

Sixth Prize-Winner!

Muleshoe high school's 1965 annual became the sixth in a row to grab the coveted first prize Panhandle Press Association contest. Here the sponsor, Mrs. Horace Blackburn, and the 1965 editor Jana Stevenson do a bit of reminiscing about last year's book, the final one for Mrs. Blackburn who retired at the end of the 1964 - 65 school year. Some of the past yearbooks are "floating" around the room. (Journal Photo.)

Sideline Became Mainline, pert' near!

MHS Annual Wins But Winning is old Old Stuff For Mrs. B. & Staff

Muleshoe high school's annual, "The Muletrain," has done it again, it's won another first, the sixth in a row! The annual staff was informed this week that the Panhandle Press Association again had given the nod to Mrs. Horace Blackburn and her final Muletrain staff. (She quit the teaching profession, you see, at the end of last school year.)

The annual, says Mrs. Blackburn, was always a "sideline" for one of the high school teachers, but why it became her "baby" — her sideline — back in 1950 she never knew.

"I just know," she recalled with a laugh, "that Mr. Jerry Kirk, who was high school principal then, decided I would make a good sponsor, and that's how it came about. And me with only an hour of journalism! Good joke, eh?"

But it wasn't a joke at all, as the records through the years reveals. Ever since 1950 the Muletrain has been gathering prizes, a number of seconds as well as six-in-a-row firsts. "This annual business," she admits, "is no easy task. 'I used to spend far more of my so-called 'free' time than I did on my regular classroom duties. You see I brought the annual assignments home with me and did them on the dining room table, and that ran into many, many hours."

During only the last four years she taught did Mrs. Blackburn have any school time in which to work on the annual. But those last four years, she was given two hours of her regular classroom periods for work on the yearbook. Before that, she carried on the annual, plus a full teaching schedule. For some time her schedule included three classes in English and two in Spanish. Later it became all Spanish and Latin.

The first annual Mrs. Blackburn sponsored had 188 pages, and the 1965 counted its pages at 224.

The staff averaged 15 pupils each year, her "total" staff for the 15 years ran to 225 pupils, and some of them have held similar jobs on college annuals. Scott Oliver, for example, was president of the Panhandle Press Association last year and the boys' sports editor of 1965. Bill Ellis, editor of the Friona Star, was on Texas Tech's yearbook staff, and Earnest Ware was a sectional editor of Texas University's yearbook. Don Murray is on the Hardin-Simmons annual staff.

Magann Lamb came home to do her practice teaching here, and part of it included helping with the annual.

editor; Sandra Rundell, assistant feature editor; Janis Harrison, assistant feature editor; Tony Welch, senior class editor; Lanelle Spurgeon, circulation manager, and Stanley Black, art editor.

Mrs. Blackburn says she had no major problems during the years that she worked with the yearbook staffs. "They were all pretty swell young folk," she said, "and I can recall only one girl who ever got mad and walked off. We just let her go."

Does she miss her annual assignment? Mrs. Blackburn says she doesn't miss it. But if you will look real carefully you can note that she's got her fingers crossed!

Cotton Output up 10,000 Bales Over Previous Year

Bailey County turned out 93,816 bales of cotton during the 1965-66 harvest season, the U. S. Bureau of Census reported this week, a gain of slightly more than 10,000 bales over the previous year. Last year's total had been 83,733, the bureau's official figure showed.

J. K. Adams, county agent, saw in the figure, a boost to the dryland areas of the county in the south. "The dry lands in the south part of the county certainly should get credit for a big part in this record. Frosty September aided without hurting the microneaire prices."

Incidentally, the 1966 crop was hurt, price-wise, by microneaire readings for the first time, it was pointed out.

Meantime, it was only a guess as to what the 1966 yield will be, but it is almost certain to be lower since cotton acreages to be planted will be considerably less than last year.

The all-time high production of cotton for Bailey county was 110,000 bales, recorded in 1962. Last year the county had 103,000 acres in cotton. This year most experts believe that the acreage will be less than 70,000 acres since 90 percent of the farmers have taken their full reduction quota, the crop experts estimated.

Farmers are working to overcome a lower microneaire reading than the cotton farmers would care to see repeated. A serious attempt is to be made this year to lengthen the growing season for cotton, using in-the-furrow fungicides and planting slightly earlier than in previous years. (One reason given for the poorer quality of the cotton is the short growing season.)

Also, it was pointed out, farmers are bedding their land up where the ground is warmer and will permit a faster early spring progress of the crop. This, too, should aid maturing.

Counties adjoining Bailey county all showed increased records in 1965 over the previous years, Plains Cotton Growers Inc. reported. Quoting the Census Bureau figures, PCG gave these figures for nearby counties: Parmer county, 85,050 in 1965, 52,892 in 1964. Lamb county: 193,141 for 1965, 180,046 in 1964. Lubbock county: 271,943 in 1965, and 234,754 in 1964. Hockley, 199,288 in 1965 and 171,167 in 1964.

Some counties on the Plains however, showed slight decreases last year. Deaf Smith, for instance, had 8832 bales in 1965 as compared with 11,821 the previous year, and Castro dipped to 54,868 as compared with 64,572 the previous year. Swisher down from 59,528 in 1964 to 53,203 in 1965.

PCG picked out the 23 Texas counties in its territory and reported the total came to 2,250,097 which made it the third largest crop on record for the area and is more than 300,000 bales higher than the 1,899,351 bales reported in 1964.

This means, PCG explained, that the 1965 crop on the High Plains was exceeded only by 1961 and 1962 records.

On a national basis, Hockley county finished 10th in the nation, and Hale county's 216,575 bale output was eighth in the U.S.

Of the 1966 prospects, PCG said: "The air is rife with speculation as to how much production will drop in the nation and on the high plains under the new cotton law, effective this year. This law calls for a mandatory acreage cut of 12 to 20 percent on all farms and gives farmers the option of reducing cotton plantings by 25 or 35 percent with strong payment incentives offered those electing the larger cuts.

"Friday, April 1 was the last day for the farmers to sign up with county ASCS offices to indicate their planting intentions, and the extent of acreage reduction on the Plains won't be known for some time."

"But preliminary reports show a high percentage of farmers, both on the Plains and elsewhere, taking the maximum 35 percent reduction."

And PCG concludes: "So it is probably safe to say that this area has seen its last 2-million-bale crop, at least for the four years of this program."

Along the line of cotton's future, W. R. Kimbrough, former county agent at Littlefield was quoted in a story by Buck Scheib (Continued to page 6)

Incumbents Back In School Posts; Pool is Elected

Three hundred-seventeen persons turned out at last Saturday's Muleshoe School board election and returned to their posts the two incumbents who were seeking re-election.

They also put Myron Pool II on the board.

Re-elected were Eugene Black and W. E. Meyers.

Election judge Ernest Kerr said a total of 308 persons were given ballots, but one was returned unscratched.

Black received 225 votes and Meyers 253. Pool polled 228 votes. R. A. Bradley, the fourth candidate in the race, received 160 votes. Claude Riley, other board member whose term was expiring, did not seek re-election.

This was considered a fairly heavy turnout, but warm, sunny weather was given as a factor.

Judges are Picked For Spelling Bee

Judges for the April 15 Bailey county spelling bee here were announced Wednesday and will include Harmon Elliott of the First National Bank, Johnny Shelton of the Muleshoe State, and City Manager Albert Field. Fred Johnson, the veteran at pronouncing the words, earlier had been announced as the giver-outer again.

Meantime, schools in the county were putting their finishing touches on spelling skills of their contestants. The event, sponsored locally by The Bailey County Journal and The Muleshoe Journal, is sponsored areawise by The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. Winner of the event here will compete in Lubbock and winner there will go on to the Washington D.C. national bee.

Junior College Official to View Area from Air

When Dr. David Hunt surveys the Muleshoe area tomorrow as a possible junior college location, he will look down on this West Texas country literally; Guy Nickels has made a private plane available to fly Dr. Hunt and his party around Muleshoe.

Dr. Hunt is acting assistant commissioner for junior colleges and is coming to Muleshoe for a quick visit, Alec Williams, chairman of the Muleshoe Area Junior College Committee, announced Thursday. He may bring with him Dr. Lester Harrell, acting head of the state group or one or two members of the junior college committee. They may include Harvey Weil, chairman of the Junior College Committee, Corpus Christi, and former board member of Delmar Junior College, or Harry Provenca, publisher of the Waco News-Tribune and leader in the recently established junior college in Waco, says Williams.

Meantime, the local committee meet Monday afternoon at Paul's and reviewed the events of the past year. Plans also will be discussed for the future.

That Portales 'Short-cut' is Nearer Reality

It may take sand tires in order to travel it in anything less than a Cat, but the "short-cut to Portales" which folks have been talking about these many years may soon become a reality. At least the prospect is closer than it has been in many a moon.

And once it goes into use, the new road will whack about 20 miles off the old Portales-Muleshoe route which included a swing considerably to the north and a trip through part of Clovis before reaching Portales — or vice-versa.

But it is going to be a dry-weather route — which, this year, would have been just about any day in the Texas side of the road isn't completed right now is on account of dry weather — it's too DARN DRY!

Bailey County Commissioner Loyd Stevens has been wanting rain, needing it, in fact, in order to get the job done on this side of the state line.

"It's been so dry," he explained, "that I just can't get into the area with road-building machinery. It would literally bog down in the sand."

On the other side of the line, Roosevelt county commissioners are adding caliche to the wheel-burrying sand in an effort to make the New Mexico part of the route usable. (See picture below). Monday morning the New Mexico crews were

Here's machinery being readied for the last leg of a road-building project that eventually will line Muleshoe with Portales. This is a scene on the New Mexico side where the route is nearing completion. The Bailey county side still has some 3 1/2 miles to open. When completed, the new road will whittle up to 20 miles off the present Portales-Muleshoe highway. (Journal Photo) Yipes! No Tennis Court?

"On a recent visit to your city," writes a young man from Lubbock to the Chamber of Commerce here, "I found that you did not have something as simple as a tennis court!"

And for that he "was much disturbed that none of the schools had one either." He explained that he enjoys tennis very much, adding that "it may be much to the advantage of the younger people and also older folk if one (a court) was built."

The young letter writer explained that his was not a letter of complaint. "Take it for what you think it is worth," he concluded.

'The Centurion's Testimony of Jesus' Draws Scores to First Baptist Church

Many hard weeks of work and rehearsal came to an end Monday night when the First Baptist Church here presented an Easter pageant under the direction of Walter Buice, Bro. Buice wrote and compiled the program.

The centurion's testimony of Jesus featured Stan Johnson in the leading role and Doyle Linville and Larry Henry as first and second officers in the Roman scene. The Rev. Don Murray narrated the script. Providing background and appropriate music was Francis Hamilton at the organ and Bobbie Grogan at the piano.

Musical selections such as "I Love To Tell The Story", "Glad Hosannas", "My Faith Should Be A Happy Thing", "Jesus Is All The World To Me", "Crucify Him", "Bearing The Cross for Me", "Man of Sorrow", "Low in the Grave", "The Great Commission", "Jesus is Coming Again" and others were beautifully rendered by the church choir, primary choir, junior choir, Junior High choir and the Choralettes. Congregational singing was also featured. The setting for the Easter story was the dress of the Bible days and the hill in which Christ was crucified along with the Roman soldiers and their attire. Appropriate lighting facilities added further to the setting.

Walter Buice and all who had a part in the pageant are certainly to be commended on the outcome of the event.

SCANDINAVIAN COOKIES
2 cups sifted enriched flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon ground cardamom
3/4 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
3/4 cup finely chopped almonds

Sift together the flour, baking powder and cardamom.
Melt the butter and cook until lightly browned. Separate the oil from the solids by pouring off the oil into a bowl. Cool.

Beat together the cooled oil (from the butter) and the sugar. Thoroughly beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in the almonds. Stir in sifted dry ingredients until blended.

Drop by level tablespoonfuls, at least 2 inches apart, onto buttered cookie sheets. Bake in a moderate (375 degrees) oven 18 to 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove to wire racks to cool. Store in a tightly covered container. Makes about 3 dozen.

These cookies may be made with self-rising flour; in this case omit the baking powder called for.

The almonds used in the cookies do not have to be blanched.

Williams, at Monday's session, emphasized that the junior college project "has not died," explaining that "with the end of the authority of the Texas State Board of Education over State-Supported institutions of higher education, and with the establishment of the new coordinating board as the governing body, local junior college proposition necessarily has suffered a delay of nine months in processing an application."

Maps were distributed at the Monday afternoon session, showing the proposed junior college district. The maps were prepared by D. B. Lancaster, assistant chairman of the committee, and show the boundaries of the 11 school districts in the proposed Muleshoe area junior college district. The maps were prepared by the engineering department of the Bailey County Electric Cooperative.

SHORT-CUT . . .
hard at work with a dozen or so machines, and pointing toward an early completion of the project.
Bailey county completed the task of getting the right-of-way matters out of the way. That's been completed now for some time, County Judge Glen Williams said Wednesday. "And just as soon as we can get in there with our equipment, we should be able to complete our part of the road within a short time."

Actually the only pavement which the 35-mile-or-so route will have will be at both ends of the road—approaching Portales and approaching Muleshoe. However, Roosevelt county commissioners have indicated that they will "cajole" the road at present, but will hope to pave it entirely to the New Mexico line soon." How soon was not determined.
The route starts at the west end of Muleshoe where FM 1760 goes west off US 84-70. The road will transverse the present 1760 route to the Tom Smith corner, some 12 miles west of town. At that point 1760 turns north, but the new Portales road will continue west for seven miles to the state line. The road will intersect the Roosevelt road and run west 14 miles to the intersection of the Clovis-Portales route.

The opening of the Texas side was relatively simple, Judge Williams explained, since it involves only 4 1-2 miles to be graded. The first 3 1-2 miles already is open as a dirt road.
The two routes will join with a double-curve, "fault lines" in the two-states' surveys.
While the route will be only a minor road at present, the possibility that the route eventually will be the basis for straightening U. S. 70 west loomed.
A Roosevelt county man made the prediction that "once we get the dirt route open, we'll move with all haste to try to get it turned into a first class route for U.S. 70."

Attebury To India to Aid Grain Handling

Sam Attebury of Attebury Elevators, Inc. of Amarillo left April 4 for a 90-day assignment in India to assist with grain handling and distribution problems. The announcement was made by Elbert Harp, President of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association which arranged for Attebury's assignment through the U. S. Feed Grains Council in cooperation with the Foreign Agricultural Service of U.S. D.A. Recently, President Johnson announced that one million tons of grain sorghum and 2 million tons of wheat would be made available to India under Title I Public Law 480 (purchase for local currency) over a 90 day period in order to head off a potential food famine in that country. According to Harp, since the announcement involved such a large shipment of grain over such a short period of time, Grain Sorghum Producers Association immediately held conferences with USDA officials raising questions as to whether (1) that quantity of grain could be exported from this country in such a short period of time without affecting normal cash purchases by other countries and (2) if that quantity of grain could be received and redistributed within India during the specified period and (3) if producers can look to additional similar commitments in the future requiring stepped-up production. Harp said that in order for the Association and USDA to have this information available, it was proposed that a team of grain industry experts travel to India to give technical assistance to assure adequate distribution and utilization of the grain. It is in this connection that Attebury has been selected as a grain sorghum trade authority as a member of a three man team going to India for these purposes. Other members of the team are Mr. T. J. Toohey of the Export Division of Grain Terminal Association, St. Paul, Minnesota and Mr. Forrest Mariner, Manager of Farmers Co-Op Association, Jackson, Minnesota. Attebury has been associated with the Attebury Elevators in Amarillo since 1958. In addition, he is currently President of the Amarillo Grain Exchange, a past director of the Texas Grain and Feed Association and a director of the Grain and Feed Dealers National Association. An announcement of Attebury's consulting assignment was made to members of the Amarillo Grain Exchange and to the press at a reception at the Amarillo Country Club Wednesday, March 30.

More Counseling
MONTREAL (AP) - The growing number of teen-age marriages, many of which falter in the first few months, has prompted the Montreal Catholic Center to broaden its pre-marriage counseling courses. Once open only to engaged or married couples, the courses are offered to all teen-agers with no immediate marriage plans. No age limit is set for those who want to attend. The center teaches all aspects of marriage, including legal, financial and sexual responsibilities.

Southeast Asia Visted by Tower for War's Study

Senator John Tower has left for a 12-day inspection tour in Southeast Asia and Vietnam on a trip authorized by the Armed Services Committee of which Tower is a member. Senator Tower will report to the Committee upon his return about the current military situation in Vietnam, the supply and civic action programs now in effect and the possible future moves of Red China. He will meet with General William Westmoreland; Admiral U. S. Sharp; Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; officials in Japan, Nationalist China, Thailand and Laos; U. S. and Allied combat officers and men in the field; and top South Vietnamese civilian officials. Tower's trip will come during a time when no significant legislative activity is scheduled in the Senate and will include the normal Senate Easter-recess period of five days. "Since I was in Southeast Asia last November," Tower said, "the number of American troops committed to the fight to contain communism has vastly increased. We have moved from a build-up situation into one which we are today able to take both civic and military initiatives toward ending the conflict. I will report to the Armed Services Committee on how satisfactorily we have achieved this new position of strength, how our men are responding to it, and what the prospects are for the future. "I will check particularly into the supply situation to determine if our men are receiving all the support they need. I will again attempt to assess the effect of target restrictions placed on our pilots and the continuing status of virtual sanctuaries being granted the North Vietnamese supply port of Hai-phong. And, I will study closely the South Vietnamese civilian political situation, the rash of protests against that national government, and the joint Allied-South Vietnamese civic action programs designed to augment our military efforts to bring peace and stability to this troubled land. "In my visits around Texas in recent weeks, I have found Texans deeply concerned about and interested in Vietnam. They have indicated to me their desire to win the war and bring it to the earliest possible conclusion in a manner that will preserve a world climate favorable to self determination." Here is Tower's itinerary: March 31 - Washington to Tokyo. April 1 - meetings with U. S. and Allied embassy personnel to discuss Japan's position on Vietnam, Japan's trade policies with mainland China and capabilities of Japanese military forces and of U. S. forces stationed in Japan. April 2 - Taipei, Formosa. Meetings with U. S. and Nationalist Chinese officials. April 3-7 - South Vietnam. Meetings with General Westmoreland and his staff, U. S. Air Force units, 1st Air Cavalry, 173rd Airborne Brigade, 25th Infantry Division, U. S. Marines, South Vietnamese units, South Korean units, Australian units, U. S. foreign aid officials. April 8 - Bangkok, Thailand. Meetings with U. S. and Thai officials at U. S. and Thai bases in that country. April 9 - Vientiane, Laos. Meetings with U. S. and Lao-Tian officials. April 10 - Honolulu. Meeting with Admiral Sharp, U. S. Pacific commander. April 11 - return to Washington. Senator Tower has specifically requested that there be no disruption of normal activities during his visits. As has been his policy, he will pay his own personal expenses. The Armed Services Committee will pay transportation costs. He will be accompanied by one liaison officer, Air Force Colonel Robert Q. Old.

Trap Your Own Furs

TORONTO (AP) - Women are usually content to wear fur while men trap it. But there are exceptions - more than 2,000 of them in Ontario. The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests says more than 2,000 women travel the partment. Some of the Indian women hold licenses of their own and set traps with the men. Women trappers excel, however, in the finer trapping arts - the preparation of the pelts, an important job if top prices are to be obtained during the winter fur auctions. In 1962, Mrs. June Gilbert of Northwestern Ontario, won the trappers trophy in competition with 2,000 other trappers. She submitted the best bundle of fur, which she trapped and prepared herself. It was the first time the award had gone to a woman. Mrs. Tempest Benson of Saganaga Lake and Mrs. Lillian Plummer of Gunflint Lake, both over 50, have their winter operations base set up in a cabin on an island wilderness. To get there, they had paddled their 18-foot canoe from Gunflint Lake, making 10 portages en route. They carried with them enough supplies, traps and other gear to last through the trapping season.

World Health Organization Publishes Alcoholism Study

By JAMES BLY
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - From ancient times alcohol has been a companion of man. Unlike the dog, it has not always been his best friend. That's the view of the World Health Organization, which devoted an entire issue of its magazine, World Health, to a study of alcoholism and excessive drinking. Among the danger signs the organization cautioned drinkers to be on the watch for were the following: - Increased tolerance for alcohol. - Development of "black-out" periods in which the person seems to operate consciously, but afterward remembers nothing of what happened. - Inability to stop drinking after the first few drinks. - Going on "benders" or serious drinking bouts that last some time. In its study, WHO said that there is hardly a country in the world today where alcohol does not have a place in the social and cultural life of the individuals or society. Total prohibition, it said, seems to work only in countries such as Saudi Arabia and Yemen, where the absence of a cultural tradition of drinking is supported by a high percentage of the population, which adheres to religious beliefs prohibiting alcoholic beverages. But in those parts of the world where alcohol is consumed, it indicated, alcoholism and other health problems of heavy drinking are becoming of increasing concern to the governments. French authorities, for example, estimate that some 800,000 of their countrymen drink from 3 to 10 quarts of wine every day, and a consumption of even larger amounts is known to occur. The number of alcoholics in the United States has been estimated at about one out of every 15 adults. Canada, Australia and New Zealand report similar percentages. Efforts to combat excessive drinking vary from country to country, the study showed. Most nations have established an age limit to purchase drinks, as well as control of hours in which liquor may be served. Poland, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, it said, have established "sobering-up" centers in nearly every large city, where drunks are taken to sleep off the effects. They are later billed for the equivalent of a night in a decent hotel. In the United States, the report said, there has been a growing trend for business firms to establish their own alcoholism programs. Such programs attempt to teach the workers to recognize the first signs of alcoholism and then to bring the worker to treatment. Psychotherapy, often used in combination with deterrent drugs, also is being used to treat alcoholics.

Action On NATO Causes Concern to Tower

By Sen. John Tower

While most of us have been primarily concerned in keeping up with developments in the Vietnam War, another problem for the United States has been stirred up in Europe by French President Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle has, in effect, begun to pull France out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He has ordered NATO to place its France-based troops under French command or else get its troops and bases out of France.

Just why he has done this is very difficult for Americans to understand. In two wars Americans have fought in France, for French freedom. Since the American Revolution we have regarded France as one of our most lasting allies. But, De Gaulle is now risking that historical friendship in his attempt to establish a more neutral position for France.

Of course, France still cannot defend her territory from communist attack all by herself; and since the United States has other more steadfast allies in Europe, De Gaulle knows the United States is not going to fold up its umbrella of protection for Europe, but he won't have to pay anything for it or contribute to it.

All this is not endearing De Gaulle to the other nations of Europe such as Great Britain and West Germany which are doing their part to preserve Europe's defensive deterrent against the Reds. However, most of these nations have now adopted a position of watchful waiting, hoping that when De Gaulle's presidency ends the French nation will resume its ties with its allies.

In the meantime, the United States is faced with the need to conduct reappraisal of its military deployments in Europe. No military strategist thinks that Europe can be defended for long without French soldiers and French soil being involved. So, the United States may decide that while maintaining the form of NATO we might as well return a number of our troops to the United States where they can be better utilized as a fire brigade in case of future crises.

While there are no U. S. combat troops based in France now, the U. S. Army does maintain half a dozen major communications centers, with more than 4- supply installations. The communications setup along would cost at least $250 million to move.

Military headquarters of NATO, now located outside Paris, would have to be moved to Brussels or London or somewhere in West Germany. And, the 30,000 American support troops, who work for NATO in maintaining NATO bases and facilities, will have to be moved outside France.

The U. S. Air Force is currently manning nine NATO air bases in France. Four are fully operational, and at least two are regarded as of vital importance to the air defense of all Europe.

Also at stake is a long military supply pipeline, built by Americans to supply fuel and oil for the thousands of planes and vehicles of the U. S. Seventh Army in West Germany — the front line of NATO's defensive shield against communism. Since our Seventh Army will still require supplies, a whole new pipeline will have to be built outside France.

The long-range aim of the French president, in the view of some NATO officials, is to maneuver the United States entirely out of Europe with the hope that France will then fill the leadership void. However, American commitments to the other NATO nations are too strong to be broken by the withdrawal of France.

There is no question in the minds of Allied planners that NATO can survive this attack by De Gaulle. But, there is less certainty about how much NATO's defensive capabilities may be damaged. With vital military installations moved from France to areas closer to the potential front line, in case of an attack from the East, the defense planning becomes

Stamp to Mark New Bird Treaty With Canada

Fifty years of international cooperation in managing and protecting migratory birds will be celebrated when a new 5-cent postage stamp commemorating the Migratory Bird Treaty went on sale March 16, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said today.

First-day-of-issue ceremonies for the new stamp was held in Pittsburgh, in conjunction with the North American Wildlife and Natural Resources Conference sponsored annually by the Wildlife Management Institute. More than 1,000 conservationists from Canada, Mexico, and the United States attended.

The commemorative stamp was designed by Burt E. Pringle of Jacksonville, Florida. It is a starkly modern, horizontal design showing two birds in white outline flying over the Canadian border, one going north and the other south. Canada is in red, the United States is in blue, and the Great Lakes are a lighter blue. At the top is a white panel with black Roman capitals "Migratory Bird Treaty has been the backbone of most of the continental efforts to manage and protect ducks, geese, and other migratory birds."

"More than 280 of the approximately 300 units in the National Wildlife Refuge System were established to implement the purposes of the Treaty by providing habitat for management and protection of birds that migrate between nesting and wintering areas," he added.

The Migratory Bird Treaty resulted from concern during the early 1900's over rapidly decreasing populations of migratory birds, particularly waterfowl. The problem was one of international interest and on August 16, 1916, the "Convention Between the United States and Great Britain for more difficult.

Certainly, we have hoped for a long time that West Germany, Great Britain and the other NATO nations would take over more of NATO's defenses, leaving American troops free to deal with such other trouble spots as Vietnam. Now, De Gaulle is forcing us to take a long look at how many Americans we can wisely and safely keep deployed in Europe.

Because of the lessened defensive capabilities of a NATO without France, and because of the $1 billion cost to the United States of moving all our installations to new European sites, it may prove wiser for us to reduce our troop strength in Europe to a level more in line with the curtailed supply possibilities, and instead to maintain here at home a strategic reserve force whose first priority is to rush to NATO's aid, if called.

Daryl Spencer, former player with several major league clubs, has played infield for the Hankyu Braves of Osaka, Japan, in recent seasons but maintains a home in his native Wichita, Kan., and spends a part of each winter there.

the Protection of Migratory Birds in the United States and Canada" was signed. Ratification soon followed and on December 8, 1916, the Treaty was proclaimed by President Woodrow Wilson.

This unique Treaty provided international protection to named migratory game and non-game birds common to both Canada and the United States for the first time. The Treaty covers nine family classifications of migratory birds and 33 families of insectivorous and other non-game species. Under its provisions, each Nation is responsible for enacting its own laws to implement the Treaty.

Other activities authorized by the Treaty and subsequent implementing legislation are law enforcement and migratory bird research by Interior's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. The Bureau conducts continent-wide surveys during summer to determine populations of various species. This data is then used to set the annual migratory game bird hunting regulations.

The Bureau also operates the International Bird Banding Center at Laurel, Maryland, which is the focal point for a single system of bird banding on the North American Continent. Records at the Bird Banding Center are maintained through automatic data processing systems to support studies of migratory birds by both professionals and amateurs.

Canada, through the Canadian Wildlife Service, carries out research, establishes hunting regulations, and provides law enforcement in implementing the Treaty. A comprehensive Canadian wetlands preservation program is now in the planning stages.

Because of the effectiveness of the Migratory Bird Treaty a similar agreement with Mexico was concluded in 1936 to extend this protection.

New Laws to Aid Water's Future, Rogers Claims

WASHINGTON, - Congressman Walter Rogers said Mon. the 89th Congress "is writing a record never before equalled in enacting legislation to insure the wise future development of the country's water resources."

Congressman Rogers hailed passage Wednesday by the House of Representatives of a bill authorizing a broader program of water research as "the latest in a number of very significant and important actions."

"I'm very pleased to say that more and more Members of Congress are coming to share my view that water - the proper development and use of water resources - is this country's No. 1 domestic challenge," Congressman Rogers said.

The bill passed Wednesday by the House originated in the Subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation, of which Congressman Rogers is chairman. Congressman Rogers was "floor leader" for the bill during the House debate. The bill was passed with very little opposition.

"The legislation, augmenting a program already begun, will make it possible to tap the scientific brains in all segments of our national life, in educational institutions, in private industry, and in government," Congressman Rogers said. "We will be able to go clear across the board in seeking solutions to the serious water problems which now affect virtually every section of the United States and which are most acute in the West."

The Congressman said the extent of the U. S. water problem is requiring the "constant attention" of Congress as answers are sought. "Stepped-up research programs are essential," Congressman Rogers said.

Congressman Rogers pointed to "milestone water legislation" enacted in the First Session (1965) of the current 89th Congress. "These actions included passing a six-year extension of Saline Water Conversion Program to find economical means of converting salt and brackish water to fresh water; the Water Resources Planning Act, creating a top-level water resources council and making possible cooperative State-Federal water planning; and the Water Resources Planning Act, which establishes a uniform policy for financing fish, wildlife, and recreation benefits in multi-purpose water projects." "The water research legislation passed Wednesday supplemented the very important Water Resources Research Act of 1964," Congressman Rogers said. Congressman Rogers added, "Further legislation on the subject of water can be expected, including the movement of water across long distances and further development and research into underground water resources, as well as in rain-making possibilities." Sessions of the Interior Committee are scheduled this week as are meetings of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, on which Congressman Rogers is ranking majority member and chairman of the Subcommittee on Communications and Power. The Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee will continue hearings begun two weeks ago into community antenna television (CATV) development. Testimony is to be received by the Committee in hearings Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday from CATV system and television station operators and the public.

The schedule of activity before the full House of Representatives includes consideration of several appropriations bills, including the bill to provide funds for the Post Office Department in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Lieutenant Governor Preston Smith today announced the appointment of Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon to the interim Committee to Study the Nursing Profession.

Hightower is serving his second term in the Legislature having been a Member of the House of Representatives during the 53rd Legislature. He was elected to the Senate in 1964 and is now serving on the following standing committees: Chairman of Labor and Management Relations; Agriculture and Livestock; Contingent Expense; Counties, Cities, and Towns; Insurance; Legislative, Congressional and Judicial Districts; Military and Veterans Affairs; Oil and Gas; State Affairs; Water and Conservation.

In making the appointment Smith said: "Texas, like most states, is experiencing a shortage of personnel of health occupations, and in some areas the shortage has become acute."

Tardy Tax Returns

Early one April, leaving home on an extended business trip, a man handed his wife their income tax returns.

"Remember to mail these before the 15th," he said.

She did remember—two months later. When the government added a penalty for tardiness, the man protested that it had been "just an innocent mistake." But in a court test, the penalty was upheld. The court said tax returns are too important a duty to be so lightly overlooked.

There is good reason for the annual scramble by taxpayers to get their returns in before the deadline. The penalty can be stiff—5 percent per month, up to 25 percent of the total tax.

To be sure, some excuses are good enough to ward off a penalty. You will be forgiven if your tardiness was due to what the law calls "reasonable cause."

In one case, the tax collector had no record of having received a man's return at all. Yet, evidence proved that it had been deposited in the post office on time, in a properly stamped, properly addressed envelope. A court held that no penalty for tardiness could be imposed.

"This would not be the first time," observed the judge, "that a collector had lost a return."

In another case, both the taxpayer and his attorney—the only other party familiar with the situation—were totally incapacitated by illness at tax time. Again: no penalty.

But lesser excuses won't do. For example, prior illness, not incapacitating as of tax time, does not justify a late return.

Nor does the mere fact that you don't happen to like the way the government is spending your money. Thus, penalties for tardiness were imposed on a businessman who resented Uncle Sam's "wasteful" habits, and on a minister who didn't want his money spent for war.

Why is the government so strict? That question was raised by a man who blamed his tardiness on the fact that other expenses had left him short of money. The court gave him this reply: "True, such situations may require sacrifice, but the government exists only by the sacrifice of citizens. Taxes may seem oppressive, but taxes must be paid if governments are to endure."

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm touches on a point that we don't understand either.

Dear editor: The trouble with picking up two newspapers instead of one is that it frequently leads to confusion.

For example, in one paper I found out here yesterday I read an account of Mrs. Indra Gandhi's visit to the United States in her job as Prime Minister of India to discuss world affairs and possibly step up the amount of grain the U.S. is sending over there.

In a speech she made at the White House she said India is staying neutral in the nuclear arms race, that while her country has the brains, the techniques, and the capacity to make nuclear bombs if it set its mind to it, it has decided not to.

In another paper I found, apparently blown against the same fence by the same wind, an article explained how the United States is sending agricultural experts to India to try to teach that country's 60 million farmers how to produce more.

This is what's confusing about getting too many facts at one time.

If India has the capacity to produce something as complex and expensive as a guided missile if it wants to, it seems to me it'd use some of that capacity to produce a little more grain. Launching a tractor isn't any harder than launching a rocket, and you can do the former on a cloudy day. Looks like India would drop it's program of providing guided walking plows for its farmers and get into the tractor age. I believe any man who could build a guided missile could operate a tractor.

Yours faithfully,

tor, even if it's as complicated and headstrong as the 17-year-old one I use on this Johnson grass farm.

As I understand it, the American farmer is now growing enough for himself and 33 other people. If the 60 million farmers in India did as well, they'd produce enough for nearly 2 billion people, which is five times that country's population, and would result in grain-hungry Prime Ministers visiting there, instead of the other way around.

All this proves is that a man with two newspapers sometimes can be twice as confused as the man with one.

By the way, I don't know who the 33 other people are I'm supposed to be feeding, but if my tractor blows a gasket one more time I recommend they put in a garden at once.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

COTTON . . .

in the Sunday Amarillo Daily News as seeing a change due in area agriculture. Scheib's story read:

"I think we in the Plains area are sooner or later going to have to face facts, and learn to diversify our farming practices," he said. "I think that it is about time we realize that because of our short growing season, we cannot raise the grade of cotton to compete with other countries. Other countries can raise a better grade of cotton cheaper than we can."

Kimbrough also thinks that it is quite possible that the federal government may cut its financial assistance to the cotton industry.

"One example of this is that last year for the first time, farmers were discounted for low micronaire," he said. A micronaire count is a method, based mainly on the strength of the cotton fiber, by which the government determines the market value of the cotton. Kimbrough said that the only solution he can see to the situation is for farmers to practice diversification.

"We can grow sorghum, sugar beets, vegetables, potatoes, onions and cucumbers here. There would be a problem of labor and getting these crops to market, but I think it is a problem that will have to be met," he said.

The former county agent also thinks that the Plains would be a good place to produce more livestock. He proudly pointed out that Lamb County alone has 65 part-time feedlots and that four county farmers are raising about 600 to 700 head of lambs each year.

GOAL POSTS FAVOR GOGO
 NEW YORK (AP) - Charter
 Gogotak, the No. 1 draft choice of the Washington Redskins, ought to have it made in the National Football League next season.

The kicking specialist from Princeton will have the goal posts on the goal line which is 10-yards closer than the uprights are in college ball.

About the change, Gogo says,
 "I won't have the tee to help me, which means I'll have to adjust to the short grass and long grass and to baseball and football fields."

Most of the parks he will play in are used by major league baseball teams.
