The women and blacks were easily the most noticeable group Tuesday as the new trainees were introduced to JSC employees by JSC Director Chris

When McNair was born in 1950 there still were drinking fountains labeled "white" and "colored" in many southern cities and for a young black boy in the late fifties to consider being an astronaut was the stuff of which dreams were made.

"It was as far removed from what was the normal course as you can get," said McNair, currently with Malibu, Calif. "It was something I thought about back then but it was sort of like a fantasy you might say.

"It wasn't anything very real for a black kid back then to be an astronaut or anything close. It just wasn't the everyday course of affairs.'

Dr. Fisher, whose husband Dr. William Fisher also applied but was not chosen, said she is glad to be in the program now.

"I didn't think it (women in space) was something that was going to happen in my lifetime," she said. "I'd pretty much resigned myself to the fact that I was born too soon. Gregory, currently with the Air

Egyptian-Israeli gap remains 'quite wide

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - President Anwar Sadat and U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton talked for more than an hour today amid reports that Egypt strongly objects to Israeli proposals the American conveyed at the meeting.

And in Jerusalem, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan denied reports that Israel had promised President Carter there would be no more Jewish settlements on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Atherton also talked with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Ibrahim Kamel and Vice President Hosny Mubarak. After the meeting one Egyptian source said that "at this stage, and after seeing the written ideas from Israel brought by Atherton we can still say the gap is quite wide.

There is a lack of logic on some points. While Israel agrees to the nonacquisition of land by force as in U.N. Resolution 242 and thus admits that withdrawal from Arab territories is a primary issue they still insist on keeping the settlements and their air bases," the spokesman said.

Kamel told reporters the talks with Atherton were mainly about Sadat's visit to the United States this Atherton said Kamel "gave me some of the Egyptian government's ideas on the draft declaration and we will be reflecting on this to see where we go from here.

Negotiations have centered on a. declaration of principles to guide an overall peace agreement. Sadat has said he does not expect to announce agreement on a declaration after.

meeting with Carter. "It is vital we make some progress when Sadat goes to Washington," one Egyptian diplomat said. "I don't know what will happen if we don't."
Egypt has insisted the Israelis dismantle settlements in the contest.

dismantle settlements in the occupied Sinai desert, but the Israelis demand that Jewish settlers be allowed to remain, along with air bases to protect them

The Arabs also have demanded Israeli withdrawal from all land captured in the Six-Day War of 1967. Israel has said it needs some of the land to protect its borders.

One Egyptian source said the situation "in a nutshell" is that "the Israelis are giving with their right hand and taking the same things back with their left hand."

Dayan's comments in the Israeli Parliament came as Israel went ahead with plans for three new settlements. He said Carter was told Israel "would proceed with settlements at military base camps" on the West Bank and that reports to the contrary were wrong

Cairo sources said Egypt is close to asking the United States to formulate propoals similar to those outlined by Carter when he met with Sadat at Aswan last month. Carter said then that a Mideast settlement would have to be based on normal relations between the Arabs and Israelis, Israeli withdrawal to 1967 frontiers and secure and recognized borders for the nations concerned.

New 'tools' of justice altering caseload, effects of sentencing

By LINDA HILL SCHAFFRINA

Probation and prison used to be the only two options for people convicted of a felony crime, but now there are a wider variety of choices available to prosecutors and criminals.

"In addition to the standard probation provisions of the law that have been in effect for many years in this state, we now have several options which can be used as tools by prosecutors and the courts to expedite the flow of cases and improve the quality of justice at the same time." Midland County District Attorney Vern Martin said Tuesday.

One of the principal new tools is the deferred judgement. The following fictitious example shows the difference between deferred judgment and traditional probation:

John Doe commits a theft of more than $200 and is arrested. Because he is young, and it is his first offense, the district attorney decides prison isn't necessary and Doe pleads guilty to

With traditional probation, he would be given a specified sentence. such as two years, which would be suspended. If he violates the terms of his probation, he can be sent to prison for the two years of his sentence deferred judgment. During the two years of deferred judgment, he must abide by the same terms as if he were on probation. If he violates those terms, though, he can be sent to prison for the full 10-year maximum sentence for theft over $200.

If he lives up to the terms of probation, no final judgment is ever made, and has no conviction on his

Deferred judgment has not been widely used since it first was authorized under Texas law two or three years ago, Martin said, because only recently appellate courts ruled on its constitutionality.

"Until the courts tell you these things are okay, you're kind of halfway afraid (to use them)," he

Now, Martin said, the deferred judgment is coming into regular use in Midland County for "appropriate cases." He said he finds deferred judgment particularly appropriate "where the person has a spotless record, and there is some question as to guilt; but it's a serious enough offense that you wouldn't ordinarily consider probation. He also finds it appropriate for young first offenders.

"It's really a club on them," he explained, "but it's two-ended." On the one hand, there is a potentially stiff sentence for violation of probation, but on the other is the promise of no criminal conviction if probation is followed, he said.

The exception to the criminal record removal is that, if the person is convicted of an offense after the judgment period, the first offense can be considered in assessing punishment for the second, he said.

Occasionally, a defendant will ask for deferred judgment instead of probation, Martin said. "If it's somebody who's realiy wanting to go straight, they ought to ask for it.

Neither deferred judgment nor probation can be used for crimes in which a weapon is used, Martin said. Of course, the actual sentencing is

Young father keeps vigil by wife's bedside

Until Laurie's heart attack, life was a joy for the newly-wed high school sweethearts, married last year.

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

WASHINGTON (AP) & The Labor Department is suing Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons and 15 other former trustees of a scandal-scarred union pension fund to recover millions of dollars in allegedly illegal loans, government sources say.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall called a midmorning news conference to announce the suit, due to be filed today in U.S. District Court in Chicago.

The ex-trustees of the Teamsters Chicago-based $1.4 billion Central States Pension Fund allegedly made loans that were improper or illegal under the 1974 federal pension reform

"We really don't know the true extent of the losses and probably will never know, but it involved tens of millions in loans," said one Labor Department source. The defendants, in addition to Fitzsimmons, include William Presser of Cleveland and his son, Jackie, 51, who is among those frequently mentioned to succeed the 69-year-old Fitzsimmons as head of the nation's biggest union. The others include trucking industry executives and union officials, all of whom had served as Central States trustees before resigning in 1976 and 1977 under the pressure of threatened government action against them.

For years, reports in the press and elsewhere have alleged that the giant pension fund, which covers 450,000 Teamsters, has made loans to businesses to benefit the trustees as well as to organized crime figures.

The reports were partly responsible for the Labor Department launching the investigation in 1975 that forced the removal of the trustees, bookkeeping reforms and the turning over of its assets last year to outside professional managers.

Bowl of red, please

The weather is just right for chili-eating - and it just so happens that the top-ranked bands of Lee and Midland high schools Saturday will be dishing up bowls of delicious, piping-hot chili for all who will come and get

The occasion is the 10th annual Chili Supper and Music Festival, which will be held in the Lee High School Cafeteria. It is sponsored and staged by the bands of the Tall City's two high schools.

Actually, it is an almost all-day "chili supper" event, with the a.m. to 7 p.m.

The Band Boosters Club of Midland High and the Bandoliers of Lee High will prepare the chili and attend to the serving details.

And to complete the chili menu, pickles, peppers, crackers, ice cream, tea and coffee will be served. Soft drinks, pies and cakes also will be available, along

Proceeds will go to special funds for band camp scholarships and spring concert tours of the sponsoring high school bands.

Tickets for the big spectacular are being sold by members of the two bands. They also will be available at the door Saturday.

It is interesting to note that approximately 3,000 bowls of chili were served at last year's "supper." Sponsors hope to exceed that number this year.

This is a very special event which merits community-wide support. The bands of the two high schools are great, highly-rated musical organizations. Both are recognized far and wide for their prowess on the concert stage, on the marching field and on the football gridiron.

Members of the bands serve as goodwill ambassadors for the Tall City, year-round, wherever they travel and wherever they perform. Residents of Midland have every reason to be proud of the award-winning bands of Lee and Midland high schools, as well as of the fine bands of the city's junior high schools:

Saturday's Chili Supper and Music Festival affords Tall City residents an excellent opportunity to show their appreciation in a material way.

Don't forget, please, the serving and entertainment hours are from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

'Mama Doc' puts hex on Carter

2020 / 5356

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - "Mama Doc" Duvalier, the first lady of Haiti, has invoked the powers of voodoo to put the hex on Jimmy Carter

Mama Doc, widow of the despotic "Papa Doc" Duvelier, is the recognized leader of the old guard in Haiti. She is deeply disturbed over the pressure President Carter has been putting on her son, president-for-life Jean Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier, to improve human rights in Haiti.

So Mama Doc reached into her medicine bag for a remedy that her late husband often used when political solutions failed him. She dispatched one of her husband's old warlords, Zacharie Delva, to the city of Gonaives. Delva arranged for a voodoo priest to join him at the site of a proposed statue to the departed Papa Doc. With appropriate incantations, the voodoo priest and Delva solemnly buried a live bull with a picture of President

The sorcerer took advantage of the occasion to bury symbolic objects representing other enemies of Mama Doc, thus utilizing the rites to give them the evil eye, too. When Jean Claude learned of the incident, he did what he could to dispell the hex. He issued an order that the statue of his father should not be erected.

We have also learned, incidentally, that the late Papa Doc became annoyed with the late President John F. Kennedy and had a voodoo hex cast on him. The Haitian leader was convinced, say our sources, that his black magic did Kennedy in.

Jean Claude has replaced most of the old guard favored by his father and has announced a liberalization of the government - a program which he immodestly refers to as "Jean Claudisme

In this spirit, he has acceded somewhat to the human rights pressure from the Carter administration. United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young, for example, visited Haiti last August and publicly excoriated the Duvalier regime's "imprisonment of voices of dissent." The following month, Jean Claude abruptly released 104 political

It was this sort of conduct that finally drove the irascible Mama Doc to voodoo.

Footnote: An official at the Haitian embassy told our associate Joe Spear that the voodoo story was good only "for making the baby sleep. Presumably, he meant the story was the equalvalent of a fairy tale. But our associate Hal Bernton confirmed the story on the scene in Haiti.

TEACHING THE YOUNG -Teaching school children the ABCs of nutrition has become a multimilliondollar industry for the giant food corporations. But the biggest names in food, such as Del Monte, Campbell Soup and Standard Brands, have been slyly promoting their products to unwitting children under the guise of education.

This is the conclusion of a House agriculture subcommittee, which conducting a confidential investigation.

Over the past several years, the food giants have heavily infiltrated the nation's school nutrition programs. Ostensibly, the companies help teach impressionable youngsters how to improve their diets.

What the corporations are really doing, however, is pushing their products on school children. Then the kids go home and pester their parents to buy the brand-name products.

The Del Monte Company, for example, provides schools with instructional charts listing the "basic four" food groups. Many of the products shown on the chart are cleverly illustrated with Del Monte's familiar trademark and colors

The Campbell Soup educational kits, on the other hand, provide colorful leaflets urging children to Make it Snacky with V-8 Juice." one of the company's big sellers. Another Campbell handout offers such "nutritious" recipes as "Favorite Spaghetti," calling for a sauce made with V-8 juice. The congressional investigators discovered that Standard Brands was also using its famous "Mr. Peanut" character to encourage kids to eat more of the company's Planter's Cocktail Peanuts

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., found that 90 percent of the money that food manufacturers spent on nutrition education went to a Consumer Information Campaign, This consisted mainly of glossy magazine ads blaring the questionable "nutritional" value of Log Cabin Syrup, Dream Whip and Jello. For that matter, the food combines invest only a small fraction of their advertising budget to promote nutrition. General Foods, the nation's largest food conglomerate, spent $275 million for advertising last year. Yet less than 1 percent was spent on nutrition education.

Campbell, which depends heavily on the school-age market, spent $69 million on publicity extolling the virtues of its soups. But Campbell laid out only an insignificant $100,000 to educate the public on nutrition.

Footnote: Richmond's subcommittee has invited top industry executives to defend their conduct at a forthcoming hearing.

Too many Americans call

There has been effort on the part of some people to make a distinction between human rights and property rights. The people who seek to make this distinction usually have in mind the idea of stealing somebody's

It's a false proposition. In the first place, even the phrase, "property rights," is misleading. An inanimate object, like land or a building, cannot have "rights," which is a concept that is limited to living creatures. What is really meant is the right of human beings to own, acquire and use property.

But it makes for better propaganda when you say human rights come before property rights. The right to acquire, keep and use property is also a human right and what's more, contrary to the socialist blarney, the most fundamental of all rights a human being possesses. The reason is easy to understand.

We are mortal. To live we must eat. To eat, we must acquire food. The mortal way to do that is to work. From our labor, we acquire property, a part of which we exchange for food. Money, you see, is just as much property as land.

True wealth is simply the property you own. If the right to get, keep and use property is taken away from us, we will be the slaves of the taker.

A person without property cannot survive except as the ward of someone who does have property. The people in Communist China are largely docile because the government controls the food supply. It controls the food supply because in that country no private citizen has any property rights.

This may seem a long way from a disgruntled tenant who wants the government to coerce his landlord into renting him an apartment, but the point is that human rights cannot be bartered and divided without being destroyed.

If we continue to urge the government to eliminate the rights of others when what they do does not conform to our ideas, then eventually the same. government will overpower us. It's like feeding a baby grizzly; one day, you discover the bear's grown to a heighth of nine feet and is no longer

The greatest enemy to freedom today in this country are American citizens who have become cry babies. They want Mommy Government to take care of them. If the rent is too high, they want Mommy Government to lower it: if they want to live in a certain place, they want Mommy Government to force the owner to let them; if their doctor bill is too high, they want Mommy Government to make the mean old doctor be satisfied with less

To be free, you have to deserve it. People who want somebody else to run their lives for them don't deserve to be free.

If we were smart, we would reestablish chattel slavery so these cry babies could get their wish while the rest of us remained free. As it is, when the cry babies get to be a majority. they'll vote us all into slavery for a stinking bowl of porridge.

Communist party (PCI). He is also convinced that the Soviet Union, helped by the Czechoslovak and East German Communist parties, is the major source of terrorism that has brought Italy close to anarchy.

Gardner's quick flight to Washington two weeks ago to argue for the new hard-line policy was intended as a warning to the old guard of the Christian Democratic party not to yield to PCI pressure without an all-out fight. Strong factions in the old guard, which has ruled Italy for 30 years, would accept alliance with the Communists in order to cling to power in a coalition government. Younger, more progressive Christian Democrats seek another course: a top-to-bottom shakeup of their stratified party and its stale, rigid policies. That is also what Gardner wants, based on his political education in Rome.

To cite one example, a luncheon was arranged for a Nov. 22 visit to Rome by Rep. Peter Rodino and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, with Gardner invited. The hosts were Christian Democratic members of parliament. Shortly before the luncheon the U.S. embassy discovered that two Communists would also attend the luncheon.

That smacked of political sabotage. alarming the embassy and increasing Gardner's concern that some Christian Democrats were intentionally promoting a coalition with the 'Communists. Without any > Such events stage-managed by Christian Democratic politicians are extremely useful to the Communists. Played up in the left-wing press, they are supposed to "signal" subtle changes in U.S. policy by showing Gardner consorting with Com-

The result has been Ambassador Gardner's insistence and President Carter's agreement on eliminating the ambiguities of the April statement. Such realism is both overdue and welcome. Even if it fails to arrest Italy's political decay and the shattering impact on the Western alliance of Communist power-sharing in Rome, it reveals an awareness of reality by the administration sadly lacking when Jimmy Carter took office a year ago.

Banned South African editor, attorney clash over apartheid

By HAROLD J. LOGAN The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - White South Africans' sometimes heated struggle over the future of their nation landed in a hearing room and hallway of Congress Tuesday, as a newspaper editor who fled from house arrest in South Africa and a private attorney who has defended that nation's security police traded verbal jabs.

The occasion was an appearance before a House International Affairs subcommittee by Donald Woods, the former editor of a South African newspaper, the East London Daily Express, who last month hitchhiked and swam to freedom from the "banning" imposed on him in October.

While Woods told the Africa subcommittee that the apartheid policies of the minority "white tribe" of South Africans could lead to racial civil war in as little as three years, Retief Van Rooyen, a white-haired, pinstriped South African lawyer, reddened and fidgeted in a back row seat.

Van Rooyen was independently hired by the South African police as the police counsel in the recent inquiry into the death of murdered black consciousness leader Steven Biko. He had come to the United States, he said, on private business, but arranged through the official South African publicity organization to hold a press conference at the conclusion of Woods' remarks. As Van Rooyen made notes, Woods told the subcommittee that the United States should withdraw diplomatic recognition from South Africa, and take steps to halt or slow the flow of U.S. dollars to the increasingly isolated nation.

"Withdrawing recognition from a tyrant — or in our case a congress of tyrants - is not only effective, but is almost demanded," Woods said.

Asked if disinvestment in South Africa by U.S. businesses actually would hurt blacks by cutting out jobs, Woods replied that "all" of the new generation of black leaders favor disinvestment.

Only about 1.2 percent of South African blacks are affected by the operations of multi-national companies, Woods said. He added that the high return that makes investment there attractive is made possible in part by low wages paid blacks.

"I think these are not matters that can lightly be pushed aside," he said. Woods said strong action by the U.S. government is needed to impress the Afrikaners who are the main supports of the ruling party because the typical Afrikaner "doesn't think you're serious at the moment. He advised U.S. officials not to worry about their actions' forcing South African whites to circle their

"go into the laager," in Afrikaner idiom — because "The whites are already in the laager. No action taken could drive them further into it.'

At the hearings' end, Woods was told that Van Rooyen was in the audience. Asking if Van Rooyen had defended the security police, Woods said, "The role he played in the (Biko) inquest reflected no credit on the South African legal system, since the inquest itself was a farce."

A furious Van Rooyen began his press conference with a counter-attack on Woods. "I find myself in a situation where a person who alleges he swam the river to get out of my country has put across the big lie."

"The big lie," he said, is that South African blacks want the Western democracies to turn their backs on WASHINGTON - The South Korean government reached an payments to months. agreement with Congress Tuesday that will permit businessman Tongsun Park - but no Korean government officials - to return here soon to testify in closed session about the Korean influencebuying scandal.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., told reporters after a meeting with Korea's ambassador to Washington that Park would appear before the House Ethics Committee "in a matter of days."

But O'Neill said Park would probably not testify publicly before Congress while criminal trials growing out of the scandal are still pending. Park's first public testimony would occur in a federal courtroom in March, when former Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., goes on trial for alleged bribery and conspiracy. Park, who has provided U.S. prosecutors in Seoul quipped, "We've ac-U.S. prosecutors in Seoul for the past three weeks, will be questioned here by the Ethics Committee without any restrictions, O'Neill said The Justice Department, as part of its own negotiated settlement for Park's testimony, agreed not to press him about his relationship with present officials of the South Korean government. Park is being granted immunity from prosecution by the U.S.

government. The agreement with Congress announced by O'Neill followed the lines of a proposal first advanced by William G. Hundley, Park's attorney, in an interview with The Los Angeles Times in Seoul on Jan. 8. Hundley had suggested he could arrange for Park's closed-door testimony before Congress if public testimony were postponed until after criminal trials had been held. While Park's testimony should expedite the Ethics Committee's investigation of political payments to congressmen, the committee's inability to question Korean government officials may sharply limit the scope of its inquiry.

Aside from Park's giftgiving, the panel has been keenly interested in the activities of former Korean Ambassador Dong Jo Kim, who allegedly distributed envelopes of $100 bills on

Cuba making bid for leadership of Third World

By LARRY HEINZERLING Associated Press Writer

Cubans are fighting wars in black Africa, breeding bulls and building roads in Asia and waging a low-key campaign to win influence among their Caribbean neighbors.

The island nation's campaign for Third World leadership - with Africa replacing Latin America as it's top priority — mixes the gospel of socialism with a flood of soldiers, doctors and other technical advisers.

Cuba's largest presence abroad is in Africa where an estimated 27,000 Cubans, mostly soldiers, operate in 16

President Fidel Castro also has dispatched his "international builders brigade" to Vietnam and is wooing friends in Jamaica in the Caribbean and Guyana on South America's northeast coast.

resembles in many ways the U.S. Peace Corps. It includes everything from teachers, basketball coaches and doctors to construction workers and dance instructors, often followed by propaganda movies and the government news agency, Prensa

In Vietnam, Cuba has opened a bull-breeding center northwest of Hanoi, built a hospital in central Binh Tri Province and constructed a 30-mile highway southwest of Hanoi linking industrial and agricultural areas.

The Vietnamese government recently awarded friendship medals to 20 Cuban experts for their contribution to war reconstruction. In the Caribbean, Cubans in Jamaica have built an agricultural school for 500 students outside Kingston, have a microdam project in the works, are training construction crews and are providing technical assistance in sports, science, tourism, mining and agriculture.

In Guyana, a brigade of doctors has been working in Georgetown and remote areas of the interior. Cuban experts in Georgetown are also in charge of the shrimp fleet, training Guyanese in fishing.

Elsewhere in the region, Cuba is the main supporter of the Puerto Ricanindependence movement. Informed sources in San Juan say they are convinced that Havana is the main financial backer of the Marxist proindependence Puerto Rico Socialist

Some of the islands of the Caribbean are seeking independence and Cuba is believed to be seeking influence in those areas through political parties rather than violent revolution.

Cuba's involvement in Africa was capped last March by a tour by Castro to Somalia, Ethiopia, Tanzania, Mozambique and Angola. Its role in Africa has widened since.

Last month, a soldier whom Somalia identified as one of an estimated 2,500 Cubans supporting Ethiopian forces was captured by ethnic Somali insurgents in the Ogađen region of eastern Ethiopia.

Also last month, Western diplomats in Lusaka reported the recent arrival of an estimated 50 to 75 Cuban military advisers in Zambia to train black nationalist guerrillas fighting in neighboring Rhodesia. The report was called "complete rubbish" by Joshua Nkomo, leader of the Zimbabwe African Peoples Union, who visited Havana last year.

Cuba's largest presence in Africa is still in Angola, the former Portuguese colony where an expeditionary force of 19,000 soldiers and 4,000 civilian advisers are backing the Marxist government against two guerrilla nationalist movements.

Cuba's most recent major commitment is to Ethiopia, whose leftist regime is fighting at least two secessionist movements. Cuban troops are reported to be flying into Ethiopia from Angola and Havana aboard Soviet-made IL-62 jet transports to prepare for a counteroffensive against Somali-backed rebels in the Ogaden area.

Angola, Ethiopia and Zambia are only three of the 16 African states where Cuba is reported training armies, growing coffee, running hospitals, building schools and establishing state security systems. Castro also provided military advisers to Arab South Yemen to support insurgent activities against neighboring Oman. Oman crushed the rebellion. But virtually all of Cuba's soldiers overseas are in Africa, and it is Africa which Castro has apparently chosen as a battleground in his bid for Third World leadership, with the blessing and funding of the Soviet

U.S. officials in Washington say 500 to 600 Cuban soldiers have been killed in clashes with antigovernment forces. Some political observers regard Angola as a potential Cuban Vietnam since one of the defeated factions, Jonas Savimbi's National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, is still fighting a guerrilla war in the southern part of the country. The Cubans are not universally embraced in black Africa. Such conservative leaders as President Felix Houphouset-Boigny of the Ivory Coast fear communist expansion.

Stories of the "ugly Cuban" also are beginning to surface.

Connally may build campaign

The Washington Post

HOUSTON - Former Treasury secretary John B. Connally raised nore than $175,000 in the last three months of 1977 to finance his sationwide political activities that may be a prelude to a run for the presidency, according to finance reports filed Tuesday.

Almost all the money, which was isted in a report to the Federal Elections Commission in Washington, came from Texans in the investment. legal, banking or energy industries, with many contributors listed as board chairmen or executive officers.

Connally's Citizens Forum reported raising a total of $177,658.50 and spending $45,064.75, from Oct. 6 through Dec. 31, with none of the expenditures going to political can-didates. Most of the money went for salaries, rent and supplies for Connally's full-time political offices here as well as travel for his appearances.

The forum this began election year 1978 with $132,593.75.

The citizens forum, a political action committee set up by Connally with a goal of $1 million for his activities and Republican candidates' campaigns, is widely viewed as a forerunner to a Connally for President campaign committee. The former Democrat maintains, however, that he had made no decision as yet to seek the Republican presidential nomination in 1980.

Connally has repeatedly said he will wait until later this year, probably after November's congressional elections, before he makes any decision.

Contributions to Connally's citizens forum ranged from $101 to $5,000 and began rolling in shortly after Connally announced the formation of the committee. Among those contributing $5,000

Teaching bodies withdraw from SS umbrella

DALLAS (AP) - A parade of Texas governmental said Mental Health-Mental Retardation business adbodies, led by those covered in teacher retirement programs, is marching out from under the umbrella of Social Security./ Since 1966, 73 governments have dropped the program and all but six of that number have been bodies covered by teacher retirement, including 61 school districts and six junior college districts.

Most cite the increasing costs of the federal program, along with lack of confidence in its future. 'It looks like we're about going out of business on schools," said Fred Miller, assistant state administrator of Social Security. The defections are led by the schools, but not limited to them. Dallas County Mental Health-Mental Retardation and the Dallas County Hospital District have given notice they intend to withdraw from Social Security. When Social Security looked like it was in trouble because of funding, what we did is hedge our bets," ministrator Craig McElroy. The Dallas County Hospital District cited President Carter's new schedule of increased payroll deductions to support Social Security as the main factor in its decision.

On Jan. 1, the Social Security bite increased from 5.85 percent to 6.05 percent, and the maximum taxation wage rose from $16,500 to $17,700. Plans call for ceilings of 7.15 percent and $42,600 by 1987. Withdrawal is not a continuing option. Once a government has withdrawn from the system, it can never re-enter. That facet of the situation caused Temple Junior College to reconsider its planned withdrawal. "Not knowing what might happen to Social Securiy laws in the future, we might be put in the position of supporting a system that we were not getting benefits from," said Temple Junior College business manager Percy Francis. He cited the facts that Social Security benefits are tax-free and have a built-

White seeks office

WASHINGTON D.C. — U.S. Rep. Richard C. White this week announced his candidacy for re-election to the congressional seat for the 16th District of Texas. That district includes the majority of Ector and Reeves counties; El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson, Presidio, Ward, Winkler and Loving counties, and a portion of Jeff Davis County.

White will be on the ballot in the Democratic primary May 6.

White is chairman of the Democratic Research Organization, a legislative study group composed of Democratic congressman. He has served in Congress since 1965.

Today there is a determined effort to minimize the sin-ulness of homosexuality. It is being endorsed by religious sersons and organizations, even to the extent that some sligious, bodies are ordaining homosexuals to their ninistery. I have been reading of an homosexual church-made up of known homosexuals. Because of the wide pread acceptance of this filthy practice, many have been oubting whether such a practice is contrary to the sachings of God.

God has always had a moral law that condemns such "unnatural sex acts." In the Old Testament God said, "Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind; it is an abomination" (Leviticus 18:22). "If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them" (Leviticus 20:13). I realize that this was written in the Old Testament period and before the New Testament Church was established, but this instruction was a moral matter just like adultery, and God's law concerning both immoral acts is and was given to the family of man and not just to Christians. Listen to the apoetle Paul as he wrote the Roman letter. "For this cause God gace them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature: and likewise the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another; men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompence of their reward which was meet... Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only to do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them" (Romans 1:26-31).

Teens learn about sex, but not from right sources

changed in the past several years and more teen-agers are sexually active today. This six-part series examines the problems associated with that sexuality.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Sex education. While the subject is never taught in school, it is being broadcast in almost every direction

It is being shown in television episodes, sung about by groups over the radio and in concerts and referred to in advertisements in all areas of the media-television, radio, magazine and newspaper.

There are ads which show how using a certain mouthwash or toothpaste will give that person "sex appeal" or that certain touch needed to hook a person of the opposite sex. Car ads attach a beautiful woman with the car. Men's colognes propell the idea that men who use that brand will be sought after by all women.

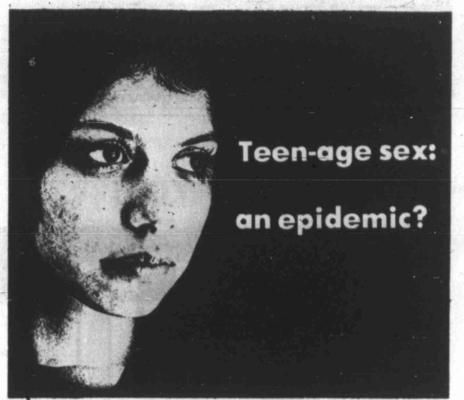

This is the type of sex education children are getting today. They hear about it, see it on the screen and try it out. But, many have no concept of what they are doing.

Said one Midland teacher, "You have to admit that with TV and movies and books, the kids are smarter than their parents were at their age. They pick up these words, but they don't have the maturity to handle it." She later added that times have changed with the teens in school. While teachers several years ago could not even say the words "sex education" in a school building, the teens not only say them, but also words connected with sex that before were reserved for the restroom walls.

Beth Curtis with Truman Medical Center in Kansas City, Mo., told a Regional Conference on Teen-agers and Family Planning in Kansas City, Mo., that she has worked with sexually active and pregnant teen-agers at least 10 years, but "is still appalled that the overt ignorance present in 1965 and 1966 is still present among the teen-agers today. It is depressing to hear the same old stories believed, to hear the same myths about the reproductive system and birth con-

Midland schools have no sex education courses per se, but several Midlanders who work with teen-agers said they feel the young people definitely have a need for a formal sex education course taught somewhere. 'The kids need to know about sex education," said Mildred Ford with the Midland clinic of Planned Parenthood. "The girls who are getting pregnant are being tricked by the guys. If they knew about sex and how to get pregnant, they could tell that guy they knew better and they would know where to stop." "I am a religious person, but I believe education should be exactly what it is-knowledge," Mrs. Ford said. "Just because you know how to shoot a gun doesn't mean you will go out and shoot a person. The same applies with sex education. Just because a girl knows about it does not mean it will make her promiscuous.'

When a girl becomes pregnant the first time, it often is attributed to ignorance. But, Mrs. Ford said, ignorance also can be responsible for a second pregnancy soon after the first.

When a girl returns for her six-week checkup after giving birth, she sometimes is pregnant. "The girls didn't think they could get pregnant for six weeks, or until their menstrual period started," Mrs. Ford explained.

Children have a natural desire to learn about sex, according to Dr. James Humphreys, a Midland physisay sex education shouldn't be taught at school, but at home. But, it isn't being taught at home so where do they learn it? And, some parents aren't knowledgeable enough about it to And, when many parents do talk to their children, they don't tell them the exact truth. Instead, they make up names for various body parts. "This puts more mystique over sex," said Molly Whittington, program director of social services with the Department of Human Resources in Midland.

"The kids are learning about sex education today, but it is not from their parents or in school. It is from their friends, or older siblings-but they're not learning the right things. The others don't know themselves,' Miss Whittington said. "Or, they are learning it from TV, radio and magazines. It doesn't give them the right kind of information.

"You don't have to get involved with an eight-year-old's question. He just wants a simple answer at that age. But, he wants the truth," she em-

"If we want kids to become adjusted to what happens, they need to know more," she said. "They know the graphic terms. We let them know and learn through the exploitive area, but we don't combat it with any true information.

Sex and pregnancy is not very real to the young teen, the director said. It is only something they have seen on television and in advertisements. With their lack of education, she said it has been difficult talking to a girl who is 12 or 13 about how to prevent pregnancy, and the girl is pregnant at the time. At the same time, convincing the parents their daughter is sexually active is also hard.

"Sometimes the young girls don't understand how it happened," Miss Whittington said. "They don't know what is happening to them." She described one situation where an 11year-old girl was pregnant, and the director had to use the girl's dolls to explain what was happening to the study shows teens become sexually active for the sheer need to be close to someone. "There is an obvious lack of affection in their homes. There is an obvious lack of concern from the parents. They got involved for the fieed to be close to someone and to get affection from someone."

While they may get affection, "they don't know about true affection or the natural biological feelings," the DHR director said.

The boys need the education just as much as the girls. Mrs. Ford said when a boy comes into the clinic for some reason, such as venereal disease screening, she talks to him about sex education. If he is responsible for getting a girl pregnant, "I tell him the girl will have the baby and her life is ruined, while he just goes on with his.'

She also has had situations where one boy has impregnated several girls, including a time where three girls had become pregnant by the same boy, and two were in the same school at the time they were preg-

There are some parents who don't feel their teens need to be told about sex until they are in the later teens but some Midlanders feel teens should have sex education earlier.

Girls are getting pregnant at ages 12 and 13, Mrs. Ford noted. Dr. Humphreys added, "We need to get to some of these kids before they get into high school."

"Don't say a word my virgin child. Just let your inhibitions run wild. The secret is about to unfold Upstairs, before the night's too old. Tonight's the night, it's gonna be

Learning to read: help from 'monster of spell'

By LUCRETIA STEIGER Copley News Service

The little boy, two-and-a-half, stood by his baby brother's bassinet, reading aloud from a Dr. Suess book.

The little boy's mother, Janette Moss, was amazed. Although she had read to Ken heavily for two years of his young life, she had no idea that he could read.

"It was an accident," she says today. "Oh, he couldn't pronounce each word exactly right, but he was Because her child was reading, and because she hated housework, Moss said, she began working with him to increase his reading skills. When he was 5 and entering kindergarten, his reading ability tested at the school was judged to be at the junior high school level.

. By that time Moss was helping the baby formerly in the bassinet to read, as she subsequently did another son, and finally an adopted older boy.

What she learned with her own children, and through interest by the public school educators in her methods, Moss has put together a book entitled "Insure That Your Child

Will Read," published recently by Reader's Press of Sebastopol, Calif., the book is "a step-by-step method designed to totally motivate the child, and at the same time offer imaginative activities to teach specific reading skills," its author

Moss, who lives in Newport Beach, Calif., has a varied background beginning with studies in journalism at the University of Texas in 1963. After graduation, she worked as a journalist with United Press International on assignments which included covering the Arab-Israeli Six-Day War and followup coverage in Czechoslovakia, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Moss married a fighter pilot, Ray, now a pilot for American Airlines and owner of a brokerage firm. They moved to Northern California, where she was chief editor of the Russian River News and later became a fulltime homemaker.

However, she spent only "about 30 minutes a day" on housework, devoting the rest of her time to reading and working with her children

What she gave them, and what she introduces in her book, is a mixture of positive self-confidence and about 5 minutes a day worth of games and activities designed to encourage reading. "I think you work with children by instilling proper habits and instilling ideal motivation," Moss said. "In my case, motivation was built in because was enjoying it so much. But reading is an exact science. For instance, I had taught my older son certain phonic skills, and then his little toddler brother came along saying, 'Me, too.' But I couldn't find existing reading systems which would provide what each boy needed.

"So I started to develop my own techniques. I found that shorter periods were very effective, and that extremely imaginative ideas

What she came up with is a "Monster of Spell," a creature which turns into letters and describes words. And the monster approach has been so effective, Moss said, that he will appear in Sesame Street, Big Bird-type costuming on public television shows and in a hardcover book

Nicotine found in breasts of female smokers

By BOB CORBETT Copley News Service

Nicotine, a major ingredient of cigarettes, has been found to accumulate in the breast fluid of women who smoke, according to researchers at the University of California at San Francisco.

The discovery could have important implications for research into breast cancer, Dr. Nicholas L. Petrakis said in an interview.

The inference is that other foreign substances, including carcinogens (cancer-causing substances) found in cigarettes ... may routinely concentrate there also, Petrakis said.

This could "have relevance to research on causes of breast cancer," he said.

The UCSF researchers made their report in the current issue of Science, the official journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Petrakis hastened to note that there is no evidence at present that women who smoke have a higher incidence of breast cancer than those who do not.

However, he said, women have not really begun to take up smoking until recent years. It might take several decades, he indicated, for an association between smoking and breast cancer to show up.

This is the first time, Petrakis said, that nicotine and its byproduct, cotinine, have been shown to accumulate in the breast fluid of smoking women.

The fear, he said, is that if these two smoking ingredients find their way to the breasts that other cancer-causing substances associated with cigarettes might be following the same route. This might include benz-a-pyrene and methyl chrysene, both chemicals known to cause cancer, he The studies indicate, he said, that the breasts of non-lactating (non-milk producing) women smokers, like those of their milk-producing counterparts, become "catch basins" for substances like nicotine. In the non-lactating women, he said, the fluid secreted by the breast glands concentrates in their breast ducts. Breast cancer, he noted, usually begins in these ducts. In lactating women, women smokers get rid of the chemicals in these fluids when they breast-feed. Petrakis is a professor of preventive medicine and international health at UCSF. Other members of the research team included Dr. Larry D. Gruenke, Dr. Neal Castagnoli Jr., Dr. J. Cymerman Craig and Trudy C. Beelen.

The researchers used a new technique to detect the accumulation of nicotine. A system capable of measuring nicotine levels down to a billionth of a

Using a special breast pump, they drew fluid from the breasts of six non-lactating women, four of whom were smokers.

The study showed that the nicotine levels ranged from 195 nanograms (a billionth of a gram) for a twopack-a-day smoker to 46 to 60 nanograms a one-pack user. Tagged by a non-radioactive isotope (deuterium), the nicotine showed up in the breast fluid in as little as 15 minutes.

By contrast, the two non-smokers in the test group showed no nicotine in their breast fluids.

Good nutrition hard to pedal

By JEANNETTE BRANIN

On a flight from Michigan to Colorado for a lecture, Dr. Gilbert A. Leveille sat next to a young woman and her 18-month-old baby. The baby was drinking an orange liquid from a nursing bottle and Leveille, who is chairman of the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Science-National Research Council, was curious. He also is professor and chairman of the Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The mother told him that her baby didn't like milk but adored the orange-flavored sweet drink and drank eight bottles a day.

'She said that if it was good enough for astronauts, it should be good enough for her baby," Leveille said. "Naturally I was appalled; at 18 months, the baby was at a critical stage of bone formation. It also was likely the infant was not receiving its daily need of

"I did a little missionary work on that plane and I hope I convinced that young woman."

He said consumers find a great deal of nutrition information boring and that for food writers to harp away at eating the four basic food groups is not going to engender much interest in improving diets.

"In general, the public wants nutrition information simple enough that it can be applied comfortably. They must be shown how to change food habits without changing their lifestyles or they'll never buy it. There is no widespread nutritional deficiency in America today although there is an occasional border-line case. Iron and calcium deficiencies are the most common

"One reason I disagree with the U.S. Senate Select Committee report on nutrition and human needs is that it recommended that the intake of meat be reduced by 35 percent. Now iron deficiency is most prevalent among premenopausal women and teenage boys and the most abundant source of iron is from meat."

Leveille said that most people do not want to satisfy hunger. "I can't believe that all the people who rush out to eat lunch at noon are hungry at noon.

He said most of them are eating for social reasons. "When you investigate reasons for eating, health is pretty far down the list. It is not a motivating force unless there is a problem. A mild coronary will scare the daylights out of a person, so it's easy for that person to modify a diet," he said. Leveille named three dangerous risk factors:

hypertension, high cholesterol levels and cigarette "If two of the three risk factors are involved, the chance of a heart attack increases fivefold. If all three risk factors are present, that person is really in trouble. The likelihood of a heart attack increases

First heart attacks are much higher among heavy smokers than non-smokers. Out of 1,000 heart attacks, 40 will be non-smokers, 85 will be smokers who use one pack per day and 131 will be persons who smoke more than one pack a day.

Leveille disagrees with the McGovern Report that said 85 percent of cancers are diet-related.

"There is no knowledge anywhere to support this," he said. "It's safe to assume that there is something in the environment that causes cancer, but it has not been proven that it is diet.

Judge dismisses unit against 17 major firms

HOUSTON (AP) - A federal judge. ruling there was lack of evidence, has dismissed a $12 million damage suit that accused 17 major oil companies of anti-trust violations.

"There are no genuine issues of material fact ppresent in this case," said U. S. District Judge Woodrow Seals Tuesday in granting a a defense motion fo a summary judgment. The Pan-Islamic Trade Corporation, headquartered in Houston, filed in the suit in 1974, accusing the firms of conspiring to monopolize the importation and distribution of foreign oil into the United States

The suit also alleged the companies acted in concert in restraint of trade and refusing to trade with Pan-

Corp., Shell Oil Co., Commonwealth Oil Co., Sun Oil Co., Continental Oil Co., Mobil Oil Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co., Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, American Oil Co., Occidental Petroleum Co., Tenneco Inc., and Getty Oil Co.

Pan-Islamic alleged it was prevented from selling Algerian crude oil which it had purchased from Sonatrach, the national oil company of Algeria, to the defendants and others as a result of an unlawful worldwide boycott and conspiracy on the part of the defendants.

The suit claimed loss of contractual agreements and the alleged embargo on trade caused Pan-Islamic to lose at least $12 million in net profits.

"Not only is there a lack of admissable evidence to the existence of a boycott of Algerian oil, but there is also a total lack of evidence of participation by any of the defendants in such a conspiracy," Seals ruled

Carter forces may be ready for concessions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frustrated by the deadlock that has stalled action on a national energy plan, the Carter adminisration is sounding out Republicans on possible concessions to break the stalemate.

But a group of House liberals is warning that they will balk at any effort by President Carter or the Democratic congressional leadership to go along with a compromise calling for deregulation of natural gas prices.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, and other leaders in the congressional energy battle have indicated that deregulation may be needed to get the president's stranded energy bill moving again.

And Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, in a surprise meeting late Tuesday with key Republican energy negotiators, indicated flexibility on the gaspricing issue and a willingness to support some form of limited deregulation if necessary to break the impasse, according to participants.

The House passed Carter's plan to keep price controls on natural gas at higher levels than at present while the Senate voted to deregulate newly differences threw the bill into a House-Senate conference committee, which is supposed to draft a compromise bill.

But the inability of Senate conferees to settle their own differences on deregulation has stalled action on Carter's energy plan for almost two

The Republicans, who in the past have accused the administration of ignoring them on energy issues, said Schlesinger's visit encouraged them to hope that a compromise they can support may be within their grasp.

Crime prevention committee meets

The Midland Crime Prevention Committee-Tuesday night held its first meeting as a permanent commission of the City of Midland in the Community Room of Commercial Bank and Trust Co.

The committee, which stems from a local action group formed in November 1976 and initiated by the Twentieth Century Study Club, is composed of members from organizations active in crime prevention programs.

In a recent city council meeting, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. authorized Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon to work with this group. Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith also serves in an advisory capacity.

Members of the commission are Bertha Starks representing the Midland Independent School District; Mrs. Richard Story, Twentieth Century Study Club; Mrs. Caroline Keisling, Altrusa Club of Midland, Inc.; and Patsy Gordon, The Midland Reporter-Telegram. These will serve three-year

Other members are Chuck Redger, West Texas Teen Challenge, Ann Bradford of the Midland office of the Department of Human Resources, Scott Shelton, Midland County Junior Bar Association and Susan Edwards, Human Relations Council, serving two-year terms and Wayne Campbell, Midland Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons; David Howard, president of the Midland Jaycees; Marsha Nickel of the Junior League of Midland, Inc., Kenneth Ray, Midland REACT, and A. J. Monzingo, Downtown Kiwanis, will serve oneyear terms.

The commission discussed four projects they could adopt. They include the organization of a Speakers Bureau, the publicizing of crime prevention and asking Mayor Angelo to declare Crime Prevention Week the early part of November.

Mrs. Keisling, Mrs. Starks, Redger and Sgt. Eulalio Camarillo of the Midland Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit volunteered to serve on the bureau

Sgt. Camarillo pointed out the need for more public awareness on the south and east sections of town because "in 1976, there were as many burglaries from A Street east as there were in the entire west

He said he is having difficulty getting the cooperation of people in these two parts of the city. The Midland Altrusa club presently is involved in the neighborhood concept of checking crime through

According to the members of the commission, citizen involvement is the key factor that can make or break an effort to reduce crime

Exotic African viruses serve as objects for study

By KATHRYN JOHNSON

ATLANTA (AP) - Epidemiologists from the national Center for Disease Control fly to remote areas of Africa and poke gloved hands through portholes in the CDC's laboratory to study exotic diseases which may have gone unrecognized for centuries.

"Africa has been troubled with some of these viruses for years," said Dr. Lyle Conrad, head of the field services division of the CDC's Bureau of Epidemiology.

The deadly Ebola virus, which killed 600 persons in Zaire and the Sudan last year primarily because no therapy existed, is the latest viral

disease under study

It is not known if the Ebola virus represented a new mutation that occurred last year or if the virus had gone unrecognized for centuries, Conrad said.

The CDC is also studying other African diseases - Marburg fever and Lassa fever.

When the new maximum containment lab is completed next year. researchers will don spacesuits hooked up to their oxygen supply, which will enable them to move freely in a potentially contaminated room.

Ebola virus was unofficially named after a river in the epidemic area in Africa. The virus was discovered after the epidemic began last year.

More than one hundred victims were doctors, nurses and other health workers who caught the infection while caring for patients who bled to death.

A multinational medical team is working in Zaire under control of that country's Ministry of Health, and another team organized by the WORLD Health Organization is working in the Sudan.

Dr. William Foege, director of the CDC, said that in two months the center "knew the clinical story of Ebola virus."

"We had isolated the virus," Foege said. "We had determined this was a new virus and we had acquired a serum to use in treating people."

Ebola immune plasma is collected from blood exposed to the virus' antigen - the substance that, when injected into the body, stimulates production of antibodies, a protecting immunologic protein that fights the invading antigen.

"Ebola virus seems to be a cousin of Marburg," said Conrad. "Its symptoms are similar.

The symptoms of Ebola virus are severe malaise, vomiting, diarrhea, nausea, and bleeding from the stomach and bowels.

Marburg fever was named after a city in Germany where it was first isolated in 1967. Cases occurred in lab workers who had had close contact with the blood and organs of African green monkeys imported from Uganda.

A second outbreak occurred in Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1975, Conrad said.

Once Marburg patients recover, the epidemiologist said, plasma can be taken from them, as in Ebola treatment, and used to treat other patients. Scientists believe rodents spread both Ebola virus and Lassa fever.

Lassa fever is an infectious disease named for a village in Nigeria. Its first known victim was an American missionary nurse in 1968.

After two American nurses died in Africa of Lassa/ fever, a CDC epidemiologist evacuated a third nurse. She became ill on her return to the United States but survived. "There's more Lassa fever in Africa than we imagined," said Foege. "It indicates to me that it's just a matter of time before we have more cases.

Foege said the African diseases have a limited potential for being imported into the United States.

Enrollment at UTPB reaches all-time high

ODESSA - Enrollment at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin reached an all-time high of 1,493 students for the 1978 spring semester. Registrar Robert Warmann announced.

Warmann said this spring semester's enrollment is approximately 1.5 percent higher than the 1977 spring semester figure of 1,472 students.

Registration still is open to students wanting to take selfpaced courses. College President

Z. R. Cardozier said students involved in these courses attend few or no classes but work instead from highly-structured course outlines, studying independently and meeting frequently with the professor for counseling, instruction and testing.

Students have been registering late since classes began Jan. 12. Classes continue through May 12 with commencement scheduled says an epidemic of Russian flu is likely to spread in the United States either this winter or next, and a vaccine can be developed that would be 70 to 90 percent effective in preventing it.

Russian flu poses new problems WASHINGTON (AP) - A panel of medical experts

But the experts are less certain about what the federal government's role should be in an inoculation campaign and who should bear the liability for the new flu vaccine.

And, in any event, significant quantities of the vaccine might not be available before December, according to one of the experts. Education and Welfare, the panel of experts from both inside and outside government said children

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who summoned the experts to the meeting, did not indicate when he would act on their recommendations, but he said he hoped to have the liability question resolved by summer.

In last winter's ill-fated swine flu inoculation campaign, the government assumed liability to assure that enough vaccine would be produced.

Suits have been filed against the government by several hundred people who received swine flu shots

Art viewed without reverence in England

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — So Baroness Spencer-Churchill chucked Graham Sutherland's portrait of Sir Winston into the fireplace at Chartwell. Or perhaps slashed it with the sword left in the closet from his days as First Lord of the Admiralty.

Well, why not? It was a gift from Parliament, commissioned for his 80th birthday, but they both loathed it. Sutherland, an eminent portrait artist from the tell-it-like-it-is, wartsand-all school, realistically captured the stiffness of old age so the great wartime leader came across as an arthritic, heavy lidded bullfrog in a bow tie.

heavy lidded bullfrog in a bow tie.

"It makes me look half-witted, which I ain't," grumbled Winnie when he first saw it. Lady Clementine Spencer-Churchill, who died last month, destroyed the painting while Winnie was still alive, according to the announcement of the three executors, who included Lady Soames, Churchill's daughter. The fate of the portrait, valued at $150,000, had been a matter of cocktail circuit speculation for 23 years.

Portrait artist Sutherland said the demise of his masterpiece was "without question an act of vandalism," but it should have come as no surprise. The British always have been tough on their painters.

Private Eye, the satirical press magazine, regularly ran Sutherland's portrait of the jowly, rather stout Lord Goodman as a mock pharmaceutical ad under the headline "Constipated?"

Art in England never has been revered and encouraged as in the warmer Mediterranean countries. Some blame it on the beastly British weather, the lack of decent light that accounts for the murkiness of Turner and Whistler and others of the fogbound palatte school. Others blame Henry VII's dissolution of the monasteries, the ransacking of idolatrous images by the Puritan Parliament and the general lack of church patronage.

"I hate all poets and painters," said George II, who spoke English like a German waiter in Luchow's.

Some of Britain's best poets were bored by the world's best painters.

Shelley thought the genius of Michelangelo was "highly overrated. He has no temperence, no modesty, no feeling for the just boundaries of art ... no sense of beauty."

Byron, who dressed like every romantic's idea of an artist, confessed he "did not think much of Murillo and Valesquez" and "was never so disgusted in my life as with Rubens and his eternal wives allowed Oscar Wilde, "when art almost attains the dignity of manual labor."

Nudes in particular seemed to unhorse the British aesthetes.

A friend reported Wordsworth's shock at seeing the figleaf-less statues of Cupid and Psyche kissing in Christie's auction rooms: "his face reddened, he showed his teeth and then said in a loud voice, 'the Dev-vils!" Mrs. Disraeli, wife of Benjamin Disraeli, the novelist and Prime Minister, spent a weekend at a country house and told her hostess at breakfast, "I find your house is full of indecent pictures. There is the most horrible picture in our bedroom. Disareli says it is 'Venus and Adonis.' I have been awake half the night trying to prevent his looking at it."

Critic James Agate told of the reaction of the Mayor of a Lancashire town upon being presented with a pair of unclad statues: "Art is art, and nothing can be done about it, but there is the Mayoress's decency to be considered." The unveiling of Jacob Epstein's statute "Rima" in Hyde Park proved blushes and horror. "I confess it makes me physically a little sick," said novelist John Galsworthy. "The wretched woman has two sets of breasts."

"May the devil fly with the fine arts," harrumped Thomas Carlyle. James McNeil Whistler, the American who lived around the corner from him on the Thames embankment, cried "Listen, there never has been an artistic period, there never has been an artistic nation."

"Every time I paint a portrait, I lose a friend," lamented John Singer Sargent, another American who had problems with decolletage in the Mother Country.

Churchill himself, a talented landscape painter, knew what he liked an didn't like in art. Picasso, he didn't like, as Sir Alfred Mummings, president of the conservative Royal Academy revealed at the dinner installing him as an honorary member.
"On my left," the minutes quote Sir
Alfred, "I have our newly elected extraordinary member of the Royal Academy, Mr. Winston Churchill. As I remember him saying to me, 'Alfred if you met Picasso coming down the street would you join with me in kicking his ... something ... something!'
(Laughter) I said, 'Yes, sir, I would!'
(Prolonged laughter.)"

Or as Pope Julius II is reported to have said upon seeing Michelangelo on his back on a scaffold 70 feet above the floor of the Sistine Chapel, "Mike, on the wall, you idiot, not on the ceiling."

Senior citizens invited to be guests at MC game

During Seneior Citizens' Night, persons who are 55 years of age or older are invited to watch the Midland College Chaparrals play Howard College's basketball team, free of charge, at 8 p.m. Thursday in the physical education building.

"Anyone 65 or older is always admitted to our home games without charge, but for this special game we are lowering the age to 55. We'd like to have an additional cheering section for the game," Coach Poss said.

Help your partner by breaking rules

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A defender usually avoids leading a suit that dummy can ruff because that does declarer's work for him. As a rule, you leaf some other suit and let declarer do his own work, but there are times to break this rule.

East South West North

Pass 4 0 All Pass

Opening lead — ♥ 2

East took the ace of hearts and returned a trump because all of the side suits looked unpromising. South won with the queen of trumps and held the next trick with the jack of trumps. He then forced out the ace of clubs.

East switched back to hearts, but it was too late. South took the king of hearts, led a trump to the ace, and discarded his last heart on a high club. Then he could afford to lose a diamond.

LIMITED STRENGTH

Since West's bidding promised only limited strength, East should play for a trump trick. East can hardly hope for a trump trick if he leads trumps but may promote a trick for his partner if he returns a heart.

South must take the king of hearts and lead the queen of spades for a finesse. When that holds, South leads a low trump to dummy's nine and then leads the queen of diamonds for a finesse.

West wins and leads a third heart, forcing dummy to ruff. No West gets a trump trick, and South is down one.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: SA98; H5; DQJ1093; CKQJ5. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You plan to show the clubs next, suggesting game in a minor suit. If partner tries for game in notrump, you will have no objection.

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

You'll probably never see it hanging in the Louvre or the Metropolitan Museum of Art, but what was created on the old, browned canvas of the Midland High gymnasium hardwoods Tuesday night was better than anything Rembrandt, Da Vinci or Botticelli ever produced.

It was a masterpiece painted with basketballs and excitement by two high school teams who probably think 'The Night Watch" is either a science fiction flick or else some kind of new disco, but it matters little. This was art in its finest form and it was Midland High who applied the final brushstroke to this treasure as they pulled off a stunning 76-70 upset win over Abilene High.

Three and a half weeks ago, these same two teams met in Abilene and the game was anything but a masterpiece. The War Eagles took command from the opening tap and ran Midland right out of the gym to the tune of a 69-50 thrashing.

But this was another day. Pack Coach Don Humphrey said this week that if his team could stay with Abilene early, they'd give them a game. And did they ever.

THEY PLAYED the 2-3 zone defense about as well as you can play it, and canned 24 of 28 free throws, including two by junior forward Charles Johnson with 41 seconds to go that put the game on ice, as the Pack staved even with Abilene Cooper in the second half district race. Both teams are 3-0. Abilene, which won the first half crown, fell to 2-1 as they lost only their fourth game in 31 outings.

Johnson's pressure-packed charity tosses gave Midland a 74-70 lead, and teammate Walter Bryson added the final touch a half minute later with a layup basket. Bryson paced the Pack with 21 points, nine of them coming in the fourth quarter when Kiffy Hickey and Milton Sanders had 16 and 14 respectively.

But defense was the real star for the Pack Tuesday. Humphrey knew his team had to slow the running War Birds down if they had any hope of pulling of the upset, and that's exactly what they did.

"We put false pressure on them, slowed them down and then played defense," said a very pleased Humphrey. "We never had any intention of pressing them. We just had to make it look that way and they did just what we wanted them to do. Everything and more.

WITH ANYTHING but little David Little (he's 6-foot-7) underneath, Abilene definitely held a significant height advantage. But the thing was, the big guy spent very little time underneath. Instead, Eagle Coach Jim Boynton, in a strange attempt to counter the Pack's zone, moved Little out and away from the basket, which is kind of like having a guy of Shakespeare's talent on a newspaper and having him write obits.

Little did have 21 points, but there's no telling how many he might have had if he had been withing shooting distance of the basket instead of out near mid-court somewhere: "I was certainly glad to see him outside." a thankful Humphrey said.

As Humphrey had hoped, Midland stayed with the Eagles early. The Pack trailed by just one point, 21-20 after the first eight minutes. Then, in the second quarter, they took command. With Johnson and Sanders scoring six points apiece in the period; Midland jumped out to an 11-point lead, and for just a second, threatened to turn this masterpiece into a paintby-number creation.

But led by forward Cisco Smith, who was the game's leading scorer with 23 points. Abilene went on a 7-2 tear in the final minute and a half of the quarter, and trailed at the half, 40-

LITTLE CANNED a jumper just seconds into the third quarter to cut Midland's lead to four, but then it was off to the races for the Pack. Hickey, Johnson and Bryson scored consecutive hoops to make it 46-36, and after Smith interrupted the surge with a two-pointer, Bryson and Sanders added two more, giving Midland a 50-38 lead with the third quarter not even half over

But two minutes later, the Pack's hopes suffered a severe blow when point-guard Tim Lucas picked up his fourth foul and went to the bench Lucas had just six points in the game, but he was the steadying influence in the Midland offense all evening long and he kept things under control with adept ballhandling and sharp passing.

With him out, the Eagles began pressing and double-teaming Midland from one end of the court to the other and turned several steals and Pack turnovers into easy buckets. They cut it to five late in the period, before a pair of free throws by Hickey right before the buzzer upped the count to

Bryson got hot in the fourth quarter, and a 20-foot jumper by the 5-11 junior wingman around the six minute mark had Midland in control again, 65-53. But then, the pressure really got to

Razorbacks battle Longhorns tonight

By The Associated Press

The ailing, weary, 12th-ranked Texas Longhorns shellshocked after four tense victories - take their surprisingly unblemished Southwest Conference mark tonight to Fayetteville, Ark., where Arkansas hasn't lost for two years

And Texas Coach Abe Lemons doesn't relish the trip, as illustrated by his comments Monday night after a heartstopping 73-72 victory over Houston

"I said if we got beat tonight, I'd be sad going to Arkansas. I also said if we won tonight I'd be sad going to Arkansas.'

The second-ranked Razorbacks, whose only loss this season was a 75-69 beating by Texas in Austin, were idle Monday night and are rested and healthy for tonight's con-

The Longhorns, meanwhile, will be playing their fifth game in 10 days — the previous four being decided by a total of 10 points, one in overtime and the other in the closing seconds. All five starters are also trying to recover from nagging ailments.

Ron Baxter has a pulled groin muscle, Tyrone Branyan has a sore Achilles tendon, John Moore and Gary Goodner have chest colds and Jim Krivacs has had a virus. All played, however, against Houston.

Ironically, when the Razorbacks lost in Austin they were playing their fourth game in a week and Texas was coming off an open date.

"The Texas game is the biggest game in the league season," said Arkansas coach Eddite Sutton. "When we played earlier, no one had played enough games to realize how meaningful that game would be. Now, unless Houston or Texas Tech wins out, it looks like it's a two-team race between Arkansas and Texas.'

Texas, not considered a threat before the season to the defending SWC champion Hogs, leads the SWC with a 9-0 record and is 17-2 for the season. Arkansas is 7-1 and 19-1.

"We're not playing over our head," said Lemons. "You can't play better than you are. If you can jump 6-6, you can jump 6-6."

senior, sparked Cooper's attack with 29 and 17 points. Martin, who sat out most of the third period with three fouls, came back to lead a big 25-point outburst in the final period, to put the game out of reach. He scored 19 of his team's 25 points with two of them being the dunk-slam variety While Martin and Miers were doing their thing, the big and physical Cougars also got a double figure scoring punch from Dennis Bradford. The 6-3 senior flipped in 12 points to add to the balanced attack.

THE COUGARS were off and running and the only time Lee was close was when the Rebs and Cooper were tied up 2-2 early in the first

Cooper took a first period lead of 17-12 and led at halftime 30-25. There was some shoving going on out on the court so when the two teams came back from intermission two technical foul shots were taken by each team before they ever had the jump ball to start the second half.

The Cougar's sagging two-three zone defense was hard for the Rebels to crash, not being able to get the ball inside to 6-5 senior Mike Oestmann who was in foul trouble most of the second half. He fouled out in the final period and that's when Martin went

Oestmann picked up his fourth foul with 14 seconds left in the third

With Lee unable to get the ball inside, the Rebels were forced to take low percentage shots and the Cougars were tough on the boards.

COOPER NOW shares first place with the Midland Bulldogs, who polished off first half champion, champion Abilene, 76-70. Both the Cougs and Bulldogs are 3-0 in the second half of the race with Lee and Abilene right behind with 2-1

Coach Paul Stueckler pretty-well summed up the game afterwards. 'They (Cooper) are a very physical team and we are not and that had to be the difference tonight," said

Mike Richard and Ernest Merritt led Lee's offense with 12 and 10 points and the difference was the second half when Cooper outscored Lee, 41-21.

Lee is now 19-10 on the year and Cooper sports a sparkling 25-4 mark. Cooper also won the junior varsity game, 76-39 over the Rebel JV.

Rams expected to ink Allen

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Los Angeles Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom, starved for a Super Bowl team, was expected to turn to George Allen, whose motto is "The Future is Now," as his team's new head coach.

Allen, fired twice before as head coach of the Rams, appears on the verge of being hired for the job a third time by the National Football League

Allen flew into Los Angeles Tuesday night and the Rams reserved a banquet room at a large hotel for noon today, ostensibly for the formal announcement that the 56-year-old Allen will succeed Chuck Knox. A throng of reporters greeted Allen as he flew into Los Angeles International Airport and someone remarked, "Welcome back," to which Allen responded, "It's like coming

Allen refused to confirm that he is going to be named the Rams' head coach, but he did say he has talked to Rosenbloom about the Los Angeles job twice and that he has not talked to any other NFL teams about employment.

"We are going to discuss the job, but it may be a while before a final decision is made," said Allen "Carroll Rosenbloom would be a fine man to work for and his organization is a fine one.

Allen said taking over this Rams' team would be a different sort of task for him, if he gets the job. "In the past, I've always had to rebuild," he said. "That wouldn't be the case here. This team has the Allen coached the Rams from 1966 to 1970. His Los Angeles teams compiled a 49-17-4 record and earned playoff berths in 1967 and 1969. The first playoff appearance was the Rams' first title in a dozen years.

He was fired by the late Dan Reeves after the 1969 season, but was penstated when players and fans objected to his dismissal. The next year, Allen was fired again and became coach and general manager of the

UTEP job nightmare

It's a rare high school coach who doesn't dream of one day becoming a head football coach in college. Few ever get the opportunity and most who do serve lengthy apprenticeships as assistants on college staffs.

Emory Bellard at Texas A&M and Fred Akers at Texas are ready examples in the Southwest Conference. Bellard coached at Breckenridge and San Angelo before becoming an assistant to Darrell Royal at Texas. Akers began as a high school coach at Lubbock High, and put in nine years on Royal's Texas staff before striking out on his own at Wyoming, where his success led back to Austin.

HOW MANY coaches do you know who leaped from high school to a head coaching job at a university. Off hand we can't think of too many. Rusty Russell from Highland Park to SMU; Chuck Mather from Massillon, Ohio, to Kansas University and closer to home, Gil Bartosh from a state championship at Odessa Permian to head coach at UTEP with a brief interval at Texas A&M.

For Gil, who became a hot property after posting a 23-1 record and a state championship in two seasons at Permian, the long time dream became a nightmare.

Perhaps most coaches leaping from prep ranks to college wouldn't notice the deficiencies of a program, but Gil had served at an assistant in the SWC and realized what he was stepping

"They were trying to operate a first class program on a Lone Star Conference budget," Gil recalled his three-year El Paso experience.

STILL, that didn't disturb

Bartosh too much. Assurances had been given that steps would be taken to up grade the program and make it competitive. "We were looking at a sixyear rebuilding job," Bartosh said. "The previous coach, Bobby Dobbs, had relied heavily on junior college transfers, so in effect we were starting our recruiting from scratch." "They wanted to play Arizona State and USC, but they weren't thinking big enough budgetwise. There was no training table or weight rooms and the recruiting budget was inadequate. While other staffs had nine to 11 coaches at the time, we had six and couldn't bring in quality the campus, we'd lose half of them once they took a look at the facilities. They saw there was no academic counselor and no fulltime trainer among the other deficiencies.

Nevertheless, UTEP managed to upset Arizona State and Gil was named Western Athletic Conference coach-ofthe-year in appreciation for the big battle he was aging with the short stick. It was after the third season that Bartosh threw in the towel "Despite the assurances that things would improve, conditions hadn't really improved.' "I RESIGNED to focus attention on the situation. It may have done some good. They have made some improvements," then, he noted, "I was a little disappointed UTEP didn't do better last season," some improvements. "I was a little disappointed UTEP didn't do better last season," said Gil who watched from Albuquerque where he was an assistant on the University of New Mexico staff. "We had then three Pack turnovers in a row resulted in three quick buckets by Abilene's Smith. He was fouled on the last one and his free throw with 3:15 left had the Eagles down by just two,

Another free throw by Eagle guard Darren Edwards seconds later, cut the lead to one, but Midland's Steve Brittain went to the line after that and made both ends of a one-and-one to give the Pack a little breathing room. ery little.

Up by three, Humphrey ordered his team into their delay offense. But when things are going bad, they really go bad. With 2:23 left, Sanders was called for walking, and Byron Roberts turned the golden opportunity into a basket to again cut the lead to a single point, 69-68

A pair of free throws by Hickey and another one by Johnson took a little of the heat off, but then Little scored and Brittain was called for charging, and with just 59 seconds left in the game, Abilene had the ball and needed just a basket to tie it.

But no dice. Little threw up a hurried 20-footer which missed wide, and what ensued was a wild scramble for the ball that decided the game. Three players went diving after the loose orange - Bryson, Johnson and Abilene's Smith. The official blew his whistle, waited a long second and then pointed a finger at Smith to indicate that he had fouled Johnson. And that's when Johnson ambled to the line and put the game away.
