SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Residents still reeling from an earth-quake that rumbled through Santa Barbara and injured about 50 people are cleaning up its evidence today: shattered windows, flooded streets, cracked highways and a derailed

The quake rattled five counties Sunday, knocking people to the ground. The temblor was centered in the Santa Barbara Canal about six miles south of here, in an area that sits atop California's most prominent fault, the San Andreas.

Spokesmen for the Caltech Seismology Laboratory in Pasadena said the quake measured 5.1 on the Richter scale, the worst to hit the area in more than 30 years.

"It just scared us," said Joe Loebman, 38, who lives on the ocean about two miles from the center of town. "As soon as it happened, we got outside and there were a lot of very scared people."

Structural damage was minimal, but many residents today had to clear broken glass and other debris from their homes. Downtown Santa Barbara, hit hard in a 1941 quake, escaped without serious damage this time. Goleta, just north of here, absorbed most of the damage, and many windows shattered by the tremor were covered with plywood.

"It was like being inside a paint shaker," said California Highway Patrol Officer Gene Hunt, who was home in Goleta when the quake hit. "With no warning, the house started shaking violently from side to side. I was lying on the living room floor reading the Sunday paper. My very first thought was a car had run into my house or that an airplane had crashed. But then it kept going and I knew what it

Most of the 50 people rushed to Goleta Valley Community Hospital's emergency room were treated for minor cuts and bruises, but Dr. Donald Rink said one woman was admitted to the intensive care unit with burns and was listed in good condition. Another person suffered a broken back, he said.

Three roofs collapsed but caused only one slight injury, said Santa Barbara police.

Major roads were blocked by quake-triggered rock slides and one highway developed a wide crack, said California Highway Patrol dispatcher Terrie Tucker. One motorist escaped after debris crushed her car on Highway 154, which connects Santa Barbara and Santa Ynez.

Vibrations cracked some concrete overpasses, said Michael Brown of the California Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento. Water mains snapped throughout Santa Barbara, flooding homes and businesses, a sheriff's department spokeswoman said. A few gas leaks triggered small fires, which were quickly extinguished.

Minutes after the quake hit at 3:54 p.m., 20 cars and one locomotive of a freight train derailed near Goleta, said Southern Pacific Transportation Co. spokesman Tom Buckley. No injuries were reported, he said, and no dangerous materials were aboard the train.

Fred Grover of Camarillo was playing golf about 400 yards from the tracks. He likened the sound of the derailment to "a dozen automobiles when they start piling up."

Grover said dust churned up by the train covered both lanes of the nearby freeway, while light standards along the road swayed in a five-foot arch.

"It was a terrible feeling," he said.

At the University of California at Santa Barbara, the jolt opened cases of snakes and threw the reptiles across a classroom, said sheriff's department spokeswoman Darleen Thompson. They were recovered without incident.

In another college building, bottles of noxious chemicals were broken, but city fire officials said the fumes dissipated without causing any damage.

Santa Barbara had its first brush with earthquake disaster in 1925, when a tremor measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale rocked the area and killed 14 people. The city was hit by another strong earthquake in 1941. Although no one died, property damage was heavy and widespread.

The Richter scale is a measure of the ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Scientists say a reading of 5 can mean considerable damage and a reading of 7 is considered a major earthquake. An 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous dam-

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 8.3 on the Richter scale.

A man with a heavy foreign accent called the NBC switchboard at 4:20 a.m. and told the operator he had placed bombs.

Police later recovered a device consisting of four sticks of dynamite from the north side of the U.N. building at First Avenue and 46th Street, and one with five sticks from a locker at Grand Central in midtown Manhattan.

Abass:
Gebril and his organization were silent, and there was no confirmation of Abass' claim from other sources. But some observers said if Gebril's guerrillas did make the attack, they might have been acting for Yasser Arafat, whose Al Fatah guerrillas have been warring with pro-Iraqi guerrillas in London, Paris and Pakistan for the past month.

Arafat as chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization has been holding reconciliation talks with Abass and other pro-Iraqi guerrilla leaders. The observers said he probably still wants to neutralize his rivals but cannot pursue factional bloodletting publicly and still claim leadership of the entire guerrilla movement.

Abass said 98 persons were known to have died in the explosion, and 63 more were buried in the rubble. He said the dead included 37 of his "highly trained operatives." Eleven Al Fatah guerrillas also were reported killed. Only eight residents were reported to have survived.

Rescue workers said some residents of surrounding buildings also were seriously injured.

The Palestine Liberation Front's headquarters occupied the top three floors of the building, which was on the edge of the Sabra Palestine refugee camp, in Moslem western Beirut. Al Fatah and a third guerrilla faction also had offices in the building, and there were 28 apartments for guerrillas and their families.

Arafat called an emergency meeting of the PLO's executive committee and ordered an investigation of the bombing. He also appointed a committee of representatives from various factions "to take measures to prevent any further bloodshed."

Travel tuned to dollar's doings

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Down, down, down goes the dollar. Up, up, up goes the cost of that foreign vacation you dreamed about. Now is the time to make sure you get the best possible deal for your money.

You may have no one to blame but yourself if your holiday turns sour because of rising prices. As an individual, you cannot do much to affect the value of U.S. currency overseas. You can, however, learn to take advantage of fluctuations in the dollar.

Compare exchange rates when selecting your destination. The dollar has been declining recently against almost all major currencies in Europe and the Far East. But it is still worth more than it used to be in some places. You will get 200 more Italian lira for your dollar today, for example, than you would have in 1975. Inflation in Italy has eaten up some of the gain, but you probably will fare better there than you would in a country like Japan where rising prices and declines in the value of the dollar have gone hand in hand.

You do not have to be an expert in high finance to keep track of what dollars will buy. Ask your travel agent or local banker for the basic figures and compare currencies the way you would compare airlines.

Shop around for travelers' checks. Credit unions often offer discounts to members. Banks may have special rates for depositors or senior citizens. There is a flat commission of 1 percent of face value charged on all American Express travelers' checks. Fees for other checks vary, however. Spokesmen for both Barclays Bank and Thomas Cook Inc. said, for example, that it is up to the financial institution or other agent who is selling the checks to decide on a commission. In some cases, there is no charge at all. If you plan to stay in one place for any length of time, consider getting your travelers' checks in local currency rather than in U.S. dollars. You run the risk of losing money if the value of the dollar increases between the time you buy the checks and the time you spend them, but you gain the advantage of knowing in advance exactly what you have to spend. You will not have to cash checks at a hotel or store, where you will get less for your dollars than you would at a

Among the currencies available in addition to U.S. dollars are Canadian, Australian and Hong Kong dollars, Japanese yen, English pounds, Swiss and French francs, German marks and Indian rupees.

Dudley H. Ranzetta, manager of Barclays travelers' check division in New York, said there "very definitely" has been an increase in interest in travelers' checks issued in foreign currencies. He declined to provide specific figures, but said, "We are very gratified with our sales."

An American Express spokesman also said there has been "a noticeable increase (in sales) in the stronger currencies. Travelers are aware of the fluctuations (in the dollar)."

Robert Steinthal of Cook's said some people are buying the travelers' checks as a speculative investment. If you had bought yen travelers' checks a year and a half ago, he noted, you would have gotten just over 300 yen for every dollar. Today, the dollar is worth less than 200 yen. "You would have made a bundle," Steinthal said.

Another way to avoid unpleasant surprises while traveling is to buy a Eurailpass. The tickets entitle you to unlimited travel in 15 countries and must be purchased in the United States. Seat reservations — a good idea in the peak travel season — are extra. There are five first-class Eurailpasses for adults and a second-class Eurail Youthpass for those under 26. Prices range from $180 to $450.

If you are planning a package tour, read the fine print carefully and ask questions. Is there a clause that allows the tour operator to charge a supplement if the value of the dollar declines? What does the brochure mean when it promises a "first-class" hotel? Is a private bath included? Are beverages counted as part of the meals? Will optional activities add to the bill? Try to visualize a typical vacation day—from the time you get up until you go to bed. Think of all the things you will be doing and ask about the cost of each.

Once overseas, investigate special offers for visitors. Many cities, for example, have an all-day public transit pass. You can explore at your leisure and will spend less than on a guided

Finally, think local. Don't expect a foreign country to be just like home. Stick to the foods and beverages of the country you are visiting if you want to save money. Fast-food hamburgers are now available all over the world, but you will probably pay a premium for your American

Jaycees vow court battle to keep women members

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) - Cheers of "Make It Right!" resounded through the Marriott Hotel here after the Massachusetts Jaycees voted to take their national leaders to court to retain women members after Dec. 1.

Nearly all of some 300 delegates to the state convention this weekend voted for the court action, which according to Michael Lynch, state Jaycee president, would allow women members - many of whom are officers - to serve out their memberships or terms until the year officially ends in late spring.

It also would give the organization

Midland man hurt in stabbing incident Sunday

A Midland man was reported in guarded condition in Medical Center Hospital in Odessa today after he was transferred from Midland Memorial Hospital following his being admitted for a stab wound he received in Midland Sunday night, according to spokesmen for the hospital and the Midland Police Department.

Ruben Perez Garcia Jr., 31, of the 200 block of Gist Avenue declined to give officers information about the incident, according to reports.

Garcia was admitted with a wound to his left side, said the hospital spokesman. According to police reports, his maker told police he had left her house just before 9 p.m. Garcia's wife cia arrived home, apparently having been stabbed in the interim. Officers said his wife then drove Garcia back to his mother's home and told officers that about 9:05 p.m. Gar-time to fight the national Jaycees decision to keep women out.

Of the 6,000 Jaycees in the state, between 350 and 500 are women, and 55 of the state's 165 chapters have women officers.

Some officials said Sunday's decision was a compromise between factions favoring withdrawal from the national group over the issue of women membership, and members supporting the national vote keeping the organization all male.

Putting organizational unity above the question of female membership, some members of all-male chapters in Massachusetts remained silent on the issue.

Membership of women has been a major issue with the Jaycees since 1975 when a national convention voted against allowing women to join. Under a local option three-year pilot program, women have been allowed in Massachusetts, Alaska and the District of Columbia, But in June, the Jaycees convention voted to terminate that program.

While the vote may extend the deadline to allow women officers to serve out their terms, J. Terryl Bechtol, a national vice president from Pensacola, Fla. said he doubted whether it would have much effect on the Jaycees nationally. "It might be a big issue up here, but in the South, where the Jaycees are strongest, the feeling is that this is an all-male organization," he said.

Meanwhile delegates from chapters with women members made plans to wage the fight outside the formal Jaycee organization and scheduled a meeting for Aug. 24 in Marlboro.

Delegates are considering setting up a holding company whereby women would belong to one organization and men to another, but all would belong to the Massachusetts Jaycees, said Ron Lamothe, executive director of the Massachusetts Jaycees.

Carter seeks 'political hay' in farm prices

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, seeking to make political hay out of rising farm prices, flew to Missouri today to address a farmers' convention.

He was expected to reiterate the administration's message that farmers' income is up 25 percent this year, a figure White House domestic policy adviser Stuart Eizenstat repeated in a television interview Sunday.

With farm prices up and last winter's militant "farm strike" all but dead, Carter's advisers felt the timing right for the trip to Columbia, Mo., to address the 61st annual convention of the Midcontinent Farmers Association.

'The president has not given a strictly farm speech since he's been in office, and we thought that it would be a propitious time to do so," said presidential spokesman Rex Granum.

Association spokesman Jack Hackethorn predicted a warm welcome for Carter from the 9,000 to 10,000 persons expected to attend the convention at the University of Missouri field house.

The 165,000-member organization, composed of several farmer-owned cooperatives, is generally considered middle-of-the road politically. Hackethorn said few of the federation's members joined the militant strikers even before the protest movement collapsed with the coming of the spring planting season and rising farm prices.

"Everybody seems to be pleased and excited," Hackethorn said in a telephone interview.

He said MFA members feel Carter, the first sitting president to visit Columbia since native Missourian Harry S. Truman, is doing "very well right now.'

"Six months ago there was a lot of complaining. But now cattle prices are up. Hog prices are holding their own. Dairy prices are up. Soybeans are up. Wheat's up some, and so's corn. The only thing that's not up is cotton. Crops look good.'

"The farm strike is dead," said Mark Abels, spokesman for Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., who re-layed the MFA's invitation to Hackethorn said some members who raise cattle have made "a lot of noise" about Carter's decision to allow a relatively modest rise in beef imports, but he said the cattlemen weren't suffering.

He said current cattle prices are 'pretty good,' and added that Carter's move seems to have quieted a potential consumer protest about skyrocketing retail beef prices.

Nine persons were hospitalized in good condition today at the Naval Regional Medical Center on Guam, authorities said.

Joseph, Adm. David Cruden, commander of naval forces in the Marianas Islands, and Adm. Neal Clements, chief engineer of the Pacific Fleet, were among those treated and released.

Two other Interior Department officials, Deputy Undersecretary Wallace Green and Ruth Van Cleve, director of territorial affairs were listed in good condition. Adrian Winkel, the department's high commissioner for the Northern Marianas, was treated and released.

The pilot, Capt. Edward Estes, commanding officer of the Naval Air Station on Guam, was hospitalized in good condition.

Initial reports said Guam Gov. Ricardo J. Bordallo was aboard, but the Navy said later he was not on the plane.

The C-117 piston-powered aircraft lost power in one engine and made a controlled ditch landing about 16 miles from Guam, said Lt. Anthony Hilton. The craft broke into two pieces when it plunged into the water.

A B-52 from Anderson Air Force Base on Guam was flying overhead and spotted survivors in the sea. Its crew members threw red dye into the water to mark off the area for rescuers from the Navy and Coast Guard.

The plane was bound for the Yap Islands, about 575 miles southwest of here, and also carried members of the musical band of the Marianas Naval

ABC Network accused of staging scenes in documentary on gangs

By MALCOLM N. CARTER

NEW YORK (AP) - A muffled cry is heard, a chair tumbles through the air, a youth gang pummels a youngster to the ground. The ABC camera jerks down a broken and forgotten street, recording for a news documentary the seemingly random violence of a slum.

The scene - presented as reality was viewed in 10.5 million homes across the nation last June 28. But was it reality?

The loose-knit Black Producer's Association has complained to the Federal Communications Commission it was not, that ABC staged this and other scenes in "Youth Terror: The View from Behind the Gun.'

With purported evidence from Hugh A. Hill, a freelance production associate on the program, the complaint makes the accusation that ABC misled the public and violated journalistic ethics.

ABC says it had arranged with some youths to follow them through a "typical" day and that they were asked to do what they normally do.

While it is generally recognized that the mere presence of a camera can be enough to influence a person's behav-ior, Hill says the producers went too far by asking the gang members to

"If I preferred a network job, I would have stayed at NBC," he comments.

While ABC contends that Hill has embarked on an "intensive" and "vindictive" campaign against the program, the Dartmouth College graduate claims the Black Producer's Association started the ac-

The group is described as 30 independent producers who organized last April, paying dues but no specified amount. It has no regular office space and its telephone is answered by a non-profit community organization called the Children's Arts Carnival.

In a July 28 letter to the FCC, the association claimed upwards of $50 was lent to some of the youths and said "Youth Terror" fails to say that many were no longer involved in "criminal behavior."

Among other things, it accused the network of having the youths recreate past exploits and said there is "strong evidence" that events were staged. The letter specifically referred to the gang violence and the firing of a gun from a tenement window.

"The program was an example of sensationalist reporting which does not build bridges through information and understanding," it said.

Saying it was always concerned about deliberate falsification, distortion or staging of news, the FCC asked for documentation. That bundle of tapes and statements was being prepared by the association.

It is not clear, however, whether any investigation can be conclusive. One thug prominent in the broadcast, for example, denied that ABC put him up to the violence, then recanted the denial and then - according to ABC recanted the recantation. Still, a youth called "Blue" tells Hill on one tape that production associate Richard Kagan and Ms. Whitney urged him to "make it look good" while fighting. "I made believe I was punching him hard," Blue recounts, and "Alberto" says he actually volunteered to be the gang's victim:

We were having fun. Both Kagan and his producer emphatically deny such talk. "Nobody told these gang members to fight, Kagan says.

A viewer might conclude, from the youths' boasts and apparent self-consciousness on the program, that indeed they were performing for the camera on occasion. But did they fight on their own or not?

Although Hill says in his statement that he heard Ms. Whitney ask for "a little action," the producer says she did not have to.

"I do not remember saying that. I cannot conceive of saying that," she says. "I remember quite specifically saying, 'Do what you normally do.'

She says violence "happens all the time, so why bother staging it? But the important point is that we do not do those kinds of things."

Says associate producer Marcia Leslie: "I don't know whether they were performing for us, whether they were performing for themselves, whether it was theater of the street ... It was frightening. It really was."

Reporting it has received a number of letters about the raw language on "Youth Terror," the FCC says it will review the association's documentation "very carefully."

Senators again wrestling over natural gas pricing

By CARL C. CRAFT

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senators are wrestling again over natural gas pricing and preparing for a round on income tax cuts while the House moves toward a showdown on whether to extend the time for states to act on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution. Here is the status of major legisla-

Energy While new trouble is emerging for the proposed congressional compromise on natural gas pricing, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., says he will keep pushing for action on the long-delayed energy legislative package.

"It would be ridiculous, absolutely ridiculous, after having spent 14 months of grueling labor on this No. 1 issue that the thing would fall apart and no agreement be reached," Byrd said Saturday.

Senate-House negotiators had produced a compromise plan for taking federal price controls off newly found, domestically produced natural gas in 1985, with annual 10 percept price hikes until then.

However, on Friday, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., announced he would withhold his signature from the draft report of the negotiators because he said he believes it contains some deviations from terms of the agreement which the Senate-House team had reached earlier this year. His backing was important because the negotiators were sharply split and the compromise had mustered only a bare majority of support. The natural gas pricing feature

Taxes

The next step in congressional action on reducing income taxes is up to the Senate, where consideration is set to begin in the Finance Committee on

The House passed a $16.3 billion tax-cutting version last week after rejecting rival alternatives including a Carter-backed $18.1 billion tax reduction package and a Republicansponsored plan for a one-third slash in personal tax rates over three years.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who heads the Finance Committee, is expected to press for enlarging the amount of the tax cuts to the $20 billion range.

As approved by the House, for example, the bill would cut taxes next year by $146 for a typical family of four with annual income of $20,000, by $25 for a married couple making $17,-500, and by $71 for a single person at

The Senate is working on legislation, opposed by Carter, which eventually would provide taxpayers with a tax cut of $250 per pupil attending a private elementary or secondary school and up to $500 to help offset the cost of college tuition.

In June, the House passed a similar measure to provide tax cuts of up to $250 against the cost of coffege tuition and $100 against private elementary and secondary school tuition.

Equal Rights With the House scheduled to vote this week, Carter has given a boost to backers of an extension of time for states to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

He reiterated his support for the proposal when he met with a group of lawmakers at the White House last

Carter said, "The failure of the Equal Rights Amendment to pass would send a signal to all the state legislatures and even to the Congress itself, to the people of our country, that we are not concerned about women's rights." The House Judiciary Committee is recommending that the deadline for states to act on the ERA be extended from March 22, 1979, to June 30, 1982, and that Congress not allow states that have already ratified it to withdraw their approval.

There have been no previous requests for a time extension on ratification of a constitutional amend-approval of ERA. Thus far, 35 have approved it and legal fights developed in some states where moves were made to rescind approval. Budget

Fiscal 1979, the government's next budget year, begins Oct. 1 and Congress must settle before then on final figures for federal spending, taxing and the deficit.

Preliminary targets call for spending $498.8 billion, collecting $447.9 billion in tax revenue and operating at a deficit of $50.9 billion.

But attempts are being made in Congress to reduce the deficit. The House Budget Committee wants it lowered to $43.7 billion, while the Senate Budget Committee is suggesting Meantime, the lawmakers are putting together the 13 major appropriations bills that provide the money for federal operations in fiscal 1979.

Last week, the House passed and sent to the Senate a record $119 billion defense spending bill, the largest such appropriation in history. New York City

Congressional compromise legislation providing New York City with federal guarantees of financial aid to help save it from bankruptcy was signed into law last week by Carter during a ceremony in New York.

It authorizes up to $1.65 billion in long-term bond guarantees and lets the city use $325 million for shortterm borrowing needs. Consumers

Legislation creating a consumer cooperative bank, capitalized with $300 million and authorized to borrow in private money markets, was sent to

Carter by Congress last week. Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said it would increase consumers' economic power in the marketplace.

Urban The Senate Finance Committee gave its approval last week to a plan for continuing to send anti-recession money from the federal government to state and local governments. This so-called counter-cyclical revenue sharing system pumps federal funds to areas of high unemployment.

Alaska land measure threatens many prospectors' way of life

EDITOR'S NOTE - Earl Pilgrim likes to think that he's what Alaska is all about. A prospector, explorer, pio-neer — he now finds his way of life threatened by a bill designed to protect the environment. But the Earl Pilgrims think what it will really do is abolish the sourdoughs.

By G. MICHAEL HARMON

STAMPEDE CREEK, Alaska (AP) The people who've lived their lives in Alaska wonder why Congress can't leave room for the Earl Pilgrims. Up on the antimony claim he's been mining here for 40 odd years, Pilgrim wonders the same thing.

"I made my first trip across this country in 1923 with a pack horse and a young wife," says Pilgrim, an 86and heart. "The pack horse and the wife are gone, but I'm still here. I plan on staying until I decide to re-

Tough talk comes easy for an authentic sourdough like Pilgrim who got his first look at Alaska in 1915 from the bottom of a gold mine. But even the toughest talkers - and there are a lot in Alaska these days acknowledge that Pilgrim's way of life is in danger of losing its only remaining outpost in North America.

His claim is two miles over a ridge and a river from the northern border of McKinley National Park, a 1.9-million-acre mass of mountain and tundra. The U.S House of Representatives voted this past spring to expand the park's boundaries by 3.7 million acres, including Pilgrim's 20-acre Stampede Mine.

Known as the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act, the bill would protect 120 million acres of federally owned land - an area larger than California - as parks, wildlife refuges, wild and scenic rivers, forests and wilderness areas.

Opposition to the bill has been intense in Alaska. Sen. Mike Gravel has threatened a filibuster in the Senate, and other Alaskans are circulating petitions to secede from the union.

A poll commissioned by Gov. Jay Hammond showed 67 percent of Alaskans oppose the bill. A poll commissioned by the Legislature found 61 percent of Alaskans favored expanding national parks and wildlife refuges, but not at the expense of continued access and development. And the Legislature has approved overwhelmingly a resolution opposing the bill as it is now written.

Few Alaskans deny that their opposition stems from emotion. They fear the bill will hasten the end of the frontier life that lured so many to this beautiful, but inhospitable land.

Most Alaskans also question the bill's premise — that regardless of past uses and potential oil and mineral riches, vast areas should be set aside for the sake of beauty and wild-

Old-timers and newcomers alike recoil at unfettered growth and development as typified by the urban sprawl of Anchorage and Fairbanks. But though they dislike much of what has happened since oil was discovof sweeping government restrictions on land use is even more repugnant. And up on Stampede Creek, Pilgrim typifies the conflict.

The House bill, sponsored Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., recognizes "valid existing rights" and won't automatically throw miners like Pilgrim off their claims. But it would subject them to complex rules which opponents say would have the same

Pilgrim's claim would be among more than 64 million acres designated as wilderness areas where mining and activities like hunting and trapping would be "subject to such restrictions as the secretary deems necessary to preserve the wilderness character of the area." In winter, miners like Pilgrim bulldozers. Under the bill, any movement would require permits approved by both the secretary and Congress. And nowhere does the bill say anythingabout protecting people who just want to live off the land. Pilgrim's nearest neighbor is

George Davies, a 41-year-old Los Angeles real estate executive who spends his summers panning gold from Crooked Creek, about six miles to the northwest. Davies met Pilgrim three years ago on his first trip into the country when he staggered up Stampede Creek half starved after failing to make contact with a bush pilot flying in supplies.

'I was a real mess," Davies recalls. "But Earl didn't even blink a eye. He invited me into his cabin and fed me for several days until we got a plane in.

Aware that his annual adventure will come to a halt if the lands bill passes, Davies stopped by Pilgrim's claim on the Fourth of July weekend to try to buy a homesite.

"Look, Earl," Davies pleaded, "I've heard you say a hundred times about how a man ought to have a piece of land of his own. My friends down in LA think I'm crazy to come up here every year, but I love this

"I don't want any part of your claim. I really don't care about mining. I just want you to sell me a lot. Just a little lot where I can build a cabin."

Davies could get no more than a promise from Pilgrim to "think about it." But the appeal became the centerpiece in a two-day discussion of Pilgrim's life with the land, the creatures that live on it and and treasures beneath it.

The son of a miner, he was born in Durango, Colo., in 1892. First came to Alaska in 1915 during the summer before his senior year at the University of Washington, working at the famed Treadwell Gold Mine across the Gastineau Channel from Juneau. Graduated from the University of Washington the next year with a dethe mid-20s as its first professor of mining. Dissatisfied with academic life, resigned after four years. Hung out his shingle as an independent mining engineer.

Discovered the Stampede Creek antimony deposit in 1937 and purchased the claim shortly after the outbreak of World War II.

With the exception of brief trips outside, he's lived in the isolated. narrow valley ever since. Over the last 40 years, with an undefined number of wives, Pilgrim has turned his claim into a comfortable compound of tin-roofed log structures, including a long, low house, a traditional stilted Alaskan food cache, a large barn-like workshop and a bunkhouse-mess

But the dominant structure is the ore mill, an irregularly shaped, three-story tin-sided structure on the side of the ridge across the creek from his log house.

Inside is a maze of pulleys, belts, gears, crushing machines and water troughs - all powered by one old diesel engine. Pilgrim climbs ladders and tiptoes along narrow catwalks like a circus aerialist.

At the mine's peak during World War II and after, Pilgrim employed up to 20 men to dig antimony ore from a narrow shaft and process it in the mill. Supplies were flown in and the crushed ore flown out from an air strip he built two miles away along the banks of Stony Creek, which forms the northwest boundary of McKinley National Park.

Antimony is used as an alloy to harden other metals and increase their resistance to chemical action. It's used, for example, to make stainless steel and battery plates.

After digging and processing nearly 30 tons of antimony out of the ridge overlooking Stampede Creek, Pilgrim stopped production when the world market for the silvery-white metallic element dropped drastically in the early 1970s. The price is back up to about $1 a pound, and Pilgrim is preparing to dig again.

"This Udall bill has got me all enthused again," Pilgrim said over a breakfast of pancakes made from a sourdough starter he's kept for the last 40 years. "This is my land, and nobody's going to tell me I can't mine it. They're not going to run me out with rules and regulations either.

"I'll be moving ore down the road to the air strip by late August. I'm going to be mining up on top of the ridge above the mill with a bulldozer and a backhoe and down in the creek bed, too. This is still the second richest last summer when Udall's comA whole bunch of them came up here last summer when Udall's committee (the House Interior Committee) was flying all over the country and holding hearings. Some of their eunuchs - I guess they call them aides - came up the mine for a while ... I talked to them and even went up to Fairbanks to testify. But it was like they weren't even listening. I guess it don't make much difference what an old man like

On bureaucrats: "The Park Service people in Alaska are okay. But the guys in Washington are liars. They'll tell you one thing and turn around and do just the opposite. I spend two and three hours filling out a report, and it just disappears. I think they just throw them away and send you another one."

On the proposed McKinley Park expansion: "They just want more land, period. If they had their way, they'd have the whole state. They talk about wilderness. But hell, there ain't no more wilderness. At least not like there was when I came into the state. There ain't no place you can go in this country without finding man's leavings - an oil drum, here, a log cabin

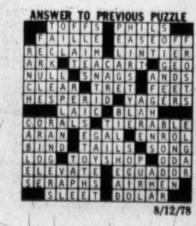

On wildlife: "They say the reason they want to expand the park into this area is to protect critical habitat for moose, caribou and wolves. I ain't seen a caribou in 10 years, and the moose are scarce now, too. The wolves have eaten them all because the environmentalists won't let anybody kill them. One caribou or moose is worth 100 wolves." On living in the bush: "Living out here is like no place else. Everybody helps everybody else, but everybody leaves everybody else alone, too. I don't care if people want to come up here and look around. I like to have people around. But I don't know why the government thinks it's got to stop me and people like me from doing what we're doing."

At the state capitol in Juneau, Rep. Steve Cowper, chairman of a council formed to lobby against the lands bill, says he is mystified why supporters can't compromise to accommodate people like Pilgrim.

"They say they can't make exceptions for access by people who want to go out with a little gold dredge and do their thing because that would discriminate against the big mining companies that need stopping," Cowper says. "But they just don't understand or even want to under-

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - If corporations understood real estate, said Ben Lambert, they could solve a lot of their financing problems and maybe save money too. "But," he said, "it's an enigma to most people."

Even corporate finance officers 'lack a grasp of what can be accomplished with brick and mortar," said Lambert, president of Eastdil Realty, a subsidiary of Blyth Eastman Dillon

Eastdil, based here, calls itself a real estate investment banking firm. It's a big one, raising last year more than $800 million in debt and equity capital, and counseling on another $1.5 billion.

In arranging intricate financing deals, such as the $240 million for purchase of the 77,000-acre Irvine Ranch near Los Angeles, or the $57 million Hyatt Regency Hotel mortgage in Dallas, Lambert has few peers.

Real estate is his vocation, equity financing is his specialty and saleleaseback is his vehicle, each one structured differently through myriad options that serve buyer, seller, lessor, lessee. "Give some tax benefits to the investors, depreciation to others, cash return to a nontaxable investor," says Lambert rapidly.

"Sell the land to a pension fund and then lease it back. Sell the building to a private investor and structure the sale so the tax benefits can go to someone who can use a shelter. What does it all mean? "To the extent a company has an exceptional financial track record - solid earnings, a healthy balance sheet - that company can convert physical assets into bulk dollars," said Lambert. And, he asserts, since equity financing probably runs 6 percent to 8 percent or so, the company saves money in the long run. "So why don't more companies utilize the technique?" Lambert is asked. His frustration, underlain with pride, shows through. "Old-fashioned attitudes," he replies. "Lack of understanding too."

Sale-leaseback cannot always be quickly understood. "It's a science," Lambert maintains. "Like chess. And it's being increasingly complicated

by tax law and accounting changes.' Because of the complexities of selling physical assets and then leasing them back — and sometimes buying them back at a later date — many companies simply don't consider such moves in thir capital plans.

In most companies, said Lambert, the notion "falls between the cracks."

The real estate department, he said, designs and picks sites. The financial vice president is concerned with stockholders, bank relations and the stock listing. And the treasurer "is a balance sheet guy."

But in "sophisticated, contemporary" corporations, Lambert maintains, the capital planners really have to look at real estate as a means of generating fresh capital.

While arrangements differ with every deal, in almost every instance the lessee doesn't disturb its usual lines of credit; it doesn't impinge on the senior debt, such as debentures.

In fact, as if often the case, it can have written into the deal the right to repurchase the assets at the end of a certain period so that, in effect, it doesn't sell the equity either.

That latter point is of concern to many corporation officials, some of whom equate the sale of a plant with the sale by a family of the house it lives in.

In response to this attitude, Lambert reminds company officials that they aren't losing control of their plant any more than a homeowner loses control of his mortgaged home.

"I wouldn't put a mortgage on a house unless I had an idea of how to pay it back," said Lambert, who at the time was in the process of financing the purchase of a new house.

The correct play is different when the ten also is missing. If East has J-10-x-x of clubs in today's hand, South must lose a trump trick. But South can guard against a 4-0 trump break if West has the four trumps. LEADS ACE

Vietnamese big neighbor

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - Vietnam, apparently sounding a warning about its collapsing relations with neighboring China, called on its people today to prepare for "a largescale war of aggression."

The appeal, which did not mention China by name, was made by the Vietnamese Communist Party in a proclamation marking the upcoming 33rd anniversaries of the Aug. 19, 1945. Vietnamese revolution and Ho Chi Minh's declaration of independence from France on Sept. 2, 1945. The statement was carried by the official Vietnam News Agency, monitored here.

It said the Vietnamese had to "fight resolutely to win victory in the southwestern border war and stand ready to fight a large-scale war of aggression." The border war is Vietnam's current conflict with Cambodia, and the reference to a possible "largescale war" apparently stems from Vietnam's troubles with China.

The proclamation said the Vietnamese were celebrating their national days this year "at a time when international reactionaries are working hand-in-glove with imperialism, feverishly opposing and sabotaging the peaceful labor of our people." The Vietnamese have been applying the term "international reactionaries" to the Chinese.

Relations between Vietnam and China have deteriorated since ethnic Chinese residents in Vietnam began fleeing the country in large numbers in May, complaining of economic and political repression. Vietnam has denied the charges.

The two countries also are at odds over China's support of Cambodia in the border war and over Vietnam's alliance with the Soviet Union, which China considers its primary international foe.

"It is generally held that the solution of the issue is still possible despite the fact that Chinese nationals have been discriminated against, ostracized, persecuted and expelled en masse," Hsinhua said.

'Idolatry' noted

MOSCOW (AP) - A "widespread idolatry of sports" seems to be the chief pursuit of the American school system, says a Soviet economist stationed in the United States who sent his 12-year-old son to school in Washington, D.C.

"Americans apparently do not mind the fact that participation in sports leaves youngsters without enough time for doing homework assignments, reading books, visiting museums and engaging in other activities that are essential to cultural and intellectual development," Yuri Malov wrote in the monthly youth magazine Yunost.

Stella Taylor planned marathon entry today

ALICE TOWN, Bimini (AP) - Protected by prayers but no shark cage, Stella Taylor, 46, planned to enter the Atlantic today to try to swim 100 miles from Bimini to Florida.

"I'll pray tonight, and when I'm swimming," she said Sunday on the eve of the swim. "But after 20 hours or so I won't have the ability to pray any more."

Radio communications to the mainland were lost, and the Coast Guard and other officials were der guards, and some 3,500 ethnic o unable to say at midmorning today whether Miss Taylor had begun the swim.

Clad in a red, white and blue print swim suit, goggles and a bathing cap, and covered with petroleum jelly, she planned to begin her grueling swim at Gun Cay, 10 miles south of North Bimini, and hoped to arrive somewhere on the east coast of Florida Tuesday evening.

If Miss Taylor began as planned, she would become part of a dual drama at sea. Some 250 miles to the southwest, 28-year-old marathoner Diana Nyad began her own cross-ocean swim Sunday afternoon, attempting to swim from Cuba to the Florida Keys - about 103 miles.

Miss Taylor spurned any sort of shark cage such as the elaborate device Ms. Nyad is swimming within.

And that, she says, is something she never dreamed was possible.

But then, lots of dreams come true at Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salons, International—and yours could be among them. Here's Ms. Barnhart's story:

Having been a housewife and mother for 10 years, I decided it was time for a change . . . to get out of the house and get a job. Hearing that a Pat Walker's Figure Salon was coming to [my] area, I got very excited and knew that I would enjoy that type of work.

I never liked to admit I had a weight problem, so

I attributed my 33" waist to a large bone structure. I envied all the girls who could wear fitted clothes and especially bikinis. I had always wom long blouses and coverups to hide my large abdomen. When I did diet, I always lost weight in all the wrong places-my arms, legs and bust-but never where I needed it-my waist and tummy.

[At] Pat Walker's I learned I could still eat all the foods I enjoyed without giving up anything except the 27 I've lost . . . The beautiful part of it is that I did it with help from my co-workers and most enjoyably with my patrons. It's nice to know there is a place you can go when you need help with a figure problem and where people understand.

Now that I'm manager of our salon I would like to say, "Thank you, Pat Walker's, for giving me satisfaction in my figure, my career and especially myself.

> WASHINGTON - "Thank God for all these federal energy regulations," sighed a Washington lawyer one muggy afternoon recently. "I've got children who need an education.'

The attorney has good reason to give thanks and little reason to worry about the cost of educating his children. Although a relatively young man, he is clearing more than $250,000 a year and has every prospect of greater earnings in the future.

He belongs to a little-known but fast-multiplying breed known as "energy lawyers," attorneys whose special knowledge of the arcane world of federal energy laws and policies can be worth millions of dollars - sometimes even billions — to their clients in potential sales and profits.

The law always has been a major growth industry in Washington. Out of every 10 males one passes on the street here, it has been estimated, at least one will be a lawyer. The District Bar Association, which by no means includes all the lawyers in the city, has 26,000 members.

Yet the energy lawyers are a breed apart. Unlike such nationally known Washington counselors as Edward Bennett Williams and Clark Clifford, most are virtually unknown outside their narrow field. And, while such lawyer-lobbying groups as the tax specialists and patent attorneys have been around for decades, energy lawyers were almost nonexistent until three or four years ago.

"Ten years ago," one Washington lawyer recalls, "there were only a couple of them in private practice here. Now, there are a couple of hundred."

Far more important than the rapid rise in their earnings, numbers and prestige, however, is the range and intensity of their influence on government decisions.

In representing such clients as major oil companies, independent refiners and producers, electric utilities, natural gas pipeline companies, coal mine operators, and - to a lesser extent - consumers, unions and public power cooperatives, the energy lawyers are involved in decisions onfederal laws, rules and policies that ultimately affect almost everyone in the United States.

The energy crisis that began with the Arab oil embargo in 1973 presented the federal government with enormous problems: how to cushion the economic impact of huge price increases, how to curb dependence on foreign oil, how to wean Americans from their wasteful habits and how to expand domestic oil and gas production. At the same time, there was pressure to reduce pollution, improve strip-mining practices, increase worker safety and prevent environ-

sponded with a torrent of new laws, rules, regulations, policies and policy proposals

'There is no feasible way to determine how many energy regulations there are," one Department of Energy spokesman confessed recently. You'd need a computer for it." One compendium of federal rules - and not a complete one - runs to more than 2,800 pages.

At every stage in the consideration. adoption and implementation of almost every rule, law or legislative proposal, the energy lawyers have been involved. What do such lawyers

Joseph A. Califano, who represented small oil refiners and earned $505,-490 in legal fees in the year before he quit private practice to become secretary of health, education and welfare, wrote in the book "Verdicts on Lawyers" that "the Washington lawyer is both counselor and lobbyist; he spends more time and energy on Capitol Hill and in the halls of the Federal Trade Commission than in any court-

According to its practitioners, the key to practicing law in washington is access to persons who can quickly provide information important to clients and access to officials who can take action on a client's problems.

Unlike the visiting businessman, the Washington-based lawyer may have worked in the agency relevant to his client's problems and may actually have written the regulation he is now trying to modify. He is likely to know which are the important governmental bells and which cords will ring them.

Successful Washington lawyers often have served in important government posts and a government official knows that such persons are rejected at possible peril.

When Washington lawyer Clark Clifford - a former secretary of defense, White House aide and past and current adviser to presidents - calls the Interior Department solicitor on an oil matter, his call will be returned promptly, regardless of the political party in power.

A prominent Washington lawyer can get an easier hearing than someone calling from Indianapolis," Interior Department solicitor Leo Krulitz said.

Among the most successful energy lawyers are Duke Ligon and David Wilson, members of the Washington office of the Houston-based firm of Bracewell and Patterson. Each was a high-ranking official in the Federal Energy Administration during Gerald R. Ford's presidency.

So many attorneys have left government service for private practice in the energy field that federal officials are often at a disadvantage. Whereas three years ago it was often the private attorneys who had trouble understanding the rules and regulations, "Now the tables are turned," says Wilson, the former energy agency counsel. 'Now there are people on the outside of the government who understand how things are run and the history of energy decisions much better than people in government," he

For a young lawyer with experience in government energy matters, the financial attractions of private practice here are almost irresistible.

A Washington energy lawyer in his mid-30's who has been a partner in his law firm for several years "has an easy opportunity to make a hundred grand," according to Lynn R. Coleman, 38, who recently left private practice to become general counsel of the Energy Department.

It is customary for a talented energy lawyer to bill his clients $100 or $150 an hour, with some charging up to $200 an hour.

Faced with the prospect of such earnings, even government lawyers who regard themselves as foes of the major oil companies and other corporate interests are tempted to cross

After weighing the needs of his two young children, the astronomical prices of Washington housing and other family costs, one such lawyer recently lamented, "It's terrible. I've been fighting the oil companies for five years. But I have to think about my family's future too. How can I afford to stay in the government?" So enormous are the sums of money involved in energy that a small change in the wording of a government regulation or a piece of legislation can mean millions of dollars gained or lost by producers, marketers and others. To understand what skilled lawyers can do for their clients, consider the federal controls on domestic crude oil prices. The government, in the hope of achieving various worthy goals, has permitted some domestic crude to be sold at world market prices while other domestic oil must be sold at less than half the world price. Which price applies to what oil is determined by a series of extremely complicated federal regulations. A small difference in the fine print of a definition, an official interpretation or a decision on enforcement policy can determine whether a producer is able to charge the higher price. What the energy lawyers do is use their access to government officials, their influence and their expertness to try to shape not only broad policy decisions but also the fine print of federal regulations in ways favorable to their clients.

Scientists announce progress with energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — We smith about ancient alchemists dreaming of turning lead into gold. Fet we are spending billions of dollars to turn water into something more precious to us than gold — energy.

The dream of limitless energy from a fuel supply that can't be embarged has scientists doing things that seem as much like alchemy as they do modern science.

"It is not a breakthrough," said Jim Bishop, cautioning against published reports to the contrary. Saying that much more research is needed, he added that the latest Princeton work. "is a significant development" that confirms earlier predictions.

Fusion is a way of freeing tre dous amounts of energy by forcing together the nuclei of light atoms such as hydrogen, just as the sun itees. Scientists are using two forms of hy-drogen found in water, deuterium and tritium, as fuel.

When the hydrogen nuclei come together — fuse — they form helium and release subatomic particles called neutrons. Energy from this reaction is converted to heat, which is transferred through the wall to generate steam and run power plants.

Today's nuclear power reacturs work on the opposite principle called fission, the separation rather than nium are shattered apart in a chain reaction with other particles, releas-

But a number of scientific brea throughs have to be achieved and many billions of dollars invested before controlled fusion reactors become a reality.

To get large numbers of nuclei to fuse for lots of energy, three condi-

HOUSTON (AP) - After pitching in four different leagues on three levels of baseball this season, 27year-old right-hander Vern Ruhle says he's enjoying his recent success as a Houston Astro.

Larry Monroe, a big righthander, was in the process of sticking it in the Cubs ear on the way to his second victory with a 2-1 lead going into the last of the sixth when the game blew up in his face.

Midland, held to one hit through four innings and showing only four hits after five innings, exploded for 10 runs in the sixth inning, pounding out eight hits while sending 14 batters to the plate to post an 11-2 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox at Cubs Stadium Sunday night.

Winning four out of five from the Sox and 15 of their last 20, the Cubs. open a five-game series at 7:30 to-night against El Paso's long-ball hitting Diablos, who won the first half of the West Division Texas League race and still have hopes of catching the first place Cubs in the second half.

Righthander Jack Ledbetter, 3-4, making his first start since June, showed he was ready to help out down the stretch by pitching six innings of five-hit ball before turning it over to lefty Bob Clark, who turned in three sharp innings of relief to pick up his third save of the season.

STEVE SMITH, who knocked in both Amarillo runs, belted a solo homer to left in the first off Ledbetter to give the Gold Sox a 1-0 lead and the way Monroe breezed through the Cubs in the first four innings, it looked like it might be a long night.

Jim Tracy, who was to crack out three hits and knock in three runs, showed that Monroe was human by breaking up his no-hitter with a third inning single. Then, in the fifth, Greg Keatley doubled and Tracy singled him home to tie it.

Amarillo got it right back in the top of the sixth when Joe Hicks, who wore out Midland pitching during the series by going 10-for-23, singled, took second on a wild pitch and scored on Smith's single to right.

What happened in the home sixth was like one of those Olsen and Johnson Hellzapoppin shows. Ten runs. Steve Macko started it by tripling off the fence in center, Joe Hernandez singled to tie it and before it was over, Tracy had doubled home two runs, Kurt Seibert singled home two more, Eric Grandy singled in a couple and Kevin Drury tripled home two

Tim Kelly finally got the Cubs out, but not before he was victimized for four runs himself.

THE CUBS wound up with 14 hits with Tracy's three leading the way, but Seibert, Hernandez, Grandy and Keatley each had two safeties.

Defensively, the Cubs gave Ledbet-ter and Clark errorless support with shortstop Macko and centerfielder. Hernandez coming up with the game's defensive gems. Macko came in fast on Bill Hallstrom's slow hop-

Judy finds the cure to achin' back, no wins

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — What do you do when you play golf for a living and you have a lower back problem that has been bothering you since 1973 and causes you to come back only two feet on your backsw-

Switch to a new set of irons. That's what Judy Rankin did in sociation $100,000 tournament that concluded Sunday at the North Hills Country Club.

It turned out to be the right cure. Rankin, the leading money-winner on the circuit in 1976 and again in 1977, shot a par-73 on the 6,143-yard course to finish at a 9-under 283, two strokes ahead of Debbie Massey, Rookie of the Year in 1977, and Pam Higgins.

SALLY LITTLE was fourth with 286. Beth Stone had the best round in the windup of the 72hole classic, a 4-under-69 and that resulted in a deadlock for fifth with veteran Kathy Whitworth at 288. The 33-year-old Rankin, who hails from Midland, Texas, only revealed her switch to the new irons after the victory that was worth $15,000 and raised her current earnings to $49,360.

That is a far cry from the $150,734 she collected in 1976 or the $122,890 earned last year. "I had some changes made in my old irons exactly one year ago," explained the 5-foot-31/2, 110-pounder. "It was right after this same tournament. "Once the work was completed, I never questioned it. I assumed the clubs were the same. Things had gotten so bad, however, that I had to make a change and I asked for a new

They arrived in time for the pro-am here on Wednesday. I didn't know what they weighed and I didn't want to know. I just played."

RANKIN, WINDESS this season after five victories last year, had such horrible showings as 53rd in the US Open, 49th in the Orange Blossom Classic at St. Petersburg and 44th in the Sun Star Classic at Los Angeles.

"The changes I had made with the old clubs dealt with weight, not the grooves or anything like that," continued Rankin, now in her 17th year on the tour. "The clubs never felt bad, but the consistency wasn't there. Something had to be done."

What about the back problems that developed in 1973 in a come-from-behind win over Laura Baugh? Rankin made a point of mentioning them on Saturday after shooting a 3-under-par 70 to maintain her hold on the top spot.

"My back is alright," was the reply of the St.Louis native who was regarded as one of the most consistent players on the tour. "I don't have the mobility I once had. I'm not as free as I once was, and I'm not as young,

"I've played in some tourna-ments this year that I didn't want to play in. It's been discouraging. You don't know whether to rest or chase the dragon. I'm not famous for practice, but I've done more of it than ever before. It's finally paid dividends.'

So did the new set of irons.

Do you think I got a fair chance?'...Allen asks

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) -George Allen, normally an intense and animated man, looked and sounded tired and forlorn. "It's an unbelievable thing," he said, his voice trailing off.

"Do you think I got a fair chance ... two preseason games?"

Allen, fired Sunday as coach of the Los Angeles Rams by team owner Carroll Rosenbloom and replaced by assistant Ray Malavasi, said: "I'm not bitter. I'm hurt.'

The sudden and dramatic move came after the Rams had lost their first two preseason contests, the opener 14-7 to New England then 17-0 to San Diego last Saturday.

Allen was hired just last February to return to the team that he'd coached from 1966 to 1970, having been fired twice and rehired once by-Dan Reeves, the Rams' late presi-

ALLEN SAID he told Rosenbloom that he was making a mistake.

"I told him what I have to offer is what the Rams need," said Allen, 56. "There were several things he said, that he thought we wouldn't win if I continued as the coach, and that I would work better in the framework of an organization where I'd be general manager and coach.

"All I know is that I did everything in my power, did it the way it should be done, did it my way. We worked hard and were committed to the program we've used successfully all these years and I could not change that if I was to live with myself." Allen's "way" was not Rosenbloom's way. In a prepared statement, the Rams' owner said: "It is my feeling that I have made a serious error in judgement in believing George Allen could work within our

"It has been extremely difficult for him to adjust to a new situation.

Unquestionably he is a fine coach and administrator. His record speaks for itself. However, I'm certain it's in the best interest of all concerned to make this change at this time.'

ROSENBLOOM would not talk in specifics about the move, but a number of factors apparently were involved. Some, like the two lackluster exhibition showings, were obvious, others more subtle.

There had been a certain amount of unrest in the Rams' Fullerton State training camp, with some players unhappy with Allen's long practices and rah-rah psychology. Five players walked out at one time or another, although contract disputes out of Allen's control were the major prob-

However, that lack of control was apparently another factor in the firing. Allen, who was general manager and coach of the Redksins for the past seven seasons, may have wanted

"George Allen is a fine gentleman and a damn good football coach," said Malavasi, 47. "It (getting fired) happens to nearly everyone. It's happened to me."

Malavasi was serving as offensive coordinator under Allen, although he'd run the Rams' defense for the five years Knox was at the Los Angeles helm. Malavasi, who's spent 23 years in the pro coaching ranks, said he plans some immediate changes, including length of practice sessions.

"I have some ideas about the prac-tice schedule and we might make some changes defensively," he said. "We're going to cut the practice time down, but if we have to work longer, we will work longer.

"You have to have a good team, good coaches, good ownership and along with all that, good luck."

With surprising candor, Malavasi said he didn't believe Allen got a fair shake, commenting, "If you're going to hire him, you have to let him go (his own way). I don't like to see this because the same thing could happen to me in two weeks.

The duo, paced by Steve's blistering 5-under par 67 on Sunday, finished with 204 points.

Dr. Al Langford and Al, Jr. also pulled away from the field in the final round to win the first flight championship with 176 points. They were tied with Ed Anderson and Ed, Jr. after the first round, but that team faded in the final 18 holes of play. Bob and Tim Boyd finished second in the first flight with 167 points while Dick and Greg Robinson were in third with 164.®

Walt and Stewart Laufer, first-day leaders in the second flight, held off a strong rally by Ted Fergeson and Ted, Jr. to win the championship in that bracket. The Laufers tallied 137 points in the two-day tournament, a single point better than the Fergesons who trailed the winners by four points heading into the final round. Jee and David Stickney were third with 123 points.

The tournament was set up on a point system, with one point awarded for each double bogey, two points for a bogey, three points for par, four points for birdies and five points for eagles.

Stingley critical, but shows signs of overcoming paralysis

(AP) - Injured New England Patriots' wide receiver Darryl Stingley is in guarded condition in the intensive care unit, but "has some sensation over his entire body," a hospital spokesman said today.

An Eden Hospital spokesman said that Stingley was not paralyzed and was moving his right arm. His wife was by his bedside Sunday when he received a flurry of visitors, including Oakland Raiders' Coach John Madden.

Stingley, 26, was feared at least partially paralyzed Saturday night after a head-on collision with Oakland Raiders' back Jack Tatum while trying to catch a pass. The Patriots won 21-7.

tened Friday night's 2-1 Yankees victory to 51/2 innings and made a swamp of what ordinarily was the Memorial Stadium outfield. The clubs got help from the weatherman Saturday, but none from the electricians as three power failures delayed the Orioles' 6-4 victory by 76 minutes.

SUNDAY, FORSAKING the scuba gear and miner's hats that might have been more appropriate, the teams tried again. Baltimore scored

"The big thing was the umpires were consistent. Thank goodness we had the same crew," he said. On July 31, the same group waited 2 hours, 20 minutes before resuming play in an Orioles' game against the Brewers.

That contest was suspended by curfew and completed two days later, a fact duly noted by Lemon. The manager proposed that games like Sunday's be treated the same way. "When you have a curfew game, it's treated as a suspended game and you pick it up from there," he said. "What's the difference?" There was no difference in the field, said Weaver. "It was the same as the other night. No better, no worse.' Umpire Don Denkinger added, "It was just like it was Friday night. The field was unplayable. It was soaked before the game even started and the rain made it 10 times worse." Twins 3-2, A's 1-1 Butch Wynegar's eighth-inning single delivered the deciding run, backed a five-hitter by Roger Erickson and capped Minnesota's sweep of Oakland. The A's wasted a seven-hitter by Mike Norris, recently promoted from the minors. "I really wanted this game because it was my first start and (A's owner) Charley Finley was in the stands," said Norris. "I've had hassles with Charley before and I wanted him to see me pitch well." The Twins took the opener on a seven-hitter by Gary Serum and an unearned third-inning run. Rod Carew bunted for a hit, took second when catcher Jim Essian threw wildly past first and scored on the second of Mike Cubbage's three singles.

Blue Jays 3, Royals 2 Bob Bailor went four-for-five, drove in one run and scored the game-winner from second base on a 10th-inning forceout to send Toronto past Kansas Bailor opened the 10th with a single and advanced on Rico Carty's single. One out later Otto Velez grounded to third baseman Jamie Quirk, whose throw to second forced Carty. But second baseman U.L. Washington hesitated on the play and Bailor never stopped running. He narrowly beat the throw to the plate. Red Sox 4, Brewers 3

Carlton Fisk slapped a bases-loaded single past third baseman Sal Bando in the 10th inning to help Boston hand Milwaukee its eighth loss in nine games.

Jerry Remy opened the 10th with a grounder Bando couldn't handle. Jim Rice beat out a single that also gave Bando trouble, then Dwight Evans was walked to load the bases for Fisk.

Earlier, Evans had hit his 22nd homer. Tigers 10, White Sox 2

Lou Whitaker hit a three-run, inside-the-park home run, Steve Kemp drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Rusty Staub hit his 19th homer of the year to carry Detroit which has won eight of 10 — past Chicago and hand the White Sox their ninth loss in 11 games. Mariners 4, Angels 1 Craig Reynolds had a two-run second-inning double to lead Seattle. Lyman Bostock went four-for-four and drove in California's run.

Ranger manager Billy Hunter said, "We're getting decent pitching, clutch hitting and good defense ... We're playing very well right now.

IN THE opener, Kurt Bevaqua's seventh inning homer, his fourth, made the difference. "It was the same pitch I struck out on my previous time at bat," said the Ranger third baseman who hit a curve into the leftfield stands.

MidTran board OKs using federal funds

The MidTran board of directors today agreed that federal funding for the transportation system is "a reasonable way to go.

HOME EDITION

The board voted to gather information about budgeting and available federal funding for presentation to the Midland City Council, probably at that group's Sept. 12 meeting.

Board president John Ingram told the board inquiries about local funding for the non-profit corporation produced no hope of success.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. agreed with General Motors consultant Paul Forney that it is likely MidTran will operate in the red, and expressed fears that subsidy of the system could create a drain on the city's budget.

Forney told the board "several hundreds of thousand dollars" from the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration already have been appropriated for Midland.

The federal funding can be used for 80 percent of the capital outlay and 50 percent of the operating deficit, Forney said.

The state would pay for 13 percent of the capital outlay, leaving only 7 percent for local matching funds, but the 50 percent matching funds for the operating deficit would have to come from local sources exclusively, he

Forney outlined a plan of operation to the board which calls for initial purchase of eight 12- to 15-person vans. One of the vans would be equipped with a wheelchair lift, he

From 6:30 to 9 a.m. and 3:30 to 6 p.m., most of the vans would operate a "subscription service" carrying passengers to and from work in the Midland Regional Airport area and Industrial Park, said Forney.

A "demand responsive" system, in which people could arrange in advance for single trips to any location in the city, would operate from 8 a.m. to 3: 30 p.m., with most of the MidTran vans involved in that service from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Forney said.

He said the latter service would be available to all Midlanders, regardless of income level.

Planning on the van pool and car pool aspects of MidTran has fallen slightly behind schedule, Forney

The chef's special turned out to be Odessa property tax notices -- burned to a crisp.

The Concerned Taxpayers Committee decided to demonstrate to the city fathers their displeasure over recent property revaluations

Ray Britton, an Odessa businessman and spokesman for the group. told 75 or so persons gathered at the south entrance of city hall that California's Proposition 13 initiator Howard Jarvis had sent a telegram that "expressed his sympathy with our cause.'

Britton said the group is now "engaged in a struggle," and that the group is indignant about the misuse of the power to tax

Britton then put a flaming match to a pile of tax notices which had been placed in the cooker, while others tossed their notices into the fire.

A spokesman for the group said it is* concerned about new property evaluations, details concerning the city's $5 million surplus fund, the nature of discrepencies between the city's evaluations and those done by Pritchard and Abbott for the school district and the county, and the amount of experience of city staffers who served as

Protests began last week when about 400 citizens said the revaluation meant tax increases of from 50 percent to 500 percent for some property

City councilmen have said the revaluation was necessary to equalize property values. They have advocated a cut in the tax rate for next year, but opponents of the revaluation say a tax cut is not good enough and add that they want to scrap the program

A scheduled meeting Monday of the city Board of Equalization in Odessa was postponed when it was learned that a published notice of the meeting, as required by law, had appeared a day later than planned.

The British call it a holiday, wheth-

Either way and by either name, it's an escape.

So, that's exactly what Roustin' About has been up to for the past two weeks: nothing much.

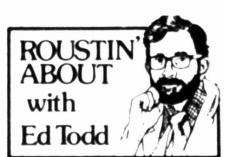

It was, with intent, an escape into the past: a sentimental journey. More than anything, it was long-in-coming visits with kinfolks. It's good really to appreciate what so many take for granted: relatives.

And this excursion called a vacation was, among much more, literal wanderings on the old homeplace in northeast Texas. Time is taking it away from reality; unlike memories, it's crumpling. The familiar is mostly in the mind's eye.

Analysts charge 120-day period for utility intervenors inadequate

By JIM STEINBERG

Two public utility analysts have charged in interviews with The Reporter-Telegram that the 120-day time limit for intervenors in rate cases to prepare their arguments is totally inadequate to properly study the particular company involved.

Those comments were made prior to the start today of hearings in Austin before the Public Utilities Commission on Texas Electric Service Co.'s request for a 24.4 per cent rate increase. If granted, the higher rates would net the company an additional $110 million in revenue

"The deadline for the preparation of these cases is impossibly short," said Jack Hopper of Austin, editor of Southwest Utilities Watch, who also is a frequent expert witness on behalf of cities in cases before the Public Utilities Commission.

Echoing Hopper, Pat A. Loconto, an analyst for Touche Ross & Co. of Dallas, said that "being under the statutory restraint" of the deadline period makes it impossible to delve nto the quagmire of financial data of utility companies.

Loconto is one of two Touche Ross & Co. consultants who have prepared a study of TESCO for more than 20 cities - including Midland - entering the rural rate case as interven-

"What is really needed is a thorough study of the Texas Utilities Co. (the holding company for TESCO, Dallas Power & Light Co. and Texas Power & Light Co.), but there is no way to approach this under the gun of the statutory constraints," Loconto said

Under the current PUC regulations, intervenors must file their arguments in a rate case within 120 days after the application for an increase is

Hopper criticized the 21/2 year-old PUC for not allowing the lag time to stretch the full 185-day limit of the law and for not asking the Legislature to extend this time period.

He also said the PUC was deficient in not conducting its own audit of the firms it regulates.

"Occasionally they will send one of their auditors to the firm that audits a utility — and you know who they work for. The PUC should really get into the audit process themselves, particuarly to check out the wholly-owned subsidiaries of TUC, such as Texas Utilities Fuel Co., which sells fuel to the three utilities," Hopper said.

"Actually, I think they (the PUC) are doing the best job they can with the people they have," Hopper said.
(The PUC employs 166 persons and has an annual budget of $3.5 mil-

WASHINGTON (AP) - A pathologist working for the House assassinations committee told the panel today that the bullet that killed Martin Luther King Jr. could have been fired from a brushy area in a rooming house vard as well as from a bathroom window in the house. Dr. Michael Baden said the medical findings are not sufficiently precise to eliminate either site. He and two other forensic scientists hired by the committee reviewed the autopsy findings, and ordered a variety of new tests to trace the path of the bullet.

Evidence gathered when the civil rights leader was assassinated on April 4, 1968, pointed to the bathroom window of the rooming house across the street from King's Memphis, Tenn., motel as the place where the killer fired the shot.

Witnesses told of seeing a man running from the bathroom carrying a bundle seconds after the murder. The man was identified as James Earl Ray, who at first pleaded guilty to the slaying and then recanted.

Baden, chief medical examiner of New York City, said there was no medical examination possible in 1968 and none today that could establish with certainty where the shot origin-

King died less than an hour after a bullet severed his spine and three major blood vessels.

Working with Baden were Dr. John I. Coe. chief medical examiner of Hennepin County, Minn., and Dr. Joseph H. Davis, chief medical examiner of Dade County, Fla.

As the hearing opened, committee counsel Robert Blakey said the medical panel was asked to pin down the path of the bullet that felled King and to determine whether it could have been fired from some place other than the bathroom window of a rooming house across the street from King's

Previous evidence pointed to that window as the site of the shot. But Blakey noted, "from eyewitness accounts, there was disagreemeno over the point of origin of the fatal shot."

The new studies were not expected to challenge the basic conclusion that King died after a bullet severed his spine and three major blood vessels. He died less than an hour after being wounded.

But who fired the bullet remained a matter of controversy after the committee's first session Monday at the start of a week of public hearings on

Mark Lane, perhaps the most prominent exponent of an assassination conspiracy theory, asserted to

Ray, who soon recanted the plea, is scheduled to give his sworn account to the committee Wednesday. Under tight security, federal marshals brought Ray to Washington Monday night from Tennesse's Brushy Mountain State Prison, the prison warden

Lane charged today that a committee investigator eavesdropped on telephone conversations an undercover agent had with Lane and with Jerry Ray, James Earl Ray's brother.

Lane said he also has his own tape recordings of the committee investigator, Conrad Baetz, instructing the undercover agent, Oliver Patterson, to make false statements to The New

Lane made the assertions on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America"

The conspiracy theory also found support Monday from the Rev. Raiph David Abernathy, King's friend and successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Abernathy told reporters he is con Abernathy total repositions vinced there was a conspiracy and suspects FBI involvement. But he suspects FBI involvement for his beliefs.

said he has no proof for his beliefs.

Abernathy, however, avoided the conspiracy chaim in his testimony as the committee's first witness. Under questioning about the PBI, Abernathy criticized the agency's alleged harassment of King and other civil rights leaders.

He noted that King distrusted the

Pathologist gives panel new theories on King killing

FBI and its director, J. Edgar Hoover.

The SCLC staff received numerous threats against King and "we would report some of them (to the FBI) for the record but King and his aides never saw the FBI as a source of protection," Abernathy testified.

He said he does not remember FBI agents questioning him about the events in Memphis. But the FBI said agents did interview Abernathy. Officials declined to elaborate Abernathy told the committee he believes King was forewarned of lthe assassination and told reporters later he believes the FBI gave King that information "both to warn him and to threaten him.

But again, Abernathy said he has nothing to support his conclusions but speculation and unspoken impressions from the man he called his dearest friend

'We were inseparable. He died in my arms," the husky 52-year-old minister said quietly as he traced the events, monumental and mundane, which brought King to Memphis to support sanitation workers — mostly poor and black — striking for better

King, Abernathy said, "was in good spirits" although he had been deeply depressed a week earlier when he saw violence erupt in the Memphis civil rights march he was leading. King saw the outbreak as a devastating blow to his gospel of non-violent protest, Abernathy explained.

In fact, he continued, King had turned increasingly introspective during the preceding few weeks.

Abernathy told of awakening late one night to find King missing from the hotel room they shared in Acapul-

He found King on a balcony, troubled and deep in thought as he gazed at a rocky formation in the Pacific

Responding to Abernathy's query, King said the rock was the clue to his reverie and he began singing softly the traditional hymn, "Rock of Ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in

Abernathy said that incident plagued him.

"He became a different person. He was troubled, he was nervous, he became very jittery," Abernathy said.

"At some point, he was frightened. He didn't say anything to me about it. But I believe that somebody had conveyed certain information to him. I think he had received some word from some sources that he was going to be assassinated. King at one point told Abernathy what kind of funeral he wanted and then on the night before his murder. he gave the famous speech which suggested to many that he knew death was near.

"I have been to the mountain top." he said. "And I have seen the promised land.

A Baptist minister, as was King, Abernathy turned to the cadence of the pulpit when the committee asked for his final statement. As if he were exhorting a Sunday morning flock, he preached that the committee must find the truth of the assassination, for "unborn generations await your decision.

Raising his right hand in the familiar gesture of blessing, he intoned, 'May God bless you. May his peace forever rest upon you. I give to each of you my richest benediction. In the name of the Father, The Son and the Holy Ghost, Amen

Ray begins guarded trip

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) - With heavily armed guards looking on, Tennessee's best-known prisoner, James Earl Ray, journeyed from Brushy Mountain State Prison to Washington and a date before the House Assassinations Committee.

Ray, now serving a 99-year sentence for the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is scheduled to testify before the committee Wednes-

The committee is investigating allegations that the civil rights leader may have been the target of a conspiracy or may have been killed by someone other than Ray, who recanted his confession to the murder shortly after pleading guilty in 1969.

Ray began the trip Monday in a state Highway Patrol helicopter, which took him to Knoxville's McGhee Tyson Airport, where the 50-year-old prisoner was escorted aboard a chartered plane for Washington.

Steve Rogers, a photographer from the Oak Ridger newspaper, said the helicopter settled on the baseball field outside the prison compound at 3:30

Shotgun-toting guards lined the road leading to the institution and three men carrying rifles stood on a hill beside the fortress-like facility, from which Ray escaped for more than 54 hours last year. Rogers watched the transfer through a telephoto camera lens. Prison warden Stonney Lane and two guards drove down from the main building and five men, three of whom appeared to be federal marshals. came out of the helicopter. Lane signed a receipt, took it back and Ray, stooping slightly to avoid the spinning rotor blades, boarded. Asked whether he knew where they were headed next, Lane said, "No, they just picked him up in the big whirly bird in the Tsky.'

Man unhappy with second postponement

Likening the U.S. Internal Revenue Service to the Nazi's Gestapo and the U.S. judicial system to Russia's brand of justice, Ruel Frank Brown of Midland today expressed unhappiness with a second postponement of his sentencing in federal court on income tax-related convictions.

"I keep getting the biggest runaround you ever saw," the 38-year-old Brown, a former aircraft mechanic, said just outside the Federal Build-

While Brown was awaiting the sentencing that never came, about 30 placard-carrying tax protesters were demonstrating outside the courthouse. They left after learning of the rescheduled sentencing, indicating they would return Wednesday for the 8:30 a.m. sentencing.

Brown faces a maximum of three years imprisonment and $2,500 in fines on the misdemeanor convictions. He was convicted July 6 on two counts of willful failure to supply tax information to the IRS and on one count of supplying false information to his former employer, Continental

Brown said he expected about 200 tax protestors to demonstrate on his behalf outside the Federal Building during his scheduled sentencing Wednesday morning.

Threat of hotter days in forecast

The mercury threatened the century mark for the first time in two weeks Monday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport recorded a daily high of 97 degrees.

More hot weather was expected today through Wednesday. The weatherman is calling for temperatures to peak in the middle 90s today and Wednesday and to dip near 70 overnight.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the record high for Aug. 14 is 104 degrees set back in 1946. The record low for today is 60 degrees set back in Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast today across a vast section of Texas after a roaming thunderstorm dumped heavy rain in the Pecos area Monday night.

Forecasters called for scattered showers and thunderstorms to break out during the afternoon and evening in East Texas.

Commission approves five-year telephone system funding plan

By LINDA HILL

Midland County commissioners Monday voted to spend $125,837 over a five-year period for a telephone system for the county courthouse.

The Commissioners Court accepted the bid from Communications Corporation of America. At the end of the five years, the county will own the equipment and pay only a maintenance fee and regular rates for lines into and out of the courthouse.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. bid $137,075 for a leased system for five years.

Prior to the vote, the Southwestern Bell representative urged the commissioners to reject both bids and allow Bell to make revisions in the present system.

Also Monday, the commissioners conducted a public hearing on how to spend the $178,000 in estimated federal Revenue Sharing funds for 1978-79. The only public response to the public hearing notice was a letter from the Midland League of Women Voters requesting that a higher priority be given "much-needed social ser-

"People don't give a damn." Com missioner Win Brown said of the apparent lack of interest demonstrated

County Judge Blake Hansen said the county budget for 1979 calls for the following expenditures from Revenue Sharing money: $11,700 for Meals on Wheels, $20,000 for ambulance service, and $5,000 for the elderly nutrition program.

The commissioners said much of the money, including the $676,840 on hand from previous years, is to be used for right-of-way acquisition for the planned north loop around Midland and the north route to Odessa.

In other business, the commissiongs voted their intent to contract with the Human Relations Council, at an initial cost of $1,000, for services in designing and conducting a campaign to determine the need for rental assistance in rural Midland County.

The Court has agreed to undertake such a program, required for receipt of Community Development funds, if a need is demonstrated.

Brown, who has opposed the rental assistance program since it was first discussed, voted against the motion. Hansen announced that the tax assessor-collector, county and district clerks and sheriff met Aug. 11 to reconstitute the county's jury wheel for the coming year.

In a discussion about the budget, Hansen told the commissioners more than $10,000 already has been spent on the capital murder case against Anthony DeWayne Scott, charged in the stabbing death of a liquor store clerk. That amount includes the money spent on reconstituting the jury wheel after Scott's attorneys successfully argued the wheel was not assembled in accordance with state

Hansen said the cost to the county to take the case through district court could approach $50,000. Commissioner Brown said in response to that information, "I'll supply a .38 slug."

Memphis' dusk-to-dawn curfew seems effective

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Rifletoting National Guardsmen protected non-striking firefighters, and 39 people, mostly striking police officers, were arrested for violating a dusk-todawn curfew as Memphis waited out its latest round of labor strife. But despite the dual strikes by lice and firefighters, crime was reported down in the curfew-quieted metropolitan area of 800,000 and fire officials said there was little sign of the widespread arson that marked a firemen's strike five weeks ago. Most of the 18 fire runs made Monday by fire department supervisors and non-striking members of the International Association of Firefighters were described as minor. During a normal weekday, Memphis records an average 66 fires between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Guardsmen accompanied the firefighters, as well as standing watch over fire houses and police precinct The wildcat firefighters' strike showed signs of weakening late Monquick end to the police strike, now in its fifth day.

A federal mediator failed Monday to get city officials and the Memphis Police Association together in an effort to end the walkout

Mayor Wyeth Chandler said the strikers were trying to close down Memphis and that the city was taking applications for their jobs. He said the personnel office had received more than 2,000 applications.

Fire department officials said 13 of the city's 48 fire stations were fully manned with both supervisory personnel and non-striking firefighters.

Fire Director Robert Walker said a steady stream of firemen had called in offering to report for duty. "They called in and said 'We want to come to work,' and we said 'Come on.'

However, Chandler said striking policemen and firefighters were trying to talk sanitation workers, city hospital employees and workers of the city-owned light, gas and water division to join them on the picket

day, but there was no indication of a Ousted commissioner may contest fifth Crocket County showdown

By GUY SULLIVAN

OZONA — Ousted Crockett County Commissioner Jess C. Marley of Ozona said Monday he is "seriously considering" contesting a fifth showdown election between himself and newly elected Sostenes De Hoyos.

De Hoyos beat Marley Saturday in the latest of a series of special elections to determine who represents Precinct 1, a predominantly Mexican-American district with approximately 940 registered voters in southeast Crockett County

De Hoyos won by a margin of 380-348 in the latest episode in a four-year legal fight over district boundaries which have been criticized on the grounds they put almost all the county's Mexican-Americans in the same precinct.

Marley and De Hoyos faced each other in several elections that were challenged on various grounds or which became the subject of law-

County Judge John R. Jones swore De Hoyos into office Monday during a Crockett County Commissioners' Court meeting. "We are seriously considering contesting this election," said Marley. "There were a lot of people who voted on the other side who were challenged at the polls on whether Precinct 1 was their residence. I'm saying I doubt many of the people who voted in Precinct 1 were actually residents of that district."

Marley said he "beat" De Hoyos by five votes in the absentee ballot box. However, he said it appeared he lost the race. "You get beat sometimes. It's just one of those things. A lot of people are encouraging me to contest this election on the basis that there were many people who voted illegally and a lot of people who did not vote because they were intimidated," he said.

The race pitted Marley, a ranchercontractor with 10 years county commissioner experience, against De loyos, an ex-teacher who is a laborer employed by an Ozona area contrac-

"It's been a long time getting here," declared De Hoyos when reached Monday for comment. "It's been a long struggle. He claimed there are many people in Crockett County who are tired of "the way things have been done here. I think people are seeking changes because we have a need for more participation in county government He declined to comment about what time comes," De Hoyos said. De Hoyos said he wants to "represent the people to the best of my abilities." He cited problems in the southeast side of Ozona such as drainage, paving and curbs which he said need to be addressed. The area is predominantly Mexican-American and De Hoyos admitted that's where the majority of his support in the recent election came from.

On the other hand, Marley said, "All of the streets and alleys in my district were paved. There's not a street or alley in Precinct 1 that's not paved. In fact. I've done more work for the south side of town than other areas of the precinct.' He added: "We're waiting to mine if we will contest this election.

There's a very strong possibility we may contest it." De Hoyos said today, "I've been runing against Jess Marley since 1976. I know I have a big job ahead of me. I have to show good faith. It's been a hard campaign, but not malicious. I think if I show good faith the people will respond."

De Hoyos filed suit July 28, 1978, in San Angelo federal disttrict court after losing one election to Marley. He asked $240,000 damages on grounds that Marley and three other Crockett County officials and Marley's wife allegedly conspired to influence the District Judge George Thurmond of

Del Rio ruled the election invalid and ordered another set for June 3. The June election was never held because of a technicality. It was rescheduled for Saturday. When Marley was asked what the election means, he replied,"I just don't know what it means. It will cause some changes. We'll have to wait and see that. The only major issue I'm aware of is that he wanted to boot me out." Marley's term of office expired

Mothers exchange infants after 2-month baby mixup

HAIFA, Israel (AP) - A baby mixup that lasted two months ended today when two tearful mothers reluctantly exchanged infant girls for the fourth time.

The mixup began in mid-June when the two women gave birth at haifa's Ramban Hospital. Each was given the other's baby following a series of mistakes by the maternity ward

When the mixup came to light and attracted national attention, each woman refused to part with the baby she had, and the Ministry of Health and the hospital named committees to investigate.

The hospital committee determined that the babies had been switched three times in the hospital before the mothers were discharged. The first switch, as a result of switched identity tags, gave the mothers the wrong babies. A few days later a nurse realized there had been an error and put things right. Then another nurse, belatedly discovering the earlier mixup, gave the mothers the wrong babies again.

Although the Health Ministry has not completed its investigation, a spokesman for the hospital committee said its findings were conclusive. They were based on blood tests of the babies, all four parents and all living grandparents.

Despite this evidence, it took the committee several hours to convince the mothers to part with the children they had been caring for since June. Finally they agreed, and the switch was made as the two women wept and hugged each other and the babies. The names of the women have not been revealed although one of them gave telephone interviews.

California residents recognized earthquake

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) -Evelyn Stuart knew exactly what was happening. When you feel your chair going over and you see your home shaking up and down, you know what it is you know it's an earthquake.'

But knowing didn't help much. "It was horrible," Mrs. Stuart said of the quake that jolted the Santa Barbara area for 30 frightening seconds Sunday afternoon. About 60 people were injured, a few seriously, and county officials estimated damages at $4.5 million.

More than 70 aftershocks were recorded Monday but most were too small to be felt even by jittery residents of this coastal area of some 200,000 people. Geologists predicted the mini-jolts would continue at least for another day or two.

Santa Barbara County supervisors voted Monday to declare a local disaster area and to urge state government to make a similar declaration, said Jeff Samsom, assistant county administrative officer. State action would make loans and other financial assistance available to homeowners and businesses.

Samsom said-shattered glass, cracked plaster, damaged inventories and broken belongings were common, although few houses suffered major structural damage.

But scores of mobile homes in the Goleta area north of Santa Barbara were damaged when the rolling earth shook them off their supports.

Trailer resident Wayne Linnens said he was asleep on a couch and 'the next thing I knew I was on the floor. My wife fell out of a chair and she was on the floor. I started crawling and she started hollering. About halfway through the thing, felt the trailer come off its jacks and scale, a measure of ground motion as recorded by seismographs. An increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

It measured 5.1 on the Richter

An earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage, 4 moderate damage, 5 considerable damage, 6 severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 8.3.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Associated Press Writer Dan this," said George Post, an operations manager. Sewell covered the Diana Nyad swim from on board the boat "Best Revenge," one of several vessels that accompanied her in her attempt to set a long-distance open water swimming record.

By DAN SEWELL

ABOARD "BEST REVENGE" (AP) - Diana Nyad, crying and pleading to stay in the water despite winds that blew her 40 miles off course and kept her from making headway, abandoned her swim today before getting halfway from Cuba to Key West.

"I can't quit now. I can't quit. You don't understand. Is there another place to go?" Nyad pleaded with her advisers before they called off her attempt at a record 103-mile open-water swim.

"A 50-hour swim won't make it," navigator Rich du Moulin replied.

Ms. Nyad was still stroking strong before she was pulled aboard her escort boat at 7:54 a.m. EDT about 85 to 90 miles southwest of Key West. She had been in the water for about 44 hours.

But she couldn't fight the currents and wind. Du Moulin reported she was making no progress toward On Monday night, her operations manager, Ken

Gundersen, had said she had made it more than halfway and was "coming on strong to Key West," and would not abandon her swim across the Florida Straits despite the problems she had encountered. Gundersen said Monday night that the party had altered its planned course as it tried to cope with waves, winds and the Gulf Stream current. A second swimmer trying to set a record for open water swimming, Stella Taylor, 46, was reported within sight of shore lights early today in her attempt to swim through 100 miles of shark-inhabited waters from the Bahamas to Florida.

Ms. Taylor had reportedly stopped taking solid foods, switching to soft drinks only as she battled seasickness, but a crew member said she was 'going just as strongly as when she left." The swimmer had to climb out of the water three times Monday because of a persistent shark that eventually was shot.

As Ms. Nyad churned steadily through the sea, the swelling became so severe that her tongue protruded from her mouth, Gundersen said. He said she apparently had been brushed by the poisonous tentacles of a jellyfish.

Her crew sent out an emergency call for peroxide and ammonia to counteract the stings.

The swelling was the second crisis in a struggle that began Sunday afternoon when the 28-year-old swimmer entered the water at the Cuban beach of Ortejaso, about 50 miles west of Havana.

She encountered vicious waves her first night out. Salt water washed into her mouth. She retched pitifully. By evening she was screaming at her attendants, "You can't start like this! You can't start like this!"

She was fed every hour. She vomited every hour. Then every half hour. "Why are they doing this to me on my swim?" she sobbed in the darkness. The crew talked of scaling the swim down to 60 miles, just enough to establish a record. Then they talked of quitting.

"I don't think she can hack another nine hours of

James Judge Jr., 26, and his new wife, Margene, 24, were last heard from last Tuesday, when Margene called her mother from Cortez, Colo.

The couple had been honeymooning in southern Colorado when their van apparently was stolen by fugitives from Arizona. The van turned up Friday near Casa Grande, when the Tisons and escaped killer Randy Greenawalt, 29, attempted to run a roadblock in it.

Donald Tison, 20, was killed in that exchange. Greenawalt, along with Ricky Tison, 18, and Raymond Tison, 19 were captured. They had been at large for about two weeks, after allegedly helping their father, Gary Tison, 42, and Greenawalt escape from Arizona State Prison. The elder Tison, also a convicted murderer, still is a fugitive.

Colorado and Arizona investigators are attempting to determine how the escapees got the Judge's van. and what happened to the newlyweds. There was no indication that the couple planned to go to Arizona, so authorities assume at least one of the five men was in Colorado.

'She's crying. She's in bad shape." The crew huddled frantically, then decided to steer west with the Gulf Stream current to allow Ms. Nyad to conserve energy. "We're making better than a knot and a half an hour - but we're going the wrong

"I know I can make it now," she shouted. With the dawn Monday she began keeping down her meals of chicken, yogurt, water and peanut butter.

"Maybe we have a chance," said du Moulin. By midday, she spotted a reporter standing on the frame of her protective shark cage and joked, "Did stroke and breaststroke, and the waves started you get seasick? It was rough. I don't know. I guess it

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's supporters once again will have to look to the Senate to delete what he considers hampering conditions from a $7.1 billion foreign aid bill.

The House passed the bill Monday night, 223-167, cutting the total, originally $7.3 billion, less than many of its supporters had feared. But it also wrote into the measure a ban on using, for any loans to Vietnam, U.S. capital funds contributed to the International Development Association.

Proponents of this amendment, adopted 241-152, said IDA, the World Bank department for easy-term loans to developing countries, is preparing to extend a series of credits to Viet-

Carter has steadily opposed attaching such conditions to foreign aid bills. He contended and his House supporters repeated that such amendments hamper the conduct of foreign policy and that they could make U.S. participation in international financial institutions impossible. The charters of these in-stitutions prohibit accepting capital contributions if strings are tied to them, the opponents of the amendment said.

Supporters, however, questioned this interpretation, saying it had never been tested and should be

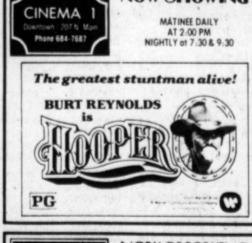

Also adopted was an amendment banning in general terms indirect aid to Cuba, which like . Vietnam receives no direct aid. Opponents said the addition was meaningless, since Cuba is ineligible to receive loans from the international institutions.

Last year, restrictive provisions in the foreign aid appropriation were deleted by the Senate,

VATICAN CITY (AP) - The cardinals arriving for the conclave to elect the 263rd successor to St. Peter usually come by jet these days, carry attache cases and for the most part wear dark clerical business suits with only a touch of crimson showing at the lopting the 2 edges of the Roman collars.

By HUGH MULLIGAN

Getting into taxis and waiting limousines with their sets of matching luggage, they could be mistaken for visiting company directors, diplomats or any other respectable men of

In other times, a half millenium or more ago, the cardinals arrived in Rome in splendid flowing renaissance robes, fringed with ermine and glittering with emeralds. They were preceded by an entourage of outriders carrying maces, pikes, flaming torches and ostrich feather fans. History shows, however, that the glory of their raiment at times concealed something less than respectability. The world's oldest two-thirds majority election, dating back to the Lateran Council in 1179, has been an occasion for murder, arson, kidnap-ping, rioting, releasing jailbirds, several attempts at starving out a deadlocked electorate and, literally, raz-

The secret conclave - from the Latin "cum clave," with key — began when an impatient public back in 1216 grew tired of waiting for the cardinals to choose a successor to Innocent III. They hastened the election of a Roman, Cardinal Censio Savelli, who took the name of Onorio III, by locking the cardinals inside the papal

Still, the cardinals were slow about taking the hint. More than 50 years later, it took two years, nine months and two days to elect Tebaldi Visconti of Piacenza to the Chair of Peter as Gregory X. During that long, confused conclave, held at Viterbo, a provincial capital north of Rome where the previous pope, a Frenchman, had died, all sorts of dire and even diabolical events transpired.

One day while the Sacred College of Cardinals was at Mass, Guy de Montfort settled an old vendetta with Prince Henry of Cornwall. He inserted a dagger into the princely ribs as the Communion host was being elevated. As the winter of 1269 dragged on into the spring of 1270, peasants picketed the palace and tried to create a food shortage. At the urging of a Franciscan friar, later St. Bonaventura, they finally razed the palace roof, removing the tiles.

Undaunted but no doubt chilly, the cardinals droned on with the election process. Some, with a sense of humor, headed their letters, "Viterbi in Pala-tio Dicoperto" — from the roofless

When Gregory X finally filled the shoes of the Fisherman in 1271, he rigorously revised the papal election system, limiting the cardinals to one servant apiece during the lock-up, forbidding mail or any personal con-tact with outsiders during the conclave under pain of excommunication. Three days after the conclave began the cardinals would be limited to one meal, and five days later, if still undecided on a successor to Peter, they would go on bread and solitary confinement, it took six months to elect Martin IV, another Frenchman, in 1281. During that conclave, also held at Viterbo, the two cardinals from Orsini were kidnapped and the archbishop of Canterbury, who had earlier condemned some church teachings, died in a cell, possibly from malnutrition.

Pope John XXII was elected at Carpentras, France, on Aug. 7, 1316, after a conclave of two years, four months. One cardinal became so exasperated at the long confinement he set the palace afire, and the cardinals had to flee through a narrow window used to pass in food.

Adrian VI, a Dutchman who served as the grand inquisitor of Spain, was the last non-Italian to be elected pope. Roman crowds were so enraged at the choice of a foreigner they stoned the cardinals as they emerged from the years ago still pretty much apply. To keep the election as free as possible from ecclesiastical intrigue, even censured and excommunicated cardirials can sit in the conclave and vote. In 1740, when Benedict XIV was chosen, the gates of Castel Sant Angelo prison were opened to release Cardinal Coscia, a Neapolitan serving a life sentence for heinous crimes whose details are now shrouded in history, in time for the voting. Previous condition of servitude is still not a factor, but age is. Pope Paul VI ruled that cardinals over 80 years of age could not attend the conclave, a change that has evoked some bitterness and resentment among the "exclusi," those locked out, instead of

A post-Watergate world long accustomed to hearing the most intimate private details of public personages and great events can only marvel at how few secrets have leaked from behind the locked doors of the 87 conclaves held over the past eight

True, the cardinals have kept pace with the times in seeing to the security details of their ancient election process. All personal contact and mail from the outside world are still shut off, but now in addition to disconnecting the telephones, banning radios and television sets, the Sistine Chapel where the cardinals sit and vote before Michaelangelo's great fresco of the Last Judgement is 'swept" twice a day by anti-bugging devices. And police with submachine guns assist the Swiss guards with halberds.

And, above all, glowers the Grand Penitentiary, the cardinal who alone is able to absolve the cardinal conclavists from the grave sin, punishable by instant excommunication, of com-municating with the outside world from the locked chambers.

And he alone can make contact with the world beyond the locked doors of the Sistine Chapel.

The pope has three chief tasks that consume much of his time. He is the primary teacher of the church, giving out his views in speeches and encylicals. He also governs the church through the Curia, the Vatican's bureaucracy, and he is the chief celebrant of Roman Catholic liturgy.

Superport plan starts

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Plans have started for the sale later this month of $450 million in tax free revenue bonds to pay for construction of the Louisiana Superport in the Gulf of Mexico.

Two companies named to handle the sale told a news conference Monday tat the issue won an "excellent" rating - AA-minus by Standard and Poor's and AA by Moody's Investors

"It is an indication of the strength of the LOOP project, said Alan C. Arnold, senior vice president of Howard, Weil, Labouisse, Friedrichs Inc.

The co-manager is First Boston Corp.

The port, in its first phase, will be capable of handling 1.4 million barrels of crude oil daily. When complete, by 1889, it will have a capacity of 3.4 million barrels of oil daily.

In water 100 feet deep 18 miles south of Grand Isle, the port would service supertankers too large to reach existing American ports.

Point Thomson test makes some petroleum

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - A second Point Thomson well has produced some petroleum at a North Slope site that some industry insiders have speculated might hold a billion barrels of oil, but the new find is disappointing, Exxon USA announced Monday. The site is about four miles from Exxon's more productive Point Thomson unit number one, about 50 miles east of Prudhoe Bay, North America's richest oil field.

"The well probably raises more questions than it answers," said Exxon spokesman Bleu Bethard.

Rod Boane, manager of Exxon exploration in Alaska, said the second Point Thomson well produced 248 barrels daily compared with a rate of 2,300 barrels daily for the first unit. And Exxon's well on nearby Flaxman Island reported 2,500 barrels a day.
This area of the North Slope, abutting the Arctic National Wildlife

Range, has been the subject of intense speculation about petroleum

The state of Alaska is considering holding an oil and gas lease sale in the area this fall. Bethard noted that the proposed state sale is 10 miles from the site of the Point Thomson unit number two and therefore should not be judged on the basis of the latest drilling. The state and U.S. Interior Department are considering holding a sale for offshore drilling in the adjacent Beaufort Sea in December 1979. Despite the closeness of the trans-Alaska pipeline, which starts in Prudhoe Bay, extremely large concentrations of petroleum would be required to justify development of the area because of its distance from

Rising prices bring skulduggery to patch

By BILL CURRY The Washington Post

HOUSTON - The "oil patch" that cutthroat and lucrative world of American Crude — has never been governed by the rules of gentlemanly conduct, but rising prices have brought a new level of intrigue and skulduggery to the patch. Thefts, bribery, corporate espio-nage and budding black markets are increasingly cited by the oil industry and law-inforcement officials as methods by which the demand for equipment, technical information and business deals is being met.

In one of the two most stunning allegations to be made recently, Mobil Oil in a lawsuit has accused Superior Oil of an unprecedented "raid" in "wholesale lots" of key Mobil experts - hiring them away and using their knowledge to outmaneuver Mobil and win two oil tracts in the Gulf of Mexico that Mobil want-In the other, a former draftsman here with the Union Oil Co. of California last week admitted that, for a fee plus royalties, he sold secret Union information to a local oil man and a Michigan oil company. They allegedly one-upped Union on obtaining oil leases in Mississippi - and then brazenly offered Union a chance to join in

In other recent instances everything but the well hole itself was stolen overnight. Even crude itself goes - as in west Texas, where a man was accused of making off with his booty in a truck normally used for pumping out septic tanks.

At the same time federal probers in several states continue major investigations into possible illicit oil sales used to disguise price increases that violate federal regulations.

On Friday Continental Oil and two other firms agreed to pay more than $3 millon in fines and rebates on charges of selling petroleum products above prices set by the U.S. government in 1973-74. Earlier last week a former Conoco executive was fined on related charges.

Many of the culprits in the widespread stealing of oil equipment have been identified as knowledgeable roustabouts, roughnecks and toolpushers. But, as the Conoco case illustrates, wrongdoing has also extended to the executive suite.

Take, for example, the cases of people like the $1.2 million-a-year executive accused in a contract bribery scheme and large oil companies ac-cused of wrongdoing in the drive for contracts, information, oil and, in the end, more money.

In the contract bribery case, the nation's foremost offshore drilling-rig company, J. Ray McDermott, last spring admitted bribing a Tenneco Oil executive with $508,615 for a contract covering Tenneco's needs in the Gulf. The McDermott company forfeited more than $800,000 in profits it had reaped from the scheme.

While Tenneco was being victimized by McDermott's bribes, Tenneco itself, according to a federal indictment, was bribing a Louisiana sheriff. Tenneco's $2,000-a-month checks were being mailed out to the sheriff precisely at the same time McDermott was delivering cash bundles overseas to the Tenneco execu-

On a different level, two men, armed and masked, held up a remote Arkansas drilling crew and escaped in a pickup with all of the rig's drill bits; a Louisiana man was almost set afire when he tried to steal the "Christmas tree" of valves from a producing gas well and it ignited, and man in South Texas lost his truck and its load of oilfiled pipe while he stopped for coffee.

So it seems that no one in the "oil patch" is immune, and that many are tempted. And in the colorful, confusing and high-stakes world of oil, the players may even be in simultaneous roles, victim and perpetrator. Industry representatives and lawmen generally agree that oil-patch crime took off about 18 to 24 months ago, just as higher prices were beginning to spur more and more drilling. Oil and gas drilling is now at its highest level in 20 years, and that increase has brought shortages of equipment, long deliveries, and igher prices for what is availble. There's always a thivin' problem when there is a shortage," says Baker Littlefield, a drilling contractor who organized a reward fund to combat an estimated $10 million a year in thefts around Lafayette, La.

000 in equipment that eventually was recovered by a highway patrolman who stopped to help a heavily loaded pickup that had run out of gas.

Clark, who compiles a monthly report of stolen equipment for the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association. He says the stealing of oilfield equipment continues to rise and notes that his latest report includes 6,000 feet of 2 7-8-inch oil-well sucker rods stolen recently from Bakersfield, Tens of millions of dollars in stolen equipment passes yearly through this capital city of the oil patch, so much that two years ago Houston police department set up a special detail to deal with the problem. Stolen stuff comes in to be fenced through usedequipment dealers, junkyards, rental companies, whatever. Stolen stuff goes out to Louisiana, Oklahoma, Mexcico, west Texas, the West Coast, even overseas.

It is a circuitous market, and it sometimes happens that a company ends up buying back its own equipment as stolen goods.

A $5,000 valve may bring $500 or more depending on the market, says Lt. J.B. Bradley of the Houston police department. Bradley says his squad has recovered millions of dollars in stolen equipment and he expects to go to a grand jury with a major case.

Bradley says, however, that his detectives were not so fortunate in another case. A convicted thef drove into town with $60,000 in what Bradley said was clearly stolen equipment. But officers were unable to trace its ownership (many companies keep no records of serial numbers on supplies) and so the suspect was freed to leave town with his merchandise.

Six months ago Littlefield lost $100,-

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc.'s natural gas strike in the Baltimore Canyon off New Jersey makes the outlook for further discoveries in the area "moderately encouraging," according to a Texaco official.

"If I were another company, and I knew another company found gas out there, I'd be encouraged," Robert Palmer, Texaco's senior vice president for worldwide exploration, said Monday. He spoke at a news confer-

Two previous wells, drilled by Shell and Continental Oil, turned up nothing. The two wells were located close together about 75 miles east of Atlantic City atop the Baltimore Dome, a geological formation believed by experts to hold a great deal of oil and gas. Texaco's well, 25 miles further east, was not above the dome.

Palmer said that while the first two wells turned up nothing and Texaco's produced natural gas, "We do not rule put the possibility of oil" being found in the area.

Texaco said its test well hit a relatively small amount of good quality natural gas, and it was too early to tell whether the site would produce enough gas for commercial produc-

'Are we all playing a role?'

By DR. LAURA SCHLESSINGER Copley News Service

Bill and Jeanne had lived together for two years when they decided to get married.

"We weren't even married a year when the whole atmosphere seemed to change completely. Instead of getting along well and smoothly as we did before, it seemed like we were almost constantly irritated with each other over things we never argued about before," Bill said unhappily.

"He's right," Jeanne replied, "everything was fine until we got married. Somehow I felt different about things being someone's wife. Although it seems as though nothing changed except the legal aspect, nothing really felt the same.

"It was as though I thought we both had to be different and I didn't like it. I definitely did not want the traditional marriage like my parents had. It's very demeaning to me as a woman and it leaves the man out of responsibility and contact with the home and family.'

Male-female, husband-wife, all have pretty clearly defined personal, social and legal expectations as to behavior and responsibilities. It is difficult for those who wish to break out of these prescribed molds because there is little reinforcement to do so and because the training we all get throughout our lives, directly and by example, is a powerful influence on us subconsciously

While Jeanne and Bill lived together unmarried they felt more free to design their own relationship complete with their own negotiated responsibility and contact with the

What they experienced after marriage is similar to what many other couples experience even when they have not lived together first. That is that they all too readily slip into predefined roles based upon the example set by their own families as well as the dictates of the social norms.

Conflicts arise when the roles clash with individual needs and personal expression. In which case one or both of the partners feels trapped, ex-ploited and unfulfilled. This is the beginning of intimate isolationism.

There are some benefits to having established roles in general, malefemale roles in specific. First, it is easier to perform well when expectations are clearly defined.

Second, it makes the behavior of others predictable, which may serve to minimize anxiety involved in blind anticipation. Third, for many it is comforting to have secure identification models which may offer a convenient sense of association with others itself. and value.

On the other hand, when people fall tionships are apt to be "role" centered instead of "person' centered. That is, the imperative becomes to live up to the "letter of the law," instead of focusing in on the individuality of the partner.

Roles, obeyed rigidly, stymie self expression, are depersonalizing and retard or even deny the option for personal growth

Within these narrow boundaries in dividual needs may go unmet or even unrecognized.

Finally, failures in intimacy can occur because of expectations that the "role" must be fulfilled instead of

'people" being fulfilled. In those times of freedom and experimentation we have possibilities for flexibility. We don't have to eliminate notions of femininity and masculinity. But we do need to acquire the ability to see ourselves as having a wider variety of roles to choose from, depending upon our own unique, individual needs:

Roles don't have to be neatly divided up into only two categories: male and female. This denies the obvious reality that all men and all women are not identical in looks, reactions, desires, capabilities, etc.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago my wife seemed to turn frigid, and last week I learned the reason why. She's been having an affair with a friend of our son's!

My wife is 38 and very well built, and this kid is 16 and big for his age. (He was 15 when it started.) He hung around our house a lot, but I always thought he came over to see our boys. (We have three, ages 10, 12 and 16,) It never dawned on me that something was going on until I saw my wife kissing him goodbye in the yard. Then she said, "I love you." (I read her

DEAR ABBY: Lately I've been finding a lot of stuff in my mailbox that has not been sent through the mails. I'm referring to religious tracts, political propaganda, all kinds of advertisements, and even business cards soliciting business for house repairs, real estate, etc.

As a grandmother, I intend to be an absolute bore about my grandchildren. I intend to travel with a projector, a screen and 200 lifelike slides showing them chewing on clothespins and standing on their heads. # Georgia friends!

The resignation of Dr. Peter G. Bourne as President Carter's principal adviser on drugs and narcotics, after being charged with using a fictitious name for the recipient of a powerful drug prescription, is one of those developments that commands unusual attention because of its melancholy irony.

Dr. Bourne violated the law and medical ethics when he wrote a phony prescription to protect the identity of his administrative assistant and faces criminal prosecution. His misdeed is a painful wound to the Carter presidency, made particularly vulnerable by low public esteem.

Dr. Bourne's resignation July 20 suggests that wiser counsel prevailed over an initial White House impulse to stonewall. On July 19, the day following disclosure of Dr. Bourne's offense, the president's chief assistants, Hamilton Jordan and Jody Powell, dropped their important national duties and closeted themselves in an all-day session with Dr. Bourne. This produced a transparent threepage rationalization and an announcement that Dr. Bourne would be suspended without loss of pay.

But the president apparently decided that the Bourne affair had better be resolved before he faced a nationally televised press conference on prime time July 20.

Even though the failure of trusted lieutenants seems to be a part of the ordeal of power, Dr.

particularly galling to the president. For, Dr. Bourne and his wife, who is deputy director of Action, the federal voluntary service agency, are among Mr. Carter's closest personal associates as members of the Georgia coterie in the White House.

The Georgia intimates President Carter brought with him to Washington have proved troublesome for his administration and costly for his prestige. First, there was Bert Lance, whose scandalously tangled financial dealings finally forced his resignation as budget director, but only after Mr. Carter had expended much political capital in a vain effort to save him. Then there was the sordid sensationalism that fouled Hamilton Jordan's reputation after he was accused of outrageous conduct with an ambassador's wife and a woman in a Washington bar. U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young is an acute, ongoing embarrassment. And now Dr. Bourne.

Public disappointment in this administration is undoubtedly keener than it would have been because of Mr. Carter's campaign promises to provide a government worthy of the American people. Indeed, some observers trace the beginning of the troubles besetting the Carter presidency to White House stonewalling for Bert Lance. In any event, the Bourne episode is a sour reminder that the more things change in Washington, the more they stay

Panamanians girding for action against Marxists

By William Giandoni Copley News Service

Marxists are trying to take control of Gen. Omar Torrijos' dictatorship in

But prominent Panamanians, friends and foes alike of Torrijos, are girding for action to keep Panama and the strategic Panama Canal from falling into enemy hands.

The latest, and certainly the most respected, voices to be raised against the Marxist threat in the isthmian republic are those of Panama's nine Catholic bishops, headed by Archbishop Marcos G. McGrath of Panama City.

In a pastoral letter on "The Situation of the Country," the Catholic prelates objected "to the fact that certain Marxist cadres pretend to set themselves up as political spokesmen not only of the government but of the whole nation as well, imposing their opinions with all the authoritarian force they can muster."

The bishops went on to say that in some government offices jobs and opportunities "are handed out almost exclusively to those of one and the same ideological line."

The bishops did not name names or cite specific instances of the Marxist infiltration of the dictatorship.

But nevertheless their protest had considerable impact in Panama and, presumably, will have elsewhere. The pastoral letter was not only read at all airmailed to other countries.

To some extent, t was the vocal backing of men of their caliber that calmed fears in Panama and abroad that Torrijos might jurn out to be a hidden Communist, as did Cuban dictator Fidel Castro, or that he might not be strong enough to hold his Marxist advisers in check.

Now, it appears, they have come around to that point of view.

The situation that the bishops mentioned should not constitute any immediate threat to the Panama Canal. The presence of an estimated 15,000 U.S. troops within the 10-mile wide, 50-mile long canal zone should be enough to guarantee the security of the interoceanic waterway.

The bishops' warning against Marxist infiltration of the government brought a denial, of sorts, from Torrijos.

"I do not like that pastoral letter their attitude of insinuating that this nation is taking the course of communism," Torrijos said in a speech that was broadcast throughout the

"All we have been doing has been precisely so that the nation will not fall into or be involved in foreignoriented or enslaving schemes,' Torrijos said.

The bishops' criticism of the situation in Panama was not limited just to the signs of Marxist infiltration.

They complained of the great needs of the Panamanian people, "of the lack of jobs, of housing, of the basic guarantees of life." They voiced their concern over "the slight participation of the people, especially the poorest, in the efforts and decisions that affect their own development." They protested the recent violence in the

But the "serious defects in the current political structure" in Panama were what lead the bishops to their protest against Marxist ac-

The first defect was "the lack of a clear and proper separation among the three branches of the government." That was a reference to the fact that the current Panamanian constitution grants Gen. Torrijos, as chief of government, virtually dictatorial powers.

Then the bishops noted "a lack of efficiency in public administration because of the duplication of functions, personalism and improvisation. Next came "the lack of controls over the budgeting, investment and handling of public funds.' Finally "the lack of representation in the system for election of (local) representatives" to the National Assembly was mentioned. The pastoral letter noted that "a recent study, based on official electoral statistics, reveals the possibility that five percent of the electoral population of the country could determine the election of the future current arrangement. In truth, nothing the bishops said had not been said before, although probably expressed in more inflamatory language.

president of the republic," under the

Since Torrijos relaxed restrictions on press, radio and television last year, since he authorized the return of political exiles, and since the opposition political parties regained the voices they lost in 1968 when the National Guard ousted President Arnulfo Arias, highly partisan critics of the Torrijos regime have been saying much the same.

Legal counsel for Odessa's Medical Center Hospital Monday filed a motion in Midland's Federal District Court to quash a subpoena to produce documents and tape recordings of meetings relating to the suspension of Dr. Inayat I. Lalani.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Court Judge John Wood set a hearing for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday on the doctor's motion for a temporary injunction to restore his hospital surgical privileges.

The hospital's board of appeals last week upheld the doctor's suspension. Lalani was suspended in May after being charged with lack of sound surgical judgment and lack of surgical assistance.

Hospital administrator Sam Glenney last week had been served a civil subpoena to produce the minutes of all surgical sessions and executive committee meetings during the past two years which related to any action taken against the Andrews

The subpoena also covered a transcript of a meet-ing of the hospital board of managers and tape recordings of any medical staff or executive meetings during the past two years in which the doctor had been discussed. W.O. Shafer, an attorney representing the hospital, contended in a motion filed Monday during a hearing in Midland that the subpoena should be quashed on the basis of a state law which provides that records and proceedings of any hospital committee and medical organization committee "shall be confidential, shall not be public record and not available for court subpoena.'

Lalani contended that due process in the appeals process has been disregarded and that his removal is the result of a small clique of doctors at the hospital who view him as a threat.

Attorney Dan Sullivan is representing Lalani. Attorneys for both sides said they expect the hearing to last at least two days.

Chemicals may extend beyond previous border

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) - State health officials say infrared and aerial photographs indicate that chemical contamination from the Love Canal may extend well beyond what was thought to be its border.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials say they plan to investigate the possibility. State and federal officials last week ordered the evacuation of 237 families living on streets bordering the canal after investigators found that the miscarriage rate of pregnant women in the area was 50 percent higher than the national average. They also ound five instances of birth defects.

State environmental officials said evidence from the infrared photos and 1938 aerial pictures donated by Cornell University indicates that the contamination may stretch all the way to the banks of the Niagara River, an international waterway that flows into Lake Ontario.

State Deputy Health Commissioner Glenn Haughie said that study of the infrared photographs indicates the contamination extends past the southern border of the canal - a never-completed ditch that was co vered over in 1953. Scientists have identified 82 dangerous chemicals in the canal and surrounding areas.

In addition, Haughie said, the 1938 aerial photos 'have been interpreted as showing an extension of the canal to the river."

"We have nothing conclusive to show that the canal communicates directly with the river," said David Axelrod, director of the Health Department's division of laboratories and research, "but the evidence points in that direction."

Officials were expected today to release details of plans to clean up the canal. The plans reportedly call for the digging, under stringent safety precautions, of two parallel trenches along the three-block by two-block dump site, and the installation of tiles to collect chemical runoff for treatment by a mobile carbon-activated filter. # Subcommittee considering plan abolishing insurance sex bias

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Young male drivers, particularly single ones, would do hand springs if the Legislature approves a plan now before the House Auto Insurance Sub-

Chairman Gene Green, D-Houston, said Monday he thinks the subcommittee will recommend abolishing the use of age, sex and marital status as factors in setting car insurance

This would end the rating system that now forces a single male driver under the age of 21 to pay three times the normal rate if he owns his own

The subcommittee will vote on its report next month.

Ending age, sex and marital distinctions was endorsed in testimony Monday by Massachusetts insurance commissioner James Stone but was criticized by spokesmen for insurance

"It is time we stopped the practice of deciding a young, male, urban driver is guilty until proven innocent," said Stone, who put a stop to rating distinctions based on sex, age and marital status in his state.

Company spokesmen said the high rates paid by young male drivers are justified by their accident experience as a group. They said a Massachusetts-style rating system would cut rates on 10.5 percent of the vehicles in Texas but raise them on 85.7 per-

Stone traveled to Texas at state expense as an invited witness of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee proposal would replace Texas' 18 auto rating categories - based largely on age, sex and marital status - with only five:

There would be separate classifications only for drivers with less than three years' experience, farmers and those who use their cars in business. Inexperienced motorists with driver education would be rated separately. All others - regardless of age would be in the "standard" classifi-

Stone said Massachusetts makes heavy use of merit rating, punishing drivers who cause accidents with additional premiums.
"The individual driving record is the most important variant in premi-um calculations," Stone said.

Stone said a 12 percent reduction in auto rates this year "is principally a dividend of our new system."

William Huff, senior vice president and general counsel of Employers Insurance of Texas, said young male drivers should be rated separately.

Durable military president starts sixth term with few prisoners

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — South America's most durable military president, Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, begins his sixth term today with his country tranquil and only two dozen political prisoners in

"Paraguay has realized its will of being a sovereign and independent nation, free from the threat of extremism of any kind," Stroessner said in an interview this week with the newspaper Ultima Hora.

Three moderate opposition groups boycotted the inauguration, calling the 66-year-old army commander's re-election a fraud, and held talks aimed at forging a coalition to press for more liberalization of Stroessner's one-party rule.

President Carter also snubbed the event, designating his ambassador to Paraguay to represent him.

Stroessner, South America's longest-ruling chief of state, lost his chief supply of military and economic aid last year when the Carter administration suspended it because of alleged human rights violations.

Since late 1976, when it rounded up some 2,000 "suspected subversives," the regime has freed all but 24 of its political prisoners. About 150 have been turned loose since Stroessner's re-election Feb. 12.

But relations between the U.S. and Paraguayan governments were not improved by the arrest of opposition leader Domingo Laino on July 7 after his return from a visit to Washington. Laino was cleared last Tuesday of subversion charges, but another Stroessner foe, Anibal Recalde Sosa, was held four hours by police Satur-

Laino's Authentic Liberal-Radical Party, Sosa's Christian Democrats and the Febrerista Party went ahead with talks on a coalition. The three other opposition parties, which claim 300,000 members and abstained or were barred from the February election, say they will press for electoral reforms, greater press freedom and an end of the requirement that all government jobholders must be Colorado members.

Stroessner seized power in 1954, had himself elected president that year and won successive five-year terms starting in 1958. His opponents grudgingly admit his tight control has brought stability and economic progress to Paraguay, a nation of 3 million people which had 22 presidents in 31 years. But they believe his career is drawing to a

"We suppose this will be his last term," said Dr. Miguel Angel Martin-ez Yaryes, president of the Authentic Liberal-Radicals, in an interview. "We need to act now to improve the democratic system and gain some participation in the government be-fore the next election."

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — The Double Eagle II drifted beyond the halfway mark early today in its trans-Atlantic flight and the three New Mexico men trying to be the first to cross the ocean in a balloon said they were just about on course.

The balloon has been traveling about 20 mph since it lifted off Friday night from Presque Isle, Maine. It was expected to pick up speed as it increased altitude and hit heavier winds, and spokesman Jim Mitchell said the balloon might set an endurance record.

He said balloonists Ben Abruzzo, 44, Maxie Anderson, 44, and Larry Newman, 31, all of Albuquerque, N.M., still hoped for a landing sometime Thursday near Brest, France.

Early today, about 77 hours after liftoff, the balloon had traveled about 1,500 miles.

Two of Double Eagle II's pilots traveled 2,950 miles in 66 hours in their attempt last year to cross the Atlantic in Double Eagle I. They were blown north of their course and ditched five miles off the northwest coast of Iceland.

General orders halt action against blacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army Chief of Staff, has ordered immediate moves toward halting "a disturbing trend" in disproportionate punishment and bad discharges given black soldiers.

In a letter to all major Army com-manders, Rogers called for prompt action "to identify specific relationships or underlying causes which lead to punitive actions against black sol-

That letter, dated July 18, has just become available.

Meanwhile, the Army has commissioned a civilian consulting firm to conduct a one-year study of the problem, pointed out in the latest annual assessment of the Army's equal opportunity programs. The official Army report said that, while blacks comprised 26.4 percent of the Army's enlisted force, they made up 51 percent of the Army's "prisoner popula-tion" in fiscal 1977, which ended

The document also said blacks received proportionately more bad conduct and dishonorable discharges than white soldiers. "Although the outward appearance is one of calm, racial tensions and institutional discrimination still exist," said the assessment prepared by the Army's staff division on personnel. In his letter to Army commanders worldwide, Rogers said this latest report for 1977 shows that black-white punishment trends "are worsening" and he called on his senior generals "to use more imagination" in this persistent problem area.

Critics of the Army, whose black percentage still is rising, have long commissioned officers deal more harshly with black soldiers than whites, and that punishment of blacks often is undeserved. Rogers said that among questions which need to be closely examined is whether racial imbalances exist in less-than-courtmartial punishment meted out to blacks by unit commanders.

The Army chief stressed, however, that "our affirmative action efforts are not intended to reduce imbalances at the expense of requisite standards of discipline and con-

Apart from the apparent disparities in degrees of punishment, the 63-page report complained that "representation of black enlisted soldiers in certain military specialities is less than equal."

It said that blacks are underrepre-sented in 18 fields, with the most severe shortages in communications, signal intelligence, law enforcement, electronic warfare equipment maintenance and the army band.

At the same time, the report said, "Enlisted blacks hold more than their share of jobs in the petroleum, supply, food service, wire maintenance and telecommunications and audiovisual fields."

Although some critics have said that blacks bear more than their share of the load in combat units, the report found otherwise.

It said that "blacks are proportionately represented in infantry, armor and combat engineers, and only slightly overrepresented in field artillery and air defense artillery.'

108-day strike by airline pilots ends with contract

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - A 108-day strike by 1,500 Northwest Airlines pilots ended early today with the signing of a new three-year contract.

Although no details of the agreement were released, a spokesman for the airline said it provided a total improvement of about $51 million in wages and benefits.

Gene Kragness, a spokesman for the Air Line Pilots Association, said the agreement was reached in Minneapolis after 14 hours of negotiations.

'We're not going to release any details of the agreement at this time because we have to relate them to the members first," he said, adding that union members would not vote on the

Another pilot spokesman, Jim Halvorson, said the new contract was for three years, including the past year when pilots worked without a contract. He said the new contract would expire July 1, 1980.

Airline spokesman Roy Erickson said Northwest probably would restore its first flight in three or four days after pilots are recertified.

Pilots and co-pilots must be recertified if they do not fly for 90 days, he said, adding that the recertification process would begin today. Northwest, the country's seventh largest airline, has maintained 12 scheduled daily flights out of more than 200 since the strike began April 29. Erickson said the limited schedule would continue until regular flights were restored.

Wage package, pensions and backto-work arrangements were the final items to be negotiated, Erickson said. Both sides had met for the past three days with former federal Labor Secretary William Usery and Joseph Smith, a federal mediator.

Before the strike, Northwest pilots earned between $8,700 for a first-year pilot to $84,888 for the captain of a Boeing 747 flying international routes. The average was about $49,000.

Northwest carried more than 10 million passengers last year, employed 11,200 people and had an operating revenue of $1.046 billion. The strike was the longest and one of the most heated in the history of the

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Dr. William S. Banowsky, the conservative California educator chosen Monday night to be University of Oklahoma president, was to hold a press confer-

Speedy Trial Act responsible for jump in bond forfeitures

EDITOR'S NOTE: Allegations about questionable bonding procedures surfaced during a recent federal grand jury in Midland. Today, in one of several articles, The Reporter-Telegram continues to explore bonding practices in the Permian Basin.

By MARK VOGLER

A backlog of pending bond forfeiture cases in Midland County could result in a special docket setting in the near future to dispose of the cases, according to District Attorney Vern Martin.

The district attorney, who has been in office since January of 1977, told The Reporter-Telegram in a recent interview that bond forfeitures have become of major concern to him only in recent months.

Martin said the Speedy Trial Act is a major reason for the accumulation last month of pending bond forfeitures totaling more than $200,000.

The act, which was passed last year by the Texas Legislature, designates time limits under which the state is required to begin prosecution of persons accused of crimes. Generally, the state is allowed a maximum of 120 days in felony cases and as little as 30 days for certain misdemeanor cases. A defendant may ask for dismissal of charges if the time limits are not met by the state.

"We really haven't had a problem with bond forfeitures since I've been district attorney, until just recently. But I think the reason why it has come to a head all of a sudden is because of the Speedy Trial Act," Martin said.

"And I do suspect that there will a special setting of the non-jury forfeiture cases in the near future.' While attributing the backlog of pending forfeiture cases to the setting of many cases recently, Martin also forsees future delays in disposition of the forfeiture cases as another possible ramification of the Speedy Trial Act.

'One of the things that worries me is this act. Because the felony cases since July 1 have to be tried within 120 days, there's a possibility that this situation could pre-empt a lot of civil court time. If it does, these things (bond forfeitures) could be put off indefinitely," said Martin.

"Very recently, I assigned district attorney assistant Richard Davis to be in charge of bond forfeitures. They're beginning to stock pile and we think that something ought to be done about it. We should prosecute the cases in a reasonable framework." When a person fails to appear in court, the bonding company which bailed him out is technically subject to forfeiture of the amount of money the bond was set at. A judgment nisi, which represents initial civil actions to claim money pledged by a bonding company as surety that its client would appear in district court, is then filed.

If the company is unable to provide an adequate explanation to the court for the reason its client failed to appear, the court moves to collect the money. Basically, the district attorney pursues the forfeitures.

But collecting the money is not a clear-cut, easy process, Martin said. There are several factors which can contribute to lengthy delays, some of which include:

-Availability of court time.

-Many man hours involved in paperwork.

-The fact that each case must be examined on its -Several defenses that a bonding company can

-Several techniques that a bonding company can

"tie up" the case for an indefinite period of time. "There are all kinds of factors involved that make it much more complex than your average case. And it takes a lot of time. I would say that my biggest problem is the availability of court time," said

"There just isn't any magic wand you can wave to clean it all up.'

Martin said that only in a rare situation will his office move to collect the full amount of the bond in the pending forfeiture cases in district court totaling more than $200,000.

'We try to be fair to everybody. But if they refuse to deal with us and don't want to settle a case, we'll go to trial," said Martin.

"In the time I have been in office, I've never had to collect a complete forfeiture. We've always worked them out. I've got a working relationship with the bondsmen that if they don't deliver somebody in 90 days, they ought to be prepared to pay it all."

Martin said his office is willing to forgo forfeitures or reduce the amount if the bonding company manages to locate the defendant without costing the county any money "The ultimate thing is getting these people to trial.

Getting the person is our main objective. The felony case takes priority over the civil matters. And bond forfeitures are civil cases, said the prosecutor.

Martin said he regards the bonding business in Midland County as reputable and much improved in recent years. He pointed out that there are now more companies making bond than previously. He credited the bonding reforms in large measure to Sheriff Dallas Smith, whose tenure overlaps Martin's.

'We've discussed every aspect of what he (Smith) has done in order to improve and modify the bonding policies. The sheriff comes to me regularly and also works closely with the County Attorney," Martin

"He's trying to be fair with everybody and see that they all stay straight. He's really done everything theoretically the way it should be done."

Reyes today scoured the desert and mountains near the farming community of Casa Grande in an intensified effort to track down escaped killer Gary

Meanwhile, the FBI has joined the search effort for Tison, 43, and a newlywed couple who may have fallen prey to him in Colorado.

Authorities believe Tison fled into the unforgiving desert early Friday when a speeding van ran a sheriff's roadblock and crashed in a cloud of dust and hail of bullets. The armed vigilantes began the search at dawn today, with Pinal County officers keeping a watchful eye on the group.

Meanwhile, the Pima County Sheriff's Department launched a smaller search near the southern Arizona community of Ajo after receiving a report that Tison had been spotted in that area. That search effort focused on the desert south of Ajo, where a family reported Monday night that they had seen a man in the desert who matched Tison's Ajo is some 100 miles southwest of Casa Grande. However, authorities were still confident that

Photos of Gary Tison and the couple were provided to sheriff's deputies who joined FBI agents in searching the rocky pine-covered mountains of southern Colorado.

Questioning of brothers Rick and Raymond Tison and convicted slayer Randy Greenawalt by Arizona authorities indicates that "they made contact with the Judge couple where there were lots of pine trees and it was a cold night," said Rio Grande County (Colorado) Sheriff Jerry Wright.

Earthen mound houses in works

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Two Fort Worth men think cave men might have been on the right Real estate broker Robert Needham and architect

Frank Moreland say they hope to build one of the nation's first housing developments in which homes are built into earthen mounds.

Needham said the homes will have about 2,000 square feet of space, will cost about $61,000 and will eventually enjoy "zero energy bills."

The houses won't be buried. Moreland said they would look like "a home shoved into a hill sideways." One side of the earth-covered house would be open, with lots of window space and the other three sides would be set into a shrub-covered hill.

"People will be surprised how ordinary they look from the inside," Needham said. "We want to make them as homey and ordinary as possible. They won't look ultra-modern like you might expect."

Needham said a site hasn't been picked for the Fort Worth project. He said seven to 10 earth-covered houses would be built first in an area where 200 or 300 could eventually be constructed.

The first batch of cave-style dwellings would be a dice roll, with no specific owners in mind.
"We'll see how the market for those houses does and go from there," Needham said.

He said that he hoped to offer some alternative energy sources as his earth-covered community grows. These would include wind generators and solar-electric cells, ultimately aiming at elimination of energy bills.

The homes would have a concrete shell, and that's important because of the fire factor. 'You just can't burn one up since it's made of concrete," Needham said.

He pointed out that the typical house would have only one door, but that all major rooms would have operable windows that would serve as fire escapes.

The series resumes tonight at 7:30 with Ken Schrom, 7-4, whom Stubing classifies as a tough luck pitcher, going for the Diablos. "He has lost some 2-1 and 3-2 games."

That's the same classification Midland starter Darrell Turner places himself in, although he has won his last three to level his record at 3-3 sincte reporting to Midland from Wichita. The last time out is a specific for instance, as far as Darrell is concerned. He had a no-walk shutout with two out in the ninth and wound up giving up a walk and then a homer and despite the 4-2 win he came away from the game feeling empty.

Tigers bomb Royals, 11-2;

The All-Star break traditionally denotes the half-way point of the season and — with all respect to tradition — the Detroit Tigers were just breaking even at that time with a 42-42 record. Since then, however, they've won 22 of 31 games and moved within a game of second place after falling within

Mickey Rivers scored the first run and drove in the winner, while Graig Nettles added a two-run ninthinning homer to carry New York past Baltimore in a game typically marked by a delay and a rhubarb. Each contest in the four-game series at Memorial Stadium was delayed for some reason. Friday night, the teams waited 2 hours, 27 minutes for rain to stop.

Saturday they waited a total of 1 hour, 16 minutes for the lights to come back on after three power failures. Sunday's rain delay was just 36 minutes old when rain washed out the final three innings including a five-run rally that would have put the Yankees in front.

Monday night, the lights only went out once — for 23 minutes in the bottom of the eighth inning.

"This is definitely the worst series I've ever been involved in," said Baltimore's Mark Belanger. "In the minors, we only had six lights on a pole. But at least they stayed on.'

"We're used to weird things in our carnival-type atmosphere," said Nettles, taking a good-natured jab at the label placed on the often-turbulent defend-ing champions. "It's part of the circus."

The rhubarb came after first base umpire Steve Palermo ejected New York's Willie Randolph for a crack the arbiter claimed the second baseman made from the dugout. First base Coach Gene Michael also was ejected when he argued on Randolph's behalf. That left the final toll for the series at four ejections and six delays totalling 4 hours, 42 minutes because of four power failures and two heavy thun-

The Oilers received a scare in the second quarter when quarterback Dan Pastorini suffered an injury when tackled by Eagle linebacker Bill

It was first announced that Pastorini has suffered a hamstring pull but after the game Phillips said he expects Pastorini to be ready for next week's game against the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys.

"It's a muscle pull," Phillips said. "For the lack of a better word, let's say it's in the seat."

Midland jumped ahead 2-0 in the first against Steve Eddy when Steve Macko singled up the middle, Eric Grandy walked and Kevin Drury drove the runs in with his double to right. Midland added a second inning run when shortstop Ramirez bobbled Javier Fierro's grounder. Fierro then stole second and scored on Jim Tracy's first hit. Midland squared it at four in the sixth when newcomer Gary Krug, playing his first game since reporting from Bakersfield of the California League, caromed a single off Eddy's glove and beat it out. Fierro walked and Tracy again came through with the single up the middle.

DOUG THOMSON pitched two innings of relief to get the win and Mark Clear retired the Cubs in order in the 10th to nail down the save. Mike Allen, the second of three Midland pitchers, took the loss, giving up Clark's triple and retiring one batter in the 10th before giving way to Butler.

Despite the loss, Tracy had a big night for Midland. In addition to two rbi hits, he gunned out Slater at the plate in the seventh on Clark's single to right to preserve a 4-4 tie. Catcher Bill Evers blocked the plate and held the ball despite the collision.

In the fourth, Evers trying to score from second on Seibert's double to center was thrown out at the plate despite ramming into catcher Stan

CUB CUBES- Steve Macko tied the Midland club record for base hits in a season with his first inning single, equalling the 144 by Bill Droege in 1974...Kurt Seibert already has surpassed the Cubs' run-scored record of 88, also Droege in 1974, with 98 runs...Danny Goodwin, the Texas League batting, rbi and home run leader, is no longer with the Diablos. # Rams will 'do anything for Ray Malavasi'

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) -His years of playing and coaching experience under Vince Lombardi, Red Blaik, Murray Warmath and Chuck Knox and a few months under George Allen - have given new Los Angeles Rams Coach Ray Malavasi a deep background in winning football.

Malavasi, a stocky, squashednose former college lineman, has been coaching 23 years. Most were in assistant roles, except for 12 games as interim head coach of the Denver Broncos of the American Football League in 1966, before the AFL was merged into the National Football League.

losophy from different coaches under whom you work," the 46-year-old Malavasi said Monday before directing his first Rams practice at their California State University-Fullerton, training camp. He became head coach Sunday when Allen was sudden-

ALLEN WAS coach of the from 1966-70 and coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins from 1971-77. He had just two losing preseason games in his return to Los Angeles before being discharged by Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom.

Malavasi was defensive coordinator for the Rams the last five years with Knox as head coach. Under Allen, Malavasi switched to offensive coordinator and offensive line coach, jobs he had held before with other pro teams:

"We're going back to the defensive system we've used the past five years," Malavasi said Monday. The defense he directed played a major role in five consecutive divisional championships under Knox.

"WE HAVE A veteran team that has been successful with one system," he said. He said the assistant coaches assembled by Allen will have to be the ones adjust, rather than the players.

"We'll do anything for Ray Malavasi," said Rams defensive end Jack Youngblood when first informed of the coaching change. "We believe in him."

Linebacker Isiah Robertson, who was dropped out of the preseason starting lineup by Allen, reacted to the change by saying: "Free at last." Robertson, a Pro Bowl selection six of his years with the Rams, was restored to the starting unit by Malavasi Malavasi played in the offensive line in college at Army and Mississippi. One of Blaik's assistants at Army was Vince Lombardi, who later achieved pro football sainthood as coach at Green Bav.

AT MISSISSIPPI STATE Malavasi played under Warmath, another coach who stressed the fundamentals, and Malayasi later became one of Warmath's assistants at the University of Minnesota in the late 1950s. He also has been a pro football assistant in Canada and in the NFL at Buffalo and Oakland.

Lack of excitement on offense had been the chief fan criticisms of Knox in Los Angeles. Malavasi plans to stick with some of the offensive system Allen was introducing, although it was unproductive in the 14-7 loss to New England and a 17-0 thrashing by San Diego in preseason

Can the Rams regroup in the short time remaining?

"I have confidence we can," Malavasi said, "I took over in the third game at Denver and we won four of the last 10 games in 1966. In this business you have to be confident."

By LARRY PALADINO

AP Sports Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Bo Schembechler is about to begin his 10th season as University of Michigan football coach, and he says he's looking forward to this one more than any of the other nine. "I think there are a lot of people, particularly in the news media, who don't think we'll have a good team," Schembechler said recently, "and that motivates me to no end.

The Wolverines haven't won their final game of the season since Schembechler's arrival. They have lost four Rose Bowl games (including last season to Washington), one Orange Bowl and three times to archrival Ohio State - and tied the Buckeyes one

Despite that nagging statistic, which has had critics on Schembechler's back, Michigan is the only team in the nation ranked in the top 10 during each of those nine years. Last year the Wolverines, who were No. 1 for a while, finished ninth with an 10-2

"I think I'd like to win a national championship," Schembechler said. 'To do that you've got to win a bowl game, and in the Big Ten that means the Rose Bowl.'

The Wolverines lost 12 regulars, "so everyone thinks this year we can get Michigan," he said. "But I don't think it will happen.

Back for his fourth year as starting quarterback is Rick Leach, who probably would have been a No. 1 baseball draft choice had it not been for his intentions to play a final year of foot-

Leach is being touted by locals for the Heisman Trophy and he has the over-all ability to win it. He has matured and improved steadily as a quarterback after a brilliant prep career in Flint.

Michigan should have a superb offense, as usual dedicated to an option attack that emphasizes the running of Harlan Huckleby, Ralph Clayton and

Bill Dufek and Jon Giesler return from injury to anchor an interior line that is still excellent despite the loss of All-American guard Mark Donahue and All-Big Ten players Mike Kenn, a tackle, and Walt Downing, a center. "Defense is our major concern," Schembechler said, "particularly our secondary and outside linebacking." All-American defensive back Dwight Hicks was lost to graduation, along with all-conference backs Jim Pickens and Derek Howard. Another All-American, John Anderson, has graduated along with Dom Tedesco.

"If our defense comes through we'll be right in there again," Schembechler said, referring to the Big Ten race and national rankings. Michigan has a tougher schedule than usual and could use a little more depth, but it probably will be at least a co-favorite for the title with Ohio

For the first time in 35 years the Wolverines play Notre Dame, who Schembechler expects to be ranked No. 1 early. That game is Sept. 23 at South Bend. Other non-conference foes are Duke and Arizona. The Michigan State game is home this year, with the traditional Ohio State contest at Columbus.

Herrera sent to Seaffle, neither side happy

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Placekicker Efren Herrera, who wanted $80,000 to play another season for the Dallas Cowboys, has been traded to the Seattle Seahawks, and neither side in the salary dispute is very happy about it.

Dallas Cowboy Vice President Gil Brandt said Herrera was traded for a draft choice, "It's not a franchise saver," Brandt said. "It's undisclosed, but not a high choice."

Herrera, coming off an All-Pro season, wasn't overjoyed. "I can't say that I'm happy," he said. "I'm not really happy leaving the Cowboys in any way. I have nothing against the Cowboys at all. It was just a matter of getting market value in my

Another kicking client of Woy's, Ove Johannson, was included in Dallas' roster cut Monday, but Brandt said there was no vendetta involved. "Performance is all that counts," Brandt said.

The moves left Dallas with a pair of kickers. Rookie Jay Sherill and veteran Skip Butler are the two kicking legs in the Cowboy camp. If the Cowboys use Butler, they must compensate the Detroit Lions.

Brandt said he was sorry to see Herrera go. "I liked the guy," Brandt said. "I think this is a case where a player airs his contract negotiations in the media and backs himself into a corner where he can't accept what's a fair offer.'

Brandt had confirmed that the Cowboys increased their contract offer last week and Herrera, too, had compromised. However, the kicker ultimately rejected the proposal.

MC needs extra community support

"Midland College is adequately funded by local state appropriations for its minimum requirements. The creation of an educational institution of the first rank, however, requires the extra support which comes from gifts, foundations, trusts, and bequests."

That's what is written in a brochure designed to guide those thinking of giving gifts or bequests to Midland College.

The impetus and guidance for such gifts comes from community leadership represented on the Midland College Foundation. The tax-exempt, non-profit organization was established soon after the college was, formed.

Since it was established, the Foundation has disbursed more than $1,000,000 in contributions to Midland College. much of it for scholarship purposes. Other areas which have been enriched have included, purchase of equipment for new programs, landscaping, and establishment of an endowed chair for the Petroleum Technology program.

When Midland College first began its original building program, the inflationary spiral had just begun. Trustees found themselves having to trim constuction costs wherever possible, eliminating plans for landscaping and cutting back on proposed programs. That's when the Foundation was started, ena-

Some pools like 'infectious' soup

Dear Dr. Solomon: Just how safe are swimming pools? Our son came down with some ear infection that he seems to have picked up in a friend's pool he has been using a lot-at least that is what our doctor thinks. Are there any precautions that one should take? - Wilma F.

Dear Wilma: The main precaution is that the water be adequately chlorinated and has the proper acid levels-but of course it isn't easy to go around and check the chlorination and pH levels of other people's pools. It might be a little embarrassing, and you would have to haul some chemical apparatus around and also know how to use it.

The Physician and Sportsmedicine recently had a good survey of this problem. One study it noted showed that pool swimmers were ill almost twice as frequently as people who didn't swim at all (river and other natural-water swimmers were in between). The main trouble, according to this article, is the proliferation of uncontrolled private pools. An inade-quately chlorinated pool-meaning one with less than 0.4 part chlorine for one million parts of water-can become, as it puts it, "an infectious soup." And there is a good deal of questioning about whether present standards of chlorination are adequate, even assuming that they are

The Physician and Sportsmedicine lists a number of swimming diseases resulting from poor sanitation. Among them are conjunctivitis, several upper respiratory infections, inflammation of the external ear, swimming-pool elbow, plantar warts, athlete's foot, and a rare but fatal kind of brain leptospirosis, an animal disease caused by a spirochete that can be transmitted from dogs and other animals to man-with potentially serious results.

The best practical advice is not go go in a pool if you suspect inadequate sanitation and insufficient chlorina-

Dear Dr. Solomon: I think that I read in your column quite some time ago about "hearing ear" dogs who could help deaf people just as the seeing eye dogs help blind people. Is there any place I could get in touch with about this? - W.L.

Dear W.L.: From what I understand, hearing dogs are in short supply, as it takes three months to train them. But you can get on the waiting list by writing to the American Humane Assn., 5351 Roslyn, Denver,

I have two German sisters: Evelin, 16 years, and Marion, 13 years, and another America: girl - also a foreign exchage student - Sonny Fox, 15 years, from Springdale, Pa. I am stay ing also with my younger brother, Holger, nine years, and, of course, my parents, Mam and

I believe the biggest shock to me was realizing the fact that I am not in my own country, doing things the good old American way, and speaking fluently, the English language. I've never felt so much like a left shoe on a right foot in all my life.

When I was spoken to in Ger-man for the first time at the train station all I wanted to say was, "When does the next flight leave for America?" It's very different, somewhat like a child growing up alone and everyone else remains the same.

There have been days when I thought this was heaven and if I could I'd bring Germany back with me, including all the attachments, I would. On the other hand, sometimes I've thought I've got to have just one McDonald's hamburger or just to have a look at my home, my family and live one day in my own lifestyle. It's different as any foreigners would say, but I wouldn't trade the experience for anything; the bad and the good.

Furthermore, I have become very interested in the opinions of the German people toward America; the country as well as the people. Many nights ended with long conversations between my sister, Evelis, and I.

Here are some of her thoughts about America: "People in Germany refer to the U.S.A. as the New World! Germans are very proud of having Americans in their country. The 'best' are from America. The best sportsman, Mark Spitz, U.S.A. swimmer, the best investigators, and indeed, the best films, "Saturday Night Fever."

In conclusion, I can honestly say that to be a foreign exchange student and to be part of the Youth for Understanding organization, to travel to another country, live with another family I'd never met before, is something that words, photos and feelings cannot explain; only the memories of this country and my German family and our ex-perience together. This, to me, is what Youth for Understand-
