Man Killed, Two Hurt In Mishap

Avalanche-Journal Staff

In a bizarre, early morning incident, an auto traveling on Indiana Avenue slammed into a parked 21/2-ton truck, killing a Lubbock man who was clinging to the hood of the car.

Two persons riding inside the car were in critical condition early today at Methodist Hospital.

Leon Smith Jr., 21, of 2105 E. 4th St., No. 49, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital, following the 5:50 a.m. incident

Shallowater Justice of the Peace Jessie Lee Vance said this morning she is withholding a ruling on the fatality and has ordered an autopsy to be performed on

The driver of the car, Geary Lynn Williams, 22, of 2305 N. Ash and a passenger, Elizabeth Martinez Smith, 22, of 315 N. Flint Ave. were listed in critical condition this morning at Methodist Hospital. Elizabeth and Leon Smith were married, according to police, but were believed to have been separated about a

Williams told police he had picked up Mrs. Smith at work and was traveling north on Indiana Avenue when a car driven by Smith allegedly forced him off the road at the intersection of Duke Street. Smith reportedly jumped on the hood the windshield. Williams said he sped off with Smith still on his hood after the windshield was broken.

According to police, Smith apparently held on to the hood as Williams' vehicle traveled about six blocks, then crashed into the rear of the truck.

A witness to the accident said he heard gunshots, but Police Information Officer Bill Morgan said none of the participants suffered gunshot wounds, nor was a have stated from the outset that Mr. Park has never made a contribution to me or any of my campaigns. The committee found no proof to the contrary.'

He added, "I am deeply disturbed that the committee or its staff should conclude that I had tried to mislead them," a reference to the report's statement that Bayh first denied Park offered him money, but later testified an offer was made but rejected. The committee said it voted to take no action against Bayh other than asking the Justice Department about possible criminal action because the senator's alleged "neglect" is not punishable under Senate

Concerning possible punishment for the three House members, a coalition of several members of the California delegation and several congressmen of Hispanic heritage reportedly planned to move that the recommended penalty against Roybal be reduced from censure to a reprimand. Only one member of the House has been censured this century - Rep. Thomas Blanton, D-Texas, in 1921, for inserting a letter containing obscene language in the Congressional Record.

A censure is considered stronger than a reprimand.

But both can set the stage for further action by the Democratic Caucus. The. caucus, for example, stripped Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., of his seniority - and thus of his chairmanship of a powerful subcommittee - after the House voted in 1976 to reprimand him for financial misconduct.

The ethics committee met with several supporters of Roybal prior to the House action but refused to back off its recommendation of censure.

The ethics committee's recommendations came after lengthy closed hearings and after a public session in which evidence against and in favor of the three congressmen was presented. The testimony of Park, who cooperated in House and Justice Department investigations in return for the Justice Department dropping all 36 charges against him, was a key actor in the cases against the three.

The House Rules Committee decided that the five-part energy package would be voted on as one piece when it comes to House floor, thwarting attempts by opponents to split off the natural gas por-on the House floor. In other important actions by Congress today, conferees agreed on a strategy that could salvage a college tuition tax credit and the Senate agreed to take a vote on the controversial Humphrey-

On Thursday, opponents of the gas pricing compromise succeeded in blocking the move to have the energy plan folded into one piece and decided in a single vote. Both proposals lost by 8-8 tie

But today, Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., changed his vote and the committee reversed itself by a 9-7 vote. Sisk said that while he still believes the natural gas bill should be voted on separately, "I do not propose to be a party to killing the energy

The committee then went on to approve ground rules permitting a single vote on the energy plan.

Opponents believe if the natural gas section is voted on separately, they have a good chance of defeating it.

Thursday's vote left the package in a kind of legislative limbo that caught Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and his supporters on the committee off guard.

There were intense efforts to either switch one vote on the Rules Committee late Thursday night, or determine that the energy package would pass with either one or two votes.

Final action on the energy package is likely to come late Saturday.

The gas-pricing section, part of the Carter energy program first sent to Capitol Hill almost 18 months ago, would lift federal controls on natural gas prices by 1985, while allowing substantial increases over the current federally regulated price

The bill, a compromise worked out by House and Senate negotiators, is opposed by an unusual coalition of conservative Republicans, House members from gasproducing states and Democrats who say it would raise consumer prices unfairly Both sides say a vote on that section alone would be extremely close.

Until Thursday, the energy proposals appeared headed for approval by the House. Instead, opponents managed to defeat the single-vote idea on an 8-8 Rules Committee vote, the same vote that greeted the proposal to split the package into five parts. The importance of the vote was underscored by heavy administration lobbying, including a last-minute telephone call from Vice President Walter F. Mondale to Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y. She voted against the administration.

Old Prophecies Offer Warning

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A top prelate and former exorcist writing in the latest issue of the Vatican weekly Osservatore della Domenica says a worldwide disaster, possibly a nuclear war, might mark the reign of the new pope to be elected in the conclave starting Saturday.

Msgr. Corrado Balducci referred to the so-called Prophecies of St. Malachy, an ancient list of Latin mottos for each pope, and said an impending World War III could be written under the motto for the next pope — "De Labore Soli" or 'Of The Fatigue of the Sun."

It was very unusual for a Vatican publication to grant even indirect support to any of the "prophecies," generally viewed as a 16th-century forgery under the name of the 12th-century Irish monk-archbishop St. Malachy.

"It could refer to a minor detail, such as something in the coat of arms of the new pope or some other irrelevant circumstance," Balducci said of the motto "Of The Fatigue Of The Sun."

But he said some read into the motto "a more important meaning, referring to the time in which he (the new pope) will live. In this context, during the next pontificate, a great cataclysm will occur, which most likely could be World War

Balducci wrote this would be followed by "a period of peace and tranquility". under another pope. But as far as the cataclysm theory goes he said the so-called Secret of Fatima reportedly predicts "a great war" for the second half of our century too. The Vatican never published the secret. But, Balducci wrote, a text printed in Italy and Germany years ago "seems to be acceptable as authentic." He quoted the text as saving:

"A great punishment will fall on mankind ... in the second half of the 20th century ... Satan ... will succeed in seducing the spirits of the great scientists who invent the arms with which it will be possible to destroy a large part of mankind in a few minutes A great war will be unleashed in the second half of the 20th century ... Millions and millions of men will envy the dead."

Fatima, Portugal is one of the most famous Roman Catholic shrines. It marks the site where three young shepherds, two girls and a boy, said the Virgin Mary appeared to them in 1917 and disclosed a "secret" concerning the latter half of the 20th century. The text of the secret was later handed to the Vatican, leaving to the popes the decision whether to publish it or not.

Voting for the new pontiff begins Sunday. It is widely expected it will take wo to three days to elect the 264th pope, and that again he will be an Italian.

Power Failure Disrupts City

power failure left approximately four-fifths of the company's customers with-out electricity late this morning after a malfunction in the Holly Avenue plant's steam generator.

Reports of the blackout started pouring into the LP&L office around 11:20 but most areas had power by noon, according to Wanda Evans of the city public relations office.

A major portion of the affected area was south of 19th Street and west of Avenue A. Some areas were without power for as long as 20 minutes, Mrs. Evans said, and the exact cause of the failure still was not known at noon. City Electric Utilities Director Bill

Peace Negotiators Move Swiftly

WASHINGTON (AP) - Egypt and Israel appeared today to be moving swiftly to try to arrange terms of their historic peace treaty as negotiations resumed under U.S. auspices.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met first with the Egyptian delegation at Blair House, the presidential guest quarters across the street from the White House, and set up a separate session later with the Israeli team. By all indications, the talks were proceeding smoothly. At the end of Thursday's opening round, a spokesman for all three governments reported that "everyone there felt it was a good beginning. While no talks will be held Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, sources who asked not to be identified said a further session Sunday was probable.

This source said none of the tension that marked the Camp David negotiations was evident and the two nations were proceeding in a "businesslike fashion" to get the job done.

The target is completion within two months of a treaty outlining Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai, security measures and diplomatic exchanges. There is an even more optimistic target of Nov. 19, the first anniversary of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's offer of peace to the Israeli Knesset. As the talks began, President Carter and chief Egyptian negotiator Kamal Hassan Ali invited other Arab states and the Palestinians to negotiate with Israel. Their intention was to rebut Arab critics who claim the Camp David accords ignore Palestinian interests and could lead to a separate Egyptian-Israeli peace. "The United States is committed, without reservation, to seeing this process through until each party is at peace with all the others," Carter said at an opening White House ceremony. Ali, the defense minister in Egypt's new "peace" government, pledged to work for a comprehensive settlement which insures the fulfillment of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people

Funds Sought For Chaplin Statue

LONDON (AP) — A public appeal for cash "from ordinary people" has been launched to pay for a statue of Charlie Chaplin in his native south London.

A model of the statue by sculptor John Doubleday depicts Chaplin in familar garb: bowler hat, short jacket, baggy pants and big boots, and leaning on a bowed cane.

Illtyd Harrington, deputy leader of the Greater London Council, wants the statue unveiled by next spring in time for Chaplin's 90th birthday. Chaplin, who made a fortune in Hollywood movies and was knighted in 1975, died at his Swiss mansion Christmas Day 1977.

Harrington, a Laborite, said London's Conservative administration refused to fund the statue, and he decided to appeal for small contributions after a woman sent him a pound note ($2) and suggested he ask ordinary people to

LCC Honors Dads, Moms Of Students

Monday, Oct. 16, has been designated 'Parents Appreciation Day" at Lubbock Christian College.

The day goes hand in hand with the new Parents' Club formed at the school, according to Larry Roberts, LCC's vice president for development.

"This club is open to all parents past, present and future - of LCC students," Roberts explained. "Other major universities have Dads' Associations and Dads' Days on campus. But we wanted to involve both mother and dad, thus the Parents' Club.

The venture is the first such undertaking at LCC and Roberts is enthusiastic about the prospects. "We want to involve the parents in LCC because we think we have something wonderful here that they need to become involved in because of, first of all, their sons and daughters.

"We'd also like for them to given an open-end type of contribution. This can be a one-time-only gift, such as $1, or if they can afford if, we'd appreciate their sending monthly support," Roberts said.

At mid-September, 57 sets of parents had joined and the new support group already has given more than $6,200 in contributions, Roberts said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - It's been more than a century since the private summoned his courage at Gettysburg and won the Medal of Honor. Washington has delivered the plaque for his tombstone, to a Yankee hero buried in Confederate soil.

And there's a skirmish over mustering a dedication squad.

Gen. George G. Meade recommended the Kentucky-born infantryman for the divided nation's new honor Oct. 17, 1864. Twenty-fifth in a list of 50, his nomination reads: "Pvt. Oliver Rood, Co. B 20th Indiana Volunteers, captured the flag of the 21st North Carolina Regiment while charging the enemy at Gettysburg, July 3. 1863. Now present." Congress approved Dec. 1, 1865.

After Appomattox. Rood moved to Tennessee. Dying without heir in 1889, he was interred on Stranger's Row in Mount Olivet Cemetery, a graveyard full of Confederates killed in the Battle of Nashville. The world little noted, nor long remembered the blue-coat Rood. Working on a college thesis last spring. Purdue University student Stephen Carr traced Rood, discovered his grave lacked the obligatory Medal of Honor plaque and contacted the Veterans Administration. The VA shipped the brass marker arrange a dedication.

"I've run into some difficulty with the Daughters of the Confederacy," she said. "Evidently they talked is up and it didn't go down so well. Some of the older people in it are still fighting this war."

Dr. Rosalee Carter, the chapter president, said, "I just discovered that there were some that were very much against it. The Sons of the Confederacy also voted against it but we never took a vote."

A Daughters of the Confederacy member told her Rood won the medal for executing North Carolina captives. "You can see why we didn't honor this man," she said. "Our purpose is to memorialize the Confederacy. It would not be appropriate

BILL CLEMENTS WILL CUT TAXES AND GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Texas was built by men with the vision to look ahead and the grit to get things done. Bill Clements is the man to keep this tradition alive for the future of Texas.

Bill Clements will bring a strong, fresh and tough approach to our government in Austin. He is a businessman, not a politician.

Bill Clements started with nothing and built a successful, worldwide company with hard work and the skill to manage men and money. And now Bill Clements wants to preserve the future of our state and he wants the working people of Texas to have the same opportunities he had.

With his proposed "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights," Bill Clements is committed to protecting Texans from excessive taxation and runaway government spending. He is pledged to cutting taxes and returning that money directly to the taxpayers.

As former Chairman of the Southern Methodist University Board of Governors, Bill Clements knows how to make education in Texas the best in the Nation. He's for discipline in the classroom and "back to basics" quality education.

As the son and grandson of farmers, Bill Clements knows the frustrations that an indifferent government can cause people who make their living off the land. He will use the strength of the State Government to fight burdensome Federal restrictions.

"I believe that Texas has always had more promise than problems, but the balance is more delicate each year. We need to get to work now."

'Not Guilty...Pay Fine'

public schools are innocent of the charges; grant because of the unproved allegations. the bad news is that the schools will be punished anyway by the federal bureaucracy.

The U.S. Office of Civil Rights has approved the local school system's bilingual education plan, ending an investigation it announced four years ago come January.

Delays in approving the plan, which Supt. Ed Irons had defended all along as a model other school systems could envy, will nevertheless cost local taxpayers $133,307, maybe

A federal grant in that amount would have been due Lubbock under the Emergency School Aid Act had the district not been deemed ineligible because of the alleged civil rights violations in bilingual education, Irons points out.

EARLIER THIS YEAR, the Office for Civil Rights (OCR) refined its allegations questioning how Lubbock and about 50 other Texas school systems identify, categorize and provide services to students of limited English-speaking ability.

frons revised the local plan to "simply put on paper what we had been doing all along." In other words, he spent a lot of time on unnecessary paperwork to satisfy the bureaucratic red tape requirements.

Even after that, the OCR dragged its feet so long that another federal agency, the U.S. Office of Education, told Irons the schools

THE GOOD NEWS is that the Lubbock were ineligible for continuation of the ESSA

When the OCR finally got around to recognizing that it had made a mistake, that the allegations were unjustified, it was too late to recover the money

The grant, equal to a mere penny on the local tax rate, is not so important as is the principle of unwarranted meddling by the federal bureaucracy into educational affairs.

THIS EXPERIENCE is enough to add whatever additional proof anybody might need that what this country can't afford is the separate Department of Education that the Carter administration has been plump-

We need to get the federal camel's nose out of the classroom tent, not invite the whole animal in. Separating Education from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare would merely invite more federal interference.

Frankly, we question the whole bilingual education program if, by design or inevitability, it results in students of limited English-speaking ability relying so heavily on another language that they are not prepared to compete equally in an English-speaking so-

Don't...If You Can Help It

WASHINGTON-For the first time in 66 years, our state legislatures have two proposed constitutional amendments simultaneously before them.

The two amendments of 1912 were mistakes, and so are the two amendments pending now.

The first such double offering began in July of 1909, when Congress sought power "to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source

It is sorrowful to recall that the resolution was approved 318-14 in the House and 77-0 in the Senate. Thus the 16th Amendment went out to the states. It won ratification in February, 1913.

MEANWHILE, IN May of 1912, both houses had approved an amendment requiring direct election of senators.

Most of the states already had gone voluntarily to this exercise in democracy, but a handful still held out for the salutary plan of election by the state legislatures.

After all, senators are supposed to represent states. The 17th Amendment was ratified in April 1913. Neither the 16th nor the 17th Amendment did a thing to improve the Constitution.

The federal income tax that seemd so harmless in the beginning has become the major tool by which the architects of "redistribution" would

The 17th destroyed one of the last bastions of States' Rights, further weakened the doctrines of ederalism, and opened the Senate to moneybags, lemagogues and appealing nitwits.

THE REPUBLIC has survived these constitutional misfortunes, and doubtless the Republic will survive if the proposed 27th and 28th amendments are written into our fundamental law.

The former would say that equality of rights under the law could not be abridged on account

The latter would give two senators and at least one congressman to the City of Washington, D.C. But the ERA is just what Sen. Sam Ervin called it, "a constitutional time-bomb," and the D.C. proposal is no more than politics wrapped in

The more I have thought about it-and I have been thinking about if for 30 years—the more I have come to doubt the wisdom of most of the constitutional tinkering that has gone on since the Bill of Rights in 1792.

ONE WELL-drawn amendment about 1866 would have abolished slavery, given the vote to women and to blacks, and laid upon the states the requirements of due process and equal protection that were ambiguously written into the

What else have we truly needed to embed in the Constitution? Mighty little

If Congress if going to put its mind on constitutional amendments, it ought to ponder matters larger than the future election of Ramsey Clark and Julian Bond as Democratic senators from the City of Washington.

MAYOR DIRK WEST'S traffic safety crackdown on errant motorists has brought fire and brimstone down on his head.

Instead of handing out tickets to speeders. many believe, policemen could be better used tracking down robbers, rapists and residential rip-off artists.

In reply. West says that stopping more drivers for traffic law violations-routinely "running a check" on them and their cars-will have a residual effect on crime by catching some of the criminals up in the net

Others say that 81 traffic deaths here in less than two years show that traffic violators are a greater threat to life and limb than crime. While thinking crime should be brought under control. they also applaud the traffic safety campaign.

The key will be whether the patrol units actually concentrate on high-accident locations rather than on places where a speed trap is likely to produce a lot of fines.

Beyond that, the real key to traffic law enforcement is legislation making Municipal Court a court of record. Lawyers who make good fees by appealing traffic cases to the county will fight this proposal

THE FACT IS, though, that the Bar Association which is pressuring for creation of a new county court-at-law and a new district court-is on weak footing.

As it is now, traffic cases and other alleged violations of City ordinances can be tried once in Municipal Court and again on appeal to the

In practice, lawyers collect fees for appealing the cases but they seldom come to trial at the courthouse: they merely clog up the dockets

Making Municipal Court a court of record will reduce the backlog at the courthouse without saddling the public with the expense of two new

It also would promote better compliance with traffic safety rules by making the administration of fines more uniform

WASHINGTON-Like a lot of others. I hope I get a chance to vote for Big John Connally of Texas in the Presidential races of 1980.

Connally was in town recently talking to influential President-makers, the Baroody family and its establishments. That's the top reason I'm a preseason Connally rooter.

The William Baroodys, senior and junior, are proprietors of the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research. It may be the only true-blue Republican entity that has survived the twin pestilence of our postwar days-corruption and compromise.

The Baroody clan goes out looking for ways of learning and explaining the truth about national economics. If Connally gets the Baroody blessing. he could be what the Founding Fathers would

Cram As Many Deducts Into 1978 As Possible

THE FIRST across-the-board tax cut for corporations in almost 15 years will become effective in 1979-meaning that your business in the next couple of months will have the biggest opportunities for year-end tax savings in a decade.

If you make the right moves, your company can save thousands of dollars! In sum, the new law will increase the tax brackets for corporations from three to five and cut rates down the line.

* The 20 percent rate in 1978 for corporations in the taxable income class of zero to $25,000 will be cut to 17 percent in 1979; the 22 percent rate in 1978 for corporations in the taxable income class of $25,000 to $50,000 will be cut to 20 percent in

* The 48 percent rate in 1978 for corporations in the taxable income class of $50,000 to $75,000 will be cut to 30 percent in 1979, for corporations in the taxable income class of $75,000 to $100,000 will be cut to 40 percent in 1979;

* And for corporations in the taxable income class of above $100,000 will be cut to 46 percent

RESULT: A company with $25,000 of taxable income would save $750 in '79; with $50,000, its savings would be $1.250; with $75,000, savings would be $5.750

With $100,000, savings would be $7,750; companies with taxable incomes over $100,000 would get a tax cut of $7,750 plus 2 percent of the in-

(1) YEAR-END BONUSES. Your company can I'm not sure I support the idea-there are good deduct your year-end bonus in '78, when it's more valuable but give it to you in early 1979, when your own tax cuts will subject the extra cash to less tax erosion.

I ALSO INCLINE toward a change that Jeffer-son urged late in life, by which federal judges If, for instance, your company commits itself in 1978 to pay 2 percent of its '78 profits to its key would be appointed for specific terms rather than executives, and if the bonuses are reasonable, the company can deduct the 2 percent this year since the bonuses are both committed and fixed in I have yet to see a well-drafted amendment on tax limitation, but the idea ought to be kept alive.

But you won't be taxed on the bonuses until the precise totals are determined in '79 and paid to

(2) Repairs and supplies. Your company's deductions for repairs and supplies will be worth more this year than next, under the new law. Where possible, accelerate repair jobs into 1978 and also stock up before year-end on supplies that don't have to be inventoried.

(3) INVENTORIES. The lower your company's Don't do it if you possibly can help it. It's a closing inventory, the lower its taxable profit. So. by postponing year-end inventory purchases until 979, you can cut your company's 1978 tax bill. This will mean a lower opening inventory-and maybe a higher taxable profit-in 1979. But under the new law, 1979 profits will be more favorably taxed than those in 1978. Another effective technique for lower closing inventories: write down shop-worn items or odd lots to their true value. Revalue goods in your inventory at their true selling price less cost of dis-

For merchandise inventory, the "selling price is the price at which the goods actually are offered for sale within 30 days after the inventory valuation date.

If you can't sell the goods for what they are. sell them for scrap. But maintain sufficient records of the selling price for verification purposes! This is a must for your company. (4) SALES. WHILE ordinarily, you make sales as soon as you find a willing customer, if you're coming down to the very end of '78-and a few days won't make much difference-delay the sale closing until '79 The sale profits then would be taxed at the new

And of course, the income they generate isn't taxed until 1979. So kick off your 1979 advertising campaign well before year-end.

Gambling stocks have been the hot number in the stock market since Resorts International opened the first wheel in Atlantic City, N.J., last Memorial Day. Gains of 1,000 percent and more in stock prices have become routine as Resorts' reports of huge profits have come flowing into the Street (Resorts' "A" stock could have been had for $8.125 a share in 1977 and touched $210 last month; its "B" shares were $18 each last year and $325 last month.)

In the stock market, every winner has a loser on the other side. The brokers (who may be the biggest winners of all from the commissions they've raked in trading the stocks) are just starting to find out who got hurt, how badly, and possibly, what the indications are for the future. The studies, which will come pouring out of research departments over the next few months, are still early, but analysts we've spoken to say some faint patterns are starting to emerge.

Professional traders, especially those who sell short (in expectation of a drop in the market, when they can buy the shares back cheaper) apparently haven't believed the gambling story right from the start because some of them started selling short well over a year ago. (There have been reports that one trader lost several million dollars in one gambling

As the stocks rose, the traders' skepticism also increased and their short positions grew. About midway through the explosion, a number of them, according to figures from brokers, started bailing

As the pros left, the smaller plungers came along to take their place. The size of the average short sale in gambling stocks started moving down in August (a sign of increased public selling) and stayed down through September.

One analyst told us that the short sellers have changed their usual pattern in the gambling stocks. "Usually they sell short all the way up and then, at the first downward reaction, they buy back in," he said. "This time they did that, but as the stocks began to move up again, they started selling short again. That's what's kept the total short sales in the gambling group so high.

Technical analysts also say the gambling stocks should be ready to run out of steam. "They may go back up again," one said. "but it would only be a retracement rally. Overall, they look dead for a

The fighting is over a ruling last month by the Securities and Exchange Commission that allowed the American Stock Exchange to add 10 foreign stocks to its list, without requiring them to live up to the public disclosure requirements that norgo with an exchange listing

The Amex once handled a lot of issues on a so-called "unlisted" basis, but the practice was ended - everybody thought in the reorganization of the exchange about 15 years ago.

Over-the-counter market-makers, some of whom had to stop trading the foreign issues when the Amex took over, are leading the charge against the new ruling and they're getting support from some big firms. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., delivered a protest letter to the SEC last week. The opponents argue that the 3-2 commission vote violated the intent of the 1975 Securities Act reforms and goes against the trend to more - not less - public disclosure.

The question has even broader implications because the SEC is also considering changes in the New York Stock Ex-

New Movement Attracting Members Of Several Protest Groups

By DAVID E. ANDERSON WASHINGTON (UPI) — In mid-September, baby doctor Benjamin Spock was arrested and charged with criminal trespass during a protest against con-struction of the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear power plant.

It was not the first arrest for the 75year-old retired pediatrician turned activist. A decade ago, Spock stood trial for counseling young men to resist the draft and refuse to fight in Vietnam.

Spock's latest arrest symbolizes a largely a unspoken but significant overlap between the anti-war movement of the 1960s and today's anti-nuclear movement, the only branch of environmentalism that still practices civil diso-

At the heart of that link lie long standing fears that the atom poses a threat whether it is used peacefully or for military purposes. Along with concerns about radiation and other environmental ills posed by atomic power plants, opponents worry that spent nuclear fuel might be turned into nuclear weapons.

"The link between nuclear power and nuclear weapons persist, and the distinction between 'atoms for peace' and 'atoms for war' cannot be maintained " said Paul Abrecht of the World Council of Churches.

The anti-war movement after World War II was built around anti-nuclear politics, the slogan "Ban the Bomb" and civil disobedience that initially took the form of refusal to participate in air raid shelter

In the 1960s, however, the fading of the Cold War and the nuclear test ban treaty coupled with civil rights and opposition to U.S. involvement in Vietnam created a movement without nuclear weaponry as a priority

SANE was just about the only organization making a consistent anti-nuclear and disarmament witness," said one former anti-war activist. "And that was pretty tame.

Earth Day, April 22, 1970, raised the environmental issue to the status of a mass movement. Although it was dismissed by the anti-war leadership as a diversion, Earth Day was a direct outgrowth of anti-war strategy and tactics. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., who conceived the idea of Earth Day, said he patterned it after the anti-war teach-ins of November 1969. "As I was leaving my plane for Berkely for another conference, I picked up a magazine and saw a story about teach-ins on the Vietnam war," Nelson said. "Why couldn't we have a national teach-in on the environment, I wondered. While few anti-war leaders have turned in any significant way to environmental issues, many of the foot soldiers have. They have brought to the anti-nuclear branch of the environmental movement much of the decision-making style and some of the tactics of the old line peace movement. Chuck Matthei, one of the organizers of the Clamshell Alliance, the coalition fighting Seabrook, says the anti-nuclear

Labor Unions Join Hands With Group

By ALICE Z. CUNEO

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Stationery from environmental groups traditionally has said at the bottom: "Printed on recycled paper." Recently the message has been expanded to read: "Printed on recycled paper by union labor.'

That change is but one of several examples of a new push in the environmental movement to win allies among organize

Business often fights environmental rules by saying the cost of required air and water pollution control equipment will force them out of business. Such arguments, raising job security fears, have tended to put labor in the anti-control

"Business claimed there would be enormous job josses from the clean air and water act, just as they said in the past that jobs would be lost if unions were organized," said Gail Daneker of Environmentalists for Full Employment, one of several Washington groups trying to mend the fences between the environmental movement and organized labor.

We want to squelch that argument." She said companies often need to re-place or update outmoded plants but blame environmental regulations for the full cost of the job. "The environmental equipment is only a small part of the cost," she said.

Environmentalists and labor recently have started to work together for the first time since they joined hands a decade ago to fight for the Occupational Health and Safety Act.

"Clams" have brought together people from the peace and nuclear weapons protest movements.

Their tactics, especially the use of non-violent civil disobedience, have resulted in the anti-nuclear effort being criticized for radicalism. Douglas Costle, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, defends some of th militant actions of environmental-'The militants drew attention to something the body politic responded to," he

"I think some of the more militant ones have offended people with their militancy, and maybe we're entering a period where militancy is generally less in favor, but it has focused a hell of a lot of peoples' attention on problems they otherwise might not have paid any attention

By AL ROSSITER JR.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the nation's most important public health advances came 70 years ago when chlorine was added to drinking water to kill bacteria. It also led to a new environmental Chlorination was first used in Jersey City, N.J., in 1908. Within a few years, most urban dwellers across the nation were drinking water disinfected by chlorine. The incidence of waterborne disease, most notably typhoid fever, dropped

In addition to killing germs, however, chlorine reacts chemically with naturally occurring organic compounds in water to form an unwanted by-product, chloroform. And chloroform in high doses causes cancer in rats and mice.

A 1975 survey of 80 chlorinated municipal water supplies found small amounts of chloroform present in every instance. In 1976, the National Cancer Institute confirmed chloroform's cancer-causing potential in lab animals.

Acting under the 1974 Safe Drinking Water Act, the Environmental Protection Agency last January proposed regulations aimed at lowering human exposure to chloroform, to other compounds formed by chlorination, and to manmade organic compounds entering drinking water supplies from upstream pollu-

"The proposed program marks the start of the first large-scale effort in history to deal with organic chemical contaminants in drinking water," said EPA chief Douglas Costle.

"It will initiate changes in our approach to regulating the quality of water we drink, and will give the American public an insurance policy against the dangers associated with chemicals in our

The proposal was greeted by a deluge of criticism from the American Water Works Association and the National Association of Water Companies. Their primary concerns were cost coupled with the fact the action was based on scientific hypotheses and what they considered unproven technology.

"No cost is too great to buy protection against demonstrated dangers," said Robert R. Peters, president of the water works association. "But forcing communities to divert scarce public funds to fight 'maybe' cancer dangers with 'per-haps' GAC (granulated activated charcoal filter) techniques is unreasonable and improper.

The controversy is a prime example of the problems faced by government offi-cials who are directed by law to take reasonable action to protect the American consumer from environmental cancer

Cancer specialists agree that environment plays a role in many - if not most of the 700,000 cancer cases that will be diagnosed in the nation this year. The question is whether organic contaminants in drinking water have a role in cancer development

In a study for EPA, the National Academy of Sciences said the effects of continued exposure to low doses of toxic agents are hard to recognize because there are few, if any, early warning signs. When the effects become apparent, the results often are irreversible

"It is a particularly troublesome type of situation," said Victor Kimm, deputy assistant EPA administrator for drinking

"The early focus of water supply really was on acute illnesses, typhoid, cholera, things that got people sick by the thousands. What we're now looking at are kind of the subtle, long-term impacts that are not so obvious.

"That makes the scientific problem of sorting out cause and effect much more difficult. But it doesn't make the impacts any less real because of the immense involuntary exposure to everyone

'We think that these contaminants are a legitimate basis for concern, but not panic," Kimm said in an interview.

No one is suggesting an end to chlorination of drinking water. The benefits far outweigh the risks. But the EPA does believe the risks posed by the by-products of chlorine and by other organic compounds in the water can be significantly reduced. Although suspicions about water pollutants and cancer go back to the 1950s, the issue didn't surface publicly until Nov. 7, 1974 when the Environmental Defense Fund, a public interest group, reported a possible link between cancer in Louisiana and drinking water from the Mississippi

The EPA confirmed the presence of tiny amounts of 66 organic chemicals some of them suspected carcinogens in the New Orleans water supply.

The 1975 EPA study that found chloroform in samples of chlorinated tap water across the nation measured concentrations ranging from 0.1 to 311 parts per billion per liter. Miami had the highest level, followed closely by Huron, S.D., which had a 309 ppb figure. No other city tested had more than 200 ppb Since then studies have shown a pattern of statistical association - but not a definite link - between elevated cancer rates and organic contaminants in the drinking water of several cities. The National Cancer Institute said last April one study suggested a decrease of 100 ppb of chloroform in tap water could lead to a decrease of bladder cancer rates ranging from 1.3 to 10 percent and of intestinal cancer from 3 to 8.5 percent.

"While such studies are far from conclusive, when taken together with the toxicological data from animal testing. they constitute a further basis for public health concern," said Dr. Arthur Upton, NCI director, in a letter to EPA head

Douglas Costle. We do believe that the potential risk justifies action and would encourage you to reduce the amounts of these chemicals in drinking water to the extent that is with reasonable available

it of 100 ppb per liter of tinished water for chloroform and related organic chemicals called trihalomethanes. They also called for water systems to use activated charcoal filters, if necessary, to control organic pollutants from industrial discharge and farm or urban runoff. The regulations would at first apply only to community water systems serving more than 75,000 people, about half the nation's population.

Kimm, the EPA official charged with overseeing American drinking water, said minor modifications of the disinfection process ought to lower the levels of chloroform and related chemicals to acceptable levels in many water systems.

If that failed, the utility could consider different disinfectants, although chlorination appears to be the best way to conabout its by-products.

The EPA estimates that 61 municipal water systems across the nation would have to use activated charcoal. In January, the EPA estimated these filters would cost between $352 and $585 mil-the water suppliers, the EPA upped its estimates in July to $616 to $831 million.

The National Association of Water Companies, representing 216 privately owned utilities supplying water to 32 million people, replied in August that EPA still underestimated the costs.

The EPA estimates would increase the average family's annual water bill as said the cost might increase as much as

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said Sept. 5 the EPA failed to weigh costs against expected benefits and "shed

vironmental Conflicts Aboun

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Three and a half centuries ago, the American environment was something to be conquered by settlers scratching for survival. Then it became something to be exploited to bring prosperity to an expanding nation.

Today, the environment that was in turn hostile and then the source of national riches has entered a new phase. The air, the water and the very earth are said to be fragile, endangered.

Americans are told they have come close to destroying America.

Environmental protection is not new to this country. Under the name conservation, the United States began trying to preserve wilderness and wildlife almost a

President Supports Movement

By LAURENCE McQUILLAN WASHINGTON (UPI) - Jimmy Carter, the presidential candidate who often refered to his farm upbringing and love of nature, turned to an audience in Pittsburgh in 1976 and pledged never to re-treat in the battle for a better environ-

"This is no time for those of us who love God's earth and the beauty of it, the purity of the air and water, to compromise or to retreat or to yield in any possible measure to the devastation or deterioratin of the quality of our lives or our environment," he declared.

One of the first major showdowns the new president had was over a so-called water projects "hit list." Carter demanded that a number of projects be abandoned because they were not needed and were too costly.

He vowed there would be no compromise, but there was. Congress ignored most of Carter's hit list, reinstating virtually all the projects. When the bill reached his desk, Carter signed it. Vice President Walter Mondale, during a recent interview, said only once has he heard Carter express regret over not vetoing a measure - "the water projects, that's the only one."

Water projects are a "pork barrel" public works issue, and the cycle is endless. This year brought a new confrontation, and others are sure to follow.

The question of a national water policy also has been a stumbling block for the administration. The political conse ences of decisions weigh heavily, particu-larly in the water-short West.

Carter ordered a review of water policy, participated in discussions on the subject, and in June announced his policy generalized collection of staten that failed to satisfy those who cared.

The objectives boiled down to improv ing planning and managment, new em is on water conservation, more federal and state cooperation and "increased attention to environmental quali-

-Solar Energy. Backs developing its uses, and participated in Sun Day exercises. However, he opposes a bill that would create a solar energy bank with a $5 billion fund for long-term, low interest loans for solar installations.

-Nuclear Power. Carter dismayed environmentalists by first listing nuclear power as a "last resort" and later planning beavy reliance on it. "Our national policy is to permit planning, siting and construction of nuclear power plants," Carter said in Portland, Ore. this May, adding that the final decision should rest with the voters in a referendum.

Cleanup Will Cost $554 Billion By '85

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Here at a glance are the forecast costs and benefits of cleaning up the environment.

Costs: $554 billion through 1985, including $265 billion for curbing sewage discharges and $195 billion for reducing air pollution by cars, factories and power plants, according to the Council on Environmental Quality. Government spending in the coming year will total $12.3 bilhome than some remote forest or isolated mountain. Americans have clear evidence that there is a limit to what they can pump into the skies, dump into the rivers and lakes or rip out of the earth without endangering health and life style wherever they live.

And the conflict between the maintenance of prosperity and the protection of the environment is far harder to recon-

The question of whether to save the California redwoods at the expense of some loggers' jobs may be relatively easy for someone living in a city. But when the issue is cleaning up the urban air at the expense of barring cars from downtown shopping district, the choice becomes much more difficult for the city dweller or suburbanite.

Much more than mere comfort is at stake.

Even the most modest environmental protection measures cost money. At best, they increase the cost of goods and services that may be only marginally profitable. At the worst, businessmen say, factories and stores will close if established methods of production and operation are restricted. What public purpose is served, they ask, to improve the environment but destroy the economy?

Environmentalists concede the measures may cause some displacement. But they see new jobs forming in the manufacture and service of anti-pollution machines and processes. And they pose a question, too: who will be left to enjoy prosperity if the environment cannot support human life?

Into this tight situation must come the lubrication of compromise.

The United States is a country founded on political and economic tradeoffs and in almost every instance of public conflict its leaders have been able to find a middle ground of action that, if not acceptable to the extremes of opinion on the question, provided a haven to which people of goodwill could repair.

The longer scientists study the environment, the more threats they find. And the more proposals they offer for cleaning up the air and water, the greater the conflict appears between environmental needs on the one hand and energy and inflation goals on the other.

Dealing with those complex, interlocking issues while retaining public support poses the environmental movement's greatest challenge.

"It is relatively easy to arouse public concern over an animal or a bird, but much harder to convey the possible health hazard of a chemical which most people can't even pronounce," says William Butler, an attorney for the Environmental Defense Fund, a public interest

Last In A Series

We also must fight fatalism and apathy. People have gotten to the point where they believe that so many chemicals cause cancer that they don't want to bother about trying to eliminate them from the environment.

'There is a danger that as the issues reach a greater degree of specialization, the general public will lose interest. The public will opt out."

Costs pose similar problems. Thomas Kimball of the National Wildlife Federation says most people are willing to pay a little to clean up the environment, but as the price rises the number in favor of paying it declines

The early targets of the environmental movement - smog, clouds of auto exhaust and factory smoke, untreated sewage, noxious chemical discharges, roadside litter - were easy to spot. The damage to the environment could be seen, smelled, felt. The initial cleanup, likewise, produced visible results

But as more sensitive measuring tools are developed, as environmental science gets more sophisticated, the emphasis is switching to unseen threats — such as cancer - posed by long-term exposure to tiny traces of man-made chemicals.

A yet-to-be-released joint study by the National Cancer Institute and the National Institute for Environmental Health Sciences suggests occupational exposure to chemicals may cause 20 percent of all human cancer - four times the currently accepted figure. Industry disputes even the 20 percent.

Another study in August by a five-agen-cy federal task force said cancer, heart ease and lung disease, "linked by growing evidence to environmental causes, have become the leading causes of mortality in our environment

foo little is being done to combat it.
Of 4.3 million chemicals, about 63,000 are thought to be in common use in the United States. But no one knows for certain, and compiling an inventory is the EPA's first step under the 1976 Toxic Substances Control Act.

Political problems have plagued the in-ventory from the outset. Industries are ne to give away their secrets, and tr EPA has agreed as a compromise to collect information on each chemical and the company using it — but not on how the chemical is used.

Projected costs of removing pollution from the environment are staggering an estimated $554 billion from 1976 through 1985, according to CEQ estimates. Half that amount was attributable to federal regulations.

Federal spending for environmental clean-up will total $12.3 billion in fiscal 1979, up 11 percent in a year. Industry costs are similarly hefty, and most get passed on to the consumer through high-

The CEQ says $265.3 billion of the total cost will be spent on sewage and industrial discharges into the water, $195.3 billion on air pollution from cars, factories and powerplants, $83 billion on solid waste, $5.4 billion on strip mine reclamation, $3.8 billion on noise, $1.1 billion on control of toxic substances and $400 million on nuclear power plant radiation.

Industry leaders play up such figures, saying pollution control has slowed economic growth and citing 107 factories with 20,318 workers that closed for environmental reasons from 1971 through March 1977.

Environmentalists acknowledge the costs are real, but argue the present and future benefits at least offset them.

Among those benefits, according to a July survey by the Environmental Industry Council:

- Creating 2 million jobs to date related directly or indirectly to pollution abatement, more than enough to offset any jobs lost through plant closings.

Reducing the estimated $2035 billion cost and minimum 4,000-6,000 premature deaths attributed to pollution-caused illness each year.

 Cutting pollution's estimated $5 billion annual toll in structural corrosion, paint deterioration and damage to vegetation. The EPA, two other federal agencies and many urban, labor and environmental groups including the Sierra Club have scheduled a trail-breaking conference on the urban environment for this coming

Major conflicts exist between environmental goals and energy needs.

Energy consumption - burning any sort of fuel, wood, coal, oil or uranium creates pollution. So does most energy production, whether the mining of coal, the drilling of oil wells or the mining of

Although President Carter has called nuclear energy a stop-gap last resort, his energy plans would result in more than doubling the present 71 atomic power

Almost all environmentalists, to one degree or another, oppose this.

To many environmentalists, solar energy, windmills and small hydroelectric dams are the hope of the future - clean energy, controlled by individuals rather than big utilities. The Energy Department says their hopes are too high, that such sources can meet only 20 percent of U.S. energy needs by the year 2000. Despite such potential problems, environmentalists say solar and wind power would be less damaging to the environment than more traditional energy sources and would further the switch to the "small is beautiful" society some of them favor.

"The attractions of sunlight, wind, running water and green plants as energy sources are self-evident," says Denis Hayes of World Watch Institute. "They are especially appealing in their stark contrast to a world of nuclear garrison "Scarce resources would be conserved, environmental quality would be maintained and employment would be spurred. Decentralized facilities would lead to more local autonomy and con-

the nation's energy but represents 90 percent of its energy reserves, presents a good example of both the type of environmental problems facing the nation and the solutions that may emerge.

Coal, which supplies only 18 percent of Controls imposed since 1970 have reduced sulfur dioxide pollution - one of the main ills of coal burning — by 27 per-cent. But creating some 200 new coalfired plants might reverse that gain if nothing more is done.

The EPA proposed requirements in September for new coal-fired power plants to remove up to 85 percent of potential sulfur dioxide — compared with 70-75 percent under present rules with stack scrubbers and other equip-ment. It said the new rules could boost home electric bills as much as $1.10 a

The electric power industry countered that such an approach would cost two and one-half times more than "partial" scrubbing, which would get rid of some 80 percent of the sulfur dioxide. A final EPA decision is due early next year, and Costle acknowledges the cost-benefit analysis will be difficult.

If coal has been a source of environmental conflict, it also provides the lead-

was raped and robbed early this morning by two men who found her sleeping in a

The woman said she was asleep in the front seat of a vehicle in a parking lot at Broadway and Avenue X when two young white men jumped in the car shortly after midnight.

After asking if the victim needed help, one of the suspects allegedly raped the woman after motioning to his companion to leave the car. Reports indicate the man held the woman at knifepoint while committing the assault.

The woman said the other man then entered the car and also raped her. After the assaults the men took the woman's purse and fled the scene, according to re-

The woman, who was treated and released at Health Sciences Center Hospital, described her attackers as young white men. She said one of the suspects was a thin, short man with wavy brown hair, and wearing blue jeans and a brown

The other man reportedly had long, stringy blond hair and was wearing blackrimmed glasses.

No suspects in the reported rape had been arrested early today.

Police Thursday night and early today were busy cleaning up the city of alleged prostitutes, making five arrests in three different locations.

Shortly after 10 p.m. Wednesday a 22year-old woman was arrested at a motel at 34th Street and Avenue H. About 10 minutes later, officers raided a motel in the 400-block of Idalou Highway and arrested two more suspects, ages 21 and 18.

Two women, ages 18 and 19, were taken into custody about 12:30 a.m. today at a residence in the 1600-block of 16th

In one of several reported burglaries, David Ellis of 221 Indiana Ave., No. 112, said his apartment was burglarized between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Thursday and $2,299 in property stolen, including jewelry, guns, stereo equipment and household goods

Esther Ellen Phifer of 1717 Norfolk Ave. said $900 was stolen from a purse in her bedroom sometime between 4 p.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

An 85-year-old Lubbock man was accosted by a knife-wielding bandit Thursday morning and was left $208 poorer.

James N. Nichols told officers a black man, about 20-years-old and wearing dark clothing, forced the screen door of his 2306 Ave. N home about 11 a.m. and threatened his elderly victim with a 12inch bladed knife.

Nichols said the suspect threatened to kill him if he did not give him some money. After taking the cash, Nichols said, the robber ripped the phone line from the wall before fleeing.

Elsewhere, both police and deputies were swamped with the latest reports of Adams said that after getting inside the business, the intruders drove the truck through a fence surrounding the area. Deputies later found the vehicle abandoned along the highway about .2 of a mile west of the firm.

In addition to the vehicle. Adams said the burglars took $108 cash, four pocket calculators, three printing calculators, two CB radios and a radar detector. About an hour and a half after Adams

Amarillo authorities also told local deputies that the suspects had several items matching the descriptions of the goods stolen from Adams' firm.

Winter's neighbor, Tommy G. Herring of Rt. 7, Box 306, said burglars also entered his home through a forced back door and took $1,125 worth of property, including a television set, clock, clock radio, electric mixer, man's diamond ring and two pellet guns.

Steven C. Smith told deputies that whoever pried the front door of the Reddi Mart Grocery at FM 40 and FM 1729 late Wednesday or early Thursday took $80 cash from the store register and a .38caliber revolver, valued at $75.

In city break-ins, Don W. Osborne told officers that he found the front door of his realty firm unlocked when he arrived at work about 8 a.m. Thursday. Osborne said an electric typewriter, stapler and tape dispenser, together valued at $804, were missing from the receptionist's desk in the 4501 Ave. Q office.

CHECKS ARRIVE - Soldiers from Fort Carson, Colo., pick up three bags of paychecks at Stapleton Airport early today. Checks for two million U.S. military personnel were delayed until Congress passed a $117.3 billion defense appropriations bill

Solons Clear Way For Military Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) - It's payday for U.S. military forces today, thanks to Congress' last-minute determination to approve a $117.3 billion defense appropri-

The action by the House and then the Senate Thursday night cleared the way for mid-month paychecks to go out, as usual, to an estimated 1.5 million members of the military.

Both civilian and military employees at Lubbock's Reese Air Force Base will pick up their checks today, as usual. The checks were metered and taken to the post office about 11 p.m. Thursday, acording to Capt. Bob Brus, chief of Reese "It was a pervous situation." Brus said.

but everyone was hoping it would come through and it did."

Arrangements had been made previously to pay civilians for the last week in September, which is covered in the 1978 fiscal year. Civilians will be paid for the first week in October, as well, because of the last-minute appropriation.

Whether payday would come on schedule was in serious doubt before the measure was pushed through and sent to President Carter for signing just before

"I sound the battle cry of the troops who are threatened with no pay," said Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, in seeking to head off any last-minute fights that could have sidetracked the bill

The bill was approved on a voice vote in the House and then cleared without debate in the Senate.

The delay in acting on the appropriation resulted from Carter's veto of the companion authorization bill in August. Carter objected to the inclusion of a $2.1 billion nuclear supercarrier and his veto was sustained by the House.

Even without the supercarrier, the size of the bill was unprecedented.

"This is the largest appropriations bill ever passed by the Senate in the history of the nation, in wartime or peacetime, said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.

The funds will be used to run the nation's military machine during the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The bill was about $2 billion under Carter's budget, of which about half represents deferral of funding for the Trident submarine until next year.

It will be built just as quickly com under next year's bill as under this year's bill," Stennis said.

Although it was not mentioned in the Senate, the bill included a controversial provision allowing government-financed abortions for service personnel and their families if the pregnancy endangers the mother's life, might cause "severe and long-lasting" damage to her health, or was the result of rape or incest.

Superstition, Fear Essential Parts Of Friday The 13th

United Press International It's here again - Friday the 13th.

If that's not enough to make your skin crawl, look at the almanac. The moon is entering its full phase. And Halloween, with its witches brew, black cats ad hobgoblins is just a couple of weeks away.

Had the crew of the 19th century wooden bark, Solferino, stayed home one dark and gloomy Friday the 13th, there might have been no mutiny

But all this fear about Friday the 13th is just for the silly, superstitious few. Isn't it?

Or is it for most of us? 'These cultural beliefs are built up in us as children, like not walking beneath a ladder, or stepping on the cracks on the sidewalk, or a black cat passing," says Dr. Lee Macht, chief of psychiatry at Cambridge (Mass.) Hospital.

'The kids take these cultural beliefs with them into adulthood and it affects each person differently." he says. "No one in the circus quite knows how the superstitions came into existence," Fox says, "but they've been around ever since the oldest painted circus wagons moved from one town to another."

Lest all those evil omens set circus folk to brooding themselves right out of the business, Fox says good luck signs also abound. DR. LAMB

Drug Not Miracle

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like to know about penicilliamine which is used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis. Many patients in my area are interested in this drug particularly since we have read glowing reports about it in newspapers. Is it really a miracle drug in curing rheumatoid arthritis?

DEAR READER — Judging from some reports, you would think there was a new cure invented for some of our long-term disease almost every month. I am afraid this is more sensationalism than science. The news stories in reference to penicilliamine in some papers is a classic example of this problem.

Penicilliamine is a good medicine. As the Arthritis Foundation has pointed out, it is not a miracle drug to cure all cases of rheumatoid arthritis. In fact, it can cause a list of complications as long as your arm. Some of these complications are worse than rheumatoid arthritis.

It can affect blood elements leading to bleeding, cause kidney problems and other disorders. No one should be on this medicine without being carefully followed by his physician. Penicilliamine was pioneered by

Dr. Israili Jaffe. The use of the medicine for treatment of rheumatoid arthritis has not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration at this writing. Dr Jaffe felt that some of the newspaper stories that over-stated the case for penicilliamine in treating rheumatoid arthritis was really a "cruel disservice to arthritis sufferers."

The medicine is reserved for those cases of long-standing, recurrent at-tacks of severe rheumatoid arthritis that have not been effectively controlled with other measures.

In some patients, who do not develop any complications from the penicilliamine treatment, it has proved to be an important addition to their medical-management program. In short, it is a very useful medicine in a small number of selected cases of the much larger number of people who have rheumatoid arthritis.

To give you more information about rheumatoid arthritis, I am sending you The Health Letter numinformation can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed enve-lope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 16 years old and jog three or four times a week, but I seem to be breathing harder than I should when I jog. I was wondering if it is because my father smokes heavily and I breathe the smoke from his cigarettes?

DEAR READER — You can get harmful effects from second-hand smoke. Perhaps one of the best ex-amples is if people smoke heavily in closed room. In the course of time the carbon-monoxide level can build up to levels higher than allowed in industrial environments.

There is no way I can tell whether you father's smoking pollutes the air in your house enough to cause you a significant problem. I would be inclined to doubt it, no matter how irritating the smoke may be to you. Of course, if the house is closed up, and ne smokes an awful lot, then you might have a point.

More than likely, you're jogging too fast. A proper jog is done at a speed which doesn't causes a person to become breathless. If you can't talk comfortably while you are jogging, you are jogging too fast. The purpose of jogging is to cover distance, not

QuarantineOnCorn To Combat Borers

A-J Correspondent

AMARILLO — A quarantine requiring the screening or furnigation of corn from 15 Texas Panhandle counties to prevent the spread of the European corn borer was discussed in detail during a special meeting of grain industry representatives at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center here this week.

Grainmen and representatives of the Texas Department of Agriculture agreed that such measures could delay the spread of the pest to other areas of the state, but pointed out that the quarantine will cost farmers in the affected counties more of the cash they are having a hard time earning in light of prevailing corn prices.

David Ivie, department spokesman representing Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, explained that the proposed quarantine would include Deaf Smith, Moore, Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Hutchinson, Roberts, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray and Randall counties.

"In order to maintain the credibility of our certified grain from borer-free areas, we need to set up some control over the grain moving from the 15-county area where the European corn borer has been found," said Ivie. "If we don't take this step, the whole state may be labeled as European corn borer infested by those states free of the pest. There's no point in those areas to the south of the infested counties being penalized, when the problem can be held in check where it now stands," he added.

Proposed quarantine lines were drawn up by the department after a 30-county survey last month revealed 15 positive sample returns.

Moore County in August, and symptoms of its presence in the Panhandle have the United Kingdom.

Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, told the gathering the borer is present in numerous states and can be dealt

"The European borer burrows into corn stalks, but doesn't girdle the plant like the Southwestern borer, with which we are all familiar. There are two generations of the pest in most areas, with the second generation hitting in late July and August. They feed in the ear region, weakening the stalk and the shank, and can cause ears of corn to fall off, or stalks to break over. The first generation feeds in the whorl and is more damaging in this stage than the Southwestern. Up to 15 percent lodging has occurred in this stage in Kansas," Patrick reported.

"This pest can move into sorghum as well, although they don't overwinter in it very well. They do overwinter in smartweed as well as corn, and they are harder to control with cultural practices. The European borer survives better on top of the ground than the Southwestern, and is apparently less susceptible to cold weather. The adult stage of this pest is a moth. It could have flown into the northern Panhandle from Kansas, Nebraska or Oklahoma, or it could have been brought in with grain shipments,"

Ivie agreed that an actual movement of the insects from northern regions may have resulted in the Panhandle infesta-

According to Ivie, a quarantine in the affected counties would require either screening the grain by passing it through a half inch mesh screen to remove trash or debris large enough to contain larvae or fumigation of the grain with methyl bromide, which could cost up to $500 per railroad car.

Grain industry spokesmen estimated been noted for at least three years, ac- the cost of screening the corn could add

"In instances such as a farmer harvest-ing corn in Deaf Smith County and hauling it to an elevator across a county line, such as in Parmer or Castro counties. verbal information from the farmer will be sufficient, provided the elevator in the borer-free area is approved to receive the grain and takes the proper treatment steps," he continued. Feedyards processing corn from the infested area will be allowed to receive the grain without special approval, provided they grind or process the grain in such a way as to get rid of the trashwhich could harbor larvae, and silage would be allowed to move freely, according to Ivie.

Carl King and Bill Clark of Dimmitt, representing the Texas Corn Growers Association, pointed out that many elevators are equipped to handle the screening requirement with their present scalping equipment, but that such a process will cost farmers in the infested area an additional fee.

Ivie pointed out that grain moving to export elevators will be exempt from the treatment requirements, provided it receives treatment upon its arrival at port

"Our quarantine in the Panhandle area will be no good if Texas allows grain to come in from other infested states without the proper treatment certificates. I think our first priorities should be to find out just where this Panhandle infestation came from and to determine if this problem was brought in with grain from previously infested states," King commented. "I think the agriculture commissioner should first inform the railroads of the need for borer-free certificates with carloads of corn from other infested states, and then I think there should be some spot-checking of out-of-state trucks for certificates as well. Agriculture commissioners in other states should also be contacted to request their cooperation in enforcing certificate provisions. It's time we toughened up on some of the grain coming into this state. They're tough out," he added. King expressed confidence that the presence of the European borer will not cripple the Panhandle's corn production enough on ours when we try to ship it

"From everything I've heard and read, we should be able to control the European borer with the same practices we now use on the Southwestern borer. I feel like if farmers plant early and use a good pest control program, our prob-lems should be minimal," he said.

'Unconventional Crops' Urged For Desert Areas

Radial tires, hair shampoos, furniture polish and heart stimulants were discussed at an international conference at Texas Tech University here this week when scientists exchanged notes on how to make these household items from desert shrubs

Research has indicated that it is technologically possible to produce these and several other items from desert shrubs, but any future development will be influenced by the politics and economics of natural resources.

A third influencing factor was introduced by some speakers who expressed concern that environmental conditions in the deserts were too fragile and that man should be extremely careful in trying to cultivate crops in the dry re-

Rubber technology, harvesting methods, development of extraction processes, and resin by-products, and the price and politics of rubber will all affect commercialization of the desert shrub, he

Research progress on an oil-yielding plant, jojoba (ho-ho-ba), was reported by Dr. D. M. Yermanos, University of California, Riverside, who told delegates that commercial feasibility of the plant has been proved, but there is need for greater acceptability from the farmers to produce it regularly.

The wax content of jojoba seed is 50 to 58 percent and an ordinary processing unit can extract the wax from the seed for use in cosmetics, lubricants, furniture polish, and other oil-related industries," he said.

Jojoba grows under severe desert conditions and can withstand salinity. drought and high temperatures. Once planted, the shrub spreads itself and the roots prevent soil erosion. There is minimal need for fertilization.

"The shrub is not adaptable to colder conditions, especially below freezing, and it cannot be cultivated on heavy soils. Besides, there is a five-year lag between planting and commercial utilization," Yermanos added.

The medicinal value of herbs and shrubs was highlighted by Dr. Edward Ayensu, Smithsonian Institution, and Dr. Marshall C. Johnston, University of Texas at Austin.

"Modern medicine," Ayensu said, "cannot ignore the healing power of certain plants which, even today, manage to keep well over 80 percent of the world's rural population in reasonably good

New Mexico Irrigated, Dryland Acreage Inventoried In Study

LAS CRUCES (Special) -Researchers with New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station, in cooperation with several other state and federal agencies, have published a report containing inventories of irrigated and dry cropland acreages. The inventories represent the most comprehensive data ever compiled inso-far as planted, fallow, idle and diverted acreage are concerned, officials said.

The Research Report, number 377, 'Sources of Irrigation Water and Irrigated and Dry Cropland Acreages in New Mexico by County, 1972-77," gives the historical development of irrigated cropland acreages, sources of water used for irrigation and the use of irrigated and dry cropland.

The report notes that in recent years, irrigated farming has been developed mostly in eastern New Mexico. There was no irrigation in Curry County in 1940, but by 1977 about 200,000 acres had been developed; Lea County irrigation increased from 3,200 to 100,000 acres; and Roosevelt County from 11,300 to 138,200 acres. Significant increases also occurred in Chaves, DeBaca, Hidalgo, Luna, Otero, Quay, Torrance and Union

Most of this development has been where groundwater is the source of supply. During 1976, water was delivered for the first 9,200 acres of the Navajo Indian Irrigation Project located in San Juan County. In 1977, an additional 6,000 acres of the second block received water on the Navajo Indian Project.

Irrigated cropland acreages in 1976 and 1977 are shown by county and sources of water. Those sources are de-supply is furnished entirely from surface water sources; ground water - water supply is farnished entirely from groundwater sources; surface and ground -water supply is furnished from surface water supply supplemented with groundwater from wells.

Acreage irrigated with surface water and groundwater is considered to receive a combined source of supply and is tabulated as such. For instance, all of the acreage in Elephant Butte Irrigation District in Dona Ana and Sierra counties can be irrigated from both sources, and the district acreage is so classified. Total irrigated cropland, including acreages of irrigated crops and land that is idle and fallow in crop rotation, are shown in the report's tables.

The report also shows that in 1977. about 27 percent of the irrigated cropland acreage was dependent on surface water supplies; 60 percent was depend-ent on groundwater supplies; 13 percent could be irrigated from both surface and groundwater supplies.

In addition to detailing water sources, the report also details the utilization of cropland in the state. Tables in this section are organized to show acreages of specific planted crops; the sub-total of these crops; double-cropped acreage, which when substracted from the sub-total of all crops, gives the total acres irrigated or total acres cropped; the acreage in cropland adjustment program; the planted, diverted set-aside acreage; the idle and fallow in diverted set-aside; and other idle and fallow

crease of 86,670 acres, or 6.8 percent. During this same period 1972-1977, the irrigated crops which accounted for the largest portion of the cropped acreage in the state were alfalfa with an average of 250,227 acres (23 percent), sorghum for grain with an average of 165,400 acres (15,1 percent), planted pasture with an average of 132,045 acres (12.1 percent) and wheat with an average of 121,550 acres (11.1 percent). Crops that increased 5,000 or more acres during the six-year period were corn, wheat, barley, all other field crops and alfalfa. These crops accounted for 196,330 acres more in 1977 than in 1972. Crops that decreased more than 5,000 acres were sorghums, other small grains, cotton and planted and native pasture. These crops accounted for 147,715 acres less in 1977 than in 1972. From 1971 to 1976, the total dryland acreage in the state decreased from 1,-404,220 acres to 1,206,750 acres, a decrease of 197,470 acres or 14.1 percent. Sorghum grain, wheat, and other small grains accounted for about 89 percent of the crops produced on dryland in 1977.

271,500 acres to 1,358,170 acres, an in-

These same crops accounted for about 83 percent of the dryland crops in 1972. Hay crops accounted for an additional 12 percent in 1972 but have decreased in importance to only about 4 percent. Corn, broomcorn, other small grains and hay together decreased by 62,285 acres between 1972 and 1977. Sorghums, wheat, barley, cotton, dry beans, all other field crops and planted pasture together increased by 167,875 acres between 1972 and 1977.

Cattle Futures Mart Declines Sharply As Nearbys Pace Drop

CHICAGO - Cattle futures closed off 107 to up 40 points, Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Nearby December led the declines, while the deferreds posted the gains. Volume was estimated at 32,339 contracts.

The front months were pressured from softening carcass beef and instances of sharply lower cash markets. Technical resistance and local profit-taking were also noted in the declines. However, prices recovered in most 1979 contracts to end in the upper end of wide trading ranges on spillover buying from the pork pits, traders said.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to off 1 1/2 at 83 1/2 to 85 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $56 per hundredweight. Omaha's top was $55.50.

There were 398 deliveries and slaughter was 144,000 head. The major markets expect 8,050 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 17 to 107 lower. January and May were the weakest with only spot October at a small loss. Estimated sales were 2,353 cars.

November, March and distant September briefly touched the 150 limit level decline late in the session, but immediately found light support. Weakness stemmed from sharply lower cash feeder prices and expectations of heavy feeder arrivals today. Local selling and profit-taking created pressure, with a commission house with cash connections also noted in the declines.

Hog futures closed off 35 to up 25, recovering from earlier losses of as much as 107 in the 1978 contracts. Sales totalled 5,989 cars.

Firmness in pork products encouraged local and commission house short covering, trade sources said. Increased weekly retail pork featurings also led to buying, overshadowing sharply lower cash hog markets.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1/2 cent at 95 1/4 to 101 1/4 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off 50 cents to $1 with the best top $53 per hundredweight.

Kill was 312,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to be 20,600 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures finished off 70 to 10, rebounding from the 200 limit loss in February, March and August. The nearby contracts were the weakest in volume estimated at 4,931 contracts.

The recovery was sparked by fresh local buying which absorbed earlier commission house liquidation. Gains in cash bellies also encouraged support. However, weak cash hog markets tempered late buying.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 1/2 cent at 58 1/2 to 64 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is the highest since

Nitrite Use Phaseout Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) - A "slide-byslide" review that the federal government is making of an important cancer study could delay plans to phase out the use of nitrites in processed meats, poultry and fish, researchers say, Scientists from the Food and Drug Administration, National Institutes of Health and the Agriculture Department have formed a panel to review the results of a study that concluded nitrites cause cancer in rats and may do so in humans.

The $500,000 study, which involved 2.-000 animals and took about three years to complete, led officials to plan for phasing out the preservative, usually Cash feeder cattle were steady to off found as sodium nitrite or potassium ni-

However, the food industry warned that the planned phase-out would mean items such as hot dogs and bologna would never taste or look the same. Some government officials then said they were concerned that the removal of the preservative could lead to cases of botulism, a rare but deadly type of food poisoning.

The thorough "slide-by-slide" review of the original study was ordered by FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy, a biologist, to make sure the research was

The review is expected to take months to complete.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department is now reviewing the legality of the planned phase-out.

Land Set-Aside Requirements Slated Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said that he hopes to announce next week how much cropland farmers will have to set aside next year to qualify for federal price supports on corn and other feed grain.

However, Bergland told reporters he will have to get White House clearance first and that he hoped to send his proposals to President Carter this weekend.

Bergland did not say what he will recommend. Feed grain producers seeking to qualify for supports this year were required to idle land equal to 10 percent of their 1978 corn acreage. They also had the option of taking additional land from production to qualify for greater bene-

Some groups have urged the administration to tighten the program to help cut down on the growing surplus of feed grains. Bergland said those recommendations have ranged from "zero to 30 percent" land set-aside.

Bergland indicated that a 30 percent acreage set-aside might be too much for

He also said in response to reporters's questions that discussions with the Soviet Union on Wednesday will be aimed, in part, at determining how much grain it will require in the coming year.

The talks are required twice a year by a long-term grain agreement requiring the Soviets to buy a minimum of 6 million metric tons of U.S. wheat and corn

According to the agreement, Russia can buy a combined total of up to 8 million metric tons of wheat and corn a year. If more than that is wanted, the United States must give its approval.

The Soviet Union was given the goahead a year ago to buy up to 15 million metric tons in the second year of the agreement that ended Sept. 30. About that much was bought. Bergland said that "we believe they will need 15 million tons or so, but we're not sure they will buy it" in the 1978-79

New Inflation Fight Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's new anti-inflation program will combine voluntary wage and price guidelines with tough sanctions against business and labor "monopolies" that have abused their market powers, an administration official vows.

Assistant Labor Secretary Arnold Packer is the first government official to discuss publicly the thrust of the Carter program, which the president is expected to unveil soon, possibly next week.

Packer talked about the plan Thursday before a group of economists.

A key figure in developing the inflation program, Packer said some details still had to be finalized. But he confirmed as basically correct news reports that the program would set annual limits of 7 percent on wage and benefit increases and 534 percent on price rises.

In related developments Thursday: -Carter's chief inflation fighter, Rob-the pinch" from the new anti-inflation program. Strauss did not disclose any details, but he said Carter "is determined to use every lever at his control to encourage restraint on the part of government, business and labor.

-Carter adviser Charles Kirbo, appearing at the same Atlanta inflation seminar. chided business executives for not cooperating more with Carter's efforts to control inflation through federal spending

American, business and union will "feel cuts. Kirbo, an attorney, said he has been surprised to find attempts to cut federal spending often run into the "greatest opposition from the business community...including lawyers.

-A new Labor Department survey showed that weekly earnings of a typical full-time worker rose 43 percent between May 1973 and May 1978. But because inflation rose even higher, the worker's buying power fell by 3 percent. The typical worker kept abreast of inflation between May 1977 and May 1978, however, with both earnings and prices rising by 7 percent, the department said.

The administration is predicting inflation will be about 8 percent this year, up from 6.8 percent last year. So far, however, prices this year have been rising at a 9.5 percent annual rate.

Packer called the administration wage and price guidelines "trigger points" that would prompt government action when they were exceeded by business or labor.

He said the program would concentrate on small groups or monopolies that have been "abusing their market powers" by limiting supplies and raising prices or wages at will

Without being specific, he said some monopolies have formed because of "economic privileges granted by the government

"Through regulation (or deregulaton), we have the ability to remove the privileges" and encourage greater competition, he said. The government also could defer purchases or contracts in cases where price or wage increases were too high, he said. If the price for a product the government planned to buy was raised too high, the government would say this is too expensive for us this year," he said.

Or, if construction workers in San Francisco decide they want a wage increase of 10 percent or 11 percent a year, the government could cancel plans for a federal project there, he said.

Similarly, he said, if the United Steelworkers union decides it wants a 14 percent annual wage hike, the government might allow more steel imports into the

The idea is to increase supply or lower demand to offset rising prices, he said.

Both Packer, and Strauss emphasized that Carter has no intention of using mandatory wage and price controls. Strauss, speaking at an insurance seminar in Atlanta, said Carter "firmly believes that wage and price controls are not the answer.

AFL-CIO President George Meany and other labor leaders oppose voluntary guidelines because they fear the program would restrain wages but not prices.

Troy Lee Williams today took the witness stand to deny he had struck or otherwise abused 5-year-old Quentin Robert Ray Walker the night the child died.

The 46-year-old defendant, accused of murder in connection with the boy's July 16, 1977, death, indicated the child apparently died as a result of a bathtub acci-

Williams said he was reading a book in the living room of the 1814 Ave. R residence he shared with Quentin's mother, Shirley Catherine Starr, some time after 10 p.m. when he first became aware there was an emergency. He said Mrs. Starr had been standing in the living room "All of a sudden she just ran through here," he said, indicating on a drawing a path between the living room and a bath-

"She came running back with Quentin in her arms," Williams told jurors in Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th District

Williams said he did not think the child was breathing at the time.

According to the defendant, Mrs. Starr said she had found her son immersed in water in the bathtub. 'She said 'I found him under the water

- he slid under the water' or something like that," the defendant said. Williams indicated Mrs. Starr told him she thought the child had been playing and must have fallen from the edge of the He said Mrs. Starr succeeded in getting some water out of the child, and that he later began breathing again. The defendant said he drove to his mother's house and brought her back to the scene because she had worked as a nurse for about 20 years. He said Mrs. Starr rejected a sugggastion by his mother that an ambulance be called At direct questions from defense attorney Clifford Brown, Williams denied striking or abusing the 5-year-old. He said he did have Quentin do physical exercises as a form of discipline, but said it was a "fond" type of discipline and the boy never exercised for more than three or four minutes.

During testimony earlier in the trial, Mrs. Starr, 27, said her son died after several hours of physical exercises imposed by Williams.

She said Williams twice struck Quentin with an open hand when he began to tire.

According to Mrs. Starr, Williams had placed the child in the bathtub and splashed water on him in an attempt to revive him.

In other testimony Thursday, Dr. Richard Keffler, a local pathologist, said that the cause of death in his opinion was were found on the dead boy's body. The pathologist, who conducted a complete autopsy two days after the death. indicated he did not feel pneumonia was the cause of death. Pneumonia reportedly was listed as the cause of death in an earlier partial autopsy by another physician

In testimony outside the presence of the jury, a state child welfare worker said she had interviewed Williams at the Lubbock Police Department after the child's death and asked him about the bruises.

The worker, Wilma Manning, said Williams told her Mrs. Starr had spanked the child the day before and that he had fallen on a slide. According to her, Williams also claimed the boy's seven-year-old sister played roughly with him and may have inflicted some bruises.

Mrs. Manning said Williams told her he intended to punish the sister by making her look at her brother's dead body.

Tiny Computer May Reduce Mail Costs

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) - A local utility plans to begin testing portable lunchbox-sized computers that will enable meter readers to deliver bills on the spot.

Washington Water Power Co., which will begin testing the eight-pound computer this fall, says it could save nearly $40,000 a month in postage if the project is successful.

The computer, said to be the first of its kind in the country, has been developed by I-Tron Inc.

Under the present system, meter readers each day pick up a stack of cards for meters they are to read that day.

With the computer, meter readers would pick up a stack of pre-addressed bills with a small cassette tape. Information on the tape would correspond with customers to be visited.

By activating the machine and inserting the tape, the computer displays the address of each successive customer for the meter reader. A push of a button tells on which side of the house or garage the meter is located.

Another button push gives the last meter reading and when it was taken.

The computer also could tell whether the previous meter reader encountered a dog at that address, and whether the animal prevented him from getting a read-

Acts As Buffer

CLEVELAND (AP) - A 36-day strike by Cleveland school employees has end-ed, but the ailing 100,000-student system still has plenty of problems.

Six unions representing 10,000 teaching and non-academic employees ratified a new contract Thursday by a 146-vote margin, ending the walkout that had closed schools since Sept. 7.

Cleveland's

Teachers

Non-teaching employees were to report to work today, with teachers returning Monday and most students directed to begin the school year on Tuesday.

Seattle teachers also came to an end Thursday night, when union members voted 2-to-1 to accept a new contract. Teachers voted Sept. 26 to obey a court order and return to work after their walkout delayed the start of the school year by 17 days.

However, a strike by about half of the 6,200 teachers in Memphis, Tenn., continued today. Schools remained opened, and union leaders were due in court to argue against contempt citations for teachers who have defied a judge's backto-work order.

Student carrying signs reading, " Let us learn," and "Back to school" were on hand as Cleveland union members voted 2.358 to 2.212 to accept the new contract. reversing an earlier vote to reject it.

"We've been waiting," said Janet Brown, a 16-year-old senior whose mother is an elementary school teacher. "We can't eat and I can't learn."

The end of the strike does not, however, resolve other problems facing the Cleveland school district.

The walkout kept school officials from meeting a deadline for certifying its enrollment to the state, jeopardizing $34.5 million in state aid. Superintendent Peter Carlin said school officials would ask the Ohio General Assembly to free the funds.

The school board also is in the midst of contempt proceedings before a federal judge for allegedly defying desegregation

And uncertainty continues over whether U.S. District Judge Frank Battisti, who is supervising desegregation of the city's public school system, will require the district to proceed this fall with a plan calling for limited crosstown busing and the closing of some schools.

Testimony before Battisti this week indicated the 11,000 pupils affected by the school closing plan might have to miss another 21 days of class before the plan can be implemented.

In addition, the state Controlling Board, which placed restrictions on spending by the debt-ridden school system in August, must lift the prohibitions so that the 8 percent salary increase negotiated with the unions can be honored. The board meets Monday.

Under the old contract, the starting salary of a Cleveland teacher was $9,100, while the average salary was $14,873 a year.

Students will make up days lost to the strike by giving up Christmas and spring recesses, but no Saturday classes will be necessary, Carlin said.

The contract promises an additional 6 percent raise if Cleveland voters approve an $11.1 million school tax increase in November. But earlier this year, voters twice rejected proposals calling for a $30 million annual increase in education tax-

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Explosions and sniper fire wounded five persons during the night, as Lebanese army units moved into buffer zones to prop up the wobbly Syrian-Christian truce. The violence flared along the "green line" dividing Moslem West Beirut and Christian East Beirut. The troops took up station in two Christian suburbs

The contingent, numbering 1,000 and including 20 armored cars, disengaged Christians and Syrians in Hadath and Baabda and reopened the road to the residential palace five miles southeast have-not Moslem majority and the entrenched Christian minority who make up the bulk of Lebanon's population. Some 30,000 Syrian soldiers spearheadthe now-defunct Sex Pistols had cultivated an image of violent anarchy both on and off stage, did not do "anything outrageous" while in custody. The Sex Pistols, a British group, was one of a raft of punk rock groups that appeared two years ago. They and the other groups - including the Damned, the Vi-

The Sex Pistols broke up earlier this year when the lead singer, who called himelf Johnny Rotten, left the group. Ritchie made news here on the same day Rotten announced his departure when he collapsed on a plane from Los Angeles, apparently the victim of alcohol and pills. One of the band's most popular numbers, "God Save the Queen," featured anti-royalist lyrics on the 25th anniversa

Malcolm McLaren, the group's manager, has said Ritchie "has a few assaults on his record, like knocking a policeman's teeth out. It was all petty stuff really. But it seems to have made the Americans very nervous.

Robert Christgau, a rock critic for the Village Voice, a New York weekly newspaper, said Ritchie and other members of the band recorded an album without Johnny Rotten this summer. The album included Ritchie's version of the Frank Sinatra-standard, "My Way."

Christgau said Ritchie appeared locally two weeks ago with several members of another punk rock band, the New York

Meantime, back at the White House, image maker Gerald Rafshoon is whipping the staff into line, and producing an inhouse weekly, "White House News and Views," to prime the staffers on all the right answers.

The achievement tests, which are used for advanced college placement, measure how much a student has learned in class and, to some extent, the quality of the high school curriculum, college board officials say. Morris said the "consistently high" local achievement scores are "a strong sign that our schools are preparing students well for college." Compared with their counterparts across the state or nation, Lubbock graduates are better able to skip over certain first-year college courses, he said.

The SAT and achievement tests are scored on a range of 200 to 800 points. Last year, the SAT was taken by about one million of the country's high school seniors - including about 50.000 in Tex-

Hance Raps Foe's Contribution List

Republican Congressional candidate George Bush is "trying to buy the election," is deceiving voters in television ads and is not making it clear which George Bush is running for the 19th District office, Kent Hance charged

During a joint appearance before the Greater Lubbock Press Club, Hance, Bush's Democratic opponent, said Bush is attempting to buy the election. He based his accusation on a contribution and expense report Bush filed this week.

The report showed the 32-year-old Midlander had collected three times as much money as Hance and had spent five times

"There's no doubt ... it would seem he's trying to buy the election," Hance said, adding the large contributions Bush received from outside the 19th District 'are certainly an issue and I think people need to be made aware of that."

With Bush sitting only inches away, Hance continued his barrage, saying, "His television spots have been somewhat misleading in that they portray George as having lived in West Texas for-

Responding to charges that he is trying to buy the election, Bush said he is proud of the fact we've done a good job of raising finances.

"Some of the names on those (contribution) lists are very important people — friends of mine and friends of my family — who want a change in Washington, D.C., and really think my candidacy can best provide that change," he said.
"Elections are not bought. People are smarter than that," Bush added.

his campaign, "I think that we've gotten more individual contributors from West Texas than anywhere else."

Hance brought yet another ghost from the primary back to haunt Bush — his widely known father.

"There's somewhat of a tendency in George's campaign to ride the coattails, I think, of his father, because you do not see a distinction in the ads between George Bush and Ge George Bush and George Bush, although I realize it's not a junior and se tion," Hance charged.

John Hill Brags On Veto Power

Texas political activity focused on the race for governor Thursday, with Democratic hopeful John Hill happy about some new-found power and Republican Bill Clements the recipient of some new-

Hill bragged about winning agreement from the federal government to give Texas what he called veto power over any nuclear waste storage sites. "This is a significant step in my continuing efforts to make certain our citizens are fully protected from any hazards of nuclear waste disposal," Hill said.

Two Texas sites are now under consideration as nuclear waste disposal sites.

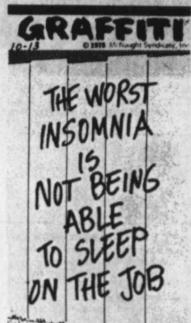

'The Energy Department is investigating sites in Randall County in the Panhandle and in Anderson County in East Texas as possible nuclear waste storage areas, and I'm sure it will be welcome news to residents of those counties that the federal government will not locate a nuclear waste disposal site in their communities without first getting approval of the state of Texas," Hill said.

While Hill's good news came from the federal government, Clements' good news came from an opponent — Raza Unida candidate Mario Campean.

"The goal of the Raza Unida party is to break up the political monopoly that has controlled Mexican-Americans," Compean told a news conference in Austin. The next best thing would be to vote for didate. In this case that leaves Clem-

By ERMA BOMBECK You have to feel sorry for the young kids buying new homes these days.

It's not the fact that the national average of a new home is close to $70,000 or that the interest rates are the highest in history. I have compassion for them because they have to endure the pain of listening to the "What-I-paid-for-myfirst-house" stories from the old-timers.

During the past year we have related the story of our first house at least a dozen times a month. Every time we tell it, the lot gets larger, there's another bathroom and the price falls off $500 Last night, after a couple squealed ecstatically about their final loan approval on a $55, 000 home, my husband mechanically launched into his "first home" story by

'$55,000 dollars! I don't believe it Why, can you believe our first home was on an acre lot, had four large pillars on a veranda porch with a rolling lawn, five bedrooms, four baths, a sumptuous living room, glass-paneled wall, large entranceway, all-electric kitchen, family room. fireplace, two-car garage, landscaping, plastered walls and copper lumbing thoughout and it only cost $12,900? I'll bet that sounds ridiculous to you, doesn't it? Did I leave anything out?" he asked me.

"Only the slave quarters and the polo field," I said irritably.

"Yep." he continued, "sold that little baby 15 years later at a $20,000 profit."

By the time he was finished, the new home owners were so depressed they could barely speak.

On the way home I exploded, "Is your brain in escrow? You made those kids feel rotten! Besides, I thought you were describing 'Tara' out of Gone With the Wind. That house only had three bedrooms and two baths, and remember the day we lost the entranceway and you were standing on it? "The garage only held one car, the landscaping was a packet of seeds and a holy picture of St. Francis of Assisi, and the lot was so small I could stand in the back yard and hear a phone ring eight houses down. Besides, we paid $21,000

The only consolation I have for young people buying homes today is that in 15 or 20 years the house will get bigger and the price will get smaller and your margin of profit will be limited only by your

The Slim Gourmet

One of the easiest and best sweets to serve is homemade applesauce. If peeling, coring and cutting up apples for applesauce isn't your idea of easy, try it our lazy Slim Gourmet way...no peeling needed! Healthier, too, because you get more of the natural high-fiber pectin when the apples are cooked with the peel. Here's how

EASY APPLESAUCE unpeeled apples

Cut each apple into quarters, off center, missing the core. Then, simply slice off the core. Now, put the unpeeled apple quarters in a heavy saucepan and add 2 tablespoons water for each apple. Cover tightly and simmer until apples are soft. Allow to cool. Lift out the peels and discard them. Beat applesauce smooth or leave chunky: sweeten to taste, if desired, with no-calorie sweetener or a few drops honey. Each half-cup serving is 50 calories without honey (honey adds 6 cal-and declarer saw that his only problem would be to avoid two diamond losers. That could be accomplished with a successful finesse for the jack. There was just one problem - the finesse could be taken either way. Declarer knew he had a 50 per cent chance of guessing right, but unfortunately, he also had a 50 per cent of going wrong. He found a way to avoid the guess by not taking the finesse at all! Declarer won the opening lead with the ace of clubs and immediately ruffed a club in his hand. After drawing trumps in two rounds, declarer led the ace of hearts and another. It made no difference which defender won this trick-neither could afford to break diamonds, for that would eliminate declarer's problem in that suit, and a club return would allow declarer to ruff in dummy while discarding a diamond from his hand. The best defenders could do was to continue hearts. When the suit broke 3-3, however, the defense was finished. No matter which minor suit was led, declarer would lose no more than one diamond trick in addition to the two hearts he had already lost.

What if the hearts broke 4-2? There was a possibility the suit might block, but if the defenders could arrange to exit with a fourth heart, declarer would be no worse

Council Requests Discrimination Ordinance

By SYLVIA TEAGUE

Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Lubbock City Council decided Thursday it wants an ordinance written before its next meeting which would make it illegal for local club owners to keep minorities from entering the night-

The idea of such a public accommodations ordinance has been bandied about since June when the council passed a resolution decrying discrimination by club

At that time then City Attorney Fred Senter Jr. was asked to investigate the ordinances enacted by other cities to ban such practices.

In August the Human Relations Commission prepared a public accomodations ordinance and sent it to the city attorney's office, but no further action was Senter retired and was succeeded by John Ross Jr., who said Thursday he hasn't had time to work on the ordinance, largely because of a pending gas rate hearing.

However, council members were emphatic Thursday when they asked Ross to prepare an ordinance using the HRC draft and examples of ordinances passed by other cities.

"I believe the situation exists and we have enough input to know that it does," Mayor Dirk West said of the discrimination at Lubbock bars.

"All of us are after the same thing - a workable ordinance to solve the problem," he said.

Citizens had complained that several clubs exclude minorities by selectively enforcing dress codes or identification re-

Also Thursday the council heard the results of a study which show concrete medians on city streets do not necessarily reduce traffic accidents.

Instead, on streets where medians were removed and replaced with a continuous left-turn lane, accidents were reduced in City planning director Jim Bertram admitted the study "goes against all past assumptions" that medians help prevent accidents. Continuous left-turn lanes are "certain-are less dangerous, Bertram said. The recommendations made in the study are: allowing the removal of medians where a minimum of 600 feet of continuous two-way left turn lane can be ly not more dangerous, and if anything, should be borne by adjacent property owners; and no median should be removed unless a 12-foot wide left turn lane can be provided.

About eight miles of median might be affected by the recommendations, including medians on 50th Street between Avenue A and Slide Road, Avenue H between 34th Street to the Traffic Circle and University Avenue from 50th Street to South Loop 289.

Council members expressed their agreement with the recommendations and asked that a resolution enacting the new policy be drafted and placed on the next council meeting agenda.

Also at the next meeting, council members will be considering an ordinance which would make it a misdemeanor to tamper with an electric, gas or water me-

Originally representatives of Lubbock Power and Light and Southwestern Public Service had requested the ordinance. but Pioneer Natural Gas Company officials have asked that the ordinance apply to gas meters as well.

Currently, utility companies have no other recourse than service termination when a customer is found tampering with a meter to avoid paying for utilities.

'That's just stealing." West said. agreeing with the need for an ordinance. 'It's the same as tampering with the cash register," council member Bud Aderton agreed.

The council postponed the appointment of members to a committee to study the future of Lubbock Power and Light when council member Bill McAlister asked that the committee size be increased from nine to 13.

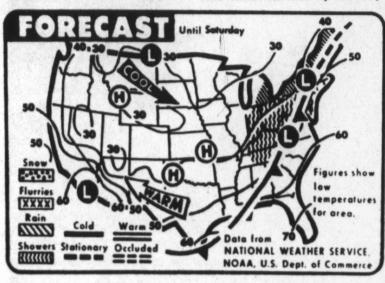

Although some suggestions were made for appointment to the committee, the final appointments will be made at the hearing on industrial gas rates Tuesday.

In addition Thursday, council members authorized the city attorney to hire rate consultants to help with the Pioneer Natural Gas Company rate case pending before the council.

City Attorney Ross said the cost of the experts would eventually be borne by Pioneer under a provision of the Public Utilities Regulatory Act.

Ross said the expert or experts would be called upon to give testimony for the city in the case to determine the rates charged to Pioneer's Lubbock industrial customers.

The council set a limit of $2,000 on the Figures gathered by the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges show the median tab for undergraduates at major public universities in the 1978-79 school year will be $2.-221, up 7.8 percent from the preceding

For students who are not residents of the state where they attend school, the median will be $3,406, up 5.74 percent.

The tab includes tuition, fees and room and board charges. The association based its findings on reports from 134 of its 140

Bay City Official Illustrates Problems By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN (AP) - Superintendent John Briggs of Bay City told a statewide meeting on bilingual education that his school district of 4,100 students includes 14 Vietnamese, six Thais, four Indians -- with two dialects - three Germans and one Persian.

"We can take care of the Vietnamese and the Germans, but that Persian is going to cause problems," said Briggs, drawing loud laughter as he illustrated the difficulties with a new bilingual plan. The revised statewide plan was adopted by the State Board of Education in June on an emergency basis, but a final vote has not been taken. It could come at the Saturday board meeting.

A board committee listened to four hours of testimony Thursday, with each of approximately 60 witnesses limited to 312-minute presentations.

Maria Gonzales, a bilingual San Angelo teacher, asserted that providing bilingual education through the 12th grade is not the way to prepare Spanish-speaking students for an English-speaking world.

The board plan makes bilingual education for limited English-speaking children mandatory through the fifth grade, with additional English language training continuing through the final year of high school

A special state allowance would be allotted to schools, but the money would not cover all costs of the program.

Any district that failed to make a "good faith" effort to comply with the plan would be subject to "full accreditation review.

State law now requires schools to provide bilingual programs in kindergarten through the third grade if they have 20 or more children of limited English-speaking ability in any grade Miss Gonzales said forcing schools to teach Spanish beyond the third grade works to the "disadvantage of the children." She said Spanish-speaking parents want their children to learn English.

'After all," she said, "this is an English-speaking world, and when they go out (from school) they will get everything

"I'd like to ditto everything the young lady had to say," said Superintendent Gordon Harmon of Abilene. "What's good for Harlingen is not necessarily yly work in San Angelo and Lubbock."

Elementary school teacher Theresa Black of Goldthwaite said the proposed plan would be "one more step toward the destruction of the American education system.

"My main objection is that small districts cannot afford such a major change," she said.

Such opposition was applauded by a crowd that was so large that many had to sit on the floor or stand in the hearing

Paul Velez of the American GI Forum insisted that the plan "does not go far enough," and Gus Garcia, a former Austin school board member who ran unsuccessfully for the state board, added: The state board of education should be in the vanguard of bilingual education. but it has taken exactly the opposite position." refusing "to move unless forced by the federal government - and every step that it has taken has been taken begrudg-

Velez recommended that the proposed expanded bilingual program be paid for by the state — not local school districts.

His recommendation to eliminate the option of parents to withdraw their children from bilingual programs was greeted with a loud "Ohhhhhh" from the crowd in opposition.

Velez maintained that science and mathematics are not optional, and "there is no difference in this case."

gen said his district's student enrollment of 13,000 is 75 percent Mexican-American. He presented a school board resolution calling for state financial assistance to teach Spanish "as a second language" through the 12th grade.

Garcia said the "best way to describe bilingual education is terribly inadequate." He said it totals only $25 a year per student.

Once you move north of the Nueces River, you're not going to find many school boards who think they need bilingual education," said Briggs. We need to draw the line and tell these people (the federal government) what we are going to do and what we are not going to do," he said.

Down five games to two in late September after a Karpov victory in the 27th game, Korchnoi won the 28th and 29th games. The 30th, with Karpov playing white, was drawn, and then Korchnoi pulled even with him today.

Asked his chance of winning the match after such a comeback, Korchnoi said: "It will be like a lottery." But he noted that he will be at a disadvantage in the next game, when Karpov returns to the white pieces and moves first.

There are 100,000 Mormons in the San Francisco Bay area and one of the tenets of their discipline is that the church takes care of its own. Mormons look on public welfare with disdain, but regard it their firm obligation to assist any family in the church who falls in need.

They call this church welfare the "stake area welfare program" and they employ many ways of meeting the need, all based on one overriding principle, that those who are helped should work for it and that it is the duty of nearly all Mormons to contribute some of their time and labor to helping their needy

The Patterson farm is a stake area welfare project of the San Francisco Bay area Mormons. Its sugar beet crop is sold or exchanged for sugar to be used in the church's welfare work. The wheat is stored and sold to buy flour or bread for the needy. The alfalfa feeds the beef and dairy cattle raised on the farm for the

and they've never had to wait for us.' The Bears say they've dug about 600 graves at the Grand Army of the Republic Cemetery since they took over in 1957 when the regular man was injured.

"This was a case where they were supposed to get somebody," Jack said. "But, you know, gravediggers are scarce. It took them 21 years to find somebody."

Although they dig year-round, the Bears say more graves are needed in winter, and that's a problem.

"You can't dig with a pick because that just pokes a hole in the ground," Jack said. "An ax is the best thing ... a chopping ax.

The Bears used to get $30 a grave, but that has increased to $75.

"We made a lot of money on it but a gravedigger never has any money," Jack said. "I don't know where it all goes."

Recently, a plaque was placed at the cemetery to honor their service.

"That means a lot to us," said Jack. "We've worked for 21 years and never got fired.

Inmates Switch Pleas To Guilty In Kidnapping

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Three Tennessee prisoners switched their pleas from innocent to guilty of kidnapping a Dickson, Tenn., pilot, and now face sentences of up to life in federal prison.

The three are among four prisoners who shot their way out of a Dickson bowling alley Sept. 13 during a recreational outing for 34 inmates from the Turney Center for Youthful Offenders at Only. Tenn. In return for pleading guilty Thursday to kidnapping, they gained dismissal of additional charges of air piracy and possession of sawed-off shotguns. The three - Larry P. Chism, 29:

George T. Bonds, 24; and Floyd Ray Brewer, 29 - pleaded guilty to kidnapping Mel Romine, manager of the Dickson airport, forcing him at gunpoint to fly them into eastern Arkansas. The fourth prisoner, Ronald Lyons, also is charged with kidnapping and remains at large.

Several other hostages were taken by the prisoners before their capture in Arkansas, but the charges in Nashville involved only the crimes committed in U.S. District Judge Thomas A. Wiseman of questioned the three prisoners at length as to whether they understood they were giving up their rights to a trial and to be proven guilty beyond a reasona-ble doubt. All said they did.

Wiseman set sentencing for Nov. 11.

Photography Featured At Fairs

By IRVING DESFOR

Associated Press Writer At the suggestion of Jack Jeffers, a fine art photographer of Lyndhurst, Va., I went recently to Mystic. Conn., to see its annual Outdoor Art Festival, the largest sidewalk art fair on the East Coast. Last year. Jeffers took the first place gold medal in photography at Mystic, a proud.

There are hundreds of outdoor art fairs annually in villages, towns and cities throughout the country. Photography has become a noticeable and strong contender for public recognition at these fairs as one of the decorative arts. Photo prints are being bought for home decor along with oil paintings, watercolors, sketches and sculptures, and fine handcraft in metal, ceramics and innumerable innova-

That first show was a memorable experience with mixed reactions between photographers, the public and other artists. There were enough compliments, however, to balance comments like "Oh, these are JUST photographs!" or questions like "Is this photography or art?" and even "Whose art are you copying?"

Jeffers had an answer. Made into a plaque and hung in his booth, it says:

tool like a paint brush and a photographic artist, like a painter, must first start with a concept and then produce his creation. Photography at art shows has advanced greatly, but it is still difficult to sell good photography to the general public at good prices. People still believe it's quick and easy to "take" a picture. It is, but that type of picture does not wind up as fine art photography. More people are becoming aware that fine photographic prints are collectible items of value as more galleries and art museums exhibit photographs and acquire them for their permanent collections.

At Mystic, it rained most of Saturday, dampening the spirits of viewers and artists. With better weather on Sunday, the crowds came but it didn't seem to be a buying crowd. "They do vary," Jeffers said. "Last

Old Materials Helpful When Remodeling

Associated Press Writer Q. — We will be adding an extra room to the back of our house, but first must open up the wall of our family room. In tearing down the old wall, it is my idea to save the shingles and other materials and use them again on the outside of the new room. In that way, the extra room won't look new while the rest of the structure looks old. Is this a practical idea?

A. - Yes. You will be fortunate, however, if the old materials remain in good condition during the knockdown process and if there is the right amount to cover the new area. But if it can be done, it's an excellent plan. In some cases, people even buy second-hand shingles and the like so that the addition will seem to be as old as the house

Q. - I hear the credit union where I work will soon make mortagage loans to its members. If this comes about, will the interest charge be the same as a mortgage loan obtained from a bank?

(it's a recent development), there are certain regulations that have had to be followed. Interest rates must be competitive, of course, if this new source of mortgage loans is to develop a successful program. The maximum allowed - 12 per cent a year - is on loans maturing in from 12 to 30 years, but this limit is subject to certain state regulations, some of which have a lower allowable maximum interest rate. There are other regulations which must be followed, just as banks, savings and loan associations and other lenders are limited to how such loans can be handled. Credit union home mortage loans must not exceed 90 percent of the sales price, unless a private mortgage insurance company or a government agency insures or guarantees the loan or that part of the loan in excess of 90 percent of the principal. Even if your credit union hasn't yet entered the home mortgage loan market, it undoubtedly knows now what regulations it must follow. Why not ties on one area of the city. ' He was greatly disappointed in what gallery directors considered their type of material. "Their idea of contemporary work," Jeffers said, "is nudes, sex, close-ups of our private parts, mirrors, candid backyard snapshots and strange images that reveal nothing. And it seems that New York galleries and art critics feel that they can dictate styles and trends. They create what I call a 'Get-in-the-rut or else...' attitude. 'They don't want what I've been led to believe is fine art photography. That's strange because they do represent some top sellers like Edward Weston and Ansel Adams who commands as much as $3,000 a print, I understand.

But if you don't have an international reputation, you're out. A great deal of what they do display is garbage from my standpoint."

Jeffers was also surprised at the unlimited production of prints.

'My art prints are limited in quantity," he said, "and each is numbered, registered and archivally finished. That, plus a subject that has mood and meaning, should determine the value of a print.

"Well, the Big Apple taught me something but didn't convert me," Jeffers reflected, "especially after I stopped in a gallery in Chad's Ford, Pa., on the way home. Once in, I saw it was 90 percent Andrew Wyeth. But the area is his country and the gallery is a major outlet of his work. But it was all paintings.

The gallery director saw a portfolio under Jeffers' arm but wasn't interested in looking further on learning it contained photographs. He explained they didn't go well with Wyeth paintings.

"But I'm the Andrew Wyeth of photography," Jeffers blurted in desperation.
"I still can't believe it," he told me.

"He took some of my work and agreed to give it a chance. It may or may not sell but the opportunity of being beside one privilege."

Collectors can do their Christmas shopping early - U.S. Christmas stamps, that

The pair of 15-cent 1978 Christmas stamps is being printed in the regular size (100 stamps per pane) rather than the standard commemorative size. As in the past, one stamp has a religious theme and the other is of a general nature. The religious stamp depicts an Andrea della Robbia Madonna and child. The second adhesive shows a Christmas tree, a child and a hobby horse.

The sculpture by della Robbia upon which the religious stamp is based hangs in the National Gallery of Art in Washington. D.C., where the first day of issue ceremony will take place. Holly, Mich., was selected as the second issue site because the name of the city will add a special Christmas identification to the first-day cancellation, says the U.S.P.S.

The Hobby Horse stamp was designed by Dolli Tingle, who also designed the 977 Christmas Mail Box stamp and the needlepoint Christmas stamp of 1973. It rit of the Yule season. The stamps will be issued on Oct. 18 with first-day cancellations having a Nov. 2 date dateline. Collectors can obtain first-day cancellations either by affixing their own stamps or having the U.S.P.S. do the job. If you prefer to purchase your stamps from the post office near you, affix the stamp in the upper right corner of the envelope. Return addresses should be placed on the right side at least 5/8 of an inch from the bottom. Forward the covers to: First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013 for the madonna stamp or Holly, Mich. 48442 for the Hobby Horse stamp. No remittance is required. Mrs. Hansen explained that her husband suffered a heart attack several years ago and was in the hospital for some time. She said she had difficulty making ends meet, but the Salvation Army

However, it was not only her family's physical needs with which the Army was concerned. Mrs. Hansen said the officers from the Salvation Army visited her and her husband almost everyday.

"Up until the time he was well, they came and asked if I needed help. If it hadn't been for the Salvation Army, I don't know what I would have done,'

Mrs. Hansen added that the Salvation Army also brought food to her when her parents died.

Mrs. Hansen said she enjoys being a volunteer for the agency which has helped her so much. "I enjoy helping them in any way that I can," she said. "I appreciate everything that they do and I think it's wonderful what they

As a volunteer Mrs. Hansen works with the Home League and the League of Mercy, which includes fixing packages for persons in nursing homes, visiting the sick and sending cards to persons hospitalized. At Christmas the work includes gifts for servicemen.

According to Major Avedis Kasarjian, director of the Lubbock Salvation Army, the work Mrs. Hansen performs is only part of a long list of services which the Salvation Army provides for the community.

Kasarjian said the philosophy of all the Army's programs is to "meet the needs of the whole man, his material needs and his spiritual needs. Our purpose is to help mankind by pointing it in the right direction in life. If a man has lost direction and lost contact with his Creator, then his primary need is to be reunited with his Creator.

"Our social services are coupled with this in supplying his material needs. We don't beleive the whole answer is in food and clothing. The counseling is important," Kasarjian said.

Kasarjian said the Salvation Army functions as a sort of "bridge over troubled waters." For example, the Army will help a person who has applied for food stamps or welfare, cannot subsist through the six-week waiting period and is not eligible for emergency aid by providing food and other needs until permanent aid has begun.

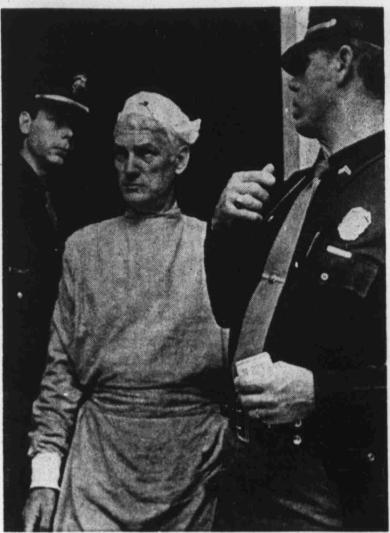

The agency also provides furniture, clothing, food, transportation, rent and utility payment assistance, prescriptions and counseling for such problems as marital strife, alcoholism and drug addiction.

In its non-resident assistance the Army provides temporary housing for persons who are stranded or homeless.

The Salvation Army also offers an employment service, as well as assistance to persons paroled into the Lubbock area.

For children, the Army has a camping program located seven miles from

China Can Buy Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration has agreed to let the Chinese government buy an American communications satellite and has informed Peking the United States will launch it, administration sources say.

The satellite sale would not technically violate a U.S. policy against selling military equipment to the Chinese, said the sources, who asked not to be named. But they acknowledged Thursday it might improve Chinese military communications.

It also would likely irritate Soviet leaders, who have warned in recent months that it is dangerous for Washington to 'play the China card" - a reference to cultivating closer ties with the Chinese while Peking-Moscow relations are

The next move on the satellite is up to the Chinese, and the sources said the ad-

If the Chinese choose to go ahead, they would make a deal with one of the few American companies that manufacture the satellites. To make the satellite effective, they would also have to buy a number of ground stations for receiving and transmitting signals.

A satellite would cost $15 million to $17 million, according to industry sources.

Separated Twins Remain Very Ill

Sonya and Tonya Bain survived the surgery to separate them, but doctors say they remain "seriously ill, and each has separate, serious heart problems.'

After the separation surgery Thursday, the twins - born Oct. 3 in nearby Raleigh - each underwent another operation to repair their faulty hearts.

The girls weighed about 12 pounds together at birth. They were joined from the breastbone to the navel, and shared part of their hearts and livers before sur-

"Their odds against going through this (successfully) were horrendous from the very beginning, and we're just one step down the way," said Dr. Howard Filston, head of pediatric surgery at Duke Medical Center and one of four surgeons who operated on the twins.

'It's too early after surgery to give you a firm answer in terms of the direction in which they are headed," Dr. Steven Gross, a neonatalogist, said Thursday

The twins were reported in guarded condition early today at Duke's intensive care nursery, a regional center for babies with serious health problems.

Either Type Of Smoke Detector Offers Adequate Protection

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Government safety experts have settled the long-running controversy over which type of smoke detector is best by deciding that either type offers adequate protection.

They have also largely dismissed charges that the radioactive eleme tained in one type of detector could be a health hazard. They said the amount involved is so small, it is not important.

The conclusions come from the Consumer Product Safety Commission in a new booklet on the subject released

There are basically two types of smoke detectors. One, which employs a tiny bit of radioactive material to detect smoke, is called an ionization type. The second, which uses a beam of light to detect smoke, is called a photoelectric type.

Makers of the two types of devices have been arguing for years that one was better than the other. The commission's new book concludes that "ionization detectors usually have a slight edge in giving early warning of open, flaming fires," but photoelectric types are "somewhat more likely to give the alarm while a fire is still

And the booklet concludes "either kind of detector has a high probability of giving you enough warning for a safe es-

Charges that ionization detectors could expose occupants of a house to harmful radiation are handled in the booklet with this comment from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission: "If you held an ionization smoke detector close to you for eight hours a day through a whole year, you would receive only a tenth as much radiation as you'd get on one round-trip airline flight across the USA."

Commissioner David Pittle told a news nference that "w o, it is so small as to not be a health haz-

The agency said 6,000 persons die and another 300,000 are injured each year in fires, many unnecessarily because smoke detectors could give life-saving warning. Thirty-three states have or are considering laws requiring or encouraging smoke detectors, and sales have boomed. Agency officials said the ionization versus photoelectric question may be settled soon because several manufacturers are coming out within the next year with detectors employing both types of devices. next year with detectors employing

Warning Due For Hormones

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is ordering the nation's physicians and pharmacists who dispense progestins to inform women in simple language when they receive the female sex hormones that they should not take the drug during pregnancy.

In a regulation that takes effect Dec. 11, the Food and Drug Administration ordered the special lay-language brochures explaining proper and improper uses of the drug to accompany it whenever a prescription is filled.

Progestins are approved for use by women with menstrual disorders or ab-normal uterine bleeding. But the FDA says it no longer considers them safe for use in pregnancy tests or to prevent miscarriages.

The brochure must be printed by all manufacturers of the hormone, which has been found to cause heart defects and deformed arms and legs in the offspring of women who took the drug during the first four months of pregnancy, the FDA

Progestins also are used in combination with estrogen, another female hor-mone in some birth control pills. The most common brand names of drugs containing progestins are Delalutin, Duphaston, Norlutate, Norlutin and Provera.

The special patient labeling already is required to inform women about the risks and benefits of birth control pills, intrauterine devices (IUDs) and estro-

The agency proposed to require patient labeling with progestins after Ralph Na-der's Health Research Group reported that a half-million pregnant women were taking the drug on the advice of their doctors despite studies linking them to serious birth defects.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the Nader group, petitioned the FDA to try to stop what he called massive misprescribing of the drugs.

Solon Wants Review Of Old Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress should spend much of its time next year looking over past programs and their effects rather than pushing for new spending programs, says Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., chairman of the House Republican Conference.

Anderson, who also recommended unedited live broadcast coverage of House floor proceedings, said Wednesday, "We have been too eager to pile new programs on top of old to gain political support from various special interests without proper respect for budgetary restraints, inflationary impacts, the need for greater efficiency and coordination and the overall national interest."

Such innovations have been possible in a country that spends little money on its 20,000-member armed forces and has a president for life who is known in his country as "the supreme combatant" for independence from France.

But Bourguiba has been hampered by a form of arteriosclerosis, and has not delivered a public speech since he returned in August from a month's stay in the American Hospital in Paris and convalescence in Versailles.

Diplomatic sources say his doctors and medication have been changed, allowing him to receive visitors daily, take delivery of the credentials of new ambassadors and meet with Premier Nouira regu-

According to the constitution, Nouira would succeed the president in case of death and name another premier. Nouira's chances have been enhanced by the arrest of Bourguiba's former companion, Nabib Achour, who once led the General Union of Tunisian Workers.

Achour and 29 labor leaders are now on trial, accused of masterminding an insurrection that killed 51 persons and wounded hundreds in January.

The labor leaders claim a general strike launched to protest the high cost of living got out of hand because of outside agitators and that accusations of subversion and plotting to overthrow the 74-year-old Bourguiba are groundless.

Achour still enjoys strong international trade union backing and powerful friends in Libya, anxious to resuscitate the 1974 merger agreement signed by Bourguiba and Moammar Khadafy, Libya's leader.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate-House conference committee members were optimistic today that a highway and mass transit compromise that includes an interstate link between Houston and Lubbock would be approved by the Congress and President Carter.

Bentsen, however, noted that the Amarillo to Las Cruces highway will "be approximately 480 miles long and will generally follow U.S. highways 60 and

The compromise also continues funding for railroad relocation projects in Brownsville and Greenville.

The Brownsville project calls for moving the Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific railyards from downtown Brownsville to the Port of Brownsville. More than $1.2 million has already been spent on the project for engineering. The total cost is estimated at $24.4 million.

The Greenville relocation requires construction of an overpass to alleviate the problems at a railroad crossing that blocks access to a hospital. More than $4 million was allocated for the relocation, which has already cost about $200,000.

The federal government will pick up 95 percent of the relocation costs for both rail projects, with the railroads affected making up the difference.

The negotiators also approved a demonstration rural transportation project for the Sherman-Denison area.

Engine Room Blast Kills 59

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SINGAPORE (AP) - An engine room explosion that sent metal fragments flying like shrapnel through the bowels of a Greek oil tanker killed 59 persons, including two sisters, Singapore police said today. A third sister and 18 other persons were hospitalized with severe burns, and 71 others suffered less serious injuries, they said

The blast occurred Thursday afternoon aboard the 35,676-ton Spyros, tied up for repairs and cleaning at the Jurong Shipyard. There was no official word on the cause of the explosion, but there was speculation it either was touched off by sparks from welding torches in the ship's boiler room or a leak in a gas cylinder. The tanker had no cargo aboard at the time of the blast.

Hospital sources said many of the victims were burned beyond recognition. Police said the dead included a least six of the ship's 33-member crew and two of the three sisters working as cleaners aboard the vessel. The crew included 27 Greeks, two Chileans, two Indonesians, an Englishman and a Filipino.

Paul Abraham, an employee of an electricity substation that supplied power to the ship, said he switched off electrictity to the Spyros immediately after the blast and climbed aboard with portable lights.

"As I descended into the ship, I saw badly burned workers struggling to get to the top deck," he said. "One had all his hair singed, leaving only his bare scalp. From below I could hear screams of people in pain ... I came across charred bodies, some piled on top of each other, while others were hidden behind pipes after being thrown by the exploson.

Shipyard worker Ah Cheong said he had left the engine room to collect some tools from the wharf about 2 p.m. and that "on my way back I heard a thunderous explosion followed by a fire and thick clouds of smoke. Suddenly there was pandemonium. There were screams for nelp and shouts of fire. I rushed back to the ship and joined other workers to pull out the injured ... Some of them were so badly burned I could hardly recognize

Another survivor said panic erupted in the boiler room after the blast. "By some miracle I managed to make my way to the first ladder and it was there that I saw at least three people dashing around with their hair and clothes on fire. The sight was just unbearable and I threw up right on the bottom step."

Firemen, aided by two firefighting tugs, battled the blaze for 25 minutes before bringing it under control. Green tarpaulins and cardboard covered the bodies as they were brought on deck.

Search and rescue teams were hampered by oil, a residue from the ship's tanks, and water sloshing around in the darkened engine and boiler rooms. One firefighter said most of the victims were found in the oil-water mix in the bowels of the ship.

The Spyros is owned by the Ulysses Tanker Corp., of Greece and registered in Liberia, according to Lloyd's Register of Ships. It was built by the Mitsubishi Zosen Shipyard in Nagasaki, Japan, in "The desert is an extremely delicate natural system," he said. "Desert trees and shrubs take an extremely long time to grow but are quite easy to wipe out. Before cultivating the desert, therefore, there is always a more important problem that we must consider - how to avoid harming it."

But this, he made clear, does not mean Russia plans to leave its deserts strictly alone - it can't do that when they cover one-sixth of the total area of the country, 750 million acres. The temptation to do something radical about the incredibly harsh deserts of Central Asia must be

A. Anytime during the next six weeks, but the earlier, the better. Q. What are the fertilizer and water requirements of "Dixie Green"?

A. The grass only requires half as much fertilizer as bermuda grass, and needs about the same amount of water as bermuda grass.

Q. How is "Dixie Green" planted?

A. It is a mixture of rye and fescue seed. A person wanting to seed over an existing lawn should scalp the lawn, and apply "Dixie Green" with a spreader, and water throughly. In a new yard, level ground and loosen soil, apply with spreader and rake thoroughly.

STONEWALL (AP) - Lady Bird Johnson handed Olen Tschatschula of Calhoun County her personal check for $1,-000 Thursday for his work in highway beautification.

The second-place award of $500 went to another maintenance construction supervisor for the highway department -James "Buddy" Morgan of Goldthwaite n Mills County.

Mrs. Johnson honored four other supervisors in ceremonies at the LBJ State Park. They were Troy Blankenship of Seguin, Raymond Kurtz of Huntsville, Waymon Sowell of Sweetwater and Raymond Woodruff of Canton.

She established the Lady Bird Johnson award in 1970 to recognize the department maintenance worker who has done the best job of highway beautification during the past year and to show her appreciation to the department for preserving and spreading wildflowers throughout Texas.

The department said it has had a wildflower program for 50 years.

A committee selected by Mrs. Johnson choose the finalists from nominees from 25 highway districts and also selected the first and second-place winners.

The judges were Professor E.J. Urba-

"Before I left home, my perception of this country was what I read, how messed up this country's supposed to be," said Keba, 20, who set out from his home in Warminster, Pa., two days before Easter.

But what I've seen with my eyes, well, most of the people are friendly and the country is beautiful. They've never killed anyone. And I've yet to meet someone who's killed someone else in an automobile accident. Seems like that's all you

Keba has traveled 12,000 miles through 40 states - including "all the states east of the Mississippi" - since kissing his mom, dad affd sisters goodbye on his bicycle tour of all the 48 adjoining states. Before him lie Oregon, California, Ne-

When he runs out of money, which is fairly often, Keba says he hires on as a ranch hand. But his needs are few and so his money is used mostly to pay for food and breycle repairs.

"hotel accommodations" have mostly been freeway underpasses and his trusty waterproof sleeping bag. "Worst one I slept under was right here in Washington last night, along Interstate 90. Awfully rocky.

BBB Provides Help To Firms, Buyers

By HAROLD BLUMENFELD

Abbreviations are like a bowl of alphabet soup. We know what the initials AAA, CBS, NBC, FTC and ERA stand for, don't we? But many of us are vague about the identity of BBB, the Better Business Bureau. As a result, we do not take full advantage of the benefits it offers.

The BBB is a network of more than 140 offices that provide free services to consumers. Those offices are dedicted to improving what they consider a great asset for business: public confidence.

BBBs are non-profit organizations supported by businesses and consumers.

They are not connected with or financed by any government body nor are they part of any chamber of commerce. However, they often work with industry groups, government agencies and law enforcement officials.

Bureaus aim at mediating misunderstandings between businesses and their customers. Their files contain pertinent material about thousands of firms, international and local. They investigate questionable advertising, promote fair sales practices and expose frauds and other schemes. A few words about what BBBs do not do: They do not endorse or recommend products, firms or individuals. They do not provide legal advice. (For that, turn to your local legal aid society.) Nor do they evaluate prices and service charges, except when there may be fraud or misrepresentation. And they will not attempt to referee employee-employer disputes.

If in doubt about the reliability of a company you intend to do business with, check with your local BBB. If you have a complaint about a business you have already dealt with, bring the problem to the attention of your BBB - but do it

If you do not have a BBB office in your community, check with the local consumer protection agency or chamber of commerce. Let's look at what BBBs can do for those of us who shop by mail.

First, remember that many mail-order problems are the fault of consumers. Often people forget to put their names and addresses on their orders.

And they also expect to have the merchandise delivered the next day. The BBB advises allowing four to six weeks for delivery before initiating a com-

In addition, the BBB offers these suggestions for making mail-order purchas-

 Read catalogs carefully. Keep a copy of the advertisement or brochure describing the merchandise you ordered. Beware of exaggerated claims and don't be taken in by unrealistically low prices.

- Pay by check or money order. Never send cash through the mails. If the sales offer says the buyer is to pay shipping and handling charges, be sure to add those amounts to your payment. - Find out whether the merchandise is offered on a satisfaction guaranteed or money-back arrangement. - If you return the merchandise, send it insured. Keep the proof of insurance in case the company later claims it did not receive your package.

- If you receive merchandise you didn't order, the law says you can keep it as a gift. You don't have to pay for it and the company cannot bill you. That also applies to shipments from charitable organizations to which you do not want to

And if you have further questions, direct them to your nearest BBB office.

HAMPTON, N.H. (UPI) - Former Treasury Secretary John Connally, who has said has he may enter New Hamp, shire's Republican presidential primary in 1980, has also been looking at vacations homes in the Granite State.

Connally, a former Texas governor, recently was shown a $395,000 mansion along Ocean Boulevard in the area known as Little Boar's Head, according to friends.

The plush five-bedroom house is advertised as offering a 180-degree view of the Atlantic. It features marble bathroom heated outdoor pool, hand-rubbed cherrywood walls and a large kitchen.

Besides the beach property, he saw a modern mountain home, and a colonial house in North Sutton, one friend said.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

Luke 2:43-52, The Living Bible

43 After the celebration was over, they started home to Nazareth, but Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem. They didn't miss Him the first day, 44 For they assumed He was with friends among the other travelers. But when He didn't show up that evening, they started to look for Him among their relatives and friends.

45 When they couldn't find Him, they went back to Jerusalem to search for Him.

46 Three days later they finally discovered Himin the Temple, sitting among the teachers of Law, discussing deep questions with them

47 And amazing everyone with His understanding

48 His parents didn't know what to think when they saw Him sitting there (with those great men). "Son!" His mother said to Him, "Why have You done this to us? Your father and I have been frantic, searching for You everywhere."

49 "But why did you need to search?" He asked. "Didn't you realize that I would be here in My Father's House?"

50 But they didn't understand what He meant.

51 Then He returned to Nazareth with them and was obedient to them; and His mother stored away all these things in her heart.

52 So Jesus grew both tall and wise, and was loved by God and man.

Our physical vision spells out the way we see, yet it is our mental vision that determines the way we look at things. We form opinions, we judge, according to our background, education, experience, the way we were taught when we were young. Like our eyesight, the way we think becomes a part of

Sometimes we are wrong. Sometimes we judge too quickly. In our humanness we need help, guidance, particularly when the going gets rough.

The Church, remember, is there for all times-good and bad. Have you visited it recently?

DENIES CHARGES - Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., center, accompanied by unidentified aides, leaves a Capitol Hill news conference today after denying the truth of allegations contained in a 10-count indictment returned against him by a Washington federal grand jury. (AP Laserphoto)

Jury Indicts Flood On Bribery Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Daniel J. Flood, a flamboyant fixture in Congress for more than three decades, stands accused of trading his substantial power for tens of thousands of dollars in bribes from numerous individuals and organizations seeking federal aid. The Pennsylvania Democrat, indicted by a federal grand jury here Thursday on bribery and conspiracy charges, maintains he is innocent and says he will be vindicated in court and by his loyal constituents at the polls in November. Flood, who will be 75 next month, said in a statement, "I deny all these allegations, totally and unequivocally. I am confident that I will be proven innocent in a court of law. 'Neither absurd charges nor their attendant innuendoes will prevent my constituents from expressing once more their belief and trust in my integrity." Flood, a former actor, is a highly colorful congressman known for showmanship both in his manner of speech and appearance, particularly for his waxed handlebar mustache. He has represented the coal-mining district of Pennsylvania around Wilkes-Barre since 1945.

Flood was indicted Sept. 5 by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles on charges he lied to a trial jury and another grand jury

If convicted on all charges, he faces maximum prison sentences of 15 years on each bribery count, 5 years for conspiracy and 5 years on each of three perjury counts. The 10-count indictment returned when he denied receiving payoffs.

Thursday charged that Flood conspired with former aide Stephen B. Elko to take $65,000 in bribes from various sources and 100 shares of stock in a Pennsylvania

In addition, Flood was accused of receiving $16,500 for himself from various sources and seeking an additional $100,-000 from the developer of a townhouse project in Pennsylvania.

The indictment said that in return, Flood used his influence with federal agencies to get contracts, grants and other favors for those who paid him

Auto Workers Besieged By Pigeon Lice

DETROIT (AP) - Something's itching workers at the Chrysler Corp. Army Tank plant and employees think it's for the birds: pigeon lice.

Chrysler officials say it's a 30-year-old problem at the plant, but members of the United Auto Workers - usually up in arms over things like wages and hours are demanding action to eliminate the creepy crawlers. "Would you like to take these things home to your family?" asked Pete Prantera, vice-president of UAW Local 1200. "The Chrysler people told us ... these are bird lice and won't hurt people. Our people don't care what kind of lice they are. They don't want those lice crawling on them." Prantera said. Chrysler officials attended the union's meeting Thursday to allay fears about the lice that enter the plant on pigeons, which have easy access to the facility through huge doors opened to let tanks roll in and out. Disgruntled workers received little comfort from Dr. Neil Pennington's statement that the lice, which apparently fall out of pigeon nests in rafters 40 feet above them, are harmless. Pigeon lice cannot survive long without a bird as host, and so pose little health hazard to humans, said Dr. Pennington, an insect expert with the state health department We are responding as we always have when the problem gets severe by sending people into the rafters ... and spraying a substance which discourages the pigeons from nesting," a Chrysler official said. But I don't think there is any way of eliminating the birds entirely. "Our people are pacified now because they think the company is trying to find a solution," Prantera said. "I don't know what will happen if these lice infestations come up again.

Banks Pass On Higher Interest To Consumers

NEW YORK (AP) - You'd probably think the prime rate was more important if you needed a couple of million dollars to invest in a new factory.

To General Motors and other large American companies, news that the prime rate - the interest banks charge their best corporate customers — is going to 10 percent means that borrowing money to finance large-scale development is going to cost more.

The increase - the ninth this year was signaled Thursday when Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest. raised its prime rate from 9% to 10 percent. Other banks are expected to follow Chase's lead in the next few days.

But for the average American, the prime rate is important mainly as an indicator that borrowing is getting more ex-pensive for everybody. That's because the fates of little men and big institutions are entwined. Actions of the government, large banks and major corporations tend eventually to trickle down to affect ever-

The prime rate is going up because the Federal Reserve Board is making it more expensive for banks to borrow money from the nation's central bank. The intent is to control inflation by slowing economic growth, thus making the beleaguered U.S. dollar more attractive to foreign investors.

But interest rates on consumer loans such as mortgages, now hovering near 10 percent in many states — are rising because banks are finding themselves the rise in consumer rates.

pressed for cash to lend. As the economy According to Olsen, com recovers from the 1974-75 recession, Americans are going back to the loan windows in droves - and operating under time-tested tenets of supply and demand, banks are attempting to limit the requests for loans by making them more expensive.

"It's the demand for credit that really pushes the rates up," according to Leif Olsen, senior vice president of New York's Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank.

So in a sense, increases in the prime rate and increases in consumer interest rates both result from growth in the economy. But the prime rises as a result of efforts to cut the growth signified by

According to Olsen, comparing increases in the prime to those in consumer rates "is like saying if the price of melons goes up, the price of oranges or bananas will go up.

Why then is the prime so closely watched?

Tradition is part of it. The prime rate was introduced in the 1930s at a level of 11/2 percent. It stayed there until 1947, when its increase after so many years became a major news event that eventually marked the prime as a rate to watch.

Because it was unchanged for so long, it received a lot of attention," said Olsen. 'I would say the attention it receives is a lot more than it deserves.

Yet the prime rate has a psychological

"It becomes an indicator of where other rates will go" because of its visibility, said David Jones, an econbrey G. Lanston Co. Inc., a New York investment-banking firm.

Jones said consumer lending rates "are not as sensitive to money-market conditions as the prime, but they do tend to move in the same direction.

Many economists have suggested shifting the emphasis from the prime to the discount rate - the rate the Federal Reserve charges on loans to member banks. That rate, currently 8 percent, is the one used by other nations as a yardstick.

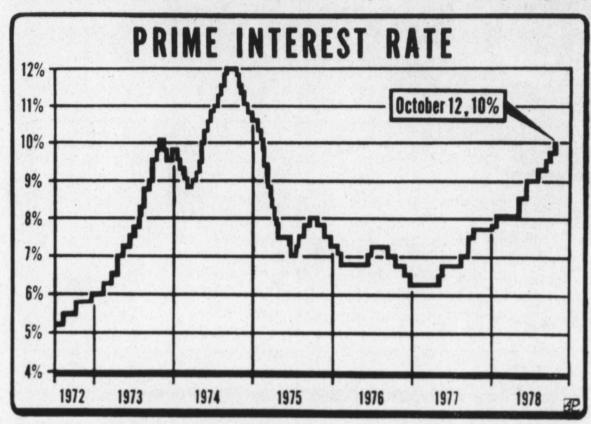

Jones said the discount rate "has the most effect internationally because it represents the philosophy of the mone-tary authorities" of a country.

It also reflects the relative strength of a nation's economy. Switzerland, with one of the world's most robust economies, has a discount rate of 1 percent. In West Germany, where the economy is also healthy, the central bank charges 3 percent for loans to banks. The prime rate in those countries is around 6 percent.

Although analysts don't expect the prime rate to go near its record of 12 percent — set four years ago during the re-cession — it's still a long way from the 6¼ percent it was at just 18 months ago. But there's some solace from the inter-national scene — in Brazil, where inflation is running rampant, the prime rate stands at 57.25 percent.

PRIME RATE - Chart shows the prime interest rates-the to figures from the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve rate at which banks loan money to General Motors and other System. To the average American, the prime rate is an indicalarge U.S. corporations—over the years since 1972, according tor of the expense of barrowing. (AP Laserphoto)

IRS Services Can Save Dollars

Newspaper Enterprise Association Most of us figure the IRS is out to separate us from our last penny. That's not necessarily so. By taking advantage of IRS services, you may well learn how to cut your income

At any rate, the IRS may save you the dollar or two you shell out at the bookstore each year for a glossy publication explaining how to fill out your 1040. Many such books are no more than reprints of "Your Federal Income taxes," a 194page publication you can get free from the IRS.

IRS also offers a whole series of guides on specialized tax issues: "Tax Information on Selling or Purchasing Your "Tax Information for Divorced or Seperated Individuals," "Tax Information on Moving Expenses," "Your Exemptions and Exemption and Exemptions for Dependents." "Tax Guide for Small Business," "Medical Expenses Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care" and "Tax Credit for the Elderly

For a complete listing of all IRS tax publications, order "Recordkeeping Requirements and a Guide to Tax Publications" or "Catalog and Quick Index to Taxpayer Information Publications.

You can obtain these booklets - as well as any special tax forms you might need - simply by filling out the order bland on the back of your federal income tax forms booklet. You can also get these materials from regional and district IRS offices, as well as from the Public Affairs Division, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constituttion Avenue N.W., Washington D.C. 20224.

Incidentally, there's no charge for any of these publica-

What if you still have questions after studying the IRS booklets? Don't head for a commercial tax preparation service. At least, not yet, Instead, get free tax advice from an IRS specialist. You can probably obtain the information you need by phone without even incurring any long-distance charges. If there is no IRS office in your community, chances are your phone directory will list a toll-free number for IRS assistance. If it does not, check with the toll-free information operator at (800) 555-1212.

If you prefer you can go to an IRS office in person where a tax specialist will look over your financial records and help you prepare your forms.

Of course, you can also pose your questions in a letter to your district IRS office.

If you are hard of hearing you can obtain tax advice over any TV-phone tele-typewriter equipment to which you have access. If you prefer to visit an IRS office, you will usually be assigned to a tax specialist trained in working with the sider enrolling in one of the free taxpayer education courses offered by the IRS. Such a class will probably be offered this year in at least one city in your state. Your club can sponsor its own mini-course in income taxes

If you want still more information on taxes, you might conwith a guest speaker from the IRS. If a "live" teacher isn't available, an up-to-date film can usually be supplied. One of the most IRS district offices.

Further information on classes, speakers and films can be obtained from your nearest IRS office or the previously mentioned Public Affairs Division in Washington.

Vermont Commission Shelves Plan To Build Shopping Mall

WILLISTON, Vt. (AP) - If state environmental officials and many townsfolk have their way, the hay in the fields of tiny Tafts Corners will not give way to con-

A plan to clear the fields and build Vermont's largest shopping mall was shelved Thursday by a district environmental commission. The New York-based Pyramid Co. says, however, the fight is not

The idea of building the 430,000-squarefoot facility at the junction of U.S. 2 and 2A - better known as Tafts Corner divided the 3,300 residents of this sleepy community that has yet to feel the need for a full-time policeman.

The town is torn between promises of reduced taxes and fears of seeing its rural character slip away.

Proponents estimated the proposed 82store mall -- estimated to cost from $9.3 million to $18 million - would reduce the town's tax rate 25 percent. The average taxpayer now pays $1,000 a year.

Commission Chairman Duncan Brown said the mall would have increased traffic and strained the ability of local governments to provide services.

But Williston Selectman John Heins, a dairy farmer and machine salesman, sees the mall's opponents as trying to preserve a way of life that has already disap-

Agreement May End Newspaper Strike

NEW YORK (AP) - A breakthrough agreement on job security for pressmen at the city's three major dailies has raised hopes for an end to the 65-day newspaper strike here.

But a full settlement could require several more days or longer.

The principles would be applicable both to the strikebound Times and the News and the afternoon Post, which pulled out of joint negotiations and resumed publication Oct. 5. Although the Post and its pressmen came to terms, they have "me too" agreements that will require that the Post match terms worked out by the morning papers.

Further work on the proposed new contract was to resume today at the regional offices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service after a report by the architect of the peace formula, labor lawver Theodore W. Kheel, Kheel was to report to a meeting of union leaders representing 10,000 newspaper workers involved in the dispute.

What the parties achieved late Thursday was a basic accord on two principles. One would guarantee employment for 1,-508 "regular" pressmen for six years. The other would allow the publishers to gradually eliminate pressroom overstaffing through "true attrition" of in-

The guarantee would assure full-time employment for some 200 pressmen who worked as few as 150 shifts in 1977, as well as for pressmen who worked a full schedule last year. But between the end of the strike and March 30, 1984, pressmen who retire or die would not be replaced

Kheel, as observer for the unions with the assignment to clarify issues and resolve a deadlock over manning and job security that had threatened to prolong the strike indefinitely.

The principles were outlined by Kheel at a Thursday morning "summit" meeting with only the top operating officers of the Times, the News and the officers of Printing Pressmen's Union No. 2, who then considered and approved them.

"I believe agreement to the principles recommended by Ted Kheel are a significant step forward." Walter E. Mattson, executive vice president and general manager of the Times, said later at a

ORDERS DROP

TOKYO (AP) - International orders to Japan's shipbuilding industry dropped sharply in the first half of fiscal 1978, ended Sept. 30, the Japan Ship Exporters' Association said today. There were orders for 63 ships during the period totaling 906,000 gross tons, a drop of 44 percent in units and 42.2 percent in tonnage from the corresponding year-earlier period. The calculations were based on foreign shipbuilding orders involving general steel-hulled vessels of 500 gross tons or

Tech Seeks To Rebound Against New Mexico

Executive Sports Editor
Texas Tech's footballers will be flying to Albuquerque today, in in anticipation of playing the University of New Mexico Saturday night. But, the flying is just the mode of transportation; it is the way the Raiders will perform on the ground of University Stadium which is a concern for Tech coach Rex Dockery.

The two teams will line up in the Lobos' home arena at 8:30 p.m. CDT Saturday in this annual Southwest Country (Tech-New Mexico Lineups, Page 6, Sec. D) duel. And Dockery will be hoping for a stronger ground game as a point producer.

Tech managed 170 yards rushing against Texas A&M last Saturday, but it had but 75 yards at the half. It is averaging just 130 yards per game on the ground, and this concerns

As a result, he has shuffled his backfield, in an effort to get more ground power. James Hadnot, the 235-pound tight end-turned-fullback, remains as his spot, but the tailback spot will be filled by Mark Olbert, a 190-pound freshman from Edmond, Okla.

"We have to establish a running game," Dockery said Thursday. "Olbert is not fast, but he's quick. He's a tough kid, and we liked the way he played (in the game's latter stages) against the Aggies last week

"Hadnot is improving every week, but we have to use him

Hadnot carried the ball nine times against the Aggies but netted 62 yards. For the season, Hadnot has rushed 68 times (17 per game) and picked up 240 yards. His 3.5-yard per-percarry average compares to the team's 3-yards per try.
But, last week, five Raiders carried the ball from the two runningback slots in the veer formation, and Dockery could play as many as he feels can help.

One of the players that could see some action at tailback is Mark Johnson. Johnson, moved from quarterback, has been working at the spot a week, and Dockery said he was not worried about using the junior but hoped to give him more practice time before testing him in game conditions.

As far as the passing and quarterbacking chores, there is no doublt: they belong to freshman Ron Reeves, who hit nine of 25 fof 143 yards last week. And, Dockery said that had receivers caught the ones they dropped, the passing to-tal would have been more than 200 yards.

'Our receivers were dropping some passes that in the earlier games they had caught. We have good receivers, and they're not going to drop many."

Senior flanker Godfrey Turner, who had not dropped a pass until last Sa'urday, has latched onto 16 passes this fall, split end Brian Nelson 11. And Reeves, the freshman from Monterey, has connected on 29 throws for a 46.8 percent

The halfback switch (with last week's starting tailback, Don Earl, going to wide receiver) is the only major one on offense, but defensively, injuries and promotions have shoved two freshmen into the opening unit.

Freshman Alan Swann and Lewis Washington will be at cornerback and defensive end, respectively. Swann earned his starting spot by his efforts against the Aggies, and Washington is filling in after Andy Thomas was hurt in the Aggie game. Until a week ago, Washington was playing linebacker. But the Tech defensive unit will be trying to stop a fullback who is on his way to being the greatest rusher in Western Athletic Conference history. Mike Williams, a 225-pound senior, has rushed for more than 3200 yards in his career, 428 of those steps this fall as the Lobos have won three five games.

And running alongside the bruising fullback is Mike Carter, a 9.4 sprinter who has picked up an average of 5.9 yards every time he has carried the ball.

At the controls of the Lobo attack is sophomore Mike Wright, who moved into the starting lineup three games into the season and displaced a two-year starter.

Wright, from Midland Lee, has connected on 47.2 percent of his passes and rushed for 226 yards.

"Part is positive good at appropriate "said LINM coach Bill."

"Brad is pretty good at everything," said UNM coach Bill Mondt. "He's not a great runner, not a great passer, but he runs the offense pretty well. He's a steady guy."

Last week, Wright led the Lobos from behind and to a 19-15 win over host Wyoming. The Lobos were down 15-0 before alert defensive play produced the scoring opportuniopportunities.

"We were doing well, defensively, until the Wyoming game," Mondt said. "But Wyoming marched the ball all day against us."

Reeves could be keeping his eye on Doug Smith when he gets ready to throw. Smith, a sub playing behind Max Hudspeth, has picked up three passes this fall. The other int er-ception was by Hudspeth.

The Raiders will be coming in with one win against three losses, the lone win coming over Arizona. After Saturday, Tech will have another road game, playing at Rice on Oct. 21 before returning home Nov. 4 to host Baylor.

Dodgers Shoot For Third Straigh

MOST HAPPY FELLA - Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda is a picture of joviality as he jokes and answers reporters questions during the Dodgers' workout at Yankee Stadium in New York Thursday. Tonight, his Dodgers will take on the hosts in the third game of the World Series. (AP Laserphoto)

Yankees, down 2-0 and in desperate need of a victory tonight (7:30 p.m. CDT) in the third game of the World Series, give the ball to ace Ron Guidry, who won nearly 90 percent of his decisions this sea-with their proven postseason pitcher, Don Sutton, 15-11 in the regular season. The Yankees have been about to go down for the third time on several occasions dufing their uphill season, and each time the skinny Guidry's powerful left arm tossed them a life preserver. Fifteen times Guidry has stopped Yankee losing streaks, and he has been the winning pitcher in New York's one-game playoff victory over Boston and its American League pennant-clinching triumph over Kansas City.

Does he like being the net underneath the Yanks' tightrope act?

"I've learned to live with it," said Guidry, still modest despite the flashiest pitching statistics in recent baseball his-

The lean left-hander from Louisiana finished his remarkable season with a 25-3 record and a 1.73 earned run average, drawing admiration from another respected member of the pitching profes-

'Watching him pitch a couple of times this year I thought he was Sandy Koufax reincarnated," said Sutton. "Accidentally you should lose at least five games. Having seen him, I'm not surprised he is 25-3, just that anybody could be 25-3." Guidry seems almost embarrassed by the superlatives and comparisons his gaudy record prompts.

'I don't feel like I'm the best pitcher,' said the 28-year-old phenom. "When I sit alongside Jim (Catfish Hunter), I feel meek. Here's a guy who's won 20 games vear. "For me to be No. 1 would take a lot of consistent years of winning."

Guidry admits to tiring late in the season, but he was able to make the adjustment from an overpowering thrower to a pitcher who could win when he wasn't at his best. He gives catcher Thurman Munson credit for coaxing late-season wins out of a sleepy arm.

"He knows if I have good stuff, he doesn't worry about location," said Guidry. "When I have that extra foot on my fastball, he just puts down the glove.
"But when I don't have my best stuff, he moves the glove around a lot more.' Guidry says a tip-off for when his fastball isn't overpowering is when the weaker hitters in the lineup, who normally can't handle the outside fastball, continue to foul that pitch off.

Lubbock Clubs Caprock 14-3

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff AMARILLO - No one that came to Dick Bevins stadium Thursday night expected much of an offensive showdown from either Lubbock High or Caprock.

So when the game ended with only a field goal and a pair of TDs scored, no one was really disappointed - except maybe Rusty Talbot.

"I though our defense really played a super game," said the Lubbock High coach. "I think we really stuck it to them. But our offense should have scored more points. . .at least two more.' So what everyone expected, and what everyone got, was a defensive battle. With the exception of a couple of long runs by LHS Ricky Moreno, that's excatly what they got - Dee-fense. Moreno, shifted to the runningback to shine at quarterback, rushed for 169 yards on 26 tries and scored one of Lubbock High's touchdowns to spark the Westerners to a 14-3 win. The win upped the Westerners' won-spot recently when Larry Walker began loss mark to 3-3, while Caprock fell to 2-4. Incidentally, Lubbock High has won its last three outings in a row after dropping its first three.

"It sure feels good," said Talbot, standing in front of the LHS locker room. "I thought at the start we were a little tight.

to district next week."

After taking a 7-3 halftime lead, the Westerners came back in the second half to score a lone touchdown when Moreno bounced into the end zone on a fourthand-goal play from the 2. Jeff Manley kicked his second extra point, giving LHS its 11-point margin of victory.

Moreno set up LHS' second TD - just as he did the first one - when he dashed 40 yards on Lubbock's first play of what would be a 10-snap march. The dash, which was halted when defensive back Freddy Valdez came out of nowhere to catch the fleet back from behind, took the ball to the 30.

Nine plays latter LHS had a TD. And

With five days rest since his playoff win over Kansas City, Guidry says he feels strong, setting up a classic confrontation between Guidry's power and fastball and the Dodgers' power and fastball hitting.
"They have tremendous talent but I'm a power pitcher and it will be my power versus their power. I just hope to have a little extra to get by."

Dodger power was the difference in the first two games, with Davey Lopes providing a pair of homers in the first-game victory and Ron Cey smacking a three-run blast in Game 2. Five of the Dodger regulars have three hits or more, while starting pitchers Tommy John and Burt Hooton have pitched creditably and re-lievers Terry Forster and Bob Welch have nailed down the two wins.

Meanwhile, Reggie Jackson has hit the only Yankee homer and has been carry-ing the offensive load, knocking in half of New York's runs. The other major threats - Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles and Chris Chambliss - each have one hit. Of the six Yankee pitchers used thus far, only relief ace Rich Gossage has been especially effective.

Yankee manager Bob Lemon says he hopes to have Chambliss and center fielder Mickey Rivers, both sidelined with injuries in Game 2, back in action tonight. The travel day should help the Yanks, who were hobbling and tired after the long haul of rallying from 14 games back, defeating Boston in a dramatic one-game playoff and downing Kansas City in a tense pennant series.

'We've been down all year," said Nettles. "Coming back is nothing new for Being the type of pitcher I am with breaking balls and pitching up, I have to be concerned about not hanging any pitches inside," said Sutton. "You don't You have an airport in center field and I hope a lot of balls land there.

Last year, the New York fans gave the Dodgers a dose of eastern inhospitality, throwing bottles from the stands and at least one hard rubber ball, which beaned outfielder Reggie Smith.

"The New York fans are enthusiastic and try to make it tough on you," said Cey. "People are trying to disturb you and get nasty. We have to face up to

Plainsmen Take On Pampa By BOB BAJACKSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff If it appears from the stands that Monterey looks like a different football team when it trots onto Lowrey Field against Pampa tonight at 7:30, there is a simple explaination: The Plainsmen will be a different football team this week. Injuries continue to plague Monterey as coach James Odom shuffles his lineup around. In fact, Odom's depth chart consists of so many eraser marks, that the Plainsmen mentor has to think a moment before recalling who will play where.

In other games, Estacado will travel to Lamesa to play the Tornadoes, Coronado will meet the Carlsbad Cavemen in New Mexico, Lubbock Christian High School will entertain Abernathy at Lena Stephens Field, and Christ the King will play host to Abilene Christian at Fitzgerald

Monterey will bring a 1-3-1 record into the contest. Pampa is 1-3.

For the third week in a row, Monterey will start a new face at quarterback. Succeeding Todd Hunt - who fell to inton — who suffered a shoulder separa-tion on the first play against Hobbs last week - will be Kent Potts.

"We're just going to try and run the football on the trap and throw some," said Odom.

Defensively, linebacker Brett Dixon will replace Potts in the middle. Thus, Brad Hill will take over an outside linebacking spot for Dixon. Also, a knee injury to other linebacker Mac Tatum will force into service Monte McCright.

"Pampa has never beaten us," said Odom. "But I would have to admit that Pampa probably thinks this is their year. Monterey and Pampa have met on the football field the last 17 years. Pampa Coach John Wellborn has been involved in five of those losses. After studying game films, Wellborn agrees that tonight will be Pampa's best chance to dent Monterey's domination.

Though Wellborn expresses some reserved optimism about his team's chance, Pampa has also been bothered

"I thought we'd have some experience along the offensive line when the season got underway," said Wellborn. "But going into the Monterey game, only two experienced linemen will be able to

Although Wellborn wouldn't reveal his ame plan, the Pampa mentor admitted he'd like to keep the ball on the ground. ESTACADO-LAMESA

Estacado coach Louis Kelley didn't have much to say about his football team during a press conference at the Copper-Mine restaurant this week. It wasn't because Kelley was upset with his team. It's just that the Matadors had a bye last week.

Tonight, however, Estacado will return to the grid wars in Lamesa against the Estacado will enter the game with a 3-1 record. Lamesa will trot onto the field with a 1-4 mark

"What impresses me about Lamesa is their hustle play," said Kelley. "The Tornadoes always come at you. They never think they're out of a game. Estacado's game plan is a balanced of-

if it's not third down," said Kelley. What we must do is take advatage of scoring opportunities if they occur. CTK-ABILENE CHRISTIAN

Rose, who has a history of contract wrangles during his 16 years in Cincinnati, hit .302 last baseball season, the 13th time in 14 years he has reached the .300 plateau. He tied an all-time National League consecutive game-hitting streak of 44. He also got his 3,000th career hit earlier in the season, and by the end of the year, was in ninth place among alltime hitters.

Rose disputed the contention that he had been offered the largest salary on the Reds. He said that he had not been offered additional guarantees and bonuses which other players had received.

The Reds said they had made their final offer and Rose admits that the offer 'surprised him" in that he said it was not much improved from the first offer.

"If the people who run this ball club have had enough of me, the grass is greener in other pastures and the only thing I can do is go to those other pastures. Rose said. Rose's aftorney, Reuven Katz, said that Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Idalou travels west to Muleshoe tonight in what should be one of the biggest high school games of this season. And already, the war of words is heating up.

"We're excited about playing Idalou because they're such a good ball club," Mule coach Mike Wartes said. "Ol' Tom (Richey) has built a tradition over the last three years or so.'

Here in West Texas, Football, U.S.A., wars are fought with roses.

"I don't know if we're looking forward to it," Wartes continued, "but it looks like it's inevitable, doesn't it?

And there will be a big one Saturday in the Lone Star Conference.

Angelo State, ranked No. 1 in the NAIA, and Abilene Christian, ranked No. 3, meet in San Angelo with a possible conference title on the line. Both teams have 1-0 league records, as do Southwest Texas and Sam Houston, who also meet Saturday afternoon in Huntsville.

Southwest Texas is ranked second nationally this week.

This will be the second big test in a row for defending national champion Abilene Christian, which knocked off Texas A&I last week 28-13.

A battle could shape up between passminded Abilene Christian quarterback John Mayes, who is averaging 202 yards a game in the air, and Angelo State runningback Jerry Aldridge, who is leading the LSC with 128 ground yards per game.

Money Separated Sutton, Pin-Stripes

NEW YORK (AP) - If the New York Yankees had come up with a paltry $13,000 more, Don Sutton might be wearing pinstripes tonight instead of the traveling gray of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It got to be a matter of economics vs. a childhood dream," Sutton said Thursday night in the visitors' clubhouse at Yankee Stadium as the Dodgers went through a light workout in preparation for tonight's third game of the World Series.

Sutton's childhood dream growing up in Pensacola, Fla., was "spent wanting to play for the Yankees." Unfortunately, the Yankees only offered a $2,000 bonus while the Dodgers coughed up $15,000. And, ironically, the scout who tendered the Yankees' offer was none other than Atley Donald, the same scout who signed tonight's Yankee pitcher, Ron Guidry. "I guess he was waiting for a hard-throwing left-hander, not an 18-year-old kid who threw curve balls on a 3-2 count," Sut-

"I don't know why I was a Yankee fan," added the 33-yearold right-hander. "What makes a kid in Los Angeles become a Red Sox fan? I probably liked the Yankees because they were the team that was the most visible and on the most Mutual

Game of the Day broadcasts.' Although Sutton has become one of the most successful pitchers in the history of the Dodgers, it was the 1977 All-Star Game before he finally got to play in Yankee Stadium.

"It was like watching my childhood dream materialize," he remembered, "but it did't seem like the first time I was there because I had seen it all through my childhood. It was a little different than I had pictured because the dimensions had been changed and the monuments were behind the bullpen fence instead of in deep center field.

"But the major ingredients were still there — the Yankee tradition and the ghosts of Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle, even Hank Bauer and Bob Cerv and Tom Sturdivant and Luis Arroyo and Johnny Kucks.

"I don't think I'll ever get over the exciting feeling of coming in here. I honestly feel that after I retire, were I to come back here, the feeling would still be there.

"I really wanted to sign with the Yankees. I spent my childhood thinking about playing with no one but the Yankees. I was mildly surprised that I chose to play somewhere else."

It hasn't been an unhappy choice, either. Sutton leads the all-time Los Angeles list in eight pitching categories — wins, losses, games started, strikeouts, innings pitched, hits, walks and shutouts. And he'd like nothing better than to tack on one more win and give the Dodgers an even more commanding 3-0 lead in the best-of-7 World Series.

"It's awfully nice to come into someone else's ballpark with a big lead," he said, "but the key is for us to win two of the next five games. My thoughts are that this is a heck of a nice place to be when you consider that some awfully talented players are sitting home watching it on TV."

"I don't do anything; what the hell do I do?" Lasorda said Thursday night as he put the Los Angeles Dodgers through a light workout in preparation for tonight's third World Series game.

"If I put a guy out there and he doesn't execute, it doesn't mean anything," Lasorda said. "He's the one who hits the ball and he's the one who catches it. If I put on a hit-and-run play, it's in the two players' hands. If I bring in a relief pitcher and he gets a guy out, he's the one who does it.

"In any sport, if managers and coaches are naive enough to think they win ballgames, they're in trouble. The players could win without me, but how could I win without the players? It's simple arithmetic - the soldiers win the wars but the generals get the medals. That's the way it is. Nevertheless. Lasorda has guided the Dodgers to the World Series in each of his first two seasons as a major league pilot and was named Associated Press Manager of the Year in 1977. This year's winner has not been announced yet.

What I've accomplished - Manager of the Year, managing in the All-Star Game and the World Series - all those awards have become possible because of what my players do," he said.

"If a batter leads the league in hitting. it's what he did. If a pitcher wins a game. . .it's what he did. But a manager depends on the players. My livelihood, my job, my success depends on them. I'm not naive enough to think I win any games.

Lasorda likes to remind people of what second baseman Davey Lopes said when he was named manager of the Dodgers on Sept. 29, 1976.

Ed Figueroa gets the chance to pitch Saturday's crucial game against the Dodgers in the World Series — and he says he will be disappointed if he doesn't - every ball will be thrown in anger.

"Especially I want to show Billy Martin," the tall, mustachioed Puerto Rican said. "Billy — he treated me like dirt, a "Civitan LPGA second-class citizen. "He has told people I am gutless and cannot pitch under pressure. He never said anything good about me. How can he say that? I win 55 games in three years. I give Billy everything I got. I make him look good.

The 6-foot curveballer, 30 years old today, said he was not concerned that others had questioned his ability to produce in clutch games because of his 0-4 record in postseason competition. "I don't have to prove anything to the world," he insisted. "Sure, I do not win some playoff games but I pitch good in the 1976 World Series and last year I don't pitch because I have tendinitis. "Just because I do not win four postseason games does not mean I choke up. It's just the way things happen. When I get another chance, I will prove it." There was speculation that manager Bob Lemon, who succeeded Martin July 25 when Billy was given a 11/2-year leave of absence, might pass over Figueroa when the pitcher's turn comes Saturday. "Ridiculous," snapped Lemon, when the question was put to him, "you don't dump a 20-game winner just like that." It is this sort of confidence which has given Figueroa a new lease on life and has soured him on any future allegience to Martin, scheduled to return as Yankee manager in 1980. Los Angeles in mid-week was awash with rumors, none substantiated, that Martin, nightclubbing with friends in

Aggie-Houston Tilt Spices SWC Schedule

By United Press International

Texas A&M's prestige gradually has risen since the opening of the season because the Aggies have overwhelmed four less-than-potent foes.

But A&M coach Emory Bellard says even better things are ahead, and this would be a good week for better things since the Aggies will face their initial big test in an attempt to win an undisputed Southwest Conference championship for the first time since 1967.

The unbeaten and sixth-ranked Aggies venture into the Astrodome for a slugfest with the big-play, 16th-rated Houston Cougars (3-1), who have made something of a turnaround since an embarrassing opening night loss to the Memphis State Tigers, a team A&M crushed two weeks

"We have not played a team which poses such a run-pass threat as Houston, Bellard said. "They have a very explosive offense. They keep hammering and hammering at you and all of a sudden there is

"But I don't think we are as good as we're going to be. The players have a great attitude. They improve a little every day because they work so hard and they want it so bad.

"I don't know what the bottom line will be at the end of the season, but I know I'm going to enjoy this season.

The Houston-Texas A&M meeting could be the game that has the most longrange bearing on the SWC race this week. but in Waco the suddenly popular SMU Mustangs will be on view and in Austin the Texas Longhorns will be presented with an interesting psychological prob-

And the Longhorns, who are bound to be down a little after a one-sided setback against No. 1 Oklahoma, will try to gear up for North Texas State, a 5-1 team that has prepared all season for this one shot at a Southwest Conference biggie.

TCU (1-3) and Rice, winless in 14 straight games, will play in Fort Worth with the loser likely finishing last in the league this year, and Texas Tech (1-3) will meet New Mexico in Albuquerque.

SMU, having come close to beating both Penn State and Ohio State, is experiencing a rebirth of interest in its football program and the game with Baylor will be a key one for both schools.

Baylor desperately needs a victory after four tough losses to Georgia, Kentucky, Ohio State and Houston while the Mustangs — with a good showing against the Bears - might be able to sneak into the top 20.

"I don't have any idea what the future holds for this team," bemoaned Baylor coach Grant Teaff. "We are all hurting now. We're close to being that great football team that I've spoken about. But we still haven't gotten the points to win when we had the opportunity.

"If someone had been watching our first four games he would have thought he'd seen some great football games. It may be great for the fans, but I can assure you that it's rough on the players

CANYON (Special)-The injury-riddled Lubbock Christian College volleyball team will attempt to climb to the 500 level again today when the Lady Chaparrals trek here to battle West Texas State at 7 p.m.

LCC presently stands 11-12 on the season and owns one victory over WT, a three-set 15-11, 15-5, 15-12 decision in Lubbock. The Lady Chaps, however, will be without the services of ace setter Chervi Skaggs and spiker-attacker Diane Fogarty, the tallest Lady Chap at 6-0. Miss Skaggs suffered a deep back bruise to go with a knee injury in the Oklahoma State Tournament last weekend and Miss Fogarty has been slowed by a right wrist injury.

Coach Larry Rogers indicated Carol Mason, Karen Kauffman, Bridget Biggers, Janice "Yogi" Wilkey, Lyn Miller and Christi Edinburgh, a Crosbyton native, will draw the starting assignments and that it was unlikely Miss Skaggs and Miss Fogarty would make the trip.

Rogers also announced an addition to LCC's schedule: The Texas Tech Invitiational Oct. 27-28. Other teams involved will be Angelo State, West Texas, Eastern New Mexico, Lamar and two Lubbock schools.

After Friday's action, the Lady Chaps have four single matches puls the Tech and Sam Houston State tournament leadding up to the TIAW State Tournament which will be hosted by the University of Houston Nov. 2-4.

When The Mighty Reg Came To Bat

By JULES LOH Associated Press Special Correspondent

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Yankees in LA. The score stood 4-3, two out, one inning left to play. But when Dent slid safe at second and Blair got on at first Every screaming Dodger fan had cause to fear the worst. For there before the multitude — Ah destiny! Ah fate! Reggie Jackson, mighty Reggie, was advancing to the plate.

Reggie, whose three home runs had won the year before, Reggie, whose big bat tonight fetched every Yankee score. On the mound to face him stood the rookie, young Bob Welch. A kid with a red hot fastball - Reggie's pitch - and nothing else.

Fifty thousand voices cheered as Welch gripped ball in mitt. One hundred thousand eyes watched Reggie rub his bat and spit. 'Throw your best pitch, kid, and duck," Reggie seemed to say. The kid just glared. He must have known this wasn't Reggie's day.

His first pitch was a blazer. Reggie missed it clean. Fifty-thousand throats responded with a Dodger scream. They squared off, Reggie and the kid. Each knew what he must do. And seven fastballs later, the count was three and two.

No shootout on a dusty street out here in the Far West Could match the scene: A famous bat; a kid put to the test. One final pitch. The kid reared back and let a fastball fly. Fifty thousand Dodger fans gave forth one final cry. . .

Ah, the lights still shine On Broadway, but there isn't any doubt: The Big Apple has no joy left. Mighty Reggie has struck out.

SWC Debates Cage

HOUSTON (UPI) — Some Southwest Conference basketball coaches say Hous-ton's Summit is a great place for the annual post-season tournament but the others have their doubts.

Eight of the nine SWC coaches Thurs-day had a closed-door meeting at Rice University with a conference official and two athletic directors to discuss the site of the highly successful tournament and Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said the coaches were split on the topic.

"We're well divided," Metcaif said at a news conference following the meeting.
Some coaches maintain holding the tournament at the Summit gives Houston and Rice an unfair advantage. However, that must be weighed against the capacity crowds that have been attracted to the 16,000-seat facility in the past two years.

"There's an advantage (for the Houston teams), in my opinion, because they can have their players continue their daily schedule," Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said. "Whereas, if you bring a team in here, and you're in a hotel and you've broken your schedule, it's different.

Sutton was one of several coaches to say the decision whether to move the tournament was being made more difficult because of past success.

"All of us have concern too that the people of Houston have done such a marvelous job in promoting the tournament. There are question marks anytime you move. You ask, 'Hey, can they do the same thing in San Antonio?" he said.

UH coach Guy Lewis then offered to counter that advantage by keeping his team in a hotel the week of the tourna-

"In the interest of fair play and trying to even this tournament up, I'm going to move my team out of the dorm next year and move them into the Houston Oaks (Hotel)," he said.

The SWC's contract to play the springtime tournament at the Summit was for three years beginning in 1976. Both years it has been played in Houston, the Cou-gars advanced to the finals. Last season Houston won the tournament by beating Texas, the eventual NIT champion, and Arkansas, the third-place finisher in the NCAA tourna Rice coach Mike Schuler indicated officials of HemisFair Arena should prove they can match the attendance and ex-citement generated at the Summit. "If San Antonio is the best place, we make more money, we have more interest, then fine, let's go there. But if we go to San Antonio and get 10,000 people, then we have made a very poor decision," he said.

The Summit and HemisFair Arena were the only two places to make bids for the 1980 tournament, but the soon-to-be-constructed Dallas convention center is expected to enter the bidding thereafter.

HemisFair arena is presently increas ing its seating to 16,000. "I think if we go to a place it will be for a two-or three-year period," Sutton said. Rotating the tournament between the nine homecourts has been discussed, but is unrealistic because of the small arenas at several of the universities, Lemons The decision whether to move the site will be made no sooner than January at the SWC winter meetings.

Lemons cast doubt whether the coaches had any input into the decision-makin by the faculty representatives of the nine

"We're not a decision-making body," he said of the nine coaches. "It gets down to money. The one that's got the most money. That's where you're gonna go. If Tyler builds a big place, we go there."

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers appeared to line up with Sutton and Lemons for the move to San Antonio. Metcalf appeared to side with Schuler and Lewis for keeping the tournament in Houston. Coaches Jim Haller of Baylor and SMU's Sonny Allen gave no indication which

NBA Opens Season On Friday 13th

By The Associated Press

After such a wild and wacky summer is it just coincidence that the National Basketball Association season begins on Friday the 13th?

Nine games are scheduled as the NBA taps off its 33rd season tonight, the start of a 902-game slate that runs through April 8 and leads to two months of play-

The Washington Bullets will receive their championship rings from Commissioner Larry O'Brien prior to their opener tonight against the New Orleans Jazz. Elsewhere, it will be Los Angeles at Philadelphia, Houston at New York, San Antonio at Denver, New Jersey at Detroit, Chicago at Seattle, Cleveland at Boston, Atlanta at Indiana and San Diego at

Much has happened since the Bullets wrapped up their first NBA title last

There was the franchise swap that saw Buffalo move to San Diego and John Y. Brown take over in Boston; the free of Rick Barry and Ma Webster and the ensuing compensation disputes; the bailout of the New Jersey Nets; the move to three referees; the holdouts of scoring champion George Gervin and rebounding king Truck Rob-inson, and most valuable player Bill Walton's stunning demand to be traded by Portland because he didn't like the club's medical practices - and those are just

Meanwhile, the Bullets reaped their title benefits, which included a White House fete. "The team enjoyed what happened to them in the off-season, said Bullets coach Dick Motta. "They'll want to renew that.'

It won't be easy. No team in the past decade has been able to repeat as champion, not since the Boston Celtics did it in 1968 and 1969. And the various off-season player movements have left several teams thinking they've got shots at the championship, including Philadelphia, Denver, Los Angeles and Houston.

Philadelphia is counting on a new spirit and a new offense to carry it to the title, on the theory that Bobby Jones will complement Julius Erving better than George McGinnis did.

Watson Posts Impressive Victory

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) -Tom Watson today had the determined look of a man who's going to be the first to bank $400,000 in a single year just for knocking a little ball into a hole.

Thursday he battered Dale Hayes of South Africa to an 11 and 9 defeat in the first round of the World Match Play tournament on the Wentworth Club's 6,969vard par-73 course. It was the heaviest defeat handed out in the 15-year history of the tournament, it included 11 birdies and an eagle. Midway through the 36-hole match. Watson had fired 10 consecutive holes in a staggering 9-under par.

Watson said afterwards that those 10 holes - from the 15th in the morning round until the sixth in the afternoon were the best I've ever played."

If he wins the four-day tournament,

Watson will collect another $60,000. In today's second round, Australian Graham Marsh, the title-holder, was to play Britain's Nick Faldo, Spaniard Severiano Ballesters was to play New Zealander Simon Owen, Japan's Isao Aoki was to meet South African Gary Player. Watson was to go against American Ray

Apart from Watson's brilliance, the day was a poor one for the Americans, with Watson and Floyd the only two from the United States to advance. Floyd beat PGA champion John Mahaffey 5 and 4. but U.S. Open champion Andy North,

Andy Bean and Lee Elder all lost. North went down 5 and 4 to Owen, the New Zealander who came a close second to Jack Nicklaus in the British Open last summer; Faldo, the 22-year-old British hope, beat Bean 5 and 4, while Isao Aoki

Graham of Australia. Player gradually chipped away at Graham's lead, squared the match at the 31st, then picked up two of the final four holes to win 2 and 1. Marsh had a tough battle against Brian Waites, a British club professional, before winning 2 and 1. Watson's crushing of Hayes started at the very first hole, with a birdie after his 4 iron landed 10 feet short of the pin. From then on, he scarcely put a foot down wrong. A 50-foot putt on the fifth for a birdie-2 put him 4-up, and throughout the round his putts were rolling in on

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices were mixed today as a prime rate increase spread quickly through the banking industry.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had slipped 4.68 on Thursday, edged up 18 to on Thursday, edged up .18 to 896.92 by noontime today. But declines held a 3-2 edge on advances in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Numerous banks across the country joined today in a quarterpoint increase in the prime lending rate to 10 percent, which had been initiated on Thursday by Chase Manhattan of New York.

Chase's decision to raise the basic charge on blue chip loans to the two-digit level for the first time since the 1974-75 recession seemed to take the steam out of a rally in stock prices that had begun Wednesday, when the Dow climbed nearly 10 points.

Brokers noted a general atmosphere of pessimism about the interest rate outlook, because the Federal Reserve's recent program of allowing money rates to rise gradually has yet to accomplish its stated objective of restraining the growth of the money supply. Lockheed was down 1 at 29% after a 1%-point drop Thursday, when the company estimated relatively flat 1978 earnings and said it didn't expect any big increase next

The NYSE's composite index dropped .10 to 58.96. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .35 at 171.80. Volume on the Big Board slowed to 9.04 million shares as of noon-time, against 14.04 million at the same point Thursday. NEW YORK (AP) - New York Stock schange Noon Index:

WilsonUpset By Indians Treatment

By MILLER BONNER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Angered over
"discrimination" against an Indian tribe in his district, Rep. Charles Wilson, DTexas, says he will call for congressional hearings early next year into scandals surrounding the Department of Labor's Comprehensive Employment and Training Act programs.

ing Act programs.
Wilson became incensed after learning that the Alabama-Coushatta Indians weren't receiving "a fair share" of federal job training funds.
Wilson said complaints from the tribe also led The Lufkin News to begin investigating the local CETA sponsor — Indian Employment Training Service Inc. — which has led to a Department of Labor investigation into the $2 million program based in Houston.

"The DOL were apologists for their subcontractors," said Wilson referring to the treatment of the Alabama-Coushattas. "And until they went down and saw the mess on the ground, they just tried to apologize and say it wasn't that bad and it was the fault of my Indians because they couldn't fill out forms like other Indi-

- And the rental of "lavish" office space for IETS in Houston for $1,800 a month. Previously, the agency had paid $250 a month for their headquarters at the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation near Livingtson, reported the Lufkin paper.

Wilson said he called DOL officials earlier this week and asked for an investiga-

DOL spokesman Phil Mason acknowledged Thursday that a four-man team was in Texas looking into the allegations, adding that DOL policy prohibits comment on pending investigations.

Comment came nevertheless from DOL team member Carl Earles, who said he would recommend a "100 percent audit" of IETS "to negate any doubts about the financial structure." Alexander McNabb of DOL's Indian programs section said the automobiles weren't acquired by the proper procedure or catalogued as federal property," and called that fact "a serious omission." Phelan said his directors agreed to the leasing of the Cadillac, but he said he would return the car and that his books would be open to the DOL auditors. "We never intended to do anything but operate a good program, and I think we do this," Phelan said.

Wilson said that he had talked with "a couple" of fellow House members from Florida and Southern California who are also alarmed over the CETA scandals.

"I think the (House) Appropriations Committee (of which he is a member) should hold major hearings into CETA scandals early next year," continued Wilson. "The DOL doesn't have any control over these things because they let them out to subcontractors with very few strings attached...that's there basic problem right there."

Greek Tanker Spills Oil Off Wales

MILFORD HAVEN, Wales (AP) - A punctured Greek tanker that has leaked an oil slick 10 miles long and 6 miles wide, endangering the picturesque South Wales coast, is "listing badly and in danger of sinking," a government official said today.

Remaining oil from 58,829-ton Christos Bitas was being pumped into a vessel alongside, the Esso York, in a bid to lighten and save the tanker, officials said. The ship's hull was pierced when it went aground on reefs near here Thursday while en route from Rotterdam, Holland, to Belfast, Northern Ireland. After almost a tenth of its 245,000 barrels of Iranian crude oil spilled into the empty tanks and stop the leakage, the Welsh Office said. "We think there is a 50-50 chance of saving the tanker if she can be lightsaid Welsh Office spokesman

Elfed Bowen. "The sea is calm but visibility is poor." Nineteen crewmen were rescued from the listing craft today while 13 remained aboard to help try and save the tanker. A ship from Rosslare, Ireland was the first to answer the distress call from the Piraeus-registered vessel. The coast guard said two other rescue boats were heading for the tanker. No casualties were reported after the ship ran aground off Skomer Island, 10 miles from this oil terminal port.

NBC Ready To Rescue Crew On Gilligan's Island

NEW YORK (UPI) - Bob Denver looks older, but what can you expect aft- 21 at 10 p.m., Eastern time. r 15 years on "Gilligan's Island?" NBC has brought back almost the en-

The original "Gilligan" series ran from 1964-67 and its reruns still surface, presumably still earning residuals for Denver in the title role, Alan Hale Jr., as the Glad You Asked That!

Q: What's the latest news out of the Stallone camp with the filming of "Rocky 2"? - Janie W., Philadelphia.

A: The latest is that Sylvester's mother came close to cancelling out of her debut in her son's movie. "I told Sylvester," she told us, "that I cannot play the role of an old bag! I'm not an old bag - and I couldn't be myself. It would be completely out of character for me. Especially since I'm in the beauty business. So guess what?" Jacqueline glowed. "He rewrote the whole part and now it's perfect for me. Not only that, but there's one scene where we scream back and forth at each other like raving maniacs. I prefer that because then I'm in my natural role. We've been screaming at each other for years!" Jackie also revealed that Sly gave his 18-year-old sister Toni a part in his movie. "Toni's been working in Europe as a model and she'll be great in the movie," declares Mama Stallone proudly. "Toni's beautiful, glamorous, classy and bright." Sylvester's brother Frankie and his music will also be part of "Rocky 2" - as he was with the first film.

DENVER (UPI) — U.S. Mint Director Stella B. Hackel understands that Americans do not want to carry bulky silver dollars in their pockets, but she hopes they will change their attitude when the new dollar coin goes into circulation next

A half billion of the coins bearing the image of American suffragette Susan B. Anthony on one side and an Apollo 11 Eagle on the other should be ready for the public by the first week of July 1979. If they become popular — as Mrs. Hackel hopes they do — they could save the government millions of dollars.

At a news conference Wednesday, Mrs. Hackel displayed an enlarged likeness of the new coin and announced the plan to have it in production early next year. None of the coins will be released until 500 million are minted to prevent collectors from hoarding them.

Mrs. Hackel said she and other federal officials will make a major effort to have people accept the coins because they think it is important. Without such action, consumers might continue using dollar bills because "people don't like to change their habits," she said.

The coins actually should be a lot easier for Americans to use. Mrs. Hackel said. They will not wear out as fast as dollar bills, should be easy to carry since they are only slightly larger than a quarter and will be handy for getting change from vending machines which Mrs. Hackel described as "the American way of life."

scribed as "the American way of life."

The cost of minting each new dollar will be 3 cents and it will last an estimated 15 years. Dollar bills are produced at a cost of 1.8 cents apiece, but can be kept in circulation only about 18 months.

If the coins replace half the bills now in circulation, it could result in immediate savings of $20 million, Mrs. Hackel said. She said the current demand on $1 bills is so great that unless it is replaced by the new coin, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing will have to undergo a $100 million expansion.

Mrs. Hackel, former Vermont treasurer who was appointed to the federal post last year by President Carter, said minting of the new coin will begin in January with Denver and Philadelphia expected to bear the largest share of the production. The exact production schedule has not been determined.

"We want it to be a circulating coin," Mrs. Hackel stressed. "We don't want it to be a token coin."

The current silver dollar has "never enjoyed widespread circulation," she said, because it is "too heavy and too bulky." The new coin will be only 9 percent greater in diameter than a quarter and only 43 percent heavier.

The new coin also has the support of most vending machine operators who realize that a $1 coin will be needed in the next few years because of inflation, she

Motel Safety Steps Urged

WASHINGTON — You may make the effort to protect your home against thefts, but traveling can also present a problem to your belongings.

William G. Cox of Holiday Inns reports that the biggest problem is getting travelers to use the services offered by hotels and motels.

"If people would use the security chain and dead bolts on the hotel room doors a thief couldn't use a plastic card or knife to unlock the door," Cox pointed out Cox adds that if you return to your hotel room and suspect someone is inside, don't go in! Close the door quietly and contact the front desk or the hotel security staff.

Here are some traveling security aggestions provided by American Express Co.

Don't leave valuables in your car. A visible suitcase can be a temptation to a thiel, and most CBs and tape decks also can be removed from the auto.

--You can ask the hotel to double lock or emergency lock your door while you are out. This deadbolts the door from the outside.

-Never leave money, charge cards or travelers checks in your room. Either carry them or leave them in the hotel safe.

—Use the safety deposit boxes available in many hotel for valuables such as jewelry, passport, checkbook, extra money and so forth.

-Be aware of who is in the hallway watching the rooms and if anything seems suspicious report it to the desk.

-If not familiar with the town, check the desk so you can avoid high crime areas.

—Use the peephole on your door to identify visitors, and when inside make sure your door is double locked and the

ause Of Power Loss Studied

COCOA, Fla. (AP) - Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California deny a published report here that space agency officials believe a "killer satellite" may have knocked out power in an ocean research satellite as it flew over the Soviet Union.

In Thursday's edition, the newspaper TODAY said the "killer satellite" theory was one of several discussed by scientists trying to learn why they lost radio contact with the Seasat-A satellite Monday.

The newspaper quoted Walter McCand-less, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manager for the Seasat program, as saying "we've had a thought or two about" the possibility of an aggressor satellite rendering the U.S. craft

But in Pasadena, Calif., Gene Giberson, the Seasat project manager, said a killer satellite never came up in discussions on the project. He said it's most likely that a short circuit caused the power loss.

"Those of us directly involved trying to understand what happened have focused on data we have viewed," Giberson said. We have not discussed the theory (killer satellite) on the project.

The evidence just supports the very straightforward idea of a short circuit in the on-board power system," he said. 'No one directly associated with conduct of project has considered the theory."

The newspaper also quoted McCandless as saying that "the massive damage we have sustained to the spacecraft leaves us in a position that we don't know whether we caused it internally or if it was caused by an external force. According to TODAY, McCandless

The Soviet Union has been upset over Seasat's operation for some time, unidentified NASA sources told the newspaper, possibly because the satellite has the capability of "seeing" nearly a mile beneath the ocean's surface.

The newspaper also said its sources said U.S. Navy officials had been editing data received from the satellite before

Alaska Governor Says Feds Holding Land

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond says the federal government is unjustly holding about 70 million acres of land needed by Alaska for agricultural and industrial development.

Hammond told the San Francisco Press Club Wednesday that the land is part of 104 million acres promised to Alaska when the area was granted statehood in 1959. The governor is touring the West Coast seeking support for the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, a bill which would release the land, now set aside for national parks.

Lubbock-Avalanche Journal

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A Nashville record firm said Wednesday it will not continue to manufacture and sell a recording claimed to be the first ever made by the late Elvis Presley.

Hal Freeman of Cin-Kay Records made the announcement after a temporary restraining order had been issued against distribution and production of a record entitled "Tell Me Pretty Baby."

Freeman and Andrew Lee Jackson, a Dallas record promoter, had claimed that the disc was made by Presley in Phoenix, Ariz., in 1954, before the rock star signed his first recording contract with Sun Records in Memphis.

Davidson County Chancery Court C. Allen High granted the order requested by Presley's father, Vernon Presley, and RCA records.

The elder Presley submitted to the court an affidavit saying that his son had not been in Phoenix at the time the recording was said to have been made.

The affidavit also said that Presley did no entertaining of any kind "except in school or church" prior to the Sun contract signed in mid-1954.

New Boeing Jetliner Provides More Space

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — First class passengers will sit six abreast in three pairs in the Boeing Co.'s new 767 twin-ai-sle ietliner.

The firm unveiled a mockup of the 200-seat airliner's interior this week. The plans call for tourist class passengers to sit seven abreast, two-three-two. Boeing says the tourist class seats are about one inch wider than those on standard airliners. Boeing announced plans for the 767 last July.
