FORT DAVIS - A hitchhiker just passing through, a college co-ed, a ranch hand turned mason, a draftsman and a municipal fireman, they all had one thing in common Thursday as they formed an army of about 125 volunteers fighting a rangeland fire that had been raging out of control near here for five days.

It all began from what was thought late March 31 near the 8,382-foot high Mount Livermore in the southwest

Isolated from even the rugged roads that require four-wheel drive vehicles to cross this beautiful but forbidding state park, the fire has been free to meander up and down the steep canyon walls, over cliffs and across ridges, meeting only an occasional firefighter, who was ineffectually equipped with a wet burlap bag or hand-carried water fire ex-

ABOUT

'How y'all are?" Wilson typically asked in his deep Louisiana-French voice. "I'm glad y'all are here to see me, I'll guarantee you.

His specialty is in telling often-told bobtailed tales. Besides the frequently-predictable twists to his stories, one thing that made his tales appealing and laughable was his style: - Time: Such and such happened at "2:30 p.m. o'clock in the afternoon.' - Rare mule: "Good hunting and good planting mules are hard to get." - English butcher: "You've got to know how to shout and to shot them (ducks). I'm going to show you how this is did." The shots, of course, were fired from "a shootgun."

- Useless trivia: "Louisiana has produced more fur than Canada." - Doe doe: "During the hunting

It was here that the battle line was drawn against the slowly advancing fire Thursday as flames began to lap dangerously close to the unincorporated Davis Mountain Resort settlement. Located 15 miles west of Fort Davis on Texas Highway 166 are 25 permanent residences and an equal number of structures maintained for use on weekends and vacations. Reinforcing the efforts of area residents and college students from Sul Ross State University in Alpine were 12 firemen from the city of Fort Stockton, who began the day at 2 a.m., so they could be on the fire line by Every time we would get a fire line set up the wind would shift and it would go around us." Webster said.

Using field glasses and a walkietalkie, Fort Stockton fire chief Jimmy Jackson directed the team of about 35 that was making a stand against the fire in Limpia Canyon's Skyline

"If we can get it stopped here before nightfall, we've got it made. If not, well, there's nothing down that canyon we can use to stop it." Chief Jackson said.

A winding dirt road along the base of Skyline Ridge provided a natural fire line that workers toiled to fortify. Musclar men, many who live in the Mountain Resort area, wielded chain saws and axes to clear away trees and large shrubs that might fall across the narrow fire break in the face of the advancing fire.

Among the rugged workers was 12year-old Reagan Crowder, whose ax must have weighed one-fifth of his body weight. Despite his weight disadvantage, the young Crowder

College students, like blonde-haired, blue-eyed Mary Kay Seibert, 22, of Houston, said she and other students from nearby Sul Ross came to fight the fire "because they need us."

Panama chief protests amendment to treaty

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) -Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos is protesting to the State Department about a U.S. Senate amendment to the first Panama Canal treaty, government sources say The informants, who asked anonymity, said Torrijos' confidential message says he finds the measure. which allows U.S. intervention to keep the canal open for virtually any reason, unacceptable.

They added that the Foreign Ministry also plans to issue a public statement on the amendment, reluctantly accepted by President Carter March 15. That was the day before the Senate narrowly approved the first of the two Panama treaties, which establishes the canal's permanent neutrality after the year 2000 State Department officials in Washington said Thursday that no protest has been received from Panama thus far. Official Panamanian government spokesmen here said no statements will be issued until after the U.S. Senate acts on the second treaty, which actually would turn the canal over to Panama and will be voted on April 18. One of Panama's biggest political parties, the National Liberal Party. complained Thursday that U.S. Senate changes in the first Panama Canal treaty were "an affront to the dignity of Panama."

The Panamanian government already has complained to the United Nations about the amendment.

Daniels returning to run his home

WACO - A dream will come true for the Rev. Jack Kyle Daniels of Midland when he becomes administrator of the Methodist Home for children here on June 1.

Orphaned at the age of 21/2 at Paris, Texas. Daniels lived at the home here for 18 years. "It is the only childhood home I have ever known," he said.

Presently the executive director of the High Sky Girls Ranch at Midland. Daniels served as administrator of children's homes at Freeport and Fort Worth, and as an assistant to the administrator and chaplain of Methodist Home at Waco before accepting the Midland post in 1972.

He is a past president of the Texas Association of Executives of Homes

Daniels' degrees include a Bachelor of Arts from Southern Methodist University, 1956; Bachelor of Divinity from Perkins School of Theology. SMU, 1959, and Master of Sacred Theology, SMU, 1967. His thesis concerned work with children living in child care homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniels are the parents of two children, a daughter, Lyn, a 17-year-old freshman student at Texas Tech, and a son, Kyle, a 14year-old 8th grader.

Daniels' appointment to his new position became official today, following action taken by the Home's board

"Child care is my chosen profession." Daniels said in commenting on his new post. "I feel that my early childhood experiences, my formal education, my professional training as a Methodist minister, and my experience as a child care administrator of three different agencies, and my past association with Methodist Hame all are combined in a unique manner to equip me to be the administrator of Methodist Home.' He said he regretted very much to leave Midland and his position there. but that this was an opportunity and a dream which he could not turn down. Daniels is a member of the Midland Ministerial Association and the Midland Downtown Rotary Club. He is the teacher of a Sunday school class for young married adults at Midland's First United Methodist Church. He also is a member and past president of the Lee High School Bandoliers Club.

He is chairman of the Workshop Planning Committee of the Southwestern Association of Executives of Homes for Children and is a member of its executive committee. He is a member of the Central Texas Conference of the United Methodist Churci, and Texas United Community Services.

Terminal reports record boardings

"Everything seems to be going for us." Midland Aviation Director Wilson H. Banks said Thursday, explaining the new monthly record for passenger boardings at Midland Regional

In March, 37,055 passengers boarded planes, up from the previous record of 38,000 in July 977. During March 1977, 22,438

The March figure brings the total for the first three months of this year to 95,230, compared to 59,968 for the same period in 1977, an increase of 62,97 percent. Banks said the normal growth rate in the United States is 7 to 8 percent a year, but Midland has seen a 50 to 60 percent increase since last May.

He attributes the increase to a combination of factors: lower air fares by all three major carriers in Midland, the high cost of travel by automobile, the 55 mph speed limit, a population increase in the Permian Basin and a good conomic situation He said he expects the number of passengers to level off, but "we're still going to have higher than average growth.'

Forecast says rain, winds

A slight chance of thunderstorms tonight and Saturday exists, as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal predicts a 30 percent probability.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy with a low tonight in the lower 60s. The high Saturday should be in the mid-80s. Winds are expected to be southerly at 10 to 15 mph tonight. becoming southwesterly at 15 to 25 mph and gusty Saturday. Except for Stanton and Lamesa, all area towns reported warm tem-

Howdy, club women!

Federated club women throughout the nation constitute a particularly outstanding group of citizens, all of them doing tremendous jobs on a voluntary basis in making their respective communities better and more delightful in every way.

This is but another reason why Midlanders are delighted this weekend to be hosts to the 18th annual convention of the Western District. Texas Federation of Women's Clubs. The session opened this morning and will continue through Saturday.

The Texas Federation, of course, is affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which is the largest organization of women in the world, with more than 10 million members. The Western District includes a large segment of West Texas. ranging from Big Spring to El Paso and south to Presidio. Attendance at the Midland conference very well could break all previous records. A program of special interest and benefit to members has been arranged, along with social events which will add to the overall enjoyment of the visitors. It is good to know that the convention delegates will tour the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, and it is hoped they will take the time to tour the Tall City and visit other points of interest

The three host Midland clubs are the Twentieth Century Study Club, Junior Woman's Association and Progressive Study Club. They have worked diligently in planning, arranging and staging the meeting. All Midlanders are anxious to help in serving the convention visitors in any way possible.

Federated women's clubs are active in local communities across the width and breadth of the land, serving and improving life in their respective communities and homes. Their projects and programs have been and yet are many and varied, and their achievements are too numerous to mention. Action is their watchword.

The theme of the Midland convention is "Take Action: Make Dreams a Reality" which ties in perfectly with their overall philosophy.

West Texans are grateful to federated club women for their voluntary service in so many fields through the years.

The mystery of lost treasures

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON - We may have solved the mystery of the lost treasures of the East, which were pillaged by the Japanese conquerors when they overran Asia during World War II. In an earlier column, we cited evidence that the Japanese hid the loot in sunken ships, buried trucks, underground vaults and dozens of other secret sites in the Philippines. American war prisoners reortedly were forced to help bury the booty and then were killed to safeguard the secret. At one site they allegedly were buried alive. Their bones were found by eyewitnesses who told us they located the site from secret Japanese More than 100 maps of the hiding places reportedly were drawn by Japanese generals who looted the occupied countries and brought the stolen treasure to the Philippines. The maps allegedly list an inventory of gold, silver, platinum, jewelry and other prizes worth an estimated $100

The story of how President Fer-dinand Marcos, the Filipino strongman, got hold of the maps and schemed to retrieve the trove reads like a paperback thriller. We have pieced the story together from eyewitness accounts, sworn statements, confidential documents and tape recordings now in the possession of the State Department.

Marcos allegedly formed a secret combine, known by the code name "Leber," to recover the fabulous booty. Participants in the venture have told us that the dictator has no intention of returning the priceless treasures to the countries that own them. He allegedly has made

The document concludes: "Please discard this letter ... If it falls into the wrong hands, all of the carefully guarded secrets will be awash, and none of us can afford this to happen. By discarding, it is meant that it be burned or shredded, please."

We threw a scare into the Leber combine on July 3, 1975, when we reported on the defection of a Marcos aide named Primitivo Mijares. We noted in passing that Marcos allegedly controlled a claim on some buried World War II Japanese treasure in the Sierra Madre."

Former participants in the venture recall they were digging at a Sierra Madre site on the very day the column was published. Marcos "nearly had a fit," one participant told our reporter Eileen Canzian. Marcos ordered all work on the project stopped until he could determine 'just how much Anderson knows."

At the time, we had no documentation but only the word of sources close to Marcos. A few weeks passed without any further mention by us of the Sierra Madre treasure, so Marcos allowed the digging to resume. Sources who participated in the excavation say the Japanese maps were accurate down to the last detail. Our witnesses were withdrawn from the project, however, just before the buried booty was about to be uncovered.

One source was shown a room piled with gold bars in the basement of Marcos' summer presidential palace. Other sources claim that Marcos kept in his office a two-foot Buddha made of pure gold, part of the recovered loot. Still other witnesses were told that the Leber combine last year had recovered $14 billion of the buried treasures. We have been told the exact location of many of the treasure Footnote: One of Marcos' partners in the Leber combine, former Ambassador Amelito Mutuc, was obviously taken by surprise by our knowledge of the multibillion-dollar treasure hunt. He blurted agitatedly: 'That is a private matter. That has nothing to do with anything." He thus acknowledged the existence of the Leber group.

However, Mrs. Allende, whose brother was the first popularly elected Marxist president in Latin America, attributed the resurgence of resistance in Chile "above all" to what she termed the chaotic economic situation, reflected in the rising cost of living and unem-

The vote then indicated that about 75 percent of Chile's voters approved of the way the president, Gen.

Augusto Pinochet, has been conducting Chilean foreign affairs. It may be recalled that the voters cast their ballots in Pinochet's favor a few months ago despite the fact that the Marxists had called for massive abstention, the Christian Democrat Party, which was Chile's largest, opposed the plebiscite, and the jections, as had even some members of the ruling military junta.

Clearly, the Chileans are not now of a mind to vote a Marxist regime back into power, were they to have the chance. Even in 1970, when Allende came in first in the three-way race for the presidency, the Marxist parties, together, polled less than 37 percent of the vote.

An American Red Cross disaster canteen van bearing food and drinks was dispatched to the Fort Davis area Thursday morning to aid in the feeding of the 200 volunteers fighting the rangeland fires there. Maurice Cole, manager of the ARC Midland County chapter, said this morning.

Cole said Bill Lynch, Red Cross field representative from Midland, drove the van to Fort Davis on a two-fold mission.

He is passing out food to the firefighters and is making an evaluation of the fire damage should further emergency relief be needed. Cole said.

Cole said the Midland County chapter got pulled into the aid aspect after the Presidio-Jeff Davis County began running low on funds to buy food for the volunteers.

Cole said the chapter had only $500 to $600 in its budget for such relief. "The American National Red Cross has set aside funds to continue the feeding of the volunteers who are fighting the fire," Cole said.

Jobless rate increases

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's unemployment rate edged slightly upward to 6.2 percent in March after four straight months of declines, and for black teen-agers it rose to 39 percent, the Labor Department said today.

The overall jobless rate in February was 6.1 percent. A year ago it was 7.4 percent.

Officials are still worried about the high unemployment rate among black youths. There was no sign in March that new job-creating programs were helping the minority group

Horse race betting foes suffer setback

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Local election officials had the word today they could start printing the May 6 Democratic primary ballots.

The go-ahead came late Thursday after the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals refused to give opponents of a referendum on horse race betting an injunction to delay further preparation of the ballots.

However, State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest warned there might still be more court action.

"If this should happen, though it is not likely, you might have to line out or paste over the propostion your ballots," Guest said.

Douglas A. McCrary, Calvert, president of the Texas Horseracing Association, said he hoped Thursday's court action would "take this question out of the courtroom and put it on the ballot, where it belongs." "We are perfectly willing to trust the judgment of informed voters on this issue," McCrary said, "but obviously, the self-appointed guardians of morality who took this matter to court are afraid to even let the people express their opinions in a nonbinding referendum."

A similar straw poll is slated for the Republican primary ballot.

The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals issued the denial of an injunction without comment but said an opinion would be written later.

The decision, in effect, upheld the decision last week of District Court Judge Jim Dear that his court did not have the right to interfere with an election process that was underway.

Already cleared for the Democratic ballot, after a court test before District Judge Herman Jones, was a referendum that will ask voters what they think about an increase in interest rates for loans under $5,000.

Austin attorney Buck Wood, representing the opponents, argued Thursday that the SDEC approved the referendum on March 13 only because it had been presented a petition with more than the required 76,000 signatures of qualified voters. Wood claimed he could show in court, if given a chance, that the petition was signed by less than 76,000 qualified

Wood said that the state Democratic committee has "spent time and money to put something on the ballot that is a legal issue . members of the party have a right not to have an inflammatory illegal referendum on the ballot."

"The plaintiffs in this cannot show they will be harmed no matter the result of the referendum," said Shannon Ratliff, attorney for the Texas Thoroughbred Breeders Association. "This is not like a wet-dry election. This referendum simply allows people to say what they think about an issue."

City girl wins JA sales contest

Patty Adams, 16-year-old daughter Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Adams Jr. of Midland, is winner of the Midland area best salesman contest of Junior Achievement

Second and third place winners in contest were Steve Black and Karen Cook, respectively.

A total of 13 young people par-ticipated in the contest which consisted of a contestant selling his product or service to a prospective 'customer' in front of a panel of Miss Adams, a junior student at Midland's Lee High School, will be competing this week at Dallas in one of 10 sectional sales contests being held in the U. S. Winners of the sectional events will compete in the national contest at New Orleans later this year.

Miss Adams holds the title of vice president of sales in her Junior Achievement company. She recently was selected to receive a scholarship for the Junior Achievement Dale Carnegie course.

Gene Leroy Hart, charged in the grisly slayings of three Girl Scouts at northeastern Oklahoma summer camp last June, was under close guard at the state prison here today 10 months after he eluded the largest manhunt in Oklahoma history. Hart, a full-blooded Cherokee with a woodsman's knowledge of eastern Oklahoma's rugged hills, was captured by state crime bureau agents who quietly surrounded an isolated residence in the hilly brush country of the Cookson Hills.

Eight heavily armed agents kicked down the door of the remote cabin at 4:15 p.m. Thursday.

The arrest came after what Dick Wilkerson, deputy director of the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, called a long "compilation of intelligence information."

Wilkerson said the OSBI had learned that there was "someone living with an old man who lived by himself in a rural area and who cut wood and received some type of

The check was eventually determined to be a Social Security check. Wilkerson said. The OSBI official said it was believed Hart had been living at the house since November 1977. Charges of harboring a fugitive were being prepared against the owner of the house, identified as Sam Pigeon Jr. Hart's capture closed a chapter in one of the most brutal crimes in recent state history. The 34-year-old former Pryor High School football star was charged with three counts of first degree murder June 23, 1977, 10 days after counselors at Camp Scott near Locust Grove, Okla., found the bodies of the three young Scouts in crumpled sleeping bags.

Before Hart was charged a force which grew to more than 400 citizens. National Guard and law enforcement searchers combed the northeastern Oklahoma woodlands in search of a

But the rattlesnake and tickinfested woodlands revealed little to help law officers solve the sex slayings of Doris Denise Milner, 10, and Lori Lee Farmer, 8 both of Tulsa, and

The victims were found about 150 yards from their tent early on the first morning of the summer encampment.

Investigators found two blooddrenched mattresses and a bloody footprint in their empty platform tent. They said two of the girls were apparently bludgeoned to death while

One of the girls appeared to have been strangled outside the tent. She was found lying faceup, with her hands taped behind her.

Hart is a convicted rapist who had been a fugitive since his September 1973, escape from the Mayes County jail in Pryor, Okla. He sawed his way through jail bars to freedom while awaiting transfer to the state prison to begin serving a rape sentence.

Authorities linked him to the Girl Scout slayings after finding two tattered photographs in the cavefilled forests around the camp. The pictures were taken at a 1968 wedding in southwestern Oklahoma. Authorities believe Hart printed the photos in a prison darkroom after acting as a photographer's assistant at the ceremony.

Wilkerson said Hart offered little resistance when agents rushed into the shack. He said the suspect was not armed, and scuffled breifly when agents began to handcuff him.

When Hart entered the prison's main gate Thursday night, his head was bowed and his arms were interlaced with the arms of two OSBI agents who held tight grips on him. Hart wore the cutoff blue jeans and sleeveless T-shirt authorities said he was wearing when arrested. The 5foot-10 suspect was heavier than numerous OSBI drawings of him had estimated: something over 200

His hair resembled an overgrown crewcut, while most likenesses distributed by investigators had him with shoulder length hair.

"We did not know when we went to that house today that Gene Leroy Hart would be there." said Wilkerson. alluding to the dozens of false leads and dead-end rumors which authorities had pursued toward the fugitive's capture.

District Attorney Sid Wise, who met with OSBI legal experts late Thursday night, had said during the manhunt Hart could hide almost indefinitely in the hills of eastern Oklahoma, where he had scores of relatives who were reluctant to talk to law officers.

The capture ultimately came about 40 miles from where Hart had been suspected of using his woodsmanship to avoid tracking dogs and hovering helicopters. The Cookson Hills have an infamous history as hideouts for badmen ranging from Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd of the 1930s to Belle Star and the Dalton Gang of territorial days.

GAO questions base as shuttle launching site

By ELLEN HUME The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - California's Vandenberg Air Force Base should not be used as a launching site for the space shuttle because it would cost the federal government too much money, according to preliminary findings by the General Accounting Of-

The GAO, Congress' investigative arm, also has concluded that the space shuttle program should be able to get by with three - rather than the planned four - shuttles, according to Richard W. Gutmann, director of the GAO's procurement and systems acquisition division.

These preliminary recommendations are "quite significant," ac-cording to a top congressional aide. and "a very powerful input." according to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-Calif., but both men stressed Wednesday that they believe Vandenberg's role as a launch site will be upheld over GAO's objections.

"Somebody over at GAO didn't get all the variables," said Lloyd, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and the House Sciences andd Technology Committee, both of which have some congressional control over the $6.9 billion shuttle pro-

"I'm going to do my best to see that Vandenberg and the other shuttle stay on line." Lloyd said Wednesday.

The GAO's preliminary findings indicate that it would cost about $1.2 billion to develop the shuttle's backup site at Vandenberg by the 1983 target date, and an additional $2.6 billion in manpower to operate the facility through 1992.

'We believe that the Congress should not fund Vandenberg modifications to accommodate the shuttle unless there are compelling international or technical reasons for the West Coast site that are unknown to us," Gutmann said in recent testimony before a joint hearing by three House Appropriations subcom-

Canceliation of the Vandenberg site would leave just one American shuttle launching site, at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida. The Vandenberg site is already being developed and is scheduled to begin operations in the

Lloyd protested Gutmann's

Wednesday to Elmer B. Staats, comptroller general of the GAO. He said the Kennedy site would require the shuttles to fly over the United States, Canada and possibly Russia, posing "unnecessary hazards to the life of 50 million people" and "possibly threatening international peace."

Lloyd said the Vandenberg site would allow the shuttles to be launched over water.

'The first chunk of land you would hit would be Antartica, and by the time you hit land, you're almost in orbit," he told the Los Angeles Times Wednesday.

The shuttles are expected to be the "freight trucks" of space, conceived as cheaper than those space ships that use throwaway rockets and require ocean recovery operations.

Lloyd said Wednesday that he had talked with officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration about the GAO's tentative rec mendations, and had found that NASA and the Air Force still favor retaining the Vandenberg site.

Interest wanes for tattooing

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

HONG KONG (AP) - People-painting isn't what it used to be for Tony, the pop artist, who works under the sign of "money pay first, tattoo after, thank you,

In his second-floor studio just across from the Magpie topless bar in Hong Kong's Wapchai district. where Suzie Wong plied her trade. Tony yearned for the busy days of the Vietnam War "when many ships come and I do maybe 30, 40 tattoos a day." Now only a few visitors a night provide a personalized canvas for his artistry.

Business was just as slow farther up the street at Pinky's Parlor - "expert in improving misfit tattoos and designs" - and, next door to the Crazy Horse Saloon, at Benny's studio - "tattoes expertly covered, get the best."

The only big ship in the harbor was the Queen Elizabeth 2 on her world cruise and not a single passenger had dropped by at any of these art deco establishments to have a rose or an anchor tattoed on a bicep or to record an indelible salute to motherhood on a hairy chest.

Surrounded by skulls, dragons, butterflies, shamrocks, hearts, flowers, crucifixion scenes and hundreds of other designs of his own creation on every wall of his cramped atelier. Tony told how tastes have changed in the 20 years since he learned to needle people artistically under the tutelage of Jimmy Ho, a famous Chinese tattoo artist.

For one thing, girls have lately joined the ranks of the sailors and merchant seamen from around the world trooping up the darkened, foul smelling staircase to his work bench, having a love bug or a butterfly or a tiny Snoopy stenciled high on the hip just below the bikini line or on a pleasing promontory above the rib cage is considered very fashionable in

"Girls much braver than men," said Tony. "no cry hurt all the time." But alas, according to Benny, whose English was slightly less picturesque, marijuana has replaced motherhood and the flag as the leading motif of epidermal etching. His most popular design shows a cannabis leaf crowning a couchant bug-eyed figure engulfed in a haze of smoke.

These days, it seems, young seamen and student types bumming about the globe would sooner flaunt their affection for the dream weed in a fleshy fresco than display a hula dancer who shimmies at the flex of a bicep or go through life emblazoned with the tender thoughts, "The sweetest girl I ever kissed was another man's wife: my mother" - another Benny

Milford fighting for party's vote

DALLAS (AP) — Incumbent Rep. Dale Milford of the Dallas-area 24th Congressional District faces a challenger within his own Democratic party while a pair of Republicans fight it out for the right to take on Lined up in the primary against Milford is 35-yearold Martin Frost, who doesn't like Milford's vote for retaining an income ceiling for Social Security recipients and who hints darkly about Milford and the Koreagate scandal.

Frost bases the Koreagate insinuation on Milford's failure to make public his income tax returns for the past two years. Frost says his conclusion is that Milford has something to hide.

Milford says any newsman who wants to see those returns is welcome to them, and that Frost should find a more concrete Koreagate link or "shut up." On the matter of Social Security, Milford says Congress was "blackmailed" with the choice of lowering benefits or raising taxes. He says one of his votes was for raising the income limit to $5,000 an-Frost's campaign style is door-to-door, trying hard to build the name identification for which politicians

Milford says that style "smacks of machine politics, which we're against."

While Milford fends off Democratic shots over voting and scandals, Republicans Leo Berman and Ben Franklin Bruce accuse him of being away from the business of the people too often. Berman, 42, is a retired army officer who lost to -old electronics technician from Arlington, says his major credential is "supporting the government for Berman has the backing of GOP stalwart Ronald Reagan, who has appeared on Berman's behalf. Berman says Milford "spends too much time on junkets." He is against a Social Security tax increase and favors a revamping of the entire program in-stead. An employee of a large oil well drilling firm, Berman favors deregulation of natural gas and a tax reform bill that would give every American a 33% percent tax decrease. Bruce says he's for national defense, oil and gas deregulation and a restructuring of the Social Secutiry system. criticism of smoking

What next? Carbon monoxide in cigarette smoke, that's what,

For those who puff habitually, another component for concern in cigarette smoke - a gas associated with an increased risk of heart attacks - might be jarring news.

But, it isn't new to some who have analyzed rather than inhaled igarette smoke. In fact, the Federal Trade Commission already has a machine on hand that can measure not just the better-known nicotine and tar components of cigarette smoke but the carbon monoxide content as

The FTC doesn't care to talk much about any smoking the machine may have done. It does exist, though, the product of about $50,000 in federal funds, and it's in the tobacco research laboratory of the FTC in Washington.

Harold Pillsbury, director of the laboratory, said the FTC expects to have another round of tar and nicotine measurements ready for publication within six weeks, without mention of carbon monoxide. The agency, Pillsbury said, hopes to have carbon monoxide results ready by the end of this year, or early next year, or, actually, as soon as it's sure its methodology can stand up to any possible challenge.

It's not certain the tests will come under any legal challenge, although, as might be expected, the Tobacco Institute isn't exactly thrilled with it

The institute, a stalwart defender of cigarettes despite the surgeon general's judgment that smoking is 'dangerous to your health," has two beefs lined up to greet publication of carbon monoxide test results. Anne Duffin, a vice president of the trade group, questioned the basis for concern and the method of measuring the suspected hazard.

'There's carbon monoxide in anything that burns," Duffin said. 'It's a product of incomplete combustion. We don't know that the amount of carbon monoxide in cigarette smoke poses a hazard. I don't think that that's been demonstrated as a fact." Next, she said, There's a great deal of controversy in the scientific world about how to measure carbon monoxide. I'm not sure we'd agree with the way the FTC will be measuring it."

Methodology aside, FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk said, "There's substantial evidence that the carbon monoxide a cigarette smoker inhales is a health hazard.

Daniel Horn, director of the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, agreed. "I've been urging the FTC to add carbon monoxide to their measurements of tar and nicotine for some time now," Horn

Why? Because, Horn said, the consensus of experts at one conference on the components of cigarette smoke and their impact on health was that carbon monixide, tar and nicotine were the most likely to cause harm.

Tar is a mass of particulate matter rather than one single substance, and, as the magazine Consumer Reports put it in 1976, "some of the chemical compounds in this witches brew are capable of causing or promoting cancer in the lungs or other organs."

Nicotine is generally understood to be the addictive element in cigarette smoke, according to a federal publication, The Smoking Digest.

Carbon monoxide is described in that publicatioon as one of the most poisonous of the gases in cigarette smoke, making up about 1 to 5 percent of the smoke of the average cigarette. One explanation given in the digest shows how nicotine and carbon monoxide can combine to do harm.

Nicotine releases stimulants that raise blood pressure and heart rate. 'causing the heart to work harder and to require a larger amount of oxygen. But, as the smoker takes in nicotine, he is also inhaling carbon monoxide, which decreases the amount of oxygen in the blood."

In other words, more oxygen is needed at the same time that less oxygen is available, thereby straining an overworked heart and contributing to heart disease and heart attacks.

One parent adoption rare, but possible

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D. Copley News Service

Doctor Wallace: I am 20 years old and am thinking about adopting a child in a few years. I have a large, comfortable apartment in a good neighborhood, a very well-paying job and have fairly wealthy parents in case I ever got in a rut.

The trouble is: I am not married, and do not plan to be (ever). I absolutely love children, and I would be willing to give him or her the best of everything.

Do you know of any adoption agencies that are willing to give a single woman a fair chance of being a mother? I really believe I can raise a child properly.

Please answer. It means a lot to me. Allyson, Columbus, Ohio Dear Allyson: It's rare but not impossible for a single person to adopt a child. Contact the Seven Sorrows of Our Sorrowful Mother Infants' Home, Box 905, Necedah, Wis., 54646. They will be happy to talk with you. Doctor Wallace: Billy and I were married last year three months after we graduated from high school.

Both of us are attending evening college and working part-time. Because of this schedule, we are always short of money.

My mother suggested that we give up our apartment and move in with her so that we might save some money which we dearly need. Mother is a widow with a large house. I'm all for it, but Billy says, "No." Mother and I get along beautifully and I know it would work. What do you think? - Janet, Rock Island, Ill. Dear Janet: You really don't need to save money that badly.

Take Billy's advice, and spend time at mother's visiting only. No matter how big the house is, most husbands prefer not to live with their mother-in-

Doctor Wallace: I would like to thank you for telling teens to eat three meals a day when dieting.

As a former fat person, I agree that willpower and proper diet are of utmost importance. I lost 90 pounds using proper eating habits instead of starvation and I am in my llth month of maintaining this loss.

Phyllis George seeks divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Nearly a year after their marriage, sports announcer Phyllis George has asked for a divorce from film producer Robert Evans.

The Miss America of 1971 filed the petition Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court. It was the first marriage for the 29- year-old Miss George, a Texan who works for CBS.

For Evans, 48, a former head of Paramount Studios and now an independent producer, it was his fourth marriage. They met at a 1976 Christmas party and were married April 14, 1977, in Beverly Hills.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My little grandson had two or three earaches last winter. My daughter says they clear up by themselves, but I am a bit concerned. Shouldn't she check the doctor about this?-Elaine

Dear Elaine: Yes, she should. Although an earache is not often an emergency, it is always best to check it with the pediatrician right away in order to avoid complications. For instance, if it is a bacterial infection, he or she will probably prescribe an antibiotic to make sure the condition clears up. Quite often an earache may seem to improve if left alone, when in fact it is still causing damage. So checking with the doctor whenever a child has an earache should be the rule.

M. Montoya. Turbay Ayala and Varon Valencia denied the charge. Montoya refused to comment, but President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen said any aflegations about Montoya were unfounded.

Varon Valencia told U.S. Ambassador Diego Ascencio the charges were based on "false information which has caused notorious damage to the prestige of the country. its government and its armed forces." The U.S. Embassy in reply said its government has no evidence that any high-ranking official is involved in drug trafficking. To show that it is doing something about narcotics, the government reported Wednesday that its agents seized 240 tons of marijuana in the first three months of the year, the same amount seized in all of 1977.

It also said that between June 25, 1974, and March 15 of this year, 422 Colombians and 67 foreigners were tried on drug charges.

However, narcotics-control experts say marijuana has a low priority for U.S. drug enforcement officials. Their concern is cocaine, these sources said, because Colombia is believed to supply 70 percent of the drug smuggled into the United States. The GAO study said U.S. retail sales of marijuana and cocaine grown or processed in Colombia total $6 billion annually, and that illegal drug trafficking returns $1 billion a year to the Colombian economy.

According to some estimates, cocaine exports equal Colombia's coffee

President tables neutron decision

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter announced today he is delaying a decision on whether to order U.S. production of controversial neutron warheads.

The president said any future decision on whether to produce the weapons "will be influenced by the degree to which the Soviet Union shows restraint in its conventional and nuclear arms programs and force deployments affecting the security of the United States and Western

In a White House statement, Carter added that he has ordered the Defense Department to proceed with modernization of nuclear warheads for the Lance missile and 8-inch artillery but leave "open the option of installing the enhanced radiation (or neutron) elements" at some future time. Carter made clear by his statement that he expects some action on the part of the Russians in response to his move to defer production of the neutron warheads, thus using the new weapon as a "bargaining chip". Neutron warheads are designed to kill primarily by use of radiation. The weapons have smaller blast and shock effects than traditional nuclear weapons. Military officials say the weapon was designed for use against Soviet tank crews in any Russian invasion of Western Europe.

Disco singer crowd pleaser

PIKESVILLE, Md. - Donna Summer, the torrid singer whose name and moans have steamed up disco for almost three years, has sung 10 songs. There have been few grunts or grinds. She has shown this audience, as she vowed to do in her first American tour, that she is not a heavy-breathing novelty but a versatile performer. To demonstrate, she has just ripped the lid off "The Way We Were."

The people in the audience respond well but are still anticipating what they hope is underneath Summer's modest covering of billowy chiffon and sequins. Slowly the layers of chiffon vanish, slowly the audience starts to steam.

Forty minutes into her show, the slow beat of "Love to Love You Baby" begins. The 17-minute disco version with its 22 orgasmic gasps has made her a phenomenon and earned her the title "Sex Queen of the '70s." Now the gray eminence with his blond companion is grinning, the cats from Baltimore are calling louder, the gays are jumping

Now Summer, down to a dancer's black skirt and sequined vest, has an icy, fordbiden-fruit look on her face. With the makeup she looks like a Barbie Doll. She is moaning. She is massaging the microphone stand, moving her hips. She is doing things that would make Blaze Starr blush. She is doing all the things in public your mother forbade you to do in private. The audience is manic.

She doesn't smile, she hardly responds. That's part of the act, being simultaneously untouchable and intimate, but it's part of her ambivalent feeling about her image. She is tired of being only erotic.

"That is an image I have been plagued with," she says later. In a breathless, fast voice, she explains how she almost couldn't deal with the public Donna Summer. "When I came back from Europe, I walked into this commotion. ("Love to Love You" was already No. 1). I didn't watch the song climb like other artists: I got off the plane and there was all this frenzy. I didn't understand it, I was shocked and I almost had a nervous breakdown." It's time for her encore. She chooses "A Song for You," which s up with, "Thank you Jesus, Moses and Abraham-I was just singing my song for you." The crowd roars.

Ten minutes later, the spontaneous Donna Summer is inside her suite at the Painters Mill Music Fair, again, stressing that she is the normal, 29-year-old, down-home, Capricorn sister. She is tidying up the room. "Domestic? No. not really, I just can't wait," she says, cordially. Then she launches into a description of her curtain and canopy-making marathon for her new home in Los Angeles. After eight years in Munich, she has landed in America's glitter, dream factory with her daughter, Mini, 4, from a marriage to an Austrian Finally she stops cleaning, smiles at the motionpicture distribution man, who hasn't seen T.G.I.F.," a film in which Summer stars as a Los Angeles disco lady. It will be released in May.

Next, her wide-eyed gaze falls on the entourage from Casablanca Records, who are all smiling back because they like her and because she - along with Kiss - has made that company. (Summer has sold more than 12 million records in less than three years). Then Summer smiles at the press. She knows how to smile, a big, open-mouth grin, temporarily outlined in scarlet.

She has plopped a tweed cap on top of her monstrous, curly wig and is now wearing an oversized Tshirt with a picture of her current boy friend, Bruce Sundano, a singer with the Brooklyn Dreams. It's inscribed "Here's My Mugger." The girl has a sense of humor.

When her group traveled all day Easter Sunday, she dressed up as a bunny and distributed candy on the plane. But right now she wants to work off her nervous energy. She talks, non-stop.

"That was my first experience in a theater in the round," she starts, unprompted. "You know I don't smoke pot, don't take any drugs. Out there I inhaled something from the audience and wow, I missed a note. Did anyone notice?"

Why had she waited so long to do an American tour? Instantly, her tone is emphatic. "I wanted to stand on my own first. I couldn't allow the public to catalogue me on just a minimum of my talent," she

In Europe, Summer was a different kind of star. "Clean-cut, funny and not at all suggestive," she says. In 1967, she went to Europe for the European production of "Hair," stayed, sang with the Vienna Folk Opera and had some hit records. When Neil Bogart, president of Casablanca, heard "Love to . ." — it was bombing in Europe — he wanted it revised to be as sexually explicit as possible, and brought her back to the United States. Summer's "Love To" fit neatly into an explosive trend, orgasmic rock, which started with the mildly provocative "Let's Get It On" by Marvin Gaye and graduated to the explicit "Do It 'til You're Satisfied." Preachers, teachers and parents debated the lyrics' decency, but the music captured 15 percent of radio air time. Summer simply provided the

But the packaging was so perfect that some people doubted its authenticity. She was haunted by rumors that she was a transvestite, which she denied. Then she was attacked on moral grounds by people like Rev. Jesse Jackson, who campaigned to rid the air waves of sex and drug lrics. If she didn't like it, if it was causing her so much pain, why didn't she stop, the sex goddess hype earlier? "I was part of the machinery, the album cover, the promotion. But I was prepared to be a part of that, because I wanted to be a success. Now I am in better control and I can show what else is there," she says, smiling and disappearing fitto a cream-colored Rolls-Royce.

More nursing home care boosts big industries

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Ten years ago. individuals and government spent about $1.8 billion a year on nursing home care for the elderly and infirm.

Today, the figure is nearly $11 billion - one dollar in every 11 spent on personal health care. The increased demand for nursing home care has given birth to a giant new industry and is growing at a rate that threatens to engulf the program that pays for most of it-Medicaid.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph A. Califano Jr., recently told Congress that the $15 billion-$16 billion a year spent for Medicaid by federal and state governments soon will go for longterm care, primarily nursing home care of the elderly. The cost of nursing home care for the elderly and certain other groups is already 38 percent of all Medicaid outlays.

Today, more than 1.1 million elderly persons - one out of every 20 aged 65 or older are in skilled or intermediate-care nursing facilities. Officials say the figure may jump to 2.5 million by 1985.

The huge boost in outlays for nursing homes has drawn some big companies into the business. Where once the old and the sick cared for themselves as best they could, moved in with their children or were sent to old-age homes for custodial "warehousing," there are now giant chains of nursing homes all over the country. The biggest, ARA, the food service firm, and 120 facilities with 20,000 beds as of mid-1977, according to the House Committee on Aging.

Although there have been widely publicized instances of fraud or substandard care, the result often has been far better care for elderly persons with chronic and recuperative medical complaints such as arthritis, senility, diabetes, cancer, stroke and heart disease Young persons have been released from a sometimes crushing financial and physical burden or from caring for disabled parents. Nursing home costs per person generally range from $600 to $1,200 a month - an outlay few families can bear.

But the cost of the program has meant an immense and growing burden for the states and the federal government that can only get worse and reach crisis proportions as the percentage of elderly in the overall population increases over the next generation. These figures, recently developed by the Congressional Budget Office and HEW, outline the financial problem: -In 1976, 1.3 million persons were living in skilled or intermediate-care nursing homes - and 89 percent of them (1.1 million) were 65 or older.

The total national outlay for these skilled and intermediate-care nursing homes was $10.6 billion, paid by relatives and by state and federal governments. Four-fifths of the total was spent for the aged.

-Of the $10.6 billion, $4.7 billion came out of the pockets of relatives, $3.4 billion from the U.S. government (almost all from Medicaid) and $2.4 billion from state and local governments (also largely from the state and local share of Medicaid outlays).

Storm center watches clouds for tornadoes

EDITOR'S NOTE - Night and day in a government office in Kansas City, meteorologists monitor upper-air conditions, pilot reports, and radar and satellite data in search of nature's strongest, most unpredictable form of fury: the tornado.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The rain was tapping harmlessly on Jim Clark's home in west central Missouri that afternoon last May.

In Kansas City the night before, the country's top tornado forecasters agreed that a storm moving toward Missouri was classic tornado weather: Moist air near the ground, dry air above and a wind disturbance moving through the upper atmosphere.

Now they were trying to predict when and where the atmosphere's least predictable and strongest storm would drop from the swirling clouds. They thought late afternoon. They were wrong.

The first funnel landed on the Kansas-Missouri border at midday and left a 28-mile path of twisted trees and mangled fences about 80 miles west of Clark's home in Sedalia. A tornado watch, indicating weather conditions were prime for tornadoes, was issued for the rest of western Missouri

Two hours later, meteorologists in the National Severe Storms Forecast Center squinted to see a tiny, hooked cloud on the radar screen. It was heading for Sedalia. They issued a warning, meaning a tornado had been sighted.

Looking out a window, Jim Clark saw the "churnng, yellow mass" tear across a nearby golf course. He and his wife huddled in a closet, their young daughter between them

Seconds later, cool rain was falling on them; their home had been tossed from its foundation and splintered. Except for a few scratches, they were unharmed

That twister was one of 30 spawned by the same spring storm moving across the Midwest that day. Three persons died, dozens were injured and more than 2,000, like the Clarks, were left homeless by the funnels' 100-to-200-mph winds.

The scene was repeated often across the United States in 1977 - 850 tornadoes were spotted on the round. And that was fairly calm, according to Allen Pearson, who heads the National Weather Service's division known as the severe storms center. Pearson predicts 1978 "will not be as gentle." a forecast based on both his intuition and the activity of the strong westerly winds often called the jet stream. Those winds steer weather systems in the Western Hemisphere.

In 1977, they brought abnormally warm, moist air north to Alaska and cold, dry Canadian air south through the Midwest. This year, meteorologists say, the jet stream generally lies across the southern half of the country.

The 1978 tornado season already has begun. In Florida, preliminary reports indicate 20 tornadoes were sighted in January — that state's record for the month. During February, March and April, tornadoes generally move through Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi and strike Texas. Oklahoma and Kansas in June and July. In the fall, they move south across the Midwest.

If they are wrong too often, forecasters know their credibility may be impaired and their warnings ignored. But the thought of a twister terrorizing unsuspecting residents is stronger than the worry about credibility. "We have to sacrifice something in accuracy in order to save lives," says Pearson, a veteran of many decisions.

The tough ones, he says, involve possible tornado weather in New England, where tornadoes are rare. One watch might cover 10 million to 15 million people. You want to be right or you catch a certain amount of flak. We sweat those.

Pearson has been head of the center for 13 years but he's never seen a tornado — a distinction the 52year-old forecaster seems to relish.

"The best meteorologists are simply good scientists who have a natural instinct for weather forecasting." he says. "They often have a tremendous recall of previous weather sightings and the circumstances of those sightings."

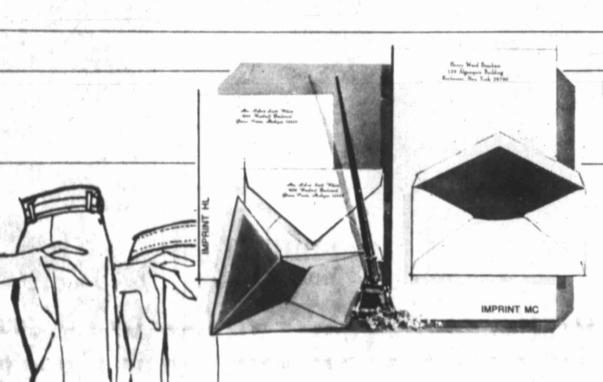

Around the clock, members of Pearson's staff monitor the country's severe weather from an open room furnished with drafting tables, closed circuit television and dozens of charts. Their calculations are based on satellite reports, upper-air profiles, radar information, pilot reports, weather data from reporting stations nationwide and a network of thousands of parttime weather spotters.

For a quarter of a century, the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration has based the country's severe storms office in Kansas City because, in Pearson's words, 'It's close to the action."

Most tornadoes in the United States occur in "Tornado Alley," which extends from Texas through eastern Kansas, then southeast through the South, More tornadoes per square mile are reported in Oklahoma than any other state.

But the most devastating twisters occur in "Dixie Alley." which runs from Texas across the South. In Alabama, the average length of a tornado's path is five miles — more than twice that of Oklahoma.

And tornadoes in the South tend to be stronger than telsewhere because of the high humidity. Savings

Crisis for women: how to face it, resolve it

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Crisis-how to recognize and how to deal with it dominated the conversation in two workshops, the first on Divorce and Single Living, and the next on Passages, Stages in Women's Crisis is defined as anything that can create a period of unequal equilibrium in a person's life, according to Robert B. Evans of Family Services of Midland who led the first workshop.

The four phases in a crisis are initial shock, disorganization, reorganization and putting it all back together. In all crises, such as divorce, there is a certain amount of mourning a person must go through, Evans told the women.

The person experiences shock, and this sometimes can be a denial time. They hang on with a trial separation, not wanting to accept the inevitable. Evans said.

People go through depression and feel they are not going to make it out. "There is a complete sense of nothingness," Evans said. "But, relief also. It's something they know for sure and can deal with. Dealing with the unknown is much harder than dealing with what you know."

A divorced woman also feels a period of anger. It comes internally "from feeling like being left behind." Evans explained. But, experiencing anger is better than not at all, he said. Some women just leave everything in the marriage behind, whereas an angry woman will try to get at least part of what she deserves in a divorce.

There finally will come a day when the woman begins to accept the divorce and start looking ahead, he said. This is the period of recon-

Three resolutions offered for dealing with the divorce is to deal with feelings and talk about them; do' some intellectual thinking about the whole thing, and to use environmental and situational support systems, such as close friends and family. A film showing various vignettes depicting situations possibly facing the women in the audience expressed their feelings on the topics.

For example, one scene showed two women trying to choose a new PTA president. After they had agreed upon one woman, one of the two in the film remarked this woman was in the process of getting a divorce and therefore, would not make a good choice. Her reasoning was that the woman would not appear to have a stable family life.

The audience's response to this is that the double standard in a divorce is very evident today, and especially in Midland. A divorced man is called a bachelor and is still respected by his friends and colleagues. On the other hand, a divorced woman is looked upon as a stigma.

One woman in the workshop who said she recently has been divorced, said her husband is still president of his clubs and his co-workers think nothing of his situation while "I feel almost like a stigma," she said.

One woman questioned how to tell her ex-husband "no" when it came to his taking the children and wanting her to go along on visits. Another one asked how to deal with the ex-husband when he lives nearby and is closely involved with her children. Evans' reply is to have no relationship with the ex-spouse except on business.

Children get caught in the middle in divorce and have to learn how to deal with each parent, the film showed. Women in the workshop questioned how to get the husband to pay the child support. Evans said the only punishment for the husband in Texas is to have him sent to jail for 10

"But," said one woman, "what judge in this town is going to send a professional man to jail?"

Evans reasoned that if the woman is not going to get the payments from the ex-husband, she might as well make him sit in jail 10 days.

Looking at the past, present and future and dividing a person's life into various stages was brought out by Susan Edwards of the Human Relations Council in the second workshop.

Various stages in life involve changes in a sense of self to others, a change in the safeness of a situation to damage, a change in perception of time and a change n aliveness vs. stagnation.

Dr. Sam Kalill, far left, leads the Worry Clinic participants in "Self-Relaxation Techniques" during a luncheon break in the day-long seminar.

The event was sponsored by the Junior League of Midland, Inc. and Family Services of Midland. (Staff Photo)

A crisis in someone's life does not have to be negative, but can be made to be positive. Mrs. Edwards said. How to make it positive, she asked the audience. They suggested knowing that it is coming and sharing it.

A major change in a woman's life comes at the age of 18 when she graduates from high school, and must decide whether to go to college, go directly to work or get married and start having children. Each decision will affect them the rest of their life, Mrs. Edwards said.

If the girl goes to college, when she graduates, she is "very idealistic, very hopeful. Her whole life is ahead

A woman who gets marred at 18 and starts having children can sometimes face a crisis at the age of 24. "If you have a child and your spouse works at a gas station, do you still have the same optimistic outlook as someone who is out of college and starting on a

Another crisis can come about the age of 30 when the wife realizes that she and her husband possibly are not going in the same direction, but apart. 'You have to watch that you and your spouse grow together," Edwards ad-

Several women in the workshop said that about the age of 30 they did start looking outward for new activities, even though many of these were centered around their children. These involve school activities and PTA or Girl Scouts. At this time. though, the husband starts wanting to stay home more, Mrs. Edwards said.

The most difficult time, though, comes in the ages of 35 to 45. This is known as the Deadline Decade. Women have been programmed that when they were over 40 they were 'over the hill", as one woman said.

Now, the 40s is the middle of a woman's life and she still has a lot of living to be done, Mrs. Edwards said. This becomes a period of wanting to become authentic. After the woman resolves this crisis, she then moves into a period of creativeness.

"You can take these stages in your life and make them work for you,' Mrs. Edwards said. "Or, you can just drift. What are you going to do with what you've got?

One woman remarked that she lets her loved ones guide her into what she does. And that brings up a conflict of trying to decide if others are more important to you or if you are more important to yourself.

An older woman closed the workshop by saying that whatever one does with her crisis, she should come through it with dignity.

Worry American way'

By PATSY GORDON

"I worry because it's the American way," said Mrs. Pat Baskin.

Mrs. Baskin was one of more than 70 women attending the Women's Worry Clinic at the First Baptist Church sponsored by the Junior League of Midland and Family Services of Midland.

The clinic was held for women seeking to learn more about themselves and their relationships.

The all-day workshops held discussion on such subjects as assertiveness, debt and finances, dealing with the aging parent, personal development, parenting skills, divorce and living single and passages and stages in women's lives.

Volunteer services in Midland available to women also was discussed.

Mrs. Baskin spoke to the women on "Confessions of a Carefree Worrier." She told the women that they look upon worry as an insurance policy. We worry so the husband will get a promotion. We worry so the kids will do well in school. We worry so we will get thin." We also worry instead of doing, said Mrs. Baskin. "We wonder if the dishes will be done. We wonder if beds will ever get made.'

'We tell the children, 'I worry because I care." 'We know better than to worry, but we go on with this useless habit.' 'Worry," said Mrs. Baskin, " is the interest paid by those who borrow trouble.

She pointed out the philosophy of Erma Bombeck concerning worry. "I'm terrified of life, but I never worry. I know God won't let me worry as long as I buy a first-class ticket."

Iu must worry, said Mrs. Baskin, "leave small stuff behind. Be a gold medal contender. Don't worry about smoking too much. Worry about 'Will Dallas Cowboys be able to draft Earl Campbell and have two Heisman Trophy winners on the team' or 'Will Birthrate drop causes kindergarten plunge solar energy homes be over- Birthrate drop causes kindergarten plunge

"It is not the experiences of today that drives men and women mad but remorse of yesterday," said the

There are two days Mrs. Baskin never worries. These are "yesterday and tomorrow." On these days she is 'free of apprehension and fear."

Today, she said, is the only day you have to worry about.

kindergartens dropped last year for the first time since the government began keeping records 30 years ago, the Census Bureau says in a report being issued Friday.

The sharp plunge reflects the nation's declining birthrate, and will continue for three more years. The number of births has stabilized in the last several years and this leads to a level kindergarten population in the early 1980s.

Unless the birth rate takes an unexpected and sudden upward turn, children entering kindergarten this year and in coming years will move easily through school cooridors that once were jammed with the products

"We're going to do more for people who might otherwise be dropping out," said Graybeal. With fewer students, schools will be able to expand remedial programs, vocational and technical education.

A shrinking student body, however, will not provide relief for taxpayers. Declining enrollments are not suffi-cient to offset the added costs of nor-mal inflation in school budgets, according to Graybeal.

as enrollments decline, noted Denis Doyle, chief of the school finance division at the National Institute of Education

"For 25 years, public policy-makers have been told, 'More kids cost more money.' Now they're asking, 'Why don't fewer kids cost less money?" he said.

One reason, Doyle said, is that laidoff teachers or new teachers usually are younger, less-experienced, lowlaid employees. Teachers who remain in the system have seniority and higher salaries. Communities thus have a core of high-paid teachers and, therefore, rising school budgets. Job opportunities for the kindergarten pupils will be promising when they enter the work force near the end of the century. "We'll be heading into a period of relative labor shortage," said Richard Landry, administrative director of the economic policy division at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Promotions should come faster. 'There will be a very great shortage of middle-aged management," Landry said. Hours will be more flexible as industry seeks to keep older workers on the job or to lure them back to parttime employment.

With a shortage of young employees, companies will need to keep more mature employees in the labor force. "One way to induce them is to provide more flexible work schedule," saidLandry. Unemployment among young peo-ple should decline. Although the economy has grown substantially in recent years, the number of new jobs generated has not been able to absorb the hordes of new workers.

The jobless rate among people 18 to 24 with a college degree jumped from 2.2 percent in 1968 to 6.4 percent in 1976 as large numbers of workers from the baby-boom years entered the work force. With fewer workers in the market, the rate will drop.

The mix of consumer goods will change to match the sociological shifts. "Supermarkets will have less and less room taken up on the shelves by baby food and more by pet food." Mattel Inc. became the world's largest toymaker by offering popular products for the 5 to 12 age group. The company is now shifting emphasis, expanding its efforts directed at older and younger toy users. Last year, Mattel began selling electronic hand-held games with con-ball. This year, Mattel is introducing a new line of infant toys. "We do recognize the number of consumers is not expanding much, if at all," said Joel Rubenstein, director for marketing and public relations at the Mattel Toy Co. division of Mattel

Strategy, therefore, aims at expanding Mattel's share of the toy market, shrinking market population have overcome the problem by selling more of the product to each customer. THE LONELY LADY OF SAN CLEMENTE: Part XII

Unlike some predecessors, Nixon no swinger

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following excerpt is adapted from the book, "The Lonely Lady of San Clemente: The Story of Pat Nixon," (c) 1978 by Lester David. Reprinted by permission of Thomas Y. Crowell Co. The full-length book will be published by Crowell in late summer.

By LESTER DAVID

When it came to sex, Richard Nixon was unlike many of his predecessors in office and, indeed, much of the Washington establishment. Whatever historians may eventually conclude about him, one can say with considerable assurance that the 37th president was no swinger.

The Washington sex scandals of the mid-'70s caused a lot of skeletons to come tumbling out of capital closets. Legislators whose name were household words were, the country discovered, having pillow-talks with fancy ladies or Washington groupies in all sorts of places, not excluding the Capitol Building itself. And sometimes before lunch.

The funny part of all this was that it had been going on all along, but the Washington press corps, the insiders, and certainly the principals themselves weren't talking about it in print or on the air. It was not that congressmen are an especially horny lot; it was just that women have always been plentiful in Washington and legislators are important people. Henry Kissinger said it all: "Power is the ultimate aphrodisiac."

Presidents, certainly the most powerful people in the country, have often recognized and made use of Henry Kissinger's great principle.

John F. Kennedy, as we now know, was indefatigable. As president he would have liasons in the White House and in hotels in New York, Palm Beach, Chicago, Los Angeles. A staff aide would get in touch with the lady he chose, often an important film

Once Kennedy tried to seduce a young woman reporter on their third meeting. She refused and asked him: "Do you do this to all the women you meet?" He answered: "My God, no, I don't have the strength."

Lyndon Johnson was a toucher, a kisser and an outrageous flirt. He would sit on the deck of the Sequoia between two attractive women. holding each of their hands as he watched the TV news; he would stroke the hand of a pretty woman who sat beside him in the basement theater in the White House as a movie unrolled. He would dance at White House receptions, his body glued to his partner's; the prettier and more youthful she was, the closer he stuck. Barbara Howard, who worked in the 1964 campaign and came to know the Johsons well, wrote in her memoirs of those ...while I am not suggesting that the 36th president of the United States was a dirty old man, I would not bet rent money that he was was

Warren G. Harding's sex life was notorious. He had an illegitimate daughter who was conceived, as her mother, Nan Britton, recounted the story, in the Senate Office Building while Hardin was senator. Later, after his election to the presidency. they made love, Nan said, in a White

Franklin D. Roosevelt's affair with Lucy Mercer Rutherford and possibly another with Missy Le Hand, his secretary, have been duly recorded by his son Elliott. Eisenhower's alleged wartime romance with his driver, Kay Summersby, has most recently been described by the lady herself in a posthumously published book

And Nixon? There were some ugly rumors about him and his close friend Bebe Rebozo, none of which have been shown to have the least basis of truth and are noted here only for the fact that the White House itself buzzed with them

Nixon and Rebozo spent much time together at Camp David and key Biscayne. The basis of the thing seems to be Nixon's urgent need for a confi-dant, someone he could talk to. That he chose Bebe Rebozo and not his wife may be significant in terms of his relationship with Pat, but allegations that the Rebozo friendship went any farther may be placed in the same category as the "sex box" story.
On this occasion the gossip had to do with a curious kind of contraption Bob Abplanalp, Nixon's other pal, had at his Key Biscayne estate and which Nixon, Rebozo and he would use for sexual revivication. One close friend went down to the Abplanalp-home. dubious about the story but wondering. The "sex box" turned out to be a hot whirlpool bath, the same kind that millions of others relax in at health clubs around the country.

What, then, can be said about Nixon's sexualty?

For seven years, before he met Pat, Nixon once went steady with Ola-Florence Welch, the vivacious darkhaired daughter of Whittier's police chief. Everyone expected them to get married. "It was a foregone conclusion," says Richard Thomson, a Whittier '34 classmate of them both. But Ola-Florence Welch jilted Richard Nixon for the handsome manager of the campus store.

In 1977 I talked with her at her home in Sidonia, Ariz: Looking back, she is not certain why she found Nixon so adds: "I am not counting out sex appeal, which, as a subject, believe me, we didn't discuss in those days."

The end of their romance was a "general drifting apart," she said. Had he been badly affected by the break-up? "I really don't know." A pause. "Who knows about him?"

Taking the bit in my teeth, I asked her if Richard Nixon had been sexually aggressive as a young man. "It was an entirely different time." she said.

"Well," I asked. "was Nixon a perfectly formal young man?"

"I would say so," she answered. Though in college Nixon had little time for dates, another classmate, Wood Glover Jr., now retired in San Clemente, says he "definitely had an eye for the girls." At law school, still too poor and too busy to have many dates. Nixon eyed them even more closely and spoke appreciatively about their attributes.

Once, soon after he was married, he and his friend Jack Drown took their wives to a Los Angeles cabaret. At their front-row tables the two men were given a fistful of guady garters and told to aim them at the legs of the girls dancing and high-kicking right above them. Richard rose happily to the challenge, aiming carefully and scoring a ringer. So did Drown, and each won a bottle of champagne.

But if sex and girls' legs held in-terest for Richard Nixon as a younger man, did the passions wane as the young man grew older?

Friends say no. One visitor to San Clemente told me: "The old man was furious about the stuff in 'The Final Days' about their sex lives." (Woodward and Berstein had written that Pat had rejected his advances since 1962.)

Still, on the basis of his excessive coldness in public and the observations of many who were close to him. one may speculate that Nixon's power drive claimed still another victim, his own sexual impulses.

Casebooks of psychiatrists and marriage counselors are filled with complaints of the wives (or husbands)

"fascinating and interesting." but she of men (or women) who have immersadds: "I am not counting out sex aped themselves in work and had little time, energy or interest for the marriage bed.

Writing in the British publication The Listener, Elaine Morgan says: "We can be pretty certain that there is now, as there always has been, a minority of men who find that after a brief flareup in adolescence, the interest in sexual activity becomes rapidly less obsessive... They usually retain a keen interest in sex as a spectator sport, in the sense that they will eagerly turn to...the tabloids to look at the nude, but if they were given a choice between a night of love and tickets to the cup final, it would have to be Raquel Welch to make it anything of a contest, and even then they would ask her for time off the view the Match of the Day."

While nobody has ever claimed that Nixon peeped at Playboy or Penthouse, the description otherwise appears to be an accurate fit. In his public years, he exhibited an avid interest in sports, especially football: he knew the names of the players, the standings of the teams, and was a TV quarterback in good standing as he commented on the braininess, or lack of it, of the coaches. But a keen interest in sex was either one of the many secrets of this very secretive president, or it did not exist.

There were jokes even in the Nixon White House about his relationship with Pat. One stale quip, revived from time to time, went: "They must have done it twice." Before the resignation. rumors flew around the mansion that the president was having an affair with an attractive Far Eastern woman. Gossip about it even seeped into the newspapers. The press corps was startled, disbelieving and highly amused. One correspondent grinned when he heard it and shouted: "halevai," a Yiddish word meaning "I wish it were so." He told me: "That would have been the best thing that ever happened. It would have humanized the guy. But it wasn't true. Nixon? An affair? No way.'

Disapproval of plan could cost customers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A top negotiator for Coastal States Gas Corp. says much higher natural gas prices and supply shortages will result if the railroad commission does not approve a proposed settlement of Coastal-LoVaca Gathering Co.'s gas

A hearing before examiner Tom Hill of the commission went into the fifth day today.

Major customers of LoVaca, a Coastal subsidiary, are asking the commission to approve the proposed settlement of $1.6 billion in customer suits against Coastal-LoVaca.

Opposition has surfaced, however, from several customers including those who get their gas from Lone Star Gas Co., which buys from LoVaca.

Bernard Schrader was asked Thursday if the commission refused to affirm the settlement "will consumers still have a supply of gas at reasonable prices?"

"It's my opinion," Schrader replied, "they would not have as adequate supply as under the settlement plan, or anywhere near approaching the prices - they would be

Cross-examination of accountant Palmer Moe revealed that apparently only a few major customers would benefit economically from the settlement.

One benefit, Moe testified, would be the write-off of $22,794,000 in LoVaca claims against seven customers. LoVaca, for example, says the City Public Service Board of San Antonio owes the company $8,295,000 and

Bullishness ruling offshore exploration

HOUSTON (AP) - Bullishness continues to rule onshore oil and gas drilling operations.

That is the report from Ed McGhee, executive vice president of the International Association of Drilling Con-

'More rigs were active in the United States in January through March than in any first quarter since 1957,' McGhee said

'The count promises to rise even higher as weather improves and equipment can once again reach locations inaccesible during winter."

He said bad weather did idle some crews from December through mid-

"The number may have been as high as 100 " he said "For the next several months, only rig supply seems likely to limit activity.

The industry had an average of 2,196 rotary drilling rigs in use the week ending last Monday, the highest weekly average since late 1959. Last year's high of 2,168 was recorded the week ending Dec. 19.

McGhee said the high rig employment still is being reflected by orders for additional units.

'Manufacturers report even though they are turning out rigs at record rates, their backlogs of orders continue to grow," he said.

"One newer manufacturer has even suspended advertising and sales promotion activity while it scrambles to assimilate the expansion of payroll and facilities made necessary by orders already on books.'

McGhee said inventories of virtually all expendables and repair parts are running abnormally low.

'However, no critical shortages of equipment have been reported," he

He added, however, at least one other type of shortage has been spotlighted by the frantic pace of work. 'There doesn't seem to be enough experienced operations managers to go around," McGhee said. 'Salaries for top men have doubled in the last couple of years."

He said one contracting firm operating in excess of 20 rigs is typical of the situation.

"Its slot of vice president-opera-tions was recently vacated and the firm's president offered the post to a qualified man employed by another contractor," McGhee said.

'The candidate turned down an an-

Group files pilot suit

HOUSTON (AP) - The West Gulf Maritime Association has filed suit in state district court against the pilots who guide ships in and out of the Houston Ship Channel contending they engaged in "an unlawful conspiracy and constraint of trade" in their attempt to shut down the Port of Houston last January.

WMGA president Wiley George said the suit, which seeks more than $62,000 in damages, was filed in response to the pilots' two-day sickout in January. The pilots reacted when the Houston Pilot Commission put off action on a requested pilot rate increase.

Neither spokesmen for the pilots nor the Port Authority Commission which sits as the pilot commission were available for comment.

The suit seeks to nullify eventual rate hikes approved by the com-mission, claiming they were granted under duress and the threat of future work stoppages.

The suit also asks the court for a temporary and permanent injunction to stop the pilots from staging further stoppages.

The customers include Austin, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and others who worked with Moe in negotiating the settlement.

Texans attempt to land federal alcohol project

By SUSAN STOLER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas farmers and state officials pooled efforts Thursday on how to land a $15 million federal research project to develop alcohol from agricultural products.

Four such projects have been authorized by the U.S. Department of Agriculture under a research program designed to expand markets for agricultural commodities and increase the nation's supply of industrial hydrocarbons.

"We identified three interested groups that want to participate in a project and we will put in a pre-proposal by April 15," said Milton Holloway, director of the Texas Energy Advisory Council.

Holloway met with representatives of grain sorghum, corn, wheat and sugar farmers to discuss the feasibility of such a project. The three groups most interested in a pilot plant are Amstar Inc., the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers and Dimmitt Agri-Industries.

'In 1935, 50 percent of U.S. industrial alcohol was produced from natural carbohydrates," Speaker Bill Clayton told the group. "Now, 90 percent of alchohol comes from ethylene. It's been done, and now the largest potential market for alcohol is as an additive to gasoline."

A report from the advisory council says two types of alcohol, methanol and ethanol, could be produced by either fermenting crops or by thermal

"Ethanol, when mixed 10 percent by volume with gasoline does not appear to decrease gas mileage, but actually raises the gasoline octane rating 3 to 5 points while not harming the operation of catalytic converters," the study said.

By-products of alcohol production include carbon dioxide and grain

In order to qualify for the federal project, the pilot plant must put out more in total energy and products than it uses in fossil fuels. In addition,

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices gained more ground today as traders looked ahead to President Carter's inflation message next week.

The noon Dow Jones average of 36 industrials was up 1.99 at 765.94, on top of a 12.91-point rise over the past three days. Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said traders continued to look ahead hopefully to President Carter's scheduled speech next Tuesday on inflation and other economic problems. The President has promised to propose a new plan designed to combat the recent acceleration in the inflation rate. Otherwise, the news background was mixed. The government reported this morning that the unemployment rate rose from 6.1 to 6.2 percent in March, interrupting a steady decline from the 7 percent level that began last September. On the positive side, the Federal Reserve's weekly report issued late Thursday showed a smaller-thanexpected $600 million rise in the basic measure of the money supply. Brokers said the data tended to relieve some of investors' recent fears of an impending move by the Fed to tighten credit in its efforts to curb inflation. Airco jumped 5% to 49. The company accepted a sweetened $50-a-share takeover offer from BOC

International Ltd. of London, ending a battle among the two companies and Martin Marietta. The NYSE's composite index rose .09 to 50.28, and the American Stock Exchange market value index climbed .54 to 131.39, once again reaching a 41/2-year high. Volume on the Big Board dropped off to 10.47 million shares as of noontime from 12.98 million at the same point Thursday.

"I'm running scared," Justice T. C. Chadick, who is seeking election to a two-year unexpired term on the Texas Supreme Court, said Friday while campaigning in Midland.

Pointing out that his name is not a household word. Chadick said even though he has been endorsed by the State Bar Poll by about a 2-to-1 margin over his opponent, Robert Campbell, he still could lose the race, judging by what has happened in the past.

He said Former Justice Don Yarbrough was elected to the high court despite the support his opponent received from the State Bar Poll and the newspapers. Yarbrough later resigned his post July 15 in the opening minutes of legislative proceedings to remove him from office. He was convicted of aggravated perjury and sentenced March 30 to two to five years in prison.

Chadick said Yarbrough's case "illustrates that in obscure races, as most judicial races are, people are not aware of (candidates') qualifications." He said he's been on the road this past month on a statewide campaign to acquaint people with his qualifications. Chadick said it is necessary to have a system of accountability for justices to prevent something like the Yarbrough incident from happening again. He said currently justice candidates are screened by a judicial qualifications commission, but he said this system of accountability "is cumbersome and infrequently used." The Supreme Court, he said, "is important to all people more than many of them realize." He said it deals with taxes, schools, utilities regulation, production of oil and gas and environmental questions

Although the high court only handles civil suits, Chadick said often these suits affect the public more than the parties involved in the suit.

Unlike the state Criminal Court of Appeals and the lower courts, he said the Supreme Court has "no great problem with congestion" of the court docket. However, he said the spiraling amounts of damages sought by one party when suing another are of 'serious concern.'

He attributed this increase to "people being more concerned with living standards" and juries becoming "more sympathetic" to their allegations. He said there is "no real good" solution to this problem in sight.

He noted that lower courts have the authority to set aside judgments thought to be excessive. The Supreme Court, he said, only deals with law ques-

Chadick declined to say whether he thought damages sought in civil suits were excessive. He said, although a problem seems to exist, each suit needs to be considered separately to determine whether damages are too high.

Possessing more than 30 years experience on the bench, Chadick was appointed to the high court last October to succeed Tom Reavley, who resigned to enter private practice. Chadick is running for Place 4 on the court in the May 6 Democratic primary.

Before coming to the Supreme Court, he served 20 years on the Sixth Court of Civil Appeals at Texarkana. He also served in the Texas Senate from the Tyler District and as District Judge and prosecuting attorney in northeast Texas.

During his career, Chadick has rendered more than 700 appellate decisions. He was a member of the Texas Judicial Council 18 years, held the chairmanship three years and has been active in other organizations for the improvement of jurisprudence in the state. In 1974-75, he served as an ex-officio commissioner on the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Leaking chemical forces evacuation

SOMERVILLE, Texas (AP) - Authorities evacuated an area three miles east of the scene of a train derailment near this South Central Texas town today after one of the derailed cars containing; propylaldehyde began to leak. Santa Fe Railroad officials could not specifically describe the substance, but said it is a "hazardous" material and that an explosives expert was dispatched to the scene. The derailment involved 27 cars of a 45-car freight.

eight of which overturned, including the one leaking the propylaldehyde. Burleson County Sheriff Alfred Wilhelm blocked highways in the area and firefighters kept a constant spray of water on the dangerous car. A Santa Fe official in Dallas said two cars of hazardous material were involved in the derailment. An overturned car carrying xylene was not leaking. The train was headed for Somerville from Silsbee in Southeast Texas.

No injuries were reported. Railroad officials said cause of the derailment was being investigated.

Chaparral drops Abilene service

AUSTIN - Chaparral Airlines has suspended service from Midland Regional Air Terminal to Abilene with the approval of the Texas Aeronautics Commission, according to Joan Whitworth, administrator of the carrier regulation division. She said today that no challenges from interested parties had been received during the 15 days allowed by law for such challenges after a tentative suspension has been approved. The two-year suspension order will become final when the commission meets on May 15. she said. The tentative suspension order indicated

Chaparral had not been meeting direct operational costs for the route. It further indicated that an average of 6.5 passengers per flight, the number required to meet operating costs, is not at-

Man arrested in laundry

A 19-year-old Midland man has been arrested in a reported early morning burglary of a laundry and dry cleaning establishment.

Police said they were called to the business in the 3100 block of North Big Spring street at 3:37 a.m. today. On arrival, officers said, they found a man wandering through the laundromat.

A door between the laundry and dry cleaning sections of the building was found unlocked, and clothes in dry cleaning bags were found lying on a counter, police said.

Market unhappy over U.S. dollar

The Common Market summit is being overshadowed by unhappiness over President Carter's policy on the falling dollar and deliveries of nuclear fuel to Europe.

"It is part of the world problem which calls for more stable currensaid Danish Prime Minister Anker Joergensen, chairman of the meeting, which opens today and ends Saturday. Attending are the heads of state or heads of government of Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, Denmark, Ireland, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The fate of the dollar is tied to the main problem facing the nine Common Market countries: how to find lobs for 6.5 million unemployed, a third of them under the age of 25. If the dollar continues at its present low,

This is because a cheap dollar makes American goods more attractive and takes business away from Europeans, who depend much more heavily on exports than the United States does.

Joergensen told reporters the Common Market leaders would discuss the possibility of bringing West European currencies closer together. A unified European currency could be a rival to the dollar in world trade. There would be no immediate effect on business and employment in Europe since no immediate action is expected.

But a stable West European currency, embracing the major countries in the area, would give business some of the confidence it needs to build more plants, buy more machinery and thus get more Europeans back to work.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) Gov. Hugh Carey says to GARAGE SALES AND HOUSEHOLD GOODS that New York state asportings goods grape juice is available MANTIQUES AND ART for sale in the cafeterias of the state office com-

The governor is acting For Fast Results, after Assemblyman Rolland Kidder, who represents a grape-growing district, complained that he has even 'had to settle for Florida orange juice" in state cafeterias.

"Since New York State doesn't raise oranges or pineapples, but does raise grapes I thought it would be appropriate for the state of New York to offer grape juice in the cafeterias," wrote World headquarters of the Welch grape juice company is in his district.

In his reply, Carey said thirsty souls should take some consolation in the fact that "stronger New York State grape juice" is available in one cafeteria.

He referred to a new policy, criticized by some legislators, which makes wine and beer available in one state cafeteria.

Schlee grabs one-stroke Masters lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The string of four birdies that gave John Schlee to a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the Masters golf tournament started with a rope.

Schlee will need more than a rope to hold back the challengers that are within four strokes of him. The second round gets underway today at the sunsoaked windblown Augusta National Golf Club

Schlee, a 38-year-old Texan who left the tour for a country club job last year, fired a 68 Thursday. But the big names, many of them grumbling about putting problems, were close

AT 69 was Joe Inman, who, feeling weak because he forgot to bring his seeds and nuts, bogied the 17th hole to fall out of a tie for first. At 70 were Lee Trevino, who is experimenting with a hook for this tournament, and Bill Kratzert. Tom Kite, who tied for third here last year, was at 71 along with Jerry McGee and Steve Melnyk.

But many of the most dangerous shot-makers in the 80- man field were at even par. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Gary Player, Hubert Green and Jerry Pate were among the 12 players at 72. And at 1 over par were defending champion Tom Watson, four-time Masters champion Arnold Palmer and Hale Irwin.

The lead belonged to Schlee, though, and it started on the dangerous 12th hole. Many players consider the par-33, 155-yard hole over water is considered the most difficult on the course. Thirty-five scores of bogey or worse were recorded Thursday, including an eight by Danny Edwards. Eight players birdied it, including Schlee.

And he had to use a rope "The card says 155 but I've hit the wrong club so many times that I decided to find out how far the doggone thing was for sure," Schlee said So last year before the Masters I took a gallery rope and stretched it from the ball washer to the rightmiddle of the green.

'It is 155 yards, which is what they tell you, but doing it myself made me feel a lot more confident."

THAT CONFIDENCE plus a strong 7-iron put him 12 feet from the hole. He sank that putt, then scored a birdie by two-putting the par-5 13th and drained a 12-footer on 14 and a sixfooter on 15.

The brash, self-proclaimed disciple of Ben Hogan might have added a birdie at 17 but he made the mistake of listening to his caddy.

"I had a 12-foot putt and I heard from my caddy for the first time all day," Schlee recalled. "He said it was straight. It broke right and I told him to go back to what he's been doing for three years - being quiet.

Schlee, who says he's "a heckuva putter" and hits "a little longer than your average bear," has had his erratic career interrupted three times

HE WAS the tour's Rookie of the Year in 1966, then missed the top 60 money-winning list until 1971. He won the Hawaiian Open in 1973, but was forced off the tour by a back operation in 1975 and a knee operation in 1976.

He tied for eighth at the Masters last year, but hurt his thumb and left the tour last summer to become golf director at a club in Brownesville, Texas. An adjustment in his swing. suggested by fellow pro Mike Morley. cured his tumb and he played in a few tournaments to tune up for Augusta.

"EVERY PRACTICE shot I hit, I was going around Augusta in my mind. When I got here, it was no surprise to see the holes."

Track closed next week

The Memorial Stadium track will be closed to the public all next week, it was announced by Midland Schools Athletic Director Sam Cox today,

"With the District 5-4A track meet coming up Friday night, we will be sprinkling the track down three times a day in an effort to get it in top shape," Cox said

"If people run on it while it is wet, that means the stadium crew must rewater it and rake out the footprints.'

Cox said the track will be available this weekend, but the stadium will be locked the rest of the week.

Hayes arrested on drug charge

DALLAS (AP) — A national youth athletic program has severed its association with Bob Hayes following his arrest on drug charges.

Inursuay on drug-related offenses.

Hayes, 35, a vice president of Dycon International, Inc., was charged with delivering cocaine and quasiudes to undercover officers. Adier, co-owner of the firm, was charged with delivery of cocaine.

Mitch Head, a spokesman for Hershey Foods Corporation in Pennsylvania, called Hayes' arrest unfortunate.

"Due to this incident, however, we do not feel that it is appropriate that he continue his association with our national track and field youth program." he said.

Hayes was released on $30,000 bond and Adler on $15,000 bond. Officers said the arrests followed three months of undercover investigations.

As he left the jail Thursday, Hayes called the incident "a mistake."

"I never dealt with it. I've never dealt in cocaine. I don't know what they found in my apartment." he added.

With his voice quivering, Hayes said, "I'll have have a statement to make in the future, not today.

Hayes won two gold medals at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics and his 400-meter relay record still stands.

Trevino has claimed for years that the Augusta National Golf Club course wasn't suited to his game. It took a decade, but he finally elected to make his game fit the course and elebrated with an opening round 70 Thursday, two shots off the lead.

Lee's Steve Hooper also had a good week, winning both the mile run and two-mile run. His times were not that good, but no one expected them to be after running in those two events.

THE MILE should be another duel between San Angelo's Lon Albert and Midland's Jeff Adkins. Adkins had a 4:30-plus mile at the windy El Paso meet. but could be back in form for another duel with Albert. Adkins has lost only once to Adkins this year, and if either falter, Hooper may be there to step in.

It will also be the last warmup meeting in the 880 between defending 5-4A champ Ed Bruning of San Angelo and Midland High's Chuck Stump. Stump has never defeated Bruning. Lee's Arthur Pertile. who has a 2:01.5 this year, needs to get in the 1:57.0 range to challenge those two.

Youngster sets AAU swim mark

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Prerequisites for setting American records at the Amateur Athletic Union Short Course Swimming Championships do not include being a junior high student and giggling a lot.

It just appears that way. After two days of competition, eight American records have fallen in the women's division alone and the oldest record setter is 18-year-old Linda Jezek of Santa Clara, Calif., Swim Club.

Tracy Caulkins, a 15-year-old schoolgirl swimming for the Nashville, Tenn., Aquatic Club, led the pack once again Thursday, knocking almost five seconds off her own American record with a 4:11.38 clocking in the 400-yard individual medley.

Later in the evening and joined teammates Joan Pennington, her sister Amy and Karinne Miller to set an American record in the 400-yard medley relay in 3:42.54.

The quartet reported for press interviews looking more like a carefree group headed for a weekend slumber party. But in fact, sleep has been the last thing on their minds.

"I don't know where it's going to stop," Caulkins giggled, when asked about the constant assault on the women's record book. "I guess we're doing better because of better training methods. We just have a positive attitude."

Stephanie Elkins of the Amberjax, Jacksonville, Fla., joined the midteen record derby with a 1:45.91

clocking in the 200-yard freestyle. "All my friends were setting records and I'd never had one," the 14-year-old Elkins said.
