Hussein cool on Vance visit

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance failed to win Jordan's backing for the Camp David accords and flew to Saudi Arabia today to seek that powerful kingdom's help in the U.S.-mediated peace plan.

In seeking their support, Vance will remind Saudi officials of the deal the Carter administration pushed through Congress to sell F-15 fighter planes to their country.

Jordanian Foreign Minister Has-sain Ibrahim, standing with Vance at Amman airport, said Jordan still has reservations about the Camp David plan's failure to deal with the question of the ultimate status of the Israeli-occupied West Bank and the Palestinian people.

But in his meetings with King Hussein the American received a commitment for a continuing dialogue with Jordan on its critical role in the peace process as envisaged by the Camp David agreements. American diplomats found it encouraging that Jordan was willing to continue consideration of the plan.

Vance's stop in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, was the second and perhaps the most critical on his three-nation tour to sell the peace framework worked out by President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. The diplomatic drive is aimed at preventing the formation of a unified Arab front against the plan.

In the West Bank today, Israeli soldiers began dragging ultra-nationalist Jews from a mountaintop where they were trying to set up an outpost in defiance of the Begin government's agreement to suspend establishment of settlements for three months under the Camp David plan.

Meanwhile, Syria's foreign minister said Vance's visit to Damascus Saturday would have no effect on President Hafez Assad's unequivocal rejection of the Sadat-Begin agreements and all Sadat's dealings with the Israelis.

Carter spokesmen insisted during the administration's bitter fight last spring to sell the Saudis 60 F-15s that the sale was part of a plan to bolster American influence with the conservative Arab government in an effort to achieve a peace settlement for Israel.

Vance has two other levers to use on King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd: the network of business and military contacts between the two countries.

It takes a lot more than rolling up his sleeves or wearing a pair of waders to keep city Street Department worker Ignacio Rubio dry today. He and fellow worker Juan Juarez were busy towing stalled cars away from the front of Goddard Junior High School on Haynes Avenue this morning. The water inside the car he is standing on was above the seats when Rubio opened the door. (Staff photo by Mike Kardos)

Abilene finally wet; Liquor legalized too

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The sale of liquor and beer was legal in Abilene today for the first time since Prohibition Days.

The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission issued two permits for off premise beer sales to Skinny Inc. Wednesday shortly after a decision by the Texas Supreme Court.

Another off premise beer permit, one for sale of mixed drinks and a wholesale liquor distributor's license were approved later.

Texas' highest court said Wednesday that an Austin district judge had no right to interfere with an Abilene local option election over the sale of liquor and beer.

Wednesday's hearing in the Texas Supreme Court resulted from a June 17 local option election in Abilene on legal sale of beer and liquor. A July 10 vote canvass showed the "drys" won by a narrow vote. Then an Abilene district judge wiped out the July 10 vote on grounds that ballots from voting Precinct 19 were not counted and a July 20 canvass showed the "wets" won by a narrow margin.

Anti-liquor forces brought the legal fight to Austin and obtained a court order on Aug. 8 from District Judge Charles Mathews that voided the "wets" victory and said the July 10 decision for the "drys" would stand.

Both the "wets" and "drys" filed election contest suits in Abilene but neither has been set for hearing.

The Alcoholic Beverage Commission asked the Supreme Court to tell it what to do, specifically asking that Mathews' decision be cancelled.

"The mandamus is granted that Judge Charles Mathews issue an order setting aside his judgement of Aug. 8," the Supreme Court said Wednesday after hearing an hour and a half of argument. No motion for a rehearing would be considered.

"It concerns me that the counting of votes in Abilene is being interrupted by what happens here in Austin," said Associate Justice Jack Pope.

"Neither the attorney general's department nor the Alcoholic Beverage Commission cares whether Precinct One in Abilene goes wet or dry," said Assistant Attorney General Max Flusche, representing the commission. "We are here with the argument that this should be litigated in Taylor County not Travis County."

"We are here because the Alcoholic Beverage Commission made an arbitrary decision and took the latest dated vote canvass as a basis to issue permits," said Buck Wood, attorney for anti-liquor forces. "The only way we could perpetuate the dry victory (of the July 10 canvass) was to sue the ABC in Travis County."

Mary Joe Carroll, speaking for the anti-liquor group, warned that if the Supreme Court voided Mathews' order the election contest suits in Abilene would be dismissed.

"This court is deciding if Abilene is wet or dry," she said.

Heavy rains lash Basin

By ED TODD and LANA CUNNINGHAM
R-T Staff Writers

More than five unofficial inches of rain fell over parts of Midland during the night and morning and caused light flooding in parts of town.

Six of the nine buildings at Midland College were partly flooded and either leaking around the foundations or roof and column or at all places, George Smith, the college's superintendent of grounds, said this morning.

"It means we've got three buildings that ain't leaking," Smith said. Undaunted by the rain and runoff were the Administration Building, the Student Center and the Science Faculty Building.

Workers were mopping up or pumping water from other buildings, including the Chaparral Center, Fine Arts Building, Occupational Technical Building and the Learning Resource Center (the library), Smith said.

Slightly more than three inches of rainfall fell over the campus in northernmost Midland.

"I haven't seen it rain like this since Pearl Harbor," said George Parker, who gauged four inches of rain at his home at 104 Club Drive near Wadley-Barron Park in central Midland.

Steady rain fell for three or four days following the Japanese attack of United States naval and air forces at the Pearl, he recalled.

He said the steady, overnight rain here is "reminiscent of '68," when a heavy downpour caused widespread flooding in Midland and particularly in the Scharbauer Draw vicinity.

A low lying portion of U.S. Highway 80 fronting Midland Regional Airport was closed this morning due to rising flood water. Traffic was routed to the service roads, said a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The rain gauge atop The Reporter-Telegram Building measured five inches at 10 a.m. today.

"The street is completely covered. You can't see the curb or anything," said Hattie Hudson, who lives in the 2600 block of Haynes Avenue.

According to the weatherman, after going through a period of drought not long ago, the Midland area found itself with a "perfect combination" for moisture about 6 p.m. Wednesday.

By mid-morning today, that combination had brought more rain to Midland than was expected for the month of September.

After a shower late Wednesday, rain began falling steadily early today, and Midlanders found themselves fighting flooded streets on their way to work.

At the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library & Hall of Fame in south central Midland, more than 4.50 inches was gauged at noon today, said Delton Simmons, the museum's building superintendent.

The land facing the museum had turned into a lake, he said, but there was no danger of water seeping or running to the building.

Several streets were completely flooded by 9 a.m. today and others were partly flooded, according to the Midland Police Department.

Streets reported as being totally submerged were A Street, Illinois Avenue, Golf Course Road and parts of Andrews Highway. Wadley Avenue was reported "blocked off" at both ends.

Trouble with high water was reported on Haynes, Ward, Carver, Scharbauer Drive, North H. Louisiana and Terrell streets, FM 888 and the 500 block of West Industrial.

Water at one end of Goddard Junior High was reported to be waist deep.

A spokesman for the school said one end of the football field is the end of a drainage ditch and is lower than the rest of the area. Cars were stalled in Haynes Avenue there, he said, and the street was blocked.

According to one report, water in the stalled cars near Goddard was up to the seats inside the car.

As the rain accumulated in Midland, the number of accidents also increased, according to the Police Department. Since 6 p.m. Wednesday 21 accidents were reported.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport recorded 1.7 inches of rain in a 24-hour period

Cotton conditions ideal

This rain, as any country bumpkin knows, is ideal for tall cotton. It's just coming at the wrong season and is too late to do much good for this year's crop.

But it'll soak the farmland, rangeland and gardens and will wash the streets clean. Fact is, it could clean out a town that's not used to gullywashers every now and then.

Anyway, tall cotton, like a gangling giant, is not always the best of the crop. There's usually too much stalk and leaf and not much fruit.

But that's not always true. Jimmy and Velma Stovall of Midland found that out by way of their gumbo, which they dearly relish.

"This is unbelievable," said Stovall, a Baptist minister, who fiddles around in his okra patch.

"The blossoms are beautiful," the wife said of the golden yellow blooms that appeal to bees and in time transform into seedy, fuzzy, green pods that lend themselves to gumbo and is so good fried in corn meal.

Some don't care for it just boiled, buttered and seasoned with salt and pepper. It's so slimy. But soupy gumbo is altogether tasty.

What struck Stovall's fancy about one particular stalk was its height: nine feet plus.

That's pretty tall even for an Aggie hybrid of a plant native to Africa.

The Stovalls planted about 3 1/4 rows of okra and planted some tomatoes and

A number of parents attempting to drop their children off at Midland schools were thwarted by high water early today. At least ten cars stalled in front of Goddard Junior High School, on Haynes Avenue. One stranded driver said she did not think the water actually was waist deep until "it was too late." Water seeped seat-high into many of the autos. (Staff photo by Mike Kardos)

David, the bubble boy, rests after some activity inside his bubble at Texas Children's Hospital in Houston. He has a rare blood disorder which leaves him without the ordinary ability to ward off disease-causing germs. (AP Laserphoto)

Boy in the germ-free bubble celebrates 7th birthday today

HOUSTON (AP) — David, who has lived his entire life inside a germ-free bubble, celebrated his seventh birthday with family and friends today and with hope that one day he'll be able to shed his plastic cocoon and run and play like other children.

David was born with a rare blood disorder that does not allow him to fight off disease-causing germs which constantly surround the body.

He lives in a sterile isolator at his home or at Texas Children's Hospital where a team headed by Dr. William T. Shearer is working on a cure for David and others like him.

To step out of his isolator would mean almost certain death.

"David's case is unique in the whole world," Dr. Shearer said. "There are no medical precedents. Unlike other children with SCID (severe combined immune deficiency), he has never been sick and is the longest surviving patient."

David's last name or the location of his home has never been revealed at the request of the parents.

Dr. Shearer stressed David is not a medical experiment.

"We have to consider now, what is most important to a child growing up," Shearer said. "David has not been left an object of medical curiosity with little development as a person. He hasn't been left in an incubator merely as a laboratory animal."

Brynn Holcombe, David's nurse, says the 45-pound youngster is making the best of his situation.

"He seems to be content at this point in time, he doesn't ask when he can get out of the isolator," Holcombe said. "He understands what is wrong with him in the simplest form and he realizes he has to stay in there."

Last year David took temporary adventures outside his isolator in a space suit designed at Johnson Space Center similar to those worn by U.S. astronauts. But he has since outgrown the suit, his nurse said.

"He's having as normal a childhood as possible under the circumstances," Holcombe said. "But he is anxious to get his new suit so he can do more exploring."

Dr. Murdina Desmond of Texas Children's Hospital said David currently is participating in classroom assignments and exchanging papers while remaining in isolation.

His first grade teacher visits four mornings a week to outline what the class is doing.

"He is in a give and take situation with his peer group now," Desmond said.

Midland girl reports rape

An 8-year-old Midland girl reportedly was assaulted early Wednesday on her way to elementary school, according to Midland police officers.

The incident was reported to police by Midland Memorial Hospital nursing personnel at 9:20 a.m. Wednesday.

Authorities said the alleged rape occurred about 9:10 a.m. in an alley in the 400 block of Dormard Avenue.

The victim was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital, said a hospital spokesman.

The girl told police a 17-year-old had raped and sexually abused her, according to reports.

Authorities said the girl had returned home after the alleged attack, and that her mother took her to the hospital.

Police said early today there was no one in custody in connection with the case.

Inspection team checking Dallas for clues

DALLAS (AP) — Two of the 35,000 conventioners at the Veterans of Foreign Wars national gathering here in August contracted Legionnaire's Disease.

An inspection team from the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta visited several Dallas hotels Wednesday searching air conditioning systems, water coolers and other environmental items for clues to the illness' mysterious habits.

"We're still unsure as to how this disease is spread," said Dr. Stella Goings of the CDC. "The organism that causes the disease seems to like water."

Neither of the two cases involved a

Texas resident, but Dr. Goings said identification of those afflicted would have to come from local authorities. CDC officials in Atlanta reported both were "appropriately treated and doing well."

Dr. Goings said two other convention-related pneumonia cases were "presumptive" Legionnaire cases, and six other pneumonia cases gave no signs of being Legionnaire-suspect.

The VFW convention ended Aug. 25. Since the incubation period for the disease is 14 days, the doctor said there would be no reason to believe latent cases will be reported.

Dr. Lowell Berry of the Dallas City

Health Department said the disease is thought to be common, with some 15,000 to 45,000 cases occurring annually. Other outbreaks have been reported this year in New York City and Memphis, Tenn.

Dr. Berry said health authorities would work with VFW officials in Texas in attempts to locate additional cases. Dr. Goings said similar programs would be carried out in each state and territory represented at the convention.

Physicians have been alerted to report suspected Legionnaire's cases, and a special Dallas telephone number was circulated to doctors to use in such reporting.

The disease, a type of pneumonia, received its name two years ago when 29 persons who contracted it and died after an American Legion convention at Philadelphia.

Dr. Goings said that the bacteria that causes the disease appears to thrive in middle-aged males.

JA presents special award

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Straughan were the recipients of an engraved plaque and a framed resolution presented at a Wednesday noon meeting of directors of Junior Achievement of Midland, Inc., held in the Midland Hilton.

The special awards were presented in appreciation for Mr. and Mrs. Straughan having conducted a 14-week Dale Carnegie Course for 40 Midland Junior Achievers earlier this summer. The course was conducted without charge to the youths or to the J.A. organization. Straughan is the West Texas area representative for Dale Carnegie Courses with headquarters here.

The resolution was presented by Parker Humes, J.A. public relations chairman, and the plaque by President Joe Kloesel.

Both recipients responded briefly in accepting the honors. Straughan, in his remarks, offered to arrange and stage another course for J.A. members if desired by the directors. Applause indicated acceptance of the offer.

The directors, in their business session, heard Ray Galvin, chairman of the Counseling Firms and Advisers Committee, report that the 1978-79 J.A. program is under way with 19 counseling firms.

Ron Lloyd was named to fill a vacancy on the board created by the resignation of long-time director and past president Jack Seaman.

Thomas Bruner, Finance and Fund Drive chairman, said J.A.'s annual fund-raising effort will be launched Oct. 18. The goal is $60,000.

Brief reports also were made by Clarence Cardwell, Nominating; Winston Barclay, Long-Range Planning; Juanita Bryant, Project Business; and Gary Petersen, executive director.

Missing grain fugitive alive after all

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Farmers in the Wichita Falls area had mixed reactions to the FBI's announcement Wednesday that fugitive Bobby Johnson had been found alive, but they all agreed that it probably won't help them get their grain back. More than 400,000 bushels of grain were reported missing from Johnson's grain elevators in Iowa Park and Wichita Falls when he was reported to have drowned in the Gulf of Mexico in January 1977

Odessa woman charged

ODESSA — A 20-year-old Odessa woman was in custody in Ector County Jail early today in lieu of a total of $300,000 bond in connection with the alleged murder of three of her children, said a spokesman for the Ector County District Attorney's Office today.

Emma Jean Berry appeared before Peace Justice Harold Sligar Wednesday night on three charges of first degree murder, said Jerry Davis, a spokesman for the Ector County District Attorney's Office.

"All I can tell you at this time is that we have a 20-year-old woman in custody in connection with the deaths of three of her children in 1974, 1976 and 1978," he said.

"The children died by suffocation," Davis added.

Davis said a 10-month-old child died in 1974, a 2-month-old child died in 1976 and a 2-week-old child died in 1978.

He said the woman is being held in Ector County Jail in lieu of $100,000 on each of three counts of first degree murder.

10 new state judges expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas will receive 10 additional federal judges if Congress approves a House-Senate compromise.

Rep. Jack Brooks, the Beaumont Democrat who chaired the conference committee, said Wednesday he expects prompt approval of the conference report by both the House and the Senate.

Under the conference committee compromise, the Southern District of Texas will receive five additional judges — one more than the original House bill called for — while designation for the other three Texas districts remain the same. The Northern District will receive three with the Eastern and Western districts receiving one each.

The proposed additions will bring to 32 the number of federal trial judges in Texas.

The new judges will be appointed by President Carter although traditionally, the president appoints judges nominated by the senator of his party from a particular state — in Texas' case Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Both chambers of congress had agreed that the federal courts badly needed more judges but the bill had stalled over the proposed creation of an additional appeals court by splitting the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Although leaving the 5th circuit in one piece, the compromise would allow any circuit court with more than 15 judges to break itself into units for administrative convenience.

'AND HE'S GONNA HELP US SOLVE OUR DOLLAR PROBLEMS TOO'

ART BUCHWALD Buchwald opposes single choice; favors Lopez

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — A well-known columnist came into my office the other day and asked, "Who are you for, Somoza or the Commies in Nicaragua?"

"Why do I only have a choice between a dictator and the Communists? Why can't I be for Lopez?"

"Who's Lopez?"

"I don't know who Lopez is. Let's say he's the guy in the middle who hates Somoza and can't stand the Communists."

"Because Lopez would get eaten up by the Commies. If you're for the American interests in Central America you have to be for Somoza."

"I don't want to be for Somoza. He's a tyrant and from what I read, a crook. He's milked the country dry for 40 years. I hope he gets bounced out on his ear."

"What he is and what he does is not our concern. Do you realize if the other side kicks Somoza out, the Commies will have a dagger pointing right at the Panama Canal?"

"Maybe so. But it's obvious Somoza can't hold on much longer, and we should see to it that Lopez is pro-American too. We're not going to do it if we keep training Somoza's national guard officers to shoot the Nicaraguan people."

"So what you're saying is that we should get in bed with Castro?"

"I'm saying no such thing. All I'm saying is that I don't see why we always have to support a military junta when the people want to throw the rascals out."

"It's quite simple. Most of the generals in South America have been trained at West Point, including Somoza. They speak good English and you can do business with them. You let the people take over and you'll have another Cuba in six months."

"Not if we support Lopez," I said. "The reason the Commies have a chance of taking over is because the people know we're on Somoza's side."

"You're living in a dream world," the columnist said. "Lopez doesn't have the strength to run a middle-of-the-road government."

"He would if we gave him as much military hardware as we've given Somoza. The only thing that's keeping Somoza in power is the stuff we've sold him. Why can't we give it to Lopez?"

"Because if we give the stuff to Lopez it will eventually fall into the hands of the Commies when they topple him. The only way Lopez can stay in power is by being anti-American."

"The people of Nicaragua are only anti-American because they know we support Somoza. If we said we were supporting Lopez we wouldn't get ourselves in a Marxist box."

"How can you be so sure of Lopez? We know what we've got with Somoza. He may be a s.o.b. but he's OUR s.o.b."

"So that means we have to support s.o.b.'s all over the world because it's in our best interests?"

"Every time we don't get another Allende."

"But he was elected by the people and we knocked him off."

"With good reason. We haven't had to worry about Chile since."

"I'm not going to support Somoza no matter what you say."

"Okay, but when Lopez nationalizes the United Fruit Co.," my friend said, "don't come crying to me."

Camp David Accords

If broad smiles, cordial hand-claps and tremendous bear hugs mean anything, then the Camp David summit surely must have produced meaningful progress leading toward eventual peace in the Middle East.

And the announcements of the Camp David accords were presented in dramatic fashion, which undoubtedly touched the peace-loving people of the world.

Although meaningful in many respects, it should be realized by one and all that the accords do not constitute a peace treaty by any means. They merely open the way for renewed negotiations which, hopefully, will produce the desired result — peace in the Mideast.

In other words, the situation at this point is fragile, indeed, with many obstacles yet to be hurdled before peace becomes a reality.

This is not to detract in the least from the significance of the Camp David summit. As Dr. Guy Newman, president-emeritus of Howard Payne University, said in a Constitution Week address here a few nights ago, the conference at Camp David was one of the most important sessions of the century. It was just that.

President Jimmy Carter certainly must be credited with whatever success eventually comes from Camp David. The summit gamble was an act of presidential courage. He has done something no other president has done. Mr. Carter, Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat assumed tremendous risks in meeting at the summit, and then in the actions taken there. They are courageous leaders, working to bring lasting peace to a troubled part of the globe.

Already, however, some differences, due perhaps to misinterpretation, have surfaced. King Hussein of Jordan hasn't helped with his declaration that Jordan has no "legal or ethical commitment" to the summit decisions. But there is a possibility that he eventually will join in the negotiations.

Mr. Begin appears to be in hot water with his party, although he seems to have parliamentary support. Mr. Sadat also has some political problems. But both men face the future with courage and confidence.

They now have their real work cut out for them in selling the Camp David agreements — back home.

The peace-loving world wishes them well.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Trough is deep, free-flowing

WASHINGTON — The federal trough is so deep and free-flowing, and the bureaucrats who shovel out taxpayers' money so disorganized, that a determined entrepreneur can skip from one lucrative contract to the next no matter how dismal his performance record.

One contractor with just such a knack is Dr. Raymond Thabet, the county coroner in Mansfield, Ohio. Government investigators are trying to figure out how he has managed to keep the federal dollars flowing for six years, despite a history of costly and often questionable work for Uncle Sam.

Thabet's laboratory, Automated Medical Services, is a million-dollar-a-year operation based in a rundown house in Mansfield. Investigations by the FBI, the Justice Department, the General Accounting Office and local officials have somehow failed to interrupt its steady diet of government contracts.

Thabet's first federal snack was in 1972, when his modest laboratory was awarded a $20,000 contract to analyze blood samples of air traffic controllers for the Federal Aviation Administration. The agency was studying the stress experienced by the men who make split-second, life-or-death decisions for millions of air travelers.

After a year and a half, recalls FAA attorney R. Bruce Carter, "we determined that this contract was not going to produce." He said Thabet complained that the work was impossible to perform, though the Navy had been conducting such analyses for years.

The case was eventually settled out of court. But when the FAA retrieved the frozen blood samples, Carter said, it turned out that they had been thawed out and re-frozen. They were about as useful as defrosted popsicles. "We just had to drop the whole project," Carter said.

Undeterred by this minor setback, Thabet plucked an even juicier plum from the federal money tree in 1975: a $175,000 contract from the Environmental Protection Agency to test the levels of pesticides in fetal tissues. Evidently unaware of Thabet's prior record, EPA stuck with him for two years, to the tune of $319,000. To this day, the agency says it hasn't gotten an acceptable final report from Thabet's studies.

Complaints that mothers being tested in the delicate research program had not been asked for their consent prompted Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Mo., to order a federal probe. The investigators are checking the accuracy of the county coroner's lab work. Local officials have also started digging into the case.

Meanwhile, the Air Force, apparently unaware that Thabet was having problems with his government work, awarded him a contract to test the Pap smears of thousands of military women for cervical cancer and other uterine infections. After several complaints, Air Force technicians re-examined 1,290 Pap smears that Thabet had tested and found problems with 3 percent that he had pronounced normal. The Air Force let its contract with Thabet expire, but had to go to court and call in the FBI in an attempt to retrieve the 32,000 Pap smears in Thabet's possession.

The federal government isn't Thabet's only dissatisfied customer. Several Planned Parenthood clinics in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan which used his laboratory are urging their members to have their Pap smears retested. One official said the new tests are turning up problems that Thabet's lab failed to discover.

Footnote: Asked for comment, Thabet's office referred our reporter Vicki Warren to the coroner's attorney, David Kane. "There was no negligence in the contract with the Air Force," Kane said. He added that Thabet is suing some local newspapers for charging that the doctor buried fetuses behind his laboratory and steered county business to his own firm. The attorney refused further comment.

PRIVATE DOSSIERS: A private police association which has benefited from $1 million in federal funds has been poking into the private lives of Americans for more than 15 years. The Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit (LEIU) has been compiling criminal dossiers on Mafia figures, but its files also include the names of some political dissidents.

The California-based group, which shares its criminal data with more than 200 police agencies, which are members in the United States and Canada, insists that its secret files are just about 100 percent organized crime. "But we have obtained some of the group's confidential files, which indicate it has been keeping track of members of such political groups as the American Indian Movement, Students for a Democratic Society and the Black Panthers.

The names of individuals have been excised from the files, but they provide an ominous sampling of civil rights and antiwar activists who have been lumped in with the chieftains of organized crime.

One was described as "active in peace demonstrations and marches. She is an agitator and narcotic user." Another was reported to have "travelled with a most violent element. Drinks and ... travels with small group which has been known to assault on or off-duty officers." Another person's card admitted that he had no criminal record, but detailed his political organizing activities.

LEIU chairman Steven Bertucelli told our reporter Deborah Goldberg that his files have information on non-criminal Americans because they might someday become involved in "major criminal conspiracies." He said his outfit is now purging information that is "only pertinent to the time it was collected." The General Accounting Office has now started an investigation.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." — Mat. 5:3.

West's eyes on Iran

The United States can play no direct role in the resolution of Iran's mounting internal problems. But it shares with Western Europe and Japan a vital stake in the consequences of Iran's social and political turmoil.

By hurrying his 30 million countrymen along the road to a modern industrial society, Iran's monarch, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, has incurred the wrath of a conservative Moslem hierarchy.

That, and the Shah's frequently authoritarian rule, have led to growing internal protest marked by violent demonstrations, riots and acts of terrorism. For Iran's friends and allies, there are matters of profound concern.

Through the Persian Gulf and the Straits of Hormuz, both controlled by Iran, flows the bulk of Western Europe's petroleum, more than 80 percent of Japan's oil supplies and a substantial part of the almost 8 million barrels of oil imported every day by the United States.

Iran not only sits astride the West's oil lifeline, but it also directly bars its northern neighbor, the Soviet Union, from access to those oil routes.

Furthermore, Iran is a key to the stability of a region which includes Pakistan, Afghanistan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf oil states.

The Soviet Union's strategy of encircling the Red Sea-Persian Gulf oil routes and its recently enhanced influence over the Marxist junta now ruling Afghanistan make the maintenance of a stable, strong Iran more vital than ever to the West.

Oil, geography and the Shah's aggressive leadership have thrust Iran into the role of a pivotal regional power. Maintenance of this status, with all that it entails for the West, hinges on the Shah's ability to defuse the crisis which has erupted within his country.

Camp David agreements: much unfinished business

WASHINGTON — After the intoxication of President Carter's Sunday night peace party, featuring Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat, the hangover has set in.

Thirty years of suffering by Arabs and Israelis means that a signing of peace documents will cause euphoria, but realistically, there is only an improvement in the Middle East, not resolution of the really tough problems.

The "framework" documents are clearly a victory for Israel and Begin, a Barry Goldwater of a man, devoid of artifice. He might embarrass some Israeli fans, but he is the essence of Israel, and makes no bones about it.

President Carter has a major accomplishment here, and it is unfortunate that his political savants are already licking their chops over the prospect of a quick rise in the polls for their man. Still, Carter deserves a salute for even trying to get a comprehensive settlement of the complicated problems in the Middle East. No other President has made this kind of effort.

The Camp David Agreements, if they are to be called that, provide Anwar Sadat with a means of getting home. His nation is weary of war, poor, and in need of peace, revived spirit, and economic betterment. He must have figured it was all worth it.

These agreements certainly don't bring peace and justice to the Middle East. What they do is bring two major powers — Egypt and Israel — into the negotiations process.

It is interesting that the phrase, "legitimate rights of the Palestinians — a term the Israelis abhorred, is included in the comprehensive agreement. While the pact does not guarantee West Bank Arab residents (virtually the entire population) a Palestinian state, it does provide self-autonomy, and puts the spotlight on Israel to allow justice to come to these people.

Begin made a tactical mistake Monday by emphasizing that Israel only agreed to halt settlement activity on the West Bank for five years during the peace negotiations, and also might have troops there for as long as 15 years.

This sort of qualifying only hours after euphoria, plus Begin's announcement that the U.S. will build two airfields in the Negev desert to replace those being turned back to Egypt, demonstrates both that Begin gave little at Camp David and that he is an out-front, guideless fellow (an admirable trait).

The problems between Israel and Egypt were the easiest, and they are now on their way to a final resolution separate and distinct from the tough issues of the West Bank and two million Palestinians outside Israel and the occupied territories.

The Palestinians want a homeland, and they are getting the fuzzy promise of one in this agreement. But the Palestinian refugees in Lebanon and other nations (over one million in all) can't be happy with the agreement.

Sadat left them out of the deal, and this can only mean that there will be escalation of terrorist activity (freedom fighting, if you are a Palestinian) against Israel. Since this violence emanates from Lebanon, that means the Israelis will be dispatching their hot jet bombers over Lebanese villages ostensibly to kill Palestinians, but more likely taking great tolls of Lebanese civilians as well.

Lebanon is an abattoir. The Palestinians concentrated there after being chased out of Jordan. Then the Lebanese Christians formed their "state within a state," and with the help of Syrian troops, tried to subdue the Palestinians. Finally, the Syrians turned on the Lebanese Christians, and the bloodletting continued, often abetted by Israeli air raids.

If all goes well, by Christmas, Egypt will no longer be a threat to Israel. Then, Israel can concentrate on the Lebanese situation, and that could mean trouble. Who will make the peace then?

The U.S. has greatly increased its involvement in the Middle East as a result of the Camp David Summit. Surely, there were private assurances made, such as the airfields promise Begin announced. Egypt will get more economic aid, and Israel undoubtedly got pledges of more military assistance.

With the U.S. as the major power which has taken on a peacekeeper role, what leverage do we have if Israel gets involved in Lebanon, or if the Arab population on the West Bank doesn't accept the settlement others made?

And with Arab unity broken by Sadat's go-it-alone decision, will the radical Arab forces become more determined to step up hit-and-run, guerrilla warfare?

We are a long way from peace and justice in the Middle East.

Car theft: It's still a matter of taking your keys

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a five-part series on auto theft, the scope of the problem and its impact on the Permian Basin.

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

Once every 32 seconds a vehicle is stolen in the United States.

In 1977 at least 948,024 cars were stolen, according to authorities.

Some vehicles are stolen for profit while others are taken merely for "joyrides," and later abandoned. Rarely are they recovered in one piece.

TO STOP CAR THEFTS experts advise locking the car after removing the ignition keys. Of stolen cars recovered by the Texas Department of Public Safety, 20 percent had ignition keys in them at the time they were "ripped off," according to a DPS survey.

DPS personnel recommend buzzer systems inside cars, locks different from the ignition and alarm systems.

Nationally, experts said 40 percent of all stolen cars are driven away with the keys left in them.

Officials said 300,000 vehicles stolen each year are never recovered.

While 70 percent of the vehicles stolen nationwide are recovered, about 14 percent of these thefts are cleared by an arrest in America.

"Lock your car campaigns," along with such anti-theft devices as locking systems, out-off switches and security alarms help somewhat, according to experts.

HOWEVER, NEW LAWS such as a proposal by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to make anti-theft devices standard equipment go even further in protecting such property, according to experts.

Officials of the National Automobile Theft Bureau's Southwestern Division office in Dallas said they see two encouraging developments in auto theft.

First, a large package of new criminal justice legislation — including specific laws to control Texas salvage yards — was enacted in 1977.

Second, the DPS Motor Vehicle Theft Service has received appropriations to increase staff by 25 percent.

Still, the problem offers as many challenges as there are potential solutions.

DURING THE FIRST THREE months of this year, the DPS said 38 auto theft rings were identified in Texas; 542 law enforcement agencies were aided by DPS auto theft special investigators; authorities recovered $2,036,272 in stolen vehicles; criminal charges were filed in 129 court actions, and 136 auto theft-related arrests were made.

Still, the Texas Crime Prevention Institute, headquartered on the campus of Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, has developed a brochure on taking precautions against auto theft. It has been distributed to auto theft agencies statewide.

"AUTO THEFT IS ONE of the fastest growing crimes this nation faces today," said Darrell Joy, director of the Texas Crime Prevention Institute. "Our whole thrust is to tell people what they can do to minimize their chances of becoming a crime victim."

The brochure and two 30-second television spots on auto theft prevention grew out of consultations with state agencies, he said. To develop this massive public education and awareness effort on prevention of auto theft, the institute plans a cooperative effort among that entity, the DPS and National Auto Theft Bureau.

Contributions from insurance companies are expected to match monies from the Criminal Justice Division to fund the effort.

A PAMPHLET ENTITLED "Stop Auto Thieves," is packed with precautions and suggestions on parking, protecting valuables and security devices.

Key advice on the brochure says chances of being victimized by an auto thief will be "tremendously reduced" if the driver will: LOCK YOUR CAR and TAKE YOUR KEYS.

A spokesman for the brochure said 80 percent of all cars stolen are unlocked and that 40 percent of these have the keys. He added, "Unbelievable. The most expensive single investment (other than a home) is left unlocked and up for grabs each day by millions of car owners. Is it any wonder that two cars are stolen every minute?"

Anti-theft devices have been proposed for the 1981 cars, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Automobile manufacturers would be required to install the devices, primarily to level their sights on

GOP tax cut faring poorly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican efforts to guarantee tax cuts in future years are faring poorly against Democratic opposition, despite the likelihood that President Carter will ask Congress next year to pass additional reductions.

The difference in approach is that Democrats generally oppose committing the government now to tax cuts beyond 1979 on grounds it is impossible to forecast how the economy will be faring in the future.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, offered colleagues on the panel another reason Wednesday to cut taxes a year at a time.

"Think of all the joy you'd be missing (by not being able to vote for tax cuts) in future years," he said. "There won't be anything left to cut."

If Congress approves a big phased-in reduction for business, Long added, "it's going to come back from the president's desk with a big veto on it and it's going to be sustained."

Long's point did not fall on deaf ears. In two cliff-hangers, the committee voted against automatic individual tax cuts to help offset inflation and against a sharp reduction in corporate taxes over the next six years.

The issues were not decided until three hours after the committee adjourned, when Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., telephoned in his "no" votes.

Tied up in the Senate Energy Committee, he had missed the earlier voting. Haskell's delayed vote meant a 9-8 margin against the guaranteed cuts for individuals and a 9-9 tie, which loses, on the corporate reductions.

The Republican plan to help insulate individual taxes against inflation was offered after the GOP-backed Roth-Kemp three-year tax cut was rejected by the committee, as it had been by the House.

But the votes do not necessarily mean there will be no more tax cuts in the next few years. The Carter administration has said on numerous occasions that, barring a drastic shift in the economy, Congress will need to consider new tax-cut bills in 1979 and 1980.

Without such protection, said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chief sponsor of the plan, the government will be taking more in taxes from workers whose spendable incomes have been frozen or reduced because of inflation.

"All we are saying is that we are not going to tax the American people on inflation," he said.

Long said, however, that insulating people against inflation would make it more difficult to fight inflation.

And Donald Lubick, assistant secretary of the treasury, said the Dole plan, which likely would cost a total of $18 billion in 1980 and 1981, would "make it extremely difficult for us to maintain a budget deficit that is manageable."

Dole's amendment would require that during those two years, the personal exemption and the standard deductions be increased by the same percentage as inflation, and that individual tax rates be cut by the same proportion.

Bentsen outlines cost-cutting bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has urged the president to include in his anti-inflation program legislative measures aimed at rolling back the cost of government regulation.

In a Wednesday letter to Carter, Bentsen specifically listed four bills that he has introduced designed to trim regulatory costs.

"I am concerned that Phase II of your anti-inflation program may not address one of the major causes of our current inflation — the enormous costs imposed on consumers, taxpayers and businesses by unnecessary and often ill-conceived government rules and regulations," Bentsen said in the Texas Democrat.

Carter's new anti-inflation plans are expected to be unveiled later this week.

"Recent witnesses before the Joint Economic Committee have estimated that government regulations cost the economy more than $100 billion annually, almost $500 for every man, woman and child in the country," continued Bentsen.

The senator also listed four bills — two of which have already been introduced — aimed at "controlling this sad source of inflation."

One of Bentsen's bills would cut back regulatory costs by 25 percent during next five years and the other would eliminate conflicting or overlapping regulations.

The two bills already introduced call for a lid on the costs individual government agencies could impose on the private sector each year and require independent regulatory agencies to comply with a Presidential order reforming the regulatory review process.

Advice listed in the pamphlet tells a victim first to notify the local law enforcement agency. Next, give authorities as much information about the vehicle as possible. Third, tell authorities of valuable items missing.

OTHER ADVICE offered is: — Don't pick up hitchhikers. — Keep car doors locked while driving.

— Report suspicious cars and persons to the police. — Record license and vehicle identification numbers and keep them in a wallet or purse. — If the car breaks down on the road and must be left for any length of time, notify the police to check it periodically to protect it from theft or vandalism.

— Assist in prosecution if the car is stolen. — Authorities said people should not leave valuable possessions in view of those looking through car windows.

To summarize, officials said auto theft is a highly sophisticated and very expensive big business. For that reason, they urge citizens to take all precautions, lock their cars after removing their keys and use common sense.

Following advice of local crime prevention police officers and deputies also is stressed.

Officials said the chances of a citizen having his car stolen are one in 30. Citizens should not gamble on their only means of transportation, law officials urge.

As Arvin Kilpatrick of the Midland DPS, who is among West Texas' experienced auto theft investigators, said, "Thieves take no holidays."

Anti-theft devices sought by 1981

joyriding thieves.

The devices include protected ignition wires to prevent a car from being started without a key, hood latches that can be released only from inside the car and rounded door lock mechanisms that prevent a door from being opened by poking a coat hanger through a window crack.

Many newer model automobiles already include one or more of the protective systems that would be required by the proposal, announced by the department's National Highway Safety Administrator.

Joan Claybrook, the agency's administrator, said the proposal is aimed mostly at thwarting young thieves who steal vehicles for transportation or to steal parts.

"The joyrider thief is involved in at least a third of the actual number of vehicles stolen, but accounts for a very large majority of stolen vehicles that are later involved in accidents," she said.

Ms. Claybrook said about one million vehicles were stolen in the United States during 1976, and that the cost to society is in the billions of dollars each year. She added that stolen cars cause about 130 fatalities and 5,000 disabling injuries annually.

The proposed changes would be effective beginning with 1981 model passenger cars and 1982 model multipurpose vehicles and trucks with a gross vehicle weight of less than 10,000 pounds.

The traffic safety administration estimated the manufacturers' cost of installing the security devices would be $1 to $2 per passenger car and $3 to $5 for each light truck and multipurpose vehicle.

The proposed changes would require the following:

— The hood latch must be releasable only from the passenger compartment.

— The ignition key must be different from the door and trunk keys.

— Installation of door lock buttons that cannot be opened by external devices such as a coat hanger.

— Door locking mechanisms inside the panel must be shielded to prevent tampering.

— The ignition system must have a capacity to become inoperable if the ignition lock is moved.

— Ignition wires must be protected to reduce hotwiring starts.

— The ignition system alarm must be equipped to continue whenever the engine is turned off, the ignition key is left in the ignition and the door is opened.

Vorster's retirement not likely to change policy

By SERGE SCHEMANN

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster's resignation probably will plunge South Africa into new crises at home and abroad. But it means no major change in the government's racial policies.

Political observers expect a furious power struggle in the coming week among three powerful contenders for Vorster's job, and between the increasingly polarized liberal and conservative wings of the Afrikaner-dominated National Party.

Abroad, South Africa's decision to reject the U.N. independence plan for South-West Africa and to hold elections there before the black guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization can do much more campaigning for political support could lead to new clamor for economic sanctions against the white regime.

The decision is also expected to renew and intensify the SWAPO guerrillas' attacks from their bases in Angola.

Vorster announced Wednesday that he was resigning after 12 years in power because of his health. He said his government was retracting its acceptance of the Western-U.N. plan for the independence of South-West Africa because of "unacceptable" modifications: a 7,500-man U.N. force to be sent to the territory and postponement of the Dec. 31 independence date for nine months.

The preliminary wrestling to succeed Vorster at a party conference Sept. 28 has been so fierce that the influential Afrikaans newspaper Vaderland urged restraint and an end to "reprehensible methods."

The leading candidate is Defense Minister Pieter Willem Botha, 62, a life-long National Party faithful with a tough image as the man who sent troops into the Angolan civil war and then against SWAPO.

Botha has the added advantages of being leader of the Cape Province party organization and the senior member of the cabinet.

Next is Cornelius Petrus "Connie" Mulder, 53, the former minister of information who now handles relations with the non-whites. His standing was badly tarnished by a scandal in the Information Ministry earlier this year. But he has the firm backing of the Transvaal provincial party machine, which has by far the most members in Parliament. He is an ideological hard-liner who vows no blacks will ever get South African citizenship or the vote.

The third man map is Roelof Frederik "Pik" Botha, the 46-year-old foreign minister. Dapper, debonair and eloquent, he draws big crowds when he speaks and is regarded as the favorite of the liberal members of the party caucus.

Botha, incidentally, is a common name here, and Pik and Pieter are not related.

But whether a liberal or hard-liner is chosen, political observers say there is no likelihood that the National Party will abandon its fundamental apartheid policy, assigning the 19 million blacks to independent tribal homelands and allowing them in the rest of the country only as non-voting labor for white-controlled industries — will be abandoned.

David Curry, leader of the colored or mixed-race Labor Party, said Vorster's resignation was irrelevant to his people "because the policy of separate development will remain."

Closed session scheduled to discuss South-West Africa

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council planned to discuss South-West Africa in closed session today as Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and other officials put pressure on South Africa to reverse its decision to carry out its own plan for the territory's independence.

South African Prime Minister John Vorster announced on Wednesday that his government was retracting its acceptance of the U.N. plan for independence of South-West Africa, known to Africa's blacks and the U.N. as Namibia, because of "unacceptable" modifications to the original plan worked out in negotiations with the United States and four other Western Nations.

The modifications include postponement of the original Dec. 31 deadline for independence for nine months and plans to send a 7,500-man U.N. peacekeeping force to the territory.

South Africa fears the delay might give the militant South-West Africa People's Organization, which has been fighting a guerrilla war against South African along the northern border of the territory, time to line up a majority vote among the mostly black population. The Pretoria government also contends a 7,500-man

U.N. force, larger than it anticipated, would give SWAPO an "unfair psychological advantage."

Vorster said South Africa will go ahead with elections this year.

Donald F. McHenry, the American U.N. delegate who heads the five-nation Western group that worked for more than a year to get South Africa and SWAPO to accept the plan for U.N. supervision of the transition to independence, said he expected the Security Council to approve the plan. He urged everybody involved in the Namibian question to "exercise restraint if we are to keep the situation from deteriorating."

He said the South African move was a disappointment and an "additional obstacle to the search for peace...we will have to work very hard to overcome."

McHenry rejected Vorster's complaint that the U.N. plan, contained in a report by Waldheim to the Security Council, differed from the proposals worked out with the United States, Canada, Britain, France and West Germany.

He said the size of the peacekeeping force was never specified in the proposals.

White House furious with Begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp disagreement over Jewish settlements between President Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin is posing a growing threat to further Mideast peace negotiations.

White House officials, furious with Begin, insist that the Israeli leader committed himself at the Camp David summit to a moratorium on new Israeli settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River during the five-year period in which the territory's future is being shaped.

But Begin claimed Wednesday that he had agreed only to a three-month freeze while Israel and Egypt try to translate their Camp David framework into a formal peace treaty.

Begin said he would have to return to Israel and consult with his summit delegation as well as other Israeli leaders before he could come to final agreement on the new settlements, U.S. officials said. The prime minister told a Jewish group in New York, meanwhile, that he had gained major concessions from both Carter and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat twice by threatening to stalemate the summit meeting.

The question of new Jewish settlements on the West Bank was one of several unsettled issues that were left out of the two agreements reached in the talks. Another is the future of Jerusalem. Instead, Carter, Begin and Sadat decided to exchange letters giving their government's positions on these knotty problems.

The letters, which were to be exchanged within "a day or two," have yet to come out while the White House — and reportedly the president himself — grew angrier with Begin.

Reporters covering Carter's speech to the steelworkers union in Atlantic City, N.J., were allowed to glimpse a few lines of a provision, subsequently deleted at Camp David, which said that no new Israeli settlements would be established and that none already there would be expanded.

Carter made a hand-written notation that the future of the settlements would be decided among the negotiating parties. These are the Palestinians, including members of the Palestine Liberation Organization; Jordan and Egypt, along with Israel. The effect would be to give the Arabs a veto over new settlements.

In a related development, Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., proposed that Yasser Arafat or some other PLO leader be invited to Washington as a means of bringing the organization itself into peace negotiations.

Findley, ranking Republican on the House Mideast subcommittee, said he made the proposal to Carter at the White House on Monday and received a noncommittal reply from the president.

"I got the feeling that he had not foreclosed the possibility," Findley said.

$2,000 worth of tools taken from trailer

Ed Shoaff of Keys Construction Co. told Midland County Sheriff's deputies Monday an estimated $2,000 worth of tools had been taken from a trailer located at a construction site on West U.S. Highway 80 between the Coors Beer plant and another business.

Carla Bigham of the 1200 block of West Missouri Avenue told police at Tuesday afternoon a 10-speed bicycle had been taken from the same area.

Doug Pike of the 2400 block of Golf Course Road told police Tuesday of the theft of tools and a tool box valued $350 from the same address earlier.

Cathy Grace of the 2900 block of Franklin Avenue told police Monday afternoon of the apparent theft earlier that day of her billfold which contained $200 cash and a check for $1,300. The theft reportedly occurred in the vicinity of Carrows Restaurant, corner of Wall Avenue and Garfield Street.

Leroy Ledford of Route 1 told police Monday afternoon of the apparent theft of an estimated $4,000 worth of tools and equipment from B and D Manufacturing Co. in the 3100 block of West Front Street.

Midland citizens helping hospital purchase equipment

The generosity of Midland citizens has nearly cleared the equipment shopping list for Midland Memorial Hospital, Board of Trustees President M.A. Cappadonna told Board members Wednesday.

"We have had several people come forward to offer help" on the list of priority needs drawn up by a hospital committee, he said at the Board's regular meeting.

"The whole mood of the community in wanting to help with the equipment list is something we have been dreaming of," he said.

Donations have been promised both from the Hospital's Women's Auxiliary and from community donors, he noted.

Announcement of specific donations and the equipment involved will be made later, he said.

Cappadonna told the Board the Junior League of Midland also has funded the salary for a social worker to work in the city-county health services pre-natal clinic three days each week.

The addition of a social worker was one recommendation made by the trustee's advisory committee at the Wednesday meeting.

"We feel this will help us identify indigent patients early and provide better care and perhaps a better collection rate for the hospital," Cappadonna said.

Two Midland men jailed in connection with burglaries

Two Midland men were in City Jail late Wednesday after their arrest in connection with earlier burglaries, said authorities.

Ruben Perez Garcia, 31, of the 800 block of North Lee Street was handed over to Midland police officers by Odessa authorities at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in Odessa.

Midland Police officers had requested that the Odessa Police Department hold both Garcia and Paul Olguin Rodriguez, 35.

Garcia was transported from Odessa Police Department to the Midland City Jail by Detective Sgt. Jerry Compton, said a spokesman.

Garcia was being held late Wednesday in City Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond on a charge of burglary of a building and in lieu of $10,000 bond on a charge of burglary of a habitation after appearing before Peace Justice Robert H. Pine Tuesday, said authorities.

Midland police said the two were arrested in connection with two alleged burglaries committed earlier this month. The burglaries resulted in the loss of about $461 in property, police said.

bert H. Pine Tuesday.

Rodriguez, whose address was listed as being in the 600 block of North Terrell Street, was arrested by Odessa police officers at 3:22 p.m. Tuesday in Odessa, according to reports.

Odessa police officers brought Rodriguez to the Midland City Jail Tuesday, said authorities.

Rodriguez was being held in City Jail late Wednesday in lieu of $10,000 bond on a charge of burglary of a habitation and in lieu of $10,000 on a charge of burglary of a building after appearing before Peace Justice Robert H. Pine Tuesday, said authorities.

Midland police said the two were arrested in connection with two alleged burglaries committed earlier this month. The burglaries resulted in the loss of about $461 in property, police said.

Collection of tapestries now on display in Dallas museum

DALLAS — Two dozen European tapestries from the 15th through the 20th centuries are on exhibition at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts through Oct. 29.

Selected for quality and diversity, the tapestries in this collection vividly recall the days of kings and castles. In those times tapestries, in addition to warming chilly and drafty baronial halls, were used as books to tell stories, as instruction in religious and social beliefs and, not so incidentally, to advertise the accumulated wealth of their owner.

The Dallas Museum's Center Court, with appropriately towering ceilings and a feeling of openness, has been hung with these woven wall coverings to recreate the costumes and customs, the art and thought, of some of the great historical periods of Europe.

"Five Centuries of Tapestry: A Selection From the Collection of the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco," is the title of the new exhibit which was organized by the San Francisco museums under auspices of the American Federation of Arts.

In the earliest of the tapestries, "Rabbit-Hunting with Ferrets," an assorted group of peasants, noblemen, dogs, rabbits and ferrets are busily engaged in the pursuit of the day. The tapestry was woven at Tuouarnal around 1460. The most recent item in the exhibit, titled "California Poppies," was woven as a demonstration at the initial showing of the collection last year in San Francisco.

Among noteworthy wall hangings in the display which illustrate the variety of styles and subjects are the lavish "May Dance" (Brussels, 1700-1720) and the narrative "Simon the Magician (Franco-Flemish, 1475); other noteworthy items include the decorative "Scene of A Royal Court" and the dramatic "The Execution of Joan of Arc."

The Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, located in Fair Park, is open to the public at no charge weekdays and Sunday afternoons.

The Rush Dance Company, a vigorous and exciting modern dance troupe, is in Midland this week to conduct master classes in dance and to give a pair of public performances.

The dance events are taking place at Theatre Midland, the new home of Midland Community Theatre at 2000 W. Wadley Ave., as part of MCT's September celebration of the opening of the new $2.1 million theater structure.

The Rush Dance Company is offering master classes in modern dance to Midland area dancers. The class series will continue through today.

Public performances by the ensemble are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Theatre One, the 515-seat main theater within Theatre Midland. Tickets for the performances are priced $3 per person and are now on sale at the theater box office. Seat reservations for either event may be made by telephoning 682-4111.

The Rush ensemble was organized in 1974 by Patrice Regnier, the artistic director of the company. It is a small, tightly-knit, self-managing group of professionals. The five dancers, four of whom attended the Julliard School in Manhattan, have had training and performance experience with numerous well-known major dance ensembles. They have had strong training in ballet as well as being highly trained in the modern techniques of Jose Limon, Martha Graham and Merce Cunningham. The company has given more than 200 public performances, garnering high critical acclaim in such cities as Detroit, Los Angeles, Denver, Boston, Chicago and New York. The ensemble recently returned from a highly successful tour of West Germany.

The visiting dancers, led by Patrice Regnier, will participate in a lecture-demonstration in Theatre One beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday. The program will be open to the public at no charge.

ing Exhibition Service. The show will remain on view to the public daily through Oct. 15, said Sam Grove, director of the Museum of the Southwest.

Basketry represents a vital aspect of American Indian life from the standpoint of both practical use and artistic expression. The 100 baskets included in the new show cover several major culture areas with special emphasis on the basketry of the Southwestern Indian tribes and California's Mission Indians. Many of the styles on view in the display have rarely been seen this side of the West Coast.

Among the numerous American tribes represented with fine examples of basketry are the Nontha, Makah, Yurok, Karak, Hupa, Pomo, Palute and Papago — in all, 29 different tribes ranging in area from Alaska to Texas.

The unique exhibit was organized by Reilly P. Rhodes, director of the Bowers Museum in Santa Ana, Calif., where the collection had its initial showing. Dr. Charles Rozaire, curator of archaeology at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History selected the baskets from the Bowers Museum's extensive collection.

In addition to the baskets themselves, the exhibition presents photographic murals of late 19th Centure Indian basket weavers. The baskets on display illustrate various techniques of construction and show the role of the basket in most facets of American Indian life. Decorative designs include minute feathered examples, circus figures, coiled rattlesnakes, the American Eagle with outstretched wings, stars, standing figures, plus many well-known geometric symbols.

The Museum of the Southwest at 1705 W. Missouri Ave., is open to the public daily without charge. Weekday hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday hours are 2 to 5 p.m.

Seating is still available for Saturday night's "Command Revue" in Lee High School auditorium.

"Command Revue," presented here under sponsorship of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, is a program of sight-and-sound featuring the band and chorus of the U.S. Armed Forces Command (FORSCOM).

Highlights of the evening will include musical selections from each decade of the 20th Century, presented by the band and choral ensemble, as well as an audio-visual program presenting the triumphs as well as the hardships encountered by the people of the U.S. during the last 78 years.

Free-admission tickets to the 8 p.m. concert are available at the chamber of commerce offices, 211 N. Colorado St. Subject to availability, tickets may be obtained at the doors before concert time Saturday.

Shriners bringing new show to city

The 28th annual Shrine Circus comes to Midland this week.

The popular family show will have performances at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in Cubs Stadium at Hogan Park. Preceding the performances will be the traditional circus parade through downtown Midland, beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Jim Highsmith, parade chairman, said the procession will start at Midland High School and move south on A street to West Wall avenue, east on Wall to Main street, north on Main to Texas avenue, and west on Texas back to the point of origin.

According to Highsmith, this year's parade will feature the Midland and Lee High bands, the Alamo Junior High band, Boy Scouts, the 4-Wheel Drive Club, the Austin Freshman School band, and several popular Shrine units from this area. Something new this year having special appeal for children is the Kids Klown Kostume Kontest, sponsored by the Midland chapter, Order of De Molay.

Funds derived from the annual Shrine Circus performances help support such charitable and philanthropic Shrine projects as the burns and crippled children's hospitals.

Additional information about Saturday's parade and the four scheduled performances may be obtained by contacting Bill Moler, 1978 Shrine Circus chairman, at 694-6115 or 683-8181. Tickets for the circus will be for sale at the gates before the start of each performance.

Some resistance greets defeat of Somoza uprising

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Only isolated resistance in and around the northern city of Esteli was reported following the defeat of the widespread uprising against President Anastasio Somoza, but rebel leaders outside the country vowed to fight on.

The national guard announced Tuesday night that it had regained control of Esteli, the last rebel stronghold in the 11-day uprising. But AP photographer Hal Moore entered the city briefly Wednesday and found heavy firing from rebel holdouts as the government troops advanced, clearing barricades and returning sniper fire.

The Nicaraguan Red Cross estimated at least 1,000 persons were killed in the fighting in Masaya, Leon and Chinandega. There was no report of casualties in Esteli and three other towns where fighting on a smaller scale was reported.

The national guard, Somoza's 7,500-man army and police force, did not allow the Red Cross to enter Esteli until late Wednesday.

Red Cross President Ismael Reyes

said most of the dead counted so far were civilians killed in air and artillery attacks to soften up rebel positions in the towns before the troops moved in.

The rebellion, which began Sept. 9, was led by guerrillas of the leftist Sandinista National Liberation Front. Thousands of other foes of the Somoza dynasty took up arms to support them.

Unrest and discontent were reported still prevalent in many areas of the Central American country of 2.5 million, but the government appeared to have brought the armed uprising under control.

A nationwide strike, called Aug. 25 by opposition political parties and joined by Nicaragua's major business organizations in an effort to end 41 years of Somoza family rule, continued, and an estimated 80 percent of the country's businesses remained closed.

Many of the rebels escaped to neighboring Honduras and Costa Rica. Government sources in Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, reported about 21,000 Nicaraguans took refuge in Honduras in the past week.

Carlos Tunnerman, an exiled lawyer mentioned as a possible coalition choice for president, predicted in Costa Rica that Somoza would fall before the end of the month.

Opposition leaders in Managua accused the national guard of "genocide, extermination and annihilation" in the mopup. There were reports from all the recaptured cities that the government troops pulled suspected rebels from their homes, shot them, then burned the bodies or buried them in common graves. But these could not be confirmed.

The government denied the reports but said its men might have killed some innocent civilians inadvertently.

Foreign ministers or ambassadors of the members of the Organization of American States were to meet today in Washington to discuss the Nicaragua crisis. One source, who asked not to be identified, said the most that could be expected was a strongly worded resolution urging the Nicaraguan government and those of neighboring Costa Rica and Honduras to take all necessary precautions to prevent any cross-border military activities.

Costa Rica, which reported Nicaraguan planes crossed its border and strafed a truck last week, said Venezuela was withdrawing four bombers sent to San Jose as a "good-will gesture."

Costa Rica has no army, but Security Minister Juan Jose Echeverria said the border would be reinforced by the 6,500-man civil guard because of Nicaraguan radio broadcasts calling for an invasion of Costa Rica. Echeverria said he doubted there would be an invasion but felt precautions should be taken.

Appeals court upholds man's 15-year sentence

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the 15-year assessed Stephen M. Combs in the 1970 murder of his girlfriend, rejecting arguments that the Vietnam veteran was insane at the time.

The court's opinion states that Combs' father found the body of Vicki Bernathy in the floor of the closet in his son's bedroom July 16, 1970, after the younger Combs had told him the girl was dead.

Combs was admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital with acute schizophrenia, the opinion says.

Combs was found incompetent to stand trial and was committed to Rusk State Hospital, but was found competent to stand trial in May 1972.

In June 1972, he was convicted of murder with malice and sentenced to 25 years.

He was granted a new trial in May 1974, and received a 15-year sentence. His appeal for appointment of an attorney was denied and no record was forwarded to the Court of Criminal Appeals, the court said.

An "out of time" appeal was then granted in a habeas corpus proceeding, with the court hearing the appeal.

In its opinion, the court said Combs was hospitalized in the U.S. Naval Hospital in San Diego in September 1968, following a year of combat duty with the U.S. Marines, and was released that December, subject to re-examination every 18 months.

The court also said Combs' father accompanied him to Beaumont General Army Hospital in El Paso for one such examination, and was advised his son was schizophrenic and in need of hospitalization. He was accepted for admittance to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Waco one week after the killing, the court said.

The court noted a psychiatrist testified that while at Rusk, Combs reported that the victim was a spy for the Viet Cong, who had surrounded the house for several weeks.

But, the court said, other testimony by witnesses, including a psychiatrist for the State, was to the effect that Combs did know the difference between right and wrong and understood the consequences of his action when he stabbed the victim.

The court also rejected Combs' contention that the prosecutor had made improper arguments to the jury.

Two of the nine members of court dissented, indicating they believed the case should have been sent back for a new trial.

Court refuses to overturn death penalty in stabbing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld the death penalty for Bernard Ferguson in the "savage, ruthless" murder of an attendant at a Killeen convenience store.

Ferguson, 17 at the time of the Jan. 25, 1977, slaying, was convicted of stabbing Randy Tingle four times in the back as Tingle lay face down in the store.

The appeals court said Wednesday expert medical witnesses testified that the size of the wounds was "compatible" with the knife having been twisted after it was thrust into Tingle.

An accomplice witness, Jody Persons, testified that just before Ferguson stabbed Tingle the last time, Tingle groaned and said, "That's enough." Persons said blood was gushing from Tingle's mouth.

Approximately $28 was taken from the cash register. Persons testified that on the way out Ferguson took a package of cookies.

Tingle pleaded with a caller to contact the police, who arrested Ferguson 3 1/2 hours later as he and Persons arrived in a car at a Killeen residence.

High cancer rate discovered

BOSTON (AP) — The risk of lung cancer is unusually high among men who worked in shipyards during World War II, probably because of their exposure to asbestos and other possible cancer-causing materials, a federal study concludes.

In the study, conducted in coastal Georgia, researchers found that men who worked in wartime ship building and repair yards are 1.6 times more likely than usual to suffer the often-fatal form of cancer. The rate is far higher if the men also smoke cigarettes.

About 4.5 million American men held shipyard jobs during World War II.

In a review three years ago, the National Cancer Institute discovered a strikingly high rate of lung cancer on the East Coast between Charleston, S.C., and northern Florida and along the Gulf Coast, mostly in Louisiana.

The institute's latest study, published in today's New England Journal of Medicine, concludes that at least part of the reason for this trend is the shipyard work there more than three decades ago.

who had lung cancer in coastal Georgia and found that 95 of them had worked in shipyards in Savannah and Brunswick during the war. Of 553 disease-free men, chosen for comparison, 80 had been shipworkers.

Although the overall lung cancer risk was 1.6 times higher among the shipyard workers, the rate rose dramatically when the men also smoked. The risk for men who smoked more than two packs a day was almost 20 times higher than normal. This is "indicative of a strong synergism between these two risk factors," the researchers wrote.

Lung cancer may not be the only worry of shipworkers. The study noted that places with wartime shipyards also have unusually higher rates of cancer of the throat and upper intestinal tract.

New Mexico escapee faces trial in October

BELTON, Texas (AP) — A New Mexico jail escapee charged in the shooting death of a suburban policeman faces an October trial in this Central Texas city after a judge denied a change of venue.

State District Judge William Black said Wednesday there was not enough evidence backing the defense's claim that Thomas Barefoot, 34, also known as Darren Callier, would not be able to get a fair trial locally.

Officer Carl I. Levin of nearby Harker Heights was killed Aug. 7. Barefoot's attorney said publicity since the shooting has been excessive and prejudicial against his client.

"The people of Bell County in the Thomas A. Barefoot case can be just as fair and impartial as any jury in the state," responded District Attorney Arthur Eads.

Another pretrial hearing is scheduled Oct. 18, with the trial to begin Oct. 30.

Mean mom: it begins with diapers

By JANE HAAS
Copley News Service

My kids say I'm the meanest mother on the west side of town.

That's what my kids say.

And lately, they've been saying that a lot.

Oh, it's not that I don't give them luxuries. They've got rooms and refrigerators full of luxuries. Luxuries like clean underwear, frozen mixed vegetables and toothpaste.

It's the basics that I renege on. Basics like $30 tennis shoes, $45 skateboards and two slurpies apiece every afternoon.

"You're not nice like Sue's mother," says my daughter. "Sue's mother doesn't make her eat every lima bean. Sue's mother loves her daughter very, very much."

Lima beans, I tell my daughter, will grow hair on your chest. "Only mothers who want daughters to have silky soft hair on their chest make them eat all their lima beans," I tell her.

"Every other kid on the west side doesn't have to cool off by running under the sprinkler," says my youngest son. "Every other kid on the west side has got a swimming pool. At least."

Swimming pools, I agree, are a mark of acceptance in the neighborhood. "Let us be grateful they allow us to continue to domicile here, shorn as we are of the necessities that mark us as west siders," I say.

"You're not real, mom," says my oldest son. "Other guys don't have to work, work, work. I have to take out the garbage and mow the grass and now you expect me to hang up the towels?"

I tell him I know I'm an extremist. "Moderation has always been beyond me. With me, as the old song goes, it's all or nothin', kid. And we'll have lessons in how to squeeze out a washcloth tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. You can report me on child labor abuse next week."

My kids say I wasn't always the meanest mother on the west side of town. They say that once I was loving, kind, thoughtful. They say I looked like those women on television that worry about shiny floors and white washes.

They say once I did everything for them.

And I agree. Why once, I tell them, I even changed their diapers. For years I changed their diapers.

"Suddenly it struck me," I tell them. "You were about to be the only kids in the college dorm still in diapers. There's a limit to pampering."

So, I tell them, I have taken to sitting up nights trying to figure out ways to bug my kids. And every morning I eat a bowl full of nails. Without sugar, even.

"Mommy," says my daughter, "when I grow up and have babies will I turn out to be mean, too?"

Sooner or later, I tell her, sooner or later.

"Like death and taxes, dry rot gets us all," I tell her. "And it all begins with diapers."

Young mother is rookie engineer

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

Terri Gouff of Silver Spring, Md., has a busy day. She bundles her 3-year-old son off to a babysitter, then reports to her job as an engineering secretary. Then in the evening, she's off to school.

Twenty-three-year-old Terri has been preparing for the apprenticeship aptitude test for the International Operating Engineers, so she can become a stationary, or as it is commonly called, a power engineer.

What does a power engineer do? "Maintains and repairs refrigeration units, air conditioning, heating systems and boiler. Things like that," explains Terri.

The class she is taking isn't required for those entering apprenticeship programs, but it helps, especially for a woman.

"Being female," Terri admits, "you don't have the basics. You don't know the names of tools and equipment. You didn't work on cars with you dad the way boys do."

Terri decided to try an apprenticeship after hearing her father, a chief engineer for a chain store bakery, talk about the requirements for hiring women. Because there are so few women who've gone through formal apprenticeships, Terri's father had to hire unskilled women and train them.

"I don't want to be hired just because I'm a woman. I want to be hired because I know something," said Terri. So she set out to learn about machinery.

Often, after class, Terri would go home to look up words the instructor had used. She wasn't sure what p.s.i. stood for, and didn't know what it meant to torque an engine.

"I've started doing more mechanical work around the house, like helping replace the hot water heater," Terri's husband is a bus mechanic, so he is able to help with some of her questions.

There's no doubt that the work of a power engineer can be demanding and dirty, but she's prepared for that. To show herself she could handle physical work, and because she wanted to improve the appearance of their yard, Terri razed a barn by herself in her spare time. She's now down to the brick foundation, and feels pretty good about the job.

"I've started doing more mechanical work around the house, like helping replace the hot water heater."

Terri Gouff

Even with her preparation, Terri worries about the 18-month training period ahead. She cleared the first hurdle when she took the federally required general aptitude test. After she submitted a copy of her high school diploma, along with two letters attesting to her good character she will have an interview.

One representative from the International Union of Operating Engineers and one from the industry management will lead the interview.

"They're looking for interest in the field, sincerity, and that sort of thing," explained a union representative. "If an applicant has experience, that helps."

It is the interview score, based on the judgments of the men conducting the interview, that opens the apprenticeship door for Terri. After that, when employers call to request apprentices, the trainees are sent out in order of their high scores, the highest numbers first. Or it might be possible for Terri to locate an employer on her own, and persuade him to request her for an apprentice.

She knows her hardest time might be on-the-job training. "It makes me a little nervous. You're going to get some criticism. That's obvious."

But her work as an engineering secretary has prepared her somewhat. "The men tease you a lot...call you a dumb blonde. There's nothing equivalent that you can call them back though."

Terri is also aware that although she may not be staging an historic "first" by becoming a power engineer, she is furthering the traditional role of women in labor unions.

Unions owe much of their existence to the sacrifices of such women as Mother Jones and the lady garment workers of New York. Despite the determination of those pioneers, female membership in unions lagged in the past 30 years. Eighty-eight percent of the working women are unrepresented by organized labor, which some critics say accounts for the 40 percent disparity between men's and women's wages. It could be true. As a power engineer, Terri will earn almost twice as much as she does as a secretary.

The job will be a challenge, but it's one Terri is eager to try. She can put up with being called a dumb blonde or "little girl" by foremen. But when it comes to taking apart a boiler and putting it back properly, Terri warns with a laugh: "They'd better let me!"

Mean mom: Cancer-stricken kids need school

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

When a child has cancer, sending the youngster back to school may be one of the last things on a parent's mind. But doctors at Childrens Hospital of Los Angeles think it's pretty important.

"It's not just school. It's what school represents. It's a child's work. It's structure. It's a normal life."

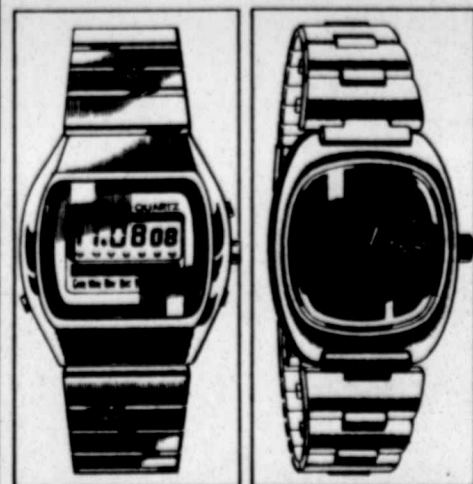

Those comments came from Jonathan Kellerman, Ph.D., director of psychosocial services in the hospital's Division of Hematology-Oncology.

"You can look at a child out of school as similar to an unemployed adult," he pointed out. "Human beings tend to need a schedule, a structure within which to live. Without one, sooner or later they're apt to get depressed."

Some resistance greets defeat of Somoza uprising

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Only isolated resistance in and around the northern city of Esteli was reported following the defeat of the widespread uprising against President Anastasio Somoza, but rebel leaders outside the country vowed to fight on.

The national guard announced Tuesday night that it had regained control of Esteli, the last rebel stronghold in the 11-day uprising. But AP photographer Hal Moore entered the city briefly Wednesday and found heavy firing from rebel holdouts as the government troops advanced, clearing barricades and returning sniper fire.

The Nicaraguan Red Cross estimated at least 1,000 persons were killed in the fighting in Masaya, Leon and Chinandega. There was no report yet of casualties in Esteli and three other towns where fighting on a smaller scale was reported.

The national guard, Somoza's 7,500-man army and police force, did not allow the Red Cross to enter Esteli until late Wednesday.

Red Cross President Ismael Reyes

said most of the dead counted so far were civilians killed in air and artillery attacks to soften up rebel positions in the towns before the troops moved in.

The rebellion, which began Sept. 9, was led by guerrillas of the leftist Sandinista National Liberation Front. Thousands of other foes of the Somoza dynasty took up arms to support them.

Unrest and discontent were reported still prevalent in many areas of the Central American country of 2.5 million, but the government appeared to have brought the armed uprising under control.

A nationwide strike, called Aug. 25 by opposition political parties and joined by Nicaragua's major business organizations in an effort to end 41 years of Somoza family rule, continued, and an estimated 80 percent of the country's businesses remained closed.

Many of the rebels escaped to neighboring Honduras and Costa Rica. Government sources in Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, reported about 21,000 Nicaraguans took refuge in Honduras in the past week.

Carlos Tunnerman, an exiled lawyer mentioned as a possible coalition choice for president, predicted in Costa Rica that Somoza would fall before the end of the month.

Opposition leaders in Managua accused the national guard of "genocide, extermination and annihilation" in the mopup. There were reports from all the recaptured cities that the government troops pulled suspected rebels from their homes, shot them, then burned the bodies or buried them in common graves. But these could not be confirmed.

The government denied the reports but said its men might have killed some innocent civilians inadvertently.

Foreign ministers or ambassadors of the members of the Organization of American States were to meet today in Washington to discuss the Nicaraguan crisis. One source, who asked not to be identified, said the most that could be expected was a strongly worded resolution urging the Nicaraguan government and those of neighboring Costa Rica and Honduras to take all necessary precautions to prevent any cross-border military activities.

Costa Rica, which reported Nicaraguan planes crossed its border and strafed a truck last week, said Venezuela was withdrawing four bombers sent to San Jose as a "good-will gesture."

Costa Rica has no army, but Security Minister Juan Jose Echeverria said the border would be reinforced by the 6,500-man civil guard because of Nicaraguan radio broadcasts calling for an invasion of Costa Rica. Echeverria said he doubted there would be an invasion but felt precautions should be taken.

Appeals court upholds man's 15-year sentence

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the 15-year assessed Stephen M. Combs in the 1970 murder of his girlfriend, rejecting arguments that the Vietnam veteran was insane at the time.

The court's opinion states that Combs' father found the body of Vicki Bernathy in the floor of the closet in his son's bedroom July 16, 1970, after the younger Combs had told him the girl was dead.

Combs was admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital with acute schizophrenia, the opinion says.

Combs was found incompetent to stand trial and was committed to Rusk State Hospital, but was found competent to stand trial in May 1972.

In June 1972, he was convicted of murder with malice and sentenced to 25 years.

He was granted a new trial in May 1974, and received a 15-year sentence. His appeal for appointment of an attorney was denied and no record was forwarded to the Court of Criminal Appeals, the court said.

An "out of time" appeal was then granted in a habeas corpus proceeding, with the court hearing the appeal.

In its opinion, the court said Combs was hospitalized in the U.S. Naval Hospital in San Diego in September 1968, following a year of combat duty with the U.S. Marines, and was released that December, subject to re-examination every 18 months.

The court also said Combs' father accompanied him to Beaumont General Army Hospital in El Paso for one such examination, and was advised his son was schizophrenic and in need of hospitalization. He was accepted for admittance to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Waco one week after the killing, the court said.

The court noted a psychiatrist testified that while at Rusk, Combs reported that the victim was a spy for the Viet Cong, who had surrounded the house for several weeks.

But, the court said, other testimony by witnesses, including a psychiatrist for the State, was to the effect that Combs did know the difference between right and wrong and understood the consequences of his action when he stabbed the victim.

The court also rejected Combs' contention that the prosecutor had made improper arguments to the jury.

Two of the nine members of court dissented, indicating they believed the case should have been sent back for a new trial.

"Asbestos and possibly other shipyard exposures during wartime employment account for part of the excess mortality from lung cancer in certain coastal areas of the United States," the researchers wrote.

Asbestos, a fiber made from crushed rock, is used for insulation in shipbuilding. It causes lung cancer and mesothelioma, a rare cancer of the lining of the stomach or lung, but the diseases usually take 20 to 30 years to show up.

The researchers examined the records of 458 men

Mean mom: it begins with diapers

By JANE HAAS
Copley News Service

My kids say I'm the meanest mother on the west side of town.

That's what my kids say.

And lately, they've been saying that a lot.

Oh, it's not that I don't give them luxuries. They've got rooms and refrigerators full of luxuries. Luxuries like clean underwear, frozen mixed vegetables and toothpaste.

It's the basics that I renege on. Basics like $30 tennis shoes, $45 skateboards and two slurpies apiece every afternoon.

"You're not nice like Sue's mother," says my daughter. "Sue's mother doesn't make her eat every lima bean. Sue's mother loves her daughter very, very much."

Lima beans, I tell my daughter, will grow hair on your chest. "Only mothers who want daughters to have silky soft hair on their chest make them eat all their lima beans," I tell her.

"Every other kid on the west side doesn't have to cool off by running under the sprinkler," says my youngest son. "Every other kid on the west side has got a swimming pool. At least."

Swimming pools, I agree, are a mark of acceptance in the neighborhood. "Let us be grateful they allow us to continue to domicile here, shorn as we are of the necessities that mark us as west siders," I say.

"You're not real, mom," says my oldest son. "Other guys don't have to work, work, work. I have to take out the garbage and mow the grass and now you expect me to hang up the towels?"

I tell him I know I'm an extremist. "Moderation has always been beyond me. With me, as the old song goes, it's all or nothin', kid. And we'll have lessons in how to squeeze out a washcloth tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. You can report me on child labor abuse next week."

My kids say I wasn't always the meanest mother on the west side of town. They say that once I was loving, kind, thoughtful. They say I looked like those women on television that worry about shiny floors and white washes.

They say once I did everything for them.

And I agree. Why once, I tell them, I even changed their diapers. For years I changed their diapers.

"Suddenly it struck me," I tell them. "You were about to be the only kids in the college dorm still in diapers. There's a limit to pampering."

So, I tell them, I have taken to sitting up nights trying to figure out ways to bug my kids. And every morning I eat a bowl full of nails. Without sugar, even.

"Mommy," says my daughter, "when I grow up and have babies will I turn out to be mean, too?"

Sooner or later, I tell her, sooner or later.

"Like death and taxes, dry rot gets us all," I tell her. "And it all begins with diapers."

Young mother is rookie engineer

Copley News Service

Terri Gouff of Silver Spring, Md., has a busy day: She bundles her 3-year-old son off to a babysitter, then reports to her job as an engineering secretary. Then in the evening, she's off to school.

Twenty-three-year-old Terri has been preparing for the apprenticeship aptitude test for the International Operating Engineers, so she can become a stationary, or as it is commonly called, a power engineer.

What does a power engineer do? "Maintains and repairs refrigeration units, air conditioning, heating systems and boiler. Things like that," explains Terri.

The class she is taking isn't required for those entering apprenticeship programs, but it helps, especially for a woman.

"Being female," Terri admits, "you don't have the basics. You don't know the names of tools and equipment. You didn't work on cars with you dad the way boys do."

Terri decided to try an apprenticeship after hearing her father, a chief engineer for a chain store bakery, talk about the requirements for hiring women. Because there are so few women who've gone through formal apprenticeships, Terri's father had to hire unskilled women and train them.

"I don't want to be hired just because I'm a woman. I want to be hired because I know something," said Terri. So she set out to learn about machinery.

Often, after class, Terri would go home to look up words the instructor had used. She wasn't sure what p.s.i. stood for, and didn't know what it meant to torque an engine.

"I've started doing more mechanical work around the house, like helping replace the hot water heater," Terri's husband is a bus mechanic, so he is able to help with some of her questions.

There's no doubt that the work of a power engineer can be demanding and dirty, but she's prepared for that. To show herself she could handle physical work, and because she wanted to improve the appearance of their yard, Terri razed a barn by herself in her spare time. She's now down to the brick foundation, and feels pretty good about the job.

"I've started doing more mechanical work around the house, like helping replace the hot water heater."

Terri Gouff

Even with her preparation, Terri worries about the 18-month training period ahead. She cleared the first hurdle when she took the federally required general aptitude test. After she's submitted a copy of her high school diploma, along with two letters attesting to her good character she will have an interview.

One representative from the International Union of Operating Engineers and one from the industry management will lead the interview.

"They're looking for interest in the field, sincerity, and that sort of thing," explained a union representative. "If an applicant has experience, that helps."

It is the interview score, based on the judgments of the men conducting the interview, that opens the apprenticeship door for Terri. After that, when employers call to request apprentices, the trainees are sent out in order of their high scores, the highest numbers first. Or it might be possible for Terri to locate an employer on her own, and persuade him to request her for an apprentice.

She knows her hardest time might be on-the-job training. "It makes me a little nervous. You're going to get some criticism. That's obvious."

But her work as an engineering secretary has prepared her somewhat. "The men tease you a lot...call you a dumb blonde. There's nothing equivalent that you can call them back though."

Terri is also aware that although she may not be staging an historic "first" by becoming a power engineer, she is furthering the traditional role of women in labor unions.

Unions owe much of their existence to the sacrifices of such women as Mother Jones and the lady garment workers of New York. Despite the determination of those pioneers, female membership in unions lagged in the past 30 years. Eighty-eight percent of the working women are unrepresented by organized labor, which some critics say accounts for the 40 percent disparity between men's and women's wages. It could be true. As a power engineer, Terri will earn almost twice as much as she does as a secretary.

The job will be a challenge, but it's one Terri is eager to try. She can put up with being called a dumb blonde or "little girl" by foremen. But when it comes to taking apart a boiler and putting it back properly, Terri warns with a laugh: "They'd better let me!"

Cancer-stricken kids need school

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

When a child has cancer, sending the youngster back to school may be one of the last things on a parent's mind. But doctors at Childrens Hospital of Los Angeles think it's pretty important.

"It's not just school. It's what school represents. It's a child's work. It's structure. It's a normal life."

Those comments came from Jonathan Kellerman, Ph.D., director of psychosocial services in the hospital's Division of Hematology-Oncology.

"You can look at a child out of school as similar to an unemployed adult," he pointed out. "Human beings tend to need a schedule, a structure within which to live. Without one, sooner or later they're apt to get depressed."

DEAR ABBY

'Tell them how you feel'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I've read many letters in your column from people complaining that a friend, relative or neighbor habitually imposes on them. Then they ask, "What should I do?" And you always trot out your stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL!"

Then I'd say to myself, "What a cop-out. Everybody knows that, but they're hoping Abby can offer some magic words that will make it easier for them."

Then I was faced with a very irritating situation.

A couple I'd known for years made a habit of dropping by our lake cottage uninvited every Sunday morning. They'd even bring some of THEIR friends and spend the entire day eating our food, drinking our beer, and using our towels which we'd find wet all over the place.

I finally got fed up and told this couple in no uncertain terms that they were not to come over unless invited!

At first they were hurt, but they got over it, and when we invited them they came gladly. We're still good friends, and now I'm sorry I didn't tell them sooner.

I just want to say that what appears to be a stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL," shouldn't be dismissed as a cop-out. It's really the only workable solution to many a tough problem.—NEW YORK POST READER

DEAR READER: Thanks, I needed that. Telling someone how you feel doesn't necessarily mean telling them off.

DEAR ABBY: Is divorce contagious? I'm beginning to think it is. It friends or relatives have large numbers in certain communities, and even in certain families.

If divorce is contagious, some smart you do when people ask to borrow your comb? I wash my hair and comb it every day before school, and find it very annoying when kids ask me if they can use it.

DEAR PROF: Divorce is NOT contagious, but it breaks out in certain communities because some people who have only considered it have gathered the courage to go through with it after

Backpacking: The cost can break your back

By BOB DORN Copley News Service

On Vibram. On Velcro. Come on Gore-Tex and goose down.

Goose down? What's a nice organic fiber like goose down doing with a bunch of synthetics like nylon?

Making a big comeback in the backpacking world, that's what. Teamed with the hot new fabric, Gore-Tex, goose down has been liberated from its old handicap of losing its pile and loft when the sleeping bags and parkas it stuffed were exposed to water.

The eyes of veteran campers who know and love the warmth of goose down are bulging at a new advertisement that shows a comfy, billowy and hitherto vulnerable, natural fiber-filled sleeping bag floating on a lake.

Gore-Tex, you see, is a space age, laminated fabric that repels liquids but lets air in and out, even the steamy vapors of the packer struggling up a 1,000-foot ridge in a chill rain or breathing out moisture-laden breath into the confined space of his tent. Tents of normal fabric will collect that moisture and drip.

And so Gore-Tex will take its place alongside the other miracle substances and materials that have lightened the load and strengthened the attack on the mountain of Joe Rugged, the average weekend backpacker.

As well as flattening his wallet.

Rain pants made of Gore-Tex cost $50 in a local downtown backpacking shop. A simple, unstuffed parka costs $64.

But ignore for the moment the costly wonders of Gore-Tex. Backpacking without it still busts budgets.

A check with sports equipment stores shows an amazing, ever-multiplying array of gear available to the packer or camper who has, or would like to have, everything.

The complete backpacker these days can assault the trail with everything from tiny teapots for his morning brew to compact plastic egg containers to keep from three to six eggs intact.

There are campers' toothbrushes with paste in the handles, headlamps for the hat of the intrepid nighttime hiker, squeeze tubes to be filled with sticky things like jam, butter or honey and — for the convenience-loving hiker — a spring-loaded, push-button toggle to save him the trouble of tying knots in the drawstrings of his pack. And then there is a very cleverly designed three-person tent in the mountain shops, these days made of rip-stop nylon, an extremely tough and lightweight material that was a miracle breakthrough years ago and since has become a staple.

This tent also breathes and repels water. It does it with two layers.

The outside layer is coated with urethane, which allows the nylon to shed water but prevents it from breathing. The inside wall of the tent is not coated with urethane. There's a four or five inch space between both walls, making the tent a sort of balloon within a balloon, and the cushion of air between the walls is vented to the outside, providing for circulation.

The tent costs $279. It's not unusual for goose-down sleeping bags to near $300 in cost; coated goose-down sleep in the rain because jackets go for about $100; he didn't buy the tent that backpacks may cost $90 costs $279.

So what does a poor stitched, Vibram-soled novice do? He suffers. Just like the great boots hit $80.

Add those purchases white hunter with the together and a novice Austrian boots and Gore-tex without equipment can crack the $500 mark even before he's purchased a comfortable with 50 $25 Swiss Army knife, pounds of gear on his laid in some food, gassed back climbing 3,000 feet up (at 70 cents a gallon) in one day and walking a car and driven off for total of eight miles no the trail.

And he'd still have to Tex he's wrapped in.

Menswear undergoing big change

By GUS STENS
Copley News Service

It's being called the first major silhouette change in menswear in a decade.

After more than 10 years of going wider, menswear styling is beginning to move in reverse. It should start to show up in stores this fall.

The so-called force of "fashion gravity" is moving inward.

Jacket shoulders have been narrowed and will be more natural with less padding. To keep things balanced, lapels also have been narrowed.

The lapel changes amount to only fractions of inches, seemingly minor proportions, but fashion experts say the change will have strong visual impact.

Jackets will rest easier on the body. They'll be tailored with slightly lower armholes for more freedom. Suit coats will be more loose at the waist and more fitted at the hips, cutting down the flare in the jacket skirt.

Trousers will have pleats and the leg silhouette will be straight or even slightly tapered.

Despite the fever of Saturday night, it appears that all pants, for young and old, will be less tapered this year. This flies in the face of the disco look, but that is what the fashion kings are proclaiming. Whether young people will obey remains to be seen.

The dominant suit look will be the two-button single-breasted style with a vest. New among the jacket looks will be the four-button double-breasted jacket.

The country continues its invasion of the city. The bucolic look caught on a year or two ago and it's growing even more for autumn.

The country look means shaggy clothes, clothes made of natural tweedy fabrics, those that are rough and soft at the same time.

It means classics like Harris tweed, donegals, Shetlands, chevits and similar "nappy" fabrics.

AT WIT'S END

Gracious husband has nerve to request tip aid from spouse

By ERMA BOMBECK

It's probably a trade secret, but I am intrigued by waiters and waitresses who instinctively know to whom to give the check.

A friend of mine who waited tables this summer said he's no expert, but he followed certain guidelines.

The man who summons for the wine list is fingered as the man in charge and gets the check.

The man who says in a loud voice, "I think you'll like this place. I'd personally recommend the barbecued ribs," sets himself up as an authority check-figure.

The man who sees the check coming and still doesn't bolt to go the restroom or to make a phone call gets the bad news.

The man—even if he just stopped by a table full of women to say hello—gets the check.

This last bit of information fascinated me. With all the freedom that has been accorded women they still feel more comfortable with "separate checks."

Every woman at one time or another has been to one of those famous luncheons where the waiters, ignoring pleas to bill individually, puts it all on one check. He places it in the middle of the table like a hand grenade, then stands back so that each may quickly toss it back and forth from one another with cries of, "I had the iced tea and the apple brown betty. Do they still charge for extra whipped cream?"

"How much is the pot of tea and the meringue sandwich?"

"I'll get the parking if someone gets the tip."

"I only have a ten. You owe me $3.26."

"I'm paying for Ruth's lunch. She drove. Take back Ruth's money."

"I'm not leaving a big tip. When I asked where the women's room was, he just grunted."

Men generally regard all this as tacky. My husband took me to lunch the other day and when the check came, I instinctively reached for it—an impulse from raising three teenagers. "What do you think you're doing?" he shouted. "As long as you are eating with me, I assume the responsibility for the check. Frankly, I still find it a blow to my ego when a woman picks up the tab. Just sit there and be feminine and thank me for being so generous and accommodating. By the way, you got two bucks for the tip?"

Now, that's tacky.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I've read many letters in your column from people complaining that a friend, relative or neighbor habitually imposes on them. Then they ask, "What should I do?" And you always trot out your stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL!"

A couple I'd known for years made a habit of dropping by our lake cottage uninvited every Sunday morning. They'd even bring some of their friends and spend the entire day eating our food, drinking our beer, and using our towels which we'd find wet all over the place.

beginning to think it is. It friends or relatives have seems to break out in large numbers in certain communities, and even in certain families. The only way to prevent divorce is to eliminate marriage. If divorce is contagious, some smart scientist could make a fortune if he came up with a vaccine to prevent it. What are your thoughts on the subject? — YOUNG PROFESSOR

DEAR PROF: Divorce is NOT contagious, but it breaks out in certain communities because some people who have only considered it have gathered the courage to go through with it after

Backpacking: The cost can break your back

By BOB DORN Copley News Service

On Vibram. On Velcro. Come on Gore-Tex and goose down. Goose down? What's a nice organic fiber like goose down doing with a bunch of synthetics like nylon? Making a big comeback in the backpacking world, that's what. Teamed with the hot new fabric, Gore-Tex, goose down has been liberated from its old handicap of losing its pile and loft when the sleeping bags and parkas it stuffed were exposed to water.

from three to six eggs intact. There are campers' toothbrushes with paste in the handles, headlamps for the hat of the intrepid nighttime hiker, squeeze tubes to be filled with sticky things like jam, butter or honey and — for the convenience-loving hiker — a spring-loaded, push-button toggle to save him the trouble of tying knots in the drawstrings of his pack. And then there is a very cleverly designed three-person tent in the mountain shops these days made of rip-stop nylon, an extremely tough and lightweight material that was a miracle breakthrough years ago and since has become a staple. This tent also breathes and repels water. It does it with two layers. The outside layer is coated with urethane, which allows the nylon to shed water but prevents it from breathing. The inside wall of the tent is not coated with urethane. There's a four or five inch space between both walls, making the tent a sort of balloon within a balloon, and the cushion of air between the walls is vented to the outside, providing for circulation. The tent costs $279. It's not unusual for goose-down sleeping bags to near $300 in cost; coated goose-down sleep jackets go for about $100; he didn't buy the tent that backpacks may cost $90 and steel-arched, double stitched, Vibram-soled boots hit $80. Add those purchases together and a novice without equipment can crack the $500 mark even before he's purchased a $25 Swiss Army knife, laid in some food, gassed (at 70 cents a gallon) the car and driven off for the trail. And he'd still have to

Gore-Tex, you see, is a space age, laminated fabric that repels liquids but lets air in and out, even the steamy vapors of the packer struggling up a 1,000-foot ridge in a chill rain or breathing out moisture-laden breath into the confined space of his tent. Tents of normal fabric will collect that moisture and drip. And so Gore-Tex will take its place alongside the other miracle substances and materials that have lightened the load and strengthened the attack on the mountain of Joe Rugged, the average weekend backpacker. As well as flattening his wallet.

Rain pants made of Gore-Tex cost $50 in a local downtown backpacking shop. A simple, unstuffed parka costs $64. But ignore for the moment the costly wonders of Gore-Tex. Backpacking without it still busts budgets.

A check with sports equipment stores shows an amazing, ever-multiplying array of gear available to the packer or camper who has, or would like to have, everything.

The complete backpacker these days can assault the trail with everything from tiny teapots for his morning brew to compact plastic egg containers to keep

'She's in love with love'

By DR. LAURA SCHLESSINGER
Copley News Service

Cindy is 23. With a turnover rate of about one romance every four or five months, Cindy falls out of love with what turns out, time and time again, to be "the wrong one," and finds a new potential "right one."

"I just can't figure out what is happening. Why do I seem to attract only playboy types who don't really come through for me? The relationships are very satisfying in the beginning. I enjoy myself and feel good about myself. Then the whole thing seems to disintegrate. Fortunately, I find someone else to be with rather quickly — which preserves my ego and my state of mind. But I would like to know, to understand, why this keeps happening."

Cindy appears to be in love with love. Actually, she is afraid she may not have enough to offer to sustain someone's interest in her and that she may not really ever have love.

The excitement, intrigue, novelty and romantic thrill of infatuation make her feel sought after, wanted, attractive, womanly, sexy, important.

Of course, we all have these needs. But hopefully, unlike Cindy, we all don't feel as though we need "not to be known" in order to get these needs met.

Cindy's security in these relationships is based on the anonymity inherent in the beginning of new love affairs; where people see what they want to see and can play-act roles calculated to charm. For acceptance and attention, Cindy depends upon the overwhelming throes of passion and infatuation generated by each new interaction.

And the object of Cindy's affection is usually a man with whom this scenario is also a way of life. It is not accidental that all the men in her life turn out to be "playboys." She picks men who indicate rather early on that their intentions are momentary. This keeps her safe from further involvement which threatens her inner sense of well-being by placing demands upon her that she feels inadequate to provide.

Why is Cindy so threatened by commitment? Partially because she lacks the self-regard and esteem so important to feeling free, open and comfortable to present who she is. "I am just so afraid that when it gets to be a daily routine, when you really get to know each other and it's time for the down-to-earth living business that he — whoever he is — will walk out on me because he gets bored with me. The fun will be over and he just won't be interested in me anymore."

Cindy selects men who will fulfill this prophecy, which both justifies her fears and gives her someone to blame other than herself.

Cindy is also frightened of commitment because she is not secure in her abilities to sustain an intimate relationship.

"Maybe I'm even afraid that I will get bored. I guess I'm afraid of finding out what relationships do turn into, to find out that they are not as much fun as in the beginning."

Cindy wants to know "what's happening to her." One of the main problems is that Cindy is just allowing things to happen to her and then suffering through what usually turns out to be disappointing consequences. She has little control and is taking little responsibility for her own life.

Her fears about inadequacy and abandonment are not being dealt with in any sort of manner which might change things; instead, they are being covered up by what she calls "circumstance."

Cindy needs to understand the meaning of her behavior and the roots of her negative feelings about herself. If she truly desires a deeper intimacy and commitment in her relationships she will have to learn that life and love include risks.

Taking risks means sometimes failing, and learning to cope with failure. The risks can be minimized with experience, wisdom and common sense—but cannot be eliminated.

Canadian Indians seek sovereignty

Rockefeller appointing commission to investigate collapse of scaffold

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Secretary of State A. James Manchin said Wednesday he has abandoned efforts to revoke Research-Cottrell Inc.'s authority to do business in West Virginia in the wake of a scaffold disaster that killed 51 workers. Manchin said at a news conference he was dropping his attempts in view of the fact that Gov. Jay Rockefeller is appointing a Willow Island disaster investigating commission. He said litigation over the revocation could "go on and on and on" and could "result in great expense to the taxpayers."

Research-Cottrell, a New Jersey corporation, is the contractor on the power plant cooling tower construction project at Willow Island, where the workers died when scaffolding collapsed April 27. The federal Occupational Health and Safety Administration has not issued a final report on its investigation of the tragedy, but it has cited Research-Cottrell for 16 alleged safety violations on the project. On the basis of the OSHA citation, Manchin notified Research-Cottrell Aug. 22 he was revoking its authority to do business in the state.

FREDERICTON, New Brunswick (AP) — Indian sovereignty is looming as an issue of national significance in Canada, some of whose tribes, such as the Blackfeet, Cherokee and Cree, overlap into the United States.

The question of whether Indian populations ever can be treated as self-governing nations is being thrust upon Canada's provincial and federal governments as well as the general public by a new restiveness among the Indian leadership. The National Indian Brotherhood spent considerable time on the question during its annual three-day assembly here recently. Indians in the United States, while not pressing for sovereign nations, are seeking more control over their lands, and a closing down of the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs which administers these lands.

Canadians had heard about Indian sovereignty long before. It has been an issue since the signing of the first treaties and gained some prominence a few years ago when the Indians of the Mackenzie River Valley in the Northwest Territories demanded recognition as a nation.

But it always has been a dead, or at least isolated, issue.

The difference now is that the Brotherhood has adopted it as a goal for the 300,000 registered Indians it represents through its affiliated provincial and territorial Indian associations.

Last month, Brotherhood President Noel Starblanket went before a special House of Commons-Senate committee on constitutional reform in Ottawa and said Indian sovereignty must be recognized.

Some committee members confessed to being surprised and distressed by such talk — talk described as being akin to separatism by Judd Buchanan when he was Indian affairs minister.

The current minister, Hugh Faulkner, told the Brotherhood meeting here he has grave doubts about Indian approaches to sovereignty. He reminded them that Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has said there can be no ethnic states in Canada.

He suggested the best route for Indians is a pragmatic system of self-government through present laws.

But the Indians say self-government through present laws basically would be only municipal self-government. The Brotherhood is talking about self-government in all matters affecting Indian communities.

For instance, Starblanket has been saying that Indians as a founding people should be allowed to participate at federal-provincial meetings. An Indian leader from the Northwest Territories, George Erasmus, told Faulkner: "It's not enough. We don't want control over our own little communities. We are nations!" Erasmus pushed sovereignty into the 1970 spotlight with his demand that Ottawa negotiate a deal in which Indians would govern the Mackenzie Valley as a quasi-province. The idea has been followed since by the Inuit (Eskimos) in the Northwest Territories, the Indians of the Yukon and British Columbia and now the Brotherhood.

'Deal' denied in Carter friend's assistance with shopping mall grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Milliken, a close Carter family friend, got a $10,000 gift for his youth programs from a businessman he provided assistance in seeking a large federal grant, it was reported today.

Milliken put the businessman, George Zamias, in contact with Richard Fleming, a deputy assistant secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The Washington Post said in today's editions.

Milliken, who came to the Carters' attention through his programs for poverty-stricken and disturbed young people, acknowledged he asked for and took the donation, The Post said.

Zamias, a Johnstown, Pa. developer, said he gave it, and Fleming said he set up a meeting for Zamias with HUD officials, the newspaper reported. All denied any wrongdoing.

Fleming could not be reached to confirm the report.

Zamias' application for the grant for a shopping mall development in flood-ravaged Johnstown is still pending. It would be the largest grant ever provided under the HUD action grant program, the newspaper said.

Zamias said he told friends in Pennsylvania he had a "White House connection" helping, but he also said all he really was seeking was access to the HUD bureaucracy, The Post said.

"The toughest thing is getting an appointment," he said. "That's what it's all about." Zamias denied giving the donation in return for the meeting with HUD officials, saying "There was no deal made."

Milliken, a Georgian who often stays at the White House while in Washington, said he frequently asks businessmen for contributions, "but somebody could offer me a million dollars to get an introduction; if I felt it was wrong, I wouldn't do it."

Milliken operates out of the Old Executive Office Building when in Washington, even though he is not on the White House payroll.

Fleming was quoted as saying Milliken did call him about Zamias last spring, and Fleming confirmed he set up a meeting between the developer and other HUD officials.

A White House spokesman refused to comment on the report or on Mrs. Carter's ties to Milliken. Milliken says his programs have received about $1.2 million in federal money.

More than one million living in nursing homes

The median age of residents was 80. Seventy-one percent were female, 58 percent were widowed, and 92 percent of the residents were white.

New birth control formula found

Swedish researchers say they have discovered a safe new contraceptive for both men and women that is inhaled through the nose.

Sven Johan Nililus, chief researcher at the Uppsala University Hospital, said that although initial tests on women were successful, the contraceptive will not be available to the general public until a few more years of testing are completed.

Epidemic cholera unlikely

ABBEVILLE, La. (AP) — Despite reports of one confirmed and two suspected cases of epidemic cholera in the Cajun country of south Louisiana, health officials say a large outbreak of the disease is highly improbable.

"We're not looking for an epidemic or a major outbreak," Dr. William Cherry, head of the Louisiana health department, said Wednesday. However, he conceded officials did not know the source of the disease, although cholera bacteria was found in raw sewage in nearby Kaplan.

Cholera bacteria was also found in raw sewage in Abbeville recently after officials confirmed a 44-year-old resident contracted the disease. He has since recovered.

The latest cases were a 52-year-old Abbeville woman and an adult male in Kaplan. Both were recovering, officials said.

Cherry said the two cases have not been confirmed because the state is awaiting tests results on samples taken from the victims and sent to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. Confirmation may take a week.

However, he said, the two people had the clinical symptoms of cholera and preliminary laboratory findings pointed to cholera.

Abbeville and Kaplan are about five miles apart in the fertile flatland of south Louisiana about 15 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

The water in both cities comes from deep wells and health officials said it was not the source of the disease. But in Abbeville, stores were reporting increased sales of bottled water.

"Our bottle water business has tripled and we are having a hard time keeping it," said store manager Bobby Russo.

Eight state investigators and two from the Center for Disease Control were in the area trying to isolate the bacteria.

Forged check problem bites deep in Midland

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

Forged checks cost Midland businessmen between $50,000 to $75,000 in 1977.

Detective Sgt. Mike Huckabay of the Midland Police Department's Forgery Division said despite the success of the city's "Check Alert" system among merchants and bankers, check forgery continues to be a growing problem here.

The "Check Alert" system involves merchants and bankers in the community working together to prevent the cashing of forged checks.

When word reaches a merchant or banker about a possible "bad" check, he or she has the obligation to notify three or four other businessmen in the community, said Huckabay.

That next merchant or banker in turn calls more local businessmen and the chain continues until most merchants or bankers are notified.

Huckabay said the "Check Alert" program is nearly five years old. "It's the best method that we have right now of detecting a forged check. Normally, once a check is stolen or found, it's then forged within one to three days in Midland."

A forged check is not the same thing as a hot check. "A hot" check is one with insufficient funds. The account and signature of the maker are legitimate," Huckabay explained.

However, a forged check is one which has been altered or cashed under circumstances in which the person purports to be someone they are not, according to the detective.

In forgery, Huckabay said, one must have the intent to defraud or harm another person.

While the city's "Check Alert" system is effective, it could become better, Huckabay said.

Under this program merchants use a yellow "Check Alert" slip which is posted on cash registers in an office letting employees know to watch for certain checks.

"Check forgery is a growing problem," said Huckabay. "The days of bank robberies are out. These guys are robbing banks and businesses with ball-point pens now."

Of the estimated $50,000 to $75,000 lost in Midland in 1977 to forged checks, the detective said about 10 percent of these funds were recovered. "Some people involved are prosecuted, too," he said.

Huckabay said although he always has at least a 100 percent clearance rate in check fraud cases each month, this only occurs when either restitution of funds and/or an arrest is made.

"Offense reports are not typed up for check forgery cases unless the case is cleared. So I still have many cases pending. A case is not counted as cleared until final disposition is reached," he said.

Huckabay said there has been a 30 percent increase in check forgery in Midland this year, compared to last year.

"Forgery is quick," said the veteran investigator. "These people believe they can obtain more money with less risk than performing an armed robbery in a local grocery store."

He said a "good forger" could come through Midland and in a three-day period move on to another town.

On the other hand, an armed robber may get $5 in a holdup and still have the fear of being shot by a policeman during the crime, said Huckabay.

He admitted check forgers who actually make their living from it "are getting to be good at it. They realize that the element of risk is not that great as compared to the violent crimes such as robbery."

Huckabay said the crime is "increasing, especially in the Midland-Odessa area. A lot of forgers in Midland go to Odessa to cash their checks and vice-versa."

Huckabay said he works closely with Detective David King of the Odessa Police Department's Forgery Division.

Both officers are affiliated with the Forgery Investigators Association of Texas which keeps police informed of the latest issues in this field.

To prevent becoming victims of forged checks, Huckabay recommends bankers and businessmen follow these tips:

— Always require some valid identification of the person trying to cash the check.

— If the check appears altered in any way, do not cash it nor accept it.

— If questions arise about a certain check, try to contact the bank of that check for answers prior to cashing it.

"The real problem right now comes because people are stealing both checks and drivers' licenses, too," said Huckabay.

Also, several stores have accepted many fraudulent and stolen checks "because someone was in a hurry," the officer said.

He revealed a nationwide check forgery ring recently passed through Midland and cashed an estimated $800 worth of forged checks during one afternoon.

"Several of these individuals have been identified. However, no arrests have been made," he added.

Huckabay said check forgery carries a 2-to-10-year prison sentence. "The offense of forgery is a felony regardless of the amount the check was written for," he said.

Nationally, forgery has been recognized as being so lucrative that experts said the American economy will lose more than $600 million annually to check forgers, according to a writer for the August issue of Texas Business Magazine.

The author of the article, Bill McLennan, is with the Forgery Division in the San Antonio Police Department.

In 1976 supermarkets nationwide lost $246 million to worthless checks, McLennan said.

Investigators have repeatedly said the only deterrent to this costly racket is an effort by the public to prevent forgery.

Police are trying to educate bankers and merchants in the prevention of check fraud.

Investigators said the only way to discourage the check forger is a lack of success. The "paperhangers," as check forgers are called, only turn away if it becomes too risky, police said.

Knowing techniques of spotting forged and counterfeit checks is beneficial to the public as well as businesses, said investigators, for consumers ultimately pay for the merchants' losses.

Experts said a common method of obtaining checks is by burglarizing a business. The forger then writes checks and prepares a check-cashing list using the yellow pages of the phone book.

After the banks are closed for the day, the forger goes on a spree to "lay paper," or cash the stolen checks. Sometimes three to four forgers travel together and try to cash similar checks at the same stores.

Officers said a more sophisticated tactic, used often throughout Texas, is the counterfeit check and ID operation.

False IDs are made and an official fake check is designed, styled as an exact replica of a particular business.

Standard logos of these firms, published in ads, usually are used in the counterfeit checks, said investigators.

Besides alert employees, lawmen said surveillance cameras near cash registers or check cashing points also are very successful in apprehending check forgers.

However, some investigators said today such cameras are seldom used. Photos of those cashing checks can be used to identify and apprehend check forgers.

McLennan added, "A cashier who has the knack for spotting fraudulent checks can save a business thousands of dollars."

He said cashiers who can provide police with a description of the forger and are willing to testify in court can cause many forgers to end up learning another trade: making license plates behind bars.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman in Austin said there were 2,200 arrests in Texas for check counterfeiting in the first six months of 1978. That's "about the same as last year," he said.

However, a "significant increase" in arrests for "fraudulent check cashing" was reported by DPS troopers this year.

State investigators said 4,500 arrests were made during the first six months of this year, compared to 4,100 during the same period last year.

Lawmen set guidelines for protecting Texas merchants

Texas lawmen say businessmen can detect a fraudulent check by following four guidelines.

First, check to see if there are perforations. At least one edge should have perforations unless the check is the IBM style issued by the government.

Second, check the coding to see if it is correct. It should correspond with the clearing house and town by code.

Third, the clearing house numbers and account numbers are printed with magnetic ink and should appear dull and flat. A glare or raised appearance from the ink should arouse suspicions.

Fourth, most banks issue checks starting with the number 101. Statistics show that checks with a low series of numbers are more likely to prove "hot" (insufficient funds) than checks with higher numbers showing the account has been active for quite some time. Keep in mind persons may request any number series when opening an account.

Groom held for murder

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — Rev. Beal Nix got two improperly signed $20 money orders as payment for performing the ceremony uniting "shy and sweet" Karen Schram and Rodney Crenshaw, who is suspected of beheading his young wife.

Nix married the Dallas couple on Aug. 11, and Wednesday he found that Crenshaw, 28, is being held by Washington state authorities on first-degree murder charge.

He is suspected of stabbing his bride to death and beheading her. Whatcom County authorities said Crenshaw was arrested as he was trying to push a small car into a lake. The car contained Mrs. Crenshaw's body.

Crenshaw is being held in lieu of $50,000 bond. He and his bride met in a Terrell, Texas, mental hospital, where both were ex-patients, authorities said.

Both youth's parents were reportedly trying to stop the marriage, and the bride's mother had obtained a peace bond against Crenshaw prior to the wedding, Dallas authorities said.

"I'm sick about the girl," Nix said. "She was so shy and sweet when they came here to get married. They told they both were Christians and they asked me if I was a minister."

He said Crenshaw talked incessantly, becoming quiet only during the actual ceremony.

The minister was paid with the two improperly signed money orders, which Crenshaw had signed with Nix's name instead of his own.

A professional check-writer reveals his story

Editor's Note: This story is an excerpt from the August 1978 issue of Texas Business Magazine. It is a transcript of an apprehended professional check writer, and the recording is used in forgery seminars conducted by the San Antonio Police Department.

"My name is Bill. I'm a professional check-writer out of Corpus Christi. In the last two years I have made between $90,000 and $120,000, passing fraudulent checks throughout the state of Texas.

"I get my checks from unlocked pickups or checkbooks left around stores. Businessmen are careless about leaving their checkbooks on their desks. For personal checks, I steal them or I may go to a bank and open a checking account.

"If I have to open an account, I will go to a rooming house or cheap hotel and rent a room for two to three weeks. Then I tell the landlord that I must be away for a few days or so on business. I ask him to hold any mail that comes for me. I go to the small outlying banks; they do less checking into your background than the big ones.

"I open the account in a false name and give the address of the hotel where I rented the room. I never stay in the room. In a couple of weeks I return and check with the landlord and pick up my mail. I've spent $50 or $60 for the room and $25 to $50 to open the account. I always pick up the checks on Friday and that evening I will go to the bank just before closing time and draw out all but a few dollars of my funds.

"After the bank has closed I will go to as many supermarkets as I can and cash as many checks as possible. After the stores close for the night I'll rent a room and stay there until Saturday evening. Then after the banks are closed I'll repeat my exploits of the previous night. I never return to the same store I went to on Friday. I keep a list.

"I'll rent another room Saturday night. Whether I work Sunday or not depends on how many stores are open. If I'm in a big town chances are I'll find places to work. I will only work the account one weekend then get rid of the checks and never use that name again. I usually move on to another town, unless the town is large and there are plenty of stores which I haven't passed paper to. I only work on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays and never during the weekdays unless I run low on cash.

"If I'm working a payroll check, I will wait until that bank that it is drawn on closes for the day. I also make sure that the place where I stole the checks from is closed for the day. I will call both places and make sure they are closed. I got caught once, when the cashier called the business and the owner told her he didn't know me. He checked and found that the check had been torn out of the middle of his checkbook.

"If I think there is an alert out on the checks I am working I will call one of the local supermarkets and tell them I am having a garage sale and a man is wanting me to cash his paycheck so he can buy something from me. I tell them he claims to do business with them all the time and they know him personally. I tell them I want to be sure the check is good.

"I say, will they please check their hot sheet and see if the check is listed. If they tell me the check is hot, I won't write on that account. If they tell me it is okay, I know I can go to all the stores in that chain and cash as many checks as I want.

"In the mornings, it is harder to cash checks, because you probably have the store manager or some experienced help working. If he has sense enough to run the store he probably has sense enough to cash checks. In the evenings you have some little high school boy or girl who doesn't know a check from a dollar bill. The younger they are the easier they are to fool. They all advertise by wearing those little name tags.

"I have never been questioned about my ID. I have been turned down on the checks, but not the ID. I have used the drivers' licenses of women, blacks, Latins and one time, a Filipino."

"Let's say the cashier is named 'Shirley.' I say, 'Hello Shirley, how you been doing today?' I continue to talk to her. She is embarrassed because she doesn't recognize me. She makes conversation, not really paying attention to what she is doing — she jots down the license number and gives me my cash.

"I have never been questioned about my ID. I have been turned down on the checks, but not the ID. I have used the drivers' licenses of women, blacks, Latins and one time, a Filipino.

Sometimes I change the license by putting my picture on it, but at times I have just held my thumb over the picture and let them copy down the number.

"All they want is that license number — they never check my description against the license. Stores will always be busy on weekend evenings. At times I've forgotten what name I was writing on and put the wrong name on the back of the check and they cash them anyway. They're always in a hurry and thinking about quitting time.

"Drivers' licenses are easy to come by. Most cashiers in the supermarkets have a bad habit. If a customer forgets his license or ID after cashing a check, the cashier will tape it on the office window. While I'm going to the different stores I watch for this and when I see a license displayed on the office window I ask the cashier for it. I tell them it belongs to a friend of mine if they bother to question me, usually they don't. If they aren't paying any attention I just reach over the glass and take it.

"Some stores have cameras and they take pictures when you cash a check. I never let this worry me. I go down to the hardware store and buy a thermometer, break it and rub the mercury on my face. Then I stick my face under the camera and let them take all the pictures they want. This makes them feel safe. All they get is a negative-looking picture. If you rub it in good the mercury is invisible. (NOTE: What this man did not know was that this practice is dangerous. Mercury is toxic and may prove fatal.)

"If you check a check-writer out real close, you'll find he has the same system. Once he finds something he hits on, he stays with it. I don't recommend this life to anyone. It's easy to make $1,200 to $3,000 a weekend, but you never have a moment's peace."

Betty defends the Nixon pardon

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Ford says she and former President Gerald Ford believe his pardon of Richard Nixon after the Watergate affair was the main reason Ford was not elected in 1976.

In her new autobiography, excerpted in the October issue of Ladies Home Journal, the former first lady said that when Ford pardoned Nixon in September 1974 her husband told her it was "the right thing to do."

"And he's never changed his mind," she writes, "though we both believe the pardon, more than anything else, cost him the 1976 election."

Explaining the reason for the pardon, Mrs. Ford quotes Hugh Sidey's book "Portrait of a President," as saying "it rested upon the simple convictions of a plain person that the nation needed to put Watergate behind it and that a sick and burdened man needed now to be left alone."

She contends that "it was the plain truth, but the public didn't buy it."

And even though the new president's popularity "plummeted almost overnight," Mrs. Ford said her husband "was not resentful."

It was just 18 days after the Nixon pardon that her doctors discovered she had cancer.

Mrs. Ford, who has suffered for years with a pinched nerve and arthritis, also tried to put an end to "public conjecture about my health" that has stemmed from her 1974 breast cancer operation.

After two years of chemotherapy, she now has "a bone scan every six months, and that's about it."

"Apart from the arthritis and the pinched nerve, I'm fine," she said. "My cancer checkups show I'm clean."

The book also reveals that while Ford was vice president, their daughter, Susan, was put under Secret Service guard because she had apparently been selected as a target by the same terrorist group that kidnapped Patty Hearst.

The Secret Service, which had previously protected only Ford, telephoned one Friday and told Mrs. Ford: "Don't let Susan out this weekend; she's not to leave the house."

The authorities had turned up a list with three names on it written by the Symbionese Liberation Army, she said.

"One of the people, a college professor, had already been shot and killed, the second person was Patty Hearst, who'd been kidnapped."

British eye wave power as possible energy source

LONDON (AP) — The British government is giving priority to research into the use of the waves that pound its coasts to provide energy when coal and North Sea oil run out.

Day in and day out, waves sweep in from the North Atlantic and dissipate their force on the beaches and cliffs of northwest Scotland and southwest England. Waves from the North Sea wash the east coast of Britain, which has a total coastline of about 4,500 miles.

"Surrounded as our island is by energetic waves, wave power probably offers a greater potential for the United Kingdom than any other natural renewable energy source," says Alex Eadie, Parliament undersecretary of state in charge of the quest for alternative energy sources.

"Experts have worked out that a 600-mile stretch of wave energy machines set off the southwest coast of England and off the northwest of Scotland to capture the energy of the Atlantic could, in principle, provide about half of the U.K.'s present electricity demand."

The country's 235 power stations, using such fuels as coal, oil, gas and fissionable material, had a total output capacity of 67,431 megawatts of electricity at the end of 1976, the latest year for which figures are available. A megawatt is equal to a million watts.

Britain has vast reserves of oil and natural gas beneath the North Sea and expects to be self-sufficient in energy — and perhaps even an oil exporter — by 1980.

But a spokesman for the Department of Energy explained: "We are investing for our children and grandchildren, for the days when the fossil fuels start to diminish."

The Labor Party government launched research into renewable energy in April 1976. So far it has committed about $31.2 million to look into such schemes as placing "aerogenerators" on windy hilltops and tapping the heat from "hot rocks" deep beneath the earth's surface.

But the investigation of wave power seems the most promising.

Earlier this year Britain's Natural Energy Center, an independent group of engineers who advocate exploitation of renewable power, reported that the energy crossing a 1,700-mile imaginary contour, 10 miles off Britain's northwestern coast, is about 500 million megawatt hours a year.

This would represent nearly twice the electricity produced by the Central Electricity Generating Board for all of Britain in 1976.

One scheme being developed by Sir Christopher Cockerell, inventor of the Hovercraft in the 1950s, envisions a network of floating power stations called "Cockerell rafts" off Scotland's northwest coast.

Each raft would be about 100 yards long and 50 yards wide and consist of pontoons hinged together.

As the pontoons move up and down on the waves, the motion would be used to drive hydraulic rams which in turn would drive electrical alternators. The power would be taken ashore by seabed cables to the national grid.

Pillar toppled

HJOERRING, Denmark (AP) — A gale-force storm has toppled the Skarreklit, a 48-foot pillar of limestone that rose out of the sea 150 yards off the sandy shore of northwest Jutland.

The pillar was the source of many legends, including one that a man seeking to find a treasure of gold hidden near the top was attacked by a large seabird nesting in the stone and fell to his death.

Tuesday's storm left only a three-foot mound of the Skarreklit's stone jutting from the sea, and geologists said that, too, will soon disappear.

In an operational system, a single raft might generate two megawatts of electricity, according to Wavepower Ltd., the company the 68-year-old inventor set up to develop the device.

A series of rafts, stretching over a length of 15 miles a distance of 5 to 10 miles offshore, might provide the equivalent of a 500-megawatt power station, Wavepower said.

Another plan involves the "Salter duck," developed by an Edinburgh University research team headed by Stephen Salter.

A scale model of the device is being tested at the university in a new 90-by-30-foot tank which can reproduce virtually any sea conditions. Another larger model is being tried out on Scotland's Loch Ness, home of the fabled monster.

In an operational system, strings of bobbing "ducks" would be mounted on a long spine. Salter says he envisions installations of nearly 20 miles of nodding ducks. As they bob in the waves they would drive pistons to generate electricity.

Dr. Denis Mollison, lecturer in mathematics and statistics at Edinburgh's Heriot-Watt University and a member of Salter's team, says international interest in wave power is increasing.

"The Japanese are very keen on the idea because of their lack of hydrocarbon capability," Mollison said, "and other areas where it could be a distinct feasibility include the West Coast of America, the southern Caribbean and South Africa."

Scientists describe the harnessing of the ocean as a "high-risk, high-reward" venture, involving formidable engineering challenges, installations on a gigantic scale, and capital investment not likely to pay off until well into the 21st century.

A disadvantage, says a British government document, is that wave power installations could pose a hazard to shipping and could have "some effect on the local marine environment." The government says it is looking into this aspect.

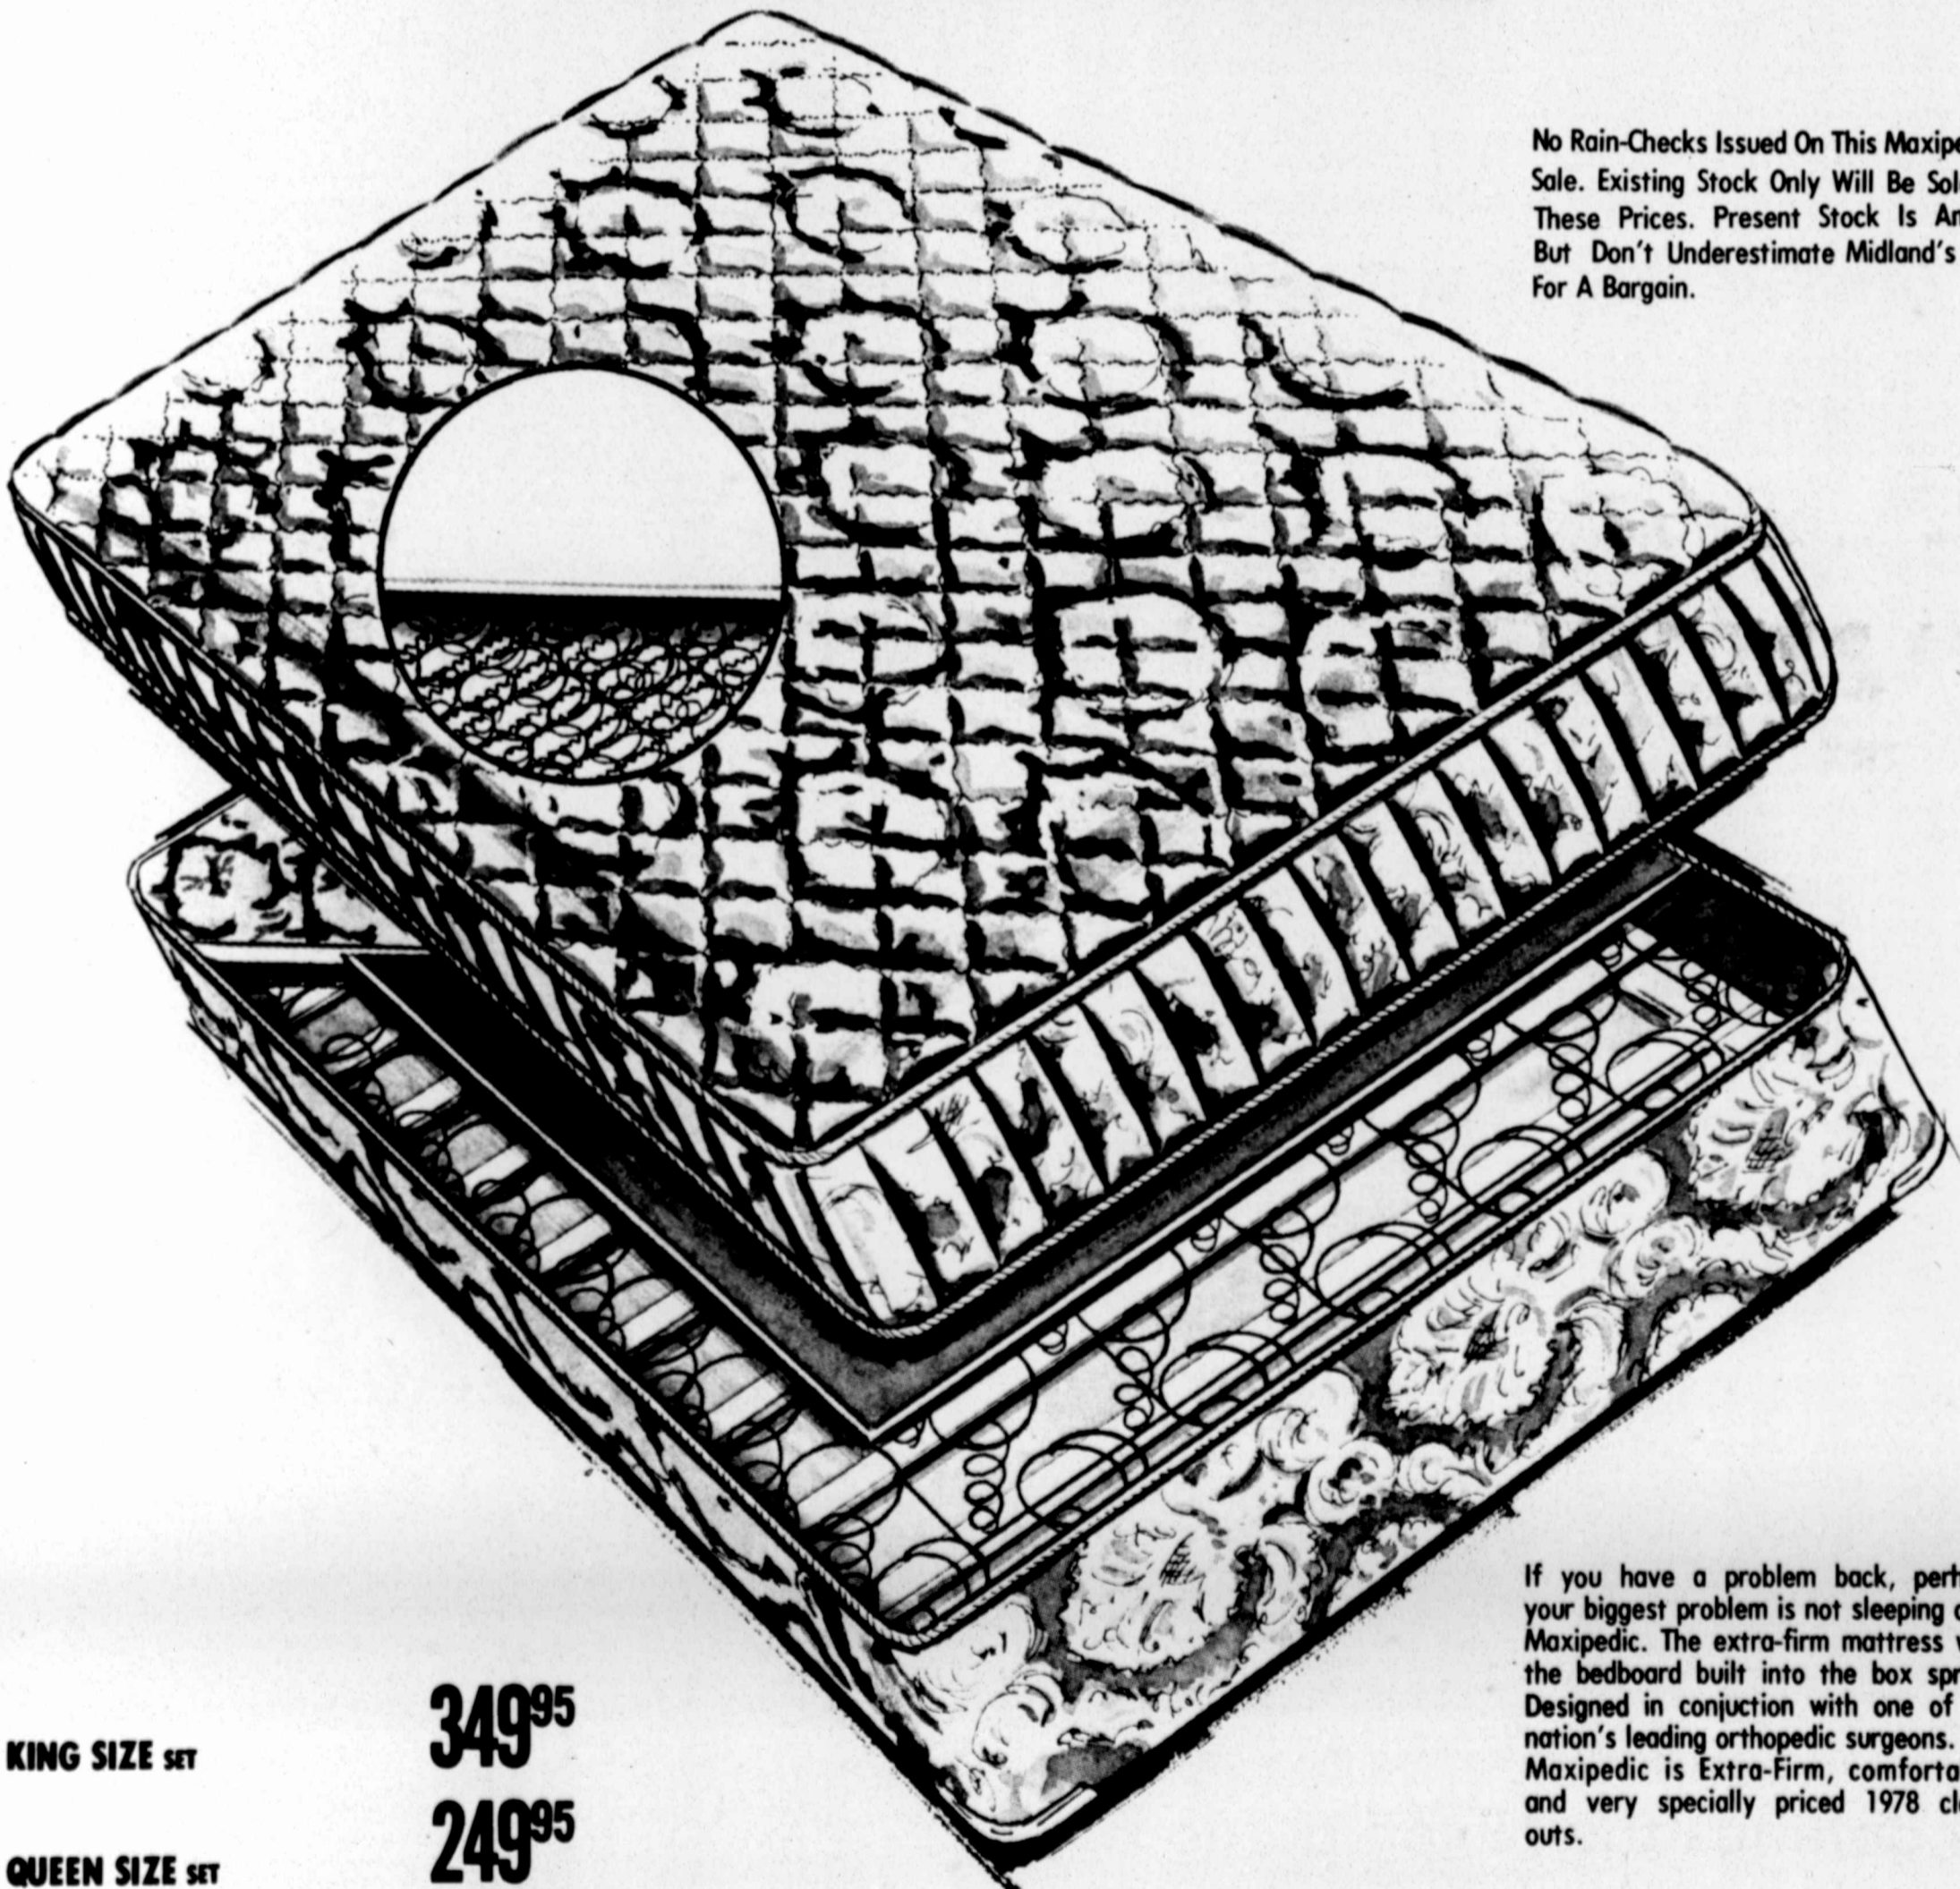

The document adds:

"Wave power would be generated far from areas of energy demand, and its transmission as electricity could mar much fine landscape." Steel pylons would probably have to be erected to support the cables carrying the power from the sea to population centers.

Truckin' Truck to meet Cactus Flower

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

PLAINVIEW — At first look, one would immediately expect a gigantic battle of fullbacks when Midland Lee's Cactus Flower meets up with Plainview's Truckin' Truck here Friday at 7:30 p.m., but this AAAA non-conference grid clash is much more than that.

To be sure, this is the non-conference test of multiple importance to both undefeated squads. Friday is when these two teams find out how good they really are. And that in itself is the real nature of this battle.

BOTH TEAMS have scored a lot of points and given up very few, but this is the first time either team has faced this kind of challenge. The winner will carry out of the game a great deal of confidence while the loser will have to do some soul searching before their respective district battles start. In fact, this outing is the pre-district season in a nutshell.

Still, a true fan can't overlook the matchup at fullback. The two linebusters are rated as the West Texas cream. On the one hand, you have Lee's Jeff McCowan, the Cactus Flower who has 329 yards rushing in two games for a 7.1 yard per carry average and six touchdowns. On the other, you have Plainview's Royce Coleman, the Truckin' Truck who has 378 yards rushing in the same number of games for an 11.8 average and four touchdowns. Both have broke long gainers for touchdowns this year. Coleman has rushed for 210 and 168 yards in his first two outings, including TD gallops of 96 and 70 yards while McCowan has games of 167 and 162 and a 63 yarder for a TD.

THAT'S ENOUGH of a matchup right there, but this is a game of matchups. The Plainview offense has averaged an awesome 421 yards per game while Lee has 380 per outing. It's easy to see that both teams have weapons other than fullbacks.

Lee's quarterback Gary Butler, getting experience in a hurry as a junior, has been Lee's top back two weeks in a row with his passing and leadership skills, and tailback Ricky Johnson has rushed for 144 yards in two games.

Plainview has two other backs also that look tough. Tailback Billy Williams has a 14-yard per carry average, and rushed for 163 yards last week against Tascosa. Halfback Ervin Davis had 107 yards last week and has a 7.5 per carry average. Offensive fire power abounds in this contest.

The two defensive teams have also made themselves heard this year, and it will be interesting to see how all that offensive manpower will fare against two superb defenses. Plainview has given up only 13 points this year while Lee has given up 14 points to the opposition.

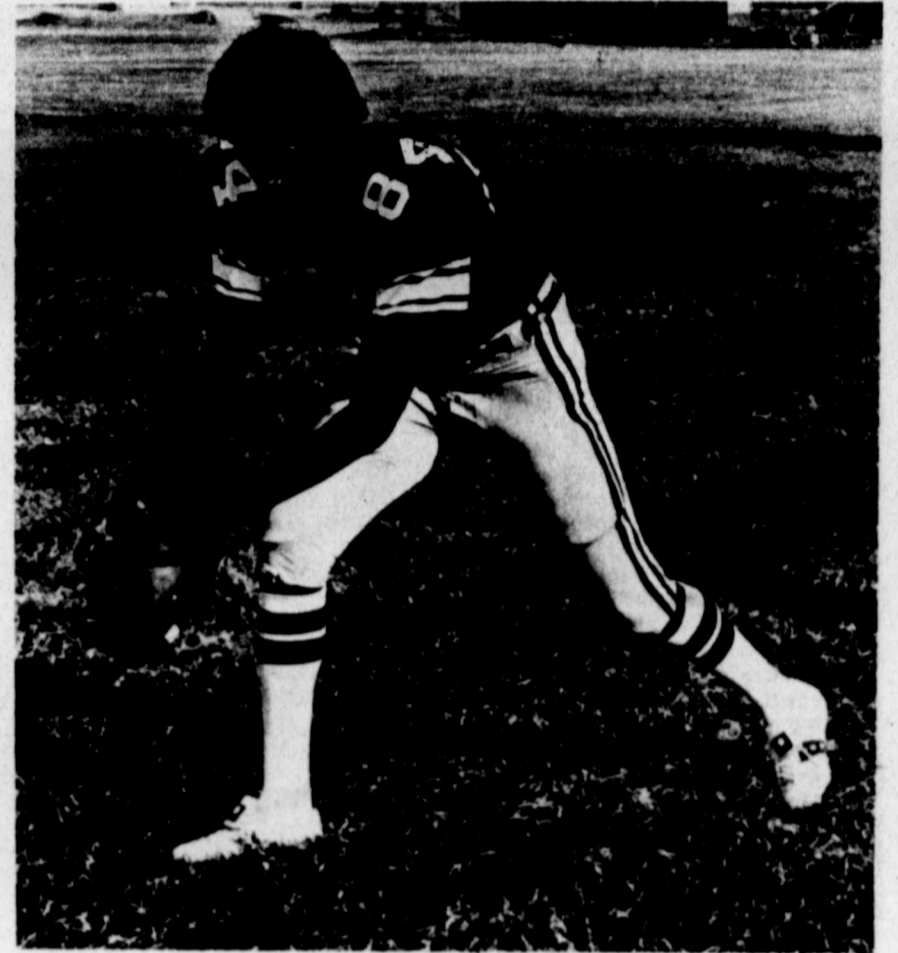

DEFENSIVELY, Lee linebackers Doug Crawford and Michael McCrea along with end Dwight Washington have been superb as has tackle Herb Pearce. Plainview sports two fine defensive tackles in 220-pound Robert Wafer and 217-pound Gary Russell.

Offensively, it will be Lee's pro-style attack against Plainview's Wing-T while defensively, Lee will use a 4-3 set compared to Plainview's 4-4. The coaches, who are both in their first year at the two schools, seem to be in agreement that this

Schmidt's bat paces Philadelphia over Expos in key tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia Phillies got a diet of fastballs from Dan Schatzeder. That's the kind of stuff big league hitters fatten up on. Especially hitters like Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt. "If they throw you enough of them and keep coming after you with fastballs, you can make an adjustment and maybe find your stroke," says Schmidt, who found his Wednesday night while helping the Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 4-2. Schmidt belted his 21st homer following Luzinski's 32nd in a game-breaking, three-run sixth inning at Montreal's Olympic Stadium. "This park has been tough on us in the past," noted Schmidt. "I think it's a pitcher's ballpark. But I finally got a good pitch for me to hit. I had been swinging at some high stuff out of the strike zone. I probably should be walking a little more than I am, but I'm just over-aggressive I guess."

The power show by Philadelphia's two sluggers and a strong performance by pitcher Randy Lerch came at a most opportune time. Coupled with Pittsburgh's 5-1 loss to Chicago earlier in the day, it improved the Phillies' lead over the Pirates to two games in the National League East. It also made Manager Danny Ozark extremely optimistic. "It was an exceedingly good day for us," said Ozark. "We gained a game on Pittsburgh. Randy Lerch pitched a heck of a game, we got some good power out of Luzinski and Schmidt, good defense. I thought we played very well. I hope we do the same thing tomorrow and I hope they do the same thing tomorrow."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3; the San Francisco Giants defeated the San Diego Padres 6-3; the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 and the Atlanta Braves beat the Houston Astros 3-2. Lerch, 10-8, scattered eight hits, including a two-run homer by Tony Perez, before getting relief help in the ninth from Ron Reed. Cubs 5, Pirates 1 Mike Krukow upped his record to 8-2 with a four-hitter and Bill Buckner drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly to lead Chicago over Pittsburgh. "The defense came up with some great plays," said Krukow. "I guess you could say I was on the lucky side of the breaks. "Keeping (Dave) Parker off base was a chore, but it has to be a factor," added Krukow, who held the National League's leading batter hitless in three at-bats. Parker reached base in the first on a walk. "There's no way to stop him. I've tried everything. He hit the ball hard today, too. With some luck, he probably would have had two or three hits and it would have been a different game."

Reds 4, Dodgers 3 George Foster slugged his 34th home run and pitcher Tom Seaver drilled a two-run single as Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles and prevented the Dodgers from clinching a tie for the National League West championship. The Dodgers' lead is 7½ games with nine remaining. Their magic number for winning the division remained at three. Foster's homer in the fourth with Joe Morgan aboard gave Cincinnati a 2-0 lead against loser Don Sutton, 15-11. In the seventh, Seaver followed a two-out triple by Dan Driessen and walks to Dave Concepcion and Champ Summers with a two-run single for Cincinnati's winning runs. Giants 6, Padres 3 Vida Blue ended a personal five-game losing streak and Jack Clark and Mike Ivie each rapped two hits and drove in a run as San Francisco defeated San Diego. Blue, 17-9, had not won since he beat the Dodgers Aug. 4 and had made eight previous starts in search of his 17th victory. Blue got relief help in the eighth from Randy Moffitt, who gained his 12th save. Padre starter Eric Rasmussen, 14-14, lost his fourth straight game.

Mets 7, Cardinals 6 Willie Montanez delivered a two-run, bases-loaded single to snap a 3-3 tie, then John Stearns and Elliott Maddox followed with sacrifice flies for a four-run seventh inning as New York beat St. Louis. Winner Kevin Kobel, 4-5, allowed eight hits before getting relief help from Jerry Kosman with two out in the seventh. George Frazier, 0-3, the second of five St. Louis pitchers, took the loss. Braves 3, Astros 2 Glenn Hubbard's two-out, ninth-inning single scored pinch-runner Ed Miller from second with the winning run as Atlanta beat Houston. With one out in the Braves' ninth, Joe Nolan singled and was replaced by Miller, who stole second while appearing in his first major league game. Hubbard then delivered his hit to left for the winning run.

Stanton seeks first win against McCamey Friday

By STEVE O'BRIEN
R-T Sports Writer

McCamey head football coach Ronnie Page believes that the calibre of a team's opponents has more impact on that team's record than anything else. One guy who wouldn't argue with that is David Thompson, Stanton skipper.

Stanton has been mentioned all along as one of the top contenders for the District 5-A title, but the Buffaloes have yet to win their first ball game. However, their two losses have come at the hands of AA schools.

Tahoka, the No. 3 ranked team in Class AA, scored 20 fourth quarter points to beat the Buffaloes 34-7. Coahoma, an always-tough rival and the overwhelming favorite to win the District 6-AA crown, beat Stanton last week, 28-15.

Even in defeat the Buffaloes have found enough bright spots to give them plenty of optimism heading into Friday's homecoming clash with McCamey.

"WE KNEW WE were going to have a tough schedule, but we planned it that way to help us get ready for district," Thompson said. "We felt like we should have won the Coahoma game. We had 311 yards of offense, but we dropped nine passes that hit our receivers right in the hands. We sure worked on that this week."

McCamey, on the other hand, dropped a 14-6 decision to Reagan County last week in a game they very simply did not play well enough to win.

"We weren't happy with the way the kids played last week," Page said. "We know if we play the same kind of ball game this week we won't beat Stanton."

"But we're not making any excuses," Page continued. "We've had good workouts this week and we know we're going to have to play a super game to beat Stanton."

IN LOOKING at Stanton, Page is concerned with two things. "We're worried about their speed and, of course, we're concerned about whether their big tailback will play."

That big tailback is Todd Smith, a 6-1, 175 pound senior who missed the Tahoka contest with a sprained ankle. He alternated with Alonzo Padron there last week and showed he was back in good form, picking up 58 yards in 16 carries. After that performance, Thompson expects him at full speed for Friday's battle and that's either good news or bad news, depending on whether you're from Stanton or McCamey.

"They (Stanton) are one or two touchdowns better with him," Page said. "He's one of the best in West Texas." McCamey, on the other hand, is a "small, quick and well-coached team," according to Thompson. "They have a couple of excellent running backs in Raul Arana and Lenny Luna."

The Rankin Red Devils hope to push their season mark to 3-0 when they hit the road to take on Imperial.

RANKIN HAS WON their first two contests of the season by a combined 50-0 score with fullback Richard Barrett generating most of the offense. The 185-pound power back has amassed 291 yards rushing and has six touchdowns to his credit.

Crane's Golden Cranes are unbeaten after two weeks, but they may have a tough time staying that way this week when they entertain Coahoma. While Crane was blitzing Marfa 21-0 last week, Coahoma was dealing Stanton a loss behind the superb signal-calling of quarterback Gary Gee. Gee ran for one score and passed for another in that game.

Coahoma can boast an overpowering running game led by Gee and fullback Tracy Frazier, who led the league in scoring last year as a junior with 13 touchdowns. Coahoma racked up 304 yards on the ground in that Stanton game.

Andrews is also unbeaten at this stage and they've been doing it with outstanding performances from sophomore tailback Van Peary and senior quarterback Jay McWilliams. That duo will lead the Mustangs into Seminole in search of their third win this week.

REAGAN COUNTY has been the surprise of area football so far, pulling off wins over Ozona and McCamey in their first two outings. The Owls, under new head coach Melvin Burns, have their work cut out for them this week as they travel to Iraan for a date with the powerful Braves. Iraan is also 2-0, their latest win a 27-0 whitewashing of Eldorado.

Lamesa also takes to the road this week for an engagement with Levelland. To say the Golden Tors have had some hard luck so far would be putting it mildly. Lamesa has yet to score a point and have lost to Pecos and Andrews by a combined score of 68-0. In their contest with old rival Andrews last week, the Tors stayed in the game until the very end on the strength of a surprisingly feisty defense. A couple of defensive breakdowns hurt Lamesa dearly in that one and they hope stellar senior linebacker Armando Morales, who missed that game with a hip pointer, will be back in action this week to help steady things.

FRIDAY'S SCHEDULE
District 2-AAA: ANDREWS at Seminole, EP Address at FT. STOCKTON, Cassville at MONAHANS, PECOS at EP Riverside, Crystal City at ECTOR.
District 3-AAA: Denver City at BROWNFIELD, LAMESA at Levelland, Dunbar at LAKE VIEW, Big Springs at SNYDER, Stamford at SWEETWATER.
District 7-AA: Coahoma at CRANE, KERMIT at Lovington, Eldorado at OZONA, SONORA at Mason.
District 8-A: Sudan at ANTON, Robert Lee at FOR-SAN, O'DONNELL at Borden Co., PLAINS at Sundown, ROPES at Meadow, Lorena at SEAGRAVES, SHALOWATER at Springdale, McCamey at STANTON.
District 8-A: CLINT at Van Horn, Reagan County at IRAAN, McCamey at Stanton, RANKIN at Imperial, MARFA at Sundown.
District 9-A: REAGAN COUNTY at Iraan, EL DORADO at Ozona, JUNCTION at Coleman, Sonora at MASON, PESHAW at Eden, WALL at Jim Ned.

Pack, Rebs will win

Last week was a much more successful one in picking 47 Class AAAA football games as this corner lucked out, hitting 40 and missing seven to bring this season reading to 64-17 which is just under 80 percent. It would be well over that if the first weekend had not been such a disaster.

Anyway, District 5-4A teams wind up non-loop play this weekend and then take a week's rest before opening warfare in the league on Oct. 6.

District 5-4A elevens won five of eight games against outside opponents last week for a two-week total of 11-5 and there are some tough games on hand this weekend.

MIDLAND HIGH again plays at home against the Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen who are 0-1-1 so far with a 6-6 tie with Canyon and a 17-0 loss to Wichita Falls Rider last week, but the Plainsmen are still in and physical and may come into the Tall City a little bit mad for poor showings for two weeks. The Bulldogs will be without the services of stellar tackle Blake Feldt who, like his brother Michael, broke a small bone in his leg prior to the Eastwood game last week. Going with the Super Dogs to post a 14-7 victory in Memorial Stadium Friday...

MIDLAND LEE has its work cut out for itself in Plainview Friday. Both the Rebel Express and the Bulldogs are 2-0 and it shapes up as a great ball game and a good touch one which Coach Gil Bartosh and his troops need before squaring off with Odessa High in two weeks in their 5-4A opener. Jeff McCowan and Company should come out on top in this one, 20-14, but it's going to be tough. Plainview won last year, 20-14.

ODESSA HIGH, like Permian, Abilene, Cooper and Lee, stands

BOB DILLON
2-0 and should be 3-0 after a short trip into New Mexico Friday to face the Hobbs Eagles who are also undefeated. Going with the Bronchos to go into league play with a 3-0 reading against Midland Lee by taking a 28-8 victory over the Eagles.

ABILENE COOPER should have a breather this weekend in facing the Haltom Buffaloes. It will give quarterback Tracy Thomas and running back Tim Orr a chance to shoe off their talents. The Cougs to take a 33-13 victory to remain undefeated...

ABILENE HIGH has the toughest task of any 5-4A team this weekend, taking on the No. 1-ranked AAAA team in the Lone Star state, the Temple Wildcats in Abilene. Last year, Temple won, 27-25 and it could be another dandy this time around. Going with Temple to win, 20-13. Sorry about that Eagles....

BIG SPRING has its last chance to win a game this season when the Steers take on the Class AAA Snyder Tigers. It should be a fine ball game and am going to go with Snyder to post a 14-13 victory over the Steers in a hard-fought game...

SAN ANGELO CENTRAL stands 0-2, but has played two tough opponents thus far in losing to Austin Stephen F. Austin and Killeen. The Bobcats face Austin Anderson and am going with the Concho City team to take a 28-8 victory with junior halfback Glen Payne having a great night...

ODESSA PERMIAN has to wait until Saturday afternoon to take on the Texarkana Tigers in W.T. Barrett Stadium. Texarkana, like Permian, is 2-0, but the Tigers will wing their way back home to East Texas with a 21-8 loss. Last time Permian faced Texarkana was in the state semifinals in 1965 when Mojo won, 28-20 in Fort Worth...

OTHER GAMES: El Paso Bowie over Parkland; Fort Stockton over El Paso Andress, 20-14; El Paso Austin 20, Roswell, N.M. 14; Eastwood 20, Burges 13; Las Cruces Mayfield 27, El Paso Irvin 14; Alamogordo, N.M. 26, Ysleta Bel Air 14; Amarillo 21, Lubbock 6; Palo Duro 22, Clovis, N.M. 16; Pampa 26, Altus, Okla. 20; Borger over Hereford, 20-15; Rider 27, Hirsch 7; Wichita Falls 21, Vernon 13; Arlington 6, Irving Nimitz 0; Arlington Lamar 27, South Grand Prairie 20; South Garland over Duncanville; Trinity Euless 20, Richland 12; Irving 26, Denton 14; Skyline over Spruce; W.T. White 27, Samuel 19; South Oak Cliff 33, Pinkston 13; Plano 20, Sherman 14; Killeen 20, Longview 19; Bryan 20, Nacogdoches 12; Tyler 22, Richfield 14; Brownwood 20, Round Rock 17; Conroe 20, Kashmere 19; LaPorte 22, Stratford 20; Baytown Sterling 16, Galena Park 14; Port Neches-Groves 32, Port Arthur Jefferson 12; Dobie 33, Dickinson 19; Ball 20, Yates 0; Austin Reagan 20, Crockett 13; Corpus Christi Carroll 20, Stroman 17; San Antonio Jay over Memorial; Churchill 20, Highlands 8 and San Antonio Lee to win again, this time over Jefferson, 28-13.

Dibbs captures win; Gottfried also grabs win in net tourney

By The Associated Press
Eddie Dibbs and Brian Gottfried, seeded first and second, respectively, have taken their first steps towards the title match in a $200,000 men's tennis tournament in Los Angeles.

Dibbs rallied to outlast Victor Pecci of Paraguay 3-6, 6-1, 7-5, while Gottfried eliminated Vijay Amritraj of India 6-1, 6-3 to wind up first-round action at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion Wednesday night.

Second-round winners Wednesday included fourth-seeded Roscoe Tanner, who whipped Cliff Richey 6-2, 6-2; ninth-seeded John Newcombe, who defeated fellow Australian Colin Dibley 6-2, 6-1; 11th-seeded John Lloyd of Britain, who topped Trey Waltke 7-6, 6-2; Peter Fleming, who eliminated John Austin 6-4, 6-2, and Kim Warwick of Australia, who upset fifth-seeded Sandy Mayer 1-6, 6-3, 7-6.

In another first-round match, sixth-seeded Harold Solomon had little trouble downing Cliff Letcher of Australia 6-2, 6-2.

In Hartford, Conn., Andy Pattison upset second-seeded Stan Smith 6-3, 6-7, 7-6 in second-round play of a $75,000 men's tournament. In other matches, top-seeded John McEnroe ousted Steve Docherty 6-3, 6-4, Antonio Munoz of Spain downed Australia's Dick Crealy 4-6, 6-3, 7-6, South Africa's Johan Kriek beat Mark Edmondson of Australia 6-3, 6-1 and Billy Scanlon stopped Bruce Mansson 6-3, 7-6.

Fourth-seeded Laura DuPont fought off a match point and advanced to the quarter-finals of a $40,000 women's tournament in Montreal by defeating Patricia Mendaro of Brazil 5-7, 6-1, 7-5.

Other players advancing to the quarters were third-seeded Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa, 6-4, 7-6 over Kay McDaniel; fifth-seeded Diane Desfor, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0 over Australia's Merida Gregory, and eighth-seeded Dana Gilbert, 7-6, 6-3 over Pam Whycross of Australia.

In first-round matches at Montreal, Carrie Meyer upset sixth-seeded Ruta Gerulaitis 7-5, 6-3; Michele Tyler of Britain eliminated Kym Ruddell of Australia 6-2, 6-2 and Francoise Durr of France crushed Bunny Bruning 6-3, 6-0.

Pro bowlers led by Roth

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Professional Bowlers Association leading money winner Mark Roth is among the field of eligible competitors for the start of the Professional Bowlers Association fall tour next month.

The $42,500 PBA Regional Champions Classic is scheduled for Oct. 27-30 at Rochester, N.Y., with the winner to receive $5,000.

Roth has already won $113,000 this year.

Dave Davis, who has earned $40,735 this year, is defending champion.

Oh slams 37th homer of year

TOKYO (AP) — Sadaharu Oh's 37th home run of the Japanese League baseball season broke a sixth-inning tie before pinch-hitter Haruyuki Harada knocked in the eventual winning run with a sacrifice fly, lifting the Giants to a 5-4 victory over the Yokohama Taiyo Whales Wednesday.

could be a knockdown affair.

"I think we will be playing the best team in the Panhandle. They're picked to win it all up there, and they have three backs that are being recruited heavily by the Southwest Conference." Lee coach Gil Bartosh notes. "Plainview is a big play team. They break five or six times every game. This will be by far our biggest game before district. We're going into the game in pretty good shape, but Rodney Taylor (a 232-pound tackle on both offense and defense) has a strained neck, and we don't really know if he will be able to go or not. He was our top offensive lineman last week."

IF BARTOSH feels like Plainview is Murder Inc., he has plenty of company from opposing coach Greg Sherwood when he views the Lee lineup.

"We haven't played anyone like Lee. Their defense is very aggressive and they have the best running back (McCowan) I've ever seen. I've heard they have a pot full of college prospects. They have a good quarterback. I'm just really impressed with Lee. They can do a lot of things," Sherwood said.

"I've just coached country boys all my life, and when you play a team like Lee, you're keeping pretty fast company. We're fortunate to have a lot of talent here, but AAAA ball is a battle every week. This may be a war," said Sherwood, who comes to Plainview after five years at Spearman.

Friday could be a real war, but most importantly at this stage of the season, there will be two teams that will have a lot of questions answered.

Spurs trimming player roster

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have trimmed their training camp roster to 14 by cutting third-round draft choice Gerald Henderson and free agent Marshall Rogers of Pan American. Meanwhile, disgruntled George Gervin, last year's National Basketball Association leading scorer who says he wants to be traded because of a contract dispute, was at practice Wednesday, but he refused to talk to reporters.

The 6-foot-7 Gervin wanted the Spurs to renegotiate his contract. He reportedly turned down the Spurs' offer of $300,000 per year for eight years.

The 6-3 Henderson was drafted last spring from Virginia Commonwealth. Rogers, who is 6-1, was the NCAA scoring champion two years ago and spent a season with the Golden State Warriors.

Giants' Dave Bristol suspended for season

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Francisco Giants' coach Dave Bristol says his suspension for the rest of the season by National League President Charles Feeney "is his way of getting back at me."

The Giants announced Wednesday that Feeney had suspended Bristol and fined him $500 for an altercation with an umpire during a game at Candlestick Park last Saturday against the Cincinnati Reds.

Feeney, who was at the game, said in a note to the Giants that Bristol used abusive language, argued with first base umpire Gerry Crawford and struck the umpire in the face with his cap.

"The penalty doesn't fit the crime as usual in a Chub Feeney decision," Bristol said here Wednesday night before the Giants beat the Padres 6-3 at San Diego Stadium.

The dispute arose when the Giants protested that George Foster of the Reds had swung at a pitch for a third strike. The umpires ruled it a ball and Foster then homered for the tying run.

Bristol gave his version of what led to him getting thrown out: "He (Crawford) cursed me bad. First he cursed me before the inning was over and when I was on the field."

Bristol said the only reason he got involved was, "I was worried about our pitcher (John Montefusco) getting off the field before he got in trouble. Now I wind up the culprit. This is a long-standing vendetta. This is his (Feeney's) way of getting back at me."

"I think it's ridiculous," Richardson said. "Feeney owes him the courtesy of talking to him before suspending him. The ballclub is backing Bristol 100 percent."

Bristol has asked for a hearing and Feeney has agreed to grant him one in his New York office no later than Monday.

RICK LEACH, gifted quarterback for the University of Michigan, leads his team against Notre Dame Saturday in a game that will be on national television starting at 11:30 a.m. (CDT). It is the first of a big doubleheader with the USC-Alabama game to follow Saturday afternoon in another national TV game. Leach led Michigan to a 31-0 win over Illinois last week. (AP Laserphoto).

Holtz is impressed with play of OSU quarterback

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Oklahoma State quarterback Scott Burk, reasons Arkansas coach Lou Holtz, must be a good one.

Burk has replaced Harold Bailey as OSU's No. 1 quarterback and it was Bailey who impressed Holtz while rushing for 93 yards against Arkansas last year.

"Anybody who can beat out Harold Bailey must be a fine quarterback," Holtz said. "Burk throws the ball well, but Bailey is an exciting runner. He may be faster and I always thought he threw the ball good."

Oklahoma State coach Jim Stanley had a simple explanation when asked about Burk and Bailey.

"It's based on performance," Stanley said. "He (Burk) moved the football team last week. He's better about wrapping the ball up. He'll put it on the ground less."

Oklahoma State, 0-2 for the season, takes on second-ranked Arkansas Saturday in Stillwater, Okla. Oklahoma State dropped a 20-10 decision to Wichita State and then lost to Florida State 38-20 last week.

DiGregorio will retire

PROVIDENCE (AP) — Ernie DiGregorio says it was easy for him to walk away from professional basketball, which had become a frustrating ordeal after a slide from rookie of the year laurels to benchwarmer.

"All I wanted was to be allowed to make a contribution, to play," said the 27-year-old former Providence College All-American. "But I wasn't allowed, and that's what made it easy to retire."

DiGregorio, who called it quits last week after learning the Boston Celtics would not make extensive use of his talents, had just demonstrated his ballhandling wizardry in a pickup game with some PC recruits.

"I'd just as soon go into a gym and play with some guys, have a few laughs, just enjoy the game like I did today, and stay away from all the frustration," he said.

DiGregorio said he's mulling an offer from the Houston Rockets, who are having injury problems at guard, but it looks like another limited-play situation. His retirement probably will continue.

The NBA is "a bizarre league" where "things go on behind closed doors," he added.

Starr upset over play by Tatum

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers Coach Bart Starr has insisted he was not merely seeking publicity when he complained that an Oakland Raider defensive back took a cheap shot at Packer running back Terrell Middleton.

"I don't want to publicize it at all," Starr said of his complaint about Oakland defender Jack Tatum. "I want people like that thrown out of the game and fined."

"The more we talk about this, the more vociferous I'm going to become on the subject," he added during a Wednesday news conference.

Starr had complained that Tatum hit Middleton in the face with his forearm during Oakland's 28-3 National Football League victory at Green Bay Sunday, violating an NFL rule that prohibits a defender from delivering a forearm blow above the shoulders.

Starr showed films of the play on his weekly television show Monday night and said he planned to take up the matter with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Fading Bosox still fail despite Yankees defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Red Sox were so busy playing scoreboard baseball they forgot about the game on the field.

Before the Red Sox came to bat in Detroit, they were delighted to see that New York Yankee ace Ron Guidry had lost to lowly Toronto.

"We couldn't wait to get on the field when we knew Guidry got beat in the first game," said Jerry Remy, who had four of Boston's six hits in a 12-2 clobbering by Detroit Wednesday night. "Then we saw Toronto ahead 2-0 in the second game and we were really psyched up."

But it didn't help as the Tigers strafed four Boston pitchers for 15 hits, while Dave Rozema got his third complete-game victory in a row. In fact, Remy was so intent on playing scoreboard baseball that he wasn't sure who the opposing pitcher was.

"You've got to give credit to Rozema, or whatever his name is," said Remy. "He pitched a great game."

Meanwhile, Toronto handed Guidry only his third loss in 25 decisions, 8-1, in the opener, but the Yankees rallied for three runs in the ninth to win the nightcap 3-2.

With both Boston and New York having 10 games left, the Yankees lead the Red Sox by two games in the American League East.

"We're two down with 10 to play," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "It ain't good, but we're not dead."

Elsewhere, Milwaukee moved to within 5 1/2 games of the Yankees with a 5-4 victory over Kansas City, which now leads California by five games in the AL West. Minnesota beat Texas 5-3.

Rusty Staub and Lou Whitaker each belted three-run homers for Detroit. Boston's Jim Rice, the major league home run leader, belted his 42nd, a two-run shot in the ninth.

"We still have a shot," said Boston's Carl Yastrzemski. "What are we going to do, lay down and cry?"

Blue Jays 8-2, Yanks 1-3
Guidry, who entered the game with a 21-inning scoreless streak and seven straight victories, gave up a pair of unearned runs in the first, then gave up more than two runs in one inning for only the second time all season.

"I thought I had good stuff," said Guidry, who allowed six hits and five runs in 12 1/2 innings. "They just hit the ball and found the holes. I thought I made good pitches on a couple of guys, but they fought them off and came back to get some good hits."

"It (the loss) came at a bad time, but I expect those games. Great pitchers have them, and I'm not going to be any different. If this just happens once out of the whole year, it's not too bad."

After taking six of seven from the Red Sox the past two weekends, the Yanks have now split two games with both Milwaukee and last-place Toronto. Did anybody say "letdown?"

"We're not tight," said the Yanks' Lou Piniella, who delivered one of three clutch RBI singles in New York's three-run rally in the ninth inning of the nightcap. "We've just had the rain cutting into our batting practice. Today was the first time since last week that we've been able to have practice before the game."

Chris Chambliss and Graig Nettles also singled in runs in the Yankee ninth. The Blue Jays rapped out 13 hits in support of Mike Willis' six-hit performance in the first game.

"It doesn't matter where you play," said Yankee Manager Bob Lemon. "You can get a well-pitched game playing almost anywhere. They're trying to make a salary drive, so they'll have something to bargain with in the winter."

Paul Molitor drilled a two-out single in the eighth, capping a two-run rally that pulled Milwaukee over Kansas City. Larry Hise singled and came home on Sal Bando's two-out triple.

Jerry Augustine, 13-12, picked up the victory, retiring all seven batters he faced.

Twins 5, Rangers 3
Dave Goltz tossed an eight-hitter and Minnesota scratched for four runs in the fourth without getting the ball out of the infield to defeat Texas.

The freak rally consisted of two walks and a hit batsman to load the bases. Then Dave Edwards and Roy Smalley drew bases-loaded walks and Rod Carew and Dan Ford each had run-producing infield hits.

Scribe picks USC over Crimson Tide in grid game on national TV

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The lady in the optometrist's office was going through the routine eye examination.

"Look at the chart," the doctor said, "can you read the top line?" "Read it!" the lady exclaimed. "I know the guy — he plays guard for Notre Dame."

The Fighting Irish — Maszta, Horansky, Martinovich and Co. — have shaken off the Missouri setback and, as in the two previous years, hope to make a bid for No. 1.

Our score last week: 42-9, 823, with Penn State over Ohio State the piece de resistance. This week's upset special: USC over 'Bama.

Southern California 21, Alabama 17: The Tide has had two toughies. The Trojans are young, fresh, eager and away from home.

Notre Dame 27, Michigan 19: The Irish don't get aroused until they've blown one — Georgia Tech in 1976, Mississippi in 1977.

Ohio State 25, Minnesota 14: Woody's gamble with the passing game backfired, now it's back to the infantry.

North Carolina 18, Maryland 10: The Tar Heels and their new coach, Dick Crum, are both defense minded, give ground grudgingly.

Brigham Young 27, Colorado State 14: BYU's quarterback Marc Wilson, 6-4, sights his TD throws over heads of defenders.

Penn State 22, Southern Methodist 17: The Mustangs' Mike Ford-Emanuel Tolbert combination can be troublesome.

Texas 30, Wyoming 7: The Longhorns field a team that rhymes — players named Ham, Jam and Lam. How about Slam?

Brown 19, Yale 17: Brown has a man named Whipple — Mark Whipple — who should squeeze the charmin' Ellis.

Memphis State 22, Mississippi State 10: Scampering Lloyd Patterson could provide the needed edge.

Arizona 24, Texas Tech 7: When Arizona joined the Pac 10, Coast pundits warned that Coach Tony Mason was "a bulldozer."

Cornell 14, Princeton 7: What a difference a year makes. Princeton won last year's game 34-0.

Arkansas 35, Oklahoma State 14: The Razorbacks' Lou Holtz has become king of the one liners: "The right angle is try-angle."

Oklahoma 37, Rice 7: Who let all those race horses out of the corral? Duke 22, South Carolina 14: The Gamecocks are so young there's not a razor in the locker room.

Air Force 19, Holy Cross 14: The airmen, losers to Boston College, should be getting used to the New England accent.

The others: EAST Texas A&M 28, Boston College 14; Navy 30, Connecticut 7; Pitt 33, Temple 7; Penn 21, Dartmouth 7; Harvard 14, Columbia 6; Rutgers 24, Bucknell 12; Colgate 28, Lehigh 10; William & Mary 20, Villanova 7.

SOUTH Clemson 14, Georgia 10; Georgia Tech 23, Tulane 7; Kentucky 19, Baylor 12; Louisiana State 25, Wake Forest 17; Florida State 20, Miami Fla.

O'Brien predicts wins by Stanton and Cranes

By STEVE O'BRIEN
R-T Sports Writer

In a part of the country where winning football games is almost synonymous with life itself, Ronnie Page is like a breath of fresh air.

Page is the head football coach at McCamey High School and, as shocking as it may seem to some, for him winning is not "the only thing."

"Winning isn't the most important thing," the affable Page insists. "We believe what we can teach the kids about life is the most important thing. Now that doesn't mean I'm a loser — we like to win too."

And the funny thing about it is that even though Page doesn't set winning as McCamey's top priority, they manage to do it anyway. A year ago the Badgers were expected to have very little impact on the District 6-A standings, but the Page-guided group pulled off a couple of upsets and ended up 6-1 and runner-up in the district. This year they stand 1-1 heading into Friday's battle with Stanton.

"That's not too shabby for a guy who has the audacity to challenge the coaching philosophy of virtually everybody else in the profession," says the Vince Lombardi "win at all costs" style of coaching is fine for guys who get paid $100,000 or more a year for playing the game. You could possibly make an argument for that style in the collegiate ranks, too. But, high school football is a different matter altogether.

LET US not forget these are, after all, boys in the 15-18 age bracket. And at that age there are far more important lessons to be learned than winning football games.

But, it would not be fair to lump all coaches into that category. Nor would it be fair to lay all the blame for that attitude on the coaches themselves. It's townspeople, people who have very little actual concern for the boys' future in the biggest game of them all — life.

Everybody likes a winner, that's perfectly normal. But when it reaches a point when people can't bear to lose — look out, because somebody's going to get burned. It's at that point when coaches realize they're out of a job if they don't win. And if a coach is feeling pressured, the odds are good the kids will be subjected to the same kind of pressure.

"FORTUNATELY the people in that position," Page said, "I told the school board and everybody else when they hired me that if they wanted somebody to promise them wins then they better hire someone else.

"It's just as important to teach the kids how to lose as it is how to win because you're going to lose some games and you're going to lose sometimes in life. What we want to teach them is how to get back up after some adversity.

"A coach shouldn't have to ask the impossible," he continued. "We don't tell our kids to go out and win. We tell them to go out and give it all they've got and let the chips fall. The only time I'm disappointed is when we put them out on the field and they don't give it everything."

And, what about the remainder of McCamey's season? "We could win the rest of rest of 'em or we could lose the rest of 'em, but that's not really important. We're still gonna love the kids even if they lose. We're just trying to teach them to be winners in life.

"THAT'S MY philosophy and I'm not ashamed of it." It's a unique philosophy, but then Page is a unique person. For this man success is not measured in wins and losses. "The importance of my job

Detroit will stay independent

DETROIT (AP) — A proposed new athletic conference will have to carry on without the University of Detroit.

U-D Athletic Director Larry Geraciotti dealt a blow to the proposal Wednesday by announcing his school would remain independent, as it has been since the mid-1950s.

The announcement came as representatives of several other schools cancelled a meeting they had scheduled Wednesday at Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., to discuss plans for the new conference.

In Cincinnati, meanwhile, Xavier University Athletic Director Jim McCafferty, who has been trying for 10 years to form a new conference, said just five schools remain actively involved in the plans.

NCAA regulations require at least six schools to join before a league can be recognized.

Initially, 10 schools had indicated interest in joining the new conference. Besides Detroit, Oral Roberts and Xavier can't. Former players can talk about their specific positions but a coach can see the entire picture. I try to make sure I provide a dimension nobody else can.

"The one thing I have to be careful with is not being too technical. I make it a point to control my thoughts. There have been times at clinics where I have talked for more than an hour about one play. You have to get in and out with your thoughts on TV and radio. And your explanation of a play has to be very vivid and clear so people know what you're talking about."

Stram says he is not reluctant to point out errors on the field.

"If you have to worry about saying things that will bother other people you are in the wrong job. You have to say what you think. If a guy makes a mistake, say, throwing into double coverage when he had a tight end free, I will say it was a bad call and explain why. That's my job."

Up until last winter, Stram's job was trying to build the Saints into a competitive ballclub. He was two years into his program and felt he was making progress when the ax, wielded by phlegmatic owner John Mecom Jr., was lowered. Stram didn't like it much but he was not surprised.

"I've always felt if a coach is making progress, if he's had a record as a consistent winner, if he's won the big one (a reference to Kansas City's victory in Super Bowl IV), he's earned the right to stay... But the thing you have to realize about coaching is that it's a high profile, high risk business... You have to realize that's what the situation is."

"I really think the winners lick the problems, the losers are swallowed up by the problems."

Before too long, if past performance is any guide, there will be a couple of openings in the NFL coaching ranks, but Stram insists he has not given any thought to returning to the sidelines.

"I'm not doing this with the idea that it's a stepping stone, a way to get back into coaching," he says. "I've always felt very strongly that what's important is what you do today. I'm not treading water here. I am concentrating on this job. I want to do the best job I can. That's what's important now."

"After the season, well, we'll let the chips fall where they may."

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Diversions few at summit talks

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fighting cabin fever was one of the major challenges that faced American hosts at the ultra-secluded Camp David summit.

For swinging diplomats, two discos were provided in the recreation hall. Plus a disc jockey.

One of the energetic dancers: Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli ambassador, who found partners among the secretarial corps.

Movies also provided diversion. Hamilton Jordan, the principal aide to President Carter, saw "An Unmarried Woman" with Menachem Begin and his wife, Aliza.

The Israeli prime minister was asleep within five minutes.

Ezer Weizman, Israel's defense minister, watched "Patton," often seen at Camp David when Richard Nixon was president. As the guns of World War II echoed through the theater, Weizman remarked that if the summit should flop, "this is what will happen."

The international press corps assembled six miles away in Thurmont, Md., had, if anything, fewer diversions.

"We've been here so long," said one reporter, "they've put in sidewalks."

Indeed, coincidentally, a new concrete sidewalk was built along the street leading from temporary press headquarters to a motel bought out by American journalists for the duration of the summit.

The press contingent worked in Thurmont's American Legion hall, an impressive edifice with a busy bar in the basement.

Visitors accustomed to city prices were amazed at the Legion's anti-inflation tabs: 25 cents for a highball during the daily "happy hour," 12½ cents for a soft drink.

The last group of White House aides to leave the summit by helicopter included political adviser Jordan, chief speechwriter James Fallows and chief image-burnisher Gerald Rafshoon.

Their departure together served as a reminder that although peace was Carter's mission at Camp David, he could hardly be un mindful of the summit's impact on his own political fortunes.

Incidentally, Jordan had to be directed toward the proper helicopter. Instinctively, he looked first toward the craft he usually rides — the one with a big red "1" on the nose.

As Carter escorted Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat toward the helicopter waiting to take them to the White House, Sadat turned and pointed toward a full moon.

As an omen, it might better have been a new moon.

Whatever happened to the plan to have Vice President Walter F. Mondale mind the store in Washington while Carter was sequestered atop Catoctin Mountain?

Mondale spent so much time at Camp David, carrying out negotiating assignments for Carter, that one had to wonder who was taking care of things in Washington.

Can it be the assignment fell, unnoticed, to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass.? By law, he stands next in line to the presidency.

After an agreement crowned their summit exertions, Sadat and Begin joined Carter in telephoning the man who might have been the Camp David host had a few thousand voters felt differently 22 months ago: Gerald R. Ford.

Texan prospers as menu maker

By TOM DeCOLA

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — If Victor Cornelius hadn't thought the menu salesman's prices were too high, he wouldn't have entered the business and then where would the Officer's Mess at Albrook Air Force Base in the Canal Zone buy its menus?

"I was running a restaurant and doing theatrical printing then, and I knew his prices were too high," the 74-year-old Cornelius said. "I asked him if he wanted to sell out, 'cause he was kinda the main guy selling menus. He said $25,000, so I bought him out. The bad part was hauling around all the stuff of his I couldn't use. He'd sold some of those restaurant guys 3,000 menus and they were able to use maybe 40."

That was the beginning of the biggest menu printing operation in the country.

"Yeah, we're in all the states and a lot of other places," Cornelius said. His menus are identifiable by a small VC logo printed near the bottom.

How many restaurants are clients? "I wouldn't have any idea." In the thousands? "Oh, yeah, easy," Cornelius said, indicating a wallful of client folders.

Much of Cornelius' success has come about due to his tinkering and innovative touch.

Among his patented ideas are Rediclips, those little plastic strips fastened to the tops of menus that usually carry an advertising message and serve as holders for "daily specials."

You know those pictures of hamburgers, club sandwiches and other meals that adorn a lot of menus? The process by which they are affixed belongs to Cornelius.

A machine that attaches the pictures is a Rube Goldberg-looking device slapped together by Cornelius and his workers. Is it patented? "Oh, I think it is, I'm not sure."

While Cornelius entertains no ideas about retiring, he would like to get away from inventions, or so he said. "But the damn things (ideas) come to me all the time and foul me up." About retirement: "Nah, I don't think so. What would I do, sit around scratching?"

While the folksy Cornelius and his West Texas, small-town operation throw off an aura of the primitive, a glance into the company's computer graphics room quickly dispels such a notion. His 85 employees take home about $12,000 a week and last year he gave out $28,000 in Christmas bonuses.

Business must be good, right? "Oh yeah, we got all we can handle."

He's into the refinement now of a diet card for use by nursing homes that lists individual patient diet restrictions and preferences. The whole thing can be washed in a dishwasher.

"One of the guys in the back came up with it and sent out some feelers without telling me and they all came back positive," Cornelius said. "I gave him $5,000 for the idea."

"The he designed a holder for the cards, so I gave him another $2,000."

MHS YOUTH CHATTER Everybody's set for Howdy Week

By VALERIE VAN PELT, JANE FORSYTH and CECILY SHULL

HOWDY! Next week is "Howdy Week" and we are going to celebrate it by electing Howdy Week favorites next Thursday. Nominations will be taken on Tuesday.

Parents, you too can get involved in Howdy Week. Come to Open House Monday night, and say HOWDY to the teachers!!!! The house opens at 7:30 p.m.!

Bulldogs, the Howdy Week dance will be Friday, Sept. 29, at the Youth Center. It is a costume dance. Come and get friendly between 8 p.m. and 12 midnight.

The dance last week was a blast, and we look forward to even more fun this Friday night after the Bulldogs stomp Lubbock Monterey here. YC members get in for only 50-cents, but non-members must pay $2.50.

NOW - RAPPIN' from RASCO:
ALL YOUTH CENTER MEMBERS!!!!!! The YC membership cards that you purchase are for your use only. Why should you pay $7 for the PRIVILEGE that the membership gives you and then you GIVE it to someone for nothing????? The card is not to be used by ANYONE other than yourself.

At last week's dance several people were caught loaning their cards to "friends" (and I use the word loosely) to let them into the dance. The nominal price of the dance for members is one of the PRIVILEGES that being a member gives you. This not only hurts the center in the area of money, it would make me, as a paid member, very angry.

At all YC-sponsored dances in the future, the cards will be checked even more closely than last week. Anyone caught with someone else's card will not be allowed into the dance or the Y.C. The person loaning his card will be suspended from the Y.C. for at least TWO WEEKS.

Carry your card with you. ONLY members will be allowed in the Y.C. during lunch, after school, any time except at the dances (or other special events that will be announced.)

TTTTTTTTThat's all from RASCO!!!!

100 CLUB MEMBERS: Ya'll will set up for the after-game dance Friday at 4 P.M. BE THERE!!!!

CONGRATULATIONS to the National Honor Society Officers who were elected last week: President, Nancy Spaug; vice president, Mike Young; secretary, Gayanne Gaines, and treasurer, Jeff Spangler. We know ya'll will do a great job! GOOD LUCK!!!!

Don't miss the great drama production: "A COMPANY OF WAYWARD SAINTS!" The cast includes Bob Glenn, Dode Harvey, Connie Velasco, Matt Vaughn, Mark White, Johnny Morgan, Melinda McClain, Debbie Guerry and Greg Ball. The performances are scheduled for Sept. 28, 29 and 30. They will begin at 8 p.m. Buy your tickets NOW!! The acting style is similar to that of Saturday Night Live, so ya'll COME and have a few laughs!!

Remember, Sophs—Ya'll elect class officers Wednesday. You have only one more day to sign up, so please DO IT!!

Saturday, our super volleyball team takes on Palo Duro and Tascosa High at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., respectively. Come and cheer our girls on to victory!!!!

Don't forget the big football game on Friday at 8 p.m. Our Super Dogs take on Lubbock Monterey at Memorial Stadium. After the victory, come to the super after-game dance from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. See ya'll there!!!!

The Junior Rotarians this week are Paula Rabb and Bobby Floyd. The Junior Lioness is Valerie Van Pelt. Congratulations!!

RISE & SHINE—Don't forget the pep rally at 8 a.m. Friday, so we can get ready to POUNCE ON THE PLAINSMEN!

V.V.P., J.E.F. & C.D.S.
P.S. Hey, Rebs!!!! Congratulations on those two super pre-district wins!!!! Do it again Friday night against Plainview. ROLL OVER 'EM, REBS!!!!

Saratoga repair costs draw fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy could save as much as $95 million by sending the aircraft carrier Saratoga to Newport News, Va. instead of Philadelphia for an overhaul, according to an unpublished report to Congress.

"The basic conclusion is that things have changed since the Navy made its original assumptions ... and the Navy should reassess" the situation, said one source familiar with the report by the General Accounting Office.

The source said $95 million was "in the ballpark" of the estimated savings.

The report by the congressional auditing office is scheduled to be released to the public on Friday by Rep. Paul Trible, a Virginia Republican whose district includes Newport News, home of a huge private ship building company.

Navy officials say they are re-examining the decision, which involved political factors as well as cost figures.

Officials estimate that the estimated $500 million cost for the work will provide about 2,600 shipyard workers with jobs for more than two years.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale announced on April 14 that the Saratoga would be sent to Philadelphia for overhaul. The announcement, which normally would have been made by the Pentagon, was seen as an attempt by the Carter administration to make up for a broken campaign promise.

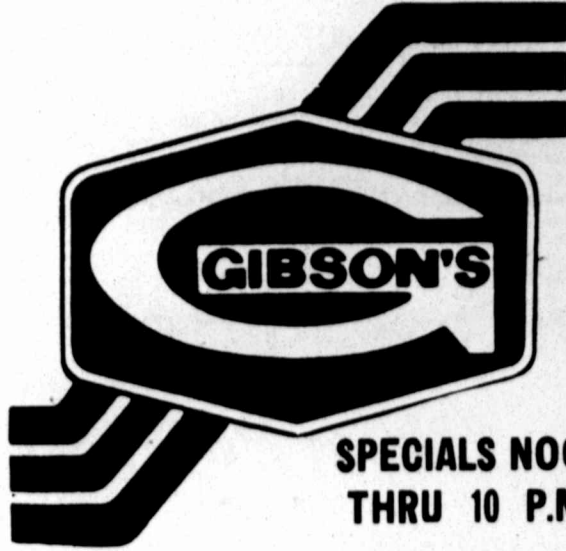

On the day before the 1976 election, then-vice presidential candidate Mondale had promised publicly to Philadelphia-area voters that a Carter administration would keep open the Army's Frankford arsenal, slated to be closed. But the Pentagon announced after the election it would close the facility anyway.

Work on the conventionally-powered Saratoga, commissioned in 1956, is expected to begin in late 1980. It is intended to extend the life of the carrier another 15 years.

Navy officials say the Pentagon did not solicit bids from public firms before it made its original decision. They also say that the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. is expressing more interest in the work now than it was earlier.

Trible, who said political pressure was involved in the decision, asked the GAO for a report on which shipyard would be less costly.

Ted Cook

Ted Cook will speak

Ted Cook of Houston, manager of Stratigraphic Services for Shell Oil Co., will be the speaker for the Tuesday meeting of the West Texas Geological Society in the Midland Hilton.

His topic will be "Exploration History of the South Texas Lower Cretaceous Carbonate Platform."

Persons planning on attending the meeting, which gets under way at 11:30 a. m., can make reservations by 5 p. m. Friday at the West Texas Geological Society office.

Cook earned a degree in Geology at the University of Utah, and received a masters degree in Paleontology at the University of California at Berkeley.

He joined Shell Oil Co. in 1950 as a micropaleontologist at Ventura, Calif. In 1953, he transferred to Corpus Christi and began a study of the Tertiary and Cretaceous of South and Central Texas. In 1955, as division stratigrapher, he worked on the early studies of the reef trend exploration.

After short assignments in Miami, Fla., and in Houston, he returned to Corpus Christi as division geologist. Similar assignments followed in Houston in the onshore and offshore division, and in 1969 he was assigned to the head office as senior staff geologist. He was named to his present position in 1976.

Subsidiary organized

HOUSTON (AP) — A new subsidiary has been formed by Coastal States Gas Corp. to search for new natural gas supplies.

New supplies found by Border Exploration Co. would be offered to Lovaca Gathering Co. If an out-of-court agreement is finalized for settlement of $1.6 billion in damage suits filed against Lovaca by some of its customers.

Coastal States has scheduled a special Nov. 10 shareholders meeting to consider the settlement under which Lovaca would be spun off as part of a new and independent firm, Valero Energy Corp.

The settlement terms also provide for Coastal States to spend about $180 million over a 15-year period to find gas supplies for Lovaca.

A Coastal States spokesman said Border Exploration, with headquarters in Houston, already has a gas test drilling at a depth of about 13,000 feet in Wharton County and that any gas discovered will be offered to Lovaca.

Border Exploration has district offices in Houston, Corpus Christi, and Midland, and may open similar offices in Dallas, San Antonio, and Abilene.

Soviets begin massive mobilization for search

TULSA, Okla.—The Soviet Union has begun a massive mobilization of equipment and workers to avert a seemingly inevitable oil production decline during the 1980s, the Oil & Gas Journal reports.

The main objective is to increase drilling in Western Siberia's Tyumen Province, where production far outstrips all other oil and gas areas of the USSR. An intensive effort is under way to speed second-stage development of the region's oil reserves, the Journal says in its Sept. 18 issue.

Soviet news media are promoting a nationwide "Socialist competition" campaign calling on factories to "deliver western Siberia's orders ahead of schedule, with high-quality workmanship."

Besides giving Tyumen top priority for new exploration, drilling, pipeline and production equipment, Russia is transferring to western Siberia many drilling and rig building crews that previously worked in the nation's Volga-Ural and other older petroleum provinces.

The mobilization is taking place at an almost frantic pace for a simple reason: Oil output by the world's No. 1 producer is about to reach a plateau.

Natural gas bill's fate in House may be cloudy

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The natural-gas bill backed by the White House may be cruising toward a Senate victory but its fate in the House remains clouded, according to a top supporter of the plan.

Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., says the proposal to lift price controls on newly discovered gas by 1985 may face more difficulty in the House than previously expected.

Sharp, one of the drafters of the gas-pricing compromise, was selected this week by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to head the effort

Reopener potentials

Master Drilling Co. of Abilene has reopened the Bloodworth, North (5650 Canyon) field in Coke County with recompletion of its No. 1 Exxon-Walker.

The operator also completed its No. 2 Exxon-Walker in the same field.

No. 1 Exxon-Walker was completed for a daily flow of 43 barrels of 47-gravity oil per day, through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 5,698 to 5,706 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 1,990-1. The pay was fractured with an unreported amount.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 305, block 1A, H&T survey and three miles east of Silver.

The Canyon sand was topped at 4,990 feet on ground elevation of 2,162 feet.

Total depth is 6,000 feet and 4 1/2-inch pipe was landed on bottom. The plugged back depth is 5,890 feet.

No. 2 Exxon-Walker, one location east of No. 1, was finished for a daily flow of 67 barrels of 46.5-gravity oil, through a 12/64-inch choke and perforations from 5,690 to 5,704 feet. The zone was fractured with an unreported amount.

Wellsite is 1,797 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 305, block 1A, H&T survey.

Total depth is 5,950 feet and plugged back depth is 5,910 feet. Four and one-half-inch casing is set at 5,797 feet.

The Canyon sand was topped at 5,220 feet on ground elevation of 2,165.2 feet.

API raps land plan

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Proposals to set millions of acres of western lands aside as wilderness and other preserves have been criticized by the head of the American Petroleum Institute, who says public lands are needed to develop energy resources.

"How ironic it is that at a time when the United States should be expanding opportunities to develop more domestic energy, proposals are being made to close the doors on those opportunities," Frank Ickard said Wednesday.

Ickard was referring to plans to set aside 62 million acres of land in Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Utah and another 170 million acres in Alaska and 11 western states.

If those lands are tapped, America could produce 75 percent of its oil needs, he said.

"Just at a time that we ought to have flexible, balanced policies to serve the diversity of interests in our nation, policies are being developed to serve an area of narrow interest," he said.

Accelerated development of western Siberian fields may slow the decline in Soviet oil output growth during the next two years, but it will take big discoveries to prevent a sharp drop by 1985.

A minimum decline of 1 million to 1.5 million barrels a day is shaping up for 1981-85, the Journal says. That would put the USSR's crude-plus-condensate output below 11 million barrels a day and well under the July 1978 level of 11.445 million barrels a day.

Conversely, gas flow is exceeding goals and is expected to equal or surpass the official 1980 target of nearly 15.36 trillion cubic feet. Output is expected to increase by at least 1 trillion cubic feet a year through 1985 and probably into the 1990s, the Journal reports.

The gas share in total Soviet fuel production increased from 23.1 percent in 1976 to 24 percent in 1977 and is expected to continue upward through the 1980s. On an equivalent basis, gas production is likely to come close to oil output by 1985.

to drum up House support for the plan.

"We consider that we have a major battle ahead of us," Sharp said in an interview. He said the same type of all-out lobbying campaign waged in the Senate must be repeated in the House if the bill is to survive.

Sharp said that just because the House readily approved an earlier version of Carter's energy program in 1977 does not necessarily mean it will deliver a repeat performance once it delivers a repeat performance once it delivers the natural gas bill from the Senate.

"Certainly no one wants to take anything for granted," he said. "We'd be foolish if we did." He noted that the same coalition of conservative Republicans and consumer-oriented liberals opposing the bill in the Senate are working to defeat it in the House.

Sharp said that the House is now about evenly divided on the natural gas issue.

With this in mind, the White House has already begun its sales pitch to House members.

"There is no overconfidence on the part of this administration," agreed Jim Bishop, a spokesman for Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

Bishop said there have been a number of White House breakfasts with House members aimed at winning votes for the bill.

"We're in for a lot of hard work. I think everyone recognizes that," Bishop said.

Meanwhile, Senate supporters of the deregulation bill — which President Carter claims is vital to the nation's energy future — say they now have enough votes to pass the measure in a vote set for next Wednesday.

Although the plan faced stiff initial opposition in the Senate, a heavy lobbying campaign orchestrated by the White House managed to turn things around — producing a 20-vote margin of victory for the administration.

Smuggled camera records life in internment camp

By MARK JONES
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The train was headed north from Los Angeles in 1942, rumbling through the desert and into the cold shadow of the Sierra. One of the hundreds of people aboard, destined for a Japanese internment camp, was Toyo Miyatake, husband, father, photographer.

Naturally, worry, fear, anger showed on the face of the man. He, his family and neighbors had to abandon their homes to live in numbered tarpaper-covered barracks in the middle of a wilderness near Lone Pine, Calif., for the duration of World War II.

But another expression appeared on his face. A smile! Toyo Miyatake's face wore the almost imperceptible, paper-thin smile of a man with a great secret.

Of course, the secret of photographer Toyo Miyatake has long since been revealed. In spite of a wartime caveat forbidding Japanese to possess cameras in this country, Miyatake smuggled a lens into the Manzanar internment camp and became the only person to make a photographic diary while living behind the barbed wire.

Miyatake, an established Los Angeles commercial portrait photographer in 1942, would shrug in later years and say only that his obsession with recording life in an internment camp was his "historic duty."

Historians have since agreed that Miyatake's secret diary was worth the trouble. His work has been the subject of museum exhibitions, is on file with the Special Collections of the University of California, Los Angeles, and has, in the words of the Los Angeles Museum of Natural History archivist Bill Mason, "filled in gaps in the national record."

Toyo Miyatake, 83, a resident of Los Angeles since 1909, was recently honored at a testimonial dinner in Los Angeles. It was sponsored by the Friends of Little Tokyo Arts, a new civic organization.

Miyatake also served as grand marshal in the downtown parade for Nisei Week.

Both recent affairs coincided with the 33rd anniversary of the end of World War II, when the Miyatake family — the photographer, his wife Hiro, their three sons and daughter — prepared to leave Manzanar Relocation Camp to begin fitting together the pieces of their lives.

Miyatake, youngest of three sons of a Buddhist monk, was born in southern Japan in 1895. His father emigrated to America sometime later and was not able to send for his family for 14 years. Later they lived in an area of Los Angeles then known as Japan town, and ran a small, thriving confectionary shop.

The elder Miyatake prohibited his son from taking up the life of an artist because, as the latter recalled, "artists do not make a good living." So, with the money young Toyo saved working in his father's shop ($3 a week, baking Japanese delicacies), the young man bought a $26 portrait camera and enrolled in a six-month photographic course in downtown Los Angeles.

Toyo Miyatake, known affectionately among friends as "Toyo-san," hasn't been separated from photography since those days in the early 1920s. Today his is the oldest portrait studio in Los Angeles' Little Tokyo district.

Once a student and friend of famed photographer Edward Weston, Miyatake also has been the teacher of many talented young Asian artists. In the 1920s he apprenticed a young Chinese prizefighter by the name of James Wong Howe. Later, of course, Howe would become an Academy Award-winning cinematographer.

Toyo Miyatake, quiet and soft-spoken in his fragile 80s, recently sat in the graying light of the rear of his photo studio and recalled the confused period just after the outbreak of the war. He said when Pearl Harbor was attacked in December, 1941, he and his family began carefully storing away the equipment in his studio. He said they half-expected the Japanese community to be rounded up by American military authorities.

Indeed, two months after war was declared President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed into law Executive Order 9066, consigning 110,000 Japanese on the West Coast — most of them American citizens — to one of 10 hastily built internment camps in the deserts and mountains of the Western United States.

The Miyatakes gave their new car to a Japanese who preferred living on the East Coast over internment, rented their home to a physician and began stamping all their belongings with their new government number — 9975 — in anticipation of their evacuation.

By March, 1942, the Miyatakes were on the crowded train bound for Manzanar with only those belongings they could carry. One morning they disembarked at the gate of the big, barbed-wire compound along U.S. Highway 395 at the foot of the Sierra. The air had a frosty bite: snow lay in patches on the ground.

Tucked away deep inside Miyatake's warm winter coat was his "secret." The one even his wife did not know about.

"I was lucky," he recalled. "The Army find my film holder in my suitcase. But they let me keep it because they see I have no camera. And they didn't find my lens."

Within a few weeks, using the smuggled 150-millimeter portrait lens and wood from a wild apple orchard in camp, the photographer and a fellow internee built a handsome box camera that resembled an oversized lunch pail (in fact, in the 1975 TV adaptation of the book, "Farewell to Manzanar," the script called for the Miyatake character to lug his camera around as though it was a lunch pail).

That didn't happen in real life, however, Miyatake says.

He explained that once the illegal camera had been built he prowled the Sierra camp — an enormous compound with row after row of tarpaper-covered barracks — looking for scenes of ordinary daily activities, scenes of fellow Japanese at work and play; nothing of military significance. He shot sparingly, making do with the few sheets of black and white film and chemicals he could get mailed to him from his old studio supplier in Los Angeles. (Internees regularly received mail from the outside and routinely did their shopping through the Sears mail-order catalog.)

Miyatake said he knew it would be only a matter of time until camp authorities caught on to what he was doing. Meanwhile, he kept up his photographic diary.

he had shot thousands of pictures of life inside the largest of the nation's 10 internment camps. There are scenes of school graduations, Japanese festivals, weddings, picnics, baseball games, gardening, farming, scenes of old Japanese immigrants idling in the shade, young men listening to jazz on the radio or embracing their parents just before being bused off to fight for the American Army in Europe; scenes of kids with cardigan sweaters and white cotton shirts and blouses, strolling the dust-blown camp with armloads of school books.

In spite of Miyatake's few somber photographs — such as the picture of three young boys staring resentfully through barbed wire, or the picture depicting the funeral of a Japanese-American soldier killed at the Battle of the Bulge — the preponderance of the photographer's work reveals the lighter side of one of the most deeply controversial episodes in 20th-century American history.

Museum archivist Bill Mason said that a few years ago many younger Japanese criticized Miyatake's work for being shot, as he put it, "through rose-colored glasses." For example, Miyatake is not known to have recorded the two-day "sugar riot" that left at least two persons dead at Manzanar in the winter of 1943 (a mob of 2,000 internees protesting alleged sugar blackmarketing by camp officials was dispersed when military police fired into the crowd). Nor did his photographs reflect the internal strife that developed among some internees over the divided loyalties to Japan and the United States.

"The fact that many young Japanese have been disappointed in not finding any tangible evidence of camp repression or unhappiness in Miyatake's pictures is beside the point. The Manzanar photographs are by an insider, and for that reason alone they are considered historically important."

"Just because the pictures look as though some people enjoyed their years at Manzanar doesn't subtract from their (the pictures') historic value."

The photographer observed that "(many) young people think that the camps are gloomy, like (Nazi) concentration camps. But that is not so. It is just like another Little Tokyo at Manzanar. People there are happy."

Indeed, both the tree and old Miyatake are still producing fruit. Currently the photographer is working on a book about early Japanese immigrants like himself. "There is so much to do...so much to do," he says. "I am 83 and I have to hurry now." He sports a car and wore a black beret, continued to produce his stylized portraits — author Thomas Mann and Japan's Crown Prince Akihito were among his subjects. Along the way his Manzanar pictures earned accolades from a variety of public officials, and from the Emperor of Japan.

The photographer's wife died in the winter of 1972. Eight months later, while painting her portrait from memory, Miyatake collapsed with a near-fatal stroke. "Toyo-san" has since recovered, but leaves most of his studio duties to his sons and nephews.

Last of spruce gum makers still busy

FIVE ISLANDS, Maine (AP) — As far as Gerald F. Carr knows, he's the last of the spruce gum makers, selling little packets of "Kennebec Spruce Gum" to strong-jawed chewers in all 50 states.

And when the 61-year-old retired railroad conductor decides to give up his business, the only way for customers to get a fresh supply may be to pick it off the trees themselves.

Indians were the first to chew the raw gum — the dried sap of the spruce tree. Old-time woodsmen and hunters followed.

Maine's spruce gum industry boomed around the turn of the century. The woods yielded a 150-ton harvest of raw spruce gum, and a $300,000 business for the "diggers" who collected it from the trees.

Today, working from a one-time schoolhouse at Five Islands, Carr produces a ton or more of the amber-colored nuggets every year.

"It's a hobby now," he said. "When you're retired, you have to have something to do. That's why I keep it going."

The decline of the spruce forests and the shortage of diggers contributed to the industry's decline, and Carr is forced to buy most of his raw gum from two diggers in Nova Scotia.

Using an old recipe handed down from his wife's grandfather, Carr has been turning out the gum since 1940. Paraffin and pine and spruce gum resin are mixed with raw spruce gum and bark in a large cauldron, then boiled for hours at 240 degrees. The bark eventually is skimmed off, and the mixture emits the heady fragrance of forests and turpentine.

When the gum has cooled, Carr hangs it from a meat hook and pulls it, just like taffy. Then it's run through an antique hand-cranked molder and dusted with cornstarch.

Carr takes the nuggets back to his home in Portland, where they're packaged, seven or eight to the box, then shipped throughout the country and even overseas.

The folksy packets, with a red drawing of an Indian and the slogan "From the Forests of Maine," are familiar items in New England country stores and gift shops that cater to tourists.

"Some places really stick it to the customers," said Carr. "They charge up to 35 cents. I think 20 cents is good enough."

Some people say spruce gum can cure maladies ranging from motion sickness to arthritis, but Carr puts no stock in such claims. "I've got arthritis. It doesn't help me any," he said.

The job is time-consuming — "I don't know how I ever found the time when I was with the railroad" — but not without its rewards.

"It put my son and daughter through college. And I always had the cars I wanted," he allowed.

But diggers able and willing to provide a steady supply of raw gum have become harder to find, and Carr said the business "is not profitable enough to bother with."

His children and their families aren't interested in taking over the business. Carr said when he gives it up, it will probably "just pass into nowhere."

"Should you get hold of a nugget, Carr suggests you take your time getting to know it.

"Hold it in your mouth for a while to warm it up. If you don't wait until it's soft, it breaks all up and you have to gather it together.

"Everybody doesn't like it. If they do like it, that's the ones I do the business on."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Watch for, heed signs of cancer

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: What are the warning signs of endometrial cancer? It is on my mind because an old friend who is about my age—early 50s—has just discovered she has it and is about to be operated on.—D.G.

DEAR D.G.: The most important warning sign is any abnormal vaginal bleeding—bleeding between periods, heavy bleeding during them, and especially any bleeding after menopause. Unusual bleeding should always be reported to your doctor immediately. Endometrial cancer, which affects the body of the uterus, rarely occurs before 40, and is diagnosed mostly after 50. So a woman in her middle years should make a point of having regular pelvic examinations. Particularly if she falls into one of these risks groups: late menopause (after 55).

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: When should children be vaccinated?—Mrs. B.V.

DEAR MRS. B.V.: Babies are born with a "built-in" immunity, but it doesn't last very long. As the immunity wears off, vaccination is necessary to give continuing protection. It is important to have it done without delay so that the child is not vulnerable to disease. Delaying vaccination until the child gets older is a big mistake because it leaves the child unprotected at the time he or she is in the most danger.

Experts predict that if an epidemic strikes it will hit hardest in children under four years of age. The best time for vaccination varies from one vaccine to the next. The following schedule is recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics, a professional organization of physicians who specialize in the care of infants, children, and adolescents.

2 months, D-T-P (diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis); oral polio vaccine.

4 months, D-T-P; oral polio vaccine.

6 months, D-T-P.

15 months, measles vaccine

15 months, Rubella vaccine, or a single injection combined vaccine for all three diseases given at 15 months.

18 months, D-T-P booster; oral polio booster.

School Entry, D-T-P booster oral polio booster

*Rubella or mumps vaccine alone may be given as early as 12 months of age.

Rhodesia refuses to admit Canadian news correspondent

TORONTO (AP) — Peter Kent, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's new African correspondent, was refused entry to Rhodesia when he arrived to begin his first assignment in that continent.

Trina McQueen, a CBC news executive, said Kent was met by security officials Monday at the Salisbury airport who told him he was not welcome and ordered him back on the plane. He returned to London.

Mrs. McQueen said a

CBC producer, cameraman and soundman were granted one-week visas when they arrived in Salisbury Saturday, and a Rhodesian information officer who was asked about the Kent incident Tuesday said, "There has been some kind of mistake."

Pope beginner

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul I, describing himself as "just a beginner," told American bishops from four Western states today that working to save troubled marriages must be a top priority.

The eight bishops from Montana, Washington, Idaho and Alaska were making a periodic visit to the Vatican.

"Although we are new in the pontificate — just a beginner — we want to choose topics that deeply touch the life of the church and that will be very relevant to your episcopal ministry," the pope told them. "We believe that the Christian family is a good place to start."

He stressed the importance of defending the family and said: "In particular, the indissolubility of Christian marriage is important; although it is a difficult part of our message, we must proclaim it faithfully as part of God's word, part of the mystery of faith."

Look like a loser to promote swindle

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you're trying to flim-flam an opponent into playing low when he'd be better off playing high, one of your best maneuvers is to look like a man (or a woman) who is just about to make a losing guess.

Opening lead — ♠ 5

You take the queen of hearts and note that you need four tricks in the minor suits. If both sides played straight-forward bridge, you'd lead a club or a diamond and West would take his ace and force out the other heart stopper. Whenever you led the other minor suit, West would take his other ace and defeat the contract with the rest of the hearts.

The only way to avoid this sad fate is to appeal to West's greed. You can imitate a bad guesser if you lead the ten of clubs at the second trick.

CANNOT SEE QUEEN

Since West cannot see the queen of clubs he may think that you are about to lose a finesse to his partner's queen. If West plays low at the second trick, your ten of clubs will win.

Then you switch to diamonds and make your game with three diamonds, three spades, two hearts and the stolen club trick. Never snicker when you execute this play; you never know when you'll fall for this kind of swindle yourself.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: S-KJ5; H-AQ6; D-J1085; C-Q102. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 2 NT, promising 13 to 15 points in high cards, balanced distribution and strength in each of the unbid suits.

Her accident answer to prayer

MIAMI (AP) — Barbara Freund was always one of the brightest in her class at Brooklyn. By the time she was 12, she had skipped two grades and was busy helping slower classmates when she was not breezing through her own ninth-grade work. She prayed she could pursue a career of helping the handicapped.

But an automobile accident in 1966, as her family drove north from a Florida holiday, left her paralyzed and speechless. Her doctors said she would always be that way. They were wrong.

While her brain had been badly damaged and her thought and movement suppressed, she and her family drew from deeper resources.

"I felt in some way the accident was God's answer to my prayers," she says today.

Aching all over, Barbara learned to move her arms, to pull herself along, eventually to walk on legs that hung useless before. She learned to speak again, laboriously trying to make words over and over.

"My mother simply wouldn't let me give up," she said. "She kept saying to me, 'You can do it, you can do it.' I heard those words even in my sleep."

Returning to school, she was told she would have to start at the level of a 5-year-old. Some teachers had little sympathy.

"Can you imagine," she said, "I'd never made a grade lower than a 97. Now I was making zeros. It was heartbreaking. At night, I'd try to study and the next day I couldn't remember a thing."

Her family moved to Miami in 1967, and Barbara finished high school and Miami-Dade Community College. At Florida International University she majored in special education.

"I felt that there would be no problem in getting a job," she said. "I am a living example that people with disabilities can be helped."

However, when she looked for work she found her disabilities stood in her way. Her speech is still slow and her handwriting awkward.

"At first, this frustrated me," she said. "Then I decided to do private tutoring and sometimes I'm called to substitute teach. Now I'm not sure that I want to teach in a regular classroom setting. I have had so much success with the one-to-one tutoring I do."

There is more to Barbara's story. There is Sandy Levy, the commercial photographer she wed three months ago.

"I knew right away he was the one," she recalls of their meeting at a party.

Sandy ignored her that first night, but both turned up at another party. "This time, I plopped myself down next to him, and talked his head off," she said. Levy noticed.

"I saw the real Barbara," he says. "She was beautiful. I didn't see her handicap."

Lone survivors has many friends she doesn't even know

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Saddened by reports of her reclusive life and tragic brush with death, dozens of teen-age girls want to befriend Rachel David, the sole survivor of her family's mass suicide plunge from a hotel balcony last month.

Rachel, lying semi-conscious in LDS Hospital's intensive care unit, is unaware of the people she has touched. "We've had a lot of letters from teen-age girls who say they want to read to her, or talk with her and be her friend," said Karen Haeckel, a hospital spokeswoman. But the offers have been turned down because no one is allowed to see the 15-year-old.

Rachel's father, Immanuel David, proclaimed himself God and gathered a handful of believers who supported the David family in some of Salt Lake's most expensive hotel suites. Rachel and her six brothers and sisters did not go to public schools, never used a hotel's swimming pool, and never spoke without their father's permission. Meals were taken to their suite and the children were never seen without their parents.

On Aug. 3, after learning of David's suicide, his wife, also named Rachel, ordered or pushed her seven children from the 11th floor balcony of their suite before she jumped. Police said she could not live without her husband.

Her eldest daughter suffered extensive internal, leg and hip injuries.

She has been unconscious since the fall, only awakening sporadically to look around her hospital room.

Dr. Terry Clemmer, head of intensive care, said Wednesday that she probably will become fully conscious slowly. He does not believe she will remember much of what happened to her, at least not immediately. He said the hospital will do everything it can to protect her privacy and shelter her from a curious public.

The letters to Rachel have been forwarded to her grandmother, one of only three known living relatives. "She wanted to answer them all herself," Mrs. Haeckel said.

New York Times, Farber contempt citations upheld

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Supreme Court upheld the criminal contempt conviction of The New York Times and its reporter Myron A. Farber today for withholding notes in a murder case. The high court ordered Farber to report back to jail on Sept. 26.

The case has attracted national attention, and its outcome could set a precedent on freedom of the press. There was no immediate comment from Farber or The Times. Both were expected to appeal.

The court said in a 5-2 decision that Farber and The Times must obey a subpoena to turn over notes in the murder trial of Dr. Mario Jascavech who is charged in connection with three murders at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell.

The court rejected the newspaper's defense that the First Amendment protected their privilege to protect confidential sources. "In our view, the Supreme Court of the United States has clearly rejected this claim and has squarely held that no such First Amendment right exists," the opinion said.

The court said that although reporters must cooperate when subpoenaed in a trial, the media still has "first amendment protection." "They include, among others, the right to publish what the press chooses to publish, to refrain from publishing what it chooses to withhold, to seek out news in any legal manner and to refrain from revealing its sources except upon legitimate demand," the opinion said.

The decision said that the nation's highest court already has decided "the weighing and balancing" between a defendant's right to a fair trial and free press.

New Jersey's shield law, enacted by the Legislature to protect reporters' sources, must yield to the defendant's right to a fair trial and free press. The court said.

The court rejected the newspaper's defense that the First Amendment protected their privilege to protect confidential sources. "In our view, the Supreme Court of the United States has clearly rejected this claim and has squarely held that no such First Amendment right exists," the opinion said.

Be a Two-Time Winner

Le Car's Two-Time Winner Card can make you an instant winner—twice!

With Le Car's Two-Time Winner Card, there are no losers. Just come in and test-drive Le Car by Renault before Sept. 30, 1978 and you can pick up your Two-Time Winner Card. Simply rub the first square to see which of the above you've won for test-driving Le Car. Then rub the second square to see what you'll get when you buy Le Car (anything from an AM/FM Radio to a Sun Roof). In fact, you'll be a three-time winner by owning Le Car—the most fun you can have on four wheels. So come in for a test-drive before Sept. 30, 1978—not to find out whether you've won, but to find out what Le Car prices start at only $3630.*

At participating dealers. Licensed drivers only. Void where prohibited. Offer expires Sept. 30, 1978. No purchase or test-drive required. Winners pay local, state and federal taxes, if any. List of winners available on request. For detailed instructions see Two-Time Winner Card at your participating Renault dealer. *Price excludes transportation, dealer preparation and taxes. Stripe and Mag Wheels optional at extra cost. Renault USA, Inc. © 1978

When you buy a used car, what else do you get besides the car?

In a good restaurant, when you buy a dinner, you get more than just food. You get service, a pleasant atmosphere, and a feeling that the owners would like you to come back.

It's the very same way that we like to sell used cars. Since our reputation is more "on the line" when we sell a used car, you can be sure we'll do everything we can to make our used car customer a satisfied customer.
