all counties faired so poorly. Minidoka and Gooding counties received two cents each for mineral royalties, while Ada County received three cents.

"I have a partnership with you," Carter said at the winter meeting of the Business Council, whose influential membership has been addressed by every president since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"We have the same goals in mind." said Carter. But he said government can not succeed without business, which has the primary responsibility for creating new jobs and investing in new productive equipment that can reduce inflation.

John deButts, chairman of American Telephone and Telegraph, expressed satisfaction with the president's visit, but he reserved comment on the administration's achievements and goals.

"I think it is important for the president to meet and know these leaders," said deButts, chairman of the council whose members head the nation's big-

But other economic news was good. The stock market rallied in heavy trading in anticipation of the president's visit with the Business Council and the Federal Reserve reported industrial production rose 0.5 percent last month.

Carter promised that his tax legislation coming in January -would improve the tax situation both for businesses and individuals. In response to a question about compensation for the cost of pollution control equipment, he said there would be "tax credits, not for those that produce better profits but contribute to a better life.

Carter said that when he was a businessman in Plains, Ga., "you were the leaders I looked to and admired for your tremendous achievement.

Congressional Energy Package Still Unresolved

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) - This was supposed to be the Congress that ended the bickering, honeymooned with Jimmy Carter, and built a proud Democratic record on jobs, prosperity and energy. Maybe next year.

For the Democratic 95th Congress is leaving town today with a record as mixed as those of ite predecessors in the days of divided rule between a Republican White House and a Democratic Capi-

Controlling both, the Democrats found as much frustration as accomplishment in the first session of Carter's presidency. A long list of legislation passed the 95th Congress in the first half of its two years, but the issue everyone agreed held top priority, a comprehensive energy pack-

When Jimmy Carter moved into the White House Jan. 20, ending eight years of Republican control of the executive branch, he carried with him intentions to ask for congressional action on a broad range of issues including energy, taxes, welfare, government reorganization and the need to provide a quick boost to a

With the Democrats holding two-thirds majorities in both the House and Senate, Carter's chances of having a long and happy honeymoon with Congress looked Carter had campaigned as an outsider to the ways of Washington and his early relations with Congress supported that claim. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd complained that the White House was failing to consult with them on everything from patronage to the drafting of major legislative programs.

Nonetheless, Congress gave Carter the authority he sought to reorganize the federal bureaucracy and acted promptly to create an Energy Department, the first new cabinet-level agency in 11 years.

Carter's economic stimulus program passed, but without the $50 tax rebate he wanted. He was forced to withdraw it in the face of strong Senate opposition.

But this became a Congress of caucuses, in which legislators with common interests and concerns banded together. Often their purpose was to express frustration over what they saw as lack of sympathy from the White House.

The Black Caucus said Carter was neglecting the needs of the urban poor while the Steel Caucus demanded stronger action to help an industry severely hurt by

An early sign that Congress and Carter were destined for a stormy relationship was the long fight over federal water projects. Carter decided there was only questionable economic benefits to be had from many of these Corps of Engineers projects, damming rivers and dredging harbors. Often, he said, they were even environmentally unsound.

A long and often-bitter fight ended when Carter agreed to sign a public works appropriation bill that dropped funds for only half the projects he want-spent trying to find compromises on energy, abortion and Social Security financ-The first breakthrough came when

The final weeks of the session were compromise language was found to break the stalemate on abortion. Then, on Wednesday, House and Senate conferees completed action on a bill designed to raise $227 billion over 10 years for the financially troubled Social Security System. Under the bill, the maximum annual Social Security tax, which now is $965, will increase to $3,046 in 1987. This year, workers paid Social Security taxes on the first $16,500 of their earnings. By 1987, the wage base will be $42,600.

But no compromises were found that could break the energy deadlock, particularly on the issue of price controls on nat-

Most of Carter's recommendations for conserving, taxing and pricing energy were approved by the House in August but were rejected or largely dismantled by the Senate in September and October. As they searched for a congressional compromise that Carter would approve, Senate and House negotiators tentatively agreed on such non-tax matters as electric rate-setting and industrial conversion from oil or natural gas to coal.

Energy tax conferees tentatively aproved plans for taxing new automobiles that waste gas, starting on 1979 models that waste gas, starting on 1979 models with a top tax of $550 for vehicles getting less than 13 miles per gallon.

In other energy-related matters: Carter vetoed a bill that would have authorized $80 million for the Clinch River nuclear breeder reactor project in

In approving Carter's Energy Department, Congress rejected his proposal to give the department's secretary au-thority to set natural gas and oil prices. Instead, Congress gave much of this power to an independent commission in the new department.

The House killed a Carter-backed bill that would have required more imported oil to be carried on U.S.-flag tank-

TAXES

The 1977 Tax Reduction and Simplification Act, which Congress passed and Carter signed in May as plan to stimulate the economy, will cut taxes a total of $34 billion over three years. It is also intended to make figuring taxes easier for roughly 95 percent of the nation's taxpay-

WELFARE

The administration is winning key opening rounds in congressional consideration of Carter's plans for a basic overhaul of the nation's welfare system.

A special House welfare subcommittee, which took testimony on the more than $30 billion package Carter proposed in August, voted to combine the $6 billion food stamp program with a consolidated system of cash benefits for the poor.

Welfare spending now runs about $28 billion annually. The House panel is facing key decisions involving the Carter plan's jobs programs. The subcommittee's recommendations will go to three committees before issues reach the full House next year.

ABORTION

Carter signed into law a Senate-House compromise, reached after more than four months of congressional battles, covering when the government will pay for abortions for poor women in this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

The abortion argument had blocked passage of a $60 billion appropriation for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

Under the compromise, there are to be Medicaid program payments for abortions when a poor woman might die by

LABOR

In November, Carter signed legislation hiking the $2.30-an-hour minimum wage to $2.65 next year and making other annual increases until the level reaches $3.35 beginning in 1981 and benefitting about five million workers.

The House approved legislation sought by both the president and organized labor to make it easier for unions to organize new members. The Senate is expected to take up the measure in 1978.

GOVERNMENT REORGANIZATION Carter got congressional authority in April to go ahead with his plans for reorganizing the federal bureaucracy. Under the legislation, the plans take effect automatically unless rejected within 60 days by either the House or Senate.

ENVIRONMENT Automakers received a two-year delay in meeting tougher new vehicle-exhaust standards, now due to take effect in 1980, under amendments to the clean-air law

Carter signed in August. A strip-mining control and reclamation measure the president approved in August requires coal operators to restore the land they mine and creates a federal fund to rehabilitate land scarred by past strip-mining operations. Former President Gerald Ford twice vetoed almost identical legislation. BUDGET

O'Neill, Byrd Trying To Guide President

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) - A big, gregarious Boston Irishman and a slender, precise West Virginian were the two key men in President Carter's introduction to the ways - the often difficult ways - of Congress in dealing with presidents.

By an unusual coincidence, the top leadership at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue changed last January.

When Jimmy Carter took over the White House, Thomas P. O'Neill had been elected Speaker of the House and Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia majority leader in the Senate.

To a considerable extent, the story of the 95th Congress' first session is the story of how these two veteran congressional Democrats worked with the Democratic president, a Washington newcomer.

SEN. LLOYD BENTSEN said this week that a new formula for distributing Comnunity Development funds in 1980 "will inensify regional antagonisms."

"The formula was designed to benefit the arge, struggling cities in older industrial areas but it will also mean a windfall for maller well-to-do cities in those areas." Bentsen said. "It...is based on regional poliics and not on any valid determination as to where the funds are needed most."

When and if the "toothless" Humphrey-Hawkins full employment act is passed, the Northeast will have a law making it a "national policy" to help industries and cities in the Snow Belt at the expense of Texas and other Sun Belt states.

> THINGS WILL GET worse before they get better, if this regionalism runs its course. Not only can the Northeast outvote us in Congress, it soon will have "out of the way" the Southern committee chairmen who have held sway for the last 50 years.

A decade ago, Southerners chaired 8 of 16 Senate committees. That dropped to 5 of 15 with the death of Arkansas' Sen. John McClellan the other day.

In the House, Southerners and Southwesterners headed a dozen committees a decade ago. They now control only 5 of 22-with such stalwarts as George Mahon and Olin Teague of Texas in their last term.

This is equivalent to adding 4 cents an ounce to first-class postage."

That's the assessment of one Yale Brozen of the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business in a foreward to an American Enterprise Institute Study.

The study, done by Ohio University economist Douglas K. Adie, blames high labor costs for the postal deficit. Postal wages now exceed general pay levels by a whopping 35 per cent, he says.

In 1975, the average postal worker earned—or, rather, was paid—$6.11 an hour, Adie found. That compared with $4.53 an hour that year for non-supervisory workers in the private non-farm

About the same ratio would prevail today, David R. Francis reported in the Christian Science

ADIE CONCLUDES in his study that the best way to bring postal workers' salaries down to the realm of reasonableness would be to peg them to a "quit rate."

Under the "quit rate" theory, he says, when 1 per cent of the postal workers are quitting per month, those who stay on still would be earning wages that are "excessive" by 20 per cent.

Thus, he reasons, if Congress would instruct the Postal Service not to let the "quit rate" drop below 1 per cent per month, the public would begin to come close to getting its money's worth.

It is a tool to describe computer-recognizable information about millions of paying jobs and where to find them. The lexicographers of this "controlled vocabulary" are the California Department of Human Resources.

The first draft was revised and explained by the Los Angeles Field Center, and other units, but the whole project was coordinated here by the much-abused federal government. A companion volume to the Handbook is the "Dictionary of Occupational Titles.

Sylvia Porter:

Don't Go Unprotected In In-Between Times

IF YOU'RE AMONG America's millions of adults who are between jobs or among other millions of youngsters who are between school and job in this soft labor market, you well may find yourself without any health insurance coverage at

This would be particularly the case if you're in a high turnover field, such as data processing -for you may not be permitted to convert your former employer's group insurance plan to your individual needs.

And you might have to wait two, four, or even six months to become eligible to join your new employer's plan.

Your dilemma also would be especially pertinent if you are in a field where it's customary to work from contract to contract. In some instances, school teachers whose contracts run for 10 months need individual health insurance during the summer months.

YOU HAVE THE alternatives of: (1) crossing your fingers and praying accident or illness will not strike while you aren't covered; or (2) purchasing permanent health insurance.

If you opt for permanent coverage, you may wind up paying for the individual plan and also for part of a group plan while not being able to collect full benefits under the group plan.

Yet, interim health insurance-an obvious solution-was unknown until a couple of years ago. when a small insurer began offering it. Recently, giant Allstate Life Insurance entered the field.

And now, another giant, Travelers Insurance Companies, has launched a campaign not only to make this coverage available but also to inform you that you can have it if you need short-term medical and surgical insurance.

"IT IS DESIGNED solely for short-term coverage," says Travelers senior vice president William J. Murphy. "It is not designed to be used in place of a group conversion plan, nor as supplemental coverage.

If you have the option of converting the group plan you are leaving when you switch jobs, by all means do so. These interim health insurance plans are geared just to fill your needs if you are an individual or family temporarily without prot-

· YOU ARE PROVIDED with up to $50 for a second surgical opinion, up to $100 for hospital out-patient tests required prior to surgery in a hospital or ambulatory surgical center, and also with payments for emergency care if you have an accident, outpatient surgery, post-operative outpatient care and home health care. In addition to the two term periods of 60 or 120 days, you may choose (1) Plan A which pays $50 per day for hospitalization and (2) Plan B which pays $100 per day.

These two plans apply to the surgical schedules as well. For instance, Plan A would pay $160 for an appendectomy and Plan B would pay $320. Payments for coronary artery surgery would be $800 and $1,600; for a gall bladder removal, $240

Under the Travelers plan, you are eligible if you are between ages 17 and 59, with costs depending on age and sex. As an illustration, a 27year-old man could purchase Plan A for 60 days for $65. A 27-year-old woman would pay $74.25 for the same plan.

If you are a man between ages 50 and 55, the cost of Plan A would be $105.85, and if you are a woman in this age span, $119.15 for the same cov-

A typical interim health policy can be effective at once or at any time within 30 days following your purchase. And you can return the policy within 30 days with a full premium refund.

They appealed to the Fourth Appellate District, Court of Appeal. On Nov. 10, the court reversed the convictions and held that the California law ates the rights of doctors and patients alike.

IN THE COURSE of its 56-page opinion, the two-man majority (Judges Robert O. Staniforth and Gerald Brown) made an exceptionally strong case for the doctrines of freedom of choice. Judge Gordon Cologne, dissenting, defended the power of the state to dictate what doctors may prescribe and patients may receive.

The case thus offered a classic confrontation between rights and powers. In the majority view, only a compelling state interest can justify laws mended to punish a licensed physician for pre-cribing a non-toxic substance to an informed and ing patient.

Staniforth and Brown could find no such compelling state interest in the criminal case before them. The undoubted power of a state to legislate against quackery must yield, in their view, to the superior right of a cancer patient to choose between "approved" and "unapproved" forms of treatment.

LAETRILE. FOR THOSE who may have come late to the controversy, is a compound derived from amygdalin, a substance that occurs widely in fruits, berries and other natural material.

Usually it is extracted from apricot pits. In the absence of scientifically acceptable proof of its efficacy, the federal authorities officially regard Laetrile as a worthless drug.

As the California court made clear in the Privatera case, others have a different view. Some doctors insist that in combination with a carefully controlled diet, Laetrile may indeed be effective in reducing the weight loss—and the agonizing pain—of some cancer victims. To the California court, such conflicting claims are immaterial.

Wrote Judge Staniforth: "TO REQUIRE THE doctor to use only ortho-dox 'state sanctioned' methods of treatment un-der threat of criminal penalty for variance is to invite a repetition in California of the Soviet experience with 'Lysenkoism.'

"The mention of a requirement that licensed doctors must prescribe and treat within 'state sanctioned alternatives' raises the spectre of medical stagnation at best, statism, paternalistic Big Brother at worst."

It is not only the licensed physician, but also the patient, whose rights become paramount. The patient has "a fundamental and compelling interest to choose or to reject his or her own medical treatment" on the doctor's advice.

But the effect of the California criminal statute is to prohibit such a choice. The patient is offered bureaucratically predetermined treatment or

IF THE EVIDENCE suggested fraud or deception, the majority indicated, it might be a different matter. But Dr. Privatera's patients "are not wide-eyed country bumpkins seeking to be conned.

The patients were "knowledgeable persons fully aware of the nature of the 'state sanctioned alternatives." One such patient, an elderly man with cancer of the protate, was told what the state approved: prostate removal, castration, and female hormone treatment for the rest of his life.

"The victim simply refused to accept these alternatives and sought amygdalin treatment." To deny an informed cancer victim access to unorthodox treatment "must surely take on a Kalkaesque, a nightmare quality. No demonstrated public danger, no compelling interest of the state, warrants an Orwellian intrusian into the most private zones of privacy...From the terminal patient's viewpoint a new depth of inhumanity is reached by a broad sweep of this law so inter-

Growing Trees Requires Work

INDIANA, Pa. (UPI) - You probably think the evergreen awaiting its Christmas Eve trimming was plucked from the deep forest, but chances are you're

The trees that adorn millions of American homes each December have to be planted, sheared, butt-pruned, sprayed and baled, and it is big business.

For instance, Roy Fleming maintains 14 evergreen fields, or about 500,000 trees, helped by his wife, three sons and seasonal workers. He lives comfortably with his family, and two dogs, in a home surrounded by fields of evergreens. His backyard is filled with cut trees and thousands of dollars in sophisticated harvesting machinery.

He has been growing evergreens for 32 years in Indiana County, Pa. — "Christ-mas Tree Capital of the World" — and seems to enjoy his work immensely.

The hardest part of the job comes after Thanksgiving, when Fleming and as many helpers as he can get, brave the area's strong winds to cut, bale and load thousands of trees in sub-freezing weath-

"It is very hard work," he said proudly. "I've had men who've worked in the coal mines work part time for me, and they say they've never worked harder in their

Despite the growing popularity of artificial, non-shedding Christmas trees, Fleming says the demand for his product is high.

Most years, Fleming ships about 25,000 trees. This year, weather permitting, he hopes to load 33,000 baled evergreens on trucks heading for states as far away as Alabama and Florida.

'There is a market for the fake, and there is a market for real. I've seen artificial trees selling at the stores from $59 to $79, while our best sells for $12 and will make their's look sick. You can't duplicate a real Christmas tree.'

He is not only selling more trees, but "Colorado spruce has been coming on in the past three to four years. It is more expensive, and takes longer to grow, but

"It's like the Cadillac of Christmas trees, and we are selling a lot of Cadillacs." Fleming said demand also has increased recently for smaller, apartment-

Prices have risen slightly on all trees, reflecting inflation, and substantially on rarer species. Most of Fleming's better trees still wholesale at less than $10, but by the time they are shipped and unpacked in Florida, that could translate into $30 or more.

Disease and weather affect trees, as they do other crops. Last winter's severe cold runined almost 50 percent of the Norway and white spruce crop but the wet spring and summer was almost ideal for Scotch pine and Colorado spruce.

Growers also are plagued with the problem of theft. Fleming said it is impossible to guard his wide acreage day and night and people seem to think the trees are there to cut and haul. And not just one tree; one late night thieves absconded with 500 trees in the back of a raphy that are ideal for evergreens. In 1964 there were about 300 Indiana County growers, but that number has dropped now to about 40.

Cincinnati City Manager Not Typical Bureaucra

(EDITORS NOTE: When William A. Deneidse test over as Cincinnell's city menager, he discovered that public efficiels had not faced up to the fact that the city was in trouble. He began his feature b trying to make them think small.

By LEE MITGAN

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — When William A. Donaldson became city manager two years ago, he found Cincinnati in decline. And city residents quickly found that their new man is not the typical bureaucrat.

For one thing, he doesn't like doors or walls or drawn curtains or anything that might stem the flow of people into his office or the offices of other city bureaucrats accustomed to working in cocoons.

Also, he never raises his voice.

This no-doors, no-yelling policy is the symbol to a brand of management that has made Donaldson one of the most praised city managers in the country. Both professional city administrators and elected officials in the cities where he's worked consider him one of the best in the business.

"You have to break down the institutions that isolate people from accountability for what they're doing," he explained between puffs on his pipe.

"What's happened in city government is that you have 18 or 20 different governments — the water department feuds with the sewer department and the sewer department feuds with public works. They become isolated little kingdoms. We end up changing the problem to fit it into a department. So the question is, what can we do to wreck that system?"

"The Donaldson style is an assault on the substance as well as the symbols of bureaucracy. He saw the principal role of the city manager not as making 'right' decisions but in getting other people to make right decisions," urbanologist Frederick O'R. Hayes wrote in a recent book, "Productivity in Local Government."

Donaldson was an apprentice embalmer in his teens, but be found his interest in public administration outweighed his interest in corpses. After taking some courses in public finance, his career eventually led him to jobs as city manager of four cities with different kinds of problems — Montclair, Calif., Scottsdale, Ariz., Tacoma, Wash., and now Cincinnati.

Reluctant to take the job in Cincinnati at first — "I only came because I heard they had a great zoo" — Donaldson soon discovered he would be dealing with a city in deeper trouble than its citizens or government realized.

"Cincinnati was the only city I ever went to that didn't seem to be in a lot of trouble when I got there. What happened was it took about a month after I arrived. The city couldn't pay its bills. And no one had paid a bit of attention. And then we got indications of, by our standards, gross corruptions in the police department and we ended up getting the police chief indicted."

A series of swift actions by Donaldson followed to bring the city's deficit-ridden budget under control. He put a freeze on city jobs and cut the work force from about 9,200 workers to 6,500. He also got the city to face the fact that it was shrinking.

"What I found out was that every city department was still planning to get bigger. Nobody likes to talk about getting smaller. I told the Chamber of Commerce we were planning on getting smaller, and they had a hemorrhage. So finally we called it 'managing the mature city,' and that sounded better

Now, with increased aid from the federal government and an improving local economy, Donaldson feels the city can operate less stringently, at least for the next two years. But he has been working hard to get the city's department heads "to find what the opportunities are for getting smaller."

The latest problem Cincinnati faces is one affecting many Ohio cities — school closings stemming from voter resistance to property taxes. On Nov. 8, voters rejected a new school tax levy by a hairthin margin, and now the city schools face the prospect of running out of funds

In every city Donaldson has been in, there are pictures of him wearing firehats and zooming around town, an insatiable tinkerer forever thinking out loud how a firetruck firehose, garbage truck or police squad car can be made better.

Best known is the story of "Godzilla," the giant, one-armed garbage truck Donaldson brought to Scottsdale, where he was city manager from 1965 to 1971. The metal arm on the side of the truck is able to lift plastic garbage cans off the sidewalk, empty them into the truck and return them to the sidewalk. All that is needed to run "Godzilla" is the driver.

By comparison, even cities with relatively efficient garbage systems generally use two-man crews, and in New York there are three men to a truck.

But to Donaldson, "Godzilla" did more than just save the city money.
"Soutsave the city money.

"Seottsdale was a very rapidly growing area. What they really needed to do was develop a sense of identity. So the way to do that was to make us different. We built the new garbage truck which made everyone take notice. It worked very well."

It was in Tacoma, from 1971 to 1975, that Donaldson was able to hatch many now are his trademark in Cincinnati.

He developed a working relationship with outside experts and technologists and encouraged city department heads to do likewise. The spirit of trust he developed between Tacoma and Boeing Co., for instance, netted the city nearly $500,000 in free technical advice from the firm on such matters as improving fire equip-

He also developed an ingenious "intern program" that has worked in both Tacoma and Cincinnati. For three months each, two middle-level managers in city departments sit in Donaldson's office and are given tasks that have nothing to do with their usual jobs.

As a result, the interns learn a lot about other city departments, including the city manager's office.

And Donaldson gains valuable contacts who let him know what's going on in the city bureaucracy. He can identify good people to promote. He also can get a feeling for the quality of the department head from the caliber of intern sent to Donaldson's office.

"I had a department head send me a

"What I find in that a whole let of people who work for city government have good ideae, but for a whole series of resons they've never been able to try them.

Soviet Defense Spending Below Western Estimate

By THOMAS KENT
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government Wednesday announced a 1978 defense budget of 17.2 billion rubles, the amount announced for 1977 but well below Western estimates of Soviet

The figure was announced to the Soviet Parliament by Finance Minister Vasily F. Garbuzov. At the official Soviet exchange rate, it would equal $24.1 billion.
Garbuzov said the Soviet Union was carrying out a "peaceloving foreign poli-cy" but concern was still necessary over 'the security and defense ability of our Current Soviet defense research and production, according to Western experts, includes a range of new heavy mis-tanks, plus continued modernization of the Soviet navy.

The American defense budget for fiscal 1978 is $110.1 billion, or about 24 percent of all government expenditures. The So-viet figure equals 13 percent of the total Soviet budget of 125.7 billion rubles, or $176 billion.

Western specialists have frequently claimed that many Soviet defense costs are hidden in other budget appropriations, much as the Soviets note the dispersal of some American military intelligence and weapons development costs in the budgets of non-military U.S. agen-

U.S. official estimates usually put the Soviet defense budget at more than $100 billion, and a 1976 estimate gave it as The Soviet government also announced its economic plans for 1978 including a sharply conservative industrial growth rate and an all-out effort to make up for last year's disappointing grain harvest. State Planning Chairman Nikolai K. Baibakov told the Soviet Parliament that dustrial production would grow by only 4.5 percent next year, compared to an estimated growth of 5.6 percent this year. Foreign analysts said the low figure appeared to indicate continued Soviet concern with the quality rather than quantity of production and difficulties in construction and in light industry, which produces most of the country's consumer goods.

Next year's low growth could also be partially related to this year's grain harvest of 195.5 million tons, since the low 1977 harvest is expected to affect the national food industry next year. Baibakov said the nation will try to produce 220 million tons of grain in 1978, just slightly below the 1976 all-time record crop of 223.8 million tons.

Finance Minister Garbuzov said the grain harvest was hurt in 1977 by weather conditions that were "far from the best, or even from the average."

The Soviet Union has been substantially reducing its annual industrial growth

Worker productivity is raised through automation, better organization and propaganda campaigns designed to fire

In the overall 1976-80 economic plan, the Soviets hope to increase industrial production at an average annual rate of 6.5 percent. This compares to 7.5 percent in the 1971-75 plan and 8.4 percent in the 1966-70 plan. The greatest burst of output usually comes in the last two years of each plan.

Trade Talks With Japan End Soon

By JOHN F. BARTON WASHINGTON (UPI) - Trade talks between American and Japanese officials are ending inconclusively amid warnings Congress may pass protectionist legisla-tion if Tokyo doesn't sharply reduce its massive trade imbalance with this coun-

Nobuhiko Ushiba, Japanese minister of external economic affairs, scheduled another meeting today with Robert Strauss, the president's special trade representative, and a courtesy call on President Carter at the White House.

But Strauss told reporters Wednesday, 'We are in general accord that we are not going to reach any agreement of finality on this trip."

Strauss said the former Japanese ambassador's discussions provided a "candid, productive working relationship

Strauss spoke in the presence of Ushiba after a working luncheon hosted by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., the powerful chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Ushiba said he gained "a much deeper understanding" of American trade prob-lems during his four days of talks with administration and congressional leaders — talks which one Japanese diplomat described as "like walking into a machine

Ushiba told UPI the proposed list included increased imports of American beef, but only minor additional imports of American citrus fruits.

Strauss took a hard line towards the Ushiba mission from the beginning, branding as inadequate the proposed concessions Ushiba brought even before Strauss said Ushiba would report to his government and "whether or not that trip will take place depends on the out-

Long said protectionist legislation could result if Japan did not take the trade crisis seriously and take positive action to cure it.

The United States wants Japan to lower trade barriers for such U.S. exports as automobiles and beef, and to cut back its exports to the United States of low-priced steel, television sets and manufactured goods, which have built the nation a huge surplus in trade balances with western

"It could happen," Long said of protec-tionist legislation to make it more dificult for Japan to sell to the United States.

"But it could be avoided if the Japa nese government pursues policies that make it possible for the Japanese people to enjoy better living standards, a better diet, automobiles and larger homes."

Documents Say U.S. Planned Korea Coup

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The United States had a top secret plan to overthrow President Syngman Rhee during the Korean War because he was "a very troubling, often unreliable ally," according to recently declassified govern

However, there was never an attempt to use the plan because of the lack of a strong anti-communist leader to replace Rhee, Stanford University history professor Barton Bernstein said Wedn

Bernstein said he learned of the plan called "Ever Ready" from files recently declassified by the government.

The South Korean leader, according to the documents, attempted repeatedly to disrupt U.S. negotiations to end the war,

"He wanted America and her United Nations allies to continue the war, to conquer the Communist north and vanquish the Chinese 'volunteers,' Bernstein said. As a result, he said, "American officials were torn between overthrowing Rhee, giving him a defense pact, and seeking an American pullout after the armistice."

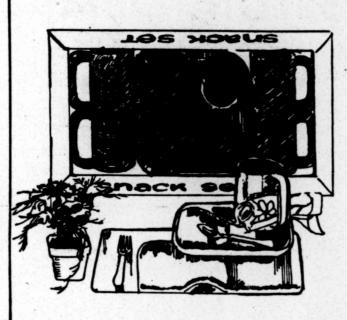

Bernstein said the Joint Chief of Staffs endorsed an anti-Rhee coup in 1951 when Rhee threatened to withdraw his forces from the front lines in order to disrupt U.S. negotiations to end the war.

"Plan Ever Ready" was dusted off and revised several times during the first year of Eisenhower's administration, Bern-

Severe Food Scarcities Heighten Polish Tensions

WARSAW (AP) — A severe shortage of meat and other foods is plaguing Poland. Long lines of silent, sullen citizens outside stores in the country's main towns and cities are everyday sights.

The scarcities have heightened tensions in this Communist-ruled state which already has seen riots over food three times since 1956.

In that year and again in 1970 governments fell and in mid-July the regime led by Edward Gierek barely survived public protests over a hike in food prices. The Communist party leader had to cancel

Members of the party's central committee frankly acknowledge Gierek may not survive a second uprising. They anticipate, therefore, the government will do everything possible to fill the country's food and meat shops before Christmas festivities descend on this predominantly Roman Catholic nation of 34 million.

Ordinary, as well as highly-placed Poles, blame the shortages on several

About 80 percent of Poland's land is privately owned by farmers unsure of their future in a communist state and who are believed to be holding back production

Four bad harvests in a row also hurt. The slaughter of a million pigs two years ago reduced the livestock population. To earn scarce foreign currency Poland still exports a lot of farm goods. Distribution services have been assailed publicly as inefficient.

Evidence of scarcities is on display throughout Warsaw and, by many acounts, in most cities, towns and villages across the country. Long lines of silent, often sullen-looking citizens stand in rain and cold waiting, hoping for some-thing to buy from the butcher, the grocer, the fishmonger. A grandmother in a line outside the Supersam store on Marszatkowska Street one evening said she'd been there two hours.

Ahead of her, she said in good English was a professional "stander" who is paid to wait and to buy for groups who cannot spare the time or energy to do so them-

"The next two or three months could be critical for some big decisions must be made," said Mieczyslaw Rakowski, editor-in-chief of the influential party weekly Politika and a liberal-minded member of the central committee. "Our press has reported hundreds of cases of mismanagement, mistakes and inefficiencies. But those responsible are rarely identified and that ought to be done. We need also to restructure our system so that we can achieve changes without upheavals."

Food is not the only thing that's scarce in Poland. Workers whose wages have risen nearly 70 percent since Gierek took office seven years ago must wait four years for an automobile, 10 years for an apartment. That's because labor is short too along with raw materials.

Basic rate for Polish pay is 2,000 zlotys a month or about $100 at the normal rate of exchange. This pay rate is supplemented by free social benefits provided by the state and includes medical and hospital services, subsidized food prices, transportation charges, vacations, books, con-

Then there's an almost insatiable demand for consumer goods of all kinds. state has been exporting so much coal that Poles themselves this winter may be shivering for lack of enough of their staple fuel product. Since 1956 Polish workers and others have taken to the streets three times in protest against food shortages or planned hikes in meat prices which, along with several basic commodities, remain fixed at 1966 levels

The cost here of a pound of beef is officially set at about 60 cents with pork a little dearer.

This is well below the production price. But through its system of subsidies the state picks up the tab for the difference estimated by some economists to be at least 100 percent. Few Poles think this is a healthy arrangement. Fewer still ex-pect it to last much longer.

Against the background of previous food protests Gierek appears to have reached something of a partnership with Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, Primate of Poland who heads the Catholic church. Both seem to appreciate that new countrywide protests, if sustained, could bring a Soviet military intervention that would imperil indefinitely Poland's relative in-

Wyszynski's backing for Gierek's efforts to spur the nation's farmers to produce and deliver more undoubtedly would be a big help. A church call for calm and patience over the next two or three years would reinforce Gierek's gov

Five state commissions are due, meanwhile, to come up with recommended solutions of the country's major problems — in time for a January conference. of the Polish United Workers' or communist party.

Their studies over the past year have been related to key sectors of the economy such as food prices, market supplies or distribution, agriculture, housing and the conservation of resources.

Gierek has turned not only to his communist neighbors in East Europe but also to the United States and other western powers for help. Poland last year borrowed $1.3 billion from the Soviet Union on top of past help - and expects to get still more. It owes the West an estimated $12 billion too and each year has to pay $4 billion back in interest and redemption

A succession of four bad harvests has elled the Poles once again this year to seek vastly increased grain supplies from the U.S. in all about six million tons — mainly animal feed — are wanted. The Americans have been asked to ease credit terms on about half that amount, roughly $300 millions worth, through the Commodity Credit Corporation, a U.S. Department of Agriculture agency.

For the balance the Carter administration has been asked to find ways of providing longterm loans.

Eugeniusz Grochal, vice president of Poland's labor union movement, offered the formal party explanation for the food shortages: "Since 1970 wages of 12 million workers have risen by about 65 percent. The rate of increase has been too steep when you remember prices of food, transportation, housing and other basic things have been frozen. Wage earners have too much to spend on too few sup-plies and because they can spend a lot shortages result."

Polish consumption of meat, in fact, has soared in recent years even though it still is well below Western levels. Government figures show that in 1976 per capita consumption was about 154 pounds a year, compared with 116

ounds in 1970 and 50 pounds in 1938. Poland's troubles have been com-WEST WIND pounded by shortages of raw materials as well as primary products. The government is investing one-third of its income in industrial development. This offers the prospect, ultimately, of a sunnier future.

But the waiting period has brought distortions in the light and heavy industry programs, impatience on the part of peo-programs, impatience on the part of people weary of promises, promises and per-ils of popular protest against essential re-forms. Rakowski acknowledges these things frankly. Yet he insists these are the transient problems of a transition.

Carter Rejects Draft On Cities

Carter, somewhat irritated, has rejected a draft plan on the administration's urban policy and told an interagency task force to sharpen its focus and provide more details, government sources said Wednesder

A White House source said the urban policy recommendations were discussed during a private meeting in the Oval Off-ice on Monday and that Carter told those present he "didn't want to put more money into old programs.

Carter, according to the source who declined to be identified, "asked for the policy statement to be reworked, sharpened, made tougher and more specific."

The cabinet-level task force, headed by Patricia Harris, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, has been charged with developing a cities policy for the ad-ministration. The president's target date ministration. The president's target date for developing the policy, according to the White House, still is next March.

Carter has been under increased pressure from black leaders and spokesmen for the urban poor to come up with a new urban policy. Some black leaders have complained in recent months that Carter was not moving fast enough to develop an urban strategy.

It has been estimated that the program being worked out by the interagency task force will add an estimated $7 billion to present government programs for urban Government sources, who declined to be identified, said that Carter — although not angry — was irritated after the budget for revitalizing the nation's cities was presented to him last Monday by the Office of Management and Budget.

A White House spokesman, Jim Purks, said Carter "did not reject or accept" the proposals, but that he asked for "more information."

One source, who attended the meeting, said one of Carter's chief complaints was that the policy proposals, submitted in summary form by the Office of Management and Budget, "did not look like anything new" thing new."

Another source, a member of the inter-agency task force which is putting togeth-er the urban policy, said Carter's irrita-tion stemmed in part from the fact that the budget proposals had been submitted while the full policy recommendations have not.

"He objected to having the cart before the horse," said the source.

The White House official who attended the meeting said the president made it clear he wanted the task force "to return to the drawing board and get tougher ...

Hawkins proposed substituting an open-ended jobs program which would guarantee a job for every welfare recipient required to work.

"Isn't this really at the heart of the Humphrey-Hawkins proposal since this would give everyone a public job?" asked Rep. Richard Nolan, D-Minn.

Hawkins did not answer directly, and Labor Department official Jodie Allen said the 1.4 million jobs would be more than sufficient to take care of those wanting the minimum wage jobs.

She warned that if the wage were set at a higher rate, the public service jobs would be more in demand from persons who would leave low-paying private sector jobs to take better-paying public ones. Hawkins ultimately pulled back his proposal, saying he would bring it up lat-

Policy Aids Bureaucrats

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal em ployees could not be fired as a result of efforts to reorganize the bureaucracy un-der a plan approved by President Carter, a White House spokesman said Wednesday night.

The plan also would seek to restore grade and pay levels to thousands of employees demoted because of routine job shifts, spokesman Jim Purks said.

Bus Driver Threatened

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - Bus driver Robert Zerggen understands that some people may be upset with the quality of Philadelphia's transit service, but he found out this week that a few can be downright nasty.

According to police, Zerggen, 30, an employee of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEP-TA), was talking with a SEPTA supervisor during a break when he was approached by Margaret Patterson, 62.

Police said Mrs. Patterson accused Zerggen of driving past her when she was waiting for a bus. She told him if he passed her again, she would stab him in the heart. She then began fumbling in her

Woman Files Suit After Bird Attack

DEDHAM, Mass. (UPI) - A woman who claims she was pecked on the nose by a cockatoo has filed a $20,000 damage suit against the Boston Zoological Society and the Stoneham Zoo.

Marilyn Denslow, 29, claims she was working as a waitress in a restaurant in Boston on Aug. 27 when a man with a cockatoo on his shoulder walked into the dining room. She said the tropical parrot pecked her on the nose and near one eye, causing permanent scarring.

The woman's lawyer, Robert Franklin, said the bird had been stolen earlier in the day from the zoo's aviary. Police later recovered the bird and apprehended a

In this incongruous hideaway at the University of Rochester, George Grella conducts his love affair with literature, ancient and modern. He talks of authors and characters as if they were old friends. But it is to the chillers, thrillers and killers of popular writing that he devotes special attention, in lectures and essays now being expanded into a book. And of his favorite characters - the hard-boiled detectives of American fiction — he speaks almost with empathy.

The detective in these hard-boiled novels is not one of those gentlemen who comes down from London and solves the crime, and his hobbies are foreign languages and playing the harpsichord. He's an underpaid, suffering sort of person, tough and sensitive and honorable. It's not so much that he dishes out violence. It's that he suffers violence. He's a stoic sufferer. He's tough enough to take it.

"He's also tough in a moral way. Tough seems to mean that he's initiated into the sinfulness of his society, into the falseness and deception in it. And the wisecrack indicates a lot of things, the quick wit of the detective, his intelligence, his imperviousness to the kinds of things that the phony society shows him.

I'm a great believer in wisecracks and good lines myself."

This sounds more like academic drivel than the whodunit excitement associated with drugstore pulp, but Grella says it's the stuff that makes the mystery novel such an enduring American diversion.

"It's a quest more than the penetration of a puzzle. There's almost no puzzle to these things. What we are about are the characters and scenes, because they are usually so well done. This quest is really more for some truth. It's a romance. The mystery itself gets pushed aside. The detective is really not interested in clues, fingerprints, because he knows the police can do that better than he can. What he's really interested in is character. He knows people."

If Grella has a quest of his own - and he would wince at the suggestion — it's to recognize in popular fiction that which is good.

"I wish I could tell you the test for great literature. Raymond Chandler, Ross MacDonald, Dashiell Hammett (all creators of hard-boiled detectives) - I think those novels are definitely mainstream literature."

Indeed, Grella is as likely to curl up on

He delivers living, loving any weekend with the tomes of Marcel Proust or Henry James as he is with the works of Mickey Spillane.

Never mind the obvious formulas of detective stories. "A great critic says, for example, that finicky writers shrink from formulas, great writers exploit them ruthlessly. I think that's true."

Never mind that popular fiction seems more profitable than artistic. Even Shakespeare was chasing a buck with his drama. "When Shakespeare made his pile, he quit. He retired and went back to Stratford. He bought himself a crest and made himself a gentleman. He said, 'I've Even Shakespeare's Hamlet anticipates the detective story, with its young hero searching out his father's murderer and reconstructing the crime for a clue.

And, after all, Edgar Allan Poe, Graham Greene and William Faulkner turned their talents to the thriller.

In fact, Poe is the father of the detective story, Grella says. "It's interesting that the detective story, a popular form, really becomes our first literary expert."

English writers borrowed the detective structure and applied it to the manners of their country, where class distinctions were more pronounced, he says. The English murder mystery, which Grella calls the formal detective story, usually has as its villain a cad who doesn't belong to the aristocratic set into which he intrudes under some guise. When his crime is exposed and he is carted off by the constable, it is the triumph of society usually expressed as a small group enjoying a leisurely weekend at a country manse - over the outcast.

Conan Doyle, the best known of the English detective writers, adds to this class theme a tremendous character, Sherlock Holmes, and a vivid portrait of late Victorian England.

"As mystery stories, these stories are often not very good, but who cares? We read them over and over again even though we know the man with the twisted lip is really pretending to be a beggar. We read them because of the tremendous relationship between Watson and Holmes and the real world that's presented.

When the detective story was taken up again in America earlier this century, the pronounced class distinctions were missing, Grella says, although social class as a theme pops up now and again, notably to-day in television's Columbo. There the hero is an unmannered guy with a shabby raincoat whose crooks always seem to be

Notwithstanding the Sam Spade sign tacked to his door by a student, Grella rarely flops back in his squeaky chair in reverie, identifying with the detective he's reading about. Yet if the American* detective is a wounded innocent, a seeker of truth, a ruffian in gentleman's clothes, a wisecracker, so too is George Grella. He is well-read, articulate, analytical,

River Walkway Highlights City

San Antonio is a beautiful, charming, exciting and friendly city any season of the year - and during the Christmas hol-Christmas brings to San Antonio many festivals, musical happenings, plays, ballet and other celebrations too numerous to mention. Many of the attractions will er - and the river is an attraction itself.

An interesting walkway "Paseo del Rio" follows the meandering river for more than 20 blocks. Beautifully landscaped with arched bridges, stairways and tropical foliage, the river has made San Antonio's downtown one of the most beautiful in the world.

Sidewalk cafes, boutiques and a variety of shops line both sides of the river, but there are plenty of areas of grass, flowers and trees to retain a park atmosphere. Paddle boats and water taxis provide a pleasant means of transportation.

The world of art is always well represented, with paintings, sculpture, leather crafts and pinatas. During the summer the river also becomes the setting for the Arneson River Theatre, where the audience sits on one side of the river and the stage is on the other.

San Antonio has so much to offer in the downtown area that an automobile isn't neccessary for a brief visit. First of all, there's the Alamo, founded in 1718, where less than 200 men from many parts of the world died to the last man in 1836 while delaying Santa Ana and his army of 5,000 troops. The Cos House is the site where General Perfecto de Cos signed the Articles of Capitulation after Texans had taken the town in 1835 shortly before the siege of HemisFair Plaza has the Tower of the Americas, Lone Star Hall of Texas History, Museum of Transportation, Institute of Texan Culltures, and the Theatre for the Performing Arts. There's also an amusement park and several cafes.

A complex of three limestone houses built before 1850 comprise the Jose Antonio Navarro Residence, home of a Texas patriot. Inside the residence is an interesting collection of documents, pictures and period furnishings.

show on earth!" That's the appropriate invitation to "big top" fans of all ages. The Hertzberg Circus Collection is one of the favorite attractions in downtown San Antonio. From the authentic carriage of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thumb to a beautifully detailed three-ring circus in miniature, the collection traces the world of the big top. There are more than 20,000 items of circus memorabilia. Keep in mind that the Hertzberg Circus Collection is not open on Sunday Sports buffs are not overlooked in the Alamo city. At the downtown plaza is the Sportsworld Wax Museum, where lifelike figures in authentic settings present 'stop action" scenes of great moments in Nearby is beautiful San Fernando Cathedral, the original parish church of the Canary Island settlers. The cathedral will whet a visitor's interest to travel the memorable Mission Trail which requires leaving the downtown area.

Also downtown is the Mexican Quarter, a city market filled with colorful Mexican crafts and delicious food. Nearby is the Spanish Governor's Palace built in 1749. Originally constructed about the same time as the palace and reconstructed in 1939 is La Villita, where unique buildings house artists with their arts and crafts for display and sale. The Old San Antonio Museum is also in the same area.

Convenientyly located near the many downtown attractions is San Antonio's modern and expansive convention center complex. For sometime the Convention and Visitors Bureau used the slogan "Nowhere Else but San Antonio." Now the bureau has introduced "Doin' it up San Antonio Style." A lot of that style is

Candlelight Ceremony Set In San Antonio

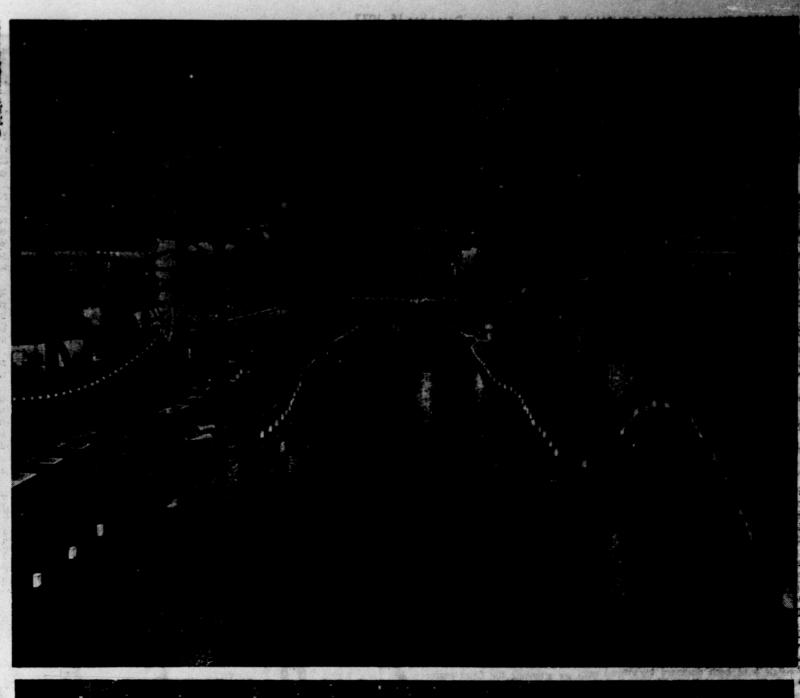

"Las Posadas" will be presented by the San Antonio Conservation Society on the downtown River Walk on December 18, assembling at La Mansion del Rio Hotel af 6:00 p.m. The public is invited to join the beautiful ceremony of song and can-dlelight that has been a Christmas tradi-tion for more than 250 years.

"Las Posadas" is staged in conjunction with the Paseo del Rio Association's annual Fiesta de los Luminarios... a fiesta of lights, when the River Walk along the San Antonio River will be completely lined with glowing candles. The evening is all free and everyone joining the procession will receive candles and song sheets provided by the Society.

The Conservation Society began sponsoring "Las Posadas" for the general public in the downtown area eleven years ago to familiarize all San Antonians, as well as visitors, with the Hispanic custom that was first presented there when the old Spanish Missions came into being.

Leading the singing of hymns and au-thentic folk songs will be Jr. Associate members of the Conservation Society, as well as choral groups from numerous

The Lubbock City Council, which last week demanded stronger ordinance amendments to tighten control over the sale of alcoholic beverages in restaurants, today failed again to agree on the matter. An hour of wrangling among city council members, City Attorney Fred Senter and a Lubbock Restaurant Association representative, produced no consensus and prompted the council to table the discussion until next month.

The postponement marks the third such action in the several months that the proposals have been discussed by the council, Planning and Zoning Commission and legal staff.

Council members also honored two Lubbockites for heroism and valor.

Awards from the council, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Chamber of Commerce, were presented to Jesse Hernandez of 2636 E. Auburn St. and to Josephine Williams of 2197 E. Baylor St. The two last week saved three youngsters from a burning house in East Lubbock.

The children were trapped inside the house when Mrs. Williams, a neighbor, dashed in to rescue two of the children. After learning that a third child remained in the smoke-filled house, Hernandez broke a window, entered the building, and carried the 11-month-old toddler to

Council members and the audience at today's meeting honored Hernandez and Mrs. Williams with two standing ova-

In the debate over amending the alcoholic beverage sale ordinance, which often was bogged down in legal technicalities, Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan suggested that the current ordinance be left as it is until it is tested in court.

None of her council colleagues actively supported her suggestion, although each of them seemed to have his own ideas. None supported the staff's proposals.

As drafted by the legal department, the oposals would forbid late-hour permits for businesses that serve alcoholic beverages and would allow such sales in any business permitted in zoning districts that contain restaurants.

Also, businesses selling alcoholic beverages would have to be at least 600 feet apart and at least 200 feet from residenti-

Additional parking would have to be provided, and alcoholic beverage permits would be subject to Zoning Board of Adjustment (ZBA) approval.

Last week the council rejected proposals drafted by the Planning and Zoning Commission with input from the Lubbock Restaurant Association. The rejected amendments, which would have sidestepped ZBA approval, allowed late-hour permits and did not give the city enough control, council members said.

The city legal department asked that the current ordinance be revamped, contending it is not constitutional on its face. Also, the zoning department contended the ordinance could not be adequately enforced.

The proposed changes would prevent bars from operating as restaurants in zoning districts reserved for legitimate eaterys. And, the changes would disallow legitimate restaurants from acting as "mini-bars" when they sell only liquor from midnight to 2 a.m. under the late-hour permit.

Today's council debate centered on disagreements over who should have the burden of enforcing the 60-40 liquor sale profit limit, whether all businesses in restaurant districts should be able to serve alcoholic beverages and whether there is a simpler way of controlling what zoning department belives to be approximately five illegitimate "restaurants. Gerald Anderson, representing the restaurant association, told the council the group is willing to comply with last week's rejected ordinance, but overall would prefer having the statute tested in court. The group is opposed to the ordinance studied today, he said.

At that point, Mayor Roy Bass noted that no "headway" was being made and suggested the postponement.

He also said he has good indications that Syria wants to resolve differences in the region, and noted that Lebanon is heavily influenced by Syria. Carter said that only the PLO had been completely negative.

Carter said the administration hopes for cooperation from the Soviet Union as the peace effort moves from Cairo to the broader conference the administration hopes will be convened.

Carter described as "a good first step" the current Cairo conference

"We are attending the Cairo conference and will offer our good services when needed, but the basic responsibility will be on the shoulders of the two countries directly involved," he said.

Carter said he did not know what settlement proposals Begin will bring to him

"I will listen to what his ideas will be," Carter said. "And we will be constructive as we have in the past.'

of the equipment at about $153,000. Noticeably absent from the package was a computer for counting ballots in a countywide, citywide or other large election. Such a computer would cost at least $25,000 and perhaps as much as $100,000. However, commissioners earlier this week hired Bill McCullough to develop a central computer system for a variety of county courthouse functions.

McCullough today recommended against investing in a ballot-counting computer, saying such a task could be handled more efficiently - and with less expense - by the county's proposed inhouse computer.

That in-house computer system is not expected to be in operation until September, 1978 - in time for November elections, but long after the local primaries and city and school district elections.

But county officials said they hope to arrange with a local firm to count ballots in the interim, so that the punch-card devices can be used for all elections beginning next year.

They said the political parties technically will be responsible for getting the ballots counted on the May 6 primaries. But Commissioner Jim Lancaster said the county will help make such arrangements, possibly with Lubbock National Bank, whose computer facilities would be adequate for counting ballots. -By JEFF SOUTH

She suggested the proper way to handle the ERA - "if it passes, which I don't think it will" - is to use the Prohibition Amendment repeal method:

"Go back to the federal Congress and have them pass a new amendment, repealing the old one, and submit that to a public mandate vote."

They reportedly hoped to work out a 48-hour shutdown of the plant.

Farmers said they hoped a shutdown would create some meat shortages and "educate the public that the farmer is going broke. The public is the only one that can help the farmer."

The striking agriculture community is complaining of prices that do not keep pace with their production costs. "One hundred percent parity" is a cry being heard across the nation this week. Hale Center farmer Ronald Groves tried to explain the situation: "A farmer is paid $2 for a bushel of wheat which makes 70 loaves of bread. There's only 3 cents worth of wheat goes into a loaf. If we get what we're asking for, we would be paid $5.03 a bushel, and it would raise a loaf of bread price just 3 cents to the consumer. Groves said U.S. Department of Agriculture figures show that 100 percent parity would raise food costs only 3 percent.

The strikers were inspired by what they Wednesday.

Besides shutting down the numerous Amarillo plants - whose delivery trucks laden with produce, milk, bread and other staples had been bound for points through Texas, New Mexico and other states - the farmers saw whole towns virtually closed up.

Hereford, Dimmitt, Hart, Nazareth, Friona and Paducah stores shut their doors in sympathy.

However, in another rural Plains-Panhandle town, Childress, some merchants did so apparently under protest.

Storekeepers there asked how their closing could help the farmers and told the agriculture men. "You're asking us to close during our harvest time" - the Christmas shopping season.

The president and general manager of Panhandle Fruit Company in Amarillo said his warehouse closed voluntarily, despite the fact that it lost some $20,000-$30,000 worth of business even in its lightest 24-hour period of the week.

"We debated whether to do it," said Brummett McClendon. "But we decided to get it out of the way rather than have problems later. If we refused and they picketed us, we could have problems."

Goose and her nursery rhyme characters. Each of the 122 students in the school's special training program will enter the limelight during the 7:30 p.m. performance today. Many will be walk-ons, with only a few moments on stage. None have speaking parts since the show will be narrated. But some will enact real drama.

By DONALD WOUTAT

DETROIT (AP) — The latest car sales igures for General Motors Corp. are 12.6 percent and that's certified the same period in 1976, was announced Wednesday as U.S. automakers reported an overall 6.2 percent decline in sales of domestic-built passenger cars.

crease during the period. For GM, it was the second time in three reporting periods that car sales have been down.

"There is without doubt the beginning of a softness in General Motors," said one industry analyst. "It's more than just Another analyst pinned GM's problems on poor sales of its intermediate-sized cars and said the nation's No. 1 automaker is being hurt by Ford's new 1978 offerings.

"The entire (auto) sector has softened," he said. "Within that softened sector, GM is apparently hurt the most."

The total delivery of 196,300 cars from Dec. 1-10 might have been partly depressed by snowstorms in the Midwest and East, but that alone is not enough to explain the decrease, analysts said.

Ford, which in November was the only automaker to improve over its 1976 performance, recorded a 12.6 percent sales increase in early December to 65,511.

GM sold 104,306 U.S.-built cars and its share of the domestic market fell from

57.1 percent to 52.6 percent. Ford's share jumped from 27.5 percent to 33 percent. At Chrysler Corp., sales totaled 23,967 down 8.4 percent. Chrysler's share of the market was 12.1 percent, down slight-ly. American Motors Corp. dropped 29.4 percent to car sales of 4,516. Its market share was 2.3 percent.

GM had no comment on its declining car sales. Marketing vice president Robert D. Burger said that for the year, GM car sales have surpassed the totals for all of 1976 and that cars and commercial ve hicles combined are running ahead of the record pace of 1973.

But sales of 1978-model GM compacts and its new smaller intermediate cars are down from 1977-model levels.

Ford, which in recent weeks had been piling up sales increases as high as 23 percent, noted that as of December, last year's nationwide strike no longer affected comparative 1976 figures. That makes its 12.6 percent hike a more realistic one, even taking into account a small promo-

Ford is enjoying record sales of its new compact Fairmont.

For the calendar year, Ford's domestic car sales are up 14.5 percent to 2.4 million, GM is up 8.2 percent to 4.9 million, Chrysler is down 5 percent to 1.2 million and struggling AMC is down 24 percent to 177.000.

The four domestic automakers have sold nearly 8.7 million cars in the U.S. this year, up about 7 percent from the same period last year.

The extension of accreditation culminates many months of preparation by LCC of a self-study report submitted to the association. Committees of the self study, composed of board of trustees members, faculty, staff, administrators and students, looked at every facet of the college's activities. Academic programs, financial resources and student services tion were covered. Nine association representatives form-

Two Political Patriarchs Still Guide Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) - An elderly man with a moustache, dressed in Chinese-style pajamas, appeared in the doorway, spread his arms and clapped them to his sde, smiling in greeting.
"It's not that I'm a Maoist," he said in a halting but clear voice. "But these clothes are comfortable."

Luis Munoz Marin, 79, is a living legend who founded modern Puerto Rico and still keeps close tabs on its affairs, advising politicians and at times addressing rallies of the Popular Democratic Party he founded.

Munoz, like his opposite, Luis A. Ferre, founder of the pro-statehood New Progressive Party, are political father figures who cast a long shadow over the current bitter debate over whether the island should continue to be a commonwealth or embrace full American statehood.

Munoz, recovering from a stroke that has impeded his speech, lives in a villa in a shaded wooded area outside San Juan. He has owned the home since 1952, the year he founded the commonwealth.

Trees block out the view of new highrise condominiums that dot the area, symbols of the rapid economic growth that Munoz spurred during his four terms as governor.

Puerto Rico's economy is still based on Operation Bootstrap, the Munoz formula for attracting large American companies to the island with tax exemptions.

Recently, however, that formula has come under strong criticism from Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo of the New Progressive Party, which last year for the first time won control of both houses of the legislature as well as the governor-Puerto Rico has not not been able to shake off the effects of the 1973-74 oil crisis and has an unemployment rate of around 20 percent, with over 50 percent of the population receiving food stamps. One can detect a trace of sadness in Munoz's voice when he surveys Puerto Rico's political and economic problems, but he is more than willing to explain why he feels Puerto Rico's economic survival depends on keeping the commonwealth form of government.

Under the commonwealth formula, Puerto Rico has kept a large measure of fiscal and political autonomy, but its people are American citizens and many federal laws apply to the island as well as to

"It's not thet I'm partisan," Munoz said in an interview. "There is too much partisanship in Puerto Rico already. He said Puerto Rico's current statehood government was hurting chances for economic recovery by not giving enough support to tax exemptions.

"If a government has too strong ties with statehood, it meets difficulties at every step in solving economic problems. It's like an automobile with a brake underneath the accelerator." He said the commonwealth, on the other hand, was created "to meet the peculiar conditions of Puerto Rico."

Munoz said he was worried about the tremendous flow of federal aid into Puerto Rico, both under the commonwealth and pro-statehood governments, creating area of the United States. "the concept of a beggar state."

Although he said the aid "went to good things," he wanted Puerto Rico to pay more of its share, perhaps "by offering matching funds. We have to get the money respectfully."

Munoz's attitude toward federal aid is in sharp contrast to that of Ferre, who considers the money a right of American citizenship rather than a handout.

At the age of 72, Ferre is president of the senate and elder statesman of the New Progressive Party he founded. A successful industrialist and philanthropist, Ferre's is a moderate voice in the constant bickering between the statehood and commonwealth factions. "I feel statehood is inevitable," he said.

"I'm with the younger generation. Our polls show young people are supporting our party. They realize now that statehood is no danger to their culture or to their economy.

Ferre said Puerto Rico is entitled to federal aid just like any other depressed

"Every state gets federal funds in an emergency. If there is unemployment in California, the federal government is going to create jobs in California.

"You have to remember the oil crisis was a devastating thing for Puerto Rico.

If it wasn't for the food stamps, we would be in complete bankruptcy."

Ferre said he favored keeping the tax exemptions of Operation Bootstrap now, but he said they would have to be modified to prevent companies from pulling out of the island when their tax-exempt period is over.

"The tax exemption for industry is a privilege that by its very nature is tempo-

The island's economic future depended on building up Puerto Rico's agriculture, tourism, and construction industries as well as converting to nuclear and solar sources of energy, he said. "Those are

During his term as governor from 1968 to 1972, Ferre devised a policy called "jiRican hillbilly and island slang for Puer-to Rican. "Jibaro statehood" means Puerto Rico would keep Spanish as its official language. "Language is something you can't change and we won't want to change. It's a part of culture. When you have a culture, society is emotionally stabilized." Although Ferre strongly believes that Puerto Ricans will not be able to exercise their full political rights until the island becomes a state, he does not feel that most Puerto Ricans vote for the commonwealth and pro-statehood parties because of the always debated political sta-

New Highway Numbering Gets Okay

Travel from Dallas through Lubbock to points west should be less confusing soon, thanks to new highway numbering okayed Wednesday by the state Highway and Public Transportation Commission. The commission has approved extending Texas 114 west from Lubbock to the New Mexico line, making a single highway route from Dallas westward. Texas 114 now extends from Dallas to Lubbock. The extension approved Wednesday will be westward from Loop 289 in Lubbock over stretches of Texas 116 through Smyer, Levelland, Whiteface and Morton.

Texas highway officials have requested New Mexico officials to change its state highway 116 to 114 through Elida, N.M. Officials there have indicated their willingness to do so, although no action has been taken.

The single highway numbering west from Dallas to U.S. 70 at Elida is a proect which the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce has pushed for about four years, said chamber manager John Lo-

Kerrville Accident Claims Three Lives

KERRVILLE (AP) - Three West Central Texas residents died today in a headon collision of two pickup trucks on Texas 27 near the city limits here.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman identified the dead as Carlton A. Biermann, 22, of Kerrville, Frank Milton Coleman, 26, of Center Point, and Kath-erine Ann Rudasill, 22, of Kerrville.

The DPS spokesman said the pickup trucks collided as one tried to pass another vehicle.

Convicted Man Gets New Robbery Trial

AUSTIN (UPI) - A Dallas man sentenced to life in prison for robbery has been granted a new trial by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals because a police officer refused to identify an informer during the first trial.

The appeals court Wednesday reversed the robbery by assault conviction of Robert Lewis Andrew. The court ruled prosecutors should have revealed the informer's name because he was a material witness to the crime.

Testimony in the trial indicated that Andrew and a female companion were seen leaving Duncan Grocery Store carrying a shotgun. The pair allegedly ran across a vacant lot and entered a house.

Police officer John Crosby, using information supplied by a confidential informant, obtained a search warrant to enter the house and arrest Andrew and the woman. Crosby testified he had known the informant for eight years and the man on several occasions had provided him with reliable information which the police officer used to obtain convictions.

But Crosby refused to identify the informer when Andrew's attorney asked

In other cases, the appeals court: -Upheld the rape and sodomy convictions of Melvin James Joseph of Harris

County. Jones contended he should not have been tried for both offenses involving the same incident. He was sentenced to 12 years in prison for rape and an additional 10 years for sodomy.

The appellate court ruled the rape conviction required proof of force or threats of force, which were not required for the sodomy charge, and therefore the two prosecutions did not violate the double opardy doctrine.

-Upheld the voluntary manslaughter conviction of Clifford Lincoln McIlveen of Freestone County, sentenced to 15 years in prison for the beating death of a man he alleged was his wife's lover. The court ruled against McIlveen's contention the jury should not have been al-television; we haven't heard all of the facts." The court said the statements by jurors were not detrimental enough to cause the case to be reversed.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer was sanguine about his approach. He won the ace of hearts, crossed to the ace of spades and discarded his heart loser on the king. Now he took a trump finesse, but his pleasure at winning the trick with the jack was tempered by the fact that West discarded a heart. Declarer realized that he would have to lose two trump tricks and a diamond for down one.

If trumps divide 3-1, declarer is always home-he cannot lose more than a trump trick and a diamond or a heart. Observe what happens if, at trick two, declarer takes the precaution of laying down the ace of

When declarer gets the bad news that he has two trump losers, he can now fall back on an extra chance. If spades are 3-3, declarer can get rid of his second red-suit loser. He cashes the ace and king of spades, discarding one loser, then ruffs a spade. Dummy's spades are now set up, and the ace of diamonds is still in dummy for an entry. Declarer crosses to that card and leads a winning spade. Whether or not

Special Teacher Uses New Training

By JANICE JARVIS
Family News Staff
Crouching over a mound of dead grass,
11-year-old David is oblivious to the soccer games, running children and play-ground chatter surrounding him.

He is content to sift through the grass and watch as the flaxen bits are caught by a breeze. Passersby stare at him, per-plexed by his behavior. His classmates never laugh at him.

David's behavior is characteristic of autism, an unusual condition in which a child has severe problems with commu-nication and behavior. There is no cure for autism, but researchers suspect it may be caused by a chemical imbalance.

While many autistic children spend their lives in institutions, often labeled as retarded, there is evidence that autistic children can be taught socially accepta-ble behavior. At Overton Elementary School, teacher Madeline Douglas is trying to do just that.

In the teaching method Mrs. Douglas uses, 'behavior modification,' the child is rewarded for correct, or the desired, re-

While progress is slow, results are promising, said Mrs. Douglas.

David's case is a success story. Originally enrolled in the special autistic class, David was uncontrollable. Now, three years later, he has been integrated into a traditional class of 'normal' students.

Though his teachers are aware that autism makes him different from other students, they are at the same time pleased to discover he is an excellent speller and has an excellent memory for numbers.

Though his comprehension level is lower than that of the other students, he is able to function in the class. Occassionally he reverts to autistic behavior, but those episodes are becoming fewer.

"David will always display some autistic behavior," Roger Rutherford, program director, explained; "the point is, he can separate his unusual behavior from what is required of him."

Although David's behavior may, at times, be unusual, Rutherford said, when it's time to do classroom work, he can. David is one of the lucky ones: there

Solons Urged To Curb Coal Tar Hair Dyes

WASHINGTON (AP) - The General Accounting Office is recommending that Congress move to expand federal control over coal tar hair dyes because of tests showing some ingredients in the dyes may cause cancer.

The GAO, Congress' investigative arm. said the government cannot now ban the use of the suspected chemicals. The Food and Drug Administration can only evaluate the potential dangers and require, if necessary, a warning on product labels, the GAO said.

A 1938 law specifically exempts coal tar hair dyes from the FDA's authority to ban the use of a substance if it is found to

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the House subcommittee on oversight and investigations, requested the GAO report and said his panel would conduct hearings sometime in January on cosmetic and hair dye safety.

Some 33 million women are estimated to spend $250 million annually on the three types of hair dyes: temporary, or rinses; semipermanent, which wear after several shampoos, and permanent, which cannot be readily removed by washing. The coal tar derivatives are used only in permanent dyes.

'Some coal tar hair dyes may pose a significant risk of cancer to consumers because they contain colors known to cause or suspected of causing cancer in

Miss Rhoads said the GAO information is outdated and that no major manufacturer uses benzidine derivatives. Some may have used these derivatives as late as 1973, she added.

Nowhere in its report did GAO mention brand names or manufacturers. There was no estimate as to how many users might have been exposed to the risk of cancer by absorbing the ingredients through the skin.

But residents in the bayou-laced lower half of the parish - which is geographically split from the upper half by a strip of Iberia Parish — said they have more economic and physical ties to St. Mary and Assumption parishes.

Harry Hicks, an organizer of Concerned Citizens of Lower St. Martin Parish, said he and his neighbor want to call a referendum election on secession.

"We don't have any representation down here," said Hicks who owns a seafood restaurant in Stevensonville. "There is no one to tell our problem to and the nearest police juror is in St. Martinville." He said a two-hour drive separates the two sections which makes parish officials hesitate in sending work crews to the lower half. Hicks said only four roads in the lower half are paved and residents have a difficult time getting road crews in to grade shell roads.

He said his group will be ready to push for a referendum on the separation question within six months. The group now is trying to get the jury to send a vote registrar to the lower half on Saturday to sign

"If we get nothing on that, Attorney General Billy Guste will be the next step" Hicks said.

"We went to the last policed jury meeting and asked for certain things. They never gave us a definite answer. We're

Senate Investigates New York Loan Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - After demandthat New York state do more to assure New York City's solvency, a Senate committee is putting city officials on the spot as it reviews the federal government's emergency loan program for New

The Senate Banking Committee, headed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis... planned to question outgoing Mayor Abraham D. Beame and City Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin today.

The committee has expressed skepticism about the need to renew the $2.3 bilion loan program after it expires June 36, 1978, and was expected to press the city for greater austerity and tighter fiscal controls.

hearings Wednesday, "I am highly skepti-cal about the prospects for extending the loan program. ... I think there will be a whale of a lot of opposition to this from members of Congress.

And Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., the ranking minority member on the panel, said he opposed any extension unless he could be convinced the city and state had done everything possible to resolve the city's financial plight.

The committee members were particularly rankled by the New York City Council's vote Tuesday to raise councilmen's salaries $10,000 a year. The decision will make it difficult to reject wage increase demands by city employees, Proxmire discussing was enacted in 1975 with the city on the brink of default. It provides up to $2.3 billion in federal loans for the city's short-term needs annually. Loans must be repaid with interest in the same

Since 1975, New York state has helped provide the city with $3.3 billion in advance financing.

In testimony Wednesday, New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey and Felix G. Rohatyn, chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corp., asked that the program be replaced with a guarantee of long-term fi-

Rohatyn suggested that the federal government guarantee about $2.5 billion in additional borrowing by MAC. Otherwise, he said, the committee will be back position of running the city through a fedyear after year "to hold hearings like this, and they will be grimmer and grim-

MAC has over $5 billion in bonds outstanding to help the city with longer term needs, and "We have the economic horsepower .. . to raise another $2.5 billion to $3 billion on the city's behalf," Rohatyn said. But additional long-range help for the city would need a federal guarantee, he said.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal told the committee that the administration regards bankruptcy for the nation's largest city as unthinkable.

He said it could lead to collapse of national credit markets and would put the federal government in the intolerable eral judge.

But Blumenthal stopped short of endorsing an extension of the federal loans and said the administration would demand that the city and state do everything in their power before backing more

"Most of New York's overall borrowing needs should be satisfied locally, and the plan must be convincing in that respect," Blumenthal said.

Post Office Employees Sufficient

jobs for college students and housewives ndling Christmas mail are drying up, and regular Postal Service employees are handling almost all holiday mail this

In 1952, the peak year for temporary Christmas jobs, the Post Office had a regular payroll of 520,000 and hired 407,000 extra Christmas workers. In the last 25 years the regular workforce has grown to 650,000 to handle a greater volume of mail. But only 13,000 to 16,000 Christmas employees are being added this year.

The extra workload, which at the peak of the Christmas season means twice as much mail is being delivered as on an average day, will be handled mainly by paying regular workers overtime.

Twenty-five years ago we didn't have the mechanical mail-handling capability that we have now," Deputy Postmaster General William F. Bolger said in an interview. "We have found that we are more productive by working overtime than by hiring temporary workers who are unskilled."

"Another reason for the change is that we don't have to satisfy all the people in the political world who want special appointments for the Christmas season. said Bolger, who has been with the mail service for 36 years.

Until 1971 the Post Office was regarded as one of the most political federal agency. Members of Congress had a heavy influence over naming postmasters in their districts and the postmaster general often was the person who managed the president's last campaign.

When the Postal Service was formed six years ago, it was given substantial independence from the political parts of the government and was directed to hire only on the basis of merit.

Since then Christmas temporary jobs have dwindled and Bolger said the number this year will be the lowest in memo-

"Most of our regular workers want the extra income at this time of year that they get through overtime," Bolger said. "There are some who don't want it and we don't impose overtime on people unless we have no choice. But if we have to order people to work overtime in order to get the mail through, we do.

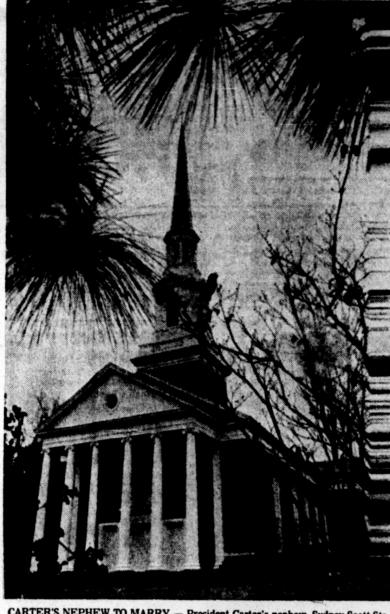

Septic System Standards Set

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Health Department announced Wednesday it has adopted new construction standards for septic tanks because of the growing numher of subdivisions in rural areas.

"Even though you have good engineering of your system, install the system properly and have good soil, you still can have failures because of high population density," said David Cochran, chief of the department's bureau of environmental health. "The sub-soils can become saturated and not handle all the fluids."

One of the things "recommended" is a minimum lot size for residences of 15,000 quare feet (100 X 150) for th community water supply, and 20,000 square feet for those with their own wa-cused outside Lubbock. But executives of some local private hospitals charge that the district has been trying to steal their employees, especially nurses.

The administrative committee, which oversees personnel matters, hopes to dis-pel the fears of the other Lubbock hospitals by keeping the district's salaries and fringe benefits in line with the rest of the local medical community - thus averting a wage war in the competition for

For that and other budgetary reasons, committee members often were at odds Wednesday with Bosworth's recommen-

For example, Bosworth reportedly proposed that registered nurses who work off-hour shifts, such as late at night or early morning, be paid about $150 a month more than nurses with conventional hours.

Flygare objected. "It looks to me like what we're doing is matching the top shift differentials at the other hospitals," he said. He suggested smaller shift differentials, close to the average for other local hospitals, "so we won't necessarily be setting the pace.'

The committee voted to recommend that the shift differential for registered

Dallas Books Criticized

DALLAS (AP) — Some apparently sloppy bookkeeping has posed a threat to Dallas city fathers to straighten matters out or pay back some $5 million in federal grant monies, according to one city of-

Levi Davis, director of the city's Human Development program, told the council Wednesday he had learned that Dallas County Community Action Agency books were "inauditable" and the U.S. Department of Labor planned to ask for an accounting or repayment.

"What they are saying to us is, 'We don't believe your books and we have no way of knowing what really happened to the money, so either give it back or straighten out your books." Davis said. The $5 million, Davis said, was spread out over three years in the form of grants to the city. The money was then passed on to the CAA for use in various povertyfighting programs. He said two accountants and two clerks have already been assigned to start assessing the books but cautioned that the job would be time-

CAA Director Aron Floyd said he had discussed the problem with Davis but in-dicated considerable confusion still exists over what the city apparently plans to do.

'At this point, I'm not sure each side (CAA and the city) knows what the other is talking about," he said, adding that the allegedly sloppy bookkeeping occurred before he took the job.

City manager George Schrader had little to add to Davis' report, except to as-nurses be $125 a month; for licensed vocational nurses, $85; and for ward clerks,

On another matter, Bosworth apparently had proposed that hospital workers be given automatic four per cent raises on the anniversary date of their employment unless otherwise delayed for up to 90 days by their immediate supervisors; that such supervisors be empowered to up a pay hike to eight per cent; and that the executive director have authority to award raises greater than eight per cent.

Again, Flygare and other committee members balked. "We're kind of trustees, and I don't think we can give carte blanche to the executive director to raise salaries as much as he wants to," Flygare

The committee recommended that board approval be necessary for pay hikes of more than eight percent. Also discussed by the committee

Wednesday was the transition of Texas Tech University employees to the district's payroll to handle such auxiliary X-ray rooms, laboratories and therapy

Bosworth proposed that the hospital district allow the employees in question to carry over some of the sick leave they have accrued while with the university. The administrative committee went along with that, but Flygare warned the plan could cost the district as much as

"They've been working for the medical school building this (sick leave) up, and we're going to end up paying for it," Flygare said. "I think it's unfair for us to have to pick up this tab."

He suggested that the medical school be asked to reimburse the hospital district for honoring the transferred sick

Other committee members, however, convinced Flygare to support the proposal to promote good relations with the university and effect a smooth transition of grain inspector testified Wednesday that the grain stored in a Geronimo Elevator Co. facility here was of a lower quality than receipts indicated.

On trial in the case is Henry Johnson. president of Geronimo and brother of missing Iowa Park grain dealer Robert

The indictment charges Johnson with aiding and abetting his missing brother in transporting wheat allegedly stolen in Oklahoma and Colorado to Fort Worth and Houston

Several Oklahoma and Texas farmers took the witness stand in federal court here and told of their unsuccessful at-the elevator. An official with the Fort Worth Grain Exchange told the court the wheat found in the elevator was "rough and musty" and, in some instances, contained parts of dead animals.

Mrs. Larry Musgrove of Lawton, Okla. testified she and her husband wanted to sell 2,000 bushels of wheat stored in the elevator to meet a Jan. 1, 1977 farm payment. She said she called the company's office in nearby Iowa Park and learned tne office was closed. The wheat, which was the Musgroves' entire 1976 crop, was never sold, she said.

The missing grain was discovered shortly after Robert Johnson was reported missing from a pleasure boat in the Gulf of Mexico last year. Creditors began showing up in Iowa Park and Wichita Falls and an investigation was called. Johnson's body has not been found by Agriculture Department scientists of a pound of cement dust. They did not show that cattle can gain weight faster and more economically if they are fed about a pound of cement dust each day. Officials said Wednesday that the tests were begun after three Georgia farmers diet. fed cement dust to cattle last year and than they would have otherwise.

The farmers were identified as Lee Barr, Carrollton; Deil Barnett, Collard Valley, and Sam Floyd, Pine Knot. They reported the findings to the department's Agricultural Research Service last Janu-

Consequently, William E. Wheeler and Robert R. Oltjen of the agency's experimental staff in Beltsville, Md., set up a controlled experiment involving 14 steers which were fed for 112 days.

Seven of the steers, which averaged 750 pounds, were fed a normal daily ration of 13.2 pounds of hay, 8.5 of corn and 3.2 of supplemental protein, minerals and salt.

1977 Food Act Discussion Set

A discussion and explanation of the Food and Agricultural Act of 1977 will begin at 1:15 p.m. Friday at the Plains Cooperative Oil Mill in Lubbock, according to Ken Cook, Lubbock County extension agent.

All farmers are encouraged to attend, he said.

Elbert Harp, executive director of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, will discuss the feed grain provisions of Oscar "Cotton" Fanning, executive assistant of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., will talk about the cotton aspects of the legislation.

Marvin Sartin, area economist-management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Lubbock, will present economic aspects of alternative farm organizations under the new law.

A question and answer period is scheduled to provide for individual discus-

The program is sponsored by the South Plains Development (SPD) Program as a part of its cotton profit thrust through the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Grain Sorghum Producers Association and the Plains Cotton Growers, both headquarters in Lubbock, are cooperating to provide the information to South Plains farmers.

Milk Production Down This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) - Milk producon is down seasonally but still is running well ahead of output a year ago, acording to the Agriculture Department.

Officials said production in November as almost 9.5 billion pounds, compared with 9.9 billion in October. But last month's output was up 2.9 percent from month's output was up 2.9 percent from the 9.23 billion pounds produced in November of last year.

The othr seven received 13.3 pounds of WASHINGTON (AP) - Experiments hay, 10.9 pounds of corn and nine-tenths

Officials said that although the tests are found the animals gained more weight promising, no one is sure why cement dust causes cattle to gain weight faster and cautioned producers against feeding the dust on their own until more research is done. Further, it has not been approved by the government as an additive for animal feed. The dust results at kilns during the manufacture of Portland cement. During the process, about 12 percent of the cement mixture is filtered out of the air as dust, about 33,000 tons annually nationwide. Only a small amount is recycled for making cement or used for agricultural

Wheeler said the dust is "high in minerals, particularly calcium - 27 percent" but that he is not sure just what it imparts to an animal's growth rate. "Tremendous amounts of cement kiln dust are produced, not only in this country but in many of the developing countries," he said. "This opens up new avenues of research that could lead to low-cost production of quality beef." Wheeler and Oltjen, who is now director of the department's Meat Animal Research Center at Clay Center, Neb., examined the livers and other organs of the slaughtered dust-fed animals and found no abnormalities.

Further, carcasses of the dust-fed steers graded an average of top choice, compared with top good for the animals fed regular diets.

Lighting Of Tree Works Magic In New York

the cold shoulder and the granite heart, yard, the one in Rockefeller Center, the so it is said, the island of cynicism with one that is lit each year on television to

"When that tree goes up, you can't find a more neighborly place," Mike Russo 20 years.

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the city of The tree is the one in New York's front one that is lit each year on television to the oohs and aahs of the nation. Mike Russo has watched it work its magic for

That's how long Mike Russo, a native New Yorker well versed in the city's moods, has worked in the security department of Rockefeller Center, watching the doors of the great buildings, greeting the hundreds of friends he has made over the years among the 60,000 who work in this city within a city.

"When I was a kid," he said, "I never got a chance to come to Rockefeller Center at Christmas time. Those were hard times back then. I lived on the Upper East Side and we rarely got out of the reighborhood.

"But this year I'm going to bring my grandson down to see the tree and all the lights and decorations. He's 10 months old. I don't think that's too young to en-

No, certainly not, and neither is any age too old.

At Christmas time in Rockefeller Center, young eyes brighten with wonder and old eyes glisten with their own best memories of childhood.

Lights, tens of thousands of them. warm the gray December sky like winter fireflies signaling a time of hope. Bells, tinkly bells on sidewalk Santas and deepthroated bells of St. Patrick's Cathedral, serenade ice skaters circling and dancing on the plaza rink. At noon, school choirs from all over the city bring their own sounds of innocence and on Fifth Avenue Salvation Army trumpets summon joy to the world. Roasting chestnuts from vendors' carts perfume the air. Dickens himself might have designed the setting.

Above it all stands the magnificent tree, a perfectly tapered pyramid of green with branches swaying in the wind like a sequined ballerina skirt.

"Every year when they bring the tree I get anxious," Mike Russo said. "I always wonder if it's going to be as nice as the last one. So far, I've never been disappointed. I don't know how they always manage to find a perfect tree."

Not by accident, that's for sure, though luck can play a part.

This year, two Rockefeller Center employees, Jim Reed and John Godwin. traveled 8,000 miles inspecting trees, about 40 of them, before Godwin sturnbled upon this beauty in Dixfield, Maine, while fetching his two sons home from summer camp

It is a soaring white spruce, 65 feet tall and 35 feet across at its lowest branches. Anything smaller would be dwarfed in the city's concrete canyons.

Free Graves Offered To Drunk Drivers

TUCSON (AP) - Drunk drivers and innocent victims of holiday traffic fatalities can receive free graves from a grave contracting firm here.

The company, Memorial Consultants of Tucson Inc., said the offer was first made to cover only drunken drivers to publicize the danger of drinking and driving. The offer, which applies to people who register in advance, was expanded this week to cover innocent vicUsually, Reed explained, finding a tree isn't so easy. Even when a likely one is located it has to be accessible. Often it entails a year-long search, following up tips, answering letters from visitors to Rockefeller Center — they number in the hundreds of thousands every year — who have been awed by the annual tree.

Once located, workmen lovingly fold the tree's branches to the trunk and tie them. A crane hitches a cable to the top so it won't fall when cut. Police cars escort the tree to Rockefeller Center. Electricians erect a scaffold and spend 10 days decorating it.

This is the 45th year they've had a tree," Mike Russo said. "I've seen the last 20. I believe this is the prettiest one I've seen. Of course, I say that every

Clarabell The Cow Asks Santa To Use Her As A Reindeer

By DAN HENDERSON Christmas passed, and New Year's and Valentine's Day and Easter. Clarabell was growing fast. Spring came and Clarabell thought she had never smelled or seen or felt anything so

She was put out to pasture in May. There were woods in the pasture, and they reminded her of something. Of Christmas, Woods meant branches. Branches meant antlers. Clarabell went around sticking her head in this bush, that tree, and those thickets. Surely some would stick for antlers!

But none of them ever did. Clarabell also learned that flying was hard to do. She tried climbing up on haystacks and hills and even one little shed. But everytime she jumped off, she fell straight down. She was never hurt -but she couldn't for the life of her figure out what she was And she was getting fat.

There was so much food in the world! Clover and corn, oats and sorghum molasses special treats and Bill brought.

It got so that she would close her eyes when she went to the pond to drink. It worried her more than a little to see how fat she had become. She could not remember seeing a fat reindeer and she knew being fat would make it even harder to fly.

October came, and Clarabell was fed her first silage. It was good stuff. It was sweet like molasses and crunClarabell was very fond of food.

It was late November when she got her big scare. It happened when Hermann the Bull got loose. He broke through the fence between where he and the calves like Clarabell were kept. Billy was with Clarabell when it

When Hermann saw Billy, he bellowed. He snorted. He kicked up dirt with his hooves. Then he charged. It was like a huge diesel truck had started rolling.

And he headed right toward Billy. Billy began to run. His short legs hit the ground ratta-tat-tat. If he could have talked, he could have yelled for help — Mr. Wilburn was nearby. But all he could do was run. He ran, and he ran very fast

But then he tripped. He fell down, and he did not get up.

Clarabell saw that was happening. She was scared of Hermann, but she knew she had to do something. She ran to get between Billy and the bull.

She stopped and faced Hermann. He kept coming. Clarabell was very scared. But she knew she had to help Billy. There was only one thing to do. She bellowed. And she charged right toward Hermann. It was like a little

But he didn't. He stopped. In all his born days, Hermann had never seen a cow anywhere act like that. Hermann might do a lot of things, but he wasn't going to mess with a cow as crazy as this one. He backed up.

er-truck. Hermann could run right

Clarabell stopped. Her heart was pounding. She bellowed some more. She sounded like a foghorn, like two foghorns, like three! Mr. Wilburn heard and came running.

Clarabell relaxed. She knew Mr. Wilburn would take care of Billy.

Clarabell thought about Billy most of December. Because Billy could not talk, he could not call for help. That was a dangerous way for a farm boy to

But as christmas neared, she thought more and more of being a reindeer. But now the flying did not seem so important -if she were a reindeer, she might get Santa to help Billy talk. Christmas Eve, after ever so long, finally arrived. Clarabell waited until dark. She waited until all the lights at the Wilburn house were off. Then she escaped from her pasture. It was easy to do. No fence around can keep a determined cow in.

She went down the blacktopped road, then up the gravel drive to the Wilburn's house. There she waited. She did not have to wait long.

She heard the far-off bells first Soon she saw the reindeer team moving across the sky. And, quickly enough, the sleigh had landed on the roof. It landed as quietly as cotton falling on the floor.

In a flash, Santa was inside the house. In the wink of the eye, he was back out again. Presto, he was in his sleigh.

Clarabell mooed. Not loudly, but very determinedly Santa came to the edge of the roof and looked down

'Well, what have 'we here?" he asked. He threw down some of the special talking dust.

Clarabell began to moo again -but, in the middle of the moo, it changed to words

"I want to be a reindeer," she blurt-

By PAUL CARPENTER

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) - Wednesday was Robert Bear's 19th wedding anniversary, and was observed in a tragic ritual culminating five years of religious strife and family woe:

Bear, 48, lost his wife and children when he was excommunicated and shunned by his Reformed Mennonite Church because he criticized church officials. Shunning meant no one in the church, including his family, could speak or have anything to do with him.

Now he is losing his once prosperous and beloved 400-acre potato farm. A sheriff's sale to auction the farm has been ordered because Bear has not paid taxes or interest on the mortgage.

"I'm going to lose a lot of money, but ... what does money mean if you don't have someone to spend it on? ... Without children, a farm has no purpose," he said

Bear's wife, Gale, and their six children, now mostly teen-agers, moved out in 1972 after the ultra-conservative 600member church imposed its "doctrine of avoidance," commonly called shunning. His parents died shortly after the sanction was taken. "To the moment they died they looked at me with disgust. I was already burning in hell," he said.

The excommunication came after Bear criticized his wife's brother, Bishop Glenn Gross. Bear said Gross violated church rules by giving communion to Gross' parents after one had accused the other of being unfaithful.

Bear's dispute with the church goes back many years, however. He and his wife were excommunicated in 1964 but re-admitted in 1965. He was excommunicated again in 1972.

Bear went to court to try to force the church to relax some of the provisions. He claimed the shunning hurt his thriving potato business when employees quit and Mennonite business associates refused to handle his potatoes.

A Cumberland County judge said the flap was Bear's fault and refused to halt the church sanctions. Bear appealed, but has changed his mind several times about whether to continue the legal fight. Last year Bear wrote a book about his experiences, titled "Delivered Unto Satan." He once peddled the book by parking his truck, covered with signs attacking Gross, in the parking lot of a farm market run by Gross.

Gross and Gale Bear have refused to talk to reporters.

In July, Bear was found guilty of defiant trespass when he broke into a home

IRS Backing Down On Disclosure Plan

By BROOKS JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has quietly pigeonholed its plan to give the public information about administration officials and members of Congress who try to influence tax

The plan was announced March 7, 1976, in a press release and given wide national publicity. The promise of disclosure was repeated earlier this year in congressional testimony

But Wednesday, IRS spokesman Leon Levine acknowledged that the promised plan had been "deferred" without any public announcement. He said the reason was a new legal opinion by IRS lawyers, but he refused to release the text of the opinion, the name of the official who wrote it or the date on which it was writ-that rolled out of the Boeing Co.'s "Red Barn" almost 50 years ago. Now, he's helping restore the Red Barn as part of a $10 million aircraft museum.

The bespectacled, fair-haired Gustafson still dons his work clothes to create an airplane display or build a model control tower for the museum. He helped dismantle portions of the Red Barn for

The Pacific Northwest Aviation Historical Foundation is planning the Red Barn Air Park for the southwest corner of Boeing Field, site of the first powered flight in the Puget Sound area by Charles Hamilton in 1910. Opening is set for early

Howard Lovering, project manager for the foundation, said King County was negotiating to buy the Boeing Field parcel for $700,000. The 51/2 acres are occupied by a topless bar and a manufacturing "For the aviation buff, we hope to have just about everything," Lovering said.

Museum plans include a 70,000-squarefoot modular building attached to the 20,-000-square-foot Red Barn. It would in-

King County is supporting the project as part of an airport improvement pro-gram. The museum is being funded by private donations and public money.

The foundation now operates the Museum of Flight at Seattle Center. The group has been collecting aviation artifacts for the museum and now maintains a collection of about 20 aircraft in various stages of restoration.

One plane was retrieved from a garbage dump in 1960 at Anchorage, Alaska. The 1928 Boeing 80-A Trimotor biplane led to the birth of the foundation. Harl Brackin, director of the Seattle Center Museum of Flight, said the group was formed as a non-profit organization to raise funds for the project, begun by two Alaskans.

Brackin said the 80-A, with engines in the nose and on each wing, introduced stewardess service to commercial air

'The number 80 played a magic tune with this plane," Brackin said. "It was called the 80; it cost $80,000; and the wingspan is 80 feet." Cost for restoring the plane to airworthiness is $800,000.

The 80-A is a major restoration job, Brackin says. "We'll pretty much have to start from scratch. It was in good shape with fabric still on the wings, but moving and time have caused deterioration."

The foundation still flies its 1933 Boeing 247D. That plane introduced multi-engine, all-metal airplanes to air travel. Not all of the museum's planes are antiques. The Northrop YF-5A Freedom Fighter is still in use by the United States Air Force and NATO forces. The foundation has the prototype.

A missile and several sailplanes, including one that traveled both ways across the Atlantic, are now museum exhibits. Boeing's space shuttle mock-up is a sit-in exhibit for children at the Seattle Center Brackin said most of the exhibits would be moved to the Red Barn museum. The two-story, red-and-white building.

Foundation Survey Shows Tax Rate On Decline "

By The Associated Press

I. Gus-

used to

bric.

The average American paid $731 in state and local taxes in the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1976, $271 or 59 per cent more than the individual paid five years earlier.

There may be some relief in sight. however. There are signs that the rate of increase in state and local taxes may

The Tax Foundation Inc., a private nonprofit research group, said a study it made in October showed that state legislatures approved only $476 million in increases in major taxes this year - about half the amount authorized last year and less than one-third the amount enacted

Eight states raised levies for motor fuels, four hiked cigarette taxes and eight boosted tax rates on alcoholic beverages. Three states increased general sales or use taxes, four imposed higher corporate income tax rates and two approved across-the-board raises in personal income taxes. (State actions elsewhere on taxes involved little revenue change.) The Tax Foundation said the fuel tax boosts came in Delaware, Florida, Nebraska, South Carolina, Montana, North Dakota, New Hampshire and Washington. Florida, Colorado, Indiana and South Carolina rasied cigarette taxes; Florida, Kansas, Indiana, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Oregon and Virginia increased taxes on alcoholic beverages; Nebraska, Maryland and Oklahoma upped sales or use taxes; Delaware, Louisiana, Nebraska and New Hampshire approved higher corporate income tax rates; and Louisiana and Nebraska passed across-the-board increases in personal income tax rates.

The small size of the aggregate statutory increase - which is less than onehalf of 1 percent of current state tax collections - appears consistent with recently reported improvements in state (and local) fiscal conditions," the foundation said.

"Since the turning point of the 1974-75 recession - March 1975 - state and local government receipts have expanded sharply and at a rate far outpacing ex-penditure growth so that sizable surpluses have resulted."

In the second quarter of 1977, the foundation said, state and local governments were generating surpluses at the annual rate of $25 billion. Receipts were running almost 29 percent more than in the same period of 1975, during the height of the recession; expenses increased by only 19 percent.

The only previous period since World War II in which there have been similar surpluses was in 1972 and 1973 when, the foundation said, initial grants under the federal revenue-sharing program temporarily boosted income.

Using government statistics, founda-tion analysts calculated that payments for state and local income taxes were almost five times as high in 1977 as they were a decade earlier. The average federal income tax for a family of four earning median income less than tripled in the same period. The 1977 payments are equal to about 19 percent of federal in-come taxes, the foundation experts said.

Ronald Haynes, executive vice president of Zondervan Corp. of Grand Rapids, Mich., a leading Bible publisher, estimates publishers' sales total between $45 million and $60 million a year with retail volume twice that. Industry figures are not tabulated.

Handsome Bibles in genuine leather bindings retail at $16 to $45. More expensive hand-finished Bibles for the church altar can run to a lot more

The ordinary volume and special children's editions sell from $1.98 to $10 or so Haynes said 65 percent of all Christian Bible sales are for gifts. "Bible publish-keeps the records Bibles account for about 24 percent of Zondervan's sales, which have grown from $17.2 million in 1972 to upwards of $40 million this year. This percentage reflects the fact that, despite the healthy growth. Bibles are a rather small part of total sales of Christian religious books, a flourishing market for many inspirational writers of prose and verse and for illustrative artists. Zondervan estimates this market was well over $500 million in 1976 and said it is growing at a rapid rate. There are more than 3,300 bookstores in the country that handle religious books exclusively, or nearly so, and the sales of these stores approached $375 million last year," Haynes said. "Other bookstores and department stores sell religious books and an army of door-to-door salesmen sells them.

Many of the publishers of religious books, other than Bibles, are directly affiliated with a religious denomination.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Bible still is and translations of the Bible itself are in the hands of secular companies. Two of the most important are offshoots of British firms, the American branches of the Oxford and Cambridge University press-

Other leaders are Tyndale House of Wheaton, Ill., Collins World of Cleveland, Holman Division of Lippincott & Co. at Philadelphia, Doubleday, New York, Thomas Nelson Co., Nashville and the American Bible Society of New York.

The American Bible Society began publishing popular Bibles for the U.S. market comparatively recently with the Good News, a rendition of the scriptures in modern idiom. The society is best known for its work sponsoring translation of the Bible into several hundred languages.

Zondervan and the other firms publish many editions and translations of the English Bible, ranging from the majestic King James Version and its Catholic counterpart, the Douai Bible, to various modern editions, including the Jerusalem Bible, produced by a group of French Jesuits about a decade ago and published in America by Doubleday, Zondervan brought out the New Testament in the New International Version a few years ago and expects to bring out the Old Testament in the same version next

We firmly believe this Bible goes a long way towards retaining most of the majestic language of the King James Version, but clarifying many of its obfuscations," Haynes said.

Dairymen Slowly Dying Out

By CHARLES CAMPBELL MADISON, Tenn. (AP) - Tom Davis took his bachelor's degree in business ad ministration and went to work for a vanishing institution, the family dairy.

"I was going to go work for a bank or a stock brokerage firm, till I wised up,' Davis, 25, said in an interview in his office. "Where else could somebody my age own a business, run a business? If I went to work for somebody else I could work for 30 or 40 years and still be working for

His father, Lyman T. Davis Sr., was a teen-ager with a couple of cows and membership in a 4-H club when he startenough to sign for a loan, so the firm was named after Tom's grandfather, W.E.

The milk business has changed since then. No cows have roamed the 60 acres of the dairy's pasture in this town-turned suburb since before Tom Davis was born And where once there were dozens, W.E. Davis & Son is now one of just three dairies that deliver to residential customers in Nashville.

"It's going out every year," Davis said. "It costs a premium, if you can get it. You get behind on the books, the cost of trucks and supervisory work. The profit structure's just not there.'

And there's a milkman's early morning hours. "You don't find too many people who like to do that now. I should say you don't find anybody who likes to do it. You find some that do it," Davis said.

Tom's mother and father still are active in the business. On a Saturday morning recently. Lyman Davis was one of five men operating the plant that processes the milk, which is bought daily from a farmers' cooperative.

A couple of days earlier, Mrs. Davis answered the business phone. "We operate nine trucks for home delivery twice a week." she said. "When we started it was every day, seven days a week.

Milk has a much longer shelf life now," she said. "We had raw milk then. no pasteurized. I didn't ever like raw milk.

As the milk business keeps changing, Tom said, "We're going to have to gear ourselves to what we do best. We can't compete putting milk in a grocery store. But as long as we can be competitive price-wise, no one can beat us in serv-

He was asked what future he saw for the family dairy. "Short-range future, I definitely see it," he said. "Long-range future, I have no idea. I don't ever want to sell. I always want to be Davis Dairy but if the right offer comes along, I'd have to consider it. Who knows if there's going to be a dairy industry?

Britain Removing Troops In Ireland

LONDON (AP) - Roy Mason, Britain's cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, says the number of troops in Ulster will be cut by the end of the year because of a sharp decline in violence. Informed sources said 1,000 men will be brought back, reducing the garrison to 13,500.

Mason told the House of Commons there were 40 percent less shootings this year than last in Ulster, bombings were down nearly 60 percent, the amount of explosives used was less than 20 percent of last year's total, and 67 civilians have en killed, compared with 238 last year.

into the United States.

By ELMER W. LAMMI
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elephants, felled by the ivory hunter's bullet and self-inflicted starvation, are in danger of extinction on a planet they have inhabited longer than man. Wildlife experts, testifying on measures to ban ivory imports into the United States, said Tuesday the lethal combination threatens the continued existence of the largest land mammal on Earth. Poachers annually kill thousands of Africa's estimated 1.3 million elephants, stripping their carcasses of ivory tusks often weighing 150 pounds each, and leaving the remains to rot in the sun. Elsewhere, food is so scarce that elephants gnaw the bark on trees or knock them over trying to get a portion of the 200 to 500 pounds of vegetation they need daily. The trees die, exposing lower level vegetation to the harsh equatorial sun and killing the rest of the elephants' food

Ivory can bring as much as $30 a pound on the black market. The walls and windows of dozens of stores in Kenya's main cities of Nairobi and Mombassa, for example, are white with thousands of items made from ivory.

Despite the double threat to the survival of elephants, experts warned Congress against a blanket ban on killing ele-

Dr. Iain Douglas-Hamilton, a British expert from Nairobi, told a House committee that Africa's elephant herd should be listed as "threatened" rather than as 'endangered" to permit hunters to thin herds in crowded areas.

The Indian elephant already is on the endangered list. Assistant Interior Secretary Robert Herbst echoed that view and noted African nations might need financial assistance to preserve the elephant's habitat against invasion by man.

Herbst said the Interior Department may cite the Endangered Species Act and act within two weeks to limit ivory im-

Experts said a ban on ivory imports could be used selectively, applying only to areas where the elephants were endangered and not in areas where selective killing was needed to preserve the food

Tests Reveal Indications Of Fertility

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Some workers at a Dow Chemical Co. plant who were exposed to the pesticide DBCP believed to cause sterility in males seem to be recovering their fertility, Dow said Wednesday.

Tests in August among 86 workers at Dow's Magnolia, Ark., plant showed low or zero sperm counts in 47 men. Dow said that follow-up tests on some of the men in November showed that five who had produced no sperm in August produced "significant" amounts and two others whose sperm counts had been low in August produced normal amounts.

A Dow announcement quoted Dr. Benjamin Holder of the company's medical department as saying the November re-sults were "preliminary tabulations." He added, "It is our interpretation that these data indicate initial reversal of effects

Twenty-six of 61 men who were asked to participate in the follow-up study did not, Dow said. The company said all would be encouraged to take part in fur-ther work on Dow's study of the effects DCBP, dibromochloropropane, is a fu-migant used to control pests that attack root crops. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration banned it for most uses after the possibility of sterility was discovered.

The origins of these and other common business terms were compiled by the edi-tors of G.&C. Merriam Co. of Springfield, Mass., publisher of Webster's dictionar-ies and other reference books. Only a few of the business terms in general use today retain their original meaning. One is debt, derived from the Latin debitum. Even manufacturing, a combi-nation of the Latin manus meaning hand and facere, to make, is now associated entirely with things made by machines. Handmade things today are handcrafted. The origins of some business terms are really obscure. Others, although fairly well known, are quaint. Take dollar. It is widely known that the word is a Dutch corruption of the German taler, used for centuries in several middle European countries for a monetary unit. But how many know the origin of taler?

The Merriam company says it is a con-traction of joachimstaler, which was derived from the German name for a silvermine called Sankt Joachimsthal near the nian town now known as Jachymov in Czechoslovakia and that silver talers minted there in the early 16th century for several nearby countries.

Another unusual one is average. It comes from the Arabic and it originally meant damaged merchandise. It retained

Kellogg Agrees To Settlement

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - The Kellogg Co. plant in Memphis has agreed to pay lmost $400,000 to settle a sex discriminaion suit filed three years ago in U.S. Disrict Court.

The consent agreement filed Wedneslay stemmed from a class action lawsuit filed in 1974 by women employees of Kelogg, accusing the firm of denying womn equal wages, benefits and promotions. Under terms of the 50-page consent or-der, signed by Judge Bailey Brown, Kel-ogg agreed to provide training and orienn programs for all employees eligile for higher paying jobs.

that meaning for a long time after it was adopted into both English and French. It acquired its present connotation because nts had to share or average the expensive losses from damaged cargos in the pre-insurance age.

Cancel is another peculiar one. In Latin it meant a lattice gate and it came to mean the criss-crossed lines used to can-cel out written matter in a document.

Doctors and nurses will have no difficulty with the origin of calculate. It comes from the Latin calculus meaning a small stone and surgeons still call a kid-ney stone a renal calculus. Since they never discovered the abacus, the Romans used small stones to calculate sums.

Budget comes from the Latin bulga, meaning a small bag. That got into French as bouge and bougette, a moneybag, and the term eventually became Pay comes from a Latin word that orivinally meant to pacify. Bank comes from the Italian banca, the moneychanger's bench. Panic is from the name of the turbulent and mischievous Greco-Roman god Pan.

Expedite is from two Latin words meaning to free one's feet, so he could escape. Defalcate originally meant to cut off with a sickle. Money comes from moneta, one of the names for Juno, the Romans' queen of the gods. When the Romans established a mint at the temple of Juno Moneta the word became a generic term for the place where money is made. Economics is from the Greek word for the art of housekeeping. In its present sense it reflects the importance of managing one's household or business

The word finance can be traced to the French word fin, or end. In the old days it meant bringing to an end a state of in-debtedness. The French word later became finer, meaning to pay. Today, of course, finance suggests getting into debt rather than out of it.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A record of nearly $225 million is being distributed to states as their share of federal collections from timber sales and other fees charged users of national forests, the Agriculture Department has reported. The money represents 25 percent of the more than $896 million collected by the department's Forest Service in the 1977 fiscal year ended Sept. 30 for national forest use, including fees for recreation and mining as well as timber sales.

The 25 percent distribution to states is required by law. The money must be used for public schools and roads by the

In the preceding year, states received $109 million as their share of $438 million collected by the agency. Thirty-nine states and Puerto Rico where national forests are located share in the alloca-

Officials said this year's collections and allocations to states are not directly comparable to previous years, however. Congress, in the National Forest Management Act of 1976, specified that dollar credits must be allowed for investments made by timber purchasers for building roads in the forests. This added $144.2 million to the total 1976-77 collection fig-

Another change involves money used by the Forest Service to make improvements in timber sales areas. Previously, the agency was allowed to deduct the money from the gross receipts before making a determination on the states' shares. This bookkeeping change added $92.1 million to the total.

Thus, with gross collections increased by $236.3 million, the 25 percent share going to the states was boosted by about $59 million from what it would have been without the changes in computing the

The largest amount paid this year is $89.8 million to Oregon, followed by $47.9 million to California and $28.8 million to Washington.

Boeing Plans To Produce New Planes

SEATTLE (AP) - The Boeing Co. hopes to get commitments for a new line of commercial jets by next summer and have first deliveries by 1982, a company spokesman says.

The spokesman said that Boeing, the world's largest manufacturer of commercial jetliners, has not received firm commitments for the proposed planes. But the company has talked for several years with U.S. airlines, trying to determine how to fill future aircraft needs We have done a lot of work and have a fairly solid proposal for the type of plane the airlines want," the spokesman said. The plane, he said, would be larger than the standard Douglas DC-8 and Boeing 707 and 727 now in service, but smaller than the wide-bodied jumbo jets such as the Douglas DC-10 and Boeing

The proposed plane would be a seven-abreast model with two aisles with two or three engines and seating up to 200, the spokesman said.

"We are coming up with a definite con-figuration now," the spokesman said. "If, indeed, this plane is needed in 1982, we probably would have to have pretty good commitments by mid-1978."

In the past, Boeing executives have said that by 1990 they hope to have 1,500 of the new planes in operation, with a total market value in the $30 billion-$40 billion range in 1976 dollars.

In the design stages, Boeing has concentrated on two basic advance-technology airliners, designated the 7N7 and the President Still Haunte By Campaign Promises

this year.

He hasn't said so, but these questions must make Carter wonder where everybody was during the 1976 campaign.

After all, it was only about 29 months ago that the big rap on Carter was that he never took a firm stand on any issue.

Apparently taking that criticism seriously, Carter went on the record with enough promises to fill a book. He even set timetables for dealing with some of the major issues.

set timetables for dealing with some of the major issues.

But when he won the election and started offering his programs to Con-gress, some of the same critics acted as if he was out of his mind.

They said he was piling far more on Congress than it could possibly deal with and that he was diluting his own public impact by appearing to be flying off in all directions at once.

Some of that may be true, but the advice this president is getting now seems to authenticate the cynical view that a candidate should make at least one promise to solve every problem, but a newly elected public official should move slowly, if at all, in fulfilling campaign pledges.

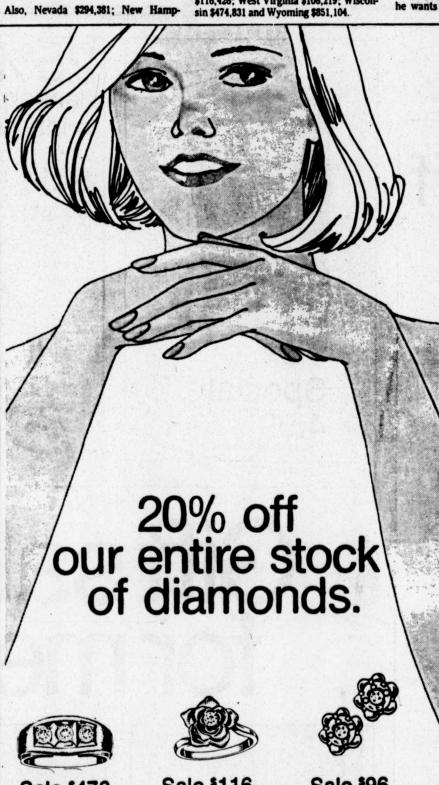

If we are to believe the pollsters' indepth excursions into public attitudes, it is revulsion against that kind of political shell-gaming that provokes public interest in candidates like Carter and Ronald Reagan, who say they are going to be dif-

In any case, Carter's basic problems probably come from other factors.

Barry Nottoli, 30, Tate Miller, 29, and Scott Hewitt, 29, run Cathedralite Domes, largest manufacturer of geodesic dome housing in the United States.

Dome houses, those funny looking objects that look like they belong in a lunar setting, first became popular about a decade ago and there now are an estimated 7,000 to 8,000 scattered around the country, most of them owner-built.

The current image of a dome owner is a hirsute freak squirreled away on a re-mote mountainside. In fact, says Miller, most of the company's sales are to people over 35 who are looking for a bargain in housing, something that is different and energy-efficient.

Most new suburban housing tracts around America, intended for the straight middle class, are being filled with conventional rectangular housing. But the bearded Miller, impeccably tailored in a three-piece suit, his counterculture roots revealed by Hush Puppy shoes, says the energy crisis and skyrocketing home costs must sooner or later force the squares to think round.

The geodesic dome, pioneered by inventor-designer R. Buckminster Fuller, is structurally superior to conventional buildings and construction time is considerably shortened. The frame for a large dome home can be assembled by four or five unskilled persons in one day.

Most of the early dome problems leaking roofs, bad acoustics, dead space - have been overcome by improved materials and better design.

A dome requires less materials to cover a given floor space and advocates claim it reduces heating and cooling costs by 30 to 50 per cent if properly designed.

Despite its obvious advantages, the housing industry, conservative by nature, has been reluctant to fill subdivisions with domes.

"Contractors are afraid of it." admits Miller. "We think that's because they lack knowledge about it, but that's chang-

And Miller and partners are convinced that day may not be far off. They are currently negotiating with "half a dozen major developers" in Southern California and believe the first modest housing tract of dome homes may be underway within two years.

"In five or 10 years, every contractor will have to consider domes because of their inherent advantages," predicts Hewitt. "We're trying to break through

Cathedralite was founded in 1966 by a minister who sold pre-fab dome frames, mostly to church groups, hence the

Miller, Hewitt, and Nottoli were roommates while attending college in the San Francisco Bay area in the early 1970s. In 1972, Hewitt and Nottoli traveled south to Santa Cruz County, looking for a business enterprise. They constructed and sold a dome and became distributors for Cathedralite. Miller joined them later and 2 1/2 years ago they bought the minister out.

At that time the three young entrepreneurs were doing about $250,000 in gross annual sales. Last year sales were $3 million and the three predict sales of $5 million to $8 million this year.

They now have 75 employees, a factory in Oroville, Calif., and 35 distributors scattered across the United States. Sales are currently 65 to 70 a month.

"We knew it was a really good concept," says Nottoli. "But we thought it (their current success) was five or 10 years down the road. Hell, 18 months ago I was still pounding nails.'

Cathedralite domes are sold as kits composed of pre-cut large wood triangles which are bolted together. The buyer constructs the foundation and finishes the dome with roof, interior, wiring and

Hewitt says 90 per cent of the buyers do some of the work themselves and have contractors perform the more difficult task such as plumbing and wiring.

Cathedralite is the only dome cor whose product has been approved by the International Conference of Building Officials and they have lending institution approval - two necessary ingredients if dome housing is to become comm

Cathedralite dome kits range from 30foot domes with 600 square feet and costing $3,895, to spacious 45-foot domes with 1,500 square feet costing $7,295. Riser walls can boost the square footage to over 2,000 feet and extensions can add variety to the round shape of the domes.

Depending on the quality of the finish materials, the three say a large dome home can be finished for well under $30,-

While Cathedralite basically sells framing kits and provides contractor help for finishing work, they recently reached agreement with a San Rafael company to provide solar energy units for their domes. They also are pushing sales of domes for offices, restaurants and other types of businesses.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 73 years old, 5 feet 9, and weigh 165 pounds. My blood pressure is 150 over 90. My trouble is that just a little bump on my arms or hands will leave a bruise or blood spot under the skin. I have been to a lot of doctors to try to find out what causes this. No one seems to tell me the cause.

I'm very athletic, very solid and muscularly built. I drink a quart of orange juice or grapefruit juice a day and have for the past several years.

All I drink is pure orange juice, grapefruit juice, prune juice, and tomato juice With the exception of this bruising, I'm in excellent health. A lot of doctors have recommended that I take vitamin C, but I get enough out of the fruit juices, so I don't bother. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER - This seems to be a problem that is not always easily solved. The emphasis on vitamin C for bruising is related to the fact that scurvy caused from vitamin C deficiency is associated with bleeding and hemorrhagic tendencies. However, if a person is getting enough vitamin C, as in your case, taking additional vitamin C will not help at all.

You are quite right.

A hemotologist, a specialist in blood disorders, might want to test all aspects of your blood clotting mechanism and the tendency of your capillaries (smallest vessels) to break. That would be the only way a better answer could be obtained for you. Even exhaustive studies sometimes fail to provide the real answer.

Meanwhile, if you happen to take aspirin or any of the commonly available pain relievers, you should stop them. Aspirin can increase the tendency to bleed. I doubt that is your problem, because a person in your good health should not require any additional medicines.

The rest of your diet could be important. Be sure you are getting an adequate amounts of the foods you need. It might not hurt to take one all-purpose daily vitamin tablet to be sure you are not missing anything you really need.

Thixotropy New Word . To Some

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) - Some scientists are concerned with such cosmic matters as the birth of the universe or the search for the ultimate particle of the atom. Some are concerned with more immediate problems such as getting the ketchup out of the bottle before the hamburger gets

Dr. Magnus Pyke recognizes the importance of research into the largest and smallest entities within our comprehension. On the other hand, he also feels for the hungry citizen smacking the bottom of the ketchup bottle to urge out the reluctant contents only to find his burger drowned in a red tide.

'Generations of people have been puzzled, and many of the more tidy-mind of them worried as well, at why it is that alleges Pyke, a widely quoted food scien-

"Either it won't come out of the bottle at all or it comes out in a large dollop. The answers to these questions are by no means trivial."

The key word in all this, he said over a lunch at which he demonstrated the proper ketchup technique, is thixotropy, a word new to many laymen when he used it in a recent book, The Delights of Science (Sterling). It describes a number of substances which cannot make up their minds whether they are liquids or solids and at various times fall from one category into the other.

'To start with what do we mean by a liquid?," he said. "The answer is that a liquid is any sort of stuff which flows when you pour it. On the other hand, take a bottle of ketchup from the shelf, unscrew the stopper, turn the bottle on its head - and it does not flow. Must we take it from this that it is not a liquid?

"Now take up the bottle, replace the stopper and vigorously shake the bottle, but vigorously in the style of a barman shaking a cocktail. When the stopper is removed it will be found that the ketchup can readily be poured out of the bottle. At this stage, therefore, we must undoubtedly accept that the ketchup is a

To start with, he says it is a liquid with splids mixed in with it. Some of the solids, which are partly suspended and partly dissolved in the liquid, possess the ability of forming a subsidiary structure — a sort of temporary scaffolding — within

Pyke has a favorite ketchup couplet: "You bang and bump and shake the First nothing'll come - then a lottle."

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Tie nationally known accounting firm of Price Waterhouse Co. says its dismissal by Gulf Oil Corp. stemmed from differences over Gulf's political slush fund.

Gulf, the nation's seventh-largest corporation, terminated its 46-year association with Price Waterhouse Tuesday, saying only that the "subjective" decision by the board of directors was based on an audit committee's study.

The oil company has admitted doling out about $10.3 million to foreign and domestic politicians over a 13-year period through a secret fund deposited in the Coopers & Lybrand, another big New York-based accounting firm, was named to replace Price Waterhouse as Gulf's outside auditors.

A Price Waterhouse spokesman said his firm balked when Gulf insisted that the accountants help pay the $4 million that settled shareholder lawsuits over the illegal use of corporate money.

"That's their statement," said Jack Morris, Gulf vice president for financial relations, declining further comment on the accusation.

Morris compared changing independent accounting firms to an individual's decison to change doctors. "It's a subjective matter as to what's best for the company and shareholders."

The board's decision is subject to stockholder approval at Gulf's April annual meeting in Pittsburgh. Price Waterhouse will continue as the company's independent auditors through the 1977 examina-

Price Waterhouse had been named as a defendant in the stockholder suits, but did not join in the settlement.

David Christopher, partner in charge of Price Waterhouse's Pittsburgh office, said the firm refused to settle because it was not involved in the slush fund. "The settlement was obviously a convenient way of terminating what could otherwise be protracted distaseful litigation," he said in a news release. "Price Waterhouse ... concluded that, however opportune, it could not become a contributing party ... in view of the fact that Price Waterhouse had not acted improperly in connection with the pay-"We can only assume that the primary reason for our replacement as Gulf's indent public accountants was our refusal to join in the settlement." Gulf's own internal review of the slush fund concluded that Price Waterhouse had knowledge of some of the company's foreign transactions.

However, the review committee said it found "no evidence" that the accountants were aware of domestic political payments or the mechanisms used to transfer funds to the Bahamas for ulti-mate return to the United States.

"Gulf has no reservations regarding the professional competence or integrity of Price Waterhouse Co.," the oil company

Sadat Poses For Photos At Retreat

By EDDIE ADAMS

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Anwar Sadat was wearing blue pajamas and dark robe when he received me Monday morning in his modest bedroom at his retreat, the Barrage, on the outskirts of Cairo. I had asked permission to make informal pictures of the Egyptian president, and he obliged. The bed was unmade and Sadat was reading an Arabic newspaper as he sat on a yellow settee.

It was a dramatic contrast to the time seven years ago when I first photo-graphed Sadat at the funeral of President Gamal Abdel Nasser, his predecessor. Sadat then seemed fragile, just a pale shadow of the charismatic Nasser. Many people openly speculated that he would not last long as Egypt's leader.

He surprised them. He led his country to war against Israel in 1973, and when I photographed him a second time in 1974, he seemed a changed man, erect in stat-ure, confident and polished. I traveled with him around Egypt. He asked me to take his official portrait that year.

My third meeting with Sadat was in June, 1975, when I photographed him and President Gerald Ford in Austria. This past week I met with President Sadat after he had met with Jordan's King Hussein. He was somber, with head bowed. But he seemed in good spirits at our meeting two days later at the Barrage.

After the bedroom scenes, Sadat showed me his inner office where he was working on the green-bound budget book. Then came the large salon which serves as his audience chamber and conference room. Drapes framed the large picture windows. Rich carpets were on

I photographed him sitting alone at the huge conference table, his portrait above his head. Later, he leaned out of a window to gaze at the large spreading banyan tree in the grounds.

Tree Chosen For Carter

COOLIDGE, Ga. (UPI) - A 10-foothigh Virginia pine has been selected as the Christmas tree for President Carter's

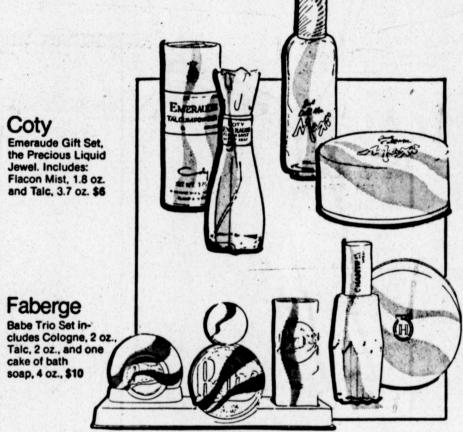

The tree was selected Tuesday in a contest by the Georgia Christmas Trees Growing Association and will be taken 75 miles to Plains Friday. The first family plans to celebrate Christmas at their south Georgia home.

The tree came from the Thomas County farm of Bruce Murphy, president of the Christmas tree growers' group.

Murphy said since White officials refused to accept the pine as a gift, a bill for $14 - $10 for the tree and $4 for a handmade stand - will be sent to the Presi-

He said the tree was planted six years ago by 13-year-old Tony Phillip Smith, who died in a 1973 automobile accident. Murphy said he slept in the woods beside the tree Monday night because thieves had stolen another pine which was in the running to be the Carters' holiday exament.

Food Dating Codes Deciphered In Company List

By LOUISE COOK ssociated Press Writer

Have you ever wondered if that can of Shelf life: Company says coded products good for Food dating codes usually indicate when a product was packed or when it should be sold by. They may appear on the top, bottom or side of the product. They may be embossed, stamped or printed. They consist of numbers and let-ters and should not be confused with the Universal Product Code, a series of thick and thin lines designed to be used with electronic scanners to identify a product

Efforts are underway in some areas to force manufacturers to date their products in an easily understood way. To call attention to the problem, the New York State Consumer Protection Board recently published a guide, "Blind Dates: How Break the Codes on the Foods You Buy," based on a survey of 84 food com-

Some codes are relatively easy to figure out. Several companies, for example, indicate the day of the year with a threedigit number. A listing of 001 means Jan. 1 — the first day of the year; 002 is Jan. 2; etc., through 365 - Dec. 31. Other codes are based on letters: A is January. B is February, etc. (Note: A few codes also cover things like where a product was packed.)

In compiling its guide, the board said it included information it believed would be most helpful to consumers. It left out companies which provided codes only for candy, gum or soft drinks. Products marked with an "open" date, not in code, also were omitted.

The board printed more than 100,000 copies of its guide, but ran out quickly and, said a spokesman, does not have the money to print more.

Here is a list of the companies and products included in the book, the codes used as of September 1977 and what they

tween black and white.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Michael Allen agrees with the Jewish Defense League on at least on one point: American Nazis, despite their small numbers, are a threat

Activists from the JDL in New York came to St. Louis in November to urge Jews to arm themselves with baseball bats and smash the Nazis if they rallied in suburban Florissant. A JDL representative said Nazis have no rights even in a

St. Louis Jewish organizations called on their members to ignore the militant Jewish group's plea. They said the few Nazis, led by Allen, are unworthy of the attention they have drawn on them-

Allen disagreed: "One Nazi is a threat to Jews. Where there is one Nazi, there are hundreds and hundreds of people that sympathize with him."

The American Civil Liberties Union labeled Allen's group "a handful of political deviants." Nonetheless, the ACLU on Nov. 18 filed suit in federal court to force Florissant officials to grant a permit for the Nazis to hold a public rally. No court action is expected until early 1978. "If civil libertarians allowed government to take rights from Nazis," said Joyce Armstrong, executive director of the ACLU of Eastern Missouri, "who would be next? Would the Jews become unpopular next? Ultimately, wouldn't it be just the government, the people in control, who wouldn't be outlawed? Similar defense of Nazi rights elsewhere has cost the ACLU the loss of more than 3,000 members across the country.

"I respect the ACLU for helping us," Allen said. "They would have been hypocrites if they didn't."

Allen claims as many as 40 Nazi Party members in St. Louis and about 250 financial supporters. However, fewer than a dozen local Nazis have appeared in recent public events in St. Louis.

"History is made by small, active mi-norities," Allen said. "They have convinced the majority of people to follow

Allen advocates the expulsion of blacks and Jews from the United States. He said he has no moral qualms about genocide.

"I wouldn't lose any sleep if it was a Jew or a nigger wasted," he said. "If they thought they could get away with it, they wouldn't hesistate to kill us."

Allen, born seven years after the end of World War II, said Jews have smeared the image of Adolf Hitler, whom he calls the greatest man who ever lived.

"If it can be proved that Hitler did kill 6 million Jews, I'd charter a plane to go over to Germany and I'd just roll in the mud because I'd be on hallowed ground," he said.

"If Hitler killed 6 million Jews, that's great. He should have killed 6 million more. Then we wouldn't have the probems we have today of Jews dominating

Allen wants to expound his views at the Florissant rally. The refusal of city officials to permit the meeting has brought the Nazis widespread news coverage. Picketing by 10 brown-shirted Nazis four of them from out of town - ended in a brawl with anti-Nazis Oct. 8 in front of the Florissant City Hall. More than a dozen persons were injured. Allen is a member of the Nationalist Socialist Party of America, formed by Frank Collin of Chicago who was expelled from the Nationalist Socialist White People's Party because his father was a Jew. Both organizations use the name American Nazi Party.

Allen spent 15 years in an all-white or-shanage in an all-black neighborhood in

'That's where I learned the facts of race," he said. "We had to fight to survive in that orphanage. We had to stick together. We fought when any blacks came on the yard, and they fought us when we walked down the street."

Allen graduated in 1971 from Northwest High School, whose racial makeup

TV Dolls Lose Out

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bionic bodies are out and stretchable muscle-men and walking-and-wetting dolls are in on child-ren's Christmas lists, according to a sur-ren's Christmas lists, according to a survey of Santas.

Pollsters questioned Santas at Sears, Roebuck and Co., stores across the country and found the "Six Million Dollar Man" and "Bionic Woman" dolls that topped children's Christmas lists last year have declined in popularity.

The changes in children's toy tastes can mean millions of dollars to toy manufactures. Toy Manufacturers of America estimates toy sales will hit $4 billion — and that doesn't include bicycles.

Among girls, dolls were the mostasked-for Christmas gift this year.

"Baby Come Back," a doll that walks a few steps, then returns with arms open for an embrace, was the most popular choice among the girls.

"Baby This 'n' That," a doll that brushes its teeth, holds a phone and feeds itself, was second.

Rounding out the top five choices among the girls were "Baby Thataway," a crawling doll; "Baby Alive," a doll that pretends to eat, drink and wet; and Barbie, the ever-popular teen-age doll that has been in adolescence for 19 years.

Last year's most-requested toy among girls — the "Bionic Woman" doll — wasn't even in the running this year.

Boys also have forsaken the "Six Million Dollar Man" as their top toy choice.

This year, "Stretch Armstrong," a muscle-man doll that can be stretched and returns to its original shape, was the most-requested toy among the boys.

"Stretch Monster," a horror version of the same doll, tied with bicycles for the No. 2 spot. Train sets were next, followed by trucks and race-car sets.

Democracy Speeded Up By Bomb

By PETER UEBERSAX

MADRID, Spain (UPI) - If Spain's transformation from a dictatorship to a democracy passed without major up-heavals and bloodshed, it may have been because of a bomb that shook downtown Madrid on a wet, windy December mornng four years ago.

At exactly 9:38 a.m. on Dec. 20, 1973, the bomb — planted by Basque urban guerrillas who tunneled under a street from a basement apartment - went off one block from the U.S. embassy.

Triggered with split-second precision, it picked a black limousine out of the dense traffic in Claudio Coello Street, hurled it over the roof of Francisco de Borja Church and crumpled it against the wall of a terrace facing the church's inner courtyard.

Almost immediately, a Jesuit priest and two policeman arrived on the scene. But there was nothing they could do to save the lives of the three men inside the

By DONALD McNICOLL

LONDON (AP) - If you want to learn odd bits about Britain, you could do worse than study the "Letters To The Editor" that most newspapers and magazines print. These letters often give an insight into the way ordinary people think and the things that happen to them.

As an example, here is Mrs. Rhina Stitt writing from Belfast to the Daily Mail: For my husband and me, LOVE is holding hands on your wedding anniversary, years and four children later. This might be some encouragement to those who get disillusioned at the first rough patch of marriage or on reading stories of the so-called top people with their end-less ex-wives, ex-husbands and ex-mis-

Mrs. D.M. Pettigrew of Basildon, 20 miles east of London, wrote to the Sunday People: "My daughter, 15, visited a friend who was (in a hospital) recovering from a motorcycle accident. On seeing the pin through his leg, she fainted, hit her head on the floor, and ended up in the casualty department.

Mrs. D.R. Savage of Blackpool, a holi-day resort in northeast England, said in a letter to the Daily Express: "Almost from birth boys are trusted as superior human beings. Walk down any high street (main street) and you can hear some doting parent say: "Come on, son." I've never yet heard any parent say, "Come on, daughter." Mrs. Eileen Bisselt of Burton Latimer,

75 miles north of London, asked the Sun-day Express editor whether this is "the ultimate in meet's laziness — on a lovely autumn morning I saw a poodle out for its exercise with its owner ... The dog was and the owner curb-crawling in his car."

Mrs. J. West of Bristol in the west of England told the News of the World edi-tyr how she "stooped to conker": "When I saw youngsters searching the fallen leaves for conkers (chestnuts), I told my husband to stop the car so I could join them. The sight reminded me of my own happy childhood. But ... you shouldn't turn the clock back at a whim. As I rushed to bend down for a conker, I ricked my back and was in agony." The sympathetic editor put this footnote to Mrs. West's letter: "We're sending you a bag of conkers, Mrs. West, to help ease the pain."

Mrs. G. Shaw of Edinburgh, the Scottish capital, also wrote to the News of the World: "The pigeons are getting clever in London. On a visit we fed them in Trafalgar Square, and one bird followed us onto the Tube (subway) and got off with us at the Tower. The rest of the passens thought the bird was our pet. After spending a couple of hours with us, the bird flew off."

The assassination caused Franco, then 80, such a shock that he could not attend the burial which took place at a small cemetery right next to the dictator's El Pardo Palace residence.

A week later, showing up at a memorial mass, Franco broke into tears as he kissed the hand of Carrero's widow. But soon he steadied. The four Basques who carried out the bombing fled to France where they wrote a book,"Operation Ogre," which was the code name of the assassination plot. In the opinion of some reviewers, the 130 pages of taped testimony beat Frederick Forsyth's "The Day of the Jackal" for sheer suspense, if not for writing skill.

For a full year, the Basques stalked Carrero in Madrid, getting familiar with the strange city and the premier's habits.

Many months later, the four Basques, masquerading as sculptors to have an excuse for the dirt and noise they were pro-ducing in their basement, had finished the 30-foot tunnel that led to a point under the street where Carrero's car passed on the way from the mass.

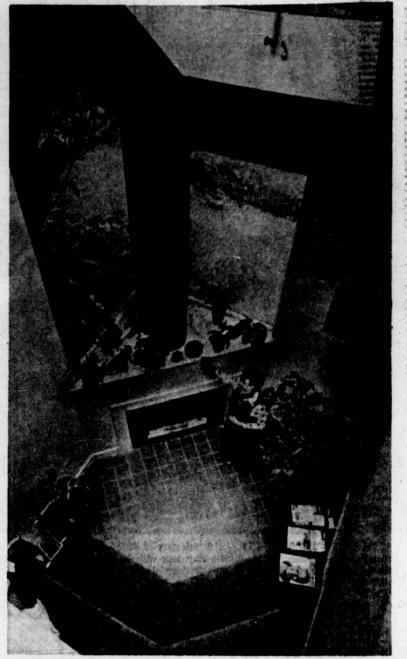

They placed a bomb made of 110 pounds of plastic explosives, stringing an electric wire along a full block of house walls. They double-parked a car contain-ing another 22 pounds of explosives to make sure Carrero's car would pass exactly over the spot where they had plant-ed the explosives. The four donned Spanish army uniforms and escaped to Portugal from where they reached France by sea. They still are only known by their Basque pseudonyms.

Their alleged accomplices were rounded up in Madrid and the Basque region. But none of them ever faced trial, and all have been released under a series of pardons granted to political prisoners.

Critics Oppose Forest Logging

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) -At any cocktail party, social gathering or private chat the "rape of Endau-Rompin" is becoming increasingly a major topic for discussion here.

The usually tame Malaysian press has come out with editorial after editorial urging the governments to stop the Endau-Rompin and other similar "rapes."

The cause of the uproar is the logging of a 1,400-year-old forest area, which is endangering rare wildlife, including the Sumatran rhinoceros.

It is also threatening the livelihood of thousands of people in the area, but the Pahang state government is going ahead with the logging, defying the press, political parties, world wildlife organizations and innumerable public organizations that have called for a halt.

The state government says the Endau-Rompin National Forest and Park area - about 100 miles southeast of here covers about a half-million acres. Of this only about one-third is in Pahang and the rest in Johore. Logging 30,000 acres in Pahang will not affect the ecology.

But the protesters fear if it is not stopped at the beginning it will continue. Seeing the Pahang government doing it, the Johore government will also go ahead with logging in some portions, they say.

Federal officials said the Pahang state government dared not stop the logging as the concession license for the 30,000 acres had been given to the Pahang state royal family members, who are powerful in their state.

They also pointed out the federal government could only appeal and perhaps put on the pressure by threatening to cut down federal grants. It cannot act directly to stop the logging or concession license because all land matters in Malaysia come under state jurisdiction and the constitution gives the federal government no rights over these issues.

The concession was issued a few

Study Shows Babies Need Stimulation

NEWINGTON, Conn. (UPI) - Cuddling and talking to a newborn child can be "critical" to the healthy development of the infant's brain cells, says a Yale

Medical School professor. Dr. Edmund Crelin said fondling and the sound of human voices are necessary to stimulate growth links between brain cells. He urged parents to expose their babies to "lots of handling, light and sound."

"Research has shown, that there are critical times when the growth of the nerve cell branches is dependent on the input of sensory stimuli from the surface of the body and the special sense organs, such as the eye, ear, nose and tongue,' Crelin said.

'We are only beginning to determine exactly what these critical times are."

Newborns, he said, should experience "lots of handling, light and sound. This would start the development of the cortical nerve cell branches at a maximum as soon as possible."

If an infant is not adequately stimulated, he said, it can retard the development of the nerve cell connections.

Addressing a symposium at Newington Children's Hospital this week, Crelin also disputed the theory that newborn infants can think at birth.

"I am annoyed at behavioral scientists who talk about the mental life of the newborn baby as though the baby is real-ly using his thinking brain," Crelin said. "All of the responses they study are basically reflexes involving the brain

He said the cerebral cortex of a new-born's brain, which contains about 10 bil-lion nerve cells, is not able to function at birth. It is these cells that create thought and personality, enabling individuals to experience all the sensation they will have throughout life, he said.

Critics Oppose Forest Logging

KUAŁA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) -At any cocktail party, social gathering or private chat the "rape of Endau-Rompin" is becoming increasingly a major topic for discussion here.

new glass

e old town-of the house

The usually tame Malaysian press has come out with editorial after editorial urging the governments to stop the Endau-Rompin and other similar "rapes.

The cause of the uproar is the logging of a 1,400-year-old forest area, which is endangering rare wildlife, including the Sumatran rhinoceros.

It is also threatening the livelihood of thousands of people in the area, but the Pahang state government is going ahead with the logging, defying the press, political parties, world wildlife organizations and innumerable public organizations that have called for a halt.

The state government says the Endau-Rompin National Forest and Park area - about 100 miles southeast of here covers about a half-million acres. Of this only about one-third is in Pahang and the rest in Johore. Logging 30,000 acres in

Pahang will not affect the ecology. But the protesters fear if it is not stopped at the beginning it will continue. Seeing the Pahang government doing it the Johore government will also go ahead with logging in some portions, they say. Federal officials said the Pahang state government dared not stop the logging as the concession license for the 30,000 acres had been given to the Pahang state royal family members, who are powerful

They also pointed out the federal government could only appeal and perhaps put on the pressure by threatening to cut down federal grants. It cannot act directly to stop the logging or concession license because all land matters in Malaysia come under state jurisdiction and the constitution gives the federal government no rights over these issues. The concession was issued a few

NEWINGTON, Conn. (UPI) - Cuddling and talking to a newborn child can be "critical" to the healthy development of the infant's brain cells, says a Yale Medical School professor.

Dr. Edmund Crelin said fondling and the sound of human voices are necessary to stimulate growth links between brain cells. He urged parents to expose their babies to "lots of handling, light and sound."

"Research has shown, that there are critical times when the growth of the nerve cell branches is dependent on the input of sensory stimuli from the surface of the body and the special sense organs, such as the eye, ear, nose and tongue,'

"We are only beginning to determine exactly what these critical times are."

Newborns, he said, should experience "lots of handling, light and sound. This would start the development of the cortical nerve cell branches at a maximum as soon as possible.

If an infant is not adequately stimulated, he said, it can retard the development of the nerve cell connections.

Addressing a symposium at Newington Children's Hospital this week, Crelin also disputed the theory that newborn infants can think at birth.

"I am annoyed at behavioral scientists who talk about the mental life of the newborn baby as though the baby is really using his thinking brain," Crelin said. "All of the responses they study are basically reflexes involving the brain

He said the cerebral cortex of a new born's brain, which contains about 10 bil-lion nerve cells, is not able to function at birth. It is these cells that create thought and personality, enabling individuals to experience all the sensation they will have throughout life, he said.

Retrieving Sunken Logs Becomes Big Business

CLOQUET, Minn. (AP) — Joe Porcelli, Ji-year-old Korean-American, claims been searching for roots since he spears old. And after coming to the Justed States 23 years ago he may finally take found them at the bottom of the St. is River in northern Minnesota.

Porcelli, after serving as an underwater lemolition instructor for the Green Berets in Vietnam and working for an ocean salvage company, came to Minnesota opursue a marine engineering degree at the university. He now runs his own company retrieving sunken logs from river bottoms.

Millions of dollars worth of logs are there for the taking and he aims to get his share, declares Porcelli, who says, "I've been on my own since I was 5 and I've been groping for roots. Now I have the world by the tail.

"If I had 20 crews and worked for the rest of my life, I couldn't get all the logs out of Minnesota's waters," Porcelli claims. "But my biggest problem is convincing people that the logs are a viable and valuable product.

"I guess I'm ecology-minded too," he adds. "Each log pulled out of the water represents one less tree that has to be cut, and helps clean the water."

Porcelli began diving at the age of 11, three years after he left Korea and was adopted by an Italian family in South Carolina. He earned a degree in biology at the University of South Carolina and then became a member of the Green Be-

After his discharge, Porcelli traveled around the world as his company's chief diver, but decided to venture to Minnesota, where he not only worked on his marine engineering degree, but met his wife. He got into the logging business a few years after helping with some underwater blasting in the St. Louis River when a stranger kept asking for the sunken logs they cleared out. Porcelli checked into this and figured there was some $50-million-worth of logs on the Minnesota river The logs are not only plentiful, but are still of good quality, even though some are more than 100 years old.

"I learned that 10 to 15 percent of all the logs that were floated down rivers sank," he said, "as long as the logs are submerged, they are not exposed to air and the water temperature does not reach 76 degrees, which is needed for the proliferation of fungus that destroys

"The major reason a log goes bad is deterioration," he continued. "Air and the proper temperature are needed to cause this."

Porcelli had trouble convincing bankers that financing a business such as log salvation was worthwhile and finally secured a loan through the Small Business Administration. It also took him a year to get the proper state permit.

But eventually he did receive the permit and was able to begin business. He purchased a 22-foot, jet-powered work boat, a bulldozer, trucks, diving equipment and two small fishing boats, and began training a crew, which now numbers In less than three months, Porcelli and his crew have brought to the surface enough logs to produce 500,000 board feet of lumber. A 16-foot-long log which yields about 100 board feet is worth approxi-

12 to 16 hours a day, but Porceli has never been happier.

College Students Fill Apocalypse Course

By HARRY ATKINS
DETROIT (AP) — Hal Blay doesn't necessarily think "The End Is Near," but he has some idea what it's going to be like when it comes.

What's more, people are paying good money to hear his views.

Every Tuesday at a little past noon, Blay's classroom begins to fill with stunts taking his Humanities course th Wayne State University's College of Lifelong Learning. The title of the course is "Apocalypse: The End of the

Doctor Says Many Tests

GHICAGO (AP) - Routine chest Xrays and other tests are not necessary for all hospital patients and add to the rapidly rising cost of medical care, an American Medical Association official says.

The official, Dr. Richard J. Jones director of the AMA's division of scientific affairs, says there is little doubt that the inclination to more elaborate testing has been fostered by third-party pay-

Jones, writing in today's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said the situation is aggravated by physicians' awareness that they may be sued for malpractice if they overlook an abnormality that may later cause

Physicians in training also may order routine tests because they fear that they will be criticized by senior physicians if they do not, he said. Jones suggested that medical students and interns and residents should be taught the importance of economy in planning tests and treatment

Since most patients no longer pay for their own tests, doctors do not receive laints about the expense that they once did, he said.

Jones said routine ordering of tests is part of the reason that hospital costs are

McNally is a wine expert for Heublein Inc. The wine, some of it more than a century old, had been buried in the cellar of the 18th century Ten Broeck Mansion in Albany, N.Y., once the home of a wealthy family and, since 1948, property of the Albany County Historical Associa-

Maverick Politician Seeks Policy Alternatives

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Kandra Hahn, a young Nebraskan who gave up a good job to risk running for the obscure post of county court clerk, is an unlikely political maverick.

good job as a city hall reporter for the Lincoln Journal. But she quit the job in 1974 to run for office because she didn't like what she saw office-holders doing.

Now 30, Kandra Hahn is a political comrade of the likes of former anti-war leader Sam Brown and Florence McDonald, the feisty 60-year-old social-ist auditor of Berkeley, Calif. In the past year, Mrs. Hahn has been enrolling in workshops on "alternative public policies" with people like Brown and Mrs. McDonald. All are part of a growing network of alternative politicians.

"I covered county and city govern-ment, sitting through boring meetings and watching outrageous activities -not the least of which was incompetence," recalls Mrs. Hahn, who ran as a Democrat. "Finally it occurred to me that I could do it better.'

This political force emerged several years ago with leadership from a handful of former campus activists who had moved into the traditional political arena. Now there are an increasing number of officials, like Mrs. Hahn, who never were really active in civil rights or antiwar campaigns, who are working to create alternative public policies.

Alternative policy-makers are a loosely organized group with little in common - except a view that the corporate es-tablishment has too much influence on public policy, and the average people too little. They are traditional Demo-crats like state Rep. Barney Frank in Massachusetts; prairie populists like North Dakota tax commissioner Byron Dorgan, avowed socialists like Mrs.

Their major goals have been to find alternative approaches to investment of public funds, tax reform, energy policy, farm ownership and urban revitalization Many alternative politicians are obtaining real influence, ironic for those like Marion Barry, a civil rights activist who marched and boycotted and organ-ized his way onto the District of Columbia city council; or those like Tom Hayden, who began their public careers in frequent clashes with the government, piling up criminal charges and often "anti-American" reputations as they challenged the system

Some of the alternative politicians are well known because of their backgrounds, because of the jobs they have today and because of key "alternative policy" accomplishments. Chief among

Sam Brown: The anti-war, anti-Olympics activist was elected state treasurer in Colorado and then appointed by Presi-dent Carter to head the ACTION agency which runs Vista and the Peace Corps. Brown left Colorado reluctantly and only after initiating efforts to enforce 'public control" over state money, a major thrust of the movement to find alternative approaches to public policies.

Tom Hayden: One of the defendants in the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial, Hay-den tested his analysis of California's future at the polls, tallying more than a million Democratic votes in his primary challenge for a U.S. Senate nomination. He was defeated by incumbent John Tunney, who subsequently lost to Republican S.I. Havakawa.

Hayden's Campaign for Economic Democracy supports candidates for local office and is becoming a political force in the state.

John Froines: Another Chicago Seven alumni, Froines is an accomplished chemist whose appointment as occupational health director of Vermont created a furor. On the basis of the job he did there, Froines has taken over as head of the federal Office of Toxic Substances.

Paul Soglin: The mayor of Madison, Wis., was elected in 1974 after a student career as an anti-war activist and city council gadfly. After his recent election to a third term, he has been casting a covetous eye on statewide office, perhaps — In Madison, local lawmakers created a city-owned Community Development

— In Colorado, then-Treasurer Brown set up a policy in which banks which set up a policy in which banks which demonstrated "socially responsible" financial policies were favored for the deposit of state money. It has become a model in the movement for an activist view of "public use of public money.

In Hartford, Conn., city council president Nick Carbone pushed creation of a corporation that will weatherize homes at low cost to city residents.

- In North Dakota, state tax commissioner Byron Dorgan has given new emphasis to collecting taxes from intransigent out-of-state corporations, boosting collections by millions of dollars a year.

- In Lincoln, Mrs. Hahn moved quickly to streamline procedures to ensure that single parents receive child support payments as ordered by county judges and opened the court clerk's office to the public.

- In Washington, D.C., Marion Barry led the fight to ensure that low-income homeowners are not forced from their neighborhoods by property tax increases.

— In Boulder, Colo., councilman Paul

Danish heads a slow-growth movement. It won voter approval of a plan that makes Boulder the largest city in the nation with a quota on growth.

— In Davis, Calif., Mayor Bob Black

pushed for the new city taxes on real estate in an effort to curb the rise in housing costs in his city, and he supported efforts leading to Davis' energy use and conservation plan. Meanwhile, one eye is always on the fu-

Japanese Announce Proposal To Reduce Tariffs On Imports

TOKYO (AP) - Japan's finance ministry this week announced plans to reduce ministry said it is now ready to expand import tariffs on 318 items by an average of 23 percent, effective April 1.

The ministry said the Japanese parliament is expected to give the necessary approval to the changes, which include elimination of the 6.4 percent tariff on motor vehicles, a cut in the tariff on computers to 10.5 percent from 13.5 percent, and a reduction in the color film tariff to 11 percent from 16 percent.

The reductions are being made as part of Japan's proposals to increase imports in an effort to cut its huge trade surplus, which has been sharply criticized abroad.

The import value of the items to be reduced was estimated at about $2.2 billion annually. Japan is expected to run a trade surplus in the year ending this March at up to $20 billion.

The overall action is the largest since 1972 when the government lowered tariffs by 20 percent across the board for

Finance ministry officials said the average rate of reduction on industrial goods was 31 percent and the average rate on agricultural and fishery products was 15

Bonn Denies Developing New Missiles

BONN, West Germany (AP) - The West German government today dismissed as "pure nonsense" a U.S. magazine report that it is developing cruise missiles and intermediate-range ballistic missiles in Zaire.

An article scheduled for publication by Penthouse but released by the magazine in advance claimed that a government subsidized Stuttgart firm, Orbital Transport und Raketen A.G., has already tested four or five cruise missile prototypes. They are designed to carry nuclear missiles, the article said, and were tested in a 100,000 square miles area of Zaire.

The Bonn government confirmed that OTRAG signed an agreement with the government of Zaire in late 1975 to test rocket launchers for commercial weather and communications satellites in Shaba province. But Foreign Ministry spokesman Juergen Sudhoff said the Penthouse report that military rockets are being tested with German government assistance is 'pure nonsense.

"OTRAG is a private investment company and the government is not involved," Sudhoff said. Sudhoff said the only government funds received by OTRAG were $3.1 million granted the firm by the Research Ministry several years ago for an analy-A Research Ministry spokesman said the money was used between 1971 and

1974 to investigate possible research applications for OTRAG rockets. A Defense

Ministry spokesman denied the Penthouse article's claim that OTRAG has received funds from the defense budget. OTRAG spokesman Frank Wukasch said in Stuttgart, "This report is complete nonsense. Earlier, a State Department spokesman in Washington said the United States understands that the German firm is developing launchers, not missiles, and has no evidence that cruise missiles are being tested in Zaire. And the South African government in Pretoria rejected Soviet claims of South African involvement in the project. Faced with similar reports in the past, OTRAG has insisted that its sole purpose in Zaire is to develop cheap rockets to shoot commercial satellites into space at a cost of only $14 million per launching. The firm claims it can reduce by half the cost of a U.S. satellite launching because, unlike conventional multi-stage rockets with their costly fuel, OTRAG's "throwaway" launchers are powered by bundles of propulsion tubes using a cheap mixture of diesel oil and nitro-hy-drochloric acid.

"It is very difficult to test rockets in Europe and America because the launcher stage always falls back to earth without burning up in the atmosphere," a spokesman said. He said the firm secured Zaire's permission to use the Shaba province testing site, in exchange for building hospitals, bridges, roads and electric in-stallations in the remote, thinly populat-

Anxieties For An Aide

IT HAS LONG been recognized that the coaching profession is nearly as stable as a bottle of nitroglycerin perched in the bed of an old pickup truck moving along a Louisiana road. And the point was driven home-again-to Texas

Tech's coaching staff a couple of weeks ago.

Steve Sloan's resignation caught everybody by surprise and astonished many. Tech's assistants were scattered over Texas and neighboring states that Wednesday night when they got the message from Sloan to come back to Lubbock as soon as possible. By noon the next day, they had found out why. Suddenly, they were jobless, at least temporarily.

"It really took me by surprise, I'll tell you," said Romeo Crennel, who directed the off-season program and did much of the film work. "I'd heard so many rumors about him leaving that I'd kind of gotten conditioned to them. And I had forgotten about the Mississippi thing when (previous coach Ken) Cooper got his contract extended."

Assistants are perhaps in a more precarious position than the head coach. A head coach has to worry about being fired, but assistants are in jeopardy, whether a head coach quits or is discharged. It's not a terribly comfortable feel-

"HOW DO YOU handle the insecurity? Not very well, to be honest," said John Cropp, who will go to Mississippi, also. "You just try to use a lot of faith and trust and believe in what you're doing and the people you're doing it for."

Ex-Tech recruiting coordinator Mike Pope, who is also headed for Ole Miss, said, "You just don't handle it, really. A lot of guys don't stay in coaching long because of family reasons. It's tough because there are so many variables in football-injuries and the like-that can result in a product that doesn't give a true reflection of what kind of coaching job was done.

"I've always said that coaches get too much credit and too much blame." Crennel, another of the four ex-Tech aides that decided to go to Mississippi, realizes that the business requires an individual to be flexible.

"That makes it easier to handle sudden changes," he said. "If you're with a good head coach, you can be reasonably sure that he'll offer to take you with him wherever he goes. That eases things a bit. If he gets fired, that's another matter, of course.

LOOKING AT EACH situation positively is the key for Cropp.

"There are two kinds of coaches—ones that have been fired and ones that are going to be fired," he said. "That's an old, old saying, but it pretty well describes the profession. But I don't think good coaches live 'job-scared.'

"Every job I've taken has been with the idea that I would be there the rest of my life. You've got to think of your family, too. It's just the way I believe in liv-Indeed, the take-things-as-they-come attitude seems to be a coach's best weapon against the anxieties that arise from working over a trap door. It's either that or get into another line of work. The moves to Mississippi for Sloan, Crennel, Pope, Cropp and Tommy Limbaugh will obviously affect them and their families, but just how remains to be "It was no real decision at the time," Cropp remarked, "because I didn't have a job." The move, though, could further their professional careers. All four will coach positions at Ole Miss. Cropp was the only one that did at Tech. Pope has been a recruiting coordinator since 1971, while Crennel and Limbaugh haven't been on-the-field coaches the past two seasons because of the limit of eight fulltime assistants imposed by the NCAA after the 1975 campaign.

ALL ARE IN their 30s, and, since the trend is toward hiring coaches that are between the ages of 30 and 40, none can afford to stand still if they want to become head coaches, which is the natural ambition of most assistants.

Crennel could have stayed at Tech and coached a position, but felt that the move would help him by exposing him to other coaches and other philosophies. Cropp said, "Eventually, my decision had to be based on how a move would affect my goal of becoming a head coach. After weighing the evidence, this seemed to be the best choice.

"As far as my family goes, there are advantages and disadvantages to moving. You just have to do what you think is best and then focus on the positive aspects of your decision. Nothing is perfect."

But he is leaving the land of few trees and much dust. 'Yes, but we're trading them for a lot of humidity and mosquitoes," he said with a laugh. "It's a push-pull type of thing."

Instead, the highly rated Irish took a bus to Indiana University, and the plane was sent to Evansville, where it crashed shortly after takeoff.

Philip A. Hogue, a member of the National Transportation Safety Board, said Wednesday air traffic controllers at the Evansville airport were concerned about the "abnormal amount of noise" from the plane's engines before the vintage craft took off.

"The noise was of deep concern to tower personnel and they attempted to make radio contact with the pilot, but were unsuccessful," Hogue said.

Officials called in a crane and railroad flat cars today to move pieces of the wreckage from a small ravine and hillside 1.5 miles east of the main runway of Dress Regional Airport.

ness magnates — enjoying the maneuvering and haggling that goes with high finance transactions — have apparently settled the future of the Oakland A's.

Oil millionaire Marvin Davis and insurance millionaire Charles O. Finley agreed Wednesday to bring the once-proud, now downtrodden American League club to Denver for the 1978 season.

"It was a lot of fun," Davis said of his negotiations with Finley.

"Finley, like myself, is a businessman. He was hoping to get the price he wanted for the team. He had other bids, but he liked our deal the best."

Davis did not reveal the purchase price, but commented, "In the end, it was the dollar that made the difference.

In Chicago, Finley praised Davis for his

"Mr. Davis put the money on the line," Finley said, also refusing to disclose the exact price.

"Mr. Davis is not like a lot of Texans big hat, no cattle. That man's got the cattle. Horse manure walks, money talks. All these other people were walking around with their hands in their pockets. Mr. Davis took his hands out of his pockets and put the money on the table."

At his news conference, Davis warned, "We have many bridges to cross before this thing is finalized."

He said any litigation over the contract the team has with the Oakland Coliseum must be settled by Finley. And he wasn't overly concerned about the trade of pitcher Vida Blue to the Cincinnati Reds of the National League. Finley made that transaction for $1.75 million and a minor

nche-Journal Sports Staff State finalist Seagraves and Petersburg dominated The Avalanche-Journal's Class A All-South Plains team as those two squads supplied 11 of the 25 team

The unbeaten Eagles filled six of the selections and each of the six could have been a two-way choice. The Buffs, however, had the Player of the Year in runningback Mike Jones

Coach of the year laurels went to Lorenzo's Jim Edwards, although Seagraves mentor Jim Eddins was a close second.

Edwards' Hornets were picked fifth in a seven-team league but finished second. losing only to Petersburg in District 4-A play. The Hornets, 3-7 in 1976, reversed that record this year.

Eddins, who has compiled a 62-10-1 ledger since taking over the football reins in 1972, has seen his teams post 6-3-1, 8-2. 10-2, 13-1, 11-2 and now a 14-0 mark, including 11-3 in the state playoffs the last four years. Also, the Eagles made it to the state finals after reaching the semifinals three other times

Although Petersburg played 12 games this fall. Jones missed the final two with a knee injury. Still, the 5-9, 165-pound junior: carried 328 times for 1,965 vards. scored 25 TDs, caught two passes for 26 yards and returned 16 kickoffs for 326 yards.

Four times he rushed for more than 200 yards and his "low" game was 157. Four times he scored four TDs in a game

Barbaro Must Settle

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Gary Barbaro has to be satisfied with a recordtying run of 102 yards with an intercepted pass against Seattle Sunday.

The Kansas City Chiefs thought their safety just might have gone 103 yards, would have been a National Football League record. So they sent game films to the NFL for a determination. The word came back Wednesday: 102 and only once—a 10-0 loss to AA Idalou -did he fail to score. He has rushed for

So Barbaro remains tied with two others for the longest interception return.

2,765 yards in two years. Seagraves' Clarence Davis, who along with Hart's Glen Black made the 1976 team, was a close second to Jones in the Top Player selection. Davis had 1.210 yards rushing during the regular season and has added 641 more in four playoff tilts, and he had tallied 32 TDs and 16 PATs. In his varsity career, which covers only two years as a runningback, Davis has gained 3,462 yards-better than 10 yards a carry-and scored 44 TDs.

Other Eagles making the team-picked with the help of area coaches who could not vote for their own players-were runningbacks Mike Hoover and Steve McCormick, guard David Welch, tackle Daylan Sellers and defensive end Wesley and punter Ricky Juarez. Lorenzo had three players on the squad -guard Coy Holcombe, defensive tackle Mark Moore and linebacker Danny Landum. Hart (Black and secondaryman Johnny Newsom) and New Deal (defensive lineman Jim McIntire and kicker Kerry Miller) had two picks each.

Rounding out the squad were Ralls quarterback David Heinrich, Kress defensive lineman Carlos Amador, Stanton defensive lineman Larry Carroll, O'Donnell linebacker Tony Acosta, Springlake-Earth linebacker Tim May, Crosbyton secondaryman Chad Davis and Spur split end Ricky Vasquez. The four-man backfield resulted when For 102-Yard Return mentors had a difficult time choosing from Seagraves' multitalented threesome. McCormick had 101 carries for 887 vards in the regular season and now has 169 carries for 1335 (season) and 3,032 (career) yards and 42 TDs on 419 carries. Hoover had 634 yards on 94 regular-season efforts and now has 173-928; his career totals read 3,242 yards and 45 TDs on 527 carries.

Heinrich, one of five juniors and seven underclassmen on the unit, rushed for 824 yards and nine TDs and hit half his 48 passes for 372 yards and three more 6-

Vaughn caught 32 passes for 577 yards in the regularseasonplus nine more for 90 yards in the playoffs. He also had four TDs. Twice he had six receptions in a game. Vasquez had 12 catches for 278 vards and four TDs.

Smith, an end, was the only Seagraves

By WALT MCALEXANDER

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
"It's strange," Jim Eddins remarked
Wednesday, "but our staff (Eddins plus Glenn Nix and Jim Draper) was talking yesterday and just realized that this is the first time in four years we know when we're playing our last game.

"That's one thing that makes preparing for this game kinda unusual," Eddins said of the Class A state championship affair which Seagraves faces Saturday against East Bernard at Brownwood.

"When you get into the playoffs, you take your chances and never really know where it will end. I'm just thankful we've gotten as far as we have this year.

"We've had an exceptional run of senior athletes the last four years and they've certainly made a difference in our program.

"Really. I don't think it's sunk in on the "Really, I don't think it's sunk in on the kids yet that this is the state championship game. But I imagine it will before Saturday.

"We're trying to approach it just like it was another game, but there's no way you can say that, because how many times do teams get to play for the state championship?"

Out in West Texas, if you discount Brownwood and Odessa Permian, not many. Oh, Childress made it to the state finals in 1975 and last year, but on the South Plains, only three teams have played for the state championship since

That was the year Denver City won the AA crown. In 1963, Petersburg ruled the state in Class A, and five years later, Estacado took the AAA crown. And, although Wheeler won the Class B title this year, no team from 2-B or 3-B has ever played for that honor. Although Petersburg won the A crown in 1963, no team of that classification has enjoyed the success over a four-year period that Seagraves has, starting in 1974.

Starting with that year, the Eagles have posted 10-2, 13-1, 11-2 and 14-0 marks with the state title tilt still to come.

"That adds up to 5½ seasons in four years," Eddins pointed out. "And that's been a tremendous advantage for our younger kids."

Asked about next year, Eddins only laughed and said, "I really haven't had the time to think about that. I'm really pleased for our seniors this year, because this has been their goal for so long. They've had an outstanding career, and we've still got one game left."

And since Eddins also coaches basketball at Seagraves—it won't get around to the indoor sport until after New Year's, though—it will probably be sometime in the spring before he starts thinking of next year.

"I think our kids are used to pressure."
Nearly all of them have been in pressure situations during the past four years. But this will be the last game for the seniors, and I'm sure most of them are at least thinking about that."

Eddins said the accomplishments of the past four years belong to the players and that he hopes the playoffs have been a "fun" thing instead of drudgery.

HALL THE WORLD TO BE LOND TO SELECT THE PARTY OF THE PART

"We actually don't work as hard during the playoffs as we do during the regular season," Eddins pointed out.

"By that I mean we don't have any contact during the playoffs, and our workouts may not run as long. But we still have to be prepared and know what to look for, and I think we've been able to accomplish that.

"People may look at the last two years and feel we didn't do that toward the

"But the further you get in the playoffs, the better teams you face and the better defenses those teams have. Each of the last three years, I think any team in the semifinals could have won the state title. In our case, it was the other team's defense which shut us down. "Now, we just hope our defense can stop their offense and our offense can get CHILDR has a lot of different aspects about it. First of all, it's a Saturday game. Then it's an afternoon (2 p.m.) game. We've never played on Saturday, and it's been a long time since we ve played in the afternoon, although playoff teams used to play Thanksgiving afternoon but haven't in several years.

"Then, too, we've got an overnight trip (the Eagles will spend Friday night in Abilene, then drive to Brownwood Saturday morning), and we're not sure how that will affect the kids.

"But I've always felt that we don't play many 'away' games because of the support our community gives us in the playoffs, and I'm sure that'll hold true Saturday."

Simple Electric Motor Conversion Saves up to 40% of Power Cost (Watts)
Newly patented capacitor conversion technique needs widespread public tryout in Lubbock area in exchange for data. Presently applicable to most single phase, capacitor start electric motors. More efficient than three phase. Uses oil filled run capacitor, wire, crimp terminals. Materials cost about $15.00, pays for itself in months. Applicable to exhaust fans, air handlers, compressors, air-conditioning. Do it yourself instruction for $5.00. Requires watt meter or ammeter to balance most efficiently. Allison Still Limping; Tech Resumes Drills

LA FERIA 16

By CARTER CROMWELL Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff The limp was still there Wednesday, as

The limp was still there Wednesday, as Texas Tech began preparations for the Tangerine Bowl, and Rodney Allison was at a loss to explain why.

Allison, who suffered a cracked bone in his left leg in the third game of the 1977 season, has come around more slowly than was expected at first. He was at about 75 percent of his normal self against Arkansas Thanksgiving Day, and he feels he's about the same speed now.

"When I was playing the last part of the season, it gradually got better, but it doesn't seem to have improved any since then," Allison said. "I don't really know why.

"Maybe it will just take two or three days to loosen up. It's probably in better condition than it was, but just stiff. I'm still whirlpooling it and all that stuff.
"I moved pretty well Wednesday, and

"I moved pretty well Wednesday, and it got looser as the practice went on, but I just don't know how the leg will react as the game gets nearer."

It's frustrating for Allison to not be able to go full speed, especially when he gets in situations that he would normally turn into long yardage. A couple of times against Arkansas, a healthy Allison would probably have broken for touchdowns, but was halted after gains of 10 yards or so.

"It's a funny feeling when you get out there in the open field, and you know that you can't outrun anybody," he said. "You know they're going to get you."

"You know they're going to get you."
The Tangerine Bowl game against Florgiate contest for Allison, a senior, and the final one at Tech for head coach Steve Sloan

"This last game means a lot to me because it will be the last game under Sloan," he said. "He's done a lot for me in a very big sense. He helped my passing and football knowledge tremendously, and, more than anything, affected my personal life.

"I appreciate being able to play for him, and I'd like to win it for him."
Allison doesn't believe Sloan's resignation will have much an effect on the team in the Tangerine Bowl.

"I don't think it's had as much an effect on the seniors as it has the younger guys.
And, since they hired Coach (Rex) Dockery to replace Sloan, things have really simmered down. It's just not that big a

"Coach Dockery has been kind of considered as the head coach of the offense, anyway."

NOTES: Wednesday, Tech went through what Sloan called a regular Monday workout. The Raiders drilled for about an hour. . Sloan said Mike Mock and freshman John Grieve, who did the placekicking for the junior varsity this year, worked on placements because of the absence of Bill Adams. Adams is out for the rest of the season because of a knee injury suffered against Arkansas. . Sloan felt that the three-week layoff helped the Raiders get well. Aside from Adams, strong safety Alan Emerson (knee) and offensive tackle Dan Irons (knee), all the Tech players are expected to play against Florida State.

Ram Owner Seeking New 'Home' Field

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Los Angeles Rams, said Wednesday he hopes to have the National Football League team playing its home games at a different location than the Los Angeles Coliseum before the 1984 Olympic Games.

Rosenbloom, reacting to an $8 million proposal to refurbish the Coliseum for 1984 Games, said "we have no plans to move immediately but we are always considering what's best for the franchise and our team, and we're looking for alternatives."

He reportedly has been talking with operaters of Anaheim Stadium and Dodger Stadium.

"Ever since we came to Los Angeles we have been trying to get the Coliseum people to improve the place," said Rosenbloom, "to make it a more comfortable stadium for the fans. And all we've had is promises, promises.

"It's obvious that what they've been interested in all along is the Olympics.

Cowboys

DALLAS (UPI) - On the day after Christmas the Dallas Cowboys will request the pleasure of either the Chicago Bears' company or that of the Minnesota Vikings at Texas Stadium.

Actually, however, Coach Tom Landry thinks it will be less than a pleasure to see either one. Landry, as might be expected, had some nice things to say about both clubs this week elland at at Esta-Hereford.

The first-round NFC playoff gwme has been tentatively set for noon CST.

"I haven't seen Chicago that much this year," said Landry. "The Vikings seem to be suffering because of the loss of (quarterback Fran) Tarkenton, although (backup) Tommy Kramer can get hot. "Concerning Chicago, though, it is obvious that Walter Payton is a problem. If you get him on the field he is going to be tough to deal with. You don't think he is making any yards at all and you look up and he already has 100.

"A matchup between Payton and Tony Dorsett would be interesting for the fans, I guess. I just know that if Payton comes to town it is going to be interesting for everybody.

On the surface, then, it would seem that Landry would rather play the Vik-

'I wouldn't say that would be an advantage," he said. "The Vikings have been in the playoffs a lot of times and they have been in the Super Bowl as many times as anybody.

"You get them on a given day and you can't say what they are going to do.' Whichever club the Cowboys face,

Landry hopes the offensive production last Monday night against San Francisco - 42 points and an excellent night for quarterback Roger Staubach - will put his team in the right frame of mind for

"I think it gets us going in the right direction," said Landry. "Roger did throw very well and our whole offensive team played well against a defensive team that is no slouch."

Landry said he wanted to bring backup quarterback Danny White into the San Francisco game, but that every time the Cowbovs moved two touchdowns in front the 49ers narrowed the margin.

"I've been trying to get Danny in all season," said Landry. "This has been the craziest season I've ever seen. We can't even get a substitute in. And that's too bad. We wanted to see him get to White's chances of seeing action Sunday against the Denver Broncos are not all that favorable, either.

'We've been at it a long time this year," said Landry. "But we have to keep playing hard in this final game (of the regular season). When you don't play hard and worry about something, that's when you get hurt."

Oilers

HOUSTON (UPI) - For what it's worth, Houston has received an apology from the league office for a referee's mistaken call which probably cost the Oilers a win earlier in the season.

Jack Cherry, Oilers' director of public relations, disclosed Wednesday NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle had personally apologized to Coach Burn Phillips over referee Vince Jacob's call against Radford entered the game with two minutes remaining and hit the winning free throw four seconds from the end to provide the Hoosiers with one of college basketball's biggest upsets this season. Radford's free throw, after he missed on the first chance of a two-shot foul, was his only point of the game.

"This is definitely a big lift for the Indiana program," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "You've got to give a lot of credit to Knight and his players. They showed a lot of poise and confidence. Randle: Sports Most Misunderstood Figure

By The Associated Press

Christmas is a season for giving and for forgiving and it's a season that lends itself to bringing into proper focus one of the least appreciated and most misunderstood figures in

His name is Lenny Randle. Ask any sports buff who Lenny Randle is and the answer almost invariably is: "Aw, he's the guy who busted Frank Lucchesi's jaw, then got traded to the Mets."

Put the same question to the Mets, from Chairman M. Donald Grant to the lowliest clubhouse help, and the answer comes back: "He's a heck of a ball player but, more than that, a great guy.' Almost any playing member of the team would add, "When Randle came to us in April from the Texas Rangers, our team was very dispirited with Tom Seaver and Dave Kingman itching to get away. Lenny, quiet, low-key, a great producer, gave us a tremendous lift."

Ask the orphans in Queens, workers at the Child Development Center in Harlem, the lonesome paraplegic at Shea Stadium and the blind kids in Manhatten

"Lenny Randle," they all say, "he's a jewel." "I've been so fortunate myself, I want to give something back," the 28-year-old Mets infielder said. "This winter there have been a lot of chances to go to fancy banque

"I'll bring my bongos," he promised. "I've been playing the bongos for 16 years. Maybe I can teach the kids."

Randle was pictured as a hot-tempered ogre last spring when, in a fit of anger over losing his Rangers' second base job to rookie Bump Wills, he struck Lucchesi, the 48-year-

Randle apologized. "I had never done anything the that tofore in my life. It was totally against my maint. I don't must Randle set about making amends, as best he knew how. He threw himself wholeheartedly into his hapetical career, batting over .300 and proving an inspirational as well as a batting over .300 and proving an inspirational as well as a physical force.

All the time, installment payments of his fine and legal fees put a heavy drain on his resources. Through other channels, the true story of Lenny Randle surfaced, madding some light on the tensions leading to his uncharacteristic outburst in Orlando, Fla., in the spring.

Randle is one of seven children. His younger brother, Herman, a superb all-around athlete, developed kidney trouble. His father, a Long Beach, Calif., boilermaker, surrendered one of his own kidneys in a delicate operation to give the younger Randle a chance to live. The mother had to work to keep food on the table.

"My father is an amazing man, my brother showed me courage I had never seen before," Randle said. "I decided that they would be examples of my drive and sacrifice."

Last month Randle took a trip to Israel. He was there when President Anwar Sadat made his historic journey. Both stood before the Wailing Wall on the same day.

"I had seen the Cecil B. DeMille movies, 'Ben Hur' and 'The Robe.' I had seen 'Jesus Christ — Superstar' on the stage," he said. "I had read the Bible extensively, the tribulations of David and Solomon. I thought some of their trials. lations of David and Solomon. I thought some of their trials

Whalers Topple Soviets 7-2

The New England Whalers caught the Soviet Union squad at the right time the very beginning of its 10-game tour of the World Hockey Association.

'The Soviet team seemed nervous to me," said New England Coach Harry Neale, whose Whalers easily beat the So viets 7-2 Wednesday night in Hartford,

"It was their first taste of international competition," observed Neale. "But they started to show some good things in the third period and I think that once they get a few more games under their belts they're going to cause some problems for our WHA brethren.'

The Whalers took a 3-1 lead in the first period and broke it open with three more goals in the second period, two of them by Larry Pleau.

In another international contest, the Edmonton Oilers whipped the touring team from Czechoslovahia 6-1. In the onother WHA game, the Caincinnati tingers beat the Indianapolis Racers 3-1.

"Our team couldn't seem to adapt to the North American style of play," said Soviet Coach Boris Magorov. "But once we play two or three games, I think we will be all right."

The goals by Pleau were his 10th and 11th of the season. The first came on a short shot off a crossing pass from Jack Carlson, the second on a backhand shot from outside the crease which beat Soviet goalie Mikhail Vasilenok to make the score 5-1.

George Lyle, Mike Rogers, Mike Antonovich, Dave Keon and Mark Howe scored the other goals for New England, while defenseman Alexander Biljaletdinov got both goals for the Soviets.

Charlie O. Produced Many Great Rivalries

By The Associated Press
Charles O. Finley, one of baseball's greatest showmen, produced some of baseball's greatest rivalries. There was Finley against Bowie Kuhn, Finley Finley against Bowle Russ, against any of a dozen mangers, or Finley

But above all, there was Finley against the establishment which laughed at the idea of colored bases, colored baseballs and colored uniforms. He was opposed to people who doubted his sanity because sheep once grazed in a pasture behind his left-field fence in Kansas City or because he used a robot shaped like Bugs Bunny to deliver baseballs to the umpires.

When he bought a mule as a mascot and named it after himself, people made the obvious snide remarks about the similarities. When he signed Olympic sprint-er Herb Washington to be his pinch run-ner for a season, people said, "What had more tricks up his sleeve.

But they all knew that the showman

"On this ball club, nothing surprises, you," pitcher Blue Moon Odom once you," pitcher Blue Moon Odom once said. "We go out and play ball and win re-gardless. A lot of other ball clubs might not produce the way we do.'

No other club fought the way the A's did. Whether the cause celebre was Finley's firing of Ken Harrelson or Mike Andrews, his constant bickering with pitcher Vida Blue or the swinging door on the ager's office, there was always something going on.

It came to be expected. After the A's had won their second straight World Sries title, there was another routine up-roar. The championship rings Finley had promised materialized at spring training without diamonds in the center.

"Heck. My high school ring's better," one of the A's muttered.

Reggie Jackson thought differently. He stood in Mesa, Ariz. and said with glee, "I can tell we're going to win it again this year. The dissension's there already."

And of course, Jackson was right, because the A's went out and won it all again. Despite the tumult, despite the carnival atmosphere, the A's won.

"He's just lucky he has guys on this club that love to win," Sal Bando once said. "These guys have got backbones. They've got the guts to win."

And Finley had the guts to stand up for whatever he thought was right — however lonely that stance might have been. Whether it was through a midnight phone call to a PR man, a manager or an owner, the man made his point: stay on the ball or pack your bags.

Some people will tell you the managers never unpacked — he hired and fired two :nanagers twice. Some will say his managers made reservations at a rest home fore the ink was dry on their contracts.

That's simply because of Finley's philosophy: "It is my ball club, my money, and I don't appreciate anyone telling me how to spend my money to run my business. As long as I own this ball club, I will operate it my way."

Finley spent a major portion of his time repeating that statement to Kuhn. ts to Kuhn's office ous, but they never occurred because the two men missed each other.
They happened because of Finley's propensity for selling players, or for giv-ing them bonuses when Kuhn said he wasn't supposed to, or for trying to kick them off the team when they made two crucial errors in a World Series game. That's what happened to Mike Andrews, whose misplays helped the Mets beat the A's in Game 2 of the 1973 Series.

"The beauty of being 100 percent owner is you don't have to consult a board of directors or stockholders to put your inspirations into practice," he once said.

Kuhn, quite simply, disagreed with that. So Finley branded him "the village idiot" in one of his kinder statements.

To Finley's way of thinking, things like that were just an example of the determi-nation that had gotten him where he was. In 1946, he entered a hospital for what turned out to be a 27-month battle with tuberculosis. And his defiant struggle to overcome the illness illustrates his unwillingness to give in on any point. "If I couldn't hold down a meal, I immediately ordered another," he recalled. 'Sometimes, I had to reorder twice. I had the sweats about three times a day and tried to make a game of it.

"I'd whisk the sweat off my forehead with a forefinger and snap it at the wall, trying to make a big circle. People said I was going to die, but one day, when I didn't wake up sweating at the usual time, I knew I had it licked." body. "I may be outsmarted, but nobody outhustles me," he said. And he never missed an opportunity to

Watson's Rebuilding Program Ran 279 Days

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Bobby Watson, a Vietnam veteran who won five Purple Hearts with the Army's 101st Airborne Division, earned just one victory for Evansville's Purple Aces before the tragic air crash that killed him and all 14 of his players.

Exactly one week before Tuesday's flaming, metal-wrenching crash in the rain and dense fog near Evansville's Dress Regional Airport, the Aces beat Pittsburgh 90-83. It gave Watson, in first season as Evansville basketball coach, his first-and only-major college

"It was great, just great," the 34-year-old Watson said at that time. "There's nothing greater (than your first victory). I've been involved in a lot of wins, but few sweeter than that one.

A native of Bethel Park, Pa., Watson was head coach for two years at Ferrum Junior College, where his teams compiled a record of 61-8. He left Ferrum in 1973 to become associate coach at Wake Forest and then assistant coach at Oral Roberts University in 1974.

Evansville had just moved up to NCAA Division I status this year, but Watson was not the first choice to succeed the legendary Arad McCutchan, who retired after 31 years and five Division II national championships. Jerry Sloan, a former star with Evansville and the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association, originally accepted the job but backed out shortly afterward.

So Watson took over and began the difficult task of transforming the perennial small college power into a major con-

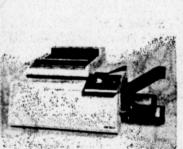

The Aces were 1-3, losing to Western Kentucky, DePaul and, last Saturday, to seventh-ranked Indiana State, a traditional rival.

It was after that game—his final game—that Watson talked of courage.
"One thing we lacked early (in the 102-76 loss to Indiana State) is something I call courage on the road," he said. "By courage I mean poise and patience. Some of our players have it, but we don't have it overall as a teeam.'

"Courage is something that helps you play fundamental basketball away from

"But I'm not faulting the kids for that. They never quit. The responsibility for that courage and for every loss is on my shoulders as a coach.'

"All I can say is that two years from

You get more work out of your copier by spending less time with the originals.

The people who manufacture copiers rate the speed of their machines by how fast they make many copies from one original. But, the people who use those machines, don't use them that way at all! Most people copy several originals at a time. The result is there's a big difference between "rated" time and "real" time. That difference is the time wasted positioning originals, opening and closing covers, pushing buttons, waiting for each copy cycle to complete, etc., etc.

The new Savin 780 plain paper copier lives up to its rating of 20 copies per minute. It gets it out as fast as you can get it in. Our machine has a document feed that automatically positions and transports each original through the copier. There are no buttons to keep pushing, no covers to keep opening and closing - no shuffling of papers. The Xerox 3100 "rated" at 20 copies per minute, the Xerox 4000 "rated" at 45 copies per minute and the Xerox 3600 "rated" at 60 copies per minute in "real" terms will on the average, copy only 5 different originals in a minute-and that's the real story on "real" time!

Trade up to the new Savin 780, today. You'll not only get more for your money-you'll spend much less to do it.

BUSINESS COPY PRODUCTS

Watson's rebuilding project lasted 279 days, but people here were impressed with the things he accomplished.

"He did a marvelous job in such a short time,"said McCutchan. "He got it going in a way it had to. It's horrible what hap-

Watson was quoted as saying earlier this fall that "as a group, it (the team) is as fine a nucleus as we could have brought in for the coming years." Off the record, he told reporters that he'd be satisfied with a .500 mark this year.

"We're improving, and I think we'll were improve."

Watson was a basketball and baseball star in high school. He accepted a basketball scholarship to Virgiana Military Institute and helped the 1964 team win the Southern Conference championship and a trip to the NCAA touranment.

Watson and his wife, Deidra, would have celebrated their wedding anniversary on Wednesday.

No Riot-Only Rout-As Lakers Invade Houston

The security force at the Summit could have handled a riot, but fortunately, all it had to do was watch the Los Angeles Lakers routinely beat the Houston Rockets 113-91.

Wednesday night's National Basketball Association game had been viewed as a potential slugfest as a result of an incident in Los Angeles last Friday when the Lakers' Kermit Washington decked Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich with a punch so hard it fractured the Rocket forward's nose, jaw and skull and caused Lakers Coach Jerry West did not share Abdul-Jabbar's calmness.

"I was apprehensive before the game," West said. "But the fans and the Houston organization are to be congratulated for their understanding of an unfortunate situation

Los Angeles turned back rallies in both halves and delighted in the performance of Adrian Dantley, playing his first game as a Laker.

Dantley, obtained in a trade with Indiana to fill in for Washington, who has been suspended for at least 60 days by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien, scored 21 points and grabbed 12 rebounds.

"I've been responding to challenges all my life," said Dantley of the unusual circumstances surrounding his debut. "This was just another one."

Los Angeles led 45-28 early in the second quarter before Houston narrowed the gap to 57-53 at halftime. The Lakers built up a 15-point bulge at 68-53 with 4:59 left in the third period but Houston cut that margin to 86-83 early in the fourth quarter. Los Angeles then outscored Houston 19-2 to take solid control in the waning minutes.

Kevin Porter's Presence Aids New Jersey Nets

By The Associated Press Kevin Porter has been playing brilliant-ly since coming to the New Jersey Nets from Detroit last month.

The 6-foot playmaker, who quarterbacked the Washington Bullets to a 60-22 record in 1975, had been wallowing on the bench of the talent-laden Pistons after losing his starting job to Eric Money last year. He was not happy and had his differences with coach Herb Brown, so he was happy with the trade that sent him to the Nets along with forward Howard Porter in exchange for guard Al Skinner and a pair of second-round draft

He set a team record with 20 assists against San Antonio last week, the most by any player in the league this year, and accounted for 64 points Sunday -scoring 30 and handing out 17 assists—as the Nets beat Washington. He currently ranks second in the league in assists with a 9.1 average and threatens No. 1 John Lucas of Houston, 10.5.

The Nets, with Porter, are not as weak a team as their record would indicate. Porter runs a fast break as well as anyone in the league. High scoring Bernard King is a brilliant rookie, Darnell Hillman is a competent big forward and center George Johnson is a first-rate shot-blocker and rebounder, although inconsistent. Bob Carrington, a 6-foot-6 forward in college, is being tested as the big guard and has shown signs of taking to the switch

Add decent reserves like Tim Bassett, Howard Porter and Jan van Breda Kolff, plus new arrivals Louie Nelson and Ed Jordan, and you have a team which should win a respectable number of games before the end of the season.

There has also been good news for the Nets on the financial front. Owner Roy Boe says he's been able to get a loan of more than $1 million from a New Jersey bank, he's holding talks with the New York Knicks over a way to settle the $7.2 million in indemnities which the Nets owe, and he's also been talking with the head of a New Jersey transport company who is interested in buying into the

Why did the Indiana Pacers trade Adrian Dantley?

Because they saw a chance to unload his salary and at the same time get Jim Edwards, a 22-year-old, 7-foot-1 center whom they feel they can build around.

Everything in this business, a lot of times, is a gamble, but we feel like it's a pretty good gamble." said Pacers coach-general manager Bobby Leonard. Dantley, obtained in the off-season in the trade which sent Billy Knight, the third-leading scorer in the league this season with a 26.5-point average. But Edwards looked good filling in for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar this year, and there are very few good big centers around.

"I can't recall a team being a contender, getting in the playoffs, whatever, without a big center," said Leonard. 'Maybe we give up a little bit at forward, but it's easier to get a forward than it is a 7-1 center.

"We just felt this was the time to take the shot because it just didn't look like anything was down the road. I don't see a good big center coming out of college until 1980. I can't wait that long."

It's a trade that should benefit all concerned. Dantley gets to play for a winner, and playing as Abdul-Jabbar's backup man should add years to Dave Robisch's career. Edwards, meanwhile, will get the chance to start that he earned the past two months, and Earl Tatum should benefit from added playing time he'll be getting with the Pacers.

With all the complaining folks have been doing about officiating these days, it was refreshing to hear Boston coach Tommy Heinsohn praise first-year referee Bernie Fryer last week .-

With 10 seconds left in overtime at Madison Square Garden and the New York Knicks leading 120-119, Fryer called a traveling violation against the Knicks' Butch Beard, who took a couple of steps while attempting to pass the ball inbounds-something you cannot do after a timeout has moved the ball from under the basket to midcourt.

"It was a gutsy call, especially for a rookie referee and at a time like that," said Heinsohn. "He deserves a lot of credit for having the guts to make that call.

The Celtics missed their last chance at scoring and the Knicks won anyway, but Fryer should indeed be commended for his thorough knowledge of the rulebook and his confidence in making the unusual call, particularly since it was against the home team at a crucial point of a hardfought game.

And then there was the comment of Ted Turner, colorful owner of the pennypinching Atlanta Hawks, in the wake of the Kermit Washington fight.

"I just hope they don't beat our guys up," said Turner. "We can't afford to pay the doctor bills."

Sloan Gets $45,000 Pact

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - State College Board officials said Wednesday Steve Sloan would earn $45,000 an nually under his four-year contract as the Mississippi Rebels' new football coach and assistant athletic director.

The trustees' Athletic Committee voted Wednesday to formally ratify Sloan's hiring and full board approval was expected today.

Sloan, former Texas Tech coach succeeds Ken Cooper, who resigned two weeks ago under alumni pressure after a 19-25 record in four seasons at Ole Miss.

Board members said officials had agreed to buy up the remaining two years of Cooper's contract, which provided $33,705 annually.

Sloan said at the formal announcement of his hiring that his salary would be between $40,000 and $45,-000. His full earnings package, including fringe benefits and television proceeds, reportedly will amount to $75,-000 to $100,000 a year.

The Athletic Committee also approved a renewal of the contract of Southen Mississippi coach Bobby Collins and renewed the contract of Roland H. Dale, the school's athletic NEW YORK (AP) - Seldom has a television show drawn as much negative reaction, both before and after its airing, as did CBS's presentation of the Heisman Trophy Dinner last Thursday. Football coaches, fans and writers were outraged that the prestigious award was turned into an excuse for an inane variety show. Several writers refused to cast their bal-

The show was less than a smash in the ratings. It drew a 15.6 rating-meaning 15.6 percent of all TV sets in the nation were tuned in-and a 27 share-meaning 27 percent of sets in use were tuned to CBS. Those numbers gave the Heisman show a virtual tie with ABC's "Redd Foxx Show" but left it far behind NBC's TV movie "Class of '65" which got a 24.7 rating and 41 share.

It is not necessarily a bad idea to present the Heisman on national television. It is also not such a bad idea to have additional awards honoring players at the less glamorous positions. But must we have Connie Stevens and Leslie Uggams singing football songs and a chorus line prancing about and an endless series of lame jokes and chatter?

Fault for this tasteless endeavor lies with CBS, which bought and aired the show, and Trans World International, which conceived and packaged it.

Heisman Show Not Hit

But the real fault belongs to the Down-town Athletic Club, which sold the prestige that the award had built up over the years for big bucks. CBS has the option of doing the show again next year but hasn't decided if it will or not.

When John Cappelletti won the Heisman in 1973, he gave a memorable acceptance speech in which he dedicated the award to his younger brother, Joey, who was dying of leukemia. It was an incredibly touching moment, one that had hardened writers in tears.

That moment would not have been possible this year. We get the picture of Cap-pelletti making this intensely moving tribute and through his tears he sees a director just off camera motioning with his hands and whispering, "Okay, John, that's fine, uh, we're running a little late.

Satra, that mysterious international trading company that turned up a year ago in the middle of the battle for television rights to the 1980 Olympics, has resurfaced.

When last heard from, Satra, which felt it had a binding contract with the Soviets for rights to the Games, was headed for the courts with a bundle of lawsuits, claiming NBC and the International Olympic Committee had deprived it of its just rights. Now the matter has been set-tled out of court and Satra finds itself in pretty good shape. By agreement with NBC, the IOC and the Soviet Oranizing Committee, Satra has been awarded virtually all non-live broadcast rights to the Moscow Games.

They include theater TV, video cassettes and a host of other ancillary rights. If the Games generate as much interest as some think they will, Satra could make a killing. "We consider this a successful conclusion to a very vigorously contended law-suit," says Satra attorney Michael Lasher. "We are gambling on the business cli-mate in 1980 and, frankly, it's not much of a gamble. Satra will get film of the entire Olympics, film shown on NBC and film not shown anywhere. The company, whose film division has been the largest distributor of Soviet-made films over the past 25 years, plans to package Olympic coverage in a variety of ways and market it here

Ancillary rights to an event like this are generally considered "gravy" for the network that has them. NBC, which apparently felt Satra had enough claim to the Games to make a solid case in court, gave up its "gravy" in return for Satra's dropping all claim to live broadcast rights.

Men Recall Collapse Of Bridge

POINT PLEASANT, W.Va. (AP) —
Frank Wamsley and Paul Scott crossed paths only once, 10 years ago, but their lives are forever linked by a shared hor-

The memories of their awful agonies come back each Dec. 15.

Today is the 10th anniversary of the col-lapse of the Silver Bridge. More than 50 people were pitched into the icy Ohio River when the old suspension bridge collapsed - 46 were killed.

Wamsley and Scott were among the handful of survivors.

"I was with a friend and we were bringing a load of limestone across the bridge from Ohio," said Warnsley, a tall, thin man who now manages a hay farm just outside Point Pleasant.

We were just about in the middle of the bridge and I was looking up the river when my friend started yelling that the bridge was breaking up.

"There was something in his voice that scared me and I jerked around just in time to see the bridge bending up towards the sky. Then, it started tilting over to one side," he said.

"The next thing I remember was the truck hitting the water. My friend was gone — I don't know whether he jumped or was thrown out - and everything was dark and cold. When the truck reached the bottom of the river, the cab was on its side. Everything was pitch black and water was seeping in fast. I couldn't find a way to get out.'

Scott, a railroad conductor who lives just upriver at Middleport, Ohio, remembers the truck with the load of limestone.

"I was on my way back from Institute, W.Va., with two railroad buddies," Scott said. "We were stuck in a long line of traffic on the middle of the bridge and that big truck passed us going the other

'That's about the time I noticed that the bridge was shaking. The shaking got worse and one of my friends asked me if I thought the bridge might cave in. I told him I didn't think so, but the next minute I saw the upper side break loose."

"But I jumped out when I saw the bridge start to break up," he said. "I started to run like hell for the West Virginia side but it was too late: I grabb railing and held on for dear life as the bridge tilted over."

He went down with the bridge and sank beneath the surface of the river, who Wamsley was clawing at the door of the submerged truck.

Wamsley remembers: "I just couldn't find a way out and then, suddenly, there was a crash as a steel bridge beam hit the cab. It knocked a hole in the cab and I squeezed out. The water was freezing cold ... I must have been in 50 feet of water at the time."

Wamsley, 37, kicked up toward the sur-

"I lost my breath before I reached the top," he recalled. "The water was full of mud and sticks and stuff, and I swal-lowed quite a bit before I finally reached the top and got my breath back.

"Then I grabbed a bale of stuff that came floating by. I could hear people screaming all around me as the current took me downstream."

Scott, meanwhile, was clinging to a piece of lumber.

"I saw this guy holding onto a bale of rayon that had come out of a ruptured tractor-trailer," said Scott, 62. "I was lonesome out there by myself so I swam over to him and we held onto that bale until they picked us up."

Scott's face was cut up and the tendons were severed in his right hand where he had gripped the bridge railing.

Wamsley was less fortunate. "When "We almost starved," he said. "We got $60 every other week. Some people say I should have sued but it's pretty hard to get anything from the state."

Scott says he hardly ever thinks of the incident but he does throw a little party each Dec. 15 to celebrate his gift of life. "By all rights I should have been dead," he said.

Students May Avoid Tax Withholding

WASHINGTON (AP) - The gove ment is reminding full-time students that they may be able to avoid having income tax withheld from their wages. The three-year-old policy affects main-ly students with only summer or part-time tobs.

The Internal Revenue Service said students who had no liability for income tax in 1977 and do not expect to owe taxes for 1978 qualify for an exemption from in-come tax withholding.

In general, a single student earning less than $2,950 would owe no income tax.

To claim an exemption from withholding, the IRS advises students to pick up a copy of Form W-4 at an IRS office and file it with their employers.

Equitable Savings will give you information on tax saving retirement plans.

At Equitable Savings, we'd like to help you get ready for retirement with one of our tax deferred retirement accounts called I.R.A. (Individual Retirement Account) or Keogh. They're a great way to set aside a part of your income for retirement every year without paying taxes on it until you retire. By then, you'll likely be in a lower tax bracket.

If you're employed but not covered by a qualified retirement plan, I.R.A. allows an annual deposit up to $1500 or 15% of your income, whichever is less. Savings are fully tax deductible, and earnings compound tax deferred until distributed.

If you're self-employed, Keogh offers the same benefits and allows an annual contribution up to $7500 or 15% of your income, whichever is less.

If you have completed a qualifying program, I.R.A. Rollover is designed to roll your lump-sum distribution over into an I.R.A., to receive the tax advantage.

We'll help you get where you want to be. OUITABLE SAVINGS

Most Latin American Congresses Lack Power

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) - Behind an iron fence, in a square block of impeccable gardens, stands the colonnaded Chilean National Congress — a monument to a dream that ended in bloodshed in September 1973.

A government ministry functions there now in halls once filled with free political debate. The Congress is closed.

Brazil has a soaring, modernistic Congress building designed by the renowned architect Oscar Niemeyer in the hinterland capital of Brasilia. It houses what is little more than a debating forum.

President Jorge Videla says he wants a system in Argentina that will end the rotation between civilian and military rule. A high government source said the basic problem is that for the past 60 years Argentina has not had a broad political party of the center conservative line. He suggested that cooperation between the military and civilian politicians could bring this about before the military gives up power this time.

Chile's extreme right-wing junta says it wants to mold an entirely new political structure. Fraser Running Into Trouble legislation.

By United Press International John Malcolm Fraser entered Parliament at the age of 25 and worked at nothing else for the next 20 years until in 1975 he achieved his goal of becoming Australia's prime minister.

Fraser is tough, a man viewed by his political opponents as a throwback to the old born-to-rule English politician of the last century.

That toughness and a lack of flamboyance, plus an undeniable skill at political in-fighting, appealed to Australian voters two years ago and they elected the man who grew up believing that his destiny was to become prime minister.

Suddenly, the 47-year-old Fraser is finding himself in an uphill battle to hold on to his job.

He led a victorious army of Liberal-National Country Party coalition members to Canberra in December of 1975 after annihilating the Labor government of Gough Whitlam at the polls. But he is finding the going a lot rougher this time and faces political oblivion if he loses the general election he called for Dec. 10.

Because of his toughness, Fraser is not running scared. His aloof, unyielding character allows no room for being frightened. But the worry signs are there. particularly since he called the election to gain time for his government's economic policies to take hold.

When Fraser was elected two years ago, Australian voters decided their country needed strong leadership and a well-disciplined government. They got all that, but not the speedy solutions to Australia's troubles they had expected in the

Fraser is a millionaire and a patrician member of Australian society. His wife, Tamara, comes from an equally blueblooded background and does not agree that her husband is the humorless, cold man many others see and fear

Fraser's father inherited his wealth and handed down the family property in the lush western district of the state of Victoria to his son.

He is a big man, as imposing physically as Whitlam, his arch foe. He was educated at Melbourne Grammar School and Oxford University. Fraser and his wife have two sons and two daughters, all at private schools.

Perhaps he will remain the squire of Canberra after the Dec. 10 elections. The voters will decide that. But if he does, it will be with a much stronger opposition

Malcolm Fraser will need all his ingrained strength and selfcontrol to keep his followers - and his country - in or-

President Augusto Pinochet claims irresponsibility of political parties brought about Allende's election and the subsequent military coup. All parties now are outlawed, and Pinochet says that in the new Chile they will be nothing more than means to express opinions.

An eight-member constitutional commission is working on a constitution to replace that which had served Chile since 1925, but Pinochet has already told the commission he wants a unicameral body to open in 1980, with all the members at first appointed by the junta and beginning in 1985 two-thirds of them elected.

He has spoken of achieving authentic democracy by representation from all sectors of the population, plus some kind of continuing military influence. He says there must be means to assure that only the most capable people win elections.

Self-censorship of the Chilean press hampers public debate of the proposals, but there is considerable underground dismay and opposition. Eduardo Frei, a Christian Democrat who was president in 1964-1970, said recently that a one-house legislature better serves an authoritiian state, whether of the left or right. He suggested that Chile should keep its 1925 constitution with changes such as provision for run-off presidential elections when no candidate gets a majority and rules on party disciplines in Congress to help assure the passage of legislation.

Among the Latin American congresses controlled by the executive branch, Mexico and Brazil have experienced slight stirrings for more representative govern-

The Mexican House of Representatives is made up of 195 Institutional Revolutionary members and 42 from three tiny opposition groups. President Jose Lopez Portillo recently sent Congress a bill to increase minority representation by raising the total number of seats to 400 with 100 guaranteed for the opposition parties.

In Brazil, the opposition has called for constituent assembly to rewrite the constitution. The government said no but has called a series of meetings around the country to hear suggestions for revamping the regime.

New York SST Flights Quieter Than Capital's

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Federal Aviation Administration says reduced weight and special flight techniques are making Concorde supersonic transport lights at New York quieter than similar SST landings and takeoffs at Washington.

A simple comparison of noise levels at the two airports can be misleading, the FAA says, because monitoring points used at New York's Kennedy airport during November were different from those used for a year-long test at Washington's Dulles Airport.

But a spokesman for the agency says the measurements taken at Kennedy probably would have been slightly lower than those from Dulles even if the same relative monitoring sites had been used because the Concorde takes off with less fuel in New York and makes a sharp turn to take it away from heavily populated ing Kennedy. The older 707s are among the noisiest in the airline fleet.

The initial noise report on routine Concorde flights to New York, which started Nov. 22, was released this week.

A total 103 complaints about Concorde noise were received during the nine-day period covered by the report, compared to 135 complaints about noise from subsonic aircraft, the FAA said.

Air France and British Airways started York with London and Paris after winning a protracted court battle against an SST ban imposed by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

The FAA said it measures Concorde noise in seven communities surrounding Kennedy, some as far as five miles from the airport. By contrast, SST measurements at the rural Dulles airport are taken 1.1 miles from the touchdown point and 3.9 miles from the point where take-

Texas High Court Tells. Insurance Firm To Pay

AUSTIN (AP) - One or more Lloyds of London insurers must pay a Dallas auction gallery $50,523 for antiques and art objects stolen in a burglary, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

Without writing a new opinion, the court upheld decisions of a Dallas trial court and the Dallas Court of Civil Ap-

Stuart James Mew and other subscribing underwriters of Lloyds contested the amount obtained by JC Galleries.

During the trial, the British insurers lawyer did not object to JC's use of a computer printout as evidence of the objects taken and the amount of the loss. But on appeal, they contended that JC had failed to show why the evidence should fall under the business records exception to the hearsay rule.

The Lloyds insurers also said there was no evidence of actual cash value, which they defined as the price for which the items could sell at the time and place stolen. They sought to exclude the purchase price as evidence

The court of civil appeals said the insurers could not allow the use of the computer records as evidence in the trial then turn around and attack it on appeal. It also said purchase price of goods was properly allowed as evidence of value. saying the Texas Supreme Court had "stated the rule that any evidence reasonably tending to show actual cash value, including the purchase price, could we ago have ustaided, the glore of national had dimmed. The flow, Sun hityang historia as Church soldiers on, cultivalling a low missing its prospering business efforts, and if a barry of insentionalism.

By DAVE GOLDBERG NEW YORK (AP) — On mornings

when the weather is good, a portly young man stands on Fifth Avenue playing a sousaphone and hawking The News World, the daily newspaper financed by Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

Most of the time, he draws a curious look or or two, the same look passershy look or or two; the same look passersby give the crippled beggar with the rabbit, the sidewalk artists or the man wearing the sandwich boards promoting husband

The Moonies have blended into the New York scenery.

Few sects have received more attention or evoked deeper hostility than the one founded by the South Korean evangelist. And few have been the subject of so many investigations, most of them triggered by the openly political activi-ties of church members.

In 1976, Moonies were the best-publicized sect in America, spreading their doctrine of the coming of the Messiah and the Kingdom of God, preaching on street corners and at big rallies in New York and Washington and, as opponents sted, alienating impres

As 1977 ends, less is heard of the sect's ive recruiting. The Unification Church is midway in its two-year drive to evangelize America, but there's no indication that its message has caught on with more than a tiny fraction of Americans. Church officials put the membership at 30,000 (which is fewer than many an obscure denomination's), and those who have studied the movement say there may be no more than 3,000 hard-

But if the Unification Church has yet to make a significant impact as a religion, it's made progress in other ways in part because the failure of a mass response from American youth has quieted the most serious apprehensions.

The church has won court fights against deprogrammers who sought to reconvert young members of the move-ment. And if church recruiters haven't turned every kid on the block into a Moonie, they've turned a large contingent into street vendors of candy and flowers and put others to work in church-affiliated businesses that generated $24 million in profits last year.

Like the young man with the sousaphone, the Moonies are blending in.

"We certainly feel more accepted than we were," says Neil Albert Salonen, 33year-old head of the Unification Church of America. "I think many people have come to believe the church is not as threatening as it might have appeared when they first became aware of it."

A young man once involved in attempting to draw Moonies away from the movement puts it this way: "I just don't care much any more. If someone feels strongly enough about the church to join it, that's his problem."

That is not to say the Unification Church has left all of its troubles behind. It is still under investigation by a Congressional subcommittee, by the Immilocal tax boards. The Internal Revenue Service is said to be inquiring into its tax

The church is still accused of brainwashing young men and women and estranging them from their families; of subjecting them to a totalitarian lifestyle, and of filling them with alien dogmas. Some of the investigations center on allegations that Moon is an agent of the South Korean Central Intelligence Agen-

Finding a Moonie in a big city today takes more work than it would have in the spring and summer of 1976, when they were busy promoting rallies at Yankee Stadium and the Washington Monument. The best place to spot them is suburban shopping centers; in northeast Pennsylvania or Minnesota or college communities like Cambridge, Berkeley or Lansing.

The church is now spending a lot of time on its business enterprises. It runs, for example, a small tuna-fishing fleet in Gloucester, Mass., a jewelry store in New York and the daily newspaper, The News World, that members hawk for a dime on New York streets. It is seeking accreditation for the Unification Theological Seminary in Barrytown, N.Y., about 100 miles north of New York City.

It is also continuing to accumulate property — downtown buildings for headquarters, rural farmland for training centers and schools. In New York, it owns the big old New Yorker Hotel, for use as a dormitory, and national headquarters is in what used to be the Columbia University Club.

The Rev. Moon himself has an estate in Tarrytown, N.Y.

Northern California is the most active commercial front. The church-affiliated International Exchange Enterprises Inc. in San Francisco operates International Exchange Maintenance, a cleaning firm. Its contracts include one with the federal government to clean rugs in federal office buildings in Monterey, Solano, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Clara and San Mateo counties; at Mather, McClelland and Travis air force bases; the FBI office in Sacramento and the offices of two Democratic congressmen from Califor-nia, John E. Moss and Robert Leggett. National leaders maintain that the Califorms businesses are owned by individual church members, not by the church.

They contend that there is less overall control of the movement from church headquarters than is generally assumed. But they acknowledge that most of the profits form California are turned over to the church, if not directly, then as tithes paid, they often contribute their salaries to the church. They often work unpaid overtime.

Jeffrey Scales, for example, is an ex-Moonie who was manager of Aladdin's delicatessen in Oakland. He says he put in 110 to 120 hours a week at the job, and was paid for 40. So were a lot of others at the delicatessen who worked even longer

Most students of the movement agree that the biggest profits come from street sales. Salonen recalls that when the church first got into solicitation sales, he was told that his people couldn't clear more than $15 a day. He estimates that they now take in $40 to $60, and some are said to make as much as $200.

The church also has done well legally, often with the support of groups like the American Civil Liberties Union. In September, a California appeals court ruled that parents have no right to claim custody of their grown children if the children object. That decision tossed out a lower court ruling that turned over five Moonies to their parents; and while four of the five subsec ently left the church on their own, the effect has been to virtually end deprogramming efforts.

The church continues to skirmish with the federal government, however.

Moon's chief aide and translator, Col. Bo Hi Pak, was once the Korean military attache in Washington. And there have been allegations linking both Moon and Pak with South Korean President Park Chung-hee. Nor has the church been

"I think many people have come to believe the church is not as threatening as it might have appeared when they first became aware of it."

A subcommittee of the House International Relations Committee headed by Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., is seeking to determine if the church's political lobbying was aimed at furthering the objectives of the South Korean government. Among other things, it is looking into whether South Korean funds are being used by the Moonies.

helped by the investigation of Tongsun Park, the South Korean businessman implicated in influence buying among members of Congress. But church officials insist they are independent of Tongsun Park or any Korean government influence and denounce the investigation as a fishing expedition.

About 600 foreign church members - many Japanese or Korean - are under deportation orders from the Immigration and Naturalization Service for overstaying their visas or falsifying information on visa applications. In many cases, the Immigration Service found Moonies had applied for entry as students of religion but had spent most of their time peddling flowers on the street.

Finally, there is the investigation by the IRS. The agency never officially con-firms such investigations, and church officials won't talk directly about it. But highly placed church sources confirm that an inquiry is underway.

One source of contention between the Moonies and the IRS is the politics of the church. Some church members maintain that the prayer vigils staged on behalf of Richard Nixon during the Watergate impeachment process were simply that — prayer vigils designed to bring the coun-try together. But Salonen concedes: "We supported Nixon. It wasn't orchestrated as support for Nixon, but it had that effect."

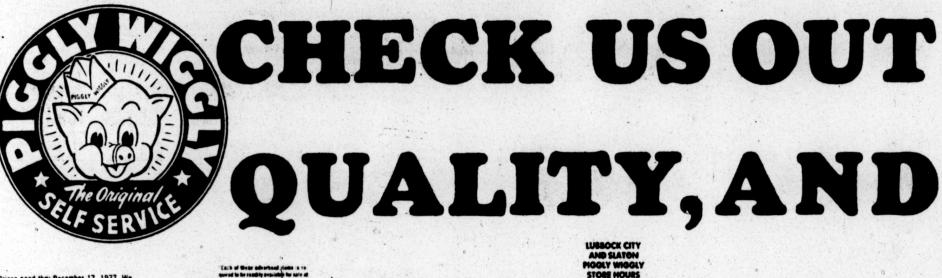

church maintains a force on Capitol Hill - a force church officials are sensitive about calling a lobby. They say the resident Moonies simply explain the church's position to members of Congress. It's particularly useful at a time when many arms of the federal government are lined up against them.

Despite its problems, the movement is optimistic about its future.

'Historically in this country there's been a tradition of new religious movements and groups undergoing a period of rejection and semi-persecution," Salonen

Salonen says a low profile is the church's normal state. It hasn't tried to stage big rallies, as in 1976, but is circulating an hour-long promotional special for which it has bought television time.

The church also is reassessing its techniques, particularly the hard sell, and concedes that excess zeal of young adherents often rubbed people the wrong way.

PRINCETON, W.Va. (AP) - Ken and Louise Conner consider themselves to be on a holy mission. Jaime Sheeran feels she's found God. They are on a spiritual

Jaime Sheeran is the director of Sun fyung Moon's Unification Church in West Virginia and lives at the church center in Huntington. People like Ken and Louise Conner, who are working to draw people away from the church, are

"We didn't know anything about the Moonies until our son was brainwashed them in California," says Conner, "He was entrapped last fall and we finally got him out last spring."

Louise Conner sits beside her husband, listening to him and toying nervously with a stack of books and pamphlets on the subject of cultism in America.

Ken Conner Jr., one of the couple's six children, was 21 and a third-year student at West Virginia University in Morgantown when he joined the Church. He had taken a semester off for a Bicentennial bicycle trip across the country and had planned to come back to school in January, 1977.

'That's when he ran into the Moonies," Conner says. "The boy was hypnotized. He didn't even know what he was

The Conners said they began to get suspicious when their son refused to come home. "He told us he was going on a weekend retreat with these people Well, the retreat was on a farm near Boonville, Calif., and it lasted for seven weeks," says Conner, a sales representative. "When we finally found out what he'd gotten himself into we went to my 29-year-old nephew from San Francisco and, by golly, they almost got him, too.

"My nephew spent a weekend on the farm and called me. He said, 'Uncle Ken, if you ever want to see your son again you'd better come out here and

The Conners headed for California attempted to abduct their son.
"But we botched it," Conner so

"But we botched it," Conner says.
"And after that, we didn't hear from him for months. Then, last spring he contacted an old girl friend and she later called and told us he was staying at the Moonie Center in Columbus, Ohio."

The Conners sought the aid of Ted Patrick, one of the best-known deprogrammers. Conner and two friends then snatched Ken Jr. and took him to a motel where they said Patrick "deprogrammed" him for three days.

Conner says his son was furious when he was abducted "He'd look at me as if he could kill me. But after those three days he suddenly looked over at me as if he was seeing me for the first time. He said 'Hi Dad, how are you?' "

Now young Conner is helping Patrick, deprogramming young cultists in New England. And the Conners spend their spare time talking to church and civic groups about their experience with the

She smiles at the recollection. "They said it would be all right but they didn't press me at all. I finally decided to spend the summer with them. I felt that if there the summer with them. I felt that if there the summer with them.

the summer with them. I left that it there really was a God I'd at least spend three months trying to find out."

What she found, she says, convinced her to dedicate her life to the church. "I stayed at the center the following semester and finished school. Then I began demoting muself to the church fulltime." voting myself to the church fullt

At 26, Jaime Sheeran says she's found what's important in life. She smiles at suggestions that she hypnotizes helpless rictims. "I couldn't humanizes helpless victims. "I couldn't hypnotize any I wanted to. All that stuff soun something out of a zombie horror movie.

"I know about the Conners and the work they're doing. As far as I'm concerned, they deal in half truths and fear. But God doesn't work that way. He works through love and I'm just grateful for what I've found in the Unification Church: it's changed my life."

She says her parents had no initial reaction to her involvement. "Not for the first two years. But then some of those deprogrammers visited my parents and it was hell after that. My parents were con-vinced I had been brainwashed and my father would keep saying, 'It's all right honey, you can talk to me.'

"I'd try and tell him that I hadn't been brainwashed but he just wouldn't listen."

Two of her sisters also joined the church. "They heard about the church through me but they joined in Denver. I didn't have much to do with it, really,"

Jaime and her parents are now reconciled. "I visited them two weeks ago and they said they liked the growth they observed in me but still didn't trust the leadership of our movement."

Like the Conners, Jaime Sheeran spends her days trying to spread her message. But so far, not many West Virginians have bought it. The Huntington center, which has only a handful of members, is the only center in the state.

But Jaime Sheeran is convinced that people someday will accept Moon's message. "I feel like a revolutionary," she says. "I think people like the Conners sage. "I feel like a revolutionary," she says. "I think people like the Conners someday will be sorry for what they've

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government ban on the use of six color additives used in cosmetics, soap and some drugs boosts the number of coloring agents outlawed

Auctioneer Acquires Presley Mementos

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Glepn Webb, a Cookeville auctioneer, now owns a $40,000 painting of Elvis Presley's mansion plus some 25,000 prints of the painting worth $2 25 aniece.

ing worth $2.25 apiece.

Webb was by far the big spender at an auction Wednesday night featuring what were billed as former Presley possessions. He said he planned to display the oil painting and sell the prints.

The buyers of memorabilia from book ends to bedside tables were promised notarized certificates attesting that the items once belonged to Elvis. Auctioneer Don Smith said most of the merchandise was discarded in frequent renovations of Graceland, Presley's Memphis home. None belonged to the singer when he died at the mansion Aug. 16., Smith said.

The auctioneer said he bought the Graceland painting two weeks before Presley's death and repaired a tear in the canvas. He said he had refused on offer of $75,000 for it.

Rick Marvel of Nashville paid $1,375 for a Bible embossed with Presley's name. "It's really what I came for," he said. "Mainly it's an investment." Asked what he planned to do with it, Marvel said, "Take it home and look at it."

Included in the auction were a few items not owned by Smith, including a 1960 Lincoln Continental limousine. Bought 18 years ago this week for $10,-519, the car attracted unspirited bidding, and owner Maurice Pittman of Memphis turned down the top offer of $6,900.

During the auction, Smith occasionally admonished the audience that the possessions of "the greatest entertainer in the history of the world" deserved higher prices. But in an interview during a break, he said he was not disappointed.

"It's part of the show you put on. You show you're happy with the prices, people stop bidding," he said. "I'm getting a good deal — no complaints."

The first items sold were batches of Presley records, none of which the singer owned. Ted Eaton, 38, an Elizabethton, Ky., contractor, paid $20 for "Blue Moon of Kentucky" and three other 45 rpm records. "I always liked Elvis Presley. I think he did a lot for people in my era," Eaton said.

Bob Mooney, a Nashville musician, spent $145 for an orange velvet swivel chair once used by the swivel-hipped singer. "I met Elvis in 1956 and I just wanted something personal from him," Mooney said. "I figured that might be one of the most reasonable."

Bangladesh Poverty Blocks Birth Control

BY JOHN NEEDHAM

PATAYAJANI, Bangladesh (UPI) — Laila Begum, a wizened old crone at age 35, says the stumbling block for family planning in Bangladesh is money, not motivation.

"There is no problem in motivating people," says the woman who goes door to door in this village 50 miles north of the capital, Dacca, to tell people how to stop having children.

"The people are motivated. The problem is taking them to get the operation. Because they are poor they cannot go to the town six miles away where the operations are done.

"They can't afford to leave their jobs for two days. They lose money."

It has been nearly two years since Maj. Gen. Ziaur Rahman, military ruler of this desperately overcrowded land, declared population control his government's top

The family planning program, an attempt to stop the number of mouths from far outstripping the food available to people already nutritionally deficient, remains in first gear.

The martial law government had trouble deciding which ministry or ministries should handle the program.

The family planning minister's attempt to hire and train 18,000 people to fan out through the villages of Bangladesh, distributing family planning information and contraceptives, has fallen short of its campaign ending in April.

Yet nearly 105,000 sterilizations were performed in the year ending June 30. Nearly 76,000 of those operations were performed during an intensive nine-week campaign ending in April.

"There has been progress, it's just been excruciatingly slow," said one official of a foreign agency spending money in Bangladesh trying to help the country curb its population growth.

"It took from January, 1975, to January, 1976, to get the organization approved and from then to now to get most of the organization in place," he said.

"The Bangladesh population has surprised everyone by how much more open it is now to family planning than it was before independence (in 1971), and apparently just from the fear of economic deprivation."

A World Bank report issued earlier this year said the family planning program needed more staff in the field, more clinics, more sterilization camps where operations can be performed and an adequate supply of contraceptives.

"At this point, it seems to be accepted by most observers of the program that the demand for family planning services exceeds supply," the report noted.

The team from the World Bank, which is helping finance the family planning program, added a pat on the back for the government. Saying "progress to date, and the commitment of the government, are encouraging."

The problem, however, is enormous. Bangladesh has about 83 million people jammed into 55,000 square miles, making it the world's most densely populated major nation. Its population density is the equivalent of having every man, woman and child on earth living in the continental United States.

The government depends on nearly $1 billion in foreign aid each year to keep afloat, and imports food annually. Yet Bangladeshis now get less food than they did six years ago, before the bloody war that won independence from Pakistan.

that won independence from Pakistan.

The growth rate has been cut from 3 percent to 2.8 percent in a year and the government hopes to get it to 2 percent by the end of the decade. At the present level, the population will double by the end of the century.

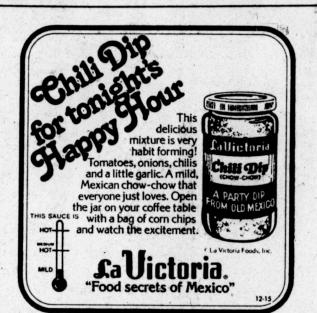

A diplomat who knows Ziaur, who also holds the titles of president of Bangladesh and army chief of staff, says, "Those figures scare him."

They also scare the villagers of this Moslem country enough to make them want to practice family planning, preferably through permanent methods like sterilization, as family planning workers like Laila Begum found out.

A widow with three children of her own, Laila Begum received six months training and began motivating people for family planning two years ago.

It's a three-hour journey from Dacca by car and river boat to this village and she has never seen the capital.

Standing in front of her one-room hut made of woven reeds, she complains she is paid only 15 taka (slightly less than one U.S. dollar) per month for her work in this and surrounding villages.

Kenya Banning Sale Of Skins, Trophies

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) - Kenya has really wonderful. banned the sale of all game skins and trophies such as ivory throughout the country in another major step to try to preserve some of the world's last great herds

The announcement this week followed hailed by conservationists who have warned that at the current rate of destruction the herds, especially elephants, could be wiped out in less than a decade.

"This is the finest news that has ever happened," conservationist Ted Norris said. "The major problem has always been trying to get rid of the outlets for these skins and trophies.

"Since that has happened we can now really get down to trying to conserve the herds themselves. This is wonderful,

SMU Student Decline given three months to dispose of stock Forces Faculty Cut DALLAS (AP) - A "significant" cut in student enrollment has forced Southern Methodist University officials to reduce the school's faculty by 6.5 per cent.

University president James H. Zumberge said 35 teachers will be cut from the 532-member full-time staff next year. A similar cutback will be made in the fall of 1979 if student enrollment does not climb. Zumberge said.

"We're rapidly approaching a condition where we have more faculty to teach fewer students and if that were allowed to continue indefinitely, we'd be out of business," Zumberge said. "We couldn't afford to keep a first-class facil-

Conservationists said the ruling by President Jomo Kenyatta could eventually turn out to be even more important than the initial hunting ban itself in protecting the herds.

The president's ban will affect at least the government's decision in May to ban 200 shops in Nairobi alone, and perhaps all hunting of wildlife in Kenya and was another 200 shops in other parts of Kenya -possibly the leading center in Africa for these trophy and skin dealings.

Experts described it as a multi-million dollar trade annually in Kenya alone: Kenvatta made his announcement at a celebration marking the 14th anniversary of the country's independence. "In addition to the (earlier) banning of hunting of game animals, my government is now taking the additional step of prohibiting trade in game skins and trophies," he said

All dealers handling such items will be currently held, after which this further ban will be fully enforced. Kenyatta said. Experts had argued that the ban on official hunting by itself would do little to curb the decimaton of the herds in Kenya, where the bulk of the killings were done by poachers, often with high-level

Millionaire In Hiding To Avoid Prosecution

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Francis Shelden seemed like such a nice man, people who knew him said.

Perhaps that's why so many were stunned when Shelden went into hiding to avoid prosecution on sex crime charges involving young boys.

Although a year has passed since his disappearance, Shelden's name remains on the lobby registry of the Buhl Building in Detroit.

Authorities have told the Traverse City Record-Eagle that the vanished 49-yearold Ann Arbor millionaire's business is being conducted by his Birmingham attorney, L. Bennett Young.

A bachelor, licensed pilot, graduate geologist, part-time university professor, amateur botanist, land developer, oil consultant, market investor, reputed author, and sole owner of North Fox Island in Lake Michigan. Shelden's enterprises are scattered across the country. He has oil leases in Kansas City, a ski lodge in Aspen, Colo., a land investment company in Denver, the Monroe Creek Development in Charlevoix, Mich., and extensive stock holdings in the West Indies Stock out his Ann Arbor and North Fox Island residences shortly after Gerald S. Richards, an associate of Shelden's in Brother Paul's Childrens Mission, was arrested on sexual misconduct charges.

That was in July 1976, about one week before state police obtained a search warrant for the Ann Arbor premises. A warrant was issued for Shelden's his arrest on Dec. 7, 1976. The second warrant was issued a week later.

His prominent Grosse Pointe parents, the Alger Sheldens, say they have had no contact with their son since he fled Michigan. Both are reported to be ill.

His brother, Alger Jr., is reported to have told authorities that he was hiring an armed guard and posting North Fox Island, the alleged site of illicit sexual conduct, to keep curiosity seekers and unauthorized police away.

Many residents of Charlevoix, who

Many residents of Charlevoix, who knew Shelden as a gentlemanly scholar who was willing to share his good life, have yet to fully recover from the shock of his alleged deviation and his disappearance.

Authorities, on the other hand, now believe the supposed benefactor had ulterior motives when he treated youths to hunting trips on his island, skiing trips at Aspen, beach parties at the family estate on Antigua in the Caribbean, and set up trust funds for their college educations. The tiny lakeside community was fur-

The tiny lakeside community was further jolted when shortly after Shelden disappeared, an 18-year-old youth whom the millionaire had befriended since he was nine, committed suicide.

Informed sources say Shelden wrote the youth from Miami, explaining that he would be "away for awhile" working on some "personal problems" but didn't want the youth to think he had forgotten about his promise to send him through college. The trust fund had been set up, Shelden wrote, to be administered by his brother, Alger Jr.

A simple telephone call would put the money in the youth's hand, the letter said.

Three days after the warrant for Shelden's arrest was issued, and one day before the charges were reevealed by the

Appeal Looms In Trial

DAWSON, Ga. (AP) — The long-delayed "Dawson Five" murder case faces an uncertain future again after a Georgia Superior Court judge threw out the confession of one of the five young blacks accused of shooting a white man to death nearly two years ago.

Prosecutors said they would appeal the Wednesday decision by Judge Walter Geer to suppress the oral confession of Roosevelt Watson, who says his statement was coerced by law enforcement officers' death threats.

Watson, 21, is accused of firing the bullet which killed Gordon "Bubba" Howell at a rural grocery near here in January 1976. He is to go to trial on a murder charge Dec. 27, but it was not clear what effect the appeal would have on that trial

Prosecutors have acknowledged that the confession is crucial to their case.

Geer's action was the latest in a series of court rulings on the confession that have delayed the trial start since Septem-

FBI agents say they plan to conduct a follow-up interview with another youth who was one of Shelden's frequent traveling companions. The young man was reported to be attending college on a similar trust fund.

Authorities say the youth, who they would not identify, recently has been driving Shelden's car, which earlier had been abandoned at the Charlevoix airport. Airport officials confirm the car has been removed from the parking lot. They could not say who drove it away.

On the same day the first young man's letter was sent from Miami, Oct. 10, 1976, another letter purportedly by Shelden was sent to Cranbrook Science Institute in Bloomfield Hills. That letter, submitting his resignation as a member of the board of directors of the exclusive educational community, was postmarked from Kearny, N.J., where Adam Starchild, the church of the New Revelation, and Ocean Living Institute all are located.

Living Institute all are located.

About that time, Starchild reportedly was negotiating the sale of Shelden's plane through Combsgate Aviation in

In January of this year, Shelden resigned from the board of directors of Boys Inc., a Farmington Hills residential center for the treatment of emotionally disturbed young boys. The envelope, bearing the name and address of the family firm, Shelden Land Co., was postmarked Jan. 19, from Detroit.

That was the last public word from Francis D. Shelden.

Chinese Discover Ancient Tomb

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese archeologists have uncovered a 2,000-year-old tomb in Kwangsi province near the Vietnamese border, two Communist newspapers report.

Ta Kung Pao and Wen Wei Po said the three-room tomb was 40 feet by 23 feet and contained three lacquered coffins, seven wooden ones and more than 1,000 pieces of brass, ironware, earthenware, lacquer, iade and textiles.

lacquer, jade and textiles.

The bodies in the lacquered coffins appeared to be those of a couple and their son, while the seven wooden coffins apparently contained the bodies of murdered slaves, the reports said.

By ALINE MOSBY PARIS (UPI) — The U.N. cultural organization UNESCO is conducting a new competition that so far is non-political: a "Hall of Fame" of the world's greatest man-made or natural wonders. 8

Member nations can submit candidates from among their glories of tourism if they are what UNESCO calls "priceless and irreplaceable possessions not only to their country but to mankind."

The first winners will be announced after a meeting of the UNESCO World Heritage Committee, representing 15 nations, in Washington in September

Winning natural or man-made wonders will be marked with special UNESCO plaques saying they are part of the world's unique heritage. Their owner nations will be obliged to forever protect and conserve the possessions, and those countries which can prove they cannot afford to do so will be given grants from UNESCO's World Heritage Fund. The heritage candidates can be:

Natural possessions such as the Serengeti plains in Tanzania that teem with wild animals; the Galapagos Islands west of Ecuador, another wild animal refuge; or Mount Everest, the highest of all mountains, in Nepal-Tibet.

Or man-made, such as Stonehenge monuments in England, the cities of Venice or Jerusalem, the Taj Mahal in India, the pyramids of Egypt. The monument can be recent. UNESCO circles say the United States might recommend one of its skyscrapers, such as the Wainwright building in St. Louis, Mo., designed by architect Louis Sullivan.

A staff has been laboring for four years at UNESCO headquarters on the heritage project, headed by a youthful political scientist-lawyer from Austria, Anne Raidl.

Miss Raidl combed through sheafs of UNESCO documents for the reason for "The loss through deterioration or disappearance of any of these most prized possessions constitutes an impoverishment of the heritage of all peoples of the world. They (the heritages) are worthy of special protection against the dangers which increasingly threaten them."

The dangers, she explained, range from eroding weather to bulldozers which gradually are turning the world into one vast parking lot. "We have to preserve even the humblest part of our existence, such as an African village," she said earnestly. "Primitive villages could disappear when all the people get cars and electricity."

To remedy what UNESCO calls "this perilous situation," member countries adopted in 1972 a Convention, or binding regulation, on the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage.

A World Heritage Committee was drawn up of cultural and scientific experts from 15 countries (Australia, Canada, Ecuador, Egypt, France, West Germany, Ghana, Iran, Iraq, Nigeria, Poland, Senegal, Tunisia, the United States and Yagoslavia).

The committee met for the first time from June 27 to July 1 to discuss rule for what could be called "the cultural contest of the century."

UNESCO now has officially appealed to member countries to submit entries by next April. Then the committee meets in Washington in September as judges

"The list will not necessarily be permanent," said Miss Raidl. "If a site on the list deteriorates, it can be deleted. And some countries say it may take them a long time to submit their entries, so the list will be built up gradually. We don't expect a complete one before 1980."

After spirited discussion, committee members settled on the criteria they will use in deciding what is precious heritage.

First of all, the possession - either natural or man-made - must be immova-

Crews Empty Oil Barges

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) -Clean-up crews are emptying two oil-laden barges which ran aground off the Mississippi coast and leaked about 4,000 gallons of crude oil into the Gulf of Mexico.

Crews worked Wednesday night and this morning to pump oil from three damaged compartments on the barges into an empty barge.

The two stranded barges, owned by National Marine Services of St. Louis, Mo., ran aground off the western tip of Cat Island en route from Mobile, Ala. to Venice, La., Tuesday. They were carrying 100,-000 to 120,000 gallons of light crude oil which began to leak at a rate of about two gallons a minute.

John Harper, a state envi-ronmental official, said the slick extends northeast off Cat Island, 10 miles offshore from Long Beach, Miss.

ZBA Denies Peterbilt Petition

By FRANK COATS Avalanche-Journal Staff

Zoning Board of Adjustment (ZBA) today denied a petition by West Texas Peterbilt for a free-standing sign at 303 30th St.

Free-standing signs, according to the zoning ordinance, must be placed only in lots on major thoroughfares. Since 30th Street is not considered a major thoroughfare, the company had to go before the ZBA for a waiver of the ordinance. Zoning Director Jerrel Northcutt said ing sign not being located on a major thoroughfare, there was another problem with the sign overhanging public proper-The board also voted on a continuation of a request by the Rev. Ross Spencer, besides the problem with the free-stand-

speaking for Bethany Baptist Church, for permission to build a gymnasium on the church property. Northcutt said the gym, which would be located at 4409 39th St., would not be compatible with the residential area surrounding it. Board members complained about Spencer's presenting inadequate site plans, and requested Spencer come before them at next month's meeting with more detailed information on the size and location of the proposed gym.

Don Rushing, speaking for Preferred Restaurants, Inc., was granted an ordinance requirement variance allowing parking off the development lot of a restaurant at 1309 University Ave. Bill Cantrell, speaking for Ted Sisco, was granted a similiar variance allowing parking across the alley from a clinic at 3601 22nd.

Burl Masters, representing Triton Corp., was given premission by the board to ignore a screening fence requirement for a land tract at 68th Street and Slide Road. The board decided to wait until the property develops to determine if the screen fences will be necessary.

Santa Claus appeared at the door at the end of the meeting, saying he had heard the board needed a little Christmas spir-

"I move we approve Santa Claus," ZBA Vice Chairman David Hester said. The board concurred and Santa distributed candy to each person in the room.

Classes End This Week At Colleges

Lubbock Christian College students will complete their final examinations before the holiday break today while Texas Tech University students face their last testing day Friday.

Spring registration at LCC begins Jan. 9 with classes starting two days later. Tech's registration on Jan. 10-11 precedes classes meeting for the first time on Jan. 12. LCC's administrative offices will remain open over the holidays except for the week of Dec. 26 to 31. All administrative employees return to work Jan. 3. Tech administrative offices will close

Dec. 23 and reopen Jan. 3. Two weeks of minicourses will be offered at LCC over the Christmas holidays with students eligible to earn three hours credit per week.

Doctors Honor Neurosurgeon

Dr. Jack Dunn Jr. has been recognized by his colleagues as their choice of a "Doctor's Doctor." In presenting him with the "Award of Hippocrates" - the second year this award has been given -Dr. Dunn was extolled for his contributions to medicine and to the community. A longtime resident of Lubbock and the son of one of the early physicians in this area, Dunn has practiced in Lubbock since 1959, specializing in neurosurgery. He took his internship in Pennsylvania and his residency and postgraduate work at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., and at National Hospital, Queen Square, London, England, respectively. Qualifications necessary for consideration for the award include membership in this medical community for 20 years or longer, professional standing, citizenship and personal integrity.

Dr. Dunn serves as chief of neurosurgery and is associated with the Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

Health Board Meets To Review Proposals

The South Plains Health Systems (SPHS) agenda for tonight's board of directors meeting includes review of pro-posed annual and long-range health sys-

The plans, recently under consideration by SPHS committees, are expected to serve as guidelines by which the agency can determine area health needs and.

The meeting is set for 7 p.m. today in the George and Helen Mahon Library. Community Room.

Health Care Center Request Postponed

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Consideration of a request by Lubbock's Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center to operate a new center with six beds for mentally retarded patients has been postponed indefinitely by the Texas Health Facilities Commission. The commission must approve all buildings or modification requests of Texas health care centers.

Nashville Talk Program Will Begin In January

By JAY SHARBUTT LOS ANGELES (AP) — While taking the waters in Nashville last week, I heard a new daily TV show will start soon at Opryland, home of country music's Grand Ole Opry. Bayron Binkley confirmed it later

"It'll be a Nashville-flavored talk and music show, 50 percent talk, 50 percent music," said Binkley, producer of the one-hour series, "Nashville Scene," which premieres nationally Jan. 2.

It'll air Mondays through Fridays. Its guests, mostly country music stars, may understandably yawn now and then. Binkley says each day's broadcast will start at 5 a.m. in Nashville.

The idea, he says, is to air "Nashville

Scene" at 6 a.m. in each of the nation's time zones. Eastern areas will get it live, while other regions - Nashville included - get it on a tape-delay each dawn. The show's host hasn't made the cover of "People" yet, but he's fairly well known in country music and Tennes political circles.

He's T. Tommy Cutrer, a former Grand Ole Opry announcer, a former disc jockey at Nashvile station WSM - which airs the Opry and owns Opryland —and a for-mer candidate for Congress, Binkley

The guests will include such famed folk as Merle Haggard, Tom T. Hall, Barbara Mandrell and Opry legend Roy Acuff, he

"We'll primarily be using Nashville-based people, but we'll also have guests from other areas who've come to Nashville to record or do movies and television shows," Binkley said by phone from

The show won't be on CBS, NBC or ABC. It's being aired over a special satellite and land-line network set up by Los Angeles-based Robert C. Wold Co., which created a similar network for the David Frost-Richard Nixon interview shows earlier this year.

Robert Dudley, head of U.S. TV Net-

Scene," emphasized that the series isn't intended as a country-cousin competitor of NBC's "Today" or ABC's morning

"No, it's not," he said, noting that his program's 6 a.m. reveille is a full hour before the start of network morning shows. Okay, but why such an early hour? Why not at night or late afternoon? "Well, we found the best time for country and western on radio is from five to eight in the morning," he said. "I don't know why. It might be that country music fans simply are earlier risers.

"But that's the pattern on radio. And very few TV stations are broadcasting at that (6 a.m.) time in the morning, and we

Soon the cofferdam will be torn down, leaving nothing to mark the spot which was the sacred island of Isis from history's most remote times until the 6th century A.D. when her cult, the last flicker of Pharaonic civilization was snuffed out by Christianity.

One of the items that was particularly significant to the ol' Ink Dipper was the report by Joe Bernard, who heads NEAR (National Emergency Aid Radio), for the Federal Department of Transportation. He reviewed the ways in which each state can participate in the program which utilizes CB as part of the highway safety program, even including funding. These funds are available to the states for the purchase of CB units, base and mobile, and for administrative ex-volunteer monitoring groups is required. The object is to improve highway safe-

There were more than 300 representatives of REACT teams and councils from 36 states attending the convention. So the messages which were delivered by the speakers, as well as those emanating from the discussion groups and nal sanctuary of Isis. Greeks, Romans and Coptic Christians conquered the Nile Delta, bringing their religions to Egypt and erecting their own temples on Philae, but Isis endured.

Finally, the technology of the 20th century threatened to do what wars, plagues and religious zealots could not: destroy the monuments.

When the British built the low Aswan Dam in 1902, the Nile crept over Philae, submerging the temples for nine months every year. The high Aswan Dam, com-pleted in 1971, trapped Philae in a rising pool of water between the two dams.

In the early 1970s, the monuments were dismantled by a team of Egyptian workmen, Italian engineers and Egyptologists funded by UNESCO and the Egyptian government. Nearly 50,000 stone blocks were labeled, cleaned and stored behind a barbed wire fence deep inside a military reserve.

With dynamite and shovels, a new home was prepared on nearby Agilkia Island, a much higher island with few archeological treasures. The island's rocky contours were blasted into a plateau. The debris was used to shape Agilkia's outline to resemble that of Phi-

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) - The University of Wisconsin and the University of Illinois, who have fought many Big Ten football battles, now are scrimmaging over who originated the tradition of college homecoming.

Long considered to have originated when the Illini staged a full-scale homecoming celebration - complete with a parade and queen - in 1909, Wisconsin officials, say they can trace their first homecomings to 1907 and 1908.

In 1907, a cont oversy raged in the Midwest over profess malism of football, the school said. UW alumni were asked by the students to join them after a game to show support for the team.

While much of Philae's history has been obscure, it is known that the island played a prominent role in the religion of the Pharaohs.

"Ancient Egyptians at very remote times of history believed that there was a family of gods who ruled the Nile Valley," Farag says. "Osiris was the head of this family. Ancient Egyptians loved this god very much, because they believed that he taught them all the means of improving life. This put envy in the heart of his brother Set, who got rid of him by cutting his body into several pieces and tossing them along the Nile Valley. When Isis, the wife of Osiris, started searching for his body, she started on Philae, so Philae became sacred for Isis."

Just as the remains of her husband were scattered, the remains of her tem-

With the pieces of Philae's other monuments, they lie in rows in the eight-acre storage area, waiting to be taken to Agilk-

"We call this the cemetery of Philae," Farag says.

Signs mark the pieces of each monument. Down a sandy lane marked "Arr," for example, are lines of blocks from the temple of Arrsenofes, a Nubian god.

In addition to the 42,000 blocks removed from the monuments, archeologists found 2,500 blocks scattered around the island. From the hieroglyphics and figures carved on the stones, Egyptologists know that many of them were once part of the temples.

"We found three upper courses of the second pylon of the temple of Isis. We know that they were missing in the time of Napoleon because of the records left by the French, but we found them and we will re-erect them.

British and Egyptian navy divers have been enlisted to salvage one last temple of Philae the Roman temple of Augustus which lies outside the cofferdam.

"Most of our work has been in ordinance, dismantling World War II bombs found off the coast of England," says Lt. Cmdr. David Bartlett, head of the sixman British diving squad. "This time we will be putting things together instead of
