Israelis Vote To Beef Up Sinai Ouster Of Jews Vowed By Sadat

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The Israeli cabinet voted Sunday to strengthen and expand existing settlements in the Sinai despite Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's statement that no Israeli settler or soldier should remain there after a peace agreement.

The decision meant a rejection of proposals by Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon to set up as many as 25 new settlements in the occupied desert peninsula, officials said.

Proposal By Begin Endorsed

It was an endorsement of Prime Minister Menahem Begin's proposal to give up control over the territory while maintaining an Israeli presence in the Rafiah Salient west of the Gaza Strip and along the coast of the Gulf of Aqaba.

At the same time, the cabinet voted down Begin's nomination of Sharon to serve as deputy chairman of the Israeli delegation in political negotiations with Egypt set to start in Jerusalem Jan. 16.

The vote was the first defeat the prime minister suffered in his cabinet since taking office June 20, 1977.

To Enlarge Population

"The government decided to strengthen the existing settlements in the Rafiah Salient and the Gulf of Solomon by expanding the working land and enlarging the civilian population or urban and agricultural settlements," a communique said.

"These civilian settlements, as proposed in the Israeli peace plan, will remain as they are per the arrangement brought to the president of Egypt at Ismailia," the communique said, referring to Begin's Christmas meeting with Sadat.

Sadat, on a two-day visit to Sudan, told a news conference in Khartoum Sunday, "We shall not agree to the presence of any Israeli soldier or civilian after a comprehensive agreement is signed. Let us hope that they (the Israelis) will reconsider their position. If they insist on their old conception, there must be a counter reply from our side."

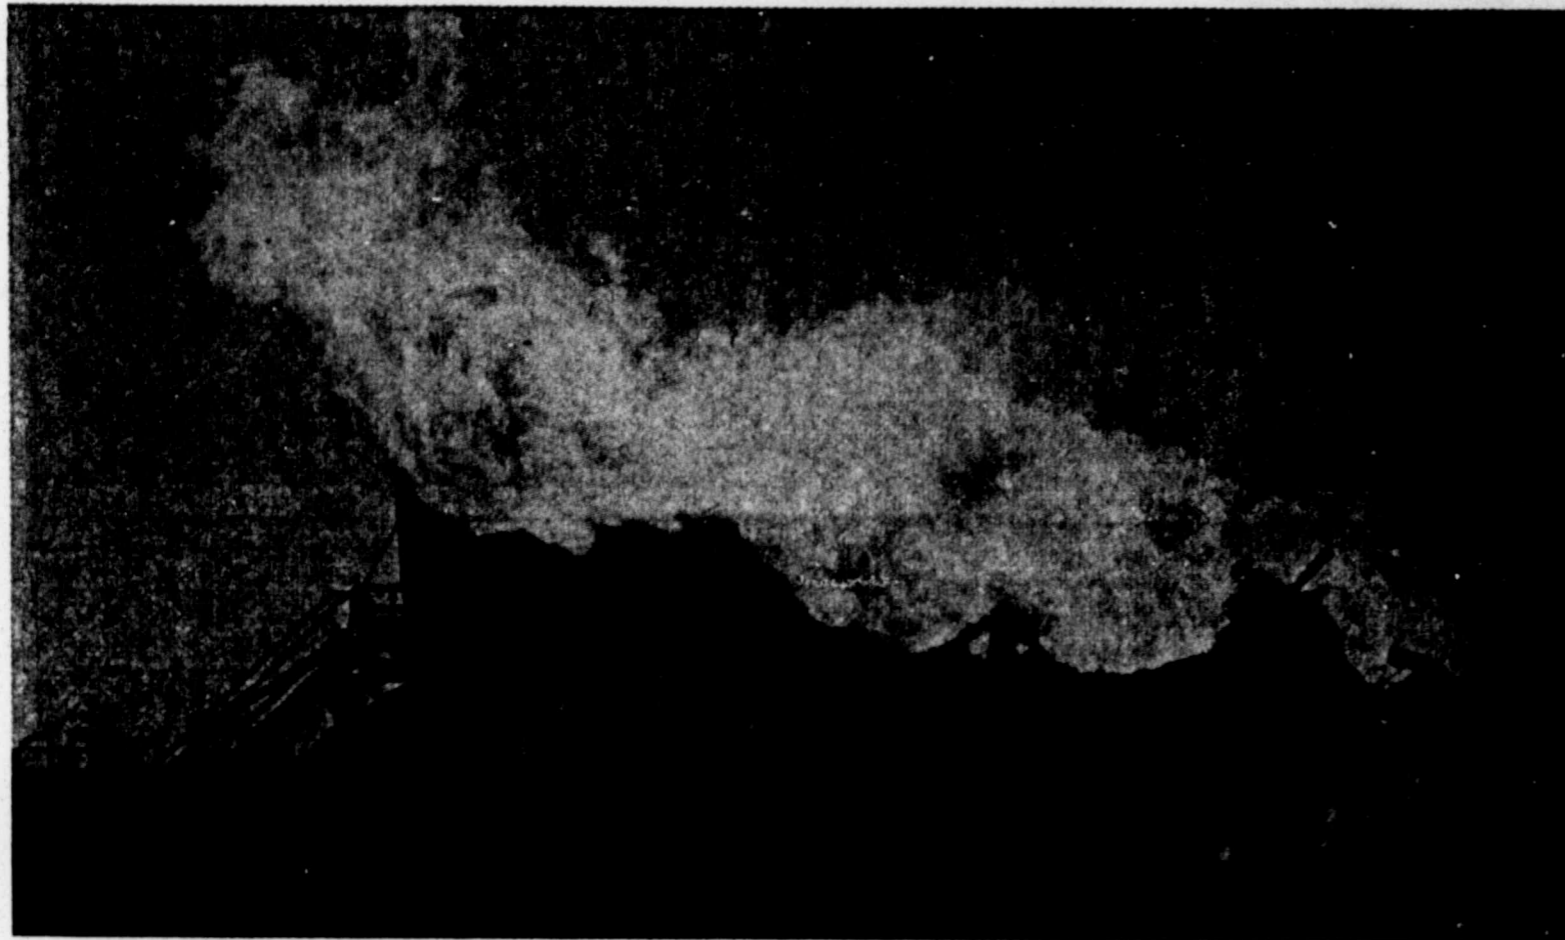

Defensive Force Planned

Begin warned later that Israel could withdraw its proposals to give up control over nearly all the Sinai if Egypt rejects its conditions. "The civilian settlements will remain in place, defended by an Israeli defensive force," Begin said.

He also said Israel has no intention of dismantling or burning its settlements in the Sinai.

The Israeli media had quoted Sadat as telling the Egyptian magazine October that Israel agreed to a complete withdrawal from Sinai and that Israel could "dismantle or set afire" its settlements.

"With friendship and respect I suggest that Israel and Egypt agree to leave the See MIDDLE EAST Page 12

OILWELL INFERNO — Billowing flames erupt into the sky a mile east of Loving, N.M., as an oilwell which blew out Tuesday continued its uncontrolled blaze early today. As oilfield workers and firemen work to clear debris from the melted platform

Attempt To Snuff Fire Near

By PAT TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LOVING, N.M. — Workers from three companies and locally-hired personnel continued the exhausting task of trying to put out a blowout oil well fire Sunday, and observers said enough debris might be cleared by today to allow for a final nitroglycerin blast that's expected to douse the flames.

The well, which belongs jointly to Delta Drilling Co. of Tyler and Amco Co. of Houston, was being drilled on a 13,000-foot contract by Brahaney Drilling Co. of Midland when it blew out about 10 a.m. Tuesday.

About 5:10 a.m. Wednesday, after workers had cleared the area and pulled away equipment that was moveable, the well caught fire, shooting flames a hundred feet into the air in several directions.

It is those undisciplined flames that oilfield workers are hoping to channel into a single tower of fire, allowing firefighters the chance to detonate a charge above the hole.

The blast, say experts, should suck up most of the fire's oxygen and extinguish the flames.

At Carlsbad, 10 miles north of here, Eddy County Sheriff's deputy Don Maxwell said Sunday there still have been no injuries associated either with the blast and fire, or the subsequent mop-up work being conducted by specialists from Red Adair's famed disaster team.

Vigil Maintained

Maxwell said the Eddy County Sheriff's Department would have representatives maintaining a vigil at the scene "around the clock."

Maxwell said the officers had experienced slight problems overnight Saturday and Sunday, when the curious ripped down barricades in their efforts to get closer to the fire that's located about 3/4 of a mile from the nearest paved roadway.

However, no arrests had been made, Maxwell said.

Workers have been coming to the site each day since Wednesday, then leaving at night to return to their homes or a Carlsbad motel.

Experts On Scene

The strategy of the Adair experts so far has been to construct metal shields to protect workers from the heat of the blaze, to stockpile thousands of gallons of water with which to flood the fire and to drag the scuttled wreckage of the well away from the main hole.

Following final cleanup operations, workers hope to blast the fire with nitro-glycerin and shut off the flow of an estimated 1 million cubic feet of natural gas daily.

There is no word on whether Adair will arrive at the scene himself to personally conduct the final operations, Maxwell said.

First Traffic Death Of 1978 Recorded Here

EIGHT DAYS into the new year, Lubbock recorded the first local traffic fatality of 1978 early Sunday when a 20-year-old city man died after his pickup collided with a truck-tractor rig on Avenue A.

After one of the longest periods without a fatal accident in recent months, police responding to a call for assistance in the 3900-block of Avenue A about 5:35 a.m. Sunday found the body of George M. Ramirez pinned inside the wreckage of his overturned 1976 Ford pickup.

Ramirez, of 407 45th St., was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith at the scene of the mishap after attempts to revive him by the police and the driver of the large truck failed.

Police said the truck-tractor driven by Ronnie Powell of Snyder was apparently headed north in the northbound lane of Avenue A while the Ramirez vehicle was traveling south when the collision occurred.

Witnesses reportedly told officers the mishap occurred when the Ramirez auto turned into the path of the oncoming truck-tractor.

On impact, the Ramirez pickup overturned in the middle of Avenue A, while Powell's vehicle jackknifed and slid into a light pole on the side of the street. Powell was uninjured.

Ramirez was born in Lubbock, and was a lifelong city resident.

Services are pending with Resthaven-Singleton-Wilson Funeral Home.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Rosa Ramirez of Lubbock; nine brothers, Pete of Dallas, Sam of Amarillo, Refugio and David of Milford, Ind., and Joe. See FATALITY Page 12

Trade Boards Edgy Over Grain-Buying Threat By Farmers

By United Press International

THE CHICAGO and Kansas Trade Boards are edgy about farmers' plans to force grain prices up to 100 percent parity by making large commodities purchases, an American Agriculture spokesman said Sunday.

Lon Kerr said farmers can purchase their crops through the boards for less than the cost of production. He said many farmers decided to plow their fields under and instead purchase the grain from the markets at the going price.

"Thing is, they don't have enough grain to cover the increased demand and you can bet the price is going to rise when we all demand delivery," he said. "The boards say they have a lot of new customers suddenly and are getting worried."

According to Kerr, the resulting demand and lack of supply will force grain prices up until they hit 100 percent parity, or the amount it costs farmers to grow the crops.

High Costs Cited

"And then it will be worthwhile to grow again, instead of harvesting this paper crop," said the wheat and milo farmer. "You can't even break even now when it costs you more than $5 to grow a bushel and they will only pay you $2.45 or so."

The move to achieve 100 percent parity via the commodities market reflects a growing sophistication in the grass roots movement. However, Kerr said the farmers have not shifted their demand and more farmers are joining each day.

An estimated 500 strike offices have been set up around the country, compared to 200 when the strike was called Dec. 14. He said produce growers in California and Florida have been slow to join, but are starting to come around.

Spreading South In Texas

In Texas, organizers said meetings are planned for today in the lower Rio Grande Valley to spread the movement into south Texas where farmers in the lush vegetable-citrus growing valley have ignored the movement.

George Kowik, a Dilley, Tex., farmer said recruiting efforts would also be stepped up in the coastal bend area where cotton and milo crops prevail.

On the political front, farmers from 41 states will journey to Washington, D.C., Jan. 18 to meet with their respective Senators and Representatives to explain the need for 100 percent parity.

A meeting was also scheduled for Jan. 16 in Kansas City between representatives for American Agriculture and the Senate Agriculture Committee. And Colorado and Kansas farmers have pledged to begin plowing under 10 percent of their crops each week after Jan. 17 until parity reaches 100 percent.

Old System Resurrected

Also in Kansas, Jamie Cutbush has resurrected an old system of milling to prove his point. He will sell the new ground flour at cost to anyone and compare his cost to the price of flour in the stores to prove how little farmers make.

"We do not want federal money. We want the government out," said Cutbush.

ENTERTAINER OF YEAR

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Comedian Tottie Fields, lauded for her nightclub and theater career comeback after a leg amputation and a string of other medical maladies, has been named "Entertainer of the Year" by the American Guild of Variety Artists.

UNWANTED FOR PRO-NAZI ROLE

Recluse Routed From Hiding

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A man who hid for half his life fearing punishment for pro-Nazi wartime activity says he used to cry when he heard happy voices outside, and dared not show himself even at his mother's funeral.

Janez Rus was a 32-year-old shoemaker when he went into hiding at his sister's farmhouse in June 1945, he told the Belgrade newspaper Politika in an interview published Sunday.

Now 64, Rus was discovered last week after his sister bought a large supply of bread in the nearby village of Zalna, in the northwestern Slovenia region, and a suspicious resident alerted police.

Rus learned then that no charges ever had been filed against him and that he was free to resume normal life, Politika said.

"If I had not been discovered, I would have remained in hiding. So I am happy that this happened," Politika quoted him as saying. "Throughout these years I did nothing, and I never left the house. Through the windows I looked down to the village in the valley. People seldom passed by our house, which is isolated in the hills. When I heard happy people singing in the village I cried," Rus said.

He added, "There was no way out and I reconciled myself to the fate of a vanished man."

When his mother died in 1966, Rus said, friends filled the house after the funeral but he remained hidden.

Politika said Rus had served for three months in 1943 with the Communist partisans of Josip Broz, now Yugoslav President Tito. Then Rus was captured by occupying German forces and joined the White Guard, a pro-German group that fought the Communists. But Tito's partisans won.

"When the Germans withdrew," Rus recalled, "I was afraid of what would happen to me. My brother, Jozef Rus, was a well-known partisan and I decided to hide until he returned home. I believed that it would be easier for me, with my brother present, to surrender. But, my brother did not come and the years passed."

After Rus was found last week, he learned that his brother had been killed in action in the partisan ranks in March 1944.

Politika commented that Janez Rus had "sentenced himself to a punishment which no court could pass on him," hiding in his workshop and the attics of the house and barn.

Rus said his living space was too small for much walking and his diet was limited, with little meat. Most of the villagers believed he had died in the war, he said, although periodic purchases of razor blades by his sister Maria, now 75, stirred rumors he was still alive.

When the sister bought eight pounds of bread in late December, police were summoned and found Rus in the attic of the barn.

Asked how he sees Yugoslavia now, Rus said, "I cannot recognize it. It is all changed. Houses are not the ones I remember. People changed their way of dressing."

But he added: "The authorities treated me well and I now really do not know why I went into hiding. If I could get a job, I think I could adjust."

PHOTOGRAPHY AWARD

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal photographer Norm Tindell placed second in the spot news category in the November National Press Photographers Association Clip Contest for the region. His photographs were among 68 entries in the monthly contest for the region, which covers Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico. The pictures show Idalou firemen fighting a fire following a collision between a car and truck Nov. 20, 1977. Two persons died in the mishap. Firefighters lost control of the hose and fireman Joe Romo received a drenching before it was brought under control again. Getting the hose under control, at far right, were Romo, bottom, Chief Leonard Rackley, and fireman Larry Fidler.

Consumers Display Pessimism

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Consumers were more pessimistic about general business conditions at the end of 1977 than they were last summer or a year ago, according to the University of Michigan's quarterly Survey of Consumer Attitudes.

Restoring public confidence in government economic policies is essential to reverse the trend, researchers said Sunday.

The survey, based on interviews with 1,280 Americans across the country last fall, showed a decline in confidence in the government's policies to curb inflation and to boost employment.

"The increased confidence in government economic policy which was evident in early 1977 as President Carter entered office has now been entirely reversed," a report on the survey said.

It noted that the biggest drop in consumer attitudes was among families with annual income of less than $15,000.

Richard Curtin and George Katona of the Survey Research Center said consumers moderated their spending in the last three months of 1977 but remained generally optimistic about their personal finances, with attitudes in that area better than they were a year ago.

However, about half of the people most recently surveyed said they had heard of unfavorable business developments in December 1977, compared with about one third of the people queried three months earlier who said they had heard of general economic troubles.

Eleven percent of the respondents said they believed the government was doing a "good job" in dealing with economic problems, down from 19 percent who felt that way in the previous survey.

About 24 percent in the recent survey said they felt the government was doing a "poor job" in the economic area, compared with 15 percent who expressed that opinion in the earlier survey.

Attitudes toward buying appliances and other large household items were down slightly by the year's end, compared with peaks last summer, the report said. It said opinions toward buying cars and houses were unchanged from September but were higher than a year ago.

While those surveyed believed their personal finances were in good shape, they were not optimistic about further improvement, according to the report. However, more consumers felt they were in a financial position to make a major purchase in December than a year earlier.

"The continued divergence among attitudes and expectations serves to buoy the near-term spending outlook, but dims prospects beyond mid-1978," the report said. "Continued improvement in real incomes will act to bolster consumer demand in the near-term, but restoring confidence in government economic policy is essential to prevent further erosion and to renew an optimistic outlook among consumers."

The surveys, which have been conducted since 1951, now use the consumer attitudes of February 1966 to equal 100 on the Index of Consumer Sentiment. The current level of consumer sentiment is 83.1, a decline of 45 points from the previous survey.

Curtin and Katona noted a pattern of consumer attitude declines about every four years, with depressions in the last quarters of 1966, 1970 and 1974.

"Recent movements are consistent with the continuation of this same pattern, indicating an emerging downturn in future trends," they said.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Student Babysits Plants

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mark Weaver doesn't believe that talking to plants helps them much, and he should know. He's taking care of 400 of the green things in what he calls "a labor of love."

Weaver offered in posters and newspaper ads to care for fellow students' plants during Butler University's between-semester break.

About 50 students took him up on it, including one who left 47 plants in his care. Weaver charged 10 cents per person, regardless of the number of plants.

The plants are boarded in Butler's botany lab, where Weaver, a freshman majoring in Spanish and biological sciences, is an assistant.

Weaver waters the plants and treats some for disease. Some arrived frost-bitten, he said, "because of inadequate protection by their owners during their walk across the campus."

Weaver's donating his earnings to the university's Green Thumb Club.

Town's Name Changes Confusing

CARROLLTON or FINLY, Ind. (AP) — The sign at the edge of town says "Carrollton or Finly," but in truth this central Indiana community has been known by as many as five names.

The problem goes back 131 years, when the settlement was known as Kinder, in honor of Frank Kinder, leader of the Brandywine Township Brass Band. In 1854 a land dealer bought up large tracts in the area and decided to call it Carrollton after a Virginia general he admired. Then it was known as Tailholt, because a local wag described it as "so little, you couldn't even get a tailhold on it."

When the BAO Railroad came through, it changed the name to Reedsville, because there already was a Carrollton on its route. And the U.S. Post Office calls the town Finly, after Congressman Finly Gray, because the other Carrollton has that postmark.

Official Expects Pact Approval

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The chief Panamanian negotiator for the new Panama Canal treaties says he expects that "in effect" the U.S. Senate will ratify the twin pacts turning the waterway over to Panama by the year 2000.

"As time passes, I think we can see a growing current in the Senate that considers these treaties convenient to both countries," Romulo Escobar Betancourt said in an interview broadcast Sunday by Colombia's Caracol radio network.

"I think we can see that in effect the Senate will ratify the treaties," Escobar Betancourt said. "Americans are tough, naturally defending the interests of their country, but once they assume a position, a commitment, an agreement, they keep their word."

Just last Tuesday, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, during a visit to Panama, told Panamanian leader Gen. Omar Torrijos that the treaties stood no chance of ratification in present form.

But Baker also said he believes Torrijos is keeping an open mind about possible changes, and that Escobar Betancourt and Torrijos agree the Senate could modify the treaties in such a way as to avoid a second referendum in Panama.

Panamanian voters approved the pacts in October after President Carter and Torrijos signed them in September. The Senate must give a two-thirds vote of approval before the treaties can take effect.

The Caracol network, Colombia's largest, said the Escobar Betancourt interview was taped in Panama City but did not say when. In the interview, he referred to senators then visiting Panama. Baker, a Tennessee Republican, toured Panama with a group of fellow senators.

Recent polls of U.S. public opinion indicate widespread sentiment against the treaties and Baker, whose vote is considered critical for ratification, said he opposes the pacts as now worded.

Warm Weather Blankets Area, Highs In 50s

Sunny skies and warmer temperatures will blanket the area today, but by Wednesday South Plains residents may see a little rain.

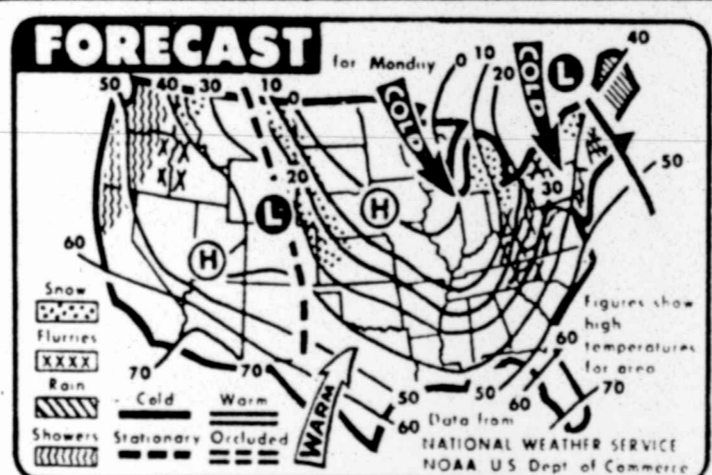

Lubbockites may bask in seven hours of sunshine today, with the high expected to be in the upper 50s. The mercury will plunge to the upper 20s tonight.

Winds will be southerly at 15 to 25 miles per hour and gusty, and wind warnings will be in effect for area lakes.

Forecasters predict no precipitation through Tuesday after an Arctic front rapidly pushed through the state Sunday bringing drier air into the region.

The National Weather Service here predicted a chance for rain by mid-week and a cooler weekend for West Texas.

Fair skies will cover the Lone Star State today, with colder temperatures expected across the northern and northwestern portions.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service predicts snow today in parts of the Northeast, Northwest, Great Plains, and over most of Michigan and northern Ohio. Flurries are expected in sections of the Northwest and over much of the Virginias and adjoining areas. Rain is forecast for the upper Northeast. Showers are expected throughout much of the Northwest. ACCIDENTAL WORK DEATHS
 Accidental work deaths in agriculture totaled 2,100 in 1975. Farm residents were involved in 1,500 of these and the remaining 600 were nonresidents of farms, says the National Safety Council.

The muskrat, native to almost all of the United States and Canada, is named for its two scent glands.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

Rev. 17:12-18, 18:1-7A, The Living Bible

12 His ten horns are ten kings who have not yet risen to power; they will be appointed to their kingdoms for one brief moment, to reign with him.

13 They will all sign a treaty giving their power and strength to him.

14 Together they will wage war against the Lamb, and the Lamb will conquer them; for He is Lord over all lords, and King of kings, and His people are the called and chosen and faithful ones.

15 The oceans, lakes and rivers that the woman is sitting on represent masses of people of every race and nation.

16 The scarlet animal and his ten horns—which represent ten kings who will reign with him—all hate the woman, and will attack her and leave her naked and ravaged by fire.

17 For God will put a plan into their minds, a plan that will carry out His purposes; they will mutually agree to give their authority to the scarlet animal, so that the words of God will be fulfilled.

18 And this woman you saw in your vision represents the great city that rules over the kings of the earth." CHAPTER 18

1 After all this I saw another angel come down from heaven with great authority, and the earth grew bright with his splendor.

2 He gave a mighty shout, "Babylon the Great is fallen, is fallen; she has become a den of demons, a haunt of devils and every kind of evil spirit."

3 For all the nations have drunk the fatal wine of her intense immorality. The rulers of earth have enjoyed themselves with her, and businessmen throughout the world have grown rich from all her luxurious living."

4 Then I heard another voice calling from heaven, "Come away from her, My people; do not take part in her sins, or you will be punished with her."

5 For her sins are piled as high as heaven and God is ready to judge her for her crimes.

6 Do to her as she has done to you, and more—give double penalty for all her evil deeds. She brewed many a cup of woe for others—give twice as much to her.

7 She has lived in luxury and pleasure—match it now with torments and with sorrows.

Rhodesians Stand Firm Amid Dangers

BY KENNETH F. ENGLADE
A-J Special Correspondent

SALISBURY — The perfectly manicured lawn, resplendent with light blue agapanthas, orange day lilies and several varieties of roses, ends abruptly 50 se yards beyond Ian and Margaret Sinclair's veranda.

At the border between lawn and untended land is a eight-foot-tall chainlink fence topped with three strands of barbed wire. It completely surrounds the manor house which, after sundown, becomes a self-sufficient compound.

Rolling Shield

The veranda, a quiet nook decorated with maps, pictures of ducks on the wing and a carved wooden African mask, is enclosed by a metal grate with a padlocked door. Not far away is a head-high metal shield, painted white and mounted on wheels so it can be rolled in front of the windows at night.

"It makes a great screen for slide shows," Ian laughed, thumping the quarter-inch metal plate.

Ian and Margaret operate a tobacco farm in northern Rhodesia near the Zambian border. Not far away is the site where the guerrilla war started five years ago.

So far in the war, two of the Sinclairs' neighbors have been killed and two nearby grocery stores have been sacked a half-dozen times by guerrillas looking for food and clothing. Another neighbor shot and killed three guerrillas trying to scale his fence in a midnight raid.

Porcupine Problems

For the last few months, however, things have been exceptionally quiet, and Ian worries more about controlling the porcupines attacking his melon patch than he does about the guerrillas.

"We still keep an eye out and we still carry a gun when we go out but we have to fight complacency," he said.

Margaret, a tall, slim woman with four children ranging from prepubescent to college age, strolled in just before lunch with an FN rifle in her left hand and an Uzi machine pistol in her right.

"Would you clean these for me, please?" she said, handing the weapons nonchalantly to her teenage son who will probably go into the army in February.

"Thing's numb," she said, rapidly flexing her left index finger. "I've been out firing all morning with the Police Reserves and the whole thing's gone numb."

Although weapons — and the possibility of instant, violent death — are a way of life for Rhodesians, Ian and Margaret would be extremely reluctant to trade their position for another anywhere else.

"As Long As We Can"

"We hope we can live here; we want to stay as long as we can," said Ian, sipping on a gin and tonic. "In the meantime, we'll shoot as many terrorists as we can."

"I'd love to shoot one; I really would," said Margaret, speaking calmly as if she were discussing the price of bread or the previous evening's bridge results.

War changes people and their routines. Acts that seem perfectly normal to Rhodesians — who have accepted war as a fact of life — seem striking to a visitor whose country has not fought a war on its home territory within living memory.

"When I go to bed at night I lock up the compound," Ian said. "At 4:30 in the morning one of my men who has been here longer than I have and sleeps inside the compound knocks on my window to wake me up. I give him the key to open up and then I get up."

The 140 blacks employed year around on the farm sleep in their own fenced, locked compound safely.

Vigilance Needed

So far, the Sinclairs have not been attacked, but they realize it could happen and vigilance would be their first defense.

"I was sound asleep one night and I heard firing from the farm over there," Ian said, pointing toward a range of low, rocky hills. "I got up and stumbled around and went to the radio to report the attack to the police. It seemed like it took me 10 minutes, but when I later asked the policeman how long it had taken me to make the report he said it was three minutes from the time the attack started. Just three minutes but it seemed like 10."

The attackers killed a neighbor who was trying to get his rifle in the bedroom when he was shot. His wife hid behind the sofa and escaped.

The house in which the man was killed is now occupied by Colin and Sheila Bridges and their infant daughter, a young family intent on making farming a career.

Guerrilla Stronghold

Colin, a cheerful, easygoing man in his mid 20s, grows tobacco and corn on the 4,000-acre farm adjoining one of Rhodesia's Tribal Trust Lands — a large area restricted to blacks, similar to the Indian reservations in the United States. TTL's are traditional strongholds for guerrillas infiltrating into Rhodesia from neighboring Mozambique and Zambia.

The Bridges' nearest neighbor is three miles away and the isolation caused some discomfort at first.

"I'm a city girl," said Sheila, a pretty, fresh-faced woman who smiles easily and often.

"After about three months Colin told me if I didn't cut it out I was going to start making him nervous, and if we were both that way we might as well pack it in," she said.

Except for the wire grating on the windows and the ever-present security fence, the Bridges' home looks at first glance like any American farm house: a rambling, brick, single-story structure surrounded by flowers, trees, a barn and a pen for a dozen honking geese. Dogs of dubious heritage and a black, part-Siamese cat cluster underfoot.

Defensive Barrier

Immediately inside the door, however, is a six-foot-tall stone barrier, curving in a gentle "U." It is designed to prevent an attacker from firing directly into the house through the doorway and to keep several people from rushing inside at one time.

In front of the picture window facing the peaceful-looking TTL are the bullet shields, mounted on wheels, so they can be rolled forward at night and back again in the day. Instead of metal, like the Sinclairs', the Bridges' shields are narrow, plywood boxes filled with sand.

"It's sort of a portable sandbag," Colin said.

Stretching into the yard from the bedroom wing of the house is a mound of raw earth, which Sheila is trying to cover with plants. It is the roof of an underground bunker, added as further protection.

Despite the threat of attack, in addition to the normal problems associated with starting a farm, Sheila said she would not trade her life.

"I'd never go back to the city again, not after you get used to the farm."

Country Club Life

Social life for area residents revolves around a country club, central to the encircling farms. The club offers swimming, squash, tennis, golf, polo and a bar where farmers can gather to talk about the war and the price of tobacco.

Tobacco is the main money crop in Rhodesia and, although its sale on the world market is prohibited by sanctions, it still brings in enough to make it profitable.

Even if the farmers are no longer making as large profits as they once were, most of them plan to stay.

"We farmers are the ones who keep you chaps in the city from being attacked by the terrors," Ian said, only half joking.

Like all men in Rhodesia, Ian and Colin serve in the reserves. Each spends three months a year in the bush in intervals of 14 to 30 days.

"When Colin goes into the bush, we laager (an Afrikaans word meaning to form a circle of wagons)," Sheila said.

No Staying Alone

"The security forces don't let any women stay alone on a farm while her husband's in the bush, so when Colin does his callup I've been staying with a girl friend of mine and her husband. I can come to my house in the daytime, but not before eight in the morning, and I have to leave by 3:30 in the afternoon."

"Now Colin and my friend's husband have been put in the same stick (unit) so they'll be doing call-up together and we'll have to go somewhere else."

In addition to the tobacco he grows on his 6,000-acre farm, Ian also runs more than 100 head of cattle, grows corn commercially and keeps up a sizeable patch of table vegetables.

"My problem right now is keeping porcupines out of the melons," he said, kicking a half-eaten watermelon, rotting in the noonday sun.

"We used to have a boy, sleeping in that hut over there, who kept the animals out of the vegetables at night. Now they all go to sleep in the compound because of the security situation."

Eastern Border "Hotter"

While the section of northern Rhodesia where the Sinclairs and Bridges farm is not "hot" at the moment there is more than enough action to suit the farmers along the eastern borders, who are constantly on the alert for a possible attack from guerrillas operating out of neighboring Mozambique.

Besides the possibility of direct attack, farmers in the east and the south face the danger of land mines, discarded like banana skins along infiltration routes that plunge into the heart of Rhodesia.

"If you have any sense you are constantly on the alert and you react to the unusual, whatever it may be," one farmer said.

"Never allow yourself to be surprised," another suggested. "It pays to be suspicious about everything — and if you aren't sometimes frightened, then you're a fool."

In contrast to the Sinclairs and the Bridges, who now feel safe enough to visit the local club or drive to a neighbor's house for dinner, the farmers in the east seldom go out at night, and when they do they're almost always armed. Weapons are seldom far from reach, even at social functions.

Reception Security

One farmer, whose daughter was getting married, planned the security precautions for the reception as well as his wife mapped out arrangements for the food and drinks.

"We will have plenty of weapons available, but not too obvious," he said. "The real worry will be the guests from Salisbury, and we'll have to be sure they start home in time."

In the south, where cattle ranching is big business, the problems are a little different.

There the major concern at present is how to stop guerrillas or larcenous natives who round up grazing cattle, then drive them off into isolated areas for butchering or sale.

Officials say thousands of cattle have been stolen this year, mainly

LIVING BEHIND A FENCE — Security precautions have become routine for Rhodesia's rural residents. Almost all farmers live behind 8-foot-tall chainlink fences topped with barbed wire — the basic line of defense against guerrilla at-

in the period beginning in May at the start of the dry season.

Rustlers' Pattern

In the ranch land, the pattern is the same. Rustlers round up as many cattle as they can and drive them into the sprawling, isolated TTLs where they are slaughtered and all identifying marks, such as hides and marked horns, are destroyed. The bulk of the meat undoubtedly goes to guerrilla bands who eat it fresh or dry it for biltong (jerky). What's left is sold to black farmers, sometimes as cheaply as $1.50 to $3 for a quarter beef.

"Cattle thefts are a greater threat to our livelihood than terrorism," one rancher said. "If they shoot at you, you can shoot back, but if they take away your livelihood you've lost your living from the land."

To help stem the tide, ranchers have hired special anti-rustling teams to help the police counter-thief units and keep the responsibility for tracking down rustlers off the backs of the soldiers, who are busy fighting more conventional guerrillas.

"We've got to the point where cattle thefts are so severe it's either them or us. We can't just sit there and let them plunder us until there's nothing left. If they kill us, they kill us," one rancher said.

Five Killed

In October and November, in the southwestern part of the country alone, five alleged rustlers were shot and killed and an unknown number wounded.

"Stock theft is on the No. 1 schedule with rape, murder and so on," a rancher explained. "When a person committing a crime runs away and doesn't stop when you tell him, you have the right to shoot him. That's the law of the land."

Ranchers, like farmers, also live behind tall wire fences inside tightly locked compounds. One rancher said that in six months he has spent $75,000 on protection: reinforced vehicles to help shield against landmine blasts, fencing, weapons and spotlights to flood the area in case of attack.

Security precautions have become such a way of life in most rural areas that farmers don't even notice it until they go to the city where restrictions are easier.

"Suddenly the stress is no longer there and you feel exhausted," one farm wife said.

Peace Worrisome, Too

Rhodesian farmers seem to have adjusted to the changes necessitated by war. They are not so sure about what changes might be necessary if peace finally comes.

Most whites in this California-sized country are optimistic about the peace plan outlined in late November by Prime Minister Ian Smith. However, they still have a number of reservations about what form black rule will take.

"I'm hoping the moderates will come to power," Ian Sinclair said. "There's a chance we could get a good African running this country, but right now I don't see one."

"I think an internal settlement (involving Smith and black leaders living inside Rhodesia) is about the only settlement we can hope for," he said.

Still, he is apprehensive about the sudden switch from white minority to black majority rule.

"It Would Be Confusion"

"The laborers (most of Rhodesia's 6.8 million blacks are rural) don't want the whites to leave. If we had to push off, unless there was a fantastic subsidy to support these blokes, it would be confusion for a couple of years. We keep them going. If the government hands over everything to these blacks we'll get tribalism coming in," he said.

The Bridges and Sinclairs are all natives of southern Africa. Colin Bridges and Margaret Sinclair are Rhodesians; Sheila Bridges was born in Zambia and Ian is from South Africa.

Even though Ian's older son is almost certain to be drafted early in 1978 under a new law cancelling college deferments inside Rhodesia, he will make no attempt to enroll him in a university out of the country.

"I think people who feel they should get their children out of the country to get out of the army should get out themselves. I think it would be very disloyal to send your son down south (South Africa) to go to school. They would be evading their duty. I know a lot of people feel that way, but it's not the right attitude.

Until things are settled, Rhodesia's farmers will continue to make adjustments in their life styles; they'll continue to fight a shooting war to hold on to their property.

'He Wears It 'Til He's Sure There's No Microphone'

JAY HARRIS:

It Takes Two...

HOW MUCH DOES job attitude and "service with a smile" play in a company's success? To listen to both workers and customers, the answer is Plenty!

That is, if one has a satisfied worker, someone happy in what they are doing, and who is interested in "serving" people in the sense of being helpful, then chances are 100 to 1 there also is a satisfied customer.

The business of Keeping People Happy, those who work and those who buy, is "what it's all about" these days.

Books have been written about it. Consultants lecture about it. Researchers pay almost as much attention to it as they do those boudoir how-to surveys. In brief, how to keep 'em happy on both sides of the work bench is the "in" thing.

NOT SO LONG ago, a U.S. News & World Report devoted a double page spread to the problem of what it called "Service With A Smile. What Business Is Doing About It."

Earlier, the now defunct National Observer had an item which dealt with "What Does It Take To Make You Happy At Your Work?"

In the first study, U.S. News made note of a bushel of "horror" out there, from a Houston family which was ignored for 15 minutes at a restaurant table to a Detroit woman who had the same experience at a cosmetics counter.

Other customer complaints range from those concerning auto repairs to food takeout problems. According to the study, the problem is going to get worse before it gets better, although there are those who are doing something about it.

ONE OF THE reasons for "man's inhumanity to man" in the market place may be the "anonymity" of doing business these days, some suggest.

A Houston retailer man put it this way: "You can lecture all you want on customer service, but I think this is just representative of the times in which we live. The friendly, personal approach is becoming a thing of the past."

Well, maybe. There are those who are seeking to reverse the trend, if such it is. Subtle and not-so-subtle reminders that the customer is something special are being tried in several parts of the nation.

One store tried ringing a bell as such a reminder. Another passed out "Smile" buttons, another "What's Your Beef?" pin-ons. Some large chain operations have in-house training sessions, with recognition and rewards. Some say they hire college youngsters because they are fresh, have a happy attitude and don't expect to take over the joint the first day.

HAVING BEEN on both ends of the business over some four decades now, we naturally have a few ideas on what makes Johnny and Johanne tick.

Obviously, what side of the bed one leaves to face "the rat race" each day plays a role. But the bromide doesn't have to rule our lives.

That is the point that Researchers Lotte Bailyn and Edgar H. Schein made in The National Observer item.

The two MIT researchers say that how much satisfaction people get out of their jobs may have less to do with the actual work they perform than with their total outlook on life.

In other words, "the idea that the job is 'it' is unrealistic," says Bailyn. "And it leads to frustration on the employee's part and inefficiency to the company."

THE TWO EXPERTS say that most persons have "career anchors" which play a key role in determining what each of us wants to be, what makes us happy in our work.

There are five such "anchors," according to the MIT pros.

They are: 1. Managerial Competence, the case where a worker not only is capable in a technical sense but has the ability to "run the store," and, just as importantly, wants to; 2. Technical-Functional Competence, the case where a person is more satisfied in exercising his or her technical talents and wants to stay put.

3. Security, the case where a worker is as much motivated by a stabilized career in which job security and a decent income is paramount, not wanting to take risks; 4. Creativity, a complex value, which usually applies to the person who wants to build, promote and sell his own handiwork, and 5. Autonomy and Independence, the area in which a person wants to more or less "be his own boss," to avoid the curbs of organization.

ALL OF THESE criteria apply to the more educated and professionally trained person, whether worker or supervisor or boss.

But, motivation can apply to anyone. The key is to find what makes the worker tick. Of course, once the main motivation was the desire to eat, With a Welfare State, even that has been diluted to a great extent. But, the key question remains: What is one willing to expend of himself in order to get what he wants?

If everything from restaurants to cosmetic bars could come up with that answer, then half the battle would be won. The other half rests on sensible, aggressive and fair management. With both, we should have a state of Utopia as well as Euphoria.

Well, perhaps not. No treatise on this subject would be complete without taking note of the fact that the customer "ain't always right," despite what the manuals say.

All too often, the customer can be as demanding, as over-bearing, as unfair and unreasonable as any indolent waiter, clerk or repair person alive. All too often, the customer invites bad service.

Fortunately, we here in this neck of the woods, enjoy—for the most part—good relations and service on both sides of the counter. But, let's face it, it takes effort, and a smile, on the part of both the worker and the customer. In the final analysis, they are one and the same!

Q. "IN A LOT of theaters, the waiting room right offstage, where actors stand by for entry cues, is called the 'green room.' Why?"

A. Most such cubicles have been painted green on the theory the color was easy on the eyes after the blinding glare of the stage lights.

What, you weren't aware that "diligence" is another name for "stagecoach"?

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Far from heeding President Carter's warnings against continued Cuban military activity in Africa, Fidel Castro is quickly enlarging his expeditionary force in Ethiopia and keeping his huge Angolan force at its present level of roughly 20,000 troops and a few thousand civilians.

Thus, this assessment of the first hard wave of Carter's anti-Castro rhetoric following his earlier sweet talk about reestablishing full diplomatic relations with Cuba: zero impact.

That raises an ominous question for the second year of the Carter presidency. Does the U.S. lack the means to deal with Castro's aggressive foreign policy, now based on the export of military power?

So far, the answer is yes, although top U.S. officials are seeking a new policy.

Clearly, it has been revealed to the President's top foreign policy men that a warning from the United States no longer brings results.

"FRANKLY, I MUST say that our recent efforts to influence Prime Minister Castro have done nothing so far," one top presidential adviser told us.

Accidentally or not, the Carter administration's reluctant decision to publicize rising Cuban and Soviet military involvement in Angola and Ethiopia has coincided with an increase in Cuban forces into Ethiopia.

Cuban pilots may now be flying combat missions for Ethiopia's revolutionary government.

Cuban military advisers, originally intended only for training purposes in Ethiopia, are now taking part in combat missions.

Cuban troops are essential to keep in power the Marxist regime of Agostinho Neto in Angola.

Most significantly, Castro's propaganda organs at home are for the first time boasting about the military blessings the little island nation of Cuba has brought underdeveloped Africa.

THE COVER OF THE magazine Siempre shows a massive Soviet-built Cuban tank in the jungle, with an African on top armed with a bow and arrow.

While Castro slowly escalated his African adventures, the extent of the commitment was concealed back home.

Cuban expeditionary troops were recruited from widely spaced villages and towns, apparently to diminish the negative impact of growing casualties.

That toll is estimated at between 3,000 and 4,000 killed and wounded—equal, in terms of the U.S. population, to nearly 100,000.

Now, the time for possible concealment seems long since past. Ambitious to become maximum leader of the revolutionary world, Castro is trying to make a domestic virtue of his foreign entanglements.

In attempting to quickly move the U.S. from spectator to actor in the escalating African drama, the Carter administration is more worried than it lets on about Cuba's rising involvement in Ethiopia.

SOME HIGHLY-PLACED experts glumly predict that Castro may be aiming at a Cuban force in Ethiopia on the same scale as the 20,000-man force far to the south in Angola.

In both Angola and Ethiopia, Soviet arms and equipment supply the war material in ever increasing amounts. An estimated $800 million worth has been sent to Ethiopia alone since the Soviets switched clients from Somalia to Ethiopia.

If Cuban escalation in Ethiopia even approaches its stake in Angola, Castro could bog down in a war even wider and less winnable than he already faces in Angola.

But Carter administration officials no longer cheer the prospect of a Fidel Castro "bogged down" in Angola or Ethiopia.

RATHER, LONG-TERM, escalating Cuban influence from one end of the continent to the other is beginning to be viewed here with more realism.

The Cubans signal to the rest of the world that the Soviet Union, exploiting Cuban fighting men using Soviet equipment, has freedom of action almost anywhere it wants in turbulent Africa; the U.S. claiming to be above the battle, appeals to sweet reason and issues soft complaints.

The mood in Carter's administration at least seems to be edging away from the post-Vietnam era of soft complaints.

Still lacking, however, is a workable substitute policy, perhaps one that denies to Havana and Moscow what they demand from the U.S. in trade and other joint undertakings.

That Carter policymakers are even approaching such a change of heart tells much about their learning process in the first year. Just possibly, it portends a larger share of realism in the second.

AN EDITORIAL:

A Finger In The Dollar Dyke

THE DECLINE of the value of a dollar in relation to other major currencies may have the exchange markets in a turmoil and the governments of our major economic associates in a fret, but until lately Washington could not have appeared to be less worried.

If may be that as long as the U.S. is able to maintain reasonable price stability at home, it is indifferent to the fluctuations of the dollar abroad and to the effect on other economies.

Or it may be that the U.S. is very much aware of such effects, but is looking for those other economies to solve the problem for it.

THE CARTER administration appears to view the dollar decline, and the massive balance of payments deficit which is its immediate cause, as essentially a reflection of the U.S. economy's high growth rate.

This it sees as a healthy situation, not only for the U.S. but abroad since it stimulates economic activity throughout the free world.

Consequently, Washington is leaning on the governments of the next two strongest economies, Japan and West Germany, to help speed things along by following its own expansionary example.

AN EDITORIAL:

'Informal' Right To Know

AN INTERESTING point was made by a state appeals court in New York when it ruled that newspaper reporters are entitled to cover "informal" city council meetings.

It is the entire decision-making process, not just the decision itself, that the public has a legitimate interest in and right to know, the court ruled.

The case arose under New York's Open Meetings Law. The Middletown Times Herald-Record had sent two reporters to cover an unpublicized Newburgh City Council session on Jan. 3, 1977.

The reporters were turned away and the newspaper sued.

MEMBERS OF the City Council contended that, although they would be discussing urban renewal of the waterfront area during the meeting, no vote would be taken and, therefore, the session was not subject to the Open Meetings Law.

Although a lower-court judge agreed with the Council, he was overruled by the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

It is essential to the maintenance of a democratic society, the court held, "that the public business be performed in an open and public manner."

M. STANTON EVANS:

'Second' Oswald Suspect Unearthed By Research

WASHINGTON—The assassin of President John F. Kennedy was most probably an agent of the Soviet KGB, but data pointing in this direction were systematically suppressed by the American government.

Such are the shocking conclusions reached by noted British author-solicitor Michael Eddowes, after an intensive review of the evidence surrounding the assassination, much of it only recently made available.

Eddowes' researchers are detailed in a study entitled "The Oswald File" (Clarkson Potter).

A certain key respects—most obviously the existence of an official cover-up—it draws strong support from the recent release of data on the assassination by the FBI.

As Eddowes shows, the evidence linking Lee Harvey Oswald to the international Communist conspiracy is massive, though often ignored in public commentary.

THE ASSASSIN HAD lived in the Soviet Union and was married to the niece of a colonel in the KGB, herself a member of the Communist Youth League.

He was a self-professed Marxist, a fanatical admirer of Fidel Castro and a devotee of such Marxist causes and publications as the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, the Socialist Workers Party and "The Worker," newspaper of the Communist Party U.S.A.

Moreover, Oswald maintained his contacts with the Soviets up until the eve of the Kennedy murder.

Two months before the assassination, Oswald returned to Mexico where he made contact not only with the Cuban but with the Soviet embassy—both directly and through an intermediary—and conferred with one or more representatives of the KGB.

He made this trip in the company of a mysterious operative traveling under a pseudonym and apparently planned to escape to the Soviet Union via Cuba immediately after the assassination.

MOST IMPORTANT, Eddowes shows, Oswald wrote the Soviet embassy in Washington on Nov. 9, 1963—less than two weeks before the Kennedy murder—reporting his activities in Mexico.

In this letter he referred to his visit to the Soviet embassy in Mexico City, noted his desire to go to the Soviet embassy in Havana "to complete our business" and told the Soviets the FBI was no longer interested in his former activities with the pro-Castro Fair Play for Cuba Committee in New Orleans.

Eddowes also reveals the assassin's wallet was found after the assassination to be stuffed with papers containing the addresses of the Soviet embassy in Washington, the Communist "Worker" and the Fair Play for the Cuba Committee.

FURTHERMORE, various documents, both real and forged, established his identity as Oswald and as "Alek James Hidell."

Eddowes speculates that Oswald murdered Kennedy was a Soviet plant from the beginning, having assumed the identity of the obscure ex-Marine who defected to the U.S.S.R. in 1959.

These and other linkages to the Communist apparatus are explored at length by Eddowes, who observes that the existence of such data was routinely ignored or downplayed by the Warren Commission.

The reason for this policy, he shows, was a determination by President Lyndon Johnson and his advisers that any finding of Soviet or other Communist conspiracy to murder Kennedy would lead to war.

Investigators were in effect told to keep their mouths shut about this matter, and evidence bearing on it was whisked away from the Dallas police.

THAT THERE WAS indeed a cover-up on this point is amply suggested by the FBI files, which indicate that Director J. Edgar Hoover was concerned about a possible Communist conspiracy and sought to pursue this notion.

But he (Hoover) ran head on into the desire of the Justice Department and Warren Commission to "prove a negative."

Namely, that there was no conspiracy and that Oswald acted alone, and that this conclusion should be promulgated to the American people as convincingly and as rapidly as possible.

Other Washington chateaux have complained that White House parties are dull, and the food and drink commonplace.

In fact, the Carters' life-style is good of Georgian country boy Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., has remarked acridly on what he calls too many blue jeans in the White House.

OTHERS HAVE SAID the mansion has become untidy as a result of the Carter's frugality in the broom-and-mop department.

It is a situation the working stiff can accept without apprehension that the Republic's foundations have been fatally weakened. Jimmy Carter came to Washington promising to be different. He would not, he said, be a "social President" because there was too much work to do.

This may be all for the best. Hamilton Jordan, chief of the White House chiefs, was put in trouble by newspaper reports that he had admired and fondled the bodice of the Egyptian Ambassador's wife at a Barbara Walters shindig.

Press Secretary Jody Powell has been known to talk barnyard language—even in the politest of company.

OBVIOUSLY, THE Carter people are more at home with folks of their own social persuasion. It may be that the Jordans et al are a touch bored by what passes for high society in this hamlet of hustle.

Although they do not put it in so many words, those in working residence at the White House obviously have decided that they are not obliged to adjust to Washington. That is not the boss's style.

Unlike Lyndon Johnson, Jimmy Carter does not pry members of Congress with expensive hooch when he has them in to talk business. He, well, talks business. He seems to feel this saves time, an old-fashioned but outrageously unreasonable idea.

AS FOR MRS. Carter's cloth coat, I do not believe she has been crushed by its critics. One recalls the aplomb shown by Mrs. Richard Nixon when Mrs. Teddy Kennedy showed up at a White House luncheon sporting a see-through blouse, blue bra, long wet-look skirt, and black Cossack boots.

Asked to comment, Mrs. Nixon delivered one of the social season's most artful put-downs. "Really," she replied, "I didn't notice what she was wearing."

That remark had to rank as the unkindest cut of all. Women, bless their hearts, don't care what other women say about their attire so long as they say something.

To have a female claim she didn't notice what another female was wearing is tantamount to a declaration of war.

If she cares, which is doubtful, Rosalynn Carter can take comfort in the knowledge that her cloth coat was not damaged by inattention.

Hypnosis By Sheriff Brings Evidence To Light

By DEAN GLAZE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

HEREFORD — With the assistance of a most uncommon bloodhound, Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson can trail criminals where few lawmen can follow.

McPherson is a certified forensic hypnotist, one of two in the state. He has been using hypnosis for about 1 1/2 years to "trail" criminals through the subconscious of witnesses and victims by helping them recall details of crimes.

"Generally the cases we get are unsolvable," says McPherson. "We just refresh a person's memory to where they can tell what they saw."

"There's nothing deep, dark and secretive about it." McPherson uses hypnosis to draw out details repressed into a person's subconscious as a result of the fear and trauma suffered during a crime.

Identification obtained through hypnosis was used in nabbing a suspect in the "traveling rapist" case here last July. One of the victims, a Hereford woman, suffered 14 stab wounds and numerous broken facial bones in an attack.

"When I first started interviewing her, she spent most of the time under the desk everytime someone rattled something," McPherson said.

But after four sessions of hypnosis with McPherson, the victim had complete recall of the attack.

McPherson said he used the "reporter method" in which the victim was told she would suffer no pain because she was going to be a reporter and would see the attack through a camera.

"She completely separated herself," McPherson said. "She related the whole incident in third person."

"We told her she would not remember any part of it until such time as her mind could handle it," McPherson said. Each time the victim was hypnotized, she was told she would remember only things that were easy for her to recall.

"Right now, she can sit down and tell you about it and it doesn't bother her at all," he said.

"We are promoting hypnosis for use in rape investigations because it does so much good. I really never had an appreciation for what a rape victim goes through until after we started using hypnosis."

As result, McPherson has been named to the Amarillo Rape-Crisis Center Regional Board.

McPherson says his interest in hypnosis and psychology began in high school. "If I had it to do all over again, I might have become a psychiatrist."

He was first hypnotized in a college biology class while the teacher was trying to hypnotize another student.

He attended classes at the Law Enforcement Hypnosis Institute at the Los Angeles Police Department where six psychologists are employed. Every officer above the rank of lieutenant is a trained forensic hypnotist.

On the staff of psychologists at the institute is Dr. William Kroger, a pioneer in the use of hypnosis in criminal investigation. He was brought in to obtain identification of the persons involved in the mass kidnapping in Chowchilla, Calif., last year.

Dr. Kroger brought forensic hypnosis to the L.A. Police Department four years ago. He learned about it in Israel where victims of bombings were hypnotized to obtain identification of the culprits.

McPherson has found other uses for his talent. "My wife does not like to get up early, especially to cook breakfast, but she does like to be hypnotized," McPherson said. "One time, I told her she would feel a great reward by getting up every morning at 7."

According to McPherson, all went well until his wife read about the hypnotic suggestion in the local paper.

In his hypnosis sessions McPherson says he uses "the eye fixation method," although sometimes he uses a tape recording of a peaceful setting such as a seashore, to help the person relax.

The subject is seated in a comfortable chair with feet flat on the floor. McPherson has them fix their eyes on one certain object and devote all their attention to what he has to say.

"Normally, if we can spend about 20 minutes to an hour beforehand and explain what hypnosis does and what we are doing and win their confidence, then all they have to do is to concentrate."

The way questions are phrased to a person under hypnosis is very important, McPherson said, "because the questions are taken very literally."

Questioning becomes very deliberate and sessions sometime last four hours. McPherson said it becomes easy to ask the wrong question and get the wrong answer. So, McPherson works with Jim LaFavers, an Amarillo detective who also is a forensic hypnotist. LaFavers takes notes and points out wrongly worded questions.

McPherson is quick to point out that it is not the hypnotist's objective to delve into the private life. The sessions are recorded not only for presentation in court, but also to give the subject the opportunity to hear the contents of the session.

Although McPherson's services have been requested by law enforcement agencies across the state, he still feels the state is too skeptical of forensic hypnosis and wants to wait and see how it works out elsewhere.

Hunt Estate Suit Filed

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — An elderly Atlanta woman who says she was secretly married to the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt during the period when he made his first $1 million goes to federal court here Monday to argue her claim against his estate.

Frana Tye Lee claims she was married to Hunt from 1925 to 1934, and that he fathered her four children during the time. She says the marriage ended when she learned that Hunt was married to another woman at the same time.

She seeks half the property that Hunt acquired during the marriage and half the income the property has generated since then.

Records show that Hunt married Lyda Bunker of Lake Village, Ark., in 1914. She died in 1955 and two years later he married Ruth Ray, a divorcee who used to work in a Hunt oil office here. He also adopted her four children.

When Hunt died in Dallas in 1974, he was one of the world's richest men.

Because of Hunt's immense wealth and intricate holdings, there are no reliable estimates of how much money Mrs. Lee's property claims involve.

The suit against his estate was filed by Mrs. Lee two years ago in Baton Rouge, La., and was moved to the Shreveport court of U.S. District Judge Tom Staggs because she said she and Hunt lived here after being married in Tampa, Fla.

Florida officials say they found no original marriage certificate.

Potter County Removal Suit Goes To Trial

AMARILLO (UPI) — Potter County Attorney Kerry Knorpp, accused of depositing county money in his personal account, goes on trial today in a suit filed to remove him from office.

The suit was filed Aug. 10. It accused Knorpp of using county money advanced to him for out-of-town trips for personal expenses before reimbursing the funds.

A retired district judge, Arthur R. Tipps of Wichita Falls, was appointed to hear the ouster suit. Tipps ordered Knorpp temporarily suspended Oct. 7 and appointed Edward L. Poole acting county attorney.

Knorpp has filed court papers asking Tipps to order county officials to pay him $500,000 damages plus $500 a day. Knorpp, who remains on full salary, wants the damages turned over to the county treasury.

Knorpp is accused of depositing in his personal account a $225 check drawn on the National College of District Attorneys. The suit alleges Knorpp used the money personally when it was intended to refund the county for money advanced to him.

He also is accused of depositing in his account six Texas District and County Attorneys Association checks totaling $1,063.56 and used the money personally, while the funds were intended for refunding the county.

Former President Lauds Begin, Sadat

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former president Gerald Ford says he credits the leaders of Egypt and Israel for the current Mideast peace efforts and believes that Carter's trip to Aswan helped.

"I believe there are more pluses from (from Carter's trip) than minuses," Ford said at a news conference before a speech to supporters of Jewish charities.

Sleepy Men Lose $410 In Robbery

Four knife-wielding bandits woke a 40-year-old Lubbock man from his sleep early Sunday, robbed him and his roommate of $410 and then locked both men in a bathroom at their home before fleeing.

Jesse M. Garcia of 312 E. 34th St. No. 18 told officers called to his home about 2:15 a.m. Sunday the men knocked on his door and began pushing him around as soon as he answered their persistent knocking.

Garcia said the men claimed to be looking for a 30-caliber rifle he had purchased earlier in the week, but once inside, their actions grew rougher than just talking.

One of the four men kicked him in the eye, while others beat his roommate, Joe Martinez. With pistols and knives pointed at both men, one of the four went through their pants' pockets and took the $410, Garcia said.

Both men were ordered into a bathroom at the residence and locked inside, Garcia told police.

Temper flaring once more across the city sent a 40-year-old man to Methodist Hospital with gunshot wounds to the side late Saturday.

The man told officers he had been arguing with a woman at an address in the 2800-block of Weber Drive earlier in the night.

He became upset, he said, and ordered the woman to get out of his car parked outside the home. She did, but once outside, she shot him twice in the side, he claimed.

Her victim was in satisfactory condition in Methodist Hospital late Sunday.

Joe Arispe of 2306 Ave. L told police someone jumped him in the alley behind the 2800-block of Avenue T about 1:20 a.m. Sunday and then beat him severely once they had him pinned to the ground.

A 15-year-old Lubbock youth also told officers he was beaten. The youth said he was injured in a fight in the 400-block of Quirt Avenue about 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Burglars continued to wreak havoc across the city, making off with some of just about everything imaginable.

Steve Wayne Robbins of Hereford told Lubbock police someone apparently took $2,015 worth of furniture from an address near 20th Street and Avenue S Friday or Saturday.

Burglars took a door off a house under construction in the 3000-block of 79th Street sometime before 8 a.m. Saturday, according to Ed Gotcher, who reported the theft of the $600 door.

Burglars also took a $1,245 stereo system from the home of Cora McKowan of 2205 32nd St. sometime Friday or Saturday, she told police.

Bobby Lee of 6001 W. 34th St. No. 220 also told police someone stole his stereo between 3:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday.

A $60 rifle and other items were reportedly taken from Harold Brewer's car while the Comanche man had left it parked outside a 36th Street gas station.

Eugene Charles Gill of 1901 25th St. told police someone took a $350 television set from his home sometime early last week.

While an 11-year-old Lubbock girl watched television in her East 1st Street home about 3:30 a.m. Saturday, someone apparently climbed through a window and stole a watch and her billfold from another room, she told police.

A.L. Vaughn told police he caught a burglar inside his 1325 47th St. home about 3:30 p.m. Saturday, but before he was sure what was going on, the man had fled the address with $4 worth of old coins.

Gary D. Miller of 4619 Detroit Ave. told police someone removed $610 worth of clothing, $50 in cash and several eight-track tapes from his home between Christmas and New Year's Day.

Eilton Conger of Strugg's Junior High School told police someone took $345 worth of tools from the school's shop between 2:30 p.m. Friday and 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

One-Car Wreck Fatal To Two

KRESS (Special) — Two De Soto men died early Sunday only hours after their 1972 Pontiac left the roadway and crashed into a culvert beside U.S. 87 near here.

Department of Public Safety troopers said 20-year-old Robert Joseph Deramee died about 5 a.m. Sunday in Swisher Memorial Hospital, while the driver of the vehicle, 18-year-old Mark Steven Augspurger was being transferred to Amarillo's Northwest Texas Hospital for treatment of massive head injuries.

Hospital officials said the youth died there a short time after arriving.

DPS investigators said the auto was southbound on U.S. 87 about 2.8 miles north of here in Swisher County when it apparently left the road and crashed into the culvert about 2:50 a.m. Sunday.

Services for both men are pending with West Funeral Home in De Soto.

PRICE OF PROGRESS — This oilwell blowout fire, burning out of control the past five days near Loving, N.M., is gobbling up an estimated 10 million cubic feet of natural gas daily. Observers estimate the cost of burned gas at $15,000 per day. However, most of the damage was to a 162-foot derrick and platform which was destroyed when the blown out well erupted in flames early Wednesday. A-J photographer Gary Davis captured most of these fire pictures from a distance of three-quarters of a mile. The top photo shows the unattended fire raging out of control during the night, while the photo (top right) shows the scene from a slightly different perspective at day. A shielded bulldozer is visible in the photo, at right. The workmen pour a powerful stream of water onto the blaze from behind their temporary heat shields (middle photo), while others (bottom photo) drag remnants of the melted oilwell structure away from the fire. After the well area is cleared of debris, firefighters hope to blow out the fire using explosives.

Fire Sightseers Pose Problem For Police, Property Owners

LOVING, N.M. — Rocky Garcia rolled down the window on his blue-and-white squad car, dropped a pillow off the top of his seat and surveyed the latest thrill seeker to amble up.

"Howdy," he said cheerfully. Garcia, an officer with the New Mexico State Police and a Carlsbad resident the past 17 years, was pulling extra duty last week at the Calebra Bluff site, where an oil well blew out Tuesday morning before exploding into flames 19 hours later.

Garcia is used to having visitors appear at his squad car at odd hours of the night.

In the first hours after the 11,769-foot deep well exploded with a blaze of orange and a deafening roar, Garcia estimates "eight to 10 thousand" persons made the pilgrimage to see the fire.

"There were billions of 'em," he says, chuckling.

The curious arrived from Midland, Odessa, Roswell, Lovington, Carlsbad, Lubbock and other places, Garcia says.

"We didn't have any roads shut off and you couldn't keep (sightseers) out. No way," says Wayland Evans, a civilian enforcer and Garcia's squad car companion.

Both men have spent a lot of sleepless nights recently, guarding the 3/4-mile-long strip to the well, which blew out at 10 a.m. Tuesday and caught fire at 5:10 a.m. the next day.

No one was injured in the blowout and fire, though the damage was tremendous. Firefighters grappling with the inferno have escaped injury, too.

But it wasn't the disaster personnel that Garcia and Evans were worried about the first few hours after the fire.

"I just knew we were going to have all kinds of wrecks," he says, recalling the jam of traffic on S.H. 31 and F.M. 387, which runs near the site where the fire occurred.

Besides the traffic problems, Garcia said scores of people overran nearby private property. Others took back routes to the fire, as they wandered closer and closer like moths to a flame.

The curious had little concern for warning signs or property owners, Garcia says, as they snipped wires down and plowed ahead in their vehicles.

One man saw a sign forbidding him to enter but continued his forward trek even as lawmen watched.

"He said he couldn't read," Garcia said.

Overall, the attitude here has been calm since the fire does not appear to pose a threat to any humans or their property. Firefighters have worked methodically and confidently since the arrival of two members of Red Adair's oilwell disaster team.

But Rocky Garcia, his infectious grin never leaving his face, has done his own share to keep things under control.

Drug Firms Eye U.S. Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — Over the years, imported automobiles, steel and electronics products have gained substantial market shares in the United States. Now foreign drug companies, eager to get a piece of the lucrative U.S. pharmaceutical market, are going about it more directly — by buying into American health care products companies.

Several large European firms recently have announced expansions of their holdings in U.S. drug companies in attempts to capture a greater share of the $15 billion-per-year U.S. pharmaceutical market — a market that is expected to double by 1984.

"It is not new that Europeans have wanted to get a foothold in the U.S. market," says David F. Saks, an analyst for the New York brokerage house of Werthim & Co. "What is new is this rash of buyers."

That is not to say that Europeans will soon control a majority of U.S. drug companies. "The companies are coming into the U.S., but they're buying small companies," said one analyst. But European companies currently control more than 10 percent of the American market.

Two recent stock tender offers, each potentially worth more than a quarter of a billion dollars, have typified the heightened European interest in the U.S. drug market.

Nestle S.A. of Switzerland has offered $270 million for Alcon Laboratories of Fort Worth, Tex., which makes a wide range of health care products. And Bayer AG of West Germany — no relation to the American maker of Bayer products — has made a $260 million bid for Miles Laboratories Inc., the Elkhart, Ind.-based producer of Alka-Seltzer.

But the invasions don't end there. Several other European companies have similar plans to increase their influence in the U.S. pharmaceutical market.

Their reasons are many. One is the relative freedom enjoyed by U.S. drug makers. Neither the government nor a national health program exerts direct influence on U.S. drug prices — a rarity among developed nations.

Another reason is political uncertainty in Europe. In France, for example, many firms are delaying investments until after the March legislative elections because of the possibility of a victory by the Communist-Socialist coalition, which favors nationalization of the French pharmaceutical industry.

The pharmaceutical business also has had a historically high profit factor. Although increased competition has reduced the profit margin somewhat in recent years, drug companies' return on investment in 1977 is estimated at about 18 percent — compared to 15 percent for other U.S. manufacturing companies.

And finally, there is the lure of the American pharmaceutical market — the largest in the world and growing by about 12 percent per year.

"The U.S. is, on the bottom line, a very attractive market to be in," said one analyst. "It's a place where there is less of a concern on how much is spent on health care. In other words, Americans want the best health care, regardless of the cost."

"Generally speaking, a lot of the health care industry has reached a point where a lot of Europeans feel the American market is a very good one," Saks said. "I don't think a lot of Europeans want to buy a steel company or an automobile company."

Europeans are buying existing companies because starting a new one in the United States is so difficult. Britain's Boots Co. Ltd., for example, bought Rucker Pharmacal last summer because, "it allowed us to acquire a good selling force in 27 states," according to one of the company's directors.

"To start a U.S.-based operation is virtually impossible," Saks says.

Although Saks feels the European companies have paid too much for their U.S. acquisitions, he feels the actions have had a healthy effect on the American market — especially the stock market.

"A lot of smaller companies are moving up in the marketplace because of not yet announced — maybe never announced — possible acquisitions," Saks says. "You have a lot of investors willing to put dollars into companies that until mid-1977 had little interest to investors."

The European companies have not been without competition in their quest to purchase American drug companies. But domestic suitors have been thwarted by the tax advantages European countries hold. While American firms could match European offers, tax complications would make the deals impractical.

U.S. Officials To Begin Interrogating Korean

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Benjamin R. Civiletti, an assistant U.S. attorney general, arrived here Sunday to begin preliminary questioning of Tongson Park, the Korean lobbyist accused of influence-buying in the U.S. Congress.

Civiletti, accompanied by a federal prosecutor and three FBI agents, was expected to begin questioning Park later this week under an agreement by which the Justice Department will drop a criminal indictment against Park if he completes "truthful testimony" at all trials to which he is called.

Park is accused of trying to buy influence for the South Korean government by giving campaign contributions and other money to more than 20 congressmen.

Civiletti told reporters at Seoul airport he felt "confident" the agreement will "allow us significant progress toward the resolution in the United States of this difficult problem which has caused some misunderstanding from time to time" between Washington and Seoul.

He said he expects to complete his interrogation within two weeks.

The Justice Department agreement does not commit Park to testify before congressional committees, a point that has angered some members of the House Ethics Committee, which has announced plans to subpoena Park.

Leon Jaworski, the Ethics Committee's special counsel, has publicly warned South Korea it will suffer "the most severe adverse consequences" if it does not force Park to testify before the panel.

Replying to reporters' questions, Civiletti said it would be "common sense" to talk about the committee's request when he meets Korean officials.

Rep. Bruce Caputo, R-N.Y., a member of the committee, and Senate Ethics Committee staff member Daniel Swillinger have said they will travel to Seoul to sit in on the questioning of Park. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the Seoul government has agreed in principle to their participation as observers.

U.S. Funds Said Misused By Colleges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal audits of colleges and universities have turned up a pattern of sloppy bookkeeping and alleged misuse of federal research funds involving hundreds of millions of dollars, it was reported Sunday.

The New York Times said the audits, conducted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare cover many of the country's biggest institutions of higher education.

Government officials assume the failures to follow accepted procedures were not a sign of wrongdoing, it said, but a House subcommittee is considering holding hearings on the audit findings.

The Times said fiscal inspectors at colleges and universities have found multiple examples of practices such as failing to document that work was performed on federal contracts, permitting researchers to give less time to projects than contracts specified, allowing unauthorized transfers of funds between projects, paying more than once for the same work, breaking the prohibition on first-class air travel, not accounting for equipment and supplies, using federal money to pay for non-federal work and overdrawing federal accounts.

It said the audits, concluded through 1976 and 1977 and dealing with periods earlier in the 1970s, were obtained by Phin Cohen, a former researcher at Harvard University, under the Freedom of Information Act.

Dr. Cohen, a physician who conducted medical research at Harvard for 20 years, told the Times he had obtained the audits to determine whether abuses he had seen in the use of research funds at Harvard existed elsewhere.

His allegations against Harvard have led HEW to initiate a full-scale audit of the school's federal research money — one of 42 comprehensive audits now under way around the country, it said.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be more thoughtful of others and gain their favor, particularly where monetary matters are concerned. Study property and see how to improve it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to use patience since you cannot advance as quickly as you had planned. Avoid any social engagement where arguments could start.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Give some serious thought to effective solutions of problems you have had for a while. Avoid conversations with loved one that could lead to a serious argument.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Look more favorably upon those you feel are your friends and gain their added good will. Don't criticize them. A sudden wish you had may not be good for you at all. Forget it.

Stronger Year Seen For Aircraft Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The aircraft industry will have a strong year as the economy continues to grow, but output should drop off in the auto industry, the Commerce Department said Sunday in its annual industrial outlook report.

The department made five-year projections for major U.S. industries with help from a staff of 100 industry analysts.

"Of the 10 largest manufacturing industries in terms of shipments, aircraft are expected to show the biggest gain — up 30 percent over 1977 — in value of shipments," the report said.

"Others in the top 10 show expected gains of 12 percent except in automobiles, which are expected to drop 1 percent and truck and chassis, which are expected to dip 4 percent," it said.

Retail sales in 1978 are expected to be $785 billion, almost 10 percent above 1977, the department said.

The increases do not account for inflation, which is forecast to be about 6 percent again next year.

Commenting on the overall economy, a Commerce Department economist said it should continue growing at a rate of about 4 to 5 percent next year. But she said it could begin tapering off at the end of the year without further government action.

Courtenay M. Slater, chief department economist, said the growth rate should be strong enough to reduce unemployment from about 7 percent currently to a 6 1/2-percent average for the year.

The decline in the automotive industry will follow a record sales year of 15 million vehicles. In 1978, sales should decline to 14.5 million vehicles, the department said. The dollar value of factory shipments should decline from $66.8 billion to $65.5 billion.

The report said motor vehicle sales accounted for record shares of personal spending in 1977 and probably cannot maintain these levels.

"Also, used car prices have declined in recent months, which increases the cost of a new car to the average buyer by reducing his trade-in allowance," it said.

"The sales downturn is expected to impact somewhat more heavily on imported cars than domestic makes because of the increased competition of Detroit's new small car introductions in the 1978 model year," it added.

"Production, reacting to the decline in sales, is expected to drop 6 percent from an estimated 9.3 million cars in 1977 to 8.7 million units in 1978."

While the nation's trade deficit grows in 1978, the aviation and aerospace industry is expected to grow particularly strong because of its exports, the report said.

Aerospace shipments should rise 21 percent to $22.2 billion. After accounting for inflation, the industry's growth rate should be a strong 6.8 percent per year through 1982, it said.

Tax Forms To Differ This Year

By RAY DeCRANE

Changed, simpler, complicated, error-prone.

Contradictory as they appear to be, all of those words accurately describe the new tax forms that 88 million Americans will be wrestling with this year.

The drastic redesign of the forms introduced many changes. Internal Revenue Service felt that something had to be done because of all the errors made last year.

The forms are simpler because fewer complicated mathematical computations are called for. Here are some of the mathematical operations that have been eliminated: you won't have to multiply your adjusted gross income by 16 percent to determine your standard deduction; everyone within the same material status will receive an identical standard deduction. You won't have to multiply the $750 personal exemption by the number of exemptions on the return. You won't have to determine your personal tax credit.

First In A Series

Your new Tax Table in use this year have the standard deduction, personal exemptions and the general tax credit all built-in.

Because of the attempt at simplification for most tax-payers, unavoidable complications have been created for others. For example, who ever heard of deliberately adding to your total income in order to find your correct amount of tax? That is exactly what some tax-payers will be required to do. It will work out correctly for them in the end, but, admittedly, it will be difficult to convince some people that this is a correct procedure.

Consider the case of married tax-payers filing separate returns. One spouse wants to itemize deductions because it presents a tax savings. Under the rules the other must also itemize. The tax tables that each will use will automatically give a deduction allowance of $1600 for each of them.

Assume that one has a total of $2300 in itemized deductions. The other partner has $1100 in deductions. Here is what they will have to do: The one with $2300 in deductions will not subtract that amount from adjusted gross income. He will subtract only $700 — the excess over the $1600 which the Tax Table will provide. The partner with $1100 in deductions will have to ADD $500 to adjusted gross income before finding his tax on the Tax Table. The reason: The Tax Table will allow $1600 — $500 more than he actually has.

For this reason, the term "standard deduction" has now been eliminated. In its place is a new term, the "zero bracket amount." By this is meant if you do not itemize deductions, you subtract a "zero" from adjusted gross income before going to the Tax Table. If you do itemize you will either add to or subtract from adjusted gross income, depending upon the relationship between your deductions and your zero bracket amount.

But the big fear of Internal Revenue Service is that errors will result because taxpayers, being creatures of habit, are accustomed to following the procedure of the last year's tax return.

If you attempt to do that this year you will be lost. There is no relationship between the tax forms in use this year and last.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

It was always a throw-away line. Somewhere between the time I caught the kid who was to be spanked, drew back my hand, and let it come to rest on his backside, I'd say, "This is going to hurt me worse than it hurts you." (Actually, it only hurt me worse once — and that's when one of my boys stuck a Frisbee down his pants and I nearly broke my hand.)

I got the line from my mother who used it to assure me that while she was switching my legs with a tree trunk, she really had nothing in her heart but love for me.

Disciplining children is tough. Child psychology books never deal with it realistically. They tell you funny things like, "Don't discipline your child in anger." (Merry Christmas... I'm going to punch you out!) "Discuss his punishment with him." ("What do you mean, you vote no!") "The punishment must fit the crime." ("Playing in the johns in your orthopedic shoes is a hitting offense.")

They never tell you about "runners." They're the children who are faster than a speeding bullet, more powerful than a locomotive and able to leap fences in a single bound. By the time you've caught them you can't remember why you wanted them.

There are the flinchers who act like they've been beaten every day of their lives for breathing. Get a room full of company and reach out to touch their cheek in a gesture of love and they recoil and threaten to call legal aid.

There are the door slammers, the "I'm telling!" and the mumblers.

Actually, I lied. There was one other time when a spanking hurt me worse than it hurt the child.

My son had knocked over a planter lamp for the 50th time, spreading dirt and stones into the beige shag. I leaned over, planted a swift hand to his rump and said, "If you do that one more time I'm mailing you out of the country. I told you not to throw a ball in the living room and I mean it!"

He took the punishment, then in tears, looked around for someone to comfort him. In desperation, he threw both arms around my knees.

If he saw my tears as I held him close, he didn't mention it.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

This means all you live-a-loners, families, couples, etc.

I'm gonna talk about what you all ordinarily call "baked" potatoes. Ugh! Heavens help a duck! We youngsters were taught to wrap a potato in foil, throw it in the oven and it was baked.

Nonsense. Ack ka flooey... Not so. Period.

Whether you know it or not, folks, you cannot bake a potato when it's wrapped in foil. You are steaming it. A potato is 87 1/2 per cent moisture (Bet that will snicker you all), and when wrapped in foil this moisture has no way of escaping.

When a potato is put in the oven without foil, it bakes light and fluffy with an entirely different texture and taste than those foil-wrapped ones you call baked potatoes.

After testing potatoes in my own kitchen for over ten years (truly), I want you all to test this for yourselves.

Go and wrap one potato in foil. Also, wash and slightly slash with a paring knife, or stab with an ice pick another potato, and put them both in the same oven at the same time...

Wow! You are going to find a whole of a difference, loves. The one baked without the foil will be light, tender and fluffy — not soggy, because you have cut the skin and all the steam escapes, and the skin will be what I call "brilliant."

If you want to impress people with a good baked potato, cut a few slits with a knife and bake it, and (my opinion only, but I dare you to defy it and prove me wrong, because I have never lied to you) then wrap it in foil.

You will be eating the best potato you ever put in your gullet.

After I take them out of the oven, and after I wrap each potato in foil, I roll mine (using a hot pad mitt or pot holder) to break up the spud.

Love for tomorrow — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

There is a very logical answer to the question as to why squirrels do not go near nylon fishing lines. They simply cannot see them.

Squirrels are farsighted. They can see a nut on the ground from a treetop. However, they cannot see a fishing line because it is clear. As they approach it, it disappears. It is the same principle that makes wrinkles disappear when an older man approaches to kiss his beloved. The wrinkles simply disappear.

Keep up your wonderfully educative seminars on burden-lightening. — Mary N. Farha

Dear Heloise:

To reheat food, many people put it either in a double boiler which takes forever, or in a pan in which they stir the food frantically and end up with it stuck and sometimes burned to the bottom of the pan.

Put it in an oven-proof bowl that will stand heat, put that bowl in a pan which has about an inch of water. Cover and let it steam and it will be very hot in less than five minutes and no sticking. — Eloise Phillips

Dear Heloise:

When opening a 3-pound canned ham, I realized that the lid is just the size of my iron. I used it to stand the iron on when ironing. It worked beautifully!

You can glue a piece of asbestos on the bottom if you wish. I've used it for two years now and it hasn't rusted. — Julia Beahm

Dear Heloise:

To ease my youngster's frustration during cold months and lighten my own burden, I remove the string cord from the hoods of their winter jackets and replace it with elastic and join at the ends.

They are able to dress faster and are more likely to keep their hoods on their heads coming home from school. — Rene

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠83 ♥73 ♦KQ9652 ♣764

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♦ 2♣ Pass Pass 3♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—By cue bidding the opponents' suit, partner has shown an enormous hand. It is impossible to determine just how valuable your hand is—that depends on whether partner has a diamond fit. You can alert him to the fact that you have something by jumping to four diamonds. Don't do more than that. Partner might have a heart-spade two-suiter, so you can't afford to bypass four spades.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, both sides have 60 on score, as South you hold:

♠Q85 ♥7 ♦KQ873 ♣K962

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1♥ 1♦ 2♥ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. You should let partner know that you have a reasonable hand. If you bid only two spades, he might think that you are competing on minimal values just to stop the opponents from buying the hand cheaply and closing out the rubber. That false impression could put him at a disadvantage as the auction progresses.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K93 ♥Q7 ♦865 ♣AKJ103

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♥ 1♦ 2♥ 3♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—In view of partner's jump shift, you should be in the slam zone, so a bid of three no trump would not meet with our approval. We suggest that you temporize for the moment by taking a preference to three hearts—honor doubleton on this auction is usually adequate support. This will allow partner to clarify his hand at a reasonably low level, and we will have ample opportunity later to re-bid our good club suit.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQJ92 ♥105 ♦A1073 ♣83

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass Pass 1♥ 2♦ ?

What action do you take?

A.—It is a close decision between a penalty double and a bid of two spades. We favor the latter action because we do not like suppressing a major suit of such quality. Also, the fact that the opponents are not vulnerable limits the size of the possible penalty. Despite the fact that partner opened in third seat, we want to try for game.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K92 ♥86 ♦K983 ♣J1072

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♥ 1♦ 2♥ 3♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner's jump in his own suit is not forcing, and we are close to a minimum for our original response. Nevertheless, we would rebid three no trump—the fact that we have good intermediates makes our hand worth another bid.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠8752 ♥J62 ♦KQ853 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♥ 1♦ 2♥ 3♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Your hand was worth just one bid, and you have made it. Be thankful that you have managed to improve the contract. Also, you don't mind if the opponents compete in spades.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you explain idiopathic cyclic edema? I have it. Is it caused by kidney problems? Bad veins? Or what? Why hasn't my doctor given me diuretics? — M.S.

It's a knotty question and difficult to be specific about without more information.

"Edema" means you retain fluid (swell). "Cyclic" means this happens on a periodic (cyclic) basis. "Idiopathic" means the cause, in your case, is not known.

Edema causes are relatively easy to pinpoint with laboratory tests and observation. For example, some women retain fluid prior to menstruation because of hormone activity at that time. It's cyclic, but not idiopathic. On the other hand there are on-going conditions that can cause it — varicose veins, constricting undergarments, hot weather, inefficient lymph vessels (as after breast removal), heart disease (congestive failure), liver damage, or kidney disease — anything, in short, that interferes with normal circulation and fluid removal by the veins and lymph system.

You mention kidneys. If kidneys are involved there might be puffiness in the face, high blood pressure, presence of albumin in the urine, or other signs.

When known causes of edema are eliminated, the term "idiopathic" is used to describe it, even though the basic problem remains — the inability to remove fluid from tissues normally.

With most women (a woman is usually the patient), sodium (salt) retention is involved. Diuretics (water pills) promote sodium release by the body. But sodium retention isn't always involved, so diuretics are not always helpful or necessary, and, in fact, may be harmful. Diuretics are also used cautiously if there is kidney or liver disease.

For these women, conservative treatment is tried — exercise, diet, weight reduction, elastic stockings, limb elevation, and the rest.

You may be in for further testing to try to pinpoint the systemic cause or combination of causes of your cyclic edema.

Dear Dr. Thosteson I am interested in finding out about Mediterranean anemia.

— Mrs. S.P.

Another name for it is thalassemia. It's an inherited disease involving a lowered red blood cell count and low iron content. The name originated with the earliest cases found among persons living in the Mediterranean area. It is not known to affect all racial groups.

The symptoms and the outlook for patients depend on how severe the anemia is. In mild forms there is no untoward effect and patients live normal lives.

There is no known cure, but control is possible. Blood transfusions may be needed in the severe cases, but transfusions are kept at a minimum to avoid iron overload. That can be as damaging as the anemia itself. For the same reason patients should avoid using over-the-counter iron and vitamin supplements unless specifically told to by the physician. It is important to remember, especially if the patient is having transfusions or getting iron supplement by mouth. Occasionally, folic acid (one of the B-complex) is needed in small doses.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you discuss gravel in the kidneys as opposed to stones in the kidneys? — M.B.

Not much to discuss. Gravel is what the name implies, sandlike particles. Stones are usually collections of gravel. The gravel can be just as painful as stones, however, although it is not as likely to obstruct the urinary tract. The make-up of the gravel is important in deciding on treatment. See my kidney booklet for more detail.

NOTE TO A.R.M. — Yes, a prostate infection can cause the burning on urination. It's more likely in your case since you were told once your prostate was enlarged. When you see a doctor tell him you were previously diagnosed as having an enlarged prostate.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble" — it could be dangerous. Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need to Know About Them." For a copy write to him, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

 A Dakota reader wants to know if there ever was an invitational master's individual.
 Yes, there was. It was limited to 36 players and played from 1933 on. Sometime around 1950 it was extended to allow any number to play. It was discontinued in 1960 and revived in 1966 as a minor event.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Miss Landers: I wish you would print this piece of non-fiction. I realize it will bring many a school bus driver to tears, but perhaps it will make the public more aware of the school bus driver's plight. I will call this—
REQUIEM FOR A SCHOOL BUS DRIVER
 First Stop — It's 7:30 a.m.: "Driver, you're late." "Yes, Ma'am. What time do you have?" "I don't have a watch, but I've been standing here a long time." "Yes, Ma'am."
 Second Stop: "Driver, can you wait for my brother? Mom says you're early."
 Third Stop: "Driver, why can't you pick up my child on the other side of the street?" "Well, for one thing I'd be going in the wrong direction."
 Fourth Stop: "Driver, why are those kids standing up?" "They won't stay seated." "Yell at them. That's your job." "Yes, Ma'am."
 Fifth Stop: "Hey, you! What's the idea of yelling at my kid?" "Well, sir, he had a little girl by the throat. She was turning blue." "She deserved it. She called my son a creep."
 Sixth Stop: "Driver, can't you come a half hour later? I have to make breakfast for my husband." "No, Ma'am, then I'd be late." "Can't you change your schedule?" "Bye, Ma'am."
 Between Sixth and Seventh Stops: "Driver, Mary threw up all over my coat."
 Into School: "How many kids you got?" "Seventy." "Principal wants to see you." "Hello, Mr. Principal." "I got a call from the President of the PTA and she said you ran a stop sign on Fourth Street." "I don't go near Fourth Street." "She took your bus number. Look." "Sir, you've got five numbers written down and my bus has only three." "Oh."
 Driver endures two more trips in the a.m., two more at noon, and three more in the p.m.
 Finished Parks bus.
 "Hello, Dispatcher." "Got a call you were speeding on Tenth Street and almost hit a dog." "I wasn't speeding."
 "Got your bus number. Look." "Hooray for the dog, he got the bus number right." "Boss wants to see you." "O-kay." "Hello, Boss." "You're fired. You didn't pass your annual physical. Something about high blood pressure and nerves." — It Really Happened

Dear Really: Thank you for giving us a look at the life of a school bus driver close up. There's got to be a seat at God's right hand for those heroic souls.

Dear Ann: You frequently publish, on request, a poem or column someone has lost or worn out from carrying it around. I'd certainly be grateful if you could locate a poem that appeared shortly after World War II. It started out like this:
 Me and Halsey and Nimitz
 Are having a hell of a time.
 I realize I haven't given you much to go on but I'll bet some smart cookie out there will recognize it and send it in. I sure hope you'll print it for all us old broken-down relics who remember World War II as if it were yesterday. — New Jersey Fan

Dear N.J.: Speak for yourself, Buster. I remember World War II very well and I'm no old broken-down relic. In spite of the low blow, if I get the poem I'll print it — if it fits for this respectable newspaper.

Health Books Score Control By Men Of Female Health Care

By United Press International
 Male doctors cut out parts of the female reproductive system but many of the operations are unnecessary, studies show.
 A male-dominated drug industry pushes contraceptive pills for females. The pills may be a timebomb, studies show. Clots, heart attacks, strokes among pill-users in their forties sounded the first alarm about the birth control pills.
 Ingredients in the pill have caused cancer in six kinds of laboratory animals.
 Women in their 40s aren't supposed to take the pills. Now, women in their thirties who smoke aren't supposed to take the pills and neither are younger women — all the way down to teen-agers who have had cancer or a history of cancer in the female members of the clan.
 The male-dominated drug industry has not come up with a contraceptive pill to mass market to sexually active males.
 Many women claim they are dehumanized during birth and delivery rituals in hospital delivery and labor rooms across the nation.
 The system is presided over by the male-dominated obstetric and gynecological establishment and sponsored by hospitals mostly administered by males.
 Is there a connection between the male-dominated health care delivery system and the pushing of pills known to cause harm and the ordering of unnecessary hysterectomies and other amputations of female sexual parts?
 Would the situation be otherwise if the system were female-dominated?
 The questions are raised and answered in a new women's health anthology: "Seizing Our Bodies" (Vintage Original, $4.95), edited by Claudia Dreyfus, feminist activist.
 In an interview, Dreyfus said there won't be any real women's liberation until women seize control over their bodies — "seize it from the male-dominated health care system."
 "Women don't own their bodies under the present system," she said.
 Under a Fund for Investigative Journalism grant a few years back, Dreyfus was studying the forced sterilization of indigent women in the United States.

That's how the book got started.
 Angry over what she learned during the investigation, Dreyfus decided to probe all aspects of the denial of reproductive freedom to American women.
 "Forced sterilization is just one side of the problem," she said. "Mandatory motherhood is the other side."
 Contributors to the book come from the front ranks of the booming women's health care movement.
 They include also feminist theorists, physicians, health workers and consumers who argue that male doctors "consistently misinterpret female functions."
 "Nearly every American woman must deal with a masculine point of view at the most crucial periods of her life: when she gives birth, when she needs contraception, when she enters menopause," Dreyfus said.
 "More often than not she confronts a system of thought that encourages her to think of normal functions as illness. As women in recent years, through the women's health care movement, have refused to accept this verdict."
 "Our Bodies, Ourselves," the self-help book from the Boston Women's Health Collective (Simon and Schuster) is in the hands of more than a million American women.
 It teaches them to do some things for themselves that doctors may have ritualized into seemingly complicated procedures.
 It teaches them to be more intelligent consumers of everything in the health care system that affects their bodies, especially their reproductive systems.
 Dreyfus sees her anthology as a companion to "Our Bodies, Ourselves."
 "Key to seizing control of your body is shopping for a proper doctor," Dreyfus said.
 "Interview your doctor, shop around," she said.

"You don't want a doctor who is surgically oriented. And you want a doctor who treats you as a person and not a child. That might be hard."
 "The texts in medical schools seem to treat women as children."
 Change will come slowly, she cautioned, saying: "A doctor's first reaction when you question him about his attitude toward the birth control pill and unnecessary operations and such may make him label you as disturbed or demented or hostile."
 The unnecessary operations may be the hardest to eliminate.
 "The profit motive is high in hysterectomies," Dreyfus said. "Doctors and hospitals profit."
 "But we've got to stop the trend and get the horror out of gynecology and obstetrics. Talk to 10 women and each will have a gynecological or obstetrical horror story."
 Contributors to "Seizing Our Bodies" include Ellen Frankfurt on vaginal politics, Adrienne Rich on childbirth, Barbara Seaman on the dangers of oral contraception, Rose Kushner on the politics of breast cancer.
 Excerpts:
 — "The women's health movement (more than 1000 organizations), includes females of all ages, races and classes, brought together by a unanimity of negative experience with the American health care system."
 — "Embattled and controversial, self-help is only one part of the women's health movement. From the beginning health feminists have been highly political, focusing much effort on lobbying to have the counter the weight of the American Medical Association and the pharmaceutical companies."

PARENTS OF SLAIN CHILDREN—In the left panel Mrs. Ann Nelson, 38, is led by her attorney, Karl Winkler, from the Milwaukee Public Safety Building as she began her return trip to Rockford, Ill. Her husband, Simon, 46, right, was charged with "silently and methodically" beating and stabbing to death his six children and their dog as they slept in their Rockford home. He is alleged to have then gone to Milwaukee and to have beaten his estranged wife in a Milwaukee motel room. (AP Laserphoto)

Suspected Slayer's Attempt To 'Turn New Leaf' Bared

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Simon Peter Nelson, a 250-pounder charged with beating and stabbing his six children to death while they slept, shaved his beard and cut his hair only days earlier in an effort to "turn over a new leaf... to change directions."

Nelson, jailed here on murder charges, was troubled by periods of unemployment and marital difficulties, and he was frequently away from home, said neighbors living in the well-maintained homes in what was once an elite section of this northern Illinois city.

One neighbor remembered nights when Nelson's angry voice could be heard on the street outside.

Police said Nelson won't discuss the murder of his children, ages 3 to 12. But officers allege he entered their bedrooms and beat them about the head and stabbed them repeatedly, apparently with a rubber mallet and a long-bladed hunting knife.

He told Winnebago County State's Attorney Robert Gerginani on Saturday that he had felt the need for a new start, a change for the better. The 6-foot, 1-inch Nelson said the haircut and shave were part of his transformation hopes.

But his wife Ann, 38, a skating instructor who had turned their 12-year-old daughter Jennifer into "quite a skater," left him anyway and moved into a Wisconsin motel on Thursday. After the murders Nelson followed her there and he was arrested when police entered her room and found him beating his wife, authorities said.

The father, 46, wept Saturday as he told a judge in Milwaukee that he wanted to return to Rockford, despite warnings by Wisconsin officials that prosecutors here could seek the death penalty.

Wearing a T-shirt, blue and white striped overalls and unlaced tennis shoes, Nelson told the judge, "I want to go home."

Awaits Arraignment

He awaited his arraignment hearing, set for today, in an isolation cell in the Winnebago County Jail. His meals were served to him there and the only relief from the silence was expected to be further questioning later Sunday by Rockford police detectives. Judge Harris Agnew said no bail would be set.

One police official called the murder of the children "the worst mass murder in the history of the city and the most vicious murder I've ever seen." Authorities said the bodies of the children were so badly mutilated that they could not immediately determine their sex.

The picture painted by those that knew Nelson was quite different.

Described As Jovial

Neighbors described him as a "jovial" man and an avid golfer. A coworker at the job placement firm where he landed a job last spring after months of unemployment, said "he was a good man, a very nice man. I liked him."

Another neighbor, William R. Stanicek, said that Nelson kept his distance. "He didn't have many friends," Stanicek said.

Arlo Kanter, whose daughter was a friend of Jennifer, said Nelson was "generally friendly," but he recalled once at an informal gathering seeing him "wound up like a corkscrew... as though he couldn't cope."

"We had a couple of beers together and it passed and I let it go at that," Kanter said. "It happens to everybody sometime."

Children Appeared Needy

Neighbors said the Nelsons were often away from home, leaving Jennifer in charge. They said the children sometimes seemed to need attention. One said the children lacked toys like those owned by other children in the neighborhood and sometimes seemed to need clean clothing.

Kathleen Smardo, a next-door neighbor, said she telephoned the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, the state's child welfare agency, last summer to say she was concerned about the children. She said she later asked the department to drop her complaint after the Nelsons agreed to pay closer attention to the children.

She said Matthew, 7, liked to visit her son Tad, and during the visits he gave the impression that the other boys — 9-year-old Andrew, 10-year-old Simon, Jr., and the David, 3, — had been mistreated at home.

The 6th Nelson child was 5-year-old Roseann.

A former babysitter for the family said the children would come to her home dressed only in diapers, sweaters and boots without shoes, even in cold weather. She said the children "never seemed

Search Continues For Survivors Of Sinking Freighter

HONOLULU (UPI) — Six military planes and numerous ships criss-crossed the stormy Pacific Ocean a thousand miles northwest of Hawaii Sunday trying to spot 69 persons believed adrift in lifeboats after abandoning their sinking Indian freighter.

The missing 627-foot freighter, Chandra Gupta, carrying a crew of 63 plus four women and two children who are members of the ship's officers' families, last was heard from Thursday when it sent a message saying leaks had flooded the forward holds.

Search Intensified

The search intensified Sunday as the military planes took off at first light, the Coast Guard cutter Mellon joined the hunt and two long-range aircraft from the Air National Guard in Hayward, Calif., flew to Hawaii to assist in finding the lifeboats or freighter in 30-foot seas.

A Coast Guard spokesman in Honolulu said the dawn-to-dusk search of gale-swept waters, aided by numerous ships passing through the area, was fruitless Saturday. The freighter's last radio message said the crew was about to abandon the wheat-carrying vessel because of the leaks.

In San Francisco, the Coast Guard said clearing skies "should create good visibility of 15 miles" during the day for the searchers, who have encountered bad weather in trying to pick out lifeboats through high white caps and spray.

In Honolulu, a Coast Guard spokesman said there have been unconfirmed sightings of orange balls and planks in the water, but added:

"We're not even sure if (the freighter) went down."

34,000 Tons Of Wheat

The 21,635-ton Chandra Gupta, owned by Shipping Corp. of India, left Portland, Ore., Christmas Day carrying 34,000 tons of wheat and was en route to Iran and the republic of Sri Lanka.

A Portland shipping official said it is normal for Indian vessels to carry the families of crewmen.

Coast Guard officials said launching lifeboats in the cold, windy weather was dangerous, even with a well-trained crew, and that survivors might perish in open boats unless rescued soon.

"We're assuming they're all in lifeboats that probably drifted off because of the weather," a spokesman said. The Chandra Gupta sent its SOS when it began leaking during the storm and it began taking on more water than its pumps could handle. Planes immediately began the rescue mission, taking off from Hawaii, Alaska and Midway Island, which has been made temporary search headquarters.

'No Decision,' Says Burns After Report

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — Arthur F. Burns said Sunday he has made "no decision" yet whether to remain as one of the U.S. Federal Reserve board's seven directors when he is replaced as chairman at the end of January.

The Washington Post said in Sunday's editions Burns has confided to friends he will leave the board when his term as chairman expires, even though he could remain as a member for six more years.

Burns, here for a monthly meeting of the Bank for International Settlements, called such reports "completely premature."

"When I have decided what my next moves will be, I will inform the President accordingly," Burns told a reporter.

President Carter has selected businessman G. William Miller to replace the 73-year-old Burns as chairman.

"The last report received was that the No. 1 hatch was gone, the ship was taking on water and they were abandoning it," said Jack Pringle, an agent for the owners of the freighter.

U.S. Dollar Woes Bared By Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Sunday the world leaders he met on his overseas trip were concerned about the low value of the U.S. dollar on world money markets, and blamed the problem on America's appetite for energy.

Carter reported his findings to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger during a discussion on the administration's continuing efforts to break the congressional deadlock on legislation designed to cut energy consumption.

"They expressed their concerns with the value of the dollar and also that our excessive energy imports was the main problem," Carter said.

Press secretary Jody Powell expanded on the statement.

Question Often Raised

"The energy question was raised in every European capital and it was always in connection with their concern about the decline of the American dollar," Powell said.

"They understand, even if people in this country appear not to understand, that the decline in the value of the American dollar is directly related to our inability, so far, to get control of our energy appetites," he said.

The administration last week announced it would intervene in world money markets to support the dollar in an effort to raise its value, but experts in Washington and other nations have said the dollar's problems may not really abate until the United States improves its foreign trade deficit, which is due primarily to the large amount of oil America imports.

Schlesinger Trip Begins

During their Sunday meeting, Carter and Schlesinger also discussed a trip the energy secretary plans to take to the Middle East, beginning today.

Schlesinger returned to Washington Saturday night from California and a round of discussions with Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., one of the key congressional negotiators on the energy bill and natural gas pricing.

Schlesinger met with Jackson in Palm Springs to determine what would be needed to ease the senator's objections to compromise plans that have been offered, an stress administration concerns about the damage further delays might mean in reaching a national energy program a White House source said.

A chief issue stalling the energy bill in Congress is how much natural gas prices should be raised — and whether the government should stop setting controls on them altogether.

Waves To Protestors

Earlier Sunday, Carter attended services at the First Baptist Church of Washington, waving to a dozen anti-neutron bomb protestors as he went in.

The president discussed the controversial bombing during his visit to NATO headquarters in Brussels on Friday, and is expected to announce a decision soon on whether to deploy the weapon in western Europe.

The bomb kills through radiation without causing major property damage, and a small group opposed to it has appeared regularly at Carter's church.

Antarctic Registers First Birth Of Child

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A boy was born Saturday at an Argentine army base in Antarctica, and officials here say it was the first birth ever on the icy continent.

President Jorge R. Videla sent congratulations Sunday to the infant's parents, Capt. Jorge Emilio Palma and his wife, Maria Silvia. Palma is commander of the Esperanza army base, where the child, also named Emilio, was born.

An army communique said both mother and son were doing fine.

Mrs. Palma and six other wives were allowed by the army to accompany their husbands to the Antarctic camp this year.

Argentina operates a dozen bases in the western Antarctic in an area also partly claimed by Chile and Britain.

monopoly on burning cities to Nero, emperor of Rome," Burn told a political meeting.

"Israelis don't begin settlements, they build and maintain them," he said.

Sharon, hero of Israel's counterattack across the Suez Canal in the 1973 war, had been nominated to serve as deputy to Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan in the upcoming peace talks.

But government sources said the idea was voted down because coalition partners said they wanted their own ministers to take part in the Israeli delegation was to be expanded. Others opposed his settlement proposals.

Senior Citizens Get Jobs With Police Forces

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A number of the nation's police departments are hiring senior citizens to do paperwork so officers can spend more time fighting crime, Justice Department officials said Sunday.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which funds the program, gave these examples of how it works:

—In San Diego, 13 retired persons put crime reports into a computer file, helping police identify suspects and find criminals with long records.

—In Cottage Grove, Ore., a group is helping other elderly people make their homes burglar-proof. They also are serving as case workers, helping senior citizens deal with public service agencies. A similar group is active in Sun City, Ariz.

—In Maricopa County, Ariz., retired engineers designed and built a collapsible leg restraint for police to use in transporting prisoners.

—In New York City, elderly and disabled people in Queens help monitor the radio and handle telephone calls.

The LEAA said the San Diego project has saved more than $4,000, since the elderly receive half the pay police do for the same work.

The head of the unit said they do a better job than regular officers.

Liz Taylor, Husband On Campaign Trail

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — After 10 months of what might be called standing room only dress rehearsals, Elizabeth Taylor and her sixth husband, former Navy Secretary John Warner, are officially on the political campaign trail.

Warner, a handsome, urbane, 51-year-old millionaire cattle farmer and lawyer, is the candidate. He seeks the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate from Virginia.

But thus far, Miss Taylor has drawn the crowds.

"Virginians have taken us into their homes and into their hearts," Warner said last week, in announcing his candidacy. His wife accompanied him in attire befitting a movie star — low cut purple dress, leather boots, eye-catching jewelry.

Miss Taylor, 45, a two-time Oscar winner and former sex goddess of American films, has played a major role in helping Virginia's Republican party raise the large sums that helped Governor-elect John Dalton win last November.

The Warners raised $45,000 for Dalton's campaign at just one fall political gathering at their northern Virginia horse country estate, not far from Washington, where they were married in December 1976.

Travels Mount

Warner estimated he and Miss Taylor have traveled 20,000 miles throughout the state for the GOP.

They now hope to cash in the political IOU's for delegate votes at the party's June 3 nominating convention in Richmond.

Warner is one of four candidates for the party's nomination to run for the seat being vacated by retiring Republican Sen. William Scott.

Political foes have tried to poke fun at the Warner-Taylor team, referring to him as "Mr. Elizabeth Taylor."

The actress is sensitive to such sniping and had to be coaxed to the podium by reporters when Warner announced his candidacy.

"This is one of the proudest days of my life," she said, but added:

"John is the candidate. I am not. This is his day."

First Public Race

Although Warner is making his first run for public office, he insists he is qualified and lists his experience as Navy secretary in the Nixon administration and chairman of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

"I will not require on-the-job training," he said. "I can start representing Virginia from the moment I'm sworn into office and walk onto the Senate floor."

If past history is any precedent, a celebrity can win political office in Virginia.

Robb Victory Recalled

Last November, Charles Robb, son-in-law of former President Lyndon Johnson, easily won election as lieutenant governor although he had no prior political experience.

The Johnson name and Lynda Bird's help won him huge contributions, plenty of publicity and lots of votes.

Warner sees himself third in the four-man Republican race right now, but believes he is rising fast.

Former state party chairman Richard Obenshain is considered to hold a slim lead over former Gov. Linwood Holton, with state Sen. Nathan Miller trailing in fourth place.

Obenshain says it is too early to predict what effect Miss Taylor will have on the decisions of the GOP's 3,081 nominating delegates.

"Miss Taylor will be a charming addition to the race but it would be premature to say what impact she will have," he said.

"This issue will still be who will be the strongest, most effective senator."

Holton, a close friend of Warner's and Virginia's first Republican governor since Reconstruction, also declined to make a prediction.

"I will leave it up to news reporters to speculate," he said.

News Media May Miscalculate Reader Interests

By LOUIS HARRIS

In a special Harris Survey which not only involved the public, but also editors, news directors and reporters from the various news media, there is solid evidence that the media seriously underestimate the interest their readers have in hard news. They also grossly overestimate the interest the public has in sports news.

Here are specific highlights from a recently completed Harris Survey conducted among a national cross section of 1,533 adults, 86 top editors and news directors, and 76 major reporters and writers in the country.

—While 34 percent of the media executives believe the public is "very interested" in national news, a much higher 60 percent of the public indicate that they have high interest in national affairs.

—Compared with the 27 percent of the media people who think the public has high interest in state news, a much higher 62 percent of the public report being "very interested" in events at the state level.

—While 35 percent of the journalists estimate high public interest in energy news, a more substantial 57 percent of the public say they are very interested in energy as a subject for media coverage.

—Those who work in the media feel that only 5 percent of the public are greatly interested in international news. For its part, a much higher 41 percent of the public express deep interest in world affairs being covered in the news media.

—Compared with the 13 percent of the media people who think their readers are interested in governmental and political news, a higher 42 percent of the public say they are greatly interested in politics.

In a number of other areas, the estimates of the media leaders were more accurate:

—The 88 percent who thought that the public has a great interest in local news coverage somewhat overestimate the 74 percent of the public who say the same.

—In the case of food news, 32 percent of the media feel the public is "very interested" in such coverage. This is close to the 44 percent of the public who express high interest in the subject.

—Compared with 45 percent of the editors and writers who believe the public is highly interested in entertainment, arts and cultural news, a slightly lower 29 percent of the public claim to be "very interested" in news on those subjects.

—The media estimate that 18 percent of the public are "very interested" in fashion news, and a slightly lower 15 percent of the public express deep interest in this area.

In the case of sports news the editors and writers simply do not appear to be in touch:

—A substantial 75 percent of the editors think the public is "very interested" in sports news. However, only 35 percent of the people express such an interest.

In two other news areas, minorities of the public show high interest, but still this level is above that estimated by the editors and reporters:

—In the case of science news, only 7 percent of the media people believe the public is deeply interested in such coverage, compared with a much higher 31 percent of the people who express such an interest.

—As for business and financial news, only 4 percent of the media think their readers or viewers are really interested. As it turns out, 26 percent of the public express deep interest.

—As for columns and commentary, 18 percent of the media believe the public is highly interested. In fact, 24 percent of the public express deep interest in such features.

The irony of these results is that some journalists who continually lead their journals or news programs with important stories on national or international affairs, tend to underestimate the interest of their audience in these matters.

Mayor's Residence Too Big For Koch

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch moved out of Gracie Mansion after only a week's stay, saying he likes his three-room apartment in Greenwich Village better.

"Gracie Mansion's nice, but it's like a hotel," Koch said of the official mayor's residence. "I rattle around there."

Koch, a bachelor, had lived in the apartment overlooking Washington Square Park while a congressman. He moved into the 14-room mansion after taking office last Sunday.

Gracie Mansion, built in 1799, employs four kitchen and house workers. Koch said he would use it for official business and entertaining and would occasionally stay there.

Heartline

HEARTLINE is a service for senior citizens of all ages. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 43281. Senior citizens will receive prompt replies, but a stamped, self-addressed envelope must be included with the request. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I have just turned 64 this year and I will be participating in Medicare for the first time. I have come across quite a difference of opinions from some of my friends who are on Medicare. Many of them say that they send all their medical bills in once a year and others say they send their bills in every time they receive them. What do you suggest? R.B.

A Heartline would suggest that you send your medical bills to Medicare as you receive the service. This can help you to receive your reimbursement from Medicare sooner and if more information is needed, yours and your doctor's memory will be better and more able to supply this information. Also, this avoids end-of-year workloads for Medicare which will delay the processing of claims. Remember, always send copies of your bill and keep the original for your own records.

For those people on Medicare, Heartline has developed a detailed book covering the whole Medicare program. "Heartline's Guide to Medicare" is written in easy to understand question and answer form and contains all of the up-to-date information on the deductibles you have to pay, a sample Medicare claim form with detailed instructions on how to fill it out, and a complete explanation on how the reasonable charge under part "B" is figured. This book may be ordered by sending $1.75 to Heartline's Guide to Medicare, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 43281. This book is completely guaranteed and if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: I am a veteran of World War II. I have always rented a place to live. I was wondering if there is any specific length of time in which I must use my GI home loan benefit to purchase a home? D.C.

A. There is no longer any expiration date for entitlement to use your GI home loan benefit.

Soviet Legislators To Visit America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten members of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's top parliamentary body, will arrive here Jan. 22 for an 11-day visit to the United States.

The Soviet group's visit is in response to an invitation extended last year by Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd.

It marks the continuation of an exchange of visits, begun in 1974, by members of the Supreme Soviet and members of Congress.

The Soviet delegation will spend the first four days after arriving in discussions with members of Congress at the Capitol and also in meeting informally with senators and representatives in their homes.

After a luncheon hosted by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance on Jan. 26, the Soviet delegates will take a seven-day trip to Houston, Los Angeles, Detroit and New York. They will leave for Moscow on Feb. 2.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I was recently widowed and left with two substantial blocks of stock. One, an electronics stock, shows a substantial loss. It pays very little dividends. The other is a well-known utility on which I have a profit. Dividends are very good. I could use more income. Should I sell both so as to balance the loss against the profit?

Fiery Snowman Goes Home From Dallas Hospital

DALLAS (AP) — Daniel Yoder, the man whose rented snowman costume burst into flames before a national television audience during last Sunday's National Football Conference championship game, has been released from a Dallas hospital.

Yoder, 24, who suffered second-degree burns, has declined comment on the incident and has refused to be interviewed. A spokesman at Parkland Hospital said Yoder was released Saturday and was "doing good."

A Dallas high school official said last week that Yoder apparently bumped into a pupil who was carrying a can of burning liquid fuel that was being used to heat cocoa for sale at the game between the Dallas Cowboys and the Minnesota Vikings.

No official statement concerning the incident has been made by officials at Texas Stadium in Irving.

The results of tests on a sample of the costume material conducted by the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission are expected to be released today. It will also be determined if the manufacturer was in compliance with consumer protection laws.

It was reported during the weekend that Yoder was considering filing suits alleging negligence against Texas Stadium and the manufacturer of the costume.

A. I don't see why you should. The electronics stock is very speculative in nature — hardly an investment for an elderly widow in need of income. A no-dividend, speculative stock doesn't belong in your portfolio. Sell it and, if you pay any income taxes at all, use the loss to reduce taxable income. Put the proceeds into daily savings and into a savings certificate for 7½ percent (you make no mention of any savings.)

The utility should not be sold because it is doing a good job for you. There is no law which says gains should be taken in order to offset losses.

If the reverse were true — a big profit on the non-dividend-paying electronics stock and a heavy loss on the utility (or any other stock) — you would want to take the profit on the electronics stock in order to reinvest it in something paying you a generous dividend. That would result in a capital gain obligation which you would then want to offset by taking a loss on the utility (even though it pays a good dividend). You could then also reinvest the proceeds of the utility in another utility stock or bond or any other good income producer. To sum up:

There is no law which says you must take a profit just because you have taken a loss. Take the loss and carry the tax credit forward for years.

If you take a profit in order to shift your funds to a better income producer, and have suffered a loss in another stock, by all means take that loss so as to reduce or wipe out that capital gains liability. You don't get money back from Uncle Sam.

Q. I bought five utility bonds 10 years ago. The coupon was 6¼. They are down to 82 now. Should I take the loss and reinvest elsewhere?

A. I'd vote no. By the time you paid selling commissions you'd be fortunate to come out with about $4,000 net. And by the time you paid another commission to buy four higher coupon bonds, the net increase in annual income would be only about $25 to $50 a year-if that much.

Q. I haven't much money to invest, but over the next 20 years or so could put $500 or $1,000 into stocks. How?

A. Several ways (1) Via a mutual fund which will allow investments — after an initial minimum sum — of almost any reasonable figure; (2) via a periodic investment program which some large brokerage firms are still offering; (3) via dividend, plus cash, reinvestment in share first acquired (in any amount) through a regular brokerage deal.

The Investors Service Bureau of the N.Y. Stock Exchange, Dept. S, 11 Wall St., New York City 10005, will send you a list of brokers in your area.

Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

For lists of growth and dividend stocks, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to Sam Shulsky, care of King Features Syndicate 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017

Class, Workshop Opportunities Seen Outstanding At Mrs. B's

It is time to sign up for many of the art and craft classes scheduled to begin (some as soon as Jan. 16) at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts, 5105 29th Drive in Lubbock.

So much is exciting, new and interesting at Mrs. B's, that only highlights are given here.

Toile instruction again will be available from Charl Egeland and from Sarah Storrs, both highly qualified instructors with whom one can enjoy studying.

Miniature oils will be given attention in Thursday night sessions conducted by Jo Daugherty who is quite well known here and who is widely accepted for her expertise in the field.

Then there will be instruction by Jeanie Lewis, returning in March.

And Sally Carter will form classes in gold leafing.

Two Saturday oil workshops loom in January, conducted by Jo Daugherty.

Early inquiry is urged to assure inclusion in one or more of these class sessions or workshops.

Also, consider these other benefits of particular current interest at Mrs. B's: 'Good Buys'

Many items are now drastically reduced in price in January Clearance.

A large selection of wood, in usual and preferred patterns, is stocked for the Toile painter.

And plaster - there is seeds of this in many, many designs.

Everything for macramé remains the situation at Mrs. B's, too.

Weekly there are new arrivals throughout the diversified stock, and frequent visits are invited to stay abreast of all that's new.

Mrs. B's, under the ownership and active management of Margie Berryhill, occupies a striking, well-designed and easily found home at 5105 29th Drive (on the cutoff between Brownfield Highway and Slide Road.)

Everything is designed for efficiency and ease in shopping.

From the easy access, off-street parking in an uncrowded area, a building specifically designed and remodeled for the craft and gift shop and classroom, the attractive arrangement within, the well-lighted parking area, and the huge stock

Choice selection - at January Clearance prices - this is the opportunity presented at Jan's Casual Cottage, 3404 34th St., in Indiana Gardens.

This second annual January Clearance Sale is just commencing, and all fall, winter and holiday wear (missy and junior) is marked at 33 per cent to even 50 per cent off!

Imagine such a reduction from the already-low prices posted at Jan's on the quality apparel there.

Whatever the need from throughout the intriguing stock, one may choose at sale prices from the fall and winter items.

All merchandise is casual, all personnel friendly! Even at sale time it is a relaxing shop in which to select.

Now in its second year, Jan's Casual everything says "We're glad you are among our customers."

Let owner Margie Berryhill and her daughter, Stacy, and the instructors personally express their greetings to you at Mrs. B's.

Projects by the scores can originate and progress to completion at Mrs. B's. For shopping satisfaction, pleasure in browsing and selection, and for learning, this shop is heartily recommended.

Jan's Casual Cottage Stages Clearance Sale

Cottage has enjoyed enthusiastic acceptance, and upon a visit there, one readily can discover why this is so.

Essentially a "family operation," Jan's is owned by Jan Holleman, assisted by her husband, Ernie Holleman; her mother, Mary Pattillo; her daughter, Kellie; and other staffmembers as the need arises.

Jan, Ernie and Mary each are Texas Tech grads and they head a staff who "are your kind of people," folks who want you to have the best in affordable casual wear, people to whom one may turn with confidence in wardrobe selection.

Each sincerely hope that you will come in at this time, take advantage of the sale, and renew or make new acquaintance, letting the staff express a personal New Year wish for your happiness and prosperity.

Master Charge, Visa and layaway purchases are welcomed.

Selections are grouped for ease in shopping.

University Convalescent Center Reveals Remodeling, Benefits

For a certainty, the locally-operated University Convalescent Center, extended care facility, at 2400 Quaker Ave., could well be an "eye opener" if you have not visited there recently.

Actually, it has so very much going for it that full description is difficult.

Presently, every room is being repainted.

New carpeting is being installed.

Under the able administration of Ed Burns, Jr., the center is kept "modern" in every respect, with proper attention directed to the physical plant and for the comfort and enjoyment of every resident.

Folks seem to enjoy living at the facility, one discovers even upon a short visit or tour there. Isn't this in itself a rather convincing recommendation?

Private and semi-private rooms are provided.

University Convalescent Center is a Type III facility, accepting both Medicaid and private pay plans.

Accommodations are provided for 96 residents.

Burns has gathered around himself a most able staff.

Ann Green is director of nursing.

Jackie Perry is activity director and maintains a continuous program of interest to residents.

Full Program Organized games and programs every day are appreciated and enjoyed, with Sunday church services within the center, with a visiting minister, a weekly feature.

A house doctor is on call 24 hours a day. A pharmacy consultant, RN consultant and dietitian consultant also make their services available.

ided, with home-grown beef as one of the quality menu items.

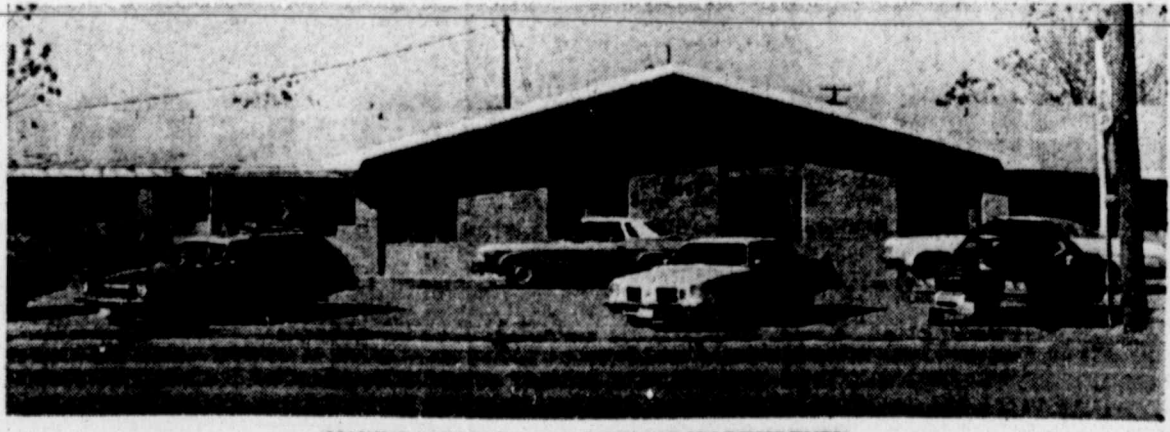

Some residents have lived at University Convalescent Center for six years and more.

University Convalescent Center traditionally has been very well accepted as a "better" facility of its type, and especially has this been true under the administration of Burns who has a rich background of experience in the field.

In brief, everything seems to have been done to help the residents enjoy living at University Convalescent Center.

Attention also is called to Quaker Manor, Inc., under same ownership but located at 4403 74th St., where Mrs. Janell Burns is administrator.

Physical facilities at each, and the qualified, "interested" personnel make residency at each a very pleasant experience, more than a few "who know" will attest.

Gill Construction Suggesting Beauty-Economy-Service Combo

"Why not start the new year right... considering beauty treatment for your home, making improvements that will enhance its value?"

Gill Construction Co. can materially assist. Gill can show you how you need never paint your home again (and with the rising costs of every hand, doesn't this appeal?)

"Learn the advantages of the United States Steel soffit and fascia system that is more than just a cover-up for overhangs; it is more like a whole house beauty treatment!"

"When 'overhangs' start to deteriorate, your entire home starts to get that 'run-down' look. So whether you call it 'overhang' or 'soffit and fascia' (that's what the builders call it), there is a Lubbock firm that does something about it!"

"Learn the advantages of the United States Steel soffit and fascia system that is more than just a cover-up for overhangs; it is more like a whole house beauty treatment!"

Gill Construction Co., 1926 34th St., phone 747-5513, headed by Ike Gill who has 13 years in related business in Lubbock and the South Plains, is glad to give full details, explaining without obligation how you never need paint your overhang and fascia board again... by installing USS materials. Call collect, visit the office, or write P. O. Box 333, Lubbock.

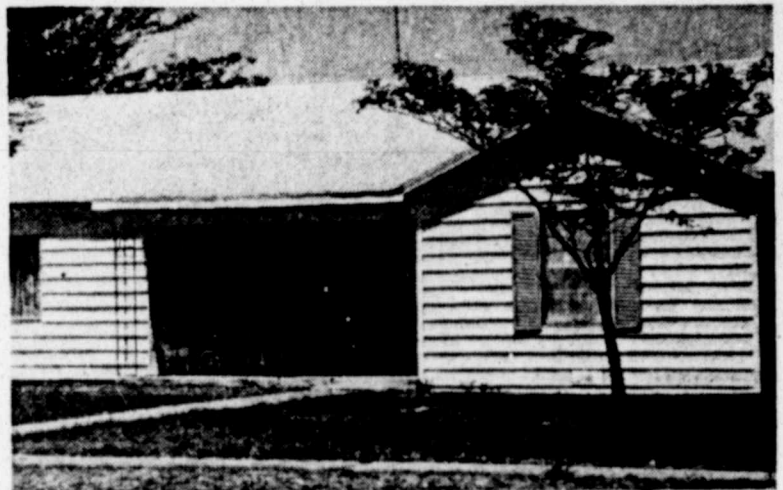

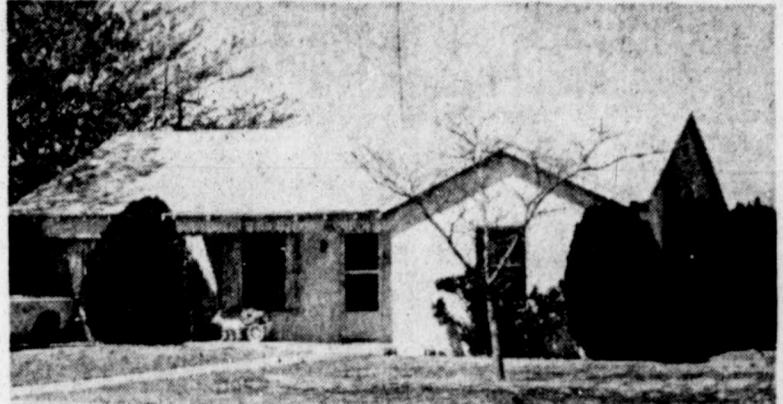

Ike Gill can show the many, many advantages of fascia and siding, both or either, and his capable crew can install anywhere in the area — fast and immediately.

"Wouldn't it be great to eliminate painting forever? It can be done, thanks to Ike Gill and the USS buildings materials. Brick homes with wood overhang most certainly can benefit from the system, he points out.

And remember, USS siding also is installed by this Lubbock firm.

Furthermore: there is a 30-year guarantee on material and labor.

No down payment is required. Financing is available! The program is accept-ble to FHA — Title I, Gill reports.

Consider the USS materials and their advantages, including:

- (1) Available in a number of colors;
- (2) never needs painting;
- (3) goes up easily over old wood, asbestos, stucco or masonry walls;
- (4) superior insulation against heat, cold and outside noises;
- (5)

does not support combustion; (6) will not peel, blister, flake, or warp; and (7) fast installation with professional results.

"So, homeowners take notice!" it is true, with no gimmicks. You need never paint your home again (and you can conserve energy, too). Get full details from the man with the know-how, Ike Gill.

Business & Industrial Review

OUTSTANDING SERVICE NOTED — Ida Roberts, Woolco staffmember 'doing an extremely good job' in the lingerie department of the Lubbock store, is shown being presented the latest "Outstanding Employee of the Month" plaque by store manager J.G. Treadaway. A Lubbock resident of 11 years, she is no newcomer to the organization as her husband is an ex-manager for Woolworth in Vernon and in Cortez (Colo.), and Ida has several years service with the company in Clovis, Hobbs and other area locations. The couple have five children, with two of these at home. A graduate of Clovis High School in 1951, Ida professes true enjoyment of her work with Woolco, and this interest is well reflected in customer and management appreciation of her service.

HONORED UPON RETIREMENT — Myrtle Evans (left) and Maggie Stringer are cited for tenure and achievement by Woolco manager J.G. Treadaway upon their retirement just announced. Maggie Stringer is retiring after 22 years with F.W. Woolworth Co., and Myrtle Evans marks 18 years. Each began with the company in the old Woolworth downtown store in Lubbock. Maggie in 1965 was transferred to the Woolworth store in Monterey Center, working there five years. She took a leave of absence when it was decided to close that store, working at Texas Tech until the Woolco store was opened. She has served at the Red Grill within the store since that date. Myrtle Evans served in the Woolco cosmetics department as manager for the past several years. She is a longtime Lubbock resident, coming here in '59 from West Virginia. "The retirement of each of these fine staffmembers is a big loss for our store," Treadaway assures.

TIRES AT SALE PRICES — Ronald Tedder, right, manager of Woolco's Automotive and Tire Center, is joined here by John Ortiz, assistant department manager, in calling attention to the fantastic tire sale conducted by Woolco each January. "This year is no exception as the January '78 Tire Sale is the greatest in Woolco history; never before has Woolco had tire prices as low as they are during this promotion", Tedder emphasizes. It is a sell-out on Woolco's top-of-the-line bias belted tires "so come in early to insure your purchase; at these prices, they won't last long! While in our department buying tires, also check out our accessories, cash in on our many values and put dollar savings into your pocket. Come in and talk to any of our tire sales people and get the deal of a lifetime. Mechanics including Alvis Hasley and Israel McDonald, with total combined experience of over 40 years, are on duty from 9:30 a.m. until 9:30 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays."

SALE ENABLES EVEN LOWER PRICES

'Already-Low Prices Seen Slashed In Carpets Unlimited January Clearance'

January Clearance is underway at Carpets Unlimited, 810 50th St. (just east of Avenue H on 50th). This means that carpet already priced at a low $2.99 to $6.99 per yard is now marked even lower, some at a mere $1.99 per yard!

Carpets Unlimited is not a "remnant store", but rather is a division of Gemini Carpets, a West Texas company with eight-store buying power and qualifying as one of the larger dealers in the area.

Ron Head, life-long Lubbock resident and thoroughly experienced in the carpet field, is manager of Carpets Unlimited.

He points out some of the January Clearance prices including:

Soft denier nylon sculptured shag, stripe pattern, sold by rolls only, now at $1.99 per yard while it lasts.

And one roll only, red-black commercial carpet at $1.99, no cuts on this one.

Saxony nylon plush shag at $2.99, and heavy sculptured shag, Thunder Bay green, gold color, at $3.99 while it lasts.

"Get the picture? There are values throughout the stock, with everything in stock on sale, with savings to 75 per cent."

"Quoted prices are for carpet only, with installation and pads priced very competitively. Head points out."

Both commercial and residential carpet is stocked, and samples are kept on the floor, as well as many rolls, and sometimes remnants and short ends.

The firm has its own skilled installers. No-obligation estimates are gladly given, and representatives are glad to bring samples to the home or business.

Speedy service is assured, what with the local stock, the availability through the other stores of the Gemini group, and from the manufacturers. (Carpets Unlimited can secure carpet directly from any mill, they report.)

Financing is available, and Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed.

"The January Clearance Sale would be an excellent time to learn all about Carpets Unlimited and how it can save for you, specializing in irregular quality carpet."

Lokey Firm Offering Complete Stock Copy Machine Supplies

"Serving the South Plains Area", the Lokey Company stocks a complete selection of supplies for copy machines.

Paper, toner and developer in plain bond or electrostatic for most brands of copiers is just as near as the Lokey Company, 1516 53rd St., phone 744-8571. (Also, note the toll-free number, 1-800-682-4201.)

"Phone orders are welcomed, and if you are not sure just what to order, tell us the kind of copier and we'll do the rest!"

Supplies for Xerox, IBM, Savin, A.B. Dick, SCM, 3M and many others are stocked.

Specialists are on the job to assure prompt and complete satisfaction in 1978 just as was the rule in the year just past.

New Year Greetings
The Lokey Company is deeply mindful of the trade and confidence of its growing family of customers, and it wishes all a most bountiful new year.

"We want to have a part in your achievements in the new year; let us show how we can be of benefit."

The service and price at The Lokey Company most certainly invite comparison.

The firm is owned by long-time Lubbock resident E.E. Lokey, with Bruce Lokey and Jim Brookman on the job to speed every transaction.

Further Assistance
And... a sister company, Direct Mail of Texas, affords complete letter and mailing service, if this is the need. Direct Mail even can design the mailing piece, furnishing the art work and all for a "turnkey job".

Service and price are key considerations here, also.

"If you have not become acquainted with The Lokey Company, copy supply specialists, then we think you and your business will profit by early acquaintance with our products and services."

For consistency, quality, sensible price and assistance from an understanding management, The Lokey Company stands tall. May we have the privilege of your business?

"Remember, if you're not sure what to order in the way of copy supplies, just tell us the kind of copier and we'll do the rest. Simply call 744-8571 or the toll-free number, 1-800-682-4201."

FOR COPIER SUPPLIES — "If you're not sure what to order, simply tell us the kind of copier and we'll do the rest" is the qualified assurance from Jim Brookman and Bruce Lokey at The Lokey Company, 1516 53rd St.

Dura' Bilt Portable Buildings Fulfilling Variety Area Needs

What could be more appealing than tomorrow's buildings at yesterday's prices?

This is the advertised situation at Dura' Bilt Portable Buildings, 6527 Ave. H (66th and H) in south Lubbock, where the invitation is extended:

"Check our regular everyday low prices against the so-called sale prices of others."

Still other factors make transactions there especially worthwhile.

Such as more than 20 buildings now on the big lot, ready for delivery.

The firm is locally owned and operated, with buildings constructed to one's specifications under the direction of Edward (Junior) Rackley, long-time Lubbock builder who has resided here for the past 30 years. Rackley and John Fritz are partners in the firm.

The portable building—so right for numerous uses such as storage, lake cabins, offices, warehouses, workshops, etc., feature 26-gauge steel roofs. No hail problem here. Masonite siding is utilized, with the rot-free quality stressed, and available in the color of one's choice.

Trim out is in different colors of matching metal trim.

Quality Built In
Rubber closures are standard in the eaves to guard against blowing sand.

Plywood flooring and floor joists on 16-inch center assure further quality.

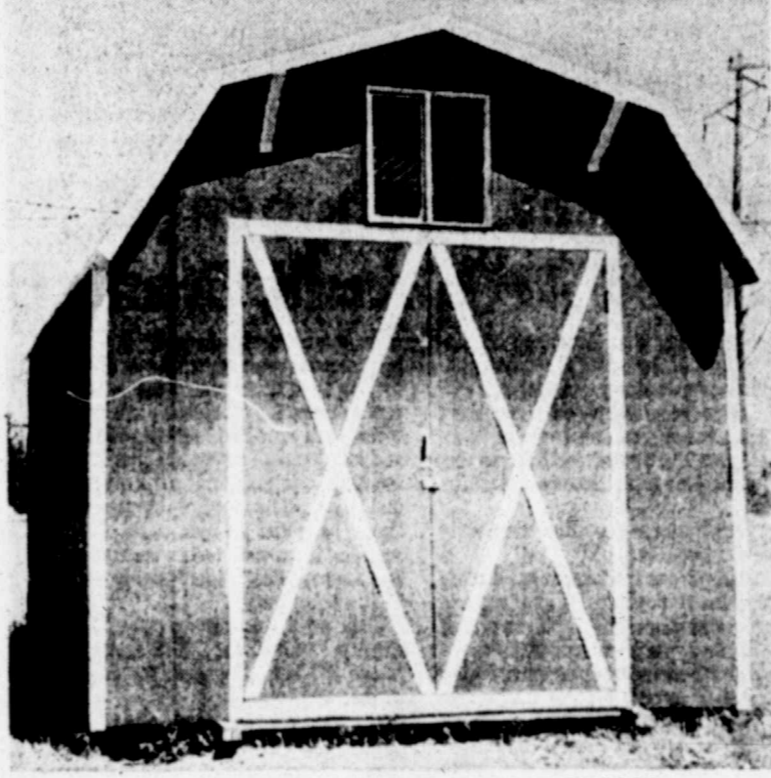

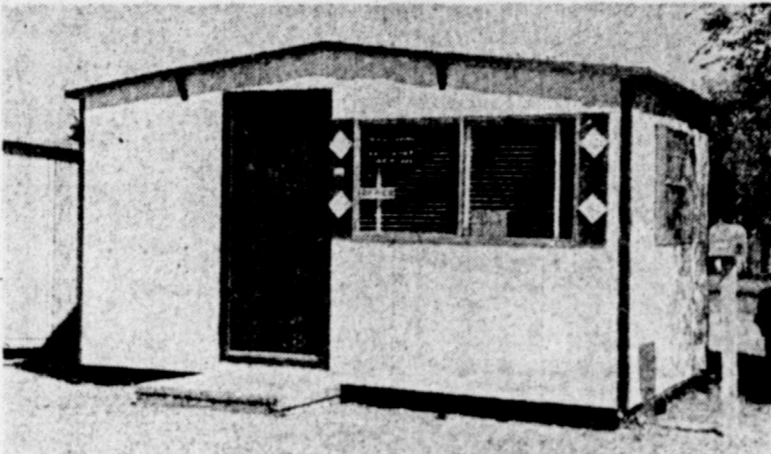

Cinnamon birch paneling is featured, together with 3 1/2-inch fiberglass insulation. Even wiring and carpeting is provided in finished buildings.

"And we deliver anywhere."

A very representative stock of these buildings is on display at the site, 66th & H, remember, and Fritz and Rackley will be glad to discuss your needs, explaining how they can build to your specifications at a savings, still assuring quality throughout.

"Anytime you are in Lubbock, we hope you will come out to our place, just below the traffic circle at corner of 66th & H. We look forward to your visits, now or at any time. We think we can save for you in a manner economically profitable and satisfactory in every way in your particular situation."

AMONG DURA' BILT UNITS WITH QUALITY BUILT IN

Bernice's Hair Fashions Providing Services, Staff, Cost To Appreciate

Razor cuts or scissor cuts for both men and women: everyday low prices, and the skilled staff at Bernice's Hair Fashions make for an unbeatable combination.

Every beauty service is of the highest quality when secured at Bernice's, 2107 Knoxvile Ave., near Methodist Hospital.

Uni-Perms, including cut, shampoo and set, are a modest $21, and other services at the salon are equally reasonably priced.

The staff is adept in all the new hairstyles and latest methods, and one could do well to form the habit of depending upon Bernice's, phone 795-2604. Early and late appointments can be arranged.

Staff To Appreciate
Barbara Huffman, a Jessie Lee graduate well recognized in the trade and by customers who appreciate quality in beauty and hair care, is manager. Barbara has been with Bernice's for 14 years.

Bernice Sturdivant still is owner.

Barbara is assisted by an able staff including Mary Williamson, Debbie McCollum and Frances Collins.

Mary, an Odessa Beauty School graduate, has been with Bernice's for seven years, and specializes in blow dries and curling iron, though rendering the other beauty services as well.

Frances, trained in Sherman, has 12 years experience, and Bernice's is quite proud to present her in Lubbock as a member of the staff. Adept in all phases of beauty care, she especially enjoys blow dry and curling iron work.

Debbie McCollum, a graduate of Mick-ie's Beauty Academy, specializes in blow dries, curling iron and general hair-dos.

With these operators, one can be certain that the complete hair care and beauty services are available.

"Hair care from any member of this qualified staff can actually make you the envy of the crowd."

Manicures are available.

Whether long or short hair styles are the situation, or whether old or new style cuts are desired, Bernice's can be a most satisfactory solution.

It is pointed out that with the very popular Uni-Perm, one's hair behaves as nicely as naturally wavy hair. There's none of the harsh stiffness falsely referred to as "body," either.

Bernice's is open six days a week.

Remember the location, one-half block south of Methodist Hospital at 2107 Knoxvile Ave., phone 795-2604, a location especially appreciated by residents of that area and by hospital-related personnel, visitors, etc.

"Enviably beauty care is just as near as Bernice's Hair Fashions in Lubbock where the coffeepot always is on and a friendly, casual atmosphere prevails."

Sonotone-Lubbock Tells Month-Long Discounts

In extending their best wishes, the staff also passes on a suggestion:

"Now, while a special 10 per cent discount is arranged on all hearing aids at Sonotone-Lubbock (during January) would be an excellent time to assist any family members with hearing problems, making the new year richer for them.

A quality, modern CE all-in-the-ear hearing aid might be the solution.

Louise Bills, manager of Sonotone-Lubbock; and staffers Ralph Huntington and Flo Miller are anxious to serve in a manner possible. Greetings received during the holiday season attest to the services, products, personal interest and friendship of these fine folks.

"If you have not become acquainted with them, the very best New Year's resolution would be to do so at early convenience . . . while the 10 per cent discount month-long special is effective.

(Some rebuilt units still are available and these are priced at substantial savings.)

More about the CE . . . it is individually made to meet one's hearing requirements. It may be fitted for hearing impairments of "mild" through "severe."

It may be comfortably worn after retiring . . . while you sleep; it is designed for reliability and may be worn comfortably and inconspicuously, offering the potential of hearing assistance combined with minimal visibility.

Also, inquire about other models available.

A veteran in hearing aid sales, service and achievement, Louise has been heaped with honors from manufacturer and customers alike.

Each staff member exemplifies the firm's concept of service in every contact.

"Professionalism with a human touch" at Sonotone-Lubbock has earned appreciation and acclaim of customers throughout the area. Small wonder these people at Sonotone-Lubbock, 2318 Broadway, phone 762-5469, have made life richer for hundreds throughout the region.

No-Obligation Tests
Individual hearing tests, at no obligation, personalized fitting, frequent check-ups and the interested care of a Sonotone consultant is the service one can expect without exception at Sonotone-Lubbock.

"If you have a hearing problem or suspect that you may have one, that visit or call you make to Sonotone-Lubbock may be the most important one you will ever make."

AUTO CRANE NOW DISTRIBUTED BY LUBBOCK FIRM

American Equipment & Trailer Named Area Auto Crane Distributor

Again proving that American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., 3707 Quirt Ave., appreciates your business, stocking and giving service accordingly, announcement has been made that the firm has been named area distributor for Auto Crane, adding this line to its already-prestigious stock.

"If your business is construction, Auto Crane can work for you!"

The Auto Crane truck-mounted electric units make it possible for one man to change a transmission... pull an engine... lift heavy parts and load bulky materials that otherwise would require two or more men to handle.

Remote Control

The Auto Crane, mounted on your service truck, responds smoothly with up to 6,000 lbs. of lifting power directed by remote control from where the work is being done. And it can all be done by one man, remember, wherever the equipment needs repair or maintenance.

"You save time and money when you can do more jobs with the same people. Your Auto Crane equipment pays for itself fast. You are assured of quality workmanship, well-stocked parts inventory and responsible service because Auto Crane machines its own parts, then assembles them and tests every crane in one factory. That's total quality control. That's Auto Crane."

Visit, write or call American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., 3707 Quirt Ave., phone 747-2991, Lubbock, for complete product information.

Of course American Equipment & Trailer still offers the quality IMTCO and RO Stinger II cranes, and Galion dump bodies, and a huge stock of accessories especially appreciated by the construction trade.

"American Equipment & Trailer invites you to check for specifications, and for details of how any of the represented lines and units can fit into your own operation."

"We are proud of our customer list, appreciating the opportunities of years past to serve the contractor, rancher, farmer, industrialist, trucker and all with quality products from recognized lines. We look forward to continuation of these opportunities and privileges in 1978."

Come out and visit American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., at its modern facility — eight acres of land and a 12,000 sq. ft. building with multiple double-bay drive-through shop, parts department and spacious showrooms. A genuine welcome awaits.

Lubbock Kash & Karry Grocery Continues Pricing Advantages

"It is a fact... grocery savings are possible for each of you in 1978, thanks to Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery."

"Many of you have profited — for months — by checking the ads of Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery on these pages, and purchasing accordingly. Selecting at the same time from the hundreds of other items already marked at 'rock bottom' at this popular Lubbock grocery that recently celebrated its second anniversary."

"Others of you possibly have yet to learn the money-saving truth... that Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery can be a tremendous friend to the family budget."

Certainly, all will agree that it is advantageous to shop more carefully than ever before... for price and value. Then... be sure and check the Lubbock Kash & Karry ad.

(Not only this week, but check each week on representative money-saving staple items provided by this distinctive firm at 901 N. Ave. Q.

Did you know that groceries still can be purchased in Lubbock at rock-bottom prices — and — with full carry-out and packing service?

"If you are shopping elsewhere, you may be doing much of the work yourself, and still be paying too much; so — try Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery and pocket the savings!"

Located at 901 N. Ave. Q, phone 747-6033, this firm is Lubbock's only independently and wholly owned and operated wholesale grocery.

Low Overhead

It takes pride in "selling for less," a policy made possible by its cash arrangement, low overhead, purchases directly from the manufacturer, its policy of "pick it up yourself and save the difference," and local warehousing.

Co-owners are Tommy Toombs and N.ble Sides, with Toombs as manager.

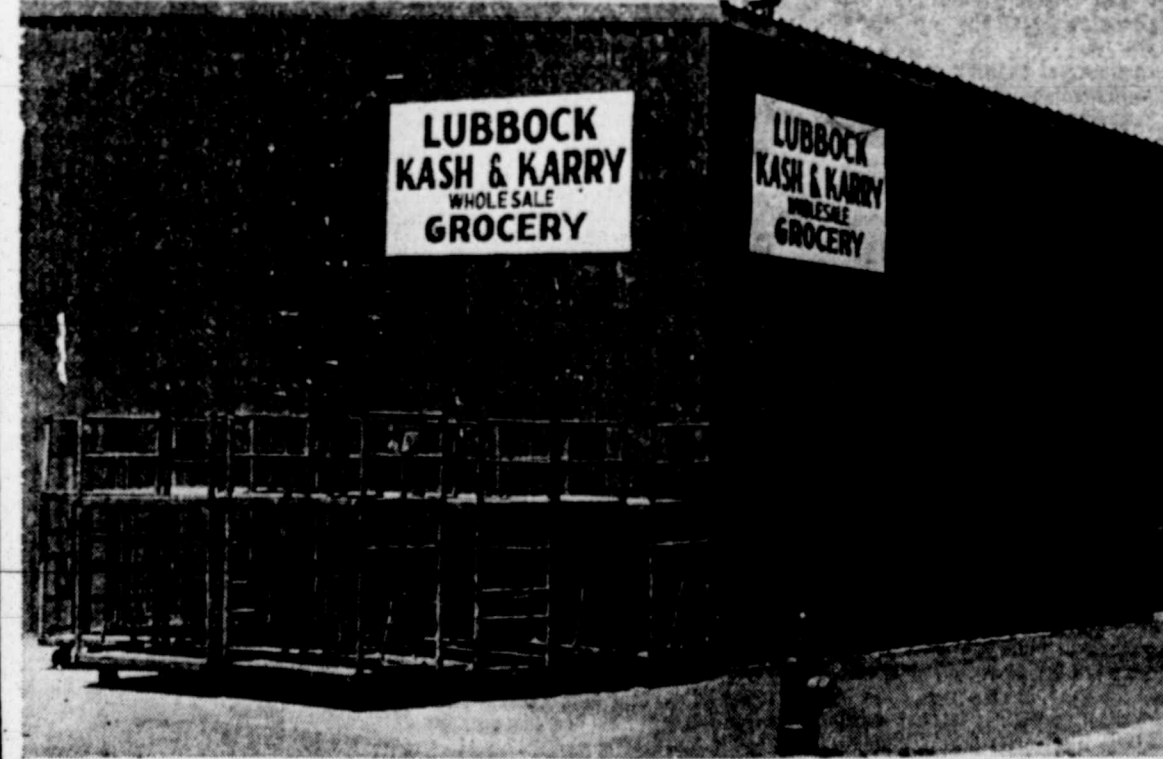

Sides, formerly with the Ben E. Keith Co., enjoys a wide acquaintance in the area, as does Tommy who also is a long-time Lubbock resident. Both are on the job to give their personal attention.

In its fully-stocked quarters on North Avenue Q, Lubbock Kash & Karry sells in quantities as small as one-half case lots, and packaged meats, etc., by the package.

A very good stock of refrigerated products, including these packaged meats, is maintained.

The firm has enjoyed acceptance and appreciation of those even coming long distances to take advantage of the prices and selection. More than 1,600 items are included in the stock that veritably affords "anything for the grocery business," and housed in a big 6,000 sq. ft. building at the north Lubbock location.

Staffmembers are on hand to load merchandise for the purchaser, remember. Everything is top quality, with definite "no seconds" even at the low prices.

Republicans Show Unity At Meeting

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche/Journal Staff

Lubbock County Republicans who have made headlines in recent months with internecine squabbles, put on an impressive show of unity Sunday.

Leaders of both the official county GOP executive committee and of a new volunteer organization, the Active Republicans of Lubbock County (ARLC), vowed at an ARLC meeting to work together during this election year to put GOP candidates in office from the national to the local levels.

For about the past six months leaders of the Active Republicans have been extremely critical of County GOP Chairman Mike Stevens and other party officials. Then late last year, those critics, Mike Van Horn and John Ryan, set up the new group which old-line Republican hierarchy feared might try to supplant or work in opposition to the official organization.

Ryan and Van Horn vowed at the charter session for their organization that they wanted to enhance, not hurt, the GOP executive committee's work in electing conservative Republican candidates. And Sunday, they preached the same theme.

"All that has taken place the last few months and the past year must cease," Ryan said, referring to the old squabbles.

Remarks by Stevens, GOP district committee man Ray Chapman and former Lubbock mayor and unsuccessful 1974 gubernatorial candidate Jim Granberry appeared to end any public arguing. They, too, urged some 40 persons present to work together.

The ARLC voted Sunday to: — "Strongly encourage" Granberry to seek the Republican primary nomination for the 28th Senatorial District. He told the group he hoped to have a decision on whether or not to make the race within two weeks.

— Urge its members to participate in a petition drive on behalf of Jim Reese. Reese will announce as a candidate for the 19th Congressional District on Jan. 17 and is trying to get enough petition signatures to put him on the ballot without having to pay a $1,000 filing fee.

— Invite farmers to join the Republican party as the political organization which can help farmers make a living.

A resolution calling attention to recent farm strike activities said farmers' economic woes are due "to the fact that they have been betrayed by the undemocratic Democratic party and the Democratic president."

The ARLC plans to hold an annual convention Feb. 18 at which it will endorse candidates. During enthusiastic speech-making on behalf of Reese, and the passage of the resolution to help his petition drive, no mention was made of the fact that there already is an announced GOP candidate for the 19th Congressional seat, George Bush of Midland.

Bush has been stumping the area for several months. Reese ran against U.S. Rep. George Mahon in 1976, polling about 45 percent of the vote then.

Three Cities Vie For New Health Center

Representatives of three Permian Basin cities interested in becoming the site of a new Texas Tech regional academic health center, will make oral presentations before the Texas Tech University Board of Regents Feb. 2, as part of the site selection process.

Officials from Midland, Odessa and Big Spring will appear before the regents, each making an hour-long presentation.

Written proposals from cities interested in becoming the site of the school's third regional health center were solicited by Texas Tech last November.

Legislation creating Tech's medical school recommended that teaching sites be established in Amarillo, El Paso and the Permian Basin.

The regents will formally review the three proposals during the board's regular meeting Feb. 3.

British Youngsters Design Heat Suit

CREDITON, England (AP) — Two 15-year-old British schoolboys have designed an electric trouser suit to keep old people warm.

Paul Longthorpe and Peter Comont, pupils at the same school in this Devon county town, said they got the idea when an elderly local woman died from hypothermia — low body temperature — a condition that often afflicts the old.

They said the suit works like an electric blanket, with an electric element fitted into the lining and a lead wire that plugs into an outlet. It costs about two cents a day to run, they said.

"The power supply is controlled by a transformer and an automatic switch operates when the body temperature rises or falls beyond a certain point. The switch can also cut out for safety," Longthorpe said.

"The advantage of the suit is that heat is concentrated where it is most wanted," he added.

Using the suit restricts a person's movements, but the inventors believe it is practical because relatively immobile periods are when the elderly are most susceptible to hypothermia.

The boys said they spent about $11 to make the suit, which has been worn and tested by one old person.

Deep Snows Bring Skiing Boom

By The Associated Press

What a difference a year makes. Some western ski resort operators are already saying that this will be a record season. Last year most of them cried disaster as winter snows leapfrogged the West and smothered the nation's Midwest and East.

The weather last year kept both snow and skiers off the slopes and cash registers were as dry as the mountainsides.

This year, glowing reports of deep snow bases, full reservations and record expectations come from the luxury ski spas from Big Mountain in Montana to Squaw Valley in California, from Snoqualmie Summit in Washington to Taos Ski Valley in New Mexico.

But there are still a few grim spots. Holiday Hill in the San Gabriel Mountains east of Los Angeles has had rain, but little snow. Saturday was the area's first fully operational day of the season.

The rest of the California ski situation is rated excellent, with the best Sierra Nevada snowpack in four seasons after two years of severe drought.

In Montana, the western and northern regions have excellent skiing, but the south is not getting as much snow.

Group Says Utilities Avoid Tax Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 100 largest utilities charged their customers $2.1 billion for federal income taxes that were never paid, the Environmental Action Foundation said Sunday.

The foundation said the companies cite the amount of tax owed the federal government to justify electrical rates, but then use a variety of legal accounting stratagems to avoid paying the taxes.

A spokesman for one of the companies, Florida Power Corp., said the charges revolved around a deferred tax liability designed to encourage capital investment by public utilities.

"That's part of the tax code," said the spokesman, William C. Johnson. "As a capital investment incentive, the tax can be paid over a period of time instead of all at once."

"Johnson called the allegations "an annual story," and said this is the third consecutive January environmental groups have raised the issue.

According to the foundation's study, the 100 power companies "charged their customers for $2.5 billion in federal income taxes in 1976, but paid only $375 million to the Internal Revenue Service."

It also said the cost of building and maintaining "unnecessary power plants" cost consumers an estimated $700 million in 1976.

Gains Noted In State Tax Collections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 50 state governments collected $101 billion in taxes from their residents during fiscal 1977, an increase of 13 percent over the previous year, a new Census Bureau survey said Sunday.

Since fiscal 1974, the survey said, state tax revenues have jumped by 35 percent.

Individual income taxes have increased in relative importance as a state tax source, while gasoline taxes have decreased and general sales taxes have remained relatively stable during that period, it said.

The Census Bureau report noted that state taxes account for about half of all money spent by state governments. The remainder of the revenue comes from non-tax sources such as federal revenue sharing and other governmental payments and insurance trusts.

The nation's two most populous states, California and New York, accounted for 23 percent of all state taxes that were collected during 1977, the survey showed.

As in the past, the largest single category last year was sales and gross receipts taxes, which accounted for $52.4 billion of all state tax revenue. Individual income taxes was the second biggest source, $25.5 billion, and corporate taxes was third at $9.2 billion.

The survey showed that individual income taxes were up by almost 19 percent over 1976, while corporate taxes increased by 25 percent.

According to the survey, six states do not impose individual income taxes: they are Florida, Nevada, South Dakota, Texas, Washington and Wyoming.

South Dakota also does not levy a state property tax. The only other states that have no property taxes are Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Oklahoma, and Tennessee.

Broadcasters Hear News Correspondent

DENVER (AP) — CBS news legal correspondent Fred Graham warned broadcasters from 21 states Saturday of problems resulting from what he termed "the legalization of journalism."

Graham told the 100 or so broadcasters, "Increasingly, journalistic decisions are not made for journalistic reasons, but for legal reasons."

Graham, who won national awards for his coverage of legal maneuvering in Watergate-related cases, told broadcasters attending the Denver Media Law Conference that they should familiarize themselves with potential legal problems for their industry and to resist self-censorship aimed at avoiding legal conflicts involving their rights.

Ski conditions have been less than ideal at Taos Ski Valley, but spokesman Walter Widmer says this season still is turning out to be the area's best ever.

In Wyoming, Idaho, Utah and Colorado, the word is "terrific." Resort operators in New England and other East Coast ski areas also report that business is getting off to a strong start.

A Colorado ski spokesman said the state's ski bookings are running 60 percent ahead of the past six-year average.

"The skiers are back," exclaimed Terri Kelly, who works in the accounting department for Vail Associates in Colorado. "I've skied seven times this year and five of those times it's been powder over my boot tops."

She said the Dec. 27 crowd at Vail — the winter ski haven for former president Gerald Ford — was the largest in the area's history. "We had 14,160 people on the mountain."

Vail has nearly 70 inches of snow so far this winter, compared with a 25 inch maximum base last winter.

At Crested Butte, where President Carter's daughter Amy has been skiing, publicist Teri Dresner said the good snow and large crowds are helping to offset last year's disastrous season.

At Sun Valley, Idaho, spokesman Shannon Besoyan said business has been excellent since the slopes opened in November. Last year the resort operated on a limited basis with man-made snow.

Many other resorts also had to manufacture their own snow last year to stay in business.

The state of Colorado alone lost about $78 million in revenue last year because of the poor ski season. One industry spokesman said the ski industry means roughly $350 million a year to the state.

A year ago the Sierra Nevada ski resort industry was going into hock for snow-making machines. Things were so bad that even employees deserted the resorts to look for work elsewhere.

This year, Mammoth Lakes in Los Angeles County offered several hundred ski resort jobs and filled them all overnight.

At Squaw Valley in the High Sierra, scene of the 1960 Winter Olympics, manager Bill Boardman said, "The area is about 400 percent better from every point compared to last year."

Reports are the same from neighboring areas.

Jackson Hole Ski Corp. in Wyoming predicts a 40 to 45 percent gain in earnings over the record 1975-76 season and snow depths in Wyoming are about double what they were.

Ski resorts in Utah began operating at Thanksgiving compared with a post-New Year's debut a year ago.

Keystone, Colo., used snow-making machines last year for a record-setting season. "We are far above last year," said spokesman Steve Coenraier. "Furthermore, we haven't had to turn on the snow machines since the first of December."

"We're skiing day and night," said Stan DeBruler, manager of Snoqualmie Summit ski area, about 55 miles east of Seattle.

"We were apprehensive that last year might carry over, especially when ski school started slowly because of rain," DeBruler said. "But for the last three weeks, ski school sales have been tremendous, and holiday business was the best I've ever seen."

Excellent conditions weren't confined to the West. Throughout New England, resort owners say they have been doing very well.

Last year's storms, which missed the West, brought some of the best skiing to the northeastern states in many years.

A spokesman for the Stowe Area Association in Vermont, Bob Van de Veld, says the trend is continuing.

"If the season continues, it's going to be an awfully good year," he said.

It's Elementary For Watson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Tom Watson doggedly turned back Bobby Wadkins and a host of hopeful challengers with a scrambling round of par 72 Sunday and won the first tournament of the 1978 PGA Tour season, the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open.

Watson, who led or shared the lead all the way after a brilliant 63 over the first 18 holes, thus picked up where he left off with 1977 exploits that won him Player of the Year honors.

The personable, red-haired Watson, winner of $310,000, the British Open, the Masters and three other American titles last year, was tied twice during the final round before winning by a single shot over the younger brother of PGA champ Lanny Wadkins.

Watson collected $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 after completing 72 holes over the 7,305 yards of desert landscape that makes up the Tucson National Golf Club course in 276, 12 under par.

Wadkins was tied for the lead, playing in front of the formidable Watson and seeking his first title in four years of tour activity when he hit his second shot to the final hole.

His shoulders slumped when he came up short of the green. He chipped some 10 feet past the cup and missed the par-saving putt. The bogey finished off a round of 71 and gave him a 277 total. It was one shot too many but produced the biggest check of his career, $22,800 for second alone.

Hometown hero Howard Twitty jerked a happy roar from the throats of the gallery around the final green when he chipped in for a birdie that gave him a 68 and third at 278.

Lee Trevino, veteran Charles Coody and Keith Fergus were another shot back at 279. Coody and Fergus had 70s in the mild, sunny weather and the enormously popular Trevino shot a 71.

Johnny Miller, who won this title three times in a row during his reign as the game's Golden Boy, blew to a 76 and was far back in the pack at 297. Defending champion Bruce Lietzke had 69-286.

Wadkins, who hadn't finished higher than eighth before, started the day two strokes off the pace but caught Watson with birdies on the first two holes. Tom, however, birdied the sixth to pull ahead again and the margin went to two shots with Wadkins' bogey on the ninth.

Watson, encountering some swing trouble and hanging in the race seemingly by will-power alone, watched the lead dwindle to a single shot with Wadkins' 12-foot birdie putt on the par-five 15th.

Tom followed that with a bogey on the 16th, missing the green, and they were even.

Wadkins hit a massive drive on the water-guarded 18th and had a simple shot to the green. But he came up short, bogeyed the hole and left it to Watson to make a routine, two-putt par on the hole to win the tournament.

"I didn't know how we stood," the bitterly disappointed Wadkins said.

"I'm very disappointed about the hole. It was just one of those days. I shot a 71 but it could have been a 66 or 67. It's hard to believe you can go 13 holes and hit pretty pure putts that just don't go in."

Super Week Kicks Off

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Let the games begin!

The week-long flood of interviews, parties and pre-game hoopla that are as much a Super Bowl tradition as the silver trophy that goes to the winner starts today when the Dallas Cowboys and Denver Broncos are expected to arrive here.

Every detail - important and irrelevant - will be recorded by a massive media entourage that may be reduced to chronicling players' shoe sizes before the National Football League championship is decided for the 12th time under the Super Bowl format next Sunday.

For the first time, it will be contested indoors - at the Superdome, where some 75,000 spectators and a national television audience expected to reach 69 million will watch the teams which feature explosive offenses and awesome defenses with equally imposing nicknames.

For the first time, the media will have some form of access to the player workouts and to the game officials.

Raiders, Frogs Clash Tonight

After dropping an opener to Texas on the road Saturday night, Texas Tech will be at home tonight as it tries to rebound and even its Southwest Conference record against Texas Christian.

The two teams will collide in the Lubbock Coliseum beginning at 7:30 p.m.

And as Raider coach Gerald Myers walked off the court in Austin Saturday night, following the 101-86 defeat at the hands of the host-shooting Longhorns, it was not so much the Tech offense as defense which concerned him.

And emphasis on defense may be a prime factor tonight.

Tech will bring in an 8-4 record, while the Frogs have fallen on lean ground. TCU has lost twice in conference already, to Texas last Thursday and by a 68-65 verdict to SMU Saturday night. That was at the same time the Raiders were losing to Texas.

"You can't fault the offense," Myers admitted, "not when you score 86 points. But we just weren't able to stop Texas."

Tech altered its lineup for the Texas game, going with a smaller but quicker lineup of 6-4 Thad Sanders, 6-1 Geoff Huston, 6-3 Mike Edwards, 6-5 Kent Williams and 6-7 Mike Russell. However, Myers has not indicated whether he will use this theory or go back to a larger unit

If he opts for a larger team, he may come with 6-9 Joe Baxter at center, Sanders' quickness and jumping ability, as well as another outside shooter figured in the Saturday alignment.

Williams gave Tech the outside attack against Texas, as he hit 25 points, making 11 of 25 shots. Russell, who had been averaging 20 points, was held to 16, getting 12 of those in the first half. He did not get a chance to touch the ball to often in the last half.

TCU stayed on the heels of the Ponies in their SWC contest, with Steve Scales scoring 18 points. Teammate Delonte Taylor scoring 13 more.

The Frogs held a 43-40 advantage at the half.

Tonight's game will be the first in Lubbock for new coach Tim Somerville, who took over from head coach Johnny Swaim just days before the opening of the season. Somerville was hired as a TCU assistant last summer.

TCU is 2-9 for the year.

In addition to the game here, Texas A&M will open its league slate against Baylor. Rice will play at SMU and Arkansas will host Missouri-St. Louis.

After tonight, Tech will face two straight on the road, at Baylor Thursday and at Rice Saturday.

Connors Nabs Master's Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors, whose tennis fortunes had waned considerably in 1977, was revelling in the joys of the game Sunday after beating Sweden's Bjorn Borg 6-4, 1-6, 6-4 in finals of the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters tennis tournament.

Connors was cheerful and on good behavior during the five-day tournament, even after losing in the third round of the round-robin format to Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, the man who beat him at the U.S. Open.

"Even after I lost to Vilas, I wanted to get up right away the next morning and go practice," said the 25-year-old left-hander. "I'm enjoying tennis. It's something I really want to do."

Connors had a hard time in 1977 trying to make anybody believe he was still No. 1 after losing at the U.S. Open and at Wimbledon. His victory Sunday avenged, at least in part, his five-set loss to Borg in the English grass court classic.

"I started off 1978 on a winning note.

Even though the tournament might count more for 1977, this is a good way to start the year," he said of the Masters, in which he was playing for the first time after shunning offers to play the previous three years.

"Any time I get to play Borg and Vilas and all those guys is a good time for me," said Connors.

Connors, who more and more often has to play much younger players now, reflected on his future.

"When you're 18, you're young and you're eager. When you're 25, like I am, I've done it all," he said. "I've seen it from both ends and I like it better at the top."

Connors forced a single service break in the first set, which was evenly fought otherwise, fighting a duce point to win on a powerful forehand crosscourt.

But in the second set, Connors hit an extraordinary number of errors, particularly off his backhand. Meanwhile, Borg, cool and steady, maneuvered the American about the Madison Square Garden court with hard, topspin forehand drives and gentle backhands.

Borg broke the left-hander's service in the second game of the second set on four Connors' backhand errors and again in the fourth after a long rally. Connors, after running from side to side, dumped a forehand into the net.

Connors rallied in the next game, breaking Borg's serve, but he was unable to hold his own service throughout the set.

Borg took the final game of the second set easily on another of Connors' backhand errors.

The final set started nearly as badly. Connors battled through five deuces in the first game only to give it away with a botched backhand approach.

Connors broke back to tie at 2-2, though, winning the last two points of the fourth game on a perfectly executed forehand volley—he did a little dance—and then a forehand net-court shot.

Raul Ramirez of Mexico defeated Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., his regular doubles partner and good friend, 7-6, 7-6 in a match that didn't mean a thing in terms of prize money.

In spite of the victory, Ramirez won fifth prize of money of $24,000 while Gottfried gained third prize of $40,000.

Gottfried, loser of a semifinal match against Connors, originally had been scheduled to play Guillermo Vilas, the semifinal loser to Borg. But Vilas defaulted from the third-place match with a bad ankle.

Tournament officials originally had said they would pay fourth-place money as well as Ramirez, thereby adding $8,000 to $40,000 prize money total.

But later they decided that in order to conform to their earlier plan for substituting defaulted players, they would have to place Ramirez fifth.

When Vilas defaulted his third-round match Friday with the same injury, and Borg conceded his match that day because of the flu, officials said the defaults would count as losses, thus allowing the two to play in the semis. So officials had to treat the second Vilas default as a loss, making Gottfried third overall and Ramirez fifth, Vilas, without playing the match, won $32,000.

Vilas and Borg came under severe criticism for their defaults from spectators who believed their ailments were minor and that the players were manipulating the semifinal matchups.

Tournament Director Ray Benton said Sunday, however, that he believed the players had been sincere. He said, though, that the default dilemma had been an embarrassment to Colgate, the sponsor, and that officials were trying to determine how to avoid the confusion and unpleasantness next year.

"I'm pleased with the way things came out," Benton said. "I'm embarrassed it wasn't written out ahead of time."

NCAA Boss Wants Convention To Meet Problems 'Head On'

ATLANTA (UPI) — NCAA President J. Neils Thompson said Sunday he is opposed to any further delay in a longstanding proposal to give major football powers self rule.

"This time," said Thompson, "I want the convention to meet the problem head on — vote it up or vote it down."

Reorganization is the major issue facing the annual NCAA convention which opened in Atlanta Sunday with committee meetings and which will start voting on proposals on Wednesday.

The 75 or so top football powers have been chafing under economic restrictions which have been imposed on them by schools with more limited athletic budgets and have been asking permission to decide among themselves the amount they may spend on their programs.

The issue was expected to come to a head at last year's NCAA convention in Miami Beach, but was sidestepped when Pete Carlismo of Fordham successfully moved to table it.

"There'll be no tabling motion this year," insisted Thompson, the University of Texas educator who was named to a two-year term as NCAA president at the 1977 convention. "We were caught by surprise last year and didn't really know how to handle it. After last year, we took a close look at tabling motions. Any table motion this time would be out of order."

Thompson admitted that reorganization probably would have been voted down at the 1977 convention, but insisted the 1978 plan has been revised to meet some of the objections of the former opponents.

"Much of last year's opposition came from Division I schools which do not have bigtime college football," said Thompson. "They were opposed to the plan because it would have moved them out of Division I."

"We're taking a different approach this time. We are proposing that Division I, which has 145 schools, be divided into two sub divisions with the I-A group including only those schools which meet criteria for major college football."

Thompson repeated his warning of a year ago that unless the NCAA addresses itself to the needs of the major football powers, the organization "as we now know it" may undergo a major shakeup.

The major powers took a first step in that direction about 18 months ago when they banded together in a new group called the College Football Association. CFA leaders insist their organization is only "a lobby" and that they would consider leaving the NCAA "only as a last resort."

But some of its more militant members have said that the CFA "should go it alone" if the NCAA refuses to reorganize.

Dooley Resigns NC Grid Post

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Bill Dooley, who said he decided it was "time for a new challenge" after guiding North Carolina to three Atlantic Coast Conference football titles and six bowl games, was named football coach and athletic director Sunday at Virginia Tech.

The appointment of the 43-year-old Dooley, who had a 69-53-2 record in 11 years at North Carolina, was announced by Dr. William E. Lavery, Virginia Tech president, who admitted the school had not originally contemplated one man for the two posts.

"Originally, we had not set out to combine the position of athletic director and football coach at this institution, but we did leave that possibility ajar. The reason we felt we could combine... is because of the man we have, Bill Dooley," Lavery said.

The Tech president said Dooley was given a five-year contract for both jobs with a provision for an additional five years as athletic director only. Neither Lavery nor Dooley would discuss the financial terms, though there were reports it was about $700,000 a year.

"I will coach at least five years, but maybe six, seven, eight, nine or 10," Dooley told a news conference.

Dooley, who had four years remaining on his contract at North Carolina, replaces Jimmy Sharpe, fired Nov. 28 after three years as Tech's football coach and also with four years left on his pact.

Fumble Call Continues Controversy

OAKLAND (AP) — The supervisor of National Football League officials said "there's no question" Denver fumbled on the two-yard line in last week's playoff game, but officials on the field did not see it, the Oakland Tribune reported Sunday.

The play was whistled dead, the Broncos scored on the next play and eventually won the American Football Conference championship game 20-17 over the Oakland Raiders. The Raiders say they were robbed of the ball and perhaps of a spot in the Super Bowl.

"There's no question it was a fumble," supervisor Art McNally was quoted by the Tribune as saying. "We admit that. TV showed it."

"Coaches have told us that if we can't see a play, don't make a phantom call," he said. "The crew didn't see the fumble, and we know that if you don't see it, you don't give it to the other team."

"If anyone had seen the fumble, the call could have been reversed. Our guys make mistakes, but they won't lie," McNally was quoted as saying.

But Al LoCaso, executive assistant to Raider owner Al Davis, accused the NFL of a coverup on the crucial call.

"The coverup questions the integrity of the whole National Football League," LoCaso said Sunday after seeing the Tribune story. "We're already in a financial situation (for publicly complaining about the call) and probably will get slammed with a big fine, but we're going to keep fighting this."

McNally told the Tribune that officials' view of the third-period play was blocked when the Broncos' Rob Lyle fumbled as he was tackled by Oakland's Jack Tatum. Head linesman Ed Marion blew his whistle to end the play when he saw Raider Mike McCoy take off with the ball, McNally said.

"The officials didn't make a mistake in the Oakland game. They were screened. You can't call what you can't see," McNally said.

According to the official NFL explanation of the play, Marion "ruled that Lyle's progress was stopped, blew his whistle, and said Lyle lost possession of the ball as he was being knocked backward."

The explanation was issued in the press box after NFL public relations director Jim Heffernan went down to the field to check on the play. But according to the Tribune, Heffernan did not talk to Marion about the play or what to say in the explanation.

Hogs Hold Hot Hand Humble Cougs 84-65

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Houston basketball coach Guy Lewis summed it up pretty well. "Sometimes you play folks who are just better than you."

Lewis was referring to third-ranked Arkansas, who had just thumped the Cougars 84-65 and held Houston to 37 points below its 102 point scoring average.

"There's no one in the country who has three finer players than (Sidney) Moncrief, (Marvin) Delph and (Ron) Brewer," Lewis said. "I'm pleased with the way things came out. I'm embarrassed it wasn't written out ahead of time."

Neither team scorched the nets in the first eight minutes, but Houston was so cold the Razorbacks were able to build a 20-4 advantage. Then, Steve Schall got hot, nailing four threes, and Delph drilled three long jumpers to shoot the Hogs into a 40-20 advantage later in the half.

Houston 10-2 before the game, hit only 12 of its 45 first half shots as Razorback defense held the Cougars to 37 points below their scoring average.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton, however, had a different viewpoint.

"We played well, but we had four or five game where we have looked better. We did a pretty good job against the press. We hurt them but turned the ball over too much," he said.

Being the Southwest Conference opener for both teams had an effect on the game, as they appeared to be nervous during the opening four minutes.

Lobos, Cards Halt Win Streaks

By The Associated Press
Nevada-Las Vegas and Cincinnati have been rolling big numbers on their home courts for several seasons now, but both finally went broke over the weekend.

The Rebels' 102-98 loss to New Mexico and the Bearcats' 78-75 defeat by Louisville Saturday night ended a pair of herculean college basketball home-court winning streaks that totaled 141 games.

Nevada-Las Vegas had won 72 straight at the Las Vegas Convention Center, losing its last game at home to Houston, 75-72, in 1974. Cincinnati had won 69 in a row at home, dating back to a 74-72 defeat by Drake in 1973.

The ninth-ranked Rebels, incidentally, lost their first game of the season after 14 victories. The Lobos, one of the highest scoring clubs in the nation, were led by Marvin Johnson's 31-point, 11-rebound performance.

Phil Abney and Michael Cooper scored 26 and 24 points, respectively, for the Lobos, who have been averaging over 100 points a game this year. Cooper clinched the victory for New Mexico by sinking two free throws with five seconds left.

Louisville broke Cincinnati's mammoth streak in the toughest of circumstances — with the largest crowd in Ohio college basketball history, 17,038, yelling its lungs out for the home team.

And the 10th-ranked Cardinals beat the 12th-ranked Bearcats in style, with Darnell Griffith slam-dunking home the game-winning shot with 19 seconds left to cap an inspired comeback.

"That was our ace-in-the-hole when we needed it," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "That was some alley-oop shot!"

The standing-room-only crowd watched Louisville rally from a six-point deficit late in the game. After Griffith's basket, on a feed pass from Larry Williams, Cincinnati lost the ball on the inbound attempt when Steve Collier's pass went off the fingers of sophomore guard Eddie Lee and out of bounds.

Rick Wilson preserved the victory with a pair of free throws with 13 seconds remaining after Bobby Sherlock was forced to foul. About Wilson's pressure free throws, Crum said: "This is about the fifth game he's done it for us this season. When you're in the clutch, he's the one you want taking them."

Cincinnati Coach Gale Catlett took the loss with surprising resignation.

"It was a game of inches at the end," he sighed. "Some of them went in and some of ours didn't."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 1 Kentucky defeated Florida 86-67. No. 2 North Carolina, turned back No. 13 Virginia 76-61, sixth-ranked Indiana State whipped West Texas State 79-63. Illinois upset No. 11 Indiana 65-64. No. 14 Kansas defeated Missouri 71-67. Wake Forest stunned No. 15 Maryland 84-75. No. 17 Providence outscored Canisius 82-72. No. 18 Michigan State beat Wisconsin 74-63. No. 18 San Francisco walloped St. Mary's 111-87 and No. 20 Georgetown defeated St. John's 72-61.

points with a tenacious defense to beat Florida in the Gators' intimidating home court arena known as "Alligator Alley." It was one of the biggest margins that the Wildcats have managed in Florida's tough arena.

"We could have played better, but we let up too often, and turnovers hurt us," noted Reggie Hannah, Florida's 6-10 freshman.

Noted Ric Clarson, who led the Gators with 17 points:

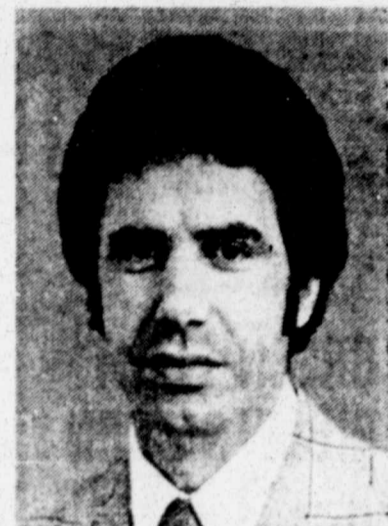

"Kentucky took advantage of our mistakes. You can't make mistakes against No. 1 and win."

Phil Ford scored five straight field goals over a five-minute stretch in the second half to lead North Carolina to a surprisingly easy victory over Virginia on the Cavaliers' home court.

Kansas City Hands Boss Walking Papers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Phil Johnson, the National Basketball Association's coach of the year three seasons ago when he led an unheralded Kansas City Kings team into the playoffs, was fired early Sunday by the Kings.

Johnson's dismissal came on the heels of the Kings' seventh straight loss, a 100-93 setback to the New York Knicks Saturday night in Kansas City.

PHIL JOHNSON

"We feel like we've been patient. It's time to try something else now," said Kings General Manager Joe Axelson at a news conference Sunday. "I'm not saying we have great talent, but our talent is better than our performance record."

"If our players were not constantly being asked for in trades and if people around the league were saying to me, 'Hey, you don't have the players that belong up here,' then maybe we would have had some other things to think about."

Larry Staverman, the Kings' assistant general manager since 1969, will coach the team for the remainder of the season, after which a new coach will be named, Axelson said.

Staverman and the rest of the club was in Milwaukee Sunday for a night game with the Bucks.

Johnson, who was not present at the news conference, had compiled a 155-185 record since taking over the club Nov. 28, 1973, after Bob Cousy resigned. He was named NBA coach of the year after the Kings made the playoffs with a 44-38 record in the 1974-75 season, but Kansas City had losing marks in each of the last two years.

Monterey, Tascosa, Midland Lee Given Winning Nod By Scribe

TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Once again, it's time for the stupid swami to predict the class AAAA area basketball races.

Last year's choices, Tascosa, Monterey and Midland Lee, managed to miss their playoff destinations. Instead, Pampa, Hereford and Abilene Cooper proved the stupid swami was in rare form.

So after extensive research through November and December court sessions, the kiss of death goes out to Pampa in District 3-AAAA, Monterey in 4-AAAA and Abilene Cooper in 5-AAAA. To add to this trio's bad luck, Pampa and Monterey begin their district races on good ole Friday the 13th. Cooper already has spotted Abilene High and Midland Lee one setback in the loop chase. Oh well, the swami never relied much on logic anyway.

Usually, this soothsayer depends upon Ma Bell for the bulk of his intelligence gathering. For example, this telephone conversation with an Amarillo writer aided greatly in predicting the Amarillo district.

"Pampa still should be rated the favorite but Tascosa or Amarillo High could upset the Harvesters," but they will need more than Mitchell against Pampa."

Rookie coach Gary Abercrombie replaced Robert McPherson as the Pampa boss after last season. Two strong inside players, Ricky Bunton (6-6) and Rusty Ward (6-3), returned from the bidistrict champion team of last year. However, the new trio of starters stands 5-4, 5-8 and 5-10. Therefore, overall height could be a problem.

In the local district, Hereford guard Kelly Kitchens could hold the key to the Herd's title defense for first-year coach Bobby Decker. Though Hereford currently sports the only league mark above .500 at present, Monterey seems to have gathered momentum since Christmas against a tough list of opponents.

Based on pre-district play, the local league may boil down to one playoff game as last year's race did. Plainview won the first half and Hereford won the second half before Hereford won a playoff game. The entire league seems balanced enough to finish in the same format again. Monterey captured a 56-49 decision over Hereford in a Hereford tournament game.

District 5-AAAA appears to hinge on the Abilene city championship meetings between Cooper and Abilene High. Only Midland Lee seems capable of spoiling the Abilene dominance.

"It should come down to Cooper and Abilene High," said Abilene writer Ken Brazzle. "Cooper beat the Eagles 41-38 in a Thanksgiving tournament. Abilene may be a little stronger inside and Cooper might be a little quicker."

Without delaying the inevitable any further, here are district selections:

3-AAAA: 1. Pampa. 2. Amarillo. 3. Tascosa. 4. Palo Duro. 5. Caprock.

4-AAAA: 1. Monterey. 2. Hereford. 3. Coronado. 4. Lubbock. 5. Plainview.

5-AAAA: 1. Cooper. 2. Abilene. 3. Lee. 4. Midland. 5. San Angelo. 6. Permian. 7. Big Spring. 8. Odessa.

Scrambling Led 'Roger The Dodger' From Doghouse To Heisman

CINCINNATI (AP) — The first time Roger Staubach unveiled his quarterback scrambling act it landed him in the doghouse. Three years later, it landed him a Heisman Trophy.

"Our coach was furious. He always said his quarterbacks never ran with the ball. Either you passed the ball or you ate it. Roger wouldn't," remembers Vince Eysoldt, a close friend and star halfback on Staubach's high school football team.

It was the fall of 1960, Staubach's senior season, and Cincinnati Purcell was playing archrival Cincinnati Elder.

"It was a close game and we were supposed to run a power sweep to the right. Except the linemen didn't know Roger had a different idea," said Eysoldt, 35.

After breaking from the huddle, "he delayed a moment and whispered to me 'I'm going to act like I'm giving the ball to you.'"

"He faked to me and took off down the left sidelines. He went 70 yards for a touchdown, untouched. We won 21-14 and ended up tying for the league championship," said Eysoldt.

"They changed their minds after he came off the bench in the second half and almost brought his team from behind in the North-South high school game at Canton. But it was too late by then."

"Roger really got turned off by the big schools. When we visited Ohio State, Michigan and Purdue, he felt the athletes seemed more interested in beer parties and introducing us to babes. He was a good Catholic boy from an all-boys school and it was a little like throwing the lamb to the wolves."

"Navy came along and offered everything he was interested in. He wanted a disciplined kind of atmosphere. But even Navy wasn't that interested in him," said Eysoldt.

Had Staubach attended Notre Dame, he would have battled John Huarte for the starting job. As it turned out, Staubach won the Heisman Trophy in 1963 and Huarte in 1964.

Eysoldt is convinced Staubach could have excelled at pro baseball.

"He was the starting catcher on our baseball team and I was a pitcher," said Eysoldt.

Momma Martin Lets Chicken Out Of Bag

DALLAS (AP) — The truth is out. Harvey Martin is afraid of chickens.

He also walks in his sleep, to hear Momma Martin tell it, but it's those chickens that must surely interest the Denver Broncos — especially next Sunday when Martin and the Dallas Cowboys take on the newest bullies on the block in Super Bowl XII.

A sports scribe let it slip that the NFL's top defensive player might have a bionhythm malfunction come game day.

Forget it, Harvey. Listen to mom.

"He's probably worried that I'm going to tell that he walks in his sleep and that he's deathly afraid of chickens," said Dallasite Helen Martin. "Well, you won't hear those things from a computer. You get those from his mother."

Mrs. Martin is fairly brimming with the untold story about her baby boy. Besides the chickens and the sleepwalking, it turns out the man who made "Martinized" a household word around Dallas where it means a quarterback sack was a pushover as a youngster.

"When he was a little boy, he just couldn't bear to fight anybody," she said. "He wouldn't hit back. His little sister fought all his fights for him. But we got him over that."

For that, Tom Landry will be eternally grateful.

"Then, we found out he didn't like to work too hard. He'd mow the lawn and it wouldn't be done right. I'd just send him out to mow it again. I wouldn't let him stop until it was done right."

Special To Show Inside Of Promotion Industry

NEW YORK (AP) — "So that's why we've come to you," Rob Cohen, producer of "The Wiz," a movie musical, is seen telling New York public relations man Bobby Zarem, "because I think you can manipulate the media sufficiently well."

"The most important thing that we can do," Zarem advises Cohen, "is establish right up front how important and how intelligent and how wonderful this movie is."

It's a brief but telling scene from an hour-long look by NBC at the big business of promoting books, movies and rock groups, to be telecast Tuesday at 10 p.m. EST.

"I think it's scary," says Karen Lerner, who produced "NBC Reports: Land of Hype and Glory." "I'd been thinking about it for three years or so and it's my feeling people are manipulated in ways we don't realize. We have very few free decisions in what we buy."

Lerner, who reported for magazines before joining NBC News in 1972, says her aim was to show how, with exaggerated marketing techniques, Americans can be sold almost anything.

"In a sense, we're saying the 'Horatio Alger' myth is dead, that success can be created rather than earned," the producer says. "And I personally think it's a shame."

Edwin Newman narrates the special which, though it does not consider hype and the TV advertiser, demonstrates clearly the medium's promoting power.

"The tricky thing in pointing the finger is we can't be too judgmental," Lerner says of TV, "though I did want to show how the media are used by promoters."

Newman — a carnival in the background — asks at the outset, "Why will a consumer buy one product and not another? Well, one reason may be hype."

"Well, what is hype?" the correspondent continues. "Hype's a shot in the arm. It comes from the word hypodermic. The carnival barker hypes his product ..."

Hype, he goes on to say, "is original, some is imaginative and some is deceptive and outrageous."

The program focuses on three examples of hype — the gimmicks and strategy used to promote the rock group KISS, drum-beating by Simon & Schuster to make Doris Uhnaks novel, "The Investigation," a best-seller months before publication, and the courting of news people by producers of two hit films, "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and "The Deep."

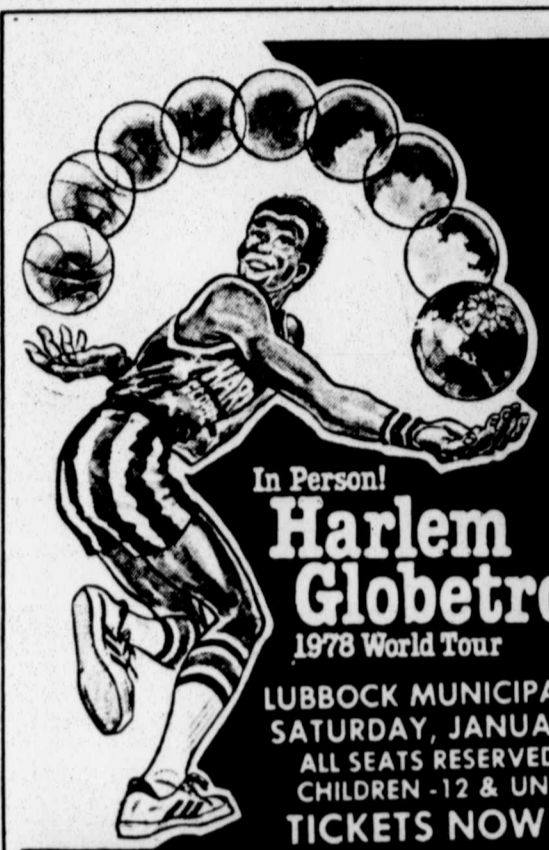

Columbia Pictures' promotion of "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" is particularly graphic.

"Columbia flew hundreds of journalists from around the country to the Americana Hotel in New York," Newman says, fed them breakfast and presented each with a "a very unusual press kit: it is a briefcase."

From the briefcase, Newman pulls "what might be called a normal folder, photographs and information about the film," along with a tape recorder and package of blank tape cassettes, equipment from the producer for each reporter "so that they can do interviews ..."

"There are many different ways we are manipulated," says Lerner in summing up the production, "and this is a look at the process of creating a success, showing that we even enjoy hype and don't question it very much."

Tony Bennett Sees Rock Eroding

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Tony Bennett — who says he's a "tunesmith," not a prognosticator — believes that the "rock" trend may be weakening and popular music may be returning to more traditional forms.

"I don't care how long it's (rock) been going on, I can't help but think it's still a big fad that will kind of fade away because it's not really based on terrific music," Bennett exclaims.

Over the past 25 years, Bennett, in his early 50s, has established himself as one of the great singers, ranking in the class of the late Bing Crosby, the late Nat "King" Cole and Frank Sinatra.

The four, along with a handful of others, have mastered the art of "intimate singing." There is a certain caring for the audience, an understated graciousness and style which can't be learned.

"The music never overcomes ... it's mature music, it's crafty," Bennett said in a recent interview between shows at the Hotel Sahara here. "It's nice and gentle, and it's a performing kind of thing."

HOWARD PANEL TO MEET
BIG SPRING (Special) — The Howard County Commissioners will meet today at 9 a.m. in the commissioner's courtroom here. The commissioners will discuss appointment of joint airport zoning board and cost of living for county employees. Also to be discussed will be division of funds for mapping of the appraisal board.

But while good music lovers bemoan the fact that greats are dying and getting older, Bennett is confident that there's nothing to worry about because he sees young musicians coming out of colleges and universities who will fill the footsteps.

"I think the new generation of young adults coming up right now is tremendous," said Bennett. "I'm starting to find out that their pace is much different than the generation before (the late 1950s and 1960s crowd). Their elders were victims of the whole 60s scene, which got pretty neurotic. I'm very encouraged by the new kids I see coming out of college."

It's not that Bennett dislikes all "rock" music. He just feels the generation of the mid-70s is rediscovering the "big bands," jazz and the classics.

"The new kids really like good jazz," Bennett explained. "The generation before it was strictly rock and they wouldn't adhere to anything else."

"Whereas now, the young kids are coming up saying, 'Hey, wait a minute, there's a big world out there. Let's find out all about it.' So, they're getting back to a kind of more normal way to listen to music, I think."

Bennett is not down on rock music per se, but rather its direction.

"I like a lot of rock music," he explained. "My own personal thing is that I dislike the anger in any music, whether it's 'acid rock' or this new craze, 'punk rock.'"

Bennett sees the change in musical tastes as an outgrowth of a new trend toward the arts and a general change in self-imagery and goals.

"I think the kids are getting serious now," said Bennett. "Everybody's kind of taking care of themselves — getting their acts together. There's a lot of promise in the new kids coming up. All we have to do is trust them a little and they'll do a terrific job."

BENNETT — Entertainer Tony Bennett says he is optimistic about the future of "good music" in America because he thinks the trend towards "rock" may be weakening, and a return to more traditional stylings seems apparent. (AP Laserphoto)

Workers Get Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department said Sunday that about 2,500 Ford Motor Co. employees who lost their jobs last summer because of foreign car imports are eligible for federal compensation.

Under the ruling, roughly 1,000 Ford workers in Dearborn, Mich., 800 in Metuchen, N.J., 600 in Lima, Ohio, and 100 workers in San Jose, Calif., may apply for wage compensation, and allowances to pay for job training and relocation.

According to the Trade Act of 1974, the workers may receive up to 70 percent of their average weekly wages for up to a year, and allowances for another 26 weeks to complete training. Workers more than 60 years old may get an additional 26 weeks of pay.

The ruling denied United Auto Workers petitions on behalf of 400 other workers at Ford plants in Cleveland, Utra, Warren, and Woodhaven Mich.

In March and May last year, the UAW filed petitions with the department on behalf of workers at nine Ford plants in Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, and California.

A Labor Department investigation confirmed that employees and former employees had lost wages because of imports of foreign subcompact cars similar to those produced in the Ford factories.
