7-year search fails to turn up mystery skyjacker

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Joseph O'Connell believes phantom skyjacker "D.B. Cooper," the mysterious shadow for whom he and more than 100 other FBI agents have fruitlessly searched since 1971, has been dead all along.

"It is my personal opinion that he (Cooper) is dead," said O'Connell, who led much of the extensive FBI search for the man who parachuted in November 1971 from a jetliner over southern Washington with a $200,000 cash ransom.

There has been absolutely no trace of the man called D.B. Cooper or the money since the day in late November 1971 when an Anglo male bought a ticket from Northwest Airlines using that name, added O'Connell, now the retiring special agent in charge of the San Antonio FBI office.

"Usually, the longer a case such as this goes without being solved, the more confident the perpetrator gets and he surfaces. There's just no trace of the man, period," continued O'Connell.

"He just vanished into thin air. We have absolutely no idea who he even was."

The celebrated, bizarre case, the agent said, remains the FBI's only unsolved major skyjacking case. There is no statute of limitations on skyjacking, so the investigation continues. A "substantial" reward is still being offered.

The case is also somewhat maddening for O'Connell.

"It doesn't stick in my craw, but it does bring out my competitive spirit. I would certainly like to see the FBI solve it," said O'Connell, who took over the case in early 1972 and led the search through 1973.

The skyjacker, identified on the passenger list only as "D.B. Cooper," collected $200,000 in $100 bills and several parachutes as ransom for the crew of the United Airlines jet. The passengers had been released when the jet landed in Seattle.

A stewardess was the last person to see the man on Thanksgiving eve as he stood near an open ramp at the rear of the plane.

"He jumped out of a plane at 10,000 feet on a cold, raw night and he jumped in an area densely populated with Douglas fir and ponderosa pine," said O'Connell. "The terrain is also dotted with a lot of high-altitude glacier lakes, which are extremely deep and extremely cold."

"If he fell into a glacier lake, he would have died from the cold within a few minutes. It was late in November and snow was already on the ground," added O'Connell. The man could have also been snared in the trees, the agent said.

More than 100 agents combed the rugged terrain and chased down thousands of leads. The skyjacker, meanwhile, became somewhat of a folk hero.

"We searched as extensively as any manpower search ever conducted by the FBI," he said. "Agents searched every square foot of that terrain that is accessible. But there are literally hundreds of acres that are not accessible."

O'Connell, who retires from the FBI on July 7 after a 29-year career, thinks the case will be solved.

"There's no doubt in my mind that someday, somehow, the case will be solved," he said.

Sadat recalls ambassador for remarks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt's ambassador to Portugal has been fired and ordered home after publicly accusing President Anwar Sadat of destroying democracy in Egypt, letting the armed forces run down and pursuing a peace policy that has made Israel "more intransigent than ever."

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel fired Ambassador Saad el Shazli and ordered him home "immediately" because he "gravely violated his duties."

The agency said Shazli, 56, would be tried according to "the diplomatic laws" when he returned to Cairo.

The ambassador said in Lisbon today he was preparing to leave Portugal but would go to an Arab country other than Egypt unless Sadat guaranteed his personal freedom. He said he didn't think the guarantee would be granted.

"Under the Sadat regime, there would be jail, whether there was a trial or not," he said.

The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram launched a campaign of vilifi-cation against Shazli, who was military chief of staff during the 1973 war with Israel. It accused him of collaborating with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, Sadat's arch foe in the Arab world, and said Sadat replaced him in 1973 because he failed to prevent Israeli troops crossing the Suez Canal.

Shazli made his condemnation of Egypt's president in a three-page, handwritten letter delivered to news agencies in Lisbon Monday and in an interview with the Portuguese news agency ANOP.

"Under the ambiguous phrases of national unity and social peace, Sadat is driving now all his political opponents to the prison," he wrote.

He said Sadat's "autocratic regime" is hiding "behind a facade of powerless democratic institutions."

"I say what millions of Egyptians would like to say but cannot," he told the news agency. "The wrong that Sadat has done in the past three or four years is irreparable. His foreign policy leads to nothing. ... Above all,

Senate Ethics Committee report released Monday says South Korean businessman Tongsun Park gave about $21,000 to eight senators and $850,000 to 30 House members. Mentioned in the report were, from left, former Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa; the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.; the late Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark.; Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and the late Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M. Related story on Page 2A. (AP Laser-photo)

Tower 'clean' as probe continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Adlai Stevenson says a Senate Ethics Committee investigating Korean businessman Tongsun Park and his dealings with senators has found "no impropriety" on the part of Republican Sen. John Tower.

During a news conference Monday the Illinois Democrat who chairs the committee went on to compliment Texas' senior senator for cooperating with the investigation.

The committee Monday released a 558-page transcript and copies of 137 exhibits compiled during the nine-month investigation into alleged influence peddling on the part of Park. Stevenson said the probe is continuing.

Stevenson, Sen. Harrison H. Schmitt, D-N.M., the committee vice chairman, and special counsel Victor H. Kramer would not speculate as to how many, if any, senators will be tainted in the committee's final report that, they said, will draw conclusions and "list names."

Noting that the testimony before the committee was given under oath, Stevenson said the transcripts had been turned over to the Justice Department for possible perjury violations.

Park and Tower differed sharply in their recollections of their dealing

The South Korean rice dealer repeatedly referred to Tower as a "close friend" or "dear friend" while Tower labeled Park merely a "social acquaintance."

"That's his perception of my relationship," countered Tower during a late-afternoon press conference following the Senate Ethics Committee press conference. "My relationship is that of a social acquaintance."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bob Krueger lost little time in trying to turn Sen. John Tower's association with South Korean businessman Tongsun Park into a political bonanza.

Krueger, the New Braunfels Democrat, is trying to unseat Texas' senior senator in the November general election.

After the Senate Ethics Committee released the transcript of executive session hearings involving 15 persons — including Park, Tower and four other Senators — Krueger berated Tower for "repeated contacts with a foreign influence peddler."

Park did, however, sponsor Tower's membership in the Georgetown Club, when the Texas Republican first came to Washington. "But I paid the initiation fees and all my own bills," Tower said, adding that he was no longer a member "for financial reasons." When asked why he joined the club, Tower replied that it was "free of noise...and has the best food in Washington, or did."

Tower refused to trade verbal blows with Krueger. When asked late Monday afternoon how he would respond to criticism from the Krueger camp, Tower said, "That's petty stuff...just campaign flak. I'm not going to get involved with it."

Krueger, however, was quick to call attention to the "tremendous disparity" in Tower's testimony before the committee and his previous public statements.

"The most striking thing to me is that Tongsun Park considered John Tower one of the family," began Krueger. "And a year ago, John Tower (told reporters) he had met

During closed-door hearings on March 15, Park said he had a part in arranging two separate meetings — in 1962 and again in 1967 — between Tower and the director of the Korean CIA.

Tower said he could not recall any such meeting in 1962 and said the 1967 meeting was arranged by "either the U.S. Embassy or the U.S. military" during his tour of South Korea.

Tongsun Park only once. He told the committee he had met Park on at least seven occasions.

"He is either abandoning his friends when they're in trouble or he has a selective memory."

Tower said Monday that he does not feel the Senate hearings will dampen his chances for a third term, "because the committee's final report is due in August" and the matter will not be an issue in November.

"I'm surprised he didn't say something in December," countered Krueger. "His record for accuracy on this matter hasn't been a very good one thus far."

There's nothing like a drink of decent water

Roustin' About just made a refreshing rediscovery the other day: water.

It's got an unbeatable taste. Water does. Not some of this tap liquid that tastes like a chemist's rejected concoction filtered through sand, dirt and sludge. The description is somewhat of an exaggeration, as the water men will note. But, grimace as you drink, "cause the saline and chlorine taste does come through.

There's a blandness there with each swallow.

This rediscovery of water came via the bottled variety, which is still a cry and a half from unpolluted rainwater. But it nevertheless has a wholesomeness about it. And for the first time in who-knows-when, Roustin' About actually drank a couple of glasses of water before coffee early in the morning.

Caution: There's no intent here to "palm off" or tout any bottled, distilled or specially filtered water.

Simply, it's a pleasant, quietly exhilarating taste to drink old-fashioned water.

It's the taste of barrelled rainwater freshly fallen from the roof gutter. It's the taste of that increasingly rare clear spring water unmarked by civilization.

It's the taste of ages-old well water that tastes as if it were made yesterday.

It's the good taste of cool cistern water brought up by the ol' bucket and dipped into with the family dipper.

Water. It can be so refreshing to taste by itself.

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

Of course (and naturally), it's the base of the myriad of highly-touted drinks and refreshments. And, in its relatively "pure" state, it's got to be the best drink yet. It's got technology beat all to heck.

Krueger lambasts Tower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bob Krueger lost little time in trying to turn Sen. John Tower's association with South Korean businessman Tongsun Park into a political bonanza.

Krueger, the New Braunfels Democrat, is trying to unseat Texas' senior senator in the November general election.

Drawing of suspect in Andrews killing secured

ANDREWS — Andrews County Sheriff Wayne Farmer is returning from Silverthorne, Colo., with a composite drawing of the likeness of a man who on May 22 used an apparent alias to sell the stolen pickup truck of an Andrews man slain here a few days earlier.

Officials in Silverthorne, just west of Denver, Saturday afternoon learned that the pickup sold to a used-car dealer, who also operates a truck stop at Silverthorne, belonged to Richard V. Warren Jr. Warren was found shot to death May 23 about 15 miles west of Andrews.

Warren, a 34-year-old truck driver, reportedly had moved from Arkansas to Andrews shortly before he was killed.

Farmer was dispatched to Silverthorne Saturday, and is expected to return to Andrews today or Wednesday with the drawing, Chief Deputy Sheriff Roger Andrews said today.

Andrews said a man who identified himself as Glenn F. Brooks of Salt Lake City, Utah, sold Warren's pickup to the truck stop operator for an agreed price of $300. He said the man calling himself Brooks told the truck stop operator he needed money from the sale to buy a bus ticket. The operator paid the man $150 and was to mail the man the balance upon receipt of the title to the pickup, Andrews said.

Colorado State Police discovered the pickup after the truck stop operator had tried to locate the vehicle's title. Andrews said the Salt Lake City address given to the Silverthorne car-buyer proved fictitious.

He said the Colorado Bureau of Investigation made the composite drawing and is working with the Andrews County sheriff's office on the case. He said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has declined to enter the investigation.

Andrews said officials are unable to determine if "Brooks" actually boarded a bus at Silverthorne. "We can't show he got on the bus."

And since the man sold the pickup a day before Warren's body was found, "He got a headstart on us." The pickup has been checked for fingerprints and other evidence and is being returned to Warren's family in Arkansas.

Andrews said the composite drawing of the suspect will be disseminated to the news media for publication.

The man has been described as between 35 and 40, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, stockily built and wearing sideburns. He has curly, dark brown hair, officials said.

Andrews County Sheriff Bud Gregory said the man reportedly said he was from the Northeast and had a job waiting for him at Salt Lake City.

The pickup, he said, bore Arkansas license tags but different ones than belonged to Warren.

DEAR ABBY

Don't scratch poison oak, yet

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Can a person get poison oak through his clothes? My boyfriend got the most terrible case you ever saw. (I don't even want to mention where he got it the worst.) Answer right away, Abby, because if he couldn't have gotten it through his pants, it is all over between him and me. Thank you.—MISSY

DEAR MISSY: My medical experts tell me it's not easy to get poison oak through one's clothing, but it's possible. Don't scratch him off your list. DEAR ABBY: I am married and have two small children. I also have a loving and devoted husband. What more could a wife want, right? Well, for the last year I have had a secret desire for another man. I never dreamed that such thoughts would ever enter my head, and my husband would die if he knew it.

The other man doesn't know how I feel about him. I see him often (he's a butcher at the supermarket where I trade), and the thrill I get out of just looking at him makes me ashamed. I know he's married and has a family, so nothing could ever come of this, but I can't help how I feel. The Good Book says that to lust after someone is the same as committing adultery. I feel so ashamed and guilty. What's wrong with me?—LUSTING IN MY HEART

DEAR LUSTING: There is nothing "wrong" with you that isn't wrong with the rest of humanity. You are indulging in fantasy, which is normal—and harmless. The guilt feelings over your daydreams are doing you more harm than the daydreams. Don't dwell on them. Now, go scrub the kitchen floor and take a cold shower—you'll feel better.

DEAR ABBY: I have preschool children and a large home to care for, but I schedule my time so that everything gets done. When the children nap, I read, write letters, watch TV or just relax. However, lately nearly every afternoon a certain neighbor barges in on me. She helps herself to refreshments, then settles down for an endless outpouring of gossip, unasked for advice and a monologue of opinions on various subjects. She is tiresome, boring and a vicious gossip.

I would pretend not to be home, but she can see my car in the carport. At first I found her entertaining, but she comes so often, I've taken a dislike to her. What should I do? No names or location, please. She has a sharp tongue and would make a better friend than an enemy.—NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: People who open their doors to bores and tolerate their company day after day have only themselves to blame. By your failure to discourage her, you encourage her.

If I had to make a choice between having a vicious, gossipy, gutsy pest for a friend or an enemy, I'd opt for the latter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MEL TORME: I seldom read novels, but I picked up "Wynner"—written by you—and I couldn't put it down until I finished it. What a fascinating experience; I was truly sorry when it ended. You are a gifted writer as well as a talented musician, and your "Wynner" deserves to be a winner.

AT WIT'S END

Hal, the fourth cycle, replaced by new brand

By ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't a reader out there who hasn't at one time or another suffered the agonies of a consumer lemon.

Maybe it was a sewing machine that only worked in reverse, during a full moon, when oysters were in season.

Maybe it was a vacuum sweeper that picked up pennies, pins and small dogs, but unfortunately not dust.

Most likely, it was a car that was assembled on New Year's Day and had an early retirement wish.

I never understood why manufacturers could not bring themselves to admit, "Folks, you got a real bow-wow here, and we've tried to fix it, but we're going to have to replace it!"

Everyone has their own entry for the Lemon Olympics. For me, it was a washer that didn't. In three years, I had 28 service calls. I not only knew my repairman, Hal, by name, I knew the ages of his children and their names, how much his house payments ran, what his wife said to his mother when she put on a hard hat to clean the oven, and how he didn't know how much longer he could put off prostate surgery.

Basically, my washer had four cycle settings: WASH, SPIN, SOAK, and HAL. He was the most dependable. A week without Hal was like a week without clean clothes. He became such an intricate part of our lives, my husband came home one night and said, "I'm taking the first two weeks in August for our vacation, okay?" "Suit yourself!" I shrugged, "but remember Hal is taking the last two weeks of July and that means we'll be an entire month without a repairman."

When my husband and I discovered I was going to have another baby I dreaded telling Hal. He had told me once before that the washer was working to capacity and anything additional would send it over the edge.

Hal and our washer would have drifted through life with the Bombecks had it not been for a stroke of luck one day at the country fair sulky races. A horse which bore the trade name of our washer paid $48 to one. With the winnings, we bought a new washer of another brand.

It was hard saying goodbye to Hal. My husband and I visited him when he had surgery but after we rehashed the good old days of spin, wash, thermostat, pump and leaks, we ran out of conversation.

'Hamburger' cattle way to cut meat prices

By ROBERT P. STUDER Copley News Service

Faced with soaring meat prices, the average housewife usually picks longingly through the supply of steaks and roasts in her neighborhood supermarket — then opts for hamburger. If she feels particularly flush, she may raise her sights a notch to "ground round."

agricultural specialist is convinced that maybe the industry ought to face the facts. Why not, he asks, breed cattle, "tailor-made" for their value as hamburger or for their ability to produce extra cuts of the meat that most consumers prefer? "It can be done," says Wade C. Rollins, a professor of animal sciences at the University of California at Davis.

After 12 years of producing double-muscled beef animals having higher ratios of lean to fat than in normal types, he thinks it's time for the beef industry to take a look at a new option for producing animals with higher proportions of lean meat. Muscle tissue is the flesh the consumers eat.

Rollins points out, without most of the previous disadvantages, "Early consumer taste panels," he said, "show double-muscled meat brings a premium price in Europe, with veal from these kinds of animals from either the old or the considered highly desirable for the hotel and restaurant trade.

Such cross-bred animals, he said, might be economical to produce for such changing consumer tastes. He warned, however, that such animals should not be kept for breeding stock. Rollins said he found that the specially-bred animals gained weight more rapidly than normal beef cattle, displayed several "carcass advantages" and caused no more calving problems than did normal animals.

And in this country, he adds, market conditions, too, are changing. The consumer wants more hamburger these days, as well as other cuts in which the doubled-muscled animals excel. Rollins said he has found that crossing double-muscled bulls with normal cows produces offspring having many of the former's advantages

Indians walk for their survival

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Before steel mills, before coal barges, before deer hunting licenses, they were here.
 Now the American Indians are back.
 About 500 strong, their campfires flicker north of here in a woodland park as they pause on their "Longest Walk" from California to Washington, D.C.
 It is a walk against federal bills they say would strip them of land, minerals and wildlife and push them into oblivion with the Indians who named Pittsburgh's rivers — the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio.
 "This is a fight for the very survival of the red man," says Ernie Peters, designated chief of the group.
 "The genocide has failed. We are still here in live, human form, and we are marching across the country," added Peters, whose South Dakota Sioux Indian name is Ojon-jon-wakon or Holy Light.
 The Indians, from many tribes, carry a sacred pipe. It was used in a unity ceremony on Alcatraz Island before the walk began Feb. 11 in Sacramento.
 "We follow the pipe and we pray," said Sidney Bearshield, 14, from the Rosebud reservation in South Dakota.
 When a blizzard hit Donner Pass in the Sierra Nevada Mountains of California, young runners carried the pipe relay-style while the others traveled in cars and trucks. It snowed in the Colorado Rockies. Kansas tornadoes sent them into armories several nights.
 "But nothing can stop us," said Peters.
 The aim of it all is to attract public attention. The leaders have mixed feelings about how that has gone.
 "Some of the media kind of joke about the situation. We see headlines like, 'Indians on the Warpath' or 'Indians Carry Warclubs to Washington,'" said Clyde Bellecourt, one of the walk leaders.
 "There are no angry Indians here. Nobody is carrying warclubs or tomahawks," said Bellecourt, who grew up on the White Earth Chippewa reservation in Minnesota.
 The Indians arrived in Indianapolis just prior to the 500 auto race. Belle-court said there were "rumors" they would try to disrupt the event.

 "These people have been sober, no alcohol, no drugs, no guns, and I certainly wouldn't march them in front of a bunch of drunks to be called names at the Indianapolis 500," he said.
 Through the trip, the Indians have drawn spectators to their camp, which has a few teepees but mostly regular tents. Some guests bring food, clothes and money. They also bring cameras and questions.
 "Some ask if we still wear breechcloths, but we understand," said Bellecourt.
 Most of the Indians wear jeans, tennis shoes or work shoes, and some wear "Longest Walk" T-shirts.
 Yet they cling to many tribal ways, and that is the key to the walk.
 They say their way of life is threatened by 11 pieces of federal legislation that would strip them of land, mineral and wildlife claims they hold under treaties.
 In the Pacific Northwest, they battle fishing firms over steelhead trout. In Montana, it is coal-stripping on the Northern Cheyenne reservation. In South Dakota, it is uranium rights. In Maine, Indians have laid a huge claim to timber-rich land.
 To the Indians, surrender of the land and rights would bring an end to tribal life.
 "The sponsors of these bills say they want to help the Indians modernize," said Jose Barreiro, spokesman at the "Longest Walk" office in Washington, D.C.
 "But you will find a substantial number of Indian people who want to live the Indian way. They have a very basic belief that they belong to the land; the land does not belong to them."
 A century ago, the Indians were driven to destitute areas, land people couldn't use. Now, with the thrust of our energy development, these lands become valuable.
 The walkers, to arrive in Washington July 15, paused at Deer Lake Park, a county-run facility where the Indians are staying at no cost.
 They spent part of last week at a private campground in Wheeling, W.Va. That stay ended when the campground manager brandished a gun in a dispute with Peters.

 The manager claimed the Indians disrupted and damaged the camp.
 The Indians said he was miffed because he had wanted to charge admission to see the Indians.

 Peters said he had felt no fear in the face of the pistol.
 "A gun would only kill me," he said. "The walk would continue. Nothing can stop the walk."

Senate leaders trying to stop labor filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders of a month-long filibuster against proposed labor law revisions are trying to pressure their opponents into throwing in the towel if they fail in a record-tying sixth attempt to cut off debate.
 The vote on whether to invoke debate-limiting cloture was originally scheduled for today but was pushed back until Thursday under a move by Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, a supporter of the bill.
 Byrd won approval late Monday of a two-day Senate recess after opponents of the legislation refused to agree to voluntarily postponing the anti-filibuster vote.
 He said the delay was needed to accommodate senators who would be out of town or unable for other reasons to vote today.
 Filibuster leaders had expressed confidence they would win a vote today. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, predicted that a vote taken today would fall by the same two-vote margin that two anti-filibuster votes lost last

Ambassador speaks at Lufkin Chamber banquet

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — The Carter administration has already taken a very strong stand in Africa in the form of its stand on human rights and its criticism of countries who violate those rights, Andrew Young said here Monday night.

And, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations said, there's no chance the United States will be sending troops to Africa "at this time or any other time."

Young made the statements at a press conference in Lufkin before addressing the Angelina County Citizens Chamber of Commerce banquet, an annual Juneteenth celebration of the predominantly black organization.

The best supporters of our foreign policy initiative are the Africans themselves, Young said, adding that the United States has a dominant influence over 47 of 49 states on that continent. He said Ethiopia and Angola are the lone holdouts.

Young also said Africa has and will continue to turn to the United States for development, citing the need for American capital as the force behind the countries' actions.

President Carter's human rights stand is an attempt at "trying to move beyond detente" initiated before he took office to "get some sort of agreement about what (policy) is acceptable all over the world."

On the issue of Cuban affairs in Africa, Young said he fears the Cuban people consider themselves "an Afro-Latin republic" and that the country will be involved in Africa "for some time."

He said the United States is not as concerned with Cuba's involvement in Africa as it is with the country's method of involvement.

On the issue of the Panama Canal, Young said the recent treaty has been termed a "tremendous victory" for the United States and he said anyone who has ever been to the Canal Zone will see it as such.

He said, "500-thousand troops couldn't defend the canal" and the defense must be a joint effort of the U.S. and the Panamanian governments.

The United States is not really giving up anything in Panama, he said, because that country needs continued American assistance which is sure to last until after the canal is turned over in 22 years.

After those 22 years, development and democratization will be taking place in that country with an economic system very much influenced by U.S. banks, the ambassador predicted.

Young also touched on the issue of Carter's image, which he termed "one of confusion."

"That is because he had to deal with so many issues simultaneously after taking office," Young said. "But there is a growing confidence between the administration and Congress — many things that are going on now are going to work."

He said the Carter administration human rights campaign is not losing momentum but is gaining, evidenced by the number of countries moving toward democracy.

He also said a SALT treaty is in the American interest.

Board official denies story that doctors lead drug trade

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The secretary of the State Board of Medical Examiners has denied that clubbiness among doctors keeps the board from punishing those who prescribe pills for drug abusers.

Dr. Bryan Spires, chief operating officer of the board, sharply differed with police officers who said a code of brotherhood among doctors makes the board ineffective.

The officers were quoted by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in a Sunday story contending that as many as 300 Texas doctors pump millions of dollars in amphetamines into the illegal drug market annually.

"I believe from the bottom of my heart that this business of a code of brotherhood... is just not true. Physicians, by and large, are more interested in getting rid of the rotten apples than anyone I know of. A big problem is keeping board members from crawling over the board table and physically assaulting some of the physicians who have appeared (for disciplinary hearings)," Spires told a news conference Monday.

The Star-Telegram said 10 doctors account for a third of the illicit pills obtained by Fort Worth drug abusers.

It quoted authorities as saying doctor-written prescriptions provide a third of the illicit pills obtained in San Antonio, half in Houston and a fourth in Dallas.

Spires said Fort Worth police have not told the board the names of the 10 doctors who allegedly are major pill suppliers to the city's illicit drug market.

He said nine of 13 licenses cancelled by the board since Sept. 1, 1976, involved illegal prescription of drugs.

In addition, he said, the board curtailed the authority of 23 doctors to prescribe "controlled substances" — drugs that are subject to abuse.

Doctors can be prosecuted under federal, but not state, law for non-therapeutic prescribing of controlled substances.

Spires said the board supports legislation giving Texas authorities the right to prosecute a doctor for illicit prescribing.

Sam Stone, board attorney, said that criminal prosecution has been taken or is pending in federal court against the doctors whose licenses were revoked for non-therapeutic prescriptions.

He said 753 doctors were under investigation by the board in the 1976-77 fiscal year.

There are more than 19,000 licensed physicians in Texas.

"A fair inference could be drawn that any large city in Texas has several physicians under investigation at any given time," Stone said.

John Sortore, the board's chief investigator, said about a third of the investigations involve non-therapeutic prescribing and this is the largest single source of complaints.

Economist opposes levying of electric 'customer charge'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A basic "customer charge" on an electricity bill "is like charging an entrance fee to a grocery store," says an economist who proposes reducing or eliminating such charges.

Frederick Wells told the Public Utility Commission on Monday that the charge that is levied whether or not the customer uses electricity discriminates against the poor, who "are generally low-volume users."

Other witnesses testified that commercial and industrial users of electricity already are subsidizing residential customers by paying higher rates.

The commission staff is considering different ways of charging for electricity in a hearing that will end June 28, with the general public scheduled to testify the final three days.

"Utilities love customer charges" because they provide short-term financial stability, said Wells, a Bethesda, Md., resident representing Texas ACORN — Association for Community Organizations of Reform Now.

Wells was asked if the poor might not use more electricity if their rates were lowered, and he replied, "I find it very difficult to imagine."

He was asked what he thought about the distribution of energy stamps to the poor to offset rising power costs, and he replied: "I support it in theory all right, except it tends to set class against class with the working poor paying for the unemployed. Also, it has all sorts of administrative problems. Generally, I'm not very interested in that."

Washington economists Charles King and John Rettenmayer said each class of electricity customer should pay its own way.

"There is a nationwide propensity to overcharge commercial and industrial users, especially the commercial class, and to undercharge the residential class," said King, representing the Texas Retail Association.

"One can write it off to politics, and that is the predominant cause," said King.

King said lifeline rates instituted in California have been "something of a disaster" in that "massive subsidies" have been obtained by raising non-residential costs.

Lifeline rates are supposed to provide at low cost the minimum amount of electricity necessary to maintain a modest quality of life. One problem in California, King said, is that vacation homes of wealthier residents also benefit from lifeline rates.

"Each class should pay its own way," said Rettenmayer of the General Services Administration.

Sandoval agrees to testify

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Elliseo Sandoval — who has previously balked at testifying about alleged misuse of federal Manpower funds — has agreed to testify against men he allegedly conspired with.

Assistant U.S. attorney John Smith said here Monday that Sandoval, the indicted director of an Edinburg anti-poverty agency, will aid prosecutors in their agreement to drop all but two federal charges against him.

Sandoval reportedly pleaded guilty to the two remaining charges.

"We've reached an agreement in principle," Smith said.

Sandoval, who parlayed federal grants and a smooth demeanor to make the Associated City County Economic Development Corp. an influential agency, was named May 9 in multiple federal indictments here.

Eight indictments charged he misused public funds. Five indictments named him and business partner Nick Ramirez, former director of the Hidalgo County

Manpower program — on charges of conspiring to steal federal funds and obtain improper loans.

Another indictment named Sandoval and Ramirez on charges that they conspired to funnel federal funds into their private business. That true bill also named Fernando Salinas, director of the Greater South Texas Economic Program Inc. of Jim Hogg County; A.M. Fernandez, director of South Texas Enterprises of Jim Hogg County; and Ed Romero, former ACEDC auditor.

Sandoval repeatedly pleaded his Fifth Amendment right against self incrimination at courts of inquiry looking into the alleged Manpower fund misuse.

At the court of inquiry here he answered only a few basic questions before invoking his constitutional right.

The Edinburg inquiry he testified at greater length but refused to answer questions about his private business dealings.

A Cameron County grand jury later named Sandoval in several state indictments. In Edinburg, charges were filed against him but no indictments have been returned.

Smith said the agreement was proposed by Sandoval's attorney. The lawyer had contacted U.S. Attorney Tony Canales.

"One Sunday evening a few weeks ago, the lawyer and Mr. Canales met in Houston for several hours," Smith said.

The federal prosecutor said he did not know if similar deals will be made with any of the other defendants. He also said it will be up to state prosecutors to decide if they want to drop state charges against Sandoval in exchange for his testimony in those cases.

GOP chooses new treasurer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The New state treasurer of the Texas Republican party is W. St. John Garwood, retired associate justice of the Texas Supreme Court and prominent Texas jurist.

State GOP Chairman Ray Barnhart said Monday that Garwood, 81, would replace Donald Flanagan, Austin, who resigned recently.

Garwood was an associate justice of the state supreme court from 1948 to 1958. He is presently affiliated with the Austin law firm of Graves, Dougherty, Heaton, Moody and Garwood.

Couple jailed in robbery

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring couple was in jail today in connection with a reported armed robbery about 1 a.m. today at a convenience store here, according to a spokesman with the Big Spring Police Department.

The clerk at a 7-Eleven store located on the east side of town told police a man came into the store, held a shiny object against her side and said "This is a stickup."

She said the man led her to the cash register and forced her to give him the money inside it. The man then left, she told officials.

An officer reported he had seen a car leaving the store about that time, and when the call came in about the incident, he stopped the car. The officer said he found $108 inside the car. The occupants, a man and a woman, were arrested by the officer.

Queens and jacks just bridge proverb

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

"The queen lurks behind the jack," says the old bridge proverb. There may be something in this, but don't rely on it if you have anything more solid to go by. Proverbs, like a bridge player's promises, were made to be broken.

Declarer decided to play East for the queen of diamonds, then to try the hearts, and finally to play West for the queen of spades. The idea was to play each queen to be at the left of the jack of her suit.

It was all very interesting, but you can see where it landed South: minus 100 instead of plus 1640. It's a slow way to make a fortune.

THEORY SOUNDS GOOD

The theory of locating a missing queen sounds good. If you finesse with a jack, losing to the queen, a careless shuffle may leave those two cards in the same position in the deck. Then the queen will be dealt to the left of the jack the next time the same deck is used. But this is clutching at straws when a boat is usually available.

The right way to play today's hand is to guess nothing. Run the clubs and the three top hearts. Then give West his heart trick. He must return a spade or a diamond, giving you a free finesse. You can't lose, no matter where the queens are lurking.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player doubles. You hold: S-Q862; H-64; D-854; C-10753. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. The next player may bid. If not, your partner may take himself out. This combination chance is better than your chance to find a better spot with your hopeless hand and lack of long suits.

Mondale unveils 'Urbank' plans for city mayors

ATLANTA (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale announced a $2 billion National Development Bank program today to encourage business investment in nearly 12,000 American communities large and small.

The "Urbank," the keystone to President Carter's national urban policy, is the last major piece of legislation in the package. Mondale said it was being submitted to Congress today.

"The development bank is crucial to our joint efforts to bring jobs and private investment to cities, counties and communities," Mondale told the annual convention of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Mondale said 1,900 large communities throughout the country will be eligible for assistance automatically under the program and 10,000 smaller communities will be eligible "if they meet the test of need, and work together to create an economic and employment base large enough to support the bank's projects."

The vice president said the administration hopes the program will bring at least $16 billion in private investment to decaying communities at a cost of less than $2 billion in federal outlays.

The Urbank will provide federal incentives in the form of loan guarantees, interest rate subsidies and grants to encourage businesses to develop in urban areas.

A key to the program is its inclusion of small as well as large cities.

"The bank can serve economic need of all areas of our country," Mondale said. "The bank can serve a big city like Atlanta or a rural Georgia county like Hancock. It could serve New York City and it could serve a pocket of poverty in a city like Houston."

Mondale said the program will be "carefully targeted to communities with the greatest need" and will rely on local officials "to identify projects and set priorities."

Mondale was a late substitute for President Carter at the conference. Other top administration officials were to conduct a briefing on the program.

On Monday, Sen. Edward Kennedy told the mayors that they are not to blame for a national "hemorrhage of revenue" that has infuriated voters.

"It isn't fair to blame our problems on the cities or their mayors," the Massachusetts Democrat said, echoing sentiments similar to those voiced by the mayors.

"In large part, the blame falls squarely on the short-sighted policies of the federal government," Kennedy told some 250 cheering mayors. "Now is the time that our federal policies have to change, and start paying more attention to the cities."

Surgery today to save fetus

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A 27-week-old fetus within the womb will die without a delicate blood transfusion. Its Rh positive blood is being destroyed by its mother's Rh negative blood.

In an operation today, doctors will try to make the fetus' blood compatible with its mother's by inserting a needle through the uterine wall to inject 50 to 100 cubic centimeters of "good blood" into the fetus, according to spokesmen at Norton-Childrens Hospital.

The mother, Katherine Shifflett, 22, of Jacksonville, Fla., was given blood tests and ultra-sound tests Monday to determine the exact location of the fetus.

Her unborn child would have only a 5 percent chance of survival if labor were induced and it were delivered now.

Dr. Ernest Ferrell, Mrs. Shifflett's Florida physician, said the transfusion must be done no later than today, and a second will be needed before labor can be induced in about four weeks.

A hospital spokesman said Monday that the operation takes only a few minutes. Doctors will know shortly after the operation whether it is a success, spokesmen said.

The fetus is threatened by conflict between Rh factors in its blood and Mrs. Shifflett's.

Doctors said Mrs. Shifflett's Rh negative blood is destroying red cells in the fetus' Rh positive blood. The Rh factor is determined by heredity. Rh positive blood contains antigens. Rh negative blood produces antibodies against the antigens, and that factor can be fatal in the case of an infant with an Rh negative mother.

Mrs. Shifflett and her husband, William, 26, arrived here Sunday with Ferrell, on a jet provided by Seaboard Coast Line Railroad.

The airplane and about $1,500 in donations to help pay for the operation were contributed in response to local news reports in Florida about the couple, who have no medical insurance. Doctors said the total cost of saving the baby could run as high as $40,000.

Dr. John Queenan, head of obstetrics at Norton-Childrens Hospital and chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Louisville, is donating his services for the operation.

Nameless hero makes rescue try

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A teen-ager risked his life, jumping in front of a runaway pickup truck to try to save an old woman. She died. And the courageous youth must remain anonymous because he is serving time as a juvenile offender and Alabama law forbids release of his name.

The boy is 17. He's 5-foot-7, a fit 140-pounder. He's a kid with a fresh, young face and a reputation for trouble, one who got involved with thieves and, at 14, began doing periodic stints at the Mobile County Youth Center.

He's a bright kid who couldn't stay in school. He's a kid who darts his soft-brown eyes away when he's on the spot and then, when he relaxes, lights those eyes up with a great, winning smile. He's a kid who likes basketball, pro star Julius Irving and comic books.

He's a kid who, forgetting early educational failings, sometimes dreams of a professional future — "maybe as a computer technician."

He's a kid who may have found his life anew when tragedy struck last Friday.

He was on a day outing with probation officers and several other young offenders. They had been to the beach at Gulf Shores and had a picnic lunch at Alabama Point. He had strolled over to a bridge where two women and a man were fishing.

In an instant he saw out of the corner of his eye a red pickup truck, rolling toward them down an incline. It had no driver. It was perhaps 20 feet away — then 10 feet — when he realized it was going to hit one of the women, who was sitting with her back to the truck. He acted.

"I didn't have time to think," he says now. "I just did it."

He moved in front of the truck. It struck the boy and the woman, pinning the woman to a bridge guard rail. She had no chance to move. He had put his hands on the truck but had no chance to stop it. One of his legs was momentarily trapped.

Other youths quickly ran to the scene, helped push the truck away and began treating the woman, 68-year-old Sara Sanders, for shock. She died later at a hospital.

Proving negligence unnecessary in some claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today that anyone who contracted a rare paralyzing disease after getting swine flu shots in 1976 will not have to prove negligence to collect federal compensation. The action clears a major stumbling block in nearly one-third of the 1,483 claims that have been brought against the government for $775 million by persons or their survivors who claim they suffered injuries during the mass inoculation campaign. Some 439 of these cases seeking $365 million in damages involve Guillain-Barre, a paralyzing disease that can be fatal. Some 535 of the estimated 45 million Americans who got swine flu shots contracted the disease, and 23 died, according to the U.S. Center for Disease Control.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who announced the action on negligence, said, "We cannot estimate precisely how much the federal government will ultimately pay out in compensation. We expect, however, that the amounts awarded will be only a fraction of the amounts claimed."

The Justice Department still must review the claims, Califano said, and the decision not to make victims prove negligence will not apply to any non-Guillain-Barre cases. "To receive federal compensation, Guillain-Barre claimants will not need to prove negligence by federal workers or others in the swine flu program as required by federal law and the law in many states," said the HEW secretary. "Instead, claimants in most cases need to show only that they in fact developed Guillain-Barre as a result of a swine flu vaccination and suffered the alleged damages." The swine flu epidemic never occurred. The administration of Gerald R. Ford mounted the inoculation drive after a soldier at Ft. Dix, N.J., died in February 1976 of a disease suspected to be swine flu. Swine flu swept the world in 1918-19 and killed 20 million persons.

Glenn would freeze postal rate for four years

Glenn would freeze postal rate for four years

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key senator said today he will introduce legislation freezing postal rates for private individuals at the current 15 cents per letter for four years. Sen. John H. Glenn, D-Ohio, chairman of a subcommittee that oversees the Postal Service, told reporters that his measure "would benefit consumers — most notably those on fixed incomes — and help maintain a higher volume of mail, which is needed to sustain the huge system for six-day-a-week delivery."

The Postal Service last year proposed that first-class rates for private individuals be held at 13 cents while increasing to 15 cents for businesses. However, the independent Postal Rate Commission rejected the proposed "citizen rate" and the 15-cent rate for all mailers went into effect last month. Postmaster General William F. Bolger has said that the next rate increase would be needed in about 2 1/2 years. Under Glenn's bill, to be introduced Thursday, Congress would authorize funds to cover the difference between the 15-cent rate for individuals and any higher rate imposed during the four years.

Other features of the bill would: — Extend the present $920 million annual public service subsidy for four years. Under current law, a gradual reduction in the subsidy is scheduled to begin in 1980. — Require more strict Postal Service accounting to better allocate costs among different types of mail. — Require development of a comprehensive research and development program in the Postal Service.

Glenn said hearings on the bill, co-sponsored by Sens. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., probably would begin Monday. Glenn termed his bill a transitional measure while Congress studies what mail services the public wants and how to finance them.

Earthquakes hit Greece, leave one dead, 13 hurt

SALONICA, Greece (AP) — A 70-year-old man died of a heart attack and 13 women were treated for injuries or shock from a series of earthquakes that hit northern Greece, officials say. Surrounding towns fleeing their homes in panic. About 10 buildings cracked. The quakes were an aftermath of a powerful quake that hit May 24 and measured 5.7 on the Richter scale, a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number on the scale means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

Four hurt in German shootout

Four hurt in German shootout

BERLIN (AP) — A West German diplomat and three pedestrians were wounded in a gunfight between East German police and a Russian soldier who crashed a van into the diplomat's car, authorities say.

East Germany described the incident Monday as a traffic accident involving a "mentally disturbed" Russian deserter who opened fire on police and pedestrians after crashing the van. But East Berliners who claimed they saw the shootout said two Soviet soldiers, apparently seeking to escape through Checkpoint

Charlie in the Berlin Wall, were involved. The East German news agency ADN did not mention the fate of the Russian soldier it reported "tried to extricate himself from investigation by use of a firearm." The gunfight broke out near the Soviet Union's embassy on Unter den Linden Boulevard after a chase in which witnesses claimed East German police forced the Russian van off the street. The van smashed into a tree at the corner of Friedrichstrasse, a street leading south to Checkpoint Charlie 10 short blocks away. Two Russian soldiers jumped out of the wreckage and began "shooting around," the witnesses said. Police returned the fire. Checkpoint Charlie is a main tourist crossing and is used by military patrols including Russians shuttling between both sectors of the divided city. American, British, French and Soviet patrols, subject to minimal checks by East German border guards, date back to the occupation of Berlin after World War II. They are usually carried out today in civilian vehicles with military markings. Escapes over the wall have become rare in recent years because of tightened security in East Germany. No accurate figures are available since not all attempts are reported. Two East German border guards last week escaped over different sections of the wall. Two East Berliners also escaped last week, after drugging a Belgian diplomat. They stole his credentials and drove his car through Checkpoint Charlie where diplomatic vehicles are subject to only cursory scrutiny.

Vance outlines African policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has decided to work with the Marxist government of Angola "in more normal ways," Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said today. In a speech to a Jaycees convention in Atlantic City, N.J., Vance said the administration has two goals: Reconcile the dispute between Angola and western-leaning Zaire; and achieve a peaceful settlement in South West Africa, or Namibia, which is under South Africa's control. Angola has served as the staging ground for incursions by Kalangan rebels into Zaire's Shaba province. It also supports guerrilla forces striking against Namibia. A government official, backgrounding Vance's speech for reporters in Washington, said the administration does not plan to establish diplomatic relations with Angola. However, the official, who barred use of his name, said there have been a number of exchanges between Washington and Luanda, the Angolan capital. These include a recent meeting in New York between Vance and the Angolan foreign minister and a visit to Luanda by Donald Easum, the U.S. ambassador to Nigeria. In the 1975 Angolan civil war, the United States backed two factions that eventually lost out to the Marxist group now in power. One of the losing factions, Unita, is still waging guerrilla warfare against the central government. According to U.S. estimates, some 20,000 Cuban troops remain in Angola, where they helped President Agostinho Neto take power. The official who briefed reporters in Washington said there would have to be a reduction in these troops before diplomatic relations could be considered. The idea of establishing ties is "way premature now," he said. In his speech, Vance said Angola and Zaire would have to respect their common border and not interfere in each other's internal affairs "if we are to avoid more Shaba incidents in the future." Without elaboration, Vance called on Zaire to permit "broader participation" in the country's political life. Otherwise, he said, "it will be difficult to achieve real stability."

The overall theme of Vance's speech was that the United States respects the independence of the African countries. The United States, France, Belgium and other western allies provide military and economic support to Zairian President Mobutu Sese Seko in his campaign to stay in power and to retain the mineral-rich Shaba province.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Bicycles and kids
Dear Dr. Solomon: This isn't exactly a medical problem, but my husband and I would like to find out about guidelines on safe bike riding so we can teach our two young children how to look out for themselves. Our little girl is six and our son is just eight. Something more than the usual "be careful and watch out for cars." The son of a friend of our was badly hurt the other day when he was hit by a car only a few blocks from his house. And we are quite concerned about our two youngsters now.—Mildred Y.
Dear Mildred: Bicycle safety is very much of a medical problem these days—in fact, the American Academy of Pediatrics recently put out a detailed statement on this subject. Their Committee on Accident and Poison Prevention said that efforts to train children in safe bike riding should be encouraged. And it offered some very good guidelines for parents. Here are a few of them:
—Never allow elementary-school children to ride at night. Bikes for older children must have legally required lighting and reflectors. Use flags for daytime—the kind that flutter from the top of a flexible vertical rod.
—Supervise the choice of a bicycle. Those with more than one speed can be a hazard for children—especially young children.
—Parents should inspect bicycles and see that they are in good working order until the child is old enough to take on this responsibility for himself.
—Riders must follow the rules prescribed for all motor vehicles.
—Skills that must be taught to children five years old or more include safe starting, the ability to ride in a straight line near the curb, rules about right of way and turning corners and rapid stopping.
—Don't let a child ride on roadways until he has mastered all the aspects of the bicycle and you have tested him out personally on the roadway he will travel.
—Encourage the use of bike routes—they are a major step in removing children from hazards.
—Support community-wide programs designed to promote safe use of bicycles.
The AAP committee said that three out of four bicycle accidents are caused by the carelessness of the rider, and half of all bicycle accidents occur between the ages of five and fourteen. One main cause of accidents is loss of control caused by bumps or holes in the road or the distraction of traffic or riding the wrong size bike. Mechanical failures usually result from poor maintenance or some change engineered by the child—not any structural defect of the bicycle.
Fatal accidents almost always involve a collision with a motor vehicle. As a rule, the driver is not at fault.
You can get material describing bicycle training from either of these two places: National Safety Council, 444 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611 or Bicycle Manufacturers Association of America, 1101 15th St., Washington, D.C. 20005.

Official requests tripled NCAA staff

DENVER (AP) — An official of the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, which had a bitter and controversial battle with the NCAA enforcement staff that spurred a congressional investigation, said Monday the association's enforcement efforts should be tripled.

"I may shock a few of you by saying this," said Bill Ireland, UNLV athletic director, "but I believe there is a crying need for beefed up enforcement on every level."

Ireland, his voice often rising with emotion, addressed a panel discussion on due process during the opening day of the convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

After one of the more highly publicized enforcement cases in history, UNLV was placed on a stiff two-year probation last August and stripped of six scholarships.

A House subcommittee investigating NCAA procedures has held several public sessions and the probe is scheduled to end this summer.

"Part of our problem was the stigma of Las Vegas itself," Ireland said. "The garishness of The Strip, the gambling and the negative image the town has in the minds of many people."

Ireland then, indeed, surprised most of the 100 or so athletic directors with his next remarks.

"The NCAA Infractions Committee is one of the most distinguished panels of men in the United States," he said. "If I were going on trial for my life, I would want the NCAA Infractions Committee to hear my case."

However, Ireland added: "We were a victim of the system itself. I have talked with UNLV athletes, alumni and boosters and I do not, in all honesty, gentlemen, believe we were guilty of the type of rules violations that should precipitate the type of penalty we received."

He indicated there was strong sentiment within the athletic community to "get Jerry Tarkanian." Tarkanian, the UNLV head basketball coach, was cited by the NCAA for numerous rules violations and the university was ordered to show cause why he should not be prohibited from coaching.

"I have actually been in elevators when the other people didn't know who I was and heard people say they hope the NCAA gets Tarkanian. I once heard an athletic director from a southern university say, 'I ran an NCAA investigator off my campus and told him not to come back 'til he puts Jerry Tarkanian in jail,'" Ireland said.

He said there was a great deal of conflicting testimony given to each side in the dispute.

One player, he said, "urged on by a sensational press out to get Jerry said he received $10,000 from Nevada-Las Vegas."

LPGA now has real superstar

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, the hottest item in professional golf in the last 33 years, is trailing sparks with her meteoric success this year.

And the entire Ladies Professional Golf Association is benefitting from this 21-year-old record shattering rookie, already the richest rookie player — male or female — to use a set of golf clubs.

Lopez, fresh off her fifth triumph in a row, a two-stroke victory Jane Blalock and Debbie Massey at Rochester's Locust Hill Country Club, leads the field for this week's LPGA event.

"It's given us a superstar, a real celebrity," said Betsy Rawls, a Hall of Famer and now the LPGA tournament director who is setting up this week's Lady Keystone Open.

"The women's tour had been growing by leaps and bounds without her. But she's really given us a boost. People come out just to see her. She's got a quality that attracts people. They like to watch her play," said Rawls, winner of 54 tournaments in her 25 years as a touring pro.

With Arnold Palmer-like flair, Lopez has won five straight tournaments, more than any other woman in the 28-year history of the LPGA. Only Byron Nelson, who won 11 straight events in 1945 on the men's tour, has won more in succession.

Lopez, who's been at par or better in 16 of her last 17 rounds, has won a total of seven tournaments and earned $153,336 since turning pro last July. That's $234 more than previous record holder Jerry Pate, who won two tournaments as a rookie on the men's tour in 1976.

By comparison, no other woman has won more than one LPGA event this year.

"I never thought one person could dominate the tour like that again because we have so many good players," said Rawls, who pocketed a personal high of $24,000 when she won 10 tournaments in 1959.

"It's phenomenal for a first year player. She's got everything going for her. If she doesn't win another tournament, she's had a spectacular year already," she added.

Lopez is gunning for her sixth straight win in the 54-hole tournament, which will be played on the par 72, 6,400-yard Hershey Country Club. Among the 76 competitors will be the venerable Mickey Wright, who has won a record 82 events and whose 13 wins in a single year is a mark within Lopez' reach.

The total purse is $50,000, with $7,500 going to the winner. Though the Lady Keystone has lacked the lure to pack in big crowds in the past, Lopez has turned it into a genuine attraction.

"She's very talented physically. She has a very sound golf swing. She's very secure and has great emotional composure. It's amazing for somebody that young. And she's very bright and has lots of drive," Rawls said.

"She's going to be around for a long time."

Dodgers regain pole position

By The Associated Press

Rick Nitz pitched a two-hitter Monday as San Antonio slammed El Paso 6-1 to move back on top of the Texas League's western division.

El Paso had taken the division lead Sunday after four straight wins over the Dodgers. The loss in the series' last game dropped the Diablos back to one-half game behind the leaders.

Each team has only six games left in the league's first season. San Antonio plays them at Amarillo while El Paso hosts Midland.

Mickey Hatcher had two hits and two RBI's for San Antonio.

Floyd Rayford was responsible for the Diablos' lone run with a homer. The losing pitcher was Ralph Botting.

In other games Monday, Tulsa split a double-header with Arkansas, taking the first game 7-4 and losing the nightcap 5-0, and Jackson edged Shreveport 5-4.

A 20-game hitting streak ended for Tulsa's Marty Scott in Monday's nightcap when Al Olmstead hurled a one-hit shutout. The only Tulsa hit was a single by shortstop Odie Davis in the second.

Kerry Keenan, 2-5, took the loss. The Travelers scored three of their runs in the first inning, taking advantage of four walks.

Tulsa catcher Joe Russell hit a solo homer in the second inning and third baseman Blair Stouffer added one in the fifth to help the Drillers' winning effort in the first game.

Leon Durham of Arkansas hit a home run in the sixth with one on.

Mike Griffin went the distance for Tulsa to take credit for the win. Dan O'Brien was tagged with the loss.

Shreveport lost a 3-1 lead in the fifth when Keith Bodie hit a two-run single. Jackson first baseman Keno Perry smashed a home run with nobody on in the sixth to put his team ahead for good.

Jeff Reardon went the distance for the win. Randy Tate was the loser.

"Thanks, boss!"

Almost three million Texans are grateful and happy that their companies provide Blue Cross and Blue Shield Insurance.

Why? Because they know it's the best group health insurance coverage... and the best group health insurance value. They know it offers a complete insurance package—not just health care coverage. They know that claims filing is easy, and that claims are paid promptly. And they know their familiar I.D. card is instantly recognized by doctors and hospitals everywhere.

Best of all, almost three million Texans know their companies think enough of them to provide the best health care insurance.

That's something they can be really thankful for. And their companies can feel really good about.

The old queen-maker paints, remembers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's been more than a decade since Jack Bailey last dabbed away tears from the eyes of one of the 5,000 problem-plagued housewives he proclaimed "Queen for a Day." But to hear him talk, the show he emceed for 20 years could have ended just yesterday.

Bailey, who now spends most of his time painting and making an occasional foray onto the lecture circuit, reminisced fondly about the daily program he nursed from its World War II radio days until its demise from national television in the mid-1960s.

"There was a certain enthusiasm," he said, almost wistfully. "By God, you could never tell what they would say next. They didn't know, so how could you know?"

Contestants on "Queen for a Day" vied for the high rating on an applause meter by regaling the audience with hard-luck stories and materialistic dreams.

"We were eternally accused of having the saddest show in all the world," Bailey complains in mock seriousness. He likes to remember the funny contestants — like the bride of three weeks who asked for a new mattress because hers was worn out.

"I didn't usually break up, but I did that day, and she got mad," Bailey recalls. "She said, 'Wait a minute, you're laughing at the wrong thing. We didn't wear it out, it's our mother-in-law's and she wore it out.' And she won."

The five contestants on "Queen" were chosen from members of the day's audience, who would write their requests on their tickets.

Bailey's gift of gab, invaluable on a show that was broadcast live for half its lengthy existence, has taken him a long way from his home town of Hampton, Iowa, where he began his show business career.

Bailey, who says he's over 60 but won't give his exact age, started out in radio in San Diego, as one of the original grumpy morning wake-up show hosts. "I wouldn't tell 'em the time, I'd say, 'You got a clock, look at it,'" he recalls.

In the late 1940s, "Queen" became one of the first programs telecast on Los Angeles' first experimental television station. Since it had been telecast live as a stage show on radio, the transition to television was simple, Bailey said.

Ex-jockey cheats the meat wagon

PALATINE, Ill. (AP) — Most broken down horses make a quick trip to the dog food plant. But thanks to 60-year-old Art Thompson, worn out liverly horses, old track ponies and gimpy thoroughbreds get a chance to grow old gracefully, frolicking in a lakeside pasture.

Thompson, a leathery-faced little man who was a jockey in his youth in his native Britain, is stable superintendent at Arlington Park. A couple of miles away he has operated his old horse retreat for 19 years at a rented farm, which is home now to 13 horses.

"I wish I could take in more of them and it makes me sad that I can't, but space is limited and so is my money," says Thompson. "I spend $7,000, about half my yearly salary, to keep and feed the horses so they can live out a care-free life. I've always loved horses, it's as simple as that. I can't bear to think of them being

Imported beer sales triple since 1970

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of imported beer have nearly tripled since 1970 and while imports still have only a tiny share of the market, their presence is growing.

Television ads extol Kronenbourg, the beer Alsace hates to share with us; bars around the country offer Bass Ale on tap and Heineken, pride of the Dutch, seems to be everywhere.

In 1970 the United States imported 27.6 million gallons of beer with the largest share, 9.5 million gallons, coming from Germany.

By contrast, domestic brewers sold nearly 3.8 billion gallons of beer that year.

By 1977 domestic sales had climbed to about 4.8 billion gallons, while imports jumped to 78.9 million, the National Association of Beer Importers reports.

The owner of a Washington restaurant specializing in beer said he thinks imported brews are becoming more popular because, in his opinion, American products have developed a sameness of taste.

Maurice Coja, whose Brickseller offers 600 different brands, including 250 imports, said that, while American brewers offer "excellent products, people want to find different tastes and European beers have a greater variety of taste than American products."

World War I image little but illusion

HOUSTON (AP) — The image of World War I's Western Front as an unbroken line of blood and death stretching between opposing armies is erroneous, according to Frank E. Vandiver, Rice University military historian.

In fact, there were as many fronts in the west as belligerent powers, Vandiver said.

Vandiver discussed Monday remarks he plans to submit June 26 at an international conference in Rovereto, Italy, on World War I.

He called the Western Front "a great illusion" because the Allies were divided until almost the end of the war. They fought separately and without coordination, he said.

"These engagements lacked unity and cooperation," Vandiver said. "They were things of chance and small conception — tests of little schemes."

Fragmentation of the front began early in the war on both sides, according to Vandiver. He said the Germans' grand plan for winning the war — a plan developed years earlier by Gen. Alfred von Schlieffen — failed because of the timidity, fear, selfishness and uncertainty of German generals assigned to carry it out.

Things were no better on the French and British side, Vandiver said.

French Gen. Joseph Joffre almost lost the first campaign because he remained fixed to his own plan, insensible to developments that vitally affected his movements, according to Vandiver.

Says detente not working, Tito appeals to U.S., Russia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito said today detent has broken down between the United States and the Soviet Union and appealed to them to make "serious efforts to transcend the present unsatisfactory situation."

"Against the reasonable hopes of the world public and a large number of countries, detente in relations between the great powers has broken down," the 86-year-old leader told the 11th Yugoslav Communist Party Congress in Belgrade.

Their negotiations, he added, particularly in the field of disarmament, have been suspended while "their mutual distrust and suspicions are reminiscent of the times of cold war which we hoped would be left behind forever."

"The armament race and bloc rivalry are spreading to other parts of the world, especially to Africa, where some powers are attempting to preserve their old, or to acquire new spheres of influence."

Tito said "the long-compromised doctrines on making settlement of crisis and disputes subject to concessions from the other side are being revived again" and charged that power politics and external interference are continuing in regions of non-aligned and developing countries.

Tito, the world's senior chief of state, said "even the question of human rights ... is being used as a weapon in bloc confrontation and intervention in the internal affairs of other independent countries."

Tito said that after a period of improvement in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, "signs of a deterioration and increased distrust have appeared again in recent times."

He said it seemed reasonable "at the present moment to call upon the two sides to make serious efforts to transcend the present unsatisfactory situation."

Tito said this would be not only in their long-term interest, "but it is also in the long-term vital interest of the entire international community."

Sneak enemy nuclear attack would take massive civil toll

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sneak enemy nuclear attack on the areas U.S. defense planners consider the most likely targets could kill eight of 10 residents, according to a recent federal report.

"We have no civil defense program, merely the apparatus to start one," said Bardyl Tirana, head of the Pentagon's Defense Civil Preparedness Agency. He supervised President Carter's inauguration before moving to his latest job.

Dr. William K. Chipman, deputy assistant director of the agency, put it this way:

"Assuming people take shelter roughly where they are and assuming people get, say, 15 minutes of warning ... something like 110 million people would survive, give or take a million."

And the nation's vulnerability is not likely to diminish quickly.

America's civil defense program would need about a year of advance warning to provide actual shelter against the initial nuclear blast for half the nation's 230 million people, Chipman said.

A senate governmental affairs committee is set to open hearings today on a plan that President Carter unveiled Monday to reorganize into a single office federal agencies which deal with natural and manmade disasters.

While "there is a strong interest in civil defense ... there has been no decision to increase the emphasis on civil defense," Tirana said of the plan.

Among responsibilities of the new office would be the job of providing federal aid after a terrorist attack, which is not now assigned to any one agency.

The task force that devised the reorganization plan said in its report that "national security capabilities of civilian government at all levels have eroded considerably in the past decade."

Should an international crisis develop now, the Russians would be able to toss "the big chip" onto the table of the high-stakes poker game between two nations brandishing the world's most fearful nuclear stockpiles. The "big chip" — in the vocabulary of preparedness agency officials — is the Soviets' ability to quickly evacuate their cities.

The United States, with no up-to-date evacuation plan, has no such chip.

That gives the Soviets two options, according to Dr. Leon Goure, a University of Miami expert on Soviet civil defense.

They can shelter their population in place and give little or no warning to the enemy. Or, he says, they can evacuate their cities, which "could give Moscow major leverage in a crisis situation, especially if the U.S. were unable to disperse, or effectively shelter, its own urban population."

Remembering the Berlin crisis of 1961 and the Cuban missile crises one year later, Americans can appreciate the Soviet desire for "major leverage."

During a March speech to the Institute of American Relations, Paul Nitze, the chief U.S. negotiator for SALT I, recalled the factors surrounding Berlin and Cuba. He concluded that the Soviets gave in to American demands because "there was nothing they (Soviets) could do about it."

"We also had sufficient strategic nuclear superiority so there was no chance that they would go on alert and threaten us in the situation," he said. "The upshot was that they had no alternative but to back down."

Today, the Russians "don't want a nuclear war. They simply want the same advantage we had during the Cuban missile crisis," said Nitze.
