'Little toy trains' didn't keep him on track

By KENNETH FREED and KEN HANSEN
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Running toy trains apparently was not satisfying enough for Henry Wendell, so he decided to try the real thing. He landed in jail Sunday for grand theft locomotive.

The 31-year-old North Hollywood man, described as having "a hangup over trains," was arrested near Saugus, north-west of Los Angeles, for switching a switch engine and taking it on a 25-mile joyride.

According to sheriff's officers, Wendell stole keys to the Southern Pacific Railroad locomotive and to some switchboxes and took the engine from the San Fernando depot at about 8 a.m.

He was running free and undetected on the Southern Pacific's main line until he got to the Saugus depot about an hour later. There a shocked telegrapher, Dale Van Camp, saw an engine that shouldn't have been there.

Van Camp futilely signaled Wendell to stop and then called the sheriff. A patrol car quickly caught up with the engine, only to see it switch to a spur line.

But Wendell ran out of track after a mile or so and backed the engine back to the main line. He was trying to switch onto the main track when the sheriff nailed him.

After questioning Wendell, Sgt. Lee Andresen said of the suspect: "He certainly does have a hangup over trains."

Andresen noted that Wendell has a library on trains and a collection of toy engines, cars and cabooses. Wendell apparently learned how to start and run railroad locomotives from his books, since he has had no experience operating them. No experience, that is, excepting a previous joyride on another Southern Pacific engine. Sheriff's officers said Wendell told them that he saw a switch engine from the same San Fernando yards a week earlier.

That time he stopped short of Saugus and drove the locomotive back to the depot without being detected.

Authorities said that Wendell appeared to be quite confident that he could go anywhere he wanted to with the engine, and that he seemed to know railroad regulations.

He told them he knew enough to take the engine onto a spur line if he saw a yellow light warning of an oncoming train.

He also turned on a revolving red light to warn any other engine that he was on the track, and he knew how to operate the track switchboxes.

He also seemed to be aware of (Continued on Page 2A)

'Cracks' appearing in peace blueprint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cracks began to appear today in the fragile structure of Mideast peace fashioned at Camp David, as Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed I. Kamel resigned and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin differed with U.S. officials about Israel's right to put new settlements on the West Bank.

Reports of Kamel's resignation were confirmed by knowledgeable American officials, who expressed fear it was an indication that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat could not sell the agreement to the Arab world.

Kamel became foreign minister after Ismail Fahmy resigned last year in protest of Sadat's initial peace overture to Israel.

Begin, speaking in Hebrew to an audience limited to Israeli reporters, cast more doubt on the durability of the agreement when he said Israel had made no commitment to establish no new settlements on the West Bank during the five-year transition period envisaged by the agreement.

After Begin, Sadat and President Carter signed the agreement Sunday night. American officials told reporters that Israel had committed itself to establishing no new settlements during the negotiations for Palestinian autonomy in the region.

There was no immediate explanation of the apparent discrepancy between Begin's version of the agreement and that of the U.S. officials.

Begin also told the Israeli press that Israel planned to maintain a military presence in the West Bank area even after the transition period to insure Israeli security.

He also disclosed that the United States had promised to build Israel two new airbases in the Negev Desert to replace those in the Sinai being returned to Egyptian control.

Meanwhile, Carter, claiming success "far beyond any expectations," plans to solicit support from Congress for the peace framework he signed with Begin and Sadat.

Carter was to address Congress tonight in joint session at 8 p.m. EDT. The ABC, NBC and CBS networks all said they would televise the speech live.

Sadat met separately this morning at the Egyptian embassy with Vice President Walter F. Mondale, former Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

At an emotion-packed White House ceremony, Carter joined Begin and President Sadat in formally adopting a wide-ranging accord that Carter said "will provide that Israel will live in peace within secure borders."

Also initialed was a companion document that envisions the negotiation of a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel within three months.

The summit agreements won immediate and nearly unanimous praise from Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill. Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., chairman of the Middle East subcommittee, called them "an excellent beginning."

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-

Wash., one of a small group of senators invited to the White House for the signing ceremony, expressed concern over possible criticism from Egypt's enemies who he said "will do everything they can to torpedo" the accords.

Kissinger, who made numerous trips to the Middle East in search of a peace agreement during the Nixon and Ford administrations, said today that the advances were so great that the situation in the region has changed for the better, no matter what happens in the coming months.

Oil group plans membership drive

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association, in an attempt to exert a greater influence over federal decisions which affect oil industry interests in West Texas and Southeast New Mexico, today announced plans for a major membership drive.

At the same time, PBPA President Al Dillard warned that unless the Permian Basin takes a greater interest in decisions being made in Washington, D.C., policies such as the current energy bill before Congress may threaten to ruin the region's economy.

The association plans for a membership of more than 1,000 persons by the end of the year and hopes to increase its membership to more than 2,000 within two years in what it considers to be its most extensive membership drive since the organization was founded in 1961.

Membership is comprised primarily of oil industry people, but is open to anyone who makes a living directly or indirectly from oil and gas, according to a spokesman.

The association plans to initiate its membership drive in Midland Tuesday with a goal of recruiting between 200 and 300 persons in the Tall City area.

"This must be the year of turn around because Washington will not go away," said Dillard during a press briefing in the Midland-Odessa Symphony Building today.

"More than ever before, policies and regulations determined in Washington are affecting the economic well-being of the Permian Basin."

Dillard said the price of oil and gas is the primary factor accounting for prosperity, or lack of it, in the Permian Basin.

"The Permian Basin has seen a series of booms and busts, and each instance of the boom or bust was directly tied to the price of oil and gas, with the federal government usually setting the price for us," Dillard said.

"At one time, when the federal government allowed cheap foreign imports to knock the bottom out of the domestic market, you could buy a two-bedroom house in Midland for $1,000. Today with a boom going on, that same house sells for over $20,000."

PBPA membership chairman Ben Alexander of Hobbs said he hopes the membership drive will give the Permian Basin the stature in Washington commensurate with its importance in the production of oil and gas.

"This area of Texas and New Mexico produces almost 25 percent of the nation's energy, but we certainly

Man killed in accident

A Midland man was killed in a one-vehicle accident Sunday morning about 24 miles north of Midland, said a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety.

Michael Thomas Ellison, 24, of 4508 Pasadena Drive was declared dead at the scene by Peace Justice M.L. Gibson of Stanton, said officers.

Authorities said Ellison apparently was driving a 1976 Buick south on Texas 349 when he lost control. He was thrown from the vehicle.

Trooper Wade Turner of Stanton and Gibson were still investigating the accident early today, said officials.

Responsibility: It's the name of Midland firefighters' game

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

Imagine each day you went to work that you were responsible for the lives and property of 3,000 people in your community.

Then imagine that you were responsible for approximately $50 million worth of property each day on your job.

That responsibility is what Midland City Fire Department personnel keep in mind every single day, according to Fire Chief Raymond Lewis.

It's just another aspect of the responsibility involved in a job which experts describe as "the most dangerous profession in the world."

And there are changes in the job which will require adjustment.

For instance, the days of the old fashioned fireman's pole in Midland are numbered.

Instead, Midland firefighters eventually will scramble to their trucks from single-story stations, according to officials.

In fact, officials said, when Midland firemen move into two new single-story buildings six months to a year from now, the traditional fireman's pole will not be necessary.

Construction on the new Midland Central Fire Station is expected to start in December, according to Deputy Fire Chief James L. Roberts.

The new Central Fire Station will be located in Crier Park and will cost approximately $900,000, said Roberts.

Construction of the new substation, costing approximately $230,000, is expected to be completed in six months, Roberts said.

"We will be closing down the old Central Fire Station and Station No. 4," he noted.

"The new Central Fire Station will be located between the downtown area and Village Shopping Center. We know that the new stations will provide much better coverage of Midland without additional manpower," said Roberts.

"We feel we can reach and serve anywhere in Midland with a response time of three minutes, once we're relocated to these two new buildings," said Roberts.

"We're simply going to do a much better job with what we've got," he added.

What the Midland Fire Department has is 109 highly trained and extremely dedicated men and women, according to Chief Lewis.

Their main job each day of the year is to protect life and property — not only within the city limits, but also inside Midland County, according to officials.

Between 28 and 32 men are on duty 24 hours per day at the stations, awaiting alarms to which they must respond, said Roberts.

"Recommended manning is five to seven men per fire truck nationally," he said. "But our department has two men per truck, sometimes three. Also, six men have been put in ambulance duty without additional manpower."

Roberts admitted sometimes he doesn't feel the city has enough manpower to do the job.

"Where we're going to get hurt is when we have some major emergency which requires two or all three of our ambulances plus a huge fire truck at the same time," he said.

He said the city "is fortunate in that we have some very highly dedicated firemen who respond to fire calls even on their days off."

Firemen spend 24 hours on duty and then have 48 hours off the job.

Roberts recalled a major warehouse fire at Midland Regional Airport several months ago in which 12 to 15 firemen responded. "Both on- and off-duty personnel showed up," he said proudly.

A fireman's life is not all domino games and ping pong.

Roberts said firemen have very specific duties each day, whether or not they respond to a fire or other type emergency.

Between 8:15 and 11:15 a.m. men on duty clean up the station and main-

When life is nonsense, join in!

If life ever gets to the point of the nonsensical, and it does, then just join in the nonsense.

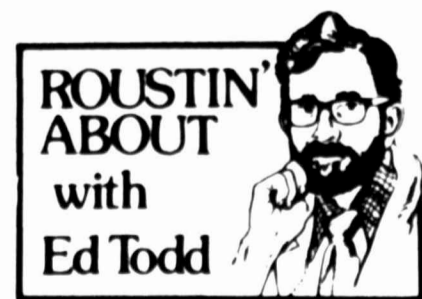

That may not be logical and may not make "good sense," but it's sometimes pragmatic.

Go on an outing, such as a picnic or a hike, and play around, do nothing at all (except munch) and meditate or just lay blank. Occasionally, mind-clearing can be rejuvenating whether or not it solves any problems.

Poet-philosopher George Santayana appreciated the senseless "Nonsense is good only because common sense is so limited."

Poet Robert Frost found much forgiveness for worldly nonsense: "Forgive me my nonsense as I also forgive the nonsense of those who think they talk sense."

Famed courtroom lawyer Clarence Darrow had these satirical words to say of muckraker Lincoln Steffens: "Everything serious that he says is a joke and everything humorous that he says is dead serious."

"The greatest danger to human beings," wrote Gerard Brennan, "is their consciousness of the trivialities of their aims."

And who can argue with the parenthetical comment of Dr. Laurence J. Peter of "Peter Principle" fame: "But ignorance of one's ignorance is the greatest ignorance."

The witty Franklin P. Jones cast a barb on the nonsense of being on time: "The trouble with being punctual is that nobody's there to appreciate it."

The perceptive Somerset Maugham had this to say about people's sometimes dearth of the quality: "People are never so ready to believe you as when you say things in disparage of yourself; and you are never so much annoyed as when they take you at your word."

Max Beerbohm appreciated the trivia: "Good sense about trivialities is better than nonsense about things that matter."

And Allan Goldstein reserved the absurd for the sensible: "Only exceptionally rational men can afford to be absurd."

In that sense, perhaps those who can least afford it are really blessed with the absurd.

Rationality is not always what it appears to be.

DEATHS

Lorenzo Garza

Lorenzo Garza

Mass for Lorenzo Garza, 74, of 400 E. Cedar Ave., was to be said at 4 p.m. today in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

Burial was to be in Fairview Cemetery under direction of Thomas Funeral Home. Rosary was recited Sunday night.

Garza, who for many years was building maintenance foreman at the Wilco Building in downtown Midland, died Friday in a Big Spring hospital.

He was born March 19, 1904, in Mexico, and had lived in San Angelo before he moved to Midland in 1953.

Garza was a veteran of World War II. He was a member of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

The family requests memorials be sent to the Julian Cole Multiple Myeloma Fund, Harrington Cancer Center, 1400 Wallace Blvd., Amarillo, Texas 79106.

Meany plans guidelines attack

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — George Meany is coming to this ocean resort town to blow up a storm that may capsize the Carter administration's new anti-inflation battleship even before it is launched.

The AFL-CIO president planned to fire a bitter salvo today against the use of voluntary guidelines to limit wage and price increases.

Administration sources say those guidelines likely will be a key element of a tougher anti-inflation program being drawn up to replace an unsuccessful program unveiled only last April.

The current voluntary program has asked unions and businesses to hold wage and price boosts to levels below the average increases of the previous two years. But the program has been virtually ignored.

Farber to testify

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber, who was jailed for refusing to turn over notes he took for a series of articles dealing with unexplained deaths at Riverdel Hospital, is expected to take the stand in the murder trial of Dr. Mario Jascalevich.

White collar crime costs U.S. government billions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new report from a congressional watchdog agency estimates that fraud and related white collar crimes against the federal government cost American taxpayers between $2.5 billion and $25 billion each year.

The report by the General Accounting Office was released today as the administration agreed to set up an interagency strike force to investigate the mushrooming scandal at the General Services Administration, the federal government's housekeeping agency.

Announcement of the strike force and release of the report came at a hearing of a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee chaired by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., which was called to obtain a progress report on various investigations of the GSA scandal.

"No one knows the magnitude of fraud against the government," said Elmer B. Staats, head of the GAO. "Department of Justice officials believe that the incidence of fraud in federal programs ranges anywhere from one to 10 percent of the programs' expenditures."

Staats said the programs vulnerable to this fraudulent activity now total about $250 billion annually.

Chiles hailed the decision to establish a strike force on the GSA as "a big step on the road toward prosecuting the wrongdoers both at the GSA and in the private sector who have almost put an end to the day-to-day dealings of the (federal government's) landlord and supplier."

Mexican trip probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House assassinations committee is examining Lee Harvey Oswald's activities during his trip to Mexico City in a futile effort to obtain a visa to visit Cuba.

The committee today focused on questions surrounding Oswald's seven days in Mexico less than two months before he allegedly assassinated President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Conspiracy theorists have suggested that the Mexico City trip was linked in some way to the assassination, perhaps as the occasion of meetings between Oswald and someone who may have hired him to murder the president.

Some also have speculated that Oswald actually may have visited Cuba secretly during the week he supposedly spent in Mexico.

But the Warren Commission said it found no support for such theories and concluded that Oswald killed Kennedy and that he acted alone.

"The commission has no credible evidence that Oswald went to Mexico pursuant to a plan to assassinate President Kennedy, that he received any instructions related to such an action while there, or that he received large sums of money from any source in Mexico," said the commission's final report.

"The commission has found no evidence that Oswald made any flight to Cuba while he was in Mexico," the report said.

'All in Family' sweeps Emmys

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Holocaust," NBC's saga of two German families caught in the Nazi terror, and "All in the Family," a comedy series about America's favorite bigot, won top honors at the 30th Emmy awards Sunday night.

The 9½-hour "Holocaust" miniseries was selected as outstanding limited series and won Emmys for stars Michael Moriarty, the sadistic Nazi major; Meryl Streep, the Christian daughter-in-law of the doomed Weiss family, and Blanche Baker, the Weiss daughter Anna.

The total awards for "Holocaust" came to eight, including two creative arts awards presented at a separate ceremony last week.

The awards were interrupted by a joint announcement at the White House by President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at the conclusion of the 12-day Camp David Mideast summit.

The biggest applause came near the end of the long, four-hour program — which included the interruption — with the award for lead actor in a special to Fred Astaire. The hooper received a standing ovation from the crowd and mumbled, "My gosh, I never dreamed of this."

Astaire, who has won three Emmys as musical star, was named for his performance as the aging husband of Helen Hayes in "A Family Upside Down."

"I'm absolutely delighted with this," said Astaire. "I'm going to get off while I'm still ahead."

Joanne Woodward, the jogging housewife of "See How She Runs," was named outstanding lead actress in a special. The Oscar winner for "The Three Faces of Eve" remarked, "This is such a nice way to come back to television; I started out here 25 years ago."

For the fifth time, the saga of "All in the Family," the eight-year-old CBS comedy series about Archie Bunker and family, was named outstanding comedy series by the academy. Stars Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton were hailed outstanding lead performers in a comedy series for a third time.

The awards were interrupted by a joint announcement at the White House by President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at the conclusion of the 12-day Camp David Mideast summit.

Rob Reiner, the liberal-minded "meathead" of the show, won his second Emmy for supporting actor. Awards also went to director Paul Bogart and writers Bob Weiskopf, Bob Schiller, Barry Harman and Harve Brosten.

The only winner to break the "All in the Family" comedy sweep was Juliet Kavner, Brenda Morgenstern of "Rhoda," who was selected best supporting actress in a comedy series.

The multiple awards to "All in the Family" evoked an outpouring of thanks to everyone connected with that show, and Miss Stapleton cited the gift of "artistic freedom from the day one" which the show's creators were accorded.

Reiner, who will not be returning as a regular in the oncoming ninth season, pointed out that the cast is leaving Saturday for Washington, where Archie and Edith Bunker's favorite chairs will be presented to the Smithsonian Institution. The "All in the Family" crew will also be greeted by President Carter in the Oval Office of the White House, Reiner said.

The awards were a triumph for Norman Lear, who helped change the face of TV comedy with "All in the Family." Lear opened the show with a blast at NBC and ABC for mounting its heaviest programming against CBS' Emmy telecast.

Such competition "cannot be in the best interests of the industry, and it certainly isn't in the public's interest," Lear said.

To oppose the CBS program (the networks rotate in presenting the Emmys), NBC counter-programmed with "Dumbo" and "King Kong" and ABC debuted its space epic "Battlestar Galactica." The displeased CBS pushed the Emmy start a half-hour earlier, but the actual broadcast time was dependent on the conclusion of an earlier pro football telecast.

Trustees plan review

Members of the Midland County Hospital District Board of Trustees will review photographs for the District's annual report at their regular meeting Wednesday at 12:30 p.m.

Trustees also will hear reports from the finance, operations, special projects and building committees and a report from the advisory committee from George Veloz.

Merit scholar named

Ashley Hulsey, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Sam B. Hulsey, has been named a National Merit Scholarship semi-finalist.

Miss Hulsey, who transferred from Harpeth Hall School in Nashville, Tenn., to Midland High School in February, is a senior.

In Nashville, she was a member of the annual staff and a high school sorority. Here, she is an honor roll student and a member of the Pack Backers pep squad and Young Life.

Hill shows strength at party caucus

By TOM DeCOLA
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Gubernatorial candidate John Hill demonstrated his strong hold on the Democratic party over the weekend during a smooth state convention that handed him the platform he wanted and created a minimum of fuss.

Hill wanted Houston's Billy Goldberg as party chairman, and delegates gave him his man without opposition. Early predictions that the convention would give him a platform he could be comfortable with came true as Hill's hand-written version sailed through easily.

Goldberg replaces Calvin Guest as chairman, and he left no doubt about who was responsible.

"I am most grateful to John and Bitsy Hill for deciding I was the one who should have this job," Goldberg told the assembly. Later, Goldberg attacked Republican spending policies. "They are openly, brazenly telling the people of Texas... that they are committed to spending $10 million," Goldberg said.

The GOP slate includes Dallas' Bill Clements for governor and Jim Baker against Democrat Mark White for attorney general. The other spotlight race in November will be between republican Sen.

John Tower and Rep. Bob Krueger for Tower's Senate seat.

Hill's strong influence came up short only once in a vote that also showed conservatives that they packed minimal clout.

Delegates shouted for and received a tedious, county-by-county roll call vote on a liberal-backed resolution supporting collective bargaining rights for public employees, an issue proposed by Hill. It passed easily, but Hill said later he would not be bound by it.

Conservative forces put up one more fight they considered a test of rural strength within the party, running Mrs. Billie Veach of Burnet against Fort Worth's Deryl Davis for vice chairman. That post-traditionally goes to a minority woman. Mrs. Davis is a black and was the recipient of a series of seconding speeches. She won easily, and liberal candidate Richard Perkins of Dallas then beat conservative Glyn Day of Odessa on a standing vote.

The convention heard resolutions for the first time in several years, and some caused floor flurries late in the proceedings.

A resolution to repeal Section 21.06 of the Texas Penal Code produced several speeches.

Eight MMH nurses pass state boards

Eight nurses at Midland Memorial Hospital were notified last week of successfully completing the State Board of Nurse Examiners written examination, MMH administrator Wayne E. Ulrich reported.

"This means that these eight nurses are now registered nurses," Ulrich said. "We are pleased to have them on our staff."

He noted that six of the women were graduated from the professional nursing curriculum at Odessa College. One, Susie Hubbard, took her training at West Texas University in Canyon, and one, Susan Jewell, trained in England.

The other newly designated RNs at Midland Memorial include Felicia Floyd, Kathy Fortner, Betty McMillan, Dorothy Thompson, Sharon Yorek and Sue Meloy.

National Good Neighbor Day has been proclaimed for Sept. 24. This is a good way to develop values and understanding, and provides, also, an excellent opportunity for communities to work toward better relationships among their citizens, according to the Good Neighbor Day Foundation.

National Good Neighbor Day is non-political, non-sectarian and non-profit and is endorsed by such education organizations as the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the National PTA, as well as many leading educators, students and communities who have discovered the good feeling which comes from sharing of one's time with others, said R. C. Mattson, national coordinator for the special day.

The special day has been proclaimed by Presidents Nixon and Ford and officials are confident President Carter will carry it on. The Foundation was founded in May 1976.

Nicole, at 21 months, was the youngest horseback rider in the parade.

For those who do not know what the Oatmeal Day parade is, here is an explanation. It is the first one held, and was sponsored by the Three-Minute Brand Oatmeal Co. because six miles from Bertram is a little town called Oatmeal that is on the map but has no population. There are no businesses in Oatmeal, but there is a schoolhouse. The company is trying to revive the town of Oatmeal.

The three-day event featured an Old Lady Queen, Miss Oatmeal, Tiny Tot Queen, a cow chip throwing contest and others. Turner was in charge of the contest.

Films from the event will be shown on the Eyes of Texas and the Johnny Carson show.

Miss Harissis spent a week with her grandparents, who brought her home to Midland and spent a few days.

Auto jacks versatile

By AL CARRELL

Jerold O. Page is a leading graphics designer and also an accomplished home craftsman. Jerry showed me how he uses a scissors-type auto jack as a clamp. The jack can exert an awful lot of pressure against a good-sized area. There are many ways to use this idea. You just have to have the force of the jack wedged against stable surfaces such as walls or part of the bench or stops clamped to the bench. There are also some instances where you might be able to use a bumper jack for clamping, and I know you can use one to help pull posts out of the ground. They could be considered jacks-of-all-trades, I guess. But don't make the mistake of taking the one out of the trunk and leaving it, because if you do, you'll be sure to have a flat tire the next day.

from the closet wall behind the hanging clothes and totally out of the way. Not only is this a space-saver, but it also has cut down on the scratches the leaves get when on the floor. — Miss A. O.

A SUPER HINT — A Saturday mechanic friend of mine showed me a neat trick he uses. He has a magnetic bar made for the kitchen and designed to hold knives. My friend takes it with him when he rolls his creeper under the car. The bar attaches itself to metal under the car and also magnetically holds wrenches and other tools. He likes this one because the tools are where he can easily look up and see them whereas he used to have to feel around on the garage floor for what he wanted.

Dear Super:

Living in an apartment often presents a space problem. Here's how we solve the problem of storing the bulky leaves for our dining room table. We used to lean them against the wall in a closet, but we needed the floor space for other things. I attached a picture hanger hook to the back of each leaf, and they now hang

DEAR ABBY

Need: Man to brighten dull life

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: To get right down to the nitty-gritty, how does a reasonably intelligent, fairly attractive 26-year-old single woman meet men? I'm not frantically searching for a husband—or even a "meaningful relationship"—but I wouldn't be adverse to either.

I don't want a man who's interested only in a one-night stand, but it would be nice to connect with a guy who shares some of my interests and could brighten up my dull, boring life. (I'm a 9-to-5 office worker.) Any ideas?—ROBIN

DEAR ROBIN: I received no less than 100 letters this week asking the same question, so I'll kill 100 "Robins" with one stone and proffer the following: The best way to meet decent men is through one's work, church, friends or interests—out in the mainstream of life. And no matter how lonely you are, avoid those lonely hearts clubs, singles bars, and the phony computer dating services.

A girl who's into politics can make many new and interesting friends while gathering names for a petition, registering voters, or working on a campaign.

Don't overlook adult education classes in the evening—particularly subjects that appeal to men. (Scuba diving, aeronautics, auto mechanics, sailing.) You may find that you're the only woman in a class of 30 men. (Whoopie!!!!)

Sports offer opportunities galore. If you're not keen on outdoor sports, try indoor sports. How about pool or billiards? If you live in a singles apartment with a pool table, pick up the cue. (Ha!) If you don't live in a singles apartment, visit a friend who does. Men hang around good pool players. (They even hang around poor ones so they can teach them. Either way, you can't lose.)

And last but not least—travel. Consider one of those affordable group tours. Get out and see the world, and the world will see YOU!

Above all, don't play games. If you find someone attractive, don't worry about who makes the first move. It's a whole new world out there. Help yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I know that most small boys have a natural aversion to soap and water, but at what age is a boy supposed to start keeping himself reasonably clean?

I have a son, 13, and you wouldn't believe how he detests soap and water. And to top it off, he doesn't even want to wear socks. The answer I get is, "None of the guys wear socks anymore, Mom!"

When he comes home from school, grimy and sweaty, and I tell him to shower before supper, he tells me he had a shower in gym, so he doesn't have to shower at home. And he climbs into bed at night, exhausted, with dirty hair and filthy feet. You should see the bed sheets! You would think he had been working in the coal mines. And he sleeps until the last minute in the morning, so he's too rushed to shower then. Please, Abby, how can I clean up this kid? I don't know how much longer I can take it.—ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS FAN

DEAR FAN: Cleanliness should not be optional. It should be mandatory, and if your son, at age 13, does not keep himself reasonably clean, offer to GIVE him a bath. And when you start undressing him, I'll bet he moves!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOVES LOVING": Those who love deeply never grow old; they may die of old age, but they die young.

The keys looked worse than a grizzly bear's teeth. I got an estimate on the reconditioning of these and decided we might just learn to like a great looking piano with dirty teeth. However, a neighbor suggested a trick to try. I used a rag dipped into toothpaste and rubbed each key. Another damp rag removed the toothpaste (after I'd rubbed my fingers to the bone). It didn't completely clean them, but they look almost new. We saved a lot of loot, and all the family pitched in on the rubbing, so it was a good family project. I understand from the piano tuner that there are some key problems this won't cure, but it worked on ours. — D. E.

And if you use the fluoride type, will it prevent cavities?

QUICK ANSWERS FOR MARRIED HANDYPERSONS: Q: Even though I used a paint that was supposed to be a mildew retardant type, this fungus grew right through the new paint. How come?

A: You have to kill existing mildew BEFORE you paint. The mildewicide in a paint will only help to prevent future growth and doesn't kill. Mix two-thirds cup trisodium phosphate (TSP), one-third cup powdered detergent (non-ammoniated) and a quart of liquid laundry bleach into enough warm water to make a gallon. Scrub the fungus with this until it's gone. Rinse it, and when it's dry, you can paint.

Dried bean favorite in many nations

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

For thousands of years, man has made dried beans, peas and other legumes part of his diet in dishes that range from black beans and rice, the mainstay of Brazilian field hands, to that French classic, cassoulet.

There is probably no food as hardy as the dried bean. They can be stored for months, even years, and still be edible. They also keep well after cooking.

There are more than a score of bean varieties fit for drying and a good selection can be found in your supermarket any time of year.

Many dried beans are ground into flour and used as protein supplement for allergy diets. In the Far East these flours are often a key part of the daily diet.

Dried beans assume the flavor of the liquid they are cooked in. So those simmered in chicken or beef broth or game stock are more tasty than those cooked in plain water.

This dried legume reaches its pinnacle in that legendary stew of beans and meats known as cassoulet, and the French make a fascinating variety.

Stolen cars buy drugs across Mexican border

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a five-part series on vehicle theft — the scope of the problem in the Permian Basin and ways to reduce the likelihood of your car being stolen. Part 3 will expand upon the "Mexican Connection" of auto theft and drug smuggling, and examine international, federal and state efforts to stop it.

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

A stolen car can mean more than financial loss and inconvenience for its owner — it may become part of a drug transaction in Mexico.

In a year's time, the situation has not changed. In fact, many West Texas lawmen said it has become worse.

Many four-wheel drive pickup trucks stolen from the Midland-Odessa area in recent years have turned out to be the Permian Basin connection to incoming drug traffic from Mexico.

Nobody really knows for sure how many vehicles and people are involved in truck-drug transactions, but most West Texas law enforcement officials agree it has become a staggering problem for large communities located near the border.

C. C. BENSON, manager of the National Automobile Theft Bureau's Southwestern Division in Dallas, said a year ago hundreds of vehicles from the Permian Basin probably have found their way south of the border through small theft rings.

A year ago, Benson said the state lost at least 3,000 to 5,000 vehicles — maybe twice this number or more — each year in Mexico. Perhaps 2,500 of these vehicles were involved in drug traffic, he said.

Now, he said, he still stands by these figures. "More of these vehicles are being stolen and less are being recovered now. Pickups and four-wheel drive vehicles have a high resale value, and down in Mexico's rough country they need heavy duty transportation," he added.

"One of the reasons pickup truck thefts are increasing is because in Texas ownership of these vehicles has been growing," he said.

One official has said stolen vehicles which end up in Mexico result in about a $9 million loss for insurance companies each year.

Besides contributing to higher insurance rates, the stolen vehicle bound for Mexico also results in greater mobility for Mexican drug peddlers, a steady flow of drugs into America and continued crime, according to several Texas lawmen.

"IT'S THE SAME OLD story," said a Permian Basin Department of Public Safety narcotics officer. "Most of the stolen pickups and four-wheel drive vehicles taken in West Texas end up in Mexico in exchange for drugs."

"I've heard that anywhere from one to two ounces of heroin can be supplied in exchange for a four-wheel drive vehicle or pickup down there," he added.

He said American lawmen have had "pretty good" cooperation among Mexican authorities in dealing with the problem. "A great majority of cars stolen are taken from dealerships," he added.

A Midland-based federal Drug Enforcement Administration official agreed many Permian Basin stolen vehicles, mainly pickups and four-wheel drive, end up in Mexico in exchange for drugs.

"We've heard that some individuals receive so many ounces of heroin or certain amounts of other drugs in exchange for such vehicles," he said.

He also said many Mexican citizens legitimately buy American vehicles and drive them across the border.

However, he added, "I'm quite sure that a lot of pickup trucks stolen in Texas wind up in Mexico. Some guys get a 'mule,' someone to steal the vehicle and pick up the drugs in Mexico, which are then brought back to the United States."

IF ANYONE GETS CAUGHT, it's usually the car thief, or "mule," according to authorities. This way, leaders of many drug trafficking rings remain free, authorities said.

Permian Basin lawmen said such individuals may test drive vehicles on car dealership lots. Such persons may then go to locksmiths and have duplicate keys made of vehicles to be used in drug transactions.

When nobody is around late at night the "mule" then returns to the car lot with the key and drives away in the vehicle.

He usually will be followed by two vehicles, said authorities. One car is equipped with a CB radio, and the driver warns of law enforcement officials in the area.

The other car goes along to pick up the drugs.

OJINAGA, MEXICO, is the popular connection point for such vehicles, according to officials.

West Texas lawmen constantly are investigating and sometimes recovering vehicles involved in such transactions.

"Everybody's been looking for them," said Rick Thompson, Presidio County Sheriff. "I think the auto dealers are to blame for (the theft of) a lot of the vehicles we recover which were stolen," he said.

Thompson complained that many dealers do not take precautions to make sure that someone does not have access to keys of vehicles on their car lots. "And there are very few fences around such dealerships," he said.

In 1977, Thompson and his four-person department seized 34 vehicles. A year ago, he and his men were responsible for breaking up 15 auto theft rings operating along the border.

At that time he said, "I think we're catching about 10 percent of the stolen vehicles going into Mexico, if we're lucky. If we could catch 10 percent of the dope coming across, I'd say we were lucky."

THOMPSON SAID HE has not recovered nearly as many vehicles this year as last year. However, he credited the recovery of stolen vehicle success he has had to "cooperative efforts of Mexican lawmen."

He cited the recent example of the recovery of a 1978 pickup south of Ojinaga, Mexico, after officials there got in touch with him. Thompson said the truck was returned to a San Angelo man recently.

He said he doesn't know what can be done to stop such thefts. He does know he and his men, and other authorities, work many hours investigating these crimes.

"The odds are in favor of the auto thief," he said. "They have access to new four-wheel drive vehicles, and they test drive them, make duplicates of the keys and drive the property off," he said.

THOMPSON ALSO SAID such thieves see what kind of ignition system an auto has, then they buy a whole new ignition system similar to it complete with keys. Using this equipment, thieves can drive away in stolen vehicles, he said.

"It takes an inexperienced person maybe three minutes to start a car and steal it," he said. He said both organized rings and individuals are involved. His outlook? "There will always be plenty of crooks for everyone to catch," he said.

Sheriff Jack McDaniel of Brewster County said he and his staff "catch some of these car thieves once in a while."

However, the Alpine-based lawman said the number of vehicles stolen from the Midland-Odessa area has steadily increased. "They're stealing them from all over the Midland-Odessa area, including Kermit, Andrews and Monahans," he said. "I believe it's been increasing."

He said West Texas authorities have recovered "quite a few vehicles" through joint efforts. But, he said, he and his staff have recovered only four or five so far this year.

He, too, believes auto thefts and narcotics trafficking are interrelated.

"REGARDLESS OF VALUE, the thief who drives a stolen vehicle down to Mexico makes a profit," he said. "Something stolen is traded for something of value."

He sees the auto theft-drug smuggling trend as a continuing growing problem, despite efforts to stop it.

"It's just like drug traffic, it's a problem that's increasing each year," he said.

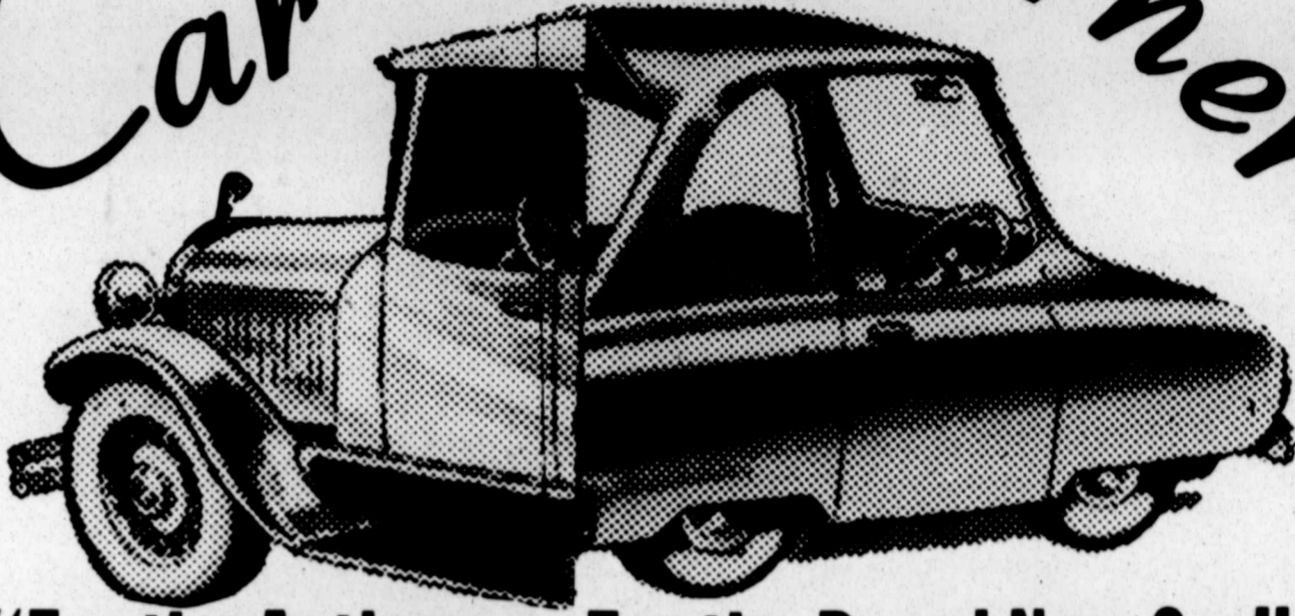

Vehicles getting as far as the Presidio Port of Entry often are allowed to go right through, according to West Texas lawmen.

A pickup truck valued at $7,000 which is disposed of across the border, where recovery is difficult at best, will bring enough heroin or other hard narcotics to earn up to $12,000 in street sales, according to authorities.

The merging of major highways through a pass in both Culberson and Hudspeth Counties has allowed local lawmen there to make more stolen vehicle recoveries than other areas, according to McDaniel.

"Traffic must pass through there and that makes it an easier situation," he explained.

Taxidermist works at home

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 8-foot Alaskan brown bear in Max Shipley's home is a little like a Sherman tank.

Even if it doesn't move or make noise, it's awfully hard to ignore. That is, unless you've seen the pouncing African lion in his garage.

Both beasts are beyond causing harm. Shipley is a taxidermist.

It's an art he admired as a child. In high school he sent away for a correspondence course on taxidermy.

It set his career.

The first thing he mounted was a pigeon. Since then the list of animals he has worked on might make Noah envious. There have been hundreds of deer, penguins, mountain sheep, lions, tigers, gazelles, moose, bears and birds.

He doesn't take every job offered him. He won't mount pets.

"We can't make them look the same as the owner remembers them," he said.

Shipley, a short man with glasses, who speaks softly, chuckled as he told about one of the weirdest jobs he was asked to do. A man called to say he had killed a bobcat and wanted it mounted. When the hunter arrived, Shipley saw that the man had "somebody's big Angora cat."

But it's deer that really keep the wolves from his door. Mounting deer hunters' trophies is a major part of business. His son, Max Eugene, who works with him, has done all the deer and antelope for the last 12 years, Shipley said.

When he receives an animal, Shipley immediately ships the skin to Colorado to be tanned.

Eric and Kristan Hansen are having great fun getting acquainted with the charming toys at Merry Go Round, 2301 W. Michigan.

Merry Go Round new idea in Midland

It's hard to find, but it's worth it. Located where the Needle Art Shop used to be, at 2301 W. Michigan, Merry Go Round is a store that specializes in used toys. The great thing here is that your child can bring in his outgrown toys and start his own "account"! He'll get 50% of the price when a toy is sold and can pick up a check after the fifth of the month for all toys sold during the previous month. Owners Charlene Kullman and Catherine Smith, who started Merry Go Round in June of this year, accept any toys in good condition (preferably clean) on consignment, a recondition them as needed, and then offer them for sale at a price that is agreed upon with the cosignor. "Like new" toys go for 30% off list price and prices go down from there. Merry Go Round also carries a selection of new hand-crafted toys, none of them very expensive. The owners mark up the price only one-third, unlike the usual 100%.

New mothers will like their selection of baby items: cribs, car seats, high chairs, strollers, all in excellent condition and reasonably priced. Among the used toys are some good metal adjustable roller skates, $3; a Weebles Tree House, $6.80; a 1000 piece puzzle, 90 cents; and even a European style baby swing, $17.50.

Eric's and Kristan's mother, Diane Hansen, says that Merry Go Round has the best selection of children's books in Midland. For those who cannot find what they want, the store has request list with scores of items written on file cards. Merry Go Round is also a great place to find the sort of yesteryear items that are becoming expensive in nostalgia shops, such as a Playskool Parking Garage with wood cars.

New building to replace theater of O'Neill fame

By JOHN J. MULLINS

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., (AP) — A New England-wide architectural competition is under way to replace the burned-out Provincetown Playhouse made famous by Eugene O'Neill.

The replacement, a few yards from the edge of the ocean on narrow Gosnold Street, will cost an estimated $1 million and will be more than a theater.

Plans call for a 400- to 450-seat theater, nearly three times the size of the burned-out one, and a large rehearsal area that can also be used for new plays and works in progress, said Adele Heller, who with her husband, Lester, owned the theater destroyed in March 1970.

The building will also house a library, theater study-center and a museum to replace the Eugene O'Neill Theater Museum that was opened by the Hellers in 1974 in a small building charred in the fire.

"Eventually we will microfilm a lot of material about O'Neill and the Provincetown Players," Mrs. Heller said. "It really will be a place where scholars can come as well as tourists."

"We are thinking of children's plays, poetry and dance. We want constant use during the summer of things that we develop."

But other groups may use the facility in winter. "What we want to do is invite responsible groups so it would have year-round use," she added.

The architectural competition to design the building is financed by a $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Fast service at B&B Appliance

B&B Appliances, 1009 N. Midkiff, is the place to go with vacuum cleaners and coffee makers which are not working properly. Harold Ervin, owner of the shop, sells only service and the service he sells is the best. Mr. Ervin is an expert in his field, and the only service charge he makes is for work actually done. He has been repairing Hoovers in Midland for twenty-five years, but is knowledgeable about all makes and models. Many a vacuum is sold at garage sales for little or nothing which could be made good as new for a nominal sum at B&B Appliance.

The new coffee makers, including Mr. Coffee, West Bend, and Norelco can be repaired at B&B Appliance. If yours is not working, take it to 1009 N. Midkiff and let Ervin look at it. He will tell you frankly what needs to be done and how much it will cost.

Fast and honest repair service on vacuum cleaners and coffee makers is routine at B&B Appliance Service. Come by 1009 N. Midkiff with all your needs in this line.

Mr. Harold G. Ervin is a man who knows vacuums and filter coffee makers "inside and out". He can fix them, fast and properly, and at a reasonable price. B&B Appliance, 1009 N. Midkiff.

68-year-old log flume still used

UNDERWOOD, Wash. (AP) — It is probably the last of its kind operating in the West — and company officials say it's becoming more valuable every day.

It is the Broughton Lumber Co.'s log flume, built more than 60 years ago.

The flume is a 9-mile wooden chute using water from the Little White Salmon river to shoot rough-sawn lumber from the company's Willard sawmill to its finishing and shipping plant at the railroad stop of Hood, near Underwood.

Moving at slightly more than 9 miles an hour, lumber travels the downhill course in about 55 minutes.

The flume carries 130,000 to 150,000 board-feet of wood daily — enough to build a couple of dozen homes.

The flume is a penny-pincher. The company saves the cost of using huge trucks to haul the lumber on 13 miles of winding road.

"With energy-saving being so important, the flume becomes more valuable every day," says Don vanDeventer, plant superintendent.

Over its course, the chute descends 1,000 feet. In places, it is 70 feet above the ground. Its last 4 miles cling to cliffs along the Columbia River.

Along the way, porcupines cross the chute. Deer and bear roam below it. Rattlesnakes have been found on the 12-inch board path used to patrol the flume.

Darel Baumgarden, 25, is flume foreman. He and Mel Locke, 39, are believed to be the only full-time flume walkers in the country.

They walk along the flume looking for bad beams, leaks and jams.

"It's like a foreign country if you're not used to heights," says Baumgarden, who has been on flume patrol for six years.

Baumgarden and Locke have slipped several times.

Travolta has run in with fans

LONDON (AP) — It was a case of Wednesday night fever when Hollywood star John Travolta arrived at the Empire Theater in Leicester Square for the first night of his movie "Grease."

Some women cried out and others fainted. One gipped had her dress ripped down the back. Several photographers lost equipment and one had two flash guns smashed.

Travolta's bodyguards had to climb on the roof of his limousine to shout at shoving fans to get back as police cleared a path for Travolta and his girlfriend, Marielu Henner. "I was terrified — I've never known anything like this," Travolta said once safely inside.

Travolta and co-star Olivia Newton-John were hurried out of a rear entrance before the film finished to avoid more trouble. While he stayed in his hotel, she went to a party for 1,000 guests.

Shah's appointee assailed

QUM, Iran (AP) — The government Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi recently appointed to appease his opponents "should be scrapped" because of its mass killing of demonstrators, says the spiritual leader of Iran's 32 million Shiite Moslems.

Shariatmadari, 76, whose honorary title "ayatullah" means "gift of God," said in an Associated Press interview that he lost confidence in Prime Minister Jaafar Sharif-Emami on Sept. 8 when government troops killed about 100 demonstrators in Tehran.

"When just one person is killed without reason, it doesn't matter how many are being killed," the bearded Islamic scholar said through an interpreter. "This last killing was a mass killing, that is why we are putting pressure on the government. No cooperation."

"The point is, all this demonstrating and all this struggle does not only have religious reasons, but also civil rights and economic reasons. It is the system, the method of ruling," said the shy leader who sits in this bastion of Islamic conservatism where women wear traditional veils and whose skyline is dominated by minarets and mosques.

Opponent's good habit aids declarer

South's contract is safe if he can get five club tricks. If declarer takes the ace of spades and tries the club finesse at once, West will win and will continue spades. When South later tackles the hearts East will take the ace of hearts and lead a spade to defeat the contract.

Declarer can make the game against anybody but a great expert if he leads a heart from the dummy at the second trick. East doesn't yet know the spade position and has trained himself to play "second hand low." East will play a low heart casually, hoping that South is planning a losing heart finesse.

TRYING TO STEAL

Actually, South is just trying to steal one heart trick. When he wins that one trick, he leads a diamond to order to start the clubs. The club finesse loses, but now South has nine tricks.

It West has the ace of hearts, or if East is clever enough to step right up with the ace, South must hope that the club finesse will succeed. Win or lose, the heart play costs nothing.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S-J973; H-A92; D-QJ84; C-53. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards. If he bids two spades, you will raise to three spades; if he bids anything else, you will bid 2 NT.

Telethon volunteers busy

Area volunteers are continuing their efforts to make the third annual United Negro College Fund mini-telethon a success.

The "Evening Extraordinaire" special, filmed in Dallas, Las Vegas and New York City, will air on KMTD-TV, Channel 2, from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday.

Headlining the special will be entertainers Robert Goulet and Ann Murray. Guests will include Billy Paul, George Kirby, O.C. Smith, Donna Theodore, Johnnie Taylor, Cynthia Scott, Playboy Bunnies, Justice and others. Money collected will go toward the 1978 Sun Belt

(Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico) goal of $1.8 million. It will offset operational expenses and provide scholarship aid to students at the six Texas UNCF member colleges: Bishop in Dallas, Huston-Tillotson in Austin, Jarvis Christian in Hawkins, Texas in Tyler, Paul Quinn in Waco and Wiley in Marshall.

Admiral installed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Adm. Armando Lambruschini has been installed as the navy's member of the ruling military junta, succeeding Adm. Emilio Massera who retired.

Six weeks ago, Lambruschini was the target of a bomb that shattered his apartment, killing his 15-year-old daughter and two neighbors. Police said the explosives were planted in an adjoining building by left-wing terrorists.

Junta members are the commanders of the army, navy and air force. Lambruschini was sworn in as navy commander Friday and in a brief speech pledged the navy to "continue preserving human life against violence."

The armed forces have ruled Argentina since overthrowing the elected government of President Isabel Peron in March 1976.

Culprit spotted

VIENNA (AP) — Beekeepers in the forests not far from Vienna were astounded one morning to find their hives ripped open and all the honey stolen.

The intruder turned out to be the first brown bear to be sighted in Austria since 1929, and officials say they think the bear came across the Hungarian border.

Tipplers out-lean leaning tower

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

PISA, Italy (AP) — An eerie thing happened as I crossed the Arno River on the way to the famous Leaning Tower. Suddenly ambulances came screaming over the cobblestone bridge, five of them in a row.

A horrid thought occurred: had I missed it? Had history's most splendid architectural mistake finally given up the ghost after 800 teetering years and toppled over in a heap, taking all those tourists and postcard salesman with it?

But no, thank God, there she still stood — or tilted — around the next bend of the road and the ambulances, all of them empty, were just reporting for duty in their normal noisy way at a hospital.

I paid my 150 lire (15 cents) and climbed the begin sinking into the shifting sands of the Arno's subterranean riverbed. Attempting to correct this unplanned curtsy in the direction of the river, the architect subtly tilted the next two stories at a slightly reverse angle, giving the tower a barely perceptible case of the bends as well as he staggers. Work came to a halt.

Giovanni di Simone took over in the following century and tried to recoup Bonanno's losses by making the walls 13 feet thick at the base and between 6 and 8 feet thick in the succeeding stories. Finally in 1350, nearly three centuries after it was begun, Tomaso Pisano topped out the bell tower of the 176-foot high free standing Romanesque structure, which was soon leaning over far enough for a local university professor named Galileo Galilei to conduct his experiments in the velocity of falling bodies.

The professors still love the bending building. Every New Year's Day, which is a great day to be hung over in Pisa, they hold a celebrated cocktail party to celebrate the fact that La Torre Pendente still stands, however hazardously, like some of the guests. The idea is for everyone to get a little tipsy because the tower hasn't got any more tipsy during the previous year.

Last year's was a particularly gala Jan. 1. The tower hadn't varied a fraction of a millimeter in the previous 12 months, after veering almost 1-16th of an inch in each of the previous five years, giving hope that there at last had been some stabilization in the water levels 300 feet below the foundation.

"But there's always the possibility of an earthquake," warned Professor Livio Trevisan of Pisa University, one of the resident experts on the famous failure.

In 800 years, Pisa's diagonal colossus has withstood earth tremors, violent wind storms, numerous invasions including the 150,000 tourists a year and severe Allied and German bombings in World War II that took out all the bridges over the Arno and destroyed priceless monuments in the adjoining Comasanto, the graveyard filled with shiploads of earth brought from Calvary.

After soccer and finding a new government, keeping the tilting tower from toppling has been Italy's most inexhaustible topic of cocktail conversation. Just before World War II, 900 tons of concrete were pumped into the soil to stop the sway.

slanted, winding 293 marble steps to the top of the bell tower, which provided the sensation of ascending the staircase of an ocean liner heeled over in a rough sea.

The day was sunny, windy and so clear you could see the Isle of Corsica far in the distance and, closer by, the marble quarries of Carrara from whence came the 14,000 tons of arches and columns that now tilt so precariously toward the river, a full 17 feet out of plumb.

I thought of Robert Browning, who took his bride Elizabeth Barrett here in 1846, when the wobbly wonder was only 13 feet off the perpendicular. About then the bells rang for the last time and were spiked into silence to keep the vibrations from increasing the angle of inclination.

I thought of poor old Bonnano Pisano who began building the tower in 1173, when Pisa instead of being a world renowned architectural joke was a thriving maritime republic, on a par with Venice and Genoa, with colonies stretching all the way from the French Riviera to southern Russia. Bonnano had got the project only 25 feet off the ground, up to he third story, when things got out of whack. The foundation

Mumps common disease that should be prevented

Dear Dr. Solomon: Isn't the sun good for acne? I've got an acne problem, and I've always heard that sunbathing helps clear it up. But now there is so much about the damage that sun can do to the skin...-Alice.

Dear Alice: It used to be thought that sunlight was helpful for acne. But recent research indicates there is really no foundation for this belief. Some patients actually get worse with exposure to sunlight.

As the sun's ultraviolet radiation is so damaging to the skin, causing premature aging and skin cancer, I'd say you should be just as cautious as anybody else in avoiding excessive exposure. And, too, be extremely careful about using—and reapplying—an effective sunscreen when out on the beach or other sunny places.

from late winter to early summer. In 1976, almost 38,000 cases were reported to the Public Health Service. Like other preventable childhood diseases (except tetanus), mumps is contagious.

The mumps virus is spread by person-to-person contact. The favorite targets of this virus are children between the ages of five and 10, but mumps is no respecter of age. It also strikes teen-agers and adults, often with serious effect. Painfully swollen glands in the face and neck, fever, headache, earache: These are the symptoms of mumps. Usually, there are no disabling complications, and recovery is complete.

Inflammation of the covering of the brain (meningitis) or of the brain itself (encephalitis), occurs frequently, however. As many as one in every seven to nine children with mumps may show signs of these complications. However, most patients recover fully and permanent damage, including deafness, occurs very rarely.

In teen-age and adult males, mumps may produce a painful inflammation of the testicles. This condition occurs in one case out of every four and sometimes (but rarely) results in sterility. Some other complications of mumps are inflammation of the pancreas, thyroid and kidneys and, in female patients, inflammation of the ovaries and breasts.

Today, nearly 25 million children, or more than half of all children 13 years of age and under, have not been immunized against this painful but easily prevented disease, mumps. Are your children protected? All healthy children who have never had mumps should be vaccinated after their first birthdays.

The vaccine, which has been in use since 1967, also can be given to older children and adults. It is highly effective, and one injection produces long-lasting, probably lifetime protection.

Mumps vaccine is available by itself or in a combination vaccine that also protects against measles and rubella. One shot of the combination vaccine, which is given at 15 months of age because it includes measles vaccine, protects the child against all three diseases.

Mumps vaccine produces a mild, brief fever in very rare instances. This fever may occur one or two weeks after one is shot. Occasionally, there is some swelling of the salivary glands. Although experts are not sure, it seems that about one of every one million children who get the mumps shot may have a more serious reaction, such as encephalitis (inflammation of the brain).

Parents should be aware of this possibility but not alarmed by it. Serious reactions are extremely rare. The disease, itself, however, can be painful and disabling. This is why medical authorities agree that the benefits of immunization against mumps far outweigh the risks.

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston Continuing Education Center is $29,000 short for the first six months of 1978, and officials are unable to explain where it went.

An audit turned up the deficit, which Associate Chancellor Andrew Rudnick attributed to inadequate financial reporting and accounting procedures.

Rudnick said the audit turned up no evidence of "wrongdoing," but the findings of the university's internal audit team were being turned over to the Harris County district attorney's office. District Attorney Carol Vance said the "unaccounted for" loss is being investigated.

'Gastarbeiters' keeping oil states' work going

By J. P. SMITH

The Washington Post
KUWAIT — At 6 a.m. a British truck rolls up to the construction site in a cloud of dust. Out scramble Indians, Pakistanis, Yemenis in checked shirts and a lone Somali.

Farther down the Persian Gulf, thousands of Korean laborers have also begun their day's work, building roads and stringing sewer piping at Jubail, Saudi Arabia.

These scenes are repeated each morning throughout the Arab oil states that line the Persian Gulf.

The employment of foreign guest workers — "gastarbeiter," as the Germans call them — to supplement the local work force is a well documented phenomenon in Western Europe. In the labor-scare 1960s, millions of Yugoslavs, Turks, Greeks and North and West Africans migrated to Switzerland, France and West Germany to fill menial and service jobs, and work on assembly lines in the expanding factories.

While that tide abated with the economic slowdown of the early 1970s, the quadrupling of oil prices has sent a new wave of immigrant labor surging up the Persian Gulf. More than half the work force of the Arab states along the Gulf is now made up of foreign laborers.

This new, still largely uncharted phenomenon — by sheer strength of numbers — is having a far greater impact on the Gulf Arab states than it ever had on Western Europe.

At the peak, "gastarbeiter" held only one out of five jobs in Switzerland, and one out of seven in France. In contrast, three out of four jobs in the United Arab Emirates today are held by foreigners.

This new 20th century version of the old skin trade — the export and imports of humans — is also having a profound impact on the developing countries that supply the labor.

World Bank economists say Indians and Pakistanis working abroad send more than $1 billion a year back to the families they leave behind. Exported labor has, in fact, become the largest single source of hard currency for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's financially strapped economy. The million Egyptians working in the oil countries send home almost triple the annual revenue Egypt derives from the Suez Canal.

In all, earnings from the Third World labor trade nearly doubled from $4.4 billion in 1972 to nearly $8 billion in 1975, according to World Bank estimates. Some analysts believe the developing countries will earn $11 billion or more from the export of human labor this year.

By comparison, the developing countries earned only $4 billion last year from the export of copper, and $3 billion from the export of sugar, which are among the largest sources of their income.

"Relatively little is known about the trends and economic implications" of this enormous trade in human labor, says Arif Ecevit, of the World Bank's Human Resources Division.

While countries like India and Pakistan, mindful of the need to obtain hard currency to pay back hundreds of millions of dollars in loans to international banks, view the labor trade as a plus, many development economists are frankly skeptical.

Most of the foreign earnings sent back to these countries, they argue, end up being spent in so-called "non-productive investment" on homes and consumer goods.

But for the moment at least, both the Gulf Arab states and the countries sending them their workers seem to feel they are benefiting from the arrangement.

"It has become an important form of cooperation between OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) and the Third World," says Mohammad Khouja, a senior economist at the Kuwait Fund for Economic Development.

The wave of immigrant labor that has swept up the Gulf since 1973 differs from the migration of foreign workers to Western Europe in that it is far more organized.

The Gulf states and the multinational corporations operating here have tended to buy foreign labor the same way they buy miles of pipe, tons of concrete, or hundreds of units of prefabricated housing.

When Iraq's Ministry of Transportation recently took charge of 400 new double-decker British Leyland buses, the government stitched together a companion deal for drivers from Bangladesh.

In Saudi Arabia, Waste Management Inc. of Oak Park, Ill., which has a $200 million contract to handle Riyadh's trash collection, brought in 2,000 Indian Moslems to work as rubbish collectors.

A contractor in Kuwait explained how the labor pipeline works.

A company that wants to bring in gastarbeiter would apply to the Kuwaiti or Saudi government for visas, often in blocs of up to 500. The company will then contact an agent, perhaps in Pakistan, and tell him it is willing to pay him $350 a head for workers and supply their plane tickets.

The agent makes money both ways, because he also will probably charge the Pakistani workers he signs up $500 apiece — though this price tends to vary from country to country.

The Pakistani workers are willing to pay for jobs because they will earn anywhere from $10 a day (unskilled) to $75 a day (highly skilled) on the Gulf — far more than they could earn in their own country.

A recent inventory provided by Aramco, the world's largest oil consortium, of its 30,000 contractor employees in Saudi Arabia, gives an interesting picture of the Gulf gastarbeiter phenomenon.

Aramco says they include 7,500 Filipinos, 5,700 South Koreans, 2,380 Indonesians, 1,850 Turks, 1,750 Thais, 1,490 Pakistanis and 590 Indians.

While the wages may be good, the life the migrant workers lead in the Gulf states is by no means an easy one.

In Sharjah, Pakistani workers building a new shopping mall live in tents next to the work site that offer little relief from the 115-degree heat.

A few blocks from the Kuwait Sheraton Hotel, Indian workers huddle nine and 10 to a room in run-down buildings because they cannot afford to live in apartments that rent for $2,000 a month.

In Riyadh, where elegant skyscrapers and apartment buildings are taking shape, gastarbeiter live in squalor in cardboard and scrap lumber shanties.

Earlier this year, there were reports of Indian and Pakistani laborers dying of heat prostration at construction sites in the United Arab Emirates.

The labor-exporting countries, however, have been hesitant to press the Arab states on allegations of abuse, fearful of jeopardizing their chances of getting in on the oil bonanza.

Last year, more than 100 South Korean laborers in Saudi Arabia staged a sitdown strike that turned into a riot to protest their working conditions — 10-hour work days and a 28-day work month. Concerned about losing the lucrative contract, the Korean construction firm employing them quickly sent the striking workers home, and apologized to the Saudi government.

Of all the migrant workers, it is the Koreans who have made the deepest marks on the Gulf.

Two years ago, there were fewer than 100 South Koreans in Kuwait. Today, there are more than 10,000. Experts predict that perhaps as many as 80,000 Koreans will be working in the Persian Gulf states by the end of the year.

Saudi grocery stores in Riyadh and Jeddah now carry kimchi, the pickled cabbage that is a staple of Korean cooking. At Ras Tanura, the Aramco-operated oil port on the gulf, the "no smoking" signs are in three languages—Arabic, English and Korean.

A few of the labor-exporting countries have begun to express concern, however, about the long-term implications of exporting workers—particularly skilled labor.

Abdul Aziz Wattari, a manpower specialist with the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries, says so many Egyptian engineers have been taking jobs in other countries that Egypt could face a shortage of 30,000 engineers by 1980.

Pakistan, concerned about this exodus of skilled manpower, recently tripled salaries in some sectors of its own economy. The Philippines, a relative newcomer to the Gulf labor trade, has enacted a law allowing Filipinos to work overseas only for companies registered with the Manila government.

But the few clouds on the horizon are largely ignored by the labor importing and exporting countries.

More gastarbeiter, rather than fewer, are likely to be finding work in the Gulf in the months ahead.

"They are doing a lot of good for Saudi Arabia," says Saudi Planning Minister Hisham Nazer, "and for their own countries as well."

Delivery time reported

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Marathon Oil Co. expects to begin delivering natural gas to Irish customers from the Kin-sale Head field in the Celtic Sea this month, Elmer A. Graham, senior vice president for finance and administration, said.

He said initial production of 15 million cubic feet per day will rise to 50 million cubic feet daily by yearend. "The rate will be 125 million cubic feet per day as soon as our customers are ready to take this quantity, probably early next year," he said.

Graham also said Marathon believes that more than 250 million barrels of oil can be produced from the southern portion of Block 16/7A in the U.K. North Sea.

Initial production from the block, located 150 miles east of the Orkney Islands, is expected to begin in late 1982 or early 1983. Two other areas will require further appraisal drilling, Graham told the St. Louis Society of Financial Analysts.

Graham reported that development drilling in the Arzanah field offshore Abu Dhabi indicates the field has a greater production potential than previously expected. As a result, the design capacity of production facilities has been expanded from 30,000 barrels per day to 40,000 barrels per day. Production from this Arabian Gulf field is expected to begin in Mid-1979.

An oil and gas discovery made in the Indonesian sector of the South China Sea will require further evaluation drilling, Graham continued.

Marathon's capital spending for 1978 will total about $500 million. "Over the next five years, capital and exploration outlays will average almost $700 million a year. They will reach a peak $800 million in the year of heaviest expenditures for development of Block 16/7A as well as providing for possible development in Indonesia," the Marathon executive said.

Purchase plan told by Moran

WICHITA FALLS—Moran Bros., Inc., this morning announced it has executed a letter of intent to acquire Hytech Energy Corp., a Midland-based oil and gas exploration and production company.

R. J. Moran, president of Moran Bros., said the proposed acquisition would further his company's goal of diversifying into oil and gas production.

Moran also said that the continued leadership of Hytech's current management is important to this transaction. Moran is a land and offshore drilling contractor.

The purchase price for 100 percent of Hytech common stock would be about $21.5 million in cash and notes, plus 125,000 shares of Moran stock.

Hytech had unaudited net income of $1.3 million on revenues of $7.5 million in the first six months of its 1978 fiscal year. In addition to operating more than 500 oil and gas wells in the Southwest, Hytech has a substantial interest in two natural gas processing plants and an extensive gas-gathering system in West Texas.

Moran said an independent engineering survey estimates that Hytech has reserves of about 10 million barrels of oil and equivalents.

Moran had unaudited net income of $3 million, or $1.75 per share, on revenues of $15 million in the six months ended June 30, 1978.

Hytech is principally owned by J. B. Fuqua of Atlanta. He is chairman and chief executive officer of Fuqua Industries, Inc.

The acquisition is subject to completion by Moran of certain legal and accounting examinations, execution of a definitive stock purchase agreement and approval by both Moran's and Hytech's lenders. Moran said completion of the acquisition is expected to take about 60 days.

I. J. Flowers to get award

HOUSTON—I. J. Flowers of Santa Fe Drilling Co. will be awarded the Merit Service Award by the International Association of Drilling Contractors at ceremonies during the association's 1978 annual convention in Denver, Colo., Thursday.

The award is the association's highest honor and will be presented to Flowers in recognition of his service to IADC and to the drilling industry, particularly in the offshore areas of activity.

Flowers has devoted nearly a quarter century to the offshore drilling business and has been instrumental in other pioneering developments as well, including the first installation of subsea wellhead equipment and the first underwater completion ever made without divers.

During his career he has been involved in the design, construction and operation of nearly every type of rig that has ever drilled offshore.

He joined Santa Fe in 1966 as part of that company's acquisition of Blue Water Drilling Corp. After serving as general superintendent in the shipyard during the construction of the Blue Water No. 3, he was res; possible for the operation of this semisubmersible as well as its predecessor, Blue Water No. 2.

In 1968, Flowers moved from the Gulf Coast to Santa Fe's California headquarters as international operations coordinator, with responsibilities for both land and marine rigs. He became vice president in charge of marine operations in 1972 and early this year was promoted to senior vice president and marine operations manager.

Presently, he serves as international vice president for the IADC and has served two earlier terms as chairman of the association's Offshore Committee and vice president-Offshore.

He has been the chief IADC spokesman on the D and E Solas Committee, a group which has been working with the U.S. Coast Guard in drawing up proposed new federal regulations governing the design, construction and operation of mobile offshore drilling units.

Compromise opponents facing rugged battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Working against a concentrated and apparently successful White House lobbying effort, Senate opponents of the natural gas compromise are facing an uphill fight in attempts to kill the multibillion-dollar pricing scheme.

In the first of a series of showdown votes, the Senate will act Tuesday on a move to send the compromise back to the same House-Senate conference committee that produced it.

The bill would lift controls on new-found natural gas in 1985 and permit a steady increase in prices between for Robert Strauss to coordinate a selective lobbying campaign in which Vice President Walter F. Mondale played a major role.

There was a change of heart among many gas producers and big corporations that had opposed the compromise originally. They either agreed not to work against the measure, or said they would support it.

Mondale and Strauss told wavering senators that Carter needed their vote to halt the decline of the dollar overseas and avert continued loss of public confidence in the presidency.

The result was a dramatic turnaround, especially among many Democratic senators who had challenged the president on other issues.

On other issues, a Senate subcommittee today began looking into the multimillion-dollar scandals uncovered within the General Services Administration.

The House will seek once more to resolve a dispute over $2 billion in proposed funding for a special public works program. Differences over the expenditure of these funds produced a deadlock last week in Senate-House negotiations on a congressional compromise budget covering the government's spending and taxing plans for fiscal 1979, which begins Oct. 1.

Congress was to have set its own spending limits by last Friday.

And the House assassinations committee resumed its series of hearings on the murder of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

now and then. The conferees estimated that it would send $9 billion in added revenue to natural gas producers and boost an average homeowner's bill by $13 a year by 1985.

Most counts, including an informal Associated Press survey, show the disparate coalition opposing the compromise will lose the initial test vote.

On the compromise itself, the AP count shows 48 firm or tentative votes in support, 39 against and 13 undecided.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday he feels sure there are 49 firm votes for the compromise. The West Virginia Democrat said he believes the long battle for passage of the bill is "virtually over the top."

Tuesday's initial natural gas vote is to be followed by others in which opponents will propose various changes to the motion under which the compromise would be sent back to the conferees.

If, as expected, these efforts fail, the Senate will vote Sept. 27 on the compromise itself — the product of 10 months of delicate negotiations with House conferees.

While opponents have not given up, one Senate source, declining to be identified, said there was little activity against the compromise over the weekend. The source said there seemed little hope that the momentum in favor of the bill could be reversed.

While the bill is far different from the natural gas portion of the Carter administration's original energy plan, the president has said passage is crucial to the success of his energy policies.

The compromise has appeared dead in Congress several times. As recently as three weeks ago, Senate approval seemed unlikely.

The opposition ranks, including conservative Republicans and consumer-oriented liberal Democrats, said the pricing plan was too complex and unwieldy. Carter was accused of obtaining the compromise agreement only after making political trades on other issues.

But the president enlisted the help of special White House trade negotia-

Discovery completes in Kent County area

Wil-Mc Corp. No. 1 Pet-Co has been completed as a Canyon reef discovery in Kent County, 18 miles northwest of Clairmont.

The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 36 barrels of 40-gravity oil, plus 117 barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio was not reported.

Completion was from open hole section at 6,111 feet, where 4.5-inch casing is cemented, and total depth of 6,118 feet. The pay section was acidized with 250 gallons.

The strike is 2,173 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 40, block 2, H&GN survey, abstract 1274.

The Wolfcamp was topped at 4,910 feet, the Canyon sand was entered at 6,056 feet and the Canyon reef was topped at 6,110 feet. Ground elevation is 2,248 feet.

SMALL PUMPER

Texaco Inc. No. 4-AX Reeves Fee has been completed as a small pumper in the Screwbean, Northeast (Delaware) field of Reeves County, seven miles northwest of Orla.

Operator reported a daily pumping potential of eight barrels of oil and 71 barrels of water, through perforations from 2,560 to 2,604 feet. The pay was acidized with 5,500 gallons and fractured with 4,000 gallons.

Total depth is 2,961 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented at 2,691 feet.

Gas-oil ratio is 1,950-1, and the gravity of the oil is 41.3 degrees.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and 2,310 feet from east lines of section 1, block 58, T-2, T&P survey.

Projects scheduled

Oil or gas projects have been announced in Pecos, Winkler and Midland counties.

Texaco Inc. No. 2 USM Gas Unit will be drilled in the Gomez (Ellenburger) field of Pecos County, four miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

Irt is 1,980 feet from north and 1,000 feet from west lines of section 5, block 146, T&S survey.

It is contracted for a 22,330-foot bottom.

WINKLER PROJECT

Morris Cannon of San Antonio announced plans to re-enter a project in Winkler County and test the Cherry Canyon and Delaware zones that produce in the War-Winkler field.

Fri elected by Transco

HOUSTON—Robert W. Fri, formerly acting administrator of the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, has been elected to the board of directors of Transco Companies, Inc. and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Transcontinental Gas pipeline Corp.

Prior to his federal government positions, Fri was a partner with McKinsey & Co.

Manager Trainee needed to fill $58,000 per year position. It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $14,400 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn, however, for those who survive, the first year average compensation is $24,800 due to additional sales commissions. 90 to 95% of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

The qualifications are tough—please don't apply unless you meet each and every qualification.

1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. 4 year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy, retail manager experience.
3. Willing to work over (60) hours per week (no Sunday or out town work.)
4. Willing to take polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as Real Estate, Automobile, Mobile Homes, vacuum cleaners or etc.

We have an extraordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they don't refer "candidates" to us.

Allen says fans want football, not track stars

By GEORGE ALLEN
The Los Angeles Times

We have a great game in the National Football League. We don't have to change the rules every year.

Body contact makes the game. I think the fans want to see football players that are football players and not track stars. But that appears to be the way the game is going — to speed. Speed, and less and less body contact.

If you take the aggressiveness out of the game and legislate to get more points on the board, the purpose and excitement of the game will be defeated.

THERE IS a term in football this year that I've never heard before — "incidental contact." It is a questionable way to get yardage. A defense back merely touches an opponent and it is "incidental contact" and an automatic first down.

How will the fans react to this situation for example? A long pass goes uncaught but is ruled complete on the two-yard line because of "incidental contact."

I think the fans will be disgusted. I doubt that they want to see an increase in scoring when their team can lose because of a call like this.

I think that if you continually dilute the defense to help the offense, you can cheapen the game if you're not careful.

THE RULES changes are putting more pressure on the officials and slowing the game down. The reason is that most, if not all, of the new rules involve judgment calls.

For example, two years ago the rules said it was an automatic foul if a player kicked the football.

A week ago Dave Casper accidentally kicked the ball, and it helped Oakland defeat San Diego. I thought it was an accidental kick, and so did the officials. However, it was still a debatable judgment call, along with two other questionable aspects of that play, including whether the quarterback, Ken Stabler, was passing or simply fumbled.

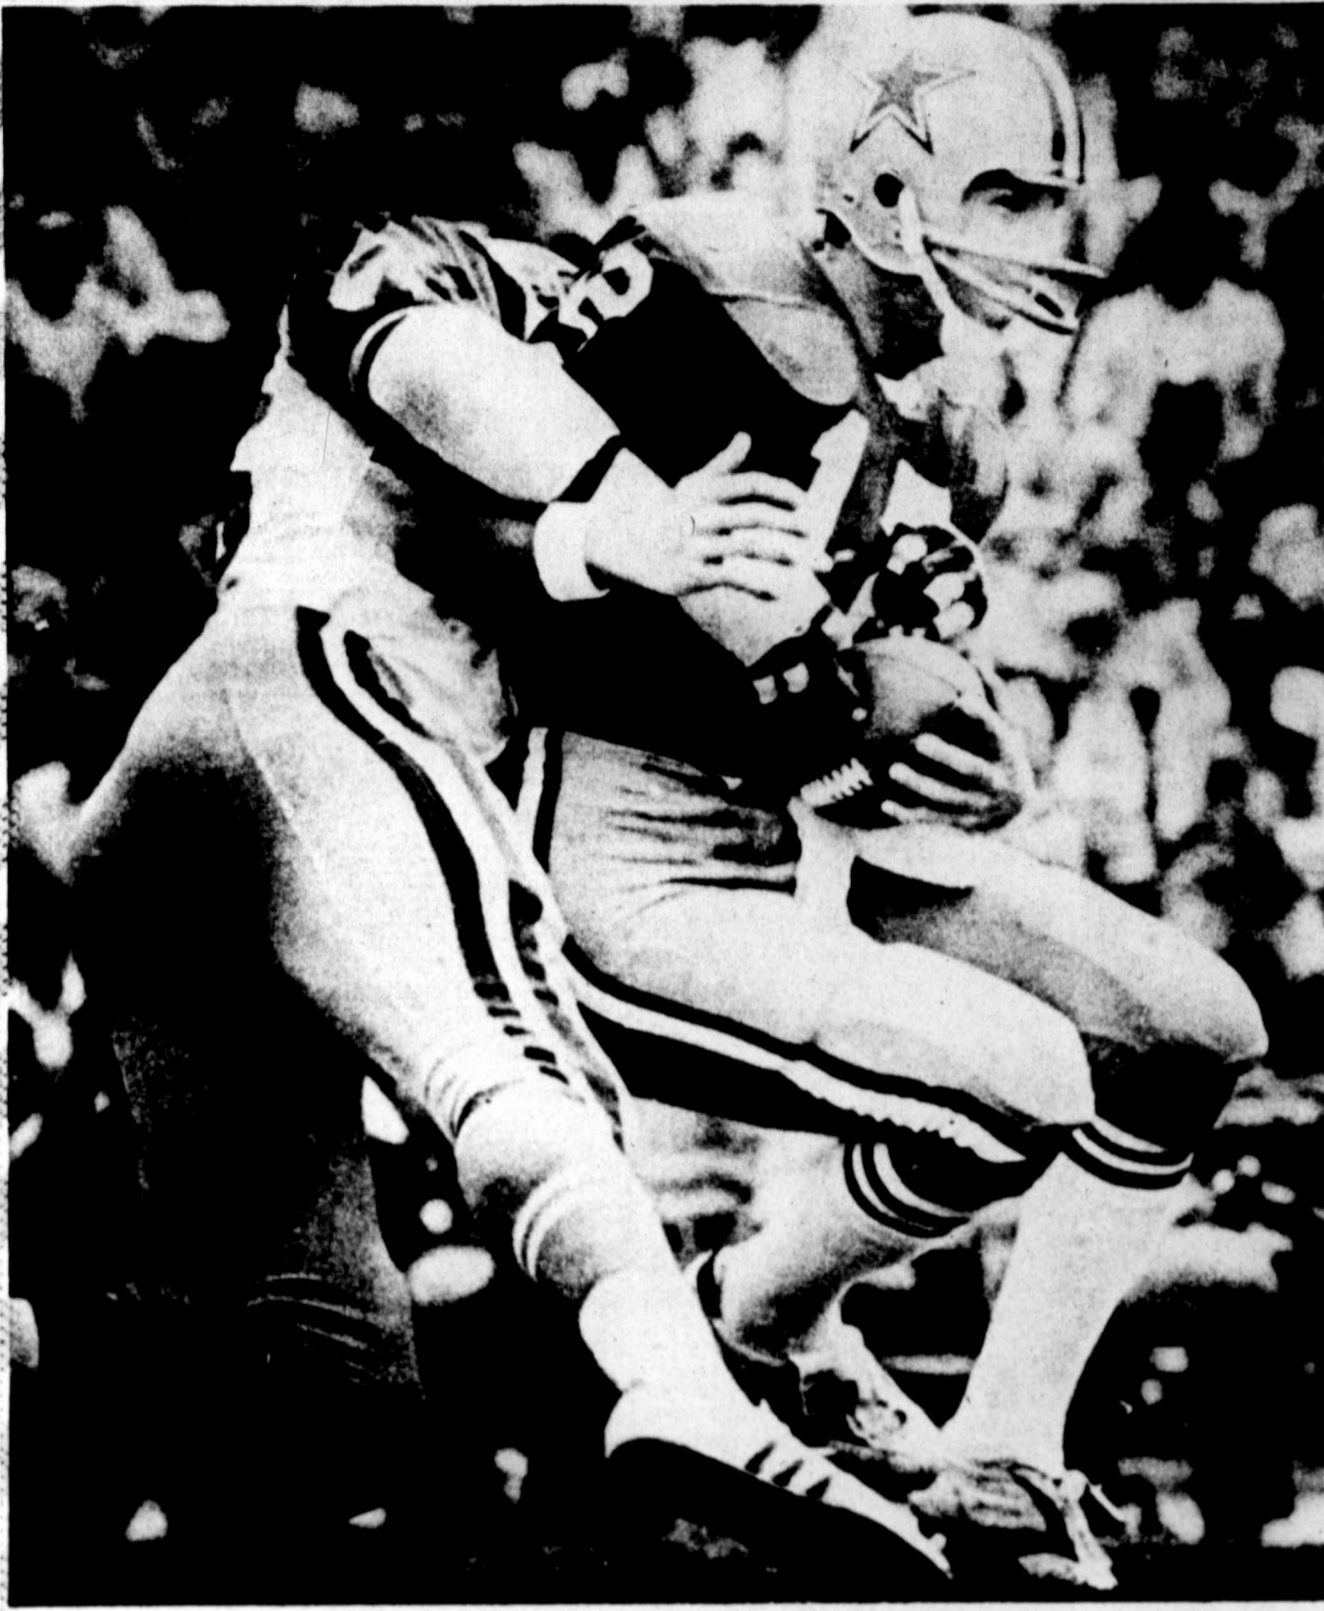

It should be cut and dried.

THE RULES changes have not necessarily helped the kicking game, because of all the marginal penalties.

Today, only the two outside men can go downfield on a punt at the snap. The interior linemen must wait until the ball is kicked. Yet, in almost every game, some of these linemen are 6 inches, a foot, a yard beyond the line when the ball is kicked.

That's understandable. The other linemen should not have to wait. They're trained to go and go fast. It is unnatural to expect them to wait. Yet they must, or risk a penalty, and more and more penalties are being called in this phase of the kicking game.

One thing the fans don't want to see is repeated punts. Frequently I've

Florida Pro gains revenge

By The Associated Press

World champions Speedy Somolli and Florida Pro traded victories in 1:55 in the opening dashes the Hambletonian Stake two weeks ago before Speedy Somolli won the third and decisive heat in 1:57.

In the $113,350 Colonial Trot at Liberty Bell Park in Philadelphia, on Saturday, Florida Pro turned the tables on his trotting archrival by winning in 1:58 1-5.

Florida Pro joined Speedy Somolli as co-world champion trotters over five-eighths mile tracks. Both are 3-year-olds.

Lee girls hit v-ball quarters

The Midland Lee volleyball team advanced to the quarterfinals of sixth annual Monahans volleyball tournament Friday and extended the tournament's eventual winner, Denver City, to the limit before bowing out.

Midland High, which was also entered in the tournament, took it on the chin from Seminole, a loser to Denver City in the second round and then lost to Ft. Stockton in the losers bracket.

Lee opened the tournament with a 15-12, 15-11 win over Andrews and then struggled past a tough El Paso Parkland team, 12-15, 19-17, 15-13. "The Parkland match was a good one," said Lee Coach Linda Weikel. "It was nip and tuck all the way."

Lee was eliminated from the tournament in their next match, a 15-10, 15-10 loss to Denver City.

Denver City defeated Seminole, 15-6, 15-9 in the tournament finals. Monahans finished third and Parkland won the consolation championship.

Weikel praised Julie Ochsner, Shelli Speck and Kerry Shaw for their play in the tournament.

All-tournament honors went to 12 girls, but both Midland schools were shut out in that department. The all-tournament selections are: Dora Bustamante, Fabens; Vicki Graves, Seminole; Irene Ramirez, Seminole; Denise Gallegos, Eastwood; Gail Hix, Denver City; Suzanne Mills, Denver City; Megan McGuire, Monahans; Mary Duran,

Bengals lose third straight

CINCINNATI (AP) — Wide receiver Isaac Curtis isn't the only Cincinnati Bengal to feel embarrassed after Sunday's 28-3 National Football League loss to Pittsburgh.

"I can't imagine being any more embarrassed," Curtis said after the Bengals third straight loss in as many games. "The way we're executing, we could be 0-and-3 even if Ken Anderson was in there."

The feeling among many Bengals was that they were beating themselves.

There was little talk of the injuries which have hurt the Bengals and left starting quarterback Ken Anderson on the sidelines recovering from surgery on his throwing hand.

Today, every time the ball is spotted, it's in the center or almost the center of the field. This is so the offense doesn't have to worry about a wide side and narrow side the way they did when the ball was spotted on one side or the other.

The present hushmark rule was designed — again — to help the pass offense. To my way of thinking, it has actually aided the defense on pass defense. It is beneficial, however, to the running game.

Under the old hushmark rules, it was much more difficult to double-team the wide receiver.

When the rules came into football, years ago, the one thing the defense could do was use their hands, and the one thing the offense could not do was use their hands. We've changed the rules so much in the National Football League that we've almost switched that around.

The defense has eliminated the head slap. It used to be the pass rusher could slap — make one move at the offensive man's head when rushing the passer to get the man out of the way. Now you can't do that, and it further reduces the use of the hands by the defensive player.

LAST YEAR we put in a rule that a player is only allowed to "chuck" or "jam" on an offensive man within a distance of five yards. Any more than that is a foul, and an automatic first down. This was supposed to open up the passing game to a lot more bombs because the wide receivers could get downfield and not have to worry about a second jam.

So far there isn't much evidence that this change has increased scoring.

The holding penalties on offense have been reduced from 15 yards to 10. Now an offensive drive is not necessarily halted because of a holding penalty. So we're getting more holding.

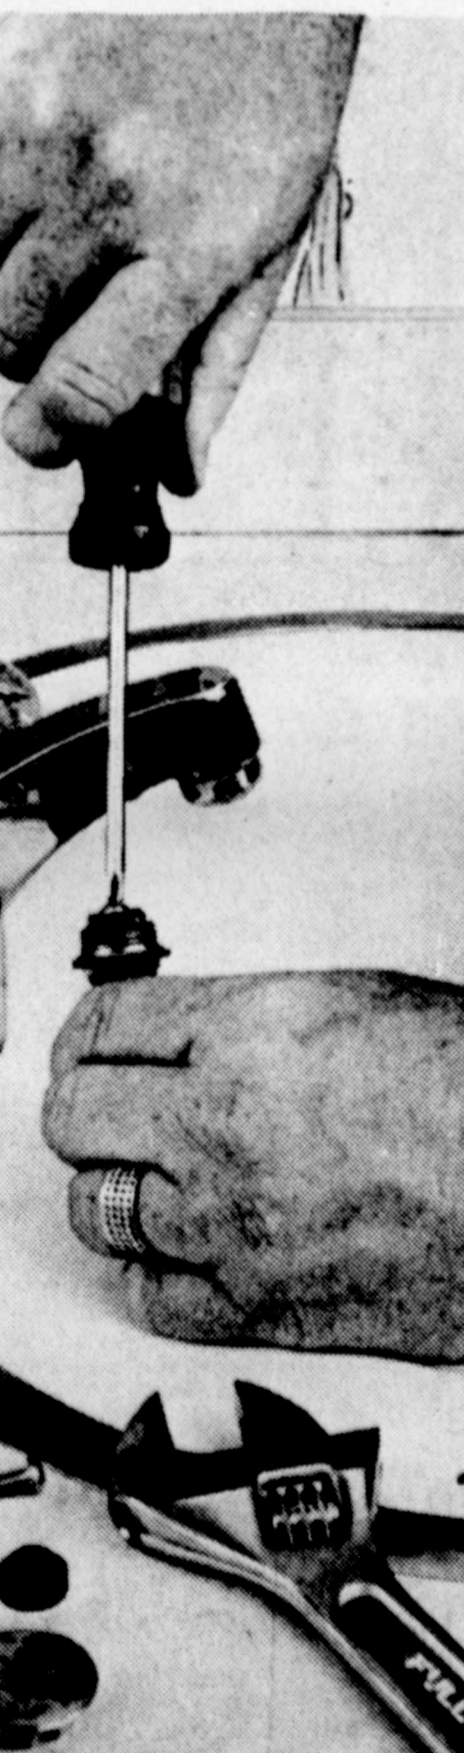

PASS BLOCKING interpretations permit outstretched arms and open hands, which also results in more holding.

We've altered the blocking rules of the offensive line so much that we've taken away good blocking technique.

What the fans want is good football. In 1970 they were booing the Redskins. In 1971, when we took over, the Redskins received standing ovations. And the score weren't always high. When Dallas and the Redskins played, it was usually a low-scoring game. They beat us last year, 14-7.

The game today is too long. It should be about two hours and 20 minutes. With the constant penalties and delays and all the changes in the kicking game, they are getting longer and longer.

For the sake of the game, the players and the fans, let's keep football moving.

You can do it!

Regular maintenance around your house can stop energy leaks.

A dripping hot water faucet can waste 200 gallons a month — plus the energy it took to heat it. But not if you do something about it.

Texas Electric's free booklet on maintenance is one of a series we're offering to energy-conscious homeowners who want to make their homes energy efficient. It tells you just what to look for to keep your house in top shape through hot weather, cold weather, year-round. Even unhandy people can follow the checklists to keep their homes comfortable and minimize energy bills.

You may also want the other booklets in the series covering such specific areas as insulation, storm windows, caulking, weatherstripping, and ductwork. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. You'll see how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

Okker outlasted Marty Riessen and Sherwood Stewart 7-6, 3-6, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3 to capture the championship of the $125,000 Association of Tennis Professionals doubles tournament.

Sweden advances

BAASTAD, Sweden — Kjell Johansson provided the key points as 1975 Davis Cup champion Sweden moved into the interzone finals against the United States with a 3-1 European Group B Zone victory over Hungary.

Johansson outlasted Peter Szoke in a 3½-hour clay court struggle 3-6, 7-5, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1 to clinch the best-of-five series.

Soviets score

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — The Soviet Union won a European Zone preliminary round Davis Cup match against Monaco 4-1.

Alexander Metreveli defeated Monaco's Louis Borfiga 6-2, 6-3 in the final match.

Norway ousted

AMERSFOORT, Netherlands — The Netherlands ousted Norway 4-1 in the second round of the European Zone Davis Cup tennis tournament.

The Netherlands won both final singles matches. Rolf Thung beat John Erik Rustad 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, and Louk Sanders defeated Per Hegna 3-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-6, 6-0.

Young captures Alamo LPGA play

ALAMO, Calif. — Donna Caponi Young shot a 71 for a 72-hole total of 282 to win the $100,000 women's pro golf tournament at Round Hill Country Club.

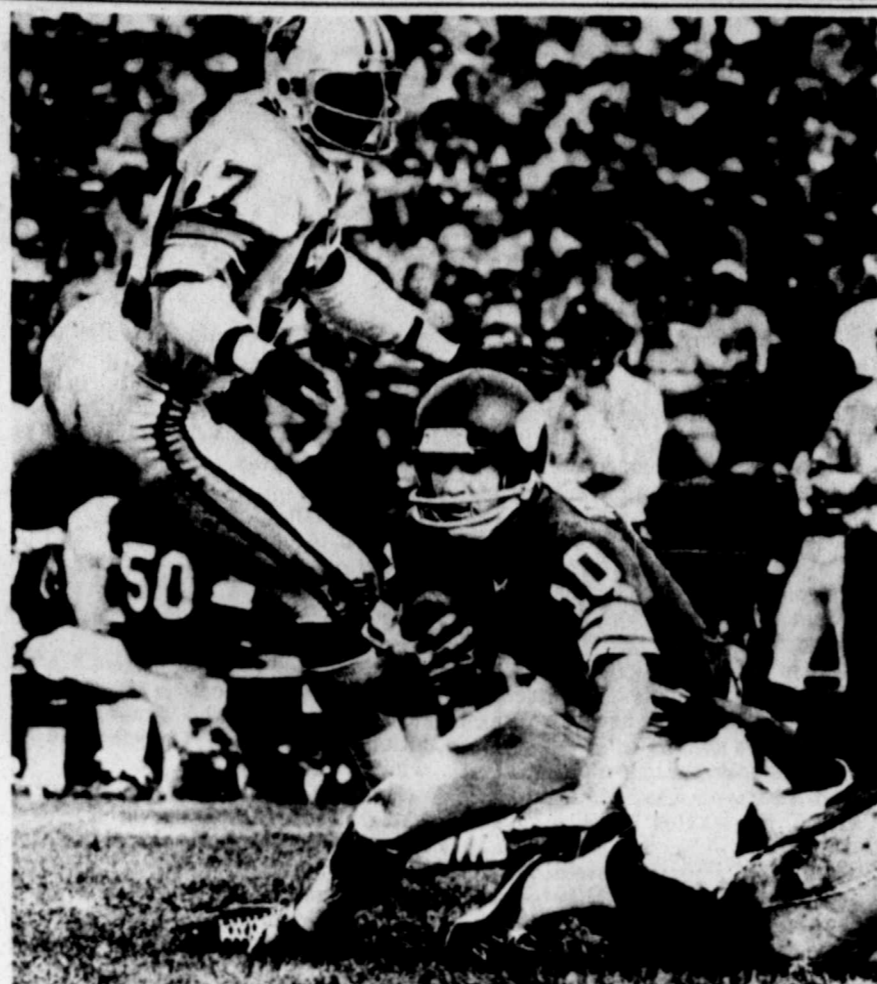

Jane Blalock closed with a 72, taking second place with a 287 total. Pat Bradley claimed third with 71-288 and Nancy Lopez posted a 75 and finished fourth with 289.

Allison claims NASCAR point lead

DOVER, Del. — Bobby Allison, averaging 119.363 mph in a Thunderbird, took advantage of NASCAR season point leader Cale Yarborough's tire problems and won Sunday's Delaware 500 stock car race.

Allison finished first by 19.7 seconds, ahead of Yarborough in an Oldsmobile and Buddy Baker in a Chevrolet.

David Pearson, in a Mercury, was fourth while Darrel Waltrip, in a Chevy, finished fifth.

Rams find keys to beating Dallas

By BOB OATES (C) 1978, The Los Angeles Times Of the many reasons why the Rams won a big game from Dallas here Sunday, these three seemed decisive:

1 — On Cody Jones's best afternoon as Merlin Olsen's successor, the strongest Ram department — the defensive line — overwhelmed the Cowboys' weakest department, their offensive line.

The Cowboys have a bunch of kids in the positions formerly occupied by three players who made All-Pro repeatedly in the last 10 years — Ralph Neely (retired), Rayfield Wright (injured) and Blaine Nye (retired).

And whereas the kids have been playing well against ordinary teams, they were no match for the exceptional Ram defense. This was a game won by Los Angeles's front four.

2 — FOR THE first time in many recent meetings with Dallas the Rams often threw the ball on running downs (first-and-10, second-and-1). And they ran it occasionally on passing downs (second-and-9, third-and-4). In other words, this was a strategic victory for the new coaching staff.

Throughout the Chuck Knox era, the Rams consistently sought to run the Cowboys down. The usual strategy in those years called for two runs and a pass.

This time the decision to open up the offense a bit enabled the Rams to complete two touchdown passes on so-called running downs.

When, for instance, Ron Jessie scored with Pat Haden's first-down pass from the Dallas 21 there were 53 seconds left in the half — time enough to have tried to "establish the run" there. And in other years they might have tried.

IN THE fourth quarter Haden threw the winning touchdown pass on second-and-1 from the Dallas 43, reaching Willie Miller down the middle.

On this play Miller was being single-covered by Dallas cornerback Aaron Kyle. Had Haden tried to throw that bomb on, say, third-and-7, Miller would have been covered by at least two and maybe three Cowboys.

The "safe" play on second-and-1 is, of course, a run. And throughout the last four or five years the Rams have almost always run for it on that down. Their pass this time was perhaps the clearest signal yet that they have some new coaches this year.

IT DOESN'T, of course, take a genius to figure out the Cowboys out. On first down as a rule they deploy what amounts to an eight-man line and defy their opponents to run. And on passing downs they station seven or eight men in the secondary.

They have been doing this for years and getting by with it for years — against the Rams and many other conservative teams — until Sunday.

3 — The psychology of the game strongly favored the Rams and they made the most of it. They were an underdog (by 4 points) on their home field against a famous opponent — and in those circumstances for the last 30 years the Rams have seldom lost.

In 1951 they won their only world title as the underdog here against Cleveland and, later, some of their more memorable wins of the George Allen and Knox eras were against Vince Lombardi teams, Pittsburgh teams and other favorites.

The 1978 Rams had heard all they wanted to hear about world champion Dallas. Their goal was to bring the champions down.

Oilers throttle O.J. to win in cliff-hanger

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers chased O.J. Simpson ghosts in the first half and Steve DeBerg bombs in the second half Sunday but still managed to come back for the second straight week for a 20-19 victory over San Francisco.

"We weren't aggressive on our pass rush, we were looking for O.J. first to try and stop their running game," Bethea said following Houston's second straight cliff-hanging victory.

But while the Oilers were trying to find Simpson, who sat out the entire second half, second year quarterback Steve DeBerg and his cast of eight different receivers almost pelted the Oilers into submission.

DEBERG, WHO replaced Jim Plunkett as the 49er quarterback, completed 20 of 32 passes for 321 yards and two second half touchdown passes that rallied San Francisco to a 17-14 lead with 7:51 left in the game. It took a determined 80-yard drive and a 19-yard field goal by Toni Fritsch with 1:16 left in the game for the Oilers to win and boost their record to 2-1.

"We couldn't tell how to stop DeBerg from the films because he didn't have a set pattern of rolling out and scrambling," Bethea said.

Simpson, obtained during an off-season trade with Buffalo, carried seven times for seven yards in the first half and didn't return, although he said he was ready to play.

"I don't know why he took me out, you'll have to ask him," Simpson said, referring to 49er Coach Pete McCulley. "I've never not played before when I felt like playing."

MCCULLEY SAID it became obvious the 49ers weren't going to establish a running game against Houston so he decided to take the passing route.

"With a 16-game schedule and the best running back in pro football, I'm not going to use him on every play in every game," McCulley said.

Houston took a 10-6 halftime lead on a four-yard touchdown run by Earl Campbell and Fritsch's 38-yard field goal while the 49ers countered with kicks of 26 and 19 yards by Ray Wersching.

Wersching's 19-yarder came as time ran out in the half and created a controversy that would have been even bigger had the Oilers lost.

Houston has apparently stopped San Francisco at the one-yard line with seven seconds to go and no time outs left. Official time keeper Bill Torney stopped the official clock however, giving Wersching enough time to boot the short fielder.

Referee Don Wedge said Torney stopped the clock without receiving any signal from an official on the field.

THE OILERS took a 17-6 lead late in the third quarter on a neatly executed 13-yard touchdown pass from Dan Pastorini to Ken Burrough, who out-reached cornerback Anthony Leonard in the end zone.

But DeBerg flipped a 58-yard touchdown pass to Freddie Solomon before the third period ended and with 7:51 left in the game completed a 78-yard drive with an eight-yard touchdown pass to tight end Paul Seal.

"I saw a lot of improvement in myself today," DeBerg said. "I'm more satisfied but not satisfied. Play calling is the biggest thing I have to work on because I've never done it before. The offensive line just seemed to be getting better and better."

That's when the Oilers put together their must drive to Fritsch's game-winning boot. Pastorini hit Burrough on passes of 19 and 18 yards and Campbell rushed 16 and 11 yards to help the drive along.

Campbell finished with 76 yards 26 carries and failed in an attempt to become the first rookie to gain more than 100 yards in his first three games. Campbell had gained 137 and 111 yards in his first two games as a pro.

Cowboys not invincible; Los Angeles is for real

Benny Barnes fits all day, caught seven passes for 144 yards, including a 45-yard bomb and then a 21-yard touchdown on a 99-yard drive near the end of the first half. Jessie's acrobatic, leaping catch of an 18-yard Haden pass and subsequent 3-yard struggle to the goal line gave the Rams a 14-7 lead at intermission.

Miller, the 31-year-old Vietnam veteran playing in place of injured starter Billy Waddy, caught five for 68 yards, including a beautifully thrown, 43-yard touchdown bomb from Haden halfway through the final quarter. That one put the Rams ahead, 20-14.

There were some anxious moments for the Rams after Frank Corral then narrowly missed a 30-yard extra-point try. Suddenly, their lead was only six points instead of seven. Corral's first PAT try, a conventional 20-yarder, was successful but reserve linebacker Carl Ekern was called for holding. So L.A. was penalized 10 yards and Corral had to kick again.

That miss was soon forgotten when Perry picked off a Staubach overthrow and made like a halfback, dodging and dancing down the right sideline to the touchdown that brought a slew of Rams streaming across the field. More than half his teammates happily mobbed Perry in the end zone.

"I guess all my runnin' moves had been caged up," Perry said.

—SO, PERHAPS, did CBS, which tried to coerce Haden into posing next to Dallas defensive end Ed (Too Tall) Jones before the game. Jones is 6-9, Haden 5-11. The idea, apparently, was to illustrate Haden's so-called "problem" — seeing over the NFL's Too Tall Joneses. Haden refused to pose.

Five hours later, after he'd completed a higher percentage than Staubach (56 percent on 14 for 25 to 48 percent on 22 for 46); after he'd passed for nearly as many yards (227 to 246) as Staubach on 21 fewer throws; after he'd proven again that he's a big-play quarterback and a winner; after he'd outplayed the king of NFL quarterbacks, Haden said:

"CBS said, I mean they actually told me they wanted to show the 'problem.' That way, people (watching) at home would say, 'See, he is too short. No way I'd consent to that. I don't know why I'm upset now but I also don't know why no one ever asked (Fran) Tarkenton (who's 5-11) or Bob Griese (6 feet) to pose with Too Tall Jones.'"

Talking about his long touchdown pass to Miller, Haden went after his critics again, at least indirectly.

"I let it all out on that pass. I put my 5-2, 130-pound frame behind it and let Willie run under it," he said.

SOMEONE ASKED if partly choreographing this win over a talented team at the top of its game meant that he had proven himself once and for all.

"No," Haden answered quickly. "I've proved it the last three years."

The Rams' defense, meanwhile, has been proving itself twice that long, and in the end Sunday it was probably Staubach & Co. breathing sighs of relief. They don't have to face that defense for at least another three months. The following tells some of the story:

—By stopping Dorsett and making Staubach look like he was quarterbacking the Dallas Texans of the old, pass-crazy American Football League, the Rams held to 14 points a team that had already scored 72 this season. Dallas (2-1) previously defeated Baltimore 38-0 and the New York Giants, 34-24.

—The Rams sacked Staubach three times and pressured him persistently. Some of that pressure was partly responsible for the four interceptions.

—Cornerback Pat Thomas shut out Drew Pearson, Dallas' All-Pro receiver who had caught at least one pass in 47 consecutive games. Thomas also made the fourth interception in the final minute.

—WITH DORSETT thrown for losses three times, held to no gain three times and otherwise struggling for every yard, the Cowboys almost always had third-and-long. For them that meant shotgun formation. Which meant to Dallas backs as blockers. Which meant the Rams' secondary usually had one less receiver to cover.

"When Dorsett gains six, seven, eight yards on the first down, the Cowboys dictate," defensive tackle Larry Brooks said. "Our plan was to stop him on first down so they couldn't dictate, and make them declare their game plan early. That's the way it turned out."

In an even game statistically, the Rams made many more big plays. So Los Angeles, 3-0 in the standings and undefeated in five games under Malavasi, now has a two-game lead in the Western Division, not to mention an 11-game winning streak in regular season home games.

Before Sunday, Dallas coach Tom Landry said he'd miss his rivalry with George Allen, late of the Redskins and Rams. Now Landry has a new one. He's 0-1 against Ray Malavasi.

Arkansas finds out what No. 2 feels like

By Associated Press The Arkansas Razorbacks found out Saturday night what it feels like to be No. 2.

No. 2 in The Associated Press collegiate football poll that is.

The 28-point favorite Razorbacks had a 24-0 lead and were coasting to the final gun against Vanderbilt when the Commodores put 17 points on the scoreboard in less than six minutes.

The stung Hogs charged back for an eventual 48-17 verdict but it caused Coach Lou Holtz to remark: "It's going to be like that all year. We had to arch our backs and get with it."

VANDY COACH Fred Pancoast, who has seen some good teams in the Southeast Conference, said of the Southwest Conference Razorbacks: "They're the most awesome team we've ever played. They have more athletes than most three schools you'll find."

Arkansas travels to Oklahoma State Saturday to play a Cowboy team which has been whipped by Wichita State and Florida State.

In other games this Saturday, high flying Southern Methodist is at Penn State, No. 7 Texas hosts Rice, No. 15 Texas A&M is at Boston College, Baylor is at Kentucky, Houston hosts Utah, Texas Tech entertains Arizona, and Texas Christian is at Oregon.

DEFENDING CHAMPION Texas jumped into an early tie with SMU for the SWC leadership by defeating the Rice Owls 34-0 Saturday in the only league game.

The Longhorns were guilty of five fumbles, an interception and 165 yards in penalties in the opener.

However, halfback LeRoy King, a junior college transfer playing in Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell's position, brought smiles to Texas Coach Fred Akers with a 47-yard touchdown run. Olympian Johnny (Lam) Jones scored on touchdown pass receptions of 57 and 33 yards.

Texas Coach Fred Akers said "Last year our first game went really smooth, but this year it didn't."

"Our defense showed signs of being what we thought it could be," Akers added.

SMU SWARMED all over Florida building a 28-3 halftime lead then played some salty defense in the second-half to win 35-25.

Jim Gilliam LSC champ ACU wary of ambush in Oklahoma

By The Associated Press There's a clear and present danger for defending Lone Star Conference football champion Abilene Christian on the schedule this week and if you don't believe it ask East Texas State.

ACU, the No. 1 ranked NIAA defending national champions, must travel to Cameron University in Oklahoma to play a team that soundly whipped East Texas State 17-7 over the weekend. And the unbeaten Wildcats are coming off a scare from Northern Colorado.

ACU breezed to a 16-0 lead in the third quarter on two touchdown pass receptions by tight end Kirby Jones then had to bat away a two-point conversion attempt to capture a 16-14 non-conference victory.

No. 2 ranked Angelo State blasted Eastern New Mexico 40-0 behind back Jerry Aldridge's 108 yards rushing and two touchdowns.

Jewish settlers living in Sinai stumbling block in agreement

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace between Egypt and Israel by Christmas.

A vision, perhaps, among men of good will in the Middle East, but not a rational expectation until President Anwar Sadat flew to Jerusalem last November.

And then, as Sadat and Begin drifted into acrimonious disagreement over succeeding months, no more than a vision again.

But now, after the 12-day Camp David summit, peace between Egypt and Israel is a real possibility — within three months, in fact, if they can settle the remaining issues.

The thorniest, perhaps, is whether Jewish settlers are to remain in Sinai after the territory is returned to Egypt.

The "framework for peace" negotiated with painstaking care at Camp David does not provide a solution because Sadat and Begin could not agree on one.

Allowing Jewish settlers to stay would clash with Sadat's notion of Arab sovereignty. Dismantling the outposts could tarnish Begin's image at home as protector of settlers there and on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The problem is now in the hands of the negotiators and the Israeli Knesset, to whom Begin is deferring.

An even greater problem is the uncertain future of the West Bank and whether Jordan's King Hussein is satisfied enough with Israel's concessions there to support Sadat.

Beginning with his initial overtures and through the Camp David summit, the Egyptian leader has moved toward peace with the Jewish state largely on his own.

To take the final step of concluding a peace treaty, he may need at least Hussein on his side.

Sadat's overture to Israel last autumn prompted Syria, his ally in the 1973 Yom Kippur war, to break relations and led to strong Arab condemnation of the Egyptian leader.

The Egyptian president faces renewed attack now that he has agreed to the outline of a settlement. The rancor is certain to ring out at a summit meeting of "rejectionists" including Syria, Algeria, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization. It opens on Wednesday in Damascus.

"The long days of Camp David are over," Carter told the nation from the East Room of the White House on Sunday night, flanked by a beaming Sadat and Begin.

"But many months of difficult negotiations still lie ahead," Carter said.

For the moment, though, the obstacles that remain are dwarfed by the concrete achievements at the summit and the chance of ending the 30-year-old conflict between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

For Israel: security arrangements and an Egyptian commitment to peace that have been goals since creation of the Jewish state.

For Egypt: return of the Sinai, which was lost during the Six-Day War of 1967, and military airfields there.

For the Palestinians: Self-government and the chance to participate in determining their own future. Even ultimate statehood is not ruled out.

For Carter there may be dividends, too.

The summit carried the risk of failure. "The president's political neck is on the line," one of his closest advisers said when Carter invited Sadat and Begin to Camp David.

Success, by the same token, carries with it the fruits of victory.

"Mr. President," an ecstatic Begin declared, "you inscribed your name forever in the history of two ancient civilized peoples, the people of Egypt and the people of Israel."

He may also have inscribed it in the memory of the American voter.

Unstable economy sparking new interest in gold panning

By HARLON BARTLETT
Copley News Service

JACKSON, Calif. — Is gold panning still a worthwhile exercise in The Mother Lode?

"They just scratched the surface during the gold rush," replied an Amador County Chamber of Commerce official, sounding very much like a chamber of commerce official.

"Geologists will tell you less than 10 percent of the gold was taken," answered Elton Rodman, who knows how to mine gold and greenbacks.

The most frequently asked question at the chamber office here is, "Where can we find a gold mine?"

Surprisingly, the only answer is "At Elton Rodman's Pine Acres Roaring Camp." It's located 10 miles east on State 88.

Panning for gold, assuming you know how — and there definitely is a knack to it — can be accomplished at many places in the Sierra Nevada foothills.

Although most of the land around here is privately owned, at any bridge you can drop into the creek below and pan your little heart out.

"In most of the streams you can get color," advised Rodman.

But if you want to see a real-life mining operation, learn the tricks to panning, maybe turn up some gold yourself and do it all in an awesome canyon on the North Fork of the Mokelumne River, you will wind up at Rodman's establishment.

Not that there aren't other mines tucked away in the hills — working mines and abandoned mines. But the owners are extremely vague as to their whereabouts, not eager to have a steady stream of tourists tromping into them.

While seeking gold for pleasure is popular in these parts, mining for profit apparently isn't common.

Just as with panning, however, it might be well to toss out more than you keep when sifting through gold stories.

The current price of gold is in the $185-an-ounce neighborhood. "Ten years ago, that would have been a good price," said Rodman.

Today, he said, it makes mining marginal, at best. Last year, for the first time, Roaring Camp's mine turned a profit, Rodman allowed.

There is renewed interest in gold and its extraction from streams and mountains, according to Rodman, and he attributes this to the generally unstable economic climate in the country.

The expression "Good as gold" is widely accepted as more than a cliché.

One visitor to Roaring Camp claimed to be a miner in the Trinity Mountains, west of Redding. He complained that the government wanted $550,000 to allow him to activate one of his claims.

He boasted that he already was pulling down in excess of $20,000 from mining, and that his findings were quietly sold to San Francisco jewelers who asked no questions.

He said that there were families back in those mountains with 20-year-old children who had never seen a car.

Keep rotating that pan and shaking it, separating the gravel from the gold, the fiction from the fact.

"This will be one helluva year for finding gold," predicted a Sacramento man, Steve Pitsker. He reasons that the heavy rain and subsequent runoff has dislodged long-hidden gold.

Of course, the dry years were good, too, because miners and panners were able to get to places normally inaccessible during high water.

Pitsker's business is selling pans, dredges, picks, whatever you need to find gold.

Keep chipping away, ever alert for nuggets of gold and truth.

Rodman, who freely admits to a 10 percent deviation from the truth on his tours — "I'll try to keep it at 5 percent tonight because there's a newsmen along" — advises that low water is best for small dredges, the size most weekend gold rushers use.

The cost of a dredge can vary anywhere from $200 to $3,500, and the size from 25 to more than 700 pounds.

Panning for gold, amazingly enough, requires a pan. Not any old pan. Ideally, it will be 12 to 15 inches across, about two inches deep with sloping sides and made of steel.

A new pan should be "blued" before using. That is, heated to turn it dark. All the better for the gold to show up in.

Color is the reason copper and enamelware pans are inferior to steel.

You wouldn't want to overlook your fortune and throw it out with the panning water.

All that's absolutely essential for panning is the pan. Other helpful items are shovel, pick, trowel, magnet, magnifying glass, tweezers and glass vials.

Pans are available at most hardware stores and some gift shops in this area.

What isn't so readily available is instruction on the proper way to pan. Simply sloshing around some gravel and water in a pan practically guarantees you will find no treasure.

This is where Rodman comes in. Five times a week he conducts tours of Roaring Camp, a mining area in Mokelumne Canyon with an active and colorful past.

Much of the activity is authenticated by existing ruins. Some of the color is provided by Rodman's running dialogue.

Tours are run every day except Monday and Friday, but the featured trip is Wednesday night.

At 5, Rodman assists tourists into the back of a flatbed truck and sets off six miles into the canyon. The descent is 2,000 feet in those six miles.

The road is not easily mistaken for a freeway.

As the truck churns along, Rodman, who came here 40 years ago from Minnesota, chatters.

History is scattered along the road and Rodman neglects none of it. Ancient aqueducts, traces of old mining camps, the remains of settlements and a hanging tree, adorned with a fresh rope, are pointed out. Wildlife scurries into the brush. A stop is made at the Fountain of Youth, a spring.

At the mining site there is a small general store, cabins rented by the week by gold seekers and anglers, horses prancing in a corral and the mining operation.

Visitors sit down to a steak dinner about dusk on Wednesdays. But not before a tour of the grounds and a lesson in panning from John Triplett, who also tends to Rodman's day-to-day mining chores.

Most common mistake of novice panners, said Triplett, is working too fast, not allowing the heavy material, including gold — which is nine times heavier than gravel — to settle to the bottom of the pan as the contents are swirled around and shaken.

Camp David agreements get rejection by Syria, PLO

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the two biggest Arab threats to Israel, both rejected the Camp David agreements today as expected.

Begin speaks to Israelis in Hebrew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin directed brief remarks in Hebrew to the Israeli people Sunday night during a White House ceremony at which the agreement on a framework for a Middle East peace was announced.

"When you hear these words it will be morning in Israel, an early hour, and the sun will shine in the land of our fathers and sons," Begin said, according to an unofficial translation.

"I can tell you this: we have made every possible human effort up to now in order that the day may come when each of us can say, peace has come to our people and our land — not only in this generation but also for generations to come," he continued.

"With the help of God, together, we will achieve this goal, and we will be blessed with good days of construction and brotherhood and understanding. May this be God's will."

"There can be no Middle East peace without the PLO," said Yasser Arafat's official spokesman in Beirut, Mahmoud Labadi. "The Camp David agreements totally ignores the right of the Palestinians to nationhood and an independent state."

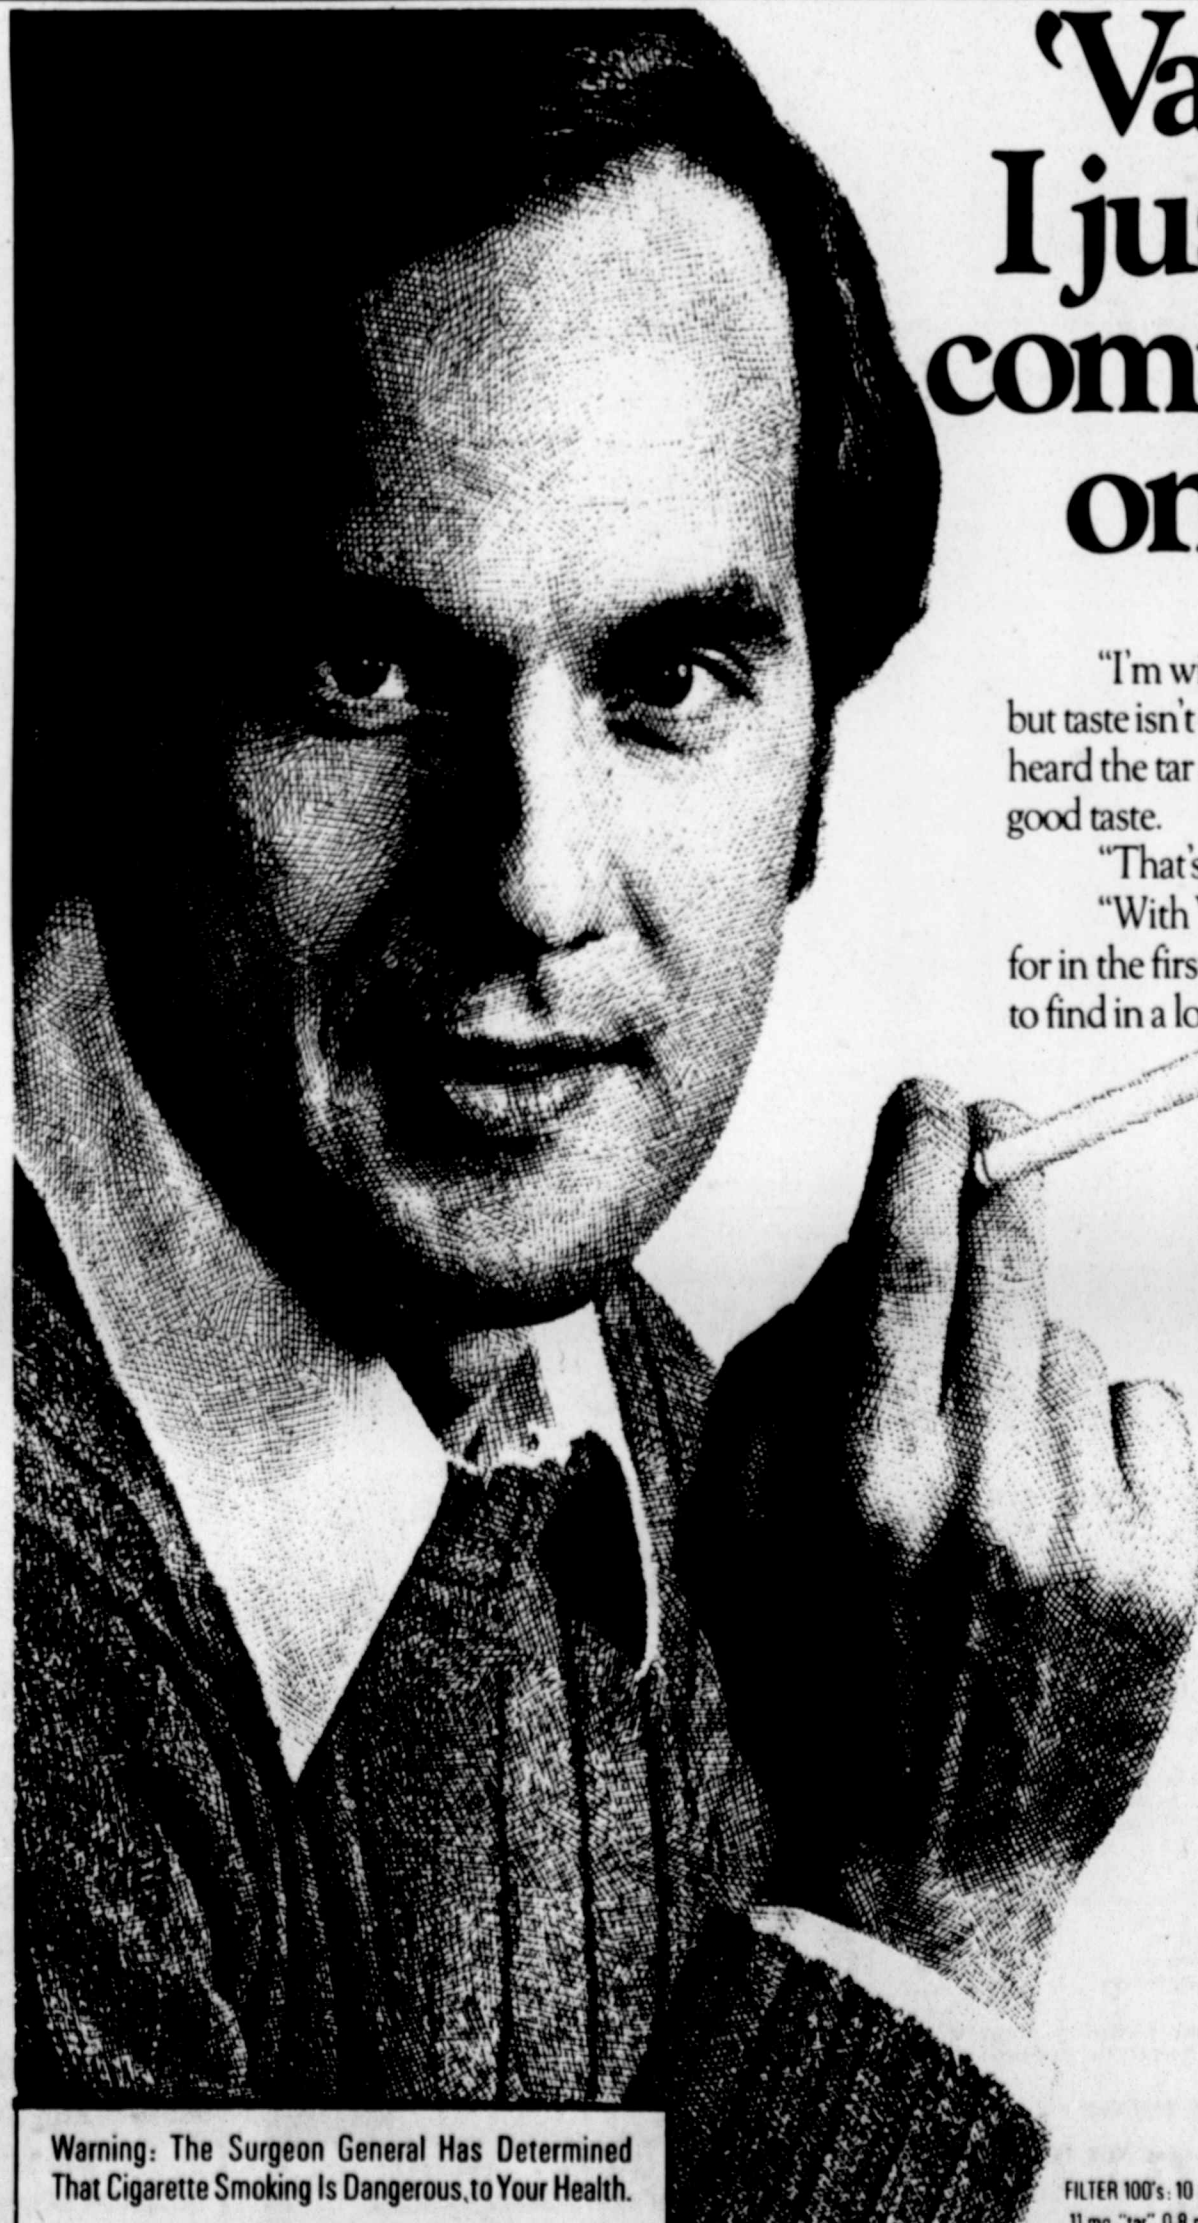

The Syrian government radio said the outcome of the Camp David summit would "bring no peace to the Arab world and will solve no problems." The broadcast reiterated that Syrian President Hafez Assad's government had committed itself in advance to reject any agreement President Anwar Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin might reach.

Labadi said the five-year transition period for the West Bank of the Jordan to which Sadat and Begin agreed "means a legality facade of five more years of Israeli occupation."

"The agreement also ignores any reference to Syria's occupied Golan Heights," he continued. "Therefore the Middle East will remain a flash-point in the world, a spot of tension, because the new accords settle none of the real problems."

Other sources in the guerrilla movement complained that the framework agreed on at Camp David took into account only one third of the Palestinians, those living in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, and ignored the 2 million other Palestinians in Arab countries and in Western countries.

Syria and the PLO head a hard-line Arab front that has vowed to block Sadat's unilateral attempt to make peace with Israel.
