Chicano solons get presidential pledge

HOUSTON (AP) — President Carter met briefly Friday with four Mexican-American state legislators, assuring them, they said, that "proper steps would be made" to protect the economic and civil rights of the nation's Hispanic minority.

Carter, in Texas for a two-day visit, met with the Mexican-American lawmakers for 30 minutes in a downtown Houston hotel after attending a reception for U.S. Rep. Bob Gammage and prior to addressing a Democratic Party fund-raising dinner later Friday night.

Mexican-Americans in Texas, who supported Carter during the 1976 presidential election, have expressed concern recently that Carter has not fully satisfied his campaign promises to appoint Hispanics to high-level jobs in the federal government.

State Rep. Ben Reyes, D-Houston, one of those who met with the president, told a news conference Carter had promised to study Mexican-American problems and "handle through the Justice Department the many instances of police brutality" against Mexican-Americans.

The Justice Department has successfully prosecuted several cases of police civil rights violations against Mexican-Americans in Texas in the past two years.

The meeting with the Mexican-American legislators was private, but later the four men talked to reporters after Carter had gone to rest before his dinner speech.

Reyes said, "We did talk of police brutality. We talked of a recent Dallas case where a 12-year-old Mexican-American boy was killed. The president was shocked by what he heard and he promised to help us solve these problems."

There was some controversy among the Mexican-American leaders over whether a full representation of the minority had been invited to meet with the president. Ruben Bonilla, state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said he was not invited because of his criticism of Carter.

Also at the meeting with Carter were State Reps. Gonzalo Barrientos of Austin, Hugo Bulanga of Corpus Christi and Matt Garcia of San Antonio.

Garcia said, "The people of Texas realize more the importance of the Mexican-American vote than perhaps does the president. There are several candidates who lost in the recent primary elections who failed to realize the importance of our vote."

Reyes said he felt the meeting with Carter was "very productive, and especially in the area of police brutality. I think he understands that human rights is a major issue with our people."

Before leaving Houston on Saturday morning, Carter is scheduled to meet with Houston-area black leaders.

Carter, unpopular in many sections of the country because of his farm and energy policies, received warm responses when he spoke on both subjects earlier Friday in the oil and cattle city of Fort Worth.

The president introduced the energy legislation in April, 1977, declaring that fuel conservation must be given a priority that is "the moral equivalent of war."

Carter's statement about challenges to the nation's will was an apparent reference to the administration's 15-month-long, futile battle to win congressional enactment of the program.

He said fuels must be conserved while "adequate incentives" are provided to oil and gas producers to search for new supplies.

As in the past, Carter stressed that the United States is the only industrialized country that has not cut back on oil consumption since the 1973-74 Arab embargo.

The president also discussed the cattle industry's objections to his recent decision to combat food price inflation by allowing increased beef imports.

Arguing that the nation this year will consume one billion more pounds of beef "than we can or will produce," Carter said beef imports would be increased "to a very tiny degree comparable to total production."

The president answered a number of questions from members of the audience. And at one point Carter drew enthusiastic applause as he fairly shouted, "We are not going to let the Soviet Union push us around. We're not going to be second."

The president said his policy is to "emphasize friendship and cooperation and peace" with the Soviets, adding that the best way to accomplish this is to remain militarily strong.

Carter said he is determined to reach a new agreement with the Russians to limit strategic arms and to sign a comprehensive nuclear test ban agreement.

The president insisted there is "overwhelming cooperation and compatibility" among his principal national security advisers, and said he thinks it's unfair for Soviets and Cubans to single out national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski for criticism.

HOLD IT RIGHT THERE, says Kay Shepard as she prepares to coax passersby to stop and play at her game booth. Ms. Shepard, who is from Fort Worth, will be running the "Shoot the Star" booth at the Lee High School Band carnival, which runs through tonight in the Cubs Stadium parking lot. Games, rides and food will be available. Proceeds will go to send the band on its spring concert tour as well as to pay band-related expenses throughout the year. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

Ambassador recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States on Friday recalled its ambassador in Chile to protest that government's alleged unresponsiveness to appeals for help in the U.S. investigation of the assassination of a former Chilean ambassador here.

State Department press officer John Trattner said Ambassador George Landau was ordered home because Chile "has not been forthcoming on important requests" from the United States.

Trattner gave no details on the nature of the requests.

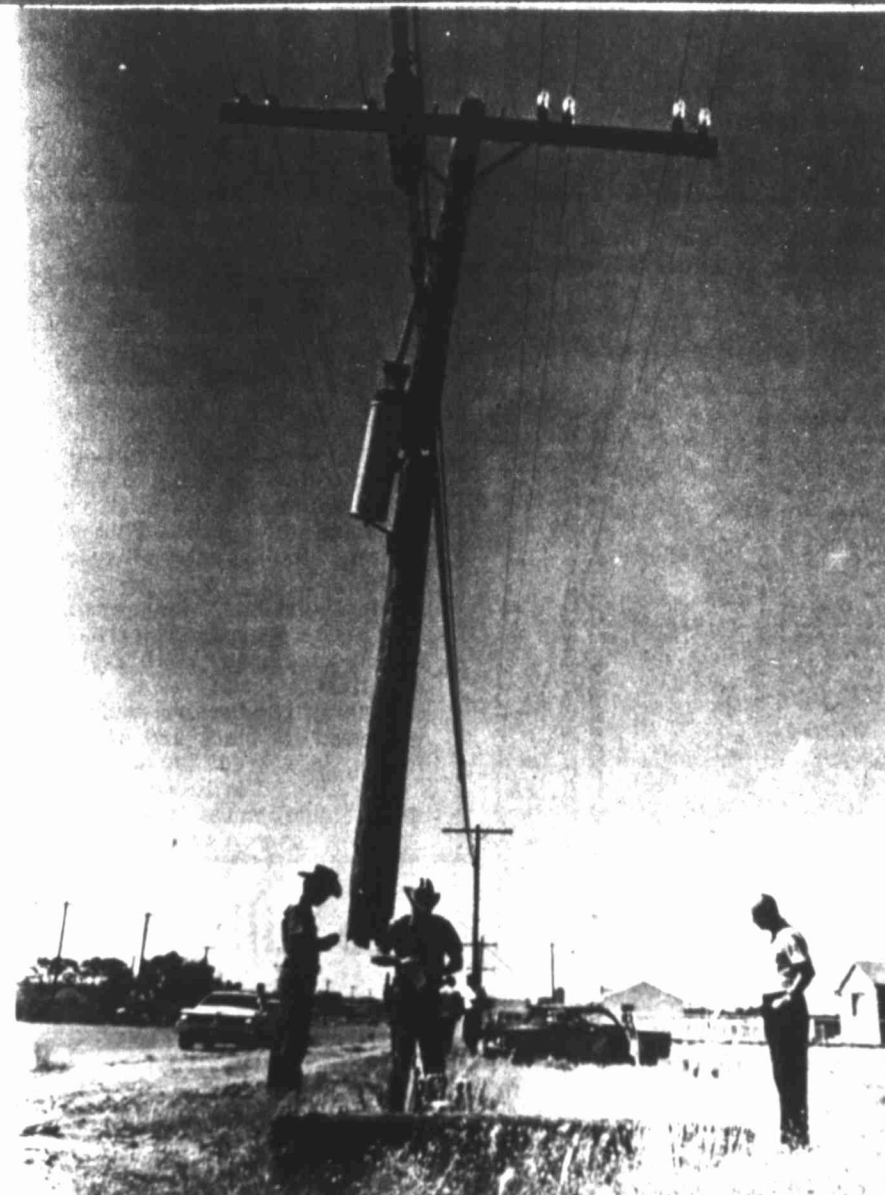

Chilean Foreign Minister Herman Cubillos, who is in Washington attending the Organization of American States meeting, sought to minimize the significance of the action. He even said the recall might be useful in that it will permit Landau "to explain in detail the information which we have been making available to him lately." Cubillos did not elaborate.

Government sources have said previously that at least three Chilean government officials could be charged in the 1976 slaying, including Manuel Contreras Sepulveda, the one-time head of Chile's secret police who was pressured into resigning earlier this year.

The case involves the car-bombing assassination of Orlando Letelier, who served as ambassador here during the government of the late Chilean President Salvador Allende. Letelier, an outspoken critic of Chile's

HANGING BY A THREAD, so to speak, a telephone pole hangs by wires strung across it after a car sheared off the bottom four feet Friday. A Department of Public Safety spokesman said an auto driven by Robert S. Corder, 23, of the 2600 block of Hughes Street, was northbound on Texas Highway 349. About a half-mile south of Midland, the auto left the road and hit the pole. Corder and a passenger, Gary Shupt, 27, of Route 3, received minor injuries. (Photo by Bruce Partain)

Nursing home regulatory agency may be abolished

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Sunset Advisory Commission tentatively voted Friday to abolish the state nursing home administrators regulatory agency after learning it never has revoked a license.

The unanimous vote came after the nursing home board's chief admitted he had investigated none of 660 punitive actions against nursing homes, yet had spent state time opening mail for a private national group.

"We have nearly 1,000 nursing homes in the state, and I feel my job is primarily to be head of an administrative board," said E.M. Lawrence, executive secretary of the Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators.

"Yes, I do spend a certain amount of time looking through correspondence of the NAB (National Association of Boards of Examiners of Nursing Home Administrators) every morning," Lawrence told the Texas Sunset Advisory Commission.

The nursing home board goes out of existence Sept. 1, 1979, unless extended by the Legislature. The sunset commission will take a final vote on whether to abolish the agency and 25 others in September.

Another agency should take over regulation of nursing home administrators, the sunset panel said, without specifying which agency.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, fired questions at Lawrence, who testified previously before the commission.

A proposed recommendation to continue the Texas Good Neighbor Commission failed when only two House members and two senators voted for it. Recommendations must be approved by three of the four members from each chamber.

The Good Neighbor Commission will be phased out Sept. 1, 1979, unless extended by the Legislature. It was created during World War II to smooth relations with Mexico and at one time handled migrant labor problems. But a 1977 state budget rider prohibited it from spending money on migrants, leaving that field exclusively to the Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs.

The nursing home regulatory agency was created in 1969 to satisfy federal requirements for state licensing of nursing home administrators.

In addition to his state post, Lawrence is executive secretary of NAB. The national organization budgets $10,000 for that post's salary, which goes to his wife, he said.

Under Doggett's questioning, Lawrence agreed that the state board never has revoked an administrator's license when the licensee objected.

The sunset commission postponed votes on the Texas Cosmetology Commission and the Board of Barber Examiners. Several witnesses testified against merging the two agencies, which the sunset commission staff has suggested.

Barbers and beauticians both cut hair, but their other services are different and require separate regulatory agencies, said Joe Golman, chairman of the cosmetology commission.

School districts cited for not following order

By KAY HORD

Midland and Lamesa school districts have been cited by the Civil Rights division of Health, Education and Welfare for not being in compliance with a federal mandate concerning bilingual education, Texas Education Commissioner M.L. Brockette said Friday.

If not corrected, the noncompliance could affect the districts' Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) funds.

Midland Schools Superintendent James Matley and Lamesa Superintendent Neal Chastain both were unavailable for comment late Friday.

However, Peyton Cook, director of pupil and community services for Midland Independent School District, said Tuesday's scheduled meeting of the board of trustees would be postponed until Wednesday to allow Matley and "other representatives of the district" to attend a meeting Tuesday in Austin to discuss the citations and options available to the schools.

The meeting was called by Brockette.

Brockette said 42 Texas schools which receive ESAA funds have been notified that they are not in compliance with the Lau decision.

The Lau decision is a federal mandate, stemming from a California court case, in which the Supreme Court ruled that schools must provide assistance in language study to those children who speak a different language than that used in the school.

The spokesman for the Midland school district said they received a call early Friday afternoon advising them they were not in compliance with the decision. The district also was told a letter defining the problem in Midland had been mailed, but the letter had not arrived Friday.

"I think our problem may be in the process we use in identifying the children for our bilingual program," the spokesman said.

Manuel Carrasco, director of elementary education for Midland schools, said HEW's complaint centered around the fact that Midland did not have a systemwide procedure for identifying those students with limited English-speaking ability.

"They questioned this a couple of months ago and asked us to submit a report delineating what we are presently doing to meet this need," Carrasco said.

"But we have no systemwide approach. The tests we give to identify these students are limited to grades

Five killed in Mexican prison rioting

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — At least five persons, including the warden and his assistant, were killed Friday and as many as 10 others were injured when shooting broke out at a Baja California state prison.

The gunfire erupted after a guard reportedly was taken hostage by several inmates in an exercise yard at the 2,000-inmate prison in La Mesa, an eastern suburb of this border city, police dispatcher Lorenzo Cervantes said.

The prison has been the scene of many violent incidents in the past, including the murder of eight persons during a six-month period of drug-related inmate feuding. It was believed that Friday's incident may also have been related to narcotics trafficking.

Details of the incident were not immediately available from prison authorities or Tijuana police.

However, a U.S. citizen who was visiting an inmate at the prison reported that at least five persons were dead, and as many as 10 others were wounded. Initially, eight persons were reported to have been killed, but that was later revised by witnesses and reporters at the scene.

No U.S. citizens were believed to be involved.

Following a brief barrage of gunfire, about 150 police and 50 federal troops quickly moved in to restore order. Most of the inmates returned voluntarily to their cells while police cordoned off the area and began a search for guns.

The warden was identified as Salvador Gonzalez Gutierrez, 32, who was appointed head of the prison in April.

Ronni Moffitt, a colleague of Letelier's at the institute, also was killed in the incident, which occurred while the two were driving to work in Washington's embassy row section.

Chilean President Augusto Pinochet has repeatedly denied any personal involvement in the killings.

"We have a limited program in the secondary program at Edison Freshman School and Midland High School in the ESL classes," he said.

Carrasco said schools offering the bilingual programs are DeZavala, South, Travis, Crockett and Ben Milam.

"They (HEW) say that because we do not have a systemwide approach we are not meeting the needs of all the students," he said.

Brockett said, "A number of school districts have received letters in the last few days telling them that they were out of compliance with the court's decision in the Lau case and would not be eligible to receive these funds (ESAA) unless they could establish that they were in compliance."

"They are given the option of having a show-cause hearing to convince officials that they were in compliance or of waiving that hearing and estab-

Court rules for prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a major prisoners' rights case, ruled Friday that federal judges may limit the time state officials can keep inmates in "punitive isolation."

Voting 8-1, the justices upheld a lower court ruling that Arkansas prison officials impose "cruel and unusual" punishment on inmates when forcing them to stay in special punishment cells for longer than 30 days.

The decision significantly expands the authority of federal judges in overseeing conditions in state prisons. But it does not mean all state prison systems must limit the so-called punitive isolation of inmates to 30 days.

"The length of isolation sentences was not considered in a vacuum," Justice John Paul Stevens said about the Arkansas case, sparked by a 1969 prisoners' lawsuit.

"Punitive isolation is not necessarily unconstitutional, but it may be, depending on the duration of the confinement and the conditions thereof," he said.

Noting that federal courts previously had ordered conditions in Arkansas prisons improved, Stevens added, "If (state officials) had fully complied with the court's earlier orders, the present time limit might well have been unnecessary."

Many states' prisons isolate prisoners who cause disciplinary problems.

The justices split 5-4 in upholding a ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the Arkansas treasury must pay $22,500 in fees to lawyers who successfully sued the state prison system.

In a separate decision, the court voted 7-2 to strike down a New Jersey law which prohibits other states from dumping their garbage in New Jersey.

Waste disposal — disposal firms being paid to remove garbage and dump owners being paid for the use of their land — is a commercial transaction protected by the Constitution's protection for interstate business, the court said.

The New Jersey law was challenged by the cities of Philadelphia and Glen Cove, N.Y., and its invalidation casts doubt on the validity of similar laws in nine other states.

Those states, the court was told, are Delaware, Illinois, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Senate panel hears testimony on redlining

HOUSTON (AP) — Redlining — the practice by which some financial institutions circle off low-income areas of a city and refuse home loans to residents — is very much alive in Houston, according to testimony before a Texas Senate subcommittee Friday.

Houston realtor John Hightower told the hearing blacks living in the Binz area south of downtown are being forced out of the neighborhood because of increasing rents while whites moving in appear to have no problem obtaining mortgage loans on homes they plan to renovate.

"There have been no blacks moving in for the past year and a half," Hightower said. "Some housing that went for $90 a month recently is now at $450. Ironically, money is coming in with these people; I don't know where they're getting it."

Originally an affluent neighborhood of comfortable brick homes, the Binz began to decline in the late 1950s. A spur of the freeway system will cut the area in two.

The subcommittee on consumer affairs of the Senate Human Resources Committee also heard lawyer Volly C. Bastine say he could not even obtain an application blank from conventional loan agencies after it became known where he wanted to buy a house.

Bastine called redlining "a vicious form of racism."

Texas Savings & Loan League Executive Vice President Durward Curlee told the hearing the refusal to lend money for the purchase or rehabilitation of houses in old neighborhoods is not what causes deterioration.

He said if a savings institution lends more money on a house than it's worth, a reserve has to be set up to protect the loan, taking money out of circulation for home loans.

Realtor Mario Garcia said although Mexican-Americans have the best minority credit ratings after Japanese-Americans, several of his clients were refused loans and told their homes were located in undesirable neighborhoods.

Abilene commissioners vote to postpone liquor recount

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Taylor County Commissioners voted Friday to postpone a recount of the local liquor sale election last weekend in which voters narrowly approved the sale of alcoholic beverages.

The vote last Saturday was 11,591 to 11,460, and opponents of liquor sales sought a recount in hopes that tally was a mistake.

The commissioner's court had originally ordered the recount, but Assistant District Attorney Gary Hacker, the court's legal adviser, said Texas election laws provide no statute authorizing a recount in a special referendum because paper ballots were used and because only a candidate may call for a recount.

Based on Hacker's arguments, the commissioners voted, 3-2, to delay the recount for 30 days while they seek a formal opinion on the legality of the canvass from Attorney General John Hill. Attorneys representing anti-liquor forces argued the recount should go ahead on schedule whether or not such provisions are specifically spelled out in the election laws.

Jane Elmore, speaking for the pro-dry group, asked commissioners to seek the "spirit of the law," which she said was that "the will of the people" should prevail.

The commissioners were first locked in a 2-2 tie over whether to delay the recount until County Judge Roy Skaggs cast his tie-breaking vote.

In the meantime, the territory in question, Precinct 1, which includes most of the city, remains dry. Applications cannot be made for liquor licenses until the vote is certified as official by the county clerk.

Most keep money

BOSTON (AP) — Are you honest enough to return a wallet with $5 in it? Most people aren't — that is, if a WBZ Radio experiment is an accurate measure.

As part of a 10-part series on honesty, WBZ scattered 10 wallets — each containing a $5 bill — throughout downtown Boston.

Two weeks later, three wallets had been returned with the money still inside. Two were mailed back without the money, and the rest were never returned.

Fort Worth greets Carter warmly

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — President Carter was warmly received Friday as he addressed a combined group of civic organizations at the Tarrant County Convention Center, the first stop on his two-day trip to Texas.

Farmers and ranchers picketed outside, however.

Two men who had a loaded carbine rifle in their Jeep-type vehicle were arrested after being stopped by a Fort Worth police special tactical unit on a street next to the convention center.

The men, described as being in their mid-20s, were taken to the city jail and detained for questioning. The rifle, containing five live rounds, and vehicle were confiscated, said police spokesman K.V. Flowers.

The men offered no resistance.

The rifle was lying between them on the floor of the vehicle.

Carter was already inside the convention center when the arrests were made, police said.

He got a thunderous cheering ovation as he entered the convention center, some people even standing on their chairs to get a better glimpse of him. Some children even stood on tables to see their president.

Carter was able to see the several hundred farmers and ranchers, some of them on horseback, gathered around the convention center to protest his visit.

Also on hand was a delegation from the Armadillo Coalition of Texas, an anti-nuclear power and pro-alternative energy group.

"ACT now, stop nuclear power," one placard read.

The stockmen also carried signs, stating their unhappiness with the administration's farm policy.

"Carter Best President Foreign Nations Ever Had," and "Carter is a 'Pariety' pooper," read some.

A large force of law enforcement officers was on hand but the crowd was orderly. Texas Ranger Tom Arnold said he was expecting no trouble and had no advance word of any problems.

Carter landed at 12:30 p.m. at Carswell Air Force Base and headed directly for the convention center.

A two-block stretch of Main Street in downtown Fort Worth was roped off so the public could see the motorcade pass. Several in the crowd, estimated several thousand strong, wore Carter buttons.

Heiress denies theft of diamonds

LONDON (AP) — A beautiful Iranian heiress who says she gambled away nearly $6 million "to forget the time" denied under oath Friday that she stole $367,000 worth of diamonds and emeralds from Cartier to pay debts.

The prosecution alleges Kitty Milinaire, 39, now bankrupt, took jewelry on approval and never returned it or paid for it. The jewelry was described as one loose diamond and a diamond and platinum ring with a total value of $259,000 and an emerald and diamond ring worth $108,000.

Prosecutors said the defendant picked up the pieces on two days last April at the firm's New Bond Street shop.

Mrs. Milinaire said she did not steal the jewelry and had no dealings with Cartier except to pick up two watches her husband sent for repair at the exclusive firm, patronized by Britain's royal family.

Mrs. Milinaire, who is married to the Duchess of Bedford's son Didier Milinaire, was charged under her maiden name of Fatemeh Sadeghzader.

A jury at Knightsbridge Crown Court was told by prosecutor Henry Green earlier this week that Mrs. Milinaire took the jewels and then left England for Tehran. He said none of it has been recovered.

She returned to England from Iran voluntarily for trial. It is to resume Monday.

During this week's testimony the prosecution painted an image of Mrs. Milinaire as a very rich and bored woman who drank too much and gambled until she ran out of money.

Prosecutor Green said of the defendant: "It is right to say she has been a very rich woman and described herself to police officers as a millionaire. But fortunes have changed. She is now bankrupt. That has been due in the main to her addiction to gambling — compulsive gambling in the clubs and casinos of the West End of London."

Mrs. Milinaire told the court, in a heavy accent and through the aid of an interpreter, that her heavy gambling had made her the talk of the London casinos.

"Everybody talked about me all the time... I had no control when I gambled," she said softly to the jury. "I also drank very heavily."

"Money did not matter very much. My happiness was more important. I have never known the value of money. I used to gamble every day, from in the afternoon until my money finished. Sometimes it was 4 a.m. the following morning... it was just to forget the time."

She said a bank manager who later was fired used to loan her thousands of pounds, and even go to his bank and get it for her, because he was in love with her.

She told the court she sold apartments in Paris, Cannes and Malaga to pay off her $468,000 overdraft at the bank, but gambled away the proceeds.

Attorney General John Hill put some muscle in his review of state budgets Friday with a demand that the State Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation revise its 1980-81 budget requests.

"I was very disappointed to learn that the State Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation tentatively approved last Friday a 1980-81 budget calling for $372 million above current spending," said Hill, Democratic nominee for governor, in a letter to Edwin R. Van Zandt, Beaumont, board chairman.

"That amounts to a 54 percent increase. If every agency followed suit, our state budget would exceed state revenue estimated to be available during the next fiscal period by more than $3 billion."

Hill asked Van Zandt to take a "firmer stance" on the budget at the board's next meeting "in order to cut it to fit the income limitations we expect next year."

Critical stage reached in Texas Lutheranism

FORT WORTH — Delegates to the 47th convention of the Texas District of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, meeting in Fort Worth this weekend, are faced with important decisions affecting the future direction of this branch of Lutheranism in Texas.

Among the most important decisions of the more than 500 voting delegates at the conclave is the election of a new district president.

Dr. Carl A. Heckmann of Austin has held the district presidency for the past 15 years. Having served the maximum number of successive terms of office, Dr. Heckmann is scheduled to relinquish the post unless the delegates vote to remove the limitation of tenure by adopting a convention resolution to that effect. If that happens, Dr. Heckmann, who enjoys an excellent relationship with most congregations in the district, could conceivably be reelected. However, if the limitation of tenure stands, then the selection of Heckmann's successor would be in the hands of the convention.

The Fort Worth meeting began Friday and continues through Sunday in the Sheraton-Fort Worth Hotel.

The Texas District of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod includes some 300 congregations of the LCMS throughout the state, with total membership of 115,000.

Survey finds churchgoers have great confidence in the church as an institution

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have more confidence in the churches than in eight other key institutions of society, an extensive study has found. But churchgoers trust organized religion much more than those not involved in it.

The study, the first to examine broadly the differing attitudes of the "churched" and the "unchurched," found that 80 percent of church participants have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of confidence in organized religion — more than feel that way about any other major institution, from big business to the U.S. Congress.

In fact, Congress and television rated the lowest in public confidence both among the churched and the unchurched. Among the unchurched, 73 percent had at least "some" confidence in organized religion, but they ranked it fifth, below banks, public schools, the military and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Since the "unchurched" make up only 41 percent of the adult population, the overall average gave the highest credence to religion among major institutions. It was ahead even for "unchurched" people of big business, labor unions, Congress and TV. This was only one aspect of a vast array of comparative data gathered by the Gallup poll organization for an ecumenical coalition of 29 Protestant and Roman Catholic denominations in a joint project arranged by the National Council of Churches.

With initial results released this week, Peggy L. Shriver of the NCC's research office, said analysis of the vast accumulation of data "has only begun" and that further implications derived from it "may prove even more instructive."

The unusual element of the study, she noted, is that it digs into attitudes of those whom the churches know little about — "the people who don't ever come to church" — and brings out their views in comparison with those of churchgoers.

Intriguingly, most of the churchgoers said that when they were children, their parents attended church frequently, while this was not the case with most of the presently "unchurched."

'Moonies' file lawsuit against U.S. Congressman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Unification Church Thursday filed a $30 million lawsuit against Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., alleging that Fraser and two of his investigators violated church members' rights.

Fraser said he would "not be intimidated" by the suit and would continue his efforts to bring Moon before a House International Relations subcommittee to testify.

The subcommittee, which is conducting a probe of South Korean government activities in this country, is trying to learn whether the church has "operational ties" to the South Korean government.

"The Unification Church and persons working on their behalf have attempted both here and in my home state of Minnesota to discredit me and the investigation," said Fraser, who is seeking election to the Senate.

Fraser said the church's campaign has included the distribution of literature charging that he is a Communist.

Moon left the United States for London shortly before he was to be served with a subpoena to appear before the subcommittee June 13. An aide said Moon would fight the subpoena in court when he returns from a religious mission in Europe.

"The Rev. Moon will not cooperate with such a sordid investigation," said Col. Bo Hi Pak, special assistant to Moon. "Would Pope Paul dash to Washington to answer questions about the extent and sources of Catholic wealth or charges that Catholics in America had lobbied against abortion?"

Pak and the church filed the suit in U.S. District Court in Washington, contending that the defendants had conspired to violate church members' constitutional rights of freedom of speech, association and religion.

The suit seeks an injunction against future violations and asks a total of $30 million in punitive and compensatory damages. It alleges, among other things, that Fraser sent two subcommittee investigators, Edwin Gragert and Martin Lewin, to the Unification Church of Washington, where they "falsely stated and misrepresented themselves as architects" to gain entry to inspect the church.

Church leaders make appeal

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Leaders of six Christian denominations have appealed to organizers of the 1979 White House Conference on Families to keep its focus on traditional family values and not let it be diverted to promoting "alternative lifestyles."

The Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders said they recognized that "families must adapt to cultural change" but that "powerful forces" now active in U.S. society may try to use the conference to portray marriage and parenthood as "outworn or obsolete" although they remain essential pillars of social stability.

Broadcasters charged with ignoring public

By ROBERT DIVEROLI
Copley News Service

Television and radio still don't pay enough attention to the public's wishes in their programming, says the Rev. Dr. Ralph M. Jennings, deputy director of the United Church of Christ Office of Communications.

The main difficulty, says Jennings, is that broadcasters seem to think they have an absolute right to air anything they want.

This is not a legitimate position because broadcasters are using the airwaves decreed by Congress to be in the public domain and hence are responsible to the public, Jennings said in an interview.

"Unlike a newspaper, for example, they are licensed by the federal government to operate for a limited time conditioned on service in the public interest," Jennings added.

"If they didn't want such responsibilities, they could operate some other kind of business, but they chose to get into a regulated business, so they have to accept the responsibilities that go along with it."

This means being open to community views and standards on what is acceptable for broadcasting, an openness the communications industry has not been generally willing to accept, Jennings said.

He said the root of the problem is that stations cling to the notion that they have a total right to determine what is and is not fit to broadcast, he said.

Jennings said that in a sense it's true that morality is in the eye of the beholder, but that television stations, for example, should pay attention to how their own communities behold morality.

"Stations are licensed to serve a community," Jennings said. "Now, it's not up to the station to bow to the pressure of one small group in the community, but it is up to them to be in contact with the public to determine levels of taste and what people will and will not tolerate."

Jennings said that in the case of the controversial ABC sex-comedy "Soap" last year, his office encouraged church members to tell their local stations how they felt about it after watching several programs.

"Our own office commented only after we had seen several programs and we thought ABC was way off base in not even allowing its own affiliates to preview it until pressure was applied," said Jennings.

He added that many stations ignored the feelings of church groups, the PTA and others who told the stations they felt the show was offensive.

Eric Hoffer: master of tightly woven language

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "Every once in a while, I find a thick book and a thin book by the same author," says Eric Hoffer.

"And invariably, the thin book was written first and then came the thick book. In the thin book, he said everything he knew and in the thick book he would try to cover up everything he didn't know." Eric Hoffer, the longshoreman-philosopher from the San Francisco waterfront, has written only thin books — such as "The True Believer" and a dozen others — and all of them are reflective of the Hoffer style, which is tightly woven, epigrammatic, aphoristic and solidly quotable. Unschooling and self-taught, Hoffer has clearly mastered the English language in his own highly individual form of heady distillation. Hoffer is unarguably a man of intellect, a scholar who acquired his vast machinery of thought and perception by haunting the public libraries in cities and towns beyond count.

He was blind as a child, the son of immigrants from Alsace-Lorraine, and he never attended school.

Revival starts Sunday

Daniel Phillips of Springdale, Ark., will be guest evangelist for special revival services next week at West Side Free Will Baptist Church, 4031 W. Illinois Ave.

The revival will begin Sunday and continue through Friday with services at 7:30 p.m. daily, said Danny Potter, host pastor. The public is invited.

A feature of all services will be special music. Among musical groups singing at services will be the well-known "Crimson Bridge" ensemble from Odessa, Potter said. A nursery will be provided for the care of small children during the services.

Program slated on Israel

A multi-media presentation, "After 40 Centuries, It's Great to be 30," celebrating the 30th birthday of the modern state of Israel, is scheduled in Midland Monday night.

The presentation will begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Alamo Junior High School, 3800 W. Storey Ave., and will be open to the public free of charge.

The show, composed of films, slides, sound effects and narration, is presented under auspices of the Israel Government Tourist Office. It is non-political, non-commercial and non-partisan. The program presents the history of Israel from its birth to the present time and depicts the country's landscapes, holy places, historic sites, Biblical background and centuries-old history.

Two staff members announced by church

Two new staff members are being announced by the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Joining the parish staff on July 1 will be the Rev. Derrill Byrne Manley, who will be assistant to the Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, rector of the parish, and Norma Marrs, who has been named director of Christian education.

Manley is moving to Midland from Austin where he has resided for the last four years. He attended the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest in Austin, receiving a master of divinity degree in May 1977. He was ordained a deacon last June in the Diocese of Arizona and since then has served as chaplain at the Austin State Hospital while receiving training in pastoral care and counseling.

A native of Phoenix, Manley graduated cum laude from the University of Arizona in 1973. His wife, Cindy, also is a University of Arizona graduate.

Norma Marrs served for several years as director of Christian education at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity before resigning to attend the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest. She received a certificate for special studies at the seminary and then joined the staff of St. Andrews Episcopal Church at Amarillo where she has served as director of Christian education for the last two years.

Mrs. Marrs was born and reared in the state of Washington. She is the widow of the Rev. H. Wayne Marrs, an Episcopal clergyman in the dioceses of Utah and Louisiana. She has had extensive training and experience in the field of Christian education and has served her church at parish, diocesan, provincial and national levels in Christian education work.

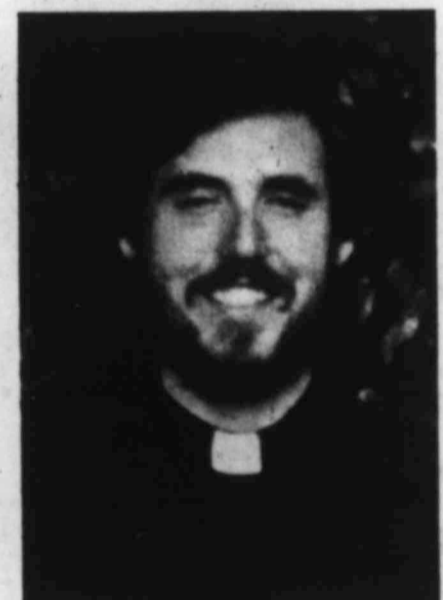

Rev. Barnes named pastor of two churches

MIDKIFF — The Rev. Edwin Barnes, a long-time Methodist minister, is the new pastor for the Midkiff and Rankin United Methodist churches.

Barnes replaces the Rev. Herbert Frederick who recently transferred to Canada.

The new pastor, who has been in the ministry more than 30 years, came here from Jackson, Mo. He is a native of Licking, Mo., and is a graduate of Southwest Missouri State College at Springfield. He received his seminary training at Duke Divinity School. He has filled a number of pastorates and also is a former chaplain at the Poplar Bluff Veterans Hospital in Missouri.

Barnes and wife Elizabeth are parents of a daughter, who resides in California, and a son who currently is a student at a California university.

Accused sheriff receives 29-year prison sentence

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A federal judge who said he "had no mercy in his heart" for Fannin County Sheriff Raymond Taylor sentenced the suspended officer to a total of 29 years in prison and fined him $25,000 Friday for violating anti-racketeering laws.

Taylor's lawyer said there would be no appeal.

Taylor, wearing a short-sleeved shirt and jeans, was whisked away by two federal marshals after sentencing and placed in custody in the federal section of the Smith County Jail. His attorney said he will be assigned to a federal prison in 10 days to two weeks.

Taylor stopped his own trial in its 6th day June 13 and changed his plea to guilty to three counts of a 16-count indictment accusing him of accepting bribes to allow prostitution, drug traffic and gambling in his North-east Texas county.

"As I heard this six-day trial I couldn't believe what I was hearing," said U.S. District Judge William M.

Steger. "He has committed in my opinion a very serious crime. He has brought to question the honesty and integrity of what I consider an honorable profession — law enforcement."

"I have no mercy in my heart for anyone who would do this sort of thing," the judge said.

Taylor declined an opportunity to make a statement before the judge passed sentence, but defense attorney F.R. "Buck" Files Jr. pleaded for mercy in Taylor's behalf.

"He has been removed from office. He has lost the standing he had in the community. He has brought shame to his family. This is not a defendant who refused to admit guilt. I ask the court to consider the deterrent effect which has already been achieved," Files said.

But Steger sentenced Taylor to 29 years and fined him $25,000 on the first count, four years on Count 5 and five years on Count 11, ordering the sentences to run concurrently. The combined 29-year sentence was the maximum under federal law. But since Steger allowed the smaller terms to be served simultaneously with the 29-year term it amounted to an actual sentence of only 29 years behind bars.

"The sentence does not surprise me," Files said. "Sheriff Taylor expected to be sentenced to confinement in a federal penitentiary after changing his plea. The family has made the decision that there will be no appeal."

Taylor went to trial June 5 on the 16-count indictment, but negotiated a plea-bargaining deal with prosecutors when the trial was in its second week, admitting to three of the accusations.

Prosecutors said they had agreed to drop the other 13 charges against Taylor 10 days after sentencing in exchange for the guilty plea.

Before Taylor stopped the trial the government put more than 40 witnesses on the stand including gamblers, prostitutes and drug dealers who testified against the suspended sheriff.

One self-described prostitute, Linda Straham, testified she and her husband "had heard we could buy the sheriff there (in Fannin County) so we moved there."

Taylor pleaded guilty to Counts 1, 5 and 11. Count 1 accused him of violating the Racketeer Influence and Organized Corruption statutes of 1970. Count 5 accused him of using the telephone to facilitate the commission of a felony, and Count 11 accused him of conspiring with others to distribute marijuana.

29 Red Brigades members sent to jail

TURIN, Italy (AP) — After a three-month scourge of urban terror aimed at disrupting the trial, a Turin court Friday sentenced 29 Red Brigades founder Renato Curcio and 28 others to up to 15 years in prison. Italian police braced for a wave of revenge attacks by urban guerrillas.

The verdict successfully ended the third attempt to try Curcio and other leaders of the Marxist revolutionary gang. Their comrades on the outside had tried to break up the trial, as they did twice before, by kidnapping former Premier Aldo Moro and demanding freedom for Curcio and three other defendants in exchange for Moro's life.

The government refused to bargain and Moro was slain by his kidnapers. During the three-month trial, the Red Brigades also claimed responsibility for killing 19 other persons, including Moro's five bodyguards, in the kidnap ambush, and threatened violence against judges, lawyers, jurors and witnesses.

The heaviest sentences, 15 years, went to Curcio and Pietro Bassi. Three other Red Brigade ringleaders, Pietro Bertolazzi, Alberto Franceschini and Paolo Maurizio Ferrari, received sentences of between 13 and 15 years.

Curcio, 36, bearded former philosophy student who founded the revolutionary gang in the early 1970s, could have received up to 21 years on the charges of forming an armed band to overthrow the state and taking part in political kidnappings. The prosecutor asked for 15 years, and some Italian commentators called this too light.

Among five defendants convicted at large were two men charged in the March 16 kidnapping of Moro — Prospero Gallinari, sentenced to 10 years, and Mario Moretti, sentenced to five.

Curcio and the 14 other defendants who remained in jail throughout the trial refused to leave their cells Friday when Presiding Judge Guido Barbaro read out the verdicts in the bunker-like courthouse, which was surrounded by 800 heavily armed officers. The jury had deliberated for almost five days, a record for jury trials in Italy.

Through lawyers, Curcio and the others made known they were not interested in the decision by a "court of the regime."

Sadat makes overtures to alienated neighbor states

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat, his peace drive further slowed by Israel's new stand on occupied territories, was making overtures Friday to the Arab states alienated by his go-it-alone diplomacy.

U.S. officials in Washington, meanwhile, reported Vice President Walter F. Mondale may be sent to Egypt for talks with Sadat in an effort to get Mideast negotiations going again. A stop in Alexandria Thursday he sent out a clear signal that he wants to restore the Arab unity that was shattered by his solitary search for peace, a mission that was denounced by Libya and other hard-line anti-Israeli states as "traitorous" to the Arab cause.

"We are ready to restore diplomatic relations with Libya ... but first slander campaigns against Egypt should be stopped because all those rejectionist countries owe much to Egypt," he told a news conference after meeting with Presidents Ahmed Sekou Toure of Guinea and Mohammed Siad Barre of Somalia.

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar reported that the Carter administration also wants to bring the Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers together next month in London to try to revive the stalled bilateral peace talks. And Sadat announced he is sending two key aides on diplomatic missions to Western Europe and Somalia.

Israel's refusal last weekend to commit itself to negotiate the permanent status of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip cast new doubt on the future of Sadat's peace initiative, which is deadlocked over Egypt's demand for self-determination for the Palestinians in those territories.

Warnke optimistic over SALT summit this year

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States' chief disarmament negotiator said here Friday he thought a Soviet-U.S. summit meeting to wrap up a second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty before the end of this year was "quite possible."

Paul C. Warnke, a negotiator on SALT II among other things, told a news conference "I think with good-faith negotiations on both sides, we certainly can reach a SALT agreement before the end of the year."

Responding to a question, he explained that "virtually a handful of issues" was all that remained to be agreed upon. He said he was "guardedly optimistic" that that would happen before 1978 was over.

Asked whether President Carter would talk with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev on the subject, Warnke replied that Carter had indicated a willingness to meet with Brezhnev.

To facilitate agreement on the treaty, he said, "it's quite possible that at some stage a political decision may have to be taken which would have to be taken at a level other than that of the delegations at Geneva."

"And under those circumstances, certainly that summit meeting would be a useful means of putting the final touches on a treaty."

Warnke, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, met with U.N. correspondents after addressing the General Assembly's working committee of the whole at the current special session on disarmament.

He told the committee SALT II would put "a cap on the nuclear arms race" and for the first time include "qualitative limits" on nuclear weapons.

He added that SALT III would "aim at even deeper cuts" and "move effectively toward completing qualitative limitations."

With the Soviet Union and Britain, he said, the United States is pursuing a complete ban on nuclear weapon tests, still permitted underground by a treaty though barred elsewhere.

Warnke said the ultimate objective was elimination of all nuclear weapons.

Warnke also noted that the United States was engaged in talks with the Soviet Union to outlaw other weapons of mass destruction, ban anti-satellite weapons, cut arms shipments to other countries and stabilize big-power military presence in the Indian Ocean.

He pointed to East-West negotiations in Vienna on mutual and balanced force reduction.

He said that in the assembly, negotiations on sections of a final document "almost without exception are making significant progress" and the broad outlines of the document were visible.

FEC sues Reagan committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission has filed suit against Ronald Reagan's 1976 presidential campaign committee, charging it failed to file required reports on about 40 percent of the people who had contributed more than $100.

Under the law, treasurers of political committees supporting a candidate for federal office must supply reports of all contributions of more than $100 — complete with business address and occupations. It is the latter information the commission wants from the Reagan campaign.

The complaint, filed in U.S. District Court, said the commission had attempted to correct the violation without success "by informal methods of conference, conciliation, and persuasion."

The commission asked the court to force the Reagan campaign committee and its treasurer to comply with the law and to fine them $5,000.

In the past, the commission has found that the presidential campaign organizations of Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Sen. Frank Church and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, failed to file such reports.

Fishing quotas disrupt tradition

By DAVID MINTHORN

BREMERHAVEN, West Germany (AP) — Germans, Dutch and Norwegians are being forced to break with one of their oldest culinary traditions as a fishing ban on North Sea herring removes the delicacy from their menus.

A sea food staple in northern Europe since the Middle Ages, herring have been so badly depleted by overfishing in recent years that North Sea catches were banned this year to give the fish a chance to replenish themselves.

Governments agreed to the ban after the North Sea herring catch plummeted from 482,000 tons in 1973 to 169,000 tons in 1976.

The herring ban and strict quotas on herring and other fish in the Baltic Sea, North Atlantic and elsewhere have been met with angry protests from fishermen, who say the conservation measures are exaggerated.

"Fish resources have to be protected, but unfair quotas are ruining our livelihood," declared Karl-Heinz Burde, manager of the Bremerhaven coastal trawlers' cooperative, one of West Germany's biggest.

In Holland, the ban is regarded as a "particular blow because herring is a national feature of the Netherlands," said Henk Kranenburg of the Dutch Trawlers' Association. "It is unprecedented in peace time and a real blow to the industry."

Dutch trawlers normally net 30,000 to 40,000 tons of herring in the North Sea in June and July, but now they will have to fish for other varieties allotted as substitutes by the Common Market.

Norway, not a Common Market member, permits fishermen to net some herring in the country's southern fjords, but not enough to meet consumer demands in Oslo, retail shops report. The Norwegian fisheries directorate is considering possible quotas for high seas herring.

Cod, sea salmon, sole and mackerel also come under quotas set by the Common Market, Iceland, Baltic countries and the United States and Canada — all claiming exclusive 200-mile fishing zones.

But only herring have been reported to be in such alarming shortage under the quota system.

"Last year, we had big barrels of herring for sale. Now we only get a few pails of imported herring from Iceland and Holland, and none from German waters," said a saleswoman in a fish shop in Bonn.

The shop, part of a national chain, sells the salted fish for 75 cents each, and charges up to $1.30 a pound for the even rarer fresh herring, once the cheapest fish in the shop.

Because of the North Sea ban and quotas elsewhere, herring consumption could drop up to 30 percent in West Germany this year, industry officials say.

Herring has annually accounted for two-thirds of the 600,000 tons of fish consumed by West Germans.

To fill the herring gap, the Germans and Dutch fishing industries are promoting other types of lesser known fish allotted to the fleets by the Common Market — blue whiting, mackerel, halibut and other types.

Rudolf Preisler, manager of the West German fish marketing institute, has urged government support for a $12-million advertising campaign to encourage notoriously conservative housewives to buy the new varieties of fish.

"It's a lot of money but an important regional industry — with nearly 40,000 jobs — is at stake," he said.

The Dutch fisheries ministry said the industry was trying to fill the herring gap with mackerel and blue whiting but it will take some years before the trawlermen accept the idea.

Booklet attempts to prevent suicide

By TAKEHISA KONDOH

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo metropolitan police department has published and distributed 10,000 copies of a booklet entitled "Ten Rules in the Prevention of Juvenile Suicides."

Faced with a rising number of youngsters taking their own lives, the department decided to give parents guidance in preventing such action. Two of the main points in the booklet are "don't ignore signs of suicide," and "don't make your children feel isolated."

The booklet was prepared by the adolescent psychological research group in the city's police department, and has been distributed to parents in the Tokyo area.

"Parents are becoming more unaware of what their children are thinking about," said Shinichi Udagawa, head of the research group, in an interview. "The root cause of increasing cases of suicide by youths rests simply with the parents' sheer ignorance of changes in the remarks and behavior of children."

Statistics show that last year 790 Japanese under the age of 19 killed themselves. Nationwide, that was actually a slight drop from 801 in 1976, but in Tokyo the figure jumped to 115 from 57 in the preceding year, and that is the reason the metropolitan police department is disturbed.

Udagawa's 40-member group, made up of juvenile guidance officers and 10 psychologists, studied suicide notes and behavioral patterns of young people who took their own lives.

"We went through 300 juvenile suicide cases and found in virtually every one youngsters had shown some signs of the tragedy two to three weeks in advance," he said.

Museum to be featured on television program

"The Eyes of Texas," a television show on different areas of Texas, will include a visit to the Midland Permian Basin Petroleum Museum and Hall of Fame in today's broadcast.

The television program is aired at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 7. The visit to the museum will be the last segment of the program.

Permian Basin Mensa, a organization for those scoring in the upper two percent of the general population on a standard IQ test, met recently and heard a report from First National Bank Vice President Marshall Surrat.

Surrat discussed the effects of deficit financing by the United States government on the creation of inflation and the effects of the adverse balance of trade which the U.S. is experiencing, a spokesman for the organization said.

Further information on Mensa may be obtained by calling 683-3296.

Computer-driven autos not all that 'futuristic'

By MARDI BESTERMAN

EAST LIBERTY, Ohio (AP)—The year is, say, 1990. You decide you want to drive from Dayton to Cleveland.

You get in your car, drive to the nearest expressway entrance and select the Cleveland exit point nearest your destination.

Then you just sit back and relax. Read a book, watch television, chat with fellow passengers. All control of your automobile is taken over by an automatic electronic system. You will regain control of your car when you reach the exit point you selected for Cleveland.

An unlikely happening in just 12 to 20 years? Maybe not.

An Ohio State University professor has been working on developing an automated ground transportation system for over 10 years.

Professor Robert Fenton says his project, funded by the Federal Highway Administration, is aimed at developing a practical type of transportation for the future.

"There are some serious transportation problems facing us," Fenton said. "It is estimated that the country's population will increase by 100 million by the year 2000. This means we need great improvement in our transportation system."

Fenton said the U.S. Department of Transportation was looking at different ways to handle the traffic of tomorrow. The automatic highway approach is one of many possible solutions being examined, said Fenton.

The key in the system is a computer installed in the automobile which would be programmed to automatic highway devices, said Fenton. He said the computer would take over such functions as steering, braking and other longitudinal controls such as maintaining distance between vehicles.

Rather, most seem to be modeled after the one now in effect in Tennessee, which merely limits annual increases in government spending to the actual growth of the state's economy. (In other states, the limit is on taxes.)

While such formulas may sound stringent in theory, in practice they've generally had more bark than bite.

In Tennessee's most recent budget, for example, legislators found personal income in the state, the statistic used to determine economic growth, rose a hefty 12 percent, far more than the budget requests had called for.

Admittedly, the California vote is having an impact in some areas. Citizen groups in Michigan, for example, just mustered enough signatures to get a tax-limitation measure on the ballot, and there are similar efforts elsewhere.

But even their proponents concede these measures are a good deal

Many skeptical of 'taxpayer revolt'

By ART PINE
The Washington Post

much-ballyhooed Proposition 13 vote in California may prove less than meets the eye. Although analysts have few doubts that the new "taxpayer revolt" accurately reflects voter frustration over taxes and government ser-VICES, many experienced onlookers are skeptical that it really will spark sweeping change.

For one thing, while the California reaction was dramatic, the situation in that state was an unusual one, both in terms of the tax burden on voters and the resources the state has to replace "lost" local tax revenues.

For another, although the hoops over the California vote is providing ready fare for politicians right now, many tax experts and key officials see little room or avenue in most states to push through dramatic tax changes.

As a result, while the fallout from the Proposition 13 explosion is likely to be visible for some months, it's far from certain that it will be anywhere near as spectacular as proponents contend.

The situation in California was unique in many respects. First, property taxes there were among the steepest in the nation with especially sharp increases in the past two years.

Unlike the case in most states, where the state income tax bears the brunt of the burden, California's property taxes went not only to finance local government, but also to pay for schools and much of the welfare load.

The only other state where the property tax has reached those proportions is New York.

Second, contrary to the situation elsewhere, it's relatively easy to get almost any issue on a California referendum, where Proposition 13-like proposals are apt to fare better than in legislatures.

Indeed, so much government tinkering is done by general ballot in California that the state is said to have a "referendum tradition." Only a handful of states has similarly easy procedures for statewide votes.

Finally, California is in much better financial shape than any other state and far better able to use state revenues to "make up for" any cut-back in local tax receipts.

Depending on how it's calculated, the surplus now on the books is said to total some $3.5 billion to $5 billion, sizable by any measure. The next-closest is Texas, with a $2 billion surplus. Most others are decidedly less well off.

But even their proponents concede these measures are a good deal

If you were playing the North-South cards in a normal bridge game you might try the diamond finesse for your tenth trick. This would be the wrong play, but it might just happen to work.

In today's hand, the diamond finesse would lose, and South would go down. Justice would be served, for the finesse is not the best play.

Declarer should take the ace of hearts and should draw one round of trumps with the ace. When both defenders follow suit South should lead the ace and then the queen of diamonds.

SETS UP SUIT

The defenders can take two hearts and the king of diamonds, but the declarer gets to dummy with the ten of spades and ace of clubs to ruff diamonds. He returns to dummy with the king of spades, drawing the last missing trump, and can then safely discard his losing club on dummy's last diamond.

This line of play works if the six missing diamonds break 3-3 or 4-2. The odds are 5 to 1 in favor of such a break, but only even on the diamond finesse. If you try the diamond finesse first, the opponents can knock out dummy's ace of clubs to prevent you from birthing in a good diamond.

Fenton says the system being developed by the Ohio State University Transportation and Research Center in East Liberty is feasible for several reasons. He believes that the safety factor of an electronic system would be much more reliable than that of a human driver, and therefore fewer accidents would occur.

And, says Fenton, such a system would mean higher traffic flow capacity. With more traffic on existing roads, the need for building new ones would be diminished, he said.

An electronic system could utilize either an electric car or the standard automobile with an internal combustion engine. With the electric car, said Fenton, energy savings would be tremendous. And, he said, with the internal combustion engine, there would be moderate savings in gas through the control of traffic flow.

OSU is not alone in the effort to develop an automated highway system. He said Calspan Corporation in Buffalo, N.Y., is doing a socio-economic study on how such a system will serve people and how they will react to such a radical change in their driving habits.

"We have engaged in lots of testing with speeds exceeding 60 mph and the prospects look promising," said Fenton.

These Aggie darts do break bones

At least, the Texas Aggies can say "sticks and stones" when ducking those cruel jokes...

Oklahoma State has been making the kind of news lately, it would just as soon Oklahoma or Nebraska make.

The Aggies already are on two years probation and if half the things they are accused of are true...

Only trouble is no one is laughing.

SO MANY charges have swirled about in the last few weeks that it's hard to keep up with them.

There's nothing wrong with that per se, but three of the Cutlasses, according to the Dallas Times-Herald writer...

A couple of years ago a Midland College coach, well three coaches, were fired because they gave a basketball player recruited by OSU credit for courses taken during a summer when the player wasn't even in the state.

When all hell broke loose in Midland following the disclosures, the MC coach warned the shock waves might reach Stillwater...

THE LATEST salvo of charges involves a slush fund used to pay starters on the football team $100 a game.

Whether they are guilty or innocent is of little consequence. All the talk is ruining the neighborhood.

At Kansas State, a basketball coach would shed a sympathetic tear for OSU.

you realize how lucky you are. I never realized just how clean and strict a program we operated.

From Colorado University, a jealous football player was alleged to have envied, "Golly, if their starting football players get $100 a game, can you imagine what an athlete who produces must get..."

Officials at both Missouri and Kansas might be so upset that hotline telephone calls could be exchanged between administrative offices.

Tis' rumored at Yale, one of the alums was actively campaigning to have permission rights for the use of Boola Boola cancelled.

Then, in obvious disapproval, "I knew this sort of thing would happen if we let the game of football get out into the territories."

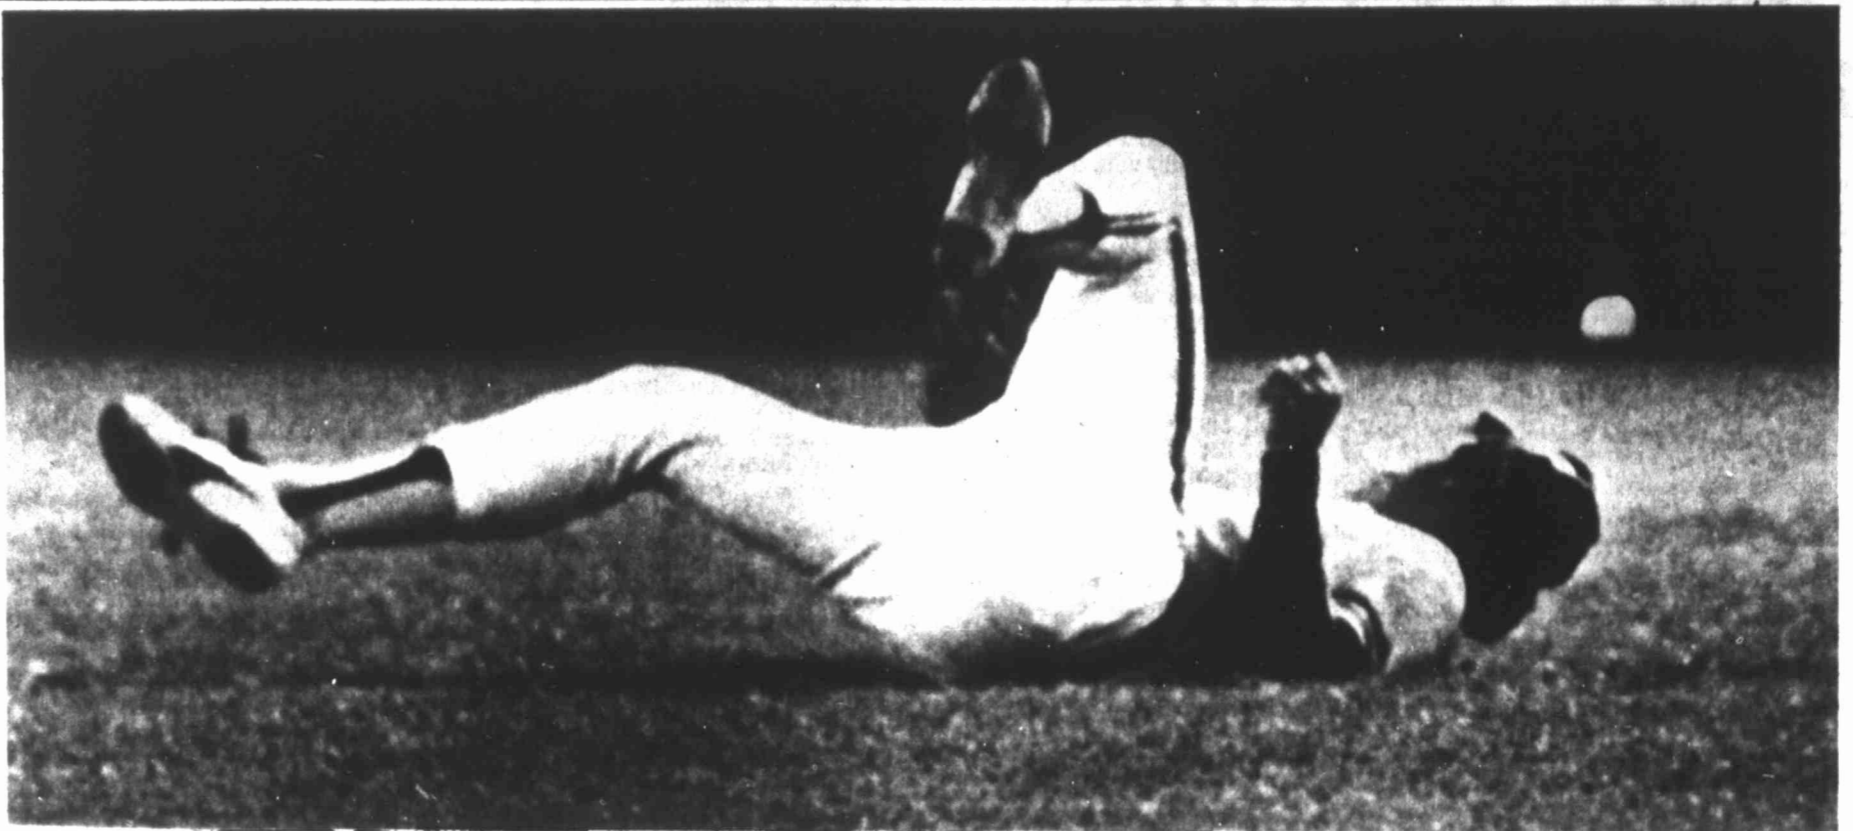

A University of Houston supporter shakes his head resignedly. "My goodness, what will they think of next, financing cars, that beats all."

NOT ONLY are the neighbors talking, but you can imagine how embarrassed Oklahoma State grads are about the whole thing.

Bonds sparks Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Bobby Bonds, who recently signed a $2 million contract, blasted a pair of three-run homers in consecutive innings Friday night and the Texas Rangers rode Ferguson Jenkins' five-hit pitching to a 7-0 victory over the California Angels in the opener of a doubleheader.

Jenkins, 8-3, moved into 12th place on the all-time strikeout list. He fanned six, giving him 2,509 for his career, four more than Hall of Famer Christy Mathewson.

Jim Sundberg's RBI double got the Rangers off to a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Then Bonds took over. In the fourth inning, Bump Wills walked, Richie Zisk singled and Bonds crashed a towering homer that landed eight rows deep in the left field stands.

Bonds repeated in the fifth with a shot 11 rows deep into the left field seats, his 11th homer of the season. That one followed walks to Mike Hargrove and Willis Chris Knapp, 7-6, was the victim of Bonds' assault, which snapped the Angels' four-game winning streak.

Brett paces Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett drove in three runs with a triple and a double, leading the Kansas City Royals to a 5-3 victory over the Oakland A's Friday night in the first game of a doubleheader.

In the second game, 18-year-old Tim Conroy, Oakland's second choice in the free agent draft earlier this month, was scheduled to make his major league debut against Dennis Leonard, 7-9.

Brett unloaded a two-run triple off loser Rick Langford, 1-5, in the first inning and Al Cowens delivered a bases-loaded single in the third to give the Royals a 4-0 advantage.

Oakland's Taylor Duncan doubled and scored in the fourth and hit a two-run homer off winner Paul Splittorf, 9-6, in the eighth. Alan Hrabosky then relieved Splittorf and recorded his 10th save.

Indians squelch Jays

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rick Waits scattered seven hits and Gary Alexander and Jim Norris drove in three runs each to spark the Cleveland Indians to an 8-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Friday night.

Waits, 5-7, picked up his second straight victory after five losses in a row. Toronto starter Jesse Jefferson, 5-7, took the loss after giving up six runs in 5-2/3 innings.

The Indians grabbed a 2-0 lead in the second on Alexander's two-run homer, his 11th of the season and the first since Cleveland acquired him from the Oakland A's earlier this month.

The Indians exploded for four runs in the sixth, chasing Jefferson. The key blow was a two-run triple by Norris, bringing on Dave Lemanczyk in relief. Alexander greeted the new pitcher with a run-scoring single.

The Indians scored two more in the seventh, one of them on Norris' single.

Toronto scored one run in the fifth and two more in the eighth on Otto Velez' third homer of the season.

Seattle beats Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Glenn Abbott fired a four-hitter and Leon Roberts singled home a run in the first inning, leading Seattle to a 3-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Friday as the Mariners' tied a club record with their fifth consecutive victory.

Dan Meyer singled with two out in the first, stole second and scored on Roberts' single off Mike Caldwell, 7-5.

After Bruce Bochte walked in the Mariners' second, Gorman Thomas robbed Bob Robertson of a homer with a leaping catch above the center field railing.

Bochte, who was around second base, appeared to be doubled off first but the relay from second baseman Paul Molitor hit him in the back and the ball rolled toward the plate as Bochte took second. He went to third on a grounder and scored when Bob Stinson singled off third baseman Sal Bando's glove. Craig Reynolds singled home Seattle's final run in the eighth.

Abbott, 3-4, allowed only two runners beyond first base as he pitched his second complete game of the season. Abbott walked one and struck out six.

Midland's Adams to join PGA tour

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

I just had the opportunity to play with one of the PGA Tour School graduates, John Adams, who many of you know as a Midland product. John with his tour card was on his way to his first qualifying round in Chicago this Monday.

John's game looks sharp and we'll help you follow his progress this year.

Milton Nickel also played in the group, and of all things, it was Milton who hit the most spectacular shot during the round. Having driven down the middle of the fourth fairway, Milton proceeded to hit a perfect wedge shot into the cup for an eagle two on the 390-yard hole. Congratulations, Milton, and Good Luck, John...

THE PGA Junior Tour Tournament was played at Hogan Park Golf Course Friday with 58 juniors participating in the event from Midland, Odessa, Andrews, Big Lake, Lubbock, Lamesa, Abilene, Big Spring and one entry from Woodward, Okla.
