Tax measures have good chance, Rep. Craddick says

Vol. 50, No. 123, Daily 15¢, Sunday 35¢

Repeal of the utility sales tax, an increase in inheritance tax exemption and a constitutional amendment to increase the homestead property tax ememption for senior citizens all have a good chance of being passed by the Legislature in special session, Rep. Tom Craddick said in Midland

Craddick said hearings were scheduled for this afternoon on the inheritance tax and utility sales tax items. But, he said, the House declined to suspend posting rules on the other five proposals submitted by Gov.

topics cannot be held immediately. He declined to say how he will vote on any of the proposed laws. "I've got to see the bills. It's like asking, 'Do you like this apple,' when I don't know whether there are worms in it," he

The proposed constitutional amendment to require a two-thirds vote of both House and Senate to increase taxes probably will not pass, Craddick said. "There was some comment. yesterday (Monday, the opening day of the session) that they didn't even have the votes to get that out of

Similarly, said the Midland lawmaker, the proposed constitutional amendment to set up a referendum system in Texas probably won't get out of committee.

He said he does not know what the chances of passage are for the proposed constitutional amendment to limit spending by local taxing bodies. "I'd say that one is going to have a rough road. Now I'm guessing, because I don't know. I don't think anybody does," Craddick said. He said he does not think more should have been included in the governor's package presented to the legislators. "I think he (Briscoe) covered it. I don't think the property tax reform should be done in a special session of the Legislature... I think we probably would have been better off to take care of all these items in a regular session, rather than a special," he added.

Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson said in Austin Monday he began the special session with some reluctance, because the people's expectations may be greater than the Legislature's ability to accomplish.

"In the light of Proposition 13," the senator remarked, "the poeple's expectations may be greater than is reasonable." Snelson said the governor had placed "a big load on a special session," and predicted that "some of it will fly and some of it will not."

He said he favors the elimination of utilities sales tax and increasing the inheritance tax exemptions, and he expects both of those provisions to

Other isues will be harder to deal with, he said, because the Legislature will be unable to collect the type of information on public views in a special session that would be possible in the regular session.

Snelson expressed doubts about the constitutional amendment requiring a two-thirds vote to increase taxes. "Past Legislatures have acted re-sponsibly, and I think the measure is too restrictive to meet possible future

Snelson said he, too, thinks some of the items cannot be considered pro-perly in a special session, and said it may not last the full 30 days the law allows. "If they lay aside some of the things that just cannot be dealt with in the special, then we could go home early," he said.

Russian trials likely to cloud Vance mission

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance flew to Geneva today to see if he can make headway in slowing the nuclear weapons race despite steadily souring relations with the Soviet Union.

Trials of top Russian dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg clouded an already complicated Vance mission, but he said the imperatives of preventing nuclear annihilation left him no alternative but to go ahead with the negotia-

Over the last several months the two superpowers have made only halting progress toward a treaty to limit their long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

As Vance prepared for his meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on Wednesday and Thursday, the Carter administration weighed a decision on ways to protect U.S. land-based missiles from potential Russian assault.

This is likely to add to existing differences between the two sides on how to restrict development and deployment of new missiles and what to do about the Soviet Backfire bomb-

The missile-protecting technique under consideration is a sort of "shell game." Thousands of extra holes would be dug for the American Minutemen. Then the missiles would be shifted from silo to silo periodically to hide them from the Russians.

Despite this tentative step to shore up U.S. defenses, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., let fly in the Senate with a blistering attack on U.S. negotiating strategy.

Jackson, who has a hardliner reputation, said the Carter administration was inclined to one-sided arms agree-

A fellow Democrat, Sen. Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire, shot back that Jackson was "carping about a treaty that we haven't seen

Hostage charges captor with New York state flag

NEW YORK (AP) — Louis Jerome figured he'd "had enough" so he picked up a flagpole, charged an unempleyed machinist who threatened to blow up a World Trade Center office with 80 pounds of dynamite and ended a harrowing nine-hour siege.

"I had had enough and I charged him with the New York state flag," said a shaken Jerome early today, explaining how his assault led to the disarming of Ladislaw Fraczek moments after the man tried to barricade himself and four hostages in the office about 8 p.m.

Jerome, a state Compensation Board referee, and three others were held hostage Monday by Fraczek, a Polish-speaking immigrant who had gone to the compensation board offices on the trade center's 36th floor looking for money, police said. Instead Fraczek, about 50, was ar-rested and charged with kidnapping and possession of a weapon — a bread knife. He was held pending arraignment in Criminal Court. Throughout the ordeal Fraczek claimed his canvas bag contained dynamite, but police later said it con-tained a Polish flag, a Polish-language Bible, the knife and some dark Russian bread. Other charges could be filed, police said, if a round cannister Fraczek clutched tightly during the siege turned out to be a grenade, as he claimed. A police department spokes-man said the device would be "checked out later today."

The disturbance caused the evacuation of about 4,000 people from 17 floors of the 110-story No. 2 tower of the trade center, the world's second tallest building, located on Manhattan's lower west side. Only the Sears Tower in Chicago is taller, by 110

The compensation referee said he rushed Fraczek after the man tried to barricade the door leading into the room. Fraczek had gone to the door to tell police to bring a Roman Catholic priest so he could give final absolution to the hostages before he detonated his munitions through the door. After he accused Fraczek of not really having a bomb, Jerome said he then began his charge, followed quickly by Fraczek's attorney, Anton Gasperik, and state insurance fund lawyer Salvatore Claccio. Police then rushed Fraczek from the front.

That was when one of the hostages, court reporter Clarence Douglas, fled

Jerome said that during the incident he was "very nervous and tense. I feared for my life. I didn't know what he really had."

Trials for major Soviet dissidents raise worldwide protests, support

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet court officials said testimony was given today in the trial of dissident Anatoly Shcharansky about his alleged espionage relationship with an American newspaper correspondent.

In Kaluga, 100 miles away, the wife of Alexander Ginzburg, on trial for anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda, was ejected from the courtroom after an outburst in which she later said she shouted at a prosescution witness, "God will be your judge."

Shcharansky, 30, a computer expert and Jewish activist, faces the death penalty on a charge of spying for the United States. Ginzburg, 41, also a Jew, faces 15 years punishment. Both men have pleaded innocent and their trials have raised protests around the

A court official in Moscow read reporters a statement saying a secret session of the Shcharansky trial was told he provided "intelligence and other information" to a foreign corre-spondent who, "as established by competent bodies, is an agent of one of the Western military intelligence

The official, Magomet Pirbudagov, did not mention the correspondent's name, but cited articles about parapsychology and genetic engineering written by Los Angeles Times corre-spondent Robert C. Toth.

Toth was interrogated by Soviet police before he left Moscow a year ago about his contacts with Shcharansky. In a statement Monday from Washington, Toth denied work-ing for any intelligence agency and called the allegations "nonsense."

According to Pirbudagov, Shcharansky helped the foreign cor-respondent make contacts in the scientific community here and distributed his questionnaires to scientists. He said Shcharansky confirmed the evidence of investigators about his contacts with the correspondent.

He said the court also heard about He said the court also heard about an article Toth wrote, with Shcharansky's help, suggesting that the locations of secret enterprises could be deduced from the work-places of Jews who were denied exit visas on national security grounds.

The trial was closed, barring even Shcharansky's relatives, and there was no way to correlate the official

In Kaluga, Mrs. Ginzburg said the judge ordered her from the courtroom when she shouted: "It's a lie, every-thing this man says is a lie," during the testimony of Arkady Gradoboyev who called dissidents "hoodlums and Kaluga court official Georgy Novi-kov said six defense witnesses would testify in addition to 18 for the prose-cution. He said the testimony of two of them today, Valentina Kuzmichova and Leonid Rozenov, substantiated prosecution points in the case. They rebutted accusations in Ginzburg's dissident writings that psychiatric hospitals are used for political pur-poses, and that dock workers in the city of Riga once struck over meat

In the street outside, Mrs. Ginzburg said: "This is not a trial but a crue reprisal. He looks half dead."

In his briefing on the Shcharansky trial, Pirbudagov clearly referred to Toth when he said: "The above-mentioned femiliary to the said: "The above-mentioned femiliary tioned foreigner was worming out in-formation that is not subject to publication in the open press on the Soviet space research program and on classified information in the field of sociological research and logical research and parapsyche

The foreigner was detained in the act of obtaining such materials at their last

Both Shcharansky and Ginzburg were leading members of the Heisinki civil rights group formed to publicize Soviet violations of the human rights provisions of the Heisinki accords on uropean security and cooperation.

Hill's office gets subpoena for evidence in Lozano case

AUSTIN — State Attorney General John Hill's office has been issued a subpoena to present its investigative work on the Larry Lozano case to a federal grand jury session which gets under way in Midland on Monday.

A spokesman for the attorney general said today First Assistant David Kendall probably will appear before the grand jury with photographs, tapes and all other records related to its probe into the death of the former Pecos man in the Ector County Jail

It was Hill who recommended the case be heard by a federal grand jury because, he said, he believed a coroner's inquest in Ector County did not hear all the evidence. Hill critic-ized Ector County District Attorney John Green for not conducting a more vigorous investigation of the case. Green, who has charged that Hill has used the Lozano case for political purposes, previously had been issued a subpoena to turn over material which his office has compiled.

The Ector County prosecutor has predicted there will be no indictments issued when the grand jury completes its inquiry. Hill has declined to say what the investigation will reveal, although sources in the state attorrney general's office have indicated several indictments may be

"I can't say whether it will be one or two days or one or two weeks," said chairman Hugh Yantis.

Yantis said he personally was ready to vote immediately to give Texans their third straight year without a change in rates.

He said companies are making more money each year as premiums rise to keep pace with rising home values. He also said 80 percent of the homeowners business is written at reduced rates.

Board member Durwood Manford told reporters he favored a slight increase in rates.

"On what I presently know, I think there would be a small increase. . . . The inflation rate has been such that you know those things (home repair items) are more," Manford said.

Price said he simply hadn't made up his mind but predicted the board would be able to announce a decision "in a matter of days, and a few days

Women may be given 4 years to save ERA

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite their massive weekend rally at the Capitol and their persistent pleas to congressmen, backers of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment are coming up short in their struggle for a seven-year extension of the life of the proposal.

Congressional supporters of the ERA had intended to bring the subject before the House Judiciary Committee for a vote today, but scrapped plans when it became clear they lack the votes.

Well-placed congressional sources concede privately it appears unlikely they ever will be able to get a majority of the 34-member committee to agree to the proposed seven-year extension without changes. As a result, current efforts appear aimed at assembling a majority of committee members behind a compromise four-year extension that the leaders of women's groups will grudgingly accept.

"That would not be a retreat," said

one member of Congress who favors the extension.

Thirty-five states have ratified the proposed ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex. Under current law, ratification by three more states is required by next March 22 if the proposal is to become part of the Constitution.

With the deadline only 81/2 months away, ERA backers are asking Congress to give states until 1986 to act. A crowd estimated at 55,000 to 100,-000 marched in Washington on Sunday to dramatize their plea, capping

the day with a rally at the Capitol. Backers of the ERA say as many as 5,000 people stayed in Washington on Monday to lobby their congressmen.

Anita Molinar, during a telephone conversation with Dan F. Rinzel of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division in Washington, D.C., Friday night filed a complaint charging that Faught had discussed the possibility of some kind of immunity if her son, Orlando Molinar, would "cooperate" with Ector County officials during the July 17. Rinzel confirmed that a conversation did take place with Mrs. Molinar, but declined to elaborate 'since I'm bound by law not to talk about federal grand jury proceed-

Mrs. Molinar initially made the allegations Friday night during a meeting of Concerned Citizens for Justice Committee, a group which is maintaining that Lozano's civil rights were violated during the period following his Jan. 10 arrest until the night he died in the Ector County Jail Jan. 22. Orlando Molinar, still an inmate at the jail, reportedly has told investigators he witnessed violations of Lo-

grand jury proceedings which begin zano's civil rights and that he was present the night the former Pecos man died. Faught Monday denied Mrs. Molinar's allegation, adding that he will not seek immunity for anyone in connection with the case. He said Monday was the first time he had heard Mrs. Molinar's charges, although he "may have met" her before. An official in the U.S. Attorney's Office in Midland said Monday he was unaware of Mrs. Molinar's remarks, and that he could not discuss the matter any further. However, a source told The Reporter-Telelgram that U.S. Attorney Jamie C. Boyd and two of his assistants investigating the Lozano case arrived in Midland today, possibly with the intent of questioning Mrs. Molinar and eventually issuing her a subpoena to appear before the grand jury next Faught initially attributed Lozano's death to injuries he inflicted upon himself by battering his head against the plexi-glass window of a jail cell door. However, an Ector County coroner's inquest jury later ruled the death "accidental," finding that Lozano died of injuries he received while being restrained by lawmen the night of his death.

County may call for good typists

By LINDA HILL

Wanted: Good typists willing to type 40,000 names for $3.35 per hour. Midland County may have to send out that kind of call in order to have its jury wheel compiled for the next year in compliance with state law, Midland County commissioners were told Monday District Clerk Madge Wallis told commissioners "the judges" had told her it would be necessary to have the almost 40,000 names in the jury wheel typed individually.

After the meeting, Mrs. Wallis declined to specify which judges she

BIG SPRING - A Big Spring man was listed in good condition in a Big Spring hospital early today after being shot with a small caliber weapon during an apparent armed robbery attempt at the store where he was employed.

A spokesman for the Big Spring Police Department said police were called to Big Spring Hardware Store about 8: 30 p.m. Monday. The injured man, Michael Peszko, and another employee, Lavern Rogers, told police they were working late at the store.

If it is determined that the only way to compile the jury wheel is to have typed on cards and placed in the drum, the county will be faced with the task of finding typists willing to work for the $3.35 an hour the county pays its temporary employees. And at that, the commissioners calculated, it will cost between $3,500 and $5,000 for the labor involved. The jury wheel is to be compiled

WASHINGTON — In the two months since he was picked to head the White House anti-inflation program, Robert Strauss has been telling people that the only tools he has to work with are "a smile and a

Now, suddenly faced with the possibility of strikes by more than a million workers in the postal and railroad industries, the White House is beginning to realize that even Strauss will need more than a smile to deal with organized labor if it hopes to salvage the President's program.

But there already is concern among labor relations experts, both in and out of government, that it may be too late to save the anti-inflation effort.

"There doesn't seem to be anyone who can pull this thing together either at the White House or the Labor Department," notes a government labor relations official close to both the rail and postal situation.

The White House has begun to try, however. Last week, the administration began a series of meetings with government labor relations experts at the White House in an attempt to develop a strategy to deal with both sets of negotiations. The most immediate problem is the postal situation. The contracts between the U.S. Postal Service and unions representing 565,000 workers expire July

The White House, in an effort to set an example for the rest of organized labor, is trying to hold any wage increase to approximately 5.5 percent. The unions aren't having any part of it. As a result, with the contract deadline two weeks away, negotiations are basically at an impasse.

In an effort to get the talks going again, the White House is now looking for a gimmick - possible outside help — to get the talks moving again.

The big fear within the administration is not so much that the postal workers will strike, but that the postal unions will be able to maneuver the President nto a corner where he will be forced to endorse an inflationary wage increase to produce a settlement.

The concern is that the president will repeat the mistakes he made last winter when he ended up personally involved in negotiations that produced a 37 percent wage increase for striking coal miners. Of particular concern to govenment labor relations experts is the fact that the pesident of the volatile Letter Carriers union, Joseph Vacca, must stand for reelection at his union's convention just nine days after the contract deadline and that he needs a large settlement to win another term.

"The postal people are going to demand a lot of public attention before this thing is over," an administration official said. "It's going to be difficult keeping this one out of the White House.

To make up for its own lack of labor expertise, the White House is reportedly toying with the idea of seeking the aid of an outside panel of experts. This, however, could eventually prove an even bigger problem for the administration than trying to muddle through the negotiations by itself.

If the President appoints a panel of recognized labor experts to help settle the postal negotiations, he will be removing himself from control over the eventual size of the wage settlement. Should a panel of outside experts recommend a settlement greater than the president feels he can live with, there will be little the administraiton can do about it.

West Germany nervous about 'town meeting'

By MICHAEL GETLER The Washington Post

BONN - West German officials here and in West Berlin are "a little bit nervous" over a "town meeting" that President Carter is to conduct in West Berlin Saturday with about 1,000 residents of the western half of that divided city Although the Bonn government is looking forward to the first state visit by President Carter, what concerns the West Germans is the format of the president's appearance in West Ber-Rather than make a prepared speech to the West Berliners, as previous American presidents have done during visits to the city, Carter will answer questions that are posed by the audience.

In such a forum, the West Germans are worried that the president might not have enough time to think about the impact of his words and could slip or say something about West Berlin or allied policy toward the city that could have important East-West repercussions.

Berlin has faded somewhat as the rallying point that it was for Americans in the period of the Cold War and the 1948 Berlin airlift. Nevertheless, the fate of the divided city remains an extraordinarily sensitive issue to the West Germans and to allied officials responsible for trying to keep it thriving as a Western outpost 125 miles deep inside East Germany.

Official communiques on the city's status by the three allied powers the United States, France and England - are always considered wordfor-word before they are issued, with the West Germans sitting in on meetings where such statements are deve-

At the NATO summit meeting in London Last May, the president made a mistake in discussing the Berlin situation with reportes when he alluded to West German and East German patrols operating in each others sector of the city. A correction was issued later, and the matter was not viewed as serious by Bonn at the time, but it is clearly being recalled these days as the type of thing that could go wrong on a larger scale. The Communist government of East Germany and the Soviet ambassador to East Germany have been responsible for a steady stream of commentaries that suggest the 1971 four-power agreement on Berlin does not apply to East Berlin, which the communists claim as the capital of East Germany. There have been steady, and frequently successful efforts by the East Germans and Soviets to erode Western rights in the eastern zone.

West German souces say reports reaching here from Washington indicate that the White House chose the town meeting format because the president is more effective and impressive in a question-and-answer set-up than as a stand-up speechmaker and also that Carter wanted "to do something different" than other presidents who have visited the

Although the guests to the town meeting are invited and are meant to reflect all walks of life in West Berlin, the White House reportedy has insisted that the questions not be submitted beforehand and that the whole meeting, which will be televised live, must be spontaneous.

There also reportedly was concern and opposition to the format among some State Department officials in Washington. Western officials here believe many of the questions will be on East-West matters other than Berlin and that the president will be well prepared to handle things.

The president's trip to West Berlin is part of a two-day state visit to West Germany that begins Thursday night and then will lead into the economic summit meeting of seven Western industrial nations that opens here on Sunday. Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is to accompany the president to West Berlin, a move that also is expected to draw a perfunctory Soviet protest. Schmidt will also join Carter earlier that day in a trip to meet with U.S. and West German soldiers in the Wiesbaden area.

The West German government, like other governments in central Europe, is deeply concerned over the steadily worsening of relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The Bonn government has been trying to maintain good relations with the East, since West Germany is on the front line between blocs and has major trade and personal links to the East. Schmidt was recently host to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev on

Cheers to the 'piranah masseur' who saved the movie 'Greed'

By LARRY ROHTER The Washington Post

ANGRA DOS REIS, Brazil - At first, they were calling it "Naked Sun" and emphasizing the heat and the exotic tropical setting. Then, when they decided that the jewels and the robbers who steal them deserved more attention, they began to call it "Greed.

But if Carlo Ponti and company had really wanted an accurate title for the movie they have been shooting in this chic but isolated Brazilian resort town, they'd have settled for something like "Jaws Goes to Rio.

Never mind "Bionic Man" Lee Majors, who plays the leader of the jewel thieves. Never mind Margaux Hemingway, Marisa Berenson, Karen Black and all the other high-priced human talent. The real stars of this $6-million disaster flick are the extras - hundreds and hundreds of Brazilian piranhas, as alive and as nasty as the day they were first fished out of the Amazon.

As Majors explained it, "Greed" is "an action-adventure picture in which a lot of people get eaten up by piranhas." The plot — what there is of it — is simple: A gang of jewel thieves stash their stolen goods at the bottom of a Brazilian lake but then find that, thanks to a tidal wave and a burst dam, the lake has been invaded by a horde of voracious, man-eating fish that won't allow the retrieval of the

But who needs to bother with a plot when you've got the most vicious fish in the world working for you for room and board? There was only one problem: The Brazilian piranhas lived up to their reputation and proved to be more temperamental and uncooperative than even the most difficult of Hollywood stars.

Take the first batch of piranhas, who were lured out of the Rio Araguaia, an Amazon tributary, with tasty bait and flown down to the set of "Greed" abroad a specially chartered plane. On the trip from their Amazon home, most of the fish insisted on eating through the plastic containers in which they were being shipped, and by the time the plane landed, all but a handful of the aquatic passengers sponded as expected in captivity, Ponti is sending a had expired.

That lesson learned, the next batch of killer fish was brought to the set, a secluded cove on the Atlantic Coast some 125 miles west of Rio de Janeiro, safe and sound in glass and metal cylinders. Everything was fine until the piranhas were poured into a tank for preliminary filming.

That's when they started to attack and eat one

"They devour each other with a ferociousness and rapidity that has to be seen to be believed," said Alex Ponti, son of producer Carlo Ponti and production supervisor of the film. "We've lost 200 or 300 of them that way.

"You put a group of them in water and they immediately go for each other," said one of the production team's Brazilian associates. "The weakest ones get gobbled up first, of course, but when it's all over, you've got nothing left but bits of bone and fin. And blood, lots of blood

At a reported price of $150 a fish, that's not peanuts. Add to that the resulting shooting delays and you've got something of a crisis for a movie that, in the words of leading-man Majors, was "a $20 million picture that they're trying to shoot for a nickel and a quarter.'

To save the day, the Pontis hired a fish specialist, who came to be known on the set as "the piranha masseur." His name is Luis Maluf, and he's actually one of Brazil's leading experts on the habits of the piranha - but his duties actually did include rubdowns for flagging fish.

When it was time to shoot a scene in the piranha pool, Maluf stood by attentively. If one of the fish showed signs of tiring — which would immediately cause the others to turn on it and initiate the general bloodshed - Maluf yanked it out of the water by its tail and massaged it gently until he thought it had regained its strength and could return to the crew up to the Araguaia, where underwater scenes will be shot right in the piranhas' native habitat.

"Nothing is going to happen to them," said Alex Ponti, with only the slightest trace of doubt in his voice. "These are guys who have worked with Jacques Cousteau. They know what they're doing. They're not worried."

Neither was Lee Majors, for that matter. He explained that he and Black have "two key scenes with the piranhas," including one in which the fish put a grisly end to the character he plays. But in both scenes, The Bionic Man and his leading lady will be swimming in a tank that is protected from the piranha pool by a sheet of invisible glass.

Not that Majors - like Black, Berenson and Hemingway — doesn't have his complaints. "Greed" is his first experience making a film overseas, and the $6 million man had mixed feelings about his $6 million movie

"This is not exactly the script we wanted," he said, swatting one of the multitude of mosquitoes swarming around the set. Preparing for his role was easy: "I took all my shots and brought my diarrhea

"This is such a godforsaken place," he complained as he killed time between scenes with the makeup man and the bodyguard who accompanied him from the United States. "With American actors and an Italian and Brazilian crew, there's a real language barrier and a real lack of organization. The only thing that could possibly be worse than this is out in the jungle on the set of 'Apocalypse Now'.'

Majors had been placated - at least partially - by being installed in an elegant house that has its own pool and a private beach - both piranha-free, of course. He had been spending most of his free time there, "playing Ping Pong with the guys" — and talking on the phone with Farrah Fawcett-Majors.

"I feel cut off," he said. "Cut off from my wife, cut off from my family. I even feel cut off from my

of U.S.'s free enterprise system (EDITOR'S NOTE: The following comments on "The Free Enterprise System: An Endangered Species?" were made at noon today in a speech by Edd R. Turner, outgoing president of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, at a meeting of the New Orleans Geological Society.)

NEW ORLEANS—The constitution of the United States is a unique and remarkable document.

Its first seven articles were writtenby a group of men who, having successfully cast off the yoke of tyran-ny imposed by an indifferent monarch removed by time and space from the immediacy of colonial concerns, aspired to create an instrument of government both comprehensive and flexible.

It remains today, after 200 years, a monumental tribute to its authors who so admirably conceived a practical, working document to accommodate the perceptive anticipations of the Declaration of Independence.

We are the heirs to their concepts of individual freedom. We cherish our right to free enterprise, and we consider free enterprise a constitutional right, though the term does not occur in our constitution.

In fact, by a strict reading there are only two references in the Constitution to "commerce" other than the mandate to establish bankruptcy laws and coin money.

In Article I. Section 8, we read that the Congress shall have the power "to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes."

In the same article, Section 9, in a normalizing paragraph, the statement is made that "vessels bound to. or from, one state, (shall not) be ernment the right to regulate intertaxes on interstate commerce.

erences to commerce in the constitution have, in effect, over the years catapulted us into a socialistic bureaucracy which now attempts to control and regulate dour every commercial endeavor, when most of us would much prefer to be left alone to engage in honest and honorable acti-

There is little evidence that our founding fathers-tradesmen, farmers, and professional men-who formulated our constitution and initiated our government construed government to be anything other than a facilitation and safeguard of freedom, whatever its realm-speech, worship without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." Redress against contemporary governmental inroads on individual rights to free enterprise is based on The "1978 Taxpayers Revolt," given such an encouraging sendoff by the decisive passing of Proposition 13 in California has shown clearly that the American people are ripe to go back to our constitutional values. In effect, the reasoning which prompted passage of Proposition 13 was that a state was about to "deprive persons of their property with-out due process of law." It is our right, and our obligation, to say to our lawmakers, regulators and judgess that we have been pushed far Americans are still individualists and deserve to be treated as such. We should be allowed to set our own goals, take our risks and contribute to the commonwealth of the nation with a minimum of regulation. In support of this last statement about our setting goals and taking risks without regulations, let us examine where we stand with regard to regulated oil and gas prices today.

As a result of Congressional deliberations resolving the administration's gas regulateion-deregulation fiasco, Senate and House conferees have agreed to 18 separate categories of gas, plus regulations on the price of intrastate gas as well! All this after so many years of free market price adjustments which operated quite simply and effectively in the free enterprise system.

Moreover, there is little doubt that confusion will reign well into the 1980's when some of the gas, if there is any left by then, is scheduled for deregulation.

Now, as for oil, it comes as a surprise to some that intrastate oil prices are indeed regulated and have been since Richard Nixon imposed price controls on everything back in the early 1970s. As a result of regulation of oil prices, combined with increases aattributable to OPEC maneuvers initiated by Saudi Arabia in late 1973, we have today in South Louisiana a lower tier (or old) price on oil of $5.72 per barrel, and an essentially unregulated price of $14.85 a barrel on stripper oil. Prudhoe Bay oil has a regulated price of$10.365 per barrel, which makes about as much sense as any of the figures quoted you. Arabian light crude, FOB Ras Tanura, has a quoted market at $12.60 per barrel. Whether the Arabs did the right thing in increasing the price of their oil, or whether, lacking a proper altruistic concern, they violated worldwide human needs, the fact re-mains that it is their oil and they can put any price on it they wish. If the world continues to buy, and it will, they will continue to replace camels

Have you ever reflected upon what would happen if the Saudis decided omorrow to sell their oil for $8 a barrel, or $6 or any other price substantially below $12.60? The comment has been made that "people would start going out windows

It is not a distortion to hold that our entire wage and price system in the United States is based at present on a price for energy regulated by the federal government. And it seems highly unlikely that the Washington scene could react quickly enough to circumvent a collapse of our economy if OPEC suddenly lowed oil prices.

Senate goes to work on energy phase one

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate will try to present President Carter with final action on the first part of his energy plan - coal conversion legislation - before the upcoming economic summit in Bonn, the chairman of Senate Energy Committee says.

The measure, one of the least con-troversial of the five parts of the energy package, would prohibit new power plants from burning oil or natural gas and encourage many existing ones to switch to coal.

"I would like to give this to the president before he leaves," Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., the committee chairman, said as he roamed Capitol corridors Monday trying to round up the necessary senators' signatures for the plan.

He said he expects the Senate will be able to act on the measure by Thursday, the day Carter leaves for directly to a floor vote. The signatures are considered assured since conferees already have agreed verbally to the compromise legislation.

West Germany. The energy bill has been languishing before Congress for nearly 15

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said any congressional progress on the energy bill would be welcome.

But Jackson said things do not look as good for another part of the energy package - natural gas pricing. He said he now sees only a 50-50 chance that it will be approved.

A near-certain filibuster - joined in by both conservatives who don't think the measure goes far enough and liberal hardcore opponents of gas deregulation - could scuttle the hard-fought compromise, Jackson

Meanwhile, House-Senate conferees on the tax portions of the president's plan, including his controversial proposal for a tax on domestic crude oil, plan to meet on Thursday.

Few expect any real breakthroughs. The other two parts of the energy program — energy conservation and electric rate guidelines — are expected to pass both chambers without much difficulty.

Second Atlantic project fails to find petroleum

By PETER MATTIACE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - The second exploratory well in the Baltimore Canyon Trough turned out to be a "dry hole," but Shell Oil Co. says it is not finished drilling off the mid-Atlantic states.

Shell announced Monday that "no oil or gas accumulations were encountered" during the drilling of its 14,000-foot well in the Atlantic Ocean 73 miles east of this resort. The company said the well was completed on Shell is the second oil company to announce a "dry hole" in the promising geological formations off the coasts of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

On June 5, Continental Oil Co. also announced that its first exploratory well had found nothing. That well was drilled to a depth of 12,000 feet about 77 miles east of Atlantic City.

At least two of the five other oil companies drilling offshore are also believed to be at or near target depths on their first exploratory wells. How-ever, the two firms, Texaco and Exxon, have made no announcements on their finds. Oil industry experts have long warned that the chance of finding any oil or gas off the East Coast is about one in five and the chance of hitting paydirt in any given well is even

"The drilling results (on the Shell well) were obviously disappointing," said R. L. Ferris, Shell vice president for exploration and production, "but more wells must be drilled before the potential of the Baltimore Canyon area is known."
