Earthquake evidenced by massive damage

By ROBERT LOCKE

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Residents still reeling from an earthquake that rumbled through Santa Barbara and injured about 50 people are cleaning up its evidence today: shattered windows, flooded streets, cracked highways and a derailed train.

The quake rattled five counties Sunday, knocking people to the ground. The tremor was centered in the Santa Barbara Canal about six miles south of here, in an area that sits atop California's most prominent fault, the San Andreas.

Spokesmen for the Caltech Seismology Laboratory in Pasadena said the quake measured 5.1 on the Richter scale, the worst to hit the area in more than 30 years.

"It just scared us," said Joe Loebman, 38, who lives on the ocean about two miles from the center of town. "As soon as it happened, we got outside and there were a lot of very scared people."

Structural damage was minimal, but many residents today had to clear broken glass and other debris from their homes. Downtown Santa Barbara, hit hard in a 1941 quake, escaped without serious damage this time. Goleta, just north of here, absorbed most of the damage, and many windows shattered by the tremor were covered with plywood.

"It was like being inside a paint shaker," said California Highway Patrol Officer Gene Hunt, who was home in Goleta when the quake hit. "With no warning, the house started shaking violently from side to side. I was lying on the living room floor reading the Sunday paper. My very first thought was a car had run into my house or that an airplane had crashed. But then it kept going and I knew what it was."

Most of the 50 people rushed to Goleta Valley Community Hospital's emergency room were treated for minor cuts and bruises, but Dr. Donald Rink said one woman was admitted to the intensive care unit with burns and was listed in good condition. Another person suffered a broken back, he said.

Three roofs collapsed but caused only one slight injury, said Santa Barbara police.

Major roads were blocked by quake-triggered rock slides and one highway developed a wide crack, said California Highway Patrol dispatcher Terrie Tucker. One motorist escaped after debris crushed her car on Highway 154, which connects Santa Barbara and Santa Ynez.

Vibrations cracked some concrete overpasses, said Michael Brown of the California Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento. Water mains snapped throughout Santa Barbara, flooding homes and businesses, a sheriff's department spokeswoman said. A few gas leaks triggered small fires, which were quickly extinguished.

Minutes after the quake hit at 3:54 p.m., 20 cars and one locomotive of a freight train derailed near Goleta, said Southern Pacific Transportation Co. spokesman Tom Buckley. No injuries were reported, he said, and no dangerous materials were aboard the train.

Fred Grover of Camarillo was playing golf about 400 yards from the tracks. He likened the sound of the derailed train to "a dozen automobiles when they start piling up."

Grover said dust churned up by the train covered both lanes of the nearby freeway, while light standards along the road swayed in a five-foot arch.

"It was a terrible feeling," he said. At the University of California at Santa Barbara, the jolt opened cases of snakes and threw the reptiles across a classroom, said sheriff's department spokeswoman Darleen Thompson. They were recovered without incident.

In another college building, bottles of noxious chemicals were broken, but city fire officials said the fumes dissipated without causing any damage.

Santa Barbara had its first brush with earthquake disaster in 1925, when a tremor measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale rocked the area and killed 14 people. The city was hit by another strong earthquake in 1941. Although no one died, property damage was heavy and widespread.

The Richter scale is a measure of the ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Scientists say a reading of 5 can mean considerable damage and a reading of 7 is considered a major earthquake. An 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 8.3 on the Richter scale.

An earthquake measuring 5.1 on the Richter scale shook five California counties Sunday afternoon, scattering goods in a Goleta, Calif., supermarket. An unidentified team begins cleanup.

Tossed almost as easily as the canned goods above, a freight train derailed just west of the Santa Barbara airport. Widespread structural damage was reported. (AP Laserphotos)

Gas strike made off Atlantic Coast

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. reported this morning it had discovered natural gas in the Baltimore Canyon area 100 miles off the New Jersey coast. The strike is the first off the U.S. Atlantic Coast.

The company said it had gotten "very encouraging" results from tests done on the well it owns with five other companies.

One of the partners in the operation is Midland-based Freeport Oil Co. which has a 10 percent interest in the operation.

Texaco said that additional test wells on the 5,693-acre drilling site east of Atlantic City would be necessary before a decision is made to set up a production facility there.

Texaco said the well, which reached a depth of 14,000 feet, produced natural gas at a rate of 7.5 million cubic feet a day, which is considered a small quantity.

There has been intense speculation recently about drilling in the Baltimore Canyon, particularly since last month when Texaco announced that it had found traces of hydrocarbons.

Several other companies are also drilling in the area. Two, Shell Oil Co. and Continental Oil Co., have reported that their test wells were "dry holes."

The company said it will conduct tests within the next three weeks to determine whether there is more gas in the well than the initial tests indicate.

Texaco began drilling the well on April 16, in partnership with Getty Oil Co., Sun Oil Co. of Delaware, Allied Chemical Co., Transco Exploration Co. and Freeport Oil Co. Texaco's 31.5 percent stake in the well makes it the largest partner. The companies paid $16.83 million at auction for the rights to drill in the block.

Beirut bombing blamed on pro-Syrian faction

By FAROUK NASSAR

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The leader of a radical Palestinian guerrilla faction supported by Iraq has accused a pro-Syrian guerrilla group of the bombing of his Beirut headquarters in which at least 161 Palestinians are reported dead or missing.

Abul Abbas, the 29-year-old head of the pro-Iraqi Palestine Liberation Front said the bombing, which leveled a nine-story apartment building early Sunday, was the work of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, led by a former Syrian army captain named Ahmed Gebril.

"They wanted to kill me and the movement in order to undermine reconciliation moves that were under way. They wanted to keep the inter-Palestinian rift brewing," said Abbas.

Gebril and his organization were silent, and there was no confirmation of Abbas' claim from other sources. But some observers said if Gebril's guerrillas did make the attack, they might have been acting for Yasser Arafat, whose Al Fatah guerrillas have been warring with pro-Iraqi guerrillas in London, Paris and Pakistan for the past month.

Arafat as chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization has been holding reconciliation talks with Abbas and other pro-Iraqi guerrilla leaders.

Youth dies of injuries

A 17-year-old Midlander died early this morning in Midland Memorial Hospital as a result of injuries he received in a motorcycle-auto accident Sunday five miles south of San Angelo near Lake Nasworthy, according to authorities.

John B. Callaway, 17, of 3622 Boyd Ave. died at 1:30 a.m. today, said a hospital spokesman.

Callaway, along with Steve Bohrer and John Potter, both of Midland, was motorcycling on Middle Concho Drive shortly after 11 a.m. Sunday when Callaway's cycle was in a head-on collision with an auto driven by Santos Ortiz, Jr., 21, also of Midland, according to a spokesman for the Concho County Sheriff's Department.

Callaway initially was taken to San Angelo Community Hospital before being transferred to Midland Memorial Hospital, said the hospital spokesman.

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martin Luther King Jr.'s chief lieutenant in the civil rights movement said today he believes King received advance warning of his assassination.

"I think he had received some word from some sources that he was going to be assassinated," the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy told the House assassinations committee as the panel opened a week of public hearings on its investigation of King's death.

Under questioning, Abernathy said he has "no knowledge" of any warning delivered to King. He said that although he and King were the closest of friends, King had said nothing to him about any threats.

Nevertheless, Abernathy recalled that the night before the murder in Memphis, Tenn., April 4, 1968, King delivered a speech in which he seemed to foretell his death.

That was a famous speech in which King declared, "I have been to the mountaintop and I have seen the promised land."

In more than an hour of testimony, Abernathy described his relationship with King from the time they first met in Atlanta in 1951. He traced the development of King's belief in nonviolence as the most effective way to protest mistreatment of blacks throughout the South in the 1950s and 1960s.

And he told of King's efforts to show his support for the mostly black sanitation workers of Memphis who were striking for wage increases. Sympathy for the strike brought King, Abernathy and other strategists of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to Memphis to lead a civil rights march on March 28, 1968.

When the March turned violent, King became extremely depressed but concluded later that he would return to lead a peaceful protest, Abernathy recounted.

Throughout his experiences in Memphis and elsewhere, King distrusted law enforcement agencies and felt he could not rely on them for protection, Abernathy continued.

"He really did not rely on or trust the police powers in this country," Abernathy said. "He knew the FBI was against him and could not be trusted. He knew the CIA was against him and could not be trusted. His hotel rooms had been bugged. The police were looked on as an enemy."

Abernathy, who succeeded King as head of the SCLC, was the only witness during the opening day of testimony.

As the session opened, committee members said they have investigated 21 allegations of conspiracy in the King murder but will reserve judgment until reviewing all the evidence.

Among the spectators today was Mark Lane, the lawyer who blames a conspiracy and who now represents James Earl Ray, convicted of killing King. Ray, who now claims he is innocent, is scheduled to testify Wednesday.

Travel tuned to dollar's doings

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Down, down, down goes the dollar. Up, up, up goes the cost of that foreign vacation you dreamed about. Now is the time to make sure you get the best possible deal for your money.

You may have no one to blame but yourself if your holiday turns sour because of rising prices. As an individual, you cannot do much to affect the value of U.S. currency overseas. You can, however, learn to take advantage of fluctuations in the dollar.

Compare exchange rates when selecting your destination. The dollar has been declining recently against almost all major currencies in Europe and the Far East. But it is still worth more than it used to be in some places. You will get 200 more Italian lira for your dollar today, for example, than you would have in 1975. Inflation in Italy has eaten up some of the gain, but you probably will fare better there than you would in a country like Japan where rising prices and declines in the value of the dollar have gone hand in hand.

You do not have to be an expert in high finance to keep track of what dollars will buy. Ask your travel agent or local banker for the basic figures and compare currencies the way you would compare airlines.

Shop around for travelers' checks. Credit unions often offer discounts to members. Banks may have special rates for depositors or senior citizens. There is a flat commission of 1 percent of face value charged on all American Express travelers' checks. Fees for other checks vary, however. Spokesmen for both Barclays Bank and Thomas Cook Inc. said, for example, that it is up to the financial institution or other agent who is selling the checks to decide on a commission. In some cases, there is no charge at all.

If you plan to stay in one place for any length of time, consider getting your travelers' checks in local currency rather than in U.S. dollars. You run the risk of losing money if the value of the dollar increases between the time you buy the checks and the time you spend them, but you gain the advantage of knowing in advance exactly what you have to spend. You will not have to cash checks at a hotel or store, where you will get less for your dollars than you would at a bank.

Among the currencies available in addition to U.S. dollars are Canadian, Australian and Hong Kong dollars, Japanese yen, English pounds, Swiss and French francs, German marks and Indian rupees.

Dudley H. Ranzetta, manager of Barclays travelers' check division in New York, said there "very definitely" has been an increase in interest in travelers' checks issued in foreign currencies. He declined to provide specific figures, but said, "We are very gratified with our sales."

An American Express spokesman also said there has been "a noticeable increase (in sales) in the stronger currencies. Travelers are aware of the fluctuations (in the dollar)."

Robert Steintal of Cook's said some people are buying the travelers' checks as a speculative investment. If you had bought yen travelers' checks a year and a half ago, he noted, you would have gotten just over 300 yen for every dollar. Today, the dollar is worth less than 200 yen. "You would have made a bundle," Steintal said.

Another way to avoid unpleasant surprises while traveling is to buy a Eurailpass. The tickets entitle you to unlimited travel in 15 countries and must be purchased in the United States. Seat reservations — a good idea in the peak travel season — are extra. There are five first-class Eurailpasses for adults and a second-class Eurail Youthpass for those under 26. Prices range from $180 to $450.

If you are planning a package tour, read the fine print carefully and ask questions. Is there a clause that allows the tour operator to charge a supplement if the value of the dollar declines? What does the brochure mean when it promises a "first-class" hotel? Is a private bath included? Are beverages counted as part of the meals? Will optional activities add to the bill? Try to visualize a typical vacation day — from the time you get up until you go to bed. Think of all the things you will be doing and ask about the cost of each.

Once overseas, investigate special offers for visitors. Many cities, for example, have an all-day public transit pass. You can explore at your leisure and will spend less than on a guided tour.

Finally, think local. Don't expect a foreign country to be just like home. Stick to the foods and beverages of the country you are visiting if you want to save money. Fast-food hamburgers are now available all over the world, but you will probably pay a premium for your American taste.

Carter seeks 'political hay' in farm prices

By BROOKS JACKSON

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — President Carter gave a pep talk to a farmers convention today, telling several thousand delegates that he will not allow any further expansion of beef imports this year.

Carter said "things changed for the better" after last winter's farm strike.

"Net farm income in 1978 will be up about 25 percent over last year — an increase of more than $5 billion," Carter told a convention of the Mid-Continent Farmers Association.

The president, hoping to make political hay out of this year's rising farm prices, said the administration's decisions on farm policy have been "sound and well-considered."

"I will not permit any more expansion in beef imports this year," Carter said. Earlier this year, he allowed a modest increase in beef imports after a rapid increase in meat prices.

The president continued, "I will not permit unrestricted beef imports next year, and I am strongly and permanently opposed to any price controls on meat." The remarks drew applause from the delegates.

Carter reiterated his opposition to "unpredictable" government embargoes on shipping American farm products to foreign buyers.

And he added, "I want to go as far as I can to get the government out of the farm business."

He also said "I will always protect the act" that gives farmer-owned cooperatives an exemption from antitrust laws, an exemption often criticized by federal antitrust lawyers as leading to monopolies and higher prices for certain farm products.

Carter, the first sitting president since Missouri's Harry S. Truman to visit this college town, invoked Truman's name more than once during his talk.

"We both have kept the same sign in the Oval Office — the famous sign that read 'The buck stops here,'" Carter said. At another point, he said, "I want to give you some straight talk as Harry Truman would have — about why we have inflation."

As soon as Carter arrived at the Columbia airport, he began some old-fashioned politicking, heading straight for a youngster in a stroller at the edge of the crowd of several hundred persons.

In an unscheduled stop, he spent more than five minutes shaking hands with the crowd, which had waited for more than an hour under an already broiling sun at mid-morning.

One member of the crowd held up a sign that read: "Our hats off U. U. Mr. Carter."

Airplane hits ocean and sinks

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A twin-engine U.S. Navy airplane carrying Undersecretary of the Interior James Joseph, two admirals and 27 other persons crashed today in the Pacific Ocean and sank.

Joseph, the admirals and 27 passengers and crew were rescued, but two Navy men were missing.

Nine persons were hospitalized in good condition today at the Naval Regional Medical Center on Guam, authorities said.

Joseph, Adm. David Cruden, commander of naval forces in the Marianas Islands, and Adm. Neal Clements, chief engineer of the Pacific Fleet, were among those treated and released.

Two other Interior Department officials, Deputy Undersecretary Wallace Green and Ruth Van Cleave, director of territorial affairs were listed in good condition. Adrian Winkel, the department's high commissioner for the Northern Marianas, was treated and released.

The pilot, Capt. Edward Estes, commanding officer of the Naval Air Station on Guam, was hospitalized in good condition.

Initial reports said Guam Gov. Ricardo J. Bordallo was aboard, but the Navy said later he was not on the plane.

The C-117 piston-powered aircraft lost power in one engine and made a controlled ditch landing about 16 miles from Guam, said Lt. Anthony Hilton. The craft broke into two pieces when it plunged into the water.

A B-52 from Anderson Air Force Base on Guam was flying overhead and spotted survivors in the sea. Its crew members threw red dye into the water to mark off the area for rescuers from the Navy and Coast Guard.

$3,500 bond set in mischief charge

Bond was set by Peace Justice Robert Pine.

Police said Plunk was arrested Sunday morning after witnesses reported a pickup knocking down about 22 stop signs in the north central portion of Midland.

Officers reported the damage was estimated at $700.

ABC Network accused of staging scenes in documentary on gangs

By MALCOLM N. CARTER

NEW YORK (AP) — A muffled cry is heard, a chair tumbles through the air, a youth gang pummels a youngster to the ground. The ABC camera jerks down a broken and forgotten street, recording for a news documentary the seemingly random violence of a slum.

The scene — presented as reality — was viewed in 10.5 million homes across the nation last June 28. But was it reality?

The loose-knit Black Producer's Association has complained to the Federal Communications Commission it was not, that ABC staged this and other scenes in "Youth Terror: The View from Behind the Gun."

With purported evidence from Hugh A. Hill, a freelance production associate on the program, the complaint makes the accusation that ABC misled the public and violated journalistic ethics.

ABC says it had arranged with some youths to follow them through a "typical" day and that they were asked to do what they normally do.

While it is generally recognized that the mere presence of a camera can be enough to influence a person's behavior, Hill says the producers went too far by asking the gang members to fight. Everyone else involved with the program unequivocally denies the charges, which have thrown ABC's News Documentary Unit into turmoil.

ABC news chief Roone Arledge has denounced Hill and has asked a prestigious law firm for an investigation "to satisfy ourselves and our viewing public that they are untrue and without basis in fact."

And the makers of the highly praised documentary lament that the allegations now veil the rewards of nine months of consuming labor.

"I thought it was a beautiful show. I was proud — and I am still proud — of it. I feel lousy and angry and outraged," says Helen Whitney, who produced, wrote and directed the program.

"I believe we're going to be vindicated on this, and I would like to see it over," adds Pamela Hill, executive producer of the unit and no relation of Hugh Hill. "It's exhausting and it's painful. Our very integrity is on that, to prove it was possible, he bought some marijuana from an 11-year-old boy."

But the 30-year-old Hill, who earlier had quit NBC after he was denied the kind of network work he sought, says he left ABC to strive for an on-camera position. He is now producing a film about Harlem for unnamed real estate people there, Hill says.

"If I preferred a network job, I would have stayed at NBC," he comments.

While ABC contends that Hill has embarked on an "intensive" and "vindictive" campaign against the program, the Dartmouth College graduate claims the Black Producer's Association started the action.

The group is described as 30 independent producers who organized last April, paying dues but no specified amount. It has no regular office space and its telephone is answered by a non-profit community organization called the Children's Arts Carnival.

In a July 28 letter to the FCC, the association claimed upwards of $50 was lent to some of the youths and said "Youth Terror" fails to say that many were no longer involved in "criminal behavior."

Among other things, it accused the network of having the youths recreate past exploits and said there is "strong evidence" that events were staged. The letter specifically referred to the gang violence and the firing of a gun from a tenement window.

"The program was an example of sensationalist reporting which does not build bridges through information and understanding," it said.

Saying it was always concerned about deliberate falsification, distortion or staging of news, the FCC asked for documentation. That bundle of tapes and statements was being prepared by the association.

It is not clear, however, whether any investigation can be conclusive. One top prominent in the broadcast, for example, denied that ABC put him up to the violence, then recanted the denial and then — according to ABC — recanted the recantation.

Still, a youth called "Blue" tells Hill on one tape that production associate Richard Kagan and Ms. Whitney urged him to "make it look good" while fighting. "I made believe I was punching him hard," Blue recounts, and "Alberto" says he actually volunteered to be the gang's victim: "We were having fun."

Both Kagan and his producer emphatically deny such talk. "Nobody told these gang members to fight," Kagan says.

A viewer might conclude, from the youths' boasts and apparent self-consciousness on the program, that indeed they were performing for the camera on occasion. But did they fight on their own or not?

Although Hill says in his statement that he heard Ms. Whitney ask for "a little action," the producer says she did not have to.

"I do not remember saying that. I cannot conceive of saying that," she says. "I remember quite specifically saying, 'Do what you normally do.'"

She says violence "happens all the time, so why bother staging it? But the important point is that we do not do those kinds of things."

Says associate producer Marcia Leslie: "I don't know whether they were performing for us, whether they were performing for themselves, whether it was theater of the street... It was frightening. It really was."

Reporting it has received a number of letters about the raw language on "Youth Terror," the FCC says it will review the association's documentation "very carefully."

Weatherman calls for fair and hot

Hot weather greeted residents of the Permian Basin over the weekend and is expected to continue through Tuesday with temperatures reaching the middle 90s.

The weatherman is calling for mostly fair weather for today and Tuesday with skies expected to become partly cloudy Tuesday. Highs, as on Sunday, should be in the middle 90s through Tuesday.

Sunday's high was 85. The record high for Aug. 13 is 105 degrees set back in 1946. The overnight low was 74 degrees. The record low for today is 60 degrees set back in 1967.

Tonight's low is expected to be in the low 70s, a bit warmer than the cool evenings the area has been accustomed to much of this month.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for southerly winds at 15 to 20 mph today, calming to 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Jaycees vow court battle to keep women members

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Cheers of "Make It Right!" resounded through the Marriott Hotel here after the Massachusetts Jaycees voted to take their national leaders to court to retain women members after Dec. 1.

Nearly all of some 300 delegates to the state convention this weekend voted for the court action, which according to Michael Lynch, state Jaycee president, would allow women members — many of whom are officers — to serve out their memberships or terms until the year officially ends in late spring.

It also would give the organization time to fight the national Jaycees decision to keep women out.

Of the 6,000 Jaycees in the state, between 350 and 500 are women, and 55 of the state's 165 chapters have women officers.

Some officials said Sunday's decision was a compromise between factions favoring withdrawal from the national group over the issue of women membership, and members supporting the national vote keeping the organization all male.

Putting organizational unity above the question of female membership, some members of all-male chapters in Massachusetts remained silent on the issue.

Membership of women has been a major issue with the Jaycees since 1975 when a national convention voted against allowing women to join. Under a local option three-year pilot program, women have been allowed in Massachusetts, Alaska and the District of Columbia. But in June, the Jaycees convention voted to terminate that program.

While the vote may extend the deadline to allow women officers to serve out their terms, J. Terry Bechtol, a national vice president from Pensacola, Fla. said he doubted whether it would have much effect on the Jaycees nationally.

"It might be a big issue up here, but in the South, where the Jaycees are strongest, the feeling is that this is an all-male organization," he said.

Meanwhile delegates from chapters with women members made plans to wage the fight outside the formal Jaycee organization and scheduled a meeting for Aug. 24 in Marlboro.

Delegates are considering setting up a holding company whereby women would belong to one organization and men to another, but all would belong to the Massachusetts Jaycees, said Ron Lamothe, executive director of the Massachusetts Jaycees.

Midland man hurt in stabbing incident Sunday

A Midland man was reported in guarded condition in Medical Center Hospital in Odessa today after he was transferred from Midland Memorial Hospital following his being admitted for a stab wound he received in Midland Sunday night, according to spokesmen for the hospital and the Midland Police Department.

Ruben Perez Garcia Jr., 31, of the 200 block of Gist Avenue declined to give officers information about the incident, according to reports.

Garcia was admitted with a wound to his left side, said the hospital spokesman.

According to police reports, his mother told police he had left her house just before 9 p.m. Garcia's wife told officers that about 9:05 p.m. Garcia arrived home, apparently having been stabbed in the interim.

Officers said his wife then drove Garcia back to his mother's home and then to the hospital.

The American way

Many food stamp recipients across the land will be anything but happy when they learn that the federal government is ready to conduct pilot programs in which people who receive food stamps would work for their benefits.

And it very likely will come as quite a shock to countless thousands of recipients who will scream that it is unheard of to force food stamp recipients to work for taxpayer-funded stamps in this great and generous United States.

The Daily Oklahoman of Oklahoma City says:

"One can hear it now 'It's not fair. They deserve food stamps because they are poor. Food stamps go to mothers of dependent children and those mothers can't work. Food stamps go to injured workmen who can't work. Food stamps are our right as Americans."

"To which the taxpayer replies: 'Phooey! Those food stamps aren't free; my tax money pays for them. And the recipients darn sure can work for them.'"

And the taxpayer is absolutely right in his reply.

The Daily Oklahoman, in its editorial, goes on to relate this interesting episode:

"Years ago, when a certain farmer was elected county commissioner of a western Oklahoma county, a welfare recipient came to him and asked for money for groceries. His welfare check just had not reached far enough that month. That was a fair request, but the courthouse janitor was sick so the newly-elected commissioner asked the man to mow the lawn in exchange for a grocery check.

"The man agreed, the lawn was mowed and he got grocery money from the county. Soon, the new commissioner had grocery money-seekers doing all kinds of work — mothers made curtains for the courthouse (at home, while tending their babies), other women washed windows, men mowed lawns and painted buildings then State Welfare discovered this money-saving practice.

"The commissioner was told in no uncertain terms that welfare recipients could not be forced to work, or the county would lose all its welfare benefits. So the welfare recipients quit working and got their grocery money for free. That's the American way? That's the way it was in one county just a few years back.

"Require food stamp recipients to work? A commendable idea — especially to all taxpayers who are financing those food stamps — and one that should be heartily endorsed.

"Sure, there are food stamp recipients who can't work, but there are also plenty who can work but prefer to loaf. By all means, let's put as many food stamp recipients to work as possible. That's the American way."

Amen!

Domino tournament

United effort is the ingredient necessary in assuring the success of most any community project.

This was proven once again over in neighboring Big Spring, resulting in the successful staging of Big Spring's first annual World's Champion Texas-style Domino Tournament.

The tourney, which attracted entries from "all over," was masterminded by George McAlister, but he is quoted in the Big Spring Herald as saying the event couldn't have been the tremendous success which it was without the united support of Big Spring organizations and individuals.

"It wouldn't have been possible without the devoted, unselfish help of a great many people," he said.

This will hold true in any community endeavor. If you don't believe it, ask any United Way worker.

And, incidentally, McAlister already is working on plans for the 1979 event, according to reports out of Big Spring. He already can foresee the time when the tournament gets so big that preliminary meets will have to be started to qualify a select field for the finals.

And all the while there are those who thought that the game of dominoes had fallen by the wayside.

More power to Big Spring and Big Springers for focusing worldwide attention on a grand old game.

Welfare plan for illegal aliens

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration has once again alienated key congressional leaders in an effort to defuse a politically sensitive issue.

Last year the White House proposed and carefully nurtured a bill to grant amnesty to an estimated 765,000 illegal aliens who came into the United States before 1970. But a subsequent push to make these aliens eligible for welfare and disability benefits has caused the whole plan to backfire.

The new scheme, cooked up by overzealous bureaucrats at the Health, Education and Welfare Department, predictably ruffled some feathers on Capitol Hill. The powerful Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., who had originally agreed to sponsor the Carter amnesty proposal, joined with Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., in expressing their displeasure.

The senators complained in a private letter to HEW Secretary Joseph Califano that it is "clear that Congress intended to exclude illegal aliens" from taxpayer-supported welfare benefits. "When Congress is ready to provide ... benefits to illegal aliens, we will do so."

Eastland and Percy added pointedly: "We are especially dismayed that HEW thus appears to be acting in blatant disregard of the intent of Congress ... Policy decisions such as this (should) be decided by Congress, not by bureaucratic decree that flies in the face of what Congress has decided."

They declared, "There is practically no possibility" that Congress will pass the illegal alien bill this year. Some five million aliens, therefore, will remain in legal limbo indefinitely. The legislation apparently will be buried, along with a growing list of Carter's domestic proposals, in the congressional graveyard.

Footnote: An HEW spokesman said the proposed benefits would ease the plight of thousands of impoverished aliens who have been living in this country for many years.

SHELTON REVISITED: The U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua from 1970 to 1975 was Turner B. Shelton. Commencing in 1973, we did a series of articles critical of the ambassador. We have concluded that, to be totally fair to Ambassador Shelton, the following should be added to the record.

Our criticism of Ambassador Shelton was based upon his close relationship with President Somoza, but in light of additional facts we are now convinced he was merely carrying out the Nixon administration's policy in Nicaragua.

On Dec. 22, 1972, a devastating earthquake struck Nicaragua. We reported that the Sheltons were primarily concerned with their own personal problems.

We are now persuaded that the ambassador and his wife were deeply concerned about the devastation. The ambassador worked tirelessly for six days and nights with little more than a few hours sleep and refused to let a broken arm slow him down.

For their efforts, the embassy received a special commendation from the State Department and White House. He also received from President Somoza the highest award of Nicaragua.

After leaving Nicaragua, Shelton became diplomat-in-residence at the Naval War College in Newport, R.I. He retired on March 31, 1977. He is

CHARLEY REESE: 'The fall of empires and the rise of feminism'

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — "The Fate of Empires," by Sir John Glubb and an issue of "Graduate Woman," the trade paper of the American Association of University Women, arrived on my desk the same day.

It is an interesting convergence, the first offering a theses and the second, a bit of evidence.

Glubb, better known as Glubb Pasha, was the commander of the Arab Legion from 1939 to 1956. In a series of articles in a Scottish magazine, he offers some observations about the characteristics of empires as they rise and fall.

One of his observations is that the decline of empires is frequently marked by a rise of feminism. He writes:

"An increase in the influence of women in public life has often been associated with national decline. The later Romans complained that although Rome ruled the world, women ruled Rome. In the tenth century, a similar tendency was observable in the Arab Empire, the women demanding admission to the professions hitherto monopolized by men. Many women practiced law, while others obtained posts as university professors. There was agitation for the appointment of female judges, which, however, does not appear to have succeeded.

"Soon after this period, government and public order collapsed. The resulting increase in confusion and violence made it unsafe for women to move unescorted in the streets, with the result that this feminist movement collapsed."

Glubb Pasha professes not to know why the rise of feminism seems to accompany the decline of empires, but I have my own theory which I shall be happy to share.

Nature, unaffected by ideology, fads and whims, has programmed men and women to accomplish its own purposes. It programmed women to be mothers and in doing so gave them minds, bodies and natures which are ideal for that task, but unsuitable for many others.

The female mind is infinitely practical while the male mind is incurably romantic. Men are capable of large visions and dreams and of becoming so enthralled by them that they will risk and sacrifice material comforts, even health and life, to pursue them.

The women's vision is more narrow, more subjective. She is immediately bored or at best maintains a short attention span when the subject is not directly connected to the well-being of her family and home.

This is not intended as a put down, but merely as an observation. To say that grass is green and the sky is blue is not to insult either the grass or the sky. Militant females, however, will probably react in their usual way — emotionally and subjectively. Their problem stems from trying to rebel against their natures.

I think the correlation between the fall of empires and the rise of feminism results from the fact that the males, for one reason or another, come to be dominated by their women and consequently adopt the feminine mode of thinking — cautious, short-ranged, materialistic and defensive.

Such thinking is no match for a foe who is using the male type of thinking — bold, long-ranged, idealistic and offensive in nature. A purely defensive attitude always spells defeat since it forfeits the initiative to the opponent.

The issue of the "Graduate Woman" is a bit of evidence for my thesis because this publication, which parades under the pretentious subtitle of "Journal of the American Association of University Women," is an appallingly dull collection of trivia and organizational chit-chat.

There is the usual sales pitch for the Equal Rights Amendment but most of the issue is devoted to details of the convention site, carping about dues, suggestions on how to amend the by-laws, and other mundane little projects.

The world is being rent by cataclysmic events but their chief concern with the decline of the dollar is that it means their dues to the International Federation of University Women are more expensive. There is a detailed account of this ominous development.

Really, ladies, you can't fool Mother Nature.

INSIDE REPORT:

President presents his own 'profile of courage'

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The rare feat of provoking angry attacks from Teddy Kennedy and Tip O'Neill in one day was not really the apotheosis of Jimmy Carter's incompetent presidency but instead an attempted return toward the politics that propelled him into the White House.

President Carter was fully aware of the consequences of firing Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill's pal from the General Services Administration (GSA) and rejecting Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's national health insurance program. He decided that now was the time to present his own profile of courage: a president with a mind and principles of his own.

To some veterans of his 1976 campaign, the double jeopardy of alienating Kennedy and O'Neill was a watershed for Mr. Carter. After 18 months of trying to appease conflicting constituencies in the Democratic coalition, the president was back to a broad-based appeal transcending those special interests. After so many "comprehensive" programs (tax reform, welfare reform, consumer protection) were dispatched to a deep grave on Capitol Hill while placating liberal pressure groups, the president this time marched to his old drummer.

The problem at the scandal-torn GSA stemmed from incompatibility between administrator Jay Solomon, appointed by Mr. Carter, and his career bureaucrat deputy, James Griffin. "We had to fire one of them," a presidential aide told us. "Were we going to fire Carter's man or O'Neill's man?" At issue was whether Mr. Carter is really president.

Health insurance posed tougher questions. The expensive Kennedy plan, supreme legislative goal of organized labor, has been under intense fire by the president's economic advisers. Its huge cost would make Mr. Carter's anti-inflation fight no longer credible. In private meetings, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal put down proposed cost-control schemes as laughable.

But White House hand-wringers warned of a vengeful Kennedy, backed by labor, gaining retribution by running against Mr. Carter in 1980. In response, advocates of the old Carterism replied that a dramatic show of independence is just what the president needs.

Once the administration accepted the principle of the patient paying part of his medical bill even under national health insurance, support from the AFL-CIO's George Meany and the United Auto Workers' Douglas Fraser was lost. Still, there was hope until the end that Kennedy could be brought along.

That is why the president did not unveil his plan as a preemptive strike, but instead courted Kennedy with a private briefing July 28. Angered, the senator would not accept anything less than a comprehensive bill, informing Mr. Carter he would publicly disavow the program before it was announced.

The quiet Carter-Kennedy confrontation followed that morning's noisy breakfast where O'Neill bellowed to the president he was "breaking diplomatic relations" with the White House. It was interpreted throughout this city that the inept Carter presidency had managed to alienate the two most powerful men on Capitol Hill in a single morning.

The speaker was still breathing fire after the weekend. Kennedy was characteristically less ferocious, but had inspired dire forecasts within Mr. Carter's own administration! One assistant secretary told us the president's course will "polarize the party" and conceivably cost him the 1980 presidential nomination. What, then, should the president do? "Do what Teddy wanted," the Carter appointee replied.

However, this official, like many others in the administration and the White House itself, probably would desert the president in a Carter-Kennedy showdown. "We've got to figure out what side of the issue to be on," commented one such aide who perceives only two sides — for health care or against it; he still hoped the president would end up "for" — that is, backing the "comprehensive" Kennedy bill.

But the corporal's guard of Carter loyalists is delighted with the president's decisions that have angered Ted Kennedy, George Meany and Doug Fraser (with Tip O'Neill as an appetizer). "My own guess is that if Kennedy wants to run he'll run, and how good Carter's health insurance is won't have anything to do with it," one loyalist told us.

He feels the president's backing of a health plan that makes it advantageous for the patient to find the cheapest care suits both the national mood and the stark limits of government resources. Indeed, there seems to be long-range political yield from a program that self-destructs if it proves inefficient.

Senators again wrestling over natural gas pricing

By CARL C. CRAFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators are wrestling again over natural gas pricing and preparing for a round on income tax cuts while the House moves toward a showdown on whether to extend the time for states to act on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution.

Here is the status of major legislation:

Energy
While new trouble is emerging for the proposed congressional compromise on natural gas pricing, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., says he will keep pushing for action on the long-delayed energy legislative package.

"It would be ridiculous, absolutely ridiculous, after having spent 14 months of grueling labor on this No. 1 issue that the thing would fall apart and no agreement be reached," Byrd said Saturday.

Senate-House negotiators had produced a compromise plan for taking federal price controls off newly found, domestically produced natural gas in 1985, with annual 10 percent price hikes until then.

However, on Friday, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., announced he would withhold his signature from the draft report of the negotiators because he said he believes it contains some deviations from terms of the agreement which the Senate-House team had reached earlier this year.

His backing was important because the negotiators were sharply split and the compromise had mustered only a bare majority of support.

The natural gas pricing feature would be part of an energy package, a congressional version of plans offered in April 1977 by President Carter, that would include provisions on industrial conversion to coal, energy conservation and electric rates. Energy tax proposals are generally viewed as being dead for this year.

Taxes
The next step in congressional action on reducing income taxes is up to the Senate, where consideration is set to begin in the Finance Committee on Aug. 21.

The House passed a $16.3 billion tax-cutting version last week after rejecting rival alternatives including a Carter-backed $18.1 billion tax reduction package and a Republican-sponsored plan for a one-third slash in personal tax rates over three years.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who heads the Finance Committee, is expected to press for enlarging the amount of the tax cuts to the $20 billion range.

As approved by the House, for example, the bill would cut taxes next year by $146 for a typical family of four with annual income of $20,000, by $25 for a married couple making $17,500, and by $71 for a single person at the $15,000 income level.

The Senate is working on legislation, opposed by Carter, which eventually would provide taxpayers with a tax cut of $250 per pupil attending a private elementary or secondary school and up to $500 to help offset the cost of college tuition.

In June, the House passed a similar measure to provide tax cuts of up to $250 against the cost of college tuition and $100 against private elementary and secondary school tuition.

Equal Rights
With the House scheduled to vote this week, Carter has given a boost to backers of an extension of time for states to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

He reiterated his support for the proposal when he met with a group of lawmakers at the White House last week.

Carter said, "The failure of the Equal Rights Amendment to pass would send a signal to all the state legislatures and even to the Congress itself, to the people of our country, that we are not concerned about women's rights."

The House Judiciary Committee is recommending that the deadline for states to act on the ERA be extended from March 22, 1979, to June 30, 1982, and that Congress not allow states that have already ratified it to withdraw their approval.

There have been no previous requests for a time extension on ratification of a constitutional amendment.

Passage by 38 states is needed for approval of ERA. Thus far, 35 have approved it and legal fights developed in some states where moves were made to rescind approval.

Budget
Fiscal 1979, the government's next budget year, begins Oct. 1 and Congress must settle before then on final figures for federal spending, taxing and the deficit.

Preliminary targets call for spending $498.8 billion, collecting $447.9 billion in tax revenue and operating at a deficit of $50.9 billion.

But attempts are being made in Congress to reduce the deficit. The House Budget Committee wants it lowered to $43.7 billion, while the Senate Budget Committee is suggesting $42.3 billion.

Meantime, the lawmakers are putting together the 13 major appropriations bills that provide the money for federal operations in fiscal 1979.

Last week, the House passed and sent to the Senate a record $119 billion defense spending bill, the largest such appropriation in history.

New York City
Congressional compromise legislation providing New York City with federal guarantees of financial aid to help save it from bankruptcy was signed into law last week by Carter during a ceremony in New York.

It authorizes up to $1.65 billion in long-term bond guarantees and lets the city use $325 million for short-term borrowing needs.

Consumers
Legislation creating a consumer cooperative bank, capitalized with $300 million and authorized to borrow in private money markets, was sent to Carter by Congress last week.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said it would increase consumers' economic power in the marketplace.

Urban

The Senate Finance Committee gave its approval last week to a plan for continuing to send anti-recession money from the federal government to state and local governments. This so-called counter-cyclical revenue sharing system pumps federal funds to areas of high unemployment.

Lobbying for pope has already begun

ROME (AP) — Factions within the Roman Catholic Church have begun lobbying for the kind of new pope they want as the mourning period for Paul VI continues and thousands pray at his tomb.

The 112 cardinals expected to vote for Paul's successor will be locked into their secret electoral conclave on Aug. 25. Meanwhile, the lobbyists are busy.

Names are avoided, but they pour out detail on what kind of man they want — his theological tendencies, his personality, his policies on various issues.

The ultra-conservative Italian organization Civiltà Cristiana, which considered Pope Paul too liberal, put up posters in St. Peter's Square Saturday morning calling for election of a "teacher of a crystal-clear doctrine and a custodian of truth against current heresy and errors of the so-called 'modern humanism.'"

A liberal American group, the Committee for the Responsible Election of the Pope, held a news conference Sunday morning at which the Rev. Andrew M. Greeley of Chicago called for an open-minded, progressive pope, "a holy man with a smile."

The committee also sent each of the cardinals a copy of the new book "The Inner Elite," containing dossiers on each of the cardinals.

A group of progressive Catholic theologians and scholars gave their requirements in a letter to the Italian weekly Panorama. The signers included Yves Congar of France, Hans Kueng of Switzerland, Eduard Schillebeeck of the Netherlands, Giuseppe Albergiero of Italy and Greeley.

They said the next pope should be open to the world and other religious groups, an authentic pastor of souls, a promoter of women's rights and a decentralizer of papal power.

They called for him to "elevate the synod of bishops from a mere consultative organ to a deliberative one and to give concrete competencies to the episcopal conferences."

Some of the cardinals mentioned as "papabili" — possible popes — have also made statements about the kind of man who is needed.

A total of 115 of the 130 members of the College of Cardinals are eligible to take part in the electoral conclave because they are under 80, but three reportedly will be absent because of poor health.

Cleveland mayor narrowly survives bitter recall effort

CLEVELAND (AP) — A jubilant Mayor Dennis Kucinich, clinging to a thin 275-vote margin, joked with hundreds of cheering supporters after apparently surviving a bitter recall effort.

If he wins by one vote, "it will be good enough," Kucinich said Sunday night as Cuyahoga County election officials took the first steps toward a recount.

With all of Cleveland's 645 voting precincts reported, Kucinich turned back the recall drive by an unofficial vote of 60,308 to 60,033.

Cleveland has been plagued with problems since Kucinich took office on Nov. 14, 1977, but the recall drive was triggered when the mayor fired Police Chief Richard Hongisto during a televised news conference March 24.

Contacted after the recall vote, Hongisto, now head of New York state's prison system, said he does not expect any changes for the better.

"It's hard to kill a city. But he'll (Kucinich) do a fair job of trying," Hongisto told a reporter.

"I don't think Dennis won. I just think the people said they didn't want anything as drastic as a recall."

But Kucinich was exuberant. "Thank God for the people of the city of Cleveland for ignoring my imperfections and giving my administration another chance," the 31-year-old mayor said. If the victory is sustained, he would complete his two-year term in the $50,000-a-year post.

"I could have embraced the old wheeler-dealers and loaded up to the editors, but somebody has to make a stand in behalf of the people. By the grace of God and the people, the city government is going to stay that way," Kucinich said.

Robert Hughes, Cuyahoga County Republican chairman and a member of the Board of Elections, who early in the evening had predicted a wide Kucinich victory, called the results "unbelievable."

Recall forces gathered at a nearby hotel and celebrated to the strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Thomas Campbell, a leader of the Recall Committee to Save Cleveland, said: "What we have done is raise the level of accountability of Kucinich so high that things will have to change. He no longer has any excuses."

Election officials impounded the paper ballots and four armed police officers were assigned to guard them.

An official survey of the votes was scheduled to begin today and could continue for three to four days, Board of Elections Director Virgil Brown said. The canvass is expected to certify a margin of less than one-half of 1 percent in the vote outcome.

Judge to hear new arguments in Abilene's fight over liquor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Abilene's fight over liquor sales has spilled into two courts and threatens to enter a third.

State District Judge Charles Mathews hears arguments today on whether to continue indefinitely a ban on state liquor permits in the West Texas town.

Mathews threw out an election canvass last week that showed pro-liquor forces won a June 17 local option election in the West Texas town. His action voided an Abilene judge's order that resulted in wets being proclaimed the election victors.

The day after Mathews ruled anti-liquor forces prevailed, liquor sales supporters filed an election contest in Abilene, challenging an earlier canvass showing the dries had won.

Before his ruling last week, Mathews granted a restraining order against the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission prohibiting the agency from acting on five Abilene liquor license applications.

The Austin judge's ruling was in response to two Abilene residents who claimed their property values would be irreparably harmed if alcoholic beverage sales were legalized.

Joe Dibrell, assistant attorney general who represents the ABC, said Friday he intends to appeal Mathews' action to the Texas Supreme Court. Dibrell contends the Austin judge had no jurisdiction in the case.

Intricate financing can boost earnings

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If corporations understood real estate, said Ben Lambert, they could solve a lot of their financing problems and maybe save money too. "But," he said, "it's an enigma to most people."

Even corporate finance officers "lack a grasp of what can be accomplished with brick and mortar," said Lambert, president of Eastdil Realty, a subsidiary of Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co.

Eastdil, based here, calls itself a real estate investment banking firm. It's a big one, raising last year more than $800 million in debt and equity capital, and counseling on another $1.5 billion.

In arranging intricate financing deals, such as the $240 million for purchase of the 77,000-acre Irvine Ranch near Los Angeles, or the $57 million Hyatt Regency Hotel mortgage in Dallas, Lambert has few peers.

Real estate is his vocation, equity financing is his specialty and sale-leaseback is his vehicle, each one structured differently through myriad options that serve buyer, seller, lessor, lessee.

"Give some tax benefits to the investors, depreciation to others, cash return to a nontaxable investor," says Lambert rapidly.

"Sell the land to a pension fund and then lease it back. Sell the building to a private investor and structure the sale so the tax benefits can go to someone who can use a shelter."

What does it all mean? "To the extent a company has an exceptional financial track record — special earnings, a healthy balance sheet — that company can convert physical assets into bulk dollars," said Lambert.

And, he asserts, since equity financing probably runs 6 percent to 8 percent, versus debt financing of 10 percent or so, the company saves money in the long run.

"So why don't more companies utilize the technique?" Lambert is asked. His frustration, underlain with pride, shows through. "Old-fashioned attitudes," he replies. "Lack of understanding too."

Sale-leaseback cannot always be quickly understood. "It's a science," Lambert maintains. "Like chess. And it's being increasingly complicated by tax law and accounting changes."

Because of the complexities of selling physical assets and then leasing them back — and sometimes buying them back at a later date — many companies simply don't consider such moves in their capital plans.

In most companies, said Lambert, the notion "falls between the cracks."

The real estate department, he said, designs and picks sites. The financial vice president is concerned with stockholders, bank relations and the stock listing. And the treasurer "is a balance sheet guy."

But in "sophisticated, contemporary" corporations, Lambert maintains, the capital planners really have to look at real estate as a means of generating fresh capital.

While arrangements differ with every deal, in almost every instance the lessee doesn't disturb its usual lines of credit; it doesn't impinge on the senior debt, such as debentures.

In fact, as if often the case, it can have written into the deal the right to repurchase the assets at the end of a certain period so that, in effect, it doesn't sell the equity either.

That latter point is of concern to many corporation officials, some of whom equate the sale of a plant with the sale by a family of the house it lives in.

In response to this attitude, Lambert reminds company officials that they aren't losing control of their plant any more than a homeowner loses control of his mortgaged home.

"I wouldn't put a mortgage on a house unless I had an idea of how to pay it back," said Lambert, who at the time was in the process of financing the purchase of a new house.

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in active trading today giving up some early gains on currency markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up by about 4 points early this morning, fell back. By noon the index was down 43 to 890.42.

But overall gains still outnumbered losers by a margin of 2-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The NYSE composite index rose 0.11 to 58.64. Big Board volume came to 16.40 billion in the first two hours against 14.16 billion in the same period on Friday.

Analysts said the continued decline of the dollar against major world currencies was a major factor weighing on the market. They also said the market appeared to encounter some selling pressure as the Dow index neared the 900 level.

A number of petroleum related stocks rose on the announcement that Texas had made the first discovery of natural gas in an offshore drilling area, the Baltimore Canyon, about 100 miles off the New Jersey Coast.

Texas rose 1/2 to 26 1/2 in active trading.

Among other oil and gas related stocks, Exxon was up 1/2 to 47 1/2; Mobil rose 1/4 to 65 1/4; and Kerr McGee gained 1/4 to 52 1/2.

Massey-Ferguson, off 1/2 to 10 1/2, topped the noon NYSE most active list. Trading included a block of 450,000 shares at 10.

Norton Simon, up 1/2 to 20, was the second most active issue.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.71 to 162.01.

Man killed in accident

A California man died Sunday night from injuries he received in a one-vehicle accident on Interstate 20 near Cottonfall Road, according to a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety's office in Midland.

Ervin Montgomery, 53, of Los Angeles, Calif., was eastbound on I-20 about 9:05 p.m. Sunday when his truck-trailer rig veered off the roadway and struck a pillar, causing the cab to burn, said officers. Montgomery was thrown from the vehicle, said authorities.

Peace Justice Robert Pine pronounced Montgomery dead at the scene, according to reports.

The Midland Fire Department dispatched a firefighting crew to the scene to douse the blaze caused by the accident.

Odessa man treated Sunday

Richard Sanchez Caballero, 30, of Odessa was treated Sunday at Midland Memorial Hospital for a broken collar bone, bruises and abrasions received in a two-vehicle accident late Sunday afternoon on Interstate 20, near mile marker 137, said authorities.

Officers said Tony Adam White of Killeen was driving a late model station wagon west on Interstate 20. Caballero was driving in the same direction in a late model van, they said.

Officers said that after the two vehicles collided, the van Caballero was driving rolled over four times, throwing him out of the vehicle.

Trustees to meet

Midland Memorial Hospital trustees are scheduled to meet at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the hospital board room to hear reports from committees and administrators.

Among the reports scheduled are those from the nursing service, medical staff, auxiliary, administrator and several committees.

Cheerleading clinic scheduled in city

The Midland College cheerleaders will conduct a Cheerleading clinic from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday on the playground at Jane Long Elementary School. Girls who will be entering the fourth grade and up can attend. There will be no charge for the clinic, which does not require pre-registration.

The purpose of the clinic is to give every girl in Midland a chance to learn the basic cheerleading techniques. The clinic is being sponsored by the Midland Council of Camp Fire Girls. The 1978-79 cheerleaders, for MC are Kelly Cunningham, Linda Edington, Valerie Hasty and Suzan

Smith. The girls recently returned from the Southern Methodist University cheerleading camp where they spent a week learning new cheers and techniques. Besides demonstrating various techniques and yells, the girls will share some of the new yells they learned at camp.

Kids never tire of swing

By AL CARRELL

When I recently passed along a way of converting that swing set frame into a greenhouse, it brought forth several other good uses for this outgrown child's gadget. About the best one came from a grandfather, Mr. R.S.F. The swing set he planted for his kids was still there. His grandchildren had their own swing set at home, and so when they visited they never cared that much for the old one. However, he came up with the idea of converting it to a new type toy. With only the frame left, he began connecting a bunch of old car tires together to form a web. He used ropes to tie them together and also to attach this web to the side of the swing set frame. As soon as the grandchildren saw this, they went "ape" and love to climb all over the new toy. Mr. F. cautions that you should steer clear of the steel-belted jobs since they often have sharp wires sticking out. Looks like a neat way to use old tires that are hard to get rid of as well as to use that swing set. If you put a web on both sides, it'll be almost impossible to fall. Just in case, you might put a sand pile underneath.

Dear Al:

I have learned that safety goggles are very easily scratched and pitted if you just put them in a shop drawer or tool chest. My latest pair is still like new after several months because I've taken care of them. Since they are too thick to fit into a regular glasses case, I made a bigger one. It's made by sewing two potholders together at just the right place so the goggles slip in and are protected.—N.Y.

Dear Al:

I followed your suggestions of some time ago and did my own chimney sweeping. However, after cleaning out the chimney, I managed to track some soot on the carpet while removing the debris from the fireplace. A neighbor suggested an old family remedy. I spread a heavy layer of table salt over the tracks. After about 15 minutes I vacuumed up both the salt and the soot. My wife never found out about the mess I made, and I not only got Brownie points for the chimney sweeping, but also for vacuuming the carpet.—O.R.

A SUPER HINT — I was visiting a friend the other day, and he took me out to the garbage where he was doing some painting. He added a gadget to his stepladder that I really like. He installed a paper towel rack right to the underside of the top step. This means he has a constant supply of towels at hand on the ladder. That's an accessory that you might want for your ladder along with radio, heater and white sidewalls.

Dear Al:

You have published several "non-guaranteed" formulas for getting rid of roaches that involve mixing boric acid with various other ingredients. I have found one that you don't have to add anything to the boric acid. By just spreading it out in dark places under cabinets and appliances, it does just as good. I completely covered the dirt in the crawl space under the house with boric acid. In two weeks we had no more roaches, and they have never come back.—J.T.

QUICK ANSWERS FOR HARRIED HANDYPERSONS: Q: We've had a dry summer. The dirt around the foundation has dried and pulled away from the house. Should I run water into this cavity to get it back the way it should be?

A: No. Fill the cavity back in and use sand or a sandy loam if possible, although any dirt will be better than leaving it this way. When you have that done, you might want to add a little moisture to the ground, but back about 18 inches from the foundation.

DEAR ABBY

His jogging runs into blonde trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband started running every morning before work for his health. He said he felt like a new man, and he really looked terrific. He lost 15 pounds and started to pay more attention to his diet. Well, everything was wonderful until he started running AFTER work. I thought it was rather odd for him to come home from work, shower, put on cologne and comb his hair to go running. Then I found out why, quite by accident.

I was driving along the parkway where he runs, when I saw him saying goodbye to a blonde who was getting into her car. She had on running clothes, too. Such a goodbye I never saw outside a movie. They were embracing and looking into each other's eyes like a pair of young lovers. I don't know how old she is, but my husband is 57. He doesn't know I saw him. Should I tell him? I don't want him to quit running, because it's been so good for him. I can't run with him because I'm not the type. What do you say?—RUNNER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't blame the running. If your husband didn't run, he'd probably run into a blonde somewhere else. Of course you should tell him you saw him. And let the next move be his.

DEAR ABBY: I've been playing Mah-Jongg for over 30 years and I never cheated in my life. However, last night I really don't know what came over me, but I wanted so desperately to make a hand that I cheated.

Well, a dear friend who was out at the time noticed what I had done. Although she didn't say anything to me, I could tell by the expression on her face that she saw me cheat. The rest of the evening I felt just terrible, and that night I couldn't sleep a wink.

I know that I will never cheat again, but how can I rectify this with my good friend? I don't want to lose her friendship over a stupid mistake.

Should I just let it pass? Or should I say something to my friend? Sign me...—VERY, VERY SORRY

DEAR SORRY: You are obviously suffering from a very troubled conscience, so go ahead and clear the air with your friend. You'll feel better.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal unpublished

Watermelon said ripe when color changes

The Washington Post

Q: How can you tell when a watermelon is ripe?

A: A good sign of ripeness is the change from white to yellowish color on the underside of the melon. Those with experience can judge by the sound of the melon when it is thumped. If you are not sure whether it is ready to pick, plug it. Be careful not to bruise the skin of the melon when you harvest it. Do not leave it in the sun.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Tues. Aug. 15) GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except in the morning when a surprise benefit can be yours, this is no day to do anything that could cause disapproval by anyone in position of authority. Follow rules that apply to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) A change of attitude in career matters can be beneficial at this time. Find the right appliances to make your work more profitable.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Those new projects you have been studying are now ready to put in motion, so get an early start. Be careful in handling money.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't neglect to handle important financial obligations early in the day. Use tact with your mate who is apt to be in a irate mood.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be more considerate of associates and you automatically get good results. Make a sensible plan for the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get right down to handling all those tasks that await your attention and don't wait for others to help you. Use more common sense.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take steps to improve your financial position. A charming person could be helpful to you now. Take no risks in motion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Keep poised at home where there are tensions. Anger on your part would only stir things up more. Be logical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find the right way to alleviate tensions between yourself and others you come in contact with. Make plans for the days ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you put in economy measures now, you can soon build a reserve and have greater abundance in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Quietly figure out a way to relieve tensions around you without causing any further ruckus. Keep busy and you...d.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You now have tasks to handle so don't waste time with less important matters. Discuss the future with associates.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't let a person berate you for some error he thinks you have committed, which you have not. Be more thoughtful of mate.

DO YOU NEED AN ISLAND OF SAFETY?

If you live in a neighborhood of soot clogged chimneys; you surely do. Dirty chimneys are potentially a considerable fire hazard. If someone three blocks away has a chimney fire it's a "great pity"; if your next door neighbor has a chimney fire it's a "calamity"; if you have a chimney fire it's a "disaster". You may not be able to prevent the "calamity" of a neighbor's chimney fire, but you can prevent the "disaster" of your own. You have created an island of safety when you live in a neighborhood of clean chimneys—you can be the first, or next. Some neighborhoods are already safe.

Trump safety play depends on holding

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
We begin a study of safety plays with the play of a trump suit in which you cannot afford to lose a trick.

either opponent started with all of the missing trumps, you remain in position to finesse through him.

The correct play is different when the ten also is missing. If East has J-10-x-x of clubs in today's hand, South must lose a trump trick.

At the second trick South must lead the ace of trumps; and he discovers the bad trump break. South must then plan to lead the trumps twice through West.

South first gives up a spade. He wins the diamond return, leads a trump through West to dummy, ruffs a spade, leads a second trump through West and uses his last trump to ruff another spade.

South then gets to dummy with a heart to draw the last trump. Since South is now out of trumps he can discard the low diamond and takes the rest of the tricks with hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold: S-KJ93; H-KQ3; D-42; C-KQ95. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club. With 14 points in high cards, you have a "mandatory" opening bid. Bid one club rather than one spade in order to have a comfortable rebid if partner responds in a new suit.

Hollander returns to visit land of windmills, fields

Onno Van Herwaarden left the land of windmills and wooden shoes to come to the land of windmills and oil fields.

The 22-year-old Hollander was back in Midland this weekend, returning to see some friends he made four years ago while a foreign exchange student attending classes at Midland Lee High School.

Van Herwaarden is nearing the end of a two-month stay this time. He has been touring the United States by Greyhound bus since June 23 and plans to fly back to Holland from New York City on Aug. 26.

While attending Lee High, he stayed with the Larry Turpen family. The Turpens have since moved to Kanab, Utah. But Van Herwaarden did get to visit them during his tour of the West.

He has been visiting Mrs. John Jehle since Thursday. He had spent a few days with the Odessa family of Ben Turpin just before coming to Midland.

His next stop is Little Rock, Ark., the home of an American foreign exchange student who had visited his home of Breda, Holland several years ago.

"Midland is really booming. What has impressed me about this city is how much it has grown since the last time I was here," he remarked Saturday.

When Van Herwaarden was here as an exchange student in 1974, Richard M. Nixon was still the president.

"I think he resigned two weeks after I was back in Holland. I was really interested in the Washington, D.C., workshops I attended near the end of my exchange period because all the Watergate things were going on, I followed them closely when I returned to Holland," he said.

"We are pretty informed in Europe about American politics because what happens in America can affect us."

Van Herwaarden is studying for his masters in mathematics at the University of Utrecht in Holland. He hopes to become a math teacher or go into private business.

He also hopes to return to Midland again.

"What I still remember about Midland is the friendliness of all the people."

Classroom enrichment project sponsored by relations council

The Human Relations Council is coordinating volunteers for a special classroom enrichment program this fall.

The council is sponsoring the Special Programs of Additional Resources and Knowledge which makes available to teachers Midlanders with a variety of interesting backgrounds, careers, hobbies and talents.

"How much more interesting a lesson on Japanese history could be with a speaker, for instance, who has traveled or lived in Japan and has exhibits of the land, the people, the art and the culture. Likewise, a lesson on career development could include a policeman, a plumber, a secretary, or a banker as a resource speaker," said Susan Edwards, executive director of the council.

The council will be collecting names and topics of discussion from the volunteers. Topic directors will be available to the teachers after school starts. As teachers request a speaker, the council will refer them to a volunteer.

Persons interested in additional information should contact the council office at 606 W. Ohio Ave., Room 202.

National Taxpayers Union forms

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

They are business owners from the city and farmers from the country. Rich and poor. Male and female. Political newcomers and political pros.

They are the preachers of the gospel of tax revolt, united in a commitment to cut government spending, even if it means cutting government services.

The approval of Proposition 13 slashing property taxes by an average of 57 percent in California spawned similar drives in more than a dozen states. "It is what we've been saying all along, and now, people are listening," said Kenneth White, president of the Virginia Taxpayers Association, a small, generally conservative group that was given new life by the success of the California campaign.

The people leading the fight are a diverse group. California's Howard Jarvis is a former newspaper publisher. Dick Benton, head of the Iowa Tax Reform Association, used to be a school superintendent and is now a law student. Thomas DeCillis, spokesman for the United Taxpayers of New Jersey, is a printer.

Robert McCaerney, the leader of the drive for change in North Dakota is a millionaire who once owned an auto dealership in Bismarck. "North Dakota was good to me," he says, in explaining why he has been campaigning since 1963 to lower taxes.

Mel Hancock, founder of the Taxpayer's Survival Association in Missouri, runs a security alarm business in Springfield; he says he began the group because taxes took too big a bite of his income.

Vicki Bezanilla, a field representative for the National Taxpayers Union, said that in January, the union had 130 member groups; today, it has more than 500.

The union, a 10-year-old Washington-based lobbying group, is financed by contributions and by $15-a-year dues paid by the 75,000 individual members. Miss Bezanilla said there are hundreds of organizations working in the field. Some have only a handful of members; others have thousands. "A lot of them are bridge clubs who want to get involved in cutting taxes," Miss Bezanilla said. "We are trying to establish umbrella groups in every state."

An Associated Press spot check shows most of the associations involved in petition drives and other campaigns to trim taxes or spending are loosely organized, financed by small contributions.

One such group is Colorado Spending Limitation Inc., founded in January, staffed by volunteers and paid for by donations. Its driving force is Palmer Burch, 71, retired real estate manager, 20-year veteran of the Legislature, former state treasurer and onetime member of the Denver school board.

As a result of a petition drive by Burch's group, a proposed constitutional amendment will be on the ballot in November to link increases in state spending to increases in the cost of living.

It has been said of Burch that if you ask him the time, he will tell you how to make a watch. He has always been interested in fiscal matters, but previously, approached the problems from the government side of the fence. Now, he leads a campaign he describes as an attempt "to try to control the purse strings through the people."

Robert Tisch, 58, a farmer and county drain commissioner, heads the Tisch Coalition for a Property Tax Cut in Michigan. His proposal would cut property taxes in half and allow an increase of one percentage point in the state's income tax. His support comes largely from rural and suburban regions, although Tisch says the membership includes "every kind of red-blooded American."

The coalition is financed by contributions, but Tisch also plans to record an album — "a real fine piece of patriotic music" — with Jarvis. It will sell for $5.

Danielle Samuelson is a store owner in Keystone, S.D. Her brother, who lives in California, kept her up to date on the events in that state. The day after Proposition 13 was passed, Mrs. Samuelson announced she was starting a similar drive in South Dakota.

Today, Mrs. Samuelson is chairman of Citizens for the Dakota Proposition. She is working to get a measure to limit property taxes on the 1980 ballot. The effort will succeed, she says, even "if I have to walk every block in this state collecting signatures."

S.H. "Zeke" Brauer Jr. of the Nebraska School Improvement Association is a veteran signature collector. Several years ago, he led a successful drive to overturn, by referendum, a bill passed by the Legislature to increase aid for special educational programs. The initiative drive he is leading now would, with a few exceptions, limit annual increases in state spending to 5 percent.

Like Colorado's Burch, Jim Whittenburg of Oregon

is familiar on the political scene. Unlike Burch, he has usually been on the outside.

The unemployed pharmacist regularly filed petitions on a variety of issues; all were ignored. In the wake of the passage of Proposition 13, Whittenburg filed another petition. This one called for limiting property taxes to 1 percent of market value, and this one was successful. The measure will be on the ballot in November.

Whittenburg, 39, faces problems, however. He is being tried on charges of passing three bad checks worth $120 at Eugene, Ore., firms earlier this year. His attorney entered a plea of innocent by reason of mental disease or defect and a psychiatric examination was scheduled. Whittenburg also is charged with harassment and criminal trespass following a recent altercation in a Portland bus depot.

World chess championship $2 million boxoffice flop

By EDITH M. LEDERER

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — The world chess championship is costing $2 million, it's a box office flop, and the foreign television rights haven't been sold.

But the organizers insist the Philippines will profit.

Since the match began last month, the three weekly games between Soviet world champion Anatoly Karpov and challenger Viktor Korchnoi have drawn fewer than 75 paying spectators per game to the 1,000-seat auditorium of the Baguio Convention Center.

Tournament organizer Florencio Campomanes says poor attendance was expected because it's the rainy season in the mountains, Baguio is hard to get to, the tickets cost $7, and chess tournaments in the Philippines usually are free.

Others say Karpov and Korchnoi are poor drawing cards.

"There wouldn't be enough hotels in Baguio or seats in the convention center if Bobby Fischer were playing in this match," said Ed Edmundson of Honolulu, a member of the tournament jury.

The chief arbiter of the tournament, Lothar Schmid, who refereed the 1972 title match between Fischer and Russian Boris Spassky in Iceland, recalled: "In Reykjavik, there were 2,500 or even more for every game."

Before the match started, Campomanes said the TV rights would cover the $550,000 prize money, to be divided $350,000 to the winner and $200,000 to the loser. A Manila station has paid an undisclosed price to telecast the play locally, but prospective customers are still balking at the $2 million that is reported being asked for foreign TV and film rights.

One of the major backers of the tournament, millionaire businessman Potenciano Ilusorio, said the money came from "the well-to-do, the Department of Tourism and some government entities. We'll make plenty of it back."

Campomanes said the government offered Baguio City as the match site rather than Manila to acquaint Asian tourists with the mountain resort, a city of 100,000 people 5,000 feet above sea level. He added that it's too hot in Manila to play good chess.

Baguio's two major hotels, the Pines and the Terraces Plaza, were ready for near-capacity occupancy. But after the first two games, Manila travel agencies began advertising a package of two nights in one of the hotels and admission to a game for $28.

Getting to Baguio from Manila means a four-hour drive, a five-hour bus ride or a one-hour flight, but Philippine Airlines can't land at the local airport when it rains.

"Korchnoi and Karpov tried to screw each other when they chose Baguio, and in the bargain they screwed us," said one grandmaster covering the tournament for a foreign newspaper.

Campomanes said defensively that the weather "isn't very different from Leningrad in the early spring, and in Europe this weather is prevalent."

"In Manila, we could be lying outside at the pool, baking in the sun, instead of blowing our noses with colds," complained the wife of one grandmaster.

Ilusorio said President Ferdinand E. Marcos wanted to bring the tournament to the Philippines to promote chess among young Filipinos and to advertise his country abroad. He reported that the word has spread as far as Montana, where the chess club in Eagle Rock asked the tournament officials to send them the moves in each game by telex.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Allergic reactions can become threat to life

Dear Dr. Solomon: Our son, who is nine, had a bad reaction to a bee sting in camp last year. It is this likely to happen again—and if so, what precautions do you think we should take this summer?—G.H. Dear G.H.: If this was an allergic reaction—and it certainly sounds like one—it can indeed happen again, and unfortunately these reactions increase in severity each time. They can even become a threat to life. Anybody who has had an allergic reaction to a bee sting (or the sting of a hornet, a yellow jacket, or a fire ant) should have desensitization treatment from an allergist. This means exposing the patient to progressively increasing amounts of insect extract. It takes quite a while, but it is certainly worth it. You should also make sure there's an emergency sting kit with injectable adrenalin available for immediate use if there is any possibility of a sting by one of these "hymenopterous" insects. The kit is something that should be included with other first aid equipment whenever there are a number of kids or adults gathered together outdoors. Incidentally, an allergic reaction doesn't mean that the area of the bite itself is abnormally effected. What you want to watch out for is a generalized reaction like a body itch, or hives or rash in other parts of the body, or a widespread flush or feeling of warmth. Dizziness, nausea and difficulties in breathing are other symptoms. If you ever notice anything like this, use the emergency kit and get your son immediately to the nearest doctor or hospital emergency room. Syracuse University has recently instituted a program to train child life specialists for this important work. Vietnamese worried about big neighbor

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam, apparently sounding a warning about its collapsing relations with neighboring China, called on its people today to prepare for "a large-scale war of aggression."

The appeal, which did not mention China by name, was made by the Vietnamese Communist Party in a proclamation marking the upcoming 33rd anniversaries of the Aug. 19, 1945, Vietnamese revolution and Ho Chi Minh's declaration of independence from France on Sept. 2, 1945. The statement was carried by the official Vietnam News Agency, monitored here.

It said the Vietnamese had to "fight resolutely to win victory in the southwestern border war and stand ready to fight a large-scale war of aggression." The border war is Vietnam's current conflict with Cambodia, and the reference to a possible "large-scale war" apparently stems from Vietnam's troubles with China.

The proclamation said the Vietnamese were celebrating their national days this year "at a time when international reactionaries are working hand-in-glove with imperialism, feverishly opposing and sabotaging the peaceful labor of our people." The Vietnamese have been applying the term "international reactionaries" to the Chinese.

Relations between Vietnam and China have deteriorated since ethnic Chinese residents in Vietnam began fleeing the country in large numbers in May, complaining of economic and political repression. Vietnam has denied the charges.

The two countries also are at odds over China's support of Cambodia in the border war and over Vietnam's alliance with the Soviet Union, which China considers its primary international foe.

Several border incidents have occurred over the past two weeks involving Vietnamese and Chinese border guards, and some 3,500 ethnic Chinese reportedly are stranded at the border waiting for repatriation to China. Both sides accused the other of instigating the incidents, in which border guards and others reportedly have been injured.

Negotiations on the repatriation of ethnic Chinese to China, begun Aug. 8, are expected to continue this week in Hanoi.

China said, however, its dispute with Vietnam over Chinese nationals could be resolved if an agreement signed in 1955 is implemented.

Ms. Nyad begins marathon swim

ORTEJASO, Cuba (AP) — Her battle with bureaucracy left behind on Cuban shores, gutsy Diana Nyad is now fighting the way she knows best, struggling with waves and fatigue in a 103-mile swim

the sea on her way to the Florida Keys. "The size of the waves is the only thing that could defeat that girl,"

Ken Gundersen, the swimmer's operations manager, said Sunday. Three-foot waves greeted Ms. Nyad at 2:05 p.m. EDT Sunday as she peeled down to two swim suits, told her crew, "I guess I'll see you all in swimmer each had a single side band radio with a range of 12,000 miles but that none was functioning. The Coast Guard said the transmission they heard came from a smaller radio with a range of only 40 miles.

Cuban divers helped her into her renowned shark cage, a heavy wire mesh contraption propelled by its own rear motors and piloted by its own skipper.

Ms. Nyad is abiding by American rules that allow no resting or flotation devices. She cannot touch the sides of the cage.

"She is making it as hard as possible for herself," said Dick Mullins, a Swimming Hall of Fame official on hand to authenticate the swim. "Her swim would be recognized as a great feat even if she allowed herself to take rest stops."

Gundersen said from his post in Key West, Fla., that the first 10 miles of water facing Ms. Nyad were choppy, with seas up to 3 feet. He said the 28-year-old swimmer had expected rough seas at the start.

She faced a 60-hour ordeal of exhaustion, seasickness and hallucination, hoping for landfall somewhere in the chain of flat islands that curl southwest from the tip of Florida.

Many times delayed, U.S. marathon swimmer Diana Nyad steps into Cuban waters to try to establish new world record. (AP Laserphoto)

Stella Taylor planned marathon entry today

ALICE TOWN, Bimini (AP) — Protected by prayers but no shark cage, Stella Taylor, 46, planned to enter the Atlantic today to try to swim 100 miles from Bimini to Florida.

"I'll pray tonight, and when I'm swimming," she said Sunday on the eve of the swim. "But after 20 hours or so I won't have the ability to pray any more."

Radio communications to the mainland were lost, and the Coast Guard and other officials were unable to say at midmorning today whether Miss Taylor had begun the swim.

Clad in a red, white and blue print swim suit, goggles and a bathing cap, and covered with petroleum jelly, she planned to begin her grueling swim at Gun Cay, 10 miles south of North Bimini, and hoped to arrive somewhere on the east coast of Florida Tuesday evening.

If Miss Taylor began as planned, she would become part of a dual drama at sea. Some 250 miles to the southwest, 28-year-old marathoner Diana Nyad began her own cross-ocean swim Sunday afternoon, attempting to swim from Cuba to the Florida Keys — about 103 miles.

Miss Taylor spurned any sort of shark cage such as the elaborate device Ms. Nyad is swimming within.

10 die in Cairo collapse

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Two old apartment buildings collapsed Sunday night in a crowded residential area of Cairo, killing 10 persons and injuring at least eight others.

Local newspapers reported that both three-story brick buildings were at least 80 years old.

Some 45 persons have died in collapses of houses during the last month. Officials say there are about 200 dilapidated houses in slum areas that may fall down.

Frances Barnhart envied girls who could wear fitted clothes-especially bikinis.

Thanks to Pat Walker's, she now has a 24" waistline

And that, she says, is something she never dreamed was possible. But then, lots of dreams come true at Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salons. International—and yours could be among them. Here's Ms. Barnhart's story:
Having been a housewife and mother for 10 years, I decided it was time for a change... to get out of the house and get a job. Hearing that a Pat Walker's Figure Salon was coming to [my] area, I got very excited and knew that I would enjoy that type of work.
I never liked to admit I had a weight problem, so I attributed my 33" waist to a large bone structure. I envied all the girls who could wear fitted clothes and especially bikinis. I had always worn long blouses and coverups to hide my large abdomen. When I did diet, I always lost weight in all the wrong places—my arms, legs and bust—but never where I needed it—my waist and tummy.
[At] Pat Walker's I learned I could still eat all the foods I enjoyed without giving up anything except the 27" I've lost... The beautiful part of it is that I did it with help from my co-workers and most enjoyably with my patrons. It's nice to know there is a place you can go when you need help with a figure problem and where people understand...
Now that I'm manager of our salon I would like to say, "Thank you, Pat Walker's, for giving me satisfaction in my figure, my career and especially myself."

Discover a new, lovelier you

If you need to reduce and reshape your figure, get acquainted with the place at which you can achieve your goal pleasantly, effectively, privately and in a dignified manner. Energy lawyer has bright money future

By BRYCE NELSON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — "Thank God for all these federal energy regulations," sighed a Washington lawyer one muggy afternoon recently. "I've got children who need an education."

The attorney has good reason to give thanks and little reason to worry about the cost of educating his children. Although a relatively young man, he is clearing more than $250,000 a year and has every prospect of greater earnings in the future.

He belongs to a little-known but fast-multiplying breed known as "energy lawyers," attorneys whose special knowledge of the arcane world of federal energy laws and policies can be worth millions of dollars — sometimes even billions — to their clients in potential sales and profits.

The law always has been a major growth industry in Washington. Out of every 10 males one passes on the street here, it has been estimated, at least one will be a lawyer. The District Bar Association, which by no means includes all the lawyers in the city, has 26,000 members.

Yet the energy lawyers are a breed apart. Unlike such nationally known Washington counselors as Edward Bennett Williams and Clark Clifford, most are virtually unknown outside their narrow field. And, while such lawyer-lobbying groups as the tax specialists and patent attorneys have been around for decades, energy lawyers were almost nonexistent until three or four years ago.

"Ten years ago," one Washington lawyer recalls, "there were only a couple of them in private practice here. Now, there are a couple of hundred."

Far more important than the rapid rise in their earnings, numbers and prestige, however, is the range and intensity of their influence on government decisions.

In representing such clients as major oil companies, independent refiners and producers, electric utilities, natural gas pipeline companies, coal mine operators, and — to a lesser extent — consumers, unions and public power cooperatives, the energy lawyers are involved in decisions on federal laws, rules and policies that ultimately affect almost everyone in the United States.

The energy crisis that began with the Arab oil embargo in 1973 presented the federal government with enormous problems: how to cushion the economic impact of huge price increases, how to curb dependence on foreign oil, how to wean Americans from their wasteful habits and how to expand domestic oil and gas production. At the same time, there was pressure to reduce pollution, improve strip-mining practices, increase worker safety and prevent environmental damage.

Predictably, Washington has responded with a torrent of new laws, rules, regulations, policies and policy proposals.

"There is no feasible way to determine how many energy regulations there are," one Department of Energy spokesman confessed recently. "You'd need a computer for it." One compendium of federal rules — and not a complete one — runs to more than 2,800 pages.

At every stage in the consideration, adoption and implementation of almost every rule, law or legislative proposal, the energy lawyers have been involved. What do such lawyers do?

Joseph A. Califano, who represented small oil refiners and earned $505,490 in legal fees in the year before he quit private practice to become secretary of health, education and welfare, wrote in the book "Verdicts on Lawyers" that "the Washington lawyer is both counselor and lobbyist; he spends more time and energy on Capitol Hill and in the halls of the Federal Trade Commission than in any courtroom."

According to its practitioners, the key to practicing law in Washington is access to persons who can quickly provide information important to clients and access to officials who can take action on a client's problems.

Unlike the visiting businessman, the Washington-based lawyer may have worked in the agency relevant to his client's problems and may actually have written the regulation he is now trying to modify. He is likely to know which are the important governmental bells and which cords will ring them.

Successful Washington lawyers often have served in important government posts and a government official knows that such persons are rejected at possible peril.

When Washington lawyer Clark Clifford — a former secretary of defense, White House aide and past and current adviser to presidents — calls the Interior Department solicitor on an oil matter, his call will be returned promptly, regardless of the political party in power.

"A prominent Washington lawyer can get an easier hearing than someone calling from Indianapolis," Interior Department solicitor Leo Krulitz said.

Among the most successful energy lawyers are Duke Ligon and David Wilson, members of the Washington office of the Houston-based firm of Bracewell and Patterson. Each was a high-ranking official in the Federal Energy Administration during Gerald R. Ford's presidency.

So many attorneys have left government service for private practice in the energy field that federal officials are often at a disadvantage. Whereas three years ago it was often the private attorneys who had trouble understanding the rules and regulations, "Now the tables are turned," says Wilson, the former energy agency counsel.

"Now there are people on the outside of the government who understand how things are run and the history of energy decisions much better than people in government," he said.

For a young lawyer with experience in government energy matters, the financial attractions of private practice here are almost irresistible.

A Washington energy lawyer in his mid-30's who has been a partner in his law firm for several years "has an easy opportunity to make a hundred grand," according to Lynn R. Coleman, 38, who recently left private practice to become general counsel of the Energy Department.

It is customary for a talented energy lawyer to bill his clients $100 or $150 an hour, with some charging up to $200 an hour.

Faced with the prospect of such earnings, even government lawyers who regard themselves as foes of the major oil companies and other corporate interests are tempted to cross over.

After weighing the needs of his two young children, the astronomical prices of Washington housing and other family costs, one such lawyer recently lamented, "It's terrible. I've been fighting the oil companies for five years. But I have to think about my family's future too. How can I afford to stay in the government?"

So enormous are the sums of money involved in energy that a small change in the wording of a government regulation or a piece of legislation can mean millions of dollars gained or lost by producers, marketers and others.

To understand what skilled lawyers can do for their clients, consider the federal controls on domestic crude oil prices. The government, in the hope of achieving various worthy goals, has permitted some domestic crude to be sold at world market prices while other domestic oil must be sold at less than half the world price.

Which price applies to what oil is determined by a series of extremely complicated federal regulations. A small difference in the fine print of a definition, an official interpretation or a decision on enforcement policy can determine whether a producer is able to charge the higher price.

What the energy lawyers do is use their access to government officials, their influence and their expertise to try to shape not only broad policy decisions but also the fine print of federal regulations in ways favorable to their clients.

Solar power to ease living in remote areas

WASHINGTON (AP)

In a small village of West Africa, a solar-powered water pump and grain grinder soon will relieve villagers of centuries-old burdens in an experiment that could have far-reaching impact on people living in remote areas.

The village is Tangaye, Upper Volta, where women and children now draw water by hand from wells as deep as 30 feet and where the women prepare flour for each meal by pounding with a primitive mortar and pestle, followed by hand stone grinding.

The pump and grinder are expected to cut this workload by several hours each day, freeing the people for other tasks that could improve the village economy.

The new tasks could include making crafts or growing more food for sale to help the economy of this village of 2,000 people. Different types of food also might be grown to improve nutrition.

A major part of the Tangaye experiment will be to determine the social and economic effects of reducing the work burden, especially on the women.

The women of the village make most of the decisions on planting and harvesting, while the men make laws, hunt and train their sons.

"There are more than 3 million villages in the world like Tangaye which do not have electricity," said Dr. Louis Rosenblum, one of the project officials. "Success of the experiment at Tangaye is bound to influence the direction taken by other developing countries to satisfy the pressing energy needs of their large rural populations."

A team from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Lewis Research Center in Cleveland will go to Tangaye in November to set up the system, to teach the villagers how to use it and to monitor its operation.

The space agency is involved because it developed the solar cell array which will convert the sun's rays to electricity to run the equipment. Solar cells have powered NASA satellites for years.

The cells are ideal for use in remote areas where there is plenty of sun because they last for years and are cheaper than the cost of fuel and transportation for other energy sources.

Scientists announce progress with energy

By WARREN E. LEARY

WASHINGTON (AP) — We smirk about ancient alchemists dreaming of turning lead into gold. Yet we are spending billions of dollars to turn water into something more precious to us than gold — energy.

The dream of limitless energy from a fuel supply that can't be embargoed has scientists doing things that seem as much like alchemy as they do modern science.

In laboratories around the world they are trying to create miniature suns in magnetic bottles and firing laser beams at glass bubbles. They are trying in slow, tentative steps to control the force that runs the sun and gives H-bombs their terrifying power.

They are trying to master fusion energy. One such step was announced over the weekend by Princeton University scientists who heated a form of hydrogen to more than 26 million degrees Celsius. The exact temperature achieved is expected to be announced this week, but it was high enough for a U.S. Department of Energy spokesman to call it "significant."

"It is not a breakthrough," said Jim Bishop, cautioning against published reports to the contrary. Saying that much more research is needed, he added that the latest Princeton work "is a significant development" that confirms earlier predictions.

Fusion is a way of freeing tremendous amounts of energy by forcing together the nuclei of light atoms such as hydrogen, just as the sun does. Scientists are using two forms of hydrogen found in water, deuterium and tritium, as fuel.

When the hydrogen nuclei come together — fuse — they form helium and release subatomic particles called neutrons. Energy from this reaction is converted to heat, which is transferred through the wall to generate steam and run power plants.

Today's nuclear power reactors work on the opposite principle called fission, the separation rather than fusion of atoms. Heavy atoms of uranium are shattered apart in a chain reaction with other particles, releasing energy.

Scientists are looking for an alternative to fission because it is potentially dangerous, produces large amounts of long-term nuclear wastes, has limited sources of fuel and some byproducts can be used to make nuclear bombs.

Fusion, on the other hand, can use sea water for fuel, should produce little radioactive waste, is relatively harmless to the environment and produces no byproduct that can be converted into weapons.

But a number of scientific breakthroughs have to be achieved and many billions of dollars invested before controlled fusion reactors become a reality.

Even though the United States is spending a half-billion dollars annually on its fusion research program, the Energy Department estimates that a demonstration fusion power plant won't be ready before the mid-1990s.

The United States is exploring two main approaches to a possible fusion reactor. One is the magnetic containment approach headquartered at Princeton. The other is laser fusion, or inertial confinement, method being pioneered at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico and the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

With magnetic containment, the most widely used devices for fusion experiments are large, doughnut-shaped machines called tokamaks. These machines, invented by Soviet scientists in the 1960s, are circular chambers surrounded by electromagnets.

Hydrogen gas fed into the chamber is heated so hot that it's stripped of its electrons. This superhot mixture of negatively-charged electrons and positively-charged nuclei, called a plasma, won't cross strong magnetic lines of force so it is bottled up in a magnetic field.

The magnetic bottle keeps the plasma away from the chamber walls, protecting the vessel and keeping the gas from losing energy.

To get large numbers of nuclei to fuse for lots of energy, three conditions are necessary:

—There must be temperatures of up to 100 million degrees Celsius.

—The atomic nuclei must be crowded tightly together to increase the chance of collisions.

—The hot, densely-packed plasma must be confined long enough to allow fusion reactions to occur and sustain themselves without the help of outside energy.

These same principals hold for laser fusion. With this method, powerful laser light beams fire at tiny glass pellets containing deuterium and tritium.

This sudden burst of energy vaporizes the pellet coating and, as it flies outward, it pushes back against the fuel to compress and heat it. If the laser beams are powerful enough, the compression effect will cause nuclei to fuse and release energy.

Some of the milestones yet to be reached are simultaneously combining the ideal temperature, density and confinement time for controlled, sustained fusion. Fusion also must reach the energy break-even point when the energy coming from the reaction equals or exceeds that used to start it.

If research masters the technical problems, federal energy officials say commercial fusion plants could be supplying power early in the next century.

Cubs finish off Sox, await Diablo invasion

BY TED BATTLES

Larry Monroe, a big righthander, was in the process of sticking it in the Cubs ear on the way to his second victory with a 2-1 lead going into the last of the sixth when the game blew up in his face.

Midland, held to one hit through four innings and showing only four hits after five innings, exploded for 10 runs in the sixth inning, pounding out eight hits while sending 14 batters to the plate to post an 11-2 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox at Cubs Stadium Sunday night.

Winning four out of five from the Sox and 15 of their last 20, the Cubs open a five-game series at 7:30 tonight against El Paso's long-ball hitting Diablos, who won the first half of the West Division Texas League race per behind the mound in the fourth to gun him out by an eyelash while Hernandez robbed Tony Castillo by streaking in to grab a sinking liner off his shoe tops in the seventh.

and still have hopes of catching the first place Cubs in the second half.

Righthander Jack Ledbetter, 3-4, making his first start since June, showed he was ready to help out down the stretch by pitching six innings of five-hit ball before turning it over to lefty Bob Clark, who turned in three sharp innings of relief to pick up his third save of the season.

STEVE SMITH, who knocked in both Amarillo runs, belted a solo homer to left in the first off Ledbetter to give the Gold Sox a 1-0 lead and the way Monroe breezed through the Cubs in the first four innings, it looked like it might be a long night.

Jim Tracy, who was to crack out three hits and knock in three runs, showed that Monroe was human by breaking up his no-hitter with a third inning single. Then, in the fifth, Greg Keatley doubled and Tracy singled him home to tie it.

Amarillo got it right back in the top of the sixth when Joe Hicks, who wore out Midland pitching during the series by going 10-for-23, singled, took second on a wild pitch and scored on Smith's single to right.

What happened in the home sixth was like one of those Olsen and Johnson Helzapoppin shows. Ten runs. Steve Macko started it by tripling off the fence in center, Joe Hernandez singled to tie it and before it was over, Tracy had doubled home two runs, Kurt Seibert singled home two more, Eric Grandy singled in a couple and Kevin Drury tripled home two more.

Tim Kelly finally got the Cubs out, but not before he was victimized for four runs himself.

THE CUBS wound up with 14 hits with Tracy's three leading the way, but Seibert, Hernandez, Grandy and Keatley each had two safeties.

Defensively, the Cubs gave Ledbetter and Clark errorless support with shortstop Macko and centerfielder Hernandez coming up with the game's defensive gems. Macko came in fast on Bill Hallstrom's slow hop-

Throwing strikes is Ruhle key

HOUSTON (AP) — After pitching in four different leagues on three levels of baseball this season, 27-year-old righthander Vern Ruhle says he's enjoying his recent success as a Houston Astro.

"I'm glad that Houston showed enough interest in me to sign me after spring training this year," Ruhle said, after tossing a five-hitter for his second straight shutout in Houston's 3-0 conquest over the Atlanta Braves Sunday.

"Nobody wanted me, but I never gave up on myself, even after the (Detroit) Tigers released me after I was having arm problems. I thought I could come back if given the chance."

Ruhle, 2-0, who has compiled an ERA of 0.93 in 29 innings with the Astros, after toiling with Columbus, Ga., of the Southern League and Charleston, W. Va., of the International League, says control has played a big role in his comeback.

"My key has been throwing strikes and staying ahead of the hitters. I'm a control pitcher and I try to study the weaknesses of the other team's hitters between games."

"I had a sore arm with Detroit, but I am not experiencing any more soreness. There's just a little stiffness,"

Jay Mahaffey is hugged by wife Susie after his victory in the Pleasant Valley Classic Sunday.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Mahaffey chirps to win

By The Associated Press
SUTTON, Mass. — John Mahaffey ran off a string of birdies down the stretch to win the $225,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic by 2 strokes.

Mahaffey fired a 4-under-par 67 for a 72-hole score of 270, breaking the tournament record of 271 set by Ray Floyd last year.

Gil Morgan and Floyd each birdied the final hole, settling for a tie for second at 272.

Trevino wins playoff in British tourney

YORK, England — Lee Trevino won on the fourth hole of a playoff to take the $19,000 top prize in an international golf tournament here.

Trevino, who shot a 5-under-par 66 on the final round, beat Britain's Neil Coles and Australian Noel Ratcliffe after all three had finished with 10-under-par, four-round totals of 274.

Bolt edges Snead in Indy golf classic

INDIANAPOLIS — Tommy Bolt registered a 1-stroke victory over Sam Snead in the rain-shortened Indianapolis Shrine Golf Classic. Bolt finished the final round of the seniors' event with a 6-under-par 66 and 136 for the tournament, while Snead finished with a 67, giving him a 137 total.

Tied for third at 142 were Bob Erickson, Al Bessellink, Ken Mast and George Bayer.

Connors prevails for Clay Court crown

INDIANAPOLIS — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors won the U.S. Open Clay Court tennis tournament for the third time in five years defeating Spain's Jose Higueras 7-5, 6-1.

Dana Gilbert, an amateur on the U.S. Junior Federation team, won the women's singles championship 6-2, 6-3 over Argentina's Viviana Gonzalez.

Ashe's strong serve turns back Bob Lutz

DUBLIN, Ohio — Third-seeded Arthur Ashe used a strong serve to defeat fifth-seeded Bob Lutz 6-3, 6-4 and win a $75,000 tennis tournament at Muirfield Village.

Sweden's Petersen triumphs at Zeltweg

ZELTWEG, Austria — Sweden's Ronnie Peterson won an unorthodox Grand Prix race on the Oesterreichring to move closer to the lead in world championship points, now held by Mario Andretti.

The race was staged in two parts because of hazardous conditions, and Peterson, driving a Lotus, won both. Rain made the track slippery, and several of the top drivers, including Andretti, swerved off and smashed into fences. They were unhurt, however.

Foyt survives to win

MILWAUKEE — A.J. Foyt survived a collision and severe heat to win the Milwaukee 200 stock car race at the Wisconsin state fairgrounds.

Foyt was almost forced out of the race after his 1978 Camaro collided with Harold Fair's 1978 Magnum, but he recovered to win the race at an average speed of 96.254 mph to beat Joe Rutman.

'Do you think you got a fair chance?'...Allen asks

By KEN PETERS
FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — George Allen, normally an intense and animated man, looked and sounded tired and forlorn. "It's an unbelievable thing," he said, his voice trailing off.

"Do you think I got a fair chance... two preseason games?" Allen, fired Sunday as coach of the Los Angeles Rams by team owner Carroll Rosenbloom and replaced by assistant Ray Malavasi, said: "I'm not bitter. I'm hurt."

The sudden and dramatic move came after the Rams had lost their first two preseason contests, the opener 14-7 to New England then 17-0 to San Diego last Saturday. Allen was hired just last February to return to the team that he'd coached from 1966 to 1970, having been fired twice and rehired once by Dan Reeves, the Rams' late president.

ALLEN SAID he told Rosenbloom that he was making a mistake. "I told him what I have to offer is what the Rams need," said Allen, 56. "There were several things he said, that he thought we wouldn't win if I continued as the coach, and that I would work better in the framework of an organization where I'd be general manager and coach."

"All I know is that I did everything in my power, did it the way it should be done, did it my way. We worked hard and were committed to the program we've used successfully all these years and I could not change that if I was to live with myself."

Allen's "way" was not Rosenbloom's way. In a prepared statement, the Rams' owner said: "It is my feeling that I have made a serious error in judgement in believing George Allen could work within our framework."

"It has been extremely difficult for him to adjust to a new situation.

Unquestionably he is a fine coach and administrator. His record speaks for itself. However, I'm certain it's in the best interest of all concerned to make this change at this time."

ROSENBLIUM would not talk in specifics about the move, but a number of factors apparently were involved. Some, like the two lackluster exhibition showings, were obvious, others more subtle.

There had been a certain amount of unrest in the Rams' Fullerton State training camp, with some players unhappy with Allen's long practices and rah-rah psychology. Five players walked out at one time or another, although contract disputes out of Allen's control were the major problem.

However, that lack of control was apparently another factor in the firing. Allen, who was general manager and coach of the Redskins for the past seven seasons, may have wanted power that Rosenbloom would not relinquish.

Allen, who said he hadn't even finished moving all his furniture back to Los Angeles, will apparently be paid the salary due him under a reported three-year, $200,000 a year contract he'd signed with the Rams.

"George Allen is a fine gentleman and a damn good football coach," said Malavasi, 47. "It (getting fired) happens to nearly everyone. It's happened to me."

Malavasi was serving as offensive coordinator under Allen, although he'd run the Rams' defense for the five years Knox was at the Los Angeles helm. Malavasi had one brief stint as a head coach in the National Football League, serving as Denver Broncos head man for 12 games in an interim capacity in 1966.

He now faces the pressure that led to Knox's leaving for the Buffalo Bills and Allen's being fired.

"Los Angeles fans are spoiled," said Los Angeles linebacker Isiah Robertson. "They want a Super Bowl. And Mr. Rosenbloom wants to give them a Super Bowl. That's the bottom line."

ALLEN NOW has been fired four times in his NFL coaching career — three times by the Rams and last January by Redskins' President Edward Bennett Williams. Allen would not agree to contract terms with the Redskins and Williams said he believed the coach was negotiating with the Rams at that time.

"It's probably my saddest decision because I'm very fond of George Allen," said Rosenbloom, who met with Allen for more than an hour at the Rams' camp Sunday afternoon before the announcement.

"I felt it was time to do what I did."

Saying he was packing his bags and leaving immediately, Allen then mused, "I guess I made a mistake.

giving up a great job in Washington. But I'm not worried. I have a fine family and I'm set financially." Malavasi, who's spent 23 years in the pro coaching ranks, said he plans some immediate changes, including length of practice sessions. "I have some ideas about the practice schedule and we might make some changes defensively," he said. "We're going to cut the practice time down, but if we have to work longer, we will work longer. You have to have a good team, good coaches, good ownership and along with all that, good luck." With surprising candor, Malavasi said he didn't believe Allen got a fair shake, commenting, "If you're going to hire him, you have to let him go (his own way). I don't like to see this because the same thing could happen to me in two weeks. I don't feel good because I don't like the circumstances. But this is something I've wanted all my life."

What makes the Cubs run?

By TED BATTLES

Back in the first half of the season, if anyone had suggested that the struggling Midland Cubs could lose their leading batter and ace pitcher, Jimmy Buckner and Randy Martz to Wichita, and be the team to catch in the second half, listeners would have started looking for the delicious one's keeper.

The Cubs just weren't that good. They were young in years and short on experience and lost much of that when Silver Glove centerfielder Joe Hernandez suffered a broken hand in the season's very first series.

There was some experience on the pitching staff in what was labeled as Midland's strong suit when the team departed Scottsdale last April, but it didn't work out that way.

Rival batters began calling the Cubs staff The Medics. They were just the tonic hitters with anemic averages liked to see.

When the Cubs lost a Buckner or a Martz, the player they got from Pompano Beach usually was someone that failed to make the club in Scottsdale and arrived without fanfare, accompanied by a "Are they trying to help us or bury us?" The evidence was convincing, so much so that there could be only one verdict: right? This was a ball club that was just along for the scenery. So what are the Cubs doing in first place in the Texas League West, a lofty pinnacle they have occupied without interruption since the boring days of the second half race.

Who kissed the frog? If one were compelled to come up with an explanation, he would have to shrug and confess it's just a classic illustration of what the minor leagues are supposed to be all about.

THE UGLY ducklings of the first half have simply grown up during the course of the season. The unheralded players sent to Midland have proved to be gems in disguise, keeping Cubs afloat despite a staggering rash of injuries that laid waste to the pitching staff and sidelined everyday staples like Brian Roinski, Kurt Seibert, Javier Fierro and Joe Hernandez, a casualty list that should have destroyed the team. Yet Jim Tracy, Bill Evers and John Hartman came in cold and did the job.

Of course, the "trade" with Wichita, which in effect surrendered Martz for Darrell Turner and George Riley, which languishing on the Astros' bench, gave Saul two solid starters for one. Already they have amassed seven victories between them and brought order and consistency to the entire staff. The

Whitesides cop Father-Son play

Ray and Steve Whiteside, locked in three-way tie for first place after the first round of the annual Father and Son golf tournament, broke away from the pack in the second and final round of the tournament Sunday at Midland Country Club to win the championship flight by seven points.

The duo, paced by Steve's blistering 5-under par 67 on Sunday, finished with 204 points. Dr. Al Langford and Al, Jr. also pulled away from the field in the final round to win the first flight championship with 176 points. They were tied with Ed Anderson and Ed, Jr. after the first round, but that team faded in the final 18 holes of play. Bob and Tim Boyd finished second in the first flight with 167 points while Dick and Greg Robinson were in third with 164.

Walt and Stewart Laufer, first-day leaders in the second flight, held off a strong rally by Ted Ferguson and Ted, Jr. to win the championship in that bracket. The Laufers tallied 137 points in the two-day tournament, a single point better than the Fergusons who trailed the winners by four points heading into the final round. Joe and David Stickney were third with 123 points.

The tournament was set up on a point system, with one point awarded for each double bogey, two points for a bogey, three points for par, four points for birdies and five points for eagles.

Stingley critical, but shows signs of overcoming paralysis

CASTRO VALLEY (AP) — Injured New England Patriots wide receiver Darryl Stingley is in guarded condition in the intensive care unit, but "has some sensation over his entire body," a hospital spokesman said today.

An Eden Hospital spokesman said that Stingley was not paralyzed and was moving his right arm. His wife was by his bedside Sunday when he received a flurry of visitors, including Oakland Raiders' Coach John Madden.

Stingley, 26, was feared at least partially paralyzed Saturday night after a head-on collision with Oakland Raiders' back Jack Tatum while trying to catch a pass. The Patriots won 21-7.

A statement from neurologist Dr. Manard Pont, who operated on Stingley, said the athlete sustained a fractured dislocation of his cervical spine and would be hospitalized for at least a week.

Pont said that Stingley had suffered some paralysis immediately after the collision, but was able to move after surgery. "He has been awake and alert since the time of the injury and is fully awake at this time and in otherwise good condition." The doctor said. A team of neurosurgeons planned to see Stingley later today and issue another statement at noon.

Stingley was raced to Eden Hospital Saturday as the game continued. At the time it was feared that he would never play again, or that he might not even be able to walk. With 1:26 left in the second quarter, Stingley went flying through the air in an attempt to catch a pass in the middle of the field. The ball sailed past him but Stingley collided head on with Tatum. For 10 minutes, Stingley lay motionless before doctors moved him gently to a gurney and wheeled him away.

Yanks, Orioles battle, but weatherman triumphs

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles spent 9 hours, 31 minutes playing 5 hours, 12 minutes of baseball and completing 20 1/2 of the 27 innings they were supposed to have played this weekend.

They managed some of those innings Sunday before the heavens intervened, converting a five-run Yankee seventh into so much extra batting practice and turning an apparent 5-3 New York triumph into a 3-0 Baltimore shutout.

A 2-hour, 27-minute rain delay shortened Friday night's 2-1 Yankees victory to 5 1/2 innings and made a swamp of what ordinarily was the Memorial Stadium outfield. The clubs got help from the weatherman Saturday, but none from the electricians as three power failures delayed the Orioles' 6-4 victory by 76 minutes.

SUNDAY, FORSAKING the scuba gear and miner's hats that might have been more appropriate, the teams tried again. Baltimore scored three times in the sixth, the Yanks tallied five in the seventh.

But since scores revert to the last complete inning when rain halts official games — and play was stopped with the Birds' batting in the seventh — New York came out on the short end.

Of course, they protested.

"They waited a couple of hours at night (Friday), but today — when we had all kinds of time — they called it after just 36 minutes," said Yankees Manager Bob Lemon, who walked into the umpire's dressing room to voice his displeasure.

Lemon knew he had as much chance of winning the protest as the field had of drying completely before tonight's series-ending game.

"I've never won one," he said. "It's like arguing with my wife."

Atlanta Braves first baseman Dale Murphy keeps his eye on the ball as he pursues foul ball hit by Houston's Bruce Bochy. It didn't do any good. The ball fell in the seats for a foul. (AP Laserphoto)

ORIOLES MANAGER Earl Weaver argued with the umpires Friday night, when the situation was reversed, but found a silver lining in the clouds that had handed him a victory.

"The big thing was the umpires were consistent. Thank goodness we had the same crew," he said. On July 31, the same group waited 2 hours, 20 minutes before resuming play in an Orioles' game against the Brewers.

That contest was suspended by curfew and completed two days later, a fact duly noted by Lemon. The manager proposed that games like Sunday's be treated the same way.

"When you have a curfew game and you pick it up from there," he said. "What's the difference?"

There was no difference in the field, said Weaver. "It was the same as the other night. No better, no worse."

Umpire Don Denkinger added, "It was just like it was Friday night. The field was unplayable. It was soaked before the game even started and the rain made it 10 times worse."

Exhausted Giants move back into first place

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

If the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers keep up their wild battles in the National League West, they both may drop from exhaustion before the season ends.

The latest installment in baseball's hottest rivalry was an epic 11-inning affair Sunday in which the Giants defeated the Dodgers 7-6 and moved back into first place in the division. Los Angeles fell a game back and Cincinnati is 1 1/2 games out after losing to San Diego 3-2.

"A game like this could only happen between the Dodgers and the Giants," said Jack Clark, San Francisco's hero with a run-scoring single in the 11th inning. "Maybe now people will believe San Francisco is the real thing. Maybe we haven't convinced everybody but, out of 20 people, I'd say we've convinced 15."

after Smith fled deep to center, Ron Ecy reached on an error by shortstop Johnny LeMaster. Ed Halicki then came on to earn the first save of his career.

"Halicki told me he'd go in and change his shoes if I wanted him to," said Giants Manager Joe Altobello. "I wanted him to."

Halicki, who started against Los Angeles Friday, became the seventh pitcher in the game for San Francisco. He got Steve Garvey on a fly to center and Dusty Baker to pop to first to end the game.

The Dodgers and Giants thus split eight games in the last 11 days. San Francisco won the first two games of a four-game set at home last week before the Dodgers came back to take the next two. In Los Angeles this weekend, the Dodgers were victors in the opening pair of contests and the Giants took the final two.

Cubs 2, Expos 1

Dave Kingman's solo homer in the sixth inning boosted Rick Reuschel to his 11th victory in 21 decisions and handed Montreal rookie pitcher Scott Sanderson a defeat in his first major-league decision.

Kingman's home run, No. 18 on the season, was his first since Aug. 4 and second since June 30. He spent most of July on the disabled list.

Pirates 7, Phillies 3

After surrendering 29 hits and 25 runs to division-leading Philadelphia in the last two games, Pittsburgh woke up with some timely hitting and pitching.

Don Robinson hurled a six-hitter and struck out six, and the Pirates got 12 hits, including a three-run homer by Dave Parker. The Phillies had won the first three games of the series.

Cardinals 6, Mets 1

St. Louis swept a three-game set with New York and tied the Mets for fifth place in the East, the first time in nearly three months that the Cardinals were not in sole possession of last place.

Pete Vuckovich, the NL earned run average leader among starting pitchers, hurled a four-hitter and had a run-scoring single. He struck out seven and walked one.

Former Mets Wayne Garrett and Mike Phillips had seven hits between them to lead the Cardinals attack.

'Rangers caught us at right time,' Torborg

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland manager Jeff Torborg says the Indians did not catch Texas at the wrong time, rather "they caught us at the right time."

"When we get runs we get no pitching, and when we get pitching we get no runs," said Torborg after the Indians dropped a doubleheader, 3-2 and 6-5, to the Rangers Sunday.

Texas now has won nine of its last 10 games, seven of the wins coming against Cleveland, while the Indians have dropped nine of their last 10 games.

Ranger manager Billy Hunter said, "We're getting decent pitching, clutch hitting and good defense ... We're playing very well right now."

Twins 3-2, A's 1-1

Butch Wynegar's eighth-inning single delivered the deciding run, backed a five-hitter by Roger Erickson and capped Minnesota's sweep of Oakland. The A's wasted a seven-hitter by Mike Norris, recently promoted from the minors.

"I really wanted this game because it was my first start and (A's owner) Charley Finley was in the stands," said Norris. "I've had hassles with Charley before and I wanted him to see me pitch well."

The Twins took the opener on a seven-hitter by Gary Serun and an unearned third-inning run. Rod Carew bunted for a hit, took second when catcher Jim Essian threw wildly past first and scored on the second of Mike Cuybage's three singles.

Blue Jays 3, Royals 2

Bob Bailor went four-for-five, drove in one run and scored the game-winning run from second base on a 10th-inning forecourt to send Toronto past Kansas City.

Bailor opened the 10th with a single and advanced on Rico Carly's single. One out later Otto Vetz grounded to third baseman Jamie Quirk, whose throw to second forced Carly.

But second baseman U.L. Washington hesitated on the play and Bailor never stopped running. He narrowly beat the throw to the plate.

Red Sox 4, Brewers 3

Carlton Fisk slapped a bases-loaded single past third baseman Sam Bando in the 10th inning to help Boston hand Milwaukee its eighth loss in nine games.

Jerry Remy opened the 10th with a grounder Bando couldn't handle. Jim Rice beat out a single that also gave Bando trouble, then Dwight Evans was walked to load the bases for Fisk.

Earlier, Evans had hit his 22nd homer.

Tigers 10, White Sox 2

Lou Whitaker hit a three-run, inside-the-park home run, Steve Kemp drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Rusty Staub hit his 19th homer of the year to carry Detroit — which has won eight of 10 — past Chicago and hand the White Sox their ninth loss in 11 games.

Mariners 4, Angels 1

Craig Reynolds had a two-run second-inning double to lead Seattle. Lyman Bostock went four-for-four and drove in California's run.

Cowboys actively seek replacement for Herrera

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The order finally arrived from Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. Trade Efrén Herrera.

The field goal specialist was embroiled in a contract dispute with the Cowboys and failed to report to camp with other veterans.

"I can't say right now who we are talking with," said Cowboy personnel director Gil Brandt. "All I can say is that I'm actively seeking a trade."

Astros' Ruhle finds the key

that's all."

THE ASTROS scored all three of their runs in the first inning on a single and stolen base by Terry Puhl, Julio Gonzalez' run-scoring single and Bob Watson's two-run homer off losing pitcher Preston Hanna, 7-11.

Watson, whose home was his 13th of the year, said Ruhle makes it tough on opposing hitters.

"He moves the ball around a lot," Watson said. "He's one of those guys who has knowledge of the game and he makes it easier on the fielders because he keeps the ball in play."

Ruhle allowed only one Atlanta runner to reach third base against him as he tied an Astro club record with his second straight shutout, both of which have come against the Braves.

The triumph moved the Astros into fifth place in the National League West, one-half game ahead of last-place Atlanta.
