Victory spelled M-I-D-L-A-N-D at Indy race

BY TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — What were the chances of the Midland-based Chaparral Lola racing team winning the Indy 500 Sunday?

Long time observers of this event were saying their chances were slim and none. Most were striking the slim part, and not without reason.

First there was Jim Hall, the Midland owner who was bringing the car to Indy for the first time. Rumors have persisted for years that the West Texan of 47 years would one day make a charge at Indy, but it was still his first year here. It's not that Hall's genius with race cars was questioned here, but most felt he still had to pay his dues.

Then there was Al Unser, the driver who won back to back 500s in 1970-71. There was no question that Unser is one of the best in the racing world, but some thought his crackup this year in the Coors 200 at College Station could have taken its toll on him. He hadn't raced competitively since he received a concussion in that race.

And chief mechanic Hywel Absalom had a crew that was working together on Indy cars for the first year. To make matters worse, the crew had to ready Hall's back up car for the race since the No. 1 Lola was demolished at the Coors 200. Ernie Wens, Troy Rogers, Dennis Swan, Ben Hall, Gene Grimm and Andy Custer, nine formed the crew. All live in Midland with the exception of Custer, who is from Atlanta, Ga.

Sunday, they shocked the race's 100,000 spectators by winning the world's most prestigious race. Unser, who became the fifth driver in Indy history to win the event three times, took the checkered flag at an average speed of 161.363 miles per hour and it could be a million-dollar victory for all concerned after all is said and done.

Hall said last Friday that he had set up a three year program to win the 500, and Sunday he said, "I guess this puts us ahead of schedule. I thought we could win this thing, but I'm a little surprised we did it in the first rattle out of the box. I don't think it is supposed to happen this way."

Although the Chaparral Lola was overlooked by most prognosticators, Hall said there was at least one in his corner.

"You know, Jimmy the Greek (Snyder) picked us to win this year," Hall said in amazement. "I don't really know why. There doesn't seem to be any reason for it, since this was a new team and a new car, but he picked us."

The brash Unser, who celebrated his 39th birthday one day early Sunday, was a little surprised at winning, but not at the expense of his confidence.

"I don't race if I feel I don't have a chance to win, but I'm still surprised that everything ran so smoothly. We didn't have any trouble until the last few laps, and I'm glad we had a big lead to work with because I couldn't have raced with anyone at the finish. The car wasn't handling properly."

Unser said.

"Al just overshot the pit area on our last pit stop. He had to brake hard and it bent the right front wing, so we were getting a little bit of lift on the front end after that," Hall said.

Unser won by 8.3 seconds over pole-sitter Tom Sneva, but the race was never really in any danger of slipping away since Unser had built a huge 29 second lead going into the final 20 laps.

In fact, it wasn't Sneva who gave Unser the toughest battle. Danny Ongais stayed close to Unser throughout the race, but a broken turbo charger rotor sent him out of the race after 145 laps.

"I think we could have won it if we had stayed together," Ongais said. "Al was losing speed there at the end and if we had been racing together like we were before I went out, we could have won it. But those things happen in racing."

Unser didn't take the lead until he made his move on the 26th lap to pass Ongais. He then led on 103 of the remaining 121 laps.

"Now that Hall has won an Indy title, will he be back in 1979?"

"Sure," was the only answer Hall would give, but wife Sandy didn't let the question slip by so easily.

"Al has won the Indy three times, but we haven't. We still have a ways to go," Sandy offered.

And if the beautiful lady is right, Indy drivers may be in for a long season of chasing the West Texas wind. The Indy 500 has come home.

Al Unser's pit crew is jubilant as Unser gets the checkered flag in Sunday's 62nd Indianapolis 500 race. Unser won the Memorial Day classic for the third time. (AP Laserphoto)

Midlander's death 'unexplained'

SAN ANGELO — San Angelo detectives are calling the death of a 40-year-old Midland man, who was found dead shortly after noon Sunday in his motel room here, as "unexplained."

According to detectives, there were no visible exterior wounds to the body of Melvin Curtis Fakin of 2418 Whitmire Boulevard in Midland. The death initially was termed a homicide.

Peace Justice Richard Self was called to the scene where he ordered an autopsy. Detectives today said they expect a report sometime this afternoon.

Officers were called at 12:42 p.m.

Sunday to the Inn of The West here after two motel employees discovered the body of a man lying face down near a bed. Police indicated the room had been ransacked, although Det. John Rees would say only that the room was "torn up."

Police speculated the man died late Saturday or Sunday morning.

One still missing in flood

CANYON, TEXAS (AP) — Trying to find the body of a suspected fourth drowning victim from the weekend floods that hit the Texas Panhandle would be like finding a needle in a haystack, officials of the normally drought-plagued region said early today.

The Canyon area includes scenic Palo Duro State Park, about 10 miles east of this college town of 9,000. The area, which has a flat terrain broken by the canyons, has an average annual rainfall of 20.46 inches, but received 7 inches on Friday and Saturday alone.

Officials estimated the storm damage may reach $10 million, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe is expected to ask that the county be declared a federal disaster area. An estimated 100 persons were left stranded or homeless by the storm.

Two victims of the flooding which began Friday were found Saturday morning and a third was found Sunday.

Mae Zachry, 41, left Amarillo, 48 miles to the north, in a torrential rain for Canyon but never showed up at her home. Her submerged car was found late Sunday in swollen Palo Duro Creek about a half mile east of Canyon.

"We're not looking for her right now. We've checked out all the cars submerged and everything. As far as a search, that's like looking for a needle in a haystack right now," said Terry Morrison, dispatcher for the Randall County sheriff's office in Canyon.

"We don't have any idea where she could be. There's 20 miles between where her car was found and where she was supposed to be. The keys were not in the car, so she might not have even been in it," when the flood waters swept it into the creek, he said.

The National Weather Service said there was a 70 percent chance of more rain today, but officials considered the worst behind them.

All the water has gone down, but it will probably be two or three days before a full-scale cleanup can be completed, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Heaviest hit by the flooding were two housing developments situated in low-lying areas. An 18-year-old boy stood on the knobs of a bedroom door from 3 a.m. until 7 a.m. Saturday, with six inches of breathing space from the top of the water to the ceiling, before being rescued about

Can you ever return, once you've left home?

Return home
Can you ever return once you've left?

Some say yes and do. Others say no and don't go back.

It's nostalgia, or perhaps just curiosity, over what's happened that drives people to return. To many, it's a longing that's never really fulfilled.

Recapture your heritage and reflect on your past.

If such fixations are many, books made, poems penned, letters written and pictures drawn.

There are other motivations, true, such as the basic desire and need to earn a living and, perhaps, to grab hold of more fame and fortune than is needed.

Then, there is that promise of immortality supposedly offered in the authorship of a book. You can create a legacy. And your name will "live on," if not in the minds of your readers, then on dusty book shelves somewhere.

Reflect on recollections.

Larry McMurtry, who writes of things Texan and thus universal, has returned home to Texas, via the pen, so often and well that he won't be soon forgotten.

He's the talented, native son who penned "Horseman, Pass By" ("Hud"), "The Last Picture Show," the collection of essays "In A Narrow Grave," and "All My Friends Are Going To Be Strangers."

He has a sentimental feel, realistic and penetrating as it is, for the grand old Lone Star State and all its glory and failings.

Even the caustic and mow-em-down with a typewriter Larry King has some sentiment for Texas, though he might not now call it his beloved state. Maybe he'll change if he lives as long Mark Twain did. Twain, of course, became increasingly cynical with age. It's hard to imagine that King could become more so.

The incisive King, who, by the way, hails from Midland, has a style and an insight that's needed for a society that needs more learning and less entertainment.

Willie Morris, a Texan by experience and not by birth, has spewed forth the readable work "North Toward Home." It's for anyone who has been away for awhile.

Father tosses twin tots to safety in fire rescue

BOSTON (AP) — A young father tossed 7-month-old twins safely to neighbors waiting below when fire trapped the family in their second-story apartment.

"The fire was all around us," said William Sheridan, 25. "There were a lot of people down on the street yelling for me to toss the kids. I figured the chances were good so I did it."

Neighbors Jimmy Madden and Tom Connally had shouted to the trapped young couple to throw the babies to safety, but Mrs. Sheridan hesitated.

Her husband took Nicole from her mother and tossed her to Madden.

"When that kid hit my hands, it was a great feeling," Madden said later. Sheridan then tossed his son, Billy, to Connally.

Minutes later, firefighters rescued Sheridan and his wife Kathleen, 24, from the burning building.

The blaze broke out about 3 a.m. Sunday in a first-floor apartment in the wooden building, according to Deputy Fire Chief Leo Stapleton.

Stapleton said the fire apparently started by a cigarette that set a mattress ablaze.

In photo at upper left, William Sheridan, shrouded in smoke, leans out the window of his burning apartment and prepares to drop his seven-month-old son William to waiting hands below. Above photo, he has released the baby, whom neighbors with outstretched arms are about to catch. (AP Laserphoto)

Ruth Booch, executive director of the Red Cross in Amarillo, said a preliminary damage survey indicates at least 15 homes and cabins and 14 mobile homes along Palo Duro Creek were destroyed.

The rains cut off weekend campers in Palo Duro Canyon State Park. National Guard trucks went into the canyon Sunday to remove stranded campers.

Some chance of rain predicted

Partly cloudy skies and a 20 per cent chance of rainfall are in the forecast for Midland through tonight, according to the weatherman.

However, by Tuesday, skies should become sunny and temperatures are expected to be a little warmer.

Sunday's high temperature was 87 degrees, while the overnight low was 59 degrees, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Rain was reported in some area towns over the weekend. Lamesa had from 5 to 1.2 inch of precipitation Sunday night.

Otherwise, all area towns reported partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures this morning.

flood waters hit, sending a 12 foot wall of water crashing through picnic and camping areas. But higher ground was available to them.

About 30 persons were airlifted from the park Saturday by helicopter. Among the ones rescued was an elderly man with a heart condition.

Park rangers said the waters should have receded enough in the park by this afternoon to allow campers to drive out.

The body of 24-year-old Kenneth Marler was found Sunday in a submerged car along Palo Duro Creek. Earlier, rescuers found the bodies of teen-ager Nita Stribling, who had become separated from her boyfriend when they attempted to swim away from their car.

Rosalynn, the unknown Carter

Editor's Note: There have been dozens of books about the Carter clan, but only one by the president's first cousin, Hugh Carter, boyhood friend of Jimmy Carter, Georgia state senator, humorist, raconteur, worm farmer and the "Worm King of America."

In this second part in a series excerpted from his book, "Cousin Hugh Carter and Cousin Jimmy," Hugh Carter describes the relationship between first lady Rosalynn Carter and her mother-in-law, Miz Lillian.

Rosalynn is the unknown Carter. Everyone is so busy talking about the exuberant, colorful members of the family — Lillian, Jimmy and Billy — not to mention religious healer Ruth and motorcyclist Gloria — that Rosalynn gets pre-empted.

But Rosalynn is one of my favorite people — a person who exudes sweetness from within and a shyness that is sometimes mistaken for coldness. But around people she knows well, Rosalynn is far from shy.

She can handle any situation, but then if she's hurt, she will go off alone somewhere and cry. During the presidential campaign something said about her had hurt her very much, and she came home to Plains and cried for three days. I never did find out exactly why, but I wished the people who all her, the Iron Butterfly, and also the Steel Magnolia, could see her then.

Rosalynn's father, Edgar Smith, died when she was 14 years old. Her mother, Miss Alice, was one of the most respected women in town, though in modest circumstances.

only give hair washings and tidy up the parlor. Rosalynn went to Georgia Southwestern, which is a two-year junior college in Americus. I believe the family story goes that she was planning to go to a university afterward to complete her education, but she chose Jimmy and marriage instead.

The first date of Jimmy and Rosalynn took place in 1945. Jimmy was a midshipman on leave from Annapolis. According to the family gossip, Aunt Lillian hit the ceiling when Jimmy came home with his glowing account of Rosalynn and his avowed goal of marrying her.

She commented with characteristic bluntness that Rosalynn was not good enough for her son and not good enough to enter the Carter family. If there is anyone who is a hero or heroine in the Carter family, I would choose Rosalynn. She had done the most adventurous campaigning, been the most self-effacing and modest, and taken the most abuse from her mother-in-law, Miz Lillian.

For her handling of Miz Lillian alone, she deserves a medal. For her modesty, she deserves another medal, because I am not sure that without her Jimmy could have won. Yet I have never heard Miz Lillian acknowledge her daughter-in-law's true part in the campaign.

The general public does not know that it was gentle Rosalynn who went into neighborhoods seeking the black vote. And the vote of the underprivileged. She walked unafraid because she felt in her heart that God was protecting her because Jimmy had a mission to perform as president. She really felt part of a divine plan.

According to the story that circulated around our family, Rosalynn and her mother-in-law had their first showdown at the Governor's Mansion back in 1971. When Jimmy and Rosalynn were moving into the beautiful and spacious governor's home, Miz Lillian simply went along, too, and cheerfully announced that she would be the acting first lady because Rosalynn wasn't sophisticated or knowledgeable enough to handle it.

To Rosalynn's credit, she did not cry and carry on or make Jimmy do her fighting for her. She waited until they both were in the kitchen out of Jimmy's earshot, and with a voice that was as steady as she could muster, she told her mother-in-law that she fully intended to run her own household but that Miz Lillian could always "come and visit."

She even dared to tell her that it would be better if she packed and left and came back when things were in better order.

Miz Lillian was stunned, but she did pack her bags and leave. And Rosalynn became a marvelous hostess and homemaker, even branching out in projects outside the home.

Miz Lillian's slight haughtiness toward her daughter-in-law has had a psychological effect on Rosalynn. Rosalynn could never feel completely at home with her mother-in-law. She always felt somehow on probation, as if she were being judged worthy or unworthy of the privilege of being a member of Miz Lillian's family.

Because of this, I think, Rosalynn worked much harder than any young wife could be expected to, to be perfect. And because it was almost a relationship of judge and humble serf, Rosalynn never felt close enough to her mother-in-law to call her anything but Miz Lillian.

My own observation is that the two women — Rosalynn and Lillian — have learned to cope with each other and to accept each other more now than ever before. Because each one has become a star in her own right, neither one needs to work so desperately to be a star with Jimmy.

Aunt Lillian is still the dominating force in almost any company, but this has made her, in her new status, a kind of folk hero and beloved curmudgeon.

Rosalynn, on the other hand, has become more relaxed and tactful and sure of herself as the world-traveled and much honored representative of the president.

The family was used to Aunt Lillian's tendency to downgrade, but even so, I still cringed a little for Cousin Jimmy when she kept insisting that Jimmy was nothing special. As she told some reporters, Jimmy was "just a little redheaded, freckle-faced boy who lived in the country. There was nothing outstanding about Jimmy at all. He made good grades, but so did the rest of my children. There was nothing special about Jimmy."

I thought to myself that Miz Lillian hadn't really known her little boy after all.

Aunt Lillian takes a delight in flaunting the fact that she drinks a bourbon-highball or two just about every evening. Other ladies in a church town like Plains would hide it, but Miz Lillian wants the ladies to know that she will smoke and she will drink if she wants to, and she does want to.

She freely says that the secret of her energy and long life is, "I live right — and don't forget that little shot of bourbon." She says, "I'm a bourbon woman."

you're getting rich off Jimmy." She was referring, of course, to my antique store in town, where I had added Jimmy Carter and Plains souvenirs, as had all the other shops on Main Street, no matter what their basic business was.

I knew I should just laugh off this remark and say nothing, but she had struck a raw nerve because she had actually been helping one of my competitors with her souvenir business. "I am not making any more than Maxine and Buford Reese," I said. "What about them?"

It was a trivial thing, and I was almost ready to change the subject to something more pleasant when she snapped, "I don't want to ever speak to you again." Stung again, I bounced right back with, "If that's the way you feel, I don't want to speak to you again either."

Well, the damage had been done. I was ready to forgive and forget, but obviously she wasn't. Aunt Lillian didn't speak to me anymore that night or for several weeks following. She always turned her head or avoided me entirely.

It's ironic that Lillian should sometimes turn against Rosalynn, because Rosalynn had been her daughter Ruth's best friend for years. And more important than that, Miz Lillian had taken care of Rosalynn's father when he was dying of leukemia.

In fact, when Rosalynn's father died, Aunt Lillian took Rosalynn home with her so that she and Ruth could comfort her, and Rosalynn spent that night in the Carter home.

I admire what Aunt Lillian did — going to India at the age of 68 after volunteering for the Peace Corps, and ministering to the sick. And I think she was very courageous to have nursed and actually embraced leprosy patients. It was a fine Christian act, and one that I am not sure I would have had the faith that passeth all understanding, to put myself in that jeopardy.

Like almost everyone in Plains of my generation, I have much to be grateful for to Aunt Lillian, whom the town calls Miz Lillian. And even though on and off she has become irritated and angry with me, I love her very much.

When I was very small, even before her firstborn, Jimmy, was born, I remember I used to visit with her and Uncle Earl, and I will always cherish the attention she gave me.

She loved my mother, Annie Laurie, her sister-in-law, very much, and was very kind and attentive to her when Mother was ill. I remember when my mother died in 1940, Aunt Lillian was right there at her bedside looking after her in a professional way, as she was a registered nurse.

Miz Lillian also attended my wife, Ruth, when all my children were born — Hugh Jr., Laurie Gay, and Connie. I will always be grateful to her for the love and consideration she has shown the various members of my family throughout our lives. (NEXT: Billy, Ruth and Gloria)

Mail rate hike now in effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans began paying 15 cents to mail a first-class letter today as the Postal Service boosted postal rates for the fifth time in the last decade.

The first-class letter rate stood at five cents as recently as January 1968. The increase effective today was by 2 cents.

The Postal Service, however, has yet to print enough 15-cent stamps, so customers must use either a special temporary stamp that has no numerical designation or a combination of stamps totaling 15 cents.

While postal rates have tripled in the last 10 years, the cost of living as measured by government statistics has gone up 86.1 percent.

"We don't like to increase postal rates but we need the money to pay for increasing costs," said Postmaster General William F. Bolger.

Along with the first-class letter rate, almost all other postal rates are going up. Post cards go from 9 to 10 cents, second-class mail (newspapers and magazines) increases an average of 29.6 percent, third-class (advertising circulars) 20.3 percent and fourth-class (parcels) 36.8 percent.

Asked why postal rates have gone up so fast in recent years, Bolger said both the rates and the salaries for postal workers were kept artificially low when Congress directed postal matters.

Congress withdrew from postal operations in 1970 when it enacted the Postal Reorganization Act that abolished the Post Office Department. That law provided for collective bargaining for postal unions. According to Postal Service figures, annual wages for postal employees averaged $8,775 in 1971 and now average $15,877.

Tuesday vote deadline

Tuesday is the last day to vote absentee in the runoff election slated Saturday, according to Midland County Clerk Rosenele Cherry.

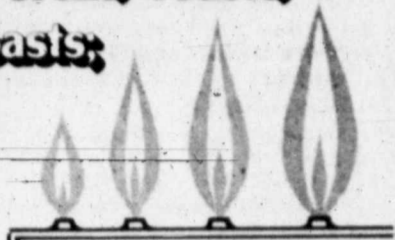

Through Friday, more than 900 Republicans and Democrats had cast ballots. Those who have not voted have until 5 p.m. Tuesday to cast their ballot.

The race on the Republican ticket pits George Bush of Midland against Jim Reese of Odessa for the Republican nomination in the 19th Congressional District race. The winner will run against Kent Hance of Lubbock.

Voting in that race has totaled 795, according to Ms. Cherry. She has mailed 35 absentee ballots from her office in that race.

The Democratic runoff pits incumbent John Poerner against former commissioner Jerry Sadler in the race for the party's nomination for a place on the Texas Railroad Commission. Through Friday, 88 votes had been cast and one ballot had been mailed out, according to Ms. Cherry.

Member of School Board

As concerned Republican voters and Bush supporters, we feel it important the Midland voters be aware of the Republican primary runoff election: -The runoff election is on Saturday, June 3rd.

- Anyone who did not vote in the Democratic primary is eligible to vote in the Republican primary runoff.
- ☆ Tuesday is the last day of absentee voting. It takes place at the Midland County Courthouse.

You must have your voter's registration certificate or sign and affidavit that you are registered.

Following are reasons for voting absentee:

1. Expected or actual absence from the county on election day.
2. 65 years of age or older.
3. Religious belief.
4. Confinement to jail.
5. Sickness or physical disability.

Because of the importance of electing George, and because of the importance of Midland to George's effort, we urge all concerned Midlanders to vote June 3rd or absentee on Tuesday, the 30th.

Traditionally the runoff vote is significantly lighter than the primary vote—often 30%-50% less. So each vote is vital. Please see that your vote counts on June 3rd.

DEAR ABBY

Not all women dislike 'patronizing' phrases

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate it if you would air one more opinion about a habit that crosses all lines of age, gender and social status. It's addressing all women as "honey, darling, sweetie, dear,"—and other patronizing phrases by bosses, store clerks, receptionists and a host of others who should know better.

I find it extremely offensive. Abby, you would do women everywhere a favor by printing this so that it can be hung in every elevator, bank, restaurant, business office, doctor's office, law firm and store in the nation.

Sign me. —"Not YOUR HONEY IN L'VILLE, KY."

DEAR NOT: Many women are in agreement with you but not all. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were in an elevator with a little old lady who was standing behind us. When the elevator door opened, my husband turned to her and said "Please go ahead of me, dear."

She gave him a warm smile and replied, "Thank you. You have made my day. It's been years since anyone has called me dear." —MRS. A. H. WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column a reply to a chromosome. Each letter in which you state partner contributes one that you took Catholic sex chromosome, but the instruction. It may be presumptuous of me to question you, but since you are a "public person," may I ask if you were planning to switch to Catholicism from Judaism? We'd hate to lose you.—W. S. O., Century City, Calif.

DEAR W. S. O.: No way. I took the course in order to better understand Catholicism, but I told the priest in advance that I wanted to LEARN—not TURN.

DEAR ABBY: I'm the 33-year-old mother of three adorable little girls. I'd like to know the answer to a question I should probably ask my doctor, but I'm afraid he'll think I'm stupid.

After my third daughter was born, I was very disappointed. I had prayed so hard for a boy because I knew that's what my husband wanted. My doctor tried to console me by telling me I shouldn't feel that I had let my husband down—that the father alone determined the sex of a child.

How can this be? Sign me. —"STUPID"

DEAR MOTHER: I refuse to sign you "Stupid"—yours is an intelligent question.

When a child is conceived, the male's sperm, which contains either a "Y" chromosome or an "X" chromosome for sex determination, fertilizes the female's egg, which contains only an "X" sex chromosome. Each letter in which you state partner contributes one that you took Catholic sex chromosome, but the female's is always an "X." Therefore, if the father's "Y" chromosome fertilizes the egg, the baby will be a boy, but if the father's "X" chromosome connects, the baby will be a girl.

Your doctor is right. The FATHER always determines the sex of the child.

It was the Back Angle that Made Me Go to Pat Walker's

I had been overweight all my life. When I graduated from high school, I weighed 185 pounds. By Christmas, 1976 I had reached 202, later in January, 1977, my Mother showed me some family pictures taken at our reunion. I had not seen them before. My Aunt had taken one of me from the back view and it was horrible. I had never seen that angle of my body before and I was so shocked to see the big rolls of fat I cried. I decided that I would do anything to lose this weight — anything. My husband had been trying to get me to seek professional assistance for years but I didn't want anybody to see me bending over, etc., not even my husband. Then I heard about Pat Walker's. My figure analysis and courtesy treatment was a pleasant surprise. The treatments were private and were natural and gentle. They couldn't possibly hurt my bad back.

The thing that impressed me most about Pat Walker's is that they don't just help you lose weight, they counsel you in good nutritional eating habits so that you can keep it off when you have completed the program. It is a total figure correction program. They care about you. Pat Walker's has been the answer to my prayers.

I have felt good the whole time I have been losing the weight. I have never felt tired or starving. Everyone has commented that my skin hasn't sagged as most people's do when they lose a lot of weight. When I started with Pat Walker's I was wearing size 20's and they were skin tight. Now I am down to size 6's and I don't think I have to tell you how happy I am with my new figure. Just look at my after picture and you can see that I can wear party clothes, casual clothes or anything I want to now and feel good about myself.

Thank you, Pat Walker's for giving me back my figure and my pride.

Signed
Pamela C. Pollack

Italian terrorists strike while inmates damage prison

ROME (AP) — Four men wearing military uniforms overpowered an unarmed soldier at an army computer center and tried to blow it up but failed when a fuse connected to a gasoline can fizzled.

Police said they believed the attack Sunday was carried out by an ultra-leftist organization called Communist Soldiers Nuclei, which has vowed to carry out attacks against Italian military centers.

In another attack, terrorists threw firebombs at an office of the Christian Democrat Party in Rome's densely populated Ostiense section. Police said no injuries were reported but damage was heavy.

A caller told the Italian news agency ANSA the overnight attack was the work of a leftist group called Armed Proletariat Formations.

In the northern city of Turin, Pietro Bertolazzi, a member of the urban terrorist Red Brigades, on trial with 14 others on sedition charges, said today that a protest inside the Turin jail Saturday was a parallel action to a terrorist attack on a Berlin prison.

Turin inmates smashed glass partitions and microphones in the jail's visiting room. Bertolazzi said the protest was part of a revolutionary plan to disrupt Italian prisons. In Berlin, Till Meyer, a West German accused of terrorism, was freed by two armed women who gained entry to the Berlin prison with false identity cards.

Bishop Flores to be installed in church ceremonies today

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Most Rev. Patrick Flores, who in 1970 became the first Mexican-American to become a Roman Catholic bishop, will be installed today as bishop of the Catholic Diocese of El Paso.

Installation ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. in the El Paso Civic Center. He succeeds Bishop Sidney Metzger, who resigned upon reaching 75.

The past eight years, Flores has been auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese of San Antonio and has been active in Mexican-American activities.

Since Flores was named a bishop, seven other Mexican-Americans have become Catholic bishops.

Flores was reared in Ganado, in South Texas, as the seventh of nine children, the son of migrant workers. He was a high school dropout working to help support the family. He attended St. Mary's Seminary in Houston and was ordained in 1956 as a priest in the Houston-Galveston diocese.

Ethiopia, Cuba argue over the Eritrean rebellion

By BRIAN JEFFRIES

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Western diplomatic sources say serious cracks have developed in the alliance between Cuba and Ethiopia over Cuban support of an outlawed Ethiopian party and Cuban reluctance to get involved in the war against the Eritrean rebels.

The sources said the most serious disagreement apparently developed when the Cubans smuggled a man known as Dr. Negede, a leading member of the banned Marxist party called MASON, into the country from exile.

Negede had to take refuge in the Cuban Embassy, the sources said. He eventually was allowed to leave the country, but Cuban Ambassador Jose Noveda and his second-in-command, Frank Rodriguez, left with him, at the request of the Ethiopian government, the sources said.

MASON, or the All-Ethiopia Socialist Movement, advocates an end to the Dergue, the ruling military council headed by Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam and a return to civilian rule. Since February, it has been the main target of Mengistu's "Red Terror" campaign in which opponents are rounded up and killed or jailed, the sources said. Another opposition group, the Ethiopian People's Revolutionary Party, apparently was crushed between December and February when an estimated 2,500 to 3,000 persons were executed without trial, the sources said.

The Ethiopians also are upset that Cuba is reluctant to commit some of its 17,000 troops in Ethiopia to an all-out offensive against the rebels who have won control of most of the northernmost province of Eritrea, the sources continued. The Cuban troops helped Mengistu's forces defeat Somali rebels and the Somali army in the Ogaden desert in southeast Ethiopia, and they were expected to do the same thing in Eritrea.

But one source said the Cubans are "under intense pressure from non-aligned nations not to become involved" in Eritrea.

"They must also fear that they could become involved in a Vietnam-type situation," he added. "No doubt a combined Ethiopian-Cuban offensive could retake the major towns in Eritrea, but even then they would face the prospect of being sucked into a prolonged guerrilla war against forces that have fought for 17 years to break away from Ethiopia and form their own independent state."

Lodgings linked with disease

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Six of seven middle-aged men who contracted the mysterious Legionnaire's disease after a visit to Bloomington stayed in rooms at Indiana University's Memorial Union, a state health official says.

"The union is the single, obvious relationship we have, but judgment has to be reserved," said Dr. Richard Telle, state epidemiologist. "There is no evidence that pinpoints any building or location on campus or in the Bloomington area as being the source of the disease."

Telle, who disclosed the outbreak of the disease, said Saturday that three of the cases were fatal. The disease is named after a flu-like illness that surfaced two years ago at an American Legion convention in Philadelphia. Twenty-nine people died as a result.

Representatives of the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, which confirmed the Bloomington cases, are scheduled to arrive Tuesday to begin an investigation.

All seven victims visited Bloomington between January and March of this year, Telle said, adding that six had stayed in the hotel section of Memorial Union, which also houses a cafeteria, a book store, snack bars, recreational areas and offices.

"The investigation will no doubt reveal a number of other shared associations on the part of the individuals involved," Telle said. "We have to remember that the disease occurs sporadically throughout the world."

Two of the men who died were from Indiana and the third from New York state, Telle said. Two of the four survivors live in Michigan and the other two in Indiana. He said their average age was 54. No names or hometowns were released.

There have been no reports of the disease among university students, staff or faculty, or among Bloomington-area residents.

Only 150 French troops remain in Zaire province

By RICHARD TOMKINS
KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — All but about 150 of the French troops who parachuted into Shaba Province to drive Katangan rebels from Kolwezi and rescue foreigners have left the battle-scarred copper mining town and turned the area over to the Zaire army.

Between 500 and 650 of the Foreign Legion paratroopers who jumped into the area May 19 went by road Sunday to Lubumbashi, the provincial capital 150 miles to the southeast. It was not known how long they would remain there or how long the troops left in Kolwezi would stay there.

Belgian officials in Brussels reported that the bodies of 73 whites killed in Kolwezi during the week-long rebel occupation have been found and that 289 of the 2,500 foreigners in the area when the rebels attacked are still unaccounted for.

Earlier reports from Kolwezi said the rebels killed 262 persons, including foreign whites, black civilians and Zairean troops. Rebel losses have been estimated at 200-300 killed.

The departing French told Western reporters to leave Kolwezi because they could not be responsible for their safety.

Meanwhile, about 500 Belgian troops flew from the Kamina base in northern Shaba to Lubumbashi and Fungurume Sunday to guard an airlift of Belgian women and children starting today. Belgium sent about 1,500 paratroopers to Kolwezi the day after the French arrived to rescue foreigners but withdrew most of them last week.

Diplomatic sources said about 3,750 Europeans are still in parts of Shaba that the rebels did not penetrate, but it was not known how many would be evacuated.

Belgian sources said President Mobutu Sese Seko barred the departure of any male foreigners, fearing what an exodus of technicians would do to the mining industry, his chief earner of foreign exchange. Belgian sources expect production from the Kolwezi cooper mines to drop as much as 50 percent this year because of the rebel invasion and cobalt production to drop 20-30 percent.

Most of the rebels are Lunda tribesmen who fled to Angola after an attempt at independence was defeated in the early 1960s. The province then was called Katanga. Zaire is the former Belgian Congo.

The Johannesburg, South Africa, Sunday Express reported that the retreating rebels took at least 260 white hostages with them when they fled to their base at Cazombo, in northeastern Angola. Quoting diplomatic sources in Lusaka, Zambia, and Pretoria, South Africa, the newspaper said the hostages were flown from an airstrip in Zaire last week in Soviet Anonov-26 planes piloted by Cubans.

The paper also said Mobutu is planning to form a foreign legion of his own, made up of European veterans, to bolster the confidence of white mining engineers and induce them to return to Kolwezi.

No confirmation of the report was available. Newsweek magazine reported that two Katangan soldiers captured in the invasion said the invaders had about six months of combat training supervised by Cuban troops and that two Cuban advisers and six Portuguese Marxists were with them when they left their base on May 2. But neither prisoner said he saw any Cubans in Kolwezi.

You can do it!

Weatherstripping and caulking around doors and windows stop energy leaks.

In time, even tiny air cracks can add up to large heating and cooling losses. But sealing those energy-robbing cracks isn't all that hard. You can do it yourself with Texas Electric's free booklets on caulking and weatherstripping. They're part of a series we're offering to energy-conscious homeowners who want to make their homes energy efficient. Using basic tools and readily available materials, even unhandy people can caulk and weatherstrip their own homes to keep energy costs down.

Other booklets in the series cover insulation, storm windows, ductwork, and general maintenance. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. See how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

Sherpa honored guest at Everest ceremonies

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The first Nepalese to reach the summit of the world's tallest mountain, was the chief guest today at ceremonies opening Everest Week marking the 25th anniversary of the conquest of Mount Everest.

Tenzing, a Nepalese Sherpa guide, and Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand were put on top of the 29,028-foot Himalayan peak by a British expedition on May 19, 1953.

Seven other members of the British team are coming to Nepal later in the week for a reunion with Tenzing and the other Sherpas who were with the expedition. Meanwhile, 30 conquerors of Everest are on hand from China, India, Italy, South Korea, Austria, Nepal and the United States.

Among the three Chinese is Mrs. Phanthong, a Tibetan woman who climbed the Chinese side of the mountain three years ago. The summit of Everest has been reached by 67 people, including two women, from 11 countries.

The week's program includes a symposium on mountaineering, exhibitions and films. Prime Minister Kirti Nidhi Bista, speaking at the opening ceremony, said his government has opened several peaks to climbers for the first time "to fulfill the growing interest" of the world's mountaineers.

Hillary and nine other survivors of the British expedition celebrated the anniversary with a reunion Sunday at a hotel in North Wales and a climb up a gentle mountain slope.

"A quarter of a century is a long time, but their minds are still as bright and sparkling as ever," said Hillary, 58, as he surveyed his nine colleagues. Two members of the expedition were killed in subsequent climbs.

"People are getting older but they haven't really changed," said Lord Hunt, the leader of the expedition, who is now 67. "We're back in 1953, in a sense. Everest was a turning point in my life. I never really enjoyed all the publicity since, but I've never let it bear down too much on my life."

The expedition's physiologist, Dr. Griffith Pugh, 68, made the reunion climb for "old times' sake" even though he was on crutches after the removal of a hip joint.

"We're still fitter than some young men," he said. "Mountaineers don't deteriorate as quickly as most people. I can still walk 10 miles if I want to."

Senate seats up for grabs in two states

By The Associated Press

Democratic voters choose candidates for the U.S. Senate Tuesday in Arkansas, where the governor and two congressmen are battling for the seat once held by John L. McClellan, and in North Carolina, where the winner will try to unseat the state's first Republican senator of the century.

The major candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for McClellan's old seat are two-term Gov. David Pryor, Rep. Ray Thornton and Rep. Jim Guy Tucker, who succeeded former Rep. Wilbur Mills two years ago.

McClellan died last Nov. 28, several days after announcing he would not seek re-election. He was in his 35th year in the Senate.

The winner of the Democratic primary will face Republican Tom Kelly of Little Rock, a political newcomer, in the November general election.

Pryor, who forced McClellan into a runoff in a 1972 race for the Senate, appointed Kaneaster Hodges to complete McClellan's term. Hodges is forbidden by law from running for the Senate seat.

State Attorney General Bill Clinton, one of five candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, is considered the favorite. The winner will face state GOP chairman Lynn Lowe, the only candidate for the Republican nomination, in the general election.

In North Carolina, Democrats will choose between the son of a popular former governor and a tough-talking populist who promises to wage war against the "special interests."

Luther Hodges Jr., whose father was governor in the late 1950s and later served as secretary of commerce in the Kennedy administration, finished first in the May 2 primary with 40 percent of the vote.

The runner-up, state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, was 14 percentage points behind but exercised his right by law to demand a runoff since Hodges did not receive more than 50 percent of the vote.

No North Carolina politician in this century has won a runoff election with a greater than 10-point deficit in the primary vote.

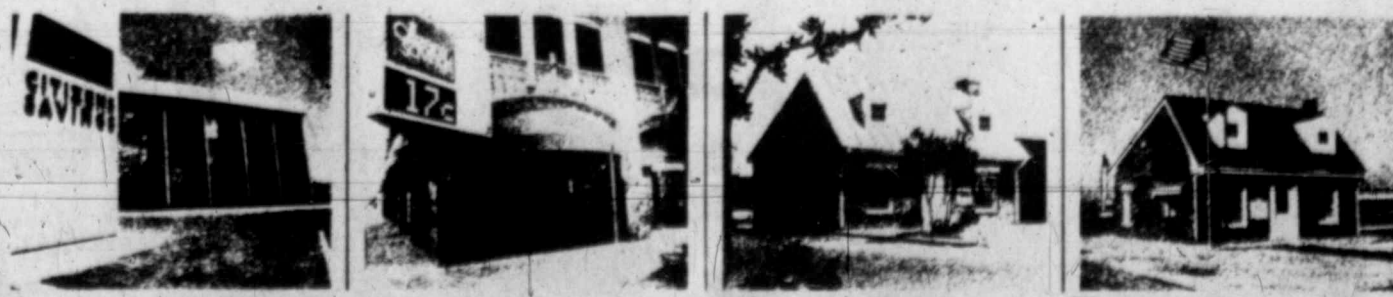

The winner of the Hodges-Ingram contest will meet Sen. Jesse Helms in November. Helms, the state's first Republican senator in this century and a national spokesman for GOP conservatives, was unopposed in the May 2 GOP Senate primary.

Lest we forget: Japanese people also remember

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

PORT MORESBY, PAPUA NEW GUINEA (AP) — DELAYED, as they used to write at the top of dispatches in the days when news came by ship or the cable office was several days away through the jungle.

What you are about to read is a Memorial Day story that came to me weeks ago when I was flying over the jungles of New Guinea, but since its about death and memories and unknown soldiers in unmarked graves known only to their God, the timing is timeless.

We were flying up over those three-mile high mountains to Medang on the Bismarck Sea, when the co-pilot obliging wedge open the cargo door so a group of Japanese ladies and a few old men could drop flowers and bags of rice out over the jungles and, as we made the turn for our approach, into the sparkling blue sea.

"Many" sunken ships, hundreds of shot down planes down there and many dead still in the caves," the Japanese businessman seated across the aisle from me whispered. A few passengers — Americans, said to say — who didn't understand what was happening complained about the wind rushing through the cabin, but a tall British woman stood in the aisle and began to sing in a frail, reedy voice:

*Mulligan's

"What though the shadows fall, naught shall I fear,
When darkest night seems nigh, morning is near..."

Others, including one of the American ladies who had grumbled, picked up the hymn, until the now weeping Japanese women by the open doorway seemed to be wrapped in the rising, haunting refrain, "Nearer my God to thee."

The whole scene was haunting. It was still on my mind a few days later when in the Port Moresby Hotel I met Nobutero Iwabuchi, a young man from Tokyo who had come here at his own expense with his family and taken a job with Air Niugini in order to find the grave of his father.

Butch, as he insisted I call him, carried with him at all times a newspaper picture of President Carter kneeling in the American cemetery on Normandy Beach and a small khaki canvas bag containing the postcards his father sent home from Jayapura on the northern coast of the island in Indonesian controlled Irian Jaya.

"Of the 294,400 Japanese who died in the South Pacific in World War II," Butch said sadly, "the bodies of only 170,000 have been returned. I come here to find the place where my father invaded without a visa. Unlike your country Japan has no graves registration or war memorial commission. We are a nation of ancestor worshippers, that is our religion, but the government does not seem to care. I am a Protestant and I care."

Butch devotes much of his spare time to the Japanese War Bereaved Families Association, raising money and arranging charter flights to battle fields all over the Pacific for widows and their children. "They do not have much money," he said, "but all their savings go to coming out here. Admiral Tojo once called Australia the 'orphan of the Pacific,' because the Imperial navy had cut their supply lines, but now it is the Japanese who are the orphans of the Pacific. We are a generation without fathers."

Butch knows that his father, a rifleman, died somewhere in these jungles on April 16, 1944, as Gen. Adachi's 18th Army abandoned the defense of the huge Japanese base at Rabaul on New Britain. I asked him if the general had been killed too. His finger drew a line across his stomach and he answered with a sound, "S-s-s-s-s-s-s."

"Bone collectors" (as the travel agencies call them), like Butch, hire boats to go up the Sepik River or pay a native boy two kinas (about $3 to guide them up the mountain to the wreckage of a Zero or a dive bomber, so they can pay their respects to the unknown dead there interred.

On Memorial Day many American Marines and infantrymen who fought in the Pacific may remember parachutists shot in the skies, buddies remembered after capture by the Japanese, the horrors of the Bataan death march and prison camps where tortured victims perished with placards reading, "It took them a long time to die."

But war is a beastly, barbarous business on both sides. Off New Guinea in the early days of 1943, the U.S. 5th Air Force caught a convoy of Japanese transports that had left Rabaul with 6,400 troops. A dozen B-25's, each fitted with eight .50-caliber machine guns in the nose, swooped low and sprayed the troops crowded on the open decks, while delayed action skip bombs tumbled down from masthead level. All eight and their escort destroyers went down, then the B-25's made a final pass to strafe the survivors in the rafts and lifeboats, sending them to the bottom of the same ocean that had received the five Sullivan brothers.

"It was a grizzly task," wrote Adm. Samuel Eliot Morison, the naval historian, "but a military necessity since Japanese soldiers do not surrender and, within swimming distance of shore, they could not have been allowed to land and join the Lae garrison... several hundred swam shore, and for a month there was open season on Nips in Papua; the natives had the time of their lives tracking them down as in the old head hunting days."

Military necessity has its reasons, but on Memorial Day, thinking of Butch and the bone collectors, one remembers in sorrow the Psalmist's line: "The heart, too, hath it's reason."

New traffic signal may assist blind

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Blind residents in this college town may be getting a "sonic boon" to assist them in crossing streets with a specially designed traffic signal, reports Southern Illinois University.

This seeing-eye traffic signal is a squawk box which translates "Walk" and "Don't Walk" commands into high-pitched noises which tell the blind when to cross and when to stay on the curb.

The Sono Guide, being tested for the first time

Alfred C. Erickson, of Michigan City, Ind. It resembles a square speaker and is the same size as the pedestrian crossing signals with which it is synchronized.

Drivers and workers near the installation have complained that the device's sonic signals are distracting. But, says Chris Ethier, of the college's office of Specialized Student Services, for it to be effective over the din of traffic, the auditory signal must be loud enough for the blind

Cheap subway ride seeks nationalization

The Los Angeles Times There was a good deal of skepticism about the company's chances of attracting the interest of Madrilenos. According to a chronicler of the times, the bank directors "more or less thought that the campaign would be a failure, because they believed Madrid was a city of nannies and soldiers, of workers who moved slowly and, in general, of people who did not attach too much importance to saving time." The campaign fell 1 million pesetas short. But, according to company documents, King Alfonso then agreed to make up the difference. He bought 2,000 shares for 1 million pesetas and became the largest individual stockholder. The company changed its name to Compania Metropolitana Alfonso XIII. At the inauguration, the king rode the first 2-1/2 miles of the line in a two-car train in eight minutes. The royal connection turned out to be a mixed blessing. In the 1930s after Alfonso fled Spain, members of the new republican government accused him of having taken the 2,000 shares without paying for them. The company denied this and produced records to prove their contention, but

Jane Doe death stymies police

CHICAGO (AP)—The body of the young black woman was found at the foot of a housing project building nearly three months ago. She had plunged 15 stories from a hall window, but police do not know if she fell, jumped or was pushed. They still don't know who she was. "We must bury her ourselves. She died here," says Dolly Gill of the city Department of Human Services who lives a half block from where the woman was found. "She belongs to us." To collect the $500 she says is needed for a proper funeral, Ms. Gill is distributing flyers around the neighborhood where the death occurred. If enough money is collected, she said, the body will be buried June 5. "Someone knows her," she said. "But we may never find them."

Break out handcuffs for bridge criminal

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Point of view is everything. You may cheer when you read about today's hand, or you may take out a set of handcuffs and clamp them on a criminal.

North won the first trick with the queen of spades and shifted to diamonds. West won with the jack of diamonds and continued with the queen. When dummy played low, East overtook with the king of diamonds and shifted to a heart.

South was now sure to lose a heart and the ace of spades in addition to the three tricks already lost.

You may cheer for the stylish defense put up by New York experts Ron Andersen and Kathie Wei. If you're looking for handcuffs, they must be for South. Be sure you can name his crime before you read on.

EARLY OFFENSE

South committed his crime at the first trick. He could not recover after playing dummy's low spade. This cautious play seemed to assure a spade trick, but he got neither the spade trick nor his contract.

South makes the contract by playing dummy's king of spades at the first trick. West needs the ace for his double and for his spade opening lead after East had bid hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold: S A 10 7 6 3; H K 10 5 2; D Q J 4; C 6. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. The hand is not quite worth an opening bid. If the king of hearts were the ace or the queen of diamonds were the king, you would open with one spade.

Homage paid across country to war dead

By The Associated Press

Americans honored their war dead today with traditional parades down Main Street and rifle-and-bugle Memorial Day services. For some, the first warm-weather holiday of the year, was for jogging.

swimming and family picnics.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Harold Brown delivered a Memorial Day speech at Arlington National Cemetery, calling on the country to rededicate itself to a strong national defense. He represented President etery.

Carter, wearing blue jeans, worked today in the Oval Office but planned no public events.

Memorial Day, first observed in 1920, traditionally has been May 30, which falls on Tuesday this year, but the federal holiday is included among those now observed on Mondays to allow three-day weekends. A few states, however, still observe the holiday on May 30.

The country's most-decorated living war hero, St. Llewellyn M. Childen of Tacoma, Wash., was grand marshal for a parade this morning in downtown Seattle.

In Johnson's Island, Ohio, small U.S. flags were placed at the graves of 206 Confederate soldiers, most of them officers, who died during imprisonment on the island of Lake Erie during the Civil War.

Throughout the country, people took advantage of the holiday to relax at home or enjoy the outdoors.

"It's slower than Mississippi in July," said a spokesman for the Philadelphia Police Department. "Summer is here, and we just hope it stays this quiet through Labor Day."

Yugoslavia captures German terrorists

By ROON LEWALD

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Four of West Germany's most-wanted terrorist suspects have been captured in Yugoslavia, the Bonn government said today.

Justice Ministry spokesman Sepp Binder told a news conference the four were among 20 alleged hard-core terrorists sought in a string of slayings last year, including the kidnap-killing of industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer.

He said the government has asked Yugoslavia to extradite the four, and Yugoslavia has asked Bonn to arrest and deport an undisclosed number of unidentified persons wanted by the Belgrade government.

Binder repeatedly denied, however, that Yugoslavia was linking extradition of the four Germans to its request. He said a 1974 extradition agreement between the two countries rules out such a trade-off.

He identified the German suspects as Brigitte

Mohnhaupt, 28; Rolf Clemens Wagner, 33; Peter Boock, 26; and Sieglinde Gutrun Hoffmann, 33.

Details of their capture were not immediately available.

German police offered a reward of $25,000 each for the capture of the suspects in the slayings of Schleyer, Chief Prosecutor Siegfried Buback and banker Juergen Ponto. Another suspect sought in the murders, Stefan Werner Wisniewski, was arrested May 11 at Orly Airport in Paris as he tried to board a flight to Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

Schleyer was kidnapped in Cologne last Sept. 5 and his driver and three escorting policemen were shot to death. He was found dead in the trunk of a car in France Oct. 19.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Israeli sweetener may solve problem

Dear Dr. Solomon: I hear there is a fantastic new sweetener that is like powdered citrus rind and safe as anything and 20 times sweeter. I can hardly wait. Where can I get it?—Leslie K.

Dear Leslie: There is a new sweetener called neo-DHC. It is a chemical modeled on naringin, which is found in the peel of citrus fruits. It was developed by scientists at the Weizmann Institute in Israel and is reported to be not just 10 but 2,000 times sweeter than sugar. Neo-DHC is now awaiting clearance by the Food and Drug Administration. If it gets an OK, it may be just the thing.

As long as we are on this pleasant topic, you might be interested in another development along similar lines. Two researchers of the University of London, L. Hough and S.P. Phadnis, report that they have identified a derivative of table sugar which is intensely sweet—as saccharin is—but without an unpleasant aftertaste. It has a name a mile long: 1', 4', 6', 6'-tetrachlorogalactosucrose. And, since you can get an awful lot of sweetness per calorie, the scientists think its promise as a dietetic food is as mighty as its name.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I get this funny ringing in my ear every once in a while. It drives me crazy. Do you think it could be anything serious?—Henry S.

Dear Henry: A persistent ringing in your ear can mean you have been exposed to too much noise. Or it can be a signal for some sort of ear trouble. It can also be a symptom of hypertension or other cardiovascular diseases or of any number of infectious diseases, including syphilis. Then, too, it can be a side effect of a wide variety of drugs—from aspirin to streptomycin. Smoking and drinking are other possible causes. And in some instances it just seems to happen for no reason at all.

I really think it would be wise for you to check with your doctor since the ringing in your ear does keep recurring.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I would like to add to your suggestion to Diane K. who wanted a suggestion to beat the boredom in jogging. I solved this by listening to a small transistor radio while I jog. I put the radio in a leather pouch (one used for spare shells in hunting), then I punctured a hole in the bottom for the ear phone wire. I then used self-adhesive tape to secure the radio so it doesn't move when jogging. I then put this on a belt. I listen to all types of music when I run and change the pace with the music. I also know all the morning news and sports before breakfast. Perhaps you could pass this information to her. Thank you.—Jean M., Pennsylvania

Doberman saves pup

TOLLESON, Ariz. (AP) — Guided by his instinct, Goldie, a 2-year-old Doberman Pinscher belonging to John Urosevic, has saved the life of one of his newborn pups.

Urosevic said Goldie gave birth to six puppies rather easily, but the seventh was delivered upside down and tail first. It didn't move.

Goldie grabbed the puppy by the hindquarters and began shaking it vigorously. "We thought she was mad at the pup for causing her so much pain," Urosevic said.

Goldie finally released the pup, but then she began gnawing on its chest. After a few minutes, the puppy began squirming and breathing.

Urosevic's veterinarian, Dr. L. J. Chernow, said, "Apparently the puppy was not breathing at all. The mother gave it her own form of artificial respiration."

Checkered flag given Hall's car at Indy

Away they zip as the 33-car field takes off during running of the 62nd annual Indy 500 race in Indianapolis Sunday. Al Unser, driving Midlander Jim Hall's car, won the race, his third during the classic as the Albuquerque, N.M. native won over the rest of the class field. (AP Laserphoto).

Fans don't watch Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — They tossed Frisbees, ate chicken and sucked snowcones. They read magazines, listened to radios and worked on their sun tans.

The fans who clogged the infield of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Sunday did anything and everything — everything, that is, except watch the race.

With its bright picnic hampers, crowded hot dog stands and sunburned beer drinkers, the grassy field alongside the 2½-mile track looked like the midway of an overgrown county fair.

The infield crowd, many of them weary from a sleepless night in the parking lots outside the speedway and bleary from around-the-clock parties, rose at dawn, totting their coolers from Iowa and Illinois, Michigan and Montana.

They could see little of the race, save the backs of the grandstands and the piles of beer cans tossed to the ground below by thirsty spectators.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Al Unser, who fought the scorching heat and red-hot challenges from Danny Ongais and Tom Sneva to gain his third Indianapolis 500 victory, already is setting his sights on a higher target.

Unser became only the fifth driver in the 62 years of the May auto racing classic to visit Victory Lane three times. Now, the younger of the racing Unser brothers from Albuquerque, N.M., is aiming at A.J. Foyt's record of four.

Foyt won his first three 500s in a seven-year span. Unser, the winner here in 1970 and 1971, needed eight. The only other three-time winners are the long-retired trio of Mauri Rose, Wilbur Shaw and Louis Meyer.

Asked if he thinks he can match Foyt's accomplishment, Unser, whose rugged good looks, wavy black hair and thick sideburns give him the appearance of a country-western singer, replied: "I sure in hell will try. Look how long it took A.J. to do it."

Unser, who is expected to collect about $250,000 of the $1 million purse, turned 39 today. Foyt, who won his fourth Indy in 1977 at the age of 43, took 10 years to move beyond three.

The way was cleared for Unser's win Sunday when the lead-footed Ongais, a former drag racer and a two-time winner on this year's U.S. Auto Club championship circuit, burned out the rotor on his turbo-charger during the 145th lap of the 200-mile race.

THAT ENDED a classic duel which saw Ongais fight off first Sneva, the polesitter and defending USAC national champion, then Unser through the first 75 laps of the race.

Unser, driving an experimental Cosworth-powered Lola, took over on the 76th lap and led the rest of the way, except for brief periods for pit stops.

Not entirely lost in the excitement over the duel among Unser, Ongais, Sneva and 1973 winner Gordon Johncock, who finished third, was an eighth-place finish by Janet Guthrie, the first woman ever to drive at Indy, went the distance in only her second try.

As the mechanical problems, compounded by surface temperatures as high as 120 degrees, sent a nearly steady stream of broken cars back to Gasoline Alley, Guthrie drove a steady, unspectacular and trouble-free race.

Guthrie, a veteran on the NAS-CAR circuit, said: "Driving a championship car 500 miles is markedly less taxing than driving a stock car for a comparable distance."

"This is really easier," she said, "It's more mental." Unser wasn't thinking about stock cars, but he noted things went so easily Sunday that "it made me wonder why I hadn't won all 13 I raced in."

AFTER ONGAIS' sudden departure, Unser was sailing along with a 35-second edge over Sneva. With Sneva's charge, however, the final margin was 8.3 seconds, the second-closest finish ever, dating back to 1937 when Shaw nipped Ralph Hepburn by 2.36 seconds.

"On my last pit stop (with 21 laps to go), I was pushing so hard I scraped my car against the pit wall, damaging the wing," Unser said. "I didn't know at that point whether something very serious had happened."

"I was mad at myself for over-shooting the pit. I worried about being able to finish. But over-all, everything went very well."

THE CAR, which owner Jim Hall called a "conventional racing car," was nevertheless a new one here with the first foreign engine to win at the famed 2½-mile oval since 1940.

"She performed beautifully," Unser said. "We didn't know for sure how it would go, but he (Hall) said, 'We'll make it work,' and by golly, here we are."

The tense race, untouched by the tragedy of earlier years, was slowed only by six yellow caution flags. The only accident of the day saw Spike Gelhausen walk away unhurt after scraping his car against the wall along the backstretch midway through the race.

Teammates Johncock and Steve Krisiloff, who finished third and fourth, respectively, both were penalized one lap during the race. Johncock was penalized for running over an air hose in the pits, and Krisiloff was dropped back for allegedly improving his position during a caution period.

THEIR CHIEF mechanic, George Bignotti, threatened to file a protest but decided against it because he said it would have had no effect on either driver's standing.

Rounding out the top 10 were Wally Dallenbach, Bobby Unser, Foyt, Guthrie, George Snider and Johnny Parsons. Larry Rice was the top rookie finisher, placing 11th.

Al Unser waves three fingers in Victory Lane Sunday at Indianapolis Motor Speedway after winning the 62nd Indy 500 race. Unser is standing in front of Borg-Warner Trophy, symbol of the Indy 500. Unser is happy here, but wasn't too pleased with the speeds the drivers must push their cars in order to qualify for the 33 spots.

Jim Hall's car hot as weather

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The cars at the 1978 Indianapolis 500 mile race were almost as hot as the temperatures — which soared into the 90s — but the hottest car of all was Al Unser's.

Unser won the 62nd running of the May classic for the third time Sunday in a British Lola-Cosworth. It was the first time since 1940 that a foreign engine had taken the checkered flag at Indy.

The Cosworth is a 90-degree V8 turbo-charged engine with four valves per cylinder. Besides the uniqueness of its manufacture, the Lola-Cosworth was also a new concept.

"We ran a sister car five weeks ago at College Station, Texas, but we cracked it up," said Chaparral Racing's Jim Hall, the car owner who has made a habit of winning races with innovative design.

With only five weeks to go before Indy "we built this car in a hurry," he said.

In fact, said Hall's son Jim Jr., the car was so new that the first time it had been on an oval track was at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway two weeks ago.

Hall said he had some definite misgivings about running such a new car in auto racing's biggest event.

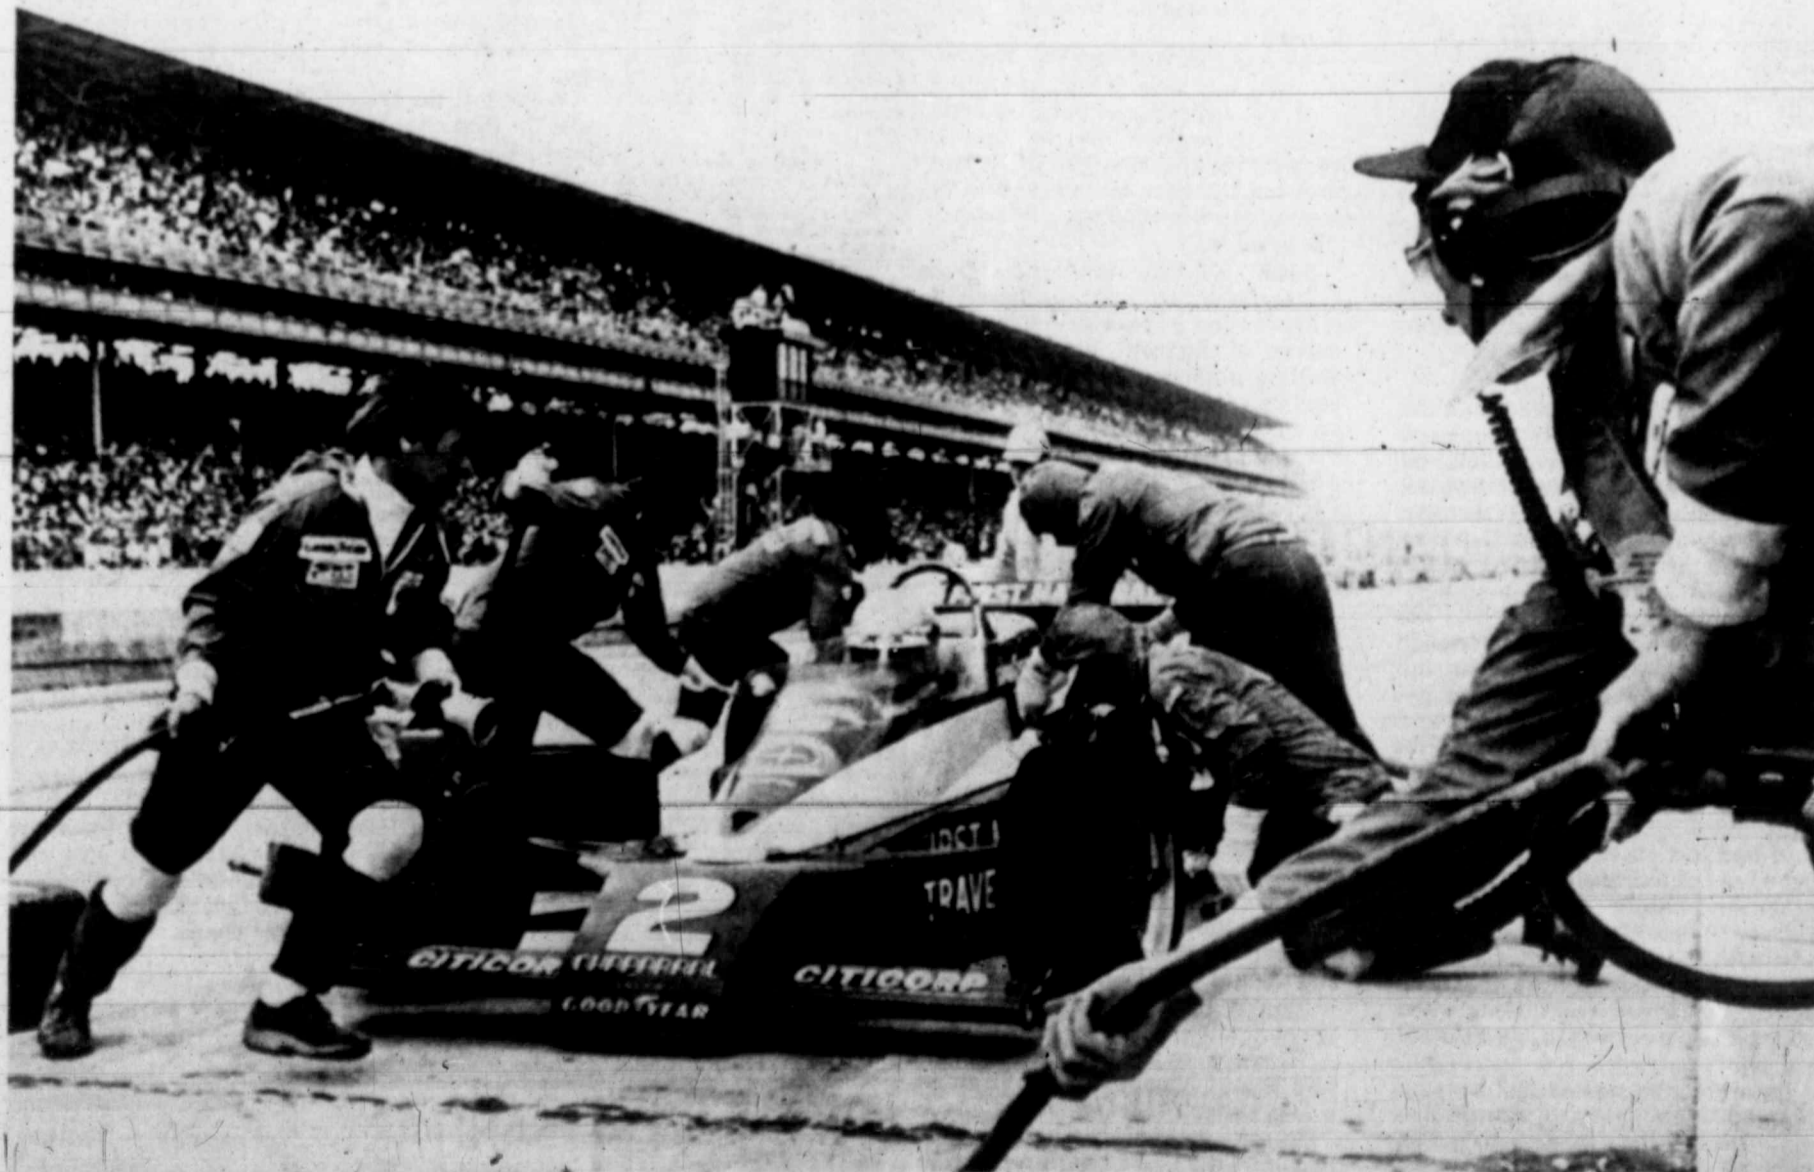

"It didn't run as well as the other, but it looks like it didn't need to," he said.

The red, white and blue racer with the No. 2 on its side reached an average speed of 161.363 mph around the 2½-mile track.

In the past, Lola chasses have been known for their innovations, but Hall (Continued on 2D)

Jim Hall ...happy winner

The pressure's on Al Unser's pit crew as they rush to fill their Lola-Cosworth with fuel during pit stop on the 156th lap of Sunday's Indy 500-mile race. The crew accomplished the job in 14 seconds in helping Unser and Midland's Jim Hall to a first place finish.

Unser pocketed first place money of $250,000 for his win which was run before more than 300,000 fans. (AP Laserphoto).

Cubs return tonight to open home stand

Midland's Cubs return to the friendly confines of Cubs Stadium tonight to begin the stretch push in the first-half Texas League West Division race against Arkansas, the leaders of the East Division. And, odd as it may seem, the Cubs are in better shape than when they left for an Eastern junket 10 games ago.

The Cubs were six games out of first place after splitting 3-3 with division leading San Antonio. Returning home, Midland is four back and the Dodgers and second place El Paso Diablos, three out of the lead, both must make Eastern swings of their own, so opportunity is beckoning Manager Jim Saul's Bruins, an opportunity some folks thought might never even present itself after Midland opened the season in April with six straight losses at San Antonio.

Midland won six out of 10 at Little Rock and Jackson and returned home kicking themselves over two that got away in the ninth inning at Jackson. The Cubs have won 17 of their last 25 to rush back into the thick of the pennant race.

JEFF ALBERT, 2-1, who won his last start with a route-going 5-1 win over Jackson, probably will start tonight's series opener against the St. Louis Cardinals' farmhands, in the Picture Night contest.

"Every fan attending this Memorial Day game will receive a beautiful, full-color team picture. General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., said. The poster has individual photos of all the Midland Cubs plus a team photo suitable for framing.

Arkansas' pitching staff is headed by Jim O'Brien, 6-1, whose only loss was at the hands of Midland, 6-4. The hitters the Midland pitching staff (Continued on 2D)

SuperSonics nearing crown in NBA playoffs

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—There is no one hero on the Seattle SuperSonics, which is why they are just two games from becoming National Basketball Association champions.

"We play team ball, unselfish ball," says forward Paul Silas, at 34 the dean of the Sonics and a two-time NBA champion as a member of the Boston Celtics. "We don't care who shoots or gets the points. We have a goal at this point and everyone is tuned to that goal—to win."

Carner takes lead in LPGA

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—JoAnne Carner doesn't intend to let another golf tournament slip away from her, and she believes her closest pursuer, Nancy Lopez, is showing some vulnerability.

"Nancy is beginning to prove she is human," Carner said Sunday after carding a 1-under-par 71 for a two-stroke lead after three rounds of the Ladies Professional Golf Association $100,000 tournament at Wykagyl Country Club.

Carner goes into today's final round with a 210, goes 6-under-par for 54 holes. Lopez, a four-time winner this year in the LPGA tour, including a come-from-behind, overtime victory last week at Forsgate over Carner, shot 73 for 212.

Another stroke back was Sandra Post, who had a 75, and Penny Pulz was alone at 75-215 as Wykagyl's 6,410 yards took their toll on the early leaders.

Two players, Amy Alcott and Jane Blalock, were at 216. Alcott shot 72 and Blalock 71.

Carner not only has Lopez to overcome but also a repeat jinx. Although she has won 20 LPGA tournaments in her career, she has yet to repeat in a single one, and she is the defending champion here.

Soviet woman sets swimming record

MOSCOW (AP)—Galina Roganova, an 18-year-old Soviet woman, set a world record in the 200-meter underwater swimming event with flippers, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Miss Roganova clocked 1 minute, 44.2 seconds clipping 0.5 seconds off the official world record set by Ute Pelz of East Germany, Tass said.

The record was set at the Russian Federation Speed Underwater Swimming Championships at Novosibirsk.

2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. Immediately after the game both teams left for Seattle, where the Sonics can wrap up the first title in the club's 11-year history with victories Tuesday and Friday. A sixth game, if necessary, would be played here Sunday.

Tuesday night's game will be played in the Kingdome because the Sonics' regular home court, the Seattle Center Coliseum, is being used for a mobile home show. A crowd approaching 44,000 is expected, which would be the largest ever to attend a professional basketball game.

"I think it's going to be fantastic playing before 40,000 or more," said Seattle forward John Johnson. "We're going to be up for that one."

When it was suggested that the Sonics might be better off playing in the building they're used to, a gleam glistened in the eyes of coach Lenny Wilkens.

"Every court is the same size, right?" he asked. "We'll actually be using the same floor we always use. The only difference is that instead of having 14,000 fans screaming for us we'll have 40,000. Tell me that's not going to get a team up."

As if the Sonics were not sky high already, Sunday's victory means they can win the title without ever having to leave home again, a pleasant prospect for a team which has won its last 21 home games.

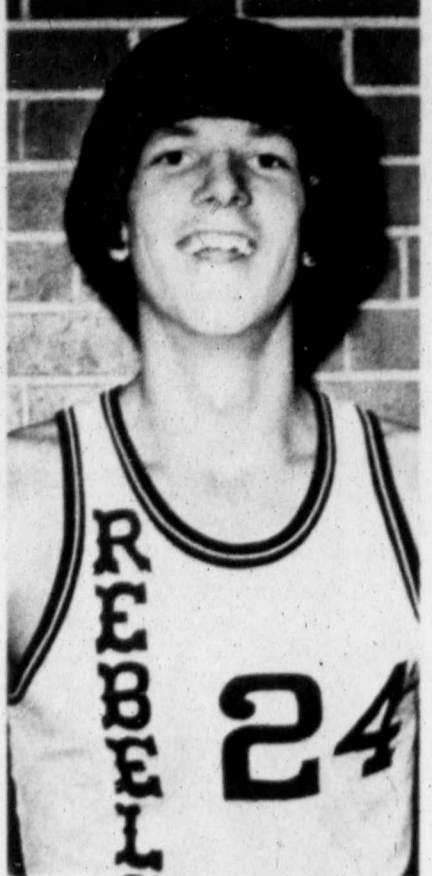

"We had planned on not coming back here," said guard Fred Brown, "and we're going to stick with our plan."

Sunday's victory was a triumph of Seattle's balance over the individual brilliance of Washington forwards Elvin Hayes and Bobby Dandridge. Hayes had 29 points and 20 rebounds and Dandridge 21 and 9, but the rest of the Bullets were impotent, combining to shoot 24 percent.

"If you can't hit those 15-foot shots, you don't deserve to win," said Bullets Coach Dick Motta, whose club's shooting percentage was 336. "Their defense clogged the middle on us when they saw we couldn't hit from outside. They were sagging in, almost in a zone, and there was nothing we could do about it."

Washington's best outside threat, guard Kevin Grevey, was pressured into a 1-for-14 shooting performance by Seattle's Dennis Johnson, who blocked seven shots, an extraordinary number for any player but virtually unheard of for a guard.

"I've never had seven blocked shots in a game," said Johnson, "not as a pro, not on any level. Sure it's a psychological advantage. When I block a guy's shot, maybe he'll remember me. The next time he goes up, his concentration may be broken. Helmsy think about my being there to block the ball instead of concentrating on his shot."

MIKE DENNY, former Midland Lee and Midland College standout, has signed to play basketball for Wichita State University of the Missouri Valley Conference. Denny, a 6-6 athlete, lettered two years under Coach Paul Stueckler at Lee and played this past season for the Midland College Chaparrals under Coach Jerry Stone. Mike will play his final three years of college ball at the Kansas school.

Chicago Cubs capture rain-shortened game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It had gotten so bad in St. Louis that the Cardinals looked to heaven for help—and all they got was a face full of rain and yet another loss.

They waited for a 1½-hour delay to play a game Sunday in St. Louis' Busch Memorial Stadium.

Then they played—and starting pitcher John Denny got whacked for two Chicago runs in the top of the first inning.

Then Denny got cracked on the forehead by a Greg Gross line drive in the fifth inning. He wasn't seriously hurt—but it didn't help.

Then it started raining again in the top of the sixth—and after another 1½-hour wait, umpire Bob Engel waved the game into the record books as a 2-0 victory for the Cubs.

And 20 minutes later it stopped raining, 20 minutes—or five innings—too long to prevent the Cards from losing their fourth straight and 15th in their last 16 games and giving the Cubs their eighth straight victory.

In other NL play, San Francisco edged Los Angeles 6-3, San Diego downed Cincinnati 3-1, Atlanta beat Philadelphia 5-3, New York trimmed

Houston 4-1 and Pittsburgh defeated Montreal 5-2.

Giants 6, Dodgers 5

MIKE IVIE gave San Francisco four of its runs with a pinch-hit bases-loaded home run in the five-run fifth inning.

And after Terry Whitfield doubled in the seventh off Don Sutton, Darrell Evans' bloop single off reliever Lance Rautzhan gave the Giants their winning run and a 1½-game lead in the NL West.

In the Dodgers' clubhouse, the mood was not sweet.

"You can't tell me they're a championship team," Reggie Smith fumed. "How many times does a guy come off the bench and hit a grand slam? How many bloop hits did they have?"

And Dodgers Manager Lasorda added less vehemently. "What can I say? They sure were dropping the ball where they ain't. It seemed like they had four or five hits like that in the big inning against Sutton."

two-run fourth that carried the Padres past Cincinnati. Randy Jones pitched eight innings of four-hit, shut-out ball before giving up George Foster's RBI double and giving way to Rollie Fingers.

Braves 5, Phillies 3

Jerry Royster and Brian Assteline had run-scoring singles in a three-run second inning, and Jeff Burroughs hit what proved to be a game-winning homer in the fifth for the Braves.

The loss was the Phils' ninth in their 12-game road trip and dropped them 3½ games back of the Cubs.

Mets 4, Astros 1

Doug Flynn singled home runs in the second and ninth innings and Nino Espinosa, who five-hit Houston, doubled to open the fifth inning that put the Mets ahead to stay.

Pirates 5, Expos 2

Rennie Stennett's single to center field with a pair of runners aboard in the third wound up getting past Montreal's Andre Dawson and as the ball rolled to the wall the Pirates moved in front to stay. Jim Bibby's four-hitter and John Milner's first homer of the season help Pittsburgh's cause.

Padres 3, Reds 1

Oscar Gamble singled to drive in a first-inning run and doubled to open a catching. Eric Voyles will be the designated hitter for the Plainsmen.

Moore missed the two Sam Houston games in Midland last week when he suffered a bruised thigh in the first inning of the opening game on a play at first base. Moore is responding to treatment and should be ready to go, according to coach Johnson. White filled in for Moore and went four-for-four at the plate in the 7-6 win over the Texans.

Joining Lee and Monterey in the quarterfinals are Houston Bellare (35-8) vs. San Antonio Roosevelt (33-2); Duncanville (32-3) vs. Waco Richfield (17-7); and Corpus Christi Moody (27-3) vs. Pasadena Dobie (25-12). The four winners from the quarterfinal round, move on to the state tournament in Austin, June 8-9 on the University of Texas campus.

Lee Rebels claims Atlanta crown with final 67

ATLANTA (AP)—"I feel like I'm part of the group now," says Jerry Heard. "It was almost a moral victory."

It was better than that. It was real.

Heard, who saw his career plunge after being struck by the same lightning bolt that hit Lee Trevino in the 1975 Western Open, claimed the $40,000 first prize in the Atlanta Golf Classic Sunday when he fired an unexpected 67 to finish with a tournament record 19-under-par 269.

"I spent 13,000 right there on the last hole," Murphy said. He finished with a 70 for the day and fell into a three-way tie at 271—the previous tournament record—with leading money winner Tom Watson, 68, and Lou Graham, 66.

"I felt as if I was going to win today," Heard said. "It was almost like being over-confident. Everything was right today."

"It used to be when I'd win it was just another feather in the cap, but the cap has been a little bare, so $40,000 comes in handy," he added. "It was the fifth victory of his pro career, the others coming between 1971 and 1974 when he earned almost half a million dollars before the Western Open lightning mishap."
