Officers Probe Kidnapping Of Singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Bruised, battered and choking from pantyhose tied tightly around her neck, country music singer Tammy Wynette was found staggering up a rural driveway after her release by a masked gunman she says tried to kill

State investigators said the blonde, 36-year-old singer told them she was abducted at gunpoint from a Nashville shopping center Wednesday afternoon and driven about 80 miles in her yellow Cadillac before being set free that night.

Miss Wynette said the gunman made no threats or demands for money and, after leaving her with her car, walked away and fled in another vehicle,

She was released in Giles County near the home of Junette Young, who said she cut a pair of pantyhose from around Miss Wynette's neck.

"She couldn't breath. It was real tight, in fact I had to cut it off," said Mrs. Young. "She just said, 'He tried to kill me. He tried to kill me. He tried to

Mrs. Young said the entertainer's neck was swollen but not cut.

"Her neck hurt real bad and her mouth hurt her where he had slapped her in the mouth," Mrs. Young said.

State Safety Commissioner Joel Plummer said Miss Wynette's condition did not appear serious and that she was treated at Giles County Hospital in Pulaski, Tenn.

'Apparently she was just slapped around some," Plummer said. "She just had bruises on her cheek and had scratches and bruises on her face and Miss Wynette, whose hits include "Stand By Your Man," "D-I-V-O-R-C-E" and, most recently, 'Womanhood," was voted top female vocalist by the Country Music Association in 1968, 1969, 1970 and 1972.

Authorities were first alerted to the abduction by Miss Wynette's fifth husband, record producer George Richey, who called Gov. Ray Blanton at the executive mansion to ask for help after his wife

Trooper Jerry Ferrell.

Ferrell, assigned to the mansion, said that at Blanton's orders, state investigative agents and troopers were pressed into service. The singer's ordeal began Wednesday afternoon when she got into her car at Nashville's Green Hills Shopping Center and discovered a masked gunman in the back seat, Plummer said. "He had already positioned himself in the back seat where she didn't see him until she was already in the car," Plummer said. "He was either wearing a mask or a sack over his head and had a pistol, which she decribed as a blue steel gun.' Mildred Lee, the singer's mother, said Miss Wynette was shopping for a birthday gift for her 8year-old daughter, Georgette. Mrs. Lee said Miss Wynette had left her car unlocked.

When she came back to the car, there was a man in the back seat," Mrs. Lee said from her daughter's Nashville home. "He threw something over her head and drove off.

Mrs. Young said Miss Wynette told her the man fled in a blue station wagon.

"All she knows is that they took off in a blue station wagon," Mrs. Young said. "She said his face was covered and he made her keep her head down. There was only one man in the car with her and she said she hid in the bushes until she was sure they weren't coming back."

Miss Wynette, a former beautician raised on her grandparents' Mississippi cotton farm, began her singing career after country music magnate Billy Sherrill heard a demonstration tape in 1966 and signed her to a recording contract.

about trying to hold down federal spending. The priorities of the country are not reflected in an 'old politics' bill like this

But Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., said the bill represented neither pork-barreling nor inflation, since "these projects will pay for themselves many times over. We should override this veto and override it overwhelmingly," he said.

Overall, the president has vetoed six bills, and only on the last two were there attempts to override him.

in a report that "pressures on food prices have eased in recent weeks, bringing some relief to consumers."

"However," it added, "the inflation rate for the year as a whole will show a clear acceleration from the rate of the past two years."

It takes more than one month to establish a trend, but prices were rising rapidly at all stages of food production.

Grocery store prices had remained steady in July and August, but the new report indicated more pressure on grocers to raise prices. Prices turned up after decreasing in August for processed poultry, vegetable oil and black pepper. Prices also went up, but less than in August, for pork, fish, dairy products, processed fruit and vegetables and flour-base mixes.

Wholesale prices declined for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables, eggs and milled rice. Roasted coffee prices were unchanged.

The wholesale price figures covered finished goods, or those almost ready to be sold to the consumer. The index for these products was 196.9, meaning that a product costing $100 in the base period of 1967 now costs $196.9.

Bush Asks Hike In Ag Exports

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Congressional candidate George Bush thinks the main feature of a national farm program should be "to get the State Department out of the business of selling agricultural products overseas."

Interviewed by The Avalanche-Journal editorial board this week, he said agricultural exports should be increased and government regulations affecting ranchers and farmers decreased.

"I'm often asked about agriculture," the Midland Republican said. "Will I represent agriculture and not just gas and oil? My answer is yes, definitely and strongly, because agriculture is so vital to the people I will be representing, not only to the farmers themselves but to all the towns and farm-related industries."

Bush said there should be a farm program "that does not encourage government involvement in farmers' lives like the OSHA regulations that threaten to shut down the cotton industry. That business has to be stopped."

Asked if most government agencies are responsive to congressmen, he said, "No, they are not. The way to keep federal agencies in line is to have civil service reform and to use the funding procedure to restrict the regulatory powers of the bur-

Plot To Steal Nuclear Sub Bared

ST LOUIS (AP) - It reads like the script for a best-selling spy thriller: Board a U.S. nuclear submarine, kill the crew, head for the high seas after firing a nuclear-tipped missile at an East Coast city and then turn the sub over to a buy-

But the FBI said the plot was real and one FBI agent said today the buyer "would have to be" a foreign government. On Wednesday, the FBI arrested two men in St. Louis and a third in Gene-

A spokesmen for the Navy in Washington, however, said it would be impossible for a small group of men to pull off such a plot.

Edward J. Mendenhall, 24, of Rochester, N.Y., appeared today in St. Louis before U.S. Magistrate David D. Noce, who set bond at $100,000 on a federal complaint of conspiring to steal the USS Trepang, based in New London, Conn. A preiminary hearing was scheduled Oct. 13.

Kurtis J. Schmidt, 22, of Kansas City, Mo., was to appear before Noce later in the day. The FBI said James W. Cosgrove, 26, of Ovid, N.Y., was arrested in Geneva and would also be arraigned today on similar charges.

Authorities said Schmidt, who used to live in St. Louis, and Mendenhall were arrested unarmed in their rooms at a downtown motel.

The FBI described Mendenhall as a married insurance company employee and Schmidt as an unmarried carpet

Hugh Higgins, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Rochester, said Cosgrove had been jailed over the weekend on a state charge of passing bad checks, but was released after posting bond.

The Finger Lakes Times newspaper in Geneva reported today that Cosgrove had worked until June at the nearby Willard Psychiatric Center. The newspaper said that before resigning from the state-run institution he had been one of five employees responsible for sparking a state investigation into allegations of patient abuse and administrative misconduct. New London Mayor Margaret Curtin said today she had been "reassured both the FBI and Navy were on the guard and vigilant" in connection with the plot.

In New Haven, Conn., FBI Special Agent John Devine said today that the buyer for the submarine "would have to be" a foreign government.

Devine said at least 20 FBI agents took part in the investigation after an agent 'heard of this on the street" during another investigation. He said the men involved in the alleged plot "certainly seemed sincere in their plans. It just doesn't seem realistic when you first hear of this type of scheme."

GROCERY DELIVERY BOY MAKES GOOD - Mario Custodio is shown in a scene from the movie "The Black Pearl," in which he stars as a 17-year-old Mexican youth growing up in a small fishing village. Custodio's career got under way back in 1974 when he was a grocery delivery boy on Manhattan's Upper East Side, who was spotted by movie producer Saul Swimmer. (AP Laserphoto)

Young Film Star's Success Story One Of Rags To Riches

NEW YORK (AP) - Back in 1974, Mario Custodio was "just a kid from the streets." When he wasn't playing football with his pals, he was delivering groceries on Manhattan's Upper East Side

Today, at 22, Mario Custodio is a star on the silver screen

It started at Gristede's, a supermarket on Madison Avenue and 68th Street, where Custodio used to work parttime.

Enter Saul Swimmer. Swimmer was a movie producer in search of a star. Along with his groceries, he says, he "grabbed Mario and handed him a script." It was simply a matter of the right looks. Even if Custodio knew the story of ana Turner, how she had been st in a drugstore and made into a Hollywood legend, he never imagined that kind of thing would happen to him.

In fact, the lad thought Swimmer was

"I didn't like the sound of it at first, and told nobody about it," Custodio says. Nonetheless, Custodio didn't have much to lose by zooming home to read the script. Soon he stopped toting grocery bags. The movie, "The Black Pearl," is based on the Newbery Award-winning novel by Scott O'Dell. It's the story of a 17-year-old youth growing up in a small Mexican fishing village. To become a respected man like his father, he learns to dive for pearls. The film's big scene is the young man's 20-minute underwater battle with a giant ray.

Custodio was no Mark Spitz; he could barely swim. And he had never been an actor, "not even in my wildest dreams," he says

"I didn't believe for a second that I was the guy Saul wanted." he adds.

Maybe he wasn't then. But, soon, he became just that.

Two weeks after reading the script, Custodio had a part in the film - although exactly what part Swimmer didn't quite know. As the producer puts it, "We had some problems with the first couple of screen tests. Custodio looked too hip and talked too much like a kid from the Bronx. I wanted less of the street boy and more of his natural innoc-

There were a couple of other candidates for the lead, but Custodio was asked to pack his bags and fly to Spain, where the film was to be shot.

By now, his doubts had turned to dreams. "I didn't care what part I got; I was in for the ride," he says. "Can you imagine what it meant for me, a street kid who had never left New York, to go to Europe to make a movie? Can you imagine how I felt just to be able to stop working at Gristede's, making only $25 a

One day after the shooting began, Custodio was chosen for the lead role. He looked the part, he worked hard at learn-

Swimmer explains: "His lack of experience as an actor became an advantage. Mario couldn't overact. Besides, he seemed progressively at ease in front of the camera, and since he had the perfect looks and was in top physical condition, all he needed was some coaching."

Custodio proved an ardent and adept student, rising at the crack of dawn for workouts in the sea, learning the craft of filming a movie, and, eventually, even submitting written suggestions for improving certain scenes.

Today, "The Black Pearl" is a real picture. No more doubts or dreams. It was initially released in areas with Hispanic populations such as Florida, Texas and California. The Dallas Film Festival rated it one of the best films of this year.

So far, Custodio has taken his instant stardom philosophically, insisting that it was worth it, even if "The Black Pearl" turns out to be "the beginning and the end of my acting career." Also, he's made it a duty to tell his former pals that what happened to me can happen to anybody." For several weeks, he toured high schools in the Bronx, shaking hands with the kids

Surely, it was worth it. Mario Custodio has been earning $1,000 a week already. and has signed a five-picture deal with Diamond Films, a Saul Swimmer film company based in New York. One of these films will be a sequel to "The Black

House Okays Conference Version Of Seniors Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House approved on Wednesday the final conference version of a bill that pumps $4 billion into a three-year extension of the Older Americans Act, including more meals-on-wheels for shut-ins and jobs for the needy.

The vote was 399-3. After Senate action, the bill will go to the White House for the president's signature.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman of the House Committee on the Aging, commended the bill as Congress' "renewed commitment to improve the lives of older people and to assure them a decent place in our society."

The bill authorizes $430 million for fiscal year 1979, $475 million for 1980, and $520 million for 1981 for all nutrition programs for the elderly. This would include food served to persons who cannot leave their homes and to those congregating at group centers such as churches or community halls.

According to congressional calculations, the new money would finance ll6,-000 meals daily for shut-ins during fiscal 1979; 145,000 in 1980; and 174,000 in 1981. Currently, the Older Americans Act funds less than 10,000 meals for those confined to their homes. But other federal programs also contribute to various efforts to feed elderly shut-ins.

The bill would appropriate $350 million to provide 87,500 jobs in fiscal year 1979; $400 million for 100,000 jobs in fiscal 1980; and $450 million for 113,000 jobs in

That compares what was made available this year: $190 million for 47,500

The slots will be filled by persons age 55 or over who need work and will become available in community service

Other programs include grants to states for transportation, legal and home health The bill also authorizes a White House

Conference on Aging in 1981 to focus on the problems confronting the elderly. Voting against the bill were Reps. Phil-M. Crane, R-Ill., James M. Collins, R-Tex., and Larry McDonald, D-Ga.

House Upholds Veto By Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House today narrowly sustained President Carter's veto of the $10.2 billion energy and water development bill, after furious White House lobbying overcame what had loomed as an almost certain over-

With scores of congressmen absent from the floor. House leaders attempted to re-pass the bill over the president's objection while the ink was still wet on his veto message. The Senate was regarded as sure to override had the House effort succeeded.

With the Democratic leadership in both the House and Senate lined up against him. Carter had dispatched several administration leaders to the Capitol on Wednesday and again today in a frantic, and successful, effort to win votes.

White House lobbyist Frank Moore acknowledged that "we're still making calls" just moments before the vote was

Carter had announced Tuesday he would reject the bill, calling it inflationary and a classic case of "pork-barrel" legislation that was $1.8 billion over his own budget recommendations for water resource development. The measure also contained $6.1 billion for energy research, but that part of the package was not at issue. The president, after buying an interim day's time to build his case - both publily and privately - signed the veto message earlier today. It was greeted with a loud chorus of hisses when it was delivered to the House floor.

"The question is one of fiscal responsibility," Carter said. "I urge you to help me control inflation and to set an example of leadership for the nation by supporting my veto.

Proponents of the measure argued that the 53 water projects in the bill - 27 more than Carter wanted - were crucial toward insuring adequate water supplies and flood control in the years ahead. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., and Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said that had the veto and override attempt come a day earlier, Carter would have lost. "I think we had them" said Wright of the chance of obtaining the necessary two-thirds vote. But the White House, he said, put on "a full-court

In the brief debate before the vote, Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., noted that O'Neill had said that Carter was "acting like an ostrich, putting his head in the sand." But Conte, to the cheers of the chief executive's supporters, declared "I submit to you that the president is acting like an eagle!"

Food Prices Up Sharply

food prices turned upward again last month, signaling a possible new round of increases at the grocery store, government figures indicated today

The Labor Department said wholesale food prices jumped 1.7 percent in September after two months of declines. It was the largest monthly increase since the 1.8 percent gain in April, when food prices were spiraling.

Over-all wholesale prices of finished goods rose 0.9 percent, also the biggest gain since April. Non-food items rose 0.6

The biggest increases were in wholesale prices for beef and veal. The higher costs of producing food are usually pas-

"However," it added, "the inflation rate for the year as a whole will show clear acceleration from the rate of the past two years."

It takes more than one month to establish a trend, but prices were rising rapidly at all stages of food production.

Grocery store prices had remained steady in July and August, but the new report indicated more pressure on grocers to raise prices. Prices turned up after decreasing in August for processed poultry, vegetable oil and black pepper. Prices also went up, but less than in August, for pork, fish, dairy products, processed fruit and vegetables and flour-base mixes. Wholesale prices declined for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables, eggs and milled rice. Roasted coffee prices were unchanged. The wholesale price figures covered finished goods, or those almost ready to be sold to the consumer. The index for these products was 196.9, meaning that a product costing $100 in the base period of 1967 now costs $196.9.

In Ag Exports

Congressional candidate George Bush thinks the main feature of a national farm program should be "to get the State Department out of the business of selling agricultural products overseas."

Interviewed by The Avalanche-Journal editorial board this week, he said agricultural exports should be increased and government regulations affecting ranchers and farmers decreased. "I'm often asked about agriculture,"

the Midland Republican said. "Will I represent agriculture and not just gas and oil? My answer is yes, definitely and strongly, because agriculture is so vital to the people I will be representing, not only to the farmers themselves but to all the towns and farm-related industries."

Bush said there should be a farm program "that does not encourage government involvement in farmers' lives like the OSHA regulations that threaten to shut down the cotton industry. That business has to be stopped."

Asked if most government agencies are responsive to congressmen, he said, "No, they are not. The way to keep federal agencies in line is to have civil service reform and to use the funding procedure to restrict the regulatory powers of the bur-

Kurtis J. Schmidt, 22, of Kansas City, Mo., was to appear before Noce later in the day. The FBI said James W. Cosgrove, 26, of Ovid, N.Y., was arrested in Geneva and would also be arraigned today on similar charges.

Authorities said Schmidt, who used to live in St. Louis, and Mendenhall were arrested unarmed in their rooms at a downtown motel

The FBI described Mendenhall as a married insurance company employee and Schmidt as an unmarried carpet

Standards Too High, Nessen Says

SEATTLE (AP) - If he had to do it all over again, former presidential press secretary Ron Nessen says he isn't sure he would promise reporters he would never lie to them or knowingly mislead them.

"I think I promised too much," said Nessen, a television reporter himself until he took over the White House post

Although Nessen said he is comfortable he lived up to the promise, he recalled a philosophy one predecessor, George Reedy, lived by: "You can tell all of the truth some of the time, some of the truth all of the time, but you can never tell all of the truth all of the time.' Nessen, here to promote his book, "It Sure Looks Different from the Inside," denied there were efforts to manipulate the press to gain favorable coverage.

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - The murder trial of Dr. Mario Jascalevich has been recessed pending a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court on whether it will consider the free press case of a New York Times reporter.

The Supreme Court may announce Monday whether it will hear an appeal by The Times and reporter Myron Farber, whose articles about mysterious deaths at a northern New Jersey hospital led to Jascalevich's indictment on murder

Farber and The Times have been convicted of contempt for refusing to surrender to Arnold notes made during the reporter's investigation.

The reporter, jailed for 27 days in August, faces an indefinite prison term unless he surrenders the notes or the high court intervenes. The sentence was suspended while the Supreme Court decides whether to hear the case.

Farber and The Times contend that surrendering the notes would violate a reporter's rights under the New Jersey shield law and the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. Jascalevich's lawvers say the defendant should have access to all evidence need for a fair trial guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment.

Panel On Ethics Makes Report

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House ethics committee has wound up its investigtion of the involvement of four House members in the South Korean influencebuying scandal by recommending that one member be censured, two reprimanded and one exonerated of any wrongdoing.

The final action came Wednesday when the panel voted to recommend that the full House reprimand Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., and when it decided no action was warranted against Rep. Edward J. Patten. D-N.J.

The panel last week had recommended that Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., be censured and that Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., be reprimanded.

The full House now must decide what action, if any, to take on the recommendations. A decision is expected next

Neither reprimands nor censure carry much weight on their own. Although censure is considered more serious - only one House member has been censured in this century - both amount to verbal slaps on the wrist. However, such disciplinary moves could set the stage for further actions by the Democratic Caucus. The caucus, for example, voted in 1976 to strip Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., of his seniority and thus of his chairmanship of a powerful subcommittee - after the full House reprimanded him for financial miscon-

The committee found that McFall violated House rules by failing to report a $3,000 campaign contribution from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park in 1974. It cleared him of accusations that he diverted the funds to his own use by placing them in his private office account. It also cleared him of a charge that his acceptance of the $3,000, plus an earlier $1,-000 and a silver tea set valued at $500 from Park, gave the appearance that the performance of his duties might have been affected.

McFall said the vote upheld his reputation for integrity and honesty and said the finding that he failed to report a campaign contribution was "a technical matter and point of law that is dispted by legal authorities.

The vote to exonerate Patten, accused of claiming that he made two $500 contributions to a New Jersey Democratic fundraiser when Park actually provided the cash for the tickets, came on an 8-0 vote.

Last week, the committee voted to seek the censure of Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., for his failure to report a $1,000 campaign contribution from Park. The panel is recommending a reprimand of Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., for not disclosing a $1,000 wedding present from U.S. Jewish organizations, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and other members of the U.S. Congress called on Soviet authorities to let Boris and Natalya Katz emigrate with their child, or at least let Jessica be sent to the United States for medical care.

Feeling Isn't Mucilage

CENSUS BUREAU survey takers reported this week that women, either married or postponing marriage for a career, now account for 41 percent of the 100 million member U.S. labor force.

Women are entering the employment market in ever greater numbers for a variety of reasons-to supplement family incomes in inflationary times, take advantage of expanding career opportunities in fields pre-viously closed to them or for the intellectual stimulation of professional activity.

Whatever the individual reasons, one of the far-reaching consequences is the shrinking of the pool of volunteers which a host of agencies devoted to good causes long has been accustomed to drawing upon for the bulk of their personnel.

THESE WERE the women who rang the doorbells, handled the telephones, drove the cars. Almost always for free.

As more and more of them turn their attentions to drawing paychecks rather than stuffing envelopes, many agencies which relied upon them are having to curtail their activities. The realistic among them, however, are restructuring their operations to adapt to the changed situation.

The Junior Leagues, for one example of the latter, saw the change coming some years ago. In 1951, approximately 9 percent of League membership consisted of professionals, either working women or students.

Currently, according to news columnists, this group is estimated to account for more than 30 percent of total membership.

Adapting to their new occupational profile, the Leagues have changed their emphasis from an outlet for the interests of a socially elite group of women and broadened the scope of activities.

SOME PROGRAMS are structured to permit employed women to participate in nonworking hours. Volunteer activities are tailored to assist participants in career prepara-

There is also a trend toward tapping a new reservoir of volunteer help-retirees, both women and men. These are not only numerous and eager to remain active, but often bring special skills to volunteer work.

The organizations that seem to be hurting the most now, League spokeswomen say, are those which did not foresee the coming change and restructure to meet it.

As it is turning out, the days of an unlimited supply of unpaid envelope stuffers appears to be nearing an end. But volunteer work, once it adjusts to the change, is likely to be the healthier for it.

Earl Raines, executive director of the Pasadena Community Services Commission, is different,

In the spring issue of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's Civil Rights Digest, in an article titled "Behind the Cello Player," Raines reports on a questionnaire he sent to 135 American symphony orchestras.

OF THE 89 symphony orchestras answering Raines, he learned that among these 6,800 musi-cians no orchestra employed more than 10 minor-ity players—including blacks, browns, Indians,

Half of the responding orchestras reported that at least one member of an ethnic minority serves on their boards. An additional 38 percent reported no minorities on their boards.

The remaining 12 percent either failed to answer the question on minority participation on their boards, or-in one case-reported, "We don't think that way."

Well, I say "congratulations!" to this one sym-phony that had the courage to tell Raines, in effect, to take his questionnaire and shove it. In his article, Raines blames "overt acts of ra-population.

HE SAYS THAT "a long history indicates that minorities have been bypassed in the orchestras' recruitment and employment programs."

In an interview, Raines tells me that this "appalling picture (exists because there has been) rampant racism" in symphony orchestras for the past 50 to 100 years.

When I ask if he can give me the name of one qualified individual who was either denied a posi-tion with a symphony orchestra or was fired from one because of his or her ethnic or racial identity, Raines replies:

'No orchestra in its right mind would admit this. No one will admit this exists. We're caught in a vicious circle in this country where there's no system whereby conditions are open for people to become qualified."

WHEN I PRESS him, noting that if this racism is as rampant as he says, it should be no problem to come up with the name of one person so I can investigate his allegation, Raines says he doesn't have such a name "in his head."

He suggests I check with either the Equal Op-portunity Employment Commission or the Civil

BEFORE THEY GO along any further with President Carter's attempts to throttle the American economic system, members of Congress would do well to read William E. Simon's new

In "A Time For Truth," the former Secretary of the Treasury and onetime energy czar explodes the myth that wage and price controls are the way to whip inflation.

In fact, Simon says, governmental interference in the free market system and the liberals' refusal to limit federal spending and balance the budget are at the root of what many conservative economists fear will lead the U.S. to economic

With his energy package, the "voluntary" antiinflation guidelines he's working on and other welfare state proposals, President Carter is exacerbating the underlying problems even while giving lip service to fiscal responsibility.

"FREEDOM IS difficult to understand because it isn't a presence but an absence—an absence of governmental constraints," Simon writes in setting the stage for his rebuttal, in laymen's language, of economic policies which have prevailed in the U.S. for nearly 50 years.

American capitalism, he says, creates 28 percent of the total production of the human race with only 5 percent of the world's population.

Yet, what too many people fail to understand, he adds, is that "it is precisely the absence of conscious planning that accomplishes the mira-

By contrast, socialist and welfare states operate under a common characteristic that calls for central planning to "correct" free market processes. Simon quotes from Winston Churchill in 1945: "I am sure that this policy of equalizing misery and organizing scarcity instead of allowing diligence, self-interest and ingenuity to produce abundance has only to be prolonged to kill this

"IN THE UNITED States," Simon asserts, "a population accustomed to historically unprecedented liberty now is ruled almost exclusively by a political-social-intellectual elite that is committed to the belief that government can control our complex marketplace by fiat better than the people can by individual choice and that is ideologically committed to social democracy or demo-British island stone dead."

Drawing on his experience as energy czar after the Arab oil embargo of 1973, Simon says federal price controls and other governmental actions, here and abroad, created an artificial energy

"It takes an immense resistance to logic and fact to know that one cannot simultaneously control prices, inflate costs, ban production, increase taxes, grant counterproductive subsidies-and expect healthy, vigorous production to result," he

Simon adds: "Government control of production results in artificial shortages which produce crises and, if not corrected, it will culminate in a drive to economic dictatorship. The principle is

I DO NOT RECALL that Simon particularly distinguished himself as a high official in the Nixon and Ford administrations.

However, he boasts that he was "endlessly described as a political 'Neanderthal' and as an 18th-century economist', the New York Times being especially fond of that line," and thus his credentials as a conservative, responsible thinker are impeccable.

There can be no question but that federal 'protectionism," economic planning and tinkering, deficit budgets and the belief that government has both the right and the responsibility to manage the citizenry's affairs for them are the cause of today's runaway inflation.

AS SIMON POINTS out in his book, which Bob Blake loaned to me, politicians refuse to accept the blame for the developing crisis and, in fact, their idea of "correcting" situations caused by their past mistakes is to add more controls.

Too often, he adds, conservatives give in to economic madness and fiscal irresponsibility by rationalizing that, if they don't, (1) they'll lose the elections to the liberals and (2) they'll get something a whole lot worse rammed down the country's throat.

"In life," Simon writes, "there are issues on which men may reasonably compromise and there are issues over which one must fight, even if one goes down in flames."

Kennedy 'Personally' Ok'd Tap

(Second in a series)

WASHINGTON-New disclosures revealed in the FBI's controversial surveillance of Dr. Martin Luther King include the effort of the late columnist Drew Pearson and associate, Jack Anderson, to deliver a political "death blow" to then Sen. Robert Kennedy, brother of the slain President, shortly before he was assassinated.

The politically charged revelation was dug out of the confidential FBI files involving King's Communist connections by Paul A. Fisher, one of Washington's top investigative reporters. His account, based on FBI documents obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, is as fol-

"Eleven days before the assassination of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a prominent national columnist told a Federal Bureau of Investigation official that the senator would receive "a death blow" prior to the Oregon primary.

The choice of words apparently was ill chosen and referred to the disclosure by the late Drew Pearson that Kennedy, then attorney general in his brother John's administration, authorized the FBI to conduct electronic surveillance on Dr. Martin Luther King.

IT WAS EXPECTED that this revelation would mortally damage the senator's Presidential campaign efforts. Sen. Kennedy was shot on June 1968, in the Hotel Ambassador in Los Angeles after celebrating his California and South Dakota presidential primary victories.

"In an internal FBI memorandum, dated May 21, 1968, Assistant Director C. D. DeLoach wrote to Associate Director Clyde Tolson that columnist Jack Anderson advised him Drew Pearson would publish an article on May 24, 1968, 'alleging' that Atty, Gen. Robert Kennedy ordered the FBI to place a wiretap on Dr. King.

"The article by Pearson appeared in The Washington Post and other newspapers on May 24. 1968. However, Pearson did not report the fact that Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach also authorized such surveillances on Dr. King for a number of months prior to his assassination of

"IN A MEMORANDUM to Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark on May 23, 1968, Hoover confirmed that Robert Kennedy 'personally approved' a wiretap on Dr. King 'as of October 10, 1963.'

The unanimous ruling by the New Jersey Casino Control Commission is expected to set a precedent by allowing potential developers to merge two or more hotels here for a casino complex.

The five casino commissioners clearly were impressed with Guccione's plan to join the modern, 391-room Holiday Inn on the Boardwalk and the 115-room Four Seasons Motel with a $22 million casino complex.

The new rebuilt and redecorated "Penthouse Atlantic Hotel" would house 500 rooms — the minimum required for a casino under New Jersey law — and a 32,900-square-foot casino. The project will cost more than $60 million, Guccione's representatives told the commis-

Architect David Jacobson promised the new building would upgrade the current Holiday Inn, considered a "first-class hotel," and the Four Seasons, a "good quality motel," into an "outstanding" hotel.

"I'm satisfied in my own mind that we're not dealing here with a patch-up job," commission chairman Joseph P. Lordi said as he voted for Guccione's plan. "It's quite obvious there's going to be a substantial improvement.

Lordi countered recent criticism of the project by state Sen. Steven P. Perskie, author of much of the casino law, who said it didn't comply with the intent of the gambling legislation to spur new hotel rooms in this resort.

Although not mentioning Guccione's plans by name, Gov. Brendan T. Byrne said he feared haphazard casino development would leave the resort looking "like a salt-water taffy box."

"We have not lost faith with the intent of this legislation when we approve this project," Lordi said.

savings certificates tied to six-month Treasury bill interest rates have created 'a new financial ball game." And he suggests adding some new players.

"It seems to be clear that if this experiment is judged a success in retrospect, then in the next period of tight money and high interest rates, we will see the same principle applied to other savings certificates, with flexible ceiling rates linked to comparable money-market instruments - one-year, two-year or fiveyear Treasury notes, for example," said Saul B. Klaman. president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, an industry group.

But Klaman warned that it was still too early to tell whether linking savings certificate interest rates to Treasury bill rates was entirely practical.

The six-month certificates were introduced June 1 to provide banks with an instrument to compete against other investments with higher yields than a normal savings account.

Many investors had left savings banks for stable, high-yield investments like municipal and corporate bonds. Savings institutions as a result found themselves low on available cash.

Klaman said savings flows are still "anemic," but have improved since the introduction of the savings certificates. But, he noted, "The jury is still out on how successful this noble experiment ...

has been. Klaman said the savings certificates have increased the cost to banks of new

"Clearly, the savings bank that elects to compete aggressively for funds faces an immediate impact on earnings," said Klaman, because it is forced to pay the higher interest rate on the certificates to more customers, many of whom switched into certificates from regular savings accounts.

Crane Trying To Duplicate Carter's Style

woman was deep in conversation with and Dan Hughes, the party's candidate her darkhaired friend when the man in the blue suit came up and said, "Hi, I'm Phil Crane. I'm running for president and I need your help.

They exchanged pleasantries, and as Crane moved on, the blonde turned to her friend and said: "Now if you do take up jogging, you ought to get a book don't get into trouble with your feet the way I did.'

Rep. Phillip Crane, R-Ill., 47, is running for President a year and a half before New Hampshire's first in the nation primary and he isn't exactly taking New England by storm. In point of fact, he is running 18 points behind "I don't know."

The New Hampshire Poll taken in late August gave Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan each 38 percent of the GOP primary vote, found 21 percent undecided, and three percent for Crane.

Which is probably a little better than Jimmy Carter was doing up here this far in advance of the 1976 primary.

Crane's goal is to duplicate Carter's win in the New Hampshire primary - a victory that has become larger than life as Carter moved into the White House.

Actually Carter won only 28.5 percent of the vote to finish first in the big Democratic field in 1976. Crane believes that something of that nature would serve him well in an expected crowded GOP field in 1980

"I think the Republican voters in New Hampshire are just about as independent minded as the Democratic voters were in the 1976 Democratic primary," Crane said in an interview as he was driven between campaign appareances one recent

"If you have a multiple candidate field up here, you could duplicate in the Republican Party what happened in the Democratic primary in 1976-namely one candidate winning because he had a plurality without necessarily getting a ma-Jority," he said.

Crane, a college professor turned politician, has one big thing going for him and against him in New Hampshire. He is conservative, maybe the most conservative member of Congress. The American Conservative Union, of which he is chairman, has given him a perfect 100 percent conservative rating ever since he came to Congress nine years ago.

Only six sitting Congressmen have that kind of conservative record.

That's fine as far as the philosophy of New Hampshire Republicans are conperned, but it runs smack into the potential presidential campaign of Ronald Reagan, who is the strong early favorite of the state's GOP leadership.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson and William Loeb, who some say runs the state as edifor of the statewide Manchester Union-Leader, have put their money on Reagan, and are purging the party of non-believ-

"To divide the strength of the conservative element at this time is nothing exeept insanity," Loeb said in a front page editorial when Crane announced. "You have to wonder what has happened to Crane's brain.

"The very safety and survival of of our nation is at stake, and sensible people have no time for silly political games such as Phil Crane is playing," Loeb said.
"He should be ashamed of himself."

"Someone told me 'gee, Bill Loeb must still like you, he wasn't half as rough as he could have been," Crane said when asked his reaction to the editorial.

Crane's long identification with conservative groups and his actions like lead-ing the fight to save the Panama Canal, have paid off in some early supporters in New Hampshire. They haven't endorsed him, but Gordon Humphrey, the conserv-

Residents Of What Cheer, Iowa, Sad

By RICHARD H. GROWALD WHAT CHEER, Iowa (UPI) - Mayor Delmar McKay took off his red Crow Seed Co. cap and scratched his head. "What cheer in What Cheer? Hmmm..." he said.

Mrs. Byrne Custer, city clerk, leaned back from her desk in front of the fivefoot wooden cross on the wall. What Cheer's city hall burned last year and the community has been run since from what was once the storefront Church of the Open Bible.

"Our circumstances are so sad, it's hard to think of cheer in What Cheer," Mrs. Custer said. She laughed.

The mayor, the clerk and two widows of the town, Mrs. Elma Nanke and Mrs. Oscar McDonald, were spending their lunch hour discussing their 113-year-old

A century ago What Cheer - two words pronounced "Watcher" in one syllable - was a boomtown. Sitting in southeastern Iowa, it had the state's largest coal deposits and a population that neared 10,000. The coal went and the

"Now we've got a population of 868," Mrs. Custer said. "That's up by 15 since the last census. Hooray for progress." 'Now old Bob McClume, he always gave me cheer," the mayor said... 'Wonderful fellow," said the widow Nanke. "He was so cheap he wired his eyeglasses together when they broke." "He gave $1,000 to the United Presbyterian Church," the widow McDonald said. The two women sat across a table from the mayor and the clerk and in front of a 6-by 3-foot stack of used clothes.

"These clothes are better than what Bob McClume wore," Mrs. Nanke said, The mayor nodded. "Bob did go in for stitched up bib overalls," he said.

The mayor smiled. "Remember how he was always buying a new Lincoln Continental, him dressing like a bum. Remember how he used to drive his pigs around in the new cars?"

Mayor McKay said that McClume. when asked why he chauffeured pigs to market in a limousine, explained, "The pigs paid for it: they can ride in it."

A millionaire was Bob McClume, said Mrs. McDonald. "And he knew about the tax assessors."

"Well, ves," the mayor said. "He had land here in Keokuk County and also land overlapping into Iowa and Poweshiek Counties. So when any one of the county tax assessors came by, he would move his cattle into another county until the assessor went away."

The mayor and the widows laughed. "But Bob McClume's dead," Mrs. Custer said. "What cheer in What Cheer?"

Outside a pickup rumbled down Main Street, past the Tic Toc movie house which opens for one show each on Saturday and Sunday, past Pam's Cut And Curl beauty parlor, down beyond the service station and into the feed store parking lot. The vehicle made bumping noises as it moved, n

What Cheer's most notable early noise came shortly after British-born coal operator Peter Britton founded the town in 1865 and named it Petersburgh. A fellow town father, founding the post office, dis-liked Britton's cult of his own personality and named the post office - and thus the town - What Cheer from the expression of greeting used by English and Welsh immigrant coal miners. Britton vainly made noises

"Ah, What Cheer," said Mrs. Custer. "The streets, sewers and sidewalks are in bad, bad shape and we haven't any money to fix them. What Cheer has got only $1,000 in the bank."

She gestured a coffee cup toward the mayor. "I don't believe Delmar's been paid. We pay our mayor $185 every quarter. We missed the mayor's last quarter, I think," she said.

The mayor, who earns his living selling seed, smiled. Mrs. Nanke said, "He might not have been paid by the city but he just built himself a new house.

McKay turned to the grinning widow. 'You want to be mayor, Elma? Go right ahead. It's yours. You be mayor.

Mrs. Nanke shook her head. "No. Delmar, I don't want to be mayor. I don't need a new house. Even the mayor laughed.

The trouble with What Cheer is that we got too many elderly people and not enough young people bringing in the money we can tax," he said.

"This is a bedroom city. That's what What Cheer's future is. Folks live here and work in other big places, like Oskaloosa. Youth has gone and we've got to get more of them. We are. New houses are going up. The house that would cost you $60,000 in Oskaloosa costs you only $40,000 here," the mayor said.

"That's nice, Delmar," the clerk said. "But what about our sidewalks. We can't very well make the businessmen here repair their sidewalks because the city can't afford to fix its own sidewalks."

She smiled. "We have seven churches and three taverns in What Cheer. We also got the old Opera House where Frank Sinatra Jr. just played," Mrs. Custer said.
"Guy Lombardo played the Opera House 16 times. It seats 600. Best thing in southeast lowa," the mayor said.

"Guy Lombardo, yes. But remember that during the coal boom - before it gave out and the population shrank — the good city fathers wouldn't let the Boston girls play at the Opera House. They said the girls were too beautiful and would over-excite our youth," the clerk said.

Well, what's excitement now? Over in the tavern they got up a petition to save the city bandstand. The fellow who presented the petition to the council was drunk, blind drunk. So we've still got the bandstand: but it's in such bad shape no band can play on it."

Mrs. McDonald said real trouble came with the June 1977 fire. Lightning struck the old city hall and the next door funeral home. "Yes, and there was a body in the burning funeral home. We got it out and the city hall records, too," Mrs. Nanke

Mrs. Custer said the older residents -"And that's what we're rich in, older residents" - had an auction recently and raised $1,117 for a new civic center. "It will cost $60,000 for the materials, if we do the work ourselves," she said.

"More like $100,000," the mayor said. He and the clerk discussed how best to fetch money from Washington and Des Moines. Mrs. Custer took time out to swat a hornet. The mayor sighed.

Poor hornet. It just came inside because fall is here. It's going to get cold and everything's looking for a home," he

Mrs. Nanke turned to Mrs. McDonald and said, "Got your new glasses?" She lifted them from the other widow's head and tried them on.

Mrs. Nanke's blue eyes appeared to double in size through the glasses. She waved her arms and shouted, "Good heavens! These glasses are like a cheap drunk! Wild! Wild!"

Mrs. McDonald retrieved her eyeglasses and primly put them back on.

The mayor, enjoying the scene, said nothing. No politician worth his office is going to step between two widows. Mrs. Custer, however, gave the widows a glance and began talking loudly about the used clothes stacked against a wall. "The senior citizens are going to sell them for the new civic center." she said.

Mrs. Nanke smiled. "Senior citizens. You mean the widows. Certainly, some farmers retire and come to town, like John White and Keith Slater, who have opened more antique shops.

"But What Cheer is big in is widows," the widow said.

"Last night, getting to sleep, I didn't count sheep. I counted widows in What Cheer. Got to 47 before I dropped off," she said.

The mayor changed topics. He discussed the cheer brought by the plentiful corn and soybean harvests in the fields around What Cheer. He mentioned livestock, cattle and pigs. The mention of pigs got the room talking again. "My cousin was bitten bad, awful bad by a sow," the mayor said.

"A sow ate up a What Cheer boy." Mrs.

"And Shirley Kappel's boy was bit all to pieces." Mrs. Nanke said.

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The most remarkable thing about the upcoming 30th birth-day of the Prince of Wales is that he celebrates it as a bachelor despite the most concentrated attack on the freedom of a young man in our time.

For a decade or so many of the most beautiful women in the kingdom - and elsewhere — have been pursuing the Heir to the Throne, some of them in the hope of a future as the Queen of England and others with lesser, more transient ambitions. A goodly number have caught up with him — or it is vice versa? — but he still appears to be firmly fancy free.

Birthdays are usually family affairs in the House of Windsor. Buckingham Palace would ordinarily have expected Queen Elizabeth to preside over a lunch for her son and heir on his birthday, Nov. 14. there or at Windsor Castle. But the date coincides with the start of a four-day state visit by President Antonio Namaho Eanes of Portugal - Britain's oldest ally - so they may settle for something infor-

Charles, gradually learning more and more of the mechanics of the throne, will play a prominent role in the state visit.

And, when that is over, impatient unofficial matchmakers will wait to see with whom his name is next linked though the list of girls past is already long enough to indicate he has inherited the eye, if not also the stamina, of his fickle ancestor King Henry VIII.

Soft Drink Firm Aims For Top

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) - Watch out Coke and Pepsi. Stand back Royal Crown and Shasta. The over-the-hill gang is in the cola business.

Vowing to have the best-selling soft drink within a decade, a group of former Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola executives has banded together to form King-Cola Corp. - a company whose leaders average 62 years of age and total 188 years in the soft drink business. Their senior member, at a chipper 82, is Walter S. Mack. He was the first president of Pepsi-Cola, ran the Nedick's hot dog chain and has headed several other companies. Building on what he learned at Pepsi, Mack says he thinks he can revolutionize the soft drink business - and put the now-fledgling company on top.

"I hope to be No. 1 within 10 years," he says. "There's no reason I shouldn't be. Because what we're doing is giving the public the best cola drink at the lowest

Whether King-Cola will be the besttasting is a subjective thing, but its pedigree is impeccable. The man who came up with the drink's formula is Thomas Elmezzi, a former chief chemist and 43-

Whether it will be cheaper is to judge. Mack says he can undercut other soft drink makers by using modern marketing

The key is dispensing with the tradi-tional system of making the drink at hundreds of bottling plants throughout the country. Franchised for a particular geographical area, these bottling plants generally deliver the finished product directly to stores - a distribution system Mack thinks is a waste of money.

What he wants to do is make the King-Cola at 29 bottling plants, each assigned to a particular region — a Kingdom, of course — then distribute the drinks to centralized warehouses of grocery chains and let the chains bring the soda to individual stores.

"What I am doing is going to bring the cola industry up to date," says Mack. What I'm simply going to do is deliver King-Cola at minimum cost, the way Campbell's soup and Heinz ketchup do deliver it in truckloads to grocery ware-

According to Mack, that will result in a hefty saving to consumers. He says a sixpack of King-Cola will cost between $1.09 and $1.19, compared to the $1.59 to $1.89 consumers pay for Coke, Pepsi, Royal Crown, Seven-Up, and other brands which, because of perpetuating agreements with their bottlers, are locked in the old system.

About the only large competitor not distributing product that way is C&C Cola - a regional brand in the East. C&C doesn't use that system because Mack founded it about 15 years ago as a test of the concept he's using to market King-Cola. He later sold C&C.

The market Mack sees for King-Cola is about as far away from the Pepsi Generation as Mack himself. He refers to prospective customers repeatedly as "our families." Defining that further, he says, "Our people, the people we're going to cater to, isn't the wild surfing crowd. ... The American family, the people who are the backbone of this country - they're our public.

King-Cola already is signing up distributors, and Mack says there have been 200 applicants for the 29 Kingdoms. The drink already has been test marketed in Indianapolis. National distribution of both King-Cola and Slim-King, a diet version, is set for January 1979. The introduction will be heralded with an advertising campaign using the slogan "Twice as Nice! Less in Price!"

The first national political conventions in the United States was held in 1831 by the short-lived Anti-Mason Party.

believes Charles is in no hurry to choose a bride. He was widely and anonymously quoted by one source as saying: "It's one thing to pop into bed with a pretty girl, it's another to make your life with her.' The identity of this source is well known and where Charles is concerned he speaks with authority.

If there were any doubters, they were stilled by another who must be accepted as knowing how Charles' views his romantic future - the lovely Lady Sarah Spencer, 23, who spent a holiday with him (and friends) in Switzerland. Lady Sarah is the daughter of wealthy Earl Spencer whose forthcoming sale of family silver may gross nearly $5 million. She is kin to the Duke of Marlborough and the late Sir Winston Churchill. They don't come much more eligible than that.

Asked if she had drawn any conclusions from her holiday, Lady Sarah wiped out the chances of all of Charles's 1978 crop of

And she speaks as a member of that small group — the daughters of the aris-tocratic families — who, in the prince's words, "do know what happens" in royal palaces and thus would be the preferred category from which he might select his

It takes the right kind of background to accept the restrictions of living in a pageant, although the anonymous royal source seemed to think an American would be possible - he said it was a pity there was no one around like Princess Grace (Kelly) of Monaco.

Notwithstanding the signs pointing the other way, the British media are manfully trying to find Charles a bride. They have revived Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxemburg, who was their hot favorite when Buckingham Palace was insisting he had hardly met the lady. This time the story is that they will both be guests of King Baudouin of Belgium at Laekan eligible in every way except religion. She is a Roman Catholic and Charles must marry in the Church of England.

Norman St. John Stevas, a prominent member of the Conservative party in Parliament, recently wrote in the Cathol-ic newspaper The Universe that Charles should be free to marry a Roman Catholic without having to give up the throne. Charles has dated Catholic girls and was once reported to have lightheartedly remarked to a Catholic bishop: "All the girls I really like are Roman Catholics.

What are you going to do about it?"

He was charged by a Vatican source with being "cheeky" when he complained about the "needless distress" of some Catholic religious rulings — taken to refer to the fact Catholic divorcee Baroness Marie-Christine von Reibnitz was refused permission to marry his cousin, Prince Michael of Kent, in church. They had a civil ceremony instead.

Charles' most recent escort is consi dinner and a dance. She is pretty Eliza-beth Manners, 19, niece of the Duke of Rutland. Charles met her at the Rutland stately home to which he was no stranger since he had previously dated one of the duke's daughters. Elizabeth is also being courted by the Marquis of Blandford, heir to the Duke of Marlborough.

Blandford appears to be a sultor, Charles is the good friend. In any event he is more interested at the moment in ne is more interested at the moment playing the field. There are recurred suggestions the queen may abdicate in his favor, so he will not suffer the fate of his great great grandfather, Edward VII.

'78 Auto Sales Up

congratulating their dealers and brushing off warnings that their record-shattering 1978-model sales will hurt them next

The industry reported Wednesday that it had sold 15.3 million cars and trucks in the model year ended Sept. 30, easily surpassing the old record of 14.9 million vehicles set in 1973

Some Wall Street analysts have said the industry was selling too many cars for its own good, and that sales were being stolen from next year. But the industry has said all along that the rebound in sales after a winter slump was a normal reflection of growth in the economy.

With the flaming vehicle only 15 feet away, passengers knocked out the bus windows and climbed to safety.

She said the first time he was put in the dryer, he was being punished for not learning his numbers. After the two put him in the dryer and tumbled it, they told him to try to learn the numbers again, she testified.

Students Want To Be Popular

DENVER (UPI) - A survey of Colorado high school students shows being popular is more important to them then getting good grades or "being in the newspaper or on TV."

In fact, school officials said, getting good grades ranked only ninth — slightly ahead of "being smiled at" - on a list of 15 types of recognition the high school youngsters would like to get. Being publicized in the newspaper or on television ranked last.

The State Board for Community Colleges and Occupational Education said it surveyed students at four high schools and asked each of them to choose the types of recognition they would most like

Arabian Capital Booming

By ARTHUR HIGBEE RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — In 30 years Saudi Arabia's desert capital of Riyadh has been transformed from a dusty village to a dusty modern city.

It is dusty with the desert winds and with the endless construction projects that have turned the old oasis into a permanent boom town. Cranes tower over the minarets on the skyline.

The streets are not paved with gold. But they are not potholed either. Rivadh is a quintessential Arab city - newer, rawer but with the same mosques, markets, traffic jams and brilliant sunshine.

Yet there is a different feel about the place. There are almost no camels, donkeys or sheep in the streets. Except for the small old quarter around the red mud fort where the late King Ibn Saud launched his conquest of the Arabian peninsula in 1902, all of the buildings are

A dozen years ago the catch about all those new buildings was that they looked impressive from a mile away but were simply depressing close up. Buildings began to fell apart before they were completed. The typical brand-new office, palace or hotel was disfigured with cracked plaster, peeling paint, ill-fitting doors, shoddy or missing fixtures and bad maintenance.

Jerry-built, poorly maintained build-ings still exist but the newer constructions are as solidly put together and as elegantly maintained as anything in the industrial world.

The souk, or central market, is as homely and crowded as the souks of Cairo, Damascus or Baghdad. But there are no peddlers banging copper cups together to draw attention, and no beggars, not even any barefoot waifs.

Merchants in the shops are polite but unwilling to bargain even if this costs them a sale. In short, not everyone in Riyadh is rich, but nobody is poor. With no poverty, and with draconian law enforcement, the crime level is low. Thieves still get their right hands cut off. Last week three youths were publicly beheaded in a village near Riyadh for raping a shepherd

The average Riyadh family lives in a tiny concrete or stucco row house, white, light gray or tan, behind a high wall. Every Englishman's home is his castle, but every Saudi's home is his fortress. Home life is focused inward. Balconies are for decoration, not for observation.

Every family has running water, electricity, a stove and a television set. Many also have refrigerators and washing ma-

The single color television channel features old and new American television series like "Marcus Welby" and "Charlie's Angels" plus children's programs, wrestling. Arab orchestras with wailing, throbbing music (but no belly dancers) and frequent readings from the Koran.

For foreigners, life in Riyadh can be a bit of a drag. There are tennis courts and swimming pools, but no movies or nightclubs. There is a lot of partying and even some discreet drinking despite the antialcohol laws. American and European nurses from King Faisal hospital go out on dates but they have to be back by mid-

Unlike a dozen years ago women are frequently seen in public. Saudi women go veiled but foreign women, even from other Arab countries, go unveiled.

Woman Fooled Everybody To Get Jobs

MILWAUKEE (UPI) - For 24 years Mitzi Dufner called herself "Michael" Dufner, dressed and acted like a man and said she fooled everyone she knew into believing she was a man.

"In the 1950s it seemed to be easier for men to get jobs. The pay was better too,' said Miss Dufner, 44.

She said she worked for 16 years at a motel in Wauwatosa, where everyone thought she was a man. She also worked in a factory and the stout, strong featured woman looked enough like a man to fool her co-workers.

Her true sexual identity was not revealed until she was arrested last week on charges of stealing a bag of money from her employer at the motel.

She appeared in court this week minus a blond mustache and wispy beard she has had for years because she thought it "might be better for me it I didn't have them in court."

"The people at Holiday Inn couldn't believe it." said Detective Thomas Kornacki, who arrested Miss Duffner, "He was around there a long time and a lot of people knew him...I mean her. But no one ever figured it out."

Because of a population flight, the city has shrunk to an estimated 100,000 people from 150,000. More than half the stores are shuttered, the owners having bribed, boated or swam their way to Thailand across the Mekong River fron-

The refugee exodus - estimated at more than 150,000 since mid-1975 - has been a major problem for this Indochinese nation of about three million people. Virtually the entire Vientiane elite, including badly needed doctors. engineers, civil servants and factory managers, has fled and the flow continues at the rate of more than 2,500 a month.

"My gardener went across the river last month, our maid just took off and I'm sure our cook will go when we leave here." said a European diplomat in Vi-

Western sources here say the dispatch of people to re-education camps has slowed but people now fear being sent to farming cooperatives and also escape because of economic hardships.

Many of the refugees end up across the river at a Thai camp in Nong Khai which has been dubbed "Gittle Vientiane" and is complete with food markets. silversmith stores that were once the lure of Vientiane and even a "refugee photo studio.

Besides the difficulties involved in transforming Laos into a socialist state, the country has been badly hit by poor weather which has wrecked agricultural output. Rice, the national staple, has been in short supply here for several months and many have been forced to get by on meager rice rations and a gruel from international donations of wheat which Laotians generally do not know or like.

A drought last year left Laos with a large food deficit. The United Nations appealed for 113,000 tons of food grains of which 87,200 tons have been pledged by Scandinavian countries, the Soviet lands and other nations. But hardly had this crisis been tackled when floods struck southern Laos and elsewhere.

Gunnar Asplund, the chief of the U.N. development program in Laos, said the long-term goals are prevention of such disasters and the development of Laos' agricultural base, the generation of foreign currency through exports and general improvement in the standard of living. The yearly per capita income has been estimated at $90, one of the lowest in the world.

Laos has not been shy about asking for international aid, including that from non-communist nations. With 25 embassies. Vientiane still maintains the most politically varied diplomatic corps in Indochina although the Western presence has been scaled down. of rice to Laos, the Laotians late last month turned over the remains of four American fliers killed in the war to a U.S. congressional group and American diplomats say they feel much more at ease here than they did last year when petty harrassment and pressure were reported-

In the Vientiane area, several hundred Soviet technicians and experts have replaced Americans expelled in mid-1975, while Chinese road builders and troops are in Laos' northern provinces. Vietnam, which has strong ties with Laos and a warm supporter in Laotian Premier Kaysone Phomvihane, keeps 20,000 to 40,000 troops in southern Laos, according to Western intelligence re-

Western sources say the Vietnamese have been involved in helping Laos put down the toughest insurgency in Indo-china, especially the Meo tribesmen in remote, mountainous areas. A number of lowland Laotian groups, some operating from Thailand, also have made life difficult for central authorities trying to grapple with the country's problems

Experts on Indochina say the communist government in Laos has neither been as organized as Vietnam's nor as brutal as that in Cambodia, although 60,000 Laotians may be detained in camps and the London-based Amnesty International human rights organization has expressed concern about human rights violations

Micronesia Nicknamed Paradise With Zip Code

By SHIRLEY MAAS FOCKLER PONAPE, 96941 — Paradise with a zip code. That's the nickname island buffs have given Micronesia, a collection of 2,-141 atolls and high green islands sprinkled across 3,000,000 square miles of the Pacific west of Hawaii. All are under the American flag, so letters bound for places with such names as Babelthaup, Eauripik and Ailinglapalap bear the zip codes 96940, 96943 and 96960, respec-

Micronesia means "small islands," a most appropriate name, since the 2,141 islands together total just 700 square miles of dry land, an area roughly half the size of Lubbock County. One hundred islands are inhabited, and less than two dozen accessible by either jet or small plane. Mail comes to the others by slow

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL

Modern Micronesians live in villages. Indeed, there's nothing vaguely resembling a city in the Trust Territory or Northern Marianas, and travelers shouldn't head for the area expecting an orderly, posh, well-manicured world. These islands are generally adventurous, rustic places and that's precisely why island buffs call them "paradise."

A decade ago, travel to and within Micronesia was a slow, uncertain ordeal, but now you can jet from Honolulu to six kev islands plus Guam via Air Microne-

First stop on the Air Micronesia route is Majuro, a 35-mile-long atoll in the Marshalls. If you love to swim, snorkel, scuba, sail, shell and beachcomb in general, you may never tear yourself away from the transparent waters of Majuro's coralrich lagooon.

Stop two is high, rugged, lush Ponape in the Eastern Carolines. Some deem it the Pacifics's most beautiful island, but even those who dispute this point agree it's one of the wettest.' Kolonia town weather station records 182 inches annually, but hidden interior peaks and vallevs probably get twice that. The rains result in rivers, waterfalls and numerous "old swimming holes" which locals prefer to the sea for swimming.

Pepper, a local crop, is a great gift buy here, particularly when packed with a "Ponape Pepper" label, while sakau, a slightly anesthetizing popular local drink made from a root, is something every visitor should try. Once.

Ponape's mystery is the ruined city of Nan Madol, a Venice-like maze of canals and tumbled-down temples and walls built of enormous basalt slabs. Legend places its construction in the 13th centu-

At Ponape you can switch from a jet to a nine-passenger plane for a 300-mile sidetrip to Kosrae (formerly called Kusaie). Once a lusty whaling port and briefly base for the buccaneer Bully Hayes, Kosrae rivals Ponape in beauty. It has no hotel, so you'll have to arrange for a bed in a private home. Truk is the third jet stop. A circle of coral here encloses a great lagoon, 40 miles across, and 11 high islands. The lagoon is a magnet for scuba fans seeking adventurous diving over the sunken hulks of the Japanese Imperial Fourth Fleet that went to the bottom here on Febru-You'll reach the Trust Territory dis-

MEMORABLE MOMENTS - Mr. and Mrs. Tom O'Donnell of Lubbock, during a visit to Micronesia, enjoyed exploring some of the Rock Islands near Koror. The unique formations appear like great green mushrooms. (AP Laserphoto)

Local Resident Fondly Recalls Trip To Island

It's my favorite island," said Tom O'Donnell. "It is the best place for experiencing what native island life in the Pacific was like a century ago." O'Donnell regional director for Continental Airlines, was recalling a trip he and his wife made to the isle of Koror in the Palau island group of Micronesia. Koror is a completely unspoiled place. It's now what Hawaii probably was 50 or 60 years ago The Lubbock resident described the island of Koror as having few roads; those roads are unpaved. The islanders wear little clothing: the men wear loin cloths, and the children run around au natural.

Most of the natives exist on what nature naturally provides. They gather cocoanuts from the trees, plus fruits and vegetables that grow without cultivation. Fishing and clamming are traditional Common shelters for the islanders are houses that have thateh roofs, open sides, and hard dirt floors. Except for a modern Palau Continental Hotel, the island is untouched by progress.

Visitors to Koror rely on shell collecting, fishing, sailing or snorkeling to fill their days. A full day boat tour features the Floating Garden Islands; a trip to the township of Koror includes a visit with storyboard carvers. The island has the finest museum in Micronesia. It houses handicrafts of Micronesia culture as well as photographs of the historic days of World War II.

"Koror isn't a place for swinging night life." cautioned O'Donnell, "because everybody goes to bed when it gets dark. It's a place for complete relaxation and for enjoying some of the most beautiful scenery in the world." He added, "The

California's Samoans Want To Go Home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Sam Asoau is a school bus driver by day and a security guard by night. At age 20, with a wife and infant daughter, he is anxious to move along in his plans — to accumulate $40,000 and return home.

Home is American Samoa, 3,900 miles across the Pacific Ocean, and Asoau is one of perhaps 30,000 or 79,000 — there is no firm count - Samoans living in California. The Samoans are a unique immigrant group, for they are Americans before they arrive in the United States, by virtue of the trust terrority status of their homeland

And, unlike many migrants to these shores, whereas they may have been attracted to the idea of moving to the mainland, once they arrive, the dream of many is to go home again - back to the land of their birth, families left behind and a culture sharply in contrast to mainland living

"Every Samoan thinks of going home. Most come with dreams - to have their kids educated in American schools, to make some money, and to just see the world," said Asoau at his sparsely furnished duplex home in suburban San

But for most it doesn't work out that way. Samoans as an ethnic group are among the least economically successful of all California's minorities, despite their official status as American nation-

To observe Samoans in their ghetto-like conditions in the low income districts of San Francisco, east San Jose, Oakland and, their largest community, the Los Angeles area, it is not hard to understand why they want to go home.

"I came here when I was 5 years old," said Asoau in the black-accented English he learned while growing up in San Francisco's poor, crime-ridden Hunters Point district.

"I lived with my older sister there until she had 10 kids to take care of. My parents remained in the islands because my father is a high chief," he said. "In Samoa the life is easy, laid back. Here you learn to survive, to live with competition, with discrimination.

Asoau estimates it will be at least 15 years before he can return to the South Pacific island of his birth. It will take hard work at unskilled jobs, he says, because "I blew it in high school." Asoau said someday he'll try to get his high school diploma, but his main concern is supporting his family, consisting of a household of usually five, but sometimes more as relatives move in and out, themselves trying to get established with homes and jobs.

While the Samoans are not American citizens, they are American nationals with unrestricted entry into the United Many of the early migrants came through the military and there is hardly an American Samoan family anywhere that does not claim either an active or re- are not recognized as American or even

It is the later migrants, lured by heightened expectations of Western life, who are having it tough. They find U.S. habits and customs "foreign" and far removed from Polynesian communal living, where it is not uncommon to have three or more families living in the same home and working together to support the unit. In the states, many Samoans end up with their names on police blotters or welfare lists. Just how many turn to crime or welfare, however, is not known. Scant attention is paid to California's Samoan minority, despite strong indications their numbers are growing.

The free flow of Samoans - unaccounted for as they pass through immigration lines from the islands because of their "American" status - is creating what one of them laments is "a new neglected American.' "Samoans have no identity here. They as a viable community group, unless you count stereotypes," says Pat Luce, president of the San Francisco based nonprofit group called American Samoan Affairs. Inc. Mrs. Luce, born in American Samoa, said she has interrupted her doctoral studies at the University of California at Berkeley in order to work with the advocacy group.

She says Samoans are hard-working, if motivated, a people who point with pride to their growing success in sports - exemplified by several college football stars as well as Atlanta Falcons' defensive tackle Wilson Faumuina and running back Mosi Tatupu of the New England Pa-

In talks with several Samoans in the Bay Area, another goal besides going home was evident. They want to accomplish more while here than the creation of a few sports heroes, and they don't like the handouts many are forced to accept.

War In Ireland Hurts Lifestyle

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) -Irene, a slim, pretty 21-year-old secretary, feels she has been cheated out of one of the most vital phases of her life.

"I was never a teenager," she said, "I was a baby, a young girl, then a woman, but I never lived the life of a teenager."

Irene, who declined to give her second name, "in case my family suffers," is like so many thousands in Northern Ireland who were just 11 or 12 when the violence erupted in 1969.

With the bombs and the bullets, the soldiers and the curfews came fear - the fear of going down the street to the disco or down the lane for a courting session.

"We virtually did nothing but sit at home and watch television," Irene said. "You sure could call us the telly tee-

Like others she has only a vague recollection of the overall level of violence. Fear sits on her doorstep. Violence is at the end of her street. The bricks, the firebombs, the snipers.

Irene remembers the headline horrors: the Abercorn bombing in which two died and 130 were maimed beyond belief. She remembers how Dr. Frederik Bereen of the Royal Victoria Hospital handled the injured on a virtual conveyor belt system, doing critical operations for six hours. She remembers how before she left the hospital he pulled back the shroud covering the latest victims and stared down on the face of his only daughter.

Irene remembers, too, how young Gary Norman took a chance in order to marry and lost. He got a job as the sole Roman Catholic in a Protestant plant to earn enough to wed his childhood sweetheart. One day a bullet in the neck shattered his

She also recalls the slaughter at Kelly's bar when barman Joe McElroy toasted his patrons with the words: "Here's to us. We could be worse, we could be dead." Three minutes later his head was smashed in by a high velocity rifle bullet.

Irene remembers the hosts of sad little stories that weave the horrible pattern of the Northern Ireland tragedy: the little grandmother who once - just once plucked up enough courage to enter the city center to buy her grandson a little model yacht for his 15th birthday. She knew the shop and hurried inside. Outside someone planted a car bomb, Soldiers searching the debris found the twisted shape of the toy yacht clutched tightly in the old lady's dead hand.

She remembers how young Marion Brown kissed her boyfriend good night, then, ran back for a second kiss and was shot to death.

Irene read about the soldier who challenged a youth to halt. When the youth grinned and went to pull a gun, the soldier, instead of shooting, smashed his rifle butt into his face.

When he stepped over the prone youth he muttered "poor bleedin' sod." The gun was a toy, the youth, a mongoloid.

Then there was Lance Cpl. William Henry Creighton, the shy, young soldier who became the 500th person to be killed, a month before he was to wed.

School senior Keith Lemons, who argued that Davis had failed to satisfy a sixmonth residency requirement.

As a result of Lemons' petition last March, Davis' name was removed from the primary ballot, but not before a court battle ended at the state Supreme Court level. Lemons' name remained on the primary ballot. Not one to overlook a legal ploy, Davis filed his own suit in April, claiming the senior law school student was unqualified to serve since he could present no certification that he was an attorney. Lemons said he had passed his bar examinations, but he admitted he still was awaiting certification. Seven months later the battle apparently is over, and it appears Davis has won. On Monday the Supreme Court dismissed Lemons' appeal "for want of jurisdiction" and also overruled his motion for a writ of mandamus.

That action means Lemons' name will not appear on the general election ballot and the youthful attorney must pursue a write-in campaign.
Last week the Castro County Democratic Executive Committee voted to place Davis' name on the November ballot, after the committee decided a Texas Election Code statute required them to appoint a nominee.

Meanwhile, Davis achieved the residency requirement, in April, and Lemons received his law degree.

"Because of the actions of the courts, the committee nominated the only man it could who was willing," District Judge George Miller of Floydada said. Miller earlier had ruled in Davis' favor and had ordered the county committee not to place Lemons' name on the ballot. It was that decision Lemons appealed to the Su-

Syrians Pour Shells. Into Christian Area

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Syrian forces raked Beirut's Christian districts for the fourth straight day today with a hail of artillery and mortar shells and the Christian radio warned residents that no end to the fighting appeared in sight.

"The situation is rapidly becoming unbearable," said Pierre Gemayel, leader of the rightist Phalange Party.

The heavy fighting made it difficult to verify casualty figures. The Syrians released no numbers, but the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said four Syrian army trucks "full of bodies of Syrian soldiers killed in the fighting" were seen driving away from Beirut.

Phalangist radio told Christian civilians holed up in their makeshift basement

Rightists said 60 Christians were killed and 120 wounded in today's bombardment of the Christian sector and plush mountain resorts nearby on the coast. But spokesmen gave no breakdown of militia and civilians.

Beirut's police department reported 55 Christians were killed and about 100 wounded in the dusk-to-dawn bombardment of the city by Syrian artillery, mortar, tanks and multiple rocket launchers.

The Christian radio station said more than 700 persons had been killed in the overnight shelling, but that report appeared exaggerated since previous intensive shelling has seldom claimed more than 100 lives in a day. The radio report could not be independently confirmed.

Witnesses reported a three-day assault by rightists failed to win control of two strategic bridges that command the northern approaches to the capital and vital supply routes to the Christian sec-

The protracted fighting led to speculation of a possible Israeli intervention in support of their Christian friends, but observers in Beirut believed this was unlikely at present. Commercial communications channels plies," the Christian station said. The broadcast said bodies were rotting in the streets and in hospitals because the heavy fighting made it impossible to dispose of the dead.

More than 400,000 of East Beirut's 600,-000 Christian residents were believed to have escaped to the mountains or the countryside. But the Syrians were reported shelling Christian towns in the mountains and there were expectations of an offensive against Jounieh, the unofficial Christian capital 12 miles north of Beirut and the Christian militias' supply port.

Diplomats at the United Nations con ferred on the crisis. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Security Council President Jacques Leprette of France appealed to all those involved in the fighting to end "all acts of violence." Waldheim offered to help arrange a truce.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance issued a statement supporting the Waldheim-Leprette appeal.

Supporters of travel allowances for junior personnel argue the payments would improve morale by easing a financial and emotional strain. Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said the average junior serviceman goes in debt $1,200-$1,500 to pay his family's travel and moving expenses.

said, with the only difference between them being the parties to which they be-"In fact, he sounds more like a Repub-that pressure."

Bush said he does not regret keeping his father and other prominent Republicans out of the 19th District race, but he said that his famous name would be an asset to his constituents.

"People should ask themselves, 'Who can open doors in Washington for the people of West Texas?" he said.

Both candidates are the same, he noted, in opposing senatorial representation for the District of Columbia, the Labor Reform Act and extending time for states to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment. Both also favor allowing states that have approved the ERA to rescind their actions if an extension of the normal sevenyear limit passes.

Asked if he is interested in making a career as 19th District representative as retiring Rep. George Mahon did and Hance professes interest in doing, Bush said, "I would stay there as long as I thought I was doing a job. Longevity up there is important so that you can know the ropes, know where the bathroom is, as Sam Rayburn put it."

Bush said he thinks the race "is very close" but declined to tell the results of any polling that has been done.

He expects to run well in Odessa, he said, because the effects of the at-times bitter primary race between Reese and him have been overcome and former Reese supporters have been recruited into the Bush campaign. "That wound has been healed," he

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Transportation Department plans to design a training program to help volunteer firefighters deal with accidents involving hazardous materials.

A department study released Wednesday said, "In general, the fire departments in major cities have sophisticated equipment and trained personnel to handle most hazardous-material incidents. The training effort must concentrate on the part-time firefighter who, even though a dedicated volunteer, may not have the time or resources to devote to lengthy and expensive training."

Republican Makes Carter Issue

DENVER (UPI) — The walls in Republican candidate Bill Armstrong's headquarters are hung with posters showing Democratic Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., standing beside President Cart-

"They had their turn," the poster declares in large bold letters. "Now it's our turn."

Armstrong, 41, a wealthy, conservative congressman unaccustomed to losing, is convinced he can beat Haskell, a one-term senator who knows he faces a tough battle.

Armstrong has youth, money and extreme popularity on his side. He hopes by closely linking Haskell, 62, with Carter he also will have a winning issue in November. Carter's popularity in the West, never high, has diminished rapidly, due largely to his opposition to several crucial water projects.

Both sides spent a combined $1 million in the campaign before the primary elections in early September and Haskell did not even have an opponent. Armstrong easily defeated Apollo 13 austronaut Jack Swigert in the GOP primary.

"The issue that we're raising in a lighthearted way with the posters is that Senator Haskell has gone down the line with the president on many legislative issues which are adverse to the interests of Colorado and the West," says Armstrong.

"The president has really been hostile to Western interests on water, land-use planning and other issues. Floyd should not have supported the president on those matters, as far as I'm concerned."

Haskell is a former Republican state legislator who jumped parties and stunned the state by upsetting incumbent Republican Sen. Gordon Allot by nearly 10.000 votes in 1972. It was Haskell's first race as a Democrat.

Armstrong, who has represented Colorado's 5th Congressional District since its creation in 1972, has a long history of successful elections, dating back to 1962 when he was elected to the legistlature. His only defeat has been a 5,000-vote in a 1970 primary for lieutenant governor.

Haskell, a constant pipe-smoker who likes to convey an image of solidity, has directed his campaign toward specific groups such as the elderly, minorities, farmers, environmentalists, and others he argues have benefited from his liberal voting record.

"This election presents a unique opportunity in the history of Colorado," said Haskell. "Both Bill Armstrong and I have been in Congress for six years, and both of us have clearly set forth public re-

House Getting Full Coverage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress' own version of the situation comedy premieres in living color next January. That's when full-time color television coverage of the House will begin.

Representatives of the major TV networks scheduled a meeting today with congressional leaders to work out the television arrangements.

The House has purchased six color cameras that in the beginning will be used only for closeup shots of individual congressmen who are speaking. The television networks have asked that so-called "reaction" and "wide-overall" shots also be permitted.

The television feeds will be available to anyone who wants them. At least one cable system in Arlington, Va., has agreed to reserve a channel for continuous House coverage and a non-profit cable system is being organized to provide the coverage to schools and libraries across the country.

cords."

Voters also will chose between completely divergent philosphies between Democratic Gov. Richard Lamm, a liberal first elected to office four years ago, and Republican challenger Ted Strickland, a state senator and outspoken conservative.

Lamm, 42, a former law professor, and Strickland, 45, a born-again Christian who occasionally preaches from the pulpit, are so far apart in beliefs they have been unable to even agree upon a format for head-to-head debates.

Lamm likes to point to the quality of people he has brought into office, including six tapped by the Carter administration for federal jobs.

"I have brought together a great managment team and can say proudly that virtually every department of state government runs more efficiently and effectively," Lamm said.

Strickland, a former Oklahoman who once entertained hopes of becoming a professional baseball player, is an outspoken fiscal conservative who attacks Democratic policies with an almost evangelical fervor. # Lawyers Argue Effective Date Of 'Speedy Trial'

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin prosecutor says any court ruling that the July 1 'speedy trial" law applies to offenses committed before that date could turn criminals loose on the street. "It could bring about an absolute ban on prosecution," said Assistant District Attorney Bill White of Travis County. An appeals judge, however, questioned whether this would be the result. White and defense lawyer Dain Whitworth argued the first test case of the new law Wednesday before three judges on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Whitworth's client, Linzy Wade, was arrested here Feb. 5 and charged with driving while intoxicated, second offense, which is a felony. On July 7 State District Judge Tom Blackwell found Wade guilty and assessed a three-year probated sent-Whitworth contends the "speedy trial" act guaranteed his client a trial within 120 days of his arrest. He said the state waited 30 days too long and "gave no explanation for the delay.

He asked the appeals court to overturn the conviction.

Schools Challenge 'Taxable Wealth'

Avalanche-Journal Staff Lubbock Independent School District has filed its objections to a state agency's finding on the size of the district's taxable wealth.

Local officials say the figure set by the School Tax Assessment Practices Board (STAPB) is too high because it includes intangible property.

And they warn that if the figure is used in distributing state aid, Lubbock would suffer a multimillion-dollar loss - and local taxpayers would have to make up the difference. Ronald Gooch, the school system's assistant superintendent for business affairs, Wednesday mailed to the STAPB staff a letter outlining the objections.

Gooch said that due to lack of time and other factors, the district is not formally appealing the state board's findings. Instead, the school system simply is putting its objections on record, he said.

"We don't agree with the STAPB figures on intangible property," Gooch said, because those figures artificially inflate the district's wealth.

"If intangibles become a part of the formula in the disbursement of state funds, we would lose money - somewhere in the ballpark of a couple of million dollars," he said.

The letter of protest was drafted by Gooch and John Brooks, city-school tax

PEOPLE be violated" if the appeals court rules WHO LIVE IN GLASS HOUSES REALLY Asked why he thought the Legislature said, "I'm not sure what the Legislature DON'T LIVE courts time to clear up a "tremendous "If there had been some expression of THAT MUCH

Under the Texas Constitution, intangible property — such as bank deposits, stocks and bonds — is supposed to be taxed. But in practice, most intangibles go untaxed because local governments have no way of finding out how much each resident has in the bank.

In 1977, the state legislature created the STAPB to make a study of the "true wealth" of school systems in Texas. Unlike past studies, the new board's report includes intangible property in comput-ing the theoretical tax base of Lubbock and other districts.

The STAPB values on intangibles are based on estimates and formulas — not on the exact figures of each individual resident, Brooks said. Data on individuals are "impossible to obtain. That is why assessors are unable to tax intangible property," he said.

The state agency's report is important because it is e xpected to be used by the 979 legislature in financing public schools for the next two years.

The poorer a school district, the more aid it gets from the state. Lubbock typically has been classed as poor because its tax base is small compared with other districts. But the new STAPB report with its inclusion of intangible property

- "makes us appear to be a richer dis-trict," school board president Charles Waters said.

The STAPB figures "would cost the school district a great deal of money," added Superintendent Ed Irons. The loss in state aid would "throw a heavier burden on local taxpayers," he said.

Inclusion of intangible property would not be so bad if all districts were affected proportionately the same, so that the ranking of wealthy and poor school systems would be unchanged. But in the STAPB study, the ranking is "greatly affected." Irons said.

Three-fourths of the school districts, nose in rural areas, would not be tarmed by the STAPB values, he said. However, the other 25 percent - the metropolitan districts - would be 'drastically hurt."

Previous state studies have shown the tax base of the Lubbock school district to represent .6923 percent of the state's total taxable property. But in the STAPB report, with intangibles included, Lubbock would represent .7426 percent of the state's wealth - a "significant increase" in Lubbock's ranking, Irons said. Rep. Joe Robbins has estimated that this increase in ranking would cost Lubbock schools about $2 million in state If intangible property is deleted from the STAPB study, the Lubbock tax base would represent only .6382 percent of the state's total wealth. In other words, the district would be considered even poorer than before, and qualify for about $2 mil-lion more in state aid, Robbins said.

Brooks said it would be useless to ap-peal the STAPB findings because the school district cannot prove that the fig-ures on intangibles are wrong or that Lubbock has been treated differently than other districts.

But Wednesday's letter will alert the STAPB to "the fact that we disagree with the inclusion of intangibles," he said.

One possible remedy, discussed at last week's school board meeting, is to get the legislature to exempt intangibles from taxation. Then there would be no need for the STAPB or the legislature to include intangibles in defining a school district's wealth.

The so-called "Tax Relief Amendment" that will be on Nov. 7 ballots would authorize the legislature to make

Brooks told the school board he has reservations about some aspects of the pro-posed constitutional amendment. But he said he'd like to see the amendment pass if only for the purpose of "bringing the law in line with reality" regarding the taxation of intangible property.

Brooks said that on most tangible property, the STAPB "found us to be 97 percent accurate" in appraisals - far better than other districts.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband loves to sing. He has had a few voice lessons and is quite good for an amateur. He has a large repertoire of songs and even has the piano accompaniment on tape to take with him when he goes where there will be no piano accompanist.

Sometimes he sings beautifully, but he usually sings too long and he frequently forgets the lyrics. He is 74.

The problem is that he wants me to ask him to sing when we have guests, or when we go elsewhere as guests. Our friends have been very patient with him so far, but no one else has ever asked him to sing, and when I ask him, it's like asking little Johnny to recite before a captive audience.

For years I have urged him to join a choral group, but he prefers to sing solo. This is partly because he can't read music, and partly because he can't hold a part if someone is singing a different note next to him

Am I wrong in refusing to ask him to sing? He gets very upset with me, and says if I loved him I'd cooperate. Is there a solution?

DEAR ABBY: This letter is one more comment in the debate on the motherdaughter trust that has been raging in your column

It seems that a great many mothers have among their daily chores the cleaning up of their children's rooms. During that cleaning, mothers invariably discover things that their children prefer to keep secret.

Fortunately. I have never had that problem. My mother has always believed that I should clean up my own room - or not clean it up, as I choose. Besides, she has enough other things to do without doing for me that which I am perfectly capable of doing for myself.

DEAR ABBY: Let me tell you about a handicapped person I know. He's paralyzed from the waist down. Now some folks think that the disabled are also retarded. That's not so! My friend attended college, and now works for a large insurance company as an underwriter.

And as for getting around yes, it takes a few minutes more for him to get into his car, but he gets there. His car is equipped with hand controls of course, but you should see this guy dance! When he does the "bump" his whole body and chair swings with him He also lifts weights - up to 300 pounds. He's even won medals for it. Some of you able-bodied men should try lifting a 300-pound weight. This guy has won scores of medals for racing, shot-put and discus in wheelchair sports.

And as for love - well, he knows more about love than a lot of people.

How come I know so much about him? He's my husband. And he's not nearly as

"handicapped" as most people think. (Sign me...) FUNNY FACE

Defeat by the U.S. Senate of three amendments considered to be major obstacles to the future of the Equal Rights Amendment extension measure has cleared the way for the measure to be voted on Friday morning.

Tuesday the Senate rejected an amendment to recognize the action of four states (Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee) that have rescinded their ratification of the ERA. The amendment, which was rejected by a vote of 64-26, would have allowed other states to do the same thing in the future.

In other action Tuesday, the Senate defeated, by a 58-33 vote, an amendment which would have required a two-thirds vote of both houses before the extension could be approved.

Wednesday the Senate turned down the final obstacle to the extension with a 54-

According to Mrs. Workman, the Senate is giving only the 15 states that have not acted on the ERA a chance to consider the amendment and "not giving the rest of us a chance. I don't believe that is

Mrs. Workman also expressed disappointment at the Senate's decision to act on the measure by a simple majority

"They really should use the same principles as they used during the original submission of the amendment. I have the impression that the pro forces will do anything to get what they want," she

The major objection Mrs. Workman has to the ERA is the loss of states' rights, which she believes the amendment will cause.

"The second sentence of the amendment says, 'The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legisla-tion, the provisions of this article.' This means we are turning over to the federal government, federal courts and federal judges a part of our states' rights.

"The farmers found out how hard it is to go to Washington and get anything done. I would rather go to Austin under the state ERA (adopted in November, 1972) than go to Washington under the federal ERA.

"This is a victory for women across the nation,"she said, "and we will have to work harder during the extension period to ensure the amendment is ratified." Mrs. McWhorter said she believes ERA should be a federal law. "We are not getting anywhere as long as it is a state issue. The states are so inconsistent from one to another, that there are exceedingly unequal rights across the nation. If a woman moves from Texas, where there is a state ERA, to a state that doesn't have one, then she has lost all she had in Texas.

"It's time women were included in the constitution in more than just the suffrage amendment," she said.

Sens. John Tower, R-Texas and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, both voted for the rescission amendment today.

Contacted in Washington, D.C., by the Avalanche-Journal, Allan Balch, press secretary for Tower, said the senator is against the extension (although he is for the amendment itself) because he believes "seven years is ample time to ratify the ERA.

Sen. Bentsen, in a prepared statement read by a spokesman in his Washington office, said "Many people would construe being pro-rescission as being anti-ERA. I can't accept that assessment.

To me the rescission question is an issue of fundamental fairness. Since Congress, in effect, will be changing the ratification procedure by extending the deadline, it should do so in a manner that will allow all 50 states to consider the ERA under this new procedure."

Dr. Rodric Schoen, a specialist in constitutional law at the Texas Tech University School of Law, said he thinks Congress is following the precedent set during the ratification of the 14th amend-

"Congress asked the secretary of state to prepare a list of all states who had ratified the amendment. The states of New Jersey and Ohio had ratified, then rescinded the amendment. Congress included these states on their list when they passed a resolution declaring the amendment ratified.

NYSE May Stop Providing Data For Analysts

By PHILIP GREER And MYRON KANDEL

A behind-the-scenes battle is shaping up in Wall Street between the New York Stock Exchange and investment advisers and securities analysts around the country who rely on technical data to try to forecast the path of the stock market.

At issue is whether the Big Board should continue gathering and publishing some rather esoteric statistics on trading by NYSE member firms and on short sales by the public. Most investors are probably not expression of the stock market and the stock market. probably not even aware of such data and couldn't care less about them. But "technicians" consider them significant market indicators, even though some recent structural changes in the market have distorted the data to some extent.

It's these distortions — resulting from the development of options trading, the increasing instutitionalization of the market and changes in the way odd lots are handled at the NYSE — that have led the research staff of the Big Board to consider dropping the publication of the data or reducing the frequency with which they are reported.

Another consideration — and some opponents of the contemplated move say this is the real reason - is a desire to cut costs both for the exchange and for the member brokerage firms that must re-

To get the views of those who follow the member trading and public short-sale figures, the exchange sent out a questionnaire three week ago seeking to ascertain their use of the data and their feelings on ending or reducing publication of the in-formation. The mere suggestion of such a move elicited a howl of protest from the ranks of technically — oriented invest-ment letter — writers and analysts. Yale Hirsch, president of the National Asso-ciation of Investment Advisory Publishers, wrote to NYSE chairman William M. Batten, asserting that "many of our members are as shocked as I am that the exchange would be contemplating de-priving the public of such valuable and nformative data." Hirsch, who publishes the annual Stock Trader's Almanac and the monthly investment letter, Smart Money, urged that the exchange continue to provide the in-formation "in the same manner and fre-Quency."

Some opponents of the possible changes charge that a decision has already been made and that the results of the questionnaire will be meaningless. Stan West, the NYSE vice president who heads the business research department, scoffs at this suggestion and says the answers to the survey will be studied carefully before the exchange staff makes any formal recommendations to change the present system. Such a move would have to be approved by the NYSE board and

He notes that the questionnaire was sent to a sample of the 150-or-so technical advisory services and technical analysts around the country. "We know their feel-ings on this would be very strong and I'm not surprised by their opposition," he told us. "But we felt their views should be taken into account."

However, West told us, "Structural changes in the market have raised some serious questions about the validity of these statistical data. We also want to see whether this information stands up on a cost-benefit basis and whether we should continue imposing the burden of collecting it on some 400 member firms."

Another reason for considering the change, he adds, is the fact that the SEC, after its own survey of statistics users, decided earlier this year to discountinue carrying the data in question in its Statistical Bulletin. This decision was made, the SEC explained, after it concluded that "the costs of collecting and publish-

Opponents of the possible NYSE move retort, however, that the SEC's action careful consideration will be given to all views. And at the earliest, he adds, any proposal for change would not be presented to the NYSE board before its meeting in October.

Vitamins Don't Hurt

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I have been taking a daily vitamin pill for 30 years. We are in very good health. My husband is 86 and I am 72. Our local dector, as well as may others we know, "poo-poo" vitamin pills. Recently, I have had some gas pains in the early morning hours. I am careful about my diet and have eliminated some roughage foods and cold water. We drink only 2 percent milk and water, but still have gas pains. Could these vitamin pills be the problem?

Just what do you say about vitamin

DEAR READER - One of the ordinary daily vitamin pills is not likely to cause harm in adults. In fact, many older people need some vitamin sup-plements because they don't always eat as nutritious a diet as they should. Also, there may be some increased re-quirements in older people.

No, I don't think the daily vitamin pill is causing you to have gas pains. I am more interested in your comments that you have eliminated some roughage loods. Gas pains are often related to less than optimal bowel function. This, in turn, is often related to an indequate amount of bulk in the diet. There are some gas-forming foods and it's true that even bran may increase gas at night. If you have been eating relatively the same diet for a number of years, and it contains adequate amounts of bulk in it, I wouldn't tamper too much with it.

Since your basic problem is gas, I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-8, Controlling Gaseousness.
Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I once heard a doctor say he would not eat liver be-cause it was a sifter and caught all of the diseases. Can a person catch a disease by eating liver? Is liver good for you even if it is a sifter?

DEAR READER - Doctors are human and make off-hand remarks that they might not make with sober reflection. There is no greater likelihood of getting a disease from eating properly prepared liver than there is from any other properly perpared meat or body organ.

Just to illustrate the point, you are apt to get trichinosis from eating infected, improperly cooked pork. As far as any bacteria that might be in the body is concerned, they can be trapped by lymph nodes, they can cir-culate in the blood, but hopefully not for very long because of the body's defense mechanisms that kill them, and they can spread to almost any part of

In a sense, you can think of the liver as a sifter because all of the foods and items which are absorbed into the venous blood and into the digestive system pass directly to the liver. Perhaps this is because the liver starts to work immediately on the digested food to process it for your body's me-

The liver does detoxify abnormal chemicals. In fact, that's one of its important functions, but these aren't

I don't think that liver offers anything that you can't get from other sources in your diet. Its major drawback is that it is relatively high in cholesterol content. There are about 300 mgs. of cholesterol in a three-and-ahalf ounce portion of raw liver. But it is low-fat food.

In general, liver is all right for people occasionally, if they don't already have a significant problem in controlling their cholesterol levels.

Indira Gandhi Seeks Seat

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - After 19 months without a seat in the Indian Parliament, former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi went to southern India today to file her candidacy for a vacant seat she appears certain to win.

During a stopover on the 1,300-mile flight to Chikmagalur, in the southern state of Karnataka, Mrs. Gandhi said she was entering the race for the special election Nov. 5 to please her new party.

She told the United News of India, an Indian news agency, she personally felt she should not run in the election. But she said she was bowing to the will of the Indira Congress Party, formed 10 months ago when she split the Congress Party following its landslide election defeat in March 1977.

Chikmagalur is considered a safe district for Mrs. Gandhi's party. The vacancy was created by the resignation of one of her supporters who won his seat in March 1977 by a 64,000-vote margin over a candidate from Prime Minister Moraji Desai's Janata Party.

1978 Nobel Prize In Literature Awarded To Novelist Singer

The 74-year-old novelist and short-story writer, who writes in Yiddish, has lived in New York since emigrating from his Polish homeland 43 years ago. He is a naturalized American citizen.

In awarding the $165,000 prize to Singer, the Swedish Academy of Letters cited him for "his impassioned narrative art which, with roots in a Polish-Jewish cultural tradition, brings universal human conditions to life.

Singer, reached in Miami, told a reporter, "I'm grateful but at the same time I am sorry that writers greater than I did not get it. I hope in the future that all people who deserve recognition shall get

There had been pre-announcement rumors in Stockholm of a struggle within the academy between a faction favoring Greene and others opposed to him that could have opened the way for a compromise choice.

Singer has written a dozen novels, collections of short stories, memoirs and children's books.

His best-known works include the family-chronicle trilogy of novels, "The Family Moskat" (1950), "The Manor" (1967) and "The Estate" (1969). Other well-known Singer works are "In My Father's Court" (1966), "The Magician of Lublin" (1961), "The Spinoza of Market Street" (1961), "A Friend of Kafka" (1970) and "A Crown of Feathers" in His stories often appear in The New Yorker magazine.

Singer, born near Warsaw in 1904, was the product of a strict religious upbringing and attended the Warsaw Rabbinical Seminary for seven years. Then he broke with the wishes of his parents and followed the path of an older brother, I.J. Singer, to become a secular author, writing for Yiddish and Hebrew journals in Poland beginning in the mid-1920s.

After emigrating to New York in 1935 to escape the threat of persecution, he free-lanced articles, reviews and stories for the Yiddish-language Jewish Daily Forward and other periodicals, reaching a wide audience there that still read and spoke Yiddish.

When his stories later were translated into other languages spanning the globe, they found readers in many cultures far removed from Central European ghetto there was no way of knowing just what makes a writer popular.

written on a distant planet would find an audience on earth if it touched truly on human experience.

The guess is that there is always a kinship between souls," he said. "Human beings, although they are different, also have many things in common. And through this you get a notion which writer says the truth and which writer is fabricating...

"How does it come that we read the Bible, which was written, parts of it, 3,000 years ago, and we understand the story of Joseph and the other stories? It sees that we are basically as we were 3,000 years ago and we are able to understand what another human being does."

Possible Showdown Delays Elections

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) - Prime Minister James Callaghan did not call a general election this month as expected because of the possibility of a showdown over white rule in southern Africa, Cabinet Minister Michael Foot says.

"It is highly probable that the great confrontation in southern Africa will meet its climax in the coming weeks or months." Foot told a meeting Wednesday night of left-wingers at the annual Labor Party conference.

"The government didn't want to see that crisis come to its climax when there was a danger of a Tory government in this country, or during an election when there would be no effective government

At the same time, Califano said a task force of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has concluded that the risk of a rare vaginal cancer in daughters of women who took the drug was not as high as originally feared. Califano said the overwhelming majority of those exposed to DES during pregnancy will not suffer any long-term health problems, but "some will have serious health problems."

The task force estimated no more than 1.4 DES daughters per 1,000 exposed to the drug will develop cancer of the vagina or cervix, and the rate may be as low as 1.4 per 10,000.

The HEW panel said that for the mothers themselves, the risk of breast or gynecological cancer "is unproved." But it said studies have raised "serious concern" about this possibility, and more research is needed.

The task force noted that recent studies have found an excess of genital abnormalities in DES sons, but there is no firm evidence yet to indicate they run a higher risk of cancer of the testes. More research is needed here as well, it said.

DES (diethylstilbestrol) is still pre-"Measles is a disease which many rescribed today as an estrogen replacement gard as one of the minor hazards of growfor women during menopause, as an antiing up." the secretary of health, educacancer drug in some advanced breast and tion and welfare said in a statement. Public Health Director Maurice Reizen said a panel of three prominent doctors will do follow-up research: Dr. Edward Schwartz, director of pediatric psychology at the University of Michigan; and Dr. Lester Weiss and Dr. William Rae, both of Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

A larger evaluation is underway on the effect of PBB on the health of persons throughout Michigan. A preliminary report last week said no apparent link has been found between PBB and human health, but 90 percent of Michigan residents have PBB in their bodies.

Bergland Wants More Women In Department Of Agriculture

the Agriculture Department has been a man's domain, especially in the higherpaying career jobs, and there have been few changes for women to brag about.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says his department's track record in employing and promoting career women to higher-level jobs "needs much improve-

Bergland's views on the Federal Women's Program - which was initiated in 1967 with an executive order banning federal job discrimination on the basis of sex were included in a memorandum to

USDA agencies made public Wednesday. The Agriculture Department has 84,625 full-time permanent employees of which approximately 24 percent are women, compared with a total federal work force of 30 percent women.

Bergland said that the lag is far greater in the higher paying jobs.

For example, he said, in the federal pay rategories GS-9 through GS-12 - salaries of $15,090 to $21,883 a year - women comprise 7.2 percent of the workers against 22.5 percent in the government overall.

Bergland said that in categories GS-13 through GS-16 women have 3.7 percent of the jobs against 5.9 percent for the entire U.S government. Those jobs pay $26,022 to $42,423 a year.

The job figures pertain to career Civil Service employees and do not include women serving in politically appointed jobs in the department, such as Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman and a number of others. Bergland said that President Carter in a memo almost a year ago directed that progress reports on women in federal jobs be submitted by each department or agency.

"He expects to see significant improvement." Bergland said. "I intend to see that USDA makes that improvement."

Bergland said that "new and innovative initiatives and programs" must be used to provide greater opportunity for women already working in USDA and "to recruit more women, particularly in nontraditional areas."

Telling agency heads that he expects "full and active cooperation of all managers" in promoting opportunities for women. Bergland also directed them to set up specific goals and timetables to ac-complish the task.

"We must also provide experiential and training opportunities to enable them (women) to achieve satisfying and re-warding careers and to work up to their potential," he said.

Additionally. Bergland said he expect-cd agencies to keep in mind the presi-dent's "concern with reference to older women and minority women" in federal

Texas Hay Harvest Underway

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) - Fall hay making is underway across Texas due to recent rains that have boosted grass growth, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reported today.

Farmers are trying to harvest as much hav as possible before cold weather sets in to help alleviate the shortage caused by the dry summer.

Along with hay making, harvesting of corn, sorghum and cotton is underway in the plains, the service said in its weekly report. However, hot open weather is needed to move most cotton to maturity. Recent cool, wet weather has delayed cotton development in the High Plains and recent flooding in the Trans-Pecos area caused heavy damage to cotton and hay crops. Small grain crops such as wheat and oats are progressing well with planting still active in many areas. Recent rains gave most plantings a good start and some early fields are starting to provide grazing for livestock, the service said. Lush growth in small grains and pastures and ranges has brought on one problem - fall armyworms. The ravenous worms have caused damage in many counties

Livestock conditions continue to improve statewide except in a few areas where lack of moisture still is curtailing forage growth. Cattle marketing remains active in most sections with some culling due to the approaching winter season.

Market prices continue strong for all classes of cattle, the service reported.

Sweet potatoes are being harvested in East Texas and some pecan harvesting is underway in southern counties, the report said. Fall vegetable crops are making progress in the Rio Grande Valley and winter garden area and citrus and sugar cane look good in the Valley.

But Bergland said Wednesday at a news conference at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport that he did not expect President Carter to initiate wage and price controls although the chief executive may ask for voluntary restraints on wage increases. "Wages as a whole are not going up too rapidly." Bergland said. "People are not getting real gains in income. Some groups, however, are getting wage increases higher than average. That leaves and that must stop.

Professor Criticizes Unemployment Stats

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The unemployment rate in the United States is seriously overstated, says Prof. Peter Gutmann of New York City's Baruch College.

This, he said, causes federal and local

This, he said, causes federal and local governments to follow mistaken policies that, among other evils, contribute to inflation.

Gutmann attracted much attention a few months ago with his article on the subterranean economy, the vast number of people who are working "off the books," paying little or nothing in taxes and who may actually be listed as unemployed.

His new article which specers in the

His new article, which appears in the Financial Analysts Journal, says the 6 percent unemployment rate reported for last April should have been reported as 4.5 percent and the August reported jobless rate of 5.9 percent actually was only 4.4 percent.

This is extremely important, Gutmann says, because much of the country's taxation and spending policies result from the reaction of legislators and government officials to reported unemployment levels.

He goes further. He says interest rates, the money market in general, the securities markets, the real estate market, and even the nation's balance of payments are affected adversely by the impact of the distorted unemployment level.

Gutmann says the serious overstate-

Gutmann says the serious overstatement of the jobless level last April apparently caused the Carter administration to pay too much attention to unemployment and not enough to fighting inflation.

He cited a statement by economist Philip Cagan of Columbia University that, under the government's present measurement level, 6.6 percent is a viable figure for unemployment and anything under that will create some inflation because it will create some labor shortages, but Gutman said a 6.6 percent jobless level under the present government measurement really is only 5 percent.

Gutmann listed what he sees as three main distortions in the government's present way of measuring unemployment:

The government counts people who want only part-time work as full-time unemployed.

A significant portion of those listed as full-time unemployed are really working "off the books," many of them fulltime. This includes many people engaged in illegal activities.

— Many people listed as unemployed are not looking for work at all and may,

are not looking for work at all and may, in fact, be unemployable but the law requires them to register as jobless in order to become eligible for food stamps, supplemental family welfare and certain other aid programs.

Gutnann said Prof. Kenneth Clarkson

Gutmann said Prof. Kenneth Clarkson and Prof. Roger Meiners, had suggested that as many as 24.8 percent of all persons officially registered as unemployed actually are unemployable welfare recipients who have been required by law to register in order to get help. Such a fig-

Teeth Gnashing Causes Pain

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — People who gnash their teeth while sleeping could wake up with a big headache. According to Swedish professors Goran

According to Swedish professors Goran Agerberg and Martti Helkimo, one in every four persons suffers headaches because they gnash their teeth in their sleep.

Agerberg said that filing the teeth by just a fraction can help relieve pain. "Teeth gnashing produces muscle tension and that tension starts the pain," Helkimo said recently.

"The situation is tragic. These problems affect a person's entire personality," he said.

"Many of our patients have been to orthopedics, neurologists, psychiatrists, general practioners and physiotherapists before we get to see them," Helkimo

ure. Gutmann said, grossly overstates real unemployment and has a seriously distorting impact on many government policies.

Gutmann also estimates at a minimum of 1.98 million the number of persons who are working full-time or part-time underground but have dropped out of the labor market altogether. These come on top of those who are working underground but are officially registered as jobless.

He concludes that until this distortion in the reported unemployment rate is corrected, the government will be making policy in the dark with serious consequences to the economy, the money and securities markets and the national balance of payments.

CB Convac

By INK DIPPER

Clive Veri, dean of the Northern Illinois College of Continuing Education, in DeKalb, wants to use CB to teach history.

That's a little simplistic because Veri's plan, which has been submitted to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and the National Edowment of the Humanities (NEH), encompasses knitting together a network of community colleges across the country with functioning base stations. These bases would work to extend the role of historical markers on the highways and in the communities by informing the passing traffic of the events that took place there.

Clive is a CBer whose handle is the "Mean Dean." He has become enthralled with the potential of CB to inform.

"Inform is a better term than teach or educate," he said. "HEW specifically states that resource sharing between a senior university and a network of community colleges to expand continuing education opportunities is an important objective. NEH wants to extend an understanding of the humanities to the population at large. My plan will aim at these goals. That's why I have selected citizens band radio for the test.'

Clive will set out to teach personnel at 100 community colleges across the country how to use CB as an effective system for delivering information to the traveling public.

For his pilot program he wants to set up six base station at each of five community colleges in Northern Illinois. The colleges would supervise development of an effective technique for advising travelers of the history of the surrounding Ultimately, Clive wants to extend the plan to 80 community colleges. Each would teach 10 other institutions how to use the system until there were as many as 800 community colleges and educational institutions involved - operating a network of 4,800 base stations.

"It should be like tossing a pebble into a pool," he explains. "The ripples will flow out from the center. History will come alive to truckers, vacationing families, senior citizen retirees, traveling businessmen and women, all sorts of people who pass the historical markers without a glance.'

Clive feels there is a genuine need for complementing the work of the Department of the Interior, which is responsible for the historical makers that are placed alongside roads and highways. In his opinion these are superb, but they don't go as far as they might if electronics were added.

"There's an incredible wealth of information that can be passed along to the traveler, and not only enlighten him, but add enjoyment to a trip that can otherwise grow dull," he says. "There is a need. If you don't believe, I challenge you to discuss it with your friends and see how they greet the idea of such a network operating throughout the country.'

Insurance Firms Receive Ratings

By LARGENT PARKS JR. QUESTION — How are insurance companies rated? Does a high rating mean the company charges less for insurance?

ANSWER - Several organizations rate insurance companies. The oldest and most famous of them is Best's Insurance Reports, published by A.M. Best Com-

Insurance Adviser

The first Best's Report was pubished in 1906. (Then there were 95 insurance companies; today there are more than 1,800.)

Best's rating are: A-plus (outstanding), A (excellent), B-plus (very good), B (good), C-plus (fairly good) and C (fair).

In determining ratings, Best considers financial condition, operating ratios, management and underwriting practice to determine an insurance company's ability to discharge its responsibilities to policyholders. Ratings are designed for evaluating insurance companies' relative financial strengths: they have nothing to do with the cost of the product sold.

QUESTION - Does having a Best rating differ from being "Best Recom-

ANSWER - Yes. For many years Best used a system of "policy owners' recommendations" for life insurance companies. Some 498 companies were 'recommended" in its 1975 edition, the last using that approach.

In 1976, Best shifted to the rating system described above. That year, 839 companies were given one of the six rating from A-plus to C. That means 341 life insurance companies that had not been recommended in 1975 were rated in 1976. There is a difference, though it is subtle.

QUESTION - What is the "interest adjusted method" of comparing life insurance policies? What does it mean? What would be a favorable "score? ANSWER — The interest adjusted method is a complicated system of figuring the true cost of life insurance. Before the method was developed, you would simply add up the premiums paid over, say, 20 years. From that sum, you would deduct the policy's cash value at the end of 20 years. The resulting figure would be divided by 20 to arrive at the average cost per year of the policy.

If you had a $10,000 policy, for example, you could then divide the average annual cost figure by 10 to arrive at the "net cost per thousand." Without the interest adjusted method, the "net cost" often turned out to be a negative amount, which implied the insurance cost nothing.

That is not a satisfactory method as it does not take into consideration the value of the dollars being pain in premiums. In other words, what would those dollars be worth in 20 years if they were at work earning a return? Life insurance companies publish their interest adjusted costs for each policy. Figures are usually given for 5-, 10-and 20-year periods. When comparing life insurance plans, always ask for interest adjusted costs. If the interest adjusted cost is 5.45 for example, it means the true cost of the insurance is $5.45 per thousand annually. Always seek out of the lowest factor when comparing. A random survey made recently for a 35-year-old male came up with interest adjusted costs ranging from $4.33 to $6.68. For a 45-year-old man, the spread was from $8.26 to $11.71.

QUESTION - How can I find out if an insurance company pays its claims promptly and gives good service?

ANSWER - Your state insurance department is the best source of informa-The insurance department can tell you if a company is licensed to do business in your state. (Some mail order companies solicit in states where they are not licensed.) It can also tell you if an insurance company has been the target of consumer complaints or departmental action. If you have a problem, chances are in the insurance department can help.

Another source of help is your local Better Business Bureau. If you do not have the address of your state insurance department, simply write to the commissioner of insurance in care of your state capitol.

Miller Eyes Productivity

NEW YORK (AP) - Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller has called for an increase in productivity as a cure for the nation's spiraling inflation and beleaguered dollar.

"Increased productivity is the best prospect to break the cycle of wages chasing prices and prices chasing wages," Miller told a conference of business and economic leaders. The conference was sponsored by the American Productivity Center and Business Week.

"A successful effort to improve productivity will directly offset upward cost pressures on prices; it will tend to make output more competitive in international markets, and thus improve our balance of trade and help stem the deterioration of the dollar in the currency exchange markets," Miller said.

Although productivity slackened over the past five years, Miller said, "in an effort to sustain past patterns of real income growth, wages were pushed up, setting in motion a cycle of intense upward pressures on costs and prices, despite high levels of unemployment and excess industrial capacity."

Miller said the nation needed a "forward-looking program to restore a climate favorable to productivity growth."

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) - Fortytwo persons were arrested after clashes between police and supporters of imprisoned former Prime Minister Sulfikar Ali Bhutto, officials said Tuesday. The distrubances in Lahore, 180 miles southeast of here, began when two men attempted self-immolation Monday to protest Bhutto's imprisonment. Bhutto, who came to power in 1971, faces the death penalty for his conviction on charges of murdering a political foe.

John M. Ballard and Thomas W. Barron were suspended by Pasadena Police Chief Leroy Mouser March 24, 1977, on grounds they planted the gun and told another officer where to find it in an effort to make it appear a woman suspected of

The Pasadena Civil Service Commission upheld the suspension of the two, but a district court ordered them reinstated. ## Weatherford Fiddler On Way To Nationals

By GERRY BURTON Avalanche-Journal Staff

Winning isn't everything, but it does a lot for the ego at a fiddle contest, especially when the title is state champion old-time fiddler like the one Raymond Brown just won in Weatherford.

"It means I'm good enough to get in the gate at the nationals where the top money is $5.000 to $10,000, and they play for keeps," Brown said of his chance to play in national competition next June in Idaho.

"It doesn't burn me to lose like it does some, but when they beat me, they've really got to play that fiddle.

His win in the 60-and-over division came with an old favorite of everybody, "Sally Gooden," but he doesn't always stick to standard tunes when competing. "I watch my competition, if you find somebody can beat you at what you're doing, switch to something else. His something else tunes usually wind up being some he put together from songs his grandmother used to sing when he was a youngster.

What he didn't realize as a child was that the folk songs he learned at her knee were from her own Indian background and weren't the same other future fiddlers were learning at their grandmothers' knee. Most fiddling melodies - especially the hornpipes and hoedowns - came to this country with European settlers, and were seasoned a century or two in mountain country before coming west with pioneers. Brown's folk tunes, like "White Captive" or "Waltz of Cochise," are adaptations of Indian songs which, to him, are as much a part of his heritage as "Sally Gooden" or "Eighth of January" may be to others.

The Pioneer Old-Time Fiddling Club Inc., a non-profit organization which produces the state championship rounds, is dedicated, Brown explained, to keeping our forefathers music here on earth before it dissipates. Tunes played at the nationals are taped for posterity and then sold to make the national contest possible

Fiddling was where the fun was when Brown was growing up on a South

His father fiddled, an uncle fiddled and his father's cousin Matt had been honored with a statue for his contributions to fiddling before his early death in

By the time he was 14. Brown figured he just had to have a fiddle, but his father, who had moved to West Texas after his health broke and needed his sons in the cotton fields, said "a fiddle gets in the way of your work."

Three years later, with a 10-acre cotton patch all his own, Brown swapped his entire crop for a new fiddle his uncle brought by.

Three months later, after much practice in the storm cellar because the learning process bothered everybody, he got his first dance job, making a fantastic

$22.50 in one night when "it was very hard to make a dollar. Part of that bought him a new suit, and he was into the fiddling business for

Fiddling all night and farming all day got a little tiring, but that settled when he won a 1936 contest for a two-year contract fiddling for a tire company. "You put on your show and went home," he said.

There were side benefits, too, since the show went to all the county fairs, and Brown was allowed to change the shirt with the company name and join in the fiddle contests decided by an applause meter.

"I won every one that two years. I wasn't stealing nothing. We played for the audience, and they decided not one fiddler in the crowd. A fiddle judge can get one-sided if he wanted to, but not the audience."

Later. Brown moved to Stephenville where he teamed up with a fellow named Joe Holley, "before he joined up with Bob Wills." Brown played the schottisches and hoedowns at dances and the left-handed fiddler played all the jazz pieces.

In the 1930s. Brown recalled with a big grin, he competed against "Bob Wills and his daddy in Dallas and beat them" since he was called back for playoffs Wills, he said, was of the two-finger fiddler class which can play smooth and pretty but can't stay in the fiddling when all four fingers are needed on the On the other hand, there's a world champion fiddler today whom Brown admits is better than he is, but who cannot touch some of the tunes Brown plays

Brown won the state title a few years back but couldn't drop work and go to the nationals. Retired now, he's looking forward to adding his tunes to the recorded folk melodies at the national contest.

Cardinals Faced With Business Of Filling Demanding Position

this coming week, they get down to the solemn business of finding the right man to carry on what the Encyclopedia Brittanica calls the world's oldest continuing institution: the papacy.

kana,

The job description calls for an administrator, a communicator, a linguist, a motivator, a theologian (preferably a canon lawyer), a financier, a teacher, a discreet politician and an able public relations practitioner.

Some of the qualifications would be needed in any top executive job, but this is not anything like finding a new chairman for the Ford Motor Co.

Ford, a younger institution by nearly two millenia, doesn't worry about tradition as much as the Roman Catholic Church, whose goals are eternal and whose prospective clients embrace all civilization, making them difficult to program into a computer.

Ford could get executive recruiters headhunters, they're called - to do the looking, instead of cardinals.

Even before the conclave begins Saturday. Oct. 14. the cardinal recruiters will be looking among themselves for a man of learning, of wit, eloquence, tact, charm and - something not usually sought in industry - piety.

In principle, any male - even a married one willing to put his wife in a convent - is eligible for the post first held by St. Peter 263 popes ago and most recently by John Paul I, who died in his bed only 34 days after his surprise elecion as the church's top executive

In practice - a practice going back 600 years to Pope Urban VI - only cardinals, the princes of the church who do the electing in secret sessions, are likely prospects - preferably Italian cardinals. The last non-Italian to occupy the chair of Peter was Pope Adrian VI, born Adrian Florenz in Utrecht, Holland. Roman mobs hailed his election by stoning the cardinal electors after the conclave in old either - John Paul's fatal heart attack at 65 undoubtedly will be a factor this time in weighing the "papabili," the papal possibilities, although the average age of the cardinals eligible to vote is just a hit over 66.

The right man must not be too young. since tradition dictates wariness toward a papacy that might last a quarter of a century. Cardinal Jaime Sin of Singapore. just 50, is the youngest elector.

Pope Paul VI, who died Aug. 6 after a 15-year reign, revised the 1,000-year-old papal election process to exclude cardinals who have passed their 80th birthday from entering the conclave.

Health is always a consideration, New York's Cardinal Terence Cooke admitted as he arrived for his second conclave in two months, echoing a now current theme that was not even discussed with reporters the last time.

Yet, unlike other big organizations, this most pervasive of all multinationals, dealing with 700 million members in 146 countries, does not insist on a thorough physical for its top management prospects or require an annual checkup after their selection.

In this unique high-rise world of steeples and campanile, there is room at the top for both a traditionalist and an inno-

However, he must not come on too radical reformer or a hidebound reactionary, since the Catholic Church in the past 15 years has been heavily buffeted by the cyclonic winds of change emanating from the reforms of Vatican Council II, which John XXIII inaugurated and Paul VI had to carry out.

Ford's River Rouge plant could easily swallow up the 108-acre Vatican City State and its 1,000 resident population. Yet the man the recruiters seek must have a wide knowledge of the world, without appearing worldly.

In a job where the pope is considered infallible in matters of doctrine, his credcame to pray before the tomb of Pope John Paul I beneath St. Peter's Basilica today, but the grotto was closed and Vatican officials said work on the tomb was not finished.

There was no indication when the work would be completed. In St. Peter's, Cardinal Timothy Manning of Los Angeles celebrated the first of the masses to be said there daily for the dead pope until the cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church meet on Oct. 14 to elect a new leader for the second time in two

Workmen were already busy with preparations in the area to be sealed off for the electoral conclave, including the Sistine Chapel, the frescoed Borgia Apartments and a large section of offices and private apartments in the Apostolic Pal-

The voting will begin Oct. 15. Many cardinals predicted it would continue for longer than the one day it took to elect Albino Luciani, the patriarch of Venice, to succeed Pope Paul VI on Aug. 26.

Cardinal Juan Landazuri Ricketts, the archbishop of Lima, Peru, said the cardinals would "hold several encounters before the conclave in order to exchange opinions, impressions and experiences.

In pre-conclave meetings in August, the cardinals reportedly had more discussion of the general criteria for Pope Paul's successor than of individual candidates. They agreed they wanted an Italian with pastoral rather than bureaucratic experi-

"Undoubtedly those criteria retain now their full validity, which has actually increased," Cardinal Eduardo Pironio of Argentina said in a newspaper interview. The fleeting but profound mission of Pope John Paul I teaches us that the church needs a true pastor."

Three Italian cardinal-archbishops were being mentioned as papabili, or possible popes, fulfilling this pastoral requirement. They were Corrado Ursi, 70, of Naples: Salvatore Pappalardo, 60, of Palermo. Sicily. and Giuseppe Siri, 72, of

Some cardinals in the Vatican Curia also were considered papabili because they had extensive pastoral experience before they joined the central bureaucracy. They included Sebastiano Baggio, 65, the head of the Congregation for the Bishops, and Sergio Pignedoli, 68, a longtime friend of Pope Paul VI.

Pironio, of Italian descent and now a member of the Curia, was regarded as the leading foreign papabile to succeed John Paul

John Paul's tomb is located about 10 types, bishops in their dioceses: Salvatore Pappalardo of Palermo, Sicily, Corvards from the tombs of Paul VI and rado Ursi of Naples, Giovanni Colombo John XXIII, the predecessors from of Milan, Giovanni Benelli of Florence whom he took his papal name. The sarcophagus is made of gray-streaked white marble from Turkey, with four small ancient columns at the corners supporting the upper slab and the front adorned with ancient bas-reliefs of two angels. The tomb is inscribed with the pope's name in Latin.

The body was entombed Wednesday night at a brief rite attended by the pope's relatives, a dozen cardinals and

England, Ozarks Rediscover 'Loo'

TABLE ROCK LAKE, Mo. (AP) — Not many people would suspect that on the face of it — actually on the other end of it — London and the Ozarks have much in common culturally. Or at least somethin But then not many realize that both the British and the Missouri-Arkansas

Mountain folk have rediscovered simultaneously and apparently independently the architectural glories of the public convenience, known in the Mother Country as the Loo and in the Ozarks, as elsewhere in whatever is left of vanishing rural America, as the outhouse.

In England a continuing best seller these days is a slender volume called "The Good Loo Guide," subtitled "Where To Go In London," compiled by journalists Jonathan Routh and Brigid Segrave to "relieve tourists of their worries" in walking tours about the great cosmopolitan capital.

And everywhere throughout the Ozark vactionlands another slender volume has found a wide audience among nostalgia-minded culture connoiseurs: "Pretty Privies of the Ozarks" by newspaperman Mahlon N. White of the Clinton,

Both appraisals of the sanitary scene on opposite sides of the Atlantic come at a time when conservationists and government health officials are questioning the value of building more sewage and septic systems and seeking alternative disposal programs, among them a return to the old-time outhouse. Congress this year, for instance, boosted the usual 75 percent reimbursement for sewer consturction to 85 percent for sewer alternatives.

The British Good Loo Guide, which rates London's public toilet facilities on a four-star system based on "cleanliness, efficiency of fittings, state of repair, friendliness of staff," provides some fascinating insights into the history and architecture of public plumbing.

The Royal Exchange Loos, for instance, to which the editors award two stars ("a very splendid establishment in marble, mosalc and mahogany"), are built "on the site of the first underground public convenience in the world, devised in 1855 by a Mr. Jennings, who charged the public one penney to use it, which was in fact the origin of the phrase 'going to spend a penney."

The toilets at the Law Courts in the Strand, the authors note, were considered such a benefit to the common weal that they "were opened by Queen Victoria in 1883." Royalty later smiled on Sir Thomas Crapper, generally credited with being the inventor of the flush toilet, by issuing a royal warrant to his sanitaryware firm, still doing business in the Kings road under the sign of "by appointment to the Late King George V." The British Boswells of the bathroom have these further pearls to share with

- Many London public toilets still make a small charge, usually tuppence, to use the mirror. - The conveniences at the Old Bailey have "a public address system for calling out jurors, lawyers and witnesses. - The Houses of Parliament restrooms "off the Members Waiting Hall are available to the public whether the House is sitting or not." The editors, by the way, give their highest award, 4 stars, to the "superloo" at Victoria Station, platform one, since the accommodations include change rooms, baths, showers and "attendants who press your suit while you wait." "There was a time," Missouri writer White reminds us, "when the affluence of a citizen was measured by the elegance of the little building back of the family residence ... Many of the old time privies were hidden behind high latticework trellises of morning glories. Family size often dictated the privy size, so there were two, three and four-holers." Extant examples, captured in full-page photographs in this valuable work, include tarpaper shacks, elegant field stone edifices, several with lace curtains on the windows, early examples of "his" and "hers" facilities, the traditional crescent-window farm outhouse, a lonely survivor from a one-room schoolhouse and the rare and legendary brick module that somehow became the paramount simile for feminine pulchritude.

rganized Crime Linked To Health Care Ripoff

WASHINGTON (AP) - The "frightening prospect" that organized crime is increasingly tapping into federal health care plans has been raised by a congressional survey of law enforcement officials. Losses in these programs are esti-mated to be at least $3.6 billion annually.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., House Aging Committee chairman, said Wednesday that a nationwide survey by the panel's staff shows "widespread involvement" of organized crime in the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

He said federal, state and local authorities responding to the survey mentioned evidence of organized crime infiltration in nursing homes, pharmacies, prepaid health plans, clinical laboratories, medi-

The Ford program intersperses musical numbers with talk, including upbeat interviews with Americans on how they feel about imagination, love, marriage and the future. As producer Steve Pouliot pointed out in an interview, "love, marriage and the conventions are alive and well in America."

Among the production numbers, the most imaginative was the tribute to imagination that begins with a piece of string formed into a cat's cradle, leads to double dutch jump rope and yoyos and goes all the way to symphonic strings.

American imagination is well served by beautifully acted excerpts from three plays, introduced by their authors. John Ritter and Ronee Blakley do a scene from Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie." Martin Balsam and Lee Grant enact a snippet from Neil Simon's "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," and Edward Asner makes Willie Loman came alive in Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman," assisted by Martin Sheen. Another touch of imagination is added when Neil Armstrong tells how the first man to walk on the moon views man's future in space. Armstrong expresses his disappointment at the absence of even low level life in our solar system. Simplicity never has been a hallmark of anniversary shows. This one is no exception. #### Congressmen Turning Conservative

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of Congress are becoming more conservative in their voting records, the American Conservative Union says.

The ACU made that finding after an examination of 20 votes in the House and Senate during the first half of 1978.

House members took the conservative position 46 percent of the time, compared to a 44.6 percent average in 1977 and 42.5 percent the year before, the ACU said.

Lockhart Meat Market Steeped In Tradition

LOCKHART (AP) - Oldtimers around here say they don't notice the smell of burning post oak that fills the air. Maybe that's because the folks at Kreuz Market have burned post oak in their barbecue pits longer than most oldtimers have been around.

"There was already a market here when Old Man Charlie Kreuz (pronounced Kry-tz) came here in 1900." said Edgar "Smitty" Schmidt, the market's owner.

A large, friendly man in a white butcher's apron. Schmidt towers above the meat counter in the market. Almost as many people stop in to chat as stop in to Schmidt said he worked for Kreuz 13 years, then bought him out in 1948. He still owns the market, but has turned over management to J. D. Fullilove, his Schmidt opened the door connecting the meat market with the pit room. A blast of hot air rushed into the market as he stepped through the door.

No frills barbecue beef and beef sausage are wrapped in brown butcher paper and served up by the pound at the far end of the pit room. Customers have their choice of crackers or bread. True Kreuz afficionados always take crackers.

Jalapeno peppers, pickles, onion, beer and soft drinks are sold separately. Potato salad, coleslaw and barbecue sauce are nowhere to be found. The mention of them elicits a haughty sniff from

"There's no secret to our barbecue except one," he said. "We use good meat." Schmidt said he uses only salt and pepper to season the choice meat.

"The secret's not what you put on the meat, but what you leave off-that and the wood," he said.

The market goes through an average of 6,000 pounds of beef a week and 120 cords of post oak a year.

Bare wooden tables and benches line one dingy wall of the dining area. Customers slice off chunks of meat with large butcher knives chained to the tables. Bottles of hot pepper sauce and small paper trays filled with salt, black pepper and cayenne are scattered along

Schmidt led the way down well-worn stairs to the basement. Boxes of crackers were stacked nearly to the ceiling against one wall. An ammonia compressor used to cool the "old" meat cooler between 1929 and 1977 stood to one side. The smokehouse, its walls blackened, now

"We've saved lots of our equipment and it'll be on display in the new dining room," Schmidt said. Then he quickly added, "We're adding to - we're not changing anything.'

Schmidt has bought an adjoining store built in 1910. Its one-inch stucco walls and ornate metal ceiling and wainscoting will remain intact. "The atmosphere will stay basically the same," Schmidt emphasized.

"I hope to have the new addition completed by Nov. 1 - my 30-year anniversa-

While some of his customers are regulars, Schmidt said every day brings in new faces.

A particular Saturday afternoon found ranchers in expensive hats and boots, Mexican-American laborers, trendy university students and a businessman from New York City munching barbecue elbow to elbow.

"You know, when your business increases 40 percent in one year's time, you aren't going to know everyone who comes in," Schmidt said.

Gura, Royals Pull Even

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Larry Gura, who wasn't supposed to be good enough for the New York Yankees, proved too good for them in the hour of Kansas City's greatest need.

"The revenge factor's not there anymore." Gura said after hurling six strong innings in a 10-4 Royals triumph that squared the best-of-five American League championship playoff series 1-1 Wednesday. "I just wanted to settle us down and help us win because we knew we had to win this one. It was a must for Traded by the Yankees to the Royals two years ago for now-retired catcher Fran Healy, Gura gave up eight hits and two runs and had this to say about Billy Martin, the former and future Yankees' boss who insulted him and cast him out: "If Billy Martin was still mananging

The Royals got started in the same sloppy. mistake-prone fashion that dogged them in the opener Tuesday night when the Yankees breezed to a 7-1 triumph. With one out, Fred Patek made a throwing error on Thurman Munson's grounder, and Reggie Jackson, reaching base for the 12th consecutive time in postseason action, walked. But Gura got Graig Nettles to ground out, ending the threat and leadoff batter George Brett quickly smacked what was to be the first of 16 Royals' hits.

"There were probably only 25 people in the world who thought we had a chance after what we did Tuesday night," said Brett. "We had something to prove out there today."

Amos Otis singled Brett to third, then Darrell Porter hit a long sacrifice fly, putting the Royals ahead 1-0.

The Yankees threatened in the second on the first of Chris Chambliss' four singles, Roy White's fielder's choice and a single by Mickey Stanley. Then Patek made a backhanded stop of Bucky Dent's grounder behind second and started a deceptively easy double play.

"That was a big play for us," Patek said. "It stopped their momentum and could have prevented a big inning.

The Royals chased starter Ed Figueroa with a four-run burst in the second that started with consecutive singles by Clint Hurdle and Al Cowens and kept rolling when shortstop Dent made a bad throw to Nettles at third on Patek's grounder.

middle for two more runs.

Reliever Dick Tidrow got a quick out, then gave up two more singles as the Royals took a 5-0 lead. That was the end of the scoring until a tense and bizarre seventh that saw a near-fight, an embarrassing lapse of memory by both umpires and players and a homer that Patek called the most satisfying hit of his life.

Chambliss and White singled leading off, moved up a base on Cliff Johnson's grounder and pulled the Yankees to within three on Bucky Dent's two-run single. A single by Mickey Rivers brought Marty Pattin from the Royals bullpen, who coaxed a popup from Thurman Munson and a fly ball from Lou Piniella.

A one-out double by Pete LaCock and Hurdle's triple off the right-field fence gave the Royals a 6-2 lead and rookie Willie Wilson, the fastest man in the major leagues, ran for Hurdle. Al Cowens grounded a single to Nettles at third and Wilson broke toward the plate where he collided violently with Munson on the

Both men went sprawling, but Munson was up like a cat and charging toward Wilson. Players from both benches stood tentatively on the periphery of the action while umpires pacified the angry Yankee catcher, who later had several stitches for a cut on his chin.

Order restored, Patek leaned his 150 pounds into a high fastball and popped it into the leftfield bleachers for a two-run

"It was the most gratifying hit I ever had," said the diminutive shortstop. "There was no doubt in my mind it was fair. I watched it and loved every minute

Sparky Lyle then came in and retired White on a ground ball but in all the confusion nobody remembered that was the third out. The Yankee fielders held their third out. The Yankee helders held their position and Brett, the next hitter, came to the plate. But before a pitch could be thrown plate umpire Rich Garcia, raising his hands as if to say, "Nobody's perfect," signaled the end of the inning.

"I looked at my indicator after the out and it read 2," said Garcia. "I knew then that the out was No. 3, but the Yankee players just stayed out on the field. I then tried to reconstruct the inning in my Garvey struck out leading off the second against Phillies starter Larry Christenson Wednesday night, but came back with two home runs, a triple, three runs scored and four RBI as the Dodgers shelled the Phillies 9-5.

"I think the home run that gave us the big lead was the key," said Garvey, whose first shot in the third inning came with the score tied 1-1 and teammates Bill Russell and Reggie Smith on base.

"It broke the ice between the teams feeling each other out and gave us the momentum," said Garvey.

'I've always enjoyed the pressure situations," said the Dodger first baseman. Associated Press Sports Writer Joe Garagiola will be calling the shots for NBC Tuesday night as the 75th World Series gets under way and he'll be a lot better prepared for it than he was Garagiola made his first Series appearance in 1946 as a 20-year-old rookie catcher with the St. Louis Cardinals. "I didn't know what was happening. I was just over-awed by it," he recalls.

"My biggest concern at that time was concentrating on not missing the bus to the ballpark.

"I'll tell you, the easiest thing about the Series for a player is playing the game. The rest of it is tough. You have to worry about getting tickets for all your friends. You come out to take batting practice and feel just fine. Then so many people start asking you how you feel, you begin to wonder. You have to go back in the clubhouse and look in the mirror to see if you're okay.

'I remember the '46 Series. Man, I heard from everyone I was in the army with except Eisenhower and MacArthur, Everybody I ever plyed ball with called. You hear from all your relatives. One year Eddie Sawyer was managing the Phillies in the Series and he had so many relatives staying with him I to sleep on the floor

This time around Garagiola will be better prepared. He will be working his fourth Series as a play-by-play man for NBC and has done several others on radio or with his late, lamented pregame show, "The Baseball World of Joe Gara-

"I just make up my mind that nothing is going to distract me from my job," he says. "I'm not going to make any appearances. I'm not going to get involved with any meetings. I don't care who calls. I'm going to get to the ballpark early, talk to the trainers, talk to the guys during batting practice, get up to the broadeast booth 45 minutes before the game starts and make sure my pencils are sharpened. 'That's it. Nothing else. Just concentrate on my job."

Garagiola's job will be slightly different this time around. NBC has signed Cincinnati pitcher Tom Seaver to a contract and he will join Garagiola and Tony Kubek on the Series telecasts. It can get pretty crowded with three men and one microphone.

'No problem," says Garagiola. "I'm looking forward to working with Seaver. He will add a lot. Tony and I know the players, of course, but we don't know what it's like to pitch against Steve Garvey or Mike Schmidt.

'And we won't all talk at the same time. If we do, our producer may have to ride us a little bit, say something like, 'Hey, let the other guy talk. "The first game should set the pace for us. We may be stepping on each other's toes that first game but we'll be fine after that." In addition to the Garagiola-Kubek-Seaver trio, Curt Gowdy will be on hand to act as "host" for the games. It is uncertain exactly what the "host" is supposed to do but NBC executives are working on it.

Garagiola, aware of the fact that millions of people will be watching the Series, has his own way of dealing with the pressure.

When I was playing I always wanted the first pitch to be a foul ball and nick me, give me some pain, take my mind off the nervousness," he says. "I still get excited before a game. The adrenaline starts to pump. And now I say a little left-handed prayer before each game, usually during the National

"It goes something like: 'God, you got enough to do. But if you keep the fear in my stomach and let my tongue alone, we might be all right.

know better, you might have thought the New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals were discussing the the latest issue of "Lawn & Garden."

The subject was grass - the real stuff that grows lushly in Yankee Stadium versus the artificial variety carpeting the confines of Royals Stadium.

"When we get back to New York and play on natural grass, it will help us," admitted Lou Piniella, Yankees outfielder. That grass was looking especially green after the Yankees dropped Game 2 of the American League championship series to the Royals, 10-4, Wednesday and left Kansas City tied at one victory apiece with the Royals in the best-of-five series. "I feel we have an advantage," said New York first baseman Chris Chambliss, eyeing Yankee Stadium's cozy left-

"No. not really. This is our third time around," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, whose team began its string of AL playoff appearances in 1976. "It seems like the first year, we were in the same predicament.

"Last year we had the advantage. I don't know. These three years against the Yankees have really been something out of this world."

The Yankees remained confident as they prepared to return to New York for Game 3 Friday, but they were clearly disappointed at losing an opportunity to grab a two-game series edge.

"I felt real good about winning last (Tuesday) night, because it gave me a chance to get my pitching straightened out," said New York manager Bob Lemon, who will send right-hander Catfish Hunter. 12-6. against Kansas City southpaw Paul Splittorff, 19-13, Friday. "But you really want more than a split after you win the first one."

While the Yankees said they hoped their turf would negate Kansas City's speed, the Royals, more than happy with the split after their 7-1 loss Tuesday night, said they planned to keep the pressure on with continued aggressive play.

"It's the best two-out-of-three now," emphasized catcher Darrell Porter. "I came to the park today feeling the same way I did Tuesday night. . . excellent. But I feel a lot better after this one than the

Tech Women Face Angelo In Volleyball

SAN ANGELO (Special) - The Texas Tech women's volleyball team will return to West Texas competition tonight when it travels here to play Angelo State University in a best-of-five match.

Playing in tournaments at San Diego State and Brigham Young University the past two weeks, the Raiders' record has slipped to 13-10.

However, against Angelo State this year, the spikers hold a 2-0 edge, winning both times at home. In four years, Tech has never lost a volleyball match to an Angelo State team

The Rambelles bring an impresive 18-3 record into the match. ASU's latest victories were against Abilene Christian and McMurry College Tuesday night.

Besides Tech, the University of Texas at El Paso has been the only other school able to defeat the Angelo State squad.

Tech coach Janice Hudson feels her Raiders are a different team after their national exposure. "Our caliber of play has changed both mentally and physically," said Hudson. We are a more aggressive team now, offensively and defensively.

Urban League Rejects Apology From Griffith

Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith for alleged derogatory remarks made about blacks last week was flatly refused by the Minneapolis Urban League

The Urban League, which urged an investigation by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, said: "A couple of drinks and trying to be funny at the expense of other human beings is never an excusable act and should not be condoned under any set of circumstances.

The Urban League feels that Calvin Griffith's remarks have done irreperable damage to black and white relations and to major league baseball not only in the state of Minnesota but elsewhere acrossthe country.

Griffith was quoted by the Minneapolis Tribune as saying the reason he moved the Twins to Minnesota from Washington D.C. in 1961 was because there was "only 15,000 blacks" in the state.

He also reportedly said that Twins' lugger Rod Carew was a "damn fool" for signing a contract for only $170,000 and that the performance of catcher Butch Wynegar suffered because he got married during the off season. Griffith, who said he had a few drinks and that many of the remarks were taken out of context, also may lose the $1 million financial backing of Midwest Federal. a savings and loan company which holds the advertising rights to Twins' television and radio broadcasts.

We are considering seriously examining any further relationships between the Minnesota Twins and Midwest Federal." said President Harold Greenwood Jr. "Our reputation in this community is in no way synonymous with Calvin Griffith's personal feelings."

Griffith denied making the statement about moving the Twins because of the tack of blacks

"I never said that We moved to Minnesota because it was an ideal place for a baseball franchise. I said that, and then said I was also astonished to discover there were only 15,000 blacks. I didn't care how many there were. I just couldn't believe there were that few.' Griffith also said he had called former Twins' outfielder Tony Oliva a damned fool for signing a small contract, and that contract and gotten more money for subequent good seasor

Reporter Nick Coleman stuck to his original story, saying he didn't take notes or use a tape recorder during the Lions' Club meeting, but that he wrote everything down immediately afterward.

Frank Wright, the managing editor of the Tribune, said they couldn't get the story into Friday's paper, so they decided to wait for the bigger Sunday issue.

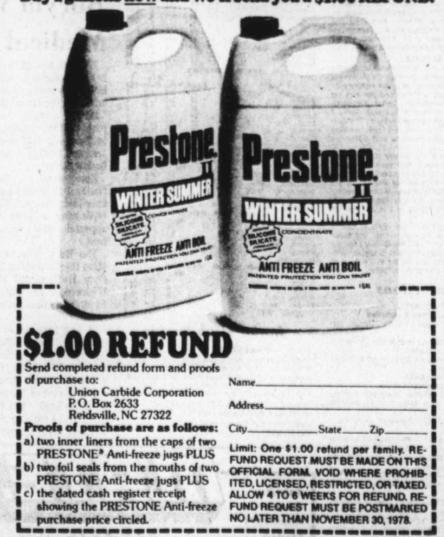

Meanwhile, various bar owners and civic groups said they would cancel their group delegations to Twins' games, and one suburban city council voted to drop its annual bus excursion.

Robert Short, a former major league haseball owner running for U.S. Senate, offered to be a mediator for Griffith, saying Griffith was "obviously not completely in control of what he was saying, or he

NFL Decrees Hands Off

Cheerleaders

CHICAGO - National Football League owners have taken two uniform steps to ensure that those on cheerleaders are more proper, and that their players' jerseys stay on their backs. NFL owners decided at a Wednesday meeting to allow each of the league's 28 teams to individually monitor cheerleading squads — agreeing that "closer super-vision" is needed over costume appear-ances and off-the-field activities of cheer-

They also agreed to outlaw players' tear-away jerseys beginning with games scheduled for this weekend.

The two-day meeting concludes today. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said it was agreed that the jerseys are a safety hazard because they don't provide adequate support for shoulder pads.

"The pads are made to be worn with regular jerseys," Rozelle said. "Another factor in the decision to discontinue the tearaway jerseys was the delay involved when players had to leave the game to change.

The owners, who met at the downtown Chicago Marriott Hotel, decided not to adopt an official NFL policy on the cheerleader question, which has become a controversial issue in the past few weeks.

However, Rozelle said the owners agreed the cheerleaders need "closer supervision." He said the owners felt it would be better if each club appointed a "responsible person" to monitor the squads.

The NFL commissioner said the owners interpreted "more supervision" to mean screening of cheeerleader appli-cants, checking out costumes before games and signing application agreements placing certain restrictions on their off-the-field activities. The restrictions include not allowing any cheerleader to post in the nude for photographers. "I guess you could say we adopted a hands-off policy, as it were," Rozelle

The San Diego Chargers recently fired their Chargettes because one posed in the nude for a men's magazine.

There has been controversy over the exposed navels of the Washington Redskin's cheerleaders, and the cut of the skin-tight unifors of the Los Angeles Rams' Embraceable Ewes. The controversy came to a head when the San Diego Chargers' contingent was disbanded after one of its members posed nude for Playboy magazine.

The owners decided to wait for their annual meeting in March before deciding on whether NFL owners can own franchises in other sports

Rozelle said the North American Soccer League was concerned about how an ownership ban would affect at. The NASL went to court last week eand sought an injunction against such a ban and the judge advised the NFL officials to wait until the outcome of the case before deciding the question of multipleteam ownership.

"The soccer league wants more NFL owners to buy soccer teams," Rozelle said.

Most owners frown on cross ownership. The two who stand most directly affected in the event of a ban would be Jack Kent Cooke and Lamar Hunt. Cooke, of the Washinton Redskins, owns the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League and the National Basketball Association's Los Angeles Lakers. Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, also owns the Dallas Tornadoes of the NASL and has a big interest in the NBA's Chicago Bulls.

The owners also put off until March a decision on the feasibility of using TV cameras to decide controversial decisions

Norm Sloan Fears NCAA

WASINGTON (AP) - Norm Sloan, a veteran basketball coach at North Carolina State, says the NCAA is a powerful organization that can affect a person's sports career.

Sloan, under threat of a subpoena, testified before Congress Wednesday that he did not want to be a witness for Jerry Tarkanian, University of Nevada at Las Vegas coach, because he feared the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"I had a fear of getting involved in op-position to the NCAA." Sloan told the House investigations subcommittee. "They're very powerful, as you know, and have a great deal of influence on my life or the life of any other coach at a member institution. I just didn't think it was a healthy situation, having those people upset at you.

Sloan testified that he was told in 1973 that the NCAA had plans to drive Tarkanian out of coaching when he was with Long Beach State.

The NCAA placed the University of Nevada-Las Vegas on two years probation in 1977 and ordered the school to fire Tarkanian. The case is under appeal before the Nevada Supreme Court.

Sloan said he was given the statement by Bill Hunt of the NCAA investigations staff, who denied making the comment last week when he appeared before the House subcommittee.

"I would deny that I ever indicated to Norm Sloan that we were trying to run Jerry Tarkanian out of coaching," said Sloan said Hunt told him that Tarkani-

Boryla Wants Medical Exam

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Even though he has been placed on waivers, Mike Boryla isn't easily giving up on his goal of quart-erbacking the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Boryla, a starter for Philadelphia for arts of three seasons, asked for a trade to Tampa in 1977 because he liked the area and wanted to be part of the Bucs' uilding effort.

However, Boryla missed all of the 1977 National Football League season with a knee injury and was placed on injured re-serve after his knee swelled in his only appearance this year, a Sept. 9 loss to De-trolt.

The Bucs, who have since acquired Mike Rae to back up Doug Williams and Gary Huff, placed Boryla on waivers Wednesday. The Bucs pronounced him fit after an examination by the team phy-

"I just have no choice but to file a grievance," Boryla said.

Boryla says he will file his complaint with the NFL asking for a neutral medical opinion on his condition. He wants to split the cost of the examination evenly with the Bucs. "I'm not angry," Boryla said. "But I have no choice. I believe my left knee needs surgery."

an's ouster was being sought because of a number of suspected rules violations. Sloan also quoted Hunt as saying that the NCAA had information that Jerry and some friends were going to arrange to have drugs planted in (investigators) rooms and prostitutes to discredit the NCAA investigation.

Tarkanian has denied participating in any frameup.

In August, Tarkanian accused the NCAA of plotting to drive him from the ranks of college basketball coaches.

"After today's hearing, any neutral observer would have to agree the NCAA was out to get Coach Tarkanian," said Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev. "I don't think the UNLV got a fair shake."

After the University of Nevada-Las Vegas was placed on probation in the sum-mer of 1977, Santini urged the Congress to investigate the rules enforcement proredures of the NCAA.

The subcommittee has been looking into the procedures this year.

Of course, the world of Teofilo Stevenson is the world of amateur boxing, a world that is in a different constellation than the pro boxing world ruled by Muhammad Ali, whose cool in the ring melts

But Stevenson is happy with his world one he is bound to it by the policies of his Cuban homeland.

Seahawks' Rushing Leader May Play

SEATTLE (AP) - Runningback Sherman Smith, the Seattle Seahawks' leading rusher the past two seasons who has been sidelined with a shoulder injury since the season opener, may be back in the starting lineup Sunday.

"He looked pretty good today," Coach Jack Patera said after watching the 6foot-4. 225-pound Smith work out with the team Wednesday. "I was pleased with his timing after missing four weeks.

However, Patera said he isn't ready yet to say whether Smith will be able to play when Seattle meets the Minnesota Vikings in the Kingdome Sunday.

"If the game were today, he couldn't play." Patera said. "He need a couple more days of practice.

Rice Calls

For Workout

CINCINNATI (AP) - Homer Rice, son of a Methodist minister, spoke to the Cincinnati Bengals for the first time as head coach Wednesday, then put them through an unexpected 60-minute drill.

"I talked about the future, how we have an opportunity now to put this thing together and what really counts is progress from this day on," said Rice, He was appointed Monday following the resignation of Bill Johnson after the Bengals lost the first five games of the season. Rice skipped the normal team viewing of the game film from the previous week and went right to work on Monday's game plan for the Dolphins at Miami.

toward opponents in the ring: frosty to about whether he will fight Ali. This week he was asked again.

Stevenson fixed a seemingly disinterested stare on his questioner and said through an interpreter: "If amateur authorities would okay it, I would do it."

A day later, promoters announced that Cuban authorities would permit Stevenson to meet Ali in a series of three-rounders in five cities, should such a series be put together. Stevenson would maintain his amateur status if the proposed series

His amateur standing is vital to him since he hopes to win a third Olympic heavyweight championship at Moscow in

For a time last year, the 26-year-old Stevenson's career was in jeopardy. An alcohol stove in his Havana home exploded in July 1977, and he suffered burns of the face and chest.

But today he still is the unmarked 'bronze statue." who first rose to worldwide prominence in the 1972 Olympics. And his skills, while aged, apparently have not eroded. He has won all 18 of his fights this year, including those that brought him a second world amateur title at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, in May.

"I am in very good shape and training well." he said as he prepared for his first United States appearance, as the star of an 11-man Cuban team against an American team in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Stevenson, who has a record of 165-10, will fight Jimmy Clark, a senior at West Chester (Pa.) State College.

Clark lost a close decision to Stevenson in Havana last Feb. 12. The only American to beat Stevenson in eight tries was Duane Bobick, now a pro, in the Pan American Games in 1971. Stevenson avenged that defeat by stopping Bobick in the Olympic quarter-finals in 1972.

Friday night's match will be the third between U.S. and Cuban teams. Cuba won 7-4 at Houston Nov. 12, 1977, while Stevenson still was recuperating from burns, and 8-3 last Feb. 12. But in three head-to-head meetings in the finals of the 1976 Olympics, the Americans swept.

Mike Thomas Tries Again

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ

Q. I read a story in the local press which indicated halfback Mike Thomas of the Washington Redskins has a new lease on life this season because of the changes at Washington. Did he not get along with George Allen?

-Carney White, Brooksfield, Mass.

A. Moody Mike Thomas, who lasted until the fifth round of the 1975 draft when he came out of Nevada-Las Vegas because of a reported attitude problem, was singled out by Allen at a Redskin practice as a malingerer.

Some of his teammates, most of whom are gone now, were also down on him for taking himself out of an important game against Dallas. "I went over to him and called him every name in the book," a Redskin said, "and he still wouldn't go back in. There's a code in this league that you don't do that unless you're car-

But Thomas, when unbruised, is a sensational ballcarrier.

Q. On the average, how many times does a baseball player get a chance at hitting a grand slam in his career? Also, who holds the record for most career grand slams?

-Tim and Brad, Covington, Ky.

A. One official scorer in the American League guessed for us that the opportunity comes between 8-12 times a year for the batters in the three, four and five slots. Lou Gehrig holds the major league record with 23 slams. Runner-up and National League record holder is Willie McCovey of San Francisco with a current 18 (and still slamming). Hank Aaron is next with 16.

Q. How often are back-to-back homers hit? Historically, which two hitters were the most often back-to-backers?

-Steve Wade, Tallahassee, Fla.

A. No records are kept on consecutive homers by different players. For the top pair, we would be surprised if it were not Lou Gehrig (47) and Babe Ruth (60) in 1927. Roger Maris (61) and Mickey Mantle (54) in 1961. Perhaps someone somewhere has a list of dates of all those homers and can figure the answer out

Q. Shouldn't Pete Rose have been given an intentional walk in Montreal during his hitting streak, to set up a double play? I think the manager. Dave Williams, was gutless. What do you think?

-Hank Schroeder, Tequesta, Fla. If Pete Rose had been walked every time at bat during one of the games in his streak would the string have been broken?

-Paul Shoultz, Wilmington, Ohio How many times did Pete Rose draw a walk during his 44-game hit streak? How many intentional?

-Red Whitehurst, Gary, Ind.

A. It seems vastly probable that there should have been several occasions during Roso's streak when baseball strategy would dictate an intentional walk, but he never drew one. He was walked 12 times during the streak.

And, yes, the streak would have still kept going if Rose had been walked every time at bat in a game.

The next week Sundown hosted Plains, another Class A team: Again it lost. Last week the Roughnecks traveled to New Deal and lost that one too.

That's a tough way to go for a team with a new coach and only six returning lettermen.

We have to have a little more confidence," he said. "The changes you want to make, make it hard to keep things going sometimes. It would have been different

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Continues To Rally

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market resumed Wednesday's rally today after a pause to absorb some adverse inflation news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off about a point in early trading, was up 2.60 at 876.56 by noontime.

Gainers opened up a 7-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market had built up some forward momentum in a late wave of buying Wednesday, when the Dow posted a 6.06-point gain. The advance faltered briefly today after the government reported that the wholesale price index of finished goods jumped 0.9 percent Brokers noted that that figure equal to a 10.8 percent annual rate tended to dampen whatever hopes for a break in inflationary pressures had been aroused by a 0.1 percent decline in the index during August.

But by late morning it became evident that the news had touched off no significant selling, and stock prices began moving ahead again.

W.R. Grace gained 1/4 to 321/4 in active trading on top of a 21/8-point rise Wednesday, when the Flick Group of West Germany said it planned to offer $35 apiece for 7.3 million Grace shares. The NYSE's composite index added .22 to 58.25, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up .72 at 170,44. Volume on the Big Board came to 12.13 million shares at noontime, up from 10.19 million at the same point Wednesday.

Commissio Will Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government moved today to ban sales of the sands of babies toys that are amenough or have small enough parts to swallowed or choked on.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission voted to propose the ban, whi applies to such toys as teddy bears, blo sets and jack-in-the-boxes intended for children under age 3.

hildren under age 3.

The proposed regulation applies to toy that have parts which can be detached by a haby, such as a button that can pulled loose from a teddy bear.

Commissioner Edith Barksdale Sloa who voted with the other three cor sioners, said the regulation should be broadened to include children up to age 5. Otherwise, she said, "I think we are derelict in our duty ..."

The han will not take effect before this Christmas and might not affect sales of the toys at Christmas next year, depending on a future commission de when to make it effective. Commission staff member Elaine Besson said the regulation would cover "the part of the population that clearly is most than toys that some children swallow or choke on, including food and coins.

"But this would cover 18 categories of items deliberately designed for very young children and put in their playpens and cribs. These items especially should-be built safely." Mrs. Besson said.

The rule prohibits the sale of any item that would fit into a cone 14 inches by

It also bans any part, such as a button off a teddy bear, that could come off after it was given rough treatment.

The commission staff said only a small portion of toys and other children's items are involved because the industry has set voluntary standards similar to the CPSC regulation. Beth Blossom, spokeswoman for the Toy Manufacturers of America, said the inclustry group is in favor of the regulation. She said the test involving the cone device "already is part of our voluntary standards. Most of our members have been following this for years."

About 90 percent of domestically sold loys are made by members of the associa-

Reporting on a three-month study of iniuries from small parts to children under age 10, the committee staff said almost half the 3,800 injuries recorded were to those under 3. Of 45 deaths from small parts on children's products. 25 were to children less than 3 years old, the report said. The regulation does not cover items intended for use by children age 3 and older or other items that babies might have acress to in the house.

Specifically exempted are articles with 'utilitarian or educational value" including children's clothing and acces fingerpaints, marbles, balloons and cra-

The commission already has approved other regulations on toys with charp points for children younger than 8, design of pacifiers to prevent infant chokings and electrical toys.

Wisconsin Man Trying To Save Great Cranes

By DION HENDERSON

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) - It is not just that George Archibald talks to the birds. Not even that he talks to the oldest, rarest, most beautiful birds in the world. The thing is, when George Archibald talks to them, they answer. And sometimes, when he asks them to dance with him, they do.

And they should. Because the great cranes became the most important birds in the life of George Archibald, George Archibald has become one of the most important men in the lives of the birds, whose survival is threatened on much of the globe.

Most Americans know about the whooping crane, the continent's tallest bird, whose clarion once deafened the countryside during night-long passage. but whose numbers dipped to 22 wild birds and stirred the national conscience

Through the combined efforts of individuals, societies and government agencies, there now are 77 birds in the wild census, and 28 more adults in captivity.

But of the 15 species of cranes in the world, nearly half are in trouble and several are more endangered than the Which brings the story back to George

Archibald, and a 65-acre converted horse farm astride the traditional sandhill crane migration path. Here, in the headquarters of the International Crane Foundation, you can, Archibald says, "see more kinds of cranes in 15 minutes than most people could see in a lifetime. The comment, like most scientific speculations, is conservative. In this country, for instance, many people can - or at least could - see the sandhill crane in one of its half-dozen variations. A few have seen whoopers. And that's it for North America.

The world's second rarest bird is the Siberian crane, which has a voice like bells ringing. There are two remnant groups in Asia, totaling some 360 birds.

The Japanese crane, celebrated in poetry for 1.500 years, is said to be the most respected bird in Japan. Because legend has it living for a thousand years, it is a symbol of long life; because it mates for life, a symbol of love. The species now numbers fewer than 500, many living vear-round in nearly inaccessible marshes near Hokkaido. Ardhibald located their nests in 1972, found the area was part of a real estate development and aroused Japanese opinion to such an extent that the government pledged protec-

In 1974, Archibald found the last 1,500 splendid white-naped cranes feeding in a marshland separating the two Koreas. With a Korean associate, Kim Hon Kyu, Archibald proposed a 40-square mile re-fuge which won President Park's approv-

The International Crane Foundation te conjuncti 1971 when Archibald was completing his doctoral studies at Cornell's Laboratory of Ornithology, and Ronald Sauey was arriving to begin his.

Archibald — whose thesis was titled,

"The Unison Call as a Useful Taxonomic Tool for Cranes" - had been living in an old animal science department building with 56 cranes of nine species. The place was called, unavoidably, the Cranium. When Sauey arrived, Archibald was sadly returning his friends to the zoos from which he had borrowed them. Archibald regretted the end of a program which had resulted, among other things, in five chicks of the rare white-naped bird.

Sauey suggested that his family's former horse ranch at Baraboo might be made into a permanent station, and ICF was born with the goal of "the conservation of the world's cranes through research, habitat protection, captive breeding, res-tocking, and public education."

With resident populations established - about 120 birds representing 14 of the 15 species - much of the program now is devoted to raising birds and developing techniques for restoring wild popula-

One of the major projects in process: placing Siberian crane eggs from Baraboo in the nests, in the Soviet Union, of European cranes previously selected and tagged at the other end of their migration in Iran. It is hoped that the chicks will follow their adopted parents back to Iran and reestablish a Siberian crane flock in the land of the Shah.

The ICF is supported entirely by contri-butions, mostly from a list of interested donors that numbers scarcely 1,000. It's possible to stretch the annual budget of less than $50,000 because the Sauey family receives only $1 a year rental, Archi-bald and Ron Sauey work without pay, as do the dozen or so selected graduate students who come to learn, and work, during the summers.

From its start five years ago, ICF now has achieved such stature that its board of advisors includes not only American academics and naturalists but Sir Peter Scott, the English painter and ornitholo-gist; Yoshimaro Yamashina, Tadimichi Koga and Nakanishi Godo of Japan; Eskandar Firouz of Tehran; Jean Delacour of Cleres, France; Kim Hon Kyu of the Republic of Korea and research asso-

$25 Billion Needed To Repair Bridges

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Association of Counties says it would take about $25 billion to repair or replace nearly 200,000 deficient bridges across the country.

The association, trying to convince Congress to spend more money fixing up bridges, said those bridges aren't necessarily in danger of collapsing.

He is too busy to contribute everything he has learned to the literature of crane management. Such things as convincing the Siberian cranes they were in nesting territory by simulating the long Arctic days with lights over the runs, or making monsoons with sprnklers - both measures that led to breakthroughs - are, he says, "only the result of observation, and thinking things through."

Talking with the birds is a neat trick,

Archibald, a 31-year-old with the soft trace of the Maritime Provinces in his speech, sums up his own involvement succinctly.

The most important thing in my life is to help save these wild cranes and to have ICF to come home to. That's it for

He has more projects in mind: developing the infant specialty of crane reintroduction, increasing the foundation's programs of public education, and enlarging the foundation's incubation, brooding and breeding units.

but of course comes from long study, with serious aims. Unison calls were his graduate interest, and now a yelp or two from Archibald will stimulate a clamor from the widespread pens, or an individual response.

And yes, he knows how to simulate a courtship dance well enough to motivate a lone hen to join him, and think broody thoughts. It was thus he was filmed this spring, and shown on national television. "It looked a little silly," he said. "I hope people remember more than that

Many Money 'Experts' Lead Americans Astray

NEW YORK (AP) - Who are the financial "experts" who so freely give of their advice? One is the financial counselor who tells readers this month in a national publication to exchange their Series E Savings Bonds for Series H, in order to obtain 7.5 percent interest instead of 6.

Series H bonds pay 6 percent, not 7.5. It's been that way for years.

In fact, the benefits could be the total of the two.

The expert is the stock advisory service that forgets its poor selections but reminds you of the one in 10 that came out ahead, and even chides you for not having had faith enough to buy the stock.

Twisted Talk Provides Lots Of Fun

By SHARI LEWIS

If a stranger came up to me on a summer's day and said "I see icy icicles," I'd think I was facing a bit of a nutsy. But if that stranger had said, "I see icy icicles" three times very fast, I'd know the only thing nutsy about the stranger was that he was nuts about tongue-twisters!

Now, the right reponse to "I see icy icicles" might be "some shun sunshine" (which is also a tonguetwister that relates to the weather and is even harder to say three times fast). But at that point, my conversation would stop - be cause I don't know another tonguetwister about the weather, do you?

If we wanted to continue our twister talk, I'd have to invite him in for "A cup of proper copper coffee cup" (which he'd have to drink three times fast), and then we could talk about my animals ("six sleek slippery seals"), the health of my animals ("sixtysix sick chicks") and what it was that was making them sick ("when a big black bug bit my big black bear it made my big black bear bleed blood").

We might end our chummy chitchat with this turn-of-the-century tongue- twister about two bugs caught in a flue (which is the air passageway of a fireplace):

A fly and a flea in a flue Were imprisoned, so what could they do?

Said the fly, "Let us flee."

State Death Row Needs Enlarging

HUNTSVILLE (AP) - Death Row is getting so crowded in Texas that correction officials say they may have to open up a new wing for prisoners conden to die. Ron Taylor, a spokesman for the corrections department, said Monday that 100 people in state custody have been sentenced to die, "plus probably another dozen in county jails who have been sentenced but have not yet been transferred to us."

Texas has not executed a prisoner since July 30, 1964, when convicted murder Joseph Johnson of Houston was electrocuted.

Information Often Hard To Uncover

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) - With little fanfare, one of President Carter's three sons has been working part time as an official diplomatic greeter.

However, efforts to learn who pays for these efforts by 28-year-old James Earl Carter III, better known as Chip, were not immediately fruitful.

When Saudi Arabia's King Khaled arrived in Cleveland last week with a retinue of about 300 princes, wives and retainers. Chip Carter welcomed him as the official representative of the U.S. government. The king, who has a heart ailment, went to Cleveland for medical tests.

Here is a chronicle of a reporter's efforts to learn more about young Carter's diplomatic endeavors:

-A call to the office of Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser, elicited a plea of total ignorance from a spokesman who suggested Rosalynn Carter's office be contacted.

-Faith Collins, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Carter, referred the reporter to Kevin Smith at the Democratic National Committee, which has employed Chip Carter to campaign for the party's candidates in the off-year election.

-Smith said the State Department's Protocol Office occasionally requests the services of the Carter son. Smith said Chip traveled to Cleveland on behalf of the State Department after making an extensive campaign swing around Northeastern states.

Asked who pays Carter's salary and expenses on such missions, Smith referred the reporter to the Protocol Office.

-Mary Messerini, public affairs officer for the Protocol Office, referred all inquiries about young Carter's financial arrangements to the department's freedom of information staff.

—A woman who answered the freedom of information phone said any request for information relating to Chip Carter should be submitted in writing.

"Then it might take weeks (to get a response)," the reporter suggested. 'That's true," the woman responded.

Political Favorite

Before Monday's one-game playoff between the BostowRed Sox and the New York Yankees, White House press secretary Jody Powell was asked who he'd be rooting for.

"Massachusetts is safe," said Powell, "and New York is a swing state - so I am for the Yankees."

Hasty Departure

Evan Dobelle, the Democratic Party's national treasurer, was chatting with two reporters in the White House press room about his efforts to get the party out of the red.

Abruptly. Dobelle looked at his wristwatch and exclaimed, "My God, I'm supposed to be in my office. A man is giving us ten grand and he insisted on delivering it personally."

Of course, Dobelle departed in haste.

Food Will Improve

Trip in and trip out, Air Force One food leaves a good bit to be desired. Although some offerings are excellent, many meals are nondescript, and some reporters and photographers who are frequent passengers have been known to carry box lunches aboard.

Well, some of Carter's aides are secretly promoting an upgrading of the fare. On Sunday's flight back from a presidential visit to Orlando, Fla., for example, oysters on the half shell were served as an appetizer, followed by an entree of shrimp and stone crab claws.

The upgrading is secret because to the president food is food. If he knew a calculated effort was being made to improve the menus, he might get fresh ideas about economizing.

Carter Forces Launch Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration has launched a letter-writing campaign against a $23 billion tax cut bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal described the bill as "excessive and inflationary" in a letter to senators. The full Senate will begin debate on the measure this week. It compares to a $16.3 billion House version. "The Finance Committee bill exceeds the administration's proposed net reductions by $5.4 billion in calendar 1979, by $5.3 billion in fiscal 1980 and by $6.7 billion in fiscal 1981," Blumenthal said. The Treasury secretary, who has described some parts of the tax cut as a relief plan for millionaires, said the bill's "tax relief is unbalanced," favoring high income taxpayers at the expense of the middle class.

The typical family of four with $17,500 in income would have federal income taxes cut $146 by the Senate bill, $115 by the House bill and $235 under Carter's original proposal.

"The tax cuts for middle income families barely offset the 1979 Social Security tax increase and one year's inflation, while the relief afforded very high income taxpayers offsets these factors ny times over," Blumenthal said of

Two eye-catching estimates about causes of eancer are being offered as a basis for expanded new research aimed at preventing the disease.

First, that 80 to 90 percent of all cancers are due to influences in our environment, in the way we live.

Second, that 40 to 60 percent of cancers are related to diet, what we eat.

Supporters of these estimates are urging that a large percentage of the nation's cancer budget be channeled into research seeking to identify the guilty influences, and then remove or avoid them.

Other specialists, whether or not agreeing with the estimates, say the realistic problem is how to get a good "handle" on research projects that would produce solid facts, on which to base action for any needed changes. Suspicions, they hold, are not enough.

It's all another illustration of the reasons cancer research is so difficult, so slow and so disappointing to both the

Most researchers think there is no single cause of all the many different types and sites of human cancers, of why healthy cells go "wrong." In some, several influences or causes might be acting together. Some factors could be promoters rather than starters of the disease. Viruses are still suspected as a cause, or promoter, perhaps just by influencing genes to turn cells cancerous. A few experts suggest, we may even be born with genes that are destined to fire up cancers.

The evidence for huge environmental influences is mostly indirect, based on epidemiology, the study of people and their diseases. It begins with an assumption that 10 to 15 percent of cancers have a genetic basis or tendency. Hence, all the to what we meet up with in daily liv-

The estimate of 80 to 90 percent of cancers being due to environment "does not mean the causes are known. Most of them aren't. Don't let it frighten you into being scared of everything," says Dr.

Another is asbestos, as causing or setting the stage for lung cancers. A third is excessive use of alcohol, in cancers of the esophagus and stomach.

Dr. Rauscher and others, including Dr. Lewis Thomas, president of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, say that for cancers of known etiology or cause, only some 2 to 5 percent have so far definitely been associated with industrial chemicals, although some suspect far higher linkages.

None are saying that dangerous chemicals shouldn't be sought out, identified and removed if possible.

But there are questions for public decision concerning risk-versus-benefit, and social or personal costs in dealing with either proven or suspected cancer-causing

Drastic changes in life style could be extremely unpopular and expensive un-less there is sufficient evidence to convince the public as to the wisdom of new regulations or laws.

Prudence is sensible, but "there is no such thing as zero risk in any part of hu-man living," says Dr. Rauscher, How does one try to draw a balance sheet?

"If people get the impression that 'everything is related to cancer,' they may just throw up their hands and do nothing and call a halt even to tackling the problem," he says. "They may feel there is nothing at all they can do about it."

"The Earth is carcinogenic (cancerausing)." says Dr. Thomas. "If we trito avoid it all by getting off out it space, it's even more carcinogenic sthere" due to radiations from the Sand common.

In environment 'there's not a clue yet to tell what is a high or low risk, a high or low priority for research, or what the economic impact would be of doing anything about it," says Dr. Gerald Murphy, director of Rosewell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y.

"We don't really have an idea. We musn't panic. When mercury in fish was suspected of causing cancer, laws were passed banning consumption of fish with a content of mercury that was too low for available instruments to detect."

Diet has come under suspicion, with cancer specialists such as Dr. Gio Gori of the National Cancer Institute and Dr. Ernst Wynder of the American Health. Foundation estimating that 40 to 60 pers.

Trying to pin down diet factors is tough, says Dr. Cole of Harvard, because cancers showing up today may have been caused by what people ate 20 to 40 years ago, and "it's hard even to remember what you had for dinner last night."

"Do we have the right tools to measure the right things?" he asks. "It's not so much a question of more money to look at the problem, as a lack of people and analytical tools for the job. Maybe we need a study of the study of diet. It is a puzzle within a puzzle."

Whatever the influences of environment and diet in causing haman cancers, there are not likely to be quick answers. (TOMORROW: What the Future May

Castro Changes Eritrean Stand

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Cuban President Fidel Castro appears to have bowed to Ethiopian demands that he place his prestige behind the African government's campaign to constitution in the northern province of Eritrea.

Western diplomatic sources said the final communique on Castro's recent week-long visit to Ethiopia appeared to be far more closely tailored to Addis Ababa's position on Eritrea than the Cuban leader has previously found acceptable.

The communique issued in Addis Ababa said the "Cuban side also reaffirmed its absolute opposition to any kind of secession and expressed its firm belief that revolutionary Ethiopia would solve all of its problems in line with the principles of Marxism-Leninism."

While the document made no direct mention of Eritrea, a former Italian colony on Ethiopia's Red Sea coast, the Ethiopian government has consistently used the derogatory phrase "secession" to describe the Eritreans fight for independent statehood.

"That wording certainly seems to play into the Ethiopians' hand," commented one western diplomat. He noted that in April, when Ethiopian leader Mengistu Haile Mariam visited Havana, the subject was scarcely mentioned.

The significance of the Cuban statement was that, as erstwhile supporters of the Eritreans, the Havana government was believed to be pressuring both sides to accept a negotiated settlement leading to internal autonomy for Eritrea.

According to the version of the communique broadcast by Addis Ababa radio, the document seems to ignore the prospect of a peaceful resolution to the conflict.

One diplomat noted that Castro's agreement to such wording may be an indication that he is seriously reconsidering his previous refusal to commit Cuban combat troops to the Eritrean war.

Several thousand Cuban soldiers are currently believed to be in Eritrea, but except for logistical roles and an occasional combat flight, they have been confined to barracks and have not participated in the ground fighting.

Thus Castro's support for the Ethiopi-

Java Price Soaring In Germany

By WELLINGTON LONG
BONN, West Germany (UPI) — "The American ordered a cup of coffee," the restaurant manager said. "As an afterthought, he asked the price. Then he canceled the order for coffee. I've never experienced that before."

Since the dollar hit a record low price against the Deutschmark, a lot more American visitors in Germany will find the price of a cup of coffee too much to

In a sit-down restaurant or coffee house frequented by the ordinary middle-class German "burgerliche" family, a cup of coffee costs 1.80 marks. Add in a 20-pfennic tip and it costs $1.04 nig tip and it costs $1.04.

And that $1-a-cup price buys no refills.

The "bottomless cup" of American diner lore is unknown here.

Drinking alcohol is more fun and less expensive, as long you avoid the hard stuff. A small beer costs 68 cents. A quarterliter — a generous pint — of either white or red wine costs $2.34.

Eating, however, can be expensive.
The McDonald's chain, expanding throughout Europe, charges $1.69 for one Big Mac.

Americans visiting Germany usually stumble over the telephone tolls. They get off their jet, go to a hotel and phone home to Columbus or Kansas City. Only when they pay their bills the next morning do they discover that hotels in Germany, as in most of Europe, triple the cost of phone calls as a service charge.

A three-minute call from a German hotel to the United States can cost as much as $40.30. The line at the hotel cashier's office each morning usually jams while some unfortunate American traveler learns the hard way that his telephone bill really is larger than his hotel bill.

Some people think they will save by using credit cards as often as possible, to avoid exchanging cash from one currency to another. The credit card strategem has its disadvantages, however.

By the time the credit card company's Germany office has sent the bills on to the United States, the exchange rate of the dollar may decrease further, so once again the size of the bill will be greater than anticipated.

The answer is to use all of your Ameri-

The answer is to use all of your American dollars to buy German marks the moment you reach Germany. Do not buy small amounts of marks in anticipation of an upward turn. It will not occur.

How can you tell what will happen to the dollar? Experienced international observers believe they have found a link between world events and currency exchange rates.

Take the Bonn economic summit last July, for example. Participants and observers alike declared the meeting of the leaders of the world's seven largest industrial democracies was a success. The dollar fell immediately.

The answer is clear: whatever happens, the dollar goes down.

will no doubt use to propaganda advantage, might be seen as a form of pressure on the Eritreans to be more flexible in their dealings with the Ethiopians.

This would appear to be particularly relevant in light of the rapidly declining fortunes of the two guerrilla groups — the Eritrean Liberation Front and the Eritrean Peoples Liberation Front.

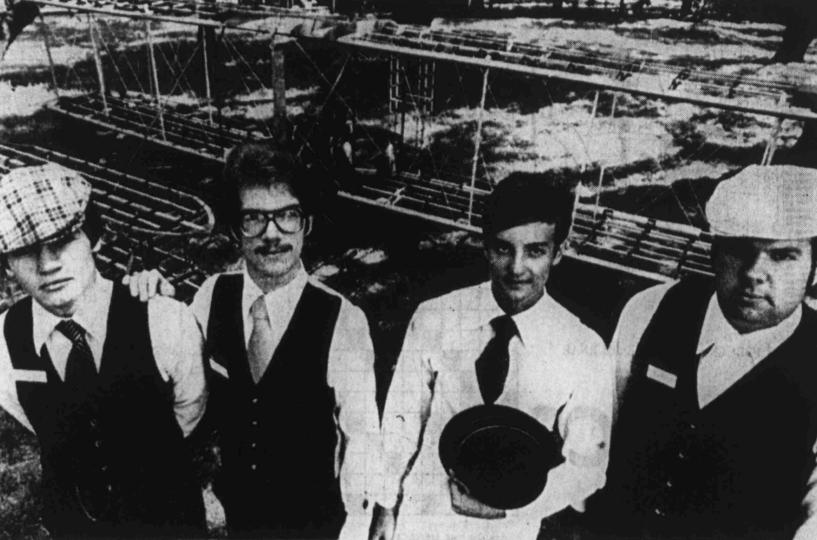

Having lost virtually all the territory in the province except for three beseiged population centers earlier this year, the Ethiopians in recent weeks have successfully fought back to the point that only one town, Keren, remains in guerrilla hands.

Located about 80 miles northwest of the provincial capital of Asmara, Keren has proven a formidable obstacle to the Ethiopian offensive. Hundreds of Ethiopian soldiers are said to have perished in the fighting for the town.

Diplomatic analysts believe that despite the initial setback at Keren, the momentum of the offensive has been such that the Ethiopians have decided to wait until the town falls before contemplating new negotiations.

When Keren is won, the guerrillas will be left with no population centers under their control and will be confined to fighting a guerrilla war in the hills.

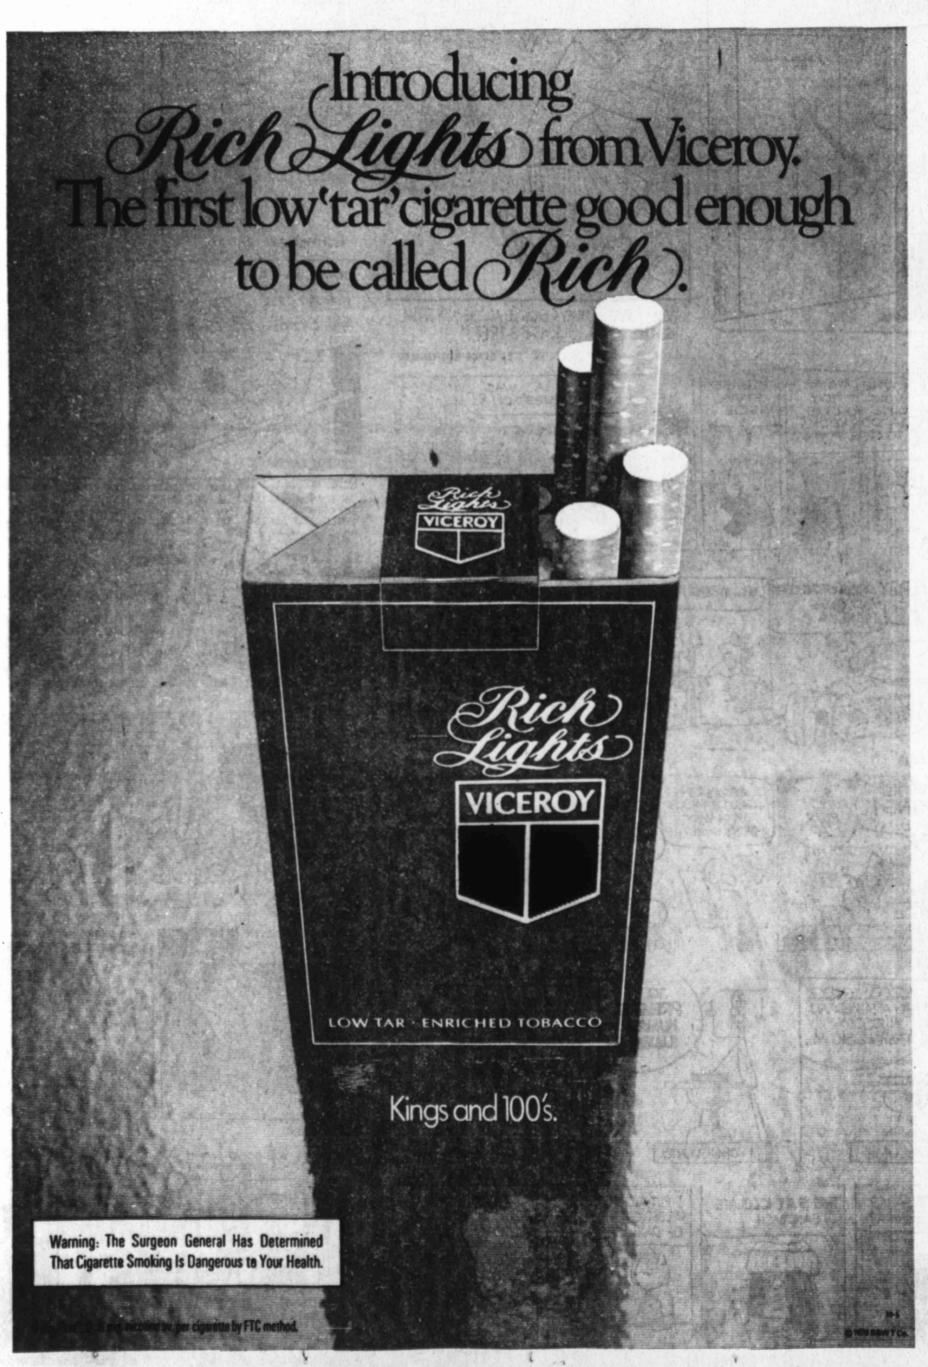

The diplomats said that such a conflict could last years, and the Ethiopians are evidently prepared to accept that possibility as the least damaging of a number of courses which now lie open.
