House-passed bill just 'starting point'

By EDMOND Le BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $16.3 billion income tax cut approved by the House will be only a starting point when the Senate Finance Committee sharpens its tax writing pencils, if the known views of Sen. Russell B. Long are a guide.

The Louisiana Democrat, who is the Senate's chief tax writer and chairman of the Finance Committee, said through an aide that he wants to study the complex bill the House passed Thursday night before talking about changes he may recommend.

But on various occasions before the House action, Long had already indicated his preferences on some key issues.

Meanwhile, at the White House on Friday, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said President Carter is disappointed by House rejection of an administration-backed alternative. Blumenthal said the administration would try to work with Long and the Senate committee in an effort to modify the legislation.

The indications Friday were that when the committee goes to work on the bill on Aug. 21, Long will seek agreement on:

— A bigger overall tax reduction—something in the range of $20 billion.

— More easing of the tax on capital gains, the profit earned on sale of stock, real estate or other assets held at least a year.

Long has spoken favorably of some of the changes voted by the House but would be likely to favor a different approach on other provisions. He would approve the lifting of taxes on the yield from certain home sales, for example.

— More relief for lower-bracket taxpayers. The House bill, it was estimated, directs 75 percent of the individual tax cuts to those with incomes above $20,000.

— Special tax incentives for the development of employee stock ownership plans. Encouraging these, Long has said, "is very dear to my heart."

— No additional action aimed at ending certain tax advantages other than the actions already approved by the House, which discarded nearly all of President Carter's recommendations for tax code revisions in the name of reform.

— Further efforts to simplify tax return filing. Long has suggested more people might use the simple standard deduction form if they had available to them tax credits for "these unusual situations... like a very high medical expense or very high casualty loss."

Long has said, and handlers of the House tax legislation have conceded, that the $16.3 billion in income tax relief will not, for millions of taxpay-

Gas firm files statement detailing rate request

Pioneer Natural Gas Company is proposing a 26.36 percent rate increase in its Statement of Intent to Change Rates filed Friday with Midland city government and 42 other cities in the firm's West Texas distribution system.

The firm filed a rate application June 30 with the 63 cities announcing an increase in the base rate, but waited for a study to be completed before determining the amount of the increase.

The proposed effective date of the rate increase is Sept. 15. It will apply on a system-wide basis to all domestic and commercial customers, small industrial and large gas air conditioning and/or electric generating gas service customers served by Pioneer, according to Bob Mills, a spokesman for the firm.

The 26.36 percent increase to the average domestic customer on the Pioneer West Texas Distribution System will be about $6 a month, according to the spokesman. Mills explained an "average domestic customer" is one who uses about 8.2 thousand cubic feet of gas a month. The increase for businesses will vary according to the type of business and its use of gas, he added.

Assistant City Manager Fred Poe said cities in the distribution area have met informally to study the proposed hike as a group. A consulting team will be hired to study the proposal and make a determination as to what "they think is appropriate for Pioneer to earn a fair return," Poe said.

Under the Utility Regulatory Act, Midland City Council will ask for a 120-day extension period to give the team time to study the situation and submit its recommendation. Under certain circumstances, the council can request another 30-day extension beyond the 120-day period, Poe said.

While the starting date is listed for Sept. 15 on the application, with the cities requesting the 120-day extension it will be at least Dec. 15 before it could become effective, Mills said. And that depends upon how soon a compromise can be worked out among the cities and Pioneer Gas, he added.

Mills said the firm has not had a base rate increase since 1970. He could not recall the exact amount of that increase, but said the 26.36 percent requested now is "substantially higher" than that hike.

While the firm has had "cost of gas adjustment" increases, these hikes only cover the increased cost of gas. "Pioneer does not retain any of the increased cost of gas, and in fact, fails to recover much of the increase because of several cost items not recoverable in the cost of gas adjustment," said Pioneer President K. B. Watson.

The study sponsored by Pioneer was conducted to determine the amount of deficiency in the gas service revenues. Mills explained that a study group showed the firm to have a deficiency of $30 million. The 26.36 percent increase would "produce a gross revenue increase of $19.8 million which is below the deficiency determined by the study," he said. "This is something we feel the company could live with and be fair to the customer."

The cities will be hiring their own study team consisting, usually, of an attorney, engineer, accountant and another person familiar with cost factors, Poe said. "The city councils still will have the ultimate decision on what to grant. We will decide whether to go with what they (Pioneer) request, or the team suggests or decide on something in between."

Mills agreed the cities have the legal right to regulate the gas company's increases. If a compromise can not be worked out between the cities and the firm, though, the matter can be taken to the Railroad Commission, he said.

Hearing begun on Proposition 13

By BOB EGELKO

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California Chief Justice Rose Bird opened a hearing into the constitutionality of tax-cutting Proposition 13 on Friday by announcing to the packed courtroom that judges had received threats of violence in the case.

But, she vowed, such "anonymous threats of physical violence" will not prevent the seven-member state Supreme Court from ruling justly.

Then lawyers began outlining arguments about the tax initiative, whose overwhelming passage in a California referendum last June has encouraged advocates of similar tax revolts around the country.

Proposition 13 limits property taxes in California to one percent, in effect cutting them by more than half, or about $7 billion a year.

Now 22 school districts, the city of San Francisco, and Alameda County, whose budgets are threatened, are challenging its legality.

Mills said four high court justices up for re-election in November "have been threatened with recall or defeat at the polls and even with anonymous threats of physical violence against themselves or their families if they fail to vote a certain way."

She did not say which way that would be, nor did she say how the threats had been received. But, she promised, "All the threats in the world will not deter us from the important task before us."

The four judges who face voter confirmation in November are Miss Bird, the court's first woman member, Frank Newman, Wiley Manuel, and Frank Richardson.

Attorney William A. Norris, arguing for opponents of Proposition 13, said that if the court decides to knock it down, the ruling should take effect in 1979-80, not in 1978-79, because "it is extremely difficult to reverse the complete machinery (for implementing Proposition 13) at this late date."

Norris said his constituents do not oppose lower property taxes nor use of an initiative to get property tax relief. He said they object to Proposition 13 because it makes "sweeping changes in the Constitution."

Attorney General Evelle Younger, the Republican candidate for governor, led the legal team defending the initiative. He asked the court to pay attention to the voters' wishes — which, he said, "fell on deaf ears" in the Legislature.

Sheriff denies FBI probe

Sheriff Dallas Smith said Friday night that he could find no basis for a report published in The Reporter-Telegram that his office is under investigation by El Paso FBI agents for civil rights violations.

A spokesman for the El Paso bureau was quoted in Friday's home edition of The Reporter-Telegram as saying that three recent cases involving civil rights complaints filed against Midland area lawmen were being probed by agents, and that two of the complaints filed were "possibly against the Midland County Sheriff's Department."

However, in an interview Friday night, Smith said he had been assured by the bureau that the report was untrue, and that if anyone in his department were under investigation, he would have already been advised of the situation.

Smith said he was "deeply concerned" about how such a report, if untrue, would cast his whole department in a bad public light.

"The first time I ever heard about it was when I read the newspaper. And I took steps as a man in charge of the agency should do—to find out whether it was true," Smith said.

"I told supervisors to check with some of the officers. I contacted the police department to see if some of our officers were somehow assisting or involved in some of the arrests they have had. And I contacted the FBI offices in Midland and El Paso to see what they knew."

"I needed to know about it so I could take the proper action. But an FBI agent I talked with in El Paso said he was not aware of anything. I can't find anyone who can tell me that our department is being investigated."

The sheriff said the agent informed him that it is the bureau's policy to contact the head of an agency if one of his officers is being investigated.

Smith added that he was angered by the report since it may have damaged the department's image by associating it with others throughout the state that are currently being investigated for possible civil rights violations.

"I'd like to see the record set straight on this. As far as I know there is no information to support the report at this time. The FBI won't even substantiate it," he said.

"There may be some things wrong in other departments. But we are trying to do things right in this department, and nobody has been able to prove to me that this is going on at this time. If it is, I would like to see the proof."

SEVERAL HUNDRED Midlanders gathered for an evening under the stars at Wadley-Baron Park Friday night to watch the premier of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." The light-hearted musical is being sponsored by the Midland

Parks and Recreation Department and Anydream Productions. The final performance will be held Saturday with the show starting at 8:30 p.m. in the park. (Staff Photo)

Southwest to shelve plans for flights out of Chicago

DALLAS (AP) — The top executive for Southwest Airlines said Friday it is temporarily shelving its proposal to operate an economy-fare, regional service from Chicago's Midway Airport.

Peace justice sets bond at $5,000

Contravis Wilson, 21, of the 1300 block of South Mineola Street, was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond in Midland City Jail Friday night after being charged with theft over $200 before Peace Justice Robert Pine.

Midway Airway Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of Southwest Airlines, which caused a sizeable increase in air traffic in Texas by offering reduced fares and operating out of Love Field in Dallas, which had been abandoned by other airlines in a move to the new Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Herbert D. Kelleher, chairman of the board, said the airline is revising its plans in light of "the recent traffic explosion now being experienced nationwide" that is causing it and other airlines to increase their facilities.

Kelleher said Southwest Airlines has made arrangements to increase its fleet to 17 Boeing 737-200 aircraft by the end of 1979, from the present 12. The airlines also will lease a 154-seat Boeing 727-200 to use beginning next March 1 on its Dallas-Houston service.

Bacon, hot dog additive cancer suspect

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced Friday that nitrite, the most widely used food preservative in the nation and a standard component of hot dogs, bacon and many other processed foods, appears to cause cancer in animals and may do so in humans.

The announcement came with the release of a three-year Massachusetts Institute of Technology study of the controversial substance. The study was ordered by the Food and Drug Administration.

But unlike the FDA's attempt last year to ban saccharin, the government said this time it is faced with "a difficult challenge" and hasn't decided what to do.

The statement noted that nitrite also protects against botulism and conceded: "We, thus, are presented with a difficult balance of risks."

Processed meats, poultry and fish treated with nitrite make up 7 percent of the U.S. food supply. There is general agreement that to ban the substance immediately would upset the food distribution system for processed foods that many of them simply would not be available for an indefinite period.

In addition, according to the joint statement by the FDA and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, about 80 percent of human dietary exposure to nitrites comes from other sources.

For instance, nitrate is found naturally in spinach, radishes, beets, celery and leafy vegetables as well as in drinking water. It is converted to nitrite by bacteria found in the human digestive tract.

"The results of the MIT experiments, nevertheless, indicate that the use of nitrite as a deliberate additive to food, may pose a hazard to human health," the government statement said.

It was not immediately clear whether the FDA could legally decline to ban nitrite as a food additive in light of the study. The agency by law is required to prohibit the addition of any substance to the food supply if it is shown to cause cancer in animals or humans.

The Agriculture Department also is required to eliminate from foods substances found to be harmful.

"In this case, the need to balance two kinds of health risks — one by taking nitrite out of food and the other by leaving it in — creates a difficult challenge," the two agencies said.

Scientists have known for 15 years or more that nitrite combines with natural amines and other substances to form nitrosamines, a family of powerful cancer-causing agents.

That conversion occurs when bacon is fried at high temperature, and consumer groups have demanded for years that the preservative be banned from cured meats and baby food. Because the nitrite itself was not known to be dangerous and has been added to meats for centuries, the government has hesitated to act.

But the MIT study, the agencies said, "strongly suggests that nitrite produces cancer of the lymphatic system in test animals" in a manner clearly different from that of nitrosamines.

The statement said the MIT study showed that almost 13 percent of the test animals receiving nitrite contracted cancer of the lymph system. About 8 percent of those animals that did not receive nitrites also contracted such cancer.

Legionnaires' discovery announced

By ROBERT FURLOW

ATLANTA (AP) — In what may be a breakthrough in finding how the baffling Legionnaires' disease is transmitted, federal scientists said Friday they have isolated in water the bacteria that struck 12 persons in Indiana, three of whom died.

The federal Center for Disease Control also reported that it has discovered a new strain of the disease in tissue from a man who died last spring at the Togus Veterans Administration Center in Maine.

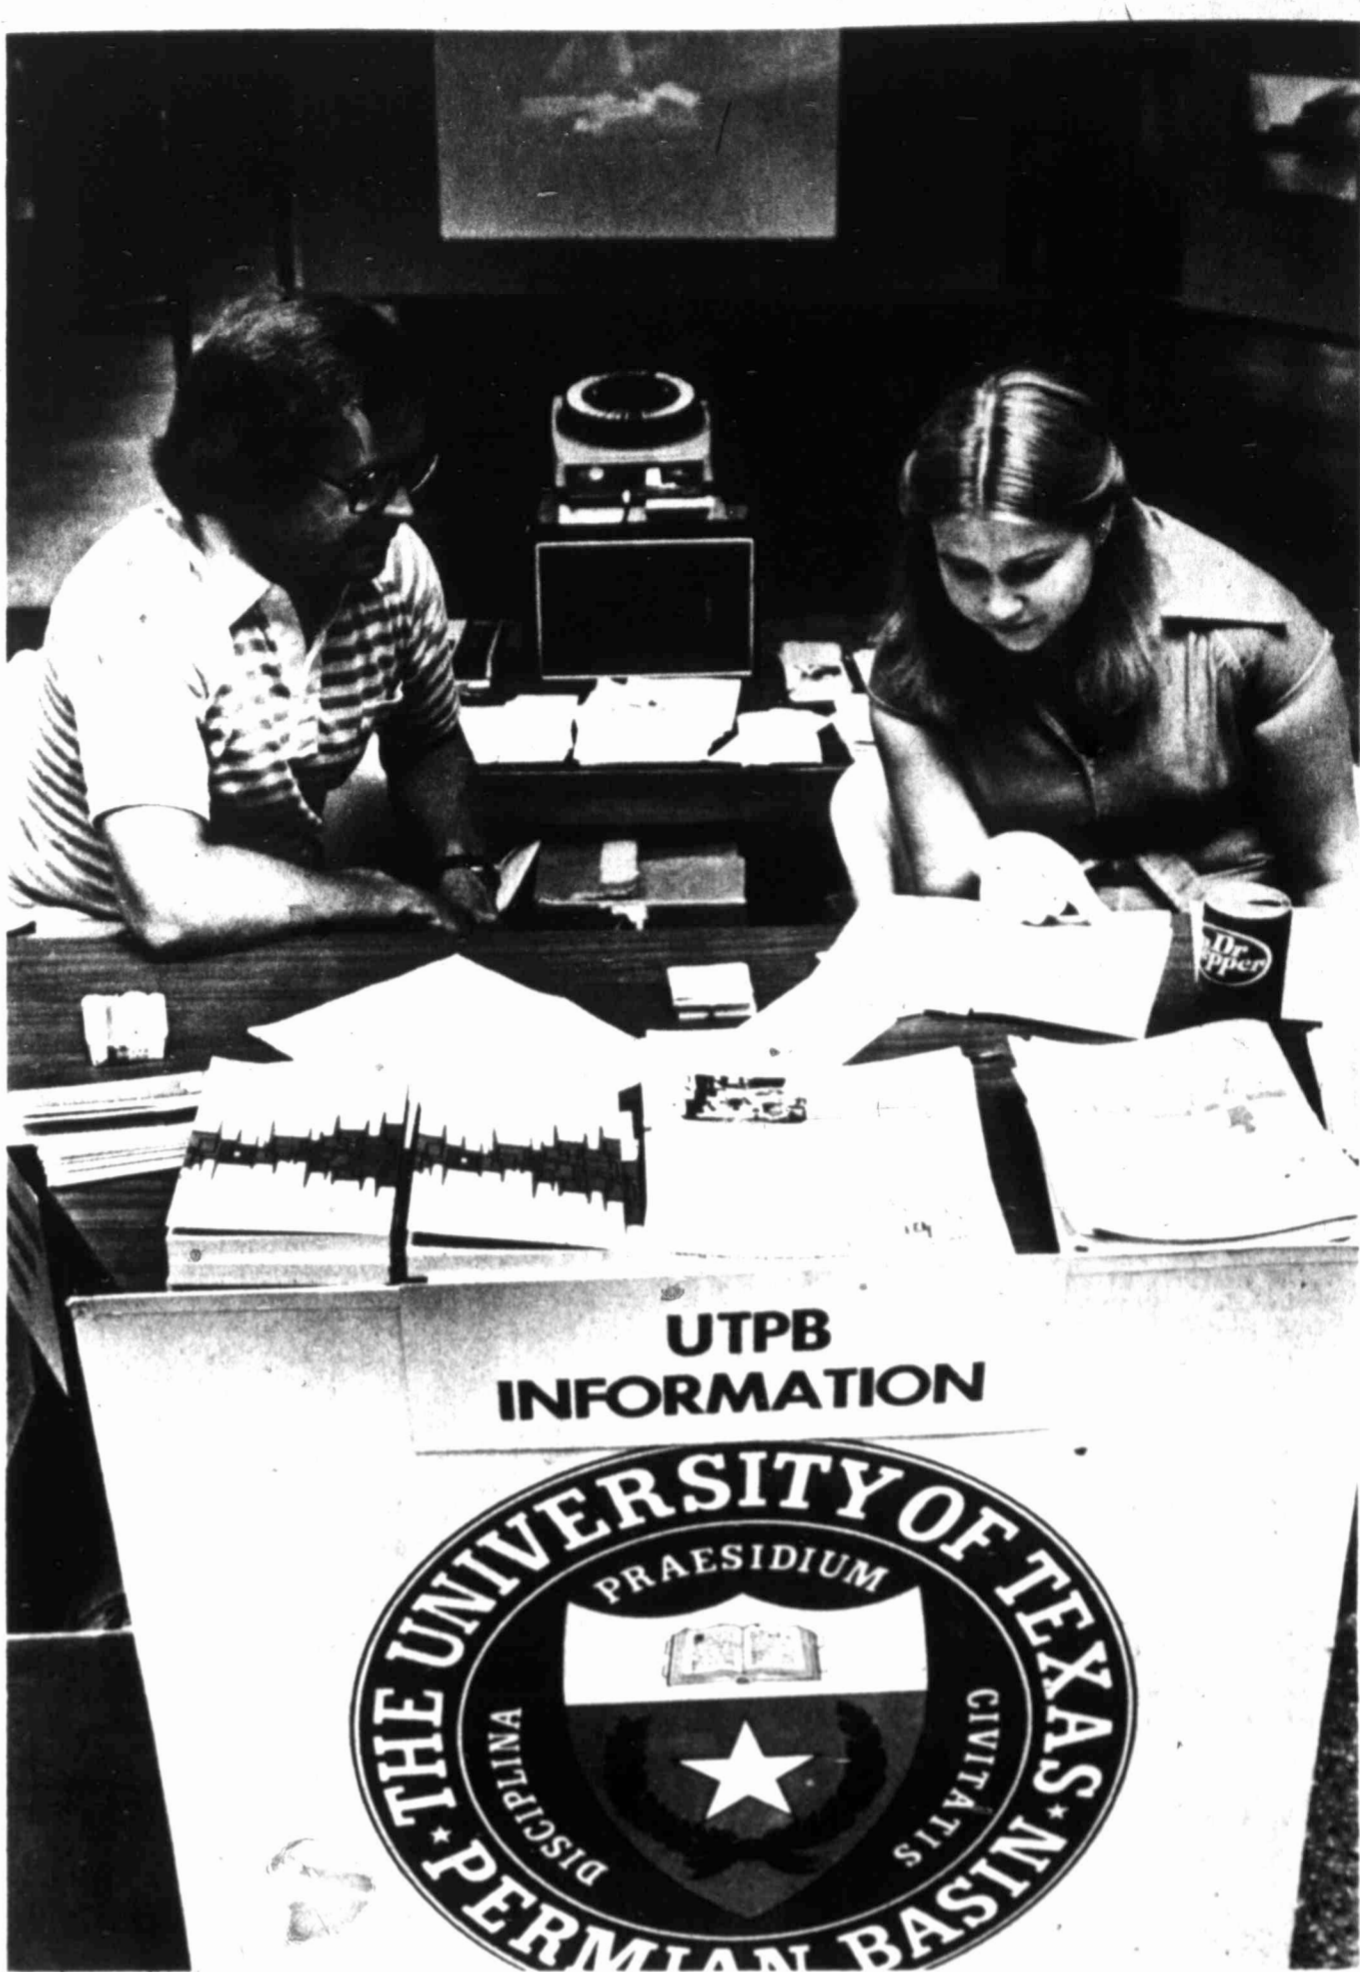

That new "serotype" differs slightly from the strain that killed 34 persons attending an American Legion convention in Philadelphia two years ago. But its existence could mean the Legionnaires' disease bacterium and its close relatives are more common than previously believed.

The CDC has confirmed a total of 135 deaths from the disease during the past two years, but health officials believe there have been many more undetected cases that have been recorded simply as pneumonia deaths.

CDC researchers said scientists have tracked the disease to air-conditioner water at Indiana University's Memorial Union in Bloomington. There were 19 cases reported at the union and two from the general area in the past year. Three of the 21 Bloomington-area victims died.

No cases have been found in Bloomington since June, and university officials say the campus hotel will remain open while any remaining bacteria are killed.

Dr. David Fraser of the CDC said scientists must now find out where the bacteria breed and how they get from their breeding place to humans.

Chairman of finance panel plans lengthy study of House tax bill ers, offset the effect of higher Social Security taxes and inflation pushing incomes into higher brackets. This year's tax relief should at least accomplish such an offset, he said.

The House bill would reduce the maximum tax on capital gains to 35 percent, compared with the present theoretical top of 49 percent or what the treasury says is the practical maximum of about 40 percent.

Under existing law, although in general half of capital gains is exempt from tax, much of the exempt half can be subjected to a 15 percent minimum tax. Additionally, the high-earning taxpayers, the exempt half also serves to reduce the amount of their income that cannot be taxed at more than 50 percent, leaving more to be taxed at rates up to 70 percent. It is the combination of these factors that produces the 49 percent top.

The House bill would eliminate the minimum tax on capital gains, substituting a small alternative tax affecting few capital gains recipients. It would also eliminate the provisions affecting a taxpayer's 50 percent maximum tax.

Long had already spoken out in favor of the second change. But he also has indicated he favors a strong minimum tax.

He has indicated his basic approach would be to reduce the amount of capital gains subject to ordinary taxation, now generally 50 percent. He spoke favorably of a proposal he said was made by the late President John F. Kennedy to cut the taxable portion to 30 percent. It was not adopted at the time.

Hill promises 'kitchen cabinet' to advise him on agriculture

By LINDA HILL
R-T Staff Writer

AMARILLO — Attorney General John Hill, Democratic candidate for governor, Friday promised if elected to form a "kitchen cabinet" to advise him on needs of agriculture producers.

Hill told a group representing commodity growers he will be a strong spokesman for Texas agriculture and plans, if elected, to appoint at least one staff member to advise him on needs of the agriculture industry.

"Everybody seems quite willing to run to Washington and wave the flag for energy...and I'll do that," Hill said.

But, he said, Texas as a strong agriculture state also needs someone to "wave that flag" before the federal government.

The commodity representatives told Hill of problems they said they have with inequities caused by differences in interstate and intrastate shipping rates and natural gas prices.

Later, at a press conference, Hill said he will look into freight charges and "see if there is any legal action we need to take."

Hill urged passage of a constitutional amendment which would allow agricultural land to be taxed on its productive rather than its market value.

"It doesn't just involve a few farmers. We are the food basket of the world...it affects us all," Hill said.

Earlier Friday, Hill said he is "tired of position papers" on the agriculture situation, but rather wants the state to take positive action. That action, he said, would not necessarily involve spending tax dollars.

At his press conference Hill cited figures given him by a commodity representative which indicated only 5 percent of the farmers served by one area bank showed a profit in 1977.

Forty percent of the farmers served by that bank, Hill said, were unable to pay on their loans from the year before, and 31/2 percent were forced out of business.

Hill told the commodity representatives he would be interested in going with an agriculture mission to try to develop export markets for Texas agriculture products.

Probation panel votes to trim maximum per capita spending

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Revving up to spend $18 million on upgrading local probation services, the Texas Adult Probation Commission voted Friday to trim its maximum per capita grant.

It put off a decision on the sticky question of auditing local probation offices.

The commission issues its first state aid checks in September under a new program created by the 1977 Legislature to reduce the number of persons sent to prison and improve supervision of offenders.

Commissioners voted to spend 50 cents per day on each probationer under direct supervision. This eliminated a previously authorized escalator clause allowing as much as 60 cents per probationer in the second, third and fourth quarters.

Executive director Don Stiles said this would leave more money for special grants.

"This will give us the flexibility to place money where it is the most needed rather than have it distributed generally statewide," Stiles said.

Stiles tried to get the commission to approve a rule establishing financial and program audits of local probation offices by commission staffers.

"A big criticism when the Legislature was passing this bill was that 'They are going to run this thing from Austin.' If we adopt a bunch of rules, it presents a pretty bleak picture to those in the field.... When we put it down in black and white, it sure looks cold," said State District Judge Byron McClellan of Gatesville.

"We are going to be doing this no matter what. This just puts the people on formal notice," Stiles said.

A decision was delayed until September.

All but 27 counties are in probation districts approved by district judges. Many are multi-county offices replacing the old single-county probation system.

The most populous county not in a probation district and, therefore, cut out of state aid is Webb (Laredo).

District Judge Jose Alamia of Edinburg said the county's recently appointed civil district judge was unaware state funds were available. Alamia said all of the county's probation officers were either on vacation or in Mexico when he visited.

"They are having political problems, as all of you know.... I have a hunch they will eventually apply," Alamia said.

Commission staff member Joe Kozuh reported there are 111,000 adults on probation, including 86,000 under direct supervision by about 700 probation officers.

Stiles said that before the commission was established, there was no state agency gathering information on probation.

One statistic recently collected, he said, showed that in 1977, probation departments collected $3.5 million in restitution.

"I think that is noteworthy in view of the discussions last session of restitution or possible compensation to victims of crimes," he said.

Second trial scheduled in abortion-murder case

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — The second trial for Dr. William Waddill in an abortion-related murder case was set Friday for Jan. 22 and Orange County Superior Court Judge Byron McMillan will preside over the trial.

Superior Court Judge H. Warren Knight also scheduled a pre-trial conference for Nov. 27 to give McMillan an opportunity to familiarize himself with the case.

A mistrial was declared May 5 after jurors told the court they were unable to reach a verdict. Waddill is accused of strangling a baby girl which survived a saline abortion in March 1977.

A motion for a change of venue was withdrawn by the defense.

Three oil companies indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Oil Co. and two other firms were named Friday in a federal indictment charging the sale and purchase of refined petroleum products in 1973 at prices above federal ceilings.

Also named were Foremost Petroleum Co. and M&A Petroleum Co., both of Victoria.

U.S. Attorney Tony Canales said the alleged sales and purchases involved about $2 million dollars and that the companies, in a separate civil action, had agreed to pay the government $3 million.

On Tuesday, Willard H. Burnap, a former vice chairman of Continental, entered a no contest plea to a charge of knowing that refined products in excess of Cost of Living Council ceilings had been sold. Burnap drew a maximum $5,000 fine.

As part of plea bargaining with federal prosecutors, Burnap also agreed to take a polygraph examination and to testify before a grand jury.

The four-count Friday indictment alleged Continental, on or about Nov.

29, 1973, filed with the Federal Energy Office a document in which it knowingly understated the prices for regular and premium grades of gasoline sold to Foremost.

Continental also was alleged to have sold in August, 1972, to M&A Petroleum about 251,100 barrels of refined products and knowingly received an amount over and above the lawful regulated ceiling price.

M&A was alleged to have used a false and fictitious document indicating the purchase of 251,100 barrels of products invoiced at $1,428, 554 while knowing the invoice was false and misstated the price of the purchase from Continental.

Foremost was alleged to have purchased about 325,800 barrels of products from Continental on or about Nov. 11, 1973 while knowingly paying an amount over and above the ceiling price.

Burnap was executive vice president for refining and marketing at Continental's Western Hemisphere headquarters in Houston in 1973. His services with Continental ended in 1976 during an internal investigation of political contributions.

In late July, Howard W. Blauvelt, Continental chairman, said at the company's Stamford, Conn., headquarters he was aware federal authorities were investigating matters associated with petroleum product price regulations under the old PEO that later became part of the Department of Defense.

Blauvelt said Continental voluntarily disclosed the matters to the federal government more than a year ago and it was believed the dollar value of the products involved was under $2 million.

Residents go home after scare

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An estimated 1,100 East Austin residents returned home after being evacuated Friday when fumes threatened to explode inside a Gulf Oil Co. gasoline storage tank.

The problem developed when a floating lid designed to control fumes caught on the tank wall, causing friction, said Assistant Fire Chief Brady Pool.

"They (Gulf Oil personnel) went down into the tank and decided it would take a major repair job to fix, so they cut off the gasoline flow," he said. Storage tank specialists from Oklahoma were called to repair the fuel tank.

Seven fire units carrying 20 firefighters remained at the scene from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., when the danger subsided.

Fear of split delays new election

By DENNIS REDMONT

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Fear of a divisive, wide-open conclave apparently spurred the church's cardinals to wait 19 days between the death of Pope Paul VI and the scheduled opening of their meeting to elect his successor, the longest such interim this century.

The 43 cardinals already in Rome met for 2½ hours Thursday and set Aug. 25 as the day when the 115 voting cardinals will lock themselves in the Sistine Chapel to begin their secret deliberations.

The cardinals then will have had almost three weeks to exchange opinions, maneuver and perhaps reach a consensus on front-runners.

It only took 10 days after the deaths of Leo XIII in 1903 and Pius X in 1914 to open a conclave, and 18, 15 and 16 days, respectively, before the conclaves that elected Pius XII in 1939, John XXIII in 1958 and Paul VI in 1963. Conclave regulations limit the interim to a maximum of 20 days.

Jet travel would seem to rule out concern about transportation of cardinals from around the world. Some inter-regnum, after not being invited to the first meeting in what was described as a misunderstanding.

The abundance of papal candidates — at least 20 appear on various lists — gives the octogenarians a chance to tout their candidate.

But even they are divided.

Cardinal Carlo Confalonieri, 85, dean of the College of Cardinals and among fewer than a dozen who voted in past elections, made an appeal Friday for a pope who would "follow the teachings of the Second Vatican Council." That council, begun by John and completed by Paul, instituted far-reaching changes in church practice and relations with other churches.

But other older cardinals, like the once-formidable Alfredo Ottaviani, former head of the Holy Office, and Cardinal Pietro Parente, both 87, seek a candidate with proven conservative credentials.

That candidate could be someone like Cardinal Pericle Felici, 67, a key member of the Curia, the church central administration. Felici, a Latin scholar and canon law expert, also has the support of some foreign conservatives.

One of his key backers is reported to be Cardinal Joseph Hoeffner, archbishop of Cologne, West Germany, who declared Thursday night upon arriving here that the new pontiff "must not follow the line of Pope Paul VI or of any other pope" but "a Catholic line."

Nevertheless, the long interval between death and conclave could prove a double-edged sword for the conservative Curia.

Many Third World cardinals will have more time for informal discussions on the merits of various candidates. The result could be the first foreign pope in five centuries.

"We won't be sitting there hand in hand," declared Cardinal Joseph Cordeiro of Pakistan upon his arrival in Rome. "An Italian could be all right, too, but an Italian the way we choose him."

Other cardinals from developing countries have adopted a more moderate tack, urging that there be no picketing over individuals.

"The great elector is the Holy Spirit," said Brazilian Cardinal Angelo Rossi. "It is not the feeling of personal friendship which induces us to vote, but to give the church the best pontiff for the church of Christ. There should be no 'progressive' or 'conservative' tendencies."

Despite such appeals, informal meetings in the halls of Rome's baroque palaces are expected to continue until Aug. 25, at least to pare down the number of front-runners to a handful.

Most prelates agree that the conclave will be difficult and laborious and could stretch out for a week before the famous white plume of smoke, the signal that the church has a new pope, pours from the stovepipe above St. Peter's Square.

Analysis

Vatican sources cite the difficulty of cardinals living in communist countries, such as the archbishop of Hanoi, to leave their country because of strained church-state relations. Yet many communist countries were among the first to send condolence messages to the Vatican and the Russian Orthodox delegation was one of the first to arrive in Rome for the funeral.

A more logical explanation for choosing the ultimate date was to allow the 115 cardinals under age 80 — those eligible to vote — a period for consultation. It will also allow the 15 cardinals over 80, some of them conclave veterans and long influential, time to lobby for their candidates.

Many of the cardinals over 80 live in Rome and are openly disgruntled at Pope Paul's 1975 decree banning them from conclaves. In a leak to the Italian press, one octogenarian cardinal who asked not to be identified complained of age discrimination.

A large number of the "ottantenni," or 80-year-olds, are attending the daily meeting of cardinals running the church's day-to-day affairs in the

Handwritten will asks for humble tomb, pardon

By MICHAEL J. DUFFY

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A handwritten spiritual testament of Pope Paul VI, released Friday on the eve of his burial, asked for a simple funeral, a humble tomb and "pardon from all those to whom I may not have done good."

First lady Rosalynn Carter, among those arriving in Rome for Saturday's funeral at St. Peter's Basilica, called the late pontiff a "wise and beloved symbol of the goodness of mankind."

"As a man of great spirituality — Jimmy called him a spiritual beacon — he will be missed, not only by American Catholics but by all Americans and by people the world over," she told reporters after stepping off an Air Force plane at Ciampino Airport.

"His memory will live in our hearts. Let us not then mourn his death so much as celebrate his life — a life dedicated unselfishly to the service of his church and to all men everywhere."

Traveling with Mrs. Carter were two other members of the official U.S. delegation, New York Gov. Hugh Carey and Rep. Robert N. Giaino, D-Conn. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was expected to arrive Saturday to complete the delegation. Washington does not have formal diplomatic ties with the Vatican, but the sending of such a delegation is customary.

Tens of thousands of mourners filed past the body of the late pope Friday as it lay in state beneath the Michelangelo-designed dome in St. Peter's. As of Thursday, more than 225,000 persons had viewed the pope's body in St. Peter's and at Castel Gandolfo, where he died of a heart attack Sunday at age 80.

The body continued to deteriorate visibly in the summer heat. The face appeared ashen gray, cosmetics having covered the greenish tinge that came over the body Thursday.

In his 13-page testament, written in 1965 with additions in 1972 and 1973, Pope Paul emphasized he wanted his funeral to be "pious and simple."

He specifically asked that the catafalque used for the funeral be more modest than the towering structure used for past popes, including his predecessor Pope John XXIII. He also asked that he be buried in the earth beneath St. Peter's, with no "special tomb or monument."

Outlook of hopefulness needed by future pope

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Now that the papal chair is empty, Christians around the world pondered the kind of man that's needed to fill it at this particular stage in history. What qualities now are considered especially important?

One word that comes up repeatedly in such discussion is "confidence" — an outlook of zest and hopefulness about faith in a time when it's often viewed as troubled and threatened. "Besides being someone who embodies faith, a certain joy in it and confidence about it now seems particularly important," says the Rev. Joseph O'Hare, editor of the national Catholic weekly, America.

Such assurance, he adds, "is an appealing kind of witness in itself" and is vital symbolic element. That way in which the papacy symbolizes and projects the spirit of Christianity is a basic, though intangible, feature of the office.

While the pope holds many jurisdictional titles — Bishop of Rome, Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church, Patriarch of the West, Sovereign of the State of Vatican City — a subtle, but primary role is the image he reflects of Christian faith.

That quality, whether or not of trust, buoyance, warmth and openness to others — is regarded as important to Protestants as well as Roman Catholic in the present ecumenical climate of interchurch cooperation.

Also the papacy, both in its historical and current significance, particularly in his maintaining the ban against contraception.

In contrast, Paul's predecessor, the late John XXIII, radiated a confidence and enthusiasm about life, people and the church, spurning what he called the "prophecy of doom" and injecting an upbeat mood through Christianity as a whole.

That kind of "winning image" is what's needed at present, a teacher and center of faith in a "pastoral sense," says O'Hare, rather than just a "head of a bureaucratic machine administering law and order in the ranks."

Numerous church analysts have pointed out that Pope Paul VI, before his death last Sunday, increasingly had reflected anguish, frustration and depression about church conditions.

Surveys showed wide dissent from some of his positions, particularly in his maintaining the ban against contraception.

Numerous church analysts have pointed out that Pope Paul VI, before his death last Sunday, increasingly had reflected anguish, frustration and depression about church conditions.

Surveys showed wide dissent from description for the papacy in connection with a forthcoming book, "The Making of a Pope," said in a telephone interview before he left for Rome for the papal election:

"John had enormous power because he was a credible witness to what life means. We need that kind of leadership, dealing with ultimate meanings in a way that will gain consent."

"That kind of witness," said O'Hare, "can be translated into pastoral letters that makes for confidence in people rather than threatening them, that helps people trying to renew their faith as a source of meaning, something our generation keenly knows it needs."

Guitar said endangering great church music heritage

EAST LANSING (AP) — The spreading use of guitar music in church worship endangers the church's heritage of great music, says noted German composer Heinz Werner Zimmermann.

Zimmerman, of the State Music Academy in Frankfurt, told a workshop at Michigan State University that he advocates genuine "contemporary expressions in church music, but I reject a modern style defined only by triviality."

"Guitarists have a liking for syncope, just as I do, but church music, even in syncope, should express something more than activism — something spiritual, something timeless," he said.

"Where guitarists prefer to make church music as simple as possible, I prefer to make church music as rich as possible."

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The National Wanderer Forum, bringing together about 300 conservative Roman Catholics, has urged U.S. bishops to investigate what it calls the "nullity scandal" in this country.

Declaring that church annulments of marriages have soared to thousands annually, the group said in a resolution that the "alarming development" stems from greater latitude allowed at local levels, with annulments based increasingly on psychological factors.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — United Methodists increased their contributions to the church by two-thirds from 1967 through 1976, but the worth of the donations still fell 2 percent behind the pace of inflation, a new study finds.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Lutheran Church in America's biennial governing convention gave first-reading approval to amendments to the church's constitution and bylaws that would change the title of district presidents to bishop. To become effective, the change must be approved on a second reading at the 1980 convention.

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Jewish Congress says that as a result of contacts made through its monitoring of cults, it has received a promise from Sung Myong Moon's Unification Church that it will "respond to any inquiries" from parents concerning children in the movement.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for the U.S. Catholic Conference have recommended that unemployment compensation taxes newly imposed on church-related elementary and secondary schools be paid "under protest" in order to preserve rights for possible future legal challenging of the new requirement.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Americans who overeat are actually consuming food that "belongs to someone else," says a Southern Baptist missionary to Bangladesh.

The Rev. James McKinley, on home leave, also says those who drive big cars that get poor mileage are competing with the poorest farmer for fuel to light his lamp by forcing fuel prices up beyond his reach.

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite modern therapies seeking to get rid of guilt, it can be good for people, says psychologist Michael E. Cavanagh.

In a new book, "What To Do When You're Feeling Guilty," published by the Claretian Fathers and Brothers, he says "healthy guilt is to the psyche (soul) what pain is to the body; an indication that something is wrong" and needs correcting.

Senate working on tax credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate began work Friday on a tuition tax credit bill that was both hailed as the salvation of private schools and denounced as a heavy blow against the separation of church and state.

Two Midlanders named Peruvian missionaries

RIDGECREST, N.C. — The Rev. and Mrs. Elbert L. Smithen Jr., of Midland, Texas, were among 55 people named as missionaries during the recent annual meeting here of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

Smithen currently is pastor of Midland's Bellview Baptist Church, a post he has held for the last nine years.

The Smithens will serve as missionary associates in Peru where he will be an English language pastor.

A native of Las Cruces, N.M., Smithen moved with his family to Arizona and California before settling in El Paso. He was graduated from Baylor University at Waco, with a B.A. degree, and from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth with a bachelor of divinity degree. He has held pastorates at Lampasas and Bon Wier, Texas, and was assistant to the pastor of Odesa's First Baptist Church before moving to Midland. Mrs. Smithen, the former Jo Clary of San Antonio, was graduated from Baylor with a bachelor of science degree. The couple has three children, Bradley Van, Brenda Cheryl and Betsy Jo.

The Smithens will undergo special training in the U.S. this fall before embarking on their South American assignment.

U.S. officials worshiped Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill and other government leaders worshiped Friday at a requiem Mass for Pope Paul VI.

Carter, a Southern Baptist, joined in the prayers and hymns and walked from the ornate St. Matthew's Cathedral with Archbishop Jean Jadot, the Vatican's delegate to the United States.

Mrs. Carter is in Rome to represent the president at the pontiff's funeral on Saturday.

Archbishop Jadot, whose diplomatic role is that of "the eyes and ears of the pope," was the principal celebrant of the hour-long Mass. More than 100 priests — their vestments reflecting a variety of orders and rites of the Roman Catholic Church — celebrated the Mass.

Carley to speak

The Rev. Roy A. Carley will be guest speaker at the Sunday morning worship service of South Memorial Baptist Church, 1700 W. Carter St. The public has an invitation from the Rev. Jimmy Stovall, host pastor, to hear the guest preacher.

Rick Davis

Evangelist, author slated for revival

Evangelist and author Rick Davis will be featured speaker at a "Christ is the Answer" revival crusade beginning here next week.

The outdoor revival will be initiated Wednesday night and will continue through Aug. 27 at the corner of Carver and South streets. Services will begin at 8 p.m. daily, open to all residents of the city and surrounding area, said the Rev. Manuel Hernandez.

Davis, whose headquarters are in Odessa, has conducted many successful crusades in the United States as well as those in Honduras, Panama and Nicaragua. He is the author of "Jesus Is Coming Back to Earth."

Mrs. Elbert L. Smithen Jr.

'Saul' finale set Sunday

ODESSA — "The House of Saul," a new play by Agnes Sanford of California, which is having its premiere production at the Globe of the Great Southwest during the Globe's annual Summer Festival, will have a final performance at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Special ticket rates are available to church groups in the Permian Basin area. Tickets will be for sale at the Globe box office Sunday afternoon in advance of performance time. Information on the group discount may be obtained by telephoning the Globe box office, 332-1586.

Non-Italian has chance at papacy

NEW YORK (AP) — Statistically, the chances of a non-Italian being elected pope are better than they've ever been in modern times.

It's still not generally expected, since the pattern of 455 years is against it. But church experts say the choice remains wide open at this point, with no clear-cut favorites.

Of further, yet indeterminate significance is the fact that the heavy Italian predominance in the College of Cardinals has greatly declined in recent years to its lowest point in this century.

While Italians made up 34 per cent of the cardinals who elected Pope Paul in 1963, they comprise only 22 per cent of those who will elect his successor.

Other Europeans, and the vastly increased proportion of Asian and African cardinals, along with North and South Americans, make up an overwhelming majority — 89 of the 115 cardinals eligible to vote to 26 Italians.

Also, non-Europeans for the first time hold a narrow majority, 58 outside Europe to 54 west Europeans (nearly half — 26 — of whom are Italians, 17 holding posts in the Vatican) and three from eastern Europe.

"The chances for a non-Italian seem pretty good this time," says the Rev. Andrew Greeley of Chicago, a noted researcher who has spent the past three years working on a forthcoming book, "The Making of a Pope." He left this week for Rome to observe the election.

"But it's still a wide open contest," he adds, "and no one has anywhere near the two-thirds plus one votes needed for election in the opening rounds." After the first 18 ballots, only a majority is needed.

Although Italians have held the papacy ever since the Dutch Adrian VI in 1523, it previously was held by popes from a wide range of nations.

Over the years going back to the first century, there have been about 15 French popes, at least 11 from Greece, five from Germany, five from Syria, three from Spain and three from Africa.

The man Roman Catholicism considers the first pope, the apostle Peter, came from Galilee in the land of Israel.

Records on many of those early years are vague and obscure, frequently revised through modern research, dotted with rival popes, antipopes, laymen elected pope and legendary women popes.

One account, which church authorities term a fable, tells of a 13th century young woman who dressed as a man and became an official in the Vatican, then a cardinal and finally "Pope Joan."

The story says she was stoned to death when the Roman public learned she was female.

In at least two instances, laymen were elected pope, once in a troubled period in 1271 when Theobaldo Visconti, who was not a priest but a legate to Syria, was elected and became Gregory X.

In another case in 1294, the cardinals unable to make a choice sought out a lean hermit dedicated to solitary meditations in the mountains. He abdicated after four months as Pope Celestine.

Although church rules allow any male Catholic to be elected pope, the office has gone to cardinals ever since 1378, when Urban VI was elected from his see as a bishop.

While most church analysts say the long-time pattern still suggests an Italian for the next pope, they also see various others as possibilities under the new circumstances, including:

Cardinals Johannes Willebrands, 68, of Utrecht, the Netherlands, head of the church office on Christian unity; Basil Hume, 55, of Westminster, England; Eduardo Pironio, 58, an Argentinian and head of the Vatican office on religious orders.

Also Cardinals Jean Villot, 72, the tall Frenchman who is the Vatican's Secretary of State and who heads the church during the interval until a new pope is elected; Franz Koenig, 73, of Vienna, Austria; French-born Leon Duval, 74, of Algiers, and Aloisio Lorscheider, 53, of Brazil, although his young age is against him.

But the Italian cardinals still are ranked as likelier possibilities, with Sergio Pignedoli, 67, head of the Vatican's office for non-Christians considered by some as a likely successor for bishops; Pericle Felici, 69, head of a commission for revising canon law, and Giovanni Benelli, 57, long-time collaborator with Pope Paul, now archbishop of Florence.

Carter chooses community aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Louis E. Martin, 65, a black former businessman, will become President Carter's liaison with the black community on Sept. 8, the White House announced Friday.

Martin, special assistant to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., will earn $51,000 and hold the title of special assistant to the president, according to White House press secretary Jody Powell.

Unity in America goal of church

HOUSTON (AP) — The general assembly of the Antiochian Orthodox Christian Archdiocese of North America has declared its "firm commitment to work toward the day" of Eastern Orthodox unity in America.

The 250,000-member Antiochian church, headed by Metropolitan Philip Saliba, is a branch of Eastern Orthodoxy which has about 6 million adherents in a dozen nationally branches in this country.

The assembly also urged President Carter to boost his defense of human rights to include the Eastern Orthodox Patriarch of Constantinople (modern Istanbul), the spiritual leader of all Eastern Orthodox reportedly subjected to various Turkish pressures recently.

NASHVILLE (AP) — The Rev. Glenn "Tex" Evans, 67, humorist, preacher, missionary and evangelist, died July 25 of cancer. Often called the "Will Rogers of United Methodism," he often quipped: "If two people will stand still or one person will walk slow I'll preach the gospel."

CHICAGO (AP) — A study finds that Roman Catholic diocesan advisory councils and priests' senates have compiled a "dismal record" in helping to guide policy, with less than 10 percent of them making effective decisions on a regular basis.

The report, compiled through a religious organization study funded by the National Science Foundation, says the consultative bodies have become "mechanisms of cooptation through which the hierarchy attempts to share responsibility for power rather than power itself."

DENVER (AP) — In an unusual switch, religious bookstores themselves — 13 of them — served as judges along with book reviewers in picking winners of Gold Medalion Awards of the Evangelical Christian Publishers Association.

The awards, presented in five designated categories, went for inspiration to "Where is God When It Hurts?" by Phillip Yancy (Zondervan); for biography to "A Severe Mercy" by Sheldon Vanauken (Harper and Row); for Bible study-theology to "Eerdman's Handbook to the History of Christianity" edited by Tim Dowley (Erdmans); for fiction to "I Came to Love You Late" by Joyce Landorf (Fleming H. Revell Co.), and for juveniles to "Jesus, Friend of Children" (David C. Cook Co.).

DETROIT (AP) — The biennial clergy-laity Congress of the Greek Orthodox Church deplores the "increasing apathy and disinterest which has befallen the previously ecumenical minded Christians."

In a resolution, the 2 million-member denomination urged "churches to critically review their commitment to the ecumenical ideal and to assume a more active and productive role so that the ecumenical movement may produce the fruits so fervently expected of it by the whole Christian world."

The church also advocated that Jerusalem be declared an "open city" entrusted to the care of all three major faiths, Christian, Jewish and Moslem.

NEW YORK (AP) — Religious, consumer and other non-profit groups have formed a new watchdog organization, the Telecommunications Consumer Coalition, to keep an eye on federal regulations of telephone, television, radio and cable TV operations.

The Rev. Dr. Everett C. Parker of the United Church of Christ, chairman of the new organization, says that heretofore there was no single information source or agency where consumers could find out "about the complex issues and policies that affect our ability to send and receive messages," and the new group will fill that need.

Gospel singing set for tonight

The Truth and Soul gospel singing group of Dallas will present concerts in the city tonight and Sunday afternoon.

The ensemble will sing in the St. Ann Spiritual Church, 1800 E. Illinois Ave., at 8 p.m. today and 3 p.m. Sunday. The concerts will be open to the public without charge, said Mother Scott Williams, pastor of St. Ann Spiritual Church.

Pope Paul's successor has choice of many names

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul's successor may also take the name Paul or choose John, or Pius or almost any name he wishes.

But by papal tradition he will not take the name Peter and probably won't take his own first name.

Whatever name he selects for himself as ruler of the Roman Catholic Church he will have to announce it promptly.

For choosing a name is the second decision of the new pope immediately after his election by the conclave of cardinals.

The first is whether to accept the office. If he does, he then must announce at once his name choice to the cardinals before he is presented to the public.

In making his choice the new pope will have many precedents to follow. Among the most popular names used by popes in the past are John, Pius, Benedict, Clement, Gregory, Leo and Innocent.

It is precedent that works against the name Peter and the pope's own name. Roman Catholics consider St. Peter the first pope. There has never been a pontiff Peter II.

In the early years of the church, pontiffs often used their own names.

The tradition of name changing became firmly established in 1009 with the election of Sergius IV. He had no last name and was known as Peter Pig's Mouth (bucca porci) to distinguish him from his father, known as Peter the Shoemaker.

The last pope to retain his own name was Marcellus II in 1555. An Italian, his original name was Marcello (Marcellus) Cervini.

The last non-Italian pope, the Dutchman Adrian VI who served 20 months until his death in 1523, also used his own name. He was born Adrian Florenz Dedal. When the new pope makes his choice he will tell the cardinals his reasons.

Most popes chose a name of a predecessor for whom they felt particular admiration.

Paul VI chose his name as a symbol of Christian unity. It was Paul the apostle who by his missions and epistles spread Christianity in the ancient world. He is venerated by Catholics, Protestants and Orthodox.

John has been the most popular name of all. But until John XXIII revived it, the name had not been chosen in six centuries.

In all the church's history, Gregory was used 16 times, Benedict 15, Clement 14, Leo 13 and Pius 12. Innocent was last taken in 1721 but 13 popes in all have used it.

Texas lad makes mark in soccer

By MICHELLE SCOTT

HOUSTON (AP) — While other boys on his block punted, passed and kicked their way into football, Joey Scamardi juggled his way into soccer.

Last month 14-year-old Joey placed third in the Federation Internationale de Football International Skills Event, soccer competition held in Buenos Aires. He was one of 16 finalists selected worldwide from 300,000 competitors under age 16.

"When I started playing soccer, I was primarily by myself because back then everyone was in baseball or football," the 5-foot-3-inch, 95-pound brunet said. He's been playing seven years.

Joey said his grandfather used to play and coach soccer in Bulgaria. But it was his father, Jack, who got him interested in the sport.

"My father liked it very much because it was a low-risk sport and it didn't cost very much to get into it," he said. "To me, it's probably the best sport because it builds your body mentally and physically."

Joey practiced with Houston Hurricane goalie Keith Von Aaron before the competition. In Argentina, he met soccer stars Pele, George Chinaglia and Franz Beckenbauer.

"I think Pele hugging Joey made the trip worthwhile for him," Joey's mother, Anita, said.

Joey said communicating with other competitors was difficult at first because of language barriers. "After a while, though, you use sign language or anything possible," he said.

The day of the competition was a hectic one for the Scamardis, who had decided to turn the event into a family vacation.

"Joey hadn't slept the night before and he hadn't eaten all day," Mrs. Scamardi said.

"It was raining and we had to look for a field he could practice on. It had been 92 degrees in Houston and it was 47 degrees in Buenos Aires. Then the tournament officials changed some of the events, so Joey came in the hotel room and said, 'Move the furniture around — I've got to practice!'"

"Their soccer balls were very hard, too," Joey said. "You could hear an echo inside the balls when you juggled with your head. They gave me a headache."

"So after all these little messes, I think he did very well," Mrs. Scamardi said.

Soccer isn't Joey's only interest. He's a member of the National Junior Honor Society and plays football, basketball and baseball. Last year he lettered in track.

Joey said he hasn't decided what his plans for the future are, but the field of medicine is a possibility. He will not choose a university based on whether or not it has a soccer team, he said.

"It may make a little bit of difference, but I think it's more important to get a decent education than play on a soccer team," he said.

"I can stay in practice and start up with a team after college. There's always a chance you can get hurt, and then what would you do?"

Are his friends impressed with his new notoriety?

"I really wouldn't know if they're impressed that much, but they all treat me a lot better and everything," he said with a grin.

Manchurian tiger cubs Harbin Zoo rears rare

By C.C. MINICLER

HARBIN, Manchuria (AP) — Manchurian tiger cubs, like babies everywhere, need lots of nourishment and tender loving care, according to Chao Kuei-lau.

Mrs. Chao, the tiger breeder of Manchuria, has successfully raised 65 rare Manchurian tiger cubs over the past 20 years, and reports a survival rate of 85 percent for all tiger cubs born in the Harbin zoo.

Harbin, a rail center and the second largest industrial city in northeastern China, is also the principal breeding site for Manchurian tigers, the largest in the world and an endangered species.

Zoo director Chang Hsueh-chen told an interviewer there may only be 100 wild Manchurian tigers still roaming the wooded river banks of Manchuria, with others across the borders of neighboring Russia and North Korea.

Law officers harvest 'pot'

HOUSTON (AP) — Sheriff's deputies, aided by a dozen county prisoners and a borrowed bulldozer and tractor, have harvested about an acre of marijuana.

Some of the 'crop' valued near $250,000 was 10 feet tall.

Members of a neighborhood patrol unit became suspicious when they saw a man leaving a 20-acre wooded area northeast of Houston with full plastic garbage bags and loading them into a pickup truck.

Deputies kept watch and arrested two men they said had four trash bags of marijuana in the trunk of their car.

With the bulldozer clearing a path through weeds and brush, the prisoners then were moved into the area Thursday afternoon to complete the harvest.

Deputies estimated the total haul weighed about a ton.

Charged with felony possession of marijuana were Norris Simon, 27, and Larry Glen Johnson, 25. Bonds were set at $100,000.

"Where there are tigers there are no wolves," Chang said, explaining that wolves are a favorite dish of the tigers, which weigh more than 600 pounds and live 25 years.

Before 1959, he said, China used to export the big beasts to foreign zoos in exchange for other animals, but the export was stopped when Chinese zoos asked for more tigers than were available.

Chang said that all of the tigers in Chinese zoos initially came from Harbin.

He said there were no poachers, adding that the wild tigers, one of two species found in China (the others are smaller and not Manchurian) are given the same high government protection afforded China's rare pandas.

Mrs. Chao, a quiet, gentle woman, had never seen a tiger cub when the first two were born here of a wild tigress in 1959, the last year zoos were permitted to capture them.

She recalled that the mother had no milk for her cubs, so Mrs. Chao moved in with the cubs for four months, bottle-feeding them.

She smiled as she remembered how the cubs loved to snuggle in her arms. After they grew up they joined a Chinese acrobatic circus for four years and then returned to the zoo.

Cubs born here are nursed by their mothers for the first 100 days and are then weaned away on small pieces of meat, so the mother will be ready to breed again the following year.

Chang says the animals can't take the summer heat of Canton, which is about as hot and damp as New Orleans in summer, but thrive on the cold winters of northern China.

Here adult tigers are fed 22 pounds of fresh mutton or beef daily in winter, and from 15 to 17 pounds in summer. The diet is rich in a land where the average citizen is considered lucky if he has pork twice a week.

But the People's Republic of China is proud of its rare native tigers and encourages their breeding.

Program of arts keeps Bostonians cool in summer

By DAVID KAYE

BOSTON (AP) — When summer comes to Boston, the city's more mobile and affluent residents rush off to Cape Cod or the beaches north and south of the sweltering city. But the inhabitants of Roxbury and Dorchester are trapped on the sizzling streets, left to seek their own entertainment.

During the late '60s, that often meant trouble — burning, looting.

Katherine Kane, a former state representative and now a deputy mayor to Kevin H. White, responded to the problem 12 years ago by establishing Summerthing, a program consisting of 1,500 events including art classes, theater, music and dance — all performed free of charge in the neighborhoods of Boston.

Sherry Jellison, director of publicity for the Mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs, says Boston is the only city in the United States that "makes this sort of commitment to the arts in the neighborhoods."

The program is partially funded by the city and the remaining financial support comes from private sponsors.

Summerthing's concert series — the only program in which there is an admission charge — is sponsored by a brewery. This summer's program included performances by people like Andy Gibb, Leo Sayer, Pete Seeger, Arlo Guthrie, Al Jarreau and Grover Washington.

Summerthing runs for eight weeks, six days a week, and includes at least seven programs a day.

Miss Jellison says acts and programs are selected by coordinators in each of the city's 20 "neighborhoods."

"We are neighborhood-oriented," she says. "We don't want to send in an act that isn't going to be well-received in any neighborhood."

Jamboree is one of the main components of Summerthing's program. It includes workshops in theater and environmental arts.

Some of the free neighborhood concerts include Taj Mahal, Jonathan Edwards, the Dirt Band, New Riders of the Purple Sage, David Bromberg, Commander Cody and Patti Labelle.

Summerthing also sends three multimedia vans to alternating neighborhoods. Soul Train creates block parties complete with music and dancing and Disco Tech turns neighborhood streets into instant discotheques. The Moviebus shows free films.

Senior Summerthing includes museum trips, arts and crafts workshops, theatrical performances, Big Band dances and sing-alongs for Boston's elderly.

The Plaza Series consists of noontime concerts and poetry readings in City Hall Plaza.

"There's always been a desire among people in Boston to participate in the arts," Miss Jellison said, "but people have really had to seek out the arts. We hope that will change where the programs match the audience."

BRIDGE Silence is golden on proper occasion

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's dangerous to step into the auction with a silent partner and two bidding opponents. Unless you have good distribution (or a very fine bank balance) you should keep as silent as your partner.

and East's response at least 6 points. South therefore knew that the option he had at least 18 of the missing 22 points, and they might well have them all. In short, South should have known that a bid would get him nowhere — except perhaps to the poorhouse.

South refused the first diamond but took the second and led clubs. East got in with the king of clubs to lead a heart, and the defenders were soon in position to win four hearts, three diamonds and two clubs.

SEVERE PENALTY
South was lucky to win four tricks, but this still cost him a penalty of 800 points. If South had passed, the opponents would have played the hand at one notrump or some such unproductive contract.

It's helpful to describe your hand when your partner can then choose a reasonable contract. When he cannot, your description will help the enemy.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player doubles. You hold: S-1063; H-87543; D-63; C-952. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. The spirit is willing, but the flush is weak. Even a raise to two hearts is too much for so hopeless a hand.

Hucksters team money, mourning to turn Elvis' memory to riches

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"In plucking the fruit of memory one runs the risk of spoiling the bloom." — Joseph Conrad, 1919.

Since Elvis Presley died a year ago, hucksters and hardy businessmen have fanned the Elvis fever and pressed a new commercial record of solid, sometimes sordid, gold.

The King of Rock 'n' Roll who earned $12 million a year with his recordings and concerts alone, still is big business. In sheer buck power, Elvis the myth and memory may well rival Elvis the man from Tupelo, Miss.

Hard figures are hard to come by, and no one can put a dollar sign on how Elvis has been capitalized on in death, but money and mourning have formed a profitable liaison.

RCA Records will only say — and it holds for other Elvis-related ventures — that sales this year have been "phenomenal."

By 1975, Elvis had sold 500 million records, and it is estimated that another 350 million have been sold since, 200 million after his death last Aug. 16.

And for 12 months Mammon has smiled on book and magazine publishers, impersonators and look-alikes, convention promoters, a fleeting Broadway show, souvenir makers and vendors of schlock.

As the anniversary of death approaches, the emotional and commercial tempo quickens. Memphis motels are booked solid. Trinkets are touted on TV. The "National Enquirer" discloses "Elvis Presley's three secret fears." The "Star" says "For the first time since Elvis' death, Priscilla tells how she loved him until the tragic end."

On Wednesday, concerts, conventions and tributes will flood the country, all building up to an Elvis catharsis-extravaganza-bonanza next month on the Las Vegas Strip.

The year-long wake has its bizarre aspects: One impersonator underwent plastic surgery to mimic Elvis' sneering lips. A promoter unveiled a life-size statue that wears the famed "peacock suit" and seems to "sweat" as Elvis did in concert.

And, boys and girls, the fan who writes the best 100 words on "What Elvis Presley Means to Me" will win Elvis' Madison Square Garden jumpsuit and cape.

Like pilgrims paying homage and buying relics, the people pay to touch Elvis Presley's Cadillac Eldorado near his Memphis mansion.

A dollar to have your picture taken near it, $2 to be photographed touching it, $5 if you want to sit behind the wheel and transport your imagination.

Vester Presley, Elvis' 63-year-old uncle, squints at the vendors and queues of fans — 10,000 a day of late — who line up to pass the grave where Elvis is buried beside his mama.

"Anything that sells, they're gonna sell it," says Vester. "I don't like it too much, but there's nothing you can do." He has written a book, "A Presley Speaks," that sells for up to $25.

Almost 10 million copies of more than a dozen books have been sold since Elvis' death. The top seller — about 5 million books at $1.95 apiece — has been Ballantine's "Elvis: What Happened?" by the star's bodyguards as told to Steve Dunleavy of Rupert Murdoch's New York Post.

At least five more books are in the works, including Doubleday's $7.95 "The Boy Who Dared to Rock," by Paul Lichter, Elvis' friend, high priest of memorabilia and promoter of a three-day Elvis tribute in New York.

Others are getting into the writing act. Ed Parker, Elvis' former karate teacher, has written "Inside Elvis," and there is a reprint of "My Life With Elvis," by Becky Yancey, his personal secretary.

In the recording field, there was such a rush of orders after Elvis' death that old albums sold out and had to be re-pressed.

RCA released a million-seller concert album, a 15-record set of 45s, and a new album called "Elvis Sings for Children."

Brookville Marketing, an RCA licensee, advertises Elvis records on television, and vice president Norman Roseman reports 1.2 million records and tapes — worth more than $10 million — have been sold in the past year.

"Almost overnight, there was a phenomenal outpouring of orders," Roseman says. "But I now think that the bloom is off the rose as far as the Elvis bonanza is concerned."

Elvis souvenirs — both bootleg and legitimate — have reaped tremendous profits with everything from Elvis Presley bubble gum and swizzle sticks to $50 Limoges plates and $50 china busts.

Factors Etc. Inc., of Bear, Del., official licensing agent for Elvis memorabilia, won't talk money, but it has 35 products on the market and is mapping strategy for the next seven years.

Harry "The Bear" Geissler, president of Factors, says the company carefully guards its rights and has filed about 200 lawsuits against unlicensed products.

"When Elvis died, there were hundreds of things out there," Geissler says, "lots of junk, and there still is bootlegging. But junk isn't moving anymore. People want quality."

He says one entrepreneur who was paid to haul 10,000 ceramic hotplates to a junk yard, pasted photos of Elvis on them and sold them for $5 each to someone who turned around and sold them for $10 apiece.

An Elvis fan can spend $1 for a key ring to $280 for a miniature gold-plated guitar. Factors also plans an Elvis music box, an Elvis bedspread and an Elvis board game — shaped like a guitar depicting the highlights of his life.

Next year, be ready for Factor's line of Elvis cosmetics for men and women and a line of Elvis jumpsuits.

No item of Presleyana is too trivial for the true fan: A poem about Elvis, copies of his driver's license, marriage certificate, will, Army dog tag, even his hotel registration and "thank you" notes are available.

The entertainment field is congested with Elvis look-alikes and some not-so-alikes, including a woman, who gyrates in joints and nightclubs from Tupelo to Las Vegas. At the top are a dozen or so old-timers, like Jesse King, Alan Meyer and Larry Seth, but there could be scores of others who got their act together after Elvis died.

Seth, a former construction worker who has copied Elvis for four years, calls himself "The Big L" and claims a fan club of 40,000.

"When Elvis died I wanted to quit, but they begged me not to," says Seth. He spends thousands of dollars to duplicate Elvis' suits and hours on end studying video tapes of Elvis "to get every eyebrow twitch and finger movement right. That's what fans want."

One impersonator, Dennis Wise, underwent plastic surgery to transform his face and lips to match the famed Presley sneer. His shows are promoted with the question, "Was the pain worth it?"

After Elvis died, an obscure singer, Ronnie McDowell, was outside a nightclub in Bowling Green, Ky., and dashed off a song called "The King is Dead." It sold 3 million copies and made McDowell a star.

In death, Elvis Presley even made it on Broadway in a production called "Elvis, the Legend Lives." It opened Jan. 31, 1978. Sixteen weeks later it died.

Despite unemployment, inflation chief concern

By EVANS WITT

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the surge in unemployment in July, inflation remains the chief economic concern of Americans who are expressing pessimism about the future, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

Nearly half of the public now expects the nation's economic troubles to deepen in the next 12 months, the survey revealed.

The nation's unemployment rate went from 5.7 percent to 6.2 percent in July, setting back the Carter administration's hopes of quick strides in reducing joblessness. From April to June, the nation's inflation rate soared at an annual rate of 11.4 percent. For the first six months of the year, prices rose at an annual rate of 10.4 percent if the trend continues for the second half of the year.

The poll of 1,600 adults taken Monday and Tuesday found 59 percent of those interviewed now rate inflation as the most critical economic problem. That's up four points since June.

At the same time, the percentage of those naming unemployment as the biggest problem dropped from 33 in June to 28 this month. Eleven percent rated both equally important. Two percent of those interviewed by telephone said they were not sure.

Asked about the course of the economy over the next year, 47 percent of the respondents said they expect it to get worse, with only 14 percent anticipating improvement. Thirty-four percent said they expect the economy to stay the same, and 5 percent were not sure.

The ranks of the optimists about the economy dropped by three percentage points in the last seven weeks, while the pessimists have picked up three.

Administration economists say this pessimism is not really justified, and they have projected a decline in the inflation rate in the final six months of 1978, in large measure because of an expected slowdown in the rate of increase in food prices.

As recently as January, the public's view of the economy was brighter. That month, the AP-NBC News poll found 31 percent said the economy would get better in the next year, with 25 percent taking the view the economy would get worse. The remainder said the economic picture would not change, or they said they were not sure.

Americans also thought unemployment was a bigger problem than rising prices in January. At the time, 46 percent said unemployment was the biggest problem while 38 percent cited rising prices.

Despite the pessimism about the near-term future of the economy, the public's confidence in the country over a longer period has rebounded to the levels found at the first of the year.

Two-thirds of those interviewed said they have quite a lot of confidence in the future of the country — up seven points from the June survey.

Those expressing some confidence declined from 27 percent in June to 22 percent this month. However, the number saying they had little or no confidence dropped from 13 percent to 11 percent in August. In both surveys, 1 percent of those questioned said they were not sure.

The August confidence rating is about the same as the finding of the January AP-NBC News poll.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way simply because of sample errors. That is, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of interviews with all American adults would vary from these results by more than three percentage points.

Of course, the results could vary from other polls because of differences in the wording of questions, timing of interviews or the method of interviewing.

Three Arizona fugitives hunted, nabbed; fourth dies in crash

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — State police and sheriff's deputies captured one escaped killer and two accomplices Friday and a fourth fugitive was killed when their van crashed through a police roadblock, authorities said.

Officers using helicopters combed the desert 17 miles southwest of Casa Grande in southern Arizona in search of a fifth fugitive.

Authorities said the five men were wanted for the murder of a Marine sergeant, his wife and son and the kidnapping of his 15-year-old niece. There was no immediate word Friday on the girl's fate.

The Arizona Department of Public Safety said Randy Greenawalt, 28, a convicted murderer from Thornton, Colo., and brothers Rick and Raymond Tison, were captured after the van barreled through the police barricade.

FBI agent Jim Cassidy said a third Tison brother, Donald, was killed, possibly in an exchange of gunfire at the roadblock. Gary Tison, 43, the other escapee and father of the captured brothers, ran from the scene after the van crashed, and authorities sealed off the area and began a search for him.

Cubs rally falls short 12-11 in ninth inning

The 1,272 Beer Night fans who stuck around for the finish almost saw it all. The Cubs lost, but probably demonstrated why they are in first place in the Texas League West Division in the process and in the Cubs Stadium tradition for the zany, unrehearsed Knotty Problems double play in which two runners were thrown out at the plate and the Cubs Manager Jim Saul catapulted from the dugout protesting it should have been a triple play.

to lead 12-4. Would you believe, the final score was 12-11? Midland rallied for seven runs in the final inning and had narrowed the Gold Sox' margin to one run with only one out after Javier Fierro's three-run homer, but Greg Wilkes, who survived the entire barrage, managed to get the final two outs on a bouncer to the box and a liner to left.

WHEN THE smoke had cleared Midland still had a 1 1/2 game edge over San Antonio, thanks to El Paso's 3-2 win in the Alamo City.

Steve Smith hit a two-run homer for Amarillo in the second and Brian Greer hit his fifth homer, a two-run shot, in the Gold Sox' five run sixth that seemingly blew apart a 3-2 game. Mike Yandle, 4-7, the Stanford grad, went six innings to earn the win before Wilkes took over and George Riley, 4-1, was the loser in the battle of lefthanders. It was in the seventh inning that the verbal fireworks occurred. Earl Battey led off with a single and Tony Castillo walked. Greer then singled to right, scoring Battey. That brought in Tom Butler for Riley. Bill Hallstrom singled to score Castillo and Joe Hicks walked to load the bases and set the stage for the bizarre play that was to follow. Smith hit a slow roller to Kurt Seibert, who charged in as Hicks retreated beyond his tag. Seeing Greer breaking for home, Kurt threw a strike to catcher Greg Keatley, who tagged out Greer at the plate. The relay to second was late as Hicks by now had broken from the crowd at first base. However, shortstop Steve Macko's throw home, cut down Hallstrom, trying to sneak in from third in the confusion. Saul burst from the dugout to argue that two runners occupied first base, Hicks and Smith, at the same time and one had to be out. The Cubs' manager left the field only to return again and resume the debate. This time the umpires huddled and asked Saul for privacy. Saul turned his back, but inched back to within hearing range. Plate umpire Craig Brittain and base ump Ed Koors scolded him for eavesdropping and Jim promised to be good. However, he was soon eavesdropping again. The umps eventually broke from their huddle and their original decision stood.

IT REALLY didn't seem to matter. The Cubs trailed 10-3 at the time and the verdict seemed signed, sealed and ready for delivery. The Sox got two more in the eighth and led 12-4 going into the ninth when Bill Evers started things by beating out an infield hit. Seibert singled to right and Macko doubled home two runs. A walk to Kevin Drury kept things alive and Wilkes hit Eric Grandy with a pitch to load the bases. Brian Rosinski grounded to second and Paul O'Neill's throw on the force attempt was wild as two more runs raced in. Keatley skied to center and then Fierro drilled his homer over the left field fence for three runs and suddenly victory was within reach. However, Wilkes got Tracy on a rap to the box and Evers on a liner to left. Every batter in the Amarillo lineup got at least one hit, all but three of the 10 batters got two and Hicks, Iertsen and Battey had three hits each as the Redskins post win WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Joe Theismann survived a second-half battering by Green Bay's defensive line and hit Tommy Reamon, a forgotten star of the defunct World Football League, with a 15-yard touchdown pass that cinched a 20-12 Washington National Football League preseason victory Friday night. Theismann's strike to the diminutive running back late in the fourth quarter capped a Redskins 62-yard drive in which Reamon repeatedly contributed with off-tackle bursts of 5 to 7 yards. Reamon played with Redskins Coach Jack Pardee with the Orlando Blazers in the WFL, then followed him to Chicago and Washington. The Packers pulled close early in the second half when Dave Roller dumped Theismann for a safety and another sack pinned the Redskins deep in their own territory.

Midland's Judy Rankin sinks long putt.

Judy Rankin captures lead in LPGA play

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — "I hit a foul ball into the third-base dugout on my second shot. Then I got squared away and came through with five straight singles before getting a few home runs."

It seemed unusual to hear Jane Blalock, third leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour this year, talking about baseball Friday afternoon at the North Hills Country Club.

Granted the former school teacher from Portsmouth, N.H., is an avid sports fan, but baseball talk at the $100,000 tournament at the par-73, 6,143-yard course?

"I'm just in a happy frame of mind and kidding around," explained Blalock after shooting her second straight 71 that put her in a deadlock with Jerilyn Britz for third place in the 72-hole classic.

Judy Rankin, the leading money winner in 1976 and again last year, was the leader with a 140, thanks to a 69 on Friday. Sally Little was next with a 141 after hitting par, five strokes higher than her first-round 68.

"When I got on the second tee," said Blalock, who has a career-total of 21 wins, three of them this year. "I hit a shot far to the left. It was the kind of shot Thurman Munson (Yankees' catcher) would have chased.

"I finally got squared away and finished with more birdies today than I did yesterday. That's why I called them home runs. Today was a more exciting round because of the birdies even though I hit all 18 greens yesterday."

Blalock, who already has collected $80,312 in 18 stops this year, praised the course saying, "It requires a variety of golf. My biggest birdie was a 40-footer with a eight iron of the ninth hole.

"There is no way that I can play any harder than I have been playing over the last five years."

Somewon wanted to know if Blalock has been trying harder since Nancy Lopez — practically out of contention with a 152 (that made the cutoff by two strokes) — joined the tour?

"I'm my own greatest motivator," said the Rollins College graduate. "Frankly, Nancy was stupid for not getting in some kind of a practice round.

"The more tournaments she wins, the better off she'll be."

Lopez, who has captured eight championships this year and who already has set a 12-month earning record with $153,097, was not happy with her 73, but the 21-year-old was happy to make the cut.

"I didn't," said Lopez. "I'd cry. Not here ... back in the hotel room. No question, I would have played better if I had practiced.

"However, there was not enough time after I got back from England (she won the European Open there last Sunday). I didn't feel real tired today. My concentration is slowly coming back.

"I still feel I'm capable of shooting a 65. That's possible if you can get started. I hope I can and then we'll see what I need for the last day."

Denver-Dallas tilt tops exhibition games

By The Associated Press It will be Dallas and Denver before a sellout crowd and a national television audience, but will Saturday's exhibition game be another Super Bowl? "I think it's more interesting to have a rematch like this game," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, whose Cowboys beat the Broncos 27-10 in Super Bowl XII Jan. 15. "I don't think it'll be played like a Super Bowl, though. If it is, I hope they win this one and we win the next one."

and the fact we played each other in the Super Bowl will indicate that there is likely to be a little more fire," Landry added. "I'm sure the Orange Crush will be operating at full-tilt." A crowd of 75,000 is expected for the game at Denver's Mile High Stadium. "Naturally there's a little added incentive on the part of our players this week as Dallas did stop us from being world champions," said Broncos Coach Red Miller. "But on the other hand, a team is only as good as it's last game and I'm sure that both clubs are a lot more interested in getting ready for Sept. 3 (opening day) than they are worrying about what happened last January. "Our approach will be the same as always. Our No. 1 objective is to win the game, and secondly to get as good of a game evaluation of all our players as possible." THE COWBOYS ARE having some problems on their offensive line. Right tackle Pat Donovan has been moved to the left side to replace the retired Ralph Neely, but Rayfield Wright has been slow in coming around from the knee injury which forced him to miss most of last season. Second-year man Andy Frederick has been penciled into the right tackle position unless Wright regains his all-pro form. Denver, meanwhile, is hoping to upgrade its offense, which ranked just 17th in the National Football League last season. "We made a lot of big plays in 1977," said Broncos quarterback Craig Morton, "but we didn't take the ball and march down the field — dominate people. One imperative thing for us is to develop the consistency to put together long drives and keep the defense off the field." Morton thinks the Broncos' attack will be better than last season's.

"One of the mistakes we made last year was searching for plays," he said. "I've looked at the computer readouts, and a lot of plays we would try once then move on to another play, which we might try once, too. We now know what we do best, and we've got to stick to it." This weekend's action began Friday night with Green Bay at Washington. On Saturday night, Baltimore will be at Tampa Bay, St. Louis at Chicago, Miami at New Orleans, San Diego at Los Angeles, Seattle at San Francisco, Cleveland at Buffalo, New England at Oakland, Detroit at Cincinnati, Minnesota at Kansas City, New York Jets at New York Giants and Atlanta at Pittsburgh. On Monday night, Philadelphia will play at Houston. With Lydell Mitchell still a holdout, the Colts are giving extra playing time to other running backs such as 234-pound Ron Lee. "This is his third year with us, and it's just about time for Ronnie to blossom," said Colts Coach Ted Marchibroda. ST. LOUIS HAS lost tight end J.V. Cain and its two top reserves due to injury, so running back George Franklin will be tested at tight end. Third-round draft choice Jimmy Cefalo of Penn State caught a pair of touchdown passes for Miami last week. "He showed a lot of poise," said Coach Don Shula. "He eluded a couple of tacklers on his first TD and got behind the cornerback on the 38-yard bomb. He has an excellent chance to be our third wide receiver." Rookie John Jefferson caught 6 passes for 78 yards in his pro debut for San Diego and will be watched closely by the Chargers, who are hoping to repeat last year's 26-25 upset of the Rams, their Southern California rivals. John Harris, a seventh-round draft pick, is fighting for a starting safety job at Seattle. He improved his case last week when he had two interceptions and a fumble recovery. With guard Joe DeLamielleure out for about a month with a knee injury, Buffalo is testing Steve Lawson and Randy Young in his place. New England, which beat Los Angeles 14-7 last Saturday, spent the week on the West Coast and hopes to end its trip with a victory over Oakland. Cincinnati has switched to a 3-4 defensive alignment, which means Glenn Cameron becomes a starter as the fourth linebacker after three years as a backup man.

Super Bowl rematch today?

DENVER (AP) — At the conclusion of Super Bowl XII, after the clock ran down on the Denver Broncos' Cinderella season, Dallas defensive lineman Harvey Martin obliged photographers by crushing a soft drink can in his massive hands. The symbolism was not lost on fans of Denver's Orange Crush defense. It's perhaps inevitable, then, that today's pre-season meeting between the two national football league rivals, billed as a Super Bowl rematch, should be treated as something special by the players and fans alike. A CAPACITY CROWD of 75,000 is expected for the nationally televised game, which will be blacked out locally because it wasn't sold out 72 hours prior to game time in accordance with federal law. "I'm sure that upset a lot of those Orange Crush fans in Denver," said Robert Newhouse. They will be waiting for us Saturday." Both coaches also expect inspired performances from their teams. "The fact that it's a sellout, that it's a Saturday afternoon game on national TV, and the fact that we played each other in the Super Bowl will indicate that there is likely to be a little more fire," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Naturally there's a little added incentive on the part of our players this week as Dallas did stop us from being world champions," said Denver Coach Red Miller. Still, neither coach has lost sight of the main objectives during the pre-season. "The important thing in a pre-season game is to play well and improve," said Landry. "This one doesn't put a ring on anyone's finger." Miller echoed those sentiments, saying that "both clubs are a lot more interested in getting ready for Sept. 3 than they are worrying about what happened last January." LOOKING AT YOUNGER players will be one of the goals of the respective coaching staffs. NFL teams must trim their rosters to 60 players next Tuesday, and both Dallas and Denver currently are carrying more than 70 players. Roger Staubach and Danny White are expected to share time at quarterback for the Cowboys. Second-year pro Andy Frederick will start at offensive right tackle in place of injured veteran Rayfield Wright. The Cowboys also will continue to experiment with place-kickers. MILLER PLANNED several lineup changes for Saturday, including the insertion of Bill Bain at offensive left tackle in place of Andy Maurer. Ex-Cowboy Craig Morton will start at quarterback in a backfield with Lonnie Perrin and Rob Lytle.

Cardinals capture win

NEW YORK (AP) — Garry Templeton drilled a two-run double in the 12th inning Friday night and scored an insurance run on Keith Hernandez' single as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Mets 4-1. With one out in the 12th, Mike Phillips and Tony Scott smacked consecutive singles against reliever Dale Murray, 5-5, the third Met pitcher. After pinch-hitter Wayne Garrett struck out, Templeton ripped his double to left, scoring the tie-breaking runs. Then Hernandez followed with another hit, driving home Templeton with the final St. Louis run.

Dodger-Giant baseball rivalry would make good dramatic film

By SCOTT OSTLER
The Los Angeles Times

If the Dodgers-Giants rivalry is ever made into a movie, the opening scene will be under the grandstands at Candlestick Park late at night.

The date — late summer, 1962 — flashes across the screen. Foghorns of ships passing Candlestick Point echo off the stadium. Sound of footsteps on gravel. A man enters, glancing nervously over his shoulder. The man is known only as Deep Moat, although years later we learn he is Giant manager Alvin Dark. He approaches another man, head groundskeeper Matty Schwab, who is leaning on a rake. Their whispered conversation:

Deep Moat: "Look, Matty, the Dodgers are coming in for three games, starting tomorrow. With Maury Wills and Willie Davis running the bases, these guys are very tough to beat, you know what I mean? Is there anything you can do?"

Matty: "Gee, Al — I mean, Deep Moat — I can't mess up the field. What about my job?"

Deep Moat: "Don't worry. Whatever you do, I'll back you. Now here's what I have in mind..."

Matty (pulling a garden-hose nozzle out of his pocket): "Skipper, let me handle this my own way."

MATTY'S WAY was devious, ingenious and totally effective. Sending Wills and Davis out to run on Matty's watered and sanded infield was like putting heavy starch in Nureyev's ballet tights.

Dodger first baseman Ron Fairly playfully constructed sand castles around first base but Wills was less than enchanted. In his frustration, he berated an umpire and was thrown out of a game. The Giants swept the series, eventually tied the Dodgers at the end of the season and beat them in a playoff.

Schwab is still groundskeeper at Candlestick, and in just a minute he'll explain how he pulled off his daring caper. The point is: Such an incident could happen only in a Dodger-Giant game. No other baseball rivalry is so enduring and unusual, so filled with weird twists and incidents. And intensity.

"It's as intense as any rivalry that ever existed in baseball," said Wills, former Dodger shortstop and now part-time baserunning coach for the Giants. "Willie Mays said the rivalry was not as strong when both teams moved to the West Coast (in '58) but I disagree. I didn't play in Brooklyn but I don't see how it could have been more intense. "It was like war. It was more than a ballgame, it was win at any cost. You really had to know how to take care of yourself. I always had fears for any rookie playing second base for us. That's when you really needed all your experience."

"ON A double-play situation, every one who got on first base became a madman, even players who didn't normally slide hard. I hit (Orlando Cepeda between the eyes and sent him to the hospital once, throwing low on a double play. Another time I hit him on the wrist and almost broke it. I hit Jim Ray Hart on the head. I got caught in a rundown once and Hart tried to tag me. He got an elbow in the ribs and wound up on the ground in pain."

"One time I hit a grounder down the first-base line. Cepeda picked it up and it was one of those plays where the first baseman normally will just tag you as you run by, but he clothes-lined me, like a cornerback."

"Those games were always a season with a season. It was like World Series atmosphere. It was a good feeling."

Some players and observers say the rivalry has died; just as Matty Schwab's infield has turned from grass and dirt to AstroTurf, the rivalry has become contrived.

"The rivalry is overrated," said Giant Willie McCovey, seemingly irritated that anyone would bring up the subject. "You can't bring back the old days. You guys (reporters) make too big a deal out of it."

AND YET there are signs. The fans are back, especially at Candlestick, where they pelt Dodgers with beer bottles and abuse. The four-game Dodger-Giant series at Dodger Stadium has been a sellout for days.

And just last week Dodger Lee Lacy got a dramatic inside-the-park homer at Candlestick after two Giant outfielders collided like bighorn sheep. It was a typical Dodger-Giant play.

Most players, like McCovey, publicly play down the rivalry. The pennant race is all that makes these games special, they say. So the rivalry is a thing of the past?

"No way," said John (the Count) Montefusco, Giant pitcher and Chief Dodger antagonist. "Not the way I see it. It seems like we look forward to playing the Dodgers more than anyone."

"A lot of guys here really hate the Dodgers. You hear guys here say, 'We don't care who wins the pennant, as long as it's not the Dodgers.' We're sick of the Dodgers and Hollywood. They're always on TV and you see (Dodger manager Tom) Lasorda on TV all the time. It's just like when the Yankees were like that."

"I'm not saying the Dodgers don't play tough baseball, they do. But last year, every time you turned on the TV it would be the Dodgers playing somebody. It was just sickening."

THE COUNT has been known to make outlandish tongue-in-cheek statements, but he insists his anti-Dodger talk is straight from the heart, and that he is not alone, although "a lot of guys won't say what they really think."

More than one Christian-leaning Giant has taken offense at Lasorda's constant reference to "the big Dodger in the sky." Some Giants just dislike the Dodgers.

It's nothing personal, third baseman Darrell Evans insists. "But it's just kind of an air they bring. They always seem to be pretty cocky and expect things to happen their way. We feel like the new kid on the block. We'd rather beat them than any other team."

Spoken in true Dodger-Giant spirit, a spirit born back in the ways when the Dodgers played at Ebbets Field and the Giants at the Polo Grounds, a nickel subway ride apart. The series was always intense, involving family traditions, neighborhood and borough rivalries, seemingly endless pennant races and assorted craziness.

Buzie Bavasi, former Dodger general manager, remembers when some Giant fans were caught stealing urinals out of Ebbets Field.

When the teams moved West, they picked the two perfect cities to continue the fun. The long-running cultural and political feuds between San Francisco and Los Angeles lent themselves nicely to a baseball rivalry.

"There was no new plot or script," ex-Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale said, "just a change of locations."

"I DIDN'T hate the Giants," Fairly said. "I disliked the organization. A lot of it is fear, fear that they would beat you. You had to beat them, for money and prestige. Salaries weren't all that great then, and if you got into the Series there was an excellent chance to double your income."

Said Drysdale: "We had a saying — 'Get the check.' When we played, World Series checks meant something. Now all they do is screw up your taxes."

But it wasn't just the money. Money didn't cause Sandy Koufax to no-hit the Giants nor strike out 18 of them on another occasion. Money didn't cause an L.A. sportswriter to "rob" Giant pitcher Sam Jones of a no-hitter in '59, or cause Juan Marichal to club John Roseboro over the head with a bat in '65, or cause Dodger Stan Williams to walk home the winning run in the '62 playoffs.

A typical Dodger-Giant beef was set off in '68, when Drysdale was working on a record string of shutout innings.

The Giants loaded the bases with no outs in the ninth and Drysdale's 2-2 pitch plunked batter Dick Dietz. But the plate umpire called Dietz back, saying he had made no effort to avoid the pitch.

"I knew exactly what the call was," Drysdale said. "A couple of Giants players came up later and told me Dietz had said he was gonna try to get hit if the pitch was anything but a fastball. And even after that pitch, they had a 3-2 count with nobody out, so they still had their fair shot."

Drysdale missed the Marichal-Roseboro fight. "I was pitching the next day in New York so I caught a flight to New York. I sat in first class, relaxing and having a nice martini. When I got off the plane a bunch of reporters came running up and asked what I thought of the fight. I said, 'There was no fight in first class, it must have been in coach.'"

THE ALL-TIME low point for the Dodgers may have been the '62 playoffs, when they led going into the ninth inning of the deciding game, but Williams eventually walked in the winning run.

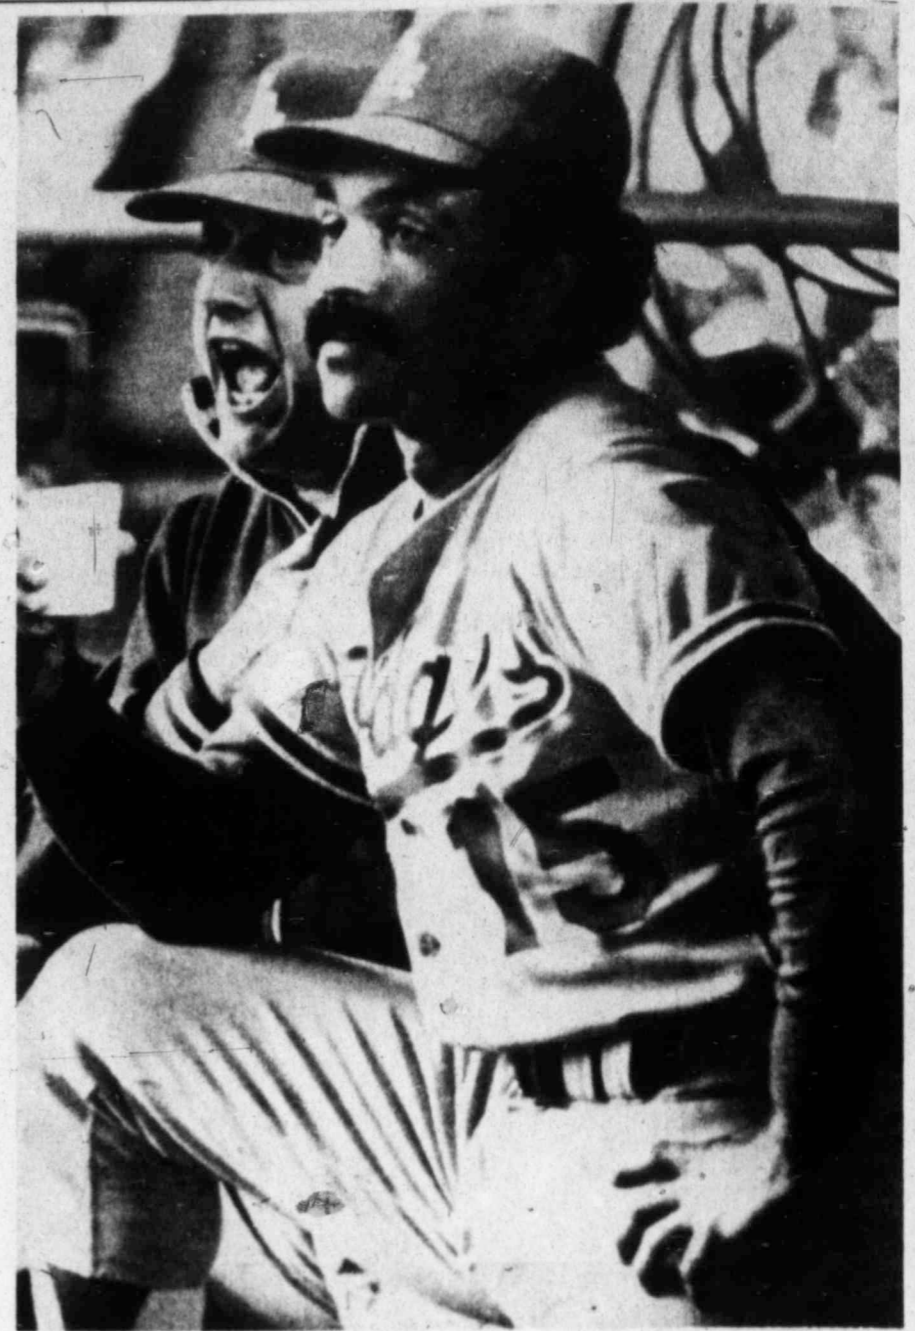

"Late in the game," Drysdale said, "I walked back to the clubhouse, grabbed my glove and came back and sat on the bench. I asked Walt (Alston, then manager), 'Do you want me to go warm up?' He said, 'No you're gonna open the Series. We'll get out of it here.'"

"I'll never forget the scene in the clubhouse. It was like someone had thrown three hand grenades in there. It was the worst I've ever seen."

But Dodger-Giant scenes were not all violence or despair or elation. There were light moments. Take Matty Schwab.

According to Schwab, Dark approached him just like in the opening of this story (with fewer dramatic background effects) and asked what could be done to slow the Dodgers' rabbits. Matty went to work:

"At 5:30 in the morning, so nobody would see us, we (the grounds crew) took two bales of peat moss, with sand and topsoil, and laid it on by first base, about five feet wide and 15 feet long. It was loose, and I knew they would squawk. When the Dodgers saw it, they started kicking the dirt. Leo (Durocher, then a coach) got down on his hands and knees and said, 'What the hell's going on!' He's digging down about six inches and he still hasn't hit bottom. They got Red Patterson (Dodger executive) and he got Jocko (Conlan, head umpire)."

Dark, according to Schwab, ordered Matty and his men to hide but Conlan found them and threatened to forfeit the game if they didn't clean up the mess.

"We took three wheelbarrows of the stuff off and I had the guys leave the wheelbarrows right here by the door."

Then he instructed his son, Terry, "to make a lake out of the first base area and he did. The umps yelled, 'What's going on!' The Dodgers were making duck calls. Then Jocko said,

'You gotta be something else, Matty. What are you gonna do now?'

"I SAID the only thing I could do would be to put some sand on it. So we brought out the three wheelbarrows and poured the stuff back on. It was looser than before. But that satisfied the umps."

"(Willie) Davis came around first base on a hit and slipped. He got caught flatfooted and was thrown out. Oh, did he moan! Wills tried to steal and was thrown out by 20 feet. He called the ump a yellow-bellied something or other and got thrown out."

"We got into the playoffs and that's one of the reasons. They voted me a full World Series share — $7,595 — so I paid off."

Drysdale recalls an incident at the Coliseum in '58 or '59 when Mays hit a shot down the left-field line. The ball hit a wire or screen and bounced

Frogs hoping to gain back respectability

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Christian Coach F.A. Dry headed west immediately after a disastrous 2-9 season to sign some fast junior college defensive backs.

The Horned Frogs could pass pretty good last year but they couldn't stop any opponent using the overhead game.

Now, there's optimism that 1978 may be the year the Horned Frogs gain respectability after many, many seasons in college football's wilderness.

"We should have a faster and more solid secondary and a more mobile defensive front," said Dry. "This is the area of greatest concern. We must show the most improvement on defense."

Dry, a high respected coach who had some excellent teams at Tulsa, has an excellent senior quarterback in 6-foot-2 Steve Bayuk, who completed 114 of 250 passes for 14 touchdowns in 1977.

"We should have better balance than a year ago with better running and more balance passing," said Dry. "We have a veteran returning at quarterback to build around. We also have an experienced but young offensive line."

Fourteen Junior college transfers will be on the TCU scene.

"You never know about junior college transfers," said Southern Methodist Coach Ron Meyer, who opens with TCU. "There could always be an O.J. Simpson in there. That's where Simpson came from — out of the junior colleges."

Dry said, "We're happy with our recruits and we'll depend on them a lot, particularly in our defensive secondary. Our defense looked like Bandera after the flood last year."

Dry said, "I'll tell you this — we'll have as good a quarterback as any in the conference. Maybe, just maybe we can be a factor in the race."

TCU should have an improving offensive line to protect Bayuk. Big tackles Mark Krug and Donald Davis were consistent blockers last season.

Michael Milton hopes to become the clutch receiver that Mike Renfro, now with the Houston Oilers, was in his senior year. Milton had 18 catches for 351 yards and three touchdowns last year. Milton is a long distance threat with his 9.5 speed.

TCU, as usual, has a tough schedule. The Horned Frogs don't play at home until Oct. 14 when Rice calls after visiting SMU, Oregon, Penn State and Arkansas.

Atlanta crowds drop with heat, humidity

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves say daytime heat and humidity are keeping people away from their home games, so they are asking the approval of their fellow National League teams for Sunday night games during the summer of 1978.

Braves General Manager Bill Lucas said Thursday he expects to get the six votes he needs for the change at next week's league meeting.

"I haven't been lobbying," Lucas said, "but I don't foresee any difficulty. Texas plays all its home games at night for the same reason — the daytime heat."

Under the plan, the Braves would continue to play Sunday day games in April, May and September, but go to Sunday night games in June, July and August.

But player representative Phil Niekro said he thought players might object to the change because they look forward to spending Sunday nights with their families.

Thomas draws Writers unpopular from Davey Lopes

By SCOTT OSTLER
The Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO — The Derrell Thomas show starts when he steps into the batter's box. Oh, so slowly and carefully he positions one foot, then the other. He leans forward, touching the near side of home plate with his bat, holding that position for a couple seconds, then extends his bat to the far side of the plate.

All of this is executed with the patient precision of a surveyor.

Once set, Thomas waggles his bat in an odd, jerky fashion. He'll take a pitch, foul one off, step out to get a handful of dirt, and then start the long ritual again.

It's just one of the things Thomas does that make people like Dodger Reggie Smith say things like: "Let's put it this way: Derrel Thomas does things that make it easy to hate him."

THOMAS IS a whip-tin (6-0, 160), 27-year-old utility player for the San Diego Padres. He isn't about to deny that he is a hot dog. But hated?

"He plays hard and he's a showman-type player," says Padres manager Roger Craig. "He likes attention and he'll do anything to get it. If he has to play the villain role to get attention, he'll do it."

Intentionally or not, Thomas played the villain last week against the Dodgers, breaking up a double play by sliding hard into shortstop Bill Russell. Thomas was cited for violating a new rule that prohibits straying from the base paths on such plays.

Russell got a charley horse and missed the rest of the game and two subsequent games, all of which the Dodgers lost, with Thomas playing key roles each night.

As Russell went down, Dodger second baseman Davey Lopes pointed a finger at Thomas and threatened retaliation. Thomas barked back and both benches cleared.

Dusty Baker of the Dogers put the incident in perspective when he said: "I would have done the same thing (on the slide). Half the guys on this team would have done the same thing. It's just that some people can do things and nobody gets mad, while other people can do the same thing and make people upset."

THOMAS IS, by most standards, a talented baseball player, with a lifetime .250 batting average. He is one of the most versatile of utility men. Last year, as a Giant, he played every position but pitcher and catcher, and his work in center field was lauded.

But Thomas gives you more. He will sing the National Anthem. During a stadium power failure he will entertain the fans with impromptu theatricals. He will garnish routine defensive plays with a little basket catch here, a little tumble on the ground there. He will make the news, as he did two years ago at San Francisco when he was outside the clubhouse, in uniform, during a game, reportedly washing his car (he plead innocent, with an explanation).

After the incident against the Dodgers, one San Diego columnist described Thomas as "the most-

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Danny Ozark said it in jest, but it's becoming a fact of life that the media is being forced to live with.

Ozark, the manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, was asked whether he would sacrifice one writer a day if he could be sure it would incite his players to play their best.

"Only one?" the manager asked.

Then Ozark laughed. "I'm only kidding fellas," he quickly added.

The truth is that even in jest the remark isn't funny. It's a nice way of describing the hate, yes hate, between many professional athletes and the writers who chronicle their exploits.

The average reader, the sports fan, could not even envision the ugly scenes Thursday night in the dressing room of the Phillies both before and after their game with Pittsburgh.

The fact that a writer was struck on a cheekbone is infinitesimal in the overall picture.

Whether it was Larry Bowa, the Phillies' All-Star shortstop, who reportedly struck Ray W. Kelly of the Camden, N.J., Courier-Post, isn't the real issue.

For the record, Bowa says he never laid a glove on the baseball writer of 14 years.

Kelly says he didn't see where the blow came from.

Another writer, a witness, insists Bowa delivered an open-hand light blow while struggling to escape from the grasp of a teammate who was restraining him.

What is important are the reasons behind this steady deterioration of relations between athlete and writer. Why do many athletes look upon reporters as if they were feeding their material to the CIA or the KGB (Russian intelligence)?

Are we, indeed, dealing with overpaid spoiled brats, who believe their ability to play games invented for little boys entitles them to immunity to criticism?

Or, do the writers go too far in probing the psyches of young men, many of whom still haven't matured enough to handle public dissection of their deficiencies?

There is much room for debate on both sides, although indications are today that the public sides with the athletic heroes and spurns the media's efforts to be objective reporters rather than cheerleaders — extensions of public relations departments.

The Phillies' player disenchantment with the media has been growing for several years. Perhaps it's a mirror of their own who has made no secret of his dislike for the press.

A number of them just don't want to explain their mistakes after a game. Some don't even want to discuss their successes. They seem to want to be private people in a public business.

That's like the president of the United States hiding in a closet. The players, like the president, live in a glass tank. They serve the public, are paid by the public and are responsible to the public.

Fortunately, baseball, football, basketball, hockey, etc. aren't as important as inflation, the Middle East, atomic weapons, food, gas, oil, peace in the world. But those involved take their places in life just as seriously.

However, all three were joking with each other and not talking about tennis.

"You talk about anything but your match during a delay like this," said Barazzutti. "I don't think about my match until I'm walking out to play."

The men's other quarter-final match put top-seeded Jimmy Connors against sixth-seeded John McEnroe.

Gonzalez stages ladies net upset

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Viviana Gonzalez of Argentina and Dana Gilbert, an 18-year-old California, scored rainy-day upset victories Friday to advance to the finals of women's singles in the 88th U.S. Open Clay Courts tennis championships.

Gilbert, the No. 2 player on the UCLA women's tennis team, defeated sixth-seeded Jeanne Evert 1-6, 6-2, 7-5. Gonzalez, 20, like Gilbert unseeded for this $210,000 tournament, upset fourth-seeded Janet Newberry 7-5, 6-4.

Evert, whose older sister, Chris, won the singles title here four straight years, trailed 2-5 in the deciding set when a heavy rainstorm interrupted play for more than three hours. She rallied, breaking Gilbert's service twice to tie the match.

Gilbert, ranked 134th in the world by the Women's Tennis Association, then broke Evert's service and held her own to win the match.

Gonzalez, who has climbed from 90th to 47th in the rankings since April, was trailing 3-4 in the final set when play was halted. After the break, she rallied for three straight victories.

Three of the world's top players, defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain, his Davis Cup teammate Jose Higueras and Corrado Barazzutti of Italy, spent most of the rain delay in a glass-enclosed VIP room.

"There's really nothing you can do," said Orantes, a three-time winner seeded No. 3 this year. "You can't go too far away because you don't want your match called and not be there."

Orantes was waiting to play Jeff Borowiak while seventh-seeded Higueras was scheduled to meet No. 2 seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina. Barazzutti, seeded fourth, had a quarter-final match with Sweden's Kjell Johansson ahead of him.

ROB WILFONG, second baseman for the Minnesota Twins, gets a better view of double play while leaping high in the air as Oakland's Dave Revering is thrown out during twin killing, coming in the second inning of first game of doubleheader in Bloomington, Minn. Friday night. Oakland won the opener, 2-0. (AP Laserphoto).

Oakland divides two with Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Glenn Borgmann singled home the decisive run in the seventh inning, lifting Minnesota to a 3-2 victory over the Oakland A's and giving the Twins a split of Friday's twin doubleheader.

In the opener, Oakland's Rick Langford won his fifth straight decision, blanking the Twins 2-0 on a three-hitter.

Oakland got a runner to third with one out in the ninth but Edwards flied to center and pinch-runner Glenn Burke was thrown out at the plate by Dan Ford to end the game.

Hosken Powell doubled to open the Twins' seventh in the second game and scored when Borgmann's hit deflected off second baseman Mike Edwards' glove and rolled into center field.

Minnesota took a 2-0 lead after three innings on a groundout by Mike Cabbage and an RBI single by Rod Carew. Roy Smalley, who singled in the first inning and doubled in the third, scored both times.

Oakland tied the game in the sixth after Mitchell Page tripled and scored on an infield hit by Willie Horton. A wild pickoff throw by Twins starter Darrell Jackson sent pinch-runner Miguel Dilone to third and he scored on Mario Guerrero's double.

Jackson, 4-4, needed relief from Mike Marshall, who recorded his 15th save. Oakland starter Pete Broberg, 9-10, was the loser.

Braves top Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Rookie Larry McWilliams and reliever Gene Garber combined on a three-hitter and Dale Murphy drove in the game's only run with a sixth-inning single as the Atlanta Braves trimmed the Houston Astros 1-0 Friday night.

McWilliams, 5-0, didn't allow an Astros runner to reach third base as he defeated the Astros for the second time in the last six days. He walked one and struck out five. Garber registered his 19th save while Houston starter Joe Niekro, 9-9, suffered the loss.

A one-out single by Jeff Burroughs and a walk to Joe Nolan preceded Murphy's two-out RBI single to center in the sixth back. "Dusty (Bogges, umpire) signaled home run, and Don Zimmer, our shortstop, ran out there to argue. So Bogges calls it a ground-rule double and here come the Giants to argue. Now all of us are out there yelling and screaming. All of a sudden all the arguing stops. Zimmer always had this big chaw of tobacco. He was yelling so hard the chaw came out and his (dental) plate came with it. Everybody stopped arguing and started looking for Zimmer's plate."

Zimmer and Drysdale and Marichal and all the rest have long since retired.

And yet, Dodger general manager Al Campanis said: "I think the rivalry is as intense as ever in the minds of the players."

Whether it's tradition, or just the pennant race, the Dodgers-Giants rivalry is back. The fans — especially the ones at Candlestick — will drink to that.

Committee meets

COPENHAGEN (AP) — The Danish Olympic committee said Friday it was not prepared to take over as host of the summer Olympic Games in 1984 if Los Angeles backs out or loses its bid to stage the Games.

Kurt Moeller, chairman of Denmark's Olympic committee, said, however, that Denmark was willing to consider an application to stage the Olympics in 1988.

Hayes takes lead on birdie spree by two strokes

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Mark Hayes, a five-year touring pro from Oklahoma, went on a birdie spree after a sluggish start Friday, charging into a two-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the $225,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Bidding for his first PGA victory this year, Hayes added a 5-under-par 66 to his opening-round 67 for a 36-hole total of 133, 9 under regulation.

With six birdies on the last 10 holes, Hayes went two up on defending champ Ray Floyd and Bob Gilder, who were tied at 135. Floyd shot a 68, while Gilder, starting with a 70, equalled the day's best round with 65.

Newly crowned PGA champion John Mahaffey moved into contention with a 65 for a two-day total of 136. He was tied three strokes off the pace with Australia's Graham Marsh, who showed the reason for his worldwide success with a 65, and Craig Stadler, who added a 67 to his first-round 69.

Miller Barber and Ben Crenshaw, the first round co-leaders at 66, lost ground. Barber struggled to a par 71 for 137, while Crenshaw took a 73 and 139.

Barbeg was tied at 137 with Mike McCullough, who shot 67; Bobby Wadkins, also 67; Gil Morgan, 67; Bill Rogers, 69, and D.A. Weibring, 66.

Deadlocked another stroke back were Kermit Zarley, Orville Moody and Lee Elder. Then came Crenshaw, 1977 leading money winner Andy Bean, Ed Sabo, Fred Marti, Pat Fitzsimons, Artie McNickle, Bruce Listzke, Don Bies and Bob Shearer.

The starting field of 150 was trimmed to the low 70, with the cut made after 144, for the final two rounds of the 72-hole event. Major casualties included five former Pleasant Valley winners — Billy Casper, Roger Maltbie, Bruce Devlin, Vic Regalado and Tom Shaw.

Hayes, who had four birdies without a bogey Thursday, started his second round by going one stroke over regulation with a 3-putt from 40 feet on the first green. He caught fire after saving par with a short putt which just caught the lip of the eighth hole and went in.

"I started very slow, poorly, and thought I was losing what I had going for me yesterday," said the 29-year-old Hayes. "I felt uncomfortable and things didn't look good. Then I got that putt for a shaky par on eight."

"I made some adjustments and everything started falling into place. That turned a bad round into a good one."

Hayes, the 1977 Tournament Players Association champion, got birdies with putts of 6, 12 and 20 feet on the ninth, 10th and 11th greens. He went on to card three more birdies, including one on his 36th hole.

The tournament, sponsored by American Optical Co., is worth $45,000 to the winner.

BOWLING BEAT

BY RANDY ISENBERG

Mike Umfleet turned in a 603 series while bowling in the Air Park Scratch League Sunday evening. Umfleet's series was highlighted by a 224 game.

Information frame: The Midland Bowling Association meeting and workshop is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday at Super Bowl...The Midland Women's Bowling Association meeting and workshop is 7 p.m. Tuesday at Super Bowl with all league officers invited...

Muscular Dystrophy Bowl-A-Thon is from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday Aug. 19. This is the third annual event sponsored by Air Park Lanes and the MDA Association. KCRS DJS will be on hand for bowling pledges. Everyone who bowls will be bowling for Muscular Dystrophy. Pledge forms may be picked up at Air Park. The public is invited to participate. For more information call 683-4683.

Extra frames from ABC Press Guide Information: Even though the ABC does not officially recognize Marathon contests, they do list the records. And for those of you who are interested in knowing who actually bowled the most games consecutively, that person is Bob Athney, Jr., St. Petersburg, Fla., who bowled 265 hours to crank out 1,976 games from Nov. 9-11, 1975. Larry Butler of Sarasota, Fla., bowled 309 hours from Aug. 18 to Aug. 31, 1975, but bowled only 1,776 games. Both now have trouble with their knuckles on their bowling hand. They scrap the tops of their shoes when they walk.

Umfleet rolls 603 series

And if you are wondering who has bowled the most 300 games, sanctioned, that distinction belongs to Elvin Mesger of Sullivan, Mo., who has 26 sanctioned perfectos to his credit. Mesger has never competed as a professional, preferring league bowling and competing in ABC tournaments.

Mesger also has rolled the most sanctioned 800 series, 21, and he has rolled the most 299 games, 11. Mesger is tied with two other gentlemen for the most 298 games with four.

For those bowlers getting ready to begin league play, you might want to know what national records to aim for. The highest five-man team series is the Budweiser Beer team of St. Louis, March 12, 1958, a 3,858 scratch series. On April 14, 1950, five gentlemen from Lodi, N.J., put together scores totaling 1,342 for one game scratch. And if you feel like you have been tapped all night, well Pete Hland of Bremerton, Wash., had 18 consecutive nine pin counts Oct. 28, 1976. The high individual four game series was set by Chuck Neal of Indianapolis who rolled games of 289-290-276-300 for a brilliant 1,155 total on May 18, 1977.

FINALLY, FOR those who really enjoy league competition, try bowling three in one night or 17 in one week. Ten men have bowled three leagues in one night, and two have bowled 17 in one week. If you'll remember a few weeks ago we wrote about a couple of bowlers who bowled two leagues simultaneously on two different floors of a bowling center in San Diego, Calif.

Last week's Bowling Beat missed the Reporter-Telegram's new composition computer, so after talking to Bob Dillon, he suggested we recap the highlights of last week's bowling as reported in the missing Beat.

Brian Gillette, who has had a sizzling summer, fell eight pins shy of a 700 series while bowling in the Scratch League. Gillette's three-game 692 series and four-game 866 series were tops for the week. Earlier, Brian had rolled games of 266 and 255. Gillette is 19 years old.

On the League front:

City Men's Brian Gillette 262; Gary Daniel 264. Tuesday Night Mixed—Mike Trivette 288; Guy Cooley 290. Grimsley Thomas hated stops Cubs

MONTREAL (AP) — Tony Perez scored Dave Cash with a sacrifice fly and Ross Grimsley pitched a two-hit shutout as the Montreal Expos beat the Chicago Cubs 1-0 Friday night.

Grimsley, 14-8, gave up a single to Manny Trillo in the second and another to Bill Buckner in the seventh for the only Cubs baserunners. Dennis Lamp, 5-12, limited Montreal batters to four hits, but an error by Trillo in the sixth allowed the only run of the game to score.

Cash led off the sixth and reached on Trillo's error at second, and moved to third on a double by Andre Dawson. After Lamp walked Ellis Valentine, Perez hit a fly to deep center to score Cash.

The other Montreal hits were a double by Valentine in the first, a single by Dawson in the fourth and a single by Warren Cromartie in the fifth.

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — The big question facing Oklahoma coaches for the 41st Annual Oil Bowl game here tonight is whether their quite hastily gathered team can overcome what is expected to be a smooth-running Texas squad.

Oklahoma has been plagued by several setbacks all week which depleted what promised to be one of the best Sooner teams in years.

However, after having two of their top quarterbacks pulled out because of prior commitments, Oklahoma coaches lost three more potential starters the first day of workouts, including one of two remaining quarterbacks.

Replacements arrived in camp Tuesday but Texas already had an advantage by having all 27 of its players suited up for the opening workouts. Texas coaches have also been lucky in that their players have been able to escape injury.

Texas, which won last year's game 31-8, holds a 25-6-1 record in the series.

Scheduled for an 8 p.m. kickoff at the 15,000-seat Memorial Stadium tonight, as the Oil Bowl is a big annual charity game to benefit crippled children in North Texas and Southern Oklahoma areas.

Leading the Texas offense will be starters Mike Brannan of Brazoswood at quarterback, running back Eddie Wright of Sherman, split end Robert Mitchell of Houston Worthing and flanker Steve Haynes of Plano. Defensive standouts include nose guard Carlton Nelson of Wichita Falls Rider, tackle Paul Kerestine of Denton, middle linebacker Ron Reeves of Lubbock Monterey, and quarterback Gary Lowell of Sherman.

Burglars among All-Star fans

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Police said experienced burglars were among the estimated 12,000 baseball fans visiting San Diego for the All-Star game recently.

Montreal Expos broadcaster Claude Mark Raymond reported theft of a $350 pair of gold cuff links, his return airline ticket and luggage.

Undercover police were assigned to major hotels.

Yankees win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore shortstop Kiko Garcia's wild throw on an attempted inning-ending double play relay allowed two New York runs to score and the Yankees defeated the Orioles 2-1 Friday night in a game called because of rain after 5 1/2 innings.

Singles by Chris Chambliss and Reggie Jackson plus a walk to Jay Johnstone loaded the bases for the Yanks against loser Dennis Martinez, 8-10, with one out in the fourth inning.

Chambliss scored as Johnstone was forced on Gary Thomasson's ground-er to second and Jackson continued home when Garcia's relay sailed past first as he tried to avoid the sliding runner.

Catfish Hunter, 6-4, whose string of 17 consecutive scoreless innings was snapped by Ken Singleton's first-inning homer, won for the sixth time in his last seven decisions and the Yankees stretched their winning streak to six games.

Bonds likes Fenway Park

BY TED BATTLES

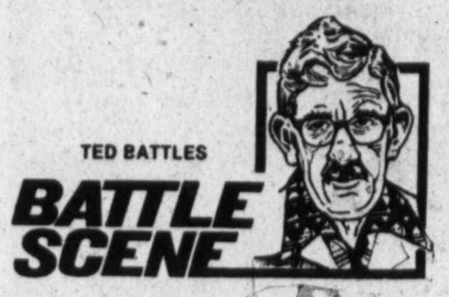

Bobby Lee Bonds, not to be confused with older brother Robert V. Bonds, was sitting alone, or almost alone, in the third base dugout before a game with the Red Sox at Fenway Park not long ago and wondered, perhaps, if it was true. That is, when pitchers who have lived by the rule book die, they are met by Robert Lurie at the pearly gates of Candlestick Park. And pitchers who throw dust and generally mistreat hitters are dispatched without mercy to Fenway Park.

Whatever his thoughts, it was evident he was thankful that he was a hitter, but even Fenway, with its intimate resident Monster, didn't entirely suit him.

"I like to hit in this park," he told a "vacationing" Texas writer. "It's strictly for hitters, but I'll be glad when we get back to Texas where it's hot."

DESPITE AN impressive array of statistics, such as being the only man to hit 30 homers and steal 30 bases in a season four times, he has acquired a reputation, justified or not, as one of those homeless mercenaries, whose numbers multiply each year. They wander from team-to-team without any sense of allegiance, loyalty or duty unless it's green and minted.

After a six-year stay in San Francisco, Bonds has meandered from the

Bobby Lee Bonds

Yankees to the Angels to the White Sox and finally this year to the Rangers, all since 1975.

It was this year that Bonds was given the Chicago White Sox for Claudell Washington, a transaction that caused some tongues to wag. After all, Bonds is 32nd with his best years behind him. Washington is 23 and with his future still ahead of him. Only a year earlier when Texas acquired Claudell from Oakland, it was hailed as a bargaining masterpiece. Now, only a year later, Claudell was gone.

Stories detailing the reaction of both intimates that neither was happy with the trade. Bonds reportedly was reluctant to leave the Windy City, perhaps because of those tales of the unfriendly Arlington Stadium wind that blew one-time MVP Jeff Burroughs right out of the league and to Atlanta.

BONDS QUICKLY denied that he ever had any misgivings over coming to Texas. "I had to be glad to get away from Chicago and join a pennant contender. And the wind they say blows in at Arlington didn't and hasn't bothered me. I've hit 12 homers since joining the Rangers and nine of them have been at Arlington."

"After Candlestick, I figure I can hit anywhere."

Bonds continued, "Actually, Candlestick is the only place I've really wanted to get away from." Bonds' primary gripe against the wintry summer blasts of Candlestick is that "It's hard to sustain performance there."

"I just like hot weather. I live in San Carlos in the Bay Area during the winter, but I'm thinking of moving to Texas. In fact, I'm planning to spend the winter here to see if it's warm enough and if I like it, I'll make my home here."

ALTHOUGH HE is no longer with the Giants, there remains a certain loyalty and interest. He is happy for the Giants' success this year. "It has all fallen into place for them. The winning and enthusiasm of the fans has everyone pumped up."

And the Rangers? "We have the talent. I'll be very disappointed if we don't win."

AKERS likes challenge for 1978

BY STEVE O'BRIEN

intelligent, handsome, dynamic, sincere, warm, friendly — they all fit him to a tee. He's the type of guy who could have convinced the Christians they stood a good chance against the Lions.

When he speaks, you get the sense that this is no ordinary football coach. He speaks of responsibility and personal accountability, not X's and O's. Accountability, Akers says, is "refusing to be second, refusing to be anything less than excellent." This is the type of philosophy Akers stands on and it is applicable in a much larger sense than just on the football field.

There is more to him than just Fred Akers — football coach. He's a family man and cherishes the time he is able to spend with his family. Akers and his wife, Diane, have three children, Danny, 16; Leslie, 14; and Stacy Lynn, 10. Even though the rigors and odd hours of the coaching profession can take its toll on a man's family life, Akers makes sure he finds the time.

"MY FAMILY has grown up in coaching, so they're used to it," he said. "We spend a lot of time together in ways that may seem peculiar to others. I have a projector at home and I take game films home and we watch them together."

In the sixth, Oliver singled and scored on a double by Bonds. Bevaqua singled Bonds home.

Beniquez hit his seventh home run off Sid Monge in the eighth. Starter Rick Watts, 7-13, who pitched the first 31-3 innings, was the loser.

Matlack, 10-9, was nicked for an unearned run in the second inning. Duane Kuiper singled and moved to second on a single by Bo Diaz. Rick Manning chopped an infield single but first baseman Mike Hargrove threw wildly past Matlack, who was covering first base, allowing Kuiper to score.

Texas tied the game in the third when Bump Wills walked, stole second and scored on a single by Hargrove.

Texas 4-3, Cleveland 4-10.

Perhaps the question Akers is asked most these days is "Who's going to replace Earl Campbell?"

"You know," he answers those queries, "I don't think you can actually replace someone like that. A player like that will always have a special place in our hearts. After Steve Worster played at Texas people said, 'There'll never be another one like him.' Then along came Roosevelt Leaks and people said 'There'll never be another Rose.' Then along came Earl Campbell. So, even though you can't replace a guy like that, someone evened his record at 11-11.

The Phillies batted around again in the sixth for five more runs, including Luzinski's 27th home run.

After Ted Sizemore walked, left-hander Dave Hamilton relieved Kison and was reached for four straight hits, run-scoring singles by McBride and Carlton, Bowa's two-run double and an RBI single for Heber, wrapping up the Phillies' third straight victory.

When the carnage was over, a 2-1 Pittsburgh lead was turned into a 10-2 Philadelphia advantage and Carlton, who was relieved by Rawly Eastwick in the ninth, infield hit with two out and Hurdle belted a 2-0 pitch from reliever Mike Willis over the right-field fence for his fifth homer of the season.

After Al Woods doubled and Dave McKay was hit by a pitch to open the Toronto second, Alan Ashby lofted a 1-2 pitch from Dennis Leonard over the right-field fence for his seventh homer and a 5-2 Blue Jays advantage.

Rico Carly's club record 20th homer gave Toronto a 6-3 lead in the third and John Mayberry added his 19th homer in the seventh to account for the eighth Toronto run.

This is the type of philosophy Akers stands on and it is applicable in a much larger sense than just on the football field.

There is more to him than just Fred Akers — football coach. He's a family man and cherishes the time he is able to spend with his family. Akers and his wife, Diane, have three children, Danny, 16; Leslie, 14; and Stacy Lynn, 10. Even though the rigors and odd hours of the coaching profession can take its toll on a man's family life, Akers makes sure he finds the time.

"MY FAMILY has grown up in coaching, so they're used to it," he said. "We spend a lot of time together in ways that may seem peculiar to others. I have a projector at home and I take game films home and we watch them together."

In the sixth, Oliver singled and scored on a double by Bonds. Bevaqua singled Bonds home.

Beniquez hit his seventh home run off Sid Monge in the eighth. Starter Rick Watts, 7-13, who pitched the first 31-3 innings, was the loser.

Matlack, 10-9, was nicked for an unearned run in the second inning. Duane Kuiper singled and moved to second on a single by Bo Diaz. Rick Manning chopped an infield single but first baseman Mike Hargrove threw wildly past Matlack, who was covering first base, allowing Kuiper to score.

Texas tied the game in the third when Bump Wills walked, stole second and scored on a single by Hargrove.

Texas 4-3, Cleveland 4-10.

Perhaps the question Akers is asked most these days is "Who's going to replace Earl Campbell?"

"You know," he answers those queries, "I don't think you can actually replace someone like that. A player like that will always have a special place in our hearts. After Steve Worster played at Texas people said, 'There'll never be another one like him.' Then along came Roosevelt Leaks and people said 'There'll never be another Rose.' Then along came Earl Campbell. So, even though you can't replace a guy like that, someone evened his record at 11-11.

The Phillies batted around again in the sixth for five more runs, including Luzinski's 27th home run.

After Ted Sizemore walked, left-hander Dave Hamilton relieved Kison and was reached for four straight hits, run-scoring singles by McBride and Carlton, Bowa's two-run double and an RBI single for Heber, wrapping up the Phillies' third straight victory.

When the carnage was over, a 2-1 Pittsburgh lead was turned into a 10-2 Philadelphia advantage and Carlton, who was relieved by Rawly Eastwick in the ninth, infield hit with two out and Hurdle belted a 2-0 pitch from reliever Mike Willis over the right-field fence for his fifth homer of the season.

After Al Woods doubled and Dave McKay was hit by a pitch to open the Toronto second, Alan Ashby lofted a 1-2 pitch from Dennis Leonard over the right-field fence for his seventh homer and a 5-2 Blue Jays advantage.

Rico Carly's club record 20th homer gave Toronto a 6-3 lead in the third and John Mayberry added his 19th homer in the seventh to account for the eighth Toronto run.

When he speaks, you get the sense that this is no ordinary football coach. He speaks of responsibility and personal accountability, not X's and O's.
