The Speaker Reports

AUSTIN—The “umbrella” licensing agency structure is a concept that has come of age in my opinion. The Sunset Commission has been studying this means of centralizing all or part of the functions of the state’s licensing agencies. I believe that such centralization is particularly suited to the administrative functions of these agencies.

Twenty-six states license professions through a single administrative organization. The advantages most commonly realized by these states include better business management, improved personnel practices, improved licensing and enforcement activities, improved protection of the public interest and increased accountability.

Business management would be improved because personnel could have more consistent workloads; assignments could be made on a functional basis; and forms, record-keeping, accounting, and other operating procedures could be standardized.

Testing services could be vastly improved by a central agency which could specialize in examination standards and procedures. Licensing boards currently cannot afford attention to such services.

Further, regulation could be better handled. Appeals, hearings, and other enforcement functions would improve the present system for the professions, as well as consumers.

Most importantly, an “umbrella” agency of this type would increase cost efficiency. Separate support staffs for each licensing agency would be eliminated, and a central staff would complete the administrative tasks. In the long-run, such a centralized body would save tax dollars and be more accountable.

The various benefits which could result from the creation of a centralized administration for the licensing agencies would be greatly improved through the use of this “umbrella” concept, and state government as a whole would benefit from such a reorganization.

SOME RECENT TRENDS IN TEXAS AGRICULTURE

are very troubling, and point out the seriousness of the family farm situation, notes Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

“In spite of improved farm income last year, inflation and the need to pay off old debts is still making profits very hard to come by for many farmers and ranchers,” Brown said.

Because of the cost price squeeze and other factors, over 3,000 farms went out of business in Texas last year, and the outlook for 1979 is even dimmer. More than 300,000 acres of farmland were removed from production, and another 300,000 acres will be lost this year.

“If these trends are not reversed, and the citizens of this country do not awaken to the reality of the situation, I believe that we are headed toward a real food and fiber emergency at some point in the future,” Brown commented.

TREES TEMPER WEST TEXAS CLIMATES

Windbreaks are living barriers of trees and shrubs that reduce wind movement, improve living conditions around the house, moderate extreme heat and cold, and provide homes for various species of birds and animals.

Equally important to agricultural land, a properly designed field windbreak reduces extensive crop damage and soil erosion caused by ravaging winds common on the plains.

Even though windbreaks may appear at first glance to be simple plantings, they are permanent, long-term investments requiring careful planning and maintenance to insure their effectiveness and longevity.

The Texas Forest Service, through its tree production program, and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, through its habitat improvement program, are furnishing individuals with the trees and technical assistance necessary for a successful planting project.

A properly designed windbreak provides year-round protection, however, no two planting situations are alike. There are basic concepts that should be considered.

Windbreaks are most effective when planted at right angles to the prevailing winds. Field windbreaks planted in a series of parallel belts insure maximum reduction in surface soil erosion and damage to agricultural crops.

A windbreak should contain at least three rows of trees, two of which should be conifers. Conifers, or evergreens, are the backbone of any planting because they retain their foliage year-round.

Austrian and Ponderosa pines are well suited for windbreak planting and can be obtained through the West Texas Nursery located at Lubbock.

The tree nursery operated by the Texas Forest Service still has 1,780 Austrian pines and 4,470 ponderosa pines on hand at $1 per tree. Applications for windbreak seedlings may be obtained by writing the West Texas Nursery, Rt. 2, Box 216, Lubbock, Tx. 79401.

The type of tree or shrub windbreak will determine the quantity of wildlife on your property. One of the limiting factors of abundant wildlife in northwest Texas is the lack of winter cover or protection. Planting trees on your property would not only benefit your soil, but enhance the holding capacity of wildlife also.

Studies completed on the association of wildlife and treebelts since the first windbreaks were planted should be helpful in your planning for your windbreak.

Habitat improvement recommendations are available by contacting Richard DeArment, P&WD Extension Biologist, Box 122, Wheeler, Texas 79096.

Effective windbreaks and their benefits don't just happen. They are the result of a lot of planning and attention, but their long-range benefits are worth the energy expended.

An almost assured increase in acreage planted to cotton in the U.S. this year has led to widespread speculation on where cotton prices may be this Fall. In turn, this has led Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, to do some figuring on the subject.

“A lot of things can happen to alter the picture as the year progresses,” says PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, “but there is no arguing with the fact that the odds now favor surplus production, and depressed prices are a logical expectation.”

Trying to determine the exact level of cotton prices at harvest is an impossible task, Johnson continues, “but it isn't too difficult to arrive at figures that should be fairly close to the minimum per pound return (1) to producers who plant an acreage in 1979 equal to or greater than they planted in 1978 and (2) to producers who in 1979 plant 15 percent or more less acreage than last year.”

The two minimum figures, respectively, are approximately 49 cents and 51 cents according to PCG calculations. The loan rate on SLM 31/32, 3.4 micronaire cotton, considered about the average High Plains quality, should be no lower than 44 cents per pound. That's a little over six cents below the 50.23-cent base loan rate for SLM 1-1/16, 3.5 to 4.9 micronaire cotton.

But if High Plains cotton sells at this price, Johnson goes on to say, the national average price paid to farmers for the year isn't likely to be above about 51 cents per pound.

“And that figure subtracted from the $7.7-cent target price would mean a price deficiency payment to all farmers of 6.7 cents, bringing the total return to 50.7 cents per pound on average High Plains cotton eligible for the payment.”

Producers can assure themselves of this 50.7 cent minimum return on all production by reducing 1979 cotton acreage by 15 percent “voluntary reduction percentage” announced for 1979. Otherwise the payment will be subject to a “program allocation factor” yet to be calculated and announced by USDA.

The allocation factor will be figured by dividing the estimated 1979 acreage for harvest into the National Program Acreage of 10.6 million. Assuming normal abandonment from 14.1 million acres planted, acreage for harvest would come to 13.1 million acres and result in a program allocation factor of 81 percent.

This would mean producers subject to the allocation factor, those who did not reduce acreage by 15 percent, would get the target price payment on only 81 percent of their production. Put another way, their average payment on all production would be reduced to 5.4 cents per pound. And that 5.4 cents plus the 44-cent market price would come to 49.4 cents.

Texas once had large herds of antelope numbering into the millions. The introduction of barbed wire was the determining factor in the continuing decline of the antelope range in the Panhandle, Permian Basin and Trans Pecos regions.

CONSERVATION INTEGRAL PART OF HUNTER SAFETY

A thorough study of wildlife management and conservation was presented to 17 area hunter safety instructors by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department during a recent workshop held in Childress.

Hunter safety instructors from Amarillo to Odessa to Wichita Falls were in attendance while P&WD personnel presented the status of conservation in Texas today.

The principles and practices of conservation were presented by Richard Dearment, extension biologist from Wheeler. A picture of change was presented by Dearment from the first game law in 1861 closing the bobwhite quail season on Galveston Island to the present day study of bobwhite quail on the Matador Wildlife Management Area near Paducah.

On the second day of the workshop, the HS instructors completed a trip to the Matador WMA where they were briefed on the current management practices conducted on the department-owned land by Charles Boyd, Matador WMA supervisor.

At the conclusion of the field trip, all the instructors were presented a certificate of attendance from T.D. Carroll, Texas hunter safety coordinator.

The workshop furnished the instructors with ample information for them to implement conservation into their future hunter safety classes.

'79 Citrus Crop Hurt by Freeze; '80 Crop Could Drop 50 Percent

AUSTIN—All but three citrus packing sheds have closed in the lower Rio Grande Valley and fruit shipments “will be pretty much out of the way after March 10,” according to Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Latest figures from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service showed a 24 percent decline in grapefruit production and a 29 percent decline in Valencia oranges due to the Jan. 2-3 freeze that severely damaged the state's citrus industry. Early and midseason oranges, most of which had been harvested before the freeze, rose by six percent.

Brown said next year's crop is expected to decline by 50 percent if tree bloom and budding are poor.

Though consumers will not be able to buy Texas citrus soon, Mike Wallace of Texas Citrus Mutual growers organization in Edinburg said supplies of Florida fruit will be adequate and no price increase is anticipated. Florida supplies most of the late spring and summer citrus found in retail outlets.

Linda Mullin Offered Food Safety Tips

Linda Mullin, Bailey County Extension Agent, presented the program on "Food Safety" at the Wednesday meeting of the Dusty Prairie Extension Homemakers Club. Miss Mullin pointed out that often illnesses we have that are mistaken for flu and other diseases are food-borne illnesses that result from careless food handling practices. She gave some suggestions for prevention of growth of bacteria in food products: (1) Select clean food from a clean market, (2) Wash all fruits and vegetables carefully before eating, (3) Refrigerate all perishables promptly. Store them covered. (4) Keep chopping board clean by washing after each use with hot soapy water to which a small amount of chlorine bleach has been added, and (5) Thaw frozen meat in the refrigerator in the wrapper.

In the business meeting, Mrs. Jackie Blaylock was elected delegate to the district meeting of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association that will be held in Tulsa, April 24. Mrs. Owen Jones was chosen alternate delegate.

Clothing leaders chosen to attend the training and present the program on "Short Cuts in Sewing" were Lorraine Dearing and Jackie Blaylock. The members attending this meeting were Mrs. F.H. Davis, Mrs. B.A. Dearing, Mrs. Owen Jones, Mrs. Vern Taylor, Mrs. R.W. Phillips and Miss Linda Mullin.

TSTA Attended State Convention In Houston

Three Muleshoe educators attended the 100th Annual State Convention of the Texas State Teacher's Association on March 22-24 at the Astrohall in Houston. Those attending from Muleshoe were the local president, Mrs. W.T. Watson, who was a voting representative; Mrs. Eric Smith, a district voting delegate and Mrs. Tom Jinks, an alternate voting representative. These official delegates; a potential 1,650, are elected from the 500 TSTA local associations throughout the state. They are certified by districts on the basis of one delegate per 75 members or major fraction of 75, to represent the 125,000 members of TSTA. Every local association is entitled to at least one official delegate. The 1979 TSTA house of delegates, the official governing body, met during the convention to act on proposed amendments to the TSTA constitution and to consider committee reports, resolutions and other business. The local representatives attended these sessions from Thursday, March 22 to Saturday, March 24. They also attended a reception and dance honoring the president, Virginia Stacey, which was held in the main ballroom at the Astro Village Hotel, Thursday night. The theme of the convention was commitment, involvement and action. According to Mrs. Watson, a highlight of the convention was the address given by the Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, president of operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity) at the second general session on March 23. Rev. Jackson emphasized that we must stress educational priorities and noted that concerning HEW, the 'E' should be taken from the middle and given special emphasis. Teachers should have better 'H' and would then eliminate much of the need for the 'W'. The local delegation re-

March 19-23 was Agriculture Week in Texas so WIFE of Texas took the opportunity to meet and visit with the legislators and officials in Austin. WIFE had 20 members there from nine counties. The Brownfield chapter arranged a luncheon for the eleven house agriculture committee men and women, also Reagan Brown and his assistant. State president, June Saylor of Muleshoe, was asked to speak. She welcomed the guests and mentioned the goals of WIFE. She also reported that the farmers of Texas have been working on an idea for farm representation to the governor that has resolved into a revisory. She also outlined the need for an advisory board to the Governor on agricultural matters, made up of farmers. This idea was well received and resumes are now being accepted for board members. If interested call 272-4257. Reagan Brown, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture asked for cooperation in promoting TAP (Texas Agricultural Products) for overseas sales. Since Texas exported two billion dollars worth of farm commodities last year, some sort of marketing pool should help producers. WIFE members also met and visited Bill Clayton, Bob Price and other area senators and representatives, the Attorney General, Mark White and Lieutenant Governor, Bill Hobby. Texas has a bill now in committee requiring disclosure of foreign investors in land. Wilma Alfred of Wildorado testified in favor of it.

Former Area Resident Feted On Birthday

Virgin H. Bewley, a former area pioneer, celebrated his 85th birthday on Sunday, March 18, 1979, at his home in Whitesboro, Tx., with a dinner for members of his family.

Bewley and his wife Jessie came to Sudan, in the Beck Community, in 1927 where he purchased a portion of the Janes Ranch and put it into cultivation. He helped establish the Janes Methodist Church, one of the first area churches. The Bewleys lived near Beck until 1943, moving then to Enochs and Morton in 1945, and later to the Muleshoe area in 1949. In 1960 the Bewleys moved to Whitesboro which is near the area where they were both reared. In 1974 Jessie Bewley died, and in 1975 he married a childhood friend, Mrs. Artie Myers. Helping celebrate the occasion were his wife, Artie and his surviving brothers and sisters, Mrs. Bess Summy, Mrs. Arch Center, W.L. Bewley and Sam Bewley all of Whitesboro; also his daughter, Mrs. E.T. Ford, Muleshoe; his son, Dr. Shelby Bewley, Sherman; and his step-daughter, Mrs. Jack DeCordova, Denton and their families.

Convection ovens are a new development in household appliances.

Although bakers have used commercial convection ovens for at least 30 years, they are late comers to the household scene.

*What are convection ovens?

Two types of convection ovens are available on the market.

Some of the conventional ranges come equipped with a convection oven.

Portable convection ovens are also available. The portable ovens resemble a large toaster-oven or small microwave, but convection ovens are technologically different.

*How do they work?

Convection ovens work on the forced-air principle. Fans circulate the air as it heats in the oven cavity.

The forced-heated air moves directly to the food so the cooking process begins immediately. The forced-heated air is then recycled and recirculated throughout the oven cavity.

Convection ovens were introduced to meet the need for more energy efficient appliances.

Manufacturers claim that the ovens use up to 50 percent less energy than other models because lower temperatures and shorter cooking times are needed for baking, roasting and broiling.

Bakers use them because of their even heating, and because hot air circulates over the food in the oven, they can cook more items at the same time.

*What should consumers ask about convection ovens?

--Do I need a convection oven? What real advantages will it offer? Will the benefits outweigh the higher cost?

--Do I have space in my home to use a portable convection oven conveniently? How much space will the appliance take? How close can the appliance be placed to other items?

--How is the portable convection oven insulated? How hot will the exterior surface of the oven get?

--How much energy and time will the convection oven use? How do energy consumption and time needed compare to conventional, microwave and other small-appliance cookery?

Job Tax Credits... Agribusiness firms may be able to cut their total tax bill for 1978 due to job tax credits provided by the Tax Reduction and Simplification Act of 1977, notes an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. These credits are available to any employer whose federal unemployment insurance wages for the current year exceeded those of the preceding year. These wages are the first $4,200 of an employee's wages. Farmer employers are also eligible for this credit although they are not subject to FUTA wages.

Exercise To Reduce

Health Surveys indicate that many people are gaining weight or staying overweight on relatively moderate caloric intakes. Although overeating is probably the major cause of overweight, physical inactivity contributes greatly to the problem.

There are a few encouraging signs that desire for fitness, or health-consciousness, is replacing simple weight-consciousness in the minds of many Americans.

There is growing awareness that a sedentary way of life can contribute to degenerative disease of the arteries and to obesity and its potential complications, most notably, diabetes, says a new pamphlet from the American Medical Association.

There also is a growing preference among Americans for a healthy, physically fit appearance. Emphasis is on condition. Body, skin and hair that are in good condition are widely regarded as necessary for good looks.

You may feel too lazy to get started on a physical fitness program, but it's probably the lack of exercise that makes you feel that way. On the other hand, you may think of yourself as active or energetic because you are always busy—too busy to take time out for vigorous exercise. Some of the busiest people in the world have found time for jogging, tennis or morning calisthenics.

There are all sorts of guides to simple home exercise programs. Or there is jogging or other such activities. Or regular participation in active sports and games, such as handball or tennis. If you are over age 30 or are unaccustomed to vigorous exercise, consult with your physician before starting a program.

But, if you want to maintain good health and to keep the excess pounds off, a regular, vigorous exercise program is a must. For the rest of your life.

YOU

make the difference In your electric bill

With the cost of everything going up, it sometimes seems like we're losing control of where our dollars go. There is one expense you and your family can help keep down this summer — your electric bill. You can make your home more energy efficient with simple improvements like insulation, weatherstripping, caulking and adding storm doors and windows. Teaching your family to use energy wisely — like keeping the thermostat turned to an efficient 78° in the summer, changing filters on your air conditioner regularly, keeping lights and appliances turned off when not in use — will help keep your bill down. You and your family make the difference — it's that simple. Call your SPS manager for more information and keep your cool this summer.

States' Funds In "Cash Gap" Says Bullock

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Tuesday said a "cash gap" would put the state's general revenue fund in the red sometime this week in spite of the fact the state has a huge cash surplus on hand.

"The state isn't broke, going broke or breaking the budget. Texas has sufficient funds to meet its financial obligations and is far from being bankrupt," Bullock said.

Records show that the general revenue fund has been in the red some 60 times during the past ten years.

The general revenue fund handles all state monies for which a specific fund has not been designated and is the source of financing for most state agencies.

The fund -- one of 300 used to account for state revenue -- is permitted by law to show a negative balance.

Bullock said the general revenue fund would be about $200 million short, noting that the Comptroller's Funds Management Division shows an overall cash balance in state funds of about $2 billion.

He said expenditures from the general revenue fund have been traditionally heavier during the first six months of the fiscal year than receipts during the same period.

It has always balanced out over a full 12 month period, Bullock said.

Bullock said the State Treasurer has the ability to cover warrants drawn on the general revenue fund using other uncommitted state monies.

"We simply need to get it out of the savings account and put it into the checking account to pay for this week's groceries," Bullock said.

PROVEN PERFORMANCE IN FARMERS FIELDS

Tower Urges Concern Be Used In Taiwan

Declaring that the Senate debate on the Taiwan Enabling legislation must result in a clear message that the United States will not sell out a friend, now or eve, to placate any powerful totalitarian regime, Senator John Tower, R-Tex., said the major concern must be with the security of Taiwan and of the American political, economic, and security interests there.

"America's allies and potential enemies throughout Asia and the world are watching this debate closely. They are looking for indicators of America's resolve to protect her interests and stand by her allies," Tower said. Tower said the legislation being considered by the Senate is better than that put forth by the Administration in that it does speak to the security of Taiwan, but it must be improved, and called for support of amendments which would more clearly spell out U.S. security interests.

The senior Texas senator criticized the Administration for failing to extract any real concessions from the Peking government, while at the same time giving in to that government's three major demands.

"The U.S. has agreed to Peking's three major demands: recognition of Taiwan; withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Taiwan; and termination of the U.S. - R.O.C. Mutual Defense Treaty. In addition, the U.S. has agreed to a moratorium on new arms sales to Taiwan for one year. In exchange, the PRC has said it will seek peaceful reunification of Taiwan to the mainland." Tower continued that Peking has refused to renounce the use of force against Taiwan, and the Administration did not even make such a demand. "The PRC has made no formal commitments on any of its very conditional promises, and the Administration itself has done little to amplify them," he added. Tower said the weakness of the Carter Administration in negotiating with Peking and in failing to show resolve with respect to the security of Taiwan cannot be corrected completely by the Congress, but an amendment by Senator Percy would strengthen the legislation. "I believe that national leaders around the world will look upon the success or failure of Senator Percy's amendment as a measure of American will and reliability," Tower stated. Tower concluded that the Congress must also "force the Administration to take a firm stand protecting Taiwan in international monetary and financial institutions and facilitating trade and investment between the U.S. and Taiwan."

The Lonely Heart

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek reflects on the TV networks this week.

Dear editor:

Although all three TV networks are making huge profits, nonetheless I understand there is bitter rivalry among them to see who can be Number One. By Number One they don't mean the best; they mean the one with the biggest audience. If ABC attracts 35 million viewers at 8:30 tonight, CBS 31 million and NBC 29 million, ABC goats and the other two sulk. If I had a business that paid me at the rate of $250,000 a minute I'd find it hard to sulk because somebody else was making $275,000. If I'd put my mind to it I could have taken a full minute, or $250,000 worth, but there's far too much inflationary gouging going on in the world today and I'll settle for a reasonable $125,000. Where do I send the bill?

To cut out the squabbling and bitter competition among the three networks I've drawn up some new categories that will enable each to share equally in the ratings. You can mark the following ballot and mail it to the network of your choice:

- No. 1 in trash. (ABC) (CBS) (NBC)
- No. 1 in awful commercials. (ABC) (CBS) (NBC)
- No. 1 in lost pictures due to technical difficulties. (ABC) (CBS) (NBC)
- No. 1 in violence. (ABC) (CBS) (NBC)
- No. 1 in one sided news reporting. (ABC) (CBS) (NBC)
- No. 1 in silly comedies. (ABC) (CBS) (NBC)

You will notice I've listed six categories. There is a possibility each network could receive two first-place votes, or all could receive six votes apiece. In either case each could claim a tie for first.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Cotton Council Favors All-Risk Crop Insurance

The National Cotton Council today spoke out in favor of an all-risk federal crop insurance program for cotton, wheat, feed grains, and rice.

Herman Propst, chairman of the Council's Producer Steering Committee, urged a Senate Agriculture subcommittee to enact a crop insurance program that is "economically feasible, affordable and workable."

"Until such a program can be enacted, the Council supports the continuation of the federally funded disaster program," he said.

Among features desirable in a crop insurance program, Propst advocated: (1) insurance based on individual farm yields and area production costs, (2) funding by the Commodity Credit Corporation, (3) selling and servicing by both ASCS offices and private agents, and (4) re-insurance of private all-risk insurance by government, so that private companies can offer the same coverage at the same price as government.

The Anson, Tex., producer commended the committee and the Department of Agriculture for their efforts to establish adequate protection for farmers against the uncontrollable risks they face.

"We believe you are moving in the right direction," he said.

Fungicides Prevent Seedling Diseases

Each year, some 360,000 bales of cotton are lost because of seedling disease across the Cotton Belt. Research which may save these lost bales is being conducted here by a plant pathologist with USDA - Science and Education Administration (SEA). The work, to give cotton seedlings the best chance to produce a high quality crop, is being done by Dr. Earl B. Minton, in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. It is being conducted at the Texas A* University Agricultural Research and Extension Center north of the Lubbock airport. "Getting a uniform stand of vigorous cotton seedlings is critical in producing a profitable cotton crop," Dr. Minton said. "Healthy plants are more productive than diseased plants because they can better utilize soil nutrients and moisture." Vigorous cotton seedlings may produce more bolls and mature the crop before the onset of adverse weather, he added. "For the best possible cotton crop," the plant pathologist said, "the highest quality seed available should be planted." However, seed quality is often not as good as desired. The best alternative is to plant seed properly treated with fungicide, Minton added. "The ideal treatment has not yet been developed," Minton said, "but progress is continuing to be made." Laboratory and greenhouse tests being conducted show that seed treated with fungicide can partially compensate for reduced seed quality, he reported. Seed with mechanically damaged coats, when treated with fungicide, attains greater increases in seedling emergence and seedling survival than untreated seed with intact coats. "However," he cautioned, "intact seed treated with fungicide should be planted since fungicides will not completely compensate for damaged seed." Seed dressing also reduces the seed rate for planting because it increases seedling emergence and survival. "This saving in planting seed has more than paid the cost of seed dressing in many instances," he said. "Until about 15 years ago," Minton said, "only seed protectant fungicides were available." Since the development of systemic fungicides, protection has been provided to both the seed and seedling, he added. "During the last eight years efforts have been under way to improve formulations of seed dressings," the USDA - SEA scientist said. Various flowable and suspension materials have been found to work better than the wettable powder formulations, he said. "There is no broad-spectrum fungicide that will control all the causes of seedling disease," Minton said. A combination treatment may offer better control, but it is more costly than a single treatment fungicide, he said. "Even though the cost of a combination treatment would be about $1 per acre," Minton said, "the cost is still cheap compared to the cost of replanting a cotton crop destroyed by seedling disease."

Bumper Fruit Crop In Prospect

Prospects for a good Texas fruit crop appear excellent for the 1979 season, says a horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Weather conditions for deciduous fruit trees have been good," points out Dr. Thomas S. Handwerker. "The long, cool winter has allowed trees to accumulate enough chilling units to break rest and warm spring temperatures have stimulated growth. Bloom in fruit trees usually develops about three weeks earlier in the southern part of Texas and progresses north. Warm temperatures across the state have compressed this normal pattern of bloom development and will result in a more uniform bloom period." Handwerker gives the following regional report on the Texas fruit crop based on information from county and area Extension staff.

--Southern Texas: Peach trees are past full bloom. Charles Gasch, Frio County agent, reports that commercial peach growers will begin to apply the "petal-fall" spray this week. Pear trees are past full bloom and are beginning to leaf out. Buds on pecan trees are just beginning to grow. --Central Texas: Most peach trees are in the pink bud stage although Herman Collier, Limestone County agent, notes some early varieties in bloom. Commercial peach growers are finishing the "pink bud" spray, but heavy rains are interfering with vehicle traffic in some orchards. Jack Smith, Gillespie County farm demonstration assistant, reports his early peaches are past full bloom while summer varieties are in full bloom. He expects petal-fall around the first of next week. Apricot trees are in full bloom over the area while plum trees are in petal-fall. Pear trees are just beginning to bloom, but pecan trees are still dormant.

--Far West Texas: Early peach varieties have just begun to bloom, according to Kyle Smith, Gaines County agent. Apricot trees are in full bloom, but all other fruit trees appear to be dormant.

"Fruit trees in commercial orchards and home plantings are primed for a bumper crop this year," said Handwerker. "Now is the time to protect developing young fruit from insect and disease damage by timely spray applications. Secure a spray guide from your local county Extension office."

Alertness Can Reduce Car-Train Accidents

Sixty-three Texans died in car-train accidents in 1977.

A Texas Safety Association study shows that two-thirds of the 1977 fatalities occurred at crossings with automatic signalings and during daylight hours when the train could be seen for a considerable distance.

Fatalities and accidents continue to occur each year because drivers habitually ignore railroad crossing warning signs, signals and markings.

The Operation Lifesaver Program sponsored by the Railroad Section of the Texas Safety Association is working to reduce the number of injuries and deaths at rail-highway crossings.

"Car-train accidents can be lessened when drivers are alert to traffic conditions and obey traffic laws," said Jim Johnson, State Chairman of the Lifesaver Program. "All of the 14,700 grade crossings in Texas give warning to drivers by one or more of the lifesaver signs. The automatic gates, flashing lights and bells, x-shaped crossbuck, yellow and black advance warning sign or the standard, octagonal stop sign can save motorists lives, if they heed them," he added.

The Operation Lifesaver Program urges drivers to remember the following tips when approaching a railroad grade:

1. Don't stop on the track.
2. If you stall on the tracks, get away from the car immediately.
3. When the last car of the train passes, stay put until you see the tracks are clear in both directions.
4. Expect a train on any track at any time.
5. Never drive around the gate.
6. At night be sure you can stop in time. Don't overdrive your headlights. 7. Never race a train. 8. School buses, vehicles carrying paying passengers, trucks carrying flammables, explosives or other dangerous cargoes must stop at all crossings. Safe drivers have fewer accidents on the highway or at grade crossings. Be alert to conditions and cautions, and drive safely.

Senator Co-Sponsors Two New Legislations

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance this week co-sponsored two pieces of legislation which would, if passed, bring governmental agencies under tighter control of Congress.

One of the bills would provide for "congressional veto" over arbitrary rules and regulations by agencies; while the other proposed law would allow for Congressional oversight to make sure Federal programs are meeting their intended goals. The first bill is the "Administrative Rule Making Reform Act" which would provide a "congressional veto" and the second is the "Congressional Oversight Act of 1979" which would allow Congress to review government spending programs to make sure they are still needed.

"If we can pass these two bills we will return much of the control of government, and especially much of the bureaucracy, to the hands of the voters and their elected representatives," said Hance. "At present the people and Congress have little control over the many Federal agencies and the many unneeded rules and regulations they make up." "The fact is that vastly more rules and regulations which have the same effect as laws, are made by the decree of unelected bureaucracy than by the members of Congress," said Hance. "An administrative rule, such as one by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, in effect, a law. It has the same force and effect as a law and usually carries with it an enforcement clause if violated. The bill I am co-sponsoring will give the public, through their elected representatives, an input into and a control over these rules which govern their lives. The bill will help cut down on bureaucratic red tape and reduce the regulatory outpouring from Federal agencies.

The procedures set forth in the bill provide that when a rule or regulation is adopted by a Federal agency, it will be referred to Congress for 60 days before it becomes law. During this 60 day period, Congress would have the power to reject the regulation. "The laws in this country should be made through the elected representatives of the people," said Hance. "At present, too many are made through the use of rules and regulations by the unelected, faceless bureaucracy of Federal agencies over which the people have absolutely no control. This has resulted in a citizenry that is becoming increasingly cynical, frustrated and angry with their government. If we just look at the number of Federal agencies which have adopted rules and regulations in the past few years, then it becomes very clear who is running our lives, our schools, and our local businesses. It is the unelected bureaucracy and not the elected representative. This is what we must change."

"A Congressional veto bill such as this would have a significant effect," said Hance. "It would make the administrative agencies more responsive to the public and to Congressional intent. The agencies will know that Congress is looking over their shoulders and will stop them when they get off the track with some of their needless rules and regulations. With this in mind, we should begin to see more carefully drafted regulations as well as more attention being paid to the views of citizens during the comment period. The main tool of this bill of Congressional veto is simply that it exists, which will have the effect of making the government bureaucracy more sensitive to the will of the people."

The second bill co-sponsored by Hance would allow Congress to have continual supervision over Federal programs to make sure they are still useful. "This proposal means that all new spending programs must include a statement of its specific objectives and planned accomplishments," said Hance. "It would require agencies to justify themselves with performance reports and include the power of Congress for program termination and guidelines for renewal." The bill is titled "Legislative Oversight Act of 1979" and is designed to give Congress a means to reduce the size of government and ineffective programs.

"This gives Congress 'sunset' component which allows for regular, sensible approach to evaluating government spending programs," said Hance. "Too many times a government program will be 'out of control' before Congress steps in. This legislator would let Congress look at the government program

'up front' to make sure tax dollars do not go for waste, out-dated, and sometimes duplicated programs which have been routinely renewed in the past."

"Inflation is stealing at least 9 percent out of the consumers' pocket every year, and Congress needs to take action to crack down on unnecessary uncontrollable spending and regulation."

A Letter From Daddy

Her father has sent a letter and a picture, too, to show his family what he's doing while they are apart. It makes them feel close and it comforts them.

Our Heavenly Father has written us a love letter and given us a picture of what He is doing for us while we're apart. Both are contained in the words of the Bible. In Jeremiah 31:3 He says, "I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving kindness I have drawn thee."

And Our Lord tells us in John 14:2, 3, "In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself: that where I am, there ye may be also."

We invite you to attend church this week. You'll receive a blessing from having done so.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny: the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

SMILES

So Wrong
"My wife talks to herself."
"So does mine, but she doesn't realize it. She thinks I'm listening."
And Not a "sole" Around?
"Do you know what one little toe said to the other little toe?"
"Don't look now, but I think we are being followed by a couple of heels!"
No Use Whatever
If at first you don't succeed Try and try again. Then quit. There's no use being bull-headed about it.
