Hey lasso that iceberg, and yippee-ki-yo-ki-yay

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - As early as this summer, a giant Alaskan glacier may begin tossing thousands of icebergs of all sizes into the path of the 200,000 ton supertankers hauling oil south from the trans-Alaska pipeline, according to a government study team

A second group of federal scientists, who have been pondering the nightmare prospect for the Coast Guard which has jurisdiction over the Alaskan oil shipping lanes, said Tues day they have come up with these potential solutions to the problem:

-Hang a 2 1-2 mile, $32 million

nylon rope across the mouth of the channel near the glacier to corral the passing icebergs and hold them there until they melt

-Lasso the wayward icebergs, hook them up to a flotilla of tugboats, and tow them off out of the way

Shut down the oil tanker traffic, and the pipeline, until the icebergs go

Coast Guard Capt Ronald Kollmeyer, who headed the team which prepared the proposed solutions, said that his suggestions, which are now being circulated in draft form among government and scientific circles. drew some laughter at first

"Some people said go away and don't bug us with off the wall ideas like that," said Kollmeyer, who is chief of the ocean science section at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn.

Kollmeyer's team also suggested as another alternative that a powerful radar station be built along Valdez Arm, the waterway used by the supertankers on their way to the pipeline terminal to spot the icebergs. The Arm is nine miles from the 42 mile long Columbia glacier which scien tists said is showing increasing signs of "calving" icebergs into the ship ping lanes

Once the icebergs are spotted, Koll meyer said, there is still the problem of how to avoid them Last August, the Coast Guard shut down the Valdez Arm shipping lanes. to night tanker traffic for several short periods after the appearance of numbers of icebergs. The U.S. Geological Survey has been studying the glacier with a 14 member scientific team under a two year $1.3 million project.

The Interior Department, which oversees USGS, said the team's first year studies showed that the glacier was increasing its production of ice bergs. Some of the icebergs already are floating down Columbia Bay from the glacier and into shipping lanes used by oil tankers.

Austin Post, a hydrologist and member of the research group, said that if the glacier begins to shrink it could rapidly increase iceberg calv ing by up to 50 times its normal

"There's about a 50-50 chance it will begin shrinking this summer or in the next few years," he said. "This is an instability that has been building for decades." The glacier is the only one of the seafront glaciers in Alaska that has not undergone a shrinkage, he

At present, the glacier periodically drops large chunks of ice off its 100foot-high face with a roar, an event that has become an Alaskan tourist attraction.

Officials of ARCO, the largest ship per of Alaskan oil from Valdez, said that about 50 tankers use the port each month. Charles Lynch, an ARCO vice president, said all ships using the port are equipped with collision avoidance equipment and said he was confident they could avoid icebergs in the sea lane

New indictments handed down in Manpower probe The federal government has added its ments, 19 counts

part to the growing Texas Manpower scandal with 11 indictments charging eight South Texans with alleged misuse of federal anti-poverty funds

The indictments, handed down Tuesday by a federal grand jury in Brownsville, came on the heels of a Travis Countygrand jury's indictment of two persons less than two weeks ago in the state's probe of the alleged misapplication of funds

A Cameron County (Brownsville) grand jury has also indicted 19 per sons resulting from its local probe. Tony Canales, U.S. Attorney for the southern district of Texas, said the federal indictments contained 86 counts of fraud against the government, conspiracy and providing false

Among those named Tuesday were Don and Clarence Gray, free on bond in the state case. Don Gray is the business manager and financial secretary of Plumbers and Pipefitters Local Union No. 823. He was named in six federal indictments alleging 68 counts of wrongdoing. His brother Clarence, who headed South Texas Building Trades Educational Service Inc., was named in 57 counts in five indictments

Clarence Gray's secretary, Cruz Z. Castillo, was named in three indict ments, 46 counts, for alleged misapplication of various amounts of Title I training funds

The earlier indictments had alleged the Grays conspired to steal more than $10,000 from the state. The brothers also face indictments from a state court of inquiry's investigation, conducted by State District Judge Dar rell Hester of Brownsville.

Eliseo Sandoval, former executive director of the Associated City-County Economic Development Corp. of Hidalgo County, was named in eight federal indictments, 40 counts.

Nicolas Ramirez Jr., former director of the Hidalgo County Manpower program, was named in five indict-

Sandoval and Ramirez also were among the 19 indicted by the Cameron County grand jury. They were accused of using their private business to launder kickbacks from the Grays

Salary boosts studied

BY MARLEEN RAY

The Midland Independent School District Board of Education continued to study the question of a teacher salary schedule during its regular meeting Tuesday in the school administration building

The trustees looked at three salary schedule proposals, prepared by the administration at their request. The first one was based on an estimated 10 percent increase in property taxes, with an intended raising of teacher incomes by 22 1/2 percent over the state required minimum base salary.

In the second proposal, salaries were worked out to show a 25 percent increase over the minimum base salary, and in the third, income levels were put in the top 10 percent of salaries offered by school districts throughout the state, raising them 30 percent over the base salary.

For example, under the first proposal, teachers with bachelor's degrees and no experience would earn $10,462. Under the second, they would get $10,675, and with the third, $11,102. Those with a master's degree and no experience would receive $11,160 under the first plan and $11,388 with the second. Under the third one, they would get $11,843.

Teachers with a master's degree and 30 hours of graduate studies would be paid $11,660 with the first proposal, $11,888 with the second and $12,343 with the third.

As proposed in a salary schedule prepared by the Joint Salary Committee of the Midland Educators Association and the Midland Classroom Teachers Association, teachers with bachelor's degrees would earn $12.-252. Those with master's degrees would receive $12,900, and those with master's degrees and 30 hours of graduate studies would get $13,400.

Currently, Midland teachers with bachelor's degrees earn $9,752, while those with master's degrees get $10.-400, and those with an additional 30 hours of graduate studies receive $10.

According to administration figures, if salaries were increased by 22 1/2 percent, and no change occurred in teacher experience levels, personnel costs would total $13,770,518, an increase of $1,317,649 over the present

If incomes were raised by 25 percent, personnel costs would increase by $1,599,673, and if they were increased by 30 percent, costs would go up by $2,158,760. Under the schedule proposed by the teacher salary committee, costs would increase by $2,-219,739.

The trustees took no action on the salary question on Tuesday. They are expected to make a final decision at their May 23 meeting.

The Midland City Council Tuesday agreed to offer the owner of the prop erty directly across from The Mid land Hilton $454,680 for the land to be used for the Exhibit Center. If the owners, identified as Mrs. Fred Wem. ple and children, do not accept the offer, the council indicated, the city may start condemnation proceedings to acquire the property In short, the city will get the proper ty, according to Fred Poe, assistant city manager. However, the city prefers to buy the property instead of having it condemned, he said The city of Midland has been trying to negotiate with the family. Mayor Ernest Angelo told the council The $454,680 figure was agreed upon by the council, and Angelo explained the property has been appraised for that value

When the city first was looking into property needed to be purchased to make room for the center, the Council considered including the section but decided against it later, according to Poe. Since then, the members decided extra room was needed, possibly for parking. Poe said.

Who does or does not read bill boards was not the issue, said Robert Campbell of Lamar Advertising Co. Inc. The firm had proposed erecting a 12 foot by 25 foot billboard that would stand 10 feet off the ground on a piece of land on Andrews Highway across from the Town and Country Shopping Center Landscaping of the lot would be included. Campbell said in introducing his plan

Richard Spencer who owns the property on which the billboard would be erected, said he had no objections as long as it did not advertise any thing he objected to, such as alcohol. He also owns the rent house next to the lot

But, some residents of the area did not agree with Spencer Ann Wilson of 3207 Douglas St. said she gets enough trash around her house from a nearby fast food restaurant, and she is worried about the paper on the billboard tearing off and blowing around the neighbrhood. "Who reads them anyway?" she said in conclud ing her presentation

The city decided to side with the objectors in this case, and denied the

Changing the name of Midland Re gional Air Terminal to Midland Regional Airport and constructing an airport identification marker were two actions postponed Tuesday until the next council meeting in two

Col Wilson Banks, airport manager, displayed a sample marker with the new logo of Airport instead of Terminal The logo would be on one side of the sign and would be lighted, said Banks, and estimated cost is $15,600 Banks said the air terminal has had no identification of this type since 1971 or 1972

While agreeing that the MR on the sign would be a distinctive logo. Angelo, while looking at the sign, remarked. "It looks like a new ad for let your fingers do the walking

Council members decided they wanted the lighted logo on both sides and wanted the sign to face east and west, instead of just south, so it will be noticed by drivers on both sides of the

Bill Shaner voiced his objections to changing the name to airport, and the council decided to postpone the decision until the next council meeting to give more citizens a chance to voice

Trash continues to be a major prob lem for the Council as members bat tled with how to deal with the fast fill ing landfill and how to provide sanita tion service to businesses, and possibly residents, living outside the city

Fred Baker of the Public Works Department said he has been looking at how other cities deal with the problem, and concluded several do provide garbage disposal service only to businesses outside the city

Also suggested to the council Tues day was the charging of persons who live outside the city but use the land fill to dump their trash. This would include businesses. "Our cost is increasing dramatically in handling and disposing of material coming from people outside the city," Baker

C. H. Sherrod who lives north of the city told the council he has been dumping his own trash for several years at the landfill, but would not object if charged a flat rate. Tim-Munn, representing Robert J. Munn and Rocky Ford, said his firm is looking into setting up a garbage ser vice for people in the county, to include businesses

'This is a major problem." Angelo said. "We have trash all over the county. People have hauled in more (to the landfill) than what the sanita

Without hesitation, he speedily drove her to the hospital, where Miss Bales was treated - the head wound was stitched up - and released. She stayed out of school the next week recovering from her injuries.

The moments of excitement and anxiety are over.

But even today, Amy Bales' parents are convinced that Owen, by his prompt action, may have saved their daughter's life. (Owen's friend, Britt Stephenson, drove Rickey to the hospital in his car.)

The Bales family was grateful for the deed. But before Mr. and Mrs. Bales learned who aided their daughter, they wrote an open letter to the newspaper to give thanks to that young man who proved that "there are still Good Samaritans around." The letter cited the prompt, possibly life saving action of the fellow.

"The gracious way you overlooked the blood that must have gotten on your car showed humanity of the highest type. We thank God for the order of your priorities." the family said in the letter.

There was blood, all right, and plenty of it, Owen said Tuesday. He didn't seem at all overly impressed with his prompt help. And the sight of the blood didn't partcularly bother him. At the time, he was concerned with getting Amy to the hospital on time. Forget the blood.

Democratic leaders defeat house change in budget legislation

By JAMES L. ROWE JR. The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - House Democratic leaders survived a crucial test on the fiscal 1979 budget Tuesday by defeating an amendment that would have cut spending across the board by

The victory persuaded top House Democrats they now have enough votes to win approval of a resolution setting preliminary targets for next year's budget.

It took considerable arm-twisting by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, to induce more than a dozen Democrats to switch their votes after formal voting time had expired on the amendment offered by Rep. Joseph L. Fisher, D-prove a binding budget for the next fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

Last year, in a raucous session that went until 1 a.m., the House failed to pass a budget resolution after tacking on a series of amendments that boosted spending in many areas. The committee had to go back and rewrite its spring target budget. One top Republican aide noted that if the Republicans vote nearly unanimously against the resolution as it did last year, the Democrats will have trouble getting enough votes to pass it. Republicans oppose the size of the projected $55 billion deficit.

Ashbrook, in introducing his amendment, cited a General Accounting Office study that charged between $6.3 billion and $7.4 billion in HEW spending was unnecessary because of fraud, mismanagemet and waste. Over strenuous objections of the Budget Committee the House approved the Ashbrook amendment 198-

The House voted 230 to 171 to put all funds for the Panama Canal in the formal budget, subect to congressional appropriations. Currently the taxes and tolls collected from the canal are held in a trust fund in the U.S. treasury and transferred to the Panama Canal Company.

It is with inexplicable pride that people describe themselves, their homes and their dinner parties as "casual" or "informal." From the tone of voice in which just about everyone says, "Oh, of course, it's to be terribly informal," or "We're al-ways casual," you would think that America in 1978 is like the court of Louis XIV, and that they, alone have introduced some spontaneity.

Properly, "informal" means "black tie," as opposed to "formal," which is "white tie" a rather charming style now kept alive only by magisions before which one was expected to maintain daily. to wash one's ears extra carefully, and for all other occasions, a worse style that Miss Manners calls "optional." That is what others are calling "casual" and "informal," by which they mean they don't plan to take any trouble.

When Miss Manners longs for style in daily living, she is by no means thinking only of styles that were associated with the rich. Until recently, rich and poor distinguished between their work clothes and "Sunday best," between meals on the run and

Now we have a member of Congress complaining he is expected to go to the trouble of wearing a necktie to the U.S. House of Representatives. Miss Manners understands that a member of this institution may know better than she whether that is a place to be treated with respect, but would expect him at least to gloss this over in public, as do his colleagues.

The excuse people use for being' sloppy is that this is more comfortable. Actually, people often feel betable," and, given such a choice, re- may be worn barefoot in summer, plied, "Informal, but uncomfort

Also, informality does not necessarily produce comfort. Miss Manners is infinitely more comfortable eating her dinner at a properly set table than jauntily perched on someone's rug.

When it is truly a matter of acute discomfort, Miss Manners is not opposed to the entire society's agreeing to make certain changes in conventional dress or furnishings.

For example, Miss Manners always thought the stocking or panty-stocking a fetching garment for springtime, autumn or heated ballrooms, but a menace in really cold or hot weather, and she is delighted at the spread of the "city sandal," which and the leather boot, which may be worn with heavy knee-socks in winter. She would even be willing to listen to arguments in favor of replacing the necktie - if another formal daytime standard were universally adopted. What she opposes is defying prevailing standards. Once the society has agreed what is proper - as in the cases of the boots and sandals, but not yet the neckties - Miss Manners expects people to observe this in public places. Even if it's only the House of Representatives.

Miss Manners Responds Q: Recently I arranged a blind date between two very dear friends. Believe me, I had only the highest intentions for their mutual happiness.

However, believing, as you do, in the delicacy of one's sexual feelings, cravings and demands, I had no idea that such a match was unlikely. One of the parties, though, is now revealed to be homosexual. How should I advise the other friend? Will it be necessary to cease matchmaking in the New Society?

A: Why would you want to give up just when it's getting so interesting? Perhaps by "the New Society" you are referring to heightened standards in consumerism. If so, rest assured that a matchmaker is not supposed to have pretested the product, and therefore has no responsibility for its performance.

SHOWERS are due today over, parts of Oklahoma and Utah and adjoining states. The National Weather Service predicts cooler temperatures in the Great Lakes area and warmer temperatures elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

A LARGE low pressure area centered over southern Canada is visible in Tuesday's satellite cloud picture, recorded at 1 p.m. EDT. The low is producing clouds over the Midwest and Great Lakes, according to the National Weather Service. An associated cold front and upper level low are responsible for cloudiness from New England along the East Coast into the Gulf States. (AP Laserphoto)

Bush planning run-off tactics

By ED TODD

George W. Bush, claiming he has proven his "credibility" in the Republican Party's primary election, today said he can outpoll opponent Jim Reese and win the GOP's nomination for representative of the 19th Congressional District in the June 3 run-off election.

"It's happening," he said at his Midland headquarters during a press conference held to outline his strategy against Reese, "We've got the momentum.

Bush, 31, a Midland businessman and oil operator, picked up 47.5 per-cent of the GOP-cast votes in the 17county district in Saturday's primary election. Reese, who Bush said is 'going backwards,' garnered 41 percent of the votes. Joe Hickox of Shallowater accounted for the remaining percentage points.

The run-off's victor will go up against Democrat Kent Hance in the November general election to determine who will succeed Congressman George Mahon, who, at 77, is retiring from politics after 44 years in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Bush said his campaign against Reese would be based on organization and not issues.

"We're going to be polite and dignified in this campaign," commented Bush, who said he would need Odessa's support in November to beat Hance. Bush said he would "not slam my

'The mission of the campaign is to nominate someone who can win in November .

He said his campaign has been 'above board." Later, he said that that statement did "not necessarily" mean Reese's campaign was not on the up-and-up.

Bush said Reese "insulted the voters" by suggesting that much of Bush's support came from people who thought they were voting for Bush's father, George H. W. Bush, a former U.S. Congressman, United Nations ambassador, GOP national chairman, Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) director, and former head of the American liaison staff in China.

get the government out of our lives." Bush said he is assured of Midland County's support and that in the remaining weeks he would be campaigning in Lubbock and other counties to meet the people, including those in the rural areas, which voted predominantly for Reese.

Bush said Reese's support came fromname familiarity; Reese's name was saturated throughout the district in his 1976 campaign against Mahon, Bush said.

Italian terrorists continue 'war

By DENNIS REDMONT

ROME (AP) - Four terrorists shot a Milan industrial executive in the legs today, keeping up the war on the Italian establishment despite nationwide revulsion at the Red Brigades' murder of Aldo Moro.

Police said three men and a woman made the attack on Franco Giacomazzi, an executive of the stateowned Montedison chemical industry. Millions of Italians poured out of factories, shops, offices and schools Tuesday to demonstrate against terrorism after Moro's body - chained and riddled with 11 bullets - was found in a parked car in the heart of

More than 100,000 people crowded Milan's Piazza del Duomo. More than 30,000 marched around the Colosseum in Rome, carrying hastily-fashioned white banners for the Christian Democrats and red for the Communists along with black-framed portraits of the 61-year-old former pre-

The nation's unions called a twohour general strike today so workers could attend mass meetings against terrorism. Student demonstrations also were scheduled, and some student groups "excommunicated" the Red Brigades from the anti-government movement.

The massive display of unity gave new support to Premier Giulio Andreotti's Christian Democratic government and to the alliance Moro forged to include the Communists in the government's parliamentary majority for the first-time in 31 years. "The Red Brigades have pushed the Communist Party and their labor unions toward a policy of law and order," commented Luigi Barzini, author of the the best-selling book "The Italians. "They have moved the Christian Democrats closer to the Communists.

The murder of Aldo Moro is worse than a crime; it is a mistake on the part of the Red Brigades. But repeatedly after their gunmenkidnapped Moro on March 16 and killed his five bodyguards, the ultraleftist revolutionaries said in their "communiques" that the abduction was only one phase of their open-war against Italian society

"Let it be clear that we do not intend to finish the game at this point," they vowed in their first message.

"The capture of Aldo Moro is merely an illuminating moment of the class struggle," said another: "The prime objective is the attack on the imperialist state and the liquidation of the filthy and corrupt Christian Democrat regime.

In addition to a steady stream of attacks on political and business leaders and lesser figures, the Red Brigades are expected to release tape recordings they extracted from the president of the Christian Democratic Party during the "people's trial" at which they said he was sentenced to death for his leading part in Italy's governments for more than 20 years. ### Unmasked agent now lives with threats, harassment

By CHRISTOPHER DICKEY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON / The unmasking of U.S. double agent Dung Krall has thrust the Vietnamese-born woman into a world of fear, threats, harassment and attention she never thought possible when the Central Intelligence Agency enlisted her as an espionage agent three years ago.

Since her identity became known in March, former CIA operative Krall has publicly testified about her life and her job, has had her suburban Virginia home vandalized, and has faced numerous anonymous threats to herself and her family.

According to some officials, the government decided to run that risk for the opportunity to accuse a former U.S. Information Agency officer and a Vietnamese national of passing classified State Department cables through Krall to Vietnamese diplo-

It also may explain why government officials have been extremely relucant in the past to expose any of their covert agents and why Justice Department officials have placed pressure on government prosecutors to win the current case. "If we lost this case," conceded one Justice Department lawyer, "it's going to be very hard ever getting other government informants to testify.

For Krall, 32, the daughter of a Vietcong diplomat, the decision to drop her secret identity and her code name "Keyseat," was one she and some top government officials agonized over for five months. Like many of the decisions an undercover agent makes, it may have been dictated, in part, by factors beyond her control.

So, too, has been the reaction to her unmasking. A month ago, someone broke into her Springfield, Va., townhouse, shattered a ceiling light, and left a single word scrawled in Viet-

Sources close to Krall also say that since her identity was made public in March, she and every member of her family have been threatened. Some threats also have been made against Krall by anonymous callers to a Washington Post reporter who has covered the espionage case.

One woman caller said that if one of the two men accused in the case is convicted, "we take her (Krall's) son. "We," the caller said, represent "the people of Vietnam."

Within a week the same reporter received a letter postmarked April 3 In precise handwriting, the letter said, "You spent $11,800 to hide Dung Krall's family. We'll spend manpower and time to find them. We know she has 4 sisters. Mother. Husband. Son. We'll find them ...

Tran Thi Pham, came just a few days before the fall of Saigon in 1975.

It was then, Krall testified, that she began working for the CIA, first as an unpaid undercover agent. In August 1975. according to her court testi-mony, she visited her father in Hiroshima, Japan, where he was attending memorial services for those killed by the atomic bomb.

She took her young son with her to meet his grandfather. It was soon after that encounter that her father, in effect, introduced her to Vietnamese officials who would later be named as unindicted conconspirators in the current spy case. But Krall never told her father, whom she had not seen for 20 years, of her affiliation with the CIA.

Defense lawyers for David Truong. one of the men on trial, have charged that money was her primary motive for joining the CIA. She has denied this claim. Shortly before her identity was revealed, Krall made one furtive flight to London with her mother in an effort to persuade her father to break with the Communists. He refused, and a month later she agreed to testify in the current case.

Accused spy admits giving some documents

By JANE SEABERRY The Washington Post

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - Ronald L. Humphrey, the former United States Information Agency employee accused of spying for Vietnam, Tuesday admitted that he gave confidential State Department documents to a Vietnamese antiwar lobbyist because of his desperate love for his Vietnamese commonlaw-wife and her five children, who were trapped by the Communists in Vietnam.

Humphrey testified for more than six hours in U.S. District Court about how his love for Kim caused him to lose his judgment and give the classified documents to Vietnamese expatriate David Truong, who is accused of espionage and conspiracy along with Humphrey

"I had one preoccupation and that was to get them out of Vietnam. I knew I owed my life to Kim .... I felt that whatever I was doing in life wouldn't be fulfilled unless I got that family.

As his parents, Kim and four of her children watched, Humphrey testified that the documents he took from his United States Information Agency office were not meant as a bribe to get Hanoi officials to release his family.

He testified that he thought the documents might help Truong and others lobby on Capitol Hill to help normalize relations between the U.S. and Vietnam. If his occurred, Humphrey said he felt he would have a better chance to get his family released.

Humphrey testified throughout the seventh day of the Vietnamese espionage trial before Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. that he meant to help the United States, not injure national security by giving the classified documents to Truong. Government prosecutors contend that Humphrey attempted to give the Vietnamese an edge in negotiations with the U.S. in return for securing the release of Kim and her children.

The government has also contended throughout the unprecedented trial that Truong is a foreign agent working for Hanoi and that Humphrey knew it when he passed him the diplomatic cables.

Humphrey is charged with stealing the documents and giving them to Truong. Truong is accused of delivering the documents to a courier who gave them to Vietnamese officials in Paris.

Humphrey spoke articulately with little expression in his voice or on his face. Occasinally he flashed a weak smile at his family, sitting in the front row Humphrey denied being a Communist, denied knowing whether Truong was a foreign agent, and denied giving Truong the four cables classified as "Secret" that the government said he stole. Those were the only four cables classified as secret among the evidence against Humphrey Humphrey denied giving Truong 31 other cables that the government has introduced as evidence against him. He admitted giving Truong four other cables and said he "might have" passed Truong 67

State Department and Defense Intelligence Agency employees testified in support of the government's charge last week that the more than 100 diplomatic cables, airgrams and other documents allegedly passed to the Vietnamese had injured the national security by being revealed to the Com-

French military presence in Africa controversial

The Washington Post

PARIS - President Charles de Gaulle gained a solid reputation as a protector of moderate African governments by intervening militarily in black Africa three times in his 11 years in power.

In just the past year alone, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing has committed French forces on five fronts in Africa and Middle East.

French forces are on a war footing from Dakar in the west to Djibouti in the east. "If there's a solider who likes soldiering, the best army for him to be in these days is the French," said a Western diplomat

But Giscard's commitments of men and materiel have been made largely against the counsels of prudence of his own soldiers and diplomats. The country's moderate commentators are also beginning to object.

"If the Americans are unwilling to carry the burden," was the way one French official summed up the establishment view, "then why should we be sticking our necks out to play gendarme?

Margaret, Snowdon to divorce

LONDON (AP) - Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon have agreed to a divorce, Buckingham Palace announced today. An official statement on the controversial marriage said:

"Her royal highness, the Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon and the Earl of Snowdon after two years of separation have now agreed that their marriage should formally be ended. Accordingly her royal highness will start the necessary legal proceedings."

Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II, separated from her photographer husband on March 16, 1976 after 16 years of marriage.

A spokesman at Kensington Palace, Margaret's home, said the princess had "no plans for re-marriage.

The 47-year-old princess has drawn criticism in recent months for her friendship with 30-year-old socialite Roddy Llewellyn.

The princess is currently in King Edward VII Hospital in London suffering from suspected gastroenteri-have died in combat in Chad. Just this week it was announced a French public works official attached to the Djibouti government had been kidnapped by rebel tribesmen and spirited into neighboring Ethiopia.

French forces are variously engaged: -In air strikes to protect underpo pulated Mauritania against incursions by the Algerian-backed and Soviet-armed Polisario guerrillas fight ing for control of the former Spanish Sahara, which Morocco and Mauritania also claim.

-In security missions for the hardpressed Chad government, which is threatened by Libyan-backed guerrillas. There are 1,200 to 1,500 French troops in Chad.

-As U.N. peacekeepers in the former French mandate of Lebanon. Three French U.N. soldiers have been killed there.

-Protecting Djibouti with 4,000 troops. One of France's three aircraft carriers is stationed at all times off the Horn of Africa to protect French off routes, reliable sources say.

Last year, the French carried out the military airlift of a Moroccan battalion to Zaire to stop an invasion from Angola by former Katangese

Although French officials admit to nothing, it is widely assumed in informed circles that the recent resumpion of outside arms supplies to the UNITA guerrillas of southern Angola includes an important French input. UNITA, a faction supported by the West in Angola's civil war, has continued to wage war against the ruling faction, supported by Cuba and the Soviet Union.

The justification given for all this French activity by Giscard's defenders is that France must fill the role abandoned by the United States since the Vietnam War and prevent Soviet efforts at destabilization in Africa.

Some critics say the French play the same role for American interests in Africa as the Cubans do for the

The French government says it only goes where it is invited by states with which it has military cooperation agreements. Those in the know claim the French scrupulously avoid asking the Americans for their views before they commit themselves anywhere.

Yet, the United States makes it clear it supports the French. The State Department last week declared its backing for French operations in Chad, the current French military action that is by far the most controversial inside the French establish-

Gisard is understood to have expressed the fear privately that, if he does not support moderates like Senghor and Houphouet-Boigny, they or their successors will be forced to make accommodations with the Soviets and Cuba.

Those leaders are not likely to last much longer in any case. Senghor is 71 and Houphouet-Boigny 72. Already, King Haassan has been hedging his bets in trade agreements with Moscow, which badly needs Moroccan phosphates as fertilizer. The Soviets even at the risk of displeasing rival Algeria because Morocco is to phosphate what Saudi Arabia is to oil.

Senghor provides France with its most important base in black Africa. The 10 Jaguar jets that harass the Polisario guerrillas when they enter Mauritania operate from near Dakar. Although the planes have fired in anger at the guerrillas only three times, informed sources say they fly reconnaissance and harassment missions constantly.

Paradoxically, French presence in the regions bordering the Sahara may be preventing a conflict that specialists think is bound to occur some day between the rival ambitions of Algeria and Libya to unite the Arabicspeaking nomadic tribes of the Sa-

Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi, whose own nomadic family has roots in the par of northern Chad that Libya claims and, more distantly, in the former Spanish Sahara, has made clear his dream is to unite the Saharan tribes in Mauritania, Mali, Niger, Chad and southern Algeria. Except for the Algerian tribes, the Moslem nomads are dominated by southern black populations that are animist, Christian and protected by France

Algerian President Houari Boumedienne's ambition is apparently to harness the tribes for Arab socialism. Senghor is said to label Boumediene privately as an antiblack racist. Sources close to Giscard point out a

Libyan-controlled Chad would leave Sudan, which is being developed as the pro-Western breadbasket of the moderate Arab world, sandwiched between two potentially hostile neighbors to the east and west, Ethiopia and Chad.

The Egyptians and Saudis, who act the most threatened by the Soviet presence in Africa's Horn, are said to be among the strongest proponents of French moves on the continent. One reliable source even suggested the three countries worked together in a complicated military supply maneuver to aid Somalia.

The French, according to this source, supplied Saudi Arabia with tanks to allow Saudi Arabia to send tanks to Egypt, which was then in turn able to supply some of its Sovietmade tanks to the Somalis.

When reports appeared that French tanks had been supplied directly to Somalia by Saudi Arabia, however, the French went to great pains to deny the stories, apparently fearing severe repercussions in Djibouti, where French forces are highly exDEATHS posed to Ethiopian attack. Informed sources say there was a debate in the French foreign and defense ministries about arming Somalia, and that it was resolved in favor of refraining from doing anything that might arouse Ethiopia. Despite the risk, Giscard, as one French diplomat put it, "has to prove himself to the Africans - de Gaulle didn't have to prove anything to earn their allegiance." The leaders of the French-speaking African states are to hold a summit meeting with Giscard in Paris toward the end of this month.

For many of Africa's moderates, France's newly resumed role as a regional gendarme seems welcome, making the French the only former colonial power that can still exercise its military muscle in Africa without arousing continent-wide hostility.

WASHINGTON (AP) - With big business already promising to support his anti-inflation program, President Carter appealed today to big labor for cooperation in slowing the accelerating pace of wage and price

To that end, Carter may be on the verge of extracting a promise of support from the nation's key labor figure, AFL-CIO President George Meany. The labor patriarch appears to be warming to Carter's plan for centrolling inflation.

Novelist puts own life into his novels

By SUSAN AGER

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - In Jerzy Kosinski's novels, life is brutal with no rhyme or reason. Eyeballs have been gouged, diplomats blown to pieces and thugs hired to rape a jilted over's woman.

Kosinski's view of life is neither pleasant nor predictable. Instead, it is passionate and perplexing, jolting and terrifying.

But all for good reason, says Kosinski. That's the way life is. He's written much of his own stranger-than-fiction life into five novels. Ask about the unbelievable incidents in his latest, "Blind Date," and he'll say, yes, they happened to him, "more or less. His characters kill for the sake of justice. They pose as people they're not to rattle an otherwise staid bureaucracy or befuddle the pompous. They hide and watch people in their private moments.

Kosinski, rather affable at 44, won't own up to all those things. Once, lecturing at a prestigious law school, he was asked if he had ever murdered

Do you really expect me to answer that, and do you expect me to answer that in a room full of lawyers?" Kosinski replied. The most he'll confess is the temptation to kill diplomats whose nations have imprisoned writ-

He nonchalantly admits other similarities with his characters.

"I hide in people's homes very often. I walk the streets disguised. I have a moustache and a beard," he says. "But I never lie. If I'm asked,

'Are you Mr. Kosinski,' I say, 'Yes'. He takes menial jobs - as a janitor at a major American newspaper, for example - and sniffs around small towns, all in an effort to write about people as they really are Like George Levanter, the main character in "Blind Date," Kosinski carries a meaningless ID card to impress police and bureaucrats. Levanter's identified himself as a member of the American Council for Global Security. Kosinski's own plastic card shows he is a member of the National Advisory Board of the American Security Council, headquartered in Boston, Va. It cost $5 to

Separated from his parents as a child, Kosinski spent year roaming war-torn Eastern Europe. "The Painted Bird," his first novel, is the story of his childhood.

Kosinski says he made it to America by confounding Soviet officials, getting a visa based on written recommendation from four imaginary professors

When he came to America in 1957, he says, he had $3.80 and no knowledge of English. He says he learned the language by memorizing Russian-American dictionaries and working as a movie projectionist.

Five years later, he married Mary Weir, widow of steel magnate Ernest Weir. She paid their way, but she died in 1966 and left Kosinski nothing, he

Now, Kosinski says, his income "corresponds exactly to my needs." He owns nothing but his clothes and books, he says, and lives with a longtime woman friend in a Manhattan

Odessa's council stalls district action

ODESSA - Businessmen who took time Tuesday to attend the City Council meeting here, anticipating action on the creation of three industrial districts and authorization for contracts for businesses in the areas, were disappointed.

The Council decided on a two-week extension on the time limit in order to get all businesses in the areas to agree to the industrial district contract. In April the council took initial steps to create the industrial districts and offered contracts to the industries located in three areas outside the city in lieu of annexation. This action followed major opposition to annexation by industries in the three areas.

Contracts with the businesses basically would provide that those industries would pay real property taxes based on 100 percent of the assessed value, 50 percent of personal property taxes and no city sales taxes would be applicable. All industries in the areas must participate or the contracts will not go into effect. Councilman Fred George indicated that if 100 percent participation has not been achieved by May 23, the date for the next council meeting, the council's mood probably would be toward annexa-

Revelations about Carcich rock faith in charities

The Washington Post

BALTIMORE -It was the Rev. Guido John Carcich's "zeal to propagate the faith and assist the missions" rather than personal gain that moti-vated the chief fund raiser of the Pallottine Fathers to put millions donated for charity in speculative real estate ventures and secret bank accounts, according to the priests' defense attorneys.

While his lawyers conceded in a Baltimore court Tuesday that Carcich was "guilty of the crime charged," they argued that compared to the millions Carcich raised for charity "the amount misused is minuscule. He did not steal to benefit personally.' Whatever Carcich did, the priest's attorneys emphasized over and over again, in a 37-page explanation of their client's actions, he did it for the church. The master fund raiser who brought $170 million in charitable contributions into the Catholic order over the course of 25 years was meerely a "realist," they said.

Carcich "understood the churches, schools, hospitals and retreats could not be built and maintained without financial support."

In quest of this support, the worldly Carcich successfully combined the high-pressure techniques of directmail advertising - complete with sweepstakes contests that offered new cars and stereos to lucky winners — with prayerful appeals on behalf of children who were pictured standing half-starved in front of thatched huts in far-off jungles. This dual appeal worked - it worked amazingly well. Money poured into the order's Baltimore headquarters.

But, instead of going to foreign missions, nearly three-fourths of the proceeds were eaten up by the high cost of the slick, computerized direct-mail solicitations. Most of the little that remained was invested by Carcich as a hedge against the future, his attorney said.

Only about 2.5 cents of each dollar went to mission work, according to one audit.

Those revelations rocked the $4-billion world of charitable organizations. Baltimore Archbishop Willilam D. Borders issued new guidelines for Catholic charitable organizations in Maryland, and many persons who almost automatically contributed to what they believed to be worthy causes reevaluated the charitable organizations they had always given to without question. On Capitol Hill, the call for tighter federal regulations was sounded. While each new revelation of Carcich's financial manipulations raised more and more questions about charitable fund-raising, the priest himself never offered any answers. in their statement, his lawyers answered for

While the priest did plead guilty to concealing $2.2 million in secret bank accounts, he did that to protect his religious order from lawsuits brought by competitors in the fast-track secular world of direct-mail fund raising, his attorneys claimed.

For every other accusation in the 61-count indictment, Carcich's attorneys had an explanation.

He invested in exotic Florida land and motel schemes because "he was concerned over the mercurial rise and fall of the stock market."

He paid himself an $8,000 finder's fee for getting a tenant for the Pallottine's mail-order factory only to keep this money from going to a real estate broker.

He diverted interest payments to himself and a lawyer so the 18 percent rate the Pallottines were charging on a loan to a private investor wouldn't raise eyebrows.

Carcich emerged from the courtroom Tuesday with the full support of his superiors in the Pallottine order and the forgiveness of Archbishop William D. borders who once de-scribed Carcich's tactics as "immor-

What remained unclear is the longrange effect on charitable fund-raising the revelations will have.

Carcich will dissipate and we can go about the business of serving the poor and those in need in a manner that benefits all concerned people.'

As for Carcich, Borders said, "I ray the people will now be free to let Father Carcich and the Pallottines have some of the peace which an admission of guilt and attempts to rectify wrongdoing should bring."

Bordes would not comment on the court action, but said "as pastor of Maryland's Catholics...I have since the beginning of the revelations about the Pallottines asked people to look at the moral implications of fund raising for church-related and charitable organizations.

"In the past few months, Pallottines Inc. have worked diligently in trying to put their house in order. They have succeeded, and are now in conformity with fund-raising guidelines issued nearly two years ago."

The new guidlines were ordered following the disclosure by The Washington Post on Nov. 19, 1975, that the then little-known Baltimore religious order had lent $54,000 to Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel to help fiance the governor's divorce.

A series of stories in The Post and The Baltimore Sun revealed the farflung activities of the Pallottines and their ubiquitous leader, "the Good Father" Carcich, as he was known to friends in the worlds of business and politics.

The portrait of Carcich as revealed in thse newspaper stories was one of a priest who loved good food, fancy cars, trips to Las Vegas and Florida and who was equally at home in the priest's collar of flowery sport shirt.

He invested money donated as charitable contributions in condominium project in Florida, North Carolina and Maryland, made business deals with Mandel and the governor's political allies and even laundered the loan to the governor through a used

The priest described in the document filed in court was a very different man: a no-nonsense servant of God and man whose "list of good works..is so numerous as to defy re-

Carcich was in the forefront of those concerned about the high costs of his fund-raising efforts, the document said. "He was concerned that 75 or 80 cents of each dollar raised was consumed by the cost of obtaining the dollar," the statement said. "Anticipating that federal and state legislatures were likely to outlaw or restrict direct-mail fund-raising, Father Carcich began a program of investment that was designed to create an endowment containing approximately $35 million in assets.

"If (this goal were) reached by the late 1970s, the needs of the Pallottines in this country and foreign missions would be met.

Working "to assure the future economic viability" of Pallottine missions, Carcich "acquired income producing properties...Some of these investments were successful and some were not," the statement went on. Carcich, a native of Yugoslavia who had come with his poverty-stricken family to New Jersey in 1926, was ordained in Rome in 1945. Subsequently, he returned to the U.S., where he was assigned by the Pallottines as assistant pastor at St. John the Baptist Church in Baltimore. Using $500 of Pallottine funds, a sum that he agumented with money of his own. Carcich began a "program of spiritual mailings" that prompted an "overwhelming response" including money, although none was sought.

In 1961, he made his first trip to a Pallottine mission, in Brazil, from which he returned "driven by a desire to help these less fortunate people and the Pallottine priests ministering to them." Soon he visited missions in India, Australia and Africa, each time returning with new "desire" to expand the fund-raising operation.

Corona conviction overturned

By DAVID JOHNSTON The Los Angeles Times

CONCORD, Calif. - Richard Hawk, the attorney whose defense of Juan Corona was so incompetent that the state District Court of Appeal Monday overturned Corona's conviction on 25 first degree murder counts, said Tuesday he has no doubts that he did the best possible job.

"I had every newspaperman that covered tha trial convinced he (Corona) was innocent," Hawk said, "I had jurors winking at me. At one point in the deliberations I had nine votes from people who wanted to acquit the

Hawk said the court's unanimous 71-page decision "is the worst raking over the coals" ever issued an attorney by an appeals court and that it "absolutely" says he is incompetent as an attorney.

When a reported noted that Kane was once a widely respected trial court judge in San Mato County, Hawk shot back that "when I knew Bob he was ripping off insurance companies.'

In its decision the appeal court cited detail after detail to support its finding that Hawk had failed to even investigate various avenues of defense that might have won acquittal for Corona. The court added that it found the evidence of Corona's guilt overwhelming. It also criticized Hawk for taking in exchange for his services the exclusive rights to Corona's story and then selling a book titled "Burden of

"Due to trial counsel's lack of diligence and ignorance," the opinion said, "crucial defenses were withdrawn from the case, which reduced the trial to a 'farce and sham.'

The court said the record "bespeaks far more than mere lack of diligence and ignorance (by Hawk). In actuality...we are confronted with the unprecedented situation where trial counsel assumed a position virtually adverse to his client and, totally unsupported by strategic or tactical considerations, took deliberate steps to thwart the development of viable defenses available to the accused."

The court ruled that the sale of literary rights by Corona to Hawk created a "conflicting interests" for the 45-year-old criminal defense at-

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON AP Diplomatic Correspondent

Political terrorists are busiest now in Western Europe, but they are also still active in the Middle East and Latin America. Italy's feared Red Brigades, who kidnapped and killed Aldo Moro, are linked in policy and pur-pose with Arab, West German, Japanese and other terrorist groups.

American, British and West German anti-terrorism specialists who helped Italian police in the unsuccessful hunt for Moro said there were similarities in his case and the seizure and murder last year of West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer by the German terrorists of the Red Army Fac-

Authorities in Europe are convinced that an international terrorist network links four major groups of extremists:

-Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, an umbrella for 15 guerrilla groups, the most militant of which is the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, pledged to destroy Israel. Their goal is the destruction of Israel and its replacement by a Palestinian state governed by the PLO.

A. What about simply refinishing the wood stairs and leaving them in their gleaming, natural state? Sometimes steps treated differently from the carpeting are even safer than carpeted steps because the different treatment calls attention to the stairs which can prevent falls.

found that her weight problem was becoming worse. All her efforts to reduce were: unsuccessful. To complicate matters, exercise of any kind was impossible because of a car accident that had left her partially paralyzed on the left side. She was really feeling desperate until one of her friends told her about the Pat Walker program, which works without physical exercise. Immediately, she called for an appointment. Mrs. Quist's doctor wrote a note permitting her to take part in the Pat Walker program. She soon shaped her figure beautifully, losing 26-1/2 inches and 16-1/2 pounds, and became an enthusiastic booster of the Pat Walker plan.

"The results in inch and weight loss have been great, but most important I now can participate in family activities without holding on to my family for support," she reports. "I walk and run with ease, look younger and feel like a woman again."

And, clearly, she no longer has reason to be camera-shy! Her terrific new figure has given her the confidence to pose happily.

Lose weight the easy way

You can join Mrs. Quist with your own success story. Even if you have failed repeatedly to lose weight and keep it off, you can reduce easily, pleasantly, at Pat Walker's without strenuous exercises or rigid diets. In fact, we GUARANTEE that you will have your perfect figure (as determined by our counselor) at the completion of your pro-

More good news: the treatments are inexpensive. At your first visit, your professional counselor will conduct a confidential figure analysis to determine how many treatments you will need. You know exactly what it will cost to reach your weight goal,

And the treatments are so relaxing that you actually look forward to them. They're given in absolute privacy, of course, and do not require disrobing or special clothes. You simply lie down on the scientifically designed Pat Walker unit and let it gently provide all the exercise you need to trim away unwanted pounds and inches.

Come try a FREE treatment

We invite you to come in for a courtesy treatment and figure analysis, without charge or obligation. Take advantage of this special offer—and find out more about this delightful way to achieve the slender figure you've always wanted. Call now to reserve time for your free appointment.

Make floor coverings compatible

By CAROLE EICHEN Copley News Service

All too often the apartment you select has floor coverings that don't do much to enhance the appearance of your furnishings.

If you're fortunate enough to purchase a condominium before the carpeting and kitchen floor covering have been selected, usually you can have a say in what colors and materials will be used.

When purchasing a new condominium, most developers offer a decorator's package which includes a choice of floor coverings or a monetary allowance which can be applied toward the carpeting and draperies of your choice.

However, if you are buying a resale or moving into an apartment that already is carpeted, there are still some things you can do to make the color blend and complement the rest

Area rugs are the best way to cover up the original carpeting and provide a little spark of color in the room. Today the choices of area rug designs are almost limitless, from rich solid colors to Indian designs and the more traditional Oriental rugs.

Artists are now being commissioned to design paintings which move with you and be used in your are being turned into decorative rugs next apartment. which can be used on the floor or as a unique wall covering

Geometric designs, floral scenes that look like something right out of nature and intricate patterns are showing up in area rugs.

Indian blankets and Indian rugs are appearing in contemporary apartments. They can add a spark of warmth to a den, dining area, bedroom and even the living room.

If the blankets are not used on the floor, they can be draped over the couch or chairs to give color and interest to the room.

If the floor covering in the kitchen has seen better days and you don't wish to invest in a new floor covering for the apartment, you might consider straw mats.

The mats can be placed right over the existing floor covering in the kitchen to provide a bit of warmth. The best part is that the mats can

Formula given for estimation

By ERICA WILSON

DEAR MS. WILSON: A couple of years ago you gave a rather precise method by which one could determine at the outset of an embroidery project how much yarn would be needed. Do you remember? And if so, could you repeat this technique? My sewing basket is crammed with leftover yarn from too many "guesswork" projects.-Ms. Sally Raines, Ithaca,

DEAR MS. RAINES: I love your expression "rather precise," but actually, that's a fairly accurate description of this mathematical method of figuring yarn amounts, because unless you know in advance what kinds of stitches (and in what color) you'll be using, it's pretty difficult to be absolutely

So for the brave, mathematically oriented of you, here goes: Work a one-inch square on your canvas and note the amount of yarn used. Figure the number of square inches to be covered by each color of your design, then multiply by the amount used to work your one-inch square. This will give you a good idea of what quantity you'll need

DEAR ERICA: I retired last year and have spent the last several months sowing my retirement oats by frequenting the museums in and around Chicago. Now that I've gotten that out of my system, I'm ready to devote some time to my real loveneedlepoint. I'm wondering if there's any way I can simulate the look of the beautiful medieval tapestries I saw during my wanderings. The reason I say 'simulate" is that I don't have a very long attention span, and those tapestries look as if they took centuries to make!-Mrs. Froman Wilde, Northbrook,

DEAR MRS. WILDE: In other words, you're telling me you're in the market for a project that will take you into next month, rather than next century. Well, I've got just the thing. All you need to start with is some No. 12 mesh canvas, some Persian wool. your design and an embroidery frame (artists stretcher strips are excellent).

To get that vertical tapestry shading on canvas. you use the long and short stitch-it's exactly what the doctor ordered because those long, even stitches give the vibrantly shaded effect of real tapestry, with strong vertical lines. The holes of your canvas force the threads to stay evenly in place. which isn't always easy when you're doing the long and short stitch on linen. So instead of using the universal tent stitch, which takes ages, you will be working quickly over six or more threads at one time, making lovely long stitches that blend your colors beautifully. Don't try to count the threads of the canvas; work quite freely as though the mesh were embroidery linen

Sometimes you'll need a clear-cut outline, so use a fine outline stitch such as stem or back stitch after the whole area has been filled in. The lustrous tapestry effect is achieved not only by the long stitches, but also by the rigidity of their directionalways vertical, even though the design seems to

Tapestries lend themselves to strong color contrasts and to simple, clear-cut and stylized shapes, so don't try to use too many shades of color and busy with different shades softly blended in vertical lines. will give your tapestry the magnificent strength you so admired in those museum pieces. And you'll be amazed at how quickly it's done.

One last word-don't limit yourself to traditional subjects. Almost any design will work with this technique—and you'll soon have your own

"exhibition" piece.

House Texans say no to lid on pay raises

WASHINGTON-Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Apr. 28 through May 3.

FEDERAL PAY. Rejected, 172 for and 210 against, an amendment to limit to 5.5 percent the pay hike slated for military personnel and federal white collar employees in fiscal 1979. The vote left authority in the budget for at least a six percent "comparability" raise for some two million military and 1.5 million civilian employees. The amendment would have saved an estimated $255 million in payroll costs. It was proposed to H Con Res 559, the congresional budget resolution setting recommended spending limits to govern later consideration of individual money bills. The measure was headed toward final passage and conference with the Senate.

Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Tex., the sponsor, called the amendment necessary to fight inflation. "If we are not willing to bite the bullet, so to speak, within the federal government, I see no reason to ask the American industry or American labor...to be willing to take lower pay raises."

Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex. an opponent asked: "Why should we set a pay ceiling on federal workers alone? Why not pick out other groups? Why not doctors or plumbers or lawyers or mechanics? Members voting "yea" favored the cap on federal

Reps. James Collins, R-3, Jim Mattox, D-5, Bill Archer, R-7, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Omar Burleson, D-17, and George Mahon, D-19 voted "yes." Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Ray Roberts, D-4, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Broks, D-9, Jack Pickle, D-10, W.R. Poage, D-11, John Young, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Barbars Jordan, D-18, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, Robert Krueger, D-21, and Dale Milford, D-24, voted "nay."

Reps. Charles Wilson, D-2, Olin Teague, D-6, Richard White, D-16, bob Gammage, D-22, and Abraham Kazen, D-23, did not vote

DEFENSE SPENDING. Rejected, 142 for and 262 against, an amendment to add $2.4 billion to the fiscal 1979 budget authority for defense spending. The money was to fund construction of another nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. It was in addition to $127.4 billion already proposed in the 1979 congressinal budget resolution (H Con Res 559, see vote above). The $127.4 billion represents the budget "authority." The amount to be actually appropriated, which cannot exceed the authority, will be determined later in the year.

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Teague, Archer, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Young, de la Garra, Burleson, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage and Milford voted "yea."

Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, and Jordan voted "nay."

White and Kasen did not vote.

PRISONERS' RIGHTS. Excluded, 227 for and 132 against, adult prisoners from a bill designed to insure the civil rights of certain disadvantaged citizens. The bill (HR 9400) gives the U.S. attorney general the power to sue to remedy abuses of such institutionalized persons as wayward children, the mentally retarded, the elderly, the chronically ill and the handicapped. The bill, which affects local, state or federal institutions, was sent to the Senate. This vote excluded adult but not juvenile prisoners members voting "yea" favored excluding adult prisoners from the bill.

Hall, Wilson, Collings, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Young, de la Garza, Mahon and Milford voted "yea."
Brooks, Jordan, and Gonzalez voted "nay."
Teague, Eckhardt, Hightower, White, Burleson, Krueger, Gammage and Kazen did not vote.

SENATE

OSHA. Confirmed, 56 for and 33 against, Bertram R. Cottine to serve on the Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission, the panel that oversees the much-criticized Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Some senators viewed Cottine, a 31-year-old activist lawyer once associated with Ralph Nader, as a symbol of over-zealousness

Senators voting "yea" favored the nomination. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "yea." Sen. John Tower, R, voted "nay."

A NEW CANAL? Rejected, 43 for and 49 against, an amendment authorizing $8 million for studying the possibilty of building a new Panama Canal about 10 miles west of the existing waterway. This amendment sought to revive an unfinished study conducted in 1964-70 by the Army Corps of Engineers. It was proposed to HR 8309, a bill later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, the sponsor, said the interests of commerce require a larger canal. "Right now," he said, "the obsolescence of the (Panama) canal is very, very clear."

Sen. Peter Domenici, D-N.M., an opponent, noted that the new Panama Canal treaties call for a joint Panamanian-U.S. study on the possibility of a new canal. He urged the Senate not to tamper with those Seantors voting "yea" favored the amendment. Bentsen and Tower voted "nay."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Newell Tate of Tarzan.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I noticed that in your article about cold sores, you made no mention of cold compresses. I have always found them very helpful—at least, they seemed to be. Is this just more old folk medicine? Or do you think they are worthwhile?—Sara M.

UP!

Dear Sara: Cold compresses are, indeed, favored by some doctors. And I recently came across a letter in "The Lancet." a British medical publication, recommending ice. Dr. Sanford Danziger says he has had excellent results treating recurrent cold sores on the edge of the lips this way.

One thing that is essential, Dr. Danziger says, is starting the treatment within 24 hours of the earliest cold sore symptoms-the all to familiar itching. slightly burning sensation. Another point he makes is that the ice should be applied for an hour and a half to two hours. Here, he adds, he has had a small problem with his patients-they get bored and want to quit before the 90 minutes are up.

The ice treatment, Dr. Danziger says, localizes the blisters and they heal without breaking in one or two days. Whereas, left alone, they usually take a week or 10 days to clear up-as you probably know only too

Dr. Danziger says he hasn't found much about ice therapy in the medical literature. And he thinks it should prove valuable as a home remedy. See what you think. I would enjoy knowing if you find it works better than cold compresses.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband had a heart attack last Christmas, but he seems to be making a good recovery. And the doctor keeps telling him he is going to be as good as new. He even wants him to be on a regular exercise program—in fact, my husband has already begun it. I'm only afraid they are both being a bit too enthusiastic. Do you think it's okay to simply start up again this way?-Lila G.

Dear Lila: Yes, it really is okay. People who have had heart attacks should not be considered permanent semi-invalids. Some-after long and careful rehabilitation-have even run the marathon. Although that is quite exceptional!

There are, actually, two points that must be stressed. First, the rehabilitation program must be done under medical supervision. Secondly, the program must be long-range and very gradual—as I am sure your husband's doctor would be the first to tell you. The patient must never feel that he has to meet any set schedule.

I'm giad that your husband has begun so well-and certainly wish him the best of luck!

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Downright harmful

The natural gas compromise, which was to have been back before the Energy Conference Committee Tuesday afternoon. will do little or nothing to bring on more natural gas.

This was the charge voiced Monday by House and Senate Republicans.

Committee action on the proposal, if any, had not been announced at the time of this writing. But this has nothing to do with the Republican charge. It still holds, regardless.

The Republicans very well could have gone even further in declaring that the compromise would be downright harmful, particularly to Texas.

In fact, Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas did that very thing in his usual wise, forceful manner at the GOP press conference Monday.

"This natural gas pricing compromise presents a dismal future for the United States," he said.

"Because this compromise will not assure a plentiful supply of natural gas, the entire country is a loser, but no area of the country will lose like the state of Texas."

He went on to explain that the bill, as proposed, will regulate intrastate gas which is sold in the state of production and that "what gas Texas ultimately does produce will not be sent to our residents and industry as has been the case in the past."

He said that about one-third of the natural gas produced in the Lone Star State would be diverted to the Northeast for priority residential use.

"I cannot accept any compromise that might run the risk of creating shortages and putting

Newspaper delivery boys or-

hundreds of thousands of Texans out of work," he declared

Three cheers for Jim Collins and his stand in this particular matter. It is hoped that all members of the Texas delegation in Congress are of like opinion. This is a matter of special concern to all Texans, more so, as Collins said, than to any other state.

But residents of other states also should take a serious look at such a compromise proposal, since they also will be affected adversely in the long run.

Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., explained that "The uncontrolled intrastate market was the only reason there was a surplus in the gas-producing states to ease the winter emergency two years ago.

"Month after month since we began discussing gas legislation. intrastate production has exceeded the levels of the previous year as interstate production declined."

He went on to say that the plentiful gas in the intrastate market which has resulted from an unregulated pricing system "is the basic reason the Senate as a whole voted for deregulation."

The senator rightly charged that the compromise proposal "is not deregulation, but rather extension of regulation and price controls to the only free market

"To those conferees who feel compelled to vote for this compromise for the sake of having an energy bill, I say that the American consumer would be vastly better off with no bill than with a compromise under which intrastate market will vanish."

CHARLEY REESE:

'Let's stop putting up with Red propaganda

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate ORLANDO, Fla.

The editorial writer of the Forida Flambeau, the student newspaper at Florida State University in Tallahassee, is a jerk. It's not often worth the effort to note the immmature ramblings of student editors, but a recent editorial in the Flambeau on Gen. William Westmoreland is worth a look — if for no other reason than to provide an example of the negative value in some cases of a college education.

Last February Westmoreland tried to speak to a group of students and was prevented from doing so by the riotous behavior of protestors who hooted him off the stage.

In commenting on this sorry episode, the Flambeau editorial writer began: "Because former General William Westmoreland is ojectively a war criminal, responsible for unspeakable atrocities against the Vietnamese, the individuals protesting his visit here yesterday had, perhaps, a moral obligation to do so. Certainly, they had a constitutional right."

It's time to quit putting up with this regurgitated communist propaganda. Westmoreland is an honorable man who committed no crimes and no atrocities. An atrocity is what the communists committed - many, many times and not by accident or in disobediance to orders but as a matter of policy, as for example, when they executed everyone in one village in the I Corps area and strung the mutilated bodies of the village children along the perimeter fence.

It's amazing how much ignorance the Flambeau writer crammed into one paragraph. No one can have a moral obligation to deny another his right to free speech, and no foreign student - which he later admits half of the demonstrators were - had any U.S. constitutional rights.

(It's interesting that it was mostly Iranian students who shouted down Westmoreland and Iranian students who demonstrated on another Florida campus against the visit of an Israeli official. If I were head of Immigration, they'd be on the way to Iran today. They abuse our hospitality. Our domestic politics are none of their business.)

The editorial sage did concede the protestors made a tactical error in preventing Westmoreland from speaking. He even admits the general's rights were violated, though he adds, "We should not allow him to appear as a victim of a civil rights violation, but rather as what he is an unrepentant militant whose actions in the past resulted in the often indiscriminate deaths of thousands upon thousands of Asians during the War in Vietnam.

It's enough to make you throw up. The exact opposite is true. There were excessive American casualties because of the restraints imposed on and abided by Westmoreland.

If we had had rational civilian leaders, we would have turned North Vietnam into a lump of radioactive glass and come on home, leaving South Vietnam a free country instead of a communist prison

If this kid thinks Westmoreland is an embodiment of "...that militaristic strain which devours billions of our dollars, spitting out napalm, neutrons and imperialism," then he's as dumb as he is irresponsible.

In fact, the editorial writer is an embodiment of that educational strain which devours billions of our tax dollars, spitting out illiterates, jerks and socialists.

I don't mind it when the Russians or Cubans are anti-American. That's their business. But my tolerance of these little wretches lolling around in tax-supported universities and kicking the country that feeds them is

What kind of a nut house are we running when communist speakers traipse around and get the red carpet treatment at universities while a man like Westmoreland gets run off the campus and pilloried in the student And how long are we going to tolerate it?

The only advantage of the coming nuclear war is that so many people are going to deserve it.

Cambodian recounts 'nightmares'

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON - "The Khmer

Rouge are inhuman. They have killed and killed without stopping." This was written by 27-year-old So Chantho about the communist rulers of his native Cambodia. It is one of hundreds of testaments we have accumulated from those who have fled to freedom from the terroristic regime. To give human dimension to the suffering of the Cambodian people. we have selected at random the personal, handwritten account of So Chantho. It was written after he reached a refugee camp in Thailand

The Thais have given him temporary refuge, but no one has offered him a permanent home. Yet he cannot go back to Cambodia. If he does, he will be executed. His crimes: he once attended college, served in the forner army, worked for the post office and wanted to become a doctor

So Chantho is one of an estimated 15,000 Cambodians who have escaped from the despotic Khmer Rouge reign, which in three years has rivaled Hitler's Nazi Germany for genocidal ruthlessness. In recent columns, we have detailed how the Pol Pot government has exterminated hundred of thousands, perhaps as many as 2.5 million Cambodians in a planned Holocaust while the rest of the so-called civilized world has ignored the bloodbath.

So Chantho is guilty of belonging to the old social order, which the Khmer Rouge clearly is trying to exterminate. Apparently, the only survivors are those who have succeeded in concealing their past.

INSIDE REPORT:

Doubt expressed that Carter has global perspective

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Private warnings to presidential aides last month that the neutralist regime in Afghanistan was "ripe like a red apple" for a pro-Soviet Communist takeover met official silence here, a non-response highlighting the administration's dangerous inertia in meeting the current Soviet worldwide

That warning was quietly passed to top Carter foreign policy officials three weeks ago. The source was a trusted, Teheran-based emissary of the Shan of Iran.

Even if the U.S. were not tied into a straitjacket imposed by Congress as a result of post-Vietnam politics, it probably would have been impossible for President Carter - or any other President - to prevent the pro-Soviet takeover or influence its timing. But the warning from the Shah, and similar warnings from Pakistan, had no impact at all on the Carter administration.

Murmuring soft sympathies for the Shah, administration officials lost a particularly timely occasion to notify Moscow sharply that Soviet support for a Communist takeover in previously neutral Afghanistan which borders the Soviet Union) would have disquieting repercussions in Washington.

BIBLE VERSE

O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth! who hast set hy glory above the heaven .--Psalm 8:1

This ostrich-like, see-no-evil posture of Carter foreign policy plan-ners fed doubts among U.S. allies doubts now reaching agonizing pro-portions — that the Soviet offensive in Africa and Asia is incapable of engaging Jimmy Carter's interest. Instead. these allies believe. Mr. Carter's current policy has a single aim: do nothing that might offend Moscow and put at risk the planned summer summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev to sign a new strategic arms limitation agreement

But that may be too benign a view, a conclusion that is shared by observant diplomats here and high defense officials. "I'm not sure that Jimmy Carter has a global perspective." one told us. "He tends to see things that happen abroad as isolated incidents, not linked together."

An even more melancholy reaction, widely held by experts here, is this: presidential worry that a tough warning to Moscow not to push the U.S. too far might well require an equally tough U.S. follow-up, one for which the Carter administration is unprepared

But, in fact, installation of a pro-Soviet regime in faraway Afghanistan sets the stage for a series of new Communist probes which will confront Jimmy Carter with even more difficult choices. These future events, spawned in the bloody Kabul takover. are what caused the Shah to sound his alarm here three weeks ago.

It is highly probable that the new rules in Kabul soon will exploit ancient territorial disputes about tribal lands adjointng both Pakistan and Iran. The most important of these would establish an independent state in what is known as Baluchestan, a slice of prime strategic territory along Pakistan's western border with Iran which runs to the Indian Ocean.

Access to the Indian Ocean has always been a Russian dream. In the glory days of the British empire, wars were repeatedly fought to prevent Russian penetration south through what was British India to warm water ports on the Indian Ocean.

No immediate move like that is expected from the new Communist regime in Kabul, but agitating these ancient tribal rivalries across its borders would foster Afghan nationalism. That is a proven method of building political support for any new regime, particuluarly for a Communist regime trying to consolidate its power in the orthodox Moslem state of Afghanistan.

But even without such provocative politics, installation of the pro-Soviet government has already compelled Iran to reinforce its eastern frontiers with both Afghanistan and Pakistan. The takeover is a second giant step toward what the Shah has always warned against: encirclement of the oil-rich Persian Gulf region, in cluding Iran and Saudi Arabia, by Moscow and its satellites. The first was Soviet penetration of the Horn of Africa

For an administration seemingly so preoccupied with SALT, the question of when or how to come to grips with disconcerting issues like faraway Afghanistan and the Horn of Africa goes to the back packer, Indeed, when Air Force Secretary John C. Stetson said on April 21 that the U.S. had a tacit obligation to go back up" Iran in the event of a hostile Soviet move, he was publicly rebuked by the State Department for using overly strong

That was just before Moscow laid claim to Communist power in Kabul. Since then, there has been no visible change in Mr. Carter's policy. Quite the opposite; the change has been one more demonstration of Soviet disdain for U.S. will and one notch tighter in the psychological fear campaign against U.S. allies.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - In medieval times the hospice was a place to rest for the weary traveler. Today, it's a place where the dying have a chance to meet the end of life loved and free of pain.

"The subject of dying is the last taboo," said Sandol Stoddard, author of "The Hospice Movement: A Better Way to Care for the Dying." "We have talked ourselves bored stiff about sex. We are ready to confront

Ms. Stoddard, who was a volunteer at Hospice of Marin north of here and at St. Christopher's Hospice in London, sees the movement as a less expensive alternative to hospital care for the terminally ill.

"It's not a form of magic or spookiness," she said in an interview. "We are giving the dying person more control at the end, and often there are things the dying person wants to ac-complish, like knit a sweater for a grandchild or listen to his favorite opera for the last time.'

Leslie Linscheid's case demonstrates one way the movement works. The Hospice of Marin helped her move a hospital bed into her living room to care for her dying mother at home. The hospice was on 24-hour standby, providing pain-killing medication and emotional and spiritual support for the family. satisfied, knowing I did everything I could to care for my mether," Mrs.

Linscheid said. Dying at home or in hospice facilities has become over the past three years a new - but growing - trend in caring for the terminally ill. Almost 75 non-profit hospice groups now spread the philosophy of helping patients and their families live their last days to the fullest.

The hospice is cheaper and helps the terminally ill face death without fear or pain, Ms. Stoddard said.

The American Hospital Association puts the average cost of a day's hospital care at $151.79. In a recent study, a New Haven, Conn., hospice found its' average patient was cared for at home for three months and required 15 visits from physicians at a cost of $450. In addition, families spent about $300 on medicine and equipment.

The hospice staff includes doctors, nurses, social workers, volunteers and clergy who help the patient and family face death. The medical team uses sophisticated techniques of pain control to allow the patient to enjoy the last days.

At the Hospice of Marin, a mixture of morphine, alcohol and one of the phenothiazines in a cherry syrup is given orally every four hours. Patients often dispense and administer their own medicine and keep their own pain charts, Ms. Stoddard said.

So far, programs in this country have dealt only with cancer patients. The National Cancer Institute has provided money for hospices in New Haven and in Riverside, N.J.

About a dozen hospices have buildings in which patients may be admitted for short periods of treatment, but home care is the heart of the pro-

Ms. Stoddard, whose husband is a physician, said that considering death a failure is "a modern and ignorant prejudice" that the hospice movement may help to reverse. "I feel it's a very gentle yet stubborn revolution in health care.

League OKs study requests

AUSTIN — New study requests from the Texas Department of Public Safety and North Texas State University recently were approved by the Texas Research League.

In the DPS request, Col. Wilson E. Speir, director, asked the league to study the department's structure and operations in order to "insure that the (DPS) is adequately equipped to keep pace with future demands it will surely face." He asked that special attention be given to certain problem areas that have developed since the DPS was reorganized in 1955.

On behalf of the NTSU Board of Regents and his administration, President C. C. Nolen requested the league to help the school prepare a capital financial plan "geared to the prudent development of the facilities necessary to North Texas State University's educational program.' Along with several other state universities, NTSU soon will begin receiving funds from a new 10-year allocation of statewide property taxes. These funds, amounting to $53 million for NTSU and $600 million throughout the state, are to be used forTcapital expenditures.

Dr. Yin, who is from NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., calls it a Lixiscope.

It's about the size of a .38 caliber pistol - an apt comparison, since part of the machine is a night scope developed to enable Army sharpshooters to see in the dark.

"It is yery simple stuff," he said. "This end contains a radioactive source, Iodine 125. When an object is placed in front of it the rays pass through the object and make an image on a phosphor screen. Then the night-vision intensifier (scope) boosts that image, making it about 100,000 times brighter, and it shows up on the viewing screen as a picture. Simple, indeed.

The gadget is under examination at Harvard and the National Institue of Health to develop it for practical commercial uses.

Dr. C. K. LaPinta, who was physician to the astronauts at NASA's Space. Center in Houston, compiled the space age version of the physician's old black bag, one that will be stowed aboard the space shuttle in case of a medical emergency in orbit.

"They needed an emergency medical bag packed into three cubic feet and 40 pounds," he said.

The one they came up with is about the size of a weekend suitcase. It has battery power, solid state circuitry and is as versatile as a small clinic.

It will make strip chart readouts on a heart condition or brain waves. Digital screens to tell vital data such as respiration rate, temperature, blood pressure. It is packed with drugs, bandages and other medical

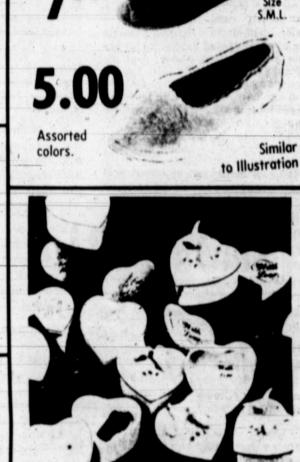

A paramedic with such equipment can couple it to a telephone, call a hospital and give the physician almost any data he needs for diagnosis and treatment.

"We don't get into the commercial end of these things," said Dr. LaPinta, "But we estimate these bags could be commercially produced for a cou-ple of thousand dollars each. Any paramedic could be taught to use them in an hour."

Bureaucracy no friend of elderly

By WARREN UNNA Special to The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Mary J is poor, black, old, increasingly forgetful, paranolac about break-ins and yet, despite all, trying to cope with a very complicated society through a governmental bureaucracy which, for all of its proclaimed goals, simply doesn't reach out to her.

Mrs. J was my cleaning woman until her retirement. Through her, my eyes have been opened a bit to what it means to be alone while trying to walk upright on the declining path.

For two years now, she has been living off her $244 monthly Social Security check. She's never bought food stamps. She didn't know that she was eligible for them or, if she was, how to go about obtaining them. She has nursed her own illnesses so, if there were Medicare benefits, nobody told her she was entitled to them.

Her problems in trying to learn what she is entitled to, and how to go about obtaining it, have been compounded many times by the infirmites of age. She forgets many things now. And she imagines even more.

Periodically, her phone and gas and electricity have been cut off because she hides the bills when they come. along with mortgage foreclosure notices and Social Seciruty checks lest the man she used to live with, and who then deserted her, breaks in with what she fears is his intention to reclaim the house they shared. As best I know, her fear is groundless.

I became aware of how really desperate her situation was when I let her house-sit for me last summer and returned to find she had "lost" her purse and wallet containing her Social Security card. I later found it under blankets in a bureau drawer. She apparently had hidden it fom her man and forgotten where. And besides the Social Security card, I found an uncashed check from me which I long ago had replaced with another; an old uncashed check from another employer; several months of uncashed Social Security checks; and the loan company's notice that they were about to foreclose on her house because of delinquent payment. One had it only been cashed But beyond the self-created problems of people like Mrs. J, why does government, instead of helping them cope with complexities that can confuse even the best equipped, too often seem to turn its back on those who most need help?

I became vividly aware of this when took Mrs. J to a Metro office to get a senior citizen's half-price subway card. It was like walking in front of a machine-gun range.

"Birth certificate!" "Marriage certificate!" "Further identification!" the automatons behind the heavily protected glass screens demanded in toneless, compassionless staccato. The little woman before them looked feebly up from behind her glasses, her gray hair in disarray under a lopsided wool beret. Her face alone carried the identification of senior citizen. But she had no written documentation; maybe she never had any. The automatons behind their glass screens were unmoved.

After a check through the school system found someone sympathetic enough at least to search, a letter was sent Mrs. J at her home declaring that a Mary with her unmarried name, born in Philadelphia, parents "unknown," raised by a now-"deceased" guardian, had attended the first year of Burrville Elementary School between 1915 and 1917. The day of birth, Sept. 15, was the same one she always marks. But the letter listed her year of birth as either 1908 or 1910. This left the possibility that she was approaching 70 this year, instead of 68, as she had assumed. It also raised the possibility that she could have claimed Social Security benefits two years earlier. She then went back to the Metro firing squad, presented the letter from the school system and looked up apologetically. The emotionless squad behind the heavy glass win-dows handed the school letter back and forth and, for a while, it loked as if it was either about to be rejected or a phone call would be made to headquarters for further instructions. Finally, one of them, perhaps the woman supervisor, softened, and Mrs. J was allowed to pay $2 for a Metro card with $4 worth of rides.

She smiled in gratitude. Whenever something nice happens, it always is so unexpected. She never knew a father. Her mother apparently placed her in a foster home at a very early age. Her husband alternated between jail and bottle, and so she left him. The man she then lived with walked out for another woman. When she went to work as a cleaning woman in a speciality shop she found herself doing all the cleaning work for the other cleaning woman, all younger, who just walked away from the dirty jobs. When the store personnel people ignored her request to limit her hours so she wouldn't be earning beyond what Social Security permitted, her Social Security checks suddenly stopped coming. Then the store did gratify her with fewer hours — they fired her without notice because they shifted to a contracting firm which had its own team of cleaning women.

Obtaining a senior citizen's card for free bus rides was compartively easy - once Mrs. J was told all she had to do was go to one of the authorized places like the YWCA and show her Social Security card

But when she tried to cash the $75 check of a woman she once had worked for (the check which had been stashed away in her lost wallet), the bank said it was 1 1-2 years old and wouldn't honor it. When she phoned the woman for another check, it never came. A follow-up brought the response that the woman couldn't "afford" paying Mrs. J right now: She just had had her imported car repaired and, anyway, it had been a bad year in which she had been divorced.

It took several more phone calls to locate the woman's boss. He seemed to undertand immediately but, apologetically, said all he could do was inform her that an inquiry had been made

Mrs. J's check was mailed the next

Paychecks were one thing. Dealing with taxes was something else again. Through self-discipline and pruin its 10-page information pamphlet mailed out to taxpayers, has a section marked "Property Tax Credit" for residents below a certain income. This requires applying for a "Schedule H (Form d-40) Property Tax Credit Claim." It is only two pages, but it requires considerable mathematical figuring. It also requires unsnagging some ambiguous wording over whether the applicant should be entering the property taxes actually paid, or the tax amount listed before a special. automatic District deduction. After a number of phone calls, first to obtain the required Schedule H, then to get a clarification on the ambiguity from no less than the assessor's office itself, Mrs. J's form was duly completed and mailed in.

Food stamps were yet another mat-go. Then, when nothing happened for she went back accompanied. One food Mrs. J signing in. But apparently she hadn't understood she was supposed to wait for an interview, and nobody told her. This time, she had her inter-

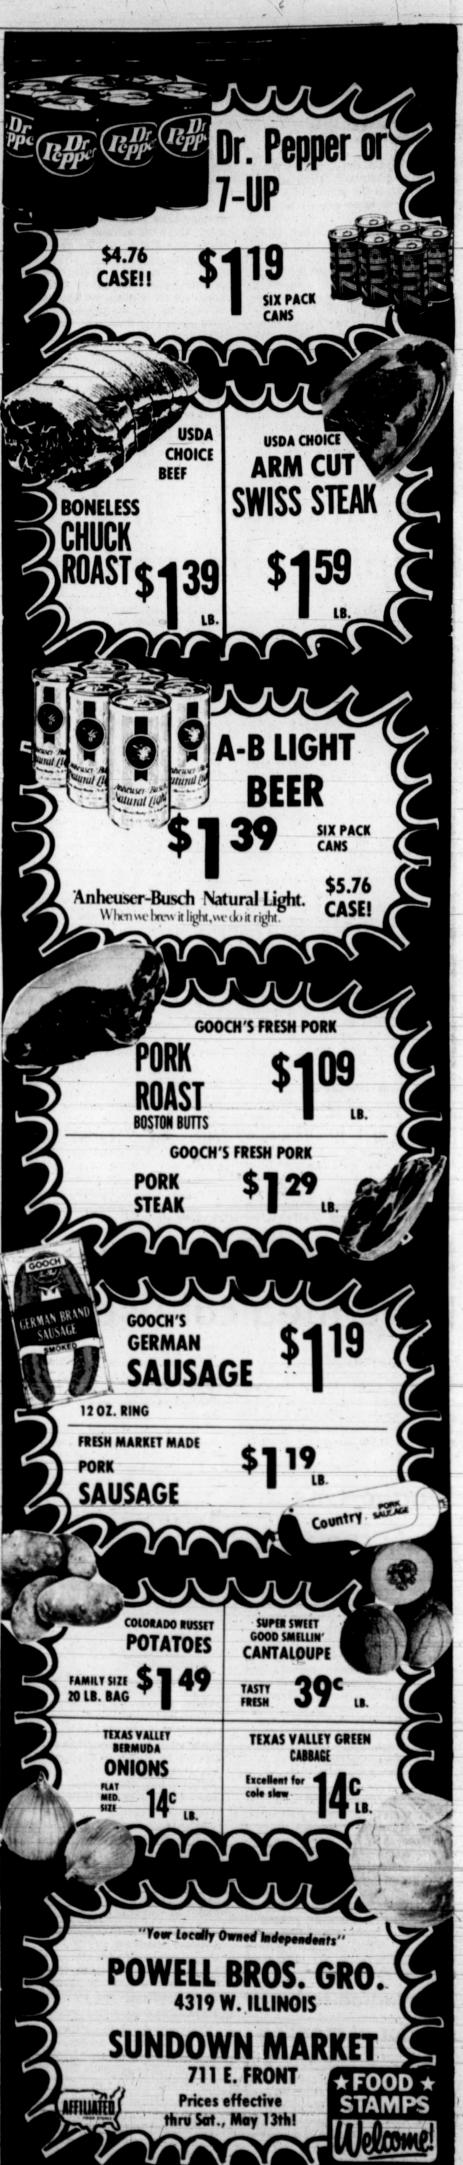

Eventually, she was mailed a letter

dence, Mrs. J, through the years, has been paying monthly installments on her tiny, one-bedroom house in Washington. This year, the District government, in mailing its new assessments, enclosed a form to be filled out to lower the assessment by $6,000 under last year's Residential Property Tax Relief Act. The first task was to be sure Mrs. J didn't hide the notification from the break-ins she is convinced occur whenever she goes out. The second task was to be sure the form was properly signed and mailed in time for her to claim the $6,000 reduction. Then came something she never would have been able to discover on her own, or act upon. The District Department of Finance and Revenue.

ter, still unresolved.

First, Mrs. J had to be told where to several months after her initial visit, stamp office finally found a record of that her application had been approved. She went back. She was told to show her food stamp identification card. She didn't have one. Then it must be in the mail to her. It wasn't.

Texas still home of many transformed air bases

By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - When Adrian Atwater gazed across the mostly barren plains outside Childress the first thing he wondered was: "Where the devil did all those trees come from?

He jogged his memory backwards...10 years....20 years...30 years...stopping in 1943, when the Childress Army Air Field occupied the grassy fields now before him.

Atwater studied one of the many photographs he'd made while training at the airfield. In some of them were little 5-foot elm trees braced against the Texas wind.

The little trees had been planted when the base was under construction. Atwater hadn't given them much notice then. Now, big elms undulated in the afternoon breeze.

Childress, a town of 5,400 rooted at the edge of the Caprock that rises to become the High Plains, was one of dozens of towns across Texas where plowboys and city slickers earned their wings as pilots, gunners, navigators and bombardiers during World

Today, as Atwater discovered onhis odyssey back to Childress, many of the old military airstrips are hardly recognizable.

Some are nearly deserted and, like Childress Army Air Field, are being slowly reclaimed by nature as johnson grass shoots through cracks in the old paved runways. Other air bases have found new life as city airports, industrial parks or job training cen-

In Laredo, on the Rio Grande border with Mexico, Laredo Air Force Base finally closed permanently in September 1973. But retired Col. Gaillard R. Peck, who was wing commander at the base from 1963 to 1965, now works as a civilian in the same office from which he issued orders more than a dozen years ago.

"I've even got the same desk and the same secretary as when I was wing commander," Peck said in a telephone interview recently. He is now aviation advisor for the city of Laredo and director of Laredo International Airport.

The Air Force turned the Laredo base over to the General Services Administration which turned it over to the city. Last year, the city completed the move of its airport facility to the old air base.

airport in the nation for a city of our size," said Peck. He also supervises commercial development on the Vying with Laredo for biggest airport in a small city is Big Spring, which is taking over Webb Air Force Base later this year. Col. Harry Spannaus, who retired Jan. 1 this year as wing commander at Webb, is now the Big Spring airport manager.

Spannaus and his office already have attracted 10 companies to locate in vacant military buildings that are becoming part of an industrial park around the soon-to-be city airport.

Big Spring will close its Howard County Airport later this year when it moves to Webb, which only a few years ago still had 1,500 active military personnel on base. Now only a caretaker force is there and it will leave later this year. The companies now in the new industrial park will. hire about 120 civilians.

When the Air Force said it would close the Laredo base, there was much worry over what it would do to the local economy. But Peck said the effect of the closing was offset by in new jobs and businesses that blunted the economic loss of the base clos-

Even Childress Army Air Field, changed as it is, still plays an active role in the local economy. The city took over the land after the war and in 1969, Lancer Homes opened a plant on the old base property and today employs about 325 workers to build mobile and modular homes. A few of the surviving buildings are still in use by the Federal Aviation Administration and the Rock Island Railroad.

But Childress itself is much the same today as it was during the heyday of its nearby air training field.

"It hasn't changed a bit. There were a few new buildings and old ones were there, some doing business and others vacant," observed Atwater, now chief photographer for the Nevada State Highway Department in Carson City.

But Atwater needed an aerial prioto of the Childress air field to find his way among the base's remains. He found only the foundations of his barracks, orderly room, day room and squadron latrine

Atwater's old mess hall was reduced "to a giant slab of broken cement and a pile of bricks that was the chimney." Only a foundation existed where the base headquarters building once stood.

"It was a good base and served its purpose well," he said.

Atwater, who came to Childress from a farm outside Bennett, Colo., chuckled at some of his memories. The Eastern boys, he recalled, "complained bitterly about the flat desolate area and nothing in Texas would ever compare to one square inch of Childress, during those years, reaped the benefits of GI paydays, when the soldiers hadn't already lost their earnings in one of the frequent latrine dice games.

Atwater and some of his buddies would hitchhike to nearby Quanah, Paducah, Wellington or Memphis. Or, they skipped across the border into Oklahoma, where they could buy beer. Much of Texas was "dry" then. "There was no surplus of soldiers in those other towns and plenty of girls.

to go around," he remembered. In early 1944, Atwater was transferred to gunnery school at Harlingen Air Field before being shipped to Calcutta, India, for the remainder of World War II.

The bases at Childress, Laredo, Big Spring - like others across Texas were products of a massive effort to train air crews at the outset of the

By 1942, five years later, the military strained to crank out 80,000 new pilots at 375 airfields across the nation, most in the South and Southwest, and many in Texas.

Scopes microphones sought for museum

By ERIC NEWHOUSE

DAYTON, Tenn. (AP) - Historians are looking for two of the microphones used to broadcast the Scopes monkey trial live over the first national radio hookup 53 years ago.

"They are particularly important since that live broadcast marked the first time it had ever been done," said Ted Mercer, president of Rhea County Historical Society.

Radio station WGN in Chicago, one of the nation's oldest, used three squash-sized mikes bearing its call letters for the broadcast. Program manager Dick Jones said recently that one of the microphones is on display at the station. He said he had no idea where the other two are.

WGN wanted to broadcast Chicago's sensational 1924 Leopold and Loeb murder trial in which two wellto-do young men were convicted of kidnapping and killing a small boy. But more than 10,000 listeners voted against it for reasons of taste.

The next year, WGN didn't bother to ask whether it should broadcast the trial in southeast Tennessee of John Scopes, who had been accused of teaching evolution. The station jumped at the chance to air Clarence Darrow's classic confrontation with William Jennings Bryan. "Station WGN of Chicago decided to broadcast the trial over the first national radio hookup and sent Quinn Ryan to coordinate the effort," Rick Beard wrote in the Smithsonian Institution's history of the trial. "The WGN microphones would become a fixture in the courtroom.

On July 11, 1925, WGN technicians installed the mikes, one on the judge's bench, another on the defense table, and the third in front of prosecutors. Judge John T. Raulston tested the system from the bench by scolding the gallery of reporters.

Half a century later, county officials decided to renovate the Rhea County Courthouse with about $1 million in state and federal money to make it look as it did in 1925. Only the microphones were missing when the historic building was reopened to the public this month.

"Virtually all the furnishings in the courtroom are original," Mercer

"The courthouse and the courtroom had not been changed in any significant way," he said. "Certain parts had just been abandoned. And that turned out to be a good thing, in retrospect, because it meant very little reconstruction.

A Scopes museum will be built in the basement within the next year, Mercer said. And to accommodate the expansion in county government, the architect added office space in the unused third floor.

"The renovation even includes the old brass cuspidors, which add a glow to the room," Mercer said. "We're just hoping no one uses them."

Some airfields closed after World War II but were reactivated for the Korean War, and again for the Vietnam War. Laredo was one of these.

In Amarillo, the air base became part of the municipal airport which had adjoined it. The Midland field is now a regional airport for Midland and Odessa.

The Harlingen field is home for the Marine Military Academy. Gary Field at San Marcos is the site of the Gary Job Corps Center.

"Rattlesnake Air Base" was the nickname given Pyote Army Air

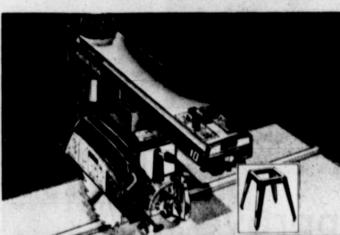

Field west of Monahans by the pilots who learned to fly the big B-17 "Flying Fortress" bombers there during World War II. The nickname's source should be apparent. After the war, the Air Force mothballed some of its bomber fleet at Pyote, including the famous Enola Gay, the B-29 that dropped the first atomic bomb on Japan in 1945. But the bombers are gone today and the West Texas Chil-dren's Home occupies the base area.

Codes now approve use of plastic pipe

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Mention plastic pipe to anyone not too many years ago and the discussion quickly got around to its inability to handle hot water.

Today, the use of plastic pipe for both hot and cold water is approved in two of the three so-called model plumbing codes, 12 states and a number of local codes, with more communities permitting such usage every week or so. This approval is for chlorinated polyvinyl chloride (CVPC) pipe, which is rigid and bonded by a solvent.

A newer development for hot water applications is polybutylene (PB), which received its first model code listing two years ago. Because it is flexible, it is making strong inroads in plumbing for mobile homes and recreational vehicles, where rigid pipes usually are more difficult to install.

Another flexible plastic pipe is made of polyethylene, often used for such outdoor projects as underground sprinkling systems and water lines to patios and swimming pools. Normally available in coiled form, its flexibility allows it to be bent around curves and it can be cut with a knife. Connections may be made by insert or stab-type fittings which are inserted into the pipe, with stainless steel hose clamps tightened around the outside of the connection. A complete assortment of tees, elbows and other fittings is available for connecting to existing metal pipes.

Plastic pipe for drainage, waste water and venting is made from acriolitrile-butadiene-styrene (ABS) and polyvinyl chloride (PVC). The Society of the Plastic Industry says the major model plumbing codes per-mit the use of these plastic pipes above and below ground. These rigid pipes normally are assembled with a solvent cement that chemically "welds" fittings and pipes together. They can be cut with a fine-tooth saw or a tube cutter. Pressure-rated PVC and ABS pipes also are available for pressure applications, such as cold water lines.

Old and crumbling sewer lines are being renewed by "slip lining." In this process, sections of large and flexible plastic pipe are butt-fused into long lengths, then are snaked through existing metal or concrete sewer lines to add many years of life to existing sewer systems.

In competing with metal and concrete pipe, plastic pipe keeps growing in size. A plastic pipe 48 inches in diameter is currently being used at Fort Valdez, Alaska, to earry oil tanker ballast from an onshore plant to a discharge point 1,000 feet offshore and 242 feet under water.

One of the reasons for the increasing popularity of plastic pipe, aside from its light weight and resistance to corrosion, is that it can be easily worked and connected. But that, doesn't mean you can rush headlong into the installation of it. There are certain fundamentals that must be followed to make it secure. When you purchase it, be sure the dealer includes the manufacturer's instructions for the use of that particular type of plastic pipe.

College seeks philanthropist

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - WANT ED: Philanthropist to donate $25 million to a small, private, 123-year-old liberal arts college in exchange for the school being renamed in honor of its benefactor. Contact Southwestern at Memphis.

A group of 95 businessmen and political and education leaders who heard Southwestern President James H. Daughdrill Jr. make that plea responded with laughter. But Daughdrill was serious.

"Most of your prestigious, private schools have had a generous benefactor at one time or another," Daughdrill explained. "That's how Vanderbilt, Duke, Rice and Tulane all got their names.

The college president said he hopes a wealthy donor will put up $25 million for the school's capital improvements program and in return probably have the school named for him.

Texans blast illegal aliens bill

By MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) - Portions of the administration-backed illegal alien bill drew fire from a Texas congressman, conservationists, farmers and farmworkers Tuesday during testimony before a Senate subcommittee

Rep. Richard C. White, a Democrat from El Paso whose district shares a 352-mile border with Mexico, voiced "total opposition to the so-called amnesty provisions" of the bill. The administration bill, sponsored in the Senate by James Eastland, D-Miss., Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., calls for amnesty to illegals in this country since 1970 and up to Jan. 1,

"How is it logically going to be possible to sort out from the millions of illegal entries we all agree are among us those who have been here since 1970, and those who have been here since before January of 1977?" asked White. "There is a basic unfairness and poor principle to reward the law-breaker while flaunting the law abider. The promise of amnesty has brought a flood of would-be entrants to the border, overburdening the border facilities.'

White said he agreed with the bill's provision to penalize employers that hire illegal aliens but added, I think, however, that a tough administrative fining procedure would be preferable to civil penalties.'

Recalling the situation that developed last summer in Presidio, Texas, when the president intervened to allow Texas farmers to hire laborers from across the border. White stressed that a "Bracerolike program" should be included in any illegal alien legislation. The Bracero program allowed Mexican laborers to work in this country legally and return to Mexico after their job was finished.

We are already going through the same traumatic experience again this year in Presidio," continued White, "Domestic labor is not available...and President Carter clearly indicated last year that he would not intervene again, so we are frantically trying to devise another miracle solution.

The Presidio "situation" was used as an example

cuse not to hire U.S. farmworkers" by Thomas Jones, a spokesman for the National Association of Farmworker Organizations.

"Last year in Presidio, over 800 foreign workers were imported to pick onions while domestic workers who had already been recruited and given contracts were refused the right to work in these jobs," added

As to instituting another Bracero-like program, Jones said such laborers "offer the same advantage of being easily exploited as do undocumented workers, but they are hired with federal approval.

Farmers employ illegals, however, because "they are willing to work and have the motivation to improve themselves and their families and because farmers need workers as nature dictates - not when some bureaucrat in Washington decides that workers are not available some place in the country to do the work," countered C.H. Fields, a spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Fields said his group favored the amnesty propos-al but added: "It seems to us that it should be the responsibility of the Social Security Administration to make sure that social security cards are valid. We realize that it will be expensive to initiate a new and responsible procedure for the issuance of social of American farmers who "would welcome an ex- security cards, but if HEW could manage to reduce the $7 billion in fraudulent benefits now paid out under various public asistance programs, perhaps some of the savings could be devoted to carrying out the law with regard to the proper issuance of social security cards.

Fields also said the bill's provision calling for civil penalties against employers who hire illegals should be clarified. But Anthony Wayne Smith, president of the National Parks and Conservation Association, said that portion of the bill should be strengthened to include penalties calling for imprisonment, not 'merely fines.'

Conservationists wish to stem the flow of illegal aliens, expressed Smith, because "it is the illegal alien who may well defeat all our efforts at the solution of our environmental problems in Ameri-

Voters return mayor under federal indictment

By The Associated Press

West Virginia Republicans nominated a former governor to try to unseat a veteran U.S. senator, while Nebraska Republicans chose a former congressional aide to challenge that state's present governor in the November Senate race.

Incumbent mayors in two of New Jersey's largest cities won re-election in Tuesday primaries, and Union City, N.J., voters returned to office a mayor facing federal conspiracy charges.

In West Virginia, Sen. Jennings Randolph and former Gov. Arch Moore picked up easy primary victories en route to their long-awaited showdown in this fall's U.S. Senate

Randolph, seeking a fourth full term, defeated Sharon Rogers of New Martinsville by a 4-to-1 margin. Moore whipped West Union manufacturer Donald Michels by a staggering 9-to-l margin.

In southern West Virginia's 4th Congressional District, Rep. Nick Joe Rahall II of Beckley turned back a comeback bid by the district's former representative, Ken Hechler The race between Rahall and Hechler was the state's only contested congressional primary. The other three congressmen, all Democrats, were nominated without a fight, as were their Republican challengers.

Commission plans trip

Members of the Midland County Historical Commission, meeting Sunday afternoon in the home of Nancy R. McKinley, chairman, completed plans for a field trip scheduled June 17.

Present plans for the trip call for members and others interested to go to Kermit, en route to the Tom Linebery ranch where Mr. and Mrs. Linebery will be hosts to the trippers. They will stop in Kermit for a "brown bag" lunch at the home of Mrs. Louise McClure, following which they will tour her extensive garden project The Midlanders then will visit Pioneer Park, touring Kermit's Medallion Home, the oldest ranch house in Winkler County, which has been restored by the Historical Commission of that county

Following the visit at the Linebery ranch, the group will continue on to Mentone for a tour of a restored church there, and then on to the Post Office marker. The West of the Pecos Museum in the old Orient Hotel at Pecos will be the final-stop

It was announced that the Midland commission plans to have the Brown-Dorsey Medallion Home here placed on the National Register of Historic Places. McKinley reported on the annual Historic Preservation Conference held recently at San Antonio. The Midland County Commission received the Distinguished Service Award at an awards presentation luncheon held in connection with the conference. Plans for building a fence at the Brown-Dorsey home also were discussed. Some of the members volunteered to do research on site markers planned for the Llano Hotel. The Midland National Bank and the old Opera House. Mrs. H. N. Phillips presently is researching the history of rural schools of Midland County. Information will be appreciated from any and all sources. Mrs. McKinley displayed several 'priceless" items donated to the Midland County Historical Museum by Mrs. Sarah S. Kornegay, including early day Midland High School publications, spring recital program. and other articles

In Nebraska, Republican Don Shasteen, a former aide to retiring Sen. Carl Curtis, easily defeated Lenore Etchison of Papillion for the GOP senatorial nomination. Gov. J.J. Exon was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

An Exon victory in November would put two Nebraska Democrats in the U.S. Senate for the first time in the state's history.

In the gubernatorial race, 1st District Rep. Charles Thone, who won the Republican nomination, will face Democratic Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, who easily defeated Grand Island businessman Robert Hansen.

State Sen. Douglas Bereuter won the GOP nomination for the House seat being vacated by Thone. Berueter will meet former state Democratic Chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln in November. The state's other two incumbent congressmen - one Democrat and one Republican - won renomination In New Jersey, Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson, the first black to head a major eastern city, won an unprecedented third term. He pledged to continue to work for racial harmony in Newark.

Gibson, 45, captured 60 percent of the votes in defeating five relatively unknown challengers in the non-partisan election.

In Paterson, the state's third largest city, Mayor Lawrence Kramer was re-elected by a 2-to-1 margin over his top challenger, Thomas Rooney Jr. But Arthur Holland, mayor of the capital city of Trenton, failed to win the majority needed to avoid a run-

Voters in Union City, New Jersey's 14th largest city, re-elected William Musto to another term as mayor.

Musto, who is also a state senator, was in icted by a federal grand jury last November on charges he conspired to protect an illegal gambling operation in the Hudson County community. A federal judge ruled last week that Musto must stand trial on the charges.

Wichita voters repeal gay rights

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - In a resounding "mandate for righteousness," Wichita voters told homosexuals to keep their lifestyle to themselves and repealed a gay rights ordinance by a 5-to-1 margin.

"People are saying loud and clear to the nation that America does not feel that pro-homosexual legislation brought under the civil rights issue is legitimate," said the Rev. Ron Adrian, a Baptist minister who led the group which forced the referendum. "I think God's using this vote to open ly rebuke the pro-homosexual

The vote in favor of repeal was 47,246, and 10,005 supported retention of the 7-month-old ordinance, which prohibited discrimination in housing, employment and public accomodation because of "sexual or affectional preferences.

Similar ordinances were repealed in Miami last June and in St. Paul, Minn., on April 25. A referendum is scheduled later this month in Eugene, Ore., on a gay rights ordinance there.

The 83-to-17 percent victory margin came in one of Wichita's largest election turnouts, with 44 percent of the city's 128,888 registered voters casting ballots. Both supporters and opponents of the ordinance had expected repeal but the margin of defeat surprised all.

Sudan refusing money reforms demanded by IMF

The Washington Post

KHARTOUM - Sudan is refusing to devalue the pound and impose other stringent reforms that are the price for bailing out its nearly bankrupt economy as demanded by the International Monetary Fund and its Arab investors.

Apparently mindful that riots and revolutions have accompanied IMFimposed reforms in other Third World countries, Sudan's president, Jaafar Nimeri, so far has refused a loan package worth potentially more than $800 million.

Worked out late last year by the IMF, the package is said to have featured some $130 million in IMF help — and as much as $700 million in loans from Saudi Arabia.

In February, Nimeri went to Riyadh determined to convince King Khalid and Crown Prince Fahd they should help him over his short-termproblems. He argued this was the best - indeed the only - way to protect their multi-billion-dollar investment programs designed to turn Sudan into the Middle East's bread bsket.

But Saudi financial experts were reported to have convinced the top leadership that sidestep ping IMF conditions would involve them in open-ended cash pay ments, such as those provided to similarly insolvent Egypt, albeit on a smaller scae.

Sudanese insiders do not expect the government to be able to delay

Five due to attend meeting

STEPHENVILLE -Five Midlanders concerned with conservation of the country's basic resources - land and water - will be in Stephenville next Tuesday for a statewide meeting to discuss the Resources Conservation Act of 1977.

The law calls for ap praisals of the nation' soil, water and related resources; the development of a comprehensive program to guide conservation efforts, and the evaluation of today's on-going conservation ef-

"The act recognizes the need for public participation to insure conservation programs are responsive to public needs," said J. D. Crawford, chairman of the Midland County Soil and Water Conservation District. He has farming and ranching interests in Midland.

The meeting, open to the public, will begin at 9 a.m. on the Tarleton State University cam-

Others from Midland at the meeting will be Ed Dwyer, oil operator; Vernon Chandler, farmer; Billy Carr, agent for University Lands; O. B. Orr, assistant agent for University Lands, and Dick Hagelstein, district conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service in Midland.

Following the statewide meeting, districtlevel meetings will be held to shape conservation's future in the coun-

The meeting in Midland will be held sometime in June.

Fire ban removed

CLOUDCROFT, N.M. -The ban on use of fire and smoking in Lincoln National Forest has been lifted, Acting Forest Supervisor Stanly W Stroup announced this Stroup said the ban was imposed April 7 because of high fire danger. But, he said, rains have reduced that danger.

The Sudan's problems

Third World economics. The central bank has no reserves worth mentioning. The country's credit rating is near zero. Inflation is running officially at 25 percent, but that figure is considered a wild underestimation; foreign loans eat up nearly one-third of export earnings; the trade deficit is enormous; and the budget deficit is financed by printing

The country's only port
— Port Sudan — is badly clogged. Sixty of the railways' 150 locomotives are sidetracked for lack of spare parts, which are unavailable because there is no foreign exchange. Meanwhile, $30 million worth of peanuts for export are waiting for rail shipment.

With only 375 miles of paved road, and chaotic shipping and air service, the country's inadequate infrastructure is understrain because of massive projects, many financed by foreign - often Arab - investors.

Illustrative of the government's dilemma are reports that civil servants in the provinces have not been paid, and the steady drain of skilled and semi-skilled workers to Saudi Arabia and other better-paying, oil-rich countries.

Some of those tensions surfaced recently in

Sex education for mentally retarded students, ages 6 through 21, Tuesday was approved by the Midland public schools Board of Education at its regular meeting in the school administration building.

By MARLEEN RAY

Greeted with applause from the audience, the board's decision will allow "human sexuality with an emphasis on social areas and appropriate behavior to be taught to educable and trainable mentally retarded students." The school district plans to introduce sex education for these students in the 1978-79 school year.

Janet Kirkpatrick, education chairman for the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, told the trustees that if mentally retarded students participated in a sex education program, there would be "less chance of them being exploited," and they would better learn how to live in the

She said parents will be encouraged to participate in this program but may request that their children be excluded from certain parts of it. She said instruction will be individualized, meaning students will be taught only what they can understand."

The Midland Association for Retarded Citizens first proposed that sex education be included in the curriculum for mentally retarded pupils during the summer of 1976. Parents and teachers worked together to develop a resource guideline, and during this chool year, the MARC and the school district's Special Education Department held meetings with parents of retarded children to get their reactions and ideas.

addition, the list includes representatives from all school clusters and is multi-ethnic - with seven white members, six black members and six Mexican-Americans,

The trustees directed the committee to study discipline policies and procedures at elementary schools and determine the need for a uniform discipline code. The committee is scheduled to make a report to the board the first of August.

Schools Superintendent Dr. James Mailey said he has told Assistant Superintendent Doug Brown to review disciplinary policies in secondary schools.

The school board Tuesday heard a progress report on the secondary English program, given by Robert Carter, secondary English coordinator. In addition, Jack Fryar, chairman of the Lee High School English department, gave a presentation on his school's program.

Fryar said more clerical help is needed in the department since teachers began to implement the English language policies adopted by the board in May 1977. As an example, he said he personally typed nearly all of approximately 300 pages of course descriptions and outlines, required by the district.

Board President Johnny Warren said some residents think there is an "inequality of (English) programs" between Lee High and Midland High School.

However, Carter said course descriptions and outlines at both high schools are "essentially the same, although they have not been put in documented form at Midland High yet. He said the English department there plans to document its course descriptions in the upcoming school year

He said at present Midland High does not offer as many composition courses as Lee High, and some differences do exist between the resources and assessment procedures of each school, but, he said, each school has the same goals as outlined in the English policy statement.

The board directed Superintendent Mailey to see that the English program at Midland High is comparable to the one at Lee High "as quickly as

After meeting in executive session to discuss a real estate matter, the board authorized Mailey to proceed with condemnation on the Hill property in the 1200 block of West Illinois Avenue, and asked him to negotiate the sale of a school property in the 1000 block of West Illinois Avenue. The trustees also awarded a bid of $18,706 to Texas Scenic of San Antonio for carpeting at Lee High, Carver Center, Pease Elementary School, Rusk Elementary School, South Elementary School and Washington Elementary School. The other bid submitted was from National Stage of Waco for $19,000.

The board okayed a student insurance policy, offered by Keystone Life, and reviewed results of a Social Security survey. Administered to Midland school district employees, the survey showed that 50.4 percent were in favor of remaining in the Social Security program.

At the meeting, the trustees agreed to let the administration negotiate the sale of weight machines no longer in use at Lee High School. Athletic Director Sam Cox said the equipment, purchased in December 1976, is not being used "to any appreciable extent." He said the district could use the money from the sale of this equipment to buy more practical weight

Board members Marshall McCrea, James Ramsoure and David Grimes agreed to serve on the board's new

Pattern makes carpeting easy

By AL CARRELL

Carpeted bathrooms used to be a luxury mainly because the installation had to be done by a pro. Now you can pick up a sack of shag big enough to cover the bath, and in a matter of hours you'll have the job done without bending your budget. The key to a better job is to make a pattern. Use kraft paper or even tapedtogether newspapers. around the toilet and as a moving masking help people to figure out things.

To make your pattern, fold the paper in half, and then press with your hand so the paper forms an outline of the toilet. Then you can cut it out. When you open the folded pattern, it should exactly fit around the toilet. When you have all the paper pieces together, mark 'UP" on the top side. Next lay the carpet out flat in another room face down. Place the pattern with the "UP" face down. Tape it in place, and then visualize where the cutouts would be if you flipped the whole thing over. Mark the pattern and go to work with sharp scissors. Using the double-faced carpet tape to hold down the edges and any seams will give. your new carpet permanence until you need to take it up for washing. The results will floor you.

Dear Al: When you have a botched-up Phillips head screw, there's still'a way to turn it out to put in a good one if it happens to be a round headed screw. Just use a hacksaw blade and cut a straight slot. Now you can use a regular screwdriver to remove the screw .- J.B.

Dear Al: I found out your hit about using a propane torch to soften up old dried-up glazier's putty was really good. However, I also knew that the flame would remove the paint from the window frame. To

That is the conclusion of a study of worldwide oil supply and demand by the economic department of Standard Oidl Co. of California.

According to the analysis, the current surplus of productive capacity in the Free World-now at a peak of about 8 million barrels a day-will decline rapidly in the early 1980s. Should Saudi Arabia not expand its productive capacity, a deficit of 5 million barrels per day will occur in Commenting on the findings, Board Chairman Harold J. Haynes of Standard said "it is increasingly apparent that Saudi Arabia is the only source with the reserves capability of meeting the demand growth forseen for the Free World in the 1980s.

"Moreover," he emphasized, "our findings make it plain that the U.S. should not be complacent about future supplies because of the present, highly-publicized oil surplus.

"It is simply imperative that we accelerate development of domestic energy supplies, and that includes sharply improving incentives to encourage exploration and develdopment of our own oil and natural gas. Alternate sources of energy will not provide a panacea for our energy problems for many years to come.

Standard's supply-demand forecast predicts Free World crude oil demand will increase from the 1977 rate of 47 million barrels per day to 65 million barrels per day in 1985.

Saudi Arabia, with more than 150 billion barrels of oil reserves, represents 27 percent of the Free World's total reserves. It currently exports about 1.4 million barrels of oil per day to the U.S., slightly more than 20 percent of total U.S. crude imports of 6.7 million barrels per day

At its current production rate, Saudi Arabia is depleting its reserves by only two percent a year, compared to the United States current deplation rate of 10 percent.

The Standard study reached these further conclusions:

—U.S. crude oil production will be essentially unchanged through 1985about 8.5 million barrels daily.

-Improvements in efficiency of energy utilization in the U.S. will slow energy demand growth by about one percent a year, continuing a trend that began in 1973.

-Synthetic fuels, such as oil from shale or coal will not make a significant contribution to domestic energy supplies before the 1990s, because of environmental, economic and technological problems.

Sino-Soviet bloc countries which were net exporters of 1.7 million barrels per day in 1977, are expected to be net importers of about 500,000 barrels per day of oil in 1985, but at this level will not be significant competitors for FreeTWorld oil supplies.

Contracts protected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Tuesday to protect gasoline dealers from arbitrary cancellation of their contracts by fuel suppliers.

The bill, approved 95-0, also requires that the octane rating of gasoline be posted on the pump. A conference committee will work out differences between the Senate bill and a similar measure approved by the House.

The legislation prohibits an oil company from ending or failing to renew a franchise agreement with a service station, except when reasonable grounds exist, such as poor customer relations.

In most cases, a 90-day notice would be required before a cancellation for good cause could take effect.

Station operators have claimed that many stations have been forced out of business because they lost their gasoline supplies after rejecting distributors' demands for longer or shorter station hours, increased shares of profits or other operating policy changes.

The bill would establish a uniform octane-rating system to allow motorists to select the proper gasoline for their cars.

Gulf Oil charged in fix case

By CHARLES R. BABCOCK The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Gulf Oil Corp. was charged by the Justice Department Tuesday with taking part in an international cartel to fix the price of The criminal information filed in U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh accuses the firm of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act by conspiring with other uranium producers between 1972 and 1974 to sell uranium only at discriminatorily high prices to purchasers and not at all to Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The charge is a misdemeanor, punishable by a $50,000 fine rather than a felony with a possible $1 million fine because the government did not have sufficient evidence the conspiracy continued past December 21, 1974, a Justice Department spokesman said. It was only after that day that the law allowed felony prosecutions under the criminal sections of the Sherman Act, he said. Because the charge was a misdemeanor, it did not require a vote by the federal grand jury in Washington which has been investigating the uranium cartel for the past 18 months, the spokesman added

The charge against Gulf mentions the firm's Canadian subsidiary, but does not name the other "co-conspirators" in the cartel. Nor does it charge specifically that the conspiracy affected consumer prices of energy in the United States.

The price of "yellowcake," the raw uranium used to fuel nuclear power plants, climbed from $6 a pound to $41 in the early 1970s. Westinghouse is now suing Gulf and other members of the cartel over the issue and Gulf filed a multimillion dollar counter suit Tuesday.

A Gulf spokesman in Pittsburgh said that the corporation felt the charge was "completely unfounded." Gulf believes the government was "unjustified" in singling it out for prosecution when its Canadian subsidiary didn't act alone, the spokesman added. The company's participation in what it termed the "foreign uranium marketing arrangement" was at the 'express direction of the government of Canada," the spokesman said. The Canadian marketing arrangement was similar to quotas and reference prices initiated by the U.S. government to protect such domestic industries as steel, television and shoes,

O'Neill analyzes move to split gas legislation

By Richard L. Lyens The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - House Democratic leaders still haven't been able to put together a majority among House energy conferees for the natural gas compromise and in their search for votes are ready to cut adrift crucial tax parts of President Carter's energy package.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neil Jr., D-Mass., decided a year ago when Carter sent his massive energy bill to Congress that the only way to get the controversial tax and natural gas parts through the House was to package them with conservation assistance and other goodies in one bill. The House passed the program as one bill last year, but the Senate broke it into five separate bills.

Tuesday, O'Neill signalled that he was ready to give in and let approved parts of the bill pass separately. It was an effort both to satisfy election time needs for members for an enacted energy bill and to pick up support for the negotiated compromise to remove federal price controls from newly discovered natural gas by 1985.

At the moment, O'Neill can count only 11 of the 13 votes needed to win approval of the gas plan by the 25 House conferees. They have been meeting off and on with Senate conferees for more than six months trying to settle differences between House and Senate versions of the energy package:

When O'Neill was asked at his daily press conference if he was ready to split the energy bill and let Congress take final action on parts that have been approved by House-Senate conferees he had an answer written out.

O'Neill said he hoped the conferees could agree on the natural gas pricing compromise in a week. Once that happens, O'Neill said he is "actively considering" letting House conferrees attach their signatures to the four approved parts of the five-part package and let the Senate take them up for final approval. That could take some time if there is another filibuster against natural gas deregulation. The four parts would deal with gas, coal conversion, utility rate structures and a catch-all conservation program.

The tax conferees could continue to try to reach agreement on a bill including the wellhead tax on domestic crude oil which Carter calls the centerpiece of his conservation program, said O'Neill. If a tax agreement has not been reached by the time the Senate votes on the first four parts of the bill, he is also "actively considering" having the house vote be signed

The two big money and most controversial provisions in Carter's energy package are the proposals to raise the price of natural gas by deregulation and oil by tax to reduce

If O'Neill was right in his original analysis that the crude oil tax needed to ride piggyback on popular parts of the bill, cutting the tax parts adrift may further diminish chances of th crude oil tax. It is widely considered

China rig deal close

HOUSTON (AP) - Marathon Manufacturing Co. reported Tuesday it is close to contracting with China for the construction of two offshore drilling

Gene M. Woodfin, board chairman, would give no contract details but said the combined cost of the two rigs would be about $46 million.

"I don't want to be premature, but we are very, very hopeful we will have a contract," he said. If a contract is completed, the rigs would be constructed in the Houston firm's Singapore yards. Woodfin made the announcement at Marathon's annual shareholders meeting that coincided with the fourday Offshore Technology Conference that is expected to attract about 70,000 oilmen and scientists.

China is among about 95 foreign countries with delegates at the conference and exposition that continue through Thursday.

In a panel discussion at the conference, R. H. Nanz, a Shell Oil Co. vice president, said he is tired of hearing charges the federal government is not obtaining sufficient revenues from oil and gas production from federal offshore leases. Nanz said that through 1976 the federal government had received 83 percent of the revenues derived from offshore production and that the industry still is "in the hole $15 billion or "That's not a rip-off," he said.

Nanz, who said he has been in offshore explorations and production 30 years, called for federal cooperation in opening offshore frontier areas to petroleum exploration. "American technology has led the way in developing offshore production around the world but we are the ones who are not developing our own offshore areas," he said. / Stuart Mut, an Atlantic Richfield vice president, said government and industry face offshore development problems because the environment has become a political football.

to bedead already. The House approved it last year, but the Senate did not and an anti-tax climate has since developed after enactment of big Social Security taxes.

'Neill conceded that one reason for his readiness to cut loose the tax bill was hope that it would help pick up support for the gas bill. "If it doesn't, we have wasted a lot of time," he said. O'Neill's problems among House

conferees on natural gas have been mostly among liberals who oppose deregulation, which the Senate voted over Carter's and the House's opposition. Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., who had refused to vote for the gas compromise until assured the bill would not be held up to wait for the crude oil tax which he opposes indicated Tuesday that O'Neill's statement had got

Now the gas agreement is threatened with defections from producing state members at the other end of the

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., and Rep. Joe D. Waggonner, D-La., met with Carter Tuesday and said they couldn't go along with the gas compromise as it stands. They opposed a provision which would end the right of producers to reopen contracts on intrastate gas consumed in the state where produced when another contract is signed to sell gas within the state at a higher price.

Negotiations are continuing with them on this issue. Waggonner said he believed agreement could be reached.

As things stand now, O'Neill needs both Wilson and Waggonner to ratify the gas promise.

Amarillo's miseries end with 5-4 win over Cubs

BY TED BATTLES

When someone asked Amarillo Gold Sox Manager Glenn Ezell how it felt to win one, he responded like it was an every day occurence, "How do you think it feels to win? Pretty damned good, that's how.

Actually, wins have been few and far between for the tormented Gold Sox this spring and one can't blame Ezell if he was holding his breath until that final out. It was that kind of Amarillo had it locked up 3-0 going into the Midland eighth when the Cubs scored four times in an inning that saw a bench-clearing brawl erupt. The Sox exploited two Midland errors in the ninth to score twice and yank out a 5-4 Texas League win.

When it was over, one player had a broken rib, two players had been ejected from the game and gone were 12 games of misery for the Gold Sox, who hadn't won since they left home a couple of weeks ago, and gone also were seven games of pure delight for

IF EZELL had any regrets, it was that pitcher Eric Mustad left before wrapping up the decision, which went to lefty Barry Biggerstaff, who pitched two innings to relief. "Mustad is 0-2, but that's the way it has been for him the last four games. He comes out ahead and the other team ties and goes ahead.

Despite the 12-game losing streak, Ezell has hopes for his club. "We're young and we haven't really been that bad. We just make the one mistake or issue the costly walk that beats us.'

He then beamed, almost, "We haven't had anything like that happen for us," he said in reference to Midland's two errors in the ninth that enabled the Sox to win their first of five games here to date.

After Midland's four-run explosion in the eighth, Randy Martz appeared ready to deliver his fifth win of the season. Earl Battey bounced a oneout single through the left side, but then Brian Greer hit a swift double play ball at shortstop Steve Macko. Steve bobbled the ball, looked to see if he still had a force and then couldn't find the ball...runners on first and second.

Manager Jim Saul reached into his bullpen for lefty Tom Butler. Pinch hitter Bill Hallstrom hit a slow roller that second baseman Kurt Seibert stopped with a headlong dive behind first, but had no play and Battey scored from second to tie it.

Then Joe Hicks chopped a ball to third. Javier Fierro made a fine stop but threw high to first and the winning run scored, exit seven-game winning streak.

AMARILLO TOOK a 1-0 lead in the second on a double by Jim Beswick and single by catcher Tom Vessy. The Sox made it 3-0 in the sixth on a two-run double by Beswick and the way Mustad was going, that looked like plenty. The righthander had rationed Midland to five hits through the first seven innings when the Cubs erupted in the eighth.

Seibert and Macko singled to left to open the inning and Ezell replaced Mustad with Biggerstaff. Jimmy Buckner hit a soft liner to short and Seibert scored on Duane Gustavson's grounder to second. Aaron Randall drilled a single to right to plate Macko and pinch-hitter Mike Gatlin doubled off the fence in left to leave runners on second and third. Kevin Drury, hitting for DH Tony Pepper, was walked intentionally to bring up Eric Grandy, who had been on base several times in the last few games, but officially was O for his last eight at bats.

Grandy took care of that minislump with a two-run double. Drury feet up the line by Vessy, who flipped Kevin over his back, with a hard block.

That's when trouble erupted. "It was a good hard baseball play," Drury said later. "He did what he had to in blocking the plate and I did what I had to when I tried to knock the ball loose. What started the jawing was when he threw the ball at me. I think he was more upset about blowing the four-run lead than the play and I guess I can't blame him for that the way things have been going for Both dugouts emptied on to the field, but after much shoving and jawing order was restored. Vessy was ejected from the game for his part in the dispute.

EARLIER RELIEF pitcher Jack Uhey was thumbed out of the game by base umpire Larry Poncino for a gesture from the bullpen.

In the third inning Midland lost catcher Greg Keatley on a liner off the bat of Buckner while the catcher was waiting in the on-deck circle. X-rays at the hospital disclosed a broken rib, but Greg was advised he could play if he could stand the pain.

The Cubs and Sox conclude their series tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Cubs Stadium with Herman Segelke, 3-1, scheduled to pitch for Midland while John Yandle, 0-0, will be making his first start of the season for Amarillo.

DUSSELDORF. West Germany — Harold Solomon beat three-time Wimble-don champion John Newcombe and Ro-scoe Tanner defeated Phil Dent, giving the United States a 2-1 victory over Aus-tralia in the Nations Cup tennis champi-

Solomon forced Newcombe to play from the baseline, then hit tricky back-hands out of the Australian's reach in scoring the first American victory in the inaugural $200,000 championship, 6-4, 6-4. Tanner, not as highly rated as Solomon on clay, relied on his strong service in beating Dent 6-2, 7-6 in the opening match.

match.

But Newcombe and Dent whipped Fanner and Bob Lutz in doubles 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

DALLAS — Bjorn Borg, seeking his second World Championship of Tennis title, overcame Dick Stockton's powerful serve-and-voiley game with an array of shots from the baseline for an easy 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 quarter-final victory.

The 21-year-old Swede totally dominated the mistake-ridden Stockton's service eight of nine times and winning 12 straight games at one point.

$3 million golf tourney unveiled

NEW YORK (AP) - A tournament offering non-professional golfers an unprecedented opportunity to play for some $3 million in cash prizes has been unveiled by the new World Golf Association.

WGA Commissioner Wes Parker, former Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman, announced the concept of the tourney and plans for the golfing organization at a press conference Tuesday. Headquarters for the group will be in Newport Beach, Calif.

The amateurs and non-touring pros would pay a $25 entry fee, from which the purses would come, Parker said. He added that he was hopeful of receiving some 200,000 entries.

Parker, who retired from baseball after the 1972 season, said that the WGA's annual Classic will be a 72hole medal play tournament. First prize in the tourney would be worth $150,000 with a total purse of more than $1 million.

BWP 16, Marathon 6 Johncock tests Guthrie's machine

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Former Indianapolis 500 champion Gordon Johncock tested Janet Guthrie's race car Tuesday after her new Wildcat developed handling problems. "It really wanders around on the straightaway because of the wind," said Guthrie, who bought the car last month from Johncock's team owner, George Bignotti: Johncock, the 1973 winner, and Guthrie, the first woman to drive in the race, were among 13 drivers who got in practice laps before rain halted the action at Insianapolis Motor Speedway shortly after noon. Two-time winner Johnny Rutherford, driving his back-up McLaren, turned in the fastest speed up to then, 192.143 miles an hour. Danny Ongais, who went more than 196 mph during Saturday's first practice session, was clocked at 190.6, and Tom Sneva, the record-setting pole position winner last year, reached 184.6. Just before the rain hit the 21/2-mile track, Johncock was timed at more than 175 mph in Guthrie's racer.

'The car, of course, is new to me," Guthrie said of the year-old machine that was driven in three races last year by Johncock's former teammate, Wally Dallenbach. "So I really haven't picked out what the car is

"First, I thought I was doing something wrong," she said. "But Gordon said the car needs some improvements." Guthrie, 46, finished 29th in her rookie Indy race a year ago.

About 20 minutes before the rain hit, rookie Roger Rager spun out in the first turn. His Kingfish racer slid about 600 feet, dropped down near the front of the short chute and came to rest. The car made no contact with the wall and Rager was unhurt.

Weather permitting, daily practice coatinues through Friday. The first of four days of qualifying will be on Saturday. Sneva, who fiished second to A.J. Foyt in last year's race, set the one-lap qualifying record of 200.535 mph a year ago.

A new job for Cotton?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The Kansas City Kings called a news conference today amid speculation that Cotton Fitzsimmons would be named head coach.

Fitzsimmons, a native Missourian, coached the Buffalo Braves during the 1977-78 National Basketball Association season

The Kings fired Coach Phil Johnson in January in the middle of a third straight disappointing year and Assistant General Manager Larry Staverman served as interim coach.

Sources close to the team told the Kansas City Star that Fitzsimmons, whose 20-year coaching career includes a two-year stint at Kansas State, was signed by the Kings Monday night.

Staverman compiled an 18-27 record as the Kings finished 31-51 over-

Joe Axelson, president and general manager, has said repeatedly he was looking for a man with experience as a head coach on the professional level. Fitzsimmons has coached three NBA teams - Phoenix, Atlanta and Buffalo. His seven-year NBA coaching record is 170-158.

For Rice, key is concentration

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports. Writer

It takes more than an inside fastball or a four-outfielder defense to rattle Jim Rice.

The Boston Red Sox slugger, hit on the arm by Kansas City's Jim Colborn in the fifth inning Tuesday night, came right back to belt a Colborn fastball for a two-run homer in the seventh inning, giving the Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Royals.

The Royals used their four-outfielder alignment, unveiled the previous night by Manager Whitey Herzog, on two of Rice's five trips to the plate. He singled once and was retired on a long fly ball the other time. Against a normal alignment, he grounded out, was hit by a pitch and hit his gamewinning homer.

The key, says Rice, is concentra-

"I wasn't thinking about the shift," he said. "I wanted to get a hit, that's all. You can't go thinking about that stuff. You have to concentrate. I know what I can do."

So far this season, he's done just about everything. He leads the American League in six offensive categories: batting average, .376; runs scored, 29; runs batted in, 34; hits, 47; triples, 4, and homers, 10.

In other American League games

Tuesday night, the New York Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 3-1, the Cleveland Indians edged the Seattle Mariners 5-4, the California Angels defeated the Detroit Tigers 7-5, the Toronto Blue Jays blanked the Oakland A's 4-0 and the Texas Rangers topped the Milwaukee Brewers 7-1. Chicago at Baltimore was postponed because of wet grounds.

After getting clipped by Colborn in the fifth, Rice walked out to the mound and exchanged words with the Kansas City pitcher, but not in anger.

"I'm not the kind of guy to go out and look for trouble," he said, "but I've been hit a lot. I told him, 'If you're gonna hit me, hit me. Don't mess with my hands or arms or eyes or something like that,"

Rice said there was no link between getting hit by the pitch and coming back for the game-winning homer. "Just because he hit me, that didn't make me go up and swing for a home run." said Rice. "I never do that. I'm just trying to do my job out there. This has been a great home stand for the team, not just Jim Rice."

The Red Sox won eight of nine games on their homestand, including their last seven in a row.

The Royals had tied the score at 2-2 on Amos Otis' two-run homer in the top of the seventh, but Rice's blast over the screen in left-center gave Boston a 4-2 lead. Kansas City scored another run in the ninth on a passed ball by Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk, but Dennis Eckersley struck out Otis to end the game.

Eckersley, 2-1, pitched his second straight complete game, allowing seven hits, striking out eight and not walking a batter.

Yankees 3, Twins 1 Catfish Hunter allowed just one hit in six innings - a leadoff single by Willie Norwood - before giving way to Sparky Lyle, who finished the

It was Hunter's best outing in almost three years, since he pitched a one-hitter against the Texas Rangers on May 31, 1975, and it came 10 years and one day after he hurled the major league's last perfect game - also against the Twins. He was taken out because he began to feel tightness in a muscle at the back of his shoulder.

"I feel like I'm getting back to 100 percent," said Hunter, who has been plagued by injuries the past two years. "As soon as my arm stops tightening up, I think I'll be 100 percent because everything else feels all Graig Nettles and Reggie Jackson

Tulsa sweeps Jackson

By The Associated Press

In Texas League action Tuesday night, Tulsa swept a doubleheader from Jackson, 8-0 and 13-0; Shreveport and Arkansas split a doubleheader with Shreveport taking the opener, 7-3, and losing the nightcap, 7-1, and San Antonio beat El Paso,

Don Kainer and Steve Finch each pitched three hit shutouts for Tulsa in the doubleheader sweep of Jackson. In each of the games, Tulsa jumped on Jackson pitchers hard in the first inning. In the first game, Tulsa collected six hits in the first inning, including a bases-loaded double by Don Rivera. In the second game, Tulsa got six runs in the first inning and scored in every inning after that except for the third.

Arkansas pitcher Joe Edelen contributed a double and a single at the plate while holding Shreveport to only two hits as Arkansas took a 7-1 victory in the nightcap game with Shreveport. Earlier, Ron Mitchell drove in three runs with a triple in the seventh inning to boost Shreveport to a 7-3 victory over Arkansas.

San Antonio tightened its grip on first place in the Texas League Western Division by defeating El Paso, 13-8. The loss dropped El Paso to eight games behind San Antonio.

Richard wakes Astros out of a sound sleep

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Houston Astros have been playing baseball recently like they've been walking in their sleep. But J.R. Richard sure woke them up Tuesday night with his buzzing fastball. "For consistency, this was one of my best games this year," said Richard after his four-hitter led the Astros to a 5-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies. "This was one of my better games stuff-wise. "I thought I had good stuff in my last game in Montreal but I was not getting the breaking ball over. Tonight I was taking a little bit off the breaking ball and getting it over." That overpowering performance helped the Houston right-hander record 11 strikeouts, boosting his National League-leading strikeout total to

"He has two pitches he can get you out with," said Houston catcher Joe Ferguson. "He threw a well-rounded game. He used each one to set up the other. He used more sliders early in the game and in the last three or four innings went to his hard stuff. And he was getting ahead of the batters. When you get ahead of the batters. you're going to be effective."

The Astros had lost four games in a row and six of seven before Richard's effective performance.

"We haven't been playing that well," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "Everybody was pressing to get out of it. This is what it takes - a good performance by the pitcher and everybody hits with men on.

Powerful Montreal vaults into Cup finals

TORONTO (AP) - Toronto Coach Roger Neilson accepted the elimination of his Maple Leafs from further Stanley Cup competition with reluctant resignation.

'Nobody likes to lose," Neilson said after the Montreal Canadiens advanced to a record 25th National Hockey League finals appearance with a 2-0 victory Tuesday night and 4-0 sweep of their best-of-seven semifinal. "But if you have to, I'd rather lose to a great team like the Canadiens. They're well-balanced and extremely well-coached.

"I can't see anyone beating them this year anyway.' The mighty Canadiens had no trouble with a tired Leafs' club, as goaltender Ken Dryden turned aside 23 shots - none of them difficult - to record his 10th career playoff shutout in 90 appearances.

Jacques Lemaire, at 7:21 of the opening period, and Steve Shutt, with his sixth of the playoffs at 2:15 of the second, provided the Montreal firepower while the Canadiens' sharp defensive corps shut down a weak Toronto attack.

The Canadien's owned the puck for most of the game, and when the Leafs did get a chance at it, they were forced to shoot from long range.

The Leafs, who improved in almost. every offensive and defensive category this year, never really were close in any of the four semifinal games. It appeared they used up most of their energy in beating the New York Islanders in an extremely physical quarter-final series that stretched seven games.

"The Islanders said that was the toughest series they had ever been involved in." Neilson said. "Our players wouldn't say it, but I'm sure they Guy Lafleur, the Canadiens' leader both on and off the ice, had much the same opinion as Neilson "Maybe they were too tired from their series against the Islanders," he said, "They came off a grueling series and we took advantage of the rest we had before playing Toronto. Montreal now awaits its opponent in the final, which at this point, looks like Boston Bruins, who lead the Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 in their semifinal series. The Canadiens met the Bruins in the finals last year and swept that series in four straight games.

The Canadiens are trying to become the fourth team to win the Stanley Cup three straight years. Toronto turned the trick twice - 1947-49 and 1962-64 — while Montreal won the Cup five straight years from 1956-60.

Bruins' 4-2 victory has Philly on ropes

disabled

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Kansas City Royals third baseman George Brctt will be ineligible for action until May 19, following his placement on the 15-day disabled list.

Brett was injured April 29 when he smashed into Milwaukee second baseman Tim Nordbrook as he tried to break up a double play. Nordbrook suffered a knee injury and also has been unable to return to action.

Brett was placed on the list retroactive to May 4. A team spokesman said Brett's shoulder was still badly bruised and sore, and doctors hoped he would be able to return to action by the 19th.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Boston defenseman Brad Park says the Bruins ought to thank teammate John Wensink for their 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers and a commanding 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal se-

Wensink played 26 seconds of the first period - sitting 10 minutes in the penaty box - while Boston was building a 2-0 lead. Wensink had a fight with Bill Barber and then Rick LaP-

"The Wensink things (fights) really gave us a start," Park insisted. What should I say? He outpointed Barber and made us aware that they (the Flyers) weren't going to run us out of the building."

Maybe Park was right, that Wensink did start the adrenalin running for the Bruins before 17,077 hostile fans. But it did take first-period goals by Bobby Schmautz and Don Marcotte, and what turned out to be the winner by Wayne Cashman in the second period to send Boston home for Game 5 needing just one more to second straight year.

Davisnamed top rookie

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - Forward Walter Davis of the Phoenix Suns was named National Basketball Association Rookie of the Year today.

Davis won the honor over Marques Johnson of the Milwaukee Bucks, Bernard King of the New Jersey Nets, Jack Skima of the Seattle Super Sonics and Norm Nixon of the Los Angeles Lakers.

"I tried to think about it as little as possible, but it was awfully hard," Davis said of the battle with Johnson for the honor. "Marques is a great player, and there are probably three or four other guys who deserve the award as much as I do."

Davis averaged 24.2 points per game, the most by any NBA rookie since Portland's Sidney Wicks averaged 24.5 in 1971-72.

HE WAS the only rookie selected for the All-Star Game, in which he scored 10 points in only 15 minutes and led all front-court players in assists with six.

Davis is the Suns' second rookie of the year in three seasons. Center Alvan Adams won the honor in 1976. Davis said he felt he could play in the NBA during the Suns' first exhibition game. "We played the Lakers, and we won and we did pretty good," he said. "I got the idea that maybe I really be-

IN THE balloting of 66 league media representatives, conducted at the end of the season, Davis received 4914 votes. Johnson finished second with 101/4 votes, followed by King with 514. Sikma with 1 and Nixon with 14. The fractional shares resulted when one voter split his ballot four ways.

In addition to his prolific scoring feats, which placed him ninth in the league, Davis set a club record for field goal percentage with a mark of 526, 10th best in the NBA. The former University of North-Carolina star scored in double figures in each of the 81 games he played, reaching 20 or more points 61 times and the 30-point mark 17 times.

Did Affirmed win Derby or did Jorge lose it?

Los Angeles Time Syndicate

There is an axiom in sports that no one wins a big event, someone loses it. This is true whether the event is a U.S. Open, a heavyweight championship fight, the World Series or the Super Bowl.

Americans love controversy, and they love to spend the winter arguing. "He shudda bunted." "He shudda threw him a fastball, instead of that creepy change-up." "Why didn't he walk him?" "Why didn't they try a field goal?" "Why DID they try a field goal?" "Why didn't they try an end run?" And so on.

The Kentucky Derby is no different. Everyone knows Bill Shoemaker lost the 1957 Derby by standing up in the stirrups too soon. But, lots of riders have lost Kentucky Derbies just as surely as if they also had stood in the stirrups too soon. But they cost their horse lengths in parts of the race where no one is looking - at least no. one with glasses, and where ABC doesn't keep a camera. That's where a lot of jockeys lose races on purpose, although, to be sure, not in a Kentucky Derby.

YOU CAN run down a Derby book and check the list of beaten favorites, and you can bet me one big bunch of those losses are due to what the airlines call "pilot error."

So, the question for the 104th running of the Kentucky Derby becomes, did Affirmed win it - or did Jorge Velasquez lose it?

It's a minor mystery at best. Whatever Valesquez is guilty of, it's not first degree. Involuntary horseslaughter, at worst. But, horsemen will be sifting through the ashes for clues for years to come.

You sort out the evidence, and you begin with little things - like the dogs not barking the night the body was

First of all, there was the post position. Now, you can't help that. They draw it out of a hat. But, when Affirmed drew post position 2, Jerry Frankel, whose horse, Esop's Foibles had drawn 3, whistled: "That No. 2 post is worth two lengths to Affirmed. He starts two lengths ahead of everybody else.' Over in Alydar's barn, Alydar's trainer had an opposite view. He was insisting the No. 2 spot was bad for Affirmed, that he would either have to run too-fast fractions to stay clear of trouble, or would run into switches as the speed horses came over on him, particularly Sensitive Prince who was parked over in Indiana in post position 11.

WHEN ALYDAR, breaking from post position 10, had only one horse clearly beat at the clubhouse turn, Kentuckian Stan Bock, standing in the press box, was alarmed. "He better get that horse going!" he cried. "The race is a quarter-mile up the track already.

At the half-mile pole, Alydar was 17 lengths back. Presumably, he thought Affirmed was up there frittering away his stamina in scorching fractions. But he wasn't. At that part of the race, Affirmed was 5 1-2 lengths behind the leader. And, if a length is a fifth of a second, he was well off the scorching 22.3, 45.3 and 1:10.4 the leader was going. Affirmed was well within himself. As he proved in the Alydar made up 15 1-2 of those 17 lengths by the finish line, but in sport you've got to do it in nine innings, four quarters, 10 rounds. Whatever the rules call for. You've got to get up in time. Gene Fullmer missed one of the rules one night when he got knocked down by Ray Robinson. As he was led to his corner, he asked his manager, Mary Jenson, why they stopped it. "The count reached 11," Jenson told

JORGE VELASQUEZ had to do it in a mile and a quarter, not a week, and he blamed the track when Alydar took the count. "It was too hard. He couldn't get a hold of it. I couldn't get him to run.'

But, the scientists will point to Alydar's stretch run on that track and ask if the track there got softer the second time over it? Did it dry out or get deeper in the minute and a half Alydar was on the backstretch?

They won't have to lock everybody in the room like they do in the old Agatha Christie movies to come up with the answer. You get fresh clues in this game. The Preakness at a mile and three-sixteenths, and the Belmont at a mile and a half in upcoming

They may find out the butler did it. Up to now, they have three prime suspects: the horse, the track, the jockey. But, then, in the best traditions of A. Conan Doyle, a suspect nobody seems to suspect may turn out to be the real culprit after all -Affirmed.

A to AA a long jump, but Fierro is making it

It's a long way from Geneva, N.Y., to Midland, Texas, both in mileage and caliber of baseball, but Javier Fierro seems to be making the adjustment nicely, thank you, after a hesitant start.

As late as two weeks ago. "Harvey" was struggling at the plate with a .139 batting average. Since then, going on a 12-for-30 spree, the El Paso-born, La Puente, Calif., raised third baseman has brought it up to .250 and he has been swinging a timely bat. Coming in as a late inning fill in Monday, he delivered a two-run single in the eighth inning that drove in what proved to be the decisive runs in the 7-4 win over Amarillo that kept Midland's winning streak alive at seven.

Just shy of 23 years, the 5-10, 185-pound righthander was both a football and baseball letterman at LaPuente High and was named All-Sierra League in his junior and senior years.

Fierro graduated from Mount San Antonio Junior College (Walnut, Calif.), and in 1975 helped lead MSAJC to the South Coast Conference title by batting .356 and earning all-conference honors as utilityman.

IN 1977, he hit .360 as California State at Los Angeles won the Southern California Baseball Association and NCAA District Eight championships and finished fourth in the College World Series, earning CSLA's berth as shortstop on the all-conference second team.

Javier says his most humorous baseball experience was playing shortstop in CSLA's famous "Phantom Infield". which entertained crowds at the 1977 College World Series in Omaha by conducting a vigorous pregame workout, including "spectacular" plays without the ball. It was the first time this had been done at the national tournament.

Javier Fierro

In 1976 as a junior at CSLA, Fierro batted .339 in 49 games, leading the team in hits (64), doubles (15), home runs (6) and RBI (39). He also was selected to play on the U.S. team that went to Japan in 1976 for the annual Japan-USA College baseball championships, but signed with Chicago instead.

He had been drafted by San Francisco in June 1975 and Kansas City in 1976, but did not sign, so the Cubs weren't the first to recognize his talents.

Fierro played at Bradenton, Pompano and Geneva last summer, batting .125, .200 and .170. Chances are he would have been back at Geneva this year, but Manager Jim Saul liked his desire, aggressive play and hustle in spring training at Scottsdale and put in an early bid for him. During the off season, Fierro coaches baseball and his hobbies are fishing and hunting.

Sugar Ray lives up to his title

AP Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) - Sugar Ray Robinson, now 58 years old, remembers the moment that a possible third world championship slipped through his gloves. Or, perhaps better stated, he remembers what he does not re-

It was June 25, 1952, a sweltering New York summer evening, and Robinson, with welterweight and middleweight titles already to his credit, had battered light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim through 13 rounds at Yankee Stadium.

Bill wants security

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bill Kilmer says he thinks he can play in the National Football League for at least two more years - and says he should be the Washington Redskins' No.1 quarterback next season.

Kilmer, 38 and a 16-year pro, says he will not report to the Redskins' May 18 minicamp for veterans unless the team signs him to a two-year

'Money is no problem, none at all," said Kilmer, who reportedly was paid $210,000 last season. "I just want security. I don't want to be used. I'm not sure if the Redskins are on a youth movement or what, but I hope they don't build at my expense. They owe me something.

New Redskins Coach Jack Pardee has said Kilmer and Joe Theismann will go into camp as equals with the job going to the man who earns it.

Scottsdale gets Oakland

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) - The Oakland A's will hold spring training here next year, replacing the Chicago

A's owner Charles O. Finley met with local officials Tuesday to work out arrangements. The Scottsdale City Council will meet Tuesday night to complete the formal contract.

The A's had held drills in Mesa in the past, but failed to renew their ontract when Finley became involved in efforts to sell the team. Meanwhile, Mesa contracted with the Cubs to use their facilities for spring drills.

It was 110 degrees under the lights. The first casualty was referee Ruby Goldstein, who left the ring with heat prostration in the 10th round.

'I felt I was ahead in the fight, I felt I was leading on the judges' cards, said Robinson. Most observers would bear him out.

'But I started feeling heat prostration in the ninth round and at the end of the 10th," said Robinson, "because I don't even remember when they carried Ruby Goldstein out of the ring."

When Robinson was unable to continue in the 14th round, Maxim, be draggled and exhausted himself, held onto his title. Robinson had failed in his bid for that mythical triple, but in the minds of many, he was still the best boxer, pound for pound, that had ever lived.

The cliche "pound for pound" was, in fact, coined to describe Robinson. Heavyweight champion Joe Louis was the idol of a nation, yet the boxing world looked to Sugar Ray.

On Tuesday, that old title was reaffirmed when the Boxing Writers of America announced that their membership had voted Robinson the greatest fighter of all time.

The vote, held in conjunction with Home Box Office network's "Boxing's Greatest Champions" series. had Robinson a 4-1 winner over Muhammad Ali. Louis was third. The exact tabulation was not revealed.

"I was blessed by God above with the talent that has allowed me to be considered for this honor," Robinson said in a telephone hookup from his Los Angeles home to the New York offices of HBO, where a special screening of the final episode of the six-part series was held for newsmen.

Owner not abandoning his NHL aspirations

HOUSTON (AP) - The majority owner of the Houston Aeros says efforts to obtain a National Hockey League franchise will continue despite failure of the World Hockey Association team's campaign to sell 7,000 season tickets.

"We will continue our merger discussions with existing NHL teams," Kenneth Schnitzer said

Schnitzer mentioned no specific NHL teams but speculation has centered on the Cleveland and Colorado

"I wish to emphasize that success is not guaranteed, only that we will continue to use our best efforts," he

Schnitzer earlier had acknowledged having had discussions with owners of the Cleveland team.

A prepared statement was released in Schnitzer's behalf after a Monday tabulation revealed a 30-day campaign that ended last Thursday night brought in 6,391 orders for season tickets but with only 4,987 being accompanied by a 10 percent down pay-

Palmer skips; pays the price

Jim Palmer was fined by the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday for breaking a club rule and leaving the ballpark before the end of a game.

The fine was assessed after a meeting between Palmer, Manager Earl Weaver and General Manager Hank Peters before Tuesday night's scheduled game against the Chicago White Sox was postponed because of wet grounds."

Peters declined to reveal the amount of the fine, saying, "Salaries and fines are always undisclosed."

"I told them to make up their minds how much they were going to fine me." Palmer said. "It's no big deal. I guess it was fair.

Palmer's walkout came Sunday after he gave up six runs and five walks to the Minnesota Twins in 11-3 innings, a game the Orioles eventually lost 15-9.

'I misunderstood something Earl said on the field," Palmer said. "I never, ever said I was right in leaving. I just left. I was frustrated and things weren't going too well."

Weaver said that during a conversation on the mound about Palmer's wildness, Weaver told Palmer to "try harder" to get his pitches down.

"He apparently thought I said, 'Are you trying?" Weaver said. "He ought to know I wouldn't say that." 'There were extenuating circumstances," Palmer said, while refusing to discuss further the conversation on the mound, "but you can't condone that kind of action. I was well aware of the club rule.

"I don't like to fine players," Weaver said. "It's like spanking an 18-or 19-year-old when you could get better understanding through words.

"But I want all the players around at the end of the game. So if we didn't take some kind of action, I don't know what could be accomplished. The other players were aware Jim was Under baseball rules, a written notice of the fine must be given to Palmer to make it official.

"There was no animosity" said Peters. "It was a friendly discussion and I think Jim realized his action required some disciplinary action, The case is closed.' Not closed, however, is a much more serious confrontation between Palmer and Peters.

The general manager declined to pay Palmer a $15,000 bonus under a 'significant contribution' clause after the pitcher won 20 games in 1977 for the seventh time in eight seasons. The money was later paid but the club filed a grievance in a move to get it

Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said the young right-hander had a little tenderness in his shoulder but nothing like the pain that hit him last week when he threw a few pitches before a game at Seattle.

"He appeared somewhat improved and he probably will be throwing some practice pitches again before the week is out. But there is no way he will be ready to pitch in a regular game as soon as he is off the 21-day disabled list," said Houk

Fidrych was placed on the disabled list May 1 after a Los Angeles doctor said he was suffering from a recurrence of the tendinitis that plagued him last season.

The Tiger manager said that if Fidrych continues to have less pain in his practice pitching, he will be given a chance to pitch in some simulated game conditions and in batting practice, the same routine that was used when he was on the injured list last

Asked why Fidrych was having so many injury problems, Houk said. "I think he is one of those athletes who is so energetic that at times he throws the ball harder than his arm and body will allow him to do.' Houk also got encouraging words on right-hander Jack Morris, who also is troubled with tendinitis and is on the injured list.

U.S. Olympic hopes looking much better

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — College athletics and the United States Olympic Committee, at peace after six years of cold war, intend to do something about all those gold medals that got away in recent Olympic Games. "I can't predict how our teams will do in the 1980 Games, but I think it will be better because of the expertise we have to offer," the University of California's Dave Maggard, speaking on behalf of college sports, said at a seminar which ended Tuesday. The Cal athletic director is the National Collegiate Athletic Association's official representative on the USOC Executive Committee. The NCAA rejoined the USOC last month. "He's our point man in the NCAA's new commitment to the Olympic Committee," said Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, which conducted the media seminar. The NCAA withdrew their support of the USOC after the 1972 Munich Games, Maggard said, mostly to

Since 1970, in fact, Amherst has produced three first-rate NFL players from a college football program regarded as one of the most sophisticated in the NCAA's Division III. The coach Jim Ostendarp, played for the New York Giants in the 1950s

Taken last week were linebacker Sean Clancy, in the eighth round by the Miami Dolphins, and tight end Bill Swiacki, drafted in the ninth round by the Giants.

Swiacki's namesake father played for the Giants with Ostendarp, a former assistant coach at Cornell and Williams College who now has a 107-42-3 record in 19 seasons at Amherst.

But the NFL trend actually began in 1970 when linebacker Doug Swift made the Miami Dolphins as a free agent. He put the college, with an enrollment of 1,500, on the NFL map.

In 1972, tight end Jean Fugett was drafted by the Dallas Cowboys, who are not prone to misjudging talent.

Fugett became a star and later was traded to the Washington Redskins. He has become a Washington Post writer under the name of J.S.

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market turned upward today, going back on the offensive after the mild pullback of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had slipped 7.02 points Monday and Tuesday, recovered 3.55 to 825.62 by noontime today.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said there was no special news to account for the upswing.

They said the market seemed to benefit from 'catch-up' buying by traders who had been waiting for a dip after last month's sharp rally to increase their holdings. The two most prominent gainers on the active list were Boeing, up 13s at 503s. and United Technologies, ahead 2 at 45. Singapore Airlines today signed an agreement calling for the purchase of 19 Boeing planes in the biggest order in aviation-industry history

United Technologies Pratt & Whitney subsidiary is to supply the jet engines for the planes.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .16 at 53.84. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .42 to 141.60

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.28 million shares by noontime, against 12.99 million at the same point Tuesday.

Budget Office bids to allay inflation fear

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - We have been informed in recent days that several of our perceptions are illusions, no matter that they are indelibly imprinted on the screen of our mind in detailed three dimension.

Parents, for example, only imagine that the financial burden of sending children to college has been increasing, said the Congressional Budget Office, which claims to know something about the subject. Tough pollution regulation, which in recent years we have equated with Godliness, tends to exacerbate inflation, that most vile of all economic sins, we are told by Robert Strauss, the president's aide. Housing prices haven't risen more sharply than ncomes, contends a study by the securities firm of Goldman Sachs, even though many middle class Americans contend the race has left them in the poorhouse.

But all these contentions are based on numbers which, accurate though they be, fail to accommodate all facets of the alleged misperceptions. It may be true, as the Budget Office contends, that while "the costs of college attendance have risen faster than the cost of living, this increase has been offset by an even larger increase in family income.' But what of the social burden? Whereas college ttendance was considered a possible option among many middle class families of a generation ago, it is now likely to be considered a necessity. And there is good reason for the attitude, as an examination of job requirements makes clear. Degrees are required, even when the possession of them might not make better workers. There is also the Philistine consideration of education as an investment. The almost guaranteed higher return might not justify the attitude, but don't try to tell that to conscientious parents. The burden is real, and quite likely it is increasing regardless of how much incomes have increased. The Budget Office made its point; but its figures didn't tell all the story. Neither does the Strauss contention that heavy handed pollution controls contribute to higher prices, even though it is difficult to understand why intelligent people try to deny it.

Pollution controls do add to costs, and these costs are indeed passed on as higher prices. No two ways about it; you can't make steel and keep air and water pure without additional equipment and personnel.

Eventually, perhaps, improved technology and systems might overcome the additional costs imposed by environmental standards, and so at least reduce the upward pressure on prices.

But that really isn't the proper consideration at all. More realistically, the consideration is whether we could have steel or even life if eventually we didn't clean up the air and water.

Environmental protection costs. So does health protection. So do food and clothing and shelter. They are no more nor less necessary or inflationary than wise, properly administered environmental standards

Convincing some Americans that the prices of houses have not shot far beyond their budgets is probably more difficult to demonstrate. We continually hear about the dream becoming

But, says Goldman Sachs, which has a reputation for research, the home price-income relationship today is less than that which prevailed during the early 1960s, when millions of homes were purchased.

And other statistics back them up, such as 67 percent of American families owning their own nomes, the highest percentage of this century, at least, most likely of all time.

Ah, but there are burdens to home ownership: property taxes that the housing industry says are high beyond reason, big heating bills, financing costs that can total as much as the purchase price.

What makes housing a continued good investment, what keeps its cost in line relative to incomes, is the big appreciation in value. New home prices in the period 1970-1977, for example, rose 10.7 percent a

The problem here, of course, is that you can't use that appreciated value without selling the house, or refinancing it. And that latter alternative, you'll note, adds to the burden of your monthly payment.

In a sense, you might say, the statistics are more llusory than our illusions.

Little not surprised by court's decision

NEW YORK (AP) - Joan Little says she is not surprised by a unanimous decision of the New York Court of Appeals to permit her extradition to North Carolina in 10 days. "I am prepared for whatever happens," she said following Tuesday's ruling. She commented in a telephone interview from the city's Correctional Institution for Women on Riker's Island.

"THE LAST WALTZ" records in loving detail the final concert of The Band in San Francisco in 1976. Also joining in the historic occasion were other rock superstars -Bob Dylan, Joni Mitchell, Neil Diamond, Eric Clapton, Van Morrison and more. Seven top cinematographers were enlisted by director Martin Scorsese ("New York, New York") to photograph the perforbers filmed on a movie stage.

Rock's animal excitement has never been seen or heard to better advantage. The music is interspersed with interviews; they are the least effective parts of the film since The Band members seem stoned or inarticulate, or both.
