WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter told his Cabinet today that he found foreign leaders gravely concerned about U.S. inaction on energy.

Reporting on his recent trip to Europe, Asia and the Middle East, the president told his department heads he found "grave concern expressed in every foreign capital" about U.S. inability to deal with its energy problems.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, who left before the Cabinet meeting for energy discussions in Morocco and Saudi Arabia, said Sunday the president told foreign leaders he might impose oil import fees if Congress fails to enact an acceptable energy program.

Carter has won a new commitment from Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate energy committee, for "a whole new effort" to break the impasse on energy legislation.

White House press secretary Jody Powell, who reported Carter's remarks to the Cabinet today, said the president was surprised by the "depth of concern" he heard overseas about excessive U.S. energy imports and their effects, including damage to the dollar.

"The depth of that concern was even greater than we expected," the press secretary said.

Schlesinger will tell the Saudis that the United States would certainly like to see the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries continue its freeze on oil prices, Powell said.

But he added that the Saudi response is likely to be something like: "We see the dollar falling. That's what you pay us in. One reason for the fall is your trade deficit. The main problem with that is your energy imports. When are you going to do something?"

Although Powell said it might be necessary to get tougher "down the road" than even the toughest energy plan likely to come from Congress this year, he said a survey by pollster Pat Caddell shows a bright spot: Americans are more energy conscious.

The poll shows the number of people who name energy among the nation's top four problems "quadrupled over the past year," Powell said. Asked for the figures in the poll, he said the percentage went from "a little under 10 to over 30 percent."

"It's not as high as it should be," Powell said. "But it's a rather remarkable increase in public concern."

Official Blasts Farm Controls

HOUSTON (AP)—The president of the American Farm Bureau Federation says farmer strikes are self-defeating, but that farmers do need a sharp reduction in federal regulations.

Allan Grant, Visalia, Calif., made the remarks as he prepared for today's opening of the annual convention of the federation that represents more than 2.6 million farm families.

Grant also called for a sharp increase in exporting American food products as part of the solution for higher farm prices.

He was critical of the Carter Administration and federal agencies he said "are mindlessly strangling agriculture with reams of paper work and administration orders that resemble totalitarian societies."

Farm Bureau members, Grant said, produce about 80 percent of the nation's commercial food crops and are thinking about planting and harvesting, not striking.

"So we hope we won't have to line up a couple of dozen tractors at City Hall to let you know we're here," he said.

"Of course, we are in sympathy with the plight of farmers who call for the strike. Farm income is a severe problem. The tractorcades have identified and dramatized a real problem but have done so without presenting any real solution."

Grant said a strike is not practical and farmers, in good conscience, cannot consider using food as a weapon. The solution, he added, is better income in the marketplace and federal government regulations.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland was to speak at tonight's convention session.

No resolutions opposing or supporting the current strikes protesting farm prices are on the agenda of the organization that represents more than 2.6 million farm families.

However, one official said it is probable discussions about the strike will develop from the floor when resolutions are considered at the closing sessions Wednesday and Thursday.

A-J News Services

Winter went on a violent rampage today from coast to coast.

Heavy snows knocked out power, blocked highways and closed schools in the central Appalachians, upper Ohio Valley and lower Great Lakes regions.

An intense rain and wind storm battered New England and New York state, triggering flooding and power failures and slowing traffic to a crawl in dozens of communities.

Bitter cold swept all the way from the northern Plains and upper Midwest to the Gulf and deep into Florida. It was 27 below zero at International Falls, Minn., and the wind chill hit 70 below zero in Iowa. Forecasters warned that frostbite could strike quickly in the harsh winds.

Thermometers sank to their lowest levels of the season across Texas' South Plains and Panhandle this morning, but the frigid weather was expected to be short-lived.

Temperatures from area reporting stations ranged from 5 degrees at Floydada to 18 at Big Spring, with many readings in the sub-teens.

Lubbock's 12-degree overnight low, recorded about 8 a.m., had risen to 20 degrees by mid-morning, and the mercury was expected to push into the 40s this afternoon.

The National Weather Service predicted area temperatures would drop to the mid-20s tonight. Tuesday's high reading should reach the 50s and a spokesman said a "gradual warming trend" is likely during the remainder of the week.

Weather watchers said this morning they expect a chance of precipitation in some Panhandle areas Wednesday, but said chances are slim there and nil here.

The bitter South Plains temperatures were attributed to "a fairly brisk arctic front" that moved into the area Saturday morning and was reinforced by another cold air mass Sunday. But this morning's 12-degree low offered little challenge to the area's record 2-degree reading set in 1920.

Clear skies prevailed over Texas today, while temperatures ranged from near 10 degrees in the Panhandle to near 30 along the coast and the 40s in deep South Texas. But overnight lows generally landed in the teens and 20s in Texas.

In New Mexico, temperatures were expected to drop to the teens and 20s tonight with highs today and Tuesday reaching the 40s and 50s in the northern and mountainous regions of the state and the 60s along the southern border.

Forecasts for northern New Mexico mountains included some snow.

Few South Plains towns reported temperatures of more than 15 degrees during the 24-hour period ending at 8:45 a.m. today.

Big Spring reported an 18-degree reading. Silverton recorded a 15-degree reading during that time frame.

Other area lows included 13 degrees at Tahoka, Lamesa and Seminole; 12 at Aberrath, Brownfield, Crosbyton, Friona, Jayton, Lubbock and Paducah; 11 at Dimmitt, Hereford, Littlefield, Lockettville, Matador, Morton, and Plainview; 10 at Levelland, Plains, Post and Tulia; 9 at Muleshoe Refuge; 8 at Spur and Olton; 7 at Silverton and 5 at Floydada.

The violent clash of warm and cold air touched off tornadoes and high winds in central and south Florida Sunday. One man was killed at Dunedin when a gust lifted his parasail 50 feet into the air and slammed him against a tree.

An unidentified bridge tender was reported missing — perhaps blown into the Manatee River — at Bradenton, Fla. A twister wrecked a mobile home park at

Dallas Wins Case Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a racial court's decision striking down as locally discriminatory the way Dallas elects its city council.

The justices voted to study an appeal by officials who claim the present system used to elect the city's 11-member city council is racially neutral.

The Supreme Court's decision to review the Dallas case probably will mean a further postponement in a similar Lubbock suit.

(Although he noted he cannot second-guess U.S. Dist. Court Judge Halbert Woodward, Asst. City Atty. Jim Brewster said he suspects the judge will delay hearing the case of Gene Gaines vs. the City of Lubbock until the Dallas appeal is heard.)

(Brewster said he suspects the Court's decision "probably would affect us" if heard on major points. Woodward already had postponed the Gaines case until the Court's decision was made.)

Gaines, a black attorney and local NAACP leader, charged the city's at-large election system dilutes minority voting strength and thus denies minorities representation on the five-member city council. He filed his suit in April, 1976, as an eleventh-hour attempt to halt municipal elections.

(After numerous delays requested by both sides, Woodward recently reset the hearing on his April 10 docket.)

Last May, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the election system employed by Dallas results in an illegal dilution of minority voting power. That system has yet to be changed.

In August, Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. held in abeyance the effect of the circuit court's ruling. Last month, the court refused the request of some black voters to postpone an election for one of the 11 council seats under the system struck down in May.

Currently, eight seats on the City Council are selected on a district basis — with candidates having to meet residency requirements in a specific district and the voting for those candidates limited to district residents.

The other three seats, including the mayor's job, are selected on an at-large basis, with no candidate requirement for residency in a certain district and city-wide voting.

All elections for Dallas offices are non-partisan, with candidates running on slate groups rather than as Republicans, Democrats or members of some other political party.

The appeals court said that only the mayor's job may be filled by a citywide vote, and that the other 10 council seats

Dirk West Will Seek Mayorship

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In what came as no surprise to anyone, Lubbock City Councilman Dirk West today became the first formal candidate for mayor.

West's announcement, made at a morning news conference, confirmed widespread rumors that he will be one of two serious contenders to succeed Mayor Roy Bess, who recently declared he will not seek a third term.

Council colleague Alan Henry, also frequently mentioned as a possible candidate, today said he will announce his future political plans within the "next few days."

Henry said West's candidacy "is only one of many factors to be considered in making my decision."

Both West's and Henry's council terms expire this spring.

West, long a law-and-order advocate and police department supporter, singled out crime control as the focus of his campaign and mayorship, if elected.

"I am a real redneck when it comes to crime control," he said. "We must get tougher on law violators, work harder at crime prevention, back our police 100 percent and make Lubbock a very unpopular place for the criminal element."

West said his approach to crime and traffic problems is simple: "abide by the law or pay for it."

Although he did not propose specific measures control, West said that "between now and election time, I hope to have formulated plans to present."

However, his overall approach will be to "start leaning on these people (criminals) a little harder or maybe a lot harder," West added.

Other issues he would address as mayor include controlling the cost of living in Lubbock and guiding the city through "growing pains" and accompanying problems, he said.

"As Lubbock continues to grow, more and expanded services must be provided," West said. "Very careful planning

LITTLEFIELD — Even traditional Monday wash day has been canceled in Littlefield as every business in town is reportedly closed today in support of the American Agriculture movement.

Washaterias, which usually remain open 24 hours daily, 365 days a year, were among the last businesses shut down today. Farmers surrounded the laundries in tractors, allowing customers time to dry their clothes before closing the facilities.

The local tax office closed and school was to recess at 2 p.m. today.

Although banks can not close for a full day due to federal regulations, Security State Bank posted signs in support of the American farmer and did not open until

Efforts To Cap Gas Well Fail

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Firefighters battling a raging natural gas well blaze near Loving, N.M., this morning briefly blasted out the blaze, but had to reignite it when they could not cap the escaping gas.

Earlier today, the world's best-known firefighter, Red Adair, told the Avalanche-Journal the fire, which was estimated to be burning 9 to 10 million cubic feet of gas daily, may soon be snuffed out.

Adair has sent two of his men — Raymond Henry and Paul Sauliner — to the blaze which began Wednesday morning. "I'm going to fly out there (Loving) today if I get caught up here," Adair said from his Houston office.

Adair said today's explosion blasted off the rotary table, which turns the drilling pipe, giving workers a better look at what needs to be done next.

Eddy County Sheriff's Sgt. Doc West said a 500-pound charge was dropped into the wellhead about 11:30 a.m. today, knocking out the raging fire.

However, workers at the scene had to reignite the escaping gas when they were unable to cap it.

Adair said his two-man crew, along with about 50 other men, should need no more assistance and that their jobs might soon be completed. "They've done a hell of a job so far," he said.

The well, which belongs to Delta Drilling Co. of Tyler, was being drilled on a 13,000-foot contract by Brahaney Drilling Co. of Midland when flowing gas got out of control Tuesday morning and was ignited Wednesday.

James Wible, executive vice president of Delta, said the mishap, which had not caused any injuries as of late this morning, began when the column of mud containing the gas flow pressure collapsed. He said the strength of the flow pressure had been underestimated, and broke through the mud barrier.

Wible said he did not know what caused the escaping gas to be ignited, but added the burning fuel was safer than if there was no fire at all. "We don't want flammable clouds of gas floating over the country," he said.

Wible said he estimated the gas was escaping at a rate of 9 to 10 million cubic feet daily, and would cost his company at least $400,000. He said there was about a "50-50" chance the blaze would be capped by the end of the week.

"The main thing right now is getting it stopped as soon as possible," said Adair, who just finished a job in Algiers and needed to get back to Canada where another task waits.

Wible said shields to protect the men from the burning gas had been completed. The executive said the gas pressure was about 5,700 pounds per square inch.

Stock Mart Dips Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Traders, stunned by the Federal Reserve Board's decision to raise its discount rate and a prime rate hike, went on a selling stampede today, driving prices sharply and broadly lower in heavy trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which plunged 11.43 points Friday, was off 9.18 points to 784.31 shortly before noon EST. Friday's close was the lowest since it finished at 784.16 on Oct. 1, 1975. The Dow plunged 37.68 points last week, the worst setback since it fell 41.87 points the period ended Dec. 5, 1975.

The Fed triggered selling by deciding late Friday to raise the discount rate it charges member banks for loans a half point to 6.5 percent. The Fed said it was taking this step to aid the slumping dollar, even if it hurts the economic recovery.

SARATOGA, Calif. (AP) — A retired space engineer says he is seeking sponsors for a rocket project that could lead to the world's first space rides for paying spectators.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

"Once we have a couple of successful launches, the cost per launch would be less than $10,000. I'd sell him a ticket," said Robert Truax, 60, technical manager of Evel Knievel's unsuccessful rocket motorcycle attempt across the Snake River in 1974.

"It would be like climbing Mount Everest — one of those things you'd want to do before you die. Once we show it's reasonably safe, I think there are quite a few people who would do it."

Truax said Sunday that he is building a "boiler-plate model" of his proposed 25-foot rocket, which he said would shoot up 50 miles, then drop back gently into the ocean.

He said a height of 50 miles qualifies as "space" under an agreement reached years ago by the U.S. Air Force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Koch Leaves Mansion

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward Koch says he likes his three-room Greenwich Village apartment better than Gracie Mansion. So he's moved out of the official mayor's residence.

"Gracie Mansion's nice, but it's like a hotel," Koch said over the weekend. "I rattle around there."

Koch, a bachelor, moved into the 14-room mansion after taking office a week ago Sunday. The residence, on Manhattan's Upper East Side, was built in 1799. It has a staff of four kitchen and house workers.

Koch said he will live in his apartment overlooking Washington Square Park and use Gracie Mansion for official entertaining.

NAACP Honors Humphrey

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has been honored here as recipient of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's first Walter White Award.

The civil rights organization cited Humphrey Sunday night for his "crusade to eliminate poverty, bigotry and discrimination." The senator, ill with inoperable cancer, was unable to attend the awards banquet. His sister, Francis Howard, accepted the award in his behalf.

Benjamin Hooks, head of the NAACP, said the award, named in honor of the NAACP's executive secretary from 1931 to 1955, will be given annually to a person who has advanced the cause of racial equality.

Carter's Cousin Writing Book

NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh Carter, President Carter's cousin, is working on a book of reminiscences to be called "Cousin Beedie and Cousin Hot," according to Newsweek magazine.

The magazine reported Sunday that Hugh Carter, a Georgia state senator, is collaborating with Frances Spatz Leighton on the book, which uses as its title Hugh and Jimmy's respective boyhood names.

Hugh was quoted as saying the book will include fond memories as well as negative aspects of the Carter family. For instance, he is quoted as saying, "One of Jimmy's weaknesses is that he doesn't thank people enough. It's just not in his nature to show a whole lot of appreciation."

Horowitz Returns To Carnegie

NEW YORK (AP) — Pianist Vladimir Horowitz has performed in concert here with the same orchestra and in the same hall where he made his American debut 50 years ago.

The 74-year-old Horowitz, who last played with an orchestra at his silver jubilee on Jan. 12, 1953, chose Eugene Ormandy, 78, music director of the Philadelphia Orchestra since 1936, to conduct the Carnegie Hall concert with the New York Philharmonic on Sunday.

Horowitz, Ormandy and members of the orchestra all donated their services to the "Vladimir Horowitz Golden Jubilee," which cost $250 for each box seat. The $168,000 raised will go to the orchestra.

The concert was not played on the exact anniversary of Horowitz's Jan. 12, 1928, debut because, for the past 13 years, Horowitz has played only on Sunday afternoons, when he believes concert-goers are least tired.

Editor Predicts Uprising

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Woods, the banned newspaper editor who fled South Africa more than a week ago, predicts a general uprising by the 24 million blacks in his country against the white government within three years unless racial policies are modified.

He also predicted that the blacks would win over the 25 million whites in South Africa, even if it takes them 20 years.

Woods, editor of the East London Daily Dispatch in South Africa, was silenced by banning, a form of house arrest, before he escaped the country.

He said black South Africans look to the West to stop providing economic aid to the white government. If that doesn't happen, he said, young blacks will turn to Moscow and Peking for help.

He said racial policy is no more an internal South African matter than Hitler's policies were an internal German affair.

Totie Fields Wins Honor

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Totie Fields, the comedienne who made a nightclub and theater comeback after a leg amputation and a string of other medical maladies, has been named "Entertainer of the Year" by the American Guild of Variety Artists.

The 8,000-member guild, which has been presenting entertainment awards for eight years, also selected Miss Fields as female comedy star of the year. Other 1977 awards were announced previously.

The awards ceremony, hosted by comedian Jackie Gleason at Caesars Palace here, will be broadcast by CBS-TV on Jan. 18.

Singer Donates Funds To Orphanage

OSTEND, Belgium (AP) — Singer Ella Fitzgerald has donated $2,000 to the "Ibis" orphanage to help Belgian children, directors of the orphanage announced.

They said Sunday that a check from Miss Fitzgerald came in the mail as a "complete surprise" Friday.

Miss Fitzgerald sang at a gala here last July to raise funds for the orphanage. About $5,000 was raised then.

Elvis Fans Observe Birthday

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Rock music symbolized by sideburns and safety pins met in Memphis when Elvis Presley fans gathered to observe his birthday the same weekend the Sex Pistols introduced the city to punk rock.

Some complained about consumer riffs, but in the end the dead king of rock 'n' roll drew more of a crowd than the living, breathing British rockers, now on a U.S. tour.

Security officials at Graceland, the mansion where Presley lived, died and is now buried, said 9,600 fans showed up during the weekend to commemorate what would have been Elvis' 43rd birthday. Presley died Aug. 16 of a heart ailment.

The Sex Pistols — whose fans sometimes adorn themselves with safety pins stuck through their ears or cheeks — drew an audience of 650 and had a tough time holding on to that. Many in the audience walked out minutes after the show began Friday night.

"This is gross," said Missy Bynum, 23, of Memphis, watching lead singer Johnny Rotten blow his nose without benefit of handkerchief.

The Elvis faithful attended revival-like gatherings to remember the king. Two separate events were staged — "Remembering Elvis" at the fairgrounds and "A Tribute to Elvis" at the Cook Convention Center.

At the fairgrounds event, which cost $4 to enter, Presley's first customized Cadillac and one of his beds were on display.

The convention center exhibition, brought to Memphis by promoter Ed Say of Columbus, Ohio, offered fans copies of a home movie of the Presley funeral for $33, and candid photographs of Presley concerts in several cities. Admission was $2.50.

A number of complaints about the quality and nature of the exhibits were reported, and Dick Grob, chief of security at the Presley mansion, said he was sorry that "the people feel they're getting ripped off."

"Everything Elvis did was first class," Grob said. "I've seen him stop in the middle of a song that wasn't right, apologize to the audience and start it again. What's being done in his name isn't first class. I don't even think it's fourth class."

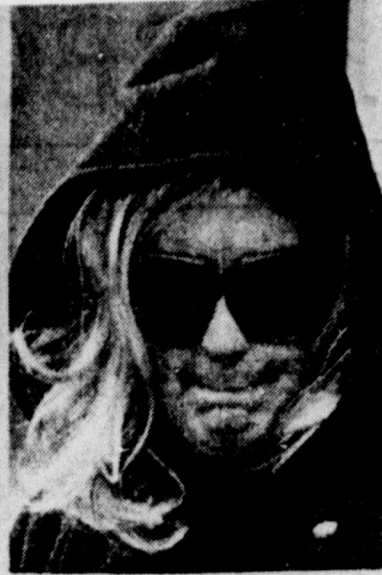

More than 1,000 floral arrangements — including a wreath of red and white carnations from Colonel Tom Parker, the architect of Presley's career — were sent to the mansion.

Doreen O'Brien, 22, and her brother, Tim, 14, drove from Los Angeles to see the gravesites.

"I came just to be close to him," said Miss O'Brien. "I consider myself more a friend than a fan because I don't love Elvis just because he was good-looking or talented. I loved him because he was a warm, friendly, good-humored and loving person."

Influenza Vaccine Data Sought

ATLANTA (UPI) — A top national Center for Disease Control virologist was gathering information on the Russian flu at a World Health Organization meeting in Geneva today to help American health officials decide whether to recommend manufacture of a new vaccine against the virus.

The fast-moving Russian flu strain, the same type that caused worldwide epidemics in 1945-47, already has swept the Soviet Union and shown up in Hong Kong, Taiwan and Finland.

It has not hit the United States yet, but health officials expect it will appear either this winter and spring or next winter.

Dr. Walter Dowdle, the CDC's leading virology researcher, will report back to a meeting of national health officials after the WHO session in Geneva.

At issue is whether federal health officials should recommend that drug companies start making a vaccine to protect against A-USSR. Drug manufacturers already have been given so-called "seed" specimens of the Russian flu virus and the CDC laboratories have done extensive work on the strain.

It probably would take several months to make and test any new vaccine if federal health officials do give drug manufacturers the go-ahead to develop it.

The current vaccine used against A-Victoria and A-Texas — flu strains now prevalent in this country — is useless against the Russian virus, which has a different makeup, health officials said.

But they add that people 23 years of age or older have some natural antibody defense against the strain.

If the decision is made to manufacture the vaccine, health official also would recommend the age groups and dosage of the vaccinations.

Also to be decided is whether the federal government should direct any immunization program — as it did with the controversial swine flu program — or if the vaccinations should be left to the private medical sector.

To learn more about the Russian flu, the CDC also is sending two other flu experts to the Soviet Union to gather first-hand information on the Russian epidemic.

Soviet health officials said the virus swept across the vast country, infecting an estimated 26 million Russians, particularly those in age groups 12-14 and 20-30.

The United States and WHO have had a worldwide flu surveillance network in place for some time to check on the spread of influenza. The United States recently increased its network at several major airports receiving direct flights from the Soviet Union and Hong Kong.

One of influenza's chief characteristics is its explosive ability to spread quickly over vast distances.

Group Protests Restriction On Police Use Of CBs

By PAT CARLSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A group of police and civilians, who say the Lubbock Police Department is "cutting its own throat" with an order severely restricting officers' use of personal CB radios, met this weekend in reaction to the recently issued memo.

Among those present at the session were two of the three women who police officials feel are too friendly with officers, and whose airway conversations have caused the department "embarrassment."

The furor was touched off Thursday with the issuance of a memo directed to officers who use CBs in their marked police units — a practice officially allowed by the department.

The strongly worded memo, issued by Maj. C.G. Bartley, head of the uniformed services division, was read to officers at each briefing Thursday. The terse statement, in part, read:

"...the calling of wives and other females, and the calling of other officers on where to meet for coffee or other social activities has caused considerable embarrassment to the department...You are instructed that you will not transmit on CB radios unless the matter is clearly a police problem...All other transmissions will cease."

Under the "fleet plan," uniformed officers now use their marked patrol cars 24 hours a day — for personal as well as professional use. With inception of the plan several months ago, officers were allowed to install — at their own expense — personal CB radios in the vehicles.

Thursday's memo applies both to on and off-duty hours.

According to Bartley, the memo was necessitated by "citizen complaints" of CB use by policemen.

"Specifically, it involved officers talking to three women, who apparently are police buffs," Bartley said. He added that discussions unrelated to police business and "ratchet-jawing" with women will not be tolerated.

"It (the memo) was brought about by the abuse by a few officers, but the other officers know it has been going on for some time."

LPD Chief J.T. Alley late Friday expressed displeasure that word of the memo had gotten out, and termed the subject an "interdepartmental matter."

Alley and Bartley both denied talking with any citizens. The chief said "high-ranking" members of the had been refusing the "citizen complaints," but refused to name the officials.

When first questioned early Friday, Alley said he had nothing to do with the memo. However, Bartley indicated it was the chief who made him aware of the situation and ordered the statement issued.

A visibly upset Alley also vehemently denied the possibility that the "citizen complaints" stemmed from organized CB group interests who have ties with the police department.

One policeman this weekend said officers "weren't upset (about the memo) — they were downright mad," and stated several had removed their radio equipment from the cars in protest.

The situation, those present at the gathering said, was completely misrepresented in the memo.

According to the civilians, there is a group of about 40 citizens on the CB channel who talk with police.

"We try to keep them awake for one thing," a Cber explained. "Especially on midnights, just riding around, it can get awfully lonely, and it's hard to stay awake when it's quiet."

"When they're busy, they (police) don't talk," another said. "That's why we all have scanners so we'll know when not to bother them."

Most police contacted voiced concern over what many described as a "sub-standard" LPD radio system.

"No information is given to the public about the radio system," said one. "A lot of times we wouldn't know where other officers are if it weren't for citizens."

Police say it "just worked out" that the private CBs were helpful in official business; however, they maintain the radios were bought individually and were intended for personal use.

"At first they told us not to use them for police business — said too many people would hear it," an officer pointed out. "Now they said use it only for police business."

"I didn't pay $200 to use it for police business — I thought we had another radio for that."

"If something happens to that police radio, there would be nothing left," another said. "If they can't use the CBs, I guess they can start issuing rolls of quarters at shift change."

Police said the "handles" (names used for CB identification) on two of the women in question were mentioned at each briefing Thursday, and that they were told not to communicate with them by way of the radio again.

Those two women were present this weekend. The third woman, reportedly a policeman's wife, was not identified at briefings.

"I talked to her last night, and she was really upset," said one of the women. "This (the memo) makes us look like trash."

"Sure we talk to them. A lot of times we just say, 'Wake up,' and we joke around with them a lot. But we're just as friendly with the officers' wives, and what policeman is going to make a 'date' with another woman while his wife is listening?"

The husband of one of the women, also present at the discussion, said he knows and encourages his wife's CB talk.

"It sure makes me feel a lot better knowing she's talking to them, with me working nights," he commented. "We know them, and we're all friends. I kid around just as much as everybody else does."

Everyone seemed to agree the channel serves as a "public relations" medium, and has done much to further police-community awareness.

"Last year, I wouldn't have given a plug nickel for police," one Cber remarked. "Now that's changed. I've gotten to know them by way of the radio, and I've found that they're actually human."

"A lot of times they just want to talk," another said. "They work a wreck or something, and they have to hold it all in there, but then they can get on the CB and let it out. You can tell how they feel about things, and you realize they're human."

Several persons also remarked the friendly conversations also result in other benefits.

"Before I knew the police, I'd speed," said one man. "Now, it would be embarrassing to have a friend come up to give you a ticket. I'd be defying his authority if I asked him not to give it to me. And I'd think, 'Look at the position I've put him in.'"

"They're blaming it on three women, and they're taking it out on the police," one person remarked. "The freedom of speech should apply to those who protect our rights as well."

"The police are just being used as scapegoats," was another comment. "A lot is being taken out on the police because of personalities."

Several CBers leveled criticism at certain group-affiliated radio users who used their position with police as threats against the citizens.

"I thought it was very ignorant of the department to issue the memo without even listening to the channel to hear what goes on," a woman said. "Just to shut them up is completely unfair. I can do just as much good just knowing them, than I could playing policeman."

"They're cutting their own throats," one man remarked. "Last night I couldn't get a cop on it, and I hate to see that happen."

One officer said the CB radio has been a boon to citizen support and to department morale.

"Right after the survey, morale was the lowest it's been in a long time," he said. "Then we got the CB, and it wasn't so bad working midnights anymore. Now morale is at a low point again."

That policeman admitted some inappropriate remarks had, on occasion been made by a few officers, but "If Joe Blow did something, Joe Blow's sergeant should have said that it was not discreet, or that it was past the gray area."

Reacting to publicity on the memo, Alley late Friday lashed out at dissenters and said if the problems continue, "We'll yank the CBs out."

According to Bartley, no disciplinary action yet has been taken against officers who allegedly have been responsible for abuses, but indicated further actions would be forthcoming if the practices do not cease.

AWAITS SENTENCING — Claudia Thacker, 41, was convicted of second degree murder after shooting her husband, who says brutalized her and the couple's three daughters. Her backs say she is the ultimate example of the battered wife. (AP Laserphoto)

Women's Group Rallying Around 'Battered Wife'

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — As Claudia Thacker stands before a judge to be sentenced for her husband's murder, people she has never met will be out trying to raise money for her appeal. Her supporters say she was a battered wife.

"We don't condone women shooting their husbands, but this is the ultimate tragedy when help is not available or women don't know to seek it," said Marge Ziegler, Kitsap County chapter president of the National Organization for Women.

A local NOW fund-raising drive is under way and the chapter has voted to support Mrs. Thacker's appeal.

"The community reaction is that he got what was coming to him," said Police Chief A.J. Mares of Port Orchard, where Mrs. Thacker has been working at a florist shop, free on bail. She is scheduled to be sentenced today.

"My kids went to school with one of theirs and I guess he was thumping them all the time. Nobody wants to see her serve time," Mares said.

"But what do you do? You can't just go around knocking off husbands."

State law mandates that the 41-year-old Port Orchard woman be sentenced to five to 20 years in prison for second-degree murder in the death of her husband, Kenneth Thacker, whom she shot in the back last September.

She testified that Thacker kicked and beat her, blackened her eyes, laughed while he pointed a pistol at her and molested their children.

She said she felt he was about to harm one of their three teen-age daughters when she shot him in the back with a pistol they kept loaded in their house.

Mrs. Thacker argued that she did not know of any alternative when she shot her husband. But the prosecution contended that Mrs. Thacker should have sought her husband's arrest or at least tried to get professional guidance.

Unemployment Decline Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department says the economy probably will expand less this year than last, but unemployment will drop, and new job opportunities will improve and some industries will make major sales gains.

It predicted the Gross National Product — dollar evaluation of all goods and services — will increase between 4 and 5 percent as compared with last year's nearly 6-percent growth exclusive of inflation.

The department's chief economist, Courtenay Slater, said the economic outlook could improve if Congress approves the income-tax cuts President Carter will propose, and in any case will be sufficient to cut unemployment from the present 7 percent to 6 percent or even less.

He predicted inflation will continue at about the same rate as last year, although food prices will rise more slowly because vegetables, grain and meat are abundant.

Man Escapes Injury When Pistol Misfires

The manager of a North Lubbock club reportedly had a close call this weekend when a robber stuck a pistol in his face and pulled the trigger. Fortunately for the victim, however, the weapon misfired.

The incident began about 2:45 a.m. Sunday when another employee, Paul Douglas Kirkpatrick, got off work at the club and went to his car. After he started the vehicle, Kirkpatrick said, an unknown man opened his door and confronted him with a pistol.

The victim said the bandit, who appeared "nervous and frightened," ordered him out of the car and demanded his wallet. After being handed the billfold and two rolls of quarters, the bandit reportedly made Kirkpatrick walk to a corner of the building and get on his knees. The victim said he refused, scuffled with the robber and broke free.

Reports indicated Kirkpatrick ran inside the club and told manager Larry Grant to call the police. When Grant opened the door, the robber reportedly stuck the pistol in his face and pulled the trigger. The gun failed to fire, and Grant slammed and locked the door.

According to reports, the victims called police, waited about 30 minutes and went to the police department later that day to report the incident.

In recently reported break-ins, Sam Howard Ward of 3511 21st St. told officers someone cut padlocks on his garage and freezer to get to $250 worth of meat last week.

Meanwhile, John R. McConnell of 3215 76th St. said a $500 set of golf clubs was stolen from his garage sometime during the holidays.

According to Rebecca Ann Palmer, someone pushed a piece of cardboard from a window at her 2306 3rd St. home early today and made off with a stereo and CB radio, with a total value of $250.

Four knife-wielding bandits woke a 40-year-old Lubbock man from his sleep early Sunday, robbed him and his roommate of $410 and then locked both men in a bathroom at their home before fleeing.

Jesse M. Garcia of 312 E. 34th St. No. 18 told officers called to his home about 2:15 a.m. Sunday the men knocked on his door and began pushing him around as soon as he answered their persistent knocking.

Garcia said the men claimed to be looking for a .30-caliber rifle he had purchased earlier in the week, but once inside, their actions grew rougher than just talking.

One of the four men kicked him in the eye, while others beat his roommate, Joe Martinez. With pistols and knives pointed at both men, one of the four went through their pants' pockets and took the $410, Garcia said.

Both men were ordered into a bathroom at the residence and locked inside, Garcia told police.

Joe Arispe of 2306 Ave. L told police someone jumped him in the alley behind the 2800-block of Avenue T about 1:20 a.m. Sunday and then beat him severely once they had him pinned to the ground.

A 15-year-old Lubbock youth also told officers he was beaten. The youth said he was injured in a fight in the 400-block of Quirt Avenue about 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Burglars continued to wreak havoc across the city, making off with some of just about everything imaginable.

Steve Wayne Robbins of Hereford told Lubbock police someone apparently took $2,015 worth of furniture from an address near 20th Street and Avenue S Friday or Saturday.

Burglars took a door off a house under construction in the 3000-block of 79th Street sometime before 8 a.m. Saturday, according to Ed Gotcher, who reported the theft of the $600 door.

Burglars also took a $1,245 stereo system from the home of Cora McKowan of 2205 32nd St. sometime Friday or Saturday, she told police.

Bobby Lee of 6001 W. 34th St. No. 220 also told police someone stole his stereo between 3:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday.

A $60 rifle and other items were reportedly taken from Harold Brewer's car while the Comanche man had left it parked outside a 36th Street gas station.

Eugene Charles Gill of 1901 25th St. told police someone took a $350 television set from his home sometime early last week.

While an 11-year-old Lubbock girl watched television in her East 1st Street home about 3:30 a.m. Saturday, someone apparently climbed through a window and stole a watch and her billfold from another room, she told police.

A.L. Vaughn told police he caught a burglar inside his 1326 47th St. home about 3:30 p.m. Saturday, but before he was sure what was going on, the man had fled the address with $4 worth of old coins.

Gary D. Miller of 4619 Detroit Ave. told police someone removed $610 worth of clothing, $50 in cash and several eight-track tapes from his home between Christmas and New Year's Day.

Elton Conger of Strugg's Junior High School told police someone took $345 worth of tools from the school's shop between 2:30 p.m. Friday and 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Cross Burns At Weekly Newspaper

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Jackson police say a thread of similarity runs through several recent crossburnings in the city, the latest at the office of a weekly newspaper that published articles critical of the Ku Klux Klan.

Authorities were summoned to the offices of the Capital Reporter Saturday night after a passing fireman saw a burning cross leaning up against the building.

The cross-burning marked the fifth in Jackson in a little over a month, according to Lt. Gary McGee of the Jackson Police Department. He said a message wrapped around a brick tossed through the newspaper's window purported to be from the Klan, and was similar to that left in an earlier burning.

McGee said the printed note attached to the brick read: "You are being watched by the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

Firemen extinguished the cross, which had burned electrical cables in the utility box it was leaning against. Authorities said power was cut off at the newspaper and a neighboring printing company, although the only major damage was caused by the brick tossed through the big plate glass window.

The publisher of the newspaper, Bill Minor, said he believed the incident was connected with recent stories run by the newspaper.

"It follows on the heels of stuff we had written in the paper," Minor said. "There's no doubt in my mind there's a connection."

Two weeks ago stories and a syndicated column published by Minor alleged that

Gov. Cliff Finch had filled several state posts with former Klan members or members of the segregationist White Citizens Council.

Minor said bricks smashed windows at his office in September and October, following stories which alleged wrongdoing in the Jackson Police Department and by District Attorney Ed Peters, and an alleged cover up by Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.

McGee said police have no motive or suspect in the cases.

Health Center Sought By Three Cities

Representatives of three Permian Basin cities interested in becoming the site of a new Texas Tech regional academic health center, will make oral presentations before the Texas Tech University Board of Regents Feb. 2, as part of the site selection process.

Officials from Midland, Odessa and Big Spring will appear before the regents, each making an hour-long presentation.

Written proposals from cities interested in becoming the site of the school's third regional health center were solicited by Texas Tech last November.

Legislation creating Tech's medical school recommended that teaching sites be established in Amarillo, El Paso and the Permian Basin.

The regents will formally review the three proposals during the board's regular meeting Feb. 3.

Police Call Death Technical Murder

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (UPI) — Police are calling the death of 71-year-old Arthur Day a case of "technical murder."

Day, a retired plasterer, died New Year's Eve after his life-support system was switched off.

His death came minutes after his wife Mary, a son and a friend had visited him. Nurses, alerted by an alarm, rushed to Day's bed at Wolverhampton Royal Hospital and found the heart-lung machine, which had kept him alive, switched off.

Doctors said Day, who suffered two heart attacks and had a leg amputated, would have had only hours to live.

A police spokesman said "We are treating it as a technical murder."

Some Areas Of Great Plains Still Suffering Wind Damage

By DON KENDALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some key areas of the Great Plains are in better shape to withstand wind damage to land this winter than a year ago but others still are suffering from dry weather and are subject to wind erosion, says the Agriculture Department.

The department's Soil Conservation Service, which conducts surveys on wind erosion damage each winter, is scheduled to issue its first report later this month. It will cover wind damage to land which occurred during November and December.

As determined by the agency, the annual wind erosion season includes seven months beginning Nov. 1 and continuing through the following May. About 350 counties in 10 Great Plains states are checked by field offices to keep track of the land damage.

Raymond I. Didericksen, director of inventory and monitoring operations for the agency, told a reporter last Friday that preliminary indications point to some improvement from a year ago when the worst damage in 20 years occurred.

However, Didericksen stressed that this was a "general feeling" as of now and that the survey reports will have to be received and studied before anyone can be sure.

Disabled Persons Treated Unfairly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Manufacturers and retailers take unfair advantage of disabled persons, who have been reluctant to enforce their rights as consumers, the Disability Rights Center says.

The nonprofit corporation told disabled persons Sunday to make use of consumer protection laws. The Center added that hundreds of thousands of disabled persons fear that the equipment they rely on will break down.

Didericksen said that parts of Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas still appear to be potential trouble spots because of dry weather. But much of the Dakotas, where extensive dust blowing damaged land last winter, has been protected by snow and thus has not been in such critical shape.

When the agency issued its first report of the season a year ago, officials said that more than 1.1 million acres of land in the 10-state region were damaged by wind erosion during November and December of 1976.

For the entire seven-month period in 1976-77, about eight million acres were damaged by wind, up 30 percent from less than 6.2 million acres in 1975-76 and the most since wind stripped 10.3 million acres in the Great Plains in 1956-57.

Officials consider land damaged by wind if enough soil is removed or deposited on it to cause further erosion hazard or impair its capacity to produce crops.

Scientist Says Blasts Reported 88 Years Ago

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Those unexplained high-altitude explosions heard along the Atlantic coast recently are similar to blasts reported at various points around the world 88 years ago, says Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J.

A congressional report shows explosions similar to those occurring off the Atlantic coast in recent weeks were reported as far away as India and Australia in 1890, Williams said over the weekend.

A report issued by the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress notes similar high-altitude phenomena were recorded in 1890 in India, Scotland, Australia, New York and Connecticut, Williams said.

Although some experts have attributed the explosions to seismic disturbances, no one agrees on the exact cause, he said.

Williams, who last week announced the White House was investigating the blasts, said the report called for the creation of a special task force to pull together and analyze diverse technical data on the explosions.

A series of high-level explosions were reported along the New Jersey coast on Dec. 7, 21 and 22. Some of the rumblings were felt from Atlantic City to Staten Island, N.Y. Other booms were felt off the South Carolina coast.

Williams said over the weekend.

Survivors Of Tornado Clean Up

By LES SEAGO

WYNNE, Ark. (AP) — Survivors of a tornado that devastated a mobile home park near this eastern Arkansas town picked through the rubble of their trailers in cold rain and blowing snow Sunday in search of any possessions they might salvage.

"I'll make out somehow," said Lawrence Lindley, whose mobile home was converted to a mass of twisted junk. "It could have been worse. It could have been a burnout — then we would have lost everything. At least we have our clothes and we can save a few things."

Lindley's trailer was one of about 50 destroyed when the twister hit the Hamilton Trailer Park, three miles south of Wynne, on Saturday.

Dolly Milton, 77, who lived in a house across Arkansas Highway 1 from the trailer park, was killed and five other persons were hospitalized, according to the Cross County Sheriff's Department.

Sam Peoples, a Forrest City insurance adjuster, estimated damage to the trailer park at $500,000.

"I'd say most of the people had insurance, but it won't be enough," said Peoples.

Sheriff's deputies, state troopers, Wynne police officers, National Guardsmen and volunteers spent the night searching for victims, but many of the residents of the trailer park apparently were away when the storm struck — a factor which officials said kept casualties to a minimum. Residents were given shelter at the National Guard armory or stayed with friends and relatives overnight.

Lindley was in Wynne when the twister touched down.

"I wasn't here. It's a good thing I wasn't or I wouldn't be here now," he said.

Dewey Wilson's trailer home was flipped on its side against a tree. One wall was peeled back as if by a giant can opener.

"I had just drove off," Wilson said as he picked through the remains of his home Sunday. "I got to the bridge and I noticed that everybody was passing me. I turned around and watched it hit."

Wilson said he had $3,000 worth of insurance.

"I had a brand new bed I ordered from Sears for $1,000. It was back there in the corner ripped to pieces. I had $1,000 tied up in that bed so you can see I ain't going to come out on insurance."

There were some reports of looting in the first few hours after the tornado, but police blocked off the highway north and south of the trailer park and National Guardsmen patrolled the area overnight.

Only residents, rescue workers and reporters were permitted into the area Sunday as cleanup efforts began.

London Fares Reduced For Lubbockites

Air fares between Lubbock and London will be reduced and travelers from this area will have less expensive, more direct access to Europe when Braniff International begins its non-stop service between Dallas/Fort Worth and the British capital, the airline announced today.

Braniff District Sales Director Randall Jones said the airline is seeking government approval of a variety of innovative fares which will offer reductions in the current normal first class and economy class fares as well as lower excursion, youth, group and Apex fares.

These are in addition to the already announced $399 round trip standby fare between Lubbock and London. Standby passengers will receive confirmed reservations between Lubbock and Dallas/Fort Worth, and if not accommodated on two consecutive London flights from Dallas/Fort Worth will be automatically confirmed on the next available flight.

Braniff's other fare proposals for the Lubbock to London round trip, all of which offer confirmed reservations:

—Group fare of $449 for 100 or more travelers.

—Apex fare of $489. This applies to individual travel on trips of 10 to 45 days duration with reservations made and tickets purchased 21 days in advance.

—Excursion fare of $747 for 14 to 21 day trips, and $664 for 22 to 45 day trips. No advance purchase required on either side.

—Youth fare of $698 for ages 12 through 21. No advance purchase required.

—Normal economy fare will be lowered from the current $892 for connecting flights to $830 for Braniff's non-stop flights.

—Normal first class fare will be lowered from the current $1,672 to $1,552.

Braniff said it planned a prompt inauguration of daily non-stop flights with widebody jets between Dallas/Fort Worth and London. Exact schedules and starting dates will be announced soon.

Lubbock travelers will have direct connection to and from these London flights within Braniff's terminal at Dallas/Fort Worth. Connections will also be available at London to and from other cities in Europe and the Middle East.

Tower To Visit City Thursday

By PAT PATRICK
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

Sen. John Tower will be in Lubbock Thursday — part of a swing through the state to announce his intentions to run for a fourth term.

He will be honored at a reception in Room S-107 in the Lubbock Civic Center at 1 p.m., and will hold a press conference immediately afterward, at about 1:45 p.m. in Room E-106.

Tower's swing will begin in Austin Wednesday, and he will go from there to Arlington, Houston and Tyler. On Thursday, prior to coming to Lubbock, he will appear in Wichita Falls and Amarillo and from here will go to Midland-Odessa and El Paso.

Friday he will be in San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Harlingen.

Texas' senior senator has drawn two Democratic opponents — U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels and former Texas insurance commissioner Joe Chris-3500 74th St.

Democratic state senate candidate Jesse George is the only local office seeker so far to take a public stand on the farmers' strike, and he has endorsed it strongly, urging his backers to join with the farmers in strike activities.

George maintains area citizens need to swell the farmers' numbers so politicians in office will pay more attention to them.

Since World War II, the agricultural community has slowly decreased in size from about 35 percent of Texas' population to roughly 3.5 percent today, he says, and that trend also has occurred across the United States.

"This dramatic decrease has been due in large part to rising costs of production, labor problems and increased urbanization. Inherent in this decrease is another problem for farmers and ranchers, that being a loss of political influence," he says.

"Unfortunately, those people who control our government have a tendency to ride roughshod over and turn deaf ears to those interest groups that they feel are incapable of hurting or helping them, come election time. This has been the fate of the agricultural family — as their numbers have decreased, they have found themselves ignored by a government that to a large extent controls their economic future."

George labeled "patently absurd" the theory that farmers' demand for 100 percent parity is a demand for government-guaranteed profits.

He suggests that if consumers are worried about increased prices, they should "look at the middleman-processor, not the farmer."

"For example, in 1973, the price of wheat reached the 100 percent parity level and bread did go up, but since that time the price of wheat has gone back down, but you haven't seen the price of bread go down."

The South Plains Democratic Council, a 15-county organization, will have the five announced Democratic contenders for the 28th state Senatorial District seat at a program in Lamesa, Jan. 19.

The five — Jesse George, E. L. Short, Delwin Jones, Don Workman and Morris W. Turner — will be available for question-and-answer sessions after short speeches.

Time and place of the meeting will be forthcoming.

Persons interested in learning more about the Republican Party's goals and philosophies, or in working with it during this election year, are invited to a gathering Tuesday at 8 p.m., says Jim Granberry.

Co-hosts with Granberry for the function will be Deaton Rigby and Lonnie Hollingsworth. The meeting will be held at the Melonie Park South Clubhouse.

Man Dies In Lubbock Mishap

Services are pending with Resthaven-Singleton-Wilson Funeral Home for George M. Ramirez, the city's first traffic fatality of 1978.

Ramirez, 20, died early Sunday after his pickup collided with a truck-tractor rig on Avenue A.

After one of the longest periods without a fatal accident in recent months, police responding to a call for assistance in the 3900-block of Avenue A about 5:35 a.m. Sunday found Ramirez pinned inside the wreckage of his overturned 1976 Ford pickup.

Ramirez, of 407 45th St., was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith at the scene of the mishap after attempts to revive him by police and the driver of the large truck failed.

Police said the truck-tractor driven by Ronnie Powell of Snyder was apparently headed north in the northbound lane of Avenue A while the Ramirez vehicle was traveling south when the collision occurred.

Witnesses reportedly told officers the mishap occurred when the Ramirez auto turned into the path of the oncoming truck-tractor.

On impact, the Ramirez pickup overturned in the middle of Avenue A, while Powell's vehicle jackknifed and slid into a light pole on the side of the street. Powell was uninjured.

Ramirez was born in Lubbock, and was a lifelong city resident.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Rosa Ramirez of Lubbock; nine brothers, Pete of Dallas, Sam of Amarillo, Refugio and David of Midford, Ind., and Joe, Ray, Raul, Rudy and Margarito, Jr., all of Lubbock; and seven sisters, Minevra Galindo and Dora Hernandez, both of Rock Springs, Diana Aguilar of Midford, Ind., Neomi Sotello, Gloria Soia, Elizabeth DeLeon and Diana Ramirez, all of Lubbock.

At Chamizal National Memorial, the story of the boundary surveys and development of good will between Mexicans and Americans is told in the museum displays and by a documentary film.

British Rushing Terminal Work

By ED BLANCHE

SULLOM VOE, Shetland Islands (AP)—An army of construction men is racing against time through winter storms in these remote Scottish islands to build a giant oil terminal vital to Britain's economic recovery.

North Sea oil, an estimated 1.4 billion tons of it, the equivalent of about 10 billion barrels, is Britain's lifeline and the core of Prime Minister James Callaghan's whole strategy to revive the anemic economy. The nation expects to become self-sufficient in oil production by 1980. The oil terminal at Sullom Voe, a deep-water inlet whose ancient Norse name means "a place in the sun," is the key factor in getting production into high gear.

But the project, started in February 1975, is two years behind the original schedule because of planning and labor disputes.

A buildup in the planned oil flow through the islands the Romans called "the end of the earth" has forced work to start on the second stage of the project before the first is near completion, bumping up costs 25 percent.

The billion dollar terminal, which will rival Rotterdam's massive Europort complex, has to be in partial operation by May when 20,000 barrels of high-grade crude from the BP's Ninian field start flowing through a 100-mile underwater pipeline.

Shell-Esso's big Brent field, the richest in the North Sea with an estimated 24 billion tons of recoverable oil, is scheduled to start pumping in October through a second pipeline.

Brent began production in late 1976, but has had to ship the oil ashore by tanker because of pipeline problems.

Eventually, six fields and possibly nine will be hooked up to the terminal which will have a maximum capacity of three million barrels a day.

"Getting the terminal operational is top priority," an Energy Department spokesman said. "It's a key element in our North Sea program."

The terminal is scheduled to handle around three-quarters of Britain's oil needs by 1981 — 1.5 million barrels of crude a day from the fields northwest of the islands, the most northerly part of Britain.

The delays at Sullom Voe and problems installing gigantic production platforms in the gale-whipped North Sea, where winds can reach hurricane force of 75 mph or more and waves 100 feet high, have already kept production flows below the scheduled level.

A leading stockbroking firm, Wood, McKenzie, warned the delays could cost Britain the equivalent of $1.08 billion in lost oil production over the next 18 months, braking the economic recovery rate.

Basil Butler, BP's terminal manager, said: "Barring a major catastrophe, we should be in business by May."

But oil industry sources are not so sure. An official of one of the companies involved in the Ninian field noted: "We're keeping our fingers and toes crossed that the terminal will be ready in time."

The terminal lies on the shore of Sullom Voe, a desolate fiord inhabited mainly by wild birds. Across the water lies a long-abandoned air base from which bombers thundered off to raid Nazi-occupied Norway and lumbering flying boats patrolled the gray Atlantic in World War II.

Bad weather is a major headache in the Shetlands, which lie on the same latitude as Leningrad and Anchorage, Alaska, and at this time of year see little daylight.

The treeless, peat-covered islands are battered in winter by storms from the Atlantic to the west and the North Sea to the east.

Icy winter rain has turned the sprawling 1,000-acre terminal site into a sea of thick mud that can suck the boots off a man's feet.

More than 3,000 hardhats swarm over the vast site like soldier ants, dwarfed by monster 50-ton trucks and huge mobile cranes. They've already gouged three million cubic feet of peat and 2.8 billion cubic feet of rock from the scrub-covered hillsides.

Three of the 85,000-ton storage tanks have been built. Eventually there will be 15 of them, capable of holding 23 million gallons of oil for loading onto the super-tankers that will haul it to refineries in Britain and Europe.

A 100-megawatt power station has been built and a processing plant to extract gas from the crude oil is planned for 1979.

The construction men, engineers and other specialists, plus another 1,000 support personnel, live in two camps built near the terminal site, well out of the way of Shetlanders who fear their traditional way of life is being threatened by the oil rush.

Daily Log Retraces Steps Of Walker

READING, Pa. (AP) — Because he has a sensitive nose, Paul Angstadt has worn out 117 pairs of shoes and 372 pairs of socks.

Angstadt, who worked for the Sun Co. sniffing for leaks in the oil firm's gasoline pipeline, kept a daily log of his treks through the Berks County, Pa., countryside. He doesn't remember exactly when he started walking over the spur pipeline which runs from Deer Path to Allentown, but he recalls that in 1929 he helped lay the pipe with two-by-fours, three-by-fours, picks and shovel, earning 45 cents an hour.

His log, which goes back 25 years, shows that while sniffing for leaks he walked 14 miles a day for a total of 85,241 miles through rain, snow, the glare of the sun and the cool, fresh light of morning. He also chewed 6,318 packs of tobacco in addition to the wear and tear of his socks and shoes. During that time he never missed a day of work due to illness. Now 70 and retired, he lives on a 10-acre farm with his wife.

Sadat's Peace Move Supported By Iran

By The Associated Press

The Shah of Iran arrived in Egypt today for talks with Anwar Sadat and immediately declared his support for the Egyptian president's bold drive for peace in the Middle East.

"I think Egypt is doing precisely what we believe is right," Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi told reporters after his jet landed in the Upper Nile resort city of Aswan. "These are historic moments and I hope that what President Sadat is trying to do will be fruitful and will bring peace and stability to the area."

The Shah's endorsement was a boost for Sadat from an influential non-Arab leader in the Middle East. The Egyptian president's peace drive has drawn sharp criticism in the Arab world. Critics, including Syria, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization, accuse Sadat of selling out Arab unity and seeking a separate peace with Israel.

Sadat embraced the Iranian monarch at the airport while Egyptian schoolchildren shouted welcoming slogans. The two men then drove to a plush hotel complex on the shores of the Nile to begin their talks.

The Shah, taking a more active role in Middle East politics, said he will fly to Saudi Arabia Tuesday for talks with King Khaled.

The Iranian monarch also has connections with Israel and is the chief source of oil for the Jewish state. Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan reportedly flew to Tehran recently to brief the Shah on Israel's bargaining position in talks with Egypt.

In public exchanges between Israel and Egypt this weekend, Prime Minister Menahem Begin said Jewish settlements in the Sinai Peninsula must remain, and Egypt's foreign minister declared they must go.

"The Israelis do not burn settlements. They build settlements and keep them," Begin told a meeting of right-wing supporters in Tel Aviv Sunday, referring to President Anwar Sadat's demand that Israel dismantle the 20 settlements it established on the northern and southeastern coasts of the territory captured from Egypt in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Earlier Sunday, the Israeli cabinet rejected plans to establish new communities in Sinai, but voted to expand the existing ones by putting more acreage under cultivation and moving in more settlers. However, the Jewish Agency, which helps plan the communities, said a decision was made four months ago to build four new outposts in northern Sinai, and work on them began four weeks ago.

Begin said Israel may withdraw its offer to return the occupied peninsula to Egypt and may demand a change in its Sinai borders if Sadat continues to demand that all Jewish settlers pull out. He did not elaborate, but he apparently meant Israel would try to extend its territory to include the settlements.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Ibrahim Kamel said Egypt "will keep insisting on total Israeli troop withdrawal from occupied Arab lands and dismantling of Jewish settlements."

It is astonishing that such statements come out of Israel before the joint Egyptian-Israeli political and military committees begin their meetings," he said.

Other Egyptian Foreign Ministry officials said they viewed Begin's remarks as an attempt to strengthen his bargaining position in the coming negotiations. The military talks start Wednesday in Cairo and the political ones Jan. 16 in Jerusalem.

Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak said Egypt "would not accept any arguments over total withdrawal from Sinai."

"Giving up a single inch of Egyptian territory will not lead to establishing peace in the Middle East," he added.

In related developments:

Foreign Minister Dayan arrived in Italy for Monday talks with Italian leaders and an audience Thursday with Pope Paul VI. Talking to reporters before leaving Israel's Ben-Gurion Airport, Dayan played down reported differences between Israel and Egypt over what will top the agenda for political peace talks.

"Both sides have their proposals. I would not call them opposing, but different," he said.

Dayan said Egypt wants the Palestinian question high on the agenda while Israel wants to open with a discussion of the practical content of a Mideast peace treaty.

Senator's Charge To Be Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Food and Drug administration spokesman says the agency will study a senator's charges that an FDA employee was told to alter a finding that a drug was a potential cancer risk.

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., asked the FDA Sunday for a prompt explanation of the incident.

High Court To Act In Vote Case

must be decided by individual district balloting.

Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom and other city officials appealed to the Supreme Court, seeking to have the circuit court's findings overturned.

Black voters first sued the city in 1971, when all 11 council seats were selected by city-wide votes. That system was struck down as illegal. The city, under then-Mayor Wes Wise, appealed that ruling.

The result was that even though candidates carried black districts by huge majorities they were regularly defeated by opponents who carried the majority white vote citywide," the appeals court noted after U.S. District Judge Eldon B. Mahon struck down the system.

Sixty-five percent of Dallas voters are white, 25 percent are black and 10 percent are Mexican-American. Since 1907, only two blacks have been elected to the city council.

The city's 8-3 election system was devised by city officials as an alternative to the system struck down by Judge Mahon. He found the present system to be legally satisfactory, but the 5th Circuit panel disagreed.

In another important case, the Supreme Court today asked Pennsylvania's highest court to clarify a decision permitting criminal trial courts, at the request of a defendant, to automatically bar the public and press from pretrial hearings and cut off all information about those hearings.

Orlando, injuring 23 persons. Another tornado wrecked eight homes near Brandon, east of Tampa.

In the West, a smashing surf pounded expensive homesites at Malibu, Calif. Twelve-foot waves hurled concrete sea walls, filling up to a dozen homes with waist-deep water. Heavy rains were forecast today for the mountains of California.

Ohio was "reeling from the backlash of a major winter storm," the National Weather Service said. Thirty-five mph winds stacked 6 to 14 inches of fresh snow into drifts that blocked many highways and forced hundreds of schools to call off classes.

"It's lousy, in fact it's super lousy," said Canton police dispatcher Roy Reed.

Delaware County (Ohio) sheriff's dispatcher Ted Matthey said, "County roads are almost impassable with the drifting. We are recommending that no body travel unless it is absolutely necessary."

In northern Indiana's "snow belt," South Bend had a foot of snow on the ground and the promise of 4 more inches. At least four traffic deaths in the state were blamed on icy roads.

Dozens of cities and counties in Virginia closed their schools when up to 7 inches of snow hit southwestern mountain regions. The situation was the same in eastern Tennessee, hit by 6 inches of snow and below-zero temperatures, and in North Carolina, where blowing snow was so bad in Watauga County drivers were asked to stay off highways.

Parts of Alabama and Georgia also received snow. Temperatures dropped as much as 40 degrees overnight in Georgia. Several thousand Atlanta-area homes lost electric power when winds up to 45 mph blew trees onto lines.

New England's rain and wind came with unusually balmy temperatures near 60, but forecasters said temperatures would plummet later in the day. Flooding was reported in Newport, Portsmouth, Narragansett and Warwick, R.I., and power was out in parts of Cranston, East Providence and Pawtucket.

Officials said winds were so strong at Fall River, Mass., some cars were blown sideways across two or three lanes of the Braga Bridge over the Taunton River.

County To Help 'Detox' Center

By JEFF SOUTH

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Assured that county funds won't be involved, the Lubbock County Commissioners Court today voted to apply for a $136,000 federal-state grant to set up a detoxification center for alcohol abusers here.

The county's court-at-law judges said the project — expected to be implemented by May — will fit in handily with a special probation program they've just initiated for persons guilty of driving while intoxicated.

Also today, commissioners were given a draft of proposed new rural subdivision regulations by Criminal District Attorney Alton Griffin, the court's legal adviser.

The revised rules, which probably will be approved by commissioners Jan. 23, would require developers of subdivisions in unincorporated areas to pave residential streets before they are accepted for maintenance by the county.

And, on another subject, Griffin was asked today to determine the validity of a petition signed by 189 county employees, including a few elected officials, seeking a hearing before the county's salary grievance committee.

The employees are seeking a 10 percent pay hike and want the committee's support in that effort. However, County Judge Rod Shaw — non-voting chairman of the grievance panel — said he can't find "anything in the (state) statute that permits employees to petition" the committee.

Shaw said, as he reads the law, the salary grievance procedure is open to "any elected county or precinct officer" but does not apply to rank-and-file workers. Shaw asked Griffin to determine whether that interpretation is correct.

The alcoholic detoxification project has been proposed by the Lubbock Regional Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center. The center's board of trustees meet this afternoon to consider a formal endorsement of the project.

Dr. Ron Whittington, MHMR executive director, says funds may be available from the Governor's Criminal Justice Division to establish a detoxification program. He has asked the county commissioners court to be the vehicle in applying for such a grant.

Commissioners today voted to sign a letter of intent endorsing the project, thus enabling the MHMR staff to proceed with an actual application. Commissioners repeatedly specified, however, they would not commit county funds to sustain the detoxification program as the grant runs out.

Whittington said the program would need an initial grant of $136,000. As that grant is phased out over a five-year period, he said, other funding — from increases in MHMR's annual state allocation and from contributions by local Alcoholics Anonymous groups — would keep the program going.

Some commissioners, notably Alton Brazell, expressed "strong reservations" about the proposed grant application, fearing the county may be responsible for assuming future funding of the detoxification center.

Numerous government officials and community groups have endorsed the project. Released today was a letter from J.Q. Warnick and E.H. Boedeker, the county's courts-at-law judges, urging commissioners to apply for the necessary money.

They said the detoxification center would be "very beneficial to this community and would be an adjunct to the alcohol offender program" they started at the first of this year for DWI offenders.

The judges said they are now requiring DWI offenders to attend MHMR alcohol abuse prevention courses as a condition of their probation. In that regard, the proposed detoxification center would assist in sobering up DWIs and channeling them into such courses, the judges said.

10 a.m. First National Bank was scheduled to open at noon and also displayed banners supporting the farmers' movement.

Merchants here flew large banners from their stores, some since Friday, and many advertised their support in the Sunday edition of the local newspaper.

In a 10 a.m. parade, the manager of the Littlefield Super Market drove a small red tractor pulling a 20-foot sign. Fertilizer manufacturers, closed for the day, added their rigs to the caravan.

Banners also were displayed by the Lamb County clerk which proclaimed support for the farmers' efforts.

County commissioners were to meet today and issue a proclamation backing farmers.

The massive shutdown, which reportedly existed not only here, but throughout Lamb County — including Sudan, Spade, Fieldton, Pep and Amherst, plus other area towns — was conceived in a meeting here last week.

The seemingly unorganized strike just appeared to materialize today, townspeople said. An estimated 150 tractors were involved in the Littlefield activity.

The peaceful movement, drew little attention from the police force here.

With nothing open in town, farmers were drifting to the Blood Services collection point to donate.

At the strike headquarters, located in the Claude Barnett insurance office, farmers dropped by to add their signatures to what is hoped will be the world's longest mailogram. The mailogram, a cooperative effort among the strike offices, will later be sent to Congress, a spokesman said.

West Will Seek Mayor's Office

and an ultraconservative approach is the only answer. In spending tax money, there comes a time when you must say, "that's enough!"

As Lubbock continues to grow from a "big country town into a big city," West said, there will be problems that he proposes to approach in a "hard-nosed, tough-minded" way.

Necessities such as sewers, streets, water, recreation, arts, and fire and police protection will have to be provided at the same time that an "orderly and healthy development for the homeowner and the businessman" is conducted, he said.

"Lubbock looks great to those folks freezing and out of work in other parts of the country, and they are headed our way," he warned.

His mayoral candidacy notwithstanding, West reaffirmed his dislike of politics and politicians. In fact, he said, the mayorship "is the last political office I will seek."

"This would be no stepping-stone for me, because as I've said before, politicians and politics turn me off," West said.

He said he considers a "legitimate, 100 percent politician" to be anyone who makes a career out of politics, ever seeking a higher office.

Those people are "boring" to him, and he has no aspirations to follow them, he said.

"I've been here all my life, and I intend to spend the rest of my life here," West added. "I don't have much, but what I do have is here."

When asked how he would handle issues regarding Lubbock Power and Light (LP&L), West, who handles the advertising account for LP&L's competitor, Southwestern Public Service Co., said he would do what he has done for the past four years: abstain from discussions and voting.

He explained that he does not believe an energy problem exists for Lubbock. "There is not one and I don't think there is apt to be one," he said.

All that would leave for council consideration is rates and regulations governing LP&L and SPS, he said.

And since he has abstained for four years from utility company discussions without any problems, West added, he does not anticipate any as mayor.

"I'm just a hired hand" for SPS, he said, adding he is not involved in the company's policies. He sees no conflict of interest if he abstains from votes and discussions.

West said he plans a low-profile campaign. Although he will designate a steering committee and campaign chairman, he said, he does not plan to raise money or have a campaign budget.

"I don't want to be obligated" to campaign financiers, he explained. All expenses will be paid out of his pocket, he added.

"I don't intend to sell myself to the public," he said. "I may be kidding myself, but I think the public knows who I am."

The mayorship is a job that "requires someone with experience," and he has that after four years as mayor pro tem, West said. The council, for which three positions will be open for the April 1 elec-

Tony Orlando To Make Appearance On Music Awards Special

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tony Orlando will be seen on network television Jan. 14 for the first time since his musical variety show was canceled 17 months ago, but Orlando won't be singing.

The popular vocalist will appear as a presenter for the fifth annual American Music Awards, a two-hour ABC-TV special.

His return to prime time, even for so brief a moment, is a milestone for Orlando, who very nearly junked his career forever last July 22.

It was during a concert performance in Cohasset, Mass., that Orlando abruptly informed the audience he was retiring. He canceled the rest of his tour. The announcement ended one nightmare for Orlando and began a new one.

Tony Orlando was suffering a nervous and emotional breakdown. He talks openly about his problem and how he solved it.

"Doctors don't use the term nervous breakdown anymore," Orlando said. "They diagnosed me as a manic-depressive. I'd swing from deep depression to bursts of wild energy and then repeat the pattern. It was the ugliest experience of my life."

His illness began seven years ago, he says, when Tony Orlando and Dawn climbed out of obscurity. Tony managed his own professional affairs and booked the act. Pressures mounted with success.

"I was already exhausted when we began our television show in 1973," Orlando said. "I wasn't prepared for the 17 and 18 hour days we had to put in for TV."

"The schedule didn't let up for three years, and that included our nightclub act at Lake Tahoe and Las Vegas."

"My sister, Rhonda, passed away two years ago. She was only 22. It was a terrible blow. Then came the trauma and postdepression of being canceled."

Orlando said he was near the end of his tether last January when his best friend, entertainer Freddie Prinze, committed suicide.

"Freddie was like a brother to me. When he died I lost a part of myself," Orlando said.

"I spent a 37-hour vigil at Freddie's bedside in the UCLA hospital. He literally died in my arms. That almost put me away. Freddie's death was the final horrifying trauma for me."

After selling 41 million records in seven years, it appeared Tony Orlando was thoroughly washed up.

"I was on an emotional roller coaster," he said. "Doctors told me I was suffering only an emotional disorder. It was physiological too. I was treated by therapy and with a new drug, Lithium, which has been a miracle to me."

"But the key to my recovery has been my wife, Elaine, my father and sons. Their love and care brought me through it all. I never lost my faith in God, which also helped me get by the worst times."

"Two other people helped me tremendously, Muhammad Ali and Betty Ford, they telephoned me every day and encouraged me to get well. They were wonderful."

In the depths of his depressions Orlando was certain he would never be able to perform again. But one night last October in a New York hotel room he played an old Judy Garland album recorded live in Carnegie Hall.

After hearing the applause at the end of Garland's rendition of "Over The Rainbow," Orlando resolved that if Judy, after her many travails, could make it back, so could Tony Orlando.

"That applause hit me like a sledgehammer," Orlando said. "I began to cry. I missed the audiences, the applause, the affection that a performer gets."

"I had an overwhelming desire to sing 'Tie A Yellow Ribbon Round The Old Oak Tree' for a live audience again. From that moment on I decided to get well, become a functioning human being."

"The first week in November I was in New Orleans to address a meeting of the National Association for Retarded Citizens, of which I've been a supporter for years. At the end of my speech I heard the applause. As I walked off stage I told my friends, 'I'm ready to go back to work.'"

Two weeks later, Tony opened his act at the Circle Star Theater in San Carlos, Calif. The date had been on his original tour. Tony appeared as a single. He and Dawn, his songstress sidekick, Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson, had agreed to go their separate ways. Orlando played to packed houses and critical praise. He began a 17-day stint in Las Vegas Dec. 1, again playing to standing room only.

"I was scared to death at both places," Orlando said. "My knees were knocking and the microphone shook. I felt like an amateur after six months of ruffling away. I felt it in my voice, too. It still feels hoarse."

Folk Singer Returning To Career

BY ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Sixteen years ago an attractive auburn-haired Irish singer named Mary O'Hara made an appearance on an American network television show that won her immediate recognition as a leading exponent of Celtic folk music.

Her clear pure voice backed by her own strumming on a Celtic harp influenced Joan Baez and other folk singers and a great career stretched before her.

But then began a series of events that might be hard to make believable even in a motion picture — and film producers are clamoring for a chance to try.

For a young American poet, Richard Selig, a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, heard her sing on a similar program on Radio Telefis Eireann, fell in love with the voice and in due course with the lady herself. They were married even though Selig was then beginning to show symptoms of the fatal disease that caused his death only 15 months later.

Unable to come to terms with the tragedy, Miss O'Hara entered a Benedictine monastery at Stanbrook in England and for the next 13 years became Sister Miriam. She neither sang nor listened to music. In the attic at Stanbrook with her other effects of the world outside were her harp and the five albums she had recorded in a singing career that began in Sligo in Ireland as a child.

"One day," she said, "while I was acting as portress I accepted delivery of a parcel addressed to a novice. I opened it and found inside a record album with my name on the cover. I was shaken. I asked for permission to hear it for it was one I had made with my husband in the studio."

"I wept along with the songs but before it was ended I knew I wanted to sing again. The abbess let me get my harp from the attic and although my hands were worn with work as are the hands of all the nuns, I was given permission to sing and play Danny Boy."

Since she had twice had breakdowns in health the wise Abbess decided that performing could be a sort of therapy and Sister Miriam went out into the world again as Mary O'Hara. That was two years ago. She was nearly 40 but looked years younger then — as she does now — and friends urged her to resume her career.

When she and Richard were married they lived for a while in Jackson Heights, New York. One day in London she met Joe Lustig, an American expatriate and a leading manager in pop music circles. Lustig asked to hear her sing. After one song he said:

"I promise you can be a star again anytime you say the word."

He put her on a British television talk show and the network reported a remarkable response to her life story and to her singing. Lustig immediately booked the 3,000-seat Royal Festival Hall and sold it out two weeks in advance. The reviews were ecstatic. She was signed to a worldwide recording deal by Chrysalis and her first single "Forty five Years" has just been released.

In mid-January she starts a nationwide tour that will culminate in a concert at the 6,000-seat Royal Albert Hall, in London.

And in March Lustig hopes to set the seal on her comeback with a concert at Carnegie Hall in New York.

Is she looking forward to a big concert? she smiled. "I like to look back on them." And off she went to sign her new record album at a big West End store.

Government Supported On Import Restrictions

By GEORGE GEDDA
WASHINGTON (AP) — A national survey shows overwhelming public support for U.S. government intervention to restrict foreign imports, even if it means paying more money for the American version of the product.

More than four respondents in five said that keeping foreign products out of the United States to save domestic jobs should be a "very important" foreign policy goal.

The finding indicates a strong public backlash against the heavy influx of foreign imports that led to a $30 billion trade deficit last year and to numerous job layoffs and shutdowns of U.S. industries.

The poll was commissioned by the Charles F. Kettering Foundation of Dayton, Ohio, and conducted by the Communication Research Center of Cleveland State University.

The sampling involved 3,800 adults in nine large cities across the country. The interviews were carried out between January 1976 and December 1977 in conjunction with a series of "town meetings" on foreign policy sponsored by the State Department and local organizations concerned with world affairs.

The survey also showed there has been a significant shift recently in favor of increased defense spending and indicated that Americans place high priority on both easing world hunger and containing Communism.

On U.S.-Soviet relations, 71 percent of those interviewed felt a nuclear arms control agreement with Moscow was the most important U.S. objective. Fifteen percent chose improvement of human rights as the highest priority objective in relations with Moscow and 11 percent listed expanded trade.

The strong protectionist orientation indicated by the respondents was underscored by a finding that a majority of Americans disapprove of having foreign companies own factories located in the United States.

More of those interviewed preferred to make it hard rather than easy for foreign companies to build factories in the U.S. Fully 85 percent of the respondents listed protecting jobs of American workers as a "very important" policy goal.

Other issues in the list of U.S. objectives and the percentage regarding them as "very important" are:

Promoting agreements to prevent war (82 percent), reducing U.S. arms sales overseas (52 percent), publicly criticizing governments which violate human rights (52 percent), stopping the spread of dictatorships (49 percent), and encouraging racial equality in South Africa (39 percent). There was a substantial difference between 1976 and 1977 regarding public attitudes toward defense spending. In the 1976 surveys, those who favored decreased defense budgets outnumbered those who supported an increase by almost two to one.

In the 1977 surveys, the situation was almost entirely reversed, with 30 percent favoring an increase and 15 percent a decrease. In both years, the largest group (47 percent) favored the same level of spending.

Increase Seen In Computer Use

CLEVELAND (AP) — By the year 2000, people may yearn for the good old days when money was just plain paper.

But as computer technology becomes more sophisticated, Industry Week magazine predicts consumers will routinely pay bills from their homes via computer terminals.

The publication, in a review of what may be in store for us in the 21st century, says banks could utilize computer technology to offer customers management, counseling, and even education services.

About 75 percent of U.S. families have checking accounts and about 55 percent to 60 percent of all adults use credit cards, the magazine says. The system called "electronic funds transfer" now is used by less than 10 percent of consumers. But by the year 2000 it may reach 50 percent to 60 percent of the nation's families, Industry Week predicts.

The money system of the future will at the same time become more convenient and more complex. The magazine says the stock market will increasingly become a haven of institutions, particularly pension funds, which by the turn of the century may own more than half of all the stock in U.S. industry.

The trade publication goes on to say that thrift institutions will become more like commercial banks, credit unions will provide banking services, insurance companies will begin to lend on a short-term basis and commercial banks will lengthen their terms.

By the year 2000, the magazine says the concept of capital shortage may be a thing of the past because the U.S. credit market will grow larger and more sophisticated and will become more integrated with international markets.

Speaker Promotes More Use Of Coal

NEW YORK (AP) — Coal and nuclear energy must be the major energy sources for generating electricity in the United States for the predictable future, says William G. Kuhns, chairman of General Public Utilities Corp.

Coal will be the primary source, and therefore commercialization of processes for the liquefaction and gasification of coal must be accelerated, according to Kuhns. Also needed is a coal land-leasing and development policy that will promptly increase coal production, he adds.

"However, the logistics of moving to coal as the sole source of energy for producing electricity are impossible," Kuhns explains. "Reliance on a single energy source would be dangerous. Nuclear energy is the only presently viable alternative to coal. Both are needed. Economics will determine their precise shares in the future electric energy picture."

Republicans Promise Joint Effort

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Republicans who have made headlines in recent months with interecine squabbles, put on an impressive show of unity Sunday.

Leaders of both the official county GOP executive committee and of a new volunteer organization, the Active Republicans of Lubbock County (ARLC), vowed at an ARLC meeting to work together during this election year to put GOP candidates in office from the national to the local levels.

For about the past six months leaders of the Active Republicans have been extremely critical of County GOP Chairman Mike Stevens and other party officials. Then late last year, those critics, Mike Van Horn and John Ryan, set up the new group which old-line Republican hierarchy feared might try to supplant or work in opposition to the official organization.

Ryan and Van Horn vowed at the charter session for their organization that they wanted to enhance, not hurt, the GOP executive committee's work in electing conservative Republican candidates. And Sunday, they preached the same theme.

"All that has taken place the last few months and the past year must cease," Ryan said, referring to the old squabbles.

Remarks by Stevens, GOP district committee man Ray Chapman and former Lubbock mayor and unsuccessful 1974 gubernatorial candidate Jim Granberry appeared to end any public arguing. They, too, urged some 40 persons present to work together.

The ARLC voted Sunday to: — "Strongly encourage" Granberry to seek the Republican primary nomination for the 28th Senatorial District. He told the group he hoped to have a decision on whether or not to make the race within two weeks.

— Urge its members to participate in a petition drive on behalf of Jim Reese. Reese will announce as a candidate for the 19th Congressional District on Jan. 17 and is trying to get enough petition signatures to put him on the ballot without having to pay a $1,000 filing fee.

— Invite farmers to join the Republican party as the political organization which can help farmers make a living. A resolution calling attention to recent farm strike activities said farmers' economic woes are due "to the fact that they have been betrayed by the union-dominated Democratic party and the Democratic president."

The ARLC plans to hold an annual convention Feb. 18 at which it will endorse candidates. During enthusiastic speech-making on behalf of Reese, and the passage of the resolution to help his petition drive, no mention was made of the fact that there already is an announced GOP candidate for the 19th Congressional seat, George Bush of Midland.

Bush has been stumping the area for several months. Reese ran against U.S. Rep. George Mahon in 1976, polling about 45 percent of the vote then.

Hospital Releases Dallas Burn Victim

DALLAS (AP) — The man whose rented snowman costume burst into flames during a nationally televised football championship game at Texas Stadium in Irving a week ago has been released from the hospital.

Daniel Yoder, 24, who suffered second-degree burns, was released and was "doing good," said a Parkland Hospital spokesman.

The costume burst into flames after Yoder apparently bumped into someone carrying a can of burning liquid fuel used to heat cocoa at the game between the Dallas Cowboys and the Minnesota Vikings.

given a five-year sentence. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Boettcher, left, looked down after her daughter was sentenced. (AP Laser-photos)

Area Sheriff Utilizes Hypnosis

By DEAN GLAZE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

HEREFORD — With the assistance of a most uncommon bloodhound, Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson can trail criminals where few lawmen can follow.

McPherson is a certified forensic hypnotist, one of two in the state. He has been using hypnosis for about 1 1/2 years to "trail" criminals through the subconscious of witnesses and victims by helping them recall details of crimes.

"Generally the cases we get are unsolvable," says McPherson. "We just refresh a person's memory to where they can tell what they saw.

"There's nothing deep, dark and secretive about it."

McPherson uses hypnosis to draw out details repressed into a person's subconscious as a result of the fear and trauma suffered during a crime.

Identification obtained through hypnosis was used in nabbing a suspect in the "traveling rapist" case here last July. One of the victims, a Hereford woman, suffered 14 stab wounds and numerous broken facial bones in an attack.

"When I first started interviewing her, she spent most of the time under the desk everytime someone rattled something," McPherson said.

But after four sessions of hypnosis with McPherson, the victim had complete recall of the attack.

McPherson said he used the "reporter method" in which the victim was told she would suffer no pain because she was going to be a reporter and would see the attack through a camera.

"She completely separated herself," McPherson said. "She related the whole incident in third person."

"We told her she would not remember any part of it until such time as her mind could handle it," McPherson said. Each time the victim was hypnotized, she was told she would remember only things that were easy for her to recall.

"Right now, she can sit down and tell you about it and it doesn't bother her at all," he said.

Appeal Set For Texan

By MICHAEL PRECKER

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Terry Fleener of San Antonio was sentenced to five years in prison today for conveying information about Israel to Arab guerrilla groups.

"It is a cruel and unbiased sentence and I am appealing," said the 23-year-old woman's attorney, Felicia Langer. "I believe many mitigating circumstances were not taken into consideration."

Mrs. Fleener estimated the appeal process could take six months. But she said she believed the young woman would be freed from prison and deported.

"Her confession in court will help her appeals," the lawyer said. "Since there was no actual damage caused, I hope she will be expelled as soon as possible."

Miss Fleener was convicted of violating Israeli security laws by conveying information to the enemy, conspiring to convey information to the enemy and rendering service to unlawful organizations.

At a one-day trial last Tuesday, she confessed to the charges and other charges were dropped.

Miss Fleener showed no emotion as she was taken to a police van for the trip back to Ramla Prison, where she has been held since her arrest in October. But Mrs. Langer said her client "was very disappointed. She did not expect such a harsh judgment."

Her mother, Mary Boettcher of Enon, Ohio, and her former university professor in San Antonio, Dr. Catherine Edwards, were present for the sentencing and also testified at the trial as character witnesses.

Mrs. Boettcher was crying as she left the courtroom and would not speak to reporters.

Miss Fleener was arrested Oct. 25 at Ben-Gurion Airport as she arrived in Israel. The charges against her were not revealed, and all court sessions were closed, the customary procedure in security cases.

In December, however, American officials said the young woman was suspected of intending to photograph military installations. According to the indictment, she was to gather information in Israel and pass it to a member of an Arab guerrilla organization in Lebanon.

Miss Fleener visited Israel once before, in 1976. It was not clear if the charges against her resulted from her activities during that visit or from her actions outside Israel. Under Israeli security laws, persons can be tried for offenses committed against Israel in other countries.

According to her mother, Miss Fleener went to Lebanon in 1975 to attend the American University in Beirut. She did not enroll, however, and worked for a year and a half as a stewardess for Kuwait Airlines, living in Kuwait and traveling throughout the region.

She quit that job in 1976, her mother said, to return to the American University but did not stay because of the Lebanese civil war. Instead, she resumed her schooling in Texas.

Mrs. Langer criticized the secrecy surrounding the trial, saying, "It was not dictated by any security reasons but because she was an American."

Jury Selection Opening In Civil Removal Suit

AMARILLO (AP) — Attorneys were to begin the slow process of questioning individual jury prospects today for a removal hearing involving Potter County Attorney Kerry Knorpp.

Potter County Judge Hugh Russell filed the civil removal suit, alleging that Knorpp neglected to return promptly to county coffers those portions of business trip advances he did not need for county business. The suit alleges Knorpp made personal use of the funds before reimbursing the county.

Russell's suit alleges that $6,442 Knorpp paid back to the county in June 1976 included money Knorpp had held since 1974.

Knorpp has filed a countersuit seeking $500,000 damages against Russell and District Attorney Tom Curtis. The suit also seeks an additional $500 a day beginning Oct. 7, 1977, when Knorpp was suspended with pay by State District Judge Arthur Tipps of Wichita Falls.

Tipps is presiding over the removal hearing under a new state law that requires an out-of-county judge, to hear such proceedings.

At least 17 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify at the hearing, including Curtis, who was called by Knorpp's lawyers. Knorpp asked that the potential jurors be questioned one at a time to offset what he called the effects of overwhelming publicity.

Knorpp also faces other legal proceedings. A county grand jury indicted him on perjury, bribery and misapplication of funds charges after a lengthy probe. No trial date has been set on those charges.

FOCUS

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

It was always a throw-away line. Somewhere between the time I caught the kid who was to be spanked, drew back my hand, and let it come to rest on his backside, I'd say, "This is going to hurt me worse than it hurts you." (Actually, it only hurt me worse once — and that's when one of my boys stuck a Frisbee down his pants and I nearly broke my hand.)

I got the line from my mother who used it to assure me that while she was switching my legs with a tree trunk, she really had nothing in her heart but love for me.

Disciplining children is tough. Child psychology books never deal with it realistically. They tell you funny things like, "Don't discipline your child in anger." (Merry Christmas... I'm going to punch you out!) "Discuss his punishment with him." ("What do you mean, you vote no?") "The punishment must fit the crime." ("Playing in the joints in your orthopedic shoes is a hitting offense.")

They never tell you about "runners." They're the children who are faster than a speeding bullet, more powerful than a locomotive and able to leap fences in a single bound. By the time you've caught them you can't remember why you wanted them.

There are the flinchers who act like they've been beaten every day of their lives for breathing. Get a room full of company and reach out to touch their cheek in a gesture of love and they recoil and threaten to call legal aid.

There are the door slammers, the "I'm telling!" and the mumbler.

Actually, I lied. There was one other time when a spanking hurt me worse than it hurt the child.

My son had knocked over a planter lamp for the 50th time, spreading dirt and stones into the beige shag. I leaned over, planted a swift hand to his rump and said, "If you do that one more time I'm mailing you out of the country. I told you not to throw a ball in the living room and I mean it!"

He took the punishment, then in tears, looked around for someone to comfort him. In desperation, he threw both arms around my knees.

If he saw my tears as I held him close... he didn't mention it.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that "epilepsy is the only common disorder where the sufferer is more handicapped by the attitude of society than by his disability." I know it's true because I have lived with that problem for many years.

I am enclosing your column of June 18, 1968, which contains more helpful information about epilepsy than anything I've ever read. I hope you agree that it deserves a rerun.

One in Brooklyn

Dear One: I do. And here it is.

DEAR ABBY: One day last week a little neighbor boy was here playing with my son. Fortunately I was present when the playmate had an epileptic seizure. I took him home and told his mother what had happened. Abby, she turned on me as if I had accused her child of some crime. She said, "What do you mean, Epileptic? Once in a while he has a little fainting spell but he'll outgrow it. Besides, it can't be epilepsy because we have never had any insanity in our family!"

I tried to tell her that I knew an epileptic seizure when I saw one because my younger sister had had many. I also tried to tell her that it had nothing to do with "insanity," and with medication, epilepsy could be controlled. I even told her how happily married my sister is today. I did all I could to educate this woman, but she insisted she had no need for my explanations, so I left.

Abby, it seems incredible that she still have people who think epilepsy is something to be ashamed of. I hope you will print this letter with a few facts of your own to wake up people like my neighbor.

Sycamore Lane

Dear Sycamore: The notion that epilepsy is something to be ashamed of dates back to biblical times, when illnesses that couldn't readily be diagnosed were attributed to witchcraft, insanity or the work of the "devil."

It is a safe estimate that about one out of every 100 Americans has epilepsy. The exact cause is not known, but it can be the result of prenatal influences, infectious diseases or brain damage.

Although the "tendency" toward it can be inherited, it is not considered a hereditary disorder. In recent years medication and drugs have become extremely effective in controlling epilepsy. With proper care, most epileptics are able to attend school, hold down a job, eventually marry, and live normal lives. I hope your neighbor sees this. For her sake, but especially for her son's.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

For calorie-counters and nutrition fans, here's news you can use, from the professional journals:

'STARVATION DIABETES' — a temporary impairment of the body's ability to handle glucose (sugar) containing foods can result from fasts as brief as 24 hours, according to a report in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition. A low-carbohydrate diet can have the same results, and may require a high carbohydrate diet for a week or more to restore normalcy.

BRINGING HOME THE BACON — according to a report in "Food Technology," consumers are bringing home less of it. The use of cake mixes, convenience foods and frozen dinners also dropped considerably since 1974.

CHEERS! — The New England Journal of Medicine reports a negative association between moderate drinking and heart disease among 7,705 Japanese-American men living in Hawaii. In other words, those who drank moderately (mostly beer) were less likely to have heart trouble than abstainers.

WINNING LOSERS — In "Obesity and Bariatric Medicine" — a six month in-depth study of those who succeeded and those who failed at weight loss — disclosed these differences: The failures started out with excessive food restrictions and were more inclined to skip meals, particularly breakfast. Six months later, both winning losers and failing dieters ate roughly the same amount of food during the day, but the failures gorged at night.

FAT GENES — tendency towards overweight is inherited. In a Canadian study of 274 families with both natural and adopted children, only the natural children tended to mirror their parents' obesity. The adopted children, presumably offered the same diet, tended to remain normal.

ALCOHOLIC RATS — laboratory rats fed large amounts of alcohol and a high carbohydrate diet maintained their normal weight. But rats fed the same amount of alcohol lost weight on high-protein or high-fat diets. They also developed fatty livers — the carbohydrate-fed rats didn't.

BELGIANS AND BUTTER — a cut in butter consumption corresponds with a cut in cholesterol counts and heart disease among Northern Belgians. According to a report in the British medical journal, "The Lancet," the northerners have been gradually cutting their total intake of fat and cholesterol foods and replacing part of the fat with polyunsaturates. Southern Belgians consume four to five times as much butter and only half as much margarine as the northerners.

JUNK FOOD is often criticized as a cause of overweight. It can also cause underweight. Dr. Robert J. Karp of the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia found that malnourished, undersized, underweight, slum children had twice as much junk food in their households as well-nourished children in the same area.

SALT AND THE SOLOMON ISLANDS — natives of this area rarely suffer hypertension or strokes. Their diet has been exceedingly low in salt, but some of the tribes have become more "acculturated" (exposed to "modern" foods and ways of eating) and their salt intake has increased. Among these groups, blood pressure rises with age, while in the less acculturated tribes, blood pressure drops with increasing age.

DOCTORS AND BREASTFEEDING — according to an attitude study in the "Journal of Tropical Pediatrics," U.S. physicians are generally indifferent to the values of breastfeeding and prematurely recommend a switch to bottle feeding at the first sign of any difficulty. Pediatricians were found to be more knowledgeable about breastfeeding than obstetricians.

FAT SKELTONS — Skeletal differences may be related to overweight, according to a report from the "New Zealand Medical Journal." Measurements of 143 school children, ages 6 to 15, showed that the thinner youngsters had comparatively larger thoraxes with more area for a larger lung capacity (and presumably, more stamina). The fatter children had relatively larger abdominal cavities... with room for a larger digestive tract.

FAKE FAT — "sucrose polyester" is a synthetic oil with the same cooking properties as vegetable oil. According to a report in "Medical World News," the new synthetic seems to lower cholesterol counts.

CANCER-PRONE — fat women who have been overweight since adolescence have a greater chance of developing endometrial cancer, according to a study of 56,111 female members of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly). Researchers from the Medical College of Wisconsin, reporting in "Family Practice" theorize that excess fat cells store more estrogen.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠83 ♥73 ♦KQ9652 ♣764

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♣ Pass Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—By cue-bidding the opponents' suit, partner has shown an enormous hand. It is impossible to determine just how valuable your hand is—that depends on whether partner has a diamond fit. You can alert him to the fact that you have something by jumping to four diamonds. Don't do more than that. Partner might have a heart-spade two-suiter, so you can't afford to bypass four spades.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, both sides have 60 on score, as South you hold:

♠Q85 ♥7 ♦KQ873 ♣K962

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♥ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. You should let partner know that you have a reasonable hand. If you bid only two spades, he might think that you are competing on minimal values just to stop the opponents from buying the hand cheaply and closing out the rubber. That false impression could put him at a disadvantage as the auction progresses.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K93 ♥Q7 ♦865 ♣AKJ103

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—In view of partner's jump shift, you should be in the slam zone, so a bid of three no trump would not meet with our approval. We suggest that you temporize for the moment by taking a preference to three hearts—honor doubleton on this auction is usually adequate support. This will allow partner to clarify his hand at a reasonably low level, and we will have ample opportunity later to rebid our good club suit.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQJ92 ♥105 ♦A1073 ♣83

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♥ 2 ♣ ?

What action do you take?

A.—It is a close decision between a penalty double and a bid of two spades. We favor the latter action because we do not like suppressing a major suit of such quality. Also, the fact that the opponents are not vulnerable limits the size of the possible penalty. Despite the fact that partner opened in third seat, we want to try for game.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K92 ♥86 ♦K983 ♣J1072

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner's jump in his own suit is not forcing, and we are close to a minimum for our original response. Nevertheless, we would rebid three no trump—the fact that we have good intermediates makes our hand worth another bid.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠8752 ♥J62 ♦KQ853 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
1 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Your hand was worth just one bid, and you have made it. Be thankful that you have managed to improve the contract. Also, you don't mind if the opponents compete in spades.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—What started out as an impressive collection has turned to dust. North is probably 5-5 in the minors with three spades. You have no source of tricks, and the auction screams for a trump lead which will prevent you from ruffing hearts in dummy. Pass this misfit, while you are still undoubled and may be at a makable level.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK965 ♥5 ♦AJ87 ♣AK3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1 ♣ Dble. 2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner has shown a weak hand with a long club suit. Still, your hand is so strong that the possibility of game is very much alive. A bid of three clubs won't show your full power, and five clubs is too unilateral. Four clubs fits the bill perfectly. Avoid a jump shift in diamonds because partner might be forced to raise, taking you past your safe club contract.

Chinese Pop Hit Stirs Interest

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—The top pop song in China these days, for those of you who haven't kept up with the Peking charts, is a lilting little number called: "The People Gloriously Carry Manure to the Fields."

Maybe it's not the type of thing Irving Berlin picked up from his shoeshine boy in the lobby of the Brill Building, the original Tin Pan Alley, or that sent Rodgers rushing home to Hammerstein, but there is a certain earthy compulsion about it. Like early Elvis of the hound dawg and blue suede shoes, the title hits you where you live, down deep in your denims or double knits.

I tried it out on a couple of song pluggers standing on the corner of Broadway and 51st, waiting to be mugged, and they were impressed. Perhaps not enough to run to a phone booth and hum a couple of bars to Elton John or Linda Ronstadt, but enough to take the cigars out of their mouths and begin thinking about spin-offs and demos and derivs (derivatives), which is how song writers talk when they can't think of anything that rhymes.

One of them began snapping his fingers rhythmically and keening, which they do at Irish wakes, in a falsetto voice. "You Light Up My Honey Wagon," he improvised a few lyrics and got excited. "Hey that's it. Debby Boone and a background maybe of Chinese temple gongs or pagoda bells or whatever they have out there."

Mannie, the other song pluggie who had an almost hit in "Plain Talking Peanut Picker from Plains," thought something more sophisticated, on the lines of Stephen Sondheim, might be the right note to hit in socking it to them Peking style on the side of the world. "Try this," he enthused:

Doesn't it reek?
Me chopping rice in the paddy
You up the creek.

Send in the fertilizers...
He would have dashed off to the nearest Woolworth's to two-finger it out on a piano, like Al Jolson in the movie, only Woolworth's doesn't carry pianos anymore and Arnie, his partner, was shaking his head.

"Bette Midler maybe could do it with a tear running down her cheek or Shirley Bassey in a Chinese sarong slit up to the Manchuria border," he cautioned, "but it's the masses not the classes that rule the top of the pops in Peking. What about the Bee Gees doing 'How Deep is the Communal Furrow'?" Or fixing up a little something for Rod Stewart like "You're in My Quota, My Little Red Book of Nitrates?" I think I could coax Englebert

GOODWILL COLLECTOR

NEW YORK (AP)—The Rev. Edgar James Helms, Methodist minister, inaugurated the concept of the collection box for the Goodwill Industries of America Inc. when he found the financial squeeze in this country shrinking the pocketbooks of the affluent in the early 1900s. Rev. Helms canvassed from door to door asking for cast-off clothing, and any other goods that he could carry away. When a streetcar conductor refused to allow him to bring his bags on board, Rev. Helms resorted to a wheelbarrow.

Humperdink into "Help Me Make It Through the Harvest" and, for the flip side, "Bird Lime Keep Falling on My Head." Unless, maybe we should think in terms of a Nashville sound...

They both lowered their falsettos to a Johnny Cash basso-agriculturo and began pawing at the pavement with their earth shoes like a couple of down home lyric kickers.

Song titles plunked out of them like from a five-string banjo:
"The Ripe, Brown Fields of Home"
"Once More With Peat Moss"
"Send a Picture of Chairman Mao"
"This Time We Almost Made Our Quota, Didn't We, Comrade?"
"I Can't Stop Shovelling This."

"Mannie," cried Arnie, the way Handel shrieked when he heard the Alleluia chorus in the back of his head or like Hank Williams hitting on "Jambalaya" at the wheel of his gold caddy. "Can you see Dolly Parton in a sequined Mao suit? Or Bobbie Gentry in hip huggers blues-ing it up about whatever it was that Ching Chiang and the Gang of Four threw off the Yangtse-kiang bridge?"

Genius at work deserves respect. I left them as they strolled hand in hand into the Stage Delicatessen, babbling excitedly about calling up Peter Frampton for a single demo on "Dug, Drained and Compost-Heaped" and getting onto Simon & Garfunkel for "Go Tell it to the Chairman" and "The Crops They Are A-manured."

Early afternoon fell on the city, and from the doorway of an upstairs disco near the Wintergarden Theater came the recorded strains of — could it be? — Tony Bennett belting out, "I Left My Hoe in the Evergreen Commune."

Creatures To Be Moved For Aquarium Repair

By TOM BALDWIN
BOSTON (AP)—About 280 sea creatures will be removed from the giant ocean tank at the New England Aquarium because of a crack in one of the viewing windows.
"This is going to be a heck of a big undertaking," said John Prescott, the aquarium's executive director.
He said the tank is home for "Myrtle," an 800-pound sea turtle, and "Snaggle Tooth," an 8-foot sand tiger shark, and they will be among the most difficult to move.
The crack was discovered on New Year's Day, said Prescott. He also said officials at the aquarium don't know what caused the crack, which he said gives the window the appearance of a shattered windshield.

"It happened on one of the two days of the year we were closed," he said. "We have it barricaded. There is no danger to the public."
The tank is 20 feet deep and about 50 feet across a circular surface.
Prescott said the tank will be drained, a project that will take more than a day, and the repairs made over several days. The work done, the tank will be refilled, heated and the animals returned, he said.

Hero Of Taiwan Attempts To Lead Simple Life

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — The day Fan Yuan-yen flew his MIG19 jet to Taiwan from China his name became a household word.

Today he is Taiwan's hero, openly recognized, cheered and often mauled by fans wherever he goes.

The 42-year-old former Chinese Communist air force officer has banked the Tuiwan government's traditional reward to defecting pilots from China — $566,368, the value of 5,000 ounces of gold — and it earns $4,483 a month in interest.

The government also has paid Fan about $400 a month since he was commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the Nationalist Air Force a few days after he defected last July 7.

But the handsome, softspoken farmer's son leads a much more sober and austere life than most people on this economically booming island.

Fan often is invited out to not only lunch but also dinner and breakfast. But when he eats alone outside the government hotel where he lives he invariably orders a $1.50 meal.

Fan has augmented his government issued wardrobe with two suits, two shirts and a sweater. He has received many gifts, including 10 shirts, which he doesn't wear because they're "too fashionable." He said the collars are twice as long as any he ever saw in China.

Also among the gifts are four watches, one an 18-karat gold Rolex. But he always wears his $30 Seiko. "I like the gold watch all right," he said, "but it makes me feel uncomfortable and silly, knowing it cost several hundred dollars."

Fan spends about $105 a month, about one fourth of his air force pay. He spent a large chunk of his $526 total five-month expenditure on a dinner for fellow officer friends. The rest he spent on movies and shopping.

Fan loves window shopping. "Just looking at the different kinds of goods that fill the stores and watching customers buy them without ration cards is enough pleasure," he said.

But sometimes shop girls embarrass him by offering 20 percent discounts when he knows they receive only 10 percent discounts on purchases in their own shops.

"When I bought a shirt," he said, "they tossed in some free underwear without asking whether I wanted it."

Fan's constantly smiling face has appeared on television hundreds of times and he is recognized easily. When government officials received a few phone calls threatening his life they assigned a permanent bodyguard to him.

Fan doesn't worry about the threats because he is always surrounded by crowds of fans. "Crowds are my best protection," he said. "I think if anyone tried to hurt me the crowds would tear him apart."

Although he enjoys movies, he is shocked by some and puzzled by others. He wondered why girls appear partially nude in some films. "Aren't they ashamed of themselves?" he asked.

Fan enjoys life here but has difficulty adjusting to some things. A few minutes after landing in Taiwan he was whisked away to the air force VIP room. It was the first time he saw (or even imagined) an air conditioner.

Fan found it impossible to sleep in an air-conditioned room, despite Taiwan's humid, mid-90 degree summer weather, and kept his windows open.

He watches television every night, but said, "The girls' costumes are too flimsy. There are too many love stories and sad stories."

"There is no patriotism and the programs are only to entertain people. They are not preparing people to fight for their country."

Fan said he never regrets his defection but misses his family. His wife is a school teacher, and he has a 13-year-old son and two daughters aged 9 and 11.

DR. LAMB

Epilepsy Not Uncommon

BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to find out if you can tell me if an illness during the first year of my life (68 years ago) has anything to do with the illness I have been having for 25 years.

I had meningitis, St. Vitus Dance and partial paralysis of my left side with convulsions. For two weeks doctors thought I would not live, but after the fourth week they said I would.

More than 25 years ago, I began having epileptic attacks, having to be hospitalized several times. My mind still stays torn up, but I have not had a seizure in over five years. I am taking the medicine that was prescribed for me and was told I would always have to take it.

I get very despondent at times. I get things on my mind that ought not to be there and cannot get rid of them, and get very nervous. Can these depressed thoughts come from the illness I had when I was young? Can I ever hope to be relieved from this tension and depression?

DEAR READER — Epilepsy is more common than most people realize. There are two general categories, acquired epilepsy and idiopathic (cause unknown). As ways to study the brain have improved, more cases of acquired epilepsy have been found. Anyone can become an epileptic. A major cause for acquired epilepsy is brain injury. The injury can come from trauma or from an illness such as you describe that can cause damage to brain cells. The damage area is the potential focus that triggers the attacks. Individuals who have strokes may develop epilepsy as a complication — caused by the brain damage from the stroke.

You may be greatly surprised to learn that Dr. Richard Masland, executive director for the National Commission for the control of Epilepsy and its Consequences estimates that 20,000 new cases of epilepsy occur each year because of automobile accidents.

The Commission is recommending to the president and congress that the 55 mile an hour speed limit be vigorously enforced. This observation alone should remind everyone that he or she can become an epileptic in the future if a stroke, automobile accident or illness of any type causes brain damage. That is why I have used the title, Epilepsy: You Can Have It Too, for the Health Letter number 10-8. I am sending this issue to you. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me for it in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, 78292.

Coping with your illness and medications may be factors in your depressions. However, many people have depressions or feel depressed who do not have epilepsy either. To give you a better understanding of depressions and what to do about them, I also am sending you The Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life. Readers who want this issue can send 50 cents for it to the same address.

Your five years without convulsions is an example of how well controlled attacks can be with the proper use of modern medicines. Sometimes it does take a long time to find the right combination of medicines, but almost all cases can be managed to the point that convulsions are rare or nonexistent. The medical advances have made it possible for most people with epilepsy to lead a completely normal life. The biggest problem most epileptics have is coping with the ignorance or the general public concerning this rather common disease. If you get depressed about having epilepsy just remember, that many of the world's greats were epileptic, including Julius Caesar and Alexander the Great.

Wizard Of Oz Fans Meet In California

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — One hundred Winkies from the West of Oz met recently in a Yosemite National Park hotel to bid at an auction of Oz books, T-shirts, pillowcases, homemade dolls and coloring books.

Three-quarters of a century after L. Frank Baum created it, the mythical Land of Oz is flourishing. The original Winkies were people who lived in the yellow country in the West of Oz in Baum's classic children's stories. Today's Winkies are ardent devotees of the stories who have joined the international Wizard of Oz Club.

The club, which has 2,000 members, was formed in 1957 by a 14-year-old schoolboy, Justin Schiller, now a rare book dealer in New York.

The 100 Winkies who met here ranged from a special collections librarian at the University of California, Berkeley, to a 10-year-old with an encyclopedic knowledge of Oz.

Trip To China Firms Stand For Kennedy

HONG KONG (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy returned from his first trip to China today "more committed than ever" to speeding up the normalization of Sino-U.S. relations.

The Massachusetts Democrat spent two weeks in China talking to Chinese leaders and visiting Shanghai, Peking and several other cities.

"I leave China more committed than ever to helping move forward the process of normalizing relations between the United States and China," Kennedy told an airport news conference prior to departure for a one-week visit to Japan.

Kennedy said there remained "important differences of principle" that are impeding the normalization process such as the status of Taiwan, seat of the rival nationalist government.

"I came away firmly convinced of the desire of China to move toward the normalization of relations," he said. He added China had not changed its position on the Taiwan issue.

Kennedy, who made the trip with 10 members of his family, held talks with Teng Hsioping, Communist Party vice chairman, Foreign Minister Huang Hua and a number of other officials.

"The key obstacle to normalization," Kennedy said, "is the future of the 16 million people on Taiwan. I did not expect and cannot report progress in resolving that issue."

He added, however, that he believed both he and the Chinese now have a better understanding of each government's position on the Taiwan issue.

"Clearly, further discussions will be needed to resolve continuing differences between the American and Chinese positions on Taiwan," he said. But he added that "we and the Chinese share an interest in creating a positive political climate" for the normalization process.

Kennedy said it was "one of the great anomalies of our foreign policy" that diplomatic ties between Peking and Washington have yet to be established.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Once in a while you have to loosen up and plant a little seed money to impress a prospect. Tomorrow will be one of those times when it could be a good investment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you hope to accomplish tomorrow may be stalled at the starting gate. Once over your shock, you'll see that there are several ways to get the show on the road.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In something that can benefit your careerwise, you will have to guard against tipping your hand tomorrow. Hold your aces until you know they can be used advantageously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Socialize tomorrow and enjoy friends for what they are, but sidestep anything that smacks of business. It could quickly spring a leak.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) No one will understand your career aspirations tomorrow any better than you. Encumbering yourself with associates would not be a wise idea.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Lubricate requests of other tomorrow with pleasantries and good will. If you hit them with something out of the blue, it's likely to get shot down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Everything must be balanced, logical and equal in joint ventures tomorrow. If either party tries to dominate or show greed, the whole scheme will backfire.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Let no one pressure you tomorrow to give a quick yes-or-no answer. You're not good at situations where you can't weigh alternatives.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There will be something at which you will have the equipment and talent to perform tomorrow, but you will lean toward refusal. Study it carefully. It could be a profitable move.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will be clever and proficient at many things tomorrow, but you will fall short in deals where money is involved. Postpone those till later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The trick tomorrow will be to get past your early impatience. Once you accomplish that your efficiency rating will soar and what you want to do will get done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A plan that seemed feasible when first concocted may not look so nifty in the cold light of day. Don't despair, you'll think of something better.

Government Predicts More Picky Shopping

By MICHAEL DOAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers will shop more selectively this year as they spend more and more of their earnings on fuel, the federal government predicts.

The rising costs of home heating and running a car may cut into sales of new clothes and autos first, the Commerce Department's annual industrial outlook, released Sunday, indicates.

The department said "high energy costs that absorb an ever-growing share of disposable income have already had a sobering effect on many Americans."

"Recent small annual sales gains for apparel stores and more conservative clothing purchase patterns may mean similar restraints later in other sales areas," the report said.

Shoppers increased their clothing budgets an average of only 5 percent last year, although spending 10 percent more on retail purchases in general, the report said.

For 1978, the report predicted clothing expenses will rise an average 6 percent, matching the projected growth in retail prices. Retail sales in general are expected to rise 10 percent this year.

As for cars, it said "higher energy costs and continuing inflation are expected to cause consumers to allocate larger portions of their incomes to less discretionary purchases than automobiles."

While other industries are expected to show bigger production gains, the auto industry should grow only about 2 percent after inflation per year through 1982, the report said.

This year, auto and truck sales should decline to 14.5 million vehicles from 1977's record 15 million, it said.

Falling used car prices have raised the cost of new cars by decreasing the motorist's trade-in value for his present automobile, the report said.

The study also noted that more car owners are performing their own simple repairs. And drivers looking to control what their driving costs bought about 30 percent of their gasoline last year at self-service stations, double the previous year.

In its section on retail trade, the report said rising gasoline costs may mean Americans will be less inclined to travel from shopping center to shopping center in search of a bargain.

"The typical customer is a more practical shopper who no longer regards shopping as an enjoyable experience," wrote Marvin J. Margulies, a consumer goods specialist.

"The longer term outlook envisions a quality-conscious consumer, with greater financial demands made on personal income and major buying decisions subjected to more stringent examination than ever before," he said.

Clothing merchants suffered last year "with blue jeans price wars, import restrictions, Tris-treated sleepwear, adverse weather, an often casually dressed president and slow-moving merchandise."

"The average consumer did not have a compelling reason to supplement her wardrobe with 1978 fashions since the previous year's had remained fashionable," the report said.

The report also said that many buyers have become skeptical that clothes are designed to become obsolete.

The study forecast:

— Innovations in the cosmetics industry will include better skin moisturizers, better anti-perspirants, better hair coloring products, more effective wrinkle masking and improved ethnic products.

— The tobacco industry should grow 7 per cent a year. "Though the public has been made aware of possible risks to human health, there is no indication that consumer demand has lessened or will lessen," the report said.

— New home construction should continue to be strong. As a result, people will buy more household appliances and furniture for their new homes.

— The economy should grow enough to reduce unemployment from about 7 percent now to 6 1/2 percent next year.

Advocates of the Carter administration's energy package say the president's proposed legislation would cut energy growth from 4.5 to 2 percent annually.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Continues To Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, unsettled by rising interest rates, continued its early-1978 slide with another steep decline today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Friday at its lowest point since Oct. 1, 1975, fell 10.31 to 783.18 by nontime today.

Losers overwhelmed gainers by about a 7-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow's 37.68-point slide last week in its first four sessions of the new year drove the average below the 800 level, which had been widely regarded as an area of psychological support.

Late Friday the Federal Reserve announced a 1/2-point increase to 6 1/2 percent in the discount rate — the rate it charges on loans to its member commercial banks.

Analysts said the move was designed as a prop for the slumping dollar in foreign-exchange markets.

But traders seemed fearful that it would also have the effect of pushing up other interest rates to the point at which they would slow economic activity and attract funds from stocks into interest-bearing securities.

Open-market interest rates climbed today on those developments, and an increase in the prime lending rate from 7 3/4 to 8 percent spread gradually in the banking industry.

Among actively traded blue chips, General Motors fell 1/2 to 59 1/2; General Electric was off 1/4 at 47 1/4, and American Telephone Telegraph slipped 3/4 to 59 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index lost .57 to 50.07. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index tumbled 1.75 to 121.30.

Volume on the Big Board reached 13.32 million shares by nontime, against 11.87 million at the same point Friday.

Space Engineer Seeks Backers

SARATOGA, Calif. (AP) — Any spectator could buy a trip into space for $10,000, if a retired space engineer's private rocket project becomes a reality.

This word came Sunday from Robert Truax, 60, who was technical manager of Evel Knievel's unsuccessful 1974 rocket motorcycle attempt across the Snake River.

Truax is seeking backers for an $800,000 project to launch 25-foot rockets to the altitude of 50 miles, with a passenger squatted in the nose cone.

Although steep in technology, Truax nevertheless has a sense of humor. "There will be several panic buttons, but the fail-safe one will not be hooked up," he deadpanned.

There's already a volunteer to be the first passenger. He is Marty Yahn, 30, of San Jose, who is in the reclaimed metal business. "I would like to do it because it has never been done before," Yahn said.

He said he has never been involved in stunts, but wants to "make a name for myself."

Truax said the vehicle would weigh 3,200 pounds. The motors would supply 4,000 pounds of thrust for about 100 seconds, pushing it to more than 100,000 feet altitude.

After the rockets drop off, the capsule would coast on up another 30 miles.

Truax said he hasn't decided on a guidance system, but it would be similar to one used on some official space project.

If fired over the Pacific Coast, the capsule should fall within a five-mile square area about 10 miles out.

Truax said he would like to launch from Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay, but the nearby populated areas would probably prohibit it.

Different advertisers could sponsor various stages of development, and all would attract widespread attention, he said.

It would take about $150,000 to build two rockets, the first to be tested without a passenger, he said. The rest of the $800,000 would be spent on a test site, the testing itself, and tracking and recovery — radar, boats and aircraft.

Truax seems to have convincing credentials. A Naval Academy graduate, he said he organized the U.S. Naval Rocket

Colored Paper Called Hazard

CHICAGO (AP) — The colored sections of many Sunday newspapers contain high amounts of lead and should not be used to start fires in the fireplace or in grills, an American Medical Association authority advises.

Most of the lead from colored sections burned in the fireplace enters the atmosphere, Ward Duell of the AMA's department of environmental, public and occupational health, points out.

"The occasional burning of newspaper in a properly functioning fireplace probably poses no real threat since only an inconsequential amount of lead will be discharged into the home," he said.

But, writing in the January 9 issue of the Journal of the AMA, he said that when it goes up in the chimney it becomes a neighborhood hazard, especially if numerous homeowners are burning newspapers.

Duell's warnings came in response to a question submitted by a physician who was concerned about lead in newspapers. He said that burning black-and-white news pages poses no hazard because the lead content of black ink is so low. Similarly, he said, hands stained by black ink from newspapers will not transmit lead to the bloodstream.

Colored inks with the highest lead content are, in descending order, yellow, red, green and blue.

Duell said colored ink used in offset printing is organic and contains no lead.

Television Producer Spending Most Of His Time In Nashville

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Producer Joe Cates began his TV career in New York in 1947 with a show called "When You Wish Upon a Star." He was born in New York, still lives there and says he likes the place.

But such is the nature of TV today he rarely does a show in what used to be the navel of network production. He tends to spend considerable time in Nashville, Tenn., these days.

He produced Johnny Cash's CBS Christmas special there. He and his brother, Gil, recently co-produced another Nashville show, another tribute to the late Elvis Presley that NBC will air Sunday.

And this week, he returned to Nashville's new Opryland complex to tape yet another down-home musicale for NBC, "50 Years of Country Music," a three-hour extravaganza airing Jan. 22.

Next spring, it's Nashville again for another Cash special. Cates, 53, a specialist in specials, was asked if he suspects Nashville has become a pretty big center of production for network TV.

"I wouldn't say pretty big," he said by phone from New York. "Los Angeles still clearly is the leader, followed by New York only because news, sports, soap operas and a few oddball things come out of there."

"But the only other city in the U.S. that is doing (national) television regularly is Nashville, not the old radio centers like Chicago or Detroit." He offered a few theories why.

"Obviously, there's a concentration of country music stars living there," he said. "And country music has become national."

"So many of these people are crossover" — not limited to country music fans in appeal — "and are of national interest."

"A third reason is that they very wisely built a major studio facility there. The one they have out at Opryland is a fine as anything you have in Los Angeles, maybe even finer."

Cates, who estimates that in the last 10 years he's made between 80 and 100 special, many of them musicals, says that for him, New York has become a place where you can't do music specials. Why?

"We don't have the studio facilities," he said. "We certainly don't have the sets to draw from in stock. And we don't have the TV stars they require in casting. They're all out in California."

Cates, who this season put on specials from such other non-New York locales as Dallas, Monaco and Stockholm, says he began concentrating on specials in 1956.

New Computer To Be Shelved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is stopping development of a new computer system for monitoring tax returns because it could threaten civil liberties, an administration source said Sunday.

Instead, the Internal Revenue Service will expand its current computer system, which has better controls against the invasion of citizens' privacy, the source said.

The new system would have cost more than $800 million by 1986, while improvements to the existing system would cost several million less in the same period.

The new Tax Administration System (TAS) computer was proposed by the IRS more than three years ago.

Ford To Discuss Foreign Policy In TV Debut

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 PLYMOUTH, Vt. (AP) — NBC's problems in finding suitable employment on a talk show for former President Ford brings to mind the almost farcical retirement project undertaken by Calvin Coolidge, who was born and reared in this cheese-making village.

Ford, it will be recalled, agreed to a $1.3 million deal with NBC for five news specials, none of which has come to pass so far because his contract with Harper & Row to publish his memoirs prevents him from discussing the presidency. Now the deal has been rejiggered and Ford will make his TV debut as an ex-president discussing foreign policy, perhaps having second thoughts about the Polish connection with the Soviets, which some think cost him the election in the debates with Jimmy Carter.

Long before David Frost coaxed Richard Nixon out of monastic seclusion in San Clemente, former occupants of the Oval Office and the big house on Pennsylvania Avenue have been sought after assiduously by the media for their words of wisdom or regret. Teddy Roosevelt laid down his elephant gun long enough to contribute occasional pieces to the Kansas City Star.

Benjamin Harrison and William Howard Taft, upon leaving the White House, became magazine writers, mostly on legal and constitutional questions. Gen. Ulysses Simpson Grant, after a disastrous fling in the banking business that left him almost penniless, began churning out magazine articles about his war experiences, which led to the highly successful publication of his memoirs by Mark Twain, a $500,000 best seller.

Coolidge, a president of spectacularly few words, was besidged with publishing offers from the moment he issued the words "I do not choose to run for president in 1928."

He actually never uttered those famous words. He handed them out on a slip of paper to reporters summoned to his summer White House office at a high school in Rapid City, S.D. during his 1927 vacation in the Black Hills.

It was here that the idea was germinating for Coolidge's bizarre use of the fewest possible words for a gargantuan effect. A sculptor named Gutzon Borglum was hanging from a bo'sun's chair on Mount Rushmore, and Silent Cal drove over one day to have a look.

He said nothing, as befitted a president who at a White House dinner was told by the lady at his side she had made a bet that she could get more than two words out of him. "You lose," Coolidge said. But that afternoon drive in the Black Hills came back one day to haunt him.

Out of office, Vermont's Great Stone Face, as the tabloids called him, curtly turned down all interviews and speeches. He said he "wished to avoid being an officious intermeddler: I should like to be known as a former president who minds his own business."

Quietly, in his own hand, he set about writing his memoirs. Terse and to the point, he finished them in under four months and under 25,000 words, which Cosmopolitan magazine paid $110,000 to serialize.

"He'd rather write than be president" commented one of the wags, but the man who said "the business of America is business" was embarrassed by the record fee.

His next public use of words was even more sparing, incredibly so, and America's highest paid writer by the word offered them for free. In January 1930, the Mount Rushmore Memorial Association announced that Calvin Coolidge had undertaken to write a history of the United States from the Declaration of Independence down to his day "in 500 words or fewer" that would last for "5,000 centuries."

Coolidge's rare words would be engraved on the granite face of the Black Hills in letters "five or more inches deep" on tablets 80 feet high by 120 wide next to sculptor Borglum's gigantic faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt. Taller than a seven-story building, the Coolidge concise history would be read like a giant's eye chart from a mile away.

The taciturn Tacitus immediately set pen to paper so his elephantine prose could be carved in place by the next July 4 (1931), when the heads of Washington and Jefferson were due to be unveiled. The first installment, released to the press by Borglum, evoked laughter and disbelief. It was riddled, but silent Cal was more than speechless with anger.

Sculptor Borglum, it turned out, had taken it upon himself to revise and edit the ex-presidential copy, or what the networks now call "running it through the writers." In a wordless fury, Coolidge withdrew from the enterprise, which Borglum subsequently abandoned altogether.

Alas, the world and 5,000 centuries of readers were denied both the biggest and the smallest history of the United States ever dreamed up, which shows what happens when editors and producers get to messing around with a retired president.

TV Show To Focus On Hype

NEW YORK (UPI) — Everyone knows about laugh tracks hyping up audience reaction to comedy — but why not gasp tracks for horror shows, shriek tracks for rock performances and sob tracks for three-hankerchief dramas.

They may well loom, or that's the impression the viewer will get after seeing Edwin Newman host "NBC Reports: Land of Hype and Glory" on Jan. 10, 9-10 p.m., Central time.

The show is amusing, particularly the first segment on a rock group called "Kiss," which should bring all their fans in front of the tube if the word can be got through to them.

Kiss consists of four young men from New York City — at least two of them surprisingly well spoken from the viewpoint of adult prejudice — who are never photographed without their fantastic black and white makeup. They wear seven-inch platform shoes, weird costumes that reveal a lot of hairy chest clanking in chains and other paraphernalia, and sing a brand of rock that they admit won't strain the musical intelligence of their audience.

switch back to NBC. The pageant began its television career in 1954 on ABC, which at the time was no contender. When it proved popular, it moved to CBS, where it was shown from 1955-65. Miss America switched to NBC for 1966-76, when to CBS in '77.

According to NBC figures the pageant on NBC for 1973-76 averaged a 31.4 Nielsen rating and a 61 share of the audience, while on CBS last year it rated a respectable but not overwhelming 22.9, with a 43 share.

Albert A. Marks Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer for the pageant, made no bones about the reason for the switch — ratings.

"Our ratings suffered last year," Marks said in a telephone interview, explaining that the other two networks counterprogrammed against Miss America last year.

"ABC had an episode of 'Washington: Behind Closed Doors' against us and NBC had, of all things, 'Dirty Harry.' I mean, 'Dirty Harry' didn't beat Miss America, but even so..."

The hype that goes into selling books and movies also is dissected in this light but selective look at an exaggerated form of boosterism. Hype, according to Newman, is short for hypodermic and means a shot in the arm.

But there is no mention of the hype that goes into politics — and the snake oil salesmen certainly abound among the image-makers these days.

There also is little more than passing mention of hype on television. How odd. Speaking of hype, here she comes, Miss America, heading back to NBC after only a year at CBS. The Miss America Pageant show will go on Sept. 9, and always draws a big audience.

That big audience is the reason for the

Tax Forms Introduce Changes

By RAY DeCRANE

Changed, simpler, complicated, error-prone.

Contradictory as they appear to be, all of those words accurately describe the new tax forms that 88 million Americans will be wrestling with this year.

The drastic redesign of the forms introduced many changes. Internal Revenue Service felt that something had to be done because of all the errors made last year.

The forms are simpler because fewer complicated mathematical computations are called for. Here are some of the mathematical operations that have been eliminated: you won't have to multiply your adjusted gross income by 16 percent to determine your standard deduction; everyone within the same material status will receive an identical standard deduction. You won't have to multiply the $750 personal exemption by the number of exemptions on the return. You won't have to determine your personal tax credit.

Your new Tax Table in use this year have the standard deduction, personal exemptions and the general tax credit all built-in.

Because of the attempt at simplification for most tax payers, unavoidable complications have been created for others. For example, you ever heard of deliberately adding to your total income in order to find your correct amount of tax? That is exactly what some tax-payers will be required to do. It will work out correctly for them in the end, but, admittedly, it will be difficult to convince some people that this is a correct procedure.

Consider the case of married taxpayers filing separate returns. One spouse wants to itemize deductions because it presents a tax savings. Under the rules the other must also itemize. The tax tables that each will use will automatically give a deduction allowance of $1600 for each of them.

Assume that one has a total of $2300 in itemized deductions. The other partner has $1100 in deductions. Here is what they will have to do: The one with $2300 in deductions will not subtract that amount from adjusted gross income. He will subtract only $700 — the excess over the $1600 which the Tax Table will provide. The partner with $1100 in deductions will have to ADD $500 to adjusted gross income before finding his tax on the Tax Table. The reason: The Tax Table will allow $1600 — $500 more than he actually has.

For this reason, the term "standard deduction" has now been eliminated. In its place is a new term, the "zero bracket amount." By this is meant if you do not itemize deductions, you subtract a "zero" from adjusted gross income before going to the Tax Table. If you do itemize you will either add to or subtract from adjusted gross income, depending upon the relationship between your deductions and your zero bracket amount.

But the big fear of Internal Revenue Service is that errors will result because taxpayers, being creatures of habit, are accustomed to following the procedure of the last year's tax return.

If you attempt to do that this year you will be lost. There is no relationship between the tax forms in use this year and last.

GOLD MEDALIST, MUSICIAN WED — Olympic Gold Medalist Olga Korbut and Soviet pop musician Leonid Borkevich celebrate their wedding in Minsk. The couple wed on Saturday, but pictures were not released until today. (AP Laserphoto)

Olga Korbut Becomes Wife Of Pop Singer

MOSCOW (UPI) — Gymnast Olga Korbut, the darling of the 1972 Munich Olympics, is starting a new life as the wife of a pop singer and as a coach to a younger generation of athletes.

Olga, now 22, wed Saturday night to Leonid Borkevich, 28, vocalist of the Soviet Union's top pop group, in a civil ceremony at the Minsk Wedding Palace.

Wearing a white wedding gown and veil she bought in St. Louis for $177 on her last U.S. tour in December 1976, Olga listened with her bridegroom to a lecture on the seriousness of marriage and signed documents under a portrait of V.I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet state.

The Soviet wedding ceremony takes 10 minutes and costs 150 rubles — $2.13. Two years ago, Olga said in an interview she would "never" become a coach. "I dream of being an actress," she declared.

But to guests at her wedding she confirmed she had retired from gymnastic performing and a coach she would be.

Borkevich, tall and mustachioed, is soloist with the Pesnyary, which sings traditional songs of Byelorussia in a pop style. The group has toured the United States.

Olga, a native of the Byelorussian town of Grodno, won three gold medals at the 1972 Olympics and in the process became the idol of millions watching on worldwide satellite television.

Her blonde hair in a bouncing ponytail, she was 17 at the time and stood only 4 feet 11 inches tall and weighed 83 pounds. Since then she has grown just over an inch and gained 6 pounds.

Western teen-agers formed Olga Korbut fan clubs and then President Richard Nixon received her in the White House, commenting: "I have always been impressed with your ability to land on your feet."

Sportswriters credited her verve and her charm with turning gymnastics from a discipline with virtually no following in the West into a mass spectator sport commanding prime-time television audiences.

Although she remained an international celebrity, she never again equaled her Munich performance. Her coaches complained that she did not work hard enough and she was plagued by injuries. At the 1976 Montreal Olympics, Olga Korbut was outshone by a new child star — Nadia Comaneci of Romania.

A hurricane that swept through Florida in September 1935 resulted in the deaths of 409 persons.

and psychology began in high school. "If I had it to do all over again, I might have become a psychiatrist."

He was first hypnotized in a college biology class while the teacher was trying to hypnotize another student.

He attended classes at the Law Enforcement Hypnosis Institute at the Los Angeles Police Department where six psychologists are employed. Every officer above the rank of lieutenant is a trained forensic hypnotist.

On the staff of psychologists at the institute is Dr. William Kroger, a pioneer in the use of hypnosis in criminal investigations. He was brought in to obtain identification of the persons involved in

Houston Rate Rise Cited

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Washington environmental group has reported rate increases by Houston Lighting & Power Co. in 1976 were among the largest in the nation.

The Environmental Action Foundation said a 19 percent rate increase by HL&P was the eight biggest among 100 leading electric utility companies surveyed.

But a company spokesman said the EAF figure was misleading and distorted. Spokesman Jim Parsons said HL&P did increase its residential rates about 7.75 percent in 1976. The rest of the 19 percent represented fuel cost increases, he said.

"They are inferring that HL&P increased its earnings by 19 percent. But the majority of that was increased fuel costs, which do not add to the light company's earnings," Parsons said.

The EAF in its "Utility Scoreboard" report also noted that HL&P's residential rate of 2.83 cents per kilowatt hour was still lower than that of 83 other companies studied.

California Registers High Tax Revenues

WASHINGTON (AP) — California took in $12.6 billion in tax revenues in the year ending last September, making it the largest tax collector among the 50 states. Commerce Department figures showed New York was second with $10.7 billion.

All states combined took in $100 billion in taxes for the first time in the year ending last September, a 13.2 percent increase in collections.

the mass kidnapping in Chowchilla, Calif., last year.

Dr. Kroger brought forensic hypnosis to the L.A. Police Department four years ago. He learned about it in Israel where victims of bombings were hypnotized to obtain identification of the culprits.

McPherson has found other uses for his talent. "My wife does not like to get up early, especially to cook breakfast, but she does like to be hypnotized," McPherson said. "One time, I told her she would feel a great reward by getting up every morning at 7."

According to McPherson, all went well until his wife read about the hypnotic suggestion in the local paper.

In his hypnosis sessions McPherson says he uses "the eye fixation method," although sometimes he uses a tape recording of a peaceful setting such as a seashore, to help the person relax.

The subject is seated in a comfortable chair with feet flat on the floor. McPherson has them fix their eyes on one certain object and devote all their attention to what he has to say.

"Normally, if we can spend about 20 minutes to an hour beforehand and explain what hypnosis does and what we are doing and win their confidence, then all they have to do is to concentrate."

The way questions are phrased to a person under hypnosis is very important, McPherson said, "because the questions are taken very literally."

Questioning becomes very deliberate and sessions sometime last four hours. McPherson said it becomes easy to ask the wrong question and get the wrong answer. So, McPherson works with Jim LaFavers, an Amarillo detective who also is a forensic hypnotist. LaFavers takes notes and points out wrongly worded questions.

McPherson is quick to point out that it is not the hypnotist's objective to delve into the private life. The sessions are recorded not only for presentation in court, but also to give the subject the opportunity to hear the contents of the session.

Although McPherson's services have been requested by law enforcement agencies across the state, he still feels the state is too skeptical of forensic hypnosis and wants to wait and see how it works out elsewhere.

Woman Seeks Share Of H.L. Hunt Estate

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — An Atlanta woman who claims the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt was bigamously married to her from 1925 to 1934 goes to court today, seeking a piece of Hunt's estate.

The federal court trial, which has attracted enough defense lawyers for the Hunt estate to fill two dozen motel rooms, promises to be long and sensational.

Frania Tye Lee, 73, claims Hunt was married to her and fathered her four children while, unbeknownst to her, the oilman was married to another woman in another city.

The bigamous union allegedly occurred during the period when Hunt made his first million. Now, Mrs. Lee wants half of the money Hunt acquired during that time, and half of the money the property has earned since.

When Hunt died in Dallas in 1974, he was one of the world's richest men. Because of his immense wealth and intricate holdings, there is no reliable estimate on how much money Mrs. Lee's property claims involve.

Mrs. Lee claims Hunt married her in Tampa, Fla., in 1925. She said he called himself Franklin Hunt, and that they soon moved to Shreveport, where he was out of town most of the time on oilfield business.

Florida officials say they can find no record of Hunt marrying Mrs. Lee.

In depositions, Mrs. Lee says her marriage with Hunt was less than idyllic. "I was always either pregnant or we were moving," she testified.

Mrs. Lee says they were living in Dallas in 1934 when she finally heard about her husband's double life and confronted him. She says Hunt then moved her to Great Neck, N.Y., and broke off the relationship.

Records show that Hunt was married to Lyda Bunker of Lake Village, Ark., from 1914 until her death in 1955. Two years later, he married Ruth Ray, a divorcee who used to work in a Hunt oil office in Shreveport.

Mrs. Lee claims that after she learned that Franklin Hunt actually was H.L. Hunt and that he was keeping house with Lyda Bunker in El Dorado, Ark., he took pains to keep her financially comfortable and to keep their bigamy a secret.

She says that in 1942 he gave her $100,000, plus $2,000 a month from an East Texas oil tract. In return, she signed a document releasing Hunt from any claim by her forever. Her lawyers contend the document is invalid.

Mrs. Lee was wed later in 1942 to John Lee, an employee of Hunt's. They later were divorced.

Hunt's will in 1974 did not mention Mrs. Lee or any of her children. However, it directed that the property Hunt owned in Louisiana at the time of his death be distributed equally among 14 special trusts.

Beneficiaries of 10 of those trusts are named in the will. They are the children of Lyda Bunker Hunt and Ruth Ray Hunt, the wives the billionaire acknowledged.

The other four trusts are referred to as "Reliance Trusts" created by "acts of donation" in 1941. Mrs. Lee says those trusts were established for her four children.

Last year in Baton Rouge, Mrs. Lee's four children filed suit to have themselves declared legitimate offspring of H.L. Hunt. That suit is still pending.

Concern Grows Over Moped Safety

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Thousands of moped owners are putt-putting along the nation's roads and concern is growing over the safety of the motorized vehicles and their riders.

As of late last year, 32 states and the District of Columbia had instituted regulations specifically governing the use of mopeds. The Department of Commerce says, however, that most of the states have no insurance or safety requirements. Only about half require vehicle registration.

The state regulations generally limit moped speeds to 20 or 30 mph. Hawaii and Maryland have set no maximum, according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. Minimum age requirements range from 12 to 16 years. Some states require operators to hold a valid driver's license or learner's permit; others do not. Only one state—New York—has a helmet-use law, the institute says.

"Safety experts are concerned about potential problems when there is a sudden influx of young 'mopedists' into the traffic stream," said Kenneth Licht, manager of the school and college department of the National Safety Council.

Writing in a council publication, Licht added: "These youngsters may have absolutely no knowledge of the rules of the road, will probably be totally inexperienced in the operation of a powered vehicle in traffic, will probably have had only minimal—if any—driving instruction from the dealer, and will not even be required to wear a helmet to protect themselves from their own inexperience and youthful exuberance."

Statistics on moped accidents are not available because the devices have not been in use long enough and because different states record moped accidents in different categories. Meanwhile, the safety council has some basic suggestions for anyone who is considering a moped. Among them:

— Insist on detailed instructions from the seller. Practice riding the moped in an off-street area. When you move to regular streets, start with a quiet residential neighborhood and gradually work your way up to heavier traffic.

— Be as conspicuous as possible. Wear light-colored clothing, drive with lights on and use a bike flag.

— Drive defensively so you can avoid collisions even in the case of adverse conditions or mistakes by other drivers.

— Wear a helmet.

— Don't carry passengers.

— Be especially careful when it rains. Like any two-wheeled vehicle, a moped is particularly unstable on wet surfaces. Avoid oil, gravel, sand and wet leaves when possible. If you must ride over a wet surface, try to keep to a straight line and use brakes with caution.

Moped use is growing rapidly in the United States. The industry estimated 1977 sales of about 200,000 and predicted that 3 million or 4 million mopeds would be sold annually in the first half of the next decade. Most mopeds are imports; the Commerce Department says 102,000 mopeds worth $22.1 million were imported in the first half of 1977, up from 31,000 mopeds worth $6.8 million in the same period a year earlier.

Europeans have ridden mopeds since the 1920s, the Commerce Department says. Mopeds began gaining popularity in the United States about two years ago when standards for owning and operating mopeds were eased. Previously, under most state laws, mopeds were considered motorcycles and were subject to strict equipment and licensing requirements.

Mopeds basically are motorized bicycles. They have a motor which is an integral part of the vehicle—not an "assist" motor designed to be added to a conventional bicycle. They are heavier than bicycles, weighing 60 to 100 pounds or more compared to 25 to 40 pounds for a bike. The mopeds have small engines and get 120 to 200 miles per gallon of gasoline. Exhaust emissions are so low that mopeds are exempt from federal anti-pollution legislation. Prices range from about $300 to $700 and up, depending on which options you choose.

Mopeds are harder to operate than bicycles, but easier than motorcycles. To start the engine, you pedal a few strokes, flip the ignition switch on the handlebar and turn the throttle. Once you are under way, the automatic transmission handles shifting chores.

Brake levers are mounted on the handlebars. At stops, the transmission shifts into neutral until the throttle is turned again.

The mopeds require little maintenance. "Cleaning and/or replacing the spark plug occasionally, plus minor carburetor adjustment—similar to what many homeowners do annually to their lawnmowers—is about all that's necessary to keep the moped running smoothly," says the National Safety Council.

New York Paper Makes Debut

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time since 1940, New Yorkers woke up today to find a new independent newspaper among the familiar faces on their newsstands—a 72-page tabloid named The Trib.

"They said it couldn't be done," crowed Trib Publisher Leonard Saffir to nearly 2,000 celebrants, including actress Gloria Swanson, author Kurt Vonnegut and singer Judy Collins, who had gathered in his Third Avenue newsroom to toast the newborn newspaper.

Saffir, a former wire service reporter, raised more than $3 million in 12 months from individual investors to launch The Trib.

The last independent daily newspaper founded in New York was PM in 1940. It folded less than 10 years later.

The first edition of The Trib—selling for 25 cents on newsstands—features a photograph of Manhattan's skyline at dawn on its first page. Inside there are a series of departments—modeled after weekly news magazines—with largely analytical articles on such subjects as the Middle East, Congress and New York City's fiscal position.

In an editorial, The Trib said its character is "younger than springtime," and promised to "fight for a better climate for business," for fair labor policy "without destructive strikes" and to "publicize our matchless assets... until business

Garmatz Charge Dropped

BALTIMORE (AP)—The government today dropped its case against former Rep. Edward A. Garmatz, saying that a key witness had lied in accusing the retired Maryland Democrat of political corruption.

The government's decision was announced by Russell T. Baker Jr., deputy assistant attorney general in the Criminal Division of the Justice Department, as Garmatz' trial was about to begin in the federal courthouse here that bears his name.

Study Foresees Poverty's End In America

NEW YORK (AP)—A $2.9-trillion economy, a smaller army and the end of poverty may be in store for America by 1991, according to a McGraw-Hill study.

If unemployment is held to 4.8 percent or less, and if there is no nuclear war, America's future should be rosy, according to the report issued Sunday by the publishing company's economics department. The study forecasts:

—Real growth will be 3.7 percent a year, or about one-eighth higher than the rate over the past three decades.

—Capital spending, in inflation-adjusted dollars, will more than double by 1991, while the government remains relatively flexible in its fiscal policies.

—Government spending will be up two-thirds, while productivity will be up 42 percent. Thus output per man-hour, in constant dollars, will rise from $10.33 in 1976 to $14.67 in 1991.

The study maintains that good weather, better technology and advances in research should make the United States the world's food supplier and solve the shortages of energy and raw materials after 1981. The United States also will export more goods to Eastern Europe and China, according to the report.

that fled to North Platte, Neb., or Waco comes crawling back looking just plain foolish."

"We did it! And we didn't make fools of ourselves," said one celebrating city desk reporter early today. "I wasn't so sure we wouldn't."

But The Trib has just begun its struggle for survival. A muddle of lawsuits remains to be settled. In one, IHT Corp., successor to the New York Herald Tribune, is suing for alleged trademark infringement and Saffir has filed a countersuit.

Many of the new paper's staff are veterans of New York's competitive newspapering climate, having labored for the lost Herald Tribune, the Journal-American, the World and others.

Editor John Denson worked for the Herald Tribune, the Journal-American and a host of other publications. Vito Turso, an 11-year veteran of the Long Island Press, which folded last March, hired on in November as a reporter for The Trib. His confidence was shaken at first, he said.

"When I started in November, there were no desks, no typewriters, no pencils—only forms to fill out. Things are looking better now."

Saffir said Sunday he expected all 250,000 copies of the initial edition to be sold by 9 a.m. today. Once "curiosity purchases" stop, he said, he expects a circulation of about 200,000 during the first year.

Harvard Researcher Claims Investigation Cost Him Job

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Phin Cohen, a physician and former medical researcher at Harvard University, claims he lost his job there because he blew the whistle on the university's federal grant spending practices.

Cohen, of Brookline, Mass., said in an interview Sunday that he was given written assurance nearly two years ago that his appointment at the school would be renewed, but that the university's position was reversed after he called for a federal audit of grants awarded him by the National Institutes of Health. He lost his job in 1976.

Cohen said he called for the audits after he was asked to sign blank expenditure report forms that the NIH requires. Cohen said his grants from that agency and one from the U.S. Army totaled about $450,000 for a five-year period.

"They told me, come on, everybody does it," he said.

Harvard, after the audits, was told it owed the NIH $132,000 and has repaid the money.

Harvard Vice President Thomas O'Brien, whom Cohen claims informed him that his contract would not be renewed, refused to comment on Cohen's charges because the matter is pending in U.S. District Court in Boston.

But Daniel Steiner, Harvard general counsel, said Cohen knew his contract was "terminal" even before the audit issue arose.

Cohen is suing the university, claiming he was fired for retaliatory reasons. He also is charging the university with generally mispending its federal grants.

In preparing for his suit Cohen also claims audits by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have questioned the spending of more than one-third—$369 million—of the federal grants and contracts provided colleges and universities nationwide in the early 1970s.

The 49-year-old Cohen, father of five, said he discovered the questionable spending while reviewing the HEW audits conducted between October 1976 and October 1977.

At HEW, Edward Stepanick, director of the audit division, downplayed Cohen's claims.

"Well, it is true that many of our au-dit's have found that universities don't maintain adequate records of time and efforts that they spend on projects," Stepanick said.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

Rev. 17: 12-18, 18: 1-7A, The Living Bible

12 His ten horns are ten kings who have not yet risen to power; they will be appointed to their kingdoms for one brief moment, to reign with him.

13 They will all sign a treaty giving their power and strength to him.

14 Together they will wage war against the Lamb, and the Lamb will conquer them; for He is Lord over all lords, and King of kings, and His people are the called and chosen and faithful ones.

15 The oceans, lakes and rivers that the woman is sitting on represent masses of people of every race and nation.

16 The scarlet animal and his ten horns—which represent ten kings who will reign with him—all hate the woman, and will attack her and leave her naked and ravaged by fire.

17 For God will put a plan into their minds, a plan that will carry out His purposes: they will mutually agree to give their authority to the scarlet animal, so that the words of God will be fulfilled.

18 And this woman you saw in your vision represents the great city that rules over the kings of the earth."

CHAPTER 18

1 After all this I saw another angel come down from heaven with great authority, and the earth grew bright with his splendor.

2 He gave a mighty shout, "Babylon the Great is fallen, is fallen; she has become a den of demons, a haunt of devils and every kind of evil spirit!"

3 For all the nations have drunk the fatal wine of her intense immorality. The rulers of earth have enjoyed themselves with her, and businessmen throughout the world have grown rich from all her luxurious living."

4 Then I heard another voice calling from heaven, "Come away from her, My people; do not take part in her sins, or you will be punished with her.

5 For her sins are piled as high as heaven and God is ready to judge her for her crimes.

6 Do to her as she has done to you, and more—give double penalty for all her evil deeds. She brewed many a cup of woe for others—give twice as much to her.

7 She has lived in luxury and pleasure—match it now with torments and with sorrows.

Connors Official Net Master

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors was talking like an older man, a man approaching the Geritol age.

"I'm getting a little older, you know," the Belleville, Ill., lefthander, looking bright-eyed and content, said Sunday after er beating Sweden's 21-year-old Bjorn Borg 6-4, 1-6, 6-4 in the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters tennis tournament.

"Tennis just happens to be my living," he said. "I enjoy doing it — financially, for fun or for prestige."

backhand, and Borg was able to pass him frequently with his heavily topspun forehand drives.

A Time For Victory

CLIFF HARRIS, the celebrated hit-man of the Dallas Cowboys, was in a contemplative mood on the eve of the team's departure for New Orleans and a Super Bowl battle with the Denver Broncos. Cliff is more a man of action than meditation, but the significance of the occasion was not lost on the all-pro safetyman.

"Four times in the Big One in eight years," Cliff mused. "That isn't bad." Not bad at all, considering that only 10 of the National Football League's 28 teams have been in the Super Bowl. Denver will make it 11 Sunday, but that still means that most pro gridirers never have played in the biggest game of their all.

But for Harris and his Cowboy teammates, the glamor of Super Sunday never has been very far away. Ever since Jan. 17, 1971, when Dallas met Baltimore in SB V, that gleaming trophy has been within reach nearly every season. The Cowboys have won Pete Rozelle's pride and joy once, and just missed in the other two tussles by the narrowest of margins.

With any kind of luck, Dallas would be 3-0 in the Super Bowl and shooting for No. 4!

FATE HAS NOT BEEN KIND to the 'Pokes in the Big One, though, and that is a sobering thought for Cowboy partisans as they get ready for the brawl in New Orleans. The only time Dallas won, in SB VI, the Cowboys were so superior to a young Miami Dolphin team that bad bounces could not affect the outcome.

A year earlier, however, having a better team was not enough. The Cowboy defense that brought Dallas to SB V was the original Doomsday gang featuring Bob Lilly, Jethro Pugh, George Andrie, Lee Roy Jordan, Chuck Howley and Mel Renfro. Some of those names will be found in the pro football Hall of Fame one of these days.

The Dallas offense in 1970-71 was not all that bad, either, despite the fact that Craig Morton had an ailing shoulder and was throwing wildly. Calvin Hill and Duane Thomas sparked the ground attack, behind a great offensive line built around Rayfield Wright, Blaine Nye and John Niland.

But some funny things happened to the Cowboys that sunny day in Miami. Dallas led most of the way, but Fate seemed determined to help the Colts. Baltimore got back into the game in the second quarter with a 75-yard touchdown pass that bounced off a Colt receiver, was touched by Renfro's fingertip and then landed in a surprised John Mackey's arms.

The Cowboys lost a chance to put it away early in the third quarter, when an official named Jack Fette ruled the Colts had recovered a Cowboy fumble on the Baltimore goal line. The ball was under Dallas center Dave Manders, but Fette didn't wait until they unstacked.

Then Morton, with the score tied at 13-13 in the final two minutes, had a pass intercepted to set up Colt rookie Jim O'Brien's winning 32-yard field goal with just five seconds left on the clock.

Lilly, in his rage and disgust, threw his helmet 53 yards downfield, a Super Bowl record. Cowboy fans said he should have thrown Jack Fette.

A YEAR LATER, the Cowboys were not to be denied. That great defense was back intact and the offense had a new leader — Roger Staubach. The Dodger passed for 252 yards and Doomsday held the Dolphins to just one field goal to clinch the victory.

Everyone thought Dallas would be back in the Super Bowl for the third straight year, but Staubach tried to run over a Ram linebacker and missed almost all the season. Then in 1974, the NFL player strike and defections to the upstart World Football League disrupted the Cowboys and cost them a playoff spot for the first time in eight years.

Everyone figured that the Cowboys had hit the skids, like all the great teams before them, and it would take several years to rebuild. Howley and Lilly had retired. Hill had jumped to the WFL and Renfro was over the hill. Washington Coach George Allen rubbed his hands in glee.

BUT LANDRY BROUGHT in an outstanding group of rookies in 1975 who infused new enthusiasm and big-play ability into the team. They called themselves the "Dirty Dozen," and their efforts boosted the Cowboys into Super Bowl X against the powerful Pittsburgh Steelers.

The 'Pokes lost a 21-17 thriller, in a game marred by controversy. The Steelers, much to their surprise, were not penalized a single time, and some of the Cowboys accused the world champs of roughing the 'Poke wide receivers. The Steelers just laughed all the way to the bank.

After it was over, the Cowboys admitted that they went to Super Bowl X with a feeling that it was great just to be there. After a couple of disappointing seasons, the emphasis was on reaching the big game.

Now, the attitude is much different as SB XII approaches. "We're going down there to win!" Harris said as he packed his bag for New Orleans. "Just getting there isn't enough. It doesn't mean a thing unless you win!"

Which means there ought to be some kind of head-knocking in the Superdome starting about 5 p.m. Sunday.

"When you're 18, you're young and you're eager. When you're 25, like I am, I've done it all. I've seen it from both ends, and I like it better at the top."

Connors was on top again after a doubtful year in which he had lost Wimbledon to Borg and the U.S. Open to Guillermo Vilas of Argentina. He was seeded only eighth here. His claim to the No. 1 spot in tennis had been under serious question.

And while Sunday's victory in the final of the eight-man round-robin Masters doesn't seal it in bronze for him, he and his public could at least consider him king for the day.

"I started off 1978 on a winning note. Even though the tournament might count more for 1977, this is a good way to start the year," he said of the Masters, which is really the culmination of the previous year's Grand Prix tour.

Perhaps the key to Connors' reemergence here was a sort of renewed enthusiasm he has for the game.

Host TCU

After dropping an opener to Texas on the road Saturday night, Texas Tech will be at home tonight as it tries to rebound and even its Southwest Conference record against Texas Christian.

The two teams will collide in the Lubbock Coliseum beginning at 7:30 p.m.

And as Raider coach Gerald Myers walked off the court in Austin Saturday night, following the 101-86 defeat at the hands of the host-shooting Longhorns, it was not so much the Tech offense as defense which concerned him.

And emphasis on defense may be a prime factor tonight.

Tech altered its lineup for the Texas game, going with a smaller but quicker lineup of 6-4 Thad Sanders, 6-1 Geoff Huston, 6-3 Mike Edwards, 6-5 Kent Williams and 6-7 Mike Russell. However, Myers has not indicated whether he will use this theory or go back to a larger unit.

If he opts for a larger team, he may come with 6-9 Joe Baxter at center. Sanders' quickness and jumping ability, as well as another outside shooter figured in the Saturday alignment.

Williams gave Tech the outside attack against Texas, as he hit 25 points, making 11 of 25 shots. Russell, who had been averaging 20 points, was held to 16, getting 12 of those in the first half. He did not get a chance to touch the ball to often in the last half.

TCU stayed on the heels of the Ponies in their SWC contest, with Steve Scales scoring 18 points. Teammate Delonte Taylor scoring 13 more.

The Frogs held a 43-40 advantage at the half.

Tonight's game will be the first in Lubbock for new coach Tim Somerville, who took over from head coach Johnny Swaim just days before the opening of the season. Somerville was hired as a TCU assistant last summer.

TCU is 2-9 for the year.

In addition to the game here, Texas A&M will open its league slate against Baylor. Rice will play at SMU and Arkansas will host Missouri-St. Louis.

After tonight, Tech will face two straight on the road, at Baylor Thursday and at Rice Saturday.

Connors pulled himself together in the final set. After suffering a service break in the first game, he held the next time and broke Borg in the fourth game on a tricky forehand net-cord shot to tie it 2-2.

He squandered three break points in the eighth game, allowing Borg to make it 4-4. He went up 40-0 in the ninth game, only to have Borg run it to duce. Then Connors put the game away on a brilliant forehand volley cross court.

Connors broke service in the final game on a forehand volley that brought sweet revenge for his five-set loss to Borg at Wimbledon, the English grass-court classic.

Motivation wasn't much of a problem.

"I hit myself in the leg so hard at one point that I had to get going," Connors said of the moment when he was 0-2 in

Slumping Kings Let Johnson Go

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The slumping Kansas City Kings have cleaned house by sacking Coach Phil Johnson — and Joe Axelson says some players may be next.

"I can't put my thumb on what's wrong with the ball club. I know Phil worked very hard, but the chemistry just wasn't there," Axelson, team president and general manager, said Sunday.

The 36-year-old Johnson, along with assistant coach and chief scout Dan Sparks, was sent packing after the Kings stumbled to their seventh straight loss 110-93 to the New York Knicks Saturday night.

Assistant General Manager Larry Staverman assumed temporary coaching duties, and Axelson said the Kings would wait until the end of the season before seeking a permanent replacement.

Johnson was the National Basketball Association's coach of the year in 1974-75 when he led the Kings into the playoffs, but Kansas City followed with two straight losing seasons and was 13-24 this year after the loss to the Knicks.

There are some factors missing, Johnson, who was in the first year of a two-year contract, admitted Sunday. "But they don't seem like a whole lot until you look at them from an 11-man roster standpoint."

Axelsson concurred, saying that the management realized that Johnson was not solely responsible for the team's last-place showing in the NBA's Midwest Division.

"We're not all that choked up about how two or three of them (players) have been playing," said Axelsson. "We had been sitting tight but now we're going to look. If we can make a trade, we're certainly interested. We're not necessarily going to keep all the players we have."

The Kings had been expected to make a run for the playoffs this season, after trading for guard Lucius Allen and center Tom Burleson and drafting rookie guard Otis Birdsong out of Houston.

But Allen has been ineffective most of the year because of illness and injury, and Burleson has shared time at center with Sam Lacey. Birdsong injured his ankle against the Knicks and will be out for at least 10 days.

Axelsson, admitting that the playoffs appeared to be out of the Kings' reach this season, said the team would probably experiment and be more flexible the rest of the year.

"We feel like we've been patient. It's time to try something else now," Axelsson said. "I'm not saying we have great talent, but our talent is better than our performance record."

Axelsson said a new assistant would be hired soon to help Staverman, a player in the old American Basketball League and the NBA, and a former coach of the Indiana Pacers.

BILL DOOLEY
... New VPI Coach-AD

VPI Lands Bill Dooley

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — The president of Virginia Tech, Dr. William E. Lavery, says it wasn't the school's original intention to combine the posts of football coach and athletic director and the reason it was done "is because of the man we have, Bill Dooley."

The 43-year-old Dooley, who in 11 years at North Carolina won three Atlantic Coast Conference titles and took the Tar Heels to six bowl games, says he was "very happy there ... but it was time for a new challenge, and now I'm going to roll up my sleeves and go to work."

And so, on Sunday, Lavery announced that Tech had given Dooley a five-year contract as both football coach and athletic director with the option of signing for five more years as athletic director only.

Neither would say what the financial terms were, although there have been reports Dooley will receive as much as $70,000 a year.

And Dooley, who had four years left on his North Carolina contract, told a news conference he might not be ready to quit the football field, saying "I will coach at least 5 years, but maybe 6, 7, 8, 9 or 10."

Dooley, the brother of Georgia Coach Vince Dooley and author of a 69-52 record at North Carolina, replaces Jimmy Sharpe as football coach and Frank Moseley as athletic director.

Tech fired Sharpe at the end of his third season on Nov. 28 with four years left on his contract. Moseley, 66, retired the next day after 27 years as athletic director.

"I didn't really reach any decision until Saturday night, and I really wasn't offered the job until then," said Dooley. He added he had "thought hard and long on it" since a Tuesday visit to Tech.

Virginia Tech has been a major independent since leaving the Southern Conference and was turned down last year in a bid to join the seven-member ACC. The school's football, basketball and baseball teams have played in many post-season bowls or tournaments.

Dooley, a native of Mobile, Ala., played guard in the 1950s at Mississippi State and was an assistant coach there, at George Washington and under his brother at Georgia before he went to North Carolina in 1967.

His best season was in 1972 when the Tar Heels went 11-1 and lost only to Ohio State. His team was 8-3-1 last fall with a 21-7 loss to Nebraska in the Liberty Bowl.

Jim Dickey, defensive coordinator under Dooley, left at the end of the season to become head coach at Kansas State. Two other assistants have resigned since then to take other posts.

Concerning the rest of his staff, Dooley called its members outstanding and said "I will talk to each member separately and they will be welcome to come to Virginia Tech with me."

The appointment of Dooley as athletic director also left in doubt the future of Bill Matthews, Moseley's assistant for many years who had applied for that job.

Lavery said he felt Matthews "will want to wait and see what takes place. I think he will first get acquainted with Mr. Dooley and then both will decide what their futures are from there."

In that respect, Dooley intimated he didn't intend to go it alone because of the additional burden of coaching football.

"You must surround yourself with capable people such as assistant athletic directors, associated athletic directors and assistant coaches."

Once again, it's time for the stupid swami to predict the class AAAA area basketball games.

Last year's choices, Tascosa, Monterey and Midland Lee, managed to miss their playoff destinations. Instead, Pampa, Hereford and Abilene Cooper proved the stupid swami was in rare form.

So after extensive research through November and December court sessions, the kiss of death goes out to Pampa in District 3-AAAA, Monterey in 4-AAAA and Abilene Cooper in 5-AAAA. To add to this trio's bad luck, Pampa and Monterey begin their district races on good ole Friday the 13th: Cooper already has spotted Abilene High and Midland Lee one setback in the loop chase. Oh well, the swami never relied much on logic anyway.

Usually, this soothsayer depends upon Ma Bell for the bulk of his intelligence gathering. For example, this telephone conversation with an Amarillo writer aided greatly in predicting the Amarillo district.

"Pampa still should be rated the favorite but Tascosa or Amarillo High could upset the Harvesters," figured one veteran Panhandle scribe. "Pampa should be very hard to beat at home. The Sandies probably have the best big man in town (6-7 Victor Mitchell) but they will need more than Mitchell against Pampa."

Rookie coach Gary Abercrombie replaced Robert McPherson as the Pampa boss after last season. Two strong inside players, Ricky Buntun (6-6) and Rusty Ward (6-3), returned from the bidistrict champion team of last year. However, the new trio of starters stands 5-4, 5-8 and 5-10. Therefore, overall height could be a problem.

In the local district, Hereford guard Kelly Kitchens could hold the key to the Herd's title defense for first-year coach Bobby Decker. Though Hereford currently sports the only league mark above .500, Monterey seems to have gathered momentum since Christmas against a tough list of opponents.

Based on pre-district play, the local league may boil down to one playoff game as last year's race did. Plainview won the first half and Hereford won the second half before Hereford won a playoff game. The entire league seems balanced enough to finish in the same format again. Monterey captured a 56-49 decision over Hereford in a Hereford tournament game.

District 5-AAAA appears to hinge on the Abilene city championship meetings between Cooper and Abilene High. Only Midland Lee seems capable of spoiling the Abilene dominance.

"It should come down to Cooper and Abilene High," said Abilene writer Ken Brazzle. "Cooper beat the Eagles 41-38 in a Thanksgiving tournament. Abilene may be a little stronger inside and Cooper might be a little quicker."

Without delaying the inevitable any further, here are district selections:

3-AAAA: 1. Pampa. 2. Amarillo. 3. Tascosa. 4. Palo Duro. 5. Caprock.
4-AAAA: 1. Monterey. 2. Hereford. 3. Coronado. 4. Lubbock. 5. Plainview.
5-AAAA: 1. Cooper. 2. Abilene. 3. Lee. 4. Midland. 5. San Angelo. 6. Permian. 7. Big Spring. 8. Odessa.

'Pokes Due In New Orleans

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys take a late flight to New Orleans today and old comrade quarterback Craig Morton already will be in the Crescent City plotting their demise Jan. 15 in Super Bowl XII.

Dallas' charter plane wasn't scheduled to land until after 5 p.m., an hour or so behind the Denver Broncos.

Morton, of course, was with Dallas when the Cowboys beat Miami 24-3 in Super Bowl VI in Tulane Stadium. Morton sat on the bench while Roger Staubach became the game's Most Valuable Player.

Fate has taken Morton to two teams since he fell from Coach Tom Landry's grace. Morton labored 2½ years with the New York Giants and lost five games he quarterbacked against the Cowboys.

Obviously, it wasn't Morton but the team he had around him.

"Craig has a perfect team for his talents, which are considerable," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Cowboy free safety Cliff Harris says of Morton "He's been playing with confidence. You can see it. It should be a great game. We can't wait."

The chartered DC-8 was to carry some 200 club officials, wives, players, secretaries and press. On game day, the Cowboys plan to fly in their nationally acclaimed cheerleaders.

The team will be headquartered in the Hilton Inn — some 45 minutes from downtown New Orleans and the French Quarter.

the deciding set. "I couldn't hit myself there again."

Borg, who had defaulted his third-round match with the flu, prompting much criticism, said he had been tired but that the illness didn't have much to do with it.

"I was just a little bit weak, even before the match," he said. "I was missing a lot of first serves. I was feeling weak when he was hitting it into the corners and making me run."

Asked if he shouldn't have attacked the net more, Borg said, "Maybe, yeah. I didn't feel 100 percent OK, you know, in my head."

He said he had not practiced for the tournament until nine days before it started.

"You know how it is during the time at Christmas when you're at home and you eat and you get fat and drink a lot. Then you have to go play," he said, rolling his eyes.

Meanwhile, Raul Ramirez of Mexico beat good friend and doubles partner Brian Gottfried 7-6, 7-6 in what turned out to be no more than an exhibition.

Vilas, who had defaulted his third-round match before playing in the semis against Borg, defaulted again from the third-place match that had been scheduled for Sunday.

Officials at first said they would replace him with Ramirez and pay both players fourth-place money. But that didn't conform to the substitution system officials had used for Borg's and Vilas' earlier defaults. So they decided to pay Gottfried $40,000 for third place, Vilas $32,000 for fourth and Ramirez $24,000 plus a fee for playing the exhibition.

Tournament officials acknowledged that the default dilemma had been an embarrassment and said they are working on a new system for next year's Masters.

Return To Play

Western Junior College Conference teams return to action tonight and the top game involves the girls, with defending champion South Plains (9-4, 2-1) hosting Amarillo College (8-1, 1-1) in what could be an elimination contest.

Only four men's games are on the slate, with Frank Phillips and Western Texas taking the night off.

SPC (1-3) entertains Amarillo (3-1), New Mexico Military (3-1) hosts New Mexico JC (1-3), Midland (2-2) is at Odessa (3-1) and winless Howard (0-4) takes on Clarendon (2-2) in Big Spring.

FPC shares the lead with AC, NMMI and Odessa at 3-1 and three-time defending champion WTC is 2-2.

Last week, Odessa and Midland were involved in the Laredo Tournament, Clarendon and Amarillo were in the Clarendon, Classic and Howard and Western Texas competed in the ABC Tournament at Big Spring.

NMJC, NMMI and FPC all played doubleheaders last week, leaving SPC as the lone team idle throughout the entire holidays.

Class, Workshop Opportunities Seen Outstanding At Mrs. B's

It is time to sign up for many of the art and craft classes scheduled to begin (some as soon as Jan. 16) at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts, 5105 29th Drive in Lubbock.

So much is exciting, new and interesting at Mrs. B's, that only highlights are given here:

Toile instruction again will be available from Charl Egeland and from Sarah Storrs, both highly qualified instructors with whom one can enjoy studying.

Miniature oils will be given attention in Thursday night sessions conducted by Jo Daugherty who is quite well known here and who is widely accepted for her expertise in the field.

Then there will be instruction by Jeanie Lewis, returning in March.

And Sally Carter will form classes in gold leafing.

Two Saturday oil workshops loom in January, conducted by Jo Daugherty.

Early inquiry is urged to assure inclusion in one or more of these class sessions or workshops.

Also, consider these other benefits of particular current interest at Mrs. B's:

• 'Good Buys'
Many items are now drastically reduced in price in January Clearance.

A large selection of wood, in usual and preferred patterns, is stocked for the Toile painter.

And plaster — there is scads of this in many, many designs.

Everything for macrame remains the situation at Mrs. B's, too.

Weekly there are new arrivals throughout the diversified stock, and frequent visits are invited to stay abreast of all that's new.

Mrs. B's, under the ownership and active management of Margie Berryhill, occupies a striking, well-designed and easily found home at 5105 29th Drive (on the cutoff between Brownfield Highway and Slide Road.)

Everything is designed for efficiency and ease in shopping.

From the easy access, off-street parking in an uncrowded area, a building specifically designed and remodeled for the craft and gift shop and classroom, the attractive arrangement within, the well-lighted parking area, and the huge stock

... everything says "We're glad you are among our customers."

Let owner Margie Berryhill and her daughter, Stacy, and the instructors personally express their greetings to you at Mrs. B's.

Projects by the scores can originate and progress to completion at Mrs. B's. For shopping satisfaction, pleasure in browsing and selection, and for learning, this shop is heartily recommended.

• 'Good Buys'
Many items are now drastically reduced in price in January Clearance.

A large selection of wood, in usual and preferred patterns, is stocked for the Toile painter.

And plaster — there is scads of this in many, many designs.

Everything for macrame remains the situation at Mrs. B's, too.

Weekly there are new arrivals throughout the diversified stock, and frequent visits are invited to stay abreast of all that's new.

Mrs. B's, under the ownership and active management of Margie Berryhill, occupies a striking, well-designed and easily Choice selection — at January Clearance prices — this is the opportunity presented at Jan's Casual Cottage, 3404 34th St., in Indiana Gardens.

This second annual January Clearance Sale is just commencing, and all fall, winter and holiday wear (missy and junior) is marked at 33 per cent to even 50 per cent off!

Imagine such a reduction from the already-low prices posted at Jan's on the quality apparel there.

Whatever the need from throughout the intriguing stock, one may choose at sale prices from the fall and winter items.

All merchandise is casual, all personnel friendly! Even at sale time it is a relaxing shop in which to select.

New Spring Arrivals

While at the sale, this also would be an excellent time to note the new Spring merchandise arriving at Jan's. There is so much that is new... and right... in fashionable casual wear.

Now in its second year, Jan's Casual

Cottage has enjoyed enthusiastic acceptance, and upon a visit there, one readily can discover why this is so.

Essentially a "family operation," Jan's is owned by Jan Holleman, assisted by her husband, Ernie Holleman; her mother, Mary Pattillo; her daughter, Kellie; and other staffmembers as the need arises.

Jan, Ernie and Mary each are Texas Tech grads and they head a staff who "are your kind of people," folks who want you to have the best in affordable casual wear, people to whom one may turn with confidence in wardrobe selection.

Each sincerely hope that you will come in at this time, take advantage of the sale, and renew or make new acquaintance, letting the staff express a personal New Year wish for your happiness and prosperity.

Master Charge, Visa and layaway purchases are welcomed.

Selections are grouped for ease in shopping.

University Convalescent Center Reveals Remodeling, Benefits

For a certainty, the locally-operated University Convalescent Center, extended care facility at 2400 Quaker Ave., would well be an "eye opener" if you have not visited there recently.

Actually, it has so very much going for it that full description is difficult.

Presently, every room is being repainted.

New carpeting is being installed.

Under the able administration of Ed Burns, Jr., the center is kept "modern" in every respect, with proper attention directed to the physical plant and for the comfort and enjoyment of every resident.

"Folks seem to enjoy living at the facility, one discovers even upon a short visit or tour there. Isn't this in itself a rather convincing recommendation?"

Private and semi-private rooms are provided.

University Convalescent Center is a Type III facility, accepting both Medicaid and private pay plans.

Accommodations are provided for 95 residents.

Burns has gathered around himself a most able staff.

Ann Green is director of nursing.

Jackie Perry is activity director and maintains a continuous program of interest to residents.

Full Program

Organized games and programs every day are appreciated and enjoyed, with Sunday church services within the center, with a visiting minister, a weekly feature.

A house doctor is on call 24 hours a day

A pharmacy consultant, RN consultant and dietitians consultant also make their services available.

Three wholesome meals daily are provided, with home-grown beef as one of the quality menu items.

Some residents have lived at University Convalescent Center for six years and more.

University Convalescent Center traditionally has been very well accepted as a "better" facility of its type, and especially has this been true under the administration of Burns who has a rich background of experience in the field.

In brief, everything seems to have been done to help the residents enjoy living... at University Convalescent Center.

Attention also is called to Quaker Manor, Inc., under same ownership but located at 4403 74th St., where Mrs. Janell Burns is administrator.

Physical facilities at each, and the qualified, "interested" personnel make residency at each a very pleasant experience, more than a few "who know" will attest.

Gill Construction Suggesting Beauty-Economy-Service Combo

"Why not start the new year right... considering beauty treatment for your home, making improvements that will enhance its value?"

Gill Construction Co. can materially assist; Gill can show you how you need never paint your home again (and with the rising costs of every hand, doesn't this appeal?)

"Learn of this Lubbock firm's offer of savings up to 30 per cent in its limited-time First-of-Year offer.

Learn the advantages of the United States Steel soffit and fascia system that is more than just a cover-up for overhangs; it is more like a whole house beauty treatment!

"When 'overhangs' start to deteriorate, your entire home starts to get that 'run-down' look. So whether you call it 'overhang' or 'soffit and fascia' (that's what the builders call it), there is a Lubbock firm that does something about it!

Gill Construction Co., 1926 34th St., phone 747-5513, headed by Ike Gill who has 13 years in related business in Lubbock and the South Plains, is glad to give full details, explaining without obligation how you never need paint your overhang and fascia board again... by installing USS materials. Call collect, visit the office, or write P. O. Box 333, Lubbock.

Ike Gill can show the many, many advantages of fascia and siding, both or either, and his capable crew can install anywhere in the area — fast and immediately.

BEFORE AND AFTER — U.S. super steel siding installed by Gill Construction Co. "makes quite a difference" in this area residence.

"Wouldn't it be great to eliminate painting forever? It can be done, thanks to Ike Gill and the USS buildings materials. Brick homes with wood overhang most certainly can benefit from the system, he points out.

And remember, USS siding also is installed by this Lubbock firm.

Furthermore: there is a 30-year guarantee on material and labor.

No down payment is required. Financing is available! The program is acceptable to FHA — Title I, Gill reports.

Consider the USS materials and their advantages, including:

(1) Available in a number of colors; (2) never needs painting; (3) goes up easily over old wood, asbestos, stucco or masonry walls; (4) superior insulation against heat, cold and outside noises; (5) does not support combustion; (6) will not peel, blister, flake, or warp; and (7) fast installation with professional results.

"So, homeowners take notice" it is true, with no gimmicks. You need never paint your home again (and you can conserve energy, too). Get full details from the man with the know-how, Ike Gill.

Strawberry Patch Selling All Items, Fixtures In 'Close-Out'

That's right, The Strawberry Patch is conducting an orderly three-month closing!

This means that exceptional buys are presently available in gift, decor, sorority items and all.

Everything is to be sold, with the full discounts effective as of today!

"Even the fixtures are for sale, and other shops and dealers are welcomed to purchase at the unheard-of low prices, just as is the general public invited."

Owners Nancy Wood and Judy Posey express their deep appreciation to the many loyal customers who have contributed to the store's tenure as an outstanding supply source of appreciated, but different, art, craft and decor items. In closing The Strawberry Patch, they have marked every item at lowest possible cost to show appreciation to all in a very practical manner.

Remember, the Close-Out Sale begins now, with every item at sensationally low prices. What an opportunity to select from a huge stock in planning ahead to birthdays, anniversaries, sorority occasions, even Christmas gifting in seasons to come.

Also select at comparable savings from Helen Steiner Rice, Drawing Board and Christmas cards; decoupage boards in a galaxy of shapes and sizes, raw wood, scrap books, particle board plaques, even a toy box.

For those familiar with the totally-different and selective stock that has marked The Strawberry Patch, the closing will be sad, but at the time presenting tremendous opportunity for selection.

Remember, dealers and walk-in customers are equally welcomed in the liquidation.

The Strawberry Patch is open today for those desiring to make early selection.

"Orders for sorority paddles will continue to be taken while the store is open, it again is emphasized. The owners truly appreciate the confidence and the good trade of the Lubbock sorority groups and welcomes opportunity of serving them while the firm remains open."

"For a shopping bonanza, seldom if ever equaled, shop The Strawberry Patch during its closing; their loss is your gain in dollars and cents and in unique, hard-to-find items."

- Situation Outlined
- The following specific situations should be noted:
- (1) All in-stock items are marked at rock bottom;
  - (2) Special orders, for which The Strawberry patch is famous, will continue to be taken and solicited during the shop's final three months.
  - (3) Even after closing, the owners have announced plans for an annual Fall Bazaar to make accessible the unique art and decor items for which they have been so favorably known.
  - (4) During the closing, Master Charge and Visa will be honored, but at a 5 per cent surcharge.

- Huge Discounts
- All Christmas merchandise is marked at one-half price.
- Most everything else is marked at 40 per cent discount... or even greater savings.
- Some unfinished school desks are going at as low as $6 and $7.
- Some older antique desks are only $20 and $40.
- Three wall (hanging) desks are in stock and going at half price.

Business & Industrial Review

OUTSTANDING SERVICE NOTED — Ida Roberts, Woolco staff member 'doing an extremely good job' in the lingerie department of the Lubbock store, is shown being presented the latest 'Outstanding Employee of the Month' plaque by store manager J.G. Treadaway. A Lubbock resident of 11 years, she is no newcomer to the organization as her husband is an ex-manager for Woolworth in Vernon and in Cortez (Colo.), and Ida has several years service with the company in Clovis, Hobbs and other area locations. The couple have five children, with two of these at home. A graduate of Clovis High School in 1951, Ida professes true enjoyment of her work with Woolco, and this interest is well reflected in customer and management appreciation of her service.

HONORED UPON RETIREMENT — Myrtle Evans (left) and Maggie Stringer are cited for tenure and achievement by Woolco manager J.G. Treadaway upon their retirement just announced. Maggie Stringer is retiring after 22 years with F.W. Woolworth Co., and Myrtle Evans marks 18 years. Each began with the company in the old Woolworth downtown store in Lubbock. Maggie in 1965 was transferred to the Woolworth store in Monterey Center, working there five years. She took a leave of absence when it was decided to close that store, working at Texas Tech until the Woolco store was opened. She has served at the Red Grill within the store since that date. Myrtle Evans served in the Woolco cosmetics department as manager for the past several years. She is a longtime Lubbock resident, coming here in '59 from West Virginia. "The retirement of each of these fine staffers is a big loss for our store," Treadaway assures.

TIRES AT SALE PRICES — Ronald Tedder, right, manager of Woolco's Automotive and Tire Center, is joined here by John Ortiz, assistant department manager, in calling attention to the fantastic tire sale conducted by Woolco each January. "This year is no exception as the January '78 Tire Sale is the greatest in Woolco history; never before has Woolco had tire prices as low as they are during this promotion", Tedder emphasizes. It is a sell-out on Woolco's top-of-the-line bias belted tires "so come in early to insure your purchase; at these prices, they won't last long! While in our department buying tires, also check out our accessories, cash in on our many values and put dollar savings into your pocket. Come in and talk to any of our tire sales people and get the deal of a lifetime. Mechanics including Alvis Hasley and Israel McDonald, with total combined experience of over 40 years, are on duty from 9:30 a.m. until 9:30 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays."

Business & Industrial Review

Ski Rentals, Chain Saws, Snow Chains Available At Chance's

Several significant situations at Chance's Lawn & Leisure at 3604 50th St. come in for special note at this particular time, each contributing to one's convenience and savings:

(1) Snow ski rentals are a key segment of the firm's operation. More than 200 pair of rental skis are stocked, and rental is a modest $6 per day for skis, boots and poles! And... there is a free pick-up day and free return day, with two-day minimum charge! How about this for economy and convenience? Ski racks are available.

(2) Snow chains also are rented for those trips to the ski slopes, and Chance's believes it to be the only local firm offering this service, to its knowledge.

(3) Chain saw sales is a popular offering of the firm. Featured are Homelite, John Deere and Stihl lines, with 10-inch to 20-inch saws kept in stock. Service also is offered, together with accessories. It adds to this: Whether the project at hand calls for equipment purchase, service, parts, rentals or reconditioned units, Chance's is the only name one need know.

Extensive Rental Stock
A full line of rental items is carried, including hand tools, roto-rooters, automotive tools, floor care items, lawn and garden equipment, even tables and chairs, power tools, and even such moving equipment items as tow bars, dollies, and more.

Yard Needs
Now is a good time to look ahead to spring and summer lawn and garden needs, and Chance's comes through with quality products that hardly need introduction.

Mowers are stocked for sale, from Lawn Boy, Toro, Snapper, John Deere and Yazoo, plus the "best on the market" Trimmer reel-type mowers. And there are John Deere garden tractors, riding mowers, even Weed Eaters. Briggs & Stratton and Tecumseh parts are stocked. And even John Deere tee shirts and caps, and toys!

Chance's Lawn & Leisure stocks scads of sale and lease merchandise. It all is part of the firm's concept of business, wherein a modern, complete full-line rental service, with sales, too, provided in south and southwest Lubbock, worth the drive from anywhere!

Chance's is home owned and operated, with Sid Chance on the job to assure personal attention 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays.

Primarily a rental firm, Chance's has a most impressive stock in its sales department, and it is unquestionably service oriented. It likely has the very tool or accessory, either for purchase or rental, that one is needing.

"Want a delicious change of pace from the holiday foods? Then Husky Burger is the answer!"

Husky Burger, at 3504 Ave. Q, "is different."

John Terrell, owner-operator, makes his own chili as well as tacos. They simply cannot be beat.

Also, choose from such other standard items as super dogs, the Hefty Husky Burger (1/3 lb.), hamburger baskets, cheeseburgers, sandwiches, burritos, fruit pie, etc.

And chicken livers;
Or the popular shrimp basket;
Steak fingers, too.

Texas Insulation Systems, Lockney, Affords ThermoCon Process, Products

"Know Texas Insulation Systems, Box 591, Lockney, Texas, phone 652-3348, and profit."
Specializing in ThermoCon spray-on and loose-fill for residential, commercial and industrial applications, Jerry Ulmer and staff are masters in their field. For full details see Ulmer at the lockney facility, write Box 591, Lockney, Tex. 79241, or call (806) 652-3348.

Spray-on ThermoCon affords temperature, sound and fire control in one application!

Because of its chemical content, it permanently bonds to steel, wood and masonry surfaces painted or not! It provides a strong color-stable environmental system that will not chip, shed, flake, dust or be subject to rot or fungi. ThermoCon is odorless and non-toxic.

Because it forms a monolithic seal, it can be used wherever temperature, sound or fire control is needed on ceilings or walls, exposed or unexposed. No lathing, undercoating or preparatory base is required!

Because of its workable fibrous texture, ThermoCon can expand and contract with your building without losing its hold. Its built-in flexibility makes it easy to cut, saw, mold, shape or paint.

Because of its application by pneumatic spray, it is much faster and more economical than conventional insulation, Ulmer emphasizes.

(ThermoCon, incidently, is a national company with dealers throughout the nation and in Canada.)

Appropriate buildings for this ThermoCon system include farm buildings, airplane hangars, industrial plants, warehouses, auditoriums, gyms, showrooms, supermarkets, mobile homes, apartments, condominiums, office buildings, etc.

"It is twice as effective as wire-backed fiberglass batts; heat intense enough to melt metal will not penetrate ThermoCon's protective barrier!"

'Already-Low Prices Seen Slashed In Carpets Unlimited January Clearance'

January Clearance is underway at Carpets Unlimited, 810 50th St. (just east of Avenue H on 50th). This means that carpet already priced at a low $2.99 to $6.99 per yard is now marked even lower, some at a mere $1.99 per yard!

Carpets Unlimited is not a "remnant store", but rather is a division of Gemini Carpets, a West Texas company with eight-store buying power and qualifying as one of the larger dealers in the area.

Ron Head, life-long Lubbock resident and thoroughly experienced in the carpet field, is manager of Carpets Unlimited.

He points out some of the January Clearance prices including:

Soft denier nylon sculptured shag, stripe pattern, sold by rolls only, now at $1.99 per yard while it lasts.

And one roll only, red-black commercial carpet at $1.99; no cuts on this one.

Saxony nylon plush shag at $2.99; and heavy sculptured shag, Thunder Bay green, gold color, at $3.99 while it lasts.

"Get the picture? There are values throughout the stock, with everything in stock on sale, with savings to 75 per cent."

(Quoted prices are for carpet only, with installation and pads priced very competitively. Head points out.)

Both commercial and residential carpet is stocked, and samples are kept on the floor, as well as many rolls, and sometimes remnants and short ends. The firm has its own skilled installers. No-obligation estimates are gladly given, and representatives are glad to bring samples to the home or business.

Speedy service is assured, what with the local stock, the availability through the other stores of the Gemini group, and from the manufacturers. (Carpets Unlimited can secure carpet directly from any mill, they report.)

Financing is available, and Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed.

"The January Clearance Sale would be an excellent time to learn all about Carpets Unlimited and how it can save for you, specializing in irregular quality carpet."

Lokey Firm Offering Complete Stock Copy Machine Supplies

"Serving the South Plains Area", the Lokey Company stocks a complete selection of supplies for copy machines. Paper, toner and developer in plain bond or electrostatic for most brands of copiers is just as near as the Lokey Company, 1516 53rd St., phone 744-8571. (Also, note the toll-free number, 1-800-682-4201.)

"Phone orders are welcomed, and if you are not sure just what to order, tell us the kind of copier and we'll do the rest!"

Supplies for Xerox, IBM, Savin, A.B. Dick, SCM, 3M and many others are stocked.

Specialists are on the job to assure prompt and complete satisfaction in 1978 just as was the rule in the year just past.

New Year Greetings

The Lokey Company is deeply mindful of the trade and confidence of its growing family of customers, and it wishes all a most bountiful new year.

"We want to have a part in your achievements in the new year; let us show how we can be of benefit."

The service and price at The Lokey Company most certainly invite comparison.

The firm is owned by long-time Lubbock resident E.E. Lokey, with Bruce Lokey and Jim Brookman on the job to speed every transaction.

Further Assistance

And... a sister company, Direct Mail of Texas, affords complete letter and mailing service, if this is the need. Direct Mail even can design the mailing piece, furnishing the art work and all for a "turnkey job".

Service and price are key considerations here, also.

"If you have not become acquainted with The Lokey Company, copy supply specialists, then we think you and your business will profit by early acquaintance with our products and services."

For consistency, quality, sensible price and assistance from an understanding management, The Lokey Company stands tall. May we have the privilege of your business?

"Remember, if you're not sure what to order in the way of copy supplies, just tell us the kind of copier and we'll do the rest. Simply call 744-8571 or the toll-free number, 1-800-682-4201."

FOR COPIER SUPPLIES — "If you're not sure what to order, simply tell us the kind of copier and we'll do the rest" is the qualified assurance from Jim Brookman and Bruce Lokey at The Lokey Company, 1516 53rd St.

Dura' Bilt Portable Buildings Fulfilling Variety Area Needs

What could be more appealing than tomorrow's buildings at yesterday's prices?
 This is the advertised situation at Dura' Bilt Portable Buildings, 6527 Ave. H (66th and H) in south Lubbock, where the invitation is extended:
 "Check our regular everyday low prices against the so-called sale prices of others."
 Still other factors make transactions there especially worthwhile:
 Such as more than 20 buildings now on the big lot, ready for delivery.
 The firm is locally owned and operated, with buildings constructed to one's specifications under the direction of Edward (Junior) Rackley, long-time Lubbock builder who has resided here for the past 30 years. Rackley and John Fritz are partners in the firm.

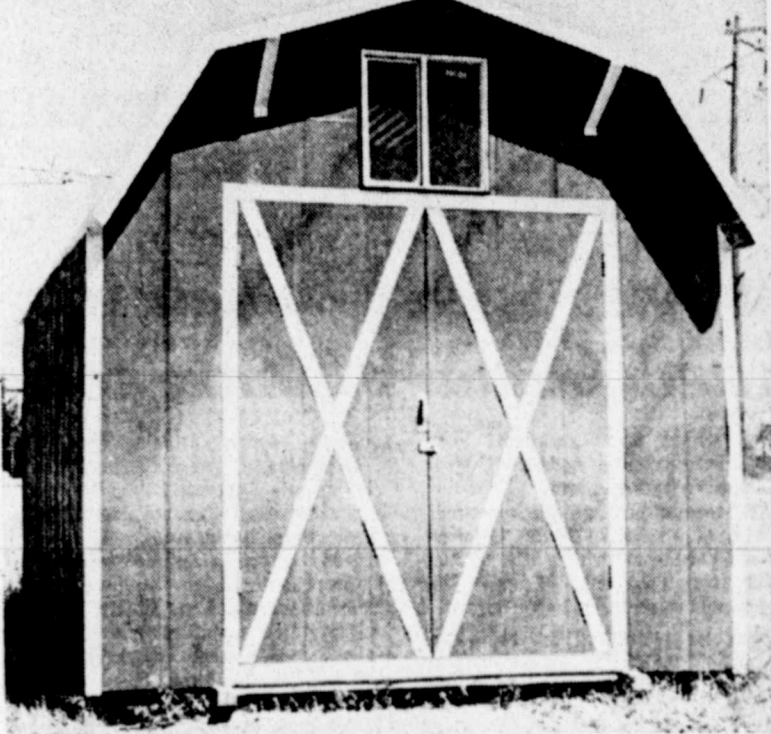

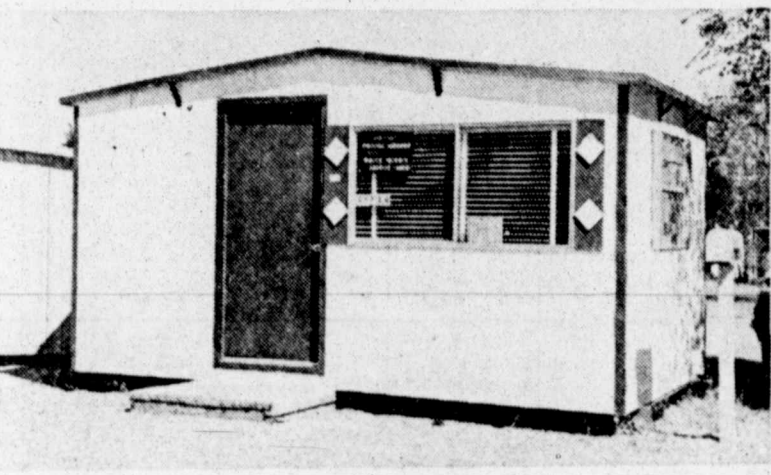

The portable building - so right for numerous uses such as storage, lake cabins, offices, warehouses, workshops, etc., feature 26-gauge steel roofs. No hail problem here. Masonite siding is utilized, with the rot-free quality stressed, and available in the color of one's choice.
 Trim out is in different colors of matching metal trim.

Quality Built In
 Rubber closures are standard in the eaves to guard against blowing sand.
 Plywood flooring and floor joists on 16-inch center assure further quality.
 Cinnamon birch paneling is featured, together with 3 1/2-inch fiberglass insulation. Even wiring and carpeting is provided in finished buildings.

"Dura' Bilt Portable Buildings are manufactured locally, cutting your cost to assure the best price in Lubbock."
 "And we deliver anywhere."

A very representative stock of these buildings is on display at the site, 66th & H, remember, and Fritz and Rackley will be glad to discuss your needs, explaining how they can build to your specifications at a savings, still assuring quality throughout.

"Anytime you are in Lubbock, we hope you will come out to our place, just below the traffic circle at corner of 66th & H. We look forward to your visits.

AMONG DURA' BILT UNITS WITH QUALITY BUILT IN

now or at any time. We think we can save for you in a manner economically profitable and satisfactory in every way in your particular situation."

Bernice's Hair Fashions Providing Services, Staff, Cost To Appreciate

Razor cuts or scissor cuts for both men and women, everyday low prices, and the skilled staff at Bernice's Hair Fashions make for an unbeatable combination.
 Every beauty service is of the highest quality when secured at Bernice's, 2107 Knoxville Ave., near Methodist Hospital.
 Uni-Perms, including cut, shampoo and set, are a modest $21, and other services at the salon are equally reasonably priced.
 The staff is adept in all the new hairstyles and latest methods, and one could do well to form the habit of depending upon Bernice's, phone 795-2604. Early and late appointments can be arranged.
Staff To Appreciate
 Barbara Huffman, a Jessie Lee graduate well recognized in the trade and by customers who appreciate quality in beauty and hair care, is manager. Barbara has been with Bernice's for 14 years.

 Bernice Sturdivant still is owner.
 Barbara is assisted by an able staff including Mary Williamson, Debbie McCollum and Frances Collins.
 Mary, an Odessa Beauty School graduate, has been with Bernice's for seven years, and specializes in blow dries and curling iron, though rendering the other beauty services as well.
 Frances, trained in Sherman, has 12 years experience, and Bernice's is quite proud to present her in Lubbock as a member of the staff. Adept in all phases of beauty care, she especially enjoys blow dry and curling iron work.
 Debbie McCollum, a graduate of Mick-ie's Beauty Academy, specializes in blow dries, curling iron and general hair-dos.

 With these operators, one can be certain that the complete hair care and beauty services are available.
 "Hair care from any member of this qualified staff can actually make you the envy of the crowd."
 Manicures are available.
 Whether long or short hair styles are the situation, or whether old or new style cuts are desired, Bernice's can be a most satisfactory solution.
 It is pointed out that with the very popular Uni-Perm, one's hair behaves as nicely as naturally wavy hair. There's none of the harsh stiffness falsely referred to as "body," either.
 Bernice's is open six days a week.
 Remember the location, one-half block south of Methodist Hospital at 2107 Knoxville Ave., phone 795-2604, a location especially appreciated by residents of that area and by hospital-related personnel, visitors, etc.
 "Enviably beauty care is just as near as Bernice's Hair Fashions in Lubbock where the coffee pot always is on and a friendly, casual atmosphere prevails."

Sonotone-Lubbock Tells Month-Long Discounts

The staff at Sonotone-Lubbock, 2318 Broadway, wishes all the very best of new year 1978.
 Each expresses heartfelt appreciation of friendships of the year past.
 In extending their best wishes, the staff also passes on a suggestion:
 "Now, while a special 10 per cent discount is arranged on all hearing aids at Sonotone-Lubbock (during January) would be an excellent time to assist any family members with hearing problems, making the new year richer for them."
 "A quality, modern, CE, all-in-the-ear hearing aid might be the solution."
 Louise Bills, manager of Sonotone-Lubbock, and staffmembers Ralph Huntington and Flo Miller are anxious to serve in any manner possible. Greetings received during the holiday season attest to the services, products, personal interest and friendship of these fine folks.
 "If you have not become acquainted with them, the very best New Year's resolution would be to do so at early convenience... while the 10 per cent discount month-long special is effective."
 (Some rebuilt units still are available and these are priced at substantial savings.)
 More about the CE... it is individually made to meet one's hearing requirements. It may be fitted for hearing impairments of "mild" through "severe."

It may be comfortably worn after retiring... while you sleep; it is designed for reliability and may be worn comfortably and inconspicuously, offering the potential of hearing assistance combined with minimal visibility.
 Also, inquire about other models available.
 A veteran in hearing aid sales, service and achievement, Louise has been heaped with honors from manufacturer and customers alike.
 Each staffmember exemplifies the firm's concept of service in every contact.
 "Professionalism with a human touch" at Sonotone-Lubbock has earned appreciation and acclaim of customers throughout the area. Small wonder these people at Sonotone-Lubbock, 2318 Broadway, phone 762-5469, have made life richer for hundreds throughout the region.
No-Obligation Tests
 Individual hearing tests, at no obligation, personalized fitting, frequent check-ups and the interested care of a Sonotone consultant is the service one can expect without exception at Sonotone-Lubbock.
 "If you have a hearing problem or suspect that you may have one, that visit or call you make to Sonotone-Lubbock may be the most important one you will ever make."

Again proving that American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., 3707 Quirt Ave., appreciates your business, stocking and giving service accordingly, announcement has been made that the firm has been named area distributor for Auto Crane, adding this line to its already-prestigious stock.
"If your business is construction, Auto Crane can work for you!"
The Auto Crane truck-mounted electric units make it possible for one man to change a transmission... pull an engine... lift heavy parts and load bulky materials that otherwise would require two or more men to handle.
Remote Control
The Auto Crane, mounted on your service truck, responds smoothly with up to 6,000 lbs. of lifting power directed by remote control from where the work is being done. And it can all be done by one man, remember, wherever the equipment needs repair or maintenance.

"You save time and money when you can do more jobs with the same people. Your Auto Crane equipment pays for itself fast. You are assured of quality workmanship, well-stocked parts inventory and responsible service because Auto Crane machines its own parts, then assembles them and tests every crane in one factory. That's total quality control. That's Auto Crane."
Visit, write or call American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., 3707 Quirt Ave., phone 747-2991. Lubbock, for complete product information.
Of course American Equipment & Trailer still offers the quality IMTCO and RO Stinger II cranes, and Galion dump bodies, and a huge stock of accessories especially appreciated by the construction trade.

Product choices and equipment options are provided.
"American Equipment & Trailer invites you to check for specifications, and for details of how any of the represented lines and units can fit into your own operation."
"We are proud of our customer list, appreciating the opportunities of years past to serve the contractor, rancher, farmer, industrialist, trucker and all with quality products from recognized lines. We look forward to continuation of these opportunities and privileges in 1978."
Come out and visit American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., at its modern facility — eight acres of land and a 12,000 sq. ft. building with multiple double-bay drive-through shop, parts department and spacious showrooms. A genuine welcome awaits.

Mine Workers Lag Behind In Strike Negotiations

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON (AP) — It used to be that John L. Lewis could call a nationwide coal strike and make it hurt.

Now the United Mine Workers union has been on strike for a month and it seems the only ones hurting are miners.

Negotiations drag on in Washington — stop-and-go talks in the words of one observer — but it is clear that the Bituminous Coal Operators Association has the upper hand.

UMW President Arnold Miller conceded as much before the strike was two weeks old. "It's fair to say we're not in as good a bargaining position as sometimes in the past," he said.

He coupled his concession with the statement that the union would prevail, and he flails the industry periodically for being "callous" with the health and welfare of thousands of people.

It's good for morale, but it doesn't change the situation.

One source who views the strike from the union's perspective said this week, "The miners I think are hurting. The industry isn't hurting. ... It just happens that it's so one-sided that the burden is all on the miners."

There are 160,000 miners out of work. There are 800,000 miners and their families without health benefits. And there are 81,000 retired miners who won't get any more union pensions until the strike is over.

Despite the strike and the undeniable hardships it is bringing, America doesn't appear to be running out of coal.

Department of Energy figures for the week of Dec. 17 show production at about five million tons, little more than 40 percent of the nearly 14 million tons a year ago.

But at the same time, government officials say they underestimated the stockpiles that coal customers laid in before the walkout began Dec. 6. Their new estimates indicate that the strike could last another month to six weeks without causing serious repercussions in the nation's economy.

That would make it the longest strike in the history of the UMW, a labor organization with a history of militancy and strikes stretching back 40 years. Under Lewis, UMW president for 40 years until 1960, the longest strike was 59 days.

Lewis was known to defy presidents, struggling at one point with Franklin D. Roosevelt. FDR took steps in 1943 to prepare for the drafting of miners into the Army so that wartime coal production would not be interrupted.

"I have pleaded your case not in the tones of a feeble mendicant asking alms, but in the thundering voice of the captain of a mighty host, demanding rights to which free men are entitled," Lewis once told his membership.

But Miller, sitting in his office one flight above a larger than life, coal-black bust of Lewis, has a tricky problem.

He must not only deal from relative weakness with an industry that was hardly dismayed at the prospect of a strike of two months or so. He must also take the contract he negotiates into the field and win ratification from a rank and file with a proven record of militancy. And matching what the industry will give with what the miners will accept is not likely to be easy.

The industry is bargaining hard for a "labor stability" package. It wants to eliminate wildcat strikes, which not only hamper production but create potential problems with health and pension benefit funds.

The funds receive their financial support from royalty payments that industry makes on the basis of coal production. But benefit liabilities remain even if there is no money. To insure continued financing for the funds, the industry wants miners to reimburse the money their absence costs.

WORE LEATHER KNICKERS

LONDON (AP) — Ancient Romans on frontier duty in Britain wore leather knickers called subligaria under their tunics to keep out the cold, archeologist Robin Birley reports. Birley said excavators at Hadrian's Wall, which the Romans built across northern England, have found tablets referring to the underpants but none of the garments has ever been found.

Sources say Miller at first agreed to the proposal. But he promptly had to pull back out of concern that rank-and-file miners might not accept it. Their votes will be the union's last word on any contract Miller can negotiate.
