Brookmole tells of wiretaps, transfer

In a sworn affidavit, Royce Brookmole, formerly district manager of Southwestern Bell's Midland District. has charged that he "positively confirmed" that both his telephone and the telephone of dismissed Southwestern Bell vice president James Ashley were tapped.

"Beginning in October of 1974, and continuing into 1975, I had a personal experience with wiretapping devices being used on my personal telephone. I became convinced that my home telephone was being wiretapped when charging Southwestern Bell with I noticed positive wiretap symptoms coming from the telephone set." Brookmole said in the affidavit given Saturday in Blanco.

And on Saturday. Brookmole said today in an interview, he was notified by company officials that he had been transferred to Lubbock as district staff supervisor-business office. The move amounts to a job-swap with his successor in Midland.

The affidavit was given in connection with a lawsuit brought against invasion of privacy by the use of wiretaps.

A jury in San Antonio awarded Ashley $1 million. However, the Eastland Court of Civil Appeals overturned that decision early in 1978 on the grounds that no evidence surfaced in the trial. The affidavit will be filed with the Court of Civil Appeals and later forwarded to the Texas Supreme Court, sources close to the case have said.

Brookmole said he told Southwestern Bell attorneys that he would testify at the Ashley trial and was told that to do so "would be at the expense of my job," according to the affidavit. Today, he said his transfer "was based on my reluctance to depart from the truth." He said the telephone company was paying him back for not being a "company co-operative

In the affidavit, Brookmole said that in his 26 years of employment by Southwestern Bell, he "received

Prairie grass fire still burning near Fort Davis

By ED TODD

FORT DAVIS — A lightning-ignited ranchland fire that has charred about 15,000 acres of dry prairie grass and some ponderosa pine northwest of here is into its fourth day of uncontrolled burning.

And it's creating more interest than excitement, at least around here, said

"We have a fire up there every year," Bob Dillard, a member of the Fort Davis Volunteer Fire Department, said this morning.

"Everybody is making a 'big deal' out of it." Dillard said in referring mostly to the news media. "It (the attention) seems kind of strange to us. These things (grassland fires) go on pretty regularly out here.' Because of the rugged terrain, 'there's really not much we can do about it." he said. He said the fire may burn out on its own. No flying fire engines have been flown in to douse the fire that is unreachable by firefighting trucks, he said.

The fire was set off by lightning late Friday on the McIvor Ranch, Dillard said. And it has charred much of the dry vegetation on Mount Livermore.

Dillard said about 100 volunteer firemen and spectators have flocked in to view the fire. Firefighting equipment is barred from the burning area because of the mountainous and rugged countryside.

"You can walk out there and carry a water pack on your back or ride a horse' and fight the fire with burlap sacks, Dillard said:

But he indicated that that would be virtually useless.

Viewing the fire are firefighting crews and others from Fort Davis, Alpine, Marfa, Balmorhea, Pecos, Valentine, Van Horn and Fort

Depending on which way the wind blows, the fire may endanger the Fort Davis resort area, Dillard said.

The fire is raging within several miles of McDonald Observatory atop Mount Locke, Dillard said

From his vantage there. astronomer Frank Bash this morning said the smoking fire is five to 10 miles west of the observatory.

On Monday, the winds were moving the fire toward Mount Locke, he said. But this morning, the winds changed direction and now are coming out of the east, Bash said. Bash said the fire would have to travel several miles and then would have to "jump" a highway before it would threaten the observatory. Were the fire to move in and up the 6,791-foot tall mountain, Bash said he "would hope" firefighting aircraft would fly over and dump water on the fire. So far, that hasn't happened, he said.

"It (the fire) is in very rugged country on Mount Livermore," Bash said. Bash said the dense smoke over this drought-damaged country prevents his viewing much of the burned countryside.

'The fire is far enough away that we are not in any danger . unless the winds pick up and change direction," he said

Back at Fort Davis, Dillard said similar fires plague this country for "eight or nine days" every year.

"It's got to be expected," he said of the fire. "It's dry here."

Africa tour leaves some doubting

WASHINGTON (AP) - Jimmy Carter, the first U.S. president to make a determined effort to identify his administration with the concerns of black Africa, is back from a pathfinding mission there with Africans still wondering if he means what he

Carter returned to the White House Monday night after a week-long journey to the Third World, expressing confidence that "the day of the so-culled Ugly American is over: Carter told welcomers the crowds that greeted him in Africa and Latin

we stand for in the world.

During the nearly 10-hour flight home from Africa, however, an administration official told reporters aboard Air Force One that black leaders on that continent continue to question Carter's sincerity and ask if we really do mean what we say about Africa Richard Moose, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, said these lingering doubts came up during the globe-trotting president's talks in

Remember the old days when the sun set when it was supposed to? That was before daylight saving time blanketed the nation like a luminous cloud for half the year? Of course, many changes - seen and unseen - have taken place or just occurred as a fluke since the mid-1910s, when the British adopted daylight time as an "economy measure" during World War II.

And the United States, which owes much to the limeys for its tattered but proud Old Glory, followed suit in 1918 but bowed out in the following year.

If recall serves true, some of the Eastern States were on daylight saving time decades before the 1973 energy crisis prevailed over gaseous waste, er, surplus. If nothing else, daylight saving time seemed to distinguish the Yanks from the Rebs. Southerners "never" had to fool with what at one time seemed like an empty gesture. Tinkering with time was construed by some as sacrilegious. About five years ago, the U.S. Congress allowed the states the option of tacking on an extra hour of daylight in the waning evening hours.

Somehow, just setting the clocks up an hour from the last of April to the last of October would conserve energy. Anyhow, that was the theory then. Who knows what it is now?

Maybe energy and time were saved. Regardless, the odds are that the spendthrift federal government spent thousands of dollars, perhaps upward to a million or so, on surveys and other research to determine just how much energy daylight saving

In Nigeria, the richest of the black African states, the question of American rhetoric as contrasted with actions was raised publicly when Carter was introduced to deliver a major policy statement on Africa. The questions that remain unresolved in African minds were posed directly to Carter by the head of the Nigerian Foreign Affairs Institute, which sponsored the U.S.

president's appearance. The Nigerian visit probably was the most significant, and certainly the lengthiest, along Carter's 14,575-mile route that also took him to Liberia. Brazil and Venezuela.

Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo, the leader of Nigeria's military government, which has promised to institute civilian rule in 1979, seemed ready, judging by his public statements, to accept Carter's repeated pledges to promote black aspirations for majority rule in parts of Africa now governed by white minorities.

During a two-hour flight from Nigeria to Liberia on Monday, Carter acknowledged he is not ready to go as far as Obasanjo in pressuring South Africa to grant full rights to its black majority

Nevertheless, a joint Carter-Obasanjo communique, the most significant document to emerge from the president s trip, emphasized their agreement on what they hope will be accomplished in South Africa and in more specific terms their express determination to achieve black rule in Rhodesia and South-West Africa — a region under South African control known to black nationalists as Namibia

Construction workers vote on mine contract

WASHINGTON (AP) - Striking mine construction workers are voting on a new contract to end their nearly four-month walkout as mine operators report that the coalfields have resumed normal production.

United Mine Workers union officials predict the 10,000 construction workers, who walked off their job last Dec. 6 along with 160,000 miners, would ratify their contract in balloting today.

"We expect it would pass rather handly based on what we hear from the districts." said one official at union headquarters here. The official, who asked not to be identified, said results of the vote probably would be

The Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the industry's bargaining arm, said picketing began ebbing Thursday and that Monday was the first normal work day since the strike began.

Neutron weapon production nixed

By ROBERT CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has tentatively decided against producing neutron weapons. it was learned today, although the West German foreign minister launched a last-minute drive to persuade Carter to modify that decision before it is announced.

As the West German official arrived, Defense Department sources said that in their view, the president has not made a final decision on whether to order production of the weapon. Supporters of the weapon have said they would prefer that Carter defer any decision rather than rule against production.

At the White House, spokeswoman Claudia Townsend also denied that Carter has made any decision on producing the weapon.

However, it was understood that Carter relayed his tentative decision late last week to West Germany through Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

After that. German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher's visit was arranged as a final effort by the West Germans to talk the administration out of its decision against neutron weapons, it was learned

Genscher will tell U.S. officials that West Germany supports production of neutron weapons, according to his political party's defense expert, Juergen Moellemann.

The neutron weapon has a relatively small explosive force, confined to a radius of about 200-300 yards. But it yields twice the radiation of a regular nuclear weapon. Defense strategists feel the weapon would be effective against invading tanks in any European war because the radiation would kill tank drivers and troops without widespread damage to civilians and property that would occur if conventional nuclear weapons were used.

Carter's tentative decision was reported in today's New York Times which quoted unidentified administration offficals as saying

Weather stalls phone service

West Texas weather has done it again. This time it was the cause of temporary delays in telephone, service in parts of Midland this morning. According to John Hargrove, chief deskman in the test center at Southwestern Bell, the weather this morning was "very bad" for microwave conditions. The atmosphere deflected the microwave signal so that it never reached the tower on the other end of the signal.

"This creates seizures in our switching system here in the central office and overloads it," he said. The result this morning was that it took about two minutes to get a dial tone

"No telephones were out. It was just processing the calls very slowly. It was taking about two minutes before the electronic switching machine would get around to processing your call after you picked up the phone because it had such a backlog due to the overload," Hargrove said.

Jean Park, district manager in charge of installation and repair, said that this type of problem was rare. Ms. Park said the problem began about 7:02 a.m. today and was repaired by about 7:35 a.m.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - At 50, Oscar has come alive again. The 50th Academy Awards show was a lively birthday party for the little guy. complete with a genuine political brouhaha and some of the "best" Oscars going to a man who was too nervous to show up at the affair.

Woody Allen's bittersweet remembrance of his life's love. "Annie Hall," won four of the most prestigious Oscars, including Best Picture, and 1977's runaway boxoffice favorite, "Star Wars," won six, most of them in technical categories, and a special award for sound effects.

Diane Keaton, a first-time nominee and Allen's former real life sweetheart, was named Best Actress for her close-to-life portrayal of the flighty "Annie Hall.

Richard Dreyfuss, also a first-time nominee, won a Best Actor Oscar for his portrayal of a frustrated actor sharing a New York apartment with an unwilling Marsha Mason in "The Goodbye Girl.

'Julia,' a tale of underground efforts in Nazi Germany, based on a section of Lillian Hellman's "Pentimento," won three Oscars, but another favorite, "The Turning

Unlike last year's rather dull show. when Oscar producer William Friedkin (of Hollywood's New Breed) spurned the ostentatious trappings of show biz, Monday night's producer Howard Koch, the Academy's president, gloried in the movies' glamour and tradition.

Appreciating the affair's traditional standing as the world's foremost stargazing opportunity. Koch brought back the noisy arrival of the stars and did an interesting montage mixing clips of old arrival scenes with real arrivals.

Her comments later were attacked by playwright Paddy Chayefsky, who told the audience he was "sick and tired of people exploiting the occasion of the Academy Awards for the propagation of their own political propaganda

He suggested to Miss Redgrave that "a simple thank you would have sufficed.

Allen's impressive score for "Annie Hall' also caused some buzzing: Best Director, Best Original Screenplay. Best Actress and Best Picture.

When "Annie Hall" producer Charles Joffe telephoned Allen in New York to tell him how his nervous romance fared, Allen replied, "Don't bother me, I'll talk to you in the morning.

Voters had their say

Well, Midland's first big four-inone election has come and gone. and everything seemingly worked out satisfactorily - at least for the voters and taxpayers.

The Saturday balloting included elections of the City of Midland, Midland Independent School District, Midland College District and Midland Hospital District.

In addition to saving a bunch of money for the taxpayers of the various taxing entities, the multiple-election probably got out more voters than would have been the case had the elections been held separately and on different

The number of voters casting ballots totaled 7,318, which was said to be above average for local elections. The vote total was fairly representative. It could and should have been larger, but it represented increased interest on the part of the voters, and this is most encouraging.

A vote of thanks is due each and every resident who took time out to go to the polls Saturday.

Marcos linked with WW II booty

By JACK ANDERSON

Department has evidence that Ferdinand Marcos, the genial Filipino dictator, has maps to an estimated $100 billion worth of World War II booty that the Japanese plundered in Asia and buried in the Philippines.

This fabulous treasure, according to confidential documents, is stashed in 172 secret locations throughout the Philippines, including ships that were deliberately scuttled. The vaults of sunken ships and the backs of buried trucks reportedly are laden with pillaged gold, silver, platinum, valuables Marcos allegedly formed a secret combine, identified by the code name 'Leber." which is now trying to recover the loot. He has imposed tight security on the operation, it is also alleged, so he can melt down the precious metals and sell them on the world market. He allegedly has warned associates that the looted nations might resort to war if they

This fantastic story is told in approximately 1,000 pages of documents and 30 hours of tape recordings now in the possession of the State Department. But because no U.S. laws appear to have been violated. State has made no effort to confirm the story.

We have. We listened to the tapes and examined the documents. Handwriting experts formerly employed by the FBI confirmed for us the authenticity of the significant documents. We spoke to the key people and compared their voices doubt that the Leber combine not only exists but has been trying to recover World War II booty. From sworn statements and confidential documents, we have also linked dictator Marcos to the group. One of his secret associates in Manila, former Ambassador to the United States Amelito Mutuc, admitted under close questioning that he was part of the Leber group. At first he pretended not to understand. "Oh, my." he gasped. Then he said: "What? What? ... What is this?" He sounded agitated. Finally he blurted: "That is a private matter. That has nothing to do with anything." In the end, he admitted his involvement but not the dictator's. "I never took up with the president any matter concerning the treasure hunt," Mutuc said. "I don't know if the president was involved in the Leber group.

Participants told us they were employed by the Leber combine to recover 13 military trucks, loaded with $10 billion worth of gold bars, which the Japanese allegedly buried at Teresa, a town about 35 miles south of Manila. To safeguard the secret. hundreds of prisoners allegedly were buried alive with the gold. The recovery team, following Japanese maps, found the markings to be meticulously accurate. As indicated, they found a level of buried charcoal. then a layer of bamboo and, finally, a layer of crisscrossed wooden boards. Then they uncovered the bones of the dead victims and the fender of a truck. At that point, they were recalled. They never saw what the

A confidential document claims 15 ships, laden with treasure, were scuttled in Manila Harbor. One of the sunken treasure ships, for example, is identified as the Japanese cruiser Nachi. We have established that in March 1975, a Japanese salvage boat, the Nikko Maru, appeared in the harbor. The story was put out that it had been sent by relatives who hoped to recover the bodies of the Nachi crewmen. Not long afterward, Marcos tightened the issuance of salvage permits, allegedly to keep private divers away from the seaburied vaults. In May 1975, he ordered a government takeover of the Luzon Stevedoring Corporation after the firm's divers reportedly started working too near a sunken treasure.

- Mutuc told associates that more than $14 billion has already been removed from the secret underground and undersea locations. He said the gold had been stored in a special warehouse near the Malacanang presidential palace and in a basement vault inside Marcos' summer palace. Our sources heard Mutuc's statement, and one source was shown the vault in the presidential basement. He said it was stacked with gold bars. Mutuc denied making the statement. "Fourteen billion dollars? That's ridiculous." he exclaimed. "To my knowledge, the Leber group has not received any treasure.

- To disguise the origin of the precious metals, Marcos allegedly arranged in 1975 for the construction of a "laundering" facility near Malacanang. Apparently, precious metals have telltale "fingerprints," and an expert can determine in what part of the world the metals were mined. The "laundering" plant allegedly was supposed to alter the chemical content of the metals, so Marcos could claim the metals were recovered from Philippine mines. Our sources don't know whether any altering has actually been attempted.

- For a while, Marcos kept a twofoot, solid gold Buddha in his palace office, our sources say. We have confirmed that a golden Buddha was recovered from a Japanese hiding place.

The secret maps reportedly mark underground treasure troves ranging from an ancient church to the former

If they just ran in their bare feet it would be one thing, but most of them wear sneakers and running shoes. We're not just talking about one or two people. There are thousands of joggers out there destroying our streets and sidewalks and someone has to pay for it."

Question of selling technology to communist nations WASHINGTON - In this century. can note that currently the digital the world has shrunk to the size of a tiny computer component, and thus has become terribly complicated That's one reason why our government frets over the situation of U.S. firms (facing tough competition) sell-

'high technology." If U.S. policy on export licensing for sales to Communist nations is too strict, American firms will lose billions in sales to other nations. If U.S. policy is too lax, might not these Communist nations use our technology for military purposes contrary to our national interest? Or to make cheap products which drive us from world markets?

J. Fred Bucy, president of Texas Instruments, is convinced the the "transfer of military significant technology has been of major proportions," and that the Soviets have narrowed the gap in military capability with the U.S. as a result.

But isn't this what one would expect an enterprising, successful Texan to declare? Aren't all capitalists like Bucy wary and suspicious of the Communists, and forever uttering warn-

No. as a matter of fact. The majority of capitalists these days, here and abroad, are quite interested in doing business with the Soviets. Bucy epresents a minority view. Bucy says the sales of products to the Soviets doesn't hurt near as much as the turnover of inside secrets on how to make them. Transferred technology, he argues, is ir-retrievable, Bucy claims that the Communist nations get a quantum jump in technology in return for some cash, possibly a short-term monopoly in one Eastern bloc country.

He also warns that the U.S. should learn from Renault and Fiat - the auto makers - who vastly improved Soviet auto-making, and now face competition from Soviet-built cars dumped in the world market.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) joins Bucy in this assessment, and says it is an "outrage" that the U.S. does not have a coherent policy on export to Communist countries. Jackson has entertained charges that the Soviets make plain suckers out of U.S. businessmen, and might even wiretap them when they are in Moscow to find out what their bottom price is. This grim situation came about. Bucy and others contend, because of the Nixon-Kissinger detente policies. But defenders of East-West trade don't see all these goblins. To begin with, U.S. trade with 12 Communist nations isn't that big. It grew from $243 million in 1972 to $1.5 billion in 1975, then slipped to $1.2/billion last year. Compare these figures with the $77 billion in total U.S. exports last year, and the Communist world looks small in our picture.

Moreover, all applications for licenses for U.S. firms to deal with Communist nations must be approved by the Department of Commerce, the Defense Department and finally by NATO. Sixteen applications from U.S. firms to sell semi-conductor devices (the kind Bucy developed) to Communist nations have been turned down in recent years. "If anything, businessmen consider the process too slow and restrictive.' says Max N. Berry, executivedirector of the East-West Trade Coun-

For example, Poland wanted to buy $50,000 spectrophotometer from Du-Pont to measure pesticide levels in canned hams, so they wouldn't have trouble with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Commerce okayed it, but Defense balked, saying that this device could be used in germ warfare.

It was a hassle to get it through. Similarly, Control Data Corp. failed to get a license to sell the Soviets its Cyber-76 computer for use in weather research. I.B.M., after having one application turned down, finally got a license to sell its big computers to the Soviets for use during the 1980 Olympic games. Where some critics claim that the Soviets lure smaller firms in need of new markets, the record shows that there are many U.S. corporate giants doing business with them, i.e., Bechtel, ITT, General Electric,

Humorist to highlight Crystal Ball

Justin Wilson, acclaimed as one of America's foremost humorists, will highlight the Crystal Ball to be held Thursday in Midland Country Club to benefit the High Sky Girls Ranch.

Hailing from Louisiana, a bit of the Cajun philosophy appears in his anecdotes and his stories are refreshing and bone-tickling.

The Mal Fitch Orchestra will play for the ball, with Wilson in a special show.

Waterford crystal also will be featured, and a Waterford chandelier will be auctioned.

Persons who have not received invitations to the black tie occasion may contact the ranch, 694-7728, and invitations will be delivered immediately.

AT WIT'S END Erma shares hubby's rules for falling asleep

By ERMA BOMBECK

It sounds incredible, but there are 30 million Americans who can't get to sleep at night.

They toss, turn, grind their teeth and roam around the house mixing drinks, reading books, staring at test patterns on TV and popping pills. Since the pursuit of sleep has become a real science (there are sleep clinics and even sleep foods) I can no longer remain silent and must speak out. If it helps one man or one woman, I'll feel rewarded.

I am married to the Legend of Sleepy Hollow ... a man who can fall asleep in the middle of a tax audit. It therefore falls to me as a duty to share with you some of his rules for falling asleep.

1. Stay dressed and upright. One cannot fall asleep in a pair of loose pajamas stretched out on a clean bed with the lights off. My husband's best sleep comes following a large meal when he is propped up in a recliner chair in a vest with the television blaring.

2. Napping aids sleep. No one likes to go to bed tired. I have observed that he naps best through sports events. For some unexplained reason, he wakes up (a) when the score is given and (b) when you think he is alseep and switch the channel to a Doris Day

3. Children aid sleep in the male species. Some men have been known to sleep all through their children's formative years. I have discovered there is nothing to cure a case of insomnia like the voice of a child in the night whining, "I'm thirsty," "I have to potty," "I feel sick."

4. If your husband has trouble nodding off, take him to a social event-a concert, an opera, a school play, or a cocktail party. I have had my husband sack out in a roomful of 200 people in party hats singing, "Hello Dolly." When I pointed out that he snored offkey, he said, "I was not asleep. I was just resting my eyes." (Some men have only to look at a tuxedo and it's like a sedative.)

5. Naturally, everyone doesn't have access to all the sleep-inducing materials at my house, but the other night my mother observed my husband in a chair over a book. "Look at him," she smiled. "It's nice to see a man who can relax with a book over

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market staged a modest rally today as the dollar steadied in foreignexchange trading. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.60 at 753.64. Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted some encouragement over an upswing by the dollar in foreign exchange. The U.S. currency began to pull out of a steep decline late Monday, thanks to support from the Federal Reserve and West Germany's central bank, and continued its steady showing today. But analysts also said traders were still apprehensive over speculation that the Fed might soon move to encourage short term interest rates to rise. In addition, they cited uneasiness over what measures President Carter might propose to combat inflation. The President has promised to set forth an antiinflation plan soon. Peter Paul dropped 1/2 to

Hey Gang.

Missed ya last week but it was good to see everyone back in school rarin' to go for our last eight weeks. All right! Many worked, or enjoyed the last of the snow, but most people took advantage of the sun as did our senior girls. B.C. was the proud "dad" of about 23 senior girls at Padre Island...where he and company relaxed and sun-bathed on the popular beach without a care in the world. Regardless of the many hardships we all had getting there...he came through it very calm and collected (well, almost calm), and we had the time of our life. We want to thank him for working so hard and getting-it-together, and most of all for showing us all the most fun filled and memorable time we could ever have. WE LOVE YOU B.C.!!! You certainly made our year complete!

Our Rebel Batmen really are knocking 'em of the field lately and we're really proud of you. Last Saturday they slaughtered the Big Spring Steers 7-3. Great show guys! Hope you don't miss today's action as they traveled to Odessa Permian to "put a Cat in the Hat and beat 'em with a Bat." This Saturday, the Rebs are gonna watch the Abilene Eagles fly out of the ballpark when they go truckin' to Abilene to get in on some action. Then, everyone be sure and mark your calendar for next Tuesday especially, as we meet our cross-town rivals here to bat it out to the finish. Lets SUPPORT THE BASEBALL SPORT!

Rebelettes, if you signed up to work at the meets, be sure to check with your officer about the time and place. If you would like to sign up still, you may go by the library anytime and do so. Well Rebelettes—how does it feel to officially be appreciated? That's Right! Today was Rebelette Appreciation Day. It's about time we got a day, and we celebrated it by wearing our uniforms and missing all of second period getting our group pictures made. All you Rebelettes start thinking about who you're gonna take to the banquet. The date set for this is April 27 and the cost is $5 a person (if you ask a date that's $10). The tickets will be on sale about a week prior to that date. Seniors, you're still Rebelettes so please make plans to go. Those girls planning to run for office, be sure to let your officer know for sure by Friday, and be thinking about the elections which will be April 19, after school in the Library

A lot of good munching has been going on lately Last night was the D.E. Banquet and last Thursday night was the Senior Dinner. It was really super with the Origin, Mr. Alcorn and the "Dubious Awards." These awards were given to the various Seniors, all in fun, but were most fitting.

Some catagories were Mr. & Ms. Cowboy, Mr. & Ms. Skinny, Mr. & Ms. Beautiful Hair, Mr. & Ms. Beautiful Smile, Mr. & Ms. Flirt, Disco. Wacky, Freak, Great Legs, Mr. Chicano, Most Likely to Succeed, Most Likely to go to Jail, Best Dressed, Prettiest Eyes, Shortest Person and many more which made it all complete. Our Senior song is "We are the champions," flower-rose, and color Marron & Silver. Thank you to our Senior Class officers and the Senior Dinner Committee for such a great job.

Attention, anybody in Junior Council wishing to take over our jobs and write the Chatter next year should put in bids and talk to B.C. about it immediately. The new columnists will be announced at the Junior Council breakfast. Officiers for next year also will be elected. It's for all "100 club" members, (future J.C.'s), and present Junior Council members. Junior Council will meet Thursday morning at 7:30 to discuss plans for the breakfast. Check va later

King murdered 10 years ago; doubts linger

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) - The dreamer is dead a decade today. But the doubts endure: Did James Earl Ray fire the bullet that killed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. "No," Ray told The Associated Press in an interview. But who did?

"That's difficult to say. But I think that all could be resolved fairly simply at some type of hearing or trial," Ray said. "Possibly the committee will be able to resolve it."

He referred to a House committee conducting a new investigation. The first began April 4, 1968, in Memphis when a .3006 caliber bullet blasted 205 feet, 3 inches from a boarding house bathroom window to the Lorraine Motel's balcony. King, 39, fell with a severed spinal cord and died 59 minutes later.

The first investigation involved 3,000 FBI agents and 30,000 interviews. On the 700th of 53,000 fingerprint cards, a clerk linked Ray to the rifle found after the sniping.

On June 8, 1968, the day Robert Kennedy was buried, Ray was arrested in London carrying a Canadian passport and a pistol. Investigators concluded he had acted alone. "The FBI made an investigation and they were in a hurry to get it," Ray said, "and I think they was sort of slipshod in a way because they wanted to extradite me from London and they had to use some evidence that was fraudulent ... For instance, Charles Stephens, he's supposed to be the eyewitness, he made three or four different statements. He has an arrest record of 200 drunks ... A fellow boarder. Stephens said he heard a shot and saw a man who resembled Ray rush past in the hall. Police put Stephens in protective custody, later to be embarrassed by disclosure that squad cars had ferried him to liquor stores. On March 10, 1969, Ray's 41st birthday, he pleaded guilty to murder in a 144-minute trial that fed coverup suspicions. A lawyer mentioned the soloassassin theory; Ray objected. He would not say he acted alone. Judge Preston Battle decreed 99 years

executive says motorists will be putting more miles on their vehicles in 1990 but using less gasoline

William T. Slick Jr., said this will be happen because of government mandated fuel efficiency standards for new cars and an "astonishing" increase in the number of dieselpowered vehicles on the road.

Slick, senior vice president of Exxon Co. U.S.A., told a meeting of the National Association of Fleet Administrators Monday his company expects the number of licensed drivers to reach a "saturation point" of 95 percent of the country's adult population by 1990. He said each will be driving an average of 10,000 miles

'While these two factors yield an increase in the number of miles driven, there will actually be less gasoline consumption, largely because of more fuel efficient cars,'

Many disappointed in new constitution

By STANLEY MEISLER

MADRID — The government of King Juan Carlos and Premier Adolfo Suarez had hoped that Spain could produce a new, democratic constitu-tion without controversy and without rancor. That fanciful hope has now been crushed.

The government and its main opposition, the Socialist Workers' Party. are attacking each other in public over constitutional issues. The Socialists have even withdrawn their representative from the special parliamentary committee that is drafting the constitution.

The first draft of the constitution has evoked little enthusiasm. After reading it, Julian Marias, a respected historian, wrote, "I must confess that this draft is the first serious blow to the political optimism that has sus-tained me for the last two years." Premier Suarez has complained that controversy is causing delay, and that delay creates problems.

Yet, despite all this fretting, it seems likely that the Cortes — Spain's parliament - will approve a constitution in the next few months and submit it to a national referendum. The government's target date is still June. There is little doubt that Spain needs a new constitution. The government is still operating under the "fun-damental laws" of the late dictator Francisco Franco. Suarez, for example, was appointed premier by the king, not elected by the Cortes. Soon after the parliamentary elections of last June 15, the Cortes appointed a committee of seven to prepare a draft constitution. The committee consisted of three members of the Suarez' center-right party, a rightist member of the opposition, a Socialist, a Communist and a Catalan. They met in closed session at a government-run tourist inn at Gredos the mountains 90 miles west of Madrid under an agreement that they would reach their decision by consen-sus. Under this concept, all sides would give a little on each issue until an acceptable compromise was

This penchant for consensus was prompted by Spanish history. Spain has had eight constitutions since its first was written in 1812. In most cases, those in charge of the govern-ment have rammed through their conment have rammed through their constitutional ideas over the protests of the opposition. The result has been a constitution unacceptable to large minorities, a constitution that became a target for revision or suppression whenever these minorities had their chance for power. That happened in the 1930s. The present Spanish government does not want that government does not want that history repeated.

on top of this, Premier Suares and On top of this. Premier Suares and most of his cabinet bureaucrats were uncomfortable with public debate over major issues. They believe that the most sensitive and significant issues should be ironed out in private without unseemly argument.

The constitutional committee produced its first draft at the end of las year. In its most important provisions, the draft constitution provided for a parliamentary system under a constitutional monarchy and for a decentralization of the Spanish state. into relatively autonomous regions.

The king would have certain powers to arbitrate and advise. He would nominate the premier subject to approval by the Cortes and could dissolve the Cortes if it repeatedly turned down his nominations. He also would have the right to call a meeting of the Cabinet under his leadership. In addition, some ambiguous provisions seemed to give him power to delay or reject legislation that struck him as unconstitutional. The powers of the king appeared to have been patterned after the powers of the elected president under the Italian, German and Portuguese constitutions.

In its provisions about decentralization, the draft constitution would allow autonomous territories, empowering them to raise revenues, organize a supplementary police force, direct some aspects of education, provide local public works, regulate regional agriculture and commerce, and legislate other local matters. But those activities would be subject to veto by the government in Madrid and taxing powers would be regulated by the Cortes in Madrid.

Despite the government's hopes the first draft hardly reflected consensus., After it was published, the various political parties offered 1,133 amendments to it. The most sweeping, by the Socialists, would do away with the monarchy and substitute a republic. But the Socialists did not expect support for this change. They merely wanted to go on record as a republican party.

They most upsetting criticism, however, came in a long series of newspaper articles by the historian Marais. He described the draft as a work of mediocrity without any sign of political imagination or intelligent reflection.

He described the draft constitution as imprecise in language, concerned with minor matters that had no place in a constitution, imitative of constitutions of countries that had no relation with Spain, and laden with the kind of 1930s parliamentarism that brought on dictatorships in Europe.

Marais suggested that the drafters scrap their work and start anew. Instead, the committee of seven took the first draft and the 1,133 amendments back to the inn in Gredos and tried again to reach a consensus. Once more, they worked in The silence was broken March & when Gregorio Peces-Barba, the Socialist representative, withdrew from the proceedings and accused the representatives of the Union of the party, of reneging on some agreements.

POSING TOGETHER Monday night after receiving Oscars as best actor and actress are Richard Dreyfuss and Diane Keaton. Dreyfuss won for his role in "The Goodbye Girl," while Miss Keaton won for her portrayal of "Annie Hall." "Annie Hall" also won directing and screenplay honors. (AP Laserphoto)

John Cox has bags on hold

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. - Former Midland Cubs GM John Cox sat on the concrete steps in the aisle behind home plate at Sun City Saturday watching as righthander Dennis Lamp went through an impressive fiveinning dress rehearsal against the Milwaukee Brewers, and while the former Midland pitcher may have some doubts as to his ability to break into Chicago's starting rotation, Cox is more optimistic.

"Actually, they sent me over here to offer another opinion on Denny,' Cox, now assistant to Chicago GM Bob Kennedy began. "From what he showed last winter in Puerto Rico and this spring, I'd say his chances are excellent."

COX WENT on, "Sometimes I can't tell whether his breaking pitch is a slider or curve, but his sinker has been wicked. That's one reason he has come so far since his Midland days.

'Another reason is that once he crosses those white lines, he's all business," John went on. "You'll remember in the old days, life was just one big practical joke to Denny. 'If you don't get 'em today, there's always tomorrow,' he'd say. He still likes a practical joke and his presence is a good loosening influence on a team, but once he's out on the mound, he's a different person now."

A YEAR ago, John was the Cubs' farm director, but this year he'll be scouting players primarily on the major league level, although he will appraise the talent in the minors as "I guess you'd call me a troubleshooter. Kennedy told me to keep my bags packed because I'll be doing a lot of traveling on a moment's notice.

"I like this job, but the farm director's job was interesting and I would have been happy to do it for another five years. However, the one year gave me a better insight into the overall operation."

COX SAID that his scouting information would be used in possible trades with other clubs. "One reason I have to keep up with the minor league clubs is to make sure we are protected there in case we want to trade someone on the major league club."

While this Texas correspondant is scouting the clubs training in the ball parks and Sun City received high marks in all phases.

Sun City, of course, located outside Phoenix, an hour west of Scottsdale, is unique in itself. It's a compact retirement community of 47,000 started by Del Webb 16 years ago.

ALTHOUGH NOT strictly enforced, the rule of thumb is that it's open only to citizens 50 years of age and older. As you drive slowly through its beautifully manicured, winding streets, the first thing that strikes you is the lack of children (there are only 16 in the entire city) and stray pets.

Homes and apartments fall in the $30,000 to $90,000 range and, suprisingly, some of the inhabitants need food stamps to survive. Inflation has seriously eroded the $500 a month retirement of some of the earlier residents. The pinch also is reflected in the opposition to community improvements that might boost taxes.

IN A way, at first glance, it seems strange that anyone would desire to retire to such an age-segregated community, despite its efficient beauty. The answer is nine golf courses.

In fact, golf carts are a way of life in Sun City. They are not only used on the handy courses, but for transportation throughout the city. They even have a row at the ball park where fans can sit in their carts and watch the game.

The ball park is located in a depressed bowl, which could mean trouble if it rained more in Arizona. Fans walk in from the surrounding parking lot and down into the stands. Employees (ticket takers and concession stand workers) are Sun City residents, and the Mrs., as we said, awards them the highest marks in the Valley of the Sun for cheerfulness, willingness to accomodate and, best of all, reasonable prices for concessions that are top grade.

Spring training, or no, as far as she Cactus League, the Mrs. is rating the is concerned, that's where it's at.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - After heavy rain delayed the start of tire tests several hours Monday, former Indianapolis 500 winners Johnny Rutherford, Gordon Johncock and Al Unser took slow shakedown cruises around the Speedway track.

It was the first day of the weeklong program of spring tests, and none of the drivers planned to take his car up to competitive speeds until today.

During the 1977 tire tests here, Johncock became the first driver to top 200 mph at the 69-year-old

The Speedway has received 52 entries and expects a total of 80 by the April 15 deadline.

Mullaney leaving pros with few regrets

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - For Joe Mullaney, leaving pro coaching has few, if any, drawbacks especially when he thinks about the brand of basketball they play in Italy. 'Well, this may tell you something about it," said Mullaney in a telephone interview form Udine, Italy, where he is coaching a professional team called Mobium. Mullaney will become head coach at Brown University next month. "The players' bleachers are covered to give some protection," he said of the Mobium team. "And, I won't say the officials are incompetent. But they don't get paid. And for a person to be an unpaid official in this league, he has to be an unusual individual.

"One good thing is that if the fans get too violent, the home team has to forfeit," added Mullaney, who put Providence College on the nation's basketball map in the 1950s and 1960s. Mullaney said he has intended for some time to get back into college

"The location was ideal," said Mullaney, whose wife is living in East Greenwich, R.I. "It seemed to be provident that this thing should open

RENO, Nev. (AP) - Baseball's reigning world champions, the New York Yankees, are odds-on favorites to win the American League title again this season, according to Harrah's Reno-Tahoe Racebook.

In the National League, the odds released Monday made the Cincinnati Reds and defending champion Los Angeles Dodgers co-favorites in the National League, both at 7-5.

The Yankees are 5-7 choices in the AL, followed by Kansas City and Texas, both 7-2. Odds on other teams in the league are Boston 4-1. California 6-1, Baltimore 15-1. Chicago 60-1, Minnesota and Detroit 75-1, Milwaukee 100-1, Cleveland and Oakland 300-1, and Seattle and Bob Seiple, Brown's athletic director, said he called Mullaney on Friday after assistant Indiana coach Bob Donewald decided at the last minute that he did not want the job.

Brown had scheduled a news conference for 10 a.m. EST Friday to announce Donewald's hiring. However, Donewald told Seiple about 9:30 a.m. that he wanted more time to think about it.

"I talked with Joe right after that and by Friday afternoon, it was all set," Seiple said, adding that Brown will begin a nationwide search for assistants to serve under Mullaney.

Mullaney said he was disappointed when Seiple called him last Thursday to say the job had been accepted by Donewald.

"But I've been around the basketball world long enough to know how this works," Mullaney said. There are many good coaches. Yes, it was a disappointment but I wasn't dejected about it."

Mullaney is no stranger to Providence, having coached at Providence College 14 years in the 1950s and 1960s, accumulating a wonloss record of 275-80 and NIT titles in 1961 and 1963.

In college, Mullaney captained the Holy Cross team that won the NCAA title in 1947. He also played for the Boston Celtics and has coached the Los Angeles Lakers, Kentucky Colonels, Utal Stars, Memphis Sounds, St. Louis Spirits and the Buffalo Braves.

Mullaney, who ranks fourth among college coaches who have recorded nine or more consecutive 20-victory seasons, will succeed Gerry Alaimo. who resigned Feb. 28 after nine years

Eckersley and Wise were involved in last week's six-player trade between Boston and Cleveland and both right-handers made impressive pitching debuts with their new clubs

Eckersley, who was acquired to help Boston overtake the world champion New York Yankees in the American League East, had to settle for the New York Mets this time. He allowed three hits in five innings as the Red Sox rolled 6-0, while Wise held the Chicago Cubs scoreless for six innings and then needed relief in the seventh of the Indians' 4-3 exhibition

"I threw too many pitches, going to 2-2 counts too many times," Eckersley said. "I'm a little tired, but I guess that's only natural.

"This was only my fifth exhibition appearance this spring and it was good to get back, especially with this club. However, I wasn't consistent.
One pitch would pop, the next one wouldn't. I just need to get my rhythm. I want to pitch batting practice Wednesday. Then I think I'll be ready to go nine innings in my first start next weekend."

MANAGER DON Zimmer said he was "impressed, but I know he can throw better. He'll be all right, ough. You can bet on that. What I

I've liked about him for three years. He goes after the hitter. He challenges the hitters.'

Meanwhile. Wise allowed the Cubs four hits and retired 12 consecutive batters over one stretch. Manager Jeff Torborg termed the outing good, very good. He popped the ball and had good sliders."

Harvey Haddix, the Indians' pitching coach, also was impressed with his new hurler.

"One thing I wanted to see was if he still had velocity," Haddix said. "He had plenty. All those fly balls are indicative of a rising fast ball. That's the best pitch in baseball. Ask any good hitter what's the toughest pitch to get good wood on. They'll say it's the rising fast ball."

-The Houston Astros bombed Texas' Doc Medich for 14 hits and seven runs in six innings, including a home run by Cesar Cedeno, and defeated the Rangers 8-3.

-Atlanta's Bob Beall, a non-roster first baseman, tagged St. Louis' Eric Rasmussen for a grand slam home run in the first inning and the Braves went on to beat the Cardinals 9-4. Phil Niekro, the scheduled starter when the Braves open the season Friday night, was hit on the wrist by a line drive in the fifth inning. The Braves said X-rays proved negative and the veteran knuckleballer was expected to pitch as scheduled.

Kansas City's Tom Poquette raised his spring batting average to .447 with a triple, two singles and four RBIs while Al Cowens had four singles and a pair of RBIs as the Royals edged the Chicago White Sox

-Don Baylor belted a three-run homer and Lyman Bostock added a two-run shot to power the California Angels over the San Diego Padres 14-6. Frank Tanana, who will pitch the Angels' opener Friday night against Oakland, blanked the Padres on two hits over the first four innings.

-Wayne Garrett's sixth-inning home run off Philadelphia's Larry Christenson helped the Montreal Ex-pos edge the Phillies 5-4 and winning pitcher Jerry Reuss delivered a run with a suicide squeeze bunt as the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5.

Athletes don't know how lucky they really are

Little Tommy sat there in his wheelchair. The bangs of his thick blond hair hung down over his forehead and draped across the top of his horn-rimmed glasses. Suddenly, a big, broad smile surfaced across his seven-year-old face, and at that moment you never would have guessed from the hope and happiness in his expression that Tommy was a victim of muscular dystrophy.

You had only been exposed to this child on your television screen for a few brief seconds, but it mattered little. It was love at first sight.

Tommy was smiling because walking across the stage to meet him was his one and only hero. Steve Garvey, the all-star first baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers. When he finally reached the boy, he knelt down beside him on one knee, looked into those warm young eyes, and Garvey too, fell in love with him.

"Mr. Garvey." the lad said to his idol, "I love you. And when I grow up.

I'm going to be just like you. Garvey didn't answer. He couldn't. His eyes got glassy, and running down the cheeks of this big 6-foot-1, 200 pounder were tears. Finally, pulling himself together, the words came. Words from the heart.

"I love you too, Tommy."

TOMMY NEVER did grow up to be just like Garvey. Two months after that touching scene on the 1976 Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy, he died. Tommy had lost his battle for life against this

Even as he spoke to Garvey that afternoon, Tommy knew his days were numbered. He knew deep down inside that the day would never come when he would be "just like" Garvey. But it didn't stop him from hoping and praying for some kind of miracle from The Man upstairs.

I hadn't thought about that incident since I read of Tommy's death last November. But watching still more crippled youngsters on this past weekend's Easter Seals Telethon rekindled those memories and stirred feelings deep down inside of me. Feelings of anger.

Why anger, you ask? Why would the sight of helpless children foster such an emotion from within?

Look for a moment, if you will, beyond that scene and at another one. Look at another boy - an athlete who is not crippled and who does not have to live every single day under the impending threat of death.

This athlete is blessed with a special God-given talent that so many of us can only dream of possessing. This athlete can either run faster, jump higher, hit harder or throw longer than 95 per cent of the rest of the human race.

And if he is really fortunate, this talent will enable him to become a very wealthy individual, and provide himself and his family with all of the material comforts this world has to offer someday. He is put in the enviable position of being a star. A nation of fans will kneel at his feet. and many will scale walls and dodge security guards just to get his signature on a bubble gum wrapper or in an autograph book.

AN ATHLETE, especially a good one, whether he realizes it or not, is a very lucky person and he should thank God every day of his life for the talent he is blessed with. How many people get the opportunity to make a living doing something they really love? In that respect, I am lucky too. I am doing something I love, and the day sports writing becomes a job and not a love, it will be time for me to move on to something else.

Athletes today have become spoiled rotten. Maybe it is us sports writers who are partly to blame for that. I don't know. But what I do know is that there are a great many who are abusing their talent, and that's when I becone irate. That's when I get sick to my stomach.

When I see a baseball player fail to give 100 per cent and not run out a ground ball, or a basketball player just go through the motions on the court, or a football player refuse to suit up until his multi-year no-cut contract is increased another couple bucks so he'll be making more money than Joe Schmoe. I think back to little Tommy sitting there in that

Tommy couldn't run with a football or hit a baseball. Hell, he couldn't even walk. What we take for granted, he would have considered a major miracle if he could have done it for just a few minutes.

YET, DESPITE all the pain Tommy was going through, he never let it show, There was only the smile. those warm-eyes and a constant hope He would have had every right in the world to resent anyone who could just stand up on two legs, let alone athletes who could run 9.5 hundreds. The muscles in his arms were so weak that Tommy couldn't even hold up the bat that Steve Garvey uses to hit 450-foot home run shots with. Yet, it didn't matter. "I'm going to be just like you," he told Garvey that day. "Just like you." I wish some of these spoiled athletes would think about little Tommy one of these days when they're complaining about what a rough life they have.

They and only then would they realize just how damn lucky they really are. Right Tommy?

Jockey Club forbids artificial insemination

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) - Kentucky officials said they would announce a contingency plan today to control venereal disease among thoroughbred horses, in the face of a Jockey Club ruling that foals bred by artificial insemination cannot be registered as thoroughbreds.

The state Department of Agriculture ordered artificial insemination on farms that have stallions infected with contagious equine metritis, an imported disease that has shaken the $200-million-ayear Bluegrass breeding industry.
But the Jockey Club in New York.

which registers all thoroughbreds for racing in the United States, said Monday it would not bend its rule against the breeding method.

THE JOCKEY club will not register any foal conceived by artificial insemination, which means such a foal could not race.

Jockey Club Chairman Nicholas F. Brady read a statement saying the rule "is intended to insure the authenticity of thoroughbred bloodlines and the integrity of the American Stud

A University of Kentucky veterinarian predicted after the Jockey Club announcement that CEM "is going to spread throughout the state and country unless we go to artificial insemination.

Dr. Tom Swerczek, head of UK's CEM testing laboratory, said CEM is relatively easy to detect and treat in infected mares, but "these mares infected now may become carrier mares and next year they may infect new stallions ... It's going to be very difficult to detect the organism in carrier mares.

IT WAS not known how the Jockey Club action would affect the state Agriculture Department's CEMcontrol plan, but a spokesman, Mark McDaniel, said contingency plans had been made in case of such a decision.

Agriculture Commissioner Thomas Harris was in Washington Monday for a meeting with U.S. Department of Agriculture officials, and McDaniel said there would be an announcement

Meanwhile, the USDA imposed a quarantine on breeding stock leaving Kentucky. It was first announced that the quarantine also affected stock entering Kentucky, but Bill Coman, executive director of the Thoroughbred Breeders of Kentucky, said he was told later this was incorrect and the quarantine was designed only to keep horses from leaving the

The Thoroughbred Breeders of Kentucky had asked The Jockey Club for permission to use controlled artificial insemination this year and so had Gov. Julian Carroll. But last Thursday the TBK withdrew its request, taking a lot of steam out of the proartificial insemination movement.

A SPOKESMAN for The Jockey Club said letters and telegrams were running 95-1 against artificial insemination.

The Jockey Club statement said: "In reaching this decision it is important to point out that this is not purely a domestic matter, as The American Stud Book is closely lined with the Stud Books of England, France, Ireland, Canada, Germany, Australia, New Zealand and other countries, who have informed us of their total opposition to any change in "Our information is that six or seven stallions and something less than 30 mares are involved," Brady said. "If that's correct, then it doesn't sound like an epidemic to me."

Coman placed the number of infected horses at five stallions and 22 mares. He said one positive mare was reported Monday, the first since March 24. He said 14 farms were involved and that the stallions were at two of them - one stallion at Spendthrift and four at Gainesway, both in

NEW YORK (AP) - Mike Manuche says he's received a lot of crazy gifts from the sports stars and fans who hang out at his restaurant here in the Big Apple.

"I guess they thought the restaurant was a good-luck charm, or something, and helped them win the tournament," Manuche said.

He said he recalled that the coach

Duke Athletic Director Tom Butters, contacted in Durham, N.C., Monday, said Tech "is a fine academic institution with a great athletic heritage." He added, "They will broaden the scope of the ACC to two major metropolitan areas and open up our conference to an additional two million fans."

with a disappointing 6.16 ERA. In 12 years in the major leagues, he posted a career record of 122-129 and a liftime ERA of 3.54.

For the last two years, the Yellow

Jackets played basketball as part of the Metro 7 Conference. Tech will compete in basketball in the ACC during the 1979-80 season and will be in the ACC basketball tournament in 1980. In football, Tech plans to continue to play traditional rivals Georgia, Auburn, Alabama and Tennessee, but the details of the Yellow Jackets' future football schedule have yet to be worked out, school officials said. The school also hopes to compete against Notre Dame.

FOOTBALL COACH Pepper Rodgers said Monday he thinks the move in general is "very positive."

Gibraltar Savings is the largest in Texas.

A strong savings and loan is one of the safest places to keep your money.

Gibraltar is financial stability. Assets at Gibraltar exceed $2 billion. Reserves are larger than any other savings association, of any type, anywhere in Texas. Financial stability like this makes Gibraltar Savings one of the safest investments available in Texas today.

Gibraltar is America's first insured.

In 1934 Congress, under Franklin D. Roosevelt, agreed that savings plans should be insured against loss. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation was formed and Gibraltar Savings was selected to become the first savings association in America to offer insured savings plans.

Gibraltar is only in Texas.

Gibraltar now has offices in and around Midland, Lubbock, Amarillo, Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston and Corpus Christi. No other savings and loan serves so many Texans in so many areas of the state. Gibraltar is the largest in Texas.

Gibraltar is investing in Texas. Gibraltar is supplying the necessary funds to construct new homes across the state. After construction, Gibraltar supplies the necessary funds to finance the purchase of these new homes. Gibraltar is investing over $1.75 billion in loans, creating jobs and improving the economy for all Texans. At Gibraltar. we're investing more into Texas than any other savings and loan in the state.

Every industry's needs trace back to adequate water supply

EDITOR'S NOTE - Water, water EDITOR'S NOTE — Water, water everywhere, nor any drop to drink...Water is the target of good poetry and bad jokes. There's nothing like it. No one thinks much about it—until it's unavailable. But water is the lifeblood of the Texas economy, rivaling oil and gas in economic inportance. One in a service of special portance. One in a series of special reports on Texas water.

BY MIKE COCHRAN

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - "Water, taken in moderation, can not hurt anyone." - Mark Twain.

'A mixture of brandy and water spoils two good things." - A wise old

Water, when compared with more exotic delights, seldom fares better than poor. Devotees of the devil's brew spurn it as an unnecessary evil. That old scoundrel W. C. Fields cursed it immortally.

So who needs it? With all due respects to ole W. C. most everybody needs it, especially in Texas, the nation's third largest state with nearly 13 million thirsty

Besides drinking it. Texans find water the lifeblood of a complex economy that includes hundreds of water-using industries and a variety of agricultural purposes.

Dr. Herbert Grubb of Austin, one of the state's outstanding authorities on water, talks in charts, graphs and smart, a combination which is not easily understood by everyone. But he makes this point:

The interdependence among the specialized Texas industries makes it important for Industry A to be concerned about a water supply for Industries B, C and D, since Industry A may depend on either or all of these other industries for essential production materials and for markets.

'For example, the retailer of finished foods, such as ground beef for hamburgers, depends upon the supply of beef, which depends upon the supply of grain, which depends upon a supply of irrigation water, fertilizer from the agricultural chemical industry, fuel from the energy industry to pump water, and a large number of inputs that are obtained from manufacturing industries.'

In other words, a lot of people need reasons, or you can't have a ham-

And, as Grubb says: "This analogy applies to clothing, housing, home furnishings, utilities, energy, transportation, medical services and supplies and all other. goods and services produced within Texas and marketed to in-state and out-of-state customers.

Few states have such a diverse economy so dependent upon fresh water supplies. Some 72 percent of the present water use in Texas comes from underground sources, and most is used for irrigation.

Texas produces staggering amounts of grains, meats, cotton and other food and fiber, all requiring water. It is the leading oil and gas producer in America, and again water is essential.

Freshwater inflow into the bays and estuaries of the Texas coast provides the ecological balance for marine finfish and shellfish, the basis for another multimillion dollar industry.

There are nearly 15,000 different a bunch of water for different Texas, according to Grubb, "and the gross value of output by the 10 major water-using industries totals $17 billion annually."

The heavily industrialized areas in Southeast Texas are the major users, but paper milling, closely relate to the East Texas logging and foresty industries, is another heavy user. "Shortages of water required produce paper will impact all areas of the state." Grubbsaid. He offers this example:

"A small shortage of 1,000 acre feet of water would cost an estimated 102 lost jobs, more than a $1 million decrease in income to Texas labor and a $100,000 decrease in taxes to state and local governments."

An acre foot of water, incidentally, is the amount of water it takes to cover an acre of land a foot deep. It's also 325,850 gallons.

Now, the chilling news: Texas now uses some 17.3 million acre feet of water a year, and as its population and industry increase, so do its needs.

But it is now using its ground water at a clip of 12.2 million acre feet per

'Gaucho' attitude prevails in Argentina

By DAVID F. BELNAP The Los Angeles Times

BUENOS AIRES - Traffic lights came into regular use here only about 15 years ago. Earlier attempts to use them failed in the face of public refusal to obey them.

James Bruce, a former U.S. ambassador here,

The lights were finally imposed by a determined mayor using a campaign of steep fines, suspended licenses and even confiscation of vehicles for repeated violations. But even today, motorists gun their engines impatiently while waiting for the light to change, and pedestrians jaywalk when no police officer is in sight.

Bruce wrote in a book about Argentina that gaucho suspiciousness and independence "may be responsible for the Argentine's failure to establish many truly cooperative ventures in the nation."

Yet American historian John W. White wrote that the gaucho was "the most picturesque and romantic type of man produced on earth in modern times." "Unfortunately, he was destined to pass into oblivion," White added. "But before he disappeared, he played a tremendously important part in argentine history.' Who was the guacho? He was an illiterate. mounted nomad who roamed the vast, solitary plains of Argentina-the pampas-for about 200 years until the late 19th century. He also galloped through the plains and rolling hills that comprise what are now the neighboring nation of Uraguay and Brazil's southernmost state of Rio Grande do Sul. He was also the provincial caudillo, a literate man who became a ranch owner as land tenure developed but who lived at first in conditions little better than those of the gaucho, and was the latter's equal as a horseman and fighter.

The gaucho's birth and development were made possible by the livestock - horses, cattle and sheep - brought to the New World by Spanish colonizers in (Dr. Solomon has the 16th century and pastured on the unfenced, grasscovered prairies. With no predatory enemies except the settlers and prairie Indians, the animals multipled by the tens of thousands.

The gaucho got new mounts for his tropilla, as his string of horses was called, by catching and taming mustangs. He lived off the land, killing range cows to eat, often taking from slaughtered animals a single set or ribs to be broiled over a campfire. For an accasional treat, he captured a rhea (Amereican ostrich) and feasted on its breast.

His only non-meat nourishment came from his constant beverage: an infusion of Paraguayan tea. the dried leaves of a tree botaniccally related to the holly that is native to Paraguay, northern Argentina and southwestern Brazil and is called "mate"

Boleadoras, an Indian invention, are two or three leather-covered stones connected with long wovenleather thongs. Properly hurled, they entangle a running animal's feet, bringing it thumping to the

The gaucho usually slept in the open, wherever nightfall overtook him, using his saddle as a pillow and his poncho as a blanket. But occasionally he built a hut of adobe and straw. His chairs were cattle skulls, and the floor was his table. The wayfarer was welcome to share his fare with no questions asked, giving the gaucho a legendary reputation for hospitality.

The gaucho disdained work, especially as a hired hand. As primitive ranches developed, he took an occassional job as bronco-buster or cattle driver to earn money for tobacco and mate.

Later, gauchos were involved in contraband traffic in hides and tallow with English, French, Dutch and Portuguese traders - "contraband" because all trade was by law a monopoly of the Spanish crown.

Above all, the gaucho had to be mounted. Dismounted he was said to "walk without feet." A European traveler of the early 19th century reported seeing gauchos climb on their horses for short errands to the well for water. Another reported seeing begars on horseback.

Ethnically and socially, the gaucho came from many backgrounds. Jorge Luis Borges, Argentina's leading literary figure of today, described him as "A casual son of forgotten conquistadores and settlers, sometimes he had Indian blood or black blood. Other times he was white. No matter. To be a gaucho was a destiny. He learned the arts of the prairie) and its hardships. His foes were the Indian lurking behind an unpredictable horizon, thirst, wild beasts, (jaguars and pumas in northern Argentina) drought, prairie fires.

Payne, a Sun-Maid Raisin Co. executive, saw Lorraine Collett and knew she was the image he wanted for his product.

The result was the picture of a smiling girl wearing a bonnet and holding a basket of raisins, with the sun at her back. It became familiar to millions of Americans and gave Miss Collett a second identity, as the "Sun-

LONELY LADY OF SAN CLEMENTE: Part IX

Pat was no teetotaller, friends report, but not a drunk either

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following excerpt is adapted from the book, "The Lonely Lady of San Clemente: The Story of Pat Nixon," (c) 1978 by Lester David. Reprinted by permission of Thomas Y. Crowell. The full-length book will be published by Crowell in late summer.

The statement about Pat Nixon that most arouses the fury of her close friends is the one buried in a paragraph of "The Final Days," by Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the Washington Post reporters who played a major role in breaking the Watergate case and the subsequent cover-up. Their best-selling book was a graphic account of events from the spring of 1973 to the toppling of the president the following year.

The three sentences in the book made worldwide headlines: "She (Pat Nixon) was becoming more and more reclusive, and drinking heavily. On several occasions members of the household staff came upon her in the pantry of the second-floor kitchen. where the liquor was kept, in the early afternoon. Awkwardly, she had tried to hide her tumbler of bourbon on the

The authors give no documentation, but state in a foreword that each fact in their book was checked by at least two sources. Woodward and Bernstein place the drinking episodes in April of 1974, following Pat Nixon's return from her South American

Nixon himself was enraged. Though no mentioning the authors by name, he told David Frost:

"All I say is Mrs. Nixon read it and ner stroke came three days later. I didn't want her to read it because I knew the kind of trash it was and the kind of trash they are...This doesn't indicate that that caused the stroke. because the doctors don't know what caused the stroke, but it sure didn't help."

He added: "I will never forgive them. Never." Pat watched him on a TV set in her bedroom as he said it.

How true was the allegation that Mrs. Nixon had taken to heavy drinking in the last hard months? Did she drink at all? When, and how much? Here are the facts, documented:

To begin: Pat was no teetotaler. During the vice presidency years, when she would go antiquing in Virginia with friends, the lunch they packed would include Bloody Marys in a flask, Rita Mazo, wife of Nixon biographer Earl Mazo, told me. Pat drank her share.

At the end of a grueling campaigning day she would on occasion relax with a drink, though never in the presence of presidential aide H. R.

AGANA, Guam - Will

An anecdote from author Theodore H. White: Pat and her husband were staying at the estate of a governor in the East during a rigorous campaign schedule. Haldeman and other staff members were present. During the evening Pat took the wife of the governor aside and asked her if they could adjourn to another room. They did, and Pat requested a dry martini, then another. "You know," she confided to the governor's wife, "I don't dare ask for a drink when Bob Haldeman is around.

From former press secretary Helen Smith: "You'd rarely see Mrs. Nixon take a drink at a party, but upstairs, after she had shaken a few thousand hands, she would put her feet up and say: 'Wow!' and she would then have a highball.

"I remember the time we were in Florida during the 1972 campaign. We were flying from one stop to another. A young reporter from The Los Angeles Times was with us. It was the first time she had flown with the first lady. The reporter saw her drinking something and asked me what it was I told her it was a highball but said: 'For goodness sake, don't say anything about her having one because it will simply stop her from being able to relax in front of the

"Unfortunately, the reporter's editor insisted that it go into her story. and from then on Mrs. Nixon never did it (took a drink) on the plane, even by herself. She had tremendous control. She never smoked in public, ever, yet when she went upstairs after a long reception she would have a cigarette.

Julie says her mother had no taste for the liquor served to her in China, where Pat was faced with the problem of handling the frequent toasts made with the super-potent 120-proof maotai. Instead, says Julie, her mother did a masterful faking job, lifting the glass to her lips but never swallowing any.

But had she in fact become a heavy drinker in those last hard months? I spoke to four women who were with Pat Nixon during many, if not most, of those days in the White House. Here are their reports:

Terry Ivey, her assistant press secretary, now out of the government and embarked on a wholly new career: "I saw her sipping a drink at public functions where liquor was served-what's wrong with that?-but I never saw her high at the parties or after. I never smelled liquor on her breath, and I was close to her, literally. Lucy Winchester was even closer, and she never did either." Mrs. Winchester was for six years social secretary at the White House. It was her job to arrange for the state dinners, receptions and other social Carter campaign profunctions; in that capacity she work-

After the Nixons left, Mrs. Winchester stayed on with the Fords for a short time, then departed Washington for her native Kentucky. I would look like hell, and she would look as though she hadn't done a thing, even though the days had been terribly grueling. She never needed anything to buck her up. I've never even seen her take an

"I was at the White House toward the end for 10 days with Pat Nixon, and left on Friday, August 2. (The president resigned the Friday follow-ing.) I was with Pat day and night, and I know what is truth and what is fiction. The story that she sneaked down to get liquor is totally untrue.

"If Mrs. Nixon had been a lush how could she possibly have appeared at all those White House receptions and other affairs and been unable to maintain her poise and equilibrium hour after hour?

"If she were drunk or drinking heavily, how in hell could she have managed to have gotten herself together to leave the White House as quickly as she did, giving orders on packing, supervising all the details. Remember, it was a sudden, mass exodus from the White House. All those clothes, all that packing, all those cartons, how could she have done it?"

Helen Smith: "I would see her in the morning, about 8:30 or 9, looking immaculate. If someone is drinking heavily, he or she cannot do this. You're going to see signs. You're going to see baggy and bleary eyes, shaky hands or slurred talk. There was never anything of the kind.

"Because of the crisis, she was not eating well, and I was concerned about this and its possible effect on her health. But Pat Nixon never needed an alcohol crutch."
