The gritty Kimbro, who underwent three operations to straighten a twisted right foot and spent his first five years in a cast, was the 1977 American Junior Rodeo Association Reserve World Champion in his age classification.

And he won the bullriding championship two weeks ago in the AJRA Finals, scoring a record 83 points only two days after Stingray had jerked Kimbro's right arm from its socket. His prize money last year totaled more than $6,000. "I've just always wanted to do what my dad did," said Kimbro, whose father, Clyde, was a professional bullrider and rodeo performer for 22 years. "I was never afraid of the bulls.

"I didn't even think Mel would ever walk right, much less be a championship bullrider. He couldn't furniture," said Mrs. Kimbro.

The bone deterioration in Kimbro's right foot threatened to cripple him. "The doctors wanted to amputate three toes on the foot, but I wouldn't let them. It finally healed up," said the seventh-grader, whose right leg is two inches shorter than the Last year in Odessa, a bull kicked Kimbro in the shoulder, fracturing the collarbone. And for good measure, the bull planted a hoof in the middle of Kimbro's face, breaking his jaw. Three days later, a heavily-taped Kimbro rode in the AJRA Finals. Kimbro broke a bone in his left ankle two months ago - courtesy of a bull named Little Yeller - and refused a cast. And then he suffered the dislocated shoulder two weeks ago.

Even while he had a remedial cast on his right foot, Kimbro talked about riding bulls like his father, said Mrs. Kimbro.

Clyde Kimbro, who says his son has a natural knack for bullriding, built a rodeo arena for Mel on the family's Hill Country ranch. Mel was riding 500-pound bulls in local 4-H rodeos by the time he was 6 years old and turned pro at the age of 10.

His father retired from full-time competition last year and is devoting much of his time to coaching his son. The two plan to open a bullriding school next year and Mel hopes to try for the Rodeo Cowboy Association tour — and the one-ton bulls — by the

What then? 'Last year," Mrs. Kimbro said, "Mel flew to New Mexico, got a cab to the rodeo, won, took a cab back to the airport and flew home.

Once upon a Sunday morning

EDITOR'S NOTE - Two years ago Sunday, millionaire Cullen Davis, charged with two murders and two attempted murders, waited alone in a tiny cell while his attorneys worked to free him on bond. This morning, the co-heir to an $800 million international oil empire is back in the Tarrant County Jail charged with solicitation of capital murder and awaiting his fate in a second climactic bond hearing.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - It began about 8:30 last Sunday morning. A blue Cadillac eased into a restaurant parking lot and a small, wiry man in checkered slacks and pullover climbed out and casually peered into the mirror-tined rear window of a nearby van.

Satisfied, he returned to his car and drove to the other side of the parking lot where a large, powerfully-built companion waited anxiously; hoping, perhaps praying, his pervouspess wouldn't show evidence prosecutors claim is sufficient to pack millionaire industrialist Cullen Davis off to prison for up to 99 years.

From the tiny tape recorder afixed to David McCrory's lower back would come most of the

He is charged with plotting to have District Judge Joe Eidson murdered and carrying a prohibitive weapon, a .22-caliber pistol with a silencer. Eidson, who police said posed for a phony "dead" picture to convince Davis to pay McCrory $25,-000, has been presiding over Davis' four-year-old divorce.

On Aug. 17, McCrory - hustler, karate expert, high school dropout - contacted the FBI and blurted out an almost unbelievable scheme allegedly masterminded by the unassuming oilman to hire the deaths of 15

The so-called "hit list" included two district judges plus three witnesses who testified against Davis when he was found innocent of capital murder last November in Amarillo. However, he still faces one murder charge and two attempted murder charges.

Last Thursday, McCrory told District Judge Arthur Tipps, who is presiding over the hearing to determine whether Davis

By DENNIS REDMONT

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Cardinal Albino Luciani, an Italian prelate who is considered a moderate, was elected Saturday as the 263rd pope and spiritual leader of the world's 700 million Roman Catholics. The new pope, considered a surprise choice, took the name of John Paul I.

They are the names of his two immediate predecessors, Paul VI and John XXIII, and were taken by the 65-year-old Luciani after his election by the 111 cardinals voting in a secret conclave in the Sistine Chapel. His boice indicated he plans to the footsteps of Paul and John and their reform policies.

John Paul's quick election also came as a surprise. The cardinals had only entered the conclave Friday. The number of ballots taken was secret, but it was believed there were two in the morning session. The cardinals began their afternoon deliberations at 4: 30 p.m. (10: 30 a.m. EDT) and in less than three hours the formal announcement of the election was

Tuesday it starts all over again

For mothers who spend most of their time housekeeping, Tuesday might seem like the beginning of a long holiday.

But for those young people who leave behind them three months of leisure or a summer job, the holiday is over and a more systematic and regimented way of life is upon them.

It's school time again. It's a time of shopping for new clothes, note books, pens, rulers and other material to last through the next nine months.

It's time to get used to homework. Instead of enjoying léisurely summer activities, it's time to begin worrying about grades and report cards.

Tuesday is the transition day. The first few days won't be easy. There's a new teacher or new teachers to get used to. There are new classmates to get to know. And there are many new subjects to learn.

It's also a time of joy. There are school activities which many of the students look forward to. There's high school football on Friday night during the fall. There are dances and field trips. New adventures and new chal-

The decision of the 263rd pope to take the names of his two immediate predecessors was hailed by Cardinal Lawrence Sheehan, retired archbishop of Baltimore.

"I am delighted that the new pope has taken the name he has, which indicates that he intends to carry out the policies" of Paul and John XXIII. Sheehan said.

"I think he has broken ground by choosing a double name ... I certainly think it indicates that he intends to carry forward the new spirit that has tenure from 1958-63, said Sheehan.

President Carter, speaking "on be half of the American people," said the new pope's voice "will be heard and echoed by people of good will throughout the world.

Across the United States, Catholics were urged to pray for the new pope, and church leaders pledged to support him. The bishop of Rhode Island, the Most Rev. Louis E. Gelineau, said he would arrange a special Mass of

Bizarre hijack leaves all suspect

By THOMAS KENT

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - It was a bizarre

Everyone on TWA flight 830 was a suspect. Some said they felt like characters in an Agatha Christie mystery. After hours of quizzing passengers and searching the plane, police were baffled Saturday. The clues - a wig, a fake mustache, glasses and a coat found when police searched the toilets of the Boeing 707 — are believed to have been worn by the person who wrote a rambling, 19-page list of demands, instructions and a bomb threat.

The jet was over the coast of Ireland Friday morning, heading from New York to Geneva, when the typewritten list was given to a stewardess. The threatening note had carried the signature, "United Revolutionary Task Force.'

The passengers in the darkened first class compartment were watching a film when the disguised figure entered. Few took notice and later, no one could identify the mysterious person.

Capt. Robert Hamilton, following the instructions, radioed Geneva that his jet was "under control by elements." Authorities told reporters the plane had been hijacked.

The message said a time bomb would go off at 5:30 o.m. unless Rudolf Hess, Nazi Germany's former deputy Fuerher was released from West Berlin's Spandau Prison where he is serving a life term. The note also demanded that the United States free Sirhan Sirhan, jailed for life in Soledad, Calif. for the murder of Robert Kennedy, and five Croation nationalists imprisoned for a 1976 hijacking.

Although Hamilton said nothing to the passengers, some of them became suspicious. "I've been on this flight several times before and usually they serve coffee before landing," said Edith Shapiro of New York. "But they didn't this time, and the stewardesses' attitudes all suddenly changed. They said the coffee machine was broken, but I knew something was really wrong.

After landing in Geneva at 8:20 a.m., Hamilton made an anouncement to the 78 passengers. "He said 'Flight 830 has been hijacked,'" Mrs. Shapiro recalled. "He said, in a kind of faltering voice, 'This is the flight you are on. Please remain in your seats and stay calm and listen to the stewardesses' instruc-

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) - Defending world chess champion Anatoly Karpov stunned challenger Viktor Korchnoi, winning Saturday's 17th game of the world chess championship and taking a 4-games-to-1 advantage in the series.

The first player to win six games takes the championship and $350,000, the largest chess purse in history. The loser gets $200,000. There have been 12 draws in the series.

The 27-year-old Karpov overcame Korchnoi, a 47-year-old Soviet defector, in the 39th move when the challenger's king was unable to elude capture in Karpov rushed from the Baguio Convention Center stage as Korchnoi resigned. Korchnoi, who has said he is challenging the Soviet chess system, stood slump-shouldered and dejected.

'Hippie types' congregated in doctor's office for drugs

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - As Houston narcotics officers told it, "hippie types" and skinny youngsters congregated in Dr. Mary Anne Garrity's office for easy prescriptions for Pre-ludin, an "upper" used for weight control.

The State Board of Medical Examiners decided there was enough evidence Friday to strip the 53-year-old physician of her license to practice medicine in Texas.

Dr. Garrity has the right to appeal to a state district court in Houston, which would make its decision based on the evidence heard by the board.

The board, meeting Friday, also revoked the license of Dr. Thomas Edward Bennett of Hitchcock in Galveston County, based on his federal court conviction of conspiracy to distribute illicit drugs.

So far this year, the board has cancelled five licenses of doctors accused of writing non-therapeutic prescriptions of drugs that are subject to

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram recently reported a significant percentage of the pills on that city's illicit market were prescribed by physicians. The board says it is investigating several such cases across the Narcotics officers said they paid $18 to $25 for visits to Dr. Garrity's office, where they claimed they received prescriptions for Preludin and other drugs without being examined by the doctor.

Preludin is an amphetamine-like 'upper" used as an appetite suppressant.

Officer Michael Gann said the drug sells for $5 to $15 on Houston's streets to abusers who often dissolve it and inject it into their veins. Gann said that when druggists refused to fill his first prescription for Preludin, Dr. Garrity gave him an-won't hurt you," Dr. Garrity said. Carlotta Limbrick, another narcotics officer, said she received Preludin from Dr. Garrity and later received a prescription for Valium, which she said has a street price of $3.50 per tablet, just for the asking.

Dr. Garrity said she started a weight control practice with a handful of patients but become concerned and halted it in June when "it ballooned up in just a short time.'

"It was obviously getting way out of control. . . I didn't know they were selling them for $10 a pill, either," she

Extended forecasts

South Texas: Occasional showers and thundershowers Tuesday and Wednesday, with some locally heavy causing possible flooding in some areas. Showers and thundershowers decreasing Thursday. Highs mostly thundershowers decreasing Thursday. Highs mostly in the 70s.

Weekend's cloudy skies to stay awhile

Cloudy skies, a legacy of Saturday morning's rain, are expected to hover over the Permian Basin through Monday. But a 20 percent likelihood of thunderstorms tonight is the only chance of rain in the forecast.

Rain fell Saturday in intermittent showers from 2 to 8:40 a.m. The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport recorded .06 inch rain during that period.

The weatherman predicts warmer temperatures, with a low tonight in the mid-60s and a high today in the lower 90s. The low Monday should be in the upper 60s and the high in the mid-90s.

Winds are expected to be from the south at 10 to 20 mph today. Rain fell Friday night and early Saturday in Rankin and Stanton, Andrews received at least a half-inch of rain during that time.

A tropical depression formed off the Texas coast Saturday in the central Gulf of Mexico and forecasters said it could strengthen. But it was too far offshore to bring any substantial rain to the state.

hopes and aspirations stemming from many months of planning.

All elementary classes except sixth-grade will begin at 8:40 a.m. Sixth-grade classes will begin at 8:10 a.m. First- through third-grade classes will be dismissed at 2:55 p.m.; fourth- and fifth-grades at 3:40 p.m.; and sixth-grade at 3: 10 p.m.

Morning kindergarten will begin at 8:40 a.m. and dismiss at 11:25 a.m.; afternoon kindergarten is to begin at 12:10 p.m. and will be dismissed at 2:55 p.m.; all-day kindergarten will start at 8:40 a.m. and will let out at

This year's starting schedule for grades seven through 12 is as follows: high school, 8 a.m.; Edison Freshman School and all junior high schools, 8:40 a.m., and Austin Freshman School, 9 a.m.

High schools will dismiss at 3:10 p.m.; Edison Freshman and all junior high schools will dismiss at 3: 40 p.m., and Austin Freshman School will dismiss classes at 4 p.m.

Meanwhile, for more than 1,700 students, ranging in age from high school seniors to senior citizens, Monday is the beginning of fall semester

College registrar Dee Windsor said 1,725 students signed up for credit courses during the formal enrollment days Wednesday and Thursday. Late registration opens Monday and will continue through Sept. 5 for persons whishing to take as many as three

"We don't have final figures yet, but the trend seems to be continuing for more fulltime students enrolling at Midland College, particularly those right out of high school," Windsor

"There are those who are simply taking one or two courses or a somewhat reduced load due to home or work obligations.

Late college registration, beginning Monday, is being handled in the office of student services at the administration building, between 8 a.m. and 56 p.m. weekdays. Persons also may obtain late registration information from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday in room 130 of the Science-Faculty Building.

Dr. Mailey said he views the school district's coming year as another step toward equalizing educational opportunities for all students. The district will enter its second year of a desegregation plan and also will expand a federally funded program to provide bilingual education for students with limited English-speaking abilities.

It's also the time of year when students can't depend on Mom for breakfast and lunch.

Midland school administrators have good news for kids who like to sleep late and mothers who worry about the breakfasts they skip. Beginning the first day of school, all school cafeterias in the district will serve breakfast.

Regular price for breakfast is 30 cents for students and 50 cents for adults, with the reduced price being 10 cents, according to Vivian Busley, food service director.

Twenty meal tickets will be sold for $6 to paying students and $2 to participants in the reduced-price program. Separate checks for lunch and breakfast tickets should be made payable to the school each child attends Breakfast menus will include fruit or juice, bread or cereal, milk, and approximately twice a week, a high protein food such as scrambled eggs or French toast, Mrs. Busley said.

The breakfasts are automatically free or at a reduced price to families which qualify for the free or reduced price lunch program.

In addition, families whose incomes are higher than specified for the program but who have extenuating circumstances also may qualify. Factors such as unusually high medical bills, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of the family's income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, or disaster or casualty losses could make a family eligible for the reduced price program.

Application forms for the free or reduced program are available from St., and will also be available to students on the first day of school as

Students will eat breakfast at the schools they attend according to the following serving schedule: Lee and Midland High Schools, 7:35 to 7:55 a.m.; Alamo, Edison, Goddard and San Jacinto, 8 to 8:30; Austin, 8:35 to 8:55; k through 3 and 5 and k through 4, 8:30 to 8:50; k through 3 and 6, 8 to :20 and 8:30 to 8:50.

Eligibility for free meals is deternined on the basis of family size and income, as follows: one family member, income to $4,190; two family members, income to $5,500; three family members, income to $6,810; four family members, income to $8,-110; five family members, income to $9,310; six family members, income to $10,510.; seven family members, income to $11,600; eight family members, income to $12,690; nine family members, income to $13,680; 10 family members, income to $14,660; 11

family members, income to $15,-640, and 12 family members, income To qualify for the reduced price meals, a family must meet the following standards: one member, income $4,190 to $6,530; two members, $5,500 to $8,580; three members, $6,810 to $10,630; four members, $8,110 to $12,-660; five members, $9,310 to $14,530; six members, $10,510 to $16,400; seven members, $11,600 to $18,100; eight members, $12,690 to $19,790; nine members, $13,680 to $21,330; 10 members, $14,660 to $22,870; 11 members, $15,640 to $24,390; 12 members, $16,610 to $24,910.

Each additional family member raises the eligibility ceiling $970 for the free meals and $1,520 for the reduced price meals.

Week-old, two-year-old story continues

contacted federal authorities through an unnamed source. "I think the only reason he told anybody at all about this is because he was afraid he was on the list himself," said Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry. "He's scared, really scared." McCrory's fear surfaced on the witness stand Thursday, the third and last day of the bond hearing last week. While under persistent attack by defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, McCrory suddenly blanched, stopping in mid-sen-tence when a loud "click" was heard in the courtroom. Long moments after realizing the noise came from an officer photographing the crowd, he continued to pan the 160 faces who stared back at him. The bulk of the state's case was laid out last week in two recorded conversations allegedly between Davis and McCrory detailing who should be killed and when. Not since Priscilla Davis adorned the witness stand during her estranged husband's murder trial has Texas been so electrified by courtroom testi-

However, prosecutors agree the bosomy blonde, known for her revealing outfits and "Rich Bitch" diamond necklace, did more harm than good to the state's case.

"We don't have the problem with flakey witnesses this time," said Curry, who conceded McCrory and his remarkably bad memory was not much of an improvement witness-wise. "Let 'em say what they want about McCrory, there are still the recordings and the video

An example of last week's taped testimony, according to the state's accompanying transcript, went as follows: McCrory: "I got Judge Eidson dead for you." Davis: "Good."

McCrory: "I'll get the rest of them dead for you. You want a bunch of people dead, right?" Davis: "All right."

The prosecution continues its case Monday to have Davis held without bond. But Curry said: 'We're just about through. I think we've put on enough evidence, maybe too much."

So far, the state's case, most of which was prepared by federal electronics experts, consists of still photos, a short movie showing Davis meeting with McCrory, a .22-caliber pistol with a silencer, $25,000 in $100 bills and recorded conversations between the two men allegedly discussing the plot.

Curry's allusion to overkill apparently found agreement with defense attorney Steve Sumner, who said, "We're at a low ebb right now, but I think it's about to pick up." Haynes cross-examined spent their respective weekends shoring up their positions for Monday's joust, a quiet sigh was creeping out of the police department.

McCrory at length Thursday and can be expected to resume his attack on his credibility Monday morning. While attorneys for both sides

Davis was arrested last Sunday in a phone booth, minutes after meeting McCrory. But it almost didn't happen.

Thanks to the tinted glass, he was unable to see inside the van sitting at the restaurant parking lot. If he had, he would have seen more than one red-faced electronics expert and a van full of sophisticated eavesdropping

Watch out for bike thieves

By GUY SULLIVAN R-T Staff Writer

The estimated 2,300 students riding bicycles to and from Midland schools this fall should take care to lock up their bikes in order to keep them, authorities said late last week,

Bicyclists should always use a lock and chain to secure their bikes when they are not in use, said Sgt. E.M. "Lalo" Camarillo of the Midland Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit.

He also urged young bicyclists to mark their bikes in at least four places with the driver license numbers of their parents. Bike thefts used to be "tremendously high" a few years ago, he said. However, today the number of bicycles ripped off per month in Midland range from none to five or six, said Camarillo.

A few years ago bicycles were considered more toys than useful transportation. When one disappeared, it was usually by some youngster who took it for a joy ride and failed to return it.

Today many bicycles are not considered toys. They are quite valuable, according to law enforcement officials. As a result, bicycles increasingly are stolen by professional thieves, said of-

Bicycles often are stolen from lawns, porches and from un-locked garages. Schoolyards and playgrounds are also popular targets of bike thieves during days, said authorities. Police officers said young and old bicyclists alike should not make it easy for a bike thief to steal their transportation.

That's why officers urge bike riders to practice a few precautions in order to keep their bicy-

Federal Bureau of Investigation officials have urged bicyclists of all ages to register their bikes with the appropriate agency. They also say etching the driver's license number preceded by the state's initials on the frame of the vehicle helps. The procedure, they explained, makes the bicycle identifiable to police agencies.

Officials also have urged everyone to report the theft of any bicycle to police. Rules to remember include not leaving bicycles on the lawn; porch or in an unlocked garage - especially at night.

Lawmen recommended securing bicycles to a solidly fixed rack or tree with a good quality chain and lock. They said the chain should not be looped just through a wheel, but through the frame and both wheels.

Authorities said children should be regularly reminded that such practices will reduce the chance that a bicycle will be

Officials also encouraged school and recreation authorities to provide secure bike racks located where they can be viewed by employees.

Ford chairman concedes 'cause for concern' about early Pintos

DETROIT (AP) — There is "some cause for concern" about the safety of early-model Ford Pintos, the chairman of the Ford Motor Co. says in a magazine interview.

"The lawyers would shoot me for saying this, but I think there's some cause for the concern about the car. I don't even listen to the cost figures we've got to fix it," Henry Ford II says in the Sept. 11 issue of Fortune

The company has officially denied all along any defect in the fuel tanks of the controversial Pinto, but has agreed to recall some 1.5 million models to address "public concern." Ford's comments appeared to concede a specific safety problem with the car, but company spokesman Jerry Sloan said he did not think they represented any change in the company's position. Sloan said the firm has always acknowledged its "concern" over the controversy.

Meanwhile, Ford fired off a letter Friday to consumer activist Ralph Nader protesting Nader's "personal attacks" on Ford for his handling of the Pinto case.

Ford also defended the company's modificiation of the fuel tank on 1.5 million 1971-76 Ford Pintos and 30,000 1975-76 Mercury Bobcats that were recalled in June.

"Personal attacks hardly seem to be the appropriate way to achieve the results we are all looking for," Ford wrote in a brief letter disclosed by the company.

He was responding to a letter from Nader delivered to Ford on Tuesday in which the consumer activist accused Ford of being insensitive to deaths and injuries resulting from Pinto crashes.

"I strongly object to your charges and insinuations that the company has acted irresponsibly in developing these improvements for earlier model Pintos and Mercury Bobcats," Ford's letter said. "The Pinto and Bobcat recall campaign is a matter of great concern to Ford Motor Co. and to me personally." Ford recalled the sedans after the government found the cars' fuel tanks too susceptible to fuel leaks and fires in rear-end collisions.

Nader disclosed that crash tests of the cars, after Ford's proposed fix of the fuel tank, showed the fuel tanks were inadequate. The automaker then made additional modifications.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration on Monday pronounced itself satisfied with the final modifications, but Nader has long maintained that Ford should replace the entire fuel tank.

AUSTIN-Droughts in Central Texas, growing populations in North Texas, land subsidence in South Texas, floods in East Texas and shortages in West Texas were cited by members of the Governor's Water Task Force as they reviewed Texas water problems.

Members met with Department of Water Resources staff for an overview of the state's situation—and then proceeded with brief presentations on their particular areas' needs and con-

There were few members who could report they felt they had sufficient water for present and foreseeable future needs-and at reasonable

The Bon Wier reservoir site has a high priority for flood control and studied:

Roy Douglas, Upper Neches River Municipal Water Authority, Palestine, reported increased interest from some lignite concerns for Lake Palestine water.

David Brune, Trinity River Authority, Arlington, reported the Corps of Engineers is expected to reject two parts of the "Trinity River Project"—the West Fork Floodway and navigation above Liberty-while approving as feasible Tennesse Colony reservoir and the Dallas Flood-way project. Brune predicted increased urban run-off from the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex would result in worsening flooding downstream. Brazos River Authority General Manager Walter Wells, Waco, reported BRA has committed virtually all of the supplies available to it-although not all of the water is being used yet—calling the Central Texas area's need for additional water "pretty desparate."

> Wyatt also urged that import of water to the High Plains area from outside Texas be considered further, saying that "when people get hungry" they would be willing to "subsidize"

J.W. (Buck) Buchanan, North Plains Water Conservation District No. 2, Dumas, called for consideration by the Legislature of a master district for import-and suggested some sort of "prepayment plan" might be considered as well.

John Specht, Guadalupe-Blanco River Authority, Seguin, reported his district needs another 50,000 acre-feet of storage capacity to "firm up" the yields of the Guadalupe.

Specht also noted GBRA is working with San Antonio on possible sale of water from Canyon Lake to supplement the Alamo City's use of the Edwards Aquifer.

Fred Pfeiffer, San Antonio River Authroity, and Robert Van Dyke, San Antonio City Water Board, noted there have been "political dif-

long range plans indicate some coordinated use of ground and surface water is called for (with a change in the current law on groundwater likely needed for efficient use).

Con Mims, Nueces River Authority, said a study of freshwater inflows to bays and estuaries is needed to help determine how much water may be available for development in that river basin.

John Hickerson, El Paso Water Utilities, noted El Paso is trying to reclaim its sewage effluent by treating the wastewater-and then injecting it underground for future use.

The cost of doing that, he said, is $1.35 per 1,000 gallons to get the water into the ground—and another 28 cents to get it back out.

But that effort, he reported, has run into some problems-since it appears an environmental impact statement on the effort will be required.

The Task Force made no recommendations on solving the problems-with the session billed as merely an attempt to make members familiar with difficulties facing water

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A former Fort Worth debutante, who made national news three years ago when she was "deprogrammed" out of the Unification Church with its 'Moonie" members, is back with the same church, a spokesman has told a Dallas Newspaper,

The Dallas Morning News Saturday quoted New York church attorney Bruce Brown, who would say only that Cynthia Slaughter is now living 'somewhere on the East Coast.

'Cynthia doesn't want to talk publiely about it just yet," said Brown. 'She feels that she has been used in others, and she would rather wait until she collects her thoughts and is ready to talk."

In 1975, the attractive blonde was snatched from the controversial following of South Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon, who claims 35,000 Americans among his 3 million church members worldwide.

The members, whose collective nickname is taken from their leader, are best known for their persistent street pitches to city dwellers. Regardless of weather conditions, the oung men and women can be seen on bustling street corners hawking everything from candy to flowers and literature for donations. Some former members said they worked 18 hours each day, six days a week.

Miss Slaughter, now 27, was a fundraiser before she was "deprogrammed" by cult foe Ted Patrick, who the Moonies refer to as "Black

Her deprogramming was not unlike many others Patrick said he had conducted. She was deprogrammed at her parent's home in Grand Prairie, between Fort Worth and Dallas. The Slaughters could not be reached Sat-

In past interviews, Patrick has said the sessions aften become emotionally and psychologically brutal as he attempts to break the church's "hold" on a young mind. Church spokesman claim that Patrick and other deprogrammers are the ones guilty of "brainwashing."

After Miss Slaughter recovered fom the deprogramming, she and her prents began helping other families arrange: to "rescue" their children from the various religious cults. She formed the International Foundation for Individual Freedom, an educational organization designed to inform people of the dangers of mind control by cults.

A day-long news conference was held at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and several other young people beside Miss Slaughter stood and told their own horror stories about their experiences with such groups.

However, as excited as the young IFIF workers were at the outset, little was ever heard from them or their organization after the news confer-

Miss Slaughter's own zeal appeared boundless, however. She spoke against the cults at church gatherings, traveled to Washington to converse with local lawmakers, and even distributed anti-cult leaflets on street

But then, a few weeks ago, the News said it learned Cynthia Slaughter had gone to the Boston branch of the Unification Church. The church's information office said only that she has since moved to another eastern city.

Mondale talks of school support

By KEN HERMAN

McALLEN, Texas (AP) - Vice President Walter Mondale, speaking to a Saturday noon rally in one of the nation's poorest regions, said the Carter administration supports a mesure that would pump $30 million into school construction on the Texas side of the international border.

Mondale, his forehead dotted with sweat on a sweltering South Texas day, drew loud support from the crowd of some 1,500 when he announced the appointment of a Texan, Dr. Josue Gonzalez, as director of the office of bilingual education in the U.S. Office of Education.

Despite the enthusiastic response, workers in Bob Krueger's senate campaign said they were somewhat disappointed by the turnout at a city

Mondale said the administration backs the $30 million construction program proposed by Krueger, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and U.S. Rep. Kiki de la Garza, D-Texas.

"You see what happens when you elect good Democrats to Congress?" Mondale told the rally.

The $30 million would be used to finance construction in school districts flooded with legal alien students. Mondale said the program would provide relief without forcing increased property taxes.

Policy change still not evident

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a change of mood, but so far no change of policy in the Carter administration's approach to the sinking U.S.

The government seems unlikely to go all-out to back the dollar because it quite literally fears such action would amount to throwing good money after

The chief causes of the dollar's dramatic decline in the past 18 months are believed to be the country's huge trade deficits and the worsening rate of inflation, both of which are far from being solved.

So far, everything the administration has disclosed in the past two weeks to back the dollar has been

The announcement was made Saturday by Will Hadden, an Odessa attorney who is spokesman-adviser for the woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy Jr. of Odes-

Clues to Miss Murphy's whereabouts have been scant despite the announcement 10 days ago of a $5,000 reward for information leading to her discovery - dead or alive.

However, Hadden hopes leads in the case may result from placing Miss Murphy's car on display on the lot at 2700 North Grandview Street, where it was found July 21 — about 40 hours after her disappearance, Hadden

Hadden said sight of the car possi-bly may "refresh" the memory of someone who may have seen Miss Murphy or whoever parked the car

The car, a white 1975 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme with a partially dark blue roof, will be on display from checked out, but...has not received any information which has led to the finding of Miss Murphy.' Hadden theorized that the offer of the reward might "stimulate interest" in Miss Murphy's disappearance and in the search for her. Miss Murphy was secretary for H.B. Zachry Co., a general building contractor, and is daughter of an Odessa real-estate broker and insurance executive. She has been missing since around midnight of July 19, when she drove her boyfriend, Steve Fife, to his house following their date at The Other Place, an Odessa night spot. Her car was found Friday afternoon, July 21, on the parking lot on North Grandview Street

The driver's seat of the car had been pushed back, which, Hadden said, indicated someone of taller stature than the 5-foot-2, 120-pound, dark blonde woman had driven the car.

Hadden said the car will be parked on that same lot this week on thechance that the measure will aid in locating Miss Murphy. "I believe whoever parked Catherine Ann "Fifi" Murphy's car on the ...parking lot...will have information about her disappearance," Hadden said in a prepared notice.

Hadden is requesting everyone who was "in the area of this parking lot" on July 21 to go by there while the sedan is on display "and refresh your memory as to what you saw that

In his initial news conference on behalf of the Murphys, Hadden said he plans to do all he can to help find "Fifi" Murphy.

"If their daughter is dead, the Murphys would like her body found so that they can give her a proper burial and so they can be relieved of their mental turmoil and fears caused by not knowing where she is or what has happened to her," Hadden said ear-

Though she has called her daughter "no angel," Mrs. Murphy said that it was out of character for her daughter to leave home without telling family or friends of her intentions. And that is the primary reason, Hadden said, that the Murphys fear their daughter may be dead. Too, Miss Murphy did not notify her employer of any possible absence from work.

Last weekend, Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith and his deputies joined Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught and his men in searching the Gardendale area along the Midland-Ector County line in hopes of finding clues of Miss Murphy. Deputies had examined dried blood on a post and thought perhaps that it could be that of Miss Murphy. However, the blood stains turned out to be those of a slaughtered goat.

Both sheriffs said they were checking leads, however remote, on the off chance that a clue would lead to the woman's whereabouts. Miss Murphy had an airline reservation to Houston on July 21 — the day her car was found — to attend the wedding of her sister, Paula, the fol-"Fifi" Murphy never made it to the Hadden said anyone possibly having information about what might have happened to Miss Murphy should call his office at 332-0555 or the Odessa Police Department at 333-3641. He said the Murphys should not be contacted directly but through him or law-enforcement officials.

Odessa police Capt. Jack Fillyaw has assigned three detectives to the case, which also is being investigated by the Ector County sheriff's office and as needed by other law-enforcement agencies.

Pope John Paul I used to quiet, simple church life

By DENNIS REDMONT

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Cardinal Albino Luciani was elected Saturday as the 263rd pope, a surprise choice as spiritual leader of the world's 700 million Roman Catholics. He took the name of John Paul I, combining the names of his two predecessors.

Luciani, 65, regarded as a moderate, was elected by the 111 cardinals voting in a secret conclave in the Sistine Chapel. His choice of a name indicated he planned to follow the footsteps of his predecessors, Paul VI and John XXIII.

The son of a socialist glass-worker, Luciani was born near Belluno in northern Italy. He was ordained a priest at age 22, became Patriarch of Venice nine years ago, and a cardinal

The papal election was clouded in confusion for the world watching outside the sealed chapel and depending on puffs of smoke from a chimney for first word of an election.

White smoke signifies the election of a new pope, but the smoke that fluttered from the chapel roof ranged from white to black to grey. Black would have meant the ballots of an inconclusive vote were being burned, as they were after two unsuccessful votes Saturday morning.

The confusion ended at sunset as the doors of the main balcony at St. Peter's Basilica opened. Cardinal Pericle Felici emerged and made the traditional announcement in Latin: "Annuntio vobis gaudium magnum. Habemus Papam," — "I announce to you great joyful news. We have a

He was followed to the balcony by Luciani, already clad in the vestments of pope, who offered the tradi-tional blessing, "Urbi et Orbi" — "To the city of Rome and the world." The new pope waved with both hands to the throng gathered below in St. Peter's Square.

The new pontiff appeared 67 minutes after the first puff of smoke rose from the chimney.

The bells of all churches in Rome began 10 minutes of chimes to salute Pope John Paul I.

The new pope holds a degree in theology. During the 11 years he was bishop of Vitttorio Veneto he gave priority to pastoral activities in his

Luciani's surprise election recalled that of John XXIII in 1958, one of the new pope's predecessors as Patriarch of Venice. John Paul, like John XXIII, was not considered a leading candidate. Unlike his three predecessors, John Paul has no diplomatic experience. He appeared also to be the first pope to take two names.

Paul VI died Aug. 6 at age 80 after 15 years as pope.
While bishop, Luciani was fond of bicycling around his diocese.

During the second Vatican Council, when most Italian bishops clashed with their German and Dutch peers over progressive proposals, he kept open a dialogue between both sides.

Luciani's lightning election — recently only Pope Pius XII was elected within 24 hours — confounded most pre-conclave predictions.

The new pope is thin, wears glasses and has short cropped dark hair.

He drew cheers from the crowd in St. Peter's square as he emerged for the first time in papal vestments, which had been tailored in three sets in advance to fit any likely candi-

His high-pitched voice cracking with emotion, the new pontiff gave his first blessing to thousands gathered in St. Peter's Square and to millions of others watching on a worldwide television hookup.

Luciani became a cardinal after 11 years at Vittorio Veneto in the foothills of the Alps near Venice. He distinguished himself by his works on catechism, or Catholic education. As Patriarch of Venice he greeted Pope Paul on one of his trips to Udine in 1972 on the occasion of an Italian eucarhistic conference.

The actual vote of the cardinals is sealed in secrecy by an oath taken when they first began the conclave on Friday. Traditionally the winner must have received a majority of two-thirds plus one, but on orders from the late Pope Paul, all ballots and personal notes were to be burned after the election. The pope is believed by Catholics to be the successor to St. Peter, who according to church tradition, was chosen by Christ to head his church on It took one day of voting to elect

Rayburn's verdict may fit actions of O'Neill's house

By EDMOND Le BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) - If House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill worries that the Democratic 95th Congress hasn't delivered everything he or President Carter wanted, he can take comfort from the verdict of one of his most powerful predecessors:

"There never was a rubber-stamp

The man who made that observation ought to know. He was Sam Rayburn of Texas who, when he died in office Nov. 16, 1961, had been speaker more than twice as long as anyone else in history.

Comparisons between O'Neill and Rayburn were inevitable when the Massachusetts Democrat was named to the chair of the present House. He announced he intended to be a strong speaker, a designation generally denied the two men who served between Rayburn's and O'Neill's tenure.

It is still too early for a meaningful comparison. Rayburn presided over the House more than 16 years; O'Neill is still in his second year. Conditions are far different, and so are the styles of the two leaders.

But there is now readily available material to facilitate some future comparison, thanks to the Sam Rayburn Library at Bonham, Texas.

Rayburn never wrote his memoirs, but he apparently never threw away a scrap of correspondence. The library, established near the end of his life, bulges with his own and the public records relating to him.

The library's director, H. G. Dulaney, and two associates, history professor Edward Hake Phillips and staff member MacPhelan Reese, undertook to produce a Rayburn autobi-

They pieced it together as much as possible out of the voluminous docu-mentation of Rayburn's own words, filling chinks with extracts from contemporary writings about him.

The result, published as "Speak, Mr. Speaker," isn't exactly an autobiography. It is a rich though incomplete and uneven account of the life and times of a man who came to Congress in 1913, after having been

Few news stories rival dollar decline

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - For sheer emotional involvement, there haven't been many economic and financial news stories lately to rival the dollar's decline in foreign exchange.

The tangible impact within this country of currency fluctuations would seem to be small, since relatively few Americans have any regular experience changing their dollars for Japanese yen or Swiss francs or German marks

But those 15-square-inch paper rectangles with the distinctive green ink on the back obviously are important to people as symbols, as well as units of legal tender. "Sound as a dollar," the saying went.

So policy moves by the Carter administration and the Federal Reserve are getting close scrutiny following the president's recent declaration that he was "deeply concerned"

D. Graham in bank post

Douglas W. Graham has been added to the staff of The First National Bank of Midland, reports Wilbur A. Yeager Jr., president.

A native of Hartford, Conn., he is an accredited personnel specialist and will serve as vice president and personnel officer. He received a B.A. degree from Oberlin College in 1970, and also was graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1972 with an M.B.A. in Human Resources Management.

Previously, Graham had been assoclated with the Marine National Bank and Personnel Consulting Services. Inc., of Erie, Pa., and the Bank of the Southwest in Houston,

He is a member of the American Compensation Association, American Society for Personnel Administration, American Institute of Banking, National Eagle Scout Associatiton, and the Reserve Officers Association.

Graham also is a director of the Owen Graduate School of Management Alumni Board of Vanderbilt University and the Alumni Area Admissions Representative for Oberlin College.

Some observers remain skeptical that much progress can be made toward turning the dollar around until the country makes some headway on another, related problem - infla-

Their argument, stripped down to very simplified form, is that the appeal of dollars compared with other forms of wealth began to decline because there were just too many of them coming off the government's printing presses. After that, market psychology took over.

This summer the dollar has fallen much more steeply against some leading foreign currencies than inflation rates and money-supply trends would seem to justify.

One reason for this, analysts say, was that speculators in the exchange market saw the Carter administration as indifferent to the situation and therefore unlikely to take any strong action to reverse it.

"Naturally, this indifference provides an enormous incentive to those who are speculating against the dollar," Albert H. Cox Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics, observed recently.

Thus, he said, the "speculative snowball" carrying the dollar downhill kept growing and picking up

At some point, a declining currency is supposed to reach a level where goods produced in its home country become so attractively priced that foreigners step up their buying in that currency. Simultaneously, goods from strong-currency countries become more and more expensive, diminishing purchases of them from weak-currency countries.

This "self-correcting" process has been slow to take hold this time because of the perceived indifference in Washington and a couple of other factors, Cox wrote.

For one thing, he said, this country's domestic inflation rate has been higher than expected. In addition, he pointed to "piggybacking" by U.S. producers who have chosen to respond to higher prices for their foreign competitors' goods by raising their own prices almost as much.

"This has obviously blunted the impact of the dollar's drop in reducing imports," he said.

Henry Kaufman, a partner at Salomon Brothers, noted that the dollar got a lift last week from the first steps taken by the government aimed at bracing it up: an increase in the discount rate by the Federal Reserve. and the Treasury's plans to sell addi-

"Towards the close, however, foreign exchange markets were looking for further, somewhat more decisive governmental actions in defense of the dollar, particularly those aimed at slowing American inflation," he

Savings, loan people trying to digest rules

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-Texas Savings and Loan League Executive Vice President Duward Curlee says the savings and load industry in Texas is trying to "digest" new Federal regulations on "redlining"-but is finding some of the provisions hard to swallow.

Those regulations are aimed at eliminating alleged "redlining"-the policy of refusing to lend in a certain area because of its ethnic make-up, age of homes, etc.

That problem has been looked at by legislators in Texas, but the savings and loan industry has argued that the practice isn't used here-something which has been disputed by residents of areas allegedly "redline" by

Whatever else the regulations fo, Curlee says, they tend towards "increasing documentation of everything" done by lenders.

If an association does certain things, he notes, it can qualify for money from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board "at below money market rates," for inner-city lending.

"It looks like most of the savings and loans in Texas already qualify,' Curlee says, because "we have been lending in the inner city above the guidelines the government wanted to

"Inner-city" in this context, he notes, doesn't mean the sort of ghettos and tenements of eastern citieseven small cities, such as San Angelo, with no "inner city" in that sense, would appear to quality under the regulations.

The main objection of the associations, Curlee says, is to "useless documentation.

An attempt to document lending practices by associations was made several years ago, he notes, under the 'Financial Disclosure Act.'

That attempt used census tractsbut no one ever asked for the results or used them, except for one professor, who called them "inconclusive,"

The regulations, Curlee notes, ban discrimination against a loan simply because a house is older, or in a certain neighborhood-with a member of exceptions.

Examiners also are required to "concerned people in the community" to ask what kind of a job an association is doing.

The regulations also put the burden on the association to show that it is doing a good job of lending to all segments of the community before it can get a branch office approved.

Curlee also notes that since the Federal Home Loan Bank is owned by savings and loan associations, and receive dividends from it, the provisions for giving funds for inner-city loans at lower rates than those in the money market amount to a subsidy program by the associations them-

However, the effects will be spread over a large number of lenders and will not affect dividends to any great extent, he says.

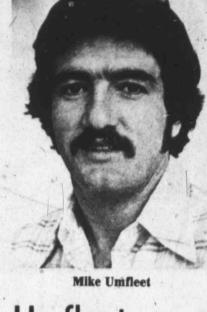

One result of the new regulations may be pre-emption of any State role in fighting alleged red-lining-since the Federal regulations appear to be "totally all encompassing," he com-

Another factor that may influence any attempt to enact State requirements in that area has been a push by lenders themselves to reduce charges of abuses by setting up review panels of (as in Dallas) community, civic and lender representatives to look at complaints-and to explain any refus-

Economics hit farmers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Speaker Bill Clayton said Saturday the American economy - especially the farm economy - cannot afford a "Sunbelt vs. Frostbelt" battle.

Clayton, a successful West Texas farmer, said America is losing 400 million acres of farmland each year, 'and every month the lights go out in another 2,000 to 3,000 family farms.'

"The reason," Clayton said, "is economic. In the past five years, farm machinery costs have gone up, fertilizer and chemical costs have almost tripled, energy costs for irrigation have skyrocketed and freight prices are continually on the increase.

He added in his most recent news-

"Although the cost of farm products has risen slowly, it has not equalled the nation's inflation rate. The farmer's share of food price hikes seems to get smaller and smaller while his costs of production get larger and larger. "How long can the farmer take a loss year after year and stay in the farming business?

What all Americans need to realize is that we're one. We're compact. We're all a unit. If you tear one of us apart, it hurts us all, not just one of us. There can be no Sunbelt vs. Frostbelt, Farmer vs. Consumer, Federal Government vs. State Government, North vs. South, if we hope to solve our economic and social problems.

"The time for debate is over. The American people are tired of talk. It's time for the governments and private industries to settle their differences. Our future depends solely on our ability to work with one another."

High rates of interest

By KRISTIN GOFF AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - To the surprise of analysts who have widely expected rising interest rates to choke off home buying, the housing boom refuses to die.

In two-thirds of the major housing markets, at least some lenders have been charging 10 percent for non-government insured loans on 80 percent of the cost of a home, according to a survey of 37 major markets released this weekend by Advance Mortgage Corp., a subsidiary of Citicorp.

Many lenders and economists had looked upon the 10 percent mortgage as a kind of magic number: the ultimate psychological barrier which would repel would-be homebuyers. Yet in nearly all these markets, the rates had little or only temporary effect," said Robert J. Mylod, president of Advance Mortgage.

The main reason seems to be found in the inflation trends. Overall price inflation has run at around 10 percent in the first half of the year and may finish at about 7 or 8 percent for all of 1978. But home values have been rising much faster and are still seen as a means of combating inflation.

The National Association of Home Builders says, for instance, that the median price of a new home rose 13.2 percent to $55,800 in May 1978 from a year earlier. The price of an existing home climbed 13.8 percent to $47,800 in the same period.

The Commerce Department reported earlier this month that housing starts in July totaled about 2.1 million on an annual basis, the fifth consecutive month of strong housing starts and the third best month of the year.

Even with a seasonal slowdown in the upcoming autumn months, housing this year is expected to finish close to last year's 2 million new

The Advance Mortgage Corp. survey projects that new housing starts. actually coming on the market this year will total about 1.5 million, compared to 1977's record 1.54 million. But it notes a shift to slightly more condominiums, instead of single-family homes in markets like Washington, D.C., Chicago, south Florida and southern California, where land is

One boon to the mortgage market this year has also been new moneymarket savings certificates that permit banks and thrift institutions to offer savings interest rates tied to Treasury bill rates.

After steep declines of savings inflows into savings and loan institutions since last autumn, the past two months "look better than anybody could have hoped for a couple of months ago," reports the National Association of Home Builders housing

While it may still be too early to tell, the industry group says the success so far in averting a credit crunch may spell the first smooth slowdown in the construction market in recent years.

"Now, at least, we can hope that instead of a sharp decline in housing starts, any decline will indeed be shallow. If that happens, it will be the first cycle in the post war history when housing did not take a nose dive," the report said.

-Pan American World Airways said it wanted to merge with National Airways, offering $35 a share for National stock. The $300 million proposal threw a monkey-wrench into the plans of Texas International Airways, which has acquired nearly 10 percent of National and has applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board to take control of the Miami-based carrier.

Texas International made no comment on the proposal, which National is studying. Pan Am said it would battle Texas International for control of National if necessary

AMC to hike 1979 prices

DETROIT (AP) - The 1979 model passenger cars of the American Motors Corp. will cost an average of 4.6 percent more than this year's models, while prices of 1979 AMC Jeeps are going up an average 6.5 percent, the automaker says.

The increase will tack $235 onto the price of the average-equipped passenger car, AMC said Friday. The company had no dollar figure on the Jeep price increases.

AMC Chairman Gerald Meyers said the price increases "are necessary to recover higher costs, but are insufficient to offset all of them." New AMC cars go on sale in September and the Jeep in October. The increases, higher than the 4.1 percent hike announced last week by pricing leader General Motors Corp., partly reflect more accessories as standard equipment than on 1978 models, Meyers said. AMC's competitors, GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp., have pledged to post smaller introductory price increases than in past years in support of the Carter administration's fight against inflation. With less than 2 percent of the domestic passenger car market, AMC's prices would have less impact on inflation rates than the Big Three automakers.

business Deattitudes

by Bill Beattie

"Every man's life lies within the present; for the past is spent and done with, and the future is uncertain." So stated Marcus Antoninus centuries ago. The only time that any of us can live is right

To continue living in a happy past can make present changes seem unwelcome. To dwell on an unpleasant past can kill confidence in the present. To judge the present by an unsuccessful past can stifle enterprise and initiative. The capacity to let the past go without regret is important to everyone

There is no moment like the present. The man who will not execute his plans and resolutions when they are fresh upon him can have no hope from them afterwards. They will be lost and perish because of the failure to act now. The attitude of acting in the living present is important in everyday, small events as well as in major events of our lives. If we think that the present is conditioned by the past, we tend to feel tired today because we did a lot yesterday, to feel discouraged and depressed today because we were happy and joyous yesterday, or perhaps to feel poor today because we spent a lot of money yesterday.

Thomas Drier said, "If we are ever to enjoy life, now is the time not tomorrow, nor next year, nor in some future life after we have died. The best preparation for a better life next year is a full. complete, harmonious, joyous life this year. Our beliefs in a rich future life are of little importance unless we coin them into a rich present life. Today should always be our most wonderful day."

If we are faithful to our duties of the present, we will never have to worry about how our needs will be provided for in the future.

Law suggested to protect innocent against searches

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee recommended legday to protect cent third parties, including news media, against police searches.

The recommendation stemmed from a May 31 Supreme Court deci-sion upholding the use by Palo Alto, Calif., police of a warrant in 1971 to search the office of the Stanford Daily, a student newspaper. The court ruled that the First Amendment provides no special protection to the press from police searches.

The committee's report quoted Justice John P. Stevens' dissenting opinion in which he argued that doctors. lawyers, merchants, customers and bystanders could be among those not involved in a crime, but possessing documents authorities might want

The committee lacks jurisdiction to initiate a bill in this field, but, it said legislation should be developed based on three basic principles:

-A search warrant should not be issued against a third party not reasonably suspected of implication in a crime unless it can be shown that the evidence sought would be destroyed or hidden if authorities proceeded otherwise.

-If possible, the legislation should apply to state as well as federal procedures. However, the committee acknowledged there is a constitutional question as to whether federal legislation could apply to state court procedures as well.

Following are excerpts from a dispatch written by Piper from Moscow for publication in the Baltimore Sunday Sun.

In the mails the University of Wyoming has asked me to donate my personal papers, diaries and memoirs to its journalism department.

I guess both stories make the same point: you go along doing your job, wondering if anybody is noticing, and all of a sudden Major Significance has gotten attached somewhere.

Some are born great, some achieve greatness. I had Major Significance thrust upon me.

One morning in late June two men arrived simultaneously at my office door. One was myself with a coffee cup. The other was a young fellow with a postcard. He was a process server, and his postcard summons informed me that I was to appear next day as defendent in suit No. 3-11378.

That was all. "Sign here," said the process I did not sign, but it didn't matter. I that eventually led to such gripping scenes as the meeting in which Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko and U.S. Ambassador Toon met to inform each other that I was an irritant in superpower relations. Goesteleradio, the Soviet state committee for television and radio, a government agency that has ministerial status, had accused us of libel. Somehow we had succeeded in "denigrating the honor and dignity" of Gosteleradio staff members.

Craig Whitney and I stared at each other. What in the world had we ever written about Soviet television? And then we remembered Zviad Gamsakhurdia.

Americans know him only as a "dissident." How shall I explain what it was like when Zviad Gamsakhurdia confessed on prime time television?

Suppose Gordon Liddy called a press conference and announced that the Watergate burglary was really the Cubans' fault, but anyway he was sorry he had done it and he had decided to switch his party registration to Democratic.

I thought Zviad Gamsakhurdia's televised repentance was an extraordinary story - not just another dissident case. I wrote about it, apparently without injuring the honor and dignity of Soviet television, since at my subsequent trial it was not even acknowledged that the official side of the story had been the first version reported to Sun readers.

Two days later, Craig Whitney and I were in Tibilsi, Georgia, Gamsakhurdia's hometown. The trip had been planned long before the trial, and we had lined up a formal program of meetings with government and Communist Party officials.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - Fighting broke out between national guardsmen and anti-government demonstrators in several rural areas Saturday as a general strike appeared to gain momentum in

The government of President Anastasio Somoza reported two persons were killed in the clashes. It said a guardsman was slain and another wounded during a gunfight in Masaya, 18 miles southeast of Managua, and a civilian was killed sand seven were wounded during rioting in Jinotepe, 35 miles south of

A Red Cross spokesman said he feared the toll was much higher.

Opponents demanding that Somoza resign began the strike Friday that was much more effective in some provincial cities than in Managua.

The strike had been called to start earlier in the week, but it was postponed when left-wing guerrillas seized the National Palace and took hundreds of hostages on Tuesday.

The guerrillas of the Sandinista Liberation Front freed the last of their hostages Thursday after the government gave them $500,000, freed 58 political prisoners and allowed the prisoners and guerrillas to fly to Panama where they received political asy-

The Midland Police Department's four female commissioned police officers don't see themselves as being any different than other working

However, they admit their jobs may be a little more interesting and sometimes more dangerous. Sgt. Monte Cross, Wyvonna "Von"

Ordener, Ofelia Gonzales and Mary Jo Brady have varying years of experience in the job.

But each said she has what it takes to make it in what, until recently, has been considered a man's occupation.

Sgt. Cross, 30, comes from a law enforcement-oriented family. She works in the juvenile division. Her father is a retired captain with the Department of Public Safety, and her brother is a Lubbock DPS troop-

A Lubbock native, she attended Sul Ross University in Alpine where she earned a degree in police administration. Sgt. Cross is a five-year veteran of the Midland Police Department.

She met federal, state and local law officers in Alpine when the university opened a new police administra-tion school. "That's when I decided what I wanted to do."

She worked with the Alpine Police Department two years before coming to Midland. Here, she started in juvenile division, became a detective and then returned to the juvenile division.

Known around the department as quite a marksman, Sgt. Cross has participated regularly in the annual pistol matches held among local commissioned officers.

As for the dangerous aspect of her job, Sgt Cross said, "I don't even think about it until whatever I'm involved in is over and done with."

"I feel there is a definite need for women in law enforcement. I'm not a women's liberationist. I like nothing better than to be treated like a man" is nothing like the real-life world of being a woman police officer, said Sgt. Cross.

"They glorify everything. It doesn't work that way at all. It's really a lot of hard work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. in juvenile division."

She's not bothered by her male co-workers because "the guys are real good. They 'harrass' us all the time. But actually they're ready to help us anytime.'

Wyvonna Ordener has served 15 years with the Midland Police Department as a commissioned police officer. She began her law enforcement career as a dispatcher and worked 14 years in records division before being named the first bailiff for Midland Municipal Court.

Daily, she checks to see who was arrested the night before and who needs to be arraigned.

She finds the records of these individuals and takes the information to Municipal Court Judge William Ahders. Next, she records his decision on these cases, while escorting citizens in and out of court — including those who have been sentenced.

Monday through Friday Officer Ordener answers questions and keeps order in the court, as well as making sure cases move as quickly as possi-

Judge Ahders says, "There is a place for more women in law enforcement. She has been an excellent bailiff. She is cooperative and friendly with the people and firm in her job. That's the way a bailiff must be."

The mother of five grown children, Officer Ordener said, unlike television programs, women in police work do not always get involved in socalled "glamorous" situations. "It's a very interesting job, but it's not as glamorous as TV portrays it. That's the way they portray us in Holly-wood, I guess."

Another aspect to the distaff side of police work is Ofelia Gonzales, who has served one year with the Midland Police Department.

The 23-year-old formerly worked with the Department of Public Safety as a receptionist.

Today she gives tickets to those who park their vehicles beyond the allowed meter time at Midland Regional Airport.

She and fellow officer Mary Jo Brady share the same duty. However, even this police job has its exciting, unusual and interesting Officer Gonzales wishes to become a patrol duty officer someday. Meanwhile, she deals with people, such as the man who tore up his ticket in front of her. She told him to pick it up or she would have to arrest him.

"To my surprise, he picked up the ticket!" she exclaimed.

Her job, also, is "not at all like television's 'Policewoman.' When you watch something like that you don't realize it takes months at a time to make some of those type of arrests."

She admits her job is demanding, but says it also has its rewards.

The demanding aspect comes in dealing with people who are upset. The only way to deal with them is to calmly listen and just not take any-thing personally," the officer said.

"Nobody said this fob would be easy. What keeps me going is that I know I have to do it. You just have to go and make of your career what you can," said Ms. Gonzales.

Like the other officers, she took 12 weeks of specialized police training at the Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy. "There were moments when I wondered, 'What am I doing here?' but it's definitely been worthwhile. It's a little different when you're the only girl in class," she said with a grin.

Mary Jo Brady also patrols Midland Regional Airport.

She's young and keenly interested in her job, too. "I've been nearly two years with the police department. I was commissioned a police officer in December this year. Before that I was a dispatcher," she said.

"It's a different job. I've thoughtabout doing this for a long time," said the blue-eyed redhead.

She, too, indicated there is definitely a place for women in law enforcement.

In full agreement is Lt. Dale Carlton, a fellow officer who works with officer Brady at the airport. "They wear the same badge we do. They have the same training we have. And there've been no problems," he said.

Officer Brady said her family likes the idea of her being a policewoman "They back me."

She predicted there will come a time when there are more women on the Midland Police Department

"More women are becoming in-terested in law enforcement. There are many opportunities in different areas ranging from juvenile work to other areas. I'm personally interested in getting into patrol duty in Mid-land," she said.

Airport duty can be slow, according to Ofelia Gonzales, a Midland police officer. Her duties include issuing parking tickets, maintaining order in the boarding area and weeding out would-be

Patrolling Midland Regional Airport is part of officer Mary Joe Brady's job. She monitors the passenger boarding area, patrols the parking facilities and checks for possible abandoned or stolen vehicles.

When a defendant goes before Municipal Court Judge William B. Ahders, bailiff Wyvonna Ordener, right, checks police files for information concerning the defendant, and maintains order while court is in session. Court reporter June Ocker records the actions of Judge Ahders. (Staff Photos by Mike Kardos)

Getting federal education funds is school's real art

EDITOR'S NOTE: If getting Washington to fork over federal education funds is an art, then the administrators of The University of Washington are artists. For that state university in the pacific northwest has consistently amassed more federal money than prestigious eastern private colleges.

By MARY KOCH Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — The University of Washington may be a continent away from elite Ivy League institutions like Harvard, Yale and Princeton. But when it comes to drawing federal research dollars it has left those schools - and most others far behind.

Each year as the nation's colleges and universities line up for $7 billion in federal grants, one of the biggest fistfuls goes to UW, much of it for medical and marine science research. The university has ranked among the top five recipients since 1968 and once led the pack for two years running.

In its most recent report, covering the fiscal year 1976, the National Science Foundation put Washington's share at $102.6 million putting it in third place behind Howard University and Massachusetts Institute of Tech-

But not everyone on the Washington campus is enchanted by the steady influx of federal cash, reflecting a controversy that's cropped up at other major instititions too.

"It seems to me that the university must stop expanding," says Prof. Edwin Hewitt, former chairman or the faculty senate. "Undoubtedly a great deal (of the research) is useful for the betterment of human kind, but we cannot do it all here.'

Although Hewitt has a relatively small federal research grant himself, he says the school's 37,765 students are suffering from an over-emphasis on research and under-emphasis of classroom teaching. University administrators disagree. Dr. Ronald Geballe, dean ofthe Graduate School and vice provost for research says that without the federal money, research "would essentially disappear and the medical school would vanish."

"All major universities are much the same as we are," he says. The university's scramble into the big bucks came during the post-Sputnik era, when the government became eager to finance scientific research. In 1954, three years prior to Sputnik, the university's research grants amounted to only $3.3 million dollars, representing 18 percent of the school's operating budget. Now federal grants and contracts account for 33

Washington State is represented in Congress by two unusually influential senators, Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson, both Democrats. But school officials say there's no relationship between that and UW's success in attracting grants. Magnuson, an alumnus and, as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee one of the federal government's most powerful budgeters, concurs. Many of the public announcements of grants and contracts come from Magnuson's office, making it sound as though he were instrumental in the grant getting. But that's merely a courtesy on the part of the grant-awarding agencies, he

Administrators insist that an excellent faculty and research in areas no one else is touching have drawn federal money, not the elusive art of

"I don't like the word grantsman-ship," says Dr. George W. Farwell, research vice president during the 1960s and early '70s. "It implies political craftsmanship and does not recognize support on the merits of the

But Farwell acknowledges that nothing succeeds like success, or, as he puts it, "a center of excellence becomes more excellent because of the assistance it is able to acquire."

'Round and round'

No, the White House isn't sinking, despite what you might have heard — but it does appear to be rotating.

There undoubtedly are those who have thought from time to time that various occupants of the White House have been inclined to go "round and round," but a rotating White House is something else.

Anyway, preliminary findings from a survey team which spent five days last month in a routine check of the presidential mansion's foundation, point to a slight rotation.

But there is no cause for immediate alarm, even if the rotation is confirmed through further checking, according to an Associated Press release from Washington. The rotation is said to be barely measurable.

Charles T. Whalen, an official of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's geodetic survey, said his findings indicate that the southwest corner of the White House, adjacent to the Rose Garden, has sunk five one-hundredths of an inch since a 1971 survey.

But at the same time the northeast corner, which is on the left to a person facing the building from Pennsylvania Avenue, has risen about the same distance.

"This would really indicate that you're having a slight rotation about an axis which would run through the southeast and northwest corners of the White House. Whalen explained.

The apparent rotation, he said, could be a result of normal settling following the extensive renovation of the structure during the Truman administration.

And even if the movement continues; it was explained, it would not necessarily cause cracks in the walls, providing the settling continues as evenly as it apparently has so far, Whalen said. He added that similar surveys taken in 1955, 1971 and 1974 had shown no detectable settling since the original renovation in 1949-52.

One cannot keep from wondering just what has been taking place in the White House of late to bring about this unusual circumstance. Could it mean that the present occupant is rotating -

Schools get poor grades from Admiral Rickover

By VIRGIL PINKLEY Copley News Service

One of the best educated men in this country is Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, who heads up the nuclear part of our fleets and is the father of our nuclear submarines. Not only does the admiral read constantly and travel extensively but he speaks a number of foreign languages perfectly and he is one of the best informed people in this country. He is disturbed, and with good reason, about the deteriorating status of our schools and the type of people we are graduating these days. The admiral is known for his frankness and bluntness, but his statements are based on facts. He has just made an address to the American Association of School Administrators convention in Minneapolis. Interestingly enough, his opening remarks were, "Members of the education community suggest that I have no business speaking on education - that I should leave education to the experts.

They say, in effect: 'If you don't tell us how to run our schools, we won't tell you how to design your nuclear ships.

Then he stated what more Americans should be saying and doing these days: "I believe it is a fundamental responsibility and moral obligation of every citizen to point out problems of public concern when he sees them, and to do what he can to set them right. If you do not feel comfortable with what I have to say, I want to reassure you that my remarks are intended to challenge, not to alienate. I speak as a friend of education, not as an adversary.'

To emphasize how badly our education system has fallen and failed because of emphasis on frills rather than on fundamentals, especially during the elementary and high school years, the admiral continued, "During the last quarter of a century as head of the Navy's nuclear propulsion program, I have had a unique opportunity to judge the products of our schools. In searching out young officers to meet the demands of this program, I have interviewed, over the last three decades, more than 12,000 top graduates from 150 colleges and universities.

"I look for people with the ability to think for themselves; who understand the basic principles of the courses they have taken and who speak clearly. I find some who are wellqualified. But a growing number do not measure up to their diplomas.

"It is not uncommon to interview a recent graduate from a 'good' college with a degree in mathematics who cannot solve a tenth grade algebra problem. I find graduates with degrees in electrical engineering who do not know the difference between direct and alternating current."

The admiral says that the shortcomings he encounters apply not only to engineering, mathematics and science but in history, foreign languages, economics and other fields.

Then he makes the damning but correct summary, stating, "From what I see, the basic knowledge shown by recent graduates is much less than that shown by those I interviewed 15 years ago. Yet, each had received good grades and, therefore, believed he had learned what was expected of him.

He says that in selecting graduates from our secondary schools who have enlisted in the Naval nuclear remedial courses to them in the basics of mathematics, physics and chemistry to prepare them for nuclear power school

He cited one example in saying that similar problems pertain elsewhere in the Navy and it is difficult to find young men who read well enough to perform their jobs.

For example, he continued, "Recently a sailor tried to repair a diesel engine simply by looking at the illustrations because he could not read the instructions. He caused $250,000 damage."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Earth may be desert by 2025

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The year is 2025. In the heartland of America, farmers are experiencing periodic crop failures. The Sahel region of Africa is tation the entire State of Texas no longer suffering from drought. Across the continents, people are on the move, following the changing sanity," Mengden said in a news rain patterns.

This is the far-out, but feasible, scenario envisioned by some research scientists of what the world may look like in the next century. The culprit is carbon dioxide.

In simple terms, the problem is this: the burning of fossil fuels releases vast amounts of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere. This seemingly innocuous gas - the same stuff that creates bubbles in soft drinks - forms a cocoon around the planet. This ceiling reflects the earth's own infra-red rays back to the surface and heats up the air. Scientists call this the "greenhouse" effect. Working from mathematical models of the earth's atmosphere, researchers have concluded that if fossil fuels continue to be burned at the current growth rate, the average temperature on the surface of the earth may rise two or three degrees centigrade by the early part of the 21st century, This could be the most drastic temperature change to occur on the planet in the past 10,000 years.

Such an increase in temperature, according to an unreleased Energy Department study, could change the world climate and eventually create severe environmental, economic and even political problems.

Rainfall patterns could shift, thus changing the areas of agricultural productivity. No one, of course, can predict specifically what will happen. But one top government scientist hypothesizes that the fertile grain belt in the American Midwest might suffer a water shortage, while such arid wastelands as Africa's Sahel region might turn green from rainfall.

"Experience with change is clear." warns one of the key scientific papers in the Energy Department study. "Reducing rainfall in almost any region produces economic and hence political instability.

Some reputable scientists fear that a global warm-up could, in the centuries to come, melt large portions of the polar ice caps. If the melting process raises the level of the sea by a mere meter, many populated coastal areas would be inundated. Some researchers have cautioned their colleagues not to dismiss such predictions as science fiction. These fanciful doomsday expectations from a global warming, they warn, deserve far more attention than they have climate change. Using the best scientific data available, the Stanford scientists have come up with some scenarios of what the future may look like 50 years from now if the world continues to consume fossil fuels at moderate to rapid rates. Their study. still in a draft stage, makes these key

- The global food supply is likely to fluctuate because of unanticipated crop failures.

- There is a slight but significant chance that the U.S. economic system may be disrupted by water shortages in agricultural areas.

- Climatic changes will probably cause an increase in international migrations of the world's peoples. - It is highly likely that the balance of power will shift among today's have and have-not nations.

Such predictions have become a controversial topic between opposing scientific camps. Many experts believe the world cannot use fossil fuels at a fast enough rate to produce the results predicted by the Stanford

Other question marks hang over the carbon dioxide controversy. Within the scientific community, for example, there is an intense debate over the role of forests and oceans.

In the process of photosynthesis, green plants remove carbon dioxide from the air and release oxygen. Thus, some experts believe, the deforestation of large areas of the earth is contributing to the current build-up of carbon dioxide. Other scientists are not so sure.

The world's oceans, it is believed, absorb much of the carbon dioxide produced by the consumption of fossil fuels. But no one can say for certain just how fast the oceans will be able to soak up the excess carbon dioxide as coal, oil and gas are burned at increasing rates.

The Department of Energy has launched an intensive program to examine how the carbon dioxide build-up will affect the climate. Oceanographers are being recruited to determine how fast the oceans can sponge up the carbon dioxide residues. Research stations have been set up in Alaska, American Samoa, Antarctica and Hawaii to monitor the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. More stations are being planned

Within five to 10 years, government officials hope, they will have some reliable answers. They have to. If it is determined that the climate in the second decade of the 21st century will depend on the fuels used now, the transition from coal, oil and gas to other energy sources must begin in the 1980s.

For the infants of today who will be middle-aged men and women in the year 2025, it is a decision of profound

On South Korea: Congress does something right!

WASHINGTON — Despite the furor over "Koreagate" (a fading term), and the exasperation which made Leon Jaworski's face wrinkle like a shrunken orange, Congress kept its head and didn't confuse apples with oranges.

The way Congress is headed now, South Korea will not be denied any military aid, thus rationality wins. Congress managed to keep the emotional wrangling over the sins of certain South Korean agents and willing congressmen separate and sensibly distinct from the cold realization that South Korea has a serious security problem, one requiring continuing U.S. aid and support.

The Senate and House have passed a bill authorizing the transfer of $800 million in U.S. weaponry to South Korea, to be tied in with a phased troop withdrawal. The bill also includes $269 million in foreign military sales aid. Final details for both measures are being ironed out in confer-

A House move to stop $56 million in concessional loans for South Korea to buy food from the United States (congressmen remember some hankypanky rice business) succeeded, but now the Senate is on the verge of putting the money back into its legislation. In any case, South Korea has $1 billion of its own money to buy plenty of grains and other foods from the United States in 1979, and will. Economically, South Korea stands on

For many people, South Korea is off in the Orient, a peninsula hanging near Japan, a place where a violent war was fought over a Communist invasion one generation ago, with 53,-000 Americans dying.

It is also the place which sent us Tongsun Park and his bags of money, thus consequent investigations and news stories laced with Korean names we can't pronounce or remember, and references to dead or fading congressmen. In sum, South Korea probably doesn't mean that much to the majority of Americans.

South Korea is to be admired for the way it rebuilt itself after being reduced to rubble in the war with North Korea's Communists. South Korea today is a prosperous, hard-working nation, deeply grateful for the effort and sacrifice of the United Nations forces a generation ago.

But South Korea is also a tragic nation, in that the two Koreas belong together. The Korean people are divided because of the blunder of allowing Red troops to move into Korea far enough to accept the Japanese

Naturally, the Communists wouldn't allow free elections, supervised by the United Nations, so the North Korean Communist regime was born, and South Korea remained the place where people were introduced to Western Democratic ways.

U.S. troops evacuated South Korea in 1949 and less than one year later, North Korean Communist troops invaded and overran South Korea. Thus began the "policbaco" by the U.S. and U.N. troops, a war which raged back and forth over the 38th Parallel for three bloody years.

The decades passed, and we forget. But there is a statue of President Harry S. Truman at the gateway to the demilitarized Zone, and Koreans keep flowerbeds there in appreciation. In contrast, the DMZ itself is a terribly tense place because the North Korean Communist forces stationed there are provocateurs, and only two years ago used axes to bash in the brains of American officers supervising a treetrimming project.

Anyone, dove, hawk or owl, is shocked in visiting the DMZ. It is as traumatic an experience as is a stop at the Berlin Wall - another monument to Communist brutality. Both are sobering experiences and, in the case of South Korea, are persuasion enough to insist that this threatened nation always have some protection furnished by the United States. Though the situation involving

North and South Korea is chroniclly tense, we paid relatively little attention to South Korea until the complicated story involving venality, favors and bribery broke in 1976. The revelations attested to the verity that the American art of public relations and wheeling-and-dealing was exported to South Korea - as it enjoyed economic boom - and returned as an import welcome in some corners of Congress. What has passed as an investigation confounded and frustrated Jaworski, hero of the Watergate wars.

Concurrent with this fuss, this farce, this lesson in human frailty, was President Carter's badly executed, even premature announcement that he was going to order nearly all U.S. troops withdrawn from Korea by 1981. The shock of Koreagate was thus compounded, and officials in the South Korean government wondered if the United States was going to abandon their nation. Fortunately, Carter reconsidered, and slowed the troop withdrawal. Where 6,000 of our 32,500 troops were to be out by the end of 1978, only 3,400 will have left by then. In any case, we must keep a symbolic presence, with the American Flag in the DMZ, just as we have remained in Berlin all

Streets and Roads: Highway commission good at playing the game

By BILL KIDD

AUSTIN - Highways in Texas have been, for years now, the pride (and pleasure) of its residents — and the envy of other states.

And the operations of the now-Department of Highways and Public Transportation have been conducted without the politicking and influencepeddling which has marred efforts in some other states. Which isn't to say that politics aren't involved in the road-building process. Not by any means.

Lawmakers and political observers were witnesses to the influence and power of the highway interests in the ast session, when Gov. Dolph Briscoe joined in the push to have additional funds committed from Texas' general revenue sources for road construc-

Few people, even those opposing committing those funds ahead of other state spending, argued that highways aren't a good thing, or that there are areas in the state which couldn't use some additional or improved roads.

Texans seem to regard highways as they do rain or sunshine — as necessary and vital, but disagreeing at times over how much is needed, and when, and where.

Over the years, 71,000 miles of roads have been constructed — and the department has grown, reaching nearly 20,000 employees during the peak of interstate construction in the 1971-72 period.

Now, the agency is a svelte 14,000-person operation, which spent $784,-044,144.09 last year - with over 60 percent of that for construction, and nearly 20 percent more for mainte-

This year, the spending level will be around $850,000,000, depending on how much federal money comes down from Washington

Charged with overseeing that operation is the three-member State Highways and Public Transportation Commission, which is appointed by the governor.

Houston, San Antonio (the chairman), and Charles Simons, Dallas.

Simons is serving on a term which expired last Feb. 15 - and so could be named for the rest of a six-year term,

At present, those three members are DeWitt Greer, Austin; Reagan

or be replaced, by Gov. Briscoe before Briscoe leaves office in Jan-

Already, there is some lobbying being done to replace Simons. Rigdon Edwards of Sweetwater has been promoted by West Texas area folks as a "candidate" for what has been claimed as a traditional "West Texas seat on the commission."

Whoever ends up with the appointment will be sitting, every month, in the auditorim of the department's Depression Gothic building at 11th and Congress, hearing delegations made up of county judges, city mayors, school district presidents. chambers of commerce spokesmen and assorted citizens ask for wider roads, better bridges, alternate routes, more multi-lane expressways and repairs for damage from too-hot summers and too-cold winters.

And they'll tell the delegations that the department and commission will do the best that can be done, with the money available.

Unfortunately, that money hasn't stretched as far in recent years as in years past, with much of the increase in funds going into inflation rather than concrete or asphalt.

Highway officials say they'll be strapped over the next several years. to keep up with repairs and to prevent the present system from deteriorating while trying to get new construction for the state's growing population and expanding metropolitan areas.

That means the Legislature will have to come back into the act - and that Legislature will be increasingly. urban-dominated.

Will that mean that the "public transportation" part of the agency's name will become more than the after-thought it's been?

Probably so, judging by the new emphasis being given to such projects in Houston and San Antonio recently. But Texas won't be leaving its need for good highways behind anytime in the forseeable future. And the new leadership of the Governor's Mansion isn't likely to forget that, and judging by past experience, there'll be lots of folks available to jog his memory - if it looks like he needs

POSITIVE THINKING

Formula offers brighter tomorrows

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Perhaps the saddest thoughts that can enter a man's mind are those in which he ponders upon why he has not become what he wanted to be.

Just the other day I was talking to a man of 47 who said: "I have now come to realize I will never be any more than I am at the present time. Up to this point, I had been motivated by a dream that the great day would come, but now I know it will never come. I have gone as far as I will go. My life story has been written. I told him he was being foolish and that life can begin at any age. I gave him examples, not only of people who had made their mark when young, then faded into obscurity and, much older, made a comeback which brought them greater success than that they had previously achieved. And as I talked, I saw the old gleam come back into his eyes, which convinced me that his dreams were not dead and that there was still in his heart a faith in the brighter tomor-

People who have known sorrows, defeat, discouragements are sustained and kept afloat in life by the faith that better days are ahead. In fact, I think we might say with a certain reasonableness, that when faith in the brighter tomorrows completely dies out of a man's mind, he is dead as far as his mind is concerned, although his body may still be alive. The Bible gives us, in this as every other case, a formula which can help us keep looking for those better tomorrows. You can find it in the Book of Romans where we are told that "all things work together for good to them that love God. This formula embodies what I believe is the profoundest, the greatest and the most powerful thought that any human being can have - the thought that God is with him, that he has the strength of God available to help him and that nothing can defeat him because God is present with I am reminded of George Bernard

Shaw's great play, "Saint Joan." It offers an excellent example of what a simple peasant girl could do because she knew God was with her. There is a scene in which this innocent maid from Orleans comes one night to the headquarters of the French commander, who has only a handful of men opposing and overwhelming English army. She says to the commander: "Have no fear, sir, In the battle of tomorrow we will

Knowing the military facts, he is disgusted with such bravado, coming as it does from a peasant girl, and says, "Tell me why you think we cannot be defeated tomorrow."

She answers, "I don't think, I know that we cannot be defeated tomor-

"Why?" he asks.

"Because," she says, "I hold in my hand this sword, which is God's sword. With this sword no enemy can stand against me, for no enemy can stand against God."

Although these words have the ring of poetry, they are not poetry. Nor are they idle dreaming. They embody one of the greatest positive truths.

Of course, if you tell yourself, as many thinkers do, that you are defeated, you can be sure that indeed there will be no bright tomorrows. To find your brighter tomorrows you must do three things.

Most important is to believe that by the presence of God with you, you can win. Then, realizing that God is with you, find His quietness and peace so that you may become relaxed, free and easy rather than tense, rigid and all tied up in yourself. And, third, allow your faith in God to change you by humbly admitting that you need to be changed and then allowing faith the work the change you need.

All things work together for disaster if you don't love God, and "all things work together for good to them that love God." This is both a sad and glorious truth.

Down the pathway ahead are brighter tomorrows if you are willing to pursue the simple practice of believing in the presence of God as your everyday friend.

More power to Midland's representatives at the PUC hearings in Aus-

Like many other people, I have followed the reports on the hearings in your paper. And, the new series of articles by Jim Steinberg, with background information and in-depth analysis, is very interesting. I have a couple of questions which I hope he

A very polite woman at the TESCO office explained why my electric bill is so high. She gave me two reasons. First, in hot weather, I, like most people, use more electricity, mainly because of air conditioning. That is true. I am obviously using more kilowatt hours. But, the second reason my bill is so high both puzzles and infuriates me. She explained, "We have two different rates - one for winter (November to April), and a different rate for summer (May to October)." The incredible part of this is that the summer rate (when we use more) is considerably higher than the winter rate!

I was also told, "We don't set the rates. The PUC sets the rates." That is not exactly accurate, I believe. It appears that the initiative comes from the electric company. TESCO must bear the responsibility for asking for a higher summer rate. Of course, the PUC must have approved this at some time, and bears responsibility for that approval.

My first question is how and when did the higher rate for electricity in the summer become established?

My second question is: What, if anything, can irate customers (I estimate some 90% of customers could be called irate) do to change this very unfair system? Naturally, I do not mean by equalizing rates at the sum-

Giant step down

The Midland Independent School District has given great oratory for the last year and a half about raising standards and upgrading achievement, yet the school board passed what I consider a very questionable final exam policy for all high school

I must admit that if I were a student I would really be excited at the easy prospect of getting out of finals with very little effort; but I am new a parent who hopes my children will graduate prepared to go to college and/or have the learning skills at hand to function well in their chosen

Beginning in Sept. 1978 any student who (1) has a passing grade average (passing is 60 and above), (2) who behaves himself in class, (3) who has no more than four excused absences and three unexcused tardies. and (4) has parental permission is exempt from quarter finals. This was recommended by the Teachers' Communications Committee and was designed to encourage better school

I am at a loss to see the benefit in this policy for the student and his proposed increased achievement level. Some people have contended this will increase funds (state) to the district in the way of "average daily attendance." Others have told me this should cut down a lot of the teachers' paper work. All this may be true indeed, but where is it designed to encourage higher achievement? I feel it is a giant step toward lower-

It rewards mediocrity and below Students are supposed to attend school by law, but now we feel compeiled to dangle bait in front of them to bribe them to do what they are expected to do. There is very little incentive to go above and beyond the call of duty. I could accept the premise behind this idea if one of the qualifications was an A average (or even an 85 average) in the class. It would at least encourage the student to study harder to earn that A and earn that exam exemption.

This policy was passed for a year's trial to see if attendance improves. I hope the board will reconsider it before then and find a better way to award merely attendance if they feel a reward for this is necessary. How about rewardng effort and honest hard work? Not everyone is good in everything, but nearly everyone is good at something if they apply them-

No tax credit

To The Editor:

My 16-year-old daughter, Tyrann, could hear the logic reasoning and common sense behind the statements made by the tax protestors, Mr. Ed Runyan and Mr. Marshall McCrea. Why couldn't the other school board members? Do they have a deaf ear?

Thank you, Mr. Runyan and Mr. McCrea, for your sincere efforts in trying to help the overtaxed citizens of this city. I hope you both run for re-election.

I do not want the private school tax credit. The parents would then be forced to put pressure on the private schools their children attend to become accredited and then we'would have the same mandated programs in the private schools. I am sending my children to private school to get away from these mandated programs. It was a little too much, when my 6year-old son asked for his reward for making his bed and cleaning up his room. How do you explain to him that all family members work in the home and in the yard out of love and repsect for one another. You do not do it for a piece of candy or a happy face, like B.F. Mr. Thomas Mitchell mentioned the people that are being subsidized by the government. Many in the audience thought he was referring to the blacks. In construction work, we have found that the blacks and Latin Americans are very hard working people. We have noticed that it is the "White Folk" that do not work and do take the subsidies. They want a reward for just showing up for work and not earning their wages. They want $9.50 an hour for $3 worth of work. That doesn't cut it! Patricia D. Conway

I have been acquainted with good honest trandesmen and craftsmen all of my life. As of late, I have not been so lucky. I am not writing to downgrade,

I, myself, have had contractors walk off leaving their job unfinished, make me a bid and not stick to it, and do a lousy job to boot. All of this. because I was trusting of their integrity. As far as I am concerned it is my own fault, for not taking the actions and precautions available to me.

The following is a list of ways a person can protect himself. If this list is followed, the chances of being burned will be minimal. Please, do not take the attitude that no one else will take the time so why should I. If that happens, we will all stay in the same boat.

First of all, when you have a job to be done, always get several estimates, and secure references from each and every contractor. Check all of the references instead of only the first one on the list.

Because these references are handpicked, call the Better Business-Bureau and check your contractor's record there.

When you have decided on a contractor, get together with the person and write into a contract everything you have agreed upon. I have found that often people are embarrassed to display this kind of distrust, but the legitimate contractor will not mind a

Chance 'punted'

In 1977 drug arrests in the Permian Basin were up 1801 percent from 1967, and up 25 percent from the previous year, and arrests are only a small indicator of a deeper problem. There does seem to be a serious drug and alcohol problem in West Texas. The popular West Texas solution seems to be of "close your eyes and it will van-

This brand of logic was evidenced at the June 28th meeting of the Midland School board when members rejected 4 to 1 the values clarification drug education proposal. The Wisconsin based program has been tentatively used at San Jacinto with higher results than the old scare program.

Board member Ed Runyan moved that the program be dropped and that they return to the old program with the fundamental approach, the same approach used for the last decade, with negative results.

The reason for dropping the program was cited as being its controversial name, which angered the full house of parents at the meeting, parents who dictate rather than suggest their own morals to their children and refuse to-expose them to any differing ideas. They contended that values clarification equaled humanism, which was atheism (a shock word).

Recently we have been informed of the attrocities that occur nightly at the L and I street arenas which, like drug abuse and crime, are only symptoms of deeper turmoil. That could have been healed if they were not weaned on near-sighted, dead-end logic. Thirty seven percent of all high schoolers get drunk or high at least once a week.

It's known that alcohol won't condemn you to burn in hell and smoking pot won't incite grandmother beatings or an overthrow of the government, but they are still limited and needless escapes - and illegal in many cases. Values clarification would steer in where the parents detoured and avert the need for bottled

Once again the Midland school board with pressure from closed minds has punted the chance to better our city and future.

Ban battling many strikes

By FRANK MACOMBER Copley News Service

The Carter administration's hope for an early killer satellite ban treaty with the Soviet Union already has a couple of strikes against it.

Russian anti-satellite system in the The United States has sought to counter these conditions with a warning that the United States will step up its development of space weapons unless the Russians come to terms on a killer satellite ban. Significantly, U. S. intelligence sources reported the Russians flew their 15th killer satellite in a test last May 19 - less than a month before the first American-Soviet talks to limit such weapons began in Helsinki,

Finland, on June 8. Some U.S. experts claim the Soviets would benefit from an early ban agreement because U.S. technology could develop more efficient space weapons than those produced by the Russians. But they get an argument from critics of the U.S. space program. They claim the Russians probably are four or five years ahead of the Americans in killer or antisatellite development. # Kunstler pleads for dismissals in contempt case

CHICAGO (AP) -Charging collusion between judges and prosecutors in the Chicago 7 trial, attorney William Kunstler has asked a federal court to dismiss contempt convictions against him and three defendants.

Kunstler also charged that the FBI bugged defense strategy sessions during the 1968 riot conspiracy trial before U.S. District Judge Julius J. Hoffman. The contempt convictions stem from the behavior of Kunstler, Abbie Hoffman, Jerry Rubin and David Dellinger during that trial.

In his motion Friday, Kunstler said newly discovered evidence "will demonstrate that the entire trial simply did not constitute a judicial proceeding."

"There was extensive bugging of the defense camp before the trial, during it and after it," Kunstler said at a news conference where Rubin present. Hoffman, who has been charged with selling cocaine, not been seen publicly for five

Kunstler said the judge, federal prosecutors and the FBI "were in a criminal conspiracy to impose contempt citations long before the trial ever began in 1969."

The Chicago 7 were tried on charges of conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. Contempt charges ranged from use of profanity in the courtroom to failure to rise when the judge entered the courtroom.

Kunstler and Morton Stavis, who is representing the defendants, said the new motion is based on declassified government documents obtained through a freedom of information suit

Area rabbits trigger Colorado inquiry

Exportation of West Texas jackrabbits from the Midland-Odessa area to Colorado for use in and Dellinger also were training greyhounds has triggered an investigation by the Colorado Racing Commission for possible criminal violations, say federal and

Such concerns include price controls, environmental restraints, and the octane requirements of new auto-

After assembling preliminary data indicating a possible shortfall of 400,-000 barrels of gasoline a day in 1980,

Department of Energy officials discussed the situation with representatives of 16 of the nation's largest producers of motor gasoline.

Urvan R. Sternfels, general counsel for the National Petroleum Refiners Association, summarized the proceedings in a report to members of the trade group that includes practically all the nation's oil refiners.

Without exception, refiner representatives asserted that 1980 supplies of motor gasoline for each gradeleaded and unleaded-would satisfy demand," Sternfels said.

Proposal opposed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas filed a brief Thursday opposing the federal Department of Energy's proposal to subsidize East Coast consumers of residual oil at the expense of the rest of the nation.

"The Department of Energy's own figures show that the rest of the country would pay more than $200 million annually to subsidize the East Coast," said a brief filed by mail by Attorney General John Hill. "Our figures show Texas would pay $28.5 million per year under such a plan. To make Texans pay East Coast consumers to use foreign oil is ridiculous.' Hill said that "the federal bureaucracy that came up with this proposal apparently has not heard about the pledge President Carter made last month in Bonn, Germany. Carter promised to reduce waste and imports of foreign oil by increasing U.S. oil prices. This proposal would do exact-that might alter their predictions of have precluded its accomplishment. He said the refiners were asked why decontrol would stimulate investments to increase capacity when prices were being suppressed by competition.

"It was pointed out by refiners that only incremental improvements that required comparatively little capital such as debottlenecking have been undertaken under price controls that precluded recovery of return on investment," he said.

"One respresentative stated the industry 'lived in the hope we will have decontrol and will eventually be able to raise prices'

Sternfels said the refiners were told by representatives of the Environmental Protection Agency the lead phasedown deadline of Oct. 1, 1979, for the termination of all waivers and the reduction to 0.5 grams per gallon average lead content would remain.

"This assertion was made in the face of suggestions any potential shortage could be averted by EPA altering the phasedown program..."

"Clearly, EPA has its feet 'dug in' on the lead program and only clear evidence of a shortage of gasoline has any potential for altering their curprogram. Even then it would probably take pressure from either Congress or the White House."

Sternfels said concern about adequacy of supply in 1980 was the principal reason for the conference.

'Many of the participants noted that although supplies would be adequate, albeit 'snug,' if levels of octane required by new automobiles increase, the situation could tighten,'

He added that one refiner said his company expected to meet unleaded demand but that there was uncertainty of what octane levels Detroit's cars will require.

"The increased octane requirements of new unleaded cars and the attendant octane requirement increase which occurs as these cars accumulate milege pose significant challenges to refiners and could prejudice their ability to supply unleaded gasoline in quantities necessary to meet demand," Sternfels said.

"If refiners must increase unleaded" gasoline octane in order to accommodate higher car compression ratios in future model years, some reduction in gasoline yield must occur."

Sternfels said refiners have been told 1979 model unleaded cars may have compression ratios averaging 9

"This would mean a dramatic increase in the number of cars that would not be satisfied on 91 octane unleaded fuel," he said.

More crude oil is required to process unleaded gasoline and refiners have said the lead phasedown will mean that 500,000 to 1,000,000 barrels of additional crude will be needed every day in the 1980s because of the requirement for unleaded supplies.

Repurchase approved

The board of directors of the Midland-based Olix Industries Inc. recently approved the repurchase of 13.15 percent of the company's outstanding shares of common stock, said Olix President Kenn S. George.

The transaction amounts to 179,422 shares, said George, who did not disclose the cost of the re-purchase.

"This purchase was made at an effective price extremely advantangeous to Olix," said George. "The stock will be returned to the company treasury and will be available for future corporate activities."

"We feel this purchase is a good investment for Olix.

Olix has oil and gas interests in Texas and Louisiana and is engaged in manufacturing business and institutional furniture under the Cramer

All leases sold will carry a royalty of one-fifth of the gross production of oil and royalty of one-fifth of the gross producton og gas. The annual delay rentals for the leases sold at the 68th auction will be based on a sliding scale as follows. Bonus zero to $10.99 per acre, end of first and second years, $1; end of subsequent years, $2; $11 to $44.99 bonus, $2 at end of first and second years, $4 end of subsequent years; $45 to $79.99 bonus, $30 end of first and second years, $6 end of subsequent years; $80 to $149.99 bonus, $4 end of first and second years, $8 end of subsequent years; $115 to $499.99 bonus, $5 end of first and second years, and $10 end of subsequent years; bonus of $500 or more, $10 end of first and second years, and $20 end of subsequent years. The rental on producing leases will be $2 per acre beginning at the end of the year in which production is established, and if the royalties paid to and received in the General Land Office from a lease during the preceding year shall equal or exceed the amount of $2 per acre annual rental payment, no annual rental will be due. In the event of cessation of production after once obtained, the annual rental due shall be as provided for a non-producing lease. The board will consider only cash bids and the cash offered must be payable at par to the commissioner of the General Land Office. Drilling obligations, oil payment, overriding royalties or any form of bouns bid other than cash will not be consid-

No advance rentals will be added to the bid price of successful bidders, but one percent will be added and paid as a special fee payment. Bidders who cannot be present on the date of the sale may be represented by an agent. Satisfactory evidence of authority to act as agent may be requested by the Board.

Course scheduled at library

The Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library at 1805 W. Indiana St., will be the meeting place for classes of a special course being offered on the history of the U.S. petroleum industry, beginning Sept. 5.

The course, being offered by The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, will be taught by Dr. Roger M. Olien, chairman of history and government at UTPB. Classes will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. on 16 consecutive Tuesdays. Persons completing the course will earn three semester hours.

Registration at UTPB is scheduled Wednesday and Thursday, but persons interested in this particular course also may register at the Nita Stewart Haley Library here on the night of the initial session.

A spokesman for the library board said it is delighted to offer its facilities for and to host the classes.

Lecture and discussion periods, it was announced, will cover the growth of integrated oil companies, the role of independent operators, the industry's regulation by state and federal governments, the working man in the industry, and the industry's public reputation.

Dr. Olien is the author of numerous articles, reviews and acholarly papers. He recently completed an appointment as a Research Fellow of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame, while writing a book on oil booms, in collaboration with Dr. Diana D. # Exploration flares across Williston Basin

TULSA, Okla.—Oil exploration has flared across the U.S. portion of the huge Williston Basin, which covers the western two-thirds of North Dakota as well as portions of eastern Montana and northern South Dakota.

The Oil and Gas Journal reports that increased oil prices, technological advances, and successful wildcatting have combined to make the Williston Basin one of the hottest drilling areas

In the first half of 1978 alone, oil companies discovered 61 new fields or producing zones. More than one-third of all wildcats in the basin are finding oil vs. about one in four nationally.

Oil operators tell the Journal that the current surge of action should continue unchecked for at least five years. But dry holes and government disincentives have prevented the boom from spreading to the Saskatchewan, Canada, portion of the basin.

The weekly news magazine's Aug. 21 issue reports that seismic activity is at a modern high in the U.S. portion of the basin, with 35 to 50 crews working. That compares with less than half that number one year ago and only five or six crews two to three years ago.

Carter miffed at cash for vote report

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, miffed by reports he is swapping breeder reactor research money for a crucial vote on his energy program, is opening a massive offensive designed to win Senate votes for the natural gas pricing issue.

"We did not change our position," Carter said Friday night in reponse to statements by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho. The senator had said the president agreed to support about $1.5 billion in breeder reactor programs — some of them in Idaho — over three years in return for McClure's signature on the natural gas mea-

Our pit-liners are so good at lining pits they sometimes get cocky and think they can walk on water. This one didn't make it. His name is Axe Handle. He's one of our better men. The ones who fail to walk on water or even try to are put in The Crawfish Patrol Unit. Crawfish might get into a pit we have lined and pinch holes in the lining and let water leak out that will cost the Operator money. We have to be constantly on the look out for Crawfish. so all our Pit Liners are equipped with Thibodaux Crawfish detectors (two bare feet-one foot on the left side and one foot on the right side). But in Axe Handle's case he has two left feet. We watch and when we see a Pit Liner tend to circle to the right all the time then we know he has two left feet. Axe Handle says (we don't say this, Axe Handle says this) the left foot is the driving foot while the right foot does the guiding or steering. When a person has two left feet he has too much driving force but no guiding mechanism at all. Consequently we have to keep Axe Handle patrolling along the left bank of a pit when he's on Crawfish patrol. If we let him patrol along the right bank he will circle right up on the bank and sit down. The idea of the Crawfish Patrol is to see if there are any Crawfish that might pinch holes in your pit lining. We have to watch anything that might cause your pit to leak and cost you money.

Thank all of you who have called wondering where Sweet Molly is. She is on vacation and will be back in time to put her Grandkids in school She thinks their Mother might not do it right, so she wants to be here. We know she will appreciate being missed, and promise you'll be seeing her again soon.

Let us line your pits so they don't leak. Black 6. White 8.

The Los Angeles Times Mead Corp. of Dayton, Ohio, fired another salvo last week in its attempt to prevent Occidental Petroleum

Corp. of Los Angeles taking control of the forest-products concern. In a letter to shareholders, Mead chairman James W. McSwiney and president Warren L. Batts attacked Occidental's business record, its prospects and its management, and raised ferred stock Occidental is offering. The letter was Mead's first attempt to support the decision of its board, taken Aug. 18, to reject Occidental's proposed exchange offer on the grounds that it was "inadequate and not in the best interests of Mead share questions about the value of the pre-owners. The letter states that Occidental's proposal to acquire Mead for a combination of 80 percent nonconvertible and 20 percent convertible preferred stock means that Mead share owners would be "getting Occidental paper, not cash, for their Mead shares.

The offer has been estimated by Wall Street analysts to be worth about $35 per share of Mead common, but the letter says "the actual value of the Occidental paper is subject to conjecture.'

In presenting its case against the oil ompany, the letter says among other things that Occidental lost $35.9 million during the first six months of the year; that its oil revenue from the North Sea may soon be subject to higher British taxes, and that its operations in Libya are of "questionable stability.

Regarding Occidental's management, the letter recalled that in 1976 a federal court in Los Angeles "accepted a guilty plea to federal criminal violations" (for illegal corporate political contributions) by chairman Armand Hammer, and that the company has signed three consent decrees with the Securities and Exchange Commission since 1971. In each case the SEC charged violations of antifraud provisions of the federal securities laws.

In support of th board's conclusion, that the "long-term" interests of Mead's share owners will be best served by Mead remaining independent," the letter cites seven straight quarters of record sales and earnings. It adds that Mead's profits have increased about 98 percent since 1973, and that the company has increased cash dividends for the past five years.

The letter also states that two New York-based investment-banking firms, Goldman, Sachs and Co. and Smith Barney, Harris Upham and Co., have advised the board that the Occidental offer "is inadequate from the financial point of yiew.

A spokesman for Occidental said the company had no comment on the letter.

The letter was issued only days after the two companies sued each other in federal district court in Dayton. In its complaint, Mead contended that top Occidental officers had attmpted to deceive its management and also had tried to intimidate the paper products company's officers into endorsing an "inadequate and illegal offer" by Occidental. The suit sought, among other things, to block further Occidental acquisition of Mead shares.

In a countersuit, Occidental sought to force Mead to disclose certain information and to correct allegedly misleading statements made by Mead in rejecting Occidental's initial merger offer.

HOUSTON-Transco Exploration Co. has discovered gas at West Cameron Block 498, offshore Louisiana, and has ordered a platform for development drilling.

Production is expected to begin in Two exploratory wells have been drilled on Block 498. The first well logged hydrocarbon shows at a depth of 6,570 feet. The No. 2 well was drilled to 5,500 feet 3,600 feet northeast of No. 1. No. 2 tested 4.2 million cubic feet of gas per day on a 22?64-inch choke, with a tubing pressure of 1,600 pounds through perforations from 4,098 to 4.130 feet.

Am eight-pile, 18-slot self-contained platform has been ordered and is scheduled to be installed over the No. 2 in December. A satellite production facility is planned for installation in late summer, 1979.

West Cameron Block 498 was acquired at the federal lease sale in June 1977 for a bonus payment of $18,819,000.

Transco Exploration Co., a wholyowned subsidiary of Transco Companies, Inc., is operator and hold a 24.6 percent interest.

Other participants are the Superior Oil Co., Freeport Oil Co., Pioneer Production Corp., Energy Development Corp., The Continental Group, Inc., and McMoRan Exploration Co.

AGA report now standard

WASHINGTON, D.C.-The American Gas Association's Gas Measurement Committee report No. 3, "Orifice Metering of Natural Gas," has been accepted by the American National Standards Institute as a national standard.

The AGA report outlines standards for the construction and installation of orifice plates and associated fittings in addition to basic information for the calculation of gas flow.

The AGA report originally was submitted to the American Petroleum Institute's Committee on Petroleum Measurement and was approved by that group for inclusion in the API Manual of Petroleum Standards. Subsequently API submitted it to DANSI. where it has been approved.

As an ANSI Standard, AGA's Report No. 3. currently is designated ANSI/API-2530. Copies of "Orifice Metering of Natural Gas" are available from the Order and Billing Department, American Gas Association, 1515 Wilson Blvd., Arlington, Va., 22209. The price is $3 per copy. Mention catalogue No. XQ0178 when ordering.

Lea County solar project wins tentative approval

HOBBS, N.M.—U.S. Rep. Harold Runnels last week announced tentative approval for an $800,000 solar steam producing project at Southern Union's Famariss Energy Refinery on the Hobbs-Lovington Highway, according to a story in the Hobbs News-Sun by Jimmy Coburn, a member of the newspapers staff.

Runnels said Monument Solar Corp. is one of seven firms in seven states selected for negotiation of design contracts to produce steam at various commercial plants.

He said the Department of Energy has selected Monument Solar Corp. for negotiation of a $180,000 contract to design the steam-producing project at the Lea County refinery.

The solar project is the second approved by DOE for Lea County, and

Runnels is seeking funds for a third

It was announced in July that Lea County Electric Cooperative was selected by the DOE for a $2.7 million project to provide solar power for a shopping center west of the Eidson Shopping Center in Lovington. The cooperative is slated to receive $178,-368 in DOE funds to design a 150,000watt photovoltaic facility to provide power for stores in the shopping Runnels announced the next day that an appropriation of about $25 million is being sought from the U.S. Department of Energy to fund a solar power unit that would furnish electricty for New Mexico Junior College north of Hobbs.

Application for the NMJC project, which would convert sunlight into electric power through use of a furnace and generator, was made by New Mexico State University, New Mexico Electric Service Co. and NMJC. Runnels expects the DOE to act on the NMJC project request before the end of the year-

In last week's announcement, Runnels said Monument Solar Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Monument Energy Corp. headquartered at Lovington, is proposing to generate high temperature steam in parabolic trough collectors for use at the Famariss Energy Refinery.

Dale Clark of Monument Solar Corp. said the steam generated by solar heat would replace about 10 percent of the steam generated by natural gas and result in a savings of

Clark said if the solar system design works as planned, the solar steam generators could eventually be expanded to produce about 40 percent of the steam needed at the refinery.

Refinery Supt. John Knight advised the Hobbs News-Sun that steam is used for various purposes at the refinery. He said it is used to heat tanks during the winter months, to heat refinery buildings and for injection into a crude still for stripping of lighter petroleum ends to obtain good

Knight, when reached by the News-Sun, said Runnels' announcement came as a surprise to him. He said refinery officials had worked with Monument Solar Corp. on plans for the solar steam producing project, but had no idea DOE would approve funding for the project. The DOE contract with Monument Solar Corp. is for a nine-month design period, if the design is approved, the firm would build and install the solar collectors and then operate the system as a feasibility study for another year.

If everything works out, Runnels said, more than 100 oil refineries could be considered for the solar steam process.

Runnels said the DOE informed him that the Monument contract in Southeast New Mexico is one of the seven awarded to firms around the nation to design solar systems to produce intermediate to high tem-perature steam for industrial pro-

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said, "Each year, industry consumes the equivalent energy of one billion barrels of oil for processing heat and steam at temperatures below 550 degrees Fahrenheit. These temperatures are within the capability of existing solar technology."

The design portion of the Monument contract is for $180,000. If the design is approved and the entire project is funded, the total project would expend about $800,000 in DOE funds, Runnels said.

Runnels said the seven design con-tracts awarded by DOE range from providing steam to a hectorite or processing plant for the National Lead Co. to the Lone Star Brewing Co. brewery in San Antonio.

Other than the Texas and New Mexico projects, design work was approved by the DOE for industrial plants in Mobile, Ala.; Dalton, Ga.; Newberry Springs, Calif.; Las Vegas, Nev., and Ontario, Ore.

Nicaraguan guerrilla seizure of hostages gives nation new political, economic jolt

spontaneous closing of doors.

By TOM FENTON

Even before the guerrillas took over the National Palace during a legislative session last Wednesday expressions of concern were being voiced from various quarters about the havoc the political situation was playing with the economy.

Private investment has been drying up and retail sales have been dwindling out of fear of political violence, according to various experts in Managua.

The guerrillas succeeded in freeing 58 political prisoners, receiving a ransom President Anastasio Somoza said amounted to half a million dollars and winning for themselves and the released prisoners asylum in Panama. The 25-man guerrilla unit also won the cheers of many Managuans who feel Somoza should resign and end the grip his family has had on the nation for nearly 40 years.

Somoza's opponents, who include businessmen, called for a general strike for Friday, but they got little response, with shopkeepers saying they were complex here in the capital. "There is a great deal of anxiety here. People aren't buying. They're hoarding. The shopping centers are deserted," said William Baez, executive secrtary of the Nicaraguan Development Institute, which represents 700 of the country's leading firm and businessmen.

'No one wants to go into the streets when bullets are flying.'

By official count 136 persons have been killed in political violence this year, many caught in a crossfire between Somoza's national guard troops and guerrillas of the Sandanista National Liberation Front. More than 600 others have been listed as wounded. Opposition spokesmen put both figures

The political situation is scaring off investors, causing some banks to reduce portfolios, left shopkeepers hungry and sent unemployment soaring. "Private domestic investment in 1978 is expected to remain minimal, and the construction industry will continue to stagnate," predicts one foreign economic analyst who asked not to be identified.

"Small investors just don't come through here any more," said a diplomat who also requested anonymity. "Some of the big firms are holding up investments until the political situation settles.'

The government estimates unemployment at 10 percent, but foreign experts say twice that is more

Many of those who do find work barely scrape by. The minimum industrial wage is 33 cents an hour. Independent studies show more than half the 70,000 households in Managua, the capital, have incomes below $1,200 a year, and less than 4 percent of all households have the same standard of living as a mated by independent economists at 18 percent. The West Point-educated Somoza, 53, main target of the opposition, is a businessman whose personal wealth is estimated by various sources as being in excess of $500 million. He has vowed to remain in office until his term is up in 1981, despite demands in many quarters that he step down.

Rafael Cordova Riva, president of Udel, an um-brella opposition group founded by slain newspaper publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, said the longer Somoza stays the more people turn to the Marxistbased Sandinistas.

At stake is an estimated $350 million worth of foreign investment in Nicaragua, about half of which is from the United States. One of the largest capital investments was made by Exxon Corp., which has a

The Sandinistas, who take their name from the guerrilla leader who fought U.S. Marines here in the late 1920s and '30s, sprang into prominence in 1974 when they took more than 40 persons hostage, demanded and got $1 million ransom and a plane to

"They have been very careful to strike only national guard targets so far," said one diplomatic source. "They have become folk heros in the eyes of many Nicaraguans. Whatever solution is reached, the Sandinistas will have to be included.

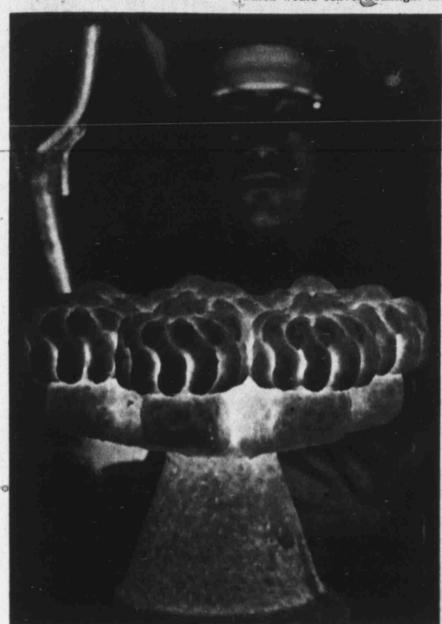

Some businessmen complain they are being pressured to support the opposition movement, and that they are afraid of alienating Somoza.

Political analysts say a growing number of businessmen are becoming dissatisfied with Somoza's intransigence in staying on, at what they consider his mismanagement of the economy, his lack of response to charges of human rights violations and his

Nicaragua's government is borrowing heavily abroad, adding to the economic uncertainty and further straining the nation's reserves. The public debt has grown to $825 million, about 45 percent of the nation's annual $1.85 billion economy. The foreign debt, in fact, is the fastest growing sector of the economy, some analyts say, up about 20 percent in 1977 compared with $678 million for 1976. The debt is expected to reach $918 million this

"This government is spending as much for defense as it is for education (about $50 million)," said the Development Institute's Baez, "That's 12 percent of the national budget and we're not even at war. # Talmadge denies he knew of secret bank account

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., denied Friday that he knew of the existence of a bank account that a former aide alleges the senator directed be used to distribute questionable Senate reimbursements to two family members.

In a statement, Talmadge acknowledged that the account in the Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C., bears his name. But, he added: "I did not authorize the opening of that account and was not aware of it until Thursday ... when I was informed of it by current administrative assistant and attorney...

"Any signitures purporting to be mine on documents relating to the account were not affixed by me, authorized by me or affixed with my knowledge or consent."

Talmadge said the account apparently was opened in 1973 by a former aide, apparently referring to Daniel Minchew, then the senator's administrative assistant.

Minchew has claimed that he was acting on Talmadge's orders when in 1973 and 1974 he obtained government money by submitting false expense

Swimsuits missing at this beauty show

By EDDIE ADAMS AP Special Correspondent

NAKED CITY, Ind. (AP) - Bert Parks wasn't there, and there wasn't even a talent contest. No evening gown competition either. And no bathing suit contest. In fact, there were no bathing suits at all.

But the audience was appreciative. More than 2,000 of them cheered as the 24 contestants from 24 states showed their best in the Miss Nude America contest earlier this month.

Laden with cameras or binoculars, the mostly male spectators paid at least $20 to witness the 10-year-old exhibition. Six of them put up $100 to sit in the midst of the circle of beauties. One of them had a friend, another $100 ticket-holder, snap him with his arm around each contes-

Those intent on recording the event for posterity were equipped with everything from a low-priced Kodak Instamatic to the most expensive Hasselblads. Those equipped with binoculars elbowed for space, even though the contestants at times were within arm's reach.

There were men of all ages, a handful of women and a few children. Most were clothed, but not all; some wore only their cameras as they positioned themselves around the elevated circular stage located close to the entrance of this 300-acre nudist colony 90 miles from Chicago.

The shutters snapped, some men fumbled with their cameras while others perspired, the contestants smiled and the audience roared when their choice, pretty Sandy Mason — 21-year-old, blonde, 36-22-35 — was proclaimed winner. "Miss North Carolina," said the identifying blue balloon that floated over her head. But when asked during an interview where she was from she turned to her manager and asked: "Where am I from?" The stunned manager, Dave Claiman assured her: "North Carolina ... ah ... Raleigh ... yes, Raleigh."

Top choices after Miss North Carolina, who collected the first prize money of $500, Italian-born Connie Titoni, a 28-year-old barmaid representing Maryland, and Kimberly Bolen, 18, a swedish-born dancer who represented Florida.

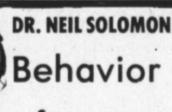

According to the balloons each of the contestants carried, the states were as distant as Alaska, although a Detroit-based photographer said six of the girls came from a model agency he represented.

Whether or not the girls came from the states represented, it was fun for them and the spectators, whose interest was hardly geographical.

"I wouldn't miss this for the world," said one of the camera carrying spectators, who said it took him and two companions 16 hours to drive from their homes in Pennsylvania.

"Its the third year I've attended the contest, and I'll be back next year,"

Asked his name and home town, he replied: "I can't tell you that. Its a small town and people would get the

Farm protest to resume in fall

By JAMES R. KING

HEREFORD, Texas (AP) - Gerald McCathern, the Panhandle grain farmer who mobilized Texas growers to join the strike movement a year ago, says farmers will take to the streets again this fall in a new - and tougher - round of demonstrations.

"It could develop into a more radical type move-ment than what it was," McCathern said. "A dog backed up in a corner being kicked will take it just so long. Then he's going to bite you."

He said farmers in Texas and elsewhere have been holding meetings this summer planning how to "educate the public" to their complaint that they are losing money because of low crop prices which they blame on government policies. He said the first demonstration is a Labor Day march across the Macinaw Bridge in Michigan. But McCathern said the brunt of farmers' protest activities must wait until after the fall harvest McCathern says he does not advocate violence. But he compares the plight of farmers to that of factory workers in the 1800s who did resort to violence to reform working conditions. 'What they did has helped every worker today," said McCathern. "Just like those men who fired the first shot at Concord, they were ready to put it all on the line for what they felt was a fair cause. "I hope and pray it'll never develop to that extent in this movement," he said. "We are reasonable people. We should have enough common sense to solve our problems.

But if the lawmakers refuse to take on that responsibility, I think the American farmer will do whatever it takes. I have never taken part in violence or dirty fighting. But I don't know what I'd may give up peacefully, and they may not."

But last spring, after the "tractorcades," the "blockades," and no-planting threats ended, farmers did give up peacefully. They returned to their fields and planted their crops without the price guarantees they had demanded.

By that time threats to refuse to plant any acreage and let the nation go hungry were eased, and farmers in the American Agriculture Movement vowed instead to plant only 50 percent of their land.

However, in fact, most farmers planted 80 percent of their land, leaving 20 percent idle to gain eligibility for the existing government farm program. But not McCathern. He waved a leathery hand across a vacant patch of his 520-acre farm and said he laid out half his land because he did not want to go back on his word "I said I'd do it and so I did it."

McCathern says several of his neighbors in the way of determining market value goes like this: "The price that one who wishes to buy, but is not compelled to buy, would pay to a seller willing but not compelled to sell!" That's a real mouthful, and prompts a remark like: "How's that again?"

This illustrates that market value is a phrase that's bandied about by many people, but if you ask exactly what it means and how to determine it, they're stumped! It's a figure arrived at by weighing a collection of data. Comparable market sales are analyzed and the price for a home is adjusted according to factors such as size, construction, location, and the time the property is on the plicated, doesn't it? It's something amateurs to figure out. We, as professionals do it all the time, since the correct market value for a property can make the dif-ference between a quick and profitable sale and a home that stays on the market for a long time. That's because market value IS the price in dollars to bring.

Fortunately, you don't have to go through all that data. You have a simple and easy way to dind out the value of your home. Just ask us!

Wind damage poses threat to croplands

Midland County Extension Agent

More of the same was the weather fare again for the Midland area this past week. Dryland crops continued to deteriorate from stress caused by lack of moisture. Many irrigated fields are reduced in yield potential as a result of the hot, dry season and short irrigation water supplies.

Short forage supplies have contributed to close culling and selling off of breeding beef cattle herds in the area. In short, drought conditions continue to depress agricultural outlook for a broad area of West. Texas.

Much cropland in the area will be short of cover and in condition to suffer damage from wind erosion in the months ahead. In case ample rainfall is received in the next few weeks, producers may want to consider the planting of winter annual forage crops for cover and possible grazing.

Small grains are probably the best choice of the cool season annuals to plant here and these include oats, wheat, barley and rye. These four are about equal in forage quality when immature and give similar animal performance in grazing.

There are differences in palatablity in the following order (from the most to the least palatable): oats, wheat, barley and rye. These differences present no problem unless livestock are given a choice of small grains whithin the same pasture. For this reason, these grains should not be mixed in a

Oats are used widely for forage production. Many oat varieties produce fast, early growth but are not as winter hardy as other grains. There are some varieties with improved cold tolerance. For the best results with oats for winter grazing, platn early, allow them to reach at least 8 inches in height before turning in livestock, and rotate grazing when 75 percent of the plants have been eaten to allow recovery

Continuous, close grazing weakens the root system and greatly reduces forage yields on any type of small grain. Oat varieties recommended for this area include Coker 234, New Nortex and Nora.

Wheat generally is more drought tolerant and winter hardy than oats, but produces less early forage. Wheat varieties recommended for the Midland area include: Caprock, Sturdy, TAM W-101, and TAM W-103. There are some spring type wheats that are promising for grain production in Midland but these should not be platned before December since they are senstive to day length. The are adapted for grain only and should not be grazed. These include Bounty 309, Cajeme 71, and Calidad.

Barley is also more drought tolerant and winter hardy than oats and generally matures earlier. Barley varieties are the most salt tolerant of the small grains. Varieties adapted to our area are: Era, Rogers, Tambar 401, Tokak and Will. Spring types for December-February planting only include Arival and Briggs.

Rye varieties generally have excellent winter hardiness and provide good fall and late winter forage production but mature earlier than other small grains. Elbon and Bonel varieties have generally performed well in West Texas and more recently. several synthethic varieties have been released such as Vitagraze, Acco 811, Winter-More, Gro-Green and others which seem to be satisfactory.

Many people in West Texas will not be planting a fall garden for several reasons. It is suggested that people who have nematodes in their garden make a Vapam application in the fall. This should be done when the soil temperature is aroudn 85 degrees. In most cases, a broadcast application of Vapam using one quart per 100 sq. feet is required for control. This should be watered into the soil thoroughly after treating, with the watering repeated on the second and third day after treatment. The soil surface should be left undisturbed until next spring.

By treating in this manner you will eliminate a large portion of the weed seed found in the soil, reduce nematodes, and also reduce the amount of soil-borne diseases present. This will give the gardener a chance to get an early start on his spring garden, since we will not have to wait until the soil temperature warms up to 55 degrees to begin treating next

NAACP leader charges miseducation of blacks

Upholding Black Excellence: According to Benjamin Hooks, new executive director of the NAACP, "it is a cruel fact of American history that society has consistently sought to maintain psychological and social control over its black citizens not only through a system of miseducation but by a deliberate indoctrination of inferiority. The constitutional language making blacks no more than 'threefifths of all persons' has been enshrined in words and deeds.

"Some not only attack affirmative action as a program for admitting un-qualified blacks students through the back door, but they also selfservingly play upon the weaknesses of our urban school systems to show that blacks are to be blamed for their own

"On the other hand, we must knowingly strive also to develop so many intellectual role models that we will be able to saturate every community. every school, the airwaves and every newspaper and publication with examples of black achievers. A good many of these achievers are presently within our midst, as we discovered in Portland.

Thirty-four winners in high achievement were chosen, receiving prizes totaling $15,000 in cash and value. An humble beginning but its a start. The NAACP will seek to build a mounument of black academic achievement and are "100 percent behind them." states bellringers from all aroun.d.

"Dear Bob-Negroes are the only race of people who did not come to American to better themselves. They were forced to come here and the things that followed are not a pretty part of our history. But today is another time and these people have an opportunity just like anyone else to make it a nicer part of our history.

"I am white. I never owned a slave and in tracing back our ancestors I can find no record of any of them owning a slave. I am sorry for any injustice done to anyone at any time. . . All we can do today is to say we are sorry and go from here.

"Most black people want the chance to make a good life. The few who want something for nothing are more vocal or more conspicious, so once again we have the silent majority being overlooked. There must be some bitterness among blacks, though, and rightfully so unless they can find it in their hearts to forgive the stupidity and greed of the past.

Ms. P.M. thanks for your kind letter. You are right. Certainly God was in the picture and had a plan for blacks coming to America. # Staubach, Hill pull out win for Dallas

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Roger Staubach threw two touchdown passes in the final three minutes Saturday night to rally the Dallas Cowboys to a 16-13 National Football League exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Rocky Bleier plunged two yards for one score and defensive back Tony Dungy grabbed a deflected pass and ran 16 yards for another to account for Pittsburgh's points.

Terry Bradshaw hit Lynn Swann with completions of 20 and 35 yards to set up Bleier's touchdown plunge midway through the first quarter.

Staubach marched the Cowboys 71 yards in 11 plays to cut Pittsburgh to 13-9 with 2:46 to play. The defense forced Pittsburgh into a quick punt

Steelers' 48 with 1:58 left. It took the Cowboys just six plays to score with Staubach hitting Hill on a 21-yard completion in addition to the touchdown pass.

Staubach completed 24 of 46 passes for 335 yards and two touchdowns, and was sacked once for a five-yard loss.

He completed seven of 12 for 116 in the first half, but the Cowboys got only a 25-yard field goal by Jay Sherrill to show for it. Sherrill missed 30-yard field goal attempt after Pittsburgh stopped a second quarter passing blitz at the 12. Sherrill also missed the extra point after the first Dallas touchdown.

Pittsburgh, thwarted by penalties throughout the evening, saw a 54-yard pass from Bradshaw to John Stallworth for an apparent touchdown nullified late in the first half because of an illegal motion penalty. Two consecutive offsides penalties voided a double play ball to short and then southpaw Clark retired lefthander

Jay Peters on a grounder to second.

In the ninth Mark Clear probably

Kevin Drury and Gary Krug singled first and third. Clear then came out of

Grandy, Greg Keatley and Fierro

couple of apparently successful Roy Gerela's extra point tries after Bleier's score and he was wide to the right on his third try.

Craig Colquitt's 52-yard punt put
Dallas in the hole at its 14 in the third quarter. On third and eight from the 16, Staubach took the snap in the shotgun formation, but linebacker Jack Ham deflected his pass. The ball bounded into the waiting arms of Dungy at the 16, and he strolled unmolested into the end zone with the interception.

Bradshaw wound up with seven completions in 19 attempts for 136 yards. He was sacked three times.

Remy is injured

BOSTON (AP) — Second baseman Jerry Remy will be out of the Boston Red Sox lineup for about one week with a chipped bone in his left hand.

Remy was injured during Friday night's game against the California Angels and was replaced in the lineup Saturday by Jack Brohamer.

The injury happened in the first inning when the Angels' Rick Miller slid into the Red Sox second baseman while stealing second.

EL PASO - El Paso second baseman Bob Slater personally dropped the Midland Cubs out of first place in the Texas League Western Divison as the Diablos came up with three runs in the bottom of the ninth to nip the Cubs 6-3 before 3,198 Dudley Field maniacs here Saturday night.

Slater not only hit a game-tying solo home run with two out in the seventh, but slugged lefthander Bob Clark for the game-winning homer, a three run blast, with one out in the ninth to hand the Cubs their second straight defeat the TL West.

San 'Antonio's Dodgers took over sole possession of first on the strength of a 5-0 win over Amarillo in the Alamo City Saturday night. Slater also figured in El Paso's run

Josh knows Dallas well IRVING - Everyone in Texas Stadium these days knows more about the Dallas Cowboys than coach Tom Landry - or so it Case in point is a fellow who goes by Josh. He may have a wraps. He never unleashes the full potential power of this club. I don't think he wants to embarrass the rest of the league. He's got friends - you know.

Josh spends a lot of his time telling the friends around him just where the Cowboys went wrong or right. I actually believe the people in his section get more fun out of Josh than they do watching the Cowboys. He is worth the price of admission.

"I'm black and most people would think that I would like Tony Dorsett, 'Too Tall' (Ed Jones) or Harvey (Martin) best on this team. But you want to know who is the best player of all - that's Cliff Harris. He's a real monster out there. I know Landry keeps him under wraps because he would kill somebody if he went full speed. That Waters (Charlie) kid is pretty good, but he's no Harris. Why do you think Harris is bald? That's because he's a hitter." JOSH LIKES to answer his own questions, and everyone around him just listens as he talks because he doesn't allow interjection.

"If I had this team, they'd win by 30 or 40 points every day. I'd turn Harris loose, and I'd get Harvey off the radio so he could think about the game. Roger Staubach would have to live with me during the season so I wouldn't have to send plays into him all the time. That's a waste of man power, but I guess Landry doesn't think like that.

"Landry has done some good things, but he's not the best coach in the world. I think I could give him some good point-ers if he would just let me. "Rookies stink, but they still make me pay for these preseason games. If I was coach, I wouldn't even want to see the team until they cut all the bad apples. They say that Dorsett was good last year, but he should have gained 2,000 yards with this team. I wouldn't have played him all the time last year. He may be good, but he

Chargers post victory

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - James Harris' 20-yard touchdown pass to Johnny Rodgers and Mike Fuller's 11-yard scoring run on a fake field goal propelled the San Diego Chargers to a 17-6 National Football League preseason victory over the New York Giants Saturday night.

The victory by the Chargers, who played without newly signed running back Lydell Mitchell, gave them a 2-2 exhibition record heading into their regular season opener Sept. 3 in Seattle. The Giants, also 2-2, start the season next Saturday night in Tampa Bay.

Harris, who completed 18 of 38 passes for 235 yards and was intercepted three times. He marched the Chargers 71 yards in 11 plays, hitting the speedy Rodgers in the end zone on the first play of the second period to give San Diego a lead it never

Rams in upset

OAKLAND (AP) - Los Angeles quarterback Pat Haden, who failed to throw a touchdown pass in the first three weeks of the exhibition season, got two Saturday night and totaled 157 yards passing as the Rams beat the Oakland Raiders 28-3.

Willie Miller caught Haden's second scoring pass, a 4-yarder in the third period, and pulled in a 14-yard touchdown pass from Vince Ferragamo in the final period.

Oakland's Ken Stabler was shaken up and left the game after being hit while releasing a pass, which was intercepted, late in the first half of the National Football League preseason game. The Rams' defense applied strong pressure on the Raiders' passers throughout the contest.

Oakland opened the scoring with a 23-yard field goal by Errol Mann in the first quarter after a pass from Stabler to tight end Raymond Chester gained 39 yards. But the Rams built a 14-3 lead in the second quarter when Wendell Tyler scored on a 36-yard run and Haden hit Ron Jessie with a 7-yard touchdown

Haden completed 16 of 24 passes, and his longest completion was a 41-yard gainer to Dwight Scales on the third-quarter scoring drive that covered 80

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Jim Hart drilled a 10-yard strike to rookie Dave Stief early in the second quarter and the St. Louis Cardinals held on to down the Kansas City Chiefs 12-7 Saturday night in an error-filled National Football League preseason Hart connected with 10 of 15 passes for 77 yards before giving way to reserve Steve Pisarkiewicz in the second half as the Cardinals finished the exhibition campaign 2-2 under new coach Bud Wilkinson. Kansas City also evened its record at 2-2.

Manning is sharp

HOUSTON (AP) - New Orleans quarterback Archie Manning hit tight end Henry Childs with two touchdown passes, and the Saints' defense stopped two fourth quarter Houston scoring thrusts en route to a 17-3 exhibition football victory Saturday night. Manning, who hit his first 18 passes last week in a losing effort to Tampa Bay, completed nine of 16 for 12 yards against the Oilers as the Saints took a 14-0 halftime lead. Manning's first touchdown pass to Childs came early in the second quarter when Childs leaped high in the end zone with Oilers safety Bill Currier and came town with the touchdown catch. Later in the same quarter Childs took a short pass from Manning, stiff-armed safety Mike Reinfeldt at the 10 and ran into the end zone. The Oilers, riding high after a 27-13 victory last week over Super Bowl champion Dallas, gained only 69 yards in the first half and did not cross the mid-field stripe until midway in the third quarter when Ken Burrough caught a 20-yard pass from Dan

Houston then moved the ball to the Saints' twoyardline where the Oilers settled for Toni Fritsch's 19-yard field goal after Ronnie Coleman was stopped for no gain on three consecutive line plunges.

Houston, 1-3 in NFL exhibition play, missed another scoring chance late in the fourth quarter when safety Don Schwartz intercepted a Pastorini pass in the end zone. New Orleans evened its preseason

Bengals prevail

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Archie Griffin scampered 12 yards for one touchdown and caught a 17-yard pass from Ken Anderson for another, leading the Cincinnati Bengals to a 17-14 National Football League preseason victory over the Green Bay Packers Saturday night.

Linebacker Glen Cameron picked off a pass by Green Bay reserve quarterback Neil Graff and returned 26 yards to the Packer 12 midway through the first quarter. Griffin scored on a sweep to the right on the next play.

The Bengals, who finished 2-2 in the preseason to the Packers' 1-3, took over on the Packer 30 after a short punt late in the second quarter. Five plays later, Griffin caught a short pass from Anderson, beat rookie linebacker Mike Douglass and scored, as the Packers made it 14-0.

Vikings win

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Rick Danmeier kicked a 43-yard field goal with three seconds remaining Saturday night, rallying Minnesota to a 30-27 National Football League exhibition victory

Minnesota, which trailed 21-6 at halftime, assumed a 27-21 lead with just 5:38 remaining in the game when rookie Ron Harris ran eight yards with a lateral from Bob Tucker after a 26-yard pass from Tommy Kramer.

Buffalo went 80 yards, capped by a 43-yard touchdown pass from David Mays to Lou Piccone with 1:07 left, but Tom Dempsey's extra point try was wide to the left, leaving the score knotted at 27.

Bill Munson, acquired five days ago from San Diego, directed Buffalo on three long drives in the first half. He hit Piccone with a 3-yard toss and then connected with Terry Miller on a 22-yard scoring play early in the second quarter to give the Bills a

Chuck Foreman's 10-yard run made it 14-6 but Miller scored from 1 yard out with 31 seconds left in the half to put Buffalo up by two touchdowns.

Joe Danelo's 27-yard field goal with 4:06 gone in the second quarter cut the lead to 7-3, Rolf Benirschke restored the seven-point margin with a 49-yard field goal for the Chargers with 1:39 to go in the third period. Danelo then kicked a 30-yarder at 2:01 of the fourth period to trim the lead to 10-6.

But midway in the final period, the Chargers put the game away on Fuller's surprise play. San Diego went from its own 31 to the New York 31 on a 23-yard pass from Harris to Rodgers plus a 15-yard personal foul on the play. Harris then hit running back Rickey Anderson on a 22-yarder to the Giants 9 but the drive bogged down.

On fourth-and-goal from the 11, Benirschké lined up for an apparent 28-yard field goal try, but Fuller took the snap and sprinted untouched around left end for the game's final score.

The National Tennis Center, largely the brainchild of U.S. Tennis Association President Slew Hester, is a $10 million tennis complex, re-served for two months of the year for the Open and preparations for it but available the rest of the year to the public. For 10 ths a year, you can play on the same courts as Connors, Evert, Borg and Navratilova — even center court.

The great bowl stadium, cut about threequarters of the way through to make two court areas, will seat 20,-000 on one side and 6,500 on the other on benches with backs.

There are 25 outdo courts, plus nine indoor. USTA officials boast that the walkways around the outer courts are twice as wide as those at Wimbledon. A large scoreboard centrally located will provide results from all the day's matches.

The players, especially the women, should be vastly more comfortable than they were at the un-dersized West Side Tenais Club in Forest Hills. Escape routes have been designed to enable them to avoid autograph-seekers if they want to.

Irwin holding narrow lead

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) - The hard-won round of 69, which was necessary to retain a lead in the face of Tom Watson's challenge, was just about what Hale Irwin anticipated Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

"The aftermath of a hot round is kind of difficult," said Irwin, the defending champion who took the lead with a second-round 63 then had to work hard to retain it in the third. "That was certainly the case today.

It was doubly difficult because Tom was having a good round.
"I'm decidedly content with what I

Watson, who played with him, closed to within a single stroke on the strength of his putting. "It was like night and day watching us," he said. "Hale's hitting all the good shots and I was making the @ putts. The way Hale is playing, I'll have to play better tomorrow to have any chance. Irwin, however, also has Tom Kite to contend with going into Sunday's final round "He's, what? Two back? Well, that certainly makes it a three-man race,' Irwin said. "I'm leading, but with the players the calibre of Watson and

Kite said.

It was another 3 shots back to Curtis Strange, in fourth at 210 after a 69. Howard Twitty had 73-211 and Bill Kratzert and Jerry Pate, at 212, were the only others under par after three trips over the famed old course in the Carolina sandhill country. "I put myself against the wall with that kind of a start, but, fortunately, everyone else was making bogeys then, too," Irwin said

He rolled in an 18-foot putt on the 10th hole to take the lead alone, then was tied by Watson on the 13th. Tom scored from about six feet on the 12th and from twice that distance on the

Irwin, however, pulled away down the stretch. He had a 10-foot par-saving putt on the 15th, exploded a long bunker shot to about 6 feet and made birdie-4 on the 16th, then hit what he called "a ringer shot."

That was a 3-iron that hit the flagstick on the par-3 17th and slipped about two feet by. He made that one to go 2 ahead.

Only the closing heroics of Kite and Watson kept it close.

Kite, who had a wildly erratic effort that included five birdies and 4 bogeys, just missed on an eagle putt on the 16th, then scored from about 20 feet on the next two holes.

Irwin, tied first by Tom Kite and later by Watson in the hot, humid weather, birdied two of his last three holes for a 54-hole total of 205, 8 shots under par on the famed No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Watson, gunning for his fourth victory of the year and the leading money-winning spot, had a second consecutive 67, including a 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole. He was a single shot back at 206. "I made everything I looked at," Watson said.

Kite put on a birdie-birdie-birdie finish for a 70 that left him in strong title-contention at 207, only 2 back going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $50,000 first prize. Chisox edge Indians

Fill-ins ump NL contest in Atlanta

With varying degrees of difficulty, most of the major league umpires returned to work Saturday after their one-day strike was cut short by a federal court injunction.

In Atlanta, however, none of the regular umpires made it to the stadium for the game between the Braves and St. Louis Cardinals and Friday's fill-ins took over again.

The strike officially ended when three members of Bill Kunkel's fourman crew showed up in Toronto to work the Blue Jays game with Minne-

"I busted my back to get here," said Kunkel, who lives in Leonard, N.J. "I was lucky to make it."

Bill Deegan wasn't so lucky. He had returned home to Escondido, Calif. and couldn't get back to Toronto in time for the contest. Joe Sawchuk, a graphic illustrator who worked home plate Friday, took Deegan's place.

Greg Kosc, a member of the Jerry Neudecker crew, was glad to be back. He umpired in the California-Boston

"I think everybody is happy to be back on the job," said Kosc. "We were all told to go home and it felt funny. I don't think anyone wanted to stay out long.

George Maloney, another member of Neudecker's unit, added:

"Nobody likes a strike. But the tensions build up. Everybody needs a

"We didn't work yesterday. We're working today. We love the game, otherwise we wouldn't be in it, but it's a tough life."

"A strike vote is a vote of confidence in your union."

The Braves had been notified that two members of the umpiring crew set to work their game with the Cardinals - Doug Harvey and Jim Quick would not make the game from their California homes. The others - Gerry Crawford of Havertown, Pa., and Andy Olsen of St. Petersburg, Fla. were expected at the game but did not

"The guys did a good job," said Bill Lucas, Braves' vice president in charge of player personnel. "I'll have them here again tomorrow. I don't care if the others show up or not."

"Actually, we didn't know until the oldtimers game that we'd be working the regular game," said Rountree. "I didn't think it would go this far."

TEE TIME

By REX WORRELL

The third annual Buffalo Trail Council Boy Scouts of America Professional-Amateur golf tournament is now historic. The event this year was the most successful in the short three year history. The Boy Scouts were able to show a very good profit on the event this year, thanks to the advertisers and sponsors.

The sponsors for the event were the First National Bank of Midland; Edwin H. Magruder, Jr.; Compressor Systems, Inc.; Tri-Service Drilling Co.; Key Commercial Investments; Sharp Drilling Co.; Rial Drilling Co.; MGF Oil Corp.; John Wood; Permian Corp.; State National Bank of Odessa; Holliday Drilling Co.; Western Co.; Rod-Ric Corp.; Cass Oil Co.; Sledge Drilling Co.; Hyer Oil Co.; and Commercial Bank and Trust of

The tournament could not have been a success without these sponsors. A big thank you to Mr. George Eng for his efforts as chairman of the sponsorship committee.

The winning team in this year's tournament was Gidd Faircloth, 71's. Winkler County Country Club; Roy

Peden, Kermit; Tim Peden and Warren Teichman of Midland. The team scored a fine round of 13-under-par 57 and collected $175 each. Gift certificates were awarded to amateurs.

Second place team with a round of 59 was Fred Bond, Marc Carrens, Noel Sikes and Phil McGuire. Five teams tied for third. They were Steve Hendley, David Teichman, Bush Jordan and Barney Stricker; Ted Griffin, Morris Rhodes, Tom Tully and Don Higgins; Courtney White, Ransome Calloway, Bill Wilson and Scott Shelton; Bill Gully, Chris Brown, Leonard Hernandez and Bobby Dunn; and Larry McNeely, Danny Doan, Gary Doan and Don Hughes.

Low professional honors went to Ronnie Rosson from Lamesa Country Club for a fine round of three-underpar 67. He was followed by last year's winner George Clark who had a twounder 68. Third place ended in a four way tie at 69 between Dave Hand, Alan Pursley, Larry McNeely and Fred Bond. Billy Gully's round of even par 70 took seventh while Ted Griffin, Benny Adams and Bill Wilson finished tied for eighth with one-over

The Hogan Park Women's Golf As-

NEW YORK (AP) - Even a gamewinning grand slam home run and a $3 million contract can't make Reggie Jackson forget how uncomfortable he feels playing for the New York Yan-

It's not the sidewalks of New York where Reggie has his problems but rather on the diamond at Yankee Stadium, where they either love him or hate him, cheer him or jeer him, but never ignore him.

"They've ripped my spirit out of my body and stomped on it. I came here to play baseball and I haven't been allowed to do it," an unhappy Jackson said in the wake of a tie-breaking grand slam homer Friday night that powered the Yankees to a 7-1 triumph convicted."

"Off the field things have been fabulous for me," he said. "I've made good business contacts, I enjoy the friends I've made and I enjoy the town very much, but at the ballpark it's been tough, it's been too tough."

turned into a dugout brawl, Jackson seemed to be sitting on top of the world with his World Series heroics, including those three memorable home runs in the final game against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

But this year everything turned sour once again. Once more Jackson and Martin clashed, this time when Jackson ignored instructions to swing away and decided to bunt on his

That led to a five-day suspension. When Jackson returned, Martin uttered his infamous statement about the slugger and owner George Steinbrenner, saying: "They deserve each other. One's a born liar; the other's

A day later, the manager resigned although Steinbrenner subsequently hired him back for the 1980 season.

"I love little children, but people have taken that away from me," Jackson said. "I can't go over to the stands. I'd like to, but I can't because someone's gonna call me a liar. People ask me, 'Have you asked your

Jackson bristled at a remark by a sports writer that his game-winning grand slam, lined just inside the right-field foul pole, was unusual for the slugger, whose power is usually up the alleys. Jackson himself has often said as much.

"Since I've been here I haven't been able to pull the ball, hit the fast ball or do anything, if you listen to everybody around here," he sputtered. "I haven't been able to do nothing.'

Nastase posts win

SOMERS, N.Y. (AP) - Ilie Nastase of Romania defeated Fritz Buehning 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 Saturday in the championships.

Nastase, unbeaten in two matches in the tournament, needs a victory over Peter Fleming Sunday to advance to the finals.

Cliff Richey beat Mel Prucell 7-6. 7-5 and Fleming topped Vijay Amri-traj of India 3-6, 6-1, 6-1 in other

NEW YORK (AP) -Graig Nettles' eighth-inning homer, a drive to the upper deck in right field Saturday night, gave the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over Oakland and handed the A's their 13th loss in 14

Nettles unloaded his 21st homer of the year off Bob Lacey, 8-8, who relieved starter Matt Keough with two out in the seventh following Thurman Munson's game tying double.

Nettles' whallop made a winner of New York reliever Sparky Lyle, 9-2, who came on in the seventh inning with the score tied 3-3. The A's immediatly scored on singles by Bruce Robinson and Mike Edwards around a walk to Taylor Duncan.

catcher Johnny Bench committed a passed ball, with Kingman moving to third. Manny Trillo then grounded to first baseman Dan Driessen, who threw out Kingman trying to score.

Before the rain, the Reds added a run in the seventh off Roberts on a leadoff walk to Dave Concepcion, sacrifice and Rose's single. Rose stole second and went to third on a wild pitch as the torrential downpour struck Riverfront Stadium.

The Reds had only two hits, both by Bonham, off Chicago starter Ray Burris through the first five innings. Bonham's second single drove in the first Cincinnati run after Driessen and Bench each drew walks leading off the fifth.

Cincinnati added a run in the eighth inning when Rose singled to drive in Geronimo, who had reached base on a fielder's choice.

The crowd of 47,299 put the Reds over the 4-million mark in combined home-road attendance. The Reds home total is the sixth consecutive season they have drawn over 2 million in Cincinnati. Chicago

Floyd holding slim lead in LPGA play

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) -Marlene Floyd fired a sixunder-par 67 to take a one-stroke lead Saturday after the second round of the $75,000 LPGA Patty Berg Classic at Keller Golf Course.

Floyd, a third-year pro and sister of Ray Floyd of the men's tour, had a 69 Friday and is 10-under-par for the tournament.

Two-time U.S. Open champion Hollis Stacy and veteran Kathy Whitworth are tied for second place at nine under par. Stacy fired a 68 to go with her 69 Friday, while Whitworth added a 71 to her first round 66.

First-round leader Barbara Moxness, who shot a tournament record 65 Friday, dipped to a 74 and is in a four-way tie for fourth place. Floyd charged into contention with four consecutive birdies on the first four holes. She finished with eight birdies and two bogeys for the round. Floyd, who ranks 66th on this year's money list with $8,039, says it was without a doubt the best round she had shot on the pro tour. "I hit 17 out of 18 greens," Floyd said. "I just hit everything right at the hole all day. the yardage. Everything just went so well. It was a lot of

"After four straight birdies I felt pretty nervous (bogeying the fifth hole) figuring I was in contention," she said. "But I got myself together after that."

Whitworth said she played "terrible, looked bad and played bad," in carding four birdles and two bogeys to come in twounder-par.

Stacy, playing with a cold, said she's played so well since she won the 1978 U.S. Open that she would never consider taking a break from the tour. Moxness, a rookie on the tour.

said she felt no pressure as the first-round leader. "The difference was the putts just weren't falling for me today," she added Moxness is tied for fourth with

Jerilyn Britz, who stood at 139 after her 71 Saturday. Shelley Hamlin and Betty Burfeindt were also tied for fourth three strokes off the lead. Hamlin had a 68 Saturday while Burfeindt carded a 69.

Tournament namesake Patty Berg shot a second-round 77 and her 153 total was not good enough to make the 149 cutoff for Sunday's final round.

Umpires return to ball parks after strike

By The Associated Press

Major league umpires returned to work Saturday in all but one ballpark, ending a one-day strike that had left baseball with amateur umps to officiate. The end of the strike came first in Toronto when regular umpires Bill Kunkel, Al Clark and Terry Cooney showed up for the game between the Blue Jays and Minnesota Twins.

The fourth member of the crew, Bill Deegan, had returned to his home in California and was unable to get back to Toronto.

The same was the case with Doug Harvey and Jim Quick, who could not make it to Atlanta from their California homes in time for the Braves-St. Louis Cardinals game. Their crew partners, Andy Olsen, who lives in Florida, and Gerry Crawford, who resides in Pennsylvania, did not make it to the game either. Crawford was unable to make plane connections to Atlanta from his home in Havertown, Pa., his wife said, but it was not known why Olsen was absent.

Prior to the game, umpire Paul Runge called Braves Vice President Bill Lucas to inform him that the four umpires were told to return.

As in Toronto - where Joe Sawchuk, who worked home plate in Friday's game, took over for the missing Deegan - the Braves used amateur umpires as fill-ins.

The same four men who worked Friday's game umpired again Saturday. They were Hank Rountree behind the plate, Ed Norris at first base, Lewis Anderson at second and Wheeler Fowler at third. All clubs had been alerted to keep the crews which worked Friday on a standby alert in case any of the Kunkel's crew was the first to walk out Friday, refusing to work the only day game in the majors in a dispute over improvements which the umpires are seeking in their current contract.

The umpires went back to work when their association decided to honor an injunction against the strike secured in Philadelphia federal court late Friday by Jim Garner, counsel for the American League. The order was signed by Judge Joseph L. McGlynn Jr., who set a hearing on the matter for next Wednesday morning.

harness racing's premier event. About 13, but as many as 15, trotters are expected to make up the field at the record-inducing mile oval of the DuQuoin Fairgrounds. The post position draw will be Wednesday morning when trainer-drivers pay a final $4,-000 entry fee if they want in.

If 15 start, the race will gross $270, 000 with the winner getting half of it. Speedy Somolli (trained and driven by Howard Beissinger); Brisco Hanover (Jim Miller); Florida Pro (George Solty) and Count's Pride (Bill Haughton) are the big four and are rated about even.

The spread of this much talent is considered unprecedented in the tradition-packed Hambletonian. Some observers think it may take four heats to get a winner and speed records will be set in the process.

When they talk of records, they are not overlooking the blazing straight heat triumph last year of Green Speed, each mile trotted in 1:55 3-5.

"The horse that wins will have to beat 1:55," said Beissinger, who won the race with Lindy's Pride in 1969 and Speedy Crown in 1971. He said Speedy Somolli, 2-year-old trotter of the year in 1977, "can trot a lot more" than his two winners.

Speedy Somolli's victories this year include beating Brisco Hanover and Florida Pro in the Founders Gold Cup at Vernon Downs in July with a 1:574-5 clocking. That was the fastest divisional heat of the season until Aug. 19 at Syracuse. Rapidly improving Count's Pride, piloted by Bill Haught-on, rattled the favorites with a narrow 1:56 decision.

Florida Pro, beaten only by a nose, was also timed in 1:56, and Brisco Hanover in 1:561-5 although trotting the final quarter with only three Count's Pride did not start as a 2-year-old and has come along slowly in a season which began in March in Florida. He won early for Haughton at Pompano in 2: 031-5 and won again early in May. He didn't get another victory until the Arden Downs stakes several weeks ago at the Meadows in 2: 023-5. Previously, the son of Speedy Count had been second twice to Florida Pro. Florida Pro's 12-race winning streak over the past two seasons ended when he broke off stride in the Gold Cup at Vernon Downs.

Not the least of Count's Pride's sudden new ability is the fact he's handled by Haughton, winner of three of the last four Hambletonians.

Haughton took the big prize for the first time with Christopher T in 1974, then brought Steve Lobell home first in 1976 and made history last year with Green Speed

In winning his third straight race and seventh in 12 starts, Speedy Somolli earned a purse of $116,797. The 3-year-old son of Speedy Crown now has won $211,637 this year.

Last year, as a 2-year-old, he earned $65,146.

Doublemint went right to the front at the start from his No. 1 post and was pushed for the first quarter mile by Brilliant Yankee.

Along the second turn, Doublemint gained a clear lead but Speedy Somolli rushed up on the outside to get a head lead at the half-mile pole and then drew out by several lengths and Counts Pride moved up on the outside to run equal with Doublemint into the stretch but weakened.

Wade gains tennis finals with victory

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) - Former Wimbledon champion Virginia Wade registered her fourth successive straight-set victory Saturday night, defeating Regina Marsikova 6-4, 6-4 and moving into the finals of the $75,000 Bergen County Women's Tennis Classic.

The top-seeded Wade defeated Marsikova of Czechoslovakia in a 71minute semifinal. The English star faces the winner of the semifinal between second-seeded Tracy Austin and third-seeded Kerry Reid of Aus

"I was pleased with my serves and volleys," said Wade, the 31-year-old winner of the 1977 Wimbledon championships. "I got a little cute out there when I had a 4-1 lead in the second set and I got angry with myself for making those mistakes.'

Wade held serve the rest of the way as she kept the sixth-seeded Marsikova on the run throughout the match with her aggressive tactics. A couple of weak backhands betrayed the 19year-old Czech player when Wade earned the decisive break in the fifth game of the first set.

Wade maintained the pressure in the second set, breaking Marsikova in the first game. She attacked the backhand and her opponent weakened with three more errors. During the middle games, Wade took nine consecutive points.

The singles final today at 3 p.m. will be worth $15,000.

Missouri names Hitch as new athletic director

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - Bob Hitch was named assistant athletic director at the University of Missouri Saturday for the second time in less than three months.

Hitch, 36, was named to the post in June by Athletic Director Dave Hart, but it was later discovered that affirmative action guidelines had not been used in making the appointment and he remained in the post on an interim basis.. A search committee of Hart and two others reviewed 36 candidates and interviewed three of them before deciding on Hitch.

Hitch was an assistant to Hart at Louisville before Hart moved to Missouri earlier this year.

catching up with the men when it comes to tournament bass fishing. The top ten list of the High Sky Bass Club in Midland shows Janice Hixon in the number six position through July. She has consistently out-fished the majority of the male members of the club and I hope that she continues to keep up her winning ways. If would be something to see a woman be the state's top fisherperson.

The High Sky Bass Club held their July tournament on Twin Buttes Lake with Glenn Hixon winning the men's division with 10 lbs. 9 oz., Janice Hixon winning the women's with 9 lbs. 2 oz., Trai Kelly the teen division with three lbs. 9 oz. and Jay Wilkes sur-prised them all in the youth division with 13 lbs. 11 oz.

The High Sky Club held a night tournament on Lake Coleman this past weekend and I will have the results for you in my next column. Night fishing is one of the best ways I know of to beat the dog days of summer and catch more and bigger bass in the process.

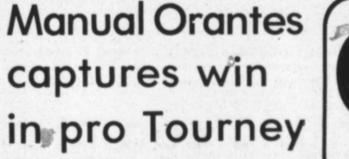

A new striper record was set on Lake Spence, July 30 when Ricky Gibson from Big Spring caught a 25 lb. 10 oz. fish. As has been the case all summer, the striper action on Spence is still holding steady with good fish being caught on a regular basis.

The statewide fishing picture should improve with a gradual cooling trend in September. The fall of the year is second only to spring when it comes to finding fish in the shallow water. The summer crowds are gone in the fall as most fishermen have switched from rod and reel to a rifle or shotgun.

I received some encouraging re-ports this week showing a lot of big bass and full stringers coming from all over the state. The action has picked up on Toledo Bend and the rest of the East Texas reservoirs with most of the fish falling for purple worms fished in timber in 10-15 feet of

Last Wednesday Preston Carlson of Seminole caught a 7 3/4 lb. largemouth out of Spence on a jig and eel in six feet of water. Jay Cruz of Odessa took a limit of bass out of Oak Creek last Friday and Saturday on Bushwackers fished over the moss. His big fish weighed five lbs. four oz.

All in all the fishing picture is looking brighter and the up and coming dove season will give us all a chance to get in some long-awaited hunting.

Elder can play Masters now

The Los Angeles Times

In the final round of the Westchester Golf Classic at Harrison, N.Y., an extraordinary thing hap-

Oh, it was not so much that it was won by Lee Elder. This was the fourth tournament Lee Elder has won, and the second this year.

What was extraordinary was that no one noted breathlessly that his made Lee Elder eligible for the Masters. Nobody noted that this was the most tournaments ever won by a black player on the tour. No one mentioned that this was the most money ever won in a single tournament by a black player. No one even marveled at the fact that this meant that Lee Elder would almost surely become the first black player ever to represent the U.S. in the Ryder Cup.

You would have thought Lee Elder was just another blue-eyed blond from Brigham Young or Florida State, or someone who learned the game at Pater's club on Long Island in between yacht races.

Lee Elder is just Lee Elder. The old pro. You have the feeling if someone trudged up the hill at 18, stopped, pointed and said "Who is that black player making birdie up there?" your veteran golf fan would have stopped, scowled, and said "That's no black player, that's Lee Elder."

A black player winning a golf tournament is not as common as a black player making a free throw, a touchdown, a knockout, or even striking out the side, but thanks to Lee Elder it's no longer in the category of a rich man going to heaven. The Urban League can move on to other things. The NAACP can concentrate on redlining. The pro tour is secure. The brown eyes can win it.

Golf is not a ghetto sport. Neither was flying jet airplanes. But Gen.

Daniel (Chappie) James, to whose memory Lee Elder is dedicating his pro-am scholarship tournament next month at Kingsmill, in Williamsburg, Va., made it all the way to commander in chief of the North American Air Defense Command. Gen. James and Lee Elder belong not to black history but to American history.

It was not easy for Lee Elder. You can't play-golf in anger. Neither can you Uncle Tom your way onto the Ryder Cup team. Lee still had to shoot his way into the parlor. In other areas, to make up for past injustices, authorities have bent rules to make places for minority applicants. The only rule they bent for Lee Elder was the one that said that only Caucasians could play in the PGA. And that was not a rule, that was a crime. A federal, constitutional crime.

Lee Elder burst upon golf consciousness in 1968 when he went five stubborn extra holes in a playoff for the American Golf Classic with Jack Nicklaus, no less. He lost the playoff, but won America

Lee Elder is the first to admit that Charlie Sifford and other black pioneers were the shock troops who took the brunt of bigotry in golf. No one rolled a beer can onto the green as Lee Elder was putting. And Lee Elder never blamed the Ku Klux Klan when he missed a short putt. Lee Elder never threw a club or kicked a ball-

At 44 he's playing the best golf of his career; he's a multiple winner (Milwaukee, Westchester) this year, and totally exempted next year. You ask Lee Elder why, and the answers are the same you would hear from any member of the pro golf fraternity."Lee Trevino taught me how to fade the ball and I got rid of that fighting hook, Dave Stockton taught me how to putt without breaking my wrists, and now I'm able to win because I have confidence in both of those strokes."

When the pros start teaching you how to beat them, you've arrived. When Lee Elder can just be Lee Elder, a right-handed pro out of Washington, D.C., so has golf.

Gopher basketball stripped of record

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The 1976-77 Minnesota Gopher basketball team has been stripped of its 24-3 record because the school allowed three players to compete in defiance of an order by the National Collegiate Athletic Association

The university said it was informed of the decision Saturday by the

The official record of the 1976-77 team will be 0-27. The announcement said the Gophers' Big Ten conference standing and records are not affected by the NCAA action. The Gophers finished second to Michigan in the Big Ten that year with a 15-3 mark.

The university said the NCAA Council voted not to apply sanctions against the three players, Mychal Thompson, David Winey and Phil Saunders, who competed that season while a U.S. district court injunction

The NCAA had ordered the university to declare the three players ineligible but the issue was taken to court. An appeals court later overturned the district court injunction. The NCAA action means that Thompson will not lose his Big Ten scoring title that season and he continues to hold the university's all-time career scoring records. The 6-foot-10 center scored 595 points that season and averaged 22 points per game. "We are pleased that the sanctions were not imposed against the players," said Robert A. Stein, university vice-president for administration and planning, who argued the school's case before the NCAA Council in Dallas early last week. "We worked hard to insure that their outstanding accomplishments would not be wiped from the records."

"We are extremely disappointed, however, at the action taken against the university with its unfortunate effect on Coach (Jim) Dutcher's record," the university spokesman added.

Mario Andretti liking hot seat in Formula One

ZANDVOORT, The Netherlands (AP) - Mario Andretti, the veteran U.S. driver currently leading the world championship standings, says he feels at home in the hottest seat in Formula One racing

"Let the rest of them catch up with me. That stits me better than having to go after them," said Andretti during a break in practice for Sunday's Dutch Grand Prix.

Now 38, Andretti has been racing cars since he was a teenager and is aiming to become the first American to win the world championship since Phil Hill took the coveted title back in

"You have to take every day as it comes, and if it doesn't work out this time, I'll try again," said Andretti. Born in Italy, Andretti moved to the United States at the age of 15 and now makes his home at Nazareth, Pa.

He started his racing career in stock cars, moved on to long-distance competition and prototypes and graduated to Formula One cars in 1968.

"I didn't think I would be in it for too long," said Andretti. "With all the travel and other things that go pressure was going to be very tough. But looking back, I must say that I love what I'm doing. I take my job seriously and you won't hear any complaints from me."

Other drivers describe Andretti as a determined, all-round driver and as a man who knows what he's doing and does it well.

Confronted with this description of himself, he smiled broadly and put his success down to never giving up.

"You have got to have perseverance and faith to make it to the top," said Andretti. "You have to make sacrifices all the time. I devote all the reasonable time I have to my work."

If he wins the world title, Andretti said he has no intention of retiring having gone all the way to the top. "I am ready and willing to go again.

A short, dark-haired and friendly person, Andretti admits that he sees himself as a man with two home-

Asked what has kept him racing for so long, he simply replied:

Celebrity tennis brings out 12,000 tennis fans

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) - Government officials, sports celebrities and entertainment stars turned out Saturday to participate in the annual Robert F. Kennedy Pro Celebrity Tennis Tournament designed to raise money for the needy.

Tournament officials said the event, attended by more than 12,000 persons, brought in some $400,000. The money, which goes to the Robert F. Kennedy Foundation, will finance programs to aid the young and the poor in the inner city, Appalachia, on Indian reservations and in migrant worker camps throughout the United

"We've been very encouraged by the success of the past tournaments,"said Sen. Edward Kennedy. 'They indicate that people care about the ideas my brother believed in."

The winner was the team of former Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner and his tennis pro partner, Anand Amritraj. Their awards - an enormous sterling silver cup for Jenner and a $15,000 motorboat for Amritraj — were presented by Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. Jenner and Amritraj won the tournament by beating actress Dina Merrill and tennis pro Clark Graebner in the final match. The program, intended to help in the fight against some of the nation's pressing problems, was not without its light moments. 'My strategy is to lose every

Canadians violate rules BERLIN (AP) - Two Canadian

competitors at the World Swimming Championships were sent home Saturday for violating team rules, team spokesmen said.

They were George Nagy, 21, of Toronto and Jay Tapp, 18, of Winnipeg. The nature of their violations was not officially disclosed.

Nagy, a finalist in the 200-meter butterfly, had been scheduled to swim in Saturday's eliminations for the 100meter butterfly. Tapp was to have swum the backstroke in preliminaries for the 400-meter medley relay.

RICHMOND HILL. Ga. (AP) - A 17-yearold championship rider, Renee Elizabeth Brown of Atlanta, was killed Friday when the car in which she was riding and a tractor-trailer collided near here.

Brown, who had competed for several years in the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Richard Brown of Atlanta.

see big decline in mallard species WASHINGTON (AP) - Wa-Efforts to bring back black duck

Waterfowl hunters

terfowl hunters can look forward to this autumn's gunning with mixed blessings. Some species of ducks have increased, but some important gunning species did not fare well on the nesting grounds.
The latest U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service breeding survey shows mallard populations de-clined 7 percent from last year. Canvasbacks, a species in dire trouble, dropped 40 percent. Scaup numbers fell 5 percent and blue-winged teal declined

BLACK DUCKS, an important but troubled species in the Mississippi and Atlantic flyways, are censused on the wintering grounds. These show the Mississippi Flyway population declined by 10 percent, while the East Coast population increased by 3 percent. With two exceptions, these species once were the shotgunner's pride. A limit bag of mallards, blacks and cans once were the shotgunners pride. A limit bag of these big ducks marked the supreme test of a sportsman's skill.

(The two exceptions are redheads and pintails, whose populations increased by 21 percent and 14 percent, respectively. But the service noted in its annual waterfowl survey that pintail populations remain 8 percent below the 1955-1977

The implications of these declines pose ominous questions for the hunter concerned over the future of his sport.

Waterfowl regulations once were set on the basis of the mallard population. If mallard numbers increased after the nesting season, regulations were liberalized. If mallard populations shrank, gunning restrictions were tightened.

The fallacy of this approach became evident in the 1960s when black duck, redhead and canvasback populations shrank precipitously. Thus was born the concept of species management and a morass of restrictions based on individual species.

BUT CRACKS are starting to appear in the foundation of spe-

The new concept assumes the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service knows enough about a given species to manipulate its popuand canvasback populations have failed. The species remain in jeopardy.

The mallard, the continent's most numerous duck, is troubled in significant parts of its range — as evidenced by special hunting restrictions. And this is the duck which biologists know most about and have "managed" for the longest time.

The question needs to be asked: If the service cannot manage the mallard, what species can it manage to ensure bountiful populations?

To its credit, the service has been instrumental in restoring poulations of Canada geese and wood ducks. But these are not prairie nesting species like the mallard,: pintail and canvas-

The number of waterfowl hunters has doubled since the bountiful years of the mid-1950s. Yet today a hunter can kill more ducks than he could in those halcyon years, especially if he guns in a state whose bag limits are based on the point system. THIS INCREASING bag limit comes at the same time wetlands are decreasing.

There are several possible solutions. The service could decrease the general bag limit, a move which would discourage some hunters from going afield and reducing hunting pressure. The service could abandon the point system, which encourages high bags.

The service could stop awarding to hunters so-called bonus birds of species whose populations have declined during the summer, species like scaup and blue-winged teal. And it could stop making bonus birds of species like the American goldeneye, about which poulation data is extremely limited. None of the solutions would be popular in some quarters. But the draining of wetlands, unprecedented gunning pressure, environmental contamination, and haphazard regulations are causing such serious problems that many sportsmen fear for the future of the sport.

One biologist suggests the service should stop focusing on incredibly complex mathematical models to justify its regulations and instead read the bible, especially the passage which says, "Thou shalt not take the dam with the young.' This, he suggests, would be sufficient to provide abundant populations for future years.

FINAL HOMESTAND

Tech coach Rex Dockery, faced with a depleted running back corps, moved rugged junior tight end James Hadnot to fullback Saturday and he responded with a sparkling 120 yards rushing in a game-condition scrimmage.

"I've seen enough of him to think he will be our starter," Dockery told touring Southwest Conference football writers. "He has excellent speed and his only problem seems to be a tendency to try to run over tacklers instead of avoiding them."

The only time the 6-foot-2, 240-pound Hadnot ever played running back was as a tailback in Jasper High School during his junior year. He gained over 700 yards in seven

"Well, we've had him at tight end for two years and that shows what kind of coaches we are," laughed Dockery, who is in his first full year as Tech's head coach after three years as Steve Sloan's assistant.

City's favorite fest approaching

When late August rolls around, can Septemberfest be far away? Indeed not - only a few days away, as a matter of fact! For the 10th year, Midland's favorite fun-food-and-entertainment festival, known throughout the area as Septemberfest, comes to the grounds of the Museum of the Southwest. Sponsored by Las Manos - "The Hands" - volunteer service organization of the museum. Septemberfest

This year's Septemberfest will take place Sept. 9 and 10. Hours for the event will be noon to 8 p.m. on Sept. 9 and noon to 5 p.m. on Sept. 10. Admission will be $1 per person, with children under age 12 admitted free when accompanied by parents or other

As in past years, noted artists and craftspeople from throughout the Southwest will be displaying their creative specialities in booths inside and outside the museum's Turner Memorial Gallery at 1705 W. Missouri Ave. Outside, traditional German foods will be for sale, along with barbecue, hot dogs and beverages.

A variety of entertainment is planned each day — ranging from the well-known Die Deutschen Adler band from San Antonio to Midland's is a community event and a family own string-quartet-in-residence, the affair, with proceeds benefitting the Thouvenel Quartet, and from comtry-Western and gospel anging groups to the madrigal ensemble of the Midland-Odessa Symphony Cho-

The more than 50 artists and artisans coming to town for Septemberfest will include many returning for the second or third year, along with others who will be exhibiting here for the first time. Their works will range from bronze to stone, from oil paintings to charcoal drawings, from stained glass to silk screen prints, from fiber art to innovative ceramic pieces. Among the many noted artists and artisans coming here this time are pen-and-ink artist Molly Jones of Tyler, painter Terry Burleson of Austin, printmaker and graphic artist Richard Conn of San Antonio, jewelry maker Hank Kaminsky of Eureka Springs, Ark., wildlife sculptor Cindy Burleson, painter Secundino Sandoval of Los Alamos, N.M., photographer Frank Bell, fiber artist Ellen Dooley of Farmington, N.M., and artist and sculptor Hollis Howard of Oklahoma City.

Anka: a 'work junkie' at age 37

"I think the only time I got really concerned was

By LAWRENCE LAURENT The Washington Post

Paul Anka was a failure at the age of 13, a millionaire at the age of 19 and, by his own words, a "work junkie" at the age of 37. He's on tour eight months out of the year, a rigidly disciplined entertainer who insists on a daily swim and an hour-long session of exercise on his portable tilt-board. He does not smoke, and his drinking is limited to wines.

"I have to take care of myself," Anka said over the long-distance telephone line. "First, I prefer to take fication with puppy love had passed. care of myself, and second, I have a wife and five daughters." The family recently moved to Carmel, Calif., for the simple reason that Paul and wife, Annie, were impressed with a school there.

Paul had called to talk about his latest television special, "Paul Anka at Monte Carlo," which will be telecast tonight (CBS).

He's working with Suzanne Somers, currently the reigning sex image and a star of "Three's Company," and Donna Summer, who's already a big star in Europe and whose "Love to Love you Baby" is an

Somers' solo numbers are "If My Friends Could See Me Now" and "Buttons and Bows." The solos for Summer are "With Your Love" and "Last Dance." That leaves Paul to sing "Listen to Your Heart" with Suzanne and "Dreams of Gold" with Donna. The rest of the hour is 16 songs by Anka including" "The Painter," "Les Filles de Paris," "Nights of Broadway," "Anytime," "Times of Your Life," "Papa," "Make It Up to Me in Love," "This is Love," "My Way" and "Don't Ever Say Goodbye.'

Anka says: "I didn't want to stay in the studio. I'm fed up with dull studio productions. I wanted to do something more imaginative, more human. I go to Europe a lot, and Monte Carlo seemed just the right place for a show. We got great chemistry with Suzanne, and I left the production to Marty Passetta. I'm very happy with the way it came out. It is more human, has more depth, more fun and it is looser.' A lot of people ought to be happy with the way Paul Anka turned out. He was born July 30, 1941, in Ottawa, where his Lebanese-Canadian parents operated restaurants. At 13, he came down to Los Angeles, made a recording for RPM Records and went back to Canada — "a failure at 13." Just before Anka's 16th birthday he got the big break. This time he went to New York, where Artists and Repertoire man Don Costa liked what he heard. One of the songs he heard was "Diana," written to the babysitter of Paul's younger brother. "Diana" sold about 20 million copies, and one magazine called it the "second biggest grossing record in history."

Paul became a rock 'n roll idol and was soon a very rich young man with a long string of hits that he had written. He was also being used up at a great rate, following the path of the rock shooting-stars who burn so brightly and go out so quickly.

Young people to give musical presentation

LAMESA - A talented and energetic group of young people will present their unique blend of entertainment and inspiration in a concert here Thursday night.

The "Up With People" troupe will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday in Lamesa High School auditorium. The event is sponsored by the Lamesa Optimist Club and the LHS Golden Tornado Band.

The 1978 edition of the Up With People show presents music and dancing, with performers backed by a complete instrumental ensemble. Tickets for the concert are $3.50 in advance (available for purchase at Lamesa National or First National banks, or from band members) and will be $4 at the auditorium doors on performance evening.

A change came in 1968. Paul was handed a French ballad, "Comme d-Habitude.' He immediately bought the rights to it and wrote an English lyric. He took the song to Frank Sinatra, and "My Way" became the song most completely identified with Sinatra. More than that, the tune lifted Paul Anka into the ranks of the mature songwriters. are by Ben Konis of Amarillo, one of the Southwest's leading artist-teachers. The art show has been planned to highlight dedicatory ceremonies for the new McCormick Gallery. The ceremonies are scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday and will be open to the public. The McCormick Gallery is a gift to Midland College from Col. and Mrs. Walter B. Smith, dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Smith's parents, the late Frank and Mary McIntyre McCormick, and

Mrs. Smith's brother, the late George D. McCormick, all pioneer residents of Midland County. Serving as the foyer of the fine arts building, the McCormick Gallery stretches in a shallow "U" shape through the center of the building. Its walls are covered with waled, beige-colored fabric that provides a neutral backdrop for art displays. Pedestals and glass cases provide appropriate settings for sculpture and jewelry displays. The gallery has carpeted areas with chairs and couches for vis-

"Plaza Suite," a comedy by Neil Simon, stars TV and motion picture actor Scott Brady. Co-starring is Enid Holm.

Artist Wyatt, who resides at Tulia, is widely recognized for the strength and realism he gives his paintings, and his works are in the collections of foundations, banks and famous people. However, 8658. there is another group of art critics and buyers who accept his art, too — cowboys and cattlemen. It has been said that Wyatt can touch the viewer with gladness, sometimes sadness, or maybe just a pinch of nostalgia:

Konis, the other exhibiting artist in the new exhibition, had a long and successful career as an illustrator and commercial artist in New York City before moving to the Southwest a number of years ago to devote his full time to painting. Widely hailed as a superb colorist, Konis is known for his realistic, detailed renditions of Southwestern Indians in native costume and activities. He conducts painting workshops regularly throughout the Southwest in addition to creating his own canvasses in his Amarillo Because there's going to be nothing straight about a CHEECH & CHONG film. Every generation has had their own comedy duo; Abbott & Costello broke up the 40's and Martin and Lewis really fractured the 50's.

CHEECH & CHONG have helped make the 70's go "UP IN SMOKE." CHEECH & CHONG are the comedy team that gave birth to rock comedy and in the process of turning on a whole generation, sold ten million album picked up numerous awards, including Cash Box and Billboard's best comedy du and a Grammy for their album "Los Cochinos." Now it's time for a CHEECH & CHONG movie

Mrs. Cecil Davis, right, and Mrs. Ellison Tom, chairmen of the decorating and hospitality committees, respectively, will combine their efforts in creating an atmosphere of excitement and nostalgia for the Lilli Ann style show.

A San Francisco fashion coordinator, William Tilisman, will narrate a style show to be staged by the Midland Woman's Club that will set the pace of the club's activities for the upcoming club year.

The traditional Welcome Back Luncheon will be held Sept. 21 in conjunction with the style show in the Hogan Park clubhouse, which will open its doors for the fall season Sept. 5.

The club's hospitality and decorating committees will provide an atmosphere of excitement for the buffet event. Members will dine in the "Fashion Display Room".

Skibell's will provide a collection of Designs by Lilli Ann and Tilisman will narrate the show that will include tallored feminine attire designed in Paris and San Francisco.

Brass rubbings excel as wall hangings

By ELAINE Q. BARROW AP Newsfeatures

Brass rubbing, a traditional English craft of tracing medieval plaques onto paper, is stirring new enthusiasm in America. The reproductions make highly distinctive wall hangings.

The brass plaques, themselves, were set in the pavement of English churches and over tombs, particularly during the 1300s to the 1600s, to commemorate celebrities in ecclesiastical, civil, or other realms. One of the most famous brasses is at the church at Stratford-on-Avon,

England, where many travelers have read the Elizabethan legend: "Good frend for lesus sake forbeare, To digg the dust encloased heare;

The plaque was set above the tomb of William Shakespeare.

Rubbing began long ago when history buffs and persons researching ancestral roots obtained permission to make copies of the plaques. They placed specially prepared parchment-like paper onto the brass and rubbed it with wax crayons, much like placing paper on a coin and tracing its image with a pencil, except that the intricacies and exquisite detail of the commemorative plaques yielded works of art.

Now the London Brass Rubbing Centre has exported the craft to

The British group has rendered reproductions of 4,000 original plaques - exact replicas from which paper copies can be rubbed.

Copies of knights, ladies, merchants, lords, priests, and other medieval personnages were brought recently to the Washington Cathedral, Washington, D.C.; the Old North Church in Boston; Christ's Church in Philadelphia, and New York City's 112-year-old Church of the Resurrection, Episcopal.

"Brass rubbing is not only rewarding, it's therapeutic and less expensive than needlepoint," says Ruth Wiltshire, British-born secretary of the Church of the Resurrection where 40 replicas are exhibited. 'We've had people from Colorado and Texas and all over the United States. They're here on holiday (vacation) and some get so fascinated they spend two or three days a week just sitting here and rubbing." The process, itself, is simple. First is the choice of the subject. One of the earliest in the collection is Sir William Fitzralph of Pebmarsh, Essex,

Perhaps the most popular likeness is called the Lace Lady: Lady Margaret Peyton of Isleham, Cambridgeshire, 1484, depicted in an intricate lace gown and flowing headdress. The panel is 2 feet long and 15

Next is the choice of color of the stubby beeswax crayon — copper, gold, silver or black. Then the rubbing paper, black or white?

Smoothing the paper across the brass surface, one rubs with the crayon lightly at first to get the design, and then more heavily to intensify the color. It takes less than an hour to produce a portrait that can be framed or used as a wall hanging, or even reproduced as a Christmas card.

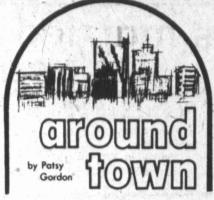

"The final effect is what you have chosen," says Miss Wiltshire. "That is what makes it so personal and such a good gift. And, for people who don't have the time for rubbing, we also have finished products for sale at

Miss Wiltshire explained that royalties go to the English churches possessing the original plaques, and that the revenue is helping many

But U.S. churches benefit, too. She said that there is no admission charge to see the exhibits here, and only a small fee is asked for the beeswax and paper and instructions for persons doing their own rubbing. But the increased traffic is beneficial.

"For instance," she said, "this church has little endowment and the exhibit has enabled us to remain open seven days a week. Many churches in New York are open only one day a week."

(For further information, contact the Church of the Resurrection, 115 East 74th Street, New York, New York.)

School bells will begin to ring all over the Tall City Tuesday for children both in the Midland school system and private schools.

Since children tend to be a little excited on the first day of classes, the Midland Police Department urges local motorists to be extra cautious when driving through school zones, or at anytime during the school year. The students could dart unexpectedly between parked cars to cross the street to waiting parents. Especially, the younger ones.

Crossing guards are on duty at most schools, but careful driving is in order at all times.

Every year I like to undertake at least one improvement in the garden-some change that will make the garden more pleasant and easier to care for in the years to come.

This year, we undertook the whopping job of installing a new fence around the property. To decide on the type of fence we wanted, we visited a local lumber yard where several types of sample fence were displayed.

In the end, we chose for the fence between ourselves and our neighbors a five-foot solid cedar fence, each board attractively tapered at the top. For the fence facing the road, we chose a model called a "good neighbor' fence, in which vertical boards are placed alternatley oneither side of the two horizontal

The posts are painted with a wood preservative stain in a dark barn brown, and the boards are stained in moss green.

I never would have believed that a new fence would have changed the appearance of the yard so much. The property all of a sudden-seemed so much larger, for one thing. Also, we suddenly felt urgently inspired to lay down new flower beds against the new elegant picture frame background. The far corner of the property where the fence had to be built around a large old tree all of a sudden seemed a natural for a tree house for the kids.

This, of course necessitated the moving of the garden and a hundred other major structural changes throughout the entire yard. And to top off the entire effect, I found a fabulous buy on low white plastic fencing to border all the beds. So now, because of a new fence we have ended up with an almost entirely new garden.

This year we have discovered numerous advantages to having a substantial fence around the yard. We have enjoyed the privacy immensely.

Around the patio area, hanging planters bolted to the fence posts add much to the aesthetic beauty of outdoor living. We found bright and splashy plants like begonias, geraniums, marigolds and petunias set off nicely with hanging plants like lobelia and thungbergia.

King Tut photos to be displayed

By IRV DESFOR

The King Tut craze has had a glorious rebirth in this country thanks to the excitement caused by "The Treasures of Tutankhamun," the most important and most beautiful exhibition of ancient Egyptian art ever to come to the United States.

It started its tour at the National Gallery of Art in Washington in 1976 and has thrilled multitudes as it has made its way to museums in Chicago, New Orleans, Los Angeles and Seattle before it reaches the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City this December.

From New York, the exhibit will make one last stop in San Francis-so many other crops are raised more easily and economically. "It's just not here, although there may be a few backyard gardens where people try it," Borton adds. Mrs. Wood, familiar with tobacco growing in her native Arkansas, wanted to plant some seeds in her vegetable garden "to see if it can grow in this country."

A niece compiled names of tobacco "and kept writing until we finally found some seed," adds Mrs. Wood, who worked in the cotton fields until she was 68.

She planted broad-leafed burley seeds from Kentucky in February, and by late July the plants stood about 4 feet high. «

The tobacco plants require plentiful irrigating just like the rest of her %-acre garden, especially in this hot, dry southern San Joaquin Valley area near Bakersfield, where summer highs often exceed 100 degrees.

Mortality rate for those living near airports debated

LOS ANGELES (AP) - People who live beside major airports and are constantly subjected to the roar of jet engines may die at a younger age than they otherwise would, a UCLA engineering study says.

But a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the study, which focused on two communities near the Los Angeles International Airport, may be flawed.

"The evidence seems to clearly indicate a substantial increase in mortality rates for areas nearest the airport," UCLA professor William C. Meecham said Thursday.

Meecham identified increased tension, anxiety and fear caused by the tremendous noise of jetliners as major contributors to the higher death rates.

The two-year UCLA study compared a neighborhood which borders the Los Angeles airport - where people live directly under landing approaches of several hundred jets daily - with a community six miles from the facility. The two neighborhoods were closely matched for age, ethnic and socio-economic characteristics, Meecham said.

In the high-noise neighborhood, said Meecham, 890 residents died during 1970-71, while 670 deaths were reported in the more distant community. Both communities had about 75,000 residents.

Meecham said the occurrence "of virtually every disease was increased" in the community closer to the airport, with deaths from cirrhosis of the liver - an alcohol-related disease - 140 percent higher in the airport community.

Meecham added that fatal strokes

anl other cardiovascular problems were 39 percent higher in the airport neighborhood.

"There is every expectation that one would find similar results at airports in other major cities throughout the United States and elsewhere in the world," Meecham said.

Dr. U.A. Sexton, regional FAA flight surgeon, disputed the study's findings, saying it was unlikely that cultural, economic and other factors could be controlled completely,

"If you take out the alcohol-related deaths, you end up with numbers that are so small you can't draw any statistical conclusions," he said. Jack Francois, a Los Angeles airport spokesman, said while it is 'quite noisy" under flight paths, for

By ERMA BOMBECK

I'm a pushover for those magazine articles that tell me I can put out a six-course dinner for ply eight in less than an hour. (I can't shave my legs in less than half an hour.)

You know the ones I'm talking about. Those timetables that give you a minute-by-minute game plan of how you proceed with your meal. At 5:30, clean and chill the greens. At 5:40, put the water on to boil for the rice. At 6:00 slice the French bread ad put in the warmer. At 6:15 toss the rice, etc., etc.

I tried one of those timetables a week ago that looked and sounded fantastic. The menu was: beef stroganoff over noodles, green salad, buttered fresh asparagus, dinner rolls and baked Alaska. The company was due at 7:00, I started dinner at 6:30. It went something like this.

Keeping plants green is apartment problem

By CAROLE EICHEN Copley News Service

If you weren't born with a green thumb, taking care of house plants can become a real chore.

Many apartment dwellers have discovered what plants can do to turn a cold and sterile room unto a warm and inviting place with the addition of some greenery.

The problem comes in keeping it green. This often becomes more difficult challenge for those who live in apartments where the lighting isn't

There's no doubt about it, plants take work. If you are a successful indoor gardener, the plants will begin to outgrow their pots so you are constantly faced with repotting, watering and feeding them

When it's plant care day, the sink usually doubles as a nursery where you prepare the food, drawn the plants and perhaps do some new potting. Then, there's the mess to clean up. You don't have the luxury of a yard, garage or basement which can be converted into a work area for your plants.

One answer is to build a combination display-workstand which can house all of your planting and potting supplies while providing a place away from the kitchen sink to work.

Such a piece of furniture can be made fairly inexpensively from pine, plywood and plastic laminate. You can use a basic shelf design or convert an existing piece of furniture.

Add some sliding doors that hide the garden tools and build in a drop-leaf shelf that can be propped up to serve as a work area for potting and feeding. The rest of the unit can serve as a display area for plants or as a rooting place for new growth.

If you don't want such a work area inside the apartment, consider building a plant work space for the apartment patio. In this way, you keep the mess outside yet you can still maintain a neat and tidy patio by having a place for the work tools.

If the plants are staining or leaving marks on your good furniture, you might consider other ways to display them. One idea is to create your own setting for them.

Antique or old farm equipment can be converted into a plant holder. Wood stumps and driftwood also make attractive plant display pieces. By hanging plants, you keep them off the furniture and often provide an attractive way to fill an empty corner.

Don't let the hard work make you give up on the plants. Take a couple of hours to cut and trim your plants. repot those that need it, analyze their lighting requirements and then look for new ways to display them.

If you have any doubts about what plants can do for your apartment, take a look at the room when the plants are taken away. There's quite a difference.

The story goes - and there is at least one written account of it - that many years ago, professional wood finishers in some factories had to take off all their clothes before applying varnish to furniture.

Why? Because the dust and lint from their clothes would have settled on the wet surfaces and ruined the work. It doesn't matter much whether the tale has been exaggerated, because the premise behind it is as true then as now

drying materials as lacquer and shel-

When varnish is being used, it is important the project be carried out in a room which no one is likely to enter while you are at work and preferably for several hours. The room should be as dust-free as possible, which in some cases means using a vacuum cleaner before starting, working very carefully, since the procedure itself sometimes stirs up

After the surface has been sanded, it must be wiped thoroughly with turpentine or mineral spirits to get rid of the grit caused by the sanding. Pros use a tack rag, which is moistened with turpentine and a bit of varnish. You can buy one at almost any hardware or paint store.

If you wish to make one, sprinkle a clean cloth with turpentine and then add a little varnish. Ring out the cloth until nearly dry, then wipe the surface with it. After you have finished with it, put it in an airtight metal container and it can be used over and over again. (The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtaned by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Another professional trick calls for the use of a picking stick. Here again you can buy one, although only in certain stores. But you can accomplish the same purpose.— removing dust specks — with an ordinary wooden toothpick.
