WHILE about 25 American Agriculture Movement members waited outside police-guarded doors Wednesday, former agriculture secretary Earl Butz lauded farmers and middlemen and urged stepped up food technology research.

Butz sounded an ominous note about the world's food situation, warning, "The world's number one challenge is to gear up to double food production somewhere in the world before 30 years passes."

"denied the right to food," he added. The food industry — farmers and agribusiness middlemen — must take the offensive in drastically increasing research to optimize production, he said.

Rail Strike End Forecast Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration vowed on Wednesday to step in and "start the trains running again" by noon today as a clerks' union expanded its crippling two-day rail strike to virtually all of the nation's major railroads.

Failing agreement, he said, "we'll take action at noon tomorrow to start the trains running again." The parties began meeting at noon. Less than three hours later, the union leadership ordered pickets thrown up around 73 rail carriers which represent every major U.S. rail line except the Conrail freight system and a few smaller bankrupt carriers.

"National Strike"
If they're going after 73 lines, you can call it a national strike," said one industry official, who asked not to be named.

The industry official called it a "bad faith" move by the union. The union said intensification of the strike was to protest financial and other support the other railroads have given NW under a mutual aid pact during the 80 days NW, a major coal hauler, has been struck by the union.

The expanded strike left thousands of commuters stranded, and brought millions of tons of freight shipments — including half of all rail shipments of food — to a halt. After the first day of the shutdown, the two biggest U.S. auto makers, General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co., announced layoffs due to parts shortages.

Bus, Truck Authority
While Marshall and Transportation Secretary Brock Adams conferred about possible government action, the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized bus and trucking companies to expand their operations to help cushion the impact of the rail strike.

The escalation of the coast-to-coast rail tieup came just as the strike appeared to be abating. At least six railroads hit by picketing Tuesday said the pickets had been removed.

Removing Pickets
BRAC spokesman Henry Fleischer said the union was removing pickets wherever it had been served with court orders. However, industry officials were complaining they were having great difficulty locating union officials to serve court papers.

Marshall said the union had told him it was "reluctant" to end its picketing until it had a settlement with NW. Some 4,600 clerks struck NW on July 10 because of a dispute over job protection benefits the union wants for workers who may lose their jobs to automation.

Pressure Settlement
Union President Fred Kroil said the union picketed the other carriers so the industry, which has been subsidizing the strikebound NW with about $800,000 a day under a mutual aid pact, would pressure the NW to settle with the union.

The industry estimated on Tuesday the picketing had affected two-thirds of the nation's railroads in 42 states. There were no immediate estimates of the extent of Wednesday's picketing.

Marshall told a news conference the administration feared the strike could have a devastating effect on the economy if it continues much longer.

He said he was giving the bargainers a "last chance" to settle by noon today.

"But if this deadline passes without an agreement, both sides can expect with certainty that the administration will take further action," Marshall said.

He refused to spell out what the administration would do, but he acknowledged there are several options under provision.

22,745 STUDENTS Enrollment At Tech Hits Record

TEXAS TECH University's fall enrollment of 22,745 has set a new record, surpassing by 165 the previous high of 22,580 set in 1975.

This fall's unofficial figure is based on a head count at the end of the 12th day of class, according to Dr. Robert Ewalt, vice president for student affairs.

"We are gratified with our increased enrollment and the new record, particularly at a time when college and university enrollments are leveling off in many areas," Ewalt said.

Males at Tech outnumber females this semester, with 12,803 men enrolled as compared women.

By classification, figures show 7,717 freshmen, 4,382 sophomores, 3,555 juniors and 3,706 seniors. There also are 2,858 graduate students and 527 law students.

The College of Arts and Sciences reported 7,263 students; Business Administration, 4,572; Engineering, 2,935; Education, 1,759; Home Economics, 1,483.

District Jury Rules Tech Professor Quit

A U.S. DISTRICT Court jury has found against a Texas Tech University professor who claimed he was unjustly squeezed out of his duties at the School of Medicine.

The six-member panel, in the case decided Tuesday, agreed unanimously that Dr. James Frederick Johnson had resigned from his reported $70,000 per year position.

Johnson, 35, a pediatric radiologist, had sued officials, claiming in a petition his superiors had accepted a "fictitious resignation."

Tech officials contended, however, that Johnson had in fact resigned. The dispute centered in part on a June 14 verbal confrontation between Johnson and Dr. Jay Sackler, acting chairman of the radiology department.

Testimony indicated there was a conflict over procedures to be used in the department. Sackler indicated that Johnson gave what amounted to a verbal resignation at that time.

Johnson contended he had not resigned. In his original petition, Johnson had asked, among other relief, for a year's salary and another $70,000 for alleged damage to his reputation and career.

Holdup Man Hits Service Station

A tall, thin bandit robbed the Fina service station at 34th Street and Avenue A of an undetermined sum Wednesday night after threatening to shoot the young attendant.

Michael David Pirkle, 16, said a white male came into the station at 9:05 p.m. with his right hand in his pocket. Telling Pirkle he had a gun, he called for "all the money" and issued the shooting threat.

The robber, described as about six feet and 150 pounds, with a mustache and long sideburns, grabbed the money and left the store running south on Avenue A.

Police said the holdup man apparently turned into an alley where, a witness said, two other white men joined him. The three were last seen running down the alley.

Officers stationed themselves around the block, but did not see any of the suspects.

U.S. Trade Situation Improves As Deficit Narrows In August

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States made headway in selling its products abroad last month as the nation's trade deficit narrowed to $1.6 billion, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

If the trade situation keeps improving, it might help ease inflation in this country, economists said.

The $1.6 billion trade deficit was a substantial improvement over the $2.99 billion trade gap in July, and it was expected to help the value of the dollar against foreign currencies.

The dollar's decline has increased prices in this country about 1 percent this year, economists estimate.

"The U.S. trade situation has become decidedly more favorable since last spring," said Secretary of Commerce Juanita M. Krebs. "I am especially encouraged that American exports continued to grow rapidly after recording other recent advances."

"Despite this encouragement, the deficit in our trade remains very large," she said. "The time is ripe for the new export initiatives announced by President Carter." On Tuesday, Carter had announced a new program to help get businesses to sell their products abroad.

The trade report showed that American businesses increased their exports by 4.7 percent to a record $12.47 billion last month, the Commerce Department said.

For the first time this year, the United States actually sold more manufactured goods, such as autos, computers and airplanes, than it bought from other countries.

U.S. officials had also promised world monetary officials meeting in Washington that the U.S. trade situation would improve substantially in the next year.

The department said U.S. imports declined 4.7 percent in August to $14.09 billion as Americans bought fewer imported autos, televisions, shoes, and foods.

Oil imports, the main reason for the country's trade deficit, continued to climb, however.

The United States increased its imports of foreign oil by $209 million to $3.36 billion. In July, oil imports had dropped $147.5 million.

Despite the improvement in August, the trade deficit for the year is still likely to surpass the record $26.5 billion deficit in 1977.

So far this year, Americans have bought $20.98 billion more than they have sold to other countries. By this time last year, the trade deficit was $16 billion.

Slowdown In East-West Trade Seen As Red Debt Limit Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union and other Communist nations are approaching the limit in borrowing from the West and some may be unable to pay on time the nearly $50 billion they already owe, a new study said Wednesday.

A slowdown in the recent rapid growth of East-West trade is likely to result since Communist nations need to borrow from the West to finance imports, said the study published by the Brookings Institution, a Washington-based economic research institution.

It said that while Poland and Bulgaria are in the worst shape, "not one of the countries is without a debt servicing problem," including the Soviet Union.

"Continued borrowing on the scale of the recent past... would almost certainly pose serious problems in the near future," the study said. "Eastern Europe's ability to service debt to the West is subject to considerable uncertainty."

It said that within the next two to three years, some of the countries may need to reschedule their debt — a way of stringing out payments to avoid an outright default.

The study said the rapid growth in East-West trade over the past decade has been made possible by Eastern European borrowing from governments and from private commercial banks in the West.

It said that from 1974 to 1977, the net debt of Communist Europe increased from $13 billion to $46 billion, of which nearly two-thirds is owed to Western banks.

The study gave the following country-by-country breakdown on the debt: Poland, $12.6 billion; the Soviet Union, $12 billion; East Germany, $6.1 billion; Eastern bloc banks, $4.4 billion; Rumania, $3 billion; Bulgaria, $2.8 billion, and Czechoslovakia, $2.4 billion.

Poland, $12.6 billion; the Soviet Union, $12 billion; East Germany, $6.1 billion; Eastern bloc banks, $4.4 billion; Rumania, $3 billion; Bulgaria, $2.8 billion, and Czechoslovakia, $2.4 billion.

It said the ratio of debts to export earnings of the Communist countries is higher than in most underdeveloped nations of the world, yet the terms they get on their own are better than those charged by banks to such fast-growing countries as Brazil, Mexico and South Korea.

The Soviet Union is, for the moment, the most credit worthy of the Communist economies, the study said, but it will also face problems if pessimistic predictions come true that its oil exports may decline while its need to import grain will remain great.

While heavy rains forced many Pecos families to flee their homes for awhile Wednesday, South Plains residents remained cool and dry.

However, no one was injured in the Pecos flooding, caused by several days of heavy rains throughout the state's rugged western area.

A police dispatcher in Pecos said late Wednesday most, if not all, of about 200 persons evacuated had returned Wednesday afternoon.

The weather outlook for Lubbock and vicinity is calling for mostly fair skies and warm afternoons today and Friday. Today's high should climb to the upper 70s, and the low tonight will be in the mid-50s.

Forecasters expect West Texas skies to remain clear to partly cloudy through Monday.

The heavy rains in far West Texas caused the floodwaters to run several feet deep in some parts of Pecos.

"It hasn't dropped more than an inch since yesterday," Department of Public Safety Sgt. H.W. Johnson said Wednesday. "It came in very gradually. Nothing was washed away or anything like that." The rain that caused the problem occurred in the

"The rain that caused the problem occurred in the mountains 50 to 60 miles away. The water gathers up there, runs down the Cottonwood and Salt draws, and when they overflow the water spills into the flats northwest of town."

He said once floodwater hits the flats there is nothing to stop it from rolling in to town.

The same storms also filled the Rio Grande, which crested at 26 feet at Presidio where the International Bridge was under water and closed Tuesday. The railroad bridge across the Rio Grande was destroyed.

Senate Gives Okay To Public Works Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave final congressional approval Wednesday to a $10.2-billion public works bill and immediately began negotiating with President Carter, who vowed to veto it as wasteful and inflationary.

Although both houses approved the measure by apparently veto-proof majorities, Sen. Bennett Johnston, who managed the measure in the Senate, met with Carter at the White House and said, "We're willing to give."

Johnston, D-La., chairman of the Senate public work appropriations subcommittee, drove to the White House immediately after the Senate's 86 to 9 vote approving the measure.

Johnston told reporters later that Carter had told him he would veto the measure, as he has repeatedly vowed to do in the past.

"I told the president I thought it would be a great mistake," Johnston said.

Johnston said he believes a veto would provoke a confrontation between Carter and the Congress in which "nobody would win." He said he urged Carter to "try to work it out" and said they discussed "a general outline" of an agreement.

He declined to give specifics, but said it is possible that the House and Senate might agree not to attempt an override of a veto if Carter would agree to accept a new bill containing some parts of the present measure.

The measure now contains 27 more water projects than Carter originally requested, including six he tried to kill last year.

Supporters of the measure hailed it as a needed investment in water resource and energy development that would cost $879 million less than the program Carter proposed in his budget message in January.

Opponents said the reduction was a "paper saving" resulting from changes in bookkeeping techniques such as appropriating only one year's funds for each project instead of its total cost, as proposed by the president.

"It takes a pretty cynical view of the taxpayer's judgment to try to pass this off as an inflation-fighting bill," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., told his colleagues.

"President Carter should roll this pork barrel right back down Pennsylvania Avenue and insist on getting a better value for the taxpayers' money," Proxmire said.

Crude Oil Runs Off Slightly From Week Ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Total crude oil runs to still averaged 15,350,000 barrels daily during the week ended Friday, September 22, the American Petroleum Institute reported Wednesday. This compared with 15,475,000 barrels daily in the previous week and 14,979,000 barrels daily a year ago. Crude runs east of California averaged 13,085,000 barrels daily compared with 13,040,000 the previous week and 12,504,000 a year ago.

duction was 6,232,000 a day compared with 6,369,000 a day last week and 6,015,000 a day a year ago. Motor gasoline stocks at the end of the latest week were 216,818,000 barrels, versus 217,005,000 a week earlier and 248,854,000 a year ago.

Daily imports east of California for the week ended Friday were crude oil 5,893,000 barrels, residual fuel oil, 1,226,000, distillate fuel oil, 100,000 and others 410,000, a total of 7,629,000 barrels. California imports were: crude oil 712,000 barrels, and products 93,000, a total of 805,000 barrels, for a grand total of 8,434,000.

For the four weeks, daily imports east of California were: crude oil 6,982,000 barrels, residual fuel oil 628,000, distillate fuel oil 52,000, and others 200,000, for a total of 7,862,000 barrels.

For the four weeks, California daily imports averaged for crude oil 518,000 barrels, products 111,000, a total of 629,000 barrels, for a grand total of 7,487,000 barrels.

Producer Sees Benefits In Gas Bill

HOUSTON (AP) — A prominent independent producer said Wednesday the Senate did the right thing by approving the natural gas bill but said the legislation could lead to a "bureaucratic bonanza."

George Mitchell, a former president of the Texas Independent Producers Royalty Owners Association, said he believes the bill is "marginally better than no bill at all."

"Deregulation applies only to new gas, which means there will be no sudden jump in price," he said.

"It has been five years since the embargo brought home our country's energy vulnerability," said the president of Mitchell Energy & Development Corp., a firm that sells natural gas on both the intrastate and interstate markets.

Mitchell said the bill has been inordinately long in development and political realities are such Congress is unlikely to approve anything better in the foreseeable future.

"So, for all its faults, the bill has the overriding benefit, in my opinion, of giving the industry some much needed ground rules under which to operate and plan ahead," he said.

He added that the bill is in the interest of consumers in that "the new supplies will continue to be a better bargain than alternative fuels, especially those that are imported."

"My primary concern about the bill is that its implementation could lead to a bureaucratic bonanza that would saddle the industry with an even heavier burden of regulations, red tape, and paperwork," Mitchell said.

"This kind of situation would divert producers from the important task of finding and developing gas, and I hope congress, the president, and the Department of Energy will specifically address that issue."

Energy Chief's Senate Smoke Signal Banished

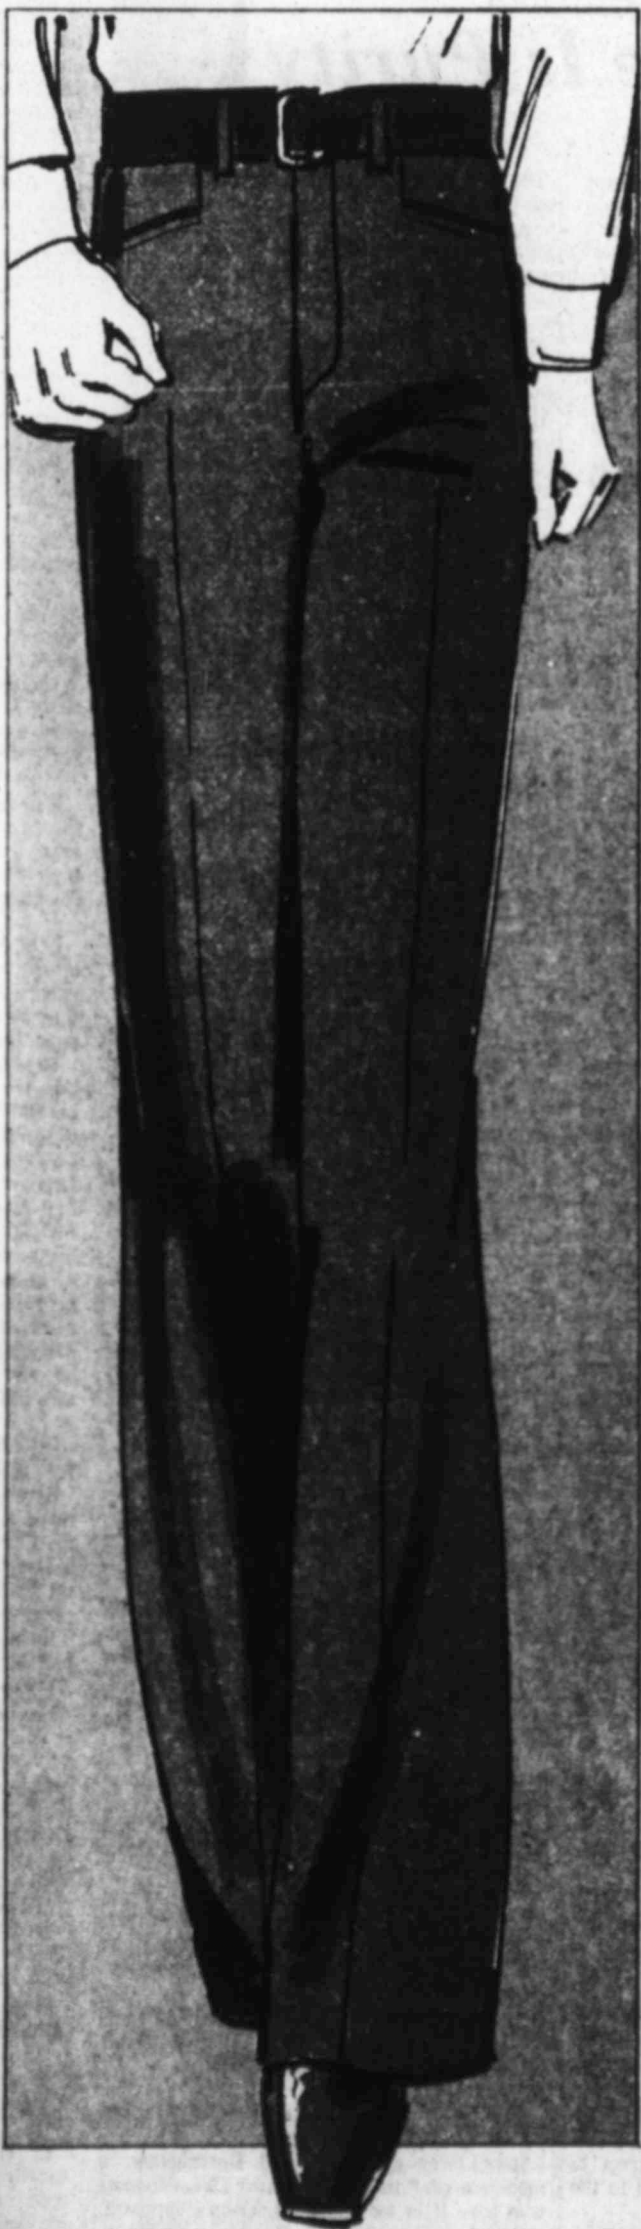

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate clerk was calling the role on the vote on the natural gas bill Wednesday when Energy Secretary James Schlesinger entered the gallery and took a front row seat.

As always, he had a pipe clenched between his teeth.

A puff of smoke rose from the bowl and drifted toward the ceiling of the Senate chamber, where smoking is forbidden.

AN EDITORIAL:

Sen. Tower--On His Record

TEXANS THIS year face numerous important decisions in naming those who will hold public office, from those in Washington to those much closer home.

One of those contests involves the statewide contest to name a Senator who will sit in one of the most important lawmaking bodies in the world.

The two men seeking this honor and responsibility are Republican Sen. John Tower, the incumbent, and Democratic Rep. Bob Krueger, the challenger.

BOTH MEN ARE widely known, have large followings, are waging intensive campaigns and are most knowledgeable in the ways of the nation's capital.

Both also have impressive credentials of public service, as teachers and men knowledgeable in "what makes things tick."

Of equal import, both have records--of voting and public pronouncements--which define their basic political philosophy and direction. And it is that record we are concerned.

IN THE PAST year, there have been three "bellwether" pieces of legislation, among others, which have come before Congress.

One involved the effort to pass a so-called "labor reform" package, a move on the part of Big Labor and the Administration to water down, if not completely dilute, the States' Right-to-Work laws.

Rep. Krueger supported this legislation, arguing that it was not a threat to the Right-to-Work laws, and later saying he would take a new look at it if and when it is brought up again.

Sen. Tower flatly opposes the "reform" effort, contending correctly that it would be just one more stick in Big Labor's hands and a definite threat to Right-to-Work guarantees, including those in Texas.

AN EDITORIAL:

On The Darker Side Of Man

THE TRAGEDY that struck in San Diego this week was horrible enough in itself. But, what happened afterward was a sad commentary on the state of the human mind, and morals.

According to wire service reports, after the Pacific Southwest Airlines jet crashed into a row of houses in the West Coast city and victims and debris rained down, several persons were arrested for looting.

THOSE SO CHARGED were accused of taking items either from some of the victim's bodies or from homes struck or burned in the crash.

In addition, hundreds of persons converging on the scene--to gawk, not help--created a massive traffic jam in the area, delaying fire trucks and ambulances.

There is no question but that most persons in San Diego, as well as across the nation, have nothing but sympathy and compassion for those killed and their relatives, loved ones and friends.

ON ANOTHER controversial issue, Extension of time for states to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, the two men again are on opposite sides of the fence.

Rep. Krueger not only voted to allow another three years-plus for ratification but also voted against permitting states to rescind their votes if they so chose.

And although the issue has not come up in the Senate, Sen. Tower says he will oppose additional time for ratification, and if such time is granted then would seek to include the right of rescission in any such legislation. He adds he would support any effort to filibuster against the measure.

THE THIRD issue which has stirred controversy, and on which the two men are in sharp disagreement, involves the proposed amendment giving "statehood" to Washington, D.C.

Here again, Rep. Krueger voted for the measure, which would give the federal enclave two senators and possibly two representatives, thus affording the government oriented populace a voice equal to any state.

Sen. Tower is unalterably opposed to creation of such a "mini-state," and correctly notes that giving Washington two Senators, who most likely would be Democratic and of a Liberal bent, would dilute Texas voting power, including that of minorities.

SEN. TOWER has spent 17 years in the Senate. His voting record for the most part has been conservative and responsible.

The former Wichita Falls college professor is an advocate of a strong defense posture for the U.S., is most critical of current and past vacillation in foreign policy and has a broad grasp of America's role in the world.

Because of these factors, based on "the record" and because we feel that Sen. Tower epitomizes and votes for those policies crucial to this nation's future, we recommend his re-election on Tuesday Nov. 7.

And what happened is not a reflection on the vast majority of citizens in San Diego.

BUT WHAT happened has happened before, in other areas and under somewhat similar circumstances.

In cities where tornadoes have struck, where there have been explosions and the like, all too often there have been those who saw someone else's tragedy as an opportunity to prey, like jackals, on fellow human beings.

In some places, looting brings automatic death from those officers in charge. And while such punishment may be too harsh, the penalty should be such that anyone engaging in such activities knows that they not only will pay a heavy penalty--including long jail terms--but be held up to the public ridicule they deserve.

There is no room among civilized men for such behavior.

ART BUCHWALD:

News Blackout Leaves New Yorkers In Dark

NEW YORK CITY--The New York City newspaper strike is starting to take its toll on the Big Apple. You can see it in people's blank expressions and hear it in their desperate voices.

When someone hears you're from out of town, the first question he or she asks is, "What's going on?"

"Nixon resigned and is no longer President," I told one poor soul.

"No!" he said, "and he seemed to be doing so well with China."

"Howard Hughes passed away in his sleep."

"It's hard to believe," my friend said. "He seemed like such a young vital person."

"Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton split up."

"Now that's one I didn't hear. How are Sonny and Cher doing?"

"THEY SPLIT too."

"What are people reading these days?"

"Books about jogging."

"What happened to 'Gone With the Wind'?"

"It's off the best-seller lists and so is 'Forever Amber.'"

"I guess that means they'll be coming out in paperback," he said. "Tell me, how are the Brooklyn Dodgers doing?"

"You didn't hear? They've moved to Los Angeles."

"No wonder I can't get their games on radio. Is Ted Williams still playing for the Red Sox?"

"No, he retired. So did Joe DiMaggio."

"Poor Pope John."

"There was another Pope since John. He was Pope Paul."

"Boy, you really get out of touch in this city. Did John Glenn ever get to the moon?"

"No, but three other guys did. John Glenn is now a senator from Ohio."

"How's Jimmy Hoffa?"

"I didn't have the heart to tell him."

NOT EVERYONE in New York is without a newspaper. Many desperate souls are buying out-of-town papers from as far away as Washington, D.C., Philadelphia and Boston.

You would think this would fill the news gap, but these people are more confused than those who have no papers at all.

One lady who gets the Philadelphia Bulletin every day said to me, "If someone doesn't fill these potholes on 63rd St., I'm going to march down to City Hall and give Mayor Rizzo a piece of my mind."

"Rizzo isn't your mayor," I told her. "Koch is."

"Don't kid me," she replied. "I read the papers every day."

Another pal who gets the Boston Globe every morning said, "If we don't get some tax relief in this city soon I'm going to write to my senator, Teddy Kennedy, and tell him he better not ask for my vote in 1982."

"TEDDY'S NOT your senator," I told him. "Javits and Moynihan represent New York."

"Then how come you never read about them?" he wanted to know.

A sports fanatic who has been reading the Washington Post for more than a month has suddenly become a Redskins football fan.

"Don't you feel disloyal to the New York Giants team?" I asked him.

"Why should I when they moved to San Francisco?"

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

DFL Shore Is Purity

MINNEAPOLIS--One reason why Republicans may win two Senate seats and the governorship from centrist Democrats in Hubert Humphrey's Democratic-Farmer-Labor (DFL) party is the insatiable demand of the DFL left wing for ideological purity.

ANDREW TULLY:

Just Us In Bind

WASHINGTON--In pondering the question of whether the people of the Republic can afford government by their peers, let us consider the following:

Crooks within the federal bureaucracy and private business could be stealing as much as $25 billion a year from the taxpayers through false claims for benefits, collusion and bribery of officials.

That figure comes from the Department of Justice, which has estimated that 1 to 10 per cent of the $250 billion the government pays out each year in federal assistance programs is fraudulently channeled into private pockets.

"Hell, $25 billion may be a conservative figure," says a Justice official. "It's based on a study of only seven government agencies--the GSA, SBA, VA, HUD, and the departments of Agriculture, Labor and Transportation. God knows how bad the situation is at the Pentagon."

GOD KNOWS indeed whether any dollar spent by the federal government is safe from the thieves. Comptroller Gen. Elmer Staats, who heads the General Accounting Office, the audit arm of Congress, says, "Opportunities for defrauding the government are virtually limitless."

Staats' outfit studied the seven agencies and found that programs that provide outright money grants, contracts for goods and services, and guarantees of loans are "exploited (by various methods) of thievery."

And the Justice Department, which is prosecuting cases involving $250 million in fraud against the government, says that figure is "only a fraction" of the total being looted from the agencies.

Biggest alleged offender is the General Services Administration. Investigation of that agency has produced a prediction that it might be involved in the biggest money scandal in the nation's history.

THAT PREDICTION was made by Vincent R. Alto, a former Justice Department prosecutor hired by GSA Administrator Jay Solomon to clean up corruption in his outfit.

"These are not your ordinary kind of crook," says an Alto aide. "They're a sophisticated gang. Some of those guys have been on the take for as much as $250,000 a year apiece."

FBI agents and the U.S. Attorney's office in Washington have found evidence that GSA managers of federal office buildings in the capital have been getting millions of dollars in payoffs from companies that do maintenance and repair work in their buildings.

In return, say officials, the building managers have allowed the companies to be paid by GSA for work that was never done on the buildings.

MOREOVER, MANAGERS of 27 out of 30 GSA stores that provide office supplies for federal workers in Washington and the adjoining region have been accused of "pervasive corruption."

The allegation is that the managers or their assistants receive gifts, TV sets, clothing, vacation trips and cash for allowing private firms to charge GSA for supplies never delivered to the agency's stores.

Testifying before a Senate subcommittee, Staats indulged himself in the understatement of the year. "Until recently," he said, "agencies have not made fraud detection a high priority."

Elmer Staats, of course, is an accountant, not a muckraker. But though his tone was that of an aristocratic senator in ancient Rome wondering prudently whether Emperor Caligula really needed another long ton of gold cloth for his wardrobe, I think I got his point. Call some more cops.

The DFL purity test has been getting harder to pass year by year. Now it threatens to undermine the party at a critical point, challenging DFL control of this state that started in the mid-'40s and gave the Democrats every statewide office and the legislature in 1973 for the first time in history.

Meeting the test was expensive for Rep. Don Fraser, one of the stars of the DFL left-wing elite.

Businessman Robert Short, long connected to the moderate-conservative wing of the party, beat Fraser in the DFL senatorial primary, and Short's emphasis on cuts in taxes, spending and government payrolls was only a partial reason.

"Fraser hung on to his elitist ideology against heavy odds," a moderate DFL leader told us. "He just couldn't carry all that pro-abortion, pro-gun control and pro-environment baggage."

The real majority in this state is probably anti-abortion and anti-gun control and it wants outboard motors and snowmobiles in the Boundary Waters area.

WITH THE PRIMARY election two weeks past Fraser is still sulking and the DFL left is threatening revenge against Short. This is of a part with shabby treatment in the past for Humphrey himself, the founder of the DFL.

For his sins as Vietnam war supporter while vice president, Humphrey was challenged in his 1970 Senate comeback by a DFL liberal backed by purists of the left.

Humphrey beat him, but the left wing then rewarded him with the post of national committeeman.

Short's running partner in the second Senate race this fall is incumbent Sen. Wendell Anderson, a DFL moderate whose refusal to kowtow to the elitist left wing also brought a liberal challenge in the Sept. 12 primary.

The challenger rolled up 38 per cent of the vote, but Anderson refused to bargain away his more moderate position on abortion and the hot issue of banning motors in the Boundary Waters area.

THE POWER of liberal activists was dramatically exposed at the 1976 DFL convention. Steamrolling the party's center, clearly a majority, the pro-abortion feminist bloc made a devil's pact with its greatest enemy, the pro-lifers (who oppose abortion) and elected two national committeewomen: an all-out anti-abortionist and an all-out pro-abortionist.

The middle-ground majority was ignored. State party chairman Rick Scott, a liberal, acknowledges the problem. "Something is happening in this state," he told us, "but we don't quite know what it is."

IN THE HAMLET of Montevideo, one evening last week, a Chippewa County DFL official listening to Short make his appeal for party support was impressed.

"There won't be an anti-Short campaign here," he told us. Likewise, Lt. Gov. Alec Olson warned that same evening that "the DFL may not last long" if it doesn't shed its suicidal tendencies to please single-issue minorities.

He pleaded for support for Short, Anderson and Gov. Rudy Perpich who is running against highly respected Rep. Al Quie for governor.

But Chippewa County DFL-ers have little in common with the activist left in the Twin Cities, where resentment of Short for defying its "diktat"--and of Anderson for being "moderate"--runs highest.

Party chairman Scott has received an outpouring of mail and phone calls from angry liberals demanding Short's defeat in November.

THE REPUBLICANS are in especially good position to exploit this disarray.

Short faces attorney David Durenberger, a moderate who may pick up many DFL defectors who have it in for Short; Anderson's opponent, self-made millionaire Rudy Boschwitz, roared in to a sizable summertime lead over Anderson and still holds it.

Whatever November may bring, the DFL is deep in soul-searching, worrying that the price of ideological purity is wrecking the party.

That is no phenomenon for Republicans, whose right wing has always made suicidal ideological demands.

A Return To Life

WILL THE time ever come when it reads, "All the news that's fit to hear?"

If one is to believe the dire predictions of some in broadcast journalism, even in the print medium, that day eventually will arrive.

In brief, the argument goes, some day the electronic marvel, or mishmash, of television will supplant books, magazines, newspapers. Man will be a servant to, and subservient to, the tube. In more ways than one.

But, will he like it? In a world of television, millions of New Yorkers have been getting a taste of life without their regular daily newspapers of late. And the answer is already in.

Radio and television, for all their roles as entertainment and spot information mediums, can never fill the need that newspapers, books and magazines do. The printed word, in the final analysis, is still paramount, and permanent.

IF NOTHING else, the seven-week old New York City dispute involving the metropolis' three major daily papers has proven that point, although it was something readers and advertisers knew long ago.

The three papers hit have been The New York Times, The Daily News and The New York Post. Some expected things have happened as a result. Four "interim" papers which sprung up now enjoy a circulation about half the average 3.3 million the three regular papers did.

Sales of books and especially paperbacks have soared as subway riders and others seek something to read. Radio and television stations have sought to beef up their news programs. And some television stations are charging almost double their usual ad rates. The Wall Street Journal reports.

Sales of out of town papers have soared. But, for the most part New Yorkers are lost without their daily fare of headline hard news, features, columnists, sports results, beauty tips, horoscopes--and advertising.

AS HAS BEEN the case in other cities hit by such strikes, retail sales are below expectations and some store owners are getting worried as the holiday season nears.

Anyway you figure it, everyone loses. Even the television networks and stage shows have no regular printed outlet to advertise their shows, or for reviews. Book publishers are sorely limited in boosting hoped-for best sellers.

With this in mind, it is both ironic and appropriate that one of the really great publishing success stories of all time should have an encore this week. We refer to the reappearance of Life Magazine on a regular monthly basis. It was a most welcome one.

Big as Life, and sporting its familiar red and white logo, the magazine should spark warm memories for the over-30 generation and introduce the younger among us to one of the really professional pieces of print journalism.

ACTUALLY, LIFE magazine never really died. It just entered a long period of fitful slumber.

Although the magazine ceased publication as a weekly in December 1972, ten special issues of Life have been published since.

Five were Year in Pictures issues, and others zeroed in on specific topics, including The New Youth, Remarkable Women, and 100 Events That Shaped America. Sales of these special issues were encouraging enough that Time Inc. has decided to resurrect Life, this time as a monthly.

The first issue of the "born again" publication, dated October, has just hit the newsstands and mail boxes. It is a masterpiece in the mold of those weekly issues which chronicled the growing of America in some of its most traumatic years.

Rising postal rates, declining ad revenues and the newness of television contributed to the demise of such once-prosperous general circulation magazines, including such standbys as The Saturday Evening Post and Look.

BUT, MAGAZINES have since rebounded as an attractive medium for advertisers, as have newspapers, although the latter never lost anything to the new medium. On the contrary, newspaper lineage has gone up.

The original Life was one of the most astonishing success stories in publishing history. Advertisers had been guaranteed a net circulation of 250,000 an issue, and rates were set on that basis.

Seldom has a market projection been so far off target. All 250,000 newsstand copies of the first issue, dated Nov. 23, 1938, sold out the first day. And by the end of the first year, Life's circulation had reached 1.5 million.

The new Life will face tougher going than its predecessor. One of the major changes involves prices and handling. The newsstand price of the final weekly of Life--a double year-end issue--was 50 cents. Regular subscribers paid less. The new Life will be $1.50, regardless of how purchased.

THE NEW LIFE will not attempt to duplicate the old in many other respects.

Because it appears monthly, no effort will be made to cover breaking news stories. The original Life held chronicle such national and world-shaking events as the Depression, World War II, the Fifties and Korean War, the Sixties with the protests and the start of the Seventies.

In all instances, photos--big, colorful, action-packed--were the hallmark of the magazine. And it is expected that such will be the case again.

The first issue seems to bear this out. The cover sports a huge balloon. Inside are layouts on the Shah of Iran and his family, including a full page on Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, now at Reese AFB. Also highlighted is a photo essay on a Family Reunion, a new movie on the Land of Oz, a story on Halston, the designer and a sample from a new novel by Mario Puzo.

"To see Life; to see the world; to eyewitness great events." So began the original prospectus for Life Magazine. Forty-two years later, Life is back. Long may it live!

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

IF THE HUSBAND is an alcoholic, the wife usually will try to help him get treatment. If the wife is an alcoholic, the husband usually will simply leave her.

Those are the sad statistical facts. Specifically, only one out of 10 husbands stays with his alcoholic wife while only one out of 10 wives leaves her alcoholic husband.

That famous patriot Patrick Henry only studied law for six weeks before he was admitted to the bar.

Not only did the French lorn originate in Germany. The French poodle did, too.

Jazz Equipment Recovered

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A stolen truck with some $100,000 in musical instruments and equipment belonging to jazz musician Maynard Ferguson and his band has been recovered intact, police said Wednesday.

Police said the truck was found parked on a street Tuesday night and the band's manager, Kim Ferguson, said the contents were in good shape. The truck was discovered missing Tuesday morning.

Miss Ferguson, the leader's daughter said she thought the instruments were retrieved intact because of publicity about the theft.

No arrests were reported.

Nudes Appear Mysteriously

BAYVILLE, N.J. (AP) — Cable television subscribers in Ocean County were startled when nude bodies started prancing across their screens Wednesday morning.

Several subscribers called police and the station, Clear Cable Television-Channel 8, to complain that a pornographic movie was being telecast, police said.

Station manager Candace Cox confirmed that an unauthorized movie depicting nudity in the nude was on the air for about five minutes shortly after 8 a.m. but was unable to explain how it happened.

Ginzburg Sent To Prison

MOSCOW (AP) — Imprisoned dissident Alexander Ginzburg is in good spirits despite difficult conditions at the "special regimen" labor camp where he has begun serving an eight-year term, according to his wife.

Irina Ginzburg, who visited her husband at the Sosnovka prison camp, said he was being kept in a mice-infested room with water seeping down the walls. Ginzburg spends eight hours a day cutting glass, without protection for his hands or lungs.

Mrs. Ginzburg said her husband would continue to work for human rights in the Soviet Union.

Ginzburg, 41, who for more than two years administered a fund set up by exiled author Alexander Solzhenitsyn to aid Soviet dissidents, was convicted in July on charges of "anti-soviet agitation and propaganda."

Egyptian Temple Viewed

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Mondale visited the Egyptian Temple of Dendur on Wednesday, which has been erected in the new Sackler Wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The museum's president, William Macomber, and its director, Philippe de Montebello, guided the vice president's wife through the temple which was built in 15 B.C., and moved here stone-by-stone.

Mrs. Mondale said the temple was "fascinating."

The temple was donated to the United States by the Egyptian government in 1965 following a $16 million U.S. contribution toward saving monuments along the Nile.

Caesar Augustus built the temple along the banks of the Nile at the village of Dendur to honor his two drowned brothers.

Police Seek Road Hog

WOODSTOCK, Vt. (AP) — No wanted posters or roadblocks have been set up. But police are on the lookout for a missing Woodstock resident.

Weight? Average. Height? Average. Matter of fact, Police Chief George Pike says all characteristics are average — for a hog, that is.

Pike says the missing hog was last seen riding in the back of a truck.

Pike says that when the driver stopped the truck at a drive-in restaurant in West Woodstock, the animal was gone.

The chief asks anyone who has seen a hog that looks out of place to contact him.

Atones For Football Fraud

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A Des Moines, Iowa, man, troubled by his conscience, has replaced the football he fraudulently obtained 15 years ago.

In 1963 D. Curtis Hale was an 11-year-old newspaper carrier who wanted to win a football being offered as a prize in a subscription-selling contest.

Having sold only two of the five subscriptions he needed to win, Hale told the newspaper that three of his old customers were new customers.

Last week, the Tulsa World received a check from Hale to reimburse the newspaper for "the cost of what a comparable football would be today." In a telephone interview, Hale said he had forgotten the incident until he recently underwent a religious experience and the incident recurred to him.

The newspaper used Hale's check to buy a new football for a local group of third and fourth graders.

'Grass' Flunks Exam

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — A microscopic examination in a biology lab turned into a police interrogation for a Wenatchee High School student.

The class assignment last Friday was inspecting fungi. But a 15-year-old student was charged with possession of marijuana after the biology teacher discovered the "grass" that he was intently studying was the wrong specimen.

Queen's Aircraft Assailed

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II, flies in engagements in 14-year-old turbo-props because the government is too mean to buy jets for her, an aviation writer said Wednesday.

"The queen is flying in slower, older aircraft than any other head of state in the Western and probably the Eastern world," editor Michael Ransden wrote in "Flight International" weekly. He said the government rejected modern jet replacements in 1972 and again in 1978.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said that for long hauls, royalty flies by Royal Air Force VC-10 or Concorde, but for hundreds of short hops each year the queen uses Hawker Siddeley Andovers "because she likes them."

Ransden said the cost of trading the Andovers for jets could be partly offset by selling the Andovers to the Americans.

National Cancer Institute Plans Testing Of Laetrile On Humans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute wants to test Laetrile on several hundred advanced cancer patients in an effort to resolve "once and for all" the debate about the controversial substance, the institute's director announced Wednesday.

Dr. Arthur C. Upton said a human trial was justified in the wake of a recent, inconclusive review of the medical records of patients who used Laetrile, which some claim is a cancer cure.

The institute launched a nationwide appeal for records from Laetrile patients last January. It got 93 responses, but only 22 provided all the necessary records and involved patients who had used only Laetrile. Of those 22, six cancer patients who used Laetrile showed improvement, nine stayed the same, and seven got worse.

The Food and Drug Administration, which has led a federal fight against Laetrile, still must approve the Cancer Institute's plan to use Laetrile in the human experiment. FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said he did not believe the institutes review of the 22 cases "demonstrates any effectiveness of Laetrile."

Kennedy added, however, "There are other reasons that we all recognize why a controlled clinical trial might be desirable and NCI has been persuaded by them."

The FDA has been under pressure from Laetrile supporters who want the substance tested. Kennedy said the FDA would review the cancer institute's request objectively and decide "as quickly as possible."

Upton noted that proponents of Laetrile claimed 50,000 to 70,000 Americans have used the substance, which is made from the pits of apricots and other fruits.

"By virtue of the fact that thousands of people are now receiving Laetrile and the fact that we have this evidence, inconclusive as it may be, in humans, we can justify a trial to resolve the matter once and for all," Upton told 200 institute workers and reporters.

The cancer institute's action comes 15 years after it was first asked to test Laetrile in humans. Upton noted that repeated tests in animals have produced no evidence that Laetrile can reduce the size of tumors.

He admitted, however, that the results of animal tests do not always hold true for humans.

Upton said a minimum of 300 patients would be tested. He did not say they would all be terminal patients, but said only those for whom all other known therapies had failed would be asked to participate.

Other institute officials said the tests would involve groups of 15 to 30 patients with one of 10 different types of cancer.

The tests would be conducted at major medical centers around the country where doctors normally try out new cancer treatments under contracts from the cancer institute.

Upton said he believed there would be no shortage of patients willing to give Laetrile a try. He said he would "not rule out the possibility of looking at combinations" of Laetrile used with high potency vitamins that many of the drug's boosters recommend.

The tests are not likely to start before early next year, and would last about six months, Upton said.

Kennedy 'Hit' Report Explored By Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Cuban exile who once quoted a reputed organized crime chief as boasting that John F. Kennedy was "going to be hit," told House investigators Wednesday that the term probably did not mean the president was marked for murder.

But when committee lawyers questioned Jose Aleman, he acknowledged he was modifying the story about Kennedy being "hit" and said he feared for his safety.

Aleman, who once fought with Fidel Castro's guerrillas, testified that he sold a hotel he owned in Miami and went into hiding after his initial story was published in 1976 in the Washington Post.

Aleman attributed the statement on Kennedy's impending death to Santos Trafficante, a reputed Tampa Mafia chief, during a meeting in which the two men discussed a business loan.

Aleman said the meeting occurred in June or July 1963 and that instead of talking about business, Trafficante talked for hours about problems he was having with the Kennedy administration's crackdown on organized crime.

In his testimony, Aleman said he still thinks Trafficante said during the meeting that Kennedy "is going to be hit." But he said he did not think at the time that Trafficante was referring to a murder plot.

He quoted Trafficante as saying at one point that Kennedy would not remain president, and Aleman said he replied that he thought otherwise.

"He said, 'Jose, you don't understand me. He's not going to be re-elected. He's going to be hit,'" Aleman testified. But Aleman then said he thought at the time that Trafficante meant that Kennedy would be "hit" with "a lot of votes for the Republican Party or something like that."

"That was 15 years ago," Aleman said. "I think that was the wording he put. I am not positive about it."

Under intensive questioning by committee counsel Gary Cornwell, Aleman said the newspaper article was "out of context in some ways" by suggesting the reference to "hit" meant Kennedy was a possible assassination target.

Cornwell then read to Aleman a staff report quoting him as telling an investigator that he "was given the impression that he (Trafficante) knew Kennedy was going to be killed."

"No way," Aleman interrupted. "By no way possible can you think that ... if I heard that something was going to happen in that respect, I would not have notified the proper authorities."

Aleman insisted he is not positive that Trafficante used the words once attributed to him. Even if Trafficante made such a statement, Aleman said, it was possible he misunderstood it.

Cornwell reminded Aleman that he had told a staff investigator he was certain Trafficante was hinting that Kennedy would be killed and asked Aleman if he is now concerned about his safety.

"Of course," Aleman replied. "Trafficante Rehearsal Finished Despite Tragedy"

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Mezzo-soprano Marilyn Horne, a star of the Metropolitan Opera, went ahead with a dress rehearsal here hours after learning that her brother Richard had died in the worst disaster in U.S. aviation history.

Miss Horne is to sing today in the Edmonton Opera Company's season-opening production.

Her brother, assistant superintendent of Los Angeles County schools, died Monday in the crash of a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 which collided with a small plane over San Diego.

cante is coming to this committee, is that not true? All this time I have been concerned about my safety."

Trafficante had been scheduled to testify later Wednesday, but his appearance was postponed until today following a lengthy break in the proceeding.

The committee heard conflicting testimony on whether Jack Ruby was "just a nobody from the ghettos of Chicago" — as he often claimed — or was deeply involved with alleged underworld figures.

The panel questioned Lewis McWillie, a Las Vegas gambler and onetime Ruby friend, after chief counsel Robert Blakey reported that Ruby had made a series of "suspicious" telephone calls to alleged crime syndicate figures in August 1963, several weeks before Kennedy's assassination in Dallas.

Blakey said investigators determined there was a "dramatic upsurge" in such long distance calls placed in October and November 1963 by Ruby, the pudgy manager of a Dallas striptease club.

House investigators explored why Ruby, described by friends and associates as basically a loner, talked by telephone with at least five alleged crime syndicate figures during that period.

Evidence has shown that the crime syndicate at the time was the target of an intensive Justice Department investigation under Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy.

Blakey reported that many of the 171 calls Ruby made during those months dealt with labor troubles at his nightclub.

Nonetheless, the committee pushed ahead with its effort to learn more about the enigmatic Ruby, who shared Lee Harvey Oswald's place in virtual obscurity before Kennedy was slain on Nov. 22, 1963.

Ruby entered the picture two days later when, in full view of television cameras, he penetrated police barricades and shot Oswald to death as the president's accused assassin was being escorted from the Dallas city jail to a county jail.

The Warren Commission concluded that both Oswald and Ruby were crazed individuals who had no assistance in committing their acts of violence.

Texas, New Mexico Congressmen's Votes Noted

HOUSE

ETHICS BILL Rejected, 97 for and 290 against, an amendment to remove the limit on House members' outside income, which is scheduled to take effect in January. The amendment was proposed to a bill (HR 13850) establishing a federal ethics code that requires financial disclosure by high officials of all three branches. A final vote on the bill was delayed at least one week.

Under the limit, a House member's "earned" supplemental income cannot exceed 15 percent of his congressional pay. At today's House salary of $57,500, the maximum outside figure is $8,625. Earned income is a salary, fee or honorarium. Excluded from the limit is

Censure Of Solon Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee Wednesday recommended the House censure Rep. Edward R. Roybal and that it reprimand Rep. Charles H. Wilson for their roles in the so-called South Korean influence-buying scandals.

The recommendation to censure Roybal came on a 9-0 vote. The vote to reprimand Wilson came on an 8-1 vote with one member voting present.

The findings of fact against the two California Democrats were the first returned by the committee since it began its probe of the scandal nearly two years ago.

Committee chairman John J. Flynt Jr., D-Ga., said he hoped to bring both matters to the floor of the House for a vote within a week. The actual timing, he said, would depend on how long it took to get the committee findings printed.

The committee recommendation that Roybal be censured was based on a finding that he accepted and failed to report properly a $1,000 campaign contribution from Tongson Park, that he diverted the funds to his own use and that he lied when he originally testified that he had received nothing of value from the South Korean rice dealer.

The recommendation of a reprimand against Wilson came on an allegation that he lied to the committee when he denied that he ever received any funds from Park. Wilson later amended his original sworn statement to acknowledge that he received about $1000 from Park as a wedding gift after Wilson married a South Korean woman.

Censure is stronger than a reprimand — the weakest form of punishment for violations of the House. It normally requires that the congressman stand in front of the full House while the findings against him are read.

A reprimand does not normally require that he be present when the findings are read.

The last House censure was in 1921 against Rep. Thomas Blanton of Texas, who was accused of introducing an obscene resolution.

The committee agreed by identical 9-0 votes that all three counts against Roybal had been sustained by the weight of evidence. It cleared Roybal of a fourth charge — that he also lied when he later told the committee that he put the money into the general cash flow of his re-election campaign. That vote was 6-2 with one member voting present.

Roybal called the censure recommendation "regrettable" but noted the committee had ruled that he violated only House rules and not federal law when he made his conflicting statements.

Wilson was not available for comment.

Roybal was one of four present House members accused by the committee of violating House rules in connection with the alleged scandal. He could have faced punishment ranging from a reprimand to dismissal from House membership. The committee also could have decided to turn the case over to the Justice Department for possible federal action.

None of the four faces federal charges. The Justice Department probe is separate from the committee's probe.

In closing arguments, John Niels, attorney for the committee, argued that Roybal had consistently lied to cover up his receipt and diversion of the funds.

"Congressman Roybal has lied to this committee, lied to this institution repeatedly, and his latest version of the facts is also untrue," Niels said.

Richard Hibey, attorney for Roybal, conceded that Roybal received the cash but argued he did not intentionally lie about it and that his earlier conflicting statements were the result of a faulty memory.

"What you have before you is not a liar but an honest man who has made an honest mistake, an error in judgment, and is not the perjurer he is being painted by the staff," Hibey said.

Hibey also said there was no evidence that Roybal actually diverted the cash.

"unearned income" such as interest, stock and bond dividends and income from a family business to which the member devotes little time.

Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn., the sponsor, said: "I for one deeply resent the suggestion that earned income is unethical and needs to be restricted. Good people are leaving, other good people will not want to seek membership in the body. The country will suffer for it."

Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., said "we have priced ourselves out of the mainstream concept of representation...our salaries are too high, very much too high."

Members voting "yea" wanted to remove the limit on House members' outside income.

Reps. Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jack High-tower, D-13, Omar Burleson, D-17, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Dale Milford, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, Bill Archer, R-7, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jake Pickle, D-10, W.R. Poage, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Barbara Jordan, D-18, George Mahon, D-19, Bob Gammage, D-22, and Abraham Kazen, D-23, voted "nay."

Reps. Manuel Lujan, R-1, and Harold Runnels, D-2, voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague, D-6, John Young, D-14, and Robert Krueger, D-21, did not vote.

'REVOLVING DOOR' Rejected, 112 for and 259 against, an amendment to allow unrestricted contact between former high-ranking executive branch officials and the government agency they formerly worked for. It sought to kill language in the new ethics code (HR 13850, see above vote) prohibiting such "revolving door" contact for one year after the official has left his or her federal job.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., a supporter, said it is "extremely important that we get high-class people in the agencies. If we are going to get (them), we are going to have to permit them to proceed from that agency to a practice in which they can be useful and effective."

Rep. George Danielson, D-Calif. an opponent of the amendment, called the one-year prohibition "a very wholesome, very realistic restriction on conflict of interest."

Members voting "yea" favored removing the restriction on contact between former executive branch employees and their old agency.

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, White, Jordan, Gonzalez, Gammage, Kazen and Milford voted "yea."

Wilson, Mattox, Poage, Wright, Hightower and Mahon voted "nay."

Lujan and Runnels vote "nay." Teague, Young, de la Garza, Burleson and Krueger did not vote.

AIRPLANE NOISE Passed, 272 for and 123 against, a bill to cut aircraft noise, chiefly by helping domestic and foreign airlines pay for replacing older, noisier planes with newer, quieter ones. The necessary money would be raised by diverting a portion of passenger and freight taxes and other airline taxes to carriers flying in the U.S. Estimates are that domestic carriers could receive $3 billion for noise abatement, and foreign carriers up to $1 billion. The taxation plan would last until late 1983. Airlines have until 1985 to comply with federal noise standards. The bill (HR 8729) was sent to the Senate.

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-11, a supporter, said: "Two-thirds of the estimated $8 billion cost for complying with the governmental mandate will be at airline expense with the other one-third being paid by a noise pollution tax on passengers and shippers. The general taxpayer will pay nothing."

Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, an opponent, questioned the bill's constitutionality and impact on the balance-of-payments deficit. "I do not think that the American taxpayers would particularly appreciate this type of foreign aid program in which American tax money is used to retrofit the fleets of foreign nationals," he said.

Members voting "yea" favored the taxation plan to help airlines meet federal noise standards.

Lujan and Runnels voted "yea." Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, Young, White, Burleson, Gammage and Milford voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Poage, de la Garza, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez and Kazen voted "nay."

SENATE
PUBLIC BROADCASTING Rejected,

20 for and 63 against, an amendment to bring about more frequent congressional review of Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) budget requests. The amendment was proposed to a bill that authorizes funding for public radio and television stations and seeks technological advances (such as clearer television reception) to enlarge the public broadcasting audience. The bill (HR 12605) was passed and sent to conference with the House.

At issue here was the system of multi-year appropriations set up years ago to insulate public broadcasting from congressional pressure on program content. Existing law authorizes CPB funding through fiscal 1980. HR 12605 extends the authorization three additional years, to a total of five years. The amendment was an attempt to kill the extension.

Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich, sponsor of the amendment, said: "The courts have ruled that Congress has an oversight responsibility with respect to public broadcasting... We advocate this responsibility if we do not exercise that oversight authority" at more frequent intervals than required by HR 12605.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., an opponent, said: "What we are trying to do is give stability to public broadcastings... We have never been able to guarantee absolute political independence. That is what we are doing under this five-year proposal."

Senators voting "nay" favored less frequent congressional review of the public broadcasting budget.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "nay." Sen. John Tower, R, did not vote.

Sens. Harrison Schmitt, R, and Peter Domenici, R, voted "yea."

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., an opponent, said: "What we are trying to do is give stability to public broadcastings... We have never been able to guarantee absolute political independence. That is what we are doing under this five-year proposal."

Senators voting "yea" wanted Congress to cap public broadcasting salaries. Bentsen voted "nay." Tower did not vote. Schmitt and Domenici voted "yea."

NATURAL GAS Refused, 39 for and 59 against, to kill the natural gas pricing bill being sent it back to a House-Senate conference committee. The vote removed the major obstacle to enactment of the measure this year. The bill (HR 5280), a part of the Administration's national energy plan, was headed toward a final Senate vote and consideration in the House.

It would remove federal price controls on natural gas in 1985, increase supplies to regions that have suffered gas shortages in recent years, lessen — U.S. dependence on foreign energy and greatly raise residential and industrial rates.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, sponsor of the motion to send the bill back to committee said: "The only argument that has been made for it is that it is the only bill in town. It is a C-minus bill" that hits hardest at residential users.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., an opponent of the motion and supporter of the bill, said: "An energy policy that will help us to reduce our dependence on foreign oil and on imports of foreign gas should generate international support for the dollar."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, the sponsor, said: "I think it is fair to say that the American people are not interested in paying public broadcasting executives exorbitantly high salaries."

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., an opponent, said the Corporation for Public Broadcasting "is a private entity, without political influence, and let us try to treat it as such. If we start legislating salary limitations, we treat it as a governmental entity."

Third Plane Doubtful Factor

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A federal investigator said Wednesday it now "appears remote" that a third plane confused the pilot of a jetliner seconds before he collided with a single-engine Cessna. He said it remained a mystery what the pilot meant when he told the tower, "They've passed."

The third plane, a twin-engine Cessna, actually was eight miles west of the area where the Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 and a single-engine Cessna 172 collided on approach to Lindbergh Field on Monday morning, said National Transportation Safety Board investigator Phillip Hogue.

At least 150 persons were killed, including all 135 persons aboard the jet, both persons in the small plane and 13 persons on the ground, making it the worst air disaster in U.S. history.

Investigators said the death toll among those on the ground could go higher as coroners' deputies continued trying to identify bodies. Many victims were mutilated and deputies were seeking dental charts for identification.

"It may be days before we know exactly how many actually died while going about their business," said Warren Chambers, a deputy San Diego county coroner.

"We can pick out people who lived in that particular area who are missing and apparently died but that doesn't rule out the possibility of a number more."

Investigators still were trying to determine the fate of a mother and her child who apparently were in the North Park neighborhood where the planes crashed. The woman's estranged husband reported them missing.

"We think a mother and her child may also have been killed as they drove to a baby sitter's home," said Chambers. "We think we've found their car in the debris," he said.

On Wednesday, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and a number of other state officials attended a memorial service in Los Angeles for Valerie Kantor, one of the persons aboard the PSA jet. She was the wife of Mickey Kantor, manager of Brown's 1976 presidential campaign bid.

Hogue had said Tuesday that taped conversations indicated that Lindbergh traffic controllers told the PSA pilot, James McFeron, that a small plane was also making an approach to the field.

McFeron told the tower, "They've passed," Hogue said Tuesday. At that time Hogue indicated the tower remark referred to the twin-engine Cessna and he suggested McFeron may have been unaware that there was actually another small plane in the area — the Cessna with which he collided three miles from Lindbergh.

But when the twin-engine Cessna was located, it was determined the aircraft was eight miles west of where the crash occurred, Hogue said Wednesday.

"Whether it (the twin-engine Cessna) would be a factor seems remote at this

Disputed Electric Line Completed

HOWARD LAKE, Minn. (AP) — The final tower is in place for a 427-mile, high-voltage power line from North Dakota to southern Minnesota that has been the object of numerous protests from groups fearing it will be hazardous and will lower property values.

The tower was completed Tuesday northwest of Howard Lake, and officials said the 400,000-volt line will be operational by the first of the year. It will carry power from a coal-fired plant in Underwood, N.D., to a substation in Delano, Minn., for redistribution to 33 member cooperatives. In January, Gov. Rudy Perpich called out 200 state troopers to protect workers on the line. The troopers remained on duty in west-central Minnesota into March.

time. It would seem to eliminate the third aircraft but I can't eliminate it totally."

The probable elimination of the third plane theory "still leaves the questions of who or what he (McFeron) saw," Hogue said. "We've got pieces of the puzzle. We're trying to put them together."

The twin-engine plane, a Cessna 401, was from Brown Field, a small airstrip near the Mexican border and about 20 miles south of Lindbergh Field downtown.

Charlie Farrar, one of two men aboard the Cessna 401, said Wednesday that his plane was over Mission Bay when he heard the report of a crash.

HOW HOOD CUT PILOT'S VIEW — This photograph, taken in the cockpit of a single-engine Cessna like the one which collided Monday with a jetliner over San Diego, shows how a student pilot's vision is restricted by a special helmet. The hood-like visor meant the pilot probably was unable to see the airliner, investigators said. (AP Laserphoto)

Flight Involved In Crash Banned At Most Airports

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A survey of seven major U.S. airports showed that only one allows the type of practice instrument approach that was being attempted by the small plane involved in Monday's collision with a jetliner here, the San Diego Union reported Wednesday.

The newspaper said that of the seven, the only airport allowing such landings is National Airport in Washington, D.C., where a spokesman said such approaches are "discouraged but not banned."

A single-engine Cessna 172 with two men aboard was making practice instrument approaches to Lindbergh Field before it collided with a Pacific Southwest Airlines 727 jetliner.

At least 150 people died in the worst air tragedy in U.S. history.

Instrument landings are employed by pilots when visibility near airports is poor. While practicing such landings, a person taking instruction would normally wear a hood-like visor that prevents a view of everything but the instrument panel. The instructor or other licensed pilot in the plane would have an unimpeded view.

Bruce Chambers of the Federal Aviation Administration said practice approaches are "normal activity" for major metropolitan airports.

However, the newspaper said, such approaches are banned at O'Hare Airport in Chicago, JFK International in New York, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Francisco International, Logan International in Boston and Los Angeles International.

Royal Mink, an FAA spokesman, said there is less air traffic at JFK, Logan, San Francisco and National than at Lindbergh Field.

In San Diego, local authorities lack the power to restrict practice approaches, Lindbergh manager M.A. McDonald said, adding that "only the FAA controls the airways."

An FAA spokesman in Washington, D.C., said Tuesday that the Cessna involved in the collision with the jetliner was practicing at Lindbergh because that field is the only airport in San Diego County that can handle instrument approaches.

Lindbergh Field handled 375,360 aircraft operations in 1977, making it the nation's 17th busiest airport in both general and commercial use, according to FAA figures.

Texas Rail Workers Obeying Court Back-To-Work Orders

By The Associated Press
Pickets started coming down Wednesday at the Texas depots and yards of major railroads as workers obeyed court injunctions to end a two-day sympathy strike. Operations were reported getting back to normal at some North Texas points, but pickets were still reported up late Wednesday in Houston, where Santa Fe, Burlington Northern and Missouri Pacific were affected.

The railroad clerks union, involved in a drawn-out strike with the Norfolk and Western Railway based in Virginia, asked for help and got it nationwide as other unions on 43 railroads honored its picket lines.

The railroads immediately went to court for relief.

The strike crippled most freight operations in Texas and shut down two AMTRAK passenger trains.

Some railroad spokesmen said Wednesday they felt the problems of the continued picketing was caused by the logistics of serving the court order to the union leaders.

Loren Simmons, a spokesman for Santa Fe in Dallas, said Wednesday afternoon the pickets had been removed "at some places" in its system. Santa Fe used supervisory personnel to make up about 80 crews.

Simmons said those 80 crews probably operated about a third as many trains as usually run on the line.

The Dallas-based Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad (Katy), the Cotton Belt and the Burlington Northern were affected in Texas, but the Fort Worth & Denver, Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific were among those not affected.

The Katy obtained a federal court injunction in Kansas City Tuesday, but spokesman Jerry Sheridan said it was Wednesday before the order was obeyed. The Katy ran at "about 30 percent capacity with supervisory personnel," Sheridan said.

Workers on the Frisco line worked Tuesday but put up pickets Wednesday at Fort Worth, Sherman and Irving. They came down quickly when railroad officials showed them a court order.

"We're now back in full force," said trainmaster Ted Bourzikas.

Tuesday's Amtrak train to Chicago was shut down because it is serviced by Santa Fe, but the New Orleans-Los Angeles route continued operations because it is serviced by Southern Pacific, a line unaffected by the strike.

Amtrak spokesmen said about 15 passengers on the canceled Chicago run were placed on buses.

Industry sources in Houston reported minimal effects so far, but officials at export grain elevators said a strike of several days could have significant impact on operations.

Railroads not targeted by the strikers, such as Southern Pacific, were affected in various degrees because they could not interchange cars with strike-bound railroads.

Many U.S. Workmen Said Facing Layoffs If Strike Fails To End

By The Associated Press
From Nebraska farmers about to harvest crops, to Michigan auto workers facing shorter workdays or layoffs, to harried commuters in Chicago and San Francisco, the second day of a nationwide rail strike threatened economic disruption across the nation on Wednesday.

Both General Motors and Ford Motor Co. said they planned to cut back operations and lay off workers at facilities where parts shipments have not arrived.

There were reports that perhaps 10,000 auto workers might be put on short days. GM officials warned that most of its assembly operations could grind to a halt if the strike drags into the weekend.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken wired Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, warning him that the strike was producing industrial slowdowns in his state which "will soon have a devastating effect on Michigan's economy unless resolved immediately."

The American Association of Railroads estimated that shipments of coal were down 70 percent, grain 65 percent, and motor vehicles and parts 30 percent because of the strike.

The strike could not have come at a worse time for Midwest farmers, about to harvest record crops of corn, grain sorghum and soybeans, according to agriculture officials.

"The strike can't possibly help farmers," said Dr. Mike Turner, a grain market economist at the University of Nebraska. "In theory there is enough storage in the state for the new grain crop, but it somehow never works out that way in actual practice. This will mean some grain piled on the ground unless the strike ends soon."

Prices of some grains rose Wednesday on the commodity futures markets, and traders cited uncertainty over the effects the strike would have on supplies.

The coal industry is among the economic sectors most dependent on rail transportation, and the strike has meant that Pittston Co., a leading coal producer, is 60 percent shut down. Charles Bradford, an industry analyst at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, says coal miners face many more layoffs if the strike lasts much longer.

A Louisville & Nashville Railroad spokesman warned that many businesses in Tennessee would have to shut down if the strike continued.

"About 75 percent of our outbound shipping is done by rail," said William A. Porter, general plant manager at the 850-employee Kellogg cereal plant in Memphis, who warned that "we're in trouble" if the strike lasts much longer.

There was hope in sight in Chicago, however, where 100,000 commuters rely daily on trains. Picket lines came down Wednesday from the Milwaukee Road, the Chicago and Northwestern and Burlington Northern Railroads that serve the city.

Old Books Bring Top Prices

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — A unique copy of Chaucer's "The Canterbury Tales," the first illustrated account of Columbus' journey to America and King Henry VIII's prayer book were three of 16 world-famous books and manuscripts sold at auction here Wednesday.

The works were put up for sale by Charles Penrose, whose father, the late Boies Penrose of Devon, Pa., started the Penrose collection in the 1930s.

London antiquarian booksellers Bernard Quaritch Ltd., made the top bid of the day, paying $128,378 for the Chaucer copy, known as the Delamere manuscript.

The manuscript, written about 1450, once belonged to the first Baron Delamere and stayed in the English family from the county of Cheshire until 1929. Experts said it was one of the most important pieces of early English literature ever offered for auction.

The Columbus account fetched $12,837, three times its estimated value. The buyer was the Paris bookseller Baer.

Henry VIII's prayer book, entitled

"Psalms or Prayers," was printed in 1544 on vellum and illustrated with the king's coat of arms. It was bought for $65,540 by Maggs Brothers Ltd., of London.

The auction, conducted at Basel's Haus der Bucher, also included a copy of Dante's "Divine Comedy," which sold for $43,918, and numerous first publications. Among them were Higden's "Polycricon" and works by Roman orator-writer Marcus Tullius Cicero.

A 40-kiloton nuclear explosion under the western slope of the Colorado Rockies was set off in 1969 to free a vast store of natural gas.

Sinai Settlers Resigned To Loss Of Arid Utopia

FUTURE IN QUESTION — Deputy Mayor Yigal Karni, right, shows visitors new apartment houses in the Sinai settlement of Sharm El Sheikh in this 1974 photo. Lives of many Israelis residing on occupied Arab land such as this may be disrupted by the Mideast peace agreements signed at Camp David. (AP Laserphoto)

SHARM EL SHEIKH, Occupied Sinai (AP) — Yasov Bar-Levy came to the southern tip of the Sinai Peninsula to get away from it all, but the Camp David accords mean he probably will have to leave his sun-baked utopia for the sake of peace.

Bar-Levy, a 31-year-old mechanical engineer, is one of many Israelis whose life on occupied Arab land may be disrupted because of Mideast peace agreements signed by Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat at far off Camp David.

Bar-Levy didn't move to Sharm El Sheikh with any political aims. "I saw no way I could waste my energy in the city, rushing to the office, waiting for stoplights, running after all the exhibitionism of clothing, furniture and other material things," he said.

So in 1976 he gave up his job in Haifa and brought his wife, Zavit, to the settlement of Ophira where it's summer most of the year and temperatures can top 110 degrees.

The Bar-Levys run a youth hostel that serves thousands of diving enthusiasts that come to Sharm El Sheikh for the underwater wonderland off the Red Sea coast.

"It was clear to us that we couldn't stay here forever," he said. "But it's one thing if we reached the conclusion ourselves and another if the government comes and tells us to leave. But of course it's a positive thing — for peace — there's no question that we'd leave.

"For an Israeli no peace means war, and war means death. We've had too much of that already."

The Ophira settlement, with a population of 300 families, was started six years ago to house military personnel. But investors also wanted to capitalize on the tourist potential of the area. The town is 145 miles south of the Israeli port city of Eilat and too far away to receive Israeli television broadcasts. Newspapers arrive a day late and water is piped in from 90 miles away.

"When you first come here you think this is the end of the world," said Bar-Levy. "But after you're here awhile you see how much fuller life can be."

Moshav Neviot, about halfway between Eilat and Sharm El Sheikh, is another budding resort that attracts thousands of Israeli and European tourists seeking the sun and the coral-lined beaches along the Gulf of Aqaba.

"I think it wouldn't be a tragedy if Sadat would agree to allow a settlement like this to remain," said Avishai Kafkafi, 28, who runs the sailing club at Neviot. "We don't harm anyone. We've created a beautiful place here that contributes to all."

The farmers among the 40 Neviot families grow melons and flowers for export. Only four months ago the settlers opened a guest house with 100 rooms. "It's a real shame that just now that we're entering a real development stage we'll have to stop," said Kafkafi. "I think we have to give the Arabs their honor, but at the same time I don't think we have to fold up completely."

Aharon Eiram, a 35-year-old Neviot farmer, was resigned to abandoning the settlement when the area is returned to Egypt.

"With all the heartache, we'll leave here," Eiram said. "No one thinks about opposing the government or the army."

Private investors will get their money back from the government. But for farmers like Eiram, the possibility of compensation doesn't make it easier to leave.

"A lot of people tell us: 'You'll get a lot of money.' It doesn't interest us. We didn't come here for money," Eiram said.

Kafkafi has hopes that perhaps Egypt would agree to lease the resort and let Israelis stay and run it if peace comes.

"I had plans for expanding the marina and setting up direct weekend flights from the north," he said. "There's no reason people couldn't fly from Cairo as well. It would be a much more mature approach rather than tearing down the resort."

Paddlings Earn Principal Reassignment

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A principal who gave every sixth-grade boy in his school three whacks with a paddle because none would confess to writing an obscene word on a bathroom door has been reassigned to an office job.

Principal Willie Young was removed from the post he has held two years at West Jacksonville Sixth Grade Center and will begin work Thursday in the testing and evaluation division of the Jacksonville public schools system.

Parents of most of the boys who felt the sting of Young's paddle apparently were satisfied with the reassignment. But one father, T.C. Harrell, said, "I think he owes a personal apology to every kid."

Superintendent Herb Sang said Young admitted he gave each of the 71 boys three whacks on the bottom with a paddle Monday afternoon.

"His motives were all right. His procedures were bad," Sang said. "He broke school board policy."

The superintendent said Young also used a form of mass punishment "earlier this year when he made a large number of girls run laps around the track because someone threw toilet paper in a bathroom. He learned the guilty one then."

School spokesman Robert Gregory said that on another occasion during Young's six years as a principal in the system he had paddled 25 boys.

Gregory said, "he made a statement to us that he had threatened to paddle every boy if none confessed, and he felt he had ran the rest of the way on crutches.

Two miles from the end, struggling against pain and exhaustion, Benson shouted to Sheila McGuire, "We're going to finish. We're going to finish."

Race sponsor Lee Flaherty said that out of an estimated 10,000 runners who started, "approximately 6,000 finished."

STEEL MARKET EXPANDING

The Steel Service Center Institute predicts the nation's metal service centers will market about 10 percent more steel and other metal products in 1978 than in the previous year.

to go through with the threat to maintain discipline and his credibility."

Young, who also is pastor of Midway African Methodist Episcopal Church, could not be reached for comment.

Sang said Young will hold the testing post at least until the end of the school year June 30.

"A decision will be made at a later date on his future beyond that," the superintendent said.

Young has tenure as a teacher and could be fired from the system only through a complex dismissal procedure.

Amputee Gets Award For Finishing Race

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Benson, who started the Mayor Daley Marathon running on a special artificial leg and finished the 26-mile, 385-yard course on crutches, has received an award for his performance.

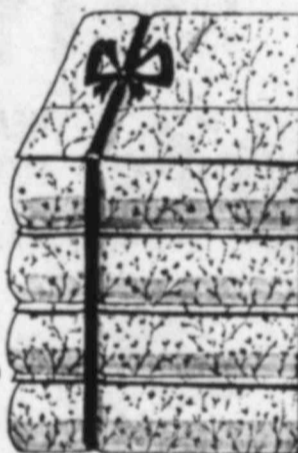

The former 28-year-old Marine who lost his left leg in Vietnam crossed the finished line Sunday in 9 hours, 47 minutes.

Benson had been training for months for the race. He had designed a special artificial leg, but it became soaked with sweat and wouldn't function properly after about nine miles into the race. He

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am 52. My wife is 47. We both work. We have our own home, with only $10,000 left to pay on the mortgage. We have $20,000 in the bank and have decided to invest in the stock market for our retirement. We do not know about stocks and would like you to recommend five or six stocks we can invest in and leave for 13 years. We hope the stocks will grow. What do you advise?

A. Don't do it — certainly not in the way your letter indicates you are thinking about. To put your entire savings — or even a major part of it — into stocks in one fell swoop would be a terrible mistake.

Let's back off and take things nice and easy. You can invest some money, on a gradual basis, much more sensibly than the slam-bam way you write about.

If you want to buy individual stocks, I suggest you visit several brokerage firms. Explain your situation. Listen to the broker's suggestions. If you like what you hear, open an account and invest. If you don't walk out. Under no circumstances, allow yourself to be rushed into putting all of your money into the market at once. $2,500 or so at a time would be about tops for you.

Because you are wise enough to admit you know nothing about the market, you should look at mutual funds which would give you indirect ownership of many stocks under professional management. Take an extra long look at the no-load funds, on which no commission is charged.

Q. My late brother's will left all his stocks to his girlfriend. Everything else he owned was willed to my two sisters and me. However, he had about $15,000 in mutual funds, which were not mentioned in the will.

A. My brother's girlfriend claims that the mutual funds are stock and should go to her. We say the funds are not stock. What is your opinion?

A. It's that the lawyers are going to have a heyday on this one. All I can tell you is this:

You say your brother "had about $15,000 in mutual funds." That means he owned shares of mutual fund stock worth that amount of money. I don't know any other way he could have had money in the funds. A mutual fund's ownership is represented by shares of stock. People who have money in the fund are stockholders. That's all there is to it.

Q. I have Series E U.S. Savings Bonds with a current total value of $36,000. I plan to start cashing in 6 percent of the bonds each year. How long will it be before I have only one bond, worth $36,000?

A. Unless you have a $10,000 E bond, it won't happen in an ordinary mortal's lifetime. The first $10,000 E bond — purchased for $7,500 — was issued in May 1952. As I write this, it is worth $22,216.

Before May 1952, the largest denomination E bond was $1,000. The first $1,000 E bond — issued in May 1941 — now has a value of $2,998.

I assume your plan is to take the current rate of E bond interest — 6 percent

Banks Joining Interest Rate Increase Move

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major New York banks joined the move to the third rise in the prime interest rate in less than a month Wednesday, raising the rate they charge preferred corporate customers to borrow money from 9 1/4 percent to 9 3/4 percent.

Although it does not have a direct effect on consumer loan rates, the prime can have a psychological influence.

Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., the fourth largest, Chemical Bank, the nation's sixth largest, and Bank of New York and European-American Bank made the move, following the lead of First National Bank of Chicago and First Pennsylvania Bank in Philadelphia, which raised their prime Monday.

Similar moves are expected to be made by most major banks in the next few days, as the prime rises to its highest point in more than three years.

The prime last stood at 9 1/4 percent in January 1974. It has risen eight times this year from a Jan. 1 point of 7 1/2 percent.

The latest rise in the prime follows moves by the Federal Reserve to raise its key interest rates. The rate for federal funds — the uncommitted reserves banks lend each other — rose from 8 1/2 percent to 9 percent, while the discount rate — the rate charged by the Fed on loans to member banks — went from 7 1/2 percent to 8 percent.

The Fed has been seeking interest rate rises in an effort to cut down on inflation by limiting the amount of money in circulation.

Vietnam Talks Suspended
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Chinese negotiators to talks on the ethnic Chinese problem in Vietnam left Hanoi for Peking Wednesday, saying the talks were "indefinitely suspended" after eight rounds, according to a Voice of Vietnam broadcast monitored here. Relations between the two countries have deteriorated in recent months since 160,000 ethnic Chinese fled Vietnam, saying they had been persecuted by the Vietnamese.

Security Vaults Suggested As Gifts

DALLAS (AP) — Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas specialty store that prides itself on accommodating customers who have everything, now can tell them where to stick it.

For Christmas this year it is offering the ultimate in security for one's valuables — his and her underground storage vaults.

Deep within the heart of a 9,000-foot mountain of granite in Utah's Wasatch Range is a cavern more than 150 feet long where the temperature and humidity never vary.

Besides its natural protection, there is a system of surveillance, closed circuitry and hair-triggered alarms — all powered by waterfall-generated electricity.

The site is operated by Omnivest Corp. primarily as a permanent storage site for the records of some of the country's leading corporations. However, Neiman-Marcus acquired three His and Her Security Units, each 700 cubic feet in size and subdivided into separate 350 cubic-foot areas.

"One may store here, with impunity and far from all uninvited eyes, the originals of oils you'd hate to lose, the real jewelry, a very rare vintage Bordeaux, a golden ingot or two, or the originals of the personal records without which we all would be lost — indeed, keep anything here that is not spontaneously combustible," the book says.

Each of the three natural safety deposit boxes is available for a 50-year lease.

The price: $90,000 for the full term. If that's not in line with your taste, for a mere $600 there's N-M's exclusive replica of the Monopoly Game — in chocolate — which "could be the greatest finale to a dinner party ever conceived."

"From board to dice, each and every part is made of delectable and completely edible candy: dark chocolate, milk chocolate, butter cream and butterscotch."

For that spare corner in the library, there's a Queen Victoria desk, felt by William Wooten to be the crowning achievement of his life. It was commissioned and used constantly by Queen Victoria of England. It is in pure Renaissance Revival style of elaborately carved walnut inlaid and trimmed with satinwood and ebony with a Trafalgar lion on the gallery. $150,000.

Button, button, who's got the button? For $15,000 you can.

Neiman-Marcus offers a complete set of antique American military buttons from such militia as Rhode Island, Georgia, the Massachusetts Volunteers.

For the hometown customer, there seven buttons from the Army of the Republic of Texas, circa 1836-1845. For the price, Neiman-Marcus also throws in a blazer.

Gracing the cover of the 1978 Christmas Book is the venerable cartoon character Roadrunner (Feathered Indy Five Hundred) being pursued by the determined and long-suffering Wile E. Coyote (Dog-gus Voraciousibilib). The thought here is that Coyote, who has used that miraculous mail order firm known as "The Acme Company," should now turn to Neiman-Marcus in one last effort to snare his life's great quarry.

When a recipe calls for two cups of flaked fish, you'll need to cook a pound of fish fillets or steaks to yield this amount.

Swiss Banker Vows Action To Halt Dollar Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the Swiss central bank vowed Wednesday that Switzerland would "take action both domestically and internationally," probably by next week, that could halt the sharp decline of the dollar against the Swiss franc.

Fritz Leutwiler, president of the Swiss National Bank, called his nation's currency "grossly overvalued" against the dollar and, to a lesser degree, the West German mark.

The banker did not spell out what moves Switzerland will take to slow the rise of the Swiss franc against the dollar beyond saying the actions would involve "greater international monetary cooperation."

But among measures Switzerland could take is the purchase of dollars on foreign currency exchanges to reduce their supply and thus increase their value.

Switzerland's franc rose by more than 50 percent against the dollar in the past year and is up by about 10 percent against the embattled U.S. currency in the past three weeks alone.

Leutwiler charged the "drastic jump" in the currency's value has been due in part to institutional investors and "multinational companies who have systematically substituted Swiss francs for U.S. dollar assets." He did not name any of the companies or offer details.

In a speech to members of the American-Swiss Association, and in a subsequent interview, Leutwiler said he has noted a "serious loss of confidence" among investors worldwide "in the economic policies pursued by the U.S. administration and the Federal Reserve."

But the Swiss banker said he believes the United States "is not about to enter a period of runaway inflation."

"There is little doubt that investors are exaggerating the economic problems of the United States," he said. "U.S. policy is not as misguided as many observers think it to be."

The rise of the Swiss franc has sharply increased the price of Switzerland's exports on world markets, a worrisome trend in a country where one-third of the labor force works for export industries.

Leutwiler called the latest rise of the Swiss franc "puzzling indeed," and said the currency has appreciated beyond any point "that might be justified" on the basis of comparative rates of inflation.

The cost of living in Switzerland rose at a 1.5 percent rate in 1977 and dropped to 1.1 percent in the year that ended June 30. In the United States, inflation ran at a 6.2 percent rate last year and at a 7.3 percent annual rate last month. The Carter administration has predicted an 8 percent rise for all of 1978.

Inflation in the United States has robbed the dollar of its purchasing power and has sent people in search of high-yielding domestic investments or to portfolios of currencies that haven't depreciated, such as the Swiss franc.

President Carter has said he will apply "specific and tough" measures to fight inflation, and many analysts have said it is likely he will ask for voluntary guidelines on wages and prices.

The Federal Reserve, in addition, is attempting to curb inflation by pushing interest rates higher in hopes that the growth of the nation's money supply will slow. As one indicator of the Fed's actions, several large banks raised their interest rate this week on loans to their best customers from 9 1/2 percent to 9 3/4 percent.

Taking the stance of a professor lecturing a class, Leutwiler warned of the possible inflationary implications of too-rapid an expansion of credit and said restrictive Swiss monetary policies enabled the nation to cut its inflation rate from 9.8 percent in 1973-1974 to its current low level.

"If the money supply is increased at a faster rate than output (of goods and services), the public will be stuck with unneeded cash balances," he said.

"Excess cash is quickly converted into things the public regards as useful. Unless there's severe unemployment," which would be cured by a new surge in consumers' demands, "an inflationary trend is triggered."

Leutwiler said wage and price controls have been "disappointing" in the past because "inflation is repressed temporarily, but prices are bound to shoot up again as soon as controls are lifted."

Instead, he said, an "even more restrictive monetary policy" that will mean higher interest rates, is needed to slow U.S. inflation.

Ford Warns Of Negative Idea On Media

NEW YORK (AP) — Politicians, business and labor leaders assume too often that the press is out to destroy them, former President Ford said Wednesday.

"Too many politicians, too many businessmen and too many labor leaders start out with the assumption the news media wants to destroy our economic and business systems," Ford said during a seminar.

"Those who take that attitude stand no chance of doing an affirmative job," Ford said. "If you start out that way, you can't win the ballgame."

Ford and Ben Bradlee, the executive editor of the Washington Post, spoke at "Media 78-New York," a seminar sponsored by the Foundation for American Communications and New York University Graduate School of Business Administration.

Ford told the business leaders in attendance they ought to face the press more often but not do so unprepared. He recalled that he often spent three to four hours preparing for a news conference or important interview, then had "three or four of the meanest people on my staff" grill him "so there'd be a let-down" when the reporters arrived.

The former president also recommended that business seriously consider what he called advocacy advertising, explaining positions on issues.

"You've got to be aggressive," Ford said.

During a question-and-answer period a businessman questioned the two men on whether leaks of government documents were detrimental to the country's operation.

"We're not responsible for keeping the secrets of government," Bradlee said. "I don't think it's stoppable. We'll have to learn to live with it," said Ford.

Contract Awarded For Weatherization

AUSTIN (Special) — The Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA) has announced that the City of Lubbock has been awarded a $6,970 contract under the Weatherization Assistance for Low-Income Persons Program for eligible persons residing in Lubbock County.

Through this contract, homes of the elderly and handicapped low-income persons will be improved through the use of storm windows, caulking, insulation and wall repairs so that energy consumption is reduced and high energy costs to the home dweller are lessened.

The 12-month contract, which began Sept. 1, 1978, is being funded through TDCA's Economic Opportunity Division of the U.S. Department of Energy.

Newspaper Reports VFW Embezzlement

BALTIMORE (AP) — More than $70,000 was embezzled from the Maryland Veterans of Foreign Wars organization, according to the Baltimore Sun.

The Sun on Tuesday quoted sources as saying the money was discovered missing from the treasury several weeks after an election of VFW officials. Cmdr. Charles S. Doane, head of the state organization, refused to give details of the case, saying the matter is a "VFW problem and we are going to handle it ourselves."

Panel Okays Tax Cuts, Home Benefit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved across-the-board tax cuts for most Americans on Wednesday and voted a new benefit for persons who sell their homes.

The committee planned to dispose of dozens of minor amendments before approving the tax bill Wednesday night and sending it to the Senate for debate next week. The bill includes major tax cuts for investors and businesses.

The last major roadblock was overcome when the panel agreed unanimously to a package of individual tax cuts that focuses more relief on individuals earning $15,000 to $50,000 than did the bill approved by the House last month.

Effective Jan. 1, the Senate plan would increase the current $750 personal exemption to $1,000; repeal the existing tax credit, which is a minimum of $35 and up to $180 per person, and widen the individual tax brackets in an effort to neutralize some of the effects of inflation.

The individual provisions would mean tax cuts for about 68 million couples or individuals and tax increases for about 1.2 million. The tax increases would fall mainly on single persons and married couples with no children, chiefly because of the elimination of the individual tax credit.

For the 75 percent of taxpayers who do not itemize deductions, the standard deductions would be raised. The $2,200 deduction for single persons would be increased to $2,300; the $3,200 standard deduction for couples filing a joint return would go up to $3,400.

Assuming that deductions total 23 percent of income, here is how the Senate bill would compare with the House version at various income levels:

A single person earning $12,500 would get a $48 cut under the Senate bill and $38 under the House version. A couple with two children and income of $12,500 would get $125 in the Senate bill, $105 in the House; at $20,000, the cut would be $196 in the Senate and $146 in the House; the family of four at $25,000 would get a $290 cut in the Senate bill and $232 in the House version.

Approved earlier was a provision expanding the current earned-income credit, which is available to families with children and incomes under $8,000 a year. The current maximum $400 credit would go up to $600, and some benefits would be available to those families earning under $11,000. The credit is a form of negative income tax which results in payments to qualifying individuals.

The committee approved an amendment by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., that eventually would grant an additional $1,000 tax exemption to persons under 65 who are totally and permanently disabled. Similar treatment already is given the blind and those 65 and over.

By a 13-2 vote the committee agreed to a new tax exclusion for persons who sell their principal homes without buying another. The tax break is not as big as the once-in-a-lifetime $100,000 exclusion that was voted by the House.

The plan approved by the committee builds on the formula in current law that gives a break only to persons 65 and older. But the committee's proposal would apply to all persons, regardless of age, and could be used once every five years.

As under present law, the full profit from the sale of a home would be tax-deferred so long as a new home costing at least as much were bought.

The bill would exempt from taxation all the capital gain, or profit, if the home were sold for $50,000 or less. If the home sold for a higher price, the amount excluded from taxation would be determined by dividing $50,000 by the sales price and multiplying it by the total profit.

For example, if a home were purchased in 1974 for $50,000 and sold in 1979 for $150,000, that would result in a capital gain of $100,000. Dividing $50,000 by the sales price ($150,000) and multiplying by the profit would result in roughly $33,000 excluded from any tax. That leaves $67,000 subject to tax.

Under the plan approved earlier by the committee, only 30 percent of the remaining $67,000 would be subject to the capital gains tax. This would mean a tax of $14,000 for a person in the 70 percent tax bracket, or $6,000 at the 30 percent bracket.

Unlike other capital gains, such as profits from the sale of stocks, none of the untaxed profit from the sale of a home would be subject to the additional "minimum tax."

The tax break would be available for homes sold after July 26, 1978, the day the House Ways and Means Committee proposed the $100,000 exclusion.

The Carter administration agreed with the committee on that item. But on the subject of capital gains taxes in general, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said the committee was being much too generous to high-income investors.

However, he indicated the president might be willing to accept such a large capital gains reduction if it were coupled with a workable "minimum tax" designed to tax heavily those high-income investors. Except for a $10,000 exemption, the remainder of the gain is subject to an additional 15 percent "minimum tax."

The Finance Committee bill would tax only 30 percent of a gain at the ordinary rate. The first $20,000 of the remaining 70 percent would be tax-exempt; the next $40,000 would be taxed at 10 percent, the next $40,000 at 20 percent, and all over $100,000 at a 25 percent rate. But this tax would apply only if it was more than the taxpayer's regular income.

Two Astronomers Offer Origin Of Life Theory

LONDON (AP) — Life on earth did not result from the bubblings of some primeval soup but from showers of comets and meteorites from outer space four billion years ago, two of Britain's most distinguished astronomers theorized in a book published Thursday.

The theory, put forward by Sir Fred Hoyle and Professor Chandra Wickramasinghe, suggests that life elsewhere in our galaxy is almost a certainty.

Hoyle and Wickramasinghe, who is head of the Department of Applied Mathematics and Astronomy at University College, Cardiff, base their ideas on the relatively recent discovery of a number of organic molecules in space.

In their new book, "Lifecloud," the two astronomers said discovery of those molecules means the building blocks of life are widely distributed throughout space and need only the right conditions for evolution to begin.

"Since other planets probably exist in vast numbers — there may well be 10 billion or more stars with planets in our galaxy alone — the prospect for the emergence of life on a galactic scale appears very favorable," they wrote.

Hoyle and Wickramasinghe submitted that the Earth's oceans and the atmosphere could have provided conditions receptive enough for life to survive and evolve when a comet containing the necessary precursors of life arrived.

The astronomers suggested that physical travel to or from other civilizations is unlikely simply because of the massive time scales involved. But they said communication with other civilizations by radio signals may be possible over a shorter time scale, although even then that would still run to a few thousand years per message.

City Youth Held As Burglary, Rape Try Suspect

A 18-year-old Lubbock youth remained in the county juvenile ward Wednesday after he was arrested early Tuesday on suspicion of burglary and attempted rape.

Officers answered a call to the 2300 block of 5th Street about 3 a.m. Tuesday to check on a reported prowler. They discovered the teen-ager in the area and while talking with the suspect, a woman who lived nearby told officers someone had been leaving obscene notes on her door.

The youth was identified Wednesday in a police lineup by two women who said he had broken into their homes in separate incidents. One of the women said the suspect also tried to rape her but she fought off his advances.

In other activity Wednesday, police were investigating reports of two robberies and an attempted hold-up.

A 20-year-old waitress told police that a tall, thin black man, wearing a blue jogging suit, broke into her apartment about 5 a.m. and raped her in addition to taking her cash.

She said the man, in his 20s, held a knife to her throat and demanded money. The woman said she gave him $35.

According to police reports, the man then allegedly pulled the covers off the bed and raped her after warning that if she did not cooperate he would kill her. After the sexual assault, the suspect told the woman not to tell anyone what happened and left the apartment.

David Allen Dose, 22, of 2104-A 14th St. told police that shortly before 11 p.m. Tuesday he was robbed of about $140 in front of the U.S. Post Office at 1515 Ave. G.

Dose said he was walking to his car after mailing a letter when someone stuck a hard object to his back and said, "Give me your money or I'll kill you."

After giving the bandit the money, the suspect said, "Get into your car and drive off," according to Dose. The victim said he saw the man through his rear view mirror and described him as a "very tall" black man wearing a brown or gray coat and jeans.

Tommy L. Benton, 41, of 4901 4th St., No. 602, was released from Health Sciences Center Hospital about 4 a.m. Wednesday after he reportedly had been beaten by two men who tried to rob him.

Benton said that he had been at a club at 50th Street and Avenue H about 11:45 p.m. Tuesday when two white men, in their mid-20s, offered to drive him home.

On the way, Benton said, one of the suspects told him to hand over his money. Benton told police that when he refused, the suspects stopped their car in the 100 block of Indiana Avenue and started hitting him.

Benton said he jumped out of the car and hid in a nearby field until his two attackers left.

In the latest reports of property crimes, W.A. Lorenz said someone took two air-operated bumper jacks, together valued at $1,000, from in front of his service station at 2408 Ave. H. Lorenz said the chain that had secured the equipment to a pole in the driveway of the firm had been cut.

The Santa Fe Railroad Co. is out $1,000 after someone broke into one of the firm's trucks parked at 200 Ave. M and took five boxes of tools, according to reports.

Robert Edick of 6402 Albany Ave., No. 1303, told police that whoever broke into his 1977 Dodge van, while it was parked in front of his residence, made off with $960 worth of goods. He listed as missing a television, 25 8-track tapes, binoculars and two cameras and attachments.

Deputies Wednesday were searching for whoever took $1,000 worth of goods from Wilma Hudgens' home in the southwest portion of Lubbock County.

Mrs. Hudgens said she returned to her trailer about 1 a.m. Tuesday to find the front door unlocked and $400 worth of jewelry and personal papers and stock, valued at $600, missing. Deputies were unable to find any sign of forced entry.

Sam A. Holder, manager of Red Raider Auto at 5024 Ave. H, said someone scaled the fence surrounding the car dealership's storage yard and broke into two vehicles.

Holdre said a $265 AM-FM and 8-track tape player unit was removed from each of the vehicles, a 1976 Pontiac and a 1977 Ford van. He said the burglars also caused $280 damage to the Pontiac and $30 damage to the van.

Mary C. Rohe said whoever pried the front door of her 5603 Ave. D home sometime Wednesday morning took two televisions, valued at $100 each, a $120 high school ring, an $80 watch, $20 in bills and a $60 coin collection.

Television repairman Arturo Garcia Jr. said someone broke the panels out of the back door of Art's Used Appliance store at 2711 Fordham and took seven televisions, together valued at $200.

Mark Corley, owner of Mark's Hamburgers at 2406 34th St., told police vandals did $4,000 damage to property at his restaurant, including destroying seven outdoor tables. He said the miscreants apparently struck between Tuesday morning and 4 a.m. Wednesday.

Tennis L. Noble of 5618 Ave. A reported her house burglarized Tuesday and $1,021 in jewelry, a television set, clock and cosmetics stolen.

She said she noticed a suspect station wagon parked in front of her house when she went to work about 10 a.m. Tuesday, and when she returned about 6:45 p.m., she discovered the break-in.

More than $1,000 in stereo equipment and a television was the loss Douglas M. Stocco said he suffered when his home at 4404 17th St. was broken into Tuesday morning.

Utility Board To Study Coal-Waste Fuel Plan

By SYLVIA TEAGUE, Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Electric Utilities Board voted Wednesday night to explore the feasibility of a combination coal-municipal solid waste system to supply future Lubbock Power and Light fuel needs.

Board Chairman George Meenaghan suggested contracting for a professional study of both methods, and Bill Wood, city director of electric utilities, said he would have representatives at the next board meeting to discuss both energy sources.

It had been thought that a coal plant was infeasible because the plants produce too much power for the LP&L system.

However, Meenaghan said smaller plants now are being designed.

Municipal solid waste, currently buried in a city landfill, could be used in conjunction with a coal plant to generate low pressure steam, Wood said.

Although the steam could not operate any LP&L generators, there are markets for the low pressure steam, he said.

Meenaghan suggested paying for studies of alternate energy sources from a capital improvements fund recently approved by the Lubbock City Council. Next year LP&L will retain one percent, or $141,000, of the Fuel Cost Adjustment charge.

He said a study on municipal solid waste had been done in July 1978, but that study needed to be updated.

Other alternative energy sources to be studied include solar and wind power.

Also Wednesday, board members discussed City Councilman Bill McAllister's proposed committee to study future options for LP&L, including the lease or sale of the municipally-owned utility.

Meenaghan said he wanted the board to "find some way to interface with the study committee," adding that the board could suggest possible members for the committee.

Board member Lonnie Hollingsworth noted that LP&L is "very political and a very big business, and there would be a tremendous amount of pressure put on" committee members.

The utility has been the victim of "erroneous information and rumors put out by prejudiced people," Hollingsworth said, adding, "LP&L is just a good deal, that's all there is to it."

Board members approved a policy for lighting the frontage roads of Loop 289 which provides that developers will bear the cost of installing a 100 watt residential sodium vapor light at each intersection.

That policy is subject to city council approval.

Also Wednesday, board members approved an advertising budget for next year of $130,000 — $20,000 more than this year.

Carnival Image Irks Presley Souvenir Dealers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Merchants along Elvis Presley Blvd. near the late singer's Graceland Mansion say they are tired of the carnival atmosphere, especially the cheap Presley souvenirs.

"As a joint venture, we're going to form an association to get the carnival out of Elvis Presley Blvd.," said Harry Geissler, chairman of the board of Factors, Etc. Inc., a Delaware company which has nationwide rights to market Presley products.

Geissler met with nine Graceland-area merchants Tuesday night and said they agreed to buy only "quality" Presley memorabilia.

"We're trying to upgrade the complete line of souvenirs that the fans buy and what they remember Memphis by," Geissler said.

Members of the newly formed merchants organization, composed mostly of businessmen with stores located directly across the street from the grounds of the 13 1/2 acre Presley estate, said they plan to hold another meeting to discuss disposal of items that don't meet the group's standards of quality.

Geissler said the questionable merchandise ranges from "junk jewelry" to photographs that are reproduced on the cheapest quality paper and methods.

Housewives Sniffing Bottled Smells For Science

CHICAGO (AP) — Investigating smells has become one of the hotter areas of science, says a research chemist who bottles odors and has a panel of suburban housewives sniff them.

"There is increasing interest in odor because it is the one air pollutant you can sense. If something stinks, you know it and you complain," said Frank Jarke of the Odor Science Center of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Jarke and his sleuths check out complaints of smelly landfills and industrial sites. They pump the air into containers for a laboratory procedure in which its components are identified and charted.

Other smelly gas goes to the sniffing housewives, who alternately sample various odor concentrations and pure air, never being told what they are smelling.

The women also sniff samples of bad breath or body odor gathered to test the effectiveness of deodorizers for cosmetic firms.

Dolores Duffy of Park Forest has been on the panel seven years.

CANDIDATES APPEAL
 LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Two unsuccessful campaigners for the Zambian presidency have filed a joint petition in the high court against the re-election of the sole candidate, President Kenneth Kaunda. It was announced Wednesday. Simon Kapwepwe, of the banned United Progressive Party, and Harry Nkumbula, of the defunct African Party Congress, contend the rules were changed just before the state's one-party nominating convention to accommodate Kaunda, fume, when we got lucky," she said. "We used to get some good smells and some bad ones, but for the last year they've just about all been unpleasant, nothing you'd want around the house."

Odors are difficult to describe, so IIT has prepared a list of 146 descriptive terms — such things as dil-like, chalky, wet paper-like, popcorn, beer-like. The sniffers rate each odor as being very like the descriptive term, moderately like it, or not at all like it.

Orionid Meteor Shower Slated For Oct. 20, 21

WASHINGTON (AP) — October sky-watching will be highlighted by the Orionid meteor shower on the night of Oct. 20 and 21, according to the U.S. Naval Observatory.

This is one of the better showers and if there are ideal viewing conditions an observer should be able to see as many as 20 meteors per hour during the shower.

The best time to view the meteors will be after midnight, directly overhead.

The shower is named for the constellation Orion, the hunter, from which the meteors seem to radiate.

On October 16 it will be the Hunter's Moon overhead, important in past years for the added light it casts permitting the staking of game.

High overhead in the early evening is the Summer Triangle — Vega to the west, Deneb to the east and Altair to the south.

Because of the advance of sunset time in this season, the stars appear to remain in place for several weeks, a great convenience to observers.

Mercury will be too close to the sun for easy observation this month, as will Mars.

Venus will be very low in the southwest at sunset and is better observed in the early part of the month.

Jupiter will be in the constellation Cancer, rising about midnight. It will be visible in the eastern sky throughout the remainder of the night.

Saturn is in Leo in October and will rise about 3 1/2 hours before the sun. It will be visible high in the east at sunrise.

The moon will be closest to earth on Oct. 11 and farthest away on Oct. 23. The new moon is Oct. 2, first quarter Oct. 9, full moon Oct. 16, last quarter Oct. 23 and new moon Oct. 31.

Water Application Dismissed By State

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has dismissed the application of Harland H. Frye, et al., to increase the authorized capacity of Frye Lake on Frio Draw and to increase diversion from the reservoir for irrigation in Parker County.

The application had requested an increase in capacity from 492 to 712 acre-feet and an increase in the authorized annual diversion for irrigation from 200 to 700 acre-feet.

Frio Draw is a Red River tributary.

Gunfighters Popular With Fair Throongs

that's the way it happens at the fair, or anywhere else the group performs. Comedy is as big a part of the show as tragedy, because that's the way the club finds it in books.

Safety is about the biggest part of a production with "Texas Red," who really doesn't have an eye under that black patch, in charge of training all gunfighters.

Pact Gains Approval Of Israel

choice but to approve the accords, because "if we refuse, what will be the future? In another five years, another war."

But referring to the West Bank, Dayan said: "I'm willing to be a foreigner in the Sinai. I'm not willing to be a foreigner in Judea and Samaria."

During the debate, broadcast nationally on Israeli radio and television, Begin was accused by members of the nationalist wing of his own Likud coalition of betraying his country and putting Israel's future security in danger by negotiating the accords.

"I don't believe in you and I don't trust your policies," Moshe Shamir said before the vote. He said Begin gave in to pressure from Sadat on the settlement issue and predicted the Camp David accords will result in "a counterfeit peace built on Israeli surrender."

The emotion-charged settlements issue prompted defections from Begin's supporters, but the loss was offset by affirmative votes from leftist parties. Members of the opposition Labor Party generally spoke for the accords.

The Likud rebellion prompted Begin to unleash his heaviest ammunition — a resignation threat. He told a Cabinet meeting before the debate he could not continue in office without a majority of his 69-man coalition behind him.

Sadat made the next stage of negotiations conditional on Parliament's agreement to evacuate the 18 Jewish settlements in the Sinai and their 4,000 residents.

In addition to the agreement on the Sinai settlements, the Camp David accord calls for a five-year transition period in the West Bank and Gaza, leading to full autonomy for the people there who are predominantly Palestinian Arabs. Left unsettled were the ultimate boundaries of Israel, the nature of the autonomous Palestinian entity, the future of Jerusalem and the security arrangements for Israel.

In Cairo, Egypt's acting Foreign Minister Butros B. Ghali said Israeli and Egyptian delegations would meet either in Ismailia on the Suez Canal or in Sinai's desert capital of El Arish to begin negotiations leading to a peace treaty. Israeli technicians were expected to go to Cairo today to set up direct communications between the Egyptian capital and Israel.

Informed sources said the Israeli-Egyptian talks on the military level would begin during the first week in October. The sources said the talks would be suspended for the Jewish new year celebrations.

Gun safety is stressed, meaning at least a 10-foot distance for pistols and 20 feet or more for a double-barreled blast with a shotgun.

Guns — the pistols are 44s and 45s — are loaded with black powder with fiber glass packing. Like in most movies they are checked in before gunfighters go onto the midway to mingle with the crowds.

And, the spokesman for the group emphasized, no adult can take the falls the gunfighters take from buildings and 75-foot cliffs without the two-year training session happening about every weekend for members.

In addition, they have the satisfaction of knowing that even the slowest of them could "take" any Old West gunfighter, because "old gunfighters just were not that fast."

Practice for members, who have their own jobs during the week, happens every weekend with television, movies, fairs and parades done in spare time and on vacations.

Going To Europe
In the near future, the group expects to go to Europe to spread the word that the Old West is alive and well when Amarillo Gunfighters hit the scene.

Heading up the group is Ace Howard, a former Hollywood stuntman who has been a double for such stars as Robert Mitchum in the 32 movies Howard has made. One of Mitchum's hats is in the Gunfighters' wardrobe.

Whatever it takes for the scene, from saloon girls to tumbling off the building, it's a part of the packet which has been growing since Howard and Whitehead, along with five other Old West enthusiasts, formed the club 13 years ago.

Currently, there are about two dozen gunfighters, but over the years 236 have passed through the ranks, taking their gunfighter training and knowledge of the Old West to video and movie contracts.

At 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. weekdays, the gunfire will sound near the outdoor stage. Saturday show time begins at 5 p.m.

The Amarillo Gunfighters are part of the free entertainment offered this year by the fair.

Tickets for coliseum shows are $4, $5 and $6.

ERA Extension Set For Senate Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate agreed on Wednesday to take at least a preliminary vote next week on the issue of extending the time needed for ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

The vote, on a motion to cut off a threatened filibuster, was set for Tuesday.

Supporters of the extension claim they have more than the 60 votes, three-fifths of the Senate, which are needed to limit debate.

If the ERA backers win on this vote, the Senate will then proceed to consider the 39-month extension, already approved by the House.

Efforts are expected to continue in the meantime to negotiate an agreed-upon time limit, making the filibuster fight unnecessary.

The ERA, prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex, has been ratified by the legislatures of 35 states, which is three short of the number required for it to become part of the Constitution.

Administration Vows Rail Strike End

sions of the National Railway Labor Act.

According to some government lawyers, President Carter can declare a national emergency, order a temporary end to the walkout, and appoint a special panel to mediate the dispute.

Or, as has been more traditional in past rail disputes, the administration can seek emergency legislation from Congress to order workers back to their jobs and to impose a final contract settlement.

The last nationwide rail strike was in 1971 by signalmen, who were ordered back to work by Congress after a two-day walkout.

Asked if he were hopeful of reaching a settlement by today's deadline, Kroil said, "If the carrier comes to the table with sincerity I think a settlement can be reached."

Marshall said there was great legal confusion because lower court orders were issued on the same day that Chief Justice Warren Burger refused to block the union from picketing up to 73 railroads for providing the NW with financial aid during the strike.

The union said it struck not over the financial aid issue but over other types of aid the railroads were lending the NW.

All the picketed railroads connect with NW and have been helping move its freight, the union contends.

Nicaragua Releases Political Prisoners

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government of President Anastasio Somoza said it released political prisoners Wednesday, apparently meeting one of three demands by opponents to clear the way for negotiating an end to the country's political crisis.

The government announcement did not say how many prisoners were freed.

Alfonso Robelo Callejas, a leader of the Broad Opposition Front, an alliance of 16 parties, called for the prisoner release.

The other two demands are an end to media censorship and complete freedom of movement for all politicians, curtailed by a sunset-to-sunrise curfew and martial law.

"We must create the environment and atmosphere in the first stage of mediation before we can start the fundamental part of the negotiations," Robelo said. But there was no immediate word after the prisoner release announcement if the front was ready to begin talks.

Government radio announced late Tuesday that a number of prisoners would be released immediately. But persons arrested for "crimes against public order, assaults against national guard garrisons, terrorism or murder" are excluded, Somoza's office said Wednesday.

The government has not said how many have been arrested or identified them.

Observers said it appeared Somoza's order was made to create an atmosphere that complies with an Organization of American States resolution Saturday in Washington urging Nicaragua to obtain outside mediation. The United States apparently will be involved in the talks, but no other foreign participants have been announced.

Natural Gas Price Bill Clears Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate handed President Carter the first major victory on his energy program in more than a year Wednesday, approving 57-42 a compromise bill to lift federal price controls from natural gas by 1985.

The legislation, which the White House has depicted as the most important remaining part of the energy plan, now goes to the House. A battle also is expected there but supporters of the measure appear to have the upper hand.

House leaders hope to combine the gas pricing bill with a number of other, less controversial parts of Carter's energy plan and pass the entire package with one vote just before the scheduled mid-October congressional adjournment.

Carter expressed optimism the House would go along with the measure. "I think it proves to our own nation and the rest of the world that we, in this government, particularly Congress, can courageously deal with an issue, and one that tests our national will and ability," he said.

George H. Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association, said the Senate vote "is one more important step toward adopting a national energy policy which will provide U.S. consumers with sufficient supplies of gas energy."

But James F. Flug, director of Energy Action Educational Foundation, said in a statement: "If this monstrosity ever becomes law it will be a disaster."

April, 1977 Request
Carter asked Congress in April, 1977 to join him in declaring "the moral equivalent of war" on the energy crisis by approving a package designed to conserve scarce fuels by making them more expensive and taxing their inefficient use.

The House passed most of what Carter requested in August, 1977. But until Wednesday's vote, that was the last congressional victory the Carter program enjoyed as the Senate began systematically dismantling the plan's major provisions.

Senate passage of the gas pricing bill followed an intensive White House lobbying effort. Administration officials portrayed the plan as crucial to future U.S. energy policies and to halting the decline of the U.S. dollar.

Reduce Oil Imports
Supporters said the measure would allow enough new gas to be found to reduce oil imports by about 1.5 million barrels a day by 1985 — going a long way toward meeting the reduction of two million barrels a day Carter vowed at last July's economic summit in Bonn.

However, opponents of the compromise — a coalition of liberals who called it too costly for consumers and conservatives who complained it doesn't deregulate quickly enough — claimed the measure would not have any appreciable effects on either gas production or oil imports.

Congressional economists estimate the proposal will cost consumers who heat with gas about $16 billion in higher gas bills through 1985.

Argument Over Cost
Supporters claim the measure will add about $25 a year to the average family's heating bill. Liberal opponents argue that the additional cost will be $100 or more a year.

The measure is substantially different from Carter's original gas pricing proposal, which would have continued price controls indefinitely but at higher-than-present levels. But the president backed it as the best that could be achieved.

The deregulation proposal took nearly a year of intensive and often secret negotiations among House and Senate conferees and Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger. And it came close to collapsing a number of times.

It would immediately boost the federally regulated wholesale price of gas by about 25 percent, then allow additional increases of 10 percent a year through Jan. 1, 1985, when the lids would be removed entirely.

Although only "newly discovered" gas would qualify for deregulation, industry sources say that by 1985 between 50 percent and 67 percent of all gas will fall into this category.

By 1990, the industry sources say, nearly all gas flowing in U.S. pipelines would be deregulated.

Between now and 1985, the compromise would also extend federal price controls, which now apply only to interstate gas, to currently unregulated markets within such producing states as Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma.

Supporters said this should end chronic shortages of gas in the Northeast and Midwest and relative surpluses in producing states — where producers now find it more profitable to sell their gas.

Either the president or Congress could re-impose the price ceilings for a single 18-month period under the measure.

And the compromise would force industrial users to pay the brunt of the anticipated price increases, at least initially — thus protecting homeowners from precipitous gas price increases.

The compromise also establishes a pricing formula for gas from Alaska's Prudhoe Bay area — permitting the top dollar short of full deregulation — which sponsors claim will enable construction to begin on a proposed gas pipeline to bring gas to the lower 48 states.

Caterpillars Signaling Another Hard Winter

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Break out the boots, folks. The woolly bear caterpillars are black as ink, signaling another frigid, white winter ahead.

"It's going to be cold, slippery and sloppy," said 83-year-old Herbert Krone, who for 60 years has fashioned weather forecasts from woolly bear fur.

Woolly bear caterpillars, which are about an inch long, range over most of North America. Forecasting winter weather from the color of their skin — which can be as light as a blond mink or as dark as a deep sable — is a practice introduced by the Pennsylvania Dutch. The darker the pelt, according to the legend, the more severe the winter ahead.

"The cold weather and snow will come in waves, one right after the other with thaws and slush in between," Krone said. He said there will be "some very rough travel conditions" and a "heavy ice storm" sometime during the Christmas holiday week.

Krone, a former newsman, held out "very little hope" for an early spring. "From all signs it is going to be pretty well along in April before we can even start planning the start of planting anything," he said. "Spring is going to be as coy as a reluctant maiden — here today and gone tomorrow, whipsawing back and forth."

"Many times we will go to bed, convinced that the season has definitely arrived, only to get up the next morning and have winter swat us in the face."

This year Krone made his predictions from a sickbed at home, where he is recuperating after a recent hospital stay. He received some help in reading the fur from his wife, Martha.

"I wasn't able to round up the critters to get a close look this year," he said, "so she had the annual woolly bear roundup at her sister's farm in the southern part of the county."

"She knows almost as much as I about what the bears are trying to say," he admitted. "Because this is another women's lib year, I decided to let her in on it."

HEW Workers Indicted In Welfare Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted 15 present or former employees of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on Wednesday on charges connected with welfare fraud.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said 11 of the 15 women, all from the Washington metropolitan area, are still employed by the department.

These are the first indictments to be handed down since Califano announced a nationwide computerized search for welfare cheaters more than a year ago.

Those indicted were accused of mail fraud and obtaining federal funds under false pretenses.

According to the indictments, the 15 illegally applied for and received welfare payments ranging from $2,000 to at least $9,000 while they were employed by HEW and thus ineligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

The federal search for cheaters matches the names and Social Security numbers of welfare recipients with civil service and military employment rolls.

Califano said the indictments are the result of investigating the program's 216 so-called raw matches that turned up in the first computer sweep of HEW employees.

Since then, nearly 33,000 raw matches have been found among the 4.8 million civilian and military employees on the federal payroll.

If the government's record holds up as investigations continue around the country, more than 2,300 people could be indicted.

But Califano said Project Match has been more successful in turning up cases of ineligibility, rather than criminal fraud.

Although Project Match costs the government $1 million, Califano said it more than pays for itself by getting ineligible recipients off the welfare rolls.

The persons on at least three counts each were identified as: Aileen A. Rodgers, Betty V. Young, Maxine W. Ashton, Yvonne J. Janifer, Mary E. Porter, Veronica D. Benson, Margaret M. Stoddard, Betty A. Shappelle, Susanne W. Kenney, Katherine E. Hall, Diane A. Wilson and Theresa D. Jones, all of Washington. Mary E. Frazier, of Seat Pleasant, Md.; Debra A. Brown, of Hyattsville, Md.; and Clara B. Leverett, of Maryland.

being transferred to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The "tremendous work disincentives" should be removed from the program, he said.

Butz noted that the department has the program, which he described as "almost totally a welfare program," as a development from the time when the food stamp program was started as a means of disposing surplus foods held by the department.

Joking when asked if he sees President Carter as anti-agriculture, he said, "I don't want to be anti-Carter. You expect me to be, don't you?"

"I think Carter is being abused by the press. I think he's refreshing, he's candid, he's got his finger on the pulse of the people. It's his brother in Washington that turns me off."

Butz said the United States should open up agricultural markets worldwide and take restraints off production.

"I think they (farmers) prefer to make their dollar in the marketplace instead of on the government dole," he said.

During a reception Wednesday afternoon, Butz campaigned among Republicans for local GOP legislative candidates, especially endorsing George Bush, running against Kent Hance for the 19th District Congressional seat.

He urged Republicans at a $125-a-couple reception to make donations to the local party, saying it takes money as well as hard work to get candidates elected.

"And it's far better on top of the table than under it, as with our opposition," he said, adding he believes one-third of all Congressmen are "owned by labor through hidden contributions."

House Passes Disclosure Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday voted 368-30 to approve a post-Watergate ethics bill requiring all senior government officials, federal judges and members of Congress to make detailed public disclosure of their financial holdings.

Among those required to report their holdings and income are the president, vice president, higher-paid career government workers, Supreme Court justices and candidates for Congress.

In all, about 15,000 persons would be covered by the legislation which sponsors acknowledged was spawned by the Watergate and Korean influence-buying affairs.

A similar bill was passed by the Senate months ago and differences must now be resolved in a House-Senate conference committee.

In two days of debate, opponents led by Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., tried repeatedly and unsuccessfully to weaken the reform measure.

The measure originally included criminal penalties for filing false reports, including a one-year jail term.

But opponents who had blocked the proposal from reaching the House floor for several months succeeded in eliminating the criminal provisions.

Austin Jury Convicts Man In Officer's Slaying

AUSTIN (AP) — David Lee Powell, a 27-year-old "speed freak" with a genius IQ, was convicted of capital murder Wednesday in the May 18 machine-gunning of Patrolman Ralph Ablanedo.

Jurors return at 9 a.m. today to decide whether Powell's punishment shall be life imprisonment or death by injection of a lethal dose of sodium thiopental.

Marjorie Powell, the defendant's mother, sobbed loudly when State District Judge Tom Blackwell announced the verdict of the seven-woman, five-man jury.

Powell, a thin, mustached man with collar-length brown hair and a pale, slightly pimply face, swallowed hard but betrayed no emotion.

Ablanedo's slender, bespectacled widow, Judy, smiled through tears and hugged District Attorney Ronald Earle, who had played little part in the trial but was present each day.

Defense lawyers contended Powell, a former honors program student at the University of Texas and valedictorian of his senior class at Campbell, near Greenville, was innocent by reason of insanity.

An appeal will be automatic if Powell receives the death penalty.

If jurors decide Ablanedo's killing was deliberate and unprovoked and that Powell would pose a continuing threat to society if allowed to live, the death penalty will be automatic.

"The battle is not over... If I have to sell my house and everything I own, we are going to defend David in every possible avenue... Many, many things were not brought out... There are all kinds of new diagnostic techniques," said Powell's widowed aunt, Frida Milone of Dallas.

Jacques Darrouzet, one of Powell's lawyers, said the appeal will raise a new challenge to the Texas death penalty law passed in 1973.

"In Texas, if you kill a cop you can get the death penalty, but if you kill an FBI agent you can't," he said.

He said another issue on appeal would be that W.J. Estelle, director of the prison system, did not hold a public hearing before deciding the means and procedure for executing condemned persons.

Ablanedo was riddled with 10 shots from an AK-47 assault rifle, which functions as a machine gun when set on full automatic. Sources said Powell obtained the rifle, the standard weapon of Communist troops in the Vietnam war, on the black market in Killeen, near Fort Hood.

The officer was shot after stopping Powell's red Mustang for a traffic violation. The driver, Sheila Margaret Melner, also was charged with capital murder and is scheduled for trial in October.

Police radio tapes indicated the dispatcher had told Ablanedo there was a possible warrant for Powell's arrest. Before confirmation arrived, Ablanedo was shot.

Powell was arrested about six hours after the killing. He was found hiding under a bush on the Travis High School campus, a few blocks from where Ablanedo was killed.

Recalling psychiatrist Emmanuel Tanay's testimony that Powell was a paranoid schizophrenic whose illness was aggravated by heavy use of methamphetamine, defense lawyer Jacques Darrouzet said:

"To hold him guilty of this is like holding a hurricane guilty because it kills people."

New Pope Wins Hearts With Informal Manner

INFORMAL GATHERINGS — Pope John Paul I pats Daniele Bravo, a 5th grade student, after the pontiff called him up during a general papal audience. Within a month of his election, the pope has transformed the normally sedate audiences into informal gatherings. (AP Laserphoto)

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Within a month after his election, Pope John Paul I has transformed the normally sedate papal audiences into informal gatherings, peppered with his personal anecdotes and broken up with rip-roaring laughter from his guests.

On Wednesday, when the weekly general audience was divided into two groups because of an overflow of pilgrims, the 65-year-old pontiff acted as a master of ceremonies. He called up a fifth grade Rome student from the crowd and interviewed him in front of the 10,000 persons packing the Vatican's audience hall.

"Do you always want to be in the fifth grade?" the pope asked Daniele Bravo, lowering the microphone to the boy's height.

"Yes," the youth replied to the laughter of the crowd, "so that I don't have to change teachers."

"Well, you are different from the pope," the pontiff remarked. "When I was in fourth grade, I worried about making it to the fifth, and when in the fifth, about passing to the sixth."

Such anecdotes, told with frequent timid smiles and in the familiar "I" instead of the formal "we" normally used by the popes, and mixed with occasional interviews from the crowd, are emerging as trademarks of John Paul's papacy, endearing him to the public.

By contrast, his predecessor, Paul VI, was noted for his formal and intellectual approach to his general audiences, resorting to humor only on rare occasions.

John Paul's relaxed and informal manner is reminiscent of the style of Pope John XXIII, who was also noted for his joviality and innovative actions, such as visiting prisoners in Rome's Queen of Heaven jail. Both men share humble origins and service as patriarchs of Venice before ascending to the papacy. Pope John died in 1963.

Vatican watchers say that the informal style that began to emerge the moment John Paul appeared on the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica after his election, one month ago, extends even beyond his general audiences. And they say it is getting his message across.

In his first meeting with the public, the pontiff called a youth from Malta to the microphone and, to demonstrate the importance of work mothers do, asked him simply, "Who takes care of you when you are sick?"

Later, in a meeting with American bishops, Pope John Paul dismissed his aides and told the prelates, "Now you ask questions."

On Wednesday, the pope referred to his casual manner, saying, "I try to explain, word by word, the way a parish catechist (religious instructor) would do."

"He says things, with his optimistic smile, that people are craving for," said Arcangelo Pagliarunga, Vatican writer for the newspaper Il Gazzettino of Venice.

"His working class background helps him with the crowd. In four Sundays well over 50,000 still came to see him."

And the crowd is enchanted.

"He is simpatico, gentle," remarked the young Roman student, overwhelmed with meeting the pope.

"You feel he loves you," said 90-year-old Mrs. Caterina Pepitone of Athens, Ga., on a pilgrimage to see John Paul.

Three Charged In Boy's Death

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The body of a boy reported missing by his mother four months ago was found in a shallow grave, and police on Wednesday charged the mother, a boyfriend and a baby sitter in the youngster's death.

Hillsborough County Sheriff Malcolm Beard said initial indications are that the boy, Frankie Valdez, was severely beaten. He would have been 3 years old Thursday.

Beard said one of the more than 100 persons questioned in the case guided investigators to the gravesite in the eastern part of the county on Tuesday.

Beard said Margaret Valdez, 20, was charged with second-degree murder; her boyfriend, Timmy Hess, 18, with first-degree murder, and the 15-year-old baby sitter with manslaughter.

"We just never did believe the child was abducted," Beard said.

A four-day search for the Riverview boy was touched off May 8 when the baby sitter said she went to feed the child and discovered he was missing.

The mother claimed she last saw her son at 3:30 a.m. that day when she returned from a late date and checked on him, police said. Police said she told them her son was asleep in his bed.

Deputies said when they arrived at the house, the back and screen doors at the trailer were open and the child's bed was empty.

Inflation Worries Cloud Carter's Achievements

By LOUIS HARRIS

Americans are so deeply worried about inflation that the issue has cast a cloud over the remarkable achievements of President Carter on the Middle East.

A substantial 61 percent of Americans now think that the prices of most things they buy are rising faster than a year ago. A 64 percent majority feels that a year from now prices will be rising either faster than today or at the same rate. In turn, this leads a 45-34 percent plurality to the conclusion that there will be another economic recession in the next 12 months.

Pessimism over inflation and the lack of confidence that the Carter administration is taking tough enough steps to curb high prices can be summed up in the 73-22 percent negative rating Americans give the President on his handling of the economy. An even higher 75-20 percent majority gives Carter negative marks on his handling of inflation.

These negative ratings on economic issues now form the dominant impression of President Carter's stewardship in the White House. They also are expressed in the 55-38 percent negative rating accorded him on "inspiring confidence in the White House." The personal confidence measure has always been a sensitive indicator of just how much trust the public is willing to give to an occupant of the Oval Office. A rule that has been borne out time and again is that as long as a president's personal confidence rating is lower than his overall job rating, he is still in trouble with public opinion.

The current rating of Carter's overall performance is 42 percent positive. This is a full 12 points above his low mark of 30 percent positive just this past August, before the Camp David summit meeting. Yet the fact that this latest survey shows the president with only a 38 percent positive mark on personal confidence means that the jury is still out on him.

These low marks are all the more remarkable in light of the dramatic recovery the president has had in his ability to handle foreign policy.

—On his overall handling of foreign affairs, Carter is rated 56-38 percent positive in the Harris-ABC News Poll of 1,201 adults nationwide taken between Sept. 19 and Sept. 21. This is a turnaround from the 71-22 percent negative standing accorded him on foreign policy in August, before the summit.

—On his working for a peace settlement in the Middle East, the president's rating has shot up to 78-18 percent positive from 52-40 percent negative back in July.

These important breakthroughs for Carter on foreign policy, particularly on the Middle East, simply do not appear to be enough, however, for him to make a comeback across the board.

In addition to the trouble he is in on the economic front, Americans also have doubts about President Carter concerning other areas:

—By 63-37 percent, a majority gives him negative marks on his overall energy program, down from a 62-32 percent negative rating accorded him back in July.

—By 63-30 percent, a majority also gives the president negative marks on his handling of relations with Congress, scarcely changed from the 47-53 percent negative standing he was given in August.

—On his veto of a new nuclear aircraft carrier, an issue on which the president was upheld by Congress, he is given a negative rating of 44-51 percent by the public.

The conclusion that must be reached from this latest Harris-ABC News Poll is that the breakthrough in the Middle East—indeed, in foreign policy in general—is simply not enough to restore public faith in this president. It does mean, of course, that Carter now has a new base of solid public confidence from which to build.

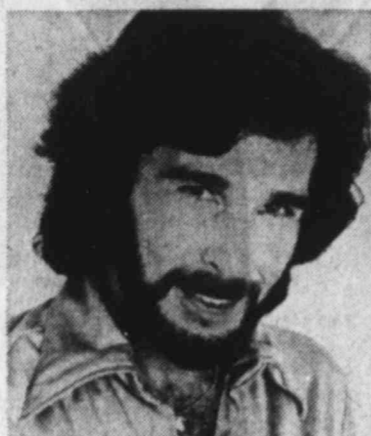

However, the dominant issue of these times is not the Middle East or foreign policy. The primary concern among Americans is the state of their pocketbooks. Until it is felt that Jimmy Carter is moving forcefully and effectively on this issue, he will have a hard time getting a majority of his fellow countrymen to express real confidence in his capacity to do the job in the White House.

Yankee-Bred Rabbitt Wows Country Crowds

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

Robert Palmer of the New York Times has described Eddie Rabbitt as "an unusually talented songwriter and a natural showman." Few would disagree now—but I can still remember the first time this entertainer was booked to play in Lubbock. Reporters in the A-J newsroom were asking, "Who, or what, is an Eddie Rabbitt?"

EDDIE RABBITT

Now they know. Eddie Rabbitt is an established country singer, boasting a smooth voice, a string of quality LPs and a handful of top-of-the-chart singles. And he'll be appearing in concert at 8 p.m. today with comedian Jerry Clower at the Panhandle South Plains Fair. Tickets are still available. Recalling the confusion which reigned when Rabbitt first hit the music scene (as a performer, that is; he's been writing songs for years), it seemed almost necessary to ask him whether anyone had ever advised him to change his name. He answered during a recent telephone interview from Amarillo, "Yes. Me! I can still remember walking past the Hurricane Bar in Newark and seeing a sign which read 'Eddie Rabbitt appearing nightly.'"

"I thought it sounded like some damn magic act. A novelty act.

"So I changed my name to Eddie Martin. I'd just bought myself a new Martin guitar at the time. And, well, to show you just how well all this worked out, in three months I went from near obscurity to complete oblivion. So I took my real name back, and I think it's really been more of a help than a hindrance."

Rabbitt does not claim the usual "country background." You know, the one in which the singer grew up picking cotton and listening to the Grand Ole Opry on his battered Philco. Instead, Rabbitt was born in Brooklyn and grew up in East Orange, N.J. His country roots were planted by two people: his Irish immigrant father, who has played country music for years and even plays fiddle on Rabbitt's new LP, and his East Orange scoutmaster.

The latter's name was Tony Schwick-rath but, since that wasn't the snazzy type name remembered, he used the name of Bob Randall when he played country music every weekend. It was he who helped Rabbitt learn to play guitar, at least until the headstrong youth decided to quit school, take off and try singing for his supper.

Nashville was the place to go, of course. But not that many survived.

Rabbitt made it by hooking up as a staff songwriter for a publishing company. He made do on $37.50 a week for over two years, until finally he wrote "Kentucky Rain" and his producer was impressed enough to give him a recording contract. But a tape of the song was heard by Elvis Presley one night—and

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Thursday, September 28, 1978

The King wanted it. Rabbitt had to face the following choices: "You can record this song. But you're a newcomer, an unknown. You don't have the savvy or knowledge to make it a hit. If you bomb, the song will be wasted. On the other hand, you can let Elvis record it and be pretty sure it will hit."

Rabbitt said "it tore me apart for awhile," but decided to give the song to Elvis. He now calls the song "a special piece of history," but that staff producer didn't think it was such a hot idea at the time. He tore up Rabbitt's recording contract, saying, "If you're not interested in saving your best material for yourself, then why should I care about your career?"

"Kentucky Rain" turned gold for Elvis in 1971. Rabbitt then wrote another hit, "Pure Love," for Ronnie Milsap in 1973. In 1974, he was signed to a recording contract by Electra Asylum Records, a rock outlet just beginning to enter the country field. And about a year ago, he put together a band, kept the rabbit image by calling them Hare Trigger, and began touring.

The reviews have been exceptional—and almost as numerous as the groupies.

Country music groupies? You bet. Eddie Rabbitt has been labeled the newest sex symbol in the country field, and it's a tag he enjoys to the fullest. "Hey, I think it's great," he said. "There were a lot of lonely Saturday nights on the way up, you know. And all the women hanging around the stage just makes me and the band want to play that much harder."

There is talk of putting Rabbitt in the movies, to which he says, "Why not go thing, but I'll never let it interfere with the whole trip? I don't mind trying any my music."

Texas Commerce Bank Marks Debut Of New Auto Facility

Texas Commerce Bank held ribbon-cutting ceremonies Wednesday to mark the opening of its new motor bank facility at 14th Street and Avenue K. Mayor Dirk West and Chamber of Commerce President Ray Diekemper clipped the ceremonial ribbon with scissors retrieved from one of the automatic stations.

C. B. Carter, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, introduced guests who included Lubbock businessmen, Chamber of Commerce representatives and members of Downtown Lubbock Inc.

Tommie Stevens, president of Texas Commerce, told the gathering that the citizens of Lubbock have revitalized the city since the tornado of 1970. "We are proud to open this new motor bank facility," he said.

The lustrous white marble structure is diagonally across the street from the bank's main office at 14th Street and Avenue K. It features visual auto teller stations with convenient carriers which will enable customers to transact business at their own pace.

In addition to regular teller windows reached from the 14th Street entrance, a separate window for commercial transactions involving bulky materials and a night depository are available.

Entrance to the commercial window and night depository is from Avenue K.

Lubbock Woman Shows Generous Heart Outside Day Care Center Work

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of articles dealing with agencies supported by the United Way of Lubbock. The United Way campaign goal for 1978 is $1,482,369.)

A heart "as big as all outdoors" belongs to Mrs. J'Ceal Alexander. She has to have a heart like that to provide love not only for her own three children and a niece, but also for five foster children.

Three years ago Mrs. Alexander learned of the children's plight through relatives. There were problems involving the natural parents, and the court thought the children would be better off in a children's home or separated in foster homes.

She wouldn't hear of it. As director of the Carver Heights Day Care Center, one of the three centers of the Day Care Association of Lubbock, Mrs. Alexander knew the importance of keeping the children together and providing a healthy home atmosphere. She wanted to help.

After much soul-searching and prayer, the court awarded the five children to Mrs. Alexander and her husband. She said she now knows her work in day care was a decided advantage in the court's ruling.

The Day Care Association of Lubbock is a United Way agency and will receive $135,860 for its three nurseries from the United Way's 1979 goal of $1,682,369.

She put her reasons for wanting the children simply: "I love children and everybody needs somebody." It might have been a tough decision for someone else, taking in five children ranging in age from pre-school to high school, children who the court said would be trouble for her and her family.

With a heart full of care and love, Mrs. Alexander helped the children through the years with education and training, which resulted in productive people.

The children all do well in school (one is an honor student), and in the summer they help as teachers' aides and maintenance personnel at the day care center.

When Mrs. Alexander joined day care in 1961, she said she was impressed with the services offered.

"It made me feel important to see how important day care was for other parents."

Miss Verna Collum, executive director of the Day Care Association of Lubbock, said the main purpose of day care is to "provide services for financially indigent families of parents who work or go to school in order to keep families together. We try to improve the family situation so families aren't divided, and we give the parent an opportunity to be productive, contributing member of the community."

Miss Collum explained that in addition to keeping the children, they provided annual physical and dental examinations. Immunization records are kept at the center. The children are fed a well-balanced breakfast, snack, hot lunch, an afternoon snack and, if they stay until 6 p.m. when the center closes, they are fed another snack.

Miss Collum said the fees charged by the agency are assessed on a sliding scale, and in many cases, these fees provide an opportunity for a woman to get a job or education and get off welfare without having to pay the rates of private day care.

The center also accepts children of handicapped mothers who could not normally care for the children.

The children, ranging in age from 6 weeks to 6 years, are accepted on a priority basis, which favors children such as those from protective services and children of working mothers who receive state assistance.

Mrs. Alexander said that in the day care center, children are given well-planned activities and a major portion of pre-school instruction. She said most of the children who enter elementary school after day care adjust very well to regular school curriculum.

The three day care centers are licensed to accommodate 244 children. A new day care center, which will keep 120 more children, is being planned.

The Day Care Association of Lubbock is among 34 United Way agencies.

Quail Egg To Orbit Earth

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is planning to send a quail egg into orbit to test conditions for the eventual birth of human beings in outer space, a Soviet newspaper said Wednesday.

The Literary Gazette said the egg would be incubated by an artificial mother quail and would be timed to hatch immediately upon the return to earth of its space capsule.

The experiment "incubator" is to be launched soon, the article said, and will carry the egg of a Japanese quail. The quail is known as an adaptable bird, which scientists here see as a possible tenant of a future "micro-earth" that would orbit for years with a more or less permanent human population.

The weekly newspaper interviewed Dr. Nikolai Gurovsky, connected with the Soviet space program.

He said that although the Soviet Union today is "as yet very far from implementing childbirth in outer space," scientists are working with that eventuality in mind.

"I would by no means rule out that a day will come when a citizen of the earth will appear whose birth certificate will read 'outer space' as place of birth," he said.

Fair Highlights:

Cheeseburger Best Fair Food Value

By JANICE JARVIS
Family News Staff

The midway of the Panhandle South Plains Fair is lined with food stands which offer almost every imaginable concoction to tickle the taste buds.

Although that pink fluff called cotton candy might be tempting, its nutritional value is practically zero. With a little work, however, visitors to the fair can find nutritious foods from which to choose.

Although many of the foods available at the fair have little nutritional value, it is possible to make wise food choices, according to Patti Landers, a Lubbock nutritionist.

Probably the best choice is a cheeseburger, explained Mrs. Landers. The meat and cheese provide protein, and the vegetables (lettuce, tomatoes and pickles) provide some vitamins. Top that off with a glass of milk for a well rounded meal, she advised.

Hamburgers are also economical in relation to other fair prices, Mrs. Landers added, and they're available at almost every corner.

Although one stand off the midway does offer t-bone steaks, Mrs. Landers noted that for the price it offered no higher level of nutrition than a hamburger.

"It's good protein, but it's high in fat and considerably more expensive," she said.

Tacos, available at the Mexican food stand, are also an excellent choice. Because they contain meat, lettuce, cheese and tomatoes, they rate high in terms of vitamins and protein, Mrs. Landers said.

The Mexican food booth offers another real nutrition bonus — a lettuce and tomato salad — which is packed with vitamins. Burritos, also available, have some nutrient value, but rate lower than tacos.

For protein, tuna fish, hot ham and cheese and pimento cheese sandwiches are easy to find and are good choices, Mrs. Landers said. The barbeque sandwiches rate somewhat lower, having more fat than protein.

Visitors who find the usual fair menus less than tempting can find some good nutritional values in booths located outside the midway.

One place offers pancakes, eggs, toast and meat, all good choices, and especially when eaten together, according to Mrs. Landers.

With a little looking, the hungry fairgoer can also find a spaghetti dinner. Served with meat sauce, it rates high. The pasta is usually vitamin-enriched, and the meat provides protein.

Shrimp plates, also featured at the fair, are high in protein and iodine, but they are also very high in calories, Mrs. Landers said. Economically and nutritionally they are a poor choice, especially for the calorie conscious or anyone on a low cholesterol diet.

Liquid refreshments at the fair can add to the nutritional impact of a meal, especially drinks like milk or hot cocoa. Lemonade is loaded with vitamins, as is spiced tea, according to Mrs. Landers.

Coffee and iced tea are also available, but locating sugar substitutes is difficult. Diabetics and calorie watchers would be wise to bring their own sweetener, warned Mrs. Landers.

The worst meal choice is probably a hot dog, according to Mrs. Landers. A person would have to eat six hot dogs to equal the nutritional value of two ounces of meat, she explained.

One fair booth attendant reported that hamburger patties weigh about six ounces before they are cooked. The corn coating on a corn dog adds only empty calories to a hot dog. Topping a hot dog with chili adds only minimum nutrients.

Although candied apples have some vitamins, they are dangerous, Mrs. Landers warned. Candied apples, as well as lolly, can easily pull out dental fillings.

Furthermore, the coating on candied apples is difficult to remove from between braces.

Similarly, dill pickles, although low in calories, are highly acidic and can easily remove the enamel from teeth, she said.

Snow cones, cotton candy and caramel corn rate poorly.

"They're empty calories, made mostly of sugar water," said Mrs. Landers.

For snacking at the fair, peanuts and popcorn are good choices. Popcorn without butter is very low in calories, and peanuts are packed with protein.

Although it may be difficult to find a nutritious meal at the fair, Mrs. Landers did offer a word of encouragement to leery parents:

"Most kids burn up so much energy at the fair that they can afford a few empty calories," she said. "Just make sure they don't overload on sweets, and have some fruit ready for them when they come home."

FAIR'S FARE HAS POSSIBILITIES — A corn dog and a stuffed animal, the things that make the fair fun, at least for 11 year old Lisa Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mills. Fair visitors can find good, and healthy, food during their visit to the fair, if they spend a little time and effort. (Staff photo by Jim Watkins)

Not at all...
 But, if you haven't tried this before, read this column very carefully because it is definitely a two-step method.
 If you want to place glassware in the dishwasher at the same time for the same treatment, this is permissible, but do not, repeat, do not, put silverware in. It would turn black and you'd have a mess on your hands.
 First, put one cup of bleach in a bowl in the bottom rack of your dishwasher. Run it through the wash cycle only. Do not dry. (Your machine may have to go through the entire cycle.)
 Fill the bowl again with one cup of vinegar and let it run through the entire cycle this time.
 You'll find the film will be removed from your glassware (unless it's etched) as well as from all the tiny crevices of your dishwasher, and...in one simple operation.

One more word as a precaution, though...
 Don't get "in a hurry" and combine the bleach and vinegar. In fact, to be on the safe side, don't ever combine bleach with any other household cleaning solution, with the exception of laundry detergents. The gases created can be lethal.
 Take the time to do the dishwasher cleaning right...it's worth it! — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
DEAR HELOISE:
 When I have a burned-out light bulb, I am fearful lest they burst in later handling by the garbage pick-up folks, or in a fire.
 So I put them in a small paper bag, twist the top well and wham them against the stove or sink or any firm surface, ending up with neatly wrapped shredded glass. It's a great way to give vent to anger or frustration, and the tinkle of the shattered glass is a symbol of the perfect crime one might feel tempted to commit at the time. — M.D.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from "Feeling Guilty" and my heart went out to him. How sad it must be to lose someone you love and then be ridiculed for being the only one who had the decency to tell that person the truth when they asked to know.
 I recently took a home health-aide course which taught me among other things, how to deal with the terminally ill patient. We were given literature that is sure to offer comfort to people in a similar situation. It was put together by the Southwestern Michigan Inservice Education Council and it is called "The Dying Person's Bill of Rights." Will you please print it? — Been There And Back

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Should I give my baby potassium supplements? I have been told it is vital for them to grow properly, yet my doctor will not let me give any to my child. What is your opinion? — Mrs. O.Y.

You should not give your baby any mineral supplements unless the need has been established. Tests will show a deficiency. In fact, the government has issued a warning about this practice. There have been some unfortunate incidents. I have warned against it in this column over the years, but the warning deserves repetition. An excess of such minerals can be as dangerous as a deficiency. Be suspicious of any simplistic idea such as the need for this or that obscure substance in order to survive. Potassium is needed in minute amounts. There is enough in foods for normal babies.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am terrified.

When is surgery needed for hemorrhoids? Why is more conservative treatment not always possible? What causes the pain? My pain is almost unbearable, and I have bleeding. My doctor wants me to have surgery. I have confidence in him, but I'm worried that so much can go wrong. Please, can you help me? — Agitated Surgery is needed when hemorrhoids become an intolerable nuisance. You seem to have reached that point if you have pain, frequent bleeding, rectal discharge and external extrusion. Pain is due usually to clotting in the hemorrhoids (veins). They are aggravated by inflammation of surrounding tissue.

I have said that hemorrhoid surgery is not akin to a strawberry social, but it is really not a serious procedure, and seldom disabling. You have confidence in your doctor; that's a good start. Ask him to explain what he will do in surgery. He will put your mind at ease on the matter. The best part about hemorrhoid surgery is the relief most experience after the smoke clears. If you still have specific questions see my booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," which answers most questions I've received on the subject over the years. For a copy, send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife, age 53, has had rheumatoid arthritis the past six years. She complains of constant dryness in her mouth. I was wondering if the medicine she is taking for her arthritis (prednisone) or a virus is causing the condition. — K.P.

I doubt a virus or the medicine are causes. The dryness is a feature of the Sjogren's disease, which I discussed in a recent column. It can affect women her age and is often found with arthritis. There is usually an accompanying dryness of the eyes. There is no cure for this, but she could try a mouthwash consisting of 1 percent methylcellulose, which gives some relief.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

If you want to use splinter bids decide just which of your jumps will be splinters.

The most general rule and the one we use is that any time you bid in a new suit and bid one more than necessary for a regular forcing bid you are using a splinter, showing a singleton in the splinter suit and forcing to game in the last bid suit.

North and South were playing that a simple reverse bid was forcing so that a two-diamond rebid would be a force in diamonds. Hence, when North bid three diamonds he was showing a singleton diamond and forcing to a spade game.

South's three hearts was control showing so North jumped to four spades to show good shades and South Blackwooded to the grand slam.

He knew he was taking a chance when he bid seven. North's two kings might include the king of hearts and the queen of spades had not been guaranteed but South gambled and the gamble paid off. North held the right cards and one diamond ruff was the 13th trick.

It is a raise to three notrump. You don't use Stayman to try to find a 4-4 fit in spades here, since even with a 4-4 spade fit, the odds are that this hand will produce as many tricks in notrump.

Winemaker Laments Demise Of Grapefruit Drink

PROGRESO (AP) — The Queen is dead.
Queen Citriana — a noble attempt to turn grapefruits into wine — succumbed to a combination of red tape, a spectacularly unsuccessful first batch and a poor market.
"Texans are not wine drinkers. They're beer drinkers," said Billy Drawe, the Rio Grande Valley farmer who made and bottled Queen Citriana. "They want something that'll give them a little kick."
In 1971, amid a series of crop failures on his farm here, Drawe decided the world was ready for a low alcohol, grapefruit table wine. He bought the equipment and opened the state's second existing winery.

The experiment ended March 11, 1977 — leaving a trail of broken bottles and dead alfalfa.
"We had some pretty good wine in the barrels," Drawe, 55, said of the initial batch of Queen Citriana.
The first inkling of doom came after the wine was aged for a year. Drawe went looking for appropriate bottles and found there was a glass strike.
"We bottled it in an ugly looking bottle. Nobody liked the bottle and nobody liked the label," he recalled.
And, six months later, nobody liked the Queen.

"It turned rancid. The color and flavor changed," he said.
So Drawe, a proud man who lives by his word, bought the wine back from the stores.
"I bought back $30,000 worth of it trying to hold onto my reputation," he said.
Drawe learned from his mistakes. The second batch of wine, he said, was good. But he found winemakers to be an unforgiving lot.
"We has many unsatisfied customers from the first year," he said. Among the unsatisfied were the distributors. No one would handle the Queen — despite an attractive new bottle and label.

Drawe's problems were further complicated by a bout with cancer.
"I damn near kicked the bucket and I figured why waste all that money I didn't have in the first place," he said.
So, shunned by the supermarkets and unwanted by the distributors, the Queen died.
"We ended up with a good wine. We failed in marketing. Queen Citriana had such a bad reputation," the winemaker lamented.
For awhile he had thoughts of making the winery on his farm here into a tourist attraction. But state law prohibited selling the wine on the premises. Now he is looking for a buyer for the equipment.
"I've had about 10 suspects, a couple of prospects but no buyers," he said over a glass of grapefruit wine.
Drawe remembered that closing the winery was about as hard as opening it.

"To stop the wine permit we had to sell or destroy all the wine," he said, adding that he had 20,524 gallons on hand.
Selling it, he realized, was not a feasible solution.
"It used to be on the shelves next to those 99 cent pop wines. What do you think they're going to drink ... those hippies?" he said.
Drawe kept about 100 cases "for posterity." The taxman made sure he paid 34 cents per gallon.
The remainder of the wine wound up in the Mercedes city dump and Drawe's irrigation system.
State and federal witnesses watched as Drawe supervised the city dump operation. A tractor mashed thousands of gallons of bottled wine into the dump.
"The Caterpillar got stuck and the driver nearly got drunk from the fumes," he recalled.

The wine that wasn't carted off to the dump was poured out on the farm here.
"It killed three acres of alfalfa," Drawe whined.

Hotel Firm Eyes Gaming Industry

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Ramada Inns Inc., a national hotel chain, says it will make its first venture into the gaming industry by purchasing two Boardwalk hotels.
The firm, based in Phoenix, Ariz., said Tuesday it would have one of the casino hotels operating by the end of next year. Ramada Inns did not disclose the names of the hotels, but sources here said the shuttered 634-room Ambassador and the nearby 361-room Sheraton-Deauville hotels were involved in the deal.

Owner Decorates Pig's Grave

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — Once a week, Drewry Little picks up a floral arrangement and drives out to a simple grave here to pay his respects. Sweet Lips, his celebrated pig, is dead.
"It's the least I can do," says Little. "The pig was like a member of the family. I slept with him. We shared the same interests. I can't believe that he is dead. It numbs my heart."

Sweet Lips, who tipped the scales at 940 pounds, died after a heart attack two months ago at the age of 2 1/2.
Little says it was love at first sight between him and the Hampshire.
"He was the prettiest piglet I ever saw. I saw those sad eyes, the pink snout. I just walked right up and kissed Sweet Lips the first time I saw him. That's how he got his name," Little said.

Little began taking Sweet Lips to his bar in Virginia Beach several years ago. "The customers loved him. They always seemed to enjoy Sweet Lips' baths. The pig sat so proud in the tub. He loved to be scrubbed and tickled, kinda raise his head, you know, with the delight of it. I swear you could see him smiling."
Sometimes the pig sat on the dock beside the tavern at dusk, wearing a flashing helmet to attract the thirsty boatmen as they returned to port.
Business was booming, but the city ruled that Sweet Lips violated a city ordinance against keeping farm animals.
Little refused to move the pig — his pet, he said — and he fought a losing battle all the way to the Virginia Supreme Court.

Little eventually had to move Sweet Lips to a pen in Chesapeake and sold the tavern.
"People liked the pig, and they stopped coming when Sweet Lips wasn't there," he said.
Then Sweet Lips had a heart attack in late July.
"It was so sad at the end," Little said. "Sweet Lips would just lie in his pen without moving. Those sad eyes would look up at me as if to say 'Can't you help me, Daddy? Break your heart.'"

MADRID (AP) — A wax figure of King Juan Carlos, clad in the uniform of the commander of the Spanish armed forces, will be put on display at Madame Tussaud's Wax Works Museum in London in December. Sources close to the king said Wednesday that Ian Hanson, the sculptor of the museum, recently took some photos of the king in order to make the figure. The king wore the army uniform several times after succeeding the late Gen. Francisco Franco as chief of state.

Incoherency Ruled Not Arrest Reason

AUSTIN (AP) — Police had no right to arrest a car passenger suspected of intoxication simply because he was incoherent and his head bobbed, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The ruling set aside Yancy Leroy Britton's life sentence on a heroin conviction and sent the case back to Dallas for possible new trial.

Britton was in a car that was blocking a Dallas street, police testified. He mumbled incoherently when officers asked for his identification and his head was "bobbing and weaving."

During a frisk, police found a syringe and capsules of what later was identified as heroin.

The court said police had no basis to believe Britton would prove a danger to himself or others, especially inasmuch as he was not driving.

In another heroin case, the court dismissed Henry Hines Jr.'s 25-year sentence because prosecutors did not rebut his alibi. Hines' conviction was reversed and the case returned to Beaumont.

A narcotics officer testified Hines sold him heroin after emerging from a house in Orange on Sept. 26, 1974. However, the woman who owned and lived in the house testified she did not know Hines and that he had never been in her house.

In other cases, the court:
— Reversed a rape conviction because some jurors said during deliberations that two defense witnesses had bad reputations. The jury foreman in the trial of Russell L. Stephenson gave the judge an affidavit supporting Stephenson's request for a new trial.

The trial judge denied the new trial request.
Stephenson's 25-year sentence was dismissed and the case returned to Dalhart.

— Affirmed a murder conviction and life sentence assessed Thomas Boyd in the March 1976 slaying of his wife, Hollye, and father-in-law, Raymon May, at the Mays' residence in Dallas.

Boyd, 23, pleaded insanity and contended that the trial court erred in not conducting a separate competency hearing. Testimony showed that Boyd had been placed in a school for mentally disturbed children for five months and in a psychiatric ward of a hospital for four to five weeks.

Nevertheless, the appeals court said, there was no testimony that Boyd did not understand the proceedings against him or that he could not aid his attorney in his defense.

— Upheld a murder conviction and 50-year prison sentence for Savannah Jones in the shotgun slaying of Henry McConner, whose body was found alongside a Tarrant County country road Dec. 5, 1975.

— Affirmed a man's Harris County conviction and 10-year sentence for soliciting two men to kill his ex-wife.

Floyd Kenneth Smith told a police informant and an undercover federal officer that he would give them two machines guns and $4,000 to kill his wife, Patricia Smith. On May 20, 1974, the two men showed Smith some of the woman's personal property as "proof" of her death.

Smith was arrested a week later after he delivered an illegal "Auto-Burglar" firearm.

Second Oil Blaze At Reserve Snuffed

HACKBERRY, La. (AP) — A secondary fire was contained early Wednesday at the strategic petroleum reserves, where a five-day blaze burned $1 million of the nation's emergency oil stockpile.

The new fire erupted Tuesday night but was confined to a pool of oil inside a dike and never spread to the well-head.

Bill Parker, deputy project manager, said the fire reignited because of hot spots in the pit of oil around the well-head. Early Tuesday troubleshooters plugged the shaft through which oil was flowing out of the 7-million barrel storage cavern. One man was killed and another burned in a fire and explosion at the facility last Thursday.

Seminar To Examine Possible Effects Of Taxation Amendment

Tax relief or no tax relief. That is one of the questions to be answered at a daylong

Surgical Body Sets Fall Meeting Here

The Texas Surgical Society will hold its fall semi-annual meeting here Sunday through Tuesday. It will be the first time the group has had its meeting in Lubbock.

The society, limited to 200 active members, is composed of surgeons and surgical sub-specialists from over the state.

Headquarters for the meeting will be at the Hilton Inn and scientific meetings are scheduled at Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Dr. James E. Pridgen of San Antonio is the current president and Dr. A. W. Bronwell of Lubbock is president-elect.

seminar here Friday on the taxation amendment passed in the special session of the legislature.

Sponsored by the Comprehensive Planning Institute of Dallas, the seminar specifically will explore the possible fiscal impacts of the proposed amendment on local governments.

Texas voters will determine the fate of the so-called tax relief amendment on Nov. 7 and its passage seems a virtual certainty.

And, although the exact impact on local governments is uncertain, the amendment's passage is expected to have a great fiscal effect.

The Lubbock seminar Friday at the South Park Inn is the last in a series of four workshops across the state to help local government officials prepare for the financial and administrative changes anticipated as a result of the amendment.

Each provision of the amendment will be examined by speakers from the University of Houston, the School Tax Assessment Practices Board, the Texas Farm Bureau, the Texas Research League and the Texas Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

A special two-hour workshop conducted by state Reps. Tim Von Dohlen and John Bryant will give an overall assessment of the amendment and explore legislative action which could lessen the fiscal impact on local governments.

Von Dohlen, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee, supports the amendment's passage, while Bryant has been vocal in his opposition.

Workshop participants will receive a handbook on the impacts of the various components of the proposed amendment and the cumulative impacts of the entire amendment.

The workshop should help each person attending make up his or her mind whether to vote for the amendment, seminar planners said.

The registration fee is $60 per person, or $50 per person for organizations sending more than one person. The fee includes the cost of lunch and the handbook to be used in the seminar.

For further information, contact the planning institute at 214/328-3224. Participants may register the day of the seminar beginning at 9 a.m. at the South Park Inn.

Cattle Futures Finish Mixed

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures finished 50 lower to 15 points higher in active trade of 28,126 cars, Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.
October was down the most with only distant October higher after gaining 67 points. The nearby skirted 70 earlier.
The market reacted after one week highs earlier in a carry over of Tuesday's buying. Prices ran up despite increased cattle supply. Traders noted firmness in cash cattle and beef as positive factors.
Most of the late selling was profit-taking with a cash connected house in the lead.
Wholesale beef was unchanged to up one cent at 81 to 82 cents a pound, f.o.b. driver points. Cash cattle were steady to up 50 cents with the best top $56 per hundredweight at Omaha.
Slaughter was 136,000 head. The major markets expect 11,500 head today.

Feeder cattle futures turned around from an early gain of 95 and skidded 105 before closing 40 to 95 lower. Sales totaled 2,190 contracts. Prices slipped to the lowest in more than one week with August under the most pressure.
Early support spilled over from other meat pits and came in the face of heavy supply of cash feeder cattle. The forecast for an increased run today tended to offset firmer tone to beef.
Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $1 with the best top $86 per hundredweight at San Antonio. There were 177 deliveries. The major terminals are expecting 7,800 head today.
Hog futures ended 67 lower to 30 higher. February was off the most with distant December up the most and distant October the only other gainer. Volume was 5,885 cars.
The market reacted after an early gain of 45 and fell 87 before settling.

Water Plan Said Threat To Downriver Supply

AUSTIN — A Texas Department of Water Resources researcher Tuesday told the members of the Texas Water Commission that the construction of the proposed Stacy Reservoir in West Texas would cause an aggregate shortage of water in the Colorado River basin.

Dr. Quentin Martin, under cross-examination by an attorney for the Lower Colorado River Authority, said that while the reservoir would eliminate a 750,000 acre-foot predicted shortage in the upper basin, the shortage in the lower basin would be aggravated by some one million acre-feet.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District is asking the TWC for authority to construct the Stacy project on the Colorado River in Runnels, Concho and Coleman counties. The LCRA, the City of Austin and several other parties are opposing the application.

Martin, whose report on water needs and demands is being relied upon by the CRMWD to show a need for Stacy, said, under cross examination, that "from a water supply standpoint, the Columbus Bend Project (a reservoir proposed on the lower river near Columbus) is the most likely candidate for the next reservoir."

He qualified that statement by adding "... in the lower basin."

Thomas George, attorney for a Lake Travis group, suggested that the issue in this case is "allocation, not shortage."

Martin noted, however, that with or without Stacy, there would be a shortage of water to meet projected needs in the basin. This, he agreed, would then involve a "reallocation" of water to the needs of higher priority.

Late Tuesday, the CRMWD began direct examination of economist Tony Bagwell on his part in the development of the environmental assessment for the Stacy project.

His work indicates the project would have no significant impact on the populations in the affected counties other than probably increasing incomes.

GAS PRICE TO RISE

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The price of gasoline will jump by nearly two percent Thursday, partly as the result of a strike by oil refinery workers in Belgium 19 days ago, the government announced Wednesday. The increase of four cents per gallon will bring the price of high-octane gas to $2.12 per gallon and regular to $2.07.

COMPLETE STOCK EXCHANGE INDEX

Selling Wave Drops Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly Wednesday in an afternoon wave of selling that came as several New York banks raised their prime lending rates.

Losses of a point or more were common in the blue chip and growth stocks. International Business Machines, No. 1 among all stocks in total market value, fell 6 to 275 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 7.97 to 860.19, and losers outnumbered gainers by a 2-1 spread at the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow climbed about 4 points at the outset after the government reported that the nation had its second-smallest trade deficit of the year last month, with imports exceeding exports by $1.62 billion.

The trade-deficit problem has been cited as a primary reason for the dollar's decline in foreign exchange.

The dollar rallied briefly against leading foreign currencies on the news, and stock prices followed suit. But by midday both the dollar and the stock market had turned downward.

Johnny Jones Heading For Double Coverage

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Mike Patterson looked around, as if surprised. "Have I run with Lam Jones?" Then the thought of the question soaked in, and he grinned — a begrudging grin. "Yeah, I had to run against him some last year."

People from all over the world have run with — or against — Lam Jones. Not many have stayed with him, however. Patterson and his Tech mates remember the sprinter from Texas. He took a 57-yard bomb from Randy McEachern for the first score of the Tech-UT game a year ago, as the Longhorns posted a 26-0 shutout.

Now Jones, who ran on the winning U.S. sprint relay team in the Montreal Olympics two years ago, is one of the prime offensive weapons for the Longhorns.

And one of Patterson's challenges is to stop, overtake, or defend against the wide receiver. It will be one of Tech's challenges, as a defensive unit, too.

And that defensive unit spent its time Wednesday working to stop Jones, and the Texans. The Raider defenders face that challenge in full Saturday when the two teams collide in Jones Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

A packed house — of numbers up to or more than 55,000 — should watch the battle.

"He (Jones) doesn't run too many inside routes," said Patterson, Tech's starting right cornerback, "mainly outside stuff where he can turn it on."

"He's their main receiver, for the bomb. But, with his speed, you have to play off him. Sometimes, he'll loaf off the line, then take off. Other times, he'll just go right by you full speed.

"We'll get some help on him from the safeties, in some coverages.

"But, double coverage is best. One of the things is, you know that when they need it, they'll go to him. That might help some."

Jones has only caught four passes, to five for flanker Ronnie Miksch, but Jones' four have gone for 151 yards and

Dallas Organization Hated By Talbert

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was only a few minutes after the Washington Redskins' fourth consecutive victory of this year 1978 season but defensive captain Diron Talbert already was looking ahead to next Monday.

"It'll be war next week," said Talbert. Veteran Redskins and Talbert watchers knew exactly what he meant — the next team on the schedule would be the Dallas Cowboys.

Defensive tackle Talbert, a native of Texas, has been having a running feud with the Cowboys during the 12 years he has been in the National Football League in Los Angeles and Washington.

And, he says, the things he's said in the past were his own thoughts and not those of George Allen, the former coach of the Redskins who had a passionate hate for the Cowboys.

"What I said was my idea, not his," said Talbert, who makes his off-season home in Houston where he owns an investment company. "I don't have a lot of love for Dallas, there's nothing new about that, and I'm sure they don't have a lot of love for me. That's how it goes."

"It's not so much the players as it is the organization. I know some of their players quite well, and a few always used to ask me what kind of salary should they be making. That's my biggest complaint about the organization."

"Maybe they've started to pay their players a little more, but over the years they've paid two or three key players and that was about it."

"That franchise has made a lot of money, and a man plays only a few years. It's a shame some of those guys who have

...Akers And Acres...

SINCE FRED AKERS climbed down out of the wilds of Wyoming, he's seen defeats around Austin often as he's seen snow-capped mountains.

Lubbock folks remember Fred Akers. His was a successful stint (7-3) at Lubbock High just over a decade ago, before he was offered an assistant's position at the University of Texas under Darrell Royal.

But, when a head coaching spot opened at Wyoming in '75, Akers bought a fur-lined jacket with hood and headed northwest. Just over a year ago, he returned, as head man at Austin, replacing Royal.

History of unbeaten levels followed; only that unmentionable occurrence in Dallas on New Year's Day spoiled it all for Akers in 1977. Not only did the Longhorns come out as the regular-season national champions, but Earl Campbell won the Heisman and Brad Shearer the Outland (the lineman's equivalent).

And, after two tries, the Longhorns are following that same won-lost path of a year ago. Only this time, the scores haven't been as high. This is something which apparently doesn't bother Akers.

LAST SATURDAY, MANY of the young men that Akers recruited to Wyoming were in Memorial Stadium, and the Longhorns only prevailed 17-3. One first down was all they earned in the last half.

The 'Horns were rusty, some observers said. They were looking ahead. Akers didn't want to run up the score against his former employer. The Cowboys were playing double high just to prove to their former coach that they remembered. The Longhorns were flat.

The Wyoming portions of the evaluations Akers is not worried about; that's for coach Bill Lewis to ponder. "I'm not concerned with them," Akers observed Wednesday, and he meant it as no rebuff to the Cowboys. "What concerns me is that we didn't play like we were ready."

"We had good effort individually, but not all at the same time."

And the head coach elaborated a bit: "We've been erratic all fall. We've had some errors. It's not physical, just errors... maybe from inexperience."

THE LONGHORNS LOST both Campbell and Shearer via graduation, and although Shearer is about the only man missing from the defensive this time around, Akers realizes the defensive is still young.

"I've been pleased with the way we've played, defensively, but, even now, we're pretty young — even though we're experienced."

"You don't like to lose a player like Tim Campbell (to injuries after the Wyoming game), but, yes, if we had to lose someone, I guess defensive end is the place. We did have four ends and all were capable of starting."

The Texas defense could be the problem most concerning Tech Saturday. It has yet to yield a touchdown this season, and it shut out three foes a year ago — Tech being one of the three.

That 26-0 blanking could be on the Raiders' minds this week as they prepare.

THERE HAS BEEN talk of two freshmen starting at quarterback in that game. There will be one for sure: Ron Reeves for the Raiders. Donnie Little, from Dickinson, has moved up from the lower regions of the squad — the sixth and seventh teams — since start of fall drills, and now, he's No. 2.

Little guided his high school mates to the state finals a year ago, and his 300-yard, total-offense performance in Memorial Stadium last December is considered by some to be one of the most memorable performances ever in the state playoffs.

But, Akers Wednesday was not ready to name the young man as the starter. "(Randy) McEachern is still No. 1 for us," Akers said. "Little is working with the No. 2 unit, he and (Mark) McBeth."

Offensively, "I think we're going to get better," said Akers. "We don't have a super football player like Earl Campbell. But, I think our players will do nothing but get better and better as we go along."

Mustangs Host Tascosa Tonight

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Before heading out to the practice field Wednesday afternoon, Jack Quarles slipped on a black — rather than a red — warmup jacket and declared: "I'm still in mourning over our loss to Estacado."

Like an unfaithful wife, though, Quarles shed the black jacket about 10 minutes later.

It was time for another undertaking. So, the period of mourning had ended for the Coronado head football coach. For Quarles and his Mustangs, it was time to start thinking about tonight's game with Amarillo Tascosa. The contest is set for 7:30 p.m. at Lowrey Field.

"I don't know how ready we'll be," the coach pointed out. "On Monday, they asked me if we'll work out in the gym. Then on Tuesday, they asked if we would have an easy practice. That's no way to start a week."

After suffering the first loss of the season — and Quarles' first as the head coach, a 14-7 setback by Estacado last week, the Mustangs enter the game with a 2-1 mark. Meanwhile, Tascosa is on the upswing, winning its first game last week (14-12 over Dumas) after dropping its first two.

Quarles, the George Gobel of the coaching profession, pointed out that there is one thing he and his staff do not have to worry about this week — homecoming.

"No more windsor knots, mums and tuxedos for us this year," he told newsmen at the Coppercreek Mine Restaurant. "From now on, all we'll think about is football."

Football in general, he said, Tascosa is imparitular.

According to Quarles, this year's group of Rebels "could be the best one Jocko (Harris) has had in a while."

"Their record," said Quarles, "sure doesn't show what they've got. They are a team you've got to contend with."

Coronado, which boasts the likes of running back Archie Moore, won't be without a little speed in its corner either.

Moore, currently the city's leading ball-carrier with 283 yards on 46 carries, showed the crowd at Lowrey what kind of speed he poses by dashing 67 yards for a score. On the run, the 6-0, 175-pounder left a couple of Matadors standing in their tracks.

Despite the loss, Quarles pointed out that the Mustangs are "on the verge of having a good football team."

And what makes him say that? "I really don't know," he said. "It's just a feeling I've got."

"I have a lot of feelings about things. After being in the business this long, sometimes you get them. I feel something is about to happen."

Longhorns Depleted On Defense . . .

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It could be a duel of freshmen quarterbacks for most of the Texas-Texas Tech game at Lubbock Saturday night.

Ron Reeves will start for Tech in the Southwest Conference game, and Donnie Little of Texas has been promoted from third to second-team quarterback after Texas' punchless offensive performance against Wyoming.

Texas won, 17-3, but had only 187 yards total offense and one first down in the second half. That first down came with Little in the game as starting quarterback Randy McEachern and sub Mark McBath could not move the Texas offense.

"We know we've got problems," said offensive backfield coach Bobby Warmack.

Asked if Little might start, Warmack said, "I doubt it." However, Warmack said, "We're looking at some people. We're not getting the consistent play out of our quarterbacks that we expected. It's rather obvious. That's why we're working on it. There's no reason why they shouldn't be ahead of where they are now. But for some reason, they're not executing."

"Donnie has come along as fast as a freshman could," said Warmack. "He's got good football sense and good natural ability, but we don't want to just throw him to the lions. . . . We need a game-breaker, but we also need to be consistent. We don't want to put Donnie in there until he's ready to assume all the responsibilities and do all the things we want our quarterbacks to do, rather than just have good natural ability."

. . . With Little Help For Offensive Squad

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas, the leading defensive team in college football, has been jolted with the loss of two starters.

Senior end Tim Campbell, a 1977 all-Southwest Conference choice, had surgery for a severed Achilles tendon on Monday, and now doctors say linebacker Mark Martignoni will also miss the remainder of the season.

Campbell said he does not believe he was even hit on the play on which he was injured in the Wyoming game last Saturday.

Martignoni, a junior, has been trying to come back from off-season knee surgery, but his knee swelled after the Wyoming game and he was ruled out for the season.

Coach Fred Akers said he would ask the SWC to grant both players an extra year of eligibility.

Texas ranks No. 1 nationally in rushing defense, allowing only an average of 27 yards in two games. It is first in total defense with an average of 117.5 yards. Texas has beaten Rice, 34-0, and Wyoming, 17-3.

Bucs Through Joking Around

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It's been months since the Tampa Bay Buccaneers have been mentioned in a late-night television monologue. Their game highlights films are shown on Monday night football telecasts for reasons other than comic relief.

And the "Dump McKay in the Bay" bumper stickers, which replaced "Why Not Minot?" (a reference to quarterback Randy Hedberg from tiny Minot State college, who quickly showed why not), have in turn been replaced by a competition among Tampa area fans to describe the Bucs' defense, which ranks second in the National Football League statistically.

A radio contest yielded the unpopular

"Bucteeth," and spurred various fan factions to print T-shirts with "Squashbucklers," "Skull and Crushbones," "Heat Wave," and some funnier ones that were unfortunately obscene. But any laughs about the Bucs these days are not directed at them.

"We're not going to scare anybody or blow anybody off the field. But we are capable, if we don't beat ourselves, of beating any team in football," said Coach John McKay.

The Bucs, losers of their first 26 games, have won four of their last six games. They're 2-2 this season, and if they can defeat Minnesota for a second time this Sunday, they will find themselves in the thick of the NFL Central Division race.

"We're getting better and better, every week, and we realistically see ourselves with a chance to be a contender," said Lee Roy Selmon, the end who anchors the impressive defense.

The defense seems destined to get even better with the added depth of Wally Chambers and Randy Crowder. Chambers, former Chicago Bear All-Pro, and Crowder, former Miami Dolphin starter, are showing flashes of their old form after missing all of last season; Chambers with a knee injury, Crowder in jail on a cocaine sales conviction.

"Not many teams will move very far or very fast against our defense," McKay said.

The nondefensive team, which used to go into the game periodically and leave the field after four impotent downs, is beginning to resemble a competitive offense built around black rookie quarterback Doug Williams.

While Williams has completed only 25 percent of his passes, he has thrown two game-winning touchdowns and has exhibited leadership traits unknown previously at Tampa.

"He's a presence in the huddle and on the field. He takes charge. We can sense his leadership in every respect," center Steve Wilson said.

After shuffling eight quarterbacks in a little over two seasons, McKay has decided to stick with Williams.

No one can help but see his potential. He is also a very mature person. We will take him out if he is injured. We won't take Doug out because he's playing poorly," McKay said.

"We're still babies. We're no Dallas or Pittsburgh. We've got a long ways to go, but you can see it coming," Bell said.

SWC ROUNDUP

Ponies' Mud Hurt

DALLAS (UPI) — Southern Methodist Coach Ron Meyer said senior offensive guard Don Mud had undergone knee surgery and would be able to return in time for the Mustangs' game against Baylor Oct. 14.

Mud was injured in SMU's 45-14 opening game victory over Texas Christian. Meyer said a special surgical procedure to remove damaged cartilage was successful and instead of losing Mud for the year he would be out of the hospital in two days.

Mud was a starting guard last season.

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Texas Christian began working on natural grass to simulate conditions in Saturday's game against No. 5 ranked Penn State at University Park, Pa.

The Horn Frogs, 1-1 after a 14-10 win over Oregon last week, practiced more than two hours to get ready for the game.

Coach F.A. Dry announced sophomore defensive tackle Willie Williams, who started against Oregon, underwent knee surgery Tuesday and would be out the remainder of year. Williams is being replaced by freshman John McClean.

Mike Isaac moved from offensive tackle to defensive tackle to back up McClean.

WACO, Texas (UPI) — Baylor Coach Grant Teaff had his team working on the kicking game in advance of Saturday's game at Ohio State.

The Bears, who lost their first two games to Georgia and Kentucky, have found their kicking game to be a major weakness. Kicker Robert Bledsoe has missed three field goals in as many attempts in the first two games, but has converted on all of his extra points.

Teaff had four members of the Baylor soccer team try a few field goals at practice to see what they could do with a football. The Baylor soccer coach also was there to give Bledsoe, a soccer-style kicker, some coaching.

"I just want to see what they could do," said Teaff in speaking of soccer players. "I have not made any decisions at this time."

Dockery To Speak At Tech Luncheon

Texas Tech head coach Rex Dockery will be the speaker today for the weekly luncheon meeting of the Red Raider Club.

The session will be held at Van's KoKo Palace, beginning at 11:40 a.m. It is open to all Red Raider Club members and their guests, according to RRC president Fred Timberlake.

In addition to the head coach, one of his assistants will be on hand to talk about last week's 41-26 win over Arizona and Saturday night's confrontation with the University of Texas.

Tulsa Eager Despite Being Big Underdog

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Wide receiver Jerry Taylor exemplifies the new-found pride of Tulsa's football players.

Taylor, who already has his bachelor's degree, is playing this year while attending graduate school.

"He just didn't want to leave on a sour note . . . a losing record," said Tulsa coach John Cooper.

Like Taylor, fullback Kyle Phillips and tackle Steve Adams have also earned their degrees and are in graduate school.

Cooper says pride is one reason his team is 4-0 this year after a 3-8 season last year.

"We have better athletes and better facilities," Cooper said. "It's hard to have pride when your dressing room leaks and the coaches don't have any place to meet with the players."

He says the new facilities have changed all that.

"Our coaches are doing a better job," he said. "The coaches' attitude toward the players has improved, and the players' attitude toward the coaches has improved."

Cooper will get a line on just how far Tulsa has come when his team takes on second-ranked Arkansas Saturday in Fayetteville.

"Everybody on our football team has got to play better than they've played for us to have the slightest chance," Cooper said.

Arkansas is a 30-point favorite.

"We've got to move the ball some offensively," Cooper said. "If we turn the ball over on our end of the field, we're in for a long afternoon. We've got to make them go the hard way and earn what they get."

Arkansas opened the season with a 48-17 victory over Vanderbilt and then beat Oklahoma State 19-7 last week.

Wilson Defense Deals Blanks

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Would anybody like to take a guess at which team on the South Plains has the best defense?

In the unlikely event that you chose Wilson, pat your self several times on the back then get yourself on down to the high school to pick up your "Danny Chisum for President" or "Mustangs No. 1" bumper sticker.

Chisum's squad has allowed only six points in three games so far this year. And Wilson hasn't been knocking off paties either.

The season opened on a down note, a 6-0 loss to Class A O'Donnell. But it looks now like that was nothing at all to be ashamed of. O'Donnell is undefeated and appears to be one of the forces to be reckoned with in its conference.

"We knew they were going to have a good ball club," Chisum said of the game. "But our kids realized after the ballgame was over that we should have won the football game and that they had played a good Class A football team. "Heck, we moved the football all over the field on them," he continued. "We just didn't score."

"We got 233 yards rushing and they had 187. 57 of that was on the touchdown run too. That one touchdown was the difference in the ball game. We dropped some passes in the end zone. We just didn't cash in on our chances."

After that, the Mustangs took out their frustrations on Ropes.

"I don't feel like losing to O'Donnell hurt us," Chisum said. "In fact I think it helped us against Ropes. We wanted to prove that we could beat a Class A team."

Consider it proven. Wilson took away a 40-0 win.

Next on the list was Amherst. It too fell, its only loss of the season, a 28-0 decision.

"We feel like we have proved ourselves beating Amherst and now what we want to do is get some young people playing time and kind of polish up before we hit the district schedule," Chisum said.

"We're trying to play a lot of kids this year," he continued. "We're trying to have our young kids come along so if we get somebody hurt in district or if we get a chance to do something they can help."

The Mustangs are loaded with experience. A total of 16 starters returned from last year's 4-6 team. That was Chisum's rookie year.

"We knew it was going to come," he said of Wilson's success. "We knew it once we started to take some pride in that defense. Kids like to play defense a little more, it's easier to take pride in."

Now its back-to-back games against Smyer and Borden County, neither of which has won this year, before Wilson embarks on what looks like a promising district season.

"Meadow and New Home and Dawson are tough," Chisum said, sizing up the opposition. "But I'll tell you the one to watch, Klondike. They're down south so you don't hear much about them. But I think they're going to be real tough."

Tech Volleyballers In Utah Tournament

PROVO, Utah (Special)—Coming off a win over Abilene Christian University Tuesday night, the Texas Tech Women's volleyball team will compete in the Brigham Young University Tournament in Provo, Utah tonight and continuing through Saturday night.

Tournament play consists of four pools with 8th ranked California State-Long Beach, fifth ranked Brigham Young University, fourth ranked Utah State and Texas A&M favored in their respective pools.

Utah State won the Pepperdine Tournament last weekend in Malibu, Calif. The competition featured the four top women's volleyball teams in the nation—Hawaii, Pepperdine and UCLA.

Texas A&M winds up a 10-day tour of the West with the Brigham Young Tournament. The Aggies finished sixth in the San Diego State Tournament last weekend.

Texas Tech will play in pool II along with Cal State-Long Beach, Arizona, the University of Utah, Montana State, and the University of New Mexico.

The best-of-three matches on Thursday and Friday will determine the playoff berths for Saturday.

Texas Tech will match up with Montana State and New Mexico on Thursday. Tech will play Arizona, Utah and Cal State-Long Beach on Friday.

Other Texas' teams competing in Utah include the University of Texas at Austin and North Texas State.

Said Texas Tech Coach Janice Hudson: "We are in the toughest pool. Long Beach is nationally ranked, and we'll have to play Arizona again this week. Last week, we split with them in California, but they eventually took fourth place in the tournament."

"Utah might have a good team since the volleyball around Salt Lake is good. They have to compete with Utah State and Brigham Young all the time." "The other two teams in our pool are unfamiliar to me. I can't imagine losing to Montana State though."

Track Meet Faces Rain Problems

You might hear Coach Hugh Rhodes humming a verse or two from that suddenly popular tune "Rain, Rain, Go Away and Come Another Day" as he sloshes across the Lubbock Christian College campus.

And Rhodes has good reason. The combined Lubbock Christian College junior college-University Division Cross Country Invitational set for Saturday is on the verge of being washed out.

"We're having to run at Mae Simmons Park now," Rhodes explained, "because the city has turned our old course at Mackenzie Park into a golf course and there is simply no room there for a five-mile course. Mae Simmons will probably be the toughest course in the nation, because the runners will have at least six trips to make up the canyon walls. But all this rain has filled the river beds there, and I just don't know right now if we'll be able to run." "If Mae Simmons is unavailable, the only other place we could run is on the roads and that's not good."

And neither is the fact LCC ace Julius Oguro will miss this week's action.

South Plains College, Odessa and the Texas Tech JV will comprise the junior college division, which will run a four-mile course Saturday. The meet will start at 11 a.m.

LCC Travels To Tarleton

The Lubbock Christian College Lady Chapparrals volleyball team will travel to Stephenville to compete in the Tarleton State Tournament this weekend. Coach Larry Rogers looks at the action as a stepping stone to the future.

"We'll be getting a lot of competition from the caliber teams we'll be facing in the state tournament and, hopefully, we can gain some consistency from it." "You can just see us improve game-by-game. But it's been awfully hard for us to maintain momentum. One of the reasons for that is this is our first year and these young ladies are still getting accustomed to one another."

The 12-team Tarleton State Tournament kicks off Thursday night, but LCC doesn't see action until 1 p.m. Friday, when the Lady Chaps face Mary Hardin-Baylor. Also Friday, LCC tangles with Midwestern State at 5:30 p.m. and nemesis Hardin-Simmons at 8:30 p.m.

LCC stands 5-3 on the year and two of the losses have been to HSU, a three-set decision in the Abilene Christian Tournament and a five-set thriller in Lubbock.

Flanagan Says Cold Helps Arm

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Flanagan, a product of the White Mountains, says he loves the cold. While they were no where near what he might experience in his native Conway, N.H., the chilly conditions at Memorial Stadium obviously were just fine for the Baltimore Orioles' left-hander.

As the mercury hovered around the 60-degree mark, Flanagan came within one out of a no-hitter as his picked up his 19th victory of the season in the Birds' 3-1 decision over Cleveland Tuesday night.

"I love to pitch in the cold," Flanagan said after Gary Alexander's two-out home run in the ninth inning spoiled his no-hit bid.

"I come from the north," Flanagan continued. "I pitched plenty of no-hitters up there."

Exactly when the last one was registered escaped Flanagan's memory. It was either at Dartmouth or the University of Rhode Island, he said, but the effort against the Indians "was special."

"I thought I had good stuff and I was really thinking about it in the ninth," the pitcher said. "But I think I'll have more chances."

Flanagan picked up the victory, but failed to register a complete game.

After Alexander slammed a 2-1 pitch into the rightfield bleachers for his 28th homer of the year, Flanagan gave up consecutive singles to Ted Cox and Duane Kuiper and was replaced by Don Stanhouse, who retired Wayne Cage for the final out.

Flanagan said his pitch to Alexander "wasn't in a good spot. My heart was pounding and all that, but I felt all right. I just hung a curve and all of a sudden the ball stopped going at people."

The performance by Flanagan, who will go for his 20th victory Saturday in Detroit, was the fourth time since Aug. 9 that an Oriole pitcher had a no-hitter going past the sixth inning. Flanagan was involved in one other flirtation with fame, while Scott McGregor and Dennis Martinez also made runs at baseball immortality.

None of the previous cases, though, went as far as Flanagan's try against the Indians.

"You don't get much closer than Mike did," said Manager Earl Weaver. "Maybe if he went to two strikes on Alexander you could say he was closer. Maybe he'll get the no-hitter Saturday when he wins his 20th."

Jim Palmer has already won 20 games for the Birds this season.

And the third state TAAF tourney, for men's open fast-pitch teams, will be un-reeted Aug. 11-12. Black said.

By The Associated Press
BACKS OF THE WEEK — Jack Thompson, quarterback, Washington State, and Charles White, tailback, Southern California. Thompson, nicknamed "The Throwing Samoan," completed 16 of 34 passes for 271 yards and three touchdowns and carried 13 times for 54 yards and three more TDs in Washington State's 51-26 rout of Arizona State. White had a 40-yard touchdown run and carried 29 times for 199 yards, a personal high and the most ever against a Bear Bryant team, as Southern Cal knocked off No. 1-ranked Alabama 24-14.

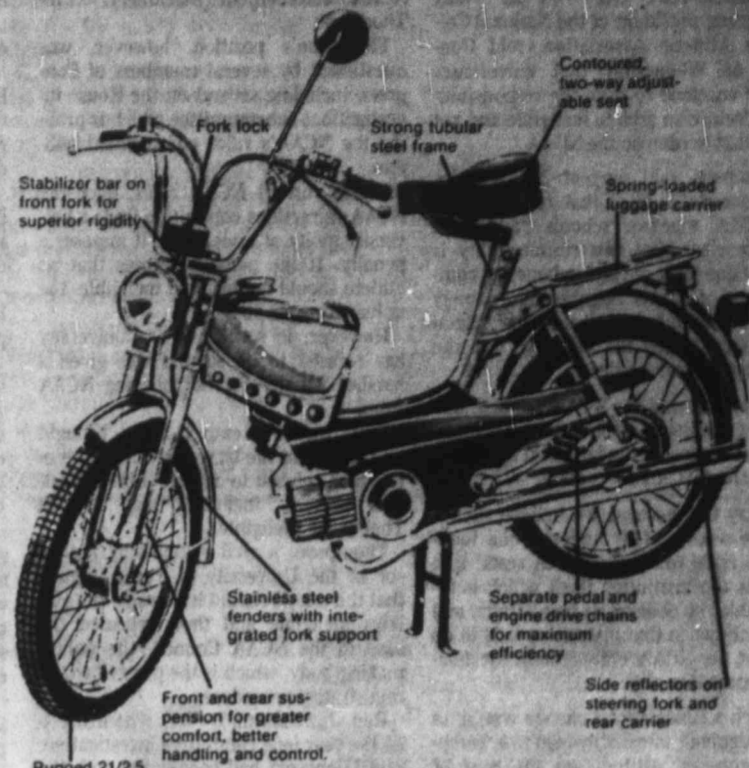

LINEMAN OF THE WEEK — Frank Manumaleuna, linebacker, San Jose State. Nicknamed "The Mowin' Samoan," he chopped down the ballcarrier 27 times, a school record, in the Spartans' 25-7 loss to nationally ranked Colorado. Manumaleuna had 15 solo tackles and 12 assists, including two sacks, forced a fumble and batted down a pass. "If there's a better inside linebacker in the country I'd like to see him," said Coach Lynn Stiles.

NCAA Opposed To Change Says Neils Thompson

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Neils Thompson, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, told Congress on Wednesday that universities should continue to have the responsibility to declare an athlete ineligible and not place that burden on the NCAA.

Thompson said current NCAA rules and procedures gives that responsibility to NCAA member schools "and it is equally clear that this responsibility is simply one facet of the fundamental commitment of NCAA membership, namely that each member institution has primary responsibility for carrying out the NCAA substantive rules."

Thompson said the NCAA Council, discussing the issue last month, is "strongly opposed to such a fundamental change in the current NCAA procedures."

"I say this because we believe such a change would totally undercut the foundation upon which the NCAA rests: that is, it is the institution itself which is responsible for policing its own affairs, and it is only when that institution fails to do so that the NCAA enforcement mechanisms come into play."

"Such a fundamental change would, in my judgment, inexorably lead to a 'catch-me-if-you-can' attitude on the part of some institutions, coaches and student athletes, and this kind of attitude in turn will inexorably lead to the necessity for an even more dramatic expansion in the NCAA enforcement machinery," said Thompson.

Thompson's position, however, was questioned by several members of Congress, including several on the House investigations subcommittee which is probing the NCAA's rules enforcement policies.

Under current NCAA rules, once the NCAA infractions committee finds a university guilty of a violation, it imposes a penalty. If the penalty decrees that an athlete should be declared ineligible, the university must do it.

However, in some cases, a university has refused to do so and was given a harsher penalty for not obeying NCAA rules.

Rep. Bruce F. Vento, D-Minn., brought up the case of the University of Minnesota which refused to declare three basketball players, including star Mychal Thompson, ineligible.

Thompson, a civil engineering professor at the University of Texas, argued that the school should have ruled the athletes ineligible and then appealed the case to the NCAA Council, the policy-making body, which is the prescribed administrative procedure.

Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., who instigated the year-long committee investigation, said Minnesota had cooperated with the NCAA but "had to inflict the penalty even though it was unfair. That seems to me to be inherently unfair. And it seems to take away the fiction that the NCAA is not punishing the athlete when it is."

Thompson replied: "It gets to the crux of institutional responsibility."

Subcommittee Chairman John Moss, D-Calif., shot back: "You're placing a real burden on an institution. They must rely on a decision previously made and dictated to the institution."

Thompson: "The institutions ask for it." He had previously testified that all the rules are voted at the annual NCAA convention.

Moss: "If they want to commit mayhem, then damn well let them. If the law permits it, then the law is a damn fool."

"Your authority does not give you license to go to excessives against the laws and conventions of this country. You might invite some people (at the annual convention) to read the Constitution of the United States as well as the constitution of the NCAA."

Thompson was the first NCAA representative to testify before the subcommittee, which has been investigating whether the NCAA policies violate anti-trust laws and whether the penalties assessed to member schools, athletes and coaches are fair and equitable.

Among other subjects, Thompson said the NCAA Council is opposed to a proposal that a "blue ribbon" commission be appointed to review the NCAA enforcement policy.

"Study commissions are classic means, in the council's judgment, to spend a great deal of time and produce nothing," he said. "The council believes that the NCAA's policy of continuous review, either at the initiative of the Committee on Infractions, the council or the membership is the most intelligent procedure."

In his prepared statement, which was placed in the committee record but not read in its entirety, Thompson said that the NCAA members "find no thought more repugnant than federal involvement in the NCAA enforcement mechanism, or amateur athletics for that matter."

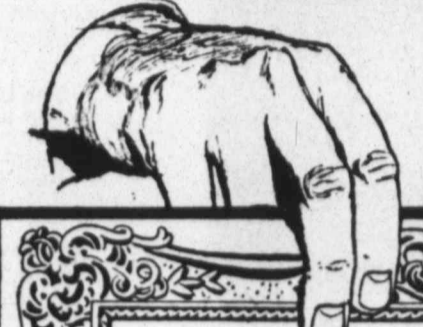

The statement added: "While this subcommittee obviously has the authority to investigate anything it may wish, I do most seriously contend that no one is better qualified than the nation's educational institutions to create a system of substantive rules governing the conduct of intercollegiate athletics, and to operate a program of self-regulation and self-enforcement to implement that system."

Long Dormant Giants Make Comeback Bid

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants right tackle Ron Mikolajczyk had just finished singing the praises of his Sunday adversary, Claude Humphrey, when offensive line coach Jerry Wampfler walked by and said he heard the All Pro defensive end had just retired from the Atlanta Falcons.

"Is that true?" Mikolajczyk asked in astonishment.

Nobody seemed sure if Wampfler was kidding, and Mikolajczyk, who has been psyching himself for a tough battle with the 10-year veteran in Atlanta, wanted to know.

"Somebody make a phone call," Mikolajczyk said. "Here, I've got a dime."

When the rumor was confirmed, Mikolajczyk was a relieved man.

"He's so quick, if you blink your eye he's past you," he said. "I never look forward to playing him."

The Giants are off to their best start since 1971 and go for their fourth victory in five games against the Falcons, winners of just one of four. The two teams met a year ago and the Falcons defense overwhelmed the Giants, recording nine quarterback sacks, two interceptions and two fumble recoveries. They won the game, 17-3.

"Their defense is very solid, they're very, very good defensively," Giants Coach John McVay said of the unit that set a National Football League record in 1977 by allowing just 129 points in 14 games.

"They are strong and aggressive, blitz a lot and try to upset blocking patterns," McVay added. "They haven't changed a whole lot."

The Giants offense, stagnant since the Fran Tarkenton era, suddenly has come to life under the direction of second-year quarterback Joe Pisarcik. New York has scored 96 points in four games, compared to 181 in 14 games a year ago. They rank third in overall offense in the National Football Conference.

The Falcons offense has yet to get rolling in 1978. They were beaten 14-9 by Tampa Bay last week in a driving rain and are unsettled at quarterback. Neither Steve Bartkowski or June Jones has pleased Coach Leeman Bennett.

McVay said he found no similarity between the Falcons and previous Giants opponents. He added he didn't think the Giants and Falcons were at similar stages in their development.

"I don't know exactly what we're like. At this point, I think we're more like Los Angeles and Dallas," he said, unable to conceal a huge grin.

McVay said Pro Bowl linebacker Brad Van Pelt, who missed last week's 27-10 victory over San Francisco with a thigh bruise, is expected back. But Troy Archer's slowly healing broken foot will keep him out of the lineup for an undetermined time. Archer broke his foot before the first exhibition game and has not played.

"We've asked a great deal of our defensive line," McVay said. "We're operating a man short. George Martin, Jack Gregory, Gary Jeter and John Mendenhall are getting an awful lot of playing time."

John Madden Hurts Wrist After Loss

OAKLAND (AP) — The members of the Oakland Raiders nursing minor injuries Wednesday included Coach John Madden.

The coach slammed his left hand into a locker room wall after Sunday night's loss to the New England Patriots and the result was a bruised wrist.

Defensive end John Matuszak and second string linebacker Rod Martin came out of the game with injuries but may be able to play Sunday in Chicago against the Bears. Matuszak has a broken right hand, Martin a sore knee.

Nicklaus, Watson Picked...

...As Golf World Series Starts Today At Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A reluctant Jack Nicklaus and a rested Tom Watson are the key figures in the $300,000 World Series of Golf, an ambitious event that gets started today on the sprawling, 7,180-yard South Course at the Firestone Country Club.

Watson, making a determined challenge to Nicklaus' long-time role as the game's premier performer, could wrap up three important titles: Player of the Year, leading money-winner and the Vardon Trophy for the low stroke average on the tour. He won all three last season.

After taking a three-week break from tournament activity, Watson returned to score his fifth victory of the season last week in California. No one else has won more than three American tournaments. Watson, therefore, easily leads in consideration for Player of the Year honors although he failed to win one of the Big Four events.

"I feel rested, and I play like I'm rested," Watson said. "I've really been looking forward to the World Series."

Nicklaus, Watson's only major challenger for the Player of the Year title, comes in with less enthusiasm.

In fact, he almost skipped the whole thing.

His two oldest sons are playing in a high school football game in Florida this weekend and Nicklaus seriously considered passing up the prestigious tournament to watch them play. He decided to compete only last week — and only after he'd been advised of the tournament's starting times.

"It's an important tournament, important to golf," Nicklaus said.

And, too, the starting times are such that he'll be able to play the second round in time to fly back to Florida, see the football game, then return to Akron for Saturday's play.

Nicklaus, who won three American titles and the British Open in an abbreviated schedule this year, and Andy Bean, a three-time winner, are Watson's only challengers in the money-winning race. Watson has $343,429 and is in position to break Johnny Miller's 1974 record of $353,021.

Nicklaus or Bean would have to win this one, which offers $100,000 to the winner. He has any chance of catching Watson. Bean has $258,440 and Nicklaus $249,772.

Watson's only challenger for the prestigious Vardon Trophy is Lee Trevino. Watson leads with a 70.17 average in 89 rounds and Trevino is 70.20 in 95.

The other American pros in the elite, 26-man field are defending titleholder Lanny Wadkins, U.S. Open king Andy North, PGA champ John Mahaffey, Miler Barber, Dr. Gil Morgan, Hubert Green, Bruce Lietzke, Lee Elder, Jerry Pate, Bill Kratzert, Tom Kite, Lon Hinkle, Mark Hayes and Hale Irwin, the runner-up in this tournament the last two years.

Masters champ Gary Player of South Africa and Severiano Ballesteros of Spain top the foreign field that also includes John Bland of South Africa, Bob Shearer of Australia, Isao Aoki of Japan and Hsu Sheng-San of Taiwan. British Amateur champ Peter McEvoy and American Amateur winner John Cook complete the field.

National television coverage of portions of the final two rounds will be provided by CBS-TV.

Atlanta's Humphrey Begins Retirement

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — Defensive end Claude Humphrey, Atlanta's three-time All-Pro defensive end, saying "the time has come," shocked the Falcons Wednesday by announcing his retirement from the National Football League.

The 10-year veteran, in a hastily called news conference at the club's training

Bench Sees Shakeups With Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench sees an off-season shakeup in the works for the Cincinnati Reds.

"I think they'll make some startling changes," said the Reds' All-Star catcher.

Bench said he believes management was reluctant to break up the combination that swept World Series titles in 1975 and 1976. Now, he senses changes in the wind.

"This organization was founded on conservatism and doing things right. Now I think they have to try some things," said Bench, apparently suggesting Cincinnati enter the free agent market.

"They went and got Tom Seaver and we needed him and they paid a big price to get him," said Bench. "It was a step in the right direction."

Cincinnati finished 10 1/2 games behind Los Angeles last year in the National League West race and was eliminated early this year.

In analyzing the decline of the team, Bench said he feels the Reds "gradually lose little chips until we have to be re-touched."

"Gullet and Eastwick (pitchers Don Gullett and Rollie Eastwick) go. At first, this front office's actions were dictated by what they thought was right. They tried."

camp in Suwanee, Ga., said it was a hard decision, but his own.

"It had nothing to do with the season, the coaching staff or (club owner Rankin) Mr. Smith," the 34-year-old Humphrey said. "The time has come."

Humphrey, who made the National Football Conference Pro Bowl team six times, including last season, said he didn't feel he was playing up to his own personal standards.

"It was hard on my mind during the preseason but I thought the right mental attitude would come with the regular season. However, I wasn't getting emotionally ready to do the job," said the 6-foot-5, 265-pound standout, who was the Falcons' Most Valuable Player in 1976.

"You don't lose a man of Claude's stature without it having an effect on your football team," said Coach Leeman Bennett who added that veteran Jeff Yeates would take over Humphrey's left end spot for Sunday's contest against the New York Giants.

Humphrey, who played at Tennessee State, was the Falcons' No. 1 draft choice in 1968 and went on to become the NFL's defensive rookie of the year, was one of Atlanta's leaders a year ago when the club set a league record by allowing only 129 points in 14 games.

Bennett, whose club is 1-3, said he did not try to change Humphrey's mind. "I didn't feel like I had the right to talk him out of it. I felt like it was his decision and I would respect it," he said.

Humphrey, a native of Memphis, Tenn., who makes his home in Atlanta, did not say what his future plans were.

With the exception of 1975 when he sat out the entire season with a knee injury, Humphrey missed only two games in 1970 during his NFL career.

Bad-Film Afficionado Compiles List Of Fifty Worst Flicks

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — And now, movie buffs, there's a cinema history book unlike any in your library — not another sweet tribute to best-loved films but a raspberry to your most-hated movies.

"The Fifty Worst Films of All Time (and how they got that way)" lays it on the line about films you love to loathe. It is dedicated to the premise that excellence can be boring but gross incompetence is fun.

"We hope the publication of this book will encourage bad-film freaks to come out of the closet and reveal themselves," says the book's introduction.

This irreverent history of Hollywood bad taste ranges from 1930s disasters such as D. W. Griffith's "Abraham Lincoln" and Clark Gable's "Parnell," to more recent turkeys: "Myra Breckenridge," "Zabriskie Point," "At Long Last Love" and the flat-footed-song-and-dance remake of "Lost Horizon."

"I have constantly been fascinated by bad films," says author Harry Medved who had the courage to write this book.

Harry is too young to have seen most of the films the first time they played. He's also too young to fear reprisals from the movie industry he hopes will one day give him a job.

"Someday, I would like to become a filmmaker," Harry says ingenuously. Harry is 17-years-old.

"Since I was seven, I've been staying up till four in the morning watching cinematic turkeys on TV," Harry explains. "That's where I first saw 'Santa Claus Conquers the Martians' and 'Godzilla vs. the Smog Monster.'"

His classmates at Pacific Palisades High School shared his passion for putrid films.

"I realized that some of my friends were having more fun laughing over the real stinkeroos than in seriously discussing the socially redeeming values of good films," Harry recalls.

He tried to find a book on the bombs. "Many critics had written books like, 'My Favorite Films' or 'My Grandfather's Uncle's Favorite Films.' But no one had written a history of the all-time worst films."

Harry's project was launched. Along the way, he had help from his brother, Michael, author of, "What Really Happened to the Class of '65"

Harry's cousin, Randolph Dreyfuss, 19, is credited as collaborator because, as the book notes: "During the preparation of this volume, he provided the main source of transportation for young Harry, who was not old enough to drive."

The product of Harry's research is a funny, surprisingly sophisticated review of the worst moments in the worst films.

Searching for cinematic junk, Harry developed a keen eye for true garbage.

"I sat through 2,000 films to select the 50 worst," he recalls. "It was hard. After awhile, if a film held my interest in the first 10 minutes, I'd get up and walk out.

"But if, in the first 10 minutes, it violated all standards of good taste, I would stay and have a good time."

FARM WOMEN GET ATTENTION
WASHINGTON (AP) — An organization of women living in the nation's rural areas is claiming to have won the attention of a host of government officials and leaders of citizens groups. Rural American Women Inc. said Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has agreed to meet with members of its board of directors next week in the nation's capital and said other sessions are scheduled with Esther Peterson, special assistant to the president for consumer affairs; feminist leader Gloria Steinem and David Cohen, president of Common Cause, the citizens lobby.

Some classic baddies were not easily seen. Harry had to fly to Wisconsin to view a dusty print of "That Hagen Girl," a 1947 drama in which the whole town thinks that Shirley Temple is the illegitimate daughter of Ronald Reagan.

"I went to see 'Bring Me The Head of Alfredo Garcia' at a three-for-$1 theater in Long Beach," Harry recalls. "There were drunks sprawled on the seats and they belched throughout the film."

Harry concedes that some of the 50 worst were hits at the box office.

"Valley of The Dolls" was one of 20th Century Fox's biggest moneymakers," he notes. "But this only goes to prove that the nation is crawling with bad-film aficionados."

"I hope this book will start a revival of bad films," Harry muses. "Perhaps I could even start a bad film festival."

Harvey-Like Voice Endorses Candidate

SEATTLE (AP) — "Hello, Americans," starts a political advertisement aired on local radio in a voice similar to that of news commentator Paul Harvey.

But it isn't Harvey endorsing Republican congressional candidate John Nance Garner. And after a check with federal election authorities, it seems there isn't much that Harvey can do to stop the impersonation.

A campaign worker said it's all in fun, anyway.

Federal Communications Commission rules require only that political ads give the name of sponsoring campaign groups. This one does, so broadcasters can't be ordered to drop the ads, according to one station which looked into the matter.

"The voice is higher, but that's an impersonation of his style," said June Westgard, Harvey's secretary in Chicago. "They're capitalizing on his credibility. Over the years he has gained the confidence of the people."

Harvey never has endorsed a candidate for office and does not endorsements except for reading commercials on his nationally syndicated broadcasts, the secretary said. Neither Garner, a conservative as is Harvey, nor Garner's press secretary were available for comment Tuesday.

But, Lindsay Echelberger, administrative assistant in the Garner campaign, described the ads as an "attempt to put a little bit of humor in the kickoff of the campaign."

The idea for the commercial came from a Pennsylvania firm which sent a sample tape and a letter offering to do a Harvey-like spot. "They're pretty cheap," Echelberger said.

The Seattle ad agency handling Garner's advertising, Allied Media Service, said the spots were done in Pennsylvania by David Pentron Associates.

In Seattle, ABC-affiliate KOMO, which carries Harvey's news show, attaches a disclaimer at the end of the spot saying one of the voices was an impersonation.

The station, which can't censor political ads under federal law, went to the FCC over it and was told it could only use the disclaimer.

Beginner Gets Big Role In 'Battlestar Galactica'

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — There was that small part in the "Hardy Boys-Nancy Drew Mysteries," but the female lead in ABC's "Battlestar Galactica?"

"When I got this role seven months ago," says 21-year-old Maren Jensen, who plays Athena in the season's most spectacular new series, "I had no idea what it was going to be like."

"I'd had some formal training, but usually an actress who lands something like this has been in several other things. "It was a lucky break for me."

Let us think for a moment that there wasn't a bit of calculation to it all, consider:

Maren Jensen spent three years learning theater arts at UCLA, studied acting privately and, as a model, hardly suffered from lack of exposure.

In barely a year, she was in several TV commercials and her face appeared on the cover of magazines like Vogue, Mademoiselle and Cosmopolitan in Britain.

"I'd done a number of other screen tests," she says, "and I read twice for 'Battlestar Galactica,' first in November and then in February. It was my luck to be there at the right time, and I ended up with the role."

How could a beginning actress ask for more than "Battlestar Galactica?" The show, broadcast Sundays at 7 p.m. CDT on ABC, is the season's most heavily promoted new series. A special three-hour premiere Sept. 17 beat both the Emmy awards and "King Kong" in the ratings.

"It's a good sting part," the actress says. "The character I play is not unlike myself, and it's a protected role. I'm not carrying the show, but I have a chance to do quite a bit of work."

Athena is the daughter of Adama, commander of the giant Battlestar Galactica, a part played by veteran actor Lorne Greene.

"She's very smart, about my age, and because her father is in charge, she has a lot of responsibilities," Miss Jensen says of Athena. There is a romantic relationship in the series with Lt. Starbuck, played by Dirk Benedict, but it's one of those, "OK, when you're ready," things, the actress says.

Maren Jensen grew up in Southern California. Her father is Danish, her mother Hawaiian — which explains her middle name, Kawehilani. Roughly translated, she says, it's "morning mist from heaven."

"I've supported myself since I was 15, waiting on a lot of tables and things like that. I figured there must be a better way."

The "better way," at first, was to be a lawyer, and she began her studies at UCLA with that in mind. "Along the way," she says, "I decided I'd better follow my heart," and Maren Jensen took up acting.

Of "Battlestar Galactica," the actress says, "So far, so good. When you work, you work really hard. For a start, I don't think I could have done much better."

Reporter Studies Opium Trade Nightmare

NEW YORK (AP) — It sounds a bit like the plot from one of those paperback-only thrillers: Burmese guerrillas offer to sell the United States 300 tons of opium, to take the drug off the market; instead, the U.S. government supports an attack on the rebels in an attempt to cut the supply line.

"The government decided to supply the Burmese with airplanes and helicopters to attack the source," says British journalist Adrian Cowell of the true-life operation, "and that strategy not only did not stop one bit from getting through, it annoyed the farmers, virtually all of whom have turned to the Communists."

"The result is the opium crop is bigger than ever, and the stuff is pouring through."

Cowell and cameraman Chris Menges endured 16 months in the remote Golden Triangle bordered by Burma, Thailand and Laos, where a third of the world's opium crop is produced. They had rare access to policy-making in Washington, as the rebels' offer was considered. And they spent five months studying drug addiction in Hong Kong, a small colony with a huge heroin problem.

worse."

The problem in Burma is extremely complex, Cowell says, involving almost incessant fighting among local armies and government forces. The rebels in the region, he says, control the farmers who grow much of the world's opium.

Cowell says he was allowed by guerrilla leaders in opium-rich Shan State to record their story on film as part of their plan to raise money from the United States.

The proposal, Cowell says, was rejected by the Nixon administration, but later revived by rebel leaders. Cowell accompanied a congressional staff group to the Golden Triangle for a secret meeting with the warlords, and the plan was submitted again to Washington.

Peter Bourne, at the time President Carter's chief adviser on drug abuse, objected to the political implications, Cowell says, and advocated instead the supply of helicopters and airplanes to the Burmese government to eradicate the source.

Cowell concedes there were "good reasons not to go ahead" with the plan, but says he believes the only place to cut off the flow of heroin into the United States is at the source, and one way to do that is to get farmers to plant other crops.

Cowell says because of his role in the attempted opium deal, he felt compelled to testify in later congressional hearings, to deliver as a journalist information available only to him.

"The United States is the only country trying to do anything about the international heroin problem," Cowell says, "but it's a nightmare in Washington. You've got all these guys with the CIA and not one who's been in the Shan area since 1962, and they don't really know what's happening there."

"Every step they've taken has only made the situation worse."

The concluding "White Powder Opera" segment is an examination of the world's worst heroin addiction problem, and the effort by Hong Kong's narcotics bureau to control the drug trade.

Charles D. Gibson, creator of the Gibson Girl, was born in 1867.

POPPING — Shan man in Burma splits opium seed pods with a thin razor-like blade to obtain the sap, a brown resin that is raw opium. A three-part series titled "Opium" and describing how heroin, most valuable black market drug in the western world, is produced will be broadcast on public television starting Sunday.
