

New Law 'Erases' Proposed School Tax Rate Cut

By JEFF SOUTH and SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE LUBBOCK Independent School District's proposed 20-cent tax-rate cut is really no cut at all — after property revaluations are taken into account.

That is what the city-school tax office said Wednesday in a report required under the state's new "truth in taxation" law.

School trustees tentatively have set the district's new tax rate at $1.38 per $100 valuation, down from last year's $1.58. In effect, the rate was reduced 13 percent.

But according to the tax department's computations, the school board's action simply amounted to returning to taxpayers the windfall revenues that would have been collected due to property reappraisals.

Under the "truth in taxation" calculations, any rate higher than $1.38 actually would represent a school tax increase, the department said.

City-school officials also released updated figures on tax rolls for the 1978-79 fiscal year. They indicated the true rolls will total substantially more than the estimates used in the city and school budgets.

For example, the school system built its new budget on a projected $1.3 billion tax roll. However, the actual roll, according to Wednesday's information, will be about $24.8 million higher.

At the present temporary rate set by the school board, the higher-than-expected tax roll would generate $330,000 more tax money than is required to meet the school district's budget needs for the 1978-79 year.

Hence, school trustees have two options: they could collect this excess revenue and put it in the district's "carryover balance" (a contingency fund); or they could decide not to collect it at all, by trimming the district's tax rate an additional two cents.

In the same way, city officials said they had based their original budget for the new year on a net assessed valuation of $1.25 billion. But they said the figure coming out of the tax office now is $1.3 billion — $50 million above the city's projected tax roll.

Consequently, at the $1.12 rate tentatively set by the city council, the city would wind up collecting an extra $540,000 in revenues — enough to cut the city's tax rate as much as four cents more.

The tax rolls of the city and school district are not the same, because they encompass slightly different jurisdictions and because the city is offering a higher homestead exemption ($10,000) for the elderly than is the district's ($3,000).

City officials emphasized Wednesday's tax-roll figure could be reduced substantially, depending on the number of persons taking advantage of the city's new homestead exemption.

Both the city council and school board have approved their respective budgets, but neither has set a final tax rate for the 1978-79 year.

The council, whose tentative rate appears on Page 12.

Tech Near Old Record Enrollment

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MORE THAN 22,000 students have registered for classes at Texas Tech so far, and university officials are cautiously optimistic the school may be headed for a record fall enrollment.

Although the Coordinating Board predicted in July that Tech's autumn enrollment would reach 23,000, even the most inflated estimates now place this fall's student body at 300 to 400 under that.

The registrar's office reports that 22,019 students signed up for classes in two days of registration last week. Late registration, which runs through Tuesday, may add 500 or more students, which would put the enrollment close to the high point of 22,580, established in 1975.

University registrar Don Wickard said the number of students who registered last week at the Coliseum "was a little higher than we had anticipated." Last year's total for Coliseum registration was 21,885, with 540 more students signing up during late registration.

Dorm Space Leased

There are other factors pointing to a higher fall enrollment this year.

Housing officials say a record 7,485 students have moved into the dorms, including 300 women who have been housed in a leased wing of a private apartment complex near campus.

Even with the almost five percent rate hike in dorm fees last year, an increasing number of sophomores, juniors and seniors have applied to live in the residence halls.

Applications Early

By April 10, the assistant director of housing already had received 7,200 dorm applications, with 500 applicants assigned to waiting lists.

As the summer wore on, housing officials became concerned there would be a shortage of dorm space for new students in September.

But by early August there had been enough cancellations that housing officials at least "felt comfortable about getting all the women accommodations," said Cliff Yoder, assistant vice president for auxiliary services.

Women Under Guard

To meet the demand for dorm space, the housing office leased a wing of the College Inn, a privately operated multi-story apartment building at 10th Street and University Avenue, across from campus.

An extra 300 women now are living in the wing, where a 24-hour guard and other security measures insure the women "will be as safe as they would be at an on-campus dorm," a housing official said.

JFK Death Hearings Discredit Two Guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Texas Gov. and Mrs. John Connally recounted Wednesday the moments when President John F. Kennedy was cut down from behind by an assassin's bullet, and said they heard no firing from the front.

A congressional hearing at which the Connallys testified produced gasps from spectators who were reminded of the shock of those frightening moments of American history, but no important new evidence about the assassination surfaced.

Giving no support to theories that two gunmen were firing in a conspiracy to assassinate the president, the Connallys said there were three shots and all came from behind them.

Warren Commission Supported

Their testimony to the House assassinations committee supported the Warren Commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, murdered the president in Dallas, firing three shots from a sixth-floor window to the rear of the president's car.

Some investigators say that there may have been some firing from a grassy knoll in front of the motorcade.

"You heard none from the grassy knoll?" asked Rep. Samuel Devine, R-Ohio.

"No, sir," Connally replied, "and I don't think any came from there."

Reacted To Shots

"We reacted to the shots," Mrs. Connally testified. "If one had come from the front we would have reacted to it."

The Connallys were in Kennedy's car when the president was assassinated Nov. 22, 1963. Connally was wounded.

They testified, as they have before, that Connally either was — or may have been — hit by a separate bullet. But they said it was one of three from behind.

Mrs. Connally testified that she distinctly heard three shots and perceived that the first hit Kennedy, the second hit her husband and the third hit the president.

Connally testified he is not certain himself that he was hit with a separate bullet but said he is certain he was hit by the second shot which came from behind.

"There has been a great deal of speculation that the president and I were hit with the same bullet," Connally said. "That may well be. But it wasn't the first shot."

The amateur motion picture film of the assassination was shown in the hearing room — drawing a gasp from spectators when the president was hit — and then Mr. and Mrs. Connally were asked to give their own recollection.

"I heard what I thought was a rifle shot," Connally said. "I think it came from over my right shoulder. I looked at the president because I, frankly, had the fear it might be an assassination."

"I never made the full turn. I was hit. I was knocked over. Just doubled over. The force of the bullet drove my body over about double. I could see I was almost drenched with blood."

"I only heard two shots. I did not hear

Leaders Ask Prayers For Mideast Peace

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter sat down with Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Israel's Menachem Begin for the first big-three talks at the Mideast summit Wednesday and joined them in asking the world to pray for success.

"We ask people of all faiths to pray with us that peace and justice may result from these deliberations," the three leaders said in a statement issued by the White House less than two hours before their 2 p.m. CDT meeting.

White House spokesman Jody Powell said the plea for prayer probably was Carter's idea.

The meeting, at Carter's lodge, lasted an hour and 40 minutes. The three leaders gathered on a flagstone patio with a panoramic view of this forested, 134-acre presidential hideaway in the mountains of western Maryland.

No Progress Revealed

But there was no word afterward about what was said or whether any progress was made.

It was the first meeting between the Egyptian president and the Israeli prime minister since Christmas at Ismailia, an Egyptian city on the Suez Canal, where they set up negotiations between their foreign ministers.

The ministerial talks broke down in mid-January.

Historians at the Library of Congress said it also marked the first time an American president had met with the chiefs of state of Israel and Egypt at the same time to try to settle the decades-old dispute between Arabs and Jews in the Middle East.

He planned to include the vice president in important sessions.

Mondale returned to Washington after the Carter-Begin-Sadat talk.

Carter, acting as middleman, set the stage for the three-way session by huddling separately first with Begin and then Sadat.

Because of Carter-imposed secrecy, there were no disclosures about the substance of the talks.

"The style and tone has been quite informal," Powell said. All three leaders were in casual clothes, he said, adding that Carter began the day by playing tennis with his wife, Rosalynn.

The separate meetings were Carter's first steps at this historic summit to find solutions to the 30-year conflict in the Middle East between Arabs and Israelis.

The task of narrowing their differences looked long and hard. The summit could last 10 days to two weeks.

The private talk between Carter and Begin was Tuesday night. Begin made his way through the trees at this presidential retreat from his lodge to Aspen Lodge, where Carter is staying. Israeli sources, asking not to be identified, said the talk lasted 3½ hours.

While Carter and Begin met, ministers and other aides from the United States, Egypt and Israel dined and talked together at an open mess.

The president then saw Sadat on Wednesday morning, again without authorizing any announcement on the substance of the meeting.

German Police Slay Suspected Terrorist

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Police acting on a telephone tip shot and killed Willy Peter Stoll, one of West Germany's most sought-after suspected terrorists, in a Chinese restaurant Wednesday night, the chief federal prosecutor's office announced.

The 28-year-old Stoll, described as a top figure in the Red Army Faction that grew out of the notorious Baader-Meinhof gang, was sought in the slayings last year of chief federal prosecutor Siegfried Buback, banker Juergen Ponto and industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer.

His death was a major victory for West German authorities in their search for RAF terrorists after months of embarrassment and disappointment.

Two of the nearly 40 persons sought in last year's string of violence were arrested in the Netherlands, and others in France and Yugoslavia, but none had been caught in West Germany.

According to officials, a diner at a Chinese restaurant in Duesseldorf recognized Stoll — whose picture has been widely distributed throughout the country — and telephoned police.

They said Stoll pulled a pistol and began firing as soon as police officers entered the restaurant. Other diners fled for cover and police returned the fire, wounding Stoll.

He died soon after at a local hospital. Police surrounded the hospital and launched a search for two other fugitives — Adelheid Schulz and Christian Klar — who had been seen with Stoll in recent weeks.

Kidnapping Recalled

Stoll's death came one day after the first anniversary of the kidnapping of Schleyer, who was abducted on a Cologne street in a bloody shootout in which his driver and bodyguards were slain.

Schleyer, president of the national trade and employers associations, was found shot to death about six weeks later after the West German government refused the kidnapers' demands to release jailed terrorists.

The Federal Criminal Office, which coordinates the search for terrorists, believes Stoll rented the apartment in a Cologne suburb where Schleyer's abduction was planned.

Police believe Stoll had been a member of the Red Army Faction, or Baader-Meinhof gang, since 1972.

Theft Ring Tie Suspected

According to the criminal office, Stoll was suspected of involvement in a theft ring that illegally obtained weapons for terrorist attacks.

The ring was thought to include Knut Folkerts, also sought in the Buback killing. Folkerts is serving a 20-year sentence in the Netherlands for shooting a policeman.

Officials said Stoll dropped out of sight in March 1977 after working in the office of Stuttgart attorney Klaus Croissant, who represented terrorist suspects.

Buback was slain on a Karlsruhe street a month later while he was driving to work. Stoll was believed to have fled to

Dollar Fluctuates As Gold Climbs

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar fluctuated against major foreign currencies in light to moderate trading Wednesday as traders shrugged off Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller's prescription for the ailing U.S. currency.

Gold rose, closing in London at $212.75 an ounce against Tuesday's $209.75, and at $212.125 in Zurich, up from $209.625 the day before.

Plane, Marijuana Cargo Destroyed

FARMERVILLE, La. (AP) — An old airliner loaded with 20,000 pounds of marijuana vaulted by authorities at $4 million crashed in flames Wednesday, killing one man.

Three persons, muddy and bloody, were picked up as they tried to hitchhike away from the area, police said. Taken to a hospital, they were treated for cuts and bruises.

The identity of the dead man was not known. Officers said the marijuana apparently was flown from Colombia. They said the destination was unknown.

The DC-7, a four-engine propeller plane, ripped a path 100 feet wide as it slashed through pine trees three miles south of Farmerville at about 3 a.m. Most of the illicit cargo burned.

Girl, 2, Survives Nine-Story Plunge

DETROIT (AP) — A 2-year-old girl plunged 90 to 100 feet from a ninth-story window and suffered no serious injuries, authorities said.

Danielle Searcy of Washington, D.C., was moved Wednesday to a regular ward at Children's Hospital for observation, but doctors said they could find no broken bones or internal injuries.

The toddler fell Tuesday night from a window in her grandparents' apartment in suburban Southfield. She apparently was bouncing on a bed when she bumped against a window screen, forcing it to pop loose. The girl landed in shrubbery.

"It's amazing," said Southfield Fire Chief Jerry McGrath. "If you or I fell that distance they'd be picking us up with a blotter."

Doctors at Providence Hospital in Southfield found no obvious injuries, such as broken bones, and transferred the girl to the intensive care unit of Children's Hospital in Detroit.

Danielle was moved to a regular hospital unit so that doctors could observe her for "occult injuries" that might develop later.

Texas Auto Insurers Granted Limited Increase In Premiums

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans' two-year reprieve from automobile insurance rate hikes ended Wednesday with approval by the State Insurance Board of a 3.2 percent average increase in personal car premiums.

The new rates take effect Nov. 1. The insurance industry had asked for an 8.9 percent increase in personal car premiums, but an industry spokesman expressed satisfaction with the board's action.

"I'm very, very pleased that for the first time in two years we do have a rate adjustment," said David Irons, a spokesman for the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office.

"Certainly I feel it's in the public interest that we do have an adjustment, while it's somewhat less than our actuaries felt would be fully adequate," he added.

Board members Ned Price and Durwood Manford adopted rates proposed by the board staff. The board lacks a chairman following the refusal of the Texas Senate to confirm Hugh Yantis's appointment.

Texas will pay a total of $35 million more annually for private passenger automobile insurance. Commercial premiums will go up $27 million for a total $62 million increase in industry premium income.

The industry had asked for a $125 million annual hike in private and commercial coverage.

Actual premiums will vary across the state, ranging from a $17 increase for a typical driver in Jefferson County to a $15 cut in Kaufman County. The "typical driver" is over 25, owns a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth, and drives it to work, but does not use it in business.

The typical driver coverage consists of $50 deductible comprehensive; $200 deductible collision; no-fault Personal Injury Protection, with basic liability of $10,000 per person and $20,000 per accident for injuries and $5,000 for property damage.

Young drivers, those with bad driving records and drivers who use their cars in business will have higher rates than those listed for the "typical driver."

Texas' last increase in automobile insurance rates was October 1976, when a 7.1 percent increase took effect after a 15.5 percent jump the previous January.

At the annual auto rate hearing in 1977, the industry requested a 17.4 percent increase. Then-board chairman Joe Christie called off the rate hearing, saying the 1976 rate increases were adequate.

Staff recommendations include these average statewide changes for different coverage categories:

- Bodily injury liability, basic $10,000-$20,000 limits, down 2.8 percent.
- $5,000 property damage liability, up 5.9 percent.
- Medical payments, down 19.4 percent.
- Personal injury protection, down 19.8 percent.
- Uninsured motorist coverage, up 8 percent.
- Collision, up 15 percent.
- Physical damage coverage other than collision, such as comprehensive, up 8.5 percent.

Eating Team Laurels Unrecognized

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss Oklahoma Pageant officials wouldn't let Kim Lynn Brown add one fact to her pageant biography — that she was president of her college's varsity eating team.

The fact sheets on all 50 contestants at the Miss America Pageant are filled with trite items, but what the young women like to eat is not one of them.

"I loooooove ice cream," said Miss Brown, 21, of Oklahoma City. "I am such a pig. One day I had three banana splits."

Contestants from Nevada, New York and Utah share Miss Brown's preference for ice cream. But 5-foot-7, 117-pound Miss Oklahoma appears to be the pageant's most avid eater.

Back home, she frequents an ice cream parlor where she orders "The Kitchen Sink," eight scoops of ice cream with assorted toppings. The dish is designed for two, but Miss Brown eats it by herself.

Area Milk Said Free Of Feed Contamination

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Contaminated cottonseed that caused a cancer scare in Arizona because it was fed to cattle has been traced to Texas but no health hazard has been found, Lubbock dairy companies and state and federal officials said Wednesday.

No Texas milk has been contaminated, they said, and the aflatoxin-tainted cottonseed does not have a lasting effect on steers fattened on it in feedlots.

Bob Murphy and Mark Soderquist, managers for Bell Dairy Products and Borden Inc. in Lubbock, said they had been working closely with the Associated Milk Producers Inc. in Lubbock to ensure that no contaminated milk was delivered to their companies.

Rex Mull, location and transportation supervisor for the milk producers, said all 32 area milk producers have been given "a clear bill of health" by the Texas Department of Health since the cottonseed was traced to Texas and New Mexico.

Hundreds of tons of moldy cottonseed contaminated with cancer-causing aflatoxin were traced by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to a ranch at Theba, Ariz.

The cottonseed was blamed for aflatoxin levels in Arizona milk which exceeded the FDA limit of 5 parts per billion for several weeks this summer.

Jerry Henderson of the FDA in Dallas said Wednesday that a Bovina broker bought 2,000 tons from Palo Ranch in Theba and that almost all of it had been traced in recent days to feedlots and dairies in Texas and New Mexico.

"We have accounted for the 2,000 tons that fellow received up there and have sampled raw milk and fresh dairy products and are satisfied at this time that the problem has been corrected and that none of the potentially contaminated products are reaching and have not reached grocery shelves," Henderson said.

FDA agents traced 1,100 tons to Albuquerque, 250 to Lovington, 300 to El Paso, 125 to Las Cruces, 50 to Clovis and 25 to Roswell, he said.

"We're just advising the dairies of the problem, and in every circumstance they have stopped feeding it," Henderson said.

He explained that milk has been a special concern because of its widespread use among infants and small children.

The Eastern New Mexico feedlots to which the cottonseed was sold are at Lovington, Texico and Clovis, he said.

Dr. Fred Madden, assistant to the regional director of USDA meat and poultry inspection in Dallas, said Wednesday that aflatoxin feed leaves no cancer-causing residue in beef animals if they are not slaughtered within 72 hours after they are last fed it.

"We're aware of it and trying to keep up with it if it's located in a feedlot so we can do some random sampling," Dr. Madden said. "We have sampled a few at random and have found no traces of it."

"I doubt if it'll ever be a problem in meat tissue. It dissipates pretty rapidly."

Feedlots generally stop feeding a steer a couple of days before it is slaughtered.

Hugh Rundle, chief sanitarian for milk and dairy products with the state health department in Austin, told The Avalanche-Journal that evidently no Texas dairies have bought any of the contaminated feed for dairy cattle.

Four dairies in Arizona and two in New Mexico — one at Albuquerque and one near El Paso — did buy some, but were not allowed to ship any milk into Texas until they quit using it and their milk passed tests, Rundle said.

The FDA did extensive tests on milk coming into El Paso, he said, and the samples showed .1 part per billion of af-latoxin, well below the safety level.

Aflatoxin causes liver damage in people if taken over an extended period and is considered a carcinogen, or cause of cancer, if taken in large amounts, Rundle said.

In Arizona, several tankers of milk were dumped, and most Arizona dairy farmers were ordered to stop feeding cottonseed last month.

The aflatoxin level then was brought within the federal standard, the FDA said.

Children Delight Peter Ustinov

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — British actor and film director Peter Ustinov says he finds children in developing countries "closer to poetry" and American children "scientific."

Ustinov, in Thailand to appear in scenes with Thai children for a film he is making for the U.N. Children's Fund, said Wednesday that youngsters in developing nations "react with instinct" while American children are "trained to be executives."

The 57-year-old actor said his new film, which he is writing and narrating, is a "pictorial essay of the state of mind of the children in different parts of the world."

Ustinov said so far he has covered Egypt, Kenya, India and Jordan.

"I find working with children a great joy and privilege," he said.

House Committee Gives Police Alleged Ray Escape Plan Map

WASHINGTON (AP) — A photo copy of a map reportedly drawn by James Earl Ray as part of a new escape plan was found by an informant in his brother's motel room and turned over to police, the House assassinations committee said Wednesday.

The crudely drawn map shows parts of the compound and grounds of the Brushy Mountain state penitentiary where Ray is serving a life sentence for the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

A committee report says it is "in James Earl Ray's handwriting," and that it was made available to the FBI and Tennessee police officials "to prevent a possible catastrophic event, another escape attempt by James Earl Ray."

The report was prepared by Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, the committee chairman, in an attempt to refute allegations made by Ray's attorney and an underground informant that activities by a committee investigator were illegal and improper.

Those allegations by attorney Mark Lane and Oliver Patterson, a former FBI informant, prompted some House members to ask that the committee's request for additional funding be delayed pending an investigation of its methods.

The Stokes report denied that investigator Conrad Baetz ever instructed Patterson to record the conversations of Ray's brother, Jerry, and said that staff members had instructed him not to do so on grounds such conversations could not be used as evidence.

"Apparently Patterson...elected to record certain conversations on his own," the report said.

It said that Patterson did obtain samples of Jerry Ray's hair in an attempt to learn if it matched unidentified human hair found near the scene of Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination in Memphis, Tenn., in April 1968.

The Stokes report did not say whether the samples matched but did assert that obtaining it from a bathroom used by Jerry Ray was "most appropriate" and an entirely legal investigative technique.

The report denied Patterson, a former FBI informant, ever was paid for his services other than to receive expense money.

And it said no effort was made to encourage him to give false testimony as he has claimed.

"Based on all available information and evidence, the committee is satisfied that the allegations of Oliver Patterson are not founded on fact and that no unlawful or improper conduct has been engaged in by members of the staff," the Stokes report said.

The report said that in mid-April of this year, while Patterson in his undercover role was sharing a motel room in Washington with Jerry Ray, he asked committee investigators if he should go through Ray's effects "for documents pertinent to the committee's investigation."

"Patterson was told immediately and repeatedly that he should not engage in such conduct," the report maintained.

But it said that on the following day Patterson told investigators "that he had indeed rummaged through Jerry Ray's belongings and discovered a map that he thought would be of interest..."

The report said investigators at first told Patterson not to take the map and not to show it to them.

But it said later conversations with Patterson indicated that "the map suggested an active plan by James Earl Ray to escape..."

It said that given this new information the committee "felt compelled" to ask Patterson to obtain a copy of the map so that law enforcement officials could be alerted.

Farm Women Set State Meeting Here

More than 200 members of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) will be meeting at Lubbock's South Park Inn Friday and Saturday for the group's second annual state convention.

WIFE, which consists mainly of farmers' wives, is an organization endeavoring to inform the public about the importance of the family farm and about the problems faced by the American farmer.

Registration for the convention begins at 9 a.m. Friday at the South Park Inn and will be followed by a tour of the Texas Tech Textile Research Center.

The first session, which gets underway at 1 p.m. Friday, will include a welcome by Lubbock Mayor Dirk West and an address by Betty Majors of Osceola, Neb., national WIFE president. Darlene Born of Follett, state WIFE president, will chair the session.

The day's activities will culminate with a 7 p.m. banquet featuring Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown, State Sen. Kent Hance will introduce Brown to the gathering. Humorist Eddy Nicholson will provide the evening's entertainment.

Saturday's agenda will include a 9:30 a.m. speech by Lon Mann, president of the National Cotton Council, while a speech by U.S. Sen. John Tower will keynote the luncheon.

State and national officers will be elected during Saturday afternoon's business session.

The Gaines County WIFE chapter is host for the convention.

Nineteen states, most of them in the West, have WIFE organizations.

Crewman Jumps Ship — Literally

GALVESTON (AP) — Jodie Ray Dutton got tired of his job as a fishing boat crewman but he couldn't walk off the job — so he swam off.

Coast Guard officers said Dutton jumped into the Gulf of Mexico about five miles east of the Galveston jetties and started swimming for shore.

Authorities said Dutton was picked up by the Dutch tanker Stella Nova as the captain of the fishing boat came alongside and pleaded unsuccessfully for him to return to work.

Town Caught Speeding In Political Feud Zone

SOLDIER SUMMIT, Utah (AP)—This town of 23 persons — known to the outside world mainly as a speed trap — is caught up in a genuine political feud, with allegations of nepotism, misused revenues and city council meetings held on the sly at Al's Cafe.

blames the news media for his troubles — has been convicted of assaulting a tavern owner, and has been charged, together with former Justice of the Peace Thomas Brackenberry, with witness tampering during the assault trial.

peachment" against the other four council members, claims money from speeding tickets cannot be accounted for. She also accuses the council of violating Utah's open meetings law by meeting in secret at Al's Cafe. She said the only way she knows of a meeting is "when I see them congregate over at the cafe."

month. Councilwoman Wauneta Schade, the mayor's wife, said that meeting notices are posted two weeks in advance on the cafe's cork-faced bulletin board. Reminded that no such notice is up for next week's meeting, she replied: "It must have slipped down."

The mayor and his wife deny all allegations. The fifth council member, Carol Brackenberry, wife of the former justice of the peace, sides with the mayor's faction. Meanwhile, Anderson, who has taken a leave of absence, says, "they'll convict me of the felony and fine me good on the assault conviction. I'll probably go to jail."

They (newsmen) were out to get me and they got me. I was tried and convicted by the media." Anderson claims the feud began because Larry Freeman, who operates the town's only service station, wanted to be police chief. Freeman's wife, Eileen, told reporters that was "a lie and I don't care if you quote me or not."

FEUD — Police Chief Roger Anderson and Councilwoman Verna Belcher are caught up in a political feud in the tiny town of Soldier Summit, Utah. (AP Laserphoto)

Soldier Summit, on U.S. 6 about 90 miles southeast of Salt Lake City, has long had a reputation as a speed trap. Six of the town's 23 residents are on the police force.

Mrs. Schade also said that Mrs. Belcher has never asked for an accounting of the speeding fines. Mrs. Belcher said the money is being spent without the full council's consent; that the police force and the mayor's daughter — Councilwoman Ruth Rhinehart — are overpaid for part-time work; and that the town's sole patrol car is used for personal business by policemen and as a school bus for the mayor's grandchildren.

Poisoned Wine Fatal To Wife Of Politician

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Bottles of poisoned wine were given to three leaders of a major political party and one man's wife died immediately after tasting it, police reported Wednesday.

Police said the bottles, with identical messages handwritten on white gift cards, appeared at the doorsteps of National Party leaders Carlos Pereyra, Luis Lacalle de Herrera and Mario Heber Usher on Aug. 29 and 30.

"On Thursday the 31st at midday let us toast the fatherland in its new era," said the message, which bore the signature "M.D.N."

Uruguay's civilian parties have been barred from political activity since the 1973 military takeover. The moderately conservative Nationals, one of Uruguay's two major parties, have repeatedly called for a return to democracy.

There were reports at the time that ailing President Aparicio Mendez, 73-year-old figurehead of the military regime, would soon resign. Officials have since denied the reports.

Police said none of the three men drank the wine, but Heber Usher's wife swallowed some Tuesday and died minutes later.

The wine in the bottle and the one given to Pereyra contained traces of fosdrin, a powerful pesticide, injected through the cork, police said.

Lacalle said he opened his bottle to drink the wine, but his wife became suspicious and poured it down the drain.

Interior Minister Hugo Linares Brum said police would investigate the crime, which he blamed on unidentified terrorists trying to "undermine the foundations of our country and put an end to public tranquility."

Defector Pontecorvo Pays Visit To Native Italy

ROME (AP) — Bruno Pontecorvo, a top nuclear physicist who defected to the Soviet Union in 1950, returned Wednesday to his native Italy and said he had never worked on an atomic bomb.

"I'm a very peaceful man," said the 65-year-old Pontecorvo, tanned and smartly dressed in a blue-gray suit and brown tie. "I never give war games to my grandchild Sasha."

Pontecorvo came to Rome to attend a two-day scientific forum honoring the 70th birthday of Italian scientist Edoardo Amaldi, his former partner on a high-powered nuclear research team assembled by Nobel laureate Enrico Fermi in the 1930s.

The Italian weekly Domenica del Corriere said Pontecorvo "is the one who brought the secret of the H-bomb to the Soviet Union," but the scientist never has been charged with espionage.

"I'll tell you a secret," he told reporters at Rome's airport. "I have never worked on the atomic, hydrogen or any other bomb in the West, in Russia or in China."

Pontecorvo took up Soviet citizenship in 1952, joined the Communist Party three years later and changed his last name to Maximovic, after his father, Massimo.

He said he was "very moved and very happy" to be back in Italy after 28 years and hoped to return again.

Pontecorvo's sisters Giuliana and Laura greeted him at the airport and his brother, Gillo, a leftist film director whose works include "The Battle of Algiers," led the group to a waiting car.

When Fermi's group was disbanded in 1936 because of Fascist anti-semitism, Pontecorvo, a Jew, went to Paris and in 1940 to the United States where Fermi and Emilio Segre, another Nobel laureate, had settled.

After doing research for oil firms in the United States, Pontecorvo moved to Canada in 1943 and became a member of the joint British-Canadian Atomic Research Commission and the Chalk River atomic project, working with Alan Nunn May in the Chalk River project. Nunn May was convicted of espionage in Canada in 1946.

Pontecorvo later moved to Britain, where he took up citizenship and started work in 1949 at the Harwell atomic center. Klaus Fuchs, who also worked there, was convicted of spying in 1950.

Pontecorvo resigned after 18 months to become a professor at the University of Liverpool, but he never assumed the post. Instead, in the summer of 1950, he took his Swedish wife Marianne and their three children on an Italian holiday and soon disappeared. He was reported to have flown to Stockholm, then on to Helsinki en route to Leningrad.

Domenica del Corriere said Pontecorvo left Harwell because, after the arrest of Fuchs, he came under tight surveillance and could no longer pass on information to the Soviets.

Pontecorvo, who has been awarded the Order of Lenin, is director of a research laboratory at Dubna. He will deliver a paper on neutrons to the forum at the University of Rome.

He was accompanied to Italy by a fellow member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, Georgi Zaitsepin.

Exotic Birds Returned

After Extortion Attempt

NEW YORK (AP) — Back with their screeching companions in "The Parrot Jungle," Heckel and Hester were billing and cooing again Wednesday, feathers unruffled after being bird-napped.

Heckel and Hester are breeding scarlet macaws, worth $15,000 as a producing set. Along with five other parrots worth another $9,000, they were taken Tuesday from the parrot store of Steve Kates in Bayside, Queens.

The valuable birds, five of them Kates' personal pets, allegedly were used by a disgruntled former employee in what Kates called a $10,000 extortion attempt.

The ex-employee, Nikolaj Vissokovsky, claimed he was only trying to get back money that Kates owed him, according to Detective Alvin Simon. Simon arrested Vissokovsky outside the store Tuesday night when he showed up to meet Kates, presumably to deal back the birds.

Vissokovsky, 23, of College Point, was held for arraignment on charges of robbery, grand larceny and possession of stolen property.

An acquaintance who accompanied him to the meeting, Roger Horan, 32, was arrested also and accused of menacing and conspiracy, Simon said.

The birds were recovered unharmed from Vissokovsky's apartment where they were wildly happy to see Kates.

Besides the prized breeders, the recovered birds included a blue and gold macaw, named Candy, which Simon called "a real beauty." Kates described Candy as a show bird which has performed for Princess Grace of Monaco, and made pizza commercials for television.

Also taken was Frosty, a cockatoo; Baby, a hyacinth macaw, and two non-pets, unnamed yellow nape Amazons that were part of the store's stock.

Kates, 26, of Queens, said he fired Vissokovsky's last month when the employee returned from a purchasing trip to Honduras that resulted in a loss of several thousand dollars. But Vissokovsky said Kates still owed him money for expenses incurred on the trip and for back salary.

Kates said Vissokovsky took the birds then demanded $10,000 for their safe return. In the ensuing dickering Kates said Vissokovsky first asked for Kates' foreign

Headaches Bother Artist After Fall

PALMA, Majorca (AP) — Spanish surrealist painter Joan Miro was reported suffering from strong headaches Wednesday as a result of a fall at his studio 10 days ago.

Attending doctors urged Miro to rest, but the artist said he will return to work next week to complete preparations for an exhibition of his works at Paris' Pompidou Center in October.

King Juan Carlos bestowed the Grand Cross of Isabel La Catolica Order on Miro and opened an exhibition of 100 of his best-known works when Miro turned 85.

Couple Switches Theme

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Most people save their money to travel, but Robert and Cheryl Tennes earn their money on the road and take their vacations at home. They're professional movers.

Crossing the United States under contract with the Bekins moving company, they spend most of their time in the cab of their 18-wheel rig, complete with sleeping accommodations.

They shower at truck stops, eat at restaurants where they know the menus by heart and occasionally yearn to get home to the house her mother maintains for them in Stockton.

"We save all our money just to come home," said Cheryl.

But being professional travelers does have its twists. Although they are only in their 20s, they already wonder what they will do when they retire.

"We've seen everything," Cheryl said.

Liquor Vote Challenges Long Drouth

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina voters get a chance this week to approve liquor-by-the-drink sales in their communities after 70 years of statewide prohibition.

Charlotte and surrounding Mecklenburg County will vote Friday in the first test of the state's new local option law for mixed drinks. Within a week, three smaller locales will hold their own referendums.

While neighboring states have adopted liquor by the drink in recent years, North Carolina has held out, with only beer and wine sales and "brown-bagging" with liquor bought at state-owned stores permissible.

The mixed-drink issue has been debated for years. Until the state General Assembly passed the local-option bill in June, North Carolina stood with Oklahoma as the only states without some form of mixed-drink legislation.

In Charlotte, both sides are highly organized, drawing thousands of dollars in contributions and producing slick campaign advertisements.

Issues have ranged from whether mixed drinks will help draw tourists and conventions to whether supporters of liquor by the drink are risking the wrath of God.

"You watch whoever's involved in the campaign (for mixed drinks) and see what happens to them," warns Henderson Belk, a leader of the dries and a member of a wealthy family that operates department stores in the Southeast.

Jerry Green, a local political strategist running the wet campaign, contends that selling mixed drinks allows better control of consumption than brown bagging.

And wets stand behind mixed drinks as a way to draw tourists and conventions to the business-oriented city of Charlotte.

"Basically we have tried to ignore that (Belk's) kind of emotionalism and stick with the facts," Green says.

That draws a quick reply from the Rev. Coy Privette, a Baptist minister who is Belk's ally in the dry campaign.

"To say this is not a moral issue is not reality. The very fact that you have to control liquor makes it an emotional issue. You don't control things that are good," says Privette.

Mecklenburg County voters have twice approved mixed-drink legislation, in 1971 and 1973. But the 1971 measure was declared unconstitutional before the first drink could be poured, and the 1973 vote was in a statewide referendum which was defeated by more than 2-to-1.

Referendums have also been scheduled in Southern Pines, a golf resort town, Orange County, the county of Chapel Hill and the University of North Carolina, and the mountain resort town of Black Mountain.

Texas GOP, Demo Politicos Offer Views On State Presidential Primary

AUSTIN (AP) — Chairman Ray Barnhart of the Texas Republican Party said Wednesday he hoped the predominantly Democratic Legislature would not be "so crass" as to try to stop the GOP from having a presidential primary in 1980.

Carrin Patman, a member of the state and national Democratic committees, said most Democratic party leaders are opposed to a presidential primary because national party rules "are designed to produce a 'winner-take-all'."

She also said it would not be in the best interests of the voters to allow one party to hold a presidential primary when the other does not.

"The same system should apply equally to both parties," she said.

Barnhart and Mrs. Patman testified before the House Subcommittee on Presidential and General Primaries.

The subcommittee tentatively set a late September hearing to write its report to the 1979 Legislature.

Texas held its first state-financed presidential primary in 1976, with Jimmy Carter taking 92 of the state's 98 delegates. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, captured the other six.

In the Republican primary, Ronald Reagan swamped Gerald Ford by nearly 150,000 votes and won all 96 delegates.

The state law setting up the primary expired after it was over.

Barnhart, a Reagan supporter, said the state GOP "has every intention" of amending its rules in convention Saturday to provide for a 1980 presidential primary.

"I hope the Legislature — though dominated by another party — will not be so crass as to deny a large segment of the population their constitutional right of choice," added Barnhart, a former state representative from Pasadena.

"I feel very strongly that one political party should not dictate terms to another political party," Barnhart said.

Asked if the GOP would attempt to hold a primary even if the Legislature failed to enact a primary law, Barnhart replied:

"We shall... despite any jackleg decision by a clerk in the secretary of state's office which says we cannot."

Mrs. Patman said Texas Democratic leaders would prefer "fair-share representation" to the "winner-take-all" procedure that would result if new national Democratic primary rules are followed.

Asked if she would oppose a Democratic primary even if the Republicans hold one, Mrs. Patman said she would.

"I'm moving away from the idea that primaries are so great," she said.

No Rainfall Seen For South Plains

If beauty is in the eyes of the beholder, some South Plains residents may be disappointed today: skies again should be clear to partly cloudy and temperatures are expected to be warm.

That may be beautiful weather to you and me, but for rain buffs and homeowners imploring the clouds for a little moisture, it's got to be disappointing news.

Nonetheless, there's no mention of rain in the forecast today, and the weatherman says as much as .30 of an inch of moisture could evaporate under sunny skies today.

Temperatures today are expected to range from an early-morning low near 62 to a mid-afternoon high around 85 degrees.

Winds are expected to be southerly, shifting occasionally to the southeast at 10 to 15 mph.

Humidity levels should range from 70 percent in the morning to a dry 35 percent by this afternoon.

Despite a dry, local forecast, the weatherman says pockets of rain may be scattered throughout the state today, with the exception of north central and northeast Texas.

Leaders' Wardrobes Get Dressing Down

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU

PRIME MINISTER VOERSTER

PRESIDENT GISCARD D'ESTAING

PRESIDENT CARTER

LONDON (AP) — Two British clothing organizations say President Carter's wardrobe, unlike his cheerful smile, is dull and that it's a pity. Other world leaders also take a dressing-down for drabness.

The report, by the Clothing Manufacturers' Federation and the Shirt, Collar and Tie Manufacturers' Federation, had high praise only for President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany.

Most world leaders, the report said, know nothing of the importance of dressing well and should consider hiring somebody who does to advise them.

The wardrobe of Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa finished at the bottom of the list.

The report said Carter's clothes are "surprisingly dull — he should try to make his clothes as cheerful as his smile."

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada was taken to task because his clothes are too cheerful, "too boyishly exuberant." Giscard d'Estaing, however, has "a superb sense of style and knows exactly what suits him. He dresses with a sense of occasion and obviously does not put on the first thing that reaches his hand each morning."

Schmidt, said the report, "is a good stylist and a complete contrast to the dull and ordinary way in which many German men dress."

Vorster was described as having "complete and utter disregard for clothes: a classic example of how a political leader ought not to dress."

In the same league was President Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Union. "He may have abandoned the awful Stalin style, but he ought to have learned by now that a touch of elegance is not a sign of bourgeois decadence," said the report.

The report said that begging for votes "does not mean that a would-be premier must be garbed in the outfit of a mendicant. Poverty of ideas may be forgiven a man, but lack of taste never will."

The report said, "Politicians are frightened to show a bit of flash, in case electors think they have been up to all kinds of tricks."

On the sartorial splendor, or lack of it, of other world leaders, the report had this to say:

—Prime Minister James Callaghan of Britain is a middle-of-the-road dresser, a cut above most of his cabinet and opposition rivals.

—Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan shows a welcome sign of breaking away from the dark suit, white shirt and neat somber tie once regarded in his country as the badge of sobriety and stability.

—President Anwar Sadat of Egypt has come on strong recently in the sartorial stakes. He obviously appreciates the value of clothes in projecting a modern image, especially in his choice of ties.

—Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore proves that the twin of East and West do actually meet — at least in the wardrobe. He is not afraid of a bit of dash and color.

'Lifeline' TV Series To Portray 'Real' Doctors

NEW YORK (AP)—NBC describes its new "Lifeline" program as a "non-fiction series about the professional and private lives of real doctors." But hold on.

It's neither a tacky attempt by NBC to revive the hospital drama that flourished in the '60s with the likes of "Ben Casey" and "Dr. Kildare," nor another soapy effort to capitalize on the anguish and suffering that accompanies a doctor's day. To be sure, NBC is after an audience, and the "real doctors" approach is at least something new. The aim, said the series' producer, Alfred Kelman, is "to portray the high drama of medicine in action, with doctors and patients facing life and death."

Kelman has the credentials for the difficult assignment; he was instrumental in production of "The Body Human" series of medical specials. And the choice for the "star" of the first show in the series, to be broadcast Thursday evening, could hardly have been a better one.

Dr. Judson Randolph, surgeon-in-chief at the Children's Hospital of the National Medical Center in Washington, is a slender, soft-spoken man whose concern for his young patients is an unspoken theme of the program's premiere.

"We hear so much about the shortcomings of the health care system in this country, and there are some real shortcomings, that it was my hope that the consumer would see in the program that there are many, many in the profession doing their best, with the patients' best interests in mind," he said.

Randolph said he was skeptical when first approached by the program's producers, but was assured by Kelman's background and expertise and the reputation of one of the show's co-producers, Dr. Robert E. Fuiz.

He said the cameraman, soundman and their assistants who accompanied him on his rounds were "professional and unobtrusive."

"I was surprised," Randolph said, "that after the first day or so, everything was so natural."

Randolph is followed as he treats an infant in immediate need of sophisticated surgery, a 15-year-old boy with severe abdominal pain, a 9-year-old girl thought to have a growth in her lung.

"Whenever something inappropriate to film came up, or an emotional situation, the film people were very considerate and privacy was respected," the doctor said.

He said his routine was filmed "pretty much as it is. We didn't wait for 'good' days, when something dramatic was happening."

"There was a lot of concern for one of the babies on whom I operated, and in fact that concern was toned down a bit."

"Nothing was spared as far as the baby's care was concerned. I had grave fears for his survival, and a little of that came through, and I guess that is dramatic. But my middle of the night distress is not evident."

The "personal" aspect of "Lifeline" includes scenes of Randolph strumming the guitar and singing with his family and playing poker with non-doctor friends. For the TV viewer, the "personal" scenes do little more than break the hospital tension.

Randolph said he anticipates criticism from some in the medical profession for his role in "Lifeline," but believes "There has of the program outweighs any adverse reaction."

"There has always been, through no fault of anyone, mystery surrounding the practice of medicine," he said. "And in this day of the informed consumer, there are more and more attempts to lift those shrouds. I think this is another good way."

"I hope that people who view this series, and they will see some goods and some bads, see that doctors really do care."

Maryland Children Study Culture

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — Cathy Tombaugh knelt intently in front of the Navajo rug frame, pulling yarn she had spun and dyed through a web of threads, weaving an intricate pattern.

In the next room, several young boys went through the paces of a traditional dance of the Plains Indians, while another group put the finishing touches on an 18-foot teepee.

The Harford County schoolchildren, who were preparing for a Saturday night pow-wow, were finishing three weeks of a summertime project designed to teach them Indian culture.

But unlike many other youngsters who study the subject, these students have a special interest. Like several thousand others in Maryland's public schools, they are Indians.

The programs are funded by the federal Indian Education Act of 1969. Maryland's participation began in 1972, when state education officials identified the Indian populations in a number of areas.

Lloyd Elm of the Office of Indian Education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the programs are designed "to meet the special educational needs of the Indian children because they are Indian."

Elm, who supervises the Indian education programs in states east of the Mississippi, said the emphasis has changed in the past few years.

"There has been a movement away from concern with academic achievement," he said, "and now there is more concern with teaching the kids how to cope with some of the pressures related to being Indian, and being in public school."

"We need to get away from the stereotyping of the Indian as the 'noble savage,' and give them a more positive self-image," said Elm, an Onondaga Indian from Syracuse, N.Y.

"These kids have greater cultural needs than kids on the reservation," he continued, "because they aren't getting the constant reinforcement of being with their own people."

The five Maryland programs use several approaches in trying to help Indian students. Some are developing educational materials to supplement those in the school systems, while others are providing tutoring or cultural enrichment programs.

The significant thing about each of the programs, however, is that the children's parents determine how and where the money is spent. A project coordinator works with the parent committee and federal officials to draw up a program acceptable to all parties.

In Montgomery County, for example, a cultural center has been established to accommodate about 235 students representing 40 tribes.

Marcie DeVine, the project coordinator, said the students learn about the lifestyles and customs of various tribes and study arts and crafts such as Pueblo pottery, Sioux beadwork and Navajo rug-making.

Some of the high school students prefer not to be set apart as Indians, she said, but most of the younger children are receptive to the program.

In Baltimore, the emphasis is divided between academic achievement and cultural enrichment. Coordinator Tonya Bundari said more than 1,100 pupils are enrolled in the program, which operates both a tutorial project and a cultural center.

The main focus of the Harford County project, which serves about 95 students, is the summer workshop. This year, project coordinator Edna Goshorn brought in a variety of experts to teach Indian crafts.

Voters League Slates Meetings

Lloyd Watts, chief Lubbock County probation officer, will discuss facilities and programs for the Lubbock Regional Detention Center at a League of Women Voters luncheon Tuesday.

The public is invited to the luncheon, at which Steve Robinson of the Texas Youth Council's planning department also will speak. He will discuss the council's community assistance program.

Lunch will be served at St. John's United Methodist Church at 11:45 a.m., and the speakers will begin at 12:30 p.m. Reservations can be made by calling the league office.

The league also will sponsor "At the Scene" unit discussions during September. Discussions, which will center on juvenile corrections, will be held at various sites involving youth corrections.

Local Girl Charged With Murder

A teen-aged girl was charged Wednesday with murder in connection with Monday's stabbing death of Dessie Nellows Ward.

Named in the charge was Bobbie Lavener Toler of 809 David Ave. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy set bond at $5,000.

Asst. Dist. Atty. John Fouts, who filed the complaint, said there apparently had been some confusion about the age of the suspect, who was first listed by police as 16.

Fouts said he was told by police, however, that the suspect, according to her birth certificate, is 17, the age at which a person is considered an adult in Texas for purposes of criminal proceedings.

Mrs. Ward, 24, of 2807 Ivory Ave., was killed about 6:30 p.m. Monday during an altercation in the 800-block of David Avenue. She reportedly died from a single stab wound to the chest.

The victim, according to witnesses, was driving by a residence when words were exchanged. Witnesses said Mrs. Ward got out of the car and approached another woman, and that the two women struggled before Mrs. Ward was killed.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Not a good day for whatever has to do with the lighter side of life. Gain the good will of one in power by showing an intelligent interest in an arrangement that will be advantageous to both of you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get busy with plans involving a bigwig that will help you both to make big progress now. Settle a practical matter with mate and be happier.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) good time to work out a policy matter with a partner and get everything on an even keel. If the present situation bores you, be on the alert for bigger opportunities ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Seek the cooperation of a co-worker and get your work done. Try to understand what your family desires and establish more harmony.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Bring your finest talents to the attention of a bigwig who can help you get ahead faster. Show more interest in a good friend and gain favors you want. Don't waste time foolishly.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Look to a good family tie for assistance with a financial problem and get good results. Make a better plan to get yourself in a better position all around.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Discuss aims with good friends and gain their cooperation so that you gain them more easily. Find a better system for handling business matters more intelligently, speedily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to what a person in private life has to suggest so that you can live a more abundant life. Be alive, ambitious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get together with good friends. Think out what your true desires are and how best to attain them. Steer clear of a known troublemaker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can now contact a bigwig you know and get the advice and support you need. Be careful where credit is concerned and improve your public image.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Elevate your consciousness and widen your horizons. Work toward worthwhile aims. Plan a trip with a good friend and add to present abundance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Go through with business activities that can improve your position in life. Consult with an expert so that you can increase production. Avoid one who is a worrywart.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A partner can show you how to get ahead in a project if you ask for advice. Try to be of help to others also so their burdens are lightened.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the ability to plan a course of action to the minutest detail and then carry through precisely and successfully. Make romantic happiness in this lifetime.

'No Money Problems,' Hill Declares

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General John Hill said Wednesday he has "no money problems" and is in good shape for the general election, in which he is the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

Hill commented at a news conference called to announce his support by a new organization of elected county officials throughout the state.

The announcement was part of a full day of campaign activities before a $50-per-person fund-raising reception. Hill said about 2,500 persons were expected to attend and about 6,000 tickets had been sold.

"They tell me we have about $725,000 committed for the affair," Hill said. "If this is true, we have no money problems for this campaign. We will be able to carry out our planned $1.1 million campaign for the general election. We will stage a very competitive campaign during these last six weeks."

McLennan County Judge Bob L. Thomas said that "for the first time in the history of Texas politics, county officials across Texas have joined together to form a political committee to support a gubernatorial candidate. The political committee, known as "CHOOSE Hill," has been organized to harness the broad support of county officials for the election of John Hill as governor."

Thomas said that many of the county officials who will act as coordinators in the organization are presidents of statewide associations of county officials. However, he stressed that "each one is acting as an individual — not as a representative of their association. No attempt is being made to politicize these statewide associations."

The vice chairman of the organization is Ann Richards, Travis County commissioner. Garza County Judge Giles Dalby was made coordinator of non-urban counties, and Harris County Commissioner Tom Bass was named coordinator for urban counties.

Hill told the county officials present that "if we are going to meet the challenge of Proposition 13 of competency in government we are going to have to work together in every layer of government."

He promised the county officials two things. First, that he would not allow "programs to be motivated by the legislature that would increase the cost of government at the local level without providing financing." Second, that "you will always have input with me before a decision is made concerning local government."

Mother Credits Son For Survival After Air Crash

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands (AP) — A 10-year-old boy from Jersey City, N.J., was credited by his mother Wednesday with saving her life in the weekend crash of an amphibious plane that killed four persons.

"I never thought I could survive, because I couldn't swim," Mrs. Eko Wagner, 36, said in an interview in her hospital room here.

Mrs. Wagner said her son, Michael, helped her hang onto the wreckage of the plane until help arrived.

Charles Blair, husband of actress Maureen O'Hara and a famous pilot, was one of the four victims. Seven persons survived the crash and were rescued from the water.

The Wagners, with their sons Michael and David, 7, had been vacationing in St. Croix for a week when they decided to go on a one-day visit to neighboring St. Thomas and St. John.

Although it was to have been a short flight, Mrs. Wagner said she was excited, never having flown in a seaplane.

The excitement soon turned to fear, she said, adding that "the fuselage started to crack and the engine came out."

She said the passengers were calm before the plane hit the water.

Venon Scipio, 39, of St. Thomas, who died in the crash, told jokes as the passengers waited for Blair to give them emergency instructions, Mrs. Wagner said.

The seaplane hit the water, bounced twice, cracked open, and before she knew it she was in the water, Mrs. Wagner said. Then her older son approached her with a board to hold onto, but it was so "fragile and slim that a big wave swept it away."

The boy dragged her to the plane's wreckage "but I kept slipping and Michael kept coming and pushing me up."

Besides Blair and Scipio, others killed in the crash were identified as Jerry Jackson, 62, of Kansas, and Hazel Faye Bell, 33, of Englewood, Calif.

Findings Fail To Prove Laetrile Effectiveness

BOSTON (AP) — A federal search of medical records for examples of Laetrile curing cancer turned up six cases in which people got better after taking the controversial substance. But researchers said the findings do not prove that Laetrile is effective in treating cancer.

The results of the review, released Wednesday, will be used by the National Cancer Institute in deciding whether to begin human testing of Laetrile, the trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

Although at least 70,000 patients have been treated with Laetrile in the United States over the past two decades, researchers said only 93 cases were submitted for review.

The researchers emphasized that no conclusions about the benefits of Laetrile can be drawn from the study. Even in the six positive cases, they said, the patients' improvement could have been caused by other factors, such as their diet or "the unmeasurable ingredient of hope." "We were hoping to get many more cases so that we would have a better feel," said Dr. Neil M. Ellison, who directed the study for the National Cancer

Institute. "This certainly wasn't any overwhelming testimony to the supposed hundreds of cases out there that responded to Laetrile."

The federal research was published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The cancer institute's Decision Network Committee will meet Sept. 25 to decide whether to recommend human testing of Laetrile.

The 29-member committee's proposal will be sent to institute director Arthur Upton, who will make the final decision.

Advocates of Laetrile say thousands have been cured of cancer by the substance and urge that its use be legalized in the United States.

The Food and Drug Administration says Laetrile has not been proved safe and effective and prohibits its interstate shipment. However, on July 10, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver ruled that terminally ill cancer patients can legally receive Laetrile injections. In addition, 17 states have legalized its use.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said the new study does not provide any proof that Laetrile works.

"It is significant that so few people came forward with case histories of successes from Laetrile therapy in view of the claim that thousands of cancer victims have benefited from the use of this substance," Kennedy said. "The case review does not establish that any patient has benefited from Laetrile."

The cancer institute sent 455,000 letters to doctors and other health professionals requesting case records of patients who were helped by Laetrile.

From this, the agency received information on 93 patients, all of whom were reported to have responded well to Laetrile treatment.

The researchers threw out 26 cases because information about the treatment was sketchy. The rest were turned over to a panel of 12 cancer experts, which concluded that four showed "complete responses" and two "partial responses" to Laetrile.

Three other patients whose cancers had been removed remained free of the disease for longer periods than normal after taking Laetrile, they said.

"It is impossible to draw any definite conclusions about Laetrile's efficacy or even to draw any conclusions about the six cases that responded," Ellison said in an interview.

The researchers said there was no way to determine whether it was the Laetrile that made the patients better.

They wrote, "The patients treated with Laetrile were almost always given concomitant metabolic therapy, including substances that might be regarded as immune stimulants, as well as general supportive care measures such as improved diet, psychologic support and the unmeasurable ingredient of hope."

Local Governments Blamed For Burgeoning Tax Revolt

Because they failed to act on tax cuts for their constituents, local governments must shoulder much responsibility for the taxpayer revolt brewing nationwide.

This observation is made by George Break, professor of economics, University of California, Berkeley, and national coordinator of Courses by Newspaper's fall series "Taxation: Myths and Realities." The first article in this 15-part series will appear Sunday in The Avalanche-Journal.

"As increased assessments generated greater property tax revenues, local governments chose to initiate new programs rather than reduce the tax rate," Break points out.

"Failing to recognize voter discontent with the size of government, they expanded government and became the targets of taxpayer anger," he observes.

It appears that government, as well as property taxes, is the target of taxpayer discontent, Break notes.

"Opinion polls show people want both their tax bills and government to get a lot smaller," Break explains. "However, some people naively believe taxes can be cut without a reduction in government services."

As taxpayers take the initiative to set property tax ceilings, Break believes, local governments will turn increasingly to user charges, fees, and local income taxes.

User charges, based on benefits received, are generally viewed by tax experts as a fair levy," he points out. "However, many taxpayers may be surprised at the amount of this charge for such services as libraries and trash collection."

While local governments attempt to implement reduced budgets, they can expect little aid from the federal government unless cutbacks hurt low income persons, according to Break.

"The message to reduce government has been heard by Washington," he says. "They likely will act only to moderate the impact of reduced services to the poor and the elderly."

Federal assistance, made available only after a sizable number of states are forced to reduce spending, will take the form of direct payments to affected individuals or direct payments to local governments, Break adds.

Tax experts and public officials authored the articles for Courses by Newspaper under the direction of Break, an authority on intergovernmental fiscal relations.

The series' authors cover such topics as tax loopholes, Social Security financing, income tax reform, the impact of taxes on the economy, and alternatives to the property tax.

Dr. S.M. Kennedy, professor at Texas Tech, will instruct and coordinate the course. In addition to reading the newspaper articles, the course reader, and the study guide, two classes and an examination meeting are required to obtain credit. The reader and study guide will be available at the Texas Tech Bookstore for $9.95.

"Taxation: Myths and Realities" is a three-hour course listed in the University General Catalog as Humanities 230 under the Department of Philosophy. Persons interested in this course only have the option of taking it for regular residence credit or by correspondence. Persons taking the class by correspondence must attend the same three meetings as the other students, but should register for it at the Division of Continuing Education, Building X-15. The three meetings will be scheduled on Saturdays. Participants will be notified by mail of the times and places of the meetings.

For additional information on this course, contact D.M. McElroy, director of correspondence.

Courses by Newspaper was developed in 1973 by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The fall series, "Taxation: Myths and Realities," is the ninth in a continuing series prepared by Courses by Newspaper.

Previous courses have been offered by more than 1,100 newspapers with a combined circulation of approximately 25 million readers. An estimated 40,000 newspaper readers have earned college credit through the program, offered by more than 700 educational institutions.

World's Diabetics May Benefit From 'Human Insulin Factories'

DUARTE, Calif. (AP) — Scientists said Wednesday they have used man-made genes to change bacteria into living factories that produce human insulin — an achievement that could greatly benefit the world's 100 million diabetics.

The dramatic accomplishment fulfills a hope held out since the early days of recombinant DNA research: a controversial field that deals with the genetic messages, or heredity, of living things.

"This would be the first really useful product that has resulted from the research," said Dr. Arthur D. Riggs of the City of Hope National Medical Center here.

Riggs said the tiny factories hold the promise of better and probably cheaper insulin for diabetics, whose lives depend on daily injections of the hormone. But he said more refinements and testing are needed before the new insulin will be publicly available. It has not been tested on humans, although researchers are confident it will work.

City of Hope researchers collaborated with scientists from Genentech Inc., a private South San Francisco laboratory that funded the project. A spokesman said Genentech has applied for patents on the process, which includes several scientific advances and shortcuts.

The insulin work was built on a foundation laid late last year when City of Hope and the University of California-San Francisco announced they had built an artificial gene that ordered bacteria to produce a much simpler, less valuable, human hormone called somatostatin.

Similar procedures may now be used to create bacterial factories that could produce virtually any human hormone and many other medically important substances, said Dr. Keiichi Itakura, a molecular biologist at City of Hope.

Insulin, a vital hormone that governs the rate at which carbohydrates are burned to supply energy, is normally produced in the pancreas. The world's estimated 100 million diabetics don't produce enough natural insulin and many need regular supplements of insulin, now taken from the pancreas of cattle and pigs.

Interviewed before a news conference, the scientists said they created artificial genes that carry the chemical blueprint for human insulin. The genes were inserted into a type of common bacteria called E. coli, a well-studied organism and a favorite of researchers working with DNA, which is short for deoxyribonucleic acid.

When chemical on-off switches were added to the genes and switched on, the bacteria assembled the components of insulin from their own supply of chemicals.

The product, when extracted and purified, is chemically identical to the insulin produced by the human pancreas.

Riggs said the bacterial factories may prove a cheaper source of insulin "but we can't guarantee that. What we can guarantee is that it is a source of human insulin and human insulin has never been available before."

Genentech's David Goeddel said the researchers have billions of the insulin-producing E. coli bacteria suspended in two gallons of solution and they are producing insulin in small quantities.

Before the tiny pharmaceutical factories are actually producing usable quantities of insulin, he said, a large-scale technology must be developed and "it may take years to get that designed and working."

Pelicans Snatch Aussies' Wallets

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Two persons in the river town of Renmark have had their wallets snatched — not by pickpockets but by pelicans.

Police said a woman's wallet was plucked from her hand and swallowed by a pelican this week. Bystanders caught the bird but it took several hours to get it to cough up the wallet.

A man stroking a pelican last month wasn't as lucky — he dropped his wallet, the pelican snatched it and flew away.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell me about photophobia? Is this the same as photosensitivity? I've had eye trouble for a couple of years now and can't get at the cause. My eyes seem extremely sensitive to light. The pain gets almost unbearable and I can't enjoy the sunshine or even daylight anymore. — Mrs. P.S.

Photosensitivity and photophobia are unrelated. Photosensitivity is extreme reaction of the skin to sunlight. Photophobia is sensitivity of the eyes to any kind of light. You have the latter.

Light-skinned people are more prone to the photophobia. It is usually not significant and is corrected by using tinted spectacles or sunglasses when needed. However, unexplained, sudden photophobia such as yours should be investigated. It may represent an internal eye disorder.

One thinks of inflammation of the iris (iritis). The iris is the colored portion of the eye that controls the amount of light entering. Bright light constricts the pupil and stretches the iris. If the iris is inflamed, there can be great pain. Inflammation of the cornea may produce similar symptoms. Another possibility: unexplained eye pain of the kind you report might indicate a budding glaucoma.

Otherwise, if you have been examined by a specialist (as you tell me you have) and if these possibilities have been ruled out, you can lay your discomfort to extra sensitivity which can come with age as the eyes require more light to see. Some photophobia can follow cataract removal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm 62 years old. I'd like to know why I have problems if I don't douche every other day. I have an odor. I have a complete checkup every year. — Mrs. M.S.

It's possible you are overdoing the douching. The natural processes usually are sufficient to cleanse the area without aids. I suggest you at least give them a chance. For other leads see my booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." For a copy, send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. It's possible you are exaggerating the odor problem, a situation I encountered frequently in my practice.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a blood test and my doctor said I was a little anemic. Can you tell me what foods a person can eat when they are anemic? — Mrs. B.C.

It isn't that simple. The cause of the anemia (lack of sufficient red blood cells or iron) must be pinpointed. If it is an iron-deficiency anemia, then obviously foods rich in iron would be helpful; if of folic acid, then foods rich in that or supplements help. It's important to know if the anemia is caused by inadequate diet or by bleeding (as with women who may have heavy menstrual flow) or because of an error in the way the body utilizes the important blood-forming substances in the diet. Sometimes a woman may appear from tests to be a little anemic just after her period, and be normal the rest of the month.

So it's up to you to ask your doctor how serious he considers the test findings and what he recommends in your case and, yes, dietary protein can help hair health.

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've had it with your chewing out brides for not writing thank-you notes after a wedding.

If my memory hasn't failed me it seems like a wedding gift is for both the bride and the groom. If both are working full-time (and in most cases these days they are) the groom should get off his duff and write half the thank-you notes. — Fair Is Fair

Dear Fair: You have a good point — one I didn't think of, nor did a single reader other than you.

I have never received a thank-you note from a groom but after this column appears I just might. You may have started a national trend. Congratulations!

er where drinks are served, when we arrive they say, "By the way, Ed, you're the bartender." They don't ask him, they TELL him.

Why don't these people realize that tending bar is work? When we go to a social event my husband would like to be a guest — not an unpaid employee. This has happened to us so many times we've lost count. Please tell us how to put an end to it. — Need A Tactful Way Out

Dear Need: The next time you are invited to a family affair where you think drinks will be served, tell the hostess, when you accept the invitation, "I hope you aren't counting on Ed to tend bar. He'd like to be a guest for a change."

That will settle the matter before it reaches the problem stage. After you make the announcement five or six times, they'll get the message and Ed won't be imposed on any more.

Dear Ann: My husband was a professional bartender for 10 years. He got out of the business because he was just plain tired of it.

The correct saying is, "the more firma, the less terra (terror)."

I read your column regularly and take pride in telling my friends that you come from Sioux City and I knew you way back when.

Do you remember this name from the past? — Martin S. Kosberg (St. Louis)

Dear Martin: I remember it well. Thanks for the correction. Of course you are right. "The more firma, the less terra."

Dear Ann Landers: I hate to admit it, but I'm ashamed of my mother. She gets ready for bed right after supper, takes her teeth out and walks around barefoot.

Her favorite outfit is my father's ratty old bathrobe. If she feels like rolling up her hair in rags or putting a mudpack on her face, she does it.

I've asked Mom a dozen times if she'd mind looking presentable when I have friends over. Her answer is, "I don't have to put on the dog for your fancy friends."

Nobody else's mother goes around like that when company comes over. Am I unreasonable? — Bothered

Dear B: Too bad your mom considers keeping her teeth in her head and wearing shoes "putting on the dog." But she's your mother — no matter what — and you shouldn't apologize for her.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet: "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I went to a stainless steel pots and pans party. The food cooked in the stainless steel was delicious, but I found it hard to believe everything the salesman said. He told us cooking with aluminum utensils was dangerous — could actually poison you — and he made cast-iron pots sound absolutely horrible.

What I want to know is: Is this true, why are these types of cookware allowed on the market? — Mrs. W. Wold Sounds to me as if the salesman was handing you a line of hogwash!

While stainless steel pots and pans are fantastic to prepare food in, so are many other types of utensils.

According to the Food and Drug Administration, cookware made of aluminum is perfectly safe. The grayish substance sometimes seen on pots and pans is harmless.

In fact, aluminum compounds are even used in food ingredients with no ill effects at all!

Cast-iron pots and pans have been around for generations and I'm told the iron absorbed into foods while cooking is actually beneficial.

Of course, the cast iron needs to be kept seasoned, otherwise some foods may turn dark and unappealing-looking when cooked in them, but it's not going to hurt you.

And while we're on the subject of utensil safety, let's talk about some other types...

Many of you have also asked about using pans with non-stick coatings after the coatings have been partially chipped or worn off.

Again, according to the Food and Drug Administration, this coating is an inert substance and when chipped or scraped off poses no health problems upon use.

Glass cookware is okay, but something you want to watch out for is containers galvanized with zinc.

Foods which are acidic, such as tomatoes and most fruits, should not be cooked in them and are potentially dangerous when eaten, as zinc salts may be formed which can be toxic.

Cookware covered with copper on the outside is not hazardous, as the copper doesn't come in contact with the food.

However, as with zinc, when cooking acidic foods in pans made with copper on the inside, copper salts can be formed which when eaten, may upset the stomach.

Even though I have answered your question "in a few thousand words," honey-pot, hopefully we have all learned a little about pots and pans.

Just don't be taken in by high-pressure salesmen. Believe me, I'm not knocking their product, but "for real," folks, your food is not going to be poisoned or polluted by cooking it in pots and pans made of something other than stainless steel. — Heloise

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED

NEW YORK — Gee, what a peach of a pair.

He's Larry Weber, who's known as bartender and family patriarch Barney Dandy on NBC's "The Doctors." Contrary to his screen image, which is often slightly shabby and well, "common," Larry is always impeccably groomed and dressed. He's a "dapper dan" gentleman. She's Paulette Weber, a pert, blonde, French "wowsy" whom Larry refers to as "his French connection." Together Larry and Paulette have not only embarked on marital bliss but also on a successful nightclub and recording career.

Paulette had been orphaned before she was 13, but mothered two younger brothers and two nephews in a small French village during her teens. After contracting and overcoming typhoid during World War II, Paulette came to America and met Larry, who was singing in a church. Three weeks later the couple were wed.

Larry comes from a family of entertainers. His father was a vaudeville clown, hooper and minstrel, and mom was a Ziegfeld girl and silent movie queen. Larry starred and sang on and off-Broadway, everything from "Applause" opposite Lauren Bacall, to "Plaza Suite" with his soap castmate Peggy Cass (Sweeney), to the "Three Penny Opera." Between stage stings Larry played featured roles on half a dozen daytime serials. But he abandoned entertainment for a three-year period during which he sought inner fulfillment through religion. After he found Paulette, who shared his search for God, Larry joined "The Doctors" and then devised a touring musical act with his Mrs.

The couple's most recent accomplishment is a 45-rpm recording. Side one features Larry singing "My Way" with the altered lyric "His Way" to express Larry's religious awakening. Side two features Paulette singing the pop hit "Freedom Come, Freedom Go." It may be a cliché, but the Webers truly do make beautiful music together. And with their supercharged and exuberant personalities, they make an irresistible love combination. Now, if only Barney on "The Doctors" could find as much happiness as Larry Weber, everything would be peachy. Tune in tomorrow; perhaps Sweeney will show him "The Way."

SHORT TAKES: NEW TO "Guiding Light" are Burton Cooper as Dr. Mark Hamilton, the handsome intern who's been setting nurse Katie Parker's heart afire, and Marcus Smythe as Gordon Middleton, the estranged husband of Amanda, played by Kathleen Cullen. "GL" is Burton's first serial, but Kathleen appeared briefly as a nurse on "One Life to Live" several weeks before joining "GL."

ACTOR GORDON THOMPSON had to mix the offer of a major role on the New York based serial, "Ryan's Hope," because of the complicated work laws that existed between Canada, where Gordon resides, and the U.S. As it turned out, though, Gordon didn't have to export his talent. He was cast in the Toronto-based syndicated serial, "High Hopes." Gordon, who lives with his wife, actress Maureen Fitzgerald, in the heart of Toronto, doesn't have a long-distance commuting problem to get to the set of "HH" where he portrays the role of reckless, rebellious heartthrob Michael Stewart Jr.

DISTINCTIVE STYLING — Distinctive, classic styling and elegance dominate this new traditional love seat and sofa combination. Graceful, soft lines accent their crescent shapes. And notice how the handsome border print along the base rails is repeated on the front of seat cushions and arm sides, thus giving the pair a custom tailored look. Upholstering also includes the use of outline quilting of the floral pattern on the loose back pillows and reversible seat cushions. This elegant print features a breathtaking coloration in tones of red with hues of blue and white and is 50 per cent polyester.

Point count made it easy for everyone to reach six notrump in a regional tournament. North added his 17 points to the 16-18 shown by South's notrump and came up with a 33-35 point total. Enough for six and not enough for seven.

The slam is a good one but the combination of a bad club break and a misplaced queen of diamonds caused some declarers to come up one trick short.

Those who counted the hand carefully made the slam on a squeeze. The first tricks were heart won in dummy, club to the king and ace, second heart won in dummy.

At this point the alert declarers started to prepare a count of the West hand. West had shown six hearts. Three spade leads came next and West followed there. A club to the jack showed West with two clubs. He could not hold more than two diamonds, so the ace and king of diamonds were cashed next. West followed again, whereupon all South had to do was to cash his last two high hearts, discard the 10 of diamonds from dummy and claim. East had to unguard the club 10 to keep the queen of diamonds.

Public Opinion Shifts On Defense Balance

By LOUIS HARRIS

Against a background of heightened tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union, a 61-31 percent majority of Americans continues to feel that this country's military defense system is as strong or stronger than that of the Russians. Back in 1976, a slightly higher 64-27 percent felt this way.

There is evidence, however, that the number of people who think it is necessary for America to have a stronger military defense system than the Russians has declined in the last few years. In 1976, 48 percent felt it was necessary for U.S. forces to be more powerful. Now, 43 percent hold this view. During the same period, there has been a rise in the number who opt for military parity with the Russians, up from 42 to 45 percent.

Of course, there are sharp differences among various groups as to how strong our defenses should be:

—On a regional basis, both the South and the East tend to feel that we must make our defense system stronger than that of the Russians. The Midwest and West reject this idea, clearly preferring that we achieve a standoff.

—Older people feel quite strongly that we should have superiority over the Soviets, while young people feel that military parity between the world's super-powers will suffice.

—Those with less education tend to want a stronger U.S. defense system, while the college educated clearly feel that parity will do.

—Conservatives firmly opt for U.S. military superiority over the Russians, while middle-of-the-roads and liberals prefer to see the United States on an equal footing.

These findings from a recent Harris Survey of 1,500 adults nationwide help explain why the public is overwhelmingly in favor of the SALT talks, hoping for an agreement on arms limitation. People seem to feel that military parity will foster stable relations between the United States and Russia, whereas superiority on the part of one side or the other will lead to an environment in which peace will be more difficult to maintain. They also sense that both the United States and the Soviet Union are now capable of wiping each other out with the arms they have.

Despite these reservations about the necessity for U.S. military superiority over the Russians, there has been a perceptible movement of public opinion against cutting funds for defense. Back in 1971, while we were still involved in Vietnam, 44 percent of the public wanted to decrease defense spending, while only 10 percent wanted to increase it. However, this now has been reversed, with only 18 percent who want defense expenditures cut, while 35 percent want them increased. The largest group, 41 percent, wants to keep defense spending at the same levels as before.

One of the problems the defense establishment has in justifying any sharp rise in spending is that 62 percent of the public is convinced that there is a lot of waste in U.S. defense spending. Nonetheless, the public fears that inadequate funding might put us behind the Russians.

Not wanting to run that risk, they vote against a cut in defense spending.

Soviets, Arabs Give Bleak Reactions To Summit

By The Associated Press

The Soviet Union scoffed at the Camp David summit Wednesday, calling it "the Camp David trick."

The official news agency Tass accused the United States of trying "to throw all of its weight" into bringing about a Middle East settlement that only would be advantageous to itself.

The talks at Camp David in the Maryland mountains bring together President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Tass charged that the United States with pursuing "selfish interests of a military character ensuring a strengthening of U.S. control over the Middle East and its oil arteries."

Tass also charged that the summit would be used by the Israeli leadership as a cover to joining the NATO military alliance. The 13-member alliance, of which the United States is a member, is the Western equivalent of the Soviet-dominated Warsaw Pact.

Syrian President Hafez Assad said in Beirut that the summit might produce an agreement to end the war between Egypt and Israel, but it would have to be an agreement that met with Syrian approval.

In a speech to Syrian troops on the Golan Heights, Assad warned that Syria, Israel's militant neighbor, could "undermine any line of Middle Eastern policy it does not approve... although it might not be capable at this stage of imposing its own policy line."

A Syrian government source in Damascus said the government is trying to convene a summit of hardline Arab leaders on Sept. 20 after the summit talks are over.

The source said Damascus is still awaiting word of acceptance from Libya and South Yemen, two of four states aligned with the Palestine Liberation Organization and Algeria to counter Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative.

A senior Syrian official and a top PLO official both said the U.S.-sponsored talks can not succeed in obtaining justice for the Arabs and therefore were being rejected in advance.

Abdul-mohsen Abu Maizer, a top PLO official, referred to rumors that President Carter is considering offering an American military presence to enforce a settlement.

"Any armed American presence in the occupied territories will be considered a dangerous escalation of the hostile U.S. attitude, and we in the PLO will face it adequately," said Maizer.

In a French television interview, PLO head Yasser Arafat said he hoped the summit would convince Sadat that Begin "will never give him anything."

Arafat said he rejected the idea of stationing U.S. troops in the West Bank and Gaza, saying it would mean "trading one occupation for another."

In Cairo, Egypt's state-owned press expressed its belief that President Carter's efforts would be directed toward changing Begin's position.

"Any fair analyst cannot but accept that the compromise solutions Carter has called for are directed toward Israel," the authoritative Al Ahran said.

"The Camp David opportunity has not been spoiled yet — as the 'Peace Now' movement in Israel said — it alone will unveil to which degree the Israeli government will respond to last November's initiative (when Sadat visited Jerusalem)," Al Ahran said.

Cowboys Get Replacement For Richards

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys have signed rookie wide receiver Robert Steele to return their roster to 45 players following a trade that sent veteran receiver Golden Richards to the Chicago Bears.

Steele, 22, a free agent from Northern Alabama, was among the last players cut during preseason. He becomes the youngest player on the Cowboys active roster.

Steele, although he will be listed as the No. 4 wide receiver on the club behind Drew Pearson, Tony Hill and Butch Johnson, is expected to see considerable action on the specialty teams.

The specialty team is an area of concern for coach Tom Landry.

The Richards trade was a surprising move, but Landry said he felt it was the time to make such a decision in hopes of helping Richards find a place to play full time.

Barring an injury to a starter, Richards was almost certain to spend the 1978 season on the bench. He had been replaced in the starting lineup before Dallas' season opener by Hill, who promptly ignited the Cowboys in their 38-0 win over Baltimore with a 49-yard catch that set up the first touchdown.

Chicago general manager Jim Finks said that although Dallas officials had called him last week to talk about the deal they wanted to wait until after the opening game before finalizing it.

Hill caught two passes for 55 yards during the game, threw a key block in springing Tony Dorsett on a 91-yard touchdown dash with a flare pass and came close to completing a touchdown pass of his own.

"I find it difficult to take a guy who's been a starter a long time and put him in a backup role," said Landry. "I feel he loses most of his motivation. I attempted to find a team I thought wanted him badly, that I felt he might have a chance to start for."

Red Raider Club members will be served up liberal portions of barbeque and Rex Dockery today, when the weekly football luncheons will be revived.

Annually, from the first football game on through the end of the regular season, Texas Tech's head football coach speaks to the RRC luncheon meetings. The first will be held today, beginning at noon, at Van's KoKo Palace, reported Fred Timberlake, president of the Red Raider Club.

Dockery will be the main speaker and will, at various times, have members of his coaching staff at the microphone to discuss opposing teams.

Adami Named Starter

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

It was an "if" session for most of the troops Wednesday, but not for Tres Adami.

The senior from Freer learned that he will be the No. 1 man Saturday afternoon when the Raiders take on Southern Cal in Los Angeles' historic LA Coliseum to open the season.

Tech coach Rex Dockery made the announcement, after watching Adami and junior Mark Johnson battle for the spot throughout the fall drills. Actually, the duel began last spring, as the two competed for the spot left vacant by the graduation of Rodney Allison to the Canadian pro league.

"I felt Tres earned it," said Dockery in making the announcement of his quarterback plans.

Also, Dockery said that Don Earl will be at a halfback spot. A three-way battle had been going on for a couple of weeks for the position beside 240-pounder fullback James Hadnot.

It was Wednesday by the calendar, but it was Thursday by the schedule.

With a travel day Friday, the week's work schedule was altered.

"We call it an 'if' period," said Tech defensive coordinator Sam Robertson.

"We try to throw as many different (offensive) formations as the guys as we can, 'if they do this,' 'what do we do if they go into this,' that type of workout."

"We throw in a lot of stuff that they've used before and some that that haven't, just so we won't be caught unprepared."

"I thought we had a good workout," remarked Dockery following the shortened practice. "You do all you can to prepare."

Today will be another tune-up-type session for Tech. Friday, the Raiders will fly out for the 3:30 p.m. CDT contest, their first ever against a Pac-10 team.

Westerners Hope To Repeat History

By JIM FERGUSON

A memo from Rusty Talbot to the four other members of District 4-AAAA—and as far as that goes, the other six teams on the Westerner's schedule: From now on, you won't have Lubbock High to kick around anymore.

"The players at Lubbock High want to bring back the winning tradition that they've been hearing about for years," said the third-year coach of the Westerners. "They'd like to have a team like the ones they've heard about."

And will they? "We'll surprise some people, all right," the coach continued. "I don't really know what this team is capable of doing yet. But I guarantee you, they'll be hitting and hustling on every down of every game."

Since winning the District 4-AAAA crown in 1974, the Westerner's have finished no higher than fourth in the loop chase.

But with the return of top performers like quarterback Ricky Moreno, running-back Bobby Mitchell and defensive end Danny Andrews, chances look good that LHS will produce a winning seasons this fall.

"We've got an exceptional senior group," said Talbot. "Most of them have been with us since we came here three years ago. They are all leaders...the kind of players you can build a winner around."

Moreno, who took over for Ernest Day after the starter was injured against Monterey last season, possess not only a good arm, but also fine running ability.

"It was sort of a blessing what happened last year," said Talbot. "The injury to Day gave Moreno a chance to start. Now we've got a returning quarterback with experience."

Moreno will be joined by fullback Mitchell, a 6-0, 200-pounder who Talbot feels has the potential of gain a 1,000 yards this fall. Mitchell also possess 4.9 speed in the 40.

"With Moreno and Mitchell in the backfield," said Talbot. "We'll be able to move the ball."

Talbot went on to say that the team has two big questions marks, heading into it's opener against Borger Friday night. Both the offensive and defensive lines are major concerns to Talbot.

"There are only two starters on each team."

Dodgers Jump On 'Frisco; Stretch Lead To Three

By The Associated Press
Joe Ferguson slugged a three-run homer and doubled twice to lead Los Angeles to a 9-2 victory over San Francisco as the Dodgers opened a three-game lead over the Giants in the National League West.

Doug Rau, 13-8, and Rick Rhoden combined to scatter seven hits as Los Angeles swept the two-game series with San Francisco.

Ron Cey belted his 18th homer off loser Jim Barr, 7-11, who has dropped seven straight decisions to the Dodgers. The Giants' right-hander has not defeated Los Angeles since September of 1974.

BREWERS 7, BLUE JAYS 0
Robin Yount drove in five runs with four hits, including two two-run homers and an RBI single, and Larry Sorensen pitched a complete game.

Grass Greener Around Dunbar Coaches' Offices

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

This year, the grass may be greener around the athletic offices at Dunbar High School. But it's not because Coach Van Jefferson is going to field one of the strongest teams in his four years as the Panther mentor.

You see, when Jefferson gets upset, he waters the grass. And as the season approaches, Jefferson admits there is one area of lawn close to the field house that is pretty green.

Green, may be the most adequate word in describing the 1978 edition of the Panthers.

Dunbar lost 25 lettermen. And with 53 kids out for football this year, Jefferson makes no bones about the fact that, "We're not as far along both offensively and defensively as I would like us to be."

Jefferson based his remark after analyzing the films of the two scrimmages Dunbar competed in this year.

The Panthers scrimmaged Pecos even (2:30 p.m. Aug. 24) and then last week defeated Lovington 6-0.

So why does Jefferson feel that Dunbar isn't as far along as he thinks they should be?

"You really can't tell just what you have in a scrimmage," said Jefferson. "Now, if we St. Mark's (the Panthers' opening game Friday), then we can tell what we have."

Bradley, Moreland Share Golf Honors

TAHOKA (Special)—Pat Bradley of Hillcrest Country Club and June Moreland of Levelland fired identical 70s Wednesday to tie for the top honors at the South Plains Women's Golf Association's playday golf tournament.

Another Hillcrest golfer, Juanita Gregory, tied Neva Abel, who is registered with the Meadowbrook women, for low net score, 70.

"But a scrimmage is really to find out some of the things offensively and defensively your team can and can't do."

Asked what he discovered about the capabilities of his team in the two scrimmages, Jefferson pondered a response by rubbing his finger across his forehead.

"Offensively, I found out that we could run the veer and power formations," said the Panther coach. "But we like to run the sweep, and I discovered that my offensive tackles are having trouble blocking the way I want them to block on sweep plays."

"On defense, we need better containment on running plays. But that is just inexperience. It will just take time."

But before the word dismal is used to describe the Panthers chances in the 1-AAA race, Dunbar does have some bright spots.

Jefferson has been impressed with the play of his offensive backfield.

"Our backfield has been complacent, but their execution has been consistent," said Jefferson.

The catalyst of the Dunbar offensive attack is senior quarterback Daryl Green (173).

"Daryl is one of our leaders and he has been doing an excellent job in getting our offense rolling," said Jefferson.

But Green hasn't been the only one to grab Jefferson's attention.

The Panther coach also cited the play of runningbacks Earnest White (176, Sr) and Eddie Walker (168, Jr).

Along the offensive line, Jefferson couldn't stop raving about twin guards Karl and Kevin Lusk. Karl (177, Sr) will lineup at left guard with brother Kevin (173, Sr), at right guard.

When putting Jefferson on the spot as to which of the Lusk brothers performs better at the guard spot, the Panther coach just revealed a nervous laugh.

Then after a moment's thought, Jefferson said, "Kevin is a little bit better blocker. Last year, Karl suffered an injury, which let Kevin get ahead."

Though Kevin Lusk only stands 5-8, Jefferson doesn't worry about his right guard suffering an injury.

"I would compare Kevin with any other guard in the city," said Jefferson. "Though, he only weighs about 170 (173), he can bench press 300-pounds."

Jefferson attributes Kevin Lusk's success against opponents by his low center of gravity.

"Kevin is able to get under a opponent," said Jefferson. "He's very quick and has tremendous leg strength." Jefferson's coaching philosophy is to have his kids play catch up football even before Dunbar is behind.

"In the dressing room, we drill our players that they are two touchdowns behind," said Jefferson. "We want them to play like they are behind so we get that maximum effort from them."

Of course, the Dunbar defense will be responsible for not letting that mythical lead get any larger.

Jefferson credits the secondary for being the main strength of the unit.

The defense will have Dewayne Williams (155 Sr) and Fred Garza (160, Sr) at the corners. Green and Walker will play the safety positions.

Jefferson is also pleased with the line-backing corps. Guess which two twin brothers will be plugging up holes? If you said Kevin and Karl Lusk, then it's a safe bet that you would be right on.

But the Lusk twins will have some experienced help. Jefferson says that Leroy Rivers (145, Jr), James Dickens (165, Jr) Reggie Swearingin (176, Sr) and Robert Tolbert (185, Sr) all have the experience and talent to get the job done.

Like with the offense, it's the defensive front line that concerns Jefferson.

Defensive end Geoffrey Crawford (178, Jr) will be the only returning experienced player along the front line. Crawford is a one-year letterman. "Our kids know that they don't know the techniques," said Jefferson. "But we'll get it across to them one way or another."

In a nutshell, the Panthers' kicking is three deep.

"Actually, it just isn't the kicking game that we have three people at," said Jefferson. "Almost all of our positions have three people. But we have three people handling our kicking after a lesson I learned."

Jefferson couldn't recall the year, but did remember one season where his only kicker suffered an injury.

"Boy, were we in trouble," recalled Jefferson. "When our punting game suffered, it put more pressure on both our offense and defense."

This season, Jefferson terms his kicking game as "in pretty good shape."

Handling the punting will be either Clifford Collins (182, Jr), Raphael Scott (160, Sr) or Jimmy Davila (154, Sr). The kickoff duties will either be handled by Collins, Tolbert or Leroy Adams (177, Jr). The extra points will be divided between Tolbert, Adams and David Smith (182, Jr).

"Our kickers can boot the ball between 35-40 yards," said Jefferson. "But I really can't tell you who will be doing what among the three yet because nobody has really overshadowed the others."

One area, Jefferson is confident about is the character of his team.

"These kids want it," said the Panther mentor. "The scrimmages have helped to build confidence on our club."

But if confidence will be an adequate substitute until the Panthers are knowledgeable on all the techniques Jefferson wishes to teach, only time will tell.

But one thing is for sure. If Jefferson is out watering the grass around the athletic offices, you know things won't be going right.

Depth Hoped To Offset Lack Of Experience

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
SLATON — When Slaton High School football coach Ed Cook filled out a pre-season questionnaire, he said that the Tigers' main weaknesses were "Lack of experience, slow and small."
More than 90 players showed up for Slaton's first series of two-day workouts. True, only nine of them were returning lettermen, but there looked to be a lot of material out on that field.
"We don't have but about nine lettermen back and only 16 seniors," Cook said. "It all depends on how a couple of key positions develop."
The trouble spots, Cook said, were linebacker and offensive end. Still, Slaton was only 2 points away from going to the state playoffs last season. Tahoka beat the Tigers 9-7, and since both ended the season with 5-1 district records, represented the district in the playoffs.

Tahoka, which had a 7-3 regular season mark to Slaton's 9-1, made it all the way to the quarter-finals before getting knocked off.
And it looks like the district will be as tough or tougher this year. Tahoka returns most of its punch; Seminole is dropping down from Class AAA and Post is supposed to field a good squad.
The Tigers will be pointing at returning quarter back Ricky Davis to lead the way offensively. The 5-11, 160-pound senior led the Tigers last year, but he might have some problems this time around.
The key may well be the line.
"Our strengths will be our strong line-men and Davis at quarterback," Cook said. "I think our line is really strong but the most experienced returners are from tackle to tackle."

"We have an extremely small junior class. But, our junior high program has picked up lately. We had 30 some freshmen come out, but that's why we're inexperienced."
So, the bottom line is that it looks like a sub-par season is in store for Coach Edward S. Cook. But, since his average record in his four years at the school is about 7-3, look for the Tigers to be in the thick of the division race.

Volleyball Coming On For Plainsmen

Ready or not, Monterey will open its volleyball schedule at 6:30 tonight when the Plainsmen host Dunbar.
Over-preparedness is certainly not a worry of MHS coach Sammie Austin today. The University Interscholastic League limits teams to two weeks of actual practice before the schedule begins, according to Mrs. Austin.
"Most of us in the city had open gym this summer, so we were at least able to see the players just piddle around," Mrs. Austin said. "We had a pretty good workout for open gym. Most of the juniors and seniors turned out."
Monterey has three seniors returning from last year, and they could help MHS threaten Coronado's hold on the District 4-AAA title.
Returning are all-district player Mary Sue Stiles and Lisa Hensley and Mindy Holloway.
Monterey also boasts a strong group of juniors.
"We look for Melva Namken to be an outstanding setter and Shelley Dunn and Jamiee Bhea are right now our No. 1 hitters," the coach said.
Other juniors on the squad include Melinda Gage, Carla Hamlet, Gretchen Heisser, Marcella Perry Redon Perry and Paige Trammell.
Coach Austin said Monterey's main strength should be its height, which averages 5-7.
She plans to take advantage of an abundance of setters with a 4-2 offense.
Mrs. Austin's troops finished second in district last year behind Coronado with a 3-1 record, the one loss being to CHS.

Coach Austin predicts Coronado will be again this year.
"Coronado is always strong," she said. "However, they lost a good many of their starters. We are young-predominantly juniors so this should be our best season so far."
"If volleyball was initiated in Lubbock only two seasons ago, and Mrs. Austin was with Monterey both years. She notes that several changes have occurred.
"We have better involvement of the booster club this year than ever before," she said. "I think it's helped a lot that the Olympics stressed volleyball. Interest has really grown locally."
"As our junior high programs mature we will too," she added.
Mrs. Austin noted that several of the sophomores this year have "the best potential right out of junior high that I've seen in awhile."
Another change for the better is the city tournament initiated this year, she said. The Lubbock Invitational will be Sept. 22-23 at Coronado.

THE SCHEDULE
Sept. 7-Dunbar; Sept. 11-at Brownfield; Sept. 12-Estacado; Sept. 15-16-West Texas State Tournament; Sept. 18-Levelland; Sept. 19-at Estacado; Sept. 22-23-Lubbock Tournament; Sept. 26-at Lamesa.

Jackson Expected To Be Released Sometime Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees is expected to be released the hospital Thursday and could be back in the lineup Friday night, a team spokesman said Wednesday.
Jackson was admitted to Lenox Hill Hospital Tuesday complaining of lower back spasms. A team spokesman said a virus had settled in Jackson's lower back.
The Yankees open a potentially pivotal four-game series at Boston Friday night.
