

Producer's Wheat Meeting At Courthouse Friday Afternoon

A meeting of Sherman County farmers with representatives of wheat processing and milling industries will be held at the courthouse Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

The purpose of this meeting is to bring the people who handle wheat in the market place and the producers together to discuss the wheat marketing problem.

Recently there has been some adverse publicity given to certain varieties of wheat produced in this area, particularly Chiefkan, Red Chief and Early Black Hull. Millers are having difficulty in selling wheat from this area to their customers, the baking industries, because of the poor quality varieties of wheat grown here. As plenty of good quality wheat is produced in other areas of the United States they warn the wheat producer in this area that he is in danger of losing his domestic wheat market.

Farmers and local elevator people will discuss the varieties of wheat produced in Sherman County with these wheat buyers and try to remove this county from any black list these people may be preparing for the future.

Among speakers who will appear on the program will be Glenn L. Berry, Manager of General Mills Inc.; Frederick T. Dines, Agricultural Agent for Tex-O-Kan Flour Mills Co., and a Mr. Soder of the Texas-Oklahoma Wheat Improvement Association.

We were very glad to have as our visitor, Mrs. Sid Parks' sister, Mrs. Cain of Blythe, California. Mrs. Cain used to live here some years ago and of course enjoyed renewing old acquaintances. We are always glad to have visitors. Since Mrs. Watkins has been our reporter for the past 18 months; it was decided on her leaving the club, that she'd resign in Mrs. Wayne Williams' favor as reporter. Hank Says:

Well, the other day they held a meeting of car dealers and told them all they will ever need to know about how to sell the new automobiles they are getting. It took two days for them to explain everything but they never left out nothing, even told us how to order a car with specified color and equipment from the factory. It was all pretty good stuff too, the only thing wrong was, they were talking to the wrong bunch of guys — they should have called the meeting for used car dealers.

Yours,
Hank Sherrod.

Stratford Loses Hard Fought Ball Game

Stratford lost to Dalhart by a score of 8 to 7 in a 12-inning game Sunday afternoon in the last game of the league schedule, closing the season with 6 wins and 8 losses.

The game was one of the most thrilling played by the local club this year. The score was tied 6 to 6 in the 5th inning and remained tied until the 12th inning when Dalhart scored 2 runs in the first half of the inning and Stratford scored 1 run in the last half.

According to the best information the club has they finished in about fifth place in the western half of the league. There are however games which other towns in the league are to play to complete their schedule which might place them in a tie with Four-Corners, Oklahoma for fourth place.

Information from the league secretary is expected this week which will clarify the standing of each town in the league.

Considering the fact that baseball had not been played in Stratford for about 15 years, and many of the team members were playing hard ball for the first season, the club feels that they set a successful record.

At a future date all members of the squad who played in at least three games will be called together in uniform to pose for a group picture. A picture will be presented to each player.

The club finished the season with all equipment paid for and a substantial cash balance in the club fund.

Legion Airls

(By Earl Bond)

Boys, at long last we have something showing above the weed tops on the American Legion lot. Work was started and stopped Saturday. Apparently someone had a rough week-end, because as this is being written on Monday afternoon not a soul can be seen over there. But we have a start now, and we're going to keep pitching until we finish it.

I promised myself faithfully that I would not gripe about anything or anybody this week, but I just can't resist raking a few people over the coals. However this time I'm going to keep it strictly within the family. I'm going to have a little fatherly talk with the founders and builders of the American Legion. Since 1919 you've worked hard building this organization into one of the largest and most influential in the world. You've done a good job and had a nice, smooth running organization — all ready for the veterans of World War II to slide into when we got out. We thought it was the best veterans organization to join because after a lot of struggling you had the kinks ironed out and knew how such an organization should be run. We were a little bashful at first because we were afraid you'd think us a bunch of upstarts barging into your exclusive organization. But we were wrong. You gave us a hearty welcome, and the first thing we knew we had it all to ourselves. Now fellows, what's wrong? We didn't intend to break up the party, we just wanted to join the fun. It just doesn't make sense that the men who've spent years building an organization, overcoming many, many difficulties should suddenly abandon it to a bunch of youngsters who know almost nothing about the thing. Without your guidance we are liable to make the same mistakes you made twenty-five years ago. This is not just a local complaint, it is happening all over the country. Texas was one of the few states that did not elect a World War II veteran for Department Commander. If you don't like our company and we've offended you, we offer our sincere apologies, because that certainly wasn't our intention. So come on back and join the party, fellows, because we frankly don't know the score.

Something else almost upset my good intention apple cart this week, but I'm not going to say a thing about it. It seems our good friend and noney neighbor, Mr. Albert Law of the Dalhart Texan is itching for a fuss again. But I'm not going to fuss with him, because fussing just isn't nice. In the Saturday paper Mr. Law devoted his complete column to an attempt to steal the glory of J. W. Malone from us. He intimated that since J. W. began his basketball career in Several of the ladies brought cakes and everyone had all the ice cream and cake they could eat. Mrs. Frank Blanks proved to be Mrs. Watkins' birthday club friend, and she gave her a set of eight very pretty glasses. The club as a unit presented LaFawn and Oscar with a beautiful white chenille bed spread, and Melvin and Marie each received story books from the "club kids." They were very pleased with each gift. All departed feeling much better for having been together and each guest wished the Watkins' much happiness and success in their new home. Those present were: Mrs. C. F. Moon, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Yes, we've learned a lot in 23 years, and we're still learning.

We're learning that folks in the Panhandle Plains Pecos Valley area need good electric service ... and lots of it. We feel that we've learned how to provide that service efficiently and courteously.

Now we're carrying our knowledge even farther with a $35,000,000 expansion program that will make even better electric service available to more homes, more farms, and more industries.

The FICTION Corner

HAS BEEN
 By GENE BROCKHAVEN

Jeff's eyes found Helene's and to him the world was young and warm again.

"WHAT'S the matter with you, Jeff? You never acted like this before. Show some interest. Snap out of it!"

Good old faithful Jerry, thought Jeff. Always worried...nerves jittery. During the endless training days and the torturous moments before the bell, fluttering about Jeff like a hen mothering a lone chick. Eight years he and Jerry had been together. Eight years, during which they had often faced hunger and of late a few of the good things of life.

Maybe Jerry was right...maybe there was something the matter with him. The old fire, the zest for battle, the impatience for action, the exhilaration of the blood racing through his veins. The doubts...yes, and that little stab of fear in a corner of his heart. Looking back now, as he sat on the little stool in the ring corner, Jeff realized he had felt none of them.

Jeff roused from his reverie. He glanced around the ringside. Big crowd. Announcer Ballard busy at the hanging microphone. A few more minutes to go to broadcast time.

Jeff relaxed on his stool...his mind blotted out the chaotic scene about him...filled with memories again. Eight years...eight years of hard work, of sacrifice, of punishment, of patience and the giving up of many of the things that youth loves. But there had been a driving purpose then...a goal to attain...riches! Fame hadn't meant much in the early years, but it came and in the last few years the money came, too. Champion! The thought of that year when champion brought a glow to his soul. And then he met Helene Forsythe.

It was at a charity bazaar on Long Island, one of the "appearances" Jeff, as champion, was frequently called upon to make. Again, as he sat on his stool, completely oblivious to everything but his memories, Jeff felt his heart sink as it had that afternoon. She was rich, society—and he a nobody, a prizefighter. They talked for a while and then others had taken him away. He didn't get to see her again that afternoon, but did several weeks later. That was the beginning. They saw more and more of each other and soon they were deeply in love. Jeff had realized the hopelessness of it all...to him she was unattainable...but Helene saw no hopelessness in the situation at all.

Jeff shivered on his stool as he lived again that memorable night he had called upon her father. He'd never been so scared in his life, except maybe that night when he entered the ring for his first fight, his belly empty and his spindly legs rubbery...but there had been absolute necessity then...that had buoyed his lagging courage. But this night the stake was bigger.

"Hello, Mr. Stoddard." Mr. Forsythe's words were stamped indelibly in Jeff's mind. "Helene's told me of you. I don't like the business you're in, but my daughter and you are in love, she says, so the business doesn't matter. But what does matter is, what sort of a life can you offer her?"

Jeff felt the warm blood rise to his face and ears as it had done that night at his blurted, idiotic, "She won't starve." Mr. Forsythe had answered, "I'll see to that. That will always be my responsibility. She's my daughter."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Forsythe," Jeff had managed, and then the words had started to flow...senseless, jumbled, one into the other... "a few more fights...a $250,000 trust fund...I love her..."

Heartsick, feeling his cause had been irretrievably lost, he had stumbled from the room and out of the house. It was midnight before he got enough courage to call her. He told her it was hopeless...They would have to wait a bit...he'd make more money, plenty of money...Helene had interrupted... "Dad didn't say no, did he?"

"No," "Oh, you..." a sob and the click of the phone.

His frantic phone calls were fruitless...and then "Miss Forsythe has gone abroad." That was a year ago. He toured the country...theatres...exhibitions... "appearances"...the money piled up but Jeff has lost interest. Then a match for the championship and his title gone, because one man...the referee...raised another man's hand.

And then this... Sam Abrams had sought him out... Sam had a young chap, up and coming, but he "needed a win over a name" before he could challenge for the title. "There'll be maybe ten grand in it for you," Sam had said. "And, maybe..." Sam paused meaning-ly... "more if we can do business. You're through, Jeff, you know. A has-been." Jeff still wondered why he hadn't chased Sam then. "No business," he'd said.

And here he was, sitting in a ring corner as he had sat in other ring corners a hundred or more times... "a has-been... at twenty-eight!... and in this corner, the former middleweight champion of the world, Jeff Stoddard!"

Jeff roused... dreams faded... he rose and bowed, Jerry fluttered about him. They walked to ring center for instructions. Jeff sized up his opponent. A likely looking youngster, husky and obviously well-trained. He shook hands and turned back to his own corner. The bell, Jeff slid cautiously to ring center. Yancey came forward to meet him, left hand extended slightly, chin buried behind a bulging shoulder. Jeff tried a long left and landed, lightly. They came together and Jeff felt a jar on his chin, another and yet another. Stinging blows they were, delivered with amazing speed and with deception. The boy had something. They exchanged blows and again that short, jolting left found Jeff's face. He'd have to do something about that. Jeff turned to his corner at the bell. A trickle of blood flowed from the corner of his mouth and over his chin.

"You gotta do something about that left, Jeff," whispered Jerry. "He'll claw you to ribbons." Jeff stepped forward briskly at the bell for round two. He boxed, he slugged, but that tearing left kept reaching his face. Something warm streamed down his cheek. Jeff realized his eye was cut. He brushed the eye with his right glove and gave ground lowly, drawing Yancey toward him. Jeff's right dropped into position at his chest, he feinted with his left and there was the opening he sought. His right fist shot out, the weight of his powerful shoulders driving it home. It landed and at the impact Jeff felt a searing pain shoot up his arm to the shoulder. For a fraction of a second he felt dizzy and then a nauseous feeling hit the middle of his stomach. His eyes cleared and he saw Yancey getting off the floor. The punch must have landed high, thought Jeff. His only hope now was a quick left hook. He stepped forward, ignoring the pain in his right hand, feinted for an opening, saw it and punched. He missed. His last chance gone. The bell. He sank heavily on the stool.

"Did you bust it?" Jerry whispered.

"I don't know," Jeff answered. "But don't touch it, others might see."

"Yeah, but you can't go on with a busted right," argued Jerry. "Keep quiet," said Jeff, and as the bell rang for round three he rose to meet Yancey.

Earlier that evening, at the Forsythe home, Helene faced her father across the dinner table.

"Dad," she said, "take me to the Arena tonight, please. Jeff is..."

"Still in love with that boy?"

"I've never stopped loving him, Dad. But..."

Now, a short distance from ringside, they sat. The girl, white-faced, tense, as she watched the stark drama unfolding in that brilliantly-white square ahead.

It seemed hours to the girl—torturous hours—that they had been sitting there, when her father leaned toward her.

"I'm sold, Helene," he said tersely. "And I thought that boy lacked courage. Let's get out."

Later, in the dressing room, Jeff sat hunched on the rubbing table. Jerry, striving mightily to hold back the tears, was gently removing the tape and bandages from Jeff's swollen right hand. The room was empty, but through the walls came the rumble of voices and laughter. "Nobody has time for a loser," thought Jeff.

Mr. Forsythe walked into the room.

"Hello Jeff," he said. He laid his hand on Jeff's shoulder. "That was a magnificent stand you made out there. Mighty few men have that courage—and, more important, Helene says you're the only man for her and who am I to..."

Jeff glanced past Mr. Forsythe and his eyes found Helene's. She nodded and smiled... and to him the world was young and warm again.

When Your Back Hurts—

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Plain Facts About Honesty

LESSON TEXT FOR AUGUST 24—Proverbs 3:3; 11:1, 3; 12:17-22; 14:5; 23:10, 11.

MEMORY SELECTION—Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil.—I Thessalonians 5:21, 22.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

By WILLIAM CULBERTSON, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

THE Bible's presentation of the subject of uprightness of living, or plain, downright honesty in everyday contacts, is recognized by all who have given any attention to what it has to say.

The high ethical standard demanded by the Word of God is another evidence of its divine origin. Were men to evolve a moral standard of their own, it is quite evident that that standard would not be very much higher than their own attainments; in fact, the probability is that the standard would be lower than the attainment of some. However, the Bible allows for no deviation from the standard.

We who by nature are the children of wrath have undoubtedly failed when we measure our lives against God's pattern. How needful is God's work of providing and effecting salvation! Those who have been born of God are then confronted with living a life that meets the divine standard.

I. A Plea for Honesty (Prov. 3:3)
HOW good it is when the Christian has a reputation for integrity in all his dealings. However, that outward manifestation is possible only if there is inward reality. Therefore, we move in order of emphasis to the greater truth at the conclusion of the verse. Truth is to be written upon the tablet of the heart.

Here is the plea for heart honesty. It is not enough by plausible argument or by feigned conduct to appear honest before men. It is necessary rather to have motives so sincere, to have a heart so honest, that all we do and say will reflect a character that is honorable.

It is out of the fullness of the heart that man speaketh. As the heart is, so is the man. Let us give attention therefore to this word from God.

II. A Factual Presentation of Honesty (Prov. 11:1, 3; 12:17-22; 14:5)

THESE passages of Scripture bring to our attention the consequences of dishonesty as well as the rewards of honesty.

For example, we know that dishonesty is an abomination to God (Prov. 11:1; 12:22); that perversity of heart has its own reward, in that the perpetrator of evil is sooner or later ensnared in his own sin (Prov. 11:3); that a lying tongue may be victorious, but that victory is short lived (Prov. 12:19).

On the other hand, the rewards of honesty are also made apparent, for we are told that probity of character is God's delight (Prov. 11:1; 12:22); that the very integrity of the upright shall be a guide to them (Prov. 11:3); that blessings to others flow from the tongue of the wise (Prov. 12:18); and that the lip of truth shall be established forever (Prov. 12:19).

III. God and the Life of Honesty (Prov. 23:10, 11)

THE reference here to the ancient landmark has to do with the removal of such evidences as would prove the claim of individuals to certain property.

We are to respect the rights of others. Honesty involves more than correctness of speech; it implies rightness of life. No subtlety of reasoning can lead us to the conclusion that we may have God's approval if by unfair means we take that which belongs to another.

Particular attention is given to the fact that we are to have regard for the fatherless. The Word of God constantly gives special attention to the fatherless and the widows. It would seem that God will particularly mark as amiss any unfair advantage taken over these individuals. In fact, this text stresses that God as their Redeemer will plead their cause against anyone taking advantage of them. Of course, there can be only one result when God opposes, and that is disaster to the individual who occasions his wrath.

Perhaps it is that very sense of helplessness that makes the fatherless depend upon him. It is certain that until we feel our need of God, we shall go on in our self-sufficiency without him. When our own lack of strength becomes apparent, then it is we turn to him, and then it is that he is willing to be our Redeemer.

Let us dare to face the implications of these texts. Unless we commend our God to men by our upright lives, we shall have to suffer the consequences of our dishonesty in divine displeasure.

Soils Need Air for Total Crop Growth

Increasing Depth of Aeration Boosts Yield

"Stuffy" soils that have little or no oxygen available to the plant roots that grow in them just are not able to support high crop yields. Hard working plant roots need oxygen if they are to do a good job of supporting the plant and collecting plant food for the above ground parts.

Working with muck soil, N. K. Ellis, Purdue university, and Richard Morris, U. S. soil conservation service, found that when liberal quantities of oxygen penetrated the soil only four inches the yield of red beets, sweet corn, onions and Chippewa potatoes was small. When the soils were "ventilated" to 18 inches the yields increased as much as 10 fold. When the depth of aeration was increased to 36 inches the yield of some of the crops was increased.

It may pay to go deeper than this plow is set.

The yield of carrots went from 3 to 33 tons per acre when the depth of aeration was increased from 4 to 18 inches. Sweet corn yield went from 3 to 4.75 tons; onions from 45 to 275, 50-pound bags; red beets from 3.75 to 13.5 tons and potatoes from about 12 to 258 bushels per acre.

Oxygen in the soil for the use of the plant roots is the logical reason for the difference in crop yields. Adequate plant food was available on all the plots. Rainfall during the season was sufficient to eliminate water as a limiting crop production factor on the muck soils.

Blue-Game Chickens

A tradition that has been recorded by the historians of Delaware, is that during the early days of the Revolutionary war the men of Capt. Jonathan Caldwell's company took with them game chickens noted for their fighting ability. These chickens were said to be of the brood of a famous blue hen. The company soon received the sobriquet "Blue Hen's Chickens," and the state of Delaware in 1939 adopted the Blue Hen's Chicken as the state bird.

The photograph shows a blue fowl resulting from a cross of Black Sumatra cock and Blue-Splashed White hen, as developed by the U.S.D.A.

Treating Turkeys for Blackhead Recommended

A little item on a large subject appeared recently in the official publication of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Disobutylphenoxymethyl dimethylbenzylammonium chloride, it seems, has been recommended by leading veterinary authorities as a "preventive of naturally occurring enterohepatitis of pouls." "Enterohepatitis" is a disease more commonly known as "blackhead."

THE PLOW THAT TAMED THE WILD PRAIRIE

NEITHER bitter hardships nor hostile Indians could daunt the pioneer farmer, but the rich prairie soil of the new West broke his heart. With no plow to turn the greasy, black loam after the first breaking, the frontiersman was forced either to grub an uncertain existence from it or to move westward to new virgin land.

In 1837, at Grand Detour, Illinois, a plow tamed the wild prairie! It was John Deere's new plow with a steel moldboard which shed the sticky prairie soil. At last, the pioneer farmer could unhitch his emigrant wagon and take root in the fertile plains of the West.

Times, methods, and machines have changed, but John Deere Plows have never relinquished their century-old leadership. Let us show you how it will pay you to own a John Deere.
