

Survey Shows Working Mothers Like Careers

NEW YORK (AP)— More than half of all women with children under 18 are in the labor force and a new study indicates that the majority of them like their jobs and plan to keep working until retirement.

The survey by the A.C. Nielsen Co. also found, however, that working mothers are evenly split about whether they view their occupations as a career or "just a job."

The Nielsen Co., which conducted the study on behalf of a fast-food chain, based its findings on telephone interviews and follow-up questionnaires involving a sample of 508 working mothers.

For purposes of the survey, working mothers were defined as: married women, 25 to 49, with husbands employed on a full-time basis and living at home and with children under 18 also living at home. To qualify, the women had to be employed outside the home.

Labor Department statistics show that there are almost 30.5 million women with children under 18. Of these, 16.1 million or 53 percent are employed. Wage-earning mothers represent 44 percent of all women workers.

The Nielsen study concluded: "The working mother appears to be satisfied with her dual role. Few (working mothers) feel that their husband or children suffer as a result of their working. In fact, both husband and children typically share in the housework — or don't care if it gets done."

Among the survey findings:

- Ninety-seven percent of those questioned said they liked their work and 55 percent said they would keep on the job until retirement. Half said they considered their work as "just a job" and half described it as a career.
- Money is the main reason for working. Forty percent of the working mothers said they had jobs because they needed the money; 20 percent said they worked because their earnings allowed the family extra luxuries; and 4 percent said they were saving for a major purchase. Others said they worked for personal fulfillment, to keep from being bored or because they had always planned a career.

Working mothers are most likely to hold service or clerical jobs. Half of those surveyed said their occupations fell into this category. Twenty percent of the women questioned described their jobs as professional, 16 percent said they were in the sales or managerial category, 13 percent said they were blue collar workers and 1 percent refused to say what they did.

Sixty-two percent of the working mothers earn under $10,000 a year and only 2 percent earn more than $20,000 annually. The women's earnings are highest in the sales and managerial category, where 5 percent of those questioned said they earned $20,000 or more a year.

Eighty-eight percent of those surveyed said they were proud of being working mothers. Seventeen percent or less than one-fifth of those questioned said they felt their children were slighted because of their work.

Working mothers generally say they get support from their families. Eighty-four percent said their husbands were interested in their work. At the same time, most of the working mothers — 85 percent — said they felt that women who worked have more demands on their time than men with a job.

Just over half of the working mothers said they believe the increased number of women in the labor force has increased the divorce rate. The number who link work and divorce varies by age, however; 47 percent of those 25 to 29 said the increased number of working women boosted the divorce rate, compared to 58 percent of the 35 to 39 age group. The study was sponsored by the Kentucky Fried Chicken Time Out Institute, founded in 1977 to study subjects employing women.

Bar Gripes Expressed In Austin

AUSTIN (AP)— A maverick member of the State Bar of Texas' board of directors said Friday it sticks in his craw that the bar spends its members' mandatory dues to lobby for causes many oppose.

"All lawyers have to pay $65 a year to support political and philosophical positions many of us disagree with," Joe Longley of Austin told the Sunset Advisory Commission.

Longley, former head of the attorney general's consumer protection division, said bar lobbying killed a bill in 1975 that would have provided triple damages for consumers in price fixing cases.

The commission later will vote on whether to recommend — as its staff has suggested — a major revamping of the bar by the 1979 Legislature.

Staff members said the bar's official duties for the state — licensing and disciplining of lawyers — should remain with a state agency. But its service functions to lawyers, such as lobbying and continuing education, should be lodged in a private association, the staff report said.

The bar is now a state agency but is financed by members' dues, which are held outside the state treasury and spent without legislative oversight.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, and Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, both called the bar dues, which a lawyer must pay to practice, a "tax."

Schwartz, a lawyer, said the bar has been arrogant and cited as an example the mortgaged construction of its $6 million Texas Law Center. Attorneys have voted to pay off the mortgage rapidly with special assessments.

"Arrogance is a luxury, and it only comes about when one is compelled to submit to it," Schwartz said, referring to the requirement that lawyers pay bar dues.

Former Attorney General Waggoner Carr strongly opposed the commission staff recommendation to replace the bar's local handling of grievances with a centralized system.

Carr defended former Supreme Court Justice Don Yarborough in disbarment proceedings. Juries normally decide whether a lawyer should be disbarred.

"I have been convinced that the only chance my client had to defend himself was before a group of laymen... And when the question is withdrawn from the jury, it meant instant professional death for my client," Carr said.

Juvenile Convicted Of Beating Michel

WASHINGTON (AP)— A 15-year-old Washington youth was convicted Friday of beating and robbing Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., last summer.

Michel, the House minority whip, was attacked by two youths in an alley behind his Capitol Hill home on the night of July 21 and required hospital treatment for his injuries.

The suspect, whose name was not disclosed because of his age, was found guilty in juvenile court of a federal charge of assault on a member of Congress and a local charge of assault with intent to rob. He was arrested on Aug. 24, but his alleged accomplice has not been found.

Judge Joseph Ryan ordered the youth returned to a detention center to await sentencing in November.

U.S. To Support Palestinians' 'Dignity, Freedom'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance pledged U.S. support Friday for "dignity and freedom" for Palestinian Arabs.

Without promising statehood, he told the U.N. General Assembly that the Camp David summit agreements are "a solid start" toward economic fulfillment and political expression. "For the first time," he said, "the Palestinians have the prospect of governing themselves."

Outside the assembly hall, a high-level U.S. official said the United States does not "prejudge" the outcome of negotiations set up by the accords, including a Palestinian state.

"That is for the negotiating parties to solve," said the official, who barred use of his name. He reaffirmed, meanwhile, that the United States opposes participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization unless it is willing to live in peace with Israel.

foreign minister, speaking before Vance, called the accords a sham and said separate agreements "mean playing with fire."

Vance's approach was conciliatory while defending the accords as giving the Palestinians "a vital role in shaping their destiny."

The summit "set in motion a political process of the utmost importance to all Palestinians," Vance said, by permitting them to participate in negotiations over the future of the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza and to ratify or reject the outcome.

"It is our hope that the people of the Middle East will agree that it is imperative to begin the negotiating process now," Vance said, "and not to stand still until every last issue is resolved."

He urged all nations to support Egypt and Israel in their peace talks and to contribute to economic development in the West Bank and Gaza.

"We are determined to achieve a fair and just settlement of the Middle East question in all its parts, and we hope the Palestinian people will seize this historic opportunity," Vance said.

Touching on the refugee problem, he said the 2 million Palestinians living elsewhere may gain the right to resettle on the West Bank or in Gaza.

Vance also proposed conferences on Indochina refugees and on the worldwide refugee problem. In Africa alone, he said, some 2 million people are living outside their native lands.

"The anguish of the uprooted is grim testimony to our collective failure to achieve international peace," he said.

On other subjects Vance had this to say:

"The United States continues to support a negotiated solution in Rhodesia but "time may be running out for the possibilities of diplomacy." He also condemned murder of civilians.

"South Africa should cooperate with the United Nations in bringing black rule to the territory of Namibia "so that this critical opportunity for a peaceful settlement will not be lost."

"In Nicaragua, only "a democratic solution" can lead to stability and peace. He called for fair mediation.

"The United Nations should conclude an international agreement to outlaw torture and "to end conditions which are tantamount to genocide."

"The Carter administration supports cooperation between industrialized and developing nations, an open trading system, increased food production and expansion of oil and gas production.

House Rejects U.N. Funding Despite Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House rejected on Friday the recommendations of a conference committee for an extra $27 million in U.S. contributions to international organizations.

The 191-143 vote came on a disputed point in an $8.5 billion compromise appropriation for the State, Justice and Commerce departments and related agencies.

The House approved the basic measure Thursday, but voted separately Friday on an item of about $355.3 million included in President Carter's budget and agreed on by Senate and House conferees for the contributions to United Nations and other agencies. It was rejected in favor of the lower figure the Senate had voted earlier, approximately $327.6 million.

Supporters of the conference agreement argued the United States is committed under international agreements to the full budgeted sum.

Opponents said this country should have more say over the projects funded by the international organizations. They also said the U.N. had ignored U.S. policy that such projects should be financed on a voluntary basis by member countries rather than by assessments.

On another disputed point, the House agreed to a recommendation that 15,000 refugees from Cambodia be admitted to the United States during the next two years. The section expresses the sense of Congress, but does not have the force of law.

"The compromise bill now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Returning To U.S. Easier For Citizens

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will soon be faster for Americans returning from abroad to get through customs and immigration formalities.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Customs Service say separate lanes at airports will be set up for travelers carrying U.S. passports. They will be processed separately from those with foreign passports who normally take longer to get through the formalities.

The system has been tested at Dulles International Airport near Washington.

It will be expanded to Kennedy International Airport in New York City on Monday; to Miami on Oct. 10; to Los Angeles on Oct. 16; to Seattle-Takoma Airport on Oct. 23; to Honolulu Airport on Oct. 30; and Logan International Airport in Boston on Nov. 6.

In November, the service will be introduced at the TWA and British Airways terminals at Kennedy, at O'Hare Airport in Chicago and in San Francisco, Houston and Anchorage.

Carter's Insulation Tax Credit Plan In Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposal for a $400 home insulation tax credit ran into serious trouble Friday as House negotiators spoke of cutting it in half and Senate negotiators moved to eliminate it entirely.

The proposed credit, which both houses of Congress have approved, usually is considered the most politically popular part of Carter's energy program. Nonetheless, it was the first item at which the conferees took aim as they met for the first time in months to see which tax parts of Carter's energy plan might be salvaged.

Chairman, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., and Sen. Russell Long, D-La., leader of the Senate negotiators, proposed halving the insulation tax credit as a way to help balance the federal budget. But after a lunch recess, Long returned to announce that Senate negotiators had caucused and agreed to do away with the home insulation credit entirely, while preserving $338 million in other tax credits, most of them to go to businesses.

Ashley later told a reporter that dumping it would be "a terrible idea." He said consumers were anticipating getting the tax break because both houses had passed the measure. Committee sources predicted the panel next week probably will agree to cut the tax credit in half as a compromise between the positions taken by Long and Ullman.

Carter's proposal would allow home owners to claim a tax credit of 20 percent on the cost of home insulation, storm windows and other home energy conservation improvements — up to a total credit of $400.

The credit, under previous congressional action, was to be retroactive to cover purchases made since April 20, 1977, the day Carter submitted his energy program to Congress.

Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, at first urged that the size of the credit be trimmed to 10 percent — or a maximum credit of $200. He said this would save the Treasury a potential $413 million in the first year starting Oct. 1.

Until Friday, the home insulation credit was widely expected to be one of the few parts of Carter's energy plan to emerge from Congress intact. But House-Senate negotiators claimed that the insulation credit is the most expensive tax break in the Carter package — amounting to some $227 million in the fiscal year beginning Sunday. This amount would eventually rise to almost $2 billion a year, critics claimed.

Government Sees Economic Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government measure of future economic trends turned upward Friday as the administration predicted "moderate but steady economic growth."

The Commerce Department said its index of leading indicators rose a moderate 0.8 percent in August after plunging 1.3 percent the month before.

The index is designed to predict changes in economic activity and often can detect a recession or business boom in advance. The 1.3 percent decline in July was the sharpest since a 3 percent drop in January 1975.

If the index had declined again in August it might have been cause for alarm. Meanwhile, the department's chief economist, Courtenay Slater, estimated the economy was growing at an annual rate of about 3 percent to 3½ percent during the summer.

In a speech Thursday night in Montreal, Miss Slater said the third-quarter figures would be "heartening evidence of continuing strength in the economy."

It usually takes a growth rate of about 4 percent to keep unemployment from getting worse, economists say.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. In 1967 and 1968, I worked for myself and opened a Keogh plan. I invested $2,500 in what was supposed to be a "high" mutual fund through a big brokerage firm. That fund never did any good. My investment is now worth about $2,000.

A. I am now 67 and, even though I don't need the money, I would like to cash in that fund. I called the brokerage house and it seems the people there have no interest in handling the sale. Why?

A. I'm afraid the attitude you ran into has to be counted as all too typical of too many brokerage houses. There's no commission in the transaction for the brokerage firm, so the people there don't want to explain things to you.

You don't have to go through the brokerage house. You can cash in your mutual fund shares by going directly to the fund. It makes no difference whether you bought the fund's shares through a Keogh plan for the self-employed or any other method.

Write to the fund and explain that you want to redeem your shares. You'll receive the "asset value per share" — the actual dollar and cents value behind each share at the time you cash in — multiplied by the number of shares you hold.

I'm sure you have been receiving a statement from the fund every three months — showing the status of your account. The fund's address or the address of its "custodian bank" is printed on each statement.

TRAIN VANDALISM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department proposed Friday that action be taken to prevent vandalism of windows in passenger trains, locomotives and cabooses. Both the Association of American Railroads and the Railway Labor Executives' Association asked for such a safety regulation, noting an increase in incidents of persons shooting or throwing rocks at trains. The proposed requirement would apply to all new or rebuilt locomotives, cabooses and passenger cars within six months of its effective date.

Q. I am inheriting $70,000 in stocks. Do I need a broker or banker to oversee the stocks for me? I would rather have cash than stocks. I would then put the money in savings certificates.

A. You don't "need" a broker, or anyone else to oversee any stocks you have coming to you from that inheritance. Once you get the stock certificates, you can keep them or sell them. If you keep them, I urge you to put them in a safe deposit box.

If you sell the stocks, you'll have to find a broker to handle the sale. If you don't know a broker, ask your bank to recommend one.

Q. I read a book, explaining how anyone can make a million. I was particularly interested in the chapter on buying and selling currency futures. But, when I went to my bank, I got blank stares. The bankers say they never heard of such a thing. Can you help?

A. The best help I can give is to tell you to throw that book away. Anyone who could be sure of making a million on currency futures or anything else wouldn't have to write a book.

Things such as this come out of the woodwork every couple of years. The authors make their money on royalties — from money paid by gullible people.

Q. Do you know if the new method of "negotiated" brokerage commissions on the purchase and sale of stock is working well?

A. I'm sure you realize that you are asking for an opinion. In my opinion, the answer is a resounding "NO." On May 1, 1975, the old "fixed" commission rates — set by the stock exchanges — were scrapped and every investor or speculator was left to negotiate with brokerage firms on commission charges.

Commissions paid by big institutional investors — bank trust departments, pension funds, mutual funds, insurance companies and such — have come down. But commissions paid by individual investors and speculators have generally gone up. I call this a disaster.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Why would a hi-fi store own an expensive microscope... and cartridge analysis instruments that cost over $2000?

Answer: so we can assure you of getting the performance worthy of your investment when you purchase any turntable, stereo phono cartridge, or needle from Hi-Fidelity.

We at Hi-Fidelity have found that a large percentage of brand new turntables, stereo phono cartridges, and needles are defective. Therefore, as a free service to you, (normally a $20 charge) any time you purchase these items from us we will:

1. Inspect the needle to be sure it is shaped properly, properly aligned & attached to the needle shank.
2. Mount the stereo phono cartridge in the turntable and assemble, align, adjust, calibrate, and performance measure the unit. The gauges and scales on most record players are a compromise which limits accuracy, which, in turn, limits performance, and hastens record and stylus wear. Hi-Fidelity uses sophisticated electronic testing and alignment instruments to make precise adjustments and accurate settings. The assures you of getting the performance you pay for.
3. We give you our FREE Three Year Protection Plan which guarantees your turntable purchase from us for three years, parts and labor instead of the normal warranty of 1 or 2 years.

World Mourns John Paul's Passing

By The Associated Press
Religious leaders, heads of state and ordinary citizens around the world reacted with stunned disbelief and sorrow Friday at the death of Pope John Paul I, a simple man of humor and humility who endeared himself to millions in his 34-day reign.

The words of peasants, priests, kings and presidents — expressed in many languages — conveyed the same message. "We are stupefied, shocked," said the Rev. Giuseppe Bosa, apostolic administrator of the Venice diocese, where John Paul had served before becoming pope. "I'm destroyed," said Cardinal Vicente Enrique Tarazon of Spain.

Some suggested the job as leader of the world's 700 million Roman Catholics was perhaps too much for any man to bear.

"The sudden death of the pope must be a warning of a mental and physical overburdening of a pope and pointing to the necessity to reduce much more than up to now the burden through splitting up and delegating of the tasks to a level bearable to humans," said Cardinal Franz Koenig of Vienna.

Koenig and others said selection of a new pope will be difficult when the cardinals meet in conclave again.

In Washington, President Carter paid tribute to the late pope, saying he had "captured the imagination of his church and of the world."

"He held out the promise of combining his predecessors' finest qualities, reaffirming what is endearing and strong in the Catholic tradition, while expanding the frontiers of the church to cope with the needs of the modern world," Carter said. "The warmth of his personality and his understanding of the lives of ordinary people were evident to all. We are all made poorer by his death."

Carter's wife, Rosalynn, who attended the funeral of Paul VI and was present at John Paul's installation, praised the pope for his "warmth, his openness and his love."

Archbishop Gilles Ouellet, president of the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops, was one of many who said John Paul accomplished much during his brief reign.

"For someone in frail health, he made his mark as a sprinter instead of being a long-distance runner," Ouellet said. "He did his 100 yards or 100 meters and now someone else, maybe someone in better health, will have to carry on."

Periods of mourning were decreed in predominantly Catholic Latin America. Officials in Mexico City announced the postponement of the Conference of the Latin American Episcopate — the most important meeting of Latin American Roman Catholic church leaders scheduled in a decade. It was to begin Oct. 12. The conference had been called to chart the course of the Catholic church in Latin America. The last such conference was held in Colombia 10 years ago and led to more church involvement in social problems.

Some could not express their sorrow. "When one is shaken up with grief, one is not talkative," said Cardinal Frantisek Tomasek of Czechoslovakia.

In Communist Poland, Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski said the death of the 65-year-old pope was a "veritable shock" because "it seemed the election of a comparatively young man" would have given the church "a long time of peace." He ordered requiem masses for the pope in all churches in Poland.

Cardinal Gordon Gray, leader of Roman Catholics in Scotland, said John Paul "was one of the most happy looking popes ever. He did not have the time to impress, but he made a good start. We had hoped for so much from John Paul."

Cardinal Joseph Hoeffner, chairman of the German Bishop's Conference, recalled John Paul's words when he took office: "How unfathomable are God's judgments, how inscrutable his ways." No one could suspect that these words would be proven anew in this way to the pope himself in less than four weeks.

"God wanted it, as incomprehensible and painful His decision is," Hoeffner said.

"The ways of the Lord are disconcerting to our human perspective," echoed Cardinal Francois Marty, the archbishop of Paris.

News of the pope's death brought tears streaming down the faces of worshippers at morning Mass in the pope's hometown, the tiny village of Canale D'Agordo in Italy's Dolomite Alps. The Rev. Rinaldo Aldrich tolled the bells of his mountain church after breaking the news to the parishioners.

Bells also tolled at St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice, where Albino Luciani, son of a migrant worker, served as patriarch from 1969 until his election as pope.

In London, Queen Elizabeth II sent a message to the Vatican expressing "deep sorrow" and said "the humility and kindness shown by his holiness will remain a lasting and inspiring memory."

Dr. Donald Coggan, Archbishop of Canterbury and leader of the world's 65 million Anglicans, said the pope's death was "a great loss to the church and to the world and a reminder of the fragility of human life."

At the United Nations building in New York, the flag was lowered to half staff. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said John Paul's death was a "heavy blow not only for the Catholic Church but for all who seek peace and justice in our troubled world."

In the Holy Land, Israeli President Yitzhak Navon noted the pope's reign began "with much promise" and said all Israel was saddened.

Lebanese President Elias Sarkis declared a three-day national mourning period in his war-ravaged country.

British newspapers used their largest type to headline news of the pope's death. The Soviet news agency Tass reported the death in a one-paragraph dispatch from Rome.

Pope's Impact On World Praised

By The Associated Press
The brief papacy of Pope John Paul I was characterized as full of a promise that was never realized as millions of Americans mourned the passing of a second pope in as many months.

The 34-day reign, the shortest in modern times, "captured the imagination of his church and of the world," President Carter said Friday.

"He held out the promise of combining his predecessors' finest qualities, reaffirming what is enduring and strong in the Catholic tradition, while expanding the frontiers of the church to cope with the needs of the modern world," Carter said.

Perhaps the Americans who knew him best were the cardinals gathered with him last month in the conclave that elected John Paul pope after the death of Pope Paul VI.

Those men mourned his passing by recalling the human qualities that had held out such hope for the church.

Cardinal John Carberry of St. Louis, said the death "has shaken all of us. We ask God for strength ... He (John Paul I) affected all people of all faiths. They felt his warmth and humility and love."

Cardinal Terence Cooke of New York characterized the late pope as a "humble, loving and pastoral leader."

"He offered to all of us the smiling, hope-filled presence of a man chosen to guide us in living the message of love and service that is the good news of Jesus Christ," Cooke said. "Our hearts go out in sympathy to our brothers and sisters all over the world."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who had attended Pope Paul's funeral, said John Paul "made a deep and lasting impression as a man of great energy who had the rare gift of being able to share the joy that was so clearly the product of his deep faith."

Rosalynn Carter, also at last month's funeral, expressed the feelings of many Americans. "I was stunned and saddened by the death of Pope John Paul I," she said in a statement issued in Miami. "I think there was an immediate affection for him by people all over the world because of his warmth, his openness and his love."

A somber Archbishop John Quinn of San Francisco, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, recalled the day in Rome barely five weeks ago when John Paul was named pope: "As he stood on the balcony of St. Peter's in the darkness of that August evening, his warm smile and simple, confident optimism lit a new hope and brightened the expectation of the church and the whole world."

Pope's Last Words

VATICAN CITY (AP) — "They kill each other, even among young people," Pope John Paul I said, commenting on reports of the slaying of a Communist youth in an ambush in Rome.

Those apparently were his last words. About an hour after he spoke them Thursday night, he died of a heart attack.

The pope retired to his bedroom on the third floor of the ornate, four-story Apostolic Palace shortly after 10 p.m.

Vatican sources said death came between 11 and 11:30 p.m. while John Paul either was asleep or reading "The Imitations of Christ," a 15th century book of meditations.

'Pastoral' Cardinals Emerge As Papal Contenders

By HILMI TOROS

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Five Italian cardinals with pastoral experience rather than a bureaucratic background in the Roman Catholic Curia are regarded as top prospects in the guessing game of who will be the next pope.

The experience of all five, leaders of major Italian dioceses, is similar to that of 65-year-old John Paul I, the "people's pope" who died Thursday of a heart seizure after a reign of only 34 days.

The belief that Roman Catholicism should be headed by an Italian, but one with rich experience as a pastor rather than as a Vatican administrator, emerged during pre-conclave discussions to find a successor to Pope Paul VI in August.

"If the cardinal electors wanted a pastoral pope from Italy only five weeks ago, there should be no reason for them to change in such a short time," a Vatican expert commented.

However, observers also cautioned that papal elections often are unpredictable, as was shown in the surprise and speedy election of Cardinal Albino Luciani, the patriarch of Venice, as Pope John Paul I on the first day of voting Aug. 26.

Luciani's name had been barely mentioned as a serious contender for the papacy. Frontrunners were believed to be experienced, Vatican-based Curia cardinals such as Sergio Pignedoli, Sebastiano

COLOMBO

Baggio and Pericle Felici.

But, according to Dutch Cardinal Johannes Willebrands, the search was for "a good bishop, a pastor, who knows pastoral problems from his own experience."

Non-Italian cardinals, numbering 84 out of the 111 electors last August, saw no reason why Italians should not continue their four-century domination of the papacy so long as the pope was a pastoral type. The swing to Luciani reportedly was led by Third World cardinals as well as Frenchman Francois Marty, Austrian Franz Koenig and Italian Giovanni Benelli.

Two cardinals who were said to have been under serious consideration along with Luciani topped the list of "papabili," or possible popes, on Friday. They are Cardinal Corrado Ursi, the 70-year-old Archbishop of Naples, considered a middle-of-the-road moderate, and Cardinal Giuseppe Siri, 72, the archbishop of Genoa noted for his conservative views. Siri, a cardinal for 25 years, was a strong vote-getter even in the conclave that elected Pope Paul VI 15 years ago.

The others are Milan's Cardinal Giovanni Colombo, 75, Salvatore Pappalardo, 60, of Palermo, Sicily, and Benelli, 57, archbishop of Florence.

Both Pappalardo and Benelli had experience in the Vatican's central administration before being switched to pastoral duties. Pappalardo has been termed an "innovator" while Benelli, once a top aide to Pope Paul, is known as a conservative.

Some, however, judge energetic Benelli as too young at 57. He indicated that the next pope should be similar to John Paul I by calling him "the right man for the right moment, adapted to our times."

Prominent non-Italians are Willebrands, a liberal, who is archbishop of Utrecht and head of the Vatican's Secretariat for Christian Unity; Argentina's Eduardo Pironio, now prefect for the Congregation for the Religious after having had diocesan experience in Argentina; and French Cardinal Jean Villot, the Vatican's secretary of state under two popes and currently the interim administrator for the second time in less than two months.

This time a total of 112 cardinals — compared to 114 five weeks ago — are eligible to vote for the next pope — 26 from Italy, 30 from the rest of Europe, 19 Latin Americans, 12 North Americans, 12 Africans, nine Asians and four from the Pacific. One cardinal has since died and the other cardinal elector, Luciani, became pope.

It's up to the gathering of cardinals to decide the site of the conclave, but the Sistine Chapel appeared as the likely place again.

And, if the traditional smoke signals were to be used again — black for inconclusive votes, white for the election — a better functioning system seemed in order. Both white and black smoke curled from the chimney on Aug. 26 despite artificial flares to ensure the correct color.

While there seemed no frontrunners once again, some Vatican experts said they expected the next pope to choose the name of John Paul II out of reverence for the dead pope.

Under electoral rules, a candidate must obtain a two-thirds majority plus one vote. There are two voting sessions in the morning and two in the afternoon. After the first three days of balloting, voters pause for prayers and "free discussions" and then proceed for seven more voting sessions. In case of a continued deadlock, another praying and discussion session is called for and seven more ballots.

Cardinals then can alter the voting system, changing it to absolute majority of votes plus one, a runoff between the two top vote-getters or appoint a delegation from nine to 15 cardinals to do the choosing.

The pope also can be chosen, as laid down in a constitution, "by acclamation or by inspiration ... when the cardinal electors, through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, freely and spontaneously, unanimously and aloud, proclaim one individual as supreme pontiff." The acclamation method has not been in use since the early days of Christianity.

Pontiff's Death Forces Postponement Of Meet

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The most important meeting of Latin American Roman Catholic Church leaders in a decade has been postponed because of the death of Pope John Paul I, officials said Friday.

The Rev. Francisco Ramirez Meza, director of the Mexican information office of the church, said the Third Conference of the Latin American Episcopate, scheduled to be held in Puebla, Mexico, Oct. 12-28, has been suspended until further notice.

The meeting of Latin American bishops was called to chart the course of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America.

The last such conference was held in Colombia, 10 years ago, and led to more church involvement in social problems.

Preliminary work for the conference was near completion. Representatives from 22 Latin American nations and 250 bishops had been expected to attend.

Ten of the men who were to lead the meeting in Puebla, Mexico, are cardinals and will have to be in Rome for the election of a new pope, Ramirez Meza said.

He said the new pope must decide if, when and where the conference will be held.

"I am trying now to cancel all the services for the meeting," Ramirez Meza said. "We have already contracted starting Sunday for telephones, telex lines, secretaries and all the other things the conference would need."

"The rooms for the 250 bishops are ready and all the other work is 95 percent finished," he said. "There have been hundreds of people working on the organization. Most of them are laity who have spent many hours helping us. In the press office, for example, we have only two priests. The other 40 people who have been working on press arrangements are laymen."

The scheduled conference already had sparked controversy. There were reports of a sharp split between bishops wanting more church involvement in social problems and those who wanted the church to take a more conservative approach. For months bishops have been meeting in regional groups to hammer out a working document from which discussions would start.

"There is profound grief for this last surprise of surprises," Ramirez Meza said. "He (John Paul I) was given the name 'pope of surprises' because of the swiftness of the conclave, because he was the one elected, because of the name he chose and because he shunned protocol. Now his sudden death is another surprise."

National Rose Month has been observed in June since 1969.

Naples Offices Flooded With Papal Bets

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The sudden death of Pope John Paul I sent thousands of Neapolitans storming into the offices of the Lotto weekly national lottery Friday to bet on numbers connected with the late pontiff.

The most common numbers on which the residents of this lottery-crazy city put their money Friday were 48, by tradition the number associated with the death of a pope; 32, the pope; 1, because the late pope was the first to use his name; 72, supposed to represent shock; and 17, a death.

There was some confusion among bettors who like to wager on people's ages, because John Paul was 65 but was to turn 66 in October, and most Italians count ages by years, ignoring the month of birth. Those betting the date of death also were confused; some put money on the actual death date, the 28th, and some on the 29th, when the body was found.

Every Saturday five of the numbers are drawn and those who have put their money on one or more of them win money prizes, the amount depending on how much has been bet and how many winners there are.

Allison, Hinchey, Springer Honored By Tech

Alvin R. Allison, Dr. John J. Hinchey, Robert Charles Jordan, and Berl M. Springer received "Distinguished Alumnus" citations from the Texas Tech University Ex-Students Association in ceremonies Friday night.

The four graduates were presented medallions by Tech President Cecil Mackey and honored at a reception prior to the formal presentations.

Allison, a Levelland attorney and 1930 graduate of Tech, is known as "Father of the Texas Tech Law School." He has served as president of the Texas Tech Law School Foundation since its organization in 1968 and has annually contributed to law school scholarships. He also established a student loan fund for law students.

Allison also organized and obtained the charter for the Red Raider Club of Texas in 1951 and was president of the group from 1951 to 1953. He was appointed to the Texas Technological College board of directors in 1961 and reappointed in 1967, thus serving when the institution was renamed Texas Tech University. He also served as Hockley County judge for two terms.

NASA 'NEEDS' FUNDS TO TRY FOR ALIEN BROADCASTS

Funding Committee Unimpressed

By ART LEVINE
(c) 1978 Pacific News Service
Is somebody out there trying to tell us something?

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration thinks so. The agency wants American taxpayers to spend $14 million over the next seven years trying to pick up alien broadcast signals because they believe there's a good chance intelligent life exists in outer space.

But Congress doesn't agree, and NASA is facing the possibility that funds for the new program will be cut.

Advocates of the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence (SETI) program are undaunted. Sept. 20 and 21 they again made their case before a House Science subcommittee. NASA's budget request for $2 million to start the program was approved by Congress last year, but this year appropriations committees in both houses cut the funds. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., even singled out the program for his "Golden Fleece Award."

Now NASA officials are showing the kind of plucky determination that landed a man on the moon. They won't give up. They still have supporters in Congress and the scientific community, including celebrity astronomer Dr. Carl Sagan.

Since the 1960s, Russian and American scientists have made several attempts to pick up signals from civilizations on other space. But, alas, they haven't heard anything yet.

Are those outer space beings merely shy, afraid to say "howdy" to the planet Earth?

Probably not, says NASA. In one of its publications, the agency notes, "Other civilizations, too, could be searching for intelligent companions." The scientists say previous listening attempts have failed because our radio telescopes were beamed on too narrow a spectrum of stars and frequencies. The SETI program would be an all-sky, all-signals search using existing and new technology.

Although subcommittee members expressed preliminary support after the hearings, Proxmire isn't impressed. And, as chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that has jurisdiction over NASA funds, his views carry a good deal of weight.

"There is no urgency to fund this effort in fiscal 1979, or fiscal 2079, for that matter," he says. "It should be postponed until right after the federal budget is balanced and income and Social Security taxes are reduced to zero."

There's no proof anyone's out there, he contends.

Even if we do pick up a signal, he says, it could have been sent millions of years ago from a long-dead civilization.

"What do we do if we get it," asks one Capitol Hill aide, "send a mailgram?"

NASA proponents are tired of such wisecracks. They emphasized to the committee that the project would lead to advances in radio astronomy. But they also say it needs to be launched now because growing interference from our own communications systems will make sensitive detection of signals difficult in a few years.

At the hearings, Dr. Noel Hinners, NASA's associate administrator for space science, conceded, "The chance of success is very small, but the rewards of success would be very great."

Even signals picked up from a dead civilization could be valuable, the program's advocates claim. They liken potential messages from outer space to the books of Greek civilization. "Does Sen. Proxmire suggest we throw out all books written by those who are now dead?" asks a NASA rejoinder issued earlier this year.

Among the more fascinating documents in the proponents' research arsenal is a Library of Congress study, "The Possibility of Intelligent Life Elsewhere in the Universe." The 1975 study, revised last year, includes results of scientific surveys, but also includes poetry, science fiction and fanciful drawings of outer-space creatures.

The study extolls the potential benefits of celestial messages but warns: "We should necessarily have to be cautious in accepting any advice initially, but in the long run, the possibilities are titillating."

It worries that the alien beings might try to fool us by "transmitting messages that appear beneficial, while their intentions were malevolent."

The report also outlines future directions inter-stellar communication might take, as well as possible drawbacks. Mere radio communication doesn't hold much promise, the study says. We'd have to wait at least 48,000 years for an answer from some distant star to a signal sent in 1974. "There may be no one left on Earth to receive their answer, and all would have been in vain."

Ideally, the best method to communicate would be to send astronauts in spacecraft, says the study. There's one hitch, though. The occupants might not survive the journey, which could take thousands of years. One solution would be to develop a vehicle that travels up to the speed of light to slow down aging. Or hibernation or suspended animation could be used.

All that's still far in the future, however. For now, NASA is asking funding for what it believes is a modest, sensible, low-cost program.

But indications are that if somebody out there is trying to contact Congress, most members aren't listening.

Magnetic Storm Hits Communications

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A magnetic storm on earth, caused by solar activity, disrupted communications in parts of North America on Friday, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reported.

Joe Sutork, a NOAA forecaster, said he had reports of interference from several amateur radio operators in the United States. An oil company attempting to set up a high frequency radio system in Newfoundland also reported problems, he said. The Department of Defense uses the high frequency band for long-range communications.

The storm, which was a result of high levels of radiation from the sun entering the earth's magnetic field, began with solar flares last Saturday and peaked at 6 a.m. MDT Friday, NOAA officials said.

Sutork said the storm also may cause disruption of power transmission.

YMCA's 'Business Men's Basketball' Open To Public

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of articles dealing with agencies supported by the United Way of Lubbock. The United Way campaign goal for 1979 is $1,482,349.

Businessmen are offered a chance to get rid of that extra weight and a chance to clear their heads from the morning's rush with the YMCA's "Business Men's Basketball" from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. each weekday.

The YMCA of Lubbock, a United Way agency, will receive $45,325 from the United Way's 1979 goal of $1,482,349.

Lawyer Byrn Bass, Jr., became an avid participant in the YMCA when he returned from school in 1972. He said he joined the "Y" mainly for its racquetball and basketball activities. Since then, however, Bass has taken a position on the board of directors and is a past president of the board.

Bass said he uses the "Y" about four times a week, mostly during the noon basketball games. "There's nothing better than participating in noon basketball, using the health club and the steam room before going back to work," said Bass. "It's a good break in the day and it really does clear your head."

The games are open, according to Bass, and newcomers are always welcome, with players ranging in age from about 22 to 55. Bass said the games are friendly — players call their own fouls — and it's quite rare if a player loses his temper.

The attorney explained that the philosophy of Lubbock's YMCA can be put in one word — service. "It is service for the family unit or individuals of either sex and whatever age. I think that this 'Y' offers the community a wide variety of programs from young people to old age."

Bob Schreiner, executive director of the YMCA, describes the "Y" as a "group work" agency. "We are an agency that deals primarily with people in groups," he said. "Most of our groups are involved in programs and recreational activities that provide members with an opportunity that they don't have elsewhere."

"In order to do all this," Schreiner said, "you have to have real concern for people, a concern for their real good — physically, mentally and spiritually."

Schreiner said he believes the YMCA achieves its goals to serve the community by maintaining a locally autonomous board of directors. He explained that the directors of the Lubbock "Y" are all Lubbock residents who understand the needs and desires of the community. He said the board of 33 members sets fees and programs, for example, and Schreiner is answerable to their wishes.

The "Y" provides programs in swimming, handball, tennis, karate, gymnastics, racquetball, weight training and body building, to name only a few. The YMCA also has an individual fitness testing and counseling program which includes weight analysis, lung capacity and cardiovascular testing and strength and flexibility measurements resulting in a road to a fitness and exercise program.

The YMCA also offers clubs for youth such as Indian guides and princesses and Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y.

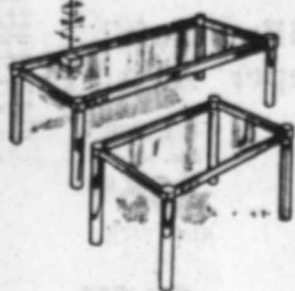

Schreiner said that although the YMCA is centrally located in Lubbock, the agency has begun a program to reach out to all parts of the community, such as east and northeast Lubbock. He said that some women's fitness programs and arts and crafts classes for children have been started in these areas with hopes of expanding the "Y's" services in the community.

Currently the YMCA has 3,117 male members and 778 female members, with an average daily attendance of 416.

The YMCA is one of 34 United Way agencies.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag
 South won the diamond lead with the ace. Normally, this type of false-card is not effective, but South had a reason to make it.
 If trumps broke 2-2 there would be no trouble with the contract. If they broke 3-1 he had a rather interesting way to hornswoogle West if he held the three trumps and his three of diamonds lead had been from a three card suit.
 South led a spade to dummy's king at trick two and a second spade back to his ace.
 Then he led the king and queen of diamonds and discarded one of dummy's four hearts on the queen.
 Next came the deuce of diamonds.
 South's skulduggery was about to pay off. What would you do as West? Wouldn't it look as if South had been dealt ace-king-queen-deuce of diamonds and East four diamonds to the jack-10.
 West thought so. He discarded. Away went another heart. Now came that well-concealed jack of diamonds; a third heart followed the first two and South only lost three tricks.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
 I have three cast-iron frying pans that are badly in need of treating as they stick and the food has an "off" taste.
 Is there something to remedy this? — Mrs. A.E. Wilcott

Honey, there is for sure, and so help me, Hannah, the remedy is easier than falling off a log (well, almost).
 These iron utensils are so popular with many of my dear homemakers and no wonder — they're great, but we do hear from lots of folks with the same complaint. It's just that cast iron does require a bit of special care to maintain carefree cooking, otherwise food will stick and cause other problems as you and the rest of us have already found out.
 But, as I said, there is a cure for sticking and "those other problems" so if your iron cookware is new, or old, — it doesn't matter — do this:
 First of all, wash the utensil in warm, sudsy water and dry it completely. Next, rub unsalted fat (suet is best) over the inside of it and place in a slow to moderate oven (about 300 degrees) for two hours. Remove it from the oven, but be careful — the pan is gonna be hot, so use a thick, dry pot holder — and wipe off any remaining fat with paper towels.
 Your cast-iron cookware is now ready for use, but preserving this seasoning takes a bit more doing, folks, so read the following directions carefully.
 Don't wash the utensil in strong detergents. Instead, just rinse it in plain old hot water after each use, removing any food particles with a nylon net scrubber or a plastic scouring pad.
 That's all! Don't even put them in your dishwasher, or, the worst sin of all — your dishwasher! It just ruins cast iron.
 For extremely hard to remove food particles, you can use a plain steel wool pad (no soap-or detergent-filled ones). Rinse well with hot water, then dry thoroughly with a paper towel.
 And don't set the pot on the stove burner to dry — that's much too hard on the seasoning. Rub on a thin coating of unsalted fat to restore the top seasoning and store in a dry place.
 Don't stack other utensils in it or cover it with a lid as this can cause the iron to sweat, thereby causing the pot to rust.
 Loves, if you will take care of those precious iron pots in this manner, the seasoning will last for ages, but should you even mildly mistreat them over a period of time, you may have to eventually re-season them. The utensil will tell you when...
 Food will begin to taste metallic, or discolored, the dishcloths or paper towels will turn black when you wipe it out or the utensil will have rust spots.
 Don't be alarmed, though. Just follow the simple steps listed above and your pot will again be as good as new!
 Don't you wish some mornings when you crawl out of bed it was as simple to "re-season" us? Love you — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
 In dresser drawers that are not used much, lay clear plastic over the contents.
 You will see how much dust you save from getting on your clothes, etc. Dust the plastic occasionally. — L.S.A.

DEAR HELOISE:
 The kids in my family like cold, refrigerated water to drink but can't pour it into a glass for themselves.
 So I solved this by giving each child his favorite soda pop can and filling it with water. The cans get cold quickly and don't rust.
 Each child can just reach in the refrigerator and drink right from his can, which saves on glasses or paper cups.
 So much more fun, too... — Mrs. S. Hodel

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter so other people can read it and get as burned up as I am. Maybe then somebody will do something about it.
 I'm enclosing a newspaper article about a man who kept three of his children penned up in a wire chicken coop, a four-by-six-foot pen. The little ones were naked, dirty and under five years of age. The worst thing is that the court is going to make a decision as to whether or not the children should be returned to him. Isn't this incredible?
 It's an open-and-shut case of child abuse and neglect and cannot be described as anything else. This man has two wives (sisters), 20 and 22 years of age. They have produced seven children ranging in age from 11 months to five years. He is a full-blooded Choctaw Indian and is permitted multiple marriages according to tribal laws.
 Ann, you know the right people. Speak up against child abuse and let us know what we can do to help. There are too many children out there right now being abused and neglected. They can't help themselves. Maybe we can help them. — I'll Do My Part In New Jersey wanted to know if her husband was a brother-in-law to her sister's husband? I hope so because it sounds like the definitive answer. I ran across it in a bookstore recently and it sounds convincing. It came from a paperback of "Ripley Believe It or Not": "Men who marry sisters but are otherwise unrelated to one another are considered brothers-in-law in the United States (same for sisters-in-law) but nowhere else on earth." — Mrs. S.B., H-Burg, Miss.

Dear S.B.: Only in America! Thanks for letting the world know.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently our daughter was married in our home. Because of limited seating space we had a private ceremony with my family, our family and only two close friends in attendance.
 Since there were many people with whom we wanted to share our joy we planned a reception following the ceremony and sent written invitations. Only one person showed up.
 Did we do the wrong thing by sending invitations to the reception but not the wedding? — Uncertain In Baker, Ore.

Dear N.J.: This problem comes under the jurisdiction of the state. Get everyone you know to contact the governor and let him know how you feel about this case. Ignorance rather than cruelty is at the bottom of it. These people need to be educated. I read the newspaper account carefully and I'm convinced they actually don't know better.
 After being taught the basics of simple hygiene, perhaps the children could be returned to their parents, but not until they have decent facilities to live in, clean clothes, and a mother and father who have been considerably enlightened.

Dear Ann Landers: Can you crowd just one more letter in for that woman who Dear Uncertain: Many wedding ceremonies are "family only" and the reception is for friends. I suspect had you not invited those two non-relatives to the wedding, you would have had a larger turnout at the reception. "The word" got around.

 What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (15 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

WAYS TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For 30 years I have suffered recurring bouts of bladder discomfort, ranging from slight pain to unbearable attacks. I think the attacks are triggered by eating fresh fruits or vegetables and that it sometimes takes a week before I have symptoms. The doctor agrees with me. I wondered if there is a test to find out just which food is the cause, if any. If the attack came on quickly it would be easy to solve, but over a period of time it is difficult to tell which is causing it. — Ms. D.H.

Skin tests are of doubtful value in detecting food allergies. Dr. Claude Fraziere, an authority on this subject, says test results have to be taken "with a grain of salt."

Your suspicions are probably justified. The reaction time might be delayed, so you have to keep a lengthy food diary over several weeks. There is an approach you can try to put you on the trail of the specific culprit or culprits. The following are prime food suspects in urinary tract reactions: eggs, milk, chocolate, tomatoes, food colorings and flavorings, wheat, citrus fruits, cola drinks and nuts. If you avoid these for a reasonable period and have no recurrence you may be headed toward a solution to your problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother has had a severe case of the shingles for the past few months. Now, three months later, she still breaks out with a few blisters. She has severe pain down her left arm. Her chest is very sensitive. Her doctor has her on pain pills, but they don't help.

She is 86, and has reached the point of despair. Any information you can offer would be appreciated. — Mrs. J.B.

There are certain combinations of drugs that can eliminate or lessen this so-called "post-herpetic neuralgia." Tranquilizers such as phenothiazine or amatriptyline (alone or in combination) are an example. Steroids (cortisone drugs) if used early are effective in avoiding pain. I doubt this is too late for your mother, and her physician might consider this. Unfortunately, as in your elderly mother's case, the recognition of the rashes as shingles is often delayed beyond the point of real help from drugs. She should see a neurologist. Shingles is an unfortunate ailment, primarily affecting the elderly. The effects seem more pronounced and painful in them. Shingles, otherwise known as "herpes zoster," is discussed at more length in my booklet on the subject. If you want a copy of "Facts About Shingles" send 20 cents for printing and handling along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Thank you for the article on cheese being one of the causes of blind spot headaches. I had them for years, and also was a big cheese eater — nearly all my life. Since eliminating cheese I have had no more headaches, which is certainly a wonderful blessing. — Mrs. M.O.L.

Fine, so long as you also took my other advice — to be checked for other possible eye diseases, as glaucoma, which might also be involved.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard of this diet in which enzymes are used to melt fat out of the body. Can you give me a list of the enzymes to take? — R.K.

No sooner does one zany diet fad fall to the wayside than another steps into the parade to take its place. The one you mention is nonsense, so far as I am concerned. But then I've been called a nut for telling folks they can reduce by eating fewer calories than their bodies expend in energy.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Fair Highlights: Fair Animals Display Varied Personalities

By JANICE JARVIS
Family News Staff

Personality conflicts can easily stir the dust when animals don't see eye-to-eye in the Children's Barnyard at the Panhandle South Plains Fair.

Geese are often the troublemakers that set off chaos in the barnyard. "If they're next to some animal they don't like, they'll run up and down their cage honking," said Ed Crawford, supervisor of the barn.

Like most mothers, the canine model on display is overprotective of her puppies.

"She seems to be more concerned about the lambs in the cage next to her than she is with the visitors," noted Crawford.

This year the ducks seem to be attracting the most attention.

The ducks were flown in from Pennsylvania when they were one day old, according to Crawford, "but they learn tricks quickly and have already learned to walk up a ramp and slide down a slide into water," he said.

The chicks are also star attractions this year. They've also been trained to ride on a miniature Ferris wheel.

The larger animals seem to be attracted to fair visitors, while the smaller animals keep to themselves.

"You can call a goat, lamb or pig and he'll come right up to you, but the fowl seem to be more reserved and prefer hiding in the back of their cage," said Crawford.

The animals on display at the fair are pets owned by 4-H club members.

"We try to get newborn animals with their mothers," explained Crawford. The 4-H club members prefer to display baby animals because they quickly adapt to the environment. "The older animals seem to acquire a dislike of people," noted Crawford.

This year the lambs were bred especially for the fair. The rabbit on display this year is pregnant and 'expecting' any day now, according to Crawford.

The animals are kept in their cages for the entire week of the fair, but a heat lamp assures a warm environment for the babies.

They are fed twice daily, and their cages are cleaned morning and evening. Furthermore, all animals must have health certificates before they can be displayed.

Due to sanitation problems, fewer larger animals are being displayed than in the past. The calves and colts have been omitted because they are difficult to care for and are difficult to keep penned in.

Most of the animals sleep during the night and are alert when crowds are the heaviest. According to Crawford, the animals easily become accustomed to their new surroundings.

"After the first day they usually aren't bothered by the many visitors that pass through the area," noted Crawford.

This year the pens have been improved to provide adequate housing for the animals.

In past years, some animals learned to escape from their cages at night.

"A possum last year was especially good at sneaking out at night," noted Crawford. But this year cages are secured to keep animals in as well as curious visitors out. Animals that can't fly or get out of cages do not have coverings over the tops, noted Crawford.

In addition to the animals in the barnyard, there are also animals on the midway. But unlike the pets in the children's barn, these animals are being given away as prizes, explained Barbara Dixon, a Humane Society member.

Mrs. Dixon warned that anyone winning a duck in a contest should be aware that it's against the law to keep a duck or chicken within the city limits.

"Also, many of the animals don't survive," she noted.

Results Of 'Psychosurgery' Viewed In Research

By WILLIAM J. CROMIE
People who have parts of their brains destroyed by surgery to control violence and pain suffer permanent intellectual damage.

This conclusion of a new study is the latest shot fired in the controversy over controlling behavior by so-called psychosurgery.

Mary Riddle and Alan H. Roberts of the University of Minnesota Medical School reanalyzed the performance of 335 patients on maze tests designed to measure foresight and judgment before and after surgery.

"It appears that there may be a sharp immediate postoperative loss in TA (intellectual ability) followed by a partial, but by no means complete, recovery," they report in the Archives of General Psychiatry, a professional journal.

Those in favor of psychosurgery argue that habitually violent and criminal adults can be made "normal," and that intractable pain can be relieved, by the procedure. Opponents insist that the job can be done with drugs, and that surgery causes decreased intellectual capacity and motivation. The most extreme see it as a method of social and political control and racial repression that turns people into passive robots.

Riddle and Roberts take no firm position. However, they state that the data they checked "points to the fact that negative effects can be potentially large and still escape detection." The degree of mental impairment they found had been overlooked in previous analyses of maze test results, the researchers say.

As far as turning people into robots, the first step already has been taken in that direction by Robert G. Heath of Tulane University School of Medicine in New Orleans. He recently revealed that he had controlled homicidal and suicidal behavior, and epileptic and spastic seizures, in 11 people by implanting electronic pacemakers over the surface of their brains. Electric signals received by the pacemaker "activate the physiological system for pleasure while inhibiting the system for adverse emotion, which also is involved in the spread of seizure activity," reports Heath.

His treatment is strikingly similar to that experienced by the main character in the science-fiction novel The Terminal Man, by physician Michael Crichton.

Heath's work has met with interest, outrage, hope and fear. Detractors say zapping the brain with unnatural electric jolts can produce undetected deterioration of mental and emotional ability, such as that claimed by Riddle and Roberts.

Supporters maintain it is far better to operate or stimulate and sacrifice some intellectual potential, which probably never would be fulfilled anyway, than to leave someone totally unable to cope with everyday life.

The most controversial operations involve cutting out tissue in the brain's frontal lobes — accepted as the seat of thought, consciousness and those qualities that distinguish humans from animals. Most of the patients in the Riddle-Roberts reanalysis underwent this type of surgery.

The further back on the frontal lobe the knife cuts, the greater the loss of foresight and judgment, the Minnesota researchers conclude. "Evidence that there is ever recovery of the capacity lost following posterior frontal lobe operations has not been found," they note.

Experts estimate more than 100,000 people throughout the world underwent brain surgery to correct mental disorders. Psychosurgery peaked in the early 1950s; about 40,000 operations were performed in the United States between 1945 and 1955.

The procedure almost disappeared in the 1960s, but interest was revived in the 1970s. Recent accusations that thousands of mental patients have been subjected to brain surgery were highly publicized. This promoted the American Psychiatric Association to do a study which concluded that only between 300 and 400 operations a year are performed in the United States and Canada.

Psychosurgery in 1978 differs greatly from that of the 1940s and 1950s, proponents claim. Early Methods of surgery, says physician John Donnelly, "have long been superseded by methods both more accurate and more limited in their destruction of brain tissue."

Donnelly participated in the APA study, and he and his colleagues maintain that present day surgery is limited, peaceful and well-controlled from both medical and ethical viewpoints.

APA and the National Commission on the Protection of Human Subjects of Biomedical and Behavioral Research have given psychosurgery the green light as "an effective treatment of last resort in selected psychiatric disorders." The two organizations found "no evidence that psychosurgery has been used for political, social control, or as an instrument for racial repression." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Liberal Group Seeks Skateboard Ban; Permanent Injuries To Riders Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Barbat was skateboarding near his Maryland home last April when his board struck some gravel and he fell, hitting his head on the curb. His skull was fractured and he was unconscious for several days.

The 16-year-old boy survived and is back in school now, but he is not the same, his mother, Jani Barbat, said Friday. He often flies into uncontrollable rages. The doctors say he will never be able to play contact sports, his mother said.

Because of accidents like Bobby Barbat's, the consumer affairs committee of Americans for Democratic Action called on the government's Consumer Product Safety Commission to ban skateboards.

At a news conference addressed by Mrs. Barbat, the ADA committee said government figures show 140,000 injuries and at least 25 deaths attributed to skateboards were reported last year.

"There is nothing very much that can be done to make the board safer. If the mandate of the Consumer Product Safety Commission is to reduce injuries and death from products, and the product can't be made safer, then it should be banned," said Ann Brown, who heads the ADA committee.

There are about 20 million youngsters using skateboards, according to the International Skateboard Association. The ADA group said as skateboards increase in popularity, skateboard-related injuries rise.

Low-Calorie Bread Considered By FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is proposing to allow bread to be labeled as "reduced calorie" if it has a 25 percent reduction in calories.

Other foods are required to have a one-third reduction in calories before they may bear the "reduced calorie" label.

Officials said they were petitioned to set the lower standard for bread because, although it could meet the one-third requirement, it would not be as palatable or acceptable to consumers.

The agency is inviting comment on the proposal, particularly from consumers, nutritionists and food technologists. The deadline for comment is Nov. 21 and letters should be sent to the Hearing Clerk (HFA-305), Food and Drug Administration, Room 4-65, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md., 20857.

In 1975, there were more than 27,500 injuries; in 1976, there were 71,500 injuries, and in 1977, 140,000 were hurt seriously enough to be treated in hospital emergency rooms, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, which issued a "Hazard Analysis Report" on skateboards last February.

Miss Brown noted that Norway recently banned skateboards.

Michael Feinstein, a spokesman for the Consumer Product Safety Commission, said the commission has never considered a ban of skateboards.

"We do not feel that a ban is necessary," he said. "While we acknowledge that skateboarding is a dangerous sport, 98 percent of the injuries are a result of human problems, not the product."

Besides, Feinstein said, "a ban would be strongly resisted by consumers."

But Jani Barbat said as far as she's concerned, "Neither Bobby nor I ever want to see a skateboard again."

California Maoists Break Ties With Chinese

By Thomas Brom
Pacific News Service

"Revisionists are revisionists and must not be supported! Revolutionaries are revolutionaries and must be supported!"

The broadcast songs of revolutionary China swept across the sunny plaza outside Berkeley's Community Theater, attracting the curious and the faithful to the West Coast Mao Tse-tung Memorial.

The Revolutionary Communist Party U.S.A. (RCP) was out in force recently to celebrate the second anniversary of Mao's death, and to denounce the current Chinese leadership as "revisionist and capitalist-roaders."

China's rapid changes in domestic and foreign policies have left many former supporters in the United States gasping. The RCP, largest Maoist organization in this country, waited two years before formally breaking with the Chinese leadership this September.

But a sense of incongruity pervaded the Mao Tse-tung Memorial from its elaborate start to finish. Maybe it was the wholesale adoption of Chinese-style rhetoric assumed by the predominantly white, middle-class organization. Maybe it was the studied militance and posturing under the warm California sun or the ponderous solemnity of the occasion.

Whatever the cause, Berkeley's Mao Tse-tung Memorial moved dangerously close to the Twilight Zone.

The steps to the Community Theater were cordoned off, like the waiting lines in a bank, into winding trails leading to the front doors. Black-bereted security guards, each wearing red T-shirts with Mao's picture on the back, were everywhere.

People filed through the narrow rope corridors in small groups, carefully separated by the security forces.

"No more than four tickets will be sold together," a security guard announced. "You will be searched before entering the building. This will be for your own protection."

Women in two separated ticket windows sold the carefully numbered and coded tickets, one window for English-speaking people, the other with ticket information in Chinese, Persian and Spanish.

The interior decorations were awe-some. Red banners, each with revolutionary slogans printed in English, Persian, Spanish and Chinese, hung from the walls and balconies.

"Hail the heroic efforts of the four who fought to uphold Mao's revolutionary lines and the proletarian rule in China."

Simultaneous translation into Chinese, Persian and Spanish was offered in special sections of the auditorium.

The stage was festooned with red bunting and flanked by rows of elaborate, floral displays on each side. The curtains high above held huge pictures of the "Gang of Four" were pinned to the curtains beside the stage. It looked like a church service, a memorial mass for a dead pope.

The crowd of nearly 1,000 hushed as eight tiny spotlights pinpointed the faces of the heroes tacked to the stage curtains. Something spectacular obviously was about to happen.

The curtains opened slowly, then swept back with deliberate ceremony. Huge versions of three slogans were spread across a red paper backdrop. Immediately above the speaker's podium was a gigantic portrait of Mao—expressionless, patient and watchful. The crowd paused, then responded with prolonged, enthusiastic applause.

Bill Klingel, a member of the RCP Central Committee, began the program with yet another recitation of slogans denouncing the current Chinese leadership and praising the life and work of Mao.

Two members of a group called Prairie Fire sang of their trip to the People's Republic several years ago, comparing their impressions of Hong Kong with the achievements of China just across the border.

Then it was time for the main event, an address by Robert Avakian, chairman of the Central Committee. He walked across the stage carrying a briefcase. Avakian, a small man whose head barely rose above the speaker's podium, cleared his throat and shouted in a giant voice, reiterating the slogans and Chinese-style imprecations previously hurled at China's leaders. He attacked Hua Kuo-fung, Chou En-lai, Lin Piao and Liu Shao-chi and described with special vehemence "the stink emanating from Teng Hsioping."

The chairman again recounted the sell-out of the Chinese people, going into very deeper detail, finding ever more deviations from the current communist line. He denounced "goulash communism" and advocated "meat-and-potatoes communism." He spoke more than three hours, while many people shifted in their chairs and others filed out of the auditorium.

German Move To End Trials Protested

NEW YORK (AP) — Survivors of Nazi concentration camps and their children protested the German government's plans to end Nazi war crimes trials during a noontime demonstration at the German Consulate Friday.

Some 35 members of the New York chapters of the Survivors of the Nazi Camps and The Generation After marched peacefully on the sidewalk in front of the consulate on Park Avenue.

Several passersby, in agreement with the protest, joined the marchers who bore placards and chanted "No limitations ever, no pardon for genocide."

The German government plans to end Nazi war criminals trials in March 1979, and the groups are attempting to inform Americans about the plans and press for continuation of the trials.

The groups see a resurgence in anti-Semitism and fascism in this country and abroad and plan to initiate a letter campaign to enlist the support of Americans and politicians in the war crimes issue.

"After 1979, all Nazis hiding underground will be set free. We feel this is an insult to the 11 million Jews who died and an insult to humanity," said John Ranz, a survivor of Auschwitz and Buchenwald and spokesman for the demonstrators.

Working Donor Acknowledges Divine Guidance

By TOM TIEDE
 RICHMOND, Va. (NEA) — Thomas Cannon says it began when he purchased a novelty box containing an assortment of religious quotations: "One day I had a strong urge to go to the box, and I took out this quotation: 'You have not chosen Me; I have chosen you, that My work may prevail on earth.'"

Cannon was convinced it was divine guidance. He believed he had been instructed to do what he could to promote kindness and decency. But how? He had no particular leadership abilities. He was merely a post office machine operator, an obscure resident of this city's deteriorated eastern side.

But there was one thing he could do. He could share his money with others. And so, in the last decade 52-year-old Tom Cannon has become a working man's philanthropist: he has given away scores of bank checks, worth a total of 35,000 hoping that, like Christ, the cash will do some good for people.

Not long ago, for example, he read about a lad in Norfolk who found some money and returned it to its owner. The boy's veracity was ridiculed by his school chums, who said that his honesty was outdated. Touched, Cannon sent the youngster $1,000 and a letter extolling the virtues of growing up with integrity.

Then there was the time Cannon mailed $1,000 to a husband who had taken on two jobs to pay medical expenses for his hospitalized wife. The philanthropist has also given to Boy's Clubs and other uplift organizations. And too, during the nation's Bicentennial year, he sent $50 to every state in the Union.

None of this generosity has been easy for Cannon. Indeed, he is a man who could periodically use some charity himself. His postal service salary is only $17,000, and there are a few dollars earned by his babysitting wife. That's it. "Usually," he says, "I am flirting with economic disaster."

In some ways the disaster has already hit. Cannon drives a 14-year-old automobile, shops for passed-over clothes, and lives in a rundown home that, he says, is surrounded by picklocks and poverty. He does have a color television and a tape deck, but, to scrimp, he hasn't been to a movie house in years.

And yet, Cannon says he would not have it any other way. His sacrifice is part of his mission. The Rockefeller's can afford to be good Samaritans; Cannon cannot, but is, and therein lies his logic. "I want people to know that even when you don't have much, you can still count, you and make a difference."

The difference that Cannon is trying to make is that between the negative and positive. He fears society is drenched with the contrary today, "it is bombarded by bad news, cynical values and hopeless crises." When he sends out a check,

THOMAS CANNON
 Working Man's Philanthropist

then, his motive is to indicate that good things also happen:

"That's why I don't send my money anonymously. That's why I'm glad for the publicity. I want everyone to see the little items in the newspapers, and to stop and think about it. I want them to say, 'Well, gee, here's a fellow in Richmond who gives his money away — maybe things aren't so bad after all.'"

There is of course a drawback to this public side of Cannon's philanthropy. His generosity has become well known locally, and as a result he is besieged by requests for money. "People write letters, they come to my door, they stop me on the street — and each of them has a wretched story to tell."

Yet if Cannon is big-hearted, he is not wee-minded. "I won't give to just anyone," he says. "In fact, the kind of people I help are those who would never ask anyone for help." Besides, he adds, a lot of people who believe they need help "simply need to get out, get some work, and help themselves."

Oh, well, if he were in it for gratitude, Cannon says philanthropy wouldn't be worthwhile. "I think many people are more resentful than thankful. My neighbors think I should help them first. The church thinks I should give the money to God. As for my colleagues at the post-office, they just think I'm weird."

At times, even the recipients of Cannon's money are unappreciative. He says men are often insulted by the gifts, "because it reflects on their manhood." Also, when he gives cash to families on public aid, they must report it as income, and then may complain if their welfare checks are reduced.

Still, with it all, Cannon insists the rewards of altruism swamp the worries of it. Like the framed document that hangs on his living room wall. It was lettered by small children, and it reads: "This is to certify that Thomas Cannon is a Super-person." See? Cannon says, to give is really to get.

MARS CRATER — The crater prominent in this view of the north polar area of Mars is named Lomonosov. With a diameter of about 140 kilometers (87 miles), Lomonosov is easily the largest crater in the regions around the north pole but is smaller than many craters in the much more heavily cratered southern hemisphere. The peculiar hummocky terrain seems to indicate that the surface has been heavily eroded and modified relative to highland regions. This image was taken by the Viking orbiter. (NASA Photo)

Crane Nudges Bulldogs 7-6

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
TAHOKA — There is this old saying that goes something about how if your offense can't hold on to the ball, then your defense had better hold on to anything it can grab.

Tahoka couldn't hold on. So they lost here Friday night 7-6 to the Crane Golden Cranes.

The Bulldogs, entering the game as a second-ranked Class AA team in the state by one wire service, lost six fumbles to their guests.

And,ouch, how they all hurt.

Perhaps the miscue that dealt the most misery to A.D. Shavers' club came with 2:04 left in the game when runningback Jerry Hatchett failed to field a faulty pitchout by quarterback Todd Brown. It appeared the 'Dogs were on their way to winning their third nonconference tilt, until fumble No. 6, which was recovered by linebacker Carl Gibbs.

Tahoka, dealing itself all kinds of misery during the beautiful night, had taken a 6-0 lead in the third period when Clifford Bailey bulled over from the 1. Bailey's run for 2 points failed.

The way the game had turned into a defensive struggle, it appeared the 6 points would hold up, allowing Tahoka to stay unbeaten and enter next week's District 5-AA play unblemished.

But, no sir, not this time.

Crane, which had to battle all night long, took the ball with 11:13 left in the game and headed for its first and only score.

After being set back to the 45 by a holding call, quarterback Rocky Rives unveiled his passing arm and hit end Andrew Hannon with a perfect strike.

Hannon never broke stride and neither did his teammates. Rives added the crucial extra point, giving Crane its 1-point margin.

And that was that.

Hatchett, however, returned a Rives' punt 80 yards for a TD with 40 seconds remaining, but all for naught. The score, which would have given Tahoka a 12-7 win, was called back because of a clipping penalty.

"We've got some battles on this team," said Shavers following the ballgame. "I don't think this (the loss) is going to affect us."

In the first half, if one team wasn't fumbling, the other one was as each club lost three bobbles apiece.

Friena Enjoys 27-0 Win Over Farwell

FRIONA (Special) — Chuck Nichols rushed for 95 yards on 14 carries and split end Leslie White caught two touchdown passes as the Friena Chieftains made their homecoming successful by defeating the Farwell Steers 27-0 Friday night.

After Friena took an 7-0 lead into the halftime dressing room, the Chieftains blew the game wide open in the third quarter with three scores.

White took the spotlight first by scoring on 77-and 32-yard touchdown passes from quarterback Chris Barnett.

Then Nichols scored on a 2-yard run to put the game out of reach.

Besides catching two touchdown passes, White also kicked three extra points.

The win boosts the Friena record to 3-1, while Farwell dropped to 2-2 on the year.

Grady Rushes Past Paint Rock 48-16

GRADY (Special) — Ruben Gutierrez picked up 125 yards rushing on 11 carries to lead Grady to a 48-16 six-man win over Paint Rock here Friday night.

The win upped Grady's season record to 3-1, while Paint Rock is now 2-1.

Gutierrez scored on a 5-yard run in the first quarter and added a 42-yard sprint in the second frame. Ronald Chee added a 6-yard TD run in the first quarter and another 6-yarder in the third, plus a 21-yard scoring strike to Leandro Gonzales in the third period.

Jimmy Mitchell tallied on runs of 26 and 16 yards for Grady, while Terry Kirkwood booted three PATs.

Levelland Rallies Past Caprock 16-7

LEVELLAND (Special) — Level-land evened its season record at 2-2 with a fourth-quarter, come-from-behind 16-7 victory over Amarillo Caprock here Friday night.

Levelland had taken a 6-0 lead in the first quarter as fullback Terry McMillan ran up the middle for 28 yards with 7:15 showing on the clock. Rob Williams' PAT kick was wide.

Caprock came back in the third quarter to take a 7-6 lead with fullback Lloyd Monroe going in from 6 yards out with six minutes remaining in the period and Thomas Jones' PAT kick gave the Longhorns the lead.

But with 9:21 left in the contest, Levelland's Jack Jordan booted a 32-yard field goal to put the Lobos ahead 9-7.

Williams capped the scoring for the night on a quarterback keeper over right tackle for a 15-yard scoring jaunt to climax a 46-yard, five-play drive. Jordan then tacked on the PAT.

McMillan led the way for Levelland in the rushing department with 117 yards on 16 carries.

Caprock, now 1-3 for the year, finished with eight first downs, 141 yards rushing and 42 passing. Levelland had seven first downs, 179 yards rushing and 46 passing.

Caprock was hampered by three fumbles in the contest.

Munson Receives Belated Treatment

NEW YORK (AP) — Catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees took stitches on the middle finger on his right hand after cutting it in a clubhouse mishap earlier this week, the team said Friday.

Munson was treated at Lenox Hill Hospital for the cut which occurred when he pushed through a glass window as he was leaving the clubhouse sauna.

Munson played Thursday night and collected two hits in the Yankees' 3-1 victory over Toronto.

CTK Fights Past New Home

NEW HOME (Special) — Christ the King rebounded in the second half here Friday to take a hard-fought 21-13 victory over the New Home Leopards.

The visiting Trojans had trailed 13-7 at intermission.

The win raised the Trojan record to 3-1, while New Home, tasting defeat for the first time, is also 3-1.

Panthers Win 53-28

GUTHRIE (Special) — Witharral raised its season record to 3-0 here Friday night with a 53-28 victory over Guthrie.

The Panthers picked up 15 points in the opening quarter of the contest, then added 12 in the second frame for a 27-0 halftime lead.

Witharral then put 14 points on the scoreboard in the third quarter and 12 more in the final stanza.

Guthrie scored all 28 of its points in the fourth quarter.

Guthrie fell to 0-3 for the season.

Jimmy Durham, who led Trojan ball carriers with 99 yards on 21 sorties, started the night's scoring by scampering 17 yards in the first quarter, Randy Kitten followed with the extra point.

But wingback Tracy Smith retaliated later in the period, turning a reverse into a 70-yard TD.

The Leopards dialed long distance again in the second stanza. This time Isiah Robertson broke free for a 68-yard scoring run. The PAT by Jimmy Estrada made it 13-7.

The Trojans won it with two third quarter touchdowns by Steve David on runs of 3 and 10 yards. Kitten converted after each score.

Christ the King picked up 14 first downs to nine for New Home, but the Leopards won the yardage battle. Paced by Robertson, with 138 yards, and Smith, with 130, New Home rushed for 254 yards. The Leopards added 53 through the air.

Christ the King totaled 212 yards rushing and 24 via the pass.

Estacado Meets MHS Plainsmen At Lowrey Field

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Louis Kelley just kept staring into space while answering questions during a recent interview.

No Kelley wasn't trying to see into the future and find the outcome of the Monterey game this afternoon. The Matador mentor was looking beyond.

And while Kelley was trying to find the answers in his crystal ball, Monterey coach James Odom was thanking his opponent for finding something nice to say about his football team.

Anyways, Kelley will be able bring the future into focus, and Odom will find out if his player have lived up to Kelley's praise when the Matadors battle the Plainsmen in Lowrey Field today. Kick-off is slated for 2 p.m.

"We felt before the season got underway that if we could end our non-district season at 2-2 and without any damaging injuries that we would be in good shape," said Kelley.

The Matadors will take a 2-1 mark into the kickoff. So is Kelley conceding the game?

"No," said the Matador coach. "We want to win it. But right now, I'm trying to look into the heavens and see if we're going to have any injuries after this contest is over."

Monterey will bring a 1-1-1 slated into the Lowrey Field battle.

Odom was happy with his team's preparation for the game.

"We've had one of the better weeks of practice," said Odom. "Except for Wednesday. That was a fair day—fair as in South Plains fair."

Odom compared Estacado to previous foe Wichita Falls Rider. Rider beat Monterey earlier this season 17-0.

"Estacado like Rider is very explosive," said the Plainsmen mentor. "Both are very explosive and can score from anywhere on the field at anytime. Kelley is expecting Monterey to play basic football. Well, almost. Bruising, pounding basic football."

"They (Monterey) don't have to rely on finesse like us, because they are a big and strong team," said Kelley. "Monterey likes to drive the football down your throat."

However, Kelley did find a weakness in the Plainsmen offensive attack this year.

"Their (Monterey's) passing game hasn't been as good as in the past," said Kelley. "But coach Odom would agree with me on that."

So, what's been the problem with the Plainsmen passing attack?

"Our timing has been fine," said Odom. "We've just been dropping the ball. I guess the ball has been hitting our receivers in the worst place—their hands."

Odom believes Monterey will have to control the ball for the Plainsmen to win the game.

"If we can avoid allowing the big play by Estacado, then we'll be in good shape," said Odom.

But controlling the football will be the only way Monterey will be in good shape, because physically, the Plainsmen are hurting.

Injuries to all three Plainsmen fullbacks has forced Odom to shuffle his line-up.

In regard to the fullback spot, Dwayne Smith will miss the tilt because of back problems, and Bevins is being bothered by an ankle and Jeff Lewis has a wrist-knee injury.

Therefore, Ricky Pinkerton will move into the fullback spot, while Jorge Garza will play tailback. Todd Hunt will start as the Monterey quarterback.

"The kids are ready, I know that," said Odom. They know that this is a big intracity game. They know they better be ready, because they know Estacado is."

And when Kelley was asked if the Monterey-Estacado game was turning into a rivalry, the Matador coach smiled and said, "Everybody wants to beat Monterey. Only trouble is, not very many of us have been able to do it."

New Deal Blasts Roughnecks 34-0

NEW DEAL (Special) — The New Deal Lions seemingly had a perfect game Friday night, tallying 266 yards on the ground and 116 in the air for a 34-0 win over the Sundown Roughnecks.

Lion split end Martin Adams put the first points on the board early in the game when he nabbed a 49-yard TD pass from quarterback Kelly Howell. The extra point was kicked by Howell.

Also in the first period, a two-play, 49-yard drive was capped with a 23-yard Howell run to put another 6 on the board. One more was added on the quarterback's extra point kick.

The last first period score was on a 1-yard run by Lion tailback Tony Howell and the following PAT. The only TD in the second quarter was when New Deal tailback Tommy Thiel ran over from the 2-yard line. The extra point failed.

After a scoreless third period, Thiel went over again on an 11-yard run with 9:51 left in the game. The score, and extra point, capped an 80-yard rive in 10 plays.

Whitefaces Lose To Canyon

HEREFORD (Special) — Fullback Robert Johnson ran for a touchdown and Eddie Clements kicked a field goal, all in the second half, to boost the Canyon Eagles to a 10-0 win over the Hereford Whitefaces Friday.

Johnson, the game's leading rusher with 97 yards on 16 carries, scored from a yard out in the third quarter. Clements' successful extra point gave the Eagles a 7-0 lead.

Then, with about a minute left in the game, Clements booted a 28-yard field goal to ice the victory.

The win kept the District 1-AAA Eagles undefeated with a 2-0-1 record. Hereford, of District 4-AAAA, is now 1-3.

ground and 116 in the air for a 34-0 win over the Sundown Roughnecks.

Lion split end Martin Adams put the first points on the board early in the game when he nabbed a 49-yard TD pass from quarterback Kelly Howell. The extra point was kicked by Howell.

Also in the first period, a two-play, 49-yard drive was capped with a 23-yard Howell run to put another 6 on the board. One more was added on the quarterback's extra point kick.

The last first period score was on a 1-yard run by Lion tailback Tony Howell and the following PAT. The only TD in the second quarter was when New Deal tailback Tommy Thiel ran over from the 2-yard line. The extra point failed.

After a scoreless third period, Thiel went over again on an 11-yard run with 9:51 left in the game. The score, and extra point, capped an 80-yard rive in 10 plays.

SCRIMSHAW

The scrimshawer, Edward Teak has created a masterpiece in his quality scrimshaw depicting rare birds, mammals, reptiles, wildebeest, and many trees. Scrimshaw work has a certain fascination about it, not only because of its highly individual character but also because the art has never become commercialized. The fact that very few examples of it are to be found today outside museums and private collections testifies to its appeal.

Texas Tech-Texas Match Highlights SWC Card

By The Associated Press
 Are the Baylor Bears just setting every body up for a rerun of the 1974 season? The last time Baylor lost its first two games was in the 1974 season. However, they put a package together after the stumbling start and finished 8-3 with their first Cotton Bowl visit in 50 years. Baylor has suffered close losses to Georgia and Kentucky. And the Bears go calling on Ohio State Saturday. Coach Grant Teaff is waiting for the real Bears to fasten their chin straps. The Bears he calls the best talent he has had since he arrived at Baylor. "I'm disappointed in the way we are doing things," said Teaff. "But I still think we can have a good defense."

The Bears are 14-point underdogs to Ohio State. The contest begins at 12:30 p.m. "It would be a challenge to play Ohio State any place on your schedule, but in particular to our team after the two losses and because it our third straight road trip," said Teaff. "I said before the season that we could be a good or great football team. Right now I'd say we are a good team. The difference between good and great is being able to do what it takes to win." All eyes in the southwest will be on the Southwest Conference clash between the sixth-ranked Texas Longhorns and the scrappy Texas Tech Red Raiders in Lubbock.

Tech Coach Rex Dockery said Ron Reeves, who engineered the Red Raiders' 42-26 come-from-behind victory over Arizona, will start against the rugged Texas defense. Texas Coach Fred Akers will likely start either Randy McEachern or Mark McBath but freshman quarterback Donnie Little will be on call. "You'll start seeing more of him," said Akers after Texas struggled to a 17-3 victory over Wyoming last week. Oddsmakers rate Texas a 14-point favorite over the Red Raiders, who scared Southern California before falling 17-9 in their opener. A sellout crowd of 50,000 plus was expected for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

In other intersectional games involving SWC teams, Texas Christian was a three-touchdown underdog to unbeaten Penn State on the road; Houston was a six-point underdog at Florida State; Arkansas was a three-touchdown pick over Tulsa; Louisiana State was a four-touchdown nod over Rice in Houston; and Texas A&M was a 17-point nod over Memphis State. The TCU clash gets underway at 12:30 p.m.; the Aggies kick off at 1:30 p.m.; Arkansas plays at 2 p.m.; the UH-FSU game has a 6:30 p.m. start and LSU and Rice match up at 7:30. The SWC is 9-7 against outside competition. The league was 14-6 after three weeks last year when it went on to lead the nation in non-conference winning percentage. Arkansas is second-ranked and the Texas Aggies are eighth-ranked, giving the SWC three teams in the Top Ten poll.

TCU Ready To Hogtie Matt Suhey

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — What makes Penn State football tick might be spelled "Suhey" — and that's no hog call. Matt and Paul Suhey are the current members of a family that has built a football tradition in one of the nation's most powerful gridiron dynasties. Matt, a 211-pound junior fullback, and Paul, a 226-pound senior linebacker, are two of the main reasons that Penn State, ranked No. 5 nationally, is 4-0 this season with the longest winning streak (12) among the nation's major colleges. The Suhey brothers are expected to be the keys offensively and defensively as Penn State entertains Texas Christian (1-1) Saturday. Matt is leading the team in rushing this year with 330 yards in 87 carries. He also ranks ninth on the all-time Penn State rushing list with 1,455 yards. Paul, who calls the defensive signals for the Nittany Lions, ranks second on the team in tackles with 27 in the four games. "The boys have been just great people, but that is what you would expect if you knew their family," said coach Joe Paterno. "I'm just sorry that Steve isn't alive to see the success they are having and how much their teammates respect them." Steve is the father who died last winter of a heart attack. He was an All-American guard on the Lions' 1948 Cotton Bowl team. The Suhey's maternal grandfather, Bob Higgins, was Penn State's coach for 18 years until he retired in 1948. Matt and Paul's older brother, Larry, was a Penn State fullback in 1975-76, and the three played on the team together in Larry's final season. "We really don't compete against each other," Paul said. Paterno said Matt "has everything it takes to be an All-American. He has speed, strength, quickness, blocking ability, a knack for making people miss and the ability to catch the football. He is a great back."

CANYON (Special) — Hoping to snap a two-game losing streak, the West Texas Buffaloes will host Wichita State here. The game, set for 7:30 p.m. at Kimbrough Stadium, will be the Missouri Valley Conference season opener for Wichita State. West Texas opened MVC play on a sour note last week, falling to Southern Illinois 17-3. The Buffaloes enter the contest with a 1-3 season mark. Wichita State, which opened the season with sparkling 20-10 win over Oklahoma State, stands 2-1, with their only loss a 16-14 setback by

New Mexico. Leading the Buffalo charge is all-American fullback Bo Robinson. Last week against SIU, the Lamesa product gained over 100 yards. It was the first time this season he's been over the century mark. "With his ankle problems," explained head coach Bill Yung, "I'm afraid 100-yard games will be the exception rather than the rule this year (for Robinson). Robinson picked up 111 yards on 23 carries against SIU. He now owns the WT school record for most career rushing attempts—543, four more than Mercury Morris' 539. Only 191 yards separates Robinson from the MVC career rushing mark held by Johnny Bright of Drake.

Last season, West Texas lost 14-10 to WSU in the season opener and Yung's first game as head coach. The loss was the Buffs' only MVC setback as Yung's crew went on to win the league title.
