Faculty Cut Urged For City Schools

By JEFF SOUTH Avalanche-Journal Staff

IN VIEW of declining enrollments, school trustee Giles M. "Buddy" Forbess wants his colleagues to commit themselves now to faculty reduction for the 1979-80 school year.

"It behooves us to come up with a certain percentage cut in certified personnel" to be plugged into next year's budget, Forbess said at a school board meeting Thursday.

He added: "I don't think we can continue in the direction of hiring more and more teachers for fewer and fewer students. We're going to have to run the schools more like a business. When we've got less students, we should have less teachers."

Decision Needed Now

Forbess said the school board's annual budget sessions, usually held in June or July, are too late to make significant reductions in personnel. The cuts should be determined now, he said, so Superintendent Ed Irons will be sure to incorporate them in the summer budget drafts.

School administrators said the trend of declining enrollment vs. increased personnel is not as severe as Forbess suggests. And they said the addition of teachers in recent years has been well justified - to fulfill state requirements and to carry out court-ordered desegregation, for instance.

Forbess' fellow board members did not take up the subject immediately. But after the meeting, board president Charles Waters said school trustees may set some personnel "guidelines" for the 1979-80 school budget.

Waters said any such guidelines must take into account "educational priorities as well" as fiscal priorities.

Short 850 Students Forbess made his comments during a discussion of Lubbock Independent School District enrollment this fall. Irons reported that the district's membership as of the third week of school was "approximately 850 students below

HUD Secretary Approves End To New Communities Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Department of Housing and Urban Development is shutting down its disastrous "new towns" program, putting an end to a "sad, painful and expensive" effort to build innovative new communities throughout the nation.

The New Communities effort is one of the best publicized failures of all federal urban programs. One official, declining to be identified, said its reputation was so low that "we didn't want to tarnish the urban policy" with a new towns initia-

Losses in the eight-year New Communities program now total $149 million, and the Office of Management and Budget has refused to release planning funds to revive the program.

Thus, this week, HUD Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris approved staff recommendations to end the new towns effort. And she will ask Congress to close down HUD's New Communities Development Corp., shifting its duties elsewhere within the department.

Mrs. Harris said HUD plans to liquidate seven of the 13 new town projects it subsidizes, while committing additional money to six towns still given a chance to

The secretary had hoped to salvage the New Communities Development Corp. by redirecting its efforts to concentrate on inner-city, rather than suburban or rubeing shelved, the victim of "a history we can't escape," said Assistant HUD Secre-tary William White, who heads the new towns corporation.

A moratorium on subsidizing new projects has been in effect since 1975 while the department sought to untangle the financial problems plaguing practically all of the existing efforts.

Under the program, the government was to subsidize private-sector "new town" developers by guaranteeing their loans and by coordinating federal aid for basic community needs such as housing or sewers. But most of the developers ran out of money before they could sell enough property to sustain the development, and the HUD was forced to pay off their loans and foreclose on the projects.

The department will try to sell off most of the seven projects it is liquidating. These projects are in Jonathan, Minn., perhaps the best known of the new towns, as well as Park Forest South in Chicago; Cedar-Riverside in Minneapolis, Flower Mound near Dallas, Riverton and Gananda near Rochester, N.Y., and White said he "guesses" that liquidation of the foreclosed projects should eventually whittle today's $149 million loss to a total of about $100 million.

More than 200,000 pupils remained on impromptu vacations Thursday as a result of walkouts by teachers in Ohio, Massachusetts and Washington state.

Miss Lillian Presidential Poll Skeptic

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lillian Carter said Thursday she doesn't take very seriously polls that evaluate her son's performance and popularity - even if they are on the upswing.

"Polls don't worry me because I don't believe in them," President Carter's mother told reporters.

But, "Miss Lillian" said, since the Camp David agreements on the Middle East "everywhere I've been I just see a difference" in people's attitudes toward the president.

"I feel wonderful about it," she said in answer to a question.

Mrs. Carter said it didn't bother her when her son's popularity sank steadily in national polls earlier this year.

"I would tell everybody when they asked, 'You remember when he was 1,-000 to nothing? And look what he did," she said, referring to Carter's drive from relative obscurity to the White House in

After the Camp David agreements earlier this month, at which the president brought Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin together for talks, Carter's popularity took a dramatic leap.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll after the summit showed that 42 percent rated Carter's overall performance "excellent" or "good." That compared to 26 percent in August, before the summit. Other polls showed similar increases.

Mrs. Carter, who has been campaigning extensively for Democrats around the country, spoke at a news conference here in conjunction with a conference by the National Commission on the International Year of the Child.

The commission, with a $1.3 million federal grant, hopes during 1979 to "create an awareness of (children's) needs in the United States, said Jean Young, the commission's chairman. Mrs. Young is the wife of U.N. Ambassador Andrew

She said the commission is planning to promote a variety of activities during 1979 to "foster a better understanding of the special needs of children." The U.S. commission is part of a worldwide program coordinated by the United Nations and participated in by 145 nations. Mrs. Carter, who plans to make a number of speaking engagements for the commission, said the problem of malnutrition is of prime importance. "If you can get that eliminated other

WASHINGTON (AP) - With a broad grin and eyelashes fluttering modestly, President Carter acknowledged Thursday that, yes, his reputation "as a capable leader" was enhanced by the Camp David Mideast agreements.

"My interpretation is that the polls have been much more accurate in the last week or two than they were before," Carter quipped when a reporter mentioned his resurgence in the polls since Camp David. An Associated Press-NBC News poll, taken after the summit, showed that Carter's "excellent" or "good" ratings from the public jumped to 42 percent, up from 26 percent the month before.

UN--At Mercy Of Pygmies

THE ANNUAL session of "it's time to beat Uncle Sam over the head" has now convened along the East River in New York We refer to the United Nations, that motley assortment of large, middle size and mini-states, which always has a hand out for more American tax dollars, but holds a cudgel in the other to hammer home its real feelings.

This fall's version of a modern Tower of Babel is no different, if early reports are any indication.

ALTHOUGH WE have some real reservations about the Camp David Mideast Peace accords, we are at least willing to give them a chance Not so some of the leading members of the UN, including Russia, France and a host of Arab states, just for starters. But, the tirade on this subject is par for the course. It is the overall aspects of the UN, as now constituted, to which millions of Americans object.

Back when the UN was founded in 1945, there were 51 countries as charter members. Nine more were admitted over the next five Voters To Judge The Judges?

ALTHOUGH IT has not received much attention, a move by Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2466 of Lubbock is worthy of both the spotlight and support of all who feel the people should have more input in how they are governed.

Going through the "mill" at present is a resolution backed by the Lubbock VFW which would make it possible for citizens to choose, directly and indirectly, all judges other than those of the U.S. Supreme Court.

And even there, limits on tenure would be imposed, thus putting a damper on "court dynasties" which reflect the views of those who name a preponderance of the members of a certain court.

USUALLY, SUCH resolutions as the one referred to here are too unwieldy or wordy to convey their real meaning

Fortunately, and with the help of some lawyers who do not worship at the shrine of thought that the legal fraternity can do no wrong, the Lubbock VFW has come up with one which makes sense. It is also worth noting in detail:

Here is the major portion of the resolution.

"Whereas, the Federal Courts in the exercise of their judicial power, as decided by them, and under the guise of interpreting laws have become a third house of the legislature and have imposed laws upon the people contrary to the wishes of the people and against their consent; and

Whereas, the Federal Judiciary is not now responsible to the people or responsive to the people's will;

Now, therefore, be it resolved that Article III-The Judiciary-Section 1 of the Constitution be amended to provide that.

"Members of the Supreme Court shall be appointed for a term not to exceed ten years. Members of Circuit Courts shall be appointed and selected from Judges elected and serving as Federal District Judges. District Judges shall be elected by the people of the District in which they serve for a term of office not to exceed six years.

THERE ARE those who may argue that such "public pressure" would compromise the judiciary's ability to "call 'em like it sees em," particularly on so-called Constitutional questions.

On the contrary, there is ample evidence that courts-especially at the Supreme Court and Appeals levels-have often reflected the personal or philosophical views of the jurists rather than basing rulings on the strict letter in Paris May 22, 1885, age 83. of the law.

It is no secret that School Boards and others thinking of appealing rulings to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans have second thoughts. "We wouldn't stand a chance there," is an oft-heard comment.

The VFW's resolution is being considered by higher levels of the organization in hopes that it will become a national issue. It is an idea whose time already is past.

M. STANTON EVANS:

For Sale: Our Homeland Inquiries Confidential

WASHINGTON-The disclosure that former Sen. Stuart Symington is the voting trustee for Arab investors in a fight for control of an American bank holding company has stirred new waves of paranoia about the problem of foreign invest-

Some of this concern, it's true, can be put down to xenophobia and accordingly discounted. There is a case to be made that foreign investment is a good thing, not a bad one.

It is a tribute to the long-range health of our economy, suggests the attractiveness of our system to investors, and provides a source of needed capital and jobs.

MOREOVER, THE steps suggested as a method of preventing or controlling foreign investment are often repugnant to our values. We believe in the free flow of trade, and such investments are in keeping with that notion.

Forced disclosure of this activity and strenuous efforts to pierce the secrecy surrounding it run counter to our notions of freedom, requiring a further abridgement of the right to privacy.

All of this is true. Yet as noted by Kenneth C. Crowe in a trenchant study called "America For Sale" (Doubleday), there are serious problems involved in the question of foreign investment in this country that require some careful thought and official action.

THE MOST clearly problematic case involves the issue of national defense, and the possibility that agents of a foreign power can buy their way into American companies engaged in sensitive

Though supposedly prevented by existing law, this outcome becomes highly plausible when we reflect that many foreign companies operate in partnership with or as fronts for governments, that they are able to obtain holdings through American nominees, and that existing disclosure laws do not come into effect until the proportion

Crowe cites as a case in point an instance in which the Luxembourg subsidiary of a French bank acquired control of an American company which, among other things, was a defense con-

He notes a House Banking Committee report which emphasized that the bank might be holding the stock either for itself or for an undisclosed

A second example in similar vein involves the Bulova Watch Co., which in 1976 was taken over by a Chinese manufacturing firm operating out of Hong Kong

Since this takeover involved more than a quarter of the outstanding stock it came above the disclosure threshold.

The deal was complicated by the fact that Bulova was involved in turning out guidance systems for American missiles, a problem dealt with by moving the defense work to a subsidiary with an all-American board of trustees

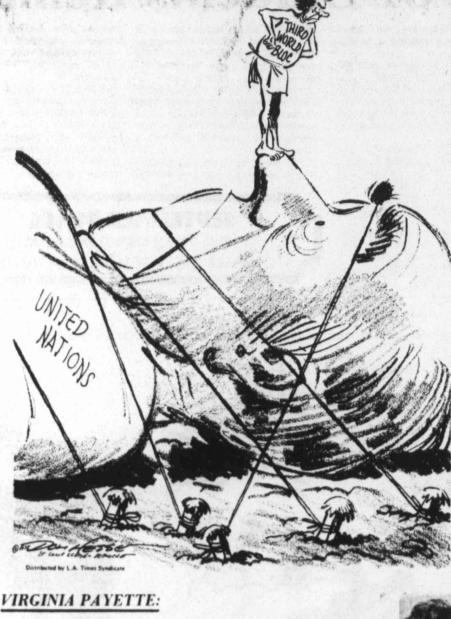

SITUATIONS OF this sort, quite clearly, go beyond the reflexive notion that there is something demeaning about foreigners' owning all or part of American businesses. Rather than dealing with purely private transactions, we confront the possibility that a hostile foreign government could buy access to vital data concerning American defenses. And given the layers of secrecy and complexity that can be interposed between the buyer and his purchase, we might never know that such a thing was happening.

The answer is not to impose additional broadauge controls on foreign trade, but to focus on the critical problems of defense contracting, and trade involvement by foreign governments.

Where either or both of these factors are involved, the fullest possible disclosure would seem to be required.

To Hugo

PARIS-I went to the grave of the amazing Victor Hugo, buried in the Pantheon near Voltaire

In 1878 Hugo was stricken by cerebral congestion. But he lingered on seven years. Hugo died

He was the greatest poet of his century and author, as well, of "Les Miserables," among other significant novels In 1821 Hugo began his famous relationship with talented actress Juliette Drouet who abandoned the stage. At first Hugo intended to redeem Juliette but, ultimately, she redeemed him. Juliette died two years before Hugo. As his estimate of life without Juliette, Hugo's last request was that his body be placed in a pauper's coffin.

HUGO LOOKED like one of Alexander Dumas' 'Three Musketeers," dynamic and muscular. But under this facade he was a cautious man, not unlike his father.

Born at Besancon (Feb. 26, 1802). Hugo was the third son of Napoleonic Gen. Joseph Leopold Hu-

But Napoleon had few good men around him. His father was like Gen. Dumas, the father of the novelist, a veritable one-man army but not a good general.

Hugo was an infant prodigy. At two, his mother took him to Paris and Paris was the birthplace of his soul. By 14, Hugo wrote "I wish to be Chateaubriand or nothing."

Spasms of dogged perseverance overtook Hugo. He began to write with the intensity and self-confidence that one day climaxed in "Les Misera-

In 1845, age 43, Hugo entered his political period. He transferred an interest in politics into an obsession. His aggressiveness grew insufferable. On the night of December 14, 1851, patient Juliette rescued him during a particularly stormy escapade. Disguised as a lorryman, she hauled landscape will look without posters plastered on every lamppost and tree. There is one drawback to all this: It's going to require a little paper work on your part. You'll have to sit down and list every single tax you shelled out last year, penny by penny. (Or more accurately, dollar by dollar.) But keep telling yourself the money you'll save on political contributions makes it worth your

One more warning about possible side effects: Once you see for yourself how government expenses are taxing you right into bankruptcy court, you might experience a sudden attack of nausea. All the more reason to get it down in black-and-white before you go into the red for

TAKE FEDERAL taxes (please!). With inc taxes up 66.4 percent, Social Security up 105.1 percent, estate and gift taxes up 34.8 percent, miscellaneous" up 671.5 percent (!) and all the other "little" nibbles, your federal tab is now 71.7 percent stiffer than it was just five years ago.

But Uncle Sam isn't the only one with his paw in your pocket. State governments know how to squeeze pretty good, too. In five years they've upped their collections by 68.7 percent to more than $100 billion through income taxes (95.9 percent higher), property taxes (up 79 percent), sales taxes (up 57.4 percent) and various other things like licenses for automobiles.

booze and businesses. Don't forget City Hall, either.

Local taxes add up, you know, for things like property (a 49.4 percent increase), income (up 79 percent), sales receipts (101.4 percent higher), public utilities (a whopping 112.8 percent boost) and motor fuel (up 61.9 percent).

THESE MAY NOT be so painful, coming as they do in nickel-and-dime payouts over the year. but totalled in with the rest-more than 80 separate federal, state and local taxes-they come to a grand total of $521 billion.

That figures out to $2,403.35 per person, which is 63 percent more than you paid five years ago.

There's no way to avoid it. Buy a gallon of gas and four cents goes to Uncle Sam. Down a jigger of whiskey and he collects 11 cents. Puff a pack of cigarettes and you make him eight cents rich-

Move to the suburbs to avoid city taxes and you lose again. More and more big city governments are making commuters pay for the privilege of the metropolitan rat race.

IT EVEN COSTS to die. If you're not careful, most of your estate will wind up in the hands of the tax collector. You can't even give it away: the federal government limits your generosity with a big tax on gifts.

Small wonder a lot of Americans feel they're back with Alice in Wonderland, that the harder they work and the more they earn, the further they fall behind.

In the past 10 years, most middle-income workers have watched helplessly as taxes and inflation ate up their wages, forcing them to either lower their living standard or send Mama out to work.

DON'T COUNT ON the coming tax "cut" to help out much, either. One of the sadder facts of life is that taxes are subject to inflation, too, which means that even with an income tax break, most of us will wind up paying more next April than we did this year.

And some of us will be even worse off.

That's because, in many cases, wage increases will push us into a higher bracket, Social Security taxes are going nowhere but up, and higher prices are getting to be as sure as death and tax-

So don't send the politicians a check, send 'em a message: your tax total.

If you mail it in it'll cost you 15 cents now-and you can point out to the boys that they had a hand in that, too.

WELL, IT SEEMS we owe "Knute Rockne"

Dockery an apology You may recall back during the summer we were doing a series of articles about Texas Tech, as related to what's wrong and what's right on the campus.

In the course of comments on the athletic situation, we said that problems associated with Tech's Administration and the Ex-Students Association should not spill into the Fall football cam-

The athletic field is no place to decide such things, we argued. And we said it would be totally unfair to Coach Rex and the team to do so. We then said "to be frank, with a reincarnated Knute Rockne at the helm," the Red Raiders would be fortunate to win one of their first four games. The schedule is an "impossible" one for any team, we added, noting that USC, Arizona, Texas and Texas A&M were "giant killers."

WELL, IT still is an impossible schedule. And there's still a long road ahead.

But, scratch those other pontifical observations. Not only have the Crimson and Black gone out and distinguished themselves against top-ranked Southern Cal, but they pulled off one of the season's big shockers against Arizona.

Coach "Knute" Dockery and some kid by the name of Rocket Ron, probably one of the Four Horsemen, also reincarnated, and a host of helpers have turned things around with a giant-killing act of their own out on the Big Red Spread.

In all candor, things may not stay that way come Saturday night's fever in Jones Stadium. One game doesn't make a season. And if the Techsans pull of another miracle this weekend, we hope the fans don't start buying Cotton Bowl tickets. Nor assume that everything else on the campus is also turned around.

But, at this stage of the game, the Tech coachng staff and the players are due a great big "E" for Effort! Right, Knute?

In all honesty, September often can be a very wet time of the year, especially around Panhandle South Plains Fair time. It is not often we go through the whole week without some rain.

But, even though the records may not bear it out, we join those who maintain that something is happening to the weather, not only here but over much of the nation. On an annual basis, it is not that we are getting more rain or sunshine We seem to be getting the same sort of weather -but at the "wrong" time of year. We had better hope the wooly bears are wrong about that forecast of another humdinger of a winter. If Fall and Indian Summer lasts until Christmas, we wouldn't object. And if it keeps raining on the Fair, maybe we ought to move it back to June when we could use the soakers.

"The $6 Million Senate Seat." the writers call

Actually, the figure may be somewhat less than that, if for no other reason than the candidates may not reach their goals. The two columnists say Tower "is well on his way to raising and spending the $3 million set earlier as his campaign budget-and the money is rolling in from both big donors and a record-setting 62,500 or more small contributors."

SEN. TOWER, of course, had no primary prob-

But, Rep. Krueger and Joe Christie, the former Texas Insurance Commissioner, reportedly spent upwards of $1.5 million in their hard-fought primary battle, with Krueger reportedly accounting for two-thirds of that total. The New Braunfels man originally had hoped to raise more than $2.2 million for his general election challenge of the incumbent Tower, Angle and Walters say, but donations from the business community reportedly dwindled after Krueger's House vote in favor of the labor "reform" bill. As a result, Krueger reportedly has scaled down his current campaign fund goal to around $1.5 million. With his primary expenditures said to be in the same category and with Sen. Tower's $3 million bonanza, it comes out to $6 million. The record thus far is $4.2 million, spent in a 1976 Senate race in Pennsylvania. GOP Sen. H. John Heinz III, the winner, accounted for about $3 million of that from his family's ketchup-pickles fortune, NEA says. All of which prompts the question: Is this really what the Founding Fathers had in mind?

"One of the problems in the current energy debate is public skepticism about how much oil is out there and with people playing games with statistics," Nehring said in an interview.

The report by the Rand think tank, he said, "is useful for identifying the patterns of world oil distribution, and it's useful in the CIA's work, too, trying to look down the line 20 to 25 years." The report's conclusion agrees essentially with other studies of the world petrole-

Nehring said that 75 to 85 percent of the world's future oil supply will come from increased recovery from known fields. More than half that oil is contained in "super-giant" (5 billion barrels or more) and "giant" (500 million barrels or more) fields, he said.

Nehring said reliance on known reserves probably will create "a gradual upward pressure on prices."

Probably much of the additional oil can be produced at or below the cost of current oil prices," he said, but the effect of dwindling reserves on consumer prices cannot be foretold "because so much of the cost is taxes and royalties."

With so much of the estimated recoverable oil in super-giant and giant fields, which are concentrated in only about two dozen areas, Nehring said the prospect of a doubling or tripling of oil resources "is out of the question because most of those basins have been looked over pretty well and because the number of discoveries of fields of that size has dropped."

Nehring, a political-economics expert who specializes in petroleum geology, estimated that between 1,700 and 2,300 billion barrels exist worldwide in ultimately recoverable crude oil, not including "hundreds of billions of barrels" that might be tapped from heavy oil (tar)

One Worker Dies In Houston Blast

HOUSTON (AP) - One man was killed and three others injured Thursday when a 10,000-gallon tank used for storing alcohol compounds exploded at a South Side chemical plant.

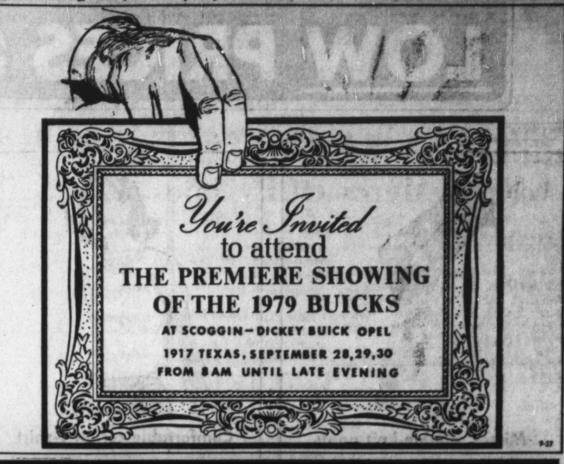

Only one of the three injured required hospitalization.

The dead man was identified only as a 31-year-old welder who was said to have been repairing handrails and a catwalk on top of the tank.

Tom Dowse, manager of the Magna Corp. plant, said the top of the tank was blown off. He said the area had been checked prior to the welding work but the explosion possibly resulted from ignition of vapors inside the tank.

The man killed and two of the men injured were employees of a welding consands and from oil shale deposits. He said these reserves should last 60 to 90 years at current world energy consumption lev-

as Compromise Bill Appears In Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House leadership should get rough with Democrats who fail to support the Administra-tion-backed natural gas compromise bill, said Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, who claims fellow Texans hold the key for House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. and House majority leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth should "be calling in all the people that should vote for the bill...and make it clear that folks who voted for the bill would be treated a little differently than folks who didn't.

The speaker's prestige is totally on the line. The president's is totally on the line. And the majority leader is going to be awfully embarassed if he doesn't get any Texas votes," added Wilson.

We need to get a bandwagon psychology but right now we don't have one

The Carter administration-backed compromise, which calls for deregulation of most natural gas by 1985 and gradual price increases in the interim, passed the Senate on Wednesday - as expected by a 57-42 vote.

An unusual coalition of liberals, who feel the compromise is too much a price for consumers to pay, and conservatives. who feel it doesn't deregulate prices quick enough, hope to defeat the measure when the House votes in mid Octo-

Wilson, a member of the House-Senate conference committee that hammered out the compromise, was named earlier this week to a 37-member task force by O'Neill and instructed to drum up support for the compromise.

'My job (on the task force) is to work with the producing-state Democrats." said Wilson. "That includes Colorado and Utah where I'm having some luck. Where I'm having no luck at all is Oklahoma and Louisiana.

And Texas

Wilson admitted that right now only 'six or seven" Texans will line up with the president and the House leadership.

'In the last analysis, when the speaker, majority leader and the president put the full-court press on them, I think we'll get half of the Texas Democrats, maybe more," continued Wilson. "I'll be very disappointed if we don't get 11 or 12.

'But if we don't have more than six or seven, which is what we've got now, then the bill will not pass.

A Thursday morning poll of the the 24member Texas delegation revealed four solid votes for (Wilson and Wright plus Democrats Bob Eckhardt and Jack Brooks) with two others leaning toward support (Democrats John Young and Olin "Tiger" Teague who is currently hospitalized and may not vote).

Briscoe Family Gives Hill Little Support

AUSTIN (UPI) - Republican William P. Clements would make a better governor than Attorney General John Hill, but Janey Briscoe said she would still vote for the man who defeated her husband in the Democratic primary - but only because she is faithful to the Democratic Party.

"Party loyalty aside, I do feel he (Clements) would make a better governor than Hill," Gov. Dolph Briscoe's wife Mrs. Briscoe said she harbored no per sonal bitterness against Hill but attributed to the attorney general comments "about me and Dolph that were deliberate lies, and he knew it.

"I just don't want to talk about it, she said when asked to elaborate. "I don't want to start an ugly thing. I don't want to start a feud with Hill.

Mrs. Briscoe said the Hill camp had not sought the support of the Briscoe But Clements, the Dallas millionaire, has sought support from the Briscoe family and some have responded.

Briscoe's son, two daughters and sonin-law are among a number of Briscoe associates who are aligning with Clem-

"We can't support someone like Hill," said Cele Briscoe, the governor's youngest daughter. "It's not because he beat my father, but because of his beliefs and Miss Briscoe and her sister, Janey, and their brother, Chip, prefer Clements because of his conservatism.

Briscoe has given Hill virtually no support and has done nothing to dissuade members of his family from supporting Clements.

The governor declined an invitation to appear with Hill at the State Democratic Convention at Fort Worth Sept. 15-16, saying he had a conflicting out-of-state commitment to attend the Southern Governors Conference. However, Briscoe didn't leave for the conference until the second day of the convention and stopped en route for a Mexican Independence Day celebration in Houston where he was photographed alongside a smiling Clements.

The Republican has said he would not embarrass an incumbent Democratic governor by asking for his support. But he said he had contacted Cele Briscoe and Edward Vaughan, Briscoe's son-in-law, to ask for their support and said both agreed to help. Vaughan, a Uvalde attorney, has distributed Clements bumper stickers in Briscoe's hometown and attended a re-ception for Clements at the Briscoewned first State Bank of Uvalde.

BLAKE RECORD CENTER

Eleven Texans are either solidly against the bill or leaning toward a "no" vote. They are: Republicans Jim Collins and Bill Archer plus Democrats Omar Burleson, Bob Poage, Bob Krueger, Bob Gammage, Jake Pickle, Jack Hightower, George Mahon, Richard White and Abraham "Chick" Kazen.

The undecided members include: Democrats Jim Mattox, Sam Hall, Barbara Jordan and Henry B. Gonzalez.

Those unavailable were Democrats Dale Milford, Ray Roberts and E. "Kika" de la Garza.

Right now it does not look by any means that it will pass the House, warned Wilson. "The Republicans are maintaining a pretty solid front...the Northeast liberals are holding pretty firm and we're not getting any significant breakthrough with producing-state Dem-

Opponents oppose the bill on "idealogical grounds, saying it's not deregulation and on practical political grounds, which from, because they don't want Carter to get the credit for resolving the issue," he

The House leadership plans to lump the natural gas pricing compromise with three less controversial energy measures and stage one vote on the entire package.

"A lot of congressmen don't want to go before the voters in November without having passed an energy bill," said Wilson who noted that the "ones we're having the problems with are the real idealogues and that argument doesn't carry a lot of weight with them sometimes.'

Wilson said he hoped that five "leaning" Texans - whom he refused to name would be invited to meet with the secretary of the Treasury and the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board to "talk about the international implications of the bill.

Wilson said he believed the oft-repeated White House agruments on behalf of a comprehensive energy bill. Passage of such a measure would improve the dollar abroad and disprove "the general percepton in Western Europe and Japan that the U.S. does not have the capacity to come to terms with a divisive regional issue," he said. Should the measure pass, Texas consumers are "going to have an emotional reward because for the first time in ten years, they're going to be paying the same as everyboby else...they'll know the Yankees are paying the same that they do which has been a bone of contention for

The intrastate gas market in Texas has supported higher prices, thus producers balked at selling to interstate customers. The compromise would extend federal regulation to the intrastate markets, which will increase prices in most states.

The main Texas opposition to the bill arises from "the emotional opposition to any intrusion in theintrastate market by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission," said Wilson.

Opponents of the bill contend that the increased regulation will drive some small producers out of the business while continuing to raise gas prices as producers pass the cost of additional lawyers and accountants along to consumers.

In Cairo, senior Egyptian Foreign Ministry officials said preliminary meetings could begin as early as next Wednesday Oct. 4, in the Suez Canal city of Ismailia. Israeli army specialists were preparing to leave for Cairo Friday to reopen the direct communication links that will facilitate negotiations.

U.S. Mideast envoy Alfred Atherton, meanwhile, arrived from Jordan to brief Israeli officials on his swing through Arab capitals.

The developments underscored the two directions in which Israeli policy makers must face in the coming weeks: along the relatively well-mapped path to an agreement with Egypt, and toward an uncertain cast of characters and vague principles laid out by the Camp David accords for eventual agreement on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

The Israeli parliament, the Knesset, approved the Camp David plan by a vote of 84-19 after an exhausting 17 hours of debate that ended at 3:30 a.m. Thursday. The accords call for the withdrawal of Israeli troops and civilian settlements from the Sinai Peninsula and return of the desert region to Egypt. They call on the two countries to sign a treaty by mid-Decem-

the lawmakers, "The peace treaty is almost ready. We must just copy it, and add a few clauses."

In Washington, President Carter, who had hailed the Knesset action as "a great step forward," told a news conference Thursday afternoon Begin and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt told him after the vote there are now "no remaining obsta-cles" to an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. Asked if he would go to the Middle East for the treaty signing, Carter said: 'Nothing would please me more than to participate in the signing of a peace treaty at an early date."

Yigal Hurvitz, minister of commerce and a member of Begin's own Likud bloc, quit the Cabinet Thursday to protest the accords, saying he didn't want to "take part in this whole process."

Although preparatory talks may begin next week. Israeli officials said Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, a key negotiator. would not go to Egypt before the end of the Jewish high holy days - New Year next Monday and Tuesday and Yom Kippur on Oct. 11.

The details that negotiators must work out include the timetable for the Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai, whose first phase must be carried out within three to nine months of the treaty-signing: the future of Israeli investments in the peninsula, such as tourist facilities and oil fields; traffic arrangements between Israel and Egypt, and the future of the U.S.-operated early-warning stations in the Gidi and Mitla passes.

posts in the Sinai must be completed in two to three years. The 18 civilian settlements now house 4,000 people.

Egypt's acting foreign minister, Butros
B. Ghali, said the Knesset vote should encourage other Arab nations "to think seriously about negotiating with Israel so that we can achieve a comprehensive peace in the region."

Ghali told The Associated Press in an interview that Israel may voluntarily end its military government in the West Bank in the next three months.

"There is a general understanding that there will be paralellism and synchronization," Ghali said. "At the time this (Egyptian-Israeli) treaty is concluded, you can have the end of military administration in the West Bank and Gaza.'

The president of one of those nations. Syria's Hafez Assad, met with the leaders Kuwait Thursday, and Syrian sources said both sides agreed the Camp David accords could not serve as the basis for a comprehensive Mideast peace. Assad has joined other Arab hard-liners in rejecting the accords as a "surrender" to Israel.

Assad then abruptly cut short by two days his tour of Arab capitals. His return to Damascus coincided with a sharp escalation of fighting between Syrian peacekeeping troops and right-wing Christians in Beirut, Lebanon.

The Christians accused the Syrians of formenting the new violence to undermine the Camp David agreements. The Syrians charged that the Christians were trying to draw their ally Israel into the Lebanese conflict again. A spokesman for King Hussein said the Jordanian monarch will visit the leaders Jordanian monarch will visit the leaders of Saudi Arabia and other conservative Arab oil states beginning Saturday. Sources said he would seek their support for a unified Arab plan for a comprehensive settlement, including Israeli withdrawal from all occupied land.

the Saudis have pointed in particular to its failure to guarantee a full Israeli pull-out from the Palestinian-populated West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Carter said at his news conference he can do nothing to force Begin to accept the U.S. view that Israel has agreed to build no new settlements for five years. Begin says the commitment was for only a three-month moratorium.

American diplomats and Israeli officials, meanwhile, continued contacts with Arab leaders in the West Bank and Gaza, searching for moderate Palestinians to join talks that, according to the Camp David frameworks, are supposed to decide on the powers and responsibilities of an autonomous local administra-

Egyptians May Cut Back

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Thousands of soldiers will put down their rifles and pick up tools to build roads and cultivate desert land as the Egyptian army shifts from war footing to peace with Israel, under proposals made by Cairo's planning

"In a way, they will have to turn their trigger fingers into green thumbs," said one official of the public-works ideas.

Some Egyptian sources close to the military predict that the actual savings realized by trimming the size of the army will not be funneled into these development projects, but instead will be churned right back into the defense budget to replace aging Russian-made tanks and airplanes and to improve pay and living conditions in an army where a private receives less than $10 a month.

No estimates are available on the savings expected and the amount needed for modernization of the armed forces.

An Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty now appears to be only weeks away. The Israeli Parliament on Thursday approved the Camp David accords and cleared the way for new negotiations.

With peace, Western military observers in Cairo believe, Egypt's 500,000-man standing army - one of the world's largest - gradually will be pared down to about 300,000 fighting men.

Planning Minister Abdel Rizak Abdel Meguid has proposed using about half the demobilized soldiers as a "development army." And a panel of experts has drawn up a still-secret report on the post-war army that is being considered by military chiefs and government leaders.

But even a quick approval would leave formation of an army development corps months away.

Egypt's army grew from about 80,000 men at the time of the first Middle East war in 1948 to a more than 10 times that, including reserves. The military currently accounts for up to 40 percent of the national budget of $5 billion.

Economists fear that demobilization could place an added burden on an already struggling economy, dumping hundreds of thousands of men on the job market at a time when the jobless rate is 12 per cent and under-employment wide-

'We don't have the industry to absorb so many men," said Lutfi Abdel Azzim. editor of the economic weekly Al Ahram Iqtisadi. "The biggest danger in any country after a war is what to do with the

Mail Costs Prompt Alternate Delivery Methods

WASHINGTON (AP) - Because of increases in postal rates, in coming years your magazines may be brought to your door by a youngster instead of to your mailbox by a letter carrier.

That may save you money on magazine subscriptions, but it has the Postal Service worried about second-class mail and the rates for it.

The publishing industry is preparing for the end, scheduled for next July, of taxpayer subsidies for that class of mail used to send magazines and newspapers.

Many publishers are experimenting with other, cheaper ways of delivery, such as contracting with private firms. These companies usually employ youths to fan out through neighborhoods hanging plastic bags containing the magazines on door knobs.

Since the private firms pay the deliverers lower wages than those of postal workers, the firms may be able to undersell the U.S. Mail in many areas, leading publishers to turn away from the Postal Service.

The congressionally mandated subsidies that are due to end next year have been in effect for decades on the theory that publications perform a public service by providing news and education. The subsidies have reduced second-class mail rates for publishers by $1.2 billion since 1971 alone.

However, the phase-out of the subsidies also has resulted in second-class mail rates going up even more steeply than first-class rates.

There have been increases in rates for all classzs of mail in 1971, 1974, 1975 and 1978. The additional increases for secondclass have come annually since 1972.

These companies, led by United Parcel Service, engage in what postal officials have termed "cream skimming." That means they take the best business and leave the U.S. Mail with the part they don't want.

In the magazine delivery field, the companies are expected to concentrate on urban and suburban areas, where people live close together. They are not expected to serve rural areas where deliveries are most expensive. The Postal Service would continue to deliver to these areas at a still higher cost to the remaining cus-

The Postal Service's concern can be seen in the comments of Francis Biglin, its top financial officer, to a recent convention of business mailers. Biglin conceded the Postal Service in the past was 'not fully alert" o publishers' needs but added: "We in the Postal Service have watched parcel post go to another delivery system. We are determined not to let this happen in second ... class.'

Biglin said the July 6 date makes second-class mail "a much more intense subject" to the Postal Service. Postmaster General William F. Bolger has appointed a high-level task force to study what can be done to retain second-class mail volume.

Second-class rates have gone up in part for the same reason as first-class. The most important of these is wage increases won by postal workers, sometimes under threat of a national strike.

By law, first-class mail rates cannot be affected by what happens to second-class since each class of mail is supposed to stand on its own financially. However, the phase-out in special subsidies for the mail bills of publishers has added to the second-class increases.

Federal law prohibits competition with the Postal Service in first-class mail but makes no such prohibition for other mail. Publishers say they hope to save many millions of dollars and hold down future increases in subscription rates through alternate delivery systems.

Better Homes Gardens says private delivery costs it about 10 cents a copy, while its mail bills now are 13.6 cents. It already uses private carriers in six cities and plans to add at least 10 more.

Reader's Digest uses private delivery to about 150,000 California subscribers. "This company isn't testing any longer," said Coleman Hoyt, a vice president.

"We are committed to alternative delivery on a permanent basis.'

Ohe Wall Stree Journal uses private delivery for about 15 percent of its 1.2 million daily circulation. Dow Jones Co., publisher of the newspaper, believes this could be expanded to as much as 75 percent by 1982. W. Gilbert Faulk Jr., vice president, said.

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) - Libraries al Service will recompute its rates east of the Mississippi River are receiving federal documents through United Parcel Service Inc. because it is faster, cheaper and more reliable than the U.S. mail, a federal official said Thursday.

James D. Livsey, director of the Library and Statutory Distribution Service of the U.S. Government Printing Office, told UPI in an interview the switch was made when it appeared the U.S. Postal Service would be hit by a strike.

"The Postal Service is a little upset, but we now expect to save between a quarter and a half million dollars in depository shipment costs by using UPS through zone 5 in the first year." he said.

'This area extends from just beyond the Mississippi into Maine in the northeast and as far south as parts of Florida.

"It includes 71 percent of libraries in the nation. We fully expect that the Post-

"Since 1971, the price of a first-class

He said the librarians now receive the government materials in a steady daily flow instead of in bunches twice a week.

"I am extremely pleased with service by United Parcel Service. There is better delivery," he said. "There are fewer damaged packages and we are enjoying fewer missing shipments, and when we report them they find the missing shipments immediately. That was a problem with the Postal Service, handling fourth class mail was a low priority for them.

Livsey said UPS customer representatives have visited and helped him more in the last two months than Postal Service officials did in the previous four years.

Tax Strain Symbolized

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Last year, businessman Harry M. Katowitz paid his county merchant's tax by stenciling a check on a pair of boxer shorts, to illustrate his view of the taxpayer's plight.

This year, he was audited by the Internal Revenue Service, and ordered to pay $17,687 in federal income taxes.

To symbolize how the extra tax had fractured his finances, Katowitz had the check to the IRS stenciled on a "rupture truss," a protective belt worn by persons with abdominal ruptures.

Scientists Develop New Blood Test To Detect Hidden Cancer

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers say a new blood test will reveal hard-to-detect cancer before traditional symptoms appear, allowing early treatment and a beter chance of cure. Such a test has long been a goal of can-cer researchers. Its developers at Massa-chusetts General Hospital say they hope it can be used to screen large numbers of people for cancer before the disease advances beyond treatment.

One of the researchers, Dr. Kurt J. Isselbacher, said the test may become a routine part of physical exams, such as checks for diabetes and high blood pressure are now.

The test is based on the discovery that cancer victims have a substance in their blood that is absent in healthy people. It is a chemical called galactosyltransferase isoenzyme II, or GT-II. The researchers found that GT-II can be detected in a blood test months before the patient shows outward signs of can-

In a four-year study of 232 cancer pa-tients, the doctors found that 71 percent had GT-II in their blood. A report on their research was published Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine.

In an interview, Isselbacher mentioned three cases where patients were given the test when they complained of vague discomforts but showed none of the usual symptoms of cancer. The tests revealed that all of the patients had GT-II in their blood. All developed detectable cancer of the pancreas within nine months, he said.

Iselbacher also said patients with GT-II in their blood may gave cancer that is so small that it cannot be found with X-rays, body scans or other conventional diagnostic tools.

Isselbacher said he hopes the test will be ready for widespread use within three years. First, however, a simplified process will have to be developed to replace the now-complicated method of analyzing blood samples.

"I'm optimistic that this test will stand the test of time," he said. "But we will feel more secure when other laboratories take up the challenge and confirm our

In their study, the doctors found GT-II in 83 percent of the patients with cancer of the pancreas, 75 percent of those with stomach cancer and 73 percent of those with cancer of the colon.

Tests on 58 persons who did not have cancer turned up no presence of GT-II. The researchers found that levels of GT-II are highest in patients with advanced cases of cancer. In three former cancer patients, GT-II appeared in their blood three to seven nonths before symptoms of a recurrence their disease were observed. "Most of the patients we have seen and flowed have gastrointestinal continues." her said. Falconer Runs Halfway House For Injured Birds

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Master falconer John Karger isn't choosy about the birds he perches on his wrist. It might be a picturesque falcon, a stately eagle or maybe even — ugh — a homely vulture. Karger, you see, runs a halfway house for

The bearded young falconer takes in wounded birds of prey, nurses them back to health and uses the ancient art of falconry to retrain them to hunt for themselves in the wild.

"No money, nothing is as valuable as seeing a bird fly out that had been found shot or injured," said Karger, who's been caring for birds for 15 years - ever since some grade school friends dumped a box of baby barn owls at his doorstep.

"I want to educate people to be rational about these birds. Hunters see a hawk and think, 'That's just an old chickenhawk,' so they shoot it. There's no reason to slaughter birds of prey," he said.

Karger, who has no college degree and taught himself to train animals and birds, takes his educational program to civic clubs, schools, fairs and festivals across Texas.

The star of the show will be one of his current patients, gracefully swooping through the air and landing on Karger's gloved wrist precisely on whistled com-

The meager honorariums, donations and fees from the shows finance his efforts. He lives with his parents and is aided by a few veterinarians, who must perform the surgery on the injured birds.

Karger, one of very few falconers licensed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to handle endangered bald eagles, hopes to open a rehabilitation center near Houston next year with money promised by a Houston donor.

It was the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that sent Karger a protected golden

Crafty Research Helps Motorist To Beat Ticket

CLYDE, N.Y. (UPI) - James Compitello found a way to beat a speeding ticket even after he paid the fine - and it left the Clyde Police Department a bit embarrassed.

Last July, Compitello paid an $18 fine for driving 48 mph in a 30 mph zone in this Wayne County village.

But he got the mark taken off his license last week because of a newspaper article, a little research and a letter to the Federal Communications Commis-

Shortly after the ticket, Compitello read an article on police radar that mentioned that local police, particularly in small villages, sometimes forget to renew their federal registrations for radar

Strictly on a hunch, and thinking that this village would be a prime candidate, Compitello wrote the FCC and received a letter three weeks later from the federal agency stating that the Clyde Police Department had, indeed, failed to renew

Compitello hired a lawyer and village Justice Richard V. Gibbons dismissed

Understandably, Clyde police are a bit red-faced about the entire matter.

"I don't know how it happened," admitted Gary McIlwain, Clyde police officer in charge. "Somewhere in the bureacracy something got fouled up, and it never was renewed.

But McIlwain said assuredly, "You can bet your booties that it won't hap-Meanwhile, Compitello will have to eagle that had been gunned down in New Mexico. For two years, Karger nursed and trained the eagle, which became popular at his shows. The eagle later died from a heart attack brought on by infection from an overlooked shotgun pellet.

'Sometimes it takes two years in a severe case like that one for the bird to heal and be retrained to go back in the wild," said Karger.

Among his current patients ars a redtailed hawk named "Solitaire." a young black vulture and an incredibly ugly turkey vulture, which bit Karger's already talon-scarred hand the first time he touched the bird. State and federal wildlife officials, zoos and private citizens refer the birds to Karger. Most are picked up by concerned individuals. Karger, who says he'lt take in anything except a wild skunk, cared for about 120 injured birds at his facilities last year. More than 80 were successfully released on South Texas ranches.

In an order filed Thursday, U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward gave official authorization for a pending damage suit against various Lubbock liquor retailers to proceed as a class action endeavor. The federal judge last week had issued an order stating that the litigation would become a class action as soon as plaintiff David Greenhaw, an attorney, signed a waiver relinquishing the right to any direct or indirect attorneys fees in the case. Greenhaw's affidavit, renouncing the right to any such fees, was also filed

The order designated Greenhaw representative for the class.

Greenhaw, of Stanton, was a Texas Tech University student between 1967 and 1974. He filed the suit, requesting class action designation, in November, 1976, shortly after eight defendants had been indicted on price-fixing charges.

The order basically defines class members as retail purchasers of alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, from retail stores owned, operated or controlled by defendants from March, 1967, through December, 1974.

Defendants in Greenhaw's civil suit are the same as those who were named in the federal anti-trust action All eight defendants in the misdemeanor case subsequently pleaded nolo contendere, or no contest, to the government price-fixing charge.

By SHAUNA HILL

Avalanche-Journal Staff Empty promises and a crisis in leadership are leaving voters disillusioned and apathetic, charged Texas Secretary of State Steven Oakes at a meeting of Lubbock civic leaders Thursday.

"Elected officials fail to grasp how informed the electorate is," Oakes said. "People want straight talk and real solutions, not promises of perfection.

When people say the government is insensitive, unresponsive and a bureaucracy, they're right," Oakes said. "The problem is, it's our bureaucracy and we're having a crisis of leadership.

Oakes explained that people are not voting because they feel their vote doesn't count or because they are just apathetic.

'Society is increasingly complex and the burden on the average person is awe-some," Oakes said. "People are drawing into themselves and their families and not giving of their time, talents, and energy like they did in the past."

People under 30 are a good example of this, Oakes said. 'We worked voter registration on the University of Texas campus this week, and the totals were down 15,000 just since 1972." he said. "We've registered about a million voters this year and we are trying to register another million before the Oct. 8 deadline," Oakes said. Most offices will be closed Sunday the eighth, so the unofficial deadline is Oct.

according to Oakes. 'If we succeed in registering the million before the deadline, Texas will have approximately 75 percent (of the population) registered which is the highest percent in the nation," Oakes said.

"We already have registered almost 50 percent of that million, but it won't mean that more people will vote," he added.

"Only one out of every three people who are registered ever vote," Oakes said. "And we have the statistics in Austin to prove it."

Voter registration is just the beginn of the solution to our problems, Oakes

A man in a Harlingen shopping mall said he "was going to register and vote so he'd have the right to complain," and he had the right idea, Oakes said.

Some of the solution will come when people begin to think government service is a civic responsibility, he said.

Oakes was appointed Secretary of State

by Gov. Dolph Briscoe when former secretary Mark White resigned to run for attorney general. When asked if his political fortunes would change with the upcoming gubernatorial election, Oakes replied, " told Gov. Briscoe I would only serve a year when he appointed me Secretary of State. I think people who stay around government too long lose their perspec-

Oakes does not plan to run for office in the near future, but said, "I would run for an elected office if I felt I could make a valid contribution, but I'd never do it

Returning to law practice in Houston is the way I can serve best after this year is over," he added.

Falconer Runs Halfway House For Injured Birds

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Master falconer John Karger isn't choosy about the birds he perches on his wrist. It might be a picturesque falcon, a stately eagle or maybe even - ugh - a homely vulture. Karger, you see, runs a halfway house for birds.

The bearded young falconer takes in wounded birds of prey, nurses them back to health and uses the ancient art of falconry to retrain them to hunt for themselves in the wild.

"No money, nothing is as valuable as seeing a bird fly out that had been found shot or injured." said Karger, who's been caring for birds for 15 years — ever since some grade school friends dumped a box of baby barn owls at his doorstep.

"I want to educate people to be rational about these birds. Hunters see a hawk and think, 'That's just an old chickenhawk,' so they shoot it. There's no reason to slaughter birds of prey," he said.

Karger, who has no college degree and taught himself to train animals and birds, takes his educational program to civic clubs, schools, fairs and festivals across Texas.

The star of the show will be one of his current patients, gracefully swooping through the air and landing on Karger's gloved wrist precisely on whistled com-

The meager honorariums, donations and fees from the shows finance his efforts. He lives with his parents and is aided by a few veterinarians, who must perform the surgery on the injured birds.

Karger, one of very few falconers licensed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to handle endangered bald eagles, hopes to open a rehabilitation center near Houston next year with money promised by a Houston donor

It was the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that sent Karger a protected golden

Crafty Research Helps Motorist To Beat Ticket

CLYDE, N.Y. (UPI) - James Compitello found a way to beat a speeding ticket even after he paid the fine - and it left the Clyde Police Department a bit embarrassed.

Last July, Compitello paid an $18 fine for driving 48 mph in a 30 mph zone in this Wayne County village.

But he got the mark taken off his license last week because of a newspaper article, a little research and a letter to the Federal Communications Commis-

Shortly after the ticket, Compitello read an article on police radar that mentioned that local police, particularly in small villages, sometimes forget to renew their federal registrations for radar

Strictly on a hunch, and thinking that this village would be a prime candidate, Compitello wrote the FCC and received a letter three weeks later from the federal agency stating that the Clyde Police Department had, indeed, failed to renew

Understandably, Clyde police are a bit red-faced about the entire matter.

"I don't know how it happened," admitted Gary McIlwain, Clyde police officer in charge. "Somewhere in the bureacracy something got fouled up, and it never was renewed.

But McIlwain said assuredly, "You can bet your booties that it won't hap-Meanwhile, Compitello will have to settle for just his revised driving record. The village kept his $18.

eagle that had been gunned down in New Mexico. For two years, Karger nursed and trained the eagle, which became popular at his shows. The eagle later died from a heart attack brought on by infection from an overlooked shotgun pellet.

'Sometimes it takes two years in a severe case like that one for the bird to heal and be retrained to go back in the wild," said Karger.

Among his current patients ars a redtailed hawk named "Solitaire," a young black vulture and an incredibly ugly turkey vulture, which bit Karger's already talon-scarred hand the first time he touched the bird. State and federal wildlife officials, zoos and private citizens refer the birds to Karger. Most are picked up by concerned individuals. Karger, who says he'll take in anything except a wild skunk, cared for about 120 injured birds at his facilities last year. More than 80 were successfully released on South Texas ranches. "At first, I have to handle them all the time, so they become dependent on man for food. You have to retrain them for the wild, remind them they can hunt," said Karger.

His patients begin flying gradually to strengthen unused muscles, before Karger takes them on hunting excursions, where they hunt for game from his wrist.

They are housed in big rooms, where Karger can release mice for the birds to capture in order to sharpen their hunting instincts and reduce their dependence on Karger recently stopped a rogue hawk from terrorizing the ducks at Fort Sam Houston's historic 5th Army Quadrangle by capturing it with a net rather than killing it. "That's an example of how a problem can be solved without losing a life," he explained.

His hawks are also handy in clearing buildings and airport runways of pesky pigeons and grackles, natural prey for hawks. "The hawk isn't going to catch the whole flock," grinned Karger, "but he'll scare the rest away.

HEARTLINE: My father is 66 years old and he is on Medicare. Recently he had an accident and went to the hospital. He was admitted as an outpatient and received treatment for his injury. Will Medicare cover outpatient services? - D.L.

Yes, this is a covered service by Medicare. Covered outpatient services whether for diagnosis or treatment are paid by medical insurance and are handled by the hospital intermediary, rather than the carrier, which ordinarily handles your medical insurance claims.

After the $60 deductible has been met, Medicare takes care of 80 percent of the reasonable charges for all covered outpatient services you receive. The hospital will apply for the Medicare payments and will charge your father for any part of the $60 deductible your father has not met, plus 20 percent of the remaining reasonable charges for the outpatient services.

If the charge is $60, or less and the hospital cannot determine how much of the $60 deductible he has met, then the hospital may ask him to pay the entire bill and have the Medicare payments made directly to him.

Oakes Addresses Members Of Lubbock Leadership

By SHAUNA HILL

Avalanche-Journal Staff Empty promises and a crisis in leadership are leaving voters disillusioned and apathetic, charged Texas Secretary of State Steven Oakes at a meeting of Lubbock civic leaders Thursday.

"Elected officials fail to grasp how informed the electorate is," Oakes said. "People want straight talk and real solutions, not promises of perfection.

When people say the government is insensitive, unresponsive and a bureaucracy, they're right," Oakes said. "The problem is, it's our bureaucracy and we're having a crisis of leadership.

Mother Guilty In Children's Deaths

ODESSA-A 20-year-old Odessa woman, who was indicted on two counts of murder by a district court grand jury Monday, pleaded guilty to both counts Wednesday.

Emma Jean Berry pleaded guilty before Judge C.V. Milburn in 304th District Court at the Ector County Courthouse and was handed two concurrent life sent-Oakes was in Lubbock Thursday to speak to Leadership Lubbock, a Chamber of Commerce sponsored group of potential civic leaders.

In an interview with The Avalanche-Journal prior to his speech, Oakes touched on some of the political ramifications of recent voter apathy.

"When six percent of the electorate choose city officials and 12 percent of the voters elect senators, those officials have no broad based mandate," the Houston attorney said.

"Those officials are responsible to a miniscule part of the population, and it makes me uncomfortable," he said.

ment of Corrections.

Miss Berry pleaded guilty to the murder of her two-week-old child, Jamie Deshauna Berry, who died Sept. 7, 1978, and also to the murder of her two-month-old son, Carl Eslie Kennedy, who died on Sept. 16, 1976. Both deaths were the reOakes explained that people are not voting because they feel their vote doesn't count or because they are just apathetic

"Society is increasingly complex and the burden on the average person is awe-some," Oakes said. "People are drawing into themselves and their families and not giving of their time, talents, and ener-gy like they did in the past."

People under 30 are a good example of this. Oakes said. We worked voter registration on the University of Texas campus this week, and the totals were down 15,000 just since 1972." he said. We've registered about a million voters this year and we are trying to register another million before the Oct. 8 deadine," Oakes said. Most offices will be closed Sunday the eighth, so the unofficial deadline is Oct. 6. according to Oakes. 'If we succeed in registering the million before the deadline, Texas will have approximately 75 percent (of the population) registered which is the highest percent in the nation," Oakes said.

"We already have registered almost 50 percent of that million, but it won't mean people begin to think government service is a civic responsibility, he said.

Oakes was appointed Secretary of State

by Gov. Dolph Briscoe when former secretary Mark White resigned to run for attorney general. When asked if his political fortunes would change with the upcoming gubernatorial election, Oakes replied, "I told Gov. Briscoe I would only serve a year when he appointed me Secretary of State. I think people who stay around government too long lose their perspective and become a part of the thing they Oakes does not plan to run for office in the near future, but said, "I would run for an elected office if I felt I could make a valid contribution, but I'd never do it just to hold an office.

"Returning to law practice in Houston is the way I can serve best after this year is over," he added.

Better Race Relations Seen In South Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) -Pieter Willem Botha, whose tough record as defense minister earned him the nickname "Pete the Weapon," became South Africa's new prime minister Thursday and vowed to improve relations between the government and the nation's black majority

The balding, 62-year-old successor to John Vorster emerged the winner of a three-way battle within the ruling, Afrikaner-dominated National Party in a closed door party caucus. The National Party has controlled the white minority government since 1948.

Botha, the senior member of the Cabinet with 12 years as minister of defense, strode to the front steps of the Parliament building after his election and promised "law and order" for the country. But he said one of his goals will be to apply a positive policy to improve the tervened.

relations between the different population communities, taking into account the inalienable right of self determination of all peoples.

At a news conference after his speech, Botha announced he would retain his portfolio as defense minister. He said he ntended to make no immediate changes in the Cabinet and would keep the defense job "as long as I believe it to be suitable and practical.

During his years as defense minister, Botha built up an impressive modern military machine. He also sent his army on an ill-fated campaign against the Marxist Popular Liberation Movement in Angola in 1975. The South African column swept to within miles of the Angolan capital of Luanda, but was forced to withdraw when expected U.S. support failed to materialize and Cuban forces in-

"tried to reach a compromise," he said. The commission recommended approval of the zone change on four conditions: -That the building be tied to a site

-That the south side of the building be of compatible material, preferably rock

-That a screening fence be erected on the west property line.

-That the 10-foot strip of land on the south be landscaped with trees or other plant material which will visibly interrupt the solidarity of the south wall of the

Calling it a "tough zone case," Mayor Dirk West assured opponents to the zone change he was "not deaf to their concerns" about facing the side of the building or about the traffic on 74th Street after the store is built.

Councilman Bill McAlister said he didn't anticipate "the property on the frontage (of the 13-acre tract) going as professional offices," and suggested the construction might be "very beneficial for the whole area. Council Bud Aderton noted "very few locations in the city meet the criteria for the C-3 zoning," adding, "compared to what's on the other three corners (of the intersection), the city might be well served to accomodate a structure like

Rogers had refused to reveal the name of the business which would occupy the giant building at University and Loop 289 until Thursday when he announced the Dayton Hudson Corporation wanted to construct a Target store in Lubbock.

Target generally is known as a discount store, but Rogers said discount would be "misnomer" as applied to the stores. Dayton Hudson refers to Target as a teachers has increased. Official school district figures indicate Forbess may have over-estimated the enrollment drop. The figures show that compared with 1975-76, the district's student membership is down only about 5 percent, with approximately half the stead of going down, the number of drop occuring this past year. During the same period, the district's number of certified employees - teachers and administrators - has increased slightly more than 5 percent, from 1,965

Fixed Percentage Urged Forbess wants the school system to bring the two trends in line, so that as enrollment drops, the number of teachers would, too. He said the school board can move toward that goal by instructing Irons to trim personnel rolls used in next year's budget by a fixed percentage. Forbess did not specify how large the cut should be. School officials indicated that if the board approved such a proposal, teachers would not necessarily have to be fired. A reduction could be accomplished simply by not replacing teachers who resign, they said.

The trends cited by Forbess are reflected in the school district's pupil-

Last year, the district had a ratio (excluding special education) of 23.4 students per teacher, Leslie said. The district anticipated having a 22.7-to-1 ratio this year, but because of the enrollment drop, it has worked out to 22.2-to-1.

Waters said the lower pupil-teacher ra-tio has "allowed the schools to do a better job." But Forbess said he believes the general public doesn't think so.

Irons said the school district has had no control over much of the decrease in the pupil-teacher ratio. He said Texas school finance laws have mandated lower ratios, and that as part of its desegregation plan, the district promised to decrease the ratio especially in elementary

Nevertheless, Irons told Forbess, "We get the message" about trying to reduce personnel in next year's budget.

Part of the answer will lie in how state-mandated pupil-teacher ratios are affected when the 1979 legislature revises school finance laws, Irons said. Look To Attrition

Leslie said the district already is attempting to reduce personnel rolls through attrition in light of this year's ent decrease. As a result of resignations and other vacancies, he said, five teaching positions have been "eliminated or absorbed," he said.

HOTEL PLANNED SAN ANTONIO (AP) - City council members heard plans Thursday for a $38 million, 522-room hotel to be part of the city's massive downtown development project near Alamo Plaza and the popular River Walk. Construction of the Hyatt-Regency hotel is scheduled to begin in April, 1979.

Pressed about his position on racial discrimination, the new prime minister said only: "I intend carrying out the policies of my party with all its consequences.'

In his speech, Botha told a nationwide radio audience: "There is a total onslaught against the free world and it is also directed at our fatherland. But to the power of Marxism and revolution we will never bend our knees. Everyone who wants to uphold our freedom must work hard for this so that we can keep our unity in South Africa and our place in the free world."

The government and the economy of South Africa are controlled by 4.3 million whites, about three-fifths of them Afrikaners - descendants of the Dutch and French Huguenot colonists who settled the country beginning in the 1600's. There are also 2.4 million coloreds, or persons of mixed race, 765,000 Asians and 19 million blacks. A black maid, asked by her employer what she thought of the election of Botha as the country's eighth prime minister since 1910, merely shrugged and said: 'So what? He's still white.

The remark was typical of non-white reaction to Botha's selection by an allwhite electorate. Patricia Damons, a young colored woman, said: "I'm not interested in who they pick." A black man, who declined to give his name, said: "Well sir, it really doesn't matter." A. Holt, a colored businessman, said: "I've got no reaction. I've got no vote, so no reacti

Robert Smith, a 46-year-old white clerk, said: "He'll do what he's told by those who elected him."

The white Afrikaner's preoccupation with race stems from the earliest days of settlement when the Dutch East India company established a trading post in Cape Town. Books were scarce in those early days and much Afrikaner reading was done from the Bible. Afrikaners were strongly influenced by the scriptures and came to believe that God had appointed them to reproduce and flourish in this rich land.

The early settlers later were joined by Huguenots fleeing persecution in France. Isolation from the rest of the world had its effect on the hardy colonists, many of whom moved further into the country to farm and establish new settlements. Botha and his two unsuccessful opponents for the post, Cornelius Petrus "Connie" Mulder, 53, minister of plural relations, and Roelof Fredeick "Pik" Botha, 46, foreign minister, are all descended from these early settlers.

Such details, he said, "I don't think are going to be highly controversial."

Mobster Denies Knowledge Of Kennedy Plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reputed Mafia boss Santo Trafficante testified Thursday he took part in a CIA plot to murder Fidel Castro but knew of no conspiracy to assassinate John F. Kennedy.

Trafficante, described as a former Mafia chief in Tampa, Fla., told the House assassinations committee he never told anyone that Kennedy would be "hit."

The gray-haired, 63-year-old Trafficante recalled a 1963 conversation with Jose Aleman, a Cuban exile, but said he did not tell Aleman that Kennedy would not live to be re-elected.

Aleman's version of that conversation, which took place about six months before Kennedy was shot to death in Dallas, had Trafficante saying he expected Kennedy to be "hit."

But, expressing fear for his life, Aleman altered his interpretation of the conversation on Wednesday and told the committee he no longer interprets the term "hit" to mean Kennedy was marked for murder.

"I never made the statement that Kennedy was going to get hit," Trafficante testified. "I was speaking in Spanish and in Spanish there is no way to say that."

"Did you have any foreknowledge of the assassination of President Kennedy?

" asked Rep. Louis Stokes, chairman of the committee.

"Absolutely not," Trafficante insisted.
"No way."

Trafficante also testified ne never heard any mobster threaten to kill Kennedy, although there was anger about the Kennedy administration crackdown on organized crime.

Trafficante's testimony came as the assassinations committee wrapped up its public inquiry into the murder of John F. Kennedy, who was assassinated in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. In its final day of hearings, the panel investigated theories that organized crime was involved in the Kennedy murder.

Trafficante, who once ran gambling casinos in Havana, said he was recruited for the CIA murder attempt against Castro by John Roselli, a mobster who later was murdered. He said Roselli "told me the CIA and the U.S. government was involved in eliminating Castro."

His participation in the plot, which called for poisoning the Cuban leader, was patriotic, he said, noting he was worried about having a communist nation so near Florida.

"It was like in World War II," Trafficante said. "They tell you to go to the draft board and sign up. Well, I signed up."

He said the mobsters considered "poison, planes, tanks — I'm telling you they talked about everything."

Trafficante told the panel he thought the idea of killing Castro was a good one at the time. "He had established a communist base 90 miles from the United States," he said. "I go along with it because I figured it was like a war."

The first proposal considered by the plotters was for a gangland style killing of Castro on the streets of Havana, Trafficante said. But he said the late Chicago crime boss Sam Giancana opposed that, saying hired killers would not take the job because they would not be able to escape.

The mobsters settled finally on having a disgruntled Cuban official administer poison pills to Castro, Trafficante said.

He said he did not know what happened to the plot but a 1967 CIA report says the would-be assassin "got cold feet" and returned the poison pills.

Asked about reports that Roselli told associates that Castro later hired the same mobsters to kill Kennedy in retaliation, Trafficante replied: "I have no knowledge of that."

Later, organized crime investigator Ralph Salerno told the committee that intensive FBI wiretapping of gangsters in the 1960s "gives no indication at all that the national Cosa Nostra directed or was involved in the assassination of President Kennedy."

Salerno said that does not rule out the possibility of organized crime involvement in the assassination by some individual Mafia family.

The committee released transcripts showing that some mobsters talked about killing Kennedy and several expressed happiness at his assassination.

One transcript quoted a gangster as saying someone should take a knife like one of them other guys and stab and kill the (obscenity) where he is now I'll kill. Right in the (obscenity) White House. Somebody's got to get rid of this (obscenity)."

Of course, the Panhandle South Plains Fair is not yet over. There are two more days of rides, attractions and concerts by Mel Tillis. But if you've been faired out, well, look around you. There's so much more to take advantage of. "Death On The Nile" is the only major movie opening, though fami-lies should take note there are no less than three choices offered them this week: "Billion Dollar Hobo" at the Arnett-Benson and Village, "Olly Olly Oxen Free" at the South Plains Cinema and the matinee selection of "Mickey Mouse's Birthday Party" at the Fox. Showplace and South Plains Cinema.

The rest of the big openings should arrive by mid-October.

The Fox began showing midnight shows last weekend, and the response was overflow crowds. So manager Harold Lieck has decided to hold over the same attraction, Ralph Bakshi's "Wizards," for midnight screenings tonight and Sat-

The Foreigner concert drew 8,420 people while illness forced the cancellation of Tammy Wynette's show last week. Next week will see The Travelers (formerly Denim) playing Wednesday at Rox and Rusty Wier playing Thursday at Cold Water Country. Both are highly recommended shows.

Lubbock Theatre Centre's "Man Of La Mancha" earned verbal kudos from all who managed to see it; at least that's the general concensus. Fast approaching, however, are productions of "The Killing Of Sister George" at the Lab Theater and "Romeo And Juliet" at University Theater. Oh yes. Monday and Tuesday will see the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra peron screen

Peter Ustinov is the detective in 'Death On The Nile' Agatha Christie murder mystery opens tonight at the Fox

Arnett-Benson - "The Billion Dollar Hobo." An enigma of sorts, in that this is a fine, enjoyable family picture which comes from neither Disney nor Mulberry Square. Instead, it's an independent release starring Tim Conway and the late Will Geer. Conway is still one of the country's most underrated comedians.

Backstage ! - "The Other Side Of The Mountain, Part Two." Take a hanky, ladies, This one is a 90 minute tear-jerker. Marilyn Hassett is fine in her repeat performance as the Olympic skier paralyzed after an accident on the slopes. Well directed Backstage II - "The Fur Trap." X-rated material.

Cinema I, Mall - "Secrets." I was in New York City last week and the subject of film exploitation came up during a dinner conversation. This picture was one of the first referred to. It is NOT a new release, as many claim. It is an old film which does indeed contain a Jackie Bissett nude scene, but little of entertaining or artistic quality Cinema II, Mall - "Olly Olly Oxen Free." More family fare, and let's just hope those clamoring for G-rated products will put their money where their mouths are. This picture stars the venerable Katherine Hepburn and has played only short runs across the Cinema III, Mall - "National Lampoon's Animal House." This movie is so popular that theater personnel are quipping it may hang around and be a Christmas picture. John Belushi takes a break from his Not Ready For Prime Time Players stint on NBC and mugs his way through this wonderfully comic look at campus life in the '60s. The movie, often tasteless and totally lacking of redeeming social value, is nevertheless a scream. It's as funny as it is sick. So leave the kids at home and enjoy.

Cinema IV, Mall — "Revenge Of The Pink Panther." If you've seen one, you've seen them all — and now we're seeing them all rolled into one. "Revenge" doesn't even concern the Pink Panther; it's just more sight gags courtesy of Inspector Clouseau.

Cinematheque - Each Wednesday evening, the Cinematheque Film Society presents classic films on the Texas Tech University campus. Tickets may be purchased by the general public, as well as by Tech students. This week's offering is the original, uncut version of "The Wild Bunch" - a print which I daresay very few Lubbockites have seen. Directed by Sam Peckinpah, this violent classic stars William Holden, Ernest Borgnine and the late Robert Ryan. Show time is 8 p.m. and admission is only $1. Quite Cinemo West - "Somebody Is Killing Her Husband." This murder mystery stars Farrah Fawcett-Majors and Jeff Bridges, and both have surprised many by earning fine reviews. With all the Angel fans around, look for this movie to earn long lines on open-

Fine Arts Drive-In - "Acverine" and "Sensations." X-rated material.

Fox I - "Death On The Nile." Yet another mystery based on an Agatha Christie book. This film, well over two hours in length and yet widely praised by the critics, stars Peter Ustinov as Hercule Poirot and co-stars David Niven, Maggie Smith, Olivia Hussey and Bette Davis. We'll have more details in next week's Update

Fox II - "Heaven Can Wait." Still the classiest comedy in town. Warren Beatty plays a Ram quarterback priming for his big game against the Cowboys; but when it appears he'll be killed in a traffic accident, a Heavenly escort (Buck Henry) takes him upstairs before the crash. Oops. It turns out Beatty would have lived and, since his old body was cremated, Heaven has to find him a new body on Earth. That makes for hilarious conseand Charles Grodin (both possible Oscar bids) and Julie Christie. It's a G movie in PG's clothing, so feel free to take the kids.

Fox III — "Hooper." Nothing but sheer entertainment. Leave your brains at home and go and enjoy Burt Reynolds and friends showing us the funnier sides of movie stuntmen. There's a new stunt every few minutes, staged by director Hal Needham, respected as one of Hollywood's finest stuntmen and remembered as the director of the enomenally successful "Smokey And The Bandit." Co-stars include Brian Keith, Jan-Michael Vincent and Sally Field.

Goldie Hawn has a selid gold hit in "Foul Play

Fox IV — "Foul Play." Goldie Hawn is the divorcee cast accidentally into a murder plot: Chevy Chase is the cop assigned to help her out. There aren't many laughs, none of the original variety anyway, but there are indeed a great many cliches stolen from Hitchcock films. The one who suffers most, though, is Dudley Moore, cast in the embar-rassing role of an orchestra conductor who doubles as a sex pervert.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen — "Harper Valley PTA" and "Moonshine County Express." The former is an asinine movie starring Barbara Eden and based on the song composed by Torn T. Hall and made popular by Jeannie C. Riley. The latter is a low budget action picture filled with moonshine whiskey, fast cars, faster

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back Screen — "Vixen" and "Supervixens." Russ Meyer is back in town with a slew of bosomy stars, titillating storylines and absolutely Horne Box Office — This pay television station offers movies not presently on Lubbock's big screens. Premieres are held on HBO each weekend evening, and then repeated throughout the week. Tonight will see "I Never Promised You A Rose Garden aired, a compelling drama starring Kathleen Quinlan as the mentally disturbed patient Saturday will see the long-awaited "September 30, 1955" debut, starring Richard Thomas as a young man affected by the death of James Dean on the title date. Sunday will see the emphasis placed on action, as Clint Eastwood and Sondra Locke commandeer a bus and proceed to run "The Gauntlet."

Lindsey — "Semi-Tough" and "Gator." Burt Reynolds gets to laugh that laugh and grin that grin while playing football and running 'shine. You can see him do both for just $1. Next week will see the Lindsey open "Eat My Dust" and "Moonshine County Red Roider Drive-in — "Amuke" and "Rabid." Don't know a thing about the former release, but the latter picture stars porn queen Marilyn Chambers in the straight (?) role of a woman who spreads rabies throughout a Canadian city. The funniest part is when the National Guard shoots Santa Claus; the rest is just vulgar.

Showplace i — "Up In Smoke." Attracting stupendous crowds, "Up In Smoke" is a juvenile look at the counter culture by way of ten-year-old gags and stupid plot directions. High schoolers and those younger, the ones who see pot solely as a "brick" road to "munchie-land," may find it amusing. It was definitely not made to appeal to the older crowd since, when asked if the movie would succeed, Cheech & Chong said, "Sure. After all, millions of people smoke dope." Nevertheless, if this movie was grass, not even the kids would spend their money on it.

Showplace II - "September 30, 1955." See comments under Home Box Office.

Showplace III — "Cracking Up" and "Record City." Again, our theaters keep booking fillers until the big October releases arrive. Don't know anything about the first picture, but manager Steve Richerson says the latter film is about the daily routine at a record store. An indoors "Car Wash" perhaps?

Showplace IV — "An Unmarried Woman." Jill Clayburgh is still a top candidate for an Oscar, thanks to her performance as the woman who must cope with the strange world of divorce in this picture. I personally thought the picture overrated, but most moviegoers (and most critics) disagree. Miss Clayburgh does offer an excellent perform-

Village - Same as the Arnett-Benson.

Winchester — "Born Again." Dean Jones stars as Charles Colson, a Watergate participant who finds God while serving time in prison. Not seen yet.

Coming Soon — The South Plains Cinema still plans October openings for Robert Altman's "A Wedding," Woody Allen's "Interiors" (a brilliant downer) and the Billy Hayes story called "Midnight Express." And "Goin' South," starring Jack Nicholson and John Belushi, will also open at the mall compex next month.

The Fox still has "Big Wednesday" and "The Driver" on hold, though I personally think the former picture will be bumped off the schedule. "The Boys From Brazil," starring Gregory Peck and Laurence Olivier, will also open soon at the Fox. The Winchester plans to follow "Born Again" with the Donny & Marie Osmond film called "Goin"

October openings at Showplace include "The Big Fix," starring Richard Dreyfuss and "Comes A Horseman," starring Jane Fonda, James Caan and Jason Robards.

By U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

When is a government program not a government program? When it is the Bentsen Employment Tax Credit. Unlike virtually every other government program the Employment Tax credit operates at no net cost to the American taxpayer; in fact it helps to reduce the individual's tax burden by creating new taxpayers to help share it.

IT DOESN'T ADD to inflation, as goverament spending programs generally do. Instead, it helps hold down prices by reducing the cost of labor to business and industry.

It involves no red tape, no bureaucratic maze has been built to administer it and it is working very well, much better than had been predicted.

It is like other government programs only that it was enacted by Congress. Beyond that the similarities end.

I began developing the Employment Tax Credut in mid-1975 as a tool to combat unemployment which had skyrocketed to more than 8 percent that year. That November I introduced legislation to establish this new approach to creat-

It was hard at that time to get anybody in government to listen to my proposal. With unemployment soaring, most people in Washington were more interested in creating make-work government jobs to take care of the immediate crisis.

BUT I FELT then as I feel today that the country and the worker would be better off if government were to encourage private industry to establish long term productive jobs. Instead of encouragement, the actions of government over the previous 45 years have made it more difficult for businessmen to hire new workers or even hang on to those they had. Increasing payroll taxes, increasingly complex income tax forms and a growing number of government regulations have all added substantially to payroll costs.

Our country remains rich enough and dynamic enough to provide a job for everyone who wants to work. But the policies of government too often make it be making it easier. And the response of government when unemployment results has been to concentrate on temporary, government-created jobs.

I feel this is a mistake. I believe the emphasis should be on incentives to create jobs through our free enterprise sys-

In late 1976 the tide turned, the Employment Tax Credit idea took hold and in May 1977 it was enacted into law by Congress.

IN AWARDS a $2100 tax credit for each new worker hired by business or industry. And, of course, the taxes paid by these new workers - plus the accompanying reductions in spending for unment compensation - more than offset this cost.

Preliminary indications are the Employment Tax Credit was a smashing success during its first year of operation

According to an econometric study by Dr. John Bishop of the University of Wisconsin the new tax credit may have created some 400,000 new jobs in the construction and retail industries alone during its first year.

Dr. Bishop says, "Statistically significant increases in employment are found to have occured to construction and retailing in response to the credit. The...estimates imply the credit by March 1978 had indeed an 8 percent increase in employment in construction and a 2-3 percent increase in retailing. For the industries studied the total increase in employment seems to be 400,-000 (with a band of uncertainty of plus or minus 180,000)."

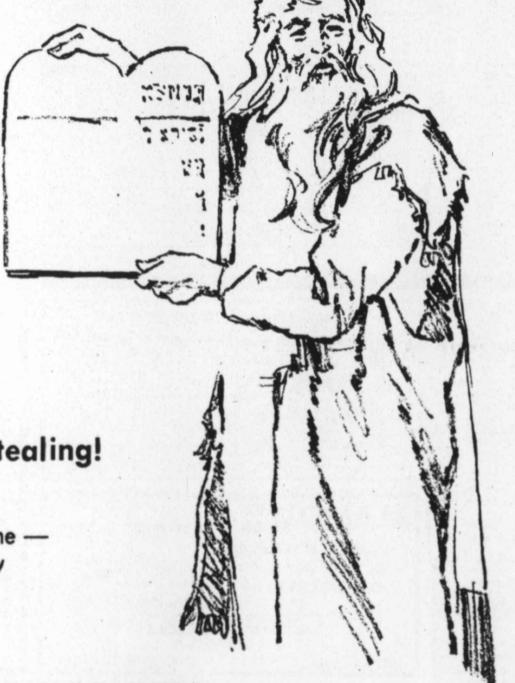

IN ADDITION, the Bishop study indi-cated that the jobs tax credit helped hold down the rate of inflation. "The

ext. 217 ext. 228 ext. 218 Tuition Credit Measure Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate and House conferees agreed Thursday on a bill that would allow a tax credit of up to $250 per student each year to help offset college tuition costs.

The provision was approved only after the House conferees reluctantly dropped their insistence that the credit also be made available to parents of pupils in private elementary and secondary schools.

If the college credit wins final approval of the House and Senate, it will go to President Carter, who on several occasions has emphasized he opposes the taxcredit approach to education. He views the plan as wasteful because the credit would go to rich and poor alike without regard to need.

The compromise approved by the conference would start retroactive to Aug. 1, 1978, with a maximum credit of $100, and rise to $150 next year and to $250 in 1980.

The credit would be for 35 percent of expenditures for tuition, fees and certain other costs of vocational and college education. Half-time students would become eligible for the credit starting in 1980.

When fully effective, the credit would cost the government about $1 billion a year in lost tax revenues. The bill would end the credit Dec. 31, 1981.

Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., chief sponsor of the college credit, said after the conference committee acted: "We may not have gotten all we wanted but we are well on our way to having a law."

The House bill had included a credit for parents of pupils in private elementary and secondary schools, most of which are church-oriented. That approach was rejected by the Senate on grounds such aid would run afoul of the Constitution's requirement for separation of church and

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chief of the Senate conferees, and even Senate backers of the elementary-secondary said there was no way the Senate, in the closing days of the 1978 session, would accept a compromise that carried such aid.

Rep. James Burke, D-Mass., said the House would agree to dropping elementary aid and retain it for high school and METRO college but could go no further. "What do you want - our blood? - over there?' he asked.

After the entire bill appeared all but lost for the year, House members caucused behind closed doors, emerged and voted 4-3 to drop their insistence on elementary and secondary aid.

Earlier, Long told the conference that some items will be trimmed from a big tax-cut bill if necesssary to allow the college tuition credit.

Backers reason that Carter would not risk vetoing the big tax cut a few days before the November election just to defeat tuition credits.

But already the Carter administration is emphasizing that it is not happy with the Finance Committee's tax cut bill. mainly because of its cost and the deep reduction in taxes on capital gains.

"It's too large, particularly in the outyears (1980 and beyond) and it's going to have to come down," Emil Sunley, deputy assistant secretary of the treasury, told reporters Thursday.

Administration officials, while expressing displeasure, have avoided an outright veto threat at this point. They know the Finance Committee bill may be changed by the Senate and will be compromised with a less expensive, $16.3-billion version approved by the House.

One obvious candidate for trimming is the Senate's capital gains tax cut of $2.5 billion. The House voted a cut of less than $1.9 bpllion in the tax on such income. A compromise halfway between those figures could make room in the budget for the tuition tax credits.

In addition to the capital gains cut, the Senate bill includes $16 billion in individual tax cuts in 1979 and $4 billion for busi-

Jr., president of the Dallas cotton firm of H. Molsen and Co. Dixon White, president of Lubbock's Simmons Cotton Oil Mill, will serve as advisor to the panel of judges. CAMPAIGN BUDGETS WASHINGTON ((P) - Congressional candidates this year have already spent nearly $80 million in their campaigns, the Federal Election Commission said Thursday. The commission's study found that 1,812 candidates raised $92.2 million in the 18-month period beginning Jan. 1, 1977. Incumbents raised half again as much money as challengers individuals. Another 1.2 million persons, mostly single persons and married couples with no dependents and who itemize deductions, would see small tax increases On the average, a typical four-member carries tax cuts for 68 million couples or and deductions totaling 23 percent of income could expect a $196 tax cut under the Senate bill, or $50 more than the House voted. A single person earning $12,500 would get $125 from the Senate bill and $105 from the House.

United Way Agency Stressing Reading Lauded By Students

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of articles dealing with agencies supported by the United Way of Lubbock. The United Way campaign goal for 1979 is 51,482,369.)

"Dear RIF, I like what you all have done for our school Martin Elementary. Thank you very much.

"RIF, I love you and your books. RIF I love "Thank you, RIF, for coming to our school."

That's just a sampling of the letters of gratitude from students at Martin Elementary School to members of the Reading Is Fundamental group in Lubbock, a new United Way agency. For the first time RIF will receive $4,816 from the 1979 United Way goal of $1,682,369. Through United Way funding, RIF will distribute books at Martin, Wolfforth, Dupre, Harwell, Bozeman and Parkway elementary schools five RIF, started in 1966 by Mrs. Robert S. McNamara in Washington, D.C., came to Lubbock in 1975 as an attempt to motivate children to read by supplying them with free books.

According to the RIF director in Lubbock, Mrs. Mary Lee Franklin, the purpose of the agency is to "motivate the child to want to read. We're not in the business of teaching. We feel that if the children want to read, they will make an effort, even if the book is difficult. We offer not only freedom of choice, but ownership.

The method used by RIF in achieving these goals is simple. They purchase books of various interests and difficulty from publishers and take them to schools in the area. With the cooperation of the Lubbock Independennt School District and principals, times are designated at each school when children are brought by classroom, usually to the library. There the books are displayed and children are free - without any urging or influence from teachers - to select the book which interests them. The child then signs his book and begins a library of his own at home

By the end of each year, Mrs. Franklin said, a child could have five books of his own. She explained that many of the books are exchanged in the home and children are encouraged to read to younger family members and share the books with others

Mrs. Mary Blakely, library clerk at Martin and cochairman of the book selection committee for RIF, said the books supplied offer a choice between the traditional books and contemporary books - those about sports figures, movie stars or current fads. She said the books cost an averages of about 58 cents each.

RIF also works through parents to encourage children to read, Mrs. Franklin said. They provide parents with bus routes showing points of cultural interest, such as the library, museum and book stores, and urge parents to take their children whenever possible.

Bob Peterson, principal at Martin elementary, said RIF has made a difference in the school's reading level and the respect and pride students have for books in the library. He said he is sold on the program and his teachers are. too. He pointed out that RIF has provided an opportunity for children who may never before have owned a book

This year, a study will be made through Texas Tech to assess the effectiveness of the RIF program in Lubbock. Mrs. Franklin said other students have shown that RIF has made great strides in improving a child's reading level. She mentioned a survey in Dallas, where parents noticed their children had an increased interest in reading, school and the library

She said the money provided by United Way this year should serve about

Guerrillas Ambush, Kill Nurse, Guards

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) - Black nationalist guerrillas ambushed and killed an Australian nurse and four black Rhodesian guards after her vehicle was blown up by a mine on a tribal reservation about 100 miles northeast of here, officials reported Thursday. Jennifer Boyd, 34, who had worked for the Health Ministry since settling in Rhodesia seven years ago, was traveling on a remote dirt road at the front of a convoy heading for a black medical outpost Wednesday when her vehicle hit the mine on the Mrewa tribal reservation, health officials said

Guerrillas waiting in ambush then blasted the stricken vehicle with automatic fire, a military spokesman said.

The provincial medical officer, Dr. Louise Westwater, said Miss Boyd had insisted on carrying on with her work despite the increasing dangers in the area.

A military spokesman also reported 14 other war dead Thursday, including eight black civilians whose deaths were blamed on guerrillas.

Bell Reception Set To Honor Retirees

"Saving a child's life from a burning house was the scariest and most rewarding experience I encountered during my 32 years as a Southwestern Bell operator," Alla Gean Pippins explained.

'A boy called in on one of my lines, but I couldn' t understand him. I was about to disconnect him when I heard him say, it's burning in here.' Fortunately, I stayed on the line, traced the call and alerted the fire department. While on the phone. I directed the boy out of the burnng house, and he was safe when the fire department arrived."

Mrs. Pippins and eleven other Lubbock Southwestern Bell employes are retiring this year with an average of 30 years of

Other retiring employes include Elva Faulkner, Barbara Frame, Ruth Risinger, Juanita Draper, Mary Stokes, Doris Gryder, Glenna Rodden, Modelle Scott, May Jo Holloway, Camille Mokracek and Mary Phelps.

A reception honoring the retirees is slated from 2 to 4 p m. today at 1405 Maln

Like Mrs. Pippins, some of the other retirees also recalled memorable experiences as an operator.

During the tornado in 1971, Mrs. Risinger had to get an emergency call through to George Mahon in Washington D.C.

We couldn't get through because the tornado had torn all the lines down," she said. "But, I remembered a little trick and called the only open circuit to Littlefield. From there, the call was transferred to numerous places until the emergency call reached Washington. Mrs. Rodden related an incident about an airman at Reese Air Force Base, who wanted to talk to his wife in Massachusetts who was preparing to deliver their

"The woman had already been taken to the delivery room," Mrs. Rodden explained. "However, I was able to connect them in the operating room. It was a sal-isfying feeling to know the man was able to give his wife a word of encouragement at such an important time.'

Mrs. Pippins, who has been an opera-tor for 32 years in Lubbock, summed up the feelings of her fellow retirees.

"Being a Bell operator is a challenging and exciting job because I'm always handling different types of calls, and I feel like I'm helping people."
Apparently their assistance hasn't been forgotten by many customers because the operators say they have received numerous "thank yous" and "thank you letters" from callers.

Mrs. Pippins remembered that one customer even sent her flowers on her birth day to thank her for doing a good job.

Toyota Throttle Problem Aired By Safety Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - The govern ment hs issued a warning to owners of 1971-73 Toyota Corolla and Corona cars with 1600cc engines that there is a possibility of throttle sticking that could result in a driver's loss of control.

The National Highway Traffic Safety consumer reports of throttle sticking. none of which involved personal injury or property damage.

The agency said it is investigating the alleged problem. It said throttle sticking may be preceded by such symptoms as hard starting, rough idling or stalling, but it may occur without warning while the car is being driven.

At Wit's End...

My name is Murray Bombeck and I'm a guest columnist.

I'm a 31/2-month-old Yorkshire Terrier. There are a lot of dogs who are wonderng whether they want to own a person. They like people. They're fun to be around, but are they worth all the fuss and bother.

I felt the same way when a few months ago I observed this couple. Their dog (another Yorkshire) had just been killed and frankly, they were a psychological mess. During the interview, they kept calling me "Harry" (the deceased dog's name) and the woman kept swooping me off the floor and crying in to my fur. They would take a lot of training. First nights are generally a disaster. At 11 o'clock at night just when things are beginning to cook, they turn off the lights and go to bed. (I had been warned by other person owners that this would happen.) I tried to keep them on their feet all night but things like this happen. Old habits are hard to break.

Another thing you have to know about people is that you have to keep them busy or they drive you crazy. Every time I ate a houseplant, they were there. When I chewed on shoes, they were there. They were smothering me. Once when I went into the white living room to go to the bathroom, she came in, swooped me up, ran around hysterically finding a key to the back door, opened it up and heaved me out onto the grass.

You cannot imagine what turned her

When I "performed" she jumped up and down and clapped her hands while summoning three other people from the house to observe. I felt like a fool.

The hardest part of training a person, however, is discipline. You have to be firm with people or they'll run all over you. When they want to play by grabbing your nose, at first you just walk off, but when they pursue it, you just sink your teeth into their hands. They may looked shocked at first, but you'll eventually have a person you don't have to be ashamed to take places.

And lastly, be careful the first time you take them out in public. They wander away from you. I don't recommend a leash, but leave them in the car a few times and they'll shape up. Everything you've heard about people is true. They're messy. They're temperamental and they're hard to train.

But in the evening when you're tired and they scratch behind your ears...or when you're beat from the sun and they let you play in the garden hose ... or when you're sick, they put you on the sofa...they're worth it. People make great

The woman who wrote said their farm is worth $200,000. They should sell it. The interest on $200,000 at about 71/2 or 8 percent runs upwards of $15,000 a year, and they'd still have their capital.

Fair Highlights: Fairgoers Can Enjoy Inexpensive Fun

Family News Staff

If Mrs. David Standlee had her way, the Panhandle South Plains Fair would go on forever, but Mrs. Standlee, a fairgoer since childhood, admits, "you don't get.

bitten by the fair fever overnight. "You have to rub elbows and really get involved to catch the fever," she ex-

Part of her enthusiasm for the fair stems from the fact that she is involved, serving as superintendent for the Fine Arts Division in the Women's Building. But she also believes the fair provides excellent entertainment at a very low cost.

The Women's Building, she explained, provides hours of free entertainment. 'When I visit the Women's Building, I get all sorts of ideas of things I could make." she said. It's also educational, especially in the antique division, she add-

The Merchants' Building is packed with interesting displays, again with no cost to visitors, she said, and children and adults enjoy the Children's Barn, filled with animals to delight children of all Adults will find the menus provide a wide assortment of food at a reasonable price, noted Mrs. Standlee.

Whether one prefers to take a rest from the excitement of the fair and sit down to a meal or just grab a hot dog on the midway, she said the prices are reasonable, the food is good and, most of all, it's just fun to eat the foods that so commonly characterize the fair.

"I always try to sample one of everything there is to eat at the fair," she said. Just walking through the fair grounds can be entertaining, according to Mrs.

"You can meet new people as well as eing friends you may only see once a year at the fair," she said.

Live entertainment at the fair is provided each night, and fairgoers can enjoy everything from magic shows to gunfight-

U.S. Stamps Pay Honor To Trees

Associated Press Writer

Joyce Kilmer wrote "Only God Can Make a Tree." But the U.S. Postal Service also can produce trees - or at least. reproduce them on its stamps.

The 1978 block of four commemorative stamps featuring American trees will be issued in Hot Springs National Park. Ark, during the annual convention of the American Forestry Association

The semi-jumbo-size, 15-ccnt stamps highlight trees native to the U.S. and reflect a variety both in appearance and geographic location

The giant sequoia, one of the world's tallest and oldet trees, is depicted in the upper left stamp of the block. The sequoias are found in central California and on the western slopes of the Sierra Ne-

The eastern white pine, appearing at the upper right of the block of stamps, is found in New England and Great Lakes areas as well as in the Appalachians and northern Georgia. It is the state tree of Maine and Michigan.

The white oak is at the lower left corner of the block. This oak is indigenous to the region that extends from the Great Lakes to beyond the southern end of the Appalachians into northern Florida and westward across the southern states into Texas. It is the state tree of Connecticut and Maryland

The gray birch, a small tree, is widely scattered through cooler regions of the northern hemisphere. It also exists in isolated patches in highly elevated areas as far south as western North Carolina.

The designs of the new stamps show the leaf and fruit of each particular tree. The common name and the Latin name also are listed. Above the lower edge of each stamp in red type is the inscription "USA 15 cents.

Shellac Weight Terms Draw Questions

By ANDY LANG Associated Press Writer

O - My husband and I are owners of a hardware store and we have always endeavored to have shellar on the shelves for those who desire the product. We do have difficulty at times obtaining the shellac and sometimes we get the fourpound cut and sometimes the threepound cut. We aren't quite sure what they mean. Why is the terminology 'pound" used when we are dealing with a pint or a quart of liquid? And how does one explain the dilution of shellac of three and four-pound cuts or is that important anyway?

A. - The term comes from the amount of shellac gum dissolved to each gallon of pure alcohol. If 3 pounds of shellac gum are dissolved, it becomes a 3-pound cut, and so on. To convert a 4-pound cut of shellac to a 3-pound cut, mix half a pint of denatured alcohol with one quarter of shellac. Actually, for most ordinary work, a 50-50 mixture is fine, although some professionals advocate twice as much shellac as alcohol. Most wood finishers develop their own favorite mixtures after a period of time.

Q. — I have been making wooden storage cabinets for my friends and relatives for several years. Now I am thinking of going into business for myself. Is there any book that specializes in the manufacture and sale of cabinets.

A. - There are books on making cabinets and many on how to market prod-ucts. The only combined storage cabinet production and sales manual with which I am familiar is put out by Long's Cabinets, 1792 Houston Road, Portland, Ore. 97535. The author's cabinet layout graph and calculator have been selected for use in a major cabinet maker's dealer train-

Planting Bulbs

Here are simple instructions for preparation of the bed for bulbs and for planting them.

Dig an area large enough for a cluster of bulbs and loosen the soil 10-12 inches deep to improve drainage. Fertilizer, such as bone meal - high in calcium, magnesium and phosphorus - should be mixed with loose soil to supplement food stored in the bulb.

Plant bulbs firmly with pointed ends up. Small bulbs should be four inches deep and large bulbs six inches deep, measured from the tips. Replace half the soil, then water and add the remaining soil. Mulch is good at this point and water the bed regularly (unless rain helps) until frost.

In the spring, when the first shoots appear, feed with a common 12-12-12 fertilizer to give flowering bulbs nitrogen

Camera Offers Easy Loading

Associated Press Writer Meet the world's newest 35mm SLR camera star: the Konica FS-1.

It's a revolutionary, all-electronic camera that offers automatic film loading, automatic film starting, automatic exposure shooting and automatic film advancing built into a compact body without the conventional auto-wind accessory attach-

It does not even have the normal film advance lever.

This space age, trend-setting 35mm single lens reflex camera was demonstrated to the New York photo press one week before it was to be revealed publicly in mid-September at Photokina, the world's largest photo fair, held biannually in Cologne, Germany.

The FS-1 makes the loading of any type of 35mm film cartridge as fumble-free and easy as inserting a cartridge in an Instamatic camera. You open the camera's back, insert the 35mm cartridge, pull the film leader across and close the back. That automatically starts a built-in micro motor which advances the film leader to proper starting position in three seconds. A red diode light on the camera back signals you are ready to shoot the first

After taking No. 1, the motor automatically advances the film to No. 2. If the finger remains on the two-stage, softtouch release button, pictures will be taken and advanced in sequence until the button is released. When the end of the film is reached, the camera senses it automatically and the motor stops. The film must be rewound manually.

All of the camera's operations - emphasizing ALL - are powered by four small penlight batteries in a battery chamber. The battery module locks in snugly around the end of the camera, jutting out enough to act as a handy power grip. There are no separate button batteries. The four AA batteries (alkaline or rechargeable nicads) provide sufficient power to expose 36 cartridges of 20-exposure film (or 20 rolls of 36 exposures). Before the batteries lose power entirely, the camera's electronic system signals ample warning. Lights in the viewfinder flash alternately from top and bottom LEDs (light emitting diodes) when the shutter release is pressed.

It's a reminder that there's enough power left for five more rolls of 36-exposure film. It's the only camera with such an advance warning system.

The FS-1 uses the "shutter priority" exposure system, where the photographer ects and sets the shutter speed first to suit the action of the subject being photographed. In sports or when shooting active children, a fast shutter speed may be necessary; in scenics or portraits, a slower shutter speed may be preferred for greater depth of field.

Then the camera's built-in computer brain views the scene, determines the amount of light and automatically sets the correct lens opening for a properly exposed picture. It uses a gallium arsenide phosphide photo cell - newly developed - for faster-acting and more preIt is accurate to within 1-10th of an f-stop,

The camera's shutter operation also is unique, using twin micro-solenoids to activate the first and second shutter curtains separately at precisely the right split instant, followed by a motorized mirror return. The action is quieter, smoother and freer of vibration permitting a greater range of slow, hand-held picture taking exposures.

The FS-1 also introduces a new automatic flash system with a specially developed Konica X24 auto flash unit. It links up automatically with the electronic brain center in the camera which tells it what ASA film speed is being used in the camera. The photographer then selects either an f-5.6 or an f-11 switch to set and that is the only adjustment necessary. When the flash is turned on, it starts to charge, and when ready to flash it automatically changes the camera's shutter speed to the flash-synchronization speed of 1-100th second, and its sensor automatically produces the exact amount of light for a properly exposed flash picture.

When the flash unit is not charging or in use - though attached to the camera the camera returns to its own automatic operation and its preset shutter

It's often hard to pinpoint the cause of hives. There are so many possibilities — drug allergy, insect stings or bites, food allergy (especially seafoods) and, of course, nerves.

Emotional stress is a better term. It's suspected when more obvious causes are eliminated. We know little about these so-called "psychogenic" factors. Doctors, especially those in internal medicine, see much of it in their practices. Giant hives are particularly dangerous because they can be life-threatening, as when the tongue or other structures in air passages become greatly swollen. In most cases, there is a single attack with no recurrence. In about a third of individuals there is a second or third attack.

In a third of the cases, drug sensitivity is the cause. And, yes, in a significant number, "nerves" are either a cause or worsen the situation. Often, an emotional dilemma can be traced to the timing of the hives attack. For example, a hives patient told me he had faced a job decision—to keep his job and security, or take a new one with better pay but less security. He also had gorged on strawberry shortcake at about the same time. Such mixed factors often exist. One does not have to be "high-strung" for an emotional strain to trigger an attack.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: X-rays show that I have kidney reflux. My urine flows back into the kidney pelvis. My doctor says this causes my cystitis and that corrective surgery is needed. I get cystitis every three to six months. Is surgery in this case an absolute necessity or simply elective? — Mrs. R.B.

Surgery seems necessary from the facts as you state them. A recurring infection anywhere in the urinary tract (as in your bladder) can mean an obstruction or malfunction somewhere along the line and it should be corrected. Otherwise, serious kidney infection can result.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told at a health store that vitamin E will help men with low sperm counts. Please tell me if this is true? — T.J.H.

That claim might help sell vitamin E, but it has no validity. Years ago a study was done in which laboratory animals were deprived of vitamin E. Predictably, they began feeling ill because of the absence of this vital substance; so poorly, in fact, that they stopped reproducing. When the vitamin E was restored, they perked up, and started acting normally again. To conclude that vitamin E is somehow helpful in restoring lagging sperm counts is weak logic.

More is being learned of the role of vitamin E, but this is not among the revelations. Some vendors tend to make enthusiastic claims for their products.

Raisin Crop Severely Damaged By September's Heavy Rains

SAN FRANCISO, Cailf. (Special) — Unpredicted September rains have destroyed at least 65 percent of this year's raisin crop, reports the California Raisin Advisory Board (CALRAB), the industry organization representing all California raisin growers and packers.

The normal harvest of all raisin varieties is 240,000 tons or more, but this year, according to Clyde Nef, CALRAB manager, "we will be lucky to produce 65,000 tons." The full extent of the loss, however, cannot be assessed until the entire crop is in, sometime in late October.

"The immediate result," Nef said, "will be sharply higher raisin prices during the coming months, but we cannot predict just how high they will go."

The majority of raisins come from Thompson seedless grapes that are dried for three to five weeks on paper trays laid on the ground in the vineyard. This drying time is the most critical period of raisin harvesting, and any substantial rainfall can prevent the grapes from drying properly and damage the crop. More than an inch of rain fell Septem-

More than an inch of rain fell September 4 on all raisin growing areas in California's Central Valley, with many areas receiving additional rain several days later. The harvest drying period had just begun when the rains came.

All of the raisins produced in the United States and about one third of the world's supply come from California. The industry is concentrated geographically, with all raisins produced within a 75-mile radius of Fresno in California's Central Valley, and hence is extremely vulnerable to adverse weather.

RECONSTRUCTION BY COMPUTER - These pictures show the reconstruction of a dead man's face from computer data based on the man's skeletal remains. Fort Bend County, Tex., sheriff's officers hope to use this artist's model of the man to establish his identity. Lawmen Hope Computer Process Will Assist In Body Identification

HOUSTON (AP) - The facial features of a skeleton found earlier this year near Houston have been reconstructed by a computer and have given law enforcement officers a hope of identifying the body.

Harris County Medical Examiner Joseph Jachimczyk said Wednesday the process, developed by an Oklahoma anthropologist, was used for the first time in Texas in an effort to identify the victim of a possible crime.

The skeletal remains were found in Fort Bend County Feb. 14. Authorities said death "was obviously the result of foul play." Jachimczyk said the computer-based facial reconstruction procedure was developed by Dr. Clyde C. Snow, chief of the Physical Anthropology Protection and Survival Lab at the Civil Aeromedical Institution in Okla-

The medical examiner said the process has been used in the past mainly in an effort to identify airplane crash victims. Using this technique to identify bodies found by law enforcement agencies was made possible by the increasing sophistication of computers, he said.

The computer system showed the body was that of a man between 18 and 25 years of age, about 5-feet-6-inches to 5feet-8-inches tall, and weighing 130 to 150 pounds.

Jachimczyk said the reconstruction begins with a study of the shape and features of the skull. From data stored on computers, information is produced telling the specialist the tissue thickness, nasal size and shape, skin color, facial length and breadth, and probable eye color.

An artist works in conjunction with Dr. Snow, the medical

'The potential for identification now moves from the bottom of the scale to highly probable. I qualify this potential to some extent because small errors occurring...could compound themselves into high errors," Jachimczyk said.

Fort Bend County Sheriff Ervin Hurta said with the pictures produced by Snow and his staff there now "is a 50-50 change of identifying the skeletal remains and that is a lot better than what we have now, which is nothing."

Jachimczyk said if this initial test is successful, the technique will be used on other unidentified skeletal remains found in the greater Houston area.

CHINESE SMOKERS

TOKYO (AP) - China's leading newspaper has come out against smoking by young people, saying cigarettes cause health problems that can cut productivity. The People's Daily, obtained here, urged youngsters not to smoke. It was commenting upon a letter to the editor from a Peking resident who wrote that smoking by high school students in the Chinese capital is "fairly serious." The letter said the smoking students' marks and discipline were poor and their minds easily led astray by "enemies" of the peasant working class.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Q. I am a 28-year-old single lady and will earn about $13,000 this year. I save about $100 a month. My goal is to become financially secure - maybe even create an independent income sometime in the

I currently own one savings certificate, a paid-off well-running car and have six months savings in my bank account. I would like to invest my future savings. Do you have any suggestions?

A. First off, assuming that you want to stay single, don't spread the word around about your financial affairs. Some of the young and not-so-young male reporters in this city room show quite a bit of interest when letters such as yours appear in this

A person of your age and financial position should put his or her extra money into things that hopefully will grow in value. You can afford to take some moderate - but not high - risks. "Equities" ownership in corporations - through common stocks are about the most convenient way to do that. Unfortunately, because of the high brokerage commissions on the purchase of small amounts of individual stocks these days, the purchase of a few shares of stock each month is out of the question.

About the only method of steady equity investing left is through mutual funds. Most mutual funds allow investments of $100 or even less a month.

My suggestion is to start investing in a "growth" mutual fund, which holds many different stocks which hopefully will grow in value. That will make you the indirect owner of all the stocks the fund holds. And, if you have been reading this column, you should know that there are many "no-load" mutual funds - on which there is no commission charge.

Q. Is a public utility "holding company" as safe for a conservative investor interested in yield as a public utility "operating company?

A. Change the words in your question from "as safe" to "no more risky than" and the answer is "yes." No investment is absolutely safe. There is risk in any investment.

The difference between the two types of utility companies is that a holding company owns two or more operating companies. An operating utility company sells electricity, gas, water or telephone service to customers. The degree of risk in each is about equal and is generally considered quite small

The commodity futures market serves an economic purpose for farmers and other producers of raw material and for processors and manufacturers who use raw materials in their businesses.

Everyone else who is in the commodity futures market is a speculator. That's another word for gambler

... Q. Would it be dumb to invest in two or three growth mutual funds, rather than put all the money I have available for this purpose into one mutual fund?

A. Not dumb, at all. One of the advantages of a mutual fund is that an investor in a fund spreads his risk, among all the securities a fund holds. By investing in two or three funds, you would spread your risk still further.

The coordinated growth strategy for the near future means a slower economic advance for the United States and a speed-up in growth for Japan and Germany. U.S. growth is targeted at 3.5 percent next year, down from 5 percent in "The conception of a concerted strategy is now well understood and is very generally accepted," Jacques de Larosiere, the IMF's new managing director, told reporters at the end of the four-day joint annual meeting of the 135-nation IMF and the World Bank. He expressed satisfaction that the members had agreed on a 50 percent increase in the IMF's finances, raising its total resources from $50 billion to $75 bilde Larosiere said the increase in IMF

The coordinated growth strategy for major industrial nations is aimed at reducing the huge trade and payments deficits of the United States and the surpluses of Japan and Germany, which together are considered the major cause of the steep decline in the dollar during the past

Because of the strategy that is now being followed, "these imbalances are on the way to being cured," de Laroisere said. The strategy, which was endorsed by most delegations here, was worked out initially at an IMF meeting in Mexico City and then formally ratified by President Carter and the leaders of other major industrial nations at the economic summit conference in Bonn in July.

Britain Agrees To Chrysler Deal

ment Thursday announced its approval for French automaker Peugeot-Citroen to take over Chrysler's British operations, thus clearing away what had been seen as the major obstacle to the deal.

Industry Secretary Eric Varley said the government is satisfied that under the deal with Peugeot, the prospects for Chrysler United Kingdom Ltd. "will be at least as good as under present circumstances.

Peugeot and U.S. automaker Chrysler announced Aug. 10 that the French car company planned to take over Chrysler's European manufacturing operations. It is paying the U.S. company $230 million as well as issuing it 1.8 million Peugeot shares, giving Chrysler approximately a 15-percent interest in Peugeot.

Varley said Peugeot is "one of the strongest motor car companies in Europe." He said the Labor government believes that as a result of the deal Chrysler plants in Britain, with about 22,000 employees, can have a successful future. The deal still needs approval of the French and Spanish governments, but there has been little opposition expressed in those countries. Some British unions had expressed fears the deal would lead to layoffs and had suggested the government-owned British Leyland automaker make a counter-offer.

The British government in late 1975 agreed to a rescue plan for Chrysler U.K. after Chrysler's top management in Detroit had warned that the company might pull out of Britain. Under the plan, the government promised Chrysler up to 163 million pounds, worth nearly $326 million at current exchange rates, to cover losses over a four-year period.

The industry secretary said Peugeot had signed a declaration of its intention to treat Chrysler U.K. equally as an integral part of the Peugeot group. The French company also gave various assurances concerning the use of some Varley cited the "government support of Chrysler over the last three years, during which substantial investment in modernization of facilities and models, has taken place with the aid of government

He called this an important contribution to the prospects for a successful future of Chrysler U.K. as part of Peugeot.

The French company said in its declaration of intent that it would "confinue and strengthen" the Chrysler U.K. program of modernization and investment to ensure that the company grows and prospers as part of the group.

CAB Attacks 'Bumping' By Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bumping, the denying of seats to airline passengers with confirmed reservations, has increased sharply over the past year, ac-cording to the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The agency said that in the year ended in June some 161,000 travelers were bumped, a 25 percent increase over the previous year.

That is equivalent to 7.3 bumpings per 10,000 passengers carried. And, the CAB said, the increase in bumping outstripped the general increase in air traff-

"We are terribly distressed that this has increased," commented Midge Shu-bow of the Office of Consumer Affairs. That agency's director, Esther Peter-son, was bumped from a flight recently and Mrs. Shubow said an investigation into the practice is underway.

"There's no reason there has to be a tradeoff between lower fares and worse service," she commented.

Things were even more dismal on overseas flights, with a 49 percent increase to 17,000 passengers being bumped.

The figures cover U.S. airlines only, not foreign carriers.

The CAB noted that the statistics do not reflect its new overbooking rules which took effect Sept. 3.

Under these rules airlines have to so-licit volunteers for denied boarding before bumping any passenger against his will. And passengers bumped involuntar-ily can receive up to $400 in compensa-

CAB officials say they hope this will reduce overbooking to the lowest possi-ble levels. Airlines report that some overbooking is necessary to compensate for people who make reservations and then do not show up for flights.

Anti-Rust Coatings In Wide, Varied U.S. Application

WASHINGTON (AP) - Manufacturers apply a number of methods to protect metal items from corrosion and the National Bureau of Standards suggests some things to look for.

The most common metallic coating is zinc on steel, known as galvanized steel. This is often used on garbage and trash cans, gutters and water pipes. The amount of zinc used ranges from onehalf to three ounces per square foot of steel and the agency says the more the better.

Electroplating is also common for auto bumpers, flatware and appliances with silver, copper or chrome usually used as a coating. Small pin holes that can result in rust spots may develop in these surfaces. The bureau suggests cleaning off the rust, being careful not to damage the remaining electroplated surface, and sealing with lacquer or wax.

Cooking utensils and other items are often ceramic coated, which offers excellent corrosion protection.

The agency suggests shopping for tems with smooth rims and coatings, inings and finishes should not be

It was Independence Day, 1882, and the citizens of Albuquerque had volunteered to go without gas service from the city's commercial coal gas system for two days. They had made the sacrifice so a saloon-keep-

It was the start of a 96-year love affair between the New Mexico city At the 27th Annual Territorial Fair in 1907 a merchant and an aeronaut inflated their balloon named the "City of Albuquerque." In 1909, President Taft witnessed ballooning at Albuquerque's old fairgrounds. Then in 1971, Albuquerque resident Sid Cutter acquired a hot-air balloon for his mother's birthday. Shortly afterward, Cutter founded the Albuquerque Aerostat Ascension Association, one of the largest and most active ballooning organizations in the world. Albuquerque now

The hot-air balloon world champion is an Albuquerque resident, Paul Woessner. All the world knows of Ben Abruzzo, Maxie Anderson and Larry Newman and of the trio's successful crossing of the Atlantic. All are from Albuquerque. Although the great historical event took place in a gas-filled balloon, Abruzzo and Anderson have spent many hours in hot-air balloons. Without a doubt, Albuquerque has become the Hot-Air

There are two types of balloons available for those wishing to get started in the sport. One is the hot-air balloon which will be used by contestants in the 7th Annual Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta Oct. 7-15. By the way, Abruzzo, Anderson and Newman will be at the international event with their famous balloon Double Eagle II. The men

An example of the hot-air balloon is the "Ford" balloon which was flown across the United States by Karl Thomas. Hot-air balloons have also starred in the movies, "The Great Escape," "The Great Train Rob-

To enable a hot-air balloon to rise, a propane burner beneath the envelope heats the air inside, reducing its density, making it lighter, thereby giving the envleope lift. Balloons have no lateral maneuverability. The only control is up and down. This is achieved when the pilot adjusts the heat from the burner. At different altitudes the pilot can take advantage of different wind currents — the closest you come to steering a balloon. Flying a hot-air balloon is not expensive — about $8 for two hours worth

The other type of balloon is gas filled, using helium, hydrogen, or other lighter-than-air gas. Gas filled balloons are expensive to operate. Gas is pumped directly into the balloon and each flight might cost between $450 and $550, using ordinary kitchen gas, and as much as $1,600 using

Gas balloons permit longer flights if the gas and ballast supply is used carefully, thus precluding the many take-offs and landings for tanks of

In the end it's worth all the effort and every dollar spent to obtain a license. Ballooning is a delightful anachronism in our high-speed generation; a gentle pastime practiced by people of romantic sensibilities. Flying in a balloon is so totally irrelevant and beautiful. It's difficult to explain the feeling and unless you fly in a balloon you'll never really know it. There's no motion in the basket; it's calm, still, stately. Since you are moving with the wind you feel no wind and you have a complete

Butz Displays Form At Lubbock Meetings

By BOB CAMPBELL Avalanche-Journal Staff

Former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz today called an assistant secretary of agriculture for consumers "dangerous" and said she works to the detriment of farmers.

Speaking to more than 100 farmers and agribusinessmen at the University-City Club, Butz said Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Foreman is more effective and has a stronger political base than Secretary Bob Bergland.

'That's why she is a dangerous person where she is," Butz said.

One of his criticisms was that she was responsible, he said, for the Department of Agriculture's recommendation of 25 percent less meat in American diets.

"Carol Foreman has done for meat consumption in this country what the Titanic did for ocean travel," he said.

"I feel that if we're going to have an assistant secretary of agriculture for consumers, we ought to have an assistant secretary of labor for farmers."

Butz, secretary under Presidents Nixon and Ford, asked after the 7:45 a.m. breakfast how many farmers were in attendance. More than half raised their Answering questions after his half-hour talk this morning, Butz said foreign investments agriculture are not presently a cause for concern.

He said a recent survey showed that only 1 percent of farm property sales last year went to foreigners, and that most of them employ Americans to operate the farms and usually work to open up an export market for the pro-

"It makes headlines when it happens because it's in large blocks," he said, but nationally it's not that important."

Butz criticized the Carter administration for holding large reserves of grain, which he said are to be released into the market against rising prices and work to keep commodity prices down.

"They said they were going to even out the booms and busts," he said. "You notice that the first thing they mentioned was the booms."

He called for opening foreign agricultural markets and the lifting of restrictions on production.

At the banquet Wednesday night, 25 American Agriculture Movement members waited outside police-guarded doors as he lauded farmers and middlemen and urged stepped-up food technology

No one identified himself as a movement member today, and there was no disruption or harsh criticism of Butz at the breakfast.

Thrill At Learning

Jailhouse Students

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) - Suzanne Cosso's students may never see the inside of Harvard, but to a convicted burglar, drug pusher or prostitute who can't read or write the thrill of learning is reward enough.

The 33-year-old teacher concedes that being in charge of teaching the 'Three R's" at Contra Costa County Jail poses certain challenges they didn't tell her about in college. Her classrooms are a solitary confinement cell and a hallway outside the jail kitchen.

Whatever fears she had about working with inmates vanished shortly after she started the job five years ago. And besides, there are "lots of deputies

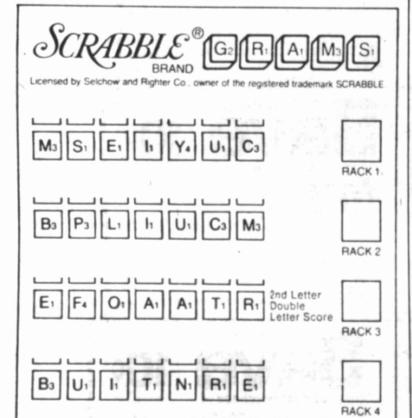

"I don't take inmates I can't trust. I don't want repercussions from an 'F," she said.

Mrs. Cosso teaches both women and men at the prison. She has about 20 students at a time and has taught a total of 800 women. Thirteen of her female students have high school equivalency diplomas.

The jailhouse teacher proudly points out that none of her graduating students have worked their way back behind bars. Some, she said, have even found good jobs. "It may sound like a small thing, but just to have them work, hold down a job, support themselves, be off welfare, off drugs...is rewarding," she said. One case she recalled was a 21-year-old woman whom she taught to read. "She couldn't even read her last name." Many inmates cannot read at more than the third or fourth grade level.

There are other jailhouse schools, but what makes Contra Costa County's different is the individual attention given the inmate students, she said. Even so, she added, "It takes a certain type of person to pass in these cir-

City Council Creates Committee To StudyFuture LP&L Options

A nine-person committee to study the future options for Lubbock Power and Light was created Thursday by the Lubbock City Council. Committee appointments will be made at the next council meeting Oct. 12.

There appeared to be no question that the committee, proposed by Councilman Bill McAlister, would be created, but council members hit a semantics roadblock over the goals of the group.

Among other things, McAlister said he wanted the committee to study whether the municipally-owned utility should be sold, but council member Carolyn Jordan objected, saying that sounded like council endorsement of the electric compa-

The resolution finally approved by the council charges the committee with formulating recommendations to the council about whether the city should be in the electric business

That includes, but is not limited to, the examination of future expansion, a greater separation from city operations, the sale or lease of LP&L, alternate sources of fuel and the possibility of LP&L acquiring the distribution system of competing Southwestern Public Service.

McAlister said the council owes Lubbock citizens "justification about whether the city should be in the utility business," adding that is the question he is asked most often.

"We shouldn't say we're 100 percent against selling - we should be objective." he said. "If LP&L is good for us. the committee will come back and tell

Lawyers Attending Special Course

Doug Tinker of the law firm of Tinker and Dailey will be the featured speaker at a luncheon for the Criminal Defense Skills course being held today at 11:45 a.m. at the Hilton Inn.

The luncheon is part of a two-day course being co-sponsored by the State Bar of Texas and the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association The course is aimed at keeping law-to address the issue," he said. "We need to say we have examined carefully selling the utility and keeping the utility.'

Councilman Bud Aderton said he want ed the study committee to examine "making LP&L a completely separate entity" from the city. "Something concrete has got to be decided pretty quick," he added

"It's down to dollars and cents," he said. "The old business of loyalty to one or the other (electric company) is a bunch of malarky."
McAlister added the committee should look at "is it good business to keep LP &L, not is it good politics."

Each of four council members (Mayor Dirk West is abstaining) will name two committee members and the Electric Utilities Board chairman or his representative will serve as the ninth member.

City Manager Larry Cunningham will be a non-voting member of the commit-

Also Thursday the council: -Passed on first reading an ordinance annexing the Yellowhouse Canyon Addition southeast of Lubbock to the city. -Divided $156,600 in Community Development funds equally between the Stubbs School area and the Meadowbrook Villa area to use for housing rehabilitation.

-Formalized a 3 percent reduction of the Fuel Cost Adjustment passed on to electric customers and the establishment of a capital reserve fund for LP&L from 1

-Authorized West to contract for the installation of an energy management system in city hall and the Lubbock International Airport terminal at a cost of $58.319.

-Certified the 1978 city tax roll totaling $1.3 billion.

Authorized a contract with the architectural firm of Roberts & Johnson and Stiles & Stiles to design a fire station to be located at 79th Street and Slide Road.

Turner, Jones Speak Minds On Contes the ball more, too. But I think both teams will have to throw the ball a lot early, like in the first quarter, to get some sort of offense established. But balance is the thing, and having a big runningback like James gives us more balance than we would have had. Nobody can ignore him. He weighs 240 pounds and is fast and can catch the ball. We as a team had to adjust to that change and we've done it. It was a super move and gave us back the running strength we may have lost. Having James in the backfield also helps take a lot of the double teaming from our passing attack. Q.— How'about your quarterbacking? JONES — We have excellent quarterbacks in Randy (McEachern), Mark (McBath) and Sam (Ansley). Other than that I really can't say a whole lot about them. They all worked real hard getting ready for the season and they all are improved over last.

Q.— Both teams have lost some running strength from last year. So do you expect more passing than in past meetings?

JONES - I don't really like to look in the past. The runningbacks from last year aren't here this year. That all depends on what Coach Akers wants to do. If he thinks a lot of passing is the thing to do, I'm sure he'll call it. But I don't think that us not having Earl Campbell is going to change how we approach Tech. I certainly have confidence in our passing game with our fine quarterbacks. But I would think that we are going to try to show a balanced attack and use our running game to its fullest too.

TURNER - I don't really look for a lot more passing. We pulled our tight end (James Hadnot) into the fullback spot and he's really been coming on well and I expect him to run at Texas quite a bit. He's done well in two ball games and he'll just get better. So we can look at more of a balanced offense, which means we can throw

Raiders Reloading Guns For Undefeated Horns

Executive Sports Editor It was time to remount and reload. . . "Za-Ro" was there. . .

So was that souped-up wildcat, the offensive tackle from Mississippi State, the Chinese Bandits, that environmentalist posing as a game warden, and a room filled with enthralled football players.

Here was a situation that football coaches preach: When football is fun.

For a pre-workout pep talk, Texas Tech coach Rex Dockery brought in a former football player to speak to his Raiders. And Jerry Clower didn't want to stop talking, once he got warmed up.

He didn't stop talking and yelling for 30 minutes. When it all ended, he wound up with a birthday cake, and a personalized Tech jersey bearing his old number (77) from Mississippi State.

Clower, the humorist-fertilizer salesman from Yazoo City, Miss., who has told his coon-hunting story in person and on records to millions of listeners and who was in Lubbock for an appearance at the Panhandle-South Plains Fair, presented part of his professional act for the Raiders. his retirement, was contacted by new Coach Bud Wilkinson and Assistant Operations Director in August after the Cards' starting tight end, J. V. Cain, suffered a torn Achilles tendon in training camp.

A cloak-and-dagger scene followed when Joe Sullivan, the team's director of operations, denied having made Smith an overture. Smith, who passed a physical examination, insisted the reason was his demand for a $100,000 salary.

A trip to the Cowboys' quarters followed. And next Monday night, when Dallas travels to Washington for a game against the Redskins, the NFL's all-time leading pass-catcher among tight ends

If they just would have said they didn't think it was worth paying that kind of money to a guy who might get hurt, I wouldn't have minded. But instead, they made it sound like I

They are really an oppurtunistic team in that every mistake the other team has made they've turned into seven points," said Yeoman, whose Cougars face 10thranked FSU Saturday in Tallahassee.

That should not be to comforting to the Cougars, who have lost seven of 11 fumbles en route to their 1-1 record. Yeoman didn't like the final minute of FSU's game with Oklahoma State either.

"Oklahoma State was leading with a couple of minutes left in the half and they fumbled and suddenly they are behind by two touchdowns," Yeoman said. "Florida State scores two (touchdowns) in 19 seconds.

"This kind of stuff is really a concern to us because we have not been as careful (avoiding fumbles) as we are going to have to be. So we might as well play somebody like this that you have to be careful with.'

Houston was upset 17-3 in its opener against Memphis State but came back in the second half last week to beat Utah 42-25

Florida State is highly regarded by the Cougars as a passing team and this too, concerns Yeoman.

"If our pass defense doesn't improve, we'll be practicing a lot of kickoff returns this week," he said.

A pair of Utah passes last week were at the expense of left cornerback Gerald Cook and Yeoman said he hoped to remedy that situation before game time. He has moved Donnie Love to the position for added support. Quarterback Danny Davis, who led UH to the Southwest Conference championship in 1976, continues to get better after sitting out last year with a shoulder separa-

But backup Delrick Brown also is improving and will get more playing time this week, Yeoman said.

'Danny was better but he's still off," Yeoman said. "We're going to give Delrick some more time this week. He put the ball in the end zone in a hurry.

High Prices, Strikes, Unions Form Negotiated Wage Scale

ago, when the National Football League and its players were negotiating a new contract, the owners floated an idea of negotiating a scale for all wages as industrial unions do.

The NFL Players Association, the union, negotiates a minimum salary, per diem expenses and sundry other items, but regular-season salaries are worked

Sargent Karch, the man who negotiated labor contracts for the NFL at the time. set out a scheme under which a player's union contract would be similar to that of an electrician or a sanitation man.

A wide receiver would make so much, depending on his time of service, a center would receive another rate and a quarter-

Under the 1975 proposal, although never formally submitted at the bargaining table, a rookie split end would have received $20,000, a four-year man $30,000 and a superstar $65,000. A rookie center would have earned $19,000, a four-year man $26,000 and a superstar $50,000. A rookie quarterback would have garnered $25,000, a four-year man $35,000 and a superstar $125,000. Management and the union finally reached a collective bargaining agreement in early 1977 which is in force through the 1980 season, calling for rook ies to receive a minimum of $20,000 and five-year men $30,000 and, in 1980, a minimum of $22,000 for a rookie and $32,000 for a fifth-year man. However, the union, in making prepa ration for the upcoming negotiations three years hence, has been sounding out its membership on the possibility of negotiating wage scales, but with yet another twist: everyone would be paid equally, depending on the length of service.

The leadership is concerned with the players' share of the gross revenues," said Ed Garvey, the union's executive director. "We're raising the question of whether individual negotiations work any

He said the players received 45 percent of the gross revenues in 1974 but only 19 percent in 1978 because of the new television money going to the owners. "It might be better for a wage scale for

He said, as an example, the players would take 50 percent of any gross revenues and then make a determination on the method of payment throughout the

He said there would be no difference on position, only on service in the league.

"The incentive would be to do as well as you can so that you make the team every year," he said. "It's a team sport. You can have the greatest quarterback in the NFL but he isn't going to win games unless he has excellent blocking, fine receivers and good defense. So, arguably, no player is more important than any other player."

Garvey said the majority of the players in the NFL negotiate their own contracts and "it's a mismatch to have an athlete negotiating with a Jim Finks." Finks is general manager of the Chicago Bears.

Even if they don't negotiate their own contracts, it's a matter of leverage and they have Clarence Darrow representing them, they are going to have a tough

"As long as there is an excessive amount of talent for limited positions, owners will say 'Why pay you $70,000 when a rookie will do it for $20,000?" he said. "There is no incentive for owners to win now that they have the television money. They have created a situation where there is so much money available, there is no incentive."

50 percent of the gross, which he said was $160 million, the salaries in the NFL would be similar to the National Basketball Association, or, he said, averaging about $135,000-$140,000 which includes money for pensions, insurance and other fringe benefits.

Garvey said the union has visited nine of the 28 NFL teams and has received what he described as a lot of support for the proposal.

The next round in NFL labor negotiations should prove to be interesting.

Error-Prone Cougars Matched NCAA Group Defends Probe Procedures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the NCAA infractions committee defended before Congress Thursday the collegiate sports organization's investigation and enforcement procedure, saying it does provide "due process" for member schools, coaches and student athletes.

However, Arthur R. Reynolds and Charles Alan Wright, the outgoing and in-coming chairmen, respectively, and three other members of the infractions committee failed to convince Rep. John W. Moss, D-Calif.

Moss is chairman of the House investigations subcommittee which has been investigating the rules enforcement program of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Reynolds, dean of the graduate school of the University of Northern Colorado, said, "The fact is that the procedures are fair and fairly conducted, and I believe that when you properly understand the

LCC Tennis Squad Goes To Levelland

Lubbock Christian College's tennis team will travel to Levelland today to compete in the South Plains College Tournament.

The Chapparal unit is led by Steve Joiner and Beth Harmon, No. 1-ranked players on the men's and women's teams. The SPC Tournament will be LCC's second outing this week. The Chaps participated in the Angelo State to Tournament Tuesday. The tournament concludes Saturday.

NCAA enforcement program ... you will appreciate that the impression which has been created is misleading."

Wright, a law professor at the University of Texas, told the committee that the NCAA procedures provide even more protection than called for in the U.S.

"I regard the Constitution as setting a floor, below which no organization subject to its commands can go," he said.
"My own concept of due process goes considerably beyond the constitutional minimum."

Moss remained unconvinced, arguing that students aren't notified by the NCAA infractions committee of charges against them but by their own schools on orders from the NCAA. Moss complained once again about the NCAA procedure in which the university must declare an athlete ineligible even though it might think the penalty unfai but would suffer further NCAA punis ment if it didn't follow the association's "That offends every instinct I have," said Moss who ordered the NCAA investigation at the request of Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., shortly after the basketball program at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas was placed on probation in the summer of 1977. "It is an outrageous demand on an institution," Moss continued. "I find it repugnant. I can't accept it. In my opinion, it is a denial of due process. I believe you do it for expediency.

Wright said his defense of the system was not based on expediency but "on a principle that the university has to take some responsibility."

Said Moss: "I do perceive it as an expediency and not a matter of principle.'

Wright said, "I would like to see the day when we don't need an infractions committee. When an institution acts on its own. That's the way we would like to see intercollegiate athletics - each institution policing its own house."

Much of the hearing was taken up inquiries into how the infractions mittee makes a decision, espec whether it relies too much on the inv es.

Santini said he believes the committee made its decision in the Nevada-Las Vegas case on what he called a "psychological predisposition of guilt."

"The school is located in Sin City and it had a coach who was 'notorious," said Santini. "There was a predisposition of guilt on the meagerest of evidence."

Santini referred to the charge against basketball Coach Jerry Tarkanian that he arranged a grade for a prospect in a

"Much of the testimony ... has left the impression that the Committee on Infractions is a 'kangaroo court' which, on the basis of flimsiest evidence, 'rubberstamps' NCAA staff determinations, metes out inordinate punishments for trivial violations of esoteric and inhuman rules, and resists all effort to reform its processes, exacting retribution from anyone who dares to challenge its authority.' Reynolds said ty," Reynolds said

When the inflated rhetoric which has characterized much of the testimony pre sented to you is cleared away, charges which have been leveled aga the NCAA enforcement program are tan-tamount to an allegation that the Committee on Infractions and its individual members are guilty of either malfeasance or the grossest kind of misfeasance imag-

Yankees Edge A Notch Closer To Third East Title

Left-hander Ron Guidry fired a fourhitter for his 24th victory of the season as the first-place New York Yankees defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 3-1 edging a notch closer to a third straight American League East championship.

The victory reduced the Yanks' magic number for clinching the division title to three, and keep their lead over secondplace Boston at one game. The Red Sox defeated Detroit 1-0.

Guidry, 24-3, struck out nine, shattering the club record of 239 set by Hall of Famer Jack Chesbro in 1904. Guidry finished the game with 243.

The Yankee ace was locked in a tight duel with Balor Moore, 6-9, with the score tied 1-1 until the sixth inning. Thurman Munson opened the Yankee sixth with a single and moved to second as Reggie Jackson walked. When Moore fell behind Lou Piniella on the count, Tom Buskey relieved for the Blue Jays have any problems with the pressure of starting against Texas. Like I said, he's been winning for a long time in high school. He's cool, calm and a good lead-

Q .- How do you view your opponents? What do you see as their strengths and weaknesses?

JONES - Their defense looks improved and tough. They seem very aggressive. They look like they go for the ball real well and play smart football. I figure it will be the biggest test of our offense so far. And it will be a good test for us going to the Oklahoma game. We're not looking ahead certainly. but we should be able to see what our offense can do or can't do this week. I don't see any special adjustments we'll need to make for Tech's defense. We just have to concentrate on executing our plays the best we can.

TURNER - We know what kind of defensive team Texas has - it's excellent. The secondary and the front line are all outstanding. It might just come down to a defensive battle. They don't have Earl Campbell anymore and we lost some of our runningbacks, but I think there are excellent defenses on both sides. Of course we have the young quarterback, but we've been hearing a rumor that Donnie Little might start for them. I don't know if that's right or not. They lost Tim Campbell last week and that's going to hurt their pass rush some. His backup (Dwight Jefferson) is a good athlete but I don't think he's as good a pass rusher as Tim. But he's St. Louis New York strong and quick, although maybe we can take advantage of a weakness there.

Q.— What about your team's overall progress in the first two games? JONES - I think we're doing okay. But we do have to go out and try to improve and do what we can do best Hopefully, we've learned some things in the last two weeks. Last week (against Wyoming) we just slacked off and really weren't up like we should have been We have to play better and score more points if we are going to beat Tech. I know Lubbock is a tough place to play and they will really have the support in the stands. I remember two years ago it was a close game but most of their people from then are gone now. But our team is in good shape and I think we can win Saturday and win the conference. It's going to be a tight race with Arkansas and A&M and Houston and us. And It looks like SMU is for real. Texas will be there. I'm feeling good and I'm looking forward to being in Dallas for the

TURNER - I look at two years ago when I was a sophomore and we had about 18 seniors and went 10-1. This year we have about nine seniors and we are an underdog. We know we have a good team though we are young. The older players are trying to push the younger guys along. We have a lot of freshmen playing. We seniors can think back to two years ago and what we learned when we were young and try to teach the same things and put it all together. Personally, I'm not playing like I want to play. But I worked hard last summer after missing five games last year. This year I prepared myself physically and mentally for my senior year. I'm not setting any goals like I have in previous years. They didn't always work out. So I'm just taking it game by game.

Richard, 18-11, extended Atlanta's scoreless streak against the Astros to 32 innings before leaving the game after the fifth, when he developed a blister on the little finger of his pitching hand. He struck out six to hike his league-leading total to 303.

Richard himself broke up a scoreless deadlock with Atlanta rookie Larry McWilliams, 9-3, by hitting his first homer of the season, a solo shot in the third. Reggie Baldwin's RBI double and Rafael Landestoy's run-scoring single keyed Houston's two-run seventh. REDS 8, DODGERS 7 sweep of their three-game series.

The inning started as relever Lance Rautzhan, 2-1, gave up successive singles to Rose, Dave Concepcion and Ken Griffey to load the bases. George Foster walked to force in a run, and then RBI grounders by Don Werner and Dan Driessen closed the gap to 7-5. Ken Henderson then walked and Junior Kennedy singled, scoring Driessen to make it 7-6, with pinch-runner Dave Collins going to third.

Rick Auerbach then tied the game with a pinch single, and Rose, the 10th man to bat in the inning, singled off reliever Bobby Castillo to deliver Kennedy with the winning run.

Reliever Dave Tomlin, 9-1, picked up the win.

ORIOLES 3, INDIANS 2

Rich Dauer of Baltimore tied a major league record with his 85th consecutive errorless game at second base while Jim Palmer and Don Stanhouse teamed for a four-hitter as the Orioles beat the Cleveland Indians 3-2.

It was the seventh triumph in a row for Palmer, who reached the 20-victory mark for the eighth time in nine seasons.

Palmer, 21-12, allowed two hits before permitting Jim Norris' RBI single in the ninth. Stanhouse then relieved with two on and none out.

Bostock Eulogized At Funeral

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Lyman Bostock was eulogized by his friends and California Angels' teammates today as a man who cared deeply for people.

At funeral services for the 27-year-old baseball star at Vermont Square United Methodist Church, teammate Ken Brett said, "Lyman was full of life, full of spirit."

The star outfielder was fatally shot Saturday night in Gary, Ind., while riding in a car driven by his uncle. Bostock's widow, Youvene, and his mother, Annie, were flanked during the services by the Angels' players, led by manager Jim Fregosi, and Lyman's four brothers. Brett said he knew of no individual more loveable and more caring than Bostock. He added, "He was a genuine individual who cared deeply for people.

Bostock signed a five-year contract with the Angels last November for $2.7 million after playing with the Minnesota Twins three seasons. He had attended Manual Arts High School in Los Angeles and California State Univerity at Northridge before signing a professional baseball contract.

'He enlivened our clubhouse and took us out of the darkness of defeat. But he was a winner. He enjoyed life so much because he had so little at the beginning Bostock, 27, who played this season for the California

Angels, was shot to death Saturday night while riding in a car at Gary, Ind. After three seasons with the Minnesota Twins, he had signed a five-year contract with the Angels calling for $2.7 million.

"When he found the road to success, his first thoughts were to help the people who had helped him," said Brett who is the Angels' player representative.

"We are all better people for having known Lyman and having him touch our lives.

There was a standing room throng of about 1,000 for the services at the Vermont Square United Methodist Church and another 500 were outside.

The Rev. John C. Bain said, "Lyman was compassionate, fair, honest, a strong competitor and generally full of

The entire Angels' squad, headed by General Manager Buzzie Bavasi and Manager Jim Fregosi attended the services. Owner Gene Autry does not attend funerals because of personal religious beliefs.

Bostock's widow, Youvene, and his mother, Annie, were flanked by the teammates and Lyman's four brothers. His father, Lyman Sr., who had played in the Negro American League, also was in attendance along with several players from other major league baseball clubs.

There were flowers from virtually every club. The Angels' floral display depicted their scoreboard. Following the funeral, burial was in Inglewood Ceme-

Jury Hears Testimony On Posters

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Commissioner of Administration Charles Roemer said his testimony before a federal grand jury Thursday concerned a contract he has for distributing posters from the Muhammad Ali-Leon Spinks heavyweight championship fight.

Louisiana Sports Inc. contends that it paid $3 million for the rights to the live gate and all ancillary rights to the fight. Federal authorities are reportedly trying to determine whether Roemer's poster contract violates LSI's exclusive rights.

Last week, Roemer said his name came up in connection with the squabble surrounding the fight only because his name was mentioned -without his permission - as the mediator of any possible disputes within LSI.

Thursday, he said that he brought with him to the grand jury session records from The Parent Company, a firm which he owns and through which he said he hopes to distribute the poster worldwide. "I paid good U.S. currency for those distribution rights," he said.

The posters are printed from a drawing by LeRoi Neiman, the well known sports Roemer said he bought the poster rights from Knoelder Publishing Co. of New York, which he said represented Also appearing before the grand jury Thursday were Sherman Copelin and Don Hubbard, officers of Louisiana

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) - Coach Fred Pancoast of the Vanderbilt Commodores has no illusions about the task facing his football team when it goes against a smarting Alabama team on the Crimson Tide's own playground

Southern Cal toppled then top-ranked Alabama 24-14 last Saturday and Pancoast says "it's just like adding fuel to the fire" to have to face Alabama after a loss. Poor Vanderbilt. The same thing occurred a year ago when the Commodores had to take on Alabama after the Tide suffered its only loss of that campaign, to Nebraska. Alabama won that game 24-12. Another problem for the Commodores is Alabama's record at Tuscaloosa under Coach Bear Bryant, 57-1. Since Florida upset Alabama 10-6 here in 1963, Bryant's teams have won 42 straight on campus. "There's no good time playing against Alabama," Pancoast says. "I just can't imagine any worse circumst-

Alabama dropped to seventh nationally after the Southern Cal loss but Bryant and the players still have hopes of a national title and hope to make Vandy the first victim on their way back.

"Alabama is just as talented as it was at the beginning of the season," says Pancoast. "This is still the team that most people said was the best in the nation."

Calvin Jones of the local factory reported that three initial samplings of beets from area fields give reason for optimism in regard to both the tonnage of beets to be harvested and the quality and quantity of their sugar.

A total of 10 growers samples is taken in each grower area, with the marketable beets being taken from 10 feet of row on each grower's farm.

The sample beets are then analyzed at the factory's tare lab. "We can't nail a solid projection on sugar content of the crop just yet, but feel that we're looking at an across-theboard beet yield of 20 tons per acre this year. This is three more tons per acre than we havested last year," Jones pointed out

He indicated that although beet armyworms became a serious problem in area fields during the latter stages of the summer, the resilient beet crop has shown remarkably good recovery.

"Most of the leaves the armyworms damaged have grown back in a hurry, and we have lost very little sugar content from the beets in growing back the

The wet weather we've had should help the recovery even more, but growers must now remain alert for leaf spot. If it should turn up undetected in local fields, it could 'burn up' a beet crop in only a couple of days. 'If the disease caused leaves to die and

According to Jones, extensive work has been done at the Holly beet receiving station at Dimmitt, where a beet piler has been modified for this year's harvest.

"Other than a few items of routine maintenance, we are ready for this year's beets at all our rural stations as well as the factory, and are optimistic about what we think should be a good crop. The growers in the area have done an excellent job with their beets in view of the economic situation that has confronted them," he said.

Officials from the Hereford factory will meet with grower representatives from the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association to finalize plans for the 1978 beet harvesting schedule here.

Brown Warns Of Suspect Grain Deal

A-J Austin Bureau

A company that went bankrupt in Missouri and defaulted on more than $1 million worth of grain purchases apparently is trying to arrange large grain purchases in the Texas High Plains, State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown warned Thursday.

Brown, urging grain farmers in the area to make thorough background checks before dealing with unfamiliar out-of-state buyers, said his office has received inquiries from farmers about offers to buy white corn for amounts far above going futures market rates.

The department issued similar warnings last February against the same company, which, at the time, was arranging questionable deferred payment contracts on white corn in the Rio Grande Valley, Brown said.

So far, the High Plains is the only area we know of in which this firm is attempting to purchase corn," he said. But it's possible the operation is not restricted to that region'

Darrell Ketchum of the grain warehouse section of the department said the company, Atlas Corn Products doing business as Western Corn Supply, filed for bankruptcy last December in Atchison County, Mo., but that it might not be doing business under either of those names now

Ketchum said its corporate address has been listed as Valencia Siding, East Irvine, Calif.

Brown said he was not implying that all firms buying corn or other crops will not back up their obligations. "But we do want farmers to check out potential buyers before they sign contracts," he

Brown suggested producers protect themselves from payment defaults by institting an escrow account be set up through a local bank before delivery of the product, guaranteeing the farmer receives what he is entitled to if he meets his part of the agreement.

"In addition, if the terms of any offer are not clear, it is wise to have an attorney determine exactly what rights the seller has," Brown said.

phone calls a month from New Mexicans winter lows that plummet to 40 degrees. wanting to know the answers to those questions. 'And right now we just don't have the answers." Sullivan says. But the researcher hopes to correct that situation with a research project designed to find out two things. First, will jojoba grow in New Mexico, and second, what cultural practices will be necessary to grow it in this climate.

'As ridiculous as it sounds," Sullivan says, "New Mexico's climate may prove to be too cold for the desert-loving jojoba. You see, it is reported that jojoba will not tolerate temperatures that fall below 15 degrees.

Therefore, Sullivan's project, which is funded through a grant from the Four Corners Commission, will evaluate 12 jojoba varieties for winter hardiness. 'This August we planted 12 varieties of jojoba on about a half acre of land at NMSU's Plant Science Research Center." Sullivan says. "Our goal for this year is to evaluate these seedlings for winter hardiness and to see if there is a genetic variability for cold tolerance in any of the varieties "If we do find plants having genetic variability for cold tolerance, we will then take cuttings of those plants to produce more plants," the researcher says.

According to Sullivan, jojoba "oil" is actually a colorless, odorless wax that can be used in a wide variety of products: lipstick, varnish, fertilizer, lubricants, furniture polish, candles, chewing gum, mulches and even as browse for livestock and big game animals.

Sounding rather like a panacea for all our ills, jojoba is easily extracted in large quantities from the plant source. Right now there is only one other natural source of this unsaturated liquic, and that's sperm whale oil.

Sperm whale oil is used as a high-pressure lubricant in automotive and tractor transmission fluids, in metal-working oils and for gears and other machine parts requiring extreme pressure properties.

In the late 1960s, sperm whale oil consumption in the United States averaged about 50 to 55 million pounds per year. However, in December of 1970, the U.S. banned all imports of oil, meat and other roducts containing sperm oil under the Endangered Species Conservation Act. According to Sullivan, jojoba's most important use is as a substitute for sperm whale oil. In fact, research now shows that jojoba is a virtual sperm oil duplicate that can probably be used as a sperm oil substitute without requiring major reformulations.

And that's why jojoba's future lies in developing it as a cultivated crop.

Sullivan says that jojoba, which is also called coffeeberry, goatnut, wild-hazel nut and deer nut, grows wild over approximately 100,000 square miles of land in the Sonoran Desert of Arizona, California and Mexico.

Jojoba is a grayish-green bush. Along the Pacific Coast, it may reach 16 feet in height, while in the desert it is a semiprostrate shrub. It has a natural life span that appears to be more than 100 years and, in some cases, up to 200 years. Climatically, jojoba plants tolerate desert temperatures that reach summer highs of 110-115 degrees in the shade and

Better Methods Cited At Chemicals Parley

"Better business or bust" was the theme of the 26th annual West Texas Agricultural Chemicals conference Thursday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Crosby Farm Tour Reset Next Week

CROSBYTON (Special) - A tour of Crosby County farms originally scheduled for Sept. 21 has been rescheduled for Tuesday, according to Stephen Herber, Crosby County extension agent.

The agenda for the tour remains unchanged with buses leaving from the Lorenzo City Park at 8:30 a.m.

Circular sprinkler system and collection system will be viewed at the Harvey Hancock farm near Robertson. A demonstration of double-row cotton will been conducted at the Kenneth Gray farm near Lorenzo.

Sam Owings of South Plains Electric Cooperative will present an efficiency test of an irrigation well. Bench levelling by the Great Plains Program of the Soil Conservation Service and a weed plot established by the Crosby County Noxious Weed District and Texas Tech University will also be Lunch will be served by the Rio Blanco Conservation Service directors, employees and spouses at the Lorenzo City Park. The tour is being sponsored by the Crosby County Noxious Weed District, Farmers Home Administration, Crosby County Crops Committee and Rio Blanco Soil Conservation Service.

"The foundation should be made of species biology (knowedge of the species), sampling, rearing for research, and bio-economics (relation of pest numbers to yield loss) and population dynamics (what causes the population to rise and fall)," he said.

The walls, or tactics of suppression, according to the entomologist, would be the use of selective insecticide strategy, conserving and enhancing natural enemies, using tolerant or nonpreference varieties that are being developed and creating unfavorable pest environments.

One nonpreference variety that is being worked on is an upright leaf in corn," Owens added. "It works because the mites like to develop on the underside of the leaf." The problem with such a cultivar is the breakage of the leaf's mid-rib in wind damage which causes the leaf to bend over.

Spot spraying, biological control and recirculating sprayers are methods that are increasing in popularity for weed eradication, according to Dr. John Abernathy, weed scientist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Lubbock.

'The front-mount sprayer has the advantages of being able to watch closer and kick up less dust and trash," he pointed out.

Another area of research, Abernathy said, is in radioactive pesticides to get inside the leaf better. Insurance and liability aspects of agricultural chemical industries were discussed by E. W. Swiss of Pan American Insurance in Houston. Two practices that can decrease insurance problems, he said, are for the employer to require pre-employment physicals and to stress personal hygeine for workers. 'Seldom are label-approved products at fault," he said. Swiss blamed chemical accidents on negligence, incompatible chemical mixes on the farm and drift from wind. In a speech about suspension fertilizers, Homer Kimbro, a representative of the Tennessee Valley Authority, said there is rapid acceptance of suspension fertilizers because the low cost of materials and the U.S. deposits of high grade phosphate rock are being depleted. "The advantages of suspension fertilizers are the relatively high analysis, ease of handling, uniform application and fewer air and stream pollution problems," Kimbro noted.

The high viscosity in cold weather, settling problems, requirements for special storage, transportation and application and the need for gelling clay were disadvantages, Kimbro admitted.

The conference concluded with a business meeting.

Retail bread prices have risen 46 percent since 1971 but the farm value of wheat used to make the bread has gone up only 19 percent.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A FUNGUS INFECVTION WHICH CAUSES a black, moldy apperance on leaves has hit the High Plains cotton crop. The infection involves an assortment of organisms or fungi, including alter-

Leaves have been turning black following the recent prolonged period of wet, cool weather. Some entire fields have been blackened. Preliminary private estimates indicate the leaf damage plus the production time lost as a result of cool, cloudy conditions may result in taking a 200,000bale bite out of the 25-county crop. Dr. L. L. Ray, cotton scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, says the blackening is most severe in cotton that has undergone some drought stress and is fairly well along in maturity.

THE BLACKENING HAS BEEN NOTED in both irrigated and dryland cotton. It is somewhat similar to a leaf desiccation which erupted on a wide scale following extreme temperature gyrations in mid-September of 1975. Ray says the cause of the current condition is different from that of 1975 but the end result will be the same - a cessation of fiber development by the affect-

"What we have this year is a situation where disease organisms invaded the leaves during that damp, cool weather," Ray said. "Disease organisms for the most part weren't involved in the 1975 leaf desiccation. The 1975 leaf disorder - which was more widespread than the current blackening and which had the effect of an early frost - was mostly a straight physiological reaction brought on by temperatures soaring from record lows to record highs in a matter of days. It was a major factor in cutting yields to only 278.8 pounds per acre in a crop that produced 1,420,200 bales off 2,444,750 harvested acres.

THE EFFECTS OF THE CURRENT FUNGUS, Ray says, will be widely variable. Yields in the affected fields, he points out, will be determined in large measure by how much of the crop is open.

"Young bolls or bolls less than half grown in these fields probably won't make cotton," the researcher says. So losses could be heavy where there are a lot of such bolls in diseased fields.

On the other hand, where a large amount of cotton is open, the diseased leaves will simply mean "a free desiccation" without the use of chemicals. Ray says the combination of the disease and about eight days of lost "production time" on all cotton appears certain to "reduce production quite a bit." BUT SINCE THE DISEASE IS OCCURRING more in cotton that was drought-stressed and more mature, the overall effects won't be as great as if the malady were in more of the later, heavily loaded fields with a lot of green bolls. A committee of the Lubbock Cotton Exchange, based on conditions around Sept. 1, estimated the 25-county crop at 1,812,000 bales off 3,601,000 acres, an average yield of only 242 pounds per acre. This is 56 percent of last year's all-time high output of 3,215,400 bales off 3,-638,800 acres. The per-acre yield last year averaged 424 pounds.

Some veteran observers thought at the time the September estimate appeared low. But now, although early assessments of the leaf damage and cool weather may be premature, the crop appears to have suffered a September setback of

The lost production time in the irrigated crop is of especial concern. The dryland crop already was facing disastrously low yields as a result of drought.

Measure Permits Scrutiny Of Foreign Land Buys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreigners owning or buying farms in the United States would have to register their holdings with the Agriculture Department within three months under the terms of a bill passed by the House.

"The purpose of this legislation is not to cause a panic ... but to find out what the realities are" about such foreign investments, said Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

The legislation was spurred by news reports that foreign buyers have been purchasing large tracts of crop and timber acreage, outbidding farmers seeking to adopted by voice vote.

expand. Supporters of the bill said that the land must be protected as a national resource.

The bill contains no restrictions on foreign ownership. But it would require public disclosure of details about the owners' backgrounds, the property and the transaction, including the sale price.

Differences between the bill and one passed by the Senate on Aug. 11 must be resolved before Congress takes final action on the bill.

The Senate measure would require reports within six months of purchase or transfer and also defines farmland more broadly than the House bill, which was

Makers Of Trash Movie Seek Extra Dimension

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - "The Users" is another one of those trashy movies about Hollywood. Which is to say it's great fun.

- It's knee-deep in swill. The characters are scheming and decadent, deliciously and memorably so with performances etched in acid. They don't have skeletons in their closets - they have whole grave-
- It would join a long list of rotten movies about movies were it not done with such high style and with restraint over the seamier bits.
- Some characters are so outrageous, yet so on target, that the film teeters on a knife edge between melodrama and black comedy.
- "The Users," starring Jaclyn Smith of "Charlie's Angels" as a $100-a-night hooker who becomes the movies' social ieen, airs at 9 p.m. EDT Sunday on ABC. It runs 2 1/2 hours.
- "We deliberately set out to make it trashy," admits executive producer Douglas Cramer. Cramer is also the former husband of Joyce Haber, author of the book from which the film was adapt-
- "I think we've given it a new dimension. Take '79 Park Avenue.' That was another trashy movie that was fun to watch, but it didn't have that extra dimension.
- That extra dimension comes from having a director like Joseph E. Hardy, whose bailiwick is Broadway and the "Hallmark Hall of Fame;" from having Maurice Jarre, who won Oscars for "Lawrence of Arabia" and "Doctor Zhivago," score the music; and from opulent sets furnished with the real thing designer clothes, furs, and priceless jewels, paintings, and statuary.
- The screenplay was hewn by Robert J. Shaw from the 400 pages of Miss Haber's steamy roman a clef about a call girl who marries a fading screen idol and schemes and connives until he achieves an Oscarwinning comeback.
- When the book was published, it set off a guessing game of who was who. The story is based on truth and each character has at least one authentic counterpart. A few characters are composites of several movie celebrities.

Merson said. "He can play a man ill at ease, as in the restaurant or the the courtroom when the judge catches him unprepared and you can almost see his mind trying to make it in a world he's totally unfamiliar with. He doesn't know how to dress, how to talk, how to order in a restaurant, to say nothing of being in court.

He got his law degree from a correspondence school. He's a man who's tough in a street way, a toughness you normally wouldn't find in a lawyer."

a young newspaper woman assigned to the courts, Mark Withers as a snobbish member of the law firm, Gloria LeRoy as the owner of the night club where Leib-man has a room upstairs, and Dick

O'Neill as a slightly unsavory man who hangs around the club's bar and serves the same function as Angel Martin in

"The Rockford Files."

The cast also includes Linda Carlson as

"Or he can be tough. Here's a guy frantically searching for an out.

Tony Curtis stars as the aging actor who gets a shot of self confidence from Miss Smith. Red Buttons is the lecherous super agent. George Hamilton is the philandering producer kept on a leash by his Pasadena society wife, played by Carrie Nye. Michelle Phillips is Curtis' movie star daughter, whose fame now surpasses his. John Forsythe is the multimillionaire who dabbles in films. Darren McGavin is the literary lion with the hot bestseller. Alan Feinstein is the young studio head who subsists on antacid tablets.

But it is Joan Fontaine, a 1941 Academy Award winner for "Suspicion," who nearly steals the picture with a brazen performance as the flibbertigibbet who, for a nice fat fee, eases the strain of social climbing.

Cramer said the film is substantially different from the book, which he called 'light pornography" and which was too preoccupied with Hollywood's pecking order - the latter perhaps due to Miss Haber's former job as a gossip columnist.

It was first considered as a miniseries. "But it was felt by ABC," said Cramer, "that a Hollywood story wouldn't hold that long and that the characters were too unlikeable. But I think we have characters who are likeable, or at least under-

He said that because of the book's sexual explicitness, many people wondered how it could be adapted for television. It wasn't easy. Two writers tackled the script before Shaw finally came up with an acceptable story.

"I think we convey the essence of the book but in good taste," said Cramer. "It's a very cynical book and Joyce is a cynical lady. She wrote the book after she was fired as gossip columnist for the Los Angeles Times.

"I think she learned more from the outside than the inside. She learned more about people. When you have power and lose it, it gives you insight. You quickly learn who your friends are."

novel called "The Cheaters," while another writer has been assigned by Cramer and Aaron Spelling Productions to write a television sequel to "The Users" called "People Like Us." Cramer is executive producer with Spelling of "The Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island."

Gimmicks Win Passengers Cheap Flight To Vegas

HOUSTON (AP) — There were 49 fourleaf clovers, 49 old rusty horseshoes, a 49inch long peanut pizza, a guy with 49 credit cards in his own name, and a lot of other 49ers as the old and young stood in line for hours Thursday to grab a 49-cent roundtrip airplane ride to Las Vegas.

It was a party atmosphere with shouts of approval when anyone qualified with one of the 49 gimmicks that earned the cheap fare to the bright lights and gambling tables, along with a night of free lodging and a few bucks in chips.

This was the latest promotional stunt for Texas International Airlines to call attention to its new rates from Dallas and Houston to the Nevada gambling center.

TI has trimmed rates to $39 one-way from Dallas and $49 to Houston. Most of the 100 or so folks who crowded around the airlines' ticket counter in Houston were having a grand old time, although there were a few complaints and many disappointments when someone a few steps ahead came up first with one of the qualifying items.

And there was the warmth of some, after qualifying and still having a couple of other items in hand, gave them to others far back in the line, hoping all there could get a shot at the trip.

Pert and pretty Tracy Pauilus, 23, a senior at the University of Houston, grunted and groaned with a box of 49 honest-to-goodness horseshoes donated to her by a blacksmith in her home town

She had been in line from 8 p.m. Wednesday night until 10 a.m Thursday and she said, "please say something nice about that nice, nice blacksmith."

There was Darryl Smith, 19, of Houston, a junior college student, who strained to lift a 49-pound barbell 49 times. He did it and admitted his arms were so tired "I might not be able to throw the dice."

The first person in line was Raymond Torres, a self-employed exterminator from Houston, with his 49 pesos. Torres arrived at the ticket count at 4 a.m. Tuesday morning. He stayed there until Thursday morning. "I just want to go to Las Vegas for the first time and I was determined to do it and I did it," he said.

Sandra Covington of Humble had peanut butter cookies and had been standing in line some 15 hours when the judges said she actually had 56 cookies. Mrs. Covington quickly stuffed seven of them in her mouth, chewed hard and fast, gulped several times and qualified.

Emma Smith, on her 24th birthday, presented to the judges 49 honest-to-St. Patrick four-leaf clovers.

"I knew they grew in my neighborhood. I just went out and picked them. Pasted them to these pieces of paper and now I will be getting on an airplane for the first time in my life," said the young

Miller Co. Applies For Trademark, Rivalry Continues

NEW YORK (AP) - Miller Brewing Co., which recently lost an attempt to stop rival Anheuser-Busch Inc. from using the word "light" on low-calorie beer products, has applied for a trademark on a beer to be called "Gussie."

That, perhaps coincidentally, is the nickname of Anheuser-Busch's honorary chairman, August A. Busch Jr. But Miller won't say why it picked the name Gussie. "We never talk about our future marketing plans," spokesman Guy Smith said Thursday.

Anheuser-Busch, which is best-known for Budweiser beer, won't comment on Miller's trademark application.

Anheuser-Busch and Miller. ranked first and second respectively in the industry, are no strangers to feuds over names and semantics. Besides the battle over the word "light," the Federal Trade Commission is investigating a charge by Anheuser-Busch that Miller led consumers to believe its Lowenbrau came from Germany when it actually is brewed in the United States.

construction worker from La Porte, showed the stamina of the older ones by getting in line at 8 p.m. Wednesday and staying there until about 11 a.m. Thursday before he qualified with his 49-foot long paper clip chain.

"On the way to Vegas now, and plan to win some money. Never been there but I'm pretty good with those dice. My son suggested I do this, since I live alone and retired and don't do much. So here I am and off I go," he said. Tommy Forman, 22, showed the detercould come up with a last name with 49
