Future Trouble In Caribbean Seen By Tower

As long as Castro controls Cuba there will be trouble in the Caribbean, says Sen. John Tower in his most recent news letter.

The letter dealing with the Dominican Republic and with Vietnam follows:

There is little doubt that the trouble in the Dominican Republic could have been quickly resolved had it not been for the influx of Communists from Cuba who, with Dominican Communists, assumed control of the armed opposition. There can also be little doubt that this situation will recur again and again as long as Cuba remains a bastion of Communist strength and subversion in the Caribbean.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm apparently doesn't take prize fighting too seriously, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editor:

While I don't understand boxing, what I mean is, the way I get it is, if Clay had hit Liston hard enough the fight fans would have been satisfied, whether the fight lasted one minute or thirty, but a gentle tap about like you'd use to get a cat off the dining table if you allow cats in the house makes everybody unhappy and feeling cheated, still the thing about the whole affair is the clamor for an investigation.

It's a fact, fight fans are demanding that the fight be investigated, and several Washington officials have risen to the call.

What they say is, here Liston and Clay have fought twice, for a total of about four minutes, and the fans have paid out over eight million dollars to see it, either first hand or on closed-circuit television, and they are tired of getting cheated and Congress ought to do something about it.

This is what I don't understand. If the fans are convinced the fights are fakes, why trouble Congress to pass a law to keep them from wasting their money? Why don't they just stay away? Why don't they allow nature to take its course? When a football team loses nine games in a row, how many fans show up for the tenth one?

I tell you, when Congress takes on the job of passing laws to keep the public from wasting its money on phony entertainment, it'll be tied up from now on. In fact, if it succeeded, it'd wreck television.

Personally, I've always figured picking the world's champion boxer was about like picking Miss America. There's no such thing as the prettiest girl in the United States, anymore than there's such a thing as the world's best refrigerator. After a refrigerator manages to hold the temperature inside it at 38 degrees night and day, anything beyond that is ridiculous. There are thousands of girls in this country, each as pretty as the other, but the ritual requires one to be selected, I doubt if there's anything there worth investigating.

However, if I was a Congressman, I believe I'd rather try to find out what's wrong with boxing than what the answer is to Viet Nam.

Yours faithfully,

which we are experiencing in Vietnam. There is a distinct possibility that funds will have to be provided to speed production of a "follow-on" version of present Navy attack aircraft being used in the Vietnam conflict.

Subsequently, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara indicated in his April 26 news conference that the Department of Defense had no firm plans to step up procurement as a result of the Vietnam conflict. He indicated that the current inventory levels were more than adequate to support current and pending operations.

A few days later, on May 4, President Johnson asked Congress for $700,000,000 in supplemental appropriations to prosecute the war in Vietnam. He said $180 million would go to purchase planes, and the rest for equipment and ammunition.

I supported the President's request. The Congress acted quickly to supply the funds and show the world that this nation, despite the views expressed by some influential leaders, is united in its determination to halt the spread of Communism by armed aggression.

Talk about futility! Manager Harry Walker saw 23 Pittsburgh Pirate pinch hitters fail to connect safely during one stretch this spring.

National Football League teams will play 26 pre-season night exhibition games between Aug. 6 and Sept. 12.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm this week discusses college students or foreign affairs, we aren't sure which.

Dear editor:

I noticed in a copy of a newspaper I was reading last night in between gun fights on a western that a bunch of college students have been picketing the White House, protesting the U. S. policy in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic, on the grounds it's wrong.

I kept on reading but never did find out what they thought would be the right policy.

What they don't know, but what me and Secretary of State Rusk and the other foreign policy experts have known for years, is that the right policy generally can't be determined till years later.

Handling foreign policy is like raising a child. You try to do what you figure is right at any given moment, but whether you were right or wrong doesn't come out till the kid is grown, and half the time, whatever it was you did, you can't remember what it was.

In fact, lots of times, the kid will turn out all right, regardless of what you do. Lots of kids grow up in spite of their parents, and I have a notion foreign policy operates along the same lines.

Also, I have a notion that college students protesting foreign policy is about like high school students picketing a university on the grounds the college students aren't studying hard enough, and grammar school pupils picketing high schools, and kindergarten kids picketing grammar schools.

When a crisis turns up in foreign affairs, if you're going to wait till you're absolutely sure you're right, you won't get much work done, which is why I wouldn't be interested in the job.

Foreign affairs is like a doctor - patient relationship. When a man's sick, he wants a doctor, whether the doctor knows what's wrong with him or not. The least the doctor can do is prescribe something.

By the way, if those college students find out about how I run this Johnson grass farm, they'll find so many things I do wrong they could picket this place from now on, which wouldn't be a bad idea, if they'd stand where the fence is weak to turn my cows. Mine isn't as good as the White House's.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D. Commissioner of Health

Ours is a changing world. People are living longer, moving closer together and facing the problems these conditions create.

The life expectancy for most Texans is just over 70 years. Retirement may come anywhere between 50 and 70 year of age.

What will a person do after retirement? Will he continue to live where he is or move closer to the children? What purpose will he - or she - have for life?

Reflecting his concern, Governor John Connally set aside May as Senior Citizen's Month.

Living in a modern world calls for change and adaptation. One of the first major changes occurs when a youngster becomes a man or woman and enters into marriage.

With one-third of the Texas population over 40 years old, an ever-growing percentage of the population faces the possibility of retirement in the years ahead.

Some time ago, Governor Connally designated a committee on aging. As a result, a state-wide program is in progress with a number of local programs assisted by the Governor's committee.

Health-wise, the Texas State Department of Health has some advice, particularly for people in this segment of the population.

As a cardinal rule, have regular physical checkups, even if you are feeling fine.

Your doctor can help you avoid many a pitfall by advising you about diet and proper exercise. He alone can tell you which aches and pains should be disregarded or simply lived with, and which ones should be treated.

As your years increase, there is no reason to assume you will become physically and mentally decrepit, but it is wise to take all reasonable

Design Water System to Meet Need of Crops

Irrigation water management can be defined as the application of irrigation water according to crop and soil needs. This can be accomplished only if there is a designed irrigation system on the farm that is being used as designed.

For irrigation water management, with a sprinkler irrigation system some of the necessary parts are the proper size main and lateral lines, proper size nozzles and adequate pressure.

Necessary components for a surface irrigation system with which irrigation water management can be managed are uniform grade of rows, proper length of irrigation run, and an adequate delivery system.

Therefore, if irrigation water management is practiced as designed irrigation system is essential. By practicing irrigation water management, maximum benefits are derived from irrigation along with the conservation of the life flood of this area "underground water".
