Conferees may act on gas pricing today

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - An end to the long stalemate on President Carter's energy program appears at hand, but congressional staff aides say it may be months before the legislation can go to the president's House-Senate conferees are meeting today to act on a proposed compromise on the difficult natural gas pricing part of the plan. Leaders on both sides claim they now have enough votes to approve the measure - if narrowly.

Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, the top House negotiator, said there are 13 firm votes for the plan among the 25 House negotiators. And the Senate conference leader, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted a 10-7 margin among Senate conferees.

House conferees were caucusing at mid-morning, with a meeting of the full committee set several hours

Acceptance of the compromise would finally break the logjam that has stalled action on the president's energy program since the congressional negotiators took up natural gas pricing last Dec. 2.

The compromise would lift federal price controls from newly discovered natural gas on Jan. 1, 1985, while providing annual price increases of about 10 percent in the interim.

bill would cost consumers about $9 billion more through 1985 as opposed to the status quo.

Once the natural gas plan is acted upon, conference leaders hope to send it and three other sections of the energy plan on which tentative agreement has been reached back to each chamber for a final vote.

Energy taxes - including the president's controversial proposal for taxing domestic crude oil - are now expected to be jettisoned and taken up later as separate legislation.

Conference aides said dozens of points are still in dispute involving natural gas pricing - issues that conferees decided to let the staff work

Board of Equalization adjusts taxes downward

Almost no one appearing Monday before the Board of Equalization went away empty handed.

The board either adjusted taxes downward on the basis of new information provided by the owner or promised to reconsider the property

Promises also were extended to reconsider the value of dryland farmland and property along Cloverdale Road near the city's sanitary land fill. Virigl Jones, assessor-collector for the tax office which serves four coun ty taxing bodies, told The Reporter-Telegram today that the board will

Jones said farmers who were planting and unable to register Monday to appear before the board can register May 29

Jones suggested farmers and ranchers complete the agriculture amendment No. 1 form and submit it to the tax office during the next 10. days to two weeks or submit it when they appear before the board.

The amendment is designed to protect the farmer and rancher, Jones said. "It's designed for the farmer or rancher who derives more than 50 percent of his income from agriculture.

Those who qualify will have their land assessed on productivity value rather than market value," he said. Monday, 420 persons registered to

Jones said he expected the session

An organizational meeting for county residents, however, is sheduled for 8 p.m. today in the parish hall of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave. Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss taxes, the recent assessment increases and appraisals, a spokesman said.

County residents are protesting reported 200 to 750 percent increases in property re-valuation.

Belgian troops in Kamina; Kolwezi held by French

Zaire troops.

By RICHARD TOMKINS

KOLWEZI, Zaire (AP) - About 600 Belgian paratroopers took up station today in Kamina, 130 miles north of here, as 800 French legionnaires patrolled this copper-mining city to keep order after a rebel invasion in which hundreds died.

Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans said in Brussels the mission of the remaining paratroop battalion would be "to guarantee the safety" of the Belgians staying in Zaire's mineralrich Shaba Province. Several thousand Europeans are still in the province, many living in Likasi, to the east, and Lubumbashi, to the south-

About 1,200 Belgians pulled out of Kolwezi, which normally has a population of about 100,000, and headed for the government air base at Kamina on Monday after completing the evacuation of about 2,500 foreigners, leaving the city in the hands of French and Roughly half the Belgian paratroopers stayed in Kamina and the rest flew to Brussels. The Belgians and French parachuted into Kolwezi Friday and Saturday and recaptured it from invading rebels forces who had crossed into Zaire May 12 from their base in Angola through a small strip of Zambia.

Officials in Paris reported at least 170 whites were killed by the rebels after they captured Kolwezi. Some survivors estimated the figure at 200. The officials said 50 French civilians and six French soldiers who served as advisers to Zairean army units were missing and might have been taken hostage by the rebels.

French officers here estimated the rebels also killed 150 Zaireans, both civilians and government soldiers, and lost about 200 of the invading force of 4,000. Two French soldiers were killed and 14 wounded. The Belgians suffered no casualties.

Some of the survivors who arrived Monday in Brussels said Zairean troops took advantage of the chaos in Kolwezi, 840 miles southeast of the capital of Kinshasa, and even took part in looting.

"They hate us," said one. "Even on the way to the planes for repatriation, they stripped some of us of our cameras and other belongings."

Spot check unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court, voting 5-3, ruled today that the federal government may not make unannounced inspections of the nation's workplaces.

The court struck down as unconstitutional a portion of the Occupational Safety and Health Act that has allowed Labor Department inspectors to carry out some 400,000 spot checks of factories and other business places since 1971.

The Constitution's protection against unreasonable searches applies to commercial premises as well as homes, the court said in an opinion written by Justice Byron R. White. Today's decision upheld a 1976 ruling by a three-judge federal court in Idaho that government inspectors must first prove to a judge or magistrate that they have "probable cause" to believe safety hazards exist at a certain workplace

The court's ruling virtually guts the Labor Department's strategy of keeping private employers alert to safety needs by holding over them the possibility of a surprise visit by government inspectors.

Government lawyers had argued that "the effectiveness of the inspection system would be largely nullified if an employer could gain significant delay by refusing to permit an inspection without a warrant.

Gavia case on agenda

A Midland County grand jury meets Wednesday, and among the cases it is scheduled to consider is the shooting death of Leopoldo Gavia.

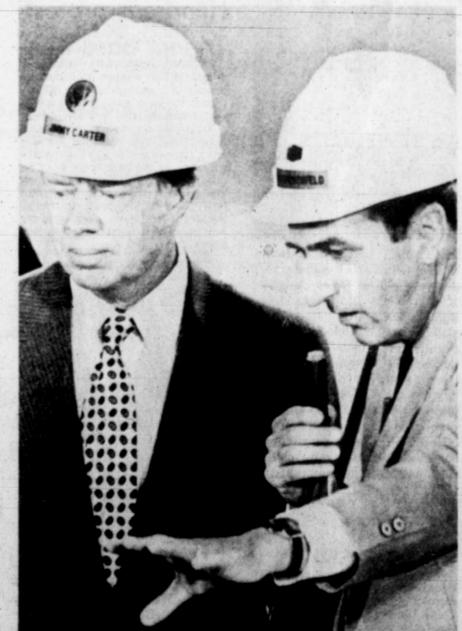

Gavia, 34, died early Monday morning in a Midland hospital after being admitted May 14 with a gunshot wound to the abdomen. His brother, Jesse Gavia, also was shot in the abdomen in the same incident. He is listed in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospi-

The two were shot in an incident shortly before 1:15 a.m. May 14 at a bar in the 700 block of North Fairground Road in Midland.

Eloy Garcia Arredondo, 27, of Midland was in county jail today, charged with two counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. Bond has been set at $20,000 for the two charges.

A witness told police the two brothers were seated in the bar when a man walked in, screamed at them in Spanish and fired four shots, hitting each

Drought not apt to have affect on tap water flow

Will the 1978 drought affect the flow of your tap water? Not likely

'We don't anticipate any delivery problems as far as water problems are concerned this year," said O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

It is CRMWD's E.V. Spence Reservoir, west of Robert Lee, from which Midland gets 80 percent of its tap water. The remainder, which is fit for bottling before it's mixed with the cleaned-up and "hard" lake water, comes from the Paul Davis water field about 25 miles north of Midland.

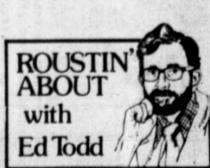

Should the drought continue and should the reservoir get no more runoff this year, the worsening situation "could produce problems" in ensuing years, Ivie said. 'There would be a remote possibility for rationing in 1979," said Ivie. The water district supplies raw water to Midland, Odessa, Stanton, Big Spring, Snyder, Robert Lee and San Angelo, said Ivie. The CRMWD is headquartered in Big Spring.

Two bodies of water - the Spence Reservoir and J.B. Thomas Lake southwest of Snyder - serve the district. However, Thomas Lake is "crippled"; it's low and muddy. As a result, water from that drying-up lake is piped only to Snyder.

Meanwhile, the mineral and algae content of Spence is increasing; there has been little run-off in recent years to dilute the resevoir's water. And the water, Ivie allows, leaves much to be desired. Most would agree. But he said "the citizens of West Texas are the most understanding people in the world." They'll suffer through the

"A lot of rain, a lot of run-off, in Lake Spence would improve the quality of the water," he said.

In the most-recent drawn-out drought - that of the 1950s - only Lake Thomas served the district, which had not expanded to Midland at that time. But the drought was little felt by the water district.

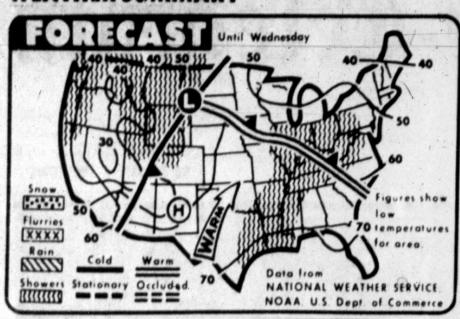

"Actually, during the years of the drought of the '50s, we caught more water in those drought years . . . than we have caught in the last three vears."

That phenomenon, Ivie explained, was due to the "intensity of rainfall." Heavy rains lead to run-offs, which replenish the lake, Ivie said. But that rain which benefits reservoirs is not nearly as beneficial to farms and ranches; the water runs off the fields and, eventually, to the lakes. It's the drizzles, the light but long-lasting rains, which are sought by the farmers and ranchers. Moisture soaks into the ground, and causes grasses and crops to spring forth.

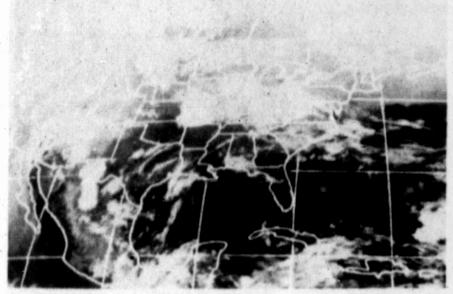

Ivie, like the agriculturalists and city folks, is not adverse to more rain - fight or heavy.

"I can assure you we're praying for

Government dishes out more inflation horrors

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is handing out more worrisome economic news, saying meat prices for the first three months of the year jumped 41 percent at an annual rate. Meanwhile other agencies were announcing a 21/2-year high for subsidized mortgage interest rates.

In other economic developments Monday:

- HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. blasted doctors and hospitals for not restraining rising costs.

Robert S. Strauss, Carter's chief adviser on inflation, is predicting the business community now knows it must accept smaller price increases before labor cooperates by demanding smaller wage boosts.

Business knows they are going to have to step forward first (and) that will have a very, very salutary effect on labor negotiations if we take the right steps over the next few months," Strauss said.

Federal Reserve Board member Henry C. Wallich said, "Unless we do more than the president proposed, I fear we'll find inflation will acceler-Wallich suggested that a $19.4 billion tax cut figure accepted by Carter be reduced to $5-to-$10 billion. Both the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration said Monday their subsidized mortgages would hit a 2½-year high of 9 percent.

The last time the FHA and VA rates reached that figure was the period from September 1975 to January 1976.

The secretary of housing and urban development, Patricia Roberts Harris, said the interest increases were needed "to bring FHA rates in line with other competitive rates in both the mortgage and financial mar-

Presbyterians alter policy on homosexuals

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Overwhelmingly rejecting the ordination of practicing homosexuals, the United Presbyterian Church has taken the historic step of welcoming to its ministry gay men and women who seek to become heterosexual or remain celi-

It was the first such explicit policy on homosexual clergy to be spelled out by a major Christian body.

The action by the church's 190th governing assembly late Monday came after an impassioned day of floor debate, culminating two years of study and wide controversy for the 2.6 million-member denomination.

"For the church to ordain a self-affirming, practicing homosexual person to ministry would be to act in contradiction to its charter and calling in Scripture," the assembly de-

The ordination of practicing homosexuals failed on a show of hands, with an estimated 600 of 650 votes against.

And while ordination of celibate homosexuals passed by about 600 to 50, some delegates objected to allowing any homosexual to become a Presbyterian minister.

It is "a perversion of the gospel of grace," the Rev. Laupa Jervis of New York City told the assembly after its vote in the Convention Center, packed with observers and ablaze with televi-

On the other side, Sandra Brawders, a Princeton theological seminary candidate for the ministry, had taken the floor during debate to dramatically acknowledge her homosexuality and declare:

'We can discover and find ways to share the delicate and lovely rainbow of acceptance under which God offers to meet us all.

Citing Scripture, the assembly said God intended "loving companionship" between male and female or celibacy, following Jesus' lifestyle, and that "the practice of homosexuality is sin However, the assembly said the homosexual condition itself ordinarily is not voluntarily chosen and is "more a sign of brokenness of God's world than of wilful rebellion.'

Repentant homosexuals able to redirect their desires toward heterosexual marriage or who remain celibate "can certainly be ordained" if otherwise qualified, the assembly declared, adding:

"Indeed, such candidates must be welcomed and must be free to share their full identity.

A major ecclesiastical body has never before openly taken that position, although homosexuals are generally assumed to have served as clergymen since ancient times.

On a plea by the Rev. John T Conner of Eugene, Ore., the assembly added a provision that its ban on ordaining practicing homosexuals would not be used to punish those already ordained.

The assembly's action rejected the findings of a two-year study that favored allowing ordination of practicing homosexuals, a position that had triggered turmoil in the church.

The issue was raised by the 1975 application for ordination of William Silver, an avowed homosexual with a male mate, to the New York regional presbytery. It passed the question to the national assembly.

George Bush begins runoff drive against Jim Reese

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

The march for George Bush has started in Midland and the rest of the 19th Congressional District. A barbecue luncheon Monday at the Bush headquarters on West Wall Avenue formally kicked off the campaign against Odessa businessman Jim Reese in the June 3 runoff election. Monday night, the Bush campaign workers began the door-to-door campaign in Midland. Bush said he will be reaching out to rural communities around Lubbock and Plainview before the final gun goes off June 3 in the race for the Republican nomination to the 19th Congressional District seat being vacated by retiring Rep. George Mahon.

Bush received 46.5 percent of the Republican vote in the May 6 primary. Bush told the campaign workers at the barbecue he feels that showing is a victory, considering that he "came from nowhere" when he first decided to run for the seat. "I'd rather be in our position than his (Reese's), Bush said. "We are going forward with momentum." Bush attributed his receiving as

Earthquake

Police said there were no immediate reports of casualties or damage on the southern islands nearest the quake, Yaku Jima and Kyushu.

In Tokyo, the meteorological agency officials targeted the quake's center about 22 miles off the Japanese coast and said it registered four on a Japanese scale of seven.

The Uppsala Seismological Institute in Stockholm, Sweden said the tremor measured 7.3 on the Richter Scale and was centered 135 miles below the earth's surface. U.S. seismological monitors said the quake registered 6.7 Richter on their equipment at Golden, Colo.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

Heat rebounding from cooling rain Midland is returning to normal -

hot and dry - after the rain last weekend. The mercury should halt its upward rise in the middle 90s Wednesday with only a slight chance of rain to cool things off. But, at least it shouldn't be as hot as it was 25 years ago, in 1953, when the record high for this date was set at 107 degrees. Record low is 50 degrees set in 1963

It should turn partly cloudy tonight with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms, according to the weatherman with the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal. Southerly winds should decrease to 5 to 10 mph tonight.

Area towns reported clear skies and warm temperatures, with the exception of Big Lake, where the skies were cloudy early today.

DEAR ABBY

Women crazy over married bus driver

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is not what you'd call "handsome." He's middle-aged, a little on the flabby side, and he's losing his hair. But he's a bus driver, and Abby, I don't think you know how crazy some women are for bus drivers. It must be the uniform. because the women fall all over Bill as if he were a Marine captain or something.

Bill says that most of the women on his run are mental cases. They have tried to tip him, give him their phone numbers, and they fight for the seat right behind the driver so they can blow on his neck. One lady even PINCHED him.

Should I ask Bill to get into some other line of work? Or should I let him stay on that bus with all those crazy women?-THE DRIVER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Men who meet the public (in uniform and out) will be tipped, tempted, and even pinched occasionally. Give him lots of love. And trust him. If a man is happy at home, he won't look left or

DEAR ABBY: The teacher called me for a conference because of an essay my daughter had written as part of a class assignment. It was titled "My Father." and it went like this:

'My father is the worst father in the whole world. I am ashamed of him. He left us when we were small and my mother had to work to feed us. I hate him like poison.

Abby, my daughter was 4 years old when her father left us, but she seems to have built up a terrible hatred for him. In fact, she hates most men. My other children seem much better adjusted.

This teacher suggested I take my daughter to a psychiatrist. I don't believe too much in psychiatry. I saw one after my husband left me, and all I got out of it was the advice that I should "adjust" to the situation and make the best of it.

I don't want an emotionally disturbed child on my hands, but I can't afford to pay a psychiatrist just because a teacher says she thinks my child needs one. What should I do?-TROUBLES IN BALTIMORE

DEAR TROUBLES: Ask your family doctor (or the school counselor) for recommendations, after explaining the background. Far better to investigate psychiatric help for your daughter and be told she DOESN'T need it, than fail to seek it when she DOES.

DEAR ABBY: I love my wife, Paula, and she loves me. No problems whatsoever. However, after 32 years of married life, I still believe Paula has an attractive figure. She may be a little flabby in spots, and flat in others, but I'm no Tarzan-built fellow either anymore.

Over the years I have bought Paula several beautiful nightgowns to wear in our privacy, but she has never worn any of them. Some have been in their

I don't think there's anything wrong with me, Abby, but I would like to see my little darling in a "turn on" nightie once in a while. Especially now, for it might pick up my interest a little when I need it

I wonder if other husbands have this problem? If so, perhaps if you were to advise me in your column, you could help us all .- PAULA'S MAN DEAR MAN: I can't speak for husbands, but many wives have a "save-it-for-later" complex. Simply tell your little darling that it is later than she thinks!

Alaska's federal land

Alaska is a vast piece of real estate, we know that. It is appropriate, therefore, that the House Interior Committee has put in a vast amount of time writing a bill that will be fateful for Alaska's future. The full House now is preparing to decide what will become of millions of acres of federal land which still lie virtually untouched in our remote northern state.

Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus has referred to Alaska as the "crown jewels" of the nation - an apt description of its mountain ranges and forests teeming with wildlife.

The jewel box, however, also contains oil, gas, minerals and timber resources which the country needs.

Many Americans are concerned that too much of the land will be taken out of circulation permanently, and that the nation as a whole will suffer as a result thereof.

Although the issue of an oil pipeline route through Alaska finally was settled several years ago, echoes of the battle will be heard in the debate on the proposed Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act. Again, Congress faces the question of where to draw the line between preservation of unspoiled wilderness and development of natural resources important to the Alaskan economy and the entire nation.

Compromises are inevitable, but most of them have been made in the years of deliberation now coming to a head. It is hoped that the bill as finally passed will strike a rational balance between the interests of conservation and jobs, the two forces in a familiar tug-of-war. This is a matter of national interest and surely Congress will deal with it on that basis.

The statistics of the Alaska bill are something to behold. It would expand the state's three national parks and create 10 new ones. increasing park area from 7.5 million to 50.2 million acres. It would add 25.1 million acres to four existing wildlife refuges and create new ones totaling another 25.7 million acres. Segments of 22 rivers would be protected by the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The figures perhaps are maximum and can and will be cut back in compromise moves by Congress.

The point of greatest controversy is the designation of 74.2 million acres within those parks and refuges as wilderness, offlimits to any further incursion by roads or other facilities.

This, of course, sounds very familiar to many West Texans who long have voiced strong opposition to the designation of a vast area of Big Bend National Park as wilderness, and the placing of an unrealistically long stretch of the Rio Grande in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System. The opposition has been able to curb the proposals to date:

Back to Alaska, it is significant that none of the known oil, gas and mineral deposits are included in the protected areas. Hopefully, the bill will not "lock up" a significant amount of underground resources.

Alaska provides an opportunity for America to avoid mistakes which were made by previous generations in the rush to settle and develop the pristine wilderness of the "lower 48" states. At the same time. however, the reverse situation should not be carried to extremes.

The bill now before Congress does not affect the 148 million acres placed under state and tribal jurisdiction when Alaska joined the Union, and the fate of that considerable area remains in Alaskan hands.

What is at issue is the future of "unreserved federal lands," which are a national heritage. with their desolate majesty un-

Italy's very fragile democracy may crumble

By VIRGIL PINKLEY Copley News Service

It is touch and go as to whether democracy can survive in Italy.

In view of the kidnappings, increase in crime, and the activities of the Red Brigades, the outlook is not good in that nation, especially since the brutal murder of former Prime Minister Aldo Moro

Basically what has happened has been that the Christian Democratic Party has been in power for 30 consecutive years. During this time it has been inefficient, it has been corrupt and it has failed to meet the basic social needs of the country.

Simultaneously the Communist Party has grown in strength and has taken over more and more of the functions of government. It has reached the point where nearly half the votes cast in Italy are for the Communist Party. The group, under the astute leadership of Enrico Berlinguer, has infiltrated the ranks of government and has assumed increasing power. The Communist Party leader has done this quietly and cleverly. He has been willing to play for time. He has jockeyed his party into a position where it takes little blame for the kidnappings and the brutal operations of the Red Brigades. All during this period of 30 years the Communists have sabotaged institutions and infiltrated the social life of the administration, mass media,

On the surface it appears that the Christian Democrats still have their fingers on all the controls, but when they choose to press a button it is always the Communists who answer the summons and who undertake to translate orders into practice.

Evidence makes it clear that the Red Brigades no longer have much, if any, connection with the Communist Party, although they use extreme Communist practices to gain their

Following the dictatorial rule of Mussolini, his overthrow and the establishment of a democratic government, this latter has indeed been a frail thing. Now there are millions of Italians who have little faith in democracy or its ability to govern and to protect itself.

The Christian Democrats have never been an aggressive party and they are willing to run away from any good fight. They always have preferred a defeat to a battle, and they employ the philosophy that he who runs away today may live to fight

But despite the Red Brigades and the growing strength of the Communist Party there are still many Italians who prefer the Red Brigades to a Communist regime, who believe that if the Communists eventually take over totally they will convert the Red Brigades into Italy's secret police.

Events in Italy are important to us because it is a member of NATO and it provides essential land, sea and air bases for effective control of the Mediterranean.

After making huge strides in manufacturing and exports and greatly raising the living standard in the country, the Christian Democrats have not been able to bring into being a stable government.

In recent months Italy has been drifting and conditions have gone from bad to worse. It is a complicated situation, but those who understand Italy best realize that the nation as a whole is not ready for democracy as we know the same

We continue to make the mistake of believing that everyone in the world thinks and acts as we do.

There is not the background in Italy for democracy and the country has not had our 200 years of education and dedication to democracy with law and

Farm sales being investigated

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Foreign land speculators have poked into a wasps' nest in President Carter's backyard. Their quiet acquisition of small family farms in Georgia may rekindle smoldering feud between Jimmy Carter and Carl Sanders.

Both men had ambitions to become governor of Georgia in 1970. The primary campaign pitted Sanders. the suave former governor and millionaire attorney against Carter. the folksy small-town peanut farmer. blocked Sanders from regaining the governorship in a bitter battle. The wounds have not yet healed on either side.

Now they may find themselves on opposite sides of a Georgia land boom. As part of our continuing reports on the buying of America by foreigners, we disclosed that a single international investment company has purchased at least 17,000 acres of Georgia farmland. Unconfirmed sales could run total acreage to twice that figure.

The firm, Transatlantic Consultants, Inc., of Munich, Germany, has been acquiring small, debt-ridden family farms for European investors. The company's Georgia honcho, Philip Beegle, has taken over the operation of the farms under his management company, Southern Farms Services, Ltd.

This came to the attention of Diane Brunson, a member of the Georgia Democratic State Committee, whose husband farms 700 acres outside Statesboro, Ga. Alarmed over the gobbling up of family farms, she flew to Washington and marched straight into the White House with her evidence Diane showed the First Lady land deeds to back up her story. Rosalynn spread out the deeds in her lap and examined them closely. Diane pointed to the left-hand corner of the deeds where the name of the law firm was displayed. It was Carl Sanders'

"Yes, and it doesn't surprise me in Afterward, Rosalynn spoke to the land grab, and copies of the deeds were forwarded to White House counsel Robert Lipshutz to investigate.

Diane Brunson, meanwhile, took her complaint to Sen. Herman Talmadge, D.-Ga., who apparently is not anxious to get caught in the middle of a Carter-Sanders feud. As Senate Agriculture chairman, he asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the land speculation.

She told the story of Transatlantic's land grab to her compatriot from Georgia, Rosalynn Carter. Diane spoke passionately about the plight of Georgia's small farmers who have been forced to sell out because of drought, crop disease and low grain

"You see whose law firm is handling the sales?" said Diane.

We contacted Carl Sanders who was reluctant to discuss the matter, but referred us to his partner, Richard Newton, who handles Transatlantic's affairs. He also was hesitant to discuss the farm purchases, except to say that Transatlantic was creating jobs and injecting dollars into Georgia's rural economy.

INSIDE REPORT:

Church's sudden pro-Israeli shift stuns colleagues

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Just as a trans-Pacific telephone call asked Vice President Walter Mondale's help with Sen. Muriel Humphrey's vote for the Mideast arms deal, Sen. Frank Church was preparing a sudden pro-Israeli shift that stunned his Senate colleagues and threw the administration into disarray.

That rapid sequence of events, culminating in the 8-to-8 Senate Foreign Relations Committee vote May 11, casts a long and ominous shadow ahead for President Carter. It raises nagging questions about the dependability of Church, the 21-year Senate veteran from Idaho, who becomes committee chairman next January with Sen. John Sparkman's retirement.

It was future Chairman Church who served notice that he would support the aircraft package with certain specified changes. It was future Chairman Church who, at a private breakfast with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and other key senators May 9 in Vance's dining room, gave changes offered by the president satisfied him:

all present to understand that

Nothing had been left to chance. Vance, national security director Zbigniew Brzezinski, Mondale and four top-ranking senators - majority leader Robert Byrd, Republican eader Howard Baker, Sparkman and Abraham Ribicoff - had spent hours in private sessions with Church. Their mission: to reshape the president's aircraft deal to Church's Mondale, just arrived in Honolulu May 10, was informed from Washington that fellow Minnesotan Muriel Humphrey was wavering and promptly telephoned her. Mrs. Humphrey's vote was essential to give the Church-fashioned compromise a majority vote in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Interim Sen. Humphrey decided to stick with the president, despite pressure. on her by the pro-Israel lobby which one fellow senator called "brutal."

Church was under similar pressure from Jewish Americans who contributed heavily to his 1976 presidential campaign against Jimmy Carter. He wilted. Lamely explaining May 11 to shocked committee colleagues, Church took refuge in the late Sam Rayburn's explanation for changing his mind about Lyndon Johnson running for vice president in 1960. "I'm a wiser man today than I was yesterday." Church

Church's colleagues were not impressed. With his vote, the committee would have given the president a clear 9-to-7 victory. That might have killed the issue once and for all in committee. On the floor of the Senate shortly before the committee vote, a confident Byrd was counting the ayes and nays with Church. He was surprised when Church complained that he "could not get a consensus" for the compromise

"But," he told Church, "I count nine votes for the president." Church said yes, but that would include his own vote and he was going to vote no. Byrd could scarcely believe his ears.

The long road toward a compromise acceptable to Church had started weeks earlier. Two days after Baker told CBS' "Face the Nation" April 16 that he could support F-15 warplanes for Saudi Arabia with a little "tinkering," Church privately informed Senate leaders he, too, could go along if changes were made.

Church wanted the package split up: he asked assurance that the F-15 jets for Saudi Arabia be disarmed for offensive purposes; and he demanded Saudi agreement not to base the planes near the Israeli border. With those changes, he remarked privately, he could "support these planes for Saudi Arabia in the national interest.

That word was delivered April 21 to Mondale and Brzezinski at the White House. Vance was then in Moscow, but approved Church's changes on April 27 at breakfast with Church, Baker and other senators. But at that meeting. Church raised a new question: could the Saudi shipment of planes be reduced? Impossible. said Vance, but extra F-15s could be sold to Israel. Church appeared

On May 9, at yet another Vance breakfast, Church raised the bidding. He asked for assurances that the president never again would couple Israel with another country.

Without a flat commitment, Mr

Carter met Church halfway. In his formal letter to Congress asking approval of the sales, he included a written-for-Church "addendum" calling the three-nation sale unique That suggested no repetition.

For one day following that break fast. Church was an advocate of the arms deal. On May 11, complaining he lacked a "consensus," he flipped back to his old position. But other senators Baker, Mrs. Humphrey, Charles Percy and John Glenn - had been influenced by Church's persuasive arguments two days earlier; they stayed with the president.

That pattern by soon-to-be Chairman Church was the sourest note in a bitterly fought battle which showed Jimmy Carter at his best. "With friends like Frank Church," said one Democratic senator. "the president needs no enemies."

Soviet Jews finding Israel transition rough

The Washington Post

JEUSALEM — "Many Soviet Jews just do not know how to cope with Israel," a former Moscow resident remarked here the other day.

"They don't know what to do with freedom. They expect decisions to be made for themn, like they always had been," he said. "Psychologically, they almost have to be born again." A decade after the start of what became a highly publicized worldwide campaign to make it possible for Jews to emigrate from the Soviet Union, many of the 125,000 Soviet Jews who came here are finding the transition painful. Based on a host of official Israeli studies and conversation with recent arrivals at an absorption center near Jerusalem, there are serious complaints about housing and employment, problems in adjusting to Israeli custom, styles and politics.

Indeed, there are compalints that some immigrants face discrimination just because they are

There are, to be sure, tales of outstanding suc

-A 14-year-old boy who was so unhappy in his Soviet school, where other children teased him for being Jewish, that he had to take powerful tranquilizers, is now off drugs completely and happily speaking fluent Hebrew after only eight months in Israel.

-A young biochemist who was dropped from graduate school in Moscow after he inquired about emigrating is nearing a doctorate and living com-fortably in a three-room apartment near Tel Aviv with his wife, an equally successful student.

-Eighty inventions by Soviet immigrants have been found "feasible" by a new Israeli institute of nnovation and 12 are in production, among others, an x-ray in color, special types of weather balloons and a new type of irrigation piping.

Part of the complexity in gauging progress here of immigrants from the U.S.S.R. is that they are not nearly the homogenous group that lumping them under one heading might suggest. They include Westernized intellectuals from Moscow and Leningrad, as well as backward mountain peoples from Daghestan and the shrewd, natural entrepreneurs of Soviet Georgia.

Each come to Israel for a combination of different reasons: to pray in freedom, to make money for their children, because others are going to flee anti-semitism, or simply to see the world.

What they hoped to achieve here in some measures determines what make them content. For those, say, with primarily religious objective - a small minority - life in Israel is incomparably better than it could ever be in the Soviet Union.

For the majority whose motives for emigrating were largely economic, conditions in Israel can be difficult, as they are for most Israelis. A recent survey by the Ministry of Absorption found that after three years, over half the Soviet immigrants were less satisfied with their work in Israel than they had been in the Soviet Union; less than half said they were satisifed with their salaries. Over 40 percent of the Soviet Jews said after one year that their standard of living was lower in Israel than in the Soviet Union. Among those with academic or professional training, the ministry reports, a major problem is finding suitable jobs in competition with longtime Israelis.

For instance, a substantial proportion of arrivals, advanced or technical backgrounds whereas only 18 percent of the work force in Israel is needed under present circumstances for such jobs - which is already higher than in most other countries.

As a result, a number of immigrants have found to their chagrin that after a year during which the government would pay their salaries at academic institutions, they were dropped because there was no permanent place for them. Others have found that their Soviet training is either too specialized or primitive to be useful here. They have to be rerained, a burden for those past middle age.

These factors, according to a study published by the law faculty at Tel Aviv University, have contributed heavily to the increasingly high dropout rate among Jewish university graduates and professionals leaving the Soviet Union. Well over 50 percent of the Soviet Jews receiving visas for Israel are now going elsewhere, mainly the United States, and the figure is apparently continuing to rise. More than 80 percent of the Jews leaving Moscow do not come to Israel any longer. Figures for other major Soviet cities are equally striking.

There are additional considerations for the dropouts, the study shows, including fear of another Middle East war, reports of intolerance towards non-Jewish partners in a marriage, sharp self-criticism by Israelis which filters back to the Soviet Union and the ease of going to the United States. But the high percentage of the better educated, white collar workers diverting elsewhere is especially hard for Israeli authorities to counter.

Moreover, Israelis say that some of the most difficult adjustments to life here are faced by people who are still coming in large quantities — natives of the less developed regions of the Soviet Unon such as Tadjikistan, Azerbaidjan, the mountains of Daghestan and other Caucasus territories. A report by Hanna Avidor and Ruth Zin of the Jewish Agency's immigration and absorption department asserted after a study of 5,000 immigrants from the Causasus:

Immigrants from the Caucasus are confronted with myriad difficulties in all aspects of life. They must change their working habits and occupations; familiarize themselves with modern conceptions of environmental and personal hygiene; learn new methods of infant care and domestic economy, acclimate to-different cultural and educational systems...surmount their antagonistic attitude towards the establishment and their tendency to regard it as

"Because of the wide cultural gap between Caucasus immigrants and their Israel environment, they are often rejected by other groups of immigrants from the Soviet Union and by those who have lived in (Israel) for a long period.'

Although many of them are more socially advanced than other Soviet mountain peoples, the tensions here seem especially severe for Georgians, whose southern Soviet republic has perhaps the strongest national characteristics of any in the U.S.S.R., They believe, as a headline on an article in the Jerusalem Post put it, that "Israelis just don't like Georgian Jews."

Georgians have a reputation, said one Israeli, for being shifty as merchants, of stealing without "any guilty feelings whatsoever." In short, whenever Israelis make invidious assessments of newcomers, the Georgians tend to do badly.

Career tests offered free

Career testing for Midland students who have completed their junior year in high school is being offered, free of charge, from May 29 through June 9 at Midland and Lee High Schools.

Called the Planning Career Goals Test, the test, designed by McGraw-Hill Inc., helps to identify potential and predict job success in both vocational and professional fields.

According to vocational counselors Mary Zeigler of Midland High and Billie Eiland of Lee High, the test never before has been offered here to such a large group.

"We have just 50 tests for each school, but we will certainly order more if the demand is greater," Mrs. Eiland said

Students may register early for the tests at any time in the school offices, she said, adding that students will be admitted without preregistration only if there are enough tests available. Those who wish to take the tests must sign up for two testing sessions in order to complete the test. The morning session runs from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., and the afternoon session goes from 1 to 4 p.m.

Tests will be returned to counselors by Aug. 15, and counselors then will schedule conferences with students to give them computer print-outs of their results.

"It (the test) compares (students') values, interest, information and ability in given fields with those who are already successfully employed in those fields. The tests simply measure abilities that can be improved and identify career groups in which the student would most likely find success," Mrs. Eiland said.

The test measures 10 aptitudes and covers 12 career groups, ranging from engineering to fine arts and including construction trades and hu-

Approval given for new system

Midland County commissioners Monday authorized development of specifications for a new telephone system for county offices.

The commissioners are scheduled to review the specifications at their next meeting and then advertise for bids. The action came after Charles Sutton of Communications Corporation of America presented cost analysis figures in answer to those presented earlier by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Either the CCA or the Bell system would save money over the present system and would be more efficient, Sutton said.

Also Monday, the Commissioners Court authorized Sheriff Dallas Smith to hire an additional court bailiff to handle the increasingly heavy court

It is a billion-dollar gamble by the oil industry that will make the brandnew crap and roulette tables at the Atlantic City casino, some 70 miles away, look like child's play. But the die has been cast, and already four rigs are probing the Continental Shelf for a treasure of gas and oil. The risk is high but the rewards could be mag-

The Baltimore Canyon trough off New Jersey and Delaware is the final frontier of U.S. offshore oil and gas drilling. The Gulf of Mexico has been a virtual fountain of energy resources for years. Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's north shore has been conquered. Holes have been punched offshore along the California coast.

Even Florida's Continental Shelf was explored three years ago when Exxon and several smaller oil companies dropped hundreds of millions of dollars because the overrated Destin Dome geological formation turned out to be a dud - no oil and no gas. Exxon officials say their company alone spent $325 million fruitlessly.

Americans chew up and spit out their energy sources as do no other people on earth. More than 75 percent of the mechanical energy used in America is provided by oil and gas, and Americans consume more energy than all the people of the Soviet Union, Japan, Britain and West Germany combined.

So the hunt goes on, often pitting the oil industry against environmenta-lists, as it did for years here before the U.S. Supreme Court earlier this year finally sanctioned the offshore

The New Era, leased to the Continental Oil Co. (Conoco) for $60,000-aday, and other rigs operated by Shell, Exxon and Texaco, are drilling down 12,000 to 14,000 feet into the ooze, hoping to find the treasure lode of gas and oil

The New Era is a semisubmersible, floating rig that is held steady in 240 feet of water by eight 30,000-pound anchors. It floats above a tract Conoco leased for $59 million, and the drilling cost to probe 12,000 feet down will be a minimum of $3.6 million.

The oil industry, the big so-called "majors," have paid the federal government $1.1 billion for the right to look for energy deposits on 93 tracts offshore the Atlantic coastline.

Studies made by the U.S. Geologic Survey indicate that the Baltimore Canyon trough may contain 400 million to 1.4 billion barrels of oil and 2.6 to 9.4 trillion cubic feet of gas.

But what is not generally known is that it probably will take at least until the end of the year for the companies to determine whether indeed the gas and oil really exists. And if it does, it will probably take another five to six years to build the pipelines and well platforms needed to remove the natural resources from their prehistoric

Twice already, there have been financial reverberations because of false reports of the drilling offshore. Once the stock market leaped two points, and the value of the U.S. dollar on international markets, increased also after two misleading reports of "promising" geological information from the drilling sites.

"I would say it will take about five years from the time we strike oil, for example, if we do, until it is in your gas tank," said Paul W. Schmidt, Conoco's supervisor of the offshore

CLEVELAND (AP) - Diamond Shamrock Corp. has agreed in principal to invest approximately $28 million in the Sigmor Corp., while Sigmor says it will purchase about 200 service stations from Diamond Shamrock.

The Cleveland-based Diamond Shamrock will purchase 1.4 million shares of Sigmor stock for cash, about 21 percent of the total outstanding shares in the San Antonio, Texas, company.

Sigmor's $19 million purchase involves properties in Texas and Oklahoma. Sigmor currently leases 161 of the sites from Diamond Shamrock.

In a joint announcement Monday, the businesses said parties are working toward completion of definitive agreements, and that completion of the transactions will be subject to certain conditions, including necessary approval by regulatory agen-

Sigmor currently sells gasoline through 670 service stations in 20 states, with about 475 of the stations operated in Texas and Louisiana under the Shamrock brand. The remaining stations are operated under the name, Fill-'em Fast.

Sigmor also distributes pipe and tubing, refines crude oil and transports petroleum products by truck and pipeline operations.

Diamond Shamrock makes and sells chemicals and plastics; produces, refines and sells petroleum products; makes and markets patented metallic electrodes; and licenses gical technology.

Gear bolts cause spill

LONDON (AP) - The chief engineer of the ill-fated U.S.-owned supertanker Amoco Cadiz said Monday five bolts in the steering gear broke dur-ing a storm that hurled the disabled vessel onto the French coast and set off the world's worst oil spill.

The four-year-old 263,000-ton tanker, owned by Amoco International and registered in Liberia, spewed its 65-million-gallon cargo last March, blanketing the scenic Brittany coast in a residue that's still being cleaned two months after the accident.

Salvatore Melito, the chief engineer for six months before the disaster, testified at an inquiry in London. He said the first indication of a steering problem came from the helmsman who found that when he steered the wheel to starboard the rudder went to port. Melito said the steering gear failed in high seas, and most of the 211 gallons of oil leaked from the steering

"When I went down to investigate the rudder was moving substantially from side to side - the bolts must have sheered under tension induced by pressure," he said. "A visual check had been made of the steering system 30 to 45 minutes earlier."

Thousands of volunteers and French troops have been taking part in the cleanup along France's Western coast. The operation is expected to cost far more than the $30 million maximum France can claim under international pollution insurance agreements.

Sir Gordon Willmer, a former British High Court Admiralty judge, is presiding over the five-man board of inquiry, which opened proceedings last Tuesday. The inquiry, under the the auspices of the Liberian government, is being held in London as a matter of convenience. The tanker flew the Liberian flag.

Pricing spelled out

By FRANK CORMIER

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - President Carter, addressing workers at the government's largest electrical utility, today declared that the price of energy "must cover all legitimate costs of production including environmental protection."

Carter's assertion dovetails with long-held contentions of the privately owned utilities, oil companies and other energy producers that environmental costs should be included in prices ultimately paid by consumers. In an address prepared for a meeting of Tennessee Valley Authority employees, Carter added that energy prices definitely should not cover waste or "windfall profits at the consumer's expense.' The president told his audience that the TVA "is challenging an interna-tional uranium cartel and helping to lead the resistance to expanding oil company domination of all of our energy sources." Carter said his administration "is with you in encouraging more competition, and less concentration of economic power among the producers of petroleum, coal and uranium.' Carter also planned to assure government scientists at Oak Ridge Tenn., that despite his administration's opposition to developing the breeder nuclear reactor there, the mammoth government-owned facility at Oak Ridge remains a frontier outpost of energy research.

Carter flew here today from Plains, Ga., where he was visiting Sunday and where he attended his niece's wedding.

It's not that Manny Mota is consciously thinking about trying to oust Smokey Burgess as the king of the pinch hitters. It's just that it's going to work out that way anyway.

"I would like to play until I catch Smokey. I think it would be very important to be the greatest pinch hitter. But when I go to the plate I don't think about it too much," he

What he does is win games for the Los Angeles Dodgers ... like on Monday night, for example.

With the bases loaded in the eighth inning and the Dodgers locked in a 1-1 tie with San Diego, Manager Tom Lasorda called pitcher Don Sutton back from the on-deck circle and sent up the 40-year-old Mota.

And Mota sent a Bob Owchinko pitch down the left field line for three runs. Before the carnage ended, four more runs scored in the inning, two on Vic Davalillo's bases-loaded single, and the Dodgers had a tidy 8-1 victory that jammed them in with SappFrancisco and Cincinnati, all virtually deadlocked for the National League West lead.

In the NL's only other action, Cin-cinnati trampled Atlanta 10-0 and Montreal beat Pittsburgh 5-2.

"Sure, it feels fine to have the 125th pinch hit, but I'm more happy about my team winning," said Mota, who had 14 pinch hits last year, has three this season and needs just 20 more to overtake Burgess. "If I tie with Smo-key it's okay, but I want to win for my

"That Mota's amazing," exclaimed Lasorda, "an outstanding man to have on the team." And he's delighted to have Davalillo around, too.

"They got five RBIs between them," he said. "Together I guess they're about 90 years old (actually their combined age is only 78). But I'll tell you one thing; when I call them off the bench I don't think about how on the ball more - but he's not too concerned at the moment. "I have only two hits in 11 times as a pinch hitter, but I've been on base seven times and that's what Tommy wants us to do.

Davalillo would like to get the bat

Dusty Baker's single, Lee Lacy's double and an intentional walk to Steve Yeager preceded Mota's hit. Dave Lopes ran for Mota, Bill North walked, then reliever Mark Lee's pickoff throw hit Lopes, who raced home as the ball bounced into center field. North, who reached third on the error, scored on Bill Russell's bunt, Reggie Smith's single and a walk to Ron Cey loaded the bases again and Davalillo singled to center.

With the victory the Dodgers are 24-15 with a .615 winning percentage. The idle Giants are 622 and the Reds

Reds 10, Braves 0

"I've seen articles that say that we can't hit," Ray Knight sneered, "And they always include me." Knight, included in the Reds' batting order as a late replacement for Pete Rose. crashed a three-run homer in the rout of the Braves.

Ken Griffey hit a two-run homer and Bill Bonham won his fifth game without a loss by limiting Atlanta to five hits in eight innings.

Expos 5, Pirates 2

For 7 1-3 innings, Montreal's Steve Rogers flirted with a no-hitter Then Rennie Stennett got the 1,000th hit of his career. Before the seventh inning was over Pittsburgh had three more singles, one by Frank Taveras driving in two runs, and Rogers was in the clubhouse.

But Darold Knowles limited the Bucs to one more hit the rest of the way as the Expos snapped their fourgame losing streak.

Ellis Valentine had a two-run double and Chris Speier, Tony Perez and Warren Cromartie had RBI hits.

K-State's Jermier fires back after firing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - One day after he was fired as Kansas State athletic director, Jersey Jermier fired back, accusing the school's president of indecisiveness and its womens' program of greed. "I think it's fair to say I don't feel like I should have been fired," Jermier said, adding that Duane Acker, K-State president, told him Saturday to either resign or be fired. "I called him Sunday and I told him

Fred Shero quits as Flyers' boss

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Fred Shero, one of hockey's most innovative and successful coaches, says he's walking away from the game because he feels he can no longer get the job

The 52-year-old Shero said Monday he was resigning as coach of the National Hockey League Philadelphia Flyers despite one year remaining on his five-year contract.

The reason for this resignation is simply that I feel my effectiveness to motivate the players, as well as to inspire them to the degree that would result in a Stanley Cup victory, has been exhausted," Shero said at a press conference.

He insisted his decision was not prompted by offers of another coaching job or an opportunity to become a general manager. He said he had not been approached as rumored by either the New York Rangers or Vancouver Cannucks. "Right now I don't feel like coaching. I feel like I've lost something. I can't generate any enthusiasm for hockey. And I don't believe I can do the job with this team anymore,' Shero told reporters in the office of his

Flyers' Board Chairman Ed Snider and General Manager Keith Allen said they were shocked and surprised by Shero's letter of resignation, which he submitted Thursday and disclosed business manager, Mark Stewart.

I wouldn't resign," Jermier said, "and he prepared the statement. At that point I wrote my one-sentence letter: 'As per your request, I am resigning June 30."

Breaking a long silence, Jermier contacted the news media Monday to tell his side of the story. He spoke from Shangri-La Lodge in Northeast Oklahoma, where Big Eight Conference officers will decide this week how hard to punish Kansas State, already possessing the lowliest football program in the league, for granting 13 scholarships too many last

In March, after announcing the Big Eight had put the school on probation for the scholarship infraction, Acker appointed a committee to study the problem-ridden athletic department. Acker said the report cleared Jermier of knowing complicity in the scholarship scandal but that "... many management responsibilities related to ticket sales, housing athletes, student-athlete health services and fundraising haven't been handled directly and with dispatch.

"Many of the reasons for lingering were because the university is run by committees," Jermier said. "Whenever a decision needs to be made they appoint a committee. At times they've got committees checking on committees.

"There were times when I would get one answer from the president, get it done, then get a different interpretation from one of his assistants. I got tired of running between them.'

Jermier said one mistake he was "keeping quiet so long. "I was being called 'No-Comment Jermier' and because of that I think I lost my credibility. When you continually have 'no comment' people tend to believe you're guilty.

Jermier said when he was hired two years ago he inherited a womens' athletic program "that is more vociferous than any school I've been associated with." He said the budget for womens' athletics was $214,000 plus administrative costs, but the womens' program generated only about $6,000 in income.

Louis Lefkowitz asks promoters for proof

NEW YORK (AP) -Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to require promoters of charter flight packages for Super Bowl XIII to prove they can guarantee admission before signing up passengers for next January's game in Miami.

Lefkowitz said Sunday he had also met with National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle to try to arrange a more equitable seating program and to guarantee full accountability in ticket distribution.

The attorney said he asked the CAB to require charter flight promoters to prove they have tickets to help prevent a situation such as last year's, when charter passengers found they had no tickets when they arrived at the Larry Kaligian, in charge of public relations for the track, said the change in relations for the track, said the change in figures was due to confusion by owners over whether horses were dead or missing. As many as 30 horses had been thought to have died in the biase. There is still no estimate of bow much the damage will cost. The 5-3 victory over the New England Whalers Monday night gave the Jets their second World Hockey Association championship in three years. A jubiliant capacity crowd of 10,348, many of them drinking wine or champagne in the final minutes, saw Winnipeg sweep its fourth straight game from the Whalers, duplicating a whitewash of the Houston Aeros in the 1976 Avco Cup finals.

The Jets trailed 2-0 after a first period that saw them obviously neryous and unable to settle themselves down.

"I think it was a case of human nature taking over,' said veteran Bobby Hull in the noisy, wet Jets dressing room. "After the first three games I think the guys thought we just had to go out and we'd win. But we found out that we'd have to work hard as we did all season ... it was the only way to do it.'

The Whalers scored early and late in the first period. Mike Antonovich netted a quick wrist shot at 1:37 and Rick Ley pushed a puck behind Winnipeg goalie Joe Daley with one second remaining.

"I think everyone was looking to see who was going to do the job," said center Ulf Nilsson, who ended his four-year WHA career with Winnipeg with assists on the final three Winnipeg goals. "The guys were upset at one another after the period and I think we told ourselves we would have to go out and try to win it in the last 40 minutes.

taubach sees no dynasty

NEW YORK (AP) - Pro football's Quarterback of the Year, Roger Staubach, at age 36 sees no early end of the line for his remarkable career but scoffs at the suggestion that the Dallas Cowboys are plotting a dynasty.

"'Dynasty' is an outmoded word," the star of the 1978 Super Bowl insisted Monday. "There is no such thing under today's system of leveling team strengths through the draft.

"My feeling is that there are seven or eight teams capable of going all the way. Dallas should be one of them. But no team can be regarded as a

Staubach was in New York to receive a two-foot-high, 60-pound bronze trophy presented by Pro Quarterback Magazine on the basis of a nationwide poll of football writers. Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins finished second. Ken Stabler of the Oakland Raiders third

The former Navy man and Heisman Trophy winner, at 6-foot-3 and 190 pounds, looked the picture of physical fitness.

"A quarterback is only as good as his throwing arm and his legs," he said. "My arm and legs are as good as they have ever been. I am in perfect

"My health will determine how I much longer I will play. Right now I would say that would be a few years. I don't want to specify how many but I have two more years on my contract. I hope to play those years and maybe some more.

Staubach said he was keeping in shape during the off season by lifting weights, running, playing tennis and basketball. The first finger of his throwing hand, broken in the 27-10 Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos, has healed, he said.

Dodgers snap streak

By The Associated Press

Western Division-leading San Antonio snapped a four-game Texas League losing streak Monday night, sliding past Tulsa 6-2 behind a six-hitter by Rick Nitz.

In other loop action, Midland took Arkansas 6-4, Jackson nipped Amarillo, 3-2 and Shreveport powered past El Paso 10-7:

Nitz retired 14 straight Drillers during one stretch as he ran his record to 5-1 on the season. San Antonio erupted for four runs in the sixth inning to break open the game. Mickey Hatcher's two-run single was the big blow

Midland slipped into second place in the Western Division with its victory over Arkansas as El Paso dropped to third by losing to Shreveport.

Arkansas rallied for single runs in the fifth and seventh, then plated two more in the ninth, but couldn't overcome the Cubs' lead.

El Paso blew a 5-0 lead when Shreveport sent 10 the win and Tom Tellmen to the plate in the man absorbed the loss.

seventh for five runs. Big blows were a double by Larry Littleton, who had four RBIs on the night, and a triple by Ernie Young.

Winner Dennis Davis ran his record to 2-3. The loser was Ken Schrom, primarily a reliefer and making his first start of the season.

Jim Bestwick drove in two runs in the top of the ninth to give Jackson its narrow victory over Amarillo.

Bob Grote picked up

"People keep talking about me being old," he told a press conference. "I don't feel old Quarterbacks feel age only when their arm starts bothering them - their arm and legs.

'Bart Starr had to quit because of his arm. With Joe Namath, it was his legs. I don't have those problems

Staubach acknowledged that the addition of Tony Dorsett, the rookie ball-carrying ace from the University of Pittsburgh, had given the Cowboys a new dimension and provided a source of concern for their National Football League rivals.

But he winced noticeably when an interviewer suggested that the Cowboys were in the process of creating a football dynasty.

'Sure, Dorsett is a constant threat for the long run," he said. "It puts our team in the position of not having to strain for the big play. It makes the other guys worry. Dorsett had runs of 87 and 77 yards last season: No telling when he will break loose.

"Besides, Bobby Newhouse is a renewed threat - after all, he ran for over 800 yards last season. And Preston Pearson adds to our running strength. So we don't have to be essentially a passing team.

"But dynasty? We can't even begin to think about it. We have a tough schedule. And there are a lot of good teams - Los Angeles, Minnesota and even Washington in the NFC; Oakland, Pittsburgh, Miami, Baltimore and more in the other league (AFC).

"And if age creeps up on me, we have a fine replacement in Danny White. He's exceptional - young (26), strong, confident and chomping at the

Bruins gain confidence

MONTREAL (AP) - First, there was uncertainty for the Boston Bruins, who entered the National Hockey League's final playoff series with an 11-game winless streak against the Montreal Canadiens. Then there was dismay and doubt, when the Bruins lost the first two games in the best-of-seven set.

That is all in the past, though. Boston has pulled even in the series, and a sense of confidence and excitement exists where in the past there had been awe and dread.

"We had a 5 percent chance of winning it after losing the first two games," said Boston center Pete McNab. "Then, after we won the third, our chances went up to 25 percent. Now, they're 50-50.

Regardless of how McNab came to that conclusion, that's a lot better than the odds teams usually face against the Canadiens.

'I'm just so excited going back to Montreal tied 2-2," said Brad Park, Boston's defensive stalwart throughout the season and the playoffs. "I can't believe it. I'm so wound up, I can't even talk."

He said those words Sunday night after the Bruins scored a 4-3 overtime victory over the Canadiens to wipe the slate clean and make the series a best-of-three.

'Now, momentum is on our side,' said McNab. "We walk into their building knowing that if we win there Tuesday night, we could come back to our building and maybe win the Stanlev Cup.'
