Paris airport scene of terrorist attack

PARIS (AP) — Three terrorists armed with submachine guns and grenades opened fire on Israel-bound passengers in an Orly airport departure lounge Saturday and were killed by police and Israeli security men in a half-hour gun battle.

One policeman also was killed and two officers, three passengers and a stewardess for El Al, the Israeli national airline, were wounded.

El Al security agents joined airport police in pinning down and killing the terrorists in the Orly terminal eight miles south of Paris, airline officials said.

Identities of the dead and wounded were not given, but French authorities said none of the wounded was seriously injured. They reported the three wounded passengers were French.

Tunisian and Lebanese passports were found on the dead terrorists, who appeared to be Arabs, but the papers were believed to be forgeries, Jean Perrier, governor of Orly's Val de Marne District, told reporters.

He said the terrorists began shooting without giving any warning at 3:40 p.m., directing their fire at persons waiting in the lounge to pass through security checks and board an El Al flight to Tel Aviv.

"The terrorists didn't have a chance to get off more than the first burst when French security men and our security men opened fire together," El Al President Modéchi Hod told Israeli Radio.

Police said security personnel first noticed the three men in an Iberian Airlines lounge near Departure Lounge 30, scene of the shooting.

Perrier said the terrorists carried hand grenades, plastic explosives and Beretta submachine guns concealed in hand baggage. He said they apparently had no intention of trying to board the El Al plane by passing through the electronic security checks, which would have detected their concealed weapons.

The security guards became suspicious of the men and challenged them. "When they were challenged, one of them pulled a submachine gun out of his bag and started firing," said

Interior Minister Christian Bonnet.

Earlier official reports later denied said two other suspected terrorists had taken refuge on a terrace of the terminal building and then hid in a restroom.

At one point, Gaston Viens, mayor of Orly, told reporters five terrorists and two policemen were dead.

There was no explanation of these incorrect official reports.

Russian U.N. officials accused of espionage

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Two Soviet nationals who are officials of the United Nations were arrested Saturday and scheduled for arraignment on espionage charges for allegedly receiving classified information on an anti-submarine warfare system.

A third person, identified by the FBI as an official of the Soviet Mission to the United Nations, was named as a co-conspirator in the plot, but was not arrested because he has diplomatic immunity, the FBI said at a news conference.

The classified material included data on underwater acoustics systems, the FBI said.

The bureau said Rudolf Petrovich Chernyayev, 43, a personnel officer at the U.N. Secretariat, and Valdik Aleksandrovich Enger, 39, an assistant to the U.N. undersecretary general were arrested on a little used dirt road in Woodbridge, N.J.

FBI Director William H. Webster said in Washington the arrests culminated an investigation that began last August. Warrants for the arrests were issued in Newark.

The FBI named Vladimir Petrovich Zinyakin, 39, attache to the Soviet Union's U.N. mission, as the co-conspirator. The bureau said Zinyakin was not arrested because he holds diplomatic immunity.

Thomas J. Emery, special agent in charge of the FBI in New Jersey, said classified information wanted by the Soviets was doctored in Washington before it was passed to them.

He said a Navy officer, who was not identified, cooperated in the investigation.

Information supposedly waiting for the three Saturday was of a "much higher" nature and had not been laundered by intelligence agents in Washington, said Emery.

He said the agents went to a location used before to drop off money for their bogus intelligence source and to pick up classified documents.

FBI Inspector Homer Boynton said the federal complaint was filed under a section of law accusing the Soviets of conspiring "to communicate, deliver and transmit... to a foreign government... sketches, photographs, plans, documents, notes and information relating to the national defense of the United States."

A spokesman at the Soviet Union's U.N. mission in New York, who identified himself only as "the diplomat on duty," said he knew nothing about the arrests and could not comment on them.

It may look like a lot of water as a car splashes through a Midland street puddle Saturday, but looks unfortunately are a bit deceiving in this instance. The welcome weekend showers appear to have arrived too late and with too little moisture

Agent saves Amy from elephant

McLEAN, Va. (AP) — A Secret Service agent suffered a broken finger Saturday when he pulled 10-year-old Amy Carter out of the way of an unruly elephant at a pet show here, a service spokesman said.

"The elephant broke loose and was running in the general direction of Amy," said Secret Service spokesman Ken Lynch. "The agent pulled her out of the way and lifted her over the fence."

Lynch said the president's daughter was unhurt but the agent, whom he declined to identify, broke a finger and suffered other minor injuries. He said the elephant was then brought under control and there were no other injuries.

Mary Hoyt, press secretary for Rosalynn Carter, said after Amy returned to the White House, she told her parents "that it was kind of scary."

Mrs. Hoyt said that Amy had briefly sat on the elephant, named Susie, about 30 minutes before the animal was apparently spooked by a dog.

The pet show, an annual event sponsored by the family of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to raise money for a shelter for runaway children, was held at Hickory Hill, the Kennedy estate in this Washington suburb.

Tom Southwick, a spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, said several thousand people attended the pet show.

Rain improves prospects for farmers, ranchers

By ED TODD

The rain Friday and Saturday may not be a "drought breaker," but it has heightened farmers' and ranchers' prospects for a productive year.

"You bet, it's a lifesaver," Midkiff rancher Ray Barrett said of the widely-scattered rainfall.

The seasonal rains were late in coming, rangelands were scorched and dryland cotton fields were just that — dry.

"It's never been any worse this time of the year," Barrett said, "but with the rain maybe we'll make it." Up to two inches of rain fell in the Midkiff area, Barrett said.

The rains started late Friday night, took a 45-minute breather after midnight, and resumed until sunrise Saturday morning. Intermittent misting continued throughout the day.

Prospects for additional rains are favorable, but the Saturday rains were about "six weeks late" from Barrett's viewpoint. "We're not over the hump, yet," he said the rains may get next season's grass started.

In the Midkiff area, most of the cotton farmers are on irrigation and have about three-fourth of their crops planted.

"You just can't replace natural rainfall," he said.

Rankin rancher Dwayne Lindsey said his rangeland is in worse shape than it was during the drought of the 1950s. Saturday's rain will help if "the sun won't come out" and evaporate the water, thus preventing it from seeping deep into the soil.

"It's nice, I'll tell you," Lindsey said of the inch-plus of rain that fell on his ranchland around the old Upland community. The last measurable rain there was about a year ago, on June 26, he said.

He sold his cattle last October because it was "so extremely dry" then, and, before Saturday's rain, was preparing to sell his sheep just to hang on to his land for another season.

"We were in the process of selling everything we had," Lindsey said. The recent rain will do little good unless more comes later, he said.

"If we don't get any follow-up rains, this rain will just be a temporary relief."

"Farmering and ranching is about the only occupation I know that a man can lose a lifetime of work in 12 to 18 months... (due to) the elements of nature... to the (fluctuating) market."

Ranchers around Midland and elsewhere in West Texas have been thinning out their herds before the drought wipes them out, said Sam Nance, range conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) in Midland. The "hangers-on" are selling from their stock, Nance said.

"It's gotten to the point now where it's not economical to feed them (livestock) any more," said Rankin rancher Tommy Workman. Natural vegetation is almost depleted.

E.A. Crook, who farms at the Valley View community just southeast of Midland, said cotton "will be planted now whether it does any good or not."

Some irrigated farm land already has been seeded, he said, but most of Midland County's approximately 40,000 acres of cotton is dryland and depends exclusively on rainfall for moisture.

Stock farmer Gale Pugh, who lives at the Warfield community west of Midland, said fields may have enough moisture for planting but that the drought is far from being broken. "We need that much more (rain)."

Roy Graham, who farms about 1,900 acres near the Greenwood community east of Midland, started planting his irrigated fields in cotton May 10. The rains will be a boost to that acreage and to his dryland fields. He figured that one-half to 1 1/2 inches of rain fell over his farm land Saturday morning.

"It looks like to me that it's liable to be a planting rain," he said.

Just the day before, on Friday, when prospects of a continued drought were more promising than rain, Graham was hopeful for a rain-

Kolwezi in European hands; killings told

KOLWEZI, Zaire (AP) — French and Belgian paratroopers seized control of Kolwezi from rebels Saturday and reported about 100 foreigners had been massacred in this copper mining center.

Some of the 1,500 white residents waiting to be flown to safety told reporters they witnessed widespread murder, bloodshed and looting by the rebels who captured Kolwezi from government forces a week ago.

French and Belgian army officers said their troops controlled the city and were mopping up small bands of rebels.

Reporters counted at least 58 bodies in the streets. French military commander Yves Graves, who led a gaza-troop assault on Kolwezi Friday, said he estimated 100 whites had been slaughtered by the rebels and some 200 rebels were killed in the fighting Friday night and Saturday.

In the ruins of one house, the bodies of 34 men, women and children were frozen in postures of terror. A woman's face was twisted and her fingers were still plugging her ears against the noise of the machine gun fire that killed her and her companions.

French military sources said seven paratroopers of the French Foreign Legion were killed and several others were wounded.

The French Defense Ministry said the French operation could be considered "terminated," but there was no indication the 600 legionnaires were being withdrawn.

No casualties were reported among some 1,000 Belgian paratroopers sent into Kolwezi early Saturday.

The airborne assaults were launched to save some 2,500 foreigners in the Kolwezi area. Most are Belgians and French, but U.S. officials said there also were 14 Americans.

The rescued foreigners, numb, hungry and exhausted, were given hot dogs at the Kolwezi airport while they waited for flights to a military air-base at Kamina, 160 miles north.

They then were flown to the capital of Kinshasa, 700 miles northwest of the war zone, for flights that would take them to Brussels, Belgium.

Two Americans were among 100 refugees in the first plane out of Kinshasa en route to Brussels. They were Harold Amstutz of Portsmouth, Va., and an unidentified member of his family, authorities said.

Officials reported Lonnie Glen of Yerington, Nev., was missing and feared dead. Refugees told reporters that when they last saw Glen he was searching for his German-born wife and daughter in Kolwezi. Glen was employed by the Boise, Idaho-based Morrison-Knudsen Co., which was building a power project in the area.

The Boise firm rescued 77 Americans from the Kolwezi area on Wednesday by truck and helicopter.

In Washington, the State Department said two unidentified American missionaries were among the first 500 persons evacuated from Kolwezi.

State Department spokesman Kenneth Brown said French and Belgian troops talked to two other U.S. missionaries by radio who said they were all right.

French Foreign Legion paratroopers jumped into Kolwezi Friday and Saturday after air attacks by Zairean air force jets. The legionnaires linked up Saturday with a Belgian airborne unit dropped overnight. Belgian forces also control Kolwezi airport, five miles from the city.

Nine lives becomes 72 hours at the animal shelter

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Two black eyes stared through the fence. It was a hot, wind-blown day, but the small dog kept looking at everyone who walked by in hopes that someone would take him out of that lonely place. It was filled with other dogs, but none that he knew.

Patches was a small dog with long white wiry hair and black patches around his eyes. He had been picked up shortly before by the animal control officers who work for the city of Midland.

More than likely, he was wandering the streets when the officers picked him up. The dog had no vaccination tags so the owner could not be located. Patches was doomed to remain at the Animal Shelter, 1601 Orchard Drive, until his owner happened to check the shelter for his missing dog.

If the owner never showed up, Patches today is dead.

Any animal not claimed within 72 hours after it arrives at the shelter is "put to sleep" in accordance with city ordinance and because there simply is no room to keep the dogs, according to Dalton Byerly, director of the animal control department.

"Midland has an overpopulation of animals," he said.

That overpopulation of animals running loose in the streets coupled with the fact that many of the owners fail to get the animals vaccinated combine for a perfect situation for a rabies epidemic, according to Byerly.

In fact, in a move perhaps unprecedented in West Texas, Byerly and his staff have taken newspaper ads of recent, warning Midlanders about rabies and advising them to call their vet to arrange for protective shots for their dogs.

Department of Human Resources, Region 2, is based in Lubbock and includes Midland. It requires 75 percent of the animals in an area to be vaccinated and Midland does not meet that requirement, Byerly said. Another problem is that 24 percent of the animal heads sent in for rabies testing prove positive. "This is a high percentage," Byerly noted.

Three cases of rabies were reported in 1977 in Midland County. Two were in cows and 10 persons were exposed. Kermit, located west of Midland, this year has located two cases in bats. Two children were bitten and had to take the series of shots, according to Byerly.

By the middle of May, 80 animal bites were reported to the city animal control department. Most of the bites came from the person's own dog or family dog. In almost every instance, the dog was not vaccinated, according to Byerly.

A Midland veterinarian remarked that when a person is bit by an animal and there is no vaccination tag, "a lot of anxiety builds up." Dr. H. B. Mills added that it is not possible to tell in the early stages of rabies if an animal has the disease. "The fact that he is not immunized creates a lot of tension in the person bitten. The anti rabies treatment is very painful to some people."

Many residents who keep their animals in the back yard feel they do not need to get them vaccinated, but Byerly noted that a rabid animal can climb over or under a fence, bite the pet and leave without the owner ever knowing.

A related problem much in the news of late consists of two large dogs reportedly tan in color, which have scaled six-foot tall fences to attack smaller dogs. "Operating" on the north side of the city, the dogs have killed at least one dog and have severely crippled another. There is no indication, as yet, that the dogs are rabid but they apparently are vicious and uncontrolled.

Overall, said Byerly, it is the high number of animals running loose in the street which can keep rabies spreading, he said. "If there ever is an outbreak of rabies, we are in trouble," Byerly added.

The first place to stop an epidemic before it has a chance to get started is controlling the large number of animals running loose in Midland's streets. This includes stray animals and animals that have owners.

"We have got to stop the stray dog problem. If we can get those animals that belong to people vaccinated and penned up, then we can pick up the animals that are running loose, thus eliminating the problem with animals that don't belong to anyone," Byerly said.

The vaccine used by Midland veterinarians is "very effective," according to Mills. While some people have suggested veterinarians set up clinics each year to vaccinate the animals, Mills remarked that turnout usually is not very good "unless there is an outbreak of rabies."

Some people do have good intentions of keeping their dogs in, but the owners let their animals out in the morning for a quick run, and often forget to call in the dog before leaving for work. Thus, the dog runs loose in the streets until the owner gets home and puts up the dog.

Animal control personnel pick up from 20 to 30 dogs each day running loose in the street and "the majority of these dogs are owned," Byerly said. The city restraint law says the animal must be restrained by a fence or a chain — not just sitting in the owner's front yard.

While the city department is concerned with getting rid of animals that roam the streets and belong to no one, Byerly said his employees spend more time catching owned dogs than they do strays.

This summer, Byerly and his employees will be taking steps to get to the root of the loose animal problem by citing the owners. His people will work more than the normal 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. shift to catch owners that also work, Byerly said. A dog that has an owner usually goes home, and the plan is to follow the dog and then write the owner a citation.

When a dog is picked up by animal control officers, the owner is given 72 hours to claim it, according to Byerly. At the end of the period, the department has the choice of killing the dog by injection or putting it up for adoption. The problem now is that there are so many dogs picked up, there is no room to keep any animal past the 72-hour time limit for possible adoption.

Byerly is hoping there will be two ways to get out of killing so many animals. One is that people will have their animal vaccinated and kept in a fenced yard or indoors, and the second is that the shelter will be expanded in a couple of years to allow for keeping animals to be adopted.

"We're trying to bring the animal population in Midland into some sort of focus," he said.

Unless the owner of this dog, picked up without identification, has claimed him within 72 hours, odds are that an injection with a hyperdermic needle will end the life of this dog at the city of Midland animal shelter. (Staff Photo by Mike Kardos)

Billie Sol hires defense lawyer 'Racehorse' Haynes

DALLAS (AP) — With a federal grand jury, the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the Texas Attorney General's office nipping at his heels, paroled swindler Billie Sol Estes has opted for the legal talents of famed Houston defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

Estes met Haynes at the Fairmont Hotel here Friday where the flamboyant barrister was scheduled to address the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association. Haynes told The Associated Press that Estes is interested in using his legal expertise to obtain a presidential pardon he applied for last March.

The bespectacled promoter was paroled in 1971 after serving about half of a 15-year sentence. He was convicted of masterminding a multi-million dollar phony fertilizer tank scheme at the expense of the federal government and several hundred red-faced private investors.

Haynes told The AP Estes approached him as early as a month ago concerning the pardon and various other "legal matters" in which Estes is embroiled. He said he has not decided whether to take Estes as a client.

"I'm going to listen to him, yes. We'll be discussing that (the pardon) and various other legal matters I understand are pending," Haynes said. Asked whether Estes wanted to retain him on a permanent basis for any pending criminal litigation, Haynes said, "Well, it may be a little premature for that."

Estes, who arrived without his usual entourage of attorneys and private secretary at the law seminar about 30 minutes before Haynes, appeared apprehensive. The Abilene resident was his old immutable self, refusing to answer even the simplest of questions.

"We've talked a time or two before," Haynes said. "I guess you form your initial opinions about somebody on what others tell you, at least before you meet them. But, I find him homey, warm and he seems very open."

Retaining Haynes could prove discomfiting for Estes. Haynes, ever the obliging recipient of newsmen, has merely to show up in a city to attract reporters. Estes avoids publicity whenever possible.

DIRT, SQUIRT & QUIRT Drought effects worsening daily

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent

Chances for a good agricultural year in the West Texas area are dwindling rapidly with continued severe drought conditions. The effects of the limited moisture received in early May are completely gone in the dry, windy, low humidity conditions that followed. Farmers who have been planting irrigated acreage are finding that stands are hard to establish with the heat, wind and drying conditions. Livestock producers are still having to feed livestock in the absence of any new forage on dry pastures. A lot of livestock has been marketed in the past few weeks in view of the dismal outlook for grazing.

Minter McReynolds, county executive director, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service reminds Midland County farmers that once again the sign-up period for crops subject to set-aside or voluntary diversion has been extended. The final date for sign-up now is May 31.

McReynolds also noted that the president has signed into law the Emergency Agricultural Act of 1978. Under provisions of this act, the established price for wheat and the loan rate for upland cotton will be increased for 1978. The wheat established price now is $3.40 per bushel and the upland cotton loan rate has been increased to 48 cents per pound.

What do and should the American people know about agriculture today? With greater attention being focused on the farm economy and agricultural problems in recent months, Texas Agricultural Extension Service officials believe interested people have a right to even more information. They emphasize that the Agriculture Council of America "Farm Line" will explore this question by examining what the farm community feels are the essential facts about agriculture.

Farmers and farm-related businessmen nationwide are invited to express their views on this topic by calling ACA's toll-free number (800-368-8050) Wednesday (May 24) between noon and 4 p.m. E.D.T. A total of 12 toll-free WATS lines will be open to callers anywhere in the continental U.S.

Information and concerns gathered over Farm Line will be used in a massive new effort ACA is planning to communicate information about the current economic situation in agriculture. Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, and Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., a senior member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, will head the panel of experts that will answer the phones and speak with callers. They will be joined by other members of Congress who deal directly with farm and food issues, and top spokesmen for the White House and U.S. Department of Agriculture.

ACA is planning an agriculture visibility program—a comprehensive report to the nation to provide any concerned individual, company or organization with interesting creative material so they can tell the agriculture story. Farmers and businessmen from all over the country are invited to call the Farm Line to voice their opinions on what facts need to be told to the non-farm public.

The extremely harsh environmental conditions affecting commercial agriculture are also causing problems for home gardeners in the West Texas area. Even though we are trying to alter the environment with irrigation and fertilization, the dry, low humidity conditions place a great deal of stress on trees, shrubs, lawns, flowering plants and vegetables.

A large number of calls are coming into the Extension office reporting plant problems ranging from insects to leaf drying and defoliation. In many cases it is hard to definitely diagnose why a tree or shrub suddenly dies back.

I rather suspect that a person's watering habits may be the answer. One must consider that the quality of the water we use in West Texas is not the best—the dissolved solids consisting of calcium, sodium and magnesium chlorides, sulfates and carbonates may accumulate beneath the plant in extended drought periods without benefit of leaching rainfall and lead to plant problems.

Accumulation of these salts can cause toxicity or just plain make it hard for the plants to take up moisture. Soil moisture supplies need to be kept near field capacity. (all a given type of soil will hold against the pull of gravity) and occasionally a long water application interval should be used to leach out accumulated salts.

Kremlin assails West on rights

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin tried Saturday to offset its image of persecutor of dissidents by accusing the West of human rights violations and asserting Soviet citizens enjoy "genuine democracy" and "the broadest rights and freedoms."

The front-page editorial in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda made no mention of the trials last week of dissidents Yuri Orlov, who got a 12-year term, and Zviad Gamsakhurdia and Merab Kostava, who got five-year sentences.

Pravda noted that "striving to belittle the historical gains of socialism, imperialist ideologists and politicians are raising a provocative hullabaloo about so-called 'violations' of human rights in socialist countries."

"Its purpose is to detract the attention of the popular masses from the poor state of affairs in regard to human rights in the world, the exploitative world. But the truth will out."

"It is imperialist reaction that unceremoniously tramples upon man's political rights. Police surveillance, outrages perpetrated by punitive organs, the insulting discrimination against national minorities in employment, in everyday life, in political life—all this has become routine in the countries which bourgeois propaganda dares to call 'the free world.'"

However, Pravda declared that "in the society of developed socialism, the essence of democracy has been revealed in the true meaning of this word—as genuine power of the people."

"Working people, deprived of equal civil and political rights under every exploitative system, have achieved such rights in reality within the Soviet Union."

OC registration scheduled May 31

ODESSA — Formal registration for the first summer term at Odessa College will be from 1 to 4 p.m. and 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. May 31 in the community room on the second floor of the Student Union Building.

More than 700 students signed up during preregistration. A deadline for paying tuition and fees for those who enrolled early is May 25.

Classes will run June 1 through July 6. The second summer session is scheduled for July 10 through Aug. 16.

Emergency

Editor's Note: Staff photographer Mike Kardos recently spent a weekend night observing procedures and events in the emergency treatment room of Midland Memorial Hospital.

Story and photos by MIKE KARDOS

The need for emergency room treatment at Midland Memorial Hospital can arise at any moment, day or night.

An elderly man, sitting at home watching television, begins to feel sharp pains in his chest or notices a numbness creeping into his left arm. A young woman who seconds before had been enjoying a motorcycle ride abruptly finds herself sprawled on city pavement.

It doesn't matter what the problem might be. The need is sudden, definite and all-consuming for those trained and paid to respond to it.

Patients come to MMH's emergency room in many ways. They walk. They are driven there in the cars of their neighbors or, less frequently, in the cars of strangers. Most come by ambulance. The need is different, yet always the same. They need care NOW. Later won't do. Or so, simply by being there, they must believe.

Whenever a patient is brought to the emergency room by ambulance, preparations are under way before the person ever arrives. Radio contact informs hospital personnel of the nature of the injury or illness, and the patient's vital signs (blood pressure, pulse and respiration) already are known at the hospital.

Every member of the ER team at MMH has a crucial function. One important member of that team is the emergency medical technician, who performs tasks which allow doctors and nurses more time for diagnosis and treatment.

Usually, two EMT's ride in each ambulance, providing first aid to keep the patient alive and in a stable condition until his delivery to the emergency room.

Becoming an EMT requires 120 hours of class time, 40 hours of hospital work and the completion of five ambulance runs. Then the candidate must pass a state certification test. Blair Maulden is an EMT at Midland Memorial. (He also is taking a one-year course to become a paramedic.)

It would seem to require a rare caliber of human being, his profession would, if only because an EMT at times has to deal with the high-pressure atmosphere of an emergency room on a weekend night.

The EMT's environment on those nights is a crisis-filled, noisy nightmare. Often, the sounds are those of vomiting and screams of pain. And behind those sounds are the constant, anguished stares of accompanying relatives.

Amid the near-madness, though, are gentler moments which for a spell can dull the knife-like edge of witnessed pain and suffering. The smile of a young child or a simple thank you seem especially welcome to staff members.

"I look forward to coming to work... it does give you satisfaction when you help somebody," said Maulden. He does not take his job lightly, rather it's "something I'll do for the rest of my life."

To list all the situations that confront the emergency room staff would be pointless here. Besides, the personnel "never know" when a new problem they've never seen before will develop.

But, said Maulden with conviction in his voice, "you can be sure that the people here are into it."

Obviously, some aspirant EMT's are not able to deal with the hectic pace of an emergency room. "There are people who can't work ER," noted Dr. Jim Chepko.

Just what is it that EMT's and paramedics do? According to Dr. Chepko, "They make things easier for me. They're another pair of eyes and hands."

EMT's are authorized under the rules to apply bandages and splints, to stop bleeding and to administer cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

Paramedics, with their more involved training, can start electrocardiograms, employ defibrillation (mainly by applying electrical stimulus to a person's heart), administer drugs (with a doctor's approval) and perform other duties of a fairly serious kind.

The difficulties of treating patients are considerable, but that is not what the MMH emergency room staff feels is the biggest hassle confronting them. Some are vocal on the subject of too many people using ER facilities and personnel as a convenience, rather than for their intended purpose. They cite patients and the parents of patients who have become outraged because a sprained ankle or a cut finger was not tended to on a high-priority basis.

"If any ER does 30 percent real emergencies, they're doing real well," claimed Dr. Chepko.

He explained that most emergency rooms, including the one at MMH, work on a "triage" system — mean-

Blair Maulden, an emergency medical technician at Midland Memorial Hospital, meets an ambulance crew as it brings a patient to the ER.

Before the person arrived, the staff had been informed by radio of the patient's general condition.

Dr. Jim Chepko, left, feels that Maulden is capable of stitching up Jackie Perkins' chin. "If it wasn't for the medical-legal situation, there's no reason Blair shouldn't be doing this," he said.

ing that patients are divided into categories according to the severity of their injury or illness. Those patients requiring immediate attention get it, Dr. Chepko said, while patients perceived to be in a more stable condition are asked to wait their turn.

Yet there are times when the ER staff goes from a complete stop, with nothing happening, to a full run, with a life desperately at stake. To see this happen is to partially understand the essence of their professions—and their professionalism.

During my visit, for example, an elderly man died in the ER while he was being treated following a heart attack. One moment, the staff was joking in the lounge, and the next instant they were working like hell to keep a man alive.

Suddenly, all the glib, casual, out-of-hospital assertions to the effect that ER people don't do their jobs ("The sick can't even get treated") seemed like bad jokes told in monumentally poor taste. In a true emergency, with a human life hanging in the balance, insurance forms and the signing of papers went more than by the wayside. The staff did with clearly discernible concern and efficiency what it was trained to do: try to save a life.

They succeeded, artificially, for a few minutes. They gave that man all they had. But he died despite their efforts, despite medical technology, despite everything.

Scant moments after his death, the ten people — nurses, doctors and technicians — had resumed their pre-emergency talk. They touched on the same topics you and I might discuss over a late-night drink, perhaps, or at a party with friends. The talk was not of their patient's death.

Some might term that callous or indifferent or unaffected. Others may sense with accuracy how ER personnel must feel without feeling too much, must quickly turn their backs on "failure."

There is, after all, that unseen, oncoming majority of one . . . another no-appointment patient in dire or dire-seeming need of collective medical skills.

Coming through the door. At any moment.

Maulden takes a breather from the grueling pace of the emergency room at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Fighting in vain to keep an elderly man alive, the ER staff is directed by Dr. Chepko, right, while Maulden administers cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR). Nurse Virginia Sparks is busy with the man's head. Joe Brown keeps air flowing into the patient's lungs while an unidentified EMT looks on.

Maulden anxiously watches the second hand of a clock to keep his rhythm while administering CPR. Nurse Warren administers drugs, while Dr. Chepko attempts to establish an airway.

Six-year-old Alberto Gardea enjoys a lighter moment with Maulden while the youngster is having stitches in his knee examined.

Manuel Gardea and his son, Alberto, leave the ER after the boy's stitches were checked by Maulden.

Vastness impresses exchange student

By MARLEEN RAY

In 18-year-old Mari Ojala's homeland in southern Finland, the source of wealth is not "black gold" like it is in Texas, but "green gold," the name for the forests which cover the hillsides there.

A Midland High School senior, Miss Ojala came to Midland from her home in Loimaa, Finland, as part of Youth for Understanding, a non-profit international exchange student program.

She is living here with her host family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Westlake and their children, Donise, 18, Ronnie, 20, and Richard, 22. The Westlakes voluntarily provide her with room and board, while Miss Ojala pays for her traveling, school and miscellaneous expenses.

Like most foreign exchange students, when Miss Ojala first came to Midland in August 1977, she noticed how "flat and dry" the land is, but she said her spirits rose after she saw all the trees and other greenery growing in town.

"Everything is a lot bigger here (than in Finland). The cars are much bigger," she said. In her native country, each family only possesses one car; while in Midland, she said, it seems like every person owns a car, including high school students.

In Finland, where persons aren't able to get a driver's license until they are 18 years old, she said, bicycles are the most popular means of transportation. She said she was surprised to learn only a few students rode bicycles to school here.

Back home, she said, the school parking lot would be crowded with bicycles, while at Midland High, the lots are filled with cars.

Another thing here which differs from her homeland is the heat, Miss Ojala said. In Finland temperatures are warm but comfortable in the summer, never reaching the 100-degree mark as they do in Midland. In addition, she said, the winters are much more severe with snow falling from December to April.

Although she couldn't take part in any cross country skiing, one of her favorite sports, this past winter, Miss Ojala said she'll miss Midland's hot weather since it's so much colder in Finland.

Still another difference between her homeland and here is the school system. As in Midland, Finnish children attend public schools, grades one through 12. But, she said, the curriculum is much harder there with students required to study 15 subjects, including English, in a school year.

If she was a senior in a Finnish school, she said, she would have to take four languages, mathematics, a couple of science courses, art, physical education, history, social sciences and religion.

Also, she pointed out that American schools seem to be "more fun" than schools in Finland because they give students an opportunity to get involved in sports, music and a variety of clubs.

By joining the Packbackers, the Midland High pep squad, Miss Ojala said, she learned how much she enjoyed American football. Finnish schools don't have pep squads or cheerleaders, she said.

Miss Ojala decided to apply for Youth for Understanding based on the experiences of her friends and cousins. She said they told her living in the United States was a worthwhile experience, even though she will have to make up her senior year when she goes back to Finland.

Youth for Understanding, she said, gave her a chance "to meet people from all over the world that I couldn't have done otherwise."

Her real parents are Mr. and Mrs. Esko Ojala. Her father is a veterinarian, while her mother, Kaisu, is a nurse. She has a sister, Katri, 15, and three brothers, Mikko, 22, Jussi, 20, and Eero, 10.

Black general drives for rights

By DAVID MINTHORN

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A black U.S. Army general, who was denied entry to a discotheque until someone mentioned his rank, is leading a drive to stop German innkeepers from barring American soldiers.

Brig. Gen. Harvey Williams, commander of the 15,000-member U.S. military community in Augsburg, said American GIs "of all races, but primarily black" are turned away at the doors of 10 night spots in the Bavarian city.

Williams, 47, of Durham, N.C., said he decided to test admission policy at one Augsburg disco several months ago "to get a first-hand glimpse of the kind of thing that was going on."

He dressed in a sports coat and tie, but was stopped at the door and told it was a private club. When a companion mentioned his rank, the owner dropped the membership requirement, Williams said.

The incident was widely reported in West German newspapers after the general told about his experience during a news conference last week to publicize Augsburg's "Good Will Action" to end discrimination against soldiers.

"I only mentioned it to show we weren't dreaming up these cases," Williams said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

After Army officials documented numerous cases of discrimination over a period of several months, Mayor Hans Breuer promised the city's full cooperation in ending the practices.

Breuer told reporters that 500 local restaurants and discos will be asked to post bi-lingual signs pledging admission for all persons who meet acceptable standards of dress and behavior.

"We won't shrink from taking legal actions to suspend business licenses if discrimination doesn't stop," the mayor said.

He and Williams warned at the news conference that GIs might react violently if discrimination persists, German newspapers said.

The Augsburg prosecutor has already filed suit against one local disco which turned away a group of well-dressed black and white soldiers, including several senior enlisted men, who decided to challenge the entry rules.

"This test didn't just happen. We'd repeatedly been told to get documented evidence. And the soldiers decided among themselves to do it," Williams said.

Cases of discrimination against American soldiers occur wherever troops are garrisoned in West Germany, even though the West German constitution outlawed bias because of "origin, race, language, homeland, beliefs, religion or political stance."

The Army has put some bars and restaurants off-limits to all GIs after German authorities failed to act on complaints by black troops that they weren't admitted.

Stuttgart Mayor Manfred Rommel, son of the late

Erwin Rommel, the German army's Desert Fox of World War II, criticized local cab drivers in 1975 for refusing rides to black soldiers. The cabbies said it was a self-defense measure following several assaults on drivers blamed on GIs.

In the early 1970s, the Army organized a command-wide Housing Referral Agency for GIs seeking private apartments for their families. German landlords who refused to rent to blacks were placed off-limits to all military families.

In Augsburg, the disco owners have evaded laws against discrimination by claiming they operate private clubs for members only. They say soldiers are barred because they don't meet dress rules and are disorderly.

"On some nights when there are sufficient Germans to fill the place, the club member rule goes into effect. But on slow nights almost everyone can get in. Then when it's not quite full, the white soldiers are admitted and the blacks kept out," Gen. Williams said.

Pilot, guests fly high at retirement whingding

NEW YORK (AP) — Capt. Henry Stuart was retiring after 31 years as a pilot, so he threw a party for himself — at 17,000 feet. He chartered a Boeing 707 for $5,000 and took 125 guests for a spin.

The American Airlines pilot paid the cost of the flight out of his own pocket, stocked the bar with liquor, filled the larder with sandwiches, relishes and fruit and, at 11:30 a.m. Friday, lifted the plane off the runway at Kennedy International Airport.

"Friends have always asked me, 'What goes on in the cockpit?' so I thought I would let them see for themselves before I retire," said Stuart, who reaches the mandatory retirement age of 60 next Wednesday.

A native of Seattle now residing in Greenwich, Conn., Stuart learned to fly under the GI Bill after serving in the Navy during World War II as an aeronautical engineer. Since then, he has flown all over the Western Hemisphere: to Guadeloupe, Martinique, Puerto Rico and Barbados.

But Friday's flight began and ended in New York. After a half-hour delay on the ground, the plane took to the sky, and Stuart's guests reacted with an ovation.

"I was worried last night about what the weatherman was going to do to us last night, but the Lord is really in his heaven this morning," Stuart told the passengers over the loudspeaker. "Look at this sunshine!"

In the next two hours, Stuart and his guests flew up to Burlington, Vt., and back again, following the most scenic route Stuart could devise. Along the way, he answered questions about the plane and the pilot's job.

"I never saw anything like this in my life, it's wonderful," said Carol Whitmer, one of five American Airlines flight attendants who volunteered their time to serve on the flight known as "Charter 60 Fly Harry." Stuart's children — Bucky, 17, Kathryn, 14, and Sarah, 12 — were on board, along with his wife, Ruth. Among the other passengers, three had never flown before — Stuart's 4-year-old grandson, Eric Peterson, and two Greenwich neighbors, Olive Kamnitzer and Joan Ingersol. Mrs. Ingersol said she was a bit worried before the flight, but after take-off she was smiling.

"It's terrific," she said with a grin. When the plane landed, the passengers launched into rousing renditions of "Happy Birthday" and "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

Even those who could not make the flight sent their best wishes. When Stuart received his print-out with his flight orders, the airline's dispatch office added a personal comment to a foot-long computerized list of technical instructions: "Good luck, Harry. Give 'em hell. May your future landings go real well."

New trustee sought community involvement

By MARLEEN RAY

"I've always desired to be in the mainstream of the community. Consequently, I became interested in serving on the school board," Marshall "Mac" McCrea, Midland Board of Education's new trustee, said.

McCrea was elected in April to the board position vacated by Don Sparks.

Saying he didn't run because of his stand on specific issues, McCrea said he has "no final answer on anything." Currently, he said, he wants to find out what's going on in the school district and catch up with what all the other trustees already know.

"Personally, I just enjoy activity... seeing things work and succeed," the new trustee said, "I thoroughly enjoy working with other people when we're trying to attain a common goal. I really feel I can work with other members on the school board."

The father of three children, including two who now are attending Lee High School, McCrea said, "I didn't run (for the school board) as a father, but as an interested citizen with business experience. I felt I could make a contribution."

Being a parent, he said, may not be of much help when it comes to serving on the school board because parents sometimes don't know what problems or activities their children get involved in at school.

McCrea said he only has one sore point. "I've always hated to think that people who are running for the board represent a single school," he said. Although Lee High School and Midland High School compete in several areas, he said, they should have the same caliber of teachers, materials and programs and offer equal opportunities to their students.

Concerning proposals for raising teacher salaries for the upcoming school year, McCrea said he is "leaning toward an increase" because he thinks teachers are not making nearly enough money for the job they perform.

Children's education, he said, is "sufficiently important" to warrant the school district to pay higher salaries for quality teachers.

"Not only are we (Midland school district) competing to keep good teachers with other school districts, but we're competing with other businesses," McCrea said, noting the number of teachers who quit teaching to enter business and other more lucrative careers.

However, he said he is aware of the possible burden an increase may create on taxpayers here. If a property tax rate increase is required to pay for teachers' salaries, school programs and other items, he said, the board will keep it to a minimum.

It's up to the trustees, McCrea said, to decide how much of an increase the community can stand.

A native of Abilene, McCrea has lived in several cities in West Texas, but he figures he has lived in Midland "longer than anywhere else." A graduate of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, he has a bachelor's degree in business administration and a doctor of jurisprudence degree.

At one time, McCrea went into private law practice. For three years, he was a U.S. Air Force lieutenant, stationed in Albuquerque, N.M. He then served as city attorney for the city of Odessa before coming to Midland.

McCrea said he helped organize and owns several Gibson Discount Centers. Until recently, he was executive vice president of The First National Bank of Midland. Presently, he said, he considers himself in the oil business, primarily as an investor.

In addition, McCrea also continues to serve on the board of directors of the First National Bank, Magnetex Industries, Gibson Products Co. of San Angelo and various oil companies.

He called the oil business "exciting and fun," adding that it offers a greater "amount of potential" than any other business. Since the advent of the energy shortage, he said, the discovery of oil and natural gas has been placed in a "premium position."

McCrea is not new to public service. He has been on the Midland Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees, serving as its president one year. He also was appointed vice president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. While working with the bank, he was involved in several civic activities, including raising money for the United Way of Midland.

Now that he is school trustee, he said, he has made a personal commitment not to get involved in anything else so that he can devote enough time to the position he calls "the toughest non-paying job" in town.

School board meeting changed

The regular meeting of the Midland public schools Board of Education, scheduled for Tuesday, has been changed to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the school administration building, according to board President Johnny Warren.

"One of our board members had to be out of town on business, and since teacher salary schedules are on the agenda, I felt it was important that we all be here," Warren said. At his request, board members were polled, and they unanimously decided to reschedule the meeting for Wednesday.

Budget on agenda

The Midland College Board of Trustees is expected to consider the proposed budget for the upcoming fiscal year at its meeting at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the board room.

In addition, the trustees are scheduled to hear a report from the salary committee and accept bids on the proposed Tennis Center Building. They plan to discuss policies for the new Chaparral Center.

In other business, the board is expected to approve budget amendments and a construction fund transfer.

Career Week set

Career Week activities to be sponsored this week by the Postal Service will follow the theme of "Progressing Together." Postmaster D. E. Hoister announced.

The Women's Advisory Council in Midland has coordinated the program under the leadership of Marilyn Craig. The objective of the program is to inform, motivate and enrich postal employees' desire to progress and take advantage of career development opportunities, the postmaster said.

Speakers are scheduled from San Antonio, Odessa and Midland. A luncheon style show is slated for noon Tuesday in the Holiday Inn. Also on the agenda for a seminar scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday at the Post Office are talks on equal employment opportunity, basics of public speaking, credit for women, law in Texas as it affects women, self-protection for women, and scents and make-up demonstrations.

The Postal Service is one of the largest employers of women, who comprise about 20 percent of its total work force.

The month of May has been designated "Career Month" by Regional Postmaster General James J. Symbol. The observance was ordered to heighten postal employee career development and improvement throughout the 11-state Southern Region of the U.S. Postal Service. During the month, each sectional center selects a week in which special programs including workshops, guest speakers, exhibits, films and other special events will be offered to aid employees in career development.

Crime Prevention Week plans shaped

Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon explained the advantages of the plan to allow controlled use of police cars by officers, so as to make them more visible in the community, when members of the Midland Crime Prevention Commission met recently in the Community Room of Commercial Bank and Trust.

At the same meeting, Sgt. Lalo Camarillo of the Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department reported the need for more equipment by his department.

Camarillo and Gideon, along with Sheriff Dallas Smith, are advisors for the commission.

Ruth Story, commission chairman, reported that Crime Prevention Week will be recognized Oct. 23-28 and will be so proclaimed by Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. Camarillo, Chuck Redger of West Texas Teen Challenge Outreach, Caroline Keisling, representing Altrusa Club of Midland, Inc., and Mrs. Story will act as a speakers bureau, and letters will be sent to community organizations suggesting that crime prevention programs be scheduled by program chairmen for presentation whenever possible, but preferably during October.

It also was suggested that a citizen who has made a significant contribution to crime prevention be recognized by the MPD during this special week.

Camarillo announced that Boy Scout Explorers are prepared to mark personal property items for identification purposes at the request of senior citizens. Two Explorers, he said, are learning to install locks, but a special tool, which will cost $30, is needed if the work is to be done properly.

The Downtown Kiwanis Club is distributing in the northeast section of the city door-hanger cards which can be used to check the effectiveness of outside door locks.

The commission will release this month a checklist of safety precautions for persons planning to be out of town on vacation.

The sum of $900, contributed to the commission by Midland banks, has been earmarked to help defray such expenses as payment for information which are incurred by the police in their efforts to solve various crimes. It was suggested that additional funds which might be contributed could be used to augment the original $900, or allocated to the Police Benevolent Fund.

Members voted to continue the present structure of the commission, with Mrs. Story as chairman, Patsy Gordon, secretary-treasurer, and Caroline Keisling, Bertha Starks and Scott Shelton as members of the executive committee.

Counseling helps displaced homemakers find new career

By SALLY JACOBSEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fran Urban says her last name is spelled just like the first word in "urban renewal." She quickly adds that she's embarking on "a whole new renewal" of herself.

Mrs. Urban, 43, is an alcoholic who two years ago left her husband of nine years when she decided to do something about her drinking problem.

At the first of this year, she decided to do something about another problem — finding a career.

Her search led her to the Maryland Center for Displaced Homemakers, which was set up to help persons — male or female age 35 or older — who, through death of a spouse, divorce or separation, are forced to become the breadwinner.

Most of the women who walk through the center's doors had not held jobs while they were married. Without skills, an employment history or youth, these women find it difficult to get back into the work force.

Many need money, yet find they are not eligible for unemployment compensation, pensions, Social Security or other federal aid provided for welfare mothers and young persons, said Cynthia E. Marano, the center's director.

Marie Parr, 48, a training specialist at the center and a displaced homemaker, had found herself unable to get a single interview when she applied for teaching jobs several years ago.

"When you go out and can't get jobs when you've been used to getting jobs as soon as you go out and become interviewed — I'm talking about many years ago — you look to yourself and you say 'What is it?'" she said. "I'm too old, I'm too fat, I'm too aggressive. I'm not aggressive enough. What's the matter with me?"

"After coming to the center to work, I realized it wasn't me, but the fact that it's a highly competitive (job) market. What we teach women here is how to present themselves to an employer in a tight market."

The center aims to get displaced homemakers ready for jobs by finding what skills they've developed through volunteer work or housekeeping. It also tackles other problems, such as legal and emotional strains stemming from divorce or widowhood.

Participants are offered individual counseling, job-related workshops and seminars on topics ranging from resume writing to auto mechanics, finances and health care.

The center also provides limited funding for coursework or establishing small businesses, and finds on-the-job training for some. Another important factor, the women at the center emphasized, is the backing one displaced homemaker gives another.

"There is such support here," said Mrs. Urban, sitting at a round table in the homey main room of the row house where the center is located. "I've never been so broke in my life and so happy."

There are an estimated 268,000 displaced homemakers in Maryland. Nationwide, some 3 million persons fall into that category, Rep. Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, D-Calif., told a hearing last summer on legislation calling for funding 50 displaced homemakers centers around the country.

The Maryland center, which receives $190,000 a year for three years, was the second of its kind in the nation. At least 15 states have enacted some sort of legislation dealing with displaced homemakers, according to Laurie Shields, coordinator for the National Alliance for Displaced Homemakers in Oakland, Calif.

Though it may seem an awkward title, "displaced homemaker" appears to describe aptly the feelings of many women who suddenly find themselves without a husband, income and the niceties that defined their lives.

"I have heard a lot of women say they have lost their role and their identity because much of their life has been tied up being somebody's wife and somebody's mother," said Ms. Parr, who returned to college to get a degree in education shortly before separating from her husband of 23 years.

"But the displacement is more than just a role. Everything that was comfortable and settled in the past, the fact that you were set for life, is gone," the Annapolis resident said. "You have to do something about it. You're forced to get out then and make your own way."

Midland has lost a great lady — one of its outstanding and most loyal citizens — in the death last Wednesday of Dr. Veda Wells Hodge.

Although she has gone on to her eternal glory, Dr. Hodge has left a tremendous contribution to the community, to higher education, to the arts, to Christianity and to society in general — a contribution which will benefit young and old for generations yet to come.

She was active in so many organizations and had done so many things for others through the years that it would be next to impossible to list them all. Needless to say, all have contributed to the overall good of the community, state and nation.

Dr. Hodge's enthusiasm in any and everything in which she was interested was her trademark. Determination was another quality she possessed, along with leadership and WORK. She long had been known as one of Midland's best-known and most effective ambassadors across the state and nation.

The bells of the Hodge Carillon on the Midland College campus and of the Howard Payne Memorial Towers and Carillon on the Howard Payne University campus will, as stated by Don Newbury of Fort Worth, a former HPU student and now a member of its board of trustees, "remind all of us of two people who never observed needs without trying to meet them. Their enthusiasm for Christian education during a great part of this century was contagious. People yet unborn will be the recipients of their generosity, faith and belief in Christian education."

Dr. Hodge was a remarkable person in many respects, as Dr. Guy D. Newman, chancellor of Howard Payne University, Brownwood, said in a brief eulogy delivered at memorial services held here Friday for Dr. Hodge. "Her diversity of interest was one of the most I have ever known," he said.

"Dr. Hodge and Howard Payne University are synonymous," he continued. "Her devotion to the administration was marked by a spirit of benevolence, kindness, courage and vision and as long as the university shall stand the names of Veda and her late husband, J. Howard Hodge, will be associated with it."

"The same thing may be said her devotion to her other major interests — Midland, Midland Memorial Hospital, and Midland College, along with other civic cultural and religious values throughout the country ... they were magnified by her devotion and unselfish service."

Dr. Al Langford, president of Midland College, had said previously that "Veda Hodge was a great benefactor of Midland College, but even more important she was a vocal supporter for Midland College and for higher education throughout Texas."

She loved both Midland College and Howard Payne, and within the last two or three weeks she had left her hospital bed to participate in dedication ceremonies at both institutions of higher learning. She was that sort of a person.

Perhaps the most appreciated and most rewarding honor she received during her lifetime was her election late last year as president of the board of trustees of Howard Payne, the first lady to hold that high post.

A graduate of Howard Payne University, Veda Hodge had done a lot for the Brownwood school, and it had reciprocated in various ways.

Likewise, Veda and J. Howard Hodge had done a lot for Midland through the years — and both long will be remembered — and missed.

NICK THIMMESCH Cuban economy and United States trade reviewed

HAVANA, Cuba — This Communist nation's economy is centrally planned, has suffered enormously from the U.S. embargo and is saved from disaster by heavy Soviet subsidies.

Nick Thimmesch

Consumer rationing is an institution, with TV sets and refrigerators regarded as luxuries and sometimes dangled as lures to deserving workers. No one hungers here, but affluence is light years (or 80 miles to Florida) away.

For all the ideological preaching about imperialist capitalism, the island's sugar economy ironically forces Cuba to be plugged into an intrinsically capitalistic world commodity marketing system.

buy from us," said Antonio Villa Verde, vice minister of foreign trade. "Some U.S. congressmen do not understand that your measures against Cuba are obsolete. How can we pay you for goods if we can't export to you? There can be no opening until you lift the blockade. It is difficult to negotiate with a dagger at the neck when we are on the floor."

"But some day we will have normal trade again. We have learned to wait and to live without you. We must rediscover each other — it's been too long."

Therefore, Cuba, like other Communist nations, must cope with the entire globe, and in recent years, has stepped up trade with non-Communist nations. That's why it makes coy but clear overtures to the nearby economic powerhouse — the U.S. — despite perplexing trade barriers between the two countries.

Before Castro took power in 1959, 99 percent of Cuba's trade was with capitalist nations. Some 74 percent of all exports went to the U.S. and 65 percent of Cuban imports came from the U.S.

Once the U.S. imposed an embargo on Cuba and quit buying her sugar, Cuban trade shifted almost wholesale to Communist countries. Even now, with increased trade with the West, 68 percent of Cuba's trade is with the Communist world.

"To resume trade, the U.S. must

There are three big barriers to the normalization Cuba wants: Settlement of $1.8 billion in U.S. claims on holdings confiscated by Cuba; lifting the embargo; getting Cuba to allow freedom of emigration in order to qualify for normal trade status.

"It would be unrealistic for Cuba to pay the claims you ask," Villa Verde says. "We were harmed materially by the U.S. (Bay of Pigs) invasion, sabotage by the CIA, and the embargo. This is to say nothing of the human lives or the plans to eliminate our

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

United States is 'in between'

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — For an American journalist at this point in time, a trip through Turkey and Greece is an exercise in masochism. Everywhere he goes, on both sides of the Aegean, he is damned and accused and warned of disaster if the United States fails to take immediate and "proper" action to solve the problems in the eastern Mediterranean.

Roughly translated, in Ankara this means "abandon the Greeks" and in Athens it means "flail the Turks." After two weeks of constant exposure to this litany, my associate Joe Speer reports from the Mediterranean, it becomes nauseating.

It is a fact that the Johnson and Nixon administrations supported a repressive military junta in Greece for seven years. It is a fact that Henry Kissinger engineered a tilt toward the Turks during and after their invasion of Cyprus in 1974. And it is equally true that Congress reacted by slapping an arms embargo on Turkey, a vital NATO ally.

But, the United States did not instigate the feud between these likable peoples, which dates back to a day in May, 1453, when Sultan Mohammed II rode into Constantinople behind his victorious troops and claimed the Byzantine empire for the Ottoman Turks. Nearly 400 years later, the Greeks booted the Turks out. Both sides have had their daggers drawn ever since.

Despite these ancient animosities, Greeks and Turks of all professions and political stripes persist in blaming the United States for their respective plights. They simply will not — perhaps they innately cannot — entertain the idea that they, themselves, have something to do with their own fates. "External forces" are responsible; and in this era of anti-Americanism, the president, the Congress, and above all the CIA, have become the scapegoats.

Turkey, for example, is currently plagued with a wave of violence in the streets. Extreme factions of the left and right are shooting and bombing each other with abandon, and well over 100 Turks have been killed this year alone.

An occasional Turk will admit that the problem has social and economic roots. More typical are the opinions of two prominent journalists — one a leftist, the other a right-winger — both of whom charged that the CIA is behind the violence.

"The CIA is currently trying to 'instigate chaos' in Turkey," said the leftist. He warned that left-of-center Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit may become "another Allende," referring to the Chilean president who was opposed by the CIA and deposed by his own military in 1973. The Greeks believe with equal passion that they are the victims of a mysterious and pernicious plot cooked up by the CIA in cahoots with Turkey.

The Turks and the Greeks, moreover, refuse to recognize that the United States has its own interests to protect. Each move by Washington is judged solely by how one side perceives it will effect the other.

Objective analysis of the important issues in Ankara and Athens is all too rare. Emotions rule the day. When Turks or Greeks speak about events, they usually describe them in terms of their feelings.

A high-level official in the Turkish foreign ministry, for instance, said the U.S. arms embargo came as a "bad shock" to the Turks. "We are a sentimental people," he said, and Turkey's relations with the United States had been an "unrequited love affair."

Similarly, the Greeks are deeply hurt by President Carter's efforts to end the embargo against Turkey. "Americans and Greeks are brothers," said Panayiotis Papaligouras, who retired as the foreign minister a few days ago. "It is a family fight. Unfortunately, these are sometimes the worst kinds of fights."

The United States is viewed by both sides as omnipotent. The solution to the Cyprus problem, in Greek eyes, is to continue the arms ban and perhaps even impose an economic embargo. Not true, say the Turks. They are stubbornly intractably adamant that they will not be "pressured" into a Cyprus settlement.

The United States even holds the key, some believe, to the Aegean crisis. Following the Turkish invasion of Cyprus, the Greeks heavily fortified its Aegean islands, some of which lie only a few miles from the Turkish mainland. Meanwhile, the Turks organized a 60,000-man "Aegean army," armed with helicopters and well over 100 landing craft, and stationed it on the coast opposite the Greek islands. The Turks have also claimed rights to a share of the minerals that lie beneath the Aegean and have attempted to assert control over half of the Aegean airspace.

This is the one issue, the Greeks swear, over which they would go to war. Although it is largely a local dispute, the United States, once again, is viewed as the ultimate problem solver.

Eventually, there arises the nagging suspicion that flagellation of the United States has become a handy political tool, a bit of demagoguery that inspires domestic support. Washington makes a convenient whipping boy.

In Athens, to cite just one piece of evidence, the Greek military establishment has been agitating for a return to NATO, from which they withdrew their forces in 1974. But, according to one secret U.S. intelligence report from Athens, "the Greek leadership ... believes that public opinion and the internal political situation will not permit a re-entry under existing circumstances."

Turkey has its share of demagogues who eagerly exorcise the United States.

CHARLEY REESE SAYS: Freedom of Information Act should be amended

By CHARLEY REESE
 Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — This may strike some of my colleagues as strange, but I hope the Congress has the good sense to amend the Freedom of Information Act to exclude the FBI, the CIA, most of the Defense Department, and other federal agencies involved in law enforcement to supply information.

The Act, which forces government agencies to supply information with some minor exceptions is a good one, but it is being abused by assorted left-wing outfits to harass and weaken our intelligence agencies.

I take a backseat to no one in being suspicious of government and in opposing government's taking on extra powers, but I have no objection to government exercising its legitimate powers and collecting intelligence information, both domestic and foreign, as certainly a legitimate power.

The lefties made a big deal about government agencies "spying" on citizens. A big deal was made about the fact that the CIA had files on a number of American citizens. Well, so what?

If you're an honest citizen going about your business, what difference does it make. Your name and address is already on the public record as is most of the property you own. Your financial history is in the local credit bureau files. As for friends, I'm quite proud of mine and have no desire to keep our friendships a secret. I never say anything on the telephone or in a personal letter I wouldn't say on the courthouse steps so if anyone wishes to tap my phone or open my mail, they are welcome to do it.

On the other hand, if you're plotting to overthrow the government or aiding those who are, then naturally you don't want the government snooping around. Well, tough beans. If you're dumb enough to conduct criminal activities over the telephone or in writing, then you probably ought to be in jail for your own safety.

I've always thought it a bit hypocritical when some members of the press orate feverishly on the subject of privacy. We in this business invade more privacy in one day than the FBI will in a hundred years.

What's the difference between an intelligence agency photographing people at a political demonstration and a news photographer taking their pictures? What's the difference between an intelligence agency making notes on somebody's sex life and Barbara Walters asking Fidel Castro about his?

Certainly no honest newspaperman can complain about a law enforcement agency using informants because the very essence of our business is developing informants. The fact that we call them sources instead of snitches and generally don't pay them doesn't change the fact that we are doing exactly the same thing for the same basic reason.

A great many so-called dossiers consist of a manila envelope with newspaper clippings in them. Every newspaper in the country has a whole library of such dossiers on hundreds of individuals in their circulation areas.

Intelligence gathering sounds complicated but it's actually simple. It's nothing more than finding out everything you can about a person — where he lives, who his friends are, where he goes to eat or what he does for recreation.

Government agencies don't go to this trouble indiscriminately. They are interested in people who for one reason or another they suspect have either broken the law or are intending to. Let's face it: there are a lot of no-good people running loose. Crazy people take pot shots at presidents. Drug dealers, hit men, communist agents, terrorists and assorted other dangerous types.

Keeping tabs on these people is a critical function of the various agencies and anything which inhibits or destroys their ability to do this — including the Freedom of Information Act — is not in the public interest.

We need to regain our perspective. The honest American is in far greater danger of harm from those idiots in Congress than from the FBI or the CIA. The late J. Edgar Hoover, unlike Sen. George McGovern, at least knew which country he was working for.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Briscoe's political impact on Texas to be felt for years to come

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Gov. Dolph Briscoe may be out of Austin and out of office come January, but his stamp on state government will remain for years to come.

Through his length of service, and circumstances, Briscoe came closer than perhaps any other governor in setting up an administration where most of the top officials in the state were linked to him through legally non-binding, often informal, but important ties.

Attorney general candidate Mark White served Briscoe as secretary of state, and Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown was a gubernatorial aide before being appointed to that job when John White went to Washington.

Treasurer Warren G. Harding was picked by the governor for his post, which he's now won by election.

Comptroller Bob Bullock's ties to Briscoe follow the principle of diplomacy that "the enemy of my enemy is my friend," with the enemy in this case being John Hill.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong had some run-ins with Briscoe over Armstrong's desire to purchase a Big Bend area ranch for the state—and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby had some differences with Briscoe as well.

But neither of those had exhibited any great desire to go to the mat with Briscoe, or to come out as prominent public supporters for Hill.

What-might-have-been doesn't count for a lot now, however, and those officials who owe, at least in part, their positions to Briscoe undoubtedly will learn to work with Hill, or Republican Bill Clements, should that latter possibility become reality.

Briscoe's main influence, however, will be through his appointments to various boards, commissions and councils—and he has made thousands of such appointments.

More significantly, he has quite a few yet to make—and there are some major ones.

Among them, and at the top of the list, as far as many folks are concerned, are three University of Texas regents.

James Bauerle of San Antonio and Ed Clark and Allan Shivers of Austin, have terms expiring Jan. 8, 1979.

Briscoe will have the opportunity to appoint three regents who will serve for six years—and he assured reporters at the first press conference he held following his primary loss that he'll use that opportunity.

Those appointees conceivably could be serving long enough for Briscoe to make a political come-back.

Confirmation of those appointees is required from the Senate—but it's unlikely that they would be rejected.

Such last-minute appointments have a long tradition behind them in Texas, and nationally (at least as far back as the "midnight judges" named by President John Adams in 1801 to prevent Thomas Jefferson naming them when he took office).

Just the list of university regents which Briscoe will have the chance to name is fairly lengthy, including Texas Eastern University (where Jeff Austin Jr., Jacksonville; Quentin Abernathy, Gladewater, and Harold McKenzie, Tyler, are serving on already expired terms); Texas State University System (Sam Tanner, Beaumont; Phillip Gary Warner, Houston, and Emil Rassman, Midland, have terms ending Jan. 10); Texas Woman's University (Jack Freeman, Fort Worth; Frank Altick, Dallas, and Mrs. Ben Carpenter, Irving, Jan. 10), and Midwestern University (Martin Frank Wood and G.P. Disoway, Dallas, and R.E. Chambers, Wichita Falls, on expired terms).

Then there are the ones which some other folks would put at the top of the list: three Texas A&M University regents (Cyde Wells, Granbury; Mrs. Wilmer Smith, Wilson, and Richard A. Goodson, Dallas, have terms expiring Jan. 8).

Other appointments include two for the Water Development Board, and various others on the Coastal and Marine Council, Lower River Authority, State Highway Commission, Texas Industrial Commission and Texas Judicial Council, according to a list compiled by the Senate Subcommittee on Nominations.

Those appointments represent a goodly share of a governor's power—and will be part of the legacy of Dolph Briscoe to his successor, and to the people of Texas.

ART BUCHWALD

The poor people's poor image

WASHINGTON—Unless I'm mistaken, the big political issue in this fall's election is what is happening to the "middle class" in America. The standard cliché in this country is that the rich and the poor are getting everything, and the middle class is being left out in the cold.

It may be true about the rich, but there is some doubt that the poor class is as well off as the politicians might have you believe.

Since it's too early for the candidates to talk to the poor people (they usually wait until the week before the election to take a walk through a ghetto), I decided to find out if the poor people were as lucky as the middle class thinks they are.

My source was Target, who fits all the qualifications of being poor. He's unemployed, lives in a "slum" and needs food stamps to keep his family from starving.

"Target," I said, "there's a lot of hostility from members of the middle class because they think you poor people have it made."

"Well, as I see it, the middle-class people are mad at us because they feel that their taxes are supporting the poor. They're not half as mad at the rich people, because they all hope to be rich someday themselves, and they dream of having everything the rich are entitled to. Now, despite the fact that they think we poor are having a ball, I haven't met one person from the middle class who wants to change places with me, though God knows I've made the offer a thousand times."

"That's true. The middle class never thinks it's supporting the rich," I said. "In their hearts, middle-class people think the only ones getting their tax money are the poor."

"Right. But the truth is that a large proportion of the money set aside by the government for the poor is actually going to the middle class. Thousands and thousands of bureaucrats are making very nice middle-class salaries administering the poverty programs. I would guess that the poor people get about ten cents on the dollar, and the rest goes to keep us poor people honest."

"It's true that people get angry when they read a story about the poor people cheating the government," I said.

"Of course, they do. But nobody gets uptight when doctors, military contractors, and large corporations rip off the government. They figure that's a part of the game. The difference between poor people and the big guys is that they can plead 'no contest' and get fined, while we're urged to plead 'guilty' and take the jail sentence."

Target went on, "The trouble with the middle class is when you mention poor, they think of blacks, Hispanics and American Indians. They forget that there are millions of poor people eking out a bare existence on Social Security. They're white, elderly and were once part of the middle class until they were wiped out by inflation. Most of them are parents of your present middle class, but when they get mad at the poor they never include their own mothers and fathers in their grouching."

"Is there any way to improve the image of the poor in this country?" I asked Target.

"I believe there is. Once middle-class people realize that we're supporting them more than they're supporting us, they might become more sympathetic to our plight. If I have any legitimate criticism of the poor class, it's that in spite of our numbers we've never gotten our story over to the people. The rich do that so much better."

"Good luck, kid-!"

WASHINGTON LETTER

Russian salami maker has secret

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—During Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's trip to Moscow last month, several of the accompanying American reporters had a Passover Seder dinner with Jewish dissidents.

One of the Russian Jews, explaining that he had been denied permission to leave the Soviet Union on "security grounds," was asked what his occupation is.

"Salami maker," he replied. "Do you have any state secrets?" an American reporter asked incredulously.

Rolling his eyes, the Russian replied, "Yes, as a matter of fact, I do have one secret." Surprised, the reporter asked what it was. The deadpan reply: "How to make salami without meat."

The running sage of the Rev. Lester Kinsolving's booming-voiced questioning of patience-worn administration press spokesmen produced a spirited but not terribly effective counter-attack in the State Department press room recently.

Crying, "You have plucked me enough," spokesman Hodding Carter playfully flung a rubber chicken at his tormentor. It missed.

"This is the second time that I have been assaulted," exclaimed Kinsolving, and claimed victim's rights to the weapon. Carter refused, however, on grounds that he needs his chicken to practice improving his aim.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin, to demonstrate austerity, traveled around the United States in an Israeli Air Force 707 temporarily converted from military supply missions. One of three in the Israeli fleet, it had been used for medical evacuation in the Entebbe raid and for emergency resupply during the Yom Kippur War.

Food aboard the plane, prepared by kosher kitchens in Brooklyn and Los Angeles, included gefilte fish (a Jewish fish delicacy) and modern potato latkes (pancakes). When Israeli reporters complained that no wine or whiskey was served, the stewards pointed out that the press in Israel would attack "lavish living" if the spartan aircraft had been a flying bar.

Secretary of State Vance, a model of modesty and caution in his public remarks, was left beet red following an exchange before the League of Women Voters in Cincinnati. In the question period after his dry-as-a-bone speech on foreign aid, he became enmeshed in this colloquy:

"What is your response to a television report last week that millions of foreign aid dollars were wasted by sending to many of those countries, against their specific request to decrease the supply, more contraceptives than they can possibly distribute and use for the next few years?" (Laughter)

Vance: "Let me say, first, I am not familiar with that report, but it could well be. (Laughter)."

"I am not trying to say in any way that what we do is perfect, that aid programs are without fault. Obviously, we all make mistakes (Laughter). I think we are getting on top of some of these problems." (Laughter). With the audience convulsed, Vance surrendered, saying, "I better go to the next question." (Applause).

POSITIVE THINKING

Think, work yourself into success

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Some people think themselves into failure. Others think themselves into success.

Too many people have a tendency to say negatively, "I can't do it, so why try." In so doing they are actually expecting to fail. Charles Dickens once titled a book "Great Expectations," which of course is the frame of mind which leads to success; provided, of course, you expect a success.

Things go better when you expect the best. The reason is that such expectation tends to free you from self-doubt. And self-doubt is probably the greatest contributor to human failure. When you get free from self-doubt, the mind is able to put all its power behind the will to succeed. No resistance can stand in the way of the man who focuses his entire self on a goal and keeps the pressure going.

When every physical and mental resource is focused, one's powers to solve a problem multiply tremendously. There is even a word for this. It is called "synergism."

That's really a complicated word and it's becoming popular with modern scientists. All it means, really, is that the actions of two or more substances, which could not achieve a desired result individually, can, when they are used together, become capable of effects that each one alone could not produce.

But it is not all that new. Long before the word was applied to modern science, it was used in theology to express the fact that with Divine help plus your own, you could overcome enormous difficulties which otherwise might overwhelm the average human being. It means simply that people are often defeated, not because they lack ability, but because they try to "go it alone." If they add negative expectation, they're out. Instead add positive expectations and success will be yours.

Everyone wants to succeed. They start out giving full energies to a project. But they often refuse to use the aids that are open to them, including the help of other people and spiritual help as well. Their need is to be synergized, to get a team going for them.

A major key to success in life, to attaining what you deeply desire, is the ability to get completely released from self-doubt and then to throw your entire self in the struggle to reach your goal.

To win in this life you simply have to give your all, every bit of yourself. Hold back nothing. Life cannot deny itself to the person who gives life everything. And as you use your energies, remember the good Lord is always there to help you, to support you at all times.

A famous athletic coach once said that most people, some athletes as well as non-athletes, are "holdouts." They are always holding back, keeping something in reserve. They do not invest themselves 100 percent in competition. Because of that quasi self-giving they never achieve the highest degree of their capacity. Don't be a "holdout." Be an "all-out." Do this and life will not hold on to you. You can count on that for sure.

A famous trapeze artist was once instructing his students on how to perform on the high trapeze bar. Finally, having given full explanations and instructions, he told them to perform; to see what they could do.

One student, staring up at the insecure perch upon which he was being asked to show his skill, was suddenly filled with fear. He froze completely. A terrifying vision of himself falling to the ground struck his mind. Not a muscle could he move so deep was his fright. "I can't do it," he gasped.

The instructor put his arm around the boy's shoulder and said, "Son, you can do it. And here's how. Throw your heart over the bar and your body will follow."

Write that sentence indelibly on your mind. It is packed with power. "Throw your heart over the bar and your body will follow."

Collect all your resources and expect to solve your problem. Throw your whole mind at it, expecting results and you'll get them. Remember that word, "synergism." It means with the use of all your abilities, plus Divine help, you can think and work yourself into success.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

So long, Paul

To The Editor: Tuesday's (May 16) article by Paul Domowitch was not at all a surprise to me, yet I was saddened, nonetheless. Paul Domowitch is the best newspaper sports reporter I have ever read.

Granted, being only a sophomore at a local high school I am not an authority. However, when a man like Paul Domowitch comes along he should be thanked and not hated.

Paul Domowitch is gone, and now hopefully it is in his absence that he will be appreciated. The abuse he has received by Midlanders has been totally uncalled for, and no one could blame him for calling it quits long ago.

Yet Mr. Domowitch put up with his critics for a long time. The reason he received all this criticism was summed up best by a friend of mine; he said, "Domowitch tells it like it is." Nothing could be more true, and if this city cannot take the truth when it is right before them, this city has a lot to learn.

Midlanders, amidst all their money and pride, must learn that sophistication does not make one perfect. Paul Domowitch was only guilty of pointing out this fault, but many of our citizens could not even take the truth.

It is a shame to see a man like Domowitch go. But, as one of my high school coaches said, "He's too good to stay in a town like Midland for very long." That coach was right, Midlanders could not appreciate someone who told the truth for once. I only hope that Fort Worth will appreciate him and his enormous talents more than Midland did.

Although it was not my pleasure to meet him personally, I talked to him on occasion, informally, and learned to appreciate him. So, Paul Domowitch, maybe through your struggles here you have helped us to realize our problems in Midland. Good luck, Paul, and so long.

Gerard Alcalá 2914 Roosevelt St.

Paul appreciated

To The Editor: The Midland High School tennis team would like to thank Paul Domowitch for the coverage that he has provided for the tennis team, as well as the other sports at Midland High School.

During his short stay at The Reporter-Telegram, the townspeople have been provided with articulate, accurate, and sometimes humorous anecdotes about local sports events. His stories almost always reveal unknown, interesting facts about local athletes. The fact that he truly seemed to care about the athletes he was covering in his news stories will make us miss and appreciate him even more.

The MHS tennis team wishes Paul the best of luck at the Fort Worth Star Telegram, and hopefully a job with the New York Times (at $40,000 a year) sometime in the future.

A true value

To The Editor: I'm tired of seeing and hearing the United States Postal Service picked on! They are doing an excellent job. The people are courteous and friendly, and I'm constantly amazed at the speed of service. It's true, there is an occasional foul-up which receives big publicity, but this is really insignificant considered in the light of the billions of pieces of small, fragile paper handled.

Such a service should be as cost-efficient as possible but it is unrealistic to expect it to be profitable or even operate on a break-even basis.

I only wish other federal agencies gave us the same value and service per tax dollar spent! These days, most of them appear to be using our own money to make it more difficult for us in our business and personal lives.

Douglas E. Masten P.O. Box 1941 Midland

An era ending

To The Editor: Thank you for allowing us to use this column to express our thanks. On May 26th when the MHS Band strikes up Pomp and Circumstance and the purple-clad graduates file out clutching their long-sought-after diplomas, a very important era in our lives will come to a close.

On April 1, 1957, the Jack Darden family, moved to Midland, and enrolled our oldest child in school. Since that day there has been a Darden in the Midland schools.

On May 26th the last two of our six children will graduate. We would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to each of you who has helped to mould and influence their lives.

Thank you for praising them when they had earned praise, for encouraging them when their spirits were low, for demanding more when they lacked motivation, for disciplining them if they deserved it, but most of all, thank you for respecting them and giving of yourselves. May God bless each of you.

Mary Jo and Jack Darden Parents of Jack, Amy, Roy Mike, Paul and Patrick 1701 Cimmaron Drive

Too complete?

To The Editor: On May 5, 1978, you reported a news item regarding a traffic accident on U.S. Highway 80. The person involved in the mishap was a Mr. Linon Burney. The accident in itself was an unusual one, since Mr. Burney was not found until after a three-hour search by policemen near Terminal.

I am at a loss as to why you found it necessary to report Mr. Burney's occupation. I cannot recall any recent news items listing accident victims' occupations. As far as I can tell, Mr. Burney was "Mr. John Q. Public!" Why did you feel it was appropriate to announce that he was a police officer? He was off-duty at the time and in his personal vehicle. I feel that our public protectors receive enough abuse and notoriety without trying to make something out of nothing. Had Mr. Burney been on duty and/or in a police car, then it would have been important to the story. But, this was not!

Senate disclosure bares secrets of getting rich

By JAY PERKINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The easiest way to become a rich senator is to have rich parents, newly released financial documents indicate.

If that's out of the question, you might try finding a wealthy wife. The Senate financial disclosure documents released Friday show that 15 senators have assets of at least $1 million. A good number of the richest — such as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; H. John Heinz III, R-Pa.; and John C. Danforth, R-Mo. — are the recipients of family fortunes.

In addition, 23 senators indicated their assets could exceed $1 million. Another 19 said their assets could range over $500,000.

The documents supported what many have said for years — that the Senate primarily is a rich men's club.

It is impossible to determine who is really the richest senator. The forms require only that members tell in which broad category — one category, for example, goes from $1 million to $2 million — each financial holding falls.

Several members — Kennedy, for one — also have some of their holdings in blind trusts and, since they do not know the value of those holdings, cannot list them. And still others report that they have no knowledge of their wife's holdings.

Judging from the data disclosed Friday, Danforth and Heinz probably are the richest. Danforth, whose family has large holdings in Ralston Purina, with products ranging from breakfast cereal to dog food, listed his assets at between $7.33 million and $17.75 million. He listed no liabilities.

Heinz, whose family has made a fortune in such items as ketchup, soups and pickles, listed assets ranging from $10.25 million and $17.85 million. His liabilities totaled between $1.13 million and $2.36 million.

Kennedy listed assets ranging from $2.24 million to $5.26 million with liabilities of $1.8 million to $3.61 million.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who inherited a political legacy as well as a family fortune from daddy Huey, listed assets of exactly $3,333,791 and liabilities of $40,463. Of his assets, $1.1 million came from royalties from the former Win or Lose oil company founded by the Kingfish.

On the other hand, Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, the former college president, listed total assets of $1.4 million to $3.2 million.

Possibly the poorest man in the Senate, if the disclosure forms are actually revealing, is Sen. John Tower, the dapper dresser from Texas. Tower said his only assets were his Senate pension; he has no property and no savings. And he added that he had liabilities between $5,000 and $30,000.

Others on the low end of the Senate's financial totem pole were Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., with assets of $50,000 to $105,000 and liabilities of $70,000 to $170,000; Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., with assets of $55,000 to $115,000 and liabilities of $70,000 to $100,000; and Sen. William Hathaway, D-Maine, who listed assets of $40,000 to $130,000 and liabilities of $20,000 to $65,000.

CLUES IN THE BASEMENT

If you are moving to an area of the country where houses have basements, remember the following:

When inspecting an older home for sale, you don't have to be an expert to discover symptoms of construction problems if you know what to look for. The basement is a good place to uncover such clues.

Water seepage can be costly. Look for signs of moisture. Search for dampness in corners and water stains along walls or cabinets.

Water pipes in houses built before WWII are likely to be made of iron or steel which tend to corrode over long years of use. Copper piping is usually found in newer houses. If you see a length of copper between segments of iron or steel, there have been plumbing problems.

Before you go upstairs, check the water heater's age, condition and capacity. Nowadays, a water heater of less than 40 gallons capacity is usually too small for a family of four or more. Check for rust or small leaks at the bottom of the tank.

Costanza no longer 'top banana'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Midge Costanza is moving from her prestigious office just down the hall from President Carter to new quarters and reduced responsibilities.

Ms. Costanza, the administration's controversial liaison with minorities and women, said Friday she will head a new inter-departmental task force on women.

"When the president called me into his office, he said I was being spread too thin," said Ms. Costanza, whose formal title is assistant to the president for public liaison. She quoted Carter as saying he had to respond to demands for more emphasis on women's issues.

She said her staff of nine would move with her out of the White House, but that she would maintain a small office and a secretary in the White House. She said she "negotiated" with Carter and his chief aide, Hamilton Jordan, on where she would be located.

"I was more concerned with the symbolic placement of the issues I represent," she said.

She said she hoped to move to an as yet undetermined federal agency by June 1.

Until recently, her job included meeting with a variety of groups, including blacks, homosexuals, Hispanics and others, as well as women.

She said Carter also asked her to continue handling domestic human rights issues and to continue her heavy speaking schedule as an administration spokeswoman.

The White House had announced earlier that Anne Wexler would become an assistant to the president and take over some of Ms. Costanza's duties.

Ms. Wexler, who served as deputy undersecretary of commerce before joining the White House staff three weeks ago, will be a liaison with interest groups in the formation of domestic policy.

When Ms. Wexler's appointment was announced April 19, White House press secretary Jody Powell denied that her appointment implied any criticism of Ms. Costanza, or that Ms. Costanza was being demoted.

"Frankly," Powell said then, "we have not been satisfied with the way the White House as a whole has been performing that function" of liaison with interest groups.

RINGING THE BELL All-black town sets celebration

With BOB TIEUEL

Black Opportunity Under the American system all production is created by the private sector of the economy. Whether it be a one-man shoe shine stand or the far-flung operations of a General Motors, it is private enterprise that furnishes the wherewithal with which the total system functions. The services of government, of education, of health and other nonproductive sectors of the national being are all dependent for their support on the wealth produced by the private sector.

And as Dr. Holland states voting rights, civil rights, being able to read a book in any library, eat in any restaurant, sit where one pleases on a bus, are essential to the Negro finding his rightful place in the mainstream of American society. But the impact of inadequate jobs is far more serious for Blacks not only in terms of dollars but in terms of poor health, broken homes, high rates of crime, squalid housing and personal degradation and misery.

There are opposing points of view as to why the Negro has been confined to the bottom rung of the economic ladder. A great number of black leaders blame it mainly on discrimination because he is black. Many informed whites, while not denying discrimination, claim that the prime cause for the black man's economic plight, especially among youth, is that so few of them are qualified for any but the most menial jobs.

A number of businessmen have said to me that they would like to hire a black secretary or clerk or bookkeeper, but "I can't find one that can do the job." There can be no doubt that the attitude of industrial management has changed in recent years so that equal opportunity in many areas of employment is now a reality.

The most important need for Blacks today, states Dr. J. H. Holland, who served as president of Hampton Institute for a number of years, is more and better education and training. Blacks are never going to solve their greatest problem by demanding equal job opportunity if they are not, in fact, equal to whites in their ability to perform the job. In America today there is a direct relation between income and education for both Black and Whites. Young Blacks especially need to be inspired and encouraged by older Americans to "Train" for the future.

Chimes: The Church of God in Christ, one of the fastest growing black denominations in the U.S.A. today, reported a total of $101,420.47 for mission in 1977 and is now engaged in a drive to raise several million dollars to build a church headquarters in Memphis, Tenn. Black churches and other sepia organizations spend millions of dollars each year in established convention centers, hotels, motels etc., but the Church of God in Christ is the first to launch a plan to channel some of these dollars into its own coffers. Congrats, brethren!

The 28th Annual Women's International Convention will be held in Houston, May 30-June 4. It will be "at the beautiful Hyatt Regency." It is one of Houston's luxury places. J. O. Patterson is the presiding bishop of the denomination.

The congressional Black Caucus will help the government monitor special programs for the poor to preserve them against conservative opposition now building in the United States, our bellingr sources report.

Some 20,000 souls (mostly black) with a good representation of Anglos, Indians and other ethnic groups, will gather this coming weekend in Boley, Okla. (May 27-May 28) to observe the 74th birthday of the largest all-black town in the U.S.A. Black cowboys and girls from over the nation will perform in the 17th annual rodeo and parade. The Rev. Lonnie Johnson, presiding elder of the A.M.E. Church of the Boley district, informs us that a memorial service honoring the town's founders and early settlers will be held Saturday, May 27, just preceding the parade. Gov. Boren of Oklahoma and many of the state's dignitaries will be on hand.

Until later, Peace.

Journalism graduate creates own job

By ERIC NEWHOUSE

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — No one would hire black journalism school graduate Charles E. Jenkins Jr., so he started a newspaper of his own.

"I felt the media round town were missing stories that should be covered," Jenkins, editor of "Radiance," said in a telephone interview. "And I couldn't find any job in this area in journalism."

"So I decided to start a newspaper and circulate it around our community. I'm trying to provide a magazine format in a tabloid newspaper."

A 1976 graduate of East Tennessee State University School of Journalism, Jenkins started the monthly eight-page tabloid last October with a personal loan of $1,000.

Issue No. 5, which recently rolled off the press, includes a ninth-grader's essay on understanding the best seller, "Roots," a report of Sen.

Edward Brooke's speech in Chattanooga to the National Business League, and an "Around the Town" gossip column.

"I don't have any trouble getting people to write for me," Jenkins said. "My most serious problem is getting people to help me sell the ads."

"Most people say they'll help out, but they tend to fade away into the background," Jenkins, who has no previous business experience, estimated he loses $150 to $200 each month he publishes the paper. He makes up the difference by working full time as a social director in a recreation center.

"It's satisfying, but it's also a little frustrating," he said. "I'd love to do it full time, but I still need to hold down another job to pay the bills."

Jenkins said "Radiance" is still hampered because it is so little known, but some black officials believe that is changing.

"Some social clubs have begun to take note of it, several organizations are doing what they can to promote it, and some ministers have spoken of it from the pulpit," said Johnny V. Holloway, moderator of People United to Save Humanity (PUSH).

He said PUSH has done everything it can to help Jenkins distribute the paper and write articles for it.

George Key, chapter president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, also said the NAACP has distributed the paper through its offices, promoted it on its radio programs and encouraged its membership to work actively with it.

"All of us are enthusiastic about it," Holloway said. "We need a newspaper which speaks to the interests of our people."

'A Funny Thing' provides wild, wacky slapstick at its very best

ODESSA — You know comedies that move along a mile-a-minute? Well, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" isn't one of them. No, indeed — it goes about TWO miles a minute! This fast-paced farce, the current attraction at Odessa's Permian Playhouse, is wild and wacky slapstick at its hilarious best, and definitely one of the most entertaining theatrical evenings I've experienced in a long while. It's not deep, it's not profound or enlightening — it's just fun.

"A Funny Thing" presents a lot of hijinks in low places in ancient Rome, and offers them with freshness and wit. The show is moderately ribald on occasion, but it is not offensive.

This comedy-with-music revolves around Pseudolus, a slave who beautiful courtesans in the house of Lycus. The lascivious slaves-for-sale include Tintinabula (Sandra Harrington), Panacea (Doris Russell), Vibrata (Ginnye Nance), the Geminae (Sabrina Green and Jan Berry), and Gymnasia (Cathleen McNulty). Rounding out the cast are Dave Skinner, Oza Whitten and Mark Phillips as Proteans who play a variety of parts, from soldiers to eunuchs.

All these performers work beautifully and well together. It is a credit to PPH interim director Jane Crum that she has succeeded in obtaining not only skilled but also nicely-stylized characterizations from all her cast members — and in a show of this kind, that's important.

Billy Cook, as Hysterium, is noteworthy for his comedic work, and Al Beatty is fine as the slightly off-beat Senex. Dana Tyler is quite good as his wife Domina. The young lovers Hero and Phillia are an attractive and well-matched pair, and they are capable actors as well. The courtesans provide some interesting moments in the show and what's more, they're highly decorative! Charley Tyler is appropriately pompous and self-important as Miles Gloriosus, and Kerry Pell is amusing as the added old Erronius. Gary Lipscomb plays the part of the flesh-peddler Lycus very well, and Skinner, Whitten and Phillips as the Proteans are a busy trio of performers.

The Stephen Sondheim music and lyrics for "A Funny Thing" are pleasant but not especially memorable — and none of the songs ever made the best-seller charts. Among the songs I enjoyed most are "Comedy Tonight," the opening number sung by Pseudolus and the entire cast; "Free," sung by Pseudolus and Hero; "Lovely," sung by Phillia and Hero; "I'm Calm," sung by Hysterium; "Impossible," sung by Senex and Hero, and the very funny "Everybody Ought to Have a Maid," done by Pseudolus, Senex, Hysterium and Lycus.

Domina, Senex' wife, has a witty number titled "That Dirty Old Man," and Phillia sings "That'll Show Him" nicely. A ritualistic false-funeral scene with the courtesans, Miles Gloriosus, Pseudolus and the Proteans is very well done.

"A Funny Thing" will keep on happening at the Playhouse for two more weekends. Performances will be at 8 p.m.

Friday and Saturday this week, with a matinee at 2:30 next Sunday and final presentations on June 2 and 3 — but don't discount the distinct possibility of holdovers.

This show should pack 'em in.

Anniversary System #51

Enjoy A Lifetime Of Musical Pleasure With Carefully Selected Stereo Components By Yamaha, Sony, And Bolivar!

This system is good enough to continue to satisfy the most critical music lover. It's built around carefully selected high performance stereo components, perfectly balanced to each other. By whatever standards you choose — be they accuracy, clarity, flexibility, or volume, this system has what it takes to please you now, and tomorrow!

Yamaha CR-420 AM/FM Receiver

The new Yamaha CR-420 AM/FM Natural Sound receiver makes Yamaha performance, dependability, and craftsmanship available at a new low price. Power output 22 watts RMS per channel, 8 ohms, 20 Hz to 20 kHz, less than 0.05% distortion. The "feel" of the front panel controls reflects Yamaha's traditional attention to detail and human engineering.

Bolivar 18H Speakers

The Bolivar 18H is a 3-way system built around an eight-inch woofer, five inch mid-range, and a two-inch cone tweeter. Smooth transition from driver to driver, accomplished by a sophisticated crossover network, yields dividends of rich, uncolored sound. Efficient design accomplished by ported loading of the woofer. Tennessee Hickory finish.

Sony PST-2 Turntable

The Sony PST-2 is the least expensive quality direct drive turntable available. It offers the performance you'd expect from units costing up to a hundred dollars more, plus the convenience of automatic tonearm pick-up and shut-off. Direct drive design reduces moving parts to a minimum, for improved future reliability. Installed in the PST-2's tonearm is an Ortofon FF-15E Mk II — one of our favorite high performance models.

Whatever happened to "Strawberry Kapinsky"?

Strawberry (Fragaria)

Ben Leonard McFadden Kapinsky in 1923, he got his nickname by pushing a Strawberry up a 40' flagpole with his nose. The subsequent publicity and his genuine love for strawberries landed him parts in several movies, the most memorable being the lead opposite Doreen Delaney in the science fiction film, "The Strawberry that attacked Cleveland". He married a former Miss Alabama, Pennsylvania, who collaborated with him on the book "How to be Friends with a Strawberry".

We are pleased to bring you, Strawberry lovers, these great moments in the history of the Strawberry. We are equally delighted to be able to bring you the Strawberry itself in a variety of wonderful ways to complement your other good cookin' favorites. years to be free and dreams up all manner of outlandish schemes and deceptions to achieve his goal. He is the typical servant prankster of literature and drama, an early-day Scapino, who adroitly outwits his masters as well as his peers at every turn.

PPH's Pseudolus is Jerry Hoover, and he is absolutely first-rate in his assignment. He is an excellent singer as well as comedian, and he brings both grace and style to the part.

Other pivotal cast members are Senex (Al Beatty) a patrician Roman who hopes to sow a few last wild oats; Domina (Dana Tyler), his domineering wife; their son, Hero (Chuck Moore) who is in love with Phillia (Mary Parker), a virgin who lives in the house of the notorious flesh peddler, Lycus (Gary Lipscomb).

Then there is Hysterium (Billy Cook), aptly-named slave of Senex and Domina; Miles Gloriosus (Charley Tyler), a vainglorious soldier who has contracted to purchase the beautiful young Phillia from Lycus, and Erronius (Kerry Pell), an ancient citizen of Rome who is constantly searching for his children stolen many years before by pirates.

And, not least, are the Joe Brooks' second film refreshing

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer "IF EVER I SEE YOU AGAIN" is the second film of Joe Brooks, who won the Oscar for his title song of "You Light Up My Life," and he follows the same innocently sentimental style of his debut as writer-director-composer. This time Brooks stars himself as a TV jingle writer who tries to rekindle the romance with his college flame. Brooks is an amateur actor, but his sincerity shines through, and you want his quest to succeed. He mercilessly plugs the title tune, which is reminiscent of "You Light Up My Life." He might succeed with another big hit. Fashion model Shelly Hack is properly gorgeous as the girl of his dreams, and columnist Jimmy Breslin is a surprisingly skillful actor. Rated PG.

TV portrays unfair stereotype

The Washington Post To the daughter who loves him, he is a "shiftless, no-count, horse-playing skunk." His mother-in-law settles for a "crawlin' scaly yellow rat." The character, Ray Ellis, in CBS' "Baby, I'm Back" ran out on his wife and two children and suddenly showed up after seven years intending to move back into his wife's bedroom. Would you want your son to be like Ray?

Perhaps you would prefer that he pattern himself after J.J., the frenetic exclamation point of "Good Times," now graduated to family head after both the father and mother out characters were put out to pasture.

No? Well, there is always Rerun, the larder teen-ager of "What's Happening." ABC's successful view of the happiness of the have-nots in this land of plenty. Or maybe you'd rather pal around with George Jefferson, the petite bigot who stomps around his snag-carpeted penthouse spewing venom like a cobra at everyone in sight.

For the 11 million blacks in this country, these characters are all there is to regularly relate to in TV's four black network shows — shows that for stereotypes and stock characters make some of the racist movies of the 1930s look like enlightened social commentary.

Black children, who unfortunately watch television even more than white children, are the special victims. (Blacks as a whole watch 10 percent more television than the general population, according to a 1976 Arbitron report). Many identify with this quartet of shallow, ad-libbing Superflys who crack jokes but never a book. And whites, meanwhile, have their most exaggerated misconceptions fed and reinforced by these negative male images — sad distortions of blacks and the black experience.

One would think from viewing George Jefferson, J.J., Reun and Ray Ellis that black men's dignity, wisdom, economic stability, even their marbles — all the ways our society measures worth — range from going, going to gone. And the plumpness of most of the women is a clear reminder of the movie mummies of old.

The absence of a serious black dramatic series during the more than three decades of television was pointed out frequently during the "Roots" fever that hit the country over a year ago when a whopping 130 million Americans watched at least part of the eight-segment series.

Election results untainted

ODESSA — No tampering with election ballots in the May 6 Democratic Party primary election in Ector County was uncovered in a court of inquiry. 70th District Court Judge C.V. Milburn ruled Friday.

Allegations of irregularities and possible missing ballots were made via affidavits signed by three Odessans, who, however, testified that they had no personal knowledge of wrongdoing during the election. It was those affidavits that led to the hearing, requested by District Attorney John Green and County Attorney Mike Atkins.

Testimony by an election judge indicated that 273 votes had been inadvertently set aside following a count at the polling place and not taken to the central counting center on election night. Another point of contention was a ride a campaign worker gave an election judge to Ector County Data Processing Center, where votes were counted.

New high heels quite hazardous

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: How do you feel about a person's wearing the new high heels—I mean the really high ones? I'd worn them about ten years ago when they were almost as big a fad, but now they seem even higher. Are they going to wreck my feet, do you think?—Sally E.

DEAR SALLY: It would be hard to find an orthopedist or podiatrist who would tell you these high heels are good for your feet. They can be quite hazardous—to laugh about.

Apart from the risk of outright injury, moreover, heels as high as these throw your whole balance out of whack. They put much too much weight on the forward part of the foot, crowding the toes together, causing corns and calluses. If you wear them a lot, the tendons and muscles in the back of your leg—the Achilles tendon, your calves, the hamstrings in the back of your thighs—will shorten. And you are liable to have trouble not just in your legs, knees and hips but also in your back and even in your neck.

If you watch any woman wearing the new four-inch heels, you will see that nine times out of ten she has what I call the swayback-and-slouch syndrome. You'll also notice it in those wonderful old John Held Jr. cartoons of flappers in the 1920s, when high heels were also very much in the picture.

Having had my medical say about this, here is some advice about wearing high heels—if and when you decide to:

Wear them as little as possible. Spend most of the day and evening down at safer levels. A one-inch heel is ideal, but a well-built two-inch heel is also infinitely preferable to the four- and five-inch stilts. If you want to high-heel it after the office, and are not planning to come home first to change, take your high heels along with you to your office in a small shopping bag. Put them on just before you leave in the evening.

If you have spent a good while in high heels, it makes good sense to shift to a somewhat shorter heel for a while before padding around your apartment barefoot.

When you buy high heels, try to pick a pair that has some support—as much as possible, in fact. The most important part of a shoe is the shank. It goes from the heel to the ball of the foot. It should not bend under pressure.

In the morning or evening—or any convenient time during the day—do an exercise to stretch your Achilles tendons and calves. Stand two or three feet away from a wall, and facing it, in your bare feet. Ease yourself toward the wall as if you were doing push-ups—until your forehead touches the wall. Keep your body straight and your feet flat on the floor. Hold five seconds. Repeat half a dozen times. If you don't feel a slight pull in your calves, move a few inches farther away from the wall.

To stretch your hamstrings, stand up and clasp your hands behind your back. Bow forward, keeping your trunk straight, and keep going down until you feel a pull in the back of your thighs. Hold a few seconds. Repeat half a dozen times. If you would like additional exercises you can find them in my new book, "Dr. Solomon's Proven Master Plan For Total Body Fitness and Maintenance" published by Putnam.

Firestone asked to show safety of steel radials safety record of its "Steel Belted Radial 500" tire, which a congressman says has been involved in an "apparent pattern of tire failures."

As the House oversight and investigations subcommittee opened hearings Friday on the safety of steel belted radials, Rep. John Moss said the tire "was a significant or contributing factor" in 15 deaths.

Thirty-one injuries have occurred in 16 accidents in which such tires blew out, the California Democrat added.

Several witnesses at the hearing said the tire was unsafe because of repeated instances in which one had blown out or come apart.

Meanwhile, Bernard W. Frazier, Firestone's public relations director, contended that the tire has "proved safe and reliable to millions and millions of motorists." The tires have been used in 350 billion miles of travel and complaints have been received at the rate of one for every 10 million miles traveled, he added.

Minnesota due army of worms

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A heavy infestation of forest tent caterpillars, commonly called "army worms," is expected in northern Minnesota in late May or early June.

The worms might be thick enough to cause an army worm slipperiness alert on the state's highways, officials say.

Rosalynn to speak in Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter will speak next Friday at a mental health seminar in Austin that is studying a report made to the president.

Mrs. Carter, honorary chairwoman of the President's Commission on Mental Health, will speak at 4 p.m. at the Robert Lee Sutherland Seminar on Mental Health at the Lyndon Baines Johnson Presidential Library.

Lady Bird Johnson will introduce Mrs. Carter. The seminar is sponsored by the Hogg Foundation for Mental Health based at The University of Texas.

Participants in the seminar are studying the commission's mental health report, which was presented to President Carter on April 27.

Mrs. Carter will fly to Austin on Friday and return to Washington the same day.

Purple zips White in Bulldogs skirmish

By BOB DILLON

Tailback Billy Applin ran with authority for the Purple squad Saturday night.

Applin rushed for 113 yards in 26 carries to guide his squad to a 14-0 victory over the Whites in the annual Bill Mims spring football game in Memorial Stadium.

Coach Dennis Hays was more than pleased with the execution on offense and wasn't really disappointed in the defensive play by both teams. "We did move the ball well at times and the younger players did a good job, especially the ones that have no high school experience at all," said Hays afterwards. Hays was pleased with the play of Michael Feldt and Jerry Zachery who only played freshman ball at Edison last year. "They both showed a lot of poise and after we lost center Steve Mills in the first half, freshman David Vinson did a fine job on the snaps," added Hays.

Midland High has young, but promising quarterbacks with all of them being underclassmen this coming fall. "There is a lot of potential there even though we are young at that position," added Hays.

Applin, a 172-pound junior, scored both of the Purple touchdowns with a run-yard dive in the first period and a 10-yard run in the third period. Applin knifed over from the one capping a 62-yard drive that ate up most of the clock in the opening period after holding the Whites on their first possession.

Applin had runs of 11 and 12 yards during the 19-play drive and a 13-yard pass from quarterback Tracy Gann to Bill Young, set up the TD. Gann tacked on the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead with 1:10 left in the first period.

The drive was hard-earned with Garland Burge, Paul Davis, John Beane and Bobby Lee making some key defensive plays for the White defense.

Gann handled the punting for both the Purple and White teams during the game which did not feature kick-offs or punt returns.

The Purples had one drive in the second period halted at the Whites' 44 when Mark Davis recovered a Zachery fumble, but the White unit was unable to move the ball after the recovery.

Quarterback Tommy Somers had a pass picked off by the Purples' Brad Hixon at the Purple 21 with Hixon returning the interception 16 yards to the 37.

The Purples took the ball from its own 35 to start the second half and marched 65 yards for its other score. Gann hit Pat Hickey with an 18-yard pass and Young with another 8-yardre to key the drive. Applin then ran it over from the 10, but the run failed for the two-point conversion when Rick Ankerholz stopped Zachery short of the goal.

Todd Liberty made a big play for the Purple in the next possession by the Whites in the third period as did Lance Langford, a sophomore.

Blake Kelly, Kris Sliger and Bobby Floyd, stood out for the White defense in the third period with Sliger recovering a fumble at the Purple 45 after a punt by Gann.

The closest that the White team came to scoring in the game came in the final period when they drove to the Purple eight-yard line where Somers was swarmed under by a host of Purple shirts.

Somers hit Craig Heineman down the middle with a pass that Heineman made a fine grab of at the Purple 23. Somers also had a run of 20 yards during the drive.

In the junior varsity game, the Whites posted a 14-6 victory over the Purple unit with quarterback Mickey Somers scoring from the two in the first period. He passed to Bruce Fisher for the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead.

Quarterback Steve Miller of the Purple team, went seven yards for a TD and suffered a broken collarbone on the play in the end zone. The pass by Mike Collins failed on the two-point conversion try.

Affirmed waits way to victory

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Cauthen and Affirmed played the waiting game Saturday, and it paid off in a Preakness victory that put the chestnut colt on the threshold of the Triple Crown. "I was waiting for Alydar the whole race," said Cauthen. "He (Jorge Velasquez) set his horse down at the head of the lane. I set mine down, too, and we beat him."

Affirmed beat his arch rival by a neck to add a triumph in the Preakness to his victory in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago. "I've called two," said trainer Laz Barrera, who was confident before both the Derby and Preakness that Affirmed would win. "Now there is one to go."

That one is the 1 1/2-mile Belmont Stakes, the final race of the Triple Crown, June 10 at Belmont Park.

"I was gonna let Believe It set the pace, but nobody was doing anything," said Cauthen. "Track Reward was in front (after the first quarter-mile) and he was coming out so I decided to go ahead and set him on the fence."

Affirmed took the lead and kept it, fighting off Alydar in a stretch duel that had the Pimlico record crowd of 81,261 cheering wildly.

"I saw him (Alydar) at the three-eighths pole," said Cauthen. "He was outside a horse or two."

Alydar was sixth after the first half-mile, 5 1/2 lengths back of Affirmed. He had been 17 lengths off the lead at one point in the 1 1/2-mile Kentucky Derby.

Before the race, Alydar's trainer John Velth said: "We can't be that far back this time. We have to be very close turning for home." Alydar was very close turning for home and the race was on.

Down the stretch they came, with both jockeys urging their mounts on and Affirmed was equal to the challenge.

Affirmed ran the final three-sixteenths of a mile in a sizzling 181-5 seconds, tying the fastest final three-sixteenths in the 103-year history of the race. He crossed the finish in 1:54.2-5 to tie 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat and last year's Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew for the second fastest Preakness ever.

Canonero II set the record of 1:54 in 1971. "I was where I wanted to be," said a disappointed Velasquez. "I was right with him at the head of the stretch, but he wouldn't be passed. My horse ran a fine race, we tried, but

The victory got Cauthen off the hook with trainer Laz Barrera who was upset with the 18-year-old jockey because he hadn't contacted the trainer until just before the race. Cauthen said he arrived in Baltimore from New York Saturday morning.

Barrera talked to Cauthen in the saddling area and told him: "If the pace is slow, go with the horse. Don't fight it."

Cauthen followed instructions to a T, and Affirmed responded brilliantly to become a millionaire. The winner's share of $136,200 from a purse of $188,700 pushed Affirmed's career earnings to $1,023,227.

Hall car gets 2nd row spot

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

In the eyes of Midlanders, there is one down and one to go as far as the Indianapolis 500 qualifying is concerned.

Saturday, Jim Hall's Chaparral-Lola team qualified for next Sunday's 500-mile race as driver Al Unser produced a qualifying run of 196.474 miles per hour to earn the berth for the starting grid in the middle of the second row.

The time was the fifth best during Saturday's first day of qualification for the Indy 500. So, Midland has one entry in the race and another still looking for a berth.

Bobby Hillin's Longhorn Racing Team made one attempt at qualifying Saturday, but waved off on a run that was around 185 mph by driver Bubby Jones.

The Longhorn team will try again today in the final effort to earn a spot in the final 13 berths available. Twenty cars qualified Saturday, and the Indy field will carry 33 cars.

The front row of Tom Sneva (202.156), Danny Ongais (200.078) and rookie Rick Mears (200.078) is the fastest front row in Indy history. Unser will be flanked by some high powered names in the second row with Johnny Rutherford on the inside and Gordon Joncock on the outside. Rutherford posted a 197.98 while Joncock managed a 195.883.

"It is not as good as we would have liked, but we're in the race with a good starting spot," Unser said after qualifying Saturday with the Lola-Cosworth.

Hall was unavailable for comment late Saturday, but he has to be pleased since a lot of work had to be done on the car that was supposed to be his backup at Indy. Hall lost his top car April 15 in an Unser crash at the Coors 200 at the Texas World Speedway in College Station.

The Longhorn team is experiencing some bad handling problems, but they hope to have things worked out by today.

"Our Wildcat is just not handling the way Bobby would like. We are having trouble in the turns. I think we've changed everything in the car but the paint." Hillin said Saturday night. "There are 13 spots left and I think five of them are a cinch for the likes of A. J. Foyt, Poncho Carter and a few others. That leaves eight spots, and we need one of them if I think our chances are 50-50 at this point of making the final field."

"We are in line for the 14th or 15th run Sunday, and if the weather holds we could get two more shots. I feel like we will get at least one shot. The weather is the main problem. If they fill the field and the rain comes, we could be out of luck. If the rain continues all day Sunday, we will get to run on Monday if the field is not full. If things go right, we should get our first run around 2 p.m., and that will give us time for another chance later in the day if the weather holds."

Foyt error costs A.J. pole position

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A. J. Foyt's own error cost him a chance to win the pole position Saturday and could keep the four-time Indianapolis 500 winner out of the starting lineup altogether for the first time in two decades.

"The waste gate was not set right; I usually set it myself," a frustrated Foyt said after his aborted qualification attempt put him at the back of a lengthy line of cars awaiting Sunday's final six hours of time trials.

Twenty cars successfully qualified on Saturday, and all of the original 35 cars eligible for a shot at the pole exhausted their one guaranteed opportunity, keeping Tom Sneva on the inside of the front row for the May 28 race.

The rest of the 33-car starting field will be determined on the basis of Sunday's qualifying speeds.

FOYT's attempt was considered official since he took the green flag. So if he is still in line at the 6 p.m. close of qualifications Sunday — which could be shortened by some expected rain-showers — his string of 20 consecutive Indy starts would be snapped.

There is speculation Foyt might make another attempt in a little-used backup car, but even his crew has doubts whether it is capable of the necessary speed for four laps.

Foyt's primary racer would be behind at least a dozen cars in line on Sunday. He said he pulled off the track because he believed a pressure-relief valve installed by U.S. Auto Club officials was defective. When that happened last year, he was given another first attempt and qualified fourth.

"I guess it was my fault," he said. "We'll just be back Sunday. I think we've got the speed. We ran well in the morning (203.666 mph). Like I say, it's the breaks of the game."

Sneva, who became the first driver to earn the pole position two years in a row since Foyt did it in 1974-75, said the race "will be a whole different deal."

"There were four or five cars which had a shot at the pole," Sneva said. "But eight to 10 cars can win it on race day."

SNEVA's four-lap average of 202.156 miles per hour broke his own record of 198.884 set last year. But he said he did not feel he did as good a job of driving as he did a year ago.

"I was definitely not smooth on my run," he said. "The wind was really blowing, and I did a lot of slipping and sliding out there. I wasn't the smooth veteran out there that I know I am. But because of the better Penske cars, I was a little faster this year."

Sneva's teammate, Rick Mears, became the fastest rookie qualifier in Indy history with a 200.078 average, earning a start on the outside of the front row. Danny Ongais, the current U.S. Auto Club points leader, took the No. 2 spot with a run at 200.122.

So. Illinois whips Tulsa

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Jim Robinson cracked a three-run homer during a six-run fourth inning that handed Southern Illinois an 8-1 victory over Tulsa in a Missouri River Valley Conference baseball tournament game here Saturday.

The winner's bracket game was played on a wet field, due to heavy rains in Omaha Friday which forced the cancellation of some games and moving of others to different fields.

Cubs defeat Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—First baseman Aaron Randall hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to give the Midland Cubs a 7-5 win over the Texas League East Division-leading Arkansas Travelers in a rain delayed game.

It was the third straight victory over Arkansas and gave Midland a 3-1 edge in the series with only Monday's game remaining.

Jimmy Buckner stretched his batting streak to 18 games with a single while Tom Butler, coming in on relief of starter Lee Smith, notched his second win of the season. David Overstreet picked up the save, going the last inning and a third.

Pan-American, Baylor game washed away by heavy rain

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Heavy rain Saturday night forced the postponement of the Pan American-Baylor game in the NCAA South Central regional baseball tournament. Pan American and Baylor will meet at 1 p.m. today to decide who will play Mississippi State at 7:30 p.m. Mississippi State, which lost to Baylor Friday night, knocked Louisiana Tech out of the double-elimination tournament 6-5 earlier Saturday afternoon.

Both Baylor and Pan American are unbeaten in the tournament. This also means that at least one game of the tournament will have to be played Monday. Miss. State 100 000-5 7 1 La Tech 100 000-5 7 1 Maber and Aldridge, Thibodeaux, Fuller (4), Porter (8) and Bailey, W-Maber, L-Fuller, A-5.

TORONTO (AP) — John Mayberry drove in three runs, two with a fourth-inning homer, and the Toronto Blue Jays broke open a 4-4 deadlock with a six-run sixth inning to defeat the New York Yankees 10-8 Saturday for Dave Lemanczyk's first victory after seven defeats.

The Blue Jays had four hits, a walk and a hit batter and took advantage of three New York errors in the big sixth inning as they sent 10 men to the plate, with Roy Howell making the first and last outs.

Lemanczyk checked the Yankees on 12 hits before needing help from Tom Murphy in New York's three-run ninth. Lemanczyk left after Thurman Munson's run-scoring double and Murphy came on to get the final three outs, although he yielded a home run to Graig Nettles. Ken Clay, 0-2 was the loser.

Toronto loaded the bases in the sixth as Mayberry walked and took second on Clay's wild pickoff attempt, Tommy Hutton beat out an infield hit and pinch-hitter Otto Velez was hit by a pitch from Sparky Lyle, who had come on following Mayberry's walk.

Rick Cerone then sent a bouncer to third baseman Nettles, who threw the potential inning-ending double play ball into right field, allowing two runs to score.

Gross homer beats A's

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox defeated the Oakland A's, 4-3, Saturday as Wayne Gross hit a solo home run in the ninth to decide it.

Jeff Newman hit a three-run homer in the seventh to tie it at 2.

The White Sox took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning. Ralph Garr drove a leadoff walk and Don Kessinger singled. Jorge Orta also singled to score Garr and Ron Blomberg sacrificed. Lamar Johnson hit a sacrifice fly that scored Kessinger.

Boston rips Tigers

DETROIT (AP)—Butch Hobson poked his fifth homer and Jim Rice connected for his 13th as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers, 6-3, at Tiger Stadium Saturday.

Relief pitcher Dave Campbell, coming back from a period of inactivity, nailed down the win for Boston. "It feels great to get out there and do something," said Campbell. "I've had arm trouble before, but not this bad. I was a little leery of throwing three innings, but my arm felt good."

Boston Manager Don Zimmer said: "It's nice to have him back, I'll say that. He'll get better, stronger."

Palmer beats Indians

CLEVELAND (AP)—Jim Palmer, with eighth-inning relief from Don Stanhouse, posted his first victory since April 29 and Lee May and Rich Dauer delivered run-scoring singles in the second inning to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 2-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Palmer, 4-4, allowed four hits and an unearned run before Stanhouse came on after a one-out walk to Jim Norris in the eighth.

The Orioles scored off Rick Wise, 2-7, after Eddie Murray doubled with one out in the second. May singled Murray home, moved to third on a single by Rick Dempsey and scored when Dauer followed with a single.

Cleveland broke through Palmer in the seventh with the help of an error by second baseman Doug DeCinces. With one out, Andre Thornton walked and DeCinces made a diving stop on a smash by Ron Hassey, but then threw wildly past shortstop, putting runners on second and third. Thornton scored on Duane Kuiper's grounder.

Thomas triggers Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Gorman Thomas' RBI double triggered a five-run fifth inning and the Milwaukee Brewers held on to defeat the California Angels 6-4 Saturday night.

The Brewers took a 5-0 lead after five innings, helping Bill Travers, 1-1, gain his first victory since last Aug. 9. Travers, who underwent off-season elbow surgery, allowed three runs on five hits through the first six innings in his second start of the season.

A walk, a single by Cecil Cooper and Thomas' double scored the first run in the Brewer fifth. After an intentional walk to Don Money filled the bases, Buck Martinez' sacrifice fly broke a 1-1 tie, and an RBI single by Paul Molitor chased loser Ken Brett, 1-3.

Robin Yount singled home another run against Dyer Miller and Sixto Lezcano's infield out scored the final run in the inning.

Gale wins 4th straight

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Rookie Rich Gale won his fourth straight game as the Kansas City Royals defeated the Minnesota Twins 6-3 Saturday night.

Hal McRae drove in two runs for the Royals with a pair of singles as Kansas City wiped out an early Twins' lead.

McRae and Amos Otis drilled a pair of RBI singles in the third inning after rookie Willie Wilson started the rally by singling and stealing second.

Jim Simons holds slim golf lead

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP)—A charging, fast-moving 10-foot birdie putt on the final hole re-established a 1-stroke lead for Jim Simons, but the baby-faced journeyman was far from confident going into Sunday's final round of the prestigious Memorial Golf Tournament.

"You're bound to be scared with the lead," Simons said after his bold effort on the final hole of Saturday's third round finished off a round of 1-over-par 73 and lifted him out of a tie with onrushing Bill Kratzert.

"I'm going to try and be in control all the way," said Simons, who has won only once before in his seven years of tour activity. "I want to be as relaxed as I can."

"But I know that's not feasible." Within 4 strokes of his leading 210, 6 shots under par on the 7,101-yard Muirfield Village Golf Club course, are Kratzert, Rod Cull and two of the greatest players the world has ever seen, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player.

"I feel like I can shoot 65," the pumped-up Cull said.

"You just can't tell," shrugged Nicklaus. "I could shoot 71 and win, or I could shoot 66 and not win."

Dodgers top Giants, 3-2

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Relief pitcher Randy Moffitt hit Bill Russell with his first pitch with the bases loaded to break a tie in the ninth inning and give Los Angeles a 3-2 victory over San Francisco Saturday night.

The loss snapped the Giants' eight-game winning streak.

Bill North, playing only his second game since coming to the Dodgers from the Oakland A's, led off the ninth with a double against Gary Lavelle. Steve Yeager was walked intentionally and pinch-hitter Manny Mota advanced the runners with a sacrifice bunt.

Robin Yount singled home another run against Dyer Miller and Sixto Lezcano's infield out scored the final run in the inning.

McGraw, Johnson team as Phillies topple Mets

NEW YORK (AP)—It didn't take Tug McGraw long to get even with the New York Mets.

The Philadelphia Phillies' relief specialist hadn't been scored on by the Mets in almost two years until they rallied for four runs in the final two innings Friday night to pull out a game that seemed lost.

But McGraw was back in form Saturday, hurling two perfect innings and receiving credit for a 9-4 victory when the Phillies erupted for five runs in the 11th, highlighted by pinch hitter Dave Johnson's tie-breaking two-run single.

"You don't get the opportunity often to come back like this, but when you do, you cherish it," said McGraw. "This sort of redeemed me."

For the Mets, relief pitcher Dale Murray, 1-2, was the loser in his New York debut after being acquired Friday from Cincinnati.

"You can only hold a ballclub like Philadelphia down for so long, then they explode," said Mets Manager Joe Torre.

"If we had played much longer, we would have run out of players," said Phillies Manager Danny Ozark. "I used Johnson against Murray because he hits right-handers just as well as lefties. He has been going to right-center in batting practice and that's what he did today."

Murray yielded a leadoff single to Bake McBride in the 11th and Larry Bowa beat out an infield hit. After retiring Mike Schmidt on a shallow fly ball, Murray uncorked a wild pitch that moved the runners up.

Stargell smacks pair as Bucs bomb Expos

MONTREAL (AP)—Willie Stargell slammed two home runs, driving in five runs, and Bert Blyleven fired a three-hitter to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday.

The homer gave Stargell a career total of 407 home runs, tying him with Duke Snider for eighth place on the National League's all-time list.

Snider, who played with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, the New York Mets and the San Francisco Giants, is a broadcaster for the Expos.

Stargell slugged a two-out, three-run homer off loser Wayne Twitchell, 2-4, in the first inning after a triple by Omar Moreno and a walk to Dave Parker. Then, he hit a towering two-run shot halfway up the second of Olympic Stadium's three decks in the fourth inning after a leadoff single by John Milner. It was his sixth homer of the year.

Blyleven, 3-4, gave up a two-out single to Dave Cash in the third inning and one-out singles to Ellis Valentine and Tony Perez in the seventh. He walked three and struck out eight.

Kingman, Rader pole homers in Cubs romp

CHICAGO (AP)—Dave Kingman and Dave Rader slammed two-run homers Saturday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 10-2 victory that sent the slumped-ridden St. Louis Cardinals reeling to their ninth consecutive defeat.

Kingman blasted his ninth homer of the season off loser Pete Falcone, 0-2, in the third inning after Gene Clines singled and Rader belted his first to cap a three-run seventh.

St. Louis' two runs came on homers by Mike Tyson and Jerry Morales off winner Weldon Fryman, 2-4, who was pressed into service when starter Dennis Lamp injured his shoulder attempting to bunt in the second inning.

Manny Trillo put the Cubs ahead in the first with a run-scoring single. Tyson hit his third homer in the top of the third before Kingman broke the tie in the bottom of the inning.

Chicago made it 4-1 in the fourth on a triple by Rader and a sacrifice fly by Fryman and Morales hit his third homer in the fifth.

Singles by Cruz and Bob Watson gave the Astros a 2-0 lead in the first inning and started them toward their sixth victory in seven games. Houston chased Atlanta starter Tommy Boggs, 1-5, in the third inning following a run-scoring single by Cruz, Watson's sacrifice fly and Walling's RBI single.

Richard overcame five walks in the sixth and seventh innings to boost his record to 4-3.

ATLANTA BRVES SATURDAY NIGHT.

Cruz clubbed run-scoring singles in the first and third innings and slammed a two-run homer in the sixth. He tied the Astro club record for RBI in one game in the seventh when he drove in two more runs with a

Lee's Van Horn named 5-4A MVP

Midland Lee's Craig Van Horn was named as most valuable player and Lee diamond master Ernie Johnson was selected as Coach of the Year as the District 5-4A All-District team was released Saturday in a poll by sports writers and coaches in the league.

The Rebels, winners of the 5-4A championship and the current bi-district champions, also placed four other team members on the All-District squad, making six members of the team honored.

The coaches and writers honored 13 players from the district to the All-District team and added most valuable and top coach as the top awards.

Lee's Pat Moore won an outfield berth while Todd Clements was named as the utility outfielder. Doug Rasure was named as the utility infielder while Terry Willis was selected as one of the two pitchers named on the team.

Carner takes 2-stroke lead over Pat Bradley

JAMESBURG, N.J. — JoAnne Carner fired a blistering 5-under-par 66 Saturday to take a 2-stroke lead over Pat Bradley after two rounds of the $100,000 LPGA Classic at Forest Gate Country Club.

Carner shot an even-par 71 in Friday's first round for a two-round total of 137. The eight-year veteran veteran recored seven birdies for a new course record.

"My short-iron game was the difference," said Carner. "I hit three shots from the fairways that I thought had a chance to go in the hole."

Carner bogeyed the first hole after landing in the bunker on her second shot, but then birdied the fourth, sixth, eighth and ninth holes to make the turn in 3-under-par 33 over the 6,056-yard course.

Bradley, who was tied with Nancy Lopez and Dot Germain following the first round, fired a 1-under-par 70 for sole possession of second place at 139.

Lopez, winner of last week's Greater Baltimore Classic and the tour's leading money-winner, shot an even-par 71. She tied with Sally Little, 70-70, for third place at 140. Germain is in fourth place, after shooting a 1-over 72 for a 141 total.

Sandra Post, Beth Stone, Pennie Pulz and Jane Blalock were tied at even-par 142.

Holland defeats Austria in soccer

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Arie Haan scored in the 53rd minute to give Holland a 1-0 victory over Austria Saturday in a warmup match for the forthcoming World Cup soccer tournament. The match was played at Prater Stadium before a crowd of 65,000.

The defeat was the Austrians' first since they lost to Hungary 3-2 here in October 1976.

Miller signs pace with Buffalo Bills

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Running back Terry Miller of Oklahoma State, the Buffalo Bills' No. 1 draft choice, has signed a series of one-year contracts for an undisclosed sum, the National Football League team said Saturday.

Miller, who holds Big Eight Conference season and career rushing records, is viewed as a replacement for O.J. Simpson, traded by the Bills to the San Francisco 49ers after the 1977 season.

Ballesteros increase lead to seven

LONDON (AP) — Severiano Ballesteros of Spain increased his lead to 7 strokes after the third round of the international golf tournament at the RAC Club Saturday.

Ballesteros, leading money winner in Europe for the past two years, once again showed his consistency by scoring his third consecutive 4-under-par 67.

That put him at 201 after the three rounds, 7 strokes ahead of a bevy of challengers.

Tully's world pole vault record up to the officials

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Mike Tully says only the officials hindered otherwise good prospects in setting a world pole vault record.

The 21-year-old UCLA senior soared 18 feet, 8 1/2 inches at the Pacific-8 Conference Track and Field Championships, breaking the previous mark of 18-8 1/2 set in 1976 by Dave Roberts at Eugene.

"Maybe they won't count the world record, I just don't know," said Tully, who holds the world indoor mark of 18-5 1/2. "I don't know why it shouldn't count."

Tully broke the record on his first attempt at that height Friday "and I didn't touch the bar."

However, a trailing wind blew the bar off the support.

When officials re-measured the bar, the tape read 18-8 instead of the 18-8 1/2 it had measured before the vault. Under international rules, only a confirmed measurement before the vault is needed to submit a world record.

The effort cannot be submitted as a college mark. Under collegiate rules, a measurement is needed before and after the jump.

Tully tried twice more at 18-8 1/2 before stopping. "There was no use jumping any more," he said. "On those last two jumps I was really straining, tightening up going down the runway. There was a greater risk of injury and I don't need that right now."

"Everything was perfect — except for one thing, the officials," he said. "They could have

BOWLING BEAT

Marlowe strikes bowling jackpot

BY RANDY ISENBERG

Bill Marlowe emerged at the top of the ladder among bowlers in Midland last week. Marlowe, sporting a 152 average, rolled big games of 265 and 244 for a fine 674 series, earning a host of awards along the way, including ABC's century award for bowling 100 pins over his average.

He had his big night in the Air Park Men's League and paced his team with a 1,042 scratch game.

Lou Sheets paced the women in the city with a terrific three-game set of 658 on games of 233-225-200. Lou bowled her big set in the Texas Tornados League. L Ray Sutton finished off his season in the Petroleum American League with a 682 series on May 16. His scores will be included for bowling in next week's bowling column.

Sonny Poole had two big nights. Bowling in the Tuesday Night Mixed Summer League, he rolled a 244 game and a 628 series, and a 220-224-610 set in the TPEA-NNG Mixed League. Brent Gallagher rolled a 268 game in the Air Park Classic Scratch League.

COMING EVENTS are the Memorial Day Mixed Team tournament May 26-29 at Air Park Lanes and the Memorial Scratch Doubles Sweeper, 1 p.m., May 29 at Air Park Lanes.

Tube fishing proves key to the big ones

By JON CHASE

We had just taken the bass boat out of the repair shop and it had been pronounced "fit as a fiddle", when my dad and I hit Brady Lake early in the morning May 12. We put the boat in the water, threw it in gear and off we went for at least 10 yards.

That 10 yards was the extent of the transportation we got out of the old craft for the whole weekend. A mechanic in Brady later said that the oil pump was out. Three weeks in the shop and $200 had failed to correct the problem.

There were boats for rent at the marina, but lack of a depth finder and trolling motor put a huge dent in our optimism.

I figured the only way we could do any serious bass fishing was to get a couple of Innertube fishing floats and use the rent boat to transport us to the brushy areas of the lake.

BUYING innertube float covers isn't the easiest thing in the world. Every place in Brady was sold out and we had to drive to San Angelo to find a couple.

After getting to eight different stores, we finally located them at Cole's Army Surplus in downtown San Angelo. We had left Midland at 4 a.m. and by the time we got to the lake it was 6:30 p.m. and too windy to fish.

Undaunted, we were in our floats and fishing purple worms at 6 a.m. Saturday. From the start our luck changed considerably as we fished out of the floats.

We had a good stringer of bass including a six pound, one ounce I caught early Saturday morning and a four pound eight-ounce that my dad caught that afternoon. We caught our bass on purple twist tail Creme worms out of dense brush in about four feet of water.

The middle of the day was spent catching channel cat on peeled shrimp and we added 68 channels to four pounds of our stringer of bass. I know that "the one that got away" is an old story, but we lost two fish broke 20 pound test lines.

AFTER THE dust had settled, we had strung 15 bass and 88 channel cat in one day of fishing. I doubt seriously if we would have caught the bass if the boat hadn't cratered on it. I saw bass rigs in the $8,000 range all over the lake and they weren't catching any fish, because they couldn't get back in the brush that is accessible to a tube fisherman.

I hadn't fished out of a tube since my "poor boy" days at Texas A&M, and I realize when I look back that I haven't consistently caught big bass since I "moved up" to fishing out of a bass boat.

Sonics, Bullets square off in NBA title playoff

SEATTLE (AP)—The Washington Bullets and Seattle SuperSonics, two unlikely playoff finalists, open a best-of-seven series today to determine which will become the reigning champion in National Basketball Association history.

"I want that championship ring," declared Washington's Elvin Hayes. "I've been playing a long time and now I can smell that championship. That's what it's all about."

Seattle finished the regular season with a 47-35 record. Washington was 44-38. No team has ever lost that many games in the regular season and won the title.

"We've had a lot of adversity," said Bullets Coach Dick Motta, "but it all seemed to turn out for the best. Seattle is a very fine team, but I like our chances. I like the way things are going."

The Sonics are this year's NBA Cinderella story, following Golden State's "Love Machine" title team of 1975. Phoenix' 1976 playoff finalists and Portland's "Blazermania" champs of a year ago.

The Sonics stumbled to a 5-17 start this season before Lenny Wilkens replaced Bob Hopkins as coach. Wilkens shuffled the lineup, made some technical adjustments and, most of all, created a positive, team-oriented atmosphere.

Suddenly the Sonics believed — in Wilkens and in themselves. "Everyone respects Lenny's knowledge," says Seattle reserve forward Wally Walker, a member of the champion Blazers a year ago. "We know if we listen we'll be okay. So we listen."

"We are here (in the finals) because we involve everybody," says Brown.

DOE's O'Leary confident equalization tax coming

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Reporter-Telegram
Washington Oil Correspondent
WASHINGTON—John F. O'Leary, deputy secretary of the Department of Energy, is confident that Congress will pass a crude oil equalization tax. It is not surprising that he would getting would be money from their own pockets. That is, they would be paying higher prices for gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products as a result of the tax.

flow of goodies to those who would benefit from the government's use of the tax revenues.

Domestic producers do not care for the plan either, to put it mildly. As they see it, the tax would be draining away funds the domestic industry needs to play back into the search for and development of more domestic energy supplies.

Finally, they point out that keeping down revenues to domestic producers simply slows down efforts to increase domestic supplies, which is what the energy program is supposed to accomplish along with slowing down the growth in demand.

Also, producers are highly skeptical about a phase-out approach. They have been burned by that one before. What they strongly suspect is that once the proposed tax is put into place, it is likely to remain because removing it would be cutting off the

However, logic does not always triumph in Washington, D.C. O'Leary is undoubtedly correct when he says that complete removal of oil price controls is out of the question at this time.

So some form of COET still looms on the horizon as a definite possibility.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

take this view. After all, he was directly involved in helping shape the proposed energy program, including the COET plan. Furthermore, he is a high-ranking energy official in the Carter Administration and thus would be expected to voice support for the administration's proposal.

So is O'Leary simply whistling Dixie? Not necessarily. COET has languished for many months with little or no sign of still being alive, but this does not mean that it cannot be revived in the months ahead.

O'Leary's reasoning for thinking that this will occur goes like this. Just about everyone familiar with the energy situation agrees that the U.S. should not continue to underprice domestic oil through price controls and continue to subsidize foreign oil imports to the tune of about $2 a barrel.

Following this line of reasoning, it follows that in order to encourage conservation and to encourage domestic production, domestic prices should match world prices.

So why not simply remove price controls and let marketplace forces push domestic prices to world price levels?

O'Leary argues that this simply isn't politically feasible nor economically desirable. Phase controls out, yes; remove them completely all at once, no.

That is where the crude oil equalization tax comes in. It would, over a three-year period, lift domestic oil prices to consumers by applying a tax to make up the difference between the controlled domestic crude oil prices and the world market price.

It would work like this: If "old" domestic crude is being priced by the government at $6 a barrel and the world price is $14, a tax of $8 would be levied so that the refiner buying the domestic crude would be paying the same price for it as for imported oil.

As prices paid to domestic producers rise, as would be permitted gradually under the plan, the crude oil equalization tax would decline. In the end, the domestic wellhead price would be the same as the world price and there would be no tax. Nor would there need to be a continuation of the present entitlements program that is used to equalize the crude costs to U.S. refiners.

Politically, the approach has another attraction: If price controls were removed all at once, the oil producers would benefit; under COET, the government would get the increase, at least initially.

Such an inflow of revenue to the government will enable the government to pass out all sorts of goodies, such as a tax refund to taxpayers or for solving various other economic problems.

Taxpayers, however, can figure out that any tax rebates they might be

MGF shows increase

MGF Oil Corp. has reported that for the first quarter of 1978 its net income increased 44 percent when compared to the same period in 1977.

For the three-month period ended March 31, consolidated net income was $458,000 on revenues of $6,330,000, compared with net income of $318,000 on revenues of $3,162,000 for the comparable three-month period in 1977.

Earnings per share advanced to 20 cents per share fully diluted from 15 cents per share in the first quarter of 1977.

For the 12 months ended March 31, MGF had revenues of $20,311,000 and net income of $1,744,000 or 81 cents per share fully diluted. For the comparable 12-month period ended March 31, 1977, the company had revenues of $12,600,000 and earnings of $831,000 or 37 cents per share.

Symposium scheduled

Several members of the Permian Basin Chapter of the Society of Professional Well Log Analysts are expected to attend the organization's 19th Annual Symposium in El Paso June 13-16.

More than 600 persons from around the world are expected to be on hand for the event.

The society is composed of persons in the fields of geology, geophysics, mathematics, physics and engineering.

More than 40 reports on worldwide applications of well logging technology will be presented at the three-day meeting.

Technical papers will be presented by geophysical experts from the United States, Mexico, Australia, Poland, Japan, Norway, England, France, Libya, Italy, India, Canada, Argentina, West Germany and the Soviet Union.

Applications of geophysical well-logging in the development of alternative energy resources—such as geothermal energy, coal and uranium—will be discussed as well as applications of the technology in the production of oil and gas.

Events during the symposium will include a golf tournament at Santa Teresa Country Club, an awards banquet and dance, a tour of Juarez, Mexico, and visits to the El Paso Aerial Tramway, the Juarez racetrack, the Tigua Indian Reservation and the McKelligon Canyon Amphitheatre.

The Permian Basin Well Logging Society is the host chapter for the event which will be held in the El Paso Civic-Center Complex.

Retirements announced

Gulf Oil Exploration & Production Co. announced the retirement of C. J. Rodgers Jr. and S. Y. Joiner of the Production Department, Western Division, Southwest District.

Rodgers, who will make his retirement home in Odessa, began his career with Gulf in 1940 as a roustabout in the Thompsons Area and worked as a production foreman, petroleum engineer, district petroleum engineer, production foreman and production superintendent and served the company 37 years and 8 months.

Joiner, of Sundown, began working with Gulf in 1950 as a lease pumper in the Goldsmith Area and worked as a lease operator in the Monahans Area and ended his career with the company with 39 years and 2 months of service.

Survey shows 276 rigs at work in Basin areas

Reed Drilling Equipment counted 276 rotary rigs turning to the right last week in its weekly survey of rotary operations in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

Eddy County, N. M., remained the leader in the two-state area once again with a gain of 1 rig over the previous week. This brings its total count to 31 rigs in operation.

The West Texas leader, Pecos County, was the scene of 23 rigs going, the same amount of activity as the previous weeks count.

Lea County, N. M., decreased its rotary activity by a single rig, making its tally of 21 rigs making hole.

A drop in the rotary activity has the two-state area at 10 less rigs in operation than the previous week and 15 less than were making hole at this time last year.

Andrews County gained operations with 13 rigs going and Ward County decreased its tally showing 12 rigs, a decrease of five over the previous week.

Gaines and Hockley remained active with a report of 11 rigs going in each county.

Course to start

Model Studies of Geologic Structures as Applied to Hydrocarbon Exploration will be held Monday in the Permian Basin Graduate Center.

The course will be taught by Dr. John F. Sales who is associated with State University College at Oneonta, N. Y. He formerly was with Mobil Research. He will return to that firm in Dallas in the near future.

The six-hour course will meet from 1:30 to 4:30 and from 7 to 10 p. m. in the Permian Basin Graduate Center classrooms in Midland.

The previously announced lectures by Dr. Fred A. Donath May 25-26 have been cancelled.

The course will give an insight into the mechanisms, geometry, and in some cases, the timing of structural deformation. Plater-barite structure models will be used with sequential slides showing the deformation in progress. Resultant geometries will be analyzed and keyed to field examples.

Structural types to be covered include continental rifting, geosynclinal thrusting and foreland basement deformation. Types of prospects will be assessed for each of these settings.

The fee for the course is $60.

Auditor moves to Midland

Timothy L. Taylor, director of the Office of Audit at the Department of Energy's Nevada operations office, has transferred to the Energy Regulatory Administration Enforcement office in Midland.

He is responsible for auditing petroleum and natural gas producers and refiners in West Texas and New Mexico for compliance with DOE regulations.

Supplemental sources have huge potential

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP)—The American Gas Association estimates supplemental supply sources hold a potential of producing nearly 15 trillion cubic feet of gas annually by the year 2000.

Such supplemental sources include the vast natural gas reserves of Alaska's North Slope, liquefied imports, and coal gasification.

The AGA study says the supplemental sources account for $97.4 billion of the $204.1 billion the natural gas utility industry will require in capital investments over the next 22 years.

The remainder of the $204.1 billion includes $77.9 billion for utility and pipeline construction and $28.8 billion for conventional exploration and development.

Capital costs were estimated on the basis of adjusting announced project costs to 1977 dollars and assuming no real inflation in construction costs over general inflation in the economy.

The AGA believes the 15 trillion cubic foot annual production level from supplemental supply sources is achievable and that such a level combined with conventional lower-48 supplies would permit gas to retain its current 30 percent contribution to total domestic energy consumption.

Supplemental supplies were projected to increase from 1.3 trillion cubic feet in 1976 to 2.9 by 1980, 5.7 by 1985, 8.7 by 1990, 11.8 by 1995, and to 14.8 trillion cubic feet by 2000.

The 1976 supplies included 1 trillion cubic feet of natural gas from Canada, 300 billion in substitute natural gas from liquids, and 10 billion cubic feet in liquefied natural gas imports.

Canadian supplies were projected to increase to 1.4 trillion cubic feet by 1980 but drop to 1.1 trillion by 1990, 1 trillion by 1995, and to 800 billion cubic feet by 2000.

Substitute supplies from liquids are expected to remain steady after moving to 500 billion cubic feet by 1980 and to 900 billion by 1985.

Projections for liquefied imports indicate 600 billion cubic feet by 1980, 1.6 trillion by 1985, 2.4 trillion by 1990, and 3 trillion cubic feet by 1995.

Supplies from Alaska, coal gasification, and new technologies do not appear in the projections until 1985.

Supplies from the Cook Inlet and other regions of southern Alaska would be transported by liquefied gas tankers. They are projected to approximate 100 billion cubic feet by 1985, 200 billion by 1990, 300 billion by 1995 and 600 billion by 2000.

North Slope supplies were estimated at 700 billion by 1985, 1.4 trillion by 1990, 2.2 trillion by 1995, and 3 trillion cubic feet by 2000.

Coal gasification first appears in the projections at 200 billion cubic feet by 1985 but is expected to rise to 4 trillion cubic feet by 2000. The 1990 estimate is 1.2 trillion and this is expected to climb to 2.4 trillion by 1995.

Supplies from new technologies were projected at 100 billion by 1985, 500 billion by 1990, 1 trillion by 1995, and 1.5 trillion by 2000.

The AGA said unconventional in-place gas resources requiring new improved technology to permit economic recovery are substantial. Such methane resources, the report said, include 300 to 800 trillion cubic feet in coalbeds, 600 trillion in tight formations, 3,000 trillion or more in geopressured zones, and 500 to 600 trillion in Devonian shale.

"For some of these sources, technology already permits production on a small commercial scale," the AGA report said.

"For most, economic incentives will be needed before full scale commercialization can be realized."

Additions announced

ODESSA—Perry Engineering Corp. has announced the addition of Gary L. Smith to its engineering staff. He is project manager.

Star/Adair Insulation, Inc., also a wholly-owned subsidiary of Perry Gas Co., Inc., announced the promotion of Dave Fuqua and the addition of Ronald C. Prichard to its sales staff.

Smith joined Perry from Dow Chemical Co. in Freeport. He is a graduate of Texas Tech University with B.S. and M.S. degrees in Chemical Engineering.

Fuqua was promoted to operations manager for Star/Adair. He attended Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos.

Prichard was with Parker Drilling Co. before joining Star/Adair. He attended Odessa College and Texas Tech University.

Registration set Tuesday

HOUSTON—Registration will get underway at 8 a.m. Tuesday for the 1978 Drilling and Well Servicing Industries Safety Convention at the Galleria Plaza Hotel in Houston.

The program will continue through Friday.

The theme of the meeting is "Training—An Important Building Block for Safety."

WTGS meets Tuesday

The West Texas Geological Society will hold its annual meeting Tuesday in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton.

The event will get underway at 11:30 a.m.

Awards will be presented to WTGS members for 1977-78 work, along with the presentation of the annual Distinguished Service Award, Dedicated Service Award, college scholarships and honorary life memberships.

The meeting will close with the installation of 1978-79 officers. They are Forrest Spry, president; Harry Miller Jr., first vice president; Johnnie Brown, second vice president; Gail Kattenbrink, secretary, and Del Windle, treasurer.

Outgoing officers are Tom Hansen, president; Spry, first vice president; Bill Thorsen, second vice president; Bill Largent, secretary, and John Kullman, treasurer.

Committee chairman awards will be made by Spry and Thorsen; executive committee awards will be presented by Hansen; speaker certificates will be presented by Keith Wiersum; Larry Melzer will make the scholarship awards presentations; Joe Salman will make the Distinguished Service Award presentation; Dr. George Gibson will present the Dedicated Service Award, and Hugh Frenzel and Stu Martin will make the honorary life membership announcements.

Hansen will conduct the installation of officers.

Changes reported

Two management changes have been announced by The Boviard Company.

C. E. "Chuck" McKnight has been transferred from Midland to Oklahoma City to become Mid-Continent Area manager.

He fills the position previously held by W. M. "Bud" Watson who recently was promoted to vice president-account executive in the Tulsa headquarters. He was manager of the Southwest Area in Midland.

Guy Hammer, formerly sales manager for the Southwest Area, has been promoted to area manager at Midland succeeding McKnight.

The Pub Features guitarist Mike Wells

The Pub, at the Sheraton Inn, 401 W. Missouri, is now featuring the well-known Country Western musician, Mike Wells. You can hear him perform any night from now until May 27.

Mr. Ward, manager of The Sheraton Inn, announces that the Sheraton is proud to have Mike entertain at The Pub on his first time in Midland.

The Sheraton Inn is undergoing a complete renovation program of guest rooms. Included in the process: new furniture, carpets and plumbing fixtures installed in the freshly painted rooms.

Something else to be appreciated by Midlanders enjoying The Pub and other Sheraton Inn facilities will be more parking space. Mr. Bander Wolk, owner of The Sheraton Inn, has purchased additional land adjoining the hotel parking area. And a new service for restaurant and lounge patrons will be parking lot attendants to park for you.

Mike Wells, well-known guitarist and Country Western musician, is now appearing in Midland for the first time. You will enjoy seeing and hearing Mike, who is well known in the state of Texas, at The Pub, Sheraton Inn, 401 W. Missouri, through May 27.

Oil AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

Mike Smith, manager of Mid-West Door and Window Co., a division of Mid-West Glass Co., 904 W. Front Street, welcomes you to come in or phone him at 682-4632. He can help you with all your window or door needs. Mid-West Door and Window Company carries a complete line of aluminum windows, patio doors, storm doors, custom storm windows, and screens, as well as Anderson wood windows and doors.

Manager, Diana Krischke, right, and Susan Lutz, most recent Manpower employee, are shown in Mrs. Krischke's office making plans for Manpower Temporary Help Services to assist Midlanders. If you have need for a temporary employee—or if you would like to be one—call Manpower at 563-3763 or go by their offices at 2008 W. Wall Suite 3.

Manpower Services come to Midland

Manpower Temporary Help Services are back in Midland after an absence of three years. Manager, Diana Krischke, announces that Manpower is ready to serve the Business and Industrial needs of Midland with their services. Manpower, located at 2008 W. Wall Suite 3, is the nation's worldwide number one temporary help service which bills according to the hiring companies' needs, whether that is weekly, monthly or otherwise. Manpower is a franchise organization, and each office is locally owned and operated. Being a locally owned office has the advantage to its employees in that their checks can be picked up at the office instead of mailed from out-of-town. Mrs. Krischke announces, also, that under special circumstances, her office can provide transportation for their temporary employees. Manpower employees are fully qualified people who take a battery of tests including the typing plus test. Among the jobs filled by Manpower workers are both men and women in a wide assortment of positions including carpenters, painters, helpers, draftspersons, most types of industrial and oil oriented work, bookkeepers, secretaries, key-punch operators, receptionists, statistical typists and other clerical jobs using skills. Manager, Diana Krischke, comes to her new position from Texas Instruments at Lubbock. She has been Texas Instruments secretary to the site manager in Midland since her transfer in that capacity a year ago. She welcomes you to bring your skills—or your need of skilled workers—to Manpower. Either call 563-3763 or go to their offices at 2008 W. Wall Suite 3.

War buffs to gather

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Civil War buffs will hold their fourth annual National Congress of Civil War Round Tables here Sept. 28-30. The themes for this year's congress are "The Confederacy" and "Battlefield Preservation." Dr. James I. "Bud" Robertson, head of the history department at Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg, and former executive director of the U.S. Civil War Commission, will open the program with a lecture on "Virginia in the Confederacy." The Civil War Round Table Associates, sponsors of the congress, are a national organization founded in 1968.

Recycled monkeys for sale

SEATTLE (AP) — Want to buy a Rhesus monkey, slightly used? Or perhaps a new one? If you are a scientist, you might find an experimental monkey in a "new and used monkeys" bulletin published weekly by the Primate Supply Information Clearinghouse at the University of Washington. Maryeva Terry, manager of the center, said most of the animals are "used" but some are "new," having been bought but not included in experiments. The clearinghouse does not physically transfer animals from one laboratory to another, she said, but makes contacts and follow-up inquiries. Primates rather than going to the expense of purchasing and importing more.

Oil Industry Notes

HOUSTON—The board of directors of Coastal States Gas Corp. has elected James R. Paul senior vice president-Finance and treasurer of the Houston-based energy supply firm.

Paul has been vice president-finance since October 1975. He was elected treasurer of Coastal States in May 1974 after beginning his career with the company in 1973 as treasurer of Colorado Interstate Gas Company, a Coastal subsidiary.

HOUSTON—John B. Megahan has been elected vice president and secretary of The El Paso Co., and Richard S. Morris has been elected vice president and associate general counsel. It was announced by Howard Boyd, chairman of the board of directors. Megahan and Morris joined the Company in 1957 and 1973 respectively.

BIG SPRING—Appointment of Charles V. Brown as district engineer in American Petrofina's West Texas Production District headquartered in Big Spring has been announced. He was formerly area engineer.

Brown is responsible for engineering activities in West Texas and New Mexico.

A native of Ranger, Brown worked a number of years in West Texas, particularly in the Midland area, he joined Pina in Big Spring in 1976.

WINTER PARK, Fla.—Robert W. Hubner, former senior vice president and member of the Corporate Management Committee of International Business Machines Corp., has been elected to the board of directors of Florida Gas Co. He retired from IBM in March following a 37-year career with the company.

NEW YORK—Texas Oil & Gas Transmission Corp. has elected Dennis R. Hendrix president and chief executive officer, V. W. Meythaler executive vice president, and W. B. Threlkeld vice president.

Hendrix joined the company in 1973 as assistant to the president; Meythaler had previously served as senior vice president since 1961, and Threlkeld has been corporate secretary since 1970.

Duncan, Okla.—Halliburton Services has promoted W. F. Fuller from manager of training to administrative assistant for its expanded training and recruiting programs, and Bill B. Jones, former district superintendent at El Campo, Tex., has been named manager of training. Both men are based at the company's Duncan headquarters.

HOUSTON—Coastal States Energy Co., a unit of Coastal States Gas Corp. of Houston, announced it has entered a 22-year agreement with Sierra Pacific Power Co. of Reno, Nev., to supply 17.5 million tons of low-sulfur steam coal to Sierra Pacific's Vally, Nev., electric generating station. Coastal states will supply the coal from its Southern Utah Fuel Co. mine near Salina, Utah, one of the largest underground coal mines in the West. Rail deliveries are expected to begin in July 1981.

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Robert S. MacAllister has been elected chairman of the board and president of Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd. Canadian Occidental is 82 percent owned by Occidental Petroleum Corp. J. Douglas Ratcliff has been elected chairman of the board of Occidental International Oil, Inc., in London, England, where he will be responsible for Occidental's oil and gas operations in the Eastern Hemisphere. Ratcliff previously was president of Canadian Occidental.

DALLAS—G. E. Gore has been named manager of Sun Gas Gathering Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sun Co., Inc. Gore, a native of Albany, Tex., joined the former Sunray DX Co. in 1966 as a production engineer in Corpus Christi. He subsequently held engineering positions with the company in Snyder and Tulsa, Okla. He became a plant engineer in the Colorado City District in 1970 when Sunray merged with Sun Oil Co.

DENVER, Colo.—Alan B. Nicol has been appointed to the newly created position of vice president-Exploration of Resources Investment Corp. and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Energy Management Corp. Both companies are headquartered in Denver. He joined Resources Investment as a geological project and evaluation manager in 1975. The company maintains a district drilling and production office in Midland.

SAN ANTONIO—Gulf Energy & Development Corp. has announced the election of a new director and management promotions.

B. Travis Basham was elected a director of the corporation. He is vice president and treasurer.

Brenda Highsmith was elected corporate secretary and coordinator of stockholder communications. She has been with the company four years and had been assistant corporate secretary 2½ years.

Ronald F. Holland has been promoted from accounting analyst to manager-General Accounting. He joined the company in September 1977.

Tom Allbright, senior mechanical engineer, has been promoted to manager-Gulf Energy Compression Co. He was with Ingersoll Rand Corp. 11 years before joining Gulf Energy.

DALLAS—Texas Oil & Gas Corp. has announced two promotions and the addition of one person to its staff.

Jimmy L. Gaines has been promoted to district drilling and production manager for the Southeastern District in Houston. He joined the company in 1973 as production engineer for the Gulf Coast District in Corpus Christi. He was district drilling engineer at Corpus Christi at the time of his recent promotion.

David L. Brice, district production engineer at Corpus Christi, was promoted to district drilling and production manager for the Gulf Coast District in Corpus Christi. He has been with the company since 1972.

Dennis A. Weeden joined the TXO staff as district exploration engineer for the Mid-Continent District in Oklahoma City. He previously was with Texaco Inc. in New York City where he was senior explorationist.

DENVER, Colo.—Florida Gas Exploration Co., the oil and gas exploration subsidiary of Florida Gas Co., has opened a new division office in Denver. Thomas W. Talbert has been named vice president in charge of the Denver Division. William A. Wilson is the division geologist, and Linden P. Macauley is the division land manager.

John Jay Keesey, center, chairman of the scholarship committee of the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers, last week presented scholarships to Tommy Younger, left, and Jeff Lott, right. The Lee High School seniors will enroll at Texas Tech University this fall in quest of Petroleum Engineering degrees. Tommy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Younger, and Jeff's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Lott.

Schlesinger's shuttle diplomacy helps line up necessary votes

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — House energy leaders say a round of "shuttle diplomacy" by Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger appears to have lined up the votes needed to break a six-month stalemate over natural gas pricing.

Whether Schlesinger managed to pull it off, however, won't be known until Tuesday, when the House-Senate conference committee on President Carter's energy bill takes a formal vote on a natural gas compromise.

Although several past efforts to reach agreement have collapsed, conference leaders say this time they're reasonably confident they actually have the votes for approval of the compromise.

The plan would lift price controls on newly discovered natural gas on Jan. 1, 1985. The House had accepted Carter's plan to continue price controls indefinitely while the Senate voted for deregulation after two years.

The compromise plan would cost consumers about $9 billion through 1985 and even more after deregulation begins, say congressional economists. According to one analysis, this would mean roughly $40 to $50 a year in added heating costs for families using natural gas.

With indications that House conferees were still three votes short of the 13 needed to approve the compromise, Schlesinger shuttled back and forth Thursday night among three undecided conferees until he struck a deal that picked all three votes.

The three Democrats — Reps. Bob Eckhardt and Charles Wilson of Texas and Joe Waggoner of Louisiana — said Friday they will support the plan with a change backed by Schlesinger.

The proposed change would reduce somewhat the extent of federal price regulation over already discovered gas — which is not eligible for deregulation — in states where gas is produced. This "intra-state" gas is not currently subject to any federal regulation, but would be if the compromise is approved.

Conference leaders and aides said they did not think this change would lose any votes for the plan among its previous backers.

"We've got 13 firm votes and they'll stay firm," said Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, a top negotiator.

A majority of Senate conferees already have indicated support for the deregulation-by-1985 compromise, but conference leaders postponed a vote on the plan until the additional House votes could be corralled.

"There will be no more postponements. The die is cast. This is it," said the conference chairman, Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va.

Agreement on natural gas pricing would complete work on all sections of the president's energy bill except for energy taxes. Congressional leaders indicate they might delay work on the taxes, including Carter's proposed crude oil tax, until later.

Conferees already have reached tentative agreement on sections dealing with energy conservation, industrial coal conversion and electricity rates.

SEC warns investors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Be wary of high-pressure tactics by companies offering investments in oil, gas and coal exploration, the Securities and Exchange Commission advises.

The commission issued a brochure Wednesday entitled "Investing in Oil, Gas & Coal: Things to Consider."

"Most oil, gas and coal investment opportunities, while involving varying degrees of risks to the investor, are legitimate in their conception, businesslike in their marketing and prudent in their operations," the SEC said.

—The amount of commission paid to promoters is omitted.

The SEC warns investors to be particularly hesitant if the promoter suggests sending money in the mail directly and to resist pressures to make hurried, uninformed investment decisions.

In one case, the SEC said, "investors' funds were used to pay for the European and Bahamian vacations of the promoter, leaving no money to pay for drilling wells."

In another, it says, "investors were not told that a psychic was paid $100,000 to select sites for drilling."

Conference opens

ALPINE—More than 100 geologists from across the United States and Mexico are in Alpine for the Trans-Pecos Volcanic Field Conference sponsored by the Sul Ross State University Department of Geology.

The conference, which starts today, will continue through Thursday.

Dr. James Wollleben, chairman of the department and head of the Science Division at the university, said the large registration for the conference reflects "the interest that geologists throughout the country have in West Texas, as both an area of economic potential and as a model for understanding volcanic and ore generating processes elsewhere."

Dr. Wollleben said 18 papers will be presented, with field trips scheduled the final 2½ days of the conference.

Papers to be presented include one by Dr. D. B. Dumas, research scientist with The University of Texas Marine Science Institute in Galveston. He will discuss earthquakes in and around the West Texas area. According to Dumas, there were more than 300 earthquakes recorded in West Texas from January 1976 through February 1978.

C. C. Reeves, with the Texas Tech Department of Geology will deal with the uranium potential of the Trans-Pecos area.

Among the geologists attending the conference is Dr. W. R. Muehlberger, chief geologist for Apollo 16 and 17, and also for the Skylab-Soyuz mission. He will present a paper on the extent of Cenozoic faulting in the Trans-Pecos.

Louis Lee joins firm

H. Louis Lee has joined Aminol USA as chief geologist. He will be based in Houston. He formerly was with Tenneco, most recently in Midland. He also held various exploration and management assignments in Denver, Colo.; Houston, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Calgary, Canada.

As chief geologist for Aminol, Lee has overall responsibility for the company's geological work, both onshore and offshore.

Luncheon scheduled

The Midland Operations Study Group of the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME will hold a luncheon meeting Monday in the Midland Hilton.

The event will get underway at 11:30 a.m.

The guest speaker will be Wayne Westerman, vice president of End Devices, Inc. His talk will be on "Successful Application of Pump-Off Controls." The presentation will deal with the history, evaluation, implementation and management systems associated with the successful application of pump-off controls and automatic monitoring of rod-pumped oil wells.

G.L. Murphy

Engineer joins firm

G. L. "Jerry" Murphy, former manager for Hilliard Oil & Gas, Inc., in Midland, has joined Harken Oil & Gas, Inc., in Abilene.

He will serve that firm as vice president-Engineering.

Prior to joining Hilliard, Murphy had worked for Texas Oil & Gas, Inc., for Texas International Petroleum Corp. and Chevron Oil Co.

Tech gets solar money

LUBBOCK—The United States Department of Energy has awarded a $400,000 contract to the Texas Tech University Center for Energy Research to conduct a feasibility study on using solar photovoltaic energy for irrigation pumps.

The photovoltaic solar system uses special solar cells to convert the sun's energy to electrical current. Texas Tech proposes to convert the DC electronically to a 480-volt, three-phase alternating current that could run a well motor.

A site has been selected for installing the proposed system. If found feasible, photovoltaic energy will run a 1,500-foot deep irrigation well with a lift of about 540 feet in the Trans-Pecos Valley in West Texas, according to Dr. Richard A. Dudek, Tech project manager.

Dudek is chairman of the Industrial Engineering Department. Dr. William M. Marcy of Tech's Department of Systems,

Reimbursements made

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — An oil company reimburses residents of the Athens area as they present receipts for their expenses they've been out since being forced to stay away from their homes near a well leaking deadly hydrogen sulfide gas.

"But how do you receive all the misery and inconvenience?" asked Mrs. Billy Daniel of Walton, the closest community to the leaking well site.

A spokesman for the well owners said Friday it may be late next week before the okay is given for residents to return to their homes. In the meantime, they're staying in motels or with friends.

Bill Egg, chief engineer of NFC Petroleum of Oklahoma City, said a new wellhead is being installed in sections but that not all sections have been assembled yet at the scene.

"It is expected that most if not all the evacuees may return to their homes by the latter part of next week," he said. However, he added: "Delays in receiving the equipment that has been ordered may cause this projection to be extended."

Still more persons were evacuated, briefly, Thursday when the evacuation area was widened to three miles for several hours before being dropped back to the original two. Egg said the evacuation was precautionary.

the past week has been 3.2 parts per million, well below the 100 parts per million set by the Texas Railroad Commission as a toxic level.

Most people said they have been satisfied with the way the oil company has handled their claims for reimbursement of expenses. But there were still some unhappy with the entire situation.

Mrs. Daniel said her husband works in Dallas, her children attend school at Athens, and at times the family is driving three vehicles to places where they spend the night, she said.

Q.R. Carter, who lives about two miles away, said the evacuation has not changed his life too much.

"We've been in and out but we're able to return to care for cattle," he said.

Students granted scholarships by Phillips Petroleum Company

Four area seniors are among the 66 winners selected to receive college scholarships worth $4,000 from the Educational Fund for children of Phillips Petroleum Co. employees.

The winners of scholarships to any accredited college or university of their choice are Donald G. Fulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Fulton; Barbara A. Lybrand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell R. Lybrand; and Linda G. Singleterry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Singleterry, all of Andrews, and Elizabeth D. Drapalla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Drapalla, Odessa High School.

Selected as alternates are Joe B. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Fisher, Odessa High School, and Gary

L. Ragland, Andrews, son of Johnny D. Ragland and the late Mrs. Ragland.

As in past years, Phillips this year has awarded 66 scholarships and named 30 alternates, in accordance with the rules and regulations of the company's scholarship fund.

Winners were selected by a committee of educators and businessmen who have no connection with Phillips. The independent committee awarded scholarships on the basis of scholastic record, future promise and financial need.

Each winner will receive a $1,000 award, renewable yearly based on scholastic achievement, for a four-year total scholarship of $4,000.

The scholarship fund was established in 1939 to aid children of employees of Phillips and its subsidiaries in obtaining higher education.

Since then, more than 1,700 young people have received college education from scholarships totaling about $2.9 million.

Phillips' annual scholarship contributions now exceeds a quarter of a million dollars a year.

Qualifying students who did not receive scholarships may apply for low-interest loans to help finance their college education from a separate Phillips education fund.

Promotions announced

ODESSA — Champion Chemicals Inc. announced Saturday two personnel changes, effective immediately.

Sam White, president, announced that Robert Finley, former senior manufacturing chemist and laboratory director, is named manufacturing manager. Milton Davis, formerly the plant manager, becomes manufacturing projects staff engineer.

White said Finley is responsible for Champion manufacturing projects, and Davis is in charge of daily engineering projects and future expansions.

Dan Worley

1977 tops since 1959

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Final figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute reveal that 1977 was the most active year for oil and gas well drilling operations since 1959.

According to the API's Quarterly Review of Drilling Statistics, total wells, excluding stratigraphic and core tests and service wells, drilled in the United States last year amounted to 44,982.

The total is the highest since 1959 when 50,094 wells were drilled. In 1976, 39,765 wells were put down. The all-time high for well drilling was 57,111 in 1956.

The API also reported that both major categories of drilling—exploratory and development—increased in 1977 compared to the previous year. Figures compiled by the institute show that 9,961 exploratory wells were drilled last year compared to 9,234 in 1976. Development drilling, the API said, increased from 30,531 in 1976 to 35,021 last year.

Dan Worley promoted

ODESSA—OPI Inc. has announced the promotion of Dan Worley to manager of manufacturing and service.

He is responsible for all OPI manufacturing and worldwide pump service. He has been with the company since December 1977, serving as manager of the Centralizer Division.

Rankin student in top bracket

RANKIN — Mike Winford, Rankin High School junior, has been listed in the top 5 percent of the students who took the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test last fall.

He is to be notified this fall about his standing among the other 50,000 juniors nationwide who fall into that percentage bracket.

Pogo joins Permian Basin oil, gas exploration scene with 3 tests

Pogo Producing Co. of Houston has joined the Permian Basin oil and gas exploration scene with the staking of three projects in Lea County, two of them wildcats and the other a long outpost to Morrow production.

Pogo, organized as an offshore exploration and production firm, added the three New Mexico projects to its first onshore project which is being drilled in Louisiana.

The wildcats are 6,000-foot projects and the Morrow outpost is a 14,200-foot test.

Pogo No. 1-L-922 State is to be drilled as the Morrow test. It is 1 1/2 mile north of the Grama Ridge (Morrow) field and 16 miles southeast of Halfway. The location is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 28-21s-34e.

WILDCAT SITE
Pogo No. 1-L-921 State is one of the wildcat projects. It is 3/4 mile southwest of the Wilson, West field and 660 feet from south and 1,780 feet from west lines of section 21-21s-34e and 16 miles southeast of Halfway.

SECOND TEST
Pogo No. 2-L-922 State is to be drilled as a wildcat 1,780 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 28-21s-34e. The drillsite is 200 feet south of No. 1-L-922 State and one mile south of No. 1-L-921 State.

GOMEZ WELL
Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker of Midland No. 1 Raymal-Eagle has been completed from the Ellenburger and assigned to the Gomez field of Pecos County, 12 miles north of Fort Stockton.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 15,100,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 18,900 to 19,053 feet. The pay was acidized with 10,000 gallons.

Hole is bottomed at 22,760 feet and plugged back to 19,310 feet.

The project had tested gas in the Devonian through perforations from 18,900 to 19,060 feet, flowing at the rate of 4 million cubic feet per day.

The well is one mile northwest of Ellenburger production and 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 3, block 142, T&SIL survey.

CHAVES EXPLORER
Supron Energy Corp. of Dallas No. 1 Amoco-State is to be drilled as a 6,200-foot wildcat in Chaves County, N. M., five miles north of Dexter.

Location is 1 1/4 miles southeast of the Calumet (San Andres) field and 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 16-12s-26e.

EDDY PROJECT
Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia, N. M., spotted location for a 1/2-mile west stepout to the Kennedy Farms (Morrow gas) pool of Eddy County, N. M.

The 8,850-foot operation is No. 1-JQ Kennedy Communized and was staked 2,310 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 33-17s-26e. It is three miles south of Artesia.

FISHER OFFSET
Banam Corp. of Midland staked its No. 1 Springer as a northwest offset to production in the two-well Saturday (Canyon sand) field of Fisher County.

It is slated for a 5,300-foot bottom and is 4.5 miles northwest of Roby. The drillsite is 2,760 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of A. B. Large survey.

CROCKETT TESTER
C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., of Midland No. 3-D Todd will be drilled as a 5/8-mile northeast stepout to the Howard Draw (Grayburg-San Andres gas) field of Crockett County, 17 miles northwest of Ozona.

It is contracted to 1,600 feet and is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 68, block UV, GC&SF survey. Ground elevation is 2,517 feet.

MORE CROCKETT
James L. Lamb Jr. of Midland announced plans to drill a 5/8-mile southwest stepout to the lone well in the Tippett, East (Seven Rivers gas) field of Crockett County, 10 miles northwest of Iraan.

The project, No. 1 Tippett, is 4,248 feet from south and 660 feet from southeast lines of section 45, block 31, H&TC survey. The contract depth is 1,300 feet and elevation at drillsite is 2,227 feet.

ROBERTSON AREA
Flag-Redfern No. 1 McCulloch, 1/2 mile southeast of the Robertson (San Andres) field, was completed for a daily pumping potential of 14 barrels of 31-gravity oil, plus 27 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,903 to 6,155 feet.

Gas-oil ratio is 857-1. The pay section was acidized with 4,300 gallons.

The well is 1,173 feet from north and 1,750 feet from east lines of section 48, block G, WTRR survey, abstract 1929.

IRION OILERS
NRM Petroleum Corp. of Midland has announced potential tests on three wells in the Spraberry Trend Area field of Irion County.

No. 2 Rocker B was completed for a daily pumping potential of 66 barrels of 38.2-gravity oil and 38 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,015 to 6,603 feet after a 90,000-gallon fracture treatment. Gas-oil ratio is 1,514-1.

The location is 1,000 feet from south and 1,750 feet from west lines of section 191, block 1, T&P survey, abstract 631 and eight miles northwest of Barnhart.

NOELKE WELL
Hytech Energy Corp. of Midland No. 1 Shannon Estate has been completed in an undeveloped area of the Noelke, Northeast (Queen sand gas) field of Crockett County, seven miles southeast of Iraan.

Operator reported a daily flowing potential of 66 barrels of oil, through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 7,168 to 7,227 feet.

The gravity of the oil and the gas-oil ratio were calculated, absolute open flow potential of 303,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 1,480 to 2,054 feet.

Total depth is 2,079 feet and plugged back depth is 2,065 feet.

COKE OILER
Corpening Enterprises of Fort Worth No. 1 Pentecost is a new well in the Meadow Creek (Canyon) pool of Coke County.

On 24-hour potential test it flowed 35 barrels of 38-gravity oil, no water, through a 1/2-inch choke and perforations from 5,255 to 5,294 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 714-1.

The location is 1,540 feet from north and 2,173 feet from west lines of section 320, block A-1, H&TC survey and 10 miles northwest of Robert Lee.

STERLING WELL
Crown Central Petroleum Corp. of Midland potential its No. 1 Terry 5/8 mile from other production in the Jameson (Strawn) pool of Sterling County.

Operator reported a daily flowing potential of 66 barrels of oil, through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 7,168 to 7,227 feet.

The gravity of the oil and the gas-oil ratio were not reported.

Total depth is 7,356 feet and 4 1/2-inch casing is set at 7,355 feet.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 143, block 2, H&RTC survey. It is 11 miles northeast of Sterling City.

Wheat price boost may bolster farm economy

By DON KENDALL.
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 13 percent boost in the government's 1978 wheat target price announced last week by President Carter may pour an additional $650 million or so into the farm economy next winter if the crop and prices turn out as some experts now expect.

Carter announced the increase May 15 when he signed the Emergency Agricultural Act of 1978. The law provides authority for the secretary of agriculture to raise "income support" levels in years when acreage set-aside rules are in effect.

Thus, as he indicated before the measure cleared Congress, the president directed the wheat target to be raised to $3.40 a bushel from the $3 level which had been announced for the 1978 crop.

The law is a four-year measure and sets no specific dollar limits on the discretionary authority for tinkering with crop program supports. However, Carter and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland indicated earlier that only the wheat target price would be raised at this time.

Some other provisions, including a four-cent boost in the loan rate for upland cotton to 48 cents a pound, were included in the bill signed by Carter. But the raise in the wheat target, in terms of federal costs and direct payments to farmers, will have the greatest impact this year.

Ironically, the target price increase to $3.40 a bushel probably will mean a much smaller payment to wheat growers for their 1978 crop than they got for last year's harvest when the target was only $2.90 a bushel.

To understand this, it is necessary to explain the target price concept. The $3.40 is a bookkeeping figure used to compute potential "deficiency payments" to farmers, a euphemism for federal subsidies.

Under the formula, if the five-month farm price of wheat during the first five months of the marketing year — June through October — falls below the target, participating farmers get payments to bridge the gap between the actual market price or the government's loan rate for wheat, whichever is higher.

For example, the five-month average last year was $2.10 a bushel or 80 cents below the $2.90 target for 1977 wheat. The loan rate — an amount farmers can borrow from USDA by using their grain as collateral — was a national average of $2.25 a bushel. Thus, the deficiency payment was 65 cents a bushel.

Permits climb above 42-million plateau

A building permit for the construction of a four-story, $1,087,000 downtown office building was issued last week by the city of Midland to John L. Cox, an independent oil operator.

The 15,000-square-foot building is being built by Area Builders, Inc., at 400 W. Wall Ave.

New construction authorized last week by the city totaled $2.28 million and brought the year's new-building tally to $42.3 million.

Mall change announced
Dellwood Mall in Midland has been acquired by Dellwood Mall Associates, a Texas limited partnership, and will be managed by Johathan Kutner Co. of Dallas.

Shirley Barragan of Midland has assumed on-site supervision of the shopping center and is responsible for local management of the property, including local leasing inquiries.

Dellwood Mall, anchored by Dunlap's and Thornton's, contains 30 stores and has room for expansion from its present 200,000 square feet of lease area to 260,000 square feet.

The new owners have indicated they will expand the center when new leases are consummated.

THIS ARCHITECT'S DRAWING shows the second tower, right rear, addition to the Midland Hilton. Ground-breaking ceremonies will be conducted

June 1. Actual construction of the twin tower will begin the first week in June. The project will cost approximately $3 million.

Expansion ground-breaking set

The Midland Hilton will mark its second anniversary in Midland June 1 with ground-breaking ceremonies for a second identical tower.

Officials of Hilton Hotels, representatives of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, the city of Midland and Midland County will take part in the event at 11:30 a. m. at the Hilton's south entrance.

Richard Lowder, general manager of the hotel, said the expansion will include construction of an 11-story tower on the Missouri Street side of the complex, with a projected cost of $3 million.

The second tower will be identical to the original," Lowder said. He added that only the fifth through the eleventh floors will be used for guests of the hotel.

This will increase the number of rooms from 141 to 260, Lowder said. He emphasized that the convention hall and meeting rooms will remain where they are and "should not be disturbed by the construction."

Construction on the new tower is expected to begin during the first week of June, with completion slated for August 1979. The J. A. Jones Co. will be the prime contractor and the architects for the project are Wood and Associates of Dallas.

The plans call for the Discovery Lounge to be expanded into a split level with additional expansion of the vestibule outside the second floor meeting rooms also planned.

"Even though the tower will be built over the ballroom, it is not expected to be affected and can be used for all functions," Lowder said. "Also, additional elevator service will be added to serve the new tower and the convention rooms on the second floor."

"We anticipate very little disturbance to hotel guests and the general

Savings expected

HOUSTON—Upwards of 700,000 gallons of gasoline are expected to be saved this year by employee commuter van pools operated by Continental Oil Co.

According to William R. Fortune, director-Special Services, Conoco's 91 vans now in service remove an estimated 600 automobiles from commuter traffic. "This, in turn, will represent a cut of 7 million vehicle miles this year and a reduction of 475 tons of exhaust pollution," Fortune said. "As the fleet grows, the statistics grow."

"Another plus is improved safety by virtue of reduced automobile operations on streets and highways," Fortune added. "The vans also help alleviate parking problems."

One of the first companies to start van pooling, Conoco in 1975, bought 10 vans for a pilot program in Houston. Since then, van pools have spread to 19 more locations in 10 states, and the Houston fleet has grown to 42 vans.

More than four percent of Conoco's U.S. employees now go to and from work in the employee-driven vans, most of which carry 12, including the driver.

Fortune, coordinator of van pooling within Conoco, also works at promoting the gasoline-saving concept outside the company. He provides an information kit for other companies interested in the Conoco program. He and other Conocoans have led or participated in 43 van pool seminars throughout the United States.

And a new 10-minute, Conoco-produced motion picture film, "Pooling Around," now is available on free loan to organizations wanting "how to" information.

Conoco van pools now operate at Big Spring, Carrizo Springs, Falls City, Houston, Midland and Pecos in Texas; Lafayette, Lake Charles and Westlake in Louisiana; Denver, Colo.; Costa Mesa, Calif.; Aberdeen, Miss.; Ponca City, Okla.; Casper, Wyo.; Pittsburgh and Washington, Pa.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; and Stamford, Conn. Pools at Westlake serve both Conoco's oil refinery and chemical plant there.

New bottle to hold Coke
A new plastic bottle for Coca-Cola soon will be available to consumers in Midland, Raymond A. McDaniel Jr., president of Texas Coca-Bottling Co., announced.

The new polyester bottle, made from polyethylene terephthalate, weighs only one-tenth as much as a comparable size non-refillable glass bottle. "The plastic bottle poses no problems in open dumps or sanitary landfills, since it compacts easily," McDaniel said.

Risk pool assignments continue increasing
By BILL KIDD
AUSTIN—Assignments to the Texas Worker's Compensation Assigned Risk Pool continue increasing, with an estimated 10.6 percent or more of the business in Texas now going into the pool, which now has 27,000-plus insured.

Those figures were released by James Johnston, pool manager, at the 25th annual meeting of the panel's governing committee.

One reason for the increases, Johnston feels, was the recent change in the law which brought 60,000 small employers under the compensation act.

Many of these weren't considered god risks for the voluntary market because of their size, he says.

But Johnston says the voluntary market has been doing a good job by writing the great bulk of the increasing business. Growth of the pool can be gauged from the fact that in 1976 the number of risks there was 18,000—while there were on 7,000 in 1973.

The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the conviction of a Houston debt collector for criminal harassment in the making of eight telephone calls in one day to a debtor in an attempt to collect a $32.73 bill.

The collector was given a $150 fine—and a probated jail sentence—and the collection agency was given a $1,000 fine.

A check of collection agencies indicated most see no new problems for them under the decision, but several feel there may be some other problems under new Federal laws.

Of particular concern are restrictions regarding communications to 'third parties' regarding a consumer's debts. Some report the restrictions prevent identification of a debt collection agency in the return address of envelopes used in communicating with debtors, and identification of an employee of a collection agency to operators when placing long-distance call.

Texas Supreme Court justices, in a brief, unsigned opinion, dropped a hint to lawmakers that they feel county mutual insurance companies should be subjected to the state's deceptive trade practices act.

Since lawmakers didn't specifically include county mutuals under the act, the companies are excluded, the court ruled, and therefore it upheld an appeals court decision which overturned treble damages to a couple whose mobile home was destroyed by a fire.

The judges chided the Legislature, saying that the lawmakers' failure "deprives persons who deal with county mutuals the protection against unfair and deceptive insurance acts or practices afforded to persons who deal with other types of insurance companies."

Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Little Rock, reports Texas savings and loan associations has $25.322 billion in total assets in March, with $20.517 billion in mortgage loans outstanding.

Savings capital came to $20.8278 billion — an increase from $20.4492 billion in February.

Mortgage loans increased from $20.1871 billion.

Figures for the Little Rock office's five-state region—including Texas—for April indication just under $1 billion in loans closed that month, but figures for Texas haven't been computed yet.

TDT names two veeps

Technical Drilling Tools, Inc., of Houston, a Tom Brown, Inc., of Midland, has announced the addition of two persons to its staff in Houston.

William Chunn has been named vice president-Manufacturing, and Kenneth J. Guidry has been named vice president-Marketing.

Chunn, formerly vice president-Manufacturing for Drilco Oil Tools, Division of Smith International, has 27 years experience in all phases of production and manufacturing of oil field drilling tools. His responsibilities include the design and construction-supervision of TDT's new manufacturing facility in Houston.

Guidry has been associated with the oil and gas service business in Texas and Louisiana since 1959. For many years, he was associated with Servco, also a division of Smith International, and most recently was special sales representative in Houston for Reamco, Inc.

Indian museum attracts research

By MEL REISNER
SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — One of the nation's largest museums of Indian artifacts — the tepee-shaped Museum of Native American Cultures here — like most museums today is struggling financially. But officials say they are making progress and are optimistic about the future.

With a thriving Western art show that underwrites its operations, the museum has a little money in the bank for the first time and is probably in the best financial shape since its doors opened four years ago, says Assistant Director James DeWalt.

The museum ranks among the top five of its kind in the United States, officials say. The facility, which may have the largest collection of Indian writings anywhere, is a magnet for researchers.

Opened in February 1974, the museum was the idea of a number of private collectors of Indian artifacts who wanted a central location to show and store valuable pieces. The original building cost $2 million.

Finances permitting, the museum wants to begin construction of a new wing. DeWalt said that might begin within two years and, when completed, the wing will allow display of hundreds of items now in storage.

DeWalt said the extensive Indian writings are joined by a formidable array of pottery, tools, blankets, weapons and other irreplaceable items. Most of the pieces come from tribes west of the Mississippi River, "but we do have Iroquois false face masks, Chipewewa beadwork and Sioux ghost shirts — very rare."

The museum's financial underpinning has been the annual show of Western art. Artists, sculptors and others specializing in works of the Old West gather each February, jamming a downtown hotel, to sell their works for a week.

"We developed the idea eight years ago for two reasons: to promote Western art as a legiti-mate art form, and to provide the basis of financial operations for the museum," DeWalt said.

The museum collects rent on exhibit space and charges 10 to 40 percent for each painting sold. Proceeds from the art show do not go for the day-to-day operation of the museum. They are used to meet a $32,000 annual mortgage payment on a loan taken by the Pacific Northwest Indian Center Inc. to finish the five-story museum and a wing in time for Expo '74.

Other sources of income range from assistance grants to donations by artists and sculptors of works for sale, DeWalt said.

Northwest Indian artifacts are difficult to find because they usually were fashioned of reeds, bone and wood — materials which deteriorate in the elements, DeWalt said.

He said tribes in the Puget Sound area carved elaborate and grotesque masks within masks for special occasions. Hinges inside the wood allowed the wearer to unfold one wooden mask to reveal another.

"But their tradition was to burn them after each potlatch. These are very rare," he said, gesturing at a display case.

No political points are made with the museum beyond presenting the statements and works of Indians in their often-bitter and always ruinous wars with white invaders, DeWalt said.

"Our philosophy is not to apologize for inhuman actions," DeWalt said. "We regard it as something that happened in history. I personally feel no guilt for the fact that I'm not Indian any more than I feel guilt for the atrocities of the Roman legions."

Couple looks backward at changes in 48 years

By STRAT DOUHTAT

LOOKOUT, W. Va. (AP) — Sam and Lottie Lair have run the restaurant and service station beside U.S. 60 here for as long as most residents of this Fayette County community can remember.

The Lairs date back to 1935 and well can recall when gasoline was just 14 cents a gallon, coffee was a nickel and a sandwich a dime.

"That's the way things were back when we took over the service station and the restaurant," Lair said as he sat at a table in his Paradise Inn during a recent afternoon. "Of course, that was 43 years ago."

"A lot of things have changed since we took over back in 1935," he said. "Route 60 was just a narrow, winding road in those days and lots of the people that came in for gas were driving Model T Fords. This is the old Midland Trail, you know. It's a coast-to-coast road and we've had people come in here from all over the world."

"Route 60 has been a busy road for years and years," he added, warming to his story. "It's an old stagecoach line. They used to stop at that old stone house up the road and the next stop was just down the road, at Ansted. And see that hill over there? That's Spy Rock. They claim the Indians used to climb up on

Summer courses offered

ODESSA — Courses for fun, profit and credit will be available at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin during summer school, according to Bruce Faulkner, admissions advisor.

Summer school registration will be from 9 a.m. to noon and 2 to 7 p.m. May 29. Individual time assignment is available in the registrar's office.

Courses offered just for fun are Ceramics, Conversational Spanish and Tennis. Taking a closer look at politics will be The Development of Modern Texas, Mexican Revolution and Urban America.

Marriage and the Family will explore social relationships between husbands and wives, parents and teenagers.

Enrollment at the upper-level institution is open to students who have completed 60 credit hours of course work at any accredited community college or university. Transcripts from previous colleges should be mailed directly to the director of admissions at UTPB, Faulkner said.

Exports increase

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina exported 773,408 tons of beef during 1977, up 19 percent from the previous year, according to the Ministry of Economy. Dollar value of the year's exports totaled $895,803,000.

Briscoe asks aid for five counties

AUSTIN, Texas. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Friday he has asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture to declare Edwards, Frio, Pecos and Reeves counties as disaster areas.

Such a declaration, Briscoe said, would assist farmers and ranchers in obtaining emergency loans to cover losses caused by drought from Jan. 1 through May 9.

The governor said he also had asked W.H. Pieratt, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, to declare Loving County a disaster area so farmers and ranchers may take part in emergency programs available through the administration.

Official seeks baling rights for sorghum farmers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown wants grain sorghum farmers to have the right to bale their "set aside" crop as emergency fodder and hopes to show federal officials where it is needed. Brown said he plans to fly the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Committee over 10 drought-stricken counties in South Texas "where the prickly pears have dehydrated."

And he has invited federal farm officials along for the Monday flight.

"Grain sorghum set-aside acreage must be plowed up by June 23. I am asking Washington to let the farmers bail it so we can use it for emergency feeding of South Texas cattle," Brown said.

Farmers would sell the fodder for "whatever they could get," he said, probably little more than the cost of baling it.

Set-aside acreage represents crops that must be taken out of production in order to obtain federal supports.

"It doesn't make sense to plow under fodder when we have got starving cattle," Brown said in a telephone interview.

He said some federal officials are resisting his plea.

"If we can get them to come down and see this (South Texas) situation, more the better," he said.

In some areas, Brown said, starving cattle "are so weak they are having to pull them out of the auction rings."

Among the counties involved, he said, are Webb, Val Verde, Uvalde, Zavala, Zapata, Jim Hogg, Starr and Duval.

SALES & SERVICE REPRESENTATIVES (MUD ENGINEERS)

Male/Female
Must be at least 21 yrs. old.

FOR SCHOOL BEGINNING IN JULY, 1978

Consider a career in one of the healthiest industries in the world today - the Oil Industry. Minimum High School diploma. Big experience preferred, but not required. Must be able to accept the challenge of a very demanding on-the-job job that requires a 7 day work week with no scheduled days off and being on 24 hr. call, 365 days a year, excluding only vacation time. Individual and/or family must be willing to relocate to any one of our areas of operations within the continental 48 states at company expense. No extended travel is involved. Starting salary $965 per month with a dollar and $105 per month upon graduation.

The Sales & Service Representative makes daily well site analysis of drilling mud properties using both chemical and mechanical means, interprets well conditions and complications, and recommends additives to insure that the mud properties are maintained at specified standards.

We provide an 12 week training school combining field and classroom situations. The school is conducted 7 days a week. Long hours and hard work are trademarks of the IMCO SERVICES MUD SCHOOL. IMCO SERVICES, a division of Halliburton Co., is a rapidly expanding major manufacturer and supplier of drilling fluids to the oil industry headquartered in Houston, Texas. IMCO SERVICES maintains product inventories and associated service capabilities in all major oil field drilling sites throughout the world. We provide comprehensive company benefits, competitive salaries, company car and expense account for business use.

By PATSY GORDON

The hope for a new Casa de Amigos building was begun two years ago. This dream will be fulfilled when an open house is held in this new building from 3-6 p.m. today. The event is open to the public and persons attending will be treated to a tour of the facilities located at 1101 Garden Lane.

Casa was begun in 1964 by St. Mark's United Methodist Church, with Dr. O. A. McBrayer instrumental in its organization. Dr. McBrayer now is pastor at St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

In the beginning, Casa operated solely through volunteers, and after the first year, other Midland churches started to participate.

The first director, Elizabeth Sanchez, was obtained in 1967, followed by Vangye Rodriguez in 1969. Casa's present director, Marcia Ingram, arrived in 1971.

The first Casa building was a one-room structure augmented by the one-room Casa de Ninos, but even so, Casa was among the first to sponsor a bilingual kindergarten program. This was dropped in 1972 when Midland schools implemented the same program.

The new building houses a number of offices, a community room which can be converted to various activities, including sewing, club meetings, dances, crafts and others.

A nursery also is provided for mothers who come to the Casa for activities.

An up-to-date kitchen—it has two stoves and a refrigerator—has been provided and will be used for the Thursday luncheons served to senior citizens each week at noon. The meal is donated by church groups, with Casa supplying the paper products, utensils, drinks, condiments and some food. An average of 35 meals are served each week. Following the meal, a program of games, films or a speaker is provided. Participants then are picked up and taken home by Roadrunner bus.

Other programs provided by Casa include the following:

A tutoring program in which each child participating is tutored on a one-to-one basis. Supervisors are in attendance at all times, and children are tested upon entering and leaving the program. A total of 67 children were tutored during 1977, with a limit of 24 children enrolled for each semester. Sessions are held Monday and Wednesday from 2:45 to 4 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday at the same time.

English classes are held each Monday night from 7:30 to 9 from September until early spring. Forty men and women were enrolled last year.

A clinic for senior citizens was begun in January 1977. The clinic is staffed with one volunteer nurse and the director, who is a registered nurse. Each month approximately 30 men and women are checked, weighed and given tests. The nurse also counsels with the Casa clients on individual health problems. Approximately 20 percent of the clients seen are referred for further medical attention.

In the sewing classes, held twice a week, instruction is given in both English and Spanish. Material is sold for a nominal amount, but in the event of need, there is no charge. During the summer, sewing classes are offered to teenage girls twice a week for 10 weeks. Thirty women enrolled last year.

In another program for women, the crafts guild, ojas, ornaments and flowers are created. All profits from the sale of these items go directly to the women.

Good quality clothing is sold at the Casa for ten cents each to needy families. The money derived from this project pays the salary of an elderly woman whose husband is blind. This helps supplement the small Social Security check the couple lives on.

Casa provides further assistance with an employment service which helps both men and women find gainful employment. Approximately four people are interviewed each day.

A Midland corporation, Teraco, helps, too. Casa picks up unassembled piece work items at the business, delivers them to the families, picks up the finished product, invoices and then returns the merchandise to Teraco. During 1977, these individuals were paid a total of $7,795.

Midland College furnishes Casa with a bus and driver to provide transportation for the senior citizen nutrition program held at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. When the bus is not in use for this program, it is used for senior citizen transportation at the Casa.

In June or July, Casa will take over operation of the Roadrunner bus service. All Casa and Midland College vans have a CB communications system to better coordinate the service.

Other services provided by Casa are the lending library, neighborhood meetings, layettes for needy mothers, translation (doctor, hospital, clinic), assistance to Human Relations Council in screening applicants for community development and housing rehabilitation programs, assistance to Midland Community Action Agency in crisis intervention program, voter registration information and transportation, use of facilities for Family Services and other agencies and crime prevention.

"We hope to put a senior citizens complex into effect June 5," said Mrs. Ingram.

"We visualize a number of programs for senior citizens," said Mel Goffigon, vice chairman of Casa's board in charge of programs.

One of these programs includes a diabetic screening clinic. "We are working with Dr. Ralph Greenlee and the Midland Diabetes Association," said Mrs. Ingram.

The senior citizens complex will operate 5 days from 10 to 11:45 a.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. "We will work on an experimental basis during the summer and integrate with other programs in the fall," according to Goffigon.

"We also would like to sponsor a course on cardio-pulmonary resuscitation as soon as possible," said Mrs. Ingram.

The Casa is open every morning and some afternoons for classes in plant care, physical fitness, sewing, special programs for the blind, beauty culture and woodworking arts for men.

It is stressed by both Mrs. Ingram and Goffigon that programs at the Casa are for both men and women.

The Casa board, according to Mrs. Ingram, is looking at the possibility of finding new and innovative ways of finding financing for housing under $20,000. It hopes to persuade businesses to underwrite the down payments for low-cost housing, she added.

Problems are encountered, said Mrs. Ingram and Goffigon, in getting loans for home improvements in east and south Midland. Rents also are exorbitant in these areas of the Tall City, they said, and home mortgage loans are unavailable for low-cost housing.

"At Casa, we try to determine what the community needs are and then address ourselves to alleviating these needs," explained Mrs. Ingram.

"Self-help is the name of the game," said Goffigon.

The Casa staff consists of Mrs. Ingram, director; Margaret Hernandez, assistant director; Socorro Ruiz, senior citizens and outreach; Della Ramirez, receptionist and dispatcher; Petra Lujan, transportation; Greg Ramirez, outreach; Refugio Lomeli, rummage room, and Gerardo Gonzalez, custodial.

Members of the board of directors are Bob Landreth, chairman; Rex Amini, vice chairman in charge of finance; Al Talbot, vice chairman in charge of property; Mel Goffigon; John Nichols, treasurer; Catherine Stump, secretary; Don Hellinghausen, parliamentarian, and James Shaw, Casa Sunday chairman.

Directors whose terms expire in 1981 are Boley Embrey, Sister Eva Hernandez, King Hughes, Randall Kirk and Margie Titus. Directors serving until 1980 are Richard Gaddy, Wayne Kohout, Lola Nunn and Fred Rey. Terms ending in 1979 are Rex Amini, Romeo Canales, Ida Mitchell and Marsha Samponaro.

Casa de Amigos is an agency of the United Way.

Trinity Towers' auxiliary dedicated to residents

Members of the Trinity Towers Auxiliary, which was organized in 1971 with 32 charter members, assist with and direct activities for residents of the facility for senior citizens. The auxiliary now has 103 members performing various services.

Trinity Towers has a new $2.7 million wing, which will be open to the public for tours from 2 to 4 p.m. today. Helen Luff is director of the auxiliary. Other officers are Jo McGill, co-director; Mildred Brown, treasurer; Evelyn Heard, recording secretary, and Pat Ross, corresponding secretary. The auxiliary has a regular schedule of events for the residents. These include: Bible study, conducted by Euradine Waugh and Betty Jons; birthday party, with Theta Redding and Lucille Semple, chairmen; game day on Thursdays, with Jerry Sloan and Paola Brenneman, chairmen; listening hour, with Rita Smith and Evelyn Minear, chairmen. Also physical fitness, Mrs. McGill, chairman; sewing, Lila Seiler and Ruby Sauer; refreshment cart, Wilma Maley and Ann Anthony. Other chairmen and committees are: Contact, Ann White; Gift Shop, Lola Kerr; desk, Lydia Wilkinson; library books, Ralph Hickman; Mildred Brown, membership records; Mary Maude Hickman, newsletter; Alyce Swann, sunshine; Angela Williams, seasonal decorations; Bea McGrath and Dell Ruwee, shopping; Thelma Echols, transportation; Mrs. Maley and Mrs. Hickman, Transportation Night; Mrs. Anthony, Vesper Hour; Clarice Hollingsworth, visitation; and Helen Reid, publicity.

The latest project of the auxiliary is a cookbook, featuring recipes of the residents and auxiliary members.

Patricia Green weds

Patricia Gail Green became the bride of Timothy Scot Riggan in a double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in First Baptist Church. The Rev. Douglas Beggs of Dallas officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Don Green of 2809 Maxwell St. and Elizabeth Riggan of Monahan and Harold Lynn Riggan of 3202 Ma-Mar St.

Doris Bruce was the organist, and the soloists were Lew Riggan, brother of the bridegroom, and Loretta Bybee.

Mr. Green presented his daughter in marriage. She wore an A-line silhouette of silk sheer eyelet embroidery and Venise laces. The fitted Empire bodice was overlaid with Venise appliques which extended over the waistline traced with maize silk ribbon. The square neckline was traced with lace. A twin capelet of scalloped silk embroidery encircled the shoulders and formed demure scalloped sleeves. The same embroidery formed a deep flounce hemline, which extended the full length of the chapel train. A tailored bow with long streamers in maize silk ribbon extended down the back of the train. Her face was framed with a matching picture hat covered with the scalloped embroidery forming the brim. Maize ribbon and Venise lace traced the crown and was sprinkled upon the hat. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and yellow roses. She also carried a handkerchief belonging to her great-great aunt, and that was carried by her mother and her great-aunt, Mrs. Fred Cassidy of Midland. Mrs. Leslie Plagens of Lubbock was matron of honor. The bridesmaid was Patricia LaMonica of Houston, cousin of the bride.

The best man was John Jorgenson of Copperas Cove. Don Green, brother of the bride, was groomsmen, and Larry Riggan, brother of the bridegroom, and Mike Stamper were the ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlor.

Mrs. Timothy Scot Riggan

The couple will reside at 4000 W. Illinois St., No. 101.

Out-city guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Green of Hurst, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Riggan of Lamesa, grandparents of the bridegroom.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents in Midland Country Club.

A tea was given for the bride in the home of Mrs. George Harley, with Mrs. Arthur Dinsmoor as co-hostess. An ice cream party for the couple was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Floyd. The co-hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Duke Jimerson, Dr. and Mrs. John Greer and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Poe.

Mrs. Gary Seay and Mrs. Dennis Finn were hostesses to a rice bag party, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Priddy had a buffet party for the couple.

HOME EC NOTES

Before buying a bicycle child carrier, try to examine it installed on a bike. Place the child on the seat and make sure the child's feet won't be too near the spokes. This warning is from Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.

About five percent, or approximately one million older people, live in institutions of all kinds, reports Mrs. Vivian Blair, family life education specialist-aging, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.

SENIOR PARTIES

Tammy Collins, a Lee High School senior, was the honoree at a brunch in the home of Mrs. Wendell Smith of 3207 Seaboard Ave. Miss Collins, daughter of Mrs. Beverly Holmes, plans to attend Midland College and Southwest Texas State University, studying political science.

A Lee High School graduating senior, Charliss Smith, was honored with an ice cream sundae party in the home of Mrs.

William Pendleton, 3210 Seaboard St. Miss Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Smith, plans to attend Southwest Texas State University.

Melinda Gaye Richardson, graduating senior at Lee High School, was honored with a patio Coke party at the home of Mrs. Joe Daskevich.

Hostesses with Mrs. Dasinger were Mrs. A. A. Arnold and Mrs. Joe Peacock. Miss Richardson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Richardson.

Lynda Milwee, graduating Lee High School of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Milwee of 3104 Seaboard Ave., plans to attend a dinner in the home of Mrs. S.O. Hawley, 3518 Texas Tech University in Gulf Ave. Co-hostess was Mrs. Don Huxman.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

The Midland Woman's Club will have its "Final Fling" at the Shoppers' Luncheon to be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday in the clubhouse.

The "Final Fling" will be dedicated to 24 patron members of the club.

EPISCOPAL WOMEN

The Women of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity will hold their regularly scheduled meeting beginning at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the Parish Hall. A board meeting will precede the general meeting at 10 a.m.

The program will be given by Mrs. Pat Baskin, who will do a review of Neil Simon's play entitled "God's Favorite." This play will be showing this spring in the new Midland Community Theatre. A luncheon will follow the program.

Marsha Ann Robinson wed to Bryan Keith Richards

Marsha Ann Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Marsh Robinson of Albuquerque, N.M., formerly of Midland, became the bride of Bryan Keith Richards of Lubbock in a double ring candlelight ceremony at 2 p.m. Saturday in the chapel of the First United Methodist Church. Dr. O.A. McBrayer officiated the vows.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold R. Richards of Lubbock.

Mrs. Rhuben Weeks of Hewitt, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Laura Richards of Lubbock, sister of the bridegroom. Mrs. Roy Scruggs Jr. of Brownsville, cousin of the bride, was bridesmatron.

Clark Richards of Lubbock served his brother as best man. Other attendants were Ron Richards, also brother of the bridegroom, and Danny Huereca, both of Lubbock.

Keith Jameson and David Bryan, both of Lubbock, ushered the guests. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Gary Hall of Midland, organist, and Mrs. Bruce Freeman of Amarillo, soloist.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chiffonella designed with a bodice featuring a standup collar, all completely overlaid with Queen's lace. The long, fitted sleeves began with a lace cap at the shoulder and were overlaid with lace at the wrist. The controlled floor-length skirt featured a Queen's lace border and a deep flounce at the skirt's edge, with side and back fullness forming a sanctuary train. She also wore a cameo brought to her by her father from Italy.

Her tiered veil of imported illusion was attached to a bride's crown of lace festooned with seed pearls and Aurora crystals.

The bride carried a nosegay composed of Sonja roses, white carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath accented with greenery. Showing at the bottom edge of the bouquet was the lace border of a handmade French handkerchief, bought by the bride in Paris.

A reception was held in the church parlor immediately following the ceremony.

Officers installed

The Iota Beta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the Branding Iron Restaurant for dinner, a business session and installation of officers.

Awards were presented to Mary Hurst, program of the year, "Child Psychology;" Karen Holloway, Sandy Flournoy and Brenda Nance, perfect attendance. Officers received officers' pins from Mrs. Nance for their year of service. She also presented the chapter advisor, Charline Shepherd, with her advisor pin. Mrs. Nance received the past president's pin from Mrs. Shepherd.

Officers installed by Mrs. Shepherd were: Margie Lanning, president; Mrs. Holloway, first vice president; Carol Hall, second vice president; Irma Escontrias, recording secretary; Dianna Tanner, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Hurst, treasurer.

The final business meeting of the year and the revealing of secret sisters will be at 7 p.m. Monday in the home of Mrs. Lanning.

After a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will live in Lafayette, La., where the bridegroom will be employed as a geologist with Superior Oil Co.

The bride, a graduate of Texas Tech University who did her dietetic internship at Vanderbilt University Medical Center, is a registered dietitian. The bridegroom is a May graduate of Texas Tech.

THE VISIBLE WOMAN Mother saint to group

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

The 1890s. It was America's age of industrialization when waves of immigrants swept in from Asia and Europe. It was the era of empires, when men built fortunes on the expansion of a nation, and the cheap labor who'd come to escape poverty and feudalism elsewhere.

Today we look for role models, but the ending of last century and the beginning of this one called for saints.

Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, founder of a small religious order in Italy came to American in the midst of that immigrant movement. As a child, Cabrini had a mystical experience that convinced her that she would become a missionary. When Pope Leo XIII gave her permission to expand her order to the United States, Cabrini was crestfallen. America? She'd dreamed of exotic, dangerous lands. Everyone was going to America, for the streets were paved with gold. America it was.

July 15 marks the birthday of this remarkable woman, and at least a half-dozen American cities have reason to celebrate her mission to the United States. Cabrini's contribution to the quality of life in New York, Newark, Chicago, New Orleans, Seattle, Denver and Los Angeles is easily overlooked in our era of social services and government welfare. Nevertheless, her gift was great.

Cabrini was a small woman, and because of her frail health, several religious orders refused her petition for admission. Eventually she did take vows, and soon began the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart.

When Cabrini and her cluster of nuns boarded the ship to America, they saw the plight of the immigrants. Families were wrenched apart. Expectations were high. Education and money were limited. The European immigrants, few of whom spoke English, were easy marks for the labor market that devoured cheap labor and spat it out in the form of pestilence, industrial accidents, disease and shocking living conditions.

At the turn of the century, many women and children toiled long hours in the factories. There were few schools. When parents died or lost their sanity, no refuge claimed the children. Instead, boys and girls slept in alleys and under stairs, stealing whatever food they could. Murderous epidemics of flu, yellow fever, and countless other diseases repeatedly swept cities and countryside alike. The immigrants, because of their helplessness, suffered deeply.

Even so, the bishop who'd requested her presence in the first place, asked that Cabrini return to Italy soon after she arrived. He and a donor who'd promised an orphanage couldn't agree on a site. Cabrini refused to go. The pope had sent her, and she would find a way to stay.

In May, 1889, a New York newspaper described the beginnings of Cabrini's work.

"This week young ladies with radiant faces dressed in plain black religious hoods and robes were seen coursing the overcrowded streets of Little Italy between the ghetto and Chinatown, befriending and soliciting the Italians."

The story went on. The article described Cabrini as "a diminutive youthful lady with great eyes and an attractive smiling face. She does not know the English language, but she knows the universal language of the human spirit."

Gifted children share like traits

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. Do all gifted children have the same personality pattern? My husband thinks so, and says that our daughter can't be so bright because she really doesn't like to read, is a sports fiend, and is happy and outgoing.

A. No, he isn't. Although every teacher our daughter has had commented on her brightness, he stubbornly sticks to his narrow ideas.

Studies by L.M. Terman, and many others, indicate that gifted children are generally above average in many measurable traits, including athletic achievement, emotional adjustment and health conditions.

There are exceptions, of course, but gifted children show no more tendency to possess similar personalities or interests than do so-called average or slow youngsters. They are individuals with all the variations of other groups of children.

They don't all do well in school or like to read, and those factors upset many of their parents and teachers.

Q. Although our two- and one-half-year-old daughter seems perfectly healthy, I worry because she eats so little.

A. Prepare her meals in an attractive way, always with balance in mind.

but she picks at them most of the time. She usually eats her—evening meal with some enthusiasm, generally finishing it, but breakfast and lunch are a constant drag.

A. You probably are, but your pediatrician or family doctor is the best one to tell you.

Woman's Association holds final meeting

The Junior Woman's Association held its final meeting of the year, an installation dinner, in the home of Mrs. Dan Colwell.

Hostesses were members of the social committee, Mrs. Jerry Roan, Mrs. Don Humphrey, Mrs. Joe Marro, Mrs. Larry Peel and Mrs. Colwell.

Mrs. Roan conducted the installation of the following officers: Mrs. Ron Pepper, president; Mrs. Ken Yates, first vice president; Mrs. Ronnie Brice, second vice president; Mrs. Marro, recording secretary; Mrs. Ray Lechler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Trey Grafa, treasurer, and Mrs. David Adams, parliamentarian.

The committee chairmen for the coming year are Mrs. Don Sutton, social; Mrs. Thomas Geib, ways and means; Mrs. Peel, telephone; Mrs. Adams, bylaws; Mrs. Brice, civic projects; Mrs. Jerry Gordon, membership.

Mrs. Roan was elected Outstanding Junior Clubwoman for 1977-78. She was selected on the basis of loyalty, participation, interest and devotion to the group. She received the award from Mrs. Heasley Rook, who received the award for 1976-77.

Mrs. Ronnie Sowers, outgoing president, was presented a plaque by the association in appreciation of her services for the current year.

The annual benefit luncheon and style show will be held in February, instead of October, with proceeds contributed to the community. Recognized for perfect attendance records during the year were Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Brice, Mrs. Benny Cason, Mrs. Colwell, Mrs. James "Doc" Dodson, Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Pepper, Mrs. Roan, Mrs. Sowers and Mrs. Yates.

Sheila Slankard bride of McClure

Sheila Marie Slankard and Rodrick H. McClure were married in a double ring ceremony at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Fraternal Order of Eagles Hall. Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotoren officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Slankard of Flint, Mich., and the bridegroom is the son of Harold L. McClure of Route 1.

After a trip to Colorado and Wichita Falls, the couple will reside at Route 3, Space 104.

The bride and bridegroom are telephone installation technicians with Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. The bride attends Midland College, and the bridegroom is a graduate of Midland High School.

Karen Cypert of Odessa was the matron of honor. Brad Patterson of Odessa was best man. The flower girl was Cindy Cypert of Odessa, and the ring bearer was Clint Cypert of Odessa. The father of the bride presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown in a white and yellow theme designed and made by the bridegroom. It was of yellow sheer nylon and white and yellow decorative flowers underlined with yellow voile. The bodice had an Empire waistline and was topped with a pale yellow shawl. She wore a ring of daisies in her hair.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

Now's the time to start on your summer figure!
...Now he'll take me somewhere besides the local hamburger stand

Like Tommie Gray, you can shape up at Pat Walker's!

She had never had a weight problem until after her second baby was born, Tommie Gray explains. Then she couldn't seem to shed the extra weight and inches.

"I kept having to buy bigger clothes," she says. And although she wanted to do something about her figure, she wasn't sure just what to do until her sister mentioned that she was going to Pat Walker's for a complimentary treatment.

Her sister was so pleased with the Pat Walker program that Tommie decided to try it, too. Her husband, unfortunately, didn't share Tommie's enthusiasm—but she went, anyway, without his knowledge.

...knew I had to tell him!

"After I had been going a few weeks he noticed my weight loss," Tommie continues. "Everyone noticed, but I did not tell anyone. The day I was asked to do a Pat Walker ad, I knew I had to tell my husband. . . . He was very shocked, but he is glad I went and now keeps up with my progress." (And great progress it's been, too: so far, Tommie has lost 24 1/4 pounds and 28 3/4 inches.)

"Maybe we'll be going more places now," she adds jokingly. "He says now he'll take me somewhere besides the local hamburger stand!"

Reduce the pleasant way

Whether you've been fighting excess weight a long time or, like Tommie Gray, find the need to reduce a fairly recent development, you can achieve your desired weight goal at Pat Walker's. And you can do it without stringent dieting or strenuous physical exercise.

The Pat Walker program, which has benefited millions throughout the world over the past 26 years, puts you on your own individualized plan and gives you plenty of help from friendly, interested counselors. Every program begins with a confidential figure analysis to determine how much weight you need to lose—and where you need to lose it.

SYMMETRICON

Your professional counselor teaches you sensible eating habits that allow you to eat favorite foods at any meal—but within reason. She also supervises your program and treatments on SYMMETRICON, the passive exercise equipment exclusive to Pat Walker's.

The SYMMETRICON gently provides the exercise you need to trim away unwanted pounds while it also firms and tones body tissue. The treatments are given in complete privacy, of course, and you can wear your regular street clothes.

Are you ready for summer

...and the more revealing clothes you'll wear for fun in the sun? Call TODAY for a FREE figure analysis and treatment. There's no charge or obligation. All you need to do is call or come by to reserve time for your complimentary appointment.

Cleaning fluid may be harmful

The most commonly used dry cleaning fluid, perc., may be harmful to laundry workers and users of coin-operated cleaning machines, the National Cancer Institute says. The institute says perchloroethylene causes cancer in mice. The findings, to be published in the Federal Register next month, are based on a two-year study. Of mice that lived through the testing, nearly 65 per cent of the males and 40 per cent of the females developed cancer. Dry cleaning industry spokesmen said the fluid is safe and that the only practical substitute would violate the fire codes of most cities. The manufacturer, Dow Chemical Co., said no cancers had developed in studies Dow conducted with rats, using vapor concentrations three to six times those permitted in cleaning establishments.

TPW appointment told

CRANE—Roberta Stagg of the Crane News has been renamed publications director for Texas Press Women, Inc., for the second consecutive year. The appointment was announced by TPW president, Eliza Bishop of Crockett.

Mrs. Stagg is a member of District 2 of TPW, which encompasses a 17-county area, including towns of Midland, Odessa, Crane, Big Spring and Monahans.

Texas Press Women, Inc., is a state organization for professional communicators and an affiliate of the National Federation of Press Women.

Overweight could make sex impasse

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Overweight may be one of the biggest deterrents to sexual compatibility; and the resulting incompatibility, conversely, is one of the most prevalent causes of overweight. The obese persons of both sexes may often feel unloved and unwanted by the opposite sex. The normal sexual needs and desires of the human being are thwarted, and other sensual means of gratification are substituted. Food and drink are the most frequent sources of solace sought by the unhappy, frustrated and lonely people.

Their problems are often compounded as they add even more weight to their already distorted physiques. "Bingetype" eating habits are indulged in, to temporarily relieve a new hurt or another rejection. This is when the emotions take over and reason or judgment goes out the window.

During such binging, no amount of pleading, threatening or cajoling will make any difference to the binger, who appears to be hell-bent on self-destruction. He or she may feel alone, even shut out from society, and is determined to get his kicks any way he can.

Specific foods can become psychologically addictive and may be used to allay specific problems. Chocolate is one such food. Many people are so-called "choc-a-holics" and virtually must have it if a specific problem arises.

People who have experienced crisis-type emotional eating binges often feel guilty and depressed following such an episode. These negative feelings may be so intense that another binge, to relieve them, may occur.

Close investigation of these all-too-common problems usually reveals that emotional eating habits were learned early in life, from other members of the family, usually one or both parents.

Like all learned habits, they can be unlearned. It will take time, effort and patience, but it can be done, and it is well worth it to be rid of the "monkey on your back."

Not all people are turned off by an obese sexual partner. Some men prefer fat women, and some women may enjoy fat men. Other cultures equate overweight with wealth. Years ago, pleasingly plump women and babies implied good health.

PTA NEWS

Bridal courtesies honors Miss Miles

A display bridal shower honoring Barbara Miles, bride-elect of Kyle Covington, was given Saturday by Mrs. Kenneth E. Booe of El Paso in the home of Mrs. Booe's daughter, Mrs. Richard Venator, 2824 Metz Drive.

Assisting Mrs. Booe as co-hostesses were Shirley Jones, Pauline Hobbs, Verna Gill, June Chapman, Donna Gill, Louise Hitchcock and Mrs. Venator.

HOME EC NOTES

As soon as a toothbrush shows wear, replace it, advises Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

MINI RECIPES

Add a skinned, seeded and finely diced ripe tomato to homemade mayonnaise and serve with asparagus.

For good flavor slowly heat canned black-eyed peas with a bay leaf, a sprig of dried thyme, a whole clove and several sprigs of parsley. Add lots of black pepper and serve with corn bread made without sugar.

DEAR ABBY

Talk of town is 'high class lady'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife died 18 months ago, and this lady I'm interested in has been a widow for three years. We knew each other "way back when." I'm 66 and this lady is 63.

Before I renew our friendship, I'd like to ask you a few questions. Since her husband died, she's had several men staying with her (one at a time) in her one-bedroom trailer. I've also heard that she has visited an old farmer at his farmhouse (just the two of them) for days at a time.

Last week she headed for Colorado with another old buddy in his camper truck. She said she planned to sleep in motels on the way, and he would sleep in the truck; she didn't say where they would sleep once they got to Colorado.

Now, Abby, I don't want to marry a woman who has a bad reputation. She's the talk of this little town, but she is really a very high-class lady and everybody likes her. What is your advice?

DEAR FRANK: It seems almost a disservice to the community to take this aging swinger out of circulation—if indeed you could. But if you regard this woman as a "high-class lady," any advice I could give you would fall on deaf ears. And your vision isn't too good, either.

DEAR ABBY: I have recently moved into a high-rise apartment, live alone, and have a problem that I imagine other single girls who live alone must have. (I am 20 and am saving myself for marriage.)

When my date brings me home, should we say good-night in the lobby, where the doorman, night watchman and tenants can watch us? Or should I ask my date to walk me to my apartment door and say good-night there? Or should I invite him to step into my apartment to say good-night?

When I first moved here, I let my date step into my apartment to thank him for the lovely evening and it ended up in a one-hour wrestling match. I had a terrible time getting rid of him.

Please answer soon as I have no mother to ask.

and at least we'd have each other. I need advice.

Thank you.—TEARS ON MY PILLOW
DEAR TEARS: Don't use marriage as an excuse to get out of the house—no matter how "miserable" it is. I urge you to finish high school while you have the chance. The "later" you mention rarely comes. Children usually do, instead.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl who has a very unhappy home life. My folks have been fighting ever since I can remember. They treat me like dirt, and I want to tell you, it is miserable and rotten.

My boyfriend, Brad, is 18, and he comes from a home that's even rot-tener, if there is such a word. His folks not only fight all the time, but his father beats on his mother. Anyway, Brad has been crazy about me ever since 7th grade and we are thinking of getting married when he graduates from high school in June. He plans to work days at a garage and go to trade school for mechanics at night. He's real good with cars, and motors.

Should I quit school and get a job when Brad graduates? I'd have only a year to go, and could finish later. We wouldn't have much money; but we wouldn't need much.

Couple has city wedding

Christopher Bruce Reeves married Phyllis June Reeves in a double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday in Calvary Assembly of God Church. The Rev. J. W. Farmer of the First Assembly of God Church and the Rev. A. W. Reeves officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Reeves of 3711 Gulf St. are the parents of the bride, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll B. Reeves of 3111 Barkley St.

The couple will reside at 217 E. Circle Drive, Apartment B.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of soft white organza detailed with imported French Chantilly lace. The Empire bodice was covered with lace and edged with crystal pleating, with the pleating forming the stand collar. The sheer bishop sleeves were lace trimmed. Crystal pleats edged the full chapel-length skirt and were up the back of the train. She carried a cascade of white carnations scattered with apricot roses and centered with an apricot rose corsage.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Delores Jennings, organist; Betty Clary, pianist, and Olivia Sanchez, soloist.

Beth Ann O'Brien of Lubbock served as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Debbie Clary and Wanda Boren. Melody Boren was flower girl.

The best man was Kevin Banks of Weatherford, Okla. Billy Baker of Gainesville and Marty Garrison of Odessa were groomsmen, and Jody Gray of Gainesville, Duane Clary and Dennis Reeves were ushers. The ring bearer was Matt Rankin.

The reception was held in the Fellowship Hall.

New regulations govern hearing aid sales

By RUBY SEXTON
Copley News Service

More than 40 per cent of the people who buy hearing aids go to a dealer before consulting a physician or other trained specialist, according to statistics from the hearing aid industry.

And in many cases, persons who buy hearing aids cannot be helped by them and may actually need medical treatment, surgery or rehabilitative services instead, a federal task force says.

But that should change soon. There are new federal regulations governing the sale of hearing aids.

The regulations from the Food and Drug Administration require a medical evaluation by a licensed physician within six months before the purchase of any hearing aid equipment.

No hearing aid may be sold without a signed statement by the examining physician that the device is needed, and the seller must keep this statement on file. However, the buyer could sign a waiver of the evaluation requirement — a weakness in the rules.

The regulations also require the seller to provide an instructional brochure giving more information about hearing aids and their use and spelling out what they can and cannot accomplish.

A previous FDA study showed that hearing aid labeling was often inadequate and misleading and did not include important warnings to the user.

Some dealers have claimed that normal hearing would be restored by a hearing aid or that hearing would deteriorate further without one, but these claims cannot be supported by medical facts, the FDA says.

A hearing aid is a major purchase, costing from $300 to $450 or more, and about half the buyers are over age 65. The FDA strongly recommends an evaluation by a clinical audiologist, in addition to the required medical evaluation, to make sure the hearing aid will really be helpful.

Club 'worthy advisor' installed in Midland

Leslie Stanaland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Stanaland of 3302 W. Michigan Ave., was installed Saturday as worthy advisor of Midland Assembly No. 193, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, in an open installation in the Masonic Temple.

Leslie Stanaland

Other officers installed were: Debra McCarty, worthy associate advisor; Denise Baucum, charity; Karen Fidler, hope; Shelli Speck, faith; Traci Speck, chaplain; Kari Schmitter, drill leader; Laura McCarty, love; Carrie Marchant, religion; Tracy Ward, nature; Robin Byrd, immortality; Mary Bodnar, fidelity; Susan Engleman, patriotism; Patricia Saggisor, confidential observer; Traci Martin, outer observer; Gena McClelland, musician, and Cindy Taylor, choir director.

Cindy Bledsoe was installing officer. She was assisted by Laurie Stanaland Taylor, Darlene Maddox, Beth Baucum and Debbie Strickland, all past worthy advisors of Midland Assembly No. 193.

Dale Taylor presented the Bible. The invocation was given by W. O. Washington, and the welcome was by Dale Stanaland. The worthy advisor's Bible was presented by Keith Mikkeworth, chairman of the board.

Miss Stanaland's poem, "Desiderata," was read by Miss Ridler. Her song, "How Great Thou Art," was presented by Miss McCarty and Miss Maddox. The benediction was given by Don McCarty. Miss Stanaland dedicated her term to her sister, Mrs.

Taylor. Carla McCarty, mother advisor, presented merit and service bars. A reception was held in the Banquet Room of the temple.

Out-of-city guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Washington, Mrs. H. B. Stanaland, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Swindell, Patty and Donna and Christy Swindell of Big Spring, Mrs. S. L. Stanaland of Abilene and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Barry and Brook of San Antonio.

Teach homely girl to be positive

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. Our daughters look about as different from each other as two people can. One (she's 14) is blonde and beautiful. The other, who is 12, is dark and frankly quite homely.

The younger one knows that she is nothing much to look at, and often cries because so many people comment about how pretty her sister is.

What can I do to help her feel better about herself? A. "Lead from strength" is probably a good piece of advice. On which of her abilities can you capitalize? School achievement, sports, home activities or what?

Appearance isn't everything, although it is often difficult to get that point across to a 12-year-old girl. But it doesn't consist exclusively of facial characteristics; it also includes clothing, bearing and a lot more.

You can, of course, stress all of these factors. Still, you have to be honest with her and not evade the fact that her sister is prettier if she brings up the point. You can't distract her by changing the subject or denying what she knows very well. She's no baby.

Q. Do you think it is necessary that children write thank-you notes for presents they receive? My wife feels strongly that they should, but I started out not caring very much either way.

Now I'm against the whole thing because it frequently ends up in tears and hard feelings.

Until recently I wasn't directly involved. I am now because of the pressure she puts on our children, and their resentment. They are 8 and 10 years old, both boys.

I think it's enough to thank people in person or on the phone, in any way that's polite and doesn't create all this turmoil. How do you feel about it?

A. Children should be taught by example and encouragement to thank people for whatever they give to them or do for them. Their appreciation doesn't have to be put into writing, and certainly not when it results in family conflicts.

Even many adults do not enjoy writing to thank others for gifts, but they frequently do so because "it's the thing to do." Strict advocates of good manners may differ with me, but I think that any expression of appreciation is enough, just so it is offered sincerely and promptly.

Photographs produce 'in' decorating focus

Copley News Service

As camera equipment has improved producing dramatic effect. A total many talented photographers — both professional and amateur — photography is becoming more of an art form.

The trend, especially in apartment design, is toward a personal individualized look. Photographs are an effective medium to accomplish this and in most cases are not too much of a strain on the budget.

Photographs in all shapes and sizes can be used to create unique settings for every room in the apartment and can tie it all together serving as a central theme.

You may already own photographs of people, places or favorite activities that can form the nucleus of a decorating plan.

Almost anything goes from antique portraits of grandmothers and grandfathers to photos that illustrate a hobby such as sailing, tennis or horseback riding.

In short, the photos add personality and warmth to the apartment because they reflect something about the people who live there.

Once you select your photos, there are many things that you can do with them to create a dramatic effect. A total wall photomural can be executed by making a series of 40-inch-wide panels.

A screen can be covered with an enlarged photographic image or repetitive pattern and a portrait gallery can be personalized a long hall or staircase.

One idea is to create a view where one does not exist. A photomural can transform a dull room into a spectacular setting. A coating of special lacquer can be brushed on to protect the print.

Photography is one medium that blends well with other types of art from sculpture to watercolors or oils.

One of the best ways to highlight a photo gallery is with the installation of track lighting on the ceiling. It can be moved if you decide to change the photo layout with the addition or substitution of a few prints.

If you aren't a photographer, there are many professionals that would be glad to sell you theirs. Most photographers keep a catalog of their best work and can help you prepare and mount custom prints.

Besides giving you satisfaction, a photo collection is a great conversation piece for parties. Use your imagination and see what kind of home photo gallery you can create.

Study shows relationship between the pill and cancer

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — An association between oral contraceptives and an easily detectable and curable precancerous genital condition was reported by a scientist who stressed a need for more studies to try to find out if a cause-effect relationship exists. The condition, called cancer in situ or cervical cancer, occurs in the cervix, the neck of the uterus. With the aid of a simple test called the Pap smear, it can be readily detected and cured. Left untreated it can become invasive.

In at least two dozen studies over the years, researchers have neither proved nor disproved a link between the pill and cervical cancer, and sometimes have reached opposite conclusions.

A major reason for their difficulty is that sexual behavior and the type of contraception affect the incidence of the disease. For example, a woman with multiple sex partners increases the risk of getting cervical cancer; a woman using a diaphragm, or whose partner uses a condom, decreases the risk.

Dr. Savitri Ramcharan reported that in one of the largest and most comprehensive studies ever made of pill side effects, cervical cancer in women who had used the sex-hormone drugs for at least four years was about three to five times as common as in women who never used them.

The study indicated that the risk of cervical cancer increased with the duration of use, with 17 of the 35 cases occurring in women who had taken the pill for four or more years. The rates per 100,000 person-years of use were: zero use, 32; up to one year, 63; one to four years, 97, and four years or longer, 173.

Ramcharan emphasized, however, that sexual behavior — particularly a woman's age at first intercourse and the number of sexual partners — "could be responsible for the differences in the incidence of cervical cancer which we found."

"Consequently," she continued, "we initiated in the same population of women a case comparison study to clarify this issue. Preliminary results ... suggest that sexual behavior may account for some but not all of the difference."

Should her study cause users to worry about cervical cancer? Reporters asked her.

MISS HIGGINS MARRIES DENT

COLLEGE STATION Sharon Denise Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Higgins of 4016 Roosevelt St., Midland, and James Jefferson Dent III, son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Dent Jr. of Coldspring, were married in a garden ceremony at noon Saturday.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Gary Mathews and Craig Peterson at the All Faiths Chapel here.

The couple will reside at 104 N. Baker St. in Bryan.

Shirley Meier of Ennis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Cheryl Langford of Odessa was the maid of honor. The bridesmatron was Karen Forrest of Bryan. Mindi Meier of Ennis, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

David Finney of Huntsville was the best man. The groomsmen were Clayton Smith of Bryan and Michael Avery of Houston. Doug Meier of Ennis, brother-in-law of the bride, and Don Higgins of Midland, brother of the bride, were the ushers.

The guitarist and soloist was Ray Leighman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sleeveless dress with Empire waistline and train. It was styled of white Quiana decorated with re-embroidered French lace and white pearls. She wore a white hat trimmed with white lace and blue ribbons and flowers. She carried a bouquet of white and blue roses and white gardenias.

A reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forrest.

The couple plans to be married at 2 p.m. July 15 in home of the bride-elect's parents.

EX-BROTHERLADY MADAM CITY MAYOR

SAUSALITO, Calif. (AP)—If Sally Stanford has her way, she will be the first former madam to be elected President of the United States.

But the 75-year-old mayor of Sausalito doesn't expect to run for President in the 1980 elections. In fact, she doesn't plan to be the chief executive in this lifetime. "I believe in reincarnation," she says.

Miss Stanford was first elected to the Sausalito City Council in 1972. She was re-elected in 1974, and in 1976 her colleagues named her mayor.

She has been a bootlegger, has run a speakeasy and has operated a brothel. She owns a restaurant, has been married six times and, she added, "I'm a grandmother."

She lists among her honors a distinguished citizens award from the city of San Francisco and, most recently, the Paul Harris Fellowship from Rotary International. Both awards cite her humanitarian work as a council member.

HOME EC NOTES

COLLEGE STATION—When oven roasting and baking, practice energy-saving methods, says Dr. Carolyn McKinney, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

The specialist suggests several energy saving techniques.

When roasting large items, avoid preheating the oven—it is unnecessary and wastes several minutes of heat.

When baking cakes, pies, or cookies, preheat the oven—but have pans ready to go in as soon as the preheat temperature is reached.

Then, resist the temptation to "peek." A 20 percent heat loss occurs each time the oven door is open.

This wastes energy and also increases baking time.

Plan to bake several items requiring the same temperature at the same time.

Then, use "leftover" oven heat to crisp crackers, dry bread crumbs, or warm other foods, she adds.

Colic, a condition responsible for many a parent's nocturnal floor walking, is usually considered a disease of infants. However, entrapped intestinal gas, causing abdominal pain and spasm, can be a problem for any one and at any age.

Entrapped gas occurs in the form of bubble masses, and relief is obtained when these bubbles are dispersed. In recent years, simethicone, a defoaming agent, has been incorporated into a medication called Phazyme, specifically for gastrointestinal gas.

A recently marketed formulation of this tablet for relief of acute and severe gas pains contains an increased amount of simethicone (Phazyme 95).

Adults get colic, too

MINI RECIPES

To separate cake and cakepan, rotate the pan so that weight is balanced on each side, says Foods and Nutrition Specialist Marilyn Haggard, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "The cake will loosen by its own weight," Miss Haggard says.

The Wine Cellar by Sam Day. White wines differ from red wine in different ways besides their color. Generally white wines do not age as well as reds. Many whites are not dry whereas most reds are. To prevent whites from becoming dry, the fermentation must be stopped before all of the sugar has been converted into alcohol. This means the yeasts, which cause fermentation, have to be removed. A vintner can do this by adding sulfur, or by filtering the yeast out, or by chilling the wine below the temperature at which fermentation can take place.

At IMPERIAL LIQUORS, 3209 W. Wadley, 694-4256 you can choose from a top collection of fine wines, both red and white, imported and domestic. We also bring you the full spectrum of liquors and party goods, perhaps the biggest selection of imported beers in town, and certainly the upper tip in memory! Open: 10-9 MON-SAT.

New Yorker to be 'Light of Hussein'

By MICHAEL KERNAN
The Washington Post

"I'd say, if she was going to marry a king, Hussein would be the one I'd choose."

That was Mrs. Najeeb Halaby speaking from New York, still elated with the news that her daughter Lisa, christened Elizabeth, is engaged to the king of Jordan and is expected to marry him later this month.

While the world's press frantically tied up the telephone lines to the capital city of Amman, 26-year-old Halaby, daughter of the former chief executive of Pan American World Airways and administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency, took shelter in the royal compound, fleeing her besieged apartment and her office.

FOR THE PAST year she has been director of facilities, planning and design for the Royal Jordanian Airlines, a post that sent her rushing about the world for Alia, as the firm is known. But it was in Amman that she met Hussein, who has been for years a friend of her father.

Some weeks ago, Hussein invited her and her father to a house party at his winter place at Agaba, on the Red Sea. The relationship developed quickly from there.

The Washington, D.C., native, has been given the Arabic name Nur al Hussein, or "Light of Hussein," and probably will be called Princess Nur. The word can be translated as "glow," as in moonlight.

Friends describe her as warm and open, yet careful about emotional entanglements and very aware of the difficulties faced by a Western woman living alone in the Near East. "SHE'S VERY COOL and poised," one friend said. "She moved easily between the West and the Arab world, and she has the knack of being friends in a comradely way. She likes to dance, worries about money, and is extremely serious about her work."

In Amman, the main reaction was surprise, tempered by the traditional Jordanian Bedouin hospitality. Already taxis are carrying pictures of the king and his bride-to-be, and when Hussein and his tall blond fiancée drove through town Wednesday in his silver Mercedes convertible with the top down—the bearded, shirt-sleeved king himself at the wheel—faces brightened everywhere.

Palace sources said the marriage would take place in Raghdan Royal Palace in central Amman, possibly on May 25, which is Jordan's Independence Day. The bride, a Protestant, will convert to Islam in a few days, a process requiring that she proclaim before an Islamic court official that there is only one God and that God is Allah and the Messenger of Allah is Muhammad the Prophet.

THE HONEYMOON probably will be in Europe and the United States, palace sources said.

Jordanian tradition has it that to be called a queen, the king's consort must also be an Arab, and there is speculation in Amman whether Lisa Halaby's ancestry qualifies her. Najeeb Halaby's grandfather was born in Syria (Halaby means "from Aleppo"), and the family moved to Lebanon. His son immigrated to this country, settling in Dallas, where Najeeb was born.

Hussein, 42, has had three other wives, and only one, Alia, was named queen. She was killed in a helicopter crash in Jordan in February 1977. The first two marriages ended in divorce. Hussein has seven children.

THE DIMINUTIVE KING'S second wife, British-born Princess Muna, the former Toni Avril Gardiner, divides her time between Jordan and the United States, where she has children in school. In the 1972 divorce she won custody of the four children and ownership of Humar Palace 15 miles west of Amman.

A considerable American contingent is expected to fly to Jordan for the wedding. Najeeb Halaby, who now heads Halaby International Corp. in New York, an airlines services company with several Arab state clients, arrived in Amman Tuesday.

"We did know it was going to happen," Mrs. Halaby said, "when Lisa called about her plans." The king is reported to have proposed two weeks ago.

"We're delighted, of course. I met the king in 1972 but haven't seen much of him."

She said the family was not troubled at all about the religious conversion. "The only thing that bothers me," she chuckled, "is that I'd always hoped my grandchildren would be around the corner from me. But the other children and I feel that she seems very, very happy, and so we're happy for her."

SHE DESCRIBED her daughter as "a low-key girl, unaffected, adaptable," and said she loves sailing, tennis, skiing, reading and photography.

A 1974 graduate of Princeton University's School of Architecture and Urban Planning, the princess-to-be once took a year's leave to study photography at the now-defunct Center of the Eye in Aspen, Colo., later traveled to Australia with an expedition to photograph rare birds.

After college, she sought work with network radio, but had no luck, so she took a job with Arabair Services, which is partly owned by her father.

About 16 months ago she flew to Jordan with her father when Royal Jordanian Airlines took delivery of its first 747 jet. On that trip she met the airline president, Ali Ghandour, a friend of her father, and later she went to work for his firm.

Friends in Jordan said she appeared serious about her job, which took her all over the Near East to discuss airport expansion or computerized booking or other projects. Tanned and poised, dressed neatly in blouse and jeans, she rushed about constantly with her jam-packed briefcase.

"I NEVER COULD figure out exactly what her job was," one acquaintance said, "but she was always running off to meetings with important people, always studying reports and really seemed to work very hard. Oddly enough, she was not very political. I mean about the Arab-Israeli-Palestine situation and such."

The male-dominated paternalism of Arab society and business did not seem to faze her. Jordan's reputation along that line is considered more progressive than most Near East countries: Even in the Bedouin country, women no longer wear veils, and several women's organizations have been formed in Amman.

UNABLE FOR SOME TIME to find a comfortable apartment, she has been living until recently at the Amman Intercontinental, described as "very expensive digs indeed," where doormen and desk clerks adopted a protective attitude toward her.

She has been learning Arabic with a tutor. During her prep school days she spent two summers studying French in southern France, and she studied Greek for a summer in Paros, Greece.

On Wednesday Lisa Halaby and Hussein went to Amman airport to receive Crown Prince Hassan and his wife, Tharwat, who were returning from a visit to Morocco.

Hussein, who ascended the throne at 16 in 1952, was educated at Harrow and Sandhurst in England.

A family connection said, "He used to be a playboy, but he now has both feet on the ground. And so does she."

AT WIT'S END

Wonders if viewing rear end of trend

By ERMA BOMBECK

When I am recycled and come back into this world, I want to come as one of those people who are ahead of their time before it's fashionable.

You know the ones I'm talking about. The ones who are the first to deplore a war...who played tennis before it was "in"...who predicted their U.S. Senator would end up serving time before they won...who bought property along the beach when it was $1 an acre...who predicted 20 years ago that New York would go broke.

Some people are just meant to be pacesetters. Me? All I ever see is the rear end of a trend going out.

I never got to the "Islands" before they were open "anyone."

I was the last to discover the white wine.

The last to wear my sunglasses on top of my head.

The last to read "Roots."

The last to "get in touch with my feelings."

In fact, I don't know how I'm going to feel about anything until a bumper sticker comes out on it.

At a cocktail party the other night, I engaged in conversation with a physical fitness freak.

"Pound this stomach," he instructed, his entire body constricted. I hesitated.

"Go ahead. Punch it with your fist! Is that a solid wall of muscle?"

I had to agree.

"I hope you're keeping your body in shape," he admonished.

"Oh, I am. I have this thing that hooks over the doorknob that I limber up on."

"You're kidding. That's passe."

"Actually, it belongs to one of the kids. I personally have a book on Air Force exercises."

"Air Force? What do they know about fitness?"

"Which is exactly why I threw the book away. I'm into bicycling now and..."

"Bicycling was good in its time."

"I couldn't agree more. That's why I changed to tennis."

"Which is on its way out," he said. "Nothing does it as far as I'm concerned like jogging. It gets the old juices going. I want to see you out there tomorrow morning as if your health depended on it."

The next morning I wheezed and panted my way down the street in front of my house. At the turn I could see about 50 bodies kicking up the dust as they took a lead on me. I wondered if I was seeing the rear end of another trend...or was that just wishful thinking?

Court case West German first

BONN — A woman bakery employee has initiated the first West German court case on the issue of equal pay for men and women.

with her male colleagues.

The case has the backing of Anne Marie Renger, deputy speaker of the West German parliament. For years, she has been seeking a woman willing to apply formally for equal pay. She said that women had been afraid of losing their jobs if they took action.

Mrs. Renger said she would back Irene Einemann's claim. The Social Democrat Party (SPD), also has pledged backing.

Gardeners install Mrs. Dobbs leader

Pyracantha Garden Club closed its year's activities with a luncheon and installation of officers in the Garden Room of the Midland Woman's Club. Mrs. Leslie L. Burkhart, a guest, installed the following: Mrs. Harold Dobbs, president; Mrs. James Mann, first vice president; Mrs. Lucien D. Lindsey, second vice president; Mrs. E. V. Mitchell, secretary; Mrs. R. D. Hardman, treasurer; Mrs. Charles D. Bradley, corresponding secretary; Mrs. G. L. Allison, historian, and Mrs. J. C. Powers, reporter.

Mrs. Dobbs appointed the following committee chairmen: Mrs. Mann, membership; Mrs. T. C. Watkins, awards, Lancaster Garden Center-Museum of the Southwest representative and Arbor Day; Mrs. H. H. Lanford, telephone; Mrs. Powers, state, national and club projects; Mrs. Allison, scrapbook; Mrs. Clark Storm, horticulture advisor, and Mrs. Lindsey, programs.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGTER

(Sun., May 21, 1978)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have unusually accurate perceptions now on how to handle problems and you are able to get information you need that has been difficult to obtain before. Plan an interesting campaign of action whereby you can gain the progress that is important to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Handle responsibilities in a positive fashion. Listen to make a view and come to a true understanding. Avoid one who could make trouble for you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You are able to comprehend associates better now and can work together in a more efficient, harmonious way. A situation arises that can be handled very intelligently, also.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get into the work ahead of you and handle it efficiently, since the planets are favorable. Do whatever will improve your state of health. Stop laboring under some handicap.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Plan early to do what pleases you most and then get right to it and have a good time. Good day to also get into some creative work at which you are most adept. Gain extra benefits.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Work on those situations at home which bring more comfort and harmony there. Do some entertaining that can be most pleasurable. Don't neglect to shop early.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Talking over mutual ventures with allies is good, and much benefit can come of this. Handle correspondence and other forms of communication well. Don't waste time gossiping on the phone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You can handle practical affairs wisely now, so get at them early. Do whatever will add appreciably to your holdings. Make sure that you are ethical and all works out fine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You can go after personal goals and get good results since the planets are most favorable. Ideal time to be with good friends and have a fine time also.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You have to study more if you are to gain your most personal aims. Spend as much time as possible with mate, loved one. Be more understanding of his or her wishes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Look to good pals for the advancement you want now and they cooperate willingly. Go after a personal goal that means much to you. Avoid one who is working against you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Get into constructive work and show your fine talents early, especially to bigwigs. Get into civic work that will be helpful to you and to those who dwell in your community. Be active and you are happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Study well into new interests that could help you advance in life. Be sure to arrange now for a trip you want to take soon. Make the evening a happy one from a social standpoint.

(Mon., May 22, 1978)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The oncoming Full Moon is not good for you to take any chances now. Do not allow yourself the luxury of having any uncompromising views for if you do, you can easily estrange others and have difficult time in later reconciling any separation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Try not to commit yourself to any further expense, but pay pressing bills instead. Avoid arguing with mate, loved one. Concentrate on whatever is charming and beautiful. Think positive.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Your partners are not in a good mood today, so be with others until they are feeling better. Do not get into any arguments where a civic matter is concerned. Be most careful when out driving.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get work done alone without expecting help from others, but don't overdo. Take time for pleasant visits. Get home fixed nicely so that you are proud of it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you are courteous and charming with others, you avoid arguments and can have a pleasant day. Don't overspend for pleasure, but stay within your budget.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Don't bring up any controversial subjects at home, where tempers are apt to be short. Study into a new venture but don't jump right into it, as yet. Be wise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Use particular care in driving since others might be careless. Go after data you need in a quiet way from dependable sources. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A good time to instill economy measures, whether you think you need them or not. Don't take chances but listen to what a bigwig has to suggest. Think along more constructive lines.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You have ideas that could get you into trouble, so forget them now, and don't be forceful with others. Steer clear of a group affair where arguments could arise. Home is best bet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Although you may feel limited, this is no day for you to rant and rave, but to plan quietly how to better your lot in life. Clear the deck for action later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Your pals are in no mood to be helpful today so get things done on your own. Plan how to become more independent in the future also. You have more ability than you think.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have to be particularly cautious in the handling of worldly affairs now. Don't jeopardize your position with bigwigs by wrong words, actions. Be careful of your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Not a good time to get started on a new interest or you meet with a failure. You have made new contacts that can be good for you in the future. Forget those who have been drawbacks to you.
