Unwritten code unlocked cells in trilateral spy swap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Glenn Thompson, key to the latest East-West spy swap, knows now it's true that his kind are not left to rot in prison.

In spy-filled Germany, intelligence egents say privately that a promise to be taken care of is part of the contract. Both sides, the agents say, try to honor the code.

In Thompson's case the catalyst was Israel's eagerness to have a young, injured pilot freed from communist Mozambique.

Thompson's freedom was demanded by the other side as the price for the return of 24-year-old Miron Marcus. Thompson has been in a U.S. prison for the last 13 years after his conviction as a Russian spy.

East Germany, of all the communist bloc countries in Eastern Europe, has perhaps the greatest influence on the regime that succeeded Portuguese rule in Mozambique. From the start, East Germany recognized and supported rebel forces there. Enter Wolfgang Vogel, the East German attorney and master dealer in prisoners and spies.

The Israelis approached Vogel directly, asking what could be done. According to a source, who asked not to be identified. Vogel said Marcus would be freed, but that Thompson must be part of the bar-

The source said the American government did not object but wondered what it would get in return. It was then, the source said, that Vogel sweetened the pot with 23-year-old

Alan Van Norman of Windom, Minn., who was serving a 30-month prison term in East Germany.

Van Norman was arrested last August while trying to smuggle an East German family to the West. He was released through the Berlin wall on Monday, just after Thompson, accompanied by Vogel, crossed the barrier back to obscurity in East Berlin.

Thompson had been released 24 hours earlier from the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., where he had served 13 years of a 30-year sen-

Marcus had been released a week before that.

Thompson, as he walked out of Lewisburg, acknowledged that he is a Soviet agent and that the name

Soviet agent and that the name "Thompson" was part of his cover. He indicated he was born in what is now East Germany, not in Detroit as was previously believed.

As he left for East Germany, or the Russia he admits trained and employed him, the one-time U. S. Air Force clerk said he will retire.

He had the bad luck to get caught but said he accepted that risk as part of his job. In getting him freed, his Russian employers showed he had not been forgotten.

Vogel has been involved in this kind of swap since he helped arrange the 1962 Berlin exchange of downed American U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers. The Soviets got master spy Rudolf Abel in return.

But this latest deal was the first to span three continents and involve four countries.

Middle East plane sale prospects good

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee set the stage Monday for action on President Carter's Middle East warplane sales package in a deeply divided Congress where the administration showed strong prospects of prevailing

The committee scheduled hearings on the plan to sell advanced military aircraft to Egypt, Israel and Saudi Arabia after making a pro forma request to the president to withdraw his proposal for 30 to 90 days so a Senate subcommittee could travel to the Middle East for an on-the spot investigation.

The requested delay, made largely to please Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., the Committee's chairman, appeared unlikely to win presidential acquiescence.

Informed sources in the administration and in Congress said Morda, that-opponents of the proposed plane sales—led by the pro-Israeli lobby do not have sufficient votes in the House and Senate to block the transactions, though they said the mood could change before a final vote.

Sen. William Proxmire, D Wis. has introduced resolutions of disapproval to kill the warplane sales to all three countries, and under the complex Arms Sales Act. the Foreign Relations Committee must act on these requests within 10 days. The House and Senate have 30 days from last Friday to vote on resolutions of disapproval that could block one or more of the sales, if carried by both houses.

Senate leaders are convinced that a majority would vote against any resolution of disapproval, even if one is approved by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Administration head-counts have made the same calculation. The administration also thinks the House could reject a resolution of disapproval, and got a boost on this score Monday when Speaker Thomas P. (Tip.) O'Neall Jr., D-Mass., said he would work for the administration in the coming floor fight.

O'Neill told reporters that on he basis of a briefing he received from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, he now believed the so-called package deal of arms sales was in the best interest of the United States and of peace in the Middle East.

Last week O'Neill said he doubted the administration had the votes to carry the arms sales through Congress, but he did not repeat that prognosis. He did question whether a resultion of disapproval could be blocked in the House committee on International Relations, where opinion is closely divided.

Administration lobbyists and Committee Chairman Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis, believe the panel may reject a resultion of disapproval. The House committee will open its hearing on the sales next week.

Members of Congress still expect Carter to withdraw the proposed sale of planes to Israel if the sale to Saudi Arabia or Egypt is blocked.

Isarel and its supporters here have opposed the sale of 60 F15s to Saudi Arabia as a potential threat to Israel's security and an unnecessary escalation of the Mideast arms race. Israel also has expressed dismay at the idea that a sale of planes to it

When it rains, it hails...

Midlanders were treated to something they seldom see — rain — when a thunderstorm passed through early today, dumping around .7 inch of rain and hail up to half an inch in diameter on the city.

But by noon the dark clouds had cleared away, a severe thunderstorm warning issued by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal had been lifted and the sun shone on the puddles, the only reminder of the passing storm.

Meanwhile, in Crane and Upton counties, a tornado warning was issued following the sighting by Crane police of a small tornado about 20 miles west of Crane in the sandhills.

The Crane sheriff's office reported golf-ball size and marble-size hail falling on the city about 10:15 to 11 a.m. with some rain falling on the town. No damage reports were available.

A 50 percent chance of thunderstorms was in the forecast for Midland through tonight, diminishing to 20 percent Wednesday. Although the weather should remain cloudy and cool tonight, the weatherman said skies are expected to clear somewhat and temperatures become a little warmer Wednesday. The gusty winds predicted for today should decrease to 15 to 20 mph tonight with the low temperature falling to the middle 40s. Wednesday's high temperature is expected only to reach the lower 60s.

At noon today, the weather service

At noon today, the weather service had recorded wind gusts up to 49 mph. The overnight low temperature finally steaded at 47 degrees at 9:30 ra.m. today. Monday's high temperature was 84 degrees.

In Lamesa, 1.75 inches of precipitation had fallen by noon, and the rain still was coming down. In Andrews, a little more than .11 inch of rain was reported. Earlier, both cities were pelted by hail from the storm.

Big Lake had .05 inch of rain early today, while reports from Stanton and Rankin indicated that rainfall was sporadic there. In Big Spring, rainfall was reported as light early in the morning.

It's the thought that counts, and Ann Bradford's thought is to stay dry. But howling winds made water-catchers out of umbrellas during initially scattered and then hard-falling rains which swept through Midland this morning. (Staff Photo by Mike

Mondale reaches Manila

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale arrived in Manila today to begin a five-nation tour demonstrating the Carter administration's commitment to Southeast Asia and to human rights.

"Where there are values and traditions that both our peoples cherish—freedom, individual liberty, human justice, democracy and national independence—I hope my visit can contribute to their greater fulfillment," Mondale told President Ferdinand E. Marcos on his arrival from Honolulu.

Marcos on his arrival from Honoldiu.

Marcos, in his welcoming remarks, referred to irritations between their governments, including lack of progress in negotiating new military and economic treaties and U.S. criticism of human rights violations by the authoritarian Marcos government.

The Philippine president said the disagreements "arise from the adjustments that each of our countries has had to make in this time of ferment and change throughout the world.

"But they are issues that will be resolved in friendly dialogue on the negotiating table, in mutual understanding and mutual respect.... Our two countries know that we have not survived the ordeals of war together only to fail the challenge of peace."

Wreck kills Odessan

ANDREWS—An Odessa man was killed and a Hobbs, N.M., man injured in an accident 17 miles west of here about 7:20 a.m. today, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Dead is Johnnie Frank Nimmons,

47, who the DPS said was driving a car going west on Highway 176. According to DPS reports, a car driven by Eugene Williams, 24, of Hobbs, was going east and went out of control, sliding into the right side of Nimmons' vehicle. Officers said car Williams was driving may have hit a patch of mud that had washed on to the highway.

Williams was in guarded condition at Odessa Medical Center today, according to hospital officials.

Investigating officer was Trooper, Buff Angel of Andrews. at the airport to the music of a brass percussion band. Roxas Boulevard along Manila Bay was festooned with flowers for the passing of the official motorcade, and there were more dancers along the route.

The chief issue between the United States and its former colony is Washington's refusal to meet Philippine terms for renewal of the U.S. leases on the Subic Naval Base and Clark Air Base.

Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romu-

Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo said in a newspaper interview Monday that if the United States "shows the same kind of understanding of the nationalistic aspirations of the Filipino people as it did in the case of the Panama Canal negotiations, an improvement of the climate of our relations is bound to follow."

Romulo also questioned U.S. pledges to defend its allies in Southeast Asia, saying, "in the absence of concrete steps, the apprehensions have hardly been allayed."

Mondale, in his arrival remarks, expressed U.S. suppport for the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. He said the U.S. government looks forward "to intensifying our consultations with ASEAN at all levels of mutual interest."

Marcos recently accused the State Department's human rights specialist, Patricia Derian, of "trying to tell us how to run our government" and charged that opposition leader Benigno S. Aquino Jr. worked for the CIA.

Aquino has been in prison since Marcos declared martial law in 1972, but other leaders of his People's Power Party said they were available to meet with Mondale. The vice president plans to meet with some opponents of Marcos but it was not known yet who they would be.

Depression was good for former butcher

The best years of his working life must have been just about the worst for other folks caught cross-ways in the Depression.

For H. A. "Al" Roberts, the years on either side of 1930 were good to him. Midland was being converted from a "cow town" to a "tank farm"—to keep in storage barrels all of that bountiful "black gold" which cropped up in the Permian Basin back in '23 with the opening of Santa Rita No. 1 at Midland — so Roberts, now 87, remembers — was just a little ol' town of 1,200 hungry people on the plains. And he was there with the main line of food. He was a butcher.

"I sold meat (steaks) for 35 cents a pound," Roberts recalled of those days when plain hamburger meat sold two pounds for a quarter.

He had his own butcher shop for several years. "I did all the killing, and my first wife (Annie) ran the butcher shop. We made a lot of money back then."

He'd buy cattle from Midland ranchers for 10 cents a pound on the hoof, drive out to the ranch in his old Ford car, shoot the critters in the head with his Winchester lever-action rifle, atick 'em, bleed 'em and dress

'em right on the spot. He had a tripod, made up of three two-by-fours, attached to the motorcar to aid in the dressing.

"If I couldn't butcher, I'd go out and work on the ranch," Roberts said.

"We had our own shop, and you didn't do much." He'd buy his slaughtering cattle from the Scharbauers, Cowdens, Holts, Brunsons or other Midland ranchers. "I've knowed all them people for years," he said.

Before he had a market to call his own, Roberts cut meat for John Andrews when he first came to Midland more than 50 years ago from the Carbon community in Eastland Coun-

Union local continues picketing of city sites

Smith denounces heavy spending in campaigns

By KAY HORD

Preston Smith Monday accused Bill Clements, Dolph Briscoe and, to a lesser extent, John Hill, of attempting to buy the primary election Saturday.

"The tremendous amounts being spent in this campaign are a death struggle between the large interests in Texas," he said.

"I think Briscoe and Clements, and even Hill are trying to buy the election. And if the man who has the most money is going to win the race, why don't we just stop campaigning and sell the office to the highest bidder?" Smith asked.

"If you're going to be spending like this, it requires tax money. The people of Texas are overtaxed," he

"Briscoe, especially, with six years of service has a recognizable name. Why is he spending all this money unless he has something to hide? I think he's trying to hide his spending (as fiscal head of Texas)," he Briscoe has spent more (state money) in the last five years than was spent by the governors during the past 22 years, Smith said.

"If Briscoe were elected for another four years, and the spending continued as it has, in 10 years, Briscoe would have spent more than twice as much as all the governors in Texas' 126-year history. Briscoe will have spent $84 billion, compared to some $40 billion spent by the other gover-

Smith said the surplus in the state treasury should be returned to the people in the form of a tax reduction. After that, Smith said, he would favor a 1 percent sales tax, to be approved on a local option, for the county and school districts.

"The only revenue the county and school districts have is a form of taxes on property, and the burden has become too great on the property owners. The 1 percent sales tax, with exemptions for groceries and medicines, will not be a burden on the poor people.

"And I am for taking the sales tax off utility bills," he said.

J. J. Roberts, a butcher in Carbon. Ah, yes, and he remembers well when his "daddy" owned tract after tract of land in that "peanut country" of Central Texas but had nary a title to the mineral rights when oil and gas were discovered in the great Ranger field back in the late 1910s

Those old men didn't know what royalty was (back then)," Roberts said. "We hardly knew what it was in 1926," when the oil boom first struck Midland

More than he worked strictly for himself, Roberts butchered for grove cers. His last job was at the Sundown Market, from whence he retired last

"Well," he said, "I could still work part of the day, I guess. I don't want to, though,

Still, he keeps himself occupied. On Tuesdays, for instance, he hangs around the Southwestern Livestock Auction barns for the weekly sale.

Otherwise, he's out "visiting my friends every morning; I still drive my car." And he stays at home in the evenings with his second wife, Della, who's his junior by 17 years. "I've been married all my life," said Roberts, who was stretching a point. He was wedded to Annie for 29 years until her death in 1941. Now, he and his second missus have been in wedlock for 30 years.

Robert figures he has had a good life on the homefront and in work. "Yeah, I've been a pretty lucky old coon in my life."

"You know, I haven't done very well in the polls. I've conducted some polls, but I've been polling people to see who's been polled. So far I've not found one person who has been scientifically polled. My opponents, however, have been conducting one poll after another: That's why lately I've been calling them fat pollcats.

"But the people are going to go to the polls Saturday, and my opponents may be surprised

"I will predict that if I don't win the primary, you'll see a Republican governor elected," Smith said.

sunset laws call for "an orderly, periodic review of all (state) agencies" every 12 years, he said. These agencies must show there is a "public necessity" for their existence and that they meet this necessity efficiently.

In actuality, Thomas said, agencies will be abolished periodically by the legislature and then recreated after they pass the evaluation process.

In the first step of this process, agencies are asked by the legislature to submit evaluation reports to the Sunset Commission, an eight-member state agency created by the sunset laws to review the reports.

Thomas said the commission then recommends that the agencies be re created, abolished or reorganized.

Following the commission's recommendation, he said, public hearings are scheduled to give laymen a chance to voice their opinions and present evidence. The commission then introduces legislation concerning the agencies into the legislature where it undergoes the usual process prior to passage.

As chairman of the State Bar Sunset Committee, Thomas said, he is responsible for seeing that the evaluation report is prepared and for readying the staff for testifying before legislative committees. He said he has been told that the bar's report is the "finest so far," but, he said, he thinks "the senators and representatives will ask us some mighty pointed questions" concerning some of the bar's operations

Among these question, he said, the legislators probably will question the bar on its facilities, the size of its staff and the benefits it provides to its executive director. Also, he said, they may question the bar's disciplinary process. In 1977 through September, he said, the bar's grievance committee received about 3,500 complaints from persons about state lawyers. Out of all these complaints, only four lawvers had their licenses revoked, 23 had them suspended and 25 were given public or private reprimands.

Another likely area of concern by the legislators may be the absence of laymen serving on the bar and on the grievance committee, Thomas said. He said he opposes any efforts to put laymen on the bar.

In addition, the director said, the legislative Budget Board has asked agencies currently not funded by general appropriations, such as the State Bar, to submit reports on how it would affect their agencies if they were to be included in general appropriations.

He called the possibility of the State Bar coming under general appropriations as "very dangerous." The bar now is funded by membership dues, federal grants and foundations.

In conclusion, Thomas said, "We're going to involve everyone we can to keep the Texas bar substantially as it

During the luncheon, the county bar association also recognized Harrell Feldt, Midland Chamber of Commerce president, as "Outstanding Young Lawyer" of Midland County for this year. Plaques of appreciation were presented to past presidents of the organization. They are Pat Baskin, president from 1974-75; Bob Bledsoe, president from 1975-76, and Vann Culp, president from 1976-77.

State Bar officials today announced that members approved in a referendum a plan to make a one-time 1/4 assessment of the membership to pay for the Bar's new building in Austin. That plan passed by 12,696 to 8,686.

Also at Monday's Law Day event in Midland, bar members honored the late Frank Stubbeman, a prominent Midland attorney, who died last week.

Sheats makes final bid for votes

LANA CUNNINGHAM

Morris Sheats drove his van into Midland one final time before Saturday's primary to campaign "People to People" style, with a stop at the Bicentennial Plaza at noon Monday. Sheats, a Lubbock minister, is running against Kent Hance, a Lubbock attorney, for the Democratic nomination to the 19th Congressional District seat. The post is being vacated by virtue of Rep. George Mahon's having decided not to seek re-election to it after 44 years of service. crowd he has nothing against his opponent, but feels there are too many lawyers in Congress.

that Hance is a "self-professed professional politician. So, far he has run totally on his ability to work with the Texas delegation. I think we need someone to go to Congress and represent the people of West Texas."

Hance is not a communicator, according to Sheats, who criticized Hance's television advertising. "If you will notice his commercials, he does not speak. Someone else speaks for him. Whoever we send to Congress must be able to effectively communicate.'

Sheats outlined what he termed three reasons to vote for him, and these relate to the three crises he sees in the country. Sheats said he is a conservative and will use this thinking in dealing with the economic crisis, he said. "We can not keep spending more than we take in.

Solutions he proposed are zerobased budgeting, sunset legislation and a hard look at changing foreign aid policy. "We are giving too much away. We should be trading commodities," he said.

Sheats described the second crisis as a moral one, and he said his reputation concerning his "good, moral character" is a second reason for voting for him.

The "leadership crisis in the country" demands an effective communicator, said Sheats, adding that he believes he has strength in this area. "It's time we recaptured representative government in this country," he told the crowd. "We lost the Panama Canal even though the people were going 9 to 1 against giving it away. The legislators were not listening to the people they represent.'

When questioned about oil and gas deregulation, Sheats said the country needs deregulation. But, he is asking for phased instead of immediate deregulation because a plan calling for immediate deregulation did not pass Congress. A plan for phased decontrol is in a conference committee, and "in my judgment, it's probably a good approach," Sheats said.

Monday's stop in Midland was the first of a day-long swing through the 19th District. After leaving Midland, Sheats was slated to visit Odessa and Andrews before returning to Lubbock should be tied to the sale of planes to its potential enemies.

Begin raised the issue with Carter Monday, White House sources said, again expressing Israel's view that the historic U.S. commitment to Israeli security should have a special status in American eyes. Begin did not move away from Israel's stated position that it wants the planes that it would buy under the package deal, whether or not the Saudis and Egyptians get theirs.

Some members of the pro-Israeli lobby here are now suggesting no sales at all would be preferable to the Saudi sale, but without Israeli support for this proposition, it seems unlikely to prevail in Congress:

The administration is arguing strenuously that the sale of F-15s to Saudi Arabia is crucial if the United States is to continue asking the Saudis to keep down the OPEC oil price and continue to use the dollar as their principal currency. These arguments have been received sympathetically by many members of the House and Senate.

To prevail, opponents of the arms sales have to win four votes - in each of the committees, and on each floor. If the administration wins in any one of the four, the sales go through. At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell described a half-hour discussion between Carter and Begin as "friendly, cordial and frank" diplomatic terminology for strong disagreement among friends.

Man reports theft, beating

A 20-year-old man told the Midland County Sheriff's Office four men took his money and threatened to take his life early today.

Manuel Cruz reported the incident about 2: 18 a.m. today and said he had been at a local lounge when he accepted a ride from a man he knew.

Cruz said he and three other men entered a car and that they drove around for a while before the men demanded his money. The men took the victim's billfold containing $40, and then began beating him with their fists and feet, according to Cruz' report. He said he was forced out of the car following the incident.

Investigation of the theft is continuing, the sheriff's office-indicated.

Reese backed by Realtors

The Midland and Odessa boards of Realtors announced today that the two groups are endorsing Odessan Jim Reese for the 19th Congressional District seat.

Reese is a candidate for the Republican nomination for that post.

In addition, the Realtors Political Action Committee has made a $1,500 contribution to Reese's campaign, the announcement said.

In proclaiming the endorsement, the Realtors said Reese represents "good, sound conservative government" and would "defend the rights of private property ownership."

Death penalty breeds violence'

New York-Anthropologist Margaret Mead blames the "rising tide of vio-lence and crime" in America on the way the country is organized and said that reinstatement of the death penalty would only breed more violence.

People get the kinds of crime and criminals they themselves "bring into being," Dr. Mead said and criticized Americans for concentrating on the flaws and weaknesses of the criminal character rather than the social attitudes and conditions that are reflected in the criminal's action. Among those attitudes and conditions, Dr. Mead explained, are our

Why have your chimney cleaned?

It is easier on your nerves and a lot safer to have your chimney cleaned than for your house to burn

When you burn wood in your fireplace, the in-complete combustion of the fire develops a tar-like substance or soot that clings to the walls of your

Once ignited, this substance burns with great intensity. It will actually melt the mortar between the bricks in your chimney. If you are lucky, it will do no damage. If you are not so lucky, it could set your attic on fire, or throw a shower of sparks onto your roof and catch your whole roof on fire.

A chimney fire may go unnoticed, but it has a telltale roar, and every time you have one it weakens your chimney.

If you do have a chimney fire, call your fire department first!! Then you can use a fine mist of water from a garden hose; but use it sparingly so as not to damage your carpet with dirty water. There is no serious danger that water will crack the flue lining... but be careful!!

Chimney fires are dangerous and your fire depart-ment is trained to handle them. Now is the time to have your chimney cleaned.

Thanks, Dallas!

A switch in a long-standing shopping pattern existing beween Midland and Dallas occurred a couple of weeks ago, and Maggie Kennedy, a staff writer for the Dallas Times-Herald, apparently didn't appreciate it one bit.

"Nobody goes to Midland, Texas, to buy jewelry." she wrote in a recent issue of her newspaper. "Most assuredly not wealthy Dallas society types.

"Not Midland, a smallish city in the middle of a flat, red dust bowl filled with mesquite trees, cactus plants and snakes."

Yes, those were her words. She was aghast at such a possibility. Such a thing just couldn't be, she thought. Midland, of all places!

"But," Ms. Kennedy continued in her story, "23 of these same women did just that Thursday (came to Midland to buy jewelry), and in a style and with a flair befitting the legend of rich Texans. They went by chartered prop-driven airplane complete with a butler who served champagne, white wine and little sandwiches, and a guitaristsinger who serenaded with songs as the plane bumped along against strong headwinds."

She went on to explain that what got them to West Texas "on a lovely spring day" were the fabulous Bulgari jewels and the fact that Nicola Bulgari himself "was there from his New York office and picking up the tab. Everything from the plane to lunch at the Midland Racquet Club was on the Bulgaris, who know how to spend a buck or two to make three or four. Bulgari believes in taking his precious gems where the money is, whether it's Los Angeles, Florida or oil-rich Midland."

The Times-Herald writer quoted Harriet Burrell, who organized the Dallas trip, as saying, "Most everyone here bought something or is taking something home to show their husbands or lawyers. Others may think about it and custom order something later from a piece of jewelry they saw in Midland today.'

Ms. Kennedy said that some of the biggest names in Dallas society "went along for the ride." as did she.

She wrote at some length about happenings from the time the Dallas group assembled at Love Field until they returned there late in the day, including entertainment on the plane, coming and going.

It undoubtedly was a fun trip, and we would wager that the Dallas writer, who doesn't think much of "smallish" Midland, enjoyed it, too.

Of course, Midland is small, compared to "Big D," but Midlanders are proud of their friendly, fast-growing little city, situated in the center of Wonderful West Texas.

Through the years, Midlanders have spent a good deal of money in Dallas, and it is good to know that the tide has turned, and that Dallasites now come to Midland, on occasion, to shop - even for jewelry.

Midland has developed to the point that most of the items for which its residents used to shop in Dallas now are available in Midland stores, and it no longer is necessary to head east on regular shopping tours.

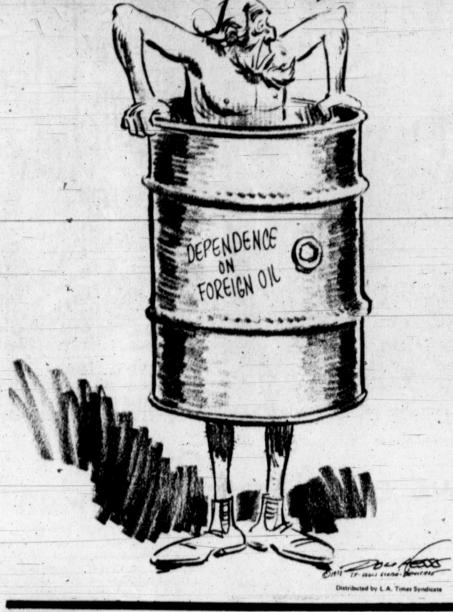

And with a few more of Ms. Kennedy's "kind" words concerning Midland, the number of shoppers going to Dallas may decline even more.

Surely, Ms. Kennedy did not have the time to really see Midland - what it has and what it offers - on her recent jaunt. It is hoped that she can and will return to Midland at some future date to tour the city - its business district, shopping centers, public facilities and residential districts - at a leisurely pace. We think she will like it.

Meanwhile, Midlanders always are delighted to have shoppers and others from Dallas and othercities, large or small, visit Midland at any time. They always are welcome here.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Another Holocaust story told

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - There is another Holocaust story, every bit as stark as the recent TV saga, which should be rubbed into the world's conscience. "Holocaust" dramatized the ordeal of the Jews who were brutalized and massacred by the Nazis 40 years ago. We have compiled an equally staggering story of the horrors that are going on inside Cambodia today.

The Nazis began the systematic slaughter of all Jews under their control. The Cambodian communists are trying to eradicate not a race but a culture. They are engaged in a deliberate, disciplined campaign to remake the society from the ground up. Intelligence reports tell of "completing the execution of all people who are not from the poor farmer-working class."

Six million Jews perished under the Nazi heel; this was more than six percent of occupied Europe. There has been no body count of how many Cambodians have died from mistreatment and execution. Competent sources have offered estimates ranging from 1.8 million to 2.5 million; about one-third of the seven million people who formerly inhabited Cambodia.

The Nazis tried to conceal their monstrous crime from the world. They used such euphemisms as "resettlement," "removal," and "special action" to describe the mass executions. The Cambodian comrades also have their special vocabulary. A former communist official, who has participated in the killings, told U.S. intelligence sour-

"The Khmer word for 'kill, assassinate, execute' was never spoken when the annihilation policy was discussed. The Khmer term used was 'baoh caol' - literally 'sweep, throw out' or 'sweep, discard;' or 'boah s'aad,' literally 'sweep clean.'"

The Nazis used firing squads and gas chambers to exterminate the Jews. In Cambodia, the communists began with firing squads. But they decided that bullets were too precious to waste on their victims. So hundreds of thousands were simply bludgeoned to death and buried in mass graves.

The favorite weapon of extermination in Cambodia has become the garden hoe. The same grisly report keeps recurring in intelligence dispatches: "Each man was blindfolded, led to the edge of a ditch and beaten to death with a hoe.

The brutality began even before the communists swept to victory in Cambodia. Some of the last classified cables from the U.S. embassy reported that communist guerrillas had turned upon the civilian population with a sudden savagery.

The communists swarmed over the capital city of Phnom Penh on April 17, 1975. The wholesale slaughter. began on the same day. It was not the ravages of undisciplined troops gone wild. Rather, it was the calculated, cold-blooded policy of the communist conquerors to eradicate all vestiges of the existing social order.

"The KCP rationale is to completely rid the society of all elements which are not of the lower social class," according to a former communist official.

The communists were told by their leaders that former government and military personnel were "spoiled rotten" and had to be "swept out."

Officers of the former army were the first to die. "The KCP simultaneously began executing all wealthy farmers, prostitutes, highlevel monks, teachers, fortune tellers, former enlisted men and civil ser-

Nor were their families spared. An intelligence report states grimly: "Entire families were ordered executed because the surviving spouses and children would harbor resentment toward the government and would only create problems in the future."

The crude bludgeonings continued for more than a year. "Toward the latter part of 1976," the intelligence reports claim, "the search for an execution of old society people slackened off. In April, 1977, however ... it once again became a primary party activity to search out and eliminate the last vestiges of the old

The most recent cable we have seen on this subject was dated Feb. 13, 1978. It declares tersely: "A renewed emphasis was placed on completely eliminating all vestiges of the former government and completing the executions of all people who were not from the poor farmer-working class.'

This maniacal attempt to establish a new order by mass murder was supposed to be kept out of the history books. The communists tried, with frightening success, to hide their horrors from the world. They have sealed off their country tightly. The borders are mined and patrolled.

Yet a few refugees managed to escape, some after harrowing experiences. Less than two months after the communist takeover, we were able to get enough eye-witness accounts to report on June 4, 1975: "It appears that the Khmer Rouge, as the Cambodian conmunists call themselves, may be guilty of genocide against their own people.

Now we have compiled intelligence reports and eyewitness accounts two inches thick. The evidence is overwhelming. It is the world's most hideous story about the world's most brutal dictatorship. Every American with a conscience should cry out to the United Nations, to the White House, to Congress, to condemn Communist Cambodia.

politicians and others who feel that Torrijos did not defend Panama's interests properly during the treaty negotiations and the ratification period are calling for "an end of the military dictatorship.

Many Panamanians object to the canal treaties

There is nothing clandestine about the campaign. It is being waged openly, inside Panama.

For example, at the recent monthly meeting of the Panamanian Business Executives Association (APEDE), spokesmen for Panama's leading political parties spoke out against the Torrijos regime. And against the Luis Felipe Clement, prominent member of the Panamenist Party, whose founder was exiled former President Arnulfo Arias, protested the general "ineptitude" of the dictatorship, and said that Panama's current crisis has been sharpened by Senate amendments to the canal treaties.

David Samudio, president of the Liberal Party, probably Panama's second largest, behind the Panamenist, criticized the economic and social policies of the Torrijos government. He, too, objected to Senate amendments to the treaties, terming them "offensive to Panama's sovereignty.

Tomas Herrera of the newly created Independent Democratic Movement indicated that by accepting the new canal treaties Torrijos showed himself more interested in remaining in power than in demonstrating his patriotism.

The Christian Democratic leader, Ricardo Arias Calderon, insisted that the amendments and reservations that the Senate made of the new canal treaties should be rejected.

Those are the opinions of relatively responsible citizens of the isthmian republic.

But there is also more rabid opposition to the treaties. It comes from the leftist-led students, those who started it all with the flag incident in

They insist that "throughout the negotiating process, the Torrijos administration maintained a yielding and defeatist attitude.'

"If the government accepts the amendments, then the treaty will legalize permanent intervention and the government's revolutionary mask will be removed, revealing its true servile, capitulating and treacherous role," the Federated Association of the National Institute declared recently.

The National Institute, it may be recalled, was the school from which came the band of Panamanian students that tried to raise their flag in front of a Canal Zone high school in January 1964. The scuffle then between Panamanian and U.S. students escalated into widespread rioting along the zone border that cost the lives of a score of Panamanians and four U.S. soldiers.

The subsequent break in relations between the two countries was healed only after Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Roberto Chiari agreed to negotiate a new treaty arrangement over the U.S.-built canal. The treaties today are fruit of the diplomatic talks

INSIDE REPORT:

New U.S. negotiating posture accepts Soviet terms

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - In two mid-April meetings conducted here under strictest secrecy, key officials in the National Security bureaucracy agreed with British counterparts not to insist on previous stringent conditions for a total nuclear test ban treaty with the Soviet Union. The extreme secrecy may have been designed to keep news of the meetings not so much from the Russians as from the Pentagon. The new U.S. negotiating posture amounts to accepting Soviet terms for verification of a comprehensive ban of all underground nuclear tests (atmospheric tests were outlawed 15 years ago). That is wholly unacceptable to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and some senior Defense Department officials who had no part in the décision, thus posing direct confrontation between President Carter and the Pentagon.

The President has talked repeatedly of a treaty "to prohibit any testing of nuclear weapons at all.' But the Pentagon believes Moscow could easily violate such a treaty by testing small weapons in the 3 to 10 kiloton range, which cannot be identified as a nuclear blast. Since the U.S. would obey the treaty, this could in time give Moscow significantly higher confidence in the reliability of Soviet weapons and conceivably create self-doubt about the U.S.

Ironically, the drive for a comprehensive test ban treaty has been viewed by some arms control advocates as an easy first step before taking the threatened SALT (strategic arms limitation talks) agreement to the Senate. Fitting President Carter's dream of a world free from nuclear weapons, the test

ban was thought to offer a quick win in the Senate Consequently, a major push has been under way for several weeks in Geneva for a test ban treaty. But Soviet negotiator Igor Morokhov rejected the U.S. proposal that compliance be verified inside the Soviet Union by about 20 new internal seismic stations using sophisticated U.S. equipment guaranteed against Soviet tampering. Simultaneously, the British cabinet secretly agreed to soften its negotiating position. That was the situation April 17 when British officials came to Washington for a hush-hush conference with two critically important U.S. officials: Alan Neidle of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) and Leslie Gelb of the State Department. The Defense Department was not invited to send representatives.

Neidle declared the U.S. and Great Britain must have a strategy which "finesses" Morokhov's concerns. Abandoning previous U.S. demands, Neidle proposed accepting no more than 12 seismic stations in the Soviet Union at locations of Moscow's choice. These stations would be located at existing Soviet facilities, possibly improved by U.S. earthquake monitoring equipment not specifically designed for test ban . verification.

"The ACDA position," said one inside critic, "seems to be more concerned with obviating Soviet worries than obtaining an adequate verification network." Neidle even suggested that verification details not be worked out in advance but be left to "joint consultative commission" after the treaty's ratification. The British agreed

Finally, Neidle told the British the U.S. no longer insists on permitting some relatively low-level testing. called essential by U.S. weapons experts to maintain the nuclear arsenal. Rather, he said, the U.S. delegation will return to Geneva without any position on permitted testing. Neidle's new position was confirmed to the British two days later, April 19, in another secret meeting by John Markham of the National Security Council (NSC)

Markham also voiced willingness to accept last year's offer from Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev for "voluntary" onsite inspections at Soviet discretion. But in fact, such inspections - voluntary or not - are ineffective, as the Russians well know. It is sophisticated seismic stations which are the most effective. and that is what Moscow objects to.

The secrecy of the April 17 and 19 meetings suggests that the State Department, ACDA and the NSC are short-stopping usual interagency review procedures — thus gagging protests. That fits test ban tactics followed by Paul Warnke, ACDA's shrewd director.

While publicly saying the question is still open, Warnke has argued within the top-secret Security Coordinating Committee (SCC) for a treaty banning all tests, adding that the Geneva talks should otherwise be broken off.

Two members of the House Armed Services Committee - Republican Robin Beard of Tennessee and Democrat Sam Stratton of New York were alerted to Warnke's SCC arguments. They wrote Warnke April 4 asking why ACDA wants a total test ban that cannot be verified against Soviet violations. ACDA replied that the Beard-Stratton letter should be classified, partly because it might embarrass Moscow, then sent an unresponsive reply (classified "confidential").

The biggest question now is the reaction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who accepted the role of good soldier on Korean troops, B-1 bomber and the neutron bomb. Testifying at closed House hearings March 15-16, representatives of the Chiefs said they could not support a test ban treaty which could not be verified; shortly thereafter, intelligence community witnesses testified a total test ban was not verifiable. What was intended to ease the way for SALT is becoming no small headache in its own right.

The impetus for a change came in part from the most widely publicized case arising from the 1973 law, one involving the Tellico Dam, a $119 million Tennessee Valley Authority project on the Little Tennessee River.

A federal appeals court has ordered construction stopped on the project because of evidence that its completion poses a threat to the habitat of the snail darter, a small fish.

The U.S. Supreme Court heard arguments in the case last month.

Under current law, federal agencies must make sure their actions have no adverse effect on endangered species or their critical habitat. If a problem arises, the agency is required to begin a formal consultation process with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

But under the law, so-called "irreconciliable" conflicts are to be resolved on the side of the endangered species.

Under Culver's proposal, a project could go ahead despite its effects on an endangered species if five of the seven members of the board grant an

South Korea.

The revised plan calls for withdrawal of only 3,400 troops, including one 800-man infantry battalion instead of three.

The administration's pullout plan is linked to congressional approval of transferring to Korean forces $800 million in equipment used by the U.S. 2nd Division, and authorization of another $275 million in military gear, including improved M-48 tanks with bigger guns

Air Force Gen. David Jones, acting chairman of the Joint Chiefs, said the chiefs wanted "the greatest strength possible" to be left in Korea.

"The question of one battalion being pulled out was discussed. However, our overall recommendation was not to pull out any battalions without the compensating measures," Jones said.

But then Jones indicated that the chiefs, after learning that Carter would go ahead with some withdrawal before a weapons transfer, were not that insistent.

"This does not mean we recommended against taking out that one battalion. From a military standpoint we see very little difference.... The decision was to minimize the impact and maintain the military balance,"

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, asserted that Carter, in order to fulfill a 1976 campaign promise to pull troops out of Korea, was endangering that country's security and undermining the confidence of Japan and other nations in U.S. pledges of military protection.

Glenn asked Jones whether he "personally" supported the administration's pullout plan.

Jones was clearly uncomfortable with the question, in view of Gen. John Singlaub's firing last week for criticizing Carter's decision to defer production of the neutron bomb. "Our inclination," Jones said cautiously, 'was to keep something (in Korea) until they got compensation."

Hospital may induce labor, courts say

NEW YORK (AP) - A judge has given a hospital permission to induce premature labor to rid a woman of her severely deformed eight-month

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Hughes ruled Monday after three doctors testified that a Caesarean operation would be needed if the unborn child were allowed to develop fully.

Doctors said the operation would endanger the life of the mother, Florence Lee-lau, 30. And besides the physical complications of the pregnancy, the birth of the deformed fetus would cause the mother "severe mental stress," they said.

"This appears to be a case where medical judgment rather than judicial judgment should apply," said Hughes. He added, "It is understood that no abortion will be performed." Lawyers for St. Luke's Hospital promised the institution would take "whatever steps were available to preserve the health and safety of the child after birth as well as of the mother."

Black hole may exist in a distant galaxy

By THOMAS O'TOOLE The Washington Post

At the center of M 87, which lies 65 million light years away in the constellation Virgo, astron-omers using the 48-inch telescope at the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona have found a dark object so dense it appears to be 5 billion times the mass of our own sun.

At the same time, astronomers using the 60inch and the 200-inch telescopes at Mt. Palomar in California have found such a glow of excess light at the center of M 87 that it can only be explained by stars that bunch up and stay mile across in width bunched up because they're tightly bound to some huge mass astron-

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) - The mothers of two men killed in the Dec. 27 explosion at the Farmers Export Co. grain elevator and a man injured in the blast have filed damage suits against elevator owners in state district court here seeking a total of $904,450.

Howard M. Reid, 24, who was working in an underground pit where railroad cars were unloaded, is seeking $500,-000 for alleged permanent and disfiguring injuries and a loss of earning potential.

Eighteen persons died in the blast and 21 were injured.

omers think it an invisi-ble black hole. "If this mass is a black hole it could be as big as the entire solar system,' said Peter J. Young of the atronomy depart-ment at the California Institute of Technoogy, were much of the work was done. "If it's that big the black hole itself would weigh something like 100 octillion metric

The term "black hole" was coined in 1968 by Princeton University's Dr. John Wheeler, from the prediction that when a massive star or galaxy exhausts its nuclear fuel it could collapse suddenly and completely to an object so densely and tightly packed its gravity would allow none of its light to escape.

So dark and dense would it be that a black hole the size of a sugar cube would weigh 1 bil-*lion tons. A black hole a would have the same mass as our sun does.

In their use of the two big telescopes on Mt. Palomar, astronomers found a "spot" of light at the center of M 87 that could not be accounted for by starlight. Cal Tech's Young said calculations of this "excess" light show it is the equivalent of the light of 100

The informed speculation of astronomers is that this excess light is the energy produced when gas, dust and individual stars are sucked into a black hole at enormous speeds by its huge gravitational pull. This generates such high temperatures that the heating alone gives off the light equivalent of numerous suns.

The telescope at Kitt Peak was used to measure how fast the stars at the center of M87 were moving about. These measurements tell astronomers how much mass there is at the galatic center since they can calculate from the speeds of the moving stars how much mass is needed to keep the stars from whirling out of the center of the galaxy.

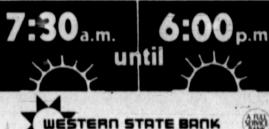

From their calculations, astronomers estimate there are the equivalent of 60 invisible suns at the center of M 87 for every sun they see. That suggests a black hole so massive that it could cover the entire center of the M 87 galaxy, which itself is 100 times bigger than the Milky Way.

Western botanists develop new, fast-growing redwoods

The Los Angeles Times

IRVINE, Calif. - Botanists from UC Irvine announced Monday that they have developed a new strain of coastal redwoods that will grow faster, taller and provide a higher quality lumber than most naturally occurring redwoods.

The new trees, which were developed under a grant from the Simpson Timber Co. of Eureka, Calif., represent a potential breakthrough in the development of superior commercial trees. Simpson officials said the new strain possibly could increase forest yields by 50 percent. Simpson foresters cautioned, however, that the higher grade forests may be years in development. The process is so new, they said, that the first experimental seedlings have only recently been planted and there are no facilities for mass produc-

of the new trees For many years Simpson and other redwood companies along California's north coast have gradually improved the quality of second-growth forests through the use of seeds from the best old-growth

Such seeds, however, carry not only the genetic traits of the superior tree but also the traits of the tree that cross-fertilized the seeds. Thus, on many occasions, the resultant seedlings inherited undesirable traits along with the desired characteristics. The new process, which was three years in developing, bypasses the problems of sexual reproduction by creating new trees directly from tissue samples of superior specimens. The process is asexual and the new strins carry only the desired traits of superior

Developed by botanists Ernest Ball and Dawn Morris at the Irvine campus, the asexual process is one that has eluded forest products companies for years. Some companies, such as Weyerhaeuser Co. in Washington, have spent up to $1 million trying and failing to achieve asexual reproduction.

The problem, according to Morris, was the development of a medium in which tissue samples of better trees would grow. The two botanists tried over a thousand varieties, mixing precise amounts of vitamins, minerals and other nutrients, before hitting the right one.

As has happened occasionally in other genetic work, the right combination came about as a result of a serendipitous accident. A colleague of Ball's returned from a visit to Europe with a formula that had been used successfully with other plants.

"We tried it and it worked," said Morris. If all goes well, the new strain could dramatically improve the supply of redwoods several decades from now. There is little likelihood; however, that any of this will enable the north coast to avoid the near-term downward spiral that has hit the region as redwood resources have continued to shrink The new trees eventually will represent the best traits of some one million redwoods that were surveyed by Simpson foresters. They selected 200 samples of the superior trees and sent them to Ball and

Morris at Irvine The first batch of seedlings was shipped back to Simpson recently for planting. They were put into the ground along with a control group of naturally occurring seedlings to enable foresters to compare them with the growth characteristics of the new

In selecting the finest trees from the forest, the Simpson foresters looked for height, diameter and the absence of low limbs that create knots in lumber. Disease resistance was not considered, Morris said, because coastal redwoods naturally are resistant to almost all forms of botanical diseases.

Attorney Bailey withdraws from Patty Hearst defense

The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO - F. Lee Bailey, who represented newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst at the celebrated 1976 trial where she was convicted on bank robbery charges, abruptly withdrew Monday as her defense attorney

J. Albert Johnson, Bailey's partner, who made the announcement here, said Miss Hearst will now be represented by George C. Martinez, 43, a criminal defense lawyer who practices in San Francisco.

Martinez also represents a San Francisco police officer, Bernard Shaw - who moonlights as a $950-amonth guard for Miss Hearst - in Shaw's pending Published reports last winter linked Shaw and Miss Hearst romantically. Vlarie Shaw, the policeman's estranged wife, was quoted as saying this romance precipitated her filing in court for dissolution of the 10-year union.

Last Nov. 29 Miss Hearst filed a report with police Austin Bureau in suburban Pacifica stating that her handbag was stolen while left in Shaw's van when it was parked overnight outside of his home.

Martinez told the Los Angeles Times there was "no connection" between his representation of Shaw and his selection as Miss Hearst's new attorney. Johnson insisted that he and Bailey have not had a falling out with the Hearst family and that he will continue to represent the family in some other He said the issue of obtaining a new attorney for Miss Hearst arose after he arrived in town last Thursday and was settled Friday night. Johnson said he had no intention of withdrawing when he arrived in town, but the decision now "has my concurrence." He said there was "general agreement" on the idea within the Hearts family. Miss Hearst, Johnson said, needs a local atterney "who could care for her needs on a day-to-day

On April 24 the U.S. Supreme Court decided, with one dissent, not to hear Miss Hearst's appeal of her conviction in the commando-style robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch here. The robbery was staged by the Symbionese Liberation Army, which had earlier kidnapped Miss Hearst from the apartment she shared with a UC

Berkeley graduate student. Johnson said official notice of the high court action was placed Monday in the files here of U.S. District Court Judge William H. Orrick Jr., who must decide whether to return Miss Hearst to prison or place her on probation with credit for the 14 months she has already spent behind bars.

Orrick, who could send Miss Hearst back to prison for up to 14 more months, is on vacation in Scotland and is not scheduled to return until after May 29. No decision has been made yet on whether the U.S.

Supreme Court will be asked to reconsider its decision, Johnson said. The deadline for such a request, rarely granted by the court, is May 18.

Ex-candidates back Clements

Austin-Two former Republican candidates for Governor, Paul Eggers of Wichita Falls, and Jim Granberry of Lubbock, showed up Monday to endorse the GOP gubernatorial campaign being waged by William Clements of Dallas.

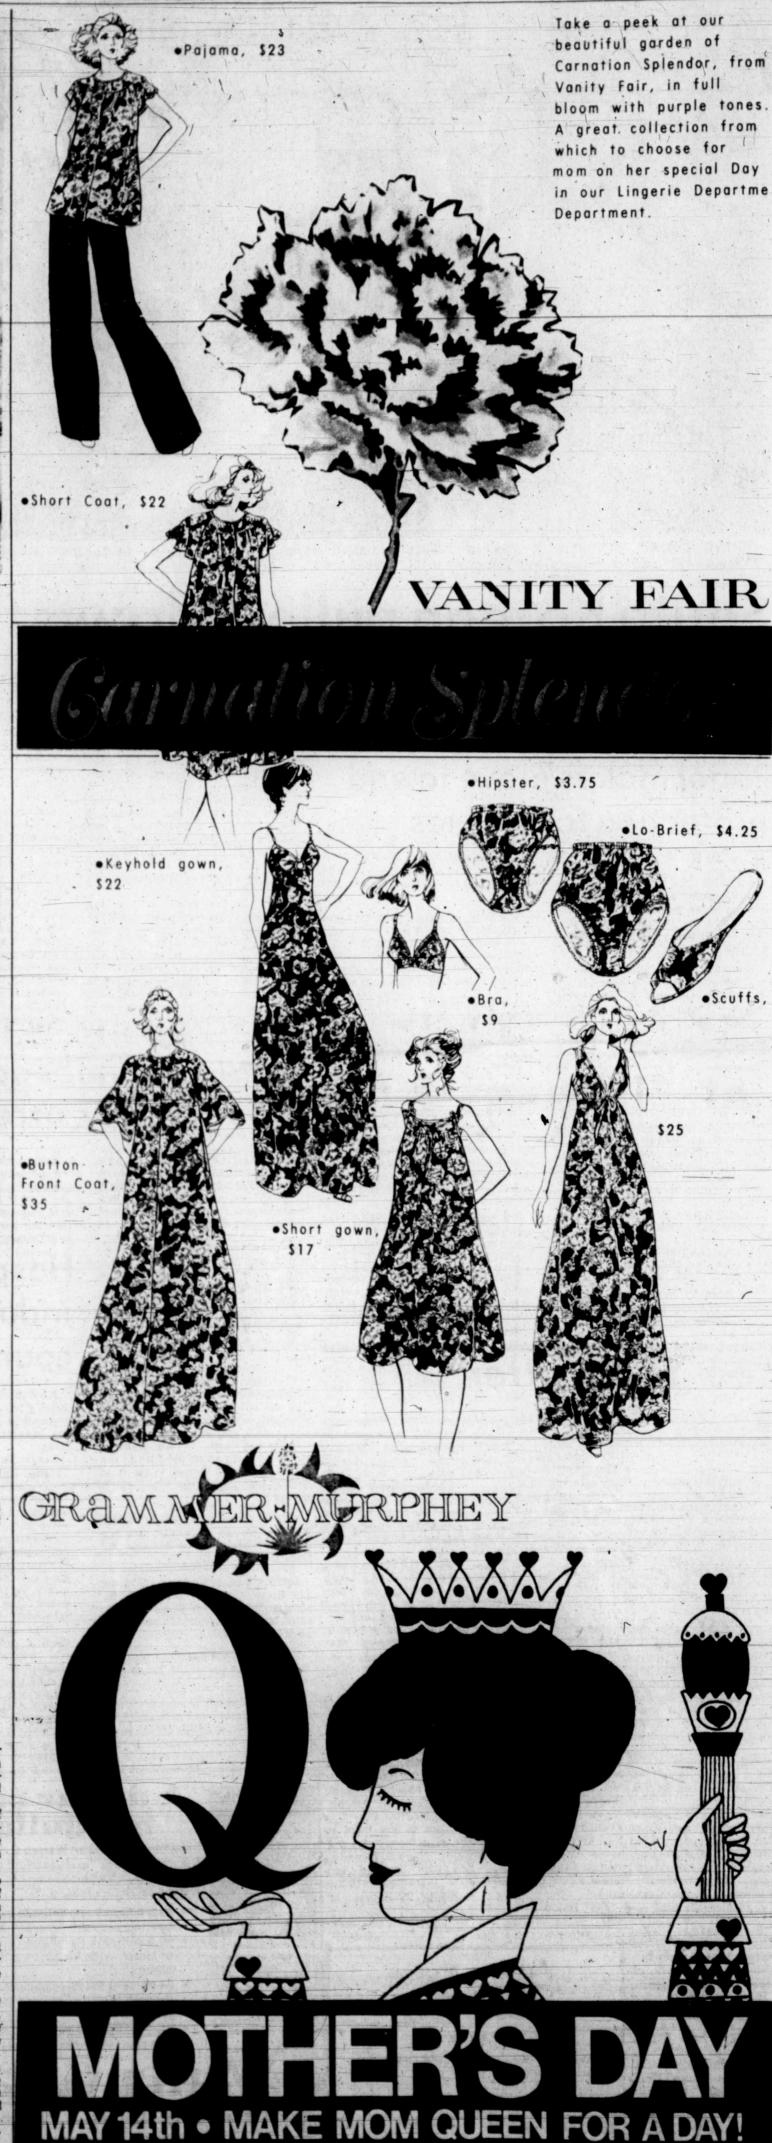

Eggers and Granberry joined Bryon Fullerton of Liberty Hill, who ran as a GOP candidate for lieutenant-governor, and Republican State Sen. Bob Price of Pampa, at a capitol press conference with Clements, a drilling contractor from Dallas who served for four years as Deputy Secretary of Defense, is challenging former State Republican Party Chairman Ray Hutchison, Dallas, in the GOP gubernatorial primary.

Granberry said Clements was the "most qualified" candidiate of either the Democratic or Republican Party to run for Governor of Texas in the Eggers added that Clements campaign should be successful through the November general election. when the Republican nominee matches up with the Democrat's choice for governor, "simply because he has the money to compete.'

Clements accepted the endorsements as a "compliment to my campaign." and predicted he would defeat Hutchison in the May 6 primary by a 60 to 40 percent margin. It has been projected there will be 100,000 voters in the Republican primary. However. Clements anticipates there will be closer to 150,000 to 200,000 votes cast.

Cubs rebound at El Paso, 9-3

EL PASO — Midland's Cubs broke a two-game losing streak by defeating the El Paso Diablos here Tuesday night, 9-3, behind the pitching of Randy Martz and Bob Clark.

Midland scored three runs in the third on singles by Kurt Seibert, Steve Macko and Duane Gustavson with a throwing error by Jay Peters before another run-scoring single by Aaron Randall.

In the fifth Midland broke loose for three more runs with Jimmy Buckner, who saw a 16-game hitting streak ended, walking, Gustavson singling and Randall grounding into a force at second. The Diablos thought they had a double play and in the ensuing argument catcher Terry Stupy was tossed out of the game.

That's when the Cubs started to run, stealing at will on Danny Goodwin.

"I like to play aggressive baseball and feel any time we can run on another club, it makes things happen to the other club," Manager Jim Saul explained. "I was very pleased with the way we played and Martz did a good job and Clark was strong in relief."

Saul said he took Martz out in the sixth because of the weather. "I didn't want him tightening up."

The Cubs and Diablos play the fourth game of their series tonight and conclude the series Thursday. Midland returns to Cubs Stadium Friday to open a 12-game homestand against Amarillo and San Antonio.

Sonics drop Blazers from playoffs, 105-94

SEATTLE (AP) — Suddenly, it becomes a question of how far the Seattle SuperSonics can go.

Playing with the confidence and poise that got them through the rugged times early in the regular season, the surprising Sonics dispatched the beleaguered defending world champion Portland Trail Blazers from the National Basketball Association playoffs with a 105-94 victory Monday night.

The triumph before a wild Coliseum sellout crowd of 14,098 gave the Sonics a 4-2 margin in the best-of-seven series and sends them into the Western Conference finals against the winner of the Denver-Milwaukee series.

"IT LOOKS like we're in the groove again. If we are, there's no telling how far this team can go," said a smiling Lenny Wilkens, who took over as Seattle's head coach Nov. 30 with the team mired in the Pacific Division cellar with a 5-17 record.

"Our team showed lots of courage all year long," Wilkens added. "It seems'we have had to prove ourselves time and time again. I think it will be more enjoyable from now on."

For Portland, a city that went bananas over its Blazers last-year as the club fashioned upset after upset enroute to the NBA title, injuries — and the Sonics — finally took their toll in the end.

"This is one of the greatest group of individuals I've ever been around. They've never quit," said a disheartened Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "They've shown poise and as much class as can be expected with the adversity that we've had."

A STREAK in the final three minutes of the second period in which Seattle outscored Portland 12-0 to take a 55-49 halftime lead gave the Sonics momentum going into the second half.

"We were all in tune for the game. We were not going to be denied," said veteran guard Fred Brown, whose 11 second-period points sparked the Sonics' rally before halftime.

"They made that run, and up until then it was pretty even," said Johnny Davis, whose 23 points paced the Blazers. "But that's when they got their momentum. They started playing with intensity.

Your children. Probably the best

Sure enough, Houston selects Campbell No. 1

By BRUCE LOWITT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Houston Oilers, to the surprise of absolutely no one, officially made Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell their No. 1 choice in the opening round of the National Football League's college draft today.

The University of Texas running back, who gained 1,744 yards and was the fifth leading ground-gainer in major college history, was the man the Oilers wanted as the Houston equivalent of Tony Dorsett, the sensational runner who solidified the Dallas Cowboys' offense last season.

To get the shot at the 6-foot, 200-pound Campbell, the Oilers gave Tampa Bay, which owned the No. 1 overall selection, four draft choices (two this season and two next year) and tight end Jimmy Giles.

Houston Coach Bum Phillips, when asked whether Campbell would line up at halfback or fullback, quipped: "After you get the ball in your hands it doesn't make much difference where you're coming from. It's where you're going to that counts?"

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle made the announcement of Houston's selection, then Campbell spoke momentarily, thanking his agent, Mike Trope, for making him an instant millionaire. Campbell has agreed to terms with the Oilers.

The burly running back from Tyler, Texas, then posed with his new uniform with No. 34 on the jersey.

The Kansas City Chiefs, with a defense that ranked dead last among the NFL's 28 teams last year, had the second choice and selected Art Still, a 6-foot-7 defensive end from the University of Kentucky.

third, took Wes Chandler, a brilliant wide receiver from the University of Florida. They were followed instantly by the New York Jets, who grabbed Chris Ward, a 272-pound offensive tackle from Ohio State.

The Buffalo Bills, looking to replace the traded O.J. Simpson, took Oklahoma State running back Terry Miller, the most prolific ground-gainer in the history of the Big Eight Conference. In rapid-fire succession, the Green Bay Packers selected Stanford wide receiver James Lofton, the outstanding performer in the highly respected Senior Bowl all-star game. THE NO.8 pick belonged to San Francisco and the 49ers went for Ken MacAfee, the bruising 249-pound tight end from national champion Notre Dame. His father, Ken Sr., was a standout end for the University of Alabama and later with the New York Giants from 1954-58.

The selection of MacAfee was followed by another Notre Dame star when the Cincinnati Bengals, using a pick acquired from Philadelphia four years ago in the Bill Bergey deal, took defensive end Ross Browner, the 1976 Outland Trophy winner as the nation's best lineman.

The Seattle Seahawks selected Keith Simpson, a defensive back from Memphis State with blazing speed.

They were quickly followed by the New York Giants, who picked Gordon King, a 272-pound offensive tackle from Stanford. The selection was greeted by a roar of approval from hundreds of spectators in the balcony of the Roosevelt Hotel's grand ball-

A third Notre Damer was the No. 11 pick when the Detroit Lions took defensive back Luther Bradley, who holds the school career record for interceptions with 17. He returned an interception 99 yards against Purdue in 1975.

The Cleveland Browns selected Clay Matthews, a 232-pound line-backer from Southern California whose father played for San Francisco in the mid-1950s. The Atlanta Falcons chose Mike Kenn, a 245-pound offensive tackle from Michigan and the San Diego Chargers completed the midway point of the opening round by making acrobatic wide receiver John Jefferson of Arizona State the No. 14 pick.

Arizona State Coach Frank Kush, who had such outstanding pass-catchers as Charley Taylor and J.D. Hill, calls Jefferson "the best receiver I ever coached."

The St. Louis Cardinals drafted Steve Little of Arkansas, a place-kicker-punter who holds the NCAA career field goal record with 53, including a 67-ya8rder that tied the major college distance mark.

Picking for the second time in the Picking for the second time in the opening round, the Cincinnati Bengals selected Blair Bush, a 247-pound center from the University of Washington's Rose Bowl champs.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, picking 17th after trading the No. 1 overall pick to Houston, grabbed All-American quarterback Doug Williams from little Grambling State University.

He was the first black ever selected in the opening round as a quarter-back.

The New England Patriots, in somewhat of a surprise, selected Bob Cryder, a 258-pound guard from Alabama who had not been touted as an opening round choice.

opening-round choice.

The Cardinals, picking for the second time in the opening round with Washington's pick from the Dave Butz deal, took Ken Greene, a defensive back from Washington State.

The Chicago Bears' first-round choice belonged to Cleveland in the Mike Phipps' deal but the Browns traded it to Los Angeles for the Rams' first- and fourth-round picks.

The Rams selected running back

The Rams selected running back Elvis Peacock, a speed-burner from the University of Oklahoma.

The Minnesota Vikings chose Randy Holloway, a 6-6 defensive tackle from the University of Pittsburgh. The Vikings projected Holloway as a defensive end since he is an outstanding pass-rusher but weighs only 238 pounds.

Completing the first round, the Denver Broncos took defensive tackle Don Latimer from Miami of Florida and the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys selected defensive tackle Larry Bethea of Michigan State and projected him as an end.

baseball game.

Munson admitted pushing Thornley, but only after he said he was grabbed from behind. "It appears at this time that no charges will

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS What did they say in 1908, when Cy Young won 13 games and lost 21? Was there no hope at all in 1911, when he finished 7-10? Did everyone then ask, "What's wrong with Cy Young?" the way everyone now is asking, "What's wrong with Tom Seaver?'

Six starts into the 1978 baseball season, Seaver is winless. His earned run average is 6.52. He is, in his own words, "embarrassed and extremely frustrated.

"I've never had a period like I'm going through now," he says. "It's een a humbling experience.

EVERYONE WHO didn't know that iready found out early Monday ight, when Cincinnati Manager parky Anderson yanked Seaver in ont of a national television audi nce. The Reds right-hander, a threeime Young Award winner, gave up even hits and seven runs - six of hem earned - in less than three nnings against the Philadelphia Phil-

Worse, almost, was the six walks he handed out. Where in the past Seaver had been serving bare bones to virtually everyone in the batter's box, now he is serving full-course meals to hungry hitters and everybody's get-

After eating Seaver alive in three innings, the Phillies picked their teeth the rest of the way. They finished with a 12-1 victory, leaving Cincinnati with the scraps and leaving everyone asking Tom Seaver what's wrong.

He answered the only way he could: "I wish I knew what it was. If I did, I wouldn't be in this situation.

IN THE other National League games, the San Francisco Giants trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1, the Pittsburgh Pirates bested the San Diego Padres 7-4 and the Atlanta Braves edged the New York Mets 6-5. In the only American League games, the Boston Red Sox held on for a 9-6 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles and the New York Yankees topped the Kansas City Royals 8-4.

Since Pete Rose went hitless in four at-bats against Steve Carlton and remained four safeties short of the 3,000 milestone, the only saving grace for Reds fans was a seventh-inning home run by Johnny Bench, which ruined Steve Cariton's shutout.

Carlton, who had three hits more than Rose did, had some observations.

of his own on the Seaver affair. "It's more of a mental slump than anything," said Carlton, who scattered five hits over eight innings before letting Gene Garber mop up.

"He's falling behind and not going after the hitters." In fact, it's just the reverse. The hitters are going after Tom Seaver and they're having very little trouble finding him. Bake McBride and Richie Hebner also had three hits for Philadelphia.

Monday night's game was over after the Phillies' five-run first inning, during which Carlton laced a two-run single. The Philadelphia lefthander, who led NL pitchers with 15 runs batted in last year, raised his batting average to .429% and lowered his ERA to 2.48 Giants 2, Cardinals 1

Terry Whitfield doubled and scored from second base on Mark Littell's wild pitch in the eighth inning for the winning run in San Francisco's victory over St. Louis.

The game was spiced by a ninth-inning argument between the Giants' Bill Madlock and rookie umpire Charlie Williams, who was behind the plate for the first time in a major league game.

Madlock, who had struck out twice, stepped out of the batter's box after the count went to two strikes against Cardinals reliever Pete Vukovich. Williams ordered Madlock back into the box, then signalled for Vuckovich to throw when his directive was ignored.

Madlock, who had his back to the plate when the pitch was thrown, had to be restrained from going after Williams when the umpire cried, "Strike Three."

A similar incident took place at St. Louis in September two seasons ago. when Madlock stepped out of the box without receiving permission from the umpire and was called out on strikes when then-Cardinals reliever Al Hrabosky pitched anyway.

That one sparked a bench-clearing brawl. Monday night's incident had lesser impact. The only casualty was Giants third base coach Dave Bristol. who was hit on the head by Williams' hand when he was throwing Madlock out of the game.

Bristol joked about it later. "I can see the story now: 'X rays of Bristol's head show nothing!'

"I'm just glad it wasn't Lee Weyer," he added, and with good reason. Weyer, another NL umpire, is 6-foot-6 and 250 pounds.

Somewhere in the hubub was an eight-inning, six-hit performance by San Francisco's Vida Blue. Pirates 7, Padres 4
Singles by Phil Garner and relief pitcher Jim Bibby keyed the threerun eighth-inning rally that sent Pittsburgh past San Diego. It was Bibby's first National League hit since 1972, when he singled while with St. Louis. Since then he had been in the American League, which employs the designated hitter. Dave Winfield cracked a two-run home run for the Padres.

Braves 6, Mets 5 Biff Pocoroba and Jeff Burroughs had run-scoring hits in the eighth inning to help Atlanta beat New York in a game marked by four balks three by Braves pitchers.

Red Sox 9, Orioles 6 Jim Rice slugged a pair of two-run homers and Boston survived Baltimore's ninth-inning rally to snap a four-game losing streak. Al Bumbry homered and Ken Singleton had a run-scoring single to bring Baltimore within 9-6. They subsequently loaded the bases, but reliever Bob Stanley struck out Rick Dempsey to end the game. Yankees 8, Royals 4

Lou Piniella scored Thurman Munson with the first of four seventh-inning runs to help the Yankees beat Kansas City.

More than that, he had the unique experience of playing two college careers - not just four but eight years in the undergraduate trenches.

"It is a different game," acknowledged Maj. Gen. Harvey J. "Jabo" Jablonsky, sitting among his football and wartime nemorabilia in this lazy, little community in South Central Texas, 90 miles from the state capital at Austin.

"THE SIZE of the modern players and the leniency of the rules are the things that impress me most. In my day, you couldn't touch a pass receiver until he had caught the ball. Today, they bump him and climb all over him. Relaxed rules have contributed

Yount rejoins Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Veteran shortstop Robin Yount has rejoined the Milwaukee Brewers, saying he wants to "help the Brewers win some ball games," the team reported Tuesday.
Yount, 22, who became a Brewers' starter when he broke in as a rookie in 1974, has been on the disabled list since March 28 and has spent some time since then in Arizona and California.

"I'm delighted to rejoin the club," a Brewers' spokesman quoted Yount as saying. "My foot feels fine. All I want to do is concentrate on baseball and help the Brewers win some ball games."

Bullets gain new confidence

From R-T sports wire services

Kevein Grevey intimated that had Washington lost Sunday's game to the Philadelphia 76ers, it might have shot the Bullets right out of the NBA playoffs. The Bullets lost a four-point lead in the final 5 seconds and had to go into overtime to upset the favored Sixers 122-117 in the first of a best-ofseven Eastern Conference playoff final. Doug Collins' 21-foot jumper at the regulation buzzer tied it at 109.

"It would have been a serious blow if we lost that game," said Grevey, whose 26 points helped the Bullets win here for the first time in more than three years. "It would have been terribly demoralizing," he explained, "because they weren't sharp. And, if we couldn't beat them when they weren't sharp, it would be tough doing

Now that the Houston Oilers have Earl Campbell ready to sign a $1.3 million contract, obtained Anthony Davis from Tampa Bay, signed a new Astrodome lease and made Dan Pastorini a millionaire, what's left for them in Tuesday's National Football League draft? "I'll say this, we'll get Coach O.A. "Bum' Phillips said. "In other years, our scouts and our combines have been looking at the players but this year, the coaches went out dormant University of Detroit basketball program to a national power, now has the same challenge facing him in the pros as new coach of the perennial sad-sack Detroit Pistons of the NBA. "This is the greatest thrill," the 37-year-old Vitale said. NCAA, says CU regent BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - A University of Colorado regent has suggested that the NCAA receive a share of the bonus money paid to college athletes when they turn professional.

> "It seems to me outrageous that we don't share in the reimbursement for the athletes we develop," said regent Byron Johnson, who also is an economics professor at CU. "We invest a lot in developing these players."

Reimburse

At a Board of Regents meeting last month, Johnson suggested informally that players drafted by pro teams should split their bonus money with the school they attended. He later amended his proposalLby naming the NCAA as the beneficiary.

"IF WHAT we produce generates a substantial capital gain, why shouldn't we share in that capital gain?" Johnson asked. "Pro sports will scream, of course. They cry all the way to the bank every year.'

Johnson, who noted that 29 CU athletes have been drafted by National Football League teams the past three years, said the NFL should pay a flat rate for every draft choice. He said the figure might be $25,000 for a firstround choice, $20,000 for a second round pick, etc.

The same principle could be applied to basketball and perhaps even baseball, Johnson said.

PORTLAND COACH Jack Ramsay seems to be questioning a non-call during NBA playoff action against Seattle. Jack demonstrates that he suspects some holding on the play. (AP

Midland Lee, 4-1 in the second half, will try to face Abilene High Wednesday at 4 p.m. at the Lee diamond while Midland High will wait until Thursday at 4 p.m. to test Abilene Cooper in Abilene.

Lee shares first place with Big Spring, and will need a victory to keep the second half lead.

Abilene owns a 3-2 mark in the cond half and it was Warbirds that spolied things by coming from behind to down Lee, 6-5, in Abilene during the first half of the race.

Johnson will call upon junior righthander Terry Willis (5-2) to face the Eagles while it most likely will be Gary Green on the mound for the Key City team which was surprised by San Angelo, 9-1, Saturday.

THERE MAY be a new lineup change today at second base for the Rebels with Chris Saptya taking the place of Don Rasure who is suffering from blurred vision with an eye in-

While Lee and Abilene are battling, Midland High, already out of the race, travels to Abilene for a date with the Cooper Cougars, who are also 3-2 in the race with an outside chance of sharing the second half title if they can beat the Bulldogs today and Abilene on Saturday. That would only happen if Lee should stumble against either Abilene or the Purple Pack.

Joining Willis and either Sapyta or Rasure in the lineup today will be Doug Schmidt at first base; Steve Pitts at shortstop; Craig Van Horn at third with the out-field being made up of Todd Clements in left; Pat Moore in center and Richard Josefy in right. Clay Calhoun will handle the catching chores. Lee will be seeking it's 20th victory of the year against eight losses while the Warbirds bring a season mark of 12-10 on the season to the Tall City. Midland, meanwhile, is 11-14 on the season while Cooper's mark is 11-8. Tracy Gann (3-4) or Archie Booth (5-1) will pitch for the Purple Pack while Roy Haile is the likely choice for Midland will start Mark Mead at first base; Mike Mowles at second; Steve Cole or Jimmy Zachry at shortstop and either Gann or Booth at third. In the outfield, it will be either Cole or Rick Foster in left; Ricky Goode in center and Joe Mowles in right with either Tommy Munoz or

James Allen catching.

Odessa Permian third baseman Gary Hix continues to lead the hitting parade in 5-4A with a .486 average followed closely by Moore with a .467 average and secondbaseman Byron Roberts of Abilene next with a .429 mark. Tony Mann of Big Spring is hitting at a .. 421 clip as is Josefy while Van Horn is spanking the ball at a .415 clip. Cooper's Gary Mearse and Tracy Thomas both are hitting at an even .400 clip. Roberts continues to lead in the runs-batted-in department with 15 while Mann has 13 RBIs and Van Horn and Clements have 11 each. Moore and Cowboy Hester of Abilene

Goode and Zachry lead the Bulldogs in hitting in loop play with .342 averages. Bobby Mize of Cooper is hitting 387 while Terry Austin of Abilene owns a .385 average and teammate Glen Stirman is hitting .343.

Mann leads in home runs with five while Mize a poked three. Hix and Moore share the leadership in doubles with seven each while Josefy and Rasure both have three triples each. Moore leads in runs scored with 16, proving that he is an ideal leadoff hit-

Gibraltar Savings

A strong savings and loan is one of the safest places to keep your money.

Gibraltar is financial stability.

Assets at Gibraltar exceed $2 billion. Reserves are larger than any other savings association, of any type. anywhere in Texas. Financial stability like this makes Gibraltar Savings one of the safest investments available in Texas today.

Gibraltar is America's first insured.

In 1934 Congress, under Franklin D. Roosevelt, agreed that savings plans should be insured against loss. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation was formed and Gibraltar Savings was selected to become the first savings association in America to offer insured savings plans.

Gibraltar is only in Texas.

Gibraltar now has offices in and around Midland, Lubbock, Amarillo, Fort Worth. Dallas, Houston and Corpus Christi. No other savings and loan serves so many Texans in so many areas of the state. Gibraltar is the largest in Texas.

Gibraltar is investing in Texas.

Gibraltar is supplying the necessary funds to construct new homes across the state. After construction, Gibraltar supplies the necessary funds to finance the purchase of these new homes. Gibraltar is investing over $1.75 billion in loans, creating jobs and improving the economy for all Texans. At Gibraltar, we're investing more into Texas than any other savings and loan in the state.

Affirmed faces tough Derby rival

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Laz Barrera, trainer of Affirmed, says his colt not only faces a tough rival in Alydar for Saturday's 104th Kentucky Derby, but he's bucking sentiment for the Calumet Farm colt.

Not even the presence of Kentucky-born-and-bred Steve Cauthen aboard Affirmed is expected to sway the favorite's role from Alydar, winner of the Flamingo, Florida Derby and Blue Grass Stakes.

"LOGIC SAYS we should be the favorite," said Barrera on a chily Monday morning at Churchill Downs. "We beat him four of six races, IfUthi race was in California, Affirmed would be the favorite, but it's Ken-tucky, so Alydar will be favored." Alydar's probable favoritism will be built a great deal on the fact that Calumet Farm, winner of a record eight derbies, is a legend among racing fans, especially in Kentucky.

Adding to the sentiment: the owners, Admiral and Mrs. Gene Markey, are in their 80's, and Calumet hasn't had a Derby winner since Forward Pass won it in 1968 when Dancer's Image was disqualified. V Affirmed, owned by Harbor View

Farm, scored those victories over Alydar last year and emerged as the Eclipse Award winner as the top 2-year-old. They haven't faced each other this year and both are unbeaten as 3-year-olds. Affirmed's big wins this year came in the Santa Anita and Hollywood Derbies

"I KNOW one thing," said Barrera. "My colt is very sound and in helluva good shape. All we need now is luck in the race. Knock on wood." The Cuban-born trainer, who saddled 1976 Derby winner Bold Forbes, rapped mond Earl.

"His style hasn't changed from last year — it's just that he's a stronger horse now. He's a one-run horse and that's the style that's been most successful in the Derby, making a run from the three-eighths pole."

While Alydar and Affirmed are expected to be the top two choices, Joseph Taub's Senstitive Prince, unbeaten in six career starts, and Hickory Tree Stable's Believe It, the Wood Memorial winner, also are regarded as top contenders for the 11/4-mile race, first leg of thoroughbred rac-

In his varsity years at Army, Jab-lonsky had the satisfaction of beating Navy three straight times. But the final game of his career was a heartbreaking 13-12 loss to Notre Dame.

"We weren't expected to do much that season," the general recalled.
"Sports writer Grantland Rice predicted we wouldn't win a major game. But we upset Bob Zuppke's heavily favored Illinois team 6-0 and had an unbeaten record going against Notre Dame at Yankee Stadium.

"WE LED the Irish 12-0. Then with eight minutes to play, Notre Dame powered its way to a touchdown and, with two minutes to go, we were kicking out from our own 20 with a 12-7 lead. Moose Krause (present Notre Dame athletic director) was left tackle and Wayne Milner was left end. They rushed in, blocked the punt and won the game.'

Jablonsky commanded the 515th Parachute Regiment in Europe during World War II, did temporary duty in Japan and Iran before retiring from the Army with two stars in 1969.

"None of our players was exceptionally big in those days," he said.
"Jack Hutchinson was the biggest man on our team - a tackle, 202

92 '500' hopes presents a problem

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A record 92 entries pose a logistical problem at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, especially for the owners and drivers of 10 cars which still are without assigned garages in Gasoline Alley.

It's a common practice for some car owners to submit entries for socalled ghost vehicles, race cars which exist on paper only, in order to obtain two or more adjacent garages for two or more adjacent garages for extra working space.

But the Speedway can't do a thing about it until after qualifications, when the field has been trimmed to the 33 starters for the Indy 500.

Before that, however, each entry, whether the car shows up or not, is guaranteed garage space as long as there are garages still available. And a garage will be vacated only "when it becomes apparent that the car does not exist," says Al Bloemker, the Speedway's director of publicity.

As long as the owner has submitted an entry, no one can say he won't bring in a car at the last minute before qualifications, Bloemker said. "We're not mindreaders."

The legitimate entries so far without garages include cars for Janet Guthrie, Salt Walther, Eldon Rasmussen and rookies Larry Rice, Ed Finley and Phil Threshie. "The Speedway has no part in that. It's up to each entrant" to provide for garage facilities, Bloemker said.

"Sometimes they make arrange-ments with other bonafide entrants to share garages, or they haul 'em away to private garages outside the Speed-way each day," Bloemker said. "But that's up to them. The Speedway doesn't handle that."

A handful of entries already have arrived at the Speedway for Saturday's start of practice for the May 28 day's start of practice for the May 28 race. Cars entered by defending champion A.J. Foyt, Bobby Unser, Pancho Carter, Wally Dallenbach, Danny Ongais and Spike Gehlhausen already were lodged in Gasoline Alley by Monday afternoon, and cars for at least seven other drivers were in various team garages around the city.

More cars are expected to arrive each day, and USAC's trackside of fice will open Thursday for registra-tion and technical inspection of the cars and physical examinations for

Cowboys major concern is retiring Neely and uncertain Rayfield Wright

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, faced with the retirement of Ralph Neely and Ray-field Wright's injury problems, says he wants some good offensive linemen from the National Football League

The 1978 NFL draft gets under way today, with the Houston Oilers grabbing Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell via a trade with Tampa Last year, it was Dallas that traded for Seattle's No. 1 choice to draft Tony Dorsett. But the Cowboys are at the other extreme today, getting the 28thpick by virtue of their Super Bowl triumph. "OUR MAJOR concern is the offensive line because (left tackle) Ralph Neely retired," said Landry, "If Ray-field Wright comes back strong enough we don't have a problem. If he doesn't, we want to be sure we have enough depth there."

Wright, an offensive tackle, returned to action late last season after knee problems.

Because of the Cowboys' computerized system of ranking collegiate players in advance, the draft has become an almost automatic affair for them. They pick the highest rated athlete available regardless of posi-

In cases where three or four players are rated practically the same, Landry said the team will draft on the basis of need.

This year's collegiate crop is considered below average by NFL scouts, so the "can't miss" prospects will go before the first round is completed THEREFORE, chances are excellent that the name of Dallas' firstround pick will be recognized by few persons beyond Cowboy scouts, his collegiate coach and his parents. "Oh, there are good players in there," Landry said. "They're just tougher to find, that's all."

Houston ordinarily would have drafted 17th, but the Oilers traded several days ago with Tampa Bay and have already agreed on contract terms with Campbell, an All-Ameri-

air can mean gross discomfort, and in some cases, death. More than three million Americans suffer from allergic asthma — and nearly half of them are disabled in some degree by the wheezing, wracking misery of asthmatic breathing. For these, when the air is "unacceptable," it is even more unacceptable.

Not many Americans remember the smog attack in Donora, Pa., in late October 1948. The river valley town near Pittsburgh was caught in a temperature inversion and dense smog from the town's smokestacks was trapped in the valley for four days before rain cleansed the air. Seventeen people died, some 15 more prime victims were elderly people and those with heart and respiratory

In normal people, it produced sore throats, breathing difficulties, eye and nose irritations, even nausea. Autopsies showed that those who died had clogged bronchial tubes and lung abnormalities. Of the population of 14,000, 340 had known allergic asthma, and 57 precent of them suffered from severe reactions - much higher than the population at large.

The culprit was smoke that would normally rise and be blown away by winds, and a peculiar weather pheno-menon called a temperature inver-

A temperature inversion is simply a layer of warm air which acts as a lid over cooler air near the earth's surface. It can be caused by a warm air front moving over cooler air, or it sometimes occurs when the earth cools more rapidly than the air above. A bright night gives way to a clear morning, but the warm air lid is up there, and the gases of the city are

There is little or nothing that can be done about temperature inversions, but when one occurs, a city could limit automobile travel and other energy uses that produce smog.

Tremendous amounts of smog are pumped into the air every day. There is an estimated quadrillion tons of air over the United States, and every year the nation's cars and chimneys pump 130 million tons of waste into it.

Before anti-pollution devices were required, automobiles produced up to 65 percent of the nation's aerial debris. Today, with energy requirements still going up and the nation turning to cheaper, more available coal, that high-polluting fuel will require tight controls.

There are two kinds of smog -Los Angeles smog and London smog. The Los Angeles type is produced by auto exhaust and is predominately hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides which, under sunlight, produce irritating ozone in the smog that is highly damaging to the eyes, nose and

London smog contains a larger amount of soot and sulfur dioxide. Sulfur dioxide joins with water to produce sulfuric acid. This type of smog can produce a kind of synthetic asth-

Studies have shown that the nasal passages filter out almost all of the sulfur dioxide inhaled, letting less than one percent of it through to the rest of the respiratory tract.

Individuals can do several things during a smog attack to make themselves more comfortable. If you suffer from heart or respiratory conditions you should stay indoors. If you do go outside, wear handkerchiefs or gauze masks over the face

But there are long range effects to air poliution too. Any number of studies show that long exposure to air pollution is followed by a high rate of respiratory disease. That could include common colds, chronic sinus trouble, bronchitis, asthma, emphysema and lung cancer.

Of over 29 million Americans whose activity is limited by chronic health conditions, more than three-and-ahalf-million of them suffer from respiratory problems.

The person with allergies, whether asthmatic or nasal, has a greater interest in the acceptable air and cer-tainly should be behind efforts to improve it. Air pollution control is costly, but so is air pollution. Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Chicago and other cities have done much to improve their air quality. That proves that even in heavily populated cities, combined federal, state and city governments can demand and get cleaner air.

Llano escapee captured after leap from window

He was in Cowper Clinic & Hospital this morning, Howard County Chief Deputy Sheriff Bill Whitton said

Love had been at large since March 22, when he and a Costal Rica national, Ismael Flores Umana, 21, escaped from a second-story window of the Llano County Jail after sawing through bars.

Umana was caught by lawmen the next day about four miles west of Big Love, who was serving time in the Texas Department of Corrections on a burglary conviction, was in Llano on a bench warrant for the disposition of a burglary trial when he escaped.

Whitton said an informer had told deputies that Love was staying in the Howard House hotel under an "assumed name.'

FFA group gives wooden module to park

Midland High district

The city of Midland is benefitting from a project completed by members of Future Farmers of America at Midland High School.

A wooden playground Hong JOHN SILVER'S by the group this past semester and was installed at Sidwell Park last week. While the module helped the youngsters to complete work on their Building Our American Community project, the children who play at the park may reap the most benefit.

The module is a piece of equipment Parks and Recreation Director Wayne Kohout said he would like to see installed in all playground areas. The module can accommodate from six to 10 children at a time, and includes a slide and chain ladder plus four or five other ways to get on it, he said. The 6-by-6 foot steel platform is about five feet off the ground.

The Midland High group took specifications from the manufacturer and reproduced them with local materials.

Sun Day is intended by its organizers to herald a new era of public awareness about solar energy's promise and to spur the federal government toward increased investment in solar technology. Although Sun Day's sponsors have sought to avoid any gloomy notes, the celebra-tion appears, nevertheless, to have a decidedly anti-nuclear flavor and it will take place amid continuing controversy over the Carter administra-

While President Carter and many other government officials plan to take part in Sun Day ceremonies, the Carter administration increasingly has drawn criticism from environmentalists, consumer advocates and others, who contend that Carter has neglected the solar option. energy source whose time has come. One energy expert believes that within 25 years industrialization throughout this lignite coal belt will rival that of the Ruhr Valley in West Germany. Already more than $12 million in lease fees and advance royalties has poured into the Concord area. Eighty per cent of the land around this little town - the center of which consists of two churches, to grocery stores, a cemetery, and a beauty shop

- has been leased for mining. The rush for lignite is the most excitement this crossroads has known since the oil boom brought wildcatters to East Texas in the 1930s.

Signs of "lignite money" have cropped out everywhere in Concord new cars, pickup trucks, tractors, boats, even a few new brick homes, a diamond ring for one wife — but most of the new wealth has gone into savings accounts in nearby banking com-

For Wiley Kee, lignite money means security in old age and medical care for his wife, Nannie Mae.

The cache of lignite was never a secret in Texas energy circles, but with cheap and plentiful supplies of natural gas and oil, lignite was priced out of the market. Now, President Carter's energy plan calls for phasing out natural gas as a boiler fuel by 1990. The Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates fuels in the state, has ordered intrastate natural gas pipelines to cut deliveries to boiltheir 1975 levels by 1981. By 1985 this will be further reduced to 75 percent. Problems are predicted for many industries, especially utilities, which use gas to produce 85 percent of their electricity and must now scramble for other fuels. Since there is very little bituminous and sub-bituminous coal in the state, some have resorted to importing Western coal. The Texas lignite belt, which is 30 to 40 miles wide and extends 400 miles fom Texarkana to San Antonio, provides a cost-competitive alternative. Most of the deposits lie at depths up to 10,000 feet, but at least 10 billion tons of the lignite is no deeper than 250 feet and could, be strip-mined by using current technology.

Lignite gives off only about threefourths the heat of Western coal and is not as low in sulfur. However, lower labor and construction costs and transportation-to-consumer costs offset these differences. The lignite appears in layers less than 10 feet thick, with a 5- or 6-foot seam considered very good, and numerous energy companies are bidding for the coal. When large-scale mining operations begin in the lignite belt may depend on the outcome of a number of lawsuits that have been filed asking for review of the 1977 Federal Surface Mining Act. The complainants, including the state of Texas, say the act defines "prime farmland" in a way that would bar strip mining of nearly three-fourths of the state's lignite that is near the surface. Landowners in East Texas say that their soil was exhausted long ago by the traditional crops of cotton, corn, tomatoes and peppers, which have now been replaced by small herds of cattle in the Concord area. Carter Oil Co., a domestic affiliate

Wesco has new name

Aztec Gas, inc., is the new name of Wesco Gas Services, Inc., of Midland. Officers of the recently reorganized concern are Jim Pruett, president; Cal Calhoun, vice president, and J. L. Davis, secretary. Each of the men have more than 20 years experience in gathering, processing and comressing gas.

Pruett, an engineer, has been in the gas consulting, gas gathering and compressor rental business since 1969. Prior to 1969, he was an engineer and manager of Texas Oil & Gas Corp. in the Permian Basin. Calhoun, prior to joining Wesco, was president of Wells Co. Prior to 1974 he was general superintendent for Texas Oil & Gas. Davis, an engineer, has operated a gas consulting firm in Midland since 1966. Before that, he was natural Gas Manager for Mobil Oil Co. He currently is responsible for numerous gasoline plants and related gathering systems in Texas, Colorado and New Mexico.

of the Exxon Corp., extracted 16,500 tons of lignite last year from a 92foot-deep pit on land adjacent to Kee's farm. The coal was shipped to a plant in South Africa, where its use in the manufacture of synthetic gas was

In 1980 the company will decide whether to build a $2 billion coal gasification plant near here. Mining the 33,000 acres tha Carter Oil has leased in the area could feed a synthetic plant 15 million tons of lignite per year for 30 years. At present, the nation's largest coal mine produces a little over 10 million tons per year.

The gasification process that Carter Oil is considering would yield a product with less than half the heating value of natural gas. The pro-posed plant, however, would turn out gas and hydrocarbon liquids equivalent to 65,000 barrels of oil daily and would provide 2,000 jobs.

Carter Oil and Dow Chemical have leased 45,000 acres near Concord, paying royalty advances of $250 to $300 per acre.

Problem solvers common; crises managers rare in US business

NEW YORK (AP) - One of corporate America's big weaknesses, said the management analyst, is that it has a lot of problem solvers but few turnaround managers.

The latter, said Eugene Jennings, can restructure a sick company and build a lasting organization - new image, new direction, sound financing, strong executive staff.

The former, capable in their own right, handle one problem at a time, a performance that can prove disastrous for crisis-ridden companies with fundamental, multiple, inter-related difficulties.

Jennings, management professor at Michigan State University, author and confidential adviser to top corporate executives, distinguishes between problems and crises in this manner

"To managers, a problem to be solved is the choice between a current condition and a more desirable condi-

"A crisis is where a current condition is untenable if not intolerable, and the alleviation of it does not appear to be at hand."

Quite understandably, he observes, the crisis manager is very exceptional, very much in demand, and very much in short supply. There is no training ground for the crisis manager; he acts as he learns.

'Very few chief executives have a bullpen of turnaround managers in whom they have confidence to move a sick division or company efficiently and effectively," he comments. But many need such people.

Put a problem-solver in the job and he often turns too far or liquidates the management and assets, said Jennings, leaving the company without the energy it needs for the long haul.

"We have executives in great numbers who can clear up the balance sheet and the profit-loss statement, but we don't have as many who can rebuild the foundation," he said in an interview.

A consequence of this shows up in the nature of today's mergers and acquisitions, in which high-cost but quality companies are sought in preference to less costly but troubled con-

The latter, Jennings points out, might in the long run represent the better acquisition, but the absence of turnaround managers prevents the acquirer from taking the risk in-

Probably one of the best crisis executives ever produced, Jennings believes, was Ernest Breech, who helped turn around a sick Ford Motor Co. Currently, he believes, Robert Wilson of Memorex Corp. is developing a turnaround reputation, which began at Collins Radio.

Several others are on the spot, and also could develop similarly strong reputations, but that is a decision to be made by time and results.

Among the more prominent of them are Roy Ash at Addressograph-Multigraph, William Seawell of Pan Am, Frank Borman at Eastern Airlines, Joseph Flavin at Singer and Donald Rumsfeld at G.D. Searle. "Five or six years from now," said

Jennings, "about one in five will be said by their peers to have had the finesse, skills, tactics, new image, direction. Very few will get to be a Bob Wilson. It won't be the absence of opportunity that might deny them the accolade, but simply the complexity of the job. Their challenge is not one problem, but a web of them, drawn taught by the urgency of time.

A newsman's flashback to the Vietnamese war

EDITOR'S NOTE - Associated fired a shot into his head. He fell Press Correspondent George Esper spreadeagled on his back, mortally covered the war in Vietnam for 10 wounded. years. He was in Saigon when the war Three years ago Sunday, the war was finished. The guns fell silent ended three years ago — on April 30, 1975 - and remained in the country for five weeks after South Vietnam surrendered.

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer

His eyes were sad, those of a broken

"It's finished," the lieutenant colonel of the Saigon police said.

Weary Saigon soldiers marched past him to stack their weapons in surrender. Hundreds tore off their uniforms and boots and discarded them in the streets.

The colonel walked 10 feet away from me to the front of a war memorial statue, fingering his pistol.

For a moment, I thought he was going to shoot me in the back because the Americans had given up on Vietnam. Angry Vietnamese guards were firing into the air and in the direction of American evacuees on buses, shouting, "We want to go, too."

Instead, he did an about face, saluted the statue, raised his pistol and across Vietnam. But the memories still haunt many Many Vietnamese came to the Associated Press bureau to beg us to intercede with U.S. officials for their evacuation or to take them with us when we left. One Vietnamese woman slept at my doorstep, fearing I might leave the country without her.

Most of our Vietnamese staff, apprehensive because of the impending takeover since they worked for an American agency, left to be with their families despite our efforts to calm

When the lone remaining teletype operator read the bulletin that I had handed him to transmit, reporting that North Vietnamese troops were in front of the Caravelle Hotel, he started to run from the room.

Colleague Peter Arnett and I held him down until he cleared the bulletin. When we let him go, he disappeared out the door and didn't return for three days until it was clear there

The day before the surrender, large groups of Vietnamese clawed their way up the 10-foot wall of the U.S. Embassy in desperate attempts to get aboard American evacuation helicopters. U.S. Marines and civilians used pistol and rifle butts to push them

I had wondered for years how the war would end, and I had often joked with my colleagues that I would be the last correspondent in Saigon, and on the telephone when the North Vietnamese came.

That's exactly how it happened. Two North Vietnamese soldiers walked into our office. I was on the telephone, vainly trying to get a circuit to anywhere.

Vietnam was a war that most Americans wanted to forget as quickly as possible, but not all of them

There were the refugees streaming into the United States, trying to make a life for themselves, sometimes in small towns across the land, visible reminders.

Prime minister dislikes egocentricity of Japanese

By SAM JAMESON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan, who will begin two days of talks here Tuesday, dislikes what he calls the egocentric nature of the Japanese, a tendency to put the individual ahead of society as a whole.

Too many Japanese, he once ob-served, feel that "if I am all right, everything is fine.

More than a year ago, in his first policy speech to the Diet (parlianent); Fukuda complained that the Japanese had "become accustomed to rapid growth and drunk with their prosperity." And in an interview on the eve of his talks with President Carter, he conceded that nothing had really changed in that respect.

Foreigners have criticized the Japanese as "economic animals" more concerned with profits than with social considerations. Fukuda said that this could be due in part to Japan's unusually rapid economic growth, yet he said there is nothing wrong with Fukuda assumed office in December, 1976, saying that his Cabinet would be a "let's work Cabinet," and he has kept his word. Government decisions have been churned out week after week at Cabinet meetings convened every Tuesday and Friday and often on Saturday as well.

Fukuda has taken only three brief rest trips since taking office. Asked about this, he said, "A society which is not made up of diligent people is a society which has no vitality....If Japanese enjoyed themselves in the same ways as Americans or Brazilians, who live in countries with great natural resources, the foundation of our society would sink," Fukuda said. Cautious steps toward a five-day work week for government workers

He took another such step last August when he toured Southeast Asia, appealing for "heart-to-heart" exchanges and pledging that Japan would double its foreign aid within the next five years.

But the 73-year-old leader still bears the brunt of foreign criticism for his nation's burgeoning trade surpluses, which reached $20.4 billion in the fiscal year that ended March 31.

Signs of a calmer and more tranquil society are appearing. The massive annual wage increases of past years have ceased, and the days of wild spending and speculation have been replaced with a sharp drop in consumer spending.

Indeed, tight-fisted consumers have become a bottleneck to breaking out of the economic stagnation that has plagued most Japanese industies except autos and electronics -

Fukuda's entire adult life has been spent in government and politics. After law school at Tokyo University he went into the Finance Ministry in 1929. Stationed in London and Paris until 1933, he saw first-hand how the failure of international attempts to repair the ailing world economy led to World War II. It was an experience he mentions frequently in warning that a tragedy similar to the protectionism of the 1930s could happen again. In 1952, he was elected to the Diet and for the next 24 years prepared himself for the nation's top post. He served six times in the Cabinet and held executive posts in the ruling party four times before becoming prime minister.

Although an amiable man, Fukuda's cautious nature and managerial approach to politics blend with his establishment image to project what many Japanese see as stiffness. His ratings in public opinion polls have been the lowest of any postwar prime not think Carter would complete any U.S. policy toward Asia "until he meets me." In 1972, when he lost a heartbreaking battle for the presidency of the ruling party and the pre-miership, he said, "The day when Japan needs me will come."

The flexibility he has shown in decision-making belies his public image

He has come full circle on economic policy and is now advocating "whatever measures are necessary" to achieve a 7 percent level of economic growth in fiscal 1978.

In what little free time he allows himself, Fukuda indulges in golf (his handicap is a secret), calligraphy and bird-watching. Go, a game similar to but much more difficult than checkers, is his specialty.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market turned downward in another busy session today, apparently yielding to an accumulation of bad economic news over the past several days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Monday at its highest level in more than five months, pulled back 6.15 to 838.18 by noontime today Losers outnumbered gainers by a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues Analysts said traders seemed skeptical that the market could continue to ignore the negative economic news that has built up in recent days. In particular, they cited rising interest rates and inflation worries. The government late last week reported a 0.8 percent rise in the consumer price index for March. Monday brought the news of a 0.1 percent drop in the government index of leading economic indicators during March, and a record U.S. trade deficit in the first quarter, as measured on a balance-of-payments basis. K Mart fell 15% to 25% in active trading. On Monday the company estimated lower earnings for the fiscal first quarter ended April 27. The NYSE's composite common-stock index dropped .31 to 54.05. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .08 at 137.16. Volume on the Big Board reached 16.50 million shares by noontime against 15.41 million at the same point

Stock Concorde market bursts swiftly

EDITOR'S NOTE: On a recent trip from London to New York, Associated Press writer James Robins, himself a private pilot, flew aboard the supersonic Concorde. He records his experience.

By JAMES ROBINS Associated Press Writer

ABOARD THE CONCORDE (AP) - The supersonic Concorde jetliner seems to be bursting from unwanted earthly shackles as it bounds into the air

The four Rolls-Royce tubrojets roar beneath the drooping, delta wings, thrusting the slender aircraft into an abrupt climb, much steeper than the standard ascent of a subsonic jetliner.

Once airborne, the pilot sharply cuts the power to limit noise as the Concorde moves west over the sprawling suburbs of London, jerking nervously like a caged animal during the 330 mph climb.

Over the Bristol Channel and pointed toward the Atlantic at just under the speed of sound, about 630 mph, the co-pilot announces over the plane's intercom, "Supersonic acceleration commences in 21/2 minutes. There is a restless anxiety among some of the 96 passengers aboard, many of whom are making their first supersonic flight. One can't help but wonder what it will feel like to break the sound barrier. Two small shudders rock the plane as the pilot activates the afterburners, adding about 20 percent more power per engine. A terrific sense of acceleration follows. The back and shoulders press into the seat cushion.

"There we are ladies and gentlemen," the co-pilot announces, "we're supersonic now." It is exactly 16 minutes after takeoff. A digital display at the front of each of the two cabins reads, "M 1.00" - Mach 1. The speed of sound. The plane continues its acceleration and reaches

Mach 1.50 at 22 minutes after takeoff. It climbs through 14,000 feet at 1,000 mph and continues to pick up speed. At this point, another facet of Concorde's luxury commences. Cabin stewards begin pouring French champagne and passing out dainty, dough shells shaped like canoes and filled with fresh Iranian No reaching for the wallet on this flight. Either you or your company already has done that. The one-way fare is about $800, double the cost of an economyclass seat on a standard commerical jetliner. Somewhere between the asparagus tips vinagrette and roast lamb — precisely 1 hour, 7 minutes after takeoff — Concorde, now well over the Atlantic, reaches Mach 2, about 1,320 mph. Cruising between 50,000 and 65,000 feet, twice as high as subsonic craft, Concorde now is in its element. The ride has become smooth and steady. The engine noise, however, remains noticeably greater than on other jets. There are no clouds to be seen directly outside the tiny 5- by 3-inch windows, only the seemingly infinite blue of the upper stratosphere, which teases the eyes into dizziness.

Except for the digital display on the bulkheads. there is no evidence or sensation of speed after Concorde reaches Mach 2

On the four-man flight deck, the captain has elevated Concorde's hinged needle nose, streamlinging the aircraft. He drops the speed to Mach 1.95 when the temperature at the tip approaches 300

Lunch is over. The stewards and stewardesses pour coffee and aperitifs, then pass out individually tubed Jamaican cigars and cigarettes from a leather-covered box.

Just under three hours after takeoff, the co-pilot announces Nantucket Island is visible beneath the right side of the aircraft. The descent begins. and the passenger can monitor the deceleration on the digital displays. As the Concorde descends for landing down the Atlantic beside eastern Long Island, the aircraft looses its supersonic grace and again seems stiff and bumpy at the lessened speed. Heat from the plane's outer skin makes the cabin stuffy. The plane lurches into a steep turn, then levels out in a vertically tilted configuration, its tail section dropped and nose elevated. The captain drops the hinged snout so he can see the runway. Exactly 3 hours and 22 minutes after takeoff from London, about half the time of a subsonic flight, Concorde touches down in New York, beating the sun by just over two hours in its race across the Atlantic.

Females waiting for 'swinger'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When Ramar swings, Philadelphia Zoo officials hope it won't be from a tree, but with a female gorilla. Ramar is a 350-pound male gorilla, brought here from North Carolina to make baby gorillas. He's in quarantine now, and zoo officials say it will be perhaps a fortnight before he'll get a chance to see if he can hit it off with the ladies.

Three female gorillas are in waiting, but, alas, zoo officials have no guarantee he's their type.

"Take the male gorilla (Johnny) we've had here for at least four years. He shows little, if any, interest in mating," junior zoo keeper Patti Kuntz-mann said Friday. "Ramar may be the same way." Gorillas, an endangered species, are highly social animals who tend to follow examples. Should Ramar mate, zoo officials hope Johnny would ape his behav-

Ramar, who like Johnny is 9 years old, is on breeding loan from the North Carolina Zoo in Asheboro, where he was given a going-away party April

"Ramar is reaching maturity and has not had the . opportunity to socialize with others of his kind," said Andrew Lucker, the North Carolina zoo's acting director. "We owe it to him to provide that opportunity before he grows too old to adjust.'

Ramar, a native of Angola in West Africa, once was a nightclub star. An animal trainer started himout at the age of 1 when he weighed only 22 pounds, playing nightspots from Miami to Las Vegas, pedaling a tricycle and knocking off handstands atop a 10-foot pole. He was sold to the North Carolina zoo in 1974—at 200 pounds he was too big for tricycles.

If baby gorillas are born, the North Carolina Zoo will get the first one, and every odd-numbered one thereafter. Philadelphia will keep the even-numbered offspring.

Ramar spent a good bit of Friday snoozing. The day before a knot of school children had kept him up, oohing and aahing everytime he moved. Some of the idolators wore T-shirts proclaiming: "I'm Ape Over Ramar."

About 100 yards away sat Massa, at age 47 the world's oldest captive gorilla. A bachelor, he too once was encouraged to mate, but in a match-up that never could have worked out.

"He originally was thought to be a female," explained a zoo spokesman, "so he was introduced to Bamboo, a male. They fought so hard they had to be modern, technological United States and developing but still rural Mexico. Its existence is most evident along the 1,933-mile border that the United States shares with Mexico, but it is highly visible as well in such diverse nonborder cities as Los Angeles, Phoenix, Albuquerque, Houston and Denver. Its existence poses a threat to the Amrican melting pot ideal greater than ever faced from the Irish, the Czechs, the Italians and the Poles.

million in the Southwest alone.

Even in Diboll, Tex., in the Dixieoriented pinewoods section of the state near Louisiana, Mexican-Americans are nearly numerically equal to blacks, and the town's largest employer, plywood company Temple EasTex, is considering instructing new employees through bilingual film strips. Los Angeles, with a larger population of Mexican heritage than any other city except Mexico City, is considered the capital of MexAmerica. It is home to 1:5 million citizens of Mexican ancestry and perhaps 500,000 more illegal immigrants. Large sections of east Los Angeles and the downtown area, sometimes derisively called "Baja Hollywood," are indistinguishable from similar areas in large Latin American city. The language that is spoken there is both Spanish and English and often, as in the phrase, "Presta mi su credit card," it is a mixture of both languages that irritates purists of either one. For the first time, Mexican-Americans outnumber either Anglo-Amricans or blacks in the Los Angeles school system. The world that will be emerges most clearly in kindergarten where 50 percent of the children claim Spanish as their first language. And the Los Angeles polce force for the first time is requiring all of its cadets to take six months of

New English-Spanish nation emerges in Southwest

Its name is MexAmerica, and the lessons it is teaching the larger nation

By the mid-1980s, thnumber of Hispanic-Americans — including immigrants from Caribbean islands and South America as well as Mexico - is expected to exceed the 30 million projected for American blacks.

Today, in the southwestern states of Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and California, Mexican-Americans already vastly outnumber blacks, Asians and all other minorites, reaching as high as 36 percent.

They even outnumber "Anglos" in Brownsville.

"A binational, bicultural, bilingual world.

The history of MexAmerica dates back to the conquistadors and mission now the American Southwest. But its startling growth, both in numbers and both sides of the border. Mexico itself has a higher birth rate than conversational Spanish. In El Paso, Enrique Perez grew up when public school students were detained after school if teachers overheard them speaking Spanish during school hours. Today, Perez is the school system's director of federal programs, which helps fund a $5.5 million bilingual education program that teaches Spanish to Anglos and English to Mexican-Americans with the goal of making students fluent in

In New Mexico, Jerry Apodaca recalls the days 35 years ago when he lived with his family in across-thetracks segregated housing in Tyler. Tex., where his father was a soldier. Today, Apodaca is the first Mexican-American governor of New Mexico since 1917. Ineligble to succeed himself under state law, he is looking forward to running for the U.S. Senate

And in Arizona, Mexican-Americans last month celebrated Good Friday as it was celebrated in Mexico City - by visiting special altars at seven different churches. For the past four years in Phoenix and for the past 19 in Tuscon, nearer the border - well-off Mexican-Americans have adopted the Mexican custom, following a tradition of 16thcentury Spain, of presenting their 15year-old daughters to society at events known as Quinceanera balls. At the other end of the socioeconomic spectrum, the Mexican-American sections of Phoenix are organized into 16 barrios - or neighborhoods where residents warn each other of approaching welfare workers or policemen. The growing Mexican influence is seen in food, fashion, architecture and

The Mexican milk candy, dulce de leche, is now sold outside the barrios. So are the Mexican embroidered dresses favored by many Anglo women during the long, hot southwestern summers. Tex-Mex fast food stands and cafes, doling out tacos and burritos with hot sauce that many Mexicans regard as barbarously American, abound

Department stores in the Southwest feature racks of "disco Mexicanos," long-playing records of Freddy Fender singing in English and Spanish and of such Spanish-language favorites as Julio Iglesias, Silvestre Vargas, Pedro Infante and te Los Increasingly in MexAmerica. Spanish is the language of the airwaves. The Southwest used to have only a handful of Spanish-language radio stations. Now there are 37 in Texas, 28 in California, six in Arizona, four in New Mexico.

In Midland, Tex., cable television brings in the Spanish-language channel from San Antonio. In California, Los Angeles-based Channel 34 serves an audience of 2 million from San Diego to San Francisco with all-day broadcasting of news, variety shows and movies. At p.m. daily the news-oriented Mexican-Amrican customarily sits down to watch anchorman Javier Calodosky, known as the Walter Cronkite of Mexico, over the Spanish Information Network.

The written word in the Southwest also is becoming both English and Spanish. Popular magazines such as "Nuestro - The Magazine for Latinos" are written in both languages. So are emergency warning cards on Texas International Airlines, legal advertisements in Houston and dialing instructions on telephone booths throughout southern Spanish is spoken by two-thirds of the catholics in MexAmerica. Churches where the pictures of past priests named O'Reilly or Murphy adorn the parish office walls are served now by priests named Sanchez or Gonzalez. Bishop Juan Arzube of Los Angeles, a leader in the growing

"Latino" movement in the church, regards the Catholic parish as the basic building block for organizing Mexican-Americans whom he sees as a largely unmeltable ethnic group.

Unmeltable they well may be. In the 1960s third-generation Mexican-Americans experienced a rebirth in pride of heritage not dissimilar to that felt by third-generation Americans whose grandparents came to the United States from Europe.

They called themselves "Chicanos" appropriating what used to be a neutral term used to describe Mexicans who lived in the United States. (Many people of Mexican heritage who lived in the southwest at the time of World War II referred to themselves as "Mexican." The term "Mexican-American" came into wide usage at the time of that war, in which Mexican-Americans fought in disproportionately high numbers.)

But in the '60s "Chicano" became a proud badge of ethnic identifiction among the young, as "Latino" has become popular in the '70s. The metamorphosis of self-image has continued because the cultural influence from south of the border has been continually renewed. Unlike European immigrants, who were separated from their roots by an ocean, they are separated from Mexico only by a common, indistinguishable border.

The influence of the United States also is strong in Mexico, particularly in the interdependent border regon. While Spanish is taught in the high schools and colleges of the U.S. Southwest, English uniformly is offered in Mexican schools. Clusters of twin factories known as maquiladoras dot the border region, taking advantage of cheap Mexican labor and a customfree zone to hand-finish radios, toys and calculators. American foodstuffs and clothes are both necessitieies and status symbols in Mexico, which is the fourth-largest customer for U.S. exports.

In the border region a crisis in one country frequently means a crisis or an opportunity - in another. Unemployment in rural Mexico drives illegal immigrants north. The Arab oil embargo brings American motorists into Mexico to buy its plentiful gasoline. When the Mexican peso devalued in 1976, business onthe American side of the border slumped so severely that Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked the Small Business Administration to declare El Paso and five border counties a disaster

The man who epitomizes the twonation quality south of the border is Roberto de la Madrid, a charismatic bilingual politician who rose from shoeshiner to banker to governor of Baja California Norte. He once served as vice chairman of the San Diego Planning Commission, and in the opinion of Lucy Killea, who runs the San Diego-based border organization known as Fronteras de las Californias, "could have as easily been elected in this country as he is in

Indeed, de la Madrid and his young, aggressive staff favor Americans' political techniques and admire families such as the Kennedys. De la Madrid campaign posters said simply "Roberto." As governor, he has introduced daily press briefings and televised reports to the people.

Every few weeks de la Madrid flies his plane north for a meeting with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who comes down from Sacramento to meet, him at a quiet Hollywood retaurant called El Adobe. It is a meeting of equals between two canny politicians who supporters believe will one day become presidents of their respective countries. The equality is based on mutual need: Brown wants Mexican oil and natural gas commitments as backstops for his antinuclear energy stand in California and de la Madrid wants American tourist dollars and a second border crossing at San Diego to bolster Baja's economy. We're inextricably linked with those people, and the sooner we realize it the better," Brown said in a recent interview. "Mexico's not an island. If something goes wrong in Mexico City, it will be felt in Los Angeles and El Paso."

ngeles and El Paso."
Recently Brown demonstrated his changes political grasp of the growing importance of MexAmerica when he kept hundreds at a Democratic convention waiting for him until. midnight in San Diego while he addressed nonpartisan Mexican solidarity rally in Los Angeles that concluded, "Viva la Raza (the Mexican people)! Viva yourselves."

The same day that Brown was making points with Mexican-Americans the state convention of the California Republican Party was passing a resolution condemning bilingual education. On its face this was an act of political folly demonstrating anew why the GOP has become a seemingly permanent political minority. But the action also reflected two other facets of MexAmerica — the longstanding political impotence of Mexican-Americans and the fear of some members of the Anglo majority that a new ethnic awakening is about to occur.

The situation is somewhat different in New Mexico, where a Spanish-American tradition developed before English immigrants landed at Plymouth Rock. In other states, however, Mexican-Americans have never been represented in proportion to their numbers. They are about to become a political majority in San Antonio because of federal pressure to change the election system, but there is not a single Mexican-American councilman in such strongholds of the Mexican heritage as Los Angeles.

There are many in the Southwest who think that this historic pattern of political underrepresentaiton is about to change. They see protests and political stirrings in Texas. Colorado. Arizona, New Mexico and California as signs that Mexican-Americans are on the verge of pressing as strongly for full civil and political equality as black people in the United States have done during the past generation.

This awakening is exciting to people such as Ramon Edardo Ruiz, a Latin-American historian who returned to the University of California at San Diego from New England - which he regards as "the only truly civilized place in the United States" - because he wanted to be around Mexicans and Mexican-Americans. Ruiz believes that the Southwest has "everything to gain and nothing to lose" from the cultural infusion, but some anglo-Americans worry that MexAmerica could in time become a pro-separatist Catalonia or Quebec. This is a prospect generally
