'I did not shoot Dr. Martin Luther King,' says Ray

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Earl Ray took the witness stand before Congress today and swore, as expected, that "I did not shoot Dr. Martin Luther King."

In a rambling account, Ray told the committee about breaking out of Missouri State Prison in 1967 and traveling in zig-zag fashion across the United States to Canada, where he spent one night with a prostitute and robbed her pimp, then met "Raoul" by chance on the Montreal docks.

In return for money and a never-fulfilled promise of travel documents, Ray said he carried items across the Canadian and Mexican borders for the Spanish-accented "Raoul," who had mysterious telephone numbers in New Orleans and no last name Ray could remember.

After smuggling the items, which Ray did not specifically identify, he said he went to Los Angeles, took a bartending course, tried unsuccessfully to go to work for the Internal Revenue Service, traveled to New Orleans to agree to the gunrunning scheme with the mystery man — and ultimately returned to Los Angeles.

"I was taking a lock-picking — rather a locksmith course at this time," Ray told the committee. At another point, he said, "I robbed the — I was robbed of a watch."

He told of trying to contact a girl who advertised herself in an underground Los Angeles newspaper "as a nympho-something." Apologetically, Ray added, "Of course, I had been in jail for about six years."

Without detailing any actual gunrunning, Ray said he renewed the relationship with "Raoul" and purchased a rifle in Birmingham, Ala., purportedly for eventual shipment to Mexico. With that rifle, Ray said he drove to Memphis, Tenn., in a red Mustang, arriving in the city where King was staying on April 3, 1968.

He and Raoul took a room, which, as it happened, was across from King's motel, and discussed returning to Birmingham to buy more guns, Ray said. He also shopped unsuccessfully for telescopic sights while in Memphis, he said.

Ray said that, at Raoul's suggestion on April 4 that he "take in a movie" he was out killing time, including getting his Mustang, allegedly paid for by Raoul, serviced several blocks from the rooming house when he saw rushing police cars and other emergency activity in the area.

Convinced that he should not return to the rooming house, he said, he headed for New Orleans to try to rendezvous with one of Raoul's contacts there, but heard first on the car radio about King's death and the look-out for a white Mustang.

At that point, he said, he headed for Atlanta instead, where he caught a bus for Detroit and then a train into Toronto, arriving there April 6. In Toronto, he spotted the name of a local policeman, Raymond George Sneyd, in the newspaper, and on impulse called Sneyd to ask under false pretenses whether he had a passport. Sneyd did not, and Ray subsequently obtained one in Sneyd's name, he testified.

Ray subsequently flew to England, then Lisbon, Portugal, where he tried to obtain passage to either Biafra or Angola, but failed, he said. He re-

Georgia prison rioting leaves 1 dead, 3 hurt

REIDSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A group of white inmates attacked black inmates with prison-made weapons at the Georgia State Prison today, killing one man and injuring three others before guards restored order, prison officials said.

The disturbance — the second major violent incident at the facility in less than a month — ended and all inmates were locked in their cells, according to a spokeswoman for the state prison system.

It was not known how many inmates were involved in the incident.

Sara Passmore, spokeswoman for the State Department of Offender Rehabilitation, said inmates in the prison's M building, a maximum-security cellblock, were going to work details about 7:30 a.m. when the incident started.

She said inmates in M building had continued to go to work details after a July 23rd incident in which one guard and two inmates were killed. The M building inmates, who are housed in single cells, had not been involved in that incident.

Since the earlier disturbance, officials have had daily inspections for weapons, and many work details have been curtailed.

Duane Riner, a spokesman for Gov. George Busbee, said when Busbee was informed of the latest incident, he called it "another of the deplorable, blind racial hatred-type of incidents which results in wanton retaliation."

The July 23rd riot had been the latest in a series at the prison this year in which four inmates and a guard have been killed.

Busbee has taken emergency steps to increase security measures at the south Georgia prison and is considering a $15 million to $20 million program to convert the facility into single cells.

A federal judge also has ordered the prison population reduced and white and black inmates temporarily segregated.

About 2,350 inmates are housed at the prison, down from 2,800 earlier this year.

It's not a mistake

When Clifford Nutter called the Post Office in Midland Tuesday to report the U.S. flag on his new 15-cent stamp had 15 stripes — one for each penny it costs — they didn't believe him. Until they counted the stripes themselves.

The new stamp, showing an unfurled flag with 15 rather than the traditional 13 stripes, went on sale Tuesday in rolls. And the Midland Post Office has thousands more on sheets which are scheduled to go on sale later.

Actually, it's not a mistake. The U.S. Postal Service in Washington reports the stamp in question is the "Fort McHenry stamp," a picture of the flag as it looked during the War of 1812. At that time, there were 15 states, and the flag carried both 15 stars and 15 stripes. In 1818, the 13 stripes were re-adopted, and have been the regulation number ever since.

Nevertheless, Nutter caused some consternation at the Post Office when he called with his information.

"I always look at stamps," he said. "I used to collect stamps I always look for mistakes."

So when his company, HNG

Jake and Ollie Mae Schiro are sort of home-grown Mutt and Jeff

INDEPENDENCE, La. — Jake and Ollie Mae Schiro make for a most agreeable couple to be so outwardly different.

They're sort of a Mutt 'n' Jeff but without all the snickering and dead pan comedy.

You can bet your choice spot in the southern Louisiana swamps that they're good, honest people who have about as many quirks as any of the so-called "average" mister and missus in the country.

She's the tall one. At 6-foot-1, Ollie Mae towers over her man.

"I was third from the caboose," she says of her family; there were 15 children. Seven are living. "Momma was short and stout; my daddy, tall and thin. I take after my daddy."

Jake drinks pots of home-brewed coffee, as he whiles away the time smoking cigarettes and talking to any who'll listen on the front porch of their cast-in-the-wilds frame house. It's almost older than both of them put together.

She imbibes of the brew, too. Neither likes chicory chips in their coffee.

About three years ago, Ollie Mae cut out smoking after she, like John "The Duke" Wayne, lost a lung under the knife.

But her misfortune — she was a three pack a day smoker — with cigarettes doesn't seem to faze Jake.

"I cough early in the morning until, sometimes, I clear out." Then, he follows that first-thing-in-the-morning cigarette with coffee.

He's got a pronounced Cajun accent, and her's is standard Midwestern, though they were born just a parish apart. In fact, she was born in the very house they call home. It has survived much, including hurricanes.

Both are retired. He was a cabinet-maker. She, for 16 years, drove the school bus owned by her enterprising baby brother, Walter Whiddon Sr., 52.

Introspectively, Jake considers his surname — Schiro — and figures he must be of Greek origin. Faintly,

Elvis: Kingly but mere mortal man; so where did he leave the rest?

Editor's Note: Today is the first anniversary of the death of Elvis Presley.

By JIM PARKER
R-T Staff Writer

By 11 p.m. the temperature outside was still on 85. The humidity registered about the same. Inside, the air conditioning had long since been relegated to oblivion by the press of sweaty humanity.

There was laughter, some of it louder — a little more forced maybe — than called for, the sound of pop tops being pulled, the occasional clicking of Zippo lighters, loud, and mostly rough but good-humored talk and woven through it all was the crackling radio sound of the Chris Noel Armed Forces Radio show.

Across the table from me was my brother. He was still new to Vietnam, new enough so that, like most of his unit, he was a bright red from the sun. It was Christmas Eve, and we hadn't seen each other in more than a year.

Doesn't seem much like Christmas was the well worn remark making the rounds. And it really didn't.

Somewhere along there the husky-voiced Miss Noel now a Midlander, announced a Presley song and dedicated it to all of us. Slowly at first, then kind of broken and upbeat, the smoky melody of "Blue Christmas" began twining its way into the canvas and plywood enlisted club and the other sounds jerked their way to a halt. Some turned up the volume and, for the next three minutes or so, several hundred separate worlds passed silently within touching distance.

Eyes softened into wistful — and on some faces — misty gazes that had nothing to do with a dusty little place named Cu Chi. The gazes drew pictures of snowy yards, crispy mornings, pretty girls, laughing children, parents, friends, parties... other times, other worlds. There wasn't another mention of how unlike Christmas it was.

Like millions of people my age, I grew up with Elvis. He was probably the first rock singer I really paid attention to. Sometime around the age of 12, I started listening for his

Mattox delivers Ruby gun to House

REP. JIM MATTOX, D-Tex., holds the pistol that Jack Ruby used to kill Lee Harvey Oswald prior to turning it over to the chairman of the House Assassinations Committee Tuesday in Washington. Mattox obtained the gun from the executor of Ruby's will and turned it over to the committee after two months of bargaining. The pistol is a Colt .38-caliber Special. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas congressman hoping to "put to bed a lot of the conspiracy theories we've heard about Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby," has delivered to the House Assassinations Committee the pistol used by Ruby to kill Oswald.

The snub-nose Colt Cobra .38-caliber Special was hand delivered Tuesday by Dallas Democrat Jim Mattox to Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, the committee chairman.

"Mattox" move ended a "two-month war of words" between the committee and Dallas attorney Jules F. Mayer, said Mattox. As executor of Ruby's estate, Mayer had possession of the pistol and had refused to surrender it to the committee.

Stokes and the committee's chief counsel, G. Robert Blakey, wrote letters to both Mayer and Mattox assuring the Texans that the pistol would be returned intact to Mayer.

"Good Lord, how did that get out?" responded a committee spokesperson on Tuesday when asked to comment on the gun's delivery. "The committee makes all announcements after investigations have been complete."

"Obviously, I can't answer that question...I'm afraid I can't make any comment on that at all," continued Dawn Miller, administrative aide to Bl-

key. "The general public and the press wasn't aware of what I was doing until Mr. (Jules) Mayer released the story, I believe," said Mattox who added that the committee had arranged the elaborate security details for the Sunday flight Mattox made from Dallas to Washington with the gun.

Ruby died Jan. 3, 1967, owing almost $50,000 in federal and state taxes. Mayer claims the estate has been offered $125,000 for the pistol that Ruby carried into the basement of the Dallas police department on Nov. 24, 1963, two days after President John F. Kennedy had been assassinated in Dallas.

Once in the crowded basement, Ruby pulled the pistol from his waistband and fired one shot into Oswald as scores of police officers and millions of television viewers watched.

"The logical question is what does the committee hope to establish with the gun almost 15 years after the event," added Mattox. "There have been a wide assortment of conspiracy theories floating around...including the theory that Ruby missed and the Dallas police killed Oswald and then rigged the ballistics test. The committee doesn't feel it can finish its investigation without doing the (ballistics) tests and seeing if the gun has been engaged in any other criminal activity. "I'd like to see the investigation completed and all the theories put to bed," he added.

OSHA charges firm with seven violations in fatal accident

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Charging two "willful" and five "serious" violations of federal safety rules, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has issued citations to a Tennessee construction firm in connection with a June 2 accident here that killed one man and injured five others.

The OSHA citations allege the Florida Construction Co. of Chattanooga, Tenn., willfully allowed workers to overload a ladder at a street interchange under construction, causing the ladder to collapse. OSHA officials also claim the ladder design and construction were not inspected by a "competent" person.

The federal agency has proposed fines totaling $15,840 for the alleged violations.

Gerald Baty, OSHA area director, said the citations were issued Aug. 1. The firm reportedly received them Aug. 4 and notified Baty's Houston office immediately of plans to appeal the charges.

However, Haze Latham, superintendent of the company, said Tuesday that he had no comment on the citations because "I have not been made aware of any citations."

Baty claimed he "contacted Mr. Latham myself about the citations at the first of August, so I know he received those citations."

The "serious" violations include allegations the company allowed the interchange platforms, more than 33 above the ground, to be protected only by a single cable without a midrail or toeboard. OSHA officials said the ladder was reportedly 50 feet in length and lacked landings at every 12 feet of vertical rise.

Euel Bazemore, 54, a native of Lyons, Ga., was killed in the accident after he and five other workers fell from the ladder.

Those injured have all been released from local hospitals.

Other serious violations include OSHA allegations that the company failed to construct a barricade in accessible areas within the swing radius of a crawler crane at the construction site, which would prevent employees from being crushed by the machinery.

Baty said the crane operator reportedly was allowed to leave the machine with a load suspended. And he said employees were allowed to pass or stand under a load on the hood of the crane.

"I must say that I do not know anything about any of this. But I will say that even though I'm not familiar with the details, I know that we will certainly appeal any charges made against this company of a willful violation," said Robert Kenzie, executive vice president of Florida, from his Chattanooga office.

A willful violation means an employer either intentionally violated a safety rule or was aware of a life-threatening hazard, but made no reasonable effort to correct it.

Carter unveiling plans to aid nation's cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, in an effort to provide momentum for his troubled urban policy, is unveiling a number of personal directives to aid the nation's cities.

The president, acting in several key areas where legislation is not required, also hopes to aid other elements of his urban policy foundering on Capitol Hill.

The president scheduled a mid-afternoon session today to sign several executive orders. Included are directives that:

—Require all major legislation to be analyzed for its impact on cities.

City officials, who have long sought such reviews, contend that federal policies since World War II have inadvertently hurt central cities.

—Set up an effort to increase federal purchasing from firms in areas of high unemployment, with a goal of using federal purchasing power to expand economic opportunities in areas of urban distress.

—Give priority to central cities in areas where new federal buildings are needed. In recent years, many such facilities have gone to well-off suburbs, contributing to the decline of downtowns.

—Establish an interagency group to coordinate the implementation of federal urban programs. City officials say a White House-directed task force is needed because many federal aid programs cut across departmental lines.

"These administrative changes could be as important as millions of dollars," said a spokesman for the National League of Cities. "We're pleased that the president is finally taking these steps."

All four initiatives were previously announced in the rough, but it has taken months to work out the details.

Three balloonists nearing two-thirds mark of trip

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — With nearly two-thirds of their trip behind them, the crew of the silver and black Double Eagle II inched closer to Europe today, as their ground staff talked of a Thursday landing that would complete the first manned balloon crossing of the Atlantic.

The three balloonists were expected to set an endurance record today for time in flight during an attempted Atlantic crossing. The old record is 107 1/2 hours, set by Ed Yost on Oct. 5, 1976, when he was forced to land 200 miles east of the Azores.

Spokesman Dave McClure said the three were 425 miles west of Ireland, heading due east, early today.

He estimated the two-thirds mark probably would be passed sometime this afternoon. He said the craft was moving about 20 mph at an altitude of about 21,000 feet.

McClure said "everybody is in good condition" and that it was uncertain where the helium-filled balloon would land if the crossing succeeded. "It could be Ireland," he said. "Or it could be England or France. We're just not sure. The course is fluid. They have to follow the weather and the wind."

The balloon encountered North Atlantic showers Tuesday, the first inclement weather of the trip, but the balloonists were prepared for it. They have a portable heater in the gondola and were bundled warmly in underwear purchased specially for the trip.

The balloonists, Ben Abruzzo, 48, Maxie Anderson, 44, and Larry Newman, 31, all of Albuquerque, N.M., lifted off late Friday from Presque Isle, Maine.

Two of them, Abruzzo and Anderson, traveled 2,950 miles in 66 hours in an attempt last year to cross the Atlantic in Double Eagle I. It was forced to ditch five miles off the coast of Ireland.

The crossing by balloon has been unsuccessfully tried on 17 recorded occasions. Seven fliers, including one woman, died trying.

Former president to be in San Angelo today

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Former president Gerald Ford will hold a press conference here this afternoon before attending a fund-raising reception from which reporters have been banned.

The former chief executive was scheduled to attend a fund-raiser for Kerrville Republican Tom Loeffler's campaign against Nelson Wolff, D-San Antonio, for the 21st Congressional District seat.

The only news persons allowed at the invitation-only reception this afternoon will be managerial-level individuals invited only as community leaders and not as reporters. The ban reportedly was imposed by Ford.

Invitations to the reception were mailed last week, but Monday two that were issued to San Angelo Standard-Times editors were rescinded. Both men were told that their wives would still be welcome.

Other members of news media management who also were invited received telephoned assurances Tuesday that their presence at the function was welcome, as long as they attended as community leaders and possible donors to the Loeffler campaign and not as reporters.

Mary Lou Grier, a spokeswoman for Loeffler's San Antonio headquarters, said any media persons at any level contacted Tuesday who refused to agree to the no-reporting guidelines would not be allowed to attend the reception.

Howard Adkins, a staff member of the Austin public relations firm directing Loeffler's campaign, said invitations issued to some news executives would be unaffected since it was his view that they would "act on the managerial level" rather than as reporters.

Adkins said the reception will be closed to the press because "it's a fund-raising reception and indicates support for Loeffler by people who may or may not want to be identified with him or with Ford."

Current campaign finance regulation require that persons contributing more than $50 to a political campaign be identified on campaign finance reporting forms.

Adkins told the Standard-Times he wanted to make clear there was "nothing to hide" and his chief concern was that with 50 or more reporters and photographers expected for the Ford visit there would be too many people milling about the reception room if all were allowed in.

But after Ford's Vail, Colo., headquarters rejected the idea of a pool reporter being allowed to attend, Adkins said "it is President Ford's wish" that no press be allowed.

Asked why Ford objected, Mrs. Grier said he "always does it that way."

Loeffler, who worked for a time as one of Ford's legislative liaisons on energy matters, told the Standard-Times he was not in charge of the reception and knew nothing of the rescinded invitations until telephoned by a reporter.

He said he felt confident that the former president's appearance in San Angelo would "get all the proper coverage."

Deputies search for man in reported rape attempt

Midland County sheriff's deputies today are searching for a man who allegedly attempted to rape a 23-year-old Midland nurse's aide early Tuesday morning.

A composite drawing was being compiled by Midland Police Department officers of the man, described as white, 25 to 30 years old, 6 feet tall, about 200 pounds and with blond hair.

The woman told officers she was walking north on Rankin Highway about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday, having left the Doll House Lounge. She said a man in a red car told her to get in. When she refused, she told officers, the man slapped her and threw her into the back seat.

According to a spokesman for the sheriff's office, the woman reportedly was driven to a point on Cotton Road 1.7 mile south of County Road 140 West and taken from the car. The man ordered her to remove her clothes and tore her blouse and jeans, the woman told officers. He reportedly told her, "You're going to pay for what you did."

The spokesman said the woman told deputies that she then kicked him in the groin and ran away. The incident was reported at 4:18 a.m. Tuesday.

Soviet Union given 'fairly unsubtle' warning to close Tass agency in U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The United States reportedly has given the Soviet Union "a fairly unsubtle warning" to close its Tass news agency office here.

The San Francisco Examiner quoted State Department spokesman Hodding Carter on Tuesday as saying the United States issued the warning to protest the treatment of American reporters in Russia.

Carter reportedly said the State Department told Tass that its San Francisco bureau was "at peril" and "it would be a good idea" to close it.

A State Department spokesman in Washington contacted by The Associated Press said he knew nothing about the Examiner story.

The Examiner reported the State Department's statement was less than an explicit order to close the two-man news bureau, but that Carter called it "a fairly unsubtle warning."

The Soviets maintain three Tass bureaus in this country — in New York, Washington and San Francisco. American correspondents in Russia are accredited only to Moscow.

Labor reform defeat leaves union leaders at loss

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a boxer still dazed from his last fight, organized labor is stumbling around in search of a way to avenge the dramatic defeat of its labor law reform bill.

So far, union leaders seem to be punching at the air.

"There's the feeling we have to do something," an AFL-CIO strategist conceded recently. "But no one knows what. We're groping for new ideas."

Labor, which had made passage of the administration-backed bill its top legislative priority of the year, was dealt a stunning blow in June when a Senate filibuster by opponents sent the measure back to a committee, where it likely will die.

For some union officials, the loss was significant enough to prompt a re-examination of the labor movement's objectives and political strategies.

The AFL-CIO conducted a postmortem at its executive council meeting in Chicago last week. But out of the discussions came no redirections or new tactics. So, labor's veteran leaders fell back on their tried-and-true formula: help elect your friends and defeat your enemies in the congressional elections and then try to pass the bill in the next Congress.

The problem with retracing such a route is that it does not recognize signs that organized labor's clout on Capitol Hill may be weakening, as the labor law defeat suggests.

And, it does not confront labor's long-standing tactical flaw of backing congressional candidates who, despite a record of anti-union votes, pick up labor endorsements because their opponents are even more anti-union.

The AFL-CIO, a master of lobbying techniques, won House passage of the labor bill last fall. At the time, labor had contended that it was seeking only modest changes to stop employers from using loopholes in the law to violate rights of workers engaged in union organizing.

The symbolic importance of the bill grew, though, as a coalition of business interests jumped in to do battle.

Labor still had the edge. Backed by a Democratic president it helped elect, the federation mounted one of its most intensive arm-twisting campaigns on behalf of the bill in a Senate controlled by its friends.

In the end, the labor and administration forces found themselves out-lobbied by business, which mobilized a potent counter-offensive against a bill it claimed would put small employers at the mercy of big union organizing drives.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who fought at labor's side, said he had never seen so extensive a lobbying effort as that by business, and blamed Congress for being "too responsive to single-issue lobbyists."

AFL-CIO President George Meany grumbled that it was a "resurgence of right-wing feelings throughout the country" that had grabbed the Senate's ear.

As Meany saw it, that same right-wing fervor is behind the "taxpayers revolt" and the opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment.

"I'm sure that this battle will go on and we will be in there fighting as we have been in the past," Meany told reporters after huddling with his executive council last week.

"Mr. Meany, do you have any new ways, any new plans to join the battle?" asked one reporter.

"Well, actually there is no new plan," the aging labor boss responded.

Instead, there is the old plan. "We have had setbacks in legislation for many, many years, but we keep right on, and when you look back over the years, the progress has always been in our direction," Meany said.

That kind of talk came as a disappointment to some of the AFL-CIO's younger lieutenants, who had hoped Meany and his council would be working on a new knock-out punch.

Washington now top U.S. market for psychiatry

By JURATE KAZICKAS

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are enough psychiatrists per psyche in this town to make it the mental health spa of America, but politicians are still paranoid about their shrinks.

"There is a real reluctance when someone is in a high-profile public service job to identify a problem that needs psychiatric help," said Dr. William Lukash, the White House physician. "There's still a stigma attached to seeing a psychiatrist."

"It is not considered a political asset to be seen coming out of a psychiatrist's office, unless it concerns the wife," said Dr. Zigmund Lebensohn, a psychiatrist in private practice. "People who hold sensitive jobs or are in Congress do worry about it being known that they go to a psychiatrist."

And yet, Washington is inundated by mental health specialists. The approximately 1,350 psychiatrists in Washington represent a higher ratio relative to the population than any other area in the country, says the American Psychiatric Association. Many of them, however, are engaged in research or work for such government agencies as the National Institute of Mental Health.

While Washington has one psychiatrist for every 511 residents, New York State has one for 3,319 and California one for 4,658.

Some doctors call that anxiety about seeing a shrink "the Eagleton syndrome," referring to the case of Sen. Thomas Eagleton who was dropped as presidential candidate George McGovern's running mate in 1972 when it was reported that the Missouri Democrat had been hospitalized for psychiatric care.

The stigma attached to psychiatry was further underscored by the comments of Dr. Peter Bourne, a psychiatrist, upon his resignation last month as President Carter's chief drug abuse adviser.

Bourne used a fictitious name when he wrote a sedative prescription for an aide who was having emotional problems. He said he did so because he said he wanted to protect his patient's confidentiality "both with regard to her taking medication and to the creation of a record anywhere that she had been seen by a psychiatrist."

"Bourne did a great disservice to the profession by making it even more shameful to see a psychiatrist," Lebensohn told a reporter. "If anything, the fact that a person in a high-pressure job is seeking professional help should be viewed as a positive step."

Several psychiatrists in private practice spoke in interviews of the continuing prejudice against therapy, the special pressures of life in Washington and the impact of daily politics even on patients who work outside the government.

"This is a very competitive town and that sense of trying to outdo everybody washes right down from the president through Congress to the bureaucrat," said Dr. Norman Tarmarkin, who practices in the capital's fashionable Georgetown section.

"Washington is also notorious as the town where you can be riding high one moment and be down at the bottom the next. Look at what happened to Nixon, (former budget director) Bert Lance, Bourne. It's a fragile existence for a lot of people."

Lukash, while not a psychiatrist, said he often finds himself in a counseling role "on an informal basis" with White House workers.

Some he eventually refers to psychiatrists, "but when the problems are marital I encourage them to see a family or marriage counselor," he said. "That seems to be a more acceptable solution with much less stigma attached than going to see a psychiatrist."

"You kind of get beaten down on this federal (funding) stuff. There's so much money available," Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said today.

New York's tourist' campaign has lesson

By DOLORES BARCLAY

NEW YORK (AP) — If a vampire and a catchy disco tune can sell New York, can they peddle America too?

The success of the New York State Chamber of Commerce's "I Love New York" campaign has prompted many to ask if a similar television commercial can be made for the entire nation.

"There's really a problem in Washington. They don't know how important foreign tourists are," said William S. Doyle, deputy commissioner of the state Chamber of Commerce.

"There should be a Berlin airlift in reverse. We should be flying people in. Ten-percent of the trade deficit is for tourism. U.S. tourists spend more outside the country than foreign tourists spend inside."

"We're just doing nothing to advertise ourselves outside the country."

The New York campaign is based around four simple words: "I Love New York."

There are several ads being aired. The Broadway show tour commercial features members of the casts of "A Chorus Line," "The Wiz," "The Gin Game," "The King and I," "Annie," "Grease," "The Magic Show" and "Chapter Two" singing the uptempo tune by Steve Karmen, "I Love New York."

Frank Langella appears last in his role of Dracula. He swirls his cape in billows of mist and intones in the full force of Transylvania: "I love New York — especially in the eef-fening."

Since the ad was first aired in February, attendance at Broadway shows has climbed 20 percent with $2.9 million in ticket sales, Doyle said. And hotel occupancy in the city increased 10.3 percent in May, compared with May of last year.

The state has three commercials touting travel upstate. There's one for water, one for wilderness and one for the state itself. And tourism is now booming in the state, Doyle said.

"Tourism in New York had been stagnant — flat, for over a decade," he said. "New York didn't have a map, let alone a package or an ad. The state never promoted itself."

"In 1976, our budget for tourism was $200,000. Now it's up to $10 million."

The U.S. Travel Service maintains, however, that an ad campaign proclaiming love for the U.S. will not work.

"There are six different markets, with different spending patterns, and tourists who come at different times of the year," a spokesperson said. "Our philosophy is to tailor our promotions to each market. We have offices in Canada, Mexico, Japan, the United Kingdom, West Germany and France."

But Doyle, a former Chase Manhattan Bank vice president in charge of marketing, said he will continue to lobby in Washington for an "I love the U.S." campaign.

"Johnson and Nixon both called for spending more money on foreign tourism, but Congress isn't interested," he said. "The tourism business is so fragmented. There's no clout. You can get financing for grain, but not for promoting tourism to get those dollars in."

BRIDGE Insure contract by safety finesse

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

As we continue a week-long study of safety plays we see a case in which the right maneuver may cost a trick. This is the premium you pay to insure your contract.

Opening lead — ♥ Q

South can get all five club tricks by taking the king first and then leading toward dummy finesse—if West has two or three clubs headed by the queen. This play will still bring in four clubs if West has Q-10-x-x of clubs.

This "normal" play will fail if East has Q-10-x-x of clubs. The odds are heavily against so bad a break, but South can still make his slam if he doesn't mind reducing his chance to win a 30-point overtrick.

PLAYS ACE

At the second trick South leads his low club to dummy's ace. Then he returns a low club from dummy.

If East plays the ten or queen, South has an easy time. If East plays low, South must finesse with the nine.

The finesse wins, and South continues clubs to make the slam. If the finesse lost, only one club would be left out; and South could capture that club later with the king.

If East discards on the second round of clubs, South takes the king and leads a club toward dummy's jack.

South should make the safety play at rubber bridge but should make the optimistic "normal" play in a pair tournament.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold: S-KQJ; H-73; D-AQJ; C-AJ654. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club. The hand is too strong for an opening bid of 1 NT since you have not only 18 points in high cards but also a good five-card suit. Treat this as though it were a 19-point hand.

U.S. textile industry seeks tariff protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industry and union organizations joined forces Tuesday in calling for special tariff protection for the American textile industry.

Testifying before a Senate finance subcommittee, they advocated passage of legislation prohibiting U.S. negotiators from approving a reduction in the existing tariffs on textiles and textile apparel.

"I am here to tell you that imports have been devastating to our industry," said William A. Klopman, chairman of the International Trade Committee of the American Textile Manufacturers Association.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., would prohibit U.S. negotiators from approving a reduced tariff to trading partners during international trade negotiations.

The United States is currently involved in international trade negotiations with more than 100 other nations. U.S. negotiators at the talks in Geneva, Switzerland, have offered to reduce the existing tariffs on textiles by about 25 percent.

Salt loss not vital

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Is it a good idea to take extra salt in hot weather if one is perspiring a lot?—Phil H.

DEAR PHIL: Generally speaking, you will be getting plenty of salt in your diet to counterbalance any losses through perspiration. So I wouldn't advise anything like salt tablets unless you've been sweating heavily for a long time. And it is better to check your doctor before taking salt tablets.

If you get heat cramps, which generally affect the legs and abdomen first, some extra salt may be needed. Dr. Bernard Slosberg, who teaches emergency medicine at Johns Hopkins, explains that heat cramps indicate there is an imbalance of salt and water. A standard treatment is to mix one teaspoon of salt in a quart of water, and drink eight ounces of the solution every 15 minutes.

The same solution is used for heat exhaustion (pale, clammy skin; profuse sweating; weakness; headache; and sometimes nausea). Heat stroke (high temperature; hot, red, dry skin; perhaps unconsciousness) is an emergency. Drench the victim with cold water and get him to the nearest hospital emergency room.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: I seem to be bothered more than I used to be by floating spots in one eye. The last time I had an eye examination, the doctor said they were nothing to worry about—and to just forget them. But I can't help worrying that this may be something serious. What do you think?—Robert G.

DEAR ROBERT: Floaters, as they are called, are most often absolutely harmless—just tiny specks moving around in the soft, gelatinous vitreous that fills the eyeball. Everybody is bound to have some floaters. But if there has been any noticeable change, you should certainly check your eye doctor immediately.

One set of symptoms that should always be considered an emergency is a sudden increase in floaters combined with unusual flashes of light when the eye moves. This may be due to a tear in the retina, which could lead to full retinal detachment unless promptly repaired.

If this ever happens to you—or to anyone else in your family—call your doctor right away, or get to the nearest eye clinic. These small tears can be mended very easily by modern methods—including laser treatment—whereas results are apt to be much less satisfactory if treatment is delayed.

As a general rule, any sudden or unusual change in your eyesight should be checked without delay. Eyesight is too precious to take any chances with.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Is there pencil in vaccines?—Mrs. D.I.

State Insurance Department said needing shakeup

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House investigators have been told the State Insurance Department needs a shake-up that would separate the rate-making board from the agency that looks over thousands of Texas insurance companies.

"I think it would be best to let the governor appoint the state commissioner of insurance instead of the board," former State Insurance Board chairman Hugh Yantis told the House Investigating Committee Tuesday.

"I don't think the board has the time to be a truly rate-making body and at the same time be as close to the agency as it has been in the past. There needs to be a further separation of the board and the agency. This means the role of the commissioner would be far more important than it has been."

Yantis was recently turned down by the Texas Senate as Gov. Dolph Briscoe's appointee. A new State Insurance Board chairman has not been named.

Yantis was called by the investigating committee after Monday testimony by C. Daniel Hurlburt, former Houston insurance agent who lost his license for selling unapproved group health policies. Hurlburt said he and his partner, A. C. Hovater, were duped by Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co. in 1974-75. Hurlburt said they sold Nation-Wide Health Insurance Trust plans after being assured by Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co. the plans had been approved by the state insurance board. Gulf Atlantic denied this.

Yantis said the Hurlburt-Hovater incident happened during the time that Joe Christie was state insurance board chairman. Christie resigned in September, 1977, to make an unsuccessful race for U.S. Senate and Yantis took his place.

"In summary, everything that Hurlburt wrote to the board while I was there was turned over to the Travis County district attorney for use as he saw fit," Yantis said. He said the Travis County grand jury made an investigation of certain actions of the State Insurance Department at the time.

Yantis said there was no indication during the 11 months he was chairman that any favoritism was given any insurance company.

He was asked if it was a "common practice" for insurance policies to be sold without prior approval by the insurance board.

"I would not say it was 'common practice,'" Yantis said, "but it does happen from time to time and if it does it should be corrected."

He said such action is under the direct supervision of the state commissioner. . . The board has general knowledge of what the commissioner does but not specific knowledge."

Tuesday afternoon, Richard Crook, state liquidator for Nation-Wide Health Insurance Trust, said he had never been able to locate a group insurance policy among the firm's papers, or anything other than documents to show "this was anything but an insurance agency acting as an insurance company."

Crook said there are $177,000 in claims outstanding, including $137,000 to the Pasadena Independent School District, mostly for premiums deducted from salaries and $8,000 to the Pasadena school district.

Crook estimated there must be at least 1,000 policy holders involved.

House appears certain to cut federal deficits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House appears certain to cut the anticipated deficit in a $490.5 billion spending plan for fiscal 1979 that was approved by its Budget Committee a week ago.

But how much will be cut and which party will get credit — Democrats and Republicans are pushing separate proposals — are questions still to be answered.

Rep. Robert N. Glaimo, D-Conn., committee chairman, is proposing amendments to his panel's product that would reduce the anticipated deficit to $40.5 billion. That is $3.2 billion below what the committee suggested.

Glaimo's amendment would hold the spending figure for the year at $490.5 billion, but raise the anticipated revenue figure from $446.8 billion to $450 billion.

The change in the tax estimate resulted from accepting the House's passage of a $16.3 billion tax cut. The committee had originally left room for a larger reduction, including a partial Social Security rollback the House rejected.

But a Democratic member of the Budget Committee, Rep. Joseph L. Fisher of Virginia, said he will push for a $5 billion cut in spending.

House Republican leaders rallied behind a much more drastic revision that would slash $10.5 billion from the spending side of the budget and make room for the first installment of the GOP-endorsed plan for reducing income tax rates one-third over the next three years.

The Republican strategy was to try to force a vote early on the budget totals they recommended and then leave it to the committees that handle spending bills to make them conform.

Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., called the Budget Committee's recommendation "a frontal assault on the pocketbooks of every taxpayer" and said the House, spurred by the example of California's Proposition 13 and by continuing inflation, was likely to approve the Republican approach.

A similar GOP proposal on the first non-binding budget resolution adopted in the spring lost by only six votes.

Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York, senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, said the combination of inflation pushing incomes into higher brackets and the increased Social Security tax would produce "a monster of a tax increase" unless Congress voted more relief than the House tax cut bill provides.

Projecting such trends into the future, the Republicans said a family of four earning $17,000 in 1979 would be paying $3,859 in taxes by 1983 under Democratic plans, but $715 less under Republican proposals.

Glaimo, however, hailed the revised committee proposal as promising the lowest deficit in five years. The spending ceiling, he said, would be $10 billion under the figure President Carter recommended in January and the deficit $20 billion less than the administration's January forecast.

Little hope offered for Amarillo couple

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A bullet-riddled van is the only trace law enforcement officials have of an Amarillo couple who disappeared while honeymooning in Colorado last week.

But while the families of James and Margene Judge have maintained a phone-side vigil, they don't agree on the couple's fate.

Arizona lawmen stopped the Judge's van Friday in a hail of gunfire as it charged through a roadblock on a desert highway.

In the van were Randy Greenawald, a convicted killer and prison escapee, and three sons of fellow escapee Gary Tison. One of Tison's sons died in the shooting and lawmen assume the elder Tison escaped into the desert.

Although Colorado authorities offer little hope, James Judge Sr. of Amarillo is convinced the newlyweds are still alive.

He said he believes it is "only a matter of time before he and his wife get official confirmation of their faith."

But Margene's father, F.H. Davis of Borger, said he and his wife have "all but given up hope."

"If it wasn't for all the phone calls from friends and people I don't even know, I don't know how we would have ever made it this far," Davis said.

However he said the family no longer expects a phone call with good news. Instead they are prepared and waiting for a call confirming their worst fears.

"We haven't given up on them," Judge said. "I really and truly believe the kids are still alive. You wait and see. James is going to outsmart that fat son-of-a-dog and come out of there and snap right back into life."

Judge's faith is unshakable. Even if their apparent abductors tried to kill them, Judge said, he believes "James was able to get away."

Judge said he and his wife are "standing up pretty good" during their long waits by the phone. "Sure there are times when we both break down. But we are both holding up. I am still able to grin."

And Judge said no matter what the news, they will accept it. "Whatever it is, it will be God's will and we must all obey God's will."

Looters, vandals plague strike-riddled Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Vandals sabotaged a power substation early today, authorities said, knocking out power for this city of 650,000 people already hit by police and firefighter strikes that threaten to spread into a citywide general strike. Some looting was reported.

The blackout, which occurred shortly after midnight, affected all of the state's largest city and surrounding Shelby County, officials said. Power began coming back on 90 minutes later and was completely restored about 2 1/2 hours after the outage hit.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman said at an early morning news conference that the blackout was "probably due to sabotage," but a spokeswoman for Memphis Light, Gas & Water Division said the substation "was entered and that switches were thrown" to break circuits and cut off power.

Chapman said the FBI was assisting local authorities in investigating the break-in at the substation about 15 miles east of downtown Memphis.

Paula Payne, a spokeswoman for the utility, said someone threw a series of switches at the big substation, cutting off a main electrical power link with the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Mother thinks judge should declare child legally dead

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The mother of a 2-year-old boy placed on a life-support system 50 days ago has asked a judge to declare the youngster legally dead because "he won't never, ever be able to function like a normal little boy."

"The doctors believe he's dead. I believe he's dead. And I think the court should rule that way," Linda Schrier, 31, testified Tuesday in Polk County Juvenile Court.

Matthew Schrier was placed on a life-support system at Iowa Methodist Hospital June 28 and authorities believe his injuries stemmed from a sexual assault the previous day. His father, Richard, 24, has been charged with first-degree sexual abuse.

Doctors say Matthew's brain died July 5, but before they could disconnect the life-support system, the child's grandparents, Richard and Shirley Schrier, obtained an injunction to keep him on the system.

The hearing, now in its second week before Judge Richard Strickler, is to determine whether the state, Mrs. Schrier or the boy's grandparents should have custody of Matthew and make the ultimate decision on the support system.

The child's grandparents contend Matthew is alive and should not be removed from the equipment.

Four doctors have testified that Matthew is legally dead. Dr. John Bakody, appointed by the court as an impartial expert, said he believed the support system should be removed.

Low cigarette tax draws tourists and smugglers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Nearly 1.2 billion packs of cigarettes were sold by retailers in North Carolina last year, but only about 740 million of them likely were inhaled in this tobacco state.

The rest, 38 percent, were taken to other states — by tourists who filled car trunks with cartons by the dozen while passing through the state with the lowest cigarette tax, or by smugglers who hauled cases by the hundreds in huge trucks and made staggering profits.

"Buttlegging" it is called, and it's big business.

Law enforcement efforts to stop the trade are hampered by the legality of most sales here and by the difficulty of tracing the cigarettes once they get to high-tax states where resale is illegal.

The illicit industry has flourished because of simple economics — North Carolina, which manufactures 52 percent of the nation's cigarettes, pays homage to the economic importance of tobacco by levying the nation's lowest cigarette tax, two cents a pack.

It doesn't take many illegal sales to generate a profit when packs bought at those prices, or as little as $3.50 a carton, are resold in places like New York City, where the tax is 23 cents a pack, or Pennsylvania, where it is 18 cents, or Florida, where it is 17 cents.

"Anybody'd be foolish not to do it at those prices," said a cigarette dealer, one of hundreds along the main North-South routes. He asked not to be named for fear of the growing interest in smuggling by the FBI and officials here and in northern states.

"If you're paying $7 or $7.50 a carton in New York and see them here for $3.50, you'll get a year's supply and maybe call Uncle Bob and see if he wants some too," he said. "So you end up getting about 300 cartons and pretty soon you've paid for your vacation."

But investigations in other states say that smuggling is not just a tourist operation but is often run by organized crime figures.

Legislation now before Congress would make

Nearly 1.2 billion packs of cigarettes were sold in tobacco-producing North Carolina last year by retailers, but only about 74 million of them are believed to have been smoked there. About 38 percent of the total was carried to other states, either by tourists who filled their car trunks with cartons or by smugglers. "Buttlegging" is big business in the state. (AP Laserphoto)

the interstate traffic a federal offense, giving the FBI jurisdiction in the trade. Another proposal would replace state cigarette taxes with a uniform federal tax, with a rebate to the states to compensate for lost tax revenues.

In New York, meanwhile, the State Assembly has passed a bill to reduce the state tax by one cent and eliminate the eight-cent New York City tax on cigarettes. The measure, which is stalled in the state Senate, is intended to reduce the smuggling.

The trade has meant an estimated $400 million in lost cigarette tax revenues for states other than North Carolina and, some fear, has given organized crime a foothold in legitimate businesses.

The cigarettes are resold at "discounted" prices on city black markets or are sold through legitimate retailers with fake state tax stamps.

"We think that clearly it's big business. Tourists are just a small part of it," says Milt Lopus, secretary of revenue in Pennsylvania, where three gangland-style slayings have been linked to cigarette smuggling in the past two years.

"It ranges from organized crime to individuals who just come down on their own and bring back a truckload. But we are seeing now that individual territory is being carved out here," he added.

Bulk cigarette sales are legal here, as long as North Carolina taxes are paid and the tax stamp affixed, and most cigarette stands will sell unlimited amounts, no questions asked. One investigator noted:

For big operators, a full truck might carry 60,000 cartons and, in Pennsylvania or New York, a smuggler could resell them with a 50 cent discount and still clear $1.30 or more a carton.

"You're just dealing with fantastic sums of money," said J. Phil Carlton, North Carolina secretary of crime control and public safety and the man in charge of the state's anti-smuggling efforts. "A $150,000-profit transaction is not unusual."

The trade has dramatically affected legitimate cigarette sales. A recent study by the North Carolina auditor's office, which estimated the amount of cigarettes going out of state, also found that based on taxes, 138 packs were sold for every person nationwide in 1977.

In North Carolina, however, per capita sale was 217 packs; in New York, it was 126 packs, and in Pennsylvania, 120 packs.

The state estimate says that of $19.5 million collected in cigarette taxes here last year, $8 million was from packs smoked elsewhere.

But North Carolina cigarette revenues have declined 10 percent in the past two years while smoking nationally has been on the rise, and some officials have credited crackdowns on the trade in other states.

Dominican Republic gains new president in transfer of power to opposition party

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Bolstered by U.S. backing, landowner-businessman Antonio Guzman becomes president of the Dominican Republic today in the island country's first peaceful transfer of power to an opposition party.

Twenty-one gun salvos boomed early this morning as the ceremonies began in the capital on the Caribbean.

More than 600 dignitaries were expected, among them Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to head a U.S. delegation including Ambassador Andrew Young and baseball great Hank Aaron.

There were no indications of any special security arrangements. But Santo Domingo was cleaner than it has been in months after a scrubbing and sweeping by special crews.

Guzman was to be sworn in by the president of the Senate, of which his opponents retained control in the election May 16, and then was to attend services at the Santo Domingo Cathedral.

Guzman says his biggest worry will be the shaky economy and that he will try to increase the national income and avoid a devaluation of the Dominican peso. The economy has been hit by the low price of sugar, the country's largest export, and the high price of oil, its biggest import.

U.S. support for Guzman, 67, and his Revolutionary Dominican Party was demonstrated when President Carter put pressure on military officers who attempted a coup by stopping the counting of votes in the presidential election when President Joaquin Balaguer, seeking a third term, fell behind.

The count resumed

after Carter warned of possible economic reprisals if the military disrupted the electoral process. Final returns gave the presidency and control of the lower house of Congress to Guzman's party but a majority in the Senate to Balaguer's Reformist Party.

On Tuesday, Lt. Gen. Dennis McAuliffe, commander of the U.S. Southern Command, called on Guzman, and the call was interpreted as a warning to the Dominican military not to make another coup attempt.

Guzman was agriculture minister under Juan Bosch, the center-leftist elected president in 1962 after the assassination of dictator Rafael Trujillo.

British health officials said Tuesday that an investigation determined the salmon apparently was tainted because the can had been damaged. They said a thin strip of metal had been shaved off its lip, and this caused small perforations that could have let air in. But they did not say how the can was damaged.

The salmon was canned in the Aleutian Islands by a subsidiary of Peter Pan Seafoods Inc. of Seattle, Wash., which said the British case was an isolated incident "in no way related to the type of salmon or canning operation."

All U.S.-canned salmon has been banned from sale in Britain because of the case, but so far no other tainted cans have been found among more than 1,100 recovered and analyzed.

British ban canned American salmon

PENANG, Malaysia (AP) — The Consumers' Association of Penang claimed today that the American canned salmon from which four Britons got botulism is being imported into Malaysia.

It called on the government to withdraw the salmon from the market immediately and ban all further imports.

Four persons were hospitalized for botulism poisoning in Britain two weeks ago after eating

Nuclear policy adrift

President Carter, at the Bonn summit, joined leaders of Western Europe and Japan in declaring that nuclear power is "indispensable" and pledging to reverse the slippage in their nuclear programs.

That pledge hardly will be credible until the administration and Congress deal more decisively with the nuclear issue in this country, as controversial as it is.

Only last May Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger was saying that nuclear power is "barely alive" as an energy option. The regulatory process has thrown so many uncertainties into the planning and construction of nuclear plants that utilities are discouraged by the high financial risks.

The answer to this lies in the Nuclear Siting and Licensing Act now stalled in Congress. It would clear out the underbrush of overlapping local, state and federal regulatory procedures which are stretching out the lead time for a nuclear project to an incredible 12 to 15 years.

W. G. Marguardt, president of Texas Electric Service Co., said here last week there is no way a utilities company can start and complete a nuclear plant under government conditions as they now exist.

Government agencies should be able to hear the experts on safety, environmental impact and other considerations in a nuclear project, give responsible public voices a chance to have their say, and come up with a firm yes or no within a reasonable time.

The regulatory obstacle course is only one problem. Another is the government's delay in making firm plans for permanent storage of nuclear waste.

the safety of reactors has lost credibility, a new issue to exploit. With a task force on waste management policy scheduled to report to the President on Oct. 1, we can hope the administration will end the uncertainty about how and where the unusable by-products of the uranium fuel cycle will be returned to earth.

We wish Mr. Carter would speak with as much clarity on nuclear policy at home as he did as a signatory on the seven-nation communique at Bonn. He remains equivocal toward plutonium reprocessing and the development of the breeder reactor as a follow-on to the present generation of nuclear power reactors - an attitude not shared by his fellow summiteers.

This nation's existing nuclear power plants have just had a banner year. They boosted their total power production last year by 31 percent over the figure for 1976.

They generated 12 percent of the electricity used by Americans, the equivalent of 425 million barrels of oil.

For a nation glutting the world with its cheapened currency to support its appetite for oil, it is inexcusable that the opportunity to shift more of our energy burden to the atom must be considered "barely alive."

run. "We could have put Band-aids on the energy program or on the Social Security system and saved ourselves a lot of political misery, but we didn't. We got hurt on the canal treaties. We knew civil service reform would be controversial. I guess if we called it 'Get the Bureaucrats' Bill' we'd get some support, but we can't do that."

"We had to arrange the summit for the Israelis and Egyptians next month because the prospect for everything falling apart was so great. Sadat was on the verge of throwing up his hands and leaving the peace table. It was bold, but necessary, and again, politically, it might be a step back."

"During those first five months when Jimmy was governor, back in Georgia, I was very political, and offered advice to win votes. But after a while I realized that political considerations would never carry you as far as a good record. It's the same here."

"We're living in the 'me' generation, and people take it out on their government. They've been frustrated because of Vietnam and Watergate, but even more they are dissatisfied with what happens to their tax dollars."

"Actually, the economy is strong, stable and diversified, but this is a time of dissatisfaction. I guess if Carter had a crisis, he could galvanize public support, but we can't do that. What do they want us to do, invade Canada?" He laughed.

Jordan gets exercised over the charge that President Carter isn't getting good advice. "That's a bum rap," he says, heatedly. "We've got Cy Vance, Harold Brown, Mondale and Bob Strauss — all of them old

Thailand is frightening refuge

WASHINGTON — For two years, we have been writing about the heinous slaughter of countless thousands of Cambodian men, women and children by the Khmer Rouge communists who now control that country. This terrible tragedy, which has befallen the gentle people of Cambodia, should outrage decent human beings the world over.

Now we have learned, from first-hand accounts, that the pitifully few Cambodians who manage to flee across the border into neighboring Thailand are being rewarded with even more misery and torment. They are cast into wretched, refugee compounds where they are beaten, raped and sometimes even murdered.

From July 1977, until February of this year, refugees told us, the Thai militia and border police turned away or shot most of the Cambodians trying to enter Thailand. Our sources estimated that more than 1,000 Cambodians were killed while trying to cross the border on the grounds they were Khmer Rouge agents.

Thai authorities and State Department officials denied that such bloodshed occurred. Nevertheless, the flow of refugees into Thailand has slowed to a trickle. Upwards of 600 Cambodians a month were crossing the border a year ago; about 40 a month are now reaching Thailand.

U.S. and Thai officials claim the decrease is due to the fact that the Khmer Rouge forces have cleared the population from the border areas.

Those who are now successful in their bid for freedom are immediately hustled off to internment centers for questioning by the Thai authorities. Cambodians who cannot prove they are genuine political refugees are sent to prison. Some are even dispatched back into Cambodia, where they face certain death at the hands of the Khmer Rouge.

From the temporary detention centers, the Cambodians who have been cleared are moved to permanent refugee camps, where they soon learn that their woes are far from over. Each family, no matter how large, is assigned one room in a barracks complex. The food they receive is superior to their Cambodian fare, but it is distributed spasmodically, and the amounts differ from camp to camp and month to month.

Sithen Kung, for example, spent nearly two years in Sarin Camp before he finally found asylum in the United States. Two of his best friends, he told our associate Tom Rosenstiel, were sent to life imprisonment by a camp official named Saman Mak simply because he didn't like them. Kung and his brother both reported they once saw a truckload of fellow refugees being hauled to jail for minor misbehavior.

The refugees fearfully refer to the corrupt and brutal camp commanders as the "Thai Gods." A former Cambodian soldier recalled how the "Thai Gods" mistreated a family interned at Kamput, a

Christina and her life in the Soviet Union

I guess the biggest thing that happened in the news this summer is the fact that Christina Onassis married a Soviet citizen and planned to live in Moscow. Since then Miss Onassis has returned to Athens and is not sure whether she will go back to Moscow. I can tell you what happened.

Art Buchwald

Christina was in her two-room apartment in Moscow when there was a knock at the door. "Hello, I am Mrs. Federov from across the way in 2-A. Welcome to the neighborhood. Why don't you invite me in for a cup of tea?"

"Won't you come in for a cup of tea?"

"Thank you, if it's not too much of a bother. My, what a lovely apartment. How many people you have living here?"

"There are three of us. My husband, my mother-in-law and myself."

"What a lucky girl to have such a big apartment with such few people. We have five in 2-A, not including myself. You wouldn't be interested in renting your daybed to my grandfather, would you?"

"No, thank you. We're not taking in boarders."

"It seems a pity to let so much space go to waste. You must be big with the housing commissar. So tell me, how does it feel to be a Russian housewife?"

"I love it. We're so happy. The only thing is, Mrs. Federov, I can't seem to get my husband's collars clean with this Red Star soap."

"Comrade newlywed, that is called in Soviet, ring-around-the-collar. All our men have it. If you don't have ring-around-the-collar the government knows you're not working hard enough, and they give you worse jobs."

"Then you don't think I should change detergents?"

"To what? How many soap companies do you think we have in this country?"

"There was something else, Mrs. Federov. I can't seem to get the cabbage smells out of my kitchen. Do you know of a deodorizer that will do the trick?"

"Lenin's Airwick. Just four sprays and your kitchen will smell fresh and beautiful."

"Where can I buy some?"

"You can't buy it. They haven't made it for three years. And don't worry about clean linoleum either. I haven't seen a can of wax in the store since my brother and sister-in-law moved in with us. I'll give you 100 rubles a month if you take my grandfather. He'll just sit in the chair and won't be any bother."

"Mrs. Federov, we really don't need the money. My main concern is getting dinner for my husband."

"Of course, I want to serve him meat."

"It's too late today. All the good meat is gone by 10 o'clock in the morning. You have to get in line at 7 a.m. at the People's Butcher Store if you want something for dinner."

"What will I do? Sergei will come home and his dinner won't be ready."

"What about giving him a TV dinner?"

"Do you have TV dinners in the Soviet Union?"

"No, but we will someday. It's in our next five-year plan."

"Well, thank you, Mrs. Federov, you've been a big help. There's a lot more to living in Moscow than I thought. I didn't realize there were so many consumer shortages."

"Bite your tongue. If you complain about shortages Orlov will have to report you."

"Who is Orlov?"

"He's the blockwarden. He reports on all of us to the KGB. Three reports on all you or Orlov, and you're going to have to take my grandfather in whether you want to or not."

Senate debates Carter's proposals in relation to college tuition relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, intent on providing college tuition tax relief for middle-income families, is debating whether to approve the grants favored by President Carter instead of — or in addition to — a new tax credit.

The president says the nation cannot afford both programs. He has been sharply critical of the Senate's proposed $500-per-student tuition tax credit, which was approved on a 65-27 vote Tuesday night.

Although the vote was lopsided enough to override any presidential veto, the margin by which the House approved its version of the credit last June was far short of the two-thirds majority necessary to override.

Even so, Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., chief sponsor of the bill, said the Senate vote was "a clear signal that tuition tax credits are preferred to the costly, cumbersome Carter proposal."

Final Senate action is expected today on a modified version of the expanded grants program that Carter proposed as an alternative to the tuition tax credit. A similar plan has passed the House.

The basic provision in the Carter plan would increase from $16,000 to $25,000 the maximum family income level for which tuition aid would be available. The grants would range from $1,800 a year at the $6,000 income level to $250 at the $25,000 level. Similar increases would be made in college loan programs.

Jukeboxes operating illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are approximately 268,000 jukeboxes operating illegally in the United States, the Library of Congress estimated today.

A new copyright law which took effect last Jan. 1 requires that jukebox operators obtain a license. The licenses cost $8 a year, but the fee is only $4 if the jukebox is played only in the second half of the year.

The federal agency said that of an estimated 400,000 jukeboxes in operation, only 132,000 have been licensed.

The new law provides that every public performance of a copyrighted musical work on an unlicensed jukebox is a copyright infringement.

Civil or, in some cases, criminal penalties may be assessed and other damages sought whenever a protected record is played on an unlicensed jukebox.

The license is designed to make it unnecessary for every operator of a jukebox to negotiate a separate contract with each copyright owner whose music is played.

The Copyright Office deducts operating costs and deposits the remaining royalties with the U.S. Treasury. A Copyright Royalty Tribunal, comprised of five presidentially appointed members, will review the claims each October.

Before approving the tuition credit, the Senate ended three days of arguments over constitutionality by eliminating a provision that would have provided a credit for parents of pupils attending private elementary and secondary schools.

The House-passed bill includes tuition aid for those lower level schools and, thus, the issue will be among those to be decided by a House-Senate conference committee. But backers see little hope for retaining the elementary-secondary-aid provision this year.

Senate elimination of that section left its version of the bill with these provisions:

—Effective last Aug. 1, a student — or his parents if he is a dependent — would be entitled to a credit for half the cost of tuition and fees paid for full-time, public or private undergraduate college or post-secondary vocational school. The maximum credit, which would be obtained when 1978 income tax returns are filed next year, would be $250 per student.

—On Oct. 1, 1980, the maximum credit would rise to $500 and be extended to cover half-time undergraduate students.

Tip leads to brothers' capture

LINDSAY, Okla. (AP) — Two brothers sought in connection with more than 50 robberies in several states were arrested Tuesday after police received an anonymous tip they were back in their home town.

Police Chief Duke Morrison said Billy Carson, 28, and Buddy Carson, 25, were arrested after a brief foot chase in this central Oklahoma community.

Authorities said one man was carrying a blank pistol and the other was unarmed.

A car reportedly stolen in Abilene, Texas, was confiscated during the arrest, officials said.

Morrison said the two were wanted for questioning by authorities in Arkansas, Texas, Arizona and California in connection with a series of convenience store robberies between 1974 and 1978.

"We have verified they are suspects in over 50 armed robberies," the police chief said.

He said officers from Fort Smith, Ark., were questioning the pair Tuesday in connection with 27 robberies in that town near the Oklahoma line.

Manager Margie Peddy of the Midland College snackbar is always smiling. A veteran of public school service before coming to Midland College, she sees to it that students in the college student center have their share of good humor as well as some occasional surprises along with the usual soft drinks, coffee, doughnuts, breakfasts or hot lunches.

Each day she makes meals for at least 2,000 students while dispensing her share of good humor in between the scrambled eggs and hamburgers. During both the fall and spring semesters she knows her regular customers will include, for example, the 40 or so student-athletes who have breakfast and lunch in the snackbar Monday through Friday. In addition to the many students, she also feeds the faculty and periodic visitors plus staffers.

From shortly after 7 a.m. until 9 p.m., food and drink are available for both day and evening campus regulars and visitors. Lunches are served cafeteria-style, along with short orders for hamburgers and salads.

Margie Peddy has been known to come up with treats, too, such as ribeye steaks and her ever-popular Chaparral sandwiches which appear to be the submarine types.

The college's best china, silver and other fine pieces are used for special events such as seminars, conferences and meetings of the College Foundation Board or advisory committees. Often these sessions are held in the faculty lounge.

Margie Peddy also aids foreign students too. Nearby is the college bookstore where fellow staffer Carole Whitten presides.

Here stacks of textbooks are for sale in all shapes, sizes and prices. Used books are sold at the end of each term.

In addition the bookstore also sells a variety of items such as T-shirts and other apparel inscribed with Midland College and even the Chaparral mascot. Greeting cards, jewelry, paperbacks and even class rings and postcards are also available in the bookstore.

Course supplies of all kinds are also sold, such as for drafting, welding, ceramics and others. Both operations are designed to be self-supporting. Profits made are invested in stock and equipment. And both stores are open to the public.

Powell's appeal rejected

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — David Lee Powell says he should not be subject to possible death by injection because that has not been fully approved by state governmental bureaucracy.

Powell's application for a writ of habeas corpus was denied Monday by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Powell is scheduled to stand trial Sept. 11 on capital murder charges that he killed Patrolman Ralph Abalano May 18, 1978, while the officer was trying to arrest Powell and a girl friend.

Powell said in an application, filed by Austin attorney Jack Darroutet, that Texas's old form of execution by electrocution was changed by the 1977 Legislature to death by injection. He said the law gives the director of the Department of Corrections full authority to carry out the new form of execution.

However, the writ claimed, director James Estelle, is also subject to the Administrative Procedures and Texas Register Act. The act says that any new rules and procedures of a state agency must be published in the Texas Register before presentation to the agency governing body for final approval.

Hunter pursues Ginseng

By JIM WANAMAKER

OAKLAND, Md. (AP) — Bob Root has been pursuing an elusive quarry through the verdant mountains of Garrett County and adjoining sections of West Virginia for almost 50 years.

He's lost his once avid interest in hunting and fishing. But his passion for "sanging" — as collecting ginseng is called — is more than equal compensation.

"It's just the same as hunting or fishing or golf," the wiry 58-year-old mountaineer said. "It just gets in your blood. You love to go out and hunt it. I just use it as my hobby more than anything else."

Sanging wasn't always just a hobby for Root, a maintenance man at the local post office. In the 1930s and 1940s, "sanging" bought me food and clothes." At times, he dug $100 worth of the root in a single day.

The patches of ginseng bushes which once spilled down the slopes of mountain hollows around here are gone, victims of over-harvesting.

Dealers who bought the dried roots from his father paid $15 a pound, Root said. The price rose to $95 a pound here last year before the federal government banned export of the root, which is prized in the Orient as an elixir of life and an aphrodisiac, from most states.

White Chinese ginseng brought $144 a pound at Washington health food stores earlier this year while Korean red ginseng sold for $400 a pound. Domestic ginseng retailed for almost as much.

The United States exported $20 million worth of ginseng last year before the export ban was imposed in August.

"They think it's a cure for everything," said Root, who's less sure of the dried root's powers.

"I eat some while I'm out sanging. I might eat a few roots," the Horse-shoe Run, W. Va., native said. "I can't tell any effect except I don't get as tired and I can walk further. It's nothing like drinking or taking dope."

Some of his neighbors put more store in ginseng's powers. "They claim that if you eat it in the fall and keep eating it all winter, you never catch a cold," Root said. "A lot of folks ask me for roots to put in their liquor bottles."

Ginseng starts as an inch-high sprout with three leaves. As it grows, the plant acquires five leaves on each of up to five prongs — or sprigs — off the trunk. The plant, which grows a foot, or two high, blooms in the fall and has bright red berries.

Root prides himself on collecting ginseng only after the berries have ripened and scatters them to start a new generation. Too many sangers, he said, have dug up the roots in the spring, leaving nothing for the future.

Ginseng is on the endangered species list in the United States and in 36 other countries. "It's the scarcest I've ever seen it," Root said.

Years ago, the rain wouldn't stop him from sanging. "I used to put on my rainsuit and still go but I don't do that anymore," Root said. "You go to a new place and you might sang all day and never see a sang. The patches are all gone."

Sports helps kids learn math

NEW YORK (AP) — Parents and teachers never cease to be amazed at how a youngster who can't remember the multiplication table manages to instantly compute his favorite pitcher's earned run average, or how the student who goes blank on state capitals can recite every city that has a baseball, football or basketball team.

In an attempt to harness all this untapped numerical prowess, two Nashville, Tenn., teachers invented an educational game called Math Baseball.

Using flashcards instead of balls and bats, the instructional board game is played by answering a variety of simple math problems which, depending on their difficulty, translate into hits ranging from a single to a home run.

But baseball Hall of Famer Monte Irvin, who has been working with the St. Regis Paper Co., manufacturers of the baseball game and other instructional aids, believes sports can play a positive role in helping youngsters learn in other situations also.

"As a parent myself," Irvin said, "I know how frustrating it can be to have a youngster spend hours watching televised sports when he should be doing his homework. Instead of fighting it, with a little imagination a parent can turn this television time into an opportunity to practice math."

Irvin contends that since every sport involves numbers, parents can develop numerical "games" to fit every one. Here are a few he suggests:

baseball pitcher and calculate his earned run average at the end of each game.

— If your child is more interested in Reggie Jackson than Tom Seaver, change that calculation to batting average. These calculations can be checked at the end of every week in the local newspaper.

— Why not challenge your youngster to see if he can beat the football announcer in figuring out the yardage penalty on a play? Or have him pick his favorite end, back and quarterback on the local team and then calculate how many yards the back gains, the percentage of receptions the end makes, and the total yardage on the quarterback's completed passes. Again, all answers can be checked in the local paper.

— When basketball season starts, your youngster can figure out the free throw percentage of his favorite basketball team. As he gets better, he can do it for individual team members as well. Another good way for him to practice his addition is to keep a running tally of how many points are scored by his favorite player.

— Have your youngster keep track of the amount of time spent in the penalty box by the hockey team he's following. He can also be figuring out the percentage of goals scored against the number of shots taken.

To make this technique even more interesting for your children, Irvin suggests a built-in rewards system.

"At the start of the season, set up some goals for your youngster. When he meets them, take him to a real live game. It will not only be a practice session, but it will be a nice experience for both of you," Irvin said.

DEAR ABBY More composure suggested

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am going to marry a man I've gone with for many years, but due to circumstances I'll not go into here, we weren't able to marry until now.

This will be my second marriage. I have two sons, 12 and 17, and a daughter, 15.

wife have charge accounts at many of the same stores, and my wife gets bills that should have gone to the other Mrs. Feinbohm.

Is there any way I can force my ex-wife to quit using my name and take her maiden name back? She has still not remarried.—ONE WIFE TOO MANY

DEAR ONE: There can be only ONE "Mrs. Sidney Feinbohm" at a time. After your divorce, your ex-wife became "Mrs. (her first name) Feinbohm." If she isn't aware of this, have your lawyer inform her officially in a letter.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to DOGGONE MAD, who objected to the neighbor's dog doing its dirty tricks on his lawn: In order to discourage dogs from working!—MC LOUD, coming over on your OKLA.

property, just sprinkle a package of mothballs on the area that the dog has chosen for its dirty tricks.

One year our front yard looked like a cow pasture. Then a friend told me about the mothball remedy. I tried it, and it worked!—MC LOUD, coming over on your OKLA.

While discussing our marriage plans, my fiancé remarked that I should warn my daughter not to run around in front of him in scanty attire when we are all living together because, being human, it might arouse his "manly instincts." (I can't recall his exact words, but his message was very clear.)

When I reacted with surprise and chagrin, he said I had nothing to worry about, but he thought it only fair to warn me of what his reaction might be, and I should be thankful that he warned me beforehand.

My daughter, who is very well developed for her age, is sometimes careless about keeping herself properly covered. I've had to remind her to be a little more modest in front of her teen-age brother.

My fiancé has known my children since infancy, and this remark has caused me to wonder if perhaps my daughter would not be "safe" with him.

Do you think I have legitimate cause for concern?—SECOND THOUGHTS

DEAR SECOND: No. If your fiancé had any unhealthy thoughts about your daughter, he wouldn't have asked you to warn her about her tendency to run around scantily clad. Let her know that more composure and less exposure is in order.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my ex-wife. We were married for less than two years, never had any children, and then were divorced. That was 10 years ago, but she is still calling herself "Mrs. Sidney Feinbohm."

It is causing a lot of confusion because I am married again, and my wife is constantly being confused with the ex-Mrs. Sidney Feinbohm. To make matters worse, my ex-wife and my present

Austin setting for Imber, Jonas rites

AUSTIN—Jamie Marie Imber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Imber of 3516 Seaboard St., Midland, was married to Edgar Paul Jonas, son of Sue Jonas of Austin and the late Edgar W. Jonas, at 11 a.m. Saturday in St. Theresa's Catholic Church.

The Rev. Richard McCabe performed the double ring ceremony. Attendants to the bride were Dorothy Polk and Janis Burklin of Austin and Laurie Burton of Houston. Honorary attendant was Anne Imber of Midland, sister of the bride. Mindy Smith of Austin, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl.

Alton "Butch" Hoot of Brazoria was the best man. The groomsmen were Michael Imber of Midland, brother of the bride; John Jonas of Jacksonville, N.C., brother of the bridegroom, and Dr. Ralph Branch of Austin. The ushers were Joseph Brittan of Brazoria, cousin of the bride; Joseph Imber of Midland, brother of the bride, and Steve Drury of Austin. The ring bearer was Bill Smith, nephew of the bridegroom.

Soloists were Jim and Reese McMichael. Mr. Imber gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a sleeveless gown of white silk organza with a portrait neckline. Three tiers of organza featured lace onsets. A beaded lace cap held her waist-length veil of illusion edged with lace flowers. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gardenias, stephanotis and green spray orchids with miniature ivy. The reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Burklin on Lake Travis.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside at 1902 Pasadena St., Austin.

The bride will graduate in December from The University of Texas-Austin with a bachelor of science in child development. She is employed by Dr. Ralph J. Branch. The bridegroom attended Austin Community College and is employed by a roofing and sheet metal contractor.

Straighten wraps by using clamps

By AL CARRELL

By the time most of us get around to doing the project, we've had the lumber so long and have stored it so poorly that we find a few warped boards. Rather than run down to the lumberyard for more boards, you can often cure the problem by letting the boards straighten themselves out. Divide them into pairs that have a similar amount of distortion. Place the two face to face with the hollow side in the middle like a pair of bow legs. Moisten the inside surfaces with a wet rag. Place a C-clamp at the center on both sides and alternately tighten the clamps. A slight warp can be straightened completely all at once, but with a bad one you might do well to go at the clamping in stages so the lumber can adjust. If so, dampen the inside surface again. After you leave the clamps in place for a few hours, test to see if the straightening will last. If not, clamp a while longer. Maybe a plastic drop cloth over and below the lumber and stacking so air can circulate should do the job.

Dear Al:

You have often told of various clever ways to hide scratches on wood furniture. However, since all my furniture is white, none of the ways would work. However, I found that white shoe polish does the job. It worked so well that I have also used it on white woodwork and even on the refrigerator, which is also white. — Mrs. V. A.

Dear Al:

I discovered an easy way to patch a window screen. Cut a piece of nylon net big enough to fit over the hole. Then smear the edges with silicone sealant. Use only a very light coat. Press the patch in place, and when the sealant dries, the hole is closed — and it's close to an invisible patch. — G. L. A.

Dear Al: I know you pass along information about home security from time to time. I live in an apartment complex and like most there are always insects. I thought nothing about the fact that a man rang the bell and said he was an exterminator hired by the landlord to spray all the units. He had on coveralls and a spray rig. He said that the odor was not dangerous but could make me a little nauseous and suggested maybe vacating for about an hour. He said maybe I needed to go shopping, I told him I had planned to leave for the grocery store anyway and would do that as soon as he was through. When I got back, he was gone along with my TV sets, radios, cameras and other valuables. The landlord knew nothing about the man. It was just a clever ruse to get in, case my place, and at the same time get me out so he could do his real thing. Warn others to check out the exterminator man before they let him get rid of their bugs — and maybe their valuables. — F. R.

switches and outlets are paths for air infiltration, which means they are an energy leak. We've published some ideas for sealing them and have also come across some new products for this purpose. One company has put out very convenient and inexpensive gaskets made of aluminum foil but with a peel and stick backing. I know your first thought is that it could conduct electricity, but this foil is UL tested. The first thing I did was test it, too, and it doesn't conduct electricity.

Cubes create storage areas

By CAROLE EICHEN
Copley News Service

In most apartments, storage space is a precious commodity. If there isn't enough built into the apartment, the next best thing is to create your storage systems and bring them with you.

From Finland comes the Palaset system, utilizing the basic cube to create a variety of interesting storage areas. The cube, which measures 13.5 inches square, can be combined with a variety of other elements to create one, two or five divisions. Doors and drawers also can be added.

Small plastic dowels are used to connect the cubes to create cabinets, desks, a place for the stereo or a display area for collectibles.

The cubes come in white or brown. Drawers painted red, yellow, white or brown can be added. For more color, it's always fun to mix and match.

The structural polystyrene used to make the cubes can be drilled, nailed or cut with the same tools used on wood. They are made by a molding process which means that the cubes are seamless. And a coat of enamel paint is all that's needed to change the color scheme to fit any apartment decor.

Another handy idea is the use of a rolling cart. Today, there are a number of handsome variations on the venerable tea cart.

These roll-abouts are ideal for apartments since they can be used for storage as well as entertaining. Many of the new designs go well with the blending of dining and living rooms found in so many of the newer apartments.

Some of the carts also can double as occasional tables when not needed for more active duty. They come in a variety of designs and furniture styles.

One design features a silver-plated cart in which the top lifts off to function as a mobile serving tray. There are others which have drawers for added storage or slide apart to reveal a hidden traveling bar.

All of these items are both practical for apartment dwellers while enhancing the design of the living areas.

Environmentalists now wielding more West German political clout

By ROBERT H. REID

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Environmentalists, claiming that politicians are more concerned about economic growth than clean air and water, have shaken up the political scene in prosperous West Germany.

Their popularity appears to reflect a growing concern among West Germans about their heavily industrialized country, where 62 million people live in an area the size of Oregon.

Groups known collectively as "Green Lists" won enough votes in recent elections in Hamburg and Lower Saxony to oust Free Democrats from state assemblies. The Free Democrats are the junior members of the national coalition government of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, a Social Democrat.

A Green List success in the Oct. 8 elections in the state of Hesse could force the resignation of the Free Democratic Party chairman, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the country's vice chancellor and foreign minister.

Although some of the Green List organizations also include women's rights, gay liberation and other causes on their platforms, protection of the environment is their main voter attraction.

Their supporters include veterans of demonstrations organized by a citizens group against nuclear power stations after the three major parties — Social Democrats, Christian Democrats and Free Democrats — endorsed their construction.

"Our policies have to take into account our children and grandchildren and future generations," said Herbert Gruhl, a former Christian Democrat member of parliament and founder of the Green Action Future Party, the best organized of the Green List groups.

"Conservation of the ecological bases of all life — air, water, earth, the plant and animal world — are preconditions for survival."

A poll by the Allensbach Institute and the Science Center of Berlin indicated last June that protection of the environment was a major issue among liberal Germans under age 30, ranking behind the economy and national security.

According to the pollsters, 20 percent of the 2,038 voters surveyed said they were considering supporting the environmentalists at the polls and 6 percent already had decided to do so.

The survey report said Green List supporters "have little confidence in the mechanisms of party democracy" but look to "solutions from extra-party groups instead."

"We see no alternative but to put up a joint front against the established parties," Holger Strom, leader of a Hamburg coalition of environmentalists and others called the Bunte Liste, meaning motley list, said in a newspaper interview.

"Our party includes women's groups, conscientious objector associations, environmentalists and Communists."

The environmentalists made their debut last March during local balloting in the country's northernmost state, Schleswig-Holstein.

Capitalizing on opposition to a local nuclear power plant, they polled more than 5 percent of the vote in two

White collar crime up

NEW YORK (AP) — Law enforcement agencies have a difficult time battling white-collar crime due to a lack of adequate information, according to an American Management Association survey. A substantial grant has been awarded to the department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to conduct the nation's first study of white-collar crime.

Visitors welcomed to ancient cemetery

ATLANTA (AP) — The sexton of Oakland Cemetery, 25-year-old Laura Barry, dreams of ways to introduce people to the life of Atlanta's oldest graveyard.

Ms. Barry sits at a second-story desk beneath a 78-year-old belltower. A wooden ladder scaling one wall leads to the roof. Two bell pulls fall from separate ceiling holes to either side of her desk. "Eventually there's going to be a spiral staircase in this office," she said in an interview. "You can see not only the whole cemetery, but the city skyline and all the way to Stone Mountain. It gives an overview of what's going on in Atlanta."

"I sometimes eat my lunch up there. Or sometimes I go up and meditate."

Oakland Cemetery, Atlanta's only municipal burial ground, was founded in 1850 on a hill east of what was then a frontier town. Nearly all of the town's pioneers were interred there — rich and poor, white and black.

After decades of neglect, Ms. Barry wants to bring the citizens back. A visitors' center and a tour for schoolchildren are in the works.

"This would be an incredible environment for stonemasons to come and learn," she said. "It's an incredible environment for photographers, architects, artists, historians, picnickers. People just to come out and be here."

"It's just a mile from the Capitol," she continued. "It's a sanctuary. People could really enjoy it if they knew what it had to offer them."

Ms. Barry intended to be a classical pianist, not a sexton. After graduating from Auburn University she moved four years ago to Atlanta, where a sister lived.

She worked at some short-lived jobs — selling in various stores and painting houses — before taking one of five temporary cemetery posts funded by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

"My position was a tour guide and assistant sexton. Giving tours — I really loved that. It was an opportunity for me to animate Atlanta's history," she said.

"When I first came to work here I just thought it was going to be fun. It was just a great place to play. Now that I'm sexton and a lot of it is not play I'm really thankful to have a place like this to work in."

Where else, she said, could she learn all about monuments and walls and walkways?

"I'm thankful for a place I can express myself in and for attainable goals — lofty as they may be. The ultimate goal being to make this place a national showcase."

In the second half of the 19th Century, it grew with the booming city and sprouted monuments, icons and gargoyles in a park-like expanse of curving drives and rolling hills.

"The cemetery, in the absence of a park, is quite popular with those of our citizens who enjoy a pleasant stroll." The Atlanta Constitution wrote on Jan. 7, 1881.

House vote holds hope for ERA supporters.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of a 29-month extension for ratifying the proposed Equal Rights Amendment hope the momentum of an unexpectedly large House victory will hold up when the measure reaches the Senate and a threatened filibuster. The House voted 233-189 Tuesday to extend the ERA ratification time limit to June 30, 1982. The current deadline is March 22. Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., principal sponsor of the extension, said the 44-vote margin was "larger than any of us anticipated."

"The size of the House vote will give tremendous momentum to the effort in the Senate," said Ms. Holtzman, who is scheduled to meet with pro-extension senators on Thursday.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., floor leader of the pro-extension forces, said, "We thought we were going to win by 25 or 30 votes."

In the Senate, a version of the extension measure — pushing back the ratification deadline by seven years — has become stuck in a subcommittee that is divided 3-3 on the bill. That means the Senate likely will ignore its measure and deal directly with the House-approved 39-month extension when returning from the Labor Day recess early next month.

Had the Senate been able to decide on its own version, the ERA question now would have been headed for a Senate-House conference committee to iron out differences in the two versions.

However, Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, who helped stall the Senate extension measure in the subcommittee, predicted a filibuster he said he would not lead but would support.

"I suspect there is going to be one awfully extended debate," Hatch said.

Leading anti-ERA lobbyist Phyllis Schlafly, who had an appointment in Hatch's office after the House vote, said she did not think the extension would pass the Senate and that opponents would challenge it in court if it did.

Utility commission accuses TESCO of deal with Texas Utilities' branches

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—William G. Marquardt, the president and chief executive officer of Texas Electric Service Co., says his firm has been both innovative and efficient in converting from natural gas and oil to coal and lignite in the generation of electricity.

Marquardt was the first witness to testify Tuesday in TESCO's $110 million rate case before the Public Utility Commission. Testimony in the case is expected to continue for at least two weeks, and a final decision by the Commission is expected in early October.

During cross examination of Marquardt, PUC General Counsel John Bell accused TESCO of having "a sweetheart arrangement" with Texas Utilities Company's subsidiaries, specifically Texas Power and Light. Texas Utilities is the parent firm of TESCO, TP&L, and several other power related companies in the state.

Specifically, Bell questioned Marquardt on TESCO's decision to purchase TP&L's interest in the Martin Lake 3 and 4 generating units in East Texas, at TP&L's original cost, plus the price of assuming lignite reserves.

"It was a good deal for Texas Electric Service Co. and a good deal for our customers, now and in the future," Marquardt argued in return.

Bell also maintained TESCO is converting from natural gas and oil to alternative sources of fuel "far beyond" the phase-out order not being enforced by the Texas Railroad Commission. That order is designed to reduce the use of natural gas as a boiler fuel in the generation of electricity.

Marquardt agreed TESCO had actively purchased coal and lignite leases, testifying "from where I sit," those alternative fuel sources were the best substitute to natural gas and oil. Under cross examination by Bell, Marquardt said solar, geothermal, wind and in situ gasification projects were yet to prove reliable for the commercial generation of electricity.

Marquardt also said TESCO would certainly comply if the Utility Commission proposed to restrict lignite sales or leases from one company to another, as Bell suggested might be forthcoming.

In pre-filed exhibits, the Utility Commission staff says TESCO's construction program is far too aggressive, and has recommended only a $37 million rate increase.

The hearings before the Utility Commission is the second for TESCO in as many years.

Last year, the Utility Commission gave TESCO $44 million of its requested $80 million increase.

This latest rate increase is being proposed by 23 of TESCO's municipal customers, including Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Midland, Odessa, Arlington, Grand Prairie, Sweetwater and Big Spring. Their opposition is being coordinated through the Texas Municipal League.

In his opening statement, TML attorney Don Butler was critical of TESCO for filing for a second rate increase in slightly more than one year. "It's becoming a standard practice for utilities," Butler argued.

Another opponent to TESCO's latest rate increase are the electric cooperatives who purchase wholesale power from TESCO's system. Ernest Castevens, representing those cooperatives, has asked the hearing examiner to pay particular attention to TESCO's practices of setting monthly "fuel adjustment" charges.

Midland hangs on to dent Diablos' game plan

BY TED BATTLES

Before the game, El Paso Manager Moose Stubing predicted the Texas League West Division would go down to the last week. "Whoever can sweep Amarillo will win it."

Although his Diablos are 6 1/2 back, Moose hasn't given up hopes of winning the second half outright, which would eliminate the necessity of a playoff. "But we've got to win four of five here so we can go home 3 1/2 games back to play San Antonio," he said in the wake of El Paso's 8-5 extra-inning win Monday.

After the Midland Cubs hung on to win 7-5 Tuesday on the home run hitting of Jim Tracy and Joe Hernandez and a whiz bang relief effort by Lee Smith in a game in which there was a near gang-rumble in the fifth inning, the Diablos are faced with the prospect of winning the next three to make Stubing's wish come true.

Lefthander George Riley, 4-1, will be Manager Jim Saul's pitching choice in tonight's 7:30 p.m. tilt while Chuck Porter, 7-4, will get the nod for El Paso in the third game of the series.

Despite the win, the Cubs still remained only 1 1/2 games in front of San Antonio, which has now won two straight at Amarillo.

DARRELL TURNER, notching his fourth straight victory, was foiled in his bid to go all the way when the Diablos mounted a run-scoring threat in the eighth as Bill Ewing beat out an infield hit, Jay Peters walked and Floyd Rayford bounced a double into right to trim Midland's 6-4 lead to 6-5. That's when Saul went to his bullpen for Smith, a starting pitcher all season relegated to the bullpen because of wildness and a team leading 120 walks.

Smith responded to the pressure magnificently. He whiffed Scott Moffitt and then got Stan Clifton on a liner to medium left. Peters tagged up and scored the tying run, so every-body thought, but third baseman Kevin Drury, who called for the ball, touched the bag in an appeal play. Peters was ruled out for leaving the base too soon.

Midland added an insurance run in the eighth when, with two out, Tracy lined a single to right and Brian Rosinski tripped into the right-center power alley.

And then Smith nailed it down with two whiffs and a pop up in the ninth.

KEN SCHROM, who had beaten Midland three straight, went the route to take the loss and is now 7-5 for the season.

El Paso scored in the second and Midland tied it without a hit in the home second when Eric Grandy walked, stole second, moved to third on Drury's grounder to the right side and scored on Greg Keatley's fly to center.

Homers by Hernandez and Tracy featured Midland's three-run third after the Diablos scored in the top of the frame on a double by Don Lyons and a single by Bob Slater.

Tracy powered his fifth homer of the year over the scoreboard in left and later Steve Macko, who had singled in the first to set a new Midland Cubs single season record for base hits with 145, doubled to right. Hernandez walked with his 12th homer, a don't-bother-to-chase-it smash to left.

Midland accepted a couple of gift runs in the fourth when Gary Krug reached first on a pop fly single that both second baseman Slater and shortstop Orlando Ramirez settled under behind second. Both being gentlemen, each stepped aside to let the other take it. So much for gentlemen. Keatley walked and first baseman Lyons couldn't handle Rosinski's hot grounder and it rolled into right as two runs scored.

YOU'VE HEARD of situations where you can feel the tension. In this series, you can see it. Monday El Paso

Table with columns for El Paso, Midland, and Totals. Rows include batting averages, RBIs, and other statistics for players like Slater, Macko, Hernandez, Ewing, and Krug.

Score by Innings table showing runs, hits, and errors for El Paso and Midland across nine innings.

Cub averages

Table showing batting averages for El Paso Cubs players: Drury (.347), Hernandez (.322), Macko (.275), Grandy (.275), Seibert (.275), Evers (.275), Hartin (.275), Tracy (.275), Fierro (.275), Rodaschi (.275), Keatley (.275), Krug (.275).

Table showing pitching statistics for El Paso Cubs: Groover (1.00), Riley (1.00), Turner (1.00), Seagle (1.00), Ledbetter (1.00), Butler (1.00), Smith (1.00), Albert (1.00), Clark (1.00).

pitcher Steve Eddy low-bridged Kurt Seibert in the first inning and words and some shoving accompanied the menacing glances. Then in the fifth inning Tuesday, El Paso outfielder Bob Clark swung at a pitch and his bat wound up at shortstop Steve Macko's feet. Clark and Turner exchanged words and Clark advanced toward the mound, along with both dugouts. Order was restored, but the pennant pot is boiling.

With only 129 at bats, Tracy has five home runs, and is supplying a timely and productive bat to the Midland attack. "If I hadn't gone 1-for-17 in San Antonio, I'd have a decent batting average," he noted. "I've been hitting the ball pretty good here."

That's an understatement. In-his last 11 home games, the one-time

Marietta College athlete has had 18 hits in 44 at bats for a .409 average. For the season he is hitting .255 and would be hitting .286, but for the San Antonio series.

CUB CUTES—Porter was 9-1 at Salinas last year and finished 11-1 at El Paso. This season he is 1-1 against Midland while this will be Riley's first start against El Paso. Porter was a teammate of Seibert at Clemson University...Macko was awarded the ball after his record-breaking hit in the second...GM Bill Rigney, Jr., reports that the Cubs have already passed their 1977 attendance of 84,365 with eight home games still to go. Rayford is 6-for-9 with three doubles in the series and Peters is 5-for-8...Tracy 4-for-9 in the series for the Cubs.

AL southpaws run wild

By The Associated Press

Left-handers have a reputation for outlandishness rather than consistency. But four American League south-paw pitchers were incredibly steady Tuesday night.

The New York Yankees' Ron Guidry became the winningest pitcher in the majors with his 17th victory, a four-hit, 6-0 shutout of Oakland.

Not to be outdone, California's Frank Tanana posted his 16th triumph of the year, a six-hitter, as the Angels beat Boston 5-2.

Down in Texas, Jon Matlack threw a seven-hitter in outdueling the White Sox' Steve Stone, a right-hander who hurled a two-hitter, in the Rangers' 1-0 triumph.

And Jerry Augustine eased to a 9-1 victory over Toronto with a five-hitter.

Yankees 6, A's 0

Guidry, 17-2, took the American League lead in strikeouts with 191 after fanning nine in recording his sixth shutout of the season, the best in the league. His phenomenal 1.79 earned run average leads the majors.

"It seems like I've pitched against the A's as much as anyone," said Guidry. "I guess I know their hitters pretty well."

He must. The second-year major leaguer is 3-0 against Oakland this season and has allowed one run in 26 1-3 inning vs. the A's. In his two seasons with the Yankees, Guidry had a 5-0 record against Oakland and has allowed four runs in 50 1-3 innings.

"He's got our number," said Oakland Manager Jack McKeon. "We have one more series with the Yankees and I sure hope we don't see him."

"He wasn't overpowering tonight. He beat us with breaking balls, not fastballs."

The Yankees scored four times in the third inning on RBI singles by Thurman Munson, Chris Chambliss and Lou Piniella and a Graig Nettles sacrifice fly. Reggie Jackson smashed his 17th homer run for the other two runs in the fifth.

Angels 5, Red Sox 2

Whatever magic Guidry works on the A's, Tanana has been using against the Red Sox in Anaheim. Tanana had a string of 47 scoreless innings against Boston at home snapped in fifth inning but still managed a seven-strikeout, complete game performance.

"I like pitching against Eastern Division teams," said Tanana, who is 39-25 lifetime against the East. "There is a lot of excitement when you play them. The crowd didn't pump me up. Just having Boston coming in was enough."

"I don't know what the Red Sox hitters thought, but I thought my stuff was as good as I've had in a long time."

"I've got 16 wins without great stuff," he concluded, and that has to scare the rest of the American League.

Joe Rudi's three-run homer and a two-run double by Don Baylor did the damage against Boston's Dennis Eckersley, 13-5.

Rangers 1, White Sox 0

Despite the victory, Matlack was less talkative than loser Stone.

"The defense was terrific behind me," was Matlack's comment on the pitching duel decided by Richie Zisk's seventh-inning homer.

"That was the fewest hits I've ever allowed in a game," said Stone. "I threw a very good game but Matlack just threw a better one."

"The ironic thing was that's the first hit I ever remember Zisk getting off me. I just hung one out there and he jumped on it."

Zisk saw it the same way. "Steve threw a great game," he said. "He got me 0-2 and hung a curve. He had pitched well against me; he always seems to make good pitches to me but he made one mistake tonight and I was able to capitalize off it.

"It seems like about my first hit in six weeks. (It was his first homer in that time.) It's nice to contribute to the ball club again."

The victory was Texas' 10th in 11 games.

Brewers 9, Blue Jays 1

Larry Hulse's 27th homer of the season, a three-run shot, and a six-run fourth inning powered Augustine and the Brewers to victory. It was the first win-for Augustine, 11-11, since July 18.

"He's been pitching pretty good ball," Brewers Manager George Bamberger said. "He just didn't have anything to show for it until tonight."

"I haven't been pitching as well as I should have, but all I can do is take it from here and try for a good finish," Augustine said.

"I've had as many downs this season as I could have," he added. "I'm sure at one point I was looked on as the worst pitcher on the staff, but no one has seen me giving up. I'm going to prove some day that I'm the pitcher of a lot of people thought I could be."

"No one even looks at me," he added. "I'm 11-11 and it's like I'm not even here. If you read the papers, you wouldn't even know Jerry Augustine is on the staff."

Twins 9, Indians 8

Jose Morales' eighth-inning homer was the decisive blow for Minnesota. Ace reliever Mike Marshall, who injured himself diving to make a tag on a squeeze bunt and had to leave the game, was the winner.

Royals 4, Tigers 2

Kansas City remained in first place in the AL West thanks to Al Hrabosky's 15th save and Steve Braun's run-scoring single in the seventh. Darrell Porter homered for the Royals' final run.

Orioles 7, Mariners 4

Four hits and three runs scored by Rick Dempsey and a pair of RBI for Eddie Murray and Ken Singleton led the Orioles to victory.

National League looks at DH rule

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Is the National League ready to lower its resistance to establishment of the designated hitter rule at each major league level? It's possible, but no more than verbal support for the rule first adopted by the American League in 1973 was expected today during the summer meeting of owners and general managers.

Bob Wirz, director of information for the office of baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, said a vote on the designated hitter was not on the formal agenda of the joint major league ownership meeting.

"It's possible that it could be kicked around at the league level, but it wouldn't be acted on formally," said Wirz. "Whatever comes out of a league meeting must wait for action until the next meeting of the joint council."

San Diego Padres General Manager

er Bob Fontaine is believed to be among those spearheading the effort to adopt the designated hitter rule in the NL.

And in the AL, Fontaine's counterparts were expected to devote time during their morning meeting to preparing a new pitch for interleague play.

One proposal for interleague action, resisted by the National League, calls for four games each year between two teams on a home-and-home basis.

Under the setup, natural rivalries would be given priority. They would include the Yankees and Mets in New York, the White Sox and Cubs in Chicago, and the California Angels and Los Angeles Dodgers.

But again, the machinery for such interaction was only in the preparatory stage, perhaps awaiting formal presentation during the winter meeting of owners next December in Orlando, Fla.

Proposals likely to be enacted included one to relax the rules which restrict the movement of coaches or managers to playing status more than once a year as sought by the Baltimore Orioles.

And the presidents of the two leagues, Lee McPhail of the American and Chub Feeney of the National, were to present a recommendation to establish greater flexibility in early season player option assignments.

Baseball's executive council, an 11-man body made up of Kuhn and the two league presidents plus four owners from each league, was to seek creation of a joint ownership committee to study umpiring.

Still another proposal, backed by the Philadelphia Phillies, was to permit the inclusion of performance bonuses based on batting, pitching and fielding accomplishments in player contracts.

Cowboys cut team roster to top 60

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboy coaches have waived one rookie and placed another on the injured reserve list to trim the roster to 60 and meet the National Football League's first cutdown date.

Frank Dudley, a rookie free agent tight end, was waived Tuesday and third-round draft choice David Hudgens was placed on the injured reserve list after the offensive guard went down hard Monday on an already troublesome knee.

But while Coach Tom Landry bid farewell to the rookies, he also welcomed back veterans Larry Cole and Golden Richards to Tuesday's workouts.

Shreveport's late rally nails Tulsa Drillers, 4-3

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two unearned runs in the ninth inning gave the Shreveport Captains a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over the Tulsa Drillers Tuesday night.

In other Texas League action, Midland beat El Paso, 7-5, San Antonio defeated Amarillo, 7-4, and Jackson and Arkansas split a doubleheader.

Jackson took the opener, 5-2, but Arkansas bounced back with a 4-0 victory in the nightcap.

Shreveport's unearned runs were scored after

Pete Ithier got on with an infield hit and Ossie Olivares singled. Ithier scored when the throw from the outfield went astray. Olivares scored the second unearned run when Tulsa second baseman Blair Stouffer allowed a ground ball to roll between his legs.

Tulsa held a 3-2 lead in the eighth after Joe Stewart's solo homer. Rusty Johnson, now 4-4, was the winning pitcher.

Tagged for the loss was Mike Arrington, now 1-2.

Homers by Jim Tracy and Joe Hernandez helped the Midland Cubs to a 7-5 victory over the El Paso Diablos. Tracy had his fifth homer of the year in the third inning. Hernandez drove in three runs with his 12th homer of the year also in the third inning. Darrell Turner boosted his pitching record above the .500-mark to 4-3 with the victory. Ken Schrom, now 7-5, was the loser.

Ozark's logic helps Cubs' climb

By The Associated Press

You can always second-guess the manager ... and Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark certainly left himself wide open to criticism.

With the score tied at 4-4 in the seventh inning, the Los Angeles Dodgers had a runner on third with one out and the switch-hitting Reggie Smith facing the right-handed Dick Ruthven of the Phillies.

"I thought they'd walk me in that situation," said Smith.

So did everyone else in Veterans Stadium Tuesday night.

Normally, baseball logic would dictate an intentional walk to the Dodger outfielder, allowing Ruthven to face the right-handed Ron Cey.

But that wasn't Ozark's logic. "We had something we wanted to do," said Ozark, "only Ruthven didn't put the pitches where he wanted to. He did jam Smith — he didn't hit it that hard."

Smith, however, did get the ball far enough out of the infield for a sacrifice fly and the winning run in the Dodgers' 5-4 triumph. Earlier, he had blasted a homer — another good reason not to pitch to him in the crucial seventh.

"He's meant a lot to this club," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda of Smith. "He's a superstar as far as I'm concerned."

Dave Lopes doubled and was sacrificed to third before scoring the Dodgers' winning run. Los Angeles had taken an early 3-0 lead, scoring twice in the second on RBI singles by Rick Monday and Joe Ferguson and Smith's 26th homer in the third.

The Phillies went ahead 4-3 with four unearned runs in the fifth. But the lead lasted until the Dodgers came to bat in the sixth, when Monday unloaded his first home run since June 26.

Winner Doug Rau gave up four hits, walked three, and struck out four in eight innings before needing relief help from Lance Rautzhan.

Cubs 12, Braves 8
Bill Buckner drove in three runs with a single and a double and Bobby Murcer and Dave Kingman slugged consecutive homers in the sixth inning to lead Chicago over Atlanta and move the Cubs to within three games of the Phillies.

Buckner's two-run double capped a five-run rally against Atlanta starter Larry McWilliams in the second inning and his RBI single in the fourth climaxed a three-run uprising as the Cubs overcame a 7-0 deficit.

Reds 4, Pirates 3
Dan Driessen's solo home run in the 10th boosted Cincinnati over Pittsburgh in a game marked by the ejections of Pirate pitcher Bert Blyleven and Manager Chuck Tanner.

Driessen's two-out homer, his 15th of the season, came off loser Ed Woodson, 3-6. Doug Bair, 6-4, got the victory.

Blyleven, the Pirate starter, led 3-1 through six innings, allowing only two hits. But he yielded his second unearned run of the night in the seventh and both he and Tanner were ejected for hotly protesting a balk call by rookie umpire Joe West.

The Reds had sent the game into extra innings on a ninth-inning RBI single by Pete Rose.

"He's the most incompetent individual that has ever worn the blue, to my knowledge, and I'm not a guy to get on umpires," an angry Tanner said of West.

"He's the worst umpire in the league," echoed Blyleven. "He's a disgrace to the umpiring crew ... he's bush."

Expos 4, Giants 3
Ellis Valentine smashed a two-out, solo home run in the bottom of the ninth to lead Montreal over San Francisco. Hal Dues, 5-4, earned the victory with one inning of relief pitching. Charlie Williams, 1-3, came on in the ninth and surrendered Valentine's home run.

Dave Cash popped out leading off the Expos' ninth and Andre Dawson grounded out before Valentine came to the plate. The right fielder slugged a 1-1 pitch from Williams over the left field wall for his 20th-homer of the season.

Cardinals 11, Astros 5
George Hendrick led a 17-hit St. Louis attack with a three-run homer and a pair of singles as the Cardinals trounced Houston. Hendrick's homer, his 13th, put the Cardinals on top 3-0 in the first inning and St. Louis went on to its ninth victory in 11 games.

Aurelio Lopez, 3-1, a 29-year old Mexican-born rookie, pitched the first seven innings for the victory. Floyd Bannister, 3-7, the first of four Houston pitchers, allowed St. Louis' first five runs and took the loss.

Mets 3, Padres 1
Craig Swan and Skip Lockwood combined on a five-hitter while Steve Henderson and Lee Mazzilli delivered run-scoring hits in the eighth inning to break a 1-1 tie and lead New York over San Diego.

Henderson's double delivered Elliott Maddox, who had walked and advanced to second on a sacrifice fly. Padres left-hander Randy Jones, 10-11, retired Willie Montanez, but then walked John Stearns intentionally before Mazzilli singled in another run.

Swan, 6-5, pitched 81-3 strong innings before needing relief help from Lockwood.

If this happens, the feed will follow the championship contests. The barbecue is for the players, officials and fans that will be here for the tournament.

NFL's cut day claims veterans

By The Associated Press

Mick Tingelhoff didn't lose his job Tuesday like a lot of other National Football League players, but he did learn that something he has built for 17 years will come crumbling down Friday.

After 17 years in the NFL, Tingelhoff will miss a game.

The 38-year-old center was hospitalized Monday with an infection in his leg. He was kicked two weeks ago in the Vikings' preseason opener against Washington.

Tingelhoff reportedly is responding to antibiotics, but is definitely out of the Dolphin contest Friday, which will snap a string of 328 consecutive preseason, regular season and post-season games in which he has played.

But Tingelhoff will return, which can't be said of a number of other NFL aspirants and veterans who were cut Tuesday as teams reached the mandatory 60-player limit.

Veterans Lydell Mitchell of the Baltimore Colts and Mike Kadish of the Buffalo Bills were among the familiar names who were at least temporarily dropped.

Mitchell and Kadish, both involved in contract disputes, were placed on their clubs' reserve lists, an administrative category for players who have not reported to their training camps. Should either player settle his problem and show up, the clubs would have to drop another player.

Two other veterans were among the Colts and Bills cuts. Baltimore released six players, including kick return specialist Howard Satterwhite, while veteran defensive tackle Marvin Upshaw was among the eight players dropped by Buffalo.

The Bills also were active in the trade market, swapping veteran tight end Paul Seymour to Pittsburgh and sending running back Stan Winfrey to Detroit. In exchange, the Bills obtained wide receiver Frank Lewis from the Steelers and an undisclosed draft choice from the Lions.

Seymour was Buffalo's No. 1 draft choice in 1973. His best receiving season was 1976 when he caught 16 passes for 169 yards. Last year, he was used mostly in running situations and caught just two passes.

Lewis, a seven-year veteran, has caught 128 passes for 2,096 yards and 16 touchdowns in his NFL career.

In another cut day trade, New Orleans swapped veteran defensive back Chuck Crist to San Francisco for linebacker Skip Vanderbunt. Crist was one of the Saints' leading defensive players last season with 102 tackles, while Vanderbunt has started every game for the past three seasons with the 49ers.

New Orleans also waived six players including veteran wide receiver Don Herrmann.

In one of a plethora of releases, the Philadelphia Eagles released 15 players, including Larry Marshall, the leading punt returner in the National Football Conference last season, and veteran punter Spike Jones.

The Los Angeles Rams, fresh from the short reign of George Allen, announced the retirement of former Pro Bowl cornerback Robert James, while placing quarterback Carlos Brown on waivers and trading backup center Rick Nuzum to Green Bay for an undisclosed future draft choice. The Rams also placed quarterback Mark Manges, their fourth-round draft choice from Maryland, and offensive tackle Charles Peal of Indiana, a 10th-round draft pick, on waivers.

Allen's old organization, the Washington Redskins, signed veteran quarterback Billy Kilmer to a two-year contract, while the Detroit Broncos shipped punter Mike Burke to the New England Patriots for an undisclosed future draft choice.

The New York Giants waived 10 players and placed veteran offensive lineman Tom Mullen on the voluntarily retired list.

Mullen has been troubled by a series of NFL seasons and played only eight games last year. Among those placed on waivers were running back Gordon Bell, a third-year player from Michigan State, and second-year tackle Bill Kahl-Winter from Princeton.

NFL teams must cut their rosters to 50 players by next Tuesday and to 45 before the start of the regular season.

San Diego signs Wicks to contract

SAN DIEGO (AP) — High-scoring forward Sidney Wicks has signed with the San Diego Clippers after two down years in Boston, saying he looks ahead to being "more creative again, to be able to play my game."

Wicks was booted in Boston after previous basketball stardom at UCLA and with the Portland Trail Blazers.

Wicks and Clippers owner Irv Levin, who traded his Boston franchise for Buffalo's and then moved from Buffalo to San Diego, both caught the wrath of Celtics fans when the National Basketball Association team slid to a downhill finish last season.

Levin announced the signing Tuesday, saying "the addition of Wicks to the nucleus of our team strengthens us up front, especially in the scoring department."

Wicks, a 6-foot-9, seven-year National Basketball Association veteran, was the first player selected in the 1971 collegiate draft. While at Portland he was selected to play in four NBA All Star games and scored 11,203 points, an average of 19.9 per game.

But in Boston, there were contract disputes and a system of basketball "that kept us from doing the things we wanted to do," Wicks said in an interview.

That Celtics system of the team's general manager and former coach Red Auerbach "gets the best out of every person," Wicks added. "But I think it needs certain types of personalities. And they're the only team that doesn't play the zone defense at all. And I mean that's tough."

"I was an all-around ball player at Portland," Wicks continued, "and when I went to Boston, they wanted me to specialize in certain things, like the things that Paul Silas had done for them — set screens, play defense and rebound. Well, that restricted me, it took away my creativity. But I did exactly as they asked me to do, to the best of my ability."

Boston fans would argue that point and show no grief over Wicks' departure, feeling he hurt the Celtics much in the way they feel owner Levin did. Wicks, however, feels that Boston fans are spoiled after a wealth of NBA championships and are wrong on both counts.

"I guess Irv and I went through a lot in Boston," he said. "I don't think we were ever given a chance to do the things we can do. I say 'we' because I think Irv got a bad break there, also. The fans think Red (Auerbach) can do no wrong, so they blame all the club's problems on Irv and me."

Clippers Coach Gene Shue feels the Boston experience has helped Wicks "because he was played in a different role. He had to play more defense and rebound more. So I think that Sidney became a better basketball player."

"What I'm hoping is that since he's only 28 years old, and has played for three different teams, now he can play up to his potential."

76ers, Nuggets expected to deal

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A trade involving the Philadelphia 76ers' George McGinnis and the Denver Nuggets' Bobby Jones and Ralph Simpson that has been in the works for three months was expected to be finally consummated today.

The 76ers scheduled a news conference for this afternoon. Sources close to both teams said Tuesday formal announcement of the trade was at hand.

Both McGinnis and Jones had no trade clauses in their contracts, and the primary problem has been the matter of special bonus payments to the two. Both players are ready to or already have signed releases.

Whitecaps protest loss

By The Associated Press

One thing is certain about format of the North American Soccer League playoffs — very few people like it.

"Because of the way the playoff is set up it is very possible that the best team will not win," said NASL Coach of the Year Tony Walters, whose Vancouver Whitecaps dropped a 1-0 decision in Portland last Saturday and face elimination tonight if they are beaten by the Timbers.

"With the sudden death business anything can happen. Teams can fluke their way into the final. It's not fair and I believe a better system is in order."

Two other berths in the semifinals of the NASL playoffs will be decided tonight when Minnesota plays the Cosmos, the defending NASL champions, in East Rutherford, N.J., and Fort Lauderdale travels to Detroit. Tampa Bay hosts San Diego in another elimination game Thursday.

Minnesota, Fort Lauderdale and Tampa Bay hold 1-0 advantages in the home-and-home second-round series, along with Portland, and a win by all of these teams will advance them to the third round.

However, should the Cosmos, Vancouver, San Diego and Detroit win, then the "sudden death business" starts immediately.

According to the playoff setup, if the two teams split the home-and-home series then a pair of 15-minute sudden death overtimes will be played, with the first team to score advancing to the third round of the playoffs.

If the teams are scoreless after the two 15-minute overtimes, then a shootout determines the winner.

Cosmos Coach Eddie Firmani wasn't vocal as Walters in asking for a better playoff system. He'd settle for a better performance by his team.
