Nuclear pledge reaffirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter today pledged anew to use American nuclear weapons if necessary to defend European allies against Soviet attack.

Carter also called for more effective conventional forces in the NATO countries to counter Soviet military might that he said has grown beyond any legitimate defensive need.

The president told leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at their meeting here that the Soviets and their Warsaw Pact allies are now able to attack with large armed forces more rapidly than we previously believed.

Carter noted that the NATO allies have relied on U.S. nuclear forces for deterring any nuclear attack on Europe.

He made clear that the United States still stands behind that policy which he said means that an attack on Europe will have the full consequences of an attack on the United States.

Carter said "Let there be no misunderstanding. The United States is prepared to use ALL the forces necessary for the defense of the NATO area."

While the leaders of the Atlantic Alliance were focusing their formal meetings on efforts to keep pace with the communist military build up in Europe, they were informally discussing possible joint action against future Soviet and Cuban actions in Africa.

Outside the State Department meeting rooms, North Atlantic Treaty Organization delegates were talking informally about formation of an African security force to combat the estimated 48,000 to 10,000 Cuban troops in Africa.

The two-day summit of NATO heads of state ends today.

Meanwhile, Patrick Caddell, President Carter's pollster, said the only issue that may emerge in this year's congressional elections is the whole question of foreign policy and national defense.

Both candidates exceed $100,000 mark in funds

(Continued from Page 1A) most at $110,317.58. Bush has spent $96,137.98 on his campaign, according to the FEC reports submitted by the candidates.

The amount of money received by the candidates appears to be the only similarity in the campaign in the financial departments.

At the beginning of this reporting period, which was April 22, Bush had more cash on hand with $19,557.01 listed. Reese had $368.27. Both candidates have loaned their campaigns money, but Reese loaned more to his campaign by giving $12,000 and Bush contributed $3,417.59.

Reese obtained a second loan from a bank during this reporting period and this time it was $20,000 from First National Bank in Odessa on a 90-day note.

His first loan of $15,000 came on March 13 from State National Bank, also a 90-day note. This brings Reese's indebtedness to a total of $17,000 for his campaign, compared to Bush's single loan of $14,175.99.

During the April-May reporting period, Bush received $35,906.71 in contributions and Reese received $60,974.01, including $17,000 in loans. Bush spent $30,042.79 during this period and had $25,120.94 cash on hand at the end of the period. Reese spent $61,328.51 and had $13,741 on hand.

Additionally, the Reese campaign still owes $79,000 from his unsuccessful race against Mahon two years ago.

Bush's report listed a contribution of 30 shares of Adobe stock valued at $825 and his campaign office is liquidating it.

Bush called the remarks "some kind of desperation tactic."

"It's an embarrassment in a way for the campaign to be at this level now," he said.

Bush said he was born in New Haven, Conn., and moved with his family to Odessa when he was 2 years old. After living there for several months, his family moved to Midland where he lived until finishing the seventh grade at San Jacinto Junior High School, he said.

"People in the Midland area and Odessa know I was not born in West Texas, yet I was raised in Midland," he said, adding that he moved back to Midland as an adult "on my own."

He also said people he does business with know he is in the energy business.

An encouraging step

Dick Hagelstein of the Midland Office of the Soil Conservation Service is much encouraged about a piece of legislation passed by Congress. And this is noteworthy in itself since agricultural interests haven't had a great deal to be optimistic about in recent years.

He says it isn't very often that John Q. Public has the opportunity to say what he wants and then have his wishes carried out. He said the nation's system of electing public officials operates on this premise in theory, "but we don't always get what we bargain for."

"But we will have this opportunity in the next few months," he explained, "to say what our needs are regarding the conservation of the nation's agricultural resources."

"Congress has passed what is probably the most significant legislation since 1935 with regards to this subject. What is even more significant, the act states that local input will be given prime consideration in future program planning. Therefore, on a nationwide basis, all persons interested in the future of our soil and water resources will have a chance to voice their opinions."

"This certainly is a change of pace insofar as Washington is concerned. We will agree with Hagelstein that it is significant. It remains to be seen, of course, what consideration the input will receive, but it would appear that suggestions pouring in from the grass roots, nationwide, would demand serious consideration."

Hagelstein acknowledges the fact that agriculture today is undergoing tremendous economic pressures.

"Beyond that, however," he said, "is the alarming fact that the land which supports all of agriculture, that supports our urge for three square meals a day is fast being lost due to wind and water erosion, urbanization, and the like. Although we have made great strides in improving our land, pressures from population increases, the use of land unsuited for crop production has increased the need to take a close look at what we have done and what we need to do in the future."

Hagelstein added that the population of the world is expanding at the rate of approximately 175,000 persons per day. A more determined effort will have to be made in the future in order to help feed these people, he said. This puts additional pressures on marginal land and increases the erosion problem.

"We must act now to develop a program that will be sympathetic to these needs," he added.

Hagelstein said meetings will be held in more than 3,000 Soil and Water Conservation districts throughout the nation. The Midland meeting will be held June 20 in the office of the Soil Conservation Service, which is co-sponsoring the session.

Hagelstein said he hopes that all interested persons will attend and participate, "so that we can tell them what we want, and fully utilize the grass roots, bottom-up approach to this program."

Active participation is the important ingredient in this new approach.

The main complaint of people on and interested in land use at the local level, through the years, has been that programs were mapped in Washington by persons not altogether familiar with the subject, without seeking or paying any attention to the wishes or suggestions offered by the grass roots constituency.

Well, the situation apparently is changing, and persons at the local level at least are being asked to express themselves in this regard.

If they do not take advantage of this opportunity to be heard, then they have no one to blame but themselves.

The people at the local level certainly should be the ones qualified through experience to have their say in this important matter.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Does China Lobby still exist?

WASHINGTON — A reluctant spy named R.F. Chen last year walked into the FBI offices in New York City and said he had a confession to make. He said he had been pressed into the espionage service of the Chinese Nationalists. Now he wanted to give up his double life and settle down to a less harrowing job.

The defection of this quiet, manly young man from Taiwan, coming in from the cold, stirred some old memories. After all these years, we wondered, is the China Lobby still active in the United States?

This was a collection of hired lobbyists, influential friends, outspoken advocates and outright spies who in the 1950s supported the cause of the late Chiang Kai-shek. Few other lobbies have exerted such relentless pressure on American foreign and domestic policy.

The hidden aims of the Nationalists were revealed in a collection of secret cables, which we obtained through a Chinese code clerk more than two decades ago. These showed Chiang wanted to drag the United States into a war with the Chinese mainland. For example, a cable dated Dec. 3, 1949, spoke of "our hope of a world war so as to rehabilitate our country."

With this as their ominous goal, Chiang's emissaries handed out $100 bills in amounts that make today's Koreans look like cheapskates. Witnesses told us that one senator, for example, arranged a trust with Chinese bagmen in a cornfield and was handed $500,000 in cold cash.

Those who opposed Chiang's ambitions inside the State Department were excoriated by his friends on Capitol Hill. A few brave foreign service officers questioned the ability of Chiang's demoralized armies to defend the Chinese mainland and reported that U.S. aid money was being diverted into the pockets of corrupt Nationalist officials. As their reward, these diplomats were hounded out of the State Department by the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Thus emboldened, the Nationalists singled out the late great Secretary of State George Marshall for attack. They blamed him, according to the secret cables, for blocking their aims. But they were cautious about retaliating. Advised on Aug. 24, 1949, cable: "In order to avoid direct break with the American administration, it is better for us not to attack him personally."

It was left for McCarthy to carry the attack to Marshall personally. He delivered an outrageous, 60,000-word Senate speech falsely linking Marshall to the communists.

It was against this background that we contemplated the case of Rong Fang Chen, the diminutive, 28-year-old spy who would like to retire. His was not the awesome assignment of molding and shaping American foreign policy. He was expected merely to spy on dissidents who had fled from Taiwan and had established themselves in the United States. But this was always a high priority of the Taiwan government, even in the heyday of the China lobby.

Chen's lack of enthusiasm for his assignment is understandable. He belonged to the independence movement, himself, in Taiwan. Unhappily, he was caught with anti-government literature on his premises and was hauled into the headquarters of the Taiwan Garrison Command. He has recounted his experiences in a detailed, sworn affidavit.

"During my detention," he related, "interrogators subjected me to brutal questioning, shining a harsh light in my eyes and beating me about the

ART BUCHWALD Recommended answers for the inevitable question

WASHINGTON — As you have probably read, Washington is a tough town for wives, especially when they go to dinners and cocktail parties. The first thing a woman is asked is, "What do you do?" If she admits to being just a housewife, the person who asks the question immediately loses interest in her.

A friend of mine named Lucy told me she got sick and tired of being asked the question, so she has come up with some replies that really throw the person who asked it.

Lucy said, "It came by accident one night when a man sitting next to me asked, 'What do you do?' I told him, 'I'm a paper clip inspector for the State Department.'"

"He said, 'You're kidding me.' I said, 'I am not. They have to be twisted just right or the State Department papers won't stick together, and some of them could get lost. What do you do?' He just blushed and said, 'Nothing.'"

Lucy said, "Ever since then, while I'm dressing to go out, I think of something to say for that moment when the inevitable question is asked."

"Not long ago a woman who thought she was important asked me what I did and I told her, 'I'm a food taster for HEW Secretary Califano.' And at another party, a congressman put the question to me and I told him,

Art Buchwald

"I design white lines for shopping mall parking lots."

"I also told a general once that 'I run a halfway house for FBI informers.'"

"Those are very good," I said.

"My husband thinks I'm overdoing it," Lucy told me. "But he doesn't try to stop me. We were at a Georgetown party and all the people were full of themselves, dropping names and quoting VIPs they had spoken to that day. Then someone asked in a very patronizing way, 'What did you do today?' I said, 'I finished carving the last gargoyles on the Washington Cathedral. I thought the wind would blow me off the steeple.'"

"What did they all say?" "What could they say? After that we were the quietest table in the room."

"Does anyone really get thrown when you tell them what you do?" "All the time," Lucy replied. "A few weeks ago a commissioner from one of the federal agencies asked me the question and I said, 'I can't do anything for the moment until the grand jury decides whether or not to indict me. I promised to pay back the money, but my lawyer says the feds still want to pursue it.' His eyes popped out of his head, and then I added, 'Maybe you can help me. You don't know any judges who can be bought in this town, do you?'"

"What did he say to that?"

Lucy chuckled. "He said, 'May I get you a drink?' And I never saw him again."

She continued, "Newspapermen are the worst. If you're not 'somebody' they refuse to talk to you. Once a columnist who was working a room of an embassy stopped for a moment between ambassadors and asked, 'Who are you?'"

"I told him, 'I'm from Lloyd's of London assigned to watch Elizabeth Taylor's diamond necklace. If anyone makes a move toward it I have orders to shoot. Now get out of my way because you're in the line of fire!'"

"What did he do?" "He couldn't keep his eyes off my pocketbook for the rest of the evening."

The Country Parson

NICK THIMMESCH

'Twas a real spring tonic for Gerald Rudolph Ford

WASHINGTON — Gerald R. Ford caused a modest stir here last week because he was in town when a national poll was released showing him beating President Carter by five points. With that tonic, it wasn't difficult for the former President to lay it on about Africa, inflation, the SALT talks and a few other matters weighing down the man who defeated him in 1976.

The room used for his press conference at the American Enterprise Institute was overflowing with newsmen and assorted pundits, sniffing about for the scent of a new political direction, and the possibility that Gerald Rudolph might whip James Earl himself in a rematch.

Ford is not without his pride. He pointedly remarked that the Carter Administration's anti-inflation program was "ineffective and tardy," and noted that when he took office in 1974, inflation was at 13 percent, and when he left, it was down to 4.6. Cluck, cluck. What has Jimmy Carter done to the economy?

Ford was also happy, he said, that the Administration had come around to his view on the Cyprus impasse, and was pushing for the lifting of the arms embargo in Turkey. Moreover, Ford said, President Carter now realized the difficulties in directing foreign policy while encumbered by congressional restraint.

"Congress has encroached much too far on the prerogatives of the Commander-in-Chief to conduct foreign policy," Ford said. "The President does need flexibility. Previous Presidents had that authority." It was the Vietnam experience, he added, which caused Congress to cut that authority, but now Congress should give it back.

Nick Thimmesch

Once the restraints are off, according to Ford reasoning, the President can provide aid to the anti-revolutionary factions in Angola, and thereby stem Cuban and Soviet influence.

"It is unbelievable," he said, sounding like Henry A. Kissinger, "that the United States cannot meet the challenge of a Cuba in the world."

As for the Soviets, Ford said, "There are ways of slowing down programs they want, and they in turn would respond on Africa." If the Soviets wouldn't give way on Africa, Ford said, "We could drag our feet on the SALT talks. If the Soviets and Cubans continue their adventurism, we could say there will be no SALT II."

Ah, hah, spoken like a former President, and not one now occupying the office. Ford would also have backed the "internal settlement" worked out for Rhodesia by Prime Minister Ian Smith; provided Israel with more F-15s in the airplane package deal (which he backed), and pushed for a higher level of defense spending.

Wherever he has been lately, Ford cracks that people should not count him out in 1980. No one really has. Besides the Louis Harris-ABC News poll showing him beating Carter, the latest Gallup finding has Ford the choice of Republicans over Ronald Reagan, by a 40-30 margin, with Howard Baker way back at 11 percent.

Ford conducts himself in Presidential fashion. He travels by chartered jet, with anywhere from a dozen to 20 people in the party. He traveled some 250,000 miles in 1977, visited 27 states and 35 campuses. "He keeps a high silhouette on public affairs," says his old friend, Jack Marsh, "and keeps a very active pace."

While in Washington, Ford held a meeting with many of his Administration's top officials, including Edward Levy, former attorney general; William Coleman, once transportation secretary; Arthur Burns, who ran the Federal Reserve Board; Carla Hills, his HUD secretary; for

Accused Nazi criminal denies Wiesenthal charge,

By EDSON DI FONSO

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — "I have never killed anyone in my life," says Gustav Franz Wagner, accused by Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal of being deputy commander of the Treblinka and Sobibor concentration camps and collaborator in the deaths of 250,000 persons.

Wagner is a 66-year-old former German army officer who entered Brazil in 1950 via Syria, the same way Sobibor commander Franz Stangl did. Wagner turned himself in to police Tuesday night "to clarify the situation," he said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Brazilian investigators were waiting for fingerprint documents to arrive from West Germany before commenting.

Wagner said he thought about turning himself in years ago when Stangl was arrested and extradited from Brazil, but later "thought this would be unnecessary, and my wife said that if they wanted something they would look for me and I thought that all of this had already definitely ended, since I was not fleeing and I was not hiding."

Wagner said he was a second lieutenant in the German military police and was never in Treblinka but added: "I worked in the Sobibor concentration camp where I built shelter and houses. I never built a gas chamber where Jews could be sent to be executed."

"The chief of the camp was Stangl. I didn't have any idea what went on there. But I know that he never killed anyone."

there in the camp." Wagner also denied taking part in a recent Hitler birthday celebration near Rio de Janeiro.

A newspaper photo of the session convinced Wiesenthal, who is based in Vienna, that Wagner was the man he was after.

"I never took part in any gathering of this kind," Wagner said. "I always live on my small farm and the people who live around there can confirm this." Wagner lives near the village of Atibaia, about 50 miles from Sao Paulo.

Hurricane fighters are ready for new season

MIAMI (AP) — When Amelia, the first tropical storm of the 1978 Atlantic hurricane season, comes charging out of the tropics later this year, Dr. Robert Sheets and his group of weather scientists will be ready to do battle.

Sheets, chief of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's hurricane group, says the 1978 season — which begins Thursday — will mark the start of an ambitious program that could lead to routine control of hurricanes within a decade.

If the conditions are right, Sheet's Project Stormfury will fly into the eye of a storm and spread some 500 pounds of silver iodide crystals. The procedure, which literally creates a storm within a storm, is meant to break up the deadly vortex of winds that swirls around the eye at better than 100 mph.

"The present scheme is to reduce the maximum winds by 15 to 20 percent. That's what creates the most intense damage," says Sheets. "If we succeed, we think we can reduce damage by 30 percent."

This year will not be the first experiment in hurricane modification; storms have been seeded in 1961, 1963, 1969 and 1971. But what excites Sheets and other scientists is that for the first time, a $30 million fleet of computer-equipped aircraft will be available to monitor the test.

"The main thing is that we have our new equipment and the capacity to document our findings far above anything in the past," he says. "We have the ability to collect ten times the existing data in one just one storm."

Under the plan, awaiting final approval in Washington, Stormfury's converted Navy Orions and Air Force C-130s would fly out to joust with a mature storm in a pre-determined area north of Puerto Rico.

If conditions are right, the planes would dump the silver iodide on the storm for a 10-hour period. Because the effects of such seeding have not yet been documented, the scientists plan for the operation to take place while the storm is still 24 hours from land.

Because of the political implications of such an experiment, Project Stormfury has had to tread lightly. In 1963, the Cuban government accused the United States of seeding Hurricane Flora, a savage storm that dumped 50 inches of rain on eastern Cuba over a four-day period, killing 7,000.

Berets set protest for Friday

LUBBOCK — Brown Beret chapters across Texas are planning protests Friday in an effort to reopen the case in which a 12-year-old Mexican-American boy was shot to death in Dallas, according to Gilbert Herrera, leader of the Brown Beret here. Members of the Brown Beret, a Mexican-American activist group, he said, will be demonstrating in "every federal building in Texas where there are chapters of Brown Beret."

In West Texas, there are Brown Beret chapters in the Midland-Odessa area, Big Spring and Lubbock. Herrera said the protests are designed to try to bring about indictments against former Dallas police officer Darrell Cain, who was convicted of murder without malice in the July 14, 1973, shooting death of Santos Rodriguez.

Cain was sentenced to five years in prison in 1974 but did not begin serving this sentence until June 1977. A second policeman who was initially implicated in the shooting was never brought to trial.

Cain reportedly was interrogating the Rodriguez youth in a police car when the boy was shot to death. The youth died of a single gunshot wound to the back of the head.

According to reports, the protests theme on Friday will be "Civil Rights Unenforced Is No Rights."

Burning thoughts on fear of frying

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Waiter, roll that fiery chuck chariot, that flaming chuck wagon, back into the kitchen. The flambe course is not for me.

As one who has spent all his formative years and a good portion of his married life eating in the kitchen, I do not yearn to have the scene and the smells recreated for me at the table when I dip into my credit card purse to dine in the poshest of places.

Do the necessary with the steak Diane and le canard flambeau out of my sight and as far as possible from my queasy sense of smell. Never mind flashing those gleaming copper skillets and polish silver cooking turn with a spirit lamp flickering underneath. The hiss of burning fat, the sizzle of scorched suet provide nothing short of a complete turn-off for my taste buds.

The reek of garlic, the gestation aromas of sauce Bernaise, the acrid smell of onions browning in hot butter invest my nostrils with a nostalgic revulsion for the old company mess hall at Fort Dix, where the mess sergeant ladled out greasy portions of corned beef hash from the steaming steam table, while little rivulets of perspiration ran down his bare chest and under his dog tags.

Why do I always think of that when the maitre d' is standing there in his cut away coat and starched, studded shirtfront ready to pour the cream to my taste into the gurgling fettucini?

"Not here," I want to scream. "Take it back to the kitchen where it belongs!" Does this fear of flambe go back to some childhood trauma, a glob of undigested campfire marshmallow? A coal-black Boy Scout hot dog?

A cookout at your table seems to be the in-thing at all the "in" restaurants in the nation's capital, the sort of places where Barbara Walters lunches with Menachem Begin or where the Joint Chiefs repair to when the Pentagon cafeteria is having a special on chicken a la king.

Whenever I am fortunate enough to dine in such sophisticated surroundings, in the same room with Hamilton Jordan warming his hands over a Bad Amoretto, just a few tables away from Art Buchwald nosing on knish, I find myself tapping the silverware on the table in time to Andrew Marvel's mordant couplet:

"Always at my back I hear, time's winged chariot hurrying near."

Because always at my back I hear the maitre d's wheeled chariot a-whoosh with the leaping flames of burned cognac, crackling with the sparks of Granocio alla Gran Diavola (devilish crab when done in the kitchen), aflame with burnt offerings of every imaginable variety brought to your table direct from the basement cook ranges of Dante's Inferno.

I should be elated, humble, sharing a backyard barbeque in such an elegant indoor setting with the very flower and power of our Republic. There at the next table is Tungson Park, poking at a pot of Korean seven-way beef over a charcoal brazier. There in the corner, huddled over a pungent urn of bubbling fondue, are Ethel Kennedy, the Shah of Iran's twin sister—you know, the one at the U.N.—I.M. Pei, the architect, and Billy Kilmer, the Redskin quarterback. I should be in Seventh heaven, celebrity-wise, but there in the penultimate banquetette is Farrah Fawcett-Majors, those lovely limpid eyes fastened on the waiter as he—yeech—cracks an egg and uncovers the anchovies for her Caesar salad. Nothing curdles my marrow and turns my digestive juices to acid faster than the sight of a raw egg and the low tide sniff of naked anchovies. "Check, please, waiter."

I know for sure the short order cook in the diner at the intersection of the Interstate does a better job cooking in public than these aging Tenderfoot scouts in their frock coats and grease-wilted carnations. At least I don't go out into the night with r-hair reeking of garlic and the back of my collar stained and singed by the blue flame of cognac cookery.

Irish Coffee is another flaming abomination that should be banned in public, despite its medicinal benefits. I don't know how many times in how many countries I've seen the poor minion crack a glass, fail to get the cream to float and even give up the whole effort and instead offer a couple of boiler-makers on the house.

Cuisine au table is fraught with dangers. I was on a Norwegian ship once when they doused the lights for the windup of the captain's gala dinner and the waiters came in with trays of Baked Alaska held on high. High enough to set off the ceiling fire sprinklers.

Bananas Foster, a delicious dish, caused the fire that burned down Brennan's great restaurant in New Orleans. (It's back in business now.) The flames from the flambe dessert were sucked into the air-conditioning vents as a waiter emerged from the kitchen with an order.

The nice thing about dining in Chinese restaurants, where here or in the People's Republic, is that all the cooking takes place behind the window-less doors of the kitchen. The inscrutable Orientals do not share their secrets or their failures with the paying customers.

The only thing I ever really yearn to have set aflame in a restaurant is the check.

Soviets grow plants in 'moon' conditions

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian biologists say they have produced wheat, carrots, sugar beets, radishes and some other plants in lighting conditions that simulate the moon's.

There was no indication the Russians plan to make their cosmonauts farmers, but reporting in the Soviet Journal Space Biology and Avia-Space Medicine the scientists said Monday they found that plants still thrive in long periods of darkness.

During 15 days from the time of sprouting, the plants were grown in a porous clay "soil" with nutrients. When the plants were in a darkness cycle, scientists said, tap water was used instead of the nutrients and was poured on the seeds every three days.

The journal reported that the wheat was not inferior to normal stalks but the weight of the grains was "somewhat less." The scientists concluded that the aberration may have been caused by some "violation" in grain forming because of the darkness.

Unlike the earth, which rotates daily, the moon rotates only monthly, keeps one side to the sun for a longer period of time, making for long days and long nights.

Adults turning to orthodontics

By MIKE GOODKIND

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Muffi Durham's praise for her orthodontist sounds a bit like the television commercial roles she landed with the help of her newly straightened teeth.

"Two years ago, I was turned down for a soft drink commercial because I couldn't show my teeth when I smiled," says Miss Durham, 26, flashing a perfectly aligned streak of white. "Now," she says, "I've been getting a lot more parts. It really paid off."

Only a few of Dr. Craven Kurz' patients are aspiring actresses or models like Miss Durham — many are housewives, mailmen or secretaries. But all are adults, under going a treatment once thought to be reserved for children and teen-agers.

Improved braces have replaced the "railroad track" look of metal bands with subtler, often tooth-colored, plastic brackets. And, say orthodontists, the public is increasingly more health conscious and less reluctant to be seen with braces.

"There's been a tremendous increase in adult orthodontics in the last four or five years," says Dr. T. Michael Speidel, a Minneapolis orthodontist.

In Atlanta, Dr. Marvin Goldstein says when he treated his first adult patient in the late 1940s, he scoured dental literature and found only one or two isolated cases of adults who had worn braces.

"Dentists then were just sort of told that you couldn't treat adults because they were fully grown. I had to work hard to overcome those early taboos which had no basis in fact."

Kurz is still unusual in the profession because he treats adults almost exclusively. But Goldstein says his practice now is about half adults. In the Minneapolis area, Speidel says the average orthodontist is treating from 10 percent to 30 percent adults, an increase over practically none 25 years ago and a substantial rise from even five or 10 years ago.

Dr. Deloit Wolfe, one of four orthodontists in the 60,000-population university and lumber town of Missoula, Mont., says his 20 percent adult patient load includes a few cocktail waitresses and secretaries who felt they needed straighter smiles to do well on the job.

"But I've treated a grandmother in her 50s, roofers, ranchers and general laborers. About 90 percent of my adults are females, but the men are starting to come after their family dentists point out that straighter teeth can help relieve physical problems," such as gum disorders, difficulty in chewing or teeth which would ultimately have to be extracted.

"It's the initial trauma to their own ego," says Wolfe. "But the dental IQ of the American public is getting to the point where they really do appreciate anyone who takes a step at self-improvement. As I tell all my patients, if any of your peers give you a bad time, they are not worthy of having as friends, anyway."

Kurz says slightly more than half of his patients are women, who are often more open about admitting that aesthetics was more important than health considerations in bringing them to the orthodontist.

Kurz, 35, who practices in the affluent Westwood section of West Los Angeles, says recently developed, less conspicuous braces have helped make orthodontic work more palatable for adults. Instead of wrapping metal bands around the teeth, plastic, tooth-colored brackets are glued onto the teeth and connected with ivory-colored wires.

Some dentists shy away from the brackets because of their tendency to break, says Wolfe, who uses them only if the patient insists. But Kurz says he has worked with the plastic brackets long enough "to solve most of the problems."

Sometimes, says Kurz, a patient who only needs minor straightening can get by with a removable appliance, a wire gadget which can be taken out of the mouth.

"Kids still seem to want the metal," says Kurz. "Around here braces are a status symbol. The kid without braces feels left out, I guess, and at least until the time when he or she develops an interest in the opposite sex, they want their braces to be noticed."

Fees for the usual two years or so required for a full treatment range from less than $900, reported by orthodontists in some rural areas, to over $3,000 charged by dentists in affluent parts of big cities. Insurance plans increasingly are picking up at least part of the cost, the dentists say.

Pryor holds thin edge in Senate runoff vote

By The Associated Press

Arkansas Gov. David Pryor held a razor-thin lead today over two congressmen in a race to fill two runoff slots for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate seat once held by John McClellan, who died last November at age 81.

A runoff in North Carolina was more conclusive, handing the Democratic senatorial nomination to state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, a surprise victor over favored Luther Hodges Jr., the son of a former governor.

Pryor nursed a lead of less than 8,000 votes while U.S. Rep. Ray Thornton and U.S. Rep. Jim Guy Tucker saw-sawed for second, Tucker trailing by less than 2,000 votes. The two-candidate runoff is June 13.

With about 460,000 votes tallied in 81 percent of the precincts, the unofficial count showed Pryor with 35 percent and Thornton and Tucker each with about 32 percent.

A fourth candidate, political novice A.C. Grigson, had 2 percent.

Pryor lost in a 1972 attempt to upset Democrat McClellan after serving three terms each in the Arkansas House and Congress, from the south Arkansas district Thornton now represents. In 1974, Pryor bounced back to win the governorship and was re-elected in 1976.

When Pryor ran against McClellan, Thornton won Pryor's congressional job. Thornton had served one term as attorney general.

Tucker was prosecuting attorney at Little Rock and served two terms as attorney general. In 1976 he won the House seat given up by Wilbur Mills when Mills retired after the Fanne Foxe affair.

North Carolina winner Ingram said he would use the same populist campaign issues in his battle against Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, a staunch conservative, as he did to take the nomination from Hodges.

"We think we have the people's support and that's all we need," Ingram said at an early victory celebration Tuesday.

Ingram, who trailed Hodges in the initial primary four weeks ago by 14 percent, asked for the runoff Tuesday because Hodges had failed to capture a majority. No state candidate had ever won a runoff after trailing by more than 10 percent.

Hodges, the son of former Gov.

Luther Hodges, past secretary of commerce under President John Kennedy, won 87 of North Carolina's 100 counties in the first primary, an eight-way race, and ran second in the rest. In the second race Hodges finished with 55,000 votes fewer while Ingram gained almost 70,000 votes and captured 68 counties.

With complete returns counted, Ingram received 244,695 votes for 54.2 percent, while Hodges got 206,945 votes for 45.8 percent.

Arkansas Attorney General Bill Clinton, 31, won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, open because of Pryor's senatorial candidacy.

With 81 percent of the votes counted, Clinton had 59 percent. The nearest of the other four candidates had 22 percent.

In a four-man race for the Democratic nomination for Tucker's congressional seat, state Rep. Doug Brandon won a runoff spot. Three men were in a close race for the other spot. The winner of the runoff will face Republican lawyer Ed Bethune of Searcy.

Young counsels silence to latest Cuban attack

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young is counseling silence to Cuba's attack on President Carter's African policy, contending a sharp reply would take attention away from the General Assembly's special disarmament debate, diplomatic sources say.

Young, who has taken a more benign view of Cuban involvement in Africa than the White House and the Pentagon, did not use the 15-minute rebuttal time he was entitled to Tuesday after Cuban Vice President Carlos Rafael Rodriguez told the assembly Carter's charge that Cuba trained and equipped rebel invaders of southern Zaire was "absolutely false...based on impudently repeated lies."

However, an American official said the White House or the State Department might comment on the Cuban attack today.

Rodriguez followed up his assembly speech with a nationwide TV interview in which he told Barbara Walters of ABC that Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser, is an enemy "of all the progressive people of the world."

The vice president charged in the interview that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency is providing Carter with the kind of false information he said led to U.S. involvement in the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba and the Vietnam War. He said this sort of CIA work was being done by people like Brzezinski.

Rodriguez challenged the U.S. government to produce evidence of Cuba's involvement in Zaire's Shaba Province.

"Cuba is not responsible for what has been happening in Shaba," he declared. "We have not sent troops or even isolated men. We have not given them equipment and are not even linked politically with the group that took responsibility for this."

He added that President Fidel Castro "is very angry about what is happening because he feels that we have been unjustly treated."

Brzezinski recently delivered a series of sharp criticisms of the Soviet Union and Cuba. He called for "an international response" to Soviet and Cuban military activity in Africa and said that, in this regard, the United States and China, Moscow's main adversaries, have "parallel interests."

Rodriguez's hour-long speech to the assembly was greeted by 35 seconds of thunderous applause. It was the biggest ovation of the week-old session, exceeding in length and intensity the applause for French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua following their speeches.

Summing up Third World sentiment about the U.S. Cuban dispute, Nigerian Ambassador Leslie O. Harriman said it was "ludicrous" to believe that the presence of Cubans in Angola and elsewhere in Africa was a threat to Africa.

"The Cubans were invited there after some multifarious activities by Western agents, and the Cubans in Angola stabilized the situation there," he said.

Michael to marry Catholic divorcee

LONDON (AP) — Prince Michael of Kent, a first cousin of Queen Elizabeth II and 16th in line to the throne, is going to marry a Roman Catholic divorcee, the Press Association reports.

The British news agency's court correspondent, quoting "reliable sources," said the Duke of Kent's 35-year-old brother, an army major, and 33-year-old, German-born Baroness Marie-Christine von Reibnitz will announce their engagement later this week and will marry in July in Austria, where her family has an estate.

Buckingham Palace said an announcement concerning the prince will be made within a few days, but a spokesman declined to confirm or deny the PA report.

It is the second time this year that the royal family has been affected by divorce, a sensitive issue since the queen is head of the Church of England and it does not sanction divorce. But the divorce last week of Princess Margaret, the queen's sister, and Lord Snowdon caused little adverse public reaction, and the admission of a divorced woman to the ranks of the royal cousins is not likely to upset many people.

Marriage to the baroness, a London interior designer, will force the prince to give up his right of succession because anyone in line for the throne is forbidden to marry a Catholic. They also cannot be married in the Church of England because it will not marry a divorced person as long as the other spouse is alive.

The baroness and merchant banker Tom Troubridge were divorced several months ago. The Catholic Church annulled the marriage three weeks ago, and the PA report said she has applied to the Vatican for permission to marry the Anglican prince in a Catholic church.

The Press Association said the Privy Council, the queen's advisory body, is expected to approve the marriage on behalf of the queen Wednesday night after months of consultations between the royal family and Church of England leaders.

No one so close to the queen as Prince Michael has ever married a divorced person. However, the Earl of Harewood, another of her first-cousins, was divorced in 1967 and married the mother of his son born three years before.

In 1936, the queen's uncle, King Edward VIII, gave up the throne after less than a year so he could marry twice-divorced Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Saudi seeking bank

ATLANTA (AP) — Saudi Arabian businessman Gail R. Pharaon has offered to buy controlling interest in the National Bank of Georgia, once headed by former federal budget director Bert Lance, according to letters mailed to the stockholders of the bank.

Watchdog system only partial success with security income plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Creation of a special watchdog system has saved money but failed to wipe out errors in the nearly $5-billion-a-year Supplemental Security Income program, the General Accounting Office reports.

GAO auditors, in a random review of 556 SSI cases from 1976, found 3.4 percent more errors in payments than did the special quality control unit. The report, released Tuesday, said these errors included overpayments, underpayments, payments to ineligible persons and incorrect personal data.

But despite shortcomings, said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the quality control system has played a significant role in cutting the SSI error rate in half.

SSI provides federal benefits to more than 4.2 million needy aged, blind and disabled Americans. The federal benefits, which average about $178 a month for one person and $267 for a couple, are supplemented by several states.

SSI was begun in 1974 and the Social Security Administration quickly ran into problems determining eligibility and ensuring that benefit checks were correct. About 24.8 percent of SSI recipients were incorrectly paid during the last half of 1974.

A quality control unit, now operating with a 703-member staff and a $15.4-million budget, was quickly created to monitor SSI payments and reduce errors.

In its review, GAO noted that in the 556-case sample the special unit had found 128 errors in SSI payments or data. But GAO determined that the unit made errors of its own in 32 of those 128 cases.

In 19 cases, according to GAO, the quality control unit incorrectly computed the amount of SSI benefits, missing the mark by an average of $66 per case.

In addition, said GAO, the unit should have caught 24 errors averaging $62. And if the unit had used more extensive procedures, it could have found 17 additional errors averaging $57 a case, GAO said.

HEW officials generally agreed with the GAO report. But the department said the document should reflect significant improvements in the SSI error rate over the past few years.

"The case-error rate has been reduced by nearly 50 percent, 24.8 percent to about 13 percent; the payment-error rate has been reduced by nearly 60 percent, from a high of 31.5 percent to 4.9 percent," HEW wrote.

Tension between Russia, U.S. building steadily

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Soviet tensions are escalating to new heights as the Carter administration tries to cope with rising Soviet pressures in Africa, an internal crackdown on dissidents and a Red military buildup in Eastern Europe.

The tougher U.S. tone has parts of this capital approaching the anti-communist fever that marked the Cold War of the late 1940s and the 1950s.

The administration's aim is to get Russia to reverse itself while satisfying this country's voters — heading toward the fall congressional elections — that the government is alert to the continuing Soviet tests of U.S. resolve.

The rhetoric is mostly that of Zbigniew Brzezinski, the national security adviser who has successfully counseled President Carter to publicize the criticism and to put more "bite" in its statements.

Once thought to favor easing the Cold War, Brzezinski has evolved into a leading skeptic of Soviet intentions. He was recently quoted as explaining, "Anybody who maintains that one has to be constant in one's views in every respect for decades is a jerk."

Why the administration is publicizing its concerns now is not entirely clear.

For instance, there is concern, particularly at the State Department, that the partially completed treaty with the Russians to limit strategic nuclear weapons might be forfeited in the turmoil.

A number of key issues remain unresolved in the deliberations, which were resumed today in New York between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Vance acknowledged that the two sides made little progress in weekend talks here despite Carter's personal intercession. Hopes for an early accord or a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev this summer are receding.

While the Russians are interested in completing the treaty and aware of the "negative spillover" from the African adventurism, a senior U.S. official said, Moscow is willing to take that risk.

A second concern was raised by another official in general agreement with the administration.

"Once you get the anti-communist monster out of the bag in this country, it is difficult to get it back in," he told the Associated Press.

"If you stir the anti-communist psyche to a sufficient degree that it begins to be really worried about any deals with the Soviets, then even dealing with them on a cultural basis becomes very difficult."

So why is the U.S. taking its new, hard line toward Moscow?

Among the reasons, according to knowledgeable administration officials, are these:

—The frustration that Soviet and Cuban penetration in Africa is deepening despite private Kremlin assurances in March that the Russians would appeal to Havana to cut back.

—Since Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin talked with Vance, the Cuban force has ballooned from about 24,000 to between 38,000 and 40,000 men.

—The domestic political pressures that require Carter to demonstrate his determination in dealing with the Russians even as he is trying to conclude the weapons treaty and an accord banning all U.S., Soviet and British nuclear tests.

—Pressures from moderate Arab and African countries seeking reassurances, as one U.S. official put it, "that the president is ready to do something about the rolling Red tide" in their regions.

—The hope that the Russians will get the message, if it is repeated often enough in public and in private, that their actions are not consistent with what Brzezinski calls "the code of detente."

"My hope," he said last weekend, "is that through patient negotiations with us, but also through demonstrated resolve on our part, we can induce the Soviet leaders to conclude that the benefits of accommodation are greater than the shortsighted attempt to exploit global difficulties."

In this vein, the administration has decided to explore with its West European allies in Paris next week possible ways of propping up friendly African countries, perhaps by using NATO as a conduit for arms and other aid.

Government closes down university

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The government shut down the national university until June 12 following student rioting in which one student was killed and two others and 10 policemen were injured.

The students rioted Tuesday to protest the jailing of several classmates in earlier violence. The university was shut for five days last week after a week of rioting.

Violent protests over rising prices have been staged daily for the last three weeks in major Colombian cities. The main target is a recent hike in bus fares from 12 to 15 cents.

Inflation last year hit a record 29 percent and labor unions have demanded wage hikes up to 50 percent. The average monthly wage is $100.

Officials claim terrorists are fomenting the unrest prevent or disrupt the presidential election Sunday. Critics of the government say it is a protest by the public against unpopular economic programs.

Property tax being fought

SEPULVEDA, Calif. (AP) — On a platform in a roped-off suburban street on a sweltering hot night, a heavy-set man with slicked-back hair and sagging jowls grips a microphone with one hand, waves the other hand in the air and bellows, "It's either them or us, and we're for us."

This is the face of California's property tax revolt.

The speaker is Howard Jarvis, a 75-year-old former newspaper publisher, now head of a landlords' association and sponsor of a $7 billion property tax cut proposal, Proposition 13 on the June 6 state ballot.

Pollsters in California predict adoption of Jarvis' proposal, which would cut property taxes by an average of 57 percent. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. opposes the plan but is drafting plans to cut back government services.

In the cheering crowd is a middle-aged woman whose husband is a city surveyor. Her home has just been reassessed from $32,000 to $63,000. She plans to express her anger by voting for Proposition 13.

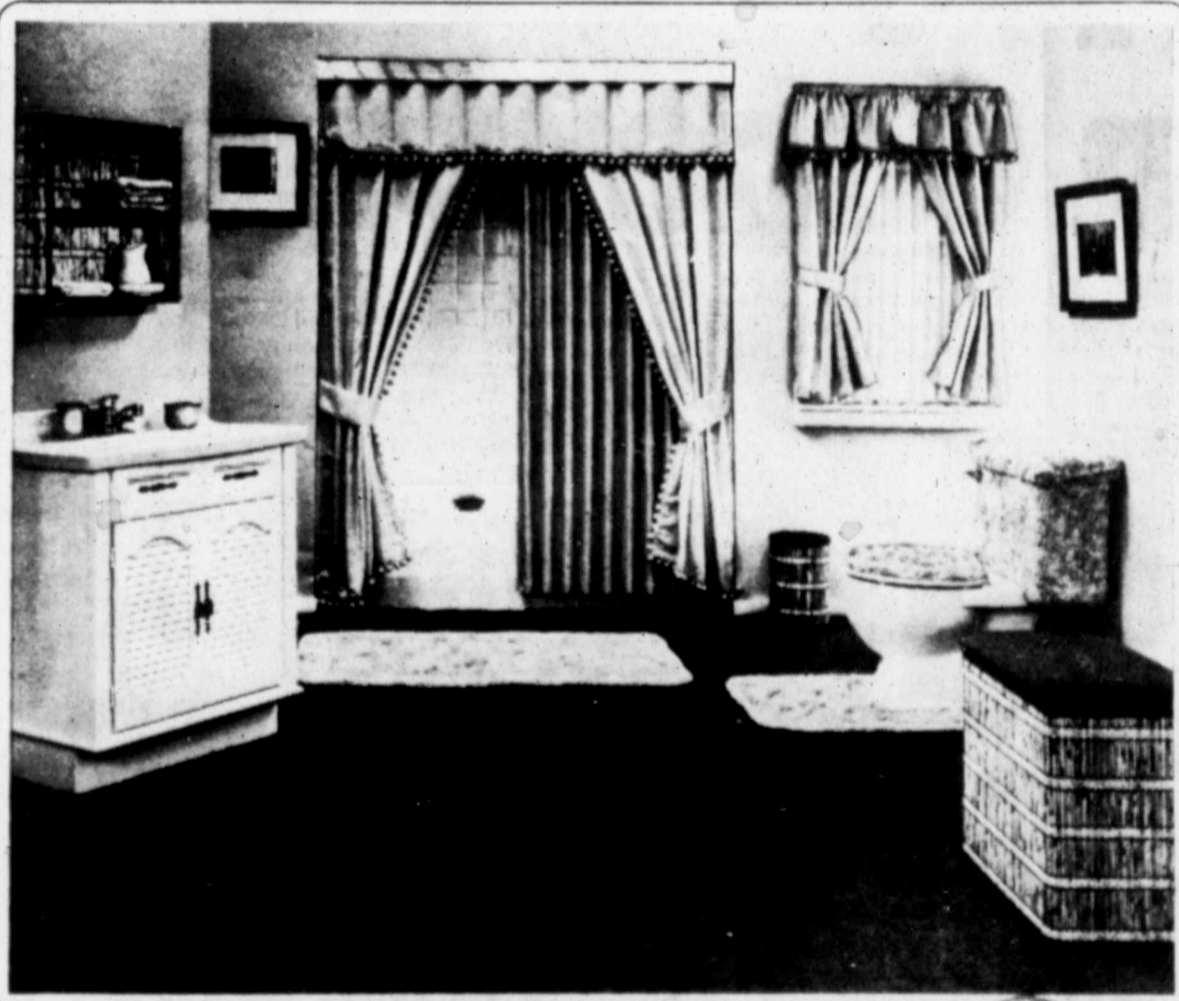

"They're scaring the people by saying they'll cut back on the fire department and police," said the woman, who refused to give her name. "I don't believe it. Everybody has to do without something. Now government will have to do without something."

Her husband said his department will be cut 30 percent if 13 passes, but he's voting for it anyway. "So I'll cut my throat," he said. "I'll get another job, go somewhere else."

People like these are the backbone of Jarvis' movement. They live in suburbs, where property assessments, fueled by inflation and a tight housing market, have exploded. In Jarvis they have a leader who tells them their anger is not only justified, it is heroic.

But opponents say Proposition 13 would not hurt politicians, but the more than 400,000 public and private employees who would lose their jobs, plus millions more who depend on local government services like schools, police and fire departments, libraries and parks — all funded partly by property taxes.

FDA recalls Kraft mayonnaise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced the recall today of more than 4,000 cases of Kraft Real Mayonnaise with Pure Lemon Juice because the jars may contain dead insects.

The agency said the products do not constitute a serious health hazard. Also announced today were recalls of 269 cardiac pacemakers, 436 dialysis machines and 318 Caloric microwave ovens.

Nancy Glick, an FDA spokeswoman, said the mayonnaise was distributed to more than 4,000 stores in the South.

During a random inspection at Kraft's Decatur, Ga., plant, Ms. Glick said, assorted minute beetles and mites were discovered sticking to the inside of the 32-ounce glass jars filled with mayonnaise.

The company is attempting to retrieve all of its mayonnaise with lemon juice produced during the three days surrounding the discovery of the contaminated jars.

The jars can be identified by the code: OCT-3-78A-1, OCT-12-78A-1 and OCT-13-78A-1.

The mayonnaise was distributed to stores in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

The FDA identified the potentially defective pacemakers as ARCO Lithium-Powered models LI-2F, LI-2D, LI-3D and LI-4D.

Ms. Glick said a failure in the manufacturing process could cause the units to short-circuit and recommended that physicians closely monitor patients who have had the pacemakers implanted and replace the devices when indicated.

She said ARCO Medical Products Co. of Leeburg, Pa., has sent letters to all physicians who received the units for implantation and who should have records indicating which of their patients received the recalled devices.

Legislators generally have ignored governors' budget recommendations, and Hill was asked what made him any different.

"I would hope that by the hard work we are going to put in... we will build credibility with the Legislature. I am going to do every thing I can to bring about the enactment of the kind of budget recommendations I make," Hill said.

Ledbetter holds bachelor's and master's degrees in economics from Texas A&M, where he quarterbacked the 1965 and 1966 Aggie football team.

He worked for the budget board from 1969 to 1973, worked two years for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and became Bullock's chief clerk in 1975.

He rejoined Hobby's staff in 1976, then quit last August to run for treasurer. Warren G. Harding defeated him in the May 6 Democratic primary.

John Hill hires former treasurer candidate as state campaign budget consultant

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — John Hill, showing no trace of doubt he will be elected governor in November, has hired defeated treasurer candidate Harry Ledbetter to write him a state budget.

"The only way I can be effective in January is to begin preparations in June," Hill told a news conference Tuesday. He still has Republican Bill Clements to contend with in November.

Ledbetter was Comptroller Bob Bullock's chief clerk when Bullock first was elected. Bullock, a political foe of Hill, makes revenue estimates that could help or hinder a governor's budgetary activities.

Hill laughingly admitted Ledbetter's friendship with Bullock "might be a fringe benefit."

Every governor has a budget director, and Ledbetter appears to be first in line for the job if Hill is elected. But Hill was non-committal, saying he couldn't promise jobs at this stage.

On other matters, Hill said: —Billy Goldberg, a Houston lawyer and major Hill fundraiser, is among the two names recommended to him most frequently for chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee. He declined to name the other.

—The state party's September convention — not the gubernatorial nominee — should select replacements for Democratic National Committee members Jess Hay, Alicia Chacon and Joe Bernal, who are resigning.

—He expects to have a staff report within a month on the death of Larry Lozano, who died of injuries received in the Ector County jail at Odessa. A coroner's inquest exonerated jail officials, but Mexican-Americans have continued to protest the death.

Hill said his appointment of Ledbetter, a former analyst for the Legislative Budget Board, was partial fulfillment of a campaign promise of sound money management.

"After all, budget management is the key tool to controlling costs," he said.

Hill said he is open to increasing budgets of state agencies that are under-funded, such as the Department of Public Safety claims to be.

High court rules police may search newspapers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police may search a newspaper office for criminal evidence even though none of the paper's employees is involved in the crime, the Supreme Court ruled today.

Voting 5-3, the court said police are under no legal obligation to first seek the desired evidence by subpoena.

"Properly administered, the preconditions for a warrant should afford sufficient protection against the harms that are assertedly threatened by warrants for searching newspaper offices," Justice Byron R. White wrote for the court.

Today's decision reversed rulings by a federal trial judge and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in a case involving a police search of the Stanford Daily office on Stanford University's Palo Alto, Calif., campus in 1971.

David Ansley, editor of the Stanford Daily, said the newspaper was "appalled at the Supreme Court's cavalier attitude toward the freedom of the press. It's a sad day in the history of the American press when the high court sees fit to condone surprise searches of newspaper offices, by police looking for evidence against third parties."

"Persons feeling they are subject to prosecution are not likely to offer information on a confidential basis if they know that at any moment police officers can search through reporters' desks, files and even wastepaper baskets," Ansley said. "As far as we're concerned you might as well set up a desk at our front door for policemen."

The lower courts had ruled that police searches of the premises of someone not suspected of a crime are almost never legally justified.

The lower courts also ruled that even more protection is due newspaper offices because of constitutional free-press protections.

The Supreme Court today rejected those holdings.

"The critical element in a reasonable search is not that the owner of the property is suspected of crime but that there is reasonable cause to believe that the specific 'things' to be searched for and seized are located on the property to which entry is sought," White's opinion said.

It added, "Neither the Fourth Amendment (protection against unreasonable searches) nor the cases requiring consideration of First Amendment (free press) values in issuing search warrants call for imposing the regime ordered" by the lower courts.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist joined White's opinion.

Dissenting were Justices Potter Stewart, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. took no part in deciding the case.

In a dissenting opinion for himself and Marshall, Stewart wrote, "It seems to me self-evident that police searches of newspaper offices burden the freedom of the press."

In a separate opinion, Stevens said, "In this case, the warrant application set forth no facts suggesting that (the newspaper) was involved in any wrongdoing or would destroy the desired evidence if given notice of what the police desired."

"I would therefore hold that... the search was unreasonable," Stevens said.

Palo Alto police had obtained a magistrate's warrant to search the student newspaper's office three days after a riot at the Stanford University Hospital in which nine police officers were injured ousting demonstrators from hospital property.

Photographs of the demonstration had appeared in the Stanford Daily the day before the search, and the warrant authorized police to seek out all pictures and negatives of pictures taken at the event.

Police hoped to use the photos to identify some of the demonstrators believed to have been involved in the fight with police.

The search was conducted, but it turned up no new evidence helpful to the police investigation.

U.S. District Judge Robert F. Peckham, backed by the 9th Circuit court, had ruled that the search was unconstitutional because police should always first consider the possibility of getting desired materials through use of a subpoena.

Police officials unsuccessfully appealed to the 9th Circuit and then carried the case to the nation's highest court, where it had been viewed as a major free-press test case.

Justice Stewart agreed with the lower courts that police should always have to prove that issuing a subpoena for materials wanted from a newspaper is not feasible before being allowed to obtain a search warrant.

The court's majority, however, ruled that there is no constitutional basis for such a belief.

White's opinion noted that the Constitution's authors were "aware of the long struggle between Crown and press" when they "took the enormously important step of subjecting searches to the test of reasonableness."

But White added, "They nevertheless did not forbid warrants where the press was involved, did not require special showings that subpoenas would be impractical, and did not insist that the owner of the place to be searched, if connected with the press, must be shown to be implicated in the offense being investigated."

College will offer short course in computer language

A short course in computer language is being offered beginning Tuesday at Midland College, according to James Bramlett, director of the Department of Community Services.

The class, limited to 20 students, will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays for five weeks in room 106 of the Occupational-Technical Building. The fee is $40.

Persons may preregister from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. through Thursday of this week and on Monday and Tues-

Convicted former Gestapo agent claims unfair trial

CHICAGO (AP) — A retired factory worker stripped of his citizenship by a federal judge who ruled he was once a teen-age Gestapo agent says he did not get a fair trial.

Frank Walus, 55, did not attend Tuesday's court session where the ruling was made by U.S. District Judge Julius Hoffman.

But at his home, Walus said he felt his trial was "one-sided — all on one side."

He said it did not matter that the prosecution in the civil proceeding presented 11 witnesses who identified him as a Gestapo agent they saw in Jewish ghettos in Poland during World War II.

"It doesn't matter," he said. "I had people who identified me, too. People who knew me and what I was doing."

Walus' lawyer, Robert Korenkiewicz, contended during the proceedings that Walus was working as a farm laborer during the time he was accused of being involved with the Gestapo.

After Hoffman's ruling, Korenkiewicz said he was not sure whether Walus would appeal.

Under Tuesday's order, Walus must surrender his certificate of naturalization to Justice Department attorneys by June 9.

Immigration officials could begin deportation proceedings against Walus. However, David Vandersall, regional INS director, said no decision had been made to do so.

An immigration judge would decide in administrative hearings whether to deport Walus. Any deportation order could be appealed through the federal courts, government officials said.

Walus' wife, Celina, and his 13-year-old son were present for Hoffman's ruling. Afterward

Mrs. Walus said, "One thing I can say: It's a terrible conspiracy. I don't have anything else to say. Eleven Jewish witnesses lying like hell — they got money. What proof do you have he is guilty? We will appeal. Absolutely. Absolutely."

Korenkiewicz said Walus did not attend because of the emotional nature of the trial and concern for Walus' safety.

Hoffman, who is Jewish, ruled that evidence presented in the 17-day civil trial was "clear, convincing and unequivocal," that Walus lacked "good moral character" required for citizenship.

He found that Walus failed to inform immigration officials of his background as a Gestapo agent during naturalization proceedings.

The judge added that evidence "was consistent, horrible and generally unshakeable" that Walus committed wartime atrocities.

testifying today.

In his opening statement, defense attorney Gregg Pomeroy said Fedorenko was a prisoner himself who was always under armed guard. "He never beat, struck or harmed Jews," Pomeroy said. "Mr. Fedorenko will testify he was beaten by Germans himself."

Fedorenko, 71, who became a U.S. citizen in 1949, is charged with lying on his naturalization application if found guilty, he could face deportation and a trial in Europe as a war criminal.

In a similar case in Chicago, a federal judge ruled Tuesday that Frank Walus, a retired factory worker, lied on his naturalization application by not revealing his past as a teen-age Gestapo agent who murdered two dozen Jews in Poland. Walus was ordered to surrender his U.S. citizenship.

Turowski said his entire family was killed in Nazi gas chambers.

Speaking through an interpreter, Turowski testified that Fedorenko was a noncommissioned officer in the Ukrainian police force at Treblinka, the camp in Poland.

China trade group optimistic

HONG KONG (AP) — A 10-member delegation from the New York Board of Trade, enroute to China with "Big Apple" pins for top Communist officials, predicted today that trade between the United States and Peking could double or triple in the next few years. Gilbert A. Robinson, the board's international chairman who is leading the first official New York business group to visit China, made the prediction at a news conference here.

The delegation, which has been invited by the China Council for Promotion of International Trade, leaves for Canton by train today and will visit Kweilin, Shanghai, Nanking and Peking before flying to Tokyo on June 16.

China trade this year is already higher than during the same period in 1977 though she gave no figures. Ruddick Lawrence, the board's president and a member of the delegation, said the United States last year exported about $300 million in goods and equipment to China and imported about $170 million.

Noting that the total two-way trade was fairly small, Robinson said: "A doubling or tripling of trade is not out of the question in the next few years." Lawrence, a retired vice president of Continental Oil, said the Chinese have expressed an interest in technology affecting energy and the delegation would express the willingness of the American petroleum industry to assist China in solving its energy problems. The Chinese already have purchased several oil rigs and other sophisticated energy-related equipment from American companies.

Warren killing remains mystery

ANDREWS — The slaying of Richard V. Warren Jr., 34, was still a mystery to Andrews officials Tuesday. According to a representative in the sheriff's office, virtually nothing had been discovered that could pinpoint Warren's whereabouts from 6 p.m. Saturday, May 20, to 10:15 a.m. Tuesday, May 23.

Warren's body was found May 23 partially buried in a pile of highway gravel dumped beside the Big Spring Highway, 14 miles east of Andrews.

He had been shot five times and died an estimated 48 hours before he was found at 10:15 a.m. on that date, according to an Odessa doctor who performed an autopsy.

Andrews officials are searching for Warren's car in hopes of finding a clue in his death. As of Tuesday, they had received no information on the vehicle, a 1970 royal blue Chevrolet El Camino pickup with Arkansas license tags DOY-277, said a deputy in the sheriff's office.

The deputy said that no one they had talked to had seen Warren during the two-day time lapse, which is another area the officials said they are investigating.

Robinson read reporters a letter he received from U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps which said: "This mission is especially timely in light of the new initiatives China is taking to increase trade with the United States and other developed nations." She noted that U.S.

Wilkins discussed King ouster with FBI, newspaper reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy Wilkins is the unnamed black leader mentioned by the FBI as having discussed with the bureau the removal of Dr. Martin Luther King as leader of the civil rights movement, The Washington Post says.

The Post quoted unnamed sources today as saying Wilkins was the leader referred to in a Dec. 1, 1964 FBI memo that dealt with the bureau's campaign to discredit King.

In addition to the Post report, the Atlanta Constitution said today that a comparison of the FBI memo with Wilkins' testimony to the Senate Intelligence Committee indicates that Wilkins may have been the leader who met with the FBI.

Wilkins, retired executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people, was unavailable for comment. But his wife Aminda, reached in New York Tuesday, called the Post story an "absolute fabrication."

"I heard him tell that to someone else," she said. The Post said that Wilkins told the Senate Intelligence Committee staff in 1975 that the FBI memo was "self-serving and full of inaccuracies."

Quoting informed sources, the Post said FBI documents show

Wilkins met on Nov. 27, 1964 with Cartha DeLoach, who then was FBI assistant director. They discussed the bureau's attitude toward King, the Post report said.

DeLoach, now a business executive in New York, said in a memo written Nov. 27, 1964 that the meeting ended with Wilkins promising to "tell King that he can't win in a battle with the FBI and that the best thing for him to do is to retire from public life."

FBI official J.A. Sizoo wrote the Dec. 1 follow-up memo and suggested further action against King. Addressed to late FBI Assistant Director William C. Sullivan, it picked up some of De-Loach's Nov. 27 remarks but deleted Wilkins' name.

The Sizoo memo was obtained under the Freedom of Information Act by the nonprofit Center for National Security Studies.

SUPER HANDYMAN

Simplify your painting job

By AL CARRELL

When something has to be painted on all sides including top and bottom, you usually have to have on two separate painting sessions. However, lightweight items can often be suspended so that you can spray on all the surfaces. If it's not a spray job, and if it's lightweight, try this. Paint bottom first. Then insert four long thumbtacks into the corners of the newly painted bottom surface. Next, turn the piece over. The thumbtacks act as legs to prevent the newly painted area from resting on and sticking to the surface below. After the paint dries, the thumbtacks come out leaving almost invisible holes in the bottom. If the thumbtacks aren't quite right for your project, think about tapping small nails into the wood just far enough to be secure, but not so far they'll be difficult to remove.

Since I buy self-service gasoline, I have to check all the things like the oil and battery myself. It's much easier to find the dipsticks for oil and transmission fluid because I have sprayed them a bright orange. I decided to do this after I reached in at the wrong place and got grease on a sleeve. Before painting, you do have to completely degrease the metal. — A Motor Miss SUPER HANDYMAN — Ever wonder why they call it a "monkey wrench"? It doesn't look all that much like a monkey... or maybe you think it's because you can monkey around with it? The first version was made by an English blacksmith named Charles Moncke (pronounced "monkey"). Through misspelling, Charley lost his claim to fame, but you've gained another bit of Handyman trivia.

I got your free recipes for whitewash, and having no Tom Sawyers around, had to apply it myself. However, I found a faster way. By using two large brushes held together by tape, I did the job quicker. The double brushes held together by tape, I did the job quicker. The double brush holds much more whitewash, and thus requires much less dipping. Try it. — B. R.

A self-addressed stamped envelope will get you some free whitewash recipes. Just send your request to Super Handyman here at the paper.

A SUPER HINT — Powdered wood putty can be mixed using liquid glue instead of water, and you can end up with a stronger patch. This doesn't work with all glues, so make a trial batch before you use it. I've even used a two component epoxy glue and came up with a stronger patch for reinserting screws when the old screw hole was reamed out too big.

Being a Texan, you'll like the western-looking chaps I made for some recent roof work. I took an old inner tube and slit it, and then cut sections that could be tied at the top and bottom of my pants legs. The rubber chaps let me have non-skid work clothes so when I'm crawling around on the roof, I don't fall. They also keep me from picking up splinters. — S. P.

SHOP TALK — Water and oil don't mix. Right? Wrong, solvent breath. There's a new oil-based paint that is thinned with water allows soap and water clean-up. It's a urethane type house paint that'll soon show up at the paint stores.

Al Carrell welcomes all mail, especially tips from fellow Handyman which he can pass on to readers as space permits. While he cannot answer all individual letters, he will try to nail down your problem in his column whenever possible.

Bridegroom no longer observer in planning

NEW YORK, N.Y. The bridegroom is no longer a casual observer when it comes to planning a wedding. Accordingly, Hallmark Cards has compiled a free booklet outlining each partner's obligations in easy-to-follow checklist form.

At least six months is needed to arrange a "hitchless" wedding, according to the Hallmark publication. The first requisite is an accurate guest list. This helps the bridegroom decide how many ushers are needed. A generally accepted ratio is one usher to every 50 guests.

When it comes to the rehearsal dinner, the bridegroom should decide upon location and menu at least three months in advance. At this point, the bridegroom also needs to complete honeymoon plans. Passports should be updated and inoculations arranged if a trip is to be made abroad.

With the wedding two months off, the bridegroom faces the unfamiliar task of ordering flowers for various members of the wedding party. The bride's bouquet and going-away corsage, corsages for the mothers and grandmothers and boutonnières for the attendants are all the bridegroom's responsibility.

With only four weeks until the ceremony, the bridegroom should make arrangements for the best man to transport the newlyweds from the reception to the point of departure.

During the final week, the bridegroom wraps everything up. He presents gifts to his attendants at the bachelor's party and has the best man deliver the minister's fee a few days before the ceremony.

The Hallmark booklet completely outlines the bridegroom's social and financial obligations and even diagrams the processional for both Christian and Jewish ceremonies.

The booklet, "Wedding Planning Guide for Bride and Groom," is available free in many stores where Hallmark products are sold.

Ex-resident writes novels

By SUSAN RUTHERFORD

Sharon Turner was quick to learn the formula for writing "romantic suspense" novels.

Put the female heroine in a bizarre situation, preferably in a romantic spot.

Leave out the bizarre sex action.

Get into the action right away.

Concentrate on unbelievable things happening to ordinary people.

A wife and mother of two sons ages 11 and 12, Sharon sold her first two books to a New York paperback publishing house. And until recently she was a Midlander and devoted member of the Midland Writer's Association from which she got her inspiration to write professionally. She now lives with her family in Bakersfield, Calif., where she was raised and worked on a weekly newspaper. And there, she vows, she will continue her writing.

Written under the name Elaine Turner, both books, "Your Secret is in a Well" and "Garlic, Grapes and a Pinch of Heroin," were based on exotic places she's lived in or traveled through, but other than that they are straight out of the imagination.

"People ask me how I can think all this up," she said with a laugh from her Midland home just days before her move. "My agent in New York (recommended by another Midland writer) told me my heroines were too adventurous," so she toned them down, she said. "I have to constantly remind myself of what a person could do that's believable and possible."

She says she first contacted the agent looking for professional criticism. Her first manuscript was sent to him and he told her to double the length and send it back. This she did and almost immediately received word that he had found a publisher.

While the sales aren't lucrative at this early stage of the game, she says she can't believe that someone is actually paying her to do something she enjoys so much.

Sharon is a firm believer in writing for the market. "I can do what I want when I'm rich and famous," she said, adding that its unlikely her books could ever be published in hard back version.

Sharon Turner, who writes under the pen name Elaine Turner, composes romantic suspense novels as her husband and two sons are at work and at school. She says she writes approximately six hours a day, except when she "hits a snag" at which time she quits to think out and slowly unwind the puzzle.

Her books are without a message or deep philosophical meaning—"just a couple of hours of enjoyment. Apparently I do have flair for this. I'm just lucky. Lots of people have written tons of material. I was fortunate to have sold the first two books I wrote."

The first book, "Your Secret is in a Well," written around two years ago, was set in Saudi Arabia where she and her husband lived from 1970-1974 while he was working there as a petroleum engineer. The book started out to be based on Sharon's own experiences, but she soon realized she "wasn't good at non-fiction," she said. Her own experience became a minor incident in the book. This is when she changed to suspense novel writing.

The second book, "Garlic, Grapes and a Pinch of Heroin," was set in Spain and traces the steps of a trip taken by the Turners.

DEAR ABBY

Lovesick woman had 'telephonitis'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A co-worker told me that a 23-year-old Philadelphia woman got such a wild crush on a 44-year-old guy who works as a guard at the Montgomery County Prison, that she called him on the phone 1,400 times in three months! She was supposed to have called him at his home 400 times in one week. Then he changed his phone number and she started calling him at the prison! Can you believe this, Abby?

This co-worker says that the guard actually filed a formal complaint against the woman. The judge fined her $300 and put her on probation for three months.

Will you please check this out and see if it's true, or is my co-worker just putting me on?—RENNA PUT-ON

DEAR PENNA: It's no put-on. It actually happened. The judge warned the lovesick young woman with telephonitis that if she didn't quit calling the guard, she'd be sent to prison—but NOT to the one where that guard was employed.

DEAR ABBY: The daughter of a friend of mine was planning a large August wedding. However, those plans were quickly changed when the bride-to-be discovered she was pregnant.

So now the family has sent out announcements stating that their daughter was married in April so the big wedding is off.

Under these circumstances, is a wedding gift in order?—JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: If your wedding gift means "This is in repayment for your wedding invitation," then, of course, no gift is in order. But if it means "Accept this gift along with our best wishes for your future happiness," then a gift is in order.

DEAR ABBY: BOILING MAD IN PA. made me so mad I am seeing red, and I'm still "seeing red" (in debt) after paying for three daughters' weddings that ran over $2,000 each!

I say if the groom's family wants a part in the planning of the wedding, let them put up some cash; otherwise, it's the bride's day, and she and her family can have the full say over all the wedding plans.

I am now looking forward to my son's wedding, and I don't want a bloom' thing to do with the plans as long as the bride's family foots the bill.—SEEING RED IN SEATTLE

DEAR SEEING: Personally, I would like to see the wedding become a joint effort, shared equally by both sides.

French chef has hamburger yen

By TOM HOGE
AP NEWSFEATURES WRITER

Guess whom I met in a New York hamburger joint: That champion of la nouvelle cuisine, famed French gourmet chef Paul Bocuse.

Bocuse and two other top French chefs, Roger Verge and Gaston Lenotre, were about to take off on an inaugural New York to London run of Trans World Airlines. Accompanying the trio on the flight were 4,000 pounds of fine foods that they would prepare for the passengers, plus 76 cases of vintage wines. It must have been a memorable trip.

But why would epicures like Bocuse and his colleagues set up an interview in a fast food shop whose menu is about as remote from gourmet fare as one can get? It seems Bocuse likes American hamburgers. In fact, the master is looking kindly these days on much American food.

"It has improved a great deal in the last decade," he said between bites of ground beef and roll. "American food products are better than they used to be. I have been especially impressed on how the quality of your fresh vegetables has improved."

How about French cooking? What is this "nouvelle" cuisine one hears so much about?

"It's a combination of methods aimed at more healthful dishes," said Bocuse. "For instance, we do not thicken gravies or sauces with flour but cook them until they thicken naturally, then perhaps near the end add butter or some creme fraiche or heavy cream."

Devotees of the new method use meat stock sparingly for gravies, preferring to use natural meat juices, with a little butter or cream added near the finish.

Under la nouvelle cuisine, vegetables are cooked much more briefly than before, a trick the Chinese learned several centuries ago. They not only turn out crispier but are healthier that way.

How did this new method evolve? "Many, like Bocuse, Lenotre and myself, have our own restaurants now. We compare notes with each other from time to time and we also find time to travel and find out what they are doing in other lands."

Here is a Bocuse formula for Sauce Smitane which is much simpler than most French sauces. Good with sauteed sole or other white meat fish:

- 1 large onion, chopped fine
- 3 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 1 cup dry white wine
- 2 cups creme fraiche or heavy cream

pinch of salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Boil onion 1 minute, drain, rinse, drain again and saute 20 minutes in skillet with 1 tablespoon butter. Stir frequently and do not let brown. Add wine and boil till wine evaporates. Add creme fraiche and salt. Bring to boil, reduce rapidly by one third. Strain sauce through double layer of cheesecloth. Bring back to boil, remove from flame, adding 2 tablespoons butter cut into tiny pieces. Stir sauce and flavor with enough lemon juice to give a slightly tart taste.

Use shortest cycle

Use the shortest dishwasher cycle to clean dishes, advises Linda McCormack, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Midland theatre auxiliary holds annual luncheon

Act IX, women's auxiliary of the Midland Community Theatre, had its annual spring luncheon in Midland Country Club.

Mrs. Robert Koziol, president this year, presented the gavel to Mrs. Charles Younger, 1978-79 president. Other officers installed were Mrs.

Patrick Sheehan, vice president; Mrs. Spencer Beal, secretary, and Mrs. George Thomas, treasurer.

A book review was presented by Coila Morrow, MCT veteran actress and associate member of Act IX. She reviewed Erma Bombeck's "If Life Is a Bowl of Cherries, Why Am I in the Pits."

Woman becomes expert on wines

NEW YORK (AP) — When Mary Mulligan got her first job seven years ago with the Italian Trade Commission, she was hired because she was an All-American girl who could understand American customs and tastes.

She didn't know much about wines. Today, she has become so knowledgeable that she is director of Italian wine promotion in the United States.

"The Italians figured, and I think sensibly, that if they were going to promote their wines here, they had to have someone with a typically American point of view," says Ms. Mulligan, 29.

Since starting work with the commission, she has become fluent in Italian, has taken many trips to the wine regions of Italy and has tasted a lot of Italian wine, "the best way to know it."

"I was never a wine snob and am not today," she says. "I believe that you get a basic knowledge of wines simply by drinking what you like and that you can drink anything with any kind of food if you like it. That's the American way."

She frequently attends meetings of the "greats" among Italy's wine producers, "the top names, the men with the greatest reputations and knowledge," and she is usually the only woman.

"It's like being with a group of famous scientists or movie stars," says Ms. Mulligan. "I feel honored to be among the wine luminaries — and to be accepted by them."

She now feels qualified, she adds, to tell her fellow Americans how to get better acquainted with wine, how to serve it, and how to give a wine tasting for fun or organizational profit.

"A wine tasting offers a chance for hosts and guests to discover what wines they like and which they don't," she says. "It's a great ice-breaker because people automatically compare taste experiences and start conversations," says Ms. Mulligan, who offers these tips:

—If a wine tasting is to be serious, keep your party group small and furnish a different glass for each wine served. Clear crystal stemware — the larger size the better is proper — for sniffing bouquet. Colorless glass is needed so you can see the true color of a wine. Change glassware, or rinse, for each change of wine.

—For a light-hearted sizable party rather than a learning experience, with the wine tasting held either inside or outdoors, it would be easier to use small disposable plastic glasses. It is best not to serve both red and white wines at the same tasting because they don't mix well. Whites are lighter and reds are heavier in flavor.

—Serious or fun, your guests will get more out of the tasting if you select a variety of wines from the same wine-growing region or from a wide geographic area. Ask your retailer for advice on price and selections.

—How much wine? One bottle (25 oz.) for each six to eight guests will allow everyone to try a small taste, and then, if it's a favorite, to go back for more. Tastings should be limited to reasonable sips — not gulps! Serve reds at cool room temperatures; whites and rose should be offered chilled.

—Keep plenty of napkins on hand for spills. Tactfully conceal ashtrays. (You're not supposed to be able to capture the wine tastes if you are smoking.)

—Mild cheeses and mild-flavored crackers go well with the subtleties of wine flavors and are helpful between samplings. Never use pungent cheeses; they overpower.

—To taste, use sight and smell as well as the mouth. Don't be timid. Hold up the glass because clarity and brilliance are assets. White wines darken with age, while reds lighten.

Now, take not a tiny sip but a decent mouthful and swirl the wine around so that it reaches the tastebuds at the back of the tongue. Is it bitter, smooth, thin, full-bodied? And above all, do you like it? After swallowing, notice whether the flavor lingers pleasantly in the back of your mouth.

Many teenage girls victims of 'skinny' disease

By SHERYL FITZGERALD
Newsday

The time is puberty, and girls — sometimes grossly overweight, more often just dissatisfied with their image of themselves or simply unable to recognize that the changing contours of their bodies are signs of maturation — begin dieting. They think that thinness will solve the problems of shyness and confusion over changing needs and expectations and make them happier and healthier people, according to Dr. Michael Nussbaum, chief of adolescent medical services at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center. So they diet, diet, diet until what may have been a basically healthy notion becomes an all-consuming fear of gaining one pound, one ounce, fear of getting fat. At this point, he continued, they are no longer healthy children. They are victims of anorexia nervosa — the "skinny" disease — a condition British experts estimate strikes one out of every 100 teen-age girls. Statistics in the United States are not available, but experts are inclined to accept the British figures as indicative of the problem here.

Anorexia is a psychosomatic disorder which drives the victim to refuse to eat. The English physician, Sir William Gull, first described the disorder in medical literature in 1868 as one that strikes the daughters, and on rare occasions the sons, of upper-class families where hunger is not a problem. The phenomenon is most often observed in young women 12 to 21 years old, though there are a small percentage of anorexics among older women and teen-aged boys. The disorder is often accompanied by discontinued menstrual flow, slow heart rate, low metabolism and constipation. But symptoms vary. "There are many different types of anorexics," said Nussbaum. "While the occurrence of severe weightloss may be the same and certain basic generalizations can be made, each case is different and must be examined and handled individually for treatment to be successful." Dr. Hilde Bruch, professor of psychiatry at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston and an authority on anorexia, divides it into two general types, primary and atypical. The primary syndrome is the most uniform. In this type, she said, the underlying impulse is a struggle for control, for competence and a sense of identity. Primary anorexia can be identified by the presence of a distorted body image that makes the anorexic unable to "see" herself as abnormally thin, an inability or failure to recognize signs of nutritional need and the consequence, restriction of food intake and fat dieting. These will be accompanied with denials of the desire to eat and with periodic episodes of gorging followed by self-induced vomiting, enemas or laxative abuse. Still other symptoms include increased participation in sports and a drive for achievement that persists in spite of severe emaciation. Anorexics feel that they can only function in response to the demands of other. In the atypical syndrome, she said, a distorted view of the very act of eating may be the primary cause, with the loss of weight a secondary issue. In "Anorexia Nervosa," edited by Robert A. Vigersky, Dr. Bruch writes, "Characteristically, patients with anorexia nervosa have been well-cared for as children, were well-fed, well-dressed, and were exposed to the best educational and cultural opportunities. The parents may be described as over-protective, over-concerned and over-ambitious. They over value their children and expect obedience and superior performance in return." Others who have studied the disease say that an additional motivation is the desire to neuter the body, to render it less female, thereby avoiding the realities of human sexuality and the growth into womanhood. They don't want the contours and curves of the normal womanly figure. Somehow, those who treat anorexia say, they associate the ingestion of food with becoming pregnant. Whatever the underlying causes, it is important to refer the patient to a physician, clinic or hospital center that is experienced in treating anorexia, says Bruch.

Grand jury indicts UN workers

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Two Russian employees of the United Nations were indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday on charges of obtaining U.S. defense secrets and conspiring to pass them to the Soviet Union.

They face possible life imprisonment, if convicted.

Rudolf Petrovich Chernayayev, 43, a personnel officer at the U.N. Secretariat, and Valdik Aleksandrovich Enger, 39, an assistant to the U.N. undersecretary general, were charged in a three-count indictment handed down about an hour before they were to face a federal magistrate for a preliminary hearing on the charges.

Their appearance was canceled because of the indictment and they remained in custody at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in Manhattan in lieu of $2 million bail.

If convicted, they face a maximum sentence of life in prison on conspiracy charges. On each of two counts of obtaining information, they could get 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Vladimir Petrovich Zinyakin, third secretary of the Soviet Mission to the United Nations, was named as an unindicted co-conspirator, but not a defendant because he has diplomatic immunity. He left the country about a week ago.

All three were accused of trying to induce a commissioned Navy officer, who was not identified, to provide them with several classified documents in exchange for $20,000, the indictment said.

They were arrested May 20 in Woodbridge near the Garden State Parkway.

The documents, doctored in Washington to protect U.S. secrets, were passed to the Soviets in telephone booths along the Garden State Parkway, authorities said. They were stashed in cartons and cans, disguised as garbage.

The Navy officer, working with the FBI, received his payments in a similar manner and never met face-to-face with his cohorts, officials said. He initially was contacted by telephone and all arrangements for "drops" were handled by telephone and through notes hidden in a specified phone booth, authorities said.

The Soviets were arrested about 14 months after a former Soviet seaman was charged in New Jersey with espionage. Ivan Rogalsky was ruled incompetent to stand trial and has been undergoing treatment at a federal hospital in Springfield, Mo., for more than a year.

Amy shows early signs of money-making abilities

Editor's Note: This is the fourth part in a series excerpted from the book, "Cousin Beedie and Cousin Hot," by Jimmy Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter. "Beedie" (Hugh) and "Hot" (Jimmy) grew up together in Plains, played, hunted, fished together as little boys, and later were in politics together.

Hugh Carter has a reputation as a humorist and raconteur in Georgia, where he serves as a state senator. Here he tells about Amy, the "first daughter" — her lemonade business, her interests, and her life in the White House.

By HUGH CARTER

Everyone knows that when her Daddy was running for the presidency, Amy earned pin money with a lemonade stand. Few people, however, know the whole inside story of her business enterprise.

In the first place, it wasn't just Amy who was in the lemonade business. She had two equal partners, her next-door neighbors, the brothers Gann — John, 9, and Sidney, 7. They had a good idea and they started out nicely.

They charged a modest five cents a glass for their pink lemonade, serving cups of it from a cardboard box. Then Amy supervised the building of a better stand of wood, propped on some old bricks. The kids painted their names in a row along the bottom, "John Amy Sidney," in the order of age, and above it, painted their new price, "LEMONADE 10 cents."

The stand was positioned right between Amy's house and her partners' because that was where the action was with tourists driving and walking by and reporters keeping a constant watch whenever Carter was there. The kids' business boomed.

They did very well but kept getting more and more greedy and raising the price, and the price of lemonade went up to 15 cents, and then a quarter. It was Sam Donaldson, the famous ABC White House correspondent who gave Amy the idea of diversifying and adding sandwiches, because he was hungry. Amy and her sidekicks rushed into the candidates house and emerged with mostly peanut butter sandwiches, and a few of pimiento cheese. To their surprise, the peanut butter sat there while the pimiento cheese sold quickly at 50 cents apiece.

When there was a little grumbling eventually at the lack of variety, Amy came up with tuna-fish sandwiches and charged $1 apiece. Then the kids got greedier and upped the price of the peanut butter and cheese sandwiches to $1 and tuna to $1.50.

I think about this time Jimmy and Rosalynn got a little concerned. They wanted Amy to have fun and learn a little about business, but they didn't want her to gouge the public.

Meanwhile, Amy had discovered a new source of wealth. The reporters wanted to borrow her Frisbee to kill time and exercise while waiting for Jimmy to emerge from the house, on the occasions he was home, between campaign trips.

Amy, getting the hang of the business, said, "You can use it if you pay for every quarter of an hour."

They established a price for 15 minutes, and Amy, not trusting anybody's time sense or watch, got the timer from her mother's kitchen to make sure nobody cheated.

Sometime before the end of July 1976, everybody in charge of Amy, including the Secret Service, thought it was time for Amy to close shop. I don't know what her total earnings were, but I do know that many days she made as much as 25 dollars.

The situation had gotten just a little out of hand. Her parents feared the outlandish high prices Amy was getting from eager reporters who were spoiling her and keeping her from learning the true value of a dollar.

Though she no longer has contact with the press, in the White House she does see her old lemonade-stand partners. In fact, her Christmas present was a gift from them — a huge pet hermit crab.

It's really to Jimmy and Rosalynn's credit that Amy is not more spoiled than she is. They did a lot of things to help her adjust in those first months at the White House.

For one thing, Jimmy and Rosalynn took her along when they went to inspect the new $59 million Children's Hospital National Medical Center, which had been in the process of building for many years.

To help Amy get over any remaining shyness, the new president playfully showed Amy the facilities in the therapy room for recuperating children, and then picked her up and tossed her on a water bed, where she giggled and bounced around.

That was three months after Jimmy took office. Eleven months after, Jimmy was still being the average, normal father. He took several hours off to attend a violin recital at St. Patrick's Episcopal Church, where Amy, for the first time, showed what she could do on the violin.

Afterward, Jimmy and Rosalynn joined the other proud parents for cookies and punch and conversation about their offspring.

Jimmy even attended a pre-Thanksgiving dinner, served by Amy's fourth-grade class at Stevens Elementary School in Washington, and I don't believe he got any indigestion. Then there was the day he found himself attending a special assembly at her school.

Dressed in yellow ballerina costume, so I am told, but wearing stocking feet instead of ballet slippers, Amy danced the role of a shopkeeper in the child's ballet named "Doll on a Music Box."

The Carter family was tickled at Amy's pride at being a ballet performer. So pleased was she that she kept waving at her daddy from the stage now and then to make sure he was watching, even once when she was actually dancing.

Amy has a mind of her own, and it is a liberal mind. What is more, she knows how to handle her Grandmother Lillian. This is one story that made the rounds of the family about the time Miz Lillian was taking care of Amy while Rosalynn and Jimmy were involved in the presidential campaign.

Amy asked, "Grandmother, can I have Elizabeth come over on Saturday to play with me?"

Miz Lillian asked, "Is she black?" Amy immediately responded in a scolding tone, "Grandmamma, you're not supposed to ask that."

Amy was a chip off the Carter block and I could see, in my mind's eye, Jimmy playing freely with his little black friends when he was her age.

Lillian was probably just being curious. She had encouraged Jimmy to play with black children, but Amy was taking no chances.

Amy's claim to fame right now, according to her own words, is that she can hang upside down from a tree. Everybody thinks that Amy is just a bookworm, who takes a book to the table with her, even when there's company at the table. But that's only one part of Amy.

The other part is the tomboy Amy. She's happiest on a bike or trampoline, or playing kickball or football or bowling, and she feels about animals the way her Daddy did when we were kids. She wears her cat Ying-Yang draped over her shoulder the way her Daddy used to wear his squirrel on his head.

What is the White House going to do to Amy? I don't know. It is making her just a little bit bratty in that she passes judgment and doesn't hesitate to say that this and that are "dumb" or show her contempt for various people.

But maybe she'll be saved from it by the calming influence of Rosalynn.

I'm not going to say that Amy is mean. Quite the contrary. She is very kindhearted and when she loves someone, she almost overwhelms that person. I'm thinking of the black women who was her babysitter back at the Governor's Mansion — the woman who was serving a sentence for murder.

I know Mary Fitzpatrick. I remember her well because she also, on occasion, looked after my grandchildren. Amy felt the goodness of this woman in spite of the one bad deed she had committed, and bestowed her love on Mary like a blessing.

The Carter family rehabilitated Mary, but I give Amy most of the credit. It was very touching that when Amy came to the White House, one thing she had to leave behind was Mary, who had been a trusty at the prison, permitted to work in the Governor's Mansion.

A girl with less depth would have forgotten Mary, since everyone wanted to be her new friend. But no, Amy prayed for Mary and wrote letters to her. Jimmy and Rosalynn were so touched that they used their influence to get Mary under their care and supervision.

And now Mary is at the White House and Amy looks after her as much as Mary looks after Amy. When Amy studied a book to prepare her for becoming a member of the First Baptist Church in Washington, she shepherded Mary through the same experience.

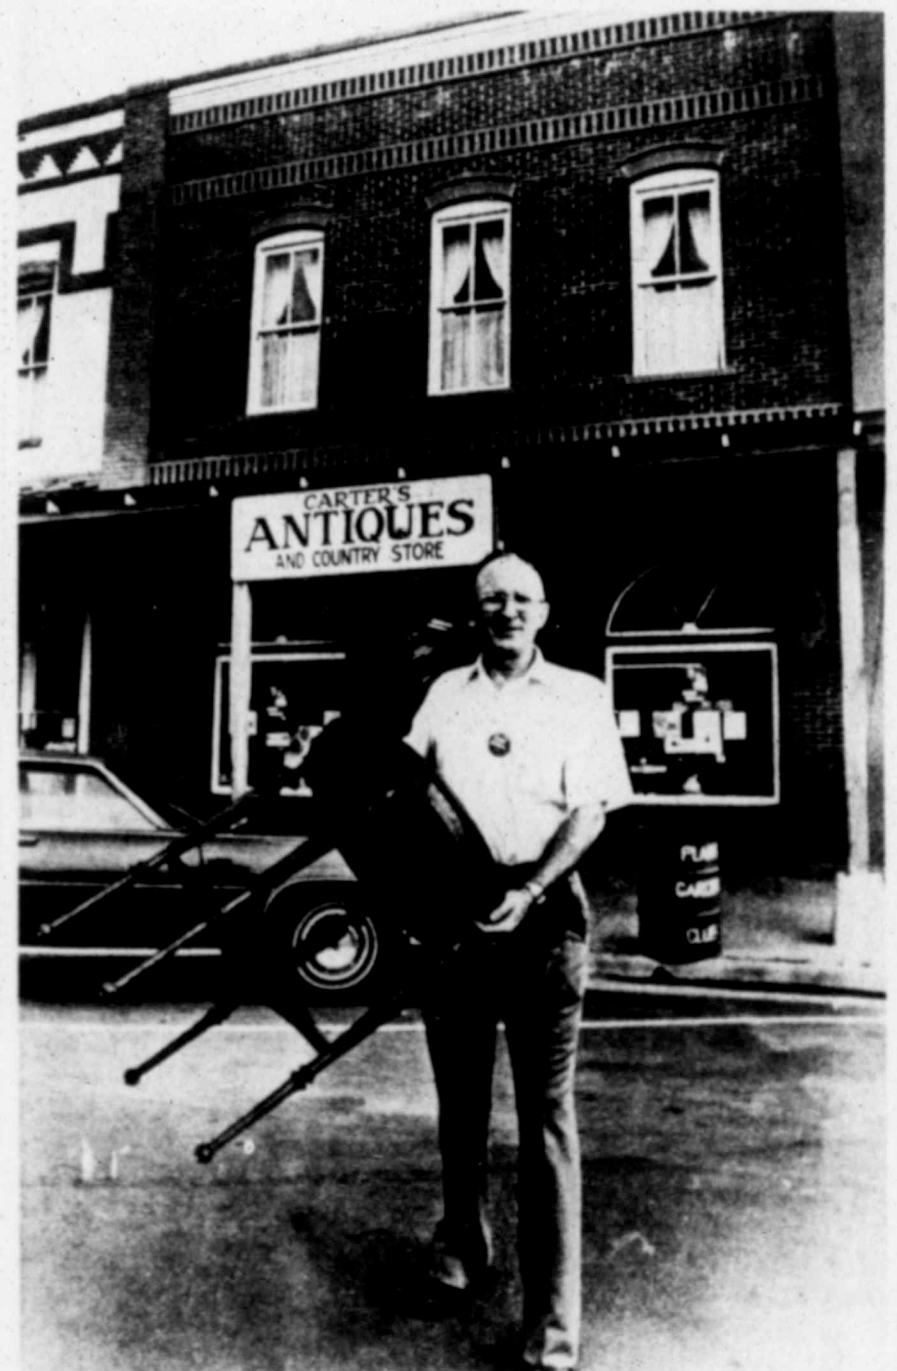

And when Mary Fitzpatrick was baptized in the same church, Amy was the first person to hug her and congratulate her.

I remember when Amy was the only member of the family who did not want to come to the White House to live. Her daddy had a long talk with her and she had a whole list of reasons — Mary Fitzpatrick wouldn't be there, and neither would her friends, and where would she ride her bike?

Jimmy had answers for all that — Mary could come visit. Amy would have a whole classroom of new friends and she could ride her bicycle on the big White House grounds and at Camp David.

But still Amy wasn't happy. How could she go and leave her tree house? And would there be room for her huge dollhouse? Daddy Jimmy promised to design another tree house exactly like the one she already had. And as for the dollhouse, he personally carried it on moving-in day. He was a pretty good daddy.

Garbage truck driver finally wins MA degree

CHICAGO (AP) — After battling alcoholism for years, John A. Smith finally has a master's degree in urban studies, but he doesn't quite know what to do with it.

He's been studying the city inside out for years — as a garbage truck driver at the incinerator yard.

That's why it came as a surprise to some neighbors and acquaintances when Smith, 51, marched to "Pomp and Circumstance" at Loyola University commencement ceremonies Saturday.

He says he's not sure how he will be able to use his degree.

"I don't know if there's any chance of starting anything this late in the game," he said. "I would like to do something that requires more head work, but I'm not sure what."

Smith said he grew up in a tough Irish neighborhood as a "street kid" and began drinking heavily even before finishing high school.

As an adult, he went through two marriages and divorces and almost lost his city job on more than one occasion because of his drinking.

"There had been a few minor incidents with the truck and I was lucky to get off because, in those days, I didn't always remember how they'd happen," he said. Smith first went to college after World War II when he took advantage of the GI Bill and attended Loyola and John Carroll University in Cleveland. But by 1951, he said, he had had enough of school and took a job with the city hauling trash.

He said he was a heavy drinker until 1965, when he decided to dry out for good at a hospital "and with therapy and the aid of many friends."

"I don't really know why, except it was either that or die or wind up in the nuthouse," Smith said.

He started night school at Loyola in 1967 and finished his bachelor's requirements for a history degree in February 1973.

"I still had no plans, but it was good for my self-respect," he said. "Originally, I'd had no idea of going for the degree. Then I heard about this urban studies program. I'd always liked economics, sociology, math and political science, so in 1974 I enrolled."

He received seven A's and five B's in his graduate program.

Despite his academic status, Smith said he likes his job because it gives him time to think and it is worthwhile.

South Dakota wants more input in High Plains multi-state water study

PIERRE, S.D. (AP)—South Dakota will be looking for ways of obtaining stronger input into the High Plains Water Study, according to Vern Butler, state secretary of Natural Resources Development.

Butler said Tuesday the Missouri River Basin Commission and the governors from the 10 basin states took no action on a proposed resolution that South Dakota have more input in that study, which deals with use of Missouri River water in Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

The $3 million feasibility study includes searches for possible water supplies which would feed up to 10 million acres in those six states.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers has already started preliminary studies for potential routes for the water.

Three points on the Missouri River are being considered for the start of those routes. One is near Fort Randall at Pickstown, S.D. The other two are in the Fort Peck area of Montana and the Kansas City area in Missouri.

"The commission indicated it does have a liaison member working with the High Plains Council on the water studies," Butler said.

There is a formal contact with the Missouri River Basin Commission.

"But I'm not sure that this is sufficient for South Dakota's interest and we may be taking a stronger look into where we, as a state, can have better input into that study."

"I think if we would contact the six states which form the council...we can make a direct contact with the council," he continued.

Russians level violent blast as war of words continues

Agence France-Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda Tuesday violently attacked Zbigniew Brzezinski, White House national security adviser, calling him an enemy of detente and adversary of international cooperation.

Pravda reproached Brzezinski for accusing the Soviet Union and Cuba of responsibility for events in the Zaire province of Shaba. The paper also complained that on his recent trip to Peking he exalted the community of interest between Peking and Washington and was "welcomed with open arms."

Brzezinski had exerted pressure on Joseph Califano Jr., U.S. secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, to postpone a scheduled trip to the Soviet Union, the newspaper said. It did not mention that Brzezinski's stated reason for advising Califano to postpone the trip was the recent seven-year sentence at hard labor given to dissident Soviet physicist Yuri Orlov.

Brzezinski was the subject of regular, violent attacks in the Soviet press even when he was a university professor.

Last day to sign up

LUBBOCK — Today is the last day area cotton farmers can sign up for the 1978 federal farm program, according to officials of Plains Cotton Growers Inc. here.

The registration deadline earlier was extended to today because of "last-minute" changes and rumors of changes in the program. Judging from the questions we are getting, there is still not a good understanding of the program and how it will operate," Donald Johnson, PCG executive vice president, said.

'Y' summer daycamp registration to end

Registration for the YMCA's first session summer daycamp, Camp Chaparral, will end Thursday. The one-week session will begin Monday and run through Friday.

The camp, open to boys and girls ages 6 to 12, is to be located at Cole Park. A bus will pick the campers up at specific points to be decided when the child is registered, according to a YMCA official.

Activities will include horseback riding, swimming, archery, camp crafts, arts and crafts, riflery and nature lore. There will also be daily swimming at the YMCA.

Additional information on this and other daycamp sessions may be obtained at the Central YMCA, 682 2551

Sleeping neighbors roused

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Authorities credited quick-thinking Luis Cabellero with rousing more than 30 of his sleeping neighbors early Tuesday to enable them to flee a fire that raged through their wooden, two-story apartment house.

Cabellero, 24, told fire officials he woke up to the smell of smoke in his downstairs apartment about 2 a.m. and spotted flames.

Officials said Cabellero led his wife and two infant children to safety and then began knocking on the doors of other apartments to awaken his sleeping neighbors. After everyone had fled, Cabellero grabbed a garden hose and battled the blaze until firemen arrived.

The members of five families, including several children, all escaped unharmed. Cabellero suffered a minor cut on his hand from breaking an upstairs window.

The fire in the large frame house, which had been divided into apartments, was extinguished by about 2:30 a.m.

Tuesday's fire came only 24 hours after an explosion and fire engulfed a low-income, housing project apartment early Monday, killing four young children.

Officials blamed arson for that fatal fire, but theorized that a burning cigarette left on a couch started Tuesday's fire.

"That's our hero over there," resident Ray Hernandez said, pointing to Cabellero. "He saved our lives."

Raquel debunks 'misconceptions' on sex symbols

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Stop thinking about that beautiful body for a moment and listen to what Raquel Welch says about myths surrounding sex symbols like herself — and how she's going about debunking those "silly misconceptions."

The principal myth, she said during an interview between shows at the Sahara-Tahoe, is that sex symbols are victimized, vulnerable and tragic figures who "have a corner on the misery market."

The image is "crazy" but nonetheless exists, fostered by the media and by a television industry that has not yet advanced beyond "cliques, labels and a sort of prototype person," she said.

It's true that the myth has become reality for some sex symbols. But Raquel said she has too much of a "survival" instinct to let herself get pigeon-holed in that category.

Miss Welch has played all sorts of sexy roles in the more than two dozen films she has done in the past 10 years or so. But she's now working on a film she described as a look at the lives of a successful, independent career woman and her daughter.

She's collaborating on the movie project, and having a say in character development, plot and other aspects besides just acting. That goes for an upcoming television project, too.

It's all a far cry from her mid-1960s role in "One Million Years B.C.," in which Raquel said her only chore was to do a skimpy outfit and run from one rock to another, screaming midway.

Besides the film work, she's thinking about recording songs, doing more comedy, and continuing her stage act, which she said has evolved into "an honest reflection of what I'm doing."

The act includes fast-paced dancing, singing and relaxed banter with her audience. And, of course, costumes which show off her curves.

Raquel isn't about to deny her figure played a big part in achieving superstar status. She just wants people to realize she's not like "a physical specimen without substance, a beautiful flower grown by artificial means without any smell to it."

She wants to perform in roles which she sees as "closer to me." That means multi-faceted roles which reflect the changes people go through during their lives, she explained.

And that's where her "survival" instinct will pay off, the brown-haired beauty said, adding that she'll keep pushing for what she wants "with a lot of effort and sincerity and pride."

The sex symbol stereotype which has helped her in one way can hurt in another, because "everyone wants sex symbols to be vulnerable. Everyone wants a great beauty to pay," she said.

"They're not happy unless they can feel you're really toasting away somewhere and you're going to be a dried-up old prune by the time you're in your mid-30s and no one will want you any more and you'll be slung out like an old shoe," she added.

Besides that, the movie industry tends not to give proper recognition to its "glamor girls," she said, adding that "we are part of its film history. We aren't the stepchildren of the industry."

But Raquel said whenever someone tells her "no," her automatic response is "yes." She added, "I keep thinking it's OK to go back for more, stretch a little harder...it's all a growing process."

After all, she said, it's just as tough for any entertainer and not just the sex symbols because "when you bargain to be in the public eye and perform for the masses, you're talking about an enormous amount of pressure and visibility."

Chase Manhattan executive secretly goes to Vietnam seeking normalization of relations

HONG KONG (AP) — A Paris-based Chase Manhattan Bank executive made a secret trip to Hanoi last month and met with top Vietnamese officials to discuss normalization of relations with the United States, a well-informed Western source said Tuesday.

The source said Ridgway Brewster Knight, a former American diplomat and now Chase Manhattan's director of international relations in Europe, spent a week in Vietnam and returned with a personal message for President Carter.

The message reportedly contained several suggestions for relaxing of U.S. trade restrictions against Vietnam, an intermediate-step leading to resumption of relations between the two countries, at war until the North Vietnamese conquest of South Vietnam on April 30, 1975.

In New York, a bank spokesman confirmed that Knight made a trip to Hanoi late last month, but described it as "exploratory, and on bank business." The spokesman said he could comment no further.

But the highly reliable source here, who asked not to be identified, said Knight ranged over broader topics concerning U.S.-Vietnamese relations.

It was not clear whether the trip was made with the tacit approval of the Carter administration to test the prospects for normalization, or whether it was a project of Chase Manhattan's world-traveling President David Rockefeller, known for his ventures in personal diplomacy.

Knight served as U.S. ambassador to Belgium from 1965-69. He joined the bank in 1973. The source said Rockefeller has used him on special assignments in the past.

Disclosure of Knight's trip came at a time of souring relations between Vietnam and China, a development that Western diplomats here say could make Hanoi much more anxious to establish normal diplomatic ties with the United States.

China claims some 90,000 Chinese, many of them owners of commercial establishments, have fled Vietnam to neighboring China since a March 23 crackdown on private business. Peking charges that Vietnamese soldiers robbed and beat the fleeing refugees. An estimated one million or more Chinese live in Vietnam.

Rebs ambush Plainsmen in quarterfinal battle

By BOB DILLON

It was a day for celebrations. Robert E. Lee snapped a 21-game winning streak by Lubbock Monterey and handed Coach Ernie Johnson his 300th victory as the Rebels downed the Plainsmen, 6-4, at the Lee diamond.

The big victory came in the opening game of the Class AAAA state quarterfinal baseball playoff series and moves the Rebels a step closer to the state tournament in Austin, June 8-9.

Another streak ended for the Plainsmen as ace righthander Ron Reeves was absorbing his first mound defeat of the season after chalking up a 13-0 record.

It was a typical Lee finish as the Rebels came from a 3-0 deficit to take the victory over a team that had beaten them three times during the regular season.

Rightfielder John White slammed a three-run homer in the second inning that helped to ignite the fire that the District 5-4A champions needed before the home crowd of more than 1,000 fans.

WHILE WHITE was providing the punch at the plate, teammates Todd Clements and Pat Moore came up with great defensive plays and the Rebs turned two snappy double plays that killed threats by the District 4-4A kings.

The second game will be played in Lubbock at 2 p.m. Friday at Lowery Field and a third game will follow if necessary between the two rivals.

In other quarterfinal games, Houston Bellaire's Cardinals took a 5-1 victory over the Pasadena Dobie Longhorns Monday night while on Tuesday, the Duncanville Panthers disposed of the Waco Richfield Rams to the tune of 4-1 and Corpus Christi Moody tripped San Antonio Roosevelt, 9-1.

Junior righthander Terry Willis outdueled Reeves in scattering seven hits in picking up his 10th victory of the year against two losses. Lee takes a 26-9 mark into Friday's action while Monterey is now 30-5 on the season.

DANA RIEGER, who took a batting of average of .384 into Tuesday's game, ripped a two-run homer off Willis in the first inning to help stake the Plainsmen to a 3-0 lead. Teammate Andy Barron worked Willis for a walk and Mike Wooten doubled him in. Catcher Jeff Harp struck out looking, but Reiger hit his homer over the screen in left for a 3-0 lead for the visitors. Despite Reiger's robust average, the 6-1, 205-pound senior outfielder, had gone two-for-seventeen in four previous playoff games against Amarillo High and El Paso Andrews. He certainly came out of that slump with two hits in three trips to the plate.

Lee started off the bottom of the inning with Moore walking, but Todd Clements forced Moore at second and was picked off by Reeves at first to end any threat by Johnson's crew in that inning.

Rick Pinkerton singled with two out in the top of the second, but was quickly erased when Reb catcher Clay Calhoun threw him out at second, trying to steal.

Craig Van Horn got Lee started off on the right foot in the bottom of the second with a sharp single third. Don Rasure singled up the middle and sixth run of the game. A double play by the Rebs in the sixth inning got Willis out of a small jam. He struck out the dangerous Rieger, but hit Reeves with an inside pitch. Then Voyles hit sharply to Rasure at second who tagged out pinch-runner Dwayne Smith and relayed his throw to first for the twin killing.

In the top of the seventh, Willis struck out Bruedigam, but Craig came up with his second hit of the game and moved to second when Willis uncorked a wild pitch. Pinkerton hit a ball into shallow center where Moore came racing in and dove at the last second to come up with the ball for the second out. Willis fanned Barron to end the game.

"Willis did a good job late in the game with his curve ball and had them guessing and this made a difference for us," said Johnson afterwards. When asked who he plans to pitch in the second game in Lubbock Friday, Johnson said that it might even be Willis again, but that he wasn't sure.

"Reeves just didn't throw like he usually does," commented Coach Bobby Moegle after the loss which snapped the win streak for his Plainsmen. "We were bound to play one like this. Those things just happen," he added. Moegle didn't seem to be too concerned. Maybe he wasn't because his team has not lost a game in Lowery Field in two years and that came in May of 1976 when Lubbock High beat him for the district title. Lubbock High went to the quarterfinals that year, losing to eventual state champion Duncanville, 2-1, in the deciding game.

Richard Josefy walked to load the bases. Doug Schmidt singled in Van Horn and Steve Pitts also knocked in a run of a fielder's choice to cut the lead to 3-2. White then jumped on a one-ball two-strike pitch and lofted it over the screen in left for a three-run shot and a 5-3 lead. Moore followed with a double into right, but Clements grounded out to second and Calhoun struck out, swinging.

LEE THREATENED in the bottom of the third when Van Horn came up with his second hit of the game and stole second with nobody out, but Rasure popped out to the catcher, Josefy grounded to third and Schmidt hit the ball on the button to Barron in center.

Monterey cut the lead to 5-4 in the fourth inning. Rieger singled sharply up the middle and Reeves also singled into center. Eric Voyles was safe when Pitts bobbled a ball hit to short to load the bases with none out. Rieger was thrown out at the plate moments later when Phil Bruedigam tapped back to the mound where Willis fielded the ball and fired to Calhoun at the plate. Calhoun, in turn, fired to first for the double play. Mike Craig singled in Reeves, but Voyles was out at the plate on a perfect throw by Moore in center, much to the delight of the Lee fans.

In the fifth, Monterey's Pinkerton was safe on an error by Pitts, but Willis got some great defensive play from Clements in left. Barron lined out to Todd and Wooten popped up to Van Horn at third, but Clements made a fantastic catch of a line drive to the screen off the bat of Harp, to turn the Plainsmen away empty-handed.

LEE TACKED on another run off Reeves in the fifth inning. Clements singled and Calhoun was safe on a drag bunt single down the third base line. Van Horn skied out to right and Rasure walked to load the sacks. Reeves was charged with a balk by base umpire Mel Neese to bring in Clements from third for the Rebs'

SPORTS

Ron Reeves (14), Lubbock Monterey pitcher, is safe at second in the fourth inning of quarterfinal playoff game with Robert E. Lee Tuesday. Reeves had singled and was safe when Rebel shortstop

Rosinski pelts Arkansas

BY TED BATTLES

Outfielder Brian Rosinski was hoping it was indicative of the dawn of a new day after coming through with two clutch hits as Midland came from behind to beat Arkansas, 11-10, with a four-run uprising in the eighth inning of Tuesday's Texas League game at Cubs Stadium.

Rosinski not only delivered the double that plated the tying and winning runs in the eighth, but had delivered a two-run single that put Midland ahead, 6-5, in the fifth after Fred Tisdale put Arkansas ahead 5-3 in the third with a grand slam homer.

"It's about time I got some clutch hits," Rosinski shrugged off his feat after the game. "In fact, it's about time I got some hits, period. I've been struggling, maybe this will turn it around."

Rosinski got his double in the eighth off Ryan Kurosaki, the loser, 1-2, who pitched far more effectively in relief of Brett Houser Tuesday than he had Monday in earning a save while surrendering four ninth-inning runs.

AFTER KEVIN Drury's lead off single in the eighth and a one out walk to Steve Macko, Tommy Thompson summoned his ace reliever Ryan Kurosaki to protect the Travelers' 10-7 lead. He couldn't have done more. He got Jimmy Buckner grounded to second, but the ball was bobbled and instead of a game-ending double play, there were two out and runners on second and third. Mike Gatlin then grounded to short, another bobble plus a run and a runner on third. Aaron Randall's broken bat flew almost as far as his single to short as Macko scored and the Cubs were now down 10-9 and a ball had yet to be hit out of the infield.

Eric Grandy grounded to third baseman Dave Boyer, who fumbled momentarily and then missed his tag attempt of Gatlin running to third.

"Guys like Buckner put a lot of pressure on the infielder's throw, the way they get down the line," Rosinski said, admitting that was the primary reason he ever reached the plate in the first place.

Monday, he (Kurosaki) got two sliders in on me and I got behind. When he missed his first fastball, I figured he had to come in with another heater. And he did. It was on the outside corner and I went with it."

The result was a line double to left

Bengals surprise player

CINCINNATI (AP)—Veteran line-backer Ron Pritchard, surprised that the Cincinnati Bengals want him to return, has turned his nose at their latest contract offer.

"I'm not going to sign anything," Pritchard said from his home in northern California. "I'm just going to sit back and let this thing take care of itself."

The Bengals, under the National Football League collective bargaining agreement, had until June 1 to notify free agents whether they wanted them back. One of those free agents, veteran defensive tackle Ron Carpenter, who underwent spinal surgery last October, was released by the team.

But Pritchard, who has had knee surgery three times since 1976, was offered a contract by the Bengals after it was determined that his injuries have healed.

"In fact, his injured knee was found to be lighter than his non-injured knee," said Mike Brown, Bengals assistant general manager.

Bullets rain on Sonics in OT

SEATTLE (AP) — Whether you're rooting for the Washington Bullets or the Seattle SuperSonics, big leads spell big trouble for your team.

"I really don't think big leads are that important," said Bullets Coach Dick Motta, who watched his players dig themselves out of a 15-point third-quarter hole and climb past the Sonics 120-116 in overtime Tuesday night in Game 4 of the National Basketball Association championship series.

"I said it earlier in the series, it's difficult to keep a 15-point lead. That 24-second clock dictates that you have to keep playing," added Motta, whose Bullets learned that lesson the hard way in Game 1 when they saw a 19-point third-period lead evaporate into a four-point Seattle victory.

Tuesday night's game, which had a record crowd of 39,457 in the Kingdom on the edge of their seats throughout the final frantic minutes, ended the best-of-seven title series at two games apiece. Game 5 is set for Friday night in the Seattle Center Coliseum.

The Sonics appeared headed for a runaway victory after rookie forward Jack Sikma's three-point play gave them a 85-70 lead with 2:22 left in the third quarter. But suddenly, the Sonics stopped running, began taking bad shots and the big lead slowly began to dwindle into a big disappointment.

"We played the last quarter and a half like we had played the last playoff series against Philadelphia," said Motta, referring to the Bullets' upset of the Philadelphia 76ers in the semifinals.

"We'll come back and play harder Friday and we'll win," said Seattle guard Dennis Johnson, who scored a career-high 33 points and blocked a Bobby Dandridge shot in the final moments that assured an overtime session.

"We let them off the hook," said Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We had it and we just weren't patient. We didn't execute down the stretch."

Down the stretch is where Washington played its best.

The Bullets tied the game midway through the final period, in which they outscored Seattle 28-19, and led 106-104 after forward Bobby Dandridge hit a three-point play with 20 seconds to go.

But clutch-shooting guard Fred Brown sent the game into overtime with a jumper from the right corner with 14 seconds on the clock.

"I thought we had it won in regulation," said Motta, "but Seattle executed that play to Freddie very well, and then DJ (Dennis Johnson) came out of nowhere, like he has all series, to block Bobby's shot."

Guard Charles Johnson, who had scored just eight points in regulation time, took command in overtime for the Bullets, scoring the first basket on a fast-break layup, then beating Seattle's defense downcourt for a jumper that made it 110-106 with 3:35 to go.

The Bullets led the rest of the way.

"Overtime is only five minutes long. When you get up by four, you can almost call your shot," said Brown, who scored 18 points but just two in the second half.

"We just weren't working our offense (in the fourth quarter)," Brown continued. "If we had been, it would have been much easier. This is just a minor setback. We're not out of it. We wanted to win it (the championship) here. We'll just have to postgame it a couple of days."

Charles Johnson said he wasn't specifically told to shoot the ball in overtime.

"There is never a plan to have someone take a shot — just take good shots," he said. "I had them, so I took them. Overtime is just another part of the game."

Dandridge, who led the Bullets with 23 points, said the Sonics began to slow down in the final period, which opened the door for Washington.

"They started standing around and maybe got complacent," said Dandridge. "We just hung in there. We came back from a long ways and we were thinking that every shot counted. We didn't want to let it get away."

If we had lost in overtime, I would have felt a lot worse than if we lost in regulation."

Guard Kevin Grevey rebounded from a 1-for-14 performance from the floor in Game 3 to score 17 points on 8-for-28 shooting Tuesday night.

"Maybe a little pride came out," Grevey said. "We got the momentum and played a little better defense on the guards. We got some scoring from seven different players ... It was a typical championship game. It was good for basketball."

Vilas wants to dispel another Bjorn Borg myth

PARIS (AP) — Argentina's Guillermo Vilas says now that he's proved he can win the big ones, he wants to dispel another myth: that Sweden's Bjorn Borg is invincible.

"Everybody thought I had a complex about winning the big tournaments but last year I won them," said Vilas, who last year won the U.S. and French open tennis championships. "It's time to end this talk about a complex."

The short, stocky 25-year-old from Mar del Plata, Argentina, polished off new Zealand's Onny Parun 6-0, 6-4, 6-0 Tuesday in his opening match in the $600,000 French Open at Roland Garros Stadium.

Afterward the defending champion said he had no qualms about facing the cool 21-year-old Swede, who is seeded first here and won the French open in 1974 and 1975. Borg won the Italian open last week.

"If I were afraid of anybody, I just wouldn't play tennis," said Vilas. "I second. Our games are very similar. Borg might be a little faster, but I am stronger."

Borg plays his opening match on Wednesday against France's Eric Deblicker.

In other action Tuesday, Italy's Adriano Panatta rallied from behind to register a 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Czechoslovakia's Jiri Granat.

Americans Harold Solomon, Brian Gottfried, Arthur Ashe, Eddie Dibbs and Billy Martin also advanced into the second round field of 64.

No. 8 seed Solomon, always a contender here, kept Britain's John Feaver pinned to the baseline with an endless onslaught of driving topspin, to win 6-2, 7-5, 6-2.

Ashe appeared confident, despite heel surgery last year, in brushing aside Australia's Phil Dent 6-4, 6-1, 6-2. Ashe, 34, is unseeded.

Rookie hurler flirts with no-hitter in NL debut

By The Associated Press

If Silvio Martinez is looking for a pitcher to emulate, Juan Marichal is certainly a better choice than Bobo Holloman.

Silvio, a 22-year-old right-hander for the St. Louis Cardinals, making his first major league start Tuesday night, held the New York Mets hitless for six innings. Three more and he would have matched the feat Holloman achieved way back on the night of May 6, 1953—a no-hitter in his first big-league start. Holloman did it for the St. Louis Browns, a 6-0 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

But in the seventh inning, leadoff batter Steve Henderson pounced on a Martinez pitch and sent it far over the left field wall.

End of no-hitter and end of shut-out.

Eventually the Cards won 8-2—but Henderson's hit was the only one the Mets managed.

"Juan Marichal pitched a one-hitter, they tell me, in his first game," Martinez said. "I hope this is a good omen."

It could be a better one than if he'd pulled a Holloman. Marichal went on to become a consistent all-star, chalking up 243 career victories—which is to say 240 more than Holloman, who vanished after one year and a 3-7 record in the majors.

Not only was Martinez flirting with Holloman's achievement, he was toying with a sort of ersatz Johnny Vander Meer mark. He's the guy who pitched consecutive major league no-hitters, in 1938 against Boston and Brooklyn. Martinez came up to the majors last weekend after pitching a no-hitter on Friday night for Springfield of the American Association.

"When I threw the fastball to Henderson down the middle, I wanted to cry," Martinez admitted. And St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons recalled: "After Henderson hit the home run I told him, 'That's not important now. Don't worry about it.' And he said, 'I don't worry.'"

"I never really thought about a no-hitter, I just wanted to win," Martinez said, obviously not all that disappointed. "I'm happy. I want to stay here forever."

Of his no-hitter in Omaha, he remembered: "I called home (to Santiago in the Dominican Republic) when I got to the hotel. I was hoping the Cardinals would call me up to the majors the next day and they did. Before last week I hadn't been thinking about St. Louis at all."

The Cards scored twice in the second off Jerry Koosman on Ken Ritz's single. RBI singles by Garry Templeton in the third and Mike Tyson in the fourth made it 4-0, then they blew it open against reliever Butch Metzger with four runs in the seventh, three on George Hendrick's homer, his fourth of the season and the first since being obtained last Sunday from San Diego.

Giants 1, Astros 0
Bob Knepper did it all for the Giants, scattering five Houston hits for his seventh victory and second shutout of the season, and hitting a seventh-inning sacrifice fly for San Francisco's only run.

He and Vida Blue have teamed for a 13-4 record with the Giants this year—and Knepper notes that something he saw Blue do years ago has helped him to become a part of that 1-2 Bay Area punch.

"Before the game," Knepper said, "I decided to use something in my delivery which I saw Blue use in an Oakland A's game that I saw just before the last game I pitched in high school. I noticed that Vida brought his right elbow down inside his right knee in his delivery and that seemed to give him more speed on the ball."

Phillies 6, Pirates 1
Greg Luzinski blasted a three-run homer off Pittsburgh's Bert Blyleven in the first inning, all the runs the Phils' Steve Carlton needed. Carlton hurled a five-hitter.

Despite the loss, Manager Chuck Tanner was typically optimistic. "We're fifth in our division, but just five games out of first place," he said. "We're not out of anything."

Expos 7, Cubs 4
Montreal's outfielders, Ellis Valentine, Andre Dawson and Warren Cromartie, homered in the Expos' victory over Chicago. The Cubs' NL East lead was shaved to 1½ games over the Expos and Phillies.

Valentine's two-out homer in the fourth off Rick Reuschel broke a scoreless tie. Cromartie then beat out an infield hit and Dawson followed with his homer. Del Unser and Valentine hit RBI doubles and Cromartie had a two-run homer in the eighth.

Dodgers 10, Padres 2
Rick Rhoden's four-hitter and homers by Steve Garvey and Lee

Lacy carried Los Angeles past the Padres.

The Dodgers blasted Eric Rasmusen off the mound in his first start since being obtained from St. Louis, scoring seven runs off him in the first two innings.

Braves 4, Reds 3
Gary Matthews' leadoff homer, a first-pitch rocket over the center field fence off Cincinnati relief star Doug Bair, gave Atlanta its 10-inning triumph.

Bair, who entered the game with an 0.60 earned-run average, left it at 0.89, still not too bad.

Mabry runs record to 16 bicycle victories

The West Side Optimist Club's special holiday weekend doubleheader bicycle motocross races went off with a bang Saturday and Monday.

Tammy Spray broke into the winner's circle for the first win in the 12-13 age group on Saturday, but the main event took place Monday as Scott Mabry ran his string to 16 consecutive wins in the 12-13 main when he edged out Brian Dank in a close battle.

The 14-15 novice class also featured a close contest with Richard Padilla taking the main event. The 12-13 novice class also found a new first time winner in Elliott Barron.

The next race will be held Saturday with signups at 11 a.m. and races at 12:30 p.m. Trophies are awarded to all class winners and National Bicycle Association points are awarded to all riders that are members.

Trinity's Anne Smith sidelined with injury

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Top-seeded Anne Smith of Trinity was forced to retire from her third round match against Arizona State's Nancy Janco in the second day of the United States Tennis Association national women's collegiate championships Tuesday at Trinity.

Smith, who injured her right shoulder two weeks ago, was forced to leave after she lost the first set 6-3 and was losing in the second 4-3.

"I figured she wasn't on as she usually was," said Janco, "because she wasn't hitting the ball well. She just tried to play as long as she could. She didn't want to permanently injure herself."

Trinity's Kerry Sterling took Smith's place in doubles with eighth-seeded Carrie Fleming and defeated Kay Epping and Judy Holt of Mississippi University for Women, 6-1, 6-0.

Second-seeded Stacy Margolin of Southern California breezed by Yale's Susan Graham, 6-1, 6-0, and her third-seeded teammate Barbara Hallquist defeated Crissy Gonzales of Southern Methodist, 6-1, 6-0.

Trinity had shared the lead with USC after the first day's rounds, but the Trojans moved ahead Tuesday to grab the lead with 24 points. Trinity fell to second with 18 and Miami was third with 16½.

Carrie Fleming was the only Trinity player to reach the quarter-finals as she defeated Brigham Young's Tracy Tanna, 6-3, 7-5.

Jerry Heard to rely on history

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Jerry Heard, winner of the Atlanta Classic Sunday after bouncing back from injuries that had taken him off the pro golf tour for months at a time, has history behind him in gunning for two victories in a row at the Kemper Open this week.

Shooting for a $60,000 first prize in the $300,000 tournament that runs Thursday through Sunday at Quail Hollow County Club, Heard joins a field that features all but about a dozen of the top 100 money winners this year.

Tom Weiskopf, three-time winner and defending champion, tops the lineup that also includes such stars as Gary Player, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer, Ray Floyd, Hale Irwin, Ben Crenshaw, Lanny Wadkins, Miller Barber, Lou Graham and 1978 PGA tournament winners Jay Haas, Bill Rogers, Gil Morgan, Barry Jaeckel, Lon Hinkle and Jim Simons.

Heard, noted for his wisecracking nature and for whistling on the golf course as he works, has played well in the Kemper. He is the fifth leading money winner in the tournament, with $51,172.12, and has four finishes in the top dozen, including a second and a fourth.

After winning at Atlanta, he said he wants another victory so he can qualify for the World Series of Golf.

Detroit rookie mows down Baltimore Orioles

By The Associated Press

Detroit rookie Steve Baker says he doesn't like to face the same team twice in a row and you can imagine how the Texas Rangers feel about their second straight fruitless run-in with Minnesota's Geoff Zahn.

Baker, a 21-year-old right-hander pitching in only his second major league game — both against Baltimore — held the Orioles to three hits in seven innings Tuesday night as the Tigers snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 5-2 victory.

"I kinda like being a stopper," said Baker. "It's a challenge to go in there and try to break a losing streak."

Meanwhile, Zahn and Mike Marshall combined to shut out Texas for the second time in nine days, both by 2-0 scores.

Baker, called up last week from Evansville of the American Association where he had a 4-0 record and 1.88 earned run average, held Baltimore to one run in 6 1-3 innings in his debut last Thursday in a game eventually lost by reliever John Hiller. This time, Hiller came on in the eighth and retired all six batters he faced to preserve Baker's first big-league triumph.

"I don't like throwing to the same team two games in a row," Baker said. "I threw more breaking balls the last time and that made my fast ball more effective this time. But it doesn't really matter who you throw against if you're on."

"He looked good," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He looked good against us in Baltimore. The players seemed to think (catcher Milt) May called a good game for him, but he still had to get what May called over the plate. The kid got his curve over in jams. That's why some kids win here and some don't."

Aurelio Rodriguez hit a pinch two-run homer for the Tigers while Alan Trammell drove in two runs with a grounder and an infield hit.

Twins 2, Rangers 0
Zahn, who pitched 72-3 shutout in nings in beating the Rangers in his last outing May 22, allowed five hits in eight innings in extending his shutout string against Texas to 15 2-3 innings.

"I really don't have any secret," he said. "I've been fortunate to have success against them. I've just been pitching well the last six or seven games. I feel one reason is I'm stronger than last year and I'm throwing my change-up over the plate."

Asked about being relieved by Marshall at the start of the ninth, he said: "It was a combination of two things — I was tired, I had a blister on my finger — so why take any chances?"

Red Sox 4, Blue Jays 0
Dennis Eckersley, backed by solo home runs from Rick Burleson and Dwight Evans, pitched an eight-hitter for his first shutout in a Boston uniform, his fifth triumph in six decisions and the Red Sox' eighth consecutive victory. It was the anniversary of the no-hitter he pitched last year for Cleveland against California.

"I thought a little bit about the no-hitter before the game," he admitted, "but they got a hit right away, and that was that."

Indians 5, Yankees 1
Rick Wise pitched a four-hitter. Buddy Bell and Wayne Cagle rapped consecutive RBI singles in the sixth inning off Dick Tidrow and Andre Thornton delivered a pinch two-run single off Sparky Lyle in the eighth. Wise gave up singles to Mickey Rivers and Thurman Munson in the first inning and then retired 18 consecutive batters until Chris Chambliss homered in the seventh. The loss dropped New York three games behind Boston in the AL East.

Brewers 2, A's 1
Mike Caldwell scattered eight hits and Don Money singled home Charlie Moore with the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning. It was Caldwell's fifth victory, matching his total for all last season, and his fifth complete game.

"A year ago, I knew nothing about Caldwell," said Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger, who was then the Orioles' pitching coach. "I saw him pitch against Baltimore and I didn't think he was this good. But I'll tell you what — he is this good."

White Sox 6, Angels 2
Chet Lemon and Lamar Johnson hit consecutive home runs in the third inning off Frank Tanana as the White Sox posted their fourth straight triumph while the Angels lost their fourth straight for the first time this season.

"You can't throw too many over the plate and get away with it," said Tanana, 8-2, who left in the fifth, his earliest departure of the season. "You have to have some control, and it wasn't there. If you don't have control, you're going to get hit. That's what happened."

UTEP thinclad close to history

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — James Munyala, a small, quiet, unspectacular Kenyan attending Texas-El Paso, can make NCAA track history this week in the national collegiate outdoor meet.

Munyala has won the 3,000-meter steeplechase in each of the last three NCAA meets, and if he wins again Saturday, the final day of the three-day meet beginning Thursday at the University of Oregon, he would equal the mark of four victories in the same event — or its equivalent — attained by only one other runner, the late Steve Prefontaine, in this annual outdoor extravaganza.

"I hope he can pull it off," said Jim Bowden, athletic director at Texas-El Paso.

Prefontaine, a former star at Oregon, won the three-mile in 1970, 1971 and 1973, and the 5,000 meters in 1972, an Olympic year, when all races in this meet were contested in meters in preparation for the Summer Games at Munich.

However, for Munyala to match Prefontaine's performance, he likely will have to beat the world record holder in the steeplechase, sophomore Henry Rono, a fellow Kenyan from Washington State.

Rono set the mark of 8 minutes, 05.4 seconds April 22 at Seattle.

However, Rono has been suffering from a slight heel injury recently, and running the obstacle-plagued steeplechase course might be too painful for him. Instead, he might double in the 5,000, in which he also set the world record this year (13:08.4) and the 10,000, in which his Washington State teammate and fellow Kenyan, Samson Kimombwa, set the world record (27:30.5) last year.

Kimombwa, the defending NCAA champion, has been plagued by injuries this year and has not run up to his potential.

Munyala and Kimombwa are among 10 returning champions.

The others are: Texas-El Paso's Svein Walvik of Norway in the discus; Harvey Glance, Auburn, 100; William Snoddy, Oklahoma, 200; Washington State's Joshua Kimeto of Kenya, 5,000; James Owens, UCLA, 110-meter hurdles; Ron Livers, San Jose State, triple jump; Washington's Scott Neilson of Canada, hammer throw, and Brigham Young's Tito Steiner of Argentina, decathlon.

The favorite for the team title is Texas-El Paso, which won 11 events and amassed a whopping 223 points in winning the Western Athletic Conference title for the third consecutive year.

In addition to Munyala and Walvik, the other potential point scorers for the interregionally-laden Miners are: Jerome Deal, 100; Peter Lemashon of Kenya, 800; Mike Musyoki, Kenya and Rodolfo Gomez, Mexico, 5,000; Kip Sirma, Kenya, 10,000; Tim Vahlstrom, pole vault; Jerome Hutchins and Joel Laniyan, Kenya, long jump; Steve Hanna, Barbados, and Hutchins, triple jump; Hans Almstrom, Sweden, shot put, and Emmitt Berry and Thom Sioholm, Sweden, hammer throw.

"I think it will take a score in the high 50s or low 60s to win," said Coach Ted Banks, whose Miners won the title in 1975 and finished second each of the past two years.

Last year, Arizona State won the title for the first time in the meet's 56-year history, with 64 points. Texas-El Paso had 50 points and Southern California was third with 48.

"Southern Cal scares the heck out of me," said Banks. "But they have a lot of people who will have to run a lot of races."

Those people are all runners, and all of them run 800 meters or less. All of them are first-class athletes, but the grind of running perhaps seven or eight races, including relays, in three days could prove too much of a burden.

Nevertheless, the fleet-footed Trojans should present a formidable challenge to Texas-El Paso.

They probably will use collegiate record holder Clancy Edwards in the 100 and 200, Joel Andrews in the 100, freshman James Sanford in the 200 and 400, Billy Mullins in the 400, Rayfield Beaton and David Omwansa in the 800, and Rich Greybehl in the 400-meter hurdles. And they will use a combination of those runners, along with Kevin Williams, in defending the quarter-mile and mile relay titles.

Defending champion Miami-Dade North stormed into a six-stroke lead at the end of the first 18 holes of the 54-hole National Junior College Athletic Association Women's Golf Tournament at Hogan Park Golf Course Tuesday.

Play resumed today and concludes Thursday in the third annual meet that attracted six teams to the Tall

City.
Pam Elders shot a 77 to lead the Florida golfers into their lead, but Lori Clark of Temple Junior College, the team that won the first NJCAA nationals, turned in the day's medal round with a 73. that plated two runs to square the series at 1-1.

About his big hits, Rosinski said, "Billy Williams and Bob Kennedy have been working with me, trying to get me to relax and I think it has helped. I've been pulling off the ball, trying to hit it too hard. They want me to relax and not try to hit the ball out of the park every time I swing."

LEFTHANDER BOB Clark, who had relieved starter Ron Davis in the sixth, gave up a lead off single to Randy Thomas, but then got Tommy Herr to ground into a double play and an out later had his second win of the season.

However, the way things started, it looked anything but like a winning night for Clark. He relieved Davis in the sixth and was greeted by three straight run scoring singles during the four-run surge that put the Travelers in front 9-6.

"I went away from my fast ball and came across the seams to get a rise on the ball." And it worked. Clark gave up just two hits the rest of the way.

It has been a struggle for Clark, too, living down an eight-earned run game in his second appearance of the season which gave him a 20.93 ERA at one point. But he's making progress. Since then, in 26 1/3 innings of relief, his ERA has been 2.74.

The Cubs and Travelers go at it again tonight (7:30 p.m.) in Dime Dog Night with Lee Smith, 3-3, going for the Cubs while B.J. Harrison, 1-3, will pitch for Arkansas.

manager Tommy Thompson admits his Travelers are psyched up for their Tall City visit. "Why shouldn't we be. Midland is the only team to whom we've lost a series this season," he said referring to the Cubs' 4-1 domination at Little Rock. Harrison, tonight's Travelers' starter, was a catcher at Arizona State, where he caught for John Poloni, the pitcher the Rangers sent to Boston for Ferguson Jenkins last spring. "They didn't think I could make it as a hitter, so I've been a pitcher for two years." Last year, B.J. was 14-9 at St. Petersburg in the Florida State League. Randy Martz, sent home from the Cubs' trip through the East Division with a mouth infection, is ready to start pitching again. "He couldn't eat, so it's a question of his getting his strength back," said Manager Jim Saul. "I'll use him in relief and watch the number of pitches he throws until he looks like he's ready to start."

Pete Maravich admits he cheats

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pete Maravich admits he cheats once in a while on his vegetarian diet and eats red meat.

He'll even guzzle a beer now and then. But he says, if he had not succumbed to junk foods as a youth, he might have been a 6-foot-8 guard instead of a mere 6-foot-5.

Maravich regrets that, though converted, he is no 100 percent when it comes to being a health food freak.

"I still cheat now and then," he confessed. "Sometimes, when I'm on the road, I have to. I guess I've eaten red meat about a half dozen times the last two years I drink beer, and that has some sugar."

"But I have drawn the line in certain places. In the last two years I haven't eaten any white bread, or consumed any pure sugar or salt. And I never will."

All that white bread, sugar-coated cereals, steaks smothered in bottled sauce — it's enough to make Maravich groan as he clumps around on crutches, his right knee now minus a cartilage.

The week that the New Orleans Jazz basketball star spent in the hospital here after surgery confirmed his worst fears of Americans eating their way to an early grave.

"They give you all the things you should never have — coffee, sugar, white bread, salt. I think I had one banana in four days. I had my wife bring in fresh fruit," he said.

Maravich figures he wasted the first 27 years of his life when he thoughtlessly went along with the rest of us instead of concentrating on diet and sweat.

Miami-Dade takes golf lead

The first two tournaments, had 384 Midland College Coach Susan Holland said, "The Miami team is very experienced because they have had a women's team for quite a while. Course conditions for the tournament were real good considering our lack of rain."

After playing on the lush grass fairways of Florida, Miami Dade Coach Mary Dagraedt was a little shocked by West Texas. "The ball rolls well here. Normally, at home we can expect 150 yards off the tee, but here we are getting 200 yards."

The Miami Dade coach added that she thought the level of competition was "better than I expected."

Claire McFarland led the Midland College team with an 89 while Monica O'Hare of Miami Dade was third in the medal competition with a 78.

Titans gain series berth

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Arizona State and Southern California have been here before — in fact, many times before. But for Oral Roberts, it's the first time the Oklahoma college has qualified for the College World Series.

"We think it's the best baseball team we've ever had," Oral Roberts Athletic Director Bob Brooks said Tuesday. "We went to the regionals in 1973 but didn't make it out. This team didn't lose a game the month of May."

The Titans were ranked third this week by Collegiate Baseball, behind top-ranked Southern California and defending champion Arizona State.

Ranked fourth was Miami of Florida, followed by Michigan, Baylor and North Carolina — all College World Series teams this year. Non-qualifiers Memphis State and Arizona were ranked eighth and ninth, respectively, while St. John's of New York, the eighth team in the CWS, was ranked tenth.

Oral Roberts, a 10-year-old college in Tulsa, Okla., will bring a 44-10 record to Omaha. The Titans have won their last 18 games and played all but four of their entire schedule against Division I teams, Brooks said.

They'll meet North Carolina, the South regional winner, in the first round.

Friday's first-round pairings include Michigan (29-15) vs. Baylor (32-17) and Miami, Fla. (48-10) vs. Southern California (49-9).

On Saturday, North Carolina (36-15) meets Oral Roberts and St. John's, N.Y. (40-16) challenges Arizona State (53-10).

FIFA skirts problem

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The International Soccer Federation (FIFA) voted Tuesday to put off a solution of the two Chinas problem for two years.

By 57 votes to 46, the FIFA decided to give the organization's president and executive committee powers to act on a proposal to admit mainland China to membership and exclude Taiwan.

Brazil filed a compromise motion to let the executive committee deal with the problem instead of having delegates vote on it at this meeting.

The debate lasted six hours and was at times highly impassioned.

The meeting asked the president for a decision to be made within two years.

The decision by FIFA President Joao Havelange of Brazil to accept his country's proposal brought bitter protests. Havelange ruled it was a procedural motion, requiring only a straight majority, while others claimed it involved a change of membership and needed a 75 per cent vote.

Artemio Franchi of Italy, senior vice president, threatened at one stage that the European delegates would walk out and take members of the South American confederation with them.

Franchi has been campaigning for the admission of mainland China and the expulsion of Taiwan, which is affiliated under its chosen name of the Republic of China. The Peking Chinese have consistently refused to be long to any sports federation which recognizes Taiwan, which the Peking government claims is a province of China.

Havelange called a recess and then ordered a meeting of the executive committee behind closed doors. An hour later, the congress went into session again and Havelange announced the executive committee decision of postponement.

The congress, in a revolutionary decision, banned all World Cup players from Europe and South America from competing in the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

A motion was filed at first applying the ban to all World Cup players. But France proposed an amendment that it apply to Europe and South America only.

Players from Africa, Asia, Central America, the Caribbean and North America are still free to play in both the World Cup and the Olympics.

The move was designed to head off the Communist countries, who have no official professionalism and can enter their full national teams in the Olympics as well as the World Cup. The leading European and South American countries, where all major soccer is professional, are forced to enter second-rate teams in the Olympics.

At the Montreal Olympics in 1976, Poland won the gold medal in soccer, using most of the team that defeated Brazil for third place in the 1974 World Cup in Munich.

Moves to increase the World Cup from 16 to 24 teams died without a vote being taken. Kuwait, proposer of the motion, withdrew it.

This avoided a likely controversy, because European and South American countries had threatened to pull out of the World Cup and stage a world tournament of their own if a bigger entry involved more weak teams from Africa and Asia.

Rogers ignites Rangers

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Led by the hot bat of designated hitter Johnny Rogers, Ranger of Texas takes an unblemished tournament record into today's round of the National Junior College World Series.

Ranger meets Meremac of St. Louis, Mo., after blanking defending champion Yavapai of Prescott, Ariz., 12-0 Tuesday night in a game shortened to five innings due to the 10-run rule.

It was the first loss in the double elimination tournament for Yavapai, who faces once-beaten Columbia State of Tennessee.

In an earlier game Tuesday, Columbia State defeated Miami-Dade South 17-7 and eliminated the Florida team from the tournament. That game was shortened to seven innings. Rogers, a sophomore from New York City, has nine hits in 11 trips to the plate and 10 RBI in the tournament.

He contributed a two-run single in the first inning against Yavapai and came back with a two-run homer in the third inning.

Pitcher Jay Huffman limited the Arizona batters to three hits.

Kenny Cox, a 6-4, 270-pound first baseman, hit a first-inning grand slam home run to ignite Columbia State's victory over Miami-Dade.

Mike Norment added a home run and triple and freshman Mike Taylor chipped in with four hits in five at-bats.

Tony Barquin and Ron Faria had two hits each for Miami-Dade.

Cleveland's mayor battles recall by lashing out at political foes

RECENTLY RECEIVING awards at a presentation at Edison Freshman School are, from left, Kathleen "Katie" Leede, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leede, and Michael Feldt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Feldt, both winners of American Legion Awards, and Hazel "Muffy" Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hodges and winner of the Daughters of the American Revolution award.

Mrs. John Feldt, both winners of American Legion Awards, and Hazel "Muffy" Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hodges and winner of the Daughters of the American Revolution award.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich, shrugging off the threat of a recall election, has lashed out at opponents for allegedly weakening the city and making Cleveland a national joke again.

"My administration has not hurt Cleveland," Kucinich said Monday. "I have consistently worked to improve the city and its neighborhoods, but the recall is hurting Cleveland and is returning Cleveland to a mockery it has known under other administrations."

The 31-year-old maverick Democrat summoned reporters to his office after the Recall Committee to Save Cleveland moved a step closer to forcing a recall election and Kucinich appointments ran into trouble with City Council President George Forbes.

Forbes said several appointees to key positions would not be seated "with the specter of the recall hanging over them."

The decision was revealed as leaders of the recall group filed an additional 7,066 signatures on petitions seeking to oust Kucinich.

The committee needed only 3,335 valid signatures to force either Kucinich's resignation or a recall election.

But Kucinich said even if all the new signatures were certified as valid, they would not be enough to overcome earlier certified signatures that he challenged for alleged irregularities.

The recall drive was sparked by Kucinich's dismissal of Police Chief Richard D. Hongisto on March 24 and allegations of mismanagement.

The recall group submitted its first petitions April 28, with 47,537 signatures.

The site on the Murchison River produced 30 stone tools plus fossils.

But City Council Clerk Mercedes Cotner invalidated about one out of every four of the signatures, leaving the organization short of the required 37,552 valid signatures. The drive's backers were automatically given an additional 20 days to come up with the necessary signatures and filed the additional petitions Sunday night.

Mrs. Cotner has 10 days to check the final petitions. If she certifies there are enough valid signatures, the city charter provides that if the mayor does not step down, a recall election must be scheduled within 40 to 60 days.

Rolle, 'Good Times' reunion due

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's a reunion in store for the family of CBS' "Good Times" next fall. But the regrouping that will kick off the series' sixth season cost the show's producers many concessions and meant for Esther Rolle, returning as matriarch Florida Evans, a lot of soul-searching.

Miss Rolle, who developed the Florida character while appearing as the Findlay's housekeeper on Norman Lear's "Maude," left "Good Times" last August after what she called two years of "anguish and grief." The struggle centered on the show's direction and climaxed when Miss Rolle was suspended by the company prior to her negotiated departure date. On camera, the loss was easily explained. Florida Evans remarried and moved to Arizona because of her husband's health. But in reality, the split was anything but easy. "I really went through great heartache and suffering," Miss Rolle explained. "For one thing, to give up my job was traumatic. I had to choose between an income and walking with my head up. I made the choice but it was a horrible choice to make. It was as bad as asking a nonviolent person to commit murder. It was really that traumatic."

But recently, she got a phone call while working on a movie in Vicksburg, Miss. Her agent said Tandem Productions wanted her to make a guest appearance on "Good Times" next season. She refused. "It was the farthest thing from my mind. I was doing the things I wanted to do. I had done two TV movies for CBS. I was doing a series of lectures. I was keeping busy in a fun way; there was no pressure. I just didn't see what going back could accomplish. It was over," she said.

Tandem and CBS persisted and soon decided she should return to the show permanently when it goes into production for the fall season in July. Ratings had taken a dive since her departure, and viewers obviously felt the lack of a parent figure. "We had lost the essence of the show," said Steve Mills, vice president of program production at CBS. "Without parental guidance the show had slipped. Everything told us that — our mail, our phone calls, our research. We felt we had to go back to basics."

Miss Rolle finally gave in, after CBS promised her more money and a new direction for the show. One of her main complaints centered on the character J.J. She felt, as a role model for black children, J.J. was "an idiot." But J.J. has been re-shaped. This past season, he was holding down a job and assuming a more responsible family role. Miss Rolle said And more changes are in store for J.J. next season, said the show's executive producer Norman Pan. While J.J., played by comedian Jimmie Walker, will still be prone to "flights of fancy," he is "older now and won't be quite so wild," Paul said.

Chicago museum honors Nobelists

CHICAGO (AP) — The accomplishments of the nation's most outstanding scientists are recognized in the new Nobel Hall of Science at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago. The country now has 115 of its scientists numbered among recipients of the world's highest distinction for their accomplishments in physics, chemistry, and medicine and physiology.

Other exhibits explain genetic research and the current interest in the controversial DNA, which may make genetic manipulation possible. A slide program presents the life of Alfred Nobel, a sickly and lonely recluse who died in one of his homes in Italy in 1896. At the time of his death he had factories and laboratories on the five continents.

At a recent dinner, the five Americans selected as 1977 Nobelists were inducted into the new hall, the first such exhibit in the world.

They are Dr. John H. Van Vleck, professor emeritus of physics at Harvard University; Dr. Roger C.L. Guillemin of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies at San Diego; Dr. Rosalyn S. Yalow of the Veterans Administration Hospital in the Bronx, N.Y.; Dr. Philip W. Anderson of Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N.J., and Dr. Andrew V. Schally of the Veterans Administration Hospital, New Orleans.

The awards are named for Alfred Nobel, the Swedish chemist who invented dynamite, who left his sizable fortune to further science and peace. The first Nobel Prize was awarded in 1901.

The largest number of Nobel Prize winners has come from the United States. And among the American winners, the most have been in medicine and physiology.

The museum exhibit includes photographs of all of the Americans, along with their citations. In addition, it has what are called participation units which enable visitors to learn through interaction with the exhibit.

These include a simulated cyclotron showing how physicists speed up nuclear particles, a model of a "bubble chamber" explaining the detection of subatomic particles, and an actual spectroscopic showing how chemists analyze the light emitted from different sources.

Another exhibit features a film about many of the most recent Nobel laureates. Still another slide show presents highlights of achievements in the scientific areas, including vascular surgery, immunization against yellow fever and the treatment of cancer with hormones.

hearts to discard dummy's singleton club.

East ruffed and returned his remaining trump, reducing dummy's ruffing power.

South now started the diamonds, but it was too late. West won the first diamond and led the jack of hearts to make dummy ruff. South could win only his five trumps, two ruffs in dummy and the ace of hearts. Down two.

LESS GREEDY
Go back to the first trick and see what happens if South is less greedy. He wins the ace of hearts and leads a diamond from dummy.

The defenders are not likely to cash the ace of clubs since that's no way to beat four spades. West probably wins the first diamond and returns the jack of hearts.

South can ruff and diamond, lead a trump to dummy, ruff another diamond and draw trumps ending in dummy. The rest of the diamonds are good, and South wins 11 tricks instead of eight.

Leaking, lobbying most popular Washington games next to tennis

By STAN BENJAMIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent claims that an oil lobbyist got advance drafts of regulations and sometimes influenced them could hardly surprise anyone who has worked in Washington.

Leaking and lobbying are two of the most popular games in town, next to tennis.

But the claims sent a spasm of soul-searching through the Department of Energy.

"This had better not be true," growled spokesman James Bishop Jr., on behalf of Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

Economic Regulatory Administrator David J. Bardin questioned his staff and then turned the affair over to the department's Inspector General for further investigation.

Bardin aide Douglas G. Robinson said department officials were already thinking of putting summaries of private meetings with regulated companies "on the record" for public inspection.

Robinson said in an interview he has already told his own staff to do it.

If Bardin and Robinson succeed in controlling leaks and lobbies their next logical assignment has to be the Agriculture Department, for a total war against crabgrass.

Exchanges of advice, information and executives between government and private organizations are common here.

And whatever a government office does, it invariably "leaks" — trickling out supposedly confidential information and proposals to a favored few who know where to tap the holes.

John F. O'Leary, deputy secretary of energy and a respected veteran of the federal agencies, says a lot of the exchange is legitimate — even necessary — but it can get out of hand.

Thus, the American Petroleum Institute said the activities boasted by "regulatory analyst" John Iannone in a memo to his boss were entirely legal, and part of a legitimate effort to understand and advise its industry's federal regulators.

But the memo spotlighted a chronic dilemma of those regulators: close contact with the regulated industry is useful and sometimes vital to them, and yet too close a relationship threatens to corrupt the process of honest regulation.

Iannone claimed, "I received draft of Subpart K (a proposed natural gas liquids regulation) two weeks before DOE (Department of Energy) officials."

He said he "worked closely with DOE on gasoline price monitoring and got them to agree to a number of important changes, before the system was released for public comment."

He said he got internal department studies which then "were carefully distributed to members of Congress and were used to discredit DOE's arguments" on behalf of President Carter's National Energy Plan.

Bardin said in an interview last week he had not confirmed Iannone's claims but was concerned about them.

"I don't think these draft documents should be leaking all over the place the way they seem to do," said Bardin.

O'Leary, who is Bardin's immediate supervisor, was more resigned about leaks. "What upsets me about the Iannone memo is the implication of a special relationship, that he has the inside track, that there is some person over whom he has influence," O'Leary said in an interview.

O'Leary said that danger can not be removed by eliminating informal contacts between public and private officials, or keeping a public record of all their meetings, or trying to stop all the leaks of documents.

The government, O'Leary said, simply does not have the special experts it must sometimes consult in order to write regulations that will work; it has no choice but to talk with private experts and it can't always wait for a public hearing.

"Many times it's not in a meeting, but a phone call," said O'Leary. He said whatever somebody tries to hide, there is a very high probability that somebody else will leak it, to his opponents or the news media.

"Professionally, I feel it may be excessive," O'Leary added, "but if I had to choose between no leaks at all or the amount we have now, I'd take the leaky way."
