In theory, any baptized Catholic male is eligible for the papacy — he may even be married, if he is willing to install his wife

But the last pontiff elected from outside the Sacred College of Cardinals was chosen in 1294 but reigned only five months before abdicating, the only pope in history to resign.

Aides said the name of Turin Archbishop Anastasio Bellestreto was one of the most frequently mentioned as the cardinals compared notes during a weekend retreat in the hills overlooking Rome.

Bellestreto, 65, was a protege of the late Pope John XXIII and was expected to be named a cardinal at the next consistory had Pope Paul VI lived.

With one week left before they cast their first secret ballot, Vatican sources said most cardinals were at a loss for a clear-cut candidate.

'The Cabinet that President Carter calls 'superb' is rated only average on the whole by most government officials and private citizens who work closely with it." the magazine reported.

"A handful of top-ranked members evoke descriptions such as 'remarkarespected..., extraordinarily bright. More common, however, are reactions such as 'a flunky..., abrasive..., lightweight."

U.S. News said it interviewed more than 100 people including White House aides, members of Congress and their staffs, career officials and citizens who deal with the government.

Using the interviews, it rated each Cabinet member on a scale of one to 10: · Defense Secretary Harold Brown, 8.5, "considered knowledgeable, organized, tough, loyal to the president, but has a cold personality and is not entirely trusted by Congress." · Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, 8.0, "tactful, hard working, respected, patient ... sometimes too cautious, lacking imagination, not forceful."

· Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. 6.0, "knows farming, good congressional contacts, affable ..., fights White House policy ..., a lax administrator."

. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, 5.5, "good ties with Carter ..., personable, pragmatic, sincere ..., (but) unpopular in the West, is seen as too close to environ-Yadin said the Cabinet discussed the situation in Lebanon, which he called 'very grave."

'At the moment there is a cease-fire and we hope it will be kept," Yadin said. "We are glad the cease-fire was achieved."

NOAA Announces Study Of Jupiter

WASHINGTON (AP) - Scientists at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration say they're planning a close-up study of mysterious pulses of radiation from the planet Jupiter.
The mission, the Jupiter Orbiter-

Probe, will be the first attempt to orbit the planet and penetrate its atmosphere. The two-part space vehicle will begin its three-year voyage toward Jupiter in late 1981 or early 1982.

Dr. Donald J. Williams, director of the NOAA research team, said the experiment will try to determine what causes periodic fluctuations in energy radiated by the planet's magnetic field. The pul-ses occur every 9.9 hours, and Jupiter is the only known planet with such pulses.

Though the inner circle of ministers known as the Ministerial Committee on Security Matters is formally in charge of the negotiations, Dayan will head the delegation and Weizman is to join him in the rut's Christians emerged cautiously from their basement shelters for the first time in 10 days Sunday as a Syrian-Christian cease-fire appeared to be holding, except for an isolated outbreak of sniper fire.

"They just can't beat us," said a Christian militia commander. "They tried two ground assaults before the cease-fire and we pushed back both of them.

Political leaders in this half-Moslem, half-Christian nation were skeptical about the chances for success of the truce, declared Saturday, unless the talks between President Elias Sarkis and Syrian President Hafez Assad in Damascus produce an overall agreement. The city was reported dark and quiet at midnight Sunday Beirut time.

Beirut police estimated that 1,300 Lebanese were killed and more than 2,000 wounded in the 10 days of fighting. The Syrians have not reported their casual-

The cease-fire was marred only by shooting at the Qarantina Bridge on the northern approach to Beirut's Christian sector. Witnesses said the gunfire broke out as long lines of cars carrying hundreds of Christian families tried to cross from the city to safer areas northeast of the capital. After the flurry of firing, all main crossroads between Moslem and Christian sectors were closed.

Reporters touring the Christian sector said morale was high despite the withering artillery and rocket barrages of the past week, but few Lebanese were optimistic. During the 1975-76 civil war between the Christians and an alliance of leftist Lebanese Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas, numerous cease-fires were called, only to break down again.

The Moslems and Palestinians have been staying out of the current Syrian-Christian confrontation. The Syrians, who make up the bulk of the Arab League peacekeeping force that halted the civil war, are trying to disarm the Christians and are unhappy with the alliance the Christians have formed with Israel in southern Lebanon.

"We've seen enough cease-fires break down not to take chances," said Fuad Farah, a travel agent in charge of a basement bunker for 25 families.

Witnesses reported the Syrians were not allowing supply vehicles into the city's Christian enclave from the Christian region of northern Lebanon. The bridge links with the north remain in Syrian hands despite repeated assaults last week by militiamen. A Syrian commander scorned the bravado of the Christian fighters, telling a reporter, "If we want to wipe them out of existence, it would only take our armed forces 48 hours to do it. But we don't want a massacre '

"If we do not reach an agreement here, no one will," Assad told reporters in Damascus Saturday night. "We shall continue to try even if it takes us 10 sessions."

The remark was a blow to some Christians who hope the conflict will be settled cus but by an international effort. Some Christians hope the United States or troops to disengage the Syrians and Christians in Beirut.

Some rightist groups, including those led by former President Camille Chamoun, want a complete Syrian withdrawal from Lebanon. But leftist and even conservative Moslem politicians have called for a continued Syrian presence and a renewal of the Arab League peacekeeping mandate, which expires later this month. They believe the civil war would start up again immediately following any Syrian

"The next step can only be the full withdrawal of all Syrian troops, because it is impossible for the Syrians to stay here after they have almost destroyed

Sources said the Sarkis-Assad talks involve an overall settlement of the Lebanese conflict, including the formation of a new Cabinet to introduce political reforms that would redistribute power in the country on an equal basis between Christians and Moslems, Christians always have dominated the Lebanese government and army.

Nearly every building in the Christian sector of the city has suffered some damage. Many streets are nearly impassable because of the rubble. The district has been without water and with only occasional electricity for a week, but the shel-

Prisoners Weakening In Huntsville Strike

HUNTSVILLE (UPI) - A non-violent sit-down strike at the maximum security unit of the state prison Sunday showed signs of weakening with only 108 of the original 400 inmates still refusing to return to their cells.

The strike, now in its fourth day, involves inmates at the Ellis unit of the prison and is in support of lawsuits filed by prisoners against the Texas Department of Corrections.

The lawsuit seeking better conditions and treatment for prisoners is being

The strike began Thursday at the Ellis and Darrington units with workers refusing to return to their cells.

At the Darrington agriculture unit, three of 209 prisoners received minor injuries when they began moving toward guards in one of the fields. TDC spokesman Ron Taylor said the guard fired two shots to stop the advance, one in the air and one at the ground. Taylor said the three injured inmates were hit by richocheting buckshot and gravel. The prisoners then agreed to return to their cells but do no more work. At the Ellis unit, Taylor said 108 inmates were in the south exercise yard.

He said there had been no violence and no destruction of property. About 300 convicts returned to their cells Saturday, leaving the 108 to maintain the strike. The convicts have gone without food, and the minimal amount of water provided the protestors was shut off when most of the inmates returned to their cells. Taylor said.

A spokesman for the inmates was quoted as saying the strike would continue until they saw some "definite differences" at Ellis. Taylor said the strike had not affected operations at Ellis. The strikers' complaints are generally those of the federal suit being tried - alleged lack of communication, brutality, inadequate legal assistance and inferior medical services. The state disputes the

Taylor said 339 prisoners at the Ramsey Unit south of Houston also refused to work Friday, but went to their cells without incident.

The total number of prisoners involved in the disruptions at the units - 956 represents about 4 percent of the total population of 25,000.

Reporter Under Kirbo Scrutiny

ATLANTA (AP) - Presidential adviser Charles Kirbo says he is conducting a personal investigation of syndicated columnist Jack Anderson and has been turning over his findings to the FBL

"I've got a good case against him (Anderson)," Kirbo said in an interview published Sunday by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. "I have yet to decide what to do with it."

Anderson said Kirbo's personal investigation was an attempt to discredit him.

On Sept. 26, Anderson published a column in which he said he had discovered that some of the documents used in preparing his earlier columns had been reconstructed" by his sources.

The documents had implicated Kirbo and another Carter aide, Hamilton Jordan, in the Vesco affair. Anderson said his own suspicions and investigative work led to the discovery that the documents were not authentic

In the Journal-Constitution Interview, Kirbo said he had "positive proof" that Anderson actually learned of the reconstruction from a woman who contacted one of Anderson's investigators.

Israel To Maintain 'Indirect' Aid To Lebanon's Christian Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) - Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Sunday that Israel will continue to provide arms and "indirect help" to Christian forces in Lebanon, but he ruled out direct Israeli involvement in the fighting there.

Dayan said he hoped the cease-fire in the fighting between Syrian troops and the Christians will hold, but added, "It is not our country and I can't say what settlement should be obtained.

get a chance next month to vote whether their state should give away to homesteaders some 30 million acres of stateowned land - a hunk larger than Pennsylvania.

Resident Alaskans could claim chunks of up to 160 acres, but the proposal has substantial opposition, including that from both gubernatorial candidates who say it would cause a gigantic land rush.

And the state Supreme Court - which ruled last week that the initiative could appear on the Nov. 7 ballot - makes clear the decision was not based on the proposal's merits but was intended simply to prevent a two-year delay on the

The court said the issues are so complex that it could not issue a ruling on the merits of the proposal before election

The reason behind the initiative is the small amount of private land in Alaska. Only 1 percent of Alaska's 375 million acres is in private hands. The rest belongs to the state, the federal government and corporations set up to handle claims by Alaska's Eskimos, Indians and

Superior Court Judge Mark Rowland said the initiative was defective because it violated the equal protection clause of the constitution by favoring long-term residents.

He also said it amounted to an "appropriation," which under the state constitution cannot be decided by a voters' initiative. He said land as well as money fits the definition of "appropriation."

Despite the benefits many residents stand to gain, it is by no means clear the initiative will pass. Republican Gov. Jay Hammond and his Democratic opponent, Chancy Croft, both say the measure would make a rational land use plan im-

Opponents also say there is little doubt the courts would strike down the longterm residency requirements, and probably open up free land to persons who have been in the state as little as 30 days.

Proponents of the initiative, led by Dr. Mike Beirne, the state legislator who led the petition drive to get the measure on the ballot, say it would allow Alaskans to share more fully in their state's wealth and would, in general, lower the cost of

The Supreme Court reserved the right to impose limits on the initiative even if it wins voter approval. But backers of the initiative warn they will not give up their fight for land.

The Syrians declared a unilateral ceasefire late Saturday night, and the Christians earlier had said they would abide by a United Nations Security Council call for a cease-fire.

Meanwhile, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said President Carter has been working with various governments including Israel, Syria, the Soviet Union and France in an attempt "to bring about stability ... and a reassertion of the authority of the Lebanese government" in

Mondale appeared on the ABC-TV program "Issues and Answers."

Dayan said the fighting between the right-wing Christian forces and the Syrian army is "an attempt to crush the Christians," and he said Israel is "obliged to extend to them (the Christians) as much help that we can. ...

"I do rule out going into Lebanon with our forces to control Lebanon. That is not really one of our options," he said. "I do not rule out further assistance and aid to the Christians that will help them hold

Dayan said the shelling by Israeli gunboats of a Moslem section of Beirut last week was aimed at a Palestine Liberation Organization naval base and not directed at the Syrians.

But, he conceded, "Maybe ... indirectly it was a signal that we won't hesitate (to) ... send some of our forces to strike ... against the PLO." He claimed the PLO was preparing an attack against Israel, but did not give any details.

The Israeli gunboats, according to Israeli sources in Tel Aviv, fired about 100 shells at the area around a still-unfinished hotel allegedly used as a guerrilla

On another matter, Dayan said the question of sovereignty over the West Bank, Gaza and East Jerusalem will not be decided in the current round of negotiations with Egypt but "only when we discuss the peace treaty" after a five-year interim period outlined in the recent Camp David framework.

On the same subject, Vice President Mondale said Jordan's King Hussein so far has made no decision on whether to endorse the Camp David accords and said he expects Hussein to come to Washington for a meeting with Carter at some point in the near future. He said no date has been set.

South, West Will Have Most Eligible Voters

WASHINGTON (AP) - The South and the West will have the largest share of the nation's voting age population for the first time when voters cast ballots this November, the Census Bureau reported

Out of the 155.5 million people who will be eligible to vote, 50.5 percent come from an area that stretches from Florida, across the Sun Belt and into the Northwest - an increase from 49.6 percent in 1976, the bureau said.

"The attraction of net in-migrants to the South and West at the expense of the northern industrial states during the 1970s accounts for their increasing proportion of the nation's potential electorate," the bureau said.

The bureau defines the South as the area ranging from Delaware and Maryland to Texas. The West is the Far West and the Rocky Mountain states.

The extra voters in the South and West can mean more power for these areas after congressional districts are redrawn after the 1980 census.

The Census Bureau said women will continue to make up more than half of the voting age population, but it did not estimate the number of women who can

The voting age population includes 136 million whites, about 16 million blacks and 3 million persons of other races. About 7 million of all of these potential voters are of Spanish origin. Not all of the 155.5 million eligible voters will be expected to show up at the polls. In the last off-year national elections, in 1974, only 36 percent of the voting age population turned out to vote. In the 1976 presidential election, 52 percent went to the polls.

The Census Bureau reported a big decline in voter participation in the last 16 years, from 63 percent in 1960 to 54 percent in 1976. In the 1976 election, 58.8 percent of the cligible women voted and 59.6 percent of the men. The voter turnouts were 31.8 percent for Spanish origin residents, 48.7 percent for blacks, 60.9 percent for whites. Among age groups the turnouts were 42.2 percent aged 18 to 24, 55.4 percent aged 25 to 34, 63.3 percent aged 35 to 44, 68.7 percent aged 45 to 64 and 62.2 percent over age 65.

Since 1970 the voting age population has grown by 31 million or 25 percent.

Environmentalists say the project threatens a flock of about 70 whooping cranes that roosts at the Platte River in central Nebraska on its migratory route from Texas to Canada's Northwest Territory. The birds are the only remaining whooping cranes other than a flock of four or five which migrates between Idaho and New Mexico, said John Spinks, chief of the U.S. Department of the Interior's Office of Endangered Species. He said the worldwide whooping crane population has risen to its current levels from a low in 1939 of just 14 birds.

Anniversary Exhibit Set For Gallery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The idea of forming a gallery that would display the portraits of notable Americans goes back to the early days of the republic, but only now is the National Portrait Gallery observing its 10th anniversary.

Established by Congress in 1962, it faced the monumental task of assembling a significant collection. Ten years ago this weekend, it moved into a permanent home, and is now observing the anniversary with a variety of exhibitions, lectures and other events.

Through major acquisitions and gifts, this branch of the Smithsonian Institution has grown to a point where it now numbers more than 1,500 likenesses of individuals, ranging from Pocahontas to President Carter. They range from politicians and statesmen through writers, painters, entertainers and others.

There are portraits of all the presidents except Gerald Ford, whose portrait is being commissioned.

A major exhibition that opened recently is called "Facing the Light." It is a show of historic American daguerrotypes of the middle 19th century.

In connection with the anniversary, the Smithsonian Institution Press will publish three books based on its collec-

Subjects and artists include John Singleton Copley's self-portrait; Thomas Nast's satirical portrait of Horace Greeley; John Singer Sargent's oil of Henry Cabot Lodge; and Helen Keller's life mask, by Onorio Ruotolo.

-"A Gallery of Presidents," from the aristocratic portraits of the founding fathers through a pensive Abraham Lincoln and a victorious Ulysses Grant to Jamie Wyeth's pencil sketch of President Carter.

of its first decade. The gallery, in downtown Washington several blocks from the Mall, shares with the National Collection of Fine Arts what contemporary architect Philip Johnson has called "the greatest building in the world."

The Case For Postal Reform

EIGHT YEARS after its creation, the U.S. Postal Service which was intended to be economically self-sufficient and free from political interference instead is entangled in a web of growing deficits, rising labor costs, accusations of inefficiency and ever more frequent rate hikes.

Since 1971, the price of a first class stamp has more than doubled, from 6-15 cents, and other classes of mail have seen similar rate hikes. "If present trends continue," warned the National Journalism Center in Washington in a special report this week, "a first class stamp will cost 36 cents by 1984."

These hikes have done little to improve the financial condition of the service. Its operating deficit last year was $687,849,000 notwithstanding a federal appropriation of $1.7 billion (with a "b") added to its other revenues:

THE COUNCIL on Wage and Price Stability calculates that postal workers' hourly compensation has climbed 87 percent since 1971, from $4.28-$8 an hour as of February, while the increase for private nonfarm workers has risen a relatively modest 64 percent in corresponding years to $5.51.

In addition, postal workers now get 4 weeks of paid vacation, 9 paid holidays and 13 days of paid sick leave. Most important, the no-lavoff provision in the postal workers' contract has given them virtually complete

Less than 7 percent of all postal workers quit their jobs in 1972, the NJC points out, compared with more than 26 percent of all workers in manufacturing.

To make matters worse, the service pays skilled supervisory personnel only slightly more than it pays unskilled labor thereby removing the incentive to learn new skills and advance in the organization.

THE LEVEL of modernization in the Postal Service is still extremely low. Much. of the mail is manually sorted by the method developed by Ben Franklin, because of the high cost of the service's new letter-sorting machinery.

Service has suffered because of the new machines, which reject 20 percent of the mail fed into them and missort up to 17 percent of the remainder. Each missort can cause a delay of up to five days.

Then-Postmaster Gen. Elmer Klassen admitted in 1973 the Postal Service "damages five packages for every one (competing) United Parcel Service does," in conceding, 'UPS does a better job, provides a better business we lose on."

Increasingly, the Postal Service faces competition as well from such systems as electronic funds transfer and facsimile transmission-technologies becoming cheaper by the

If present trends continue, the Postal Service stands to lose its 80 percent share of business-related first class mail, the only mail it still delivers at a profit.

AN EDITORIAL:

It's The Public Who Pays

ANY LABOR dispute sooner or later usually has some effect on the public. Usually. it is costly, in time, money or productivi-

Much ado has been made in recent months of a series of strikes involving those involved in the so-called "public service" category, such as firemen and policemen.

In more recent weeks, one could add school teachers and railroad workers to the list. All, directly and almost immediately, involved in the dispute itself.

THOSE IN the public service category have been unusually sensitive to criticism for their actions.

Firemen and policemen in half a dozen cities this past summer not only walked off their jobs, but either stood and watched their cities remain at the mercy of everything from arson-blamed fires to lack of protection from crime.

Even before these "public be damped" stances, we along with other responsible newspapers and a good segment of the public itself, condemned such strikes and urged laws with teeth to either prevent them or punish those who left such vital jobs.

NOW, WE ADD another category to those areas where there would be strict laws, and suitable fines, to prevent the public-indeed the nation-from being left without key

While recognizing that strikes are weapons to force the other side to "come to terms," we also feel that the whole concept is faulty in its thinking as well as implementation.

Usually, those involved in such disputes know that sooner or later an agreement of some sort must be reached. Usually, both sides lose as much or more than what is at stake originally.

The logical question then is why not impose laws-with teeth-forbidding walkouts in those areas where public safety and welfare are involved? And in situations where secondary" strikes, sympathy walkouts and such are involked.

WHILE ANYONE can see the results of firemen and policemen staying away from their posts they have sworn to uphold, those involving teachers and railroad workers may be a bit more ambiguous.

But the end result is the same. Thousands of students not only are deprived of an opportunity to learn, but are given a classic example of how to destroy a nation.

And in the case of the rail workers, areas such as Lubbock and other such cities across the nation suffered because of a more or less localized dispute hundreds of miles away.

We are well aware of the gnawing effects of inflation, of the need for more wages in some areas, of inequities which need to be

But, we think a better way must be found to handle such things without a risk of destroving the very system which makes it all possible in the first place. Certainly, even the most obstinate union members can see their stake in that

Orgy Of Deregulation Arouses Competition

WASHINGTON-The great success story of the Sen. Kennedy estimates there are 14,000 regu-American economy in the past 12 months has been written by the nation's airlines.

As noted previously in this space, the latter part of 1977 saw a decisive upturn in the financial condition of the airlines.

In its summary of corporate profits through the first half of the year. Business Week reports that airline earnings increased an average of 91 percent for the quarter, and a whopping 174 percent for the six-month period. The reasons for this dramatic turnaround can be summed up in a single word: Deregulation.

AFTER DECADES of operation on a cartel basis that held prices above their market levels and drove away potential customers, the airlines in recent months have experienced the heady stimulus of competition.

The Civil Aeronauties Board, in a sharp reversal of previous form, has been encouraging price competition. The result has been an orgy of farecutting, a rise in the number of customers, and instant prosperity for all concerned.

People and groups as diverse as Sen. Edward Kennedy on the left and the American Conservative Union on the right have embraced the cause, helping create an atmosphere in which a move toward greater competition became politically

NOW THIS unusual coalition is trying to work its magic with other forms of regulated transit—specifically, the trucking industry.

In many respects, of course, the trucking industry.

try is sharply different from the airlines: It is a low-cost entry business, marked by extreme diversification rather than by concentration.

lated trucking companies and 100,000 independ-ent truckers who are not directly regulated by the Interstate Commerce Comm Yet despite the structural differences, Federal regulation has managed to produce results in the realm of trucking that are strikingly similar to those attained among the airlines.

As a matter of explicit policy, the ICC encourages collusive price-setting among trucking firms through so-called rate bureaus.

This arrangement is backed by collateral measures such as complex entry requirements, use of regulatory review to block requested rate decreases (weakened a bit by recent legislation), monopolistic apportionment of routes, and requiring trucks to make return trips empty.

The effect of these procedures, according to Prof. Thomas Moore of the Hoover Institution, has been to hold freight rates at 20 percent or more above their normal market levels

COMPARING REGULATED rates to those in areas exempt from regulation, Moore estimates that ICC directives resulted in shipping overcharges of $1.92 billion in 1968. Furthermore, an additional $1 billion in unnecessary charges resulted from limitations on so-called backhauls. In 1977 dollars, the equivalent overcharge would come to $4,63 billion. The ACU and other conservatives, meantime have been evolving a piece of legislation which would move truck and related transportation services toward deregulated status over a six-year

DENVER-The possibility that the White House and Democratic party leaders have guessed wrong on the pivotal issue of tax reduction is raised by grim re-election prospects for liberal Democratic Sen. Floyd Haskell.

The consensus here is that Haskell has been dropping for five months and either trails Rep. Bill Armstrong, his conservative Republican foe, or soon will. The just-published Denver Post poll shows an eight-percentage-point Armstrong lead among probable voters. Raw figures give Haskell a fourpercentage-point lead but only 41 percent; less than 50 percent at this stage usually spells defeat for an incumbent. The national significance: no Republican has

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Danger's

MADRID-Bullfighting has staged a comeback here. For years it languished-but television saved the bullrings.

Instead of about 300 spectacles a year, Spain now produces double that number. More than 300 bullrings are in use. Favorite matadors make up to $300 per minute.

And at least 20 million Spaniards (36 million population) are glued to their television sets, murmuring the traditional words matadors say at the lip of the ring before entering: "Que Dios re-parta suerte (May God-divide the luck)." Here you are told that to understand this country you must understand the bullfight. This is true; a claim that is a subtlety but not an exaggeration.

BUT SO DEEP are the roots of the bullfight that no part of Spain's life entirely escapes the implications of this rite. Yet you find no word in Spanish for bullfight. The bull, of course, is a selected savage animal bred to fight. The fiercest breeds are monsters and can come through the toril gate toward the matador at racehorse speed-half a ton of muscle and fury. The fight's entire structure depends on two factors: the lure of the matador's scarlet cloth (muleta) and the monster's sight. Lore says: "The hand that kills is the hand that holds the muleta, not the hand that holds the

Some bulls have bad vision. This can make the muleta's scarlet lure erratic, unpredictable and

IN A SPLIT-second confusion the bull lunges at the man instead of the lure. You find here many martyrs of a bull with faulty sight, including Joselito, the greatest matador in this country's his-

In addition, if the bull is in the ring's center, the matador is usually in trouble. Even baby bulls in the pasture show an instinc-tive determination to defend their own particular

Often the monster may draw an imaginary circle within which he is especially aggressive and

Should this be in the ring's center, the matador is farthest from the wall's protective wooden planks (burladeros) and from attendants racing to rescue him should the bull down him.

NEXT, THE MATADOR faces the weather. This country gets sudden, drenching rains, but cancellations are rare—even in downpours.

The matador's slippers are called zapatillas and they are paper-thin. His fighting cape weighs about seven pounds. His sword is heavier than it

The matador is much less sure-footed than the bull in a slick or muddy ring. A downpour can make the matador's world degenerate like a China vase hit by a train. The matador fears the crowd's cry of "Manso!"

friend of Rep. Jack Kemp and an original cosponsor of his bill, Armstrong wants this election to be a tax referendum. Haskell is more than agreeable. He is skeptical even of the Senate's $25 billion tax cut and describes Kemp-Roth as "totally irresponsible. His beautifully crafted 30-minute TV program does not fudge; while pointing to big budget deficits, Haskell declares: "We can't at the same time have a tax cut." Instead, Haskell calls for a balanced budget. That may seem peculiar for a senator whose economy rating by the National Taxpayers Union

Just last year, Haskell warned that a balanced budget now would produce "one of the damndest recessions we've ever had."

HOWEVER EXOTIC for liberal Democrats, vised by party strategists to neutralize Kemp-Roth. But one such national strategist, after studying Colorado polis, told us:

"It's not working for Haskell." His recommendation: "Hit Armstrong as a right-winger."

There is indeed a vivid contrast. Ex-tax lawyer Haskell, 62, a transplanted Jersevite and Harvard man who has not lost his cultivated Eastern accent, is viewed by Republicans as typical of leftish newcomers who have transformed Colorado's Democratic party.

Ex-businessman Armstrong, 41, a native Nebraskan, is derided by Democrats for wearing his evangelical Christianity (he was "born again" four years ago) on his sleeve and is considered typical of Republican rightward drift here.

IN 1970, ARMSTRONG was Republican leader in the state Senate while Haskell was Republican whip in the House.

Haskell's unorthodox Republicanism was in-creasingly challenged by fellow Republicans, and he switched parties the day after Richard M. Nixon's 1970 invasion of Cambodia. In 1972, tapped as the sacrificial Democratic candidate, he defeated the supposedly impregnable Sen. Gordon Allott. Whereas Colorado politicians a decade ago raced for the middle of the road, Haskell and Armstrong exemplify the ideogical polarization of 1978. Abandonment of the center is underscored by contrasting attitudes on the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Addressing an appreciative Rotary Club audience in Fort Collins Armstrong advocated outright abolition of OSHA because "it has done more harm than good."

Haskell's handlers have no trouble finding outrages in Armstrong's record. Newspaper ads attack his votes against funding for senior citizens, handicapped persons and solar energy.

A newly published flyer attacks his votes against ERA, Headstart and congressional ethics. He is a candidate without sensitivity, without a heart," Haskell campaign manager Jean Galloway told us.

ARE COLORADANS all that concerned with sensitivity and matters of the heart? "I'm afraid not," a Democratic national committeeman told us. "Our hope is pollution, not good works."

With the "brown cloud" hovering over Denver, even Republican politicians worry about Armstrong's environmental voting record, especially his support of the auto industry on emission standards at high altitude. It is the heart of Armstrong's strategy that votes on auto emission standards are minor compared with his call for lower taxes. In the first of three non-televised debates, Haskell called Armstrong's proposals "truly, truly dangerous."

Off the stump, he compares Armstrong with the Texas demagogue of 40 years ago, W. Lee (Pass-the Biscuits-Pappy) O'Daniel, who promised "$40 every Monday" for each head of household, then called for his hillbilly band to play when somebody asked where the money would

But wasn't O'Daniel elected governor and didn't he nose out Lyndon B. Johnson for the Senate in 1942?

"Is that so?" Haskell asked. "I didn't know that." A few days later, the Denver Post's poll showed times may not have changed.

JAY HARRIS:

IN CASE YOU haven't heard, it's going to pay to drive more safely on Lubbock's streets. In more ways than one. A long-awaited "crackdown" on the more flagrant traffic violators has been ordered by City officials. It's long past due. A total of 81 persons have perished on City streets in the past 21

Fifty-one of those died last year, the highest per capita toll for any city Lubbock's size in the nation. Thus far this year, 30 more have been killed, only five behind the record pace at this point in 1977.

There is no question but that something had to be done about the carnage on the city's trafficchoked arteries. How that something is handled will determine whether we make a real dent in saving lives, or whether we just chalk up an increase in traffic tickets. There is a difference.

IN ANNOUNCING the new crackdown, aimed at repeat offenders, flagrant violators and drunk drivers, Mayor Dirk West put it this way:

"No gimmicks. No appeals. No clever ideas. The program we are launching is simple-either obey the law, drive right-or you pay the price." Hizzoner added: "If we have to set a world record in the number of tickets we issue, then we'll do it to slow this devastating accident rate...

But, a word of caution is in order about "setting a world record in the number of tickets we is-Lubbock has had traffic crackdowns in the past. Results sometimes have been measured by just such a criteria. Unfortunately, it didn't do much to halt the death toll. Other cities with more

IF WE READ the Mayor and Chief J. T. Alley correctly, the campaign here is to be a selective selective enforcement and fewer tickets had bet-

one, rather than of the scattergun variety. The crackdown will involve not only regular patrolmen, but will include additional officers, financed by two grants from the Texas Office of Traffic Safety, and stiffer fines in the Municipal Courts for the more serious offenders.

The Traffic Safety office part of the program. known as STEP, or Selective Traffic Enforcement Program, will be aimed at high accident locations and at apprehending drunk drivers.

Chief Alley says drinking drivers were involved in "almost half the fatal traffic accidents here in 1977." The one-year STEP program will put more patrols around "the more than 100 locations in the city where alcoholic beverages are legally and routinely available," usually on weekend nights. Alley and West said.

FOR THOSE, including some club people, who think the Mayor and Chief are trying to cut in on their business, a second thought should be in or-

No one is telling anyone how to handle his leisure time-other than don't drink to excess and drive. Just for the record, arrests for driving while intoxicated (DWI) for the first nine months of 1978 already exceed those for all of 1977.

It also should be noted that the careless driver. stone-cold sober as they say, the "hot rodder" and the slowpoke add their share to the traffic statistics. No one is immune when you get in a car or on the streets.

goals of the campaign, if it is conducted as it should be. But, if Lubbock, as some other cities. winds up with a huge "take" from increased traffic fines and the death, injury and damage totals do not drop dramatically, then the whole thing will be suspect in the eyes of the public -which has the most to gain-or lose.

ONE OF THE major problems in traffic safety is that so many people think "it can't happen to

Those who drive daily and for years do not have any sort of trouble often are lulled into the belief that they either lead charmed lives or are excellent drivers, which they may be.

But, traffic experts say that the driver who falls into too set a pattern often is the one who forgets one day and runs the red light he has stopped at for years, or hurries just one time too many or doesn't check a dangerous street corner because he has passed it so many times.

On the other hand, the guy, or gal, he may meet there quite often may be someone who is traveling far too fast, who hasn't the foggiest notion how many yards it takes to stop a car going even the "slow" rate of 30-mph, or who is drinking or who flat doesn't give a damn. Any of the combinations can be fatal.

IT IS ALSO fallacious thinking to assume that because there are fewer drivers at night, the chances for bad mishaps are lessened.

According to the Texas Office of Traffic Safety twice as many fatal accidents happen at night as in the daytime. Poor light conditions not only make it more difficult to see other motorists, pedestrians or animals, it makes it harder for them to see you. Toss in drinking, weariness or carelessness-and again you have a potential fatal formula. Just for the record, in Texas women drivers aren't the worst drivers. The Safety people say that although only 1.1 times as many men as women have Texas driver's license, last year men drivers had five times as many fatal accidents as the now-equal sex. The traffic toll in the nation this year may soar past the 50,000 mark for the first time in five years. That's an average of about 138 a day. Christmas and all it means and New Year's. check full of football games, isn't too far away. Try to be around to enjoy them.

Hayward, from Cambridge, has filed a complaint with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination to protest the higher premiums charged men for life insurance policies.

The commission is trying to determine whether the target of Hayward's complaints, one of the nation's largest insurance companies, is violating a state law which bans sex discrimination in the issuing of credit and delivery of services.

For a $100,000 insurance policy, the 32year-old teacher found he would have to pay $1,434 in premiums the first year. A woman the same age would pay $100 less - a 7.7 percent difference.

The company, New England Mutual Life of Boston, defends the difference in premiums, explaining it is based on solid evidence that women outlive men.

"If there is to be any equity among policyholders, the price of a policy should be lower for a female than for a man because she lives longer," said Donald Sullivan, a company attorney. Sullivan said although men pay more than women for life insurance, women pay more than men for annuities - a form of investment that yields a regular income after a given age.

Debate Focuses On News Views

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A debate between a Third World official and an American advocate of western-style press freedom underscores profound differences in the reporting and distribution of news.

One side of the debate is whether western news media - particularly large news agencies - are shortchanging the Third World in coverage of international news. The other side is the danger that, in attempting to remedy what the Third World ealls "news colonialism," many developing countries will impose tighter government control on the flow of news. A UNESCO-sponsored remedy proposed by the Third World is the "New World Information Order," and was discussed at a debate sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International

Mustapha Masmoudi of Tunisia says the plan "does not aim only to decolonize information - an expression which seems to disturb some nostalgic people - but also, and above all, to balance the flow of information among the various parts of the world."

Masmoudi is co-author of a UNESCO document seeking to establish a pool of Third World news agencies to complement the work of existing "multinational" - western - news agencies. Leonard Sussman, executive director of the New York-based Freedom House, said the UNESCO document, which Cuba and Vietnam helped prepare, is "a threat to free journalism. "Press control, under whatever guise, must inevitably constrict the free flow of information ... the problem I find with it is that it creates a new government-controlled universal standard of journalism." Sussman said The Tunisian official said there was an imbalance in the flow of news and the attention it gave to developing countries.

He said a Third World news pool would not fall under government control. "Nor is the New World Information Order to be a means of governments increasing their hold on information media ... though government control is not as menacing as it may seem." Masmoudi asked if it is fair that major news agencies as UPI and the AP distribute more than 80 percent of the news throughout the world but devote to "developing countries - that is to say, three-quarters of humanity - only about

HEARTLINE: I have been wearing glasses, but lately I have a lot of trouble reading books or newspapers. It seems to cause a lot of strain on my eyes. I have always worn glasses. Do you have any suggestions for me? - N.P.

It could be that the corrective lenses prescribed for you several years ago are no longer effective for all purposes. The focusing ability of our eyes declines as we age, and our reading glasses, particularly, need to be adjusted to this trend.

If your glasses are bifocals or trifocals, adjustments may be required in only one part of the lens. Therefore, you could find it less expensive and more convenient to get a special pair of glasses for a special purpose, such as reading.

It's easier to put on a pair of glasses in which the entire lens area is focused for reading distance. Then you can hold the book or newspaper above eye level, whenever that's more comfortable. Further, you can keep this special pair of glasses by your armchair or bed, or wherever you do your most intensive

In any event, when you consult your optometrist, as the American Optometric Association suggests you do every year or so, it pays to tell him if you read or sew and what your work requires you to do, so he can prescribe your lenses accordingly.

Due to chemical changes within the eye, older people need more light to see effectively. The average 60-year-old, says the American Optometric Association, requires seven times as much light as the average 20-year-old.

Vigilantism Worrying French Lawmen

PARIS (AP) - Once again the call is going out to France to take up arms, but this time authorities wish it would be ignored. A rising crime rate is pushing many Frenchmen toward gun-toting vigi-

Research To Begin On Shroud Of Turin

TURIN, Italy (UPI) - More than 250 made. Church officials said such tests scientists attended a solemn Mass before the Shroud of Turin Sunday - then prepared for a series of scientific tests that may discover whether the strip of linen is truly the burial shroud of Jesus Christ.

The 14-foot-3-inch by 3-foot-7-inch cloth bears the negative image of a bearded man who had been crucified, whipped, stabbed and crowned with thorns.

The scientists, including experts from the U.S. space program, completed their two days of discussions Sunday about the shroud by hearing churchmen describe it as "an authentic document of faith."

Many Roman Catholics have venerated the cloth since the Middle Ages as the shroud used to wrap Christ's body following the crucifixion.

The scientists then attended Mass in front of the mysterious piece of cloth in Turin's San Giovanni's Cathedral, a ceremony marking the end of the first public display of the shroud in 45 years.

It went on display Aug. 27, and church officials said it was viewed by 3.3 million visitors, including 20 cardinals.

They explained the high number of cardinals by noting many were in Italy to attend the funeral for Pope Paul VI and the conclave that elected Pope John Paul I.

Turin Archbishop Anastasio Bellestreto gave the scientists the go-ahead for their tests, saying he favored "any possible opportunity for scientific research" that could lead to the truth about the shroud.

The scientists will be allowed to carry out radiation examination using x-ray and fluorescense studies, take samples of the shroud's surface through the use of adhesive tapes, and even study individual threads of the shroud's linen fiber.

They will not be allowed, however, to carry out Carbon-14 analysis that could conclusively tell when the shroud was

Senate Eyes Unfinished Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate is juggling several balls at a time while going into what leaders hope will be the final week of the 95th Congress.

Adjournment Saturday is no longer certain, although Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia expresses some optimism.

"I still think the 14th is achievable," e said Saturday

The tax cut bill, which Byrd said must be passed before Congress can adjourn, got bogged down during the weekend in debate over controversial and some-times unrelated amendments.

Byrd set a vote Monday on his motion to speed consideration of the bill by pre-venting the introduction of more unrelated amendments and to limit debate. Also planned were two more parts of President Carter's five-part energy pack-age — another matter Byrd said must be settled before adjournment.

Votes were scheduled on bills dealing with energy conservation and utility rate reform. At the end of last week, House and Senate negotiators had not reached agreement on an energy tax bill. Once the bills are passed, they will by sent to the House to join the natural gas pricing act and a measure calling for ndustrial conversion from oil to coal.

The bills are expected to be combined and voted on Thursday.

Unlike the Senate, the House takes off Monday for Columbus Day. No major votes are scheduled prior to Thursday.

On Tues'ay, the House plans to debate 21 relatively noncontroversial bills, with votes posiponed until Thursday.

Debate is scheduled on Tuesday and Debate is scheduled on Tuesday and Wednesday on more important bills, including legislation dealing with public health services, child nutrition programs, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, railway safety, and local rail assistance.

Major appropriations bills for the 1979 fiscal year — the Defense Department and the Health, Education and Welfare Department — await action.

House and Senate negotiators on HEW appropriations have divided over the issue of federal funding for abortions. If the issue is not resolved, HEW funding may simply be continued at fiscal 1978 levels until March.

Defense funding negotiations may end early in the week, but might get into trouble over the abortion issue because of House language barring use of any money for that purposes.

Byrd has come under strong pressure to bring the Humphrey-Hawkins job bill up for a vote in the Senate. The bill, which would set a goal of 4 percent un-employment, has been offered as an amendment to the tax bill by Sen. Gay-lord Nelson, D-Wis., and is set for a vote crime is lower than that of the United States, Britain and West Germany, the cry for "law and order" is getting louder.

Fighting off burglars can be risky. French law strictly limits the defender to using a measure of force equal to the threat. Thus you cannot shoot a burglar unless he is pointing a gun at you.

Nonetheless, this year there have been 10 incidents in which victims killed burglars. Some of the incidents have become rallying points for the growing public outcry over crime.

Legras, a car mechanic in the town of Troyes. After his summer house was burglarized 12 times, he boobytrapped it and posted prominent signs warning that intruders might be killed.

The most famous case is that of Lionel

Burglars broke in all the same, and a time-bombed radio exploded, killing one and wounding the other.

Legras was convicted of manslaughter after a stormy trial in which the surviving burglar sued him for damages. The damage suit was thrown out of court and Legras got off with a suspended sentence, which he is appealing.

Legras was helped by a former judge, 70-year-old Francois Romerio, whose controversial organization Legitimate Defense is seeking law reform that will allow citizens more freedom to defend themselves. It is pressuring the judiciary to take harsher measures against hoodlums, and offers legal aid to citizens like Legras.

An incident that has led to some second thoughts about vigilantism involved pastrymaker Raymond Leroy. He was awakened one hot August night by suspicious noises, fired his gun blindly and killed a 13-year-old boy.

Leroy is free pending trial on charges of manslaughter.

"If we broaden the notion of legitimate defense," writes lawyer Jean-Louis Pelletier, "eventually we will have private justice and militias instead of the judiciary. It will be anarchy."

But such legal niceties seem unable to calm public indignation.

On the French Riviera, gang warfare has killed at least 50 persons in the past four years, including innocent bystanders cut down indiscriminately by hoodlums spraying bars with machine-gun fire. Some bar owners have asked police for permission to keep submachine guns on the premises.

In the Riviera city of Nice last month, burglars broke into an apartment occupied by an 81-year-old woman and her two companions. The intruders ransacked the place and cut the throats of the three occupants.

Citizens wrote to the mayor of Nice informing him that they planned to set up a private militia, and authorities reported an upsurge of inquiries about weapons li-

French law stipulates that a person applying for such a license must satisfy police that he needs the weapon. Obtaining the license is generally not difficult. One consequence of the wave of violence has been growing opposition to a leftist campaign for abolition of the death

Romerio, who keeps a gun in his apartment, told a weekend Legitimate Defense rally in Nancy, 200 miles from Paris: "The hoodlums apply the death penalty without hesitation. When the courts decide to apply it with equal determination, the punks will think twice."

He denounced France's judges for 'laxity" and said his organization, which claims 25,000 members, would run for Parliament on a law-and-order ticket.

Denouncing the existing self-defense laws, Romerio declared: "If you catch a burglar wielding a knife, you can only defend yourself with your bare hands. If you do it with a revolver you will be con-

HOUSTON (UPI) - A week before the scheduled opening of millionaire T. Cullen Davis' murder conspiracy trial, law-yers on both sides are gathering to set the ground rules for case, rules on which the trial may turn once it goes to a jury.

Attorneys for the state and defense were set Monday to begin arguing 83 mo-tions before State District Judge Wallace 'Pete" Moore. The trial is set to begin a week later on Oct. 16.

The motions, filed last week by defense attorneys, ask for everything from a change of venue to a ban on some of the state's key evidence against Davis, who is formally charged with soliciting the murder of the judge presiding in his divorce.

The 55-year-old Moore was expected to deny most of the motions and is reported to take a dim view of defense attempts to muddy the trial. In his 16 years on the bench, Moore has gained a reputation of being a no-nonsense jurist who demands cases before him proceed quickly and properly. Davis, a rich 45-year-old Fort Worth industrialist, is charged with soliciting the murder of divorce judge Joe Eidson in Fort Worth — the judge who was presid-ing in Davis' divorce from his estranged wife, Priscilla.

officers and the PBI tape-recorded and photographed an alleged payoff meeting between Davis and admitted go-between David McCrory who was supposed to deliver money to a fictional "hit-man."

The tape recordings and photographs of Davis and McCrory are among the evidence defense attorneys now hope to idence defense attorneys now hope to have barred from the courtroom when the trial convenes.

The defense contends the recordings should not be admitted because Davis was not informed of his constitutional rights beforehand. They claim transcripts would bolster the state's testimony

Another motion to be heard this week seeks a change of venue in the case, ask-ing that the case be moved back to Davis' hometown of Fort Worth.

Unlike many criminal cases, prosecutors in Fort Worth — not the defense wanted Davis' upcoming trial moved out of that city.

The original change of venue that sent the case to Houston was considered a minor victory for the state, which wanted the highly publicized case out of Tarrant

Prosecutors felt that Davis, who was acquitted of killing his 12-year-old stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn during a sensational trial last year in Amarillo, would draw sympathetic jurors in either Fort Worth or Amarillo. In that trial, Davis was accused of a shooting spree at his $6 million Fort Worth mansion in which his wife's lover. Stan Farr, also was killed and his wife and a family friend wounded. Defense attorneys Richard "Racehorse" Haynes and Phil Burleson pleaded with Judge Tom Cave, who re-moved himself from the change of venue hearing because his name was included on an alleged Davis hit list, and then with Judge Arthur Tipps to keep the trial in Fort Worth.

Haynes also wants to question individually each prospective juror, a procedure that is automatic only in capital murder

Five motions were requested sealed to avoid any pre-trial publicity.

On Saturday, negotiators met for a 'ground-work' session in an attempt to clarify the complicated technical matters relating to the issue of the pressroom manning

The 1,600 pressmen went on strike on Aug. 9, shutting down the Times, News and Post over the posting of work rules that would have reduced their number by about 40 percent.

The Post, which published Monday through Saturday before the strike, put out more than 1 million copies of a 256page edition Sunday.

Post officials have said the paper will continue to publish seven days a week until at least the end of the strike against the other two papers.

Legionnaires Disease Breakthrough

NEW YORK (AP) - It begins with a routine call from a Brooklyn doctor who is treating two brothers, one with a blinding headache, the other with a dry cough, both with high fever.

A third brother is also hospitalized with fever and congested lungs, and Dr. Ste-phen Seligman is calling health authorities to report a suspicion that his two pa-tients have one of the country's most feared illnesses: Legionnaires disease.

That diagnosis will send a batalion of health professionals into exhausting but exhilerating warfare against an unseen enemy. Their awesome task is to locate a freakish organism somewhere in the nation's largest city, plumbing elusive clues from the blood and desperately searching for common elements in the victims

They draw blood from a thousand veins, store it in a thousand test tubes, conduct a thousand sets of analysis. They check on 75,000 workers at Manhattan's center. They call scores of hospitals dai-

It strikes men and women, young and old, sapping their strength as it drives their temperatres to dizzy heights and floods their lungs. It claimned 29 lives at the American Legion's 1976 convention in Philadelphia, gaining a name and a reputation for virulence.

Treatment early enough with the right antibiotic can help, and Seligman's patients survive this way. Their brother

This war against the mystery disease goes on, but now there is time to chronicle the battle. It starts with Seligman's call on Monday, Aug. 28.

On Wednesday, investigators question the brothers, learning that they do not work together but live in the same room-

A second team finds that the rooming house in the Bedford - Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn has construction nearby - a possible home for the airborne organism that causes the disease. And they discover that the dead brother lived three blocks away.

The team also learned that if the brothers didn't work together, they did work in the same part of Manhattan, its teem-

Chief city epidemiologist Dr. John Marr informs Dr. Les Cordes of the national Center for cords, tabulating, analyzing, plodding. Disease Control, which found the organism following Philadelphia's epidemic.

Earlier that day, Cordes had a call from nother New York doctor suspicious one of his patients has Legionnaires disease. When Cordes tells Marr this man also works in the garment center, they conlude the rooming house has been a red herring and that they were now faced with the likelihood of epidemic in the cits crowded garment center.

"It was about 5:30 when we realized something was going on," Marr recalls

With the Labor Day weekend under way, Marr and deputy call about a dozen hospials in search of more possible cases.

None turns up On Labor Day, Marr and three others scout the garment center. "We were looking for things like overt construction or demolition, something out of the ordinary, but nothing stood out," he explains. Later that day, Cordes arrives to begin directing a survey of buildings in which the patients worked, and that night the man at Bellevue dies. An autopsy shows the disease claimed his life.

Now, two cases are confirmed, each from the garment center. Cordes survey focuses on 155 W. 35th

St., where there are a number of a consequences from pnemonia - like symptons. Someone there volunteers that he has been treated for Legionnaires disease weeks earlier. A radio station gets wind off the story at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday but is persuaded to withhold any broadcast until a press release is readied. Fifteen minutes later, Marr relates, "the (expletive deleted) hit the fan."

Television stations and newspapers send reporters, telephones ring wildly and Marr keeps explaining his belief that statistics, albeit mounting, warrant no

When he finally gets home at 10 p.m., Marr is told to call Mayor Edward Koch, who has learned about the outbreak on

"He was very calm and very interested and asked what should be done," Marr says. They arrange the first of what become daily briefings for 8 o'clock the next morning.

Media attention is riveted on the outbreak, and Marr appears with Koch at a news conference. The establishment of a 'hotline" is announced and the mayor orders distribution of a "fact sheet."

Federal experts who work for the Center for Disease Control are summoned from other cities. They fan through the area interviewing workers and drawing blood to detect past exposure of the dispartment workers, and the pace becomes almost chaotic.

When the cots and blankets came it was on our minds that this was a concerted war effort," epidemiologist Laura Kreitzer-Andurer recollects, "War" no-twithstanding, adds one health official, " It was almost fun."

By Thursday, Sept. 7, it is decided that something has to be done to fight the mysterious disease openly, if only to ease public fear.

Little is known about the disease except its association with water like that in air conditioners and its probable vulnerability to changes in environment. Garment center water tanks are drained, air conditioners turned off and nearby streets and subways scrubbed.

The survey expands as far has 39th Street, and business with maybe 75,000 workers eventually are queried by telephone. A total of 983 blood samples are accumulated in the district, and 17,000 callers are handled on the hotline

Dr. David Fraser, who ran the sleuthing in Philadelphia, arrives from the Center for Disease Control on Friday. He underscores the need to compare the sickness rate among garment center employees with the rate among other groups of people set up as control groups.

But what groups? Longshoremen work to near water. Fulton Fish Market workers are mostly old Italians, in contrast to the young blacks and Hispanics who predimonate in the garment center

"They were just agonizing decisions," Marr says, noting that the five control groups sought were not definitely picked until Sunday.

The previous Friday, however, other wheels are turning. Health Commissioner Renaldo Ferrer asks city hospitals and his counterparts in surrounding areas to re-assess recent pneumonia admissions and reports suspected Legionnaires cas-

A command post is set up. Officials in shirt-sleeves pore over maps and charts. Pizza arrives. Men literally race.

About 155 follow-up calls to hospitals begin daily reports on pneumonia admission. Of 25 suspected Legionnaires cases turned up this way, a few are confirmed.

It's decided the wholesale food market at Hunt's Point will provide a control group. The mayor and market officials finally agree that the similarity of Hunt's Point's workers to the garment center's outweighs any public fear from somehow linking the disease to food.

For another group, epidemiologist Edward Gelaid must track down leaders of a Brooklyn garment workers union meeting in the Poconos. The others will come from the city's Bureau of Pest Control, a

It will take that, he said, to provide a foundation for the slumping party's planned thrust on the local level in the next four years.

> "I think we're in pretty bad shape overall," said Zavala County's Jose Angel Gu-tierrez, a founder and the acknowledged leader of Raza Unida. "We've gotten a lot of bad publicity with Muniz - harassment by government agencies and the de-nial of federal grants.

"It's not beyond repair. It depends on how well Compean does in the election and if people stop trying to harass us." Asked to realistically assess Compean's chances, Guiterrez paused several moments and said hestitantly, "My loyalty says yeah, he'll get 50 percent plus one."

The county judge also claims the party and Raza Unida county officials were harassed by state and federal agencies.

And as a final indignity, LoVaca Gathering Co. cut off the natural gas supply a year ago to Crystal City, the Zavala County seat, because of an unpaid $800,000 ty seat, because of an unpaid $800,000 debt.

"If anything, all of this has made us more determined," Compean said of the disastrous four-year period in which he was also divorced. "The consensus of the political watchers is that we are on the way down and it will be a matter of time before we die off.

With Briscoe's departure from office, Raza Unida leaders are counting on a more benevolent attitude from the governor's office to help make sure the next four years are not like the past four.

Painter Helped To Uncover Corruption In GSA

WASHINGTON (AP) - Robert Lowry remembers well the day in the spring of 1969 when for the first time he became directly involved in the General Services Administration scandal

Over lunch that day, Lowry, a painting contractor whose business revolves around government contracts, passed $300 to a GSA official to get a $1,000 contract in a government office building - a job that would cost $200 to perform.

"I was shaking like a leaf," he recalls. "I didn't sleep for a couple of nights. I didn't honestly know 'Is it a setup, or

But the anxiety was only fleeting. Fraud and kickbacks became a part of Lowry's business and, he says, the exchanges of money, favors or gifts - directly or through a middleman - came

Since last spring, investigations by the Justice Department and the GSA, the government's chief landlord and supplier, have brought 18 indictments and talk of more to come. GSA Administrator Jay Solomon calls the fraud a "shame to the nation" that may have cost $100 million a year.

Robert Lowry, one of nine children and a second-generation painter who works 12-to 14-hour days, is only a small part of the scandal.

But investigators concede his many single-spaced, three-page letters to congressmen, newspapers, the Justice Department, the GSA, and anyone else who would listen helped bring attention to the fraud. To this date, he is the only "insider" to talk publicly about what one investigator terms the largest money scandal in government history.

During a four-hour interview at his combination home and office near suburban Bladensburg, Md., Lowry tells of an intricate network of fraud and subterfuge as contractors wooed greedy GSA officials with cash, dinners at the best restaurants, $50 bottles of wine, and call

He participated, Lowry says, because that was the only way to do business. But by 1972 the corruption became a source of worry. And the profits, he explains, were "on paper," or still owed him by a general contractor deeply involved in the

The kickbacks, he says, were getting "wide open ... so bad that if you walked into a building manager's office, a secretary would say 'Hello, Mr. Lowry, how much are you going to steal today?'

"I knew she wasn't joking." So he turned honest, he explains, though he did not speak out right away. It was in 1974 when the crunch came that prompted Robert Lowry to turn from reformed con-artist to whistle-blower.

He worked four days to get a lucrative painting contract bid "down to rock bottom," only to come in second. A quiet anger emerges as he recalls seeing the lower bid and quickly realizing it was dishon-

"I refuse to believe covering up fraud when it occurs has any other purpose than to condone it," he wrote. "And, if you would check, it is fraud to bill for that you do not perform. I have been charging for some time that this practice has become flagerent (sic) ...

At one point, Lowry says, he had two lengthy sessions with FBI agents but was not convinced an investigation would result. About that time in 1975, Lowry says, he was told by friends that some of his competitors had sought to have him

He knows of no attempt actually made. But he says that shortly after he testified before a Senate subcommittee last June, his Great Dane died mysteriously. An autopsy showed the dog died of an intake of chemicals, but there is no proof he was poisoned.

Meanwhile, Lowry's business suffered setbacks. The IRS seized it in 1975, claiming he had not paid employee withholding taxes. The equipment was bought by his brother and the two men began anew. And Lowry's letter writing continued.

Human Rights Definitions Vary

WASHINGTON (UPI) - "Human rights" are two words that more than any others embody President Carter's Latin American policy. But what they mean depends on who one talks to - and where.

To some of the more activist architects of the administration policy it means "political rights" as freedom and democracy under a system of government basically patterned after the United States.

Many Latin Americans, particularly those who have been the target of U.S. criticism, see the problem more in terms of such "economic rights" - the right to eat, to work, to have an education and adequate health care.

Abelardo Valdez, the State Department's highest-ranking Mexican American, says both views should be included in the administration's human rights poli-

Hearing Set For Members Of Sub Plot

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) - A federal magistrate in St. Louis has scheduled a preliminary hearing this week for two men accused of plotting to steal a nuclear submarine from its New London

A hearing for Edward J. Mendenhall, 24, and Kurtis J. Schmidt, 22, has been set for Friday. They face charges of conspiring to steal the USS Terpang in a plot that sailors here called "unbelieva-ble" and "ludicrous."

A third suspect, 26-year-old James W. Cosgrove, was arrested Wednesday in Geneva, N.Y., the same day Mendenhall and Schmidt were arrested in St. Louis. A preliminary hearing for Cosgrove, who has been arraigned on one count of conspiracy, also is set for Friday.

While judicial proceedings get underway for the three arrested men, investigators report no new developments in the case. The alleged conspiracy was uncovered last month when Mendenhall and Cosgrove contacted a St. Louis resident about joining them. The men, the FBI said, then contacted an undercover agent, seeking funds for training and supplies.
When the story was released, officials at the Groton, Conn., submarine base scoffed at the chances of success and said the plot would have been doorned from the start.

The FBI said the plot included plans to recruit a 12-man crew to hijack the submarine from its mooring at the Thames River, kill its 100-member crew and head for the Atlantic Ocean where the 292-foot Trepang would be sold to a foreign buyer.

The FBI said the asking price was $200 million but authorities have declined to speculate on who the buyer might be.
"It's ludicrous," said Senior Chief

Yeoman Steven Wade, a spokesman for the naval submarine base, when asked about the chances for such an plot to succeed. "It's just impossible."

Cosgrove had served aboard the sub-marine in 1973, the Navy said, and attended the submarine school in New London. It was unclear about whether the other two men had nuclear submarine expertise.

Their battle cry is a call for "tax justice," essentially an increase in corporate tax collections and a redistribution of the tax burden from lower- and middle-income families, where property taxes hit hardest, to wealthier taxpayers.

A weekend tax conference convened by the National Conference on Alternative State and Local Public Policies revealed frustration among tax officials faced with across-the-board tax cuts along the lines of California's Proposition 13.

That proposal was approved by California voters on June 6 in what many saw as the beginning of a taxpayers' revolt. Conservatives around the country have attempted since then to adopt the issue as their own.

"Tax cutting is not tax reform," says Byron Dorgan, the North Dakota tax commissioner. "Tax limitation has nothing to do with tax justice." Thus, tax observers are anxiously awaiting the November votes in at least 10 states where tax relief measures are on the ballot.

Proposals range from Proposition 13 look-a-likes in Oregon, Idaho and Nevada to measures in Colorado, Arizona and Michigan that would impose limits on revenues or spending.

An initiative that would ease the burden on taxpayers in "Taxachussets" — so dubbed because its property tax rates are among the highest in the nation — earped the most attention at the weekend meeting. That is because it has the backing of liberal labor and community groups — the same groups that opposed Proposition 13 in California.

The Massachusetts initiative would authorize the use of differential tax rates, allowing residential property tax rates to be set lower than commercial rates.

Michael Ansara, head of a citizens' group calling itself Massachusetts Fair Share, said Saturday that the defeat of Gov. Michael Dukakis in last month's Democratic primary was due to his leaf.

Gov. Michael Dukakis in last month's Democratic primary was due to his lack of concern over the tax issue.

After legislative approval this summmer, Dukakis vetoed a Fair Share proposal for a property tax "circuit breaker" that provided relief for homeowners, and Ansara warned the liberal tax activists that "if we attempt to protect the status quo, we will be pushed aside."

While the Proposition 13-style tax approach is on several ballots, the Massachusetts initiative is not the only liberal tax measure up for approval next month.

Black leader Howard Gunn said he thought the KKK was "mad as hell" at Stovall for allowing black demonstrators to hold a rally at the city library.

Ham Jordan Axed From 'Society' List

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The fickle face of Washington society has turned away from presidential aide Hamilton Jordan.

Jordan, who is as close to being a chief of staff as Jimmy Carter has. White House appointments secretary Timothy Kraft, and Dr. Peter Bourne, Carter's former drug abuse expert, all have been dropped from the Green Book, Washington's unofficial social register that brought out in its 49th edition Sunday. Publisher Jean Murray said Jordan and Kraft were axed because the book doesn't include those in the legal process of separation or divorce. Mrs. Murray also mentioned Jordan's "unpleasant notoriety" resulting from an incident in which he allegedly spat a drink down a woman's bodice. Bourne resigned last July after writing a prescription for a sedative to a fictious person.

The Green Book lists the names, addresses and sometimes the phone numbers of Washington's VIPs, and contains a section on the use of official protocol.

U.S. Accused Of Backing Terrorists In Rhodesia

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Prime Minister Ian Smith said Sunday Rhodesia is complying with a plan first offered by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to bring majority blacks into the once all-white government but that the United States instead is supporting "Marxist terrorists" seeking to topple his regime. Smith said if the United States and British governments had supported his "internal settlement" to give blacks the vote and representation in government, the guerrilla war in the former British colony would have ended. The main reason for the failure for the cease-fire is the fact that the American and British governments are supporting the Patriotic Front, the Marxist terrorists, instead of supporting the internal settlement by peaceful peoples to try to bring Rhodesia into the western camp,' Smith said.

Smith is on a one-week unofficial visit to lobby the administration and Congress to support his plan for bringing blacks into the Rhodesian government. The Cart-er administration wants all parties in the civil strife to seek a settlement in a peace conference and opposes the plan Smith said Kissinger sold him in 1976. The administration first opposed issuing a visa to Smith and termed his visit non-official although the prime minister will meet with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and hold talks with senators today. Smith said Kissinger offered the plan to bring blacks into the government in 1976. "That was the first time we accepted the principles of adult sufferage, oneman one-vote," Smith said. "In return we were told the sanctions would be lifted, terrorism would stop and we would be accepted back into the free world. That is exactly what we are doing. In a weekend session the Senate boosted the tax bill to nearly $30 billion.

"We will have about a $20 billion tax cut," Mondale said. "That is our sugges-tion. If it goes higher than that it can bust the budget

"It gets to the point where it starts regniting inflation and thus it becomes an

Mondale appeared on the ABC interview program, "Issues and Answers."

1 "The president has talked about $20" billion and I believe anything beyond that would be very serious and I don't anticipate that one would go beyond that at this time.

The vice president said Carter will soon unveil a bold program to fight inflation that equally balances the burden on busi-ness and labor but without mandatory price and wage guidelines.

Mondale sought to assure AFL-CIO President George Meany and other labor aders who are cautious about the inflafion program that business will not be unduly favored in a program based on voluntary restraints.

"The president is doing everything he can and this proposal that he will be announcing shortly will be a strong, new in-itiative," Mondale said. "And it will be a fair initiative which I think will commend itself to labor as well as business. "An anti-inflation program cannot be one which asks any segment of American society to pay a disproportionate price."

Mondale said the program will be announced soon after Congress adjourns, scheduled for Saturday. He declined any specifics about the program.

Regarding the Mideast, Mondale said Carter personally contacted Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev about supporting a cease-fire in Lebanon. But he said he saw no role for the Russians in settling the dispute between the Israelis and the Palestinians over control of the West Mondale said the administration is

Shah's Police End Riots Across Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Security forces broke up anti-government demonstrations in nine Iranian cities Sunday, a day after a bloody clash between soldiers and protesters in the Caspian Sea city of Bobol reportedly left one person dead and many other injured.

In Tehran, meanwhile, workers at state-run hospitals joined the long list of public employees to strike for higher pay.

There were no reports of injuries in Sunday's demonstrations, most of which involved a few hundred protesters, the Tehran newspaper Ettelaat said. It said the protesters broke some windows and were dipersed by police or troops. The demonstrations occurred in Baneh, Kerman, Shahrekurd, Khramabad, Arak, Sari, Dezful, Zanjan and Lahijan, Ettelaat reported.

One person was killed and "many" were injured Saturday in the street battles between soldiers and anti-government mobs in Bobol, 130 miles northeast of Tehran, the newspaper said. Several hundred demonstrators, chanting antigovernment slogans, rampaged through the city, damaging banks and liquor stores and setting fire to a theater, the paper said.

The military was called in after local police proved unable to control the situation, Ettelaat said. It said soldiers opened fire on the crowds when they refused to disperse. The strike by medical workers in Tehran brought the city's government-operated hospitals and clinics to a near-standstill. New patients were being refused treatment in some instances and food, laboratory and other medical services were under severe strain.

Talks In Baghdad

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - Syria will attend next month's Iraqi-sponsored anti-Camp David summit in Baghdad, it was announced Sunday, indicating possible warmer relations between the two feuding countries.

Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam said Syria ac-cepted an invitation by Iraqi President Ahmed Hassan el-Bakr after consultation with Syria's allies in the Arab "steadfastness and confrontation front."

The invitation was handed to Syrian President Hafeza Assad Saturday by Bakr's personal envoy Tareq Aziz. Aziz also gave an invitation to Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat, who accepted. Relations between Syria and Iraq have deteriorated since 1973 when Syria withdrew its troops from the war with Israel. The countries have squabbled over Ephrates River water rights since 1975. and there is rivalry between the Iraqi and Syrian factions of the Baath Social ist Party, in power in both countries.

Bakr and Assad exchanged letters last week expressing desires to patch up differences. Arafat's presence could mean reconcil-

Woman Plans Reunion With Natural Family

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - When Christina Lawrence was 1 day old, her destitute parents sold her for $400, and now, 26 years later, she is trying to reunite members of a family she has never met.

Mrs. Lawrence, who lives with her three children in Escondido, Calif., contacted the Philadelphia Bulletin three weeks ago in an effort to trace her natural family. The Bulletin reached a sister, Dorothy Miller, and the sisters began planning to reunite all 54 members of the family.

"One minute I have nobody else on the face of this earth, and now all of a sudden, tons of relatives," said Mrs. Lawrence, who is divorced. She said she is saving money for the reunion but no date has been set. Mrs. Lawrence's natural mother died this year, but her father, two grandparents, two brothers, six sisters, five uncles, 15 nieces and 23 cousins are still

Mrs. Lawrence was born in Philadel-Aug. 17, 1952. One day later, her parents sold her for $400 to Marcellus and Vivian Havnes of suburban Linwood, according to court testimony. Havnes worked with Mrs. Lawrence's uncle in a factory.

The same year, Mrs. Lawrence's natural parents tried to regain custody and the case went to Delaware County

Mrs. Burns testified that when Christina was born her husband "had just lost his lob with the cab company the night before and the only money we had was $15 for the rent. I just didn't know where we were going to get money for the kids." The couple had two other children at the time.

The case was tied up in court for 14 months until the judge awarded custody to the Havnes couple, and the county Orphans Court approved the adoption.

Two years later, the Havneses separated and Mrs. Havnes took the baby with her to California. Before she died nine years ago, Mrs. Havnes showed her adopted daughter the newspaper clippings and told her of the court battle. "We've been trying so hard to find her," said Mrs. Miller, 29, who lives in Philadelphia. Mrs. Miller, who was 4 years old at the time, said she "faintly" remembered going to the Havnes home with her grandmother while the custody suit was in progress. "I remember her crib and her room," she said.

Dallas Survives 'Quiet' Texas-Sooner Weekend

DALLAS (UPI) - Many celebrants of area - particularly those who had large, the traditional night-before bash of "Tex- plate-glass windows in their shops as-OU weekend" never made it to the game that was the focal point of the revelry. They were behind bars.

But although almost 200 persons were arrested, a consensus emerged that some of the dubious spirit seemed to have left the traditional pregame raid on the

Ten years ago, police would have arrested some 500 persons before the game even began. Merchants in the downtown were always gravely concerned as the weekend began.

But this year - in keeping with tradition - there still were the traditional shouting, drinking, fighting and traffic jams which long have marked the frivolous antecedent to the Longhorn-Sooner football clash. But the 300 arrests police had predicted failed to occur.

A city jail spokesman Saturday said 199 persons were arrested downtown for ral-

A flashy politician whose style and personality are in sharp contrast to Ariyoshi's unassuming and shy demeanor, Fasi's support was strong among those who felt disenfranchised by the power structure. Fasi promised to do away with the ex-

One of the effects that inflation has had upon the thinking of Americans is that they are now prepared to accept a slower growth of the economy if that would mean that prices would stop climbing.

This position is clear in the findings of a recent Harris Survey of 1,442 adults across the nation. When asked to choose between two economic scenarios:

 Only 9 percent of Americans opted for "an expanding economy that would give you a chance for a higher income would be accompanied by rising inflation and periodic recessions.

Americans have come to the conclusion that there is no way they can benefit individually during a period of high inflation. People are convinced that the best they can expect is a slow but steady increase in their standard of living. And a large majority believes that a key to taking the

The outgoing field director of day camps, Sharon Robertson, said she agreed with Mrs. Preston that "leaders have a wonderful time," because for many of them, "they get to do things they may have missed when they were

Mrs. Preston explained that one reason, in addition to the fun, friends met and skills learned, which made her enjoy belonging and working in Camp Fire, is the organization itself. She said leaders get assistance from directors. The organization offers training to leaders and holds monthly meetings as idea sessions for them. "I feel I'm part of the total organization and I have the people to back me up and help me out. They make themselves available," Mrs. Preston said.

For the children, Camp Fire is a source

Robertson. "We're a youth organization which encourages our members to give service and to develop their many potentials, such as working with people in the community and learning new skills. We want them to develop some sense of who they are and where they want to go and what they want to do."

sis is on greater stability, rather than rap-nomic growth will be "fairer all around."

•Eleven percent feel that slower eco-

Mrs. Rhonda Haralson, newly appointed field director of day camps, said Camp Fire achieves its goal of teaching its youth members skills and developing their potentials on an almost personal level. "We emphasize individuals," said Mrs. Haralson. "We put emphasis on a small group where a child can have more emphasis on his individual development and growth rate rather than on growth of the organization. We are concerned less with numbers and more with quality."

And for those who think Camp Fire only offers this training to girls, they shold look at Mrs. Preston's boys. They were some of the first male members of Camp Fire in Lubbock. Mrs. Preston said they became inaterested when they accompanied her and her daughter to day camp one year. Many of the other counselors brought their sons and two years ago the Camp Fire Council opened its membership. "The boys must be really enjoying it to be the first in a traditionally girl's organization. It has to be something for the boys to want to continue," said their mother.

The Camp Fire organization, first established in 1911 as a sister-organization to the Boys Scouts, has a membership of 1,502 youth members and 248 adult members in the Lubbock council. They maintain a day camp, Dakonya, in Lubbock at the Camp Fire office and a resident camp, Monakiwa, in Las Vegas, N.M. Camp Fire is open to youths in grades one through 12.

In its role as a service organization, Camp Fire is beginning to expand its role in the community, according to Mrs. Robertson. She said Camp Fire is taking an "advocate" role in the community, sponsoring lectures in defensive awareness for teen-agers and sign language training. Also, she said, with the current move

inflation is that not enough equality of sacrifice has been demanded of all groups and individuals.

•Ten percent volunteered that restraint on growth would mean "a healthier environment, with less stress and strain and striving to keep up."

•Nine percent are convinced that only through slower growth can "the threat of another recession be diminished."

•Eight percent volunteered that less economic growth would mean "we could plan ahead and gauge what our income can really buy." Obviously, people are upset at the uncertainty of sudden upward surges in prices.

Among the small minority who opted for more economic growth, there is one main reason for that choice:

•Seven percent volunteered that they "need to make more money," almost regardless of the risks to the economy.

It is apparent from these results that the long bout Americans have had with inflation has left its mark, and many of the wounds are still open. Above all, however, Americans sense that growth must be tempered and restraint must be exercised. The uncertainty of surging growth, accompanied by rapidly escalating inflation and frequent recessions is now viewed as an intolerable condition under which to live. That is why inflation has become the dominant issue of the 1970s across America.

Charges Pend Against Man In Car Deaths

BALCH SPRINGS (UPI) - A young man was held in jail Sunday and was expected to be charged Monday with five counts of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the deaths of five teenagers in an automobile accident.

The man was being held in the Dallas County Jail and authorities said he was "about" 25 years old. Formal charges would be filed Monday, authorities indicated Sunday.

A Balch Springs police officer said the man's automobile struck another car, ripping it almost in half and killing its five teen-age occupants.

Venus-Bound Spacecraft Pass Crucial Testing

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) -Two Venus-bound Pioneer spacecrafts, the Orbiter and the Multiprobe, have passed major planet operations tests. National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists at the Ames Research Center announced Sunday. Aboard Pioneer 2, the Multiprobe, oriwere successfully tested for the splitsecond release of three probes that will spread over Venus' Earth-facing hemisphere 6,000 miles apart. Systems for the retrofire and injectioninto-orbit maneuver, which will take place behind the planet and out of Earth communication, were tested on the Orbiter, Pioneer 1. Scientists at the center said the two spacecrafts, launched May 20 and Aug. 8 and carrying instruments for 30 experiments, will provide and improved understanding of Venus' simple weather machine and it, in turn, help understand the forces that drive Earth's weather. To date, the operation teams for the spacecrafts have sent 6,400 commands to the Orbiter since the May launch and 3,-600 commands to the five atmosphere entry craft that make up the Multiprobe.

The spacecrafts have about 112 million miles to travel before reaching Venus with the Orbiter scheduled to reach its station Dec. 4 and the five entry probe craft five days later. The Multiprobe has traveled 87 million miles on its 200 million mile flight and the Orbiter has covered 202 million miles of its longer 310 million mile flight path to Venus.

Among the tests completed on the Multiprobe was one that will allow launch from a transporter bus three entry probes - north, day and night probes within milliseconds of each other to selected atmosphere entry points on the planet. The probes separate Nov. 19 and enter the Venus atmosphere Dec. 9.

Controllers at Ames said all instruments on the Orbiter spacecraft, which also has been gathering data during the current period of mounting solar activity, have been checked and calibrated. The spacecraft will go into Venus orbit Dec.

One experiment calls for the Orbiter's cloud photopolarimeter to begin measuring light from Venus Tuesday. It will return the first pictures of the planet on its second orbit Dec. 5.

The pro-ERA forces who descended on Congress now turn their attention to the states in a major drive to get three more legislatures to ratify the constitutional amendment.

"The same people who put pressure on the congressional members are now going to put that pressure on the states," an ERA advocate said. "We're more sophisticated. The learning has just been phenomenal.

ERA supporters attributed last week's Senate victory to political acumen, a new unity in the women's movement and invaluable help from such allies as labor

NOW Head Credits Many For Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A coalition of groups, including labor unions and religious organizations, was the force behind the extension of the Equal Rights Amendment ratification deadline, the president of the National Organization for Women said Sunday.

"There were over 300 organizations that participated," in the drive for congressional approval of the three-year extension. Eleanor Smeal said in her keynote address before NOW's national con-

"At the height of it, there were about 40 or 50 organizations that met at first weekly and then, towards the end, daily for the ERA extension," she said.

"Unions, civil rights groups, groups concerned with human rights and progressive legislation and religious groups," including Priests for Equality were singled out for praise by Miss Smeal.

"The National Organization for Women has stronger allies than it ever has had in its history," she told a cheering audience.

Speaking of the importance of labor unions in relation to women's movement, Miss Smeal said, "Until more women are organized, until we raise the minimum wage, and until there is reform on the labor scene it will not be possible to actually close the economic

"We are the underemployed, we are the majority of those at the minimum wage and we are at the bottom of the unorganized," she said.

Miss Smeal said NOW will conduct a national campaign, working through political parties, labor unions, special interests groups and the media to convince a minimum of three legislatures to approve the amendment, that bans discrimination on the basis of sex. "We are about the business of making history. We are about the business of changing this country and I hope leading the world into a time when women are fully recognized and equals and there will be justice for all," she concluded.

"It was the first time, since 1970 anyway, that the woman's movement has been able to really show its numbers and visibly show them," said Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization

Law Students' Work Aids ERA Extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Two night law school students in California found a loophole in the enacting language for the Equal Rights Amendment and their research, combined with the political muscle of the National Organization for Women, led to a three-year extension of the deadline to ratify the proposal.

Congress initially imposed a seven-year ratification deadline on the amendment that bans discrimination under the law on the basis of sex. The amendment appeared doomed, three states short of the required 38 until Congress granted the overtime period last week.

Hard-won congressional approval means supporters will now have until June 3, 1982, to win ratification. The old deadline was March 22, 1979.

Catherin Timlin and Alice Bennett, classmates at Whittier College of Law in Los Angeles, were prompted by their legislative law class instructor to determine why a seven-year deadline was necessary.

"It took two weeks of research," Miss Timlin said during NOW's weekend concould be two years, three years, anything.

"It was put in to please Sam Ervin." The self-described "plain old country lawyer" from North Carolina, senator and chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee insisted that the amendment which he ultimately opposed — carry a ratification deadline.

"It was just a way to shut up Sam Ervin and make him happy," Miss Bennett said. "He was a constitutional purist. This (deadline) was strictly procedural. Without the deadline the amendment could be floating around forever.

"So (Rep.) Martha Griffiths (D-Mich.) got it put on to make him happy.'

But the deadline language was not placed in the body of the amendment. Other amendments had the time in the amendment itself," Miss Timlin said.

This one did not. It made it easier to "We sat around speculating that since

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong hopes Texas still has - and will take advantage of - the opportunity to acquire the Big Ranch owned by Robert O. Anderson - before the wilderness area passes to developers or the federal government.

Armstrong has attempted for several years to get funds for the purchase of the 212,000 acres in far West Texas - but has run into opposition from Gov. Dolph

There's also been opposition from residents and officials in the area around Marfa, but Armstrong reports that opposition may be changing since the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is considering purchase of the area as a wildlife refuge.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - Although a southwest Louisiana cholera outbreak might be the largest in recent years, a federal food official classifies it less than an epidemic.

"I cannot remember reading about the last time cholera was discovered in any particular area," said Martin Goldstein, acting district director of the Food and Drug Administration. "(But) this is not an epidemic. There have not been that many cases and they have not been that widespread."

Doctors in recent weeks confirmed 11 cases of cholera in people who ate crabs from Vermilion Bay and other seafood grounds in the marshlands and along the coast of southwest Louisiana, prompting the FDA to urge state closure of the waters. However, state health officials rejected that move because no live crabs were found with cholera bacteria.

Dr. William Cherry, Louisiana secretary of health and human resources, said improper cooking or storage of cooked crabs in unsanitary containers might have caused the illness. Cholera causes diarrhea and intestinal discomfort and Cherry said many cases might have been treated effectively without patients or doctors realizing what was involved.

Goldstein, who stationed inspectors at New Orleans and Baton Rouge airports to halt any interstate shipments of live crabs from the areas in question, said the absence of new cases the past several days was encouraging and may mean the outbreak has ended even before scientists pinpoint its origin.

He said FDA laboratories in Cincinnati were conducting tests on Louisiana crabs in an effort to determine whether they were contaminated, but he could not predict how soon conclusive results would be available.

"I'm sure they're working over this (Columbus Day) holiday weekend," he said. "The more data we collect, the better we'll be able to judge it."

State technicians also were sampling and analyzing crabs, shrimp, water and sewerage from the suspect areas and from other regions of the coast.

Seafood from other coastal areas of Louisiana was not kept off planes headed for major Northeastern markets such as New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Goldstein, however, said shipments had

Athlete Endowment Fund Established

Money saved during the "good" years means being able to pay your bills during the "lean" ones. That is the philosophy of Texas Tech administrative vice president Ken Thompson and the reasoning behind his recent establishment of an endowment to help finance future repairs to Tech athletic facilities. The intercollegiate athletic endowment, set up with about $250,000 from two payments on Jones Stadium, the surcharge on option ticket sales and interest from the athletic fund balance, will reach

$1 million in four years. That $1 million endowment is what Texas Tech officials referred to during a recent Board of Regents meeting as being set up with funds outside the department's current operating budget.

The bulk of the endowment will come each year from stadium payments averaging $90,000. Added to that will be about $25,000 annually from part of the proceeds from the surcharge on option seat tickets and $12,000 from annual interest earnings on the athletic fund balance.

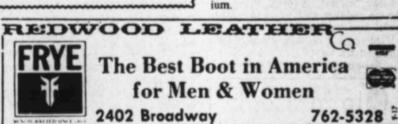

In a letter to regent J. Fred Bucy. Thompson explained that the endowment was developed on the premise "that if we don't save some money in our "good" years, we will be unprepared to meet our operating budget during 'leaner" years.

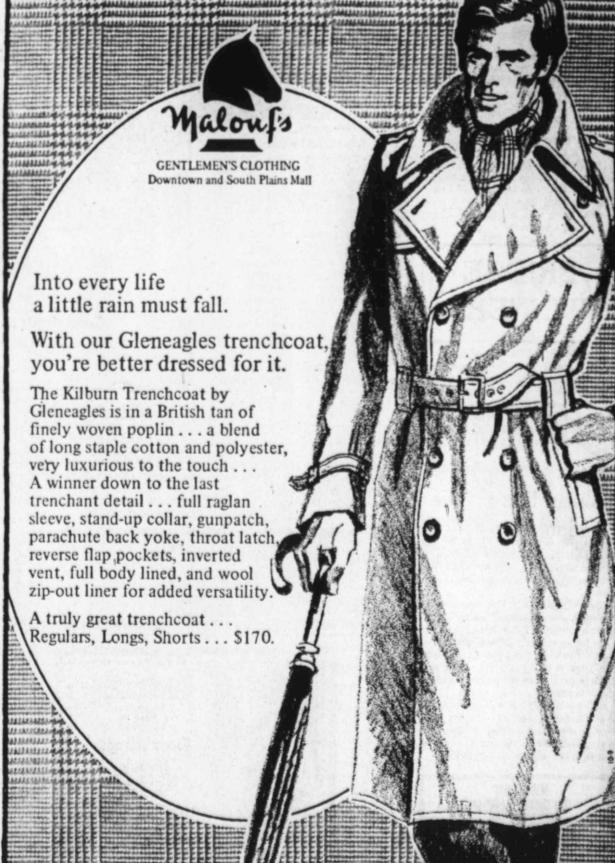

"The thought of the potential income loss on the occasion of several home games being 'snowed out' makes me shiver." Thompson added.

He also stressed, both in the letter and to the board during a recent meeting, that the funds going into the endowment "will not cause a reduction in current operating budgets in the Men's Intercolle giate Athletic Department."

The university's chief financial officer said he first got the idea for the endowment about 18 months ago when he dis-covered the athletic department was a year away from paying off Jones Stad-

Where were you and what were you going when you heard that Jerome Drayton won the Boston Marathon?

"Sure, I could go jogging with you this week-end — but will you respect me in the morning?

Running around the streets wheezing has replaced handball, which replaced tennis, which replaced biking, which replaced golf, which replaced swimming, which replaced skiing as the national physical pastime. All of those are still in favor, but at one time or another they led the field in popularity.

It is safe to assume that jogging will pass and relinquish its trend status to a new sport. And what will replace it? Will there be life after jogging?

Of course, and frankly I wouldn't be at all surprised if "napping" replaced jog-ging as the No. 1 national sport. The momentum for any pastime is usually the same. It starts with a hero (astronaut, sports figure or movie star) who appears on a talk show and is asked, "How do you stay so thin?" and he or she replied, "I nap at least 30 minutes a day."

Small groups start at first. Then, a few stories appear where the AMA, to protect themselves, advises participants to get a complete physical before starting to "nap.

Books beginto come out - "The Complete Book of Napping," "The Complete Napper" and "The Napper's Handbook" (a Complete Guide for Men and Women Who Sack Out).

Napper's regulation shoes will come out with cushioned inner-soles and fashions will reflect the sport with wrinklefree slacks and polyeser shirts that breathe when your body temperature goes down.

As the momentum builds, everything will point to the Napper's Marathon...The Napper's Olympics where nodders from all over the country will compete to see who can sleep the longest. There will be film clips of nappers "packing warm milk," taking deep breathing exercises, and talking of the "dreaded eye-opener" when you're pushing your body into sleep far beyond its limits. I can see Curt Gowdy spotlighting a man yawning and observing, 'He's the man to beat.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Much has been said about people who cannot get to sleep at night. My problem is that I cannot wake up in the mornings. I set three clocks in my bedroom. All three go off, but I don't wake up. I don't eat late at night and I go to bed early (10:30 p.m.). I take vitamins and don't nap during the day. What can the problem be? I depend on my clocks, but for the past two years I have lost about six months of work because I've overslept and missed my ride to work. I am 36. - Mrs. J.B.

Individuals vary considerably in the amount of sleep they need as well as in the depth of their sleep. I know some who awaken immediately as the first dawn rays filter into their bedroom windows. Others require an earthquake to arouse them from their slumber.

Your problem is called "hypersomnia," should you need a fancy called name to use. Most people who have difficulty getting awake have the problem all their lives. Your situation seems different because it is of recent origin. For this reaason I suggest you have a physical examination to find out whether there is a physical disorder contributing to your problem. In another part of your letter you mention your excessively dry skin. That can indicate low thyroid gland function. Excessive sleepiness can accompany this. If your sleepiness is seasonal, say, mostly in winter, you might suspect improper ventilation, perhaps subtle leakage of fumes from furnace ductwork.

I suspect from your letter that you have no human "backup" system to help you out of your dilemma. Getting up can become a matter of habit. I have no practical suggestion to help you adjust that situation, short of having a friend make a personal appearance to arouse you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 14 years old and I have pimples on my back. My mother says that it is just adolescence. I

Your mother could be right. This could be a mild form of acne caused by contact with your clothing or pressure from a chair back or lying on your back at night. Someone has come up with the term 'acne mechanica" to describe it. It is akin to the pimples a young person may develop from having hair hanging down over the forehead or by wearing turtleneck sweaters. Being young, with your sweat glands beginning to work overtime, makes you more susceptible to the rash. Not much you can do except to keep the area clean and avoid long periods of pressure on your back (as in long drives in the car). Your mother is right however that this is a problem of adolesc-

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A while back I was told I have otosclerosis and that surgery is about the only thing to help my hearing. I have punctured eardrums, too. I was wondering what percentage of such surgery is successful for improving hearing. I am 68. - C.N.J.

Otosclerosis is a disease of the ear in which the bones of the middle ear become spongy and lose the ability to vibrate. The cause is a deficiency of blood supply (sclerosis) to this area.

I don't know from your letter what kind of surgery is being suggested. About 10 percent of the adult population develops otosclerosis of one degree or another with age. Yet it is estimated that only about 10 percent of those cases are accompanied by hearing loss. When it is, surgery is usually effective, although I cannot give you percentages on that. Your eardrum perforations might be a more likely cause of your hearing problem, and surgery to repair that can be helpful. You need to discuss this thoroughly with your doctor.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:

As we go into the fall and winter months we will have more open fires, such as fireplaces, heaters, etc.

It makes you wonder just how many people are fire-conscious. And how many people have escape plans ready in case of fire in their home?

My neighbor has always made this a must in any home they have lived in. She and her husband carefully figure out at least two routes to the outside from every room. And they hold periodic fire drills to make sure each member of the family is familiar with these plans.

Don't forget to choose a meeting place outside, and to follow that excellent rule: Once out, stay out!

I shall repeat the oft-stated recommendations in case of fire. (1) Get everybody out of the house. (2) Call the fire department. (3) Do what you can to safely extinguish the fire.

If I may elaborate: Everybody means people. Your pets are next, if you don't endanger yourself.

Also, when you leave the house, close all doors behind you to retard the spread of the flames. While we're on the subject of fire, here's a few tips for the kitchen.

If something is burning in your oven, don't open the door. Leave the door closed and wait for the fire to go out and for things to cool down. Then you can open the door and clean up the mess. Keep a box of baking soda near the stove - it's great for extinguishing frypan flare-ups. Just throw some in the burning pan. It will put out the fire.

Don't forget your kitchen sink spray hose is a very effective fire extinguisher for burning paper or cloth curtains. If you turn on both faucets, you should be able to reach any part of your kitchen with the spray. But remember, water should not be used for grease fires. Use

Better Hearing Aid Center Still Serving From Lubbock, Clovis

The qualified services traditional at the Better Hearing Aid Center are being

Jack B. Price. certified hearing aid audiologist. is on the job at both the Lubbock facility at No. 30 Redbud Square, and at the Clovis Hearing Aid Center, 117 E. 7th St., in Clovis, N.M. Price is in the Lubbock office on Tuesday, Wednesdays and Fridays, and to further serve the western Panhandle and South Plains and eastern New Mexico, he is at Clovis on Mondays and Thursdays.

Price, a longtime Lubbock resident, in the recent past was associated with the late James O. Davidson at the Better Hearing Aid Center. Thoroughly experienced and with a genuine desire to assist the hard-of-hearing as a multi-line dealer, he has pledged to continue the services that the public has learned to expect at the Better Hearing Aid Center.

"So, come on in: take your pick of the center and service most readily available to you: Jack B. Price renders the same great service at each location.

"We are indeed appreciative of the friends of years past, and we trust that with our new association we can serve you to the fullest in months and years to come," is the word from Price.

Located about midway between 4th Street and 19th Street on Slide Road, the Lubbock firm specializes in all-in-the-ear models. Service and repairs on any make of hearing aid is expertly rendered.

Assistance "after the sale" is most notable there as an added reason for depending on the Better Hearing Aid Center and its qualified staff.

And remember . . . at the Better Hearing Aid Center there is a liberal hearing

ON THE JOB - Jack B. Price, certified hearing aid audiologist, is serving at Better Hearing Aid Center, together with longtime staffmember Agnes Vanderveer, secretary. They invite inquiries about the firm's services in sales and repairs at its two big area centers, in Lubbock and in Clovis (N.M.)

Johnston's No-Roach Clean, Easy To Apply

Some people never have the neighbors in . . . and it is understandable!

Who wants to take a chance on the neighbor spotting a cockroach flitting aeross a counter, or down a drain? So it is that thousands of housewives, all over America, never join a Kaffee Klatch, because they know they can never take their turns having the girls in.

Of course they can. All they have to do is discover Johnston's No-Roach . . . the sure-fire answer to cockroach problems. Not to mention ants . . . and silverfish . . . and spiders . . . and so forth. No-Roach, the household insecticide, keeps the promise of its name. "The seeming magic about No-Roach is the ease with which it is used. You just brush it on anywhere that roaches or other crawling pests may assemble: across doorways, windowsills and baseboards; in cupboards and along the edges of kitchen cabinets. No-Roach dries to an invisible shield that is colorless and odorless. All the time you are serving coffee to the neighbors, No-Roach is killing cockroach eggs back in the nest . 'cause every roach (or insect of any kind) that crosses No-Roach, picks it up on its feet and takes it home."

Do the neighborly thing. Serve the ladies on the block a cup of coffee in a roach-free kitchen . . . thanks to John-ston's No-Roach, available at Furr's,

Lubbock Greeter Service Seen Distinct Benefit Within City

Lubbock business firms and newcomer residents alike are most fortunate in having readily available the unique services of the home-owned and home-operated Lubbock Greeter Service.

Welcoming newcomers to Lubbock in a most effective, practical and "remembered" way, the Lubbock Greeter Service is not a franchised operation but is "distinctively different" and for the past 4 1/2 years has been owned by

Peggy Moody. Long a Lubbock resident, Peggy Moody, nee Peggy Rutherford, attended Wheelock-Parsons. Evans Juniot High, then graduated from Monterey High School and in 1969 graduated from W.T.S.C. in Canyon. She knows Lubbock and area folks, situations and preferences. At the helm of Lubbock Greeter Service, she is performing quite a service as one will discover even upon brief review of the comprehensive programs available. Peggy points out some of the 'economic facts of the business," citing that Lubbock Greeter Service " charges 60 per cent less than some national competitors and sees 75 per cent more people," assuring that the merchant gets more for his money and that the newcomer is properly welcomed and assist-

A staff of five is devoted to the service concept of the program and is on the job to assure personal contact in every operation. (The Greeter Service guarantees seeing at least 70 newcomer families per month - folks from out-of-town, not just moving across the city.) Lubbock Greeter Service is proud to have an excellent "track record," charging the merchant only for extent of services, retaining no percentage, affording newcomers advantages of brochures representing over 100 merchants and organizations with these brochures containing coupon discounts, etc., effecting savings

Lubbock Greeter Service helps in a most memorable way in introduction of merchant and newcomer, making it real fun and informative to be such a new-

Multiple Benefits

"Basically an advertising agency" is the description of the Lubbock Greeter Service given by Peggy Moody who explains that subsidiaries include the (1) Baby Buggy, with attention to the 100-150 new babies in city families per month; the (2) Key to the City which is preferred merchants shopping guide for newcomers with a map designating areas and businesses, the (3) Greeter Service in which guaranteed visits are made in homes of at least 70 new families; and (4) the Newcomers publication in which profile information of new families is made available to the merchant. Special attention is directed to current situations at Pharr Trailer Sales & Service, 1702 Clovis Road in Lubbock:

(1) Marked-down prices on 1978 units are now in effect, enabling a really economical entry into the RV (recreational vehicle) field of enjoyment, just in time for fall and winter treks to beautiful foliage and warmer climes!

(2) Pharr Trailer Sales & Service is convenient to you wherever you live in West Texas. Long respected in Lubbock, Pharr also has a big facility at Odessa, some may not have realized.

Located at 1820 E. 8th Street at Odessa, the modern firm there, under managment of Jerry Pharr, is starting its second year and it stocks the same lines and offers all the services of the Lubbock unit.

Exceptional growth and public response to the Odessa facility has been the story there in the year marked by achievement and a host of friendships. We thank you!

Auto Mishap Kills Dimmitt Girl, 14

A-J Correspondent

DIMMITT - A 14-year-old Dimmitt girl was killed Sunday and six others injured when the car in which they were riding careened off Texas 168 four miles north of Nazareth, plowed through a fence and overturned for more than 180

Killed in the 2:50 p.m. mishap was Alicia Rodriguez. She was pronounced dead at the scene by Castro County Judge Weldon Bradley.

Texas highway patrol officers said the girl was thrown from the car after the northbound vehicle veered off the road across a drainage ditch and up an incline, and then overturned several times in a pasture.

Miss Rodriguez was one of 10 occupants in the car.

The car's driver, a 27-year-old Dimmitt man, was booked into Castro County Jail on suspicion of drunk driving.

Six other passengers in the car were admitted to Plains Memorial Hospital in Dimmitt in satisfactory condition suffering from broken bones, cuts and bruises. Injured were: Loretta Reyna, 40; Esmeralda Rodriguez, 14; Lorena Alvarez, and Alma Lopez, 15, all of Dimmitt. The group, and another carload, had been en route to Buffalo Lake near Canyon for a picnic when the accident occurred.

Services for Miss Rodriguez are pending with Dennis Funeral Home of Dim-

California Voters Yawn At Romance

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - California voters could scarcely care less whether Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. marries als to coincide with the last day of Nasinger Linda Ronstadt, a poll taken by the Los Angeles Times showed Sunday.

The bachelor governor, running for reelection, has been seen with Miss Ronstadt on a number of occasions and his father, former Gov. Pat Brown, said recently he wished they would get mar-

Brown's Republican opponent, Evelle Younger, also raised the question of the governor's unmarried state during the campaign. Younger said a man could better manage the job if he had had the experience of changing diapers, paying off mortgages and other joys of wedded

The Times put it to the voters, asking this question:

For some time now, Gov. Brown has been going out with Linda Ronstadt, the popular singer. If Jerry Brown were to marry Linda Ronstadt would that make you think more highly of him, less highly, or would that make any difference one way or the other?"

The answers were: 88 percent - no difference: 6 percent - more highly: 4 percent - less highly; 2 percent - un-

A dozen chimney sweep friends wore the traditional black attire as honor guard, using their long, wire brushes to form an archway for the smiling newlyweds.

The ceremonies on the skydeck of the 110-story Sears Tower were conducted by the Rev. John T. Shaffer, formerly pastor of the United Church of Christ in Jacksonville, Ill., and long-time minister of the Miller family.

Stoll, 49, formerly a marketing consultant in New York City, planned the nuptitional Chimney Sweep Week and the first day of National Fire Prevention Week.

Sunday also was the 107th anniversary of the Great Chicago Fire. And Stoll confided that they would spend their first night of marriage in hotel suite overlooking the Water Tower, a landmark structure that survived the fire.

The skydeck, on the 103rd story of the building, was crowded with the usual weekend visitors looking at the panorama of the Chicago area on a clear day. 'We touched as many as we could

"CUT YOUR SEWING TIME IN HALF!"

Says:

SEWING SHORT COURSE

TO BE HELD IN LUBBOCK

Janet Snow Says:

'I believe that most women who sew want to sit down at the machine, finish a garment in a single evening and have it looks as professional as possible when they are finished." This is Janet Snow's simple philosophy for today's seam-

'Time is money to manfacturers of ready-to-wear, so they must use the fastest sewing methods. Time is also important to us, so why not use some of their fast sewing techniques?"

Janet Snow studies the extremely fast sewing techniques used by the nation's leading manufacturers of ready-to-wear and uses many of these sewing methods in her classes. She also studies the techniques used by leading European designers in expensive and tailored garments. The fast sewing methods of manufacturers and the expensive sewing techniques used by designers are combined and result in handsome fashionable garments.

'Sewing techniques change, just as fashion changes. It is important to keep-up with the latest methods in order to have a professional appearance. Using outdated sewing methods will give a home-made look." Janet Snow says.

These sewing ideas and techniques will be covered in a two-day sewing short course, to be held this week.

NO STRAIGHT PINS

How can you sew without straight pins and without basting? Garments which retail for $100 and more are sewn by manufacturers in record time, without a single straight pin. You can learn to use these same techniques at home on your sewing machine. If manufacturers can produce attractive garments in such a short time, then we can too!

The $80 WAISTBAND A leading U.S. manufacturer makes a knit skirt which sells for $80. The skirt has an ingenious elastic waistband that looks great. The waistband is also used for pants. In addition to being attractive,

it eliminates the necessity of a zipper and darts. The method for making this waistband will be demonstrated.

BOUND BUTTONHOLES If bound buttonholes are something you've always wanted to make, you'll delight in how easy it is to sew a perfect bound buttonhole. This easy method will be demonstrated and you will receive printed directions

TAILORING NEEDLE Those attending will receive a tailoring needle that is suited for the handwork in

PANTS FITTING Pants fitting is a 4-week course that has been condensed to give you the most important features. You will learn how to solve your pants fitting problems. FRENCH SEAMS

An enclosed French Seam is desirable

for the new lightweight fabrics. Learn how to make and use a French Seam. A FAST METHOD

Since time is money to Manufacturers, the fastest methods must be used. manufacturers have developed a technique for binding the armhole of a garment with the fashion fabric. It's very fast, looks expensive and eliminates the cutting and sewing of an armhole facing. You will learn the technique.

THE SLEEVE IN 2 MINUTES

The sleeve can be set-in to absolute perfection, without a single straight pin in 2 minutes. You will see the method demonstrated

EUROPEAN QUILTING

A favorite European designer uses quilting on the jacket collar, lapel and often pockets and belts. See a technique which is unique, simple and very impressive. You will also receive printed directions and see a jacket using the method.

BOUND BUTTONHOLE POCKET

The bound buttonhole pocket is being used on vests, pants, jackets and the latest designer fashions. It will double the value of a garment you sew and it is so simple to make. When you use this technique, everyone will admire your talent.

GET MORE FROM YOUR SEWING MACHINE

Whether your sewing machine will make fancy stitches or if it is a straight-stitch machine, few people get the most out of their machine. If you visted the European designers' workrooms, you would find the majority of couture garments are made on simple, straight-stitch sewing machines. On all machines you can sew without straight pins.

THE SCARF

Be prepared for the most unusual scarf you have ever seen! It is just a little tricky to make and your friends will never figure out how you have sewn it! In addition to seeing it you will receive written directions for making the scarf.

CERTIFICATE OF ACHIEVEMENT

Those attending the short course will receive a Certificate of Achievement.

CLASS SCHEDULE

Janet Snow will conduct a two day sewing course to which the public is invited. The morning classes will run from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Evening Classes are from 7 to 10 p.m. Admission is $9 for the 6-hour course. Those interested are encouraged to make reservations by calling 763-9466. Classes will be held at the Lubbock Civic Center, October 10 and 11.

Janet Snow, colleg instructor, will conduct a 6hour Sewing Course to which the public is invited. She has toured design houses and factories in this country and in Europe, studying the latest sewing techniques and shortcut methods. Janet Snow is the author of a soonto-be published college textbook on clothing construction and a sewing book for popular use.

Dockery Closes First Chapter

By DON HENRY Executive Sports Editor Rex Dockery whistled, then held up

four fingers. "Look, we've played four tough football teams already."

If it is possible to play a football season in chapters, then Dockery closed that opening chapter Saturday afternoon.

There were some times that I wondered if we could win any of those four.," said Dockery, as he looked back on the opening games of his head-coaching car-

The Raiders had returned from Saturday afternoon's 38-9 losing experience in College Station, and as he sat in his office in Jones Stadium Sunday, Dockery reviewed that murderous run of Southern California, Arizona, Texas and the Ag-

Tech whipped Arizona 41-26 for the only win in the four contests.

'I've said it all along, I know, but we're a young team, and I'm convinced that we're going to get better. But, (after the Aggie loss) we have to get back up. We really need to win this one.

"It's not going to be easy (to beat New Mexico this week in Albuquerque). They'll be playing at home, they're coming off a big win; they came from behind. So, they'll be pumped up."

New Mexico, down 15-0 at Wyoming, rebounded to win 19-15, in a Western Athletic Conference game.

Before that game, the Raiders will hit practice field, and Dockery that some lineup changes could be made, as a result of performances against the Aggies. However, Dockery declined to say what positions would be affected.

Tech came out of the physical contest with two questionable injuries. Linebacker Jeff Copeland limped off the field early with an ankle injury, and backup defensive end Olan Tisdale has an anklearch problem which continues to bother

Dockery said he would know more today on the status of the two players.

We did some things well (against the Aggies)," Dockery noted, "and, of course, Blade Adams and Maury Buford continued to help us with their kicking. Maury had a couple of really big kicks for

Buford boomed nine punts for a 47.1yard average and toed one measuring 75 yards, the seventh longest in Tech history. Buford was second in the nation in punting prior to this week and increased his average by more than a yard.

And Adams toed three field goals, producing all of Tech's points for the second game this season (the other was against USC). Adams has booted eight field goals without a miss this season.

"We have our best pass protection, as good as against Texas," Dockery added. "In the first half, our defense was good. We had a couple of breakdowns (once when Aggie quarterback Mike Mosley zipped 64 yards for a touchdown).

"They controlled us the last half; the Iformation really hurt us. You have to change philosophies from the wishbone that game. to the I, and they did a good job with them against us. The second chapter begins this week "I felt good the way we came back in the last quarter and made some yardage against them.' Dockery remarked that the Raiders dropped some passes but "Ron Reeves (at quarterback) played better than against Texas. He forced a couple of

Casper Catch Gives Raiders Comeback

OAKLAND (AP) - Oakland Raider tight end Dave Casper doesn't even like watching close games on television. And he certainly doesn't like playing in them, although that's what keeps happening.

"It gets awfully tired," Casper said after catching a four-yard Ken Stabler pass with 42 seconds left to give the Raiders a 21-17 comeback victory over the Houston Oilers in a National Football League game Sunday.

"I'd like to go out and beat the heck out of somebody," he said. "But sometimes it takes us a half to figure the other team out. It's not something that hasn't happened in the past."

Indeed Houston quarterback Dan Pas-

torini had a sense of deja vu. "It seems every time we walk on this field something wierd happens at the end," he said.

The victory was the third time this season Oakland has won in the final moment and the third straight time it has beaten Houston late in the game. The triumph was the Raiders tenth in their last 11 meetings with the Oilers.

This time Casper grabbed the ball out of the arms of a Houston defender in the end zone to bring the Raiders victory.

Casper's grab in the left corner of the end zone capped an 80-yard, three minute march and completed an Oakland comeback from a 17-7 deficit. Oiler defender Greg Stemrick got his hands on the short winning pass but Casper yanked the ball loose and held on for the score.

It was the third time this year, and second week in a row Oakland had won in the final moments.

champion Dallas Cowboys still aren't as good as they were last January, but they aren't dead yet.

They did it all Sunday in a convincing 24-3 National Football League rout of the New York Giants to remain two games behind unbeaten Washington in the National Conference eastern division.

Quarterback Roger Staubach completed three touchdown passes, and the Doomsday Defense that was so awesome in Super Bowl XII sacked New York quarterbacks eight times.

Roger was spectacular, and our defense played great," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "We haven't reached our Super Bowl level yet. We've got to learn to win the close games.

Landry said the Giants tried to surprise the Cowboys with a three-man line.

"I don't think I've ever seen Roger hit as many times as he was today," Landry said. "He really took some shots, but he did a super job of hitting the touchdowns that he did."

Landry said: "We threw 36 passes, and I really didn't expect to call that many, but we felt we had to throw against them when they came out in that surprise three-man line."

Staubach said "it would have been a better day if I had hit that last touchdown pass. I had no reason throwing it." He referred to a late Cowboy drive in which he had a receiver all alone but underthrew the ball.

"There's one thing about everybody we play now. They really come to play when it's the Cowboys," Landry said. "We just have to scratch a little bit more than othformance after last Monday's 9-5 loss to Washington, threw TD passes of 17 and 30 yards to wide receiver Tony Hill and flicked a 23-yard scoring pass to tight end Billy Joe Dupree.

Upsets Broncs

By The Associated Press

Don Woods ran for one touchdown, Dan Fouts passed to Hank Bauer for another score and Rolf Benirschke kicked three field goals Sunday as the San Diego Chargers crushed the Denver Broncos 23-0 in a National Football League game. The Chargers' victory snapped a seven-game Denver winning streak over San-Diego and boosted their record to 2-4.

The Broncos dropped to 4-2. The San Diego defense throttled Denver's offense throughout the game.

The Broncos threatened to score only twice, once shortly before halftime on a drive that ended when San Diego safety Glen Edwards intercepted a pass in the end zone and again in the closing minute when they lost the ball on downs at the Chargers' 7-yard line.

San Diego opened the scoring on an 85-yard, 20-play drive that stalled temporarily on the 50-yard line. Jeff West punted but the Chargers got the ball back on an illegal blocking penalty by Denver on the punt return.

STEELERS 31, FALCONS 7 The Pittsburgh Steelers blended grunts and giggles in rolling to a 31-7 win over the Atlanta Falcons.

Among the grunters was tackle Joe

Greene, who spoke of business as usual after Pittsburgh climbed to 6-0, best start in the history of the franchise.

"The only thing we get excited about is the last one, I mean really jumping up and down and saying 'Wow wee!' " said

Still, quarterback Terry Bradshaw and his receivers, connecting on 13 of 18 passes for 231 yards, enjoyed a relative frolic against a Falcon team that fell to 2-4.

As early as the third quarter, Bradshaw was smiling and waving to his wife in the stands until Coach Chuck Noll called him to the sidelines and told him to save the celebrating until after the game.

Even Noll couldn't get angry in reprimanding Bradshaw, said wide receiver Lynn Swann. 'He was smiling when he called Terry," Swann said. "After all, he has often said, 'Let's make Sunday funday.' " "It's fun out there," said Steeler wide receiver John Stallworth, who caught six for 114 yards, including a touchdown. "Lynn and I are just having a great time." BROWNS 24, SAINTS 16

"He still has the old magic," said Cleveland Browns quarterback Brian Sipe in describing once-great running back Calvin Hill who helped lead Cleveland's ball-control offense to a 24-16 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Hill, who recently joined the Browns, teamed with Cleo Miller to lead a crunching ground game that accounted for 179 rushing yards against the Saints.

Hill was picked up to fill the gap when the Browns' leading ground gainer Greg Pruitt was sidelined by injuries.

"One game doesn't a season make," said Hill, a veteran of nine NFL seasons and three Superbowls. "It's like I'm in my rookie season.

An old man like me has to hang loose to stay with these young guys.

"It's nice to play now but when Greg comes back I realize I'll be on the bench. But that's ok, I just want to contribute. You shouldn't be out there if you don't want to contribute."

Hill gained 53 yards on 13 carries and Miller got 93 on 21 carries, just missing the second 100-yard game of his five-year career.

"That's a pretty good day," said Miller. "But with Pruitt out, we should be able to take up the slack." He said he enjoyed teaming with Hill and the Brown's backfield. "It's good to have the veterans around us," he said. PATRIOTS 24, EAGLES 14

It was throw the ball and hope for the best for the New England Patriots, who used a 58-yard touchdown bomb to beat the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday.

"I tried to shake off the free safety, but it didn't work," said Patriot's quarterback Steve Grogan of his third quarter strike to wide receiver Stanley Morgan. "I just threw it as far as I could and I couldn't believe he was there to catch it," Grogan added after the 24-14 win. The pass gave New England a 24-7 lead the Eagles couldn't catch. "They're a better football team than we are," said Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil. "I'm disappointed we had so many mistakes because you can't beat a physically superior team that way."

The Eagles fumbled five times, losing four, including three to New England linebacker Steve Nelson. The top-rated Philadelphia defense against the run also broke down, allowing the Patriots 205 Tarkenton, who completed 27 of 37 passes for 274 yards and two touchdowns and ran for a third Vikings score.

RAMS 27, 49ERS 10

Pat Haden threw a pair of touchdown passes spearheading the Los Angeles Rams to a 27-10 victory over the San Francisco 49ers, keeping the home club undefeated and spoiling the Coliseum return of superstar O.J. Simpson.

The Rams put their record at 6-0 while the young 49ers fell to 1-5.

JETS 45, BILLS 14

Kevin Long ran for three touchdowns and Bruce Harper returned a punt 82 yards for another score as the New York Jets routed the mistake-prone Buffalo Bills 45-14. BUCS 30, CHIEFS 13

Doug Williams drilled a 10-yard touchdown pass and engineered three fourthquarter touchdown drives, and Tampa Bay's spirited young defense choked off Kansas City's Wing T running game, giv-

LCC In Action

WICHITA FALLS (Special) - The Lubbock Christian College women's volleyball team will meet Midwestern University here today starting at 4 p.m. Following the contest, LCC will take on McMurry.

The Chaps finished sixth recently at the Oklahoma State University tournament in Stillwater. One of their wins at the event was over Midwestern.

MORESCO SIGNS

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Jets signed free-agent safety Tim Moresco on Wednesday and placed running back Jim Earley on the injured reserve list. Moresco, from Syracuse University, was Green Bay's sixth-round draft choice in 1977. He was released last Aug. 26. Earley has played on the Jets' special

College Grid Standings Sooners'

By United Press International About the time the No. 1 Oklahor Sooners were heading out of Dallas last Saturday, having thoroughly branded the Texas Longhorns, the SMU Mustangs were arriving back in town with a very inflated prestige factor. It was hard to tell which bunch was more pleased.

Oklahoma had protected its standing atop the national rankings with a 31-10 thrashing of old foe Texas, but the victory was tempered by an injury sheet that read like the who's who of college foot-

And although the Mustangs were obviously proud of their effort in coming up with a 35-35 tie against 14th-ranked Ohio State, there was the feeling among the SMU crowd that it should have won.

"Our injury situation is critical," bemoaned Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer after the Sooners' triumph. "We're just going to have to patch some players together now. It was a physical, hard-fought game and our defensive team was

"I told our defense that if they shut out

But the Sooners, despite the injuries, are a good bet to stay unbeaten the restol the regular season and go into the round of bowl games as the nation's No. 1 team.

SMU, of course, would be delighted to merely be somewhere in the top 20. And the Mustangs, who have spent the past decade losing on the field and at the ticket window as well, may accomplish that

Wildcats Eye Key Showdown

By United Press International Abilene Christian took a big step in its bid for another Lone Star Conference championship, but the largest step of all will come next weekend.

The Wildcats opened their league season with a convincing 28-13 decision over one-time powerhouse Texas A&I and that sets up an early season showdown next Saturday with Angelo State, which began its LSC campaign with a 15-3 decision over Stephen F. Austin.

Angelo will likely carry a No. 1 NAIA ranking into that game while Abilene Christian is currently ranked fourth na-

Series Time As Yanks, Bums Meet

By The Associated Press

The World Series opens this Tuesday evening in Los Angeles with the National League champion Dodgers facing the American League champion New York Yankees and hoping for a change from last year's script.

Both teams advanced impressively, winning their league championship series in four games. The Dodgers eliminated lphia and the Yankees knocked off Kansas City, both repeats of last year's pennant playoffs.

Because Los Angeles and New York both advanced on Saturday, the teams will have two days off before the start of the Series. The two clubs scheduled workouts at Dodger Stadium for late Monday afternoon.

ries figure to be Ed Figueroa, a 20-game winner during the rsgular season for the Yankees, and Burt Hooton, who won 19 games for the Dodgers.

Both right-handers had problems in their lone starts of the playoffs. Figueroa was knocked out in the second inning of Game 2 by Kansas City and charged with the only loss the Yankees suffered against the Royals.

Hooton, staked to a fat early lead in Game 1 against the Phillies, didn't make it past the fifth inning, with the victory going to rookie reliever Bob Welch.

A year ago, when the Yankees beat the Dodgers in six games for the world championship, Figueroa did not pitch. He had an injured finger, but was so upset at The opening-game pitchers for the Se- being passed over that he asked permis-

Early this season, he asked to be traded because he wasn't pitching as often as he wanted. No deal developed, and when Bob Lemon replaced Billy Martin as the Yankee manager, Figgy became an integral part of New York's dash to its third

Hooton, who became the ace of the Dodgers' staff this season, enjoying the best year of his career, started twice against the Yankees in the 1977 World Series. He beat them 6-1 in the second game but was the starter and loser in the sixth and final game when Reggie Jackson rewrote the Series record book with three consecutive home runs.

Jackson finished last year's Series with five homers, eight runs batted in and a .450 batting average and was named the sion to go home to Puerto Rico before outstanding player of the championship the final game. up for this Series by ripping two home runs and batting .461 in the four-game playoff against Kansas City.

Under the system of alternating rules, the American League's designated hitter will be used in the Series this year. Jackson likely will occupy that role for the Yankees while Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda may alternate the assignment.

Los Angeles has been platooning center fielders Bill North and Rick Monday and could use the DH rule to keep both of them in the Series line-up.

Or, the Dodgers might choose to use one of the other batters on their deep bench that includes pinch-hitting specialists like Lee Lacy, who had five pinch homers during the regular season, Manny Mota and Vic Davalillo.

The Dodgers are healthy for the Series and will present the same set line-up that charged from behind in August to overtake San Francisco and Cincinnati for the NL West title.

Their cast includes sluggers Steve Garvey, the outstanding player with six extra-base hits in the NL playoffs, Ron Cey, Reggie Smith and Dusty Baker.

The Yankees also are healthy except for second baseman Willie Randolph, who sat out the championship series with a pulled hamstring but insists he will be ready for the World Series.

New York must decide on Monday whether to activate Randolph, who was injured Sept. 29. If they add him to the list of eligibles, they likely will drop rookie second baseman Brian Doyle.

After Figueroa and Hooton, the Dodgers likely are to use left-hander Tommy or basketball. The public schools also would not have the capability to investi-

ing Don Sutton to open the New York end of the Series Friday night. That would be the same rotation that opposed the Phillies in the playoffs.

The Yankees must also decide whether to go with ace left-hander Ron Guidry, working with three days' rest, on Wednesday, or use veteran Catfish Hunter or rookie Jim Beattie in Game 2, holding Guidry back until Friday night.

Guidry, who usually works every fifth day, pitched three times down the stretch with only three days' rest. He beat the Royals Saturday with four days off and said later he would prefer to have an extra day of rest this time.

The UIL - sometimes called the foster parent of the state's public schools — is-sued the rule in the 1930s in an attempt to curb schools with wealthy athletic departments from raiding talent from less fortunate institutions.

High school football coaches from the big oil towns were combing the state trying to entice the good athletes to move to their cities. They found a promising young athlete, enticed him to play and, for good measure, threw in a job with an oil company for the lucky young man's

To eliminate the situation, the UIL initiated a rule forbidding athletes who moved to new schools from participating in varsity football or basketball for one "Nearly all areas of the state were recruiting students," said Dr. Bailey Marshall, director of the UIL. "Some towns

But after 45 years of vigorous enforcement of the one-year transfer rule, the UIL may be forced to alter the rule, or perhaps eliminate it completely. District Judge Harley Clark Monday begins taking testimony in a pre-trial hearing of a suit filed by the ACLU, charging the rule is unconstitutional.

The ACLU has asked for a jury trial. But Carla Cox, an assistant attorney general representing the UIL, said she would ask that Clark render a summary judg-

"I will definitely make a motion for a summary judgment," Ms. Cox said. "It is inappropriate to have a jury because the question deals with constitutionality." If the ACLU is successful, confusion

Snyder Tackle Gets Respect

By BOB BAJACKSON Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Who says offensive tackles don't get my respect. Certainly not, Snyder Coach

The Snyder Tigers currently are on top of district 3-AAA with a 4-1 record. But the Tigers haven't dominated any of their contests. Snyder has only outscored the opposition 55-49.

Thus, Jenkins credits left tackle Baron Land for Snyder's non-district success. "We run to Baron's side about 75 percent of the time," said Jenkins. "He's been able to open the holes when we have needed them the most."

Besides Land, Jenkins belives the Tigers' defense is a primary reason for Snyder's four victories.

"I know you must hear this every week, but we have been getting a good team effort," said Jenkins Since an opening 32-8 loss to Midland

Lee, the Tigers have only relinquished a total of 17 points in their last four games. What's wrong with Snyder's offense?

One of London's most notorious bachelors during the swinging '60s, Caine has done everything in his power to keep the lowest possible profile since his second marriage. And succeeded.

"The days of the personality stars are over," the tall, blond, blue-eyed British actor said during a break in shooting "Ashanti" in Sicily. "So I can, and I do, keep my home life and my professional life mpletely separate.

The expensive cigar, a sharp contrast to his rumpled blue and white bedouin-type attire and the makeup barely holding up under the 100-degree heat, is a trademark of the brash, deceptively tranquil-looking Cockney who came up the hard way, and remembers it.

His 10 bad years, spent correcting his East End accent despite the sneers of his neighbors, and grabbing every bit part that came along, ended in 1963 when he landed the role of an aristocratic British officer in "Zulu." And his "Alfie" days ended in 1973 when he married Shakira Baksh, a stunning model of Kashmiri descent who had come to London to represent British Guyana in the Miss World

He remains an almost mathematically professional actor with a variety of screen personalities for his fans, a very private off-screen personality for his family and friends, and one of the best incomes of any actor today.

Always militantly ambitious in comparison to most of his childhood friends, he thinks that at times a poor background can be added incentive to make it to the top. "If you come from a poor background, you know what there is to go back to," he said.

He has no desire to return to the streets of his youth. "If I did, I wouldn't find any building I knew left standing," he said. 'And there's no one I want to see there. During the time I was bad off, no one called me to ask if I needed a couple of quid. Only one person from that time we've known each other since age 14 - is my friend."

Now 45, Caine leads the life of a country gentleman. He centers his life on his wife and 4-year-old daughter, their 18th Century home at Windsor, his hobbies of gardening and collecting fine wines, and a tight circle of friends, most of them other actors who also "know what it is to have it rough."

He is an expert player of the stock market, likes good food and impeccably tailored clothes, speaks fluent French and "restaurant level" Spanish and Italian, and when in the mood pulls out an end-

The recorded telephone conversation was dubbed onto a videotape of a defendant, Valdik A. Enger, 39, a political affairs officer of the United Nations Secretariat. Enger and co-defendant Rudolf P. Chernyayev, 43, a personnel officer at the U.N., were arrested May 20.

The call allegedly was made to Lt. Cmdr. Arthur E. Lindberg, an American naval officer, who posed as a spy for an alleged Russian espionage ring.

Korchnoi's victory after 78 moves and nine hours of play narrowed the Soviet champ's lead to 5-4 and put the defector back in contention for the world chess title he has coveted for 15 years. The title goes to the first man to win six games.

Karpov, whose loss came in front of Soviet chess federation president and cosmonaut Vitaly Sebastianov, tipped over his king in the traditional gesture of resignation, signed his score card and stalked out of the playing hall.

"I feel a little tired," the 47-year-old Korchnoi told a gaggle of admirers seconds after signing his scorecard. "I don't know how I did it, I just did it."

Korchnoi, who at one point trailed 5-2 has won two consecutive games from the 27-year-old Karpov, a former teammate and now a bitter personal and ideological

'It was a miracle," Korchnoi's chief aide, Raymond Keene of Britain, said after the win.

Korchnoi disagreed. For hours Sunday morning, after an unusual early arising, he pondered the adjourned position looking for a winning line.

Karpov helped him. In the end game, he tried once again to play blitzing chess with the challenger. He failed, lost a piece advantage and virtually handed the victory to Korchnoi.

Behind 5-2 in the tournament just a week ago, Korchnoi's two consecutive victories had experts considering Sunday night he could stage one of the most spectacular comebacks in the history of the Clearly the sentimental favorite, Korchnoi received a lengthy, standing ovation from most of the sparse audience at his victory Sunday.

Three times during the game, Korchnoi was in severe time trouble, a chronic problem he has forced himself into during the tournament. But each time he moved swiftly and surely, once making five moves in less than a minute. Karpov, trying to match him move for move, faltered in the blitz-

At the end, Korchnoi was slowly advancing two queenside pawns, and had Karpov's knight pinned down. Karpov also had a rook, but the challenger had a rook and a bishop, both highly mobile.

The next game is scheduled for Tuesday. Karpov, however, could postpone it to Thursday if he felt he needed the time to try to stop the Korchnoi comeback.

the Garden State's mistreatment by the Federal Communications Commission in refusing to allocate a commercial VHF station for New Jersey.

The dominant theme was to endorse federal legislation to require the FCC to assign at least one commercial station for the state's 7.5 million residents.

"The lack of local television outlets has had a cumulative negative effect on the way the people of New Jersey perceive themselves and the place in which they live," said Robert Mulcahy, Gov. Brendan T. Byrne's chief of staff.

Stephen Salmore, director of Rutgers University's Eagleton Poll, found less than one-third of persons polled last, April could identify Clifford Case as a long-time U.S. senator from New Jersey.

"It is difficult, if not impossible, for New Jerseyans to be as fully informed as responsible citizens must be in this age of electronic information gathering." protested Marsha Kroll, executive director of the New Jersey Coalition for Fair Broadcasting.

It's not fair that New Jersey and Delaware are the only states without their own commercial stations, the TV advocates proclaimed.

Hendrix F. C. Niemann, publisher of New Jersey Monthly magazine, said viewers might not like "mindless, unprofessional 'happy talk' news" with its emphasis on murders, fires and other trage-

"It might be junk, but at least we'll be watching our junk, our fires and murders and not someone else's," he said.

But why not first let New Jersey Public Television and its new multi-million dollar expanded state news coverage gauge concern for daily television news?

'We're encouraged by the early response, but it will take about a year before we'll know for sure," said Albert Rose, NJPTV's program manager. The expanded coverage began in May.

Salmore, meantime, said a survey found Philadelphia stations have been giving south Jersey more air time than New York stations give north Jersey.

"This more intensive coverage, at least in the last several years, has resulted in a measurably higher level of political knowledge in southern New Jersey than in northern New Jersey," Salmore said.
