Authorities said more than a dozen cars were set afire and 18 businesses burned before the funeral of Chamorro, 53, an outspoken critic of the dictatorship of President Anastasio Somoza. Small groups gathered in the streets to block fire lighters from reaching the blazes. Demonstrators restarted some of the fires after they had been extinguished.

explore the feasibility of using COs for water, sanitary sewer and fire service improvements.

COs are authorized by council statute to pay contractual obligations incurred during capital improvement construction. They are secured by the city's taxing authority.

The certificates would be one way to overcome serious bond sale delays and resulting problems caused by legal actions, the council indicated.

Through lawsuits, Jimmy Marshall, a vocal municipal government critic, has delayed the sale of bonds authorized by voters last May.

Wants Election Voided

Marshall contends the election should be declared void because the ordinance authorizing it was not sufficiently specific in accordance with city charter requirements. Judge Thomas Clinton of the 99th District Court validated the election in October, and Marshall has appealed that decision to the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo.

Because of a state law that prohibits municipal bond sales if they or the election are the subject of litigation, none of the $26.4 million worth of bonds approved can be sold.

That is causing a problem for Lubbock and its citizens, City Mgr. Larry Cunningham told the council Thursday. Months Of Litigation

Litigation probably will not be exhausted for at least eight months, he said. By then a new city audit will have to be made before bonds can be sold, so February, 1979, may be the earliest possible sale date, he said.

In the meantime, the construction of houses in Southwest Lubbock continues to boom, aggravating already serious problems of inadequate water supplies. water pressure and fire protection, Cunningham said.

Some of the first bond sale proceeds was to pay for drilling 17 water wells in Bailey County, he noted. But because of sibly could cause us to restrict water usage in 1979." he told the council. The water pump station that was to

Huge Arms Shipments Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter accused the Soviet Union of sending Russians and massive arms shipments to the horn of Africa, and said Thursday that Cuban soldiers were dispatched there by the Soviets "perhaps to become combatants.

He said that while the United States has avoided shipping arms or interjecting itself into the war between Somalia and Ethiopia, "the Soviets have done just the opposite.

The State Department estimated that the Soviet Union and Cuba together may have as many as 3,000 men in the Ogaden region of Ethiopia where the fighting with Somalia is taking place.

1,000 Russians

Sources said the Russians may have about 1,000 military persons in the country, while Cuba has increased its force to more than 2,000. They said some clearly are acting as military advisers.

During a nationally broadcast news conference, the president also said he expects Congress to reach an energy compromise early in its 1978 session "of which we can be proud.

He predicted a natural gas pricing compromise that "will be acceptable to me."

The president, who returned last Friday from a nine-day overseas trip, said foreign leaders expressed concern during the journey about whether the United States has "the resolve to deal squarely with our energy problems." Oil Price Increases

"As a nation increasing our demands for foreign oil, we may have conservation forced on us by unexpected increases in oil prices in the future," Carter said.

He said the first two quarters of 1978 will show very good economic progress, but by the end of the third quarter, economic stimulation in the form of "a substantial tax reduction" will be need the 500-ton Greek ship Sea Diamond, were sighted off Lowestoft, on the Suffolk coast. The crew had radioed in the early morning hours that the vessel was sinking in 75-mile-an-hour winds.

Carter also faced several questions in the 30-minute session about plans to replace the Republican-appointed U.S. attorney in Philadelphia.

Royal Navy ships and RAF planes, badly hampered by the weather, were still searching with fading hope for five-Dutchmen who abandoned their sinking ship, Holmar 1. There was no sight of the men, reportedly on life rafts in 20foot seas since late afternoon Wednesday.

The Cypriot ship Gloriosa was also reported to have sunk during the night with a five-man crew aboard. There was no word of the men.

Britain's east coast took the full force of the north winds and giant waves which hurled the sea over breakwaters, smashing property, blocking roads and leaving many areas suffering their worst floods in 25 years.

The Thames, which usually flows quietly through the heart of London, came within 19 inches of breaching the river walls in the early morning. The flooding danger is due to low atmospheric pressure pulling water downriver toward the North Sea combined with a deep depression in northern Europe bringing strong winds to drive tidewater back up the riv-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pushed by higher food costs, wholesale prices increased 0.7 percent in December and brought the total increase for the year to 6.6 percent, the government reported Thursday.

The 12-month price rise was twice the 3.3 percent gain in 1976 and reflected a quickening in the pace of inflation during the year, although it was in line with government forecasts.

Wholesale prices had advanced 0.4 percent in November and 0.8 percent in October.

Prices of foods ready for the consumer rose by 1.5 percent in December, up from an 0.4 percent gain in November and the biggest one-month jump in seven months

The December rise in food prices signaled higher grocery bills for consumers. especially for pork, poultry and vegetable oil products, all of which rose substantially

Cairo Talks 'Determined To Bridge Gap'

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Egyptian and Israeli defense ministers repeated their conflicting stands on Israeli withdrawal from Sinai Thursday and acknowledged they made no progress. After 5 1/2 hours of meetings they said the Israeli minister would fly home for consultations.

Although Egyptian War Minister Mohammed Abdel Ghany Gamassy and Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said there was no progress on Israeli military withdrawal from the peninsula or on the future of Jewish settlements there, Gamassy said the two sides "are not too far apart and determined to bridge the gap." Weizman nodded and said: "There is a possibility to bridge the gap."

The ministers held a news conference together on the palm-shaded front lawn of the Tahra Palace after their joint committee completed a 3 1/2-hour session on the second day of talks on military aspects of a peace agreement.

Later, after a two-hour evening meeting, they issued a joint communique saying Weizman "is flying home for consultations" this morning and part of the eight-man Israeli delegation would accompany him. The statement said the Israelis would "return in a few days."

Maj. Gen. Avraham Tamir, the fifthranking Israeli delegate, will remain in Cairo for "further discussions and clarifications" with the Egyptians, the communique said.

Weizman reaffirmed the Israeli position that it wants to keep its 20 settlements in the Sinai as a means of ensuring its security even after the peninsula is returned to Egypt.

Gamassy, restating Egypt's demand that all Israelis evacuate the Sinai, retorted that Egypt's international borders were not subject to "discussion or bargaining.

But their statements about the prospects for resolving the two nations' differences clearly seemed aimed at advancing the difficult negotiations and deflatthe confrontation that built up ing around the settlements issue before the military talks began Wednesday. Weizman said that at Thursday morn ing's session the Israeli chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordachi Gur, presented a paper detailing Israel's concept of security.

The minister did not divulge details, except to say, "We are discussing buffer zones, demilitarized zones and other matters.

The Egyptians submitted their counterproposals through Chief of Staff Gen. Mohammed Aly Fahmi. The Egyptian paper was also not made public. In the days before the talks opened. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat traded provocative statements with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin on the emotional settlements issue. But Sadat reportedly has told Weizman he will now abstain from public declarations.

The semi-official Cairo press reported that President Carter, through Ambassador to Egypt Hermann Eilts, also ap-pealed to Sadat for quiet diplomacy rather than debating the issue through public statements.

In other developments:

-Pope Paul VI met with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan at the Vatican and, according to a Vatican statement, expressed hope that a Mideast settlement would guarantee international

Carter said that in deciding to replace Marston, he relied on the recommenda tion of Attorney General Griffin B. Bell and has not asked for Bell's reasons

The president repeated earlier statements that he and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat have almost identical views on Middle East questions. Sadat has called for Israeli withdrawal from settlements in the Sinai. Carter, asked whether he agreed with this position, said, "It's not for me to decide a specific settlement.

Carter, in response to a question, accused the Soviet Union of "unwarranted involvement in Africa.

"They, in effect, contributed to the war between Somalia and Ethiopia," he said.

Ambulance Rate Hike Gets Favorable Nod

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Hospital District officials Thursday recommended a 22 percent increase in charges for using the district's public ambulance system.

The hike was favored by both the district's administrative and finance committees. It is expected to be ratified Monday by the full board of managers.

Under the tentatively approved proposal, transportation to local hospitals by the district's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) division will cost patients $45 on regular runs, up from $35.

That rate hike, combined with increased charges for late-night and other special runs and supportive emergency care, would generate an extra $20.000 a year. Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the hospital district, estimated.

In addition, he told the administrative committee of the district's board of managers, EMS is expected to net nearly $20.-000 more this year through improved collection procedures - primarily by seeking payment from patients during or immediately after a run, instead of billing patients later.

And, Bosworth said, another $20,000 in annual operational costs can be saved under a proposed streamlined administrative organization for the EMS system.

All told, the savings and new revenues will total about $60,000 a year.

But instead of using that money to reduce the $300,000 annual subsidy EMS gets from Lubbock County Hospital District taxpayers, the administrative committee - at Bosworth's suggestion recommended spending it on an in-house dispatching system for the ambulance operation.

The job of fielding telephone calls for emergency medical assistance and directing EMS vehicles to the scene presently is handled by dispatchers in the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department.

Sometimes, that task conflicts with the dispatchers' management of phone calls related to law enforcement. Bosworth and EMS coordinator Stuart Haggard said. During busy periods, they said, it's too hectic to take care of both kinds of dispatching.

That view is supported by Dr. Fred Vogt, a consultant who designed the EMS communications system. Vogt last year called the dispatching arrangement between EMS and the sheriff's office "inadequate.

Bosworth today recommended the hospital district set up its own dispatching system for EMS, at an annual cost of about $48,000. Bosworth and Haggard said an in-house system would have "several" advantages -EMS dispatching could be an "entry job" to train upcoming emergency medical technicians and get them familiar with emergency medical care.

-Full attention could be directed to EMS dispatching. As good a job as sheriff's dispatchers do, they must give priority to law enforcement matters in the case of simultaneous calls.

-Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard is under-staffed for dispatching and has asked the hospital district to pay the salaries of five of his dispatchers anyway.

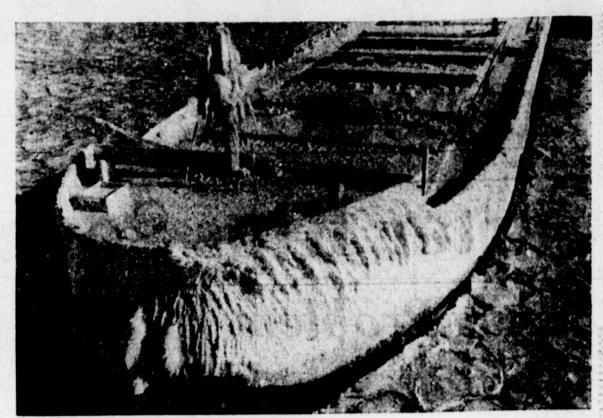

-In-house dispatching would give the hospital district complete control over EMS, help lower response times and clear up liability questions over dispatching and medical service in possible litigation

-A sophisticated in-house dispatching system is necessary to implement future EMS plans for paramedics and telemetry, more advanced emergency medical care.

"This public service (EMS) is as important to the person receiving it as police or fire protection is," Bosworth said. "Dispatching is absolutely essential" to upgrade the system.

The administrative committee discussed alternatives, such as asking the Lubbock Fire Department to do dispatching and putting EMS dispatching under some other hospital function.

However, Haggard said the fire department has declined to take on that respon sibility. And Bosworth said the other alternatives would create problems as well. While voting to set up an in-house dispatching system, the committee suggested that some other entity - such as the city or county - may be asked in the future to help fund or eventually take over EMS

Chinese Acknowledge Power Of Earthquake

TOKYO (AP) - China acknowledged Thursday that the industrial city of Tangshan was left in "complete ruins" by the earthquake of july 28, 1976, and "signs of the havoc...are still visible.

A report by the official Hsinhua news agency maintained that industrial production is 92 percent restored and attributed this to the "superiority of the socialist system."

The Chinese, who previously confined themselves to descriptions such as "extremely heavy losses" and "grave calamity." have still not reported a casualty toll.

Western observers believe more than 600,000 died in the quake which rocked the city of one million people. Western and Japanese observers passing through the town last year said they could see nothing but wreckage.

Hsinhua said Thursday that more than 90 percent of Tangshan's factories were wrecked and ceased production. But after 17 months of effort, it said, all 270 industrial enterprises are restored and 92 percent are running at pre-quake capaci-

Major electric utilities cut back residential power and, in some cases, curtailed up to 50 percent of their output to industry when rain soaked coal supplies and then froze Sunday and Monday.

William Costello, spokesman for the Ohio Manufacturers Association, said the group would "probably ... put out what has become our annual resolution asking for an investigation" of the gas and electric companies

"We're going to take a hard look at this thing," he said. "We're concerned because this has been coming. We've been watching this thing for the last three years. It's going to get worse.

What happened the last two days is just the tip of the iceberg. If we get into February and there's still a coal strike ... Ohio is going to have some very serious problems," Costello said.

Last year the association sought an investigation of natural gas supplies and cutoffs that caused layoffs of thousands of industrial workers. Costello said "no-

However, Bob Jones, spokesman for Columbus Southern Ohio Electric Co., said Thursday, "as of today we know of no economically feasible way of combatting this particular series of unique circumstances." He was referring to the combination of freezing rain and bitter

Beyond the immediate weather problems, "a larger concern remains with regard to the United Mine Workers strike," Jones said. Some 10,000 Ohio coal miners are in their sixth week of a nationwide strike.

Columbus Southern and other electric companies were slowly returning to normal operations Thursday.

Toledo Edison lifted its 5 percent voltage reduction to its 254,000 customers Wednesday night. However, the northwest Ohio utility's Davis-Besse nuclear generating station on the shore of Lake Erie was still shut down because a part for a turbine generator had not arrived.

As for the power outlook through the rest of the week, Toledo Edison spokeswoman Judy Hirsch said "we're going to have to wait and see what happens over the weekend. At this point we're in pretty good shape.'

Toledo Edison, like other utilities, said its electric load "drops considerably" on weekends because fewer industries are using power.

Dayton Power Light, which serves 400,-000 people in all or part of 24 counties, hoped to lift its 5 percent curtailment Thursday.

At Cincinnati Gas Electric Co., which provides electricity for 550,000 customers in southwestern Ohio and northern Kentucky, spokesman Dave Altemuehle said a request for voluntary curtailments was withdrawn Thursday because of "moderating temperatures" and an improved regional power supply.

Red 'War-Training' Ominous

ALTHOUGH ON the surface, everything seems to be going fairly smoothly between the U.S. and Russia, there is at least one group of Americans who have some second thoughts.

We refer to a statement by the Strategic Air Command which says it "harbors serious concerns" about what could be the most extensive war-preparation exercises by the Soviets ever monitored by American intelligence.

THE COMMENT, from Gen. Richard H. Ellis, commander of SAC, underscores other warnings from various observers who see no letup in Russian armed might or a possible intent to use it.

Gen. Ellis, commander of the world's largest nuclear strike force which would be in the "front lines" of any "unthinkable" confrontation with Moscow, says the Soviets have exhibited a "marked increase" in high level military exercise activity in the past year.

"The high level of war-preparation training reflects the expanse and sophistication of the momentum of Soviet military development," Gen. Ellis noted.

"These exercises, some occasionally lasting 10 to 14 days, apparently are focused on war training, command deployments and similar matters," he said.

And when the "peaceniks" and do-gooders, however well meant their intentions, start screaming about cutting down on U.S. defense efforts, giving in to the Russians on the SALT negotiations "for the sake of peace," and ignoring Russian-backed aggression such as Cuba's intrusion into Africa, then take out the clip and read it.

Russia isn't cutting back on anything, including "war-preparation" training.

GEN. ELLIS didn't say so, but the Soviet expansion not only extends to aerial and missile might, but to sea power as well. For the past decade, Moscow has steadily

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Loose Lip On Life

WASHINGTON-President Carter's embarrassing verbal stumbles in trying to please all sides in the politics of Mideast peacemaking brought an anguished, though private, cry for help from a prominent Democrat to White House counsel Robert Lipshutz.

This Democrat complained that Carter's crashing through verbal thickets with one explosive word contradicting another left everyone in the dark as to what U.S. policy really is. Unplanned ambiguity, he said, must cease.

The answer helps explain presidential contortions that switched the President's foreign trip to Egypt at mid-course and generates worry about the future. This was Lipshutz's reply:

own free-wheeling talk works better. THE PRESIDENT really means it when he says he wants "an open administration," Lipshutz said.

He's going to continue that way: Nixon never said a word that wasn't weighed and tested; there was no such thing as spontaneity in the formulations of his foreign policy; Jimmy is different; he speaks freely and he speaks his mind.

Jimmy Carter is contemptuous of Richard M.

Even if "spontaneity" and the drive to be different from Nixon-not sheer clumsiness-truly explain the President's verbal pratfals, that does not mitigate the consternation his repeated mistakes have caused in Mideast capitals.

His year-end television interview Dec. 28, on the eve of his world trip, was the most recent case in point. What was so "embarrassing" to President Sadat was not Carter's often-stated opposition to an independent Palestinian state.

It was the thorny offshoot of a new thought these stateless Palestinian residents under Israeli military control might decide "to be. Israeli citizens, to actually run for the Knesset (the Israeli parliament).

Such a thought in the real world of Mideast politics was appalling to Sadat and Arab leaders evervwhere, revealing presidential misconception

IT SEEMS AS though it were only yesterday that we sweated out an unbelievable journey into the Sinai Desert.

It was a day which started long before daybreak on the edge of the Dead Sea, a day which took us through the ancient city of Beersheba and on into a barren wasteland, littered with the ruins of Egyptian-Israeli warfare.

Sometime after midnight, we were back in Jerusalem and looking forward to a closeup look at another "hot spot" of the Mideast, the Golan Heights.

Almost daily since, we have kept up with the unfolding events which mark that part of the world, and wondered how it would all end.

AS IT TURNED out, the day after the long bus journey into the Sinai, which included a visit to a forward Israeli tank bastion and a look at the Mitla and Gidi Passes, we had an opportunity to talk at length with ther. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

During the course of more than an hour-long meeting with a small group of U.S. newsmen, Rabin answered a question as to "Why can't the Israeli and Egyptian leaders just sit down and talk," with "There is nothing we had rather do!" Whether the time wasn't right or whether he never extended a formal invitation, it didn't hap--pen during Rabin's tenure.

But, the more aggressive Menahem Begin did make the bold bid, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat accepted and a dramatic chapter in history was written.

The final outcome remains unanswered. But, whatever, Sadat's visit to the Holy City and Begin's later trip to the Land of the Pharoahs will go down as a magic moment.

JUST HOW dramatic it all was was captured for us by a piece of writing in The St. Petersburg Times.

We watched the stunning events unfold via sitellite half a world away. And we read in depth of what happened. But, neither the on-the-spot coverage nor the straight news items can compare with the vignette reported by The Times' foreign news editor, Wilbur G. Landrey. Here is his account

After a pause to wave he (Sadat) came down the steps to meet the waiting Begin, and they shook hands. Incredible.

"An Israeli Army band struck up the Egyptian national anthem from the 1956 war. Its words begin: 'Back to old times, my weapon.'

After the anthem, Sadat was striding up and down the lines of an Israeli honor guard standing at attention with polished bayonets. And then he was laughing and talking with Begin. And when he came to Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Davan in the reception line, Sadat reached out, gripped his shoulders and greeted him as "Moshe.

THEN HE WAS pumping the hand of Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, the fighting general who struck across the Suez Canal to reverse the fortunes of the war Sadat launched against Israel in 1973.

"I wanted to catch you in the Sinai, but I didn't succeed," Sadat said in English.

When he came to Mordechai Gur, the Istacla chief of staff who warned that Sadat's offer to visit Israel might be a bluff and that Egypt was preparing for war, Sadat waggled a finger at him and said. 'I/fooled you.'

And finally, there was Golda Meir, who was Israeli prime minister in 1973 "I have wanted to see you a long time, madam," Sadat said his hands outstretched.

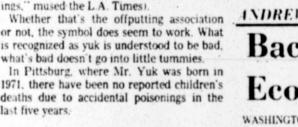

'Me, too," Mrs. Meir said. "So here I am. he said, and they both were laughing. "Incredible, all incredible. I never thought I

In Pittsburg, where Mr. Yuk was born in 1971, there have been no reported children's deaths due to accidental poisonings in the last five years.

SOMEONE HAS now come up with the happy idea of turning the intuitively grasped concept of yuk to benevolent purposes.

In about 20 Eastern cities, yuk has been pictorialized and given the somewhat sexist identification of Mr. Yuk.

In that guise, Mr. Yuk has become the warning device on containers of various household substances that would do children great harm if eaten.

crossbones as a warning device. The skull and crossbones have been a reminder of mortality since long before their pirated version appeared. But mortality is a notion alien to most young children. Mr. Yuk represents a much more familiar concept, a part of a child's cultural world.

Indications that it is effective as a symbol in reducing accidental poisonings in children is reason enough to press for its much wider use body who knows something about economics re minds me of this deficiency in Jimmy Carter's grand plan to make us all happier.

Therefore, I give thanks today to Dr. Arthur M. Okun, chairman of Lyndon Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers. Okun came right out and said it: Carter has no anti-inflation program.

Not that I would trust any economist with guarding my last million. To note that economics is an inexact science is to understate the case.

But Okun, now with the Brookings Institution think tank, tried valiantly to persuade Johnson to fund the Vietnam War, Johnson didn't-and pow'-prices eventually ran wild.

SO I LISTENED intently when Okun told 'Meet the Press" that the current 6 percent inflation rate is more likely to go up than down unless Carter rattles his reluctant hocks and does omething about it

Okun spoke the obvious when he said price inflation wouldn't go down unless wage inflation went down, "and you can't solve either of these problems without solving both."

"What I would like to see," he said, "is some kind of an incentive system offering rewards through lower taxes specifically for those business firms and labor groups that volunteer to restrain prices and wages."

Don't bug me for a guarantee that Okun's plan would work. Given the state of the country, only Divine intervention would be a sure thing bet. But Okun's plan makes sense because it is an appeal to self-interest.

TULLY'S LAW SAYS that both Big Business and Big Labor will cooperate only if there's something in it for them.

Okun offers that something, on the probably correct assumption that business will lower prices if the cost of doing business is reduced. and labor unions will forego wage boosts if the cost of living is reduced.

I say probably because in this era of the hustler, each side will seek a gimmick whereby the other does the cooperating.

But I think the plan deserves a try. It probably has weaknesses, but it gives the country a choice between something and Jimmy Carter's nothing. Or, as Okun put it:

"Otherwise we are going to be stuck with the stagflation swamp that we have been in, with a perpetual motion machine of 8 percent wage increases and 6 percent price increases."

INDEED, THE Carter administration's plans are based on continuing inflation. Everything it does, from buying airplanes to boosting Social Security taxes, makes allowances for a higher and higher cost of living as the working stiff moves pursued by bankruptcy-into the 21st Century.

Carter is an omniverous reader, a man of swift comprehension. I wish he'd take time out from peddling morality to the rest of the world and give Okun's plan a quick read.

It is ironic that a Presidential candidate who kept telling us everything could be done, seems to be saying that nothing is the best he can do about inflation.

IN HIS EARLY "homeland" formulation-delivered without forethought in Clinton, Mass., last March 21-Carter spoke feelingly:

There has to be a homeland provided for the Palestinian refugees who have suffered for many, many years." No mention there of Palestinians as wards of Israel.

Likewise, when asked at his April 8 press conference, just after Sadat's visit here, if there should be "Jordanian control" of the Palestinian homeland, Carter jockeyed:

"That's a question that I wouldn't want to answer for President Sadat. I will let him make his own statements publicly and I don't intend to repeat what he tells me privately. That had the ring of a good, solid answer.

By July 12, however, Carter seemed to be feeling pressure from Israel. Asked again about the 'homeland." he said his "preference" was for an entity" that "should be tied in with Jordan and not be independent."

SHORTLY AFTER Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's trip here in July, the President said he had "let (Begin) know very strongly" that any new settlements would cause the U.S. "deep concern."

But a bit later, on Aug. 5, after Begin continued to approve new settlements and legalize old ones, Carter told reporters: "I think what he did was in consonance with the desires of the Israeli peopie.

There has been no presidential response vet to the Israeli decision last week to send new settlers to the occupied Egyptian Sinai. Considering the ups and downs of Carter's Mideast verbalisms, that should cause no surprise.

IN SUM, CARTER'S loose lip on issues of life and death to Jews and Arabs of the Mideast have caused anguish to many parties, including some of the President's most stalwart American supporters.

So far, there has been no mortal damage to his overall drive for a peaceful settlement, which he has pursued with more intensity than his predecessors in the White House.

What is needed now is less hip-shooting and less effort to contrast Jimmy Carter from Richard Nixon. That is why, when he gave the results of his 45-minute talk with Sadat to resolve his self-created emergency, his decision to read a rare written statement brought sighs of relief.

In at least this one case, the ambiguity necesary for both sides was careful and intentional.

Tax Cut Has Its Faults, But It Beats Nothing...

WASHINGTON-The good news in President Carter's proposed tax cut for 1978 is limited, but it is good news for all of that.

Details on Carter's program will no doubt be subject to considerable haggling, as liberals oppose the investment credit for business, conservatives demand a bigger cut in personal income taxes, and so forth.

Most of all, the objection will be made-and rightly so-that Carter's tax reduction will not make up for the enormous hike in Social Security taxes that most of us will be required to pay from here on out.

Yet despite all this, the Carter proposal is a tentative move in the right direction-an acknowledgment that what is needed in America today is not a bigger dose of federal taxation, but an appreciably smaller one.

THIS IS A WELCOME change from Carter's earlier stance in behalf of so-called "tax reform," which has become a code phrase for eliminating exemptions and deductions and thereby raising taxes.

The President's proposal in outline contains some ritual bows to the holy crusade against "loopholes."

But in general it moves in just the opposite direction. It would build in more loopholes rather than taking them out (most notably, a 10 percent investment credit).

THE GIVEN REASON for Carter's turnabout is that the economy needs the stimulus, which is certainly true.

Under the burden of inflation, heavy taxes and punitive regulation, business investment and business productivity have been steadily declin-

As noted by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., the rate of business capacity growth in manufacturing has fallen markedly in recent years-from 4.6 percent between 1948 and 1968, to something like 3 percent today.

Witness Says Mobil People's Farm Role Probed

The names of a former Brownfield county attorney and of Mobil Oil Co. employees were discussed Thursday as the John Thomas cotton price support trial continued in U.S. District Court here.

A chief witness Thursday was John J. McKenna, manager of safety and security for the Mobil company in New York.

McKenna said the company made its own investigation concerning the situain joint venture farm projects organized by Thomas and who thereby were deemed eligible for cotton price supports. McKenna indicated the oil company's tions of four employees who participated main concern was to determine if there were a conflict of interest entailed in individual employee dealings with Thomas or his companies, explaining that Mobil did business with the companies

Recount Affirms Vote In Senate Election

AUSTIN (AP) - Only nine votes changed in a recount that shows former Congressman Bob Price the winner of a state Senate election in the Panhandle, the Secretary of State's office said.

Price will take the place of Democrat Max Sherman who is now president of West Texas State University

Milton Mallory of the secretary of state's elections division said the unofficial recount of paper ballots in 25 counties, which does not become official until presented to the canvassing board, showed a total of 15,193 for Price, a Republican of Pampa, and 14,961 for Democrat Bob Simpson, of Amarillo.

The canvassing board will act when the department receives certified returns by mail from all the counties.

The original returns had Price winning by a 241-vote margin with 15,199 to 14,-

Refloated Intact

NEW YORK (AP) - The oil tanker Monticello Victory, carrying 14.7 million gallons of heavy heating oil, grounded on sandy bottom in the Atlantic off Conev Island about 3:30 a.m. Thursday. It was refloated eight hours later without any spill, the Coast Guard said. The 736-foot Exxon craft was enroute from Corpus Christi to the Northville Terminal in Linden, N.J. A Coast Guard spokesman said no one was injured. The vessel was repositioned at 8 a.m. as barges pumped out some of its cargo to help get it refloated. The tanker had been drawing 38 feet of water when it grounded.

Thomas, 44, a former prominent Brownfield businessman who now lives ture. They say Thomas had received adin Houston, is charged by indictment with converting Commodity Credit Corp. funds to his own use and of supplying false information to the federal agency. The government contends Thomas converted property to his use in 1972 and 1973 by causing cotton price support payments to be allotted to individuals who actually had no real interest in farm land they reportedly leased from Jon-T Farms Inc., a Thomas company. Individuals leased farm property in the Gaines County area. McKenna's testimony indicated that Anderson had enrolled in a joint venture program, had lost money and then had withdrawn from the venture. The witness said Thomas told him in a 1974 conversation that he (Thomas) had personally taken care of the reported losses. Slough later asked McKenna if Thomas had told him why Anderson wished to leave the program.

According to McKenna. Thomas told him that Anderson was running for public office and did not want to be connected with the program

In his opening remarks to jurors before testimony began earlier this week Slough was careful to absolve indiduals participating in joint ventures of any implication of wrongdoing.

Prosecutors continued Thursday to try to prove that persons enlisted in the venture programs and who received price supports had no real interest in cotton farm land they leased.

W.D. Wilson, a former Houston resident, testified on direct examination he had had no say on who would be in the venture group to which he belonged, in who would farm the land, in who would be contacted for sale of cotton or in dayto-day financial aspects of the venture.

Wilson also indicated, however, that at the time he first became interested in joining a venture there was no guarantee that participants would be able to receive government price supports

Witnesses have indicated they joined ventures by borrowing approximately $50,000 from area banks to finance cotton crops on leased land, assigning future government price support checks to the banks as collateral.

Wilson also told defense attorney Travis Shelton that he met with other venture members two or three times each in 1971 and 1972 to discuss farming operations.

which have come up under the National Labor Relations Act: 1. Delays in processing election petitions and unfair labor practice cases. 2. Inadequacy of remedies the NLRB can invoke agaInst law violators, especially when violations occur before a collective bargaining relationship actually is created.

Opponents - chief among them, the National Right to Work Committee and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce - claim the bill is just a tool to make it easier for unions to organize.

They maintain it means "packing" of the NLRB with union-endorsed members, "steamroller" elections where employees may vote without knowing what is going on and, in effect, employer financing of union organization drives.

Midland College Receives Grant From Gulf Oil

MIDLAND (Special)-Midland College has received a $5,000 Departmental Assistance Grant from the Gulf Oil Foundation

Dr. Al G. Langford, Midland College president, received the check from Dr. J.L. Huitt, vice president of the Southwestern Division, Gulf Oil Exploration and Production Company, and Jack Howard, division employee relations manager

The Gulf Oil Foundation grant is the second annual payment on a three-year pledge made by the foundation to assist the petroleum technology department.

Dr. Langford said the grant would be used to purchase needed equipment for the petroleum technology program, which provides training for persons currently employed in petroleum-related jobs as well as pre-employment training for those who wish to work in oil-related firms

"This grant is important for the development of the petroleum technology department and the quest for excellence which we seek for all facets of Midland College," Dr. Langford said, "It also indicates the importance which Gulf Oil Exploration and Production Company, through the Gulf Oil Foundation, places on educational opportunities for its employees and their families in the local community."

Firm Provides House Sitters

HOUSTON (UPI) - For a fee, Houston Homewutchers Inc. will give your house that lived-in look while you're gone, even providing some garbage to toss for the last word in authenticity.

The basic $4.50 treatment offered by the firm - neighbors Janice Beale, Barbara Marcus and four hired staffers - involves checking locks, opening and closing drapes, turning lights on and off, collecting the mail and newspa-

They'll even start your car daily, water your plants and feed goldfish, parakeets or hamsters, all for $4.50 a day. All of this, of course, helps keep burglars away in addition to providing a convenient service.

"We set up the business with a couple of ads in the newspaper and immediately got tremendous response," said Miss Beale, president. "People were intrigued that we would be coming into their houses daily.

There is garbage collection in Houston twice a week and on the days people have their garbage collected, we put out a bag of garbage. If you don't have it, we supply it. From somewhere comes a bag.

"We take great pains to make the house look lived in," Miss Beale said.

Although they'll feed goldfish, parakeets and hamsters for no extra charge, larger pets will cost you. Full service plus one dog raises the fee to $8.50 daily.

Each additional pet is $2 more, but that includes two visits a day, walking if requested and, of course, feeding, with the client buying the pet food. There are additional services.

"For $5 a day, clients supply us with grocery lists before they leave town, we have all those groceries purchased and cupboarded for them so there's no frantic shopping when they come back," Miss Beale said.

"For $30 a day we clean the house. We do supply a house sitter for $30 a week. Mowing the lawn costs $7.50 a mow.

They'll consider special requests.

"We've gone to the grocery store to buy a certain kind of barbecued chicken for a certain cat. We've also given medicine to animals. One hamster would eat only hard-boiled eggs."

Miss Beale started homewatching in wealthy Hillsborough, Calif., three years ago after a bad experience boarding her own dog during a trip to Hawaii. That opened her eyes to a market gap.

We came to the conclusion that kennels and boarding places were just not the right place for dogs," she said. "Cats fared even worse.

Justice Will Not Seek Additional Court Term

ALISTIN (LIPI) - Supreme Court Justice Price Daniel Sr., faced with a possible conflict of interest if his son wins a bid to be Texas attorney general, announced Thursday he will not seek reelection to a third term on the court.

Daniel Sr. is opposing former Secretary of State Mark White for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, and White has raised the prospect of possible conflicts if the younger Daniel represented the state in cases before the high court.

White also has contended his opponent is attemptng to ride the name of his father into a statewide political office.

Daniel's announcement of his plan to retire did not mention his son's campaign, however, and a campaign spokesman for Price Daniel Jr. said the relationship was not a factor in the race.

"It was a non-issue before and it's a non-issue now," said Carlton Carl, a Daniel campaign aide and administrative assistant to Daniel during his term as speaker of the House.

The elder Daniel, 67, who was Texas governor from 1957-1963 and U.S. senator from 1952-1956, was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1971 by Gov. Preston Smith.

"It is an nonor and highly rewarding experience to be a member of this court," Daniel said in a statement announcing his retirement. "I shall look forward to completing my present term, which ends on Dec. 31, 1978. At that time

HOUSTON (AP)-The late Howard Hughes sometimes described himself as an "ex-Texan," a former associate testified Thursday Pat DeCicco, 68, Madrid, Spain, said he worked with Hughes on motion pictures from 1935 until 1941. DeCicco and William Randolph Hearst Jr., an official of the Hearst newspapers, testified as witnesses for the temporary administrators of the estate in the fifth week of a probate court trial to determine the legal residence of Hughes at the time of his death in April 1976.

Hearst said he had a "close relationship" with Hughes from 1925 until the mid-1960s "but you couldn't say we were

The witness said that, to his knowledge, the last time Hughes was in Texas was in the late 1940s when he flew with Hughes to Houston to try to sell an airplane to Glenn McCarthy, an independent oil operator.

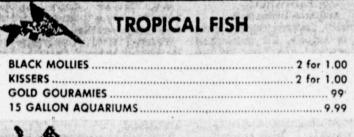

Texas is trying to prove the legal domicile of Hughes was Houston, where he was born and buried. The estate's temporary administrators contend the legal residence was Nevada, which, unlike Texas, has no inheritance tax.

Hearst described Hughes as an introvert who would date "the best looking movie girls and then complain about the publicity.

"I told him he couldn't have it both ways," Hearst said.

Hearst said Hughes was as "uncomfortable as could be" when he faced a battery of microphones at the end of a New York ticker tape parade after his airplane trip around the world in the late 1930s.

Duo Suspended After Charges

AMARILLO, Texas (UPI) - A state district judge Thursday ordered the temporary suspensions of Potter County Sheriff T.L. Baker and County Commis sioner Bob Hicks, both subjects of felony indictments and removal suits.

Judge George W. Miller of Floydada scheduled a Feb. 21 pretrial hearing on the two removal suits filed by Larry Kelly, a businessman. Miller asked lawyers for the state, which is prosecuting the suit, and Baker to suggest methods of selecting an acting sheriff to serve during the suspension.

Kelly's petitions allege official misconduct through the unlawful taking of a countyownej air compressor. The compressor was confiscated by police last October at a sheetmetal shop operated by Hicks

Both Hicks and Baker were named in indictments charging felony theft of the compressor in November.

Baker was indicted for aggravated perjury on Dec. 8. A misdemeanor indictment accuses the sheriff of ordering deputies to investigate the background of the lawyer who was serving as special counsel for the special court of inquiry investigating corruption in county government.

The legal term for the alleged misdemeanor offense is attempted official oppression

Baker has been sheriff since 1972.

Hicks also was indicted for felony theft of more than $5,000 after his employees testified during the court of inquiry the sheetmetal firm had worked on county projects through a subcontracting agreement. Employees testified they were ordered to remove signs from trucks and to not wear uniforms that would indicate they worked for the sheatmetal firm.

looking forward to the best sales year ever in our industry, with a total of 151/2 million cars and trucks in the U.S. Given the continued strength and upward movement in the economy, and a hardselling effort by dealers representing all manufacturers, we think this projection of a new sales record is realistic, and particularly for trucks where Washington pundits predict a 4 percent drop."

However, Schultz said, the system has not proven capable of meeting California's stricter emission standards which allow nitrogen oxide emissions of no more than 4 grams per mile by 1983.

"While we have not achieved that." Schultz said, "we believe this system is the best approach and we will continue to refine and develop it.

The system, as explained to reporters by GM engineers, monitors and regulates the mixture of air and fuel in the caburetor to send a properly balanced mixture of exhaust materials into the catalytic converter.

The converter turns toxic carbon mon oxide and hydrocarbons into harmless carbon dioxide and water vapor and also reduces nitrogen oxide into nitrogen and oxygen, the engineers said.

cause of the government's proposed fuel economy standards for trucks, GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy said Thursday Murphy said an assembly plant due to begin construction soon in Shreveport. La., was originally planned as a truck plant but now might assemble cars.

Uncertainty over what truck standards will be set by the government "add a new, dimension to our product planning for the 1980s." Murphy said in remarks prepared for delivery to the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce.

- Earlier, Chrysler Corp. flatly declared that the proposed miles per gallon levels proposed for trucks would be impossible meet and threatened to halt conversion of its Jefferson Avenue plant in Detroit to truck and van production.

Chrysler said the proposals don't allow enough lead time for manufacturers to prepare for the lowered mileage, which it said amounted to a 30 percent jump in one year for certain trucks.

The Transportation Department in December proposed guidelines for pickup truck vans and four-wheel-drive vehicles to get one to three more m.p.g. in model years 1980 and 1981. Public hearings on the proposal are set for Monday in Washington.

Murphy said construction on the Shreveport plant will begin as soon as environmental permits are approved, probably in late January. GM will decide "when the time comes" what to build there, he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Federal Trade Commission will announce Friday the Ford Motor Co. must provide relief for the owners of 2.7 million compact and subcompact cars with piston and other engine flaws, informed sources said Thursday.

The commission confirmed a news conference will be held to announce major consumer protection action against an auto manufacturer involving alleged defects in some of its cars.

Sources said the commission has been discussing piston difficulties with Ford for an extended period.

The cars affected by the commission's action include Ford's Maverick, Granada, Mustang and Pinto models and the Monarch and Bobcat models from Ford's Mercury Division, the sources said.

10-A-LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Morning, January 13, 1978 Texan Who Slew Mugger May Be Indicted

By JOHN MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) - A grand jury met for two hours Thursday without deciding whether to indict a onetime Dallas law officer who gunned down a mugger in his New York hotel with a pistol he carried in his briefcase

Richard Norton, 44, told police he shot and killed the taller of a well-dressed Mutt-and-Jeff mugging team who jumped him at the door of his suite in the Hilton Wednesday night. Norton had once been shot in the chest by a thief in Dallas

"Probably thought I was an easy mark, a tired businessman pushover who'd just hand over his money," Norton said. "Well, they sure picked the wrong guy." Police placed no charges against Norton. One investigator, Lt. James Roberts. praised the Texan for the way he defended himself and added he thought a weapons charge would not serve the interests of justice.

Norton appeared voluntarily Thursday morning at the district attorney's office to answer the call of the grand jury. The Manhattan district attorney's office said the jury would reconvene this afternoon, but did not say whether Norton would have to reappear.

Police investigators said a thorough check was being run on the dead man, Edward Campbell, 37, for possible connection to a robbery and murder in the hotel less than two months ago.

The district attorney's office described Norton, 44, of Mesquite, Tex., as a former Dallas policeman who is legally entitled to have a gun in his home state, but is not licensed to carry one in New York. Other sources said Norton is a former deputy sheriff.

Under New York law, having an unlicensed gun at home or work is a misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in prison and $1,000 fine; carrying it is a felony punishable by up to seven years imprisonment and a sub-state of the second second second second tion As Norton described it, he heard running in the hall behind him as he opened the door to his two-room suite on the 26th floor of the luxury hotel, which rents such suites for up to $190 a day.

Next thing he knew, he was shoved headlong into the room and confronted by two men, both in pinstripe business suits, one with an attache case, the other flashing a knife.

Norton, 5-feet-10 and 170 pounds, said

Security chief of Sanger-Harris Feder- he knocked the knife away and plunged into hand-to-hand battle with the robbers, carrying the fight to the bedroom, where he had a .38-caliber pistol in a briefcase.

> "One guy was trying to choke me, and I was just about keeping the other at bay when I managed to get the gun. I squeezed off one shot," he said.

The mortally wounded Campbell, who was 6-feet-1, died about three hours later in St. Clare's hospital, where Norton was treated for shoulder and head injuries. The other robber, about 5-feet-6, 135 pounds and bearded, fled and was being sought, police said. A lawyer for Sanger-Harris in Dallas said Norton was shot in the chest by a thief there in 1969. "He chased a shoplifter into a parking garage and the shoplifter shot him in the chest. It was a grave injury; he was off work for a couple of months," said the lawyer, Tommy Mays.

The murder at the Hilton last Nov. 28 was three floors below Norton's. The killers bound, beat and suffocated Robert Santos, 46, a Rio de Janiero engineer believed to have had a large amount of money with him

Texas Law Vague On Handguns

By The Associated Press When a Dallas security guard attending a convention in New York City shot and killed a would-be robber Wednesday night, he was in violation not only of New York law, but Texas law,

However, Texas gun laws are vague enough to leave plenty of room for interpretation by law enforcement officers Richard Norton, 44, security director for a large Dallas department store, was accosted in the hallway of his New York hotel by two knife-wielding robbers.

Norton told police he struggled into his room with the pair in tow, grabbed a pistol from his briefcase and killed one of the assailants. The second man fled. New York police said they didn't plan to charge Norton with any crime, although he did appear before a grand jury there. New York's Sullivan law covering gun possession is considered the toughest of any such state law in the na-

In Texas, it's a different matter. There are no such things as gun permits in Texas.

Section 46.03 of the penal code makes it unlawful to possess a handgun except on a person's premises, or premises under his control, while traveling, hunting or fishing or while on duty as a uniformed private guard. In the case of properly certified security guards, a handgun must be openly displayed and may be carried only when the agent is on duty in his area and while in uniform.

But many Texans carry guns either in their vehicle, or concealed on their per-

"The law is pretty gray," admitted one big city police legal officer. "We go by case law on this. You have to

A homicide detective said there are circumstances under which private citizens get away with carrying pistols and they are usually handled on a situationethics basis.

"I'd let a guy go if he's got a good explanation for it," said the detective. "It just depends. Police are bound by oath to uphold the law but when it gets right down to it I am the law. If someone says they have a good reason to have a gun in their possession and it sounds good to

Attorneys Cite Girl Scouts' Responsibility

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Attorneys for two young girls slain at a Girl Scout camp near Locust Grove last summer argued Thursday that the Girl Scout organization should "bear responsibility" for the well-being of youngsters in its care

It was the first court appearance of attorneys in a $3 million lawsuit filed Sept. 22 against the Magic Empire Council of Girl Scouts in connection with the June 13 slavings of three girls at the camp.

Several motions by the attorney for the council were overruled by District Judge Bill Beasley, clearing the way for a pre-trial hearing on the merits of the case to be held later.

A charge of slaying the girls has been filed against Gene Leroy Hart, a jail escapee who has been sought almost since the time of the killings.

Found slain on their first night of a summer camp were Lori Lee Farmer, 8; Doris Denise Milner, 10, and Michelle Guse, 9, all of the Tulsa area.

Thursday's arguments were from Jack I. Gaither and Bruce Gaither, attorneys for the family of Miss Farmer. A separate suit on behalf of the Milner family will be heard in District Judge Robert Green's court later

The Guse family did not join in the suits.

Meanwule, Mayes County Sheriff Pete Weaver and a group of deputies were preparing to search an abandoned cabin near Locust Grove where someone has been camping in recent weeks.

Weaver said he is "not overly optimisitc" that the search of the cabin would lead to Hart. For the first time Weaver said he is "not as confident as I have been in the past that Gene Leroy Hart is still in our area."

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - The World Health Organization, campaigning against booming sales in new, costly and often unnecessary drugs. Thursday published a "model list" of 234 medicines which, it said, covers basic health needs throughout the world.

The list insludes, for example, only one cough medicine and two oral contraeptives

The compiliers, an eight-man committee of drug experts, slam manufacturers tor, they say, creating an artificial demand for drugs by sales promotions.

The list, which now goes to the 153 WHO member states, includes every medicine the organization considers necessary to treat known and rare diseases.

Trade Names Omitted

names, the substances range from anaesthetics to vitamins and include complementary and alternative drugs as well is essentials

In an accompanying report, the committee urges nations to adopt more rational and efficient drug use policies. It deplores that many pharmaceutical products are marketed with little conern for the differing health needs and priorities of individual countries."

in world drug sales has not led to improved health and that "promotional activities of the manufacturers have created a demand greater than the actual needs

ent nations and their governments are increasingly worried by the rising expenditure on pharmaceutical products." it said

ided into 26 sections, many listing only small numbers of drugs. Codeine alone is listed for coughs, insulin for diabetes, and there is one migraine remedy, ergotamine, and one blood plasma substitute

WHO has long accused the pharmacentical industry of selling not fully tested or outright unsafe drugs at inflated prices in the growing markets of developing regions lacking experience, knowhow and legislation for effective drug ontrol

The committee explained that it has excluded some very effective new drugs because safety data on long-term use are lacking Cimetidine, a new anti-ulcer ing is an example.

Value Unsupported

The committee also rejected certain car, nose and throat preparations beause there was inadequate evidence of their value to support their inclusion.

D.L. Azarnoff, professor of medicine nd pharmacology at Kansas University Medical Center, was chairman of the oramittee which held its last meeting in October.

Other members came from France, It-Brazil, Ghana, Indonesia, Sri lan nd Malaysia They recommended that the organization update the drug list periodically, provide member states with information on each listed drug, and promote education and training at regional and state level in the proper use of essential drugs.

Woman Struggles To Pay Medical Bill

DANBURY, Conn-(NEA)-The first part of the matter was quite bad enough for Catherine Bailey. It began on a Saturday, at noon. Her husband Jesse collapsed at work, apparently because of an exploding aorta, and he was rushed to the hospital where doctors performed emergency surgery. Thirty one hours later, on Sunday evening, he was dead.

Then came the second part. A week after the burial, Mrs. bailey got the bill for her husband's unsuccessful medical treatment: $8,126. The charges included $4,828 for slightly more than a day and a night in the hospital, and a additional $3,198 for the physicians and anesthesiologists. At first Mrs. Bailey thought there

4,000 Drugs Marketed

The selection contrasts with an estimated 4 000 drugs marketed internationally, many variations of old ones sold under new trade names to attract custom-the billing. The hospital charges alone ran to 10 pages and nearly 300 items, including an astonishing $2,000 for laboratory tests, and Mrs. Bailey did not see how it all could have been speezed into a scant 31 hours of care. But the medicos insisted the bill was correct. Mrs. Bailey received 'massive attention" He had to have 23 blood gas tests, for example, at a cost of almost 700, and that was indicative of the treatment as a whole. Doctors said they were sorry, yet the billing was not out of line.

Still, Mrs. Bailey was not satisfied. Her husband's hospital death had cost nearly $260 an hour, more than he had earned per week while living, and that didn't seem right. To compound Mrs. Bailey's confusion, her self-employed husband had no insurance, hence the bill could bankrupt his survivors.

So it is that in the time since the billing last summer, Catherine Bailey has waged a desperate, lonely and decidedly futile campaign to find out what many Americans would like to know: why does the medical industry charge so much?

Mrs. Bailey's campaign has been pursued mostly in the mails. She has written two Connecticut congressmen, Ronald Sarazin and tobe Moffett. She has petitioned. Gov. Ella Grasso and U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker. She has also made inquiries to Ted Kennedy. And she has sent a plea to James Earl Carter.

Carter has not answered. Mrs. Bailey says her daughter received a note from the White House recenity, when she had a baby, but there has been no presidential word regarding the woefully steep medical bill. As for the replies she has recieved. Mrs. Bailey says they are wordy but not encourag-

Not that the politicians have been unsympathetic. Rep. Moffet wrote of his disgust that since 1960 the cost of a day's care in the hospital has increased more than 1,000 percent. Another reply pointed out that the average stay in a hospital today (1,300) is a staggering $1.00 more than it was in but as for help, for herself and for the 40 million other Americans who have no medical insurance, Mrs. Bailey says she has drawn a blank. The government has debated national health insurance since the mid 1930s, but except for aid to the elderly a univeral plan has eluded U.S. lawmaker.s

Mrs. Bailey believes the government should at least step in to assist victims of catastrophic illness. She says most people can manage normal medical costs, but not $8126, in 31 hours.

But perhaps most of all, Mrs. Bailey believes the electeds should investigate the legitimacy of medical costs. For instance, she points out that her-bill contained $97 for hospital costs on the day prior to her husband's admission, and, unbelievably, another $512 for treatment for two full days after he had died.

Local Man Has Close Encounter With Burglar

kind for a disabled Lubbock man Thursday, who emerged from a brief struggle with a burglar in his home with a cut lip, loose teeth and $2,500 worth of guns missing

The victim told officers he had left his South Lubbock home for a few minutes before returning to hear his dog barking excitedly.

Noticing a back door ajar, the victim said he entered his home and found a skimasked burglar packing a .45-caliber automatic in his boot and a knife in his back pocket.

The victim told police he watched as the man fled south on Avenue T. Although nothing appeared to be missing, the victim told police later the man took four of his guns, including an antique firearm, which amounted to a $2,500 loss. The burglar was described as a black man, about 6 feet tall, weighing about 210 pounds. He may have been driving a 1966 Chevrolet pickup with right rear damage, reports indicated. Elsewhere, city burglars and thieves

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Morning, January 13, 1978-A-13

PACK LEADER - Jack Putnam, a Denver hunter-taxidermist-artist, shows the wolf he bagged that was part of a pack following a herd of caribou.

GRACEFUL CURLS — Gamble, left, Putnam and a guide pose beside two Stone sheep that climaxed a hunt in the rugged terrain of British Columbia.

Canadian Stone Sheep Challenge Met

Discovery

By TED J. SIMON A-J Outdoor Editor

The hunt had gone well for Johnny Gamble. In a remote area of British Columbia the Lubbock resident had bagged a caribou and a moose that were worthy of any trophy room. The high altitude, rugged terrain and cold temperatures were a challenge — but the hardest part of the hunt was still to come, the quest for a Stone sheep.

Stone sheep — they can easily weigh as much as 225 pounds — are accented by heavy, long, curling horns, set close to the face. The animals' hair coloring varies from gray and brown to a blue-gray verging on black. Sure-footed, with strong limbs, the animals frequent alpine-type ridges and mountains. If you can't get there a Stone sheep can and will.

Hunting with Gamble was Jack Putnam, widely known Denver taxidermist and wildlife sculptor. For several years he was associated with the Denver Museum of Natural History and has hunted many areas of the world to obtain and mount specimens of wildlife for the museum's life-like displays.

"Jack is now an independent taxidermist and a fantastic artist working in bronze," noted Gamble. "He's a great hunter and a true sportsman; I felt fortunate to have him as a hunting companion."

The two men had-selected as their guide and outfitter N. B. "Red" Sorensen of Fort St. John. The hunters reached the outfitter's remote tent camps by small plane, on horseback, and a lot of walking.

Gamble's hunting permits were for caribou, moose, and Stone sheep. Putnam's tags were for a Stone and a wolf. Early in the hunt, the Denverite located the wolf he wanted for a trophy. The wolf was one of a pack following a herd of caribou.

"Jack selected the largest wolf," said the Lubbock big game hunter. "You should have seen it. The animal was so big that when it was lashed across a horse, there wasn't room for a rider."

The stateside hunters were elated with their good luck and the cooperative weather, it was cold and there was snow, but no storms occurred to hamper their progress.

But, as the party of hunters and guides headed for earlier by a forest fire. It's perfect country for Stone sheep. It has high, rocky areas that the sheep prefer." Steep, rocky ridges may be good country for Stone sheep, but it certainly isn't where a person would go for a country stroll. "I had a pretty bad time of it getting up the mountain to reach the sheep areas. But you've got to go where the Stones are — they're not going to come down to you."

The men had been scouting the Burn Off area for a day and a half when a flu bug got hold of the Lubbock

Moments passed in complete silence — and then all of the effort became fruitful. The three sheep came out of the draw, climbing for higher ground. The animals were no more than 150 yards away from the hunters!

"At that distance, even without binoculars, you could see the Stones were of adequate age and size to be exceptional trophies," recalled Gamble.

A shot rang out as Putnam hit the first Stone. It slid down about 25 yards where it stopped dead. The remaining sheep jumped for higher ground above the hunters.

Gamble had reached the general area and quickly sighted on the bigger of the two animals and squeezed off a shot. One clean shot - the Stone sheep slid down to within a few feet of the first ram. Neither of the animals knew what hit him, and both rams appeared almost identical in size and the curl of their horns.

Several days later the two hunters flew out of the spike camp. Each had accomplished a personal quest.

When asked if he would ever make the same hunt again, the Lubbock realtor leaned back in his chair in his office at Leroy Land Company and said, "I doubt it, because of my age. Even this hunt was a few years too late for me physically. But, who knows? I'm usually ready for another hunt a year after the last hunt." Then Johnny Gamble's eyes sparkled, "There are some ranges in Alaska that have some magnificent Dall sheep...."

(Editor's note: Guide and outfitter information pertaining to big game hunting in Canada is available from N. B. "Red" Sorensen, 9115-107th Avenue, Fort St. John, B.C., Canada VJ2PI.)

the last camp, Gamble saw a mountain pass that looked impassable. There were areas that were so steep or deep with snow that the men had to get off the horses and walk; often the men trudged behind the horses. Gamble admitted to actually holding on to the tail of his horse several times while making the climb.

Finally the men and their horses reached the top of the pass.

"We made it down from there and headed for our camp in an area called Burn Off." The Lubbockite explained, "The area had been burned six or seven years hat hunter. Gamble had to remain in camp, knowing that so his chance for a Stone sheep — the one animal he realoff ly wanted to bag — might never happen.

A day later, the two guides and Putnam returned to camp to tell the Lubbockite that three good size sheep had been spotted.

"The men were really enthusiastic about the size of the sheep and described the curl of horns as indicating each animal was at least eight years old, the minimum age that Sorensen would allow to be hunted. Some of Sorensen's rules and regulations as an outfitter are more strict than the government's requirements." Gamble exclaimed "When Jack Putnam said he felt

Gamble exclaimed, "When Jack Putnam said he felt the area was climbable — that cured me!"

Early the following morning the party departed camp on horseback and before long had spotted some sheep. Approximately five miles away, the eagle-like eyes of the guides had noticed the movement of some animals. Using high-powered spotting scopes, the animals were identified as the same trio of Stone sheep that had been observed the day before.

GOOD RACK — Johnny Gamble, Lubbock resident, displays the antlers of a moose he bagged while hunting in British Columbia.

"We rode our horses to within 2 1/2 miles of the Stones," noted Gamble. "Then, because the sound of the horses might be heard and their size could be seen too easily, we got off the horses and tied them where they were less apt to alarm the sheep. There was probably eight inches of snow on the ground and that helped to muffle our movement."

Again, the terrain became steep, and the Lubbock hunter had doubts he could reach the higher ground where the elusive animals had been seen.

"Jack had his heart set on a good trophy for his work room, so I told him to pick the Stone he wanted — I'd be happy with any of the three animals if I got a chance for a shot," explained Gamble.

The party climbed for several hours, and the Lubbock resident found he had to stop to rest more and more often. When the party did reach the general area where the sheep had been observed, the sheep had moved away. Using binoculars, the men could see the tracks of the animals leading to higher ground.

Nearing the top of the mountain, the hunters and guides moved parallel to the ridge. A short distance away, the tracks of the sheep went into a draw. The men waited and watched and listened.

SPIKE CAMP — Comfortable tents and good cooking gave respite from the deep snow and frigid temperatures of Canada's big game country.

HIGH COUNTRY — Stateside hunters from Lubbock and Denver, along with their guides, dismount to scan the rugged and remote area inhabited by Stone sheep. The rams are noted for their massive, curling horns.

PACKING OUT — A guide leads a horse laden with caribou antlers that will grace the trophy rooms of Lubbock resident Johnny Gamble and Jack Putnam, a resident of Denver.

City Liquor Ordinance Changed Only Slightly sure in the city's southwest sector probably will not be ready until 1981 or 1982, Cunningham said.

Continued low pressure not only will annoy residents, he said, but it could cause serious problems for firefighters.

And, Cunningham said, as the trend to live in Southwest Lubbock continues, more residents will be outside the nearest fire station's five-minute response time. The result will be an increasing number of lives in jeopardy, he said.

"I'm not trying to be a pessimist," he said, "but these are realities the council needs to be aware of. I wanted to bring it to your attention because things are getting serious."

Scant precedent exists for countersuing Marshall, City Atty. Fred Senter told the council. And "we're moving as fast as we can" through the litigation delaying the bond sales, he added. Issuing COs may be the only immediate way to sidestep Marshall's obstacles, the council generally agreed. However, because plans detailing how sale proceeds would be used must be formulated before certificates are issued.

mulated before certificates are issued, money must be found to finance engineering prospectuses, bond adviser Joe Smith said.

At the council's behest, the city staff will try to pinpoint possible funding sources such as revenue-sharing. Also during their work session, council members tentatively set an April 5 airport revenue bond sale. The group wants to sell the revenue bonds to finance a $2.4 million parking lot expansion project at the airport.

The municipal governing body also agreed to further study methods of speeding up collection of delinquent city and school taxes.

One possibility under consideration is to program a computer to punch out petitions for payment. The new procedure would eliminate time-consuming work by tax office clerks and perhaps prompt quicker tax payments, the council said. The city council did another about-face on the question of stricter liquor sales controls, opting to retain the current ordinance with only minor changes. For the fourth time, council members rejected drastically modified ordinance proposals they had asked the city's legal staff to draft. After about an hour-long discussion, during which they disagreed with each other about their intentions in changing the ordinance, council members talked themselves back into square one.

one. And, faced with vehement opposition by restaurant association members, council members declined to act on the issue of late-hour alcoholic beverage sale permits, which earlier they had sought to restrict.

The ordinance amendment discussion that began last summer will continue in two weeks, when City Atty. Fred Senter presents a fifth proposal for council con-

President Predicts Energy Plan Okay

"They have sold excessive quantities of arms and weapons to both, shipping some men, and they also dispatched Cubans, perhaps to become combatants themselves."

The subject was discussed frequently during Carter's meetings last week with foreign leaders on his seven-nation tour, and Carter told the news conference:

Negotiations Hoped "I hope that we can induce the Soviets and the Cubans not to send either soldiers or weapons into that area and hope for and achieve a rapid development of negotiations."

The president did not say whether the Russians in Ethiopia were technicians, military advisers or troops. On other topics, Carter said:

- He hopes lower interest rates can be achieved.

— Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, opening an anti-smoking campaign, was acting responsibly to point out the dangers of tobacco. "I do not think it is his responsibility to tell an individual American whether he can or cannot smoke," the president said.

Tax Cut Needed Carter said a tax cut will be needed by Oct. 1 to make sure the economy expands fast enough to meet the administration's target of 5 percent economic growth in 1978.

"I think a substantial tax reduction is needed in 1978, and I think Congress will agree," Carter said.

Carter plans to propose tax reductions totaling $25 billion when Congress returns to Washington next week. About two-thirds would be for individual taxpayers, with the remainder designed to stimulate business investment.

Carter said the nation was fortunate to meet the goals the administration had set for the economy in 1977, including overall economic growth of 5.5 percent and an unemployment rate of 6.4 percent for December.

Growth Rate Goal

"The goal we have set for ourselves in 1978 is a 5 percent growth rate. We believe a substantial tax reduction is needed for that purpose..." he said.

Economists say the economy needs to grow at least 4 percent to keep unemployment from getting worse, and that anything over that will cut into existing iobless rolls.

Carter said a tax reduction is needed to offset the increase in Social Security taxes for individuals and also to prevent taxpayers from being pushed by inflation into higher tax brackets.

Progress Seen

He said that even without a tax reduction, the nation should experience "very good economic progress in the growth rate and in controlling unemployment and inflation" during the first half of 1978.

"Basically we have a very strong economy," he said. But because of the upward trend of taxes that would otherwise occur, the economy could begin to slow toward the end of 1978 if a tax reduction

In answer to a question, Carter said he, would like to see lower interest rates in the economy, but indicated that these are unlikely until the United States can reduce its dependence on foreign oil.

The cost of imported oil is primarily responsible for the nation's huge trade deficit, estimated at nearly $30 billion in 1977, which in turn has caused a weakening of the dollar on world money markets, Carter said. The increase in interest rates is partly linked to what has happened to the dollar.

He said that until the question of energy is resolved, the uncertainty caused by excessive imports of oil "is going to contribute to the deleterious effects of increasing interest rates and uncertainty in the stock market."

Carter said that unless Congress adopts what he feels is a strong energy program he may be forced to impose a special fee on imports of foreign oil.

But Carter also said that he believes Congress will soon agree on an energy plan that will satisfy him.

"There will be a compromise reached," Carter predicted. "It will be acceptable to me and to the country, and I think it will come very early in the session."

violence, though several small groups shouted "Muera Somoza" — death to Somoza — and "Viva el FSLN," which means long live the Sandinista Liberation Front, a leftist guerrilla group. After the funeral, the coffin was taken to the cemetery, followed by a crowd of about 30,000 persons. Demonstrators shouted "death to the killers" and antigovernment slogans during the march. A small national guard detachment stood outside the cemetery and other soldiers patrolled the area.

Among the burned buildings was a branch of Citibank of New York, a Bank of Central America branch, a blood plasma firm, a Renault auto showroom and offices of a construction firmwhere neary 1,000 gallons of gasoline were stored. The blood firm, Plasmaferesis, is partially owned by the Somoza family and was accused by Chamorro's newspaper, La Prensa, of making a profit in Western Europe and the United States on blood it bought from poor Nicaraguans. La Prensa often denounced government corruption and blamed Somoza, whose family has run this Central American nation of 2.5 million for the past 45 years.

access to Jerusalem's holy places. Dayan said: "The pope did not mention any special status for the city of Jerusalem." Vatican sources said the two expressed differing opinions on the Palestinian issue. The pope in the past has called for recognition of Palestinian "rights."

-Algerian President Houari Boumedienne and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin conferred at the Kremlin and both reiterated their opposition to Sadat's separate peace negotiations with Israel. Lebanese newspapers reported that Algeria is trying to patch up the quarrel between Syria and Iraq to strengthen the anti-Sadat Arab front.

-The U.N. Special Committee on Palestinian Rights promised Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat it would "exert all efforts" to promote Palestinian self-determination. Committee recommendations endorsed by the General Assembly call for a Palestinian "entity" on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip, which like the Sinai were occupied by Israel in the 1967 Six-Day war.

-A group calling itself "The Al Aqsa Organization" sent a statement to The Associated Press in Cairo threatening Sadat's life because of his contacts with Israel. It also threatened the lives of Ambassador Eilts and the head of an Egyptian military court that sentenced five Moslem extremists to death for a political assasination.

The military talks precede the more significant political negotiations beginning Monday in Jerusalem. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will participate with the Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers.

The political talks will handle the central problem in the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations — the future of the Palestinians.

Begin has offered West Bank and Gaza Palestinians limited self-rule but with a continued Israeli military presence. Sadat is pressing for Israeli withdrawal and self-determination for the Palestinians.

Park Questioning Opens In Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — American and Korean investigators began questioning Korean lobbyist Tongsun Park today about his part in a Washington payoff scandal.

After months of negotiations between Washington and Seoul, the 42-year-old rice dealer signed an agreement Wednesday to tell U.S. Justice Department officials and American courts everything he knows about the alleged influence-buying scheme. An estimated 30.000 mourners escorted Chamorro's glass-topped coffin to the La Prensa office for an overnight wake on the night before burial.

Somoza opponents called a rally, and the national businessmen's council urged all shops and factories to close for 24 hours to protest the assassination.

Chamorro's Democratic Union of Liberation accused the Somoza regime of "resorting to repression as the only means of sustaining itself in power," and along with three other opposition groups called off a two-month dialogue with President Somoza.

The National Guard, which serves as a combined police force and army, announced Wednesday the arrest of four persons and seizure of three cars amd a number of firearms in connection with the assassination.

A spokesman said those arrested were all Nicaraguans and gave their names as Domingo Acevedo Charvarria, Silvio Pena Rivas, Harold Cedenos Escoto and Silvio Vega Zuniga.

The spokesman said Pena Rivas turned himself in after police found one of the cars registered in his name. Police sources said the man claimed he sold the car months ago. sideration. The latest draft would differ is not forthcoming, he added from the current ordinance only in a provision governing control of the 60-40 limits on liquor sale profits. In addition to the required quarterly report by restaurants holding an alcoholic beverage sale permit, the Zoning Board of Adjustment (ZBA) would have the authority to request further evidence from businesses that they meet the the requirement that limits their liquor sale profit to 40 percent of their gross. The ZBA could request the evidence if it or the zoning administrator suspected non-compliance with the ordinance.

The city legal department initiated amendment of the ordinance governing the sale of alcoholic beverages in restaurants last summer on the grounds that the current ordinance was not enforceable.

The legal staffers and zoning department intended that quarterly audit reports were doctored to show 60-40 compliance by bars posing as restaurants. Restaurants are allowed in higher zoning districts than are bars, and some drinking spot owners evidently want to encroach on restaurant territory.

Only by tightening controls in the ordinance could the law be enforced and the masquerading bars be driven out, the legal department said.

Another side to the ordinance issue was the contention that late-hour permits allow restaurants to act as "mini bars" by selling only alcoholic beverages from midnight until 2 a m.

The permit allows a business to sell such beverages until 2 a m. instead of the usual midnight. Restaurant association members today told the council that revoking late-hour permits held by restaurants would damage the city's convention trade.

The president also said that the tax reduction will help achieve his other goal of reducing the portion of the nation's wealth that is now collected and spent by the federal government. The govern-the federal government. The government's share is currently about 23 percent, and Carter said he wants this reduced to 21 percent by the end of his current term.

production, the new method is to determine the increases at each level. The increase of 0.7 percent for wholesale prices in December refers to prices of finished goods, or goods which are in their final form and ready for sale to the final user, whether it be a consumer or a business that will use the equipment. Calculated in the old way, wholesale prices for all goods rose 0.5 percent in December, down from 0.7 percent in November.

The Labor Department said the new method of computation will give a better picture of inflation at each stage of production. The actual increases most likely to be passed directly to the consumer are in so-called consumer finished goods, which were up 0.6 percent in December. The overall finished goods index, known previously as the Wholesale Price Index, stood at 185.5 in December, meaning that goods priced at $100 in 1967 were

Under this provision, agricultural products imported would not be allowed to enter the country for less than 110 per cent of the American established market prices. Tariffs from imports would be placed in a credit hold for exporting countries to purchase American goods at American prices. All imported goods would be tabeled imported until purchased by the consumer.

- Enlargement of the federal minimum wage law to cover farm laborers, with the minimum wage set at the same price level as 100 per cent parity for a bushel of corn.

Kimball explained the proposals to the crowd in a 30-minute speech and then answered questions ranging from why Farm Bureaus across the nation have not supported the movement to when and

Survey Shows Smoking Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than three-quarters of the American men born between 1920 and 1940 became smokers, but most have quit, a leader in the government's anti-smoking battle said Thursday.

The ex-smokers in this generation outnumber those who still smoke and those who never did, according to Daniel Horn, director of the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health in Atlanta

Among every 1,000 of these 37-to-57year-old men, Horn said, 375 have stopped smoking, 350 smoke, 215 never smoked and 60 have died, some from smoking-related diseases.

Vance Sees Treaty Okay

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance predicted publicly for the first time Thursday that the Senate will ratify the Panama Canaltreaty.

"There will be sufficient votes to ratify the treaty." Vance told an audience in Louisville, Ky., as he wound up a twoday tour of southern and border states in which he sought to rally public support for the pact.

The treaty needs to be approved in the Senate by a two-thirds majority for ratification.

Vance's speaking tour took him to West Virginia, Kentucky and Louisiana, three states in which public opinion is believed to run strongly against ratification of the agreement, which would turn over operation of the canal to Panama in the year 2000.

But Vance received friendly receptions at each stop despite assessments that sentiment was against the treaty.

At Louisville, Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll introduced Vance and said the agreement "must be confirmed, not might be confirmed, but must be confirmed by our Senate."

priced at $185.50 last month.

BRIDLINGTON, England (AP) – Britain's firemen voted overwhelmingly. Thursday to end their nine-week-old nationwide strike and accept a 10 percent annual wage hike, considerably below what they had demanded.

The decision, made at a stormy union delegates' meeting in this seaside resort, was a major victory in the Labor government's campaign to hold down pay increases in order to fight inflation.

"We were starved into going back to work," said union official Terry Segars. The union has no strike fund, and the 33,-000 strikers lost an average of $1,000 each in pay during the walkout.

They will return to work Monday, relieving the 18,000 servicemen who have on handled firefighting duties throughout more than the strike began Nov. 14.

The firemen had demanded an immediate 30 percent boost in their average wage of $121.60 for a 48-hour week. The deal they accepted Thursday gives them a 10 percent annual raise retroactive to Nov. 7, and additional raises over the next two years boosting their average pay to just over $190 a week. In addition, the 48-hour week will be reduced to 42 hours. The vote — it was approved by a 3-1 ratio — strengthens the hand of Prime Minister James Callaghan's government in getting other unions to abide by its 10 percent wage-increase guideline. Many

e other unions were watching the firemen's strike closely for signs of an easing of government policy. The decision of the delegates had been expected, based on local votes held earlier this week. But the meeting, nonetheless, was marred by violence.

More than 200 militant firemen from throughout the country were waiting when the delegates arrived. The pickets surged forward and fighting broke out as union General Secretary Terry Parry appeared.

Parry was caught in the middle of the mob but finally managed to break free and enter the hall. But later a smoke bomb was hurled into the hall and fighting erupted again. After the vote, as the crowds chanted "Kill Terry Parry," a flour bomb was hurled at him.

The servicemen, who fought 35,000 fires, received praise from many quarters for the job they did during the walkout, especially in view of the obsolescence of some of the equipment and their lack of intensive training.

The Home Office recorded 194 fire-related deaths during the strike, an average of 3.2 a day, slightly higher than the average death rate of 3 a day.

In many cases, especially when lives were at stake, striking firemen left their picket lines to aid the servicemen. Property damage claims jumped substantially during the strike, however, indicating the soldiers, sailors and airmen were unable to cope with many of the fires they were thrown up against.

The British Insurance Association said that in November, with only two strikeaffected weeks, claims reached $81 million, compared with $36.3 million in October.

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Morning, January 13, 1978-A-15 Action By Fed Aids Dollar's European Recovery

LONDON (AP) - The dollar fluctuated wildly on world money markets Thursday but recouped some of its losses in late trading

For most of the day, the troubled U.S. currency tumbled in value against the strong Swiss franc, German mark. Japanese yen and other major currencies.

Dealers everywhere were slightly dismayed about the U.S. government's intentions in the dollar crisis But help came by mid-day when the central banks in Zurich, Frankfurt, Tokyo and other financial centers bought dollars to halt the U.S. currency's retreat. Much of the lost ground was recovered. although the dollar still finished the day lower against most currencies

In London, however, the dollar surged ahead in thin after-hours trading - apparently due to intervention by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, dealers said. This is the kind of dramatic intervention by the Fed which the world's foreign exchanges have sought in vain over the past week.

The pound, which reached $1.96 early on from an overnight quote of $1.937, ended up shedding nearly two cents. A late quote was $1,9188.

The price of gold bullion also bounced up and down in Europe Thursday as uncertainty spread to the gold market. Gold closed 50 cents higher in Zurich at $173.875 an ounce; and at $173 in London. up 45 cents from Wednesday's closing price of $172.55.

Dealers across Europe and in Japan said the day's trading had been nervous and the slightest rumor had an effect. Most took a dim view of U.S. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal's statement Wednesday that American government support for the dollar - announced last week - is working and has quieted things down. The timing of the statement coincided with a lower dollar price in most financial centers Wednesday, and dealers got the impression that despite Blumenthal's optimism, the U.S. policy was ineffectu-

"I don't know what Blumenthal meant to say," a Tokyo money dealer commented Thursday, "but the market interpret-ed the comments as meaning the U.S. wouldn't intervene strongly

Also depressing the dollar were reports that Saudi Arabia might propose a change in the way the world's crude oil prices are set. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries now bases the price on the international value of the dollar. But if the dollar decline continues - costing oil exporters hard cash - the oil price may be set in a "basket" of several currencies, a Saudi government offi-

Cosmonauts Beginning

Experiment MOSCOW (UPI) - Four Soviet cosmonauts Thursday began medical and biological experiments aboard the Salyut 6 pace station on the first full day of what Western experts said could be a full year of continual manned space study Western experts said the Soviets a least temporarily had pulled ahead of the United States in space exploration. The Soviet news agency Tass said the Soyuz 27 cosmonauts, Vladimir Janibekov and Oleg Makarov, and the Sovuz 26 crew of Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko began five days of joint intensive work at 8 a.m. (midnight EST). "The program of the day includes medical and biological research, technical experiments, preventive inspection and checkups of the individual systems of the station and the spaceships, movie and still filming and television reportage." Tass said. Janibekov and Makarov Wednesday docked their Soyuz 27 capsule with the space station that Romanenko and Grechko have occupied since Dec. 11, in the first linkup of three space craft in the history of manned flight. The Soyuz 27 cosmonauts will spend five days aboard the Salyut, and then trade their space capsule full of fresh supplies for the Soyuz 26 capsule and ride it home to earth. Romanenko and Grechko will remain aboard Salyut to carry on with what Western experts predict is an ambitious Soviet program to continuously man the space station for as long as one year. Some Western scientific observers said the double docking and the Soviet plan to continuously man the space station put the Soviets temporarily in the forefront of space exploration, coming as it does at a time when the United States' manned flight program has been halted. They said, however, that the Soviet program was making maximum effective use of old technology and will be completely outstripped when the next generation of American equipment, the Enterprise space shuttle, becomes operational in two years. Tass said telemetric data and crew reports indicated all systems aboard the space complex were functioning normally, and the four cosmonauts were all in good condition. The Salvut lab and the two attached capsules were orbiting the earth every 91.3 minutes at an inclination of 51.6 degrees and at distances ranging between 207.5 miles and 228 miles. The Salyut 6 station was launched last August and has an estimated life expectancy in orbit of 18 months.

Woman Firefighter Resigns

MILWAUKEE (AP) - One of the first three women recruited for the Milwaukee Fire Department has resigned. Christy Ihlenfeld, 25, said she wasn't willing to give up her long, blond hair.

Miss Ihlenfeld said preliminary testing for the 12-week training program did not mention length of hair, but she was told later that the hair of recruits could not come below the forehead or touch the ears.

The other two women recruits among the 45 persons taking part in the Fire Department training program had their hair trimmed quite short and were told it wasn't short enough, Miss Ihlenfeld said.

I thought of the pictures of the shorn recruits in the Vietnam war, and I thought, 'What am I doing?'" she said.

Burning Of Mortgage Nixed

STOCKPORT, Iowa (AP) - Stockport city officials have decided to flush the mortgage on their new fire station down the drain.

A loan on the station was paid in full earlier this month A note-burning ceremony was contemplated, but because the Environmental Protection Agency frowns on any sort of open burning, Mayor Paul Kiso decided on another kind of ceremony.

The note will be flushed down the town's new sewer, which is nearly completed. No date for the note-flushing has been announced

Ill Pianist Cancels Tour

MOSCOW (AP) - Sviatoslav Richter, often considered the Soviet Union's foremost concert pianist, has pneumonia and has canceled all performances, a spokesman for the state concert organization said Thursday.

The spokesman said the performances would be rescheduled when the pianist recovers.

Richter, who also had pneumonia last winter, canceled his appearances in the Russian Winter Festival in Moscow last month. He also called off a tour of France in late January and early February.

Teacher Accepts Settlement

SOUTHOLD, N.Y. (AP) - A 29-year-old high school art teacher, suspended for marrying one of her students, has accepted a $35,000 settlement in return for dropping a $1 million lawsuit against the local school board.

Linda DiPrima also agreed to drop her demand to be reinstated.

The art teacher married 18-year-old John Yedloutschnig of Southold in August 1976, two months after he graduated.

On Sept. 6, 1976, the Southold school board suspended her, saying it found fault with her association with Yedloutschnig prior to his graduation.

Her attorney said Wednesday that the two now live out of the state

Three-State Burglary Ring Back In Operation

By PAT CARLSON Avalanche-Journal Staff

A three-state, Lubbock-based burglary ring now has all six of its members out of prison and apparently is making its presence known - with clothing stores as its special targets.

Police say the "core group" of six men. reportedly responsible for more than 200 clothing-store break-ins within the past five years, has hit two Lubbock businesses since Christmas Day - and that more are expected

The past two years have been slow for the ring. Three of its members have served prison sentences, but recently, all have returned to the streets - and stores - of their hometown, Lubbock.

The modus operandi is the same in each break-in.

A few days before the actual crime. members of the group go to the intended target and "case" the business. Usually two men are responsible for this phase of the operation, and often a purchase is made.

Then, 'usually between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m., two to four of the men return to the appointed site, break in, and make off with the goods - all within 3-5 minutes. "They beat the alarms," said Det. Sgt.

Gary Satter field. "In 3-5 minutes they're in and out - the alarms don't bother them. Lt Vernon Ralston of the Liberal, Kan . Police Department agrees.

"They're good," he remarked. "The last one they pulled here there was an alarm in the building, and it took a car two minutes to get there. By the time we arrived, they had already loaded and drove off and were probably eight blocks away Kansas authorities know the identities of the burglars and communicate with Lubbock police when a clothing-store break-in occurs. Ralston said there have been "some

Sheriff Howard Smith of Liberal termed lawmen there "lucky" that they were able to send one of the suspects to prison for a break-in there.

Police say the group of criminals is reponsible for numerous incidents in New Mexico and Kansas, as well as several Texas cities

Woman, 76, Ex-Logger, Maintains Grueling Pace At Son's Car Wash

PONTIAC, Mich (AP) - At 76, Mildred Eggert says she could "wash cars all night" at her son's car wash, unlike his younger employees, who are ready to throw in the towel after tive or six hours

I feel just wonderful as long as I don't sit down and relax." said Mrs Eggert, who keeps her weight at 98 pounds by working at Ken's Auto Wash seven days a week. She says she 'can outdo any one of these kids who come here to work

Called "Mom" by her colleagues. Mrs. Eggert and her son, Kenneth, built the car wash in 1960, ran it until they sold it in 1972, and got it back when the new owner defaulted last spring

Mrs. Eggert quit school as a high school sophomore to get married. Since then, she has run a pool hall and a caudy shop, clerked in a dime store, waited on tables in restaurants, managed apartment buildings and worked as a logger for 25 years in her son's tree-cutting business in Oakland County north of Detroit

"I'll tell you that lady's one of a kind." says her son, 54. They blew up the mold when they made her. She's got more get up and go than 40 people, and at her age, too. You should have seen her with a double-bladed axe.

Mrs. Eggert says modestly that washing cars "doesn't take any skill at all. You just have to have a little bit of ambition and good evesight so you can see where the dirt is.

She bundles up for work in layers of heavy underwear, socks, shirts and sweaters, black galoshes and bright yellow plastic overalls over wool slacks. On a good day, she says, 500 cars may go through the wash.

Mrs. Eggert, who's been helping her son ever since he had a paper route, says they work well together - usually. 'Once in a while he complains about something I do," she said. "He does a pretty good job. But then again, I do too."

According to Satterfield, clothing store said suspicious persons had folstores are tempting targets because the lowed the same routine at his shop bealarm systems usually are not very elabofore the Christmas night burglary which resulted in the loss of almost $30,000 worth of suits.

In each case, officers responded to an alarm, but were too late.

On Christmas, police found inside the building nine bundles of 10-15 suits each, which the burglars had tied up but left behind.

In addition to clothing-store break-ins, Lubbock police say the men also have hit television shops, and are perpetrators of other crimes such as shoplifting and forgerv

We're beginning a peak of clothingstore burglaries now, and we will have to suppress them (the burglars) for anything we can get," Satterfield commented. The detective, who has been following the group's activities for several years, said there are, however, a few things that store owners can do to perhaps reduce the occurrences.

He advised that members of the group will be visiting the businesses before they hit, and that if suspicious persons are observed, detectives should be notified immediately.

He also suggested that hangers should be placed in alternate directions on racks, and that the merchandise, in some way, be marked so that the garment would have to be damaged to remove the identification.

Investigators also say that few clothing stores, especially those in West Lubbock, put bars - even decorative ones - on windows, and their reluctance helps the break-in artists.

Detectives say they anticipate arrests in the near future, but emphasized that prompt notification of the "casing" phase of the set-up is the most crucial factor in the investigations.

than a week before the break-in.

Avalanche-Journal Staff The Urban Renewal Agency here is now able to approve local applications for housing rehabilitation loans as a result of action by the City Council Thursday

Formerly applications for the loans, termed 312 loans, had to be sent to the Department of Housing and Urban Development regional office in Dallas for approval.

By giving Urban Renewal the power to approve the loan applications, the paperwork and waiting period is reduced. Orville Alderson, Urban Renewal director, HUD encouraged Urban Renewal to go ahead with getting local control of approvals, Alderson said. "They trust us now." he said.

Alderson believes exercising local control will possibly allow Urban Renewal to do a better job, and will enable the agency to keep better track of delinquent payments on loans.

The money for the loans will still come from HUD, and the financing is administered by Plains National Bank. The maximum possible loan is $27,000 with an interest rate on all loans of three percent. The loan can be repaid over a 20-year period. The maximum 312 loan in the local area was $18,400, while the average loan is about $12,000, Alderson said.

There are no income restrictions on getting a loan when loan money is abundant, but when the money is in short supply the loans are generally restricted to lower income applicants, E.R. McGee, director of the rehabilitation department of Urban Renewal, said.

Alderson said owner/occupants get the top priority in the loan applications, but under certain conditions a landlord not living on the property may also be eligi-

An owner/occupant may live in one of as many as four housing units - leasing out the other three units - in order to qualify for the loan, Alderson said. But he added that a landlord not living on the premises has yet to receive a 312 loan, because of a regional rule.

Region VI of HUD covers Texas, New Mexico, Louisiana; Arkansas and Oklahoma, and it has its own rules independent of the national office.

One of these rules states that unless investor-owned loans made from Community Development funds are also involved with landlord property rehabilitation, the landlords are not eligible for 312

"The money is not supposed to be used with anything that is not done with Community Development money," McGee said.

The money is repaid on a basis of what the applicant can pay each month. The maximum time is 20 years, but many loans are repaid in less time, officials said. A contract is drawn up like a bank loan: monthly payments, number of months and final total.

There are no delinquencies now, Alderson said. A debtor is not considered delinquent in his payments until the payments are three months overdue.

Asked what he did to discourage delinquent payments on the loans, Alderson smiled and said "counseling."

Low Temperatures Pose Danger To Old People

WASHINGTON (AP) - Turning down thermostats is becoming an increasingly popular means of saving energy, but the National Institute on Aging warns that it may spell danger for some older persons.

The hazard is accidental hypothermia, a drop in body temperature which can be fa-

Inadequate heating, combined with an inability to respond normally to cold, preents the major danger, officials said. But they added that even at temperatures as high as 60 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit, accidental hypothermia can happen.

The people most vulnerable are those over 65 years of age, particularly if they have a disease of the veins or arteries, are taking certain medications or have body temperature regulating systems which don't work properly.

The Institute on Aging says the only sure way to detect the condition is with a speial low-reading thermometer, which can record temperatures below the usual cutoff of 94 degrees. But, they say, if you shake a regular thermometer as low as 94, and the suspected victim's temperature doesn't move it above that level, you should call a doctor immediately.

Other signs to watch for include:

- Most victims do not shiver.

- Low blood pressure may occur, or irreglar or slowed heartbeat, slurred speech, drowsiness or slow breathing

Most victims seem unaware of the cold.

The City Council had requested at a joint meeting in December, 1977, that the chamber directors consider a new election process that they recommended to the business organization

In previous years, the City Council and the chamber had two separate slates of five candidates each to fill places on the Board of City Development every two vears

In the new process, the City Council and a chamber nominating committee will meet and jointly select a slate of five candidates for the Board of City Development places.

The chamber directors voted to appoint retiring directors as the chamber's nominating committee members. If a retiring director cannot attend the joint meeting with the City Council, he will be replaced by an officer of the chamber.

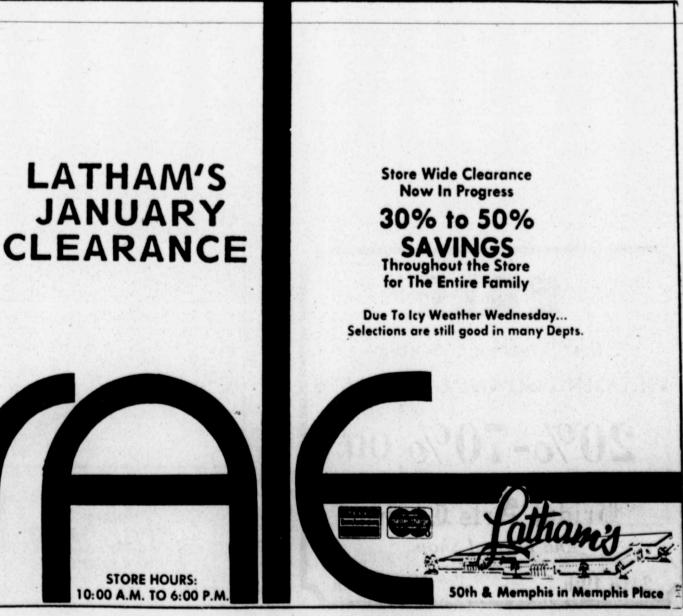

The chamber directors voted to try the new election process on a trial, one-timeonly basis, rather than commit the chamber permanently to the new process.

The action by the chamber director Thursday on the new election process vas taken after a round-table discussion by individual members. A motion was made to table action on the new election process and appoint a committee to study the process, but it was defeated by a majority vote of the directors.

The directors also voted to appoint a liaison committee to educate the public about industrial revenue bonds, which will be the subject of a constitutional amendment to be put before Texas voters in the fall.

John Logan, executive director of the chamber, said surrounding states use the industrial revenue bonds to build facilities for new businesses. He added that inability to do this has hurt the state and Lubbock in recruiting new businesses. The board also voted to use the chamber's facilities for the organization's activities only, adopted budgets for the year for the chamber and the Board of City Development, approved a parking lot addendum to the Urban Renewal Agency's lease on the old chamber facility and approved an advertising contract on the radio broadcast of Texas Tech University basketball games

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise

For years I have struggled endlessly with the under-the-sink garbage container. Recently I hit upon the most satisfactory container yet.

I purchased an oblong dishpan with cut-out handles. It holds a large-sized grocery bag perfectly. No squashing to make it fit

Once a week I use the same dishpan to scrub the floor. The mop fits easily and if I do the floor on my hands and knees, the handles make it easy to pull around.

It's not as tall as a pail therefore it is easier to reach into. - Frances Kenny North's jump to four spades was designed to show just about what his hand was. A spade raise based on trumps and a club suit but with nothing in the other suits and probably at least two quick losers in hearts.

It was in no sense a slam try, but South had a perfectly good opening spade bid without his ace of hearts. He might well have Blackwooded his way to a slam, but that action would be hanging his partner in the event that he did not hold both ace and king of clubs. So, South invited the slam by bidding five hearts to show that ace

This bid was right up North's alley. He didn't want to try for seven, but he felt that six would be a sound contract and bid it.

The slam was a good one, but really bad breaks would have led to its defeat. South won the heart lead, saw no better line of play than to go after trumps and did just that.

Suggestions Offered To Protect Gardens

By EARL ARONSON AP Newsfeatures

During the winter, your garden, shrubs and other plants need protection from animals, snow, cold and drought.

Here are some suggestions for helping your garden through the winter.

Protect the tender bark of young trees against mice and other gnawing rodents. You can use an easy tree wrap available at garden shops. Or wrap stems with metal screen, hardware cloth, roofing paper or aluminum foil

First clear grass and other debris from the base of plantings. Then make sleeves of protective materials about 18 inches high for young tender tree trunks, making sure the wraps are at least an inch into the soil and above the snow line.

Rabbits may be discouraged by repellent sprays but you will probably have to reapply them several times during the winter

Snow falling from roofs can seriously damage landscape evergreens. Protect them against winter breakage with covering cages, or by winding twine around to hold branches together

Evergreens may suffer sunscald, especially if close to a white house. To ease this danger, frame with a shield of burlap stretched around wooden posts.

Mulching after the ground has crusted with frost will help prevent mice and other rodents from building homes in perennial beds. Hay and straw are suitable materials.

An overturned basket is large enough to protect some peonies, hydrangeas, azaleas and roses. Put straw on the ground and stuff it into the basket for insulation. Prune back tops of rose bushes that may sway in the wind and mulch with hay, straw, evergreen boughs or leaves.

Pine branches laid over rhododendrons will help them survive in exposed places. Stakes to support young trees are advisable in exposed areas You can't do much about winter but you can consider it when preparing to plant. For instance, plant where drving sun and wind won't be a major problem. Don't plant where salt spread for ice control could damage landscape plants. And select plants that are hardy and healthy enough to survive the rugged weather of your locale.

A regular program of pruning, watering, fertilizing and pest and disease control is beneficial.

prune to remove weak crotches and dead or broken branches than to wait for wind or ice to break them.

ground freezes. You must remember that they lose water through their leaves or needles in winter

Store Pesticides

To protect youngsters and pets, store pesticides properly. This will also maintain the effectiveness of the contents and guard against breakage of containers and is that plant debris breeds disease. Debris should be eliminated in autumn to reduce a problem in the spring. Get rid of all plant tops and garden refuse, especially if there has been wilt and dieback that may be due to soil-borne fungus.

As one expert told us, it is better to Water evergreens well before the

Beautiful flowers make beautiful designs on stamps.

Many collectors specialize in this particular topic providing enjoyment from an esthetic as well as philatelic sense. For such collectors, the latest definitive set from The Gambia, featuring brilliantly colored flora seen in that area, is a welcome addition.

The lowest value depicts the "glory bower," a twining shrub with large, leathery leaves. Between the leaves are bright scarlet flowers. Another stamp shows the white water lilv. A third illustrates the "nymphae," a tropical water plant sometimes referred to as the sacred lotus. A fourth adhesive pictures the fireball lily, a bulbous plant with lovely flowering clusters. The cocks-comb with tubular yellow flowers and orange centers appears on a middle value. The ground orchid, having six to 12 flowers each, is seen on still another stamp

Also featured on the higher values are the fibre plant, the false kapok, the giant boabob, the coral tree, the gloriosa lily, the bell-flowered mimosa, the kindin dolo, and the African tulip tree. These new stamps are available at your Launching of Sputnik I, the first earth satellite, is the subject of Milestone of Flight 56, the latest in the continuing series of commemorative covers sponsored by the National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution. The cacheted cover was postmarked Oct. 4, the 20th anniversary of the launching in the Soviet Union.

The cover sells for $1.25 and can be ordered directly from: Milestone of Flight, National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. 20560. Remittance should be made to the Smithsonian Institution. Enclose a large self-addressed envelope for return of your cover.

All former military personnel who served overseas will recall vivid memories of mail call via APO and FPO stations. Sometimes the mail was long in coming, but it has taken quite a few years for the announcement of the closing of the Army and Fleet Post Offices in Hawaii and Alaska, now that they are states in the Union. Mail deliveries to the military in these former overseas locations have been taken over by the U.S. Postal Service.

Painting Methods Differ

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Q. - When I get ready to paint the outside of my two-story house. I expect to make use of a new extension ladder that someone in my family gave me for Christmas - probably as a hint. I read somewhere that the siding should be done first, then the trim. Doesn't this entail an awful lot of movement of the ladder'

A. - It does. And that's why it is sometimes better to paint both the siding and the trim at the same time, especially if you don't have someone to give you a hand. If you are using different paint for the trim, as is usually the case, this can be rather awkward, so you will have to decide yourself how to handle it. Even professionals differ on how they paint houses, depending partly on the type of structure and partly on the kind of equipment they are using.

Q. - Do I have to put down underlayment sheets on a wooden floor before putting down vinyl asbestos tiles? The floor is in good condition, with no loose beards and no warping.

A. - The general rule of thumb is that the tiles can be placed right on a floor in good condition if it is of double construction (with a top floor and a subfloor) and the boards are 3 inches or less in width. If both of these conditions do not exist. the recommendation is that plywood or hardboard underlayment be used

Q. - I often see the term "tack rag." Can you tell me what it is?

A. - It's a clean cloth moistened with turpentine and then further sprinkled with the varnish which will be used. It should be wrung out until nearly dry and then wiped over the surface to be finished. You can make one or buy one. The use of it insures that the surface of the wood will be thoroughly clean.

Photobiography Depicts Man As Having Unique Qualities

By IRVING DESFOR Associated Press Writer

It takes a gifted and sensitive photographer to focus on an "ordinary man" and produce an extraordinary photobiography of his activities, his thoughts and his

and his work has been acquired by collectors and major institutions throughout the world. He has received National Endowment for the Arts and Guggenheim fellowships and is the author of a halfdozen books. One of them - a documentation of Paterson, N.J. - was awarded the Grand Prix at Arles, France, as the best photography book of 1973. Among Tice's qualities as a photographer is the ability to conceive and undertake such an unlikely project as Artie Van Blarcum ... and make it work. He had first met Artie in 1960 when they were members of rival camera clubs. Their paths crossed intermittently for the next five years at inter-club competitions, salon judgings and annual dinners. Ten years went by before Artie's name came up again in casual conversation and the idea was conceived. Weeks later, it took hold when Tice convinced a skeptical Artie that he was serious. In June 1975, Tice took a camera and tape recorder to Artie's house and became involved in his life for the next seven months, recording his activities and his words. A distillation of the perceptive images of Artie and his conversations was skillfully blended into the book's montage of words and pictures. They each bear the stamp of realism and authenticity. And though each may mirror the ordinary routine of living, the images and words become significant under the spotlight of reproduction and printing. Artie recalls meeting members of the Tri-County Camera Club in the local camera store and being invited to a meeting about 30 years ago. He liked the challenge of monthly contests, joined the club and was hooked when he won a Print-of-the-Month with his first entry. His early efforts were high-contrast, avant-garde pictures that did well at first.

My pictures weren't made to please me." Artie says. "They're tailor-made for the judges. The only trouble is that they don't seem to go for my stuff lately. Whenever I do enter some prints, I hear them whispering in the background: 'Oh, personal passage through life.

This is what George A. Tice has done in "Artie Van Blarcum," a paperback book published by Addison House, Danbury, N H. ($5 95)

Artie is a 52-year-old bachelor who works in a New Jersev factory. He lives with his brother. Billy, in the family home they both grew up in and he has no desire to live anywhere else. The routine of his life has been molded by time into regular slots, committed to work, his hobby of photography, weekends of relaxation and annual two-week vacations at the Jersey shore in the same bungalow his parents rented when he was a child.

On the surface Artie Van Blarcum is a face in the crowd, one whose life is normal, unspectacular, almost humdrum, and as he himself said: "Out of all the interesting people I know, I'm the least interesting. Why would anyone want to do a book about me?"

But as Tice shows us, every person is a unique individual with universal qualities that reflect one's individuality and one's universality. Or as Tice put it simply: There's only one Artie Van Blarcum, but I've also discovered there's a bit of Artie in all of us."

George Tice, who also was born and now lives in New Jersey, has an international reputation as a photographer. He has been honored with an exhibition at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art

Refugee Fashions Show For Asians

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A refugee who was once the top movie star in Vietnam is running a local radio show tailored for other refugees from Indochina with the help of a U.S. government grant.

Doan Chau Mau has been looking for work since he came to this country two years ago. The only part offered him was in Frances Ford Coppola's "Apocalypse Now," but Doan turned that down. Then the Union of Pan-Asian Communities voted to sponsor Doan's idea of a radio show last fall.

He does a 30-minute spot every Saturday morning on station KPBS.

We have 17 or 18 minutes for the Vietnamese, seven minutes for the Lao and five minutes for Cambodia," the Doan said recently.

In the Vietnamese segment, he gives a commentary or interview - avoiding politics - then he delivers news about the Vietnamese community in Southern California.

The third part consists of a song, usually an old, traditional song from Vietnam theater. Doan then pres mts a short drama about a family of refugees living in the United States.

a management of the second second

Artie's trying to make a comeback. I don't compete much in the club anymore

Artie then became a contributor to international salons and was working on his second star for accepted entries when he stopped. He explains why

"You have to pay the entry fee, plus postage. At one time you could mail the prints at a reduced rate. All you had to do was write on the shipping case: 'Educational Material - No Commercial Value.' But the post office put a stop to that. I might have been a famous photographer ... if it wasn't for that darn postage.

Artie did achieve fame in his camera club in another area - as refreshment chairman. Despite once cooking cockroaches in the coffee, he received a trophy for 25 years of service to the members at an annual awards dinner.

And so Artie Van Blarcum emerges from the pages of a book, a man who could be your neighbor. After finishing the book, he becomes your friend, a character fleshed out by still pictures and printed quotes.

Publication of the book by Addison House brought a further measure of fame because it was celebrated with a monthlong double exhibition of photographs at Witkin Gallery in mid-Manhattan. A selection of George Tice's photos of Artie Van Blarcum went on display along with a group of Artie's own images. Copies of the book, autographed by both Tice and Artie are available. Write to: Witkin Gallery, 41 E. 57th St., New York, NY 10022.

collectors who are inexperienced in the hobby and have acquired old stamps, I offer the following suggestions:

1. - If the stamps are on original envelopes, do not place in water to soak off the stamps, unless you have the assistance of an experienced collector. You may ruin the stamps and spoil the fun. 2. - If the stamps are creased, do not attempt to straighten out the adhesives, otherwise you may damage the stamp. By the same token, do not fold a stamped envelope because this will definitely decrease the value

3. - If the stamps are in sheets or blocks, do not tear off one or two for mailing or to place in different albums. Sheets and blocks are more valuable in their original form. 4 - When in doubt about condition or value, show your stamp to a dealer in your area or check with a second dealer if available

New Home Prices Show Slight Drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The average price of a new, single-family home has declined for the first time in two years, says the Census Bureau.

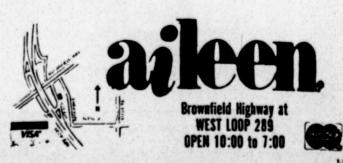

The latest statistics on home purchases released by the bureau Monday said the average price across the nation of a new home sold during the third quarter of last year was $54,000

That is $300 - or 0.6 percent - below the second quarter level. It was the first quarterly drop since the 0.9 percent decrease in the third quarter of 1975 when the average cost of a new home was $42.-200

To further demonstrate the upward climb of housing costs, Census said the price dip during 1977's third quarter was only the second since the final quarter of

ROUNDUP

Livestock Show To Begin Sunday

A-J Correspondent TULIA-The annual Swisher County Livestock Show is scheduled Sunday through Tuesday at the Tule Lake show barns. Monday's activities include lamb judging at 8 a.m. and barrow judging at 1 p.m. Steer judging is slated at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Stock judges will be Storm Gerhardt, Rogers, N.M. rancher; John Menzies, Fort Stockton's extension agent; and Mack Heald, Farwell's extension agent. The show is sponsored by the Swisher County Activities Association.

Chamber Airs Election Results

A-J Correspondent

TULIA - Ronnie George of George & Barnett Inc., has been elected president of the Tulia Chamber of Commerce for the new year. Other officers are Dick Shackelford, vice-president, and Tom Davey, secretary-treasurer.

New officers will be installed at the March 10 chamber banquet.

Big Spring Traffic Accidents Down

A-J COrrespondent BIG SPRING - Traffic accidents for the year 1977 in Big Spring were down by almost 300 as compared with 1976.

A total of 1,258 accidents were reported during 1977, down from 1,552 in 1976. Accidents resulting in injuries to drivers or passengers dropped from 217 to 150

"Anytime you have a reduction of almost 300 accidents, 70 fewer injuries and 100 fewer people hurt, you have to be pleased," said police Capt. Sherill Farmer, head of traffic control.

Farmer believes that the Selective Traffic Enforcement Porgram (STEP), is responsible for the lower accident rate. Under the program, officers concentrate their energies on high accident, heavy violation areas in the city.

Other statistics show that the number of persons injured in accidents dropped from 301 to 194, and the number of fatalities decreased from 4 to 3.

Helmer Named Deputy Commander

CLOVIS (Special) - Col. Donald E. Helmer is the new deputy commander for resources for the 27th Tactical Fighter Wing at Cannon Air Force Base. The South Dakota native replaced Col. Manford C. Holly Jr. who retired in December

Helmer, who joined the Air Force as a private in 1951 and received his wings and commission in 1953, has logged more than 5,000 hours in an assortment of aircraft including 375 combat hours in the O-1 reconnaisance aircraft in Vietnam

The new DCR's assignments have included flight commander at RAF Lakenheath, United Kingdom, and DCR duties at Osan AB in Korea.

Superintendent's Contract Extended

A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS - In recent action, the board of trustees of Childress Independent School District considered and extended the contract of Supt. Glen Lowrance

The contract was extended for one year, making it effective for a period of three years. In addition, the superintendent was granted a salary increase as well as more travel and mileage allowances.

Contracts of principals and the athletic director are to be reviewed at the next regular meeting of the board.

Members of the board will attend a special meeting set for Monday, at which time bids for the Wilson Elementary School and its grounds will be opened. In other action, the board recently hired Marilyn Lambert Brewer as business instructor at Childress High School. The election for the board of trustees has been called for the first Saturday in April. Herbert Cliff was named election judge, and he has been granted permission to appoint the necessary clerks. The voting box will be at junior high school, and polls will be open from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. Absentee ballots may be cast at the school admininistration building. Mrs. Linda Esty was named absentee clerk, and Mrs. Jo Brown will be depu

Two places on the board of trustees are open, posts four and five. They are now held by Derrill Nippert and Mrs. Shirley Hassell.

Experts Observe Russian Flu

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's flu experts seemed to agree Thursday that this fall's influenza vaccine should contain protection against Russian flu that has swept across the Soviet Union recently

Dr. Walter Dowdle, a government virologist with the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said the Russian flu strain likely will strike at least some Americans next season. But he said it's impossible to predict whether an epidemic will sweep this country as it has the Soviet Union. Dowdle, who just returned from a flu conference at the World Health Organization (WHO) in Geneva, briefed some 75 medical and scientific experts at the National Institutes of Health. He said that WHO is predicting Russian flu epidemics will spread to some other nations during the upcoming flu season that begins this fall

Rate Case May Go To Supreme Court

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Supreme Court took no immediate action Thursday on Southwestern Bell Telephone's request that a Feb. 8 hearing be held on the company's appeal of 1976 rates set by the Public Utility Commission.

Court officials said the appeals records were still in the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals which refused a rehearing on the case earlier this month.

In the motion filed late Wednesday, Southwestern Bell said the court's interpretation of the legislative act which established the Public Utility Commission's regulation of telephone, electric, water and sewer companies and the Railroad Commission's regulations of gas companies was needed by every utility in Texas.

The company also asked the supreme court to suspend the PUC rate order and allow the company to set new rates.

The motion contends the rates set by the Public Utility Commission are confiscatory because they do not allow the company to earn properly on its investment in Texas. The company said it is losing hundreds of thousands of dollars each day in revenues because of inadequate rates.

On Dec. 7 the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals upheld the right of the PUC to limit Southwestern Bell to $57.8 million in rate increases instead of the $230.8 million originally asked. However, the court held that Southwestern Bell had the right present new evidence in a district court hearing concerning its allegation the rates are confiscatory.

The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals refused Jan. 4 to reconsider its opinion.

ed that nations prepare a vaccine to protect against Russian flu and the less severe B Hong Kong strain that caused widespread outbreaks among American school children last year.

The U.S. Public Health Service called the meeting of American experts Thursday to discuss plans for next year because manufacturers must know soon what vaccine will be needed and how much to produce in order to prepare for the upcoming flu season

Dr. Paul Parkman of the Food and Drug Administration's biologic bureau suggested there was general agreement on inclusion of a vaccine against Russian flu in whatever program is developed for next year, and there were no dissenters.

It was not clear, however, what recomendations would come out of the meting regarding vaccines for the B Hong Kong strain or the A-Victoria and A-Texas strains which have caused widespread outbreaks in the Eastern states in recent weeks.

The so-called Russian flu is an A-type virus which is related to a flu strain that caused a widespread epidemic in the United States in 1947. As a result, the part of the population exposed to the 1947 strain during the epidemic or in subsequent years before it disappeared from the world 24 years ago is likely to have at least some immunity to the new Soviet strain

People who got the swine flu shot during the ill-fated national flu vaccination campaign last year also gained some immunity to Russian flu, health officials said.

But officials said Americans under 24, who weren't born in time to build up immunity to the 1947 virus and who generally escaped swine flu vaccination last year, run the greatest risk of contacting Russian flu.

Flu shots this year contain vaccine against the A-Victoria strain which also generally provides protection against the closely related A-Texas flu, and vaccine to protect against the Hong Kong flu.

Last spring, the flu experts agreed the combination shot should be made available to physicians but recommended that it be given primarily to the aged and chronically ill.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Steven Seymour, the interpreter who misinterpreted President Carter's remarks in Poland, is bout to receive a hand-written thankyou letter from the president.

Seymour, a free-lance translator who is paid $150 a day for his services, has been criticized for changing the connotation of ome of Carter's remarks at the Warsaw airport on Dec. 29.

When a written warranty is provided on consumer products costing more than $15. it must be available for you to look at before you buy. There are two kinds of written warranties - full and limited. A product can have more than one written warranty For example, it can have a full warranty on part of the product and a limited warranty on the rest

The label "full" on a warranty means that -A defective product will be fixed (or replaced) free, -It will be fixed within a reasonable time after you complain. -You will not have to do anything unreasonable to get warranty service (such as ship a piano to the factory).

-The warranty is good for anyone who owns the product during the warranty period

-If the product can't be fixed (or hasn't been after a reasonable number of tries), you get your choice of a replacement or refund.

There is one important thing the word "full" doesn't promise. A "ful" warranty does not have to cover the whole product. It may cover ony part of the product, such as the picture tuve of a T.V.; it may leave out some parts, such as tires on a car

A warranty is "limited" if it gives you anything less than what a full warranty gives. "Limited" on a warranty should tell you to read it with extra care something is missing. For example, a 'limited" warranty may: -Cover only parts, no labor.

-Allow only a pro-rata refund or cred-it. This means you get a smaller refund or credit the longer you have had the prod-

-Require you to return a heavy product to the store for service.

-Cover only the first purchaser. -Include a charge for handling.

Don't let the terms warranty and guarantee confuse you. Where a product warranty is concerned, they mean the same thing — a promise by a manufacturer or a seller to stand behind a product. Remember, however, that what a warranty promises can vary greatly. Compare product warranties before you pay. The Federal Trade Commission enforces the Warrant Act. Free copies of the law and a pamphlet are available from: Federal Trade Commission, Legal and PUblic Records, Room 130, Washington, D.C. 20580.

World's Largest Farm Group Opposes Nationwide Strike

By United Press International

The world's largest farm organization went on record Thursday opposing a nationwide farm strike for higher prices while Vice President Walter Mondale told Western grain farmers there could be no overnight solution to their problems.

Shortly after Mondale told farmers in Pullman, Wash., not to expect the federal government to come up with "a magic wand" to solve their problems, delegates at an American Farm Bureau Federation meeting in Houston voted for a mildly worded statement opposing the monthold farm strike.

The action angered some farm members, who had hoped the federation would become more active in the American Agriculture strike movement. The federation claims to be the largest farm organization in the world with more than 2.8 million members.

A statement approved by the federation said any long-lasting improvement in farm incomes "must ze achieved through market prices obtained in the market place and must not be dictated by government or arbitrarily set by individuals or a group of individuals."

Farm Bureau Denounces English Teaching Grant

HOUSTON (AP) -The American Farm Bureau Federation denounced Friday a $500,000 federal grant to teach English to migrant workers as means of "partisan indoctrination" by Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers Union.

The resolution, introduced by the California delegation to the annual national convention, referred to a recent announcement by Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall that Chavez would receive $500,000 to teach English to migrant workers.

"This is another transparent effort on the part of federal officials to use tax funds to assist the United Farm Workers to organize farm workers in California and other states," the resolution said.

"The United Farm Workers organization has been engaged in violence, secondary boycotts, and other disruptive acts against farmers, farmworkers and farm markets. We cannot believe this award of public monies...can serve the advancement of language skills beyond the partisan indoctrination of hundreds of Mexican-Americans to join the Chavez movement and to prepare for militant action against our market agriculture." The farm bureau, which says it represents 2.8 million farm families throughout the nation and produces 80 percent of the nation's crops, also adopted a watered-down amendment concerning the proposed strike and demonstrations by some farmers, protesting low prices and rising costs

The resolution expressed sympathy for the farmers, but added, "as an organization we cannot legally endorse any form of agreement or understanding which limits the marketing of commodities or controls the prices to be obtained for such commodities without violating the antitrust laws and subjecting itself and its members to severe criminal and civil penalties."

Several Texas farmers said they were sympathetic to plight of striking farmers, but believed the demonstrators were hurting their cause.

Carrol Chaloupka of Dalhart, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, said if the demonstration becomes violent "and causes damage to property, I think it will injure the good feeling the public has toward the farmer.

The delegates also adopted a "spirit of this convention" resolution which expressed sympathy, concern and understanding of the seriousness of the farm income crisis.

But, the resolution stated, "We urge that all national and state Farm Bureau officials and staffs rededicate their efforts and talents to improvement of farm prices as a top priority. We believe the means to do this are contained in the policies and abilities of this organization."

The delegates also adopted scores of other resolutions touching everything from poultry to pesticides and from energy to environmental protection. The convention also asked that the

The trade association called the big jump in heavy-duty truck sales "a strong sign by business that it is investing in equipment that provides jobs."

The figures were compiled from the nation's 10 major truck manufacturers, including the Big Three automakers, American Motors Corp., International Harvester, White Motor, Paccar Inc., Walter Motor Truck, Freightliner and Mack following a spate of violence. But the murders stretch throughout California.

Investigators say many of those murdered were either gang members or independent drug dealers who had refused the 'Mexican Mafia' demand for a piece of the action.

But Ellen Delia, found in Sacramento last Feb. 17, shot 3 times in the head, fit neither category. Her murder brought the 'Mexican Mafia' to the attention of the public because, as one officer put it, 'she seemed to be a normal person.'

Mrs. Delia, who worked in a halfway house in East Los Angeles, was shot to death hours before a meeting she had scheduled to tell state officials about fraud and corruption in federally funded social projects.

The Sacramento County prosecutor. John O'Mara, told the grand jury that she was killed because she knew too much about the 'Mexican Mafia.' Four men, including Mrs. Delia's estranged husband. Michael Delian who ran the project, have been charged with the murder

The 'Mexican Mafia' doesn't have strong family ties and an "honor they father" tradition. It is simply a group of men who got together in prison and stayed together when they got out. Most are in their 20s or early 30s. Although 'Mexican Mafia' is the group's own term, they usually refer to themselves as "La Emen" for the Spanish letter 'M.' Many wear tattoos of 'MM," "La Eme" or "VEME." Police have a photo of one member with the words "Mexican Mafia" tattooed across his chest.

"Guys don't wear shirts much in prison Fresno alone has had 18 gang killings and the tattoos serve a purpose," one of-the outside it backfires on them by letting us know who they are.

One intelligence officer says, "Some people in East Los Angeles think the use of the term is an insult to all Chicanos, but people there should be aware the Mexican Mafia' does exist."

Along with controlling drug traffic, a major goal of the 'Mexican Mafia,' officials say, is infiltration of the federally funded social projects, as in the Delia case. Many of the projects try to rehabilitate ex-convicts.

"The ex-convict comes into the programs as a clint and, because of his expertise in the barrio, he later gets hired as a counselor," says one officer. "Eventually, he becomes management and has a say as to where the grant money goes. There is very little accountability in these programs. Money disappears and nobody knows where it went.'

Officials say two East Los Angeles projects, Community Concern and Delia's Get Going, were infiltrated. The City Council ordered Get Going shut down after Delia's arrest, and Councilman Arthur Snyder has waged a personal battle to halt funding of Community Concern. Snyder persuaded the city council to disgualify Community Concern for $300,-000 in federal funds. Shortly afterwards. Snyder said he received a death threat and was given armed police protection. Snyder also enrolled in a police firearms course. He now packs a gun and says crossing swords with the 'Mexican Mafia' "makes it a great deal harder to sleep at night.'

officer. "He had a lot more foresight than most on these guys."

In 1972, Cadena was stabbed to death in a prison battle with the rival gang, the Nuestra Familia. Now there are songs and poems about him, and 'Mexican Mafia' members have been known to have their picture taken at his grave as soon as they get out of prison.

But the deadly fighting between the two gangs has continued. 'Mexican Mafia' members are primarily urban, while Nuestra Familia members come from rural areas in the San Joaquin Valley.

State officials say half to two-thirds of the killings in prison are gang related and most are due to warfare between the Nuestra Familia and the 'Mexican Mafia.' They try to keep the gangs apart by sending 'Mafia' inmates to Folsom or San Quentin prisons and Familia members to Soledad or Deuel Vocational Institute at Tracy.

"We have some obligation to keep the guy from getting killed," says Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the Corrections Department

There is a small state task force to provide intelligence on the gang, but the local agencies must provide the muscle. On Sept. 6, following the threats against Snyder, a $39,000 bank robbery and evidence of increased drug traffic, Los Angeles police announced a new war on the 'Mexican Mafia.' Police Cmdr. Ray Ruddell told reporters that Police Chief Ed Davis wants to "put them out of business and that's exactly what we're going to do.

Though Morgan is a leader, officials say, the 'Mexican Mafia' is a one-man, one-vote democracy. Certain members have more respect, but there is no rigid hierarchy. The Nuestra Familia, on the other hand, is run like the military.

One law enforcement official believes the democratic organization of the 'Mexican Mafia' cuts its effectiveness.

"They're kind of stumbling over each other to get the job done," he says. "Once they develop a board of directors. there's no stopping them." So far neither the 'Mexican Mafia' nor the Nuestra Familia has gone in for assassinating politicians or shooting police. But one officer said, "I hear they have particular animosity toward Chicano enforcement. Anybody who says he's la not afraid is a fool."

This officer says the gang knows him. They even know what I look like. I talked to one of them who told me the description of me is perfect - a big. fat. ugly Mexican."

But he adds, "Cops are tough, man. You put one down and 10 more will stand up to take his place."

World's Largest Farm Group Opposes Nationwide Strike

By United Press International

The world's largest farm organization went on record Thursday opposing a nationwide farm strike for higher prices while Vice President Walter Mondale told Western grain farmers there could be no overnight solution to their problems.

Shortly after Mondale told farmers in Pullman, Wash., not to expect the federal government to come up with "a magic wand" to solve their problems, delegates at an American Farm Bureau Federation meeting in Houston voted for a mildly worded statement opposing the monthold farm strike.

The action angered some farm members, who had hoped the federation would become more active in the American Agriculture strike movement. The federation claims to be the largest farm organization in the world with more than 2.8 million members.

A statement approved by the federation said any long-lasting improvement in farm incomes "must ze achieved through market prices obtained in the market place and must not be dictated by government or arbitrarily set by individuals or a group of individuals.

Farm Bureau Denounces English Teaching Grant

HOUSTON (AP) -The American Farm Bureau Federation denounced Friday a $500,000 federal grant to teach English to migrant workers as means of "partisan indoctrination" by Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers Union.

The resolution, introduced by the California delegation to the annual national convention, referred to a recent announcement by Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall that Chavez would receive $500,000 to teach English to migrant workers.

"This is another transparent effort on the part of federal officials to use tax funds to assist the United Farm Workers to organize farm workers in California and other states," the resolution said.

"The United Farm Workers organization has been engaged in violence, secondary boycotts, and other disruptive acts against farmers, farmworkers and farm markets. We cannot believe this award of public monies...can serve the advancement of language skills beyond the partisan indoctrination of hundreds of Mexican-Americans to join the Chavez movement and to prepare for militant action against our market agriculture." The farm bureau, which says it represents 2.8 million farm families throughout the nation and produces 80 percent of the nation's crops, also adopted a watered-down amendment concerning the proposed strike and demonstrations by some farmers, protesting low prices and rising costs.

The resolution expressed sympathy for the farmers, but added, "as an organization we cannot legally endorse any form of agreement or understanding which limits the marketing of commodities or controls the prices to be obtained for such commodities without violating the antitrust laws and subjecting itself and its members to severe criminal and civil penalties.

Several Texas farmers said they were sympathetic to plight of striking farmers, but believed the demonstrators were hurting their cause.

Carrol Chaloupka of Dalhart, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, said if the demonstration becomes violent "and causes damage to property, I think it will injure the good feeling the public has toward the farmer.

The delegates also adopted a "spirit of this convention" resolution which expressed sympathy, concern and understanding of the seriousness of the farm income crisis."

But, the resolution stated, "We urge that all national and state Farm Bureau officials and staffs rededicate their efforts and talents to improvement of farm prices as a top priority. We believe the means to do this are contained in the policies and abilities of this organization.

The delegates also adopted scores of other resolutions touching everything from poultry to pesticides and from energy to environmental protection. The convention also asked that the 'Me have intensified their war on the gang following a spate of violence. But the murders stretch throughout California.

Investigators say many of those murdered were either gang members or independent drug dealers who had refused the 'Mexican Mafia' demand for a piece of the action But Ellen Delia, found in Sacramento last Feb. 17, shot 3 times in the head, fit neither category. Her murder brought the 'Mexican Mafia' to the attention of the public because, as one officer put it, "she seemed to be a normal person."

Mrs. Delia, who worked in a halfway house in East Los Angeles, was shot to death hours before a meeting she had scheduled to tell state officials about fraud and corruption in federally funded social projects.

The Sacramento County prosecutor, John O'Mara, told the grand jury that she was killed because she knew too much about the 'Mexican Mafia.' Four men, including Mrs. Delia's estranged husband. Michael Delian who ran the project, have been charged with the murder.

The 'Mexican Mafia' doesn't have strong family ties and an "honor they father" tradition. It is simply a group of men who got together in prison and stayed together when they got out. Most are in their 20s or early 30s. Although 'Mexican Mafia' is the group's own term, they usually refer to themselves as "La Emen" for the Spanish letter 'M.' Many wear tattoos of "MM," "La Eme" or "VEME." Police have a photo of one member with the words "Mexican Mafia" tattooed across his chest

"Guys don't wear shirts much in prison Fresno alone has had 18 gang killings and the tattoos serve a purpose," one ofsince last fall and in Los Angeles, police ficer says "If you see one of those tattoos

the outside it backfires on them by letting us know who they are."

One inteiligence officer says, "Some people in East Los Angeles think the use of the term is an insult to all Chicanos, but people there should be aware the 'Mexican Mafia' does exist."

Along with controlling drug traffic, a major goal of the 'Mexican Mafia,' officials say, is infiltration of the federally funded social projects, as in the Delia case. Many of the projects try to rehabilitate ex-convicts.

"The ex-convict comes into the programs as a clint and, because of his expertise in the barrio, he later gets hired as a counselor," says one officer. "Eventually, he becomes management and has a say as to where the grant money goes. There is very little accountability in these programs. Money disappears and nobody knows where it went."

Officials say two East Los Angeles projects, Community Concern and Delia's Get Going, were infiltrated. The City Council ordered Get Going shut down after Delia's arrest, and Councilman Arthur Snyder has waged a personal battle to halt funding of Community Concern.

Snyder persuaded the city council to disqualify Community Concern for $300,-000 in federal funds. Shortly afterwards, Snyder said he received a death threat and was given armed police protection. Snyder also enrolled in a police firearms course. He now packs a gun and says crossing swords with the 'Mexican Mafia' "makes it a great deal harder to sleep at night.

Describing U.S. television as a giant branch of big business, Kolesnichenko wrote: "Like a magician with his bag of tricks, television offers the viewer advertisements for the food he should buy today in the supermarket and ends by giving him a point of view on life."

Kolesnicheko gave two examples of "stereotypes and myths of the American way of life" sold over television.

The first one: "America is a land of big opportunities. All you need is luck and persistence

He said this myth is fostered by game shows such as "Let's Make a Deal" in which "you are indoctrinated that within a couple of hours you can make $10, $20, $25.000" just by using your wits.

The second myth, said Kolesnichenko, is that all Americans are equal and blacks live "rather well "

He said this notion is perpetuated by coverage of the few rich members of minorities, such as boxers and singers, and by ethnic comedy shows depicting a happy life for the "good Negro."

Kolesnichenko also criticized "Kojak" and "Charlie's Angels" as too violent, and adventure series showing U.S. intelligence agents saving the world from villains from behind the Iron Curtain.

"Spectators are indoctrinated that all the intrigues in the world are caused by the socialist countries," he said, while the "noble knights" of the Central Intelligence Agency ride to th

"Just like the sun never used to set on the British Empire," Palmer said. "It now never sets on the international foreign exchange market."

Similar scenes were repeated in this room scores of times one morning this week as traders around the world bought and sold money in deals that have pushed the U.S. dollar to record lows against many currencies them for 40 cents and pick them up at 35.-Palmer said. "If you're right 51 percent of the time you're doing a good job." Palmer, a 50-year-old Englishman who crossed the Atlantic 21/2 years ago to escape the ravages of high taxes and inflation, is a vice president and chief of the

Banks around the world, linked by instantaneous teletype and computer com-

'They're trying to buy apples at 35 cents and sell them for 40 cents, or sell

The foreign exchange market has been in turmoil for the past week and a half, as traders around the world try to figure out what the U.S. government is doing. Ten days ago, Washington stopped sitting by while the dollar eroded in value against other currencies, and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York stepped in to buy dollars to support the cuuurrency's sagging price.

That decision, combined with an announcement late last Friday that the discount rate, or the interest rate the Federal Reserve charges on loans to member banks, was being raised, halted the dollar's slide. But many experts say that's only temporary.

Nobody really knows what's going on," said Palmer. "No one knows what the Carter administration wants the dollar to be worth and no one knows what the market will think it should be."

The dollar has been slipping in value for more than a year, the greatest erosion coming against the Japanese yen, which has gained nearly 18 percent against the dollar. America's economic perform-munications deal in currencies for two ance, particularly this nation's voracious appetite for foreign oil that contributed basic reasons-to provide foreign currento a trade deficit of about $27 billion last cies needed by companies doing business overseas and to make money for themyear, is blamed for the dollar's decline.

As the dollar shrinks in value, foreign products sold in the U.S. become less competitive with domestic goods. And U.S. exports become more competitive in foreign markets. But America tourists find that their dollars buy less overseas.

The foreign exchange market follows the sun around the world, opening with the beginning of the business day in the Far Eastern trading centers of Tokyo, Hong Kong and Singapore. It travels westward to the Oil-rich Middle East nation of Bahrain, on to Europe, which is the heart of the market. Across the Atlantic to New York. On to San Francisco and

Los Angeles. Back to the Orient. The busiest trading time is in the morning on the U.S. East Coast-which is when the business day in New York and Europe overlaps.

As the trading day circles the globe, the price of major currencies fluctuates according to whether dealers want to buy or sell them. The price also reflects government actions that are perceived as good or bad for the value of a currency, and announcements of economic trends or developments, such as Washington's decision to come to the aid of the faltering dollar. We had two traders in here at 3 o'clock in the morning our time-8 o'clock European time-the next day to watch trading in Europe and Bahrain," he said of the U.S. move to support the dollar. "We normally have someone here by 6 o'clock Palmer shifted his weight on the windowsill overlooking Manhattan's bustling financial district, peered over the shoulder of a trader with a telephone at his ear and checked a computer display terminal showing the latest exchange rates for dollars, pounds, ven, marks and francs.

'The dollar's holding," he said in a soft, precise British accent. "The market's a little quiet, people are trying to figure out what's going on.'

The traders working for Palmer are young, ranging in age from their early 20s to early 30s. They stay close to the telephone and Telex and must make quick decisions that involve millions of dollars of their bank's money

In a typical deal that took seconds to close over the teletype, Bank of America bought $2 million in yen at a rate of 241.20 yen to the dollar, figuring the yen would rise in value.

If Palmer's dealer was wrong, and the yen didn't rise as expected, the bank would have suffered an immediate "paper" loss of $1,245 on the deal, as the bid price, or the best price Bank of America would have been able to sell the yen for on the world market, was less than it had paid for the currency

About 100 North American banks and about 800 banks in Europe deal in currency trading. When the institutions in other parts of the world and multinational corporations that also shift assets from one form of money to another are added the total number of people involved in foreign exchange trading is about 10,000. Palmer said.

Most are trying to outguess each other Rumors abound and news that could affect the price of a major currency is an extremely valuable commodity.

The Bank of America has two wire services in its trading room, one based in New York, the other in Europe. When an important story comes across the teletype, traders devour it so they stay as well informed as their competitors.

"Ten seconds can mean a difference between profit and loss," Palmer said, arching his bushy black eyebrows. Palmer has a money dealer for 25 years, stumbling into the profession in London by happenstance.

"I had been a modern language student. My father got me a job in a bank after my national service. The bank said, If this young man speaks French and German he must be appropriate for foreign exchange.' I've been doing it ever since.

Lawrence J. Lombardo, Firestone's vice president for trade sales, said Thursday that the campaign would conserve energy because it takes five fewer gallons of crude oil to retread an old tire than it does to produce another one.

Firestone has asked youth groups to scour backyards, garages and highways for worn tires.

The company has offered to pay $1 for each tire, usable for a retread, returned to a participating dealership or retread plant.

Incendiary Device Explodes In Store

NEW YORK (AP) - A small incendiary device exploded on the ninth floor of Mary's department store on 34th Street on Thursday, and police said it apparently was the work of the Puerto Rican tertor'st group FALN.

South Precinct said the device went off at I p.m. in bales of pillows in a hallway.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There is apt to be some confusion and muddled thinking now, so avoid what can be deceptive and fraudulent. Later, a whole new series of conditions comes into being by which you can advance to a much better life with more prosperity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You get a puzzling communication early but ignore it: do not take it seriously. Try to be of assistance to friends and relatives. Increase own happiness

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May. 20) Don't permit a monetary affair to distrub you now since later you can see how best to handle it. An expert can be of great assistance if you consult him

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are not in a good mood. Take time to improve your appearance and your feeling of well-being. Seek company of good friends

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Conditions are rather trying for you but be philosphical and all works out to your benefit. Don't forget to pay important bills

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A new contact is disappointing, but a good friend comes to your aid. Take no chances with one who is fair weather friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Give attention to outside affairs that are important early, then plan other activities for later. Show you are a thoughtful person. Take no chances with reputation.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q.-I "discovered" the stock market three years ago and have lost money in it since. Gradually, I've been switching to the "easier-to sleep-with" utility preferreds. I am single, earn $20,000. ALI my funds (except for savings) are now in preferreds; yield: over 9 percent. I realize 1 lack diversification.

A.-And any chance of capital growth. Given the discouraging stock market of the last dozen years I'm not going to mount a federal case against you for turning to solid income securities, although I must also point out that the price you pay for eliminating a good deal of market risk includes fixed income, all taxable, and vulnerability to higher interest rates.

I don't know just how you lost money in the last three years (although it took no great effort or special talent). But I suspect losses most likely resulted more from "hot stuff" trading than merely from taking a long-term position in AT

Q.-Please explain short-selling and also how selling short and buying warrants at the same time can prevent substantial

A.-Selling short is selling something you don't own in the hopes you will be able to re-buy it later at a lower price and deliver it. It is a process by which a speculator who feels a stock is going to decline in market price can hope to profit by that decline. It's a perfectly legal maneuver, and just as reasonable as the purchase of a stock by a speculator who feels it is going up in price.

Short-selling can be dangerous, however. because if you sell short at $20 a share and the price then begins to climb, you may wind up paying $30, $40 or any price to buy back the shares so that you can deliver them to the buyer. ALso, any dividends declared while you are "short" come out of your pocket.

If, however, you also acquire an option or a warrant which entitles you to buy the stock at, say, $20, or $25 or any other price, your potential loss on your shortsale is limited. If the stock starts to run away on the upside you always have the privilege of buying the stock back by using the warrant. It is a form of insurance used by speculators to limit their losses.

14-B-LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Morning, January 13, 1978 ★ Funny, Talented Gene Wilder Misses With 'Lover'

"The World's Greatest Lover." Produced, writ-ten and directed by Gene Wilder. Music by John Morris. Words and music to the song "Ain't It Kin-da Wonderful" by Gene Wilder da Wondertul" by Gene Wilder. Photographed by Gerald Hirschfeld. Stars Gene Wilder, Carol Kane and Dom DeLuise. Rated PG. At the Winchester.

By WILLIAM D. KERNS A-J Fine Arts Editor

Like those of most master comics, Gene Wilder's films are undoubtedly auteur efforts. Wilder plays the role of the producer, screenwriter, director, songwriter, casting director and, of course, the star. But while it is safe to assume that this curly-haired Mel Brooks disciple may very well hold the distinction of being this era's solitary romantic clown, it is equally obvious that his personal pictures continue to show more promise than consistency

Sadly enough, "The World's Greatest Lover" is no exception.

The basic plot is as old as the cinema itself. An unhappy, dissatisfied man this time a neurotic Milwaukee baker named Rudy Hickman, played by Wilder - decides to throw his present life out the window and start fresh amidst the tinsel and glitter of Hollywood. This baker, inspired by second-rate Rainbow Studios' nationwide search for a rival to Paramount's successful Rudolph Valentino, changes his name to Rudy Valentine, sells the furniture and the car and, wife in tow, heads on out to California.

Now Wilder is a man obviously influenced by the poignancy, as well as the slapstick humor, of such past silent masters as Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton and Charlie Chaplin. And the beginning portions of the film include some loving reminders, such as when our stumblebum Hero falls onto a cake assembly line, only to be doused with sticky frostings and find himself fired when he winds up with his head in a box. It's man vs. machine, and the poor Everyman vs. the bosses.

The scene in which Rudy proclaims he will win the talent search for the world's greatest lover because he is "unique," only to find himself lost among hundreds of aspiring actors wearing the same outfit, is also time-jumped from the days of silent comedy. And some of the word games at the hotel and jail, all involving hotel manager Fritz Feld, were obviously born of the Marx Brothers comic womb ... with perhaps a tad of Abbott & Costello thrown in. But despite the 1926 setting and the endearing use of the crafts of the masters, Wilder is not giving us a sendup of silent era techniques. Rather he is waging a battle between humor and pathos. The latter stems from the actor's ability to draw tears during small portions of his comedies. In this case, he wrote the sad scenes first, and the care and treatment awarded them shows quite visibly. Rudy's wife Annie, gloriously played by Carol Kane, is infatuated with the real Valentino. She leaves her husband to make love with the legendary sex symbol of the '20s. Then not once, but twice. Wilder envisions his wife in the actress co-starring in his screen tests; both scenes are indicative of the comic and the touching, tragic values of human emotion. They are individually Wilderesque, written as only a romantic clown who truly seeks an understanding response could write them.

But no matter how real the pathos, the Rudy Valentine humor is never very well defined. Rather, such loony ideas as Wilder sticking out his tongue when nervous, instigating sex by the numbers ("Never stop doing three. Three goes on all the time!"), rehearsing a sexy rehearsal scene in a record store's glass enclosed listening booth, and filling a sunken hotel room with water are more at home in Mel Brooks' throwaway-joke movies. Certainly the scenes with homosexual references - an effeminate whom Wilder mistakes for Greta Garbo, and the usual Valentino as "sissy boy" overtones - were scooped out of the Brooks stable.

And Wilder's big scene in which he poses as Valentino to greet Annie is a total flop. This

we'll-try-anything-for-a-laugh

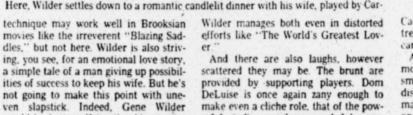

ities of success to keep his wife. But he's not going to make this point with uneven slapstick. Indeed, Gene Wilder would be better off trusting his own instincts instead of relying on the man he worked for in "The Producers," "Blazing Saddles" and "Young Frankenstein." The disciple should trust those instincts to the point of creating originai storylines, as well, since Brooks has alsaid NO, you filthy pig!" ready monopolized the genre of spoof. Of course, this is certainly not to say

ROMANCE A LA WILDER - Gene Wilder's comedies are not without their romantic scenes, and his latest picture. "The World's Greatest Lover." is no exception.

Brooks is a better filmmaker than Wilder. After all, Brooks has yet to make us cry. He has yet to make us feel. And

erful studio mogul surrounded by yesmen, a funny piece. And frail Carol Kane, as Wilder's fantasizing wife, reyeals for the first time an excellent comic style - especially when she's watching Valentino from her theater seat, or waking up from a dream shouting. "I

But on to the real laughs. Fritz Feld is a delight as the hotel manager and Carl Ballantine is sheer wonderment in the wonderfully written part of Uncle Harry. The facial expressions of Carol Arthur (Mrs. Dom DeLuise) in the record store and Hannah Dean, as the maid expected to clean a flooded room, earn chuckles,

And the funniest person in the whole movie is no doubt Ronny Graham who. smoking three cigarettes at a time and displaying not-so-controlled hysterics, manages to direct 4,011 screen tests in one week. His performance is pure hilaritv

But the fact remains, Wilder needs to either concentrate on original humor. maintaining his romantic edge, or leave the writing chores to someone else. After this film and his earlier "Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother." it is obvious he has yet to find the correct combination Considering his immense talent, though, it remains difficult to understand why Gene Wilder has yet to give us, his fans, a really crackerjack movie. Which leads us to the line flashed on the screen after the final credits. It reads, "A loving thank you from Gene Wilder

> If you're wondering what all those people are doing mingling around the Arnett-Benson and Village Theaters, prepare yourself for a shock. They're all standing in line to see "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre." a terrible horror film made on a shoestring budget several years back in Austin. To say the film has attracted a cult following would be like saying it's slightly gory. College kids are going, adults are going, and some non-thinking parents are even taking their young kids.

The film's initial success even saw its writer-director Tobe Hooper awarded a contract with a major studio. But we haven't heard from Tobe since. And other than some well designed sets, this writer doesn't know what anyone saw in the film in the first place.

U.S. Moves To Squelch Communists

WASHINGTON (AP) - The State Department, in a clear signal to Italy's embattled minority government, denounced the Italian Communist Party Thursday as undemocratic and said its efforts to gain a direct role in government should be resisted.

A new policy statement, representing a shift from the previous "hands-off" position, also said the administration would like to see "communist influence in any Western European country reduced.

Although less strident than the policy statements on the subject of former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the substance of the declaration was essentially the same as Kissinger's

It expressed increased concern about the recent turn of events in Italy, where the communists have warned of a parliamentary showdown if the ruling Christian Democratic Party refuses to allow them a role in government

As in the past, the statement said the decision on how West European countries are governed "rests with their citizens alone.

At the same time, it added, "We have an obligation to our friends and allies to express our views clearly.

The statement was issued following the hurried recall of the U.S. ambassador in Rome, Richard Gardner, for consultations here with President Carter and other top officials on the Italian situation.

State Department spokesman John Trattner said the statement did not represent interference in Italy's internal affairs. But it appeared to be an effort to rally Italy's anti-communist forces behind their Christian Democratic premier, Giulio Andreotti Trattner said the United States position on communist participation in West European governments is clear: "We do not favor such participation and would like to" see communist influence in any Western European country reduced."

He added that the United States believes that democratic parties are best suited to meet the aspirations of their people for "effective, just and compassionate government.

"The United States and Italy share profound democratic values and interests, and we do not believe that the communists share those values and interests. Trattner said.

The statement also recalled that President Carter had said in Paris last week that it is "precisely when democracy is up against difficult challenges that its leaders must show firmness in resisting the temptation of finding solutions in non-democratic forces.

Addressing the same subject in an interview made public Wednesday, Kissinger warned of "grave consequences for the entire West" if the slide toward communism in Italy is not halted.

The emergence of communist participation in the Italian government could make Italy an unreliable ally at best and could lead to the destruction of Italy's democracy

"It is inconceivable to me that communists convinced that they represent inevitable historical progress would consider being voted out of office," he said. Less than three months after taking off

HELENA (AP) - Sen. Lee Metcalf, a publicity-shunning Democrat who spent 17 quiet years in the Senate, was found dead at his apartment here Thursday. He was 66.

Metcalf, who had announced that he would retire at the end of his term in 1979, held a key vote on President Carter's energy plan and the Montana senator's death could mean a pricing policy more favorable to the oil and gas indus-

Helena Police Chief Jack Williams said Metcalf's son Jerry, a state legislator. found the body Investigating officers found the senator dead in bed, and it appeared that he died of natural causes," Williams said. A spokesman in Metcalf's Washington office said the senator had a heart condition and had been in poor health for several years. Williams said Jerry Metcalf told officers he had driven his father to Helena Wednesday night from Wallace, Idaho, hometown of his wife of 40 years, Donna. Mrs Metcalf was still in Wallace, according to a staff member in Metcalf's Helena office.

Metcalf, who has been described as the senator no one knew, was elected to the Senate in 1960 and re-elected in 1966 and 1972. He was best known nationally for supporting additions to the country's designated wilderness areas

But Metcalf also was a member of a House-Senate conference committee on energy and his death could break the congressional deadlock over Carter's energy program

The 18 Senate members of the committee have been equally divided for weeks on the issue of natural gas pricing, which has blocked passage of the rest of the plan

Metcalf voted with the nine senators supporting continued controls in opposition to Republicans and Democrats from oil-and gas-producing states.

At his news conference Thursday, Carter, who was not aware of Metcalf's death, acknowledged that the 9-9 Senate deadlock was responsible for stalling his energy program.

For Excessive Electric Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) - Consumers pay higher electric bills because the nation's major utilities maintain excessive generating capacity, an environmental group says.

The Environmental Action Foundation said Sunday the unneeded capacity. which could run 50 large electric plants, cost consumers $720 million in 1976.

"The utility industry is currently leaning heavily in the direction of excessive reserve margins," the foundation said in a report on the nation's 100 largest electric companies. "A combination of poor planning and unforeseen events (primarily the energy crisis) has left the power industry with many unneeded generating facilities.

Federal officials have historically recommended 15 to 20 percent extra generating capacity to cope with equipment breakdowns or unexpectedly high customer demands.

"Overall, the power industry had a reserve margin of 30.5 per cent, and an excess capacity of 10.5 percent," the report said

The report also said the utilities charged their customers $2.1 billion in 1976 for federal income taxes that were never paid.

The foundation said the companies, to justify their rates, cite the amount of tax owed the federal government. They then use a variety of legal strategies to avoid paying the taxes.

A spokesman for Florida Power Co., one of the companies, said the actions were legal under the tax code.

Richard Morgan, a spokesman for the foundation, said the group is an inde-pendent organization funded by publication sales, some federal funds and small foundation grants.

By Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Carter and Attorney General Griffin Bell on Thursday defended the firing of an aggressive Republican U.S. attorney, whose ouster triggered charges that the administration is playing politics and trying to cover it up.

Questions about the dismissal of David W. Marston, the GOP prosecutor in Philadelphia, came up at Carter's first news conference in the new year.

The 35-year-old Marston, appointed by then-President Gerald R. Ford some 18 months ago, has angered some politicians Utilities Blamed months ago, has angered some politicians in Democratic-controlled Philadelphia th his successful prosecution of two > prominent Democrats on political corruption charges

Tough Questions Generated

At the news conference. Carter was reminded of his campaign promise to keep politics out of federal appointments.

"I can't say whether Marston has or has not done a good job," the president said

Carter said he asked Bell to expedite the replacement of Marston after being contacted by Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Penn, who reportedly had pushed for the removal.

Eilberg has been unavailable for comment on reports that he was displeased because Marston was investigating the congressman.

Carter said Bell made the decision to remove Marston, adding: "I have never asked him to delineate all the reasons. The president said he has "complete confidence in the attorney general's judgment

Bell Sticks To Guns

Bell told reporters later Thursday that he decided to dismiss Marston last February or March.

have not changed my mind," he said. "I made my mind up and I'm going to replace him unless I'm ordered not to by the president."

When questioned whether Marston lacked qualifications, Bell repeatedly referred to the fact that Marston was a political appointee who had worked for Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., and had had little trial experience.

"I want prosecutors who will try cases sometimes," said Bell, who described Marston as a prosecutor who has served primarily as an administrator.

Bell acknowledged that Carter had called him a month or two ago to press for Marston's removal. But the attorney general said he did not ask Carter why he was in such a hurry

"I don't want to say anything against this man." Bell said of Marston. "He is a fine young man." But the attorney general said he found nothing in Marston's record that makes Bell want to "fight to retain him

Bell refused to say whether Eilberg is under investigation by the U.S. attorney's office in Philadelphia. He said he had not heard there might be an investigation until he read newspaper accounts the past couple of days.

Bell said he checked with Marston's office on Thursday to determine whether Eilberg was being investigated. If there had been such an investigation, the attorney general said. Marston should have advised him of it

Support For Marston

Bell conceded that Assistant Attorney General Michael Egan and former Deputy Attorney General Peter Flaherty urged that Marston be kept on the job. He said he had spoken to Eilberg about Marston in the early days of the Carter administration but rejected the congressman's efforts to remove the young prosecutor at that time

Since then, Bell said, he has "had a falling out" with Eilberg, adding that "we just stopped talking

Both Carter and Bell pledged that Marston's replacement would be equal or superior as U.S. attorney. The administration's position drew harsh criticism from Schweiker. Some coverup is emerging here. Schweiker told reporters in the Senate Press Gallery. "The president has not been straight with the American people about his firing of U.S. Attorney David Marston Schweiker noted that Carter said within the past week that he was not familiar with the Marston case until it became highly publicized But Schweiker contended Carter had publicly stated earlier that he talked to Bell about replacing Marston. He added that Carter contem- greement up there over his snapping a plated the move before discussing it with Eilberg.

He also said there have been "definite refused to name names

However, it turned out not to be quite as exclusive as first thought, with 26 schools added to the original 79 thanks to an amendment sponsored by the eight Ivy League schools along with Colgate and William Mary.

But that total of 104 National Collegiate Athletic Association institutions could be drastically trimmed as early as today and one NCAA official predicted it would happen.

In a complex opening business session of the NCAA's 72nd annual convention, the delegates first turned down a controversial proposal to split the current 144 major schools in Division I into Divisions I-A and I-AA.

But after a lunch break, a motion to reconsider was passed and the "super conference" was subsequently created.

But the delegates also approved the Ivy League plan under which a program of 12 varsity sports qualifies a school for major division status instead of a 30,000-seat stadium and an average home attendance of 17,000 in one of the last four years.

Under that legislation, 25 additional schools that would have been relegated to Division I-AA are now eligibile for I-A. Those schools, in addition to the lvy League, are Appalachian State, Ball

State, Bowling Green, Colgate, Holy Cross, Idaho, Indiana State, Long Beach State, Ohio U., Rutgers, San Jose State, Temple, Western Michigan and WM, along with four members of the Yankee Conference - Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The Yankee Gonference is currently Division II in football.

"I don't think there were any winners or losers today," said Bob Murphy, athletic director at San Jose State and a leader of a movement to defeat the proposed split. "Almost by accident we ended up with a compromise that satisfies a lot of people.

While the so-called super powers - the Big Eight, Big Ten, Pacific-10, Southeastern, Southwest, Atlantic Coast and Western Athletic Conferences, plus the major independents - now have the ability to vote their own destiny, some two dozen schools they hadn't counted on have come along for the ride. At least we and the others have an opportunity to go I-A," Murphy said. "Under the original proposal, we might have lost our whole football program." Conferences such as the Mid-American, Missouri Valley, Southern, Southland and the Pacific Coast Athletic Association fear their programs could be destroyed by relegation to Division I-AA. They envision the big-time powers doing away with current scholarship limitations as well as coaching staff limits. However, no matter how many schools wind up in Division I-A, no legislation concerning that division can be enacted until next year's NCAA convention. The limit of 30 football scholarships a year and 95 at any one time are safe for at least one more year.

However, the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, chairman of the athletic board at Notre Dame, said there was "no intent to ask tor a blank check" to do away with current limitations

There has been a great divergence of opinion among Division I football schools," he said. "Three NCAA divistons didn't really work and it led to growing tensions. It was a volatile situation ... an emotional issue. Put apples together and oranges together and let us fight out the problems

WACO-It was as different as day and night, Democrat and Republican, Central Texas and the South Plains.

And it was almost as if Texas Tech only arrived from the Plains at the half. But. in the final 20 minutes. the Red Raiders had some time and distance to make up. They made it and emerged from Heart O' Texas Coliseum with a 71-61 victory over Baylor.

The win opened a two-game road trip successfully for Tech and left the Raiders with a 2-1 conference record. Baylor fell to 1-2. For the year, the Raiders stand 10-4 heading into Houston for Saturday's 3 p.m. regionally televised game with Rice. It was Baylor in the first half and Tech in the second Thursday. The comparisons:

First half-Baylor: 32 points, 53.5 shooting percentage, 20 rebounds and six turnovers. Tech: 23 points, 38.7 shooting percentage, 13 rebounds and three turnovers.

Last half-Tech: 46 points, 64 per cent shooting percentage, 21 rebounds, four turnovers. Baylor: 29 points, 43.8 shooting percentage, nine rebounds, three turnovers

And, although the Raiders gave up 29 points in the last half, they allowed the Bears only 13 going into the final three minutes of the game. By that time, the visitors were in complete command and using the free-throw line as their main offensive tool.

It came as no suprise when Tech coach Gerald Myers admitted afterward, "That was the best half we've played all year. The big difference was that we didn't make any mental mistakes in the second half. In the first half, we gave up seven buckets because of mental mistakes.

'And we weren't getting any rebounds in the first half. They were getting the second and third shots and putting them back in. But, in the last half, we started shutting them down and getting some rebounds

And Tech's shots began to fall, especially from Kent Williams, the 6-5 sharpshooter from Hobbs, N.M.

Keyworth's hotel room and the runningback's mail was being intercepted after the Broncos' office in Denver informed team personnel here that it had received the threatening phone call. Keyworth remained in his room while his teammates met with newsmen Thursday. 'He's a little shook up," said Fred Gehrke, general manager of the Broncos. We've increased his security. The call threatened him with bodily harm.

"It will be blown out of proportion like most things," said Red Miller, coach of the Broncos. "It's probably some kook looking for publicity

Meanwhile, as Super Bowl visitors began swelling this famed Mississippi River City's population, Denver and Dallas players zeroed in on the big game. Both clubs seemed anxious to get on with their confrontation and were starting to snipe as the countdown began

Rozelle Criticizes Movie 'Superdome'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Commissioner Pete Rozelle decried as "ill-timed" and "in poor taste" Thursday the violent TV movie "Superdome," aired Monday -six days before football's Super Bowl NI

The National Football League head declined to attribute the telephoned threat on the life of Denver runningback Jon Keyworth to showing of the film but he said:

"The power of suggestion in things like this is so great. I remember when I was doing public relations work for a transcontinental airline many years ago there was a hijacking in Australia.

"It was one of the first-a novelty at the time. But it was later discovered that a movie had been shown which carried details of the hijacking almost to the let-

"All of us are aware of the escalation of such hijackings over the past several years.

The threat against Keyworth was phoned Wednesday to the Bronco headquarters in Denver.

Strict security measures immediately were invoked by the team, which plays the Dallas Cowboys Sunday for pro football's championship.

The runningback's mail was intercepted and screened. A security guard was posted outside his hotel room. Denver officials acknowledged that it conceivable was the work of a crank but Fred Gehrke, Denver general manager, said Keyworth was a "a little shook up."

The two-hour movie, shown nationally by ABC, was based on a fictional Super Bowl at the Superdome here and was saturated with intrigue, sex and murder, revolving around an attempt by gamblers to fix the game.

It was a terrible movie," said Rozelle. I must say that I was deeply concerned that it was shown. Our office had no advance warning of it until the advertising began about a week ago."

Don Weiss, assistant to the commissioner, said he had learned a movie was being filmed at the Superdome during one of his advance visits but was not aware of its content.

"Originally the film was entitled 'Countdown to The Super Bowl'" Weiss said, "but we informed the producers they could not use the word 'Super Bowl' because it is copyrighted.

"We had no idea what the movie was about until it was shown.

The movie was filmed last fall, the production crew spending three months in the 76,000-seat facility.

nie Perrin, Jim Jensen and Keyworth, It produced a running game that generated 2.043 yards, with no individual gaining 500 vards.

"I didn't have to sell them the idea." said Miller. "I just said this is the way we're going to do it. I told each of them that I don't care how many yards they gain individually. I care if the team wins.

The man affected most by Miller's approach was Armstrong, who has twice gained over 1,000 yards for the Broncos. In his new part-time role, he produced 489 in 130 carries

'It took a big adjustment," said Armstrong. "At first, I didn't like it. When they told me. I shrugged my shoulders. I didn't understand

Through college at Purdue and after his first year with the Broncos, Armstrong alwasy was the leading runner, a constant threat to rush for 100 yards in a game and 1,000 yards in a season. "I like to carry the ball," he said "I was used to being the center of attraction.

But Miller pointed out that other teams had used the rotation system successfully. That's when Armstrong started to buy the concept. "Miami won the Super Bowl that way with (Jim) Kiick and (Mercury) Morris," he said. "And you know, I got to thinking that I've always been gaining a lot of yards and I've never been on a team that won anything.

So Armstrong accepted the idea and now he likes it. "What'd I carry, 130 times? That's about half what I usually do. That means I can play twice as long." he said.

"I feel fresh and knowing I'm only going to be in there for a while. I can go all out. I'm more of an all-around player now. This gives me a chance to block and catch the ball as well as run. I think this will add four or five years to my career.

make a 10-sport program mandatory for those institutions without football teams.

That would have demoted a number of schools, including Marquette University, the defending national basketball champion, into Division II.

Under the restructuring guidelines. current Division I schools have 60 days to declare the intention of joining Division 1 A and three years to complt with the criteria

While the restructuring plan hogged most of the spotlight, the NCAA dele gates also passed some other important legislation

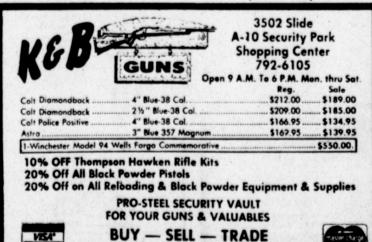

They did away with the pro basketball hardship draft by ruling that any athlete who puts his name on such a list would lose his college eligibility, even if he withdraws his name, as is presently permitted

And they voted in a rule permitting an athlete to receive "broken-time payments' authorized by the U.S. Olympic Committee for Olympic training and competition

Ironically, the thorny issue of restructuring Division I in football was first turned down by Division I members,

But a number of stringent criteria were then approved, which would have pushed many schools into Division II rather than

These included as requirements sponsorship of at least eight varsity sports in Division I, including football; scheduling at least 60 percent of games against Division I members; averaging more than 17,000 in home attendance over the last four years and having a 30,000-seat stadium plus an average attendance of 17,000

The latest victim is 6-2 freshman guard Jack Bell, who suffered a back injury during drills early this week. "Jack has a history of back problems," Price explained, "and although it's not real bad, he can't twist and get down in position to play defense. He's been to the doctor a couple of times with it and we'll just have to see how it is on a day-to-day basis.

Staubach Believes Rivalry Is Over

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The irony of clinched the passing championship in their Super Bowl confrontation is not lost on Roger Staubach, the man who moved Craig Morton out of Dallas.

Staubach and Morton will be on opposite sides of the field Sunday when Dallas and Denver collide for the world championship of professional football. There is a mutual respect between the two, established during the days when they dueled for the starting quarterback job with the Cowboys.

'There's no rivalry between Craig and myself," said Staubach. "That's over now. When he was with the Cowboys, sure, we both wanted to play and we competed with each other on the field. But off the field, we've always gotten along Staubach gave an example of his relationship with Morton.

"In 1973, my mother had cancer," he began. "She was living with us and three days before the last game of the year, she died. I missed half a week of practice going back to Cincinnati (his home) for the burial. Then I played against St. Louis and we clinched the division title that day.

After the contest, Cowboys players awarded the game ball to wide receiver Drew Pearson, who had enjoyed a big day. "Morton got up in the dressing room and said they should give another game ball to me," said Staubach, who had ners that game, completing 14 of 18 attempts and throwing for three touchdowns.

We were friends as athletes and we have a lot of respect for each other." Staubach said. I have compassion for what happened to him. I saw him hurt and maligned. I saw him play in the Super Bowl against Baltimore with bone chips and then take the heat when we lost. I saw him go to New York in a situation where Jim Thorpe would have had problems.

After 212 dreadful years with the Giants, Morton was dealt to Denver where he landed squarely on his feet. Staubach was not surprised at his old friend's success.

He can take charge of an offense." the Dallas quarterback said. "He can set up and he can throw

At Denver, where the Broncos' offensive line gives him more time to operate. Morton has flourished. He also got married and settled down. One of the wedding gifts came from Roger and Marianne Staubach.

My wife found it, said Staubach. 'It's a glass prism with interlocking rings and a Christian cross. We thought it was unique

Pearson Unbothered By Bronco Remarks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Quiet-spoken Drew Pearson said Thursday the Dallas Cowboys wouldn't be intimidated by Denver's pop-off secondary.

The All-Pro Cowboy wide receiver, reacting to remarks made Wednesday by Denver safety Bernard Jackson, said, They have a good secondary but the last time we played them they talked and jawed. Class teams don't do that." Jackson had said Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Kansas City had better wide receivers than Dallas.

"I just don't think they're that good ... they really have only one threat, Drew Pearson," said Jackson. "Golden Richards is an every-once-in-a-while-

Razorbacks Down Owls

HOUSTON (AP) - Arkansas guard Melvin Delph scored 22 points Thursday night, including 16 in a breakaway first half, as the unbeaten, third-ranked Razorbacks whipped Rice 69-60.

Delph, averaging 16.6 points per game. accounted for half of Arkansas' first-half points when he connected on eight of nine shots from the floor and led the Hogs to a 32-16 lead at intermission.

With Allan Reynolds hitting eight points, Rice outscored Arkansas 15-12 over the first seven minutes of the second

Pearson retorted. "I've noticed Jackson does a lot of talking. He could be in for a big surprise. He might be right that Pittsburgh has better receivers as a group but he has to deal with us-not Pittsburgh. He had better be thinking about us. I believe we can play.

The former free agent from Tulsa, who caught 48 passes this year, said when Dallas defeated Denver 14-6 in the final game of the regular season the Bronco secondary "talked and jawed from start to end.

Pearson said. "I remember I caught a pass on the sideline and got knocked into the Denver bench area. The wind went out of me. I could hear all kind of noise. They yelled at me, 'Well, we don't have to worry about you the rest of the day, 'all-pro' and 'Welcome to the Orange Crush-You know what it's like now." Pearson said. "I sucked it up and got out of there because they weren't going to get any satisfaction out of seeing me hurt.

Pearson averaged 18 yards a catch this year and is the man quarterback Roger Staubach goes to in the clutch.

"I think Denver really does have a good secondary," said Pearson. "They give you a lot of changeups but that talking isn't going to help them.

Pearson caught only two passes in the National Footbal Conference title victory over Minnesota but Staubach found Richards open on a touchdown pass after faking a simple screen to Pearson.

Monterey's defense contained Coronado's scorers early in the third quarter and dominated the second half as MHS captured a 49-26 victory over CHS in the District 4-AAAA girls cage opener at the CHS gym.

The victory lifted coach Phil Hood's Plainsmen to 14-6 for the year and 1-0 in district. Coronado fell to 8-10 and 0-1.

Monterey jumped to a quick 11-2 edge in the first quarter but Coronado rallied in a see-saw second quarter to tie the game 20-all at halftime. Then Monterey's defense took charge Rhonda Dunn, Jana Field and Janet Mears allowed only four points in the third quarter. Meanwhile, the offensive mates broke the time and assumed a 30-22 advantage midway in the third quarter.

Our defense did a great job in the second half. They had to play well because we only shot 32.7 percent from the field. MHS coach Hood said

Marilyn Beckner led all scorers with 24 points while MHS teammate Margaret Grennell added 10. Dona Boyd paced CHS with 14 followed by Kathi Wyett with 10

Tech moved further in front as Brown and teammates Carol Dudensing and Carla Schuette built up a 14-6 lead. The Tech maintained the edge most of the half and led 32-26 at intermission.

With 11 minutes left in the game, Tech only led 46-41 but pulled out to a 64-51 advantage with less than five minutes to play.

Rosemary Scott led the Tech team with 18 points followed by Dudensing with 12 The team hit 26 of 73 field goals while NTSU hit 17 of 64 from the field.

Flying Queens Fall In Defeat To N.C. State

RALEIGH, N.C. (Special) - Fourthranked North Carolina State led most of the game and downed top-ranked Wayland Baptist's Queens 98-86 Thursday night.

The winners led 53-48 at half and increased the edge to 14 points with 8:53 left in the game. The Queens cut the deficit to 86-82 with 4:02 to play but never caught their hosts. A crowd of 6.500 fans. the largest ever for a college girls game this season, witnessed the game.

Jill Rankin led Wayland with 25 points followed by Breen Caldwell with 19 and Valerie Goodwin with 14. Trudi Lacey paced N.C. State with 23 followed by Gena Beasley with 20.

The winners (11-1) shot 60.9 percent from the field while the Queens hit 55.7 percent of their field goals.

Wayland, now 12-1, faces 14th-ranked Montclair State tonight in the first round of the Old Dominion basketball tournament. The Queens return home to host three-time national champion Delta State Jan. 21. Any spectators who wish to purchase tickets for the game, may write to Wayland Baptist College.

Wolfpack head Coach Kay Yow said after the game. "We felt tonight that our guards got involved. They were using their picks and screens well. I can't say enough about the people who came off the bench, namely Joy Ussery, Bess Fielding and Kay Young.

Coach Dean Weese of Wayland Baptist said he was not disappointed in his crew. "I told our kids we'd find out some things about ourselves on this trip. We found out one thing - NC. State has a super ball team. I am not disappointed with our kids. We played well offensively," Weese said. "We'll just have to take another notch off on our belts and go from here."

Connors Leads

Money-Winners

NEW YORK (AP) - For the fourth straight year, Jimmy Connors has topped tennis' money-winning list for 1977, according to figures released Thursday by the U.S. Tennis Association.

Including his victory in last week's Grand Prix Masters, which counts in the 1977 money ratings, Connors won a record $922,657 in total earnings, far surpassing his mark of $687,335 set in 1976.

We put that play in because Minnesota reacts so fast ... a lot like Denver," said Richards. Richards caught only 17 passes in the regular season, splitting time as Coach Tom Landry's messenger with Butch Johnson.

"I think Jackson is an excellent football player," said Richards. "The Denver secondary is a good secondary. It moves well as a unit and gang tackles well.

"In a way, I can see where Denver might not think I'm much of a receiver." said Richards. "If they saw film of our last five regular season games I didn't catch very many passes. It may look like I've been dropped from our offense." Dallas linebacker Thomas Henderson was more to the point when informed of Jackson's words

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Morning, January 13, 1978-D-3 Coronado, LHS Open District Combat

By TOM HALLIBURTON Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Now is the time for all good New Year's resolutions to crumble into pieces. Please whisper the last sentence while approaching Coronado High School, though.

The Mustang basketball environment apparently changed about the same time the calendar did, according to coach Jimmy Fullerton. Fans can see if the Mustangs stashed away their old inconsistencies when they open District 4-AAAA play tonight at Lubbock High. Another loop opener pits Plainview at Monterey while Estacado tries to protect its 3-AAA league lead at Sweetwater. The two local games start at team has performed on a consistent level during the three outings of 1978. His team lost 58-54 to a strong Amarillo High team in Amarillo on Jan. 3. Then a week ago, the Mustangs downed Palo Duro 61-52. Last Tuesday, CHS edged Tascosa 49-47 in Amarillo.

"There's been a definite change of attitude in these kids during the last two weeks," the CHS coach said. "You've got to develop some consistency and we've done that better than we have in the past. Our ballhandling has been more consistent. We've had a lot better shot selection and our shooting percentage has been coming up."

Fullerton detected an improvement in the defeat at Amarillo High. His Mustangs were tied after one quarter and after a half. Finally, Amarillo's 6-7 post man Victor Mitchell used his height to determine the outcome.

"But we played well enough that night to win and the kids knew they had played well. We felt like we played them as well as we were capable of playing," Fullerton said.

Another strong effort in Amarillo wound up in the win column last Tuesday. On this occasion, the Mustangs handled a pressure situation.

"We were down by four points with three minutes to go. And you know night's starting five. The coach has used what's happened to us in those situations all season. But the kids came through and Jay Norton hit a couple of key baskets," the CHS coach said.

Norton scored 22 points and entered league play with a 10.5 scoring average. But Fulierton expressed pleasure about the scoring of another starter, too.

We've tried to convince Steve Ahlenius that he has to score. Steve has shot the ball well in recent games and he moves well, too. We took him out of the lineup at the Caprock tournament and we hope he will start helping our offense. He could be a big factor in the district race," he said.

as many as eight players during the last three games. Norton, Ahlenius, Bill Shockley, Mike Higgins and Brent Roye started during most of December. Reserves John Biddle, Bill Tate, Jim Wells and Mark Reed find opportunities in Coronado's lineup, too. The Mustangs downed the Westerners 63-62 in a Caprock tournament game. However, LHS postman Craig Mitchell scored 25 points in that game. Since LHS coach C.E. Carmichael dismissed Mitchell from the team, Lubbock has missed its inside scoring punch.

Mitchell's replacement, Ron Jenkins, failed to score last Tuesday against Caprock. Another reserve post, Stan Matthes, also failed to score. Nevertheless, the Westerners concern Fullerton plenty.

"They have a very scrappy ballclub. They can get in that press and hassle you. If you don't go out and play the best ball you're capable of playing, they will beat you," said the CHS coach.

Coronado isn't the only local 4-AAAA team which appears on the upswing. Monterey has won four of its last five games. The Plainsmen begin league play 11-11, trailing Hereford's 13-8 mark. Coronado follows at 6-14 with LHS 3-16 and Plainview 2-18. Those marks all go down the drain tonight as district starts. The question is whether those New Year's resolutions will go down the drain, too.

Tonight marks the first time this year every basketball district on the South Plains is involved in league action.

Despite that fact, the top game involves a pair of girls units squaring off in a nondistrict encounter.

That comes at Slaton, where the No. 1 AA team in the area will put its 18-4 mark on the line against Canyon, the defending state AAA champion who has not lost in 22 outings this year and is, naturally, No. 1 in its class.

ATLANTA (AP) - Four games into the 1977 season, the University of Washington had a 1-3 record and Coach Don James remembers it as "the most incredibly awful experience of my life."

Ruling Given Too Late For Two Girls

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) - A federal judge's ruling this week that schools cannot bar girls from contact sports with boys came too late for the two girls whose parents brought the suit.

When Amy Underwood and Leah Wing were in the seventh grade in 1974, they wanted to play basketball but were not allowed to. Now U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin in Dayton has said they can, but they really are not interested anymore.

"I guess my main reaction is that this came kind of late," said Amy, now active in several other sports in high school, after Rubin ruled Monday that they should be permitted to play basketball. The bers of the American Football Coaches Association.

In between, the Washington Huskies won six of their final seven regular-sea-son games and then upset Michigan 27-20 in the Rose Bowl to finish 8-4.

Sharing the spotlight with James was Bill Manlove of NCAA Division III champion Widener College of Chester, Pa., who was named College Division Coach of the Year.

James and Manlove were honored Thursday night at the AFCA's annual Coach of the Year banquet. "I really don't know how we turned things around," James said. "We lost two games in a row on late field goals - we were close, but yet so far. "One thing that helped was to be done with our non-conference schedule. We could write that off as an exhibition season. And we did get some injured players back.

Washington went on to win the Pacific-Conference championship and led the league in both offense and defense.

'In 1976 we went head-to-head with evervone on our schedule, but we had a sophomore team and we lost six games, James said. "We felt it was possible to win at least six or seven games this sea-

Canadian Knudson Nabs Phoenix Lead

PHOENIX (AP) - Canadian veteran George Knudson saved a 6-under-par 65 with great trap shots on the last two holes and escaped with a 2-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $200,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

The 40-year-old Knudson got sand shots one of them from 30 yards out - about 6 inches from the cup on his last two holes on the 6.726-yard Phoenix Country Club course, still-wet and soggy from two days of rain.

That's the first decent round I've played in a tournament in quite a long time," said Knudson, who scored the last of his eight American victories in the 1972 Kaiser International

Do you usually putt well on wet greens?" someone asked.

'Usually I don't putt well on any kind of greens," replied Knudson.

"I can't explain it," Knudson said. "I putted well, hit the ball well. It's the kind of thing you work toward. When it happens, well, you just hope it'll hang around for a while.

Eagles Secure Bank Loan

DETROIT (AP) - A Detroit bank of which Detroit Lions owner William Clay Ford is a director has approved a shortterm. $5 million loan to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Leonard Tose, owner of the Philadelphia franchise in the National Football League, reportedly had been in danger of losing financial control of the club.

Eagles General Manager James J. Murray said the loan, to be repaid next month, will give Tose time to arrange other financing.

Murray said the Eagles' previous loan with a Philadelphia bank was called in last August after the team lost $1.2 mil-

Murray expressed belief the Eagles would nearly break even this year and would be in the black next year.

He said he was counting on the NFL's new television contract, which takes effect next year. The Eagles will get $5 million as their share.

seth, former Masters champ George Archer, Bill Kratzert and Lon Hinkle.

In the large group at 69 were defending champion Jerry Pate, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer.

"Kind of a mediocre round," murmured the 48-year-old Palmer. "I didn't do anything really good, but I didn't do anything really bad, either. I putted pretty well. If I don't do worse than this, it wouldn't be a bad year."

Tom Watson, 1977 Player of the Year and a winner last week in Tucson, and Johnny Miller had 73s. "Just a kind of a blah, nothing round," Watson said.

PGA champ Lanny Wadkins was near the end of the field with a fat 78 that left him little chance of making the cut when the field is trimmed to the low 70 after today's play.

Knudson, a former winner at Phoenix, semiretired from the American tour last season and devoted himself primarily to events in his native Canada. He missed the cut last week in the first American tournament of the year.

'I've spent five of the last six weeks skiing," Knudson said. "I've done the same thing before, but it's never helped me to a start like this. I missed only two putts I should have made and hit only one shot I wasn't satisfied with. That's pretty good play.

He splashed nine "3's" across his gaudy card and saved it all with the great bunker shots on his last two holes.

A nice way to finish," he said. He hit irons inside of seven feet for four of his birdies, scored once on a 20-foot putt from off the green and dropped two others in the 12-15 foot range.

His only bogey came on the third hole where he missed the green to the left.

judge said his ruling was national in scope and opened up contact sports between the sexes at the school level.

The suit that brought this week's ruling was filed in 1976 in behalf of Amy and Leah by their parents. It started with a 1974 protest to the Yellow Springs School Board of Education because the Morgan Middle School had only a boys basketball team

"This will make it better for girls who come after them," said Amy's mother, Shelley, who said she did not wish her daughter to be interviewed.

These girls were not Amazons or freaks; they were just typical young women who wanted an opportunity to do what they were qualified to do," Mrs. Wing said.

Barron Conrad, coach of the girls' basketball and soccer teams at Yellow Springs High School, said he feared people might take a slanted view of the meaning of Rubin's decision.

"I don't think there are that many high school girls, or even that many in college, who are interested in competing with guys," Conrad said.

Conrad said he would like to see expanded opportunities for girls sports in the lower and middle school grades. He noted that at the time Amy and Leah. wanted to play basketball, the boys team was the only team their middle school had

"The devious part (of the court ruling) is that now some school boards might say they no longer have to provide separate. equal facilities for girls sports," Conrad said. "This could have a bad effect on girls athletic programs."

School officials across the country appeared to agree with Conrad.

Bob Ottewell, president of the Colorado High Schools Activities Association, said the decision could lead to boys turning the tables. He said a youngster who did not make a boys team could decided to try out for a girls team "and possibly keep a girl from playing."

An Illinois high school athletic director said: "I wouldn't let a girl try out for my team unless the school board orders me. I doubt whether any girl could make the boys team, anyway. If they could, I'd be in trouble. Besides, I don't want them to get hurt."

Capital Gains Formula Altered By New Laws Passed In Congress

By RAY DE CRANE

From the earliest days of the income tax-now in its 50th year in this country-capital gains have always enjoyed preferential tax treatment. To encourage investments, and to reward the risk-takers, tax laws have always taxed only 50 percent of longterm capital gains. For nearly all those 50 years a gain was considered long-term if the security was held for longer than six months before it was sold. Anything sold within a shorter holding period was considered shortterm and 100 percent of the gain was taxable

The six-month rule is now gone. It has gone the way of the outmoded standard deduction and the long-remembered Short Form. ALI have been abolished by the new tax laws and the revised tax forms in use this year. Beginning in 1977 the holding period for long-term transactions has been extended to nine months. NOw an asset has to be held for at least nine months and one day before its sale results in a tax-preferred long-term gain

As a possible sweetner to the conversion to the longer holding period. Congress at the same time increased the amount of capital losses that can be taken in any one year. Beginning in 1977 a maximum of $2000 in capital losses may be claimed against other taxable income. The loss limitation had always been $1000 in the past.

Losses in excess of the yearly limit are not totally wasted. They still can be carried forward to future years and be applied against gains or as a subtraction against other income But just as investors start to become acquainted with the nine-month period and the $2000 loss limitation, the rules re being changed again. Beginning in 1978 the holding period is extended to 12 months and the loss limitation has been raised to $3000. The change-over from a nine-month to a 12-month holding period is going to produce some quirks in the early months of this year. Investors will have to be sure of the rules or they could make some trades with serious unanticipated consequences. Consider the investor who bought some stock on March 15, 1977. On Dec. 16, 1977 he had owned it for longer than nine months. Any profitable sale from Dec. 16 through the end of long-term gain. But if he held back on the sale in December, and then decided to sell in January, he had a serious tax problem. What had been long-term in December became short-term in January because of the 12-month holding period in effect this year.

Normal Drivers Try To Better Mileage In Sports Car Rally

By WILLIAM SCHIFFMANN SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The place somewhere in the rolling hills of Marin County north of here. The event - the sports car rally of the future, a mileage run designed to see if normal drivers in late-model cars can better the estimated mileage figures prepared by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The 85-mile tour, run by the Sports Car Club of America and sponsored by Citicorp, began with an emissions test and a safety check. Then the gasoline tank was topped off and sealed.

The route rambled through city traffic and past country farms. The goal was to squeeze the utmost in distance from each gallon of increasingly precious gasoline while observing a series of instructions concerning route and speed.

The rally was a preliminary to the 1978 SCCA-Citicorp Economy Challenge, which will include 42 local events across the nation, 10 semifinals and a national championship event.

In the classic sports car rally, the driver and his navigator are pitted against the clock and a series of complicated route directions. By following instructions and keeping on schedule, the team should arrive at a destination in the time alloted for the trip.

Some rallies are simple, designed to give the weekend hobby driver an excuse to motor around the countryside. Others are more difficult

One recent bone-masher pitted 70 cars against an 18,000-mile route from London to Sydney, Australia. Drivers had to battle mountain roads, snow, ice, animal and human roadblocks and mechanical failure.

But with gasoline becoming scarcer, the rally as car fans have known it for years may be doomed. Economy runs, which have educational as well as entertainment value, may be their ultimate replacement.

For the mileage rally, the fuel gauge wasn't an accurate indication of performance. With a little cheating - coasting down hills, rolling through stop signs and driving far below the posted speed limits - my Saab EMS averaged 30.501 miles a gallon, 32.6 percent better than the EPA's estimate of 23 miles a gallon and good enough for first place in its class, third overall.

"It shows that ordinary people in evervday cars can get substantially greater economy than advertised." Darrell Beschem, a Department of Energy official. said before the rally proved him correct. "It shows how driving habits make a difference in fuel economy

Some drivers in earlier rallys had obtained up to 250 percent of EPA mileage figures. The best our group of 18 could produce was 186 percent, achieved by two men in a Porsche who coaxed 33.499 mpg from a car listed at 18.

Of course, many of their tricks, like mine, are frowned on by the law or go beyond what even the stingiest driver will do to improve mileage. They waxed the car - twice - the day before the rally to improve air penetration. They drove in top gear almost all the time, used both sides of the road, kept all windows shut tight and even readjusted the car's suspension to reduce rolling friction.

DOE distibuted its own list of things to do, including planning every move-in traffic, eliminating extra vehicle weight, using gravity to get the car rolling where possible and avoiding reverse

STILL DREAMING AND TRYING - Leon Douglass, 38, has been trying to become a country music headliner for more than half his life. The dream has eluded him and at times left him bitter. But Douglass, show here performing in Wheeling, W. Va. recently, says he wont quit trying. (AP Laserphoto)

20-Year Country Music Aspirant Still Trying

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) - Leon Douglass has a dream. He wants to be a country music headliner, to see his name in lights like Johnny Cash, Mel Tillis and Marty Robbins.

For Douglass, a native of Quad City, Ill., who now lives in Wheeling, the dream is something that's eluded him for 20 years. He was onstage recently for the 45th anniversary of Jamboree U.S.A., the weekly five-hour broadcast on radio station WWVA here.

Chasing stardom, he says, has meant "A lot of hard times, a lot of good times.

Douglass drives alone to most of his appearances. "I used to have a band," he says, "but expenses eat you up." And the road is not always easy.

"The bad times are not few and far between," he says. "I've had nights when I didn't get paid. When you went home, you didn't have rent.

"One time, I ate crackers and cheese for three days in Miami, Fla." he recalls. "I can remember when I couldn't make my car payment. I had to take a damn' bus.

At 38, Douglass realizes there are thousands like him for every Robbins or Cash.

"If I could just get that monster record, I could do it," he says, knowing full well the odds are against him. "Of the 300,000 records released this year, that's a lot of records to get that one."

At times, he says, the chase is a bitter one.

"Every guy in the business always thinks they're better than the next guy," Douglass says. "Here I am, bustin' my butt, trying to get a hit record and some dude comes out of nowhere. They just got there before I did."

Douglass quit singing in 1970 because of illness, but he was away from the business only a year.

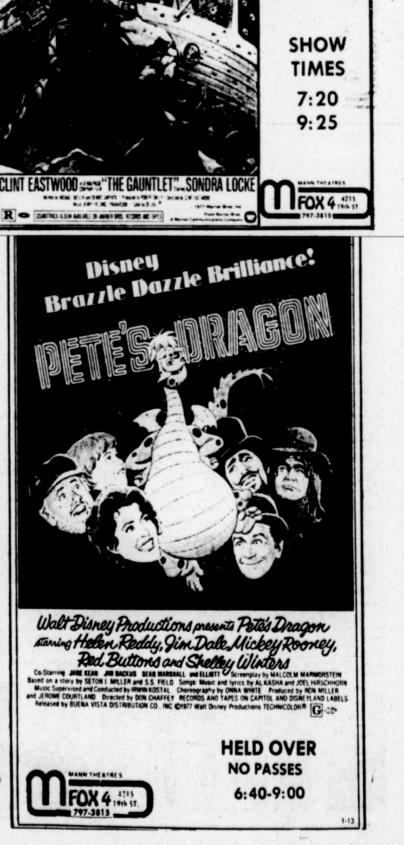

"I may have to drive a truck during the day, but I'll still try to find a club to play in on the weekends," he says. "You don't care what you're getting paid. You just want someone to like you. You eat it up. Money is not the glory. It's the applause when you go out on that stage.

Douglass says the dream keeps him going. But he says he wouldn't encourage others to enter the competitive field.

"There are too many people in the business who never make it." he says. They lose everything they got. They have a determination that's just not meant to be

Reflecting for a moment, he adds, "I wasn't smart enough to get out when times were bad."

Dallas, Denver Unimpressed By Super Bowl

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) - Dallas and Denver like the attention but they aren't all that thrilled about the Super Bowl.

They're too young.

Dallas, 5, and Denver, 1, are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Larry DeWees of Farmington.

DeWees, dean of students at Farmington High School and a former football coach there, named his oldest son Dallas after a friend and because of Ralph Neeley, the Farmington native who is all-pro tackle for the Dallas Cowboys.

Then along came a second son, to have one named Denver if you have one named Dallas," DeWees said.

Things are so bad that it's even hard to find a good set of pipes in Scotland, the National Geographic Society reports.

"Finding decent pipes is very difficult," confirms Scots Guard Pipe Major John G. Slattery, whose groups recently appeared at the Capital Centre near Washington, D.C. "Many of the old master bagpipe makers have died. Those who remain are few and far between."

A clan unto themselves in Scotland, bagpipe makers guard their craft jealously and few pass along trade secrets to apprentices. The problem is compounded by a shortage of African blackwood, a prime ingredient in a good set of pipes. A very hard wood, it doesn't absorb much moisture.

Nobody knows exactly how many bagpipes there are in the United States, but the ancient art of bagpiping is more popular than ever. Lively skirls inspire college football teams, brighten parades, and enliven meetings of fraternal organizations.

The instruments seem to inspire musicians regardless of origin or sex. An all-woman band from the University of Iowa regularly receives rave reviews in its appearance around the country.

The increased popularity of the pipes is only the latest example of the high respect people have given them for thousands of years. The bagpipes' scattered origins go back at least 3,000 years to the Hittite culture in present-day western Turkey. Eventually their high-pitched wail was heard in Greece, India, and even China.

At some point the migrating Celts heard piping, fell in love with it, and adopted it as their own, although there are some who say the Romans were the first to skirl their way into Britain with bagpipes. A Roman historian of the first century claimed that Emperor Nero 'knew well how to play" the pipes.

At one time or another most of Europe listened to the bagpipe in one of its many forms, and in 18th-century France it became fashionable as the musette. But it was not in the drawing rooms of but on the battlefield that it found its ultimate identity. For centuries its shrill voice roused the fierce Highlanders to deeds of valor as clan battled clan, and there's still not a Scottish regiment that doesn't liven its step to the resounding wail of the pipes.

Stage Set For Chess Finals

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - Vic- Korchnoi said, "Karpov is a damned tor Korchnoi, former Soviet chess champion now in exile, won the right Thursday to play Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union for his world chess title by defeating Boris Spassky in the challengers' finals.

Spassky, a former world champion, resigned the adjourned 18th game of the match immediately after play was resumed and his sealed 41st move of Wednesday was opened. This gave Korchnoi a winning score of 10.5 to 7.5 points.

Umpire Bozidar Kazic slit the envelope in silence, made the move on Spassky's behalf and activated Korchnoi's clock. Spassky reached over to block the clock in a gesture of defeat in both the 18th game and the 20-game match.

Korchnoi, 46, said he is prepared to play Korpov, 27, for the world championship any time this year, possibly in August, and any place except the Soviet Un-

The Spassky-Korchnoi match began Nov. 21 and after 53 days ended without even the customary handshake between the two rivals.

Experts had foreseen a draw in the adjourned game. but Spassky's sealed move turned out to be a weak one which would have brought a quick defeat.

Korchnoi said another move would have given Spassky chances for a draw. He continued: "I have outplayed my opponent in all the stages of the match. I displayed absolute superiority in the first part. I was not only better prepared, I also played in a

Relations between two former fellow Soviet players deteriorated during the match and at one point Korchnoi threatened to break off the play.

Korchnoi in turn objected to Spassky's practice of spending most of his time in his compartment on the wing of the stage

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Randy New- would have us laugh at Archie Bunker. man has long been a pop music gadfly, buzzing our ears with satires on the cruel and usual ways of man, singing gruffvoiced novel songs that lampoon prejudice and ignorance and other bad things. The outsized characters Newman makes are usually such complete buffoons that we have to laugh at them, in much the same way that Norman Lear

Newman needled rascists with his "Sail Away" (in which a callous slave trader asks Africans to come to America where they can 'drink wine and sing about Jesus') and "Yellow Man," a bigot's raving about the inferiority of Asians. He ridiculed Yankee hypocrites with his "Rednecks," in which Southern blacks were

be "Free to be put in a cage in Harlem, free to be put in a cage in Roxbury in Boston, free to be put in a cage in East St. Louis.

It all worked well, and Newman became one of pop's few major figures that could repeatedly get away with "message" songs, rare in this day of Shaun Cassidy. Each new album was eagerly awaited by the relatively small but hardcore group of Newman fans. It worked, that is, until one of Newman's crazy tales became a hit.

"Short People" is Randy Newman's first real success in the AM market, and it's left folks both amused and confused with lyrics such as these: "They (short people) got little baby legs and they stand so low, you got to pick 'em up just to say hello. They got little cars that go beep, beep, beep; they got little voices going peep, peep, peep. They got grubby little fingers, and dirty little minds, they're gonna get you every time

A ridiculous little song, true. But oh, how folks got riled.

Two stations in Boston refused to play the song because of a flood of calls and letters from listeners who thought it was insensitive. The 5-foot-7 station manager of both stations explained that children might begin to see themselves as "creepy little folks.

After reading that his song had been banned in Boston, Newman (who's 5 foot 11, by the way) laughed and said, "I don't

Grain Sorghum Growers Due Increased Payments

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Administration officials announced approval Thursday of a proposal by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland providing up to $533 million in increased deficiency payments on 1977 crops.

The proposal, which had been fought by White House budget officials, will give an estimated $208 million to barley growers and $300-$325 million to producers of grain sorghum by setting 1977 support targets for those crops at levels based on production costs.

("This means about $6,800 for every 1 of production beginning with the 1977 million pounds of grain sorghum produced, based on projected farm yields for 1977," pointed out Elbert Harp, executive director of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

(The national organization, headquartered in Lubbock, prompted a cost of production study to be written into the 1973 farm act. It then persuaded Congress to set the target levels in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 for sorghum and barley at the national average cost

(Previously, the target level for grain sorghum were established in accordance with its nutritional feeding value as compared with corn.)

Budget officials had wanted to continue to base the supports on a formula tied to the feeding value of the crops. It would have resulted in lower support rates and would have prevented any direct deficiency payments to growers. Coupled with $1.2 billion in payments already flowing to wheat farmers for the 1977 crop, the new action boosts total price support payments - the first on grains since 1973 - to about $1.7 billion. The latest payments were authorized in a White House decision approving Bergland's proposal to set the 1977 support target price for grain sorghum at $4.07 per hundredweight and the barley target at $2.15 a bushel.

Under farm law, these rulings automatically triggered government support payments to growers of the two crops because the targets are above market prices for the crops.

The average market price of barley for the first five months of the 1977 marketing season was $1.65 a bushel. As a result, growers will get payments con the 50 cent a bushel gap between the market and the newly-announced $2.15 target.

The average market price of sorghum will not be determined until March. But officials estimated it will be 62 to 68 cents a hundred below the target, resulting in payments of up to 68 cents per hundred

The administration decision was announced initially in Pullman, Wash., Thursday by Vice President Walter Mondale during his fence-mending tour of western states.

Plant Pest Programs Stressed

COLLEGE STATION (Special)-Three pest management programs on the Texas High Plains are helping farmers determine the best methods of combating plant pests to prevent economic losses, says an area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Use of the three programs will be explained here today by Dr. Pat Morrison of Lubbock at the annual extension press day at Texas A&M University.

The three programs involve cotton, corn, sorghum and sunflower cross in Hale, Floyd, Crosby, Castro and Lamb counties. Each project provides a large scale demonstration to show farmers the principles and tactics, developed by research, of managing pests in all four commodities, Morrison says.

Among the pest management strategies, the extension entomologist notes, are the use of economic thresholds, the insect pest level at which an insectide must be used to prevent economic losses to the grower

'When this threshold is exceeded, selected chemicals and rates are utilized," he says.

Other techniques utilized to help man- damage. Fields are scouted weekly, and dicts peaks for egg lay and larva appearage pest populations include the use of resistant plant varieties when available. taking advantages of naturally occurring parasites and predators and the use of some cultural practices, such as planting dates.

The three projects have been conducted in the Mt. Blanco community on the Floyd/Crosby county line, in the Edmonson and Hale Center area of Hale County, and in the Sunnyside community on the Castro/Lamb county border. Each project has a county extension entomologist directly responsible for its conduct, Morrison says. The Hale County program was begun in 1973 under the sponsorship of the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board. The other two pest management programs were initiated in 1976 with the assistance of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. In 1977, 75 producers participated.

They assigned 25,000 acres to the pro-Field scouts are employed each summer to gather unbiased field information on insect population trends and plant more often when warranted, Morrison says. This information is reported both to the participating growers and to the county extension entomologists.

Scouts include Texas Tech students. sons and daughters of area producers and other individuals interested in summer employment.

All scouts attend a three-day training school in Lubbock each year prior to the growing season, says Morrison. It includes pest biology and identification, scouting techniques, how the plants grow and reporting methods used. The training is open to private consultants and their summer employees, as well as the scouts in the extension projects, he notes.

Participating growers pay a per-acre fee to cover all scouting expenses, including salary and travel.

Key pests the project helps to combat include bollworms, greenbugs, the southwestern corn borer, spider mites and sunflower moth.

With the bollworm, an occasional pest on the South Plains, timing of control efforts is critical, Morrison says.

"Because the worms must be treated when small, a technique is being utilized which assists in determining when to watch for the bollworms' appearance." The technique, field tested on the South Plains for the first time last year, uses a computer model which predicts bollworm egg lay. The county extension entomologist daily monitors light trap bollworm moth catches.

This information is fed into a computer at Texas A&M University, which pre-ance "The greenbug is a major pest of sorghum in our area," Morrison says. With the availability of greenbug-resistant sorghum varieties, participating farmers are shown how to use the economic threshold in combination with a native small, parasitic wasp which is an enemy of the greenbug." The egg-laving activity of the corn borer is monitored so that treatment, if warranted, can be accurately timed, Morrison says. He notes that spider mites "present a difficult problem on corn in some areas, where mites are resistant to most registered miticides. The sunflower moth, which attacks only blooming sunflowers, can be an important pest, depending upon when the sunflowers were planted, says the entomologist. This moth occurs cyclically during the summer and selected planting dates can be used to help minimize its damage.

Morrison notes that the county extension entomologists, in addition to directing these pojects, also conduct other educational activities for growers in their counties. These include distribution of weekly insect newsletters, conducting insect result demonstrations, and assisting farmers and homeowners with insect

"In general, the growers participating in the programs have found it a valuable educational experience," Morrison says. "They are realizing the importance of making insect control decisions on the basis of field data from the scouting reports and economic thresholds.

Overseas Farm Market Effort To Be Pushed

Carter's budget proposals for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 will include a 44 percent boost in federal funds for overseas farm market development programs, informed sources say.

A congressional source said the administration would seek an increase of about $6 million for the program, which includes Agriculture Department aid for domestic farm commodity groups promoting sales abroad.

That would amount to a 44 percent hike over this fiscal year's federal contribution of about $13.6 million to the cooperative government-industry program.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President The department now makes the loans with federal funds but limits terms to three years.

> Congressional sources said Bergland indicated he may be ready to send a proposal on broadening the credit program to Capitol Hill next month.

Several House members already have put aides to work on preliminary drafts of legislation which would strengthen the Agriculture Department's overseas market development staff and broaden its credit authorities.

Sources said the bill being drafted may authorize the department to set up from 5 to 25 U.S. agricultural trade missions

The reported budget decision is one of several the administration is making in an attempt to soften farm unrest by promoting expanded foreign sales to strengthen crop prices.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland disclosed recently he is studying a proposal under which the USDA would broaden its commercial export credit program by offering to guarantee private export loans for seven or more years.

Insurance Premium Boosts Foreseen In Wake Of Blasts

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Grain industry officials Thursday said they were concerned about the potential of increases in insurance rates resulting from recent elevator blasts which killed 53 per-

A Houston official disclosed that the Port of Houston grain elevator had been notified its $30 million insurance policy would be canceled in 30 days. The cancellation could force closing of the elevator unless another policy can be arranged.

Leland Bartelt, administrator of the Federal Grain Inspection Service, said in an interview he had not heard of any other similar cases. But Bartelt said industry sources had told him they have been given indications that their insurance rates may "go much higher." Bartelt said he had received reports that a number of insurance firms are sending teams to inspect conditions in elevators where they have policies. A spokesman for the National Grain and Feed Association said that group had no information on policy cancella-tions or rate changes. But there is "concern about our ability to get adequate insurance and about its cost," the spokesman said.

GEORGE MAHON Mahon Slated To Speak At Cotton Meet

HOUSTON (Special) - Rep. George H. Mahon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, will speak at the National Cotton Council's annual meeting here Feb. 6-7 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. He is scheduled to address the industrywide convention during the first general session.

A veteran legislator, the Texas Democrat has served in Congress since creation of the 19th Congressional District in 1934. He became a member of the Appropriations Committee in 1939 and has been chairman since 1964.

Born in Louisiana, Mahon moved with his family to a cotton farm in West Texas as a child and has been engaged in farming all his life. He graduated from Simmons College in Abilene (now Hardin-Simmons University) and received a law degree from the University of Texas. He has been awarded honorary doctorates from five colleges.

Mahon began his law practice in Colorado City in 1925 and was elected county attorney the following year. Appointed district attorney in 1927, he was elected to three successive terms before running for Congress.

In addition to Mahon, other speakers at the meeting will include Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus and council president Jack G. Stone, Stratford, Calif., producer.

Some 1,500 cotton industry leaders from 18 states are expected to attend the council's 40th annual meeting. Program committees will meet at the headquarters hotel Feb. 3-4 to review council programs and map plans for 1978.

Kansas City, Mo. - Annually, the U.S. Department of Agriculture publishes a handbook of charts which show at a glance what has been happening in the business of farming over long periods of time.

The new 1977 book just released has more charts than ever before, and it also includes some information not provided in previous editions.

It is interesting to study these charts and accompanying explanations, not only because they supply official data on agriculture in general, but because they help to explain many of the developments that affect the agriculture economy

For instance, the total output of U.S. farms increases almost every year. There are some exceptions, of course, when droughts or some other disaster curtail yields. But over a period of several years, the chart line on total production definitely is upward.

Perhaps it comes as a surprise to see that on a percentage basis, increases in farm output in other developed countries of the world have outpaced those in the United States. The chart on this situation goes back to 1955.

The underdeveloped countries have had the biggest increases of all. However, the lesser developed countries lag behind the United States and the other developed nations on a per capita basis. But the other developed or industrial nations have increased their per capita output at a greater rate than the United States.

All of this suggests that the whole world is growing, people everywhere want to eat better and, in many instances, they can.

The efficiency of the American farmer is illustrated by a chart which shows that output per man-hour on farms has jumped about 60 percent since 1967 while the increase in nonfarm business has been only about 12 percent. This chart suggests why fewer farmers are able to produce more than ever before.

Incidentally, farm output in total was greater in 1977 than in any previous year, nearly 2 percent greater than in 1976 and more than 20 percent above 1965. Crop production in 1977 was at a record level with crop yields at or near records and an acreage the largest in two decades.

Livestock production was high, too. Farm assests have increased tremendously in recent years, primarily because of booming real estate values. On Jan. 1, 1977, these assets were five times their value in 1950. Farm debts have been rising at an equal pace, but the debt-to-asset ratio hasn't varied widely.

gest drops were in the early 1930s in the depth of the depression.

The United States has a land area of 2,-264 billion acres. About one-fifth is cropland, more than a fourth permanent pasture and range, and nearly a third in forests. The peak year for the number of acres used in crops was 1949.

Through the 1950s and the 1960s land used for crops trended downward, largely because of acreage controls. The upturn came in the 1970s and now land use for crops is back to where it was in 1955. About 41 million acres are irrigated in the United States with the greatest concentrations in Kansas and Nebraska. Irrigation is irregular in some areas, often because they don't have the water supplies, or because sufficient rain eliminates the necessity for irrigation.

Fertilizer use has increased tremendously since 1950, despite rising costs in recent years.

Of especial interest to the grain trade about 50 percent in volume in the last 10 years while the total value has doubled because of higher prices. Most of the farm exports, about 95 percent now, are sold for dollars or convertible currencies. The remainder moves under concessional terms to less developed countries. Ten years ago, government programs accounted for 20 percent of the agricultural exports.

World coarse grain production increased from 596.2 million metric tons in 1970 to 691.6 million in 1976. Of the 1976 total, Canada, the United States and Central America produced 22.9 million tons, Europe including the Soviet Union produdced 246.7 million tons. Asia produced 118.5 million tons, and Africa, South America and Oceania together accounted for 96.4 million tons.

But when it comes to exports of coarse grain, the United State dominates, accounting in 1976 for 48.6 million tons out of a world total of 88.5 million tons.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A ROW CONSTRUCTION METHOD TESTED and discarded in the 1930s is being re-evaluated on the High Plains and researchers have improved cotton yields with it as much as 41 pounds per acre, on the average.

Elmer Hudspeth, engineer with the Agricultural Research Service at Lubbock, reported on "basin tillage" Thursday at the 1978 Beltwide Cotton Production-Mechanization Conference in Dallas.

Hudspeth, whose work is in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, said basin tillage is a method of temporarily blocking crop furrows with small earth dams to catch rainfall better and let the water soak into the soil rather than run off.

When rain falls, it is impounded in the basins where adequate time for infiltration is provided," he said. "Infiltration is of particular importance to semiarid regions where the growing season rainfall often is of high intensity and short duration.

ABOUT 80 PERCENT OF THE ANNUAL rainfall in the Lubbock area occurs during the crop-growing season

As an example of the potential for water conservation offered by basin tillage, Hudspeth pointed out that 3.9 inches of rain fell in eight days in July 1976. Of that amount, he said, 1.1 inches were added to the soil reserve in a conventionally-tilled field, compared with 3.2 inches in the basin-tilled field. Earlier experiments with basin tillage may have been discouraged because of the rough ride the small dams cause as farm machinery moves down the row, he noted, but present tests use plows to remove the mounds of soil before the wheels reach the dams Experimental machines also can build the dams quickly by simple attachments to ordinary farming equipment, he said. The devices used in the trials were designed and built by Dr. William Lyle of the Experiment Station at Lubbock.

SCIENTISTS ARE GETTING MUCH BETTER results with basin tillage than were recorded almost 50 years ago, Hudspeth said, and other countries also use the method for better crop yields.

Another incentive for basin tillage is the current energy shortage and the necessity for farmers to use as little water as possible in irrigation systems.

Non-irrigated cotton produced under the basin-tillage method yielded 342 pounds per acre in 1975, 539 in 1976 and 374 in 1977. These lint yields compared with those from cotton under the conventional-tillage method of 298 pounds in 1975, 488 pounds in 1976, and 345 pounds in 1977.

Thus the basin-tillage method gave per-acre dryland yield advantages of 44 pounds in 1975, 51 pounds in 1976 and 29 pounds in 1977.

Disappearance Of Farmlands Jeopardizes Food Supplies

WASHINGTON (AP) - There seems January 1980 a five-year program for soil to be a rising awareness in government, including Congress and the Agriculture Department, that when millions of acres of farmland "disappear" each year, the nation's food supply sooner or later will be in jeopardy.

During 1977, for example, total land in farms declined by almost 2.7 million acres. That represents about 4,200 square miles, almost the land area of Connecticut. As of Jan. 1, about 1.07 billion acres were in farms.

Actually, according to the department's Statistical Reporting Service, last year's decline in acreage of farmland was less than in 1976. Also, records show that farmland has declined steadily since reaching a peak of about 1.16 billion acres in 1950.

The main concern of many people, including state and local authorities, is the conversion of some of the nation's most productive land from crops to other uses such as suburban development, recreation, highways and other non-farm uses.

For about two years, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service has been mapping areas where prime farmland is located to help pinpoint where some of the future problems may develop as non-agricultural uses expand.

Also, Congress last year passed the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act, which requires the Agriculture Department to make a "continuing appraisal" of farmland, trends in its use and the short-term and long-term needs related to it.

The new law also requires Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to submit by and water conservation.

Although these and other moves represent positive steps by the federal government toward general conservation goals for land and water, they still do not include or embrace a national policy for land use.

A memorandum issued by Bergland last month outlining duties of his department's land-use committee included these two declarations:

- "That the major responsibility for land use policy, planning and regulations rests with local and state government ... - "That the rights and responsibilities of landowners and operators in making land use decisions must be recognized in administering federal programs." Thus, barring new, tough land-use legislation by Congress, the role of the department and other federal agencies will be to counsel, educate and otherwise work with state and local units of government on land-use problems.

Previous attempts at national land-use strategy in Congress have been weak or have been shelved because of heavy opposition from many quarters, including some farm groups which fear that basic freedoms could be threatened if the government gets involved in land-use regulation.

Almost two years ago, the Agriculture Department published a brief report on "Land Use Policy and Agriculture: A National Perspective" in which the author began:

Preservation of agricultural land is a controversial topic. There is little disagreement that the supply of agricultural land is limited, that the competition for it is increasing, and that public policy is needed to assure its wise use. However, there is disagreement over how far public land policy should go to maintain privately owned land in agricultural uses. The author of the report is Melvin L. Cotner, director of the natural resources economics division of the department's Economic Research Service. In a recent telephone interview. Cotner said that national land policy for the most part still is in "a state of limbo" and that not much has changed in the two years since he wrote his report.

"There's been no federal legislation to support land-use planning at the state level, so the policy still is that we're in a state of flux," Cotner said. "The new soil and water conservation law is a step, a part of it, but as far as over-all national land policy is concerned, it hasn't come together yet.'

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Morning, January 13, 1978-D-11

Cotner also said that while the figures can vary somewhat from year to year, the trend of declining land in farms seems to be fairly stable. But this is not a major worry in itself, he said.

"It's the good agricultural land that we're expressing concern about, and we ought to have our eyes open when those conversions (to non-farm uses) are made." Cotner said.

Even so, Cotner said, there will be ample land to produce crops "at least in the forseeable future" - the next 25 years.

"Given our expectations on rising productivity levels, even though they may not rise as fast as in the last 30 years, we don't think that within the U.S. that we've got any problem whatsoever in producing the food and fiber needs of the country and still have the capacity to produce for sizeable export needs," he said.

Not all farmland is used for crops. In fact, most of it is used for other purposes, including pastures for livestock, areas for farm homes and other buildings, waterways and wooded areas.

Cotner said in his 1976 report - which he said is still valid today - that about 385 million acres is used for crop production of all kinds.

Inventories by the Soil Conservation Service indicate that more than 100 million acres of additional land could be planted with crops relatively easily if needed. Most of the land now is in pasture.

Cotner's report said that "if we assume that 100 million acres can be brought into production by 1985, grain sorghum acreage could increase twofold, cotton and citrus acreage by two-thirds, wheat by more than half, soybeans by one-third and corn by 20 percent."

In addition, "new" land is brought in to production annually through reclamation projects, drainage of wetlands and other efforts.

M. Rupert Cutler, assistant secretary for conservation, research and education, says that prime farmland needs "to be a major thrust of the USDA over the next few years," irrespective of how much land there is in reserve.

"It is folly to shift prime farmlands out of agriculture and try to make up the production by draining and plowing up America's wetlands and other fragile. environmental areas," Cutler said recently.

"It is folly to urbanize the acres that withstand soil erosion well and plow up other acres that wash or blow away easily." he added.

Cutler said that his aim will be to guide department programs under his jurisdiction - which includes the Soil Conservation Service - ways that have "the maximum favorable effect on localdecisions about prime farmlands" and their use.

"America ought to be able to plan urban expansion in ways that do not affect more acres than necessary and that do not unfairly infringe on the other values of land," he said.

Farm Decline To Continue

AUSTIN (Special)-The decline in the number of Texas farms is expected to continue in 1978, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

Projections by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service indicate that the pattern of losing 3,000 farms a year had slowed to 2,000.

"But when you consider that we have lost 12,000 farms since 1974 has been 2 million acres. The projection for loss in acreage for 1978 is 200,000," Brown add-

The size of farms has been increasing each year, from 678 in 1974 to 710 acres in 1978.

"This means that those farmers and ranchers going out of business have for the most part sold their land to other agricultural producers." Brown explained. Texas farms are the largest in the nation, and the state has the most acreage devoted to farming and ranching. The U.S. total land in farms, is 1,072,333,000

Land Price Gains Contribute To Fall In Actual Farm Profits

NEW YORK (UPI) - The current asking price for an acre of Illinois corn land that will yield 150 to 200 bushels ranges up to $4,000.

"If a farmer has to finance most of that at today's 10 percent interest cost there's no way he's going to make it pay." says Raid Thorp, who handles farmland price statistics for the Department of Agriculture. Thorp is a native of the central Illinois corn belt.

He points out that prices of farmland buying up so much U.S. land, either idle or currently in use, that several states, Nebraska for example, have passed laws to restrict foreign ownership of land or are considering doing so.

The dramatic rise in the price of American farmland takes on a forbidding aspect when it is coupled with recent predictions by Chicago's Continental Bank and Moody's Investors Service in New York that, although farm income likely will reach an all time this year.

Continental Bank said the squeeze will not be felt uniformly. How it affects the individual farmer will depend largely on when he bought his land and how much he owes on it and on his farm machinery. And of course local weather will play a big role.

Borrowing too much to pay too high a price for land to grow grain or cotton or feed hogs, beef cattle or dairy cows is an old story. Optimism seems to rise eternally in the breast of the sodbuster; he always hopes the next two crops will make him rich. As long as the banks and the seed and feed stores and the farm machinery equipment manufacturers will extend him credit, he is inclined to give large rein to his optimistic vision. Many years ago a northern banker wandered into an emergency meeting of planters in Memphis called to consider one of the recurrent financial crises in cotton production. "How much does it really cost to grow cotton?" the northerner asked a local banker. The Memphian laughed and said, "Invariably it costs one to two cents a pound more than the previous year's crop fetched."

CHICAGO (AP) - Grain futures prices were essentially unchanged, although talk of possible U.S. sovbean oil sales to China boosted those contracts for a third session Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade

> Although Chinese oil buying remained unconfirmed, both exporters and commission houses were heavy buyers of soybean oil futures.

> But most contracts again traded within extremely narrow ranges, with wheat futures showing the most change - a maximum mp of 11/2 cents in the March contract

> Martiet analysts said that much of the day's activity was dictated by technical considerations. Some pressure was traced to a government report on traders' ommitments

> The monthly report groups traders into several categories, including speculators and hedgers. large and small traders, and whether they have bought or sold contracts.

> Analysts said the report was bearish to soybean meal futures, for example, and those deliveries closed moderately lower despite good demand for the cash prod-

At the close, soybeans were 3/4 cent lower to 3/4 cent higher, with January contracts quoted at $5.961/4; wheat was 11/2 cents lower to 1/2 cent higher, March $2.77%: corn was unchanged to 1/4 cent higher, March $2.24 % and oats were % to 11/4 cents higher, March $1.323/4.

Live Cattle Futures Dip To New Daily Lows

By Reuters

CHICAGO - On a turnover of 7.815 contracts, live cattle futures slipped to new daily lows in a finish 30 points lower to 10 higher Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

June was down most with nearby contracts higher. February gained 22 points early in the session and January rose to a one-week high.

Early buying spilled over from Wednesday but met resistance as hog and belly futures weakened. Later months ran into spread selling against purchases of nearby options with firmer beef prices a determining factor.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 68 1/4 to 68 3/4 cents per pound for all weights. Cash cattle were up 25 cents to off a like amount with the top at $45 per hundredweight.

The six markets expect 6,300 head to arrive today. Slaughter Thursday was 150.000 head.

Hog futures closed 60 points higher in distant February but other months were as much as 47 weaker led by July. The nearby was off 55 points early. Volume was estimated at 5,439 trades.

Reaction continued from Wednesday with heavy hog runs and lower prices coupled with increased kill overshadowing a firm tone to hams and loins. Slippage in the belly pit also was a factor and forced prices to two-week lows.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 11/2 cents at 801/2 to 83 cents per pound, f.o.b. river points, a three-week high. Cash hogs were off $1.25 to up 50 cents with the top at $45.40 per hundredweight, a one-week low, at Indianapolis. Thursday's kill was estimated at 326,-000 head. Today the six major terminals expect 19,800 head to arrive.

Pork belly futures (bacon) skidded 122 points in February before finishing 87 points lower to 22 higher. August was up most with February still weakest.

farm profit in real terms may plunge next year to the lowest level since 1934. That was the first full year of the New Deal farm policies and subsidies put together by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Henry A. Wallace.

Grain and livestock farmers will be most severely squeezed next year, Continental Bank said, because their operating costs and financial costs are likely to keep right on rising in spite of falling prices.

Sales were estimated at 6,207 cars in a mostly local trade.

Heavy hog runs and lower prices brought on profit-taking and other selling. Mostly easier cash bellies and stepped up kills also were bearish even though Chicago stocks continued to fall. Wholesale bacon was off two cents to up one-fourth cent at 57 to 62 cents per pound, f.o.b. river.

A considerable part of that increased cost reflected the willingness of the planter to borrow

That is what is happening to many farmers all over America right now.

"The farmer is harder pressed to make a speculative investment pay off than investor-managers in other businesses," Thorp said, "because he can't shift gears and change his marketing strategy to create new markets where markets don't yet exist, as leaders of some other businesses can.

Stock Mart Advances

NEW YORK (AP) - A late upturn in the dollar and some favorable inflation news helped the stock market chalk up its first gain of 1978 in an erratic session Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 6 points at its mid-afternoon peak, settled for a 2.25 advance to 778.15.

The average had fallen more than 55 points over the first seven sessions of the year, closing both Tuesday and Wednesday at new lows since April of 1975.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 4-3 spread on the New York Stock Exchange, and the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks crept up .08 to 49.60.

Volume on the Big Board came to 22.73 million shares against 22.88 million in the previous session.

Brokers said the market's early-1978 decline had reached the point at which many chart-watching traders expect a technical rally.

Prices managed a small advance at the outset after the government reported that the wholesale price index rose 0.5 percent in December, down from 0.7 percent the month before.

 New York (AP) - Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Rangers Finish Probes In Shooting Incidents

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING-District Attorney Rick Charles Hodges. Hamby announced Wednesday that the Texas Ranger investigations into the shooting deaths of Tiburcio Griego Santome and Juan Galaviz have been completed and would be presented to grand juries.

"I would like to stress that any person who has information which pertains to either of these cases should come forward and contact my office," Hamby said, ess some new leads come up. I

County's Finances Show Improvement

A-J Correspondent CHILDRESS — Childress County's financial condition is somewhat improved over last fiscal year, according to County Judge Harper Knight

Commenting on the county's annual fiscal report, Knight said total indebtedness is about $48,000, while cash on hand and certificates of deposit total $183,000, leaving an operating balance of about $135,-000

"This time we don't have a deficit, and we have a little more money than at the close of business last year," Knight stated.

He added that the last audit showed that the county had a deficit of $39,000.

Salaries of county officers and personal, with the exception of the road and maintenance department, are paid through fines and fees collected by the county. Knight noted that the officers' salary fund showed a large increase during the fiscal year because of revenue gained through the two justice of the peace courts.

Figures show that almost $100,000 was collected through these courts during the year, mostly from traffic fines. Knight said the fiscal report was for the year ending Sept. 30, 1977. The judge also noted that the county commissioners recently approved transferring $2,500 of revenue sharing funds from the building improvement account to the office supply and equipment fund. Recent purchases approved by the court include a quantity of supplies for the district court reporter, as well as two chairs to be used in the tax assessorcollector's office.

Knight said county officials had been considering vandalism insurance coverage on certain equipment, but that the matter has been tabled since commissioners felt that estimates received were too expensive to warrant such coverage.

SOCIABLE NEWSGATHERING

The first newspaper-woman was Madame Doublet de Persan (1677-1771) a widow of Paris who never left her apartment for 40 years but held parties daily at which each guest was required to give her a tidbit of news. She then produced a handwritten newspaper-each issue of which was widely circulated for months.

"We'd like to get to them as soon as possible," Hamby continued, "and I'd like to get them presented next month . Santome was shot Nov. 7 by ex-deputy G.B. Thurwanger after he was arrested in St. Lawrence by Sheriff Royce Pruit. Santome allegedly pulled a kitchen knife from his belt and assaulted Pruit and Thurwanger as they drove him to Garden City. The investigation was handled by Texas Ranger Eddie Almond.

Santome had been arrested at a festival in St. Lawrence on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Galaviz was shot Dec. 8 by Big Spring police sergeant Leroy Spires. The shooting followed a high speed chase and an assault allegedly made by Galaviz on a local woman. That investigation was han-
